Filipino Students Riot

MANILA (UPI)—Mobs of students rioted in front of the U.S. Embassy tonight shortly after the government officials protested the court martial acquittal of a U.S. sailor on charges he killed a Filipino. The government called for renegotiation of the entire U.S.-Philippines military bases agreement.

Second demonstration of the week used wooden and bamboo staves and stones to try to force the government to leave the embassy. They were protesting the acquittal Sept. 23 of Gunnery Mate JC Michel, 24, of Phoenix, Ariz., in the fatal shooting of a Filipino rifle range worker.

Acting Foreign Secretary Jose D. Ingles had delivered a strongly worded protest note saying that renegotiation of the bases agreement was necessary "to remove other causes of friction brought about by the presence of American military bases in the Philippines." He asked that Michel be tried by a Philippine court.

At least eight youths were injured when police beat them back with truncheons during a 10-minute scuffle at the embassy. Some students carried flaming torches and others were armed with three-foot staves.

The same group of demonstrators also rioted in front of the embassy Monday night and were similarly driven back by the truncheon-wielding police who fired warning shots into the air.

A MELTED CUP and a pan in the oven were all that was left Thursday after fire raged through a Twin Falls residence. Jim Corak, whose family occupied the small frame home, searched the house late Thursday in an attempt to salvage something, but the two damaged items were all he could find. The house was insured, but its contents were not.

Fire Leaves Parents, 3 Children Homeless Here

Everything is gone. We don't even have a toothbrush," Jim Corak walked around his home at 305 Madrin St. and looked at the damage. It was gutted by flames Thursday afternoon.

"What are you going to do?" he was asked.

"I don't know. I don't know," Mr. Corak and his wife were working when the fire started on the back porch of the small frame home. Their three children were with a babysitter.

Firemen from the Twin Falls County Mutual Fire Protection Association responded to the call and fought the fire for an hour. They remained at the scene several hours, pouring water onto smoking ruins and checking for possible signs of a fresh outbreak.

Frank Booth of Mountain States Realty handles the rental house and Thursday was busy attempting to get aid for the family.

"I've contacted the Red Cross and Salvation Army and they will give all the help they can," he said.

Mr. Corak stayed behind Thursday to see if there was anything that could be salvaged from the ruins. It was nearly dark when he gave up the job. The house was insured, but there was no insurance on its contents, Mr. Booth said.

Senate Shuns Plea On Gun-Control Law

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Despite emotional oratory of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the brother of two assassination victims, the Senate voted 45-10 Thursday to exempt some ammunition sales from the 1968 Gun Control Act.

The vote approved an amendment in a tax bill which would scrap the law's requirement that a buyer of some rifle and shotgun ammunition provide his name, address, age and identification to the dealer.

The amendment was sponsored by Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, with the support of 46 other senators. He argued that requiring a dealer to take down the information merely harassed apartment and dealers without deterring criminals from buying ammunition.

Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, wanted a thick ban on purchases from Utah residents objecting to the requirement.

Kennedy, in supporting a measure offered by Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., to kill Bennett's amendment, did not mention the slayings of his brothers.

John F. Kennedy and Robert F. Kennedy.

Rather, he argued in the procedural terms the Senate understood—best—that Bennett's amendment was inappropriate for a tax bill, that Dodd's juvenile delinquency subcommittee should first hold hearings, that the Senate should not undo what it had done only 10 months previously when it passed the gun law.

Later, the tax bill, with the amendment amendment, passed on a voice vote.

Bennett replied that if his proposal had been offered as a separate bill it would have been blocked in the House by the chairman of the Judiciary Committee, Brooklyn Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., a strong exponent of gun control legislation.

Sen. George C. Murphy, R-Calif., argued that the gun control regulations adopted by the Treasury Department required an ammunition dealer to lose $2.50 in employees' time and paperwork to sell a 75-cent box of .22-caliber ammunition.

SCCAA To Receive Increase In Budget

The South Central Community Action Agency received official word Thursday it will receive an additional $25,000 for the next fiscal year's operating budget.

Peter Wondt, Kansas City, Mo., regional supervisor for the Office of Economic Opportunity, visited the local office Thursday and reviewed its programs, plans and present operation.

Larry Mack, agency director, said Mr. Wondt seemed pleased with the operation. He noted the SCCAA is the only agency in the state that will receive an increase in operating funds. The other agencies will be cut 5 percent on Jan. 1, he said.

Mr. Mack said the agency plans to use the additional funds to build a stronger community worker program. He said more people are needed to make contact with the low income people.

"This is where the emphasis should be, instead of building a larger superstructure," Mr. Mack said. He said additional people are needed at the grassroots level. With the new funds he could add some people on the administrative level, but a staff reduction would mean less staff workers are the real need.

The director pointed out these funds are strictly for operation. He said the various programs are funded through different titles and acts.

Sen. Jackson Urges Policy On Troops

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., called today for a joint session of the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees to draft a policy on Vietnam troop withdrawals.

Jackson, a key member of the Senate Select Committee, warned that another reauthorization bill introduced in recent days was giving "confusing signals" to Hanoi and suggested a joint meeting of the two powerful committees to work out an agreement with the Nixon administration on a withdrawal resolution.

Abrams Says Reds 'Losing Viet Grip'

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. commander in Vietnam said the grip of the enemy is being loosened by his command. He gave 80 river patrol boats to the South Vietnamese today in the biggest turnover of military hardware of the war.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams made his optimistic assessment at an American artillery base north of Saigon. The U.S. Army spokesman said. He added:

"The Viet Cong apparatus is being ground up.

"The turnover of the 872 motorized boats to the 329 American sailors—for other units in Vietnam or to be sent home if their 12-month tours of duty were almost up.

"A total of 229 U.S. Navy vessels now have been given to the South Vietnamese in the 'Vietnamization' process.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has given top priority in Vietnam to the U.S. Army's Army said. He added:

"The level of fighting remained low, with a total of 112 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese reported hardware of the war.

"An American killed and 19 wounded.

"U.S. paratroopers who are supporting Marines along the Demilitarized Zone fought one of several small skirmishes listed in today's communique.

"Spokesmen for the American Military Command said the paratroopers killed six guerrilla soldiers in the fight one mile south of the zone Thursday while losing one killed and one wounded themselves.

"The fight followed by 16 hours a North Vietnamese mortar and ground attack in the same vicinity that killed eight U.S. Marines and wounded 16. Five guerrilla bodies were found after the battle.

Operations of the 101st Airborne Division have been moved north recently to replace U.S. Marines who have been withdrawn under President Nixon's plan to roll out 35,000 more GIs by Dec. 15.

Agnew Says Nixon Forced Into Oil Pact

DALLAS (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew told Texas Republicans Thursday a light breeze of Nixon was forced to go along with the oil depletion allowance cut to save his tax reform bill.

"I wish to frank. There is only one domestic issue down here, the oil depletion allowance," Agnew said at a $100-a-plate GOP fund raising dinner.

The vice president said Democrats in the House Ways and Means Committee were responsible for the cut to 20 percent.

Utah Woman Dies From Auto Crash

BURLEY — Mrs. Jack (Marjorie) Rowe, Sandy, Utah, died Friday morning at Cassia Memorial Hospital from injuries received in an auto accident last week.

State Patrolman Charles Peugh said Mrs. Rowe was hurt when her car she was driving went out of control and overturned about 8 p.m. Oct. 2 on Highway 305 eight miles south of Malta.

Her daughter, Connie Rose, was hospitalized overnight from the mishap. Mrs. Rose's death certificate lists the fatality this year in Cassia county and the 42nd in Magic Valley.

Survivors include her husband and daughter, both Sandy, Utah. A son was killed last year in a similar crash.

Funeral services are pending at Payne Mortuary, Burley.

Nixon Confers With Humphrey

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon held an unannounced meeting today with Hubert H. Humphrey, his foe in last year's presidential election.

Also attending the meeting in Nixon's White House office was the President's adviser on national security, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, who is one of his principal policy counselors on Vietnam.

BOISE (UPI)—Boise area teachers—some 3,500 strong—concluded their conference today after hearing from the president of the University of Idaho, Dr. Ernest Hartung.

He told the Idaho Education Association members Thursday that social studies teachers are the "front line troops" in teaching attitudes to American youth.

Plea Denied Cassia Interstate Route To Open Soon

NEW YORK (UPI)—A federal court judge has turned down a petition by the Girl Scouts of America to halt the sale of a pop-art poster of a smiling pregnant Girl Scout with the motto "Be Prepared."

The Girl Scouts filed a $1 million damage suit and sought an injunction to prevent the sale of the poster. The poster was produced by the New York City-based poster manufacturer, Inc. of New York.

The suit called for the poster's malicious defamation of the Girl Scouts.

Judge Morris E. Lasker turned down the application for the injunction and said he doubted anyone could defame the Girl Scouts.

Opening of a nearly $10-million section of Interstate highway in Idaho is expected by Nov. 1. Ellis Mathes, Department of Highways Engineer told a delegation of Minidoka and Cassia County delegates Thursday.

Approximately 35 community leaders from the two counties accompanied highway officials on a tour of the 46.5-mile section of Interstate from Cotterell to the Utah state line. The tour also extended some five miles into Utah where a project by Utah joins the Idaho route to complete Interstate 80N between Idaho and Utah points.

The new route, under construction the past three years, included four interchanges and a large area of four-lane divided highway. About 20 miles remain in two lanes at the present time. Mr. Mathes said traffic demand does not warrant the four lanes at this time. Right-of-way has been acquired and fencing completed for the addition of two lanes through this section and when demand and financing warrants, he said the other lanes will be added. The state engineer estimated anywhere from two to six years would see the additional construction under way.

Six contractors have worked on the 46.3 mile construction, the longest single Interstate project now completed in Idaho. Howard Johnson, district engineer reported.

The new route, he said, cuts about 12 miles from the previous highway, U. S. 30 S., but it will add a great time saving to this because of a better road condition and a speed limit of 70 miles per hour, compared to 50 and 60 on the old route.

Under the new construction, both Malla and Strevell are bypassed, with the new road swinging north of U. S. 30, entering Utah about five miles from Spewville.

Mr. Mathes said the road See HIGHWAY, Pg. 2, Col. 2

Nixon Cites 'Crisis' In U.S. Crime

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Against the grim backdrop of a robbery in a grade school classroom and a motorist killed by a manhole cover tossed from a highway overpass, President Nixon took a group of bipartisan congressmen Thursday that crime in Washington has reached "crisis proportions."

With District Police Chief Jerry V. Wilson at his side, Nixon said the crime problem in the nation's capitol was "explosive and disgraceful."

A few hours earlier, Pedro F. Stenza, 37, a father-of-six, was killed when a manhole cover was dropped onto his small foreign car from a highway overpass. Three teen-agers were arrested.

Several days ago, a robber burst into a third grade classroom in Washington, threatened the children and finally vanished with the $2 the teacher had in her pocketbook.

Sugar Beet Acreage Allotment Reported

The Department of Agriculture has announced the 1970 sugar beet acreage allotment of 178,093 acres for Idaho, the second largest beet producing state in the nation, topped only by California.

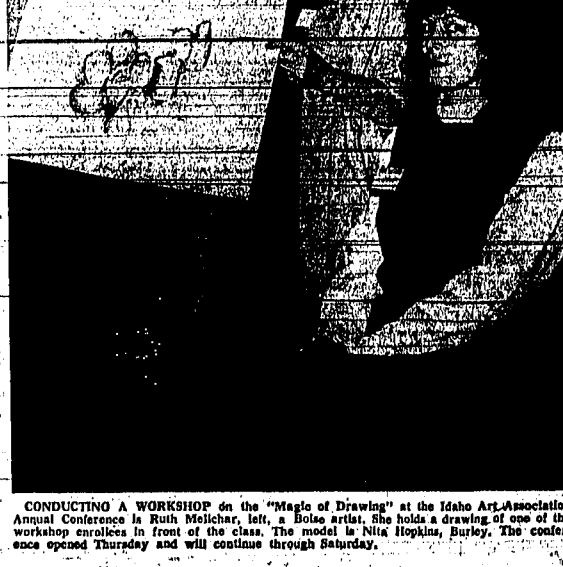

Jack Claiborn Sr., president of the Idaho Sugar Beet Growers Association, said at a recent hearing, sugar beet growers favored a 1,425,000-acre allotment, but the Department of Agriculture set the allotment at 1,450,000 acres. This compares to 1,660,000 acres planted in 1969.

Mr. Claiborn said the 1969 estimated production nationally is 3,770,000 tons of sugar and the marketing quota is for 3,210,000 tons of sugar, thus resulting in a surplus of sugar.

In Idaho, the 1969 acreage was 209,971, and 100,002 for the 1968 crop.

The reduction in the acreage amounts to 12.65 per cent nationwide, according to the National Sugarbeet Growers Federation newsletter.

The federation states another showdown is shaping up on the payment limitations—limits on key House members who oppose payment limitations predict that the Comite-Idaho forces will be successful in their efforts to instruct the House conference to insist on the $20,000 limitation.

GOODING — The Gooding County commissioners have called for a bond issue to construct a new Gooding County Courthouse to replace the old courthouse which was destroyed by fire in February, 1968. Bids on the $350,000 structure will be opened Nov. 14, 1969. The courthouse will be built on land given to the county by the Thompson family in 1924 for the purpose of building a new courthouse. The county has never had a courthouse building of its own. The one used from 1914 until 1958 was given to the city of Gooding and leased to the county by Frank R. Gooding. The Thompson family gave the county a full-city-block in February, 1968, to construct a courthouse, but details and a subsequent bond issue could not be agreed upon and the land now sits between the city and Seventh Streets has been used as a city park since. The decision by the commissioners at this time was hastened by a threatened court order by District Judge Charles Scoggins and by continued jail breaks at the temporary quarters at the TB hospital which have been occupied by the county since the 1956 fire. Finances have plagued the commissioners in reaching a decision to build a new courthouse, but the commissioners feel that these problems have been solved and there will be no bond issue at this time to build the $350,000 structure. Architects for the new building are Watson and Leatham, Boise, Idaho.

Northern Route Of Highway OK'd

GLENN'S FERRY — The Glenns Ferry City Council has gone on record to endorse the controversial northern routing of Interstate 80-N around Glenns Ferry, and ordered the Idaho Highway Department notified of their decision. The Idaho Highway Department has endorsed a route which would take the Interstate highway through the city, bisecting the community, claiming a wide swath of property. The northern route, however, has been opposed by residents of the Hammett area to the west of Glenns Ferry.

Idea That New Law Requires Magistrates To Have Law Degree Called Misconception

Under the new Idaho court reform legislation, magistrates need not be practicing attorneys, according to Reed P. Maughan, Twin Falls Justice of the Peace and a director of the Idaho State Magistrates Association.

Judge Maughan said Idahoans apparently misunderstand the intent of the new law, which abolishes probate judges and substitutes the magistrates.

Magistrates of Idaho lower courts must be qualified electors of the county in which they are elected, must reside in their

Mr. Webb said the basic hope of the legislation was originally to have newly appointed magistrates with law degrees. However, he said this would have made it difficult to get legislative approval and the specific stipulation was eliminated.

It is the hope, he said, that either experienced magistrates or those with legal background will be appointed. The law also spells out a specific training session that all new magistrates must attend, which Mr. Webb said is part of the proposal to make certain persons holding magistrate positions do have legal training.

There was no thought, he said, of prohibiting present justices of the peace or probate judges from being appointed in the new magistrate system.

Sentencing Dates Set In Burley Cases

BURLEY — One man was sentenced and dates set for sentencing in two other cases heard this week by District Judge Sherman Bellwood.

Ray L. Messinger, Declo, will be sentenced by Judge Sherman Bellwood at 10 a.m. Nov. 3 for second degree murder charge. Messinger pleaded guilty to this charge when he appeared with his attorney, Herman Bedke, public defender. He earlier was charged with first degree murder following the June 13 shooting death of his wife and pleaded innocent to that charge. A presentence investigation was ordered and bond set at $10,000, which was not posted.

W. Lloyd Clawson was sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary for writing a no-account check. Sentence first was withheld and he was placed on probation but on Sept. 18 Clawson issued another no-account check in violation of his probation.

Sentencing has been set for 10 a.m. Oct. 20 for James J. Klor, 18, charged with illegal possession of marijuana. A presentence investigation was ordered by Judge Bellwood and bond of $500, which has been posted, was continued. Klor, who pleaded guilty, appeared without counsel.

Tax Group Okays House Bill No. 304

GOODING — The Gooding Chapter of the Idaho Tax Equality Association has gone on record opposing the action of the Idaho Association of County Commissioners and Clerks which at its state convention in Burley called for repeal of House Bill No. 304.

The tax equality group favors this bill which limits increase in taxation by any municipal or city taxing unit to no more than 4 per cent over that year.

Members also endorse an elective State Tax Commission with members directly responsible to the electorate.

It was pointed out at a meeting at the Stop Cafe that there is some misunderstanding about the replacement of the inventory tax with the state sales tax. The phasout percentages are set up to replace more taxes than the inventory phasout is taking from local tax units. As the sales tax collections increase, money available to replace the inventory tax also will increase, officers of the group noted.

Tax Group Okays House Bill No. 304

The question was raised at the last city council meeting when Les Morgan, councilman, asked if the city fathers could be held liable for unpaid bills if they were approved for payment when money was not available. Kent Church, city attorney, advised them they would not be held responsible.

The city clerk was instructed to provide each councilman with a monthly report of the amount of unpaid bills and how long they were overdue.

Election judges and clerks were approved for the Nov. 4 city election. Precinct No. 1 will vote at the Episcopal church, 2000 Oakley Ave.; precinct 2 at Masonic Lodge, 1519 Overland Ave., and precinct 3, Pentecostal church, 959 Yale Ave.

Jack Keen, city recreation director, reported gate receipts from the city swimming pool increased this year. He recommended that two water heaters for the bathing portion of the pool be purchased.

John Croft questioned the city's cost on the extension of 17th Street behind Burley High School. Mayor Joe Peters said he will meet with Dale Nelson, county superintendent, regarding the joint project.

Building permits were approved for Don Worthington, Dean Draper, Glenn Hall and Phillip Heiner. A beer and motel license was granted to Willard Wood, president of the Ramada Inn, Harlan Jensen, 1187 E. Main St., was granted a trailer park renewal license.

Dedication Of Scout Camp Is Postponed

The official dedication of Camp T. E. Ronch, the Boy Scout camp on the Snake River below Buhl, has been postponed.

Al Hutchins, assistant Scout executive, said the dedication will have to be held at a later date. The ceremonies were originally set for Sept. 20, but construction details have slowed the work.

Mr. Hutchins was unable to say if the dedication will be held this fall or next spring.

The land was given to the Snake River Area Council by the Idaho Power Corp. to develop as a Scout camp. The camp has been in limited use for about a year.

Popular Side

Washington is a place where enough words—or the right words—have a kind of magic. Let a snappy slogan come along, the chant be picked up by enough Congressmen, and presto, the country is united in support of something it doesn't need, want or understand.
Just now the magic words are one man—one vote and direct popular election of the President. Despite the obvious defects in the system, there is no voice raised against it for fear that it be misinterpreted as against holy democracy.
Both sides of the House espoused its cause. Now the leaders on both sides of the Senate have endorsed direct popular voting, without regard to national vote qualification, or registration, or insurance against theft of ballots and other practiced means of setting aside the will of the people.
And President Nixon now says that House approval of the bill to eliminate the Electoral College and set up the direct popular vote has created a situation that "unless the Senate follows the lead of the House, all opportunity for reform will be lost this year and possibly for years to come."
Nixon originally proposed awarding electoral votes on the basis of the popular vote in congressional districts. The House rejected that plan in 1959 although it would preserve the one man-one vote concept and, more important, would have kept our historic federal union of states pattern.
There is a consensus that the Electoral College should go. But to get rid of it, we don't have to vio-

WASHINGTON — The Army is telling Congress that the much criticized Sheridan "tank" is performing well in the rice paddies of Vietnam.
Two squadrons — about 60 of the Sheridans, were sent to Vietnam for field testing January. After the 90-day test period, U. S. commanders there asked that Sheridans be supplied to all cavalry reconnaissance squadrons.

The Army decided to comply with that request and, while the exact deployment plans are classified, Gen. A. W. Betts, the Army chief of research and development, has said the Sheridan force in Vietnam will number "in the hundreds" when deliveries are complete.

That deployment may puzzle some critics of the so-called Democratic Study Group. As recently as Sept. 25, at the request of Rep. Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., the Congressional Record carried a DSG analysis asserting that there were "no combat operational tanks yet available."
The DSG budget analysis reported that "a few" Sheridans were "available" modified early this year and sent conditionally to Vietnam to demonstrate the vehicle's effectiveness. The analysis is concluded that there was no evidence that the Sheridan was worth further expenditures.

from Vietnam is that the Sheridan is "the best vehicle available for use in armored cavalry units," and commanders of units in Vietnam request the vehicle.
"They have performed well," says Maj. Gen. H. A. Milley Jr., still unpublished testimony. "Their big gun is very useful against bunkers and other enemy strongpoints."
"They have high cross-country mobility. The commander in Vietnam is satisfied and was his full authorization as fast as we can ship them to him," Milley declared.
"I submit," adds research chief Betts, "in view of the fact that we are now using the Sheridan in Vietnam very effectively, we have corrected all the major problems."
While the e's statements were made behind closed doors, it is hard to believe that Rep. Fraser, and the Democratic Study Group could not have learned of the Army's weeks old deployment decision and the views of Army experts by late September if they had wished to do so.
Note: The 11th Mechanized Cavalry in Vietnam, commanded by Col. George S. Patton III, much decorated son of the famous World War II tank strategist, included a squadron of the Sheridans.
At the request of field commanders in Europe, Sheridan vehicles deployed there are to include rangefinders which employ a laser beam. These M-50 battle tanks will be similarly equipped.
The Army has already developed a tripod-mounted laser rangefinder for artillery. Mounting rangefinders on Sheridan vehicles, present no real problem, in the view of Army logistic experts.
Gen. Milley describes the operation of the laser rangefinder this way:
"It projects a high-speed beam of light from a ruby crystal. As measured by the time of travel for a single pulse to reach a target and return.
"This time interval is related to distance, and we are thus able to determine ranges out to about 5,000 meters with an accuracy of plus or minus 7 meters.
"The beam is narrow, but can cause eye damage to a person directly in the beam's path."

ANDREW TULLY
Sense Of Having Been There

WASHINGTON — The French call it deja vu — a sense of having been there before. Americans say "Here we go again!" and should be saying that about the "non-war" the United States is fighting in the little Southeast Asian Kingdom of Laos.
Every scrap of intelligence reaching President Nixon's desk, most of it from the Central Intelligence Agency, warns him that Laos will fall to the Communist forces of China and North Vietnam unless the U.S. "substantially" increases its involvement. The word "dominate" is heard again in Washington's corridors of power, only this time the tipping domino is Laos instead of South Vietnam.
As a matter of policy, both the CIA and the Defense Intelligence Agency have told the President that Laos now must be considered part of the Vietnam War. That is to say, if the U.S. still is determined to save South Vietnam from the Communists, it must pay more military attention to the clandestine fighting in Laos. Indeed, in the fashion of an era which has seen the nation's spy shops helping to make foreign policy, the DIA is virtually demanding that Washington dispatch regular combat troops to that landlocked little country.
"With much of the United States up in arms over the fighting in Vietnam, it would seem preposterous that President Nixon should increase our military involvement in Southeast Asia. But taken in the context of U.S. aims in the neighborhood, the argument of the intelligence people has the quality of logic. Indisputably, the future of Laos greatly depends on the fate of South Vietnam. Conversely, South Vietnam's fate — or the fate of the Paris peace talks — depends to a large extent on whether we can keep the Communists from overrunning Laos.
In short, say the CIA and DIA, peace is impossible in the area unless a military balance of power is achieved, and that balance can be achieved only by an escalation of the U.S. contribution in Laos.
The activity in Laos today is called a secret war. But there's nothing so ruddy secret about it. It is common knowledge that the U.S. government, through the employment of its regular American forces and military airplanes, is aiding the Laotian regime in defending itself against Red Chinese and North Vietnamese forces.
So-called CIA "specialists" are advising the Laotian guerrillas in the employment of aerial bombers from aircraft carriers in the Tonkin Gulf and from Thailand are attacking the Ho Chi Minh trail in the Laotian panhandle and giving tactical support to Laotian army units. Some on-the-spot observers long have insisted that certain areas of Laos are being bombed more heavily and more intensely than any section of North Vietnam was before last fall's bombing halt.
These U. S. forces and assorted espionage forces thus have involved this country in the Laotian War almost casually, while attention was riveted on Vietnam. Without their help, Laos almost certainly would now belong to the Communists. Under today's international rules and regulations, however, such involvement is not defined as involvement unless a government officially acknowledges it. This, we have never done, any more than the Red Chinese and North Vietnamese have admitted they have upwards of 100,000 troops in the tiny kingdom.

Laos' Prince Souvanna Phouma has said a number of times he would not ask for official U.S. troops because such intervention would cause the Communists to overrun his country. He wants more military assistance — meaning more irregulars and advisers and more equipment.
But with his spy bosses demanding formal intervention, Richard Nixon faces a dilemma. He must decide shortly whether to increase American participation in the Laotian fighting, or try to make do with the present informal arrangement. Given the present mood of the American people, he'd be committing political suicide by dispatching U.S. troops to another Southeast Asian country. But if his intelligence advisers are to be believed, the other course means surrendering Laos and eventually the rest of the neighborhood to the Communists. Why do seemingly sane men run for President?

About Success

WASHINGTON — I know no one will believe me, but you're just going to have to take my word for it. I met a college student the other day who said that all he wanted out of life was success and financial security.
He asked me not to use his name because he didn't want to embarrass his parents, so I shall call him Illiam.
"Hi!am," I asked him. "Why did you decide to take this revolutionary attitude toward society?"
"I don't know exactly when it happened, it was just one of the rest of the students. I wanted to tear down the school, the society, the establishment. I was just another Communist, and I never questioned why I was doing all the things that were expected of me."
"Then one day I thought to myself, 'There's got to be more to life than getting hit over the head by the cops.' I looked at a read back copies of Forbes. We have a stock market ticker tape in the back of the room, and we get news from the National Assn. of Manufacturers Bulletin."
"What are some of your activities to get more supporters?"
"We sell the Wall Street Journal on campus. We've opened a coffee house. We've got a read back copies of Forbes. We have a stock market ticker tape in the back of the room, and we get news from the National Assn. of Manufacturers Bulletin."
"Hi!am, I know this all sounds great. But it is possible that this success syndrome movement is just a passing fad."
"No, it isn't. I know everyone calls us kooks and weirdos, but we're not. We're just a group of no one. We've already had inquiries from other campuses that want to set up similar chapters, and I wouldn't be surprised if the next few years to see what is now a minority movement become the strongest force in the country. After all, nothing succeeds like success."

Middle East Fever

The fires in the present Middle East crisis have burned for twenty centuries and blazed up anew with establishment of the Israeli republic in 1948.
After the Six-Day War, the Arabs have resorted to a campaign of terrorism and guerrilla fighting, which the Israeli have answered with direct attacks upon Egypt.
The cycle of raid and retaliation is gaining in frequency and intensity, with the danger that the Middle East could erupt into a hotter war, with the threat of the conflagration spreading.
Arabs have struck against El Al Airlines in Athens, Rome and Zurich, and against the U.S. flag, and kidnapped Israeli citizens, and bombed Israeli embassies, airline and shipping offices in Europe.
Israel recognizes it is in a fight for its very life, knowing the Arabs have been stubbornly unwilling to accommodate themselves to Israel's existence.
Russia, chief supplier of arms to Egypt and other Arab countries, has a major share of the responsibility for keeping peace in the Middle East, by exerting a restraining influence upon Egypt, the rallying point of Israeli enmity.
It is by no means certain that the United States will act in time for the change to be effective in 1972, assuming it obtains the required two-thirds majority in the Senate.
It is a fact that the present system has worked well for the nation, although in a few instances, a minority candidate became president. One was Abraham Lincoln, acclaimed by many as our greatest.
The present effort is to shut out a third party from an effective role. This is popular now, when the third party means George Wallace. What if, at some time, it means another Lincoln?

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Bland Diet

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please print a bland diet menu. I understand that, when you are on a bland diet, you must eat the same thing for lunch and dinner every day. Is this correct?
No, that's not correct. You can have plenty of variety with a bland diet, and eating the same thing on two meals each day would be tiresome and of no help.
"Bland" means a gentle, smooth, soothing. Therefore a bland diet is one which is soothing, not harsh or irritating. It's a matter of knowing what not to eat. Other than that, eat what you like, so long as it agrees with you.
The things to avoid are: irritating or "hot" items including such condiments as pepper, hot sauces, and the like. Avoid foods with high residual — that is, with a lot of content which cannot be digested. This includes corn, bran products, and seeds. Avoid the bran, outer covering of kernels of corn, and the seeds are scratchy and irritating, not to mention the fact that they contain certain oils or irritants, such as onions, radishes, or vegetables with a "bite" to them and avoid all nuts.
Now, what can you eat? Most meats, fish, and fowl have low residual, so you have ample variety in that direction.
Milk, cream and such dairy products are good.
Baked goods (bread, cakes, cookies) are good — but avoid any that contain bran, and avoid any containing nuts. Nut flours are irritating.
Remember that cooking softens the fibers of most vegetables, and if they are pared besides, they breaking up the fibers, many of them will be well tolerated by a person on a bland diet. The same is true with many fruits. Applesauce and pureed fruits usually cause no trouble, if seeds can be strained

MR. SPECTATOR
Saturday And Sunday

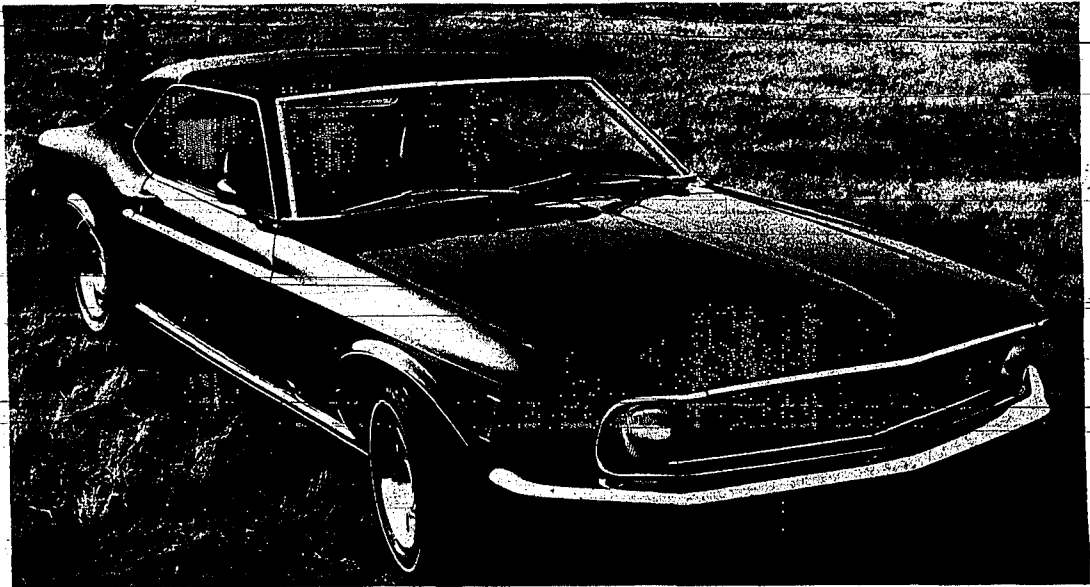

Saturday and Sunday are two special days. Mr. Spectator will not mix up the two but will take them one at a time in my information. So here goes with Saturday:
Saturday will be National Newspaper Day.
Motivation is what makes a newspaper go, like anybody else. What counts is what happens to him in working his route.
If there's good stuff in him, he cannot help showing day by day in such qualities as dependability, courtesy and selflessness. He meets all sorts of people, early in the morning, and he totally unlike the chief clerk he has known — as a son of his parents or as a pupil of his teachers.
As a young businessman he learns to know adults who have no emotional involvement with him. Impersonally, they expect good service when they pay for it. Friendships will be formed on a basis of business performance — and cemented by the boy's extra care with the paper on rainy days.
He learns that prompt-pay customers. Sometimes he comes up against a real chent or a mean dog in a front yard. He learns and learns and learns.
He is also very important to this paper. We salute him today with special respect and with all best wishes.
And then let's discuss Sunday:
The greatness of Christopher Columbus was too much for his contemporaries, who saw him die penniless and unhonored. Out of the universality of homages later generations were to pay his memory there comes to mind Swift's observation: "When a true genius appears in the world, you may know him by

Dear Abby
By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My first husband died, leaving me with two daughters, ages 2 and 6. I stayed single for six years. We lived with my parents while I worked, so naturally the girls are spoiled rotten.

My problem: About a year ago I married a wonderful man who had never been married before. "We lived with my parents while I worked, so naturally the girls are spoiled rotten." Why, "naturally"? Many working mothers have instilled respect and discipline in their children, so don't blame your parents.

From what you say, you're daughters are out of your control, so I advise professional counseling. Inquire of their school principal. Otherwise, face the alternative: Your daughters will force you to choose between them and your good husband. Or your husband will find life with you and your daughters intolerable and HE will make a choice, and take a walk. And who could blame him?

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a salesman and he is out of town for a week at a time. He usually calls me twice during the week to find out how things are at home. I appreciate these calls, but I never know when to expect them.

This morning he called me at 7 a.m. He said he had been trying to reach me since 8 o'clock last night, and was worried half out of his mind.

Last evening my neighbor and I took our children to the circus, after which we had coffee at her house and I stayed to visit for about an hour. When I came right home and I went to bed, I must have slept so soundly I didn't even hear the phone ring.

"SURE GLAD Columbus discovered America so we can enjoy spaghetti!" Good reasoning? Well Robert Hanchey, left, and Don Yoder think so and appear to be greatly enjoying their spaghetti. This may not be the best reasoning, but the YWCA feels Sunday, Columbus Day, is excellent for having a spaghetti dinner. The public is invited to attend and serving will be from noon to 7 p.m. The menu includes all the spaghetti you can eat and all the trimmings. Families are especially welcome. Tickets for the dinner can be purchased at the door or from any YMCA or YWCA board member.

DEAR NEEDS: First, may I take exception to your statement, "We lived with my parents while I worked, so naturally the girls are spoiled rotten." Why, "naturally"? Many working mothers have instilled respect and discipline in their children, so don't blame your parents.

Donald Youtz, Twin Falls county agent, says the clinic will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the academic building at College of Southern Idaho and films of the live 4-H and FFA beef animals will be shown along with carcass information. A discussion and comments will be made by Herschel Boydston, head of the agricultural department, College of Southern Idaho, and Otto Florence Jr., general manager of Independent Meat Co. Mr. Youtz said this will be an outstanding educational event and will give a person the opportunity to improve his efficiency in comparing live animals with carcass grades. Anyone interested is urged to attend, whether 4-H'er, FFA member or an adult.

Those present will be given the opportunity to make a statement concerning how the springs should be developed, in what way and any other information regarding the springs they feel should be brought to the attention of the department.

Best way to beat cheatgrass,

mustard and shepherdspurse in your alfalfa is with a spray, this fall, of Princep brand of simazine herbicide. With Princep, you can turn a field of weedy alfalfa into a clean stand again. You get more TDN value from your hay. Reduce off-flavor problems in milk and give that stand a longer, more-vigorous life-span. You can spray Princep anytime after the first killing frost. Winter moisture carries Princep down into the soil to pick off weeds as they germinate... right through next spring and summer. Not only does Princep get cheatgrass (June grass), mustard, and shepherdspurse, it gets most other annual broadleaf and grassy weeds as well. Weeds that can infest, take over and eventually ruin a good alfalfa stand. Your return on the investment in one spray of Princep is clear cut. Better quality hay which will help you get more pounds of milk if you're a dairy man... a higher daily rate gain if you're raising cattle... cleaner, higher quality hay if you're selling the crop. So make this the year you turn your weedy alfalfa into pure alfalfa again... with Princep. Goigy Agricultural Chemicals, Division of Goigy Chemical Corp., Saw Mill River Road, Ardaley, N.Y. 10502. Five Valley 4-H'ers Win Chicago Trip

Five Magic Valley 4-H'ers, for their outstanding 4-H work, have been named winners of trips to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago from Nov. 30-Dec. 4.

CLIVE STRONG

LENORA ANDERSON

... are the five Magic Valley 4-H'ers winning trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago Nov. 30-Dec. 4.

Denise Stutzman, Shoshoni, 17; Tim Mink, Kirk Webb and Clive Strong, all Wendell, and Lenora Anderson, Glenns Ferry.

Along Fences And Canals

Gene Turner, Tuttle, and his father, Olen Turner, of the Shoshone community have finished cutting corn for silage at both ranches.

Some $250 damage resulted to sheepsheds at the Glenn Patterson ranch at Tuttle. Wendell firemen kept the blaze from spreading to other sheds and haystacks.

Charles Sluder has completed work on a new stock pond at the Melvin Pope ranch west of Richfield. Norlyn Pope farmed the land for his father this summer.

Design, Order, Plant Next Spring's Bulb Garden Now

MOSCOW—"Right now is the time to design and plant next year's bulb garden," advises W. Snyder, horticulturist and landscape architect at the University of Idaho.

"There's a bulb for almost any effect you want. However, when you're browsing in the bulb catalogs, use restraint," notes Snyder. He suggests choosing a few varieties for mass groupings.

For special effects, Snyder recommends planting smaller flower narcissi under small trees or in drifts on lightly shaded slopes. Tall, straight-stemmed tulips are dramatic clusters in borders, a moon of white in front of evergreens.

"Now you can plant your bulbs with their tips three to four inches deep. Bulbs must not touch manure because it may cause rot and disease. One last thing to do is to mulch lightly after the ground freezes, adds Snyder.

Lenora, 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Anderson, Glenns Ferry. General Foods is sponsoring her trip.

She enrolled in food and nutrition projects six of her nine years in 4-H. She says "by cooking for my family, I learned to plan nutritious meals, manage my time and manage our food budget. She is now majoring in home economics at the University of Idaho where she wants to "learn more about food and nutrition and then be able to teach others."

Lenora's mother, Mrs. Virginia Anderson, was in 4-H when she was in high school and attended the National 4-H Club Congress then and her older sister, Karen, attended the national meeting in 1969.

Clive's son, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Webb, has had horse projects each of his seven years in 4-H. He started with a young horse, learning how to feed and groom it, and eventually how to break it. He now helps his father break horses for other people as well as having several family horses to train.

Clive Strong, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Strong, Wendell, is winner of a state award in 4-H conservation projects, a study of 11 1/2 acres of poplars he wants to see if pruning, weeding, salvage cutting and controlled grazing will increase the yield of the trees.

"The result of my work won't be fully seen for a few years," he says, but thinks these practices are helping tree growth.

Clive also has been a member of the Miscellaneous 4-H Club. Lenora (Lennie) Anderson's 4-H food projects provided her family with desserts every night for three months and freshly-baked bread all one winter and helped to gain the knowl-

DISCUSSING IRRIGATION methods are Dr. Edmud Gornat, left, senior research assistant of the Irrigation Department at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, Israel, and Dr. Marvin Jensen, director of the Snake River Conservation Research Center at Kimberly. Dr. Gornat is here in the United States looking at automatic irrigation systems.

Israeli Researcher Tells About New Irrigation Method Used In That Country

Israel has developed a new irrigation technique that seems to be working very well in that arid country and could also apply to some parts of this country.

Dr. Baruch Gornat, senior research assistant of the Irrigation Department at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, visited recently with the staff of the Snake River Conservation Research Center at Kimberly and explained to them how this new irrigation method works.

He said this new method is drip irrigation and is essentially furrow irrigation with the addition of three important features. It is furrow irrigation with no water flowing in the furrows. The significance of this is that there is no need for accurate leveling - a complicated and expensive practice. Furthermore, there is no erosion due to flowing water.

Water distribution is uniform and accurate. The problem of uneven water distribution along the furrow is a common one, especially in the coarser textured soils. The drip irrigation method guarantees that each nozzle discharges exactly the same amount of water. Thus, there is a saving of water and a certainty in its uniform application.

In drip irrigation there is no surplus waste at the end of the furrow, which in furrow irrigation continues to increase as the soil's infiltration rate decreases. Dr. Gornat said plastic pipe with trickle heads is laid in the furrows of the field. The water is piped to the fields, flowed through the pipes and trickle or drip through the heads, soaking the soil around the plants.

Dr. Gornat said the drip irrigation in Israel has now developed farms beyond the stage of an experimental system. In fact, he said, drip irrigation systems have already been installed in commercial fields extending over some 2,000 acres and there is a strong trend towards considerable expansion of areas irrigated by this system.

He said the method is being used in the Arava desert of Israel and the agriculture of the region is based on off-season crop production. The main growing season is between August and April. The annual rainfall ranges from 8 to 1.6 inches and the amount of effective rainfall is essentially zero.

He stopped here in Idaho to visit with Dr. Marvin Jensen, director of the Snake River Conservation Research Center, who is noted throughout the country for his work on irrigation. Dr. Jensen noted that this drip irrigation method could be valuable to the highly arid places in this country.

Control For Black Widow Spider Listed

The Twin Falls County agent's office has received several calls concerning Black Widow spiders.

Donald Youtz, county agent, says most species of spiders are harmless to humans. They destroy household pests that are injurious or destructive and are therefore beneficial.

A dangerous species, however, and one to watch out for, said Mr. Youtz, is the Black Widow spider. He said the female of this species is about one-half inch long and shiny black. The front and back parts of the body are globular. The legs are long and slender. It usually has a red, orange or brownish yellow mark, shaped like an hourglass, on the underside, but sometimes this marking is of a different size or absent.

Black widows are not aggressive; they are shy, but will bite ineffectively when touched or threatened. The female will inflict a seriously poisonous bite which can be fatal.

The bite causes extreme pain which usually extends to the abdominal muscles, where it localizes. A person bitten by this spider should call a doctor immediately.

Mr. Youtz said black widow spiders seldom appear in living quarters of homes, but often are found in basements, basement window wells, beneath lawn benches or porches and in garages, tool sheds, old lumber piles, trash piles, sand boxes and floor joists and between the shrubbery and foundation of the house.

Mr. Youtz said the following treatment to control black widows may be used to control all spiders in the home.

First, remove loose bricks, wood, tile or trash from around the yard or basement where the spiders may live or hide. Second, use a stick or broom to knock down webs, spiders and egg sacs. Crush them underfoot.

Third, apply a pesticide to spider-infested areas. Use household spray containing lindane, malathion or ronnel.

Do not spray spiders overhead. A spider hit by the spray may drop straight down, but will be capable of biting for some time.

Green Giant At Buhl Ends Corn Processing Season

BUHL — The largest seasonal corn pack of the Green Giant company during which over 100 million pounds of corn was processed, has been completed, according to Dexter Rogers, office superintendent of the Buhl plant.

The 1969 pack began July 30 and during the two-month pack period only one day shift and one night shift were missed until the last few days when the night shift was discontinued.

The number of acres harvested was just slightly less than 9,000, about 1,500 less than in 1968. Increased tonnage, due to better growing conditions, made this year's pack comparable to the 1968 pack.

This season marked the phase-out of the four-row pickers and all picking operations were handled by the 25 two-row pickers. Six new corn double-huskers installed last year increased the number of double-huskers in operation this season to 24.

Rogers said the local plant set a record production mark for a single 24-hour period with 51,889 cases of processed corn.

He said Green Giant corn planting is systematically charted on the heat unit principle, to spread the period during which fields of corn reach prime condition. Plantings are spaced through the first of May to the middle of June. Records of temperature or summer heat indicate the progress of the plantings.

As each field ripens, Rogers said, daily samples are taken to the cannery to determine exactly the proper date for harvesting. When tests show that the corn has reached the right degree of moisture content, the harvesting begins. Average time from the field to the can is less than five hours. In the plant the corn is processed at about 800 cans per minute.

The Buhl plant processes 7, 12, 17 and 75-ounce cans of corn and the products show up on the market under the Green Giant, Niblets, Molecorn and Kounty Kist labels.

On the next to last day of this year's pack, 325 cases of corn were lost due to a major power failure in the west end of the cannery.

Cabins Built At 4-H Camp Near Ketchum

JEROME — At Quadrant Gulch, 18 miles north of Ketchum, this weekend 4-H leaders and county agents from the nine counties which comprise the South Central 4-H District, were active as four sleeping huts for girls and a cook's quarters began to take shape.

Counties represented in this project are Jerome, Twin Falls, Gooding, Minidoka, Cassia, Lincoln, Blaine, Camas and Elmore.

The two-day work session was at the camp to erect the buildings. The cabins are pre-stressed built by the Volco Builders of Jerome.

The shells for the four cabins and cook's quarters were completed and log cabin siding will need to be put on before winter.

The sleeping cabins will accommodate 16 to 20 girls and will be ready for use by next summer.

Previously the girls slept in tents with wooden floors.

This past summer, Jerome County 4-Hers added to a fund started in Jerome County to build the cook's cabin in memory of Mrs. E. Fuller. The Jerome 4-Hers had a calf project at the Jerome County Fair which provided the necessary remaining funds to finance the cook's cabin.

Minidoka and Gooding Counties raised enough money for cabins and the 4-H Camp Association is financing two cabins. It is hoped that by next summer enough money will be available to build the cabins needed for the boys to sleep in.

number growing to more than 700 during the growing and packing period. Wages during this period are in excess of one-half million dollars.

The Green Giant vegetable processing company, with headquarters at Lesueur, Minn., has operations in Canada and England as well as in this country. The company purchased the local growing and processing business at Buhl in 1949 and the local operation is believed to be the second largest corn-canning facility in existence.

Included on the plant site is a can manufacturing plant which produces almost all the needs of the local cannery and furnishes tin heads for the firm's two plant operations in the state of Washington.

Protect Evergreens From 'Winter Burn' With Leaves

The falling leaves that will be drifting by your window this fall can help protect your evergreens from "winter burn". They can help, that is, if you make the proper use of them.

"Winter burn" is actually damage that occurs when roots are imprisoned in hard, cold soil are unable to replace the moisture lost through the foliage during periods of warm winter weather.

According to the American Association of Nurserymen, a blanket of loosely-placed leaves, brush, and dry grass around the base of the tree or shrub provides just the simple and effective protection needed.

The winter mulch you create when you rake your lawn should be deep enough to store moisture and warmth, but at the same time must be airy so the leaves tend to mat down (as maple leaves will, for instance) and smother the plants.

Arrange the mulch in this layer with bits of brush between them.

Hagerman Grange Hosts Potluck Event

HAGERMAN — The Hagerman Valley Grange hosted a potluck supper for the members of the Hagerman Valley 4-H club recently.

4-H club members were introduced by Mac Henley, club leader. Each boy and girl gave a resume of their project and told what they received at the Gooding County Fair for their endeavors. Parents of the members also were introduced.

The tables were decorated with fall flowers furnished by Mrs. Stanley Hoskovec and Mrs. Nora Clifflord, and apples furnished by Mrs. Edna Pope.

Mrs. Maurice Smith entertained with general vocal selections accompanied by Mrs. Warren Berry.

Changes Tax On Livestock

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has signed a bill changing the method of taxing livestock to a tax on cattle and sheep for each day the animals are in the state.

The per diem tax replaces the inventory tax on livestock levied for the entire year on the owner on the March 1 lien date.

Author Assemblyman Victor V. Voytek, R-Brawley, said the new tax would equalize livestock taxation, which he said was "imposed inequitably," favoring ranchers who own cattle only part of the year. He said ranchers previously also took their cattle out of state on the lien date.

ALL ABOUT HORSE-CHEST-NUTS: You'll have to go some to beat the beauty of a horse chestnut tree in full bloom. Horsechestnuts get their common name from the shape of the large seed pods on the twig when the leaves fall.

Take a look at a twig and you'll see a horse's hoof, with the tiny dot-like scars which resemble the horseshoe nails. In June the flowers resemble miniature Christmas trees, a sight to behold. Within a few days the floral parts fall, leaving strange harvest on the grass.

By the end of summer the fruits are formed, a hanging smooth green globe with blunt spines. In September, the shells crack, scattering a few brown nuts all over the ground. Kids use them for "ammunition" and squirrels eat them.

Take a child out and examine a horsechestnut. Notice the glossy, polished mahogany finish and the smooth gray-brown scar larger than your thumbnail.

CAUTION: The nuts are poisonous, so warn children not to eat them. If you want to start horsechestnuts from seed—take a tip from the squirrels and plant them immediately at a tree they fall. Do not try to store the nuts over winter. If you do, store them in high humidity, which is what happens when a squirrel buries a nut in the ground.

The horse chestnut needs a cold period before they germinate. It's almost impossible to keep them over winter and get any germination the following year if nuts are stored in a jar.

HOW TO WASH CLAY POTS: Home owners who want to wash their clay flower pots should try this trick from a reader: "Just take a big pail of water, place the dirty flower pots in, making sure they're all covered. Let them soak for two or three days. Then wash them with an old rag, rinse in clean water. They'll look like new."

Green Thumb note: Many pots have a whitish crust on the outside. This is hardwater scale (plaster) lather salts, and some scrubbing may be in order to remove this. Wash them with a box of "Flats" (for florists) often harbor harmful organisms. Sterilize these flower pots by making up some household bleach solution (one part to 10 parts of water). Let soak for 20 minutes and this will kill off most surface organisms.

If you want to bake soils, do so at 180 degrees for 1/2 hour. It might be a good idea to mix up a batch of soil (such 1-3 sand, peat and loam) and store it in the cellar for use in winter. Nothing is more miserable than trying to locate (or dig) soil for potting up a plant in winter.

It might also be a good idea to have on hand a bag of vermiculite and perlite to add to your soil mixture. These materials make the mixture loose and help make the plants grow better.

CONTROL FOR CATS AND DOGS: Recently we said this country needs a simple answer to the cat and dog problem in the lawn and garden. One reader wrote: "I have a simple, effective method but hesitate to write for fear of being censured. Now mind you, I like cats and dogs and have had both most of my life, but we don't like having our property used as a toilet. Dogs are supposed to be tied up anyway. So here's my answer: a small rocket siphon which can fire small stones effectively. This does not harm the animals in any way, but they do get the message."

Green Thumb note: Sounds like an effective way, but animal lovers, please don't write an exorcism over on me. Dogs and cats can be a nuisance, even to animal lovers like myself (two own two cats and two dogs). Owners are delinquent, one reader reminds me, adding that dogs should be kept tied up.

GREEN YEW TURN BROWN: Many are concerned about their evergreen yews turning brown in spots, and I'll list a few reasons:

- (1) Female dogburn. (2) If Christmas tree lights were used last December, foliage was burned in spots and is apparent now. (3) Ice injury. If water dripped from eaves, froze, quit after the spot underneath turned brown (some think from quick-frying effect of ice cooking the tissues). (4) Broken tips and branches due to squirrels, wind, ice or snow.

Suggestion: Take a pair of clippers and cut out the brown areas. Yews often start shedding needles from the inside in fall, and this is nothing to worry about. If they're yellow and slightly, take a garden-hose and spray them. The important thing is to keep all evergreens and shrubs well-watered right up until the time the ground freezes. They'll come thru the winter better if you do.

CART OF YOUR FUCHSIA: If your plant has been growing outdoors there are two ways you can bring it thru the winter. First, bring the plant indoors and cut the tips back. Then a root the tips in water or a pot of moist sand.

After rooting, put the cuttings in a pot of soil (1/2 each sand, peat and loam) Grow these in a bright window. (2) If you want to save the parent plant only, trim it back about half and let all new growth come on. In a bright window, it'll be loaded with buds and blossoms.

Next spring you can put your plants in an old nail barrel, planter or window box and enjoy the hanging blossoms.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D. F. of Twin Falls: "Last June I bought two Martha Washington geraniums at a road side stand. They were planted in the garden and have grown well but do not blossom. We want them to grow indoors, but don't know what they need for blossom."

The Martha Washington geranium is a fickle one. Indoors it makes a poor house plant. In a cold winter, it grows where from 50 to 60 degrees for flower bud formation. Above this it seldom sets buds. High temperatures prevent flowers from forming and causes the petals to drop.

Your best bet is to grow it in a cool window with bright light and in a plastic bag set outside in full sun. All geraniums are started alike. Cut the tips out and root them in water or moist sand, or perlite and vermiculite. A lot of folks still pull up the plants, then plant them in a plastic bag and hang them upside down in a basement.

If you want to bake soils, do so at 180 degrees for 1/2 hour. It might be a good idea to mix up a batch of soil (such 1-3 sand, peat and loam) and store it in the cellar for use in winter. Nothing is more miserable than trying to locate (or dig) soil for potting up a plant in winter.

It might also be a good idea to have on hand a bag of vermiculite and perlite to add to your soil mixture. These materials make the mixture loose and help make the plants grow better.

Migratory Waterfowl To Become Legal Targets In Magic Valley Saturday

Duck-and-geese season opens officially at 6:17 a.m. Saturday, marking the start of a run that will last through Jan. 15 in the Magic Valley counties and those designated within the Columbia Basin bonus area. The opening should be about the same as previous years with local population carrying the brunt of the pressure. Some of the early migratory species, such as pintail, might be available in a larger than usual supply on the eastern end of the valley. The daily bag limit within the Columbia basin area, which includes Camas, Blaine, Gooding, Lincoln, Minidoka, Jerome, Cassia and Twin Falls counties is six ducks per day and three geese. Not more than one goose may be of the Ross species. The possession limit after the first day is two ducks and six geese with the one Ross goose restriction still in effect. The species restriction on ducks is not more than two per day and possession may be canvasbacks.

Coot limit remains at 25 per day while the merganser limit is five. Wilson's snipe are legal targets from Oct. 1 through Nov. 29 with the limit being eight per day.

Hunters are reminded that everyone 16 years of age or older must have a current federal migratory bird stamp, which must be signed in ink with the holder's name. Magic Valley's major canal network offers opportunity for pump shooting and the Snake River Game Preserve offers decoy use. Wilson Lake, north of Hazelton, usually is the best on opening weekend for decoy use. The Magic Valley Game public hunting grounds on the Minidoka Wildlife Refuge of fers a chance for both ducks and geese on the water units. Mormon Reservoir, near Fairview, is a good number of geese.

Hunters are reminded the birds should be left in conditions as they are found. Conservation bureaus suggest leaving a fully feathered wing and head to comply with this regulation in case where hunters prefer to field dress birds.

Dave Gambee Traded To Warriors

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Dave Gambee, a 30-year-old basketball player, was traded to the San Francisco Warriors Thursday in exchange for a future draft choice. The 32-year-old Gambee, who has made the rounds of NBA clubs, was picked up from the Detroit Pistons, who held his contract although they had little hopes of his playing for this season. "We are delighted that Dave is joining us," said Warriors owner Franklin Miell. "I feel we have a good team, a genuine contender, and Gambee makes it stronger."

Gambee was at home in Portland, Ore., working for a lumber firm when the Warriors picked him after receiving permission from the Pistons to negotiate with Dave.

"I didn't want to go back to Detroit," said Gambee, who played his college ball at Oregon State. "I have nothing against the Pistons but I wanted my family to stay on the Pacific Coast. The Warriors have a reputation of being a fine organization to play for, and I'm looking forward to playing for Coach Lee." (San Francisco coach) a long time, and I'm anxious to help the club in any way I can."

Murtaugh Is Chosen To Boss Pirates

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Danny Murtaugh, a two-time manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates who led the club in 1960 to its first world championship in 33 years, was named Thursday as the team's pilot for 1970.

Less than two hours after the 52-year-old Murtaugh was named, Ed Hoak, one of the club's 1969 team who had been considered a leading candidate for the managerial post, was fatally stricken, apparently of a heart attack.

Hoak was pronounced dead on arrival at Shady Side Hospital after he was rushed there in a police ambulance when he was found slumped over the wheel of his auto. A team of five doctors worked in vain to save him.

Danny Murtaugh's selection was announced, it was rumored that Hoak had resigned from the Pirates organization.

Club officials admitted they had heard the rumor but said they had no confirmation. Pirates General Manager Joe L. Brown said he was "shocked immeasurably at Hoak's death, but thought it was a fine ball player and a fine man."

Oriole Chief Says Mets Aren't Legend Or Amazing, Just Tough

BALTIMORE (UPI)—According to Baltimore Orioles manager Earl Weaver, the New York Mets are neither a legend nor amazing.

"They're just a tough baseball club that bears down hard to beat their opponents," Weaver said Thursday during a 90-minute Oriole workout at Memorial Stadium.

"But we've played plenty of tough games," he continued. The Orioles, favored 8-5 to take the series, are in no danger of becoming overconfident, Weaver said.

"They are not going to let 162 games go down the drain. They were up for the playoffs and they'll be up for the series."

Weaver named Mike Cuellar (23-11) and Dave McNally (20-7) and Jim Palmer (16-4) as the top three pitchers in the rotation.

Fourth starter Tom Phoebus (14-7) will be used in long relief with Eddie Watt, with Dick Hall and Pete Richert handling short relief.

Cuellar, who will start the opening game Saturday, appeared in 16 games against the Mets in 1968. He was a member of the Houston Astros and never gave up a home run.

After he pitched some batting practice Thursday, he was asked how he intended to pitch against the Mets.

"Very carefully," he replied. Weaver got his first look at scouting reports on the Mets Thursday and said he would spend the evening examining them in detail.

The scouting team of Don Prael, Al Kubi, and Walter Youse was headed by Jim Russo whose reports on the Dodgers in 1968 were credited with helping the Orioles to their four-game sweep.

Weaver, however, does not have the same faith in scouting reports Hank Bauer did in 1968 when he locked the team in clubhouse with the scouts for two hours before the opening game.

"There's no sense in our talking an hour and a half talking about the scouting reports," Weaver said. "I'll go over them in general with the whole squad, then I'll go into more details with our starting pitchers for each game."

"Scouting reports can help you if all your scouts agree," he continued, "but if they disagree then you just have to throw them out and start from scratch."

Weaver said from what he could tell the American League team that most resembles the National League champions is the New York Yankees.

"Of the American League clubs, the Yankees are probably most like the Mets," Weaver said. "A lot of slap hitters...two really good pitchers. But the Mets are better than the Yankees defensively and with their pitching."

Chargers Are Healthy Now And Looking For Victories

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer
The San Diego Chargers have finally put everything together. Now the problem is keeping things that way.

The Chargers, who lost their first two games when injuries plagued the team, have rebounded with two straight victories and currently boast the strongest offense in the American Football League.

The injured players, particularly quarterback John Hadl, running back Brad Hubbard and tackle Ron-Mix, have healed and the Chargers now believe they can win the Western Division title and go on to capture the AFL championship.

The Chargers are a confident bunch now, but there is one obstacle immediately in their way. That is the Orange Bowl—the home of the Miami Dolphins whom the Chargers meet in one of two AFL games Saturday night.

San Diego has never won a league game in the Orange Bowl and will be going against the Dolphins Saturday night. San Diego is an out choice over yet to win a game in four starts this season. Those are the kind of odds that make things extra tough on a visiting team.

The Chargers have been excellent offensively in their past two games. They probably have the best balance of running and passing in the league. But Miami is not as bad as its 0-3 record would indicate. The Dolphins have a fine quarterback in Bob Griese. They have been close in all its losses.

There is one more thing in the Dolphins' defense which held Oakland to only 74 yards rushing last weekend when the two teams played to a 20-20 tie. San Diego is a stout choice, but an upset is not unlikely.

In other Saturday night action, the Buffalo Bills entertain the Boston Patriots. On Sunday, Houston visits Kansas City, New York is at Cincinnati and Oakland is at Denver.

Neither Boston nor Buffalo has shown very much so far, but both teams appear to be improving offensively. Houston is favored by six points.

The Patriots did fairly well against the Jets, but on their home ground the Bills are favored by nine points.

Kansas City will be making its debut at home and is in for a rough afternoon against Houston. Mike Livingston, a third stringer, did a good job as the quarterback for the Chiefs last weekend but will be trying to outguess one of the league's

USC Sees No 9-Point Edge Over Stanford

By JOE SARGIS
UPI Sports Writer
Forget what the oddsmakers say. USC's McKay and his Southern California Trojans know they aren't 9 1/2 point favorites to beat Stanford in their Saturday-night "Stanale" in Los Angeles.

"Not by a long shot," says McKay. "Maybe we should have an edge but not 9 1/2 points. They team that can gain almost 600 yards in one game isn't a 9 1/2 point underdog to anyone, including us. Down here (Los Angeles) we'd even be picked over the Rams."

The Stanford game could decide the Pacific 8 Conference's Rose Bowl representative in the better Pac-8 matchups. USC and Stanford is 10-1 in league play. While the Indians and Trojans are banging heads before a sellout crowd of 83,000, the Bruins, 4-0, tackle Washington State in Pullman. As might be expected, UCLA is a whopping 19 1/2 point favorite in the better Pac-8 matchups.

USC is an out choice over California, a last-minute winner over Rice last week, is picked over 10-12 over Oklahoma and struggling Washington (0-3) and Oregon is an out choice over winless San Jose State. Oregon State is idle.

McKay's Trojans are 3-0 with impressive victories over Nebraska, Northwestern and Oregon State. As a result, they are ranked third in the nation this week. The Trojans are a seven-point choice, but the Bengals are likely to be fired up for this one.

Oakland is the only unbeaten team in the league and is a nine-point favorite over the Broncos. The Raiders' defense, which got Griese six times last week, looks as the key to the outcome of this game.

Stanford beat San Jose State and Oregon before bowing, 36-15, to Purdue last week. In that game, Jim Plunkett threw four 17-passes in leading the Indians to a total offense of 586 yards.

This is another week and another pairing for the Indians and coach John Ralston feels his team can upend the three-time Pac-8 champion Trojans. "We feel we'll be able to score on them," said Ralston. "It all depends then on our defense and if we are able to shut off Jim Jones (quarterback) and Clarence Davis (running back)."

Davis is the Pac-8's leading rusher with 460 yards and three TDs while Jones, a soph, has connected on 22 of 30 throws for 348 yards and six TDs. Plunkett's figures are 50 of 93 for 776 yards and 8 TDs.

"Obviously, they have a very balanced attack," said Ralston. "So we have to be alert at all times. I look for a very close game."

Stanford tight end Bob Moore and center John Sander, both hurt in the Purdue game, are well again and will start. USC, though, will have to get along without flanker Bob Chandler, who has a sore back.

Expected, UCLA is a whopping 19 1/2 point favorite in the better Pac-8 matchups. California, a last-minute winner over Rice last week, is picked over 10-12 over Oklahoma and struggling Washington (0-3) and Oregon is an out choice over winless San Jose State. Oregon State is idle.

Top-Rated Clubs Are Favorites

By STEVE SMILANICH
Four-ranked Ohio State and favored to extend their respective strings of successes Saturday in college football's first crucial battles of the year.

The National Football League, after all, has been uncertain thoughts of naming the Colts in effigy since last Jan. 12.

But despite losses to Los Angeles and Minnesota in their first three games this season, the defending league champions have been established 14-point favorites over Philadelphia, which finally has rid itself of Joe Kuharich thought it still retains his flair for losing.

All other games will be played Sunday. With Los Angeles a one-touchdown favorite over San Francisco, Dallas a 14-point pick over Atlanta, Detroit a six-point favorite over Chicago, Detroit a one-point favorite over Green Bay, Cleveland a 10-point favorite over Pittsburgh, and St. Louis a 10-point favorite over Washington.

In other games involving top-ranked teams, the Colts' No. 1 quarterback has completed 46 of 88 passes for 529 yards and three touchdowns in three games, but now he is merely respected rather than awe'd, and so far this year the Colts also have been surprisingly mortal.

The Englis hardly have been devastating either, but quarterback Norm Snead has shown occasional brilliance. Ben Howkins is a speedy, exciting pass target and rookie Leroy Keyes will help Tom Woodeshick with the rushing duties.

In the void left by the Colts, Los Angeles and Dallas are battling to become the new league power. Both are unbeaten and should remain so for at least another week.

Roman Gabriel threw four touchdowns passes for the Rams against New Orleans last week and Les Josephson added rushing strength while safety Eddie Meador continued to excel in on-Dave Whitely's career interception record of 43 by swiping his 41st pass.

The "Cowboys," meanwhile, have been carried by rookie running back Calvin Hill, the NFL's leading rusher, and quarterback Craig Morton, in his first year as a starter, and Roger Staubach, a 27-year-old rookie.

Consistency still eludes Viking line quarterback Joe Kapp, who followed a record tying performance of seven TD passes with

Series Put Colts Out Of Park, But Steelers May Run Them Out Of League

By JOHN JEANSONNE
UPI Sports Writer

Because of scheduling conflicts with the World Series, the Baltimore Colts will be run out of Memorial Stadium Sunday, and if they lose this week's game, moved to Monday night with the Philadelphia Eagles, they may be run right out of the league.

The National Football League, after all, has been uncertain thoughts of naming the Colts in effigy since last Jan. 12.

ISU Hosts Montana State For Bengals' Homecoming

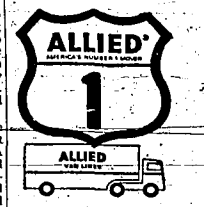

POCATELLO — A long-awaited event will take place Saturday, Idaho State finally has all available football players healthy for a game. All the wounded are healed and ready to play as ISU hosts Montana State at 2 p.m. in the Spud Bowl. Appropriately, it's homecoming for Idaho State.

The Bengals put their 30 record on the line, and Rex Callio, Tom Udo, Doug Flint, Joe Clark, etc. are all ready to go. Callio played some defensive tackle and made five stops in an abbreviated appearance against Omaha in ISU's 46-7 win. Ude will be able to go at split end after missing three games with a torn rib cartilage. Flint was out in the first quarter of the opener with a dislocated elbow and ran now work at safety and kickoff. Clark's bruised rib has healed and he will start at fullback.

Should Idaho State continue its offensive pace for the last seven games, several NCAA College Division records could fall, such as scoring, total offense, passing offense, and Jerry Dunne's individual total offense.

Montana State will offer a poor test of that fine rushing defense. The Bobcats—run the option play extremely well. OB Bobby McGill and tailback Gary Hughes are both fine runners, and fullback Hans Pildno is an excellent blocker. Hughes is one of the real workhorses runners around. He carries about 30 times a game and has only once failed to gain 100 yards in a game this year.

Idaho State plans only lineup change. Ron Dixon will replace Wally Duono at outside linebacker. On the other side Larry Rodriguez and Dennis Shorrock are really fighting to start. In the middle is all-conference candidate Ambrose Costa.

United Fund What Does It Mean?

REV. JOHN RILEY

I am writing to the United Fund in Twin Falls, Idaho, to express the deep gratitude my wife and I have over the excellent work made possible by your Fund and the local chapter of the American Red Cross.

We have reason to be grateful for on June 8, 1968, our 2-year-old son was found to be critically ill and was taken to the training received in a Red Cross class at Robert Stuart Junior High School our two teen-age daughters would not have known how to administer mouth-to-mouth resuscitation which was credited by our physician as saving our son's life.

The Red Cross, the United Fund, and the leadership of Mrs. Robert Fender in training youth in first aid all came together to save a life.

University Gets 1,000 Butterflies

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI)—The University of Idaho has gone just slightly bugs and members of the Entomology Department consider it good for the school.

The university announced Wednesday it had received a butterfly collection totaling more than 1,000 insects from Peter L. Darby, an amateur collector from Scottsdale, Calif.

Darby began collecting the insects about 10 years ago in high school and has presented them to the university for teaching, research and reference purposes.

Included in the collection are butterflies from southern California, Arizona and Mexico. Very few of the 129 different kinds are native to Idaho.

Increase Shown In Visitors To Craters Of Moon

September 1969 travel at Craters of the Moon National Monument shows a total of 26,422 visitors recorded compared to 21,125 persons in September 1968.

The total number of visitors to date through September 1969 is 184,578. This compares with 179,85 as of this date in 1968 reports Supt. Paul Fritz.

A total of 21,212 campers were counted compared to 21,033 in 1968, showing a slight increase. "It is interesting to note that over 12,000 people were trailer camping," he said.

"The increased popularity of Craters of the Moon is attributed to the moon exploration and the Apollo 14 astronauts. Presently a fall visit is extremely rewarding; as many visitors are taking advantage of the cool weather, lack of crowds and autumn coloration."

"PRAYER DAY" NAMED

Religion Today

By Rev. Lester Kinsolving

The flaming torch and the swinging axe have long been the zealot's tools to silence outspoken clergy and liberal congregations. Now, at a time when destruction of churches and synagogues is ever more common, vandals have a new, if unintentional ally. It is the insurance company which, recognizing and shunning a bad risk, refuses to grant protection.

American Employers Insurance, the Insurance Company of North America and Westchester Fire Insurance Company of New York, for instance, have all canceled the coverage of churches which provide sanctuary for draft resisters.

One of these churches, First Unitarian of South Bend, was subsequently turned down by 13 additional companies to whom they applied for insurance.

"Of course, a cancellation is a red flag to other insurance companies," notes attorney George N. Beamer, Jr., president of the South Bend Church (whose minister just recently left the ministry to work for the Michigan Civil Rights Commission).

Beamer recalls that North American had provided $123,000 worth of coverage, for which the congregation paid $304 in annual premiums. After the cancellation, he notes, Lloyds of London offered $175,000 for a domestic company would insure for a similar amount for an annual premium of $500. "The only other company which offered insurance was A.e.t.h.a. which offered $5,000 worth of coverage at a similar rate."

Beamer also recalls, "We had some hope of obtaining insurance under a federally guaranteed program now set up in many states to provide insurance for standard risks in inner-city areas. The program is administered by the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development. When the Indiana plan was initiated, we made application but the premium was even higher than that quoted by Lloyds."

He adds that the embattled congregation is planning to make what is left of their church building "as fireproof as we can, and then we are all going to cross our fingers."

Other church and synagogue members have either joined voluntary night patrols or property or have been obliged to pay the heavy costs of continued surveillance by private detective agencies.

Many of these same church and synagogue members are at the same time being harassed by cancellations or astronomical increases in their automobile insurance — often under the flimsiest pretexts. This is particularly the case in New Jersey, where the conflict between the state government and the insurance companies has been severe — and is detailed in the September issue of Atlantic magazine, in an article by attorney Gilbert Fieldman.

Such insurance industry practices do not invariably result in mystifying the churches. Rather, this policy conduct has under fire can add, by the dimension of hundreds of people joining congregations, canceled to a growing public demand for increased regulation of the insurance industry.

It is the public's right to engage in corporate worship becomes constricted because the insurance companies maintain this policy of cancellation and thus make arson particularly attractive to extremists and pyromaniacs — people may well decide to protect their property by enacting a program of governmental insurance. (There was little public outcry when GIs were provided life insurance by the U. S. Government.)

Churches and synagogues might begin by taking note of any of their own investments or activities in the "insurance" business. There is, for example, the Episcopal Church Insurance Company. This firm is a subsidiary of the $100 million dollar Church Clergy Pension Fund. It is wholly owned by the Episcopal Church, and subject to the directions of that denomination's General Convention.

Yet when St. Andrew's Church in San Bruno, Calif., was subjected to repeated window breakage, and the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour in Pasco, Washington, was repeatedly vandalized and then destroyed by fire both churches had their insurance canceled — by the insurance firm owned by their own denomination.

This company's new president, layman Robert Robinson, when interviewed last month, gave no indication that the recent cancellation of churches under fire has been discussed.

Instead, Mr. Robinson explained that the company has no power — but that Pasco church damage was $100,000."

Assets of the Episcopal Church Insurance firm at the time were $6,000,000.

Rev. Watson Heads Filer Ministers

FILER — Rev. Roy W. Watson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, was elected president of the Filer Ministerial Association at the September meeting in the United Methodist Church. Rev. Elam Anderson of the United Methodist Church, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Discussion was held on "How can we better serve our community together?" and the American Bible Society Program for Universal Bible Study and Bible reading was reviewed. The program, which Nov. 23 set as Bible Sunday. The group expressed concern for the citizens of Filer and definite plans to include them in their activities will be announced later.

The need for activities for Filer youth was discussed and several events planned. Monthly sings to be held at 6:45 p.m. the second Sunday of each month were planned with the first to be Oct. 12 in the First Baptist Church.

Schedule for future sings includes Nov. 9 at the Nazarene Church; a community caroling and a December concert by the United Methodist Church; Jan. 11 at the Missionary Church, and Feb. 8 at the Methodist Church.

An intra-church recreational program was discussed and it was decided to hold a skating party in October. Organization of a basketball league for both youth and adults as well as a volleyball league, was discussed.

The group voted to give $20 to the Twin Falls Salvation Army in its program. Two of the churches are plan-

Rev. Robertson To Preach Last Sermon In T.F. Sunday

Pastor of the Twin Falls First Southern Baptist Church, Rev. L. O. Robertson, will preach his last sermon here Sunday.

Rev. Robertson will be leaving for Clearfield, Utah, where he will assume the pastorate of the First Southern Baptist Church. A farewell dinner was held recently.

Rev. Robertson came to Twin Falls in January, 1962, from Brownwood, Tex. Since then there has been a total of 185 new members, the church's indebtedness has decreased about 50 per cent and about $3,000 worth of equipment has been purchased.

In the Magic Valley Southern Baptist Association he served as moderator for two years and as chairman of evangelism for six years. He has been treasurer of the Idaho Southern Baptist Convention for the past seven years.

In the Utah-Idaho Southern Baptist Convention, he was general chairman of the Crusade of the Americas, first vice president and is currently president.

Praise Offered

The youth of today have been praised by an official of the Twin Falls Elk's Lodge.

Roy Russell, exalted ruler, said the members of the Twin Falls Elk's anti today's youth and especially the newspaper boys, in recognition of News-paper Day Saturday.

"The youth of today is the best our nation has ever seen as Elk's believe in their future," he said. He said the youths should not be condemned for the actions of a few.

ning evangelistic meetings for the fall. The Nazarene Church will hold meetings Nov. 11-16, and the First Baptist Church, Nov. 16-20. The public is invited to services at both churches, according to the pastors.

Labor Officials Urge Cities To Develop Solution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Labor Department Thursday urged cities to develop their own "home town solutions" for enforcing equal employment involving federal funds and offered to help when requested to abolish job discrimination on private construction work.

But it pledged federal action to require non-discriminatory hiring "on" building projects involving federal funds and offered to help when requested to abolish job discrimination on private construction work. The department said it would tailor its efforts to end discrimination on federal projects to fit each city, and did not always mean a modified version of its controversial "Philadelphia Plan" which has been vigorously opposed by organized labor.

Laymen Talk

WENDELL — Elwood Becker, Jerome, and Rev. John Steppert will participate in a dialogue on the topic "A Layman Looks At His Church" during the Laymen's Sunday observance at the United Presbyterian church worship service.

Laymen will plan and conduct the service. A coffee-hour and "talk back" session will follow the service.

Grace Baptist Church Is Comparatively Young

By ROBERT J. SEAMON
Pastor, Grace Baptist Church

Is the Gospel, the "good news," of Jesus Christ relevant today to meet the needs of our young people? Is the local church still God's chosen vehicle to spread this same "good news" of eternal life?

Grace Baptist Church, Twin Falls; the church with a Christian faith, believes that the answer to both questions is a resounding "yes."

Although the Grace Baptist Church is a comparatively young church, being organized some 14 years ago as the Grace Baptist Church, under the leadership of Rev. Meryl Nemnich, its growth and ministry clearly substantiates its position as a Bible-believing, Bible-teaching church.

In June of 1964, under the leadership of Rev. Al MacMullen of Grace Baptist Church, became the Grace Baptist Church and entered into fellowship with the General Association of Regular Baptist Churches. This association of over 1,400 churches is characterized by its separatist position in regard to modernism, liberalism and evangelism which are destroyers of the distinctiveness of the inspired Word of God as the only "rule of life" in today's age of modern technology.

Believing that there is nothing wrong with God's Word, this church seeks to implement the spreading of the message of the Word of God in every possible way. A full and complete program of activities seeks to involve each and every member in the "Great Commission" found in Matthew 28:19, 20. To this end "Operation Greenlight," the visitation program is carried out each Monday evening.

This program has been consistently well-supported by 20-30 people, including young people, each week over the past two years. This calling involves not only an invitation to the church and youth activities, but most important an invitation to accept Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour.

Each Sunday, the Sunday school bus furnishes transportation to any interested youngster or adult who needs such a service in order to attend. A close, by graded Sunday school program with teaching classes beginning with the two year olds extends through the adult age. A fulltime nursery attendant cares for those under two years of age.

In the morning worship service pastor Robert J. Seamon presents an object lesson, especially geared to the youngsters. During the morning message a children's church and junior church program are provided for children three years of age through the third grade.

Recognizing the value of the ministry of music, several musical groups regularly take part in the services. The senior choir sings each Sunday morning and a revival choir, numbering 25-35 young people, sings each Sunday night. This choir practices each Sunday evening just before the training hour. A youth Gospel team, to be called the Grace Baptist Gospelaires, is being formed. This will furnish additional musical and spiritual opportunities for growth among the young people.

Before the evening service, at 8:45 p.m., a training hour is held wherein further opportunities for participation are afforded. Classes begin with the Kitty hawks — pre-school age, continuing with Whitebirds — primary age, Jet Cadets — junior age, Alpha Teens — junior high age, Omegans — high school and college age and an adult study group. Each group furnishes social activities monthly as well as the weekly programs.

Prayer meeting and Bible study on Wednesday evenings is a source of instruction and communion with God. Believing in the power of prayer, those in attendance divide up into small prayer groups to carry specific requests to the throne of grace. The senior choir holds its practice sessions after this service.

Each month, usually the second Friday, the Grace Missionary Fellowship, composed of all interested ladies in the church, holds its meetings. These ladies involve themselves in various home and foreign missionary projects.

Athletics play a part in the life of the church too — not as an end in themselves, but as a means of attracting and occupying young adults. Pastor Seamon was one of the organizers of the Magic Valley Church League and has served as president since its inception. Softball, football, and basketball are played in season. The only requirement for participation is attendance in a service of the church each week before the game is played.

The youth philosophy of the church is embodied in the idea that you cannot tell a youth not to do something without channeling his talents, time, energy and boundless energy into worthwhile activities.

Are these activities achieving the desired goals? Yes! God has blessed with wonderful steady growth — both numerical and spiritual. The young people have caught the vision of preparation for service for Christ.

One young man has just enrolled at Western Baptist Bible College to prepare for full-time service for Christ, while still others are making plans to attend Christian schools as soon as they finish high school.

In addition to these evidences, the warm and friendly spirit of unity which permeates the congregation lends credence to the assertion that the Gospel of Jesus Christ is indeed relevant to the needs of mankind today.

Truly it is the days to come, until Christ returns, the people of the Grace Baptist Church have the joy of offering a timeless message of hope and comfort to a dying, sin-sick world.

Science Gap Widening, Doctor Says

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The gap between what medical science has made possible and what man can afford is widening "at a frightening rate," a Nobel Prize Winning Geneticist warned the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. George Beadle said man, who now has the knowledge to control his biological inheritance, must guard against the desirability of using all of his new scientific knowledge.

Beadle, who shared the 1958 Nobel Prize for medicine, said chemists almost surely will be able to make genes to order before long, although the replacement of defective genes in man is still a long way off.

"This is an area in which, through the progress in science, the gap between what is technologically feasible and what is feasible in terms of bearable costs in human effort is being widened at a frightening rate," he said. "It is or will soon be comparable to the situation in organ transplantation or substitution."

"How many individuals can society afford to keep alive through heart or kidney transplants, or through the use of artificial hearts and the techniques of hemodialysis?" he asked.

"I totally aside from the cost in human effort and dollars, should we in these ways continue to keep people alive long after they are able to lead useful and satisfying lives?"

"In said mankind—a species—must answer these questions. They cannot be avoided, he said, because that would in effect be an answer.

Beadle, a former president of the University of Chicago and Director of the Institute for Biomedical Research, told the College of Surgeons' clinical conference, man has the ability to control both his biological and cultural inheritance.

"But there is no consensus as to what we want in man," he said. "Hitler had a specific program, but few of us—none I hope—approved of either his objective or his method."

But said man's major social problems are cultural—and could be solved with a redirection of the world's resources.

Past Presidents Of Lutheran Women's Group Honored

Past presidents of the Immanuel Lutheran Women's Missionary League were honored recently during a league meeting. The group was originally organized on March 4, 1920, and was called the Immanuel Ladies Aide Society, with the late Mrs. Gihring as president. There also were 12 charter members.

In 1945 the name of the organization was changed to the Lutheran Women's Missionary League.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Duane Einspahr, president. Reports were given on the Mission Fair, set for Nov. 2, and on the LWML Sunday, to be held Oct. 19.

Members of the league's nominating committee were announced. They include Mrs. Ed. Holzen, Mrs. Ervin Ehlers and Mrs. Kenneth Hifton.

Guests at the recent meeting were Mrs. Terry Smith, Mrs. Norma Butcher, Mrs. Don Butcher, Mrs. Joe Young, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Kingsfater, Mrs. Marie List, Mrs. Ida Banenfeldt, Mrs. Theresa Viehweg, Mrs. Henry Schukle, Mrs. Ed Schleit, Jenny Gartner, S. C. VanHousser and Dorothy Kerby.

'Black Power' Lesson Study Is Presented

HANSEN — Mrs. Ralph Nelson led the devotional service and lesson study on "Black Power, The Black Manifesto," at the Hansen Circle Women's Society of Christian Service meeting at the home of Mrs. Hugh Sanderson.

The lesson study discussed the demands to churches for monetary reimbursement and the government for $500 million dollars for alleged wrongs to the black people. Mrs. Nelson read several articles pertaining to the demands made by James Forman.

Mrs. O. A. Simpson was a guest. Plans were discussed for permanently affixing the church fireplace room rug, in the Kimberly United Methodist Church. Mrs. Nelson reported that a contact had been made for doing the work.

It was reported two prayer meetings will be held, one at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Nelson, the other Oct. 17 at the home of Mrs. Delbert Remley. Plans for the turkey dinner at the church were made for Oct. 20. World Day of Prayer is planned for 2 p.m. Oct. 31 at the Kimberly church, with Murtaugh WSSC cooperating.

Bidding Spirited At Zoo Auction

THOUSAND OAKS, (UPI) — The Orangutans brought top bids of $10,000 each, a female hippo went for $3,000 and a matched set of seven double-hump camels $20,700, while a chicken was snatched up at the bargain price of $1.50.

The two-day auction of all the 1,600 birds and beasts at the bankrupt Jungland Private Zoo was concluded Thursday with the selling of cages to cart away the purchases made from among a crowd of 4,000.

Auctioneer Milton Wershaw said federal bankruptcy laws forbade him to reveal the total brought in by the auction but said it was in excess of $100,000.

Today With All-Faiths—In Tribute A PORTRAIT OF SERVICE

Church Is First In Joel A. Tate's Life As President Of Newly-Formed LDS Stake

The Church comes first in the life of Joel A. Tate, president of the newly organized Twin Falls West Stake of the LDS Church.

He has the opportunity to interview young men and women as they prepare for missions and marriage and members of his stake as the desire temple recommends and seek special spiritual council.

"He loves the young people and understands their problems. He realizes that they will be the leaders of tomorrow. So proper guidance is essential for the welfare of our country," states President Tate.

He regularly sits in council with the priesthood leaders of the wards and stake where his greatest concern is to make the gospel of Jesus Christ a more vital force in the lives of the 3,400 members in this stake which includes the Twin Falls second, fourth, sixth and eighth wards, Filer ward, Butte first and second wards and the Hollister branch.

Why does he devote so much time in serving the Lord and his fellowman? He has always believed in the admonition given by the Savior to his disciples as recorded in the Bible: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God" and to "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon Earth; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

He has taught from childhood never to seek a position in the Church—never to refuse one and never to ask to be released from a church calling. When the call came from President David O. McKay, leader of the Mormon Church, to be stake president of the Twin Falls West Stake, he accepted humbly and gratefully and was determined to serve in that capacity faithfully besides making a living in his own furniture store.

President Tate was born on May 28, 1911, at Tooele, Utah. He attended grade schools in Tooele and Inkom, and junior and high school in Salt Lake City. During his youth he was a Boy Scout and obtained the rank of Eagle. He also attended the LDS Junior college in Salt Lake City.

From 1930-33 he was called on a mission for the church to the Swiss-German Mission, in the areas of Hannover, Hamburg and Schleswig - Holstein with headquarters in Kiel and also in the valley of the Saargebiet in Saarbrücken and along the Rhine River in Karlsruhe. While in Kiel he was district president.

After coming back from Germany in 1933, he went into the insurance business in Salt Lake City. He later moved to Gallup, N.M., where he worked for the B.F. Goodrich Co.

In 1940, he married Frances Taylor in the Salt Lake City LDS Temple. In 1941, they moved to Burley and opened and managed the Wall Furniture Co. store. A son, Joel Richards Tate, was born in 1942 and in 1944 a daughter, Nancy Eileen Tate, was born.

The Tate family moved to Twin Falls in 1951. President Tate operated the Tate Furniture Store in Jerome then and in 1953 he established his second store in Twin Falls.

While he was in Burley, he was a counselor to Bishop Ernest Blauer for five years, later becoming bishop of the Burley First Ward. He also served on the high council of the Burley Stake. Prior to becoming a counselor and bishop, he was

Dr. Harry Fosdick Was Man Of Courage, Says Writer

By LOUIS CASSELS

It is not recorded that anyone ever worked up the nerve to tell Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick "Fearless Fosdick."

But that good-natured man would not have resented the nickname. And it would have been highly appropriate for him.

Dr. Fosdick, who died this week at the age of 91, was revered by some American Protestants and sharply criticized by others. But everyone could agree on one point: He was a man of courage.

Half a century ago, in a theological climate very different from that which prevails today, he put his ministerial career on the line rather than dissemble his inability to go along with a Fundamentalist view of the Bible.

During two world wars, he withstood enormous pressures from public opinion and proclaimed his pacifist conviction that war, for any cause whatever, is irreconcilable with obedience to Jesus Christ.

In several decades, when most clergymen were tacitly supporting the status quo under the guise of "teaching the church out of politics," he insisted that the church should be in the forefront of the battle for social reform and racial justice.

President and Mrs. Tate came back to the United States and Twin Falls in 1966 where he again was called to serve on the high council. In August, 1968, he was called to a stake patriarch and then, in August, 1969, with the division of the Twin Falls Stake and creation of the Twin Falls West Stake, he was called to serve as president of the new stake.

Local Church Sets Special "Offering"

The Episcopal Church of the Assumption in Twin Falls will observe this Sunday as "Church Periodical Club Sunday," according to Mrs. John Hayes, diocesan chairman of CPC.

Known also as the National Book Club, CPC last year distributed $48,000 worth of printed materials to meet requests from seminarians, 1 in 4 in Schools, prisons, and missionary districts of Alaska, Philippines, and Liberia.

At the General Convention of the Episcopal Church in Seattle in 1958 a former bishop in Africa, the Rt. Rev. Henry Crowther, said, "The church could not operate effectively in remote places around the world without the help of this Periodical Club."

The local parish will present a special offering at this Sunday's service for CPC.

been highly appropriate for him.

Dr. Fosdick, who died this week at the age of 91, was revered by some American Protestants and sharply criticized by others. But everyone could agree on one point: He was a man of courage.

Half a century ago, in a theological climate very different from that which prevails today, he put his ministerial career on the line rather than dissemble his inability to go along with a Fundamentalist view of the Bible.

In several decades, when most clergymen were tacitly supporting the status quo under the guise of "teaching the church out of politics," he insisted that the church should be in the forefront of the battle for social reform and racial justice.

He was so far ahead of his time in all of these postures that he acquired a reputation as a radical.

But Dr. Fosdick was radical only in a relative sense. He wanted a clean, honest Christian faith, of irrelevances as Jesus once cleansed the Jerusalem temple of money-changers. But he never had any thought of destroying the basic structure.

His just great act of spiritual and intellectual courage was to join battle with the truly radical theologians who have lately enjoyed so great a vogue. Refusing always to tack with the prevailing wind, he stood forth in his final years as an eloquent exemplar on the reality of God, the lordship of Christ, and the efficacy of prayer.

Those people who say that God is dead simply do not face up to the real issue," he said in a 1966 interview with the Readers Digest. "If you got rid of God, what have you got left? The only alternative to mind-behind-the-universe is blind protest and neurons accidentally colliding in space to produce the universe. This is the choice—one or the other."

"Do they really think that the cosmic scheme of things is mindless and purposeless, without meaning or art or other?" he believe there is mind behind the universe, purpose running through it, ultimate meaning to it, and destiny ahead of it."

Harry Emerson Fosdick set forth this week to meet his destiny. You can be sure he went unafraid.
