TEN CENTS

Chicago 7 Await Verdict

Senate Unit OK's Carswell

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Judiciary Committee today approved the nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell to be a Supreme Court justice.

The committee voted 12 to 4 to send President Nixon's second selection for the high court vacancy to the floor, where after getting committee approval, Clement F. Haynsworth was rejected last December.

Committee action on the nearly month-old appointment had been delayed both by opposition forces seeking to establish that the 50-year-old federal jurist had showed racial bias in his decisions, and by fighting over proposed electoral reform.

102 Die As Jet Crashes In Caribbean

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI)—A Dominican Airways DC9 jetliner spun into the Caribbean Sunday night when one of the two engines of the month-old plane failed, killing 102 persons on board. Authorities said something else also must have gone wrong.

"Normally, the loss of an engine is not sufficient to cause a DC9 to ditch," said Charles R. Harrison, chief of the San Juan Air Traffic Control Center. He said the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) requirements were that such a plane be able to fly on one engine before it is licensed.

Harrison said it was a routine procedure for pilots licensed to fly DC9s to undergo flight training on what to do in case of engine failure and that any speculation on the cause of the accident at this time from his standpoint would be pure speculation. He said something else must have gone wrong.

The pilot crashed soon after radioing the control tower he had lost power in one engine and was turning back.

Scores of ships and helicopters criss-crossed the area where the jet hit, two miles from the airport of the Americas. Only fragments of bodies and bits of debris were recovered.

"It is presumed there are no survivors," the naval spokesman said.

The twin-jet DC9, in service only one month, faltered just after takeoff on the 250-mile flight to San Juan, Puerto Rico. The pilot radioed the control tower that an engine had failed and he was losing power. The plane banked into a right turn and plunged into the sea.

Dominican Airways said three Americans were aboard. They were identified only as George Paine and John Paine of San Juan, and Nelson Simonetti, whose home town was not listed.

Jurors Ponder Decision

CHICAGO (UPI)—The "Chicago Seven," already jailed by the judge for contempt of court, waited for a third day today for a jury's decision on whether they are guilty of conspiring to riot during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman sentenced the seven—and their attorneys during the weekend to a total of 15 years and one month in jail for contempt of court. The judge blamed their conduct for the turmoil that marked the 5½-month trial.

Before Hoffman meted out the contempt sentences, he instructed the jury Saturday and sent it out to deliberate on the fate the seven men charged with conspiring to incite riots in Chicago during convention week.

The jury of 10 women and two men—virtually an overlooked factor after they left Saturday—were not able to come to a decision Sunday after 2½ hours of weekend deliberations. They were to resume deliberations today at 9 a.m. and would continue, if they could not come to a decision, until 9 p.m.

The judge stayed the sentences of the two attorneys until May 4 to give them time to handle appeals. The defendants were taken to Cook County Jail, denied bond.

The stiffest sentence was given to chief defense attorney William M. Kunstler—four years and 13 days. It was believed the longest contempt sentence ever given in American courts. The apparent previous longest was four years given to Bobby G. Seale, the Black Panther party leader separated from the case by Hoffman early in the proceedings. Seale was sentenced to his own attorney.

Wolfgang, 33, was sentenced to one year, eight months and five days. Of the defendants, David T. Dellinger 53, the oldest defendant, was given the longest contempt sentence—two years, five months and 16 days. Quilley, 40, received the shortest sentence—two months and 18 days.

The defendants also faced sentences of up to 10 years in prison and $20,000 fines for the riot conspiracy charges.

WALLS OF IDAHO THEATER building are coming down in the current Urban Renewal project to remove sub-standard buildings. Under contract with the Northwest Rigging and Crane Co., the work has been under way the past two weeks. All that remains of the old theater and office building are the exterior walls and overhead beams. Trucks are hauling away the brick from the rear wall and expect to be working on side walls this week.

Demolition For Urban Renewal Continues In Downtown T. F.

Demolition crews and equipment are eating away at another Twin Falls building as the Urban Renewal program continues to eliminate sub-standard buildings from the city's landscape.

Within the week little is expected to remain of the old Idaho Theater and office building on Shoshone Street East.

This is one of several slated for demolishing under the present contract with the Northwest Rigging and Crane Co. City Manager Jean Miljar said others include the building that previously housed Foss Manufacturing Co., and the one in which Boster Key Shop previously did business. Both are on Second Avenue South.

Material from the buildings must be destroyed including the used bricks and large sandstone slabs that form the top of front and side walls. These are being hauled to the sanitary fill and sent contract with the Northwest Rigging and Crane Co. City

City Still Working On Budget For 1970

City budgeting for 1970 is still in the mill in Twin Falls, with a new budget and appropriations bill scheduled to be adopted by the March 31 deadline imposed by state law.

City Clerk Constance Leiser said Monday the law stipulates a budget must be adopted prior to the appropriations bill which must be approved during the first quarter of the year. Two weeks advertising and a public hearing are required before the budget is adopted.

Presently, City Manager Jean Miljar reports, the city is operating on a tentative budget and will continue to do so during the first quarter. This was established by setting aside one quarter of the 1969 budget for interim expenditures.

He said the new budget will include urban renewal programs and it is hoped it can also include funds for purchase of remaining land needed under the proposed fire and police department complex. This new building will be erected just west of the present city hall.

All but three pieces of remaining property in the block, all from the Third Avenue East have already been purchased by the city.

Mr. Miljar said Monday he intends to ask the city to call for bids on the sale of buildings immediately. These buildings, mostly small homes have been acquired by the city over the past few years.

Several are presently rented while others are vacant. They will be sold at bid for removal and work will then begin, probably 1971 June 1, to construct much needed parking space on the vacant properties.

Construction of the fire and police department building will be completed. Possibilities of sale of property on which the fire station, one of the city's oldest buildings, and the police department are located are being considered.

Nixon Writes Message On Peace Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon sends his "new strategy for peace"—a sort of state of the world message—to Congress this week.

The President told reporters aboard his plane on the way back to Washington Sunday night "from Florida—that this message will run about 40,000 words."

The title, "A New Strategy for Peace," indicates it contains a Nixon administration views not only of present world conditions but how they will evolve in the 1970s.

The President announced just before making his State of the Union speech that he had decided to send lawmakers a separate report on foreign affairs rather than lump it with the State of the Union.

During a long weekend in Florida and the Bahamas, Nixon worked with top White House and State Department policy planners on the message. It went through five drafts before being completed.

Legislators Mull Final Figure On Funding For Coming Year

BOISE (UPI)—Democrats and Republicans gathered in party caucuses Monday morning to hash over the final price tag to be appropriated by the second half of the 40th Idaho Legislature. It probably will be in the neighborhood of $5 million to $6 million.

The only matter remaining on the agenda of the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee was a resolution of a proposal to use the Mountain Home Job Corps Center as a State Highway Department maintenance site.

The federal government closed down the job corps center and the property is up-for-grabs.

Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, co-chairman of the committee, said that Idaho can probably obtain the property for the maintenance price alone.

Another possible use for the site, High said, is for a vocational education center for Boise State College.

The joint committee, meeting last Saturday, also discussed possible use of the Job Corps Center at Kootenai.

The joint committee will have its final figures on supplemental appropriations late Monday or Tuesday.

"The leadership has asked that we show the figures to them before they are made public," High said.

The committee, according to High and Rep. Jenkin L. Palmer, R-Mald, has trimmed approximately half from the figure of $11.7 million that various state departments and agencies are seeking from the committee.

Work On Grandstand May Begin In April

FILER—Twin Falls County officials are hopeful of making an insurance settlement on the fairgrounds grandstand fire within a week.

Tom Shouse, secretary-manager, said an agreement appears to be close and that construction on a new grandstand may begin in April. Fair board members have placed damage resulting from the November arson at the fairgrounds at about $220,000.

"It will take more than this to build a new grandstand," Mr. Shouse said. It also appears fairly certain a concrete grandstand will be built to replace the old wooden one. Ivan Stone, who operates an architectural firm in Twin Falls, has been retained by the fair board to begin drawing plans for a concrete structure for a concrete within 10 days or two weeks.

Mr. Shouse said, and as soon as advertisement for bids is complete, construction should be able to progress.

"I think April is as soon as the weather will allow construction anyway," Mr. Shouse said.

He said it is doubtful that the grandstand will be complete for most of the summer activities at the fairgrounds, but that temporary wooden seating is available and "I'm sure the people will understand." The grandstand, however, will be done by fair time. It is possible enough funds will not be available to cover the grandstand this year and that portion of construction may have to wait until 1971.

South Viet Forces Fight Heavy Battle

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese forces fought their heaviest battles of the new year in South Vietnam's northern provinces, killing 187 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese in fighting reported today.

Military spokesmen released the report after Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said in Honolulu that the Vietnamization program was either on or ahead of schedule throughout the country.

The battles involving the South Vietnamese centered in an area south and southwest of Ho An, 350 miles northeast of Saigon. The government troops got help from air strikes, artillery and big guns of a U.S. Navy destroyer offshore in the South China Sea.

South Vietnamese losses in the two fights were listed as eight killed and 10 wounded. The government soldiers reported capturing 14 guerrillas, including a company commander.

Kimberly School Gets Bomb Threat

KIMBERLY—The threat of a bomb in five days against school buildings in Kimberly was made Monday morning, but after a thorough search officers said the threat is a hoax.

Sheriff Paul Corder said the caller received at the high school about 8:25 a.m. by Dave Munroe, a teacher. The caller was again a male, the sheriff said.

A complete search of the three school buildings was completed last Thursday night and school was in session shortly after 9 a.m.

Sheriff Corder said the caller told Mr. Munroe to "get the kids out of the buildings or they're going to blow up. The caller said he had an hour and school would 'burst up' if the buildings were not emptied.

As sheriff's officers and school personnel searched the buildings a truck from the Kimberly Fire Department stood by.

Rogers Confers With Zambians

LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers conferred today with Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda who has complained that the United States maintains a consulate in neighboring white-ruled Rhodesia.

Diplomatic sources said Rogers went into the meeting prepared to defend the U.S. decision to maintain the low-level link with Rhodesia for the time being. He spoke out publicly Sunday against government based on "racial discrimination."

Six Senators Back North Integration

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Six senators, all from outside the South, have joined Sen. Abraham Ribicoff in support of a Southern-backed proposal for equal enforcement of school desegregation laws in all sections of the nation.

An aide to the Connecticut Democrat said the senators, four Democrats and two Republicans, indicated their support after Ribicoff's surprise endorsement last week of an amendment—offered by Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss.—The six were not named.

Ribicoff, a Kennedy administration Cabinet member, said he backed the equal treatment amendment because his conscience had been pricked by the state's long campaign to show that Northern schools have racial imbalances as glaring as those in the South.

He said if the South is forced to bus pupils out of their neighborhoods to balance racial ratios in the schools, it should be required in the North as well.

Aides said Ribicoff has received more than 200 letters and 60 telegrams from across the nation—"99 per cent" favoring his position.

State Meet In Burley

BOISE (UPI)—The Republican hierarchy was told by Gov. Don Samuelson Saturday that the state "is on the verge of an explosive growth."

The governor added: "We hope to be chocky with industry coming into the state and avoid those kids that would pollute our air and streams."

At a meeting of the Idaho Republican Central Committee, the group voted to hold its state assembly at Burley June 12-13. The Democratic state assembly will be held on the same days at Twin Falls.

Grant Kilbourne, Pocatello business leader, announced his designation as state Republican finance chairman but said he would serve in that capacity for Samuelson in the latter's bid for reelection.

Mrs. Pete (Freida) Connors was elected secretary to the State Central Committee.

Solon Says Military May Manage News

SAIGON (UPI)—Rep. John E. Solon, who testified today before a Senate subcommittee on police governing news broadcast to U.S. troops in Vietnam indicates there may well be a pattern of news management emanating from the Pentagon or "the highest sources in Washington."

Sen. Charles McNamara, chairman of the House subcommittee on information, said Solon's statement was "distressing" by what he had heard so far in his spot investigation and added "it has become quite clear to me that we will have to have followup hearings in the United States."

In today's closed hearing, Solon introduced five enlisted men involved in charges of news management against U.S. military officials who supervise news broadcasts over ARVN, the Armed Forces Radio and Television outlets in Vietnam.

Among those appearing before Solon was Spec. 5 Robert Lawrence, 37, of Atlanta, Ga., who was transferred to a post as a chaplain's assistant from his newscaster's job after making charges of censorship on a televised ARVN newscast. Mr. Lawrence's investigation which followed the incident resulted in a statement by the military command that censorship charges were "completely unfounded and unsupported."

Gen. Hershey Leaves Draft Post Today

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, who supervised the drafting of 20 million American men in nearly 30 years, ended his career as Selective Service director today, replacing him a man to replace him in his old job, nor an office to work in for his new one.

The 70-year-old general, a new fourth star on his collar, said he doubted he would have done anything in his career differently. His duties, which center with the 50th anniversary of the day he entered the Indiana National Guard as a teenage private.

President Nixon, who kicked Hershey upstairs last year by making him a presidential assistant on military manpower, took no notice of the end of Hershey's Selective Service career. Nixon has been unable to find a replacement for Hershey and, as of late last year, the general hadn't even been given an office for his new job.

"CARRIER RETIRED" LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—The aircraft carrier Kearny has been formally decommissioned and assigned to the Navy's mothball fleet, ending a quarter century of service which included tours off Vietnam and being prime recovery ship for two of America's space flights.

AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Deputy Secretary of State W. P. Ladd says "Vietnamization is proceeding ahead of schedule" in South Vietnam and more U.S. troop pullouts can be expected because of continuing progress.

You, or the legal representative of your husband's estate, must file a Federal income tax return if your husband was under age 65 and had $600 or more in income in 1969.

When an executor or administrator has been appointed you are responsible for filing a joint or separate tax return. On this return indicate below your signature that you are the surviving spouse. If there is any tax payable it must be paid before April 15, 1970.

Everybody's Failure: American Penology (2) Penologists Struggle To Keep Convicts From Returning To Crime After Release

By ROBERT BELTS
Copley News Service

Recidivism — repeated criminal acts by the same offender — is the despair of the U.S. correctional system.

If it could restore all or even most offenders to the community as responsible citizens, the national crime rate would drop significantly.

For a great many offenders, however, correction does not correct. The sad fact is that nearly half of them return to crime after their release, and the crime rate goes on soaring.

Some of those concerned with the problem are indeed coming to feel that the conditions under which many offenders are handled, particularly in institutions, are often a detriment to rehabilitation.

According to various investigators, the quality and conditions of the nation's custodial institutions — federal, state and county — range from adequate at best to appalling.

A parade of witnesses has painted a grim picture of confinement in all areas of the United States.

The Senate subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency has heard testimony from various sources — "crime hatcheries," "monster-producing factories," places which succeed only in turning out "finely honed weapons against society."

Subcommittee Chairman Sen. TheODORE D. CONNOR was moved to comment, "We do better with our animals than we do with a lot of our human beings."

Four congressmen, members of the House Select Committee on Crime, who took a look at prison conditions in the District of Columbia in 1969, concluded that a man who walks out the gate after serving his time stands little chance of staying out.

Merv E. Alexander, director of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons, told them, "The endless cycle of arrest, imprisonment, release and rearrest has plagued our society. The time to interrupt this cycle is long overdue."

The 1967 report of the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice stated, "Life in many institutions is at best barren and futile, at worst unspeakably brutal and degrading."

"To be sure, the offenders in such institutions are incapacitated from committing further crimes while serving their sentences, but the conditions in which they live are the poorest possible preparation for their successful reentry into society, and often merely reinforced in them a pattern of manipulation or destructiveness."

The report admits, "These conditions are to a great extent the result of a drastic shortage of resources, together with a widespread ignorance as to how to use the resources available."

There is also widespread agreement, not only among correctional authorities themselves, but among lawmakers and penological experts outside the system.

There is little cooperation among federal, state and county authorities with a view to tackling the corrections problem on a nationwide basis. Each level of government often acts independently.

The federal government has no direct control over state corrections. The states usually have responsibility for prisons and parole programs, but frequently probation is tied to court administration as a county or municipal function.

The United States has more than 50 types of penal institutions. There are prisons with bars, prisons without bars, halfway houses (officially Centers), rehabilitation homes with various probationary and psychiatric supervision schemes, special work projects and career training programs.

The nation's correctional system handles nearly 2.5 million admissions a year, and spends over a billion dollars doing so. On any day it is responsible for some 1.5 million offenders.

Two-thirds of these are on probation or parole. The rest are under confinement. Nine out of 10 prison inmates are men. About 60 per cent are over 35 years of age. Over one-quarter are under 25, and about 10 per cent are teen-agers.

While some distinction between crimes is made for the purpose of incarceration, the present correctional method is criticized on the ground that too little consideration is given to the differences among criminals.

"Offenders themselves differ strikingly," the President's Commission stated. "Some seem irrevocably committed to criminal careers; others subscribe to quite conventional values; still others, probably the majority, are aimless and uncommitted to goals of any kind. Many are disturbed and frustrated youths. Many others are alcoholics, narcotics addicts, victims of senility, and sex deviants."

"This diversity poses problems for correctional officials, for in most places the many special offender groups must be managed within large, general purpose programs."

Prison authorities generally concede that there are obvious deficiencies in the system. Not the least of their problems are over-crowding, understaffing and lack of funds needed to modernize institutions, to recruit and train more staff and to introduce recommended reforms.

About 121,000 persons are employed in the corrections systems. Although rehabilitation is considered the primary task (the aim being to get that lawbreaker, after once coming under control of the system, do not return to crime), only 20 per cent of the correctional personnel are concerned with treatment and rehabilitation. The other 80 per cent are responsible for maintenance and custodial functions.

form an increasingly large part of the federal prison population. They live in cages, have a swimming pool, billiard room, theater and sports, recreational and educational facilities. The building at right center is the institution's chapel.

Poland Lets Israelis Leave Nation

By IAN WESTERGREN

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Freedom from communism for Polish Jews usually begins with no more than $5 in the pocket and what possessions they can carry.

Unlike other refugees from Eastern Europe, their flight faces no challenge. The Warsaw government seems happy to see them go.

What Adolf Hitler started in 1939 is rapidly ending with a train ride to Vienna on the Chopin Express or a ferryboat ride to Sweden.

The Nazi dictator sought to rid Poland of his three million Jews. About 200,000 were still alive by the end of World War II.

Today the best estimates put 6,000 Jews in Poland. The rest have emigrated at a rate of about 30 a day to Israel or other Western countries, especially Sweden, with the veiled blessing of the Warsaw government.

"Jews have no future in Poland today," said a 55-year-old textile worker who arrived in Sweden with his family. "We are fired from our jobs. We don't get decent housing and our children are refused education."

Jewish refugee sources in Vienna told UPI that Polish Jews were still getting, quick and easy exodus despite a formal end last Sept. 1 to what had been simple emigration procedure.

Travelers from Poland reaching Vienna say the only Jews still left behind are those physically unable to emigrate, plus a government's "fair attitude toward Jews."

These office holders are called "alibi Jews" by their countrymen, the travelers said.

The president of the American Correctional Association, E. I. MacDougall, said prison administrators lack basic and necessary tools. But he also charged that the institutions were being made scapegoats for everybody's failure.

"We have the failures of the schools," he said, "the failures of our families, our churches, of mental retardation programs . . . We deal with everybody's deficiencies."

The President's Commission pointed out: "Correctional agencies across the country face acute shortages of qualified manpower especially in positions charged with responsibility for treatment and rehabilitation."

"Thousands of additional staff are required now to achieve minimum standards for effective treatment and control. Many more thousands will be needed in the next decade."

Prince Flies Trainer At Spaceport

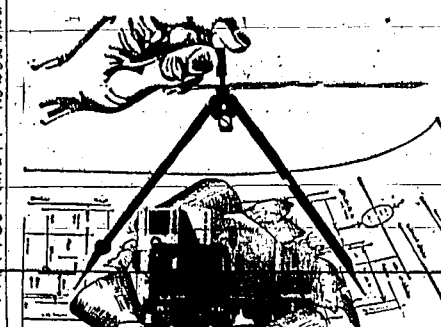

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Prince Philip of Great Britain "flew" an Apollo spacecraft trainer to a landing on a make-believe moon Saturday during a whirlwind tour of America's space center.

"He's a good pilot," said veteran astronaut John W. Young. "He landed right on top of it. We ought to sign him up."

Philip, a qualified pilot who has flown more than two dozen types of aircraft, spent about 15 minutes in the complex training machine with Young.

The trainer realistically simulates the operations of the Apollo lunar module and even presents an out-the-window view of the approaching lunar terrain. For Saturday's demonstration, the simulator landed on the rugged Fra Mauro formation, the landing site for Apollo 13 in April.

Getting To Know It

The Washington Post A small covey of congressmen—Representatives Brundem, Schuler, Ogden Reid and Orval Hansen—have just introduced a modest bill which they say may be cited as the "Environment Quality Education Act." Everybody is crowding, one way or another, to get into ecology act these days; the new bill is an attempt to encourage the trend and give it a constructive direction. It authorizes the U.S. Commissioner of Education "to establish educational programs to encourage understanding of policies and support of activities designed to enhance environmental quality and maintain ecological balance."

so polluted, unbalanced and abused as to be hardly livable. As the sponsors of the Environmental Quality Education Act say, "we must initiate a comprehensive program to awaken the nation to the crisis and to stimulate effective programs that will maintain the quality of air, water, soil and other elements on which the survival of mankind depends." Teaching ecology—the relations of living things to their environment and to each other—is no less important than teaching history or economics or the cultural achievements of civilization. But it has been so neglected that the very word is a novelty. Ignorance about ecology has surely had a great deal to do with the profligate destruction of Earth's life-giving and life-sustaining elements. That ignorance is now a deadly menace. The sponsoring congressmen are quite right in believing that education is the indispensable basis for reform.

Human Rights

Idaho State Journal Testimony of Shoshone-Bannock Indians at last weekend's civil rights hearing should shock every fair-minded Eastern Idaho citizen. Even allowing for possible exaggeration or misunderstanding, in some particulars, the Indians' charges should be thoroughly investigated. This could be a job for the new county Human Rights Committee. Discrimination in white men's law enforcement is well known. So is the term "drunken Indian clause" applied by some insurance men in selling "uninsured motorist" coverage in automobile policies. Everyone is aware of the poverty and the feeling of futility which causes so many suicides on the Reservation. Most people are vaguely aware of job discrimination and the fact that the Indian isn't so welcome in some stores as his Caucasian brethren. The white man hasn't been doing much to remedy these abuses. He should look into some new charges aired Saturday: of indiscriminate aerial spraying of insecticides, "poisoning water holes," etc. These charges should be followed up right now. If true, the abuses could be remedied. The more complicated and subtle expressions of the white man's prejudice and the red man's resentment will be harder to correct. It's time to start working on them. Just as difficult is the feeling of some Indians that not all are treated with even-handed justice by their own powers-that-be. This is especially delicate, because Indian society is rightly jealous of the little sovereignty it possesses in its own bailiwick. It may take Indians themselves to straighten out any internal injustices. Commissions and committees are a thin savor for the conscience unless they do something. The local commissions can't solve all the deep national problems surrounding the Indian. But they can make a start by digging into some specific local grievances and seeking ways to remedy them. And the human rights people should not hesitate to enlist whatever help they need from their fellow citizens in Eastern Idaho.

Computer?

Christian Science Monitor Perhaps, some 10 years or so from now, we shall have an in-car computer humming away somewhere in our automobile to advise us on the finer points of driving, mileage, skid-control and suchlike. At least, President Cole of General Motors says this is "conceivable." Drivers who prefer gear shifting to automatic transmission will say computer is one more restriction on the joys of motoring. And they might be right. But some tasks could surely be performed by computers: such as dimming the headlights, providing data on oil levels and engine temperature or correcting for strong winds off the starboard.

But when it is suggested that the computer will be needed to advise a driver on how much gasoline he'll require to travel "x" miles, a lot of motorists won't want to plunk down several hundred dollars for a gadget which tells them what they can easily estimate anyway. Still, electronics, if not in-car computers, can help along the highway. Such as passing aids which tell what's around a curve or over a hill, or determine when there's enough space to allow a car from a side road to venture onto a crowded freeway. Perhaps if the freeway is crowded enough, the electronic gadget could tell the driver to take his car back home and use the new subway for traveling downtown.

A Little Tumor?

Louisville Courier-Journal Many a squeamish reader must have turned to his breakfast with diminished appetite after reading that a panel of scientists feels it is quite safe to allow cancerous chickens to be sold to consumers, provided only that they don't look too lousy. This particular group of scientists feels that there is no demonstrable link between cancer virus in chickens and human diseases. The Department of Agriculture, which has been rejecting chickens having obvious lesions or tumors, is under strong pressure from the poultry industry to be less strict. A relaxation of the rules, we learn, that might come if the Surgeon General's office agrees with the scientists, might permit the dissection of a chicken, keeping the aesthetically inoffensive remnant of the carcass to be sold as chicken parts and permitting the tumor-ridden wing, for instance, "to be used in a product like hot-dogs." A sizable lot for growing its own "organic" food—unsprayed, untreated with chemical residues—is growing among people increasingly concerned about the quality of food they buy. If the poultry industry and its friends in the Department of Agriculture get their way with the sick chickens, we foresee a real run-back to the old-fashioned, fenced-in chicken-run, where real birds will run around eating real grain and where the inspectors who decide how many tumors are permissible on a fryer will be Pop and Mom. Indeed, if the proposal, like the recent permission to add chicken-skins-to-beanifusers, should turn out to be an inspired plot against battery-raised fowl and mystery-ingredient hot dogs, we should not be at all surprised. The chicken people seem to be asking for some sort of human reaction.

WASHINGTON — Something new and expensive has been added to the already large and costly staff of the House Education and Labor Committee which handles the legislation of the widely controversial and scandal-racked anti-poverty program on which more than $10 billion has been spent so far. The unannounced addition is a $16,000 administrative assistant for Hartwell (Jack) Reed, the $33,408 chief counsel of the committee. Recipient of the munificent $16,000 salary is Miss Elizabeth Corbett. Like Reed, her boss, Miss Corbett, 25, is from the 7th Kentucky congressional district—which Rep. Carl Perkins, D., committee chairman, has represented since 1949. Reed is an appointee of Perkins. Miss Corbett was put on the committee payroll as of Dec.

15, 1969. Her qualifications for the job at Reed's administrative assistant are unlisted and unknown. She had no prior committee experience, and as far as can be ascertained, no previous government employment in Washington. Reed, 54, is separated from his wife. She and their four children reside in nearby Springfield, Va., a suburb of the capital. Reed tells people he is staying with Rep. William D.

Ford, D-Mich., a committee member, who is divorced. Miss Corbett resides in a high-rise apartment in Rosslyn, Va., across the Potomac from Washington. Listed rental of the apartment is $250 a month. Some staff members question whether Perkins is aware that Miss Corbett is on the committee's payroll as Reed's $16,000-a-year administrative assistant.

of millions of dollars to his largely rural congressional district. Although it has only one city of any size, Ashland, with approximately 4,000 population, the 7th district has received more anti-poverty funds than any other in Kentucky. In the five years the anti-poverty program has been in operation, Perkins' district has gotten more than $72 million out of a total of upwards of $251 million for all of the state.

Laos Is Not A Vietnam

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Something is seriously out of joint about the notion being generated by Senate doves and others that the American role in Laos is being elevated to a level which might make the war there "another Vietnam" for us. Indeed, the way the case is being put by some critics comes perilously close to reckless irresponsibility. The weight of the charges has to do with "escalating" the air war in Laos, increasing the use of helicopters to ferry Laotian troops and perform other functions and stepping up the activities of U.S. "advisers" to the point where they are virtually running the war against Communist forces in that country.

ling of his wrists politically. It most probably would doom his party's chances in the 1970 elections and his own prospects of reelection in 1972. Moreover, he is flabby on the record, in the repeated enunciation of his Guam doctrine, against more Vietnams or any kind of U.S. activity in Asia which could involve the use of American ground manpower on foreign soil. Even if there were not a little thing called the Church amendment, which Congress adopted to bar him specifically from planting U.S. soldiers in any new engagement, Nixon's strongly proclaimed commitment to limit the country's future role in foreign conflicts would seem to preclude embroiling us that way.

ANDREW TULLY

"De Facto"

WASHINGTON — Let's hear it today for Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss. He is currently pressing an amendment to the basic Federal aid-to-education bill amending the hypocrisy and double talk of professional Northern liberals who preach, but do not practice, integration of the races. Stennis' amendment would insure that Federal school desegregation pressure would be "applied uniformly in all regions of the United States." In so doing, he is challenging the practice of distinguishing between de jure, or deliberate, and de facto, or inadvertent, school segregation. It is in the South, of course, where schools were once separate by law, that de jure segregation is easier to prove. The key word is de facto. The fact is that statistics of the Health, Education and Welfare Department show nearly as much racial isolation in the North and West as in the South—and sometimes more. Stennis' amendment would disregard the de jure de facto distinction and take a top-down approach against segregation by race in the schools, even though practiced by white civil rights crusaders. For years a certain segment of this crusading crowd has been demanding that other people—meaning mostly those parents who can't afford private school tuition—send their kids to integrated public schools. They themselves, of course, either have avoided such public schools like a plague or made "arrangements" insuring that the public schools in their own neighborhoods remain lively white enclaves. In the case of one well-to-do family of New York which is transferring its boy from a Northern public school to a private facility because he has a couple of Negro teachers, a Negro lawyer I know is borrowing money so he can yank his boy out of a Washington public school and install him in a private school. In the latter case, the black lawyer has good cause. With one or two exceptions, New York City's public schools are an archaic mess, bedeviled by violence and intimidation of pupils. The same can be said about New York City's public schools and probably about those in most other big cities. At any rate, I do not depose that Stennis' motives are of purest ray serenity. The senator candidly admits that uniform integration pressure nationwide will mean less pressure everywhere, especially in the South. As he told the Senate the other day, Northern senators "are going to hear from Momma and Poppa" if Northern school districts become subject to the same pressure as Southern districts. This is not the stuff of idealism, but at least it argues for equal enforcement. Whatever his motives, Stennis is merely asking for a national policy to execute what the Supreme Court has ruled is the law of the land. The Mississippiian has even been joined in his campaign by a Northern senator, Clifford Case, the New Jersey Republican. Case introduced a bill last week attacking Northern-style segregation. In doing so, Case agreed with the Nixon administration that the subject should be well thought out. First the more or more "hypercritical" bleeding hearts will have the grace to wear red facia over Stennis' suggestion that they buckle down to talking out of only one side of the mouth. I am up to here in the most prize-fight managers who, from the safety of their own expensive segregated society, are constantly imploring poor and middle-income parents of both races to "get in there and fight!"

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Child Asthma

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am concerned about my grandchild, 11. She has had asthma since she was a small child. She has not been taken to a doctor for this, although the parents discussed it with the family doctor in his office. He told them she may outgrow this, but that was a number of years ago. How long does it take to outgrow this condition? I would like to get any better. She is not getting any better. I would like your opinion.—V.J. Saying that a child "may" outgrow asthma isn't much different from saying that she may not. When there is no improvement by age 11, I'd say it was very late in the game to rely on "waiting for her to outgrow it."

Asthma in a child almost invariably is the result of an allergy, or, more precisely, a collection of allergies. Asthma from a food allergy is quite common, but there can be other types—dust or other particles that are breathed. In addition to the allergy, emotional tension is well known to be a factor. It can be as obvious a thing as fear of another wheezing attack. If the child feels one coming on, the apprehension can bring the attack on faster and harder. But so can nervous tension from other causes. Thus the management of childhood asthma is two-pronged. First, every effort should be made to find out what foods or other substances bring on attacks, and avoid them. Second, reasonable efforts should be made to avoid excessive nervous tension—for one thing, to reduce, if possible, the child's dread of further attacks. Mild medication can be used to reduce severity of an attack. I say "mild" because it is a mistake to use heavy, frequent, or routine medication which, in the long run, can do more harm than good. But small doses to ease an attack of wheezing can be very helpful. It is better to start treating asthma when a child is quite young; at age 11 a lot of time has been wasted. But better than never. Either a pediatrician or an allergist is suited to treat such cases. For a comprehensive discussion of how to cope with the change of life, including scores of pertinent questions and their answers, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for his booklet, "Make Menopause Easier," enclosing 35 cents and a long stamped, self-addressed envelope to cover cost of printing and handling. Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the best way to remove underarm hair, by shaving or using creams? Is there any safe cream that will remove it permanently?—B.J. Either method is all right. If creams cause irritation, you can switch to shaving. There is no cream that will remove the hair permanently, though. Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard that anyone with thyroid or diabetic trouble should not have cortisone shots. Is this dangerous?—D.S. Let's put it this way: cortisone can accentuate some types of thyroid trouble. It also can make diabetes more difficult to control. It sometimes is necessary to use it with such patients, but it is done with caution. Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Women's Health-Education Building In Use At U.I.

MOSCOW — Although contractors are still putting the finishing touches on the University of Idaho's new Women's Health-Education Building, the facility is now being used and approximately 1,200 women are attending classes there.

The new $1,250,000 structure, a part of the university's emerging $4,486,000 educational complex, houses most of the women's physical education classes and activities.

Some of the outstanding features of the building include a performance studio, a completely equipped gymnasium room and a kinesiology laboratory — all firsts at the university.

The 60-by-80-foot dance studio, which will be used for classes and modern dance performances, has numerous practice areas with individual mirrors and built-in lights and sound systems and bleachers for dance concerts.

The gymnasium room, which includes such equipment as uneven bars, two trampolines, tumbling mats, gym horses, ropes, rings and balance beams, provides the university with a central area for gymnastics classes and team uses.

Another new area, the kinesiology laboratory, will be used for teaching purposes and research on the stresses and physiology of exercise.

Other features of the building include two gymnasiums, a squash court, classrooms, offices, plus conference, first-aid, study and reading rooms.

In addition, it has four locker rooms and shower areas which will be connected to the university's swimming pool facility.

Construction of the university's first structure designed especially for the teaching of swimming and for intramural and intercollegiate swimming is expected to be completed by the fall.

The new $1,236,000 swimming facility, the final part in the College of Education complex, will have two pool sections — one, 35-by-75-foot of shallow depth for recreational use and teaching of swimming, and the other, 60-by-75-foot, for intercollegiate swimming and water polo meets, scuba diving, diving, safety instruction and advanced swimming.

Fishermen Protest As New Columbia Dam Begins Forming Snake River Reservoir

By ANDREW WILLIAMS WALLA WALLA, Wash. (UPI) — The spillway gates at the Little Goose Lock and Dam north of here were scheduled to be lowered today, creating a reservoir 37 miles long and holding nearly half a million kilowatts to the Pacific Northwest's power supply. Meanwhile, a group of about 150 fishing enthusiasts and conservationists gathered along the roads near the dam Sunday and protested the "death" of the stretch of the Snake River to be filled in by the reservoir. The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers was expected to lower the gates at 8 a. m. today to alter the flow of the river and begin the process which will raise the pool to 638 feet mean sea level in about four days.

Officials said the Snake River would run from three to four feet above normal with rapid fluctuations during the filling stage because of an increase in flow from the Hells Canyon Dam farther upstream.

The Little Goose Dam, the third of four dams in a proposed series that would allow large traffic to travel from the mouth of the Columbia more than 400 miles to Lewiston, Idaho, was built by the firm of Vinnell, Mannix, Fuller and Dillingham at a cost of $72 million.

Three generators at the dam will produce 135,000 kilowatts of power each, and there is space to add three more generators for a total capacity of 810,000 kilowatts, Heckart said.

With a length of 2,600 feet and a height of more than 100 feet, the dam is about the same size as the Lower Monumental Dam, the next structure down river in the system.

The Lower Monumental Dam was completed in January, 1960, and flooded the famed Marmos Archeological Site when the spillway gates were lowered.

No significant landmarks are expected to be destroyed by the Little Goose Dam but Arthur Solomon, Spokane, president of the local chapter of The Association of Northwest Steelhead-ers, said fishing along the reservoir would be ruined.

Solomon headed the group which carried placards along the two roads which lead to the dam site and passed out arm-bands.

"This dam is one more link in the stoppage and will make it that much harder for fish to get upriver," Solomon said.

He added that the reservoir would destroy the habitat of other wildlife along the river.

Solomon said attorneys for his organization are drawing up briefs to seek an injunction against the Corps of Engineers to halt construction of the Lower Granite Dam, the next structure upstream. The corps has begun leveling the land around the proposed dam but bids for the actual construction have not yet been let, Solomon said.

Dietrich PTA Breaks Ties With State

DIETRICH — A formal break with the state PTA was made at the February PTA meeting held at the school here. A revote on the subject of withdrawal was taken at the meeting, after proper notice had been given to members and 16 of the 17 persons present at the meeting voted for the change, with two voting to remain members of the state PTA.

Earlier the group had voted to this effect, but district and state PTA officers said proper procedure had not been followed and required the second action on the matter.

In explaining reasons for breaking with the state PTA, Mrs. Don Knowles, secretary, stated that local people are not in accord with some of the current policies and projects of promotion of the PTA.

A Parent-Teacher organization will be continued for local use only, and there will be projects to assist the school, Mrs. Knowles stated. The next meeting will be held at 8 p.m. March 16 at the school.

During the business meeting at the February meeting, Mrs. E. A. Hutchison, secretary, gave her report and Mrs. Wayne Perron announced results of the room prize attendance contest.

Named to a committee to draw up by-laws for the new PTA are Roy Hubert, chairman and Wayne Perron and Janet Naylor.

Auction Is Planned By Buhl PTA

BUHL — The Buhl Parent Teacher Association will sponsor an auction Saturday at the Buhl elementary school building. Proceeds from the auction will go to the three Buhl public school libraries.

A luncheon will be served at 10:30 a.m. with the auction getting under way at 11 a.m. Auctioneer for the sale will be Delbert Alexander.

Individuals having items to donate for the auction should contact Blaine Williams, PTA president, or Vern Craner. The auction will continue until all donated items have been sold.

Mrs. Ray Quigley noted that there will be a fish pond and carnival games for the children whose parents are attending the auction. Anyone having comic books, toys, jewelry, games, or books to donate as prizes for the children's games should leave them at the Quigley Plumbing shop on Friday or at the Vogue Cleaners any other weekday.

Heart Fund Benefit Show Set At Buhl

BUHL — "Have a Heart" will be the theme for a special heart fund benefit show at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Buhl High School Gymnasium.

Forming for the benefit will be some of the outstanding talent from the Magic Valley area including Laura Vincent, Filer, Idaho's reigning Junior Miss; "The Commentators," a barbershop quartet composed of John Crawford, Ormand Smith, Harry Sattler and Bob Krentz; the Walden Brothers band; "Three Hungarian Butchers," under the direction of Daryl Cooper, Buhl schools music instructor; and a dance exhibition by 24 ladies of the Twin Falls County Granges under the direction of Ralph and Evelyn Assendrup.

The benefit has been organized by Mrs. Stanley Kern. There will be no admission fee, but a silver offering for the heart fund will be taken during the evening.

Miss Jones, Quinton Say Nuptial Vows

Buhl—The Buhl LDS Church was the setting for the marriage of Alyson Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred F. Jones, and Wendell E. Quinton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Quinton, all Buhl, Jan. 16.

The 7 p.m. ceremony was performed by Bishop Clyde Cox of the Buhl LDS Church, before a background setting of four acetylene trees of boxwood accented with white ribbon bows.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a floor-length empire-styled gown of silk tulle with a detachable bodice and detachable sleeves and train. A maroon halo held her waist-length veil of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of white artificial roses with lilies of the Valley accented with blue bows and white and blue ribbon streamers. The bouquet was made by Mrs. Nile Cox who also made the other bouquets and flowers used for the wedding.

Mrs. Dan Harris, Pocatello, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Ken Lydrickson, Salt Lake City, sister of the bride, and Eglene Hudderson, Castelford. Cheri Lydrickson, niece of the bride, was flower girl and Bride Baggott, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Dennis Smart, Idaho Falls, cousin of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Mel Quinton and Ernie Quinton, Buhl, brothers of the bridegroom.

Wedding music was provided by Beverly Atwood and Ann Maughlin, accompanied by Mrs. Clyde Cox and Mrs. Bob Pearson, and Arlene Garrison, accompanied by Anne Watson.

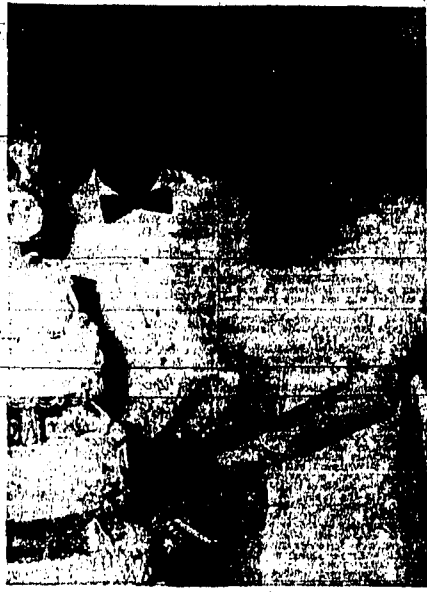

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the Cultural Hall with some 200 guests in attendance.

The bride's table was covered with a white polyester-lace cloth, centered with a five-tiered cake which was decorated with blue roses and pale green bells, lilies of the Valley and seed heads. Mrs. Leonard Walcott baked and decorated the cake.

Reception assistants were Mrs. Glenn Richmond, aunt of the bride, Mrs. Jesse Gorman and Mrs. Gene Thomas.

Mrs. Larry Baggott, sister of the bridegroom, registered the guests at an antique table belonging to Mrs. Glenn Richmond. Mrs. Mel Quinton, Mrs. Jerry Foster, Mrs. Steve Lamers, Carol Metzler and Dacky Eastman were in charge of the gifts.

Mrs. Nile Cox and Mrs. Charles Quinton were in charge of arrangements for the wedding and reception. Music during the reception was furnished by Bishop Emery Winer, accompanied by Mrs. Clyde Cox, Trudi Olson provided piano background music.

MR. AND MRS. WENDELL E. QUINTON

Mrs. Gorman and Mrs. Gene Thomas, and a shower hosted trip to Jackson Hole, Wyo. They are Mrs. Albert Giscard, Mrs. Jerry Foster, Mrs. Jack Campbell, Mrs. Wes Fuller, Mrs. Ray Quigley, Mrs. Frewell Chishum and Mrs. Earl Allen at the Buhl ceremony hosted by Mrs. Richmond, First Christian Church.

DEAR ABBY: I understand that you confer with clergymen when it comes to religious matters, so here is one for you to ask a rabbi.

We recently buried my father. He and mamma had been married nearly 40 years, and daddy always wore the wedding ring. Mamma gave him. It was his wish to be buried wearing that ring. During his illness he lost a lot of weight, and the ring became loose on his finger, but he wanted so much to wear it until the very end that he wrapped some tape around it.

When dad died and it came time to bury him, the man at the Jewish mortuary (he was not a rabbi) told mamma that according to Jewish law, "we come into this world with nothing, and we should leave with nothing, so daddy could not be buried with his ring."

Of course my mother felt terrible, but she couldn't do anything about it, so she buried daddy without his ring.

What I would like to know is, was that man at the Jewish mortuary right or wasn't he? THE DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: It is the opinion of the rabbi with whom I have discussed your letter that although the man at the mortuary quoted Jewish "philosophy," it is not Jewish law. But even if it were Jewish law, your mother should have been respected. Too had your mother didn't consult a rabbi.

DEAR ABBY: In regard to that letter from HANDSOME JIM IN BOSTON who wrote: "My wife and I were married, folks said, 'How could Handsome Jim ever marry that tub of lard?'"

Eleven years ago I married a little 100-pound brunette gal. Since that day she has helped me to raise three lovely daughters that were mine from a former marriage. That little woman has helped me build a business that has been very good to us. So good in fact that we now own five Rolls-Royces and four Mercedes, and one of the most beautiful homes in this city. We don't owe a dime to anyone either.

Right now my little brunette weighs 135 pounds and she's only 5 feet tall, so you can see she's put on a few pounds, but that doesn't bother me. Last time I noticed she was getting slightly plump, I said, "Honey, if you continue to gain weight I will just have to buy you a bigger minicoot next year. She's the greatest."

JOHN LEWIS LAWTON, OKLAHOMA

DEAR JOIN: No she isn't YOU are!

DEAR ABBY: I have had the feeling for a long time that my husband is too fond of his sister. He has a brother he rarely sees, but he MUST see his sister regularly.

I don't think it's jealousy on my part as I know he loves me, and I love him dearly, but even though his sister of his is married, her husband and I are "outsiders" when those two get together. I don't think I have an evil mind, Abby, but do you think what I am hinting at is possible? For heaven's sake do not use my name or town.

SUSPICIOUS

DEAR SUSPICIOUS: Yes, it is possible. But if I were you, I would not harbor any such

Susan Putz, Thomas Marry

JEROME—Susan Jeanne Putz, daughter of Mrs. June D. Durr, Jerome, was married to Kenneth Dale Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thomas, Boise, in rites Jan. 24 at the Canna Chapel of the Cathedral of the Rockies, Boise.

Rev. John Dawson performed the double ring ceremony, with Ralph Watson, a friend of the family, as soloist.

The bride wore a Bridal Original gown; Pearl and acolyte Chantilly lace outlined the wedding ring collar and accented the yoked redingote front, revealing a demi-fit "A" line gown of Angelina taffeta. The gown featured long lily point sleeves. Vestile lace daisies nestled in a ring of tulle, held her four-tiered floor-length veil of English silk illusion. She wore an Epworth League pin belonging to her maternal great-aunt. She carried a spray of gardenias.

Carolyn Wilcox, Boise, was a maid of honor, with Carolyn Kessel, Mountain Home, as bridesmaids. Both are college friends of the bride.

Dennis Chaburn served as best man, with Larry Thomas, Gary Bishop and Henry Fenske as ushers.

A reception was held after the ceremony in the Bishops Lounge. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered traditional wedding cake topped with a decorative miniature bride and bridegroom. The decorated cake carried out the bride's colors of yellow and green.

The couple took a wedding trip to Shore Lodge, McCall, and will reside in Moscow, where the bridegroom is a senior in civil engineering at the University of Idaho.

Special guests at the wedding were Mrs. Susie Dewhirst Leonard, Jerome, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. and Mrs. Raymond Thomas, Filley, grandparents of the bridegroom.
