TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1970

TEN CENTS

Jerome Youth Free On Bond After Appealing Court Case

By FRED BODDS
Times-News Staff Writer

JEROME — A little more than two years ago Michael Dillon, 20, was convicted here of murdering a Jerome woman. He was sentenced to 20 years in prison.

The case was appealed and matters are still pending but Tuesday young Dillon, pale after nearly three years behind bars, walked out of jail, free on a $3,000 surety bond that was posted for him by an unidentified person.

"How does it feel to be out?" Dillon was asked.

Although the weather was brisk and the wind strong, Dillon wore only a light, blue shirt and dark trousers and in his first few minutes of freedom in the parking lot behind the Jerome County courthouse he smiled, stretched his arms and took several deep breaths.

"What are your plans?"

"I'm going to get a job and work for awhile I guess," he said.

Dillon was convicted by a jury of eight men and four women of murdering Alta Simerly of Jerome. Her body was found in early 1967 beneath discarded Christmas trees just north of the Jerome Golf Course. Her car was found abandoned in the 500 block of Jackson Street and Dillon was arrested and charged with first degree murder about two weeks after Mrs. Simerly disappeared from her Jerome home.

The trial, held in January of 1968, lasted two weeks.

Fifth District Court Judge Theodor Ward presided.

When the jury returned its verdict, Dillon was convicted of second degree murder. The prosecution had sought a conviction of first degree murder, which could have meant death or life in prison.

Judge Ward, several weeks after the trial, sentenced Dillon to 20 years in prison. At that time Dillon's attorney, James May, Twin Falls, appealed the case.

Hundreds of pages of transcript testimony were prepared and briefs were put together.

Now it is up to the Idaho Supreme Court to hear the case and this might come as early as March.

Dillon's bond had been set at $10,000, but Tuesday, after a hearing before Judge Ward, the bond was ordered reduced to $3,000.

Ten per cent of this amount has to be posted with an insurance or bail bond firm in order for the release of a defendant.

Tuesday afternoon, through the Statewide Bail Bonds of Twin Falls, the surety bond was posted with Jerome County officials.

Area Pilots Honored For Safe Flying

Although more people are piloting airplanes, light and large, the number of air accidents have remained about the same during the past 10 years, Chet Moulton, Idaho director of aeronautics, told a gathering at the American Legion Hall Tuesday.

He was in Twin Falls to honor Magic Valley pilots who have logged safe miles and years of flying.

Awards were presented to pilots with a year of experience on up to the top awards, two million miles of safe flying.

A total of 120 pilots were honored, although some of them were unable to attend the dinner. An estimated 300 people heard Mr. Moulton speak.

"We have had this safe flying program for 10 years now and it is a real pleasure for me to present these awards. Our safe flying program is paying off," he said.

A pilot has to start with a record for a year. One accident and he has to start all over again.

"That makes it rough for the pilot that has a million or two million safe miles," Mr. Moulton said.

He said the program is worth it. "Because one accident is all it takes. You might not walk away from it."

Getting the top awards at the dinner were Fred Frazier, with 24 years of safe flying, and Cyril Touchette, with 27 years of safe flying.

Nixon Asks Russia's Aid In Eliminating Cold War

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon urged the Soviet Union today to join in ending the cold war by breaking through rigid hostility of the past 25 years into "a new era" of realistic negotiation.

In an unprecedented 40,000-word report to Congress on U.S. foreign policy for the 1970s, Nixon suggested the Soviet Union could reduce danger of another major war by cutting back its apparent efforts to dominate the Middle East and by slowing or halting the flow of Soviet arms to North Vietnam.

American people, systematized foreign and defense policy. Officials felt that such a one-package statement, while containing no radically new information, would help other governments to project reliably what American reaction would be to a broad range of possible situations, such as efforts, Soviet or otherwise, to interdict movement of Arab oil to Western Europe.

Nixon had other reasons for issuing the voluminous foreign and defense policy catalogue. He wanted dissident young Americans to understand where the United States stands internationally and, more particularly, how and why it got there.

While trying to avoid seeming quarrelsome with policies of past administrations, Nixon wanted to underline his conviction that the U.S. government would face a constantly changing world in the 1970s.

The message, which contained four basic sections and 20 chapter headings, could turn out to be a handy reference work for GOP congressional candidates next fall. The President's advisers also felt it would figure prominently in congressional hearings this year and beyond.

Nixon's view of the Vietnam War appeared to be slightly more optimistic than six months ago. But he did not believe Moscow was doing what it could toward peace.

The President thought Russia could best serve its own interests and those of the world by joining the United States in reducing globally destructive nuclear weapons — and — stopping trying to dictate the fate of other countries.

"I believe the time has passed in which powerful nations can or should dictate the future to less powerful nations," Nixon said.

He said this did not mean his administration was leading America toward isolation. The President several times emphasized his intention to maintain all current U.S. treaty commitments.

"No nation need be our permanent enemy," he said in committing U.S. international energies henceforth to building a lasting peace based on "partnership . . . strength . . . and a willingness to negotiate."

Nixon extended his "new strategy for peace" to Communist China along with the rest of the world. He said it would be to no one's advantage to try to exploit the clash between China and the Soviet Union.

The world diplomatic community naturally was curious about Nixon's reasons for leaving such a lengthy U.S. foreign policy analysis at this time.

But presidents have dealt with such matters briefly in their traditional State of the Union messages, leaving detailed posture statements to the State and Defense Departments.

Word of his death was received Tuesday morning in Twin Falls by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Newman, 257 Heuburn Ave. and local Navy recruiters were notified.

"This is tragic news. A real shock," Chief Ron Jennings of the Navy Recruiting Service in Twin Falls said when asked about the crash. He said he knew nothing other than Kirby Newman was dead and the family had been notified.

Just last November two Newman brothers enlisted together, making it once again seven Newman brothers on active duty in the Navy. At the time no other family in the United States could boast such a record.

In the fall of 1967 John Newman enlisted in the Navy and it was probably one of the most significant enlistments in Navy history. Dignitaries from Idaho Gov. Don Samuelson to city officials and a Navy Captain from Seattle came to watch the swearing in ceremony for John.

He was the seventh brother to join the Navy.

Area Pilots Honored For Safe Flying

Other officials said this referred to the shift from defense and diplomatic planning based on the cold war to a new era which takes into account sophisticated missile warfare possibilities, along with Nixon's new approach to negotiation.

These officials said the report for the first time offered other countries, as well as the

City Teacher Group Backs Boise Demand

Members of the Twin Falls Education Association, meeting at Harrison School Tuesday, went on record supporting Boise teachers in their efforts at collective bargaining.

About 70 teachers and administrators attended the meeting and there were a few dissenting votes cast against the resolution.

Milton Barrus, president of the Twin Falls educators, said, "The association here is on record as supporting the sanction action taken in Boise Feb. 8 by the Boise Education Association against the trustees of that district."

Boise teachers want collective bargaining and to date trustees have not allowed this.

In other business Tuesday, Twin Falls educators went on record supporting Senate Bill 1515, which is a bill recommending teachers be recognized as professionals capable of negotiating with local school boards on such items as salary, grievances, conditions of employment and procedures in textbook selection and curriculum development.

A hearing on the bill was held today in the Capitol at Boise and three delegates from the Twin Falls Education Association attended.

Free Trade Asked In Nixon's Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today called for freer trade and "performed foreign aid to help build an open world in which people and ideas can move freely across national borders."

In his foreign policy report to Congress, Nixon said he will establish a "commission on international trade and investment policy to search out ways 'how we can pursue our objective of freer trade without unacceptable domestic disruption."

Nixon also pledged to support reforms in the international money system — to "achieve prompt changes in the relative values of currency and avoid the disruptions of major devaluations or revaluations. He did not spell out details.

Grievances In Shoshone Continuing

SHOSHONE — Promise of continued effort of Shoshone teachers to obtain the dismissal of Jack Bowlin, Lincoln Elementary grade school principal, was indicated Wednesday by local IEA officials.

Don Chatterton, high school teacher, who is professional rights and responsibilities chairman for the Shoshone chapter of the Idaho Educational Association, said a petition supporting the teachers and asking for the dismissal of the principal, is being circulated.

"The thing we must do now," Mr. Chatterton said, "is go to the regional IEA level to air our grievances. We have notified the chairman of the regional rights and responsibilities committee."

All teachers were working today except two who are ill. Nine of the 12 teachers took personal leave Monday in protest of the school board's decision to reaffirm its earlier decision in rehiring Mr. Bowlin.

Waldo Jones, school board chairman, said he would welcome an impartial investigation. The school board has made a thorough investigation, with meetings lasting until 1 and 2:30 a.m. for several months, he noted, and trustees spent from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. last Wednesday at the school hearing complaints of teachers.

"On the basis of our all day session at the school we do not feel there are sufficient reasons to fire Mr. Bowlin," the chairman said.

Riley To Head Youth-Conferences

Rev. John Riley, Twin Falls, has been named local coordinator of the Governor's White House Conference on Youth, according to Dr. James L. Taylor, regional coordinator.

Other assignments at the local level were made at a Wednesday noon luncheon at the Robertson Hotel. Colonial Brown, for Taylor, who was appointed by Gov. Don Samuelson to head the regional planning of the conference in Boise, said several hundred students from all grade levels will be participating.

The conference, begun during President Kennedy's term, has been held each year. The purpose of the conferences is to reflect attitudes and feelings of students toward problems of their age and time, Dr. Taylor said.

Lenten Diet

TREALAW, Wales (UPI) — Henry Edwards, a 38-year-old writer, has gone on a diet of porridge oats for breakfast, lunch and dinner for the six weeks of Lent.

"I hope to gain converts for the Latin Mass Society," he said. Edwards opposes the introduction of the mass in English in Roman Catholic churches.

His chosen porridge because French philosopher, Blaise Pascal ate a bowl of porridge to protest "East Devotionists" in the 17th century.

CALIFORNIA'S MAXIMUM-SECURITY institution is the state prison at Folsom in Sacramento County, established in 1880. Behind its 25-foot-high granite walls are confined men with long sentences, men wanted elsewhere, chronic criminals, escape artists and those with severe behavior problems. They live in 4½-foot-wide cells stacked in five-high floors.

Everybody's Failure—American Penology: 4 California Prison System Called One Of Best, Rate Of Return Violators Lowered

By ROBERT BETTS
Copley News Service

California not only boasts sunshine and good living, it has the best prisons.

So officials in and out of the state claim. Not all prisoners may agree.

At grim old San Quentin, for instance, they grouse about the food, the crowded accommodation, the guards, the routine and regimen, the monotony of it all.

There are even complaints about the rehabilitation and vocational training programs, which apparently don't come up to the expectations of some people, in and out of the prison system.

Officials admit there's room for improvement.

"We're not trying to whitewash this place," said a San Quentin officer, "but we're doing the best we can with a limited budget."

Still, most penologists—in the federal system as well—acknowledge California to be one of the, if not the most advanced states as far as corrections go.

The state's Department of Corrections officials say that one advantage is having 13 institutions which afford more opportunity to segregate the hard-core criminal from the first-time offender. There is extensive shifting of inmates from one institution to another as their personal conditions change.

Nearly half the state's 27,500 prisoners are in minimum security—no bars, no high walls, no gun towers.

The department operates a number of minimum security camps, ranches and farms for specially selected inmates. About 2,500 of them live in forestry-conservation camps, working on fire-breaks, fighting fires, helping conserve the state's natural resources and saving California taxpayers millions of dollars.

The California Institution for Men at Chino, opened in 1941 as the first open minimum security facility, became the model for similar institutions throughout the world. "A bill under which it might pass for a military base," commented one visitor.

At the institution's Tehachan branch an experimental family visiting program is being conducted. This year about 200 inmates will be able to spend weekends with their families in specially provided apartment units.

California operates a number of programs to prepare prisoners for release. One is the 72-hour leave. Within 90 days of release, a prisoner is given 72 hours' freedom to visit his family, interview for a job, obtain a driver's license, check with his labor union and take entrance exams if necessary for future employment.

Another program is the work-furlough, under which some prisoners work at jobs on the outside during the day and return to prison at night. One recent prisoner at San Joaquin County Jail was in the river-sales business, spent his work-furlough flying charter planes, returning to the lockup after landing.

About 900 prisoners went from work furlough to parole last year.

Through a program of intensified parole supervision concentrated on the tougher cases, California claims to have cut its recidivism rate from 45 per cent, before the program was begun in 1965, to 32 per cent. Of these only 14 per cent committed new felonies.

Roy K. Procunier, director of the Corrections Department, said: "We need to continue the effort to develop strong community-based corrections programs such as intensive parole supervision, halfway houses and work-furloughs. These programs provide an alternative to long and costly incarceration, and appear to offer the best hope for breaking the too frequent cycle of crime and confinement."

California's more liberal approach to corrections is being adopted in more and more states.

The work furlough program is now used in 24 of them, as well as in the federal prison system. In fact the idea was first tried in Wisconsin in 1913.

It was introduced in California in 1957 when legislation provided for inmates of county jails to go out to work. In 1965, additional legislation was passed under which selected prisoners from state prisons could join the county-administered program. The same year the work-release program was introduced into the federal prison system under the Prisoner Rehabilitation Act.

In North Carolina, where 12,000 select convicts have earned $10 million in 10 years, inmates are eligible for work release when they have served a relatively small portion of their sentences. Cancellation of work release for serious misbehavior—generally absconding—has occurred in 15 per cent of the cases.

Revocation has been lower in the federal system where prisoners usually enter work release approximately six months before their expected parole date.

As of Jan. 1, Illinois has a separate Department of Corrections and Department of Law Enforcement, both operations of which formerly came under the one Department of Public Safety.

Work release, halfway houses and other rehabilitative programs are being expanded and corrections personnel increased.

"Illinois is not going to continue to run—the kind-of-dehumanizing prisons which have created the present cycle of despair and human failure," promised Illinois Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

While some prisons have earned praise as well-run institutions with modern rehabilitative processes and splendid treatment programs, others have been the subject of scandalous revelations.

One of the most notorious recently (1968) concerned the Arkansas state penal system. A former superintendent told Senate investigation subcommittee that Arkansas prisons were festering with "inmate abuse and official corruption including death, threats, shooting of prisoners, gratuitous beating with rubber hoses, blackjacks, brass knuckles, ax handles, torture, stomping, lashings, kickings, sexual perversion and other forms of punishment." He also contended that he dug up bodies of inmates he believed were murdered by guards.

Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller instituted major penal reforms, including appointment of a new superintendent.

As to the theory that confinement in itself is a "brutalizing process" and that prisons can only serve as "graduate schools in crime," opinion varies widely, even among prison officials.

Superintendent of Illinois Prisons Hollis McKnight does not believe they are.

He pointed out that in his state an illiterate person entering the Illinois prison system could by the time of his discharge have earned an associate of arts degree or could have learned any of 34 different trades taught in prison.

"We seldom hear of the man on the outside who makes good," McKnight said, "because he isn't likely to publicize the fact that he has been in prison."

Paul Galtier, sheriff of Potter County in Amarillo, Tex., for 21 years, does not believe prisons are a "brutalizing process" either, though he agrees they are "graduate schools in crime."

Vocational training programs might help a prisoner "if he'd go out and find himself a job, but most of them won't do it," he said. "That old saying, 'Crime doesn't pay' is not true. It does pay."

The nearly half of released convicts who land back in prison "don't regret going back to the pen today," Galtier said. "The first offender is scared, but the second and third times don't mind going back at all. They say, 'We've got it made when we get back.'"

"I've taken men to the penitentiary, and on the way they'll be talking to each other about when they get out, and they can almost tell you the date. The prison authorities want to get rid of them as fast as the criminals want to get out. Facilities are crowded."

Texas, which has about 12,000 prisoners for 18 prison units, is rated with California as one of the better state penal systems. It boasts a remarkable six-week course at a relaxed center near Houston, where civilian volunteers including bankers, auto salesmen, and personnel experts, lecture felons on how to obtain loans, buy cars, apply for jobs.

"Even the prisoners now call Huntsville (state penitentiary) the 'Summer Resort,'" said Galtier. One prisoner told him, "If Huntsville is like it was when I was there before I'd break away from you. You'd have to kill me before I'd let you take me back. But now I don't mind. I've heard how it is there now."

Many penologists believe that the percentage of those prisoners who cannot be reformed is very small.

They Declare War On The System

WASHINGTON — There is something to be said for the argument that a pinch of nobility lurks in every revolution...

But the jury should stay out a long time on certain judicial proceedings involving a black militant "revolutionary" and white protesters against the Vietnam War...

despotic, therefore I am." Let the record show that reference is made to three specific pieces of litigation...

A Must Budget

President Nixon's budget of $200.8 billion for the next fiscal year, huge as it is, still was greeted with cries of "too little" by some liberals...

The budget was less than the gigantic federal bureaucracy wanted, was less than the education lobby wanted, and less than Senator Muskie wanted for anti-pollution.

Before any one gets his dander up over some good things the President did not recommend, let him ponder the mind-boggling cost of the good things he did recommend...

A little factoid of Democratic liberal senators professes to see adequate funds for everything they want or think the country should have...

Another "uncontrollable" item is the approximately $17 billion a year interest the government must pay on the money it owes.

This debt burden can be reduced only by balancing the budget and achieving some surpluses which can be applied to the debt principal.

Tight money and its rising cost affects everyone directly or indirectly and Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board...

states a balanced budget must be achieved before interest rates can turn downward.

Like any family burdened by debt and having difficulty making ends meet, the government must forego some luxuries and change its manner of living beyond its means.

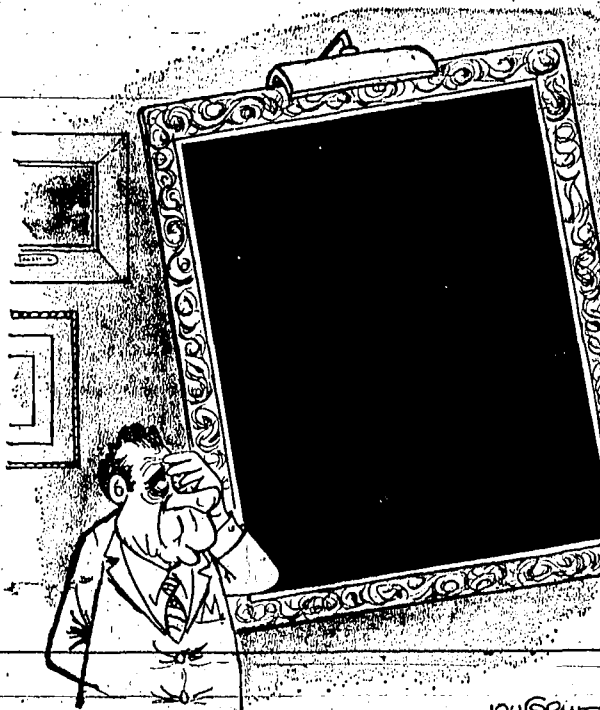

Every citizen should support this effort to return to common sense and he can. Every citizen can do his bit in the war against inflation by buying more carefully and buying only the things he needs.

Getting government costs down is a slower process but the ordinary taxpayer can play an important part. He can write his Congressman that cost reductions must be made and he can vote against those who still believe in "spend and spend, elect and elect."

Two thousand million dollars as an annual budget is a sum that baffles the comprehension. It ought to be enough. But it isn't enough, and no sum that can be raised by taxation will ever be enough to continue the shocking growth of the federal bureaucracy during the last ten years under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson.

We must indeed reassess our priorities. The explosive growth of the federal bureaucracy must be stopped. The bigger it grows, the less efficient it is. How inefficient it can be is demonstrated by the government's spending of an average of $8,040 a year for each Indian — individual, not family, while the median income of an Indian family on one reservation, for example, is $1,810.

The Unemployment Picture

Of course, the defense was trying to make a point. They insisted that only by representing themselves could they prevail on the jury to accept their defense — that their act was justified by what they claim is Dow's "illegal" weapon-making...

Not, it should be added, because it is the System, but because by protecting its orderly process in a courtroom it protects the right of the defendant to get a fair trial. Basically, that is the reason courtroom procedures were drawn up in the first place — to provide for the holding of trials, not circuses.

There is something paradoxically self-destructive about the antics of the D.C. Nine, including four Catholic priests, a nun, a former nun and two Jesuit seminarians. They maintain that they are opposed to violence — a variety of violence.

Yet the manner of their defense produced one of the biggest roughhouses ever seen in a Washington courtroom. Fists were swung, cops were assaulted and denounced as "pigs," and the only lay defendant, Michael Slaski, hurled several rows of seats to plunge into the fracas. The cause of this dis-

PAUL HARVEY

The Balance

The dinosaurs ate themselves out of house and home. Many millions of years ago they cut their own enemies were thus able to breed millions and millions of little dinosaurs — unmolested.

Until the dominant dinosaurs had eaten everything edible and there was nothing left to dominate — or eat.

And so they perished from the earth. This lesson is repeated throughout history: The struggle for existence is necessary to survival. For any animal to win that struggle too completely is self-defeating.

For man, too? For man, also. Throughout the "Best Nature Writing" of Dr. Joseph Wood Krutch is apparent over and over again this lesson: Wild creatures need their enemies as well as their friends.

When tender-minded, well-intentioned humans seek to create a "wildlife preserve" for a particular species, where it will be safe from predators — a refuge where the "innocent creatures" may be allowed to prosper and propagate beyond the reach of "evil creatures" such as the fox and the hawk — it doesn't work.

A deer herd or a partridge covey, if not thinned out by predators, grows weaker, not stronger.

In the normal balance of nature the strongest and most fleet-of-foot-or-wing survive. In a sanctuary, the weak also survive, propagate and thus weaken the herd or the flock.

Further, the herd or the flock, if not thinned out by predators, grows to such numbers that like the dinosaurs, it eats itself into starvation.

This is a very difficult lesson for those of us who consider ourselves "civilized," "enlightened," "sensitive," to accept. The blood-red claws are to be repugnant. But the evidence is everywhere about us that they are essential.

We are exhausting our supply of water and air, and food will be next. I'm not mentioning all this just to sound gloomy, and I do not know all the answers to proper regulation of our human population. But it seems to me that human compassion which got us overpopulated should inspire us to correct the imbalance.

Can we not learn from the dinosaurs, or must we imitate them?

MR. SPECTATOR

Are You A Sniffer?

The Times-News gets around. Take, for instance, a letter we received just the other day from a Carolyn Selgel, an official of the Herbert H. Rozoff Associates of 307 North Michigan Avenue in Chicago.

Seems as though the Times-News carried a brief story on January 12 about two Twin Falls youths who were arrested and charged with glue sniffing. The two — 16 and 17 — were taken into custody after an officer observed them sniffing glue near a building on Shoshone Street North.

Well, to get to the point, this little story was noted by the Chicago company which just happens to be the largest manufacturer of plastic model cements and they wrote us to let us know they have found a solution to glue-sniffing. This solution has been found, they wrote, in a basic chemical that could also be used to end the sniffing of solvents from scores of household products used by millions of consumers.

The corporation announced it has added oil of mustard to its plastic model cements since May, 1968, after six years of development and testing.

Oil of mustard acts as a deterrent to the misuse of plastic model cements by providing the same jolt in the nasal areas as that occurring after eating very hot mustard or horseradish.

Charles D. Miller, president of Testor Corporation — a division of the Chicago concern — says that his company is offering its research and development results concerning the additive to any manufacturer whose products contain inhalable solvents. And these products include nail polish, paint thinner, cleaning fluid, gasoline, and even the propellants in pressurized hair sprays, cocktail glass chillers and the sprays that keep foods from sticking to pots and pans.

It was from 1964 to 1968 that the company tested the additive in plastic model cement production processes to be sure that the additive did not affect the adhesive qualities of its cement. And the adhesive qualities were not affected. So there you have it from a company that turns out two-thirds of the industry total of 50 million tubes annually.

The days of glue sniffing might just be close to being a thing of the past.

DATE IN HISTORY

Remember a few days back we told you that Jefferson and Burr tied in their race for the presidency? Well; it was in 1801 on this date (Feb. 17) that the House of Representatives elected Thomas Jefferson as President.

AFRICAN DRUMS

"Darkest Africa" is turning pale. "(Africans) have not yet adopted electric signals but possess, however, a system of communication quite as effective," famed explorer Henry M. Stanley could write some 90 years ago. "Their huge drums by being struck in different parts convey language as clear to the initiated as vocal speech."

Today, most Africans are no more able to interpret a tom-tom message than visiting Americans, reports the National Geographic Society. Once the mainstay of primitive communication, village drums have grown silent. Tribes that once relied on drums now use the mails, despite the fact that the old way was cheaper and faster. The same is true of tribesmen around the world.

In India, says the Society, relays of drummers could once send a message 300 miles in just 17 minutes.

The U.S. Post Office, which is not exactly famed for delivering communications at the speed of sound, could do worse than to take a look at this art before it vanishes completely.

THE BIG DAY

If you were a Republican — and you were from near these parts — then you were up at the Elks Club last Thursday night for the Lincoln Day affair. And the cost per plate, for those of you who did not attend, was only $7.50 a plate — and this did not include the plate, of course, which had to be turned back in.

BRUCE BLOSSAT

Laos — Not Another Vietnam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Last month, Senate Foreign Relations Chairman J. W. Fulbright decided to serve the nation by passing on, via the Congressional Record, a dovish critic's suggestion that the "little war" in Laos might balloon into a "huge, ugly war like Vietnam."

Let's try to get that in one sensible perspective. Laos does have the space for it. North and South Vietnam together outfit it, but its 91,000 square miles make it nearly 50 per cent larger than South Vietnam alone. (Laos is a bit smaller than Oregon.)

Population is something else. By present estimates, the combined total of the two Vietnams is 38 million people. Laos has just 2.8 million. More than half of these are hill peoples scattered all over the tangled Laotian hills. By contrast, South Vietnam's hill tribes, though they occupy 60 per cent of the nation's land, account for less than five per cent of the 18-million population total.

Certainly the total fighting force in Vietnam or adjacent backup areas like Cambodia must range between 1,750,000 and 2,000,000 men — including U.S. forces, South Vietnamese regulars and home units, the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong.

In northern Laos, where the fighting for that country is centered, it would be a surprise if total forces on both sides much exceed 200,000. North Vietnam's 50,000 is the biggest single unit. Some 10,000 Mep tribesmen on the government side have been holding the strategic Plain of Jars and may now have to yield it under new Red pressure.

Much of the Laotian government's "fighting force" is that in name only, though sources say some units are improved. The same goes for the Red Path Lao, who have been directed from the start by Hanoi and are today largely relegated to secondary, noncombat roles by the fighting North Vietnamese regulars.

Critics who like to talk of America's "secret war" in Laos make much of the presence of CIA agents, military advisors in civilian dress (most not now members of U.S. armed forces), helicopters and night-blinking planes and their pilots with the aircraft used for every thing from combat support of government armies to dropping relief supplies to refugees (some 600,000, or repeatedly on the move).

Was the scale of this activity up as it is known for sure. But as a phenomenon it goes back to 1954. Most of the time since then, the United States has been training, paying, advising and even directing in combat the non-Red Laotian forces.

The critics say we are "running the war." Most likely, yes. But one way or another we have been doing it for a long time. The only difference today is some advance in the number of U. S. personnel involved (guessed at 2,150), and some change in the scale and character of their activities.

Our government will not talk about these particular things, and the critics who have intended to hold us in their charges reveal nothing that has not gone on in one degree or another for years.

By the time Lyndon Johnson opted for a big U.S. military role in Vietnam in 1965, we already had 23,300 advisers, helicopter units and others in that country. The first of some 50 U.S. Special Forces camps was set up in the highlands in 1961, with some Americans leading the fighting as well as training the famous "Montagnards."

There is no sign (indeed, much private official assurance to the contrary) that we are going to enlarge our advisory role on the scale reached in Vietnam by 1965. Nor is there any automatic compulsion to introduce big ground force elements even if we do still more than now.

From 1965 through 1968, we flew some 360,000 sorties (often in mission groups) over North Vietnam, using fighter-bombers and a surprisingly few B-52s. The yearly sortie average was 99,000. The bomb tonnage dropped was immense.

We note the concerted stepping in Laos in 1968-70. But given the limiting factors of weather, haze, sporadic seasonal combat, small population, the rugged terrain in Southeast Asia's least-developed nation, the focus on the hill areas — what is really in Laos is being badly misrepresented by critics as threatening a huge new war.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has been a compulsive drinker — he hates the word alcoholic — for 25 years. It destroyed him physically — he has had lab work and tests — but he can't accept the fact that it also affected his mind.

He is so obsessed with accusations of infidelity on my part that he is violent and abusive causing me and the children great mental stress.

The problem is that we tell him the drinking drove him to it and he claims it didn't, yet when sober he doubts his accusations to some degree. He claims we should respect and love him, sober or not. I cannot respond to him in any way when he is mean and abusive. He thinks I should. Who is right? — Mrs. R.S.

You can love him. You can love a weak and sick person. But respect him? That's something else. He may hate the word alcoholic, but what else can you call a person who for 25 years has been unable to give up his glass crutch?

But he makes it hard for you to do so when he behaves so. It is seldom that an alcoholic reforms until, because of bringing complete disaster upon himself, or because of a flash of insight into what he is really doing to himself, he accepts the fact that he needs help.

Sometimes a shock of some sort does it — I recollect a case in which a wife took some photographs of her husband when he was blind, sloppy drunk, and showed them to him afterward. He quit drinking.

In your case your husband still refuses to admit that he is an alcoholic and is still trying to persuade himself that he doesn't do the things he really does when drunk.

This situation, if any, will be in realizing what he really is like, if there is any way to show him. There may be.

Note to R. C.: "Freckles" can be removed, but it's a skilled process — and, unfortunately, if it's permanent. Sorry, but I don't know any way to get rid of them for good. Why try? — glass crutch?

Don't take chances with "kidney trouble." It may be only minor, but it can be dangerous. Read Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Your Kidneys — Facts You Need to Know About Them." Write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

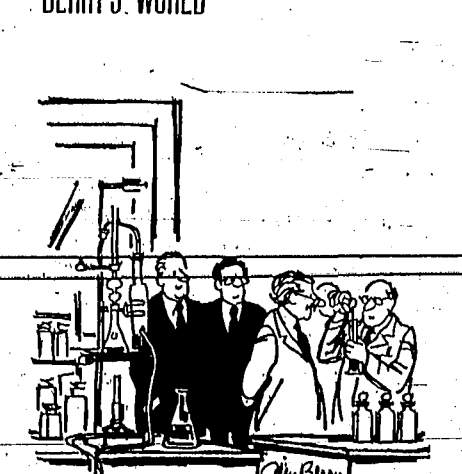

For what help it may be, if any, you might better look at the cause of his accusations and violence. A psychiatric analysis probably would show that he is an insecure individual, drinks to release himself from his fears of being a weak person, and when in his cups reacts belligerently.

Yet the fact remains that he has no right to make the whole family miserable. The children I presume, must be at least partly grown by now. Perhaps, together, you can all tell him in a sober moment that he really does these things when drinking, that you all love him —

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Raft Race

Teams from the College of Southern Idaho, Twin Falls, will compete April 25 in the annual Raft Race at Boise. Leon Cope, chairman of the CSI social committee, said it is expected seven teams from the local college will enter the competition, expected to draw teams from throughout Idaho, Oregon, Utah and Montana. The raft race will be on the Boise River from Barker Bridge to Anne Morrison Memorial Park. Events include singles, doubles, over three passengers and mixed doubles. There also will be a novelty race to see which college can find the largest raft which will hold the most passengers.

Derald Fitzsimonds, formerly of Moses Lake, Wash., has joined the executive staff of the Snake River Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Mr. Fitzsimonds, a native of Wallalla, N. D., has served on the staff of the North Central Washington Council for the past 3 1/2 years.

Mr. Fitzsimonds attended the University of Montana at Missoula for four years, majoring in anthropology, and has worked for the Forest Service in Montana and Northern Idaho. He will serve as the district Scout executive in the Snake River Council with his principal responsibility in the Southside and Sismet Districts, both in Twin Falls County. He also will work with the council's summer camp program and other activities.

2,265 At CSI

Second semester enrollment at the College of Southern Idaho is 2,265, according to a report issued this week. An enrollment prediction made five years ago placed the 1970 enrollment at about 200 less than current enrollment. Dr. James L. Taylor, CSI president, said if the Kellwood training program students are discounted, however, predicted and actual enrollment figures for 1970 would be "nearly right on the button." The 1965 predictions also placed enrollment at 3,000 by 1975.

Naming Of New Fire Marshal Is Delayed Here

The selection of a fire marshal for the city of Twin Falls will be delayed until about March 1, according to L. Z. Bartlett, fire chief. There are four applicants for the post, the chief said, and all are members of the fire department. He said additional time is needed to study the applicants before making a decision since all the men have similar qualifications. The actual selection will be by Chief Bartlett, with approval of Jean Milar, city manager.

African Nations Missed By Rogers Are Worthy Of Note

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

As noteworthy as some of the African nations Secretary of State William P. Rogers is visiting are some of those he is not visiting.

He visited two Arab nations, Morocco and Tunisia, but pointedly missed three others, Libya, the United Arab Republic and Zambia, all of the latter being hard-liners against Israel. He visited Zambia but skipped neighboring Rhodesia. Among other areas he will not see are South Africa and, of course, the Portuguese provinces of Mozambique and Angola which he wouldn't see anyway because their chief of state resides in Lisbon.

But while he will not see them, all have figured prominently and perhaps a bit uncomfortably in his conversations with African leaders who seek strong measures against white minority governments controlling a majority of Black Africans.

South Africa, for example, whose apartheid policy enforces strict separation of the races has about 10 million people of whom only 3.5 million are white.

Rhodesia has approximately 224,000 Europeans and 4.25 million Blacks.

In Zambia, Rogers sought to defuse the race issue in advance by declaring upon arrival that the United States deplored governments based on racial discrimination but "we do not believe violence is the answer."

In Kenya, the secretary of state turned aside a question about possible economic sanctions against South Africa because of apartheid policy with a reply that the United States believed in "practical steps" but "whether that is a practical step is something I am not prepared to discuss now."

Student Tickets

Student tickets for the first three performances of "Mama" still are available, according to Tom Driscoll, ticket sales chairman. A block of tickets for school students, through high school, are being sold at a special rate of $1.50 for Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The show opens Friday at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Center and will continue through Sunday during the first run. The musical comedy, presented by the Dillettante Group of Magic Valley, also will continue Feb. 26, 27 and 28. All performances are at 8:15 p.m., except the Sunday matinee at 2:15 p.m.

The ticket office is at the Boy Scout Service Center and the special "Mama" telephone number is 733-6375.

Seventh-Complaint Filed Against Man In Jail Here

The seventh complaint was served Monday against Bob Francis, the 33-year-old Twin Falls man who has been in Twin Falls County Jail since earlier this month.

The latest complaint is from Blaine County, charging grand larceny. County officers, armed with a search warrant, found a store of items in Francis' house, many of them reported stolen in burglaries in Blaine County.

Francis was first arrested this month on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon and two counts of aggravated assault, complaints signed by his wife.

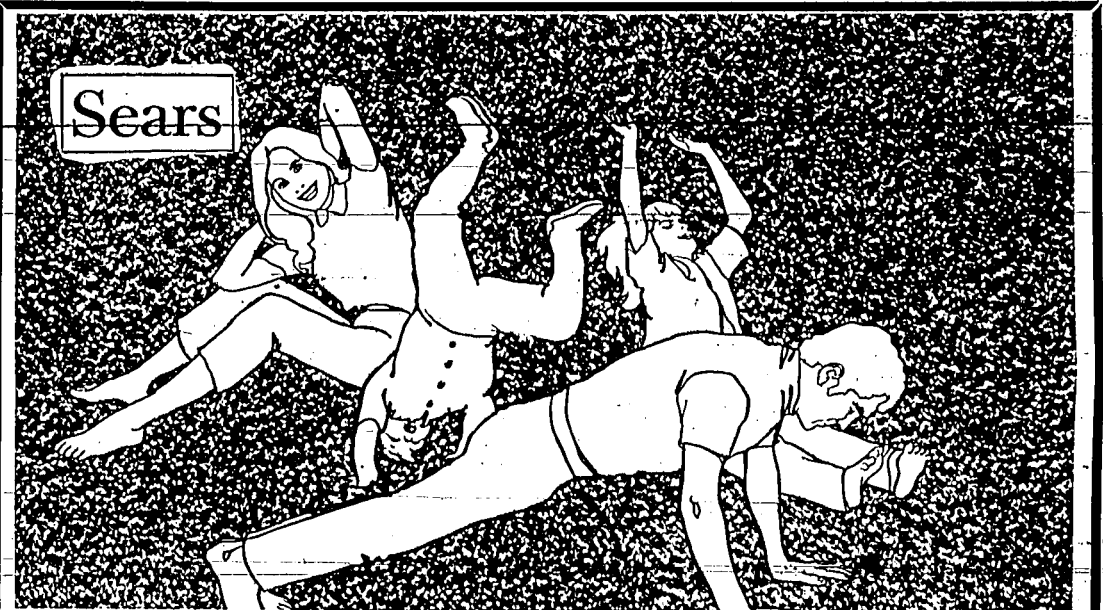

Since then Twin Falls County has judged two complaints of receiving stolen property against him and Jerome County also has filed a complaint of receiving stolen property.

Skis Stolen

A pair of A and T skis and bindings valued at about $110, has been reported stolen from a residence in Twin Falls.

City Police officers said the theft was reported Tuesday by Mrs. Ron Chaffin, 1360 Lawnside Drive. The skiing equipment was taken from the garage at the Chaffin home.

When high Pacific winds buffet San Francisco, radio announcers often broadcast "skullcap warnings on Golden Gate Bridge," says National Geographic.

Busing Rule Heading For Senate Fight

By WILLIAM B. MEAD
WASHINGTON (UPI)—A bitter Senate scrap on "busing" and school integration headed today on rival amendments criticized by their respective opponents as useful or worse. Both sides claimed support from the Nixon administration. The debate, one of the Senate's most acrimonious civil rights tussles in years, was sparked by recent Supreme Court decrees ordering immediate integration in a number of southern school districts. One amendment, by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and Hugh Scott, R-Pa., the Senate Republican leader, would order equal enforcement against "busing" or "segregation" in school systems. Only the South's system of de jure segregation by law has been ruled unconstitutional. The Scott-Mondale amendment also would outlaw federal support of "busing" or "segregation" already in the law. The Supreme Court has ruled the Constitution requires "busing" in some Southern districts to wipe out the effects of discrimination.

Clinging to administration support, Scott offered the amendment as a substitute to one by Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss. Stennis' proposal would not only order equal desegregation enforcement nationwide but also eliminate the legal distinction between de jure and de facto segregation. The bill results from law, not in the South; and de facto results from ethnic neighborhood patterns, as in the North.

Tuesday night the Senate approved a 60-34 Connecticut Democratic Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff's "perfecting amendment" to the Stennis proposal, making it clear school segregation should be treated equally "whether de jure or de facto." Conferees on both sides agreed that the administration's position was the most confusing element. On Feb. 6, James E. Allen, appointed by Nixon as U.S. education commissioner and assistant HEW secretary, called for a vote in opposition to Stennis' amendment. Last Thursday the White House gave Stennis' amendment a qualified endorsement, apparently reversing Allen.

Dial-A-Bus Plan Perhaps? Sound Crazy? Perhaps!

By HENRY ROSSO
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Long, cold, wet waits at bus stops may soon be as passe as the Pony Express. It may be possible to sit in the comfort of your own home and telephone for a bus just as you would call a taxi.

Researchers at Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) are working on plans for a "dial-a-bus" system that would provide personalized bus service. An official of the Department of Transportation, Joseph Silien, said: "The concept has been around for some time, but it was MIT that gave it its big push. MIT has a government contract to work on the project. Silien said in an interview the system would work like this: A customer would telephone a computer-equipped dispatch center giving his location and destination. The computer would figure the time needed to pick up the customer and deliver him to his destination. In early experimental stages, the dial-a-bus would meet passengers at established pick-up points in low-density areas outside major population centers. However, "when things are worked out it should be possible to go anywhere," Silien said.

Deep South Governors Complain That Busing System Is Wrong And Criminal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Four Deep South governors met with Senate leaders Tuesday to complain about the disruption of their school systems caused by what one described as the "wrong, criminal, cruel" busing of pupils to achieve racial balance.

For one hour and 20 minutes, senators from Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, South and North Carolina and Florida were briefed privately in the office of Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., by Govs. John McKeithen of Louisiana, John Bell Williams of Mississippi, Lester Maddox of Georgia and Robert McNair of South Carolina.

Afterwards, with McNair absent, the other three governors told newsmen they convinced that the nation would "not stand for it." If court-ordered busing and the demands of federal desegregation guidelines were applied outside the South.

The governors indicated they had no plans to seek out Nixon administration officials. Their visit preceded a series of Senate votes on proposals by Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., and ordered the busing of pupils and apply desegregation laws equally throughout the country.

McKeithen, Williams and Maddox disavowed any "racist" or "segregationist" motives in bringing their case to Capitol Hill.

"We're not trying to prevent integration," said Williams. "We're trying to prevent forced integration by the numbers." "No one in the South is fighting integration as such," said Maddox, who termed busing "wrong, criminal, cruel."

"A lot of us had to see how cruel, mean and ungodly forced integration is to see just how cruel, ungodly and un-American we were busing to force segregation," said the Georgia governor.

McKeithen said the governors were protesting busing of children "like cattle," which they believe is destroying Southern public school systems. Williams said it amounted to "frank discrimination" against the South.

Gov. Robert Scott of North Carolina met separately with his state's congressional delegation. Gov. Albert Brewer of Alabama missed the senators' conference because of plane delays.

Power Head Relates Plan To Aid Land

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho Power Co. President Albert Carlson said Tuesday the company's participation in a proposed hydro development on the Middle Snake River is designed to provide an additional source of power energy for its customers and could assist the Idaho Water Resource Board in financing land reclamation.

Carlson said he made the statement in explaining Idaho Power's proposal to joint four other investor-owned utilities seeking a license to build Hill Mountain Sheep Dam or a combination of Pleasant Valley and Low Mountain Sheep dams.

The plan, which Carlson said would give his company a "full partnership" in the proposed development, was announced by Idaho Power in a statement submitted to the water and power resources subcommittee of the Senate Interior Committee during a hearing in Washington Monday.

Idaho Power's statement urged that a 10-year moratorium on dam building on the Middle Snake be withheld pending completion of studies on competing proposals.

The utilities Idaho Power proposes to join in seeking the license are Montana Power Co., Washington Water Power Co., Portland General Electric Co. and Pacific Power & Light Co., combined under the name of Pacific Northwest Power Co.

Private Game Law Is Still Under Study

BOISE (UPI)—Beyond possible introduction for printing it is doubtful the legislature this year will act on a bill to permit establishment of private game preserves in Idaho.

But that does not mean the idea is down the drain.

Chairman J. Vard Chathurn, R-Albion, of the House Resources and Conservation Committee said Tuesday he feels the proposal has merit and perhaps should be explored during the rest of this year's possible consideration at the next legislative session.

For that reason, his committee voted to hold the bill pending possible introduction for the purpose of giving it circulation by printing.

As written, the bill would permit private citizens to establish hunting preserves stocked with artificially propagated upland game birds on acreages between 100 and 1,000 acres.

Members of such preserves would be permitted, provided they had the proper hunting license, to hunt the birds between Aug. 15 and April 15. Should any "wild birds" be shot they would have to pay a fee of $3 for each one.

Chathurn said his committee had drafted legislation for the bill which could mean an income for farmers.

29 Newark Teachers Are Jailed On Contempt Count

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—Sheriff's deputies arrested 29 Newark teachers on contempt charges Tuesday just hours after all-night talks called by Mayor Hugh J. Addonizio broke down.

In Jersey City, a Superior Court judge warned striking teachers that beginning Wednesday any teacher found picketing would be arrested "without warning" and "on sight."

Judge John F. Lynch, in issuing his warning, called the picketing a flagrant violation of his no-strike court order. Thirteen Jersey City strike leaders have since been arrested for defying the injunction. A similar order is in effect in Newark.

So far 65 Newark teachers or sympathizers have been arrested in the walkout, now in its third week with no end in sight. Some 38,000 pupils have been affected by the Jersey City strike and in Newark nearly 50,000 of some 78,000 students stayed away from classes Tuesday.

Heated Protest
DAVENTRY, England (UPI)—David Hill, 37, a policeman, made a burning issue of his transfer from Corby to Daventry which, he said, "upset me and all my friends and in particular my girl friend, who lives in Corby."

Hill admitted that while on night patrol he set three fires in unoccupied buildings. He was ordered jailed for three years.

Lost Snake

HILO, Hawaii (UPI)—Police have reported the capture of a 5-foot baby python the first snake ever caught on the island of Hawaii.

"We don't know how it got here," said a spokesman for the state agriculture department.

The snake was trapped Sunday by a dog and captured by the dog's master, a geologist.

The Hawaiian Islands are supposedly free of snakes, but occasionally one is found somewhere in the state, presumably smuggled in.

Accident Toll

OSLO (UPI)—Accidental deaths in Norway in 1969 totaled 957, compared with 969 in 1968. Of the 1969 victims, 185 were children under 16 years of age, against 172 a year earlier.

Traffic accidents accounted for 434 fatalities in 1969, compared with 436 in 1968. 226 persons drowned, lost with 264, and 66 were lost at sea, against 35 in the previous year.

Seeds of plants such as wild rose, grasses and weeds are mainstays in the diet of prairie chickens and sharp-tailed grouse.

LDS Affiliated Store In Bingham Back On Tax Roll

BOISE (UPI)—The Idaho Board of Tax Appeals reversed a Bingham County Board of Equalization decision Tuesday and ordered the Deseret Industries' store in Blackfoot returned to the tax rolls.

A memorandum from the board said the board of equalization had granted the property an exemption from ad valorem taxation but the exemption was appealed by Everett N. Goodwin, Bingham County assessor, and L. R. Clegg and John Otter, both Bingham County taxpayers.

The Board of Tax Appeals said that to qualify under the section of the Idaho Code exempting fraternal, benevolent or charitable corporations or societies from taxation the property must be owned by a charitable organization, must be used exclusively for the purposes for which the corporation was organized and must not be used for business purposes from which a revenue is derived.

The memorandum said Deseret Industries, organized as a non-profit corporation under Utah laws, provides employment for handicapped persons "may otherwise employable by private industry" who renovate and sell used merchandise donated to the program.

The "critical question," the memorandum said, is whether Deseret Industries is using its Blackfoot property for "business purposes" from which a revenue is derived.

New York Still Is Garment Center

NEW YORK (UPI)—The companies that manufactured U.S. women's apparel a century ago paid little attention to fashion. Greeley's advice to "Go West, young man" and their "fretfully competitive successors still haven't done so, either, to any great extent.

Meinhard Commercial Corporation, a C.I.T. Financial Corporation subsidiary providing funds to the apparel industry, notes that a recent industry study shows that two out of three women's coats, suits, dresses and lingerie items still are made by firms here.

Reds, U.S. Firm Trading Secrets

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — An American company is trading secrets with Russia in the hope it will help the entire world.

Scientists of Cargill, Inc. and plant breeders in Russia have agreed to trade "seed secrets" before the improved varieties are finally tested and released to farmers in their own areas. Previously seed men in this country could not obtain new seeds until long after they had been released in Russia.

Cargill, an international farm products firm with plant breeding stations throughout the world, said it expects to obtain Russian samples of wheat and sunflowers for planting this year. Early sharing of seed materials between the two countries could result in higher yielding grains to feed the world's hungry.

Filer Grandstand Insurance Plan Is Still Under Study

County Commissioners in Twin Falls Tuesday reported they are still working toward a possible insurance settlement on the grandstand at Filer. Chairman Heber Loughmiller said the commissioners met again with adjusters but as yet no settlement has been obtained.

The commission also issued a call for bids for county liability insurance to include the county and Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. Bids will be opened March 10 at 10 a.m. in the courthouse.

Specifications for liability coverage are available at the commissioners office, Mr. Loughmiller said.

This is the first time in several years the insurance has been awarded on a basis of bids and the action was taken on recommendation of County Clerk Harold Lancaster and County Attorney Robert Galley who issued a legal opinion last week.

Mr. Lancaster recommended all county insurance be issued on a bid basis and added about $30,000 is included in the budget for 1970 insurance coverage.

In the past coverage has been handled through the local association of insurance agents with the association distributing coverage among local agents.

Mr. Lancaster said the same results will probably be obtained under a bid system but since the law requires bids be recommended commissioners followed such a course.

Family Planning

LONDON (UPI) — Animal science has developed an aerosol spray with the scent of boar to determine whether sows are in the mood for artificial insemination, according to the annual report of the Meat and Livestock Commission.

The spray is squirted in the sow's face and her reaction tells farmers if artificial mating is worth while, the commission said.

CSI President To Serve On Vancouver Team

Dr. James L. Taylor, president of the College of Southern Idaho, will leave Sunday for Vancouver, Wash., where he will serve on an evaluating team for the Northwest Regional Accrediting Association.

The team will evaluate programs at Clark College in Vancouver.

Dr. John Tucker, president of the College of Eastern Utah, will serve as chairman of the team and Dr. Taylor will evaluate student personnel services. The evaluation will last three days.

Losing Ground?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Unless some California aerospace company is awarded a major contract — such as the multi-billion dollar Air Force B-1 bomber — in the near future the state may lose its position as one of the leading producers of military aircraft, an executive of North American Rockwell said Tuesday.

Buhl Teachers Vote Support Of Efforts For Negotiation

Buhl, — The Buhl Education Association, through its president, Charles Humphries, announced today it is in full support of the Boise Education Association in its attempt to gain the right to collectively negotiate with the Boise School Board of Trustees.

"It is our opinion," Mr. Humphries said, "the negotiations process holds great promise for educators and education alike."

"The emergence of collective negotiations in the past few years has been one of the most dramatic developments in the field of education," he said. "Collective negotiation means that a negotiating committee selected by the teachers as educators and employees. The realization of negotiations in the state of Idaho could be expedited by the adoption of guidelines by the Legislature."

"Too often collective negotiations have been viewed with alarm by those who are unformed. The educational climate tends to improve because of the negotiation process when teachers and school boards approach many of the problems of a school district with frankness and common sense. Many districts in Idaho, including Buhl, are finding this is the case since they have established successful local negotiation procedures. When negotiations are approached in this manner, their potential value to the community and education can be fully realized," he said.

DAN KAUFFMAN, MAYOR of Filer, receives a gold-rimmed coffee mug from Hobby Elliott, member of Cub Pack 73, on behalf of the five Scouting units in Filer, in honor of the Diamond Jubilee of Scouting which is now being celebrated. The Filer Scouts asked to be given projects to help make the community a better place to live.

Filer Scouts Honor Mayor In Diamond Jubilee Event

FILER — Filer Scouts observed the Diamond Jubilee of the Boy Scout movement with a special ceremony in the City Office, at which time a gold-rimmed coffee mug was presented to Mayor Dan Kauffman from Hobby Elliott, member of Cub Pack 73, on behalf of the five groups in the area.

Filer has 53 Cub Scouts (ages 8 through 10), 30 Boy Scouts (ages 11 through 13), and 7 Explorers (ages 14 through 18) celebrating this anniversary.

Cub Scout Elliott stated he hoped the Diamond Jubilee of the community would join in the celebration by helping to thank the many adults who have helped make Scouting possible by taking roles of active citizens.

These volunteers are helping the community in providing boys a program that has been recognized in character building, citizenship training, a physical fitness, according to the Cub Scout.

In thanking the Filer citizens for helping provide the scouting program, the Scouts, through their speaker, asked to be involved in the community by being given the opportunity to help make Filer a better place in which to live, and to be challenged with some meaningful projects that will improve the safety, and appearance of the community.

Scout Troop 73 and Cub Pack 73 are sponsored by the Filer American Legion Post; Scout Troop 72, Cub Pack 72 and Explorer Post 72 are sponsored by the Filer LDS Church.

Barney Carlson, Southside District Commissioner, Staff, attended the presentation and had helped Scout Elliott with his speech.

Drums Initiate Season Of Ram Fights In Indonesia

By T. C. KEMASANG
 BANDUNG, Indonesia (UPI) — The atonement rapping of drums echoes down dirt paths leading to the village of Tjivarung, hurrying along the late arrivals.

It is the end of the harvest season and a traditional bout of fighting is about to begin. Proud owners of the animals are sizing up the competition and laying a few bets that their own ram will emerge champion.

Each owner antes up a few hundred rupiah (the local currency) to the orchestra's 3,000 rupiah fee (U.S. $3). Without the orchestra there could be no fights, for the rams are conditioned to charge at the sound of the small two-sided kendang drums.

The rams are paled off by weight classifications. Weight and size of the ram determines how many times he will leap across the arena to collide head-on with another charging ram.

A lightweight ram is expected to last out 20 collisions, a middleweight 30 collisions, and a heavyweight at least 40 collisions.

Now two rams are taken into the arena. Twenty feet separate them as they stare fixedly at each other, heads lowered. The drum beats grow faster and suddenly they are off, a few running paces and a leap to smash head-on.

Over and over the rams smash heads until one or the other becomes too groggy to toe the line. Referees can award the match to the ram which displayed the most spirit in an even match.

Owners of the rams and lovers of the sport say ram-fighting is one of the less cruel sports. After all, they say, it is one hard-headed ram against another hard-headed ram and the loser normally suffers nothing more than a spell of propinqua.

New Hope Offered By Water Plan

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reservoirs lined with rubber instead of concrete.

That's a formula that offers new hope to water-poor countries, according to a report on the world's largest such reservoir.

The reservoir, dedicated recently at Kualapuu on the island of Molokai, Hawaii, will hold nearly 1.5 billion gallons of water for the irrigation of 16,000 acres.

Countless acres of land lying fallow all over the world for lack of water could be reclaimed economically with use of the nylon-reinforced butyl rubber that lines the Kualapuu reservoir, the report said.

Covering 104 acres, the lining, which is only one thirty-second of an inch thick, is secured at the top of the reservoir in an anchor trench three feet deep which is then filled with earth and packed down.

The lining will give without tearing under the tremendous pressure of 50 feet of water. Because it is light and easily handled, it was installed in less than two months, a fraction of the time required for cement construction, and at less than one-third the cost, according to the report.

Secret of the lining's strength and durability, the report said, is a nylon scrim reinforcement over the rubber, with a unique weave developed by T. J. Stevens & Co., Inc. This prevents it from stretching vertically or horizontally. It can stretch only diagonally.

As a result, when the volcanic soil under the reservoir becomes unstable, the lining gives with it.

The 16,000 acres on Molokai will be reclaimed not only for the cultivation of Hawaii's traditional pineapples but for many fruits and vegetables not grown there now.

Council Eyes City Budget At Gooding

GOODING — Gooding city councilmen worked on the new city budget at the council meeting Monday night, but the job is not yet complete, Mayor Harley Crispen said today.

The mayor explained cost estimates have not yet been completed for proposed improvements on the swimming pool, and cilling of some of the streets in the town.

Leon Grieve, manager of the Big Wood Canal Co. told councilmen that a dam on a diversionary canal one and one-half miles east of town must be replaced with a cost of some $400 which will be shared by the city of Gooding and farmers in the area.

A complaint was made to the council against Dr. H. J. Robinson for letting his cows run loose in the area and not keeping his corrals clean.

The Swinger

SINGAPORE (UPI) — It was in keeping with the spirit of the man when a new Singapore night club featuring a London stripper and a French chorus line was named the "Marco Polo," explained manager C. M. Seow.

The Italian explorer, said Seow, "believed that a man enjoyed good food and drink more if he surrounded himself with pretty girls and cheerful companions. He was a swinger."

Indians Included In Culture Class

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Students in a new intercultural communications course offered by the University of Kansas include American Indians.

The course is arranged with nearby Haskell Institute, a school operated for Indians by the U.S. government. Indians were enrolled with university students with the two groups conducting a continuous laboratory on communications problems.

Dr. Lynn Osborne, teacher of the seminar, is a nationally known specialist in speech and communication of the American Indian.

$55.80 Raised

Mrs. Webb reports many students are used in the Milner area for the various fund drives and have proven very effective.

may be expanded in the future to supply an estimated 450,000 persons in a new resort area planned for the west end of Molokai.

Glenns Ferry Chamber Head Government Faces Mammoth Headache

Urges Action On Road Plan

GLENN'S FERRY — Kent Giles, president of the Glenns Ferry Chamber of Commerce, urged at the group's Monday meeting that further action be taken by the chamber concerning a speech given last week by R. D. Graham, Glenns Ferry Highway District board member. Mr. Graham explained that it was now impractical for the highway district to improve the closest road presently connecting the Bell Rapids agricultural development project with Glenns Ferry. He said the district could maintain it only at a cost of $100,000. The chamber president said there should be more explanation on the project. Glenn Hall noted, at Monday's meeting, that he did not believe that public opinion should be used to try to force the highway district to improve the Bell Rapids connector at the expense of other projects already assigned. He said if this road is built, it would have to be at the expense of other projects. Tom Rogers said he did not appreciate the criticism of the highway district board that appeared in the local paper last week, and said he feels the highway district board is doing a good job. Mr. Hall then moved that the Chamber thank the Glenns Ferry highway district board for past accomplishments and for doing what they can to improve the road to the Bell Rapids project and by continuing to do so in the future. The motion was passed unanimously by the Chamber members. Bert Wainwright reminded members that the Farmers Night banquet is to be served Feb. 21 in the Glenns Ferry High School cafeteria. The merchants committee meeting was set for 8 p.m. Wednesday at Hansen's Cafe, moved up from Thursday this week to permit attendance at the Jaycees-Lions basketball game Thursday. The Industrial Development Corporation regular meeting was changed to Feb. 25, instead of the regular meeting date of the last Thursday of each month, because of the basketball tournament dates. Guest speaker at the Farmers Night banquet will be Pat Harwood, Caldwell, who is associated with Simplot's.

In Conducting Headcount In April

By RICHARD LERNER WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you think it a bother to fill out a census questionnaire or to give a stranger a lot of personal facts about yourself, consider what the government must do to carry out the national headcount set for April. Recruit 160,000 census takers within one month. Hire and train 12,000 "crew leaders" who will be responsible for giving enumerators the information and preparation needed to perform their tasks. Take on 13,000 social clerical personnel to handle voluminous paperwork in the census bureau's regional offices. Administer a test to each job applicant to make sure that every person employed is able to follow directions adequately and to do simple arithmetic. Provide an average of two days of classroom instruction for each enumerator hired. Once the groundwork is laid, the government must move quickly to organize this massive (mostly part-time) work force into a cohesive unit that is capable of gathering in about three weeks all the data needed in every 10-year census. The job would be even greater if the Census Bureau had to send an enumerator to every American residence as it did before 1950. Because of the big increase in population, the bureau has relied increasingly on the mails since then. About 60 per cent of American households—all in urban and suburban areas—will be sent a questionnaire this year. They are required to fill in the answers and mail it back. The remaining 40 per cent, mostly in rural or lightly populated areas, will receive the form in the mail with instructions to complete it to hold on to it until a census representative comes around. Under this system, enumerators—working in rural areas—will hit an average of 1,200 homes. Their main job will be to see that the forms have been answered completely and correctly. In metropolitan areas, enumerators' job will be to visit residences where occupants have either mailed back forms with incorrect or incomplete information or have failed to return them at all. The Census Bureau admits that it missed about 3 million persons in the 1960 count and knows it will miss some people again this year. But it is shooting for a 75 per cent rate of return on mail questionnaires and expects to round up most of the voters through the personal contacts, as well as telephone calls. The actual job of taking the census will not get under way until April 1, but the bureau already has started hiring clerical workers and "crew leaders" needed to get the operation in gear. Those employees, like the 160,000 enumerators who will be hired next month, must pass a 30-minute examination involving a variety of relatively simple verbal and quantitative exercises. The applicants achieving the highest scores will be offered jobs first. In small towns, the Census Bureau district offices usually are able to find all the people it needs. Sometimes, officials say, they have had to accept almost anyone who could pass the qualifying examination. Certainly, the pay does not create any great clamor for the job. Enumerators are paid between $2 and $2.50 an hour, on the average, with salary keyed to the number of questionnaires handled. That pay rate does not attract too many men, particularly in big cities. As a result, most of the enumerators tend to be women who are looking for part-time and temporary employment. The government also is making a greater effort this year to interest retired persons in applying for the jobs. Shortly after they are hired, the census takers are taken to a nearby public building—frequently an elementary school or firehouse—where they are given two or three days of classroom training. The instruction sessions are conducted by a crew leader with the aid of a manual prepared by the Census Bureau. Before the training period ends, the enumerators take turns interviewing each other. This is designed to give them confidence and a scale of feel for the material with which they are working. If all cases the enumerators are forbidden by law to reveal any of the information they gather. Each citizen is required by law to answer every question asked. Persons refusing to respond are subject to a maximum $100 fine or 60 days in jail, although no one has ever been imprisoned for a violation.

New Water, Garbage Rates To Begin March 1 In Burley

BURLEY — New water rates for the city of Burley are tentatively scheduled to go into effect March 1. Mayor Garis Robertson reports. The third and final reading of the ordinance raising the water and garbage rates was heard at the city council meeting Monday night. The new law was passed after two changes were made. The rate for low pressure, or irrigation, water was lower to $2.50 per year from the proposed $15 rate, while the garbage monthly fee will be $3 per month under the new law. Instead of $3.50 as first suggested. Councilmen voted to reconsider the new rate scheduled within 12 months to see if any adjustment can be made. Some criticism has been expressed, both at previous council meetings and to individual councilmen, about the garbage and irrigation water rates. These costs have been $7.50 per year for irrigation water and $2 per month for garbage collection. Rates for both business and domestic use of regular city water also were raised, and the retirement on the sewer bond, per household unit, will be raised from $1.75 per month to $2.50. John Christian, who has been employed in the city electrical department for the past 10 years, was hired as superintendent of the department, replacing Marvin McIntosh. Councilmen Also: — Hired Bill Marsa for a permanent position on the Burley police force. — Reported applications still are being accepted for the post of police chief. — Decided the city office will be closed Monday, in conjunction with the county offices in observance of Washington's birthday. — Continued discussion of a request by Boise-Cascade Container to hook onto the city sewage system. — Issued service delivery permit to Mountain Bell Telephone Co. — Issued taxicab licenses to Donald Nielson for taxicabs formerly owned by Lawrence Johnson.

Fire School Held In T.F.

Approximately 30 district rangers, fire control staff members and other officials of the Sawtooth National Forest are attending a two-day intermediate fire behavior fire course this week in Twin Falls. Conducting the sessions are a "Ting" Pagnan and Robert Hahn, regional fire division control, Ogden, Utah. Two weather meteorologists from the Boise Weather Bureau, Charles Sverson and Frank Gift, are assisting with the fire control session. Phil Cloward, local fire control officer; Gary Smithley, Fairfield, and Bill Williams, Twin Falls, are also directing the training session. Taking advantage of the off-season time, fire control and ranger personnel are studying fire behavior under various weather conditions. Mr. Cloward said. — He pointed out by better understanding of fire behavior patterns and weather influence, the personnel will be better able to plan fire control measures under actual fire conditions next summer. The body of a 160-pound man contains about 100 pounds of water.

40 Babies Saved By "Lifeline"

BOSTON (UPI)—The lives of 40 infants dying in spite of corrective surgery for stomach and intestinal defects have been saved in the last two years by a new method being refined by the Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston. This method, which doctors at Children's call the lifeline, consists of a tube inserted near the baby's heart through an incision made in the jugular vein. One out of every six children enter the first grade in Texas public schools speaks Spanish.

Planning Meet. Slated At Buhl Hall

BUHL. — Presentation of the county general plan for residents of the west and communities is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the Moose Hall here. Dr. Robert Fasolino, associate professor of architecture, Idaho State University, Pocatello, who directed the county general plan, will present information. A similar meeting was held last month in Twin Falls, but county commissioners requested a second presentation for residents of the west part of the county because of interest among residents there who were apparently unable to attend the Twin Falls meeting. The plan covers highway and road locations, indicates growth trends for communities and residential and industrial expansion. Heber Loughmiller, county commission chairman, urged all residents of the county who were unable to attend the previous planning meeting to take advantage of the Buhl presentation Thursday. GOP TO MEET JAGERMAN — The Snake River Women's Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Emma McIntosh, 536 Oregon St., Gooding, at 2 p.m. Monday.

CONGRESSMAN ORVAL HANSEN shared part of his work day recently with a newcomer in America—Soyud Tranoor, who is the Ambassador from Malil. Tranoor also represents his African nation in Canada, Brazil and Haiti. Malil is the country of the renowned city of Timbuktu (or Timbuctoo) and the Niger River. Hansen met Ambassador Tranoor at a congressional prayer breakfast and invited him to come to his office—anytime. Ambassador Tranoor did and spent much of the day with Congressman Hansen as he went about his hill business. The Ambassador, who also represents his nation at the United Nations, has been in this country only two months.

Exotic Life In Kashmir Is Just Memory Now For "Mata Hari" From New Jersey

By ROBERT GATTY
TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—A petite blonde artist and dancer from England has a tale to tell of a royal life in Kashmir—a life that ended at the point of a gun.
Mrs. Edna Bailey, known then as Miss Edna Bellefontaine, has lived for the past four years in Trenton, performing native dances from India for soldiers, the wealthy and

"Airport" Termed Best Of Universal Pictures' Films

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—In its long history of movie-making, dating back to the silent era, Universal Pictures probably has never made a better movie than "Airport."
Taken from Arthur Hailey's tuggly successful novel, the suspense thriller could be the studio's most profitable film as well.
Stars Burt Lancaster, Dean Martin, Jean Seberg, Jacqueline Bisset and a handful of other name performers, not the least of whom is Helen Hayes, who almost slips the movie into "ho pocketbook and fees."
Existential critics will brand it "old-fashioned" or a "movie movie" because there is no mud, and it shuts

Limits For Highways Announced

Spring break-up season is at hand on Idaho highways and State Highway Engineer, Ellis E. Mathes, has announced plans are under way to begin load limit and speed-limit restrictions.
He said some sections of highways will be restricted to loads of 30 pounds per inch of tire width with a maximum load of 10,000 pounds on the front axle of 10 inch tires or larger are used and 14,000 pounds on any other axle. Trucks and buses having a gross weight of 10,000 pounds or more are restricted to 30 miles per hour.
February to May is the period during which Idaho highways and weather changes. During this period restrictions are placed on highways and such restrictions are posted by special highway markers of red and yellow coloring. The red marker signifies speed restrictions to 30 miles per hour and the yellow marker means speeds of regular legal limits may be resumed.

Mr. Mathes said overweight permits will not be issued on special routes even though load and speed limits are not imposed here.
Information as to routes on which limits are imposed may be obtained from the district highway office in Shoshone or the state office in Boise.

NEW YORK (UPI)—A study by the National Safety Council reported 103 accidents involving snowmobiles in snowy Vermont last year.
The greatest danger with the snowmobile is with other motor vehicles and drawings that occurred when the snowmobile broke through nearby frozen lakes.

women's groups.
They are dances she once performed before maharajahs for which she was given jewels and for which she won notoriety.
Mrs. Bailey, still a wisp of a woman, lives in an exotic, richly decorated apartment just a block from the State House in New Jersey's capital city. She is the wife of a public relations man. Surrounded by Indian carpets, ornaments, weapons, bells, long-necked musical instruments and ornate lampshades and with the air heavy with sandalwood and incense, she dances to Eastern music floating from a record player.

But before she was exiled from Kashmir, the beautiful and troubled province which set India and Pakistan at each other's throats four years ago, she lived on a houseboat, hiked through the Himalayas, spent a night in the depths of a stored cove and painted all she saw.
She was with Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan and President Iskander Mirza in the garden of the presidential palace in Karachi four hours before Mirza was banished to England.
Mrs. Bailey spent most of her life on the Indian subcontinent. She was born in England, the daughter of a Belgian civil engineer.

She went to India at the age of 10 when her father was working for the Maharajah of Mysore and it was there that she became interested in Indian art, particularly dancing.
Before she was banished from Kashmir in 1953, she was known as the Mata Hari of Kashmir because of her dancing. Then she wore, as she still does, a black wig and Indian native costumes to perform the exotic dances.
On Aug. 7, 1953, Indian police arrived at her houseboat and at gunpoint, ordered her out of Kashmir within 24 hours. She was accused of plotting with Sheikh Abdullah, then prime minister, to secure the province's independence.
Abdullah was arrested and jailed.
With her six trunks and two dogs, the Mata Hari was flown to New Delhi. She tried for years, both in Pakistan and India, for permission to return to Kashmir. But it was denied, and her sister's mother, died there alone.
After her exile, Mrs. Bailey wrote an autobiography "Exiled from Paradise," telling of her experiences.
She says she was the first white woman to enter the Himalayan Kingdom of Nepal, escorted over Himalayan foothills to Katmandu by a bodyguard of the Indian government.
She danced for royalty and under a painted sign with a gold-embroidered waistcoat, heavy and ornamental jewelry.
The dances themselves call for absolute harmony of the hands, feet and head, she said.
The eyes tell a good bit of the story too. The eyes express love, religion, heartache, longing, joy.

the eyes tell a good bit of the story too. The eyes express love, religion, heartache, longing, joy.
The dances are physically exhilarating, but the legends and myths of India inspire such peace of mind. And these days, we can all use that.

Market List At Jerome Is Released

By ROGER E. SPEAR

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market barged ahead through mid-session Wednesday, but many analysts forecast a "good burst of sustained movement upward until the Federal Reserve Board moves away from its drum-tight credit policy."

Trading was moderately active.

The general consensus was that sentiment was helped by an improved bond market and by recent easing of short term money rates.

In addition, one analyst commented the market had been overbought and due for a rally anyway.

Electronics, oil, motors and conglomerates led the parade of winners, although steel and chemicals also were big favorites.

Shortly before 1:15 p.m. the U.P.I. market-wide indicator showed a gain of 0.88 per cent on 1,482 issues crossing the tape. Of these, 807 advanced and 339 declined.

The Dow Jones Industrial average rose 7 7/8 to 755.21.

A three-hour turnover of about 8,000,000 shares was running more than a million shares ahead of the comparable period on Tuesday.

'Gillnet Gang' Helps A City Without Seeking Pay, Honor

By SPENSER W. HAVLICK
Ann Arbor, Michigan

In the late evening shadows I stood back and watched the gang of teenagers, armed with paint-spray cans, launch their attack. Their target: Obnoxious graffiti on an overpass which shouted insults at passing traffic.

Black paint blossomed, and the epithets faded away. The Gillnet Gang had struck again.

Later I heard somebody say, "Well, the railroad finally got busy." The youngsters got no credit. And that's the way they wanted it.

The Gillnet Gang of Ann Arbor, Michigan, gets its kicks by working swiftly and silently, leaving no calling card. Neither city authorities nor their schools know who they are.

As the local paper put it, "This gang works for society, not against it. Their goal is not money or power, but good deeds; and the enemy is not the establishment, but red tape."

As a confidant to the gang, I smiled when I read that. For in a way, a big-city ghetto gang should be thanked for the Gillnet Gang's existence.

The idea began about three years ago when my wife and I were contributors to the Methodist Youth Fellowship of Ann Arbor's First United Methodist Church. Our members had been devoting some vacation time to work in big-city ghettos. Some were working in Chicago's West Side.

Facilitated with the way city youths organized into powerful street gangs, they decided to form their own gang in Ann Arbor—not to fight, but to help people.

They didn't want personal glory just the fun of doing something for others. "We don't even want people to know who we are," they emphasized. Anonymity kept their parents out of the picture and helped them avoid the "do-gooders' stigma."

We chose the name "Gillnet" to connote the religious symbol of Peter, the fisherman, and the other early disciples who went on to become "fishers of men" for God. And, of course, our prayer, an indispensable part of his life, helped him when he suffered a cracked vertebra.

The group has no officers; no formal leaders. The member who initiates a project is elected chief and starts the ball rolling.

I serve as a sounding board for projects and strategies for carrying them out. Naturally, I point out the physical or legal hazards and help them think not only of the deed but of its consequences.

But they make the final decision. If the word is "go," then their telephone message chain begins buzzing.

Often their target is a festering community problem bogged down in quagmire. Given enough time and push by citizens, it would eventually be taken care of. The Gillnet Gang takes pride in getting it done a little sooner and a little more surely.

When the city installed big garden planters along M St. and Straub, they gaped empty and forlorn while the city argued with businessmen about who'd plant and care for the flowers. The Gillnetters filled one of the planters at night to give downtown a quick taste of color. Since then the businessmen and city have together taken over the task.

Several civic groups planned a Saturday morning cleanup along a section of our Huron River. Friday evening about 40 Gillnetters bled out to the section. I never saw kids work so hard and fast before. Within a couple of hours they had piled all the trash into a giant heap, ready for the truck to pick it up.

Next morning the tanks arrived to find all their work done. They stood around the pile in open-mouthed astonishment, but not for long. They went on to clean up another section of the river front.

Careers for children figure in a lot of their projects. Recently a need developed for a school-crossing sign at a critical intersection. While officials discussed and rediscussed proper procedures, children continued to cross the street unprotected. Suddenly a temporary but adequate warning sign sprouted at the intersection.

The Gillnet Gang has outgrown its original MYF nucleus. Today, with four adult counselors, including myself, the group is not identified with any particular church or denomination. It has become a city-wide gang, composed of kids of all classes, faiths and races—white, black, Oriental—all teamed together in the great fraternity of His Spirit.

The original creed of the Gillnets remains the same: "Your good deed must be secret, and your Father Who sees what is done in secret will reward you."

But the reward is no secret; you see it shining in their eyes. (Copyright © 1969 by Guideposts magazine, Carmel, N. Y. 10512)

MALTTREATMENT THE HAGUE (UPI)—Each month 10 children die in Holland as a result of maltreatment by a parent, according to Secretary of National Health Dr. R. J. H. Kruldinga. He said experts estimate there are 1,200 cases of child maltreatment in Holland annually.

Malnutrition is a major cause of child mortality in many developing countries, according to a report by the World Health Organization. The report, titled "The Reasonable Exercise of Authority," says that in many countries, parents are often unaware of the nutritional needs of their children.

Construction Work At CSI Falls Behind, Board Told

Meeting in regular session Monday night, College of Southern Idaho trustees heard a construction report which placed all projects behind schedule as of Jan. 26.

Moreover, Dr. James L. Taylor, CSI president, said time has been made up on two of the projects and they are running ahead of schedule at this time.

These projects are the "commons" and the dormitory, which on Jan. 26 were 13 per cent complete, with 17 per cent of the contract time lapsed.

Dr. Taylor said non-arrival of steel caused the slowdown in construction, but since steel has arrived, both projects are moving along rapidly.

VAN DYKE SPECIAL HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dick Van Dyke's fourth television special will find him co-starring with Bill Cosby for CBS.

Court Argues That State Must Protect NHL

OTTAWA (UPI)—Professional hockey could be the modern equivalent of "the arena of ancient Rome," and the state must step in to protect the players from harm, whether they like it or not.

That was the argument of the prosecution Tuesday in the final testimony season of the precedent-setting trial of Ted Green of the Boston Bruins and Wayne Maki of the St. Louis Blues—the first professional hockey players to face criminal charges for fighting during a game.

Green suffered a serious head injury in a stick-swinging fight with Maki during an exhibition game in Ottawa Sept. 21, and neurosurgeons had to insert a metal plate in Green's skull. Both players were charged with "assault causing bodily harm."

Green pleaded innocent before provincial court judge Edward C. Carter Tuesday, and returned to a hospital Tuesday afternoon for more surgery. His trial was postponed until March 9.

Testimony in Maki's trial ended, and the judge set March 5 as the date to deliver his verdict.

A conviction could bring a fine or up to two years in jail. Maki's defense was that a player voluntarily accepts the risks that go with a rough game like hockey when he takes it up as a career.

The prosecutor, crown attorney Peter Marvich's spokesman, said he "is alarmed and shocked" by the defense argument.

"If this is true, hockey has become the arena of ancient Rome," Cassels said.

"No one should be in a position to expose himself to injury, no matter what he may say. The welfare of the individual is a concern of the state and the community at large."

Bush Hitting At 52.5 Clip In MVC Loop

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Joe Hamilton is threatening the 1,000-point mark for a career, which would send any shivers up Pete Maravich's spine, but still is a milepost for college basketball players.

Hamilton, North Texas' 5-10, do-everything guard, has 928 points and should join the 1,000-point club this week. He has 407 points this year for a 23.7 average in 29 games, tops in the Missouri Valley Conference. But Hamilton has been even more impressive in conference action. He has a 25.5 average in 11 MVC games, also the best in the league. Wichita State's Greg Carney is close behind with a 24.0 average.

Drake's Jeff Halliburton and Tom Bush, both junior college transfers, dominate the shooting percentages. Halliburton is the leader, hitting 53.4 per cent of his field goal tries, while Bush is mulling 52.5 per cent.

Clayton's Jim Ari is the rebounding leader with 14.6 caroms in 12 league games. Louisville's Mike Grosso, the lone senior on a team of sophomores, is pulling down 33.5 rebounds per game.

Yale Will Seek Support From ECAC

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)—Yale University will formally seek the support of the 100-member Eastern College Athletic Conference in the dispute involving basketball player Jack Langer when the ECAC meets Feb. 25 in New York.

Yale Athletic Director Delaney Kipphut Tuesday made public the text of the university's resolution which the Ivy League Institution hopes to have passed during a full ECAC membership meeting.

The resolve calls for the NCAA council to "reconsider and abandon" its policy relating to the Macaulay-Gammon which would, if successful, vacate the athletic probation imposed on Yale and reinstate Langer's collegiate basketball eligibility.

Kipphut ordered the resolution made public after it was circulated at the full ECAC membership.

At the same time, another ECAC member, tiny Marist College of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., offered its support to Yale in the continuing dispute. In a letter to Kipphut, Marist Athletic Director Howard Goldman noted that "students are questioning arrogant or unjust laws" and said, "We, as leaders, can do no less than our students. Yale is being punished for having the courage of its convictions."

Wendell And Declo Draw A-3 Byes

Declo and Wendell draw the first-round byes for the opening round in the split site A-3 district basketball tournament Tuesday.

The district moved the first two nights to Valley and Glenns Ferry and then will come to Shoshone to wrap it up at the Shoshone gymnasium.

The drawings near Valley will meet Kimberly at 8 p.m. Feb. 28 at Valley with Glenns Ferry going against Shoshone at the same time in Glenns Ferry. Declo and Wendell will meet the winners at 8 p.m. at the two sites Feb. 27.

The tournament will have its first doubleheader Feb. 28 at Shoshone with the four losers trying to eliminate one another. The tournament will resume the following Wednesday at Shoshone.

Knicks Coast Past Lakers

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cazzio Russell scored 18 points, including 10 during a third period New York rally, as the Knicks defeated the Los Angeles Lakers 114-97 Tuesday night to wrap up their ninth season series.

With the Knicks leading by six points, 63-57, Russell connected on all five of his shots in the third quarter to spearhead New York's 23-9 surge and help the Knicks finish the period with an 84-65 lead.

Dave DeBussche gathered in a career high 20 rebounds as a Knick and scored 10 points as New York widened its Eastern Division lead in the National Basketball Association to 1-2 games over second place Milwaukee.

Army Defeats Seton Hall

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (UPI)—Army, bidding for the National Invitation Tournament, was forced into overtime to defeat Seton Hall 77-69 Tuesday night as Jim Oxlley got 19 points for the Cadets.

The victory gave the Cadets a 17-5 record, including four consecutive victories.

Seton Hall came from eight points behind with eight minutes to play and a basket by Gary Cavallo put the Pirates ahead 66-63, 3-48. Oxlley hit a 14-point shot to tie the score 68-68 and force the game into overtime.

Williams Grooms 20 Senators

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Ted Williams welcomed 20 pitchers and four catchers to the opening of spring training Tuesday as he began his second year as manager of the Washington Senators.

"It will be easier for me this season," said Williams, who brought the Senators from last to fourth place in the American League's Eastern Division last season. "At least this season, I know the players' names."

Williams said he was pleased with the physical condition of the Senators. "They look pretty trim for a bunch of pitchers—non-athletes," he said jokingly.

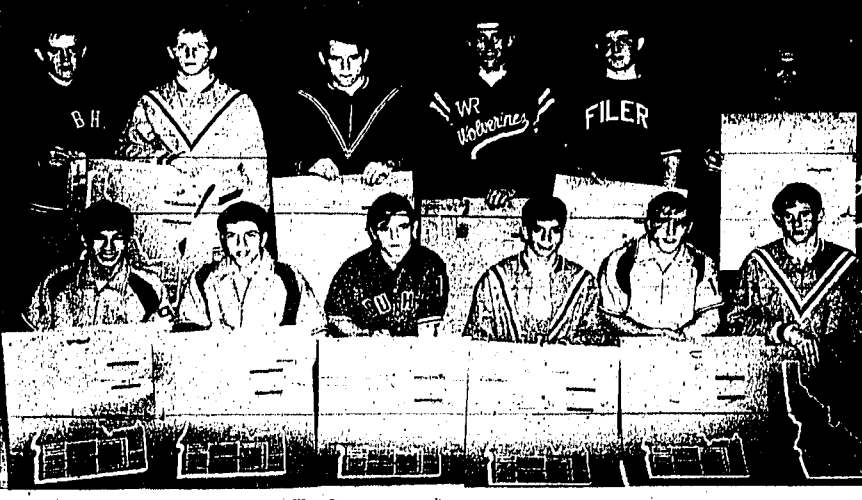

Reliever Bob Humphreys, who has not come to spring camp, and catcher Paul Casanova and pitcher Jim Frazier, both of whom recently turned from winter ball in Venezuela, were the only absentees at the workout, cut short by light rain.

St. Louis Cops Overtime Win

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Sam Williams scored nine points in overtime Wednesday night and gave St. Louis University an 87-78 win over Southern Illinois.

Williams entered the game in the last minute of regulation time and was charged with throwing the ball out of bounds. In the overtime period, he hit seven free throws and the final St. Louis basket. Williams' scoring average before the game was less than five points a game.

The Billikens had tied the game at 68-68 at the end of regulation time on a 10-foot jump shot by Joe Wiley.

Frazier Gets Phone Call From Cassius, Gives Warning To Knock Off Kid Stuff

NEW YORK (UPI)—The phone rang early Tuesday morning in Joe Frazier's hotel room.

The night before had been a full one for Frazier—winning an undisputed world heavyweight title by stopping Jimmy Ellis in five rounds, going to one of those dreary victory parties and then getting a $400 a week raise from Cloverly, the corporation that owns his contract.

If the caller had been anybody else, Frazier probably would have rolled over and gone back to sleep. But this call was from Cassius Clay, and Frazier had a few things to settle with the deposed champion. Of course, nothing will really be settled unless they someday fight each other, but long distance telephone calls will have to suffice for the present. If Clay's last appeal on a draft evasion conviction fails in June, he'll go to jail.

"I told him I don't want no foolishness," Frazier said. "Now he's living in Philadelphia only 25 miles away from me, and we gonna have to go downtown to the ring."

Ellis also answered the telephone Tuesday morning to talk to Clay. Clay said he picked Ellis, his former sparring partner, to beat Frazier.

"He said he was sorry and told me I didn't dance enough," Ellis said. "I told him he was right. I still think Clay could beat Frazier, but people underestimate Frazier. I never hit him a solid shot all night, and his hands are a lot faster than most people think. I never saw those left hooks, and that's the kind that hurt you."

Maybe they cried before Frazier after the fight was going back to his hotel and telling his mother and his children how it happened. They were too nervous to attend and listened to the fight on a hotel radio.

Maybe they cried before I got back," Jimmy said, "but they'd never let me know. James Junior's just 9 years old, and he told me 'if anybody in school says anything—pow.' James would do it, too."

Jimmy Ellis will probably never dance in history as the heavyweight champion. That honor is saved for Frazier, who put the title back together again. Ellis is just another contender now.

The new champion sat on a raised platform in the press conference Tuesday, speaking into a half dozen microphones while the television floodlights glared above and flash bulbs popped away. It was Frazier's moment, and Ellis waited in a chair by the manager, Angelo Dundee, until the champion was finished.

"I want to fight twice a year," Frazier said, "but I want to my hand to make some money for them. They've been sitting around waiting for me to get over this fight so we could go play some clubs, and I'll probably go out to Las Vegas in two weeks or so for an engagement if my wife lets anything can happen next time."

The list of contenders that might be pushed off as "suitable" is rather short, almost non-existent, but Vance Durham, Frazier's manager, isn't worried about finding fighters willing to challenge for the title.

"There are plenty of good fighters around," Durham said. "There's Mac Foster out on the West Coast and Bob Foster, the light heavyweight champion, and people tell me Floyd Patterson wants to fight again, and then George Foreman will be ready in a year or so. There'll never be any shortage of fighters for Joe, and we'll take 'em all in order. He'll rest for a while, and then fight again in September."

There won't be much time for Ellis to rest.

"I wish it was hunting season so I could just get away from everyone for a while," Ellis said, "but I gotta start all over boxing for the money." Ellis hit take on every fighter, on that list of contenders, and then Frazier again. He was a great fighter last night, but Dundee said he had no regrets about stopping the fight, and Ellis also said he thought his manager did the right thing.

I spent all night trying to figure out when I was knocked down twice," Ellis said, "and I can only remember the referee counting over me once and then hearing the bell ring. I still feel that left hook." Jimmy rubbed the side of his face gently and moved his jaw.

"He came back to the corner the end of the fourth round," Dundee said, "and I slapped his calves, put salts under his nose, pinched his neck and told him to move his legs. His response was zero. I've got to protect my fighter."

And then the fighters went into the Garden boxing office to get their equal 30 per cent shares of the live gate of $645,997 that had been paid by 18,073 fans.

"I always said I was in boxing for the money," Ellis said, "but sometimes I check out, but sometimes I check out doesn't look as big as it should."

Sports Illustrated Links Detroit Star McLain With Gambling Ring

NEW YORK (UPI)—Denny McLain, the Detroit Tigers' celebrated 20-game winner, contributed money to support a bookmaking operation in 1967 that accepted bets in several sports, Sports Illustrated said Tuesday.

In a copyrighted story to appear in this week's issue, the magazine said "members of a Syrian mob with Cosa Nostra connections" sponsored the operation.

McLain could not be reached for comment on the report. He has not been reported seen publicly since Friday, when he met with Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn in New York in regard to an investigation by the office into "off-field activities" by McLain in 1967. McLain's agent, William G. Center of the Cleveland firm of Sports Management, Inc., also could not be reached for comment on the charge of the firm told United Press International "we just can't say anything at this time. We just have to sit tight."

Kuhn declined comment on the report, as did Tigers General Manager James Campbell at Detroit's spring training headquarters at Lakeland, Fla. The Sports Illustrated story said McLain went in with a soft drink executive who had taken an interest in his career in putting up the money. The article said the two were persuaded to back another man who was the apparent operator of the book, which was headquartered in a restaurant in Flint, Mich.

McLain failed to appear in circuit court in Flint Monday concerning a suit in which a bank is seeking to collect from him more than $7,000 on a promissory note signed in 1968. McLain also failed to appear Monday in regard to $2,450 in rent allegedly owed on his Beverly Hills, Mich., home.

Late Tuesday, a Flint attorney, Paul Godola, who said he represents both the restaurant and the man described by the magazine as head of the bookmaking operation, said he was preparing a statement concerning the Sports Illustrated article.

Marla Hiatt, Patterson Say Wedding Vows

RICHFIELD — Marla Faye Hiatt and Kenneth Ray Patterson exchanged marriage vows in an evening ceremony Jan. 17 at the Richfield LDS Church. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Hiatt, Richfield, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Norma Patterson, Orem, Utah, and the late Elmo Patterson.

Bishop Jay Ward performed the double ring ceremony with the bridal couple standing under a cluster of large white wedding bells flanked by topiary trees of pink and white flowers. Six tall tapers lighted the scene and a floral arrangement of pink and white carnations decorated the piano. Preceding the ceremony the bride's father sang, accompanied on the piano by his daughter, Brenda Hiatt.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of sculptured velvet which the bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Hiatt, Richfield, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Norma Patterson, Orem, Utah, and the late Elmo Patterson.

The bride was attended by Becky Sorensen and Linda Akins, senior classmates at Richfield High School. Mark Fuhrman, Provo, served as best man, and Art McKinley, Provo, and Mike Saura, Sacramento, were ushers.

A reception in the cultural hall of the church followed the ceremony. Large white wedding bells and streamers of pink and white crepe paper formed the setting for the receiving line. Guests were seated at quarter tables covered with pink cloths and centered with clusters of white bells and ribbon.

The bride's table was covered with white dotted swiss with a pink overart decorated with pink daisies and ivy and swags of pink ribbon. The three-tiered white wedding cake was designed with the top tier separated by a crystal goblet. White wedding bells enhanced the tier. Bouquets of pink and white roses complemented the decor. Mrs. Ronda Hunt, aunt of the bridegroom, Carey, was decorator for the wedding.

Rena King and Teresa King served the wedding cake. Ann King and uAnn Brown presided at the tables.

Sharon Patterson was in charge of the guest book. Rose Ella Froelsted served at the punch table.

Special Potatoes Just For Dieters

"I'm Still Hungry" is the dieters' sad song. Whatever the diet, the lament is the same. It stands to reason that the most effective diets are the ones that cater to your innermost self.

Most people just don't have the stomach for all the sleek things you eat even if they could afford the price. Nor the high carbohydrate diets that satiate for an hour or two. What most people really like to eat are meat, potatoes, vegetables, salads and sweets. Soup to nuts when you are allowed to eat these foods in a balanced diet cutting calories with smaller portions, you're bound to lose weight. What's more, that's about the only way to keep that weight lost.

This recipe from India for Dum Aloo is one to keep in your diet file. It cuts calories with skill and cunning. There's no doubt that a good baked Idaho potato, though only 83 calories per 3 1/2 ounces, will help to fill you up. When it's stuffed with a good lamb hash, it does even more. The hash is a pungent mixture of the potatoes and lean lamb, onions, peppers and tomatoes. No need for butter on the table at all. The recipe makes extra hash to bake outside the shells; only for those who simply must go back for seconds.

Idaho Potatoes Stuffed The Indian Way:

- DUM ALOO
- 6 Idaho potatoes
 - 2 cups lean lamb, cubed
 - 2 cloves garlic, crushed
 - 6 green onions, diced
 - 1 green pepper, chopped
 - 1 large tomato, chopped
 - 1/2 teaspoon crushed red pepper
 - 1 teaspoon tarragon salt and pepper
 - chicken broth

Cut potatoes in half lengthwise and scoop out flesh with a melon baller, leaving shells intact. Dice potatoes and brown with lamb in oil with garlic. Add onions, green pepper, tomato and seasonings; continue cooking for a few minutes. Spoon filling into potato shells using wooden butcher skewers to secure top and bottom shells. Arrange in casserole with extra filling. Pour about 1/2 cup broth into casserole and bake at 400 degrees until potatoes are tender. Add more broth as the mixture dries out. Serve with salt and chutney.

Lesson Topic Is Presented

DECLO — "Money management" was the topic of the lesson presented to members of the Thrifty Thrivers Home Extension Club by Mrs. Lee Anderson and Mrs. James Rodgers when they met at the Rodgers' home.

Shoppers I.Q. tests were distributed to the group after which they discussed the answers. The two women emphasized the importance of buying from fair businessmen who sell good quality products and provide good service. They reported the shopper should report her likes and dislikes to the dealers and manufacturers so they can better serve them.

Mrs. Lawrence Thompson assumed her new duties of the presidency of the club and conducted the meeting. Secret pal gifts were received by Mrs. Gale Fortz, Mrs. Janet Broesch, Mrs. Dick Fuqua, Mrs. George Schrank and Mrs. Chuck Kowitz. A baby gift was purchased for Mrs. Tony Wickel.

Only girls in their junior year of high school are eligible to participate. Candidates to represent Twin Falls as delegates to the 1970 session are Sherry McClamer, Coleen Frith, Sue Johnson, Linda Lincoln, Phyllis Chumplin, Suzanne Hedrick, Carolyn Rhodes, Patty Ullman, Coleen Arrington, Joyce Guyer, and Janice Cook.

The faculty of Twin Falls High School chooses these girls on the basis of leadership, scholarship, character, courage, cooperativeness, honesty and physical fitness. The delegate need not be a straight A student, merely have no D's or F's.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I applaud your comments to the mother who snooped in her daughter's diary to find out if she was a "good" girl.

Two years ago I discovered that my mother had been reading my diary and listening in on my phone calls. I was terribly shocked and hurt. My faith and trust in my mother were shattered, and my respect for her diminished.

I am now 18, and more mature than I was then, but a trace of bitterness still remains.

If that mother is really concerned about her daughter's emotional state, she should realize that a meddling, over-protective parent can cause more harm than good. And if she continues to violate her daughter's privacy, she is running the risk of destroying what otherwise might be a good relationship with her daughter. Privacy is a precious thing to a teenager.

YOUNGER BUT WISER

DEAR YOUNGER: Well said, young lady. Well said.

DEAR ABBY: My dog, Lowell, is very sick and the vet says he will die shortly. I would like to have a funeral for him as if I have had him for 11 years and he is like a member of the family.

I have asked friends of mine who have known Lowell since he was a pup if they would attend the funeral which would be held at my house. They all laughed at me, and when I finally convinced them that I was serious, they said I was crazy. What do you think?

MISSIS HIM ALREADY

DEAR MISSIS: I can easily understand your feelings. I do think, however, that your friends are insensitive and unnecessarily unkind. Obviously, they have never truly loved a pet. (Their loss.)

DEAR ABBY: This is regarding "Troubled" and "Sierra Bonita," each of whom expressed concern one way or the other about the height of the men of their dreams, the former being unhappy because he's too short, and the latter considering slight height some sort of virtue.

The height of a man, without a doubt, is one of the most ridiculous criteria for happiness foisted upon women, apparently mesmerized by Madison Avenue and romance claptrap which propagandize what the "ideal" couple should look like — mon taller, of course.

No less silly is the preference for a man because he is short. I'm happy that "Sierra Bonita" is happy with her little cutie, but contrary to her implication, a man's being short does not automatically result in his having a good sense of humor, empathy, or consideration for others. There are short men who are pushy and boring, as if their super-inflated egos make up for their lack of physical stature.

What in the world do physical features (tall, short, handsome, plain, etc.) have to do with what's inside the guy? It's the inside with which one has to relate in some meaningful way for a lasting relationship. Tall or short, there's gotta be something going for the "odd couple" other than physical attributes (in either partner) or the delicious duo is doomed to fizzle. (After all, one has to quit the mush and get out of bed eventually!)

I happen to be 5 ft. 10 in. tall, and my sweetie pie is a mere 5 ft. 5 in. tall, and the greatest guy in the world. (He makes the Robert Goulet-type look like a midgen in my eyes.) The thing about us is that neither of us gives a fig because we don't fit the "image" — we're too interested in each other, and learning about ourselves and each other, to care what the rest of you out there think of how we look together. Maybe "Troubled" could do the same and be happier.

THE TALL AND THE SHORT OF IT!

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 88700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90088. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

MR. AND MRS. S. WAYNE WOOD (Ambrose photo)

Jolie Cavin, Wood Wed In Home Rites

JEROME — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lennan, south of Jerome, overlooking the Snake River Canyon, was the setting for the wedding of Jolie Lou Cavin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Cavin, and S. Wayne Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart W. Wood, Boise.

The couple repeated vows before a large picture window outlined with gold tinsel. A large tree and two beauty baskets of white chrysanthemums and red carnations with large white satin bows completed the setting.

Rev. Harold Livingston performed the double ring ceremony, attended by members of the two families.

The wedding music was played by Cheryl Freese who also accompanied Mrs. Dennis Stauffer, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white net cape with a silver star design over white satin. The gown was fashioned with full bell sleeves and a "V" neckline accented with a large white satin bow with streamers that fell to the hemline.

Her circle veil of English silk illusion was held by a double velvet bow highlighted with maribou.

She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and feathered white carnations tied with satin showers with accents of maribou.

Special guests were grandmothers of the bride, Mrs. Gracu Lennan, Jerome, and Mrs. A. D. Cavin, Twin Falls.

The couple was honored at an open house at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Stauffer was matron of honor. Kirk Brower, Bellevue, served as best man. A reception was held with Gail Hoppe, Twin Falls, at the guest book. She also arranged the gifts, assisted by Kelly Cavin, sister of the bride.

The refreshment table was covered with lace over red and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with white and red wedding bells and silver swans. It was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom backed with white tulle studded with seed pearls. Placed on a mirror, the cake was encircled with green holly and berries.

Mrs. Richard Lennan, aunt of the bride, cut and served the cake. Mrs. Larry Hauber, Twin Falls, poured.

The couple honeymooned in Sun Valley.

The bride has been a receptionist at JB's in Twin Falls.

Mr. Wood is employed by Intermountain Gas Co., Twin Falls, where the couple reside.

BUHL — Mr. and Mrs. John Schaal were feted at an open house in observance of their Golden Wedding Anniversary. About 100 friends and relatives called during the afternoon to extend wishes to the honorees.

Little Increase Expected On Food Prices

GLENN'S FERRY — "Little increase in average retail food prices during the first six months this year is expected," is the heartening word from Marilyn Jordan, Elmore County extension home economics agent.

Not much change is anticipated this winter in meat prices, because of reduced supplies of pork and a growing demand for beef. The price of coffee is likely to go up, because of recent increases at wholesale following a long stable period. Prices for dairy products, cereal and baker products, and sugar and other sweets likely will continue gradually upward. Little change is in prospect for fats and oils. Lower prices may come for some foods because of larger supplies, including fruits, potatoes, chicken and eggs.

Prices for food away from home likely will continue to in line with costs of labor and other consumer services.

Average food prices for 1969 seem to be coming out about five per cent higher than 1968. A gradual slowing of the trend is expected in 1970, with an increase of three per cent anticipated.

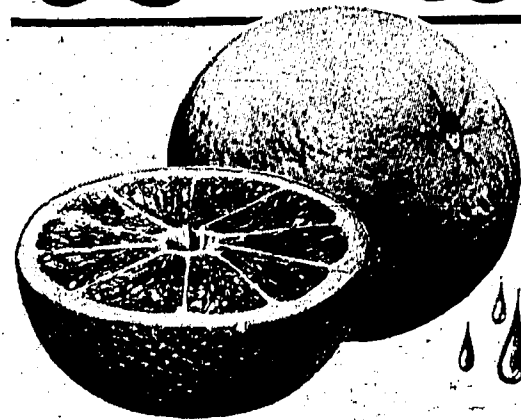

Prices received by farmers for food commodities probably will contribute to the relatively stable food price picture in 1970 on a national scale, Mrs. Jordan summarized.
