North Vietnamese Pay Honor To Ho

By DANIEL SOUTHERLAND
SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh, in death, called today on the Vietnamese people to fight on to victory in their war against the "U.S. imperialists" in South Vietnam.
Ho's will was read at his funeral today by Duong first secretary of the North Vietnamese Communist party, who vowed his nation would intensify its efforts.
Le Duan's eulogy was read as North Vietnam gave Ho a hero's funeral that featured a 21-gun salute and low level passes by the North Vietnamese air force before 100,000 mourners, many of them leaders of the Communist world.
Shortly before the funeral Ho announced that Vice President Ton Duc Thien had succeeded Ho as acting president.
"Our people probably will have to sacrifice much more, but nonetheless it must be determined to fight the U.S. imperialists until complete victory," Ho's will said.
The U.S. imperialists surely will be defeated, and our nation surely will be reunified."

T. F. School Board To Back Code Enforcement

By O. A. (GUS) KELKER
Times-News Editor
It was the initial board meeting of the new school year and a session which was expected to be more or less routine developed into one in which a wide range of subjects was discussed and detailed action was taken in several instances.
Subject matter ranged from adoption of a "drug policy" for the Twin Falls school system to approval of payment of bills totaling $50,000 from the general fund and $147,000 from other funds. It saw official action to "back up" action of school officials in seeing that the discipline policy and dress code for the high school is adhered to and also the pressing of a strong demand that county commissioners, rather than the local school system, provide for and pay the salary of an attendance officer. Along this line Superintendent Ernest Ragland, trustees and legal council were in session with the commissioners this afternoon.
The so-called "drug policy" which was adopted by the trustees was short but to the point.

It stated that "the unauthorized possession or use of narcotic drugs in a crime under the laws of Idaho and if occurring on school property or at a school activity will be severely dealt with by school authorities."
In discussing the adoption it was pointed out that school trustees would immediately seek aid from police and other law authorities in any case where the policy was to be enforced.
In backing up school authorities as they follow the discipline and dress code, it was felt that in all probability only one might cause some disturbance. This was item number eight of the discipline policy having to do with smoking, it rules that there will be no smoking in any school building or on the campus and that any violator will be suspended from school for the first offense and recommended for expulsion for a second offense.
But in any event the trustees will back the officials administering the code. As Superintendent Ernest Ragland said: "There is no one having any code unless it is enforced and unless we back the people enforcing it." And

Raiders Inflict Heavy Losses On Arab Foes

TEL AVIV (UPI)—Israeli tanks landed from assault craft in Egypt in the biggest attack since the 1967 Middle-East War and blasted a 30-mile front south of the Suez Canal, officials announced today.
An Israeli spokesman said the raid inflicted "dozens" of casualties and caused heavy damage to Egyptian military installations including radar stations used to spot attacking Israeli planes.
Israel reported one of its aircraft was shot down by Egyptian anti-aircraft during the raid. Cairo Radio also reported dogfights today along the Suez Canal but gave no details.
The first naval battle since the 1967 War had been reported in the Gulf of Suez below the city of Suez today with both Egyptian and Israeli ships having sunk several of the other side's motor torpedo boats.
The Israeli military spokesman said the "attack" began Monday night, when Israeli reported its motor torpedo boats had destroyed two Egyptian boats—batteries just one of its own—while the Israeli crew, because of an accidental explosion aboard. (Cairo today claimed the destruction of an Israeli torpedo boat and its crew.)
Military observers said the strike was aimed at cutting the "lifeline" of Egyptian forces in the Suez Canal. The two sides have the "greatest concentration of Israeli power there since the battle of El Alamein in World War II."
The spokesman said the Israeli raiders landed south of Suez, and Ras Zafarna, 64 miles south of the city that is the southern end of the canal. (Heavy Israeli artillery and mortars opened up today against Egyptian positions in the Suez area, Cairo reported.)
The spokesman said assault boats landed the tanks on the Egyptian coast of the Gulf of Suez opposite the Israeli-held Sinai Desert and that Israeli troops smashed through Egyptian guardposts in the area.
The spokesman said the Israeli armor crunched 50 miles through Egyptian positions, destroying them as they went. Dozens of the enemy were killed or wounded in the raid, the spokesman said.

Jack Snow, president of the local underwriters, presented Mr. Blaine a certificate of appreciation at the close of the meeting.
Mr. Blaine explained the work being done by insurance investigators, noting they must have their reports on fact files which will stand up in district court.

Cape Cod Menaced By Storm

BOSTON (UPI)—Hurricane Gerda, picking up speed and power as it moved up the Atlantic, posed a threat to Cape Cod today.
Gerda, packing winds up to nearly 90 miles an hour, was expected to hit the southeastern Massachusetts mainland about noon.
The Massachusetts Civil Defense and the weather bureau urged evacuation of low-lying beaches in a 100-mile stretch from Fall River to Provincetown on the tip of Cape Cod as a precaution against anticipated high tides and strong winds.
The weather bureau said the hurricane was about 160 miles east of the southern Maryland coast at 8 a.m. (EDT) and moving north-northeast at about 10 miles per hour.
The forecast was for tides five to 10 feet above normal. Civil defense agencies were put on standby alert as hurricane warnings were posted from Block Island, R.I., to Eastport, Maine.
Emergency procedures were taken well in advance of the hurricane. Coast Guard helicopters evacuated light stations at Fryling, Pan Shoals and Diamond Head Shoals. Four men are assigned to each station.

Bids Opened On 'Renewal' Demolition

Bids for the demolition of seven buildings in the downtown Urban-Renewal project were opened Monday but action is pending.
James Kelsch, executive director of the agency, said, "The agency will want to study the bids before making any decision."
He said various technical matters involving the demolition of the buildings concerned are being studied at his office.
A full release to the news media will be made at the moment the bid is awarded," he said.
Two bids were received. The buildings to come down are the old Hoppy's Automotive Specialists at 143 Second Ave. N.; The Step-Gen Auto Parts Co. at 151 Second Ave. N.; all the buildings behind the new Bank of Idaho, and a building behind the present Bonanza Store on Main Avenue South.
Mr. Kelsch said he did not know when the bid would be awarded, but added he expected demolition to start sometime this month.
When the buildings are removed, the properties will be cleaned up and packed with dirt and maintained until the property can be sold and another building or in certain cases parking lots, can be constructed on the properties.

area. Mr. Burnett said the records for such cases have been transferred from the South Central Health Department office to the center's temporary office at 1043 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. Basically, the complex will include a training center for health care workers, a diagnostic and evaluation services. Other facilities include a kitchen and dining room, a laboratory and a small infirmary.
The architectural firm for the project, Hamill, Shaw and Associates, Boise, said the design concept is based on the creation of a home-like atmosphere. For this reason, the classrooms take the shape of a house, as a child might draw it. The special

An exterior play court is located at the entrance for supervision from the reception and waiting areas. The colors are predominantly white with wren accents.
The plan is based on repeating modules. The large modules are connected by a system of smaller modules which form the corridors and ancillary spaces. This system, the architect said, allows the building to take any shape or expand in any direction.
Mr. Burnett said his staff is complete, except for a psychologist. The staff nurse is Mrs. LuDeana Davis. Twin Falls, Nev. Clinton Harris, Las Vegas, Nev., has been hired as the speech and hearing specialist. He reports that the center will be turned and will be doing post graduate work. Mr. Blaine met with local insurance representatives Monday in Twin Falls for a luncheon meeting and review of new proposed insurance regulations.

The body of the controversial churchman was discovered a day earlier at the foot of a cliff in the Judean Desert where Christ fasted for 40 days. Pike had been missing in the desert for six days.

Pike, 59, smiled at times during the service conducted by John Downing, vice president of her husband's Holy Land Foundation for the Holy Land in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Hailey Chamber Wants Airport Improved, But No Tax Hike

HAILEY — Hailey Chamber of Commerce members agree with Chet Moulton, Idaho Aeronautics director, that Friedman Memorial Airport should be improved, but they are unanimously opposed to raising taxes to do it.

At a chamber meeting at the Hotel Hiawatha Monday afternoon, it was pointed out that the large increase in the county's valuation last year should bring in considerably more revenue.

In view of recent voter defeats of school mill levies, members felt it was useless to ask for an increase in the mill levy.

A letter was read from Mr. Moulton asking that a committee of 20 citizens "try out" the airport waiting room for space and facilities. He noted that Friedman airport ranks sixth in Idaho in use and that costs of improving the facilities, which are desperately needed, will be borne 50-50 by the state, Blaine County and city of Hailey.

Mr. Moulton suggested an increase in the county and city levies might be advisable.

Members agreed with Mr. Moulton that the larger waiting rooms and facilities are necessary to accommodate passengers leaving and arriving on the four different airlines now using the field.

The chamber will assist in attempting to fund the necessary expense by means other than an increase in the tax levy, it was voted.

D. A. V. Anderson, chamber president, named George Chou, Fritz Hedemard and Charles Hedemard to serve with him as a committee to meet with Blaine County commissioners to discuss the airport improvement program.

Two training sessions for persons wanting to learn correct use of the telephone were arranged for Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 16, by Mr. House, local manager of the Mountain States Telephone Co. He said the training class is to be held at the community center where it will answer the telephone properly.

Nixon Leads Nation In Mourning Dirksen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The body of Everett McKinley Dirksen returns today to the capital he frequently dominated during the weeks and legislative leadership.

President Nixon, a junior senator with Dirksen 18 years ago, led the official mourning with a brief eulogy scheduled at 10 a.m. EDT in the Capitol Rotunda.

A session was planned by Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., Dirksen's senior-in-law and a man arrested last Sunday for the possibility to succeed him as Senate Republican leader.

The Illinois senator, famed for his curly white hair and his ability to tickle the national conscience as a dapper horse heart attack, five days after undergoing lung cancer surgery.

His body will lie in state at the rotunda until noon Wednesday, then be moved to the National Presbyterian Church for a funeral service.

Thursday Dirksen's body will be flown to Illinois for graveside service and burial at his home town of Peoria.

Dirksen, 72, who was born to a farm family 73 years ago.

The public was invited to view Dirksen's closed casket in the rotunda from noon today until noon Wednesday. The scene—black-draped casket, military honor guard in slow and solemn march, dignitaries, a stream of quiet citizens—was familiar to millions who watched it on television.

Dirksen's son, Dwight D. Eisenhower III, lies in state in March.

Copper Prices Rise 10 Cents In New Round Of Increases

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kennecott Copper Corp. Monday announced a price increase of three cents a pound for primary copper, effective with shipments of Sept. 9.

Earlier in the day, Copper Range Co. posted a six-cent advance to 58 cents a pound.

Kennecott also moves a price for full mill electrolytic cathodes to 51 cents a pound. This is equal to 52 1/2 cents a pound for electrolytic wire bars, the most common copper products.

The Kennecott move, follows similar action by Phelps Dodge Corp., Amconco Co. and other producers.

Copper Co. that pushed their primary price to 52 cents a pound. It is the third round for the domestic market, the first bringing the price 10 cents higher than it was at the start of the year and 14 cents, or 27 percent higher than it was in an spring of 1968 when the industry emerged from a protracted "mine strike" and signed new long-term contracts providing for a six cent wage boost.

The price hikes on primary are being passed down along the line through the brass and wire mills to the producers and consumers of end products. New price hikes on television receivers, refrigerators and air-conditioning equipment, plumbing and heating equipment and other products have been posted in recent days.

Some semisubstantiated and flimsy products have risen a price even faster than the primary copper price this year. This has been because the domestic market has been unable to fill as much of the fabricators' requirements in the past two years as they did previously.

As a result, the fabricators, including captive brass and wire mills that are subsidiaries of the big copper producers,

Samuelson Cites Value Of Resources

MALAD (UPI) — Gov. Don Samuelson told a public hearing in Malad that the state must build up its resources to protect its tax base.

Samuelson, an announced candidate for reelection in 1970, is on a three-day trip into eastern Idaho. He plans to visit about 40 counties in his "take a government-to-the-people" campaign.

In Malad, Samuelson spoke at the public schools, then met with approximately 40 persons at a public hearing.

Samuelson said Monday the "closer we can keep government to the people, the better." He said the federal government took over local services because the state and local governments were unable to assume their responsibilities.

The governor and Orin Granger, district highway engineer for the state, will be in Malad on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Samuelson said that at the state meeting of governors he had brought up the federal land position, pointing out that 65 percent of Idaho's land belongs to the federal government.

Samuelson said eastern states who often have 80 to 90 percent of their land under their tax base want to lock the western states out of it.

"If we lock up the states for limited purposes only, this limits development of our resources and build up our economy."

Man On Moon Stamp Due Wednesday

The long-awaited moon-landing stamp will be on sale in the Twin Falls Post Office today, according to postal officials.

The extra-large 10-cent airmail stamp, made with a die taken to the moon by Apollo 11 astronaut Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin, depicts the historic first landing on the moon on Aug. 21, 1969.

The stamp is about twice the size of the usual airmail stamp.

The Post Office will "keep the presses running" to produce the moon landing stamp as opposed to the usual practice on commemorative stamps of printing a set number, officials said.

"We may run out of our first batch, but we'll have more soon," a spokesman said.

Apollo 12 Moon Rocket Eased Into Place At Cape Kennedy

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (UPI)—With the three astronauts who will man it eagerly looking on, the giant Apollo-12 moon rocket was rolled gently to the launch pad Monday in preparation for America's second moon landing mission next November.

Charles (Pete) Conrad, mission commander, summed up the "prior" feelings saying: "We're ready to go." "It looks good," he concluded as the 363-foot high space vehicle inched along over a three-and-one-half mile catwalk from the vehicle assembly building atop a large crawler transporter with tank-like treads.

"But it's not soon enough," Conrad complained of the scheduled Nov. 14 launch date.

Allen L. Bean, slated to accompany Conrad in new explorations of the moon's surface after the landing in a lunar module, commented that "we've got a good place to launch from here. Pete's got to find a good place to land (on the moon)."

Richard F. Gordon, who will pilot Apollo-12 in lunar orbit while the other two spend more than a day on the moon's surface and undertake two moon walks, said the November launch date was still "too far away" to get excited. "I've got 68 days to get excited in," he cracked.

All three astronauts were in high spirits and good humor. Dressed in civilian clothes, they posed for some 15 minutes for photographers. In front of the Saturn 5 rocket topped by the Apollo-12 space craft and the lunar module, as the huge space machine trundled lethargically towards Launch Pad A. The rollout began at 5:37 a.m. EDT, and took most of the day to cover the short distance from the assembly building.

Conrad and Bean are scheduled to land on the moon's ocean of storms and remain on the lunar surface for more than one day.

The Apollo-12 launch was originally planned for this month but then was pushed back until November. The first U.S. moon mission, by Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins, was launched last July and followed by Aldrin—set foot on the moon July 20.

Budget Hikes Are Approved By Agency

BOISE (UPI)—The State Tax Commission has granted three Idaho taxing units permission to increase revenues above the 104 per cent ceiling set by the first session of the 40th Legislature.

Revenue increases were granted to Canyon County, Wallace and American Falls. Requests from Bear Lake County and Marsing were denied after they failed to pursue the matter after their original requests.

Canyon County was granted a 17.64 per cent increase in revenue for the tax year 1969.

Under the new state law, local governmental units may not increase their revenues more than four per cent from one year to the next without approval of the commission.

Tax Commissioner Don Loveland said the county had requested $307,000, but the county had some additional surpluses which would keep it on a cash basis.

In granting the increase to Canyon County, the commission cited a "significant increased demand for county governmental services." William C. Norner, chairman of the County Board of Commissioners, said the ruling was a vindication of the commissioners' position in the county's fund balance of surpluses.

Oil Leases

No regulation code, short of an absolute ban on off-shore oil leases, can guarantee there will never be a repeat of the disastrous blow-out in Santa Barbara Channel. But the Interior Department's new code for off-shore oil drilling will make it mighty expensive for any company found to be derelict in such operations in the future.

Direct physical damage and the costs of cleanup operations will be the sole responsibility of the oil company involved. Geological information acquired by a company will be released on the spot if the department's representative feels such action to be in the public interest. Hearings will be held on the leases, providing opponents their day in court. And the department has retained the right to withhold all leases until it has been determined they will not be harmful to wildlife, natural beauty or recreation.

There is the added possibility that oil companies might be held liable by the courts for damages to "third" parties, such as hotels, whose business had been adversely affected by oil disasters. The department did not specifically sanction such damages in its new code, but neither did it disallow the oil companies' responsibility.

Only recognition that off-shore drilling is an important contributor to petroleum reserves prevented a more stringent code. A repeat of the Santa Barbara disaster could produce sentiment to overrule even that consideration.

Dump 'Em Anywhere

Just be firm! Don't let anyone tell you what to do. Just do things the way you want to and everyone else go hang.

Like throwing stuff out along the road or highway. Do what you want to do. Who cares what the town looks like just so long as you are getting your way.

If the place you live in is a pigpen then be sure that the rest of the town looks the same way. Who cares just as long as you are happy?

Like the picture which goes along with this column. It was taken by Mr. Spectator at an intersection in the north eastern part of the city.

Some individuals who pay no attention to rules of good taste had taken advantage of a stop at the stop sign at that point to empty the cigarette butts from the ashtray in their vehicle. They just opened the door and poured the stuff out.

With one easy motion they cleaned out their ashtray and made a mess of the intersection. That's really living!

And who cares? When it snows it will be all covered up and then, once more, good old Twin Falls will be the nice clean community most of us want to live in.

Too bad we have to have a few dopes around, isn't it?

BORN LOSERS

Say you're holding three deuces and are bluffing out by a pair of jacks. Does it mean anything more than that as a card player, you'd be better off sticking with solitaire?

Yes, according to a four-year study by a pair of university researchers. If you're a loser at poker, chances are you aren't playing the cards right in the game of life, either.

Prof. Thomas M. Martinez of California, Santa Clara University, and Robert Lafranchi, a graduate student who put himself through school as a denier, say they found a significant correlation between business and social success and success at the card table—and vice versa—in a four-year study of 300 poker players.

Winners, they say, tend to carry over to the game the same self-confident, outgoing, well-organized characteristics that make them successful in life. They play "primarily for the satisfaction of succeeding through personal skill," treating poker as "nothing a release nor an escape, but a way of life, a continuation of a game they thoroughly enjoy and master. They are good bluffers.

Losers, on the other hand, are short on confidence and self-discipline. They seek release from social tensions in poker but, in carrying over the characteristics that have led to business and personal disappointments, they are likely to repeat it on the table, the pattern of failure in life. Neither a fresh doorknocker nor a new den is going to do much for them.

It all makes a neat theory. But there's still a joker in the deck. What about chancers?

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK Summons Of The Governors

COLORADO SPRINGS — Behind the highly unusual summons to the 20 Democratic Governors issued to Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, the party's national chairman, are fundamental disagreements on party policy and how to rescue the Democrats from their present, highly demoralized state. This is one point of the recent conference here.

door Democratic griping session which laid the groundwork for the formal motion picture here (put by Utah's Calvin Rampton and seconded by North Carolina's freshman governor, Robert Scott) proved that Harris's first half-year as chairman has raised a serious question whether an incumbent U.S. Senator up for reelection himself for 1972 can perform aggressively as party chairman.

Some of the Democrats plomely gathered here in the exclusive Republican enclave felt that it may still be too early for frontal party attack on the Nixon administration. The Harris's reelection campaign in conservative Oklahoma is bound to blunt his blows against the Republicans.

TRAIL CREEK SUMMIT road had a "hard winter" during the 1968-69 season. Some of the results of that winter period are still in evidence as motorist leaves hair-valley and heads over the hills. But from a distance it looks much like any other mountain highway road obstruction. The picture on the left shows a motorist's view as a slide area is reached. Grading equipment has cleared an area large enough to permit through traffic but that's about all. Then take a look at the picture at the left. It's the same slide but looking at the face of the thing. That white stuff is snow. It has been there all summer and now there is little doubt but that it will be there all this winter, and come next spring—the spring of 1970—it will still be there. Covered with rocks and branches and debris the snow was insulated from the summer sun, with the result it all ended up as nature's ice box. The pictures were taken Monday.

Detroiters Regain Cool, Vote Today

DETROIT (UPI)—In the summer of 1967, Detroit was wracked by riots. Last summer, the city was batty about baseball. This year there has been a campaign for mayor and Detroiters have regained their cool.

Only about 40 per cent of Detroit's 707,837 registered voters are expected to cast enough votes to elect a mayor in today's primary election, despite a predicted hot-and-heavy battle over the issue of order vs. crime on the streets.

The battle just never developed, as backers of the four prime contenders for the job being vacated by Jerome P. Cavanagh plunged hard in their own bid to win.

But the race issue, still smoldering in the city's ghettos where burned-out, boarded-up buildings still stand two years later, burns below the surface in the candidacy of Richard M. Austin, 56, Detroit's first serious Negro contender for the mayoralty.

Besides Austin, the front runners are:

Roman S. Gribbs, 43, a lawyer and Wayne county sheriff, who has the endorsement of the powerful Detroit Police Officers Association and substantial support among white voters.

Mary V. Beck, 61, also a lawyer, and a 20-year veteran of the Common Council (City Council), a sharp-tongued Cavanagh foe and a "law-and-order" candidate.

Walter C. Shamie, 48, a bachelor advertising executive who was trounced by Cavanagh in 1965 and who is expected to run a distant fourth.

Austin, a soft-spoken, gentlemanly man, is one of three elected Wayne county auditors and has a distinguished record as an accountant and public servant.

He has valuable endorsements including those of the United Auto Workers and the nonpartisan, biracial Interfaith Urban Alliance.

The city's political observers expect that Austin will surface as one of the two finalists, with Gribbs or Miss Beck winning the other spot.

James Brown Denies Suit On Paternity

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—An attorney for Supri Singer, James Brown told a Superior Court Hearing Monday he would disprove a charge that the entertainer fathered the year-old son of a Sacramento woman.

Attorney James Quirk made the statement at the opening of a hearing on a paternity suit filed by Mary Florence Brown, 20, former president of Brown's Sacramento Fan Club.

Miss Brown, no relation to the singer, charged in the suit that her son, Michael Deon, was conceived Jan. 3, 1968, in a Burlingame Motor Hotel.

Quirk told the hearing he would present witnesses independent of the Brown entourage who would testify that Brown on that night was "not only not at the hotel in Burlingame but many miles away."

Brown appeared at the hearing clad in a custom-tailored, double-breasted suit.

Miss Brown's attorneys have said they will prove that Brown not only was the child's father but that an August 1968 $1,600 for a signed denial of sexual relations.

She is seeking $5,000 a month in temporary child support payments.

Gem Engineer Aid Is Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Frank Church and Les Jordan plan to introduce legislation to give members of Idaho's 118th Combat Engineers Battalion more liberal educational benefits under the G. I. Bill than would otherwise be available.

Similar legislation in the House of Representatives has been introduced by Rep. Orval Hutto.

The proposal would allow the 118th Guardsmen to include the six months of training time they underwent prior to activation last year in computing their education benefits under the G. I. Bill.

IT TAKES A LOT OF PEOPLE TO PRODUCE AMERICAN BEEF!

It's surprising how many people it takes to produce one steer. You will probably recognize some of the people pictured here. There are hundreds more. In fact, part of the beef dollar you plunk down on the counter for your favorite cut may represent your own pay received for the part you played, directly or indirectly, in getting beef to the table.

'Bold Thinkers' Sought To Solve Idaho's Educational Problems

By PAUL M. QUINN
United Press International
Bold thinkers are needed if education in Idaho is to progress, for that matter exist, and a report under education's Eight-State Project has called for a top priority for a master plan.

appropriations for education follow a four-year cycle of crisis after crisis — "reflecting a squeaking wheel approach to finance."
The report maintains that top priority should also be given to certification.
By 1980 Idaho should have what is now recognized as an optimum program for teacher education and certification. . . .
The report states that greater demands will be placed on teacher training institutions to "be more selective" in the process through which they determine those to whom approval is given to teach.

Another priority that the task force determined must be taken care of is the "ideal tool" to provide students with the means and opportunities for independent study — the library.
"No other aspect of the modern school program holds a greater potential than does the school library. It is obvious that we are no longer able to predict what skills and subject competencies will be needed in the future by students we are educating today."
Special education is still an other of the priorities.

"With the state of Idaho there are serious gaps in the provision for services for handicapped children."
"While state law mandates that school districts must provide education for all children between the ages of 7 and 16, the provision for special education services for exceptional children is permissive," the report reads.
At the present time, no public school district within the state offers an approved program for emotionally disturbed, visually handicapped or auditory handicapped children.
And, programs in operation for mentally retarded, speech defective children and physically handicapped children are far from sufficient in number to meet the needs in these areas.

"On the subject of multi-district, the report states that a multi-district special education unit enable adjoining school districts to pool their building facilities and instructional services — for example, in the fields of speech therapy and school psychology.
When vocational-technical education is discussed as a priority, it is pointed out that Idaho is to have a competent and balanced labor force, a greatly expanded vocational-technical education program and a restructured general education program is "imperative."

On supporting services, Idaho schools have been slow to initiate and develop programs of special services for students.
The reasons for this appear to be insufficient financial support, a lack of understanding and an inadequate supply of professionally trained specialists.
Continuing education is another topic dealt with.
It is suggested that continuing education programs could be offered on college campuses or at sites removed from the campus. They could be offered during the normal day in the afternoon or evening, or during the weekend.

"Public school facilities should be used to the maximum in such a program at the local level."
On planning higher education, the study group stated that the community college movement is growing in Idaho.
"Any community college which loses its identity with the student and becomes impersonal will soon become a serious barrier to the education of its students. The community college must create its own image. Any community college which uses the cut-and-paste method of copying curriculum from other catalogs of other institutions of higher learning... will fail to develop."

'Giant' Packages Must Leave Shelves Under New U.S. Law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Trade Commission (FTC) regulations governing "truth in packaging" will take effect Wednesday, almost three years after Congress passed the law.
The regulations are designed to eliminate confusing claims like "giant," "king-sized" and "jumbo" which confront shoppers on the labels of products.
The regulations cover soft and detergent, paper towels, napkins and plates; household cleaners, waxes and polishes; kitchen paper products; and thousands of other household items.
The commission was set last week to complete the rules but called for another postponement after several court protests were filed. The rules were subsequently revised to eliminate confusing claims which are not consumed or packaged in the usual sense, as with aspirin, apparel and paint products.

All but a dozen classes of food came under the law under FDA regulations. Regulations covering drug devices are not scheduled to go into effect until Dec. 31.
The FTC said its inspection of shelves show many already have been changed to comply with the regulations. The law allows, however, for packages in inventory to be distributed "in the normal course of business."
Specifically, the rules provide that labels on consumer commodities must clearly and accurately identify the contents of each package and the manufacturer, packers or distributors. If the name and address of the distributor is not on the label, the distributor did not manufacture the product.

Montana Governor Scorns 'Progress' At State Parley

By WILLIAM J. BAER
GLACIER NATIONAL PARK, (UPI) — It was a full day for members of 13 states and two territories attending the western conference of the Council of State Governments here Monday.
It started with a moment of prayer in honor of Sen. Everett Dirksen, R-Ill., and ended with a mammoth barbecue.

The in-betweens weren't too exciting; some were even discouraging.
The more than 500 participants heard Gov. Roy Anderson describe state legislatures as operating in the space age with horse-and-buggy traditions. "The only thing that has changed," said Anderson, "is that the spittoons are gone."
The assistant director of the Federal State Relations Office, James Martin of Washington, D.C., praised President Nixon's proposal to share the federal income tax revenue with the states. Nixon proposed $5 billion to go to the states between 1971 and 1975. The National Governors' Conference last week raised the ante to $10 billion, $40 billion. The conferees here, however, were noncommittal.
William Van Orman of Denver, the regional director of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said regulations and paper work are too much and federal-state projects should be simplified.
An official of the U.S. Department of Transportation, Robert Bennett, director of the Office of Congressional Relations, said states are reading too much into President Nixon's 75 per cent cutback on federal construction funds. Martin, the President's spokesman, said Bennett, "the states have the chance to cut back on what they feel they don't want. If Nixon agrees, that will be it. But if the states don't cut back, then Nixon will."

U.N. Members Renew Plea For Red China

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Following a pattern set in past years, 14 member countries Monday asked the United Nations General Assembly to admit Communist China and expel Nationalist China.
The nations asked Secretary General U Thant to consider the question of the "restoration of the legitimate rights of the Peoples' Republic of China" in the United Nations as an urgent matter, saying the seating of the Peking government is "more than ever vital at this time."
They requested the "immediate expulsion of the representatives of the Chiang Kai-shek clique" — the Republic of China with its seat of government in Taiwan — which they described as the "remnant of the pretended representation of China."
The request was signed by the delegations of Albania, Algeria, Cambodia, Congo (Brazzaville), Cuba, Mauritania, Romania, Southern Yemen, Syria, Tanzania, Yemen and Zambia.
The request followed the pattern of previous assemblies when the question of seating the defeated in assembly votes. The only difference this year was three more countries — Tanzania, Yemen and Zambia — affixed their signatures.

Three Agencies Launch Fallout Probe

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A comprehensive research project to determine the potential effects of radioactive fallout on all types of life in the Intermountain West has been launched jointly by three agencies.
The University of Utah, U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and the University of California's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory planned the cooperative study.
Dr. Robert C. Pendleton, U of U associate professor of biology and director of radiological health will be the principal investigator and director of the project.

Pendleton is a long-time researcher on the accumulation of radioactivity on dairy farms throughout Utah — stretching from the Idaho border on the north to St. George in extreme southern Utah.
"By combining the competence of all three agencies, a far more complete study can be made," Pendleton said. "I believe the whole future of scientific investigation in radiology throughout the world lies in such cooperation among groups of scientists in various disciplines."
The AEC would provide the funds, he said, $107,000 the first year and $75,000 to $80,000 for two successive years. The U of U and Lawrence Radiation Labs would set up a network of 18 air monitoring stations in Utah.

The AEC would also provide an instrumentation for the study and technical assistance in weather forecasting. Pendleton said.
Pendleton said the network of stations, each worth $2,000, would "be useful to the entire nation, because it will give information about fallout clouds from nuclear blasts around the world, especially about the way in which radioactive particles travel and disperse. Such information is useful in setting federal standards and assessing potential hazards to people who breathe the particles."
An "information gap" existing on fallout would be filled by the new study, the university scientist said.
The study would contribute to the understanding of safety factors associated with AEC nuclear tests such as "Plowshare" being undertaken in Nevada.

Utah lies directly in the path of fallout clouds moving across the U.S. from tests detonated in Nevada, Pendleton noted. He said lack of information in the west has caused misunderstandings among the public and local governmental agencies.
Pendleton and his students have collected samples and measured radioactivity across Utah since 1962. During the past seven years they have noted a steady buildup in radiation, Pendleton said, particularly in the long-lived isotopes such as Cesium-137 and Strontium 90, in the soils, plants and animals.
The university scientist said he had also found examples of erosion on the top four centimeters of soil. This radiation-eroded earth was being washed into the lower, populated valleys of some areas where it accumulated into "hot spots" on irrigated farms and reservoirs, he said.

Scientist Claims Discovery Of Tiniest Bit Of Matter

BUDAPEST (UPI) — An Australian physicist said he is ready to defend his claim to have discovered the quark — the smallest particle of matter ever found.
Prof. Charles McCusker, 50, of the University of Sydney, told a scientific conference that he has "photographed" tracks of moisture formed in a cloud chamber by the quark, which until now had existed only as a hypothesis.
Other scientists at the conference said McCusker's announcement was exciting news, but suggested he may have confused the alleged quark with tracks made by ordinary particles as they passed through the chamber. They urged him to do more statistical work to prove his discovery and McCusker said he would do it with "99 per cent" assurance of success.
"The hypothesis of the quark was stated five years ago by Murray Gell-Mann, a physicist at the California Institute of Technology."
Gell-Mann said quarks were the particles which made up neutrons and protons, which in turn are the nucleus of the atom. He said there appeared to be three quarks to every proton.

Brazil Junta Rapped By 15 Prisoners

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The 15 Brazilian political prisoners traded for the release of C. Buzza Elbrick, U.S. ambassador to Rio de Janeiro, Monday night branded the military junta of "Brazil" as Nazis, torturers and murderers.
The Brazilian political prisoners in the United States embassy... was a way of expressing a state of resistance against the prisoners' release and the release imposed by the dictatorship of the Brazilian regime, the group said in a joint statement to newsmen.
They also blamed U.S. "imperialism" for the troubles in Brazil.
The former prisoners were flown to Mexico City Sunday aboard a Brazilian air-force plane where they were granted asylum. Elbrick's kidnapers had demanded that the prisoners be freed before the U.S. ambassador was released.
In their joint statement, they said although they came from different parts of Brazil, and did not all know each other before being put on the plane, "nevertheless we are united in the struggle to win a victory for liberty in Brazil — a definitive defeat of the imperialism which is the principal cause of exploitation in our country."
The released prisoners said they had no connection with the kidnapping itself and did not know where they were bound for until the plane took off.
The 15 said they are now mostly concerned with finding jobs and beginning new lives in Mexico. But some also spoke of returning to Brazil, some saying, "Sure, I will go back to Brazil," said former Army Sergeant Oscar Gomes, one of the 15. "I have to fight against that military dictatorship. It is a dictatorship of the worst kind."
Maria Augusta Carneiro, 22, the only woman in the group, said: "I don't know what we'll do in Mexico. If we leave, it means we're going to another American country, but almost all of us would like to return to Brazil."
Although most of the exiles who arrived here Sunday by Brazilian military plane demonstrated anxiety to return, they also expressed acknowledgment of their return, but also expressed extreme danger under present political conditions.

Economy Growth Is Slowing Down

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Both employment and unemployment levels remained almost static in August, indicating "the growth of the economy is slowing down," the Labor Department said today.

Nonfarm payrolls showed an increase, seasonally adjusted, of 165,000 during the month to a total of 70.4 million. But 109,000 of that increase was due to the return of auto workers following an earlier than usual model changeover.

The August unemployment rate was 3.5 per cent, down slightly from the 3.6 July rate.

Howard Stambler, a department analyst, said the growth of nonfarm employment had slowed substantially since March.

The increase in the March through August period averaged 145,000 a month compared with a 250,000 average increase in the months from September through March.

Asked if the figures indicated the Nixon administration was winning its fight against inflation, Stambler told a news conference: "The growth of the economy is slowing down."

Idaho Motor Transport Unit To Meet

BOISE (UPI)—The annual convention of the Idaho Motor Transport Association will be held Sept. 11-13 at McCall, association managing director, Ole Arneby has announced.

Arneby said Rep. James McClure, R-Idaho, will be the guest speaker at a luncheon on Sept. 11 and Spender Eccles, senior vice president of First Security Bank in Boise, will discuss economy trends in the money market on Sept. 11.

After Eccles' discussion at a business session, Harold R. Tate, first vice president of Western Highway Institute in San Francisco, will speak at a luncheon address.

Other top-flight speakers for the three day meeting, expected to draw some 200 trucking and allied industry executives from throughout the state, include Fred J. Myers, director of research for the Western Highway Institute, and Alan C. Ellett, director of the department of research and transport economics of the American Trucking Association.

Tests Taken After Death Of Model

KINGSTON, N.Y. (UPI)—Tests were made Monday to determine whether "Eva Gschopf, one of the world's top fashion photography models, was under the influence of LSD when she fell to her death from a pine tree she had climbed.

Miss Gschopf, a red-haired native of Vienna, died Sunday of an internal hemorrhage caused by broken ribs puncturing her lung. She had fallen 50 feet from a tree in the nearby town of Hurley.

Coroner William S. Keyser said laboratory tests were being made to see whether Miss Gschopf was under the influence of narcotics such as LSD.

Keyser said Miss Gschopf was brought to Kingston Hospital in the trunk of a car by persons unknown to him. She died in the hospital's emergency room.

She was under contract to the Ford Model Agency in New York and commanded $15 an hour, which put her in the echelon of the world's 10 top fashion photography models.

Miss Gschopf's picture appears a number of times in the current issue of Harper's Bazaar. She was an ethereal 5 foot, 7 inch redhead with blue eyes and pale white skin.

More Indians Quitting School

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Government investigators said Monday that there had been an increase in the school dropout rate on the Gila River Indian Reservation in Arizona since the beginning of an anti-poverty program for Indian youths.

But examiners for the general accounting office said they were unable to determine the extent to which enrollment of youths in the Neighborhood Youth Corps may have influenced the dropout rate.

Education Study Report Reviewed

By PAUL M. QUINN

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho is at a crossroads in educational planning and the citizenry cannot plead that they have not been forewarned of future problems.

This is how a report that took three years under the eight state project on education is summed up for legislators, politicians, educators and interested citizens in general.

"Responsible citizens, politicians and professionals cannot say that they have not been informed of emerging educational expectations," the report reads.

One does not need to try and read between the lines to find out that the Citizens Advisory Council on Education and the Idaho Task Force on Education are serious in their recommendations on Idaho education leading into the 1980's.

It is brought out at the beginning that education in the state has "urgent and immediate problems."

In designing education for the future in Idaho, the 28 member study group expressed "great concern over the quality of education in the schools of Idaho."

"Equal public educational opportunities are not to be confused with mediocrity," the report said. "We believe that educational quality is in continuous need of improvements and that the field of educational research must be enlarged and enriched."

The study group said it was also concerned with the "fallure of school curriculum to meet adequately the needs of all the children in the state."

The council said it recognized the difficulty under which Idaho schools have operated in the years following the Second World War—the lack of facilities, the serious shortage of staff and the significant changes taking place.

The study group members said public education is an investment in the state's future, "an investment that cannot wait for better times or more comfortable days."

The Idaho task force and citizens council listed a five-point "trust" to start with as the basic premise for upgrading of Gem state schools and planning for the future.

The points were:

"An equitable educational opportunity must be provided for all students in Idaho...it must be equitable education for all, regardless of where the student lives or of his socio-economic status."

"For too many years Idaho has organized schools on the basis of minimums—minimum standards, minimum enrollments, minimum districts. It is time that Idaho bands for the optimum, reserving minimum for the exceptional situation as opposed to the accepted or the norm."

"Education is not a local responsibility and it is not federal. It is, or should be, what the people of Idaho will that it should be for the welfare and interest of all."

"The report goes on to say that it is "imperative" that the state educational leaders, politicians and, more importantly, interested citizens, understand and realize that orderly educational programs can be implemented "only with comprehensive state planning."

Tax Relief Is Granted To County

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI)—The State Tax Commission, citing a "significant increased demand for county governmental services," Monday granted Canyon County a 17.04 per cent increase in revenue for the tax year 1969.

Under a new state law, local governmental units may not increase their revenues more than four per cent from one year to the next without approval of the commission.

In granting the increase, the tax commission said Canyon County may levy a revenue of $157,112 over and above the limitations of the Idaho Code.

The commission said the county may levy an ad valorem tax for the year 1969 of $1,062,301.80.

Chairman William C. Norberg of the county board of commissioners said the ruling was a vindication of the commission's position in the county's fund balance or surplus.

As of Jan. 13 the county had a surplus of $225,000.

Atmosphere Of Unreality Felt At U.S.-Thai Withdrawal Talks

By PHIL NEWSOM

An atmosphere of unreality surrounds the talks between the United States and Thailand over eventual withdrawal of American troops from the territory of that small U.S. ally.

The unreality springs from the fact that neither side particularly wanted the talks now, that neither foresees the immediate possibility of American withdrawal on a massive scale, and that their outcome depends on other events whose final outline still must be determined.

The circumstances arose out of Thai irritation with American doves who feared that a contingency defense plan worked out by the United States and Thailand in 1965 could lead to U.S. involvement in "another Vietnam."

The Thais have said emphatically they do not want U.S. help in dealing with their own Communist-led guerrillas which they believe are believed to number more than about 1,500 in the jungled hills of the northwest. They also say they see no particular need for the continued presence of some 48,000 American military men after the issue of Vietnam and Laos have been settled.

The contingency plan which United States is finally to assume in the Pacific. Since 1950, this stance has taken a 180-degree turn and appears now to be taking still another turn.

It has ranged first from a decision to omit South Korea from the U.S. defense perimeter to a further decision that Southeast Asia could not be defended against Communism. In both cases the United States reversed itself.

NASSER VISIT—ROME (UPI)—Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser will leave for a visit to the Soviet Union Sept. 10. Arab sources in Rome said today.

Whether or not this is the time for the talks, eventually major decisions must be reached.

Among these is the stance the American military planners hoped would just quietly fade away provided that, in the event of an attempted large-scale Communist invasion of Thailand through Laos, American and Thai forces would move into Laos to preserve a buffer zone.

The plan would not fade away and the outcry in Congress and elsewhere led the suspicious Thais to believe it was time to declare their independence.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My mother read in the paper where a 15-year-old girl got pregnant from swimming in a public pool, and now she won't let me go swimming in a public pool. She said the article said that in Sydney, Australia, the courts have decided that the Municipal Swimming pool is the "father" of a child. It seems that a 15-year-old virgin girl began having pregnancy symptoms after having swum in a public swimming pool. Her mother took her to a doctor who examined her and said that the girl was still a virgin. The symptoms continued, and after nine months the girl gave birth to a healthy baby boy. They called this a billion-to-one chance that a male sperm in the water impregnated the girl. The city agreed to pay the girl a pension. Will you please tell me if this is possible?

ALSO FIFTEEN DEAR ALSO: I have checked with my medical authorities and they conclude that the case you refer to is the "star rising in the East." I have heard that there is nothing new under the sun. But perhaps there is something new under the water.

DEAR ABBY: I am a recent college graduate. I paid for my tuition and room and board at college. I paid for all my books, clothes, and other expenses by working. My father recently by working handed me a bill for $7,482.23. He said that is what I owe him for college, and he wants it paid back now.

I did not promise, suggest, or agree to pay back any money when I started college. My parents are not my financial trouble. The bill seems way out of proportion since my school cost only $450 per semester and I finished in seven semesters. My father refuses to explain why the bill is so large, and he is threatening to sue me. Do you think I need a lawyer?

PITTSBURGHER DEAR PITTSBURGHER: Not only the facts are as you stated them. But should your father actually sue you, then you may have to shell out for a lawyer to defend yourself.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 10 years to a hard working man whom I love very much. He was married twice before, and one of his ex-wives lives about 400 miles from here. Every so often he takes a vacation alone and he always stops off to see her for two or three days. He is taking another vacation and I heard him tell her on the phone that he would be seeing her.

If I say anything about it he raises his voice in anger as if I have no right to wonder who he wants to see her. I am sure if I had an ex-husband (which I haven't) and visited him every now and then my husband would not stand for it.

I hate arguments, therefore I keep it to myself, but I get all torn up inside when I think of it. I have tried to be broad minded, but I am beginning to feel that maybe I'd be better off leaving from him rather than to fight this situation every time it comes up. Please tell me what to do. ALL TORN UP

DEAR TORN: I will tell you what NOT to do. DON'T give your husband an "either/or" ultimatum unless you are willing to accept the consequences. DEAR ABBY: I am married

Pilots Given Two More Weeks

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Major League Baseball granted the Seattle Pilots two more weeks to post a $300,000 letter of credit and a $100,000 surety bond or face eviction from Slicks' Seattle Stadium.

The delay was granted after an attorney representing the American League met with Miller for about 15 minutes. The meeting was held at the request of league president Joe Cronin and William Daly, the Pilots' board chairman.

Miller had told Pilot President Dewey Soriano last week the ball club would either have to meet its financial responsibilities or the city would terminate its lease.

Soriano said he would go to court if necessary to prevent the threat from being carried out.

Soriano contended the city had not lived up to its end of the bargain in providing accommodations at the stadium.

Despite the threats outside attorneys pointed out that Miller and the city council probably could not have obtained an eviction order before the last home game of the season, Oct. 1 if the case were handled in a normal manner.

Seattle's Stadium, home of the old Seattle Rainiers of the Pacific Coast League, is being used by the Pilots pending construction of a new, multipurpose stadium approved by Seattle voters.

But the domed stadium has been threatened by legal action to prevent its construction in the Seattle Civic Center area. The issue also may be taken to the general election ballot in November.

These problems along with poor attendance at home games and the fact that Seattle has the worst record of all the American League teams has caused many former Pilot boosters to desert the ship.

"Soriano's on the rocks again," remarked one former booster. "The Seattle team president is a Puger Sound Ships' pilot who twice within year has had vessels damaged on reefs."

In fact, one wag bartender even invented a drink called "Soriano on the Rocks," which includes a well-known headache remedy.

In the past, certain types of oil furnaces could not be converted to gas because of their design and location. Call your gas company now if you have this type of furnace. You can rent a conversion burner for $1.93 a month.

Writer Reflects On Bishop Pike

Editors note: Louis Cassels, UPI senior editor and religion writer, was closely associated with the late Dr. James A. Pike for many years. In the following dispatch Cassels recounts his memories of the former Episcopal bishop.

By LOUIS CASSELLS
UPI Senior Editor

Jim Pike was neither a saintly martyr as some of his admirers thought, nor the devil incarnate as some of his detractors contended.

He was an intensely human man—with some admirable traits and some serious flaws. Whether you liked or loathed him depended on which side you happened to see most clearly.

He had one of the most brilliant minds I've ever encountered—and one of the most contradictory personalities.

Like many dynamic and eccentric men, he seemed to have a shattering impact on less forceful people who shared his private life. Two people intimately associated with him—his son and his secretary—committed suicide, and his daughter attempted it.

Whatever viewpoint Pike espoused, he could present with persuasive force. But he was inclined to vacillate from one extreme to another. At times, he seemed like a weather vane, adjusting to shifts in the capricious winds of intellectual fashion.

He started life as a Roman Catholic, and then became an agnostic. During the religious revival of the 1940s, he became an Episcopalian and wrote a series of books expounding and defending orthodox Christian doctrines.

As dean of the Cathedral of St. John in New York and later as bishop of California, he was an early exponent of aggressive discrimination and remedy of other social wrongs. His forthright stand on social issues won him many enemies among conservatives in the church, but made him a hero to liberals and young people.

He was admired and did not particularly mind being hated. But he could not stand to be ignored. He had a compelling need to be the center of attention, and in the service of this need he developed a sense of showmanship which enabled him to remain in the limelight of national controversy almost continually for 25 years.

His enemies unwittingly helped to keep him in the headlines. When Pike—in the mood toward the bandwagon of radical theology, they cried "heresy" and demanded that he be brought to trial before a church court.

The trial was headed off by Episcopal leaders who dreaded the sensational publicity it was sure to produce.

Pike was frankly disappointed. When he had appeared to be a candidate for martyrdom, he received hundreds of speaking invitations from college campuses and liberal church groups.

"There's nothing like being labeled a heretic to draw a crowd," he told me one day, in a joking tone.

After a brief time of relative obscurity, Pike landed on the front pages again by resigning his bishopric to become a "scholar in residence" at the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions at Santa Barbara, Calif.

In 1968, he appointed himself liberal supporter, but another quarter, by announcing that he had been in communication, through a medium, with the late, unpublished book on spiritualism, entitled "The Other Side." Unlike his earlier works of serious theology, it became a best-seller.

He divorced his wife, Esther, in 1967 on grounds of "mental cruelty." He was remarried in 1968 to 30-year-old Diane Kennedy, his collaborator on the spiritualism book.

Remarriage after divorce is forbidden by Episcopal canon law.

Pike sought a dispensation to regularize his status, and when this was refused he announced—in an article in Look magazine rather than a letter to the presiding bishop—that he was leaving the Episcopal church entirely. He said the church was a dying institution.

In early 1969, Pike set up a "foundation for religious transition" to assist clergymen quitting the ministry. Then he left with Diane for Israel to gather material for a book.

He told friends before going to the Holy Land, that his new book would be the most sensational yet. In it, he said, he planned to debunk the New Testament story of Jesus.

JIM MOTTERN OF TWIN FALLS, in the center here, is joined, from left, by Jim Williams, University of Idaho student body president; Scott McClure, Idaho State University student body president; Les McCullum, University of Idaho student executive board member, and State Sen. John Mlx, in opening a planning session for Idaho's first "All-Idaho Week." The week of activity starts Sept. 21 at the University of Idaho Campus and will feature exhibits from all areas of the state.

Air Quality Guidelines Evaluated

MISSEOLA, Mont. (UPI)—Air quality guidelines for use in prescribed burning based on Forest Service research findings are being evaluated this fall in the 16 national forests of the Northern Region. William R. Moore, chief of fire control, said today.

The guidelines have been provided to all ranger districts and national forests in the five-state northern region to aid in achieving minimum impact on air quality, Moore said.

Each year approximately 100,000 acres of forested land in the region are burned as part of the routine resource management operation.

"These guidelines provide a means to consider smoke management as an essential for environmental quality, along with silvicultural, hazard reduction and other management needs of the land," he said.

Moore said the types of controlled burns mentioned are used to dispose of slash left by logging, to prepare sites for reforestation, for wildfire control, cover type conversion and wildlife habitat improvement over much of the burned acreage.

He said satisfactory alternatives to burning are not currently available.

Moore said the guidelines being used this fall include the need for special weather forecasts, consistent with expected smoke behavior, to burn when fuels are dry as fire control needs permit, limiting at the optimum time of day, and the scheduling of ignition to minimize drift and low-level smoke accumulations.

He said even though satisfactory alternatives to burning have not been developed, the Forest Service has assumed the responsibility for improvement and maintenance of high air quality in connection with the controlled burns.

Northern Region Would Have Low Fire Season Without Man's Carelessness

By United Press International

If it wasn't for man's carelessness the 16 national forests of the Northern Region would be having an outstandingly low fire season this year.

As it is, the overall picture is much better than during 1968, figures released by the Forest Service showed today.

So far this year there have been a total of 587 fires reported in the forests—stretching along the Canadian border between eastern Washington and western North Dakota, compared with 759 at this time last year.

Of this year's blazes 306 were man-caused and 281 started by lightning. This compared with 255 man-started fires a year ago and 501 caused by nature.

The total acreage burned this season is slightly more than a quarter of that consumed by fires in 1968. Thus for this year 2,488 acres have been reported burned, compared with 8,656 on this date a year ago.

However, indications were the firefighters could be in for trouble in the near future.

Today, all forests except the Lewis and Clark in Montana reported "extreme" burning conditions and the weatherman predicted possible thunder-showers for northern Idaho during the next few days.

A total of 64 men, including four smokejumpers, were reported battling fires around the region today.
