

DR. ERNEST RAGLAND superintendent sees a decision ahead for taxpayers of the Twin Falls School District.

T.F. May Need 3 New Schools In Coming Decade

By O. A. (GUS) KELKER
Times-News Editor

If there were betting odds on the possibility, it would be at least two-to-one that taxpayers of the Twin Falls School District will be called upon to replace three major structures in the decade.

The three schools are Lincoln and Washington grade schools and the O'Leary Junior High School. The original part of Lincoln is now 61 years old, most of O'Leary is 40 years old and Washington is pushing 54 years. Add the 10 years of the decade just starting to these totals and replacement seems inevitable.

Dr. Ernest Ragland, superintendent, believes the possibility of replacement is one of the major decisions to be studied and resolved in the next few years. Like builders and architects, Dr. Ragland has reached the decision that additions and new plaster and remodeling in general is not the real answer.

"Nothing lasts forever," is his frank comment.

Cost of replacing the three schools would be impossible to estimate in view of fluctuating building financial problems but as money goes today, it wouldn't be out of sight.

The current audited financial report of the system, just completed by the firm of Riddle, Roth, Evans and Evans is revealing. The total capital outlay for the Twin Falls school system—including Bickel, Morning-side, Harrison, Lincoln, Washington, O'Leary, Stuart and the High School maintenance equipment, furniture and apparatus, site and contents—comes to $4,536,700.74.

How much is $3,835,280.74? Not nearly much as things go today. In fact, a four-engine jet airline costs that much to build and equip.

So, with things being equal, the entire school system could be replaced for the cost of one airplane. And there are several hundred of them whisking overhead on any given day in the United States.

Total capital outlay for the three schools which could possibly be replaced in the decade (buildings and equipment alone) comes to about $1,400,000. No problem to buy that—either there or could be exchanged. And the first building something must be done about will be Washington because of highway and street changes contemplated on Blue Lakes Boulevard North and Addison East. Some of the structure will be altered, but because the route will be widened. Question: Whether to add something to the lack of the school or move out of a potentially dangerous situation for the students attending.

Twin Falls investment in schools has served the community well. When the class of 1960 graduates from the school in early summer there will have been 12,016 graduates. See CHRONICLE, pg. 3 col. 3

7 Yanks Killed In Fight

SAIGON (UPI)—Seven Americans were killed and 12 wounded in a four-hour battle reported Saturday. North Vietnamese gunners opened fire three times from the supposedly neutral Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) and Viet Cong troops shelled a South Vietnamese hospital.

The American losses in the fighting near Duc Pho, 30 miles northeast of Saigon, were the heaviest in a single action since seven men of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division were killed last Saturday in a clash with Communist forces northwest of Saigon.

The fighting near Duc Pho on the central coast started when Communist troops assaulted a unit of the 11th Brigade of the American Division shortly after midnight—with 60 rounds of mortar fire and automatic weapons.

The Americans defending the outpost called in artillery and were backed by helicopter gunships in a counterattack and field reports said at least 29 Communists were slain.

The U.S. Command said the DMZ violations allegedly committed by the North Vietnamese involved aircraft fire Friday on an American spotter plane and two mortar barrages. The fighting on the DMZ was reported on Jan. 3. U.S. artillery batteries returned the mortar fire and knocked out two of the North Vietnamese positions. Field reports said the spotter plane was able to land safely at its base and there were no Allied casualties in any of the three incidents, spokesmen said.

The incidents were the first confirmed actions involving Communist troops in the DMZ since Dec. 2.

South Hills Snowpack Is Average, Survey Indicates

The Jan. 1 snow survey of the Salmon Trout watershed shows that the snowpack is about average. Only three of the 11 measuring areas were measured by the snow survey crew, consisting of Lyle Fuller, Doc Ponder, Glyn Nelson, Gary Nelson, Bert Webster and Lew Munsion.

Meets Cousin

BANGKOK (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew met one of his cousins for the first time Saturday. As he moved through a receiving line at Bangkok airport, a young attractive woman in a blue dress introduced herself and whispered into Agnew's ear.

"Glad to see you. You live here?" Agnew asked.

Aides to Agnew identified the woman as Mrs. Vondakis Angeloutou, a second cousin of Agnew's from Greece. The woman recently moved to Bangkok with her husband who will be wine steward at a new hotel.

Bus Tokens Hit 30 Cents In New York

NEW YORK (UPI)—New Yorkers, already burdened by some of the worst inflation in the nation, might be paying 60 percent more today for their bus and subway transportation, a hike which means another 40 percent boost in the cost of living for many lower paid workers.

The fare increase from 20 cents to 30 cents went into effect at 12:01 a.m. today. The Metropolitan Transportation Authority (MTA), which runs the city's subways, buses and commuter railroads, ordered the fare hike Friday.

Mayor John V. Lindsay, who had fought to hold the increase to 25 cents and to make up the deficit with higher taxes and tolls on motorists adding to congestion in New York City, called it was a "tragic day" for the city.

New Yorkers, who only 32 years ago were paying 5 cents for a ride on the city's transit system, had the slim consolation of knowing that they were keeping pace with the rest of the nation.

The other eight counties not measured, are Shoshone Basin, Hummingbird Springs, Goat Creek, Cedar Creek, Bear Creek Meadows, Fox Creek, Red Point and Wilson Creek. On Deadline Ridge, there is 34.1 inches of snow, with 8.63 inches of water. A year ago the snow depth was 49 inches, with 10.3 inches of water. The 16-year average here is 41.1 inches of water.

County Legislators See Rough Session

Five of Twin Falls County's six legislators feel the upcoming Legislative session will be a "bearcat" with the lawmaking process to be somewhat between 40 and 45 days.

This is the first annual session of the Idaho Legislature and raked high on the list for consideration will be supplemental appropriations. Boise College is early twice the size was predicted to be and all five questioned feel more money will have to be given the college by this Legislature.

Questioned were Speaker of the House William Lanting, Sen. John Barker, and Reps. Jack Claborn, Ray Lincoln and William Roberts.

Sen. Richard High of Twin Falls could not be reached for comment on the upcoming meeting of the Legislature, stated to start Jan. 12 in Boise.

Although Gov. Don Samuelson has said he would like to see the Legislature get its work done in 30 days, all five Twin Falls County Legislators questioned said they feel this would be "nice but impossible."

Rep. Claborn said, "We're going to have about 400 bills waiting for us even before we get there."

Sen. Barker said a committee will have to have bills reported out by the end of 25 days. "This leaves only five days to consider them," he said.

Sen. Charles H. Walkinshaw said he was assigned to find out why our lumber material costs are harmful to earth plants and found instead as the result of experiments that it was helpful.

"We put a bit of powdered rock from the Sea of Tranquility on some of them and left others in natural state," he said in an article in Parade magazine.

"We're surprised and puzzled. Next we tried the dust on some tobacco plant tissue and it made the stuff grower. It also made lettuce seeds grow faster. We don't know how it works."

Walkinshaw said farmers should not anticipate any commercial use of moon dust as a fertilizer because the cost of securing any substantial amounts would be prohibitive.

What could be done would be to analyze the moon dust, define its components exactly and then reproduce it chemically for commercial use, he said.

THE RED CROSS BLOOD drive chairman for Twin Falls, Dave Nelson, is seen pinning a Red Cross button on Laura Maura, wife of Earl Maura, during the drive. Laura's mother has an RH factor in her blood and when Laura was born her blood had to be changed. Without blood, she wouldn't have survived, her parents said Tuesday in helping promote 1970's first bloodmobile drive in Twin Falls. The drive will be from 2 to 7 p.m. Monday at the American Legion Hall. If successful, it will be the eighth time in a row the blood quota has been met in Twin Falls.

Kidnapers Told To Release Arthritis-Stricken Hostage

LONDON (UPI)—A distraught newspaper executive appealed Saturday to the wife of his illing wife to contact him immediately because she might die without medical attention for an arthritis condition.

Alex McKay, 60, told news- men he had received no further news of or from his 65-year-old wife Muriel since a letter in his handwriting arrived Wednesday. She vanished Monday from their Wimbleton home, and Scotland Yard believed she was kidnaped.

Earlier Saturday a caretaker told police he saw two men at 24 Ladbroke Grove, a residential street, leaving a limousine with a woman from a desolate sports field to a waiting car less than two miles from the famed Wimbledon Tennis Club. Police promptly combed the area but reported finding no clues.

Mrs. McKay's doctor has warned she might suffer a heart attack if she did not receive an overdue injection for her arthritis.

The husband McKay, executive of a London Sunday newspaper, told newsmen: "I have now received many calls and letters regarding my wife but so far I have received no demand specific enough for me to believe the demand is genuine."

"I ask whoever is holding Muriel to get in touch with me immediately and let me know exactly what they want."

"Do you realize, whoever you are, how dangerous will be the state of my wife's health if she does not quickly get the drug she needs."

Travelers warnings were posted for Montana and high wind warnings were posted for the eastern slopes of the mountains in eastern Colorado.

Light snow or snow flurries from the Appalachians westward across parts of the Midwest to the northern Rockies and interior of the Pacific Northwest.

Eastern New York shivered in subzero temperatures for a third straight day early Saturday. Albany's low of a minus 17 was a record for the date making it the third straight day of record low.

Mostly clear skies accompanied the cold snap through the southern states, however, rain fell in southern Florida and along the north Pacific coast. Muskegon, Mich., had 12 inches of snow during a six hour period, while Holland, Mich., recorded 8 inches.

Raiders Treat Children

By United Press International

Israeli commandos knifed into Lebanon early Saturday and sniped 21 Lebanese hosts in a retaliatory kidnapping, dragging out 10 days of cloak and dagger triumph that included smuggling five gunboats from France and the theft of a complete Egyptian radar station.

An army spokesman said in Tel Aviv the Israeli troops captured 11 civilians and 10 Lebanese soldiers found hiding in the basement of a police and customs post. He said there was neither damage nor casualties and that the commandos even passed out candy to children.

J. Gen. Haim Bar-Lev welcomed the raid as a retaliation for the kidnapping of an Israeli night watchman in Israel's northernmost village of Metula. The raid was directed against the village of Qana only a few miles north of Metula on the slopes of Mount Hermon.

A military spokesman in Beirut said two Israeli motorized units blew up an isolated border post, captured its occupants and kidnaped 11 civilians. He said the Lebanese guards killed three Israelis and felled the initial kidnapping attempt, carried out later by Israeli reinforcements.

Bar-Lev also was in on the theft of the radar station, a new super secret Russian device which weighed seven tons and cost a reported $1 million. The Israelis saved it in two and lashed it aboard two helicopters carrying helicopters while planes held off Egyptian defenders.

The Israelis said they captured four Egyptians in that raid which occurred a week ago but was kept secret until it leaked out in a London newspaper. The four Egyptians presumably were Soviet-trained radar technicians since they were taken at the site.

Bar-Lev saw the raiders off the next morning. He described the operation as "a full-scale strategic raid from the movies." The raid occurred at Kana Gharbi, 125 miles south of the entrance to the Suez Canal, on Dec. 27.

There was no reaction yet from the Soviet Union to the raid, which was bound to prove embarrassing.

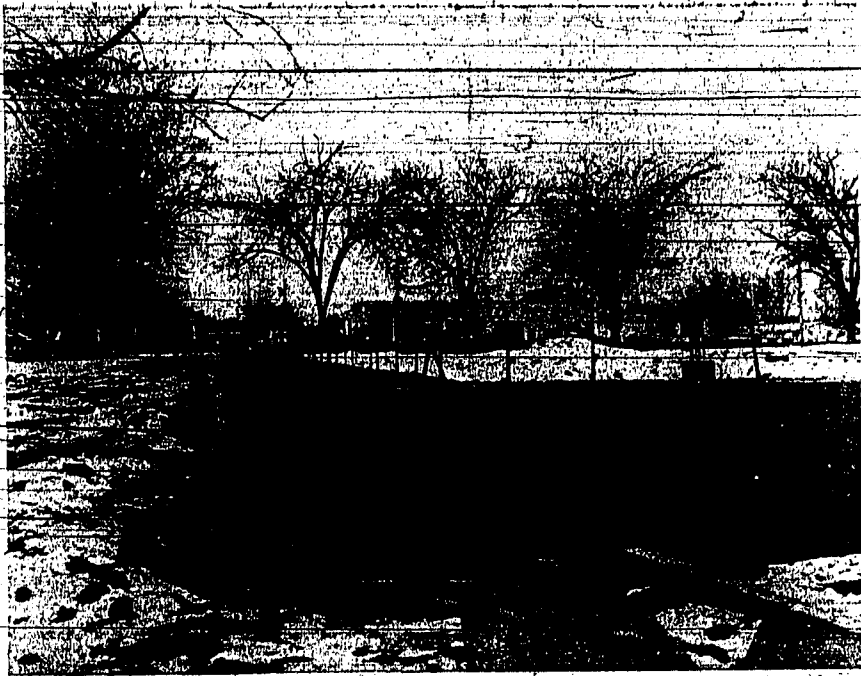

The council will consider an ordinance vacating the northern end of Fifth Street and adjacent Block 140 in accordance in the memorandum agreement with Charter Seed Co.

Two ordinances relating to Local Improvement District No. 64 will also be considered. One concerns the assessments not exceeding 50 per cent of valuation of the property and the method of assessment. The other will set forth the levies on the improvements.

Other routine business will be called for consideration. The city engineer will be authorized to issue permits, approval of license applications and the reading and approval of monthly department reports and the reading of minutes of advisory boards.

FOUNDATION FOR THE new Gooding County Courthouse has just been completed. The construction is located on Main Street between Sixth and Seventh Avenues. This will be the first courthouse Gooding County has had and should be completed in September.

Foundation Is Begun For First Gooding Courthouse

GOODING — A Courthouse for Gooding County will soon become a reality as the foundation for the new building has been laid. Completion is planned for sometime in September.

The county has never had a courthouse building of its own. The one used from 1914 until 1968 was leased to the county by Frank R. Gooding and located in the Lincoln Inn. The Lincoln Inn burned in February, 1968, and temporary quarters have been located in the TB hospital since.

The courthouse is being built on land given to the county by the Thompson family in 1924 for just that purpose. The land, which has been used as a city park until now, is located on Main Street between Sixth and Seventh Avenues.

Finances have plagued the commissioners in reaching a decision to build a new courthouse, but the commissioners felt that these problems have been solved and there will be no bond issue to build the structure.

Bids were opened Nov. 14, 1969, and the Ellsworth Construction Co., Blackfoot, was the low bidder with a bid of $318,003. Architects are Watson and Beathum, Boise.

The brick and masonry one floor structure will contain both district and magistrate courts

AEC Reports Major Nuclear Progress At Idaho Station

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — Three fast-breeding reactors, naval Atomic Energy Commission has announced considerable progress in nuclear development research programs at its National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho during 1969.

The AEC said five major priority programs are being furthered: reactor safety, materials testing, liquid metal cool-propulsion and nuclear fuels reprocessing.

Among highlights of 1969 accomplishments were completion of pre-operational testing in the AEC's giant advanced test reactor and the start of sustained full power operation with in-pile experiments; first nuclear operation and formal dedication of the zero power plutonium reactor; continued progress in building two new reactor safety facilities; and start of construction of the hot fuel examination facility.

Characterizing the past year as a period of reappraisal and readjustment as well as some progress, W. L. Ginkel, AEC manager, said he looked to 1970 as a year of crucial challenge.

Nixon Bids To Win Under-30 Support

WASHINGTON — Many in the under-thirty generation do not really dig 66-year-old Richard M. Nixon, but the President would like to change all that in 1970.

Several initiatives, designed to turn on the nation's youth, are under study in the White House. Some of them may find their way into the State of the Union message which the President will deliver next month.

Under-thirty task forces may be asked to look intensively into several phases of federal government activity. The task groups would be patterned, more or less consciously, after the "Nader" Raiders—the young activists who have done research under the direction of consumer counsel Ralph Nader.

The President may show himself on television for question-and-answer sessions with young interrogators. That would be a switch on their Q & A technique used with great success by Mr. Nixon in campaigning for the Presidency.

Mr. Nixon is also reported ready to rattle the bureaucracy in the educational establishment—a step which would have appeal for many young people. There has been talk of a new National Institute of Education to channel educational research as medical research is channelled by the National Institutes of Health.

All these ideas—and some others—were kicked around at the White House just before the holidays when the President met with a delegation from the progressive Republican Ripon Society.

The group gave Mr. Nixon a 40-page report on a book-length program for youth which it is to publish shortly. The Ripon program is designed to "grant the youth of the nation a greater common destiny: more rights, more responsibility.

Speaking to the Ripon program calls, among other things, for the vote at age 18, a volunteer army, and internationalization of the Peace Corps under the aegis of the United Nations.

The report proposes twin national opportunities for higher education and maximum choice in college selection.

It calls for establishment of a President's Youth Advisory Council, made up of people in the 18 to 30 age bracket, to advise the President of the impact of national policies on young people and made recommendations for presidential action.

The Riponers told the President that they did not think the Ripon delegation was largely untrumpeted by the administration's very able press agents. The session was not listed on the President's advance appointment list.

White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler announced the meeting, but after the Ripon delegation was already cloaked with the President. It was Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., who wrote an introduction for the program for youth which the President is to read to the group.

After the 45-minute session with the President, the Riponers returned with Baker to the Senate. There, in the balance of seniority, he was named as the White House meeting with some over-thirty members.

Enemy Within

In its swan-song report to the nation—the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence—fingered the greatest enemy facing the United States in the immediate year ahead.

In Pogo's immortal words, "It is us."

Our most serious challenges to date have been external—the kind this strong and resourceful country could unite against, said the commission, which was created by President Johnson in 1968 following the assassination of Martin Luther King and Robert F. Kennedy.

Now, however, stated its 13 members in a unanimous voice, "While serious external dangers remain, the graver threats today are internal."

These include haphazard urbanization, racial discrimination, displacement of the environment, the dislocation of human identity and motivation—"All resulting in a rising tide of individual and group violence."

The commission recommends that when the Vietnam war ends the nation increase annual welfare expenditures by about $20 billion, partly by reducing military expenditures and partly by increased tax revenues resulting from growth of the gross national product. Welfare spending should continue to increase "until essential social goals are realized."

"The greatness and durability of most civilizations has been finally determined by how they have responded to these challenges from within," the commission summed up. "Ours will be no exception."

Few persons in or out of government have either hailed this last report, along with its forerunners, as a much-needed, 11th-hour warning or championed it as a blueprint for a brighter national future. Nevertheless, commission members believe that the message is slowly sinking into the national conscience.

"If in five years nothing has happened," says chairman Milton S. Eisenhower, "I shall be the most disappointed man in America."

It is to be hoped that he has not underestimated the individual citizen's capacity to ignore the perils which do not threaten him immediately and directly.

As Richard H. Rovere noted recently, all of us alive today in the "developed" countries grow up with technology. All the causes of our present ills could have been foreseen decades ago.

"Given a few facts about the chemistry of the environment and the impact on it of population and advanced technology, any man of modest literacy could have charted the route from the recent past to the present and on to the questionable future," he writes. "The aconites of the cities in the late '60s should have been predictable in the middle years of the Depression, if not long before."

But prophets are seldom honored, especially prophets of gloom.

Anyway, no one is actually gagging for his life's breath on polluted air. No one is dropping over from diseases spread by rivers we have turned into sewers.

The mathematics of population growth may be unarguable, but most people as yet see no real reason why they should not bring a fourth or fifth or sixth child into the world.

There is still plenty of countryside for the suburbs to spread into. The balance of nature may be imperiled, but the stores are still stocked with food.

Despite all the fearful talk about crime, it is for the most part confined to the black ghettos, which one can easily drive around in his new car on the new freeways.

Organized crime—the kind of crime that takes money from everyone's pocket and most directly threatens the health of society—is largely regarded with indifference by the public, even in the face of revelations, as lately in New Jersey, of how widely it has corrupted law enforcement and government and how deeply it has penetrated legitimate businesses.

Dr. Eisenhower's optimism to the contrary, things may have to get much worse, much more quickly, before Americans decide to do what has to be done to make them better.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
A Shift In Administration

WASHINGTON — At a critical point in his conference with Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban asked whether the U.S. had prepared a plan for peace between Israel and Jordan.

Rogers did not reply. A moment of embarrassed silence followed, broken finally by Under Secretary of State Elliot Richardson. No, said Richardson, no final proposal had been formulated.

In fact, however, at almost that very moment the U.S. was submitting its proposal to the Big Four to settle the intractable questions between Israel and Jordan arising out of Israel's capture of Jerusalem and the West Bank.

The incident is symbolic of the deep shift in the Nixon administration's handling of the worsening Middle East crisis. The cozy, intimate relationship between Washington and Jerusalem is ending as the U.S. seeks new influence with the Arab states. That change is galvanizing the American Jewish community as nothing since the crisis preceding the six-day war of 1967. The political pressure is on to force the U.S. to take a more active role in the Jewish world.

But the political pressure is not the only one. American Jews are now being courted with a new vigor by the Nixon administration. The Democrats, who were once the strong support of the Jewish community, are now being courted by the Nixon administration. The Democrats, who were once the strong support of the Jewish community, are now being courted by the Nixon administration.

ART BUCHWALD
The Easy Rider

WASHINGTON — There has been a lot of criticism of Congress for not doing enough work this year. I believe that if any criticism is to be levied at Congress, it should be levied at the military draft bill. The bill proposed these days that doesn't have seven riders attached to it which have nothing to do with the legislation that is being proposed.

This can be illustrated in the case of the Klopinski, a refugee from Poland who is trying to get American citizenship.

It is done all the time. Usually it goes through the bill in Congress is subject to amendment, and as soon as the Jan Klipski bill for American citizenship was proposed on the floor, a Dove senator got up and added a rider calling for the repeal of the Gulf of Mexico Resolution.

Mr. Nixon got only one of the Jewish vote in California his first year in office. He moved to surpass that record by getting a Jewish vote in California his second year in office.

MR. SPECTATOR

Name Of The Game

What's in a name? Plenty, under the right set of circumstances. The circumstances, as far as Rep. Charles E. Wiggins is concerned, are the roll calls of the House of Representatives and the fact his name appears 47th out of the 435 names. It takes about 30 minutes to call the roll, therefore Wiggins and others at the high end of the alphabet must sit through most of the list before their turn to vote.

They waste time while members with lower listings go about their business. To rectify this obvious injustice, Rep. Wiggins has introduced a bill to require a reverse reading of the roll every other year. A co-sponsor is Rep. John Zwach, whose name naturally appears last on the roll.

To those members who thought Wiggins was jesting, the tall order is most emphatic that he is serious. As for support for his bill, the congressman is finding not all in similar circumstances are as concerned as he.

Rep. Clement Zablocki, next to last on the roll, says, "I got along for 21 years near the end of the list. I don't see any need for a change." Rep. Edward Patten, one of those in the middle of the list, has another idea. A lottery should be employed, he says, to insure that all members have an equal chance to be first.

Inertia and tradition are strong forces in the conduct of government affairs. Changes are nothing will come of Rep. Wiggins' efforts, but he has one consolation. In cases of close votes, it is the members at the end of the roll who cast the deciding votes. Surely that is worth some inconvenience.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.
That Call

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a widow and past 85 years. I have such a painful callus on my left foot and am not able to walk much and am not able to get the foot in a shoe.

I rub my foot when taking a bath and apply petroleum jelly, but am careful as I have diabetes. — M.G.

Wish I had a penny for every time the painful callus question comes up. And I wish I could impress the fact that the most important word relating to a callus is "pressure."

If pressure can be relieved or stilled, then you have a chance of getting rid of a painful callus.

Without question the reason so many older people have this trouble is that over the years their feet change. Muscles are perceptibly less tone. The bone structure shifts a bit. Pressure points develop at places where they did not exist when we were young.

The answer? Sometimes arch supports will bring the feet back into a more normal position. Sometimes small pads can be placed in the shoes.

To do this, my advice is to get the foot in a shoe. At the probably best time to do this is when you are in the shower. You are right, M.G., in not trying to trim the callus yourself, since you are diabetic, and the risk of infection is particularly high in your case. So let a podiatrist do it, and remember to tell him in advance that you have diabetes.

The ultimate success in making you more comfortable lies in changing the place where pressure exists.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We have used a boric acid ointment on open cuts. Is this dangerous? — Mrs. P.M.L.

The germ-killing properties of boric acid are so weak as to make it hardly worth using. Salves, unless they contain powerful antibiotics, are not particularly desirable for open wounds since if the area is contaminated the salves may introduce infection into the wound.

T.F. Prosecutor Holds Pair Of City, County Positions

By FRED DODDS
Times-News Staff Writer

The year 1969 was a busy one for the Twin Falls County prosecutor and his staff.

During the last year of the routing 80s, the office processed more than 325 criminal cases, with another 50 cases dismissed and another 25 still pending. There were also an estimated 125 child support cases — some of which later became criminal actions — and an estimated 10 mental hearings, another 10 post-conviction reviews and an additional 100 juvenile cases processed by the staff during the year.

Of the criminal cases, more than half were felony matters involving hours of investigation and legal work. The remainder of the criminal cases are misdemeanors handled in either the county's Probate Court or Justice Courts.

There are four Justice Courts in the county.

Robert Galley is the county's prosecutor. He has a full-time assistant, Mrs. Maurine Meehl, and a part-time assistant, J. N. Jewell.

In reviewing 1969 in the county's prosecutor's office, it was learned Mr. Galley holds down two jobs. The first is his elected position as prosecutor. The second is the position of deputy city attorney for Twin Falls.

Mr. Galley was appointed to that post by the City Council in 1968.

Mr. Galley's elected post pays $9,250 a year. The city pays $2,700 a year. Those figures were taken from city and county budgets.

The Times-News, in checking to see if there might be a conflict of interest between the two jobs Mr. Galley holds, found there was none. But it was determined there is a backlog of cases in the city's Police Court.

Mr. Galley is responsible for prosecuting 11 misdemeanor cases in the city court in which defendants have entered in no-contest pleas.

This backlog, it was learned, reaches into February.

Asked why, City Police Judge Harvey Turner said, "It is a matter of scheduling. When I took this job, I agreed to work only three mornings in the afternoons. I have to work at my private law practice."

Judge Turner said because of this, a backlog is certain to be a reality. He said it is hard to prosecute cases when there is a backlog in scheduling them.

He said it would probably be impossible for the city to hire a full-time judge and a full-time prosecutor to handle the city's misdemeanor cases.

"The jobs just don't pay that much," he said.

City Attorney William Langley is paid $8,278 a year to handle the city's legal affairs, but he said recently he has nothing to do with the prosecution of city misdemeanor cases. This is Mr. Galley's job. He is appointed by the city council and is answerable to it.

There have been no complaints voiced from city officials on the prosecution of city cases.

Mr. Galley's full-time deputy, Mrs. Meehl, is paid $7,800 a year and Mr. Jewell gets $4,020 a year.

The 1970 budget for the prosecutor's office shows a request for a wage hike for Mrs. Meehl to $8,220 a year and an increase of Mr. Jewell's salary to $4,500 a year.

The 1969 budget for the county prosecutor's office was $38,040 and the 1970 budget request is for $39,540, an increase of $1,500. This increase is mainly for wage hikes to the deputy prosecutors and to the office help, it was learned.

Mr. Galley was asked if he feels his office is overstaffed. "No," he said.

Investigation shows budgets for the past four years for the prosecutor's office have made allowances for three part-time deputies.

The salary for the prosecutor in 1968 was $8,500 a year, and the three part-time deputies got $3,600 a year each. The total budget that year was $31,780. The prosecutor then was James May.

In 1967, Michael Felton took office and the annual salary was raised to $9,250. Salary raises to county prosecutors are authorized by the Idaho Legislature.

Mr. Felton was also allowed three part-time deputies in his office at $3,600 a year each. His budget in 1967 was $30,520.

In 1968, Mr. Felton hired Mr. Galley full time and paid him $7,800 a year and retained one part-time deputy prosecutor at $4,200 a year. The part-time deputy was Mr. Jewell.

In addition to serving as a full-time deputy, Mr. Galley was also appointed deputy city attorney in 1968 at an annual salary of $2,580. The city salary was raised in the 1969 city budget.

Although the 1970 prosecutor's budget shows a request for $39,540, an increase of $1,500, the public defense budget indicates a request for $35,000, an increase of $10,000.

This would indicate crime is on the increase in the county, and more to prosecute those crimes and even more to defend persons accused of those crimes, sources at the county courthouse said recently.

In researching the operation of the county's prosecutor's office, Heber Lounsbury, chairman of the Twin Falls County board of commissioners, was asked to comment.

"I am satisfied with the operation of Mr. Galley's office," he said. He added, "I didn't know he was deputy city attorney, though."

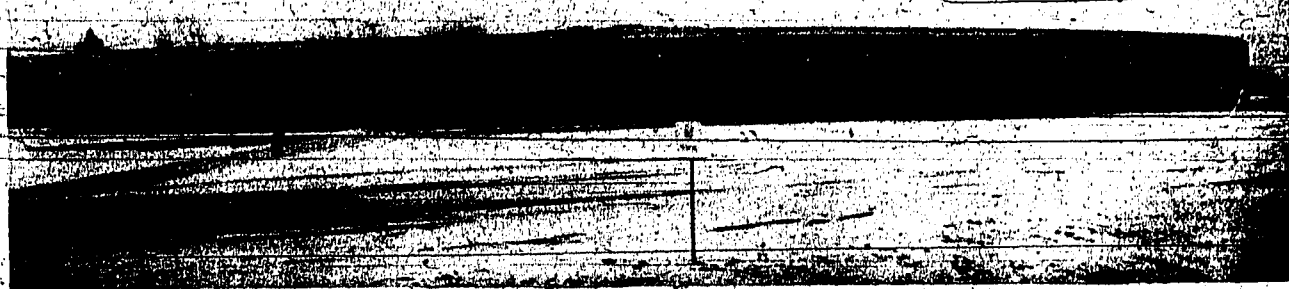

He said he hadn't seen the 1970 budget requests yet and added, "It is up to the Legislature to set the salary of the county prosecutor. I feel the salary should be raised in order to get top people in these jobs, and I speak of not only the prosecutor's office but other county offices also," he said.

The prosecutor in Ada County gets $13,500 a year and he has four full-time deputies. The office handles about the same amount of business that is handled in Twin Falls County in a year.

The 1969 budget for the Twin Falls County prosecutor's office was $31,780 and in 1967 it dropped to $30,520. In 1968 it jumped to $37,050 and in 1969 went to $38,040. The 1970 request is for $39,540.

Asked about the large jump in 1968, Mr. Galley said the increase was due mainly to the

LBJ's TV Appearance Brings 'Surprising' Reactions

President Lyndon B. Johnson's recent hour on television cannot but add to the sensitivity of the

He left the White House nearly a year ago, bearing a truly harsh and heavy burden of criticism. He had reached the point of being unable to do virtually anything that would placate millions of his fellow countrymen except by getting out.

Then came the healing solitude of his beloved Texas ranch. As he told Walter Cronkite of CBS News: "For the first time that I can remember, I am doing exactly what I want to do."

He told of how he watched his successor, President Nixon, take the oath of office last Jan. 20. At that moment, Johnson realized that "I can no longer had the fear that I was the man that could make the mistake of involving the world in war; that I was no longer the man that would have to carry the terrible responsibility of protecting the lives of this country and maybe the entire world, unleashing the horrors of some of our great power if I felt that was required."

When LBJ was in the White House, he seemed to relish the quietness of the nation's highest office as, perhaps, no man before him in relatively modern times. Yet, he now refers to the "real horror" of being president, particularly when he was awakened during the night with bad news from the war fronts.

Back at the ranch, his profile lowered considerably. No longer was he the target of cruelly barbed criticism. No longer did pickets parade before the place where he dwelled roaring the ugly chant, "Hey, hey, LBJ, how many kids did you kill today?"

Now, for reasons best known to himself, Johnson stands tall again on the national target range. His severest critics are encouraged to take more pot shots and the target he offers is exceedingly broad for the same reasons which attracted their shafts during his White House days.

For example, he says now "the press media" and he makes no exceptions "twisted and imagined and built and magnified things I did not think were true at all." This practice of tarring everybody with the same Texas-sized brush cannot help but produce second thoughts in the minds of some who felt they reported Johnson's White House years rather fairly.

Allies Hold 31,000 Red Prisoners

WASHINGTON (UPI)—While the United States is trying to ascertain how many American prisoners are being held in North Vietnam, more than 31,000 Communist prisoners are captives in South Vietnam.

The United States holds no prisoners of war in Vietnam. When Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops are captured they are turned over to South Vietnamese authorities.

The United States is pressing a campaign to have Hanoi abide by the Geneva Convention on prisoners of war. As a part of this campaign, Philip Habib, chief U.S. delegate to the Vietnam peace talks, has handed Hanoi's representatives a list of the names of 411,406 Americans missing in Southeast Asia and asked that the North Vietnamese identify those held prisoners.

According to the Defense Department, there were 31,113 Communist POW's in Saigon hands as of October. The Pentagon had no breakdown on how many of those were Viet Cong and how many North Vietnamese.

When the total stood at 36,000, however, about 4,000 were North Vietnamese. Since then the proportion of North Vietnamese among captives has increased, the Pentagon says.

The Defense Department says the Communist prisoners are being treated in accord with the Geneva Convention.

The names of all prisoners were given the International Committee for the Red Cross for delivery to Hanoi.

The Red Cross inspects the camps and can speak with prisoners privately, the Pentagon said.

The prisoners can—and do—write. Stopped-up latrines were a complaint at one camp. They're being complained about the food, some saying there was not enough variety.

A handful of American prisoners have been released by the North Vietnamese.

South Vietnam has returned to the North more than a hundred injured prisoners made in 1966 and 1967 in the Demilitarized Zone before that area became a major battleground.

Saigon has turned no more prisoners over to the North since some so-called "blacklisted" prisoners have been freed in the South.

Mississippi Schools Face Test Of Ruling On Integration When They Reopen Monday

(Editor's Note: Monday, Jan. 5 will be the first test of the U.S. Supreme Court's "desegregate now" doctrine. Perhaps no school districts face the prospect of these in the deep South where newly formed private schools in makeshift quarters, parents and student apprehensions, and the breakdown of old school ties will be challenged. A UPI reporter has interviewed principals and students, religious and political leaders, and the educators themselves for the following dispatch.)

By WILLIAM L. VAUGHN JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—Public schools, private schools or no schools are the choices facing thousands of Mississippi children Monday under the first test of the U.S. Supreme Court's "desegregate now" mandate.

The court in a sweeping desegregation mandate Oct. 25, 1969, that the 15-year-old doctrine of "all deliberate speed" must be replaced on the ground that it no longer is "constitutionally permissible."

The court directed the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals to implement its orders and by Sept. 30 to begin new plans for desegregation to insure "unitary" school systems, eliminating all traces of the old dual system of white schools and Negro schools.

Most of the plans are being drawn up by the state's 17 school systems, or by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Supreme Court order applied to 31 school districts whose enrollment in 1968-69 was 123,275 students. This includes 67,813 black students and 55,462 white students, although in 10 districts there is a black majority of students and several districts have black majorities.

Response to the mandate has ranged from reluctant acceptance to outspoken condemnation of the order and a call for prohibition of state funds to schools.

Negroes whose athletic teams and school class offices possibly would be lost in the shuffle of white enrollments also have protested.

John Ball Williams and Attorney General A.F. Summers have launched a drive to raise $1 million public contributions to finance a task force of Mississippi lawyers. The attorneys would file civil rights suits in school districts in the North, East and West asking that they maintain de facto desegregation. The theory is that once these regions experience desegregation on the scale being ordered for the South, the reaction will result in a more moderate approach to integration and possibly a nationwide "freedom of choice" policy.

However, the major reaction to the ruling has been an upsurge in private school movements, especially in districts where blacks outnumber whites. The Canton Academic Foundation, receiving applications for more than 1,200 of the approximately 1,300 white students in the Canton separate school district which was slated to be merged with 3,800 Negro students into a unitary system.

Canton Academic Foundation charges students $30 per month for one child with a sliding scale of $75 for three or more children and plans to accommodate the swelled enrollment in an abandoned manufacturing plant.

A Baptist group in Adams County also has set up a stop-gap private school system in Natchez and four Baptist churches plan to operate schools in the Pearl and Rawls districts.

Most private schools apparently depend on tuition and contributions for support. Several, including a Pike County group, sold stock to finance the school. The Pike Academy offered 250 shares for $100 a share to start the school with each family using the school required to own at least a share or use the share of a person not having children in the school. Tuition will begin at $300 a year per child.

Even so a month apparently will not be enough for some low-income families, or for parents who don't want to send their children to public schools because of possible violence during the initial months.

"I don't want my child exposed to a bad emotional experience that might affect the rest of his life," said one parent. "I'm just going to keep him out of school until at least next fall and see how everything looks then."

And many parents apparently will do just that—keep their children home. Mississippi has no compulsory school attendance law and parents may send their children to school as long as they wish. Or don't.

Perhaps the biggest problem—or at least those most vocal—results not from the desegregation itself, but from a mid-school year change that disrupts school activities on which the white schools and black schools had separate standards and each had an established schedule and convocations. Columbia teachers solved one problem partially by combining the black high school basketball players and the white athletes into a single team with a few practice sessions during the holidays, although the schedule will be played out separately in a few

Priest Sees Need To Curb Births

BOSTON (UPI)—A prominent Roman Catholic priest has called for curbing the birth rate in the Boston archdiocese newspaper said Saturday times have changed since the Biblical period when Jehovah said "increase and multiply," and for that reason the church has to change its position opposing artificial contraception.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. George W. Casey wrote in the Saturday edition of the Pilot "The world is in a new situation, the very antithesis of what prevailed in the beginning when Jehovah said 'increase and multiply.'"

Without specifically advocating artificial birth control, the pastor of St. Bridget's Church in Lexington urged the church to face the future and threat of overpopulation.

"It seems fair to say that most thoughtful men are becoming increasingly concerned about the survival of mankind," Msgr. Casey said.

"It seems fair to say that they could expect the church to have something to say about this, something for all mankind, not only for its constituents, something helpful, something brave and new."

He charged the church's "necessary preoccupation" with the past fact of Christ's redemption of mankind and proclamation of faith has led to "a defensive attitude and stance."

"Each new challenge of history has been considered a threat instead of a glorious opportunity" to lead mankind to an uncharted future, he said.

Referring to the Biblical mandate to "increase and multiply," Msgr. Casey wrote, "Anything but that seems the good thing for mankind now, but if in this juncture, the church has not thought of anything but saving the fragile of the magisterium (teaching authority), no proposition but the improvement of rhythm, then the world is not going to look to the church for help and guidance."

Film-Makers Photograph Death Of Youth During Concert; Police Seek More Details

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Police and homicide investigators have color movies of the fatal stabbing of an 18-year-old youth at last month's Rolling Stone concert at Alameda County Fairgrounds.

Track but have been unable to make an arrest.

Sheriff Frank Madigan indicated the film suggested contradictions with eyewitness accounts and appealed for public help in locating more witnesses.

The movies, taken by two documentary film makers recording the concert, show the victim, Meredith Hunter, of Oakland, pushing toward the stage area and suddenly brandishing a pistol.

A few moments later a hand can be seen twice plunging a knife into Hunter, but the attacker's face was hidden from view.

Then a crowd, consisting of Angels, the Angels had been roundly of Yell's Angels, were guarding the stage at the time. The rock magazine Rolling Stone has published an eye-witness account claiming Meredith Hunter was stabbed and stomped by Hell's fourth by drowning.

State Police Say 4,693 Have Died On Idaho Roads

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho State Police said Friday records showed that since 1951 a total of 4,693 persons have been killed in accidents on Idaho highways.

State Police said elimination of a community about the size of Fayette would equal the number of persons killed during the last two decades in traffic accidents.

An all-time high record was established in 1969 when 330 persons died on Idaho highways.

Hoffa Loses Plea For Trial

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI)—U.S. District Court Judge Frank Wilson denied a new-trial motion for James R. Hoffa Friday and affirmed the Teamsters Union president's eight-year sentence for jury tampering.

In a 22-page memorandum opinion, Wilson overruled Hoffa's contention that his trial were violated by illegal government wiretapping.

Wilson said that the evidence was not in any way "tainted" by information obtained by electronic eavesdropping.

Hoffa was convicted here of jury tampering in 1964.

Wilson said the evidence produced at Hoffa's six-day hearing in August on a motion for a new trial "clearly establishes that the government's conduct was not unlawful surveillance."

THE LOAD LIMIT on the Pole Line Road Bridge was set this past week at 16 tons for a single truck and 27 tons for a truck with a semi-trailer. It isn't expected, however, that the load limit will hamper many farming operations in this area, since most of these trucks fall well under the limit.

Load Limits On Pole Line Road Bridge No Real Problem For Local Farm Traffic

Load limit signs have been posted on the Pole Line Road Bridge northwest of Twin Falls, but most loaded farm trucks will be allowed to cross it. Also, during the past week, large speed limit signs were posted on the Perrine Memorial Bridge. The signs, setting the 35 miles per hour limit, replace smaller ones which often went unnoticed. Weight restrictions were imposed on this bridge about a month ago.

Kenneth Poe, Twin Falls area farmer and Twin Falls Highway District Board member, said the load limit on the Pole Line Bridge was necessary after engineers found some overloaded trucks on the bridge strings, as well as the wooden floor. Mr. Poe said because most farm trucks in the area, when loaded, are under the load limit set by the highway district on the bridge, local travel by the trucks will not be hampered. Only the large trucks that are over the posted load limits will have to take another route.

The load limits set by the highway district on the bridge are 16 tons for a single truck and 27 tons for a truck with semi-trailer.

Mr. Poe said the main reason steps are being taken now to reduce the load limit on the bridge is because of the increasing number of large trucks at the Perrine Memorial Bridge by the Idaho Department of Highways. That bridge has a load limit of 22 tons.

Rep. Orval Hansen Plans District Tour Next Week

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Orval Hansen announced Saturday he will begin an Idaho all-week tour to begin a series of "Reports to the People" in his district, with visits to several counties in Eastern Idaho and Magic Valley.

Rep. Hansen said he will be in about half the counties in the Second Congressional District during the week and he plans to visit all 24 counties in the district within the next two or three months.

"These visits will enable me to report on activities in Congress and in the federal government and to learn the views of the people I represent on some of the issues that will be a series of reports to the people during the next few months," he said.

"There will also be an opportunity for people to ask questions and request any assistance I can furnish."

The schedule for Monday includes a trip to the Target ski facilities near Panguitch and a meeting with constituents at the Teton County Courthouse at Driggs from 4 to 5 p.m.

Congressman Hansen will meet informally with members of the faculty and students at Idaho State University Tuesday morning. He will be present for the dedication of the post office at Grace at 1:30 p.m. in the Caribou County Courthouse in Soda Springs between 3 and 4 p.m. and at Montpelier City Hall between 3 and 6:30 p.m.

On Wednesday Rep. Hansen will be at the Jefferson County Courthouse in Rigby from noon to 1 p.m.; at the Madison County Courthouse in Rexburg from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.; and at the Fremont County Courthouse in St. Anthony between 5 and 6 p.m.

Nixon Says Budget Is Completed

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon Saturday said he had made all his major decisions on his new federal budget but left open the question of whether he would seek additional federal taxation.

"All major decisions have been made," Nixon told news men who came to his office at the Western White House for a picture-taking session.

The chief executive conferred with Budget Director Robert Mayo who flew in from Washington Friday night.

When asked whether there was a final wrap-up for the 1971 fiscal year budget Nixon will submit to Congress on Jan. 30, the President said:

"Very close. Very close."

He added, "There are always a few hurdles left."

When asked whether he would seek new taxes to make up for the $2.5 billion revenue loss from the new tax relief law, Nixon said, "That's a very pertinent question. We'll answer that some other time."

With the Pacific ocean in the background, Nixon sat at his desk with the budget document before him. He bantered a bit with reporters, saying, "This is a very silent meeting."

"All budget information is still under strictest control," he said.

Sitting in on the budget session with the President were John D. Ehrlichman, his assistant for domestic affairs, and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, his national security affairs adviser.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Orval Hansen announced Saturday he will begin an Idaho all-week tour to begin a series of "Reports to the People" in his district, with visits to several counties in Eastern Idaho and Magic Valley.

Rep. Hansen said he will be in about half the counties in the Second Congressional District during the week and he plans to visit all 24 counties in the district within the next two or three months.

"These visits will enable me to report on activities in Congress and in the federal government and to learn the views of the people I represent on some of the issues that will be a series of reports to the people during the next few months," he said.

"There will also be an opportunity for people to ask questions and request any assistance I can furnish."

The schedule for Monday includes a trip to the Target ski facilities near Panguitch and a meeting with constituents at the Teton County Courthouse at Driggs from 4 to 5 p.m.

Congressman Hansen will meet informally with members of the faculty and students at Idaho State University Tuesday morning. He will be present for the dedication of the post office at Grace at 1:30 p.m. in the Caribou County Courthouse in Soda Springs between 3 and 4 p.m. and at Montpelier City Hall between 3 and 6:30 p.m.

On Wednesday Rep. Hansen will be at the Jefferson County Courthouse in Rigby from noon to 1 p.m.; at the Madison County Courthouse in Rexburg from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.; and at the Fremont County Courthouse in St. Anthony between 5 and 6 p.m.

On Thursday he will travel to Arco, where he will be at the Butte County Courthouse from 10 to 11 a.m. He then will drive to Twin Falls to meet

Regional Forester Comments In Annual Report On Studies Of White Clouds Area

Regional Forester Floyd Iverson, in an end-of-the-year progress report, has commented upon plans and studies which are under way for the White Cloud Peaks area within the Challis and Sawtooth National Forests.

Following the American Smelting and Refining Co. discovery of a major molybdenum deposit within the Challis Forest, the company applied in early 1969 for a special use permit from the Forest Service to construct a road across National Forest lands to provide access needed for open-pit mining.

Earlier in the year an anticipated Forest Service application on the road permit application would be reached by Forest Supervisor G. W. Carlson by the end of 1969, to avoid needless delays in the company's mining activities.

ASARCO's announcement in October of plans to defer the presentation of proposed road plans to the Forest Service has changed the timetable," Mr. Iverson said. He said their action on the road application must be deferred until plans for the proposed road are submitted by ASARCO.

Mr. Iverson noted this additional time also will permit more detailed studies by the Forest Service of the possible means of access which might be feasible to serve the mining operation.

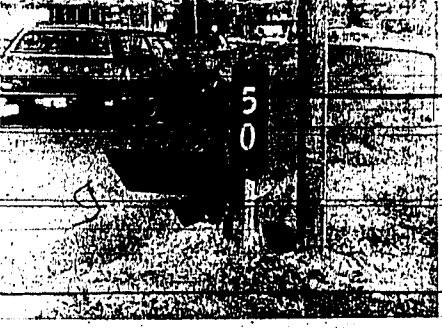

"A preliminary review of some 300 public letters and statements received to date during and subsequent to public meetings held last summer by the Forest Service shows a remarkable balance in the views expressed," Mr. Iverson said.

More than 200 statements were presented at public meetings.

Reasons given for supporting the mineral development in the area are: 1. A boost for the economy of Guster County and the state; 2. A need for increased industrial development and job opportunities in Idaho; 3. Present "wild" acreages in excess of public needs; and 4. Belief that access roads would provide for public visitors to this scenic area.

Reasons given for opposing the proposal are: 1. Depreciation of amphibious and other fish and wildlife values; 2. The need for more roadless areas; 3. Damage to water quality; and 4. The surplus of molybdenum elsewhere in the nation.

SPEED LIMIT RESTRICTION has been placed on the Perrine Memorial Bridge since the weight restriction of 22 tons was imposed. A giant, economy-size sign pointing out the 35 miles per hour bridge speed limit was placed near both sides of the bridge last week, replacing the smaller, often-unnoticed signs. In a short stretch of Blue Lakes Boulevard North and U.S. Highway 83 speed limits now vary from 35 to 50, to 35, to 50, to 60 miles per hour.

Water Resource Board Will Review Development Plans

The Idaho Water Resource Board will hold its first 1970 meeting Friday at the State house in Boise with 12 items on the agenda for the day-long session.

Charles J. Marshall, Jerome board chairman, said the board will review the water development program with reports from Verl King, assistant director for development, concerning loan applications and staff analysis of the proposed Georgetown and Trail Creek water application projects.

Board attorney, Phil Peterson, Lewiston, will discuss a proposed change in interest limitation for revenue bonds and board member George Yost will present a report for the Southwest Idaho Committee, of which he is chairman. John Streiff, Lewiston, chairman of the board's Middle Snake Committee, will also report.

The staff will present the status of the Bear River investigation and the Snake River Montpelier, will report for his Bear River Committee.

William S. Holden, Idaho Falls, will view activities of the Pacific Northwest River Basins Commission and the western States Water Council.

The board will hold a joint meeting with the State Commission on Federal Land Laws, during which a project review of the Idaho Wild River Study will be given by Dr. Ed Michelson, University of Idaho.

Dr. Robert R. Lee, Idaho Water Resource Board Director, will present a report on the federal state joint Wild Rivers Study.

State Police Officers In Magic Valley, District 4, Have Wide Variety Of Jobs

State Police officers in District Four, which takes in most of Magic Valley, have possibly the widest variety of assignments in the state. In addition to patrolling the district's 851 miles of road, officers take part in law enforcement activities at fairs, rodeos, parades, assist in livestock crossing highways, serve orders of execution, handle airplane registration, inspections, school bus inspections, enforce orders of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, handle blood runs and civil defense matters, take part in search and rescue operations and set up fish and game road blocks, check and operate fire trucks, schools and schools for local law enforcement agencies.

And if this isn't a mouthful, officers are also individually very active in Boy Scout programs. All this information is spelled out in the Idaho State Police Management Study released recently by the Idaho Traffic Safety Commission.

It's all part of a bundle in which a request is being made for more State Police officers and a larger budget for the Idaho State Police force. Lt. Dean Bennett coordinates the activities of this large force from his office near Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. His territory is 14,454 square miles of land ranging from desert conditions in the south to mountains in the north, and from the east and south ends of the district.

The population estimate of the district is about 100,500, based on 1960 figures, and 1967 vehicle registration figures show there are more than 62,000 passenger vehicles and 7,200 trucks in the district.

Figures for 1969 show there has been a 10 per cent increase in these totals. Serving this vast area are 20 officers. The force consists of a lieutenant, a sergeant and 18 troopers.

The study does not include Part of entry officers, which are under State Police supervision now. The study is asking the Part of Entry posts be administered by another agency.

This is one clerk-typist in the district and working out of the Twin Falls office. Seven troopers are stationed in Twin Falls. Three more are in Rupert; two in Burley, and one each in Shoshone, Gooding, Jerome, Hailey and Blaine. Officers patrol the counties of Camas, Blaine, Gooding, Lincoln, Jerome, Twin Falls, Lataha and part of Mindoka.

The study shows schedules for troopers in the Twin Falls area are set for three shifts with overlapping reporting times. One shift reports at 6 a.m., one at 9 a.m. and one at 5 p.m.

Troopers in areas outside Twin Falls set their own schedules. In response to local conditions and with permission of the district commander, Lt. Bennett.

The study reports traffic volume in the district is heavy with a year-round volume of interstate traffic and a heavy seasonal volume of tourist traffic. Heavy tourist traffic is reported from May through September and winter sports traffic heavy from November through February.

Commuter traffic is heavy in the areas of Twin Falls, Burley and Jerome because of population density and industrial plants.

Daily traffic in the district varies. It was reported with a high of 7,600 in Burley and Rupert and 7,400 in Twin Falls, and to the low of 200 in some rural areas.

This is traffic on roads leading into the high and low density areas.

It was reported cooperation between state, county and city law enforcement agencies is good, but it was pointed out some county officials are inclined to turn most traffic-related problems over to the Idaho State Police.

It was also reported most counties in the district have the state handle traffic accidents if possible.

In its accident statistics the report shows from 1964 to 1969 the counties in the district reported a total of 17,885 traffic accidents of which 210 resulted in death and 7,334 involved injuries.

In the district there were 33 deaths in 1964, 51 in 1965, 43 in 1966, 46 in 1967, 46 in 1968, and 55 in 1969, the latter being a record for the district. The year 1969 was also a record for deaths in the state.

It was pointed out, however, that total accidents, including deaths and injuries, remained stable during the five year period.

The report shows there is a drop in the number of accidents from January to June, a rise in the summer months and an increase during October to December.

Although somewhat stable in accident statistics, there is a steady increase seen because of the steady rise in the volume of traffic on the highways, it was reported. The increase is not large, but is reported steady as of the first of 1969 and projected for five years.

Peak traffic hours in the district are between 2 and 3 p.m. each day, but there is a minor peak at 8 a.m. because of commuter traffic — and another sharp increase again at 11 p.m. Fifty per cent of all accidents happen during the eight hours of the working day and 85 per cent during the 16 hours of the day.

It was reported there is no justification for 24-hour police coverage in the district except on an on-call basis.

A breakdown of roads in the district shows that rural-road accidents in 1968 amounted to 250. This is on 100 miles of road. Semi-rural roads and connectors to main highways show 367 miles with 564 accidents in the year, and highly traveled highways with 408 miles showed 216 accidents in the year.

This breaks down to 1,030 accidents in 1968 on 851 miles of road.

Dangerous highway sections are listed as the connector from Burley Northeast to Interstate 80N, a two mile stretch of highway with 15 accidents in 1968 or 7.5 accidents a mile.

The second is from Rupert South to the Interstate, with 10 miles of highway and 28 accidents for 7.0 accidents a mile.

The third is the Burley Junction east to Coeurville on the Interstate with 22 miles of highway and 62 accidents, or 2.8 accidents a mile.

It was reported the short distances of those segments implies the problem with accidents is more an engineering defect in highway construction and signing than with city enough law enforcement.

The report has made numerous recommendations for the State Police force, one being that the Superintendent should be answerable to the Governor and not to the Commissioner of Law Enforcement. Idaho law stipulates this should be the case, but in practice it has not been the case.

The report also asks for more troopers, more equipment and more vehicles.

If the recommendations are accepted and approved by the Legislature, the force in the district could be increased to 40. The 20 need the administrative duties of the Parts of Entry would be removed from State Police supervision to another Idaho agency.

It was also pointed out that last year troopers were put on 40-hour work week, therefore cutting the force and the hours of patrol. It is indicated the 40-hour week be retained but the force be increased.

SHOSHONE — The new lottery system makes it impossible for Lincoln County to fill its January quota for military service, according to Mrs. Frances Burkett, selective service clerk.

The call is for one man, but the Lincoln County draft board has been told not to go higher than No. 30 in the new lottery system, the clerk said.

According to the new system, the following names come up, which shows the number and availability and reasons:

No. 1 selection, Sept. 14, John H. Exner, in medical school.

No. 2, 3 and 4 selections, no local men born on the dates drawn.

No. 5, Oct. 18, Charles Neher, in service now and on duty.

No. 6, Oct. 22, Stephen A. King, in college now.

No. 7, Oct. 24, Stephen A. King, in college now.

No. 8, Nov. 22, Anthony H. Janson, disqualified, and David Harris, in service now.

No. 9, Dec. 6, John Haddock, in service.

No. 10, Dec. 7, Leon Dormier, in service, and Stanley Kerner, in college in ROTC program.

No. 11, July 8, Gary Swainston, has completed service.

No. 12, Dec. 29, Johnson Jensen, in Service; No. 17, Jan. 15, Allen S. King, in service, and Laverne Bernard, in reserve program.

Mrs. Burkett said the men falling between Numbers 18 to 30 likewise are either already in the service, or deferred and not eligible for the January call.

Members of the Selective Service board are Gerald Freese, chairman; Reid Newby and William Flavel, both Shoshone; Everett Ward Sr., Richfield, and Floyd Klasing, District.

Smoking Coat Triggers Mishap

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Antismokers can chalk another one on their list.

Barbara R. Murphy, 24, of Reno, told police her coat caught fire at she was driving down a major thoroughfare.

She apparently failed to see the toxic gas stop in front of her car, and police reported her vehicle crashed into the rear of the cab.

Calley is a soldier who needs a friend. Weber said, "I am sure he acted in the best interest of his men and himself, and that was for survival."

"It is difficult for our soldiers to follow the rules of war set down in Geneva when the enemy has absolutely no rules of war," Weber said.

He said the money raised will be turned over to Calley "to use for his defense in the trial or whatever he deems best."

Inquest In Kennedy Case Set Monday

By H.D. QUIGG UPI Senior Editor

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (UPI) — A January inquest into a July death brought a Saturday influx of newsmen and technicians that failed to dent the imperturbable mien of this resort town in its off-season winter lull.

The main midwinter occupation of the town of about 1,200 population who work as all is dragging for scallops which abound in Cape Poge Bay off Chappaquiddick Island.

Overlooking that bay is the rude wooden bridge from which the black sedan of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy plunged in the moonlit dark of last July 18 into a saltwater pond bearing Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, to her death by drowning.

The 6-foot-2 senator who has the piercing blue eyes of the Kennedy and who will be 38 on Feb. 22, is expected to fly across Nantucket Sound from his Hyannis Port home this week to be one of a score of witnesses testifying in secret at the Kopechne inquest which begins Monday.

The inquest, blocked Sept. 2 by a State Supreme Court ruling, will be held behind closed doors at the order of the same court. Police Chief Dominick J. Arena on Saturday placed barricades at the entrance of the county courthouse here in preparation for the opening of the inquest.

A total of 250 may be here, as opposed to the 450 newsmen who gathered here in September. They will not be allowed in the building. There will be no probate court on Monday, and access to that and to the county offices will be allowed to local citizens.

Arena has called a 7:30 p.m. press conference to discuss the inquest. He said he did not expect a big crowd outside and that his force would be supplemented by sheriff's men, policemen from the other five towns on the island of Martha's Vineyard and by some State Police who, he hopes, will bring equipment to search out possible bugging devices in the courtroom.

BROWN TRAVELS CAIRO (UPI) — George Brown, deputy leader of Britain's governing Labor party, conferred Saturday with Egyptian officials on Middle East problems. Brown, a former foreign secretary, met with Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad and a number of other high Cairo officials. He was expected to confer with President Gamal Abdel Nasser during his five-day visit.

THE NEW NURSING home being built in Gooding on the same grounds as the new hospital. will be a 88-bed facility. Plans call for completion about the first of July.

Hawaiian Lieutenant Proves His Prowess In Fatal Fight

By TOM TIEDE

LANDING ZONE IKE, South Vietnam (NEA)—His name was John K. Kauhahine. But the men in his platoon couldn't pronounce it. So they just called him Lieutenant K.

He favored the abbreviation. He said he couldn't pronounce Kauhahine either.

That's the way he was. He wasn't like other officers in the First Cavalry. He was more like, well, one of the rank and file. Not that he wasn't a good leader—they say he was a damn good one—but he had this way of mixing in and becoming part of his people.

He'd drink their beer. Laugh at their gags. Suffer their blues. Or share their good times. He wasn't a buddy, exactly. But he understood them and his men knew he'd never ask them to go a step farther than he would go himself.

He never did.

Lieutenant K. was Hawaiian. From Kono on the Big Island. He was 28 years old. Married. And had four nut-brown kids.

He could have remained in the sun with his family. He didn't have to come to Vietnam. He had been a reserve officer in Kono and, as such, free from any active military obligation. But he had a strong urge to serve.

His motivation was simple. He told people he felt the weight of the war was being shouldered by too few Americans. He didn't like to sit on his rump while others sacrificed. He felt he was needed, wanted—and so he volunteered.

Nursing Home Being Built In Gooding

GOODING—The new nursing home-in-Gooding is now under construction near the new Gooding Memorial Hospital on surplus land from the Idaho State School.

The land on which the 88-bed facility is being built will be leased from the State. The structure will be owned by Burton Builders of the C and C Construction Co.

Progressive Care Centers of Idaho will in turn lease the building from Mr. Bliss with Rev. Art Rainwater as administrator.

C and C Construction Co., of the Nampa-Caldwell area is building the $400,000 home. The new nursing home is expected to be opened early in July.

Paychecks In Mail For State Aides

BOISE (UPI)—Paychecks for state employees working outside of Boise are in the mail for the Jan. 2 payday for state workers. State Auditor Joe Williams said that his staff had worked night and day to process payroll of all state agencies to meet the payday deadline. A court suit had threatened the payroll.

The state board of examiners had caught in Fourth District Court to prevent Williams from using a payroll system not approved by the board.

But the court refused to grant a preliminary injunction.

They say he might have kept up his own offensive all day and all night. Or at least until every enemy of his platoon was blown or chased off the battleground.

But he couldn't.

Out front like he was, like he insisted on being, he made a target. He was shot several times, in the chest.

And died.

After the battle, a newspaperman was talking to some of the combatants. He said he had heard about a John K. Kauhahine and wanted to do a story on him. The man eyed the newspaperman curiously. "Oh," said one, "you mean Lieutenant K. Listen, man, you know he saved our lives out there? Just say, just say he was the greatest; that's all, the greatest."

Californians Air-Lift Ton Of Marijuana

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (UPI)—Two Los Angeles residents have admitted at a pre-trial hearing they were carrying a ton of marijuana to California when their rented plane made a landing near Guadalajara.

Gary Bernard Carson, 35, and Fred Leggett Jr., 25, told federal attorney Emilio Barroso, reading already they purchased the drugs for $5,000 in the Pacific Coast resort of Puerto Vallarta and planned to sell it to their friends.

An army detail on a routine anti-narcotics patrol, found about 100 sacks of marijuana inside the plane Monday and arrested the suspects. Army officials valued the haul at $50,000.

Carson said a young Mexican he knew only as "Rafael" approached them on the Puerto Vallarta beach last September with a mountain of marijuana for $5,000.

The narcotics were delivered to their plane a few days later, he said.

New Gooding Hospital Is About 40 Per Cent Complete

GOODING—The new Gooding Memorial hospital, is about 40 per cent complete, Leo Wagner, board chairman, reported Saturday. Completion of the structure is expected sometime in the late spring. Steel frames were being installed for the roof on Friday.

The new hospital is located on the 1200 block of Montana Street and will be the only hospital between Mountain Home and Jerome.

The 25-to-27-bed structure was designed by Nat J. Adams and Associates, Boise architects.

Mr. Wagner said Gooding county voters approved more than $500,000 in bonds for the new hospital March 15, 1967. In subsequent months the hospital board secured approximately $250,000 in Hill-Burton funds to help finance the construction.

H. Dyke Wallon Construction Co., Salt Lake City, was the low bidder for the facility, with a bid of $504,000 and was awarded the contract.

Construction began in late August.

THE NEW GOODING COUNTY Hospital, a 25 to 27-bed facility, will serve as the only hospital between Mountain Home and Jerome. The hospital is expected to be opened sometime in the spring. The structure is financed by Hill-Burton funds and $500,000 in bonds approved by county voters March 15, 1967. Leo Wagner, hospital board chairman, estimates the construction is about 40 per cent complete.

TV Set Is 'Con Artist' To Parents

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Now that the holidays are over, parents have been flummoxed again by the "master con artist" in their own homes: the television set.

Television perpetrates the greatest hoax in its hard-sell huckstering to kiddies for Christmas.

Saturday morning is prime time for the sandpile set, and it is from 8 a.m. to noon—before dad watches the football game—that toys are sold.

Regardless of the contents of shows, they are interrupted every few minutes by a blasting—voice-shouting—the prizes of a new toy which is guaranteed to make them happy for life.

The volume goes up for the commercial. More money is spent on depicting the toys in exaggerated action than on the show in progress.

So far, all right. If you and the kids can put up with the racket, good luck.

But invariably the commercials are misleading.

The toys demonstrated, particularly those complicated by pouring liquid plastic into molds or others involving mechanical know-how, are made to appear simple and easily operated by toddlers.

In actuality, few of those toys (a misnomer) can be assembled with any degree of ease by a graduate engineer—varying from chemical to mechanical to electronic disciplines.

If automobiles, cigarettes, soap flakes or typewriters were similarly misrepresented for adults on commercials, the outcry would be deafening.

But the unsuspecting parent listens to the blaring plea of his three or four-year-old and heads for the toy store.

He toddles with his prize to a bewildered father who sets his teeth and reads the instruction book which requires a half hour in itself.

The remainder of the day is devoted to blown fuses, burned hands, frantic search for the manual and white fury on behalf of the parent.

The television huckster, the sharp guy from Madison Avenue, has ruined another Christmas. The kiddie must satisfy himself by playing with the supplies that father drinks a lot, and mother weeps.

It's a rotten and growing tradition.

Advertising agencies and toy makers should be made to announce on the air and print on toy containers the bracket for which toys and games are made.

Solons Pass Odd-Type Of 'Resolution'

By JOHN HALL

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress has developed a process that may be of interest to businessmen facing bankruptcy, persons facing long prison terms and other Americans who would like to put things off for a while.

The continuing resolution is called "the continuing resolution."

The way it works is, that when the end of the fiscal year, June 30, approaches, and Congress has not passed any appropriations bills, it simply votes to let the affected agencies continue spending at existing levels until the regular money bills pass.

The best thing about the continuing resolution is that it can be continued.

Congress normally sets a deadline for the expiration of the continuing resolution. But if nothing has been done when the deadline arrives, it inevitably approves another continuing resolution.

The continuing resolution has always been a happy little method for fighting time, but it really came into its own this year. It is now January—six months into the fiscal year—and Congress still has not passed a bill for the Health, Education and Welfare department, the Labor Department and 12 other agencies.

But were there troops of anxious men running around Capitol Hill demanding their $1 billion before Congress adjourned? Of course not. A continuing resolution was rushed to the President, good until Jan. 30.

There is absolutely no limit to what the same approach could do in the private sector of the economy.

Corporations that are having a little trouble getting their books balanced could simply send their stockholders last year's dividends in continuing resolutions.

Housewives could give their butchers a continuing resolution offering to buy meat at last year's prices.

Actually, the real reason for the continuing resolution is that congressmen are so busy that they can't get anything done.

Some legislators think that Congress should go back to the calendar year budgetary system instead of the July-to-July fiscal year system. But what they don't know is that, in the late 1960's, Congress went to the fiscal year system because it got behind on the calendar year.

Zodiac 'Whiz' Attempts To Cast Horoscopes For Decade

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Your common, garden variety astrologer will chart your horoscope for a day, week or maybe a month in advance. Some will even horoscope you for a full year.

But it takes a real whiz with the zodiac to provide you with a horoscope that is good for an entire decade. I am one of the few who still attempt this feat. Here then is your horoscope for the 1970's.

Capricorn (Dec. 21-Jan. 20)—Capricorns will find this a good decade for striking while the iron is hot, answering the knock of opportunity and grabbing the bull by the horns. But don't take any wooden cliches.

Aquarius (Jan. 21-Feb. 18)—Pursue all decisions relating to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness until someone else says it's important. Come up, make snap judgment.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20)—Males under 50 who were born under this sign must flee to Canada to avoid being drafted for the battle of Armageddon. Other Pisces should exercise care to avoid being pursued by dolphins.

Aries (March 21-April 20)—A catchword is "to be feared." You, so be sure to dress for it. Taurus (April 21-May 20)—

Someone close to you who is taking a correspondence course in guitar-playing will receive the wrong lesson because of a foul-up at the post office and will twang himself to death.

Gemini (May 21-June 20)—The next 10 years will be more than anyone can bear, particularly Gemini. Avoid foreign entanglements.

Cancer (June 21-July 21)—You will be asked to star in your own television series, but pride will keep you from accepting.

Leo (July 22-Aug. 21)—These will be the Best years of your life if you can overcome your fear of menageries.

Virgo (Aug. 22-Sept. 21)—Hard bargaining lies ahead for all virgos if they are to attain more than they are entitled to. Remember that bad sores are a sure way of getting you to get.

Libra (Sept. 22-Oct. 21)—New discoveries in the field of pacifiers will enable you to break the thumb-sucking habit and finally marry the orthodox of your choice.

Scorpio (Oct. 22-Nov. 21)—You will find pot at the end of the rainbow and be arrested for illegal possession of narcotics.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 20)—The way your stars are cast now is to be feared. You will need a lawyer more than an astrologer.

Everyone Loses As Agents Nab Bet Books

DETROIT (UPI) — Many bookmakers have lost out of luck and out of money because federal agents scooped up "vase" reservoirs of bookies' funds in New Year's Day raids that now threaten to link big-name sports figures with nationwide gambling rings.

James J. Ritchie, special assistant U.S. attorney here, said the Detroit-based ring involved "vase" figures in baseball and football and hundreds of trainers and lockers throughout the United States.

Raiders Favored By 4 Points Over Chiefs

OAKLAND (UPI) — The game attention on our passing game. I was really pleased. Later, the Kansas City coach said he prefers an offense which can afford to throw the ball from 20 to 25 times a game.

The odds-makers, those fellows who make their living predicting the outcome of sports contests, are sticking with the Raiders, who've beaten the Chiefs twice this year, as the favorites but only by four points, which is one more than a field goal.

Both coaches—Hank Stram of Kansas City and John Madden of Oakland—have the greatest confidence in their kickers, using them for boots almost half the distance of the field.

Now, it seems that the running may be revived since it's almost certain, according to the Oakland coaching staff, that the Chiefs will subject Lampton, one of the greatest pressure he's had all season in an effort to nullify his "bombs" to speedy Warren Wells and Fred Bilezikoff.

South Nips North In Final 2 Minutes

Hendren Named Lineman Of Game With 9 Catches Two Scores, 216 Yards

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—Bill Capplemann rifled a 48-yard touchdown pass to Eddie Ray and Auburn's John Riley kicked the extra point with less than five minutes to play but it took a goal line stand in the final two minutes for the South to down the North 24-23 in the Lions American Bowl football game.

The North, led by the passing combination of Dennis Shaw and Jerry Hendren drove to the South four yard line with 1:46 left to go, only to see a 21-yard field goal try by Jim O'Brien of Cincinnati go wide.

Capplemann's touchdown to Ray was his second, the first being a 27-yard toss from the Florida State quarterback to Georgia's Dennis Hughes.

The South's winning touchdown came after the two teams traded fourth period touchdowns within a span of a minute and a half.

Dennis Shaw, the nation's leading passer, hit Idaho's Jerry Hendren with a 74 yard pass just before O'Brien missed his field goal, but the officials ruled he was beyond the end zone. Daugherty said the area in which McFarland stepped down actually was part of the end zone, however, and "the films will show this."

Miss Rauter

Cops German Slalom Event

OBERTAUFEN, Germany (UPI)—Herni Rauter of Austria took advantage of the spills and mistakes of almost all her leading rivals Saturday to win the special slalom of the Oberstaufen ladies' ski races, the third counting towards the World Cup.

"Miss Rauter, a 20-year-old skier of the top starting group (15 races) to get through the extremely tricky gate combinations of the second run without falling or missing a gate.

When she took the start in 15th position, most of the leaders already were knocked out and she was able to play it safe.

"Among the victims were Kiki Cutler of Bend, Ore., who was leading the competition after the first heat. She seemed to manage all the difficult gate combinations until she missed the 54th gate of the 58-gate course. Marilyn Cochran of Richmond, Va., fourth after the first heat, fell early in the second heat and gave up.

Miss Rauter, who said skiing is her only pastime, trailed in fifth place after the first heat with 44.60 seconds. She clocked 44.41 seconds in the second heat for a total of one minute, 31.01 seconds.

Two French girls, Isabelle Mir and Françoise Macchi, finished second and third with respective times of 1:31.63 and 1:31.78.

The main responsibility for setting the second course, which turned the competition into a near travesty and drew hard criticism from the competitors, was Phil Mollard, one of the U.S. coaches.

"The course was too tight for the 'A' conditions U.S. head coach, Don Craig.

"It was a big disappointment for Kiki to lose with victory so close," Gee said. "She improved her slalom technique in still summer training and today she seemed to pay off today. But again she was hit by bad luck and she left the course deeply disappointed."

He added, "I hope her fine first run will be a boost for her," and pointed out that Kiki's strategy was a bad one.

Lions Place Exhibitions On Year Pass

DETROIT (UPI)—The Detroit Lions announced Saturday they are joining the growing number of professional football teams which include exhibition games in their season ticket packages.

However the club said it was not going to increase prices on an average per game basis.

"The packaging program is step-wise and for economic and scheduling reasons," said Russ Thomas, general manager of the Lions.

"Increased revenue from pre-season games is the only way a club can keep pace with skyrocketing costs of operating a professional football franchise. Only alternative would be to increase ticket prices, a move we do not contemplate at this time."

Season ticket holders will be invited to purchase the same seats to exhibition games with the Kansas City Chiefs and Philadelphia Eagles in addition to the seven regular-season games if they wish to retain their priorities for 1970.

Despite lucrative television monies, many pro football franchises are barely breaking even from year to year.

"It is extremely difficult to schedule a fine team like the Kansas City Chiefs for a game in Detroit unless that game is a Monday, many pro football franchises are barely breaking even from year to year."

The Chiefs, and similar teams, are juggling to make a profit without the aid of package programs. When they are assured of a better gate by scheduling games in cities where such a program is in effect.

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (UPI)—The Minnesota Vikings counting on their "Purple People-Eaters" to wreck the passing of steady Bill Nelsen, ruled eight-point favorites Saturday to beat the Cleveland Browns Sunday and become the first expansion team ever to win the National Football League championship game.

Alvarez Hits Selection Of Dickey

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—New Florida coach Doug Dickey says he intends to "rehabilitate" his Gators players, but all-America flanker Carlos Alvarez thinks that will be one tough job in his case at least.

Alvarez said he felt the team was betrayed by school president Stephen C. O'Connell and coach Ray Graves in the move to Gainesville, Fla., from Tennessee.

"I'll never forget it. I've learned some of the ugly aspects about college football and it'll never be the same," the Cuban exile said.

Gabriel Throws For 2 Early TDs To Pace Victory

MIAMI (UPI)—Roman Gabriel hit the fourth quarter after briel hurled scoring passes of 35 and 67 yards the first two times Los Angeles got the ball Saturday, added two more touchdowns in the second half, and the Rams pummeled the Dallas Cowboys 31-0 in the NFL's first Playoff Bowl game.

The shutout was the first in 10 Playoff Bowl games. Dennis Jones of the Rams was most valuable defensive player.

The win snapped a four-game losing streak for Los Angeles, the NFL's Coastal Division champ. Dallas dropped its second in a row, after losing to Eastern Division champion Cleveland, 38-14 last week. Los Angeles dominated the Western Conference title to Minnesota Dec. 27, 23-20.

Gabriel, the NFL player of the year, hit Les Josephson for 35 yards, Jack Snow for 67, Bob Klein for 19 and Snow again for 40. Bruce Gossett added a 42-yard field goal.

The Cowboys' offense sputtered under a jamming drizzle, and even experimentation with a passing attack failed to help.

Gabriel was taken out early in the fourth quarter after hitting 12 of 17 passes for 224 yards and his four scores. For the second time in the Playoff Bowl's history he was named most valuable player.

Gabriel's third scoring pass with 13:23 left in the first quarter set up when safety Richie Portton intercepted a Craig Morton pass on the Dallas 30 on just the second play of the game. Gabriel was belted for a five-yard loss, but on the next play hit Josephson on a swing pass and he sprinted down the right sideline for the touchdown.

CAREY — The Northside Conference leading Carey Panthers got a clutch free throw from Ed Thatcher in the closing seconds and an icing free throw from Russ to tie it at 32-31. The Panthers added Saturday night.

Gabriel's third scoring pass eliminated a drive starting on the Dallas 30 after Larry Smith returned a short punt 37 yards. On a fourth and one play, Gabriel hit a swing pass to Josephson for 14 yards to the Cowboys' 16 and on the next play he hit Klein for the score.

Texas Voted Rice Award By Writers

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—The University of Texas will receive the Grantland Rice Award presented by the Football Writers Association of America (FWAA), it was announced Saturday.

Gossett's field goal came after punter Pat Studdill ran from punt formation on the fourth down to the Cowboy 30. After stalling, the Rams elected to try the field goal.

Sports FROM ALL ANGLES

On the near-oval of the conference basketball races and blessed with the hindsight of December, the current cage season will run very much like the recent football year. The strength on a classification basis is left, is located in the smaller two divisions.

The Magic Valley and Little Six Conference will be the strongest in the top four and

By Larry Hovey

The Big Six Conference will have some good battles with a probability that an A-3 school will emerge as champion.

The A-3 strength appears centered in Wendell and Glenns Ferry but Shoshone didn't help that line too much. Friday night, the A-4 strength is found in Oakley and Murtaugh, which again makes the Magic Valley Conference battle a good one, and neither can overlook Hansen and Declo because on the proverbial plus-minus basis from that interplay of teams doubling up in leagues. Because of it, the Big Six Conference could become rugged. You must add Filley and Wood River to the mix.

North-Coch Duffly Daugherty said after the game he didn't want to criticize the officiating but that the North had a touchdown taken away in the final period because of confusing end zone markings.

Jim McFarland had caught a

But so far no one has managed to scare Wendell. The Trojans are looking to have a good half-handling team on a big floor because Wendell, which is one of the top average scoring teams, can beat you defensively with the press.

The Northside Conference has Carey running ahead now and the Panthers will be difficult to overtake. Camas County, which might be starting back on an up cycle, could well be a year away.

Central Idaho Conference race will be difficult to overtake. Camas County, which might be starting back on an up cycle, could well be a year away.

The South might have Filler by a little but Wood River looked good against the Wildcats-Friday night. Jerome and Buhl, winning its first game Friday night, still have a way to come, mostly on defense.

Minico is the strong team in the A-1 class with Twin Falls coming along with the question being the potential, though to hit the high plateau where championships are found; and Bruins right now are out of the conference title picture.

Expecting to have trouble that will be hard to correct because there is youth and lack of rebounding strength. The Bobcat outlook might become "play for another year."

Of interest in the yet-unknown season has been the results of the inter-classification, non-conference play. Oakley, Wendell and Murtaugh have some some larger schools by big margins.

But the more interesting part must be this: Winning a conference title is nice, but don't play yourself out doing it. No one has ever remembered the name of a conference champion once the district and state tournaments have started.

Jerry Hendren, University of Idaho, improved his lot in the upcoming football draft with his showing in the North-South Lions Bowl game Saturday. He caught nine passes for 216 yards and two touchdowns.

North wasn't going to throw to him, which robbed that youngster of a chance to show his ability. Bell's problem stemmed, undoubtedly, from the fact that Hendren and Shaw were teaming in the fourth quarter after briel hurled scoring passes of 35 and 67 yards the first two times Los Angeles got the ball Saturday, added two more touchdowns in the second half, and the Rams pummeled the Dallas Cowboys 31-0 in the NFL's first Playoff Bowl game.

Ferrin's Jumper In Final 14 Seconds, Shoves Filer Past Wood River By 68-66

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News Sports Editor

FILER — Russ Ferrin hit a jumper from inside the foul circle with 14 seconds left in a Wood River missed a similar shot at the end of the game. Wood River's Daryl James outlasted the Wolverines in a game marked by sharp outside shooting Friday night.

In the battle within a battle, the big men, Guy Ramsey of Filer and Daryl James of Wood River, fought to a virtual standstill hitting 23 and 25 points, respectively.

Ferrin hit both of Filer's final field goals as the Wildcats, after leading most of the game — but never by much — rallied from a five-point fourth quarter deficit to the victory.

Each team made one break. Ramsey, who had 20 of his 23 points in the first half, sparking an early second quarter flurry that stretched Filer into a 22-15 point lead. But Wood River hit the next 10 points to settle that. Then in the fourth period, Wood River, with James getting six, spurred ahead 62-57 before Olson, Gary Wright and Dick Aslett staided the Wildcat's.

Shoshone Shocks Glenns Ferry In League Opener

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone Indians started the Little Six conference season with a big upset of the highly regarded Glenns Ferry Pumas Friday as Craig Harris hit two free throws with 48 seconds left to nail down a 48-45 victory.

Never more than four points separated the two teams and at 23-10, Glenns Ferry tied it with two quick buckets to start the second half and from then on three points was the largest margin.

one and Harris came up with the two clutch free throws.

Shoshone then regained possession of the ball and wasted no time. The Indians' comeback also claimed the preliminary.

In all the game was tied nine times and the lead changed hands 13 times.

The clutch time started with the fourth quarter when Wood River picked up the tempo considerably. James tied it with an opening free throw and after a Wright free throw for Filer, hit two field goals while Patterson got another. That brought Wood River to its five-point bulge.

Olson, Wright and Aslett then hit to cut the deficit to one and Ferrin, with 1:17 left, slipped Filer in front with a jumper from side-court. James hit from the baseline for the final Wood River lead just 13 seconds later. The final tie developed with 43 seconds on the clock when Ramsey got a free throw and that left it for Ferrin to decide.

Camas County Blazes Past Dietrich

FAIRFIELD — The Camas County Musters staged their hottest shooting display of the year Friday night as they dropped the Dietrich Blue Devils 64-46 in a Northside Conference game.

The Musters, putting three men in double scoring figures, hit 50 per cent from the field and weren't threatened after the opening minutes. John Barron helped the Musher cause with strong rebounding.

Dietrich fell behind 10-10 in the first quarter and each rest period found them a little farther behind.

Filer also won the preliminary.

PGA Gives New Tour Point System

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Tournament Players Division of the Professional Golfers Association of America announced Saturday its newly adopted point system in determining automatic eligibility and preliminary tournament play.

The Musters, putting three men in double scoring figures, hit 50 per cent from the field and weren't threatened after the opening minutes. John Barron helped the Musher cause with strong rebounding.

Filer also won the preliminary.

In most competitions with prize money of at least $100,000, the first professional will receive 120 points, the runnerup 90 points and the other place winners will receive points graduated down to 1 for 70th place. Total points scored in 1970 will determine the 60 players who are to be immediately eligible, exempt from qualifying for tournaments in the following year and who will receive preferred pairings and starting times.

Number of 25 points will be awarded to winners of the PGA tournament and the U.S. Open, and also to the winner of a Tournament Players Match Play Championship when the TPD intends to inaugurate in 1971.

The board also made a change in qualifying procedure for open invitational tournaments. In addition to the usual 18-hole qualifying round on Monday immediately before a tournament, there will be an 18-hole preliminary round in the preceding week for players who are not members of the Tournament Players Division. Twenty per cent of such applicants will earn the right to compete with TPD members in the Monday qualifier for places in the tournament proper.

Filer also won the preliminary.

Schembechler 'Doing Well' In Hospital

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Glenn E. "Bo" Schembechler, Michigan's football coach who missed the Rose Bowl game because of a heart ailment, was reported "doing very well" Saturday at St. Luke's Hospital.

Dr. H. Weinstein said the 46-year-old coach spent "an excellent night" in the coronary care unit.

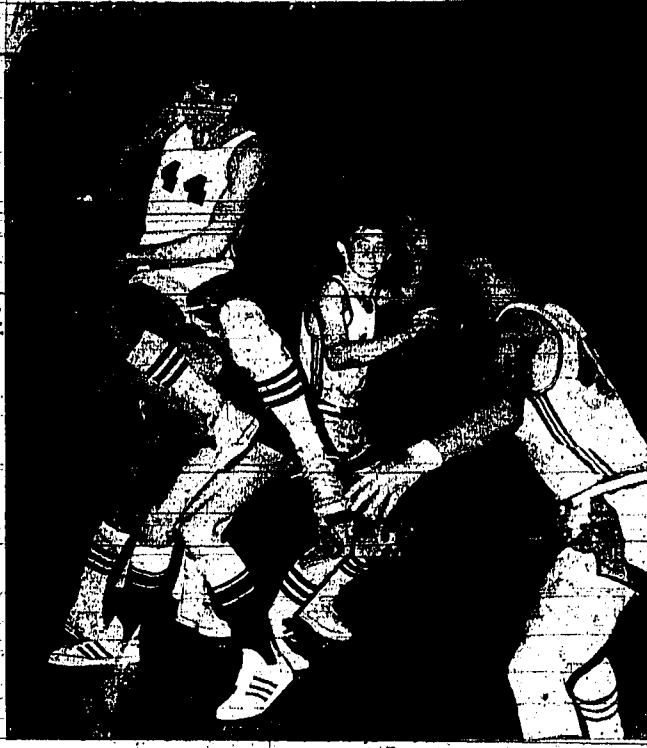

"This morning's electrocardiogram showed the expected changes," said the physician, "who is expected to remain in the coronary care unit for another 48 hours."

Schembechler was hospitalized three hours before the start of the New Year's Day game in which the Michigan team lost to the University of Southern California, 10-3.

His wife, Millie, visited his room twice Saturday morning and said, "Bo is doing very well."

She said their children, three boys, went back to their home in Ann Arbor Saturday. "Bo and I hope to join them in a few weeks," she said.

Filer also won the preliminary.

GOING FOR THE FAKE, Wood River's Rick Aldinger found himself on the shoulders of grinning Guy Ramsey of Filer during play Friday night. Ramsey drove the baseline, faked when Aldinger came across to help out and then went to the foul line. Filer won it, 68-66 in the last 14 seconds.

Spartans Tip Indiana At Buzzer 85-84

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Ron Gutkowski's rebound shot at the buzzer lifted Michigan State to an 85-84 basketball victory over Indiana Saturday in the Big Ten opener for both clubs.

The Spartans, who fell behind by 11 points twice in the first half, rallied to catch the Hoosiers in the second period. The game was tied at 50-50 and 70 before Michigan State jumped an 82-70 advantage with 2:47 to go.

Jim Harris hit on a floor shot then added two free throws, and Jerry Wright tied it at 82-82 on a jump shot with 45 seconds to play.

Michigan State with 34 points, connected on a free throw with 11 seconds to go and Indiana's half, failed to catch the Joe Cooke banked an 18-foot jump shot with 11 seconds left to give the Hoosiers an 84-83 edge.

Simpson fired from the corner but missed, and Gutkowski grabbed the rebound and put it back up for the winning goal at the gun.

Cooke topped Indiana with 26 points, Wright got 17, and Harris and Ken Johnson each added 12.

Buhl Uses Big Second Quarter To Tip Gooding

By PAUL BUKER
Times-News Sports Editor

BUHL — The Buhl Indians used a cautious defense and a 14-1 tear midway through the second period Friday night to spoil Frank Krahn's 20-point performance and dump the Gooding Senators 82-59 for their first win of the season.

times in the opening eight minutes, but Buhl, behind Ralph Keenoy's early scoring, forged ahead 15-14. Dan Hird and Sara Hird both hit to open the second quarter, and after Buhl baskets from Malbin Hammerquist and Mulhead, Gooding took the lead for the first time at 20-19 with six minutes left.

Despite his 26 points — which included 10 of 14 from the line, Krahn was far the most part kept outside by the Indians' defense, which shone all night under the boards, as he and the entire Senator team was forced to cast off from way outside time and again.

Buhl meanwhile got a fine 14-point stanza from John Mulhead and Jim Hudson's backcourt play and 12 points was also a key to the victory.

Buhl's 14-1 spree began with a Mulhead basket. Steve Meier canned a free throw, came back down for a 31-20 Buhl lead. Krahn finally broke the spell with three minutes left in the half with a free throw, but Hudson came right back with another driving shot off a jump for a 33-21 edge.

Krahn opened the second half with six straight points as the Senators came back within four, but three minutes later Buhl had that margin upped to 10.

With 1:35 left in the period, Gooding inched up again, this time within two at 45-43, but Jim Anderson connected for two straight and Mulhead added a free throw for a 49-43 three-quarter advantage.

Mulhead drove down on a three-squad free break for a crucial basket and Krahn came right back for the Senators with an eight-footer. Down 61-56, Gooding had two shots at a bucket but a traveling call and offensive foul set up Hudson on the line. He made the first for a 63-57 lead with 24 seconds left and Joe Sapozko hoop for the Senators didn't seem to matter. But Gooding ended a time-out with four seconds left trailing by three and tried to work a three-point play with Krahn on the inbound pass. Krahn's 14-footer slid past as the buzzer sounded.

It was tied three times and the lead changed hands six

That set up the fast-moving fourth quarter.

Buhl took the preliminary.

1969 In T.F. Was Dry And Warm Year

Weatherwise 1969 was well below normal in precipitation and slightly above normal in temperature by the Twin Falls area. Statistics from the Bureau of Entomology station in Twin Falls and the newer weather research station at Kimberly show total precipitation was only 6.16 inches for the calendar year at the research center and 5.35 inches at the Twin Falls measuring station.

Dry Year
A year ago, one of the least wet years on record, total precipitation reached 13.16 at the Kimberly center and 11.83 in Twin Falls. Normal over the past 20 year recording period at the Twin Falls Bureau of Entomology measuring station is 8.24.

Because of a good carryover and heavier precipitation in the mountain watersheds during early 1969, there were no water shortages.

Good Carryover
Lloyd Graybill, meteorologist in charge of the Kimberly center, said heaviest precipitation for the year occurred in June and December both months being above normal.

By month, last year and normal, in that order, total precipitation included: January, .48 and 1.04; February, .66 and .70; March, exceptionally dry with only .09 compared to .84 normal; April, .24 and .93; May, .07 and 1.14; June, .44 and .70; July, .21 and .24; August, a trace and .17; September, .39 and .49; October, .52 and .76; November, .60 and .62; and December, a good water month with 1.25 inches compared to .80.

These figures are all from the Entomology station at Twin Falls as the Kimberly station has not yet established a long time record for normal.

Warmest, Aug. 23
The warmest day of 1969 was Aug. 23 when the mercury climbed to 103 degrees while the coldest reading was no more than five degrees established last Jan. 24.

The months of January, May, August, September and December were all above normal in temperatures.

Coldest, Jan. 24
Those below included February, March, June and October, while other months were about normal for the 20-year averages.

Wives Visit Vatican To Seek Help

ROME (UPI) — Three American wives came to Rome Friday in a search for information about their husbands missing in North Vietnam.

They hoped to enlist the aid of the Vatican, even to see Pope Paul VI. But Vatican sources said there was little the Vatican could do for them except express sympathy.

The wives are Mrs. Thomas Stegman, 30, Mrs. Richard Nelson, 30, and Mrs. Robert Duncan, 25, all of Virginia Beach, Va.

Last month, two other wives — Mrs. Bonnie Singleton and Mrs. Paula Hartness, both of Dallas — went to the Vatican on the same kind of mission.

They were told the Vatican had been trying unsuccessfully to persuade Hanoi to release prisoners.

"We keep trying to get through, but so far Hanoi has not responded," Canadian Mgr. William Citrine of the Vatican Secretariat of State told them. "But one day the war will end and we will be ready for whatever information emerges."

In the past, the Vatican had a reputation of ferreting out information about missing prisoners and refugees through its worldwide network of diplomatic representatives. But it has no direct link with Hanoi.

The wives said Hanoi was forced to leave several years ago.

FOUR WOMEN DIE
BERLIN (UPI) — Four women died and 13 were injured in a fire that destroyed the "evening Peace" home for the aged in the U.S. sector of Berlin Thursday night, police reported Friday. Some of the home's 24 residents were injured in leaping from windows and balconies. Police believed the fire was started by someone smoking in bed.

EARLY MORNING MAIL arrival almost daily from Nov. 15 to Dec. 20 resulted in parcels which filled up a large share of the Twin Falls Post Office floor space. Those arriving Dec. 19, were destined for Twin Falls residents and several surrounding post offices. Many of the more than one-million parcels arriving for delivery in Twin Falls annually come in during a rush period prior to Christmas. This year the local post office handled a record amount of mail without the need of additional temporary employees.

RESPONSIBLE FOR SMOOTH OPERATION of the Twin Falls Post Office center rests with several key men, including Postmaster Fred M. Sangor.

Mail's A Complex Business

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Feature Editor

The 70 full time postal employees who handle 40 million pieces of mail and parcel post during the year, are a little tired. They have just completed the annual holiday rush which has seen about four freight-car loads or 2,400 mail sacks per day unloading at the docks each day since Nov. 15.

Peak day this year, when the incoming and outgoing loads crossed to form a record operation, was Dec. 19, when about a quarter of a million pieces of mail were handled in one day's time.

Post Offices throughout the country employ special holiday help to meet the demands of peak mailing periods in Christmas cards and packages and until this year Twin Falls was no exception.

For the 1969 holiday rush, however, the Twin Falls staff handled the entire operation with the regular full-time and experienced—crus—Postmaster Fred M. Sangor said this was one of the most successful Christmas mailing periods on record at the local Post Office.

It was all possible, he said, because of two major factors. First, the local office is staffed by a group of outstanding employees—people who were able for the first time through a Christmas season to absorb the increased mail handling burden without the use of outside temporary and often untrained help.

The second factor, he said, was the excellent cooperation from the public and news media in mailing early and following recommendations of the department.

Work of one to two clerks is eliminated at the local office, Mr. Sangor said, because the mailing public sorts its own outgoing cards and letters at either city or out of city. Mr. Sangor complimented the area residents on their careful handling of their cards and letters.

Through cooperation of news media in reaching the public, he said, it was possible for the department to give the peak mail handling day ahead from about Dec. 20 to Dec. 18, which in effect gave the department additional two days work time.

On the afternoon of Dec. 24 the local post office, one of the busiest places in town for weeks, had taken on the look of an empty warehouse. Instead of bins and sacks piled high with packages and cards, the floor had been cleared and empty mail sacks were piled high on mail carts that had previously been almost invisible because of parcels covering floor space.

Crews even found time to clean some of the sorting and cancelling equipment that had been in operation almost continuously by day and night workers for more than a month.

By utilizing only the regular and full time help, Mr. Sangor said, not only did the public have more efficient service, but there was money saving in the long run. Workers are not permitted to work on one shift more than 10½ hours and many were operating on this schedule for several weeks. Since the experienced worker can do more than twice the work of the new temporary employee, Mr. Sangor said considerable money was saved despite overtime payments.

Other things contributing to the speed up in handling of rush mail periods include better equipment, improved transportation with the shipment of near-

IT WAS ALL OVER by 12:30 p.m. Dec. 24 as the clock at the far rear of the picture shows. At that time all mail, including parcels and letters, had been delivered or returned to the post office because addressees were not at home. Postmaster Fred Sangor and Superintendent of Mails Gerald Albers, in the background, survey the situation, noting this is the first time in weeks any floor space was visible in the mail room.

IN AFTERMATH OF HOLIDAY RUSH, the post office still was evident in some of these signs. An empty and much-used mail pouch was left by one of the city carriers. At right, a cart that had been hidden by a huge load of parcel post only a day earlier is now stacked with empty mail sacks that were also bulging only a day before. In picture at lower left, Postmaster Fred Sangor, right, and Bill Brady look through some of the many magazines which were being delivered as the holiday rush began to slow. Thanks to zip code and modern methods of mail handling, much of this type of mail arrives at the local sectional center destined for one of the 42 post offices in the section and is not rehandled between New York and Twin Falls. Lower right, only a few packages, including one marked "returning Mormon missionary", were left on Dec. 24 for delivery and all had been returned after at least one attempt to deliver to the addressee.

AS ASSISTANT POSTMASTER, Lloyd Libhart is in charge of post office payroll, postage supplies, personnel and accounting matters and the new punch card inventory system which keeps track of equipment and furnishings of the office.

ONE OF THE BUSIEST MEN in Twin Falls is Gerald Albers, superintendent of mails. He has more headaches than most during the Christmas mail rush as he directs all mail handling, both in and out of the local post office, as well as transportation for surface and air mail.

Snowmobiling Fun For Some May Become Threat To Rights, Property Of Others

By JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish-Game Department

BACK COUNTRY JAUNTS by snowmobile are and should be fun for the machine owners and operators, but a sound code of ethics is needed to prevent damage to private property, big game herds and natural resources. Here Marlon Smith, Boise, and Dean Herman, Elko, Nov., rear, pause during an over-the-snow trip they experienced last March from Cascade to Yellowstone where they observed wild game but were careful not to harass the animals in deep snow cover.

Throughout the United States and in Canada, biologists and other people concerned about wildlife resources are studying the burgeoning growth from the early pioneering days when the snowmobiles were used to reach the fad stage into a permanent winter recreational craze. Results so far are not too encouraging, especially in the heavily populated mid-western and northwestern states and in Alaska, where a greedy, lawless and sometimes malicious minority is misusing the new capability.

Hawley Hill, chief of conservation enforcement, says that snow vehicles of various types have become somewhat of a problem in the past, but that a need for a more necessary moose hunting winter game animals in the Juniper-Road-Sand Creek area in Fremont County. "We have tried to develop public cooperation toward solving this problem by increasing campaigns through the various news media, thereby acquainting the public with the bad aspects of such activity," he comments.

Manufacturers and snowmobile owners must help prevent damage to wildlife by putting "the word" to the users on these problems. For example, the official publication for both the Western Snowmobile Association and American Snowmobile Association, with combined membership of about 2000 enthusiasts, is "SNOWMOBILING," published by H. M. (Duke) Wellington, long-time Boise printer. It covers news items and features of general interest to snowmobilers and the general public alike. The WSAs cater exclusively to western snowmobilers, and the ASA draws its members primarily from the midwest and New England areas.

"SNOWMOBILING" features an article on winter survival in its December issue, which has been reprinted separately and will be sold at cost by publishers. It was written by Morland W. Nelson, Boise, snow survival supervisor. Soil Conservation Service. Long recognized as one of the world's leading falconers, he also is a professional skier and mountain climber. These are techniques he learned as a cadre officer for the 87th Mountain Infantry ski troops in World War I. Several thousand copies of the reprinted article have been bought by Region 4 of the U.S. National Forest Service at Ogden, Utah, for distribution to the forests and district ranger's offices.

Nelson writes: "The first decision you must make if you become stranded in the snow is the best possible site for the survival camp. You must avoid locating the campsite in an avalanche path. Avalanches start from the top of a steep slope, building up speed and force as they sweep downward to the bottom or until they dissipate their force out over a level area. An avalanche path may be recognized as a steep, comparative, sheared-off trees, having a safe site within the cover of large trees or on ridges at avalanches usually travel down gulches or draws."

Items of trespassing on private property and the almost impossible task of properly marking both on-road and off-road property boundaries.

Many areas have been established and improved by the U.S. Forest Service and private enterprise for exclusive use of snow machines in an effort to keep them from infringing on ski resorts and away from private property such as fenced ranges and summer homes where damage has become a winter problem because of the machines.

Some states already have adopted regulatory codes for snowmobilers. Idaho's last legislative session passed a bill requiring the registration and numbering of all snowmobiles used in the state. The Motor Vehicle Division of the Department of Law Enforcement is responsible for administering the law, and has published a free information leaflet spelling out regulations and standards.

The six standards of snowmobile safety are: 1. Use extra caution when driving near trees and other obstructions. Reduce your speed when approaching blind corners, groups of people or other moving snowmobilers. 2. Cross roads safely by stopping first to check for oncoming traffic. 3. Do not drive on roads or in ditches unless local regulations allow. 3. Use the buddy system when exploring remote areas. Make sure your machine is in good repair and carries an adequate gas supply. Dress for weather conditions. Tell people where you have gone. 4. Inspect unfamiliar terrain. Be especially careful when driving on a snow-covered lake that might have unexpected open water areas near river intakes and pressure ridges. 5. When towing skiers, sleds, or toboggans, keep your speed down. Stop and start slowly. Watch for obstructions ahead. Always carry a passover. 6. Night snowmobiling is a thrilling experience... do it safely. Be sure head and tail lights are operating. Drive at a reasonable speed. Keep a sharp lookout for fences, trees and rough terrain.

Bill concludes the Idaho Fish and Game Department looks at snowmobilers as a new and effective tool in wildlife management.

GROW GOOD ROSES IN 1970

Try to keep the apple in a good apple orchard. It's really for some rose growers. The president of a rose society sent me these hints which might guide you in 1970.

First, proper selection of roses is important. There are roses which are disease resistant and some which get it bad. If you have room for only a few roses and don't have time to spray regularly, better select the kind that aren't highly susceptible.

Careful pruning in spring is necessary. A large unpruned bush carries over diseases which does not permit new healthy growth to come out. A properly pruned bush allows air to flow through, keeping the bush dry, discouraging powdery mildew and blackspot.

Our reader suggests using Foliar (phosphate) for blackspot. It is a purpose spray containing fungicides, insecticides and miticides. In hot summer months many rose bushes lose their leaves. They turn gray before falling off, and the out look is due to spider mite, controlled by the all-purpose pesticide or by using Kelthane.

He adds: "Keeping the old blooms, cut off will encourage new growth and more blooms." Also, it's important to make sure that bushes get at least one inch of water a week.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D.E. of Twin Falls: "We raised some wonderful Northern Spy apples, good color and every thing. However, when you peel the skin you see corky spots about the sixteenth inch, and it goes deep into the flesh. Does it mean our soil needs something? Or is it due to pesticide injury?"

CONTROL: It's difficult. Bitter pit is associated with high levels of nitrogen and potassium. Large fruits and those picked in an immature stage are susceptible. Heavy shade and heavy pruning induces more bitter pit. Anything that increases size of the fruit increases the amount of bitter pit.

grow their own geraniums from seed. There are still a few "bugs" which need to be worked out for getting the seed to germinate. We know that it likes a warm soil temperature (75 degrees constant and adequate moisture and a proper germinating medium such as perlite and peatmoss, or a similar mix.

One factor you'll have to watch for is clean germinating conditions. You can hope to start the seed or grow seedlings in a soil infected with pythium or rhizoctonia diseases, which means that you must use clean pots, and clean soil. Best bet is to bake your potting soil in an oven at 180 degrees for 1/2 hour.

Some gardeners said their seed grown geraniums had "late flowering" habits. This happens and I don't know what causes it. Commercial growers use a chemical (Cycodol) to make the plants flower earlier.

However, if you sow geranium seeds of the hybrid geraniums in January, you should have flowering plants by around the month of July. The seed costs may seem high — 50 seeds for $2.50, but you get a lot of geraniums for that. The seed comes "scorified," which means you get faster germination.

Many thanks to W.E.B. of Bunt, Idaho, for the ten-cent token from the Twin Falls Cigar Store which he sent us. This is one we did not have before and we are glad to add it to our collection.

Question from D. B. Burley, Idaho: Are two-dollar bills worth saving for the future gain on them? I understand the United States does not make them anymore.

Answer: At the present time there is no shortage of two-dollar bills, although the Treasury Department has discontinued making them. Only the older series of these notes are worth anything. The single one dollar note series (1933 to 1963) can be bought in large quantities in crisp, uncirculated condition. Many of the later series have been saved and it will be a long time before they accumulate much value. The first of the small series two-dollar notes was printed in 1928 (A), (B), (C), (D), (E), (F), (G). Of these the 1928, 1928-A, and 1928-B all command a good deal over face value, with the 1928-B Federal Reserve note and selling from $30.00 in Very Fine to about $200.00 in crisp, uncirculated. The later 1928 notes are not too hard to obtain and bring lesser amounts, but are all worth while collector's items. The latest series (1963) are advertised at around $3.00 each, but this figure is very high, since they can be bought from dealers, in any quantity, at $2.25, or only twenty five cents over face value. Many of the later series are still obtainable at banks.

The column has had several questions on Federal Reserve Notes in the past two weeks. Most of the questions pertain to the wording of the obligation on these notes and it is interesting to note at Christmas time each year a great many of the older notes are spent from collector's savings. The first Federal Reserve Notes were issued in 1913. Since that time, the issue of these notes has increased until now Federal Reserve Notes comprise about 90 per cent of the total paper money in circulation.

The small sized notes were first issued in 1928, series dated 1928, from each of the Federal Reserve Districts (A through I), although earlier notes are numbered (1 through 12) according to the Federal Reserve District of issue. This first obligation on these notes read as follows: Redeemable in Gold on Demand at the United States Treasury or in Gold or Lawful Money at Any Federal Reserve Bank.

This is not a "gold note." The gold notes have either a yellow seal, or a yellow back, and the presence of this obligation on the note does not make it valuable since it appeared on all the Federal Reserve Notes and was voided by the 1934 Gold Reserve Act which barred the redemption in gold. The Series 1928 notes are no longer in present stocks list.

Twin Falls Boy, Girl Win Honors In Appaloosa Horse Competition

Two Twin Falls youngsters achieved noteworthy honors this summer, culminating several years of horse show competition with top awards from the Appaloosa Horse Club of America's regional club.

Fritz Wonderlich, son of Dr. and Mrs. Lyle Wonderlich, rode his Appaloosa mare, Chocolate Chip Bars, to the honor of high point performance horse in open competition in the Idaho-Oregon-Nevada Appaloosa club for 1969.

Pam Harney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harney, finished the season as the top senior youth exhibitor for the same region. She won most of the awards on her favorite Appaloosa mare, Princess Eagle Hank, but also exhibited on Billy Boone.

Both Fritz and Pam are junior class members at the Twin Falls High School and are close friends after having exhibited for several years in nearly all of the major shows. The two 16-year-olds this year competed in nearly all Appaloosa shows in Idaho, Utah, Washington and Oregon.

In the Golden Spike Show in Ogden, Miss Harney captured the top youth award and went on to repeat the honor in three other shows during the season.

In addition, she chalked up points in many other shows by winning in nearly every type of event open to youth exhibitors.

Her ION top youth exhibitor award was given on a basis of points in total season competition. On the same total point basis for the season, Pam earned an invitation to the "Appa-Jack" show of champions in Yakima where leading competitors from throughout the Northwest competed. Here she won a pair of silver spurs as reserve youth show champion.

Pam says she can count on her horse Princess Eagle Hank to finish among the top in anything from barrel racing and polo bending to English pleasure.

Miss Harney finished second in all around girls competition barrel racing at the Twin Falls County Fair this fall. During the past season alone, she won 60 ribbons, a good share of them big, and 30 large trophies plus a special certificate of excellence awarded for her horse by the ION Club for outstanding performance in a variety of events.

Young Fritz and his Appaloosa mare won high point performance horse honors in the association despite rulings in a number of Appaloosa shows which prohibit youths from competing in open classes when youth events are available. Because he had won top youth exhibitor awards two years in a row he decided to move into open competition for new challenges.

In his first year of jumping, he and Chocolate Chip Bars won top honors in that division on a point basis and also took the same honors in English pleasure. They were runners-up in Western pleasure and have won a number of events in halter, trail, barrel racing, polo bending and all other events.

While the Wonderlich family does not necessarily specialize in the production of Appaloosa horses as do the Harneys, Fritz in a confirmed Appaloosa man. The Wonderlich stables also include quarter horses, paints and Welsh ponies.

Last year in the International Appaloosa Championship events in Las Vegas, he and his mare placed third in English pleasure.

Pam's Princess Eagle Hank added another trophy to the shelf by placing as reserve champion gymkhana horse of 1969. Both youngsters say they are looking forward to another major show season next year.

The horse show season may seem like a summer event to many, but there are now many major shows held during winter months. In indoor arenas throughout the country and in outdoor arenas in such states as Arizona, California and New Mexico, although most junior exhibitors must skip these shows because of school duties.

Syria Urges Arabs Unite War Funds

DAMASCUS, Syria (UPI) — Syria has urged that the Arab world's oil resources and cash accounts in foreign banks be thrown into the battle against Israel, Interior Minister Mohammed Ravah Tawil said.

Damascus radio, reporting an interview with Tawil, who headed the Syrian delegation at the recent Arab summit conference, said this was one of several suggestions Syria made at Rabat.

Tawil told Arab leaders that Syria is ready to receive "any Arab forces for the western front that a mobilization plan demanded. He urged coordination between the Jordan-Syrian-Israeli eastern front and Egypt's western front and demanded a unified command.

Mary Martha Class President 18 Years, Member For 34 Years And Now Teacher

As for a dozen women meet each Sunday morning at the First Baptist Church in Twin Falls for their Sunday School class and they are somewhat of a unique group.

The Mary Martha class has been doing this since it was organized in 1933 and most of its members can tell a good deal of history of the church and the town as well. Youngest member of the women's class is 76 and the oldest active member is 92.

President of the class, and presently the teacher as well, says she will soon be 85 years of age. She is Mrs. Althea Tyler, 24 Taylor St.

Mrs. Tyler has been president of the Mary Martha Class the past 18 years and served several other terms before that. She has been assistant teacher for many years, working with other teachers, but for the past year or so she has been the only teacher.

Mrs. Tyler takes her Sunday School teaching seriously. She spends many hours each week sitting through books and clip-pings she has saved and when possible goes to the Twin Falls Public Library or asks a friend to look information up for her if she is unable to get to the library herself.

When Mrs. Tyler is teaching the class, the members learn a lot of history of the Bible and religion in general. Presently she is concentrating on the history between the New and Old Testaments.

Mrs. Tyler says she has been a member of the class since 1933, two years after the formation of seven women of the First Baptist Church had been asked to organize a class for women.

At that time many of the women of the class had young children but as the class continued it became a group for grandmothers.

At one time there were around 70 women in the Mary Martha Class but this number has dwindled to 12.

"Most of our members have either died or are in rest homes or otherwise unable to keep up regular attendance," Mrs. Tyler explains.

She said under the present church program there is very little new membership activity for the women's class but most of the present members say they will keep it going as long as possible.

When the class was first organized Mrs. Threlkeld was president. Others who have served as president have included Mrs. Edna Hoss.

Mrs. Tyler came to Twin Falls in 1922 and for two years prior to that she and her husband resided at Clear Lake near Bull.

Her husband, Leslie Tyler, worked there as a cook for orchard workers while his parents owned the large orchards. During busy seasons Mrs. Tyler recalls there would be as many as 150 workers at the orchards and because of lack of transportation facilities all remained there. Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Wing, members of the First Baptist Church, picked her up in their car and took her to the Twin Falls school and church.

When my son moved away about three years ago Mr. Wing asked me if I had a way to get to church and I told him no. The next Sunday morning he was here to pick me up and he has never missed since, Mrs. Tyler said.

One Sunday last summer Mrs. Tyler recalls she had an invitation to go to the mountains for a week end with some friends who invited her to their cabin, but she declined because she was needed to teach the Sunday school class.

"I wanted to go so badly," she said. "But I just didn't feel right about it when I couldn't find a substitute teacher."

Her friends this is indicative of her dedication and that of many other Mary Martha class members.

In past years the group has been one of the most active in the church. When the present church building was occupied and it was necessary to raise money for a new pipe organ, the Mary Martha Class provided for a week end with some friends who invited her to their cabin, but she declined because she was needed to teach the Sunday school class.

ONE OF LONG TIME ACTIVE members of the Mary Martha Class of the First Baptist Church Sunday School class, Mrs. Althea Tyler has served the past 18 years as class president and is currently president and teacher. The class was formed in 1933 and while there were 70 members at one time the group has dwindled to 12. Mrs. Tyler says her hobby is keeping scrap books and these provide much of the material for her teaching.

ZIP CODE AT WORK is shown here by Bob Hanson, Twin Falls post office employee as he checks the separate mail bags for each major city, designated by zip code number. Mail for San Francisco or Chicago now leaves Twin Falls in a separate bag and is not touched until it reaches the destination post office. About 100 sacks of mail per day leave Twin Falls for specific zip code destinations.

ly all first class mail by air and the accepted use of zip code numbers. There is also a continuous training program for postal workers.

Mr. Sanger said some 34 years ago when the first entered the post office the peak mail day was Dec. 22.

For the past fiscal year ending in June, 1969, the local post office handled 4,647,000 pieces of cancelled mail and 13,987 non-cancelled pieces outgoing from the local office. In addition there were 2,484,000 magazines, small parcels and papers; 1,111,500 parcels and 4,260,700 newspapers and other items.

The total outgoing items handled reached 25,437,200 while incoming included 10,224,000 letters, 3,200,000 flats, magazines and papers; 803,000 parcels for a total outgoing 14,317,000 and total incoming and outgoing combined of 39,775,000 letters, parcels and other items.

Another feature in the local post office office is the record set in the department of vehicle cost including the "mounted" delivery and pick up and attention to receiving areas and branches. Mr. Sanger said the local vehicle cost is only about one-fourth the average for the local five state areas thanks to careful drivers and an outstanding vehicle maintenance department.

Out of the 70 full time workers only two are women although the majority of mail carriers are women.

Mr. Sanger said the local office was designated a sectional center facility in 1959. This means in addition to transportation and delivery of mail for the city of Twin Falls, it is the terminal for mail to and from 42 associate post offices comprising the Twin Falls Center.

"So instead of working mail for some 25,000 persons a day, we are working for the whole Magic Valley area and some 100,000 people."

One of the major headaches in the local department comes from the person who addresses mail without the complete or proper address.

General Albers, superintendent of mails, says when sending a letter to someone who has lived in a community less than a year "and is known by everyone" it might be well to remain in the postal clerk who sees the letter may have lived in the community for a year and probably has never heard of the individual.

Another problem, he notes, comes from looking up addresses in the telephone directory. At least several hundred persons who have a Twin Falls telephone exchange and are listed in the Twin Falls directory as "east of the city," "northwest of the city" or "other part of the city" actually receive their mail from Filer, or Kimberly.

Mr. Sanger said the public is aware only of a small portion of the services it performs, while the bulk of it is under the surface.

Because it is the one federal contact, the residents of any community are assured of having the Post Office Department. It has inherited a number of activities and services from other governmental agencies. These include the sale of revenue and documentary stamps, duck stamps and savings stamps; matching fees for taxpayers and insuring them to the families of deceased veterans; providing mailing and residence addresses of patrons upon inquiry from other agencies and maintaining and distributing supplies of income tax forms for taxpayers.

In addition Post Office staff members are called on to conduct surveys of wildlife for the Fish and Wildlife Service and report vacant dwellings and make other building surveys for the Federal Housing Administration. All of these services are performed with no additional revenue provided to cover the cost of performing them by the Post Office. Mr. Sanger said there are some 200 items not related to actual Post Office services which the department must perform.

Most Postal officials feel there is a need for reform of the nation's postoffice program.

By executive order in April, 1967 a special commission was formed to study and make recommendations on revamping the Post Office facilities. Among items on the study agenda presented by then President Johnson, was the recommendation of Postmaster General Laurence H. O'Brien that the Post Office Department be removed from the Cabinet and redesignated as a government corporation.

Mr. Sanger said most postmasters feel since this is one of the biggest business operations in the nation, it should be run as a corporation rather than at the direction of political forces.

It may take time, but it is the hope of most in authority in postal centers that legislation will be forthcoming to revise the entire postal system. Cost accounting and other improvements in the past few decades have helped but most feel other stream-line measures should also be taken.

"Chalk Dust on My Shoulder" by Charles G. Rousculp, is the biography of a dedicated teacher, one who taught because he loved to teach. And he must be a good teacher since he was selected Ohio Teacher of the Year in 1968.

The author begins his book with a description of his last days as a Marine in the war with Japan and the horrors of war which he never overcame. He tells of his self-indulgence in immersing himself in pleasures to forget his experiences but how he soon came to realize the gift of survival had been bestowed upon him and he had no excuse for not accounting for using that gift to do something this overnight and it was a year before he decided to go back to school and complete his education.

In the meantime he met the woman he was to marry and she convinced him to work in her nursing profession for twenty more years to help him complete his education. He writes of his gratitude for the first-rate teachers — "no 'Publish or Perish' dictum had discouraged their practice — who came out of retirement to teach at OSU and influenced him to become a teacher."

He decided from the first he wanted to be a high school teacher and his experience with the many fine instructors at the University will bring like memories to those teachers who may

An Orchestra By Any Name May Sound As Sweet, But

What's in a name?

Considerable expectancy if the name is to be changed. Just ask Jean Sutcliff, business manager for the area Symphony orchestra. This group, now in its 11th year, decided last spring to change the name from Twin Falls Civic Symphony to Magic Valley Symphony.

This deceptively simple decision, made in recognition of the fact that the volunteer group has long drawn musicians from many other towns in the valley, proved to be anything but simple for the business manager.

Orchestra members decided upon the change at the annual meeting last April and it was then that Jean Sutcliff, business manager, who sometimes considers herself a glorified errand girl.

She needed the signatures of the officers of the orchestra and this meant several trips to their places of employment. When the papers finally were properly signed, Mrs. Sutcliff happily took them to the lawyer's office only to discover the office had moved to a different location some six weeks previous.

But all things come to him —

As anyone acquainted with legal procedure knows, such intent to change the name of a non-profit incorporated group must be published several times prior to final vote of the membership. A lawyer's service was obtained, and after delays, the proper notices were published and the membership legally approved the act in mid-September.

Then began more details for the business manager, who sometimes considers herself a glorified errand girl.

YOGA

... is becoming a popular exercise for Magic Valley women. These pictures show some of the basic steps taught local women by Mrs. Eva-D. MacBride, top right, during recent YWCA-sponsored Yoga classes. Yoga is said to be a relaxing method whereby through one's own efforts you feel relaxed and refreshed. It is not an ordinary type exercise where muscles become sore and aching. The exercise period leaves one very relaxed. Students start from inertia and gain rhythm coordinated with inhalation and exhalation of the breath. The body must be completely relaxed. The first series of the classes has been completed but another series will open Jan. 22, with afternoon and evening classes.

Women Contend Yoga Is Relaxing, Refreshing

Tension, anxiety, nervous problems, etc. seem to be words we hear more and more every day. Everyone has his own opinion as to why—and many have found ways to cope with them.

One way, according to many Magic Valley women, is Yoga. With the rising interest in this subject, the YWCA introduced classes recently, headed by Eva D. MacBride, Burley.

Yoga is said to be a relaxing method whereby through one's own efforts you feel relaxed and refreshed. "Your body will loose its tension spots, gain strength and a sense of comfort and well being will result, the instructor noted."

It is not an ordinary exercise. Instead of producing aching muscles, the exercise period will leave one relaxed and refreshed. The reason for this is that students start from inertia and gain rhythm coordinated with inhalation and exhalation of the breath. The acceleration of the blood stream carries toxic poison away and the deep rhythmic breathing refreshes the blood. Through the combination deep breathing, rhythmic flexibility and stretching, the body gains resiliency.

According to Mrs. MacBride, the spinal column was meant to be pliable. "After a student has practiced Yoga for a while, the spinal column will regain flexibility and comparing this flexibility with what it was before starting the Yoga exercise, you will be surprised at the extent of stiffening the body," she noted. Yoga stretches the spine with rhythm forward and backward, from side to side and in a twisting motion as demonstrated in the "twist." Through these postures, persistently practiced, back trouble is prevented and even eliminated," she stated.

Mrs. MacBride believes correct breathing is conducive to serenity and peace of mind. Deep breathing will aid in maintaining a calm disposition. Flitty shallow breathing animals, such as the rabbit, tend to have a short life span, where deep breathers, such as the turtle, enjoy a long calm life. Yoga students develop natural, deep rhythmic breathing — thus adding to calmness and serenity. "If your breathing is agitated, your emotions tend to become upset and unbalanced. A few slow deep breaths will lift one out of emotional turmoil into balance," the instructor stated.

As Mrs. MacBride speaks to her class she notes, "Relaxation of the body is of prime importance. Clear thinking is impossible so long as the body is rigid or reacting with tension. In order to relax, you have to make your body limber — this cannot be done without effort. It is a method of returning from an overactive state to one of balance. Tension spots will occur in the body. For instance, from sitting at a desk for a long period of time, or driving an automobile or standing in one position. These tension spots can be relieved by stretching and deep breathing. One should stretch occasionally during the day, and once each day at least some of the Yoga exercises should be practiced — and once each week it is interesting and beneficial to work with a group."

The first series of the YWCA-sponsored Yoga classes has been completed but another series will open Jan. 22, with afternoon and evening classes, according to Sally Molyneux, YWCA director.

Some of the students who have attended the classes will be back and others, having learned the fundamentals, will practice on their own. The group participation is stimulating and encouraging, Mrs. MacBride noted. "There is no generation gap in Yoga flexibility, pliability and serenity knows no age."

Pearl Ropes Highlight Jewelry Trend

By GAY PAULIFY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Give a girl enough rope. . .

The new spring and summer jewelry is so full of ropes, of pearls, chains and beads in a riot of colors that a woman can capture her man simply by looping him in.

The rope-trend comes from the "versatility for creating dramatic effects," says the Jewelry Industry Council, a trade organization.

Spoken-for by the Cultured Pearl Association, when a trade group said that modern themes have been a factor. They take their own ropes to wear doing a designer's fashion show, the designer likes the look, starts featuring it, and other designers climb on the bandwagon.

The ropes are versatile, that's for sure. Some of the models in New York's ready-to-wear market combine the long rope—60 inches—for 120 inches of pearl to wind around the throat and in graduated strands downward to the waist and below.

Also showing are eight, nine, or even 10 strands worn around the throat for that old-time choker or dog collar effect. Wear the ropes hanging down the back instead of the front. Use them as a belt. Or, fill in a low cut dress with a bib of jewelry.

At the pearl association's fashion show this week, the most casual of daytime dresses and trousers in the model formal evening wear.

The show was one in a series of some 50, sponsored by the American designers group, participating in a week-long presentation of the newest in ready-to-wear and accessories. The shows concluded Friday.

Best Losers Are Announced

Helen Lapray and Isabelle Holmes tied for best loser of the week when members of the Nix on Pix TOPS Club met recently at the Twin Falls City Hall.

Biggest winner of the week was Olling Armstrong. Sixteen members weighed in. Pat Stagers gave a report on the article, "What Women Don't Know About Dieting."

All members were reminded of the new national weight-in rules. It was announced the club's yearly "queen crowning" is set for Jan. 20.

Teen-Agers and Adults Participate In "Happening"

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — In this corner, teen-agers. In that corner, adults including some parents and teachers.

And to each corner goes this question: "What do you hold near and dear?"

The exercise between the generations occurred during a one-week "happening" at the University of California at Irvine. It produced clues to the differences between the two.

Dr. Eva Schindler-Rainman, consultant in the behavioral sciences, conducted the happening. Reporting in "Children," Journal of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, she said:

"Among things held near and dear, the adults mentioned the following: family; formal institutional religion; personal and material security; success in a chosen profession; ability to communicate; goals; making things for a reason; and physical health."

But teen-agers mentioned self-love—which they described as "oneself and his own interests always coming first. They also considered near and dear—"time," the essence of life. "Every moment," said one girl, "is important and you should utilize it to the hilt."

The teen-agers also listed freedom—to be oneself—and to express oneself. Dr. Schindler-Rainman reported:

"Physical health, because 'all I have is yourself and you'd better take good care of yourself.' Faith in something bigger than oneself, but not an institutionalized God. . . . Under things that they were not sure about, adults listed religion, honesty and openness, the draft and sex.

Among things teen-agers were not sure about, the value of formal education, sexual taboos, the draft and formal religion. "Formal religion," said one, "is just too commercialized."

The adults and teen-agers also were asked to identify the things they would never change their minds about.

Skiers Tote Raisin Mini Loaves

California raisins make their way to the slopes this season and ski fans will love how! Mini loaves sparked with the maxi flavor and energizing nutrition of raisins are made for a skier's knapsack to snack on during the day.

They are also ideal to serve in the morning before taking off to the slopes or for evening snacking in front of a roaring fire with hot apple cider. Keep them on hand for other winter activities too.

The trio of small loaves are flavorfully accented with lemon juice, mashed banana and chopped raisins. A cup of shredded apple can easily be substituted for the banana if you prefer. Whipped butter or cream cheese make an ideal spread for the breads-if snacking indoors. For the slopes, carry along an apple to round out the snack.

Taste surprises plus lots of energy is provided in California seedless raisins. For mid-morning or mid-afternoon snacks, on the slopes or in the office, California seedless raisins will spark needed energy. Sun-concentrated raisins contain 70 per cent natural fruit sugar, nature's way of providing energy quickly. Keep a supply of 1 1/2-ounce snack packs or 1/2-ounce nibble packs in easy reach for energy pickup the year 'round.

Clean Hands Are Great

Status Symbol

Clean hands in the Middle Ages were considered a status symbol. Only nobles and the middle classes who were the social climbers of those days and wanted to be like them, practiced handwashing. The peasant group had no servants or facilities for washing their hands, and often ridiculed those who did.

The nobility also washed hands openly at mealtimes. Thus, family and friends were able to assure each other of their cleanliness.

Everyone helped himself from a common bowl in the center of the table. It was considered good taste to use the fingers of the right hand to reach for food. The left hand was reserved for nose-wiping. Neither forks nor handkerchiefs were yet in use. Today, handwashing is not only available to everyone, but has reached a high degree of sophistication. Everyone can have "hospital clean" hands by using a gentle antibacterial skin cleanser such as pillbox for routine handwashing, to keep hands as germ-free as possible.

According to the National Sanitation Foundation, whose headquarters are at the University of Michigan's School of Public Health, "the hands remain the most dangerous detriment to the prevention of disease and the promotion of sanitation."

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BURDEN

DEAR ABBY: When are the clothing manufacturers going to realize that not ALL women are size 10, and 16 years old?

I am nearly 60 and wear a size 12 to 14. I have good legs, but I don't care to show them above the knee. I am not trying to find dresses that are appropriate for a woman my age.

I have neither the time nor the ability to sew, and the last time I tried a dressmaker I waited three months for a simple skirt. Can't something be done for the forgotten woman?

HOPEFUL IN LAWNDALE, CAL.

DEAR HOPEFUL: Before you give up, shop in some of the more conservative shops. If you still can't find what you want, wear your old clothes, and when they fall apart, try another dressmaker, and breathe down her neck until she delivers.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "HAD AT ME IN ALBUQUERQUE." A rude woman knowingly pushed ahead of me at a checkout counter. As she did so, she said, "Since I have more groceries than you, I will go ahead of you."

My answer to her was, "And since I have more manners than you, I shall let you go."

J. C. R., GAFFNEY, S.C.

DEAR MR. R.: The rude woman was also short on logic. How did she figure that since she had more groceries than you, you wouldn't object to her going ahead of you? Had she been a teacher, she might have made more sense.

DEAR ABBY: My elderly mother recently passed away. When I went to the small town in which she lived to move her things, I found her beautiful Limoges china, a cranberry fruit bowl, and several pieces of Bavarian china.

After finishing my task, I bought a little gift and went to call on a woman mother said had been kind to her in her later months.

The woman had a very unpretentious home, so I was not prepared for what I saw! I am sure she had thousands of dollars worth of antiques in her living room. In a china closet was my mother's cranberry fruit bowl. A shelf on the wall featured mother's Limoges plates (eight of them) and the Bavarian candy dishes were also on display.

The woman seemed flustered by my unexpected visit, and she told my mother had insisted she take these things.

In visiting with a neighbor of my mother's, I learned that my mother was on this woman's routine list. Her weekends were spent visiting elderly women for an hour or so. She brought a Bible in one hand and a piece of cake in the other. She'd read the Bible and feed these ailing shut-ins goodies, while all the time she had her eye on a few treasures she subtly managed to acquire.

I've told this story to many of my friends, and they all seem to know many of these vultures. I didn't see me.

Cooking Contest Entries Open

With chicken at the top of everyone's shopping list and everyone on the lookout for new ways to serve this versatile food — you can make your own special recipes pay off by entering the 1970 National Chicken Cooking Contest!

Sponsored by the Delmarva Poultry Industry in conjunction with the National Broiler Council, this famous event is offering $30,000 in duplicate cash awards to winners in the two basic divisions: the adult division, which includes those over 15 years of age; and the junior division, which includes those from 8 to 16 years of age.

The first prize in each category is $5,000; the second prize is $2,500; third prize is $1,500; and the fourth prize is $1,000.

Recipe judges will select 302 finalists — one for each division, from each state of the union and the District of Columbia — to participate in the national cook-off, held this year on June 12 and 13, in Princess Anne, Md., an historic town located on the Delmarva Peninsula, between Chesapeake Bay and the Atlantic Ocean. And each of the finalists will win a round-trip to the East Coast plus $100 cash and a trophy.

If you submit a recipe, it must feature broiler-fryer chicken (2 to 3 1/2 pounds, whole, cut-up or parts).

This year, in addition to the chicken, your recipe must use Mazola corn oil or corn oil margarine. The recipes should not exceed two hours preparation time — and each is to be prepared at the national cook-off exactly as originally submitted — and by the person submitting it.

Contestants must attach each recipe to an entry form and mail it to the National Chicken Cooking Contest before February 14, 1970. Entry forms may be found in supermarkets and grocery stores.

Miss Schutte, Claiborn Wed

TWIN FALLS — Beverly Ann Schutte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Schutte, became the bride of Kirk Lawrence Claiborn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Claiborn, Kimberly, in rites Nov. 19 at the First United Methodist Church in Twin Falls.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Pastor Eugene Clarke of Our Savior Lutheran Church before a background setting of baskets of bronze-colored chrysanthemums and yellow pompons and held yellow tapers. Pewes were marked with bows of satin.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown designed and created by Mrs. Bernice Schutte. Fashioned from Chantilly lace over satin, it featured a high neckline, a full skirt and a waistline enhanced with a band of satin. The Victorian puffed sleeves and the long sweeping train falling free from the waistline were of identical Chantilly lace. The shoulder-length veil of silk bobbin was held by a tangle of roses.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of Tulliaman roses.

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. Tony Burgetmeister, American Falls. Bridesmaids were Kristi Nelson, Fresno, Calif., sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Bernice Schutte, Twin Falls, sister-in-law of the bride; Pam Perry, Nampa, and Nancy Nelson, Twin Falls.

Randy Claiborn, Kimberly, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Terry Morrill, Kimberly; Bernice Schutte, Twin Falls, brother of the bride; Scott B. Nelson, brother of the bridegroom, and Mark Crowley, fraternal brother of the bridegroom.

Witnesses were Kristi Nelson, Fresno, Calif., sister of the bride; Burgetmeister, nephew of the bride, carried the rings on heart-shaped satin pillows edged in lace. Flower girl was Melonie Schutte, niece of the bride, who carried a white basket with green satin streamers filled with Tulliaman-rose petals.

Tapers were lighted by Scott Claiborn, Kimberly, brother of the bridegroom and Zoe Ann Schutte, Nampa, niece of the bride.

Traditional wedding music was provided by Mrs. Harold Nye, Jim Schutte, brother of the bride, was soloist.

Guests were registered by Kim Nelson, sister of the bridegroom.

A reception for the newlyweds was held after the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over nylon tulle and skirted to the floor. It featured a four-tiered cake decorated with orange chrysanthemums and yellow roses, white sugar bells and green and white satin leaves and topped with white satin bells.

Heart-shaped cakes stood on either side of the wedding cake flanked by silver candelabras containing orange tapers. Small bouquets of bronze-colored chrysanthemums and yellow pompons completed the table decor. The cake was baked and decorated by the bride's mother.

Serving were Mrs. Elmer Hansen, Mrs. Bernard Schwarz, Mrs. Larry Schwarz, Mrs. Paul Schwarz and Mrs. Ed Lutz, all aunts of the bride.

Guests were seated at long tables covered with white cloths and decorated with avocado candles in small lanterns surrounded with avocado and ribbon streamers and centered with a large snifter with an orange rose inside encircled with net and streamers.

Gift carriers were Carrie Nelson and Lori Claiborn, sister of the bridegroom. Gifts were opened by the newlyweds.

The bridegroom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Holiday Inn. Pre-nuptial showers were given for the bride by Mrs. John Wolf, Hazelton, and Mrs. Bernice Schutte.

Special guests included Mr. and Mrs. Leolah Cull, Fresno, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Claiborn, all grandparents of the bridegroom; and Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Schwarz, grandparents of the bride.

Out-of-town guests were from California, Hawaii, Rhode Island, Arizona, Canada, Washington, Boise, Nampa, Burley, American Falls, Gooding and Declo.

After a honeymoon trip to Carmel, Calif., and Lake Tahoe, the newlyweds will reside near Kimberly.

Parents Resolutions Could Widen Communication Gap

NEW YORK (UPI) — New Year's resolutions for parents determined to widen the communications gap between themselves and teenagers during 1970:

— I will tell child his rock records are his business, that I have endured enough punishment to raise him this far, and will please not hurt my ears by playing the things when I am home.

— I will tell him to stop butting in when he asks a question while his father and I are discussing adult matters, such as family finances or my tired blood.

— I will remind him at every opportunity that his problems are of his making and will please stop harping about them in my presence.

— I will never ask him about schoolwork — that is strictly between him and his teacher. After all, I served my time in the schoolwork arena when I was a student.

— To cure his disgusting habit of hanging on the phone, I will limit his telephone time to five minutes. If he wants to discuss adolescent problems over the phone, let him do it at a friend's house.

— I will be curt, simply giving him a firm "no" without explanation, when he asks for money to buy something the family can't afford.

— I will not respect his privacy. When he's out of the house I'll go over his room like an inchworm, looking for evidence of anything he's trying to get away with or keep from me. "Be suspicious" will be my rule.

— When his friends drop by, I'll barge into their conversations anytime I feel I have something to add — or to straighten out my crooked points of view, those that don't line up exactly with mine.

— I will correct or criticize him in front of his friends. The arena to be covered includes table manners, posture, dress, hairstyle, speech habits, topics of conversation. And his viewpoints.

Soviet Union, China Prepare For War Despite Peace Talks

Foreign News Commentary
By PHIL NEWSON
UPI Foreign News Analyst

As the Soviet Union and Red China prepare to resume their Peking talks, both continue to prepare for war.

Whether these preparations are to establish bargaining positions, are part of a continuing propaganda war or reflect an actual fear of an outbreak of large-scale armed conflict can only be a matter of speculation.

But as the verbal war between the two has heated up in recent weeks there also have been these accompanying reports of a more violent nature.

From inside Red China have come stories of a feverish construction of air raid shelters in China's major cities.

An official Indian report said the Chinese were moving at least some of their nuclear installations into Tibet—from exposed positions in Sinkiang province adjoining Soviet Asia.

On the Russian side, a continuing buildup of Russian forces since last summer now is said to total around 30 divisions, or some 300,000 men, in a jump-off position against China.

A rocket expert, Col. Gen. Vladimir F. Tolubko, has been placed in charge of the Far Eastern military district on China's Manchurian border.

A new Asian military command has been set up in Soviet Kazakhstan, with headquarters at Alma Ata, the scene of recent border clashes in central Asia.

Chinese sources have reported recent new clashes along the Ussuri River between China and Soviet Siberia where this year's fighting started. Long on manpower but with inferior weapons, the Chinese are said to have some 600,000 regular troops lined up along the border. Because of the secretive nature of both sides, few of these reports are of an eyewitness nature but are gleaned from various Communist journals and what may be called "sources."

Lending them credence, however, have been other reports.

From both Moscow and Peking it has become known that the talks which began in Peking last Oct. 20, have gotten nowhere, although Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov is on the verge of a return to Peking for their resumption.

HONG KONG

The name Hong Kong is derived from two Chinese characters, variously interpreted as meaning "sweet stream" and "fragrant port." It is one of the world's largest duty-free ports.

DEAR POLLY—To stop a leak in a garden hose we cut a piece bigger than the leak off an old hose. Split the old piece on one side and slip it over the hose so the hole is tightly covered.—ANNA

DEAR POLLY—A well-placed full-length mirror can be of more help to a weight-watcher than a scale kept in front of the refrigerator.—MISS M. C. E.

DEAR POLLY—I use my melon spoon when scooping out the pulp of tomatoes that I am going to stuff. I get a much better job and it's easier to swirl around than an ordinary soup spoon.—TRUDI

DEAR POLLY—I use my melon spoon when scooping out the pulp of tomatoes that I am going to stuff. I get a much better job and it's easier to swirl around than an ordinary soup spoon.—TRUDI

DEAR POLLY—I use my melon spoon when scooping out the pulp of tomatoes that I am going to stuff. I get a much better job and it's easier to swirl around than an ordinary soup spoon.—TRUDI

DEAR POLLY—Stand the legs of your wooden picnic table in the plastic lids of coffee cans so that legs will not sink into the ground and cause the wood to rot.—LILLIAN

DEAR POLLY—To keep a ball of yarn or crochet thread from rolling all around as you work, punch a hole in an empty box and put your yarn in the box. Stick one end through the hole and as you work the yarn keeps coming through the hole but stays clean.—SANDY

DEAR POLLY—I buy bracelets in various colors at the dime store and use them to hold swag valances over the tops of my curtains. I use screw hooks to hold them up in place, at the top and the side. For the valance I use a long straight piece of fabric which is pulled through the bracelets and then pulled down in the center to make the desired swag.—MRS. V. W.

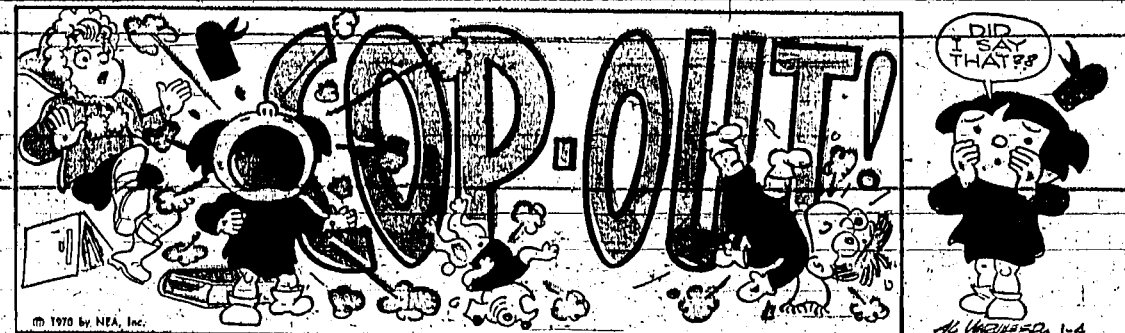

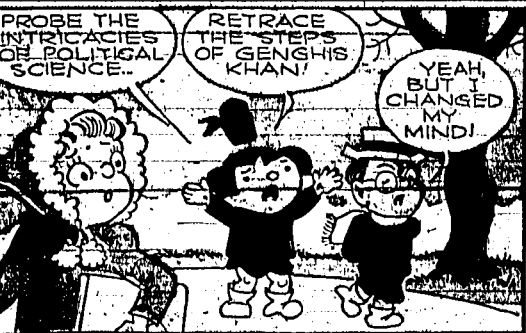

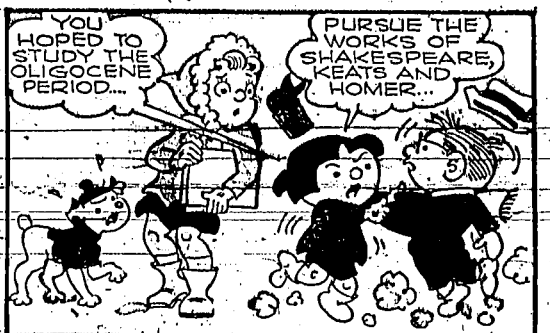

DEAR POLLY—When faced with emergency overnight guests I did not have enough bed pillows for all my guests. I took a regular pillowcase and put in it two or three of my square and oblong couch pillows and they made fine substitutes.—MRS. G. D. B.

DEAR POLLY—My son-in-law is a professional bowler and through the years he has acquired many nice shirts with insignias on them. He treasures these shirts so I made a quilt top with them. I squared the backs even, cut and sewed the pieces together and then added 9-inch black cut from the sides or sleeves to finish out the top to the desired size. I left pockets that have names or initials on them and after quilting added appliqued bowling ball and pins. Use care in selecting and arranging colors so they blend. Make such a quilt to treasure as a reminder of your son's various baseball and football teams as he progresses through school or for any sport that is pursued over a period of years.—MRS. HENRY W.

by Leslie Turner

Easy started out to research a "haunted" house for McKee... Now, hidden treasure reveals its intriguing head...

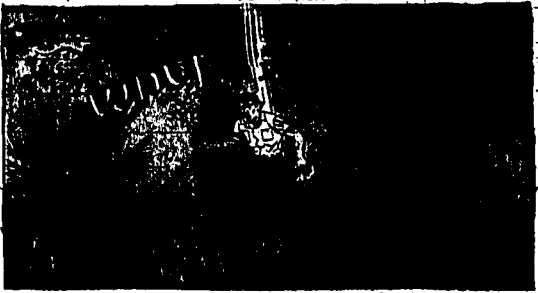

"MATHEMATICALLY, THE CIVIL WAR LOOT IS DIRECTLY UNDER MY FEET, BUT... THE CHART SAYS 'UPSWARD' WILL REWARD."

"AND THERE'S A RUSTY SWORD HANGING UP THERE!"

"BLAZES! IT MUST BE POINTING TO THE TREASURE!"

A supporting wire has been rusting away... now, after 107 years, as Easy moves around for a better view of the weapon...

"LUCKY THIS SIDE WEAPON WAS CRUMBLING WITH RUST... EVEN SO, I FEEL A BLOODY SLASH ON MY BACK!"

"I'LL DRESS THE WOUND LATER!"

"NOW, I AM CONVINCED SOMETHING IS BURIED HERE!"

"THAT GIVES ME AN IDEA—HAVE YOU GOT A BLANKET IN THE CAR?"

"THERE'S A CAR ROBE IN THE TRUNK."

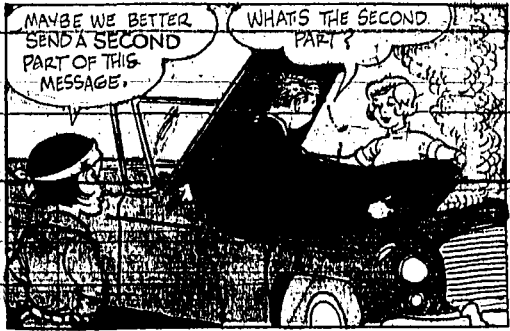

"MOVE THE ROBE WHEN I TELL YOU TO, AND WE'LL SEND UP A SMOKE SIGNAL!"

"WHAT ARE WE SAYING?"

Ask Them Yourself

FOR FATHER DANIEL EGAN, the "junkie priest"

Margaret Mead, the anthropologist, has urged a Senate subcommittee to legalize marijuana. What is your opinion on this?—Leo Smith, Chicago, Ill.

● It was an exception rather than the rule when I met a heroin addict who hadn't got started on marijuana. Enough said, don't you think?

FOR JOHN VOLPE,

Secretary of Transportation

The right lane on most interstate highways must deteriorate more rapidly than the left lane since the inside lane is used primarily for passing only. Has this situation been taken into consideration in present highway building?—Charles A. Lindly, Rapid City, S.D.

● It is true that the right lane usually carries the majority of the heavy loads, and desirably should have a stronger pavement than the inside lane. However, the heavy axle trucks use all lanes, so those on the left cannot be structurally designed for passenger cars only. A few states have built the outside lane heavier, but most highway departments argue that the additional cost offsets the advantages.

FOR ELIZABETH POST,
etiquette expert

Is it proper to give an old piece of sterling silver as a wedding gift? If so, should one explain that it is not new?—Mrs. R. Gordon, Ventura, Calif.

● Yes, it is. If it is simply bought as an impersonal antique piece, you need say nothing special about it. If it is a family heirloom or a piece about which you know some particular history, include that information with your card.

FOR BILL VEECK,

Are you connected with baseball at the present time? If not, what are you doing?—M. L. Helm, Canton, Ohio

● I have no connection with baseball, except as an occasional fan, having taken the diamond for the sport of kings. At present I am getting "on-the-job training," operating Suffolk Downs Race Track in Boston.

FOR JOHNNY CARSON

Is the script for the "Tonight Show" written out in detail or is it mostly ad lib? How many writers are on your staff?—Carol Nichols, Austin, Texas

● It is ad lib except for the opening monologue. There presently are five writers on my staff.

FOR REP. ARNOLD OLSEN of Montana

What major benefits would result from the paving of the Alaska Highway?—Mrs. Steve Moyer, Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada

● Alaska, Western Canada, and the Northwestern United States are linked economically, socially, and geographically. But our commerce ties are very poor. Certainly the railroads have opened up our vast expanses, but only for east-west traffic. What we need now is a north-south route. Such a route would do a great deal to alleviate the present trade imbalance between Canada and the United States.

FOR MRS. RICHARD M. NIXON

As a high school teacher, what subjects did you teach?—Mrs. Minnie Stevens, China Lake, Calif.

● I taught typing and shorthand at Whittier (Calif.) High School.

FOR SAM LEVENSON, comedian

As a former teacher, which subject do you consider most important for an adult American?—T. M. Waco, Texas

● English is the most important subject for any American on any level of education. The manner in which you express yourself orally or in writing is the surest index of the extent of your education.

What in the World!

Anti-Smoking Aide Smokey Sam is probably the most gruesome mannequin in history—and the most effective. A "member" of a new anti-cigarette club,

Smokey Sam

Sam chain smokes as a visual aid to show what happens to one's lungs after just two packs of cigarettes. The simulated lungs turn black! White spun-glass in two clear glass jars and protrude out of Sam's chest. The real-life members of the group meet for mutual aid and comfort, plus lectures on how to stop smoking, how to prevent weight gain, and what to do for withdrawal symptoms. If you're interested in joining or starting such a franchised business, contact: Smoke Quitters International, 116 S. 7th St., Philadelphia, Pa. 19106.

Borrowed Sleep If you sleep on borrowed time provided by sleeping pills, you must repay it, according to The Journal of the American Medical Association. A recent experiment showed pills effective for only 12 to 14 days, then tolerance sets in. Sleeping became short and restless. When pills were withdrawn after 26 days, it took 14 days to restore a normal sleep pattern.

List of Lousy Lookers Fashion designer Mr. Blackwell sees so many badly dressed women that a few years ago he inaugurated a list of the "World's 10 Worst Dressed Women." The names of this year's worst dressers are about to be announced, but Blackwell told Family Weekly that he has yet another list. "There are so many candidates that I retire any woman if she appears more than three times in a period of five years." Like who? "Zsa Zsa Gabor, naturally. And Streisand almost got on when she attended the Oscar awards in that see-through. Liz Taylor is on the list, too." In his case, people aren't looking for jewelry, not her costumes.

Blackwell of the black list

Literary Dropouts Seems that certain fading classics are enduring but not necessarily enjoyable. That's the opinion of faculty members of the Famous Writers School, who proffered their candidates for "the most unreadable classic." According to "Today's Education," among those unreadables and the voters were Dante's "Inferno" (Bergen Evans' choice), "Pilgrims' Progress" (Bennett Cerf), "The Decalayer" (Max Brulman), and "Canterbury Tales" (Bruce Catton). Read any bad books lately?

William Windom and tv-cohort

Wedding Fob Actor William Windom (star of NBC-TV's "My World and Welcome to It") doesn't like to wear jewelry but didn't exactly want a single-ring ceremony when he got married recently. So Bill designed a wedding ring for his bride, Jacqueline (her own spelling), and cut a part of it off for himself. It's a gold chain with the center smoothed and the center removed; it serves as a watch fob for Bill. Sort of a golden switch on the Adam and Eve rib story.

Women Will Challenge Men

By BETTY A. THEOBALT

SIXTY YEARS ago Alice Ramsey chugged her way cross-country in a 1909 Maxwell to become the first woman to drive from New York to California—3,800 miles in 41 days.

Today there is studied speculation that another American woman, as yet unknown, will make the cross-space trip and become the first woman to travel from earth to the moon—250,000 miles in three days.

How close is the American woman's entry as an astronaut into the U.S. space program? Judging by her entry last year into traditionally male professions, not too far away.

In 1969 the American woman made her greatest peacetime surge into heretofore unattainable segments of American professions. Business, sports, education, labor unions, transportation, and government experienced the entrance of women into conventionally male strongholds once thought as inaccessible as landing on the moon used to be.

Breaking a 212-year, all-male tradition, attractive and business-oriented Carol Jan Dvitz became the first woman trader on the floor of the Chicago Board of Trade, the world's largest commodity exchange.

The largest union local in the Upper Midwest (over 13,000 members) selected Mrs. Peg Mitzwa as their business agent.

Mrs. Helen D. Bentley, who was a knowledgeable Baltimore maritime reporter, was named the first female Federal Maritime Commissioner and thus the first woman ever appointed chairman of a Federal regulatory commission.

A Texas airline, Air East, has opened the nation's first female-commercial cockpit, pretty Jo Chaire Welch. A former flight instructor (and elementary-school teacher), Miss Welch has only one more rating to gain before qualifying as a commercial captain. (A major airline is now involved in litigation, charged with discrimination by a female pilot who was refused a job.)

Early this year the sports world was visibly shaken by the possibility of a professional female jockey. Big-time racing had always been strictly a man's preserve. The possibility became a reality when Delaware's new Dover Downs scheduled the world's first fully mixed professional race. Now half-a-dozen female jockeys are grabbing for rail positions against their male counterparts.

Diane Crump, 20, the first woman jockey to race in Hialeah, whipped home a winner her sixth time. Tues-

Elizabeth Hoisington, future general?

Shirley Engelhorn, pro golfer day won at Santa Anita in her second race. And Barbara Jo Rubin, 19, rode two winners on the same day and won at Aqueduct on an untried 13-1 shot.

Hardly had the ladies risen above the jockeys' "boycott of the broads" movement when virile sportswomen received the news that Mrs. Bernie Gera had entered baseball's all-male world as a professional umpire.

Syndicated sports columnist Elinor Kline showed up in the YAC press box—along with 305 male writers and sportscasters—to view the New York Jets and the New York Giants, and thereby opened the professional press box to women.

And the football field itself was secretly, if unofficially, sexually integrated this fall during the first intercollegiate football game ever played between the boys at newly coeducational Vassar and Sarah Lawrence schools. Diminutive Debbie Dey of Sarah Lawrence, with carefully padded jersey and hidden tresses got through the pregame meeting with the referees, waited on the bench, and substituted as a flanker, thereby integrating the all-boy team and the he-man sport.

The echo of falling tradition carried into the hallowed halls of the University of Pennsylvania as the 84-year-old male monopoly of the journalism field fell to Judith Teller, 20, the first coed editor-in-chief of the university's Daily Pennsylvanian.

Traditionally all-male California Institute of Technology easily succumbed to the charm and academic prowess of Dr. Jenijoy La Belle, who, as the first female professor at Caltech, considers herself "primarily a professor and only coincidentally a novelty."

What's ahead for women? A female Army general, for one thing. For the first time since Congress opened that rank to women, a review of candidates for brigadier general is under way. Among the 10 WAC colo-

1969 saw American women invade strongholds long sacred to men—but that's only the beginning of what they are expected to accomplish in the coming decade nels being considered, along with the men, for one-star rank is WAC Director Col. Elizabeth P. Holington. With 26 years of excellent work in the service, she is the best bet for First Lady General.

Women have applied for positions as astronauts in our American space program, but so far none has been accepted. NASA consultant and veteran pilot Jacqueline Cochran sees piloting a spaceship as no enormous barrier to experienced American women pilots.

The world's only female space traveler, Soviet cosmonaut Valentina Tereshkova, predicted in a recent interview that there will be many more women in future space-research programs.

1970 just may see Jack Nicklaus and Kathy Mann teeing-off in a mixed professional golf tournament. While not making par with PGA's czar, Joe Dey, 29-year-old Shirley Engelhorn's current drive for mixed golf may open the door for others. Miss Engelhorn, with an impressive $115,000 in winnings on the ladies PGA tour, responded to Dey's "males only" decree with, "Golf is golf. If I could qualify, why not?"

Mrs. Elizabeth D. Koontz, director of the Department of Labor's Women's Bureau, sees "a use of people talent" rather than specifically male or female talent in America's future labor force, adding that "we have not begun to tap the female sex as a resource."

She believes that we will look at the conditions that prevent women from accepting jobs and professions other than those traditionally opened to women and will work toward alternatives, such as child-education centers and trained household managers and technicians.

Mrs. Koontz says that our computerized space age has made changes in our living processes which we have accepted as a matter of course. Many of those changes, such as the advances in packaged foods derived from the Apollo space program, are already working for the woman combining homemaking, motherhood, and employment.

Dr. Jennifer La Belle, professor

Penny Kamenides, who believes she is the first woman president of a computer company, says that women will particularly appreciate the many uses envisioned for the computer. "It may be 1984ish, but I see the housewife of the future with a computer terminal in her home, connected to a central terminal. This would enable the housewife to order groceries, vote, and carry on many other tasks by merely pushing a button." Penny admits that there are many problems to be considered in home computerization, but "that's the challenge of the future."

Carol Jan Ovitz, trader

Miss Elizabeth Kuck, a Commissioner of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, who feels that a "woman should be considered on her abilities as an individual rather than as a class," sees more opportunities opening for women.

While concerned with some areas, such as the need for apprentice training, upgrading of employees within a business, and better implementation of equal pay for equal work, she feels that the Commission, along with other groups and individuals, is making headway with the problem of discrimination.

Legally there can be no discrimination on the basis of sex in employment or in pay. The Fair Employment Act, Civil Service rulings, and ongoing legislation relating to the status of women opened the legal door to many closed professions. Miss Kuck stated that decisions of certain court cases have had tremendous influence in this area, while Mrs. Koontz sees the whole matter of legality in this area undergoing perhaps one of the most dramatic changes in our history.

Early in 1970 the Labor Department's Office of Federal Contract Compliance will issue the discrimination guidelines to insure against sex discrimination in jobs covered by Federal contracts. (The OFCC has the power to revoke Federal contracts from firms that discriminate but never has done so.) In addition, the new 20-member panel for the Citizens Advisory Council on the Status of Women will advise the Government on efforts to improve the participation of women in American life.

If 1969 shook up the jockeys' locker rooms and the floor of a commodity exchange, it's only the beginning. Next come a space-vehicle compartment, the War Room—but who knows what else? *

Furniture 1970— Action Design, Modern Look!

By ROSALYN ABREVAÑA

MODERN is making it! That was the clear edict at the recent furniture market in High Point, N.C., where almost every major company showed its version of it from '80s "modern" to up-to-the-minute combinations of chrome, lucite, and glass.

But traditional furniture is hardly biting the dust. English, particularly 18th-century Chippendale and Hepplewhite, was revived, and French assumed new importance in case pieces and upholstery. Mediterranean and Spanish, looking less massive and more refined, continued strong. Oriental motifs and silhouettes, often in recent pieces, were popular, used to enhance and mix with modern.

Upholstery fabrics emerged in strong greens, bright yellows, reds, oranges, and some pinks. Leather and suede (or their man-made look-alikes) piled up honors in elegant sofas and armchairs, often tufted. Chenille, in cotton or rayon, was a star revival, usually in soft shaded stripes or solids.

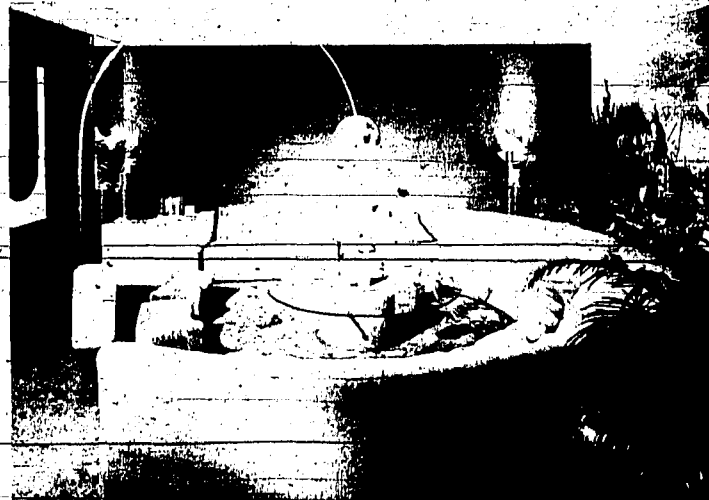

Woods range from the very light in olive-ash burl and bleached pecan to rich deep-colored African rosewood or dark walnut.

If there is one keynote word for 1970 furniture design, it would be "action"—in a double sense. First because of increasing technology, more and more furniture, especially contemporary and modern, is being turned out gracefully curved. You see this in a rounded sectional sofa, polyurethane-molded chairs, or stainless steel crafted into gentle ovals or circles to frame a rocker. Second, many of today's furniture pieces are dual-purpose, featuring handy pull-out, fold-over surfaces, or snap-open storage compartments.

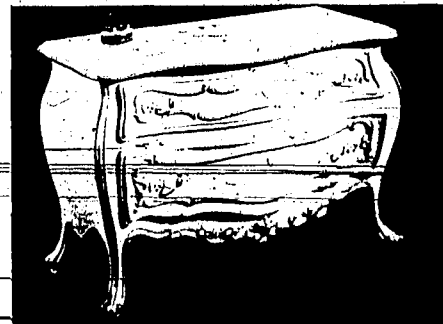

So the 1970 highlights in furniture stress modern design and action—a reflection of our times! ♣

How to achieve continuous seating in the round? Combine one sofa, a pair of curved loveseats, and a straight loveseat. From Thayer Coggin.

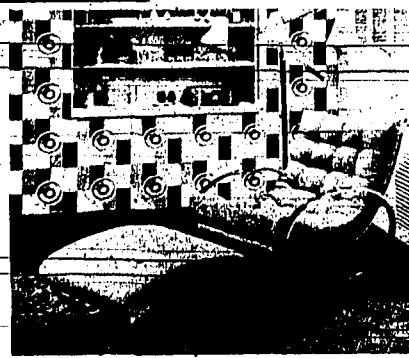

In the French manner is Broyhill's charming Bombe lowboy, from a group of imported accent pieces. It's made of native Spanish cabinet woods.

Rock the modern way in Selig's oval-frame rocker of bright green button-tufted upholstery and chrome-finished steel.

Two identical pieces form this exquisite buffet of olive-ash burl and persimmon, designed by Roland Carter for Lane. Has laminated pull-out shelf, storage space.

The director of the charity was ecstatic when he heard the news. He called all his helpers to announce the contribution, but as he looked at the check he was aghast. "Where's the signature!" he exclaimed excitedly.

"Oh, that," the teen-age heroine sighed. "I cut that off for my autograph book."

A FAMILY AFFAIR

Pilgrimage, loss of sleep and a tormenting itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms... usually parasites that medical experts say infect a mix of both persons and animals. Their families may be victims and not know it. To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestines where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W Tablets do... and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's medicinal approval ingredients grow right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist. Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious parasites which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W, Vermifuge, with built-in laxative. FAMILY WEEKLY COOKBOOK

A Trio of Supper Entrees

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

Curried shrimp served over toasted raisin bread is delicious with Quick Raisin Relish, shredded coconut, and toasted silvered almonds.

■ Three savory dishes... all worthy of top billing... Shrimp Curry and Spinach Gnocchi rating high for their ease of preparation (new brides take note!) and Deviled Ham Soufflé roll receiving top honors for epicurean company fare (but with more involvement of preparation).

Shrimp Curry on Raisin Toast

- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped green onion with tops
- 1 cup finely chopped celery
- 2 cups deviled cooked shrimp
- 2 to 3 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 12 slices raisin bread, toasted

1. Melt butter or margarine with curry powder in a saucepan. Mix in onion, celery, and shrimp. Cook, stirring occasionally, 2 to 3 min., or until vegetables are soft. Blend in flour and heat until bubbly. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly. Bring to boiling, stir and cook 1 to 2 min. Remove from heat; mix in lemon juice and a blend of dry seasonings. Keep the shrimp Curry hot until ready to serve.

2. Put 1 slice of toast in each of 6 individual serving dishes. Cover with hot shrimp Curry. Cut remaining toast into triangles and place around edge of Curry. Top each with a spoonful of raisin relish.

6 servings

Quick Raisin Relish

- 1 1/2 cups dark or golden seedless raisins
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 1/2 cup packed brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
- 1 can (8 1/2 oz.) crushed pineapple (undrained)

1. Combine all ingredients in a saucepan. Cook over low heat 10 min., stirring occasionally.

2. Cool and store in covered jar in refrigerator. About 2 cups

Spinach Gnocchi

- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Few grains ground nutmeg
- 1/4 cup granular wheat cereal
- 1/2 cup well-drained cooked chopped spinach
- 1 egg, well beaten
- 1 tablespoon chopped onion, lightly browned in 1 teaspoon butter or margarine
- 1 1/2 cups shredded Swiss cheese
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Few grains ground nutmeg

1. Bring first 4 ingredients to boiling in a saucepan. Gradually add the cereal, stirring constantly over low heat until mixture thickens.

2. Stir in the spinach, well cooked onion, and 1 cup cheese; blend well. Set aside to cool slightly.

3. Drop mixture by tablespoonfuls close together in a well-greased, shallow 9-in. baking pan or casserole. Sprinkle some of the remaining cheese over each mound.

4. For topping, combine eggs and remaining 4 ingredients, blending well. Pour over the spinach mounds.

5. Bake at 350°F. for 35 to 40 min., or until golden brown on top. Serve at once. 4 to 6 servings

Deviled Ham Soufflé Roll

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- 4 egg yolks
- 4 egg whites
- Deviled Ham 'n' Mushroom Filling (see recipe)
- Sauce (see recipe)

1. Grease and flour a 15 1/2 x 10 1/2 x 1-in. jolly-roll pan. Set aside.

2. Blend flour and salt into hot butter or margarine in a saucepan. Add milk gradually while allowing to boil and boil 1 to 2 min.

3. Beat egg yolks until very thick. Beat in sauce a small amount at a time; cool.

4. Beat egg whites until stiff, not dry, peaks are formed.

5. Gently spread egg yolk mixture over the beaten egg whites. Carefully fold together until just blended. Turn the soufflé mixture into the pan and spread evenly.

6. Bake at 325°F. 50 to 55 min., or until golden brown. Loosen edges of soufflé and invert onto a sheet of aluminum foil on a large wire rack. Spread with Filling. Gently roll lengthwise and wrap in foil; allow to stand 10 min.

7. To serve, remove roll from foil, place on a warm serving platter, and surround with watercress. Accompany with a bowl of the sauce.

About 12 servings

Science Finds Way To Shrink Painful Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop The Itching, Relieve Pain In Most Cases.

A scientific research institute has discovered a medication with the ability, in most cases—to promptly stop burning itch and actually shrink hemorrhoids.

In one hemorrhoid case after another very striking improvement was reported by doctors who conducted the tests. Pain and itching were promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Tests conducted on hundreds of patients by doctors in New York City, in Washington, D.C. and at a Midwest Medical Center proved this so. And it was all done without narcotics or stinging astringents of any kind.

The secret in Preparation H® There is no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like it! Preparation H also lubricates, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. Preparation H comes in ointment or suppository form. No prescription is needed.

Ballooning—Thrills

This centuries-old

Propane burners suck up air, heat it, and send it into nylon balloon, 40-foot wide.

more, Pa. In Tolland, Conn., there's even a school to teach students the fine techniques of piloting balloons.

For sport, balloons filled with hot air have replaced the old, more expensive ones filled with such gases as hydrogen. Heated by propane-gas burners, the nylon balloons and gondolas range in price from $3,500 to $11,000. Flyers justify the crafts' high cost with the fact that they are relatively cheap to operate. One pilot of a three-passenger balloon says he gets an hour of flying time for approximately 30 cents worth of gas. And in the tradition of fun-loving sportmen, the balloonists choose gaily decorated bays, some with murals painted on the sides.

Getting wind of a trend in sport ballooning, the Federal Aviation Agency set new standards for licenses last year. The rigid Rules compel an applicant to make 10 ascents, one of which must be an altitude of 10,000 feet, and they must pass a test on meteorology and navigation.

Perfect weather for ballooning requires little wind. If the wind is over 12 miles an hour, it is impossible to inflate the balloon. Once aboard in the wicker basket under a hot-air balloon, the navigator turns on a gas burner for about 10 seconds. The 32,000 cubic-foot-round balloon quickly inflates and pops into the air. The craft is guided up and down by turning the burner on and off accordingly.

The direction the balloon goes, of course, depends on shifts of wind. One amateur balloonist must avert his flying near power lines or towering tv antennas. They follow the good rule, "Never fly over any terrain you wouldn't want to land in."

Landing a balloon takes skill, experience, and the judgment of a professional pilot. The burner is turned off, and the balloon drops quickly but smoothly. Approximately 20 feet from the ground, the

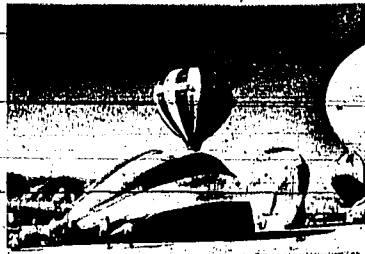

There are 250 licensed balloonists in this country at last count, which hardly makes ballooning a "booming" sport. But just wait, say the balloonists—this is the sport that's going to lift America off its feet.

Darrell Sonnicksen of Menlo Park, Calif., for example, drifts over the spectacular scenery of the San Francisco Bay area. He points out freightrails plying the exotic route to the Far East, the graceful span of the Golden Gate Bridge, the lovely landscapes, the crowded suburbs. There is no jet roar; no sense of fearful speed; instead, a feeling of euphoria—a freedom of spirit and body.

"And you wonder why we think ballooning is going to be a big sport?" Darrell asks rhetorically. "You are as free as a bird up here. You go where the winds blow, with the clouds."

Sonnicksen claims flying a balloon is easier than driving a car. "It's merely a matter of regulating the propane burners that suck up the air, heat it, and send it into the bag, which then rises due to the colder air surrounding it. To ascend or descend, you merely turn the valve up or turn it down."

Sonnicksen is just one of a growing number of weekend flyers who is bent on reviving the 12-year-old sport. And although most "balloonists," as they wryly refer to themselves, live in Southern California, there are enthusiasts all over the country. Balloon clubs have sprung up in Akron, Ohio; Houston, Texas; and Swarth-

Enthusiasts get ready for a balloon rally—a competition in flight and landing skills.

and Serenity High in the Sky pastime may be "the sport of tomorrow" because you can soar with the wind, drift with the clouds pilot gives a quick blast of heat in order to steady the craft and to cushion the landing.

By JIM SCOTT

Ballooning experience a tranquillity in flight jet-age travelers never encounter.

Then he pulls a line opening the rip panel at the top of the bag, and the balloon begins to deflate. It hits the ground with a slight bump. The deflated nylon bag crumbles into a colorful heap away from the basket, but it can be readied for another flight simply by blowing it up again.

The rise in ballooning interest came quickly, notes the F.A.A. Recently there were more than 125 hot-air balloons registered, a marked increase from the 75 registered just four years ago.

One whole family—from Albany, N.Y., for example, got involved in ballooning, and all went to school to learn its fine arts. After a two-month course, Gilbert Lewis bought a balloon for $5,000 and he, his wife, and two daughters, go up, up, and away on weekends. Balloonists have banded together in clubs and hold rallies and races as do auto enthusiasts. Reno, Nev., is a hotbed for balloon competitions, for instance, with the sportmen trying for records in distance and in accuracy of pinpoint landings.

There's no doubt about the fact that balloons have come a long way in both design and intent since 1782, when two brothers noticed in their Paris kitchen that a paper bag ascended in the hot air over their stove. They adapted the idea to soar with the clouds. And now—belatedly but enthusiastically—so are hundreds of Americans. ♦

JUDY CARNE:

She's a Rich Hippy— But Is She Happy?

ONE EVENING, Judy Carne and her boy friend, photographer Dean Goodhill, were having dinner in a Los Angeles restaurant.

Another patron, who recognized her as the "sock-it-to-me" girl on tv's "Laugh-In," nudged his friend and said, "Now I'll sock it to her!" Without warning, he walked over to Judy and dumped a hatful of bread crumbs over her head.

"I was very nice about it because I hate scones," Judy told me later, "but the next guy who tries to sock it to me is going to get it! For three years they socked it to me on the show. I've been dropped through trap doors, doused with water, wallpapered by mallets, and for the same three years, people offstage socked it to me as well. I've had it with that character!"

"It used only 30 percent of me—and I've got a lot more to offer than that. So I asked out of my contract."

Judy does not look on her years with NBC with regret, except for the fact that once the show caught on, she felt she should have gotten more money. "Let's face it. I needed a successful show. 'Laugh-In' gave me the exposure I needed, even if my part was one-dimensional."

Now Judy's concentrating on tv specials, stage appearances in Florida and Las Vegas resorts, and a new film, "All the Right Noises." She likes appearing in different media and in a variety of roles.

To the devoted audiences of "Laugh-In," Judy's born Joyce Hatten in Northampton, England) may seem like an overnight success. Actually, she has been in show business since she was six, when her parents realized she was talented and gave her singing and dancing lessons.

"In those childhood days, my life was 90-percent theater and 10-percent school," recalls Judy, who feels that in the long run it ill-prepared her to face life. "The show-biz training was fun, but it was like you've been excited nowhere. You can sing, act, do 20 dialects—but you can't understand words people say. You miss the necessities of an education, and you have no tools to deal with everyday life."

While she, at 30, is probably one of the most voracious of actresses, she is also one of the few who is thoroughly identified with the Now Generation.

Judy refers to herself as a "rich hippy." "I believe in free love, anti-war, doing your own thing—I am a free thinker. My only shortcoming is that I don't believe work is a dirty word at all."

"I can remember bleak times," she adds, "I've been broke in England and America, too. It's better in America—the sun shines." She admits she has never outgrown her poor-girl background. "I am still impressed by limousines and all the schlag, although I am not fascinated by the usual things girls buy when they first get a lot of money. I don't believe in furs and diamonds. I put my money into antiques and stereo equipment."

Judy Carne aims for glamorous image and shuns the slapstick.

The latter is the influence of boy friend Dean Goodhill, five years her junior. The two met when Goodhill was taking still photos of Judy on "Laugh-In." He clicked the shutter just as a pie smacked in her face. "Even then she looked beautiful," he recalled, "and I told her so."

Although a few months ago, Judy announced that she would marry Dean, she has since changed her mind. And not just because her first marriage to actor Burt Reynolds ended in divorce. "My marriage hurt me terribly," Judy admits readily. "I don't see any reason for marriage right now. If I wanted a family now, it would be different."

Although Judy has the reputation for being outspoken and sometimes tough, she actually is very vulnerable. "I always have been. But I don't get hurt as easily as I used to. I've been hurt in business, in my marriage, by friends who have taken advantage of me. But now I know who I am, and that's a big breakthrough."

Judy considers herself a true child of today, of the Now Generation. She was poorer and just beginning when I first met her, shortly after she first came to this country. She since has become more affluent—as she puts it, a "rich hippy." But not a happy one, I feel.
