Not only was the majority silent at the College of Southern Idaho this week but the minority which had participated in the last nationwide moratorium also appeared to be silent.

TWIN FALLS BLOOD DONORS came to droves Thursday to donate blood and make history. A total of 300 pints was donated, making it the first time in Twin Falls history a perfect year has been recorded. Here, Carolyn Harvey, a perfect year donor, comforts a donor, Gene Cheney, a College of Idaho law enforcement student, just before Mr. Cheney gives his pint of blood. In the background is Larry McElliot, who has just donated. The drawing was at the American Legion Hall.

No violence marred the early hours of the antiwar street drama in the nation's capital. But government officials, taking no chances, held almost 40,000 police, paratroopers, Marines and National Guardsmen in readiness to cope with any outbreak of trouble.

Proceeding with business as usual, President Nixon planned to fly to Cape Kennedy, Fla., at 8:15 a.m. to witness the launching of the Apollo 12 mooncraft. He was scheduled to return to the White House late this afternoon and officials said he would remain there throughout Saturday's mass march.

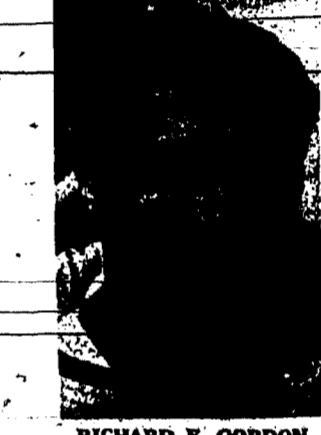

FRAMED BY SEARCHLIGHTS, the Apollo 12 spacecraft and its 363-foot Saturn booster rocket stands ready throughout the night for today's spectacular launch through a driving rainstorm. When fully fueled with one million gallons of liquid oxygen, liquid hydrogen and kerosene, the rocket weighs more than 3,000 tons — as much as a Navy destroyer. (UPI telephoto)

Lightning Jolts Booster Rocket

CHARLES CONRAD, JR.

RICHARD F. GORDON

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—America's three man Apollo-12 crew successfully blasted off on a second moon landing mission today, despite a last-minute thunderstorm that may have jolted the booster rocket with a lightning bolt.

The thick, fast-moving squall had threatened until the final moments to delay the flight of Navy commanders Charles "Pete" Conrad, 39, Alan L. Bean, 37, and Richard F. Gordon, 40.

The initial seconds of flight went smoothly and Conrad reported: "This baby is really going." But then Conrad dramatically reported: "Just lost the (guidance) platform. Don't know what happened. Everything dropped out. I'm not sure we weren't hit by lightning."

"I think we need to do a little more all weather testing," Conrad joked.

"Ames," reported ground control. "But then four minutes into the flight, Conrad reported all the electrical systems going."

"We've had a couple of cardiac arrests down here," mission control told Conrad.

"We didn't have time for that up here," Conrad replied. Shortly after the rocket disappeared in the heavy overcast, there was a very definite flash in the sky. It looked like two or three quick flashes to observers on the ground.

The Apollo 12 spacecraft shot dead and 58 seriously wounded.

Field reports said dozens of other South Vietnamese troops suffered minor wounds in the North Vietnamese ground attack that carried into their camp one mile from Cambodia.

At least 93 of the attackers were killed in the fighting as they were bombing the South Vietnamese but hit their own troops instead.

Reports from the field said the accidental bombing occurred about noon when the ceiling had dropped to 300 feet. The pilots ragged in thinking they were bombing the North Vietnamese but hit their own troops instead.

The South Vietnamese battalion regrouped after several hours of battling and drove off the attackers.

PARIS (UPI)—The French government today launched a nationwide crackdown on militant leftists in a series of dawn raids linked with the government's ban on anti-Vietnam war demonstrations.

The crackdown came after 50 youths stormed the South Vietnamese consulate in Paris and broke windows and fought police in a prelude to a series of weekend antiwar protests planned across Europe.

French police said they had arrested 150 persons for questioning in Paris and in a dozen towns and cities across France. The raids were said to have been aimed to enforce the law's aim to enforce the government's ban and to see whether militant leftist groups outlawed after the student revolt of 1968 had reformed.

Despite the ban and the crackdown, the students erected a banner in front of the South Vietnamese consulate proclaiming "the Liberation Front will win."

Sabotage?

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Civil Defense officials discovered an elaborate electronic jamming device Thursday, which they said was designed to disrupt part of the Utah Civil Defense system.

The unit, located near the Civil Defense repeater system, had been rendered "semi-useless" by the package, first thought to be a bomb, and consisting of miniature electronic components powered by a large battery pack.

A Civil Defense official said that Salt Lake City police did not suspect any subversive group or individual.

South Vietnamese Bomb Own Troops

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese pilots bombed their own ground troops by mistake during a Cambodian border battle today, contributing to the government casualty toll of 20 dead and 58 seriously wounded.

Field reports said dozens of other South Vietnamese troops suffered minor wounds in the North Vietnamese ground attack that carried into their camp one mile from Cambodia.

The Twin Falls City Council held a luncheon meeting Thursday at the Holiday Inn to discuss annexation costs to the city.

Jean Millar, acting city manager, said the council is reevaluating the first figures given them. The council asked the engineering and legal departments to look further into the matter.

Mr. Millar said the council is especially concerned with the cost of services to areas 4, 5, and 7 mentioned as designated in the ordinances.

Annexation Costs Being Re-Evaluated

He said these extra meetings are being held to insure the steps taken by the council are reasonable and in the best interests of all concerned.

Two of the new councilmen, John Christoffersen and Paul Ostin, also attended the session.

French Launch Crackdown On Militants

PARIS (UPI)—The French government today launched a nationwide crackdown on militant leftists in a series of dawn raids linked with the government's ban on anti-Vietnam war demonstrations.

The crackdown came after 50 youths stormed the South Vietnamese consulate in Paris and broke windows and fought police in a prelude to a series of weekend antiwar protests planned across Europe.

40,000 Men Stand Guard In Capital

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A 40,000-man security force is ready to put down any violence that might occur during this weekend's antiwar protests in Washington, but the great majority will never be seen unless called on to restore order.

Most in evidence will be 3,000 District of Columbia policemen, the first-line security unit. Backing them up will be 9,000 riot-trained Marines and Army paratroopers from North Carolina.

25,000 other military personnel already in Washington area, 2,700 D. C. National Guardsmen, 400 National Park Police, 125 U. S. marshals, several hundred FBI agents and 2,500 volunteer marshals from the ranks of the demonstrators themselves.

Government intelligence sources believe the antiwar weekend may attract up to 100,000 persons, only one-fifth as many as the organizers first estimated. These sources believe there might be small, sporadic outbreaks of violence but nothing that cannot be handled by the D.C. police.

But, if more serious outbreaks occur, military personnel can be summoned from federal installations where they were stationed in reserve, hidden from public view.

Seamstress Aids Apollo Mission

BANGOR, Pa. (UPI)—The Apollo 12 mission has its Betsy Ross.

The needlewoman whose handwork will travel all the way to the moon is Mrs. Arlene Van Atta who does invisible mending for the Blue Ridge Winkler Company, ladies' lingerie manufacturer. About a year and a half ago she was loaned to the Radio Corporation of America (RCA) to mend the astronauts' space suits.

Her handwork is made of 38 miles of woven, goldplated wire thinner than human hair. "I made about 15 trips to Moorestown, N.J. to retrieve tiny tears in the mesh," said Mrs. Van Atta. "I have sewn most of my life, but this was the most challenging job I ever faced."

Now Mrs. Van Atta is free to knit Christmas mittens and sweaters for neighboring youngsters as is her annual custom.

Nixon Views Launch In Person

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon flew to Cape Kennedy today to view the launch of Apollo 12.

Nixon was the first chief executive to watch a manned space launching while in office. He had intended to see the firing of Apollo 11 last July but it was called off the trip. Former President Lyndon B. Johnson was on hand for that launch.

The President telephoned made, therefore, solely upon astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad and Alan L. Bean Thursday night to testify he is of unquestioned integrity and almost without peer as a legal scholar.

Survey May Lower Fire Insurance Rates In T. F.

The Idaho Surveying and Rating Bureau has put Twin Falls on its grading itinerary for next summer and it is possible the recent city improvements will bring about a new classification and lower fire insurance rates for residents.

Acting city manager Jean Millar said he believes the last survey made of the city was in 1952. It was put in class five, which is comparable with other Idaho cities of this size. He said he was hopeful the city could obtain a class four rating this time.

This would, in turn, mean reduced insurance rates for the city. Mr. Millar said a change would result in an approximate 10 per cent change in rates.

Officers said the train entered the crossing from behind a building. Signal lights are at the crossing, officers said, but are slow in turning on, considering that approaching trains are not immediately visible because of buildings obstructing the view. Apollon

(Continued From Page One) into earth orbit 12 minutes after launch at 11:34 a.m. It was to circle earth at an altitude of 115 to 118 miles for an orbit and a half before heading for the moon. President Nixon, his wife, Pat, their daughter Tricia and Vice President and Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew were among the estimated half million persons who watched the dramatic blast-off. Despite the fact television cameras were trained on him, the President watched seemingly oblivious in the rain as the Saturn 5 lifted off. He broke into a grin as the rocket lifted safely away. The Apollo 12 was launched on schedule at 11:22 a.m. EST to set up on the moon a nuclear powered scientific base and begin man's first true exploration of another world. The astronauts arose at 6:05 a.m. and had the traditional spacemen's special — orange juice, steak, eggs, coffee and toast — and then suited up for their mission. They arrived at the launch pad at 8:29 a.m., and boarded an elevator that took them to the top of the 263-foot tall Saturn 5 rocket which they will ride into space. At 8:35 a.m. EST, Conrad, the spaceflight commander, crawled into the moonship and gave technicians in the block house a "cheery good morning." He settled into the left-hand seat, and was followed by Bean, who took the right-hand seat, and Gordon, who sat in the center. At 9:05 a.m. EST, ground control reported: "The hatch is closed." At mission control center in Houston an American flag flew beside the huge television screen on which Apollo 12's progress would be charted. Flight controllers ran last-minute tests on their equipment, including a check to make sure they could send commands to the spacecraft. Conrad and Bean's families were on hand at Cape Kennedy for the launch; as were President Nixon, his wife, Pat, their daughter, Tricia, and vice president and Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew.

Behavior Rules Okayed At Richfield

RICHFIELD—Richfield school board members adopted two student behavior policies and heard the annual audit report at the November meeting.

Automatic suspension will result for any student having or using illegal drugs or narcotics. Supt. Neil Andreason was given the authority to suspend any student for infraction of rules for a period up to 10 days after which a review of the situation would be made by the school board.

Questionnaires Needed By VA

The Veterans Administration reminded veterans and widows who receive pensions, and parents receiving compensation, to return the income questionnaire which was enclosed with checks dated Nov. 1.

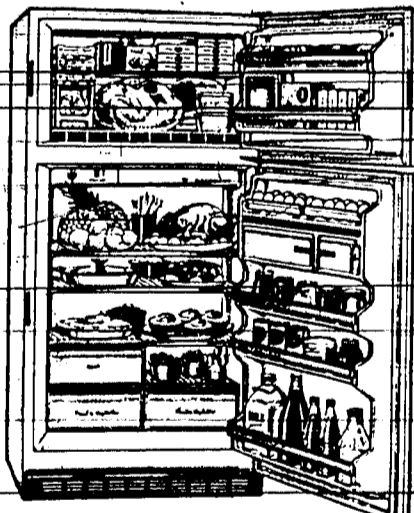

Loryn E. Kopan, director of the Boise VA Center, said these VA benefits are paid to war veterans with limited income who are totally disabled for reasons not related to military service, and to their widows and certain other dependants of veterans who meet income limitations.

Where benefits are based on income, he said, the VA, according to law, cannot make payments unless it receives the questionnaire containing the estimated income for the next year.

Your Blessings

George Romney, secretary of Housing and Urban Development in the Nixon cabinet, must have thrown a scare into millions of homeowner-taxpayers the other day with his suggestion that the income tax deduction they get for interest on their mortgages be cut back.

No such change in the tax laws is under consideration. At a time when the entire structure of the income tax system is under review in Congress, it has not even been mentioned. Middle-income taxpayers can continue to cherish this deduction as the one tax break designed especially for them.

Nor is Romney serious with his proposal. His point was merely that it would be a good way to bring home to middle-income and affluent families that they are getting a tax subsidy.

Middle-income people are not aware of the government's help to them, said Romney, so they tend to resent the idea that public money — their tax money — is being used to help the disadvantaged and the minority groups to meet their housing needs.

Maybe we ought to repeal part of their right to take the mortgage interest deduction, he then suggested, and earmark the extra tax money for improving city slums.

There was no connection between the secretary's speech and another item in the news about the same time, but the juxtaposition could not have been more apt.

Angry at spiraling property taxes and by welfare "handouts" they do not share in, the 26,000 citizens of Vailsburg, a predominantly white, middle-class section of Newark, N.J., have taken the first legal step toward seceding from the city.

"These people are all homeowners," says a Vailsburg real estate agent. "It's these people who carry the burden of the city's taxes."

"We are paying everybody's way in Newark," complains a storeowner. "But who's going to pay the city's taxes if Vailsburg stops paying?"

Who, indeed? And who is going to pay the additional income taxes of Vailsburg residents should the millions of taxpayers who rent, including those who pay exorbitant rents for substandard housing in the slums, decide they are tired of subsidizing the homeowners of Vailsburg and every other pleasant suburb in America?

Homeowners ought to count their blessings. Not only do they have their own homes—something many people can only dream about—but Uncle Sam is helping them pay for them by allowing them to deduct both their mortgage interest and also their local property taxes.

What homeowners consider right and just for themselves is simply another tax loophole in someone else's eyes.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon may be unmoved by the rising tide of anti-war protest which crests here this week, but Teddy Kennedy does not propose to stand against it.

Teddy found a face-saver and switched — from opposition to support of President Nixon's plan for reforming the military draft.

The switch by the young Massachusetts Democrat caused an embarrassing reversal by Sen. Mike Mansfield, Mont., the Senate Democratic leader.

Mansfield, who opposes the draft, had to fall in line with Kennedy, the Democratic whip.

The switch cleared Kennedy's "image," however. Just in time, with campus dissenters already scrounging transportation for Saturday's anti-war march here, Kennedy discarded the villain's cloak he had been wearing and re-enrolled on the side of youth and activism.

Kennedy had been holding out for a broader program of draft reform: He planned to use the House-approved administration reform bill as a vehicle to carry some more extensive Kennedy-authored reforms.

It became clear, however, that Kennedy was in fact building a Senate roadblock for the President's modest, lottery proposal which, rather surprisingly, had surmounted opposition in the House. There were critical editorials to that effect and some artful needling by Kennedy's opposite number, the GOP whip, Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich.

Then came the suggestion by President Kingman Brewster of Yale University, that Kennedy and his fellow sponsors of broad draft reform were holding the President's reform plan as a "hostage." Brewster said that tactic would be appreciated by "this cynical generation of students."

Brewster made his comments directly to Kennedy in testimony last week before a subcommittee headed by the senator. In his testimony, Brewster also provided Kennedy with the face-saver, and capped an interesting series of behind-the-scenes maneuvers:

1. When it became clear last month that House military experts (Reps. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., and F. Edward Hebert, D-La.) would reluctantly go along with President Nixon's narrowly drawn random selection bill, Senate Democratic Leader Mansfield asked Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of the Senate Armed Services Committee, if the Senate could also approve it.

2. Stennis, noting that his committee had never opposed a lottery, said the random selection provision was acceptable. He added, however, that after an eight-week floor battle over the big military authorization bill he did not have the time for another protracted parliamentary wrangle in which Kennedy and his friends would be free to offer amendments of all sorts. Stennis asked Mansfield for a gentleman's agreement that only the President's plan would get serious consideration.

3. Mansfield put the question to Kennedy. As noted above, Kennedy first took the position that he could not support the narrow Nixon bill. Mansfield then announced that he did not expect action this year on the President's plan.

4. Mansfield's statement came under heavy criticism just as preparations were made for the anti-war mobilization and march here. Kennedy's draft hearings were in progress and, in preparation for Brewster's appearance, another Yale executive offered a suggestion. Alfred B. Fitt, who had been a manpower expert in President Johnson's Pentagon, proposed that Nixon's lottery bill be amended to require further action on draft extension and draft reforms next year.

5. Brewster adopted Fitt's proposal in his prepared testimony. Kennedy's office was advised of it in advance, and the senator began exploring it early last week with other advocates of sweeping draft reforms.

6. A few hours after Brewster actually made the suggestion Kennedy endorsed it and said it opened the way for him to support the President's lottery bill. Stennis, when consulted said he thought it might open the way for committee action. Mansfield fell in line and said the Senate would act if the committee approved the bill.

Image-making aside, there may be some unpleasant dividends to be collected by Kennedy as a result of last week's switch. For one thing, his retreat may not really clear the way for the President's bill.

For example, initial reaction of House military experts to the proposed Brewster amendment was not favorable. In addition, Senate operations are often unpredictable when its leaders try to limit the application of its free-wheeling rules, by gentleman's agreement or otherwise.

Moreover, there are some unfortunate implications in the face-saving amendment itself. As proposed by Yale men Brewster and Fitt, it is designed to shorten the term of the present draft law and thus force congressional action next year on wide-ranging draft reforms.

However, Stennis had promised, before all the maneuvering, that his committee would act on the whole draft package early next year. There is thus an element of distrust in requiring that the Stennis promise be written into law.

In the club-like Senate cloakrooms such a legal requirement seems to suggest that the much-respected Stennis might go back on his word — or that Stennis could not get the House leaders to act, even if his committee did carry out his promise.

Black Busing

Busing youngsters back and forth across towns for the specific purpose of race-mixing schools has pleased nobody.

Chicago's assistant school superintendent, David J. Heffernan, says, "Busing has proved effective neither for integration nor for better education."

It was a noble experiment. Northern cities, which have segregated themselves into black and white neighborhoods, saw most children attending a 11-white or all-black neighborhood schools.

Some civil rights leaders hailed busing as a means of socially mixing youngsters at an early age and upgrading education for blacks.

Opponents were denounced as racists and the practice of busing spread to scores of cities.

Baltimore's associate superintendent of schools, William Tinderrhughes, says, "There has been a very definite change in thinking about busing. A few years ago there was a demand for it; not now."

Parents are now more concerned with the quality of the education their children are getting.

In Minneapolis, school board consultant Floyd Amundson says, "The trend here is away from busing because it doesn't solve anything."

A Los Angeles school official thinks the black power movement may have something to do with the change because of its emphasis on isolating black people.

U.S. News and World Report recently cited federal government de-emphasis on busing as another factor.

President Nixon has said "It has never been a policy of this administration to impose busing as a way to achieve racial balance."

Congress has forbidden the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to require busing in order to overcome racial imbalance.

Civil rights leader James Farmer, now an HEW official, has changed his mind about the value of busing: "Busing is not relevant to high-quality education. It works severe hardships on the people it affects. In the South, I found blacks complaining of being bused to school."

In some cities there remains a determination by some factions to institute or perpetuate busing.

In New York City, where busing costs taxpayers $3 million a year, there are now more all-black or nearly all-black schools than before. Further, tests have shown no academic gains among children who are bused. New York, however, continues to bus some 14,500 youngsters each way each day.

California may put the issue of busing on the ballot in November, 1970.

In Pittsburg, California, a suit has been filed by Negro parents who don't want their children bused to white schools.

Oregon Congresswoman Edith Green, Democrat, a long-time civil rights supporter, says "What Negro parents are entitled to is quality education for their children in the area in which they live."

In Oklahoma City there has been initiated what could become a landmark Supreme Court test of busing.

Meanwhile, despite the federal character of the civil rights laws, busing has unofficially become a matter of "local option."

Uneasy Quiet

With the Leonid Brezhnev-Aleksei Kosygin duet entering its sixth year of Kremlin leadership, the major accomplishment which can be accorded the first five years is that the two managed to last so long.

When they came to power after former Premier Khrushchev was deposed in October, 1964, it was widely assumed the dual leadership would not work and merely marked a transition from the wildly eccentric Nikita to a new strong man.

Today, there is no, their apparent rumblings in the Politburo about the failings of the present leadership, they have been kept well hidden from the world. But there have been failures.

Probably the invasion and crush of Czechoslovakia was the greatest mistake to date, but even the protest that move created in the communist world did little to weaken the hold Brezhnev and Kosygin have on the party. Nor have there been signs of internal revolt against the Kremlin's China policies, which again have threatened to split the communist camp down the middle.

After five years of such "leadership," the duet may indeed be serving on borrowed time. A revolt by the palace guard could come at any time.

Blonde And The Egghead

WASHINGTON — Fellow stretch another bicep-building gadget — consisting of steel springs with a handle at each end — when he lost his grip on one of the handles. His younger sister wound up with a black eye, a bloody nose and assorted contusions.

A few days later, the boy dropped a dumbbell on his father's foot after Papa had had an especially hard day at the office. A week later, the same dumbbell came crashing down on the toes of an uncle from England whose fondness for rich food and drink had rewarded him with one of the finest cases of gout on the Eastern seaboard. That night, the boy's Pa summoned him for a chat. He was kindly, but firm. The body-building equipment had to go — but he would be pleased to purchase it from his son for $15. "That's a five-dollar profit," the father added quickly, recalling the boy's last mark in arithmetic.

So the boy shamelessly sold out, and immediately invested 50 cents of the profit in two hot fudge sundaes, with pecans. He figured the blonde was a shallow type who didn't appreciate an egghead.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Arthritis Cure?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A friend claims she has found the cure for arthritis. She went to Canada and paid $1,000 for shots and pills. What are these pills? —E.B.

What does your friend say they are? You aren't giving him much to work on. All I can tell you is what I suspect she is taking.

If my suspicions are correct, she went to a man who has been selling a mixture of powerful hormones, including one of the cortisone type.

Cortisone is an old story. When it was first tried on arthritis patients, the results were astonishingly successful. Then came a terrible let-down. When the cortisone was stopped, the arthritis returned.

And the cortisone had to be stopped, because such large doses were needed that they could not be continued. So for years now, cortisone has been used — if used at all — in small doses for some patients. With doses large enough to have dramatic results, the side effects are too dangerous to be risked.

I hope your friend with her "$1,000 cure" will notify her doctor. If she won't stop using the stuff, she should at least have her physician alerted to watch for dangerous consequences. At least three deaths have been reported in patients using that drug mixture. How many other users may have died, or developed serious physical or mental conditions, is only to be conjectured.

You may wonder why I don't name the man I suspect. Two reasons. First, the authorities are well aware of him. He dare not enter the United States because a warrant is outstanding against him, charging violations of the drug laws.

In Canada, charges have been brought against him but you know how such cases can be dragged on and on by delays.

My second reason: Doctors, newspapers, public authorities have become painfully aware that naming the purveyors of quack "cures" often does more harm than good.

Sufferers — especially those with arthritis or cancer — get their emotions so hopefully set on finding a "cure" that they flock, with loaded wallets, to anyone who claims to have a remedy.

That's why I do not give the man's name. I do urge that your friend tell her doctor the name of the man she got her pills from, and also that she stop talking about the "cure" she found. She'll just get others entangled in the same dangerous position she is now occupying.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Now that they've come up with a tax break for single persons, shall we call off the marriage?"

MR. SPECTATOR

And Away Everyone Goes

While domestic air fares have risen twice this year, transatlantic rates have come tumbling down. The traveling public is bound to benefit and, despite their present concern, the airlines might too.

Mr. Spectator read where the transatlantic rate slashes were initiated by the Italian flag airline, which resented inroads made by charter and non-scheduled air carriers offering low group rates and now transporting about one of every seven air passengers to Europe.

Alitalia also found too cumbersome a schedule of 16 different fares between New York and Rome, ranging from first class down through group excursions.

Accordingly, it snubbed an international compact on fares by slashing the Rome-New York round-trip excursion rate from $409 to $299. Rival lines promptly followed, on that and other tours, with reductions ranging up to 30 per cent on winter season trips lasting at least 27 days.

An airline conference, after three weeks of struggle, failed to come up with any compact to present the cut-rate fares.

Some airline executives, pointing to recent wage and cost increases, describe the rate war as disastrous. But with London available at $260 round-trip and Lisbon going for $240, more travelers can be expected to take to the transatlantic skyways.

Even at reduced rates, a paying passenger is a better contributor to airline revenues than an empty seat. And with the first of the jumbo jets coming into service early next year, the airlines will need all the passengers they can get.

Mr. Spectator thought you'd like to know!

LIVING DANGEROUSLY

It seems unlikely that anyone could live for 42 years without having an experience with a bathmat. Yet that is what a woman maintained when she sued an Arkansas resort hotel for injuries she received when she slipped in a bathtub.

She insisted that a bathmat is so inherently dangerous that the innkeeper should have provided her with an instruction sheet on its use. The court rejected her suit, holding that a proprietor should not be expected to anticipate that a guest "would be totally unfamiliar with simple household chattels."

In a day when perils pop up in unexpected places, it's reassuring to learn that an indispensable item like the household bathmat won't be proscribed by the court, whether you know how to use one or not.

THAT SQUARE PEG

Soldiers the world over traditionally have found much to gripe about in the regimented society they have joined, temporarily or permanently, voluntarily or otherwise. It has become almost a maxim among officers that there is something wrong with a barracks which has no complaints.

Except for the quality and quantity of food, which must rank as the favorite complaint among all men in uniform, one of the favorites of the American GI is the knack the services seem to possess of putting a square peg in a round hole.

As far back as most veterans' memories go, the services have been placing inductees into jobs unrelated to their civilian skills. Tales of lawyers who drove trucks or engineers who became clerks are legion.

Well, the military hasn't changed much. It still is convinced it can take any recruit and train him in a few weeks for whatever slots happen to be open, ignoring his special skills and talents.

A survey undertaken by the Manpower Commission, a Washington organization, to follow the paths of 101 graduate scientists and engineers after they went into the service produced these results: 38 were given an assignment related to their occupational skills; 19 received a non-combat specialty unrelated to their field of work, and the remaining 44 received combat assignments unrelated to their civilian skills.

This was the lineup after Manpower Commission had succeeded in having the Pentagon change 10 square pegs from the round holes they had originally been placed in. Those World War II assignment specialists must still be on the job.

Rogers Says U. S., Russia May Have To Swap Atomic Secrets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers says the United States and Russia may have to swap some military secrets to lay the basis for an agreement on limiting strategic nuclear weapons.

The secretary said in a speech to a group of retired

American diplomats Thursday night that "Soviet-American talks on this subject will require discussion of military matters by both sides in which the veil of secrecy will have to be, if not lifted, at least refashioned."

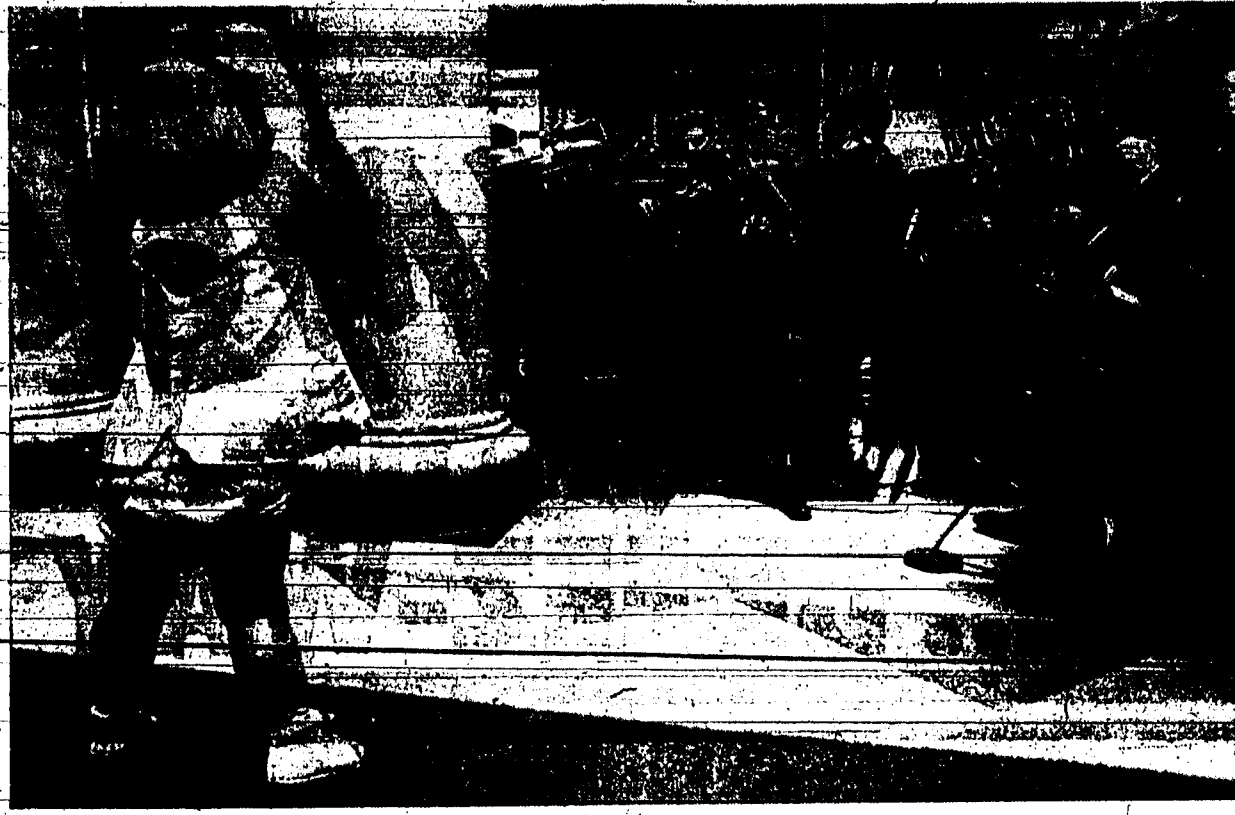

Rogers said, however, that the risks inherent in this process, as well as risks of Soviet attempts to cheat on any agreement, were minor compared to the peril involved in permitting the arms race to continue its deadly upward spiral.

Rogers' speech came three days before the Monday beginning in Helsinki of the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) between the two nuclear superpowers.

Rogers' speech was delivered a few hours after President Nixon urged the Senate to remain silent about major disarmament issues during the talks.

Nixon, speaking to the Senate after a luncheon meeting with Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and other senators, said it was "vital we recognize that the position of our negotiators not be weakened or compromised by discussions that might take place here."

Members of the subcommittee had charged that the administration had refused to discuss the Helsinki talks with them, but they appeared assuaged by Nixon's talk. Mansfield said Nixon indicated that General G. Smith, the arms control and disarmament director, would brief the subcommittee about three weeks after the talks begin.

Police Agent Admits Lying To Attorney

CHICAGO (UPI) — A police undercover agent has testified that he made a false, signed statement to a lawyer of the Chicago Seven.

Irving Bock said under cross examination Thursday that he signed a statement June 30 which said "I never heard any of the eight persons indicted... suggest any criminal activity as a plan of operations for the demonstrations." He then admitted his statements were untrue "even though they were made under oath and all were notarized."

Defense lawyers today were to continue cross examination of Bock, a key prosecution witness in the trial of seven men charged with conspiring to incite riots at the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

He had testified earlier that he heard two of the defendants, John Froines and Lee Weiner, discuss plans to firebomb the Grant Park underground garage during the convention.

Earlier Thursday, U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman freed Yippie leader Jerry Rubin, jailed Wednesday for leaving from the trial without the judge's permission. In reinstating Rubin's $10,000 bail bond, the judge warned Rubin and the six remaining co-defendants that they must be present at all trial sessions unless they obtain court permission to absent themselves.

Rubin, who was held overnight in jail, said, "I do not defy the court. I enjoy being here. It's good theater."

Hoffman replied, "That's the best statement I have heard about the trial yet. That is one of the funnier things that has been said."

Hoffman also said he would consider modifying his order allowing the defendants to travel anywhere within the United States during the trial so long as they were present for trial sessions.

Denver Faces Strike By Its Teachers

DENVER (UPI) — The 4,525 teachers in Denver's public school system — unsuccessful in demands for higher salaries — began voting today to decide whether to stage Colorado's first teacher strike.

In an attempt to halt the strike, the Denver Board of Education Thursday offered a starting salary of $7,000, some $200 above its last offer, but the offer was rejected. Teachers want $7,500.

With teacher spokesmen predicting a vote in favor of a walkout next Monday, Denver School Superintendent Robert D. Gilberts ordered principals to begin drawing strike plans. The board and Gilberts have ordered all schools to remain open.

"There are 96,000 children in this school system who will be affected by this action of the DCTA (Denver Classroom Teachers Association) on Monday if there is a strike," Gilberts said.

MOSCOW (UPI) — A report of the progress of the fund for the performing arts center at the University of Idaho, released Wednesday, shows a total of $604,575.

Spanish Citizens Doubted Value Of Another Voyage By

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the year 1492, as Christopher Columbus was in the final stages of the countdown for his second voyage to America, there was much unrest in the kingdom of Spain.

While everyone agreed that Columbus' first voyage had been a spectacular triumph, many second thoughts about continuing the New World exploration program.

Some raised the question of whether King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella should pour huge sums into such missions when there was so much poverty and crime in Madrid and other cities.

Typical of the feelings being expressed at the time was the comment of Don Carlos, Governor of McCarthy's Kennedy. "I was as thrilled as anyone when Columbus finally set foot on San Salvador," Don Carlos said.

"As Columbus remarked, it was a small step forward for Ferdinand but a giant leap for Isabella."

"I remind you, however, that the first voyage to America cost more than a million maravedis, which was more than the crown spent on anti-poverty programs during all of fiscal 1492."

"It seems to me paradoxical that a kingdom, capable of landing a man in America should be unable to wipe out hunger at home."

"This is a matter of priorities."

and I, for one, have grave misgivings about spending more money to explore the New World when so many domestic problems are being neglected.

"Thus far, all we have to show for it are a few tobacco plants."

This view, however, was sharply challenged by Don Carlos Goldwater de Thurmond y Tower.

"If man had always waited to solve his domestic problems before branching out he would never have gotten beyond the Tigris and Euphrates," Don Carlos said.

"Now that Spain has reached the New World, we cannot afford to turn back and let another kingdom get control of it. If we don't do it, the Vikings will."

"I agree with Vice King Spiro — we should not stop at San Salvador but should start planning to land a man on Miami Beach."

Demands for more voyages to America also were made by scholars who were interested in gaining scientific knowledge. They said Columbus already has provided strong evidence to support the round earth theory. Some of the more visionary scholars even put forth the notion that the New World might one day be colonized.

Rare Job Offer

DENVER (UPI) — Brad Rudolph, co-owner of Brad's Window Washing Service, said Thursday he had wired the space center offering to donate the first window washing job on the moon.

"No, we are not kidding," Rudolph said. "We are quite serious about this." Rudolph said he hoped that NASA would foot the bill for travel expenses, but said the company would be agreeable to paying, "depending on how much it costs."

For the past 41 years they have resided in Oakley. They are the parents of six sons, Ivan Lee, Sparks, Nev.; Cleon Lee, Kaysville, Utah, Ru-on Lee, Roy, Utah, Curtis Lee, Roswell, Thurman Lee, Toole, Utah, and Wayne Lee, with the Air Force in Panama, Central America; and three daughters, Mrs. Arvel (Edith) Rasmussen, Burley; Mrs. Reed (Jane) Whiteley, Oakley, and Mrs. M. J. (Helen) Schnebly, Denver, Colo.

The couple has 33 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

DEAR ABBY: I am a young man who is going to be married soon and a problem has come up. I have an aunt and uncle who were my favorite relatives when I was growing up. They treated me as if I were their own son. They were my Godparents when I was confirmed. Well, shortly after that something happened between my parents and this aunt and uncle and they haven't spoken since. I still don't know the complete story of what was behind the quarrel.

I would like to send this aunt and uncle an invitation to my wedding with a little note telling them that I'd like to include them during the happiest time of my life — my wedding.

I suppose my parents will be hurt if I do, but I feel if my parents want to hold a grudge, it is their grudge, not mine. I am not sure my aunt and uncle would even come to my wedding if they were invited, but I think they'll appreciate being asked. What do you think?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: I think your attitude shows great understanding and maturity. Children should not be expected to "inherit" and perpetuate the grudges of their parents.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a relative who has a couch which makes into a double bed, but she made it a point to keep this a secret?

This relative would never put up an overnight guest, claiming she had no sleeping accommodations.

I accidentally discovered this duo-purpose couch when I was over there one evening. Do you think I should say something to her about it? I hate to have her think she's getting away with something. ON TO HER

DEAR ON: When this hits print you may not have to.

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "NO GRANNY" asking for a snappy comeback for strangers who mistook her child for her grandchild prompts this letter.

I, too, had a child late in life, (39) and that was MY problem. I have no snappy comebacks, but I do have a suggestion.

When my little boy first started school, he brought a playmate home for lunch. The playmate took one look at me and said, "Why, you've got white hair just like my grandma's!" Then he turned to my son and asked, "Are you SURE she's your MOTHER and not your GRANDMA?"

I took the hint. That Saturday I did something I've wanted to do for years. I became a honey blond. My husband loved it. My son was ecstatic, and my friends asked me why I hadn't done it years ago. Sure, it's a lot of trouble, but it's worth it. And I'm not going to look like a grandma until I'm good and ready. NOT READY

WATCH DRUGS
The bedside table never should be used as an extra medicine chest. Toddlers, who'll eat anything they can get their hands on, can be poisoned by the very drug you take to make you feel better.

Mr. Hutton came to America from Northumberland, England, in 1911. All of the couple's family plans to attend the celebration. Mrs. William (Frances) Stout and Bonnie Karr, Portland; Norman Hutton, Libby, Mont.; Gilbert Hutton, Red Bluff, Calif.; Mrs. Al (Shirley) Gartske and Mrs. Don (Myrna) Price, Arpa, and Ivor Hutton, Carey. Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Ron (not his real name) and I have been married for five days and we love each other very much. I am 18 and he is 21.

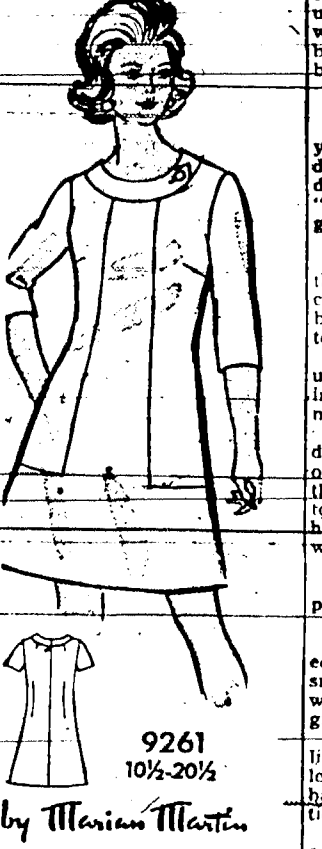

On the first night of our honeymoon we went sightseeing, and when we got back to the motel Ron locked himself in the bathroom, took a shower and came out in his pajamas and went right to sleep. I know he was tired that first night, but it's been like this ever since we've been married. I am not ugly and I am a very clean person. Please don't get the idea that all I have on my mind is sex, but I am getting very impatient.

Ron has had two years at Reed College in Oregon so I can't believe he's all that shy. What is he waiting for?

Three Grazing Allotments Increased At Three Creek

THREE CREEK — Range development work has resulted in increased grazing allotments on the Humboldt National Forest, Jarbidge District, according to Robert Rowen, supervisor of the Humboldt National Forest. The increase in livestock numbers on three allotments is a result of range improvement work carried out the past five years and the establishment of rest-rotation grazing on the allotments. Bert Webster, district ranger, said range improvements consisted of spraying 5,800 acres of big sagebrush, construction of 11 1/2 miles of pasture fences and with the aid of the permittees the development of 10 new water troughs and installation of 4 1/2 miles of plastic pipe to provide water to the troughs. The ranger said range development work was coordinated with other resource needs on the allotments. As a result of the planned coordination, he said, sage grouse habitat has greatly improved. Fence design and construction permits free access of both antelope and deer that reside on the allotments.

Watershed values have been improved which in turn helps prevent stream pollution and provides quality water to local users, fish habitat, etc. Permittees benefiting from the increase, says Mr. Webster, are Wells Livestock Inc., Buhl; Brackett Livestock Inc., Hagerman, and the Seven Triangle Ranch, Three Creek. Wells Livestock will receive a 100 per cent increase, Brackett Livestock a 50 per cent increase and the Seven Triangle Ranch a 55 per cent increase. This will amount to an additional 511 head of cattle using the allotments during the summer months, states Webster. The increase in numbers will be handled under temporary permit for a five-year period. This will give the Forest Service a chance to evaluate the increase in stocking and its effect on forage production, wildlife values and watershed values. At the end of the five-year period, a term permit will be issued for the determined number. The ranger points out the increase in stocking can and will have an economic effect upon this area. He said this area can be proud of the ranchers who are willing and concerned about our natural resources. "Their cooperation in working with the Forest Service to accomplish improved management of these allotments will not only benefit them, but all who are interested in the use and development of our public lands."

New Plan

LONDON — In a move to halt the growing surpluses of butter and skim milk powder, the European Economic Community's agricultural ministers have developed a plan to pay farmers to slaughter 500,000 milk cows. Under the plan, farmers would be paid $200 per cow to end milk production and slaughter their herds. Projections are that at present levels of production, butter production will exceed consumption by 320,000 tons in 1971-72.

Farm Bureau Speakers Are Listed

FILED — Several speakers for the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation's annual meeting in Boise next week are announced by Monroe Hays, officer, president of the farm organization. Castleford Girl Gets Award For Her 4-H Sheep Project

CASTLEFORD — A Castleford girl has won a $50 savings bond for her outstanding 4-H sheep project. Laurene Sill, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Sill, won the award for being named the state winner for her 4-H project. Miss Sill says she's really not sure how she got involved in the sheep program. She originally was interested in livestock because she was raised on a ranch. "Yet, somehow I didn't feel up to handling a Black Angus," she says. So it was sheep instead. Although no one in her family knew anything about sheep, "Maybe that was why I chose the project," she says. "I wanted to do something on my own."

Her project record shows she did all right. She has bought sheep, cared for them, helped raise the young sheep, and groomed them, in addition to showing winners. For her efforts, she has several blue ribbons and a Twin Falls County medal for the outstanding sheep project in 1968. Giving numerous sheep demonstrations was another segment of her project. Clothing, food preservation, child care, money management and junior leadership were her other 4-H projects. She has been in 4-H six years and her sheep project award is sponsored by Wilson and Co.

New Average

GOODING — A registered Holstein herd owned by Jerry Westendorf, Gooding, has a new annual herd production average for milk and butterfat. The Holstein-Friesian Association of America, reports the herd has completed its latest testing year with an official per-cow average of 17,052 pounds of milk and 617 pounds of butterfat, based on nine completed lactations. Reports Given To Hagerman Grangers

HAGERMAN — A report on the floor repair of the hall was given at the meeting of the Hagerman Valley Grange recently. A house mover had been contacted and it was deemed not feasible to raise the building by means of jacks in order to repair the floor from beneath. Means of repair are still being investigated. Mrs. Percy Pollard, Mrs. Tom Fausett and Mrs. Stanley Hoskovec Jr., were appointed to assist Mrs. Stanley Bertagnoli, home economics chairman on the home economics committee.

Mrs. Edna Bell, lecturer, said the local Grange will take an exchange program to the West Point Grange Jan. 16-20. Orchard Valley Grange will bring a program to Hagerman March 7.

Mrs. Eleonora McConkey read a poem about the Grange and Mrs. Vay Cook read an article, "Ten Keys to Happy Relations." Percy Pollard presented information about Florida where the National Grange convention will be held this year.

A potluck supper will be held at 7:30 p.m. preceding the next meeting, Nov. 17. Refreshments were furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Jim Scruggs, Mrs. Eleonora McConkey and Mrs. Rose Smith.

were given by Don Spencer, Upper Big Wood River, at Halley; Glen Ross, Richfield; Mrs. Ralph Towne, Dietrich; and Mrs. Louis Couch, Magic. Mrs. John Drexler, lecturer, Halley, was in charge of a candle-light ceremony with officers participating. Readings on Christmas and Thanksgiving were given.

WENDELL SCS THE MAN FROM PCA

Wendell SCS Man Retires At Gooding

WENDELL — Harold Bown, Wendell, has retired after 18 years of active service with the Gooding County Soil Conservation Service. Mr. Bown said he has watched this section change from acres of sagebrush to productive land.

In 1968 he was awarded second place in the Gooding County Grassman of the Year Contest. In April, 1919, he received a bolo tie for his long support of the Gooding County Grassman program. He has helped in various capacities helping with the Gooding Grassman tours and conservation-essay programs held in the schools.

Mr. Bown has served as chairman of the Agricultural Resource Committee and has also served on the Gooding Planning Commission. He was named committee man for the Agricultural Soil Conservation Service.

WENDELL — Clyde Peterson, Wendell, and Don Fredrickson and Bob Bolte, both Gooding, were elected at a recent election of the Gooding County Soil Conservation Service to serve as supervisors for a four-year term.

Sam Simis, Gooding, and Willis Hawkes, Hagerman, are holder supervisors in the Service. Officers of the Gooding Soil Conservation Service meet the second Thursday of each month at the Gooding office to make plans and discuss problems. The Gooding District is self-supporting and sets up its own budget. It is financed from proceeds obtained from rentals of heavy equipment operated by John Lequeneche.

Rupert Businessmen Honor 2 Minidoka County Farmers

RUPERT — Rupert businessmen honored two Minidoka County farmers recently during the annual Farmer-Businessmen Dinner held at the St. Nicholas Parish Hall in Rupert. Honored as Farmer of the Year was Jim Horner Sr., who was competing with six other county farmers for the title. He was sponsored by the Emerson Grange and was awarded a plaque for the honor from John Cameron, chairman of the Rupert Chamber of Commerce. The 1969 Grassman of the Year is Walter Kraus, sponsored by the Minidoka Soil Conservation District. He received a plaque from the Grassman Committee by Chris Kostenbender, chairman, and the chamber also presented him with a plaque for the honor.

Others nominated for the Farmer of the Year honor were Frank Urquien, sponsored by the Farm Bureau; Joe Studer, Rupert Grange; Ruben Ketterling, Pioneer Grange; August Marisch, Utah-Idaho Farmers Union; R. H. Koch, NFO, and Walter Kraus, Minidoka County Beet Growers. The annual tour of farms for the Farmer of the Year candidates was held in August, at which time the judging committee viewed each operation and then voted on the winner. Candidates were judged on community activities, personal appearance, attitude toward the farm; appearance of the home and of farm buildings; utilization of natural resources; livestock and the care of livestock; machinery and the care of machinery, and conservation practices. Mr. Kraus was named to the grassman title after his operation was judged with that of Ruben Weber, sponsored by

Diversion Asked By Spud Unit

WASHINGTON (Special)— Cong. Orval Hansen has asked Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin to initiate a potato diversion program to prevent a serious loss resulting from frost damage to the Idaho potato crop. "The need for a temporary diversion program is critical," Hansen said. "Freezing weather during harvest time has caused damage to about one-third of the potato acreage in Idaho. This diversion program will stabilize the market and permit orderly movement of the potatoes in trade channels."

MANAGER NAMED PACINE, WIL — Edward J. Goetsch, until recently manufacturing manager of J. I. Case Company, Bettendorf, Iowa, plant, has been named the plant's general manager.

Most of the technology of the future is now planted and sprouting, he added and said that by 1980 American agricultural exports will have expanded so that production will be increased by about 35 per cent while the farm population will decrease from three and a half million to about two million. To compensate for the change of natural resources, livestock and the care of livestock will be the major factor. Gas, diesel, and LP engines will be replaced by new power plants to be developed. Turbine power will probably be the main source of power, he added. "The computer's impact on farming may well be compar-

MALES AND FEMALE TOMATO PLANTS

Do not divide your canna in fall. Store them whole and propagate in spring by cutting them with a sharp knife, making sure that each division has one good eye on a husky piece of root stock. Start them indoors about middle of February, using four-inch clay pots. Do not water heavily at first as rot may set in. After growth has started, add more water. If the frost danger in your locality is over by May 15, start your canna in March.

POPULAR AND MAPLE LEAVES O.K. Some gardeners hesitate to use leaves from poplars and maples as a source of humus. I can't see any reason why you can't save these for the compost pile. They all break down and are useful in building up a sandy soil or a clayey type.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D. E. of Twin Falls: "Please tell us why some garden mums blossomed, while others still had buds on. Also what's the best way to keep them over winter? We usually lose some."

First, some mums are earlier blooming than others. If you happen to live in an area where frosts come early, you should concentrate on using the earlier types. Late flowering types can be dug up, potted and brought indoors for flowering if you don't want to discard them.

Another reason for non-flowering is late pinching. We pinch our mums when they are about nine inches tall, and they are pinched again up until the 4th of July. After that they should not be pinched, otherwise the buds will be cut off and there will be no bloom.

If pinching is a mystery to you, then use a pair of pruning or hedge shears and clip the plants back to about nine inches. It doesn't make any difference whether you clip or pinch the plants. Just don't pinch after the 4th of July.

To store for winter, dig up the plants and put them along the foundation of your home. Cover roots with soil and moisture it slightly before freezing weather. Or you can store dug plants in a cold frame.

F. R. of Buhl: "This morning I found two very pretty colored (pinkish) pods on my magnolia tree. Each pod had about five seeds. Can they be planted?"

Yes. First soak the pod in warm water until the fleshy covering can be skinned off. Then plant the seeds in a soil mixture of sand and peat moss about one-half inch deep. Place the pot in a cold frame, or in a cool spot over winter. You should have germination the following spring.

W. R. of Wendell: "For the last two years our large six-year-old pyracantha (firethorn) bush has blossomed, fruit would form, but before it gets orange, the fruit turns black. What's wrong?"

When leaves turn black or brown and die, this is bacterial fire-blight. Control: Prune out diseased branches and spray at flowering time with an antibiotic containing streptomycin. When berries turn black and leaves stay green it's a fungus problem which causes the berries to ferment and rot. Birds which eat the berries often become intoxicated, wobble around but soon sober up. I don't know if any control for this problem.

CHRISTMAS CACTUS

We get many letters this time asking how to make the Christmas cactus flower. Let's start by saying there is a "Thanksgiving Cactus" and a "Christmas Cactus." Both are called "crab cactus."

The "crab claws" which are sawtoothed belong to the Thanksgiving cactus whereas the Christmas cactus has claws with rounded teeth. If you want the Christmas cactus to blossom for the holiday season, the plant should be put in a dark room at night, as it needs short days at 60 degrees night temperature. The plant produces flower buds at 55 degrees regardless of day length.

No flower buds form at temperatures above 70 degrees. Failure to flower might be due to too high a night temperature or too long a day. The "Thanksgiving Cactus" forms flower buds sooner and produces flowers earlier than the Christmas cactus. First buds form around late September, whereas the flower buds on the Christmas cactus are first visible in late October.

If you want more confusion read this: Christmas Cactus is called Zygocactus truncatus and also Euphyllium truncatum in catalogs and books, but these are wrong. Real name is Schlumbergera. Schlumbergera truncata isn't it! BURNING BUSH WITH POOR COLOR: A top-ranking shrub is the Winged Euonymus, a bush with ridges of cork on the stems. This is a good matured shrub easy to transplant because of the abundance of fibrous roots.

The brilliant red autumn color gives this Euonymus its name — "firebush" or "burning bush."

Sometimes the burning bush doesn't turn bright in fall and here are reasons why: (1) Dry soil in summer. (2) Excess shade, or a lack of sun. (3) Genetical makeup. Some burning bushes never get "fired" up and remain green right up until snowfall. (4) Excess nitrogen, or in other words, too rich a soil.

There are probably other reasons such as insect damage, or soil acidity or alkalinity (excess of either) which could cause the problem.

It should be noted that the fruit is highly decorative, consisting of a bristly capsule in shades of pink or red, and showing a bright red kernel, similar to the Bittersweet.

CARE FOR CANNA ROOTS: After the second good frost, you can dig up the canna roots, wash the soil off roots and dry them thoroughly. Dust lightly with sulfur and place in a wooden box lined with moist peat moss.

Store them in a cool, dark cellar (where it doesn't freeze) and inspect often to see if drying or rotting occurs. If too dry, add little water.

If you don't have a basement, you can dig a pit in the garden, three feet deep, line the bottom with ashes (half a foot), place the roots in, cover with peat moss, then add leaves, straw, etc. and cover with burlap bags, or an old rug, and as a safety precaution, put some soil on top of this.

Legislation Sought On Diseased Eggs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Three leaders in the successful fight last year to enact tough new meat and poultry inspection laws have urged similar action on diseased eggs which they said pose a nationwide threat.

The trio—Rep. Graham Purcell, D-Tex.; Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash.; and Neal Smith, D-Iowa—introduced a bill to require for the first time federal inspection of eggs and egg products.

Purcell, in a floor speech, noted the lack of any federal inspection law affecting egg products and said "only eight states require pasteurization of egg products and most states do not have specific laws which are applicable to egg products inspection."

Purcell said the main danger comes from egg borne salmonella and recalled that in 1967, 1,386 persons in five states were stricken with varying degrees of illness after eating a kosher dessert made from salmonella-tainted eggs.

He said there have been other instances of "sickness and death which have hit normal urban and farm families, schools, nursing homes and air force bases within the last few years."

Two out of three bad eggs escape detection under present inspection programs.

In addition, said Purcell, while some eggs may be found to be unfit for sale directly to consumers, they can move into breaking plants and be incorporated in liquid, frozen or dried egg products. One salmonella-tainted egg may infect the entire output of an egg processing plant.

Proposed Federal Wheat-Support Program Gives Agriculture Secretary New Powers

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A "working draft" of the Nixon administration's proposed new wheat price support program would leave price support levels to the discretion of the secretary of agriculture.

The draft also proposes adoption of a system under which price support payment rates for farmers would be reduced if open-market prices for wheat go up.

Under current law, support payment rates are fixed by law. Farmers who comply with government acreage controls get a payment which brings returns on a fixed portion of each grower's crop up to 100 per cent of the "fair earning power" parity price.

Under Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin's new draft plan, delivered to House farm leaders at a private conference earlier this week, the parity concept would be cut out of the wheat program.

The secretary, according to the new draft proposal, would set a price support payment rate for wheat annually on the basis of general economic factors such as farm income needs, probable market prices, and the need for production of wheat.

This "preliminary" payment rate would be announced to farmers before each growing season.

After the wheat crop was marketed, however, the Agriculture Department would compare actual market prices with a "target" price set in advance. If the market turned out above the target level, the price support payment rate would be reduced because—presumably—growers would have less need for supplemental government aid.

Hardin's proposal provides that, as at present, 75 cents per bushel of the farmers' payment would be raised by continuing a government tax on domestic wheat millers. The remainder of the farmers' payment would come from government funds.

Under existing law, which expires at the end of 1970, the price support payments are made on each grower's individual share of the domestic market for wheat used as human food. In recent years, farmers have received payments of about $1.50 per bushel on 40 to 45 per cent of their production.

Hardin's plan, which follows closely the lines of a similar program outlined last week for feed grains, would continue to make supplemental wheat payments only on the domestic human food portion of the crop.

Hardin's plan also would continue to provide price support loans for all wheat produced by farmers who comply with government controls—but at lower levels than in the past in order to encourage exports with minimal government export subsidies. In recent years, wheat support loans have been kept at $1.25 per bushel, but the Hardin program would enable them to be set at 80 to 85 per cent of the actual market price for the past three years.

To qualify for government supports under the Hardin plan, growers would have to file, or set aside a fixed percentage of their farm cropland. After having retired the acreage in amounts determined by the Agriculture Department, the grower could use his remaining land for virtually any crops he chose without losing eligibility for wheat supports.

The set-aside plan differs from the present program which puts a flat ceiling annually on the number of wheat acres a farmer can grow if he wants government support.

11 States Get Requests To Update Meat Inspection Law

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Governors of 11 states have been asked urgently to supply, by Nov. 15, definite plans for bringing their state meat inspection programs up to federal standards, agriculture department officials disclosed today.

Spokesmen said, in response to a UPI query, that the request was made recently in letters from assistant secretary of agriculture Richard E. Lyng to the governors of Alabama, Colorado, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Hampshire, New Mexico and North Dakota.

The letters were sent because of approaching enforcement deadlines under the 1967 Wholesale Meat Act, which extends federal meat inspection standards to state inspection programs. The federal inspection program covers meats produced for interstate sale, while the state programs affect meats slaughtered and processed for intrastate market.

Under the 1967 law, states were given until Dec. 15, 1969, to create intrastate programs meeting federal standards. The deadline can be extended to Dec. 15, 1970, for a state which has not fully met the standards but is likely to do so within the next year. Notification to governors of any states failing to meet the requirements must be sent by Nov. 15, 1969.

If a state fails to meet requirements of the law, the agriculture department must take over inspection of intrastate meats.

Agriculture department officials emphasized the request for action plans from the 11 states named necessarily were lagging more than some others, or were automatically facing a federal inspection takeover.

Some of the 11 states have "pretty good" programs under development, an official said. But in all cases, there were some "problem areas" about which the department wanted more information before reaching a final judgment.

A state-by-state "status report" furnished to the governors showed progress in the 11 states varied widely. Alabama, for example, has adopted a state meat inspection law which has been ruled equal to federal standards, but has not yet provided financing. In New Mexico, however, the state meat inspection law lacks authority with respect to procedures for conducting slaughter inspection, reinspection and sanitation in terms of meeting the "equal to" requirements of the federal law," a report said.

The status reports also noted that federal and state officials had made sampling surveys of actual current conditions in intrastate plants, and had found many still operating with substandard sanitary conditions and equipment. Comments in the reports included:

Alabama—"Proper facilities, procedures and controls for inspection are lacking. . . . In-plant sanitation and plant procedures for handling products in a sanitary manner need to be markedly upgraded."

Colorado—"The survey clearly indicated, for example, that environmental and in-plant sanitation needs to be improved."

Indiana—"The survey pointed out, for example, that environmental and in-plant sanitation was lacking."

Kentucky—"In-plant sanitary standards must be raised."

Louisiana—"The survey . . . indicates deficiencies in plant facilities and equipment, operative sanitary practices, and control of inedible and condemned material."

Massachusetts—"In-plant sanitation of facilities and equipment is poor."

Minnesota—"In-plant sanitation must be upgraded."

Mississippi—"Environmental and in-plant sanitation needs upgrading."

New Hampshire—"Plant facilities and equipment must be improved in most plants to provide proper inspection procedures and to expedite sanitary handling of meat and meat products as they are processed."

New Mexico—"Sanitary procedures for handling carcasses and meat products need to be greatly improved."

North Dakota—"A lack of adequate facilities and equipment for proper handling of carcasses and meats, as well as appropriate sanitary operative procedures."

Grassman

MOUNTAIN HOME — J. R. Cornell Jr., a cattle rancher at Mountain Home and Mayfield, has been selected as the Idaho Grassman-of-the-Year.

He was selected at a recent meeting of the Idaho State Chamber of Commerce in Boise. A tour of his ranch will be scheduled next spring.

Mr. Cornell produces Angus-cross cattle on a spread of 2,000 acres and public land acres in Elmore County. He has operated the ranch for nine years since the death of his father and is a composite of properties that used to run sheep.

Wheat, Barley Prices May Improve Some

BOISE — Wheat and barley prices may improve a little during the winter, but there is a slight prospect of a big rise this winter, an economist of the University of Idaho extension service said today.

Quentin D. Banks, marketing information specialist, said the outlook is "sluggish." Barley and mixtures of wheat and barley are the major feed grains in the Northwest. They are plentiful in Idaho.

Continuation of plentiful and relatively inexpensive feed supplies is indicated, he said. Feed prices are expected to be low in comparison with a few years ago and in relation to corn prices in the Midwest. Barley prices at Portland went down during the spring and summer of 1969 while corn and grain sorghum at Kansas City went up.

Supplies of barley in the U. S. have been building up since 1967 and are substantially above averages. The increase has been going on when both domestic use and exports were falling.

Total stocks of feed grain will probably be about the same through the 1969-70 feeding year as they were the year before, Banks said. Use of feed grains is expected to continue heavy.

Tonnage fed to livestock and poultry is likely to be near the record 120 million estimated for the current year. More livestock will be fed. Rates of feeding per animal are expected to be a little less.

Committees Named By Area Grange

GOODING — Members of the Gooding Pomona Grange named standing committees during a recent meeting.

They are Mrs. Chester Ewing, Mrs. Harold Butler, Mrs. Ira Kistner, women's activities; Phares Schiffler, Stanley Hoskovec and Don Fredrickson, legislation; Melvin Gibson, Ben Gauder and Elmer Hanson, resolutions; and Richard Jasper, Omar Schmitt and Ray Harding, agriculture.

Mrs. Kistner, Vernon Ravenna and Barbara Butler, junior Grange; Howard Niccum, Doran Butler, County Agent's Council; George Fuller, Kirby Hill and Mrs. Ray Ruby, good of the order; and Vernon Bumgarner, membership.

Ed Koester, youth; Mrs. Chester Anderson, Home Demonstration Council; Mrs. Raymond White, publicity; Mr. and Mrs. Ewing, insurance march; Mrs. Florence Miller, fifth degree; and Mrs. George Koser, penmanship.

EXPERT RISKS TOP CONTRACT

The really expert board-a-match team player plays his dummy play in accordance with his contract. If he thinks the same contract will have been reached at the opposite table, he takes the percentage play designed to gather in the greatest number of tricks. If he thinks he is in a higher contract, he takes the percentage play designed to give him the best possible play for his high contract.

Today's hand was played by one of the great experts of the early '30s, who suffered from a complete deficiency of common sense. He looked at dummy for awhile, then rose with the king of diamonds, led the deuce of spades and played his queen. West made his singleton king and there was no way to keep East from setting the hand later on.

North wanted to know why South hadn't taken the safety play of the ace of spades to guard against this one combination. South explained that he would have made an overtrick if East had started with king-small-of-trumps and he felt the overtrick would be important. South pointed out that, at the other table, North and South were sure to be in six-no-trump and that the no-trump-declarer would surely take the safety play. This he no-trump-slam would make at the other table and the only way to win the board would be to score the spade overtrick.

Why do we say that South was completely lacking in common sense? Even today, only the very best pairs would do any better than to reach six-cruces and any sensible declarer would play six spades like at rubber bridge and adopt the line of play most likely to bring in the contract. As for the case in question: At the other table, West opened with three hearts and would not go down two tricks doubled, but that was good enough for a win, after expert South's exercise in bad judgment.

State Employees To Study Use Of New Telephone Setup

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — Approximately 1,000 state employees are going back to "school" this month and next to learn how to use the telephone.

It's all part of a new "Centrex" system which the state is installing for Statehouse and Capitol Mall phone service Dec. 15.

To be located in the basement of the "Centrex" system will replace the 30-year-old switchboard now operated on the fourth floor of the Capitol building.

Bert Colwell, director of communications, said the state employees whose agencies are affected and switchboard operators in outlying agencies will receive training in how to handle the semi-automatic system.

While the total state bill from Mountain Bell Telephone Company will be approximately the same, Colwell said, the state system will have a greater capacity than before.

For one thing, he said, some agencies such as the governor's office and the attorney general's office no longer will need special private "night" lines outside the state switchboard.

They will be able to obtain 24-hour service even when the switchboard is not manned as long as they place the calls from their offices. In some special cases — such as the governor — Telepak and wide area telephone service (WATS) calls can be placed through the unmanned switchboard at night even when the official is not in his office.

Passion For Bingo Brings Death To Two

BOLTON, England (UPI) — A passion for bingo led a middle-aged couple so deeply into debt that the man beat his wife to death, and then committed suicide by gas.

Police said that after an inquest that John Goodram, 49, and his wife Florence, 50, played bingo five nights a week and decided to give up electricity and food in order to keep on playing. Mrs. Goodram was a member of 15 bingo clubs.

The couple spent about $95 a week in bingo halls and got themselves "up to their eyes in debts" by persuading relatives and friends to lend them the money they needed for their craze, a police spokesman said.

Police were called to the Goodram house last July 20 and found Mrs. Goodram dead of head injuries in the kitchen. By her side was a hammer with blood stains. Her husband was lying in the front room near a punctured gas pipe.

It appeared the couple owed more than $240 for gas, electricity and food and to creditors.

Bishops Back Celibate Law For Priests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American Roman Catholic bishops approved today a statement upholding the rule of celibacy for priests.

The text of the statement was not made public immediately but Archbishop Francis Furey of San Antonio said in essence it was a reaffirmation of the position taken by the bishops two years ago. At that time the U.S. hierarchy supported Pope Paul VI's assertion that priestly celibacy must be retained.

Many of the bishops who voted no were said to have done so out of opposition to issuance of a formal statement at this time by the hierarchy, and were not actually opposed to the celibacy rule.

The vote to issue the statement was 145 to 68. Substantial sentiment was developed among U.S. priests for putting celibacy on an optional basis. Furey said the hierarchy, in its statement, left the door open to possible future change in the rule but emphasized that at present celibacy is desirable as a mandatory requirement of priests.

The leader of Washington's Black United Front tried to force his way into the meeting to demand reparations, but he was stopped at the door while the bishops left by another exit.

Few Negroes Are Included Among Intensely Dedicated, Hard-Working Youths Of The 'New Mobe' War Protesters

By LOUIS CASSELS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam is, in the main, young, hairy, earnest, harried and incredibly polite. As nearly everyone must know, the "New Mobe" is sponsoring a three-day antiwar demonstration in the capital. It is supposed to get underway tonight and climax with a mass march down Pennsylvania Avenue Saturday.

Its headquarters are in an old office building at 1029 Vermont Avenue Northwest, four blocks from the White House.

The new mobe's offices occupy the 5th, 8th and 10th floors of the 10-story building. They are a charwoman's nightmare. The floors are dirty and littered with trash. Half-empty coffee cups serve as ashtrays, cardboard

Attends Debate

The tournament started Thursday. The four-member team will return to Caldwell Sunday.

boxes as wastebaskets. Antiwar posters and handmade signs cover nearly every square foot of wall space. One poster displays a scowling photograph of President Nixon, with the caption: "Would you buy a used war from this man?"

Some of the signs are appeals for volunteers to handle particular jobs: "We urgently need people to staff reception centers." Others are personal notes, arranging meetings: "Cathy, come to Marshall's Center, Love, Tom."

The atmosphere can only be described as controlled bedlam. All of the offices are over-crowded to a degree that would make a fire marshal nervous. There is much coming and going. Long lines wait outside each of the two elevators, and the more impatient sprint up and down the stairs.

Here and there you see somebody who is over 30. But at least 90 per cent of the volunteer workers appear to be in their late teens or early twenties. There are as many girls as boys. The girls wear miniskirts or bell-bottom pants, and long hair. The boys wear blue jeans, open-neck shirts and long hair. About one in four has a beard.

Black faces are almost as scarce as grey heads.

In one packed room on the 10th floor about 20 boys and 35,000 silent marchers who will sit cross-legged on the walk-single file from Arlington National Cemetery to the White House, beginning at 6 p.m. with the name of an American serviceman killed in Vietnam about 8 a.m. Saturday.

Nixon Urges Reform Of U.S. Prisons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today advocated immediate and dramatic reform of the nation's prison system to help protect the public from the criminal who comes out more dangerous than when first arrested.

Nixon directed Attorney General John N. Mitchell to coordinate a 13-point program with emphasis on rehabilitation, particularly of the young offender.

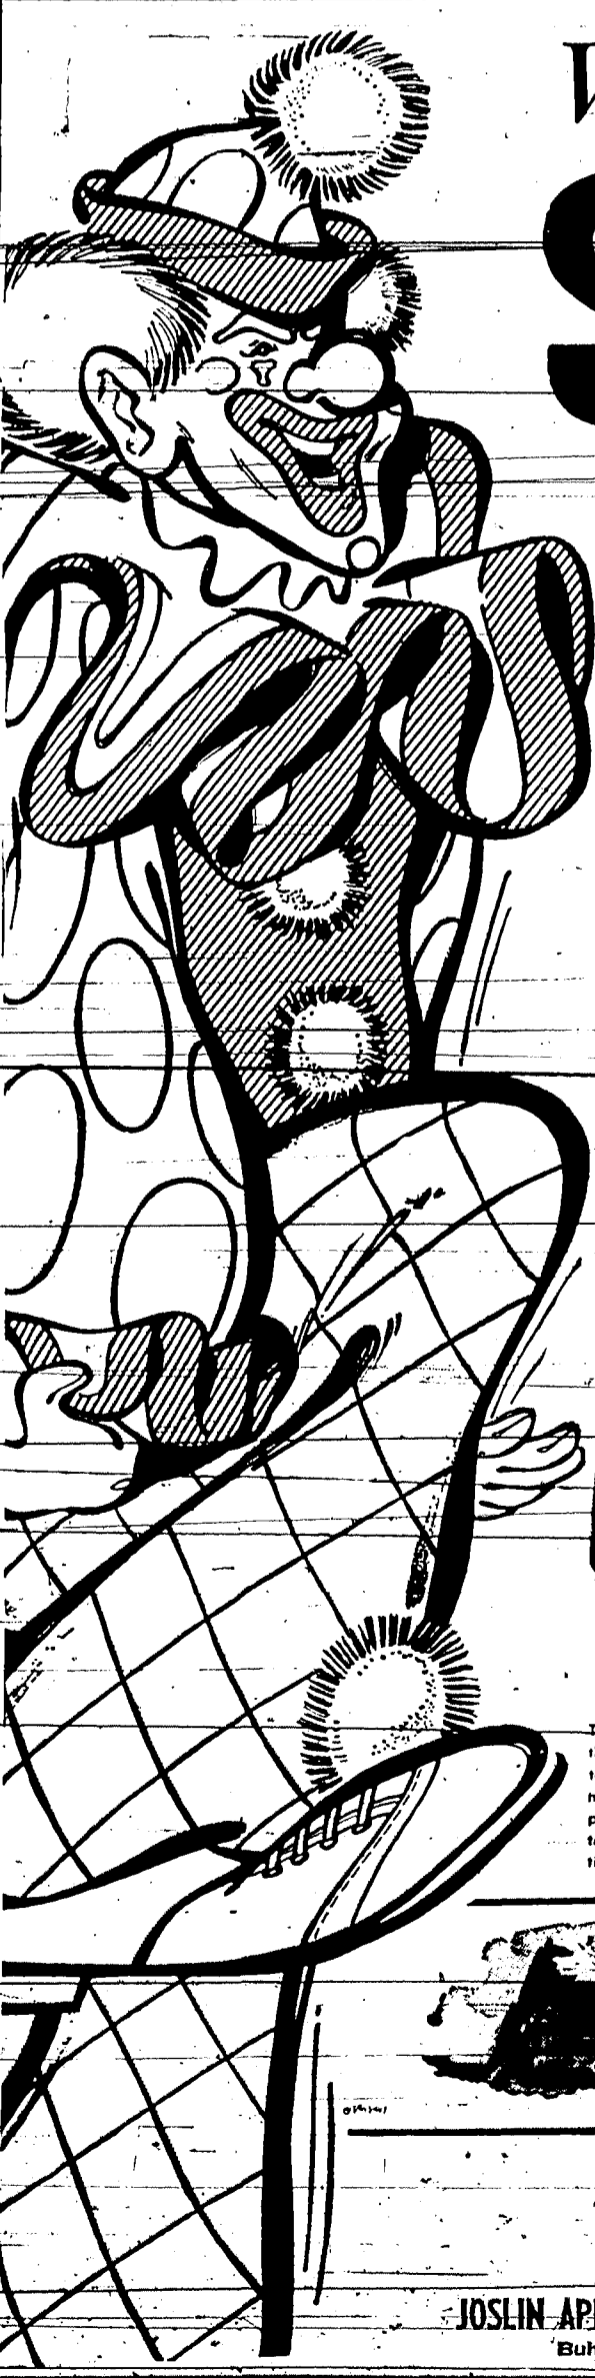

The President also urged the "concerned citizen" to support prison reform as one of the most effective ways of fighting crime.

"One of the areas where citizen cooperation is most needed is in the rehabilitation of the convicted criminal," he said. "Men and women who are released from prison must be given a fair opportunity to prove themselves as they return to society."

"We will not insure our domestic tranquility by keeping them at arm's length," the President said. "If we turn our back on the ex-convict, then we should not be surprised if he again turns his back on us."

The President's program was outlined in a directive to Mitchell. It included no immediate requests for action by Congress although several studies were proposed which could lead to future legislation.

Nixon asked Mitchell to develop a 10-year plan for correctional reform "to end the crisis-oriented, stop-gap nature of most reform efforts."

Corps Director Asks Exemption From Draft Laws

Peace Corps Director Joseph H. Blatchford recommended today that Peace Corps volunteers be exempted from the draft during peace time. Blatchford, testifying at Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's subcommittee hearings on the draft, said exemptions should be conditioned on a three-year peace corps enlistment, and should be coupled with a draft lottery. Under Blatchford's plan, if a youth enlisted for three years in the Peace Corps, his name would be eliminated from the draft pool. If he chose a shorter term, he would take his chances with 19-year-olds in the draft lottery when he finished his peace corps duty. Blatchford and Kennedy agreed that neither the Peace Corps nor any other form of alternative service should be permitted draft-age men during a war.

Hansen Okays Probe Of 'Aging'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, said that appointment of a White House task force on aging would give senior citizens a new voice within the administration. Hansen said appointment of the 16-member task force meant the administration had recognized the "increasingly burdensome and complex" problems facing senior citizens. "This task force is also evidence of the deep interest and concern with which the President is addressing himself to the well-being of our senior citizens," Hansen said. The congressman said the task force would examine problems faced by older people to determine how they can best achieve security, dignity and independence.

There were just 15 united states when Jacob Beam started making this Bourbon.

The U.S.A. was a tall, strong, heady child in 1795. That's when Jacob Beam, a pioneer Kentucky grain farmer with muscled hands and smiling eyes, gave it a Bourbon whiskey to call its own. Beam. A straight Kentucky Bourbon so smooth and fine and light-tasting we haven't seen cause to change it, not even a little bit, in 175 years. Not the formula. Not the process. Not the taste. Why heck, to some of us, that's the American way. "World's finest Bourbon since 1795."

Mary Brooks, Director Of U. S. Mint Makes Idaho Trip To Check On Ranch

RUPERT—Mrs. Mary Brooks, director of the U.S. Mint, was back in Idaho this week winding up the business year for her ranch, the Flat Top Sheep Co. of Rupert and Pocatello.

While in her home state, the member of the Nixon administration also took time out for a speaking engagement and to issue a statement to the press regarding Clement F. Haynsworth's nomination for Supreme Court Justice by President Nixon, and the subsequent Congressional disagreement over the nomination.

"We know the tremendous increase in crime can be put in large measure, to laws which tend to protect the rights of the lawbreaker, irrespective of the rights of those they prey upon," said Mrs. Brooks.

"President Nixon is trying to change the complexion of the courts to a more moderate, or conservative hue. The confirmation of Haynsworth is being fought by some very powerful political lobbies. I feel it would be very tragic if this sort of character assassination proves to be successful. The charges brought against Haynsworth on the way to Idaho, stopped in Denver to hire a new assayer for the Denver Mint."

Early Scoring, Confidence Spell Vikings' Success

By STU CAMEN
UPI Sports Writer

Confidence and the ability to score early has spelled success this season for the Minnesota Vikings.

Following a season-opening loss to the New York Giants, which in retrospect is beginning to rank as one of the greatest upsets in football history, the Vikings won seven in a row and opened a two-game lead in the National Football League's Central Division.

The Vikings have trailed only twice this season, 3-0 at the end of the first period in the game against the Giants and 24-23 at the end of the Giants' contest. During its seven-game winning streak, Minnesota has not allowed a touchdown during the first quarter of play while outscoring the opposition, 57-3 during the opening 15 minutes of play.

Quarterback-Poor Idaho Plays Colorado State For First Time In History

MOSCOW — The Idaho Vandals, adding another player to their "out for the season" list, will attempt to re-group their charges against a tough Colorado State University team in Fort Collins, Colorado on Saturday.

Last Saturday against Weber, John Hathaway, starting quarterback, joined the injured list as he separated a shoulder late in the game and will be lost for the season.

Coach Y. C. McNease said this season. One of the players who have been lost to the Vandals has been key player Steve Olson, the one-time nation's leader in passing. McNease said that Mitch Lansdell will take over as starting quarterback with Pete Ghindveac, sophomore quarterback, being held in reserve.

USC, UCLA Coaches See Trouble Where None Exists

By JOE SARGIS UPI Sports Writer

Tommy Prothro must be taking lessons from John McKay, or is it the other way around?

Between them the UCLA and Southern California coaches have managed to make world beaters out of every team they've met this season, including such as Washington State (1-7), California (4-4) and Washington (0-8).

Now Prothro is saying Oregon State (4-4) is a tough club even though the Ducks have been beaten by Stanford (28-0), San Jose State (36-34) and the Air Force (60-13).

Speaking on his own talk show in Los Angeles the other night, Prothro said Oregon, which unbeaten UCLA plays Saturday at Eugene, "has a better record than any team No. 1 Ohio State has met this season."

"If you want to talk about the Rose Bowl," continued Prothro, "I can show you how Oregon can still go."

Mathematically the Ducks have a chance but the odds-makers, who deal in realities instead of corn, think UCLA is so much better than Oregon that they have taken the game off the boards. That means they aren't taking any action simply because no one has shown any desire to bet on Oregon.

The same is true of McKay's unbeaten Trojans, who are ranked a step ahead of Prothro's Bruins, sixth nationally by the UPI Board of Coaches.

McKay hasn't exactly been quiet this week while preparing his team for winless Washington. The game will be played at Seattle, something McKay fears for some unknown reason.

"They aren't as bad as their record," said coach John. "There is nothing they would like better than to beat us, especially on their home ground."

That's all very true, but Huskies, hit by injuries to six starters even before the season began, and later by racial problems, now are simply playing out the season and hoping their followers will forget it as quickly as possible.

The UCLA-Oregon and USC-Washington pairings are the only ones of note in the waning Pacific 8 Conference race this week, although Stanford has an important date with the Air Force.

Since both the Bruins and Trojans are "out" favorites, Saturday's games will serve as tuneups for their climactic meeting in Los Angeles next Saturday to more than likely decide the Pac 8 title and the Rose Bowl berth that goes with it.

USC is 4-0-0 in league play and UCLA is 4-0-1. Stanford, which has an outside chance if someone should stumble, is 4-1-1.

The Indians, ranked 12th nationally off a 5-2-1 record against top foes, are picked by nine points over the Air Force, mostly because they have an excellent field goal kicker in Steve Horowitz.

McCarver Is Happy To Be With Phils

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Catcher Tim McCarver, newest member of the Philadelphia Phillies, thinks 1969 was a bad dream both for him and his old St. Louis Cardinal teammates.

McCarver made his first public appearance here since leaving St. Louis in the Richie Allen trade and predicted better things for 1970.

"Don't blame the Cardinals for not winning the pennant last year," he told writers at a luncheon. "The two big reasons we didn't win were the Mets and the Cubs."

"Everyone wants to put the blame on someone or something," he said. "But there's nothing you can build up to that was wrong. It wasn't a case of a collapse of fat cats. There weren't any," McCarver continued.

The star catcher appeared happy with last month's trade which brought him, pitcher Joe Hoerner and outfielder Curt Flood here.

"There had to be some reaction after the trade was announced following eight years with the club," he said. "But after talking with John Quinn (Phils' General Manager) I felt I was part of the Phils."

Quinn announced after the luncheon that McCarver has signed his 1970 contract, but that he is still trying to persuade Flood not to return from baseball. Quinn says he is appealing to Flood's artistic sense, telling him Philadelphia offers more to an art lover than Flood's art shop in St. Louis.

"There has been no mention of any money," Quinn said, "but only whether he will play baseball."

Basketball is the only major sport of strictly American origin.

K-State And Nebraska See Tight Battle

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI) — Saturday's Nebraska-Kansas State clash has stirred more than a little interest among rival Big Eight Conference coaches.

It's a classic match of a great offense (Kansas State) vs. a great defense (Nebraska). So how will the game go? Will it be a devil-may-care scoring extravaganza? or will it be a bitter defensive struggle?

Missouri coach Dan Devine leans toward the former.

"It'll be a whale of a game, I'd guess," says Devine. "I'd guess there would be a lot of scoring, with neither side having any apparent advantage."

I know if I was a football fan in the Kansas City area, I'd be in Manhattan Saturday.

Kansas coach Pepper Rodgers isn't so sure.

One thing is certain. There will be a lot of passing.

Kansas State's Lynn Dickey has never been known to avoid putting the ball in the air, nor does coach Vince Gibson like the idea.

"Dickey can pick you like a chicken," says Gibson. "You won't find a more exciting quarterback in America."

Dickey has completed 54 per cent of his passes for more than 1,300 yards this season.

Nebraska will rely on its quarterback tandem of Jerry Tagge and Van Brownson, both sophomores.

McNease plans no immediate changes in the regular offensive backfield with Frank Doctor, who ran very well against Weber, Jeff Guillory, a senior at halfback, Mike Wiscombe, junior running back and Ron Davis, another junior, to see action against the Rams on Saturday. Terry Moreland and Jim Wickboldt will share the flanker spot. Wickboldt, also doing double duty as a defensive cornerback.

Bill Cady, who suffered a pinched nerve in his neck, is expected to be back in action and is practicing with the team this week. Jack Goddard, split end and flanker, who injured his shoulder in the Oregon game, is still a doubtful player for this game.

The Colorado State Rams, who did not play this past week, will take a 3-4 record against the Vandals. It will be the first meeting in history between the two schools. The Rams boast an exciting runner in Lawrence McCutcheon, a 195-pound running back, sophomore from Plainview, Texas. This talented runner is leading the Rams in rushing with 820 yards gained and a 5.5 rushing average and has scored nine touchdowns. The Rams quarterback, Chip Maxwell, is a 6'5" junior and has completed 66 passes in 129 attempts and five touchdowns.

Coach McNease feels that the Vandals will have to come up with a strong defensive effort in order to hold down the Rams scoring and the Vandals must come up with one of their best offensive efforts and keep the ball moving, especially inside the opponents 20-yard line. "If we can get our team to move the ball and get the passes to the receivers, I feel that we can score," said McNease.

Packers Get Hope, Starr May Be Ready

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — The Green Bay Packers' chances against the Minnesota Vikings Sunday shot upward Thursday with the possibility that Bart Starr and Jen Bowman might play, after all.

Starr, who missed most of the Packers' last two games, has started to throw again in practice.

"I don't know if he was experiencing pain, but if he was, he was throwing with it and throwing pretty well, too," said head coach Phil Bengtson, who earlier in the week had all but resigned himself to starting Don Horn at quarterback against the most fearsome pass rush in the National Football League.

That Starr was throwing at all reflected obvious improvement in the pulled bicep of his right arm, because he was physically incapable of passing just last Sunday when he directed the first series of plays—all runs—against Baltimore before giving way to Horn.

Jets Face Best In West Sunday But Haven't Beaten Worst Yet

By WILLIAM VERIGAN UPI Sports Writer

As far as the New York Jets are concerned, they can give the West back to the Indians.

As long as the Jets stay in the East, they don't have much to worry about with their 7-2 record. Their nearest rival for the Eastern Division title in the American Football League is Houston with a 4-4-1 record and then comes Miami (2-6), Buffalo (2-7) and, worst of all, Boston (1-8). An formidable array, to say the least.

Two times this season, New York has met Western Division teams, and those two meetings account for the two losses on the Jets' record. More embarrassing, the defeats were against the worst teams in the West.

Denver (4-5) beat the Jets 21-19 and San Diego (4-5) defeated them 34-27. In their only other game with a Western rival, New York whipped Cincinnati, third best in the West, 21-7.

That outlines the task facing the Jets on Sunday when the Kansas City Chiefs, leader in the West with an 8-1 record and battling to stay ahead of the Oakland Raiders with a 7-1-1 mark, invade Shea Stadium.

The Jets set an all-time club winning streak with their sixth straight last week, 16-5 over Buffalo, but in the process they gave up more yardage than they made for the second straight week. Buffalo pounded out 297 yards compared to 273 for New York, and Jim Turner, the league's leading scorer, was called on to kick three field goals and an extra point for the margin of difference.

In the last game between the two teams, 14 months ago, the Jets won 20-19 in their AFL opener on the way to the Super Bowl championship.

If the Chiefs get past New York, they still must face Oakland twice in a showdown to finish first in the West. But this season, under a new playoff setup, the first and second place allowed only 88 points, has intercepted 25 passes and has sacked the opposing quarterback 39 times. The defensive statistics are what New York will be hard-pressed to match.

teams meet in each division with the winners meeting for the league title. Kansas City, Oakland and New York are almost assured of playoff berths, and Houston also is on solid ground.

Oakland, which beat Kansas City last year in a playoff for the Western title, has the dubious advantage of its home field against the Chargers, who have been agonizing ever since John Hadji's passing; talent suddenly deserted him.

San Diego went last week with rookie Marty Domres, who was intercepted five times in a 27-3 loss to the Chiefs. But despite the problems at quarterback, the Chargers' Lance Alworth, still in second in the league in receiving with 39 catches for 572 yards and two touchdowns, Oakland's Fred Biletnikoff is the leader with 41 for 623 yards and 10 TDs, and his quarterback, Daryle Lamonica, is the No. 3 passer with 156 completions in 303 attempts for 2,205 yards and 25 touchdowns.

Today's Market And Financial Report Classified

NEW YORK (UPI)—The market fell back Friday for the fourth consecutive session in moderate turnover. Selling reflected concern over anti-war demonstrations scheduled in Washington this week and Thursday's adverse reaction to a large commercial bank was planning to raise its prime interest rate.

The bank specified, said there was no truth to the rumor, but the denial failed to reassure Wall Street. One analyst remarked that traders have been living with the belief that interest rates would soon ease. With trading past the halfway mark, the UPI marketwide indicator showed a loss of 0.55 per cent on 1,518 issues crossing the tape. There were 868 declines and 392 advances. Sen. Kennedy Seeks Victory On Draft Issue Over Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., hopes to beat President Nixon to the punch on draft reform despite a resounding first round victory for the administration. To Kennedy, draft reform is an ideal issue for the nation's wide constituency, he at least partially inherited from his brothers, the late President John F. Kennedy and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

In hearings before his Senate administration practice and procedure subcommittee, the Massachusetts senator himself has repeatedly recited the groups he believes are cheated by the present draft system — "the young, the poor, the black, the Mexican Americans." It was to these same groups that Robert Kennedy addressed much of his 1968 campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Kennedy finished his hearings on draft reform this week and his staff is rushing a polished report on the subcommittee's recommendations. The goal is to announce it before Nixon discloses the draft reforms he plans to make in conjunction with switching to a lottery system of selecting draftees.

If all goes well for Kennedy, any draft reforms announced by the White House will appear to be Nixon endorsements of Kennedy proposals. According to the scenario, Kennedy thus would get credit for forcing a reluctant Republican administration into reforming the draft system. Kennedy would then carry his Senate Armed Services Committee, which plans to consider draft law changes next year.

The first act of Kennedy's drama flopped. After vowing he would offer other reforms as amendments to Nixon's draft lottery bill, the Massachusetts Democrat retreated when he was accused of blocking the bill's passage. He promised to help Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., Armed Services Committee chairman, push Nixon's bill through by itself.

But even this could prove a plus for Kennedy. Stennis promised, all along to hold committee hearings on draft reform next year. But a day after bowing on the Nixon bill, Kennedy released a statement attempting to link his surrender with reform legislation next year.

"It is my hope that we will approve the random selection authorization in a week or two, now that the Armed Services Committee has agreed to hold hearings on, and report a bill on, the kinds of sweeping draft reform so important to guaranteeing a fair, non-disruptive draft," Kennedy said.

Actually, Stennis promised only hearings, and certainly did not commit himself to "sweeping draft reform." But Kennedy's statement put him in position to claim a role in any draft changes proposed by Stennis' committee, and contend they would have never been considered had he not gracefully given up his plans to amend Nixon's lottery proposal.

California Ponders Law On Auto Smog

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A state law that would close California borders against all new cars not equipped with a guaranteed air pollution control device was proposed Thursday.

Robert J. Chass, chief deputy air pollution control officer of Los Angeles County, advanced the suggestion in testimony before the air pollution subcommittee of the assembly committee on transportation.

Chass said all new cars sold in California should be required to meet the state's emission standards and be guaranteed by the manufacturer for the first 25,000 miles.

Otherwise, they should be banned from entering the state for sale because such cars may have exceeded the standards when they were built and could not be adjusted to comply, Chass said.

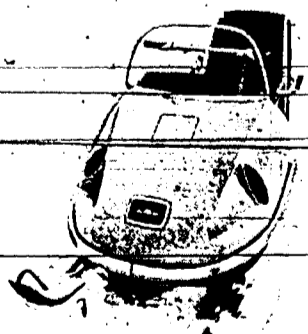

Needed Grapes or Diet Sent Despite Boycott

SANGER, Calif. (UPI) — A Fairfield, Conn., cancer patient who needs grapes for a special diet and said she could not get them because of the grape boycott has been sent several jugs of California table grapes, an area grower reported.

Grower E. L. Barr said he suggested that a New York jobber send the grapes to the woman, whose identity was not released. Barr said the jobber sent them.

A San Francisco public relations firm, Whitaker and Baxter, said in a news release that table grapes were essential to the special diet prescribed for the woman.

Religion Today

By Rev. Lester Kinsolving

Ecclesiastical politics, for so long conducted underground (and therefore often underhanded), appear at last to be coming out into the open.

At the recent national convention of the United Church of Christ in Boston, for instance, hotel walls were plastered with candidates' campaign posters, and halls were jammed with caucuses and vote solicitors.

In Israel, shortly after he blew the Shofar (Ram's horn) as Israeli troops moved into the Wailing Wall area, Chief Army Chaplain Shlomo Goren began public campaigning for the post of Chief Rabbi of Tel Aviv.

Such open politicking is bound to upset many religious traditionalists who feel that the election of bishops and other religious leaders should be influenced solely by God and the Holy Spirit. These devout and pristine people are usually snowed under by ecclesiastical political machines which for precision make the Longs of Louisiana look like amateurs.

To attribute the results of many of these elections to the Holy Spirit approaches blasphemy. Yet this attribution is as much a part of the election rhetoric as the pious statements of clergy who having been elected bishop (as the result of arduous months of clandestine campaigning) announce in a stained glass voice: "Before accepting this election, I must give the matter prayerful consideration."

("Will your father accept his election as bishop?", the young son of one such clergyman was asked. "I don't know," he replied. "Father's down at the church praying about it. Mother's home packing the bags.")

A case in point is the recent election of a bishop for the Episcopal Diocese of Honolulu. Among the ten candidates was Francis Sayre, famed Dean of Washington's National Cathedral, Los Angeles' Suffragan Bishop Robert Rusack and prominent rectors in Akron and Virginia. Winner by a heavy majority was Honolulu's Suffragan (assistant) Bishop E. Lani Hanchett, whose education consists of two years of college and three months of theological seminary.

While acting for the past two years as "Bishop in charge" (a temporary appointment) Hanchett had affirmed that clergymen cannot afford the luxury of being involved in controversial social issues.

Such a stance apparently motivated two student newspaper editors at the Diocese's Iolani School to a series of written questions asking where the bishop candidates stood on various social issues.

(Just why this has not been done before in all bishop elections may well be due to the traditional and ridiculous idea that concealment of a clergyman's convictions on important subjects is somehow conducive to the work of the Holy Spirit.)

Hanchett and all other candidates provided replies to these questions. But when a meeting of candidates was arranged at the school, Hanchett balked at facing oral questions which might illuminate the written answers he had provided.

Instead, he took advantage of his position as temporary bishop in charge to use the Diocesan newspaper for extensive campaigning, a privilege not available to the other candidates.

He had been made temporary bishop in charge (giving him something of an incumbent's advantage) after his election as Suffragan bishop, by the Episcopal House of Bishops in their 1967 meeting in Seattle. He had been nominated to the Bishops by a secret committee which had been appointed by the now retired Bishop Harry Kennedy. One of the three men on this secret committee was Chancellor (Diocesan attorney) Hugh Shearer.

Hanchett's amazing election victory can be attributed almost entirely to Shearer's political acumen. Hanchett's part-Hawaiian blood, plus his expressed devotion to "law and order" were impressively promoted, along with letters of endorsement which were sent to all voters. (Backers of other candidates were unable to obtain voters' lists from Diocesan headquarters until after the Hanchett mailing.)

Chancellor Shearer virtually ran the Diocesan convention which elected Hanchett. While Episcopal Presiding Bishop John E. Hines was asked to come from New York to preside, he was unable on numerous occasions to fule on convention disputes, simply because of his un-

Rev. Storey New Pastor In Twin Falls

The First United Brethren in Christ, 461 Filer Ave. W., Twin Falls, has a new pastor.

Rev. and Mrs. Del Storey, Deary, Ida., were welcomed to Twin Falls and to the church last Sunday. He has ministered as pastor and evangelist for 11 years on the West Coast and upper Midwest states.

Rev. Storey was associated in earth moving business with his father in Lewiston, is a licensed pilot and has done home building.

A theological fundamentalist, Rev. Storey feels "the Bible is totally relevant to the present day and that the power of the Holy Spirit must be taught as a personal experience and not a vague doctrine."

The Storeys have four daughters, Pamela, 13; Barbara, 11; Linda, 10; and Suzanne, 8, and reside at 166 Madison St.

THIS NEW BUILDING at Wendell will house the Wendell congregation of the Jehovah's Witnesses, and will be dedicated Saturday evening. An open house is planned for Saturday afternoon.

Jehovah's Witnesses To Dedicate New Building

WENDELL - Members of the Wendell Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses will dedicate their newly constructed Kingdom Hall at 101 Bliss St., Wendell, Saturday.

An open house will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday and at 7 p.m. dedication ceremonies will be held. K. D. McKinney, presiding minister, will speak on the history of the congregation. J. Grammer, assistant, and Dennis G. Pike, traveling circuit supervisor, will speak.

Members of the Wendell congregation and volunteer members from Payette, Boise and Twin Falls erected the church. Voluntary contributions financed the building.

The building consists of a lecture hall and library. Bible studies are held in these rooms Tuesday evening and Sunday afternoons. A public lecture is held at 2 p.m. Sundays and a ministry training school is held at 7:30 p.m. Thursdays.

The public is invited to the dedication.

Choir Plans Concerts Here This Weekend

JEROME - The Wasatch Academy Choir from Mount Pleasant, Utah, will present a concert Saturday in the First Presbyterian Church of Jerome at 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

This is the first appearance of the Wasatch choir in Idaho, although they have previously toured throughout Utah.

Wasatch Academy is a co-educational boarding school operated by the Board of National Missions of the United Presbyterian Church. It is located in Mt. Pleasant, Utah, a town about 100 miles south of Salt Lake City. It serves all races and creeds. Young people from nine foreign countries and eighteen states form the student body of 200.

The Academy is known throughout the Intermountain area for its high academic standards. It was founded in 1875 by Duncan McMillan and offers a well rounded education to students who are geographically or socially isolated.

This year the choir, directed by Floyd Nelson, has a membership of 58.

The Wasatch choir members will be housed in homes of members of the Jerome church. Dinner will be provided for them before the concert, in the church, by Senior High United Presbyterian Youth group. Breakfast is to be served by each host Sunday morning.

A second concert is scheduled for the Wasatch Choir on Sunday morning in Wendell at the Presbyterian Church starting at 11 a.m. The public also is invited to attend this service.

familiarity with local Diocesan canon law.

So Shearer repeatedly provided rulings, which in three cases excluded either lay or clergy delegates from voting. This he did despite the fact that prior to the convention he had publicly endorsed the candidacy of Hanchett - an impropriety somewhat similar to having one candidate's campaign manager (however honest) as judge in a case of election fraud.

T. F. Church Plans Drama In Worship

The Value of dramatic art to the growth of a person's faith will be reaffirmed in the 9:30 A.M. worship service in the Fireside Lounge, First Presbyterian Church, this Sunday.

With a dramatic reading of a portion of Arthur Miller's, The Crucible, the problem of guilt by association in our society is viewed through the historical eyeglass of the Salem witch-burnings.

In this day when persons are often found guilty through vicious rumor and unfounded allegations, the Church as the Body of Christ must take its message of forgiveness and freedom seriously. That persons are divided by petty differences spread by divisive social organizations is a disease that the reconciling Word of God will not tolerate.

Helping to bring the play to light in the context of worship are Valeta Burke, Regi Teasley, Bob Plumb, Carroll Dowd, Bob Harvey and Bob Williams. All are invited to worship.

Folk Music Is Theme For Rally At Buhl

BUHL - An evening of folk music will be the theme of a high school rally of eight churches Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in the Buhl United Methodist church.

Students from churches in Wendell, Castleford, Buhl, Twin Falls and Jerome in the Episcopal, Methodist and Presbyterian denominations will participate. The folk service will be led by Rev. Bob Williams, associate pastor of the Twin Falls First Presbyterian church.

The rally is the first of a series of folk music "happenings" among various communities and denominations. It is the goal of these churches to invite all others interested.

One new innovation of the rally will be the introduction of a Folk Mass, religious folk music with new forms and liturgies is emerging from many areas. A Folk Mass is a communion service set to modern folk music and usually done with new modern liturgies.

Students attending the rally will have an opportunity to hear many new folk hymns and be able to learn them. The rally is open to every one in high school. Persons with guitars and other instruments are asked to bring them.

Church Of The Nazarene At Jerome Organized In 1925

JEROME—"The Church of the Nazarene was born marching and it hasn't quit." This statement by a leading Nazarene leader referred to the struggling, rather inauspicious beginning of the denomination in a small brown tent at Pilot Point, Tex., on Oct. 19, 1900. This was the official birthday of the church.

A strong missionary emphasis continues from its early days. The church foreign program has grown steadily. Hundreds of fulltime missionaries are serving in more than thirty world areas.

The church is regarded as something of a phenomenon in religious history in that it is not the result of a split-off from another group, so much as it is the merging of many independent holiness groups.

In a real sense, the Church of the Nazarene is the ecumenical movement in action. Since its beginning, 12 smaller groups and denominations have merged.

The Church of the Nazarene has rightly been described as a "middle-of-the-road" orthodox Protestant denomination. It is evangelical and evangelistic.

Nazarenes hold to all the historic doctrines of the New Testament including belief in the Triune God, plenary inspiration of the Scriptures, original sin, the atonement of Christ for the whole human race in justification, regeneration, and adoption of all penitent believers in Christ.

Also, that believers are to be sanctified wholly, following the New Birth, through faith in Jesus Christ; the bodily resurrection from the dead and in the final judgment.

Tithing, or returning the scriptural tenth to God, is a church standard rather than a condition of membership.

The church has a congregational, or representative, form of government.

Sunday school emphasis has been strong in the church from its beginning. This because studies show that most members of the church come through the Sunday School.

The Nazarene church operates hospitals in New Guinea, India,

Swaziland, and the Republic of South Africa.

The Church of the Nazarene maintains three colleges, two junior colleges, a Bible college, and six liberal arts colleges.

The weekly Nazarene "Showers of Blessing" broadcast is heard regularly over more than 520 radio stations, 70 of which are overseas. In addition, the program is heard in Spanish on 315 stations in Latin America.

The Jerome Church of the Nazarene, located on the corner of South Lincoln and Avenue D, was organized in July, 1925, under the leadership of Rev. A. E. Sanner, and the ministry of Evangelist Lewis E. Hall. Of the 23 charter members three are still attending church, Mrs. Florence Morris, Mrs. Olive Messenger, and Mrs. Ethel Dorman.

The first church was built under the leadership of district superintendent Rev. Earl Pound's and Pastor A. R. Herring in 1931.

A new parsonage was built in 1947 under the leadership of Rev. McNatt as district superintendent and the Rev. Hurn as pastor.

An addition was made to the existing church and a new sanctuary was completed and dedicated in February of 1958. When the structure was complete, it was valued at $75,000.

The present pastor of the Jerome Nazarene Church is Rev. Lyle J. Higgins.

Minister Of Area Church Has Resigned

BURLEY — Rev. Richard Horn has resigned as pastor of the First Baptist Church effective Nov. 29, and his resignation has been accepted by the church during a recent business meeting.

Rev. Horn will enter Golden Gate Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, San Francisco, Calif., the first week in January. In the letter of resignation Rev. Horn told the church that he felt God wanted him to continue his formal education.

A graduate of Wayland Baptist College, Plainview, Tex., Rev. Horn anticipated it will take two or three years at the seminary in pursuit of a master's degree in theology.

The pastor, his wife Joan, and three boys came to the Burley Baptist Church in August of 1965 and the family will be leaving Burley Thanksgiving

T.F. Lutheran League Has Special Communion Service

The effect of the reformation on our world today was the main theme of the special communion service held at the recent meeting of the Twin Falls Lutheran Women's Missionary League of Immanuel Lutheran Church.

The service was conducted by Church members named a five-man pulpit committee, including Kerma Young, chairman, Paul Reid, Herb Hollinger, Frances Myers and Warren Miller. The committee will be responsible for seeking, interviewing and recommending a pastor to the church.

Guests were Mrs. Elmer Fisher and Mrs. Hugo Meyer, Clover, and Mrs. Martin Anderson, Mrs. David Kramer, Mrs. Leonard Werner and Mrs. Burt Amundson.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Duane Einspahr, president.

and Holy communion will be held at 11 a.m. A dinner celebrating the event will be served at 1:30 p.m. in the Parish Hall for congregation and friends.

Calvary's first services were held in 1909 in the present building. Services were irregular for many years, but by 1930 ministers from Shoshone, Gooding, Wendell or Twin Falls were serving Calvary. The first resident priest was the Rev. Willard Root, who came in 1951. The present rector is the Rev. John Wallace.

The first marriage celebrated at Calvary was that of Robert Wells Williamson, retired banker still living in Jerome.

George Bernard Shaw won the 1925 Nobel Prize for literature.

Rev. Eugene Tjarks Has Been Active In Community Since Coming Here In 1961

The pastor of Our Savior Lutheran Church, Rev. Eugene Tjarks, came to Twin Falls in February of 1961, and since then has been active in community affairs.

He was a member of the Twin Falls Jaycees and currently is serving a second term as president of the Twin Falls Ministers Association. He is chairman of the Protestant Committee on Scouting of the Snake River Area Council, Boy Scouts of America.

He also is chaplain of the Twin Falls Gadget Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol, a Salvation Army board member and a member of the Rotary Club.

Rev. Tjarks was born near Glenvil, Neb., on Oct. 18, 1929. The first eight years of education were in a one-room country school. Following graduation from Glenvil High School in 1948, he attended Wartburg College, a college of the American Lutheran Church, at Waverly, Iowa.

While a student at Wartburg College, he married Dolores Eilermeier, who joined many other wives in earning the honorary title Ph. T., which means Putting Husband through College and Seminary. Seminary training was at Wartburg Seminary, Dubuque, Iowa, graduating with a Bachelor of Divinity Degree in 1952.

The required one year of internship between the second and third year of Seminary was served at Zion Lutheran Church, Appleton, Wis., under W. H. Gammelin, pastor.

Ordination into the ministry took place in the congregation at Glenvil, Nebr., Immanuel Lutheran Church in June, 1956. He accepted the call to serve St. John's Lutheran Church of Smithwick, S.D., as its first resident minister, though it had been in existence for 60 years.

In December of 1960, the call to serve Our Savior Lutheran Church of Twin Falls was received. This congregation, formerly known as American Lutheran Church was vacated by Rev. Ruben Pirner, who accepted a call to serve as assistant professor of Liturgies and Church Music at Wartburg Seminary.

The Tjarks family consists of his wife, Dolores, and four children, Pamela, a sophomore at the Twin Falls High School, Mary, a seventh grader at O'Leary Junior High School, Brian is in fourth grade at Washington School and Kathleen, a kindergarten pupil at Memorial Lutheran School. Mrs. Tjarks presently serves as project director and head teacher for the Twin Falls Headstart program.

About life in Twin Falls, Pastor Tjarks says "The city is showing new signs of life and growth that was not evident when I first came. Community leaders are really convinced of the worth of Twin Falls and are making giant strides toward improvement of an already good place to live."

About the place of religion in today's world, Pastor Tjarks stated, "We are living in exciting times. God is still God, and with this as our confidence we can risk new things for the sake of the people He sent His Son to save. We don't have to worry half as much as we do, in the face of changes that are taking place."

"Our God is the same yesterday, today and forever. He's a living God, speaking to present needs, seeking people who will be His voice, His hands. What could be more exciting than to know you have the best product ever invented, and you can use all your talents and abilities to make it known."

"The decision for accepting this product, Jesus Christ as Savior, is not mine to make for everyone, it is the decision of each individual."

Mental Health Panel Set For Dec. 7 At T.F. Church

A panel discussion on mental health needs in the Twin Falls area is being planned by the Christian Social concerns commission of the First United Methodist Church, reports Lotus Joy Schmucker, chairman. The event will be held at 8 p.m. Dec. 7 at the church.

Speakers will include Lloyd Webb, Twin Falls attorney, who heads the planning group organized this past summer to obtain comprehensive mental health services for Magic Valley; Roger Abernathy, CSI faculty member and vice president of the Idaho Mental Health Association; Rev. Bill Kelly, Ketchum minister, and active in the leadership of the Blaine county mental health clinic, and Dr. Harry Brumbach, local physician.

Moderator will be State Rep. Ray Lincoln, District 23, who helped write Senate Bill 1193 passed by the last session of the Legislature, which authorizes the formation of area mental health centers.

"Anyone interested in learning about the need for mental health services to be available in the community is invited," Miss Schmucker said.

Materialism Is Discussed By Twin Falls Minister

By KENNETH C. HIMPLE
Pastor

Tyler Street Baptist Church

We are the richest nation in the world! Yet crime increases at the rate of five times that of the population growth, mental illness fills more hospital beds than all other diseases combined, and suicide is the number ten killer in our country.

If material things is the answer to all of our problems, then we should be the happiest people on the face of the earth. But we know from facts and experience that this is not true. Jesus spoke the truth when he said, "Life consists not in the abundance of things which he possesseth." (Luke 12:15)

It is not that God is opposed to material things, because he made them, and he made them for our use and enjoyment. Our failure is that we have made these things our god, and have not given Jesus Christ his rightful place.

The scripture says, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you." (Matthew 6:33). But the average person continues to think that all questions and problems will be answered because material things will take its place. But in reality we find that it only may times adds to the problem. One must remember that things cannot guarantee you anything but possible temporal satisfaction.

Jesus said, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon the earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven." (Matthew 6:19,20) The reason being that one of these days we will have to leave it all behind, for we cannot take it with us when we are dead. For most people today, their all consuming devotion for material things have left them in spiritual poverty.

To those that take the time (it doesn't come naturally) to incorporate the spiritual things into their lives, possess a satisfaction that brings happiness, joy and peace even in the midst of life's trials and problems.

The alternatives open are these: Give God his rightful place and enjoy both spiritual and material blessings or seek material things and even if you succeed in getting them you lose out with God and with life. "For what shall it profit a man, if he should gain the whole world (material things) and lose his own soul."

Officers Named

HAGERMAN — Mrs. R. K. Bendorf has been sustained the new Relief Society president of the Hagerman Ward LDS Church.

REVIVAL SERVICES

Revival services with Rev. James C. Hicks, Yakima, Wash., will be starting Wednesday at 7:45 p.m. in the Faith Assembly of God Church, 178 Filer Ave. W. Public is invited.

Extremism Noted

HANSEN — Virginia Zelczyn Idaho Falls, spoke on the dangers of extremism at a special tea for several Magic Valley churches recently at the Kimberly United Methodist Church.

Hosting the tea was the Women's Society of Christian Service. The speaker stressed the methods used by both the rightist and leftist groups in trying to gain their points.
