Condominium In Ketchum Burns; $240,000 Loss

KETCHUM — Six luxury condominiums under construction at the Warm Springs ranch were destroyed by fire of undetermined origin Friday night.

Each of the units would have sold for $40,000, making a $240,000 loss, according to Mrs. Jack Simpson, who, with her husband, owned the structure located east of the Warm Springs Ranch Inn.

Mr. Simpson was away from home on a hunting trip. His wife said the loss is covered by insurance. She said she had no idea how the fire started as no wiring had been installed yet in the five-level, three-story building.

Royce Asher, who lives nearby, telephoned Mrs. Simpson about 9 p.m. Friday, notifying her of the fire. He already had called the Ketchum Volunteer Fire Department. Firemen were unable to quench the blaze, but kept it from spreading to another condominium, also owned by the Simpsons, and nearby homes.

Heat from the blazing condominium broke a window at the home of Dr. Martin J. Petersen, Sun Valley physician who lives nearby. Firemen wet down roofs of houses in the area and were helped by the fact there was no wind. No other buildings threatened by the fire were damaged.

Bill Butler is the contractor for the building, which was under construction.

CAPT. G. F. THUMMEL, spokesman for the Chief of Naval Operations, will speak to several groups in Twin Falls Tuesday, in observance of Veterans Day.

Navy Captain To Speak On Veterans Day

A spokesman for the Chief of Naval Operations will be in Twin Falls Monday and Tuesday to speak in observance of Veterans Day.

Veteran's Day is Tuesday, and in addition to talks by Capt. G. F. Thummel, Washington, D. C., area military spokesmen will speak at various schools.

Capt. Thummel enlisted in the Navy Dec. 23, 1943, and was commissioned in 1946. He became a pilot in 1951, and in 1967 was in the Tonkin Gulf as a navigator on the USS Intrepid while it was conducting attack carrier strikes against North Vietnam.

His talks will be on the increasing growth of Soviet sea power and its significance to America's total maritime effort.

Capt. Thummel will be heard on KLLX radio from 9 to 10 a.m. Monday, and will speak at O'Leary Junior High School at 11:45 a.m.

Tuesday he will speak at 11 a.m. at the Twin Falls High School, and at 12:30 p.m. will speak at the Veteran's Day luncheon at the American Legion Hall. The public is invited to attend the luncheon.

His final talk will be at 2:45 p.m. at Robert Stuart Junior High School.

Other Veteran's Day speakers will be Lt. Cmdr. Carroll Briggs, Lt. Col. Armour Anderson, Lt. Col. Paul Carl, Lt. David Mead, Lt. Col. William Clairborn, M. Sgt. Richard Ryall, M. Sgt. Lee Talkington, C. O. Richard High, Chief Walt Thomas, Maj. George Haney and Air National Guard Cadet Richard Tuininga.

They will speak at schools throughout the Twin Falls area. Each of the speakers will be accompanied by members of the Student Veterans of the College of Southern Idaho.

Plan Fails

PARIS (UPI) — After reading a book called "How to Live Beyond Your Means," 80-year-old Henri Breaux rented a $270 a month apartment on a fashionable avenue near the Eiffel Tower.

Then he advertised the apartment at half the rent and, distributing duplicate keys, re-rented the apartment eight times, picking up eight checks—each for three months rent.

A suspicious neighbor put police on to Breaux who was picked up as he cashed the first of the eight checks.

Sniper Menaces British Libraries

WALSALL, England (UPI) — The town council is considering closing down two libraries because mystery riflemen have been peering through the windows into the bookshelves.

"Girl librarians have become quite adept at taking cover," said Councillor William Dean-Jyatt. "They are very frightened and I can't blame them."

Shocker

ELKHART, Ind. (UPI) — A squirrel accidentally caused the death of 8,000 fish, but paid with its life for the $10,000 loss.

The squirrel short-circuited an electrical transformer and was electrocuted. The short left trout-rearing pens at the Elkhart Conservation Club without power for their recirculating pumps and aeration systems.

As a result, 8,000 fingerling-size brook and brown trout perished.

Top NFO Official Is Speaker

BURLEY — Orin J. Staley, Corning, Iowa, national NFO president, spoke on the NFO Collective bargaining program during the Idaho NFO convention's final session Saturday night.

Mr. Staley said the program has been very successful in raising farm prices on several commodities. He noted this is the first time in the history of agriculture the farmer's efforts have been realized in getting higher prices.

Mr. Staley said prices are now higher than they had expected when they started bargaining and particularly for hogs and feeder calves, grain and white corn. The potato prices which were realized last winter were through the bargaining effort, he said.

All feeder cattlemen were urged to join the NFO so they could in turn bargain for better prices of their fat cattle, he said. In time this will become necessary since feeder calves and grain prices are now being bargained through the NFO.

He listed five steps which the NFO has been using to gain higher prices:

1. The block bargaining for all commodities, which makes the NFO able to compete with prices paid by large firms and companies. At the present time there is collective bargaining in 40 states.
2. The bargaining of the NFO. See NFO, pg. 2 col. 4

South Viets, Reds Clash Near Outpost

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese troops clashed three times Saturday with North Vietnamese regulars trying to surround Duc Lap, a jungle outpost near the Cambodian border that has become a hot spot in the Communist winter offensive. At least 13 North Vietnamese were reported killed.

Elsewhere, U.S. headquarters Saturday reported the loss of three Army helicopters to groundfire in incidents that killed one American and wounded three. Two crashed in the jungles northwest of Saigon and the third near Da Nang.

Three other Americans were killed and 19 wounded in 39 rocket or mortar barrages, launched by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong gunners in the 24-hour period ended at 8 a.m. Saturday. Ground fighting in the winter offensive stationed with communiques reporting only two small assaults overnight.

PUC Lets UPRR Change Its 'Portland Rose' Schedule

BOISE (UPI) — The Union Pacific Railroad has granted almost every change that it had requested for its Portland Rose Train from the Idaho Public Utilities Commission.

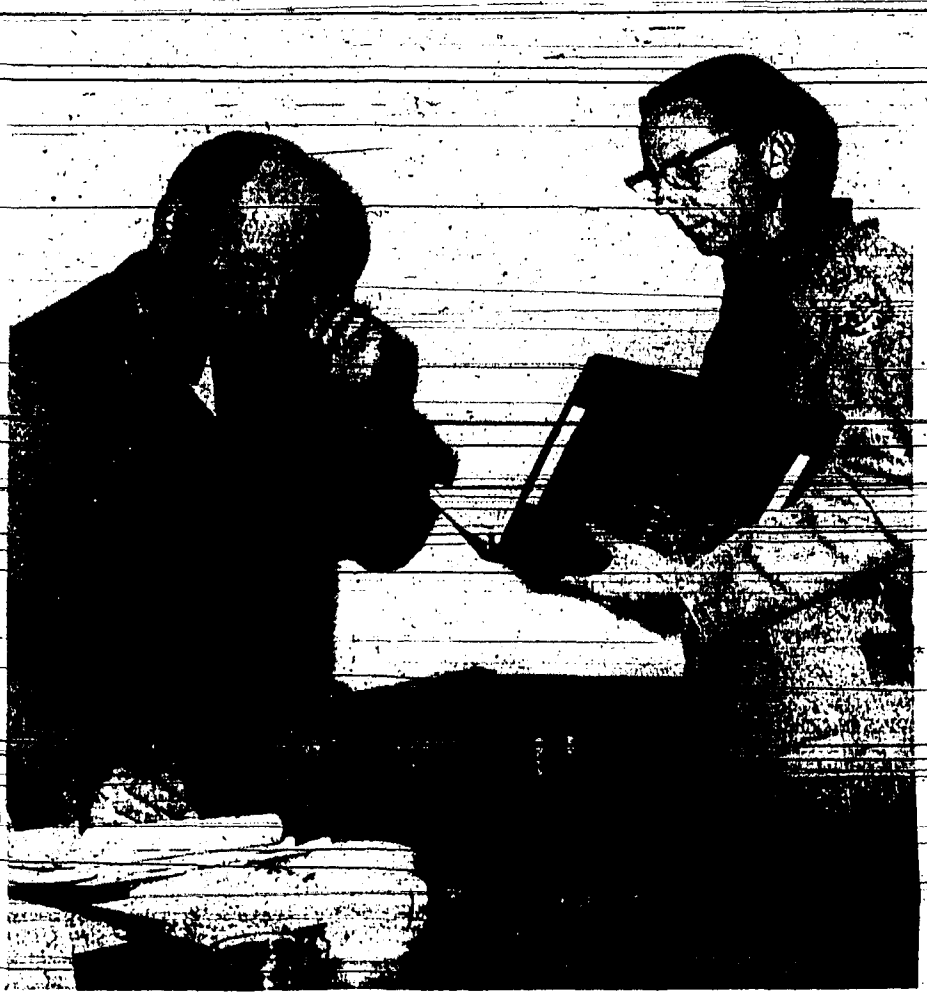

It will now be a daylight train instead of a night-time run. The only concession that the PUC did not fully grant was elimination of the baggage car.

The commission said, "the baggage car on Trains 17 and 18 is not required but a satisfactory method of handling of passengers' personal baggage must be provided."

PUC President Ralph Wickberg said that the railroad would show the commission definite means for handling the baggage before the baggage car that normally rides the train can be actually pulled off.

The changes on the Trains 17 and 18 cannot go into effect until Nov. 30, 1969. In its findings of fact, the

Arabs Draft War Plans

TWO OF THE 40 Magic Valley national guardsmen involved in the test exercise on the Idaho Military Support of Civil Defense plan this weekend were Maj. Don Cryder, Twin Falls, left, acting regimental commander of the 116th Armored Cavalry, Idaho Army National Guard, and Maj. Bob Cameron, Rupert. The exercise was a command post type of exercise and involved only officers and key NCOs in the regiment.

Guard Tests Plan For Civil Defense

Some 40 National Guardsmen in Magic Valley were busy Saturday participating in a state-wide exercise involving the Idaho Military Support of Civil Defense plan.

The exercise was conducted by members of the 75th Maneuver Command, U. S. Army Reserve, Texas, and was set up to test the communications part of the plan set up for military support.

Staff officers and key NCO personnel of the 116th Armored Cavalry Regiment, Idaho Army National Guard, with headquarters in Twin Falls, took active part in the test exercise.

Maj. Don Cryder, Twin Falls, acting regimental commander, said this is the first exercise of this type held in Idaho involving military forces. He said other exercises have been held in the past, but dealt only with Civil Defense operations.

During the 24-hour exercise, several problems were presented to the regiment by the controllers, or umpires, members of the Texas group, and the guardsmen are then tested on the procedure they use in coping with, or solving, the problem, according to the military support plan.

Maj. Cryder said the military forces will support Civil Defense only when civil agencies can no longer do the job. He said this support may be in the way of men, equipment or supplies, depending on the emergency.

The exercise ended at 6 a.m. Sunday, after which a review of the exercise was held by the umpires and those involved.

Senator Denies Spending Curbed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Saturday the Pentagon has repeatedly announced the same spending cuts to make them seem larger and more numerous than they actually were.

Despite 19 "major" public announcements about economy moves in the past six months, he said in a statement, only nominal cuts toward the Defense Department's goal of saving $1 billion have actually been made.

New Orleans Vote Fails To Stir Interest

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Voting in a Democratic primary failed Saturday to match the heat of a campaign in which District Attorney Jim Garrison laid his political career on the line for the first time since the collapse of his investigation of the John V. Kennedy assassination.

Balloting was reported light throughout New Orleans. Garrison had three opponents. There also was a mayor's race and races for the city council and other posts. All told, 82 candidates sought 19 city offices.

A policemen's boycott threatened to slow down the vote counting. Policemen, who count the ballots, were in the midst of a work slowdown to force a pay increase.

The district attorney's race shaped up as Garrison against the field, with the controversial Garrison seeking a vote of confidence to renew his investigation of the death of President Kennedy.

Forgetful

LINCOLN, Mont. (UPI) — When fire broke out last week at a residence in Lincoln, the community's entire volunteer fire department roared into action.

Every man on the force responded. But then they realized that no one had thought to bring the fire truck.

The house burned to the ground.

Japanese Police Fight 500 Students

SAPPORO, Japan (UPI) — A force of 3,000 Japanese policemen stormed Mokkaido University Saturday and routed 500 radical students who had blockaded its main buildings for almost five months. Students hurled rocks and firebombs in fighting that raged for hours.

Police said 30 policemen and 15 students were hurt. The battle began at dawn and continued until 1 p.m. on the campus, then expanded into street fighting in Sapporo, the city which will be the site of the 1972 winter Olympic games.

In Tokyo, police staged a predawn raid Saturday on Tokyo University's Institute of Space and Aeronautical Science and said leftist students had turned it into a factory for making firebombs.

Authorities said fuel and materials for making the devices were found at 20 locations in the compound of buildings that is the heart of Japan's research efforts in space and aeronautics.

Sapporo police said 32 students were arrested Saturday, most on charges of arson and possession of dangerous weapons. Five students fought a last-ditch battle with police from the upper story of the university's administration building.

Power Outage Halts Traffic In Quebec

MONTREAL (UPI) — A power failure blacked out much of the Canadian province of Quebec for two hours Saturday, forcing hospitals and broadcast stations to switch to emergency power, causing traffic tieups and accidents in Montreal, Canada's largest city, and trapping people in elevators.

The blackout affected about 4 million persons in Quebec, about one fifth of Canada's total population. It came just one day short of the fourth anniversary of the great northeastern United States blackout of 1965.

Many hospitals, radio and television stations and airports were forced to switch to emergency power systems when the lights flickered out.

The Metro subway system in Montreal made use of an emergency system which moves trains into the nearest stations. Officials then unloaded the trains and closed the subways for the duration of the blackout.

TITO VISITS ALGIERS

ALGIERS (UPI) — President Tito of Yugoslavia wound up a visit to Algeria Saturday by meeting privately with President Houari Boumedienne. The Yugoslav chief of state is scheduled to return home Sunday.

Mission — Control Center at Houston was electronically tied into the exercise and controllers monitored it as if the pilots were actually making their blazing, 25,000-mile an hour return to a Pacific Ocean splashdown.

Boise Man Elected President Of Idaho State Moose Association

BUHL — R. W. Bailey, Boise, was elected president of the Idaho State Moose Association Saturday during the final day of the group's annual convention.

Other new officers are: Chet Thomas, Boise, secretary; Treasurer, Rolland Young, Gateway District vice president, J. K. Patterson, Magic Valley District vice president, and John Rock, Capital District vice president. The officers were installed during the president's banquet Saturday night at the Buhl Moose Hall.

The group voted to hold its next state convention in Pocatello. The spring conference will be in Idaho Falls and Nampa will be the "Sports Carnival" city.

Boise teams from Pocatello, Boise, Twin Falls, and a mixed team from Buhl and the Buhl Children's team performed Saturday afternoon. The Salt Lake City marching chapter No. 23 performed between the banquet and the president's ball. They were led by Gladys Kennedy, and Lenore Page was the pianist.

The Women of the Moose hosted a friendship breakfast Saturday morning. Mrs. Alta Mead, Aberdeen, S. D., was the official visitor for the women's group. She gave a floor instruction on the ritual ceremony during the regular session.

The Buhl Women of the Moose presented the balloting ceremony; Pocatello gave the endorsement fund march and the college of regents members were presented by Mrs. N. L. Carter of the Buhl unit.

Mrs. Ann Malone, Twin Falls, was honored during the capping ceremony.

Approximately 300 people attended the five-day convention.

U.S. Is Listed As 'Foe'

By United Press International
 Defense and Foreign Ministers from 13 Arab nations opened an Arab Defense Council meeting in Cairo Saturday by hearing the United States denounced as "Arab enemy number one." Delegates then drew up strategy for mobilizing Arab world resources for the fight against Israel.

In Jerusalem, Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan warned that Israel would make Egypt pay so dearly for commando raids like the three incursions staged this week across the Suez Canal that President Gamal Abdel Nasser would have to halt them.

In a new outburst of violence in the Israeli-occupied Gaza strip Arab guerrillas shot and killed a taxi driver and hurled a hand grenade that missed an Israeli patrol car and wounded 10 Arab passersby.

The Cairo gathering of high-level Arab delegates and Palestinian representatives heard a strong attack on the United States by Sudan's Secretary of State, Farouk Abou Eissa, who was chairman of the meeting.

"The United States... as put itself willingly in a position of direct confrontation with Arab nations," Eissa said. "It has become very clear the United States is Arab enemy number one and it is now for the Arabs to determine or define their attitude toward the United States."

The Arab League's Secretary General, Abdel Khalek Hassouna, told the brief opening session the U.S. Middle East policy was a "grave challenge" to Arab nations. He especially cited the U.S. desire to permit Americans to serve in Israeli armed services without losing their citizenship.

"This participation is contrary to international law, principle resolutions of the United Nations and American interests in the Arab world," the Arab League secretary said.

Hassouna also called for "mobilization of all human and material resources of the Arab world" to combat Israel which he said had defied all political efforts to solve the conflict.

Apollo 12 Crew Drills For Mission

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — While their launch crew took this day off, Apollo 12's astronauts practiced earth return procedures Saturday for their 10-day moon mission that begins next Friday.

Charles "Pete" Conrad Jr., Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean will get their last major medical examination today, then start glowing their pace of training for the nation's second lunar landing expedition.

The three Navy commanders boarded a training duplicate of the command ship, Yankee Clipper, after breakfast Saturday and spent much of the day practicing their earth atmosphere reentry maneuvers.

Mission — Control Center at Houston was electronically tied into the exercise and controllers monitored it as if the pilots were actually making their blazing, 25,000-mile an hour return to a Pacific Ocean splashdown.

Four Deputies Investigating Fairground Fire

Twin Falls County Sheriff Paul Corder said Saturday he has a couple of arson suspects in the Thursday night fire at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds.

He said he was unable to say when he might make an arrest, but said four deputies are working on the case.

An estimated $250,000 in damage was incurred when the grandstands were burned. The county does, however, have replacement insurance.

3 Hazelton Businesses Are Sold

HAZELTON — Three prominent Hazelton businesses have been sold and all are under new management. All transactions took place Nov. 1.

The Howards have owned the Sportsman Club and Hazelton Hotel for five years. Mr. Howard will continue the management of these businesses and Mrs. Howard will operate the grocery.

The drapery division of Kimball's Drapery and Upholstery has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Louder, Eden, and will be known as Juanita's Fabricators.

Everett Kimball will continue the operation of the upholstery department. Mrs. Kimball has accepted a position as interior decorator with a Twin Falls firm. The Kimballs will still reside in Hazelton.

Rescuers Find Youth's Body

OROFINO, Idaho (UPI) — Search parties Friday recovered the body of Daniel Hill, 16, Pierce, in mountainous, brush-covered country about 50 miles north of here two days after he was reported missing while on an elk hunting trip.

Clearwater County Sheriff LeRoy Altmiller said a ground crew of 35 persons came across the youth's body entangled in the roots of a large tree four miles east of Bertha Hill, where he had disappeared.

CHERRY BRIGGS PORTRAYS a little girl whose grandfather, Terry Donnelly, tells her a story of "Little Blue Bruin" in the Junior class skit given at Twin Falls High School Friday during the Bruin Day assembly. The story, of Little Blue Bruin and the Spartan, followed the Little Red Ridinghood theme, and while these two narrated the story, other class members, dressed as trees, bunnies, chair and dog, acted out the story of the Little Blue Bruin who was saved by the Bruin Spirit.

Shying Away From Ides Of November

Draft Reform

There's no chance for draft reform until next year for which the nation's young men can thank the Democratic majority in the Senate. When President Nixon first proposed draft reforms last May, public approval was immediate. Congressmen hailed the proposals as "overdue" and "urgently needed."

consider its position. Urging House approval, Rep. John E. Hunt (R-NJ) said the administration proposal was "the fairest and most understandable" procedure and required only a simple one-sentence revision in the present law. Senator Edward M. Kennedy called for sweeping reforms of the Selective Service act which he called a patchwork. He said all youths who wish to appeal their draft classification should be represented by attorneys.

So the draft apparently is becoming a political football and the failure to adopt the administration reforms continues unnecessarily the prolonged suspense that disturbs all young men of draft age.

WASHINGTON—There is good reason why members of Congress and others who approved the October 15 Vietnam Moratorium are carefully shunning the announced November 13-14-15 strikes, marches and demonstrations.

Indisputable evidence is accumulating that the masterminds of these affairs are hardcore Marxists and radical extremists whose real aim is revolution and not political protest. Their primary purpose is undermining and destroying the American system of democracy and free enterprise.

While craftily keeping in the background — using pacifists, religious, women and other respectable groups and elements to front for them — the leftist militants are keeping drum-tight control of all planning, organizing and bossing. They are making certain that complete domination is in their hands, and that they are setting the stage and calling the tune.

Sen. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., forcefully summed up this sinister situation in flatly charging it was Communist inspired and instigated. "The evidence is mounting," said the former Arizona Governor, "that this movement was spawned in totalitarian circles and designed to take advantage of the natural desire of all Americans to see peace achieved in Vietnam, and the war brought to an honorable solution. Even the use of adjectives is the same. All these elements resort to the same terminology: 'Immediate,' 'total and unconditional withdrawal.'

Those who wish to join in these activities are free to do so. Those in political circles who wish to lend their names and ostensible support are not prevented from doing so under the laws of our nation. They may, however, be treading dangerously close to a violation of their oath of office in being sworn to uphold the Constitution and to defend it from all enemies, both foreign and domestic.

Some of the Marxists ring-leaders are piously disclaiming intention to resort to violence. They have talked that way before — preceding riots and deliberate disorders and turbulent disturbances.

Saying one thing and doing exactly the opposite is an old story with radical extremists. Their long record is irrefutable proof of that.

Graphically illustrative of the various revolutionaries pulling the wires in the background are key activists of the Student Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam (SMC). SMC describes itself as "the student anti-war organization responsible for mobilizing high school and college youths across the country" in opposition to the war, for an end to the draft, for self-determination for black America, and for free speech for G.I.'s. SMC has announced it will conduct a "strike against the war" on November 14, and a "march on Washington" November 15.

Principle masterminds of these operations in the Washington headquarters set up for that purpose are three hard-core Marxists, as follows:

Carol Lipman, 24, national executive secretary of SMC, whose national headquarters is in New York City. Last year she was editor of "Young Socialist," a monthly published by the Young Socialist Alliance (YSA). The latter is the youth affiliate of the Socialist Workers Party, a Trotskyite communist faction that has been cited as subversive by the attorney general. Lipman has been a YSA national officer and is a member of the Socialist Workers Party. Before coming to Washington, she operated for YSA in Boston, Chicago, Detroit and New York City.

Danny Rosenshine, 24, another YSA veteran who has functioned in Detroit, Cleveland and New York City. He is currently a full-time YSA national organizer. Previously, he was national field secretary. In 1960, he went to Cuba with a group calling itself the Fair Play for Cuba Committee. Two years later he attended the Soviet-controlled Eighth World Youth Festival in Helsinki, followed by a tour of Russia. Early this year he again spent several weeks in Cuba.

An article published in the March issue of "The Militant," put out by the Socialist Workers Party, listed "40 communist speaking dates" for Rosenshine. In these talks, he acclaimed Castro and his brand of communism while condemning the U.S. in unsparring terms. Last year, he made an extensive speaking tour in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. As advertised in "The Militant," his topic was "From Student Revolt to Socialist Revolution."

Don Gurewitz, 23, active in the Washington and Cleveland areas. He has been an SMC leader and has taken part in YSA and SWP affairs. As an SMC national organizer, in charge of its recruiting campaign for the November 13-14-15 operations, Gurewitz is a member of the Washington Action Committee of the New Mobilization Committee (NMC) that is spearheading the anti-Vietnam activities.

Lipman, Rosenshine and Gurewitz have contributed articles to "The Militant" and "Young Socialist." Also, Rosenshine and Lipman have served on the editorial board of the "Young Socialist."

The September 1969 issue of the "Young Socialist" contained a lengthy article titled "YSA Program for the Campus Revolt." A post-type centerfold consisted of a picture of "Che" Guevara and the slogan "Smash Capitalism Now." The June 1969 issue of "The Militant" contained an article by Charles Bolduc, YSA national chairman, titled "Why Revolutionaries Belong in YSA."

"The Militant" regularly carries recruiting pronouncements for YSA under such headings as "Fan the Flames of Discontent — Join YSA."

The so-called November 13 Mobilization Day was concocted at the Communist-controlled World Assembly for Peace in East Berlin in June of this year.

That's where it all started — in the emphatic opinion of Sen. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz. Among those he cites as attending the Iron Curtain affair are Barbara Bick, national editor of the Women's Strike for Peace Newsletter, and Irving Sarnoff, Los Angeles, Peace Action Council.

ANDREW TULLY

J. W. Fulbright

WASHINGTON — Obviously, Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., had tongue firmly in cheek when he told reporters the other day he did not know until recently that the United States military is engaged in a "major operation" in the little kingdom of Laos.

Everybody else in Washington, down to your Aunt Nellie, knew about it and so it must be assumed that the ineffable Fulbright courteously waited until secret Senate hearings had got underway before mentioning this little adventure. (Little, that is, in comparison to World War I.) Fulbright, describing U.S. participation in Laos as "a well-fleshed-out war," has brought a predictable reaction from administration sources with his charge that the operation is being carried on without the knowledge of Congress. These witnesses have defended the secrecy, surrounding the activity as an effort to maintain the facade of the 1962 Geneva pact, which forbade the introduction of foreign troops into Laos. It is Washington's position that North Vietnam violated this agreement from the very first day, and that we had to get involved as a matter of international security.

That is the crux of this perilous situation, which is costing the American taxpayer up to $200 million a year. Since our involvement is a "secret," it is being master-minded by the Central Intelligence Agency, with the considerable support of the U.S. Army and Air Force and the Defense Intelligence Agency. Thus the administrations of John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson and now Richard Nixon have encouraged an exercise which could get us into another full-scale Asian war.

I expect this should be of considerable and anxious interest to families with sons of draft age or approaching that age. As for Fulbright's assertion that the military is being conducted without the knowledge of Congress, he must know he is politely talking through his hat. CIA activities are regularly reviewed by members of the House and Senate Armed Services and Appropriations Committees, and it is inconceivable that the CIA was able to conceal such information from these bodies.

Instead, there has been what might be called "patriotic" collusion between the executive and legislative branches. Three administrations and the U.S. intelligence community have persuaded the concerned legislators that it is in the national security interest to withhold information about the Laos adventure from the general public.

The attitude of these lawmakers was summed up several years ago by the respected Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga. "No," said Russell, "we have not told the country (about CIA operations) because if there is anything . . . it should be held sacred . . . it is information regarding the activities of this agency . . . Such activities, Russell added, are so delicate as to "chill the marrow of a man to hear."

Just so, Senator. But it is also a trifle chilling to a man's marrow to discover belatedly that these activities may have brought the country to the brink of war. Between them, the CIA and DIA have 500 assorted spokes in Laos. U.S. Army officers not only draw up battle plans, but accompany royal Laotian units into action. U.S. Air Force planes fly more than 300 sorties a day. CIA and DIA paramilitary troops lead Laotian forces on terrorist raids.

No. The policy of the U.S. government, created by John Kennedy and continued by Johnson and Nixon, just won't wash. It is a policy which makes of the intelligence community, notably the CIA, an instrument of our long-range international posture. It is a policy by which the executive and legislative branches have abdicated their constitutional responsibility to declare and wage war to a gaggle of spies.

Fulbright, who so often clutters up his utterances with gray matter, has put it in a black-and-white nutshell. "In a democracy," he told the press, "the people are entitled to know what is going on."

Speech Or Trade?

Does a citizen have the right to declare his mailbox off limits to offensive sexmail? We definitely believe he does. So did Congress back in 1967 when it gave persons the right to demand that their names be stricken from the lists of mail-houses dealing in such trade. Nearly a third of a million people have taken advantage of the law.

Now the Supreme Court has decided to review its constitutionality. Fourteen California companies claim it violates their free speech rights.

It makes no more sense that commercial enterprises have a right to promote obscene matter through the mails than that they do on television or radio. It should be recognized that smut is not "speech." It is trade. And just as drugs or weapons can be kept from transit if deemed harmful, so can be printed matter. The right not to be addressed with pandering materials should weigh at least as heavily as any alleged right to pursue a trade.

At the end of this coming January, a commission set up by President Johnson is to report to the President and Congress on the possible effects of pornographic materials on minors. Without anticipating its findings, it is still clear that many citizens are concerned over the possible effects of abnormal preoccupation with sexuality, especially in its deviant forms. Fourteen states and a number of cities are trying to deal with pornography with their own laws, because of the Supreme Court's previous refusal to treat smut peddling stiffly. Surely on the mails issue it can take a firm stand.

MR. SPECTATOR

On Incredible Idaho

The Idaho Department of Commerce and Development is publishing a new magazine on the basis of an issue every three months. It is a dilly and because Mr. Spectator happens to know the gal we would say that a goodly portion of the reason why the publication looks good is because of the efforts of the editor, Dorine Goertzen.

Mrs. Goertzen (wife of Vic Goertzen) was, for years, a resident of Twin Falls. It is another example of a talented person who just didn't have enough to do around here so she and her husband moved elsewhere where their talents would be more appreciated.

But, because this little story is about Mrs. Goertzen, we will leave Vic out of it. We knew Dorine as "Dolly" and, we might add, that was a long time before the "Hello Dolly" show was even a dream.

But looking at the second issue of the magazine — called Incredible Idaho — we can see the artistic talents of Mrs. Goertzen standing out like a sore thumb. It's just one of those things! Any publication Mrs. Goertzen becomes editor of just ends up being a good one.

A letter from Al Minton, executive secretary of the Department, tells us that the publication meets the long need for a state magazine. Subscriptions are being offered through the Department office in the State House at Boise — for $2.50 a year in the United States and $3 elsewhere. It will not be available on newsstands.

"We hope you like the magazine," he wrote. To which Mr. Spectator adds that anything Dorine edits will be liked.

So here's your chance to take care of a few Christmas gifts by ordering subscriptions.

No doubt about it, the publication will be verstile. The current issue is no exception. There is, among other articles, a fine story about the Falcons of Neil Sampson who is well known in the Magic Valley area; another yarn about the sand dunes a few miles from the Snake River in Owyhee county and easily accessible by road; the fishing opportunities and camping to in Hell's Canyon, and a story on Hemingway. These are only a few of the interesting things. There is much more. The magazine is well put together and the jacket is in color. There's a lot to interest anyone regardless of taste.

So, like we said, why not write in to the Department in Boise and send your money along for a subscription — either for yourself or a friend out-of-state?

NAIVETE OF THE YOUNG

Paul McCartney of the Beatles claims that reports of his death have been exaggerated.

Although the rock idol denies it, it seems that he was killed in a hushed-up auto accident a year or so ago and a look-alike substituted for him. To those who know what to look for, there have been all manner of clues attesting to the fact — for example, a black carnation in the phony Paul's lapel while the other Beatles have red ones in a picture of the group on a record jacket.

This reminds us of another "fact" that a teen-ager reported to us — that "they" are keeping John F. Kennedy alive as a human vegetable in a guarded hospital room in Dallas. You can't prove that "they" aren't, can you?

There are those who will click their tongues and aver that since so many young people have made new fads of witchcraft and astrology and are tripping out of this world in one way or another, it's not surprising that they should believe such nonsense.

But the young have no monopoly on credulity. There may be a Generation Gap, but Gullibility Bridge crosses it. After all, P. T. Barnum wasn't talking about today's kids when he said there's a you-know-what born every minute.

A SCIENTIST DREAMS

Dr. Athelstan Spilhaus, president-elect of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, says a mountain made of junk cars and covered with top soil could be built on the plains of Kansas.

It would be a thing of aesthetic beauty and would have the obvious advantage of possessing a metal reserve for future generations. Well, back to the microscopes.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Still No Black Capitalism

WASHINGTON — The latest shakeup in President Nixon's faltering program of black capitalism has saved Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans from potential political embarrassment but moved Mr. Nixon's campaign pledges to the Negro ghetto still further from redemption.

Stans breathed a sigh of relief this week when Thomas F. Roeser, a young Chicago corporation executive with superb Republican connections, allowed himself to be kicked upstairs out of the directorship of the Commerce Department's Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE). What the Administration had feared was Roeser resigning with a blast exposing the absolute failure to develop black capitalism since Jan. 20.

Saved that embarrassment, Stans also is relieved for the time being — of pressure for a program. Yet, failure to nurture Candidate Nixon's most innovative proposal cannot be laid at the door of Maurice Stans, an orthodox Republican financier III — equipped for creative undertakings. Rather, it is smy-undertakings. Rather, it is symptomatic of a brutal fact: the utter lack of interest in the Black ghetto by the occupant of the White House Oval Office.

Republicans who are interested in the ghetto were distressed early this year when Stans seized control of black capitalism by creating OMBE. They were reassured, temporarily, when Stans selected Roeser, 41, public affairs officer of Quaker Oats in Chicago, as OMBE's head. Roeser, a Republican partisan and ideologically a conservative, was an ardent Nixon supporter long before Miami Beach. At the same time, he had become deeply committed to improving life in the ghetto through civic work in Chicago. Thus, black capitalism was to him a golden opportunity to involve his party in the ghetto without departing from Republican principles.

Even if he had enjoyed full backing from Stans and the White House, Roeser would have been severely handicapped by OMBE's grotesque financing. Without any funds of its own, it depends wholly on the willingness of other agencies — the Office of Economic Opportunity, the Housing and Urban Affairs Department, and the Health, Education and Welfare Department — to transfer funds to OMBE programs.

Moreover, Roeser has had no cheer — leading section in the White House. Dr. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who heads the Urban Affairs Council staff there, is a liberal Democrat with little enthusiasm for wed-ding the Negro and the business community. Conservative White House aides seem bored by the ghetto. Not has any single Presidential assistant been given responsibility for black capitalism.

Undiest of all has been Roeser's relationship with Stans, his boss. When Roeser found $500 million in other departments' funds that could be used by OMBE and urged Stans to negotiate with his counterparts for their transfer, the Secretary flatly refused to venture into such boat-rocking activities. The substitute was a press release pledging that $301 million will be spent through next June. Where it will come from is anybody's guess.

Even worse was the conflict between Stans and Roeser over long-term strategy. As we reported three weeks ago, Stans blue-pencilled to extinction Roeser's plan for a quasi-public corporation to develop ghetto enterprises. Stans has not developed even a vague substitute in its place. To this hour, no blueprint for black capitalism has gone from the Commerce Department to the White House. Nor has Roeser distinguished his unhappiness with Stans's preference for press-agent gimmicks over substantive programming.

With Roeser violating the Nixon administration's unwritten prohibition against exhibiting too much zeal, his departure from OMBE was preordained by mid-September. Stans succeeded last week in avoiding Roeser's resignation by getting him to accept a "policy-making" job as his assistant for minority enterprise.

Roeser's successor at OMBE is Negro Abraham Venable, a non-Republican civil servant not expected to follow Roeser's example in prodding Stans. Actually, Venable is expected to be a black front man while OMBE is run by Anthony Chase, quietly transferred from Stans's own office to OMBE's No. 2 post. Chase, who ran for Congress from the state of Washington last year, is even less likely than Venable to cause trouble.

In fact, the only reason for hope is Sam Wyly, a very rich young (25) computer tycoon from Dallas who has been named head of OMBE's advisory council. Liberal-leaning Wyly, who personally contributed well over $100,000 to Richard Nixon's 1968 campaign, actually has access to the Oval Office — one reason why Stans was not overjoyed by his appointment.

Clearly somebody — perhaps Wyly — must penetrate the protocol curtain to stir the President from his solitary splendor and remind him of campaign commitments to the ghetto. Otherwise, the future of black capitalism will surely be more bureaucratic shuffles and no fulfillment.

BERRY'S WORLD

Personal OPINION

San Francisco — 'Paris Of The West' — Transforms Its Skyline With A Mountain Of Steel That Vexes Many

By JAMES O. CLIFFORD
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The "Paris of the West" is bidding to become the "Manhattan of the West," and not everyone is happy about it. San Francisco's famed skyline is being transformed by a mountain of steel and concrete construction in the biggest building boom since the reconstruction after the 1906 earthquake. The newest skyscraper is the 82-story Bank of America world headquarters, which at 779 feet boasts of being the tallest building in the West. But progress, but some label the such is the pace, and the "Manhattanization" planning, that the Bank of America building's claim to being the tallest will not last long. In the planning stage is a 60-story-giant for the Embarcadero Center, sometimes called the "Rockefeller Center West," which is being built on more than eight acres of San Francisco's long waterfront. Before that, the Transamerica Corp. plans a pyramid-shaped building that will soar 840 feet like a giant dance epp over the city's heart in 1972. It is this 45-story structure, topped by a 220-foot spire, that has drawn much of the fire of the critics, who feel the skyline is in jeopardy. William M. Roth, chairman of the San Francisco Planning and Urban Renewal Association, says such behemoths are threatening to overpower much of the city and its famed hills. At 840 feet, the critics of the Transamerica Building got off easy. The huge holding company originally planned a 1,040-foot skyscraper, that would have stopped only 210 feet short of New York's Empire State Building.

Solon Mulls Impeachment Of Douglas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford said Friday he is investigating charges against Justice William O. Douglas for possible use in an impeachment action should the Senate reject the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth.

Ford said he was acting on his own on the basis of a suggestion by other House members he declined to name.

Ford said the feeling of many members including himself was that if the Senate sets up new ethical standards in judging Haynsworth, the same standards should be applied to sitting justices.

He said he had instructed his staff to make a full inquiry into all published charges involving Douglas, and into anything else that may turn up bearing on his qualifications for the court.

An aide earlier discussed Ford's intentions.

Nixon Wrote Ho Before His Inauguration To Seek Peace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon wrote two letters to North Vietnamese leader Ho Chi Minh before his inauguration Jan. 20, apparently without the knowledge or consent of outgoing President Lyndon B. Johnson, informed sources said Saturday.

The first, written at Nixon's interim headquarters at the Hotel Pierre in New York City shortly after he was elected a year ago, expressed the president-elect's good will and eagerness to end the Vietnam War.

Delivered to Mat Van Bo, the chief North Vietnamese representative in Paris, by an unidentified courier, probably an American, the letter brought a reply from Ho that was similar in tone.

Nixon then wrote Ho a second letter. It was not known whether the North Vietnamese president ever replied to that message. Both Nixon letters were described as brief, simple and lacking in specific proposals.

Nixon made a brief reference to the two letters in his Vietnam speech to the nation Monday night when he said that "I did not wait for my inauguration to begin my quest for peace."

He said that "soon after my election, through an individual who was directly in contact on a personal basis with the leaders of North Vietnam, I made two private offers for a rapid, comprehensive settlement."

The letters preceded a Nixon-Ho exchange of letters last summer which Nixon made public during his speech. In that exchange, the President said, Ho "flatly rejected my initiative."

Sources said they believed Johnson, who had sent his own private messages to Ho by way of the U.S. and North Vietnamese embassies in Moscow, was not informed of Nixon's correspondence.

The American Broadcasting Co. White House reporter, Bill Gill, reported that when Johnson learned of the president-elect's letters, he told Nixon "to stay out of foreign affairs until he entered the White House officially."

The courier for Nixon's mid-July letter to Ho was identified by the sources as Jean Sainteny, a former veterans affairs minister under French President Charles de Gaulle and a French government expert on Indochina.

There is a danger that if the burden grows indefinitely the rewards for reliability, skill and energy will be too much dissipated by taxation and the underpinning of our prosperity shaken.

He complained that politicians and "so-called social scientists" have been unwilling to test honestly the practical consequences of such programs. "We have heard too much gaseous oratory and too much goosy gobbledegook," Jones said. "While dependency has bred dependency, frustration has bred violence and thousands of streets have become tiger walks."

He called for a turn to "pragmatism" as a guide for welfare programs and said the U.S. Chamber of Commerce's efforts in government job-training programs, minority business projects and educational programs are being revised to emphasize facts, rather than theory.

Laird Predicts Approval Of 19-Year-Old Lottery Draft

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird Saturday predicted a final congressional approval of a law to draft only 19-year-olds on a lottery system based on their birth dates.

Laird told newsmen at the Florida White House he now expects "favorable" action by the Senate on the House-passed bill.

The defense secretary noted the Senate Armed Services Committee will begin hearings on the draft measure Monday and said he was "glad to report" that several senators previously opposed to consideration of the bill now had changed their minds.

The President considers this a most important step because of the inequities that exist," Laird said. "Nixon is spending a working weekend 'vacation' at his Florida retreat."

Laird said the present system is "unfair" because potential draftees are vulnerable for seven years, from the ages of 18 through 25. A random selection of birth dates of 19-year-olds, as Laird Saturday predicted, would be available in the manpower pool, starting Jan. 1 under the legislation but he expected only about 250,000 draftees would be available in the manpower pool.

port from college educators and veterans groups for his proposal for a draft of the youngest first.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., previously preferred revision of the entire draft law which expires June 30, 1971. Laird said he was "hopeful" now that some senators opposing the bill had changed their minds.

Nixon was expected to wrap up his weekend Florida stay Sunday night and return to Washington for a heavy schedule Monday.

Minichiello's Italian Aides Quit In Dispute Over Case

ROME (UPI) — Accused airliner hijacker Raffaele Minichiello lost his two Italian attorneys Saturday but reportedly asked a former Italian premier to defend him instead.

The Italian news agency Ansa said Minichiello, a decorated U.S. Marine veteran of Vietnam, has asked Giovanni Lombardi, a senator who twice served as premier, to head his defense.

But Leone, contacted in the southern city of Bari, denied he had been hired as a member of Minichiello's legal team.

Earlier Nicola Lombardi and Vincenzo Simeolachi, two lawyers hired by Minichiello's father stepped out of the case in a reported disagreement with the U.S. attorney for the 20-year-old American who hijacked a Trans World Airlines jet from California to Rome.

A committee formed in Minichiello's native region of Avellino to raise funds for the defense, deplored the lawyers' resignations and said it still backed them.

The committee is headed by authoress Carlotta Mandel, who has blamed the hijacking of the jetliner on Minichiello's experiences in Vietnam.

Minichiello, born in Naples, emigrated to the United States six years ago and served as a Marine corporal. He faces a maximum jail sentence of 30 years in Italy if convicted on a string of charges lodged against him by Italian authorities, including kidnaping and assault.

Young Couple, 5-Year-Old Child Whose Luck Ran Out Here, Feel Twin Falls Is City Of Good Samaritans

A young couple en route from Seattle, Wash., to Connecticut has nothing but praise for the people of Twin Falls. Ronnie Washburn, his wife, Kathryn, and the couple's five-year-old daughter, Debra, were stranded without funds in Twin Falls Thursday. The Idaho State Police directed the family to the Red Cross, which in turn contacted the Veterans of Foreign Wars and its Auxiliary. As a result, the Washburns were lodged overnight in the Rogerson Hotel and have been provided funds to continue their drive to Stamford, Conn. Mr. Washburn, a disabled veteran, was working for Morrison-Knudsen in Seattle when he became ill and was no longer able to work. The Washburns started back for their home in Connecticut, but their money reached only as far as Twin Falls. "I just had to tell someone what good people there are here," Mr. Washburn said Friday morning, "and this is the only way I knew to do it." He said the highway patrol, Red Cross, VFW and auxiliary and the management of the hotel all were exceedingly kind to him and his family. Mr. Washburn said he should be able to return to work after a brief period. "I'm sorry to say we won't be coming back to Idaho," he said.

UNITED NATIONS AMBASSADOR Liu Chieh, right, of Nationalist China and other delegation members listen intently Friday as Communist China's southern neighbors, Nepal and Pakistan, demand the ouster of the Nationalists and the admission of Red China to the world organization. The General Assembly concluded five days of debate on the annual issue of seating the Communist and will vote on the issue Tuesday. Others shown are, rear to front, Pao-nan Cheng, Ambassador H. K. Yang and delegate Sheldon S. D. Cheng.

Squeak!

SIENE, Italy (UPI)—Elephants afraid of mice? You'd better believe it. A mouse ran across the track as an elephant was parading past the crowd at the Orfei Brothers Circus. The elephant jumped for the wooden guard rail, which splintered under his weight. The crowd ran screaming for the exits. One woman was slightly injured in the flight before the elephant was calmed and the show went on.

Impala's hidden persuaders:

- ① 350-cu.-in. engine: A new more powerful standard 250-hp V8 makes the 1970 Impala move with all the more assurance. On good ol' regular gas.
- ② Anti-theft column lock: A locking system is built right into the steering column. When you take your key with you, you lock not only your ignition, but your steering wheel as well.
- ③ Aluminized exhaust system: It simply means that your original muffler, tailpipe and exhaust are going to last longer than you'd probably expect them to. Fair enough?
- ④ Side guard beams: They look like highway guard rails, and they're built into both sides of the car for extra protection in case of impact. Not too many cars have them.
- ⑤ Inner fender: Up inside every fender is another fender to protect against slush and mud and help keep your Impala looking young.
- ⑥ Flush and dry: We build the car so that rain and wash water can run down through the inside of the rocker panels, then out. Air follows to do the drying.
- ⑦ Full Coil suspension: Huge coil springs at all four wheels are four big reasons why a Chevrolet Impala rides smoother and quieter than a low-priced car has any right to.

The site for the fill is in the desert area northeast of Eden, Jack Grant, Hazelton, and Terry Burnett, Eden, are chairmen of this project.

Southern Baptist Conclave Set For Kimberly And T.F.

Emmanuel L. McCall, Atlanta, Ga., will be the featured speaker during the fifth annual session of the Utah-Idaho Southern Baptist convention, to be held Monday through Wednesday in Twin Falls and Kimberly.

EMMANUEL McCALL

'Manifesto' Deemed Best Church Story

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The Rev. Dr. Al Stauderman, associate editor of The Lutheran magazine, lists the Black Manifesto as the top religious story of 1969.

- No. 2 religious story of the year, according to the Rev. Dr. Stauderman, is the crisis of authority in the Roman Catholic Church. Others in the clergyman's list of the top 10:
- Improved relations among churches.
- Fellowship and closer cooperation among Lutherans in the United States.
- A new relationship between churches and the subject of taxation.
- The changing relationship of youth and the church.
- The war in the Middle East.
- The decline in church membership and attendance, but increase in church giving.
- The wars in Biafra and Vietnam.
- Continuing unrest on American campuses.

Space Expert Doubts Trek Toward Stars

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Man has reached the moon and will, eventually, travel to the other planets in his solar system but visits to other points in the universe will have to wait, probably for a long time.

Dr. Werner Von Braun, the former German scientist who helped make possible America's space program, told United Press International he knows of nothing which could feasibly send man to the stars in the predictable future.

Space agency scientists are currently at work on a number of new propulsion systems, Von Braun said. But there is only one working model of a new generation engine in the United States—and its thrust power is not "feasible" for star travel.

A nuclear engine (NERVA) using the fission principle—a controlled reaction like that of an atomic bomb—has been built but the presently existing prototype is too bulky for flight. A refined version, scheduled for test flight in the middle 1970s, is expected to be the workhorse which will land man on Mars.

The pastors' conference will begin at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the Trinity Southern Baptist Church, Twin Falls, and the Women's Missionary Union conference will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the First Southern Baptist Church, Twin Falls.

The annual session will begin at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the First Baptist Church at Kimberly. Rev. Dick Horn, Burley, will give the welcome. Rev. Lavoid Robertson, former Twin Falls pastor, will deliver the president's message at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Theme for the conclave is "The Living Spirit of Christ In Belief and Relevance."

Mr. McCall, the featured speaker, will speak both Tuesday and Wednesday at the convention. He was named as an associate secretary in the Department of Work with National Baptists of the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board in May, 1968, the first Negro named to the board.

At the time of appointment, he was pastor of the 24th Street Baptist Church in Louisville, Ky., where he had served since 1966. He is the former associate pastor of Joshua Tabernacle Baptist Church and professor at Simmons University, both Louisville, Ky.

He is a native of Sharon, Pa., is a graduate of the University of Louisville and Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, where he earned the bachelor of divinity, master of religious education and master of divinity degrees. He also attended Simmons University in Louisville, which awarded him the doctor of divinity degree in 1966.

His wife is the former Emma Marie Johnson and the couple have two children.

Featured speaker during the Women's Missionary sessions will be Alma Hunt, executive secretary of Woman's Missionary Union auxiliary to Southern Baptist Convention since 1959.

She is a native of Roanoke, Va. Miss Hunt was graduated from Virginia State Teachers' College at Farmville. She taught school in Roanoke until she became dean of women of William Jewell College, Liberty, Mo., in 1944.

She earned the master of arts degree in personnel administration at Teachers' College, Columbia University, and was honored by William Jewell with the Doctor of Humanities degree.

She participates actively in the Baptist World Alliance and the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs.

Her name is listed in "Who's Who in America" and "Who's Who of American Women." She has traveled to South America, Europe, Near East, Middle East, Orient and Africa.

There were 13,033,322 members of the Methodist Church in the United States in 1969.

Lose 10 lbs. in 10 days on Grapefruit Diet

HOLLYWOOD (AP) (Special) — This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. Thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories, plants and offices throughout the U.S.

Because this diet really works, we have testimonials testifying to its success. If you follow it exactly you should lose 10 pounds in 10 days. No weight loss in the first four days but you will suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 1 1/2 pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all, there will be no hunger pangs. Revised and enlarged, this diet lets you stuff yourself with formerly "forbidden" foods, such as steaks trimmed with fat, roast or fried chicken, gravies, mayonnaise, lobster swimming in butter, bacon, liver, mushrooms and scrambled eggs and still lose weight. The secret behind this "quick weight loss" diet is simple. Fat does not form fat. And the grapefruit juice in this diet acts as a catalyst (the "trigger") to start the fat burning process. You stuff yourself on the permitted food listed in the diet plan, and still lose unsightly fat and excess body fluids. A copy of this startling successful diet can be obtained by sending $2 to

Citrus Diet Plan
5211 W. Jefferson
L.A., Calif 90016

Money-back guarantee. If after trying the diet you have not lost 7 pounds in the first seven days, another 6 pounds in the next 7 days, and 1 1/2 pounds every two days thereafter, simply return the diet plan and your $2 will be refunded promptly and without argument. Tear out this message as a reminder. Decide now to regain the trim attractive figure of your youth.

The facilities will serve as center headquarters until the new Child Development Center building is finished at Harrison Street and Falls Avenue.

Soviets Use Castle For Youth Meet

SCHLOSSHOF, Austria (UPI)—A sleeping beauty of a castle is waking up to a new future as a meeting ground for the youth of East and West.

The man behind the idea is Nikita S. Khrushchev. The castle is Schlosshof, an 18th Century estate near this village of the same name. In the old days, Habsburg emperors entertained their summer guests there and miniature sea battles were fought on its ponds to celebrate the victories of Prince Eugen.

Schlosshof is important today because it stands near the River-March, about 100 yards from the spot where the borders of Communist Czechoslovakia and Hungary and non-Communist Austria meet.

Because of this, Austria hopes Schlosshof will become the place where young people from East and West will meet to discuss the possibility of a better future and better relations—and what they can do about it.

Khrushchev, the former leader of the Soviet Union, suggested the idea of an international youth academy in neutral Austria when he came here in 1961 for his famous meeting with the late U.S. president, John F. Kennedy.

The plan has been a dream of Austrian Chancellor Josef Klaus ever since.

This October, Klaus finally felt it was time to propose the academy to the European Council in Strasbourg, France, so legal steps could be taken. A source close to Klaus said "response was overwhelming beyond hope" to his Strasbourg appeal.

The exact curriculum for the academy to be held has not been set, but Klaus is pressing. General elections are coming up in Austria next March, and nobody knows whether Klaus will be chancellor afterwards. So he wants to get the academy in swing before then. Authorities plan a research institute with teachers from East and West—at first from Europe only, later from all over the world—to deal with the "problems of youth, the generation gap and the outlook for the future."

COLDER THAN AN ESKIMO'S NOSE In the middle of winter is this cauldron of liquid hydrogen in which Charles Petrucci is cold-shrinking an anode assembly for an X-ray tube being produced by the Dunlee Corp., a subsidiary of the Picker Corp., at Bellwood, Ill. (UPI telephoto)

'Invasion' By Russians Stirs Interest In Famed Cambridge

CAMBRIDGE, England (UPI)—The Russians are coming! News of a Soviet invasion flashed around Cambridge—and it was true.

The Soviets came, set up a camera overlooking the famous old university where Prince Charles, heir to the throne, is a student. They laid electric cables, and they brought in great packing cases flown over by a Soviet technical crew.

Then—"action!" (or the Russian equivalent thereof) cried director Igor Talankin, and the camera rolled.

Innokentii Smoktunovsky, the great Russian actor who did the Soviet screen version of Hamlet, walked slowly across the college quadrangle. English students, hired as extras, gave a cheer.

The first Russian movie unit to film in the Western world was hard at work. The movie is "Tchaikovsky," brainchild of Dimitri Tiomkin, the Russian-born Hollywood composer who scored films like "Guns of Navarone" and "High Noon." He has achieved the first movie collaboration between Moscow and Hollywood by getting the Russians to make the film and Warners' to distribute it to the non-Communist world.

Most of the movie had already been shot in Russia but a 20-member skeleton crew flew to the West for location scenes in Cambridge, where Tchaikovsky received an honorary degree in 1893, in Paris, where his close friend, Nikolai Rubinstein, died, and in Venice, where he spent some of his most creative moments.

"It's wonderful," said Tiomkin over lunch—choice of ham or chicken—served to the Russians off the set in a church hall.

Office Details Computerized

NEW YORK (UPI)—Details will be processed a lot faster when computers take over daily office paperwork, according to the Business Equipment Manufacturers Association.

In the time it takes a typewriter to produce a stack of paper 20 feet high, a computer will turn out a stack 7,200 feet high—five times higher than the Empire State Building, BEMA says.

In fact, in the final stages of the week some cheering economic news and a big jump in American Telephone, the nation's most widely held issue, apparently pushed Vietnam off to the sidelines as the major market influence.

"The war issue has been temporarily removed as the overriding factor on Wall Street," commented New York Zindor of E. F. Hutton brokerage, "assuming there is no dramatic breakthrough on the peace front." Zindor said investors would shift their attention to the nation's interest rate structure.

On this topic, Milton Friedman, a leading economist, predicted that record high interest rates, primarily responsible for the market's deep slide early in the year, soon would come down.

This helped inflate demand. So did a statement from Gordon W. McKinley, vice president and treasurer of McGraw-Hill, that the nation's gross national product will surge ahead quickly in late 1970 after holding steady during the early months of the year.

As for Nixon's Vietnam speech, Herman Roseman of Argus Research Corp., an investment advisory group, said the market became "too optimistic too soon," and some disappointment was inevitable.

But he noted that Washington still was moving toward a gradual troop withdrawal and this is a potential bullish factor.

Eldon Grimm, senior vice president of Walston & Co. brokerage, said that while the investment community again was made aware that peace will be "a long painful process," the shock was not as great as it might have been due to earlier hints not to expect a surprise peace announcement.

The UPI marketwide indicator gained 0.90 per cent to 110.28. Of the 1,745 issues crossing the tape, 917 advanced, 687 declined. There were 113 new highs set, and 49 new lows.

The New York Stock Exchange common stock index rose 62 cents to $55.07. Standard & Poor's index of 500 stocks added 1.02 to 98.26.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrials climbed 4.49 to 860.48. DJ utilities picked up 0.07 to 119.09, but rails backed off 1.04 to 199.16.

On the other hand, Corning Glass plunged 9 1/2 for no apparent reason, while Leconsa fell 0 1/2 after reporting a sharply lower third quarter net. Motorola slumped 10 1/2.

HOW FAR SHOULD WE GO IN URGING PEOPLE TO INVEST IN A CHOICE DIAMOND OR TWO?

A diamond's value is forever.

We are required to face this question every time there is a deep decline in the stock market. For invariably some friend says to us: "If I had only known what the market would do, I would have put some money into a beautiful diamond or two." Larger diamonds are never plentiful and their prices remain quite stable. In times of depression or recession, the diamond Central-Selling Agency in London—a co-op of most diamond producers—withholds diamonds from the market. What else is so well protected from serious price decline?

Most diamonds are sold to satisfy someone's "demand" (desire) for a diamond. But when a stock is sold it is usually because someone wants to unload it, get away from it. That there is a buyer doesn't alter the fact. We're glad diamonds are our business. Come talk to us about them: We cannot compare diamonds to other investments. You can do that. But we can tell you all you want to know about diamonds.

It's nice to own this most precious product of nature and of man's art. To know that people who could own anything they wished to own—have chosen precious diamonds for over 500 years! Nothing speaks so eloquently of your love—or of your own discrimination—as a fine diamond. And thinking it over, you might agree it's a true investment. Come in, appraise, decide for yourself. We won't urge you.

Newly Elected Mayor Of Shoshone Clarifies Stand

Questions On Halloween Are Posed By Woman In Jerome

Editor, Times-News: Would someone please tell me one, just one, good thing that comes from the observance of this day called Halloween? What is the purpose of it? To make out little ones conscious of witches and other evil spirits? Why would we want them to masquerade as such? Are they amusing or something to be honored? Paul, the Apostle, speaks against witchcraft in Galatians 5:20. In the Old Testament, in Deuteronomy, 18, verses 10 to 12, we are told that these things are an abomination to the Lord and yet we, a so-called Christian nation, observe this day every year until it is out of hand. Would you like to know the origin of all this? Read the following.

Halloween means Hallow's Eve, or evening. The eve of all Hallow's, or all Saints. It is a date noted on the calendar of both the Roman Catholic Church and the Anglican Protestant Episcopal Church in memory of the holy ones of old days whose names are known only to God.

Old superstitions and customs make the celebration of Hallow's eve colorful. Black cats, ghosts, witches and jack-o-lanterns are associated with this night.

The Irish have an old tale about the origin of jack-o-lanterns. A man by the name of Jack was not permitted to enter heaven because he had played practical jokes on the devil. So he walks the earth with his lantern up to Judgment Day.

The Druids believed on this eve, ghosts, fairies, spirits, elves and witches appeared to harm people. They considered cats sacred because they claimed that cats had once been human beings who were changed into cats as punishment for evil deeds.

Boys and girls in the United States look forward to Halloween so they can dress up and play tricks on people in the neighborhood.

Now does this sound like something a Christian can observe? Read the article entitled "Franksters Reported On Halloween" on the front page of the Sunday, Nov. 9, edition of the Times-News. At that time children go out begging for tricks or treats on this night called "Halloween." Think on these things.

Change Of Name For Bridge Is Supported In T.F. Letter

Editor, Times-News: In the Forum of a recent issue of the Times-News there was an article written by M. Anderson entitled "Name Change Is Asked On Hansen Bridge." As she states, there is confusion due to a bridge and railroad overpass having the same name. Several times as a result of this confusion, help for people injured in car accidents has been delayed. Let's correct this situation before more people die of neglect.

The first bridge built in this location was built because of need and the insistence of North Siders. The people on the North Side wanted to go to Twin Falls to a large shopping center and they paid their share of the bridge costs. Many farms on the North Side have babies buried in orchards because no doctors or hospitals were available at the time of their birth.

This bridge area is rich in history and could be made interesting to tourists. As it is to many tourists stop to look at the canyon and ask questions.

Below the bridge is Chinatown, a gold mining town of almost a century ago. And up the river is the area described by Historian C. J. Brosman in his "History of the State of Idaho." In his account of overland expeditions of the Hunt party in 1811 he speaks of sad blunders the party made when, at Fort Henry they decided to leave their horses and trust to the river the rest of the way.

In the words of the historian, "The voyagers in their crude canoes didn't realize they were attempting to float on one of the worlds most treacherous streams." At Milner, a canoe struck a rock in the rapids and overturned, drowning an expert steerman, Antoine Clappine.

Brosman describes this stretch of river as hemmed in for miles by towering cliffs and designated by the wron voyagers as the "Galdron Linn" and "Devil's Scuttle Hole." A year later another explorer said of Caldron Linn: "It's terrific appearance beggars all description."

Finding worse water ahead, Hunt abandoned river travel and the party divided. He followed in the general direction of the Oregon Trail, making the Hunt party the first white men to pass over the famous route.

Geologists would also be interested in this stretch of river. When the river is low, pot holes and tunnels worn by rocks can be seen in the river bed. This is dangerous water for swimming and boating.

The first bridge was named by W. F. Brewer. At that time he was a county commissioner and a member of the Budget Commission. Mr. Brewer writes: "I suggested we name it the Hansen Bridge as the town of Hansen was the nearest town to the bridge."

As M. Anderson states, people contacted approve of this bridge being named "Canyon Bridge."

Meeting Of T.F. Council Termed 'A Real Circus'

Editor, Times-News: If you missed the city council meeting on annexation last Monday night, you missed a real circus.

While the discouraged citizens of Twin Falls County pleaded for their case to be heard, the seven members of the city council put on a show of their own.

Mr. Bob Warberg and Mr. Frank Cook were silent the whole time, either deep in thought or half asleep. It was hard to tell which Mr. Eugene Stacey seemed to be in a world of his own, which consisted of concentrated efforts to make the perfect smoke ring from his cigar. As for Mr. Frank Feldman, it was easy to see the inner turmoil going on inside of him. It took all his will power, I'm sure, to keep from laughing out loud. Mr. Egon Kroil was dead serious and seemed to be listening intently along with Mr. John Angerbaumer while Mr. George Bennett was red faced and appeared to be angry with everyone in general.

Whether they actually listened or cared what any of the people had to say remains to be seen. Is this what we call a democratic government? I think not. You and I, the citizens of Twin Falls County, are going to have to take action to get the state laws changed so the people have a vote in annexation instead of leaving it up to the City Council to do with us as they please. Don't miss the next performance Nov. 17, same time, same place.

DORIS WOODLAND (Twin Falls)

SHOSHONE — Newly elected mayor for Shoshone, Ellwood R. Werry, has clarified his stand on the issue of a sewer system for the city.

Today Werry stated he reaffirms his pre-election statements on the subject "Shoshone needs a sewer system, not only for the future the city will be forced into a sewer system at a greater cost. I would like all phases of such an installation fully explained so that an informed public can express their views of the polls."

Mr. Werry, who is a retired postmaster here, campaigned for the election with a pledge that every citizen should know where every dollar of their tax money is spent, that every piece of equipment purchased should be advertised for bids and purchased at the lowest bid as required by law, that every individual be treated alike. He says "I don't believe in running a city on personal likes or dislikes by city employees, council or mayor."

He further states he feels city streets should be repaired according to needs and use, not any particular section of town given preference over another and that privately owned lots covered with weeds and trash be cleared as required by ordinance.

The new mayor says he believes city sidewalks should be taken care of as required by ordinance and that the laws on the books be enforced without favoritism. That a quarterly check should be made to enforce the dog license law.

He said he is free to devote more time to being mayor than most people since he is retired and does not have obligations to a job, and stated "I have neither job nor business and will be able to say no without fear of losing my job or losing a customer or patron for my business."

Mr. Werry received 218 of the 492 votes cast for office of mayor, defeating three other candidates for the post.

Thanks Offered

By Lions Club

On Eye Program

Editor, Times-News: On behalf of the two Twin Falls Lions Clubs, I want to thank those who purchased light bulbs in our recent house-to-house sale. My thanks also goes to all those who worked on the project, and to all the news media, which publicized the event and all others who worked to help make a successful campaign.

Fifteen years ago our local club started the house-to-house light bulb sales project with the motto "Buy A Light To Save A Sight." Wonderful public support over the years has made this the top local charity project of the Lions Club. Eyesight conservation is the main project of Lions all over the world. During these 15 years, we have spent nearly $18,000 for eye care and treatment of local needy persons. The Lions' motto is "We Serve." And we are grateful to be able to serve our community in this capacity.

We'll be around to your door again about this time next year and we look forward to your continued support which makes our efforts worthwhile.

ROGER MARSH (Twin Falls)

Rupert Woman Writes About Today's Religion

Editor, Times-News: Steven Minyen, 18, sent home from Washington High School, Alameda County, Calif., by his principal, Dr. Robert Callahan, as stated in the Times-News Nov. 5, for talking about God, deserves to be highly commended rather than reproached for desiring to talk about God during his lunch hour.

Is it possible that we, a Christian nation, are pondering the idea to stop a youth from conversing about God when at the same time thousands of our youth and school administrators alike are using God's name in profanity, not speaking of the multitude who lie in the gutter because they've rejected God?

I fear we are fast losing our source of strength that is spoken in Isaiah, 40:28-31, "Hast thou not known? Hast thou not heard that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? There is no searching of his understanding. He giveth power to the faint and to them that have no might he increaseth strength.

"Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall. But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint."

Were it not for our mighty God and his mercy, there would be no schools for it is He who created us in the first place and gives us every breath we take.

Isn't our search continually for Him? Then why do we allow our youth to take God as their partner. Next to God, Solomon was considered one of the wisest men of his time and it was he who spoke those words found in Proverbs 9:10, "The fear of the Lord is beginning of wisdom, and the knowledge of the holy (Holy One) is understanding."

Can you blame Minyen for desiring to talk about his creator and redeemer of his soul?

Regulations On Milk Bring Comments From Area Writer

Editor, Times-News: Many times, in fact too many times, the laws and regulations of this land are instituted by cunning men. Men that do not have the best interest of the people in mind. Dollars and cents swing more laws than sense.

The regulations set down in the raw milk code are a good example. They are written in such a way that in the eyes of the public, they think the Health Department is really doing them a favor by enforcing them. This is not necessarily so. Something the public needs to know is automatic machines (including pasteurizers) and all kinds of fancy conveniences by no means guarantee the cleanliness and quality of the products.

Recently I was forced out of business because of these unnecessary regulations. A business that was making a little profit because I was willing to go to a little more work to accomplish the end result they are trying to achieve by automation and conveniences. The accusations brought against me were brought out in an article printed in the Times-News dated Oct. 9, entitled "Man Charged With Violations of Raw Milk Regulations." Public forum space does not permit me to go into the detail I would like to, but I would like to make some things clear to the public. Try to change the opinion derived from the article that I am a dirty unsanitary fool. If you still have the article mentioned, please refer to it as you read on.

The charges said I was selling milk. This was not so, as the regulations forced me out of this last November. My customers each bought an interest in my cows and hired me to milk, house and otherwise care for them for so much a gallon for milk.

First charge—not suitable and sanitary containers. Not suitable to who? Not sanitary? I could at least get my hand inside to scrub it and not have to rely on a squirt of water to do the job. We could get the cream off the milk too!

No permit to sell. Why a permit when I was not selling? I had a permit to sell when I was selling.

No self-closing doors. My large and heavy doors were self-closing. Besides I can close doors. No separate rooms. Housewives wash dishes, cook and can in the same room.

No hand-washing facilities. My back porch and second bathroom are within 45 feet of my milk room. I go to the porch, take off my coveralls, step in the bathroom and wash my hands, return to the porch, fill a bucket with good hot soft water and return to the milk room to care for my milk. I don't mind walking a few steps.

Not labeling the milk "raw." When you go to obtain something, do you know what you are going to get? I certainly do. Especially when the place I am going to obtain it has only one product to offer. No container capacity. Those coming after milk and myself have a mutual trust in each other. They trust me to give them full measure. I trust them to take only what they say they take. The world truly needs more of this kind of trust.

Not bottled and capped in a sanitary manner by approved equipment. Approved by whom? Those using the product were satisfied. The machine used was the most remarkable and fantastic machine ever put together, a human being.

Finally may I bring something else to light? Grade "A" raw milk regulations allow a bacteria count of 50,000 per millimeter. The local health office tested my milk for a number of years. Only twice in all these years did my milk bacteria count rise high enough to be read on the tester which starts at 3,000. Also you and I both know that bacteria is the reason milk spoils. Come on out and get a sample of milk. (I still have one cow for my own use. I would wind up in jail if I took any money for it. A nice thought, don't you think?) Then get a sample from the large dairies, milk, pasteurized or not, set them side by side unrefrigerated and see which one spoils first. THIS is what you may call the tale of the test.

This is what I say should be the deciding factor as whether a person should be in business or not. As long as the test proves out, let a man run his business the way it will make a profit for himself and at the same time have a product that can give the people using it a little extra for their money. I defy anyone to be unsatisfied and have milk that tests out so good.

Sincerely a sad subject of a sinking society.

Documentation Offered For Comments On UNICEF Aid

Editor, Times-News: Last week the Public Forum carried a letter from Everett Gardner inquiring as to the documentation for my comments on UNICEF. Like Mr. Gardner, I am skeptical of any undocumented information so I believe his honest question deserves an honest answer. First, let me state that I will not sign my name to any statement that I cannot prove.

Regarding UNICEF funds going to Communist countries, documents from UNICEF itself bear witness to the fact that among those countries receiving funds from UNICEF are Albania, Bulgaria, Communist China, Castro's Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Romania and Yugoslavia. Also that in 1963, $10,000 was sent to Castro to purchase 26 jeeps and trucks and blackboards for 600 primary schools (it might be interesting to find out just what these kids are being taught).

Again in 1964, Castro received $230,000 for 52 more military vehicles and the spare parts to keep them in operating condition. I hope that the money that was left over was actually used for the food and medical supplies for which UNICEF claims the funds are earmarked.

According to page 9932 of the Congressional Record of June 19, 1961, $10 million was taken from the UNICEF Children's Fund to finance the UN Congo Operation. Somehow it seems tragically ironic that money collected to help children should be used to support mercenary troops who tortured and killed so many of the helpless missionary clergymen and nuns who were working exactly what UNICEF claims to be doing—helping the children.

My information comes from the following UNICEF publications: (1) UNICEF Financial Report and Accounts for the Year Ended Dec. 31, 1956; (2) "UNICEF Facts and Fallacies,"

Idaho PTA Considers Four Sex-Education Resolutions

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI)— Four resolutions dealing with sex education, two opposing it, one supporting it and the other calling for further studies of it, were to be considered by the Idaho Congress of Parents and Teachers Saturday during the concluding session of its 64th annual convention.

The latter two resolutions supporting efforts by the Idaho Department of Education to develop sex education programs and calling for more study of the controversial issue, were to be presented at the legislative session of the congress by its board of managers.

The other two were worded by local parent-teachers association groups.

The first resolution by the board of managers said that the congress supported the "principle of the need for access by youths to meaningful and carefully prepared instruction in human life."

The resolution supported control of curricula at the individual school district level and materials to be used should be retained at the local districts as should the right to reject all programs.

The more conservative resolution said that a study program should be established in three local units under the parent and family life chairmanship of the congress.

It was urged that "These units be encouraged to do a comprehensive study of family life education, identifying and selecting competent leadership utilizing community resources and developing materials, bibliographies and guidelines."

The groups would report findings to the board of managers for further study and recommendation before a sex education program would be instituted.

Coming out against sex instruction was a resolution from the Greenhurst Southside PTA which said that instead of a national or state program for sex education, the topic should be taught at home by parents.

The Plummer PTA noted in its resolution that "sex education is at this present time a very controversial and divided issue with no workable, tried and proven methods."

It asked that the Idaho State PTA "reject the use of any material as submitted, subscribed to or approved by the sex information and education council of the United States," a national group which encourages enactment of sex education programs.

Other resolutions to be considered Saturday included one urging that kindergarten be funded by the state and that of any kind from the court enforcement of a state supported kindergarten program be given top priority.

Another resolution called for making the state superintendent of public instruction position a non-partisan one and yet another resolution urged the legislature to repeal the tax limitation bill and give to local taxing districts the authority to set tax levies.

In action Friday night, the state PTA association installed officers for the coming year. New officers are Mrs. Morris Fuller, Boise, as second vice president, Mrs. Hugh Owens, Idaho Falls, as third vice president, and Mrs. Rex Morris, Idaho Falls, as fourth vice president.

Continuing as first vice president is Mrs. Floyd Kising, Dietrich, while Mrs. H.T. Plumb, Boise, continues for another year as state PTA president.

Court Bans Sketching At Seale Trial

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)— The New Haven County Superior Court has issued strict ground rules, barring even sketching, for the trial of Bobby Seale and 13 other Black Panthers in the torture-slaying of New York City Panther Alex Rackley.

With Seale involved in a federal trial in Chicago, no date has been set for the trial here.

But the court announced it would bar cameras, tape recorders and sound equipment of any kind from the courtroom, permit no sketches and have everyone attending the trial searched before entering the courtroom. No demonstrators will be permitted within 500 feet of the courthouse.

The rules, possibly the tightest in the state's judicial history, were drawn up by Superior Court Judge Aaron J. Palmer of Middletown.

Attorneys for the prosecution and defense, staff officers, sheriffs and other court employees already have been forbidden to discuss the trial with newsmen.

Rackley's body was found May 21 in a swamp in Middletown. The 14 Panthers were charged with murder, kidnaping and conspiracy to commit murder and kidnaping. Rackley allegedly was killed because he had turned informant.

Bruins Set School Loop Scoring Record In Walloping Minico 55-21

Senior Jack Robertson cracked in for three first-half touchdowns to point Twin Falls to a school conference scoring record Saturday as the Bruins belted the Minico Spartans 55-21. Five Bruins scored as Coach Norm Thomas' crew had easily their best offensive day with 538 yards total offense.

touted rushing game and held the Spartans to an unofficial 142 yards. The Southern Idaho Conference's leading rusher, Barry Rogers, was held to 69 yards in 16 carries but one of them was a 31-yard draw play romp that set up Minico's first touchdown just before halftime.

points against Highland. The 55 total points was one less than the "modern" record of 56 pushed up against Buhl two years ago.

Twin Falls dominated the game throughout with coach Thomas going to the Junior unit late in the third quarter. Minico then struck for two quick touchdowns, causing Twin Falls to return the starting unit for another score.

Arizona State Uses Speed To Slaughter New Mexico

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI)—Arizona State's speed-happy Sundevils erupted for 23 third quarter points to roll to a 48-17 win over fumble-plagued New Mexico Saturday in a Western Athletic Conference game.

Mexico fumbles into three touchdowns in the opening five minutes of the third quarter.

The Bruins scored the first time they had the ball, forcing a Minico punt and on the first play hitting a 35-yard pass from Ken Blake to Rick Semba. Two plays later Robertson went in from the 13 with just over two and one-half minutes gone.

Minico replied with a good drive, moving 73 yards on the running of Rogers and the passing of Albertson. Rogers' 31-yard scamper carried to the 17. Twin Falls six and two plays later Albertson quarterback sneaked in. Adams hit the first of three conversion kicks.

Texas A&M Stops SMU By 20-10

COLLEGE STATION (UPI)—Texas A&M sophomore tailback Steve Burks broke open a tight defensive struggle Saturday in the fourth quarter by galloping 37 yards to a touchdown and a 20-10 win over Southern Methodist.

Quarterback Rocky Self, another A&M sophomore, took care of the rest of the scoring in the first half by passing 23 yards to end Ross Brubacher and setting up a one-yard plunge by starting tailback Larry Stegert.

A Bruin fumble at the Minico 44 started the second Spartan drive with most of it coming on a 46-yard pass from Powell to Sheen. Powell sneaked that one in from the three.

A pair of pass interceptions followed with Bruin Mike Govia trying to throw a screen pass. The ball was batted by a line man and tackle Steve Tarz.

Florida And Georgia End In 13-13 Tie

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Florida kicker Richard Franco, who booted a 36-yard field goal at the end of the first half when he got a second chance, missed a 31-yard field goal with 15 seconds left Saturday as Georgia and Florida fought to a 13-13 tie.

New Mexico's point came on a 19-yard field goal by Joe Harthorn in the second period, a 26-yard scamper by halfback Steve Fuller in the wild third period, and a six-yard pass from quarterback Ricky Long to Tom McBe as the final gun sounded.

Francisco kicked a 21-yarder earlier in the fourth quarter before a record Gator Bowl crowd of 70,862 to tie the game after Georgia halfbacks Travers Paine and Steve Farnsworth scored on runs of 44 and nine yards in the third period to put Georgia ahead 13-10 in the third period.

Twin Falls came back with its first unit then, driving 31 yards after a one-yard, onside kick in five plays. Ochsenberger scored from the 21. The final Twin Falls score came on the speed of junior Robert Warner who took an option pitch from Govia, made two moves to get clear and then outsped everyone for 51 yards and the score.

TCU Knocks Off Texas Tech 35-26

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—The brutal second half running of Norm Bulalach, Marty Whelan and Sammy Rabb carried Texas Christian to a 35-26 victory Saturday that knocked Texas Tech out of contention for the Southwest Conference championship.

But Franco booted his last try short and to the left and Florida had to settle for the tie and a 6-1 record. Georgia is now 5-2-1.

Francis' second chance came just before the end of the first half when the Gators drove to the Georgia 26 after Skip Ahlury intercepted a Georgia pass at the Florida 17.

Cambridge Edges Past Richfield

CAMBRIDGE—An early pass interception showed the Richfield Tigers behind 6-0 and they never recovered Saturday as they lost an "extra game" showdown to the Cambridge Bulldogs 14-6.

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—Quarterback Jerry Tagge fired up a Nebraska offense in the second half to give the Cornhuskers a 17-3 Big Eight Conference victory over Iowa State Saturday, the 100th win of Coach Bob Devaney's career.

Francis lined up for a fake field goal attempt and the pass was incomplete. But an official said he blew the play dead before it started when he saw photographers too close to the sidelines and the end zone.

Sickly Texas Squad Routs Bears 56-14

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Second-ranked Texas, unaffected by an epidemic of 24-hour virus, relied on fullback Bobby Callison and a host of other subs Saturday to trash winless Baylor 56-14 for its 10th straight victory—longest winning streak in Longhorn history.

Callison, one of 27 Texas players struck by the virus Friday, scored three touchdowns for Texas and reserve quarterback Eddie Phillips added two others to highlight the scoring parade that tied the Texas season record for most points scored.

Callison scored on runs of 11 and 37 yards, and Phillips got his scores on runs of eight and 10 yards.

Filer Strikes For Three Touchdowns In Last Half To Defeat Gooding 18-16

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News Sports Editor

FILER—Speed personified in senior Randy Shank turned the tide in the second half and handed the Filer Wildcats past the Gooding Senators 18-16. Shank scored on a pair of passes from Mike Hadley and provided the key yardage on two plays that carried the Wildcats to the third and decisive victory.

Over the first half neither team managed much offensively although each had three opportunities to score. Gooding managed an 8-0 halftime lead but Filer hit the next 18 points to move out of reach. The Senators passed their way to a closing touchdown.

Gooding then came up with its only consistent march of the day. Jeffries got key yardage on a good kick return and later on a keeper. Then Frank Krahn took over to hit two glance-in passes, the second for seven yards to Rawlin Stanley for the touchdown. Gary Gorrell got his second two-pointer.

Son Loses Tilt For Dad, 23-21

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UPI)—Wake Forest nipped Virginia 23-21 Saturday by scoring a safety in the closing minute when the son of Virginia coach George Blackburn intercepted the ball out of the end zone.

Junior John Blackburn, a second-string Virginia center, snapped the ball over the head of punter Hal Trentham with 1:01 left to play and the Cavaliers on their own 34.

Unable to pick up the ball, Trentham tucked it with his foot and it bounced out of the end zone for the safety.

Montana Cops Ninth Straight Win

MISSOULA, Mont. (UPI) — Second-ranked small college power Montana scored two second quarter touchdowns and the Grizzly defense raced up its first shutout of the season to defeat Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo, 14-0, Saturday afternoon.

It was the ninth straight triumph for the undefeated Big Sky Champions who will be seeking a bowl bid when they close out the season next week-end against South Dakota State.

Reserve fullback Jeff Hoffman plunged over from the three-yard line with 3:48 in the half and quarterback Ray Brum tossed a 51-yard scoring pass to end Tom McMahon three minutes later for the game's only touchdowns. Kicker Dan Worrall booted both conversions.

Idaho State struck again in the second quarter when Tyrone Watley belted the ball over from the two. A two-point pass-conversion failed.

Idaho gained momentum and scored again in the third quarter when reserve quarterback Dan Hall fired 15 yards to Bell for a six-pointer.

It was the Rebels turn to grab momentum and they ran off 14 points before the third quarter whistle. It was Hawkins to Kennedy on a 25-yard pass play and a three-yard keeper by Kennedy. The Rebels missed a conversion, but Mack "Cookie" Gilchrist ran in a two-pointer.

Going into the final stanza behind, 28-25, Idaho State turned the tables again on a 30-yard touchdown aerial to Bell from Hall.

The host Nevadans had the last gasp, with an eight-yard aerial from Kennedy to Larson. The kick was good.

For Las Vegas, Kennedy was 11-25 for four touchdown passes, plus the one he ran in himself. Hall was 12 for 94 for 102 yards and two touchdowns for Idaho. Bell caught five passes for 89 yards and two touchdowns for the Bengals.

Davis-Led USC Batters Washington State 28-7

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Workhorse halfback Clarence Davis ran for 196 yards Saturday to become the 10th man in Pacific 8 history to gain more than 1,000 yards rushing in a season as fifth-rated University of Southern California scored a 28-7 victory over Washington State.

Needing but 42 yards to reach the 1,000-yard milestone, Davis achieved that goal in the first five minutes of play. He carried the ball 34 times before leaving the game in the fourth period.

Sophomore quarterback Jimmy Jones ran for two second-half touchdowns while Davis added one score and Mike Berry tallied another for the Trojans.

The Cougars, hampered by fumbles, scored their only touchdown in the second period with halfback Bob Ewen going five yards to tally.

In the first quarter, a Cougar fumble gave the Trojans the ball on the 48 and USC scored in 12 plays with Berry going over from the three after Davis had carried six times. Another fumble gave the Trojans possession on the nine and Davis knifed over from seven yards out.

Washington State, after an exchange of punts in the second period, took the ball on its own 48 and under the guidance of quarterback Rich Olson moved 52 yards before Ewen tallied. The longest gain was a 17-yard pass from Olsen to Lee Saksdorf.

Defensive back Sandy Durko set up both of the second half scores on punt returns of 23 and 14 yards.

In the third quarter the Trojans marched 42 yards before Jones went over from the one and in the final period they moved 43 yards with Jones racing nine yards to the end zone.

Weber Uses Strong Ground Game To Overpower Vandals By 28-7

OGDEN (UPI) — Weber State combined a powerful running game with a strong defense to grab a 28-7 homecoming victory over Idaho before 9,395 fans at Wildcat Stadium here Saturday.

The Wildcats scored the first time they got their hands on the ball, driving for 38 yards in seven plays. Fullback Jack Brown went the last two yards on a plunge with only three minutes gone in the first period. Jaime Nunez added the point after touchdown.

The touchdown was set up by a 45-yard return of the opening kickoff by Weber's Sam Gibson.

The Wildcats got on the board again about half way through the first period when James Edwards returned a short punt

Tennessee Runs Past S. Carolina

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Quarterback Bobby Scott threw three touchdown passes and George Hunt kicked three field goals Saturday to lead third-ranked Tennessee to a 29-14 victory over South Carolina.

The victory by Tennessee, the only unbeaten team in the Southeastern Conference, wasn't easy. South Carolina, now thrice-beaten but still the leader of the Atlantic Coast Conference, actually outgained the powerful Vols in total offense.

The Gamecocks, successfully shutting off Tennessee's usually potent running game, forced the Vols to go to the air. It was there that Tennessee made 214 of its 315 yards.

Tennessee took the lead in the second period on a 28-yard field goal by George Hunt, but South Carolina came back on a drive led by quarterback Tommy Suggs and went ahead on a one-yard scoring run by fullback Warren Mutt.

came on a 56-yard cross-country romp by Gibson with 4:11 left in the third quarter. Nunez added the 28th and final point. Idaho scored its only touchdown by driving 84 yards in 16 plays early in the fourth quarter. A 20-yard pass interference penalty against Weber State set up the Idaho touchdown as it moved the ball to Weber State's one yard line.

From there quarterback Mitch Lansdel went over for the score on a keeper. Rich Castillo added the point after touchdown.

'Antiquated' American Copyright Law Discriminates Against Writers Of Serious Music By Denying Royalties

NEW YORK (UPI)—The United States is the only country in the world that discriminates against composers.

Its antiquated copyright law is bad enough for the writers of its popular music, but it is even worse for the composers of serious music, who do not have record royalties as a cushion. These composers lose very little because in drafting the copyright law of 1909 the legislators decided they would have to be paid for their music if the performances were for-profit.

"You can't perform a play or exhibit a movie without the consent of the copyright owner even if it is non-profit," said Edward M. Cramer, president of Broadcast Music Inc. (BMI). "You can't reprint textbooks for school use without copyright liability. You can't copy and distribute works of art without license whether or not they are for profit. Music is the only economically important work that is singled out for this discriminatory treatment and it is practiced only in the United States."

BMI and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP) are the guardians of the rights of composers in this country.

"It sounds reasonable to say a non-profit institution shouldn't pay for music," Cramer said. "But if it holds an art festival it will pay for the plays, it will pay compensation for material used in the souvenir book, it will pay the musicians who perform. Only the composer is not paid. This strikes hardest at the writers of serious music, whose work is intended for schools and colleges, religious organizations and other non-profit civil groups."

Cramer said it was hoped a new copyright law would eliminate this discrimination. In the meantime, he urged widespread observance of the present rights of composers.

"A music educator who would reject in horror the idea of buying stolen instruments will distribute stolen property of another sort," he said. "That is, he will make copies of sheet

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — You'll be finding more fruits and vegetables wrapped in clear plastic film in coming months. A packaging film manufacturer estimates that 40 per cent of all produce sold in markets today is pre-wrapped. Within a year, that figure will rise to between 60 and 75 per cent, the company says.

This is clearly a violation of the copyright law, both civil and criminal and legally and morally it's precisely the same as any other form of stealing or using stolen property.

The law states that the copyright owner alone has the right to copy and sell his copyrighted work."

Philippines Schedules Seventh Election For A President; Marcos Given Chance

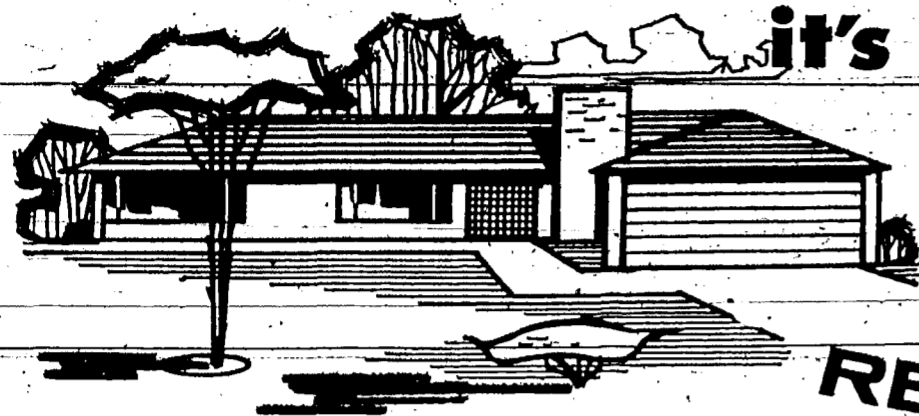

MANILA (UPI)—The Philippines, Asia's most democratic nation, will hold its seventh presidential election Tuesday, Nov. 11, with incumbent Ferdinand E. Marcos given a fair chance to become the first Philippine chief executive to win a second four-year term.

Marcos, 52, a handsome, articulate war hero, is the candidate of the Nacionalista party, which controls both houses of Congress. His major assets are a reasonably impressive first-term record and a beauty queen wife whom friends say is more attractive than Jacqueline Onassis and a better campaigner than Lady Bird Johnson.

The president is opposed by Sen. Sergio Osmena, Jr., also a Liberal party candidate. A slightly-built, soft-spoken politician-businessman, Osmena charges Marcos has made a batch of the economy.

"Vote for the economist, vote for Osmena" is his battle cry. There are no reliable opinion polls but most political observers regard Marcos as a slight favorite in this politically unpredictable land. Few are making bold predictions because at least two other presidents believed to be well ahead during the campaign were turned out of Malacanang Palace, the Manila White House.

An estimated 11 million voters will go to the polls from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday to choose a president, a vice president (voting is separate for the two offices), eight of the nation's 24 senators and all 110 lower House representatives.

Typical Teens Use Liesure Time To Help Local Retarded Children

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
 Times-News Feature Editor

It wasn't necessarily meant to be this way, but a group of Twin Falls high school and junior high school students are learning some highly valued lessons from retarded children of the community.

With the organization name of TORCH, which means Teen's Organization for Retarded Children, some 25 local teen-agers have found new understanding and meaning in their association with retarded youngsters in this area. This group, with very little public recognition, has been organized the past year and a half, a chapter of the national TORCH group.

They provide assistance to the local schools for the mentally retarded youngsters, but most important, says advisor Mrs. John Stevens, they add that vital social outlet.

Especially in the case of the teen-age retarded children, they can learn through association and observation of the TORCH members more about how to dress and behave in public than could ever be taught in school or at home.

What the TORCH members are learning, however, is equally valuable, organization officials say.

"We have learned to understand ourselves and other people so much better through the simple but meaningful expressions of these children who are much sharper than we sometimes give them credit for being," says John Warren, district representative.

All of the time and effort TORCH members give must be volunteered and, as Mrs. Stevens says, if the person is not willing and able to devote lots of time they are not going to maintain their membership very long. She said there are two things TORCH needs — more members and more money.

At least once each month a special social event or party is held for the retarded youngsters. These cost at least a limited amount of money and to provide this, TORCH members stage car washes, hold rummage sales and do all sorts of odd jobs on a year around basis.

As is usually the case, the best things are free. The TORCH members do many inexpensive things for the retarded children, sometimes no more than a friendly phone call in the evening to chat with the child.

They take them to movies to special theatrical productions in the area and sometimes just for a walk.

During summer months there is a special program for retarded youngsters at the city playgrounds. Here TORCH members donate time to direct and assist in recreational use of the playgrounds.

Special summer camps for handicapped and retarded children are held each year in Idaho, and TORCH members and their young companions are there.

"We use a buddy system," says Mrs. Stevens. "Each of our members teams up with one of the retarded children with whom the member seems to be most compatible. They join in social functions, go to movies and get together during special holidays or events."

BEING ABLE TO MAKE MUSIC is something many children find fascinating, especially those of the Happy Day School. Here TORCH members, Becca Hawes, left, and Anne Coxen give some friendly help to Rickey Feltman as he makes music.

ROLLING UP A PARACHUTE and even spreading it out to full size is therapy for children of the Happy Day school, but several more capable young people helping will improve their skill more rapidly. Time for such uncomplicated chores is one of the valuable donations of TORCH members.

She's No Watch Dog But She's Some Doll

Mrs. Jack Cox, Twin Falls, thinks she has the ideal pet in cats, and at that she is mostly soft white fur. Despite her size, she is quick and intelligent. If Mrs. Cox feels like playing with dolls, she needn't let it get lost in a good-sized shopping bag. "Jody" as she is called is full grown at six months of age, but she is still dressed up in some of her clothes.

She has a sweater and cap which she wears whenever she goes outside on a cool day and is probably more agreeable to being dressed up than most children. She also has her own bed, a doll bed she adopted as a tiny pup and which she still sleeps in at night.

DRESSED TO GO-OUT, Jody, tiny toy poodle shows her size as she sits beside a small modern telephone. The matching sweater and cap are worn whenever she leaves home on a cool day and her owner, Mrs. Jack Cox, says she never objects to getting dressed.

REQUESTS ANYONE? John Warren, back, district representative of TORCH, helps Marcus Hempleman, front, and Frances Ballis play music for their classmates. Only a small part of the time spent with the children is in the schools. TORCH members also call the youngsters at their homes, take them to movies and arrange parties for them.

DOLL BED, ADOPTED by Jody as a pup is still her favorite sleeping place at night. Complete with small blanket and pillow, the small doll bed is just about the right size for the tiny poodle owned by Mrs. Jack Cox, Twin Falls.

SHOOTING FROM BLIND is regarded as essential to waterfowling, although good hunter success often comes from "pass shooting" and "jump shooting" methods. Construction of duck blinds varies from merely a patch of dry weeds or cattails to elaborate shelters, whether permanently located or on pontoons, equipped with furniture and heating stove.

Duck Blinds On Public Property Belong To Everyone--Courtesy Urged Of Hunters

By JIM HUMBIRD, Idaho Fish - Game Department

Duck fever is a malady that helps keep waterfowl hunters warm when temperatures are 20 degrees below zero, and the only thing flying is snow. Duck blinds are shelters. The simplest types are make-shift screens of brush and cattails, twisted together. Others are camouflaged clubhouses with roofs, sidewalls, shelves for shotgun shells and coffee cups, benches and a place for a charcoal stove. Some hunters get so comfortable, as they wait for a can of stew to bubble, that nobody is alert, scanning the skies, tooting a duck call, waiting for a flight to wheel around and come down. Probably no two hunters will ever agree on what makes a good duck blind, but all agree it must blend with the surroundings. For example, willows are used for outside walls if that species of brush is found near the site. Fill-in materials can be cattails, rushes, camouflage netting, brown canvas, burlap or weeds. Many blinds are built with four posts at the corners, wire netting stretched all around and what-not woven into it. There are portable blinds available, fold-up models that can be carried in car trunks or the luggage space of a station wagon. Whatever the style, no blind can be built or set up on private property without the prior approval of the owner.

Every year the Idaho Fish and Game Department receives demands, some of them hotly worded, that "something be done" about various personal disputes over duck blinds. Such matters as a rule are outside the department's jurisdiction. Appeals sometimes are made for public discussions, hoping that some kind of voluntary agreement for solution might be worked out. This is a field of human relations that might well engage the interest of sportsmen's organizations at winter meetings. Actually, the "limiting factor" for waterfowl hunting in many areas now is a dearth of places to hunt, rather than a lack of ducks and geese. Private clubs have become the common thing, rather than the exception, in many areas. In some, they are the only means. States like Idaho, where nimrods can hunt free, are quite literally the last frontier. An informal uniform code, approved and adopted by organized sportsmen, is one way to increase freedom and reduce the friction of waterfowl hunting in states such as Idaho, where free hunting already exists. Voluntary agreements of this kind no doubt would help stave off the day when duck hunting in Idaho will be controlled and restricted "to members only"—for a price. Most of today's disagreements are the same old story. In early fall, before the season opens, a group of hunters select a spot and build a blind on it. When the season starts, other people get there first and take over. If the blind is on public land, the situation has the making of a first class argument because, oddly enough, there are about as many "rights" on one side as on the other. On private land, of course, there is no argument. The land holder can give or deny permission to build or use a blind. It should be emphasized that this control applies only to a site that is on private land, not to one that is on public land in front of, or cut off by, private land. Most duck blinds on the Snake, Payette and Boise rivers, where there are on public land, usually on a free island or strip of shoreline within meander of high-water lines. Here, the "rights" are a little harder to define. If the hunters concerned have a good code of ethics and fair play, no problem will arise. Common good manners will produce an easy agreement. However, a curbside opinion of the "rights" involved may help hunters in less amiable encounters understand why the other fellow may sometimes blow his stack in blind anger. In the first place, such a site on public land belongs to everybody. Construction of a blind on it cannot give the builder any real right to the exclusive use of the site under the blind. Nonetheless, when a hunter has gone to the trouble and expense of building a blind, he usually feels that his rights are being infringed if others use it. On the other hand, the builder did not have any "right" to put up a blind on such a waterfowling site, though (in the absence of regulations to the contrary) such construction is not stopped. The "other fellow" knows this and feels that his "rights" have been infringed because the beach belongs to everyone. This is the kind of conflict that does nobody any good. Many hunters avoid such deadlocks through an informal unwritten code which might be called "blind courtesy." For one, even post a notice in the blind, something that makes the following point: "This blind was built by John Doe and Richard Roe. We generally hunt on Saturdays and Tuesdays. Please feel free to use the blind at all other times, and leave it in the same condition you found it." Hunters generally concede that if a man builds a blind, he should have first priority if he wants to hunt some will not even enter a blind built by others. Most say that "visitors" should leave the blind promptly if the builders arrive while they are there. Also, some builders are generous enough to urge the visitors to stay, if there is enough room. These and other temperate views expressed by sportsmen help crystallize unwritten codes and customs to help prolong free waterfowl hunting in Idaho, and make duck shooting more fun for everybody. At any rate, the season is underway. Wings whistle overhead and the answering chuckle of a mallard hen makes the heart beat a little faster. Everyone may not have wall-to-wall carpeting or built-in ovens in blinds as the flights move overhead, but, in Idaho, there is enough room for every hunter to have the time of his life to put up a blind on such a waterfowling site, though (in the absence of

Outdoor Writer To Autograph Cook Book Here On Saturday

For the modern day sheep herder, outdoorsman, hunter or fisherman, there's a new must in cook books on the shelves of Sallie's Gifts and Books, Lynnwood Shopping Center. On hand there Nov. 15 to autograph copies of the "Old Fashioned Dutch Oven Cookbook," will be the author and outdoor cooking authority Donald R. (Don) Holm, currently wildlife editor of the Portland Oregonian in Portland, Ore. Mr. Holm will be at the book shop in person from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. to meet his readers and autograph copies. Born on the prairies of North Dakota, Don Holm grew up there and earned his first money by running a five-mile-long trapline in winter months while he attended grade school. He finished school during the depression and roamed about the world working at odd jobs, fishing and hunting in many areas and spending three years in Alaska just before World War II when he entered the U.S. Navy. He served until the end of the war and then moved to Portland, Ore., where he attended Portland State and Lewis and Clark Colleges. A free lance writer for many years, Mr. Holm has sold some 1,000 articles and stories, mostly on outdoor life, fishing and hunting. He has hunted and fished from Mexico to Alaska and is a concerned conservationist. His cookbook, dealing entirely with cooking suitable to the campfires, but also adaptable to dutch ovens in the home or back yard fireplace, includes such rare items as oven Fried Squirrel, Prairie Pea Soup, Bean Hole Beans and sheep-herder Bread. It also offers information on just how to prepare the fire for dutch oven cooking, whether it's baking corn bread or fixing stew. Sourdough recipes and making of the sourdough starter are all included in the book as are methods of preparing wild birds, fish and big game meat in the most tasty methods. Mrs. S. L. Turner, owner of Sallie's, said the book is the first of its kind in print and is already in demand by many local cooking enthusiasts. It is published by Caxton Printers, Ltd., Caldwell, and is dedicated "To Camp Cooks Everywhere." This is not just a book of recipes, it is embellished with some amusing stories, historical facts and an easy-to-read account of the author's personal ideas and experiences about many of the recipes.

DONALD R. (DON) HOLM author of a new outdoor cooking book, will be in Twin Falls Nov. 15 for autographing the book at Sallie's Gifts and Books, in Lynnwood Shopping Center.

The result, in the North and West as well as in the South, he said, is that boards are in running warfare with the communities, state governments, the courts and the federal Office of Education.

School Boards Face Court Action To Force Integration Under Supreme Court Orders

United Press International. On May 17, 1954, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that separate schools for black children, though supposedly equal to those for whites, were in fact inherently unequal. Defendant in that classic case, Brown vs. Board of Education, was quite obviously a school board. After 15 years elapsed and neither the letter nor the spirit of the original law had been observed, the Supreme Court acted again. This time it set aside its "all deliberate speed" doctrine and told local school districts to integrate "at once." The burden for implementing the new order once again fell on school boards, initially the 33 Mississippi districts named in the case that reached the high court and ultimately in all places where segregation still is preserved by law or administrative act. In a new book, "The Politics of Schools, A Crisis in Self-Government," Robert Bendiner says this about boards of education: "Of all the agencies devised by Americans for the guiding of their public affairs, few are as vague in function as the school board, fewer still take office in such resounding apathy—and none ironically is capable of stirring up the passions of the community to so fine a froth." Bendiner, a longtime political reporter now on the editorial board of the New York Times, found during a two-year study of school boards in 18 states that in the matter of integration they "are reeling under the responsibility for effecting a social revolution which by

The Money Box

By FRANK SCHELL

From J. W. Filer, Idaho: I have a coin about 3" across. It is solid copper and shows a woman holding a staff in her left hand. At her feet are vegetables, pears, mining equipment and a rake. Behind her is a steam locomotive, a steamboat, a factory and a steam electrical plant. It has "TRANS-MISSISSIPPI AND INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION, 1898, OMAHA, U.S.A." on it. It was made by S. D. Childs and Co., engravers, Chicago. Can you find out anything about this coin? Answer: This is a medal, not a coin. After the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago (1893) proved so successful, the Trans-Mississippi Congress, which was formed of representatives from most of the western states, decided to sponsor an exposition at Omaha. They organized an exposition company in 1896, but met with great opposition since the country had gone through a panic in 1893 and the droughts of 1894 and 1895 made people very cautious with money. However, some funds were raised by public subscription and they were granted $100,000 each from the county and state, with Congress supplying $250,000. The exposition was held on about 184 acres in the northeast section of Omaha, all of which is now built over, except for a small park (Hootze Park). The Spanish American War broke out in April of 1898; just two months before the Exposition opened, in June, and so much publicity was directed at the war a great many business-canceled their showings. However, 40 states and territories were represented, and 10 foreign countries entered. The Exposition Mining exhibits were outstanding, and Alaska sent specimens of gold from every camp there. The official medal was struck by the United States Mint, and pictures a beautiful woman's

American Education Week Calls Attention To Need For Parent Support In Schools

Education is a broad field and it touches every family in the community in one way or another.

To some it involves an effort to get the small children dressed, washed and combed and off on the morning school bus.

For others it may be only a poor understanding of why the school tax dollars must be so many.

This week, American Education Week on a nation-wide basis, is proclaimed in an effort to give residents of Twin Falls and countless other communities of the nation a better acquaintance and knowledge of the nation's school system.

Parents of local schools are being urged to take time to visit their children's classrooms and teachers sometime during this week. Although they are welcome at any time there is special emphasis through Friday of this week.

Grade schools will be anticipating drop-in visits from parents throughout the week and teachers will set aside time to visit with the mothers and fathers and explain the courses offered their children or cover any special problems the child may have.

At the high school, Wednesday night has been set aside for open house. During this time parents will visit the school for a regular PTSA meeting, then follow the regular schedule of their sons and daughters, visiting each classroom and meeting with teachers to discuss curriculum and class work, textbooks and other factors.

Parents of senior and junior high school students are inclined to be more interested in visiting classes under these conditions than to call during regular study time when their sons and daughters are in school, says George Staudaher, assistant superintendent of the Twin Falls District.

School teachers and administrators often feel they are carrying the full responsibility of the education of the young citizens of the community, says Milton Barrus, president of the local chapter of the Idaho Education Association.

It must be a two-way street with cooperation of the parents and the school teachers required to round out the full education needs.

Parents who were in school some 20 years ago will find many changes in curriculum, class conduct and building facilities. Mr. Staudaher notes transportation, financing, hot lunch programs and curriculum are constantly being revised.

There are now more than 70 subjects offered in the local high school from which the student has a wide choice in addition to certain required classes.

In many of the more advanced classes such as art, biology and chemistry, the student rather than the teacher sets the pace.

Now trends, Mr. Staudaher said, are to encourage the student to develop his or her own ideas, talents and abilities. For this reason advanced subjects for the more talented students are conducted on this basis with the teacher playing the role of a resource person or advisor.

An example is the advanced art program taught by George Walton where each student in the class may be working on something different. Wood sculpturing, pottery, modern art, pencil sketches and all other types of art work are usually going on at the same time. Assistance from the instructor is given only when needed.

Colleges are now making more demands on the high school education programs, Mr.

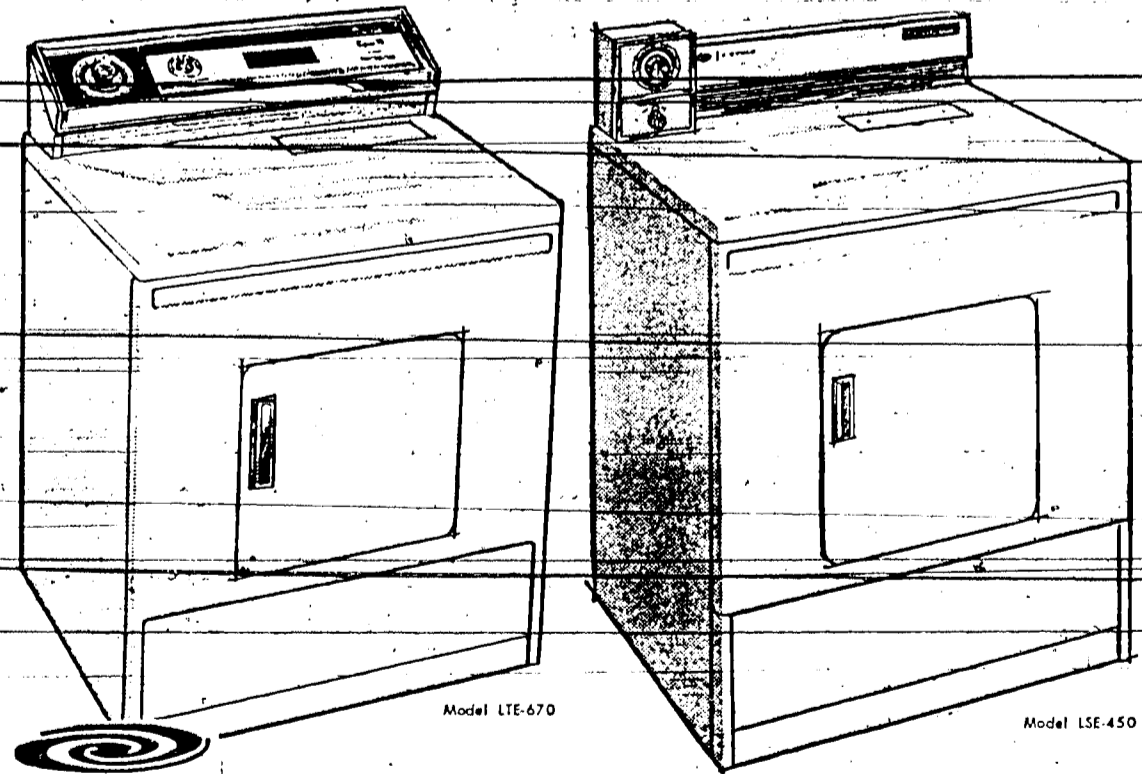

Staudaher points out, and as a result of this and student interest, curriculum must be upgraded from year to year. More home work is now demanded of the students and parental interest in such subjects as music increases training needs in these fields.

These are now (as of last Friday) 6,047 students enrolled in Twin Falls district schools.

Of these about 75 per cent will go on to higher academic college classes and about 15 per cent will seek vocational or other special job training. The small remaining 10 per cent will consist of young girls who become housewives after high school graduation of boys and girls who go immediately to work or into military service. School financing has also changed in the past decade, available costly equipment in small remaining 10 per cent will. See EDUCATION, Pg. A-13

Wood River Teacher Reflects On Views Of Summer's Study, Visits In Orient

By DOROTHY POVEY
Times - News Correspondent

HAILEY — A teacher of the Far West turned student last summer and went to school in a Far East university.

Jean Mizer, guidance counselor for Blaine County Schools, accepted a scholarship from Sophia University in Tokyo, Japan. She was one of 250 students from 45 countries enrolled for summer classes.

At the University, Miss Mizer enrolled in three classes, Comparative Religions of the Far East, Contemporary Japan, and Asian Studies. Outside of class, as well as during study time, Miss Mizer said she collected a conglomerate of impressions of Japan, ranging from the historic interest of the capital city, founded in 1456 to the modern tastes of Japanese life today with tastes for roast beef and pie a la mode.

As her University classes covered only part of her time, Miss Mizer and a cousin, Dorothy Whittaker, Willits, Calif., utilized morning hours to visit homes, stores, factories and points of interest on the Island of Honshu, and to get to know Japanese people and their country.

She also had an opportunity to visit the homes of two Japanese she had known here. She and her cousin were guests of Japanese she had known here. She and her cousin were guests of Yazoso (Joe) Suzuki in the suburbs of Tokyo. A former exchange student in this country, Joe attended school in Hailey for a time.

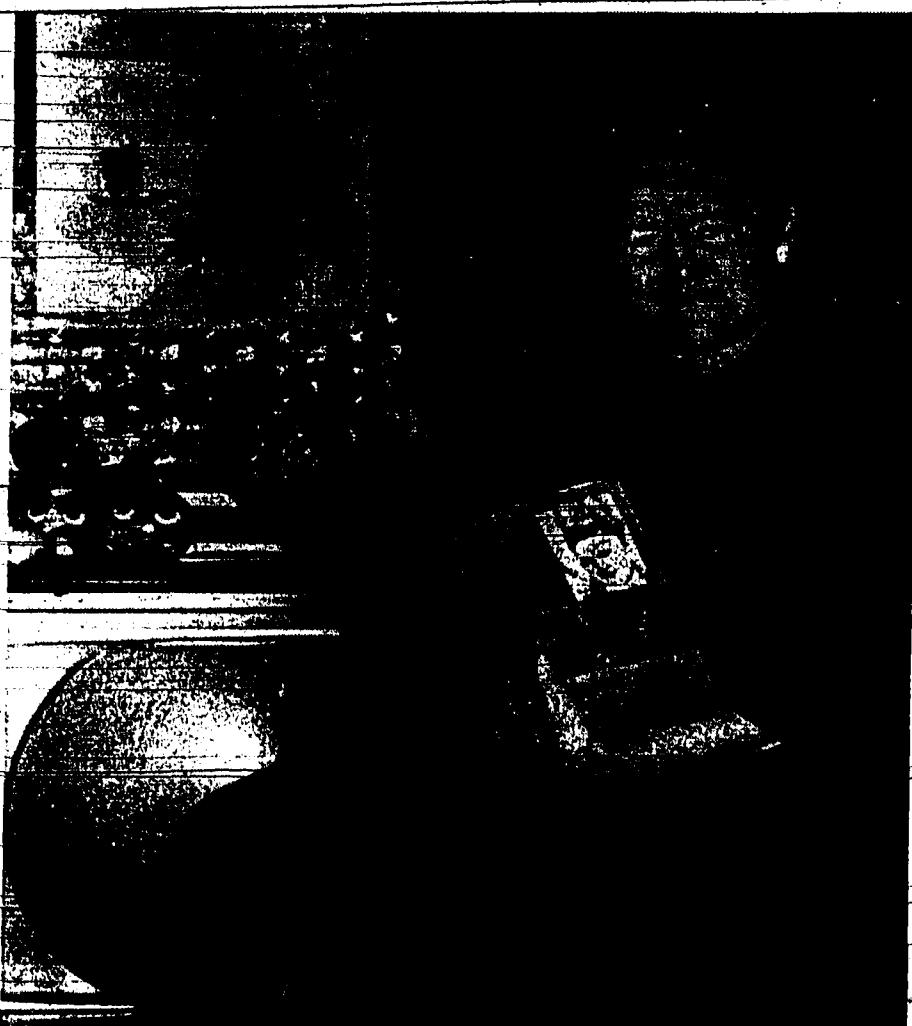

"Mrs. Suzuki, served the most delicious meals I have ever eaten, and without speaking a word of English, managed to pass many of her favorite recipes on to me," Miss Mizer said.

The students also visited Henry Matsumoto, a former mathematics teacher in the Hailey High School and well known local photographer. Just to make the Hailey resident feel at home, they were taken to the Nikko Katsuragikan Ski area and attended church in a chapel atop the ski house.

"Japanese are more comfortable in their living than we are," Miss Mizer observed. In the middle and upper class homes, the woman does not work. Her place is in the home.

"When the man's work is over, he returns home for complete relaxation and a bath in a small tub for cleanliness, followed by a larger tub bath in hot water reaching to his chin and for the sole purpose of relaxation," she explained.

Miss Mizer said old customs are changing. The public bathing with everyone using the same bath house has gone by the wayside as has the custom of having a lovely young lady scrub the public bath customer's back.

WHEN YOU CALL ON Jean Mizer, Hailey school guidance counselor, you might find her wearing a Japanese kimono and cooking her favorite oriental dish. It's all a result of her summer's stay in Tokyo where she attended summer school classes and toured the country. Her shopping tours resulted in the purchase of a number of souvenirs for herself and interesting Japanese items for her friends. She also visited the homes of two former Hailey residents, now living in Japan.

Japanese love food and eat well, but late in the day. The food seems to give them no weight problems, however, as all are of slender build, Miss Mizer said.

In her study of religion, the Hailey student said she found Buddhism, the principal religion, is a personal thing. The Japanese believe each man must find his own salvation by meditation and decisions must come from within oneself with no outside influence.

Miss Mizer marveled at the minimum of trouble in Japan, noting the people have a high degree of honesty and honor. The world's largest city, Tokyo, has 60 colleges and universities and more than 500 public and private schools and kindergartens, she said.

There are no ghettos and every inch of available land is planted to something—flowers, vegetables, trees or grass. Tokyo has three large parks and 50 smaller ones, all artistically landscaped.

From their window on the 17th floor of the New Otani hotel, built especially for the 1964 Olympic games, they looked down on the blue waters of the moat and colorful gardens of the imperial palace and on the Geisha House, surrounded by government structures.

"It seems the Geisha House was there before the modern new government buildings were added and no amount of persuasion or money could induce the owner to move it," Miss Mizer said.

In Japan, Miss Mizer found a large number of Americans and Europeans who have succumbed to the way of life of that country.

There are also many tourists visiting the island annually. Among ways in which Miss Mizer plans to put her summer's studies to use may be instituting traditional Japanese medieval theatre for the Hailey high school, and possibly a special class in this type of theatre study.

district representative; Rosalyn Wagner, secretary-treasurer, and Janet Matsuoka, vice president.

"Although we sometimes feel we have a long way to go to perfection," says young John Warren, "our TORCH chapter is making progress. We have been asked to work with other state chapters in demonstrating our program as a guide to TORCH members in such states as Washington and Oklahoma where TORCH is being organized."

excursions they gathered at the Episcopal Church later in the evening for games, refreshments and a costume party.

Next summer local TORCH members hope to hold a camp just for the local district children.

Another extensive plan for the coming year is a statewide Olympic Games program for the retarded children of the entire state.

Swimming, competition and swimming just for fun are already parts of the local program.

Anna Coxen, president of the Twin Falls chapter, points out the young TORCH members often become very involved with the program. Many have now decided to become teachers with their sights set on special education schools. Others feel working with these children has been so rewarding they will take training in physical therapy.

Even speech or other types of therapy in order to make their careers with the retarded and handicapped children.

TIMES-NEWS Book Review

By LUCILE WOLFE

Europe on Saturday Night by John Gould is the refreshing account of a European journey by self-styled, Maine farmer and his wife. They had no desire to hurry, so now their family had grown and married, the time had come. They planned to celebrate their wedding anniversary in Germany and had chosen the time of the Oktoberfest so they could be joined by German friends who had visited them in Maine and American friends who were also traveling in Europe.

They found it very simple to book passage by air or passenger boat but more difficult by freighter. Finally they decided on a German boat that would sail from Montreal on, or about the date they would be ready.

Their ship took 10 days to reach Hamburg, which to them was a treat as they learned to understand German from the crew and the few others who were on board.

In Europe they literally wandered as they pleased, first stopping in Wolfsburg to buy a Volkswagen at the huge complex where these cars are manufactured. The VW map that was given them with their car was their most prized possession as it listed hotels, restaurants, service stations and places of interest as well as showing all the country road they found so enjoyable.

This was not a conducted tour and no reservations were made in advance, so the Goulds stopped when and where they liked. The author's descriptions of the receptions they received in the various countries and the local food and drink are delightful.

Wherever they went, people were intrigued with Mr. Gould's Canadian French which he spoke with a New England accent, but he was always understood because they found the language of friendship is the same wherever you go.

In Italy they visited the man who owns a thousand truffle hounds; in Paris their visit coincided with the presence of DeGaulle for Armistice Day; in Germany they were entertained in the home of the artist, Will Lemm, who had been one of the passengers on the boat, and in France in the home of Roland Thevenin, poet and wine maker.

They loved the Black Forest, the Brown Swiss herds, the grape country, the fields of grain, the various local wines and beers, Alpine roads and Swiss chocolate.

The Goulds thoroughly enjoyed their visit to Europe, and you will too when you read the book.

DEPRESSION
At least 50 per cent of patients who visit a doctor complain of physical ills actually traceable to emotional upset, say two University of Michigan Medical Center physicians. The significance of depression, causing symptoms of physical ailments is too often overlooked, Drs. Raymond Waggoner and Raymond Waggoner, Jr., point out. The gastrointestinal and genitourinary are the systems most commonly involved.

SAGA Members Bridge Generation Gap

EARL BOEREM

... heads up the College of Southern Idaho SAGA Club as student coordinator. He spends part of each afternoon directing activities of its members. Success of the CSI SAGA Club may lie in the fact that its members are young people trying to help other young people. Because of young relatives to young there is no generation gap between the SAGA members and their contacts. Mr. Boerem, besides being a full-time CSI student, also is employed part-time. Many of the SAGA members spend several hours each week working with young people besides attending college.

Just how many young people have been reached through the SAGA program of the College of Southern Idaho is not known, but it's certain that each individual in the community who has come in contact with one of the college students will remember it.

SAGA (Starting a Generation Alliance) has been active on campus only since about mid-year of the 1968-69 school year, but the affect of the students' work in Twin Falls already is measurable.

They offer aid — not financially, but on a personal level — to each of the people they come into contact with. These people include the sick, poverty stricken, mis-guided or simply bored young people of Twin Falls.

In order to take advantage of the SAGA opportunity and get people involved, the field work was started first, and the organizational aspect partially ignored. While this did have some drawbacks, this year the organizational apparatus has been ironed out while members still have kept active in-out-reach standpoint.

Under the direction of Earl (Duke) Boerem, student coordinator, and faculty advisor James Adams, about 20 of SAGA's 30 members have become familiar faces to many in Twin Falls needing some kind of assistance or encouragement.

Mr. Boerem, who spends several hours a day in the SAGA office at St. Benedict's Student Center, also is a full-time student and is employed part time.

Many other of the members also are employed and most are full-time students, but manage to squeeze in several regularly scheduled hours a week working on their SAGA assignments.

In order to best serve the interests of the community and avoid a duplication of effort, each SAGA member is assigned to a particular area of need. SAGA works through several agencies in the community, including the Idaho State Employment Security Agency, local schools, Probate Court, Easter Seal Center, Camp Fire Girls, YM - YWCA and the Neighborhood Center.

"We're available," Mr. Boerem summed it up. "That's the most important thing — if someone needs us, we're here."

On an average the young people served by SAGA members are about junior high school age, up to just younger than the members themselves.

Working under the coordination of Mr. Boerem, are committee chairmen. They include Jim Utt, Rosa Skrudland, Elizabeth Nesbitt, Becky Meunier and Nina Knapp.

Miss Nesbitt works directly through the employment agency, following through on high school drop-outs or potential drop-outs who have been in to inquire about jobs.

She talks with about two such young people each week and offers them a little "boot strap" philosophy — first trying to encourage them to continue with school and then offering counsel on applying for jobs. "You'd be surprised about the fears some of these kids have. I didn't know what to wear to the interview" — usually it's some little thing like that.

One of the SAGA members has started a Camp Fire group for girls who do not have the financial means to organize their own, while another member has taken a group of junior high school boys under his wing and has helped organize wholesome activities to fill the youth's spare time.

Nina Knapp, who is chairman of SAGA's tutoring division, spends two afternoons a week with Ventura Salinas, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Salinas.

The boy, who had corrective surgery several months ago for a congenital back defect, is unable to attend school, but through Nina's tutoring, and tutoring by other volunteers, he has been promoted to junior high school and is taking courses through O'Leary Junior High School.

Ventura has been in a cumbersome cast and brace which limits him to either standing or lying positions. He has been in the cast and brace for five months after being hospitalized in Boise for two months. He is scheduled to return to the hospital this month to have a smaller cast put on and should be able to return to school in January.

Other SAGA members work with children referred to them through Probate Court and plan to initiate a "Big Brother" program with children placed into the custody of Harbor House. Although SAGA members admittedly find it difficult to tell immediately if their work with their younger contacts is going to have long-term affects, they feel time at the Easter Seal Center one small bit of encouragement assisting children with therapeutic exercises.

Mr. Boerem said SAGA is not necessarily limited to CSI students. "There's no generation gap and the group hopes for more involvement among young residents of Twin Falls. So nearly their own ages."

NINA KNAPP

... a member of the CSI SAGA Club has been tutoring young Ventura Salinas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Salinas of Twin Falls. The 13-year-old boy was born with a back defect and had surgery several months ago to correct the affliction. Because of the cumbersome brace and cast which he has worn for five months, he has not been able to attend school. By constant tutoring, however, he has been passed into the junior high school level and is taking courses, with Miss Knapp's assistance, through O'Leary Junior High School. A smaller cast will replace the old one this month, and by January, he should be able to return to regular classes.

Women's Section

ELIZABETH NESBITT

... CSI SAGA Club member works directly through the Twin Falls Employment Office. She contacts high school drop-outs or potential dropouts to urge them to continue their education or to just provide a shoulder for troubles to be laid upon. About two young people are contacted each week by Miss Nesbitt, who is a CSI freshman.

BECKY MEUNIER

... has organized a Camp Fire Girls group for a group from the South Park area of Twin Falls. The girls, under Miss Meunier's guidance, meet once each week at her home. Here Miss Meunier, a member of the CSI SAGA Club, is displaying to the girls how to reconstruct clothing into wearable items. The girls and their leader also learn songs, play games and just generally have a good time together.

JIM UTT

... as part of his SAGA activities, has taken a group of junior high school boys under his wing and helped organize activities for them. He assists, from left, Alan White and Dan Tuttle decorate for a dance at the YM-YWCA. Although he provided advice and counsel for the boys, most of the unique decorations were their own ideas and they constructed most of them unassisted. Young Utt, one of the most enthusiastic SAGA Club members, gets nearly as much fun from the activities he assists his young friends with as they do. He also has undertaken a project at St. Edward's Catholic School, teaching art there once a week.

JEAN DEVERS

... instructs art one afternoon each week at St. Edward's Catholic School. She and Jim Utt teach all seventh and eighth graders basic art skills during the classes which they volunteered to teach. Here she is instructing, seated from left, Todd Gillette, Casey Clements and Pam Burgess in making of collages. One of about 30 SAGA Club members from CSI Miss Devers is an art major at the College. The children in the art classes have realized a great deal of enjoyment from their instruction and also have created some attractive works of art. By teaching the courses Miss Devers and Mr. Utt also are gathering some valuable experience in art instruction.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK E. LEVERING JR.

Anita Johnson Exchanges Promises With LeVering

Anita Faye Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Johnson, Twin Falls, became the bride of Frank E. LeVering Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. LeVering Sr., Elma, Wash., in an Oct. 11 candlelight service at the First Methodist Church, Twin Falls.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. Harold N. Nye before an altar flanked with beauty baskets of long-stemmed white gladioli and shaded blue chrysanthemums, accented with greenery and large blue bows. Gold candelabra held pale blue tapers and white pew bows lined the center aisle.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of peau de soie satin, featuring an oval neckline, empire waistline, a lace overlay on the bodice and full lace sleeves gathered to a tight wrist band fastened with fabric covered buttons. The gown was designed by the bride and made by her mother.

The chapel length train of organza was fastened at the shoulders and featured lace scalloped and sequins. The bride's elbow length veil of silk illusion was held by a bow fashioned of the same fabric as the gown.

She carried a cascading bouquet of white gladiolus and light blue chrysanthemum tied with blue ribbon streamers.

Darla Johnson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Jamie Gothings, friend of the bride, and Kelly Johnson, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids.

Louis Spencer, Elma, Wash., served as best man. Dave Miller, Pennsylvania, was usher, and Terry Johnson, brother of the bride, was junior usher.

Candles were lighted by Mr. Spencer and Mr. Miller.

Mrs. Harold Nye played wedding music on the organ and also accompanied Joyce Guyer, soloist.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church fellowship hall.

The bride's table was covered with white linen and a long length flounce of organza and was centered with a three-tiered white cake decorated with white and blue flowers and accents of silver.

Four small white bells in front of a heart shaped background was atop the cake.

Silver candelabra holding lighted white candles also adorned the table. The cake was cut with a silver cake knife belonging to the bride's grandmother, Mrs. August Hestbeck, Murtaugh. The cake was served by Mrs. Laurel A. Windley, Salt Lake City, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. C. J. Ballard.

Coffee and punch were served from a flower centered table by Mrs. Gerald R. Hall, Oakland, Calif., and Mrs. Orla Hestbeck, LaMirada, Calif., both aunts of the bride. Members of the church also assisted with the reception.

Guests were registered by Cheryl Windley, Salt Lake City, and gift bearers were Judy Windley, Salt Lake City, and Janelle Johnson, Kimberly, all cousins of the bride.

Andrea Vanausdela, Fort Gordon, Ga., cousin of the bride, and Patricia Heughins and Diana Higginbotham, both Twin Falls, arranged the gifts.

Guest tables were covered with white and centered with large brandy snifters containing blue flowers and surrounded by blue netting and tied with streamers. Small snifters at each end of the tables contained lighted blue candles.

Special guests were Mrs. Hestbeck, maternal grandmother, and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Johnson, paternal grandparents of the bride.

Other guests attended from Washington, Colorado, Utah, California, Wendell, Jerome, Grandview, Kimberly, Murtaugh and Twin Falls.

A reception in honor of the newlyweds was held in Elma, Wash., hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

The couple is living in Utah where the bridegroom is stationed at Hill Air Force Base.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a former drug user or father abuser. I hope that some will view the dangers of "pot," a little more realistically. I shall recite my own experience:

I am a well-groomed, upper-middle class college student, not the typical hippie type. Most of my friends are "clean cut" drug users. You cannot recognize a drug user by his physical appearance. The girl who looks like a perfect lady may be as much of a "pot-head" as the long-haired hippie.

Drug abuse is an evil that has swept our campuses. Even the small town campuses are overrun. I would say that at least half the students have smoked pot. It doesn't matter what kind of homes they come from, the kids from the "best" families are users as well as the kids from lower class homes. In fact, I think more kids who have led sheltered lives are the biggest users.

I entered college wearing rose-colored glasses. I saw very little of the seamy side of life. Therefore when problems arose, I "copped out." From pot I proceeded to amphetamines. For a year I smoked pot to get "high" and I popped pills, too. I wasn't a constant user, but rather a sporadic user. A problem arose and rather than face it, I entered my "happy world" of pills.

But I was lucky. My brilliant, vibrant, beautiful friend was less fortunate. She died of an overdose of drugs. Ironically enough, her death saved my life.

I told myself to grow up and face reality with all its problems. My case is not an isolated one. Colleges are swamped with students like me. Remember, the first social pot party can easily turn the unstable personality to other drugs, stress, emphatically to those entering college. STAY AWAY FROM POT... and DRUGS. It is so easy to get hooked, and so hard to kick the habit.

PLEASE heed my advice. Learn from my experience, and remember, I was lucky. I am here to write this letter. My friend is not.

PEACE

DEAR ABBY: Recently I attended a wedding where the guests paid a dollar or more to dance with the bride. (Some lady guests paid the same to dance with the groom.)

We all seemed to have fun and I saw nothing wrong with it, but later on I heard several remarks from some of the guests who said they thought it was "bad taste."

I've since heard that this type of wedding dance is common in northern Maine and Canada. Have you ever heard of it? Maybe some of your readers up there have. I'd really like to know.

LIVE AND LET LIVE, BUT WONDERING

DEAR LIVE: Yes, I have heard of it, and the practice is not restricted to northern Maine and Canada. What is considered "bad taste" in some is accepted as "frivolous" in others, but if you're asking what I think of the idea, I'd have to say, "Not much."

DEAR ABBY: If you agree that Sunday morning is not time for friends and relatives to drop in unexpectantly for a visit you will print my letter.

Saturday evening is the only evening my husband and I have out, and Sunday morning is the only morning we can sleep late. We have all we can do to get ourselves to mass at noon. Now what can we do to keep people from ringing our doorbell at 9 or 10 o'clock Sunday morning? Don't use my name as I don't want any hard feelings.

BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: The first thing one must do in order to discourage unwelcome guests is to LET them know that they are intruding. If you are unwilling to do that, you'd better resign yourself to putting up with the inconvenience.

CONFIDENTIAL TO P. IN PENDLETON, ORE.: If you haven't charity in your heart, you have the worst kind of heart trouble. Give a little.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Split Personalities Of Italian Men Revealed

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI) — Men have split personalities in the Italian ready-to-wear collections for spring and summer.

During office hours, they are quiet and conservative in straight-cut suits with plain bell-bottom pants and narrow cuffs, jackets with flat-laying lapels and collars, in muted colors or textured white.

On the town and on their own time, they burst into a rainbow of bright colors and styles borrowed from the movies — this year's "Fellini Satyricon," or the hoodlum movies of Edward G. Robinson.

Baratta, able to show only five models because of strikes which held up production, made it a white night. Three outfits were loose white trousers with belted or sashed white blouses, a La Satyricon, with draw-string necks. The yoke of one blouse and the sleeves were covered with tiny rhinestone heart outlines. A white sports blouse had sleeves and belt in brown snakeskin.

Filippo Nativo showed the mafia look with a crushed navy velvet evening jacket, and Edward G. Robinson hats for day. Judging by the applause, his money-maker will be a blue twill business suit whose coat flap zips off. The matador jacket remaining zips onto the trousers for a double-breasted jumpsuit.

Ken Scott, the American designer who specializes in drippy fabrics for women brought out his first men's wear line with his usual show business verve.

Colors ran through pale green and pink to deep jewel and jelly tones, many in a linen velvet. Bright turquoise velvet with silver buttons on the vest was an eye-opener.

Scott had a few unisex numbers with identical suits, but preferred to coordinate more discreetly with the same print fabric for her maxi dress and his shirt, to go with the jewel color of his suit, conservative in cut.

Kitrico jazzed up open-necked jumpsuits with gold metal half-moon necklaces and a big navy blue shoulder bag that was just what this woman has been seeking for months.

Bazzarini eliminated collars and lapels from his jackets, let shirt collars or knit polo necks out prominently. A blue evening jacket had "lunar cutout" scalloping along the neckline, edged with rhinestones. Tommi Caraceni's models wore a wedding band earring in one ear.

60th Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated

KIMBERLY — Mr. and Mrs. Allen Tompkins were honored by their son and daughters on their 60th wedding anniversary recently at Hemet, Calif., with an open house buffet.

One hundred twelve persons enjoyed the buffet in the Valle Vista Motel Park recreation hall, decorated with white wedding bells, pink bows with white doves nestled in them and garlands of lily of the valley. The tables were enhanced with brass candelabra, complimented with floral centerpiece, sent by friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Tompkins were honored by many friends from their church and neighbors from their mobile home park, as well as friends and relatives from far and near.

Among the out-of-towners were their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Tompkins, Battle Mountain, Nev.; their eldest daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Dilts, Sheridan, Wyo.; their youngest daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. V. H. (Matt) Mathiensen, Long Beach, Calif.;

Mrs. Tompkins' niece and nephew from San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Simpson and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Paris; Mrs. Lela Turner, Hollywood, another niece; Mr. Tompkins' niece and husband from Camarillo, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cox; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Self, Santa Susanna, Calif.;

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sell, Hillsville, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Erickson, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Guyer and Mr. and Mrs. Bud Guyer, all Kimberly.

Mr. and Mrs. Tompkins formerly owned and operated a cafe and service station in Kimberly.

Reception Held In Honor Of

Gooding Couple

GOODING — A reception in honor of the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Jenkins was held Oct. 28 at the First Christian Church in Gooding, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Graves and friends of the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins were married Oct. 28, 1919, at Salt Lake City at the home of her mother, Mrs. C. A. Walker. In March, 1920, they moved to a farm west of Gooding where they still live.

The refreshment table featured a lace cloth over gold and was decorated with antique vaseline glass candlesticks holding white candles. The three-tiered cake was decorated with a white and gilt trimmed photograph of the couple and a white sugar book inscribed with the couple's names. A large pearl ornament featuring two doves topped the cake. Wide gold lace encircled the cake which was baked and decorated by Mrs. Velma Bissett.

Guests were registered by Mrs. Bob Johansen, who wore Mrs. Jenkins' wedding dress.

Wedding pictures and the marriage certificate were arranged in a display.

Serving at the refreshment table were Mrs. R.P. Bolte Sr., Mrs. Sam Simis and Mrs. Saul Redington, assisted by Mrs. W. J. Hale, Mrs. Jim Gill, Grandview, and Mrs. Jack Chigbrow, Burley.

Mrs. Don Carrico, Mrs. Vernon Miller and Mrs. Kenneth Scott, Lorenzo, furnished music. Special guest was Mrs. Jenkins' sister, Mrs. Neva W. Green, Spanish Fork, Utah, who was one of the witnesses signing the marriage certificate.

Other youths attended from Wilder, Bliss, Wendell, Boise, Lorenzo, Fairfield, Twin Falls, Jerome, Grandview, Glenns Ferry, Tuttle, Burley, Yakima, Wash., and Sunnyside, Wash.

Demonstrations To Be Given

JEROME — Demonstrations of how to make Christmas gifts and decorations will be the feature of the Jerome County Home Extension Club's "Holiday Food Fair," November 10 at the Jerome Armory.

Members and guests will be registered from 11 a.m. to noon. Baby sitters will be provided for 25 cents per child and each one is to bring a sack lunch. Each person is also asked to bring table service.

There will be a table of Christmas gifts and decorations on display.

"Good Buys"

FAIRFIELD — "Good and Bad Buys for the Housewife" will be given by Leo Stavres, Hailey merchant, at the meeting of the Camas Prairie Extension Homemakers club. He will have a display of groceries to demonstrate packaging methods. The meeting will be held at 2 p.m. Nov. 12 at the home of Mrs. John Gaskill with Mrs. Dave Howard as co-hostess. All women in the community are invited to attend.

Men's Fashion Upheaval Now Includes Matching Umbrellas

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lawrence Katz was looking around recently at the upheaval in men's fashions and decided to start one of his own. So now you can get men's umbrellas to match your raincoat—beige, dark green, brown, navy blue and even checks and plaids.

Katz, 58, is president of the Polan Katz Umbrella Company of Baltimore, Md., a manufacturer of fashionable umbrellas for women since his father found the firm back in 1905.

"Take a look at some of the new men's styles," he said. "The new double-breasted coats, the wide lapels, the fitted shapes, the new shirts and the wide ties. Why if you wear a black umbrella with them you might as well be wearing tennis shoes."

"You must have something that has the feel of style. If you're still wearing the old fashioned English tab collar with a new tie that is four or five inches wide you will look idiotic. It's the same thing with old fashioned umbrellas—and that includes the color, the fabrics and the handles which are real style items."

Katz also manufactures walking sticks and he predicts a resurgence in them, especially with their new designs and application. By application he referred to the shillelagh, the old Irish walking stick which is traditionally made from the blackthorn and is apt to be as crooked as a dog's hind leg.

"Think how it would look with the new weekend costumes," he said. "Wonderful for walking in the suburbs and it is good protection. As a matter of fact it might not be a bad idea to carry one in the cities."

But umbrellas are Katz's first love and he waxed enthusiastic at the thought of doing away with the tightly furled black English broly and replacing it with colors to match the new Spring raincoats—brass, copper, bronze, Apollo blue (lighter than navy), ivory, cornsilk, British tan.

He said he had been working with one raincoat manufacturer, Harbor Master, and as new raincoat colors and patterns emerge he will bring out umbrellas to match the coats.

The ones on view at the recent Men's Sportswear Buyers Show in New York were fairly subdued but will get less so as men get accustomed to the idea of colored umbrellas, he predicted.

"What if someone brings out a denim blue raincoat for the young man?" he asked. "We will bring out a denim blue umbrella. We're already experimenting with new colors and patterns, although now we are pretty much sticking to muted patterns."

But even if you insist on a black umbrella you can carry it in a fancy case, Katz told of some cases in checks and plaids in a nubby material that will give a lift to an ensemble. "And you could have a bold black and white check or houndstooth case with a conventional umbrella inside," he said.

Handles are a big thing in umbrellas from a style standpoint and he said the traditional handles of fake leather, malacca and whangee which is sometimes called bamboo might become a thing of the past "except for the old never-say-die Ivy League type."

Today's Trivia May Just Be Tomorrow's Antiques

Woman To Woman
By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—If you can't save money, squirrel away things—child's finger paintings, unusual plastic bottles, newspapers with momentous headlines and maybe even fanciful junk mail.

These things, a few decades hence, probably will have antique value. If you doubt that, you just haven't been to an antique show lately.

At the prestigious National Arts and Antiques Festival in New York, for example, magazines that sold for five cents in the 1920s were going for $5 apiece.

The artist's copy of a turn-of-the-century ad for men's clothing bore a $65 price tag. Old jars, bottles, tin tobacco cans, penny valentines and family album photos were priced from $1 up.

In the picture department, apparently those showing humans in lovable stances are more valuable than others. A photo of a man sitting on a front porch was 50 cents; of a girl on a beach, $1; of a male and female swooning into one another's arms, $2.

The ad for men's clothing showed a before (tattered toes) and after (dandy) sketch. This man by his wife's advice nicely," the ad read. "Reader, his advice to you is walk in and do so, too."

In the before picture, man held a note from his wife. It read:

"Be sure and don't come home without a suit from this store."

The old-fashioned certificates of merit from the school days of the 19th century, on display at the show, often were coupled with preachments. Samples:

"All that you do do with your might; things done by halves are never done right."

"God keeps the book of life; and there writes every wish and every prayer, there keeps our crimes and follies naut to rise in judgment at the last."

"Higher and higher, step by step. Knowledge is power."

The most caustic appeared to have been issued weekly and looked like checks but were decorated with flowers and doves.

"They look like money," one observer said. "Maybe the children did get money from their parents for a stack of them."

That's doubtful. Yesterday's parents, less permissive than today's, weren't the type to pay their children for doing well in school.

He bought one of our suits so

2 Valley Women Are Attending National Meet

Idaho women of the American Legion Auxiliary will be attending a combined meeting of the National Executive Committee and the Presidents and Secretaries Conference in Minneapolis, Minn., commemorating the 50th Anniversary, Nov. 9-11.

The American Legion functions will conclude on Veterans Day, Nov. 11, with a wreath laying ceremony, memorial service, a parade and a distinguished guest luncheon featuring the National Commander, J. Milton Patrick.

Salt Lake City Stylists Win Trophies At Burley Meeting

BURLEY — Trophy winners were announced at the close of the three-day session of Idaho Cosmetologists Association, Education and Trade Show over the weekend at Ponderosa Inn. Attending were cosmetologists from throughout Idaho and surrounding states.

The three trophies all went to Utah cosmetologists. Rodney Derrick, Salt Lake City, won the grand trophy for his hair style with Connie Derrick, as model.

The second place trophy was awarded to Joan Gudy, hair stylist, Murray, Utah, with Pearl Jorgensen, model. Linda Eyce, hair stylist, Salt Lake City, received the third place trophy and Maureen Aldridge was her model. Honorable mention went to Lee Eppeck, Ogden, hair stylist, with Dorothy Eppeck, model.

The hair styles were in the soft mood trend which was revealed by the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association meeting in October in New York City. A soft and free look for the holidays was stressed. The softness is in feel and appearance of the new trends, and the free part of the new look is one of spirit. It is in harmony with trends that have been influencing clothing fashions, as well as hair styles.

Harry Sellers, stylist; and Redken Laboratories and Clairrol.

National Beauty Salon Week was launched with the annual banquet. Mr. Mortensen served as master of ceremonies. Mayor Joe Peters awarded a Key to the City to Bessie Hoff, Blackfoot, ICA president, and welcomed the group to Burley. Musical entertainment was furnished by the Sweet Adelines, directed by Clifford Mullikin. Adell Marlen, Idaho Falls, Idaho Cosmetologists Association Chairman of National Beauty Salon week was in charge of the banquet arrangements.

During the evening a color parade was held with guest artists parading their models in hair colors which had been applied earlier in the day.

Included in the color parade were Clairrol and guest artist Hans of Vienna, and Helene Curtis, with Harry Sellers, guest artist.

Introduced at the banquet were ICA members who have belonged to the organization the longest time. They include Irene Hager, Boise; Margo Butterfield, Twin Falls; Verna McConnell, Boise; Hazel Bowden, Twin Falls; and Vaughn Heaps, Pocatello. Mrs. Hager is NBS Week chairman for Region I.

Watch Hand Tag When Buying Popular Knits

Knits are more popular than ever, so it pays to be up on them when you make or buy clothing, according to Mrs. Mary Lee Wood, clothing specialist of the University of Idaho extension service. She said more than half American underwear and a third of outerwear is knitted.

The price range for knits is wide. The best key to quality, Mrs. Wood says, is the hand tag. If there is none, don't buy the garment. Some knits can be dry cleaned only, some can be hand-laundered only, some can be washed in machines, and some can be machine-washed and machine-dried.

Examine the entire garment closely, advises the specialist. Keep an eye out for runs, holes, broken yarns and puckered zippers. They are indicators of poor material or workmanship. She also suggests you be sure seams are firm enough to hold without breaking when the garment is stretched slightly.

On bonded knits look for smooth surface with no glue spots. Also check for "bubbles" or "blisters" that may indicate separation.

Knits are popular, Mrs. Wood said, because they resist wrinkles. This makes them easy to wear. The "give" in the fabric means added comfort. Another reason knits are favored is that they come in a wide range of textures, weights and colors.

Betty Canary's

Perhaps you've always spent your clothing dollars with never a mistake, but most of us have vivid memories of a bargain-table sweater with a neck that stretched larger than the water band of the kicky pleated skirt that went limp at first laundering.

If women are ever to lose their collective timidity about demanding quality merchandise, this is the time.

As the children have grown and the dollar shrunk, I have learned a few lessons about my clothing budget, the main one being that an extra dollar spent can mean three or four dollars saved.

I don't know how it is affecting international trade agreements, but I try to buy only brand name, American-manufactured clothing. The sizing is true, the workmanship better

BRIDGE

By Jacoby

FIND RIGHT TIME FOR SAFETY PLAY

Today's hand or something like it will be found in any book on play and has appeared many times in bridge columns.

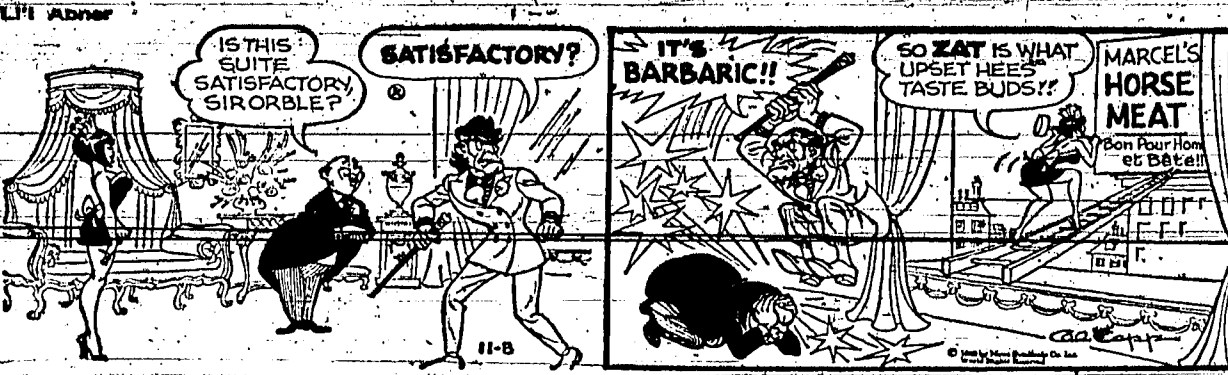

It shows one of the standard safety plays. Playing at six no-trump, South has no worries at all provided West does not hold all four clubs and he can guard against that by playing his king of clubs to start with. If East shows out, he can hold West to hold all four clubs. In that case the play will leave South in position to double finesse against East's queen-10 and our hero will make an over-trick and a top score to go with it.

Thus, a declarer in a duplicate game may decide that East is more likely to hold four clubs than West and try the dangerous play.

Our own feeling is that the safety play should be made in duplicate, as well as in rubber bridge. We don't believe that all tables in any duplicate game would arrive at six no-trump. Someone would bid stop short of six and we would not want to be the only six no-trump bidder with the minus score.

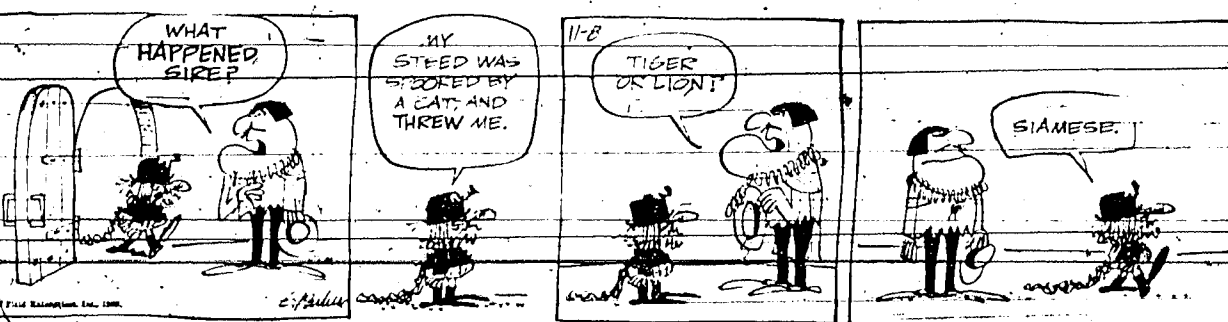

Oswald Jacoby, world-famed bridge expert and co-author with his son Jim of the popular Win at Bridge column, has written a 64-page booklet of bridge tips for Times-News readers. Copies may be obtained by sending 50 cents to Times-News, Box 489, Dept. A, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Please be sure to include your Zip Code.

one club trick. If West shows out, he can also hold East to one club trick. This should be an automatic play at rubber bridge, where the over-trick means practically nothing. But suppose this hand were being played in a good duplicate game. With modern point-count bidding, the six no-trump contact would be very normal and a declarer anxious for a top might start the club suit by playing out dummy's ace. With the hand in the box, he would wind up with a nice goose egg and a bad score. But suppose that East should er, Disabled American Veterans; Conrad Chisholm, Hayden Lake, department commander, American Legion; Walter Brannan, Boise, representing the Veterans of World War I; Lee Doellittle, Coeur d'Alene, department commander, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Gov. Samuelson; E. F. McCullough of Twin Falls, department commander of the United Spanish American War Veterans; Maj. Martin Young, USMC, Boise, is state chairman of the Veterans Day activities.

Samuelson Commends War Veterans

Idaho Gov. Don Samuelson, joining President Nixon "in expressing deepest gratitude and respect to servicemen and veterans," has proclaimed next Tuesday, Nov. 11, as Veterans Day in Idaho.

In his proclamation, Gov. Samuelson emphasized the "call to duty" that has "often led to loneliness, hardship, danger and for some, death," that has been answered by America's servicemen. "In response to that call, American servicemen have acted with unsurpassed valor and devotion and have demonstrated to enemies of freedom all over the world that free men and women will defend the principles of a free society," the governor's proclamation said.

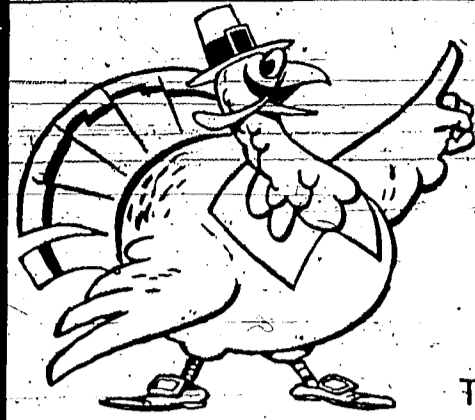

"I direct the appropriate officials of the government to arrange for the display of the flag of the United States on all public buildings on that day; and I request the officials of state and local governments, and civic and patriotic organizations to give their enthusiastic leadership and support to appropriate public ceremonies throughout the state," the governor said.

"All citizens of every age" are asked to "participate" in these observances in honor of those men who have preserved our Union and our freedom. "In addition, Gov. Samuelson has asked "special prayers for peace" to be offered.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—To keep unruly slippers in place, put a piece of plastic garden hose down in the cracks between cushions, seats and backs.

To prevent marks on the wall or other surfaces from tubular aluminum furniture, cut a piece of plastic garden hose in a spiral and thread it on the part that rubs.—JEAN

DEAR POLLY—Before sitting down to eat dinner, partially fill the sink with hot soapy water and put pots and pans in to soak while you eat. As each child finishes eating he is excused and puts his plate, glass and utensils in the sink. Enjoy a leisurely after-dinner cup of coffee with your husband, knowing that washing dishes will be a cinch.—MRS. S. C.

DEAR POLLY—An inexpensive way to decorate bathroom walls used by the young with way-out ideas is to cut pictures, words and odd shapes from magazines and paste on the wall like paper. Overlap them as they are put on. All sorts of effects can be attained.—GAYLE Polly pays a dollar for every idea used. Send them to her, care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—A raincoat for hiking or camping can be made out of a large garbage bag. Cut holes for your head and hands. Make sure the hand holes are cut where your hands stick out and not at the shoulders or there will be no covering for your arms. Make boots out of two bread wrappers and a hat out of a large plastic food bag. Roll it up a bit and put on your head carefully so it is not over your face.—ANNETTE

DEAR POLLY—I sew a lining of a plastic material in the pockets on my work aprons. A waterproof pocket is great when using wet cloths in cleaning.—GEORGIA

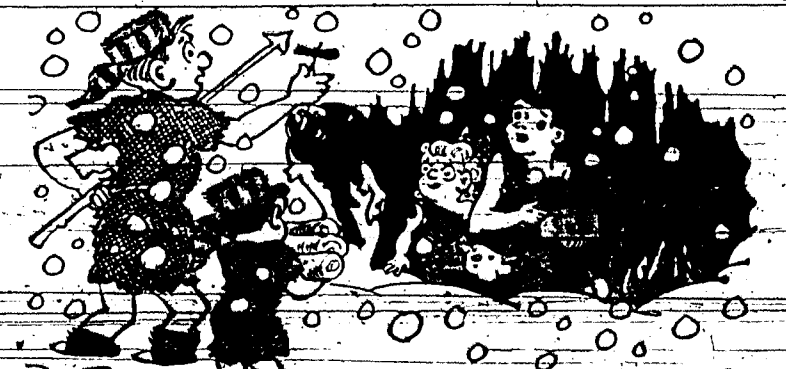

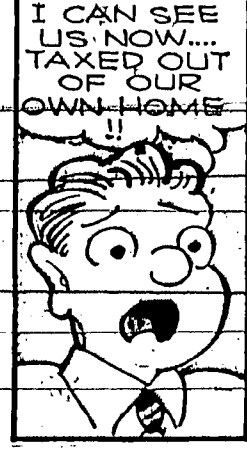

DEAR POLLY—We fastened our boat motor key on a fishing float. Now if anyone drops the key in the water it can be recovered easily.—T. J. W.

DEAR POLLY—When using your electric mixer, try placing the bowl on a pot holder on the counter. It will stay almost stationary.—MRS. J. W. K. Jr.

DEAR POLLY—When your soap pad has no more soap in it put some dishwashing detergent on the pad and continue to use it until you can get a new one.—DEBBIE

Ask Them Yourself

FOR J. ARTHUR HEISE, author of "The Brass Factories: A Frank Appraisal of West Point, Annapolis and the Air Force Academy."

It has been said that football is the game most like war. Why then aren't our military academies playing against the "big" teams as much as they used to?—S. A., Dallas, Texas

● Maybe it's the most warlike game, but it doesn't stimulate its "warriors" to stay in the Army. West Point's own studies—carefully kept unpublicized so far—show more Academy graduates who lettered in football chose to quit the Army than those who didn't. As for "big-team" competition, the academies are tending to de-emphasize the sport in lieu of more academic attention.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT SPIRO AGNEW

Is it at all possible that some day "Moon Day" will become an official national holiday?—Dawn Martens, Neptune, N.J.

● Legislation to this effect recently has been introduced in Congress.

FOR FANNIE FLAGG, comedienne

I have heard that you were Miss Alabama at one time. Is this really true?—D. R., Green Bay, Wis.

● Although I competed five times, I never did win. The bathing-suit competition was my downfall; I could never remember not to sit on those wicker chairs. I always did end up with the Miss Congeniality trophy, though. I'd tell each girl—I was going to vote for her, and naturally, they'd all vote for me.

FOR DR. GEORGE CRESSMAN,

Director, U.S. Weather Bureau

Do the jet stream winds blow constantly? At the same speed? Always from the same direction?—Rick McCarrey, Reno, Nevada

● The jet stream may be thought of as a tube containing high wind velocities, meandering around the hemisphere at altitudes usually ranging between 25,000 and 40,000 feet. During the winter months, when they are of higher speeds, three distinct jet streams may be observed from the sub-tropics to the pole. Normally, speeds range from 140 to 170 miles per hour and occasionally exceed 230. The direction can vary considerably but is generally from west to east around the hemisphere.

FOR ARA PARSEGHIAN,

Notre Dame Football coach

Do you favor having an overtime period to eliminate the tie games in college football?—Gr. J. Papard, Racine, Wis.

● Idealistically I do. Being realistic, it would be difficult to initiate because of unlighted fields such as ours. Travel schedules would also be a problem.

FOR AMY VANDERBILT

According to the rules of etiquette, what do the initials R.S.V.P. on an invitation stand for?—Cynthia Wasko, Buhl, Idaho.

● They stand for the French phrase: "Répondez, s'il vous plaît." Please answer.

FOR JOHN METZLER,

superintendent, Arlington National Cemetery

Who guards the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington (Va.) National Cemetery?—

L. R., Atlantic City, N.J.

● Since 1926, the Tomb has been guarded day and night by select soldiers from the 1st Battalion reinforced, 3rd Infantry (the Old Guard), stationed at Fort Myer, Va., which is nearby.

FOR DAVID CANARY of "Bonanza"

Were you in any other type show business before starting with the "Bonanza" television series?—Rod Giltner, Jerome, Idaho

● I appeared in three Broadway shows. I left a play in Los Angeles for a starring role in "Peyton Place" and joined Paul Newman in "Hombre." I also appeared in "St. Valentine's Day Massacre," plus numerous television series, before joining "Bonanza."

What in the World!

For Train Buffs Water tanks and coal towers have disappeared from the American train scene, outmoded by diesel and electric engines. For its recent tour of the U.S., therefore, Britain's legendary steam locomotive, the 47-year-old "Flying Scotsman," needed old-fashioned neighborliness. At 175-mile track intervals, local fire departments supplied water, while anthracite coal was dumped every 300 miles along the track. In 1934 the 100-ton Flying Scotsman was the Experimental Son Bachelor-about-town Bill Bixby, 35, talked with Family Weekly about his off-the-set relationship with Brandon Cruz, 6, who plays his son

"Father" Bill Bixby and "son" Brandon Cruz

on ABC-TV's "The Courtship of Eddie's Father." "I get many letters saying, how can you play a parent when you're not? Well, I love that boy, and he loves me. I take him to the park on Sundays. He used to imitate me studying the script; then he learned to read in a few months. I'm eager to have my own children." So when is Bill going to get married? "When I can no longer be not married."

New-Style Family Today's family, which changes home towns frequently, has new strengths and weaknesses, according to the Menninger Quarterly.

Weaknesses include waning convictions—to the child, parents without inner convictions are harder to identify with; isolation—they hardly know their neighbors and have no relatives to depend on; changing roles—Father emerges less strong and less available, and Mother less a homemaker than an organizer. New strengths include more freedom to express feelings between spouses; self-reliant children, each child having his own worth instead of the first-born or a son getting priority over a sister. Conclusion: the family, even on the move, will endure.

What Your Shopping Habits Tell About You

Always looking for a bargain, even if you don't need the product? Always first to own a new item? This reveals the real you, say psychologists

By JOHN E. GIBSON

HOW MUCH can you tell about a person's character just by watching the way he shops?

Plenty, say scientists who have studied the connection between shopping habits and personality. To match your knowledge with that of the experts, test yourself with this true-false quiz.

1. If you are among the first to buy new products on the market or wear new styles, you have a good imagination, a generous disposition, and are creative-minded.

2. People who buy things they don't need simply because they are bargains are likely to be neurotic.

3. If, when shopping for clothes, a person shows a preference for "cool" (green-blue) colors, he's likely to be an extrovert.

4. People who are always buying pain relievers usually have guilty consciences.

5. People with outgoing personalities have the least sales resistance and are the most likely to be sold things they don't really want.

6. If you see a man buying barbells or other muscle-building paraphernalia, this is a certain indication of a strong-minded, self-confident personality.

7. The kind of movie you're most willing to pay to see provides a hidden key to your personality.

8. A person's character is almost always reflected in the type of car he buys.

9. If, when shopping for food, a woman avoids many commonly liked foods, she unconsciously gives a clue to her character and personality.

10. Men and women who are big spenders but slow to pay their bills have a similar type of personality.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies conducted by a leading market-research organization show that people who are the most receptive to innovation have good imaginations, are creative-minded and open-handed in their relationship with others.

The study showed that people who are the last to buy anything new are traditionalists, who tend to be resistant to change and ultraconservative in their viewpoint.

2. True. A noted psychiatrist, the late Dr. Edmund Bergler, made a clinical study of the type of person who can't resist a bargain—even if it's something he really has no use for—and concluded he was definitely neurotic. Their bargain-happy behavior was found to be motivated by a constant need to outsmart or get the best of others. (Note: this finding does not apply to bargains the person actually has use for.)

3. False. Studies show that introverts tend to prefer "cool" colors in wearing apparel, while extroverted men and women are more partial to the "warmer" colors (shades of red, orange, yellow).

4. False. Psychological studies conducted at Rutgers University have shown that the biggest buyers of pain relievers fall into one of two personality categories: 1) anxiety-ridden hypochondriacs who magnify aches and pains which most of us would ignore; 2) people who really don't feel up to par but don't want to admit it because they hate the idea of having to go see a doctor.

5. True. It's important for people with outgoing personalities to be liked by others and to be considered a "good fellow." This personality type consequently often finds it difficult to say no. It's significant to note in this connection that studies by University of Pittsburgh psychologists also have demonstrated that people with outgoing personalities are more susceptible to hypnotism.

6. False. Psychologists at two universities—Harvard and California—made a study of more than 100 of these "biceps-happy" individuals and learned that they have the following traits in common: they felt shy and socially insecure and sought to compensate for these feelings by cultivating a muscular body.

7. True. Psychological studies at the University of Portland show that preference or dislike for various types of movies goes hand in hand with specific personality traits. For example, tests showed that people whose favorite film fare was musical movies tended to be impulsive, unworried, and fun-loving.

People who preferred historical or scientific movies tended to be more thoughtful, imaginative, discriminating, and deeply concerned with cultural pursuits.

Those who liked religious movies best tended to be strong-willed, tenacious, articulate, and liked to argue.

People who preferred crime movies were generally the most difficult to ruffle or upset.

8. True. Studies at the University of Chicago show that the person who thinks of himself as individualistic and "with it" (and likes to impress others with the fact) is apt to choose a flashy sports car, with all the extras he can buy.

If he's an impulsive individual, often prone to acting without fully considering the consequences, then an extremely bright-colored convertible (red, yellow) is likely to be his first choice.

The serious-minded, solid citizen type is most apt to choose a conventional four-door sedan in dark colors. And he'll skip most of the gadgets and accessories.

The fellow whose personality ranks him midway between an ultraconservative and a "swinger" is likely to choose a two-door coupe hardtop (unless his family is too large). He'll buy few accessories.

9. True. It's an indication that either she or members of her family tend to be nervous or lacking in emotional stability.

10. False. Studies at Washington University of the personalities of people who are slow to pay their bills showed that the men in this category differed markedly in personality from the women.

The women tended to be: adventurous, indecisive, rebellious, and unrealistic in their outlook.

Tests showed that the men, on the other hand, were sensitive, insecure, and inclined to such aesthetic interests as music and painting. ♦

Moon colonists will live almost entirely underground—yet perhaps face fewer dangers than New World pioneers.

WHEN THE astronauts set foot on the moon July 20, a wave of optimism swept mankind.

Vice President Spiro Agnew announced that by year 2000, men would stand on Mars.

President Nixon even more joyously said, "In the year 2000 we on this earth will have visited new worlds, where there will be a form of life."

Perhaps he meant Mars, too, for of all the worlds in the solar system, Mars is the most likely to possess some simple form of life (though even this much is not very likely).

Mars is not as easily reached as all that, however. It represents a giant jump beyond the moon. The moon is never farther than 350,000 miles away, while Mars is never closer than 35 million miles.

It takes three days for a spaceship to reach the moon, with a total round trip of about a week. It would take many months, cramped into a spaceship, for astronauts to reach Mars, and a round trip might take something like two years.

Are we ready for a Mars voyage? Will we ever be ready? Can we build a ship that will keep astronauts healthy, comfortable, and amused for a couple of years? Even if intrepid volunteers manage the trip once as a tour de force, how often would we care to repeat it?

But then is Mars really our next goal? Most people seem to think there's no alternative. The nearest world after the moon is Venus and that is far too hot for manned exploration. The next nearest is Mars. What else can we do, then, but head for it?

Surely, though, that is not all there is to space exploration. We can't go through space touching all the planets of the solar system as though they were bases in a cosmic game of baseball. What would the purpose of that be?

Do you think that once Columbus returned from having discovered the New World, old King Ferdinand said, "Well, that takes care of the Americas. Now let's go down and discover Australia."

Not the next step in space, after reaching the moon, is the same as the next step in overseas exploration after reaching the American continent. The new land, having been reached, must be colonized.

In some ways, the moon can be colonized in the 20th century more easily than the Americas could be colonized in the 16th. In those days it took many weeks of isolation to cross the Atlantic. Now it takes just three days to reach the moon, days in which the astronauts are in constant communication with home.

The Europeans, penetrating the new continent in the 16th century, had to face disease, wild animals,

A noted science writer,

Why We

hostile natives. The moon, on the other hand, offers no competing life at all; not even dangerous germs.

To be sure, the moon lacks air and water; it has a long burning day and a long freezing night; it lies under a shower of murderous radiation from the sun and a drizzle of small meteorites.

These are problems which can be beaten, given the present state of technology and its steady rate of development. For one thing, moon colonists need not remain on the moon's surface. A cavern carved beneath the surface could make a comfortable home, free of either radiation or the danger of meteorites.

Underground, there will be no slow alternation of day and night, and the colonists can set their own light-dark rhythm. Nor will there be temperature extremes; that applies only to the moon's outermost skin.

But what about air and water?

When we say there is no water on the moon, we mean no free-running water; no oceans, lakes, or rivers. But there may be water just the same; perhaps as underground deposits of ice or at least as molecules in loose chemical combination with the rocks themselves.

Water can be mined or baked out of the rock in quantity sufficient to supply the cavern colony with what it needs. Some of the water molecules could be split electrically to yield hydrogen and oxygen. The oxygen can be used for the cavern's air supply; the hydrogen can help feed the yeast cells or other quick-growing life forms which can serve as home-grown food.

Naturally, water and air will be cycled and recycled. The carbon dioxide formed in breathing can feed green plants, which will restore oxygen. The various types of human wastes, properly sterilized and distilled, will restore water, and the residue can be used as fertilizer.

This is not exactly a glorious prospect, to be sure. Few earthmen would look forward with pleasure to living underground in a precariously engineered environment.

But as in the case of the American colonies, we can be certain that, with the years, the moon colony will expand, develop, and grow more advanced and more comfortable.

And the added knowledge will be

Must Colonize the Moon

By ISAAC ASIMOV

Author of "Twentieth Century Discovery" and "Life and Energy" monumental. The moon's airless world would be an astronomer's dream. Here on earth, the skies are obscured by clouds and city lights.

On the moon, however, everything would be sharp and clear. What's more, the moon rotates at a rate only 1/30 that of the earth, so that the objects in its sky move that much more slowly and can be watched and studied without interruption for that much longer.

Larger radio telescopes could be built, too, and located on the side of the moon that forever faces away from earth. Without interference from earth's increasing output of radio interference, it could receive the dim crackling of radio waves from distant galaxies.

The moon's crust, attentively studied, can be a vast library of knowledge for us, for it is possible that some 4½ billion years ago, earth and moon formed out of the same cloud of dust and gas.

The earth's surface has, however, vastly changed since those early days. The wind and the sea have worn it down and overlaid it with new sediment. The action of living things has changed it chemically. Most of what we can reach of the earth's crust is not old at all, and what is old is so changed we can find little in it. It is all we can do to trace earth's past back about half a billion years, only a ninth of its total age.

The surface rocks brought back by the Apollo 11 astronauts seem, however, to be 4½ billion years old. The moon's crust, in the absence of air and water, is comparatively unchanged from the day of creation on. That crust will tell us all the history of our satellite, and all the early history of the earth as well, perhaps.

For instance, the simple chemicals in earth's air and water were built up and made more complicated by the energy of sunlight, billions of years ago. Eventually, they became complicated enough to possess the spark of life. Life spread over all of earth and obscured its very early chemical history.

On the moon, however, the simple chemicals are present in smaller quantities, and the process was slower. The growth in complexity has apparently stopped far short of life. The moon's crust may have preserved that early chemical evolution, therefore, and will then tell us things we cannot discover on earth. It may even help us understand some of the fundamental properties of life beyond the point where our earthbound research can lead us.

Astronomy and geology may seem ivory-towerish to the average earthman, but one can argue that all knowledge is useful. To lift the curtain of darkness in any corner of the realm of the mind is to brighten the light everywhere.

However, for those who lack faith in this view, there remains the strong possibility that the colonization of the moon will bring immediate material benefits.

Consider that the moon is covered with a vacuum. There are many processes that require a vacuum. There are electronic devices that must be evacuated if they are to work. There are techniques of plating, welding, purification, distillation, that require vacuum or are benefited by it.

On earth, the necessary vacuum can be formed but only with an effort, at great expense, and over limited volumes for limited periods. On the moon, the vacuum is there, an infinite quantity of it for all eternity.

It may be that the moon cavern will become a highly specialized factory, making and shipping to earth unusual devices and rare chemicals that could be produced only with difficulty, if at all, on the earth.

Nor is the vacuum the only unusual aspect of the moon's environment. During the long 354-hour night, the surface temperature on the moon drops as low as -245F.

That is much closer to absolute zero (-459F.) than the temperatures available on earth. Near absolute zero, certain types of miniaturized computers can be made to work with great efficiency; very powerful magnets can be constructed, which consume almost no power; and so on. Such devices can help our moon colonists supply them to earth.

One thing we cannot expect of the moon colony: it can't possibly help relieve earth's overpopulation problem. At the present moment, earth's population is increasing at something like 200,000 per day, and no one expects we can ever transfer that many people there.

Even if we could, the moon's cavern could not be expanded quickly enough to support it, and if that could somehow be done, then the moon would be as crowded as we in a few decades, and we'd be back where we started. No, earth's overpopulation is a problem that must be solved right here on earth.

Nevertheless, the moon colony can offer us the benefit of an example. It would be a small world that would have learned how to conserve its limited resources efficiently and how to keep down pollution. (It would have to have learned how or it wouldn't survive a week.)

We, on the other hand, have lived for so many thousands of years on a planet that seemed enormous without limit, that we never bothered to learn how to preserve it.

Most important of all, however, is the fact that the moon colonists will be used to a life unlike anything on earth, and this may be crucial in space exploration.

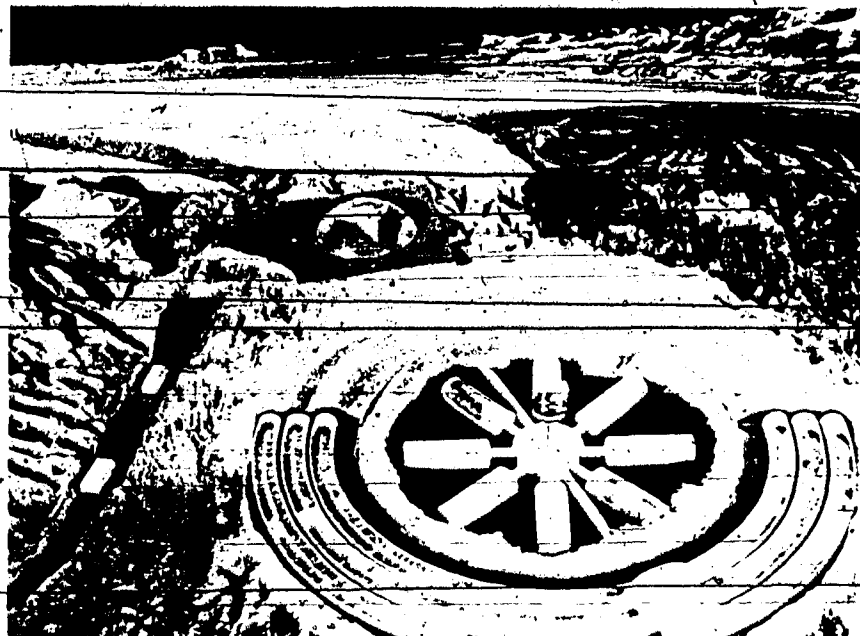

It is hard, after all, for earthmen to get into a spaceship and look forward to a journey of months or years.

The moon colonists, on the other hand, will be born, live, and die on the moon. They will be accustomed all their life to low gravity, and to surroundings that are artificial, and engineered. They will accept as normal the absence of free sunlight, open air, rain, and blue sky.

To a moon colonist, a spaceship would not seem so different. He would already have been living in a spaceship with the moon's crust as its walls. He would be giving up very little to move into a metal spaceship heading for Mars.

It is the moon colonists, then, not we earthlings, that could face the long voyage to Mars and beyond.

Yes, human beings can reach Mars easily (and not just as a one-shot demonstration) and can even reach life-bearing worlds as warm and pleasant as earth, if we go about it the right way—if we colonize the moon first. ♦

Here is a concept of moon living: bio-water tanks are arranged in a cluster, connecting living quarters, medical center, leisure areas, and work center.

A Medical Marvel in Your Kitchen—the Ice Cube!

It deadens pain, retards bleeding and infection; it's safe and inexpensive—something you should learn to use in common household emergencies

By JACK B. KEMMERER

SUPPOSE someone told you of an exciting new drug which kills pain almost instantly, helps control bleeding, is completely safe, prevents infection—and costs practically nothing.

You would demand to know the name of this exciting new wonder drug. Yet, without a doubt, you have plenty of it in your home at this moment. The new wonder drug?

An ice cube!

Medical authorities say that ice is such a powerful anesthetic that surgeons have used it in performing some types of major surgery with patients fully conscious. In the majority of these cases, the patients sit up in bed immediately after the operation, request food, and then call friends on the telephone. There are no aftereffects or drowsiness because they had no anesthetic by inhalation or by injection.

These are extreme cases, but there are many everyday conditions where ice can be used as a pain reliever.

Many old-time remedies used ice or cold water as a basic part of their treatment, but the renewed interest in ice-cube therapy probably stems from a recent report made by doctors at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio, Texas.

Over a two-year period, the Army medics prescribed ice to approximately 5,000 soldiers who complained of various aches and pains when answering sick call. After instructions, most of the men were sent back to their barracks to apply the ice themselves. According to the report, the results were "striking."

With the latest medical advice being "cool it," you might ask, "Does it really work?" Mrs. Vernon Irby, a Silver Spring, Md., housewife, thinks so. "It was fantastic," she says. "Two ice applications on an aching back had me up and around." Two years ago a similar attack took 10 heat treatments at a hospital to get the same results, she says.

Doctors at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C., prescribed the home treatment for Mrs. Irby. "They told me to freeze water in orange juice cans and rub the cans on my back," Mrs. Irby said.

Have you ever attempted to remove a small sliver from the tip of your finger? It's easy. All you have to do is sterilize the point of a needle in a match flame, then place the tip of the finger on an ice cube until it becomes numb. Now, the sliver can be lifted out without pain.

At a doctor's office in Los Angeles, the children will only allow one of his several nurses to give them their immunization shots. Why this favorite nurse? Simple. Before each shot, she places an ice cube over the area for about 15 seconds, quickly dries it with tissue, swabs the skin with alcohol, and puts the needle in while the spot is still numb from the ice. The children don't feel a thing.

Sports fans will remember that Sandy Koufax, the Los Angeles Dodgers' great left-handed pitcher, always soaked his aching arm in an ice bath for at least an hour after each game he pitched. According to Koufax, it worked perfectly.

You would think that the effects of heat would be directly opposite to those of ice. Ironically, however, ice is being used in innumerable cases where heat was once prescribed. Doctors agree that both cold and heat penetrate muscles and soothe aches, but the ice advocates claim that cold penetrates deeper than heat and thus brings relief from pain much quicker. They say that ice application in these cases must be coupled with exercises, and they agree that the application of ice is usually more uncomfortable than the application of heat.

Massive pain quite often accompanies a heart attack, and sometimes the doctor has to inject morphine to prevent severe shock to the patient. But until the doctor comes, almost instant relief can be gained by rubbing an ice cube gently on the chest over the painful area. After ice treatment in this situation, morphine may not even be necessary when the doctor arrives. It should be stressed, however, that the ice treatment merely eases the pain—it does nothing whatsoever for what caused the pain in the first place.

If you burn your finger, you probably have been told to rub butter or some other oily substance on the burn. Instinctively, however, you probably will pop your finger into your mouth to cool it.

And your instincts are right, for, ideally, the finger should be soaked immediately in a container of cold water in which ice has been placed. Or, if you prefer, the ice cube can be rubbed gently over the burn until the pain is no longer felt.

While the relief from pain is prompt, more important is the fact that there will be very little swelling, and blisters won't form. Consequently, the burn will heal much more rapidly.

Ice-cube treatment also helps prevent infection, as any part of the body that is refrigerated is not likely to become infected, even if contaminated with dirt. While being applied, the ice-cold temperature keeps germs dormant and unable to multiply.

Ice has another medical virtue. It aids greatly in stopping bleeding, not only surface bleeding but that which occurs under the skin—as when an eye is bruised or a shin scuffed. The ugly black-and-blue discoloration is caused by the leakage of blood from torn blood vessels. An ice cube placed over the bruised area constricts the blood vessels, thereby greatly reducing leakage until clotting takes place.

Itching is just one of the many skin conditions that can be relieved by ice. When the skin itches, it is natural for a person to rub or scratch, but the relief is very brief. The itching not only returns but is far more intense. The application of ice often retards the itching.

If the area to be treated is large, crack the ice cubes into small pieces, put them into a large bath towel, and fold over to form a pack which can then be adjusted to the shape of the affected part. Leave the pack in place until the ice melts; the ice can be replaced as often as is necessary. The ice-towel pack is particularly good for such places as the shoulder, in the case of bursitis, or for sprains.

Does this application to the bare skin ever cause frostbite—which can be dangerous? No—not if applied carefully. Ice, as long as it is mixed with water, is not dangerous because it does not freeze the tissues it refrigerates them. The difference is slight, but is large enough to be a good margin of safety.

Never add salt to an ice bath or bag. Salted ice does hasten chilling, but it can also cause frostbite.

How big a dose of ice can a patient take? Dr. John Mennell, associate professor of physical medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, recommends a five-to-ten-minute rub with one ice cube.

One word of caution: doctors say that while ice massage relieves many types of pain—including the after-pain of a heart attack—it doesn't necessarily clear up the problem. Ice should never be used without proper diagnosis or knowing what's causing the trouble. ♦

Discovery is "Accidental"

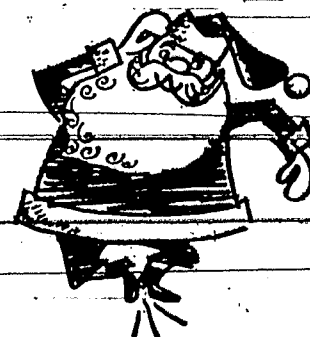

A TV and motion picture producer accidentally discovered the secret process that makes this spectacular effect possible, while investigating special effects for a science-fiction movie.

Researching phosphorescent materials, he found the only known methods of application (hand painting and silk screening) were often unsatisfactory and always costly. However, (because he didn't know that it "couldn't be done") he developed a new method using high speed lithography and injection moulding.

Then, inspiration! He realized that his secret process would make it possible to produce stunning Christmas ornaments. They'd glow in the dark, yet cost less than ordinary ornaments!

Shatterproof Ornaments!

Next, he ruled out breakable materials, so even the youngest member of the family could share the thrill of trimming the Christmas tree. The final choices included specially treated shatterproof materials (durable enough for outdoor display!) as well as metallic laminates on heavy stock.

How to Produce an Exciting

TV Show—Ask the Kids

On Monday, educational stations will air "Sesame Street," a children's show by an Emmy winner who traded Madison Ave. expertise for Lollipop Lane's

By GEORGE JAYE

Dr. Edward L. Palmer gives a distractor test by screening slides next to tv showing "Sesame Street" scene.

IF YOU were an Emmy-winning television producer, would you let some four-year-old kid tell you how to put together your new show?

Mrs. Joan Ganz Cooney, head of the Children's Television Workshop, would. Well, partly. She is eager to have the guidance and counsel of the preschool set for her group's new series, "Sesame Street."

In fact, Workshop educators and child researchers have been visiting hundreds of three-, four-, and five-year-old kids for months at day-care centers and in private homes to find out what they think of test segments of the show, whether the shows hold their interest, and what the youngsters are able to learn from them.

"Sesame Street," you see, is an experimental series aimed at preparing preschool children for formal education by teaching them such useful things as numbers and letters, geometric shapes, and concepts of none-some and under-around.

Says Mrs. Cooney, who won her Emmy in 1966 for a three-hour documentary on the Federal poverty program, "To a large degree, the very audience at which 'Sesame Street' is aimed will have shaped and fashioned the program before it ever gets on the air. I really know of no other program that has undergone the degree of testing and evaluation that this show has. You could never find critics more candid."

In their efforts to instruct the children in a light, entertaining way, the Workshop producers are using various elements of commercial children's television that they know are appealing to the small fry—puppets, animated cartoons, congenial hosts, live-action films, other children on stage.

"Education is a hidden ingredient," says Mrs. Cooney.

To make sure the lessons are getting through is the task of Dr. Edward L. Palmer, the Workshop's director of research. He is one of the country's few specialists on the impact of television on young children.

How does a three-year-old child, wrestling with his first phrases, give a critique of a tv show?

"The answers we're looking for don't come only from the way the children respond to systematic teaching but from what they indicate by their behavior while watching a segment," Doctor Palmer explains. "We watch the children as they watch."

"For example, we can learn what they find most amusing, the ability of the children to understand certain transitions or plot lines, to anticipate upcoming events, and to detect the hidden motivations underlying the actions of the performers."

In determining intensity of interest, Doctor Palmer relies on a device he calls the distractor. It is, in fact, a small screen set up next to a television set on which color slides are projected from time to time. If the child watching "Sesame Street" is easily distracted, it is a tip-off that the material being shown isn't sufficiently absorbing.

After the "Sesame Street" material is shown, they question the children to determine whether or not the educational message got through.

"Sometimes we find the children having a delightful time watching a segment, but when it is over, they still don't recognize the letter or number we were trying to teach them," says Doctor Palmer.

"Fortunately, through this sort of pretesting, we are able to make the necessary changes before the material is exposed to an audience."

From such frequent contacts with the preschooler, Doctor Palmer has developed a good idea of what turns him on or off.

"Primarily they want action; they want things to move. Nothing bores them so quickly as the sight of an adult facing them on the screen and just talking."

"They like animals, and they adore seeing other children on the screen. They love the commercials and, in fact, are already programmed to commercial interruption. Unlike adults, the more frequently they see a particular commercial and the more familiar the jingle or slogan becomes, the more they enjoy it."

(Taking advantage of this interest in commercial messages, "Sesame Street" producers have built several one-minute breaks into each hour show and, although similar to other commercials in format, the products advertised are letters of the alphabet rather than toothpaste or beer.)

The young child's reaction to the appearance of well-known performers on the show is an unending source of amusement for the Workshop testers observing them.

Broadway actor James Earl Jones' unadorned pate sets the kids giggling and exclaiming, "Look how bald he is." But by the time Jones gets halfway through his dead-pan recitation of the ABCs, the sub-first graders can't contain their laughter.

"Sesame Street" scenes are reviewed with child after he has seen them.

"Sesame Street," an hour-long, full-color show, will be shown each weekday on some 170 educational (public) tv stations beginning Nov. 10. Many stations will be showing it twice a day. (Check your local newspaper tv section for details.)

To bring it to as many of the nation's 12 million preschoolers as possible, the Workshop has been encouraging parents and teachers to form small viewing groups of children that can watch the program together on a regular basis. The Workshop is also publishing a Parent's Guide that previews the main educational elements of each show and provides suggestions for follow-up activity. (For a free sample, write Parent's Guide, Box 9140, Minneapolis, Minn. 55177.)

The project, which is sponsored by the U.S. Office of Education, the Ford Foundation, and Carnegie Corporation, is the outgrowth of a four-month study the 39-year-old Mrs. Cooney made for Carnegie Corporation on effective ways of communicating with preschool children to enable them to get off to a more even start in elementary school.

"Two statistics have convinced me that there is no more practical and economical way of preparing these children than through television," says Mrs. Cooney.

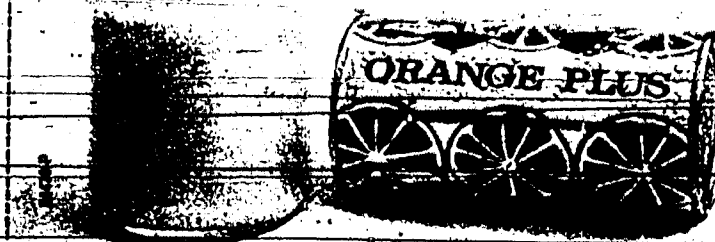

"Even in homes where the average income is less than $5,000, more than 90 percent of the families own television sets. And in homes where there are preschool children, the television set is turned on constantly."

"The audience is there, watching. What we've had to do is develop the kind of program that would hold the children's interest and make them enjoy learning. And they've given us a good idea of their demands."

Such Pile Relief She Can't Describe Says Mrs. H. Williams

Treatment Shrinks Piles,
Relieves Pain In Most Cases

Louisville, Ky. Mrs. Hugh Williams of Louisville writes: "A good person recommended Preparation H to me and such help I can't describe. I don't know what in the world I'd do without it!"

(Note: Doctors have proved in most cases—Preparation H* actually shrinks inflamed hemorrhoids. In case after case, the sufferer first notices prompt relief from pain, burning and itching. Then swelling is gently reduced.

There's no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like doctor-tested Preparation H. It also lubricates to make bowel movements more comfortable, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.)

Frankfurters simmered briefly in a skillet of kraut and apple juice before being teamed with paralled noodle ring are served with cheese and fruit for dessert.

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ Foods likely to be available from your freezer, refrigerator, or pantry shelf may be quickly put together in a skillet. These recipes are guides for satisfying lunch or supper dishes.

Noodle Ring with Kraut and Franks

- 3 or 4 cups sauerkraut, drained
- ½ to ¾ cup apple juice
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon seasoned pepper
- 1 teaspoon caraway seed
- 1½ lbs. frankfurters, 6 whole and remainder sliced
- 4 to 6 qts. boiling water
- 2 tablespoons salt
- 1 lb. wide egg noodles, broken
- ½ cup butter or margarine, melted
- 2 teaspoons soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons grated onion
- ½ cup snipped parsley

1. Mix the apple juice with a blend of the ½ teaspoon salt and pepper in a large skillet; add caraway. Add kraut and sliced franks; mix thoroughly. Diagonally cut off ends of the 6 whole franks and mix with the kraut. Put unsliced franks around and on top of kraut in skillet. Cover and simmer about 25 min., mixing occasionally.

2. Meanwhile, put the salt into the boiling water. Add noodles gradually so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered until tender (about 7 min.), stirring occasionally. Drain in a colander and rinse thoroughly with hot water.

3. Put noodles in a large heated bowl and toss with a blend of the melted butter or margarine, soy sauce, and onion; mix in parsley.

4. Pack firmly into a 6½ cup ring mold; allow to stand 5 min.
5. Carefully unmold onto a warm serving platter. Fill center with the kraut mixture. Diagonally cut one frank into slices for garnish (see photo). Diagonally cut remaining franks into large pieces and put on platter to surround the noodle ring. Serve immediately with an accompanying bowl of the remaining kraut mixture.

8 to 10 servings

German Apple Pancakes

- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 3 small, firm cooking apples, cored, pared, and thinly sliced (about 2½ cups)
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 4 eggs
- ½ cup milk
- ¼ cup regular all-purpose flour
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine

1. Heat the ¼ cup butter or margarine in a 10-in. skillet; add the apple slices, cover, and cook over medium heat until apples are almost tender, turning slices several times during cooking. Sprinkle a mixture of the sugar and cinnamon evenly over apples. Continue cooking, uncovered, until apples are just tender. Turn into a warm bowl.

2. Beat the eggs until thick and piled softly; blend in the milk. Beat in a blend of flour, sugar, and salt until mixture is smooth.

3. Heat one-half of the butter or margarine in the skillet until moderately hot. Pour in enough batter to cover bottom of skillet. Spoon about one-half of the apple mixture evenly over batter. Pour in just enough batter to cover apples. Cook pancake over medium heat until golden brown on bottom. Loosen edges with spatula; carefully turn and brown other side.

4. When pancake is cooked, remove skillet from heat and brush generously with melted butter or margarine. Roll up and transfer to a warm serving platter. Sift confectioners' sugar over top. Repeat procedure with remaining batter and apples.

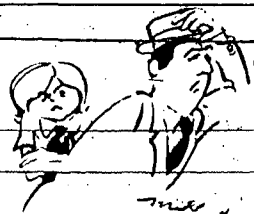

2 apple pancakes

The Most Fascinating People I've

One of the world's greatest photographers re-creates memorable occasions with unforgettable celebrities—from Albert Einstein to Joe Namath

By PHILIPPE HALSMAN

EDITORS' NOTE: Philippe Halsman stands high among the world's premier photographers, artists of the visual who use their cameras as painters use brush and canvas.

His portraits of famous people constitute a collection of the foremost names in science, music, films, art, theater, politics—virtually every important field of human endeavor.

Photographs by Halsman have appeared on more than 100 Life magazine covers, as well as Look, Paris Match, and countless other publications.

For Family Weekly, he has selected 11 of the most memorable photo subjects ever to pose for him, and (in collaboration with Francene and Louis Sabin) recreated the occasions, conversations, and impressions of those moments he has shared with the most celebrated men and women of our time.

A few years ago, my daughter breathlessly extolled a teen-age girl she'd met at a movie. Please photograph her, she asked. She'd never asked this before, so I did. The girl was Mia Farrow. Her "spiritual adviser" then was a friend of mine, Salvador Dali. How things have changed! She has matured so that now she contradicts her adviser. And I'm amazed how readily Dali accepts her advice!

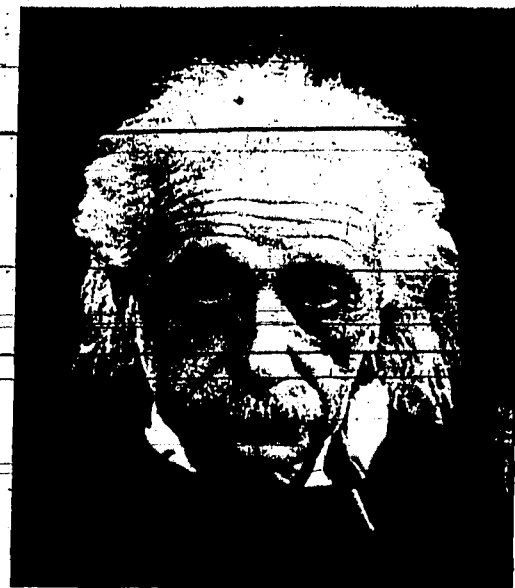

This was the third time I photographed Richard Nixon. It was just before his Inauguration and the day of his 56th birthday. I had brought him a Cardin tie as a gift and learned that he'd already received several Sulka ties. "That's all right," he said. "A President can always auction off his ties for charity after wearing them a few times. My last tie, for instance, brought $300."

Several years ago, I got into a serious discussion of acting with Elizabeth Taylor. I had a dinner date and found myself in the embarrassing position of getting rid of her. "Sorry I kept you so long," I hinted. She replied, "Oh, I have no date. Everyone assumes glamorous girls are always very busy—so usually I'm left all alone."

My portrait of mathematical genius Albert Einstein was used on a U.S. postage stamp. I once asked him why he never wore socks, and with mathematical logic, he replied, "If you wear socks, your big toe eventually makes a hole in them. So I stopped wearing socks."

I photographed Pablo Picasso and Marc Chagall (right) when they met quite accidentally. At first, they merely shook hands—then they saw my camera and embraced warmly like ham actors. I know artists are jealous of each other and wonder what they really felt at that moment.

Photographed

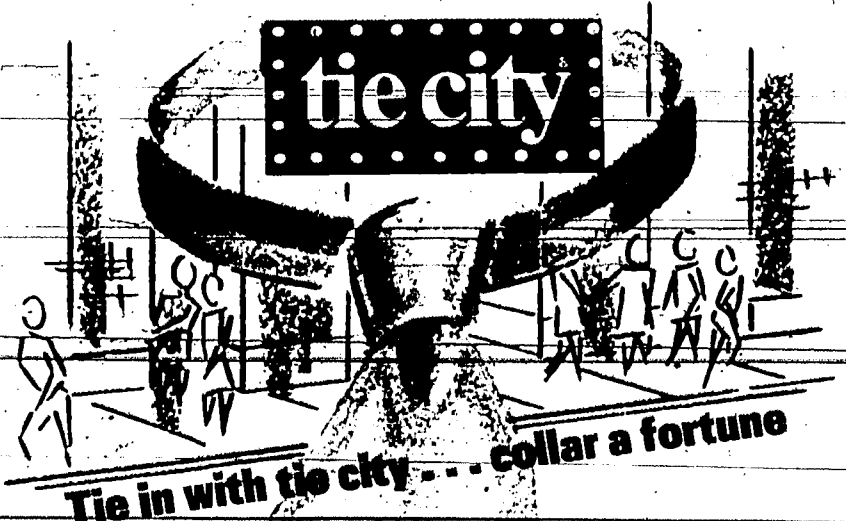

Sports figures are unbearably vain—yet I found Joe Namath of the New York Jets charming. He had heard a risqué joke but refused to repeat it until my wife left. "I never tell stories in the presence of a lady," he said. Then later he concluded, "Well, let's take pictures. I hear you're the Namath of photography."

Eleanor Roosevelt died six months after I took this picture. She was very alert as we discussed current topics, yet in mid-sentence she occasionally would doze off, then a minute later awake and carry on as if nothing happened. I found she had grown beautiful with the passage of time, and I tried to record it.

John F. Kennedy was an extremely photogenic man, yet quite self-conscious before a camera. Annoyed, I once snapped, "Mr. President, couldn't you please look a little more substantial?" I was aghast at my indiscretion, but JFK paid no attention. My ears still ring, though, with the guffaws of a nearby reporter.

French director François Truffaut sent Catherine Deneuve to me in Paris. She came despite being ill. I felt that of all today's actresses, she is most like Garbo. Her face, like Garbo's, only hints at emotion, leaving the viewer the pleasure of creatively adding the rest.

Vladimir Nabokov is the literary genius who wrote "Lolita" and other outstanding works. He speaks four languages and writes in three of them. He is a superb chess player. And he is such a lepidopterist (butterfly expert) that two butterflies have been named after him. He signs his letters with a simple drawing of a butterfly.

In preparing to photograph folk singer Joan Baez, I put some of her records on. My efforts were successful: she was so moved, tears rolled down her cheeks. Alas, I learned she had come to me for a glamour shot! She was tired of being shown as a human being. So, until now, my Joan Baez pictures were never published.
