

Do Twin Falls Juveniles Use Drugs? Is Marijuana Readily Available?

Editor's Note: How extensive is the use of marijuana and other narcotics among juveniles in Twin Falls? Up until a few months ago most adults would have guessed there were only isolated incidents. More recently there have been indications that there is a real, and growing, problem here. In an effort to determine just what are the facts, the Times-News is publishing a series of interviews with students and adults closely connected with the problem. Names of students interviewed are being kept confidential. The following interview was with a 16-year-old girl, a sophomore at Twin Falls High School.

Q: You're a student out at Twin Falls High School?
A: Yes.
Q: Are you aware of any drug problem at the high school?
A: Yes.
Q: What kind of problem?
A: Well, I know a lot of the kids use these drugs. I don't myself but I know it is a lot more serious than a lot of people think.

Q: You say serious. How extensive?
A: I would say quite extensive. Not all of the kids take drugs but a majority of them do.
Q: More than half the student body?
A: Not in my class by itself. I know the use is greater in other classes. The higher the more the use. Most of the students who are on drugs are in higher grades. I think seniors are the biggest violators.

Q: Can you give me a guess as to the percentage?
A: I couldn't. I don't have any idea.
Q: What kind of drugs are we talking about?
A: I would say most prevalent to the school is marijuana.
Q: How do the kids get hold of it?
A: I really don't have any idea. There are some who get it from other towns and there are a lot of kids in our school who sell it.

Q: Let's say you wanted to get some marijuana right now, could you?
A: I think so.
Q: How?
A: By asking one of the students to get it for me.
Q: How long do you think it would take to get it?
A: Not long. I would imagine if he had some he could give it to me the same day.
Q: You spoke of marijuana. Are you aware of any other kinds of drugs being used at the high school?

A: No, I don't think so. I think it is mostly marijuana that I have observed.
Q: How about glue sniffing?
A: I don't think too much.
Q: How about the pain pills, diet pills and sleeping pills either by prescription or from the parents' medicine cabinet?
A: There are a lot of girls who take like diet pills. They can be quite habit forming.
Q: Why do they take them, for the kicks or to lose weight?
A: I don't know. I think they start out to lose weight but they get in the habit of taking them and they like the feeling the pills give them.

Q: Do you observe a large number of students at the high school taking these kind of pills?
A: Not a large number in proportion to the size of the school itself, but there are several.
Q: As a student at the high school, how would you classify the use of marijuana and other

Idaho Power Will Auction Land Along Snake River

By O. J. SMITH
Times-News Managing Editor
More than a thousand acres of land along the north side of the Snake River between Buhl and Hagerman, is being put on the auction block by Idaho Power Co.
Included in the property to be sold are Box Canyon and Blind Canyon, Bickel Springs and Briggs Springs.
Idaho Power owns, at Niagara and Crystal Springs, are being acquired by the State Parks Department and will not be put up for bids.
R. Helges, superintendent of power for Idaho Power, said sealed bids will be received at the Idaho Power Co. office in Boise on or before Wednesday, Oct. 8.
He said that Idaho Power decided to sell the property because it has no plans for its use, and feels it could be of more value to the area in other hands.
The land was acquired by Idaho Power in the early 1920s with the intention of building small hydro-electric plants. At that time it was thought the owner had right to water rising on his property.
Subsequently it was determined that this was not the case and that the state owned the water and had the authority to grant water rights.
Idaho Power started to develop the properties in the late 1930s or 1940s, but held off when

Claims In White Cloud Area Valid

A significant number of American Smelting and Refining Co. (ASARCO) mining claims on Challis National Forest land in the White Cloud Peaks area in Idaho are definitely valid, according to an official announcement by Regional Forester Floyd Iverson of the Intermountain Region in Ogden, Utah.
Iverson's determination of validity has been made and reported by Forest Service mining engineers G. R. Plumb and V. T. Dow after an on-the-ground examination of these ASARCO claims in the Little Boulder Creek drainage near Castle Peak.
"The Forest Service mining engineers made their initial examination of ASARCO's claims in August, Mr. Iverson said. "An on-the-ground examination, coupled with an analysis of detailed drilling records and core samples furnished by ASARCO, specifically confirmed previous unofficial reports that a multi-million body of rhyolite flows are present within at least 11, and possibly more, of the 20-acre claims. Because company exploration is continuing, the full extent of the ore body has not yet been fully determined, but over 140 claims have been staked. Data collected and exploration work accomplished, so far, indicate that a very sizable additional quantity of ore is likely involved."
Iverson pointed out that additional mineral examinations will be necessary, as exploration work continues, to check on the validity of other ASARCO claims in the area.
As has been previously reported, Forest Service tramway exploration is being made to develop a route to the White Cloud Peaks area recently, particularly to evaluate the feasibility of a tramway system (and broadly to consider the possibility of alternative methods) to provide access to the claims.
Mr. Iverson reports that Mr. Dow is just returning from a three-week trip to Europe where he met with European tramway experts as the United States representative at the ASARCO WITVEE.

Middle Fork River Plan To Preserve Wild State

By O. A. (GUS) KELKER
Times-News Editor
A comprehensive "river plan" for the Middle Fork of the Salmon River has been completed by the United States Forest Service.
The plan has been completed in accordance with the provisions of the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act of Oct. 2, 1968. That act, backed by Senators Church and Jordan, designated the Middle Fork of the Salmon—from its origin to its mouth—as one of the eight initial components of the legislation.
Completion of the planning package, setting forth the boundaries of the river area, the river classification and the planned protection and development.
"After consideration of all points raised in discussion at the meetings and after an on-the-ground evaluation and study of the river area, we have identified the management objectives that need to be met to protect the Middle Fork values and also the values of the adjacent lands for the benefit and enjoyment of present and future generations. These objectives are reflected in the River Plan," Mr. Smith said.
He said that "we will continue to maintain close working contact" with individuals, organizations and agencies concerned. He said they would also work closely with involved landowners "to determine how their future development and use of these lands can complement the outstanding Wild River values. The significant items in the River Plan are being conveyed by personal contact with interested and involved people to the extent feasible, along with press announcements."
Mr. Smith said that the Middle Fork is to be administered by the Forest Service in a manner set forth in the plan. See MIDDLE, Page 5, Col. 1.

United Fund Surpasses $12,000 Mark

United Fund 1970 pledges went over the $12,000 mark as campaign workers reported at the first of three meetings scheduled before the drive ended.
At this point in the 1969 campaign, $5,032 had been collected. Unofficial auditing after the report meeting showed this year's mark to be more than twice that of last year. During the three-week long drive, more than 100 workers will contact local residents in the hope of meeting the $25,000 goal.
The funds will be used for the also participating agencies operating budgets for 1970.
Guest speaker at the noon report meeting at the Y building was Rev. Harold N. Nye, pastor of the First United Methodist Church. He stressed to workers the importance of encouraging contributors to increase the amount of their contributions.
It is hoped all workers will have made all contacts by next Friday's report meeting. After Oct. 10 a back-up team will take over to call on contacts who have not yet made pledges.
George Stauder, chairman of the educational division of the drive, reported contributions from that branch already are up 20 per cent over last year's total.
Other phases of the campaign also are going well, section chiefs reported, and most categories are running ahead of last year's total to this date.
The workers involved in the campaign are contacting about 900 residents and businesses during the drive.
The next report meeting will be at noon Friday at the Y.

Earl McCullough Is One Of A Very Select Group

By O. A. (GUS) KELKER
Times-News Editor
Earl F. McCullough is a member of a very select company of men. In Idaho there are only a dozen like him. He is a veteran of the Spanish-American War.
"Not only is he a veteran, but he is also department commander of the United Spanish War Veterans in Twin Falls," Mr. Smith said.
"To Mr. McCullough it is an honor, of course, but he accepts it with a reason. The reason? "I'm the only one that left take it," he says. "None of the other boys are able or interested."
But regardless of who is commander, there will be a state convention at Nampa next year, probably in the summer. It should be a rip-roaring affair.
"If all goes well there will be three of us there," he said. "Eight of the dozen veterans in the state are members of the organization that Mr. McCullough heads and half of that number are in Twin Falls or this area. He said that William Scott, lives in Kimberly; Guy Sturgeon, 90, formerly of Twin Falls, is now in a Poncaire rest home, and Harry M. Sisk, 80, resides in Jerome.
"At one time there were 800 veterans in the state. Today, in the nation, there are 5,000. The best estimate indicates that the 'roll call' will be down to less than 500 by the end of 1971."
But Mr. McCullough just doesn't let statistics worry him. To the query "what do you want to do, live forever?" he answered "Sure, but I don't want to die." And that's just the way he feels about it. He still dreams of a one-way trip to the moon.

FIRST CLASS GUNNER Earl F. McCullough wears the hat that kept him covered during the Spanish-American war. The goggles are red, because he was an artilleryman. Only a dozen of the veterans of that war are still alive within Idaho.

Some of the eyes of the leggings have been missed. What's the difference? Mr. McCullough hasn't tied on these leggings very many times in the 88 years since he wore them at Ft. Cambay.

President Nixon's Relations With Mexico Grow Worse With "Operation Intercept"

By TERRANCE W. MCGARRY
MEXICO CITY. (UPI)—Richard M. Nixon, who got off on the wrong foot in his relations with neighboring Mexico, has soured the Mexican government further by chocking off border traffic to hunt for marijuana. In less than two weeks of "Operation Intercept," Mexican-American relations have dropped to their lowest point in years.

Mexican officials are hurt and angry. They bitterly recall "the good old days, with Kennedy, Johnson and John F. Kennedy."

Mexican officials point out that Mexico has tried to cooperate with the United States for a decade in the curbing of the marijuana and narcotic traffic.

"Our own efforts, which have been sizable in money and manpower, in destroying marijuana fields, are taken for the benefit of the United States," said one official. "Without the rich American market as a lure for the growers, we would not have much of a problem of our own. The use of drugs is not that widespread among Mexican young people."

"We do this as a friendly gesture, and what do we get in return? Operation Bad Neighbor, that's what."

Mexico agrees that marijuana and narcotics traffic should be a better controlled but protests the "Operation Intercept" methods.

But the operation has deeper meanings to the Mexican government, which goes beyond marijuana.

The Mexican attitude is that the operation is a deliberate pressure play against the Mexican government, and indicates the Nixon administration regards good relations with Mexico as expendable.

Mexico is convinced—despite denials by Secretary of State William P. Rogers to Mexican Foreign Secretary Antonio Carrillo Flores—that the aim of the operation is not primarily to catch smugglers at the border.

"It is quite transparent," said one official. "That the real goal of this ill-conceived maneuver is to hurt the economies of our border cities and disrupt our normal commerce and movement along the border."

"This is being done in the hopes that it will force the Mexican government to take stronger measures here in our own country."

After steady improvement through the Eisenhower and Kennedy years, Mexican-American relations hit a peak of unprecedented cordiality under Johnson. Mexico was pleased with the stress Johnson put on remedying Mexican complaints, his frequent meetings with Mexican presidents (seven in all), his vigorous backing for a joint program to improve life along the border.

Under Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson, a tradition had begun to grow. It called for a new U. S. president to meet with his Mexican counterpart early, giving the neighbors precedence over other chiefs of state.

Despite some hints from Mexico, President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz didn't meet Nixon until this month—nine months into his administration, and after Nixon met many other chiefs of state. And that was only for a few hours, a mostly ceremonial encounter at a desolate damsite on the Rio Grande.

While the suspicion grew in government circles that "the honeymoon has ended," Mexican officials, in all but the most private conversations, denied they felt any change in relations with the United States.

"Operation Intercept" changed that. Although still unwilling to go on record, Mexican officials now make openly resentful and bitter remarks. Newspapers are filled with anti-American headlines and cartoons picturing customs inspectors as Nazis.

Just the manpower involved, and the pressure of strangled traffic, will most probably force

Public Meet On DPA Set Wednesday

A public information meeting on the Idaho Department of Public Assistance will be sponsored at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday by the Twin Falls County Council of Public Assistance.

Don Frank, local DPA director, said the public is invited to the meeting at the Idaho power auditorium.

Bill Child, state commissioner for DPA, will speak at the meeting. Staff members from the local DPA office who will be participating are Linda Olson, eligibility for money payments; Jerry Quick, financial and medical assistance programs; Kent Henderson, child protective services; Erna Shrawster, child care licensing and adoptive studies and placements; and Mrs. Pearl Shultz, services to families with children.

This is the first such meeting held in Twin Falls since the county council was appointed by Gov. Don Samuelson in May, 1969. Members of the committee are John Barker, chairman; Mrs. Royal Stotten, John Wolfe and George Bennett and Heber Loughmiller, representing the county commission. Mr. Frank serves as secretary.

"Operation Intercept" back down to normal inspection levels in time.

But it cracked the friendship built up between the two neighbors over the course of decades.

As one Mexican official put it: "We were just getting used to thinking of mutual problems as 'ours.' Now it looks like we're back to the days of 'us and them.'"

Change Asked In Proposed Constitution

BOISE. (UPI)—A proposed new state constitution cuts down on the role of counties as political subdivisions and should be changed, the chairman of the commission that wrote it said today.

Former Supreme Court Justice Raymond Givens, Boise, told a legislative committee studying the proposed new constitution that he does not want to "lessen the status of counties as political subdivisions."

Under the revised constitution, counties and cities are mentioned as political subdivisions of the state but much of the language about their powers and duties is stripped away.

As proposed in the new constitution, the legislature would have the power to merge counties without a vote of the people.

Herbert Berman, a consultant to the Constitutional Revision Commission, told the committee that perhaps in the future the legislature may want to create metropolitan units of counties and cities.

Meanwhile, James Lynch, Boise, chairman of the State Bar Committee on Judicial Reform, objected to a proposed 10-year term for Supreme Court Justices.

A Justice Lynch said should be independent of the executive branch of government.

Lynch also said that the draft of the proposed revision contains conflicts either with what has been accomplished in fact or by legislation and constitutional amendment.

He said a constitutional amendment recently approved by the electorate sets forth disciplinary measures for justices and judges which are not included in the proposed revision and should be placed there.

Russell Randall, Lewiston, chairman of the commission's Subcommittee on the Judiciary, agreed there should be some modifications.

Thursday, the committee rejected a proposed "short ballot" for elected state officials.

Americans Blamed For Dragging War

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam said Friday opposition by Americans at home was "prolonging this unhappy war."

President Nixon has assured him that the United States will see it through to a satisfactory conclusion.

Interviewed on the weekly Vietnamese language television program, "The People Want to Know," Lam was asked about his talks with Nixon at the United Nations last month.

"President Nixon repeated and requested the president of the Republic of Vietnam to believe in the determination and patience (of the United States) in the present time," Lam said.

The South Vietnamese diplomat described as "very complicated" U.S. public opinion on the war. Lam said he was told that about 80 per cent of the American people support Nixon's Vietnam policies and that 20-25 per cent comprise the antiwar opposition. He said many Americans have no opinion, pro or con.

Brandt Has Become Symbol Of W. Berlin Determination

By United Press International
BRANDT BECAME a symbol of West Berlin's determination to stay out of Communist hands on that day 11 years ago. Without waiting for words from Washington, London or Paris, Brandt rejected the Soviet demand immediately.

"We are not going to be cooked over a slow fire," Brandt told the Soviets.

Brandt rallied the city around him as the late Mayor Ernst Reuter did during the 1948-1949 Berlin Blockade.

To Berliners, Brandt is a nonpartisan hero, as he proved when he got 61.9 per cent of the vote in West Berlin's 1963 mayoral election. He carried all 12 boroughs, including the fashionable suburbs long considered conservative.

If his illegitimate birth was held against him by some detractors, his supporters pointed out that Brandt rose high and faced the issue squarely.

He never made a secret that he was born with the name Herbert Ernst Friedrich Zecherbeck, Germany, Dec. 18, 1913. He changed his name to conceal his identity from the Nazis but the name Willy Brandt stuck.

Berliners told the story of the day that Communist East German Mayor Friedrich Ebert lauded Brandt about his birth. "I was born, a bastard,"

Burger Resigns

ROCHESTER, Minn. (UPI)—Chief Justice Warren Burger has resigned as a member of the Mayo Clinic board of trustees, it was announced Friday.

Atherton Dean, chairman of the board, said Burger, a native of Minnesota, wrote that he had to "reexamine and reevaluate his activities and 'dedicate my entire mode of life in order to work out a new set of priorities for the future.'"

Burger said the "large commitment" for the meetings of the board is no longer possible in his new position.

Denn said he accepted the resignation "with great regret."

Lawsuit At Ketchum Is Under Study

KETCHUM — A lawsuit involving the Ready-To-Pour Concrete Co. against a Ketchum building inspector has been taken under advisement after a two-day trial.

Judge Charles Scoggins took the case under advisement Friday following testimony from 23 witnesses during two days.

The concrete firm purchased property west of Ketchum when that property was zoned industrial. However, since that time the property has been zoned residential.

Leonard McCoy is the building inspector named in the suit as defendant.

Ghana Is Africa's First State To Return Civilian Rule

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
In 1957 Ghana became black Africa's first independent state. This week it became black Africa's first state to return to civilian rule via free elections after three years of military government.

The new premier is 55-year-old Kwame Nkrumah, a soft-spoken Methodist lay preacher who holds a Ph.D. from Oxford.

His progress party won 101 of the 140 seats in the Ghanaian assembly in last month's election.

Nkrumah, the man who erected statues of himself and left his country nearly a billion dollars in debt, now resides in exile in neighboring Guinea.

At a time when many African leaders consider democracy old fashioned, Nkrumah said it is his platform.

"All peoples can achieve and practice democracy if they have enough faith and conviction in its values," he once wrote.

He had served as the leader of Nkrumah's opposition in parliament and then had fled in 1966 to carry on his fight in exile.

In the August elections, his chief rival, Komla A. Gbedemah, one-time finance minister and right-hand man to Nkrumah, won only 20 seats.

As the new government replaces the military-ruled National Liberation Council, it faces mounting debts of more than $800 million and a high unemployment rate.

It must step up the production of cocoa, its principal product, which has been losing ground to other countries.

It must somehow try to satisfy a middle tier in its population which liked neither the country's earlier flirtation with the Communists nor its later dependence on the West.

And it must find a solution to a problem exemplified by the civil war in Nigeria, which is mounting tribal ill-feelings.

ner that "protects and enhances the values which caused it to be included in the system." To accomplish this, he said the river will be managed to:

- Maintain the natural and free-flowing condition of the river.
- Protect water quality.
- Protect scenic, recreational, geologic, fish and wildlife, historic, archeologic, and other similar values.
- Maintain essential primitive conditions of the shorelines.
- Provide recreation opportunities in harmony with the wild and scenic nature of the river.

Under the river plan, some changes in use and utilization different than those now permitted or which were permitted in the past.

Float-boating will continue. Large rubber rafts are used by most floaters. Most spend from five to seven days on the river. During 1968 a total of 1,600 people made the trip—and forest officials expect this to double by 1975. No boat motors of any kind are permitted.

Some trail machine users ride from the headwaters of the Wild and Scenic River downstream to the Idaho Primitive Area boundary. With classification of the area as a Wild and Scenic River, the plan is to permit only on-the-main roads in the Dagger Falls area.

Eight landing fields within the Wild River area provide access to visitors who wish to be flown in or to fly their private planes. Under the new setup, any landing field found to be non-essential for meeting administrative or visitor needs may eventually need to be phased out. Access for big game harvest, fire control and other needs will be carefully analyzed before any closure is implemented, the plan states.

The plan also states that as recreation demands increase, user requirements will eventually

Spanish-American Emissaries Will Visit T.F. On Oct. 14

Two women from Latin America, emissaries of the Spanish-American Causeway program, designed to help create understanding and develop friendship among the American people, will be in Twin Falls Oct. 14.

Idaho is one of the five Western states to have a visitation from Sra deBenzo, Montevideo, Uruguay, and Srita Garza Hernandez, Mexico City.

Two special events are planned, luncheon at the Rogerson Hotel Roundup room at 12:30 p.m., followed by a forum at 2 p.m. in the same room, and a forum in the evening at College of Southern Idaho.

The evening forum, to be held in the academic auditorium, rooms 17-18 in the Shilade Academic building, will be addressed by Tom Duncan, a member of the CSSI faculty with both the women guests participating in the forum, as well as in the afternoon program.

The Spanish-American Causeway program is a project of Church Women United, known as the 4-L program of "Listen, Look, Learn and Love." It is a project through which all Americans, north and south, will explore ways of Christian understanding and deeper involvement with people of other nations on the continent and the world.

The Causeway program is designed to help Spanish speaking people unite with non-Spanish people to develop a better life and greater understanding.

The Box Canyon and Blind Canyon property is about eight miles south of Hagerman and 11-miles north of Buhl. Box Canyon itself has been a favorite fishing spot for people of the area for years. The land on top of the rimrock is used only for dry grazing, but has scenic possibilities because of the view.

An appraiser's report lists about a half-mile of river frontage with the land leveling off from the breaks of the rim, and noted that about 30 acres of such land are available for construction of a fish farm site or sites.

Access to this part of the property is over the Banbury Springs property owned by Idaho Power and being used under a letter agreement by the Boy Scouts' Snake River Area Council as the site for Camp Roach.

Q: How large a group?

A: I can't say in numbers, it is a large amount. Probably more than 100 students, maybe less.

Q: To what extent does drug abuse or drug use reach down into the Twin Falls school system?

A: I know some of the kids in the junior high schools are getting drugs like diet pills and marijuana. I don't know about the elementary schools.

Q: Do you feel if you wanted to purchase a quantity of marijuana at the high school that you would do so?

A: I would say on the campus, probably not in the building.

Q: Are you personally aware of anyone selling drugs or marijuana?

A: Yes.

Q: How many?

A: I know one who is selling. Q: Are the police aware of this activity?

A: With this person?

Q: Yes, and with the high school in general.

A: I think they are aware of it. I think it is just now dawning on them how large the use is. I think it is larger than they suspected it was.

Q: How about school officials, are they aware?

A: They have to be but there hasn't been any mention of it in school, though.

Philippine Troops Will Withdraw

MANILA (UPI) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos Saturday announced plans for the gradual withdrawal of the Philippine 1,500-man peace-keeping force from South Vietnam. He gave no firm date but said the men would probably come home after next month's elections.

The Philippine force, known as PHILCAG, was sent to Vietnam in September 1966 to help build roads, grow rice and otherwise improve the standard of living in the countryside through a rural action program.

PHILCAG is an acronym for Philippine Civic Action Group. Marcos, holding his first general election since 1964, was asked Saturday whether the status of the force in the light of the recent American troop withdrawals from the war zone would be maintained.

"PHILCAG will be withdrawn as soon as their funds are exhausted," he said. Asked how soon this would be, he replied: "Probably after the elections." The elections, in which Marcos is running for a new term, will be held on Nov. 11.

The original budget for the force, $2.7 million, was intended to last for one year. Since 1966, the company's budget has refused to approve new appropriations and funds finally ran out in March 1968.

Despite the lack of congressional support, the force remained in Vietnam, financed by savings of the Philippine Defense Department. The budget was reduced in size from 2,000 men to 1,500 men.

Israel Hurls Back Big Egyptian Raid

By United-Press-International — Israel said late Saturday its forces Friday night hurled back Egypt's biggest amphibious raid across the Suez Canal since the 1967 Mideast War.

In an unusual Sabbath briefing a senior Israeli staff officer told newsmen Israeli troops held their fire to turn the raid into a fire and snide down an estimated 15 fleeing Egyptian soldiers.

He said two Israeli soldiers died in fighting along the canal. An officer was killed in the fighting that followed the attempted raid and a soldier was killed by shelling opposite Ismailia.

The Israeli officer said two wounded Egyptian captives were taken to Ismailia. They were part of an 88-man force that tried to cross to Israeli positions in nine rubber rafts. In Cairo, an Egyptian military spokesman said the amphibious force crossed the canal Friday and fought a "fierce battle" with Israeli troops for more than three hours.

The spokesman said the Egyptians destroyed three Israeli armored troop carriers "together" with their equipment and two tanks before returning to base from the first canal crossing since July.

The attempted landing, at a site Deversoir on the north shore of Great Bitter Lake triggered an artillery and tank duel.

The Israeli officer said Egyptian forces on the west bank of the canal opened a massive artillery barrage about 8 p.m. Friday along a 15-mile stretch of the canal from Deversoir to ElQantara as cover for the landing force.

Two hours later Israeli defenders in strongpoints detected the first "Egyptians coming up the beach."

Sweden Chief Hits U.S. War Involvement

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Premier-designate Olof Palme said Saturday his government will continue to criticize U.S. involvement in Vietnam, which has led to strained relations between Stockholm and Washington.

In his first major policy speech the newly elected chairman of the ruling Social Democratic party said Sweden desires "good relations on all levels with great powers."

Palme, who will take over the premiership from retiring veteran Tage Erlander, 88, at a cabinet meeting Oct. 14, was picked Wednesday as Erlander's successor.

The 42-year-old party theorist did not go into detail on U.S.-Swedish relations or the fact that President Nixon has not appointed an ambassador to Stockholm.

But he rejected charges that Sweden's criticism of U.S. and Soviet foreign policy is contrary to Sweden's policy of neutrality.

"Such criticism must be due to a misunderstanding of the content of our policy," he said.

"We shall continue to repeat simple but important truths," Palme said. "That the longing of peoples for freedom cannot be beaten by violence. That the aim of democracy can never be reached by means of oppression. That nations have the right to decide over their own destiny."

This was a clear reference to the U.S. role in the Vietnam War and Soviet involvement in Czechoslovakia.

(Italy, France, and Austria, Mr. Dwyer obtained information at the Congress which will be significant in his conclusion as to tramway feasibility in the White Clouds.

His report of his findings concerning the ASARCO operations is being developed.

Following receipt of this report, which is expected soon, the company's application by the Challis National Forest Supervisor, with counsel from Regional Office personnel, concerning the ASARCO application, made in March 1969, for a permit to construct an access road from the East Fork of the Salmon River across National Forest lands to its claims in the White Cloud Peaks area.

According to Mr. Iverson, it is anticipated that a decision on the company's application for permission to build this road will be made and announced by late 1969.

Five People Killed In Denver Plane Crash As First Snowstorm Of Season Hits Rockies

By United-Press-International — In Denver, up to seven inches of snow had fallen early today. At least one fatality was reported in a car crash on Denver's snowy, wet streets, where visibility was poor due to the snowfall.

The heavy snow accumulation, up to a foot deep, also blocked Going-to-the-Sun Highway in Glacier National Park, in the high country where summer vacationers frolicked a few weeks ago.

In what the U. S. Weather Bureau called the first major storm of the fall season, an airliner crashed Friday night at Lowry Air Force Base near Denver. The Metro Airlines commuter plane overshot a navigation approach to Stapleton International Airport. Two other persons were reported injured.

A pronounced cold front extended across the central part of the nation, marked by scattered showers or thunderstorms, as well as temperature changes as much as 40 degrees.

Meanwhile, the remnants of tropical storm Jenny produced rain or shower activity in northeastern Florida. The highest winds at midnight EDT were no more than 25 miles an hour. Temperatures at 3 a.m. EDT today ranged from 25 at Ely, Nev., to 83 at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station in Texas.

Temperatures Friday soared into the 90s and the low 90s as far north as Missouri and Southern Illinois. An afternoon high of 91 was recorded at St. Joseph, Mo.

The upper Midwest and northern New England Friday were on the chilly side. In Wyoming the mercury skidded to 9 above zero Friday.

In the West, snow blocked Logan Pass in Glacier National Park and forced the closing of passes between Old Faithful and West Thumb, and Canyon Village and Tappers Falls in Yellowstone National Park.

3 In Jerome Seeking Two Council Jobs

JEROME — Three men are seeking the two Jerome council posts to be filled in the Nov. 4 municipal election here.

As of Saturday there was only one candidate for mayor and Mrs. Mabel Beveridge, city clerk, said no other petitions were out.

Filing for the councilmen posts were Walter Bentzinger, co-owner and manager of the John Deere Implement Co.; Jerry Nelson, production manager of the Ida Gem Creamery here; and Edwin Tinker, incumbent who is seeking re-election.

The terms of Mr. Tinker and Ed Baer are expiring. Neither Mr. Baer — nor Mayor Earl Greenwood — is seeking re-election.

Youth Arrested

A 16-year-old boy is being held in the Twin Falls County jail after being arrested on a charge of selling marijuana.

The boy was arrested in a joint crackdown by sheriff's officers and police detectives.

State GOP Unit Meets In Burley

BURLEY — The State GOP Central Committee met here Saturday to adopt some programs and listen to Gov. Don Samuelson speak.

The Governor outlined his accomplishments for the past two years during a noon luncheon at the Ponderosa Inn. Other special guests were Pete Conarusa, secretary of state, and Bob Robison, attorney general.

The Republicans adopted a candidate recruitment program which will fill all GOP vacancies on the ballots from county levels on up. They noted that in the past they have lost seats in counties as well as in state elections to opponents because they didn't have candidates.

A committee was chosen to select a site for the location of its June 13 meeting. Gwenn Bantz was named chairman and Mrs. Naomi Spackman, Fairfield and one member from each of the other six regions will also serve on the committee.

Dead Pilots Identified After Crash

MOUNTAIN HOME AIR FORCE BASE, Idaho (UPI) — Two Air Force pilots died in an aircraft accident late Thursday night. The victims of the crash were Major Walter Biolley, a native of Los Angeles, Calif., and 1st Lt. James E. Coleman, Columbus, Ga.

The aircraft, an RF-4C from the 10th tactical reconnaissance squadron stationed here, crashed about eight miles west of Greiner, Idaho at about 10 p.m. Thursday. The cause of the crash has not yet been determined.

Men Found Alive

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — Two men feared drowned when a 98-foot boat capsized in the Gulf of Mexico at midnight Thursday, miraculously saved by a pocket of air in the galley.

W.C. Wells, 55, the crewman on the motor vessel Lady Verna, said there was nothing to do but think in the 15-by-20-foot galley, with the air pocket getting smaller, so he finally decided not to worry, lest he drive himself crazy.

Hailey Realtors Told Of Need For Zoning Ordinance

HAILEY — "It was all right back there in the 1890's when Hailey and Ketchum were mining camps to have the blacksmith shop in the center of town," John DeLong, president of the Sawtooth board of Realtors told a meeting of the group Friday at the Hawaith Dining room.

In discussing the zoning problems being faced in both towns, he pointed out that Hailey is no longer a mining community and other resort areas, which were today, have found that residential and industrial sections of a city are made comfortable when separated.

Mr. DeLong named Ben Jewell, Ketchum; Jack Davies, Hailey, and Mrs. Clifton Myers, Bellevue, to meet with the Blaine county planning and zoning committee regarding a proposed county industrial park. They will report at the next Board of Realtors meeting Nov. 12.

Several sites for an industrial area were mentioned.

Mrs. Ed Lavery announced the board is sponsoring a dinner to be held Oct. 23 at which Bert Mitchell, Boise, community development specialist with the Small Business Administration, will speak. The public is invited and the place for the dinner will be announced later.

Pompidou Hits Death Sentences

By JOHN F. SIMS
PARIS (UPI)—All the death cells in French prisons are empty and official reports say President Georges Pompidou believes they should stay that way.

Pompidou, using his power as the supreme justice in France, has commuted the death sentences on four men who were awaiting execution on the guillotine when he was elected June 8. Officials close to the president say Pompidou is opposed to capital punishment and will use his powers to commute most if not all death sentences passed during his seven-year term.

The officials emphasize that Pompidou will not take any steps for the formal abolition of capital punishment so that the executioner's blade can still act as a deterrent to "professional" criminals.

The four men who were slated for execution in July represented three very different types of killer.

Andre Vagnaduzzi, 25, battered and knifed his mother and his father to death while in a mentally disturbed condition over money problems.

Alexandre Viscardi wanted to shoot a mistress who had left him. He did not find his former mistress at her mother's home, but shot the mother and two other women with her. The mother later died.

Noel Marucci, 27, and Serge Barany, 38, killed a bank employe and a policeman during a hold-up at Bordeaux. Each accused the other of firing the fatal shots.

All four were given life sentences under Pompidou's clemency orders. This means they will be considered for parole every five years until they are judged ready for release.

Ex-Buhl Man Gets Stipend To Do Research For Deaf

BUHL — Robert Zagata, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Zagata, Buhl, is one of eight recipients of an $8,500 internship from the "Language for the Deaf Through Parent Education" program, sponsored by the United States Office of Education (Title III-ESSEA) and the C-S-Mott Foundation and carried out in cooperation with Michigan State University.

Zagata taught at the Idaho State School for the Deaf in Gooding from 1966-69.

The program seeks to acquaint teachers with new research in the areas of child growth and development, parent education, child psychology and the development of language. It also encourages independent experimentation and research.

Each of the eight interns are assigned two or three families to work with. He will make two home visitations per week with each family. The families are distributed over a five-county area within a 50-mile radius of Flint, Mich.

Approaches to home training are individualized, depending on the level of the child's development, degree of hearing loss, incidence of multiple handicaps, family problems, parent capabilities, and other factors. Families with children up to two years and eight months of age are admitted to the program, although training can continue to a time that the children are eligible for nursery school programs.

Interns are under the supervision of Dr. Elonen and hold individual and group seminars or consultation with her weekly. During the course of the year they may accumulate 39 credits and may apply these credits toward a specialist or doctoral program. Zagata will be working toward an educational specialist or doctoral degree. He received his BS degree in speech pathology and audiology from Idaho State University in 1965 and his MS in education of the deaf from Oregon College of Education in 1968.

Zagata and his wife, Geri, are residing in Swartz Creek just outside of Flint. Mrs. Zagata is with the Flint community schools as a speech therapist.

Mrs. Zagata also taught at the Idaho State School for the Deaf in the primary department from 1967-69. While in Michigan she will take graduate courses.

More Oil

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — A new oil slick has tightened ashore from the Santa Barbara Channel where leakage from an ocean floor well of the Union Oil Co. coated beaches eight months ago.

The recurrence of the pollution occurred recently. While it was nowhere as severe as the inundation of oil last January, it left a film along sections of sand and rock over a 25-mile stretch and fouled the hulls of pleasure boats in the harbor at the water line.

Snowmobile Registration Is A Must

BOISE — Explaining the new law which requires the registration of snowmobiles, Jack F. Farley, motor vehicle division director, said any person who engages in the retail sales or rentals of snowmobiles is considered to be a dealer.

He pointed out the annual fee for certificates of number issued to dealers is $10 for the first certificate and $3 for each additional certificate, whether for demonstration or rental purposes.

Drinking Water In Lake Erie Is Causing Sickness, Death

By STEPHEN MORROW CLEVELAND (UPI) — Drinking water taken from contaminated Lake Erie is causing sickness and, perhaps even death among Clevelanders, a general practitioner said Friday.

Fugitive

EMMETT (UPI) — William Lawrence Matthews, 35, wanted by the Sacramento bureau of the FBI, was apprehended in Emmett Thursday after a woman who said he frightened her identified him.

Officer Jim Watson said the woman described an identified Matthews after saying he was wanted by the FBI.

FBI agents in Boise said Matthews was wanted in California for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution of a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Matthews was turned over to a U.S. Marshall and indicated he would waive extradition for return to California.

Loch Ness

Is Retired

LOCH NESS, Scotland (UPI) — Dan Taylor retired his yellow submarine Friday from the search for the Loch-Ness Monster and said he would try again in about three years with a better equipped sub.

Taylor, 29, of Atlanta, Ga., complained that monster-hunting buffs had expected him to accomplish his mission quickly "like a magician." He rates his task as a "million-to-one" shot in the murky waters of the lake.

Taylor said he has started packing up the parts of his 20-foot submarine, the Viperfish, and would deliver it to customs officials at Greenock, near Glasgow, next week. He plans to sail for home Oct. 18.

"They expected me just to pop down and get Nessie when they have been trying unsuccessfully for eight years," Taylor said, made any great claims. I did not learn that visibility in the Loch was only about 12 inches until I arrived here. Then I knew that finding Nessie was a million-to-one chance."

Taylor said he plans to build a new submarine in Atlanta.

Dr. John Poland made the charge in an article in a national medical journal—Medical World News.

He said an epidemic five years ago that caused 50 deaths and a great deal of vomiting and diarrhea in Cleveland, was probably a "para-Typhoid" caused by bacteria in the water. The epidemic, Dr. Poland said, has broken out in much milder and briefer form ever since.

Dr. Frank Ellis, city health director, said the complaint was "unfounded" and was based on "unscientific" methods.

Ellis said tests of the water at the filtration plants and at various points in the distribution system show no bacteria, and the water is treated with chlorine to kill bacteria.

But Dr. Poland, in a UPI interview, said the tests used by the city reveal the presence only of two major strains of bacteria (aerobacter aerogenus and escheichia coli).

Dr. Poland said he has found "salmonella" and "shigella"—two diseases caused by bacteria in Cleveland water, in a test using centrifugal force, microscopic analysis, and culture breeding.

"These bacteria are usually in the water in only a mild form," Dr. Poland said. But after a succession of hot days, they breed virulently and can dominate bacteria cultures job."

"The real problem is Lake Erie," he said.

Charles Krumm Is Candidate For Burley City Council

BURLEY — Charles Krumm has filed his petition with the Burley City Clerk as a city councilman candidate. Mr. Krumm is the second person to file a petition for the Nov. 4 city election and the first to file for a councilman post. Garis Robertson was the first to file for the mayor position.

Mr. Krumm served as president of the recent City Manager for Burley group and served as chairman of the Northside Citizens Committee organization.

"Having had 24 years of business experience I feel the number one priority in operating any business is spending in accordance to the income of that business, whether it be private or operated on taxpayers' money," stated Mr. Krumm.

He also believes a councilman should take on the responsibility of voicing and voting his honest convictions independently on all issues coming before the council. There is no substitute for honest, above-board dealings, especially with the public.

He was born at Nyssa, Oregon 29 years ago and with his family moved to Hansen when he was 3 years old. He attended schools in Hansen and Twin Falls. He attended the former Gooding College and also attended University of Colorado, Boulder, for one year.

In 1931 he married Pearl Muse and the couple has two sons, Dale and Paul. He and Dean Krumm, Twin Falls, and one daughter, Mrs. Sam Overacre, Burley.

The couple moved in Magic Valley until 1945 when he entered the grocery business at Hansen. They have owned and operated ated grocery stores in Hagerman, Murtaugh and Burley. In March, 1969, he sold the Pick-N-Pak Market in Burley which he had owned and operated for nine years.

CHARLES KRUMM

Presently he is employed by M. H. King Co. in Burley and the couple resides at 618 Alhambra Ave., Burley. He is an active member of the First Baptist Church.

REDEMPTIONS UP WASHINGTON (UPI)— Savings bond redemptions exceeded sales by $10 million last month, the 10th straight month more money was taken out of the bond program than was put in, the Treasury Department said today.

Agricultural Workers May Come Under Gem Law

By RICHARD CHARNOCK

BOISE (UPI) — A legislative study committee voted 5-3 today to put all agricultural employment under workers' compensation coverage. In a proposed new Workmen's Compensation Code.

Rep. John Pino, D-Pocatello, made the successful motion which offers no exemptions for farm and ranch workers.

After the vote was taken, Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, predicted the stand would run into "a lot of opposition" in hearings later on and in the legislature itself.

Committee members at first discussed the possibility of exempting operators who have only one or two employees.

But Will DeFenbach, Boise, a member of the Industrial Accident Board, told the committee this could lead to a lot of litigation and conflicts.

Rep. Harold Snow, R-Moscow, suggested that perhaps operators with only a few employees are the ones who need the workmen's compensation coverage the most. Little said that about 85 per cent of the large operators have such coverage now.

Earlier, the committee agreed to include in its proposed new code a broad and sweeping new definition of "injury."

Committee members unanimously voted to include in their draft a definition that would make all job-connected injuries compensable under Idaho law.

Such action by the committee was recommended earlier by Ben Oppenheim, retired chairman of the Industrial Accident Board and now a consultant to the IAB. He said the philosophy is changing.

He said a definition contained in a model code being studied by the committee is "the most sweeping change proposed by the Model Code."

"Idaho law is limited to injuries caused by accident and a list of occupational diseases," Oppenheim said.

He said the original concept of workmen's compensation was to compensate and rehabilitate a worker for injuries sustained in an on-job accident.

But he said this concept had led to considerable litigation—even though the purpose of the law is to avoid litigation.

"If injuries arise out of the work, whatever the reason, they ought to be compensated," Oppenheim told the committee.

He said the "idea you can only recover when there's an accident is antiquated."

As an example he cited the hypothetical case of a worker exposed to continuous loud noise on the job. He said if that worker becomes deaf as a result of this he is entitled to compensation as one who is "injured by blow to his ear while on the job."

"If it's work connected," Oppenheim said, "that's the proper test and that's what the model law is intended to do."

Rep. Harold Snow, R-Moscow, asked whether the proposed new definition also might lead to litigation just as the one limiting compensation to injuries has.

"Not just as much but there's going to be some," Oppenheim said. "As long as there are lawyers there are going to be fights."

Rep. Russell Fogg, R-Idaho Falls, said he felt the new definition might be good but said that "if it's going to be this broad we're going to have to obtain more money to pay this." He suggested it even might lead to some sort of social security program at the state level.

Sen. Fisher Ellsworth, R-Idaho Falls, agreed.

"Any changes we make here that result in additional costs are just going to have to be passed on to the public," Ellsworth said.

Consideration of the definition was the first major policy decision to come before the committee when it resumed its deliberations this morning. Former Supreme Court Justice E. B. Smith, hired by the committee to study the model law and make recommendations, went through the proposed new code section by section.

Smith told the committee he was "rather fearful that industry itself will figure it's (the proposed new definition of injury) too broad a definition."

The model code defines injury as "Any harmful change in the human organism arising out of and in the course of employment." It includes damage to or loss of a prosthetic appliance.

Three File For Offices At Hailey

HAILEY — Three men have filed for city office in the upcoming Nov. 4 city election here.

L. E. Heagle has filed for the office of mayor and Neal Nyblad and Charles Dunn have filed for the offices of city councilmen.

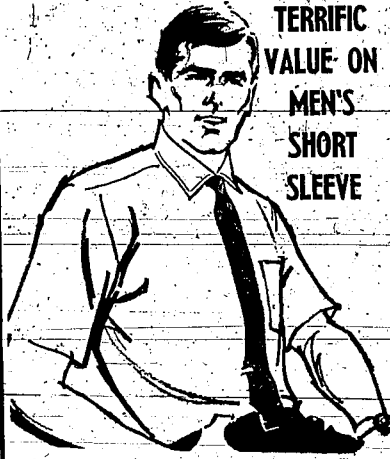

Mr. Heagle is a former state senator and has been in business here all his life. Mr. Nyblad came to Hailey about two years ago and is co-owner of the Wood River Journal. Mr. Dunn is a long-time resident of the area and is a real estate broker.

In Ketchum several petitions have been taken out but no one has filed for office yet, it was reported.

The deadline for filing is the close of office hours Monday.

Argentina Hot Dog Is Thick, Juicy Steak

By STEWART KELLERMAN

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Argentina's hot dog is a thick, juicy steak.

Probably more than the Gaucha and the tango, the steak is a national institution in this South American country of 23 million people.

Argentines proudly claim you've never really tasted a steak until you try one of their mouth-watering, often two-inch-thick delicacies. Not many visitors would quibble about it.

It's hard to find a street in Buenos Aires without a place to buy a good steak. They're sold in bars, cafeterias, corner eateries, lunchboxes, sidewalk stands, you name it.

On Sundays, when you drive out to the suburbs, you can see towers of smoke rising from the woodlands along the La Plata river. A forest fire? Nope. Just thousands of steak lovers grilling country lunches over outdoor barbecues.

On the Costa Nera Norte, a scenic highway running along the Ibera Plata, there are so many steak houses they're called by number instead of names. The newest one is 67.

At city parks, there are stands where a dollar buys a family of three enough beef to cook for lunch over grills provided by the municipality.

Price is the first thing that catches the attention of a visitor. A steak costs little more than a hot dog in the United States. In most restaurants, you can buy one for 170 pesos (about 45 cents), and if you'd prefer a steak sandwich, it'll set you back only 100 pesos (29 cents).

They're so cheap that for a quick bite Argentines often order steak and eggs instead of the ham-and-eggs so popular in the States.

There are two principal steak cuts—bife de chorizo and bife de lomo. Neither is quite like any of the cuts commonly found in the U.S., but the chorizo resembles a sirloin steak and the lomo a filet mignon.

One reason for the difference in the meat, according to local agriculture officials, is that cows in Argentina are fed only grass, while their U.S. counterparts feed also on corn.

Steaks traditionally are cooked "a punto" in Argentina, which means they come out of the fire well-done on the outside and rare inside.

Argentines ate an average of 184 pounds of steak per person in 1968, which comes to more than a half-pound daily. For total meat input you could add 14 pounds of lamb and 17 pounds of pork per person each year.

Sun Valley Man Hired

Corky H. Fowler, Sun Valley, western ski instructor and winter sports authority, has been appointed by Air West to head a new winter sports tour development program.

Richard Neal, general sales manager, said Mr. Fowler will represent the airline at ski shows and assist in the promotion of group tours.

Air West plans to operate special weekend ski service this fall, including Saturday ski trips from Seattle nonstop to Twin Falls and from Los Angeles to Salt Lake City and Twin Falls. The flights will accommodate skiers going to Sun Valley and Utah ski resorts. Mr. Fowler will be active in working with resorts and ski clubs in both areas.

Mr. Fowler has been a ski instructor at Sun Valley and in the Seattle area and in 1967 was a technical coach at the Crystal Mountain summer racing camp near Mount Rainier. He also has appeared in several instructional and commercial films on skiing.

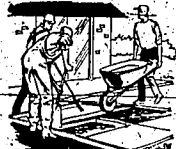

WILLIAM V. JAMISON JR., formerly an agent with State Farm Insurance Co. at Sunnyside, Wash., has been named district manager for the companies in the Magic Valley District. He will headquarter in Twin Falls. He will reside at 552 Monte Vista Ave. A dinner welcoming him to the local area was held at the Holiday Inn by agents from throughout the district.

Man Arraigned For Violation Of Gun Control Act

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — C. Thomas, 40, Idaho Falls, was arraigned before U.S. Commissioner William W. Black Wednesday following his arrest for violation of the Federal Gun Control Act. The complaint filed against Thomas charged him with having purchased a firearm prohibited from sale to a person under federal license. Black Wednesday statement in connection with the purchase of a firearm from a licensed firearms dealer. The complaint also alleged Thomas had certified he was not a person prohibited from purchasing a firearm under federal license.

Newspaper Boys Don't See Themselves As Anything Special, But FBI Director Does

By United Press International
 No comes zooming along the sidewalk, his bike laden down with folded newspapers and with a flock of the wisest heaves one and it arcs over the lawn and whacks against the front door—and once in a while into the shrubs or up on the roof—but only once in a while. It could be Bangor, Me., or San Diego, Tampa, Fla., or Seattle. He is the American newsboy who belongs to a fraternity of thousands of youths whose early-hour or after-school work has become a tradition of American life. On International Newspaper Day, Oct. 11, these junior businessmen are being honored with a variety of activities and awards. Their fans include FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover who terms their jobs "a public service of the highest magnitude." and Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio, who praised their "enterprise and responsibility."

How do the boys themselves view their jobs? "According to Jim McCurdy, 13, of Malden, Mass., a ninth grade student, the primary value of being a newsboy is "earning money." Jim, who has four brothers and two sisters, has been a newsboy for a year and a half. "It teaches you the value of money. I put most of what I earn in the bank." With a grin he says he isn't saving "for anything in particular, just saving." The rewards beyond money is apparent in what Duane Marshall, of 1410 Albany Place, Richardson, Tex., wrote in competing for this year's $500 F.C. Voorhies Memorial Scholarship awarded by the Dallas Times-Herald. Duane, who attends Richardson High School in a suburb of Dallas, had only 10 complaints of missed papers in 18 months of delivering the Times-Herald; he had 100 per cent collections, and sold 163 subscriptions. He wrote part:

"Although my Times-Herald route has given me many prizes and exciting trips, I have found something more valuable. That is the privilege of making new friends and getting to meet different people. When I meet and make friends, I have learned that it pays off, with the reward being something money cannot buy. I have also received many other benefits from my experience as a carrier. While working on my route, I have learned simple bookkeeping methods, salesmanship techniques and have earned money for my education. I have learned that doing

Education Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — HEW Secretary Robert H. Finch pledged the administration Friday to helping develop "career education" in the nation's 1,000 community colleges. He said this would be particularly significant for Negroes. "We must be concerned with career education for the young and continuing education for those presently employed," Finch said. "There is no other way to break the cycle of underemployment." For Black Americans, the public community college was the potential for becoming the most promising avenue of higher education," he said.

Use Of Initiative Device In Constitution Is Questioned

By LINDY HIGH

BOISE (UPI) — Legislators questioned inclusion of an initiative device in the proposed new state constitution Friday, one voicing fears the people of the state might use an initiative unwisely.

Clyde Keithly, R-Nampa, asked the constitutional revision commission "How many things that would be proposed as amendments shouldn't be in the Constitution?"

Eugene Bush, a commission member from Idaho Falls, suggested that initiative measures could be limited to non-revenue items.

"I don't think the people should be voting 'yes' or 'no' on anything unless they're voting 'yes' on spending," Bush said. "I don't see how you can admit 'no' into the area of revenue unless it's through a representative."

Sen. Robert Rowlett, R-Mountain Home, however, argued that the proposed revision constitution "is the people's document and they should be able to amend it."

Sen. Arthur Murphy, D-Mullan, added that inclusion of an initiative measure might help "sell this package" to the people.

Former supreme court justice Raymond Givens suggested, tongue-in-cheek, that if the commission wanted to "sell" the package, it should suggest the legislature pay the cost of gathering signatures on initiative petitions. "You pay your legislators."

Three TV Networks Locked In Annual Ratings Battle

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Goliaths of American television—the three commercial networks—have completed the latest round of ratings and are locked in their annual battle for the ratings on which their vast revenues depend.

Now comes the turn of the public television network, or NET, as the initials itself, from the official name of National Educational Television, opens its 16th season.

NET has neither the finances nor the manpower to join in the ratings fray now, in fact, it is in competition with the giants. It was founded as a nonprofit, noncommercial organization to provide educational and cultural programs to independent stations.

And this, perhaps, is just as well for NET, CBS and ABC. For again this year little David has a few powerful programs in its slingshot. One of them is "The Forsythe Saga," a British production of the John Gielgud worth epic. In 26 one-hour chapters, British critics lauded it as one of the medium's masterpieces and it headed the ratings there on both its first and second runs.

But despite the most ambitious autumn schedule in its history and its first season of transmitting to its 165 stations on two lines, it could not afford to mail the tapes of its shows until this year's serious problem of finance clouded the future of public broadcasting. The Ford Foundation has been a major source of its $8 million a year since the beginning.

"But now," said a spokesman, "it is trying to phase out and we are at a critical juncture. Congress passed the Public Broadcasting Act in 1967 and the House authorized $20 million to help in programming and facilities. But President Nixon has asked for only $10 million.

A second threat is the tax reform bill now before the Senate Finance Committee. It would curtail deductions from engaging in any activity intended to influence public opinion—and practically any commercial television can be so construed.

"If passed this would put us out of business," said the NET spokesman.

NET stations receive two hours of network programming a night, five nights a week from Sunday through Thursday, at other times they transmit local programs. The stations fall into three categories—community stations supported by public money, stations connected to state or local schools, and stations mainly operated by state universities.

Balancing the shortcomings somewhat is the increasing strength of the programming, such as the lineup for the fall—drama, jazz, four documentaries and a program of short film essays on life in America by conservative William F. Buckley.

Playhouse, the only weekly network drama, and winner of Emmy and Peabody Awards, goes into its fourth year, still specializing in American regional theater. The first production, Glory Hallelujah, will originate in the San Francisco area Oct. 13.

Another drama series, titled "On Being Black," consists of 10 one-hour plays for and about blacks on the general theme of what it's like being black in white America.

Singer Peggy Lee will star in a documentary skilling how she prepares her night club act "The Advocates" is what the network call "a live experiment in participation democracy. Viewers will be encouraged to take part in studio debates by telephoning in their comments. The first opera will be the Americanized version of Janacek's "From the House of the Dead," based on Dostoevsky's diary of life in a prison camp.

Karen Allen Honored By Burley Club

BURLEY — Karen Allen, a senior at Burley High School, was honored as Citizen of the Month and was a special guest of the Burley Soroptimist Club during their luncheon Wednesday at Bryan's Cafe.

Miss Allen, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allen, was elected alternate state delegate to the National Soroptimist Convention while at Girls State and served as songleader for the group. Activities in high school include serving on the executive council and being cheerleader for three years. She also played in the band and was a member of Stoperettes. Miss Allen is a seminary officer and is busy with other church activities.

She plans to attend Utah State University after graduation.

Herman E. Beake, guest speaker, told the club members of his duties and experience as Public Defender for both Cassia and Minidoka counties.

Mrs. Wayne Konrad, president, asked that all club members have their committee reports ready for the first meeting in October.

Mrs. Fred Sherrod reported on the schedule for the Oct. 18 and 19 Soroptimist Club meeting which will be held by the Burley Soroptimist Club at the Ponderosa Inn.

The club's next meeting will be in October on Oct. 8 at Bryan's Cafe.

Innocent Plea Is Entered In District Court

Joel E. Michalik, 20, accused of illegal possession and sale of LSD, entered an innocent plea in a Fifth District Court appearance Friday.

Mr. Michalik is deaf and it was for this reason that his attorney, Golden Bennett, asked the judge to appoint an interpreter on his own recognizance until a trial could be set.

Judge Theron Ward instead reduced the bond from $3,000 on each count to $1,500 on each count.

Ronald J. Laws was also arrested on charges of probation violation. He requested an attorney be appointed and the case was continued to next week.

Seven Minidoka State Youths Receive Eagle Scout Rank At Court Of Honor

RUPERT — A Gold Palm award and seven Eagles were presented to Minidoka State Boys Scout Troop of Honor held at the Minidoka State LDS Tabernacle in Rupert.

Receiving the coveted Eagle rank were Frank Cheney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Cheney, Heyburn Second Ward; Gary Hansen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Nel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Taylor, and Brent Lowder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lowder, all Acquia Second; David Nichols, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Nichols, Brian Beard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Beard, and Mrs. Lamer Nel, all Rupert Fifth Ward.

The gold palm award was presented to Donald Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Con Fisher, Rupert Ward Scout Troop 80.

In addition, 43 other rank advancements were made in the 11 participating troops, and merit badges were awarded to 95 scouts.

First class advancements included Strauss, Rupert Ward; Larry Nelson, Acquia; Donald Allen, John Astor, Roger Hansen, Dell Ray Lowder, Kyle Nelson, Doug Young, Acquia Second; Wayne Scott, Emerson; Lyle Nel, Rupert Fifth Ward; and Neil Terry, Paul Second.

Receiving second class advancements were Bobby Crystal, Burke Neibaur and Charles Terry, Paul Second; Ron Fennell, Brad Smith, Rupert Fourth; and Boyd Bingham, Kent Nel, Hugh Benzler, and Steven Wood, Rupert Fifth.

Seven Tracy and Brent Gray.

Richfield Will Elect 3 Aides

RICHFIELD — Three petitions have been filed for the three councilmen posts to be filled in the Nov. 4 municipal election in Richfield.

James M. Brown and L. T. Sanders, incumbents, are seeking re-election for four-year terms and Vern Spencer has filed for the two-year term. John L. Holden, incumbent, is not seeking re-election.

Monday is the deadline for filing candidates petitions with Mrs. Ruth Swainston, city clerk. Holdover members of the board are Mayor Clifford Ward and Howard Dewitt.

"Jazz Alley," a series of five programs originating at WTTW in Chicago, will feature such artists as Poevec Russell, Jimmy McParland and Eddie Condon.

"Watching" KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — A White House spokesman said Saturday President Nixon was "very carefully" watching the current battle-line in Vietnam, but declined to comment on reports that the United States had established new secret contacts with Hanoi.

News Secretary Ronald Ziegler told reporters Nixon met during the day with Henry A. Kissinger, national security affairs advisor, and that it could be assumed the two men discussed Vietnam "very thoroughly," but he would go no further.

Specifically, the news secretary declined what significant Nixon attached to the full, the most pronounced in the last two years.

Homecoming At Kimberly Is Featured

KIMBERLY — Homecoming activities Friday here started with a parade down Main Street and ended with the Bulldog-Fire football game at the home field.

Outcome of the game will be found on today's sports pages.

The theme of the homecoming parade was "Building Pride," and seniors got first place in the float division.

Janet Murphy was chosen homecoming queen. Her attendants were Lana Emerson, a freshman; Deena Kinsey, a sophomore; and Debbie Richards, a senior.

There was a chili supper at the grade school from 4:30 to 8 p.m.

Germans Appear To Be Looking Forward To 20th Birthday Of Democratic Republic

BERLIN — A visitor to East Germany might expect its inhabitants to be looking toward the 20th birthday of the German Democratic Republic Tuesday as a day more for regret than for celebration. But this doesn't seem to be the case.

On the posters, a pretty girl of suitably unassailable purity smiles simply and says, as it were, winningly, "I am 20 in recent days a full-length feature film about a woman who falls hopelessly in love with her Socialist fatherland, has been released. The 20th birthday, for the communications minister, is producing one broadly comparable in quantity and quality to that being disseminated—the Soviet Union in anticipation of the 100th anniversary next April of the birth of Lenin.

But while the East Germans shake their heads at the Eastern Bloc brethren to draw imposing graphs of climbing output, industry is producing about four times as much as in 1950), to underline the very handsome increases in trade turnover (an eightfold increase since 1950), the importance of the consumer sector in the national economy (two households out of every three are now said to have a television set, and so forth), there is also an unexpected coyness even in this context.

More than one-sixth of the Soviet Union's total foreign trade turnover is currently with this part of Germany, while the Soviet share of GDR trade is well over 40 per cent. In the post-war years it was as much the help that was forthcoming.

In the form of Soviet raw materials and advice—as the party for the birthday celebrations concedes that there has been "a hard struggle against internal and external resistance" (though the internal resistance is not elaborated upon), "Our development," it adds, "was anything but a peaceful stroll along a well-laid street." Finally, there is the revelation that "the Soviet Union has granted us unselfish materials supplies in the West and comprehensive aid."

Editor Times-News: I am writing this letter to express the opposition of property adjacent to the City of Twin Falls by the Twin Falls City Council. It seems that this city is planning to annex some of this area, and as it is my understanding we can be annexed to the city without having any voice in the matter. Living and working in this area, we have no voice in the government of the city, we are without representation in this matter.

If the city council would poll the people living in these areas, they would find a 99 per cent opposition to the proposed annexation. These people purchased their property so that they would not be in the city of Twin Falls. They have gone to considerable expense in the development of their water and in the development of their property so that they could have a horse or a cow or two. We have asked the city of Twin Falls for anything, and don't feel we have anything to offer us after annexation. We have lived here and spent our money with the merchants who are presently on the City Council. This evidently isn't enough. It seems that the City Council is searching high and low for more revenue to help finance the purchase of more park areas such as Dierker's Lake, when the city streets could stand some improvement. It seems to me as I drive down town in Twin Falls, that some of the streets could stand some work, rather than to annex another large area where some streets are going to have to be maintained.

On Falls Avenue West, which has been almost impassable for the past two years since the city put water pipes down the street, some work is badly needed. Of course the fire hydrants, which were installed when the pipe was put and which were placed in the wrong places out on the highway right of way, will all have to be moved back first. If this is a sample of the engineering used by the city, it might be possible to save some money by insisting on

Jerome Writer Asks People To Keep Electoral College

Editor, Times-News: It would seem that our "useless anachronism," the Electoral College, needs something said in its behalf. It is the House of Representatives, with the approval of 2/3 of it, and now being considered by the Senate.

The greatest misunderstanding of the Electoral College has come from a general misunderstanding of the kind of government our founding fathers were trying to give us. Most people today think they are trying to give us an ordinary representative democracy. Even the best of writers (including books on American government) say there is no difference between a representative democracy and the American republic.

One who is familiar with the system thought there was a difference. When Dr. Franklin

Brandt Vows Dedication To Reforms

BONN (UPI)—Foreign Minister Willy Brandt has promised to devote his term as Federal Chancellor of West Germany to domestic reform, sources in his party said Saturday.

Brandt is to be elected Chancellor by his 224 Social Democratic and most if not all of the 30 Free Democratic deputies in the parliament elected Sunday and convening Oct. 29.

One Free Democrat absented himself and three others abstained when the party caucus voted late Friday on Chairman Walter Scheel's proposal to enter a partnership with the Social Democrats.

Brandt—thus was assured of one vote more than 2/3 he needs to be elected on the first ballot.

During a Friday caucus of his party, sources within it said Brandt outlined his policy agreement with the Free Democrats, then declared: "I want to be a chancellor of domestic reform."

The statements of intent meshed with his election campaign promises of "a modern Germany" if he and his Social Democratic party received enough votes to form a government.

Brandt's election will force Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger's Christian Democrats out of office for the first time since the republic was formed 20 years ago.

emerged from the Constitutional convention he was asked: "Dr. Franklin, what have you given us?" "A republic," he replied, "but can you live with it?"

The evidence within the Constitution itself, that the framers were afraid of an excess of federal power, is clearly apparent. Senate is chosen on a state population; Federal judges are appointed, not elected; originally the Senate was elected by the State Legislature, not by the people; Constitutional amendments are approved by three-fourths of the States, not by a simple majority of the people, but by the states voting on the same basis as their representation in Congress.

Before we abandon this time-honored system, let us recognize that it has produced some of the great men of our time, and never failed to give us a president by inauguration day. Some of the new proposals might include "minority" presidents, we can hardly say that it has failed to produce presidents of sufficient ability. (Lincoln for instance) nor can we claim that a president that is elected with less than a majority of the people's votes is worse than an "ordinary" president elected by a majority of the states' votes. (Remember that under a direct election system, Los Angeles metropolitan area could vote out Idaho, Nevada, and Wyoming all put to bed.)

The present system gives more voting advantage to the smaller states, such as Idaho, Democratic? Granted. Remember we didn't start out for an "ordinary" democracy. But what Idaho citizens benefit through the slum districts of our great cities would care to argue that our founding fathers were not wise in their choice of strength to our rural areas that their numbers alone would command.

But, certainly not least, the Electoral College system tends to preserve our two party system of politics. Since a third party has little chance of getting seriously into the electoral college, splinter parties have a tendency to be incorporated into the two major parties. Under this system the winner of a plurality espousing policies contrary to those he was elected on, in order to form a coalition government, such as last Sunday's election in Germany.

Let us hang onto our Electoral College system. There is no real danger of a change that would give us better Government.

Fulbright To Hold Hearings On Withdrawal Resolution

By MIKE FEINSLIBER
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. J. William Fulbright announced Saturday that as a matter of duty he will conduct public hearings on Vietnam policies which probably televised. Fulbright introduced a resolution that would require withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Vietnam by the end of 1970.

President Nixon has already labeled "defeatist" the measure sponsored by Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., that would force total withdrawal by Dec. 31, 1970.

Fulbright said his Foreign Relations Committee, the forum of lengthy televised hearings on Vietnam policies which brought discomfort to Johnson administration, would hold five days of hearings starting Oct. 27. He said Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird were expected to agree to speak against the Goodell proposal.

Both were certain to argue that Goodell's bill would pull the rug from under the U.S. negotiating position in Paris by assuring the Communists the United States would withdraw no matter what they did.

Fulbright said "all policy proposals from senators dealing with Vietnam will be discussed during the hearings."

"If the Senate is to be a full and active partner in the making of foreign policy, it has a duty to help the President in finding a way out of the Vietnam morass," Fulbright said. "That will be the purpose of the coming hearings."

Merger? Los Angeles (UPI)

Merger? Los Angeles (UPI)—American Airlines and Western Airlines reportedly have held extensive talks about merging.

However, the airlines are still far from agreement and for the moment no further talks are scheduled, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The stumbling block to a quick agreement, according to the report, is Las Vegas financier Kirk Kirkorian, who acquired a 25 per cent interest in Western through a tender offer earlier in the year.

Officials at Western, headquartered here, declined comment on the report.

It was indicated that American and Western have talked tentatively in terms of American's offering to exchange one share of its stock for each share of Western, according to the Times. American's stock traded at $32.75 a share Friday and Western at $25.75.

Maritime Unions Threaten Work Stoppage At U.S. Ports

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—Maritime Union leaders have threatened a work stoppage at all U.S. ports within the next two weeks in an effort to pry loose the merchant marine program President Nixon promised to submit to Congress during his election campaign.

Members of the AFL-CIO Maritime Committee, composed of presidents of the maritime unions, issued a statement Friday saying they planned a "boycott" of all ships in U.S. ports to back up their demands for "re-evaluation of the declining U.S. merchant marine."

Thomas W. Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen Association and chairman of the committee, rejected a suggestion that the boycott would be a "strike," but explained that the boycott would consist of the union members "going on vacation for a few weeks."

Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union and chairman of the committee, said the union presidents meet-

Leasing Corp. Absorbs Boise Firm

Industrial Leasing Corporation, Portland-based industrial equipment leasing firm, has absorbed all accounts and personnel of Northwest Leasing Co., Inc., Boise, it was disclosed in Portland today by Ben Freeman, president of ILC.

"We've been interested in the Idaho territory for some time," said Mr. Freedman, "and we felt that because Northwest is a vigorous growing firm with a good industrial reputation, it would be wisest to expand in this way."

Northwest has been producing approximately $50,000 a year in rentals receivable, and with the increased equipment available to ILC—a businessmen through the larger Oregon corporation, an increase to $80,000 is projected the first year.

George A. Lyda will remain in Boise as the Idaho representative and through his office ILC will cover all of the state with the exception of the northern panhandle, which is covered by ILC's Spokane office.

Difficulties In Israeli And Arab Conflict Are Outlined

Editor, Times-News: Shortly after the June, 1967, Arab-Israeli War, the Times-News ran an interview with Dr. Eliezer El Malki, whose comment that blood would yet flow in the land of milk and honey was ridiculed by a forum writer. The El Malki position has come to pass and David Nes, last Charge d'Affaires in Egypt, now deplores U.S. policy there.

He stated: "It is virtually impossible to obtain in our country, through the communications media, a factual, accurate and balanced picture of the recent history or of current developments. "Evasive Pencer-by John H. Davis, an American who headed UNRWA for many years, the UN organization designed to care for Arabs and refugees by Israel in 1948. Nes says Davis, unable to find an American publisher, published through Jim Murray, Alameda Street, London, but cannot find a single distributor in the United States. Davis blames world Zionism rather than American Zionism. Nes and Davis, decriing the United States role, through Zionist pressure in the creation and subsequent expansion of Israel, stating:

"The supporters of Israel, by upholding the 'despotic' and 'wrongful' acts against the Palestinian Arabs have, in effect, contributed more to conflict than to peace and in fact have largely forfeited their potential as mediators."

(Others, including non-Zionist Arab writers Al-Banati, Moshe Memolin, Rabbis Peter chowski and Berger and others, along with Britain's Sir Anthony Powell, have also written of conflict and difficulties. Nothing, the famous Zionism, stating: "The one people, the only people in the whole so-called civilized world who have never persecuted the Jews were the Arabs."

Americans should understand the Zionist influence of United States citizens Justice Brandeis and Frankfurter, Col. House and other men, in drafting the 1917 Balfour Declaration as well as current Zionist influence on U.S. policy. Unless we do, further events in their so-called global conflict of such magnitude that Vietnam will seem as nothing."

Students Praised In Letter From Chamber Aide

Editor, Times-News: The unrest and riots in the college towns of our country many times makes us wonder about the young people attending the institutions of higher learning.

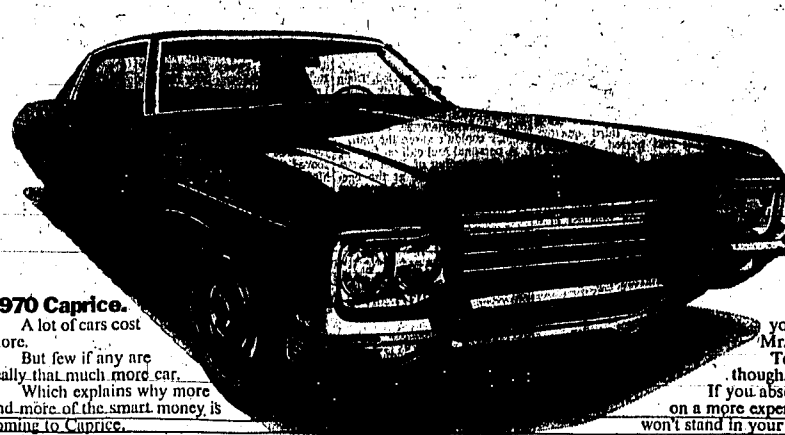

A week ago my wife and I spent four days on the campus of the University of Idaho. To say the least it was a most rewarding experience and I renewed our faith in young people.

The students were ladies and gentlemen. The friendliness and courtesy shown us will long be remembered.

The leadership displayed at the "All Idaho Week" by Jim Williams of Gooding, president of the Student Body, Scott McClure, Jerome, president of the student body at Idaho State University, and Jim Motern, Twin Falls, chairman of the central executive committee, and the other young men and women, I was most outstanding.

Perhaps more publicity should be given to the students who believe in their school, their country and the principles for which it stands.

Kern Leads Ohio State Past Huskies

SEATTLE (UPI) — Rex Kern, Ohio State's dis-everything quarterback, started things with a 64-yard touchdown run and fullback Jim Oley hauled for the most score to date.

coming up a bit of razzle-dazzle and a 41-yard touchdown pass to Jim Ellsworth. Halback receiver Jackson took the handoff from quarterback Goddard, tossed it back to Goddard and he unloaded the bomb to Ellsworth who took it on the 20 and scored. Late in the half Twin Falls stopped Skyline on a fourth and 41-yard play when Rocky Reese intercepted and almost broke it loose.

Twin Falls did nothing offensively in the third quarter after Bob Strum's quarterback kept the offense in a bit of a lull. But defense won it as Wood River picked up a fumble and returned it to the Glenns Ferry Rebels. The Rebels were able to stop Wood River four times, recovering a fumble on the one-inch line the last time.

Wood River recovered a fumble in the game at the Pilot 19-yard line and punched it down to the two-yard line. Exner went off tackle for the touchdown but the kick for the point-after failed.

It took Glenns Ferry only three plays to take the lead. On the third play, rookie Rich Brown broke off a tackle and romped 55 yards for the six points. Strum then added the two-pointer. The Rebels threatened twice after that, getting inside the 15 twice without scoring.

Kimberly scored 24 points in the first quarter Friday night and triggered the Kimberley Bulls to a 27-6 defeat over the Hagerman Pirates.

Kimberly scored on the first play as Hagerman tried to pass. The Kimberley defense picked off the first one and returned it 25 yards and Steve Emerson stole the second and romped 30 yards. The Kimberley defense picked off the second one and returned it 60 yards on a punt return.

The Broncos took over for their own 37-yard line after a fumble. The Broncos scored in eight plays, a face mask penalty punting the ball on the five to set Blain Wells' 37-yard plunge at 7:33 of the period.

Kimberly added 14 more in the last period. Another three points were scored in the second quarter. The Kimberley defense intercepted one pass and returned it 43 yards to score.

Dunne Throws For Three Touchdowns As Bengals Overpower Omaha By 46-7

POCATELLO (UPI) — Idaho State University, the number one team in the Big Sky Conference, defeated the University of Nebraska at Omaha 46-7 Saturday in the ISU Snud Bowl at Pocatello.

ISU's passing quarterback Jerry Dunne completed 13 passes out of 37 attempts for a total of 178 yards. Omaha, however, saw quarterback Rocco Gonnella complete 23 passes out of 60 attempts for 381 yards.

Dunne scored in the first three minutes when ISU's three-way drive led to tailback Tyrone Wenzel, who went into the end zone. The extra point was kicked by Tom Hurd.

Three minutes later the Bengals scored again on a series of plays that began when Hurd recovered an Omaha fumble. This time Dunne passed to receiver Carl Harris in the end zone and Hurd kicked the extra point.

The Bengals continued through the second quarter when Dunne hit Harris again on an 18-yard pass but the attempted kick was unsuccessful.

Midway through the second quarter the Bengals brought the score to 14-0 when Dunne threw a 26-yard pass to Ed Bell. The Bengals failed an attempted pass into the end zone.

The Omaha defense made the scoreboard late in the second quarter when quarterback Gonnella hit tight end Stan Standley for a 25-yard touchdown pass. Omaha's conversion was successful.

Penn State Edges Past K-State 17-14

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI) — Second-ranked Penn State used sophomore Lydell Mitchell's 58-yard touchdown gallop in the second quarter and a springboard to win a fired-up, but mistake-plagued Kansas State 17-14 Saturday, stretching the Nittany Lions' winning streak to 14 games.

The Lions, playing for the second straight week without an America-halback candidate Charlie Pittman, are now 30-0 this season and have not lost a tie included in 22 straight games.

A record K-State crowd of 3,300 watched the 10th-ranked Wildcats blow five scoring opportunities before Mitchell, a 5-10, 190-pound speedster, broke off a 58-yard touchdown gallop in the second quarter.

Chuck Brunkhart, Lion quarterback, went to the air to break open the game in the third quarter, driving the Lions 63 yards in nine plays for 14 after Mike Reitz's 33-yard field goal gave Penn State a 10-0 edge.

Colorado Humiliates Indiana 30-7

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Versatile Bob Anderson scored two touchdowns in Colorado's 30-7 rout of big ten Indiana.

The game was played in light snow on a moist field with a four-quarter snowball fight going on in the stands.

Anderson gained 161 yards in 29 carries to reach a 4,096-yard career mark and become the fourth-leading gainer in big eight annals.

Indiana, staved off by what Colorado coach Eddie Crowder called "the best defense we've ever had," improved defense, scored only once on a 17-yard strike from Harry Gonso to flanker Tommie Smith.

Anderson gained 161 yards in 29 carries to reach a 4,096-yard career mark and become the fourth-leading gainer in big eight annals.

Raiders And Miami Battle To 20-20 Tie

MIAMI (UPI) — Miami rookie Karl Kreamer kicked a 39-yard field goal with 5:41 remaining Saturday night to pull the Dolphins into a 20-20 tie with the Oakland Raiders.

Some 35,614 Orange Bowl fans that included President Nixon saw the Dolphins salvage a tie at their home opener and stave off a 17-point second half scoring assault by the Raiders, who defeated Miami two weeks ago 20-17 with a last-minute field goal.

Oakland pulled ahead of the Dolphins with 12:43 remaining in the final period when ageless George Blanda kicked a 37-yard field goal.

Blanda set an American Football League record against Miami by scoring in 40 consecutive games. He kicked a first quarter 21-yard field goal to earn that record and also made two conversions.

Oakland quarterback Darryl Lamborn touched down twice in a 15 and seven yards to Warren Wells and Fred Bilekoff for Oakland's other scores.

Miami quarterback Bob Griese tossed a nine-yard touchdown pass to Karl Noonan in the first quarter and running back Jim Kick burst into the end zone from four yards out in the third quarter to account for Miami's two touchdowns.

N.M. Defeats Kansas, Ends Losing Streak

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI) — The University of New Mexico, playing inspired football, shattered a 21-game losing streak Saturday with a 16-7 victory over stunned University of Kansas.

The win was the first for the Lobos since a 2-3 victory over Idaho State in the first game of the 1967 season. The 14,354 fans went wild with the victory.

The Lobos took charge early in the second quarter when UNM scored two touchdowns and a field goal in the first half and Kansas was unable to get on the score board until Willie Amis caught a Jim Edinger pass in the third quarter.

Junior quarterback Frank Gonsan broke open the scoring in the second quarter with a four-yard plunge.

Halfback David Bookert, a 6-1, 160-pounder from Hobbs, N.M., broke around right end for 23 yards and the second Lobos score in the second quarter.

Bookert, kicking specialist Tom Hurd, kicked a 22-yard field goal for the Lobos.

Kansas, except for its scoring drive, looked huddled and was unable to hold the fired-up Lobos.

Texas Grinds To 56-17 Win Over Navy

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Fourbacked Texas used an awesome ground attack paced by two touchdowns each from Ted Roy and Eddie Phillips Saturday night to overpower the Navy 56-17 for its 12th straight win and Darrell Royal's 100th victory as the Longhorns coach.

Phillips, a sophomore quarterback, scored on keepers of 45 and seven yards and Roy, a senior halfback, got his on runs of one and three yards as Texas ground-out a whopping 323 yards on the ground.

Jim Bertleser ran 43 yards for a score on Texas' first offensive play, then Roy added two more scores and starting quarterback James Street ran in from the six before Royal turned the game over to reserves midway through the second quarter.

The 26 points was the most ever given up by a Navy squad and was the highest point output for a Texas team since 1940.

Oklahoma State Nips Texas Tech

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI) — Oklahoma State's high-flying Cowboys came alive in the second half Saturday, corral Texas Tech 17-10 and pull off their second consecutive upset victory of the young season.

Tech controlled the first half with Miles Langbehn penetrating the OSU line at the one-yard line for a score in their first possession.

Sanders kicked a 31-yard field goal in the second quarter and the afternoon was beginning to adden for the Cowboy fans.

RIP VMI 33-0

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Led by the nation's second and third leading rushers, Jim Braxton and Bill Gresham, unbeaten West Virginia built up a 20-0 halftime lead and walloped winless Virginia Military 33-0 Saturday.

Missouri Rips Michigan In 40-17 Rout

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Ron McBride highlighted a 40-17 rout of Michigan by Missouri Saturday with a pair of short touchdown runs Saturday which carried the ninth-ranked Tigers to a 40-17 victory over the University of Michigan.

The Tigers held a 24-3 halftime lead over the 11th-ranked Wolverines, but were out of a point on their home field for this intersectional battle, but a pair of one-yard plunges over right tackle, fullback Garvie "Crow" in the third quarter put his team back in the game 24-17.

However, junior Mike Bennett broke through to block a Mark Werner punt and Missouri recovered on the Michigan 12, enabling Jerry Brown to kick the second field goal of the day from 24 yards out. Brown's first field goal, a 26-yarder, tied the game 3-3 and triggered the second quarter, favored by one point on their home field.

Junior tailback Joe Moore romped 52 yards on a third-and-four draw play with 8:59 left in the game to put Missouri out of reach.

Oregon Edges WSU On Last Minute Stand

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — The center of the Oregon line stopped Washington State's Richard Lee Smith one yard sophomore end quarterback, two-point conversion attempt with only 23 seconds left Saturday to preserve a 25-24 Pacific 8 Conference win.

The one-point margin came on an extra point kick by Ken Woody after Oregon's first touchdown late in the first quarter. It was the only extra point made in the game by either team.

Oregon controlled the first half of play, leading 10-0 at intermission. In the second half it was just the reverse as Washington State scored three times to tie Oregon's single TD.

Oregon is now 2-1 on the season and WSU 1-2.

Frank Stutz, kick Bobby Moore tallied twice for the Ducks on runs of eight and two yards. Jack Wigmore, WSU's sophomore end quarterback, clinaxed the final two-touchdown drives of the game by scoring from one and four yards out in the fourth quarter to pull the Cougars to within one point of the Ducks.

Iowa State Trounces Illini 48-20

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — A speedy Iowa State defense and the passing of Obert Tisdale outlasted Illinois' new multiple offense Saturday in a 48-20 romp.

The Cyclones struck for four touchdowns in the second quarter and the defense set up three more. Tisdale's pinpoint passing took good advantage of each opportunity.

Illinois quarterback Gary Lange threw for three second half touchdowns on the first final gun went off. But the Illini's cause was already long lost.

The Cyclones' second quarter outburst started when Tony Washington returned an interception 10 yards to the Illini 32. With fourth and three on the 10, Tisdale picked out to the end zone for a 25-yarder for the touchdown.

After an Illini punt, the Cyclones took the ball on their own 48 and nine plays later Tisdale hit end Otto Stone with a 10 yard pass on the goal-line.

Moments later, Cyclone Larry Hilton recovered an Illini fumble on the Illini 32 and on the next play, Tisdale hit Palmer for six points.

Then Iowa State safety Tom Elliott picked off a pass by Bob Hess and trotted 65 yards for the fourth Cyclone touchdown of the quarter.

When Fred Jones recovered a fumble on the Illini 18, substitute quarterback Mike Fontannini passed eight yards to Ray Coleman for the last Cyclone touchdown.

North Carolina Raps Vanderbilt

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI) — Sophomore quarterback Johnny Swofford threw three touchdowns and a 49-yarder Saturday to lead North Carolina to a 33-22 victory over Vanderbilt.

Swofford completed scoring passes of 12 yards to end Tony Blanchard, 25 yards to McCaughey and 41 yards to wingback Lewis Jolley, giving the Tar Heels their first win of the season.

Vanderbilt was stopped by a rugged North Carolina defense until the closing minute of the first half when string quarterback Danny Painter converted center playing in his first game, completed a 49-yard touchdown aerial to Commodores tailback Doug Matthews.

Big Wyoming Second Half Beats Rams

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI) — Sophomore fullback Jeff Howe tipped off a 47-yard touchdown run early in the second half Saturday to break a 3-3 scoring tie and Wyoming went on to trounce Colorado State 39-3 in the Western Athletic Conference.

The stubborn Rams, who had limited Wyoming to only a field goal in the first half, collapsed in the second. Wyoming scored three touchdowns and two field goals and a safety in the final period.

Bob Jacobs kicked two field goals of 21 yards and one of 27 yards and four extra points for Wyoming to move into the WAC scoring lead.

Wyoming was leading 10-3 going into the fourth quarter when the Rams folded.

The Cowboys scored on a 24-yard interception by Jerry Berry, a 50-yard gallop after a fumble recovery by Tom Gorman, a five-yard run by quarterback Phil Karpus who blocked a punt and fell on it.

Benvenuti Keeps Title On Ruling

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — World middleweight champion Nino Benvenuti retained his title Saturday night in a roughhouse bout with Eraser Scott of Seattle, Wash., who was disqualified in the seventh round for repeated illegal use of his head.

Scott was warned and cautioned several times by referee Tony Gilardi of Italy before being sent to his corner within one minute of the seventh round's start.

It was the second consecutive successful defense of the middleweight title by Benvenuti in Italy against American with 49 months. He scored a 15-round decision last December over Don Fulmer of West Jordan, Utah.

It was never much of a fight because the two men never mixed it up. But Benvenuti did score several times with sharp left jab-and-bloodyed Scott's nose in the fifth round.

Benvenuti just barely made the weight, registering 159 pounds 13.9 ounces. The feckle-faced, 5-foot-10 Scott weighed in at 158 pounds.

Scott came out rushing Saturday night — as he had done in his previous bouts — but never penetrate Benvenuti's defense and the Italian kept him at arm's length.

The wars on knockdowns but both men fell to the canvas in the seventh round when there missed an overhand jab. There was no count.

North Arizona Tops MSU 35-0

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — The Northern Arizona University Lumberjacks, behind the pinpoint passing of quarterback Bobby Stewart, defeated Montana State University 35-0 before a homecoming crowd of 7,000 Saturday.

Stewart completed 13 of 20 passes for 235 yards and three touchdowns.

Two of Stewart's scoring aerials, one for 17 yards and the other for 13 were caught by end Charlie Brown, who hit the school pass reception record for one game with 10.

UCLA Mauls Northwestern In Shutout

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI) — Mickey Cureton, reeling off 49 yards in a handoff, led UCLA to a 38-0 victory over Northwestern.

The favored Bruins turned a rash of fumbles and pass interceptions into three scoring drives and only once allowed Northwestern to seriously threaten its goal line.

The Bruins' fourth consecutive victory of the season and the 10th straight loss for their Big Ten opponent.

Dennis Dummit, UCLA's versatile quarterback, threw a 58-yard touchdown pass to George Jones and two other touchdowns. Bill Bolden and Greg Jones ran the ball across the Wildcat goal line in short scoring action.

ROMANTIC HEATING OIL
An Exclusive at JOE CLEMENTS OIL CO. 733-8546

If you buy oils and greases solely on price... you'll never buy Lubriplate Lubricants

Our point is that it is not the price, but the performance that means true economy. Performance is the reason why more industries are using LUBRIPLATE lubricants for all their lubrication requirements. LUBRIPLATE oils and greases cost a little more — a very little — because of an exclusive formula that uses a superior anti-friction ingredient.

Case histories show that when you switch to LUBRIPLATE lubricants you eliminate parts replacement and downtime, that you need fewer LUBRIPLATE products for all your requirements, that you can stretch out lubrication schedules. When these savings are added up, they more than justify the few cents more spent for LUBRIPLATE products.

'Just wait till he gets a couple years of drouth.'

"Get big or get out." That's what the magazines and economists were preaching.

Easy for them to say, sitting in their air-conditioned offices. But quitting farming was out of the question for Jay. It's all he'd ever done, all he wanted to do. And let's face it, ex-farmers seldom get choice jobs in town.

So Jay's got his little farm. He scraped together all his savings, borrowed a whopping $47,600 from the Land Bank, and bought a section lying less than two miles from his farm.

It sure made the neighbors talk.

Jay knew they were gossiping about him. Sour grapes, he figured. One even had the gall to ask, "What happens when you get a couple years of drouth, Jay?"

Jay had the answer. He figured there'd be some bad weather, and some years when the market was down. That's why he financed at the Land Bank.

The Land Bank is local.

Since Land Bank's objective is to help farmers by providing needed credit at lowest possible cost, Jay knows they'll help him weather the tough years. They're on his side.

And in the good years, Jay intends to plow extra income into his advance payment fund. It's a special Land Bank feature that helps the borrower help himself.

— Jay thinks those are important benefits. But the best thing about the Land Bank, so far as he's concerned, is that they share his faith in agriculture.

"Jumbo" Godfrey's SKY HOME IS TOTAL ELECTRIC

L. E. "JUMBO" GODFREY, CALDWELL, IDAHO

A little closer to the stars, above the dust and noise, high enough to view the Boise and Owyhee mountains, the living's great in L. E. Godfrey's "Sky Home" including flameless electric heat and air conditioning.

His livingroom ceiling is 34 feet above ground level. His home is a Caldwell-built Kit mobile home, 65 x 12 feet double expanded with glassed-in porch and a 40 x 80-foot outside deck, generously landscaped with flowers and tall shrubbery. Above that is a topside sun deck and a 40-foot lighted arrow, a landmark on highway 30 east of Caldwell.

"My electric heat is clean and comfortable," said Mr. Godfrey. "It's quiet and dependable, I've been very satisfied."

California Court Rules On Case

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A state court Friday rejected the request of San Francisco schools for an order restraining Mrs. Rafferty from firing teachers who use Eldridge Cleaver's "Soul on Ice" in class.

The state district court of appeal said it acted on the grounds that the teachers "just were not in danger in any case."

Rafferty, the state superintendent of public instruction, sparred at the dispute with a letter he wrote on Aug. 15. He called the book, along with Leroi Jones' two plays "The Dutchman" and "The Slave," obscene or profane.

The court said Rafferty allowed "that instruction, sparse might be placing their credentials in jeopardy by permitting the books' use in classrooms."

Snake River Ferries Made History

By BONNIE BAIRD-JONES
Times-News Feature Editor

River crossings presented some major problems to the early pioneers and settlers of western regions and Idaho; with the wide and treacherous Snake River, was no exception.

Enterprising businessmen of the day often provided the answer, however, as they stopped along the old Oregon Trail and other early routes to build and operate ferries. These ferries played an important part in the early development of many areas and often left their mark on history by passing their names on to communities that followed.

Magic Valley, because it is traversed by the mighty Snake and the old Oregon Trail had a large share of early day ferry crossings. Local records of the Twin Falls Historical Society show some 18 ferries operated between Minidoka and Mountain Home in the late 1800's and early 1900's.

Horse drawn vehicles often traveled many miles out of their way to cross the river but because of the more difficult mode of transportation ferries were located at closer intervals than today's steel and concrete bridges, built at considerably greater cost.

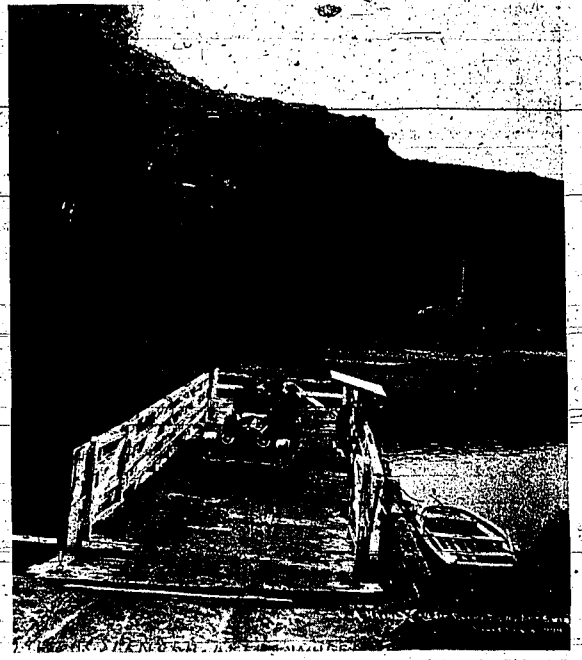

Information from the Idaho Historical Society's 20th biennial report of 1946 shows the first ferry across the Snake River was the Market Lake Ferry built in 1861 near the present townsite of Roberts. It provided an important link for travel across the Snake River between Montana mining towns and Idaho communities as well as Salt Lake City, Utah.

Another important and early crossing was the Eagle Rock Ferry at what is now Idaho Falls and was known as the town of Eagle Rock during early history of the area. Here emigrants of 1863 were able to cross the river in safety on the ferry operated by J. M. Taylor.

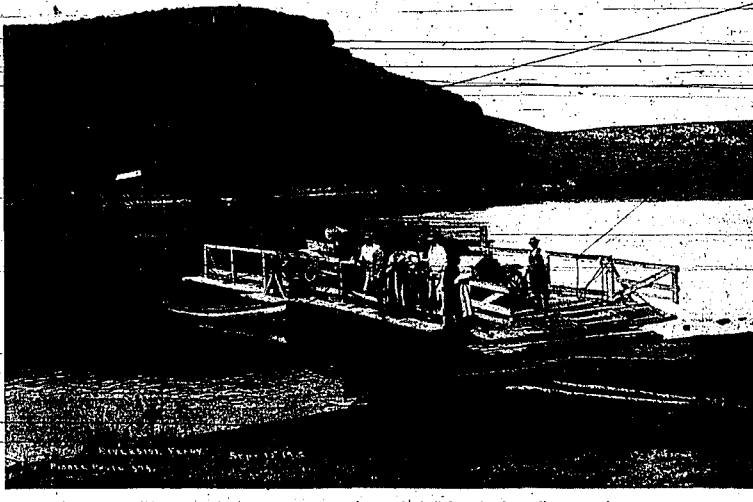

Early emigrant wagon trains crossed the Snake River in the local area at the famed Three Island Crossing near the present townsite of Roberts. It provided an important link for travel across the Snake River between Montana mining towns and Idaho communities as well as Salt Lake City, Utah.

IMPORTANT TRANSPORTATION LINKS of early days were provided by ferries built along Snake River and other western rivers. Here the old Shoshone Falls Ferry moves across the river about 200 yards above the falls. It was the major link between north and south side activities before bridges were erected. Photos furnished by Twin Falls Historical Society.

RIVERSIDE FERRY, KNOWN as the largest on the Snake, ran in the vicinity of Nyssa west of Boise, and shipped more livestock than any other ferry in the southern Idaho. Often the building of a ferry diverted emigrants to a new area and resulted in a change in the pattern of the state's development.

Now There's A Steamboat On The Snake

By MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News Correspondent

"I bet that's the first steamboat ride you've ever had in Idaho," said our ship's mate, and he was right. Members of my family and I had just been treated to a fun ride down the Snake River on the steam-powered, paddle-operated boat belonging to Ed Vogel, Buhl.

Mr. Vogel is the same person who ingeniously thresher grain with steam engines, drives multi-teams at parades, collects antique cars and stingercoches, and has an imposing collection of antique machinery at his farm northeast of Buhl.

He also spent an entire winter building an authentic 1111 steamboat which steams down the river on special excursions for his friends. When invited by Mr. Vogel and Anne Williams to go on a ride one Sunday afternoon, we were delighted to accept.

We were told to meet our hosts near Slinger's Thousand Springs Resort. We drove down to the river's edge, and there it was—a miniature steamboat, painted white with black trim, complete with huge smokestack, large wheel paddles, and an American flag waving above all.

Its two operators were busily shoveling in coal to get the steam pressure rising, and Mr. Williams was clearing off the top deck so we could sit up there if we wished.

In a few minutes the steam began rising and we were ready to start. As soon as we got on board, our host pointed out a large supply of life preserver jackets hanging in a sling from the ceiling, so we knew there was no danger of drowning if anything should happen to the boat. There were seven of us held as many as 24 passengers at one time.

I'll admit at first I felt a trifle uneasy at the proximity of the huge steam boiler hissing away just a few inches from where we sat. It was connected to a number of pipes and throats in the rear so we were literally surrounded by steam, and I thought, "If something should break!" Then I realized I was being foolish. Here were two men very well acquainted with steam engines and machinery, who knew just what they were doing. So I decided to leave everything in their capable hands and enjoy the ride.

All the intricate mechanism making up the boat's propulsion was and would always be a mystery to a feminine mind, and a joy and delight to a man's. As my husband remarked later when we were watching the view from the top deck,

"Boy, that engine sure has a nice purr!"

What fun to cruise down the river! People living in houses along the riverside ran out to wave at us. Several came out with cameras to take pictures. Our captain didn't spare the whistle so no one could doubt we were going.

It was fascinating looking down into the water. I was surprised at the amount of vegetation on the bottom and sides. Fish of all sizes scurried through the green water which turned crystal clear whenever it crossed one of the springs emptying into the river.

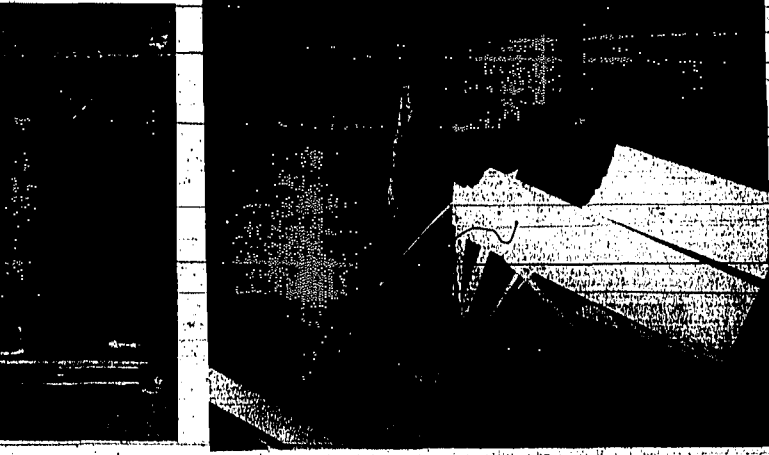

The paddles churned away below us, leaving a trail of foam. One could almost imagine oneself sailing down the Mississippi on a riverboat! Would a drunken gambler with raffish at his wrist, or a southern belle PUFFING BLACK SMOKE, the little Snake River steamboat cruises along the Thousand Springs area among small motor boats and water skiers. Here passenger Mrs. Mike Keller stands beside the smoke stack while she enjoys the scenery of Hagerman Valley.

SHADES OF MISSISSIPPI Riverboat days are glimpsed by area residents and startled tourists when the steamboat which Ed Vogel, Buhl, has adapted to the Snake River, rounds a bend, or nestles beside the bank awaiting passengers.

THE boat, one of many of Mr. Vogel's collector's items was built for his own enjoyment and that of friends and interested persons. Although much smaller than the regular steamboats, the Snake's riverboat is no less picturesque.

CAPTAIN AND OWNER of the miniature steamboat that cruises the Snake River in the Hagerman area, Ed Vogel checks the paddle wheel that operates the unusual craft. Mr. Vogel has a collection of steam engines operating threshing machines and adapted one to the small Snake River steamboat.

HE CAN BE PROUD OF the several shelves of trophies in his home even if he didn't win them. Andy Anderson admires some of the family trophies won by his daughters. Not only have he and his wife worked with their own youngsters, but with many others in the area to assist them in horsemanship and 4-H club activities. Andy, now suffering sclerosis, is active as an announcer for junior riding club events.

Working With Youngsters, Horses Gives Added Meaning To Life Of Local Man

Although he grew up in the city — Chicago to be exact — LeRoy "Andy" Anderson could easily pass as a typical western rancher.

His "ranch" consists of a small acreage at the corner of Eller Avenue and Grandview Drive North, but it is large enough for a few horses, dogs, goats, chickens, cats and the like.

Andy has been heard to say there are two things at any horse show — himself and the other which must be removed from the arena by pickup.

This is a pretty true statement as it is hard to recall a horse show in the past — or even a posse drill, gymkhana or other riding event that he did not have a hand in during the past several years.

If there is something he likes better than horses, it is youngsters. Since he first arrived in Twin Falls in August of 1957, he has been working with junior riding groups and 4-H clubs.

Two years ago he developed the incurable and crippling disease of lateral sclerosis. As he is no longer able to ride a horse, he has become well-known as a show announcer and has continued to work on the ground in the arena, giving young riders pointers on handling their mounts. He first became interested in riding club activities because of his own youngsters.

"I think if you give a child a horse and teach him to appreciate the animal and handle it properly you won't have to worry about delinquency. If a youngster is encouraged to show the silver and enter competition he will be too busy to get into much trouble and will learn a lot from that horse," says Mr. Anderson.

Because he has volunteered his services to so many youngsters interested in horses he has become something of an expert. Not infrequently Mr. Anderson will accompany a boy or girl to look at a horse that is for sale and do his best to advise the youth as to whether or not the horse is suitable.

Through his 4-H club he and his wife, Jackie, are now working with about 20 youngsters. The club members took 17 of the possible 31 awards in the horse division of the recent district 4-H event.

The couple's own children, two of whom are now grown, have done well for them in the way of living up to family tradition. Several shelves of trophies enhance one room of the Anderson house, many of them won by 15-year-old Carla Anderson, youngest of the family.

A retired army major, Mr. Anderson enlisted in the army at a young age after attending high school and two years of junior college in Mason City, Iowa. He entered the service in 1940 and served through World War II and the Korean war. He is a holder of both the silver and bronze stars and several valor awards.

During 20 years with the army, he saw a large part of the world and first saw Twin Falls on a trip to the high green rim land of Magic Valley. Assigned there in 1952, he drove from Boise to Twin Falls on a hot August afternoon, wondering what he had gotten into. He was assigned to a family into by accepting an assignment in the desert of Idaho. After crossing the hot desert and arriving in the lush green rim land of Magic Valley he said he felt he had arrived home and it has been that way ever since. His longest term in one place was the three and one-half years he spent as an advisor to the Army Reserves in Twin Falls from 1952 to 1956. He and his family then left for Alaska where he — they spent another stretch in Fairbanks.

Since most of their assignments had been out of Ft. Lewis, Wash., and they had lived in Seattle for a year, he had decided at the end of 20 years of service to put in for retirement and make their home in Twin Falls on the Olympic peninsula of Washington.

When notice of his retirement was printed in a military publication, Robert Gillespie of Twin Falls spotted it. That same day he was on the phone asking Andy to accept a job in the Twin Falls Reserve program as a civilian and the day after that the Andersons were packing for their return to Twin Falls.

"We had enjoyed it here, especially because of the wonderful people, but just hadn't thought of it as a home after leaving the service," he recalled. On one occasion he recalls they were moving from one assignment to another and decided to visit relatives in Iowa with a one day or few hours stop in Twin Falls. On arrival they began looking up old friends and ten days later left to complete their trip. The family returned here Feb. 4, 1961 and have since been satisfied Twin Falls citizens.

Andy and his wife, Jackie, whom he married 27 years ago in Missouri, have been active in the Frontier Riding Club of Junior Riding Club of Twin Falls, and local horse show committees. Andy has also worked with the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office for a number of years. He became their announcer quite by accident. He was riding a horse that didn't like the tail position they had been given with the posse and before the drill was more than underway, he was riding beside the posse captain.

"The captain told me there was only one lead position and I wasn't going to get it. He told me to see what I could do as an announcer as the posse went out the 10,000 people in the stands I thought it would be my last," he added. Since that time he has been announcing junior horse shows and drills throughout the area. The Anderson family has also been active in the Wood River Riding Association, comprised of riding groups from seven different communities.

Andy is a great believer in doing things in Alaska he is active in dog racing, horse back riding, gold panning, and found time to take some off-duty chases at the University in Fairbanks. Now working overtime to accomplish as much as he can before the inevitable occurs and he becomes a wheel chair victim of sclerosis, Mr. Anderson says he is getting involved with the Civil Air Patrol. Here he will be able to work with more young people and will not face the strenuous demands of horse-back riding. As for the future, he says he has no pain, and after all the library is full of books and when he can't do anything else, he can always read. At 52, he feels he has already had a pretty active and full life.

In working with youngsters over the years, Mr. Anderson said he and his wife have often felt perhaps they were just free baby sitters. "But when you find a youngster who is interested in horses and willing to work hard and you know all he needs is someone to foster this interest your feeling changes. When this youngster begins competing and winning trophies or just turns out to be a good kid, you know it was worth your time, especially considering today's highly organized and overly busy society," Andy says.

Most mountain goat habitat is located mainly on the steeply mountainous terrain, where there has been less encroachment by man and his works than on more hospitable ranges at lower altitudes. Today, the distribution of "Oreamnos americanus missoulae" appears to be similar to their pristine range, with only the more accessible bands of goats being reduced by classes with civilization. Although population estimates are not available, there is no doubt that more than half of Idaho's mountain goats live in the Salmon and Clearwater river watersheds. The rest are found mainly in the Pioneer Range, the South Fork of the Payette and upper Boise rivers, and Selkirk and Cabinet mountains of northern Idaho.

Hunters with skill and stamina seem attracted to goat safaris probably because of the broken terrain with its cliffs, ledges, projecting pinnacles and talus slopes of the high country. The Salmon River canyon is one of the deepest and most rugged in North America. In some places the distance from canyon rim to floor is more than 8,000 feet and the steepness of the slopes that drop from high peaks on the edge of the gorge cascades streams down narrow cliffs in cataracts and waterfalls to the river below. Even goat-hunter success in years past has averaged over 50 per cent statewide, and as high as 75 per cent in controlled hunts. Interest in goat hunting gradually increased, and additional controlled hunts were established from season to season. There was a corresponding decrease in general goat hunt areas, where permits were not needed. About 15 years ago the Fish and Game Department published a 140-page bulletin called "Life History and Management of the Mountain Goat in Idaho." It was written by Stewart M. Brandborg, game biologist, who points out that frequent errors of identification were made in the early literature. For example, the ewe bighorn sheep was often called a goat. Thus, such records cannot be accepted unless mountain goats and bighorn sheep share a common range. "Mountain goats, in contrast to most of our big game animals, occupy essentially the same ranges where they were found when white men first explored the west. Generally, they have not been forced to leave their chosen homes as a result of man's activities, and it is only on a few of the more accessible ranges that they have been reduced by overhunting," he explains.

Studies on the productiveness of mountain goats have shown that an annual increase of 25 per cent or more can be expected in most cases. This means that for every 100 animals present in a herd of mountain goats during the winter time, a crop of 25 kids should be born with the coming of spring. Death comes to mountain goats in the guise of fatal accidents, disease, parasites, malnutrition, starvation during hard winters, emigration and predators. They often are caught by an avalanche — sometimes several animals at the same awesome moment — and swept to their doom at the bottom of the slide rock.

Hardy Cliff Dwelling Mountain Goat Is Still Found On Original High Ranges

By JIM HUMBRID
Idaho Fish-Game Department

Bush pilots sometimes observe Idaho's hardest species of big game wintering on wind-swept ridges at altitudes ranging from 7,000 to 10,000 feet. One of a small group of cliff-dwelling antelope, including the European chamois, the mountain goat is misnamed because of its chin whiskers. The mountain goat is characterized by its jet black silleto horns, white hair, short legs and tail and generally high-shouldered profile. Such distinguishing features make this American chamois more coveted each year by resident and foreign trophy hunters.

All of Idaho's mountain goat hunting for 1969 is controlled through permits issued to winners in public drawings in Boise. Season dates run from Sept. 6 through Dec. 7, sometimes continuing in the same unit. In sum, there are 43 separate goat hunts in the state and a total of 290 permits.

There were 1,193 applications, bringing overall odds to about 4:1 against winning a goat permit. Applicants for some hunts where the terrain is not so rough and precipitous found odds running much higher against them, while others had little or no competition in virtually inaccessible drainage where snow flies early and hunting is tough.

Book Review

By ROBERT BRUCE
Twin Falls Librarian

Have you ever had a bab kitten? Or raised a wolf cub to adult stage as a pet? Perhaps you have had to forcibly feed young owls or cope with the destructive antics of a pet rabbit. If so, you will probably enjoy "Home is the Desert" by Ann Woodin.

Woodin may live in a desert, but it seems to be a very pleasant desert. The scene is not made any more quiet by her four young sons who are passionate collectors of snakes, lizards, and such — lizards that they get from their father who is a museum director and herpetologist.

The young Woodins paint their home with a grin that who trip getting material for Woodin's doctoral dissertation. Their first boy was familiar with snakes, reptiles, and birds after his first birthday. His mother, who came from a non-desert environment, had a good many adjustments to make, but she made them with a grace and unusual poise. The one time on record that she balked was the time her husband asked her to hold open a book to a grin that who she showed in some live rattlesnakes. He could not understand her lack of cooperative spirit.

Quite aside from his descriptions of a lively family and its unusual pets, the book is a delight to read because of the author's love of the desert and her very real ability to write about it. She admits that the "hot" animals are trying, but she doesn't like air conditioning in the hot desert. She admits that she continued dust if unpleasant but a meticulous housekeeper, but she finds much to compensate for these shortcomings. She will convince any discerning reader of the charms of desert life.

This reader found himself studying the maps of the Woodin ranch, trying to locate it in his mind. The ranch is in the Woodin area. Can there really be lovely wooded canyons with running streams in the Hinchey Mountains? To this reviewer they have always looked arid and desolate. But Mrs. Woodin has been deep into these mountains. She has tramped through the canyons, watched the wild life, and recorded her impressions with Accuracy and charm. She is a worthy member of a family of scientists.

The numerous photographs, mostly of the Woodin boys and their pets, are a added delight. All readers will hope that the years have left untouched their freedom in the desert, and that they can still enjoy the things that make them so pleasant to read about as children.

Area History Shaped By Snake River Ferries

Especially in high water seasons this was difficult and dangerous and before the ferries were built just downstream where a reasonable ferries would cross in safety. Payne's Ferry operated in the vicinity of Salmon Falls near Hagerman. Many others also operated in this vicinity before the long established crossing practice in the vicinity. Others included the Johnson Ferry crossing near the Owyhee Ferry where the old Owyhee bridge was later erected. Lewis Ferry was better known and operated for many years near Thousand Springs. The Owyhee Ferry, just above Salmon Falls was part of the Overland Stage Route.

Other ferries operating in that general area over a period of years included the Erlob's Ferry, operated by the Erlob brothers just below the Lewis Ferry. Briggs' Ferry and Syster Ferry, both in the Clear Lake region. Brailford Ferry in the same general area. Fricke's Ferry three-quarters of a mile east of King Hill and located on a farm owned by a Mr. Fricke and Glenns Ferry. It was built in the 1870's and operated by a Gus Glenn and was located at the site of the present town.

In the Twin Falls area, ferries included the Shoshone Falls Ferry that operated long before the townsite of Twin Falls was established. It crossed the Snake River about 200 yards above Shoshone Falls and some early day residents recall there were two things that worried the passengers. One was the noise the current would pull it the 200 yards downstream and over the thundering falls. The other was the horses might bolt and the stage and passengers get a dunking near the falls.

Horses seemed to get accustomed to the river crossing and to the noise of the falls but on one occasion a cable did break and a possible catastrophe was narrowly averted.

Mrs. John E. Hayes, Twin Falls, recalls there were other problems for those crossing the river in the Shoshone Falls Ferry. One cold winter when she was returning from her Rock Creek home to Shoshone for school following Christmas vacation, the stage arrived at the ferry only to find the ice on the river was too thick for crossing.

Fortunately there was a hotel at the falls at that time and Mrs. Hayes and another young student, the only stage passengers that day, waited in the hotel while the ice was broken. En route across the river there was another wait while more ice was cut.

"I remember the hotel proprietor told us to make sure the big fire in the stove was kept up while he helped break the ice, but I don't recall the crossing was especially cold," she said.

There is still a clearly marked entrance to the river's edge where the Shoshone Ferry operated. Early day residents say the ferry operated from the 1870's through about 1915, when bridges began taking shape along the Snake.

In the Burley area most prominent ferry crossings included Starr's Ferry about four miles west of Burley near the mouth of Goose Creek and the Montgomery Ferry about halfway between American Falls and Shoshone Falls. The Starr's Ferry was a major link between Albion, the county seat and Minidoka, the railroad terminal for the area. Mrs. Hayes said she recalls many Albion college students traveled by stage from Minidoka, then crossed the ferry en route to Albion.

This ferry operated in 1865 and also served travel between Boise City and the Owyhee country mines. The site is now under the backwaters of Milner Dam. As in the case of Starr's Ferry, Montgomery Ferry took its name from the owner and operator. A number of descendants of the owner still reside in the local area.

The Perrine Ferry crossed the river in the bottom of Snake River Canyon on the I.B. Perrine property near Blue Lakes. It was not used by the general public as much as the Shoshone Falls Ferry because of the difficulty in descending and ascending the steep canyon walls.

Many Ferry crossings were established in the Owyhee County region. Loweridge Ferry, also known as Skiff Ferry, was built in the early gold rush days for traffic to Owyhee County from Mountain Home. The crossing was between Mountain Home and Bruneau just above the mouth of Rattlesnake river.

Also in this area, three miles downstream, the Robinson Ferry was built and the Bruneau Ferry crossed the Snake on the site of the Wilson Price Hunt

The ferry was built after the party left Milner where an ex-convict named the group lost his life in the "Devil's Scute Hole."

The Grand View Ferry served those crossing the Snake between Ada and Owyhee Counties at the present site of the town of Grand View. Others included Munday's Ferry, later known as McQuot's and Walter's Ferry, and located at the site of the present bridge on the Murphy to Narmon road. This crossing was the scene of a number of tragedies of the Indian war era and was also used by the mining traffic during the gold rush days. Bernard's Ferry crossed at the mouth of Reynolds about 100 yards above Givens's Hot Springs in Owyhee County.

Many historic ferries operated in the Boise and other western Idaho areas, including the Riverside, called the largest ferry on the Snake. It operated just below Nyssa on the road leading to Vale and Brogan. The ferry is reported to have carried more livestock across the Snake River than any other in Idaho.

Another historic ferry was the Ows Ferry about three miles west of Weiser. At a point where the Snake turns north, the Wilson Price Hunt Co. made camp in 1812. In 1862 a man named Abernathy built a trading post and the following year Reuben Olds bought the store and acquired a franchise from the Territorial Legislature to operate the ferry. It was known as the Farewell Bend of the Oregon Trail. Because of the ferry, the river crossing became easier and turned the tide of emigration through Weiser Valley rather than Parma and Malheur areas. The ferry remained in use until 1920 when it was moved to Burley where it was still in use in 1945 by a sheep company.

Rates on the ferries varied but typical fees included the Olds Ferry rates of $1 for team and wagon and $1 for each extra loaded or 50 cents if returning empty. A horse and rider was charged 75 cents. Everything else was 25 cents a head whether it was a man on foot, a horse, cow or sheep.

FDA Asks Review

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Food and Drug Administration has asked the National Academy of Sciences to review the safety of artificial sweeteners widely used in diet foods. It said the review was necessary because of recent FDA studies showing a breakdown in genetic structure when the sweeteners were tested on the embryos of rats and chickens.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

A group of RICHFIELD residents went through a frightening experience recently at Fish Creek Reservoir. Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Ollieu and Blk. Albert had taken the Ollieu's 15-foot, 35-horsepower boat to the reservoir to fish. After getting the boat into the water and showing Mr. Albert was unable to start the motor. Everything was checked and seemed in working order, but the motor would not start.

The trio did not become alarmed until a northeast wind came up and the boat started to drift out. Large waves suddenly appeared, also Ollieu and his boaters or fishermen were in sight and Mr. and Mrs. Ollieu tried paddling, but made no headway back to shore.

Just when it seemed their frantic efforts were in vain, a boy, about 11 years of age appeared and yelled to the group, "Come in if you want to see his big fish. Mr. Ollieu's yellow crank that he did."

The boy, name unknown, ran to get his fish to show them and when he returned a man followed him. He asked if they were in trouble and learning their predicament, told Ollieu to throw out a rope. Ollieu tied two ropes together and the two could only be thrown within five or six feet of the bank with the motor in the water.

The man said he would have the boy swim out to get it. The youth walked into the water to his neck-but he was not the man pulled the boat to shore.

By that time the weather had changed to rain and visibility lessened in the area. The trio tried to get the motor started over, however, as the boat trailer had a flat tire. The Ollieus drove to CAREY to have the flat fixed and Albert remained with the boat.

Albert, a mechanic, soon discovered that the gas tank was full of water instead of gasoline. He had filled the tank the day before and during the night someone had stolen the gasoline and replaced it with water. Mrs. Ollieu had checked the tank before leaving home and knew it was full.

Mrs. Ollieu had checked the tank because the group had come suspicious concerning the amount of gasoline the boat apparently had used when they had run in very little while fishing.

The men, with the assistance of Norman Albrethson, Richfield, took measures to protect the motor from damage by water in the gas tank.

The moral of this story is the Ollieus say, to be sure your boat motor will start before leaving the shore, and be sure your gasoline has not been replaced by water.

Mr. Albert was also cautious in staying with the boat while the Ollieus were in Carey, as another fisherman had left his boat at the dam while he went to the motor gone.

Archaeologists Dig For Pre-Christian Artifacts

By GERRY LOUGHAN
BEIRUT (UPI) — European and Arab archaeologists have started a widespread series of excavations to tap the treasure trove of Lebanon's history.

In a country whose snowy, barren reds are mentioned in the Bible and whose past goes back to the Phoenicians, the prizes are considerable.

Wars and invasions have criss-crossed the long history of this tiny country (150 miles long, 50 wide). Names like Tyre and Sidon, the temples of Baalbeck, crusader churches and castles and Islamic minarets represent a unique blend of cultures and peoples.

The age of Byblos (from which the word "Bible" is derived) measured in thousands of years. The names of Ramses, Nebuchadnezzar, Marc' Aurelius and Caracalla have left their imprint.

Among "digs" now being investigated is a cave containing prehistoric flints—the remains of a pre-Christian village and the town where the prophet Elias hid from the wrath of Queen Jezebel.

Archaeologists under the direction of the Lebanese department of antiquities are excavating an impressive hippodrome at the southern port city of Tyre. One of the biggest in the world, the arena is unusual in that it is brick, not the more common stone.

Many details which have disappeared from similar constructions around the Mediterranean are still intact at Tyre, including the Spana—a central construction around which the horses trotted, and an obelisk.

Work also is continuing on the large Acropolis where workers have now reached the Phoenician level dating back to the 4th and 5th Centuries B.C. Fragments of statues and pottery, Assyrian inscriptions, scarabs and a dedication stone have rewarded the diggers' search.

The stone, placed by the governor of Syria and Phoenicia to the Egyptian King Philopater (at the time Tyre was a part of the Ptolemy Kingdom) suggests the searchers are nearing an exciting new find—a temple—perhaps or a town center.

Thirty miles north of Tyre, its "twin," Port Sidon, is being eagerly combed for traces of the past. At the Temple of Eshmun, the Phoenician god of health, statues in iron and marble have been found along with some bearing Persian characteristics. These clearly indicate the persistence of Persian influence—in the arts even after Tyre escaped Persia's sphere.

Among the more important inscriptions deciphered was one revealing names of four of the kings of Phoenicia.

Excavations began earlier this year at Sarafand, a coastal town midway between Tyre and Sidon, biblical site of the town Sarepta where the prophet Elias, seeking refuge from an outraged Queen Jezebel, cured a widow's son.

To date, archaeologists have recovered Byzantine and Roman objects from the city.

Other new excavations at Fedar, between the Adonis River and Byblos north of Beirut, have turned up flints and bones in a hillside cave dating from the Paleolithic period.

A German team is working at Kamed-el-Loz in the fertile Bekaa valley near the Syrian border investigating the remains of a pre-Christian village of undetermined origin.

THE LLAMAS ON THE Vernon-Hazen ranch just north of Bellevue are stoppers for travelers on Highway 83. Here a Twin Falls traveler coaxes a ewe with a blade of grass she picked outside the pasture. Mrs. Hazen said they have three ewes in this particular pasture and each has a lamb, all born this summer.

The Money Box

By FRANK SCHELL

From Mrs. H. H. Rupert Idaho: My son sent me a dollar bill like this copy from Germany. Could you please tell me its value, or anything you might know about it?

Answer: The first of the small-sized paper money was issued in 1928, and the Series 1928 was a Legal Tender Note (Red Seal) similar to the later two-dollar bill. The Series 1928-A, which is what you have pictured, was the second note of our small paper money, and was a Silver Certificate. This note, signed by W. O. Woods and Andrew Mellon, was saved in large quantities, so therefore is not extremely valuable. Brand new condition notes like this one presently sell for $5.00. Your note shows folds in the center and folded corners—and would probably bring you about $3.00.

The rarities of the small sized notes are the 1928-C, 1928-D and 1928-E, all of which are very scarce and command prices over $100.00.

From D. L. T. Twin Falls Idaho: I have a small piece of paper which says United States, Fifty (50) Cents on it. It is signed by a John Allison and I think it may be a fake. The back of the note is quite elaborate and also says "Fifty Cents" and that it is exchangeable for United States Notes. Is this a real piece of money? There is a picture of Lincoln on the front of it.

Answer: It is real money. It is called "Fractional Currency" and was issued during the Civil War to replace the small coins which practically went out of existence at that time.

Fractional Currency is a little-known phase of our paper money which is a rare historical collection item. These notes were issued in denominations of 5, 10, 15, 25 and 50 cents.

The first issue was called Postage Currency, since they bore the facsimiles of the then current postage stamps (5 and 10¢ cents). Oddly enough, they were receivable only for postage stamps, although they were freely used as money for purchase.

Fractional Currency came into being with the next issue, and were not confined to postage stamps. They were printed with various pictures of them, denoting well-known personages of the time.

Fractional Currency was issued for fourteen years, in an

In crinolines soon be coming up on deck to join us?

We sat on benches looking out the window on the lower deck for even better viewing. Each bend of the river brought something new into sight. When it came time to turn around and start on our return voyage, we all were sorry to know it soon was going to end.

But as all good things must end, it did. Our little ship started edging over to the shore, the whistle gave a few final blasts, and we were docked again at the river's edge. Mr. Vogel began scooping the hot coals out into the water and Mr. Williams took down the American flag.

As we thanked our hosts and left for home, we all knew our ride had been a memorable experience. We would long treasure it. For a short time, we had lived in a bygone century. How fortunate there are still imaginative people who can recreate the pleasures of the past, who can bring to life an era long gone.

In Idaho a river steamboat in California a group of public spirited people are attempting to buy the Delta King to restore it for a museum. The Delta Queen, his sister steamboat, still proudly sails the Mississippi because enough people cared, and she didn't fall into disuse and rot away.

And all over the country more and more people are becoming interested in collecting antiques, restoring old primitives, hunting old tools, bringing back to usefulness old forgotten relics. Interest in these specialties is increasing among the younger generation, learning the delight of ferreting out treasures. Partly, of course, because they just want to collect something, but mostly because they are acquiring a genuine appreciation of the old and fine.

HOW DOES YOUR GARDEN grow? With schmoos, says, young Paul Vance, 1845 Osterloh Ave. The 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Vance planted a number of items in his own garden this year and one of his butter nut squash grew into a schmoos with the help of a black marking pencil and a bow. The squash, supposed to be yellow was white and in the shape of the comic page Al Capp cartooned schmoos.

Fidelity National Bank

Introduces Master Charge

a new convenience for Idahoans

Master Charge
THE INTERNATIONAL CARD

how merchants benefit

- More potential customers. You keep present customers and add "Charge Card" customers.
- Increased sales through new charge account customers. Charge customers generally spend more than cash customers.
- Your sales are cash. Through the Fidelity National Bank exchange feature, MASTER CHARGE has become established as a truly international card. This means that in addition to local card holders, tourists and business travelers will be using this card in our area.
- More time. Without worry of handling accounts receivable and collections, you can concentrate on selling and merchandising activities.

how customers benefit

- It costs them nothing to get a card.
- The customer receives one statement a month from the bank and makes just one payment for all charged purchases.
- If the customer pays his monthly statement in full within 25 days, there is no service charge. If he wishes, however, payments can be extended over several months for a service charge.
- The card holder need not be a customer of our bank. This charge card is available to any credit-worthy customer.

when does it start?

We will call on merchants soon. The first mass mailing of MASTER CHARGE cards to customers will be in time for Christmas shopping—which means that thousands of potential customers will be ready to buy the day they receive their cards.

WITH ALL EYES STRAIGHT ahead, these youngsters are holding up their hands with the fingers pressed together they are to use in the bowling ball. They were among the 250 children taking instructions from Chief Halftown recently. The youngsters are given instructions on how to bowl and can bowl free one night a week for three weeks. Then they can join a Chief Halftown Junior Bowling Club if they wish.

THIS YOUNG BOWLER counts aloud as she tries to follow to the letter the instructions given by Chief Halftown. The Chief travels 100,000 miles every year to bring Indian lore and bowling fun to thousands of youngsters.

Women's Section

CHIEF TRYNOR ORA HALFTOWN, a well-known television personality, was the center of attraction in Twin Falls recently when he presented educational assemblies at the local schools.

THE BALL IS ALMOST as big as he, but this young bowler, along with many others tried his skill this week.

First He Got Their Attention, Then Made Them Laugh Loud

Two hundred and fifty kids — and you could have heard a pin drop.

All eyes were on a tall, husky full-blooded Seneca Indian decked out in full regalia.

Glancing around I wasn't sure just what kind of magic this man had but thinking from a 10-year-old's viewpoint, with a big character like that looking down on me — I'd be quiet, too.

Chief Halftown, a star bowler, an authority on Indian lore and an expert on child psychology, has been a professional entertainer for 30 years. He was in Twin Falls this past week courtesy of the Brunswick Corp., and presented educational assemblies at the local grade schools on Indian lore and customs. These school assemblies are conducted as a public service by the Chief, who talks to over 100,000 school children each year. His vivid personal appearances in full Indian regalia for charitable, educational and commercial causes are legendary in their impact and results, and has had every child in town talking about them this week.

In addition to the assemblies, Chief Halftown conducted a bowling clinic for the grade school youngsters. Imagine trying to teach 250 young people to bowl — all at the same time. As mentioned before, you could have heard a pin drop. He had their attention and was making the most of it. He told them which fingers to place in the ball and offered a punishment (in a firm but soft sort of way) to the first he saw holding the ball any different. He then told them the proper way to approach the line and before long the whole group, in a sing songy rhythm, was saying, "right, left, right, slide, point your thumb."

The Chief's methods of charming children are unconventional, but the results are amazing. Most adults, and the Chief would agree, would think his assemblies and teaching ideas are real corny, but he loves children and this is his way of "doing his thing" and bringing a few smiles to their faces.

"Children have never seen a real live Indian laugh or for that matter, talk," he noted. They watch the cowboys and Indian shows on television and all they ever hear the stone-faced Indian say is "Ug" or "How." So, when I strut out on the stage or in a bowling alley and talk plain English and start to sing silly TV commercial jingles, the children crack up. I laugh and they laugh. Most of my jokes are centered around TV gimmicks because kids are natural victims of the video tube. They know the Doublemint Gum ditty before they learn the Lord's Prayer and the Chief Halftown is a member of the Brunswick advisory staff and is America's Foremost junior bowling instructor. His assemblies in the local schools this past week were centered around Indian lore and customs.

Idaho Art Association Convention Set In T.F.

Several Magic Valley residents will be participating as workshop directors and guest artists during the forthcoming Idaho Art Association convention set for Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the College of Southern Idaho.

The three-day event will include phases of drama, ballet, opera and art films, and the scheduled art shows themed, "Now Generation" for artists under 30 years of age, and "Our Technological Environment."

More than 400 people from Idaho and surrounding states are expected for the annual conference.

Among the workshop directors from Magic Valley and Di and Drich Bowler, Snake River Pottery, Hagerman, and "Ginger" Walton, Twin Falls artist and teacher, Mary Walker and Robert Harvey, along with Charlotte Tabor, Roger, Verna, and Eugene, Mildon, will present selections from a wide range of operas.

Dancers will interpret the operatic aria while it is being sung rather than having dance as a separate set ballet without vocal accompaniment.

The bowlers will conduct pottery workshops and Mr. Walton is scheduled for a workshop entitled "Found Art."

The workshop directors include Bob Wand, Boise Art Educator and artist; Bob Auld, artist, painter and teacher; Joan Willard, director of art for the local schools; and Ruth Melichar, Boise painter.

Two one-man shows will be featured by George Brownlee and Jan Bales. Mr. Brownlee, instructor of print-making at Colorado State University, will have a show of prints, and Mr. Bales, Caldwell, will have a one-man show of photography.

The conference will feature two major speakers, Roger Komloske, artist, and Duncan Ross, director of the Professional Training Program at the University of Washington's School of Drama, who will give the keynote address.

Activities will get under way at 8 a.m. Thursday and conclude at 1 p.m. Saturday. Dr. James Taylor, president of the College of Southern Idaho, will give the welcome address. La Var Steel, head of the CSI art department, is president of the Idaho Art Association.

Northside Club Convenes

JEROME — The regular business meeting of the Northside Music Club was held recently in the social room of the Jerome Methodist Church. Mrs. Donald Jacobson, president, presided.

Mrs. John Garabrandt, hymn-of-the-month chairman, presented Kathleen Dellinger who played the hymn-of-the-month. Mrs. Fran Tanner presented a program on the life of Leonard Bernstein, American composer, conductor and pianist.

As a part of Mrs. Tanner's paper, several selections were presented from the "West Side Story," which was written by Bernstein. Mrs. Norman Redd was soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Andrew Bybee, Sue Jacobson and Cheryl Press played a piano duet, and the Madrigal Singers sang, directed by Carson Woog and accompanied by Wayne Corey.

The president announced the Community Chorus, conducted by Mr. Wong, is holding rehearsals on Monday evenings at 7 p.m. All interested singers are urged to participate.

Other announcements included the state board meeting to be held at the Holiday Inn Oct. 16, and the opera program to be held at the CSI Auditorium Oct. 10 at 8 p.m. The Northside Club has been invited to attend the Twin Falls Music Club luncheon set for Oct. 13.

Mrs. Wayne Thornock, Gooding, was introduced as adviser to the Gooding Junior Music Club. Officer and chairman appointed.

OES Associate Patron Named

BURLEY — Election and installation of Kay McEland as associate patron highlighted the evening for members of Evergreen Chapter No. 46, Order of the Eastern Star, during the first meeting of the fall season.

Mrs. Roland Willis, worthy matron, conducted the meeting. Golden Gems were honored including C. C. (Pop) Baker, Frank Redfield, Tilly Huntington, Sarah Kinney and Edith King. Amia Blankenship, grand chairman of the Golden Year members, was a special guest. Mrs. Myrtle Wyatt was soloist. Each member who has had a birthday in July, August and September was presented a gift. A special honor was given to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Salmon in honor of the couples 47th Wedding Anniversary.

The 80-year theme was carried out in table decorations for the refreshment hour which followed the business meeting.

Prior to the business session, a covered dish dinner was served in the dining room.

Points include Mrs. Henry Pharris, social; Mrs. L. V. Riebel, member at large; Mrs. Glenn Reddick, counselor for the three Junior Music Clubs of Jerome; and Mrs. A. Woodhead and Mrs. Leo Altin, assistant counselors. Mrs. Ray O. Peterson, Wendell, is parliamentarian.

Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. LeRoy Craig and Mrs. Hinkle Cox will serve on the bylaws committee. Mrs. Harold Holsinger, Wendell, Mrs. E. C. Vawdry and Mrs. Ronald Pippitt will serve on the contact committee.

Mrs. Cox, ways and means chairman, gave a report. Mrs. Dale Thomas, treasurer, reported 46 present and the new club now has 38 paid members.

The next meeting is at the home of Mrs. Ray Peterson, Wendell, with Mrs. Helen Thomas, Kimberly, presenting the program.

Refreshments were served after the meeting by Mrs. R. J. Reichard and Mrs. Henry Pharris.

Camp Captains

Officers Feted

By County DUP

County Daughters of Utah Pioneers hosted a luncheon, recently for captains and officers of eight camps at the home of Ella Crandall, county president.

Mrs. Crandall urged all members to bring other eligible women into the various camps. Each captain expressed the goals she hopes to achieve for the coming year.

Marvel Fillmore and Louise Johns received books for their past services as county officers. Women are eligible to join the DUP if they have pioneer ancestry but settled in Utah before the railroad, May 10, 1869.

Lessons and histories of pioneers are read in each of the camps once each month. Members meet in different homes during the afternoon and one night meeting is held each month.

Kate B. Carter, famous writer and lecturer of pioneer history, resides in Salt Lake City and heads the organization's several books written by Mrs. Carter are in the Twin Falls Public Library.

by Mrs. John Coleman and the author's sketch by Mrs. Ross Ward.

Hostesses with Mrs. Haney included Mrs. Glon Leggett and Mrs. Oleen Seamons.

Weight Losers

Are Announced

RICHFIELD — Mrs. Ross Swainston and Mrs. Clifford Dayley were weight losing contest winners for the Diet-Doctors' Club this week. The team contest had run for several months with weight gainers eliminated.

Mrs. Nelson Fredrickson presented prize gifts to the two winners and runners-up, Mrs. W. T. Flavel and Mrs. Bert Brower.

A record weight loss of 43 pounds and 15 pound gain was tabulated for the five week month. Mrs. Swainston was best loser for the month for the hair styling award and Mrs. Loyd Lee received the weekly weight losing treasure chest gift. Mrs. Frances Freistad is a new member.

The three-month party will be held Monday with a salad luncheon to be served. Mrs. Jay Fowler, home extensionist, will give a talk.

Welcome Wagon Club Head Announces Month Activities

Mrs. Kermit Leir, president of the Welcome Wagon Club, announces the October program events.

A Halloween couples party is scheduled, with complete plans to be announced at the luncheon by couple chairmen, Mrs. Jack Miller and Mrs. Leslie.

All new residents who have not been contacted by Mrs. L. E. Hinton, Welcome Wagon hostess, should call her at 733-5210, or Mrs. Leir, 733-2490.

Baby sitting for a small fee will be provided by the Welcome Wagon members at the Presbyterian Church, 209-5th St. N.

Bridge and pinchle will be played at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Episcopal Church. Parking is at the rear of the building. Bridge chairman is Mrs. Dale Westerman, 733-9379, and pinchle chairman is Mrs. Phil Snyder, 733-4319.

The knitting and handwork group will meet at the home of Mrs. Robert Smith, Wendell, at 1 p.m. Oct. 14. Further information concerning this group can be obtained by calling Mrs. John Straubhar, 733-5910, knitting chairman.

The hobby group will meet at 8 p.m. Oct. 13 in the Idaho Power Auditorium. Projects for this month are fashion foam ovals, Glorox bottle witch and a fall pine cone arrangement. A list of materials can be obtained by calling Mrs. Gary Hazen, hobby chairman, 733-2878.

KIMBERLY — An afternoon ceremony on Sept. 13 united in marriage Leanna Fallis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Fallis, Kimberly, and James Alcaro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Alcaro, Farrell, Pa.

Rev. Delbert P. Remaley officiated at the double-ring rites held in the Kimberly United Methodist Church. Coral gladioli and yellow daisies adorned the altar.

The bride, given-in-marriage by her father, wore a floor-length alencon lace over tulle sheath with an empire waistline, long sleeves and a high neckline. The shoulder-length veil was fastened to a bandeau fashioned from net, sequins and pearls.

She wore a string of pearls borrowed from her mother. Her bouquet was white chrysanthemums with yellow rosebuds.

Mrs. Robert Denton played the traditional wedding music. Mrs. Garland Gibbs played violin accompaniment for Joyce Custer, soloist.

Mrs. Stanley Fallis, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor.

Best man was Gary E. Guernsey, Kayville, Utah. Serving as ushers were Stanley Fallis, brother of the bride; Denver; Ronald Rockwood, Des Moines, Iowa; William Tennant, Kanab, Hawaii; and Anthony H. Berry, Brookfield, Conn.

Candlelighters were Darren Curry and Charles Teater.

A reception was held at the Blue Lakes Country Club after the ceremony. The coral and yellow color scheme was carried out in the decorations at the club.

Mrs. Michael Touchette and Sherry Silvers cut the cake which was decorated with fresh flowers on top. Coffee was poured by Mrs. Bryan Colman. Carol Bastian served the punch.

Each guest was given a coral rice bag tied with a yellow ribbon.

Social guests besides the bridegroom's parents, were his sister, Denise Alcaro, Pittsburgh, Pa., and his brother, Tom Alcaro, Farrell, Pa. Out-of-state guests attended from Oregon, Utah, Colorado and California.

The couple took a wedding trip to Jackson Hole, Wyo., and Yellowstone National Park. They now reside in Logan, Utah, where they are students at Utah State University.

Pre-nuptial showers were given for the bride, Carol Bastian and Phyllis Ann Ridgeway were hostesses for a kitchen shower, a pound shower was given by Mrs. Raymond Burton and Mrs. Willard Teater.

Mrs. Jim Henry, Mrs. Betty Pene and Mrs. Harold Howe were in charge of a champagne brunch.

Lodge Deputy Named At Buhl

BUHL — Mrs. Maurice Currington was elected lodge deputy for the coming year when Buhl Rebekah lodge No. 29 met in regular session. A potluck dinner preceded the meeting.

Mrs. Currington was elected as representative No. 1 and Mrs. Ward Moffett as representative No. 2 to attend the Grand Rebekah Assembly of Idaho at Boise in October. Mrs. Jerry Maxton, noble grand, was in charge of the meeting.

Mrs. Hazel Conrad, Mrs. D. W. Rowe and Mrs. J. B. Boyd were honored in the birthday march.

Mrs. Schutte Is 'Best Loser'

HANSEN — Mrs. James Schutte was best loser of the week and the recipient of a special gift given her by Mrs. Ralph Harris during the Stim and Trim TOPS Club meeting.

Reports were given on the plans for the Fun Night program, schedule, which will be Oct. 13, beginning with a salad dinner at the Turf Club, for all Magic Valley area clubs.

Ways to display the local club's banner were discussed. Reservations for the dinner must be made by Friday. Those wanting a reservation may call Mrs. Fred Howard or Mrs. Ralph Simmons.

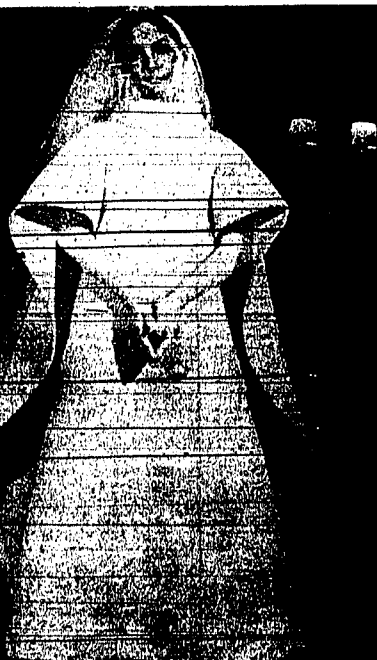

At next week's meeting, the monthly, quarterly and contest winners will be announced and honored with gifts. Anyone eligible for a 10 pound loss gift will also be honored.

Greeting and Christmas cards were displayed for members as a fund raising program. Mrs. V. L. Wilson is in charge of the cards.

Mrs. Lewia Morris was program chairman and hostess. She displayed articles which she made and decorated for Halloween and Christmas giving.

Mrs. Dale Kidd, president, was in charge of the business meeting at which the group voted to have a rummage sale at the Rupert Square the first part of October.

Secret pal gifts were presented to Mrs. Dan Whippo, Mrs. Everett Pardey, Mrs. Earl Darlington, Mrs. Jack Adams, Mrs. Miles Tracey, Mrs. Harold Holbrook and Mrs. Bortz.

Methods of dipping chocolates will be demonstrated by Mrs. Jay Kidd, Mrs. Holbrook and Mrs. Darlington when the group meets Oct. 22 at the Kidd home.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Smyer.

Dear Abby
By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I recently learned that my 23-year-old son now seems to have a real father of a child that was given away for adoption last year. Our son did not confide in us, I found this out quite by accident.

Our son and this girl did not want to rush into marriage, so they decided to give up the child, but now that she has returned and they became engaged. (They are not aware that I know about the baby.) I might add, she is a very sweet girl and I think the world of her.

My husband and I have always looked forward to our first grandchild and I am sick with grief to think that somewhere in this world I have a grandchild, whom I will never know. I haven't been able to bring myself to tell my husband yet. My question: Do I have the right to keep this from him? It is his grandchild, too.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 49 and I am 46. He is a college graduate and an excellent provider. We have three lovely children and have been married for 20 years. My problem? My husband doesn't like for me to talk to him.

He asks me not to talk to him at mealtime because he is "busy" eating. He doesn't want me to talk to him while he's driving, because he's "busy" driving. And God forbid that I should talk to him while he is reading or watching television!

He doesn't want me to talk when we are out in public with friends either. This is very hard on me as I come from a large family and love to talk. I am not dumb. I read a lot and have a lot of interesting things to say. When we are out, he talks to other people, but he says he HAS to talk to THEM. He doesn't have to talk to ME.

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: No possible good can come for your little girl's husband. The father of your son is another man's child and grandchild as well. Be kind and silent. And don't dwell on it. The cancer of life is regret.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and (only) child have had Sunday dinner out for many years.

David is now 15, and he's suddenly started something new. He rushes thru this dinner, and then he asks his father for the keys to the car so he can go sit in it and listen to the radio. His father doesn't like it any better than I do, but he gives him the keys and we finish without him.

David has done this when we have had other dinners with us, too. I think it is rude, but my husband says if the boy prefers to sit in the car and listen to the radio, it's his privilege, but I know my husband is hurt. I'd like your opinion.

HIS MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: It is rude, but your son is trying to tell you that he is bored. Have you ever thought of directing the conversation? Directing questions to him? Listening to him? Next time, try it. He may stay thru dessert.

Lost 10 lbs. in 10 day on Grapefruit Diet

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—(Special)—This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everyone is talking about. Thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories, plants and offices throughout the U.S.

Because this diet really works. We have testimonials reporting on its success. If you follow it exactly, you should lose 10 pounds in 10 days. No weight loss in the first four days but you will suddenly drop 3 pounds on the fifth day, thereafter lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 1 1/2 pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight.

Young people, retired and engaged, this diet lets you stuff yourself with formerly "forbidden" foods such as steak, trimmed with fat, roast or fried chicken, gravies, mayonnaise, lobster swimming in butter, brown sauce, creamed vegetables and more. It still loses weight, the secret being this "quick weight loss" diet is simple, full of fun, and it's not. And the grapefruit juice in this diet acts as a catalyst for burning fat. To start the fat burning process, you stuff yourself on the permitted food listed in the diet book, and still lose weight. In all, including guests, were attired in their own idea of what athletes wear.

Two Young Women Teachers On Way To Millionaire Row

By PATRICIA McCORMACK NEW YORK (UPI) — "You shall not permit children to drop paint on the floor!"

That was the rule Nancy Cherry and Judy Shackelford, two young women well on the way to millionaire row, credit for their success.

It was the rule the education system employing them expected to be followed by the two beginning teachers during their first year in a classroom. "We loved the children but

Graphology Topic Given For Homemakers

DECLIO — "Graphology" was the subject presented by Mrs. Amy Starry to members of the Domestic Duties Homemakers Club when they met at the home of Mrs. Gerald Mallory.

Mrs. Starry briefly told of the part that graphanals plays in the business world and also the results that the Federal Bureau of Investigation have had in their investigations. Each club member wrote a few lines and then Mrs. Starry explained some of the characters she could tell from their handwriting.

Mrs. Richard Moncur, president, conducted the business meeting and it was decided there will be a rummage sale Saturday at the Burley Labor Camp. All members are urged to bring used clothing to Mrs. Mallory's home before that date.

Various fund raising projects were discussed and club members will attend a county dance the month of October. Proceeds from some of the projects will be used for playground equipment at Declo Grade School.

Bead Making Program Given

There will be a regular council meeting on Monday at the Courthouse and each club in the county is urged to have its representative present.

The next meeting will be a Halloween party at the home of Mrs. Bruce Turner and members will attend in costume.

Projects Noted

A Barbie doll fund raising project and a cookie fund sale will be held before Christmas. It was announced during a recent meeting of Omicron Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi at the home of Mrs. Cheryl Howard.

Another fund raising project noted was the casserole cookbooks to be sold for $3.50.

The sorority convention will be held in Cheyenne, Wyo., this year.

When we left teaching, we had no money, only a few art supplies and an idea or two," Miss Shackelford said. "We didn't even have enough talent to make money painting portraits in Greenwich Village."

The first toy idea they sold to a major manufacturer involved artistic use of tissue paper and glue. Then they sold a doll with wardrobe to a mail order house.

They made a deal with Parker Brothers and marketed an inflatable pillow version of "Instant Infancy."

Miss Cherry, graduate of Hofstra University and a native New Yorker, is president of the National Association of Women's Business Owners. The firm that invented and has rights to the inflatable mannequins. The "blow-ups" cost a third of what plastic and plaster versions do.

Miss Shackelford, of Alton, Ill., is a graduate of Southern Illinois University. She is president of Cherry-Shackelford Creations Inc., the art end of the partnership with the lowest price that line "potted flower" that opens to reveal a baby doll.

In addition to a new line every year, the two young women have a houseboat, a larger apartment which also serves as office and research and development laboratory — a dozen employees, and other marks of success.

The hosts served refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Bartha Swick. The Oct. 22 meeting is with Mrs. Frank Belger, with Mrs. Ollie Ballard as co-hostess.

Trudy Neddo, Tracy Recite Nuptial Vows

ALMO — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Neddo, Malita, was the setting for the Sept. 8 wedding of their daughter, Trudy, to Kevin W. Tracy, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Tracy, Almo.

The double ring ceremony was solemnized by the bridegroom's uncle, Bishop Bert F. Tracy of the Almo LDS Church before a background setting of beauty baskets of pink gladioli and darker pink chrysanthemums and greenery.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a floor-length gown of Bridal Original lace, fashioned with a natural waistline and a full skirt that swept into a white train. The bodice, front cuffs and collar were enhanced with ruffles. White stephanotis and satin leaves formed a band for her three-eared elbow-length veil of nylon illusion.

She carried a cascading bouquet of pink rosebuds, shattered with carnations and greenery, enhanced with white satin streamers.

Mrs. Ronnie Schwinn, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Debra Zollinger, cousin of the bridegroom, and Dianne Tracy and Tracy, Trudy's sisters. The bridegroom, Kevin Tracy, sister of the bridegroom, was flower girl and carried a basket of shattered pink carnations and greenery.

Paul Tracy, Salt Lake City, cousin of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Teddy Tracy, brother of the bridegroom; Nicholas Neddo, cousin of the bride, and Ronnie Schwinn, brother-in-law of the bride.

Mrs. Cecil Odeklit played the traditional wedding music.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Raft River High School Gymnasium. The wedding party greeted guests before a silver and white backdrop, flanked by beauty baskets containing pink gladioli and chrysanthemums.

The bride's table was covered with white lace over pink and centered with a five-tiered wedding cake displayed on a mirrored mirror. The table was decorated with pink tulips, greenery and chrysanthemums. The all white wedding cake, made and decorated by the bridegroom's mother, featured silver leaves, lilies of the valley and miniature pink rosebuds topped with miniature bride and groom figurines.

The bottom layer was enhanced with a small arrangement of fresh pink rosebuds and white albatross.

Quartet tables with white lace cloths over pink were centered with brandy snifters containing three pink extractions each. Mrs. Tracy cut and served the cake, assisted by Mrs. Arlo Lloyd and Mrs. Larry Tracy, aunts of the bridegroom, and Mrs. DeWard Hall and Mrs. Edwin Paskett, aunts of the bride.

Guests were registered by Karen Edwards in charge of the gift table. Mrs. Ronald Walters and Mrs. Bert Tracy, aunts of the bride, were hosts. Mrs. Arlene Lloyd, Shelley Lloyd, Lex Tracy, Douglas John, Rhonda Hall and Kenneth Hall, guests attended from California, Utah, Boise, Blackfoot, Rockford, Idaho Falls, Burley, Yost, Almo, Elba and Malita.

The couple took a wedding trip to Sun Valley and Red Fish Lake.

The newlyweds reside at 317 Shoshone St. N., Twin Falls, Idaho, where they are attending the College of Southern Idaho. The bridegroom is employed at Don Heper's Service Station. A pre-nuptial shower was given for the bride by Mrs. Gordon Edwards and Karen Edwards at the Gordon Edwards home, Malita.

Workshop On Clothing Set

SHOSHONE — Local women are invited to register for a clothing workshop to be conducted by Mrs. Jay Fowles, extension agent.

Mrs. Fowles said the workshop, to be held in October, is specifically for those who wish to brush up on techniques and for 4-H leaders. Those who have had little, if any, sewing are encouraged to attend.

The course will consist of six meetings of two hours each. If enough are interested, there will be two sections of the class, one in the morning and evening, possibly in two different locations in the county, depending on the number registering.

Those interested may call the county extension agent's office.

Flower Club Program Given

"Direct Arrangements" was the topic of Mrs. Glenn Nelson's program, presented to the Countryside Flower Club recently at the home of Mrs. Max Crothers.

Using dried wood and various types of vases, flowers and figurines, she explained the methods of using the materials. She demonstrated how the wood could be used for high or low arrangements, depending on the room background. She said that no arrangement should have to be faked, that it should give the viewer its own message.

Club prizes went to Mrs. William Laning and Mrs. Glenn Nelson. The next meeting is a no-host luncheon.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID LEE KNAPP

Becky Butler, Knapp Recite Nuptial Vows

BLISS — The Bliss Community Church was the setting for the wedding of Becky Sue Butler and David Lee Knapp Aug. 17.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doran Butler, Bliss. Mr. Knapp is the son of Mrs. Norman Knapp, Colville, Wash.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Harold Livingston, Jerome, before a background of lighted candles. All past matrons and past patrons will be honored.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of hammered satin and lace which she designed and made. Her veil of bridal illusion was held by a fabric bow. She carried a cascading bouquet of carries accented with a gold bow.

Barbara Butler, Bliss, was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Anne Ingram, Eagle, sister of the bridegroom, and Mary Butler, sister of the bride.

Candlelighters were Jane Butler and Jill Butler, sisters of the bride.

Robert Knapp, Kent, Wash., served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Dan Butler and Arthur Butler, Bliss, brothers of the bride.

Tecla Guerra, McCall, was maid of honor, accompanied by Valerie Koester, Gooding.

A garden reception was held that evening at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Effie Butler, Spring Cove Ranch, Bliss.

Guests were registered by Carol Heady, cousin of the bride. Cutting and serving the cake were Ruth Van Slyke, Raymond, Wash., and Glenn Kuehl, Pocatello, aunt of the bride. Mrs. Harold Heady and Mrs. Florence Taylor, aunts of the bride, served the coffee and punch.

The couple reside in Seattle, Wash.

PESSIMISM PAYS SLAM DIVIDEND

Optimism is a mighty fine thing and a bridge player should be an optimist most of the time, but occasionally a little pessimism will prove valuable.

North's two diamonds was the key to the hand. West's trump lead indicated that he was afraid to lead away from honors in all side suits and that finesses were all that counted. Then he worked out a play to guard against almost everything.

He drew trumps and played two rounds of clubs. Then he played aces and 10 of diamonds. West covered the 10 with the queen and South discarded the last club from dummy.

West was end-played right there and there. He didn't have a club to lead. A spade lead would be right up to declarer's ace-queen and a diamond lead would allow a ruff and discard.

The play also would have worked against a 3-3 club break, since a club lead would set up South's fourth club. Of course, it would have failed miserably if East held the diamond queen but pessimist South had decided that West was surely going to show up with that card.

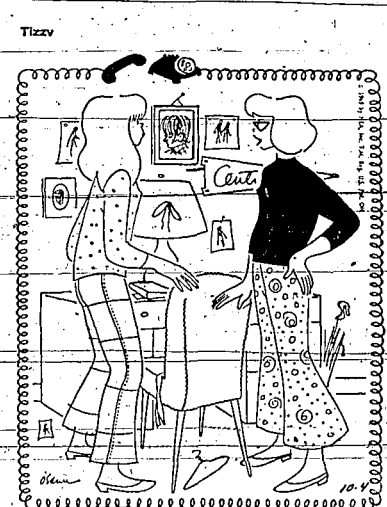

West opened the four of trumps and South noted that he had a pretty good play for the slam. Specifically, he could draw trumps and try a diamond finesse. If that worked, he would be home. If it failed, he could discard one of dummy's clubs on the third diamond and try to break the club suit 3-3. If that failed, he could still fall back on the spade finesse.

Porke and Beanes Buckingham Palace Style

Take ye fleshe of ye Hammus Alabammus (an incredibly tender swyne, found only in Dogpatche) and blend with ye fleshe of ye Wilde Boare in its most wildly romantieke state, which occureth when it reacheth ye age of Boare Mitzvah.

This mingling of tenderness and toughnesses resulteth in a dish so savory and seductive it surpasseth ye dreames of mortal man, when joined with Beanes!!

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—I do a lot of sewing and never throw away the cardboard that is inside a package of bias tape, rick, etc. I write simple words on these cards to use as flash cards when the children are learning to read.—MRS. D. K.

DEAR POLLY—When moving a large potted plant slide it on to a large bath towel, leaving the ends of the towel free. You can then pull it wherever you want it without scratching the floor or straining your back.—VERA

DEAR POLLY—Mine is a time saver for washing curtains—Wash and dry the drip panels as usual. Then instead of folding and pressing them take half of each curtain rod right out to the line and transfer the curtains directly from the line to the rods. It requires less handling and the panels look like new.—BETTY

DEAR POLLY—Before starting on a family vacation trip I pack a separate bag with just overnight things. This way we do not have to unpack the entire car every night.—MRS. E. L. S.

DEAR POLLY—Many home-makers spend time looking for refrigerator cleaners. All they need do is to spray with a reliable window cleaner and then wipe the dirt off with a clean cloth or a soft paper towel.—GEORGIA

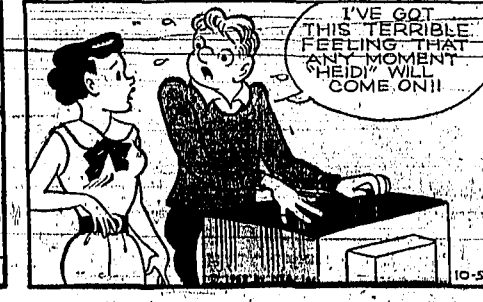

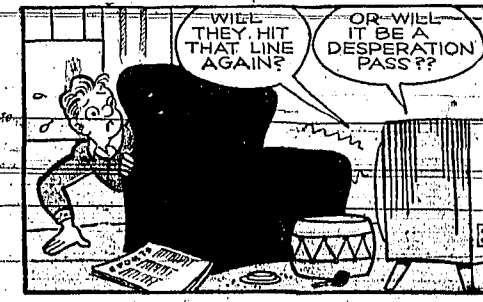

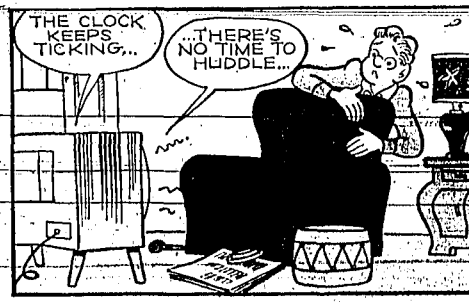

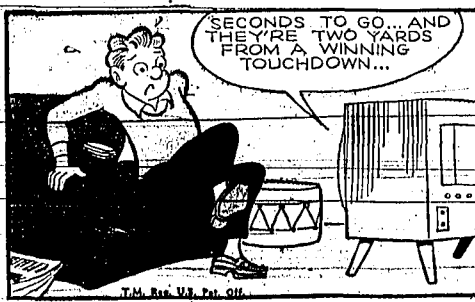

DEAR POLLY—A child's toothbrush makes an excellent nail brush for the young fry. Regular nail brushes often have such stiff bristles. I also like to use a man's shaving brush as a complexion brush.—MRS. C. C.

DEAR POLLY—When clothes are to drip dry on a clothes line, first fold a dry towel over the bar section of the hanger. The towel will separate the front from the back of the wet garment so it will dry faster.—MRS. H. J.

DEAR POLLY—After washing baseball caps, stretch each one over an inverted sauce pan to dry. This will prevent shrinking and the cap will dry in shape. This is also helpful for military wives who wash fatigue caps.—CAROLYNN

The Reasons Behind Sexual Incompatibility
By REBECCA LISWOOD

Ask Them Yourself

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

FOR PRESIDENT RICHARD M. NIXON

What was your most memorable experience during the eight years you served as Vice President under the late Dwight D. Eisenhower?—Bernard A. Blubaugh, Alliance, Ohio

● There were a number. One, of course, was my meeting with Premier Nikita Khrushchev in Moscow in 1959. As Vice President, I opened the first U.S. Exhibition ever held in the Soviet Union and held talks on behalf of our Government with the Soviet Premier.

FOR ROGER BROWN, Los Angeles Rams

About how many pounds of padding do you wear in a game?—Billy Johnson, Las Vegas, Nev.

● About 12 pounds. It used to weigh much more, but now there are excellent protective gear made of various compositions which are light, yet strong.

FOR GRACE DAVALL, assistant curator, Bronx Zoo

Who first used carrier pigeons to carry messages?—Conrad Fiorello, Brooklyn, N.Y.

● The carrier pigeon should not be confused with the homing pigeon. The former is a show breed. It does not "home" and is not used to carry messages. Homing pigeons were used by the ancient Greeks and Romans, often to report sports and games. The present breed was perfected in Belgium, early in the 19th century.

FOR RAQUEL WELCH

Is it true that you are a member of the Mormon Church (Latter Day Saints) and thus refrain from smoking and drinking?—Mrs. A. Chase, Ogden, Utah

● It is true that I do not drink or smoke, but this is not because of religious convictions. It's a matter of personal taste.

FOR WINTON M. BLOUNT, Postmaster General

We are constantly receiving mail requests for donations for many kinds of missions and charities. How can we be sure that the donations we send are being used legitimately?—A. E. Fisher, Morgantown, W. Va.

● Unless a complaint is lodged, the Post Office Department would have no way of knowing a soliciting charity is legitimate.

FOR WALTER J. HICKEY, Secretary of the Interior

● Recent surveys of the buffalo herds in the U.S. and Canada show a continental population of about 22,000.

FOR GOV. DANIEL EVANS, State of Washington

Just what will installation of the emergency "beeping" device do on crashed airplanes?—D. R., Lancaster, Pa.

● Washington State's new law requiring installation of "dumbed aircraft rescue transmitters" (DART) will add a new measure of public safety to commercial flying. This equipment will improve our air-search effectiveness and enable searchers to locate missing aircraft quickly, thereby saving lives.

FOR WALTER J. McNERNEY, president, Blue Cross Association

What is the biggest health insurance claim ever paid?—S. F., Panama City, Fla.

● Probably the $85,500 bill recently paid by Blue Cross on behalf of Mrs. Samuel Taylor, 60, of Everett, Mass. She was hospitalized on April 25, 1968, with acute polyneuritis, a rare nervous disorder that causes a weakening and paralysis of the muscles. After tests confirmed the diagnosis, she was placed in a special respiratory unit, which cost her $250 to $300 a day per patient. Mrs. Taylor remained in it for eight months.

FOR J. EDGAR HOOVER, Director, FBI

What percentage of the 10 Most Wanted men are caught?—Mrs. George Moe, Milwaukee, Wis.

● Since this list was begun on March 14, 1950, 300 fugitives have been listed. More than 90 percent of these have been apprehended.

FOR ELIZABETH POST, etiquette authority

How many times should a door bell be rung if you believe the occupants to be at home?—Lloyd Perlin, Grand Junction, Colo.

● Three or four times. If they do not answer by then, they are either not answering deliberately or are asleep and cannot hear the bell.

Peekaboo Pram—Not even infants have privacy now. A British firm is marketing a transparent baby carriage. Why? So Mommy can watch baby from any angle. Also it permits baby to observe all his surroundings, which supposedly stimulates his mental growth.

Newspaperboys, Then and Now
In spite of our age of affluence and automation, the early-morning or after-school job of newspaperboy is still very popular, according to Cyrus Feyer, general manager of the International Circulation Managers Assn. It's not the money, it's the manhood gained. Each boy is an independent contractor, buying the papers at wholesale, selling at retail, keeping about 30 percent of the profits. Hours range from 7½ to 15 a week; profits from $7.50 to $25. The years of service used to average five; now, with families on the move and school pressures, it's only one or two. A recent innovation is the use of counseling mothers. Their homes become distribution points for about 10 boys. They help with recruiting, distribution, complaints. What about newspaper girls? There are a few, but most papers discourage them—too many job hazards.

Exit White—Remember the conventional white, button-down collar shirt? Although once 85 to 90 percent of all men's shirts used to be white; now more than 50 percent are colored or patterned. Today button-downs are not much in demand, according to the Menswear Retailers of America, nor the classic narrow tie worn with it. More popular is the spread and long-point collars, worn with ties four to five inches wide. What's replacing white? This fall the "in" colors are mulberry green, gold, melon, and blue.

Jack the Knife—"No kitchen tool is more time-consuming than a dull knife," says Jack Van Bibber, in his new book, "Fast Feasts, A Cookbook for Hurried Gourmets." He rejects most electric knife sharpeners as "sadly inadequate," and honing steel is great only for keeping an edge, but not sharpening. "My solution is my butcher; he has a professional knife sharpener come in to do his own knives—and mine, too, for a very small fee. Most butchers are friendly fellows and will do the same for you."

Jack Van Bibber

Foot-See Phone This fall the first telephones for deaf-blind persons are expected to be manufactured. Called Code Com, the set can be connected to a conventional phone. The vibrations of the finger pad allow the blind to feel prearranged messages; the deaf can see them in coded flashes of light. Code Com requires some cooperation between the owner and special callers. Photo shows the circular vibrating pad at left of girl's hand. Light flashes come from the recessed black rectangle in the center of the raised portion of the set above her fingers, which are on the sending key.

Discover the secrets of gift decorating!

Before you know it, creating a decorative useful canister like this just comes naturally!

Folks may begin bidding for a beautiful one-of-a-kind wall plaque like this even before the paint is dry.

A few dabs of paint and a rubber stamp—before mutton becomes this charming bread box.

"No talent" housewife brought these wooden ducks back to "life"—with gift decorating.

Gift decorating turned this old coffee pot into a $50.00 keepsake.

Once a rusty frying pan—gift decorating turned it into a collector's treasure.

You can create beautiful gifts like these even if you've never painted before.

(—and make up to $50 a week selling your gifts, if you choose.)

IMAGINE! Just a little paint... 3 simple brush strokes... and you can turn trash into treasures, junk-pile discards into glamorous gifts—even if you've never held a brush before. In your hands a battered old coffee pot now becomes a work of art... a rattled tea kettle changes into a charming gift planter... a forgotten, sanded-back trunk becomes a beautiful hand-painted hope chest.

It's easy—no special talent needed
Today the Decorative Arts Institute is helping thousands of men and women create beautiful decorator pieces at home. You, too, will be thrilled to discover you can create lovely treasures—even if you can't draw a straight line. Mrs. Ruth-Minor of Lubbock, Texas, writes: "I never had a brush in my hand before but after the first 2 lessons, I have sold to the largest department store!"

What's the secret? The discovery that with 3 simple brush strokes (the same strokes used to apply lipstick) you can decorate for four-profit, as you choose. Quickly and easily you can exude ROSES, and FLOWERS, FRUIT, and CUPIDS, and HOWS... BIRDS and BUTTERFLIES... come alive under your brush as if by magic!

Earn while you learn at home
Even as a beginner you may find friends, decorators, even gift shops, eagerly bidding for your unusual one-of-a-kind creations—sometimes offering $10, $15, even $20 for one. Soon after starting, Mrs. Eileen Baer of Hot Springs, Arkansas, writes: "I know my work isn't real great yet, but my things are being grabbed before they're dry!"

Go on antique treasure hunt!
Everywhere you look—in attics, basements, barns, sheds, junkshops, second-hand stores—you'll find "treasures-in-the-rough"—awaiting only a few strokes to turn them into stunning objects of art. Friends may beg you to create lovely hand-painted decorator pieces for their homes, too. "My friends and neighbors," says Mrs. Marilyn Bedford of Tulsa, Oklahoma, "have kept me busy painting milk cans and recipe boxes, and I've done two trunks. What a happy whirl I'm in!" And within days from now you, too, can be in a happy whirl enjoying the fun, the excitement, and if you wish, the profits of decorating gifts at home.

Enjoy 15-day Examination FREE
The complete Course is shipped to you at once. Yes, you get everything in one big shipment... 42-piece decorator's kit—87 patterns—24 lessons—all the paints, brushes, and decorating supplies you need—and much, much more! Yet the entire Course is yours for only $39.50 complete, plus shipping, if delighted with 15 day trial first. And even this small amount may be paid in easy monthly installments. This has to be the biggest value of its kind in America when you consider that you're getting many of the basic materials offered in the nationally advertised Advanced Course, which sold for $149.50.

Students create beautiful gifts, then send letters praising the joys and profits of gift decorating!

"I cleared $250.00 last month—and I didn't even leave the house!"
—LOIS FULLER, Louisiana

"I have acquired 30 school desks... which I am reupholstering... I have them practically all sold."
—ROBERT WEITZMAN, New York

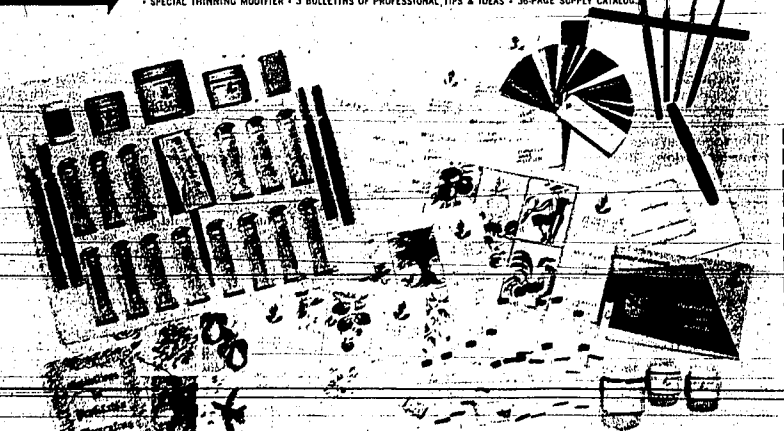

"Wanted you to know how very pleased I have been with your course. And I didn't know how to hold a brush in the beginning."
—LOUISE DIEZ, California

"Nothing I can think of now could give me more pleasure than recommending Decorative Arts Institute. My objective in taking their course was to supplement social, security and a small monthly pension. This I am doing."
—JUSTICE WILSON, Pennsylvania

The Causes and

A marriage "doctor" has psychological

I AM a marriage "doctor," and, as you might guess, I rarely talk professionally to couples who are sexually compatible—just to those who have never been able to adjust to this vital, intimate part of marriage.

The reason I see few, if any, sexually attuned couples is that they have no psychological problems serious enough to prevent them from approaching each other with love. The incompatible couples, on the other hand, have serious "hang-ups." It's my job first to find out what the psychological problem is (it very rarely is a physical one)—and then help the individual cure it.

I've found the problems can pretty well be broken down into five categories. They are things the sexually compatible couple take for granted, but to others they are incapacitating obstacles to marital love—at least, until recognized and attacked.

Here are the reasons I've found most likely to cause sexual incompatibility in a marriage.

Communication. In its truest sense, is not merely an exchange of words. It is the expression of intangibles, a discussion of hopes and fears and, among other verbal intimacies, the enjoyment as well as the frustration that prevails in a marriage relationship.

A young wife who came to me was frightened and unhappy about her marriage. She and her husband no longer were close.

I discovered that this couple had never made any effort to confide in each other their innermost thoughts and feelings. During their first year of marriage, it had been enough that they had each other and their new home. Then, slowly their lives consisted mostly of tv-watching. They watched it during dinner and throughout the evening. Thus, they shut out any opportunity or need to talk to one another.

When I suggested she and her husband seek to share their thoughts and feelings and discuss their marriage relationship, she said, startled: "We wouldn't know how to start. And we'd both be embarrassed to talk about sex."

I recommended they start by admitting all this and try to trace the reasons for it. Likely, I said, they would discover that childhood prejudices or perhaps the shock of some youthful experience was at fault. I assured her just sharing this knowledge could well prove a giant step toward future communications.

It took months for this couple, neither of them especially articulate, to achieve true communication. But she rates their efforts infinitely worth-while. No longer is there an invisible wall between them. And more than once her husband has impatiently switched off the tv because it interfered with what they had to say to each other.

"We're so relaxed these days," she told me, "that neither of us hesitates to ask for a special caress."

Resentment and hostility impede the warm drawing together that should be the essence of a marital embrace. A husband may resent a wife who seems more concerned with her own family than with him. A wife may resent her husband's refusal to become indignant any time his mother is critical of her. A husband may be irritated by what he considers his wife's lackadaisical-housekeeping or extravagance.

A patient of mine, in her middle 40s, was resentful because her husband had bought a boat and spent his weekends fishing. "He paid so much for that boat," she said, bitterly, "there's nothing left for a mink stole for me."

She told me that over the 10 years her husband had been with his firm his income had increased sufficiently to buy a house in the country, maintain two cars, belong to a country club, and put two sons through college. Any job conducive to this kind of prosperity has to be attended by severe strain.

I told her: "It could be your husband needs—and knows he needs—the escape from pressure that fishing provides. His boat and his fishing could add years to his life. Men in his position are too often prone to heart attacks."

"My husband's not going to have any heart attack," she insisted. "He's a big healthy guy—as a matter of fact, all he thinks about after fishing all day is making love. And lately has been giving me funny looks. He knows something's wrong."

I told this wife that if she was punishing her husband by being deliberately unresponsive, she was indulging in a dangerous form of retaliation, and it was important she correct it at once.

I recommended that she tell her husband how she felt, assuring him that, if he had a need for the relaxation which fishing provided, she could only be grateful for his boat and the hours he spent on it.

Because of her resentment, she did not find this easy to do. But she did it—and was glad. Her husband admitted he had been reacting badly to office pressure, had several times lost his temper but that, thanks to his weekends on the water, he was beginning to feel human again. Then, taking her into his arms, he had said: "So that's what's been bothering you! I knew something was wrong."

Here, of course, a lack of communication was the root of all the trouble. Had this husband confided his problem to his wife, she would not have turned resentful and unresponsive to him.

Preoccupation with the children is, in my opinion, one of the most unfortunate problems of marriage. When women transfer their attention disproportionately from husband to children, they risk estranging their husbands and depriving their children of the most valuable thing in family life—a happy relaxed home and loving parents.

A well-known dress manufacturer, who had made millions, came to me insisting that he no longer loved his wife and wanted a divorce so he could marry a model.

"Don't think I'm taken in by this girl's beauty," he told me. "She's beautiful all right. But most important, I guess, is that she makes me feel 10 feet tall!"

He could not understand why his wife opposed a divorce.

"I've made it clear she'd want for nothing," he said. "And she doesn't give one hoot about me. The kids are her life. She's so wrapped up in them she doesn't want to go anywhere or do anything."

I reminded this man he also must have wanted children, or they would not have had four. I pointed out that the children's well-being was his responsibility as well as his wife's and that it would ill serve them to grow up without a father.

"You and your wife," I reminded him, "once had excellent sexual response. It is possible, of course, that you could again."

He shook his head. "It just doesn't work any more. Who, I ask you, wants a woman who sloshes around with cold cream all over her face and her hair in curlers!"

Nevertheless, he carefully weighed what I said, including my proposal that he take his wife on a luxurious holiday, leaving the children at home.

When his wife came to see me, she was eager for a second chance. "My mother warned me I was making a mistake concentrating on the children," she admitted.

"Should you go on this holiday," I said, "I hope you will be well groomed and dressed as alluringly as good taste allows. Men, remember, are visually stimulated."

In turn, I reminded the husband that, just as men are visually stimulated, women respond to verbal endearments which make them feel desirable and loved.

This couple is now in Hawaii. Whether their marriage can be saved is still a question. But because of their mutual willingness to try to save it, I am optimistic.

Insecurity takes many forms, all detrimental to marital harmony, with physical insecurities especially so.

Men may worry unnecessarily about their masculinity or advancing age. Those who are sterile may fear impotence, although the two conditions are quite separate. And those who heed the tall tales of Don Juan friends may wonder if their lesser need for sex indicates a lack of virility. It is the quality of a couple's love-making not its frequency that is, above all, important.

Women with small bosoms may think they're underecled. Following a hysterectomy or menopause, a woman may worry that she will be an unsatisfactory lover or find sex less enjoyable. Often, with the fear of pregnancy removed, the contrary is likely to be true.

Women who are frigid may need analysis. Many women, however, are incapable of completely enjoying sex only because they were brought up to think of it as something nice people don't talk about, and its activities as things nice people don't do. They are, as a result, only passive partners, never engaging in the participation that might well dispel any bugaboo of frigidity and add immeasurably to their pleasure and that of their husbands.

Another hindrance to sexual compatibility is the unrealistic descriptions of the marital embrace found in books and magazines. The human body is capable of holding considerable pleasure, but it just isn't up to the Elysian raptures which certain writers—hopeful of making the best-seller list—attribute to it. I've known this fanciful reporting to cause couples to regard each other with dissatisfaction and criticism.

Emotional immaturity might be expected to contribute to sexual harmony, lend itself to an attitude of all-for-love-and-the-world-well-lost. But it doesn't work that way. The immature are likely to want what they do not have. This sense of unmet engenders disharmony. The resulting quarrels of the immature are apt to be fraught with accusations and sneers, even down-grading insults.

Those reluctant or unable to adjust from courtship and honeymoon to the practical, matter-of-factness of married life may seek escape in the romance and excitement of another courtship.

Women enjoy the titillation of flirting, the excitement of clandestine dates, and the flattery of being wooed again. Men seek to prove they haven't lost their old magic, to relish the joy of conquest, and the flattery of such attention that they no longer receive at home.

Kinsey reported 75 percent of married men and 25 percent of married women have had extramarital affairs. Regrettably, I would raise those figures, among women especially. Perhaps the Pill has something to do with this.

Dozens, trapped in extramarital affairs, have told me: "It all began innocently enough. We liked to talk to each other." Or "We enjoyed dancing together."

A person whose imagination is drawn toward someone outside of his marriage is, understandably enough, less drawn to his marriage partner. He may even resent his partner. And often he will blame his partner for what has happened.

A wife, for example, will insist she never would have become involved had her husband not been immersed in his business or taken her for granted. A husband will blame his wife for a lack of interest in his business or antagonism toward his family or for interrupting him.

All are justifiable complaints. But it is most unlikely they would have led to any extramarital involvement had not the husband or wife, emotionally immature, sought the excitement of a new courtship.

To the couple who feel sexually incompatible, I would say, "Seek the reason and correct the fault." My experience as a marriage counselor indicates that cure is quite possible once you know the psychological fault which deprives you of the joy of marriage. +

Now a completely new Bisquick. Makes pancakes even lighter, fluffier than scratch.

If you've been making pancakes with some other mix, stop and consider the picture below. It shows you pancakes that prize-winning bakers of Eugene, Oregon, matched against New Bisquick.

Every time, the New Bisquick pancakes turned out lighter. (Even though the same amounts of batter were used.) That's because Bisquick uses a special lighter flour.

The New Bisquick pancakes also turned out fluffier—better eating—because they're made with a livelier leavening. And New Bisquick is even easier to use than most pancake mixes. The shortening has been added for you.

Now... is there really any other way?

P.S. New Bisquick also makes delicious biscuits, waffles, shortcake and 276 other baskings.

A long-time customer received a second notice from the local department store, threatening to attach her salary if her overdue bill were not paid immediately.

Furious, she phoned to protest: "I've always paid on time in the 20 years I've been a customer. Besides, I didn't even get a first bill yet."

"Oh, we're waiting for a re-order on the first forms right now," explained a new clerk. "So I'm using the second notices. They turn out to be much more effective."

HUNTING FORECAST:

Good Season for Ducks

By ERWIN A. BAUER Author of "The Duck Hunter's Bible"

THIS fall duck hunters will receive an unexpected bonus, both in better hunting and perhaps in a longer shooting season.

The reason is a timely comeback of our wild waterfowl, following several summers of drought in the major waterfowl nesting grounds.

But heavy snows last winter, followed by spring rains, filled the potholes, so nesting was successful. Thus there should be a very good crop of birds around this year.

But duck hunting is a specialized sport, and not all hunters are successful. First, it is more often hunting over water than on land. And wild ducks are more wary than most upland game birds. Some hunters credit the birds with the equivalent of a power vision, so it is necessary to know something about the targets.

Beginning in the fall, wild ducks and geese begin their annual migrations from northern nesting grounds to southern wintering spots. Some species begin moving in September; others do not reach their destinations until early winter. Most waterfowl pause en route. How long they stay in suitable places depends on the food they find, the weather (freezing drives them away), and also the hunting pressure. Today these migrations are fairly predictable, both as to time and stopovers.

Good duck areas can be located by personal observation, by checking with other waterfowlers, or with local conservation officers. Then, before opening day or before the actual hunting, build a blind which blends as much as possible into its natural surroundings. There are many types of blinds, some rompy enough for two. Others are simply pits dug at the water's edge. Camouflaged boats also are used.

Ducks are gregarious creatures and attracted by other ducks, explaining why hunters use artificial calls and decoys. Calling in an call and can be developed by listening to ordinary or zoo ducks

(or to duck records), then trying to imitate them. Decoys should be as natural-looking as possible. And it's important that they be dark, rough in texture (avoid bright shiny ones), and the more the better. Of course, they should be well anchored.

A boot tough enough to work hard all week, can sure take a little running around on the weekends.

Wolverine Durables are tough. They've got to be because they work hard every day. They've got to shrug off oil, grease and hard knocks. They've got to take cold and heat without cracking up. Or the sole parting company from the uppers. And they can't slip on any job either. But most of all, they've got to be comfortable. Or they just wouldn't be Durables.

It was only a matter of time before outdoor guys found out they're great for hunting, or camping too. Especially now we've got so many different styles, including a new insulated boot. Are Durables more of a working boot that's sporty? Or a sport boot that works? You decide.

The best periods to be in the blind are before daybreak or during the last hour of daylight when ducks are moving from resting to feeding. Serious duck hunters use such retrieving dogs as Labradors, Chesapeake, or goldens. This is a conservation measure (the dogs retrieve downed birds which might otherwise be lost).

Though the waterfowl picture is brighter this year, the duck population is still lower than a generation ago. So every duck hunter also must make a special effort to be a conservationist.

Before going afield you must buy (at any post office) a Migratory Waterfowl Stamp for $3. Next, observe all shooting regulations. Baiting with grain and shooting over live decoys are illegal. Know the various kinds of waterfowl since the shooting of less-abundant species is illegal. And never shoot at ducks that are beyond the normal 35-yard range of a shotgun. This increases the chance of mistaken identity.

The future of duck hunting depends on each hunter's behavior this fall. Hopefully, it will be a very good year.

What Do You Know About Your Aches and Pains?

1. We're all subject to aches and pains.
2. Most pains are induced by emotional stress.
3. You can feel nonexistent pain.
4. Men can tolerate pain better than women.
5. People who are immune to pain are lucky.
6. If you have a toothache and are anxious and worried about it, the pain will feel worse.
7. You can lessen any pain by tensing your muscles.
8. The severity of an ache or pain depends on what time of the day it occurs.

SCIENCE HAS MADE some fascinating discoveries about aches and pains, and some of these findings reveal ways to lessen them. With this quiz, you can check your knowledge against the results of the studies.

1. False. Studies conducted at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine and other research centers have demonstrated that some people never feel an ache or a pain and lead a completely painless existence.

2. True. Studies conducted at the Monroe (Wis.) Clinic, over several years have shown this to be so, particularly with headaches, back-of-the-neck pain, and assorted pains of the stomach and digestive areas. Such pains are often so psychosomatic that they induce you to say, "He gives me a pain," or "I can't stomach much more of that," or "He gives me a headache." The pain results from your emotional reaction to the particular person.

3. True. Not only is it quite possible to feel pain for which there is no physical cause, but many persons have actually felt chronic pain in a finger, arm, or any other body part long after amputation. Such pains may originate in the brain, for an overworked mind can imagine pain impulses that will seem real. Often, however, they disappear completely when a physician prescribes "medication" in the form of a harmless sugar pill, putting the patient's mind at ease, so that it ceases sending pain messages to a given place in the body.

4. True. In Veterans Administration studies, psychologists tested the pain reactions of 100 men and women of various ages and found that the men had a greater ability to tolerate pain than the women. A university study of both sexes showed similar findings. Laboratory tests indicate that a woman's pain threshold differs from a man's in that she is more sensitive to pain, feels it more, and is less tolerant of it.

5. False. Those people who are incapable of feeling pain are far from lucky. Without pain to sound a warning signal, a person runs the risk of extreme dangers and hazards unless he takes special precautions. For example, he may put his hand on a hot stove and suffer a serious burn before he realizes what is happening. And since he doesn't feel a toothache, he may never see his dentist until it's too late to save a tooth. Medical studies cite numerous instances of this kind, making it evident that pain is as much of a blessing as a curse.

6. True. In a recent study using a dolorimeter to measure the intensity of pain, psychologists tested college students' reactions under various degrees of anxiety, ranging from mild to extreme. They found that when anxiety (measured by pulse and blood pressure) increased, sensitivity to pain also skyrocketed.

7. False. Physical or emotional tension causes the brain to over-evaluate pain signals it receives from various parts of the body, causing a given pain to hurt much more than the injury justifies. Thus anticipation of a dental appointment, for example, can build up so much tension that you begin to wince with pain before being touched.

8. True. University studies show that sensitivity to pain does vary markedly with the time of day, degree of contentment, depression, or fatigue, and many other similar factors. Research at Johns Hopkins University showed, for example, that a mild distraction of attention can alter a person's pain threshold as much as 45 percent.

Delicate "Strawberry Banke" Tea Cloth & Place Mat Sets

Our crisp, delicate strawberry tea cloth and place mats were inspired by a historic restoration now going on in Portsmouth, New Hampshire. When the early settlers arrived in this charming port, they found the riverbank covered with wild strawberries, hence its original name "Strawberry Banke." The design is stamped on heavy, cream white 100 percent linen. Both the 48-inch-square cloth and mats are already bound with a moss green "beauty edge," an embroidered finish that insures a flat edge. Completely finished 100 percent linen napkins are included in the kit and come in the same soft moss green.

"I May Never Be Happy"

"I JUST may never be really happy because when I am alone, I want to be with people. And when I am with them, I want to be off by myself. I am very contradictory."

It was Peggy Lipton of tv's "The Mod Squad" who was making such an admission to me through a thin veil of European cigar smoke, while she took hummingbird sips of dry sherry. She was wearing a loose-knit see-through blouse. As though trying to give me a sample of her mercurial personality, she continued with, "Smoking is a disgusting habit. But I think these little cigars are sexy if they're smoked right."

Peggy continued to confuse me by admitting that she craves love, having had a dose of it when she was only 14. At the same time, though, she demands assertion of her individuality and independence. "I had a perfect relationship just once. Words were unnecessary. It lasted just three weeks. That's very good for me!" Peggy paused, then added, "I get so involved with a man that I think only of him and entirely forget myself, which begins to destroy me. So before I get too-involved, I pull away."

Her current romance with Lou Adler, though, Peggy insisted, is just the opposite. But it disturbs her so much that she admitted, "I get so much into his feelings that it annoys him and scares him off."

Peggy says that her need for love and affection goes back to her childhood when her family lived in a middle-class Long Island, N.Y., suburban area. To begin with, she was the middle child and felt completely overlooked. "I was socially unacceptable. My teeth stuck out, I stammered, had a horrible complexion, and couldn't afford the local beach club, even if I'd been asked!"

All of this gave the impression that she was snobbish. Even today, Peggy's reticence to reveal her inner self suggests that she's cool and distant. "I don't mean it to be so," she sighed.

Leaving her ugly adolescence behind, Peggy, "turned pretty." But her many hours of introspection and loneliness developed into independence. "I wasn't raised to be independent," she said, "but I found I had to be for my own needs." So at 16, she became a model and hated it. "I was so shy and introverted. I just knew what the other girls were thinking about me! It really bugged me!" Peggy recalled vividly. But her earnings paid for acting lessons, and when she and her family moved to Los Angeles, Peggy got a break.

It was by chance that she met Dick Clayton, who, unknown to Peggy, had been waiting until she turned 18 so he could offer her a contract. Through him came the role of Julie Barnes in "The Mod Squad."

About fulfilling three more years of her present tv contract, she said, "Five years in anything is too much! I have so many other things I want to do—like making a movie."

Peggy's contradictory nature never seems to leave her alone. She longs to travel and sometimes does but turns right around and returns home because she gets so restless. These same mixed emotions tire her easily and often trigger her temper.

Marriage? "It terrifies me," she admitted. "I want it. It sounds so right. But I'm still too immature for it. And I hope I can get show business out of my system so I'll be ready some day."

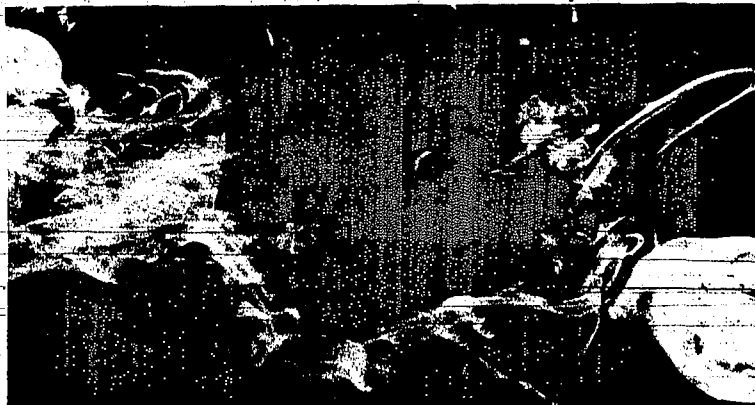

Sighing deeply, Peggy said, "I'm so contradictory. It's agonizing."

What will bring eventual happiness to Peggy? "A big home; lots of money; and time to be both wife and mother." She smiled, then added, "That's what I say, now . . ."

CLEANEST, EASIEST, SAFEST Way To Rid Your Home Of NICE MICE

NOW! Rid your home of mice completely with d-CON® Mouse-Prufe, the amazing mouse killer. It's the MOST EFFECTIVE... has twice as much mouse-killing ingredient as other leading brands. It's an ingredient recommended by the U.S. Government.

CLEANEST AND EASIEST... just pull tab—bait feeds automatically. SAFEST... when used as directed, safe for children and pets. No wonder Mouse-Prufe out-sells all other mouse killers combined—

d-CON MOUSE-PRUFE
YOU MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS AND NOT KNOW IT

Fidgeting, loss of sleep and a tormenting itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infect 4 out of every 5 persons in child-bearing families. They may be vicious and not know it! To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W Tablets do... and here's how they do it:

Pin-Worms are eliminated through the tablets into the bowels before they die. Then—Jayne's medicine—medically formulated—directly goes right to work—kills the Worms quickly, easily. An anti-itcher medicine. Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect and irritate. Get active Jayne's P-W Vermifuge... small, easy-to-take tablets... special sizes for children and adults.

Dog Nearly Itches to Death

"I thought we'd have to put Daisy to sleep, she suffered so from large itching spots. I had about—given up trying things when I found Sulfodene. The itching stopped, sores soon healed, hair grew back. Bless you for Sulfodene!" says Mrs. John Burmester, New Jersey.

SULFODENE liquid medication relieves frenzied itching almost instantly. Quickly promotes healing of fungus itch-sores often called mange, eczema, hot spots. Used by kennels and veterinarians. For dogs and cats. Get sulfodene today. At drug stores and pet departments.

FAMILY WEEKLY COOKBOOK

Focus on Cheese

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

October is Cheese Month. It's a good time to begin getting acquainted with some of those cheeses less familiar to you. Continue to enjoy your favorites, too, and do keep on hand a variety of conveniently packaged sliced cheeses, as well as jars of intriguing cheese spreads. Here, we have used popular cheeses and one cheese food in these recipes.

Egg Noodle Bows with Three-Cheeses

- Fine dry bread crumbs
- 4 qt. boiling water
- 1 1/2 tablespoons salt
- 12 oz. egg noodle bows (about 6 cups) or 12 oz. medium egg noodles
- 3 cups Thin White Sauce (see recipe)
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese (4 oz.)
- 1 cup diced Swiss cheese (4 oz.)
- 1 cup diced Mozzarella cheese (5 oz.)

1. Coat a buttered 3-qt. baking dish with bread crumbs. Set aside.
2. Add salt to boiling water; gradually add noodles so that water continues to boil. Cook, uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender.
3. Meanwhile, prepare a thin white sauce. Set aside.
4. Drain noodles in a colander; turn into a large mixing bowl. Toss with butter or margarine, then Parmesan cheese. Add Swiss and Mozzarella; toss lightly.
5. Turn half the noodle mixture into the prepared dish; top with half the white sauce. Repeat layers. If desired, sprinkle grated Parmesan cheese or bread crumbs over top.
6. Bake in 350° F. oven 25 min.

Thin White Sauce: Melt 3 tablespoons butter or margarine in a saucepan; blend in 3 tablespoons flour. Heat until mixture bubbles. Remove and, adding gradually, stir in 3 cups milk. Cook rapidly, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens, 2 to 3 min. Mix in a blend of 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, and 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg. 3 cups sauce

Cheddar Puffs

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
- 2 cups (8 oz.) shredded sharp cheddar cheese
- 1 1/2 cups sifted regular all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon cayenne

1. Blend butter or margarine and cheese until smooth.

Rich egg noodles are enveloped in melting Swiss, Mozzarella, and Parmesan cheeses as this mixture heats and flavors mingle.

2. Mix in a blend of the dry ingredients.
3. Shape dough into rolls about 1 1/4-in. in diameter. Wrap in waxed paper and chill if necessary.
4. Cut into 3/4-in. slices. Place about 1 in. apart on lightly greased cookie sheets.
5. Bake at 400° F. about 8 min. Serve as appetizer-snacks. About 1 doz. cookies

Seasoned Blue Cheese Spread for Steak

- 1/2 cup Blue cheese, crumbled
- 2 lbs. pasteurized cream
- 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper

1. Blend all ingredients until smooth.
2. Spread generously onto steak immediately after broiling (allow about 2 tablespoons per serving). 4 to 6 servings

Hot Cheese 'n' Beef Dip

- 1 1/2 lbs. beef round steak, ground
- 2 lbs. pasteurized cream
- American cheese food
- 2 onions, grated
- 6 or 7 hot peppers, minced
- 2 large tomatoes, peeled and sliced chopped

1. Cook beef and drain on paper towels.
2. Cut cheese into chunks and put in a double boiler top; set over simmering water, stirring occasionally, until melted.
3. Mix in onion, hot peppers, and tomatoes; then the beef.
4. Serve hot as a dip or spoon over toasted-battered-bun-for-supper-snacks. About 5 1/2 cups dip

Just a typical American mother. And her victims.

The average mother has to be way above average these days.

Or she could be a menace: To Dad, for instance, if she's unaware that the color TV she's buying may hold radiation dangers.

And to baby, if she doesn't know that the most flavorful baby food isn't necessarily the best. It may be tastier because it has more salt than is good for him.

And Sis's new spray: Her hair may gleam brighter tonight. But will it fall out faster next month?

In this complex world, tender-loving care isn't enough. There are too many products and pressures. Too many claims and confusions.

Prevention Magazine can help. For, every month, Prevention explores professional journals. Reviews conference reports. Interviews authorities. And then brings you a treasury of fascinating articles—all dedicated to your family's welfare. There are no miracle health solutions in Prevention. The average family doesn't need miracle solutions! But here you'll find an astounding variety of topics for everyone concerned with a healthier life. You'll discover recipes that are more nutritious—and tastier!

Prevention recognizes that you can't prevent all diseases. And when you're sick, you'll see a doctor. But, if you can get sensible health information beforehand, it may help you to live a healthier, more productive life.

That's one reason why more than 600,000 people read this no-holds-barred publication. Many of them look upon Prevention as a knowledgeable friend who shares their concern about the most important subject in the world. Their health.

We'd like to prove we merit your confidence, too. So, we offer you this money-back guarantee: Subscribe for ten months of Prevention at the special introductory rate of $2.87—a saving of $2.03 on the regular rate. If anytime during the entire period of the subscription, you are not completely satisfied—tell us. We'll refund the full amount.

Do it today, won't you? There was never a better time—for you and your family!

Stuffed Toys To Sew!

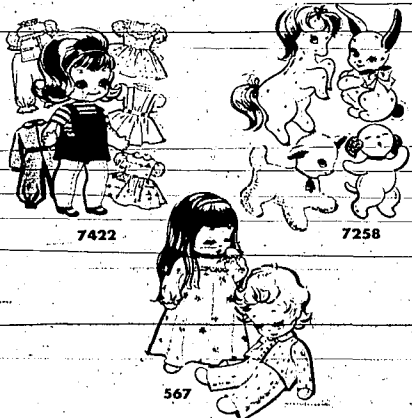

By ROSALYN ABEVAYA

NEXT to the security blanket, one of a child's most prized possessions is a cuddly toy. It is the sentry on night watch, delightful companion during waking hours, adorable on display. And the one you create by hand gives that extra ingredient of love.

These, from three patterns, are simple to make: a fashion-plate doll, complete with instructions for a whole wardrobe of clothes; sleepy twins made from a pair of men's socks; and a quartet of captivating baby animals.

A handful of fabric, a bit of wool yarn from your remnant basket will create these beauties—and capture a youngster's heart. You stuff them with any washable synthetic-filler, such as foam rubber or old nylons.

To order these patterns, simply fill out the coupon.

*Weathered brown spots on the surface of your hands and face tell the world you're getting old—perhaps before you really are. Fade them away with ESOTERICA, that medicated cream that breaks up masses of pigment on the skin, helps make hands look white and young again. So easy to use on the face, neck and arms. Not a cover-up. Acts in the skin—not on it. Fragrant, creaseshine base for softening, lubricating skin as it clears up those blemishes. If you have these age-reversing blemishes on your face, if you want clearer, lighter skin, use ESOTERICA. At your favorite drug and toiletry counter. $2.00.

More Security With FALSE TEETH

At Any Time

Don't be so afraid that your false teeth will come loose or drop just at the wrong time. For more security and more comfort, just spritzle a little PASTEREX on your plates. PASTEREX holds both uppers and lowers in place longer. Makes your teeth feel like they were never out. PASTEREX is available in your favorite drug and toiletry counter. $2.00. It is essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get PASTEREX.

WOMEN SUFFER WITH BLADDER IRRITATION

Common Kidney or bladder irritations affect twice as many women as men, often causing tenderness and nervousness from frequent, burning, itching urination. Fortunately, you may take sleep and have headaches, backaches and feel old. CYSTEX is prescribed. In such cases, CYSTEX usually brings relaxing comfort by curbing uric acid in urine, and easing pain. Get CYSTEX at drugstores today.
