Mansfield: Laos Bombing Will Escalate Conflict

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Saturday the United States was escalating the Laos War by bombing the Plain of Jars. "Escalation usually begets escalation," he warned.

"I was surprised to find that we were using B52's in Laos, not just on the (11th Air) trail but on the Plain of Jars as well," Mansfield said in an interview.

"That is an escalation. It will mean that the North Vietnamese will get a tighter grip on the Laotian territory they already hold."

While he was critical of the U.S. bombing, Mansfield said he had no indication that there were any American ground troops in Laos.

The senator's statement coincided with a statement from the State Department that the news reports of the loss of the Plain of Jars to the North Vietnamese army appear to be accurate.

The department declined further comment, aside from expressing regret there had been no response to the Vietnamese government's proposal for a political settlement on the disputed territory.

Mansfield, long a critic of U.S. military involvement in Southeast Asia, declined to speculate whether the bombing might prompt even stronger military attacks by North Vietnam, which has forces in Laos.

But he said the North Vietnamese "still have by far the largest elements of their regular army in North Vietnam," indicating more troops could be dispatched to Laos.

"The escalation of the war in Laos makes it more mandatory than ever that the hearings on Laos concerning our participation there — except for the highest security reasons — should be released as soon as possible."

The State Department has balked at releasing records of the hearings, which were conducted by a Senate foreign relations subcommittee headed by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo.

In a statement, Symington said reports of B52 bombing of the plain conflicted with statements of his subcommittee. If true, he said, it meant the United States was bombing "a few miles — and even less minutes — from the Chinese border."

Burger Says Justice Tends To Become Spectator Sport

ATLANTA (UPI)—Chief U.S. Supreme Court Justice Warren E. Burger said Saturday America's complex and expensive system of justice isn't working very well, and "tends to become a spectator sport."

Speaking at the mid-year banquet meeting of the American Bar Association (ABA), Burger called for prison reform, which would put an emphasis on rehabilitation to cut down the alarming rate of repeat offenders.

He also cited delayed trials, the network of appeals and retrials and overstated procedural protections, "such as the exclusion and suppression of evidence and the dismissal of cases for irregularities in the arrests or searches," as negative aspects of the system.

52 Perish In Strange Tragedy

LAGOS (UPI)—Fifty-two persons who survived a train crash Monday at Laganlanta were killed when a truck carrying them from the crash scene to a nearby hospital somersaulted, the Nigerian Daily Times reported Saturday.

According to the report, there were no survivors in the truck accident.

More than 100 persons were killed when a train plunged into a valley Monday night in the Benue Plateau state.

Police in Kafanchan said victims of the truck accident had not been identified. Their bodies were moved to Lafia Hospital mortuary.

A three-man commission is investigating the cause of the train crash.

Pope Paul Says Church Is Now In "Hour Of Darkness"

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI was quoted Saturday as saying the church is going through "an hour of darkness," like the one that shrouded the earth during the death of Jesus.

But he said the very despair of modern man is evidence of his need for Christ.

The Rev. Virgilio Levi, an editor of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, reported the Pope's words in a weekly religious editorial. He said the pontiff made the remarks to fellow participants in a week of Lenten spiritual exercises which ended today.

He said the pontiff quoted from the gospel's account of the crucifixion of Jesus: "Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour."

"It is an hour of darkness that our world is going through," the Pope said. "Christ is being denied, rejected."

Pope Paul resumed official duties Saturday after a week of Lenten spiritual exercises led by a former French longshoreman.

Equal Property Taxes Studied

BOISE (UPI)—A joint resolution was introduced in the Senate Saturday providing that taxation "must be uniform upon the various classes of property" and that all property will be assessed equally.

The proposal would, in effect, restore the proposed new state constitution to its original form as presented to the legislature.

On Friday, the Senate amended the 29-page document with Sen. Wayne Kitwell, R-Boise, leading debate, to eliminate the provision allowing classification of property for taxation purposes and providing for uniform assessment of all property.

Salt Mine

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Russians are sending people to the salt mines — to cure asthma. As a result, Soviet doctors established an asthma hospital 600 feet underground in a Ukrainian salt mine where patients breathe air saturated with salt.

47 Die When Explosions Rip European Jetliners In Flight

WUPENLINGEN, Switzerland (UPI)—A Tel Aviv-bound Swissair jetliner crashed in flames near this village minutes after takeoff from Zurich's Kloten Airport Saturday, killing all 47 persons aboard. Witnesses said the plane exploded in flight and an Arab sabotage group claimed responsibility.

The burning wreckage of the plane plunged to earth 200 yards from an atomic reactor and near an ammunition depot.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP), an Arab guerrilla organization, said in Beirut its agents had engineered the explosion aboard the Coronado jetliner. A spokesman said the craft was sabotaged "because it had high-ranking Israeli officials aboard."

The Swissair crash occurred just two hours after an explosion ripped a two-foot hole in the underbelly of an Austrian Airlines jet carrying mail destined for Israel and forced the crippled aircraft to return to Frankfurt's Rhine-Main airport where it landed safely.

None of the 33 passengers or five crew members aboard the Austrian jet was hurt in the blast which airline officials said occurred in the mail storage compartment. The plane had been headed for Vienna where the mail was to be transferred to another flight bound for Tel Aviv.

Lunar Eclipse

'Watched' On Instruments
SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—For the first time in history Saturday, man "watched" the effects of a partial lunar eclipse from sensitive instruments on the moon's cratered surface.

Temperatures plunged 11 degrees and the noonday brilliance of the full moon dimmed briefly to twilight as the earth's atmosphere cast its shadow across the lunar surface.

On the moon's Ocean of Storms, near the lunar equator, instruments set up by the Apollo 12 astronauts measured these changes and radiated them instantly to scientists maintaining an all-night vigil over recording devices in Houston's mission control center.

"We have studied these effects carefully from earth in the past," said Dr. Gary Latham of Columbia University. But through the robot eyes and skin of the Apollo 12 science station, he said, "we have now seen from the moon for the first time exactly what takes place."

"We saw no seismic event that could be attributed to the effect of the eclipse itself," Latham said.

Hawaii Law To Approve Abortions

HONOLULU (UPI)—A bill which would make Hawaii the most liberal abortion state in the nation is only a step from becoming law, with the final legislative hurdle Tuesday morning.

The state House of Representatives voted 31-20 Friday to repeal Hawaii's century-old abortion law. The Senate was scheduled to vote Tuesday on the bill and is expected to approve it by a wide margin.

Gov. John A. Bunn, a Roman Catholic, has indicated he will not veto the bill, which would strike down a statute which allows abortion only to save the woman's life.

The bill would legalize abortions performed by a licensed physician in a state-licensed hospital on women requesting the operations who have been Hawaii residents at least three months.

The bill had passed the Senate earlier but the House sent it to a joint conference committee which added several "safeguards" including the residency requirement.

Boom! And The Place Shook Up

WENDELL—A carefully placed line of explosives clipped off an overhang on the Niagara Springs road Friday afternoon, depositing an estimated 100,000 tons of rock on the road and the cliff below.

The blasting, part of a widening-project-being-completed-by the Wendell Highway District, clipped off a rocky abutment which threatened traffic on the road and presented widening of the grade to the planned 20 feet, according to Leslie Wallace, district superintendent.

Bob Blamires of Jerome, with his son, Jim, placed the explosives along the edge of the cliff, drilling 20-foot-deep holes and filling them with nitrogen pellets soaked with diesel oil.

The nitrogen pellets provide a powerful explosive at less cost than straight dynamite, Mr. Blamires said. A few sticks of dynamite with explosive primers cord linking the drill holes, triggered the blast.

The blast shored off the edge of the overhang as neatly as if it had been sliced with a knife. A second smaller blast of a couple of sticks of dynamite removed a remaining abutment.

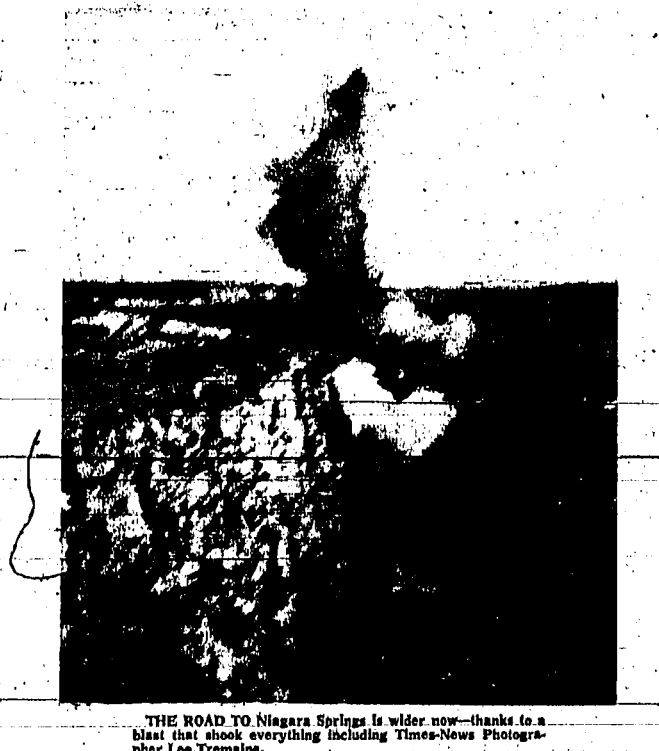

Removing the rock posed little problem, Mr. Wallace said — a bulldozer and bucket loader, working from both sides of the rock pile, shoved the rock off the road and down the grade below.

The blasting and rock removal had to be carefully timed to allow the afternoon school bus to return students to their homes down in the canyon.

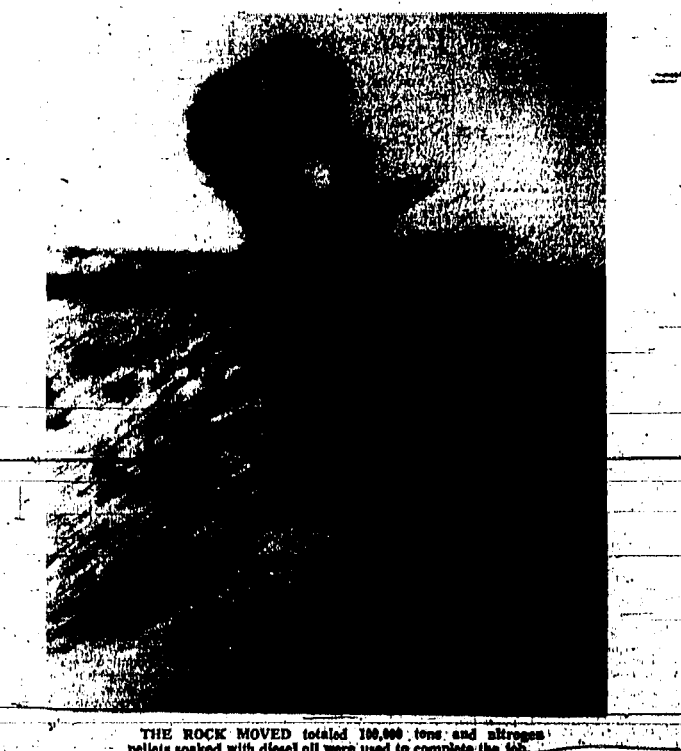

Niagara Springs, with a steelhead hatchery and park, has become a popular place, according to Robert Quidore, hatchery superintendent. During 1969, a guestbook at the hatchery recorded nearly 15,000 visitors from many states.

The Niagara Springs grade will be widened to 20 feet along its length of approximately seven-tenths of a mile, with a rock wall built at the top of the curve for traffic safety, Mr. Wallace said.

In addition, the widening project will reduce danger from erosion and thawing. There are no plans, however, to pave the grade, Mr. Wallace said.

THE ROAD TO Niagara Springs is wider now—thanks to a blast that shook everything including Times-News Photographer Lee Tremaine.

THE ROCK MOVED totaled 100,000 tons and nitrogen pellets soaked with diesel oil were used to complete the job.

Columbia-Operatic Trio To Present Concert At Burley

BURLEY — The Columbia Operatic Trio will present the Mini-Cassia Community Concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Burley High School Auditorium. The trio includes Shari Anderson, soprano; Melvin Brown, tenor; and Jack Davison, bass-baritone, a versatile and talented group. They will provide operatic excerpts, semi-classical numbers and Broadway show tunes. All three of the young American artists have performed in a variety of venues with enormous success.

Miss Anderson, a native of Shonandoah, Iowa, has appeared in opera, orchestral concert, and recitals, and is the recipient of numerous music awards and fellowships. She is currently in what high regard the artist is held by her respected benefactors.

On television she has been featured artist on National Educational Television's "Young Musical Artist Series." She has sung the leading soprano roles in "Mandame Butterfly," "La Boheme" and "Carmen" with several midwestern opera companies, has frequently been guest artist with the Kalamazoo Symphony Orchestra, and has given recitals throughout the Midwest and Northeast. As a Concert Artist Guild recitalist, she has also sung at Carnegie Recital Hall. Melvin Brown was born near Little Rock, Ark., and grew up in Southern California, where his family moved when he was small, and there received most of his musical training, beginning with piano lessons and singing as a boy soprano in church choirs.

Through his piano teacher, Tyell Hour, who directed him in the possibilities of Brown's natural tenor voice, Brown was able to audition for Barbour's long-time friend, the famed Amelia Gallucci, who was then living in retirement in Rancho Santa Fe, Calif. As a rule Mme. Gallucci did not accept pupils, but she was so enthusiastic about the young tenor that she made an exception in his case, and "became her" only pupil, full-time scholarship for five years. In addition, he has also coached

Demo Problems In Party Jumpers

WASHINGTON — All but unnoted, Rep. John O. Marsh Jr., D-Va., has given a new jolt to the leadership and all-but-fundless Democratic Party.

Marsh represents the Seventh Congressional District in Virginia's Shenandoah Valley. During four terms in the House he has compiled a conservative voting record, often siding with the Republicans against his fellow Democrats on key issues.

In his announcement, Marsh made it clear that he was not turning his back on political life and said: "I do not rule out the possibility that I may offer again for elective office."

Asked whether he planned to switch parties, Marsh replied: "There have been no offers, no details."

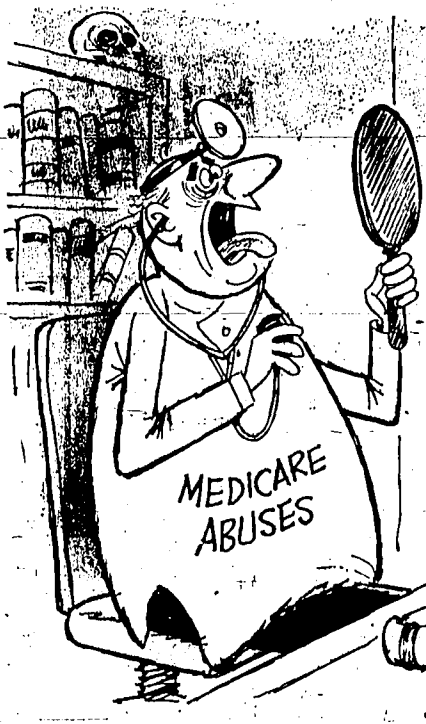

More importantly, the question is now raised in long conservative, newly Republican Virginia: "If Jack Marsh can no longer describe himself as a Democrat, can Byrd?"

Our Constitution

It is difficult to amend the Constitution of the United States and that is precisely how it was intended to be. Our Constitution is the bulwark of our liberties which we accept as a matter of course but which are still denied to the majority of the world's peoples.

Doing away with the Electoral College as an anachronism might be progressive. But to throw out the vital principle of state-by-state elections would no better serve our systems of democracy.

Nationwide Rail Strike Threat Lags

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The threat of a nationwide rail shutdown has been averted, at least for another 10 days, through court action further extending a temporary restraining order imposed last month.

U.S. District Court Judge Howard Corcoran, in extending the order Friday until midnight March 2, said he would decide then whether to take more permanent action.

"I am not going to rule on a case of this importance now," Corcoran told lawyers for both sides.

The temporary restraining order was first imposed Jan. 31 until midnight Friday after four ship craft unions struck the Union Pacific railroad and all U.S. railroads prepared to shut down in retaliation that evening.

The extension followed a breakdown Thursday in Miami Beach of negotiations between rail management and the unions over a work rules dispute that has held up agreement on a new contract.

Both sides have been negotiating a contract for 15 months. Although a big wage increase has been agreed on, the talks have stalled on the sheet metal workers' refusal to accept a work rule permitting members of one union to perform incidental work in another craft.

The other three unions—boilermakers, machinists and electricians—asked management to sign separate contracts with them and settle the sheet metal workers' dispute separately. But the railroads refused.

Five Ordered To Jail And Charged Costs

By TONY FULLER
CHICAGO (UPI) — The five men convicted of crossing state lines with intent to incite riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention have been drawn five-year prison terms and $5,000 fines.

U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman Friday also ordered that they pay an estimated $60,000 in court costs.

"It isn't whether you win or lose, Julie, it's how you play the game," Yippee leader Abbie Hoffman told the judge as he was led away.

The judge refused bail on the grounds that the convicted defendants "are clearly dangerous men." They were returned to the federal tier of the Cook County Jail, where they and two defendants found innocent are serving contempt sentences.

An eighth defendant named in the original indictment, Black Panther leader Bobby Seale, was severed from the case and is scheduled to be tried later.

Hoffman ruled that the contempt sentences and those ordered Friday would run concurrently. Under terms of that order, no defendant would serve more than five years.

The prison terms were the maximum allowable under the law. Fines could have ranged to $10,000 each.

The sentencing came in a courtroom cleared of all spectators, including the families of the defendants. Chief defense attorney William M. Kunstler protested the exclusion of spectators.

"My life was threatened by one of these men's relatives," the judge said. "She told me she would dance on my grave." (It was a reference to the cry of Anita Hoffman, Abbie's wife that "we'll dance on your grave, Julie," as she was ejected from the room Wednesday when the verdict was read.)

"Are you serious?" Kunstler asked.

"Yes, I am," said Hoffman.

The defendants had been

Report Urges President To Create Volunteer Service

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon received a report today that recommends creation of an all-volunteer armed force in peacetime, smaller but more efficient than one composed of draftees.

The report has been prepared by the President's Commission on an All-Volunteer Armed Force which was set up last March under chairmanship of former Secretary of Defense Thomas Gates.

The report is expected to recommend that a volunteer force is feasible if pay is sharply increased—up to $200 a month for recruits who now receive $110—and numbers are kept well below current strength levels.

The loss in numbers would be made up by an increase in efficiency which is now low because of rapid turnover of short-term and unenthusiastic draftees, according to the report.

During the 1968 presidential campaign, Nixon criticized the draft as unfair and said that a volunteer force would be more than worth the added cost, unless it proved to be prohibitive.

Sources said the report proposes that a draft system be reactivated in the event of a major conflict.

Even with presidential backing, attempts to do away with the draft are expected to meet with strong resistance on Capitol Hill.

Chicago Action Charge Recalled

CHICAGO (UPI) — When a federal grand jury indicted eight demonstrators almost a year ago on charges of inciting riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention it also charged seven police with violating the civil rights of demonstrators and one policeman with perjury.

The two groups both were known as the "Chicago Eight" although the indictments against the police drew far less attention than charges against the demonstrators.

brought to the courtroom for a hearing on whether government formation gained by wiretapping had tainted the case. The judge ruled it had not, then announced he was prepared to pass sentence.

Budget For Pentagon Is Austere

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird says the Pentagon budget this year is so austere that Congress probably will increase it.

Congressional critics of defense spending have something else in mind.

"I still feel very strongly we can reduce military spending $10 billion below what Secretary Laird recommends," Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., told newsmen Friday after Laird warned Senate military committees that the United States was in danger of becoming a second-rate power.

Chairman John Stennis of the Senate Armed Services Committee said he was "not convinced we are dangerously slow" in producing strategic hardware but said it would take "the greater part of this military budget to avoid becoming a second-rate power."

Laird presented the Defense Department's annual "posture statement" to Congress and told newsmen afterwards he thought "the Congress very likely will increase the defense budget in this request" because it was such a "rock bottom budget." The secretary emphasized he supported the budget, but said he would have no particular objection if Congress raises it.

Proxmire told newsmen the implication that the Russians could move ahead of the United States was "absurd," noting that the Soviets have only half as big an economy as the United States and a much smaller defense budget.

"For us to rush ahead would be a serious blunder and put us in the middle of an arms race that would impose an unbearable inflation and tax burden on the American people," he said.

More important, he added, it could "corpedo" arms control talks.

Proxmire said it would be "mutual suicide" for either country to attempt a nuclear strike on the other.

North Side Communities Slate Meet

SHOSHONE — Guest speaker at the North Side Communities meeting will be Howard Johnson, resident engineer for the Idaho State Highway Department, reports R. J. Johnson, Jerome, president.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Manhattan cafe, Shoshone. Wives of members are to be guests.

All Chambers of Commerce on the North Side are urged to send their delegates to the meeting.

A question period will be held after the talk. Mr. Johnson will tell of work of the highway department for this year and the near future with particular interest on Highway 93.

Uranium King May Escape Bankruptcy

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—A U.S. bankruptcy court referee said he is convinced uranium magnate Charles Steen will be able to make it out of his bankruptcy proceedings successfully and reiterated a previous comment that he has no intention to adjudicate Steen a bankrupt.

Referee Russell Taylor said Friday that U.S. Smelting Co. must pay $240,000 to Steen as well as pay off a note for $580,000 on the purchase of Steen's combined Metals Reduction Co. (CMR) in Ploche, Nev.

The smelting company had contended it did not have a valid contract, but Taylor ruled otherwise. The company had agreed to buy CMR some time ago.

The $240,000, if paid, will be placed with the court to help pay off Steen's creditors.

Taylor, at the conclusion of three days of hearings in the Steen matter, congratulated attorneys for the bankruptcy trustee and for Steen in their cooperation during the past few months.

Requests for compensation for the trustee, trustee's attorneys and Steen's attorneys, which were scheduled as part of the hearings, were taken under advisement.

Ogdan Educator Is Speaker At Annual Meet Of Burley Chamber Of Commerce

BURLEY — Members and guests of the Burley Chamber of Commerce heard Dr. LaVerd John, Ogdan, guest speaker at the annual Burley Chamber dinner Thursday at Ponderosa Inn.

Ernest Blauer, president of the chamber, gave the welcome address and introduced honored guests. Jay Schofield gave the invocation.

Chambers were represented from Abilene, Heyburn, Paul, Oakley, Rupert, Twin Falls, Kimberly and South Idaho Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Blauer also introduced the Burley chamber directors and their partners.

Ted Kelsey, past president of the chamber, was presented an engraved plaque for his year of service as the Burley Chamber of Commerce president.

Mrs. Kelsey was presented a floral arrangement in basket.

Retiring chamber directors introduced were Dean Gibson, Robert Saxvik, Dale Dammarell, and Glenn Simmons.

Mrs. Agnes Anderson, chamber secretary-manager, was presented an arrangement of long stemmed red roses.

The Bel Canto chorus of Burley High School in their formal dress sang several numbers under the direction of Eldon Wood.

Dr. John, assistant superintendent of Weber County School District personnel division spoke on "Communication Within the Home and the Community."

"Youth today are better qualified and prepared to meet the future than they were in our time," stated Dr. John.

"Young people look to adults for example to follow and they ask questions which should be answered. By answering questions of the youth you establish communication. In talking with the youth, ask the youth questions that will start them thinking and in turn this will put responsibility on the youth to make up their own minds as what they should do."

"Each has a mind of his own, and they are the ones who must make the choice as to what road to travel," Dr. John said.

"Tell the kids what they should know and come right to the point," stated Dr. John. "Let the son or daughter in your home know that they have the power to create life, that this power has been designed into their body and that this is the greatest creation on earth. This power to create life is a responsibility and should be held sacred. Love is also important and these things are to be protected with your life if necessary," Dr. John stated.

Mrs. John was presented a basket holding a floral arrangement.

Tiny Girl Is Found In Sagebrush

OZARK, Ala. (UPI)—Searchers found tiny kidnap victim Shaun Yvette McLeroy Friday night, wrapped in a yellow blanket and hidden in a clump of sagebrush. She apparently suffered no ill effects from her 34-hour adventure.

A mysterious note, stuffed in the mailbox of the four-month-old girl's parents, told them where to find her.

"Your baby is in the woods on the Shipperville Road a quarter mile outside the city limits," the note said.

A helicopter's searchlight danced across the grass and brush in a generally heavily wooded area some 45 minutes later and Army WO Doug Batson spotted the little girl.

Concern had been intense at this Army base city after the child was taken Thursday from the parked car of her 10-year-old mother who had run into a grocery store. Shaun Yvette suffers from a dangerous form of epilepsy and doctors had feared she would die if she did not receive medication.

Smiling up at her rescuers despite cold hands and face, the baby was rushed to a local hospital where a physician said a preliminary examination showed her to be in "fine shape."

Then she was transferred to Lyster Army Hospital at Ft. Rucker, where the father, WO Dennis McLeroy is in helicopter flight training. A military doctor, Capt. John Hollister, also said the child appeared in good condition.

Hollister said he did not believe the infant could have been where she was found for more than two hours.

White House Police Scrap New Helmets

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Those Prussian-style helmets that helped give White House policemen a new "palace guard" look have been scrapped.

The White House said Saturday the policemen complained the hats were too tight and uncomfortable. Privately, some of the guards indicated their discomfort also came from the snickers that greeted the unveiling of their new ceremonial uniforms late last month.

The high-peaked black vinyl helmets, which cost $10 apiece for the 100 policemen wearing them, will be replaced by regulation blue caps with white allcovers when the new uniforms are worn for the second time next Tuesday, when French President Georges Pompidou arrives for a state visit.

On such ceremonial occasions, the policemen will still have to wear their new white tunics with gold braid and stand-up collars.

Arab Guerrilla Leaders Cite Freedom Limitation

AMMAN (UPI)—Arab guerrilla leaders went into their crisis meeting with Jordanian officials today accusing "certain circles" in the government of trying to limit their freedom again.

The head of the guerrilla movement, Yasser Arafat, returned Friday night from Moscow and was expected to head his delegation in the noon (5 a.m. EST) conference. King Hussein will not attend unless the talks reach a showdown stage.

Israel's information minister warned Friday his nation "could not remain indifferent if the guerrillas overthrow Hussein, for in that case, Jordan would be liable to become a center for political and military intrigues and could serve as a foothold for Moscow's endeavors."

Today's meeting was called so the two sides could try to iron out their differences in the government's attempt to take away guerrilla arms in the cities, limit their meetings and close down their newspapers.

Hussein agreed to suspend the order for these measures a week ago and a semblance of peace settled over guerrilla government affairs until Friday night when the guerrillas broadcast a new set of accusations.

"Certain elements in the government, army and security forces are still determined to take matters to an end, disregarding the (suspension) agreement that was reached by both sides," the broadcast said from Cairo.

"These elements in the army and security forces have mobilized their positions and military contingents," it said. "These moves have serious overtones. They cause a threat to the national interest."

The statement was attributed to the "Unified Command," the name given an alliance of 10 guerrilla groups whose leaders have banded together against Hussein's crackdown attempt. It urged the people not to let the "adventurers" carry out their plans.

Despite the new guerrilla charges, the Jordanian capital appeared calm Friday night in contrast to the "armed camp" atmosphere that followed Hussein's original announcement on taking away arms in the cities.

First Self-Help Housing Project In Magic Valley Begins In Heyburn

BURLEY — Work has begun on the foundations for four homes in the Heyburn community under the Self-Help Housing program in the Magic Valley. They are the first project of this kind in this area. The one-story frame homes are being built in the Bailey addition in Heyburn. The houses will be four bedroom — homes with an average of 1,249 square feet. As soon as the foundations are completed for the four houses, work will begin on six other homes in the city of Heyburn.

The Self-Help housing program is for low income families and blueprints are available for a variety of needs. Plans must be approved by the FHA on a $12,000 loan, and when the house is completed it will be valued at $16,000, local officials explain. Similar projects have been completed in Nyssa and Ontario Ore. The operation of the program is basically simple, of this point. Ten people who want to build their own home work together and 30 hours a week are required by the head of each participating household. Half of these hours may be donated by any family member or friend.

The plan is to have all the homes in the group progress at about the same rate. While the participant is putting in his 30 hours a week, he is being paid an average of $2 per hour, although he never actually sees the money. His wages are credited toward the down payment of his home.

Officials at the Opportunity Center, 427 East Main Street, area under the Self-Help housing program. When the foundations of the four homes are completed, work is expected to begin on six more.

Steve Balch Is Winner Of Contest

PAUL — Steven Balch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Balch, Rupert, was selected winner of the oratorical contest sponsored by the Paul American-Legion Thursday night.

Steven was selected over two other Minico speech students, after what judges termed a "very close contest." Other speakers on the chosen topic "The Constitution In Our Everyday Life," were Deborah Heins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Heins, Rupert, and Richard Hansen, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hansen, Arco.

Contestants also presented short extemporaneous talks on "Rights of Individuals." Mrs. Val Tolson is speech instructor at Minico.

Judges were Ione Loveland, Boyd Earl, Robert Larson, Aurel Hanchett and Dr. Jerry Ennis. Linda Ulrich and Emma Lebsack were timekeepers, and clerks were Art Ulrich, Esther Kraus and Mildred Stimpson.

David Kraus was escort and LeRoy Lebsack was general chairman, and offered the prayer. Refreshments were served by the Legion and Auxiliary.

The district contest will be held Feb. 26 at Paul.

3 Initiated By Hagerman Lions Club

HAGERMAN — Three new members were initiated into the Hagerman Lions Club at a dinner meeting. They were Bob Jones, Duane Madron and C. E. Joseph. Donald Zuck, district governor, was installing officer.

Mr. Zuck also spoke on "Lionism" and told what other clubs are doing for various projects and offered some suggestions to this club.

Reports were given by the entertainment and ticket committees for the annual barbeque dinner to be held April 25. It was noted tickets are ready and members will canvass the valley soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Owsley narrated slides of their recent trip to the Bahamas.

Coffee Pot

HILLSHAM, England (UPI)—Thomas Woodgate thought what he thought was a second-hand coffee pot for 30 cents from a market stall here.

But after a while he became suspicious of it and gave it to his son, a college lecturer, for investigation.

The probe revealed that the coffee pot was, in fact, a radium vita emanator, part of an X-ray apparatus, and was giving off highly dangerous gamma rays.

It is now sealed in a lead casket at a hospital.

Condemnation Suit Is Filed Against Hailey Couple Over Sewage Plant

HAILEY — The City of Hailey has filed a condemnation suit in Fifth District Court against Mr. and Mrs. Fred Povey, Hailey, for a 30.8-acre tract of land for the construction of a Sewer Treatment Plant under an eminent domain action.

The land in question lies within the area called Colorado Gulch, southwest of the city near the Big Wood River, and had been designated by Hailey Sewer Engineer Carlisle Briggs as the primary location for the Sewer Treatment site.

Last month the city offered the Poveys $20,000 for the land. The figure was determined by a property appraiser and appraiser who stated that the valuation was based on an appraisal of $300 per acre. The basic bid was $24,000 for the tract with damages to the surrounding acres and $300 for easement from the Broadford Road to the sewer treatment site.

In rejecting the city's offer, Don Justin, son of Mrs. Povey who is acting for the family, made a return offer to settle for $2,000. Mr. Justin noted that the city has a higher value as future building lots in line with the increasing property values found in the area.

A hearing on the matter has been scheduled for Thursday so that the officials could assess and determine damages to the Poveys who will sustain by reason of condemnation and appropriation of the property.

Hailey voters approved a $340,000 revenue bond election

Damages Are Sought From Glenns Ferry

GLENN'S FERRY — The city of Glenns Ferry, through the person of Mayor E. Paul Adams, is being asked for $3,496.50 from a local resident for damages resulting from installation of the recent sewer project.

John Logan seeks the money for damage to his property, the Camp-In-Land facility, which includes a small swimming pool.

City Attorney Francis Hicks told council members this week he has contacted officials of the Hood Corp., which installed the sewer, and the firm's attorney has been contacted to negotiate with Mr. Logan.

Mayor Adams, who was absent, sent word to the meeting he had received three complaints on the street sweeper throwing rocks and dirt on the sidewalks.

— Decided to pay George Pagac $4 per hour for repairing the city hall roof, and authorized the city crew to assist.

— Authorized purchase of a new back broom for the street sweeper and a new 1969 Chevrolet truck and 80 feet of sewer cleaning rod from Flexible Corp.

— Told Nick Clamloh, Rimora county sanitation, they tell King Hill residents to haul their own dumpstons near their town.

— Decided to install three new street lights at the corners of Oregon and Madison, Custer and Garland, Oneida and Arthur and a verger-type light at Alton and Second Avenue.

last March for the joint water and sewer project. Frank Dillard, representing F.H.A. recently met with the city council and made the commitment to deliver $240,000 to the city in return for the city bonds in the same amount at five per cent per annum.

It was agreed at that time to waive that portion of the agreement relating to easement and ownership of the sewer treatment site, since the property is currently before the court in condemnation proceedings.

Mr. Briggs was then instructed to complete his specifications for the construction immediately with a target date of March 1 set for opening bids. It is anticipated construction will begin as soon as weather permits.

Ketchum Council Defeats Mobile Home Park Proposal

KETCHUM — The Ketchum city council this week voted a proposed city ordinance which would change a five-acre tract from agriculture to mobile home zoning.

Ordinance 140 received the third reading during the meeting and a lengthy discussion followed. The ordinance, which is effective as of this date, would provide for a permanent park, on a parcel of land that is not zoned for residential use, and that it would therefore be advantageous to the city.

Opposing the ordinance, Ketchum attorney Edward Heap, a planning and zoning member, noted that the commission had not recommended the ordinance, that the area was to be zoned general residential in the future, and that there were no plans for any future mobile home parks in the city.

He added that the hoped future mobile home park would be built south of the city limits.

Councilman Vern McClellan stated the lots were too small and had inadequate parking facilities, and councilman Jerry Sidwell added that "it is not the responsibility of the city to provide mobile home parks."

Councilmen McClellan and Sidwell vetoed the proposal while Councilman Asher approved it. Council president Ben Jewell abstained from voting.

Eye defects affect learning in school to the extent that children of high IQ actually make low grades because of sight problems.

School Financing, Style Show Mark Richfield PTA

RICHFIELD — Supt. Nolt Anderson talked on school financing and the home economics classes presented a style show to highlight the Richfield PTA Founder's day observance Thursday night at the high school gymnasium auditorium.

Supt. Anderson explained that Richfield receives very little Federal money. Other sources for funds to operate Richfield schools are tax money based on assessed valuation of the district, and state money received from student average daily attendance. He stated Richfield's decreased enrollment by 40 students this year and possibly 10 more the coming year would lose the district between $2,000 and $10,000.

Concerning the controversy over school fees, which can no longer be charged, Supt. Anderson stated Richfield would be reimbursed by three dollars for each student in the first grades of schools, and ten dollars for each student from the seventh through twelfth grades. This would be additional income from the state. Activity fees can be charged but not mandatory.

Charles Dutcher, co-president of the Richfield PTA unit, named Mrs. F. M. Crowther, Mrs. Burl Aklos, and Mrs. Ralph Riley, Jr. to the nominating committee.

"Raindrops Falling on My Head" was the theme for the style show with a stage setting of spring colored umbrellas and raindrops. Mrs. L. T. Sanders, home economics instructor, welcomed the parents and PTA members and supervised the presentation.

Narrators were LuAnn Edwards, DeAnn Dixon, and Bronnda Hlatt. The girls modeled one and two piece costumes made at school, home projects of pantsuits and dresses, skirts, and formal.

The fourth grade class and sophomores were named as parent attendance prize winners for the month.

The mothers and daughters, fathers and sons basketball games will be held March 24. Officers will be elected at the March meeting to be held on that date.

Fourth and fifth grade room mothers served refreshments. Mrs. Howard DeWitt, Mrs. F. M. Crowther, Mrs. Cleo Brauburger and Mrs. Ronald Rall were on the serving committee.

Bridge Deed Transferred To County

HAILEY — The faulty Wood River bridge and surrounding roadway became the property of the Blaine County recently when the Ketchum city council agreed to transfer the deed so that the bridge could qualify for funds under the Federal Secondary System.

The bridge has several cracked members under the span but is shored up and is presently under a ten-ton load limit. Ketchum city council members had two alternatives for the repair work, either to deed the land to the county or enter a joint venture with Sun Valley to finance the repairs. The tentative costs of a new bridge is $700,000.

County Commissioner John Fox told the Ketchum councilmen that the county has $50,000 in Federal Secondary Aid funds which are designated for road and bridge projects. At present, $20,000 is approved for a new bridge over the Big Wood River, west of Hailey.

The balance is uncommitted with $15,000 due to return to the federal government under a two year non-use plan if not committed by April 1 this year.

By putting the Warm Springs bridge and road on a Secondary system, federal aid will pay 50 per cent of the cost of a new bridge with the county paying the remaining 37 per cent. Under the system, the road will be paved and curb and gutters installed and maintained by the county.

Officials are in the process of applying to the state, which administers the funds for the federal government, so that approval may be granted prior to the April 1 fund deadline.

Kindergarten To Start At Filer Soon

FILER — The Filer Kindergarten will begin March 2 at the American Legion Hall and will run through April 24, according to Mrs. Rodney Slinger, president of the organization.

Mrs. Janet Shepherd has been hired for the sessions which will be held from 9-11:30 a.m. each weekday.

Parents with children eligible to attend, may still register their children by calling Mrs. Slinger at 326-5271 or they may register them the opening day of the classes.

Cleaning Set For Heyburn Art Exhibit

HEYBURN — The Heyburn High School Alumni Association voted to share the expense with the Mindoka County School District to have art exhibit paintings professionally cleaned.

The art exhibit was discussed Thursday night by the association in the Heyburn Junior High library. Leo Moore was appointed to work with school board trustees and Olaf Moller, local artist, on the project.

Mr. Moore reported that the district board has accepted a resolution to keep the paintings in the Heyburn Junior High building. Officials had recently been contacted by persons requesting the paintings be placed in other various locations.

The collection was started in 1923 by the Heyburn PTA and discontinued exhibits in 1952. Doyle Lowder noted that the collection was made the property of the county school district in 1948 when the county schools consolidated, and is under the jurisdiction of the district board of trustees.

Don Rasmussen and Leo Hardy presented a motion that all graduates and former students of Heyburn High School be accepted as alumni members. Members voted to have Earl, principal, and all former high school teachers and superintendents become honorary members.

Jerome Girls Get Uniforms For Working At Hospital

JEROME — Seven Jerome Junior volunteers have received their uniforms from the Jerome St. Benedict's Hospital Guild. The seven junior volunteers received their uniforms after 50 hours of service at a meeting of the Jerome St. Benedict's Hospital Guild at the Long Term Care Unit dining room at St. Benedict's Hospital.

Mrs. Jerry Nelson, chairman of the Junior volunteers, presented the uniforms and stated that the girls will now begin working on their next 50 hours of service at the completion of which they will receive their caps.

The girls are Carrie Rediker, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rediker; Lucille Justice, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Justice; Shayna Foster, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Foster; Sharon Maddox, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thom Maddox; Kellie Bartholomew, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bartholomew; and Rosemary Tolman, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don C. Tolman.

Mrs. Kem Paterson, head of the Junior volunteers services to Idaho State School and Hospital at Nampa, told the group that this year the Nampa Home changed the large rooms that formerly accommodated a number of residents is now being divided into smaller units. The smaller units they hope will give a more homey atmosphere.

Mrs. Paterson asked for individuals or organizations to sponsor a child at the home. She would like anyone who would sponsor a child to send him

Cancer Society Volunteers Plan Trip To Utah Center

More than 100 volunteer workers for the Idaho Division of the American Cancer Society will have a "go-see" trip to Salt Lake City this week to view some of the tangible results of past fund-raising drives.

County chairmen and workers from throughout southeastern Idaho will be guests of the society Thursday on an educational inspection tour of the research work being conducted at the University of Utah.

Division officials in the Boise office say they hope to fill the busload from throughout the Pocatello, Idaho Falls and Magic Valley areas, including as far north as Salmon.

Twin Falls area workers will board the bus at noon Wednesday at the Twin Falls court house, with another stop slated in Burley. Among the Magic Valley group attending are Mrs. Ted Smith, Cassia county chairman; Mrs. Pearl Utter, Jerome county chairman; Mrs. Mary Ellen Carlson, district lay director from Blaine county; Rev. H. Thomas, Bluff chairman, and Mrs. Vernon E. Smith, publicity chairman for the Twin Falls county unit.

James Worsley, Boise, executive vice president of the division, said the latest work in leukemia research and bone transplant will be viewed at the University of Utah. The volunteers will view a film and be briefed by researchers before breaking into small groups for tours of the laboratories.

Mr. Worsley said a similar tour was held for volunteers four years ago and the results were "very gratifying."

"This shows the volunteer what his dollars are doing," he said of the medical research center at the University of Utah, which has tie-in programs with both Magic Valley Memorial Hospital in Twin Falls and the Sun Valley hospitals to acquaint doctors with data on the research projects via both telephone and television.

Report On Veterans Is Given

Earl Chindler, chairman of the Idaho Veterans Affairs Committee, reported at a recent meeting of the group in Boise that 1847 Idaho servicemen have lost their lives in Vietnam.

Mr. Chindler said information also discloses that since March, 1968, 3,838 servicemen and veterans have returned to Idaho from military service. Each of these servicemen has been contacted by a letter from the commission, advising him of state and federal benefits.

In the commission's continued study of the need for nursing care for Idaho veterans, Charles Hanson, chief social worker for the Boise Veterans Administration Center, attended the meeting and gave a report on the disabled veterans living in nursing and boarding homes throughout the state. He said 130 veterans who needed special care, but not hospitalization, were housed in nursing homes and many more were living in boarding houses. In his analysis, he emphasized the need for state-supported nursing home care for veterans, because of the cost and shortage of private nursing homes.

Paul Brown, Filer, member of the commission, reported that since last November, the Idaho Veterans Home has had 100 per cent occupancy. About a month ago, he said, four extra beds were made available, however, and the waiting list still numbers from eight to 10.

Area Open

BURLEY — Pomerelle Ski Area will be open Monday, Feb. 23, to accommodate skiers who may have the opportunity of observing it as a holiday.

This will mean the area is in operation seven days during the coming week. Skiing is reported excellent.

Probe Continues In Jerome Crash

AVENDELL — Citations are pending in a two-vehicle accident at 10:55 p.m. Wednesday on Interstate 80 five miles east of Wendell. Sheriff James (Pat) Burns reports.

David E. Evans, Wendell, was treated and released at St. Benedict's Hospital after the 1968 Chevrolet he was driving ran into the rear of a 1964 Pontiac driven by Roger B. McMahan, Twin Falls.

Both cars were demolished, the sheriff said.

Scientists Anxiously Await Total Eclipse On March 7

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On March 7 a shadow will fall across the face of the sun. For brief periods the sun will be blotted from earthly view along a path extending 7,000 miles from below the equator in the South Pacific to west of Ireland in the North Atlantic. It will, says the National Science Foundation (NSF), be "the most 'hot' total eclipse of the sun since ancient times swarmed of terror to account of whatever evil thing was extinguishing the light of heaven."

Washington— Crazy World

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Odds are mostly odd.

It's easy, in wading through news releases, to conclude that every pursuit in which Americans engage has its own trade association lobbying away in Washington.

There's the Fertilizer Institute, the American Land Title Association, the National Cancer Association which in a number of complaints a boat being served, at a recent banquet, found that had been frozen by their competition, and on and on.

It seemed at first glance that even the moonshiners had set up such an operation.

But no... those long-time non-conformists are nonconformist. The Corn Refiners Association, Inc., represents people who squander that grain by converting it into strictly nonalcoholic products.

President Nixon had a small group in at the White House for a brief advance briefing of the voluminous foreign policy message he sent Congress on Wednesday.

At the outset, he checked with adviser Henry W. Kissinger whether he had given the title correctly, which it turned out he had.

In conclusion, the President told his guests: "I do say that I commend the report to your reading. It is worth reading. I have read it myself."

Wayward words: Rep. Richard L. Ottlinger, D-N.Y., talking about the sludgy situation off the coast of his state, said: "We are told big ship captains park there to rid their bottoms of barnacles."

Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, referring to complaints that the administration isn't moving faster against inflation, said:

"Well, to me it's like a guy who consumed two bottles on Saturday night and complained that he had not got over his hangover by Sunday noon."

Paul W. McCracken, head of the Council of Economic Advisers, replied, "That's a good metaphor. The only cause to reflect on what he'd said, he added: "I express only an academic opinion."

Jerry W. Friedheim, a 44-year-old about a Navy vessel banging into a section of the Chesapeake Bay bridge-runes connecting Virginia and Maryland, said that was an instance "when the ship hit the span."

Hundreds of scientists will "shoot the sun" in a variety of wavelengths — radio, infrared, optical, ultraviolet, and X-ray.

They will shoot from scores of temporary and permanent ground observatories. They also will hurl 66 rockets and 12 gun-launched probes into the sky to get new knowledge of the sun and its influence upon earth.

A high-orbiting satellite is being shifted to a new position which will enable it to do its special bit toward studying effects of the eclipse.

Two fast-flying jet airplanes, loaded with instruments, will chase the eclipse shadow which will be moving across the earth at more than 1,500 miles an hour.

It is not a necessarily evil thing, as the ancients thought, that will be blotting out the sun on March 7. It is our little old moon.

"In an eclipse," says the NSF, "the 2,160-mile diameter moon just covers the 864,000-mile diameter sun—an accident of size and distance that permits scientists to observe solar features of the sun untroubled by the brilliance of the sun itself and by the brightness of the sky."

So for scientists an eclipse is a boon. For laymen, if they heed warnings not to look at it directly, it is an exciting opportunity to witness one of nature's spectacles.

For animals and plants, however, it is a kind of hoax. Birds, thinking night has fallen, go to roost, daytime animals bed down, flowers fold.

At 10:30 a.m. local time, the eclipse occurred Oct. 22, 2137 B.C. Unhappily for them, the Chinese royal astronomers, Hi and Ho, were drunk on wine and failed to perform their duty of shooting arrows and heaving stones to drive off the dragon that was devouring the sun.

This so vexed the emperor, Chung K'ang, that he had Hi and Ho beheaded.

PREPARATION FOR NEXT SUMMER'S forest fire season is made in winter months. Here three of the nearly 30 Sawtooth and Regional Forest officials who participated in a two day training session inspect equipment used to detect moisture. The items were among those explained at the meeting and available to help determine fire behavior. ### Burley Students Honor Their Bosses With Banquet

BURLEY — Members of the Distributive Education Club of America and the Office Education Club at Burley High School honored their employers during a banquet at Price's Cafe.

Presiding during the session were Ellen Sprague, president of Office Education Club, and Chad Wilkinson, president of Distributive Education Club of America.

Roger Sathre, supervisor of Business Education, spoke briefly concerning the programs of the two groups. Floyd Weed, a member of the advisory commission, told the group that employers are grateful for the help they get from the DECA field, which offers a wonderful opportunity for students to work with trained personnel.

Krank Kearns and Bob Saxvik, both members of the advisory commission, were introduced.

Verna Turley and Margie Jensen, coordinators for the clubs, read from the crystal ball predictions concerning the students, which provided a humorous part of the program.

Bobble Brown and Randy Wilkinson sang "Summer Wine," accompanied by Brown on the guitar. Each student presented his employer with some clever or unique gift.

Students attending were Tika Thompson, Mary Jo Corring, Kathy Ashcraft, Larry Bahr, Jane Archibald, Brent Mitchell, Bobble Brown, Randy Wilkinson, Woodbury from 24 Flavors, Eugene Christensen from Shelby's Foodliner, and Rosa Blair from Rogers.

Racial Tensions Not Only Disturbing At Home, But Disrupt Foreign Relations

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Staff Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — That racial tensions are disturbing America's domestic tranquility is obvious to everyone.

Not so well known is the impact U.S. race problems have on foreign relations.

Diplomats say it is considerable. Indeed, they say, race has become one of the most important, if not the most important, factors in the complex of emotions which determine how other peoples feel toward America and how they respond to its foreign policy initiatives.

The United States is history's outstanding example of a colony which won a successful war of independence and went on to become a great power. The emerging nations of Asia and Africa, which yearn to emulate the America experience, might logically be expected to look to this country for ideological leadership.

But any American who entertains that expectation is overlooking a fact never forgotten by the dark-skinned peoples who constitute two-thirds of the world's population.

The U.S.A. is a "white nation." Its population is nearly 90 per cent white; and the black, red, brown and yellow minorities who make up the remainder have never been full participants in the equality and freedom promised by the U.S. Constitution.

The grievances of America's colored minorities, and of black people in particular, are familiar to every Asian and African who reads a newspaper or listens to a radio. In fact, Asians and Africans tend to think America's race relations are in a far worse state than they actually are.

The hard truth, as Columbia University Professor Franklin

H. Williams suggested recently, is that "America is one of the most hated nations in the world."

The impact on U.S. foreign policy would be even greater except for the fact that Soviet Russia also is regarded in Asia and Africa as a white nation with a racist bias.

The mistreatment of some African students at Russian universities — widely publicized among colored peoples the world over — was a diplomatic windfall of incalculable value for the United States because the Communists always have tried to convince colored people that their ideology alone is truly free of racism.

The growing hostility between Russia and Red China also serves as a constant reminder to Asian and African nations that Russia is on the "enemy" side of the great racial divide between "white" and "colored" peoples.

One area in which racial feelings have almost totally frustrated well-intentioned U.S. foreign policy is population control. Underdeveloped nations can never succeed in raising their living standards until they bring their runaway birth rates under control. But any offer of U.S. help in limiting population growth in an African or Asian nation is instantly interpreted as a devious white plot to keep the colored races in check.

Race also is a seldom-mentioned but very important factor in the attitude of a large part of the world including white European nations toward America's involvement in Vietnam.

The war is regarded by millions abroad not as an attempt by America to help an Asian country South Vietnam preserve its independence, but rather as a sinister intrusion of white colonialist power into a civil war between dark-skinned peoples.

Preoccupied with their own domestic struggle for freedom and equality, black Americans in the past have not had much indignation to spare for foreign policy issues. But times of protest are now beginning to emanate from the U.S. black community about the economic support that this country gives through $700 million in trade a year to the apartheid regime in South Africa.

Demands also are being heard that the United States support international economic sanctions against Rhodesia, and that it curtail military aid to Portugal. NATO ally on the ground that this U.S. aid indirectly subdizes Portuguese resistance to the melting pot into, Hawaii. But it takes generations of racial intermarriage to produce such a homogenized society.

Finally, there is the possibility of creating a color-blind society — one in which a person's race is regarded, both by the law and by his fellow citizens, as a matter of no consequence.

Many nations which are publicly critical of America are privately watching its racial ordeal with "hope" that this country somehow can find a solution to a problem that exists, in greater or less degree, in very many parts of the world.

If the United States moved toward racial separatism — as some black and white segregationists advocate — the same pattern is likely to develop in many countries which could not be influenced by the example of South Africa.

Another possible solution is amalgamation, as is found in as conscience.

Thus it is not too far-fetched to hope that the nation which gave the world the high ideals of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution may yet become the nation that puts these principles into practice for all men, regardless of race.

According to public opinion polls this is the objective of an overwhelming majority of black Americans, and one toward which ever-growing numbers of white Americans are being led by prudence as well

Most Blacks Want Reform, Not Revolt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The vast majority of America's 22 million black citizens seek reform, not revolution.

That is the key finding of a study made by social scientists at the University of Michigan during the racially turbulent year of 1968. They conducted interviews with a cross-section sample of 5,000 persons in 15 U.S. cities.

They found "extreme separatist attitudes" confined to a small minority, about 6 per cent.

For every black person voicing approval of violent methods, there were five who supported the non-violent approach of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Although 98 per cent said Negroes should take more pride in their own heritage and study about it in school, only one out

Goal Missed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon took office in early 1969 with the avowed hope of winning the trust of American Negroes, most of whom had voted against him.

So far, black leaders say, he has not accomplished that objective.

"The great majority of black people feel that things are going just as we expected . . . the Nixon administration is doing us in," says Clarence Mitchell, Washington director of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, NAACP.

Of seven felt strongly enough about "black power" to think that a predominantly Negro school necessarily should have a Negro principal.

Humes, Idaho State Set Point Marks As Bengals Rip Montana State 124-97

Friday night as the Bengals topped Montana State 95-70. The nation's eleventh-leading scorer, Humes raised his season's average to 28.6 with 16 baskets and 10 for 10 free throws. He was also ISU's second leading rebounder with 11 in a dazzling display of a 11-round basketball ability.

The score was close at halftime with the Bengals having a slim margin at 39-37, but Humes scored 34 points in the second stanza to wrap up the contest.

Humes had able help from O'Neil Simmons and Charley Barber. Simmons had 27 points and six assists, while Barber topped all rebounders with 16. ISU forced Montana State into numerous turnovers, including 16 in the second half and 25 for the game. That enabled ISU to dominate the play.

Idaho State also outbounded the Bobcats 60-38 and managed 25 more shots from the field and hit 10 more than MSU. Montana State's balanced scoring was led by Jim Tillman with 16, and Bill Brickhouse with 15.

Eleven Bengals got into the scoring column as Danny Barber cleared the ISU bench. Charley Barber hit five of five shots and led both teams with 14 rebounds as ISU controlled the boards 53-44.

With Weber State defeating Montana, ISU has hope Weber loses both remaining games while the Bengals must take their remaining two. Willie Humes scored 48 points.

Kentucky Rips LSU As Pete Hits 64

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Second-ranked Kentucky spudded all-American Pete Maravich's last home game Saturday, trouncing Louisiana State 121 to 105 and virtually clinching the Wildcats' 23th Southeastern Conference basketball title.

Kentucky center Dan Issel poured in 51 points, but was outscored by Maravich with 64. The victory gave Kentucky a 21-1 record for the season and raised its SEC mark to 13-1. LSU dropped to 17-7 over all and 10-4 in league play. No SEC team has ever won the league title with four losses.

Saturday's game, which closed out Maravich's spectacular three-year career on his home court, was viewed by a national television audience and a crowd of 9,000 that filled the arena.

Maravich's 64 points raised his career total to 3,439 points in 76 games. He needs to average only 37 points per game for the rest of the season to erase his own NCAA record average of 44.2 set last year.

Utah Roars To 113-82 Victory

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah rekindled its Western Athletic Conference title hopes by blasting Wyoming 113-82 Saturday with a near-flawless brand of fast break basketball.

Walt Hawkins provided the spark that saw the Utes build up a 58-31 halftime lead and nail down their ninth win against three losses in conference play.

Hawkins' rebounding, ball thefts and defensive work on scoring ace Stan Dodds helped keep the Utah victory in their final home court appearance of the season.

For the Cowboys, the bottom fell out after they had moved to a 13-13 tie on Stan Popovich's jumpshot. Less than five minutes later the Utes had moved to a 26-15 lead.

Never Bow Is Widener Cap Winner

HALEIGH, Fla. (UPI) — Front-running Never-Bow, saving his first stakes victory for the big one, romped off from a field of nine rivals Saturday to capture the $122,000 Widener Handicap at Hialeah Park.

Jockey Eddie Belmonte put the 4-year-old son of Never Bend in the lead shortly after the gate opened and no one could catch him for the rest of the mile and one quarter.

At the end, Never Bow was a galloping, tired horse, but he went under the wire a 1 1/2 lengths the victor. Wheatley Stables' Beau Drummel, making a closing rush far too late, finished second, 7 1/2 lengths in front of Gunter Ring's Ship.

Never Bow was second favored by the crowd although he had never won a stakes race nor run as far as a mile and a quarter.

He paid $8.80, $5 and $4.40 across the board. Beau Drummel returned $7 and $5.90, while Shipleave was worth $7.20 for show.

First Great Cohoes gave chase to Never Bow, then Mr. Brognan. Both were winners of recent stakes.

Going down the back stretch, Barely Once pushed up into second position and held there going around the turn. Entering the stretch, Barely Once checked the light and Al Hattab made his move.

Al Hattab couldn't hang on either and gave in to the closing rushes of Beau Drummel and Shipleave to finish fourth.

Ketterling Helps Spark Minico Past Pocatello; Boatwright Misses Mark

POCATELLO — Terry Ketterling came off the bench to score 11 points in the fourth quarter and ignited a 15-4 tear Friday night as Minico ended the season in 17-3 fashion with a 73-62 victory over the Pocatello Indians.

The victory, which saw big Jim Boatwright fall 12 points short of the all-time district record, clinched sole possession of the second place for the Spartans who, ended up 13-1 in the SIC. Boatwright finished the game with 20 points, he scored 13 — for a total of 565. Randy Lee's record of 577 still stands.

Stubborn Pocatello led most of the first half and weathered a Minico barrage in the third quarter mostly from the line. Minico in contention until Ketterling's outburst, Carey Foote, the SIC's second-leading scorer, could manage only three field goals — the first coming at the third period buzzer and one just at the final gun — but got eight points in the last four minutes.

Five men hit double figures for Minico, which had its troubles against the Indians' pressing game most of the first 10 minutes. After some early scrapping Pocatello moved into a 15-8 lead but the Spartans hit five straight to establish a tie.

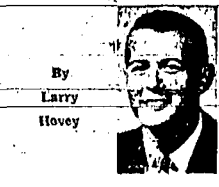

Working the boards well in the face of the taller Spartans, the Indians opened to 10-13 early in the second quarter but Mike O'Donnell, John Fennell, and Boatwright nullified the Indians' shot with five seconds left in the half gave Minico a 31-29 lead.

Boatwright got a tip to open the second half, Fennell followed with four straight, and the Spartans bounced in from 37-29.

Twice they held 11-point leads over the next three minutes but Pocatello fought back behind sophomore Jerry Quenton and slowly chipped that down to just two at the rest.

That's when what was perhaps the key play of the night at the outset of the final period.

Sports FROM ALL ANGLES

There's reason to believe that antagonists of the Idaho Fish and Game Commission and Idaho Fish and Game Department are about to get above ground in this two-year-old vendetta.

There are increasingly more signs with a statewide newspaper-type publication coming out monthly and supported, evidently, by persons unknown. The state house is starting to get a little better notice that the legislature with its known anti-department members, currently in Boise.

The basic premise for these beliefs is that for the first time we are starting to hear some of the behind-the-scenes gossip from the anti-group. They have been a close-mouth unit since Governor Don Samuelson's first attempt at a frontal assault met a strong rebuff. Blessed with the hindsight of it, it is all but a certainty now that the big day of two meetings in Boise is anticipated as the death knell for Ray J. Holmes, Twin Falls, and Glenn Stanger, Idaho Falls, the old-tie commission members, and Department Director J. R. Woodworth and his assistant Deke Smith.

Wendell Stuns Gooding With 82-70 Victory

GOODING — Kirk Dennis and Craig Thompson staged some of the most exciting action ever witnessed in Idaho as Gooding topped off a 82-70 triumph over the Gooding Senators.

Dennis, hitting from outside and driving Gooding wild with his inside moves, tanked 31 points while Thompson nearly duplicated his efforts and wound up with 24. Rost also joined in with 17 as Wendell turned to hustle and controlled the lead all the way.

Gooding, with Frank Krahn having a good night with 28 points, fell behind at the outset but made a bid late in the second period, cutting a 10-point deficit to 20-26. But Wendell picked up quick points off turnovers to re-establish the lead and Gooding never threatened again.

Wendell's biggest margin was 10 points in the fourth quarter. Krahn wound up hitting 11-of-19 from the field and 13 straight at the foul line to keep Gooding from completely falling out of the game.

Murtaugh Tops Hansen By 74-60

MURTAUGH — Murtaugh jumped on frigid Hansen 10-0 in the first quarter Friday night en route to an easy 74-60 decision over the Huskies. It gave the Red Devils a sparkling final record of 17-8.

The Huskies started unbelievably cold, missing their first 14 shots from the field, but after Murtaugh took the 10-0 lead they played an almost even terms the rest of the way.

Murtaugh, behind Mark Howard, Greg Stanger, and sophomore John Flynn, kept its lead and the closest Hansen could come was five points in the early stages of the fourth period. Stanger ended with 25 points getting 12 field goals. Wendell Preston kept the Huskies in the game with a 24-point effort. After that the closest Hansen had 11.

In the preliminary, the Murtaugh junior varsity rallied back from a 20-point deficit and overhauled Hansen 63-50.

Austrian Is Downhill Champion

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. (UPI)—Austrian racer Karl Cordin skied at a 60-mile an hour clip on an "Autobahn" downhill course Saturday to win the opening men's event of the two-day Wild West Classic.

The French women's ski team dominated the women's downhill, taking the first five places. Isabella Mir was first over the 30-gate, mile and a half course in 1:57.87, followed by Annie Engerer in 1:59.36 and World Cup leader Michele Jacot in 1:59.41.

Cordin had little to say at the end of his winning run. Before skiing away from the finish line, Cordin asked: "Who is best?"

World Cup leader Karl Schranz of Austria finished sixth in 2:02.03, but was not threatened by world cup runners-up Deming Giovanoli of Switzerland and Patrick Russell of France, each of whom trailed Schranz by two points at 149 prior to the race. Russell finished way down the list with a time of 2:26.05 and Giovanoli did not enter the race.

There are reports that the group felt it had at least one of the commissioners, newly appointed, in its pocket. The continuing attacks have not only stiffened the opposition in expected quarters but is building a resentment within the individual who, after all, is really getting a thorough look at both sides.

The whole thing is based on big game and the sternest opposition is coming from areas where big game rules are the only hunting available. The continuing attacks on the department and commission are being substantiated on a round-robin that was covered 20 and 30 years ago and on points that have been proven as unworkable or tenuous in wildlife management technology.

It is rather like starting World War three with bi-planes. The only thing you'd accomplish would be destroying the very thing you were trying to save.

The basic flaw in all this hubbub is the astigmatic view of the anti-hunting forces are using. They want total destruction of the current commission and department in the interest of big game hunting, which may be important, but is far from the total picture.

In fact, the crying need right now for acquisition and access in the face of increasing demands from private interests for Idaho's recreational lands. The commission, despite a lot of foot dragging and some downright slandering, has been able to give private interests, in proceeding with this program as rapidly as funds become available — which isn't rapid. We can always rebuild wildlife populations, providing, of course, we have first reserved a place to put them.

The truth of the matter from this angle appears that the big hunter kill of a year ago and the winter kill of last year are the only real basis for any private interests in the department. We now have a mild winter and population could increase sharply this year alone. In all other respects, the

Four District Tournaments To Open This Week

MINICO, GOODING, OAKLEY and Glenns Ferry rule as slight to heavy favorites in four district tournaments opening in Magic Valley this week.

Minico is a prohibitive favorite in the A-1 regional; Gooding has the nod by an eyelash over Buhl. Wood River was a spoiler in the A-2; Glenns Ferry ranks just ahead of Wendell in the A-3 and Oakley figures to win the sixth district A-4 rather handily. The other area meet, the fifth district A-4, opened at Fairfield Saturday night. Pairings for the sixth district A-4 and A-2 meets will have to be settled by coin flips in the next day or two.

The tournaments will provide action every night but Monday and Wednesday. The first action gets going at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in Fairfield with one loser bracket and two winner bracket games. The A-3 opens at Buhl as the host Indians meeting Jerome or Elmer at 7:30 p.m. and Wood River taking on Elmer at Jerome in the nightcap. Gooding draws a bye but comes back Friday night to play the winner of the Wood River series.

The A-3 action will open with single games Thursday and Friday at Glenns Ferry and Valley at Valley, the host Vikings meet Kimberly at 8 p.m. with the winner going against Declo Friday night. Glenns Ferry plays Shoshone in the lone game at Glenns Ferry with Wendell taking travel to Minico Saturday.

All the district tournaments will send one team to state with the exception of the sixth district A-4 which will have two representatives at Burley. The A-1 state is set for Boise, A-2 at FSU in Pocatello and A-3 in Lewiston.

Agnew Dubbs Five Convicted Chicago Men As All "Anarchists And Societal Misfits"

By WILLIAM FOX
ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has dubbed the five men convicted of crossing state lines with intent of inciting riots in Chicago "anarchists and societal misfits."
Agnew told 10,000 Republicans at a $100-a-plate fund raising dinner Friday, "the implications, vilifications and obscenities (in the trial), the posturing and the spectacular dramatics... only delayed but did not deter the administration of justice."
He praised U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman for sentencing each of the five to five years in prison and $5,000 in fines. The vice president also commended the jury who, he said, "stood firm and resolute and saw through the disruptions and distractions" of the trial.
He said the jury "saw the defendants for the anarchists and societal misfits they really are."
As Agnew praised the judge and the jury, a long-haired young man ran from the back of the auditorium shouting, "That's a lie." He was quickly stopped by police, one of whom grabbed him by his hair, and the crowd cheered. Agnew paused but gave no other indication that he had noticed the disturbance.

Agnew also criticized leaders of the Democratic party, especially those who have taken exception to the outcome of the Chicago riot trial which centered on disturbances at the 1968 Democratic National Convention.
"These party leaders show a weird desire to suck up the technical support of organized dissidents by excusing and rationalizing the outrageous antics."
"There is a curious rush to accommodate leftwing extremists in the Democratic party, the vice president added. "The Democrats assign a high moral cause and attempt to invoke public passion for weirdos who they attempt to define as the young, the black and the poor."
"The average American is just not going to accept that nonsense," Agnew said.

Demonstrators In Manila Tell Yanks To "Go Home"

By PATRICK J. KELLEN
MANILA (UPI)—Anti-American demonstrators chanting "Yankee go home" marched in front of the U.S. Embassy for two hours today but they were pushed away by Philippine riot police ordered to guard the building against another firebomb attack.
There was no violence. About 200 demonstrators gathered outside the embassy during the afternoon carrying anti-American placards. They circled peacefully under the watchful gaze of 300 policemen stationed there in the morning.

Some of the signs proclaimed "Death to imperialists" and their slogans "and Nixon doctrine kill! kill! kill!"
Only 100 marchers remained when, shortly before 6 o'clock riot police, equipped with shields and truncheons, moved in and slowly pushed the crowd southward away from the embassy.
Military units and the police had been put on special alert in anticipation of the demonstrations, in contrast to Wednesday when police arrived at the embassy 45 minutes after the attack began.

Alabama Governor Seeking Freedom Of Choice Laws

By United Press International
Alabama Gov. Albert P. Brewer has called a special session of the legislature starting Monday to enact the "New York state freedom of choice" school attendance law.
Brewer put out the special session call Friday about the same time the Mississippi Legislature was approving a resolution that would provide for a "freedom of choice" amendment to the U.S. Constitution.
Brewer limited the length of the special session to five days, ending next Friday.
"The overwhelming majority of our people of both races support freedom of choice," said Brewer who has announced that he will seek his first full four-year term in the May 3 Democratic primary.
The Alabama governor scheduled an address to a joint session at 6:30 p.m. Monday in which he will ask the lawmakers to draw up and pass a bill that would prohibit the forced transfer of students for racial reasons. "It would especially prohibit the busing of students to achieve a racial balance."
The Mississippi House of Representatives approved a "freedom of choice" amendment 101-5 after it had been adopted unanimously in the Senate.
It has the effect of putting the state of Mississippi on record for the first time in support of racial integration. However, such support arises only in the sense that freedom of choice is preferable to recent federal court orders for massive integration.

The resolution petitions Congress to call a Constitution convention to consider an amendment specifying that:
"No person shall, by reason of race, color or national origin, be refused admission to or be excluded from any public school nor be compelled to attend a designated public school."
State Sen. Ed Pittman of Hattiesburg introduced the resolution which he said was recommended by Gov. John Bell Williams. He said it was identical to a resolution previously adopted by Oklahoma.
A similar proposal won approval in the Louisiana Legislature Friday.

The constitutional amendment proposal won the support of Rep. Dan Kuykendall, R-Tenn., who said at Memphis he favors this action over other forms of legislation because "the courts continue to ignore what Congress is saying."

Republicans, At National Level, Budget Less Money To Win Than Democrats Owe

By RAYMOND LAHR
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Republican committees operating at the national level are budgeting more money for the 1970 campaign than the Democrats need to pay off their troublesome debts.
The Democrats characteristically will spend whatever they can raise. Unless their new national chairman to be elected March 5 is a fund-raising wizard, liquidation or even reduction of their $8 million debt will be deferred until 1971.
Republican National Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton has announced that the party's national headquarters has a budget of about $4 million for 1970.

has said that the GOP owes some bills, too, and that it still must raise the money for its 1970 budget.
To operate the Democratic national headquarters, the party spends about $1.4 million a year. The Democratic Congressional and Senatorial committees will raise most of their money at a Washington dinner in May.
Federal law sets a $3 million annual ceiling on the spending of any national political committee but does not limit the number of committees. The GOP National Committee has a separately budgeted finance committee, which supervises all Republican fund-raising activities and channels money to various committees.
Neither the Democratic nor Republican National Committee contributes directly to candidates. Contributions are made to nominees by the House and Senate Campaign committees.
For candidates in a hot contest, however, contribution from these committees are little more than seed money to put them in position for a fast start.

Twin Falls Water Lease Bids Sought

Lease of 200 water shares of Twin Falls Canal Co. water to the highest bidder is planned for the 1970 irrigation season by the city of Twin Falls.
Sealed bids will be received at the office of the city clerk up to 7:30 p.m. Monday, March 16. City Manager Jean Millar announced Friday.
"This is the first time bids have been called for leasing of water from the Twin Falls Canal Co., although Salmon Falls Canal Co. shares allocated to the municipal airport are leased each year," Millar said. It is hoped in future years additional shares can be leased as a result of the city's switch from the Twin Falls Canal System to Blue Lakes water as a source of the domestic supply.
Mr. Millar said the water is from the lowline canal and must be taken out above the city's old filter plant either by pump action or through the canal distribution system. Bids will be accepted in blocks of 50 shares or more.

Rate Hearing Is Slated By PUC

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has scheduled a public rate docket in the Industrial Administration Building, room 32, 317 Main Street, Boise, at 9 a.m. March 4.
Applications have been received to increase the rates on sand, gravel, and aggregates thereof, certain services performed by household goods carriers and all mobile home carriers. Also to be considered are changes in rules, regulations and classifications of motor carriers operating within Idaho.

Rock Creek Pollution— Is Anything Being Done?

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Feature Editor

Emphasis in the 1970's is on a cleaner environment and pollution of streams and rivers is beginning to draw some long overdue action.

Rock Creek, from just east of Twin Falls to where it joins Snake River northwest of the city, has been termed one of the most polluted streams in Idaho.

Since 1959 studies have been made on the extent of pollution and means of correction. Deadlines have been established for industries to install treatment facilities and deadlines have been extended several times for additional study. As a result it is difficult to determine current deadlines but indications point to 1973 as the year in which secondary treatment will be required.

Officials of the Idaho Health Department indicate deadlines could again be extended if industries and others show they are making a sincere effort toward correction and are actually making some progress. As Dr. Leo Stokes, Boise State Health Department chief aquatic biologist, says, cost of secondary treatment facilities is extremely high and the state must keep this in mind in demanding industries correct long established systems that result in contamination and pollution.

Most industries in Twin Falls, now contributing pollution to Rock Creek, say they are holding up secondary plans until completion of a feasibility study now under way by Cornell, Howland, Hayes and Merryfield. The consulting engineering firm with branch offices in Boise indicates the first phase of this study will be completed within one to two months.

Earl Reynolds Jr., branch manager at Boise, says the first phase covers the proposal of a combined waste treatment facility for industries and the city of Twin Falls. The feasibility study was initiated by the city and funds made available under U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. The first phase, Mr. Reynolds says, covers alternative means of constructing a single secondary waste treatment facility to accommodate all waste generated in the area rather than individual facilities for each industry in addition to upgrading the city's sewage treatment facility in Snake River Canyon from primary to secondary.

The second phase of the study, ready in 1971 or late in 1970, will detail costs and include recommendations on which alternative or alternatives can best meet area needs. He said the study is aimed toward the 1973 deadline but noted with financing complications in view of new and pending legislation the 1973 deadline is a tentative thing. He added completion of adequate secondary facilities could require two years from the time a plan is selected and financing arranged.

Dr. Stokes said the Idaho Board of Health has set the first half of 1971 as the deadline for the city of Twin Falls to submit a proposal for adequate secondary treatment facilities. The present feasibility study should meet this deadline.

Some action has already been taken by industries and others are making long range plans. Amalgamated Sugar Co., a major contributor to wastes in Rock Creek, has announced plans to begin construction within the next few weeks on a clarification system to remove silt from waste water now discharged by the plant into Rock Creek. This will also remove organic particles of beet tops and beets but it will meet secondary treatment requirements, state officials say, and the firm could make further strides by joining the overall secondary facility if called for by the present feasibility study.

Enforcement of contamination and pollution control along Rock Creek, Dr. Stokes said, is largely the responsibility of county sanitation officers with help, if needed, from the State Health Board.

Industrial waste is by no means the whole story of Rock Creek pollution. Much of the problem comes from livestock pens, pastures and watering areas for cattle and horses along the creek. Some is commercial and some is agricultural.

Independent Meat Co., with a large feedlot area adjacent to the creek, has a primary sewage treatment facility, but can presently do little about the feedlot location and its natural drainage into the creek. Olio Fierco, a feedlot operator, said the firm has no concern but tentative future plans to correct the situation but is not yet able to disclose these. He said the firm's secondary treatment deadline has been extended indefinitely pending completion of the feasibility study. Mr. Florence said he wholeheartedly supports the county's proposal for converting Rock Creek to scenic and recreational use.

Idaho Frozen Foods is now operating a primary treatment facility at the rim of the canyon. Vern Routh, company president, says his firm is also waiting completion of the feasibility study before undertaking costly improvements. He said the effluent from the primary plant is largely starch and washing solution from the plant's operation. Domestic sewage goes into the city's sewer system, he said.

In addition to industries, other factors contributing to pollution and unsightly conditions along Rock Creek are numerous. A tour of the creek from the mouth where it empties into Snake River back to the Sugar Factory reveals a number of deplorable conditions.

Joseph LaVallee, county zoning administrator and one of the county officials who are concerned about conditions along the stream, said there are a number of sites suitable for recreational development but pollution and contamination are holding up such development.

At the mouth of the creek and Snake River is a large area designated for park development. Here water from Rock Creek is a brownish green color and "unauthorized dumping of trash has littered the canyon rim with everything from tin cans to old automobile bodies. Similar conditions can be found at almost every access point to the canyon. Mr. LaVallee said he has contacted the sheriff's office and courts and enforcement of "no dumping" restrictions is promised with severe penalties for offenders.

South of Addison Avenue several access points also reveal dumping along the canyon rim. By following All Street into the canyon one finds stacked discarded car bodies and used tires.

UNAUTHORIZED DUMPING of trash and debris has contributed to pollution and unsightly conditions where Rock Creek joins the Snake River. A large area in this vicinity is planned for park development depending on improvement in conditions of the creek.

COLLECTION OF SPHAEROTILUS bacteria, a strong indication of pollution, can be seen on old tire and rocks at far edge of water. This is just below the Pole Line Bridge north of Twin Falls and at times fibrous material of this bacterial slime is also visible through the water of Rock Creek.

OLD CITY DUMP, this area is still used by some residents for unauthorized dumping of debris and despite signing is still contributing to the area's contamination. Located above Rock Creek Canyon it lies in a natural drainage line to creek in the background. County Zoning Administrator Joseph LaVallee inspects rubble.

PRIMARY TREATMENT FACILITIES on the rim of Rock Creek Canyon behind Idaho Frozen Foods Inc., were once adequate but now must be brought up to secondary standards. County Zoning Administrator Joseph LaVallee notes the yellow foamy effluent from the pipe. Improvements are awaiting feasibility study results.

LIVESTOCK PENS such as those at Independent Meat Co., constitute a special problem. Located to take advantage of natural drainage, the pens utilize the creek to carry off moisture. Waste from one animal is sold by health department officials to be equal to ten humans. Independent Meat Co., in complete support of pollution control, indicates waste long range plans are under way to correct the situation.

SOLID WASTE PROBLEMS include old car bodies and other rodents as well as contribute to pollution as rain water trickles through them and into the creek during winter months. Property on All Street encourages the breeding of rats and

Search-Rescue Exercise Proves Units Ready For Snowmobiling Emergencies

FAIRFIELD — Snowmobilers may have brought much additional winter fun to many individuals and families, but they have also brought concern to law-enforcement, volunteer search and rescue groups and the U. S. Forest Service.

Should a snowmobiler become lost, injured or simply stranded, at least in the Fairfield area, they are ready to cope with the situation. This was proven recently in a search and rescue exercise held near here in which a "victim" supposedly injured and lost was found and brought to safety within about four hours time.

The successful rescue was achieved through the combined efforts of the Sawtooth National Forest, Soldier Mountain Ski Patrol, Camas County Snowmobile Search and Rescue squad, Willow Run Snowmobile Area and Camas County Sheriff.

Tabbed the HASTY Rescue Operation, it began when Bob Martins, of the U. S. Forest Service left alone on a snowmobile and became "lost." Between 5:30 and 6 p.m. a call went out to cooperating units in Gooding, Camas and Jerome counties stating the rider was six hours overdue on a trip from Wardrop Creek on Wells Summit Road seven miles north of Fairfield. He had indicated he planned to go to the Ditto Flat Winter Play area.

Four HASTY search units were organized and met at Willow Run Snowmobile Lodge to study maps and divide about two townships into search areas assigned to each. Communications were established with radio equipment and lights were carried for emergency signals should the radio units fail.

The four units set out on the search areas and by 8:34 p.m., members of HASTY Rescue Team No. 2 discovered the injured party with simulated concussion and leg fracture. By 10:55 p.m. he was back at the lodge, but as directors of the operation stated, this time included some discussion, demonstration and a search which would not have been covered in a genuine search and rescue operation.

About 25 persons participated. One rescue party went out from Fairfield directly over Wells Summit to look for the snowmobiler. One individual was assigned a high elevation point to relay radio messages from HASTY Rescue teams to the search headquarters at Willow Run Lodge. A rescue sled was immediately dispatched to the area where the victim was found.

Officials said the victim was found in one hour and 40 minutes after the search began.

A key to the search was tracing the snowmobile tracks of the missing machine in spite of numerous other tracks which had been used as a cover in the search area.

The point of discovery was 13 miles from the Willow Run Lodge.

Following the rescue operation, a review was held by cooperating units to iron out any difficulties and give pointers on possible improvement of the operation.

Among those directing the search and rescue exercise were Gary Smithy, Fairfield District Forest ranger; Thomas Spackman and Lowell Ruby of the Soldier Mountain Ski Patrol and Al Osborn, president of Sawtooth Recreation, Inc., operators of the Willow Run Snowmobile Lodge. In their evaluation, cooperating units pointed out it is much safer for snowmobilers to use established snowmobile areas and trails and it is rare that an accident or lost snowmobiler is reported on a commercially operated facility such as Willow Run.

It was reported in 1964 there were 15,000 snowmobilers in use in the United States and Canada and there are now 700,000 with sales this year alone expected to top the 350,000 mark. This makes it the fastest growing winter sport and a $400,000 industry.

One out of every 25 snowmobilers, however, were injured last year in a study area covered in Minnesota, which makes this a much more hazardous sport than skiing. There are also problems of damage and trespassing on private property and the matter of snowmobilers disturbing or killing game, points also discussed in the Fairfield exercise.

Rehabilitation Program On Rangeland Assists Big Game, Livestock

By JIM HUMBIRD

Idaho Fish and Game Department Two heavy duty crawler tractors running abreast, dragging a 200-foot chain between them, can tear out rank growths of tall sagebrush so that desirable browse plants, forbs and grasses can be exposed.

Gene deReus, land manager, says that many species of legumes, grasses and bitterbrush have been planted on the Boise front for chukar, Hungarian partridge and mule deer. Many springs and seeps on the range have been developed for several species of wildlife. Livestock animals will be used in a "rest rotation" program to encourage the production of bitterbrush.

Rest rotation is a system of land use which allows livestock animals to "hedge" part of the browse shrubs and grasses. This stimulates growth, usually by as much as double and even treble the amount of browse produced previously on the same range. Systematic rotation moves livestock animals into a pasture at the time shrubs from browse plants are ripe and scattering. The cattle, sheep or other animals trample the seed into the soil, planting them. At the same time, another pasture in the system is "rested" and all livestock are removed. Thus browse production is achieved and forage is available during the winter and early springtime for deer.

"We expect the rest rotation plan to stimulate the growth of browse as much as brown browse present production level," deReus averred.

"At the same time, watershed values are recognized and considered in the plan," he said.

Clear-cut block logging methods on the Snake River in north-east Idaho open up forest canopy so sunlight can penetrate and understory shrubs, forbs and grasses can germinate and grow. Slash burning likewise stimulates such growth, particularly red-stemmed conifers and other suitable browse plants needed by foraging white-tailed deer, and elk, on department-owned rangelands. Cooperation of the Milwaukee Land Company and other nearby landholders was essential to this range rehabilitation program.

The Idaho Fish and Game Department initiated controlled burning programs and participates with the U. S. Forest Service in such critical winter range improvement experiments on the Lochsa River watershed. This research has shown both agencies how to use fire to rehabilitate winter elk ranges in the Clearwater area, according to deReus. There is a possibility that controlled burning techniques he used to rehabilitate critical winter mule deer ranges south of the Salmon River. However, much more research is needed before this tool can become operational.

An exchange of grazing privileges and other cooperation between a large livestock rancher in eastern Idaho and the Fish and Game Department is reported in the current issue of "SOIL CONSERVATION," the official publication of the Soil Conservation Service, in an article by Neal S. Davis and John Davis, district conservationist and range specialist, respectively. Joint cooperation helped halt range deterioration on the Sildoway Sheep Company range, and doubled the safe size of the winter range.

ing with the Yellowstone Soil Conservation District, the Sildoway brothers in 1963 embarked on a program of range improvement including extensive control of big sagebrush and reseeding grass.

"A special problem was a sizeable elk herd that wintered on some of Sildoway's best early-grazing lands. The brothers worked out an agreement with the Idaho Fish and Game Commission under which the commission helps pay the cost of seeding some of the depleted range in exchange for the use of the wintering area by the elk herd. The commission also permits the Sildoways to use some of the state's game range while the seedlings are becoming established."

The authors say the wintering elk herd had about 500 head at the start of the cooperative program, which was considered about right for the amount of winter feed available. With additional land and improved forage, the herd has increased to more than 1,000 animals. Range deterioration has been greatly reduced or eliminated.

"The Sildoways were recognized for their efforts by the Idaho Landholder - Sportsman Council in 1965 when they were awarded the "Landholder - Sportsman of the Year" plaque in recognition of "Outstanding Leadership and promotion of improved landholder - sportsman relations." Bill Sildoway adds, "This agreement was one of the best things that ever happened to us. It not only gives the elk a good wintering area but it gives us about ten days earlier grazing in the spring, so we all gain."

Mr. Kay said the only safe method recommended by health authorities to study the eclipse without eye damage is to make a pinhole in one piece of cardboard and focus the sun's rays through this hole onto a sheet of white paper, making an image of the sun and depicting the eclipse indirectly. The size of the image can be varied with the distance between the sheets.

Week To Honor Environmental Engineering

Without the skills and services of professional engineers, buildings, airports and even advanced agriculture would not be possible.

The week of Feb. 22 through 28 has been proclaimed National Professional Engineers Week and this year's theme is Environmental Engineering.

Members of the Idaho Society of Professional Engineers are challenging residents of the area to look around them and witness the accomplishments of modern engineering in the past few years.

Industry and governmental agencies are relying on the skills and knowledge of the engineering profession to accomplish new goals in development and construction.

Ron Dehlin, Idaho Department of Highways engineer, Shoshone, said the Magic Valley Chapter ISPE consists of 27 licensed engineers and seven in-training graduate engineers.

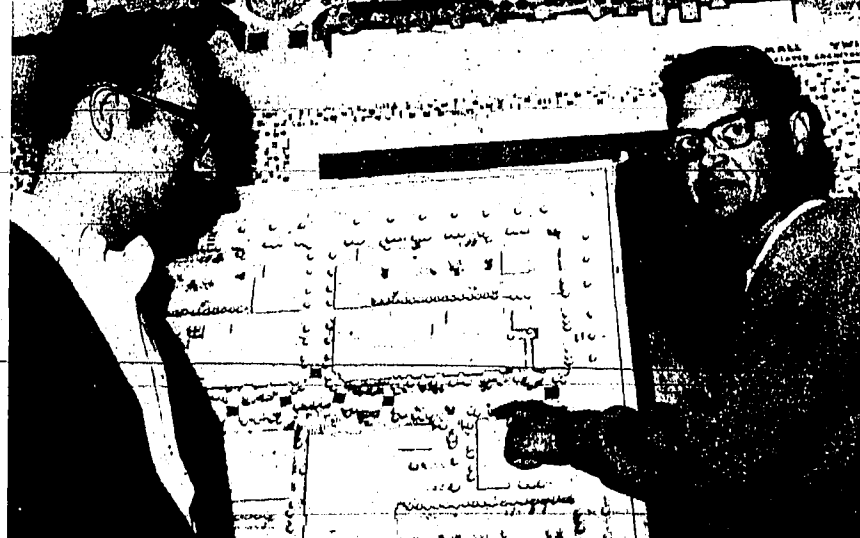

Engineering requires four to five years of college training and some four years of in-training work before the individual is eligible to take an examination for state licensing.

Local membership includes city engineers, planning, and consulting engineers, highway, utility company and industrial engineers, construction engineers and those working in the search at the Snake River Research Center and other agricultural establishments.

A Twin Falls consulting engineer, Dale L. Riedesel, has been honored by the State Society of Professional Engineers as Young Engineer of the Year. He was honored in the annual convention of the society in Boise earlier this month.

Mr. Riedesel is a partner and owner in the firm of Riedesel and Straubhar, Inc., a resident of Twin Falls since 1964. A graduate of the University of Idaho with a degree in civil engineering, he came to Twin Falls in June, 1964 as an engineer in training with the late Charles W. Glushko and Associates. He has also worked with the Idaho Department of Highways and as a draftsman.

His engineering accomplishments have included such structures as the concrete bridge

A NEW LOOK FOR DOWNTOWN Twin Falls is taking shape, born in the engineering office of Newton and Schafer. Tom Schafer, left, and Paul Newton explain plans for the small type project which their firm has designed for approval of the city and various agencies cooperating in the re-development project. undertaken represent a total investment of more than $2-million. He has served as president of the Magic Valley Chapter, Idaho Society of Professional Engineers and is currently chairman of the Preparation Committee of the State Society.

Mr. Riedesel serves as chairman of the Falls-Planning and Zoning Commission and is active in civic and service as well as professional organizations. Aware of problems facing the engineering profession, and has devoted time to recruiting and scholarship programs for young engineers. He also devotes time as a volunteer instructor in land surveyor review course sponsored by the I.S.P.E.

National Engineering week has been proclaimed by President Richard Nixon, Gov. Don Samuelson and Mayor Frank Egdtman.

In these proclamations emphasis is placed on the importance of good engineering practices and talent in the solution of environmental problems such as water and air pollution.

In keeping with this, research engineers in this area including James Bondurant, are working on projects to provide treatment facilities and to detect agricultural and irrigation contributions to stream pollution.

Magic Valley Chapter members of ISPE are sponsoring an Explorer Scout Counseling Post in Engineering.

All High School students in the area are invited to attend and learn what the field of engineering involves. Meetings are held each two weeks with guest speakers from the society explaining various phases of the engineering profession.

In addition to highway engineering, Idaho Power Co. and other utilities and industries normally known to utilize engineering personnel on-the-job staffs there are a number of unusual engineering jobs underway in the local area.

Dr. Marvin Jensen, Agricultural Engineer and director of the ARS Snake River Conservation Research Center and James Chapman, engineering technician are among those involved in forecasting irrigation needs of crops and compiling weather data to aid agriculture in the area.

Another agricultural engineer at the Snake River Research Center, Allan Humphreys, designed and supervised installation of automatic control gates now being used on a sugar plantation of about 25,000 acres in Kauai, Hawaii. The gates are cross connected so when one is closed by a timer another is opened and irrigation water automatically moves to another field. This allows one irrigator to handle up to ten times as much acreage.

Claude Fair, Irrigation Engineer with the Snake River Conservation Research Center, Kimberly, was recently awarded a plaque for outstanding work in sprinkler irrigation development. He is editor of the third edition of "Sprinkler Irrigation Handbook."

Robert Worstell, agricultural engineer, and Charles Carpenter, engineering technician, at the Kimberly center are two of the staff members involved in studies of improved methods of detecting high seepage areas in unlined canals and studying the water losses through seepage.

University of Idaho Professor C. E. Brockway is leading a study out of the research center on seepage of irrigation water from canals and reservoirs to determine why seepage sometimes stops from natural causes. Working with him in this and the general study of open and piped irrigation systems is Yung Chi Chung, University of Idaho graduate student.

Jim Bondurant, professional engineer with the research center reports on a project he is directing regarding agricultural pollution. His study is to determine whether the fertilizer, particularly phosphate, applied in this area is finding its way into Snake River through drainage and seepage. These studies to date, Mrs. Bondurant says, show where water filters through the soil, nearly all of the phosphate is retained in the soil.

Loretta, a classic dumb bunny, hated her life with her father and brother. Her father was a drunkard and her brother was a typical street hoodlum of the city.

As any young girl, Loretta had her little romances. She saw her boyfriend get killed and the horror of it caused her to run away. She married a policeman and they moved to the midwest with his parents. There she had two children, Jules and Maureen.

Jules was always different. Loretta noticed this quality and they always had a mutual understanding during his childhood. He ran away a lot and like to explore things. He didn't like seeing everyone sitting around, letting the world pass by them, which was what all the adults seemed to be doing. At that time, things were bad and the country was going into a war that Jules didn't understand. He had a good relationship with his grandmother Wendell—that Loretta couldn't tolerate.

After her husband went away in the war Loretta picked her bags and took off for Detroit. She tried street walking as a means of income, but her career was cut short by a plain-clothes policeman. When her husband returned home he took a job at a factory. He began drinking and the family life of the Wendells became unbearable. Maureen was given most of the household duties.

Maureen had more aspirations to use her mind, but she used the wrong methods of obtaining the necessary capital to continue her education. She gets heat up and goes into a catonic state for nearly two years. One day she realizes she can't be that way forever and goes back to normal. She breaks away from her family and starts her college career. Maureen fits in love with one of her professors, any association with her family as far as she is concerned they are gone forever.

Jules is not as fortunate as Maureen. He goes through many jobs and affairs only to fail. In the end he is left alone in the Detroit riots unable to understand what is going on around him and not even caring.

Area Man Recalls Radio Changes Of Past 50 Years

By ZEDA WISCAVER
Times-News Correspondent

CASTLEFORD — If the name Jennings Pierce immediately rings a bell in your mind, chances are you are a radio listener. Jennings Pierce is a former well-known NBC radio announcer whose voice is as familiar as the programs he announced.

He now resides in Castleford, a quiet citizen of the small farm community, but he retains a vast store of memories about the colorful days of early radio.

To the listening public, the statement "JP announcing" was all the identification the industry allowed the radio announcer in the big days of radio broadcasting.

One of the radio broadcasts that Mr. Pierce produced and announced for NBC took place in southern Idaho and concerned the contest for the governor of Idaho and the governor of Maine. The contest was a potato picking contest with the winner to receive either a gift of lobster from Idaho or a gift of potatoes from Idaho and the potatoes were shipped to Gov. Barrows of Maine.

Mr. Pierce was born on a dairy farm near Bakersfield, Calif. He attended Kern County high school. After graduation, he joined the Marine Corps in 1919. During the year he spent in the Marine Corps, he was a member of the Marine-Island Quartet. He recalls they felt pretty important when they had a singing engagement in the Imperial Theater on Market Street in San Francisco. The engagement lasted for three weeks.

Following his discharge from the Marines, he attended the University of California, Berkeley. He graduated with a degree from the College of Agriculture.

While in college he was a member of the glee club and a member of the frosh quartet and leader of the Golden Bears, the official college quartet. They sang at entertainments around the Bay region and it was the quartet that made possible a trip to the Orient. They spent three months one summer singing in that area.

Mr. Pierce first heard of this new thing called "radio" during his senior year at the University of California. They were at a university experiment farm at Davis, Calif. The agriculture students had organized a male quartet to sing at functions in and around Davis. The engineer department ask the quartet to help them with an experiment. There was a "thing called radio" in Sacramento and the engineers wanted the students to sing and they would pick it up at their department.

Mr. Pierce recalls they went to the studio. The walls were hung with heavy drapes. They sang their hearts out, and loudly. They looked back to Davis to find out how they sounded but the engineers hadn't heard a thing.

A few years he worked as a crops inspector, checking the sugar content of grapes in the San Joaquin valley. He resided in Lodi. Thousands of carloads of fresh grapes were shipped to the eastern markets at that time to make wine. Now the industry is located in California and the product they manufacture is second to none in the world, Mr. Pierce stated.

The first summer after graduation, the university quartet was asked to entertain at the lodge in Yosemite.

It was while they were in Lodi Mr. Pierce met an old friend, Howard Millholland. This was known Mr. Millholland was in Lodi as an entertainer. He was a well-known "reader," giving readings, poetry and story telling. He mentioned he was going to be the manager of KGO, a radio station.

Pierce was transferred to Alameda to inspect tomatoes. Mr. Millholland called him and asked him to come to the station and try out for their announcer.

He drove to 535 14th, Oakland and found the new studio built by General Electric. He auditioned. He read the stock market or some such piece of information and the manager told him he could have the job.

Mr. Pierce recalls it was quite a problem to decide. He had gone to college and had his degree and he did have a job. A very dear friend of the family firmly stated he would regret it the rest of his life if he went into radio — a passing fancy.

Since GE had spent a lot of money to construct the station, he decided to take the job. Within two weeks we was in radio announcing, signing and reading programs. There was no recording in those days and all the material from the studio was live.

The Exchange Club asked him to help them with programs and this worked out well with the station. Many touring troupes were going about entertaining. They would visit the studio offering to sing for the opportunity of appearing in public. They were mostly singles or duos.

While he was one of these early day entertainers.

Mr. Pierce spent four years at KGO announcing. It was at this time that NBC was formed and they extended their lines to the Pacific Coast. They had grand opening for the event in San Francisco at the St. Francis hotel complete with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra. They did a complete operation. They brought in their own head, sales managers and operators for the occasion with the vice president of the company in charge of the entire affair.

The NBC announcers were the envy of the local station personnel. Dinty Doyle, the radio editor of the Oakland Post-Inquirer, a genial Irishman, told Mr. Pierce about a "big turn-over" at NBC in San Francisco. He went to San Francisco and talked to Dinty about the job. He was president of the Western Division and was hired as chief announcer. He spent 35 years as the NBC announcer there.

During this time he did some traveling for NBC, announcing programs. One such trip he recalled with enjoyment was an Easter sunrise service at Lake Union near Seattle. This was an annual affair and was presented by NBC coast to coast. Mr. Pierce announced it and produced it to great acclaim. The complete with the Seattle symphony orchestra. It was held in Volunteer Park with six inches of snow on the ground. The musicians could not keep their trumpets in tune because of the cold.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Mrs. Phely Robison, JEROME, is an inspiration to many people. Mrs. Robison, who is 68 and lives alone, lost her left arm below the elbow three years ago in a spindle cutting machine. Her arm was mangled when she caught her glove in the machine.

Don Ricketts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Ricketts, was home from college and used his Boy Scout training to help save Mrs. Robison's life. He kept a tourniquet on the arm until the ambulance arrived.

Mrs. Robison raises a garden, mows for lawn and does all her own housework. She noted that friends and relatives were eager to help but found that she could do many things by herself.

She makes her own dresses, and was busy cutting one out for Gilman, a friend. She collects, embroiders and displayed many pieces of delicate work she had done.

She is aided in the embroidery work by a plastic stand with a wooden base that holds the fabric. The idea was conceived and built by her brother-in-law, Frank Walker. He also made her a device to hold the fruit jars while she is sealing them and she can cut fruit with this help.

Mrs. Robison, a devout member of the LDS church, is a strong believer in prayer and feels that God cares for persons. She is proof that, with His help, handicapped people can learn to "get along."

Starlings, apt mimic birds vocally, also are food habits of other birds. While they may not eat fruits or seeds of trees normally, just let them notice other birds dining there, and they'll congregate to share the spoils. A Steller's jay has been around the Allison home this winter, dividing his attention between their place and the Earl Hualst home, a catty-cornered across Garfield Ave. He dropped in to add his gorgeous blue-black coloring to the other gay shades flitting in the trees.

A downy woodpecker has been an all-winter diner, also, who partakes of the tiny apple-like fruits.

Usually these fruits are eaten in the autumn, but this year few were taken then. Now they are fast disappearing, as are the pyracantha berries around town, as the song birds make their way northward on their annual migration.

The Mystery of the Disappearing Half Dollar is still with us. Our mail continues to hold letters of inquiry about the half-dollar and why it is scarce in circulation. We have no answer which is satisfactory. Since there is so much interest, we will quote mintage to show why it should NOT be scarce.

The 1968 figures released by the United States Mint show a total of 246,951,030 half dollars were coined by the combined mints. These were released into circulation and should have more than adequately filled the need. In 1969, the year just past, the figure fell slightly below the total of 246,951,030 half dollars were coined by the combined mints. Why anyone should be interested in accumulating a box full of these sandwich coins is beyond the knowledge of most of the collecting profession. But such is evidently the case, and it is quite certain that some day there will be a literal flood of these come out of hiding, then they will be a drug on the market. In the meantime—your guess as to where they are going is as good as anyone's.

Also, every once in a while a question arises as to the values these coins place on coins. We do not know the answer, but we are in the market to buy coins. Prices are quoted as buying prices—that is, the amount which dealers will offer for collector's coins. The high prices you see advertised are "selling" prices—the price asked by dealers, and there is considerable difference.

Also it is this column's policy to quote prices on the low side and not the most which can be obtained. It is true that frequently we have readers who sell coins for more than we have quoted them as worth—but it is our contention it is better for a collector-reader to be pleasantly surprised by get-

TV-Cast As Producer, He Prefers Own Bag - Acting

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Peter Haskell, Hollywood correspondent, is a man who married a Hollywood girl, stars in "Bracken's World" as Kevin Grant—a producer-writer. But he prefers his own bag: Acting.

Haskell and his wife, Anne, live in an old Spanish home in the Hollywood hills surrounded by paneled walls, wooden beams, arched doorways and colorful tile.

They have converted one of their five bedrooms into an office and another into a living room equipped with an entertainment center with library and stereo equipment. Their large establishment—also has a maid's room and bath that now is a guest apartment with a living room.

Friends and members of their family from the east frequently occupy the quarters on visits to Hollywood.

Haskell is a tall, athletic man with a comfortable face and an easy manner.

He is proud of his L-shaped home which encloses a brick patio, beyond which the hills are terraced and crowded with pine trees.

He is within 20 minutes of 20th Century-Fox studios where the NBC series "Hawaii Five-O" drives a small German compact while Ann looks around in a station wagon for her own growing business.

Mrs. Haskell is an antique dealer with a Hollywood shop, the Sloopers Blvd. She specializes primarily in turn-of-the-century art, pottery, stained glass, small pieces of furniture and bric-a-brac.

golf course hacking his way around 18 holes in something more than 100 strokes.

On winter weekends both Ann and Peter follow the misadventures of the Los Angeles Kings hockey team. They also entertain at small dinner parties and attend as many movies as possible.

Childless, the Haskells pour out their affection on a small mutt named Muffin who, they claim, thinks itself human.

"We have thought about having children," Haskell says, "but then we heed the advice of some old sage who once said never acquire anything that can't be sold."

In that event, Muffin may consider her home temporary.

Generally the Haskell home is quiet. Both read books by the stack. Their library contains approximately 4,000 volumes, mostly novels.

"I guess we spend at least two hours a day each with our noses buried in books," Peter estimated.

Haskell will never reach the 10 best-dressed lists, but he does admire the wardrobe worn by his character in the weekly series and would like to dress in the same manner.

Economic factors prevent him at this time from buying the new and colorful clothes for men.

Neither Ann nor Peter are especially fond of cooking, but they divide the chore. Whenever possible Ann buys roasts or steaks that can be barbecued by her husband.

CHILDREN SHOULD SIT

Ann leaves for the shop at 9:30 in the morning. Her reports for work at 7 a.m. His schedule requires him to be on the job only four days a week.

Rock Creek Pollution Needs Priority Action

 her, wire and trash. As Mr. LaVallee explains, such conditions not only increase pollution as rain flows down the canyon walls, through the debris and into the creek, but they provide a breeding ground for rats and other rodents.

Wrecking lots west of the hospital also contribute to the situation and must be cleared if the county's proposed rest stop and park is to be established there.

Another situation which has not been corrected over the years is the site of the old city dump south and east of town. Here some trash is still being dumped and collections of debris date back many years.

The Twin Falls County Highway District property leading to the canyon wall also shows evidence of trash deposits. At Creed's Crossing stagnant pools of water beside the creek hold away evidence of unchecked waste and contamination.

Near the Shoshone Street Bridge a fish hatchery and home encounter constant problems during wet weather because of livestock company feed lots and holding pens located directly above on the canyon rim to take advantage of natural drainage. Small rivers of manure wash into the canyon and residents at the fish hatchery are forced to dig trenches and bury small cans to protect their home and lawn.

Robert Bell, fisheries biologist, Idaho Fish and Game Department, Jerome, said the state fish hatchery on Blue Lakes Blvd. S. in the canyon does not use Rock Creek water, but is in a good position to witness pollution. He estimated Rock Creek is one of the most heavily polluted streams in Idaho on the section from the Amalgamated Sugar factory to the Snake River.

On Feb. 10, 1969, an estimated kill of 200 fish, of which 15 percent were game fish, occurred. This, he said, was later found to have resulted from a discharge of muratic acid from the sugar factory into Rock Creek. The acid is used to clean boilers and is deadly to fish.

Very few fish can be found in Rock Creek along the lower areas, he said, because the high degree of pollution has killed all fish habitat and food. He estimated it would take a number of years to restore fish to the stream if all pollution sources were cut off immediately.

Fish, he said, might survive in the creek with existing oxygen content, but would move out because of lack of food. Some fish, he added, now remain in the creek depends on stream flow to an extent, Mr. Bell said, which would govern the time required to wash silt and collections from the bottom of the creek so fish habitat could be recovered.

A number of historical sites might be developed along Rock Creek to preserve rest stops, mark graves where the wagon trains traveling the Oregon Trail once stopped by the cool refreshing stream. In its present condition, the stream would hardly be inviting to anyone no matter how tired and thirsty.

Planning consultants who have prepared general and comprehensive plans for local governing agencies have all pointed to Rock Creek as one of the area's major assets in recreational potential.

Before this potential can be realized some all out effort will be required from governmental agencies, private industry and individuals interested in pollution control.

President Nixon Beginning To Suffer From Johnson Ailment—Credibility Gap

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House: President Nixon, assuredly without wanting to, is beginning to suffer from an ailment which plagued his predecessor, Lyndon B. Johnson—credibility gap.

There are, however, some new angles. For one thing, Nixon's credibility or lack thereof has yet to be given a truly adrethical test. Another angle is that having discovered the apparatuses, perquisites and equipment of a President, Nixon now tends to move more swiftly and without quite the advance notice he gave during the 1968 campaign.

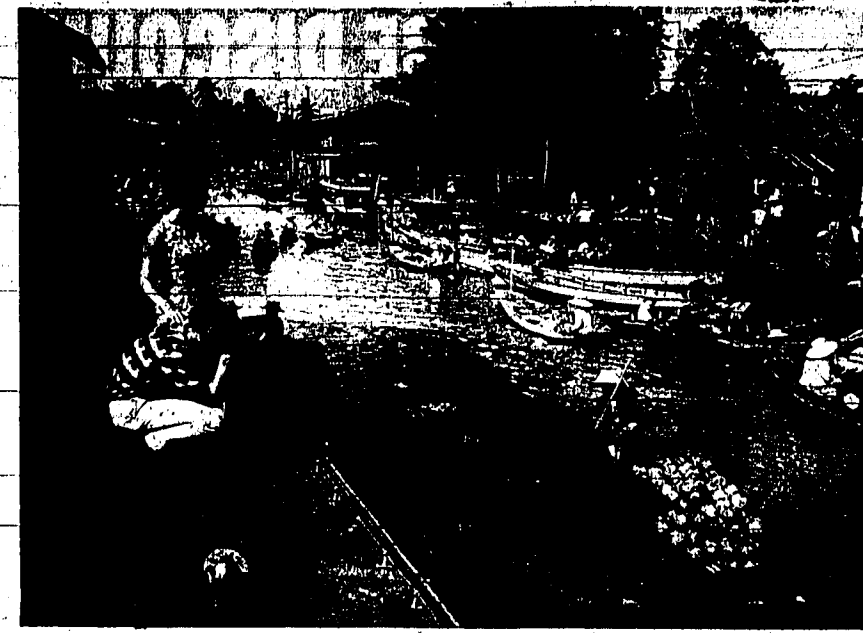

Perhaps, Nixon's greatest obstacle when it comes to credibility is the press, it seems—newspapers, magazines, radio and television. And, of course, the general public. This largely has been conditioned for some years to look behind a presidential statement or utterance in his behalf by members of his administration.

Case in point: His recent budget for fiscal 1971, his comments on the military, his statements on the economy, his statements on the war. Financial and economics reporters who live with this complicated situation hour after hour, day after day, for the most part simply do not believe the forecast of a surplus. They, again, for the most part, do not question Nixon's sincere hope for a surplus at the end of fiscal 1971, but they do not believe the state of the national and world economy is such that a surplus is in the cards. Sam's books come June 30, 1971.

Case in point: Civil rights. Nixon and his family could move out of the White House into the worst ghetto flop in town and wear nothing but tattered blue denim for the rest of their presidential years and a great number of black militants still would not believe him when he says he is for equal opportunity and non-segregation in schools; housing and jobs. In fact, this type of civil rights posturing is not President simply because he represents the establishment and to their way of thinking, the establishment is a living, racist lie.

Case in point: Vietnam. A large number of American troops to else's. This seems not to be a military matter. Nixon is not doing all he can to end the war. Withdrawing troops at a rather steady rate without waiting for an inkblot

THIS IS THE FLOATING MARKET in Bangkok, Thailand, and is reached by boat up a river and a maze of canals. Local merchants, many of them women, sell their wares in these boats, dating back centuries. This is also the home of Thai silks and the tourist can view the process from the silk worm to the finished product by walking only a few feet. Here, tourists take pictures of the busy waterway and the merchants with everything from bamboo to clothing. This will be part of the Magic of the Orient Tour, to start April 14 and hosted by Joe and Mary Salisbury of Magic Carpet Travels.

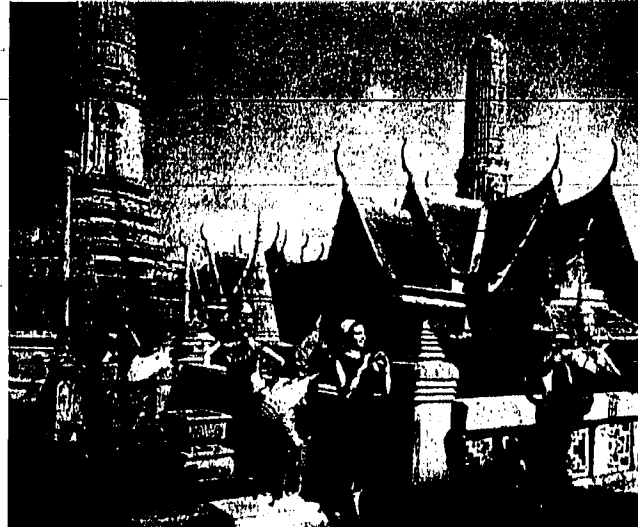

ALTHOUGH THESE STONES are wide, built for jumping across the pond, a wrong step and the well-dressed tourist, or tourists in this case, would wind up in the oriental drink. This spring is in the beautiful Japanese Garden of Heian Shrine at Kyoto, Japan, and is often called the cultural cradle of Japan. This will be one stop in 10 days of visiting in Japan during the Magic of the Orient Tour. A visit to the Expo-70 will also be featured, along with a cruise on the Inland Sea of Japan.

No Effort Made

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department says it has made no diplomatic efforts to obtain landing rights in Communist China for Pan American World Airways.

A spokesman said Thursday the department is aware of Pan Am's desire for such landing rights, but he said it was a "long range idea." He said he did not think the matter would come up in the ambassadorial-level talks between the United States and China at Warsaw.

THE DAZZLING AND INTRICATE decorations make these National Palace Grounds at Bangkok a photographer's dream, especially if he or she is using color film. One sight on the trip here is the Temple of the Emerald Buddha in which a life-size Buddha is changed each season by the King of Siam.

Area Residents Set To Leave April 14 On 23-Day "Magic Of The Orient Tour"

Want to spend 23 days in the Orient? Want to walk barefoot on the beach (and in Japanese houses) while the folks at home are awaiting summer and the warm days ahead? Dream no more, such a tour is at hand.

A Magic of the Orient Tour, starting April 14 and hosted by Joe and Mary Salisbury of Magic Carpet Travels, gets under way April 14 and ends May 7. Tourists will visit five countries of the Far East.

The tour features 10 days in Japan, with a visit to Expo-70 and a cruise on the Inland Sea of Japan. There are also trips available at Magic Carpet Travels, outlining the tour, the cost and giving all information.

But the tour, at least a large portion of it, starts in Twin Falls with an Air West hop to Boise.

Then there are three days at Taiwan, the republic of Nationalist China, and on to Hong Kong, Thailand and the Philippines, returning May 7.

A group of 20 Idaho residents have already signed up for the tour—and Mr. Salisbury said there is room for about 10 more.

"This would make the group the ideal size," he said.

A detailed color brochure is available at Magic Carpet Travels, outlining the tour, the cost and giving all information.

Minister's 'Night Watch' Seeks To Help Lost Souls

By ROBERT C. WATERS
Pastor, United Community Church, Saginaw, Michigan

Nervously tugging a finger inside my clerical collar, I hesitated before the floor of Pee Wee's Lounge. But the call from inside the bar was stronger than my urge to return to my car, and I stepped into the boozey warmth.

A foggy-eyed woman tottered up. Peering at my collar, she demanded, "What are you doing here? You ought to be in church."

It was 10 o'clock Saturday night, and I was just starting my Night Watch in Saginaw, Michigan. One night a week the bars, flop-houses, hospitals and all-night restaurants are my parish.

The foggy-eyed woman staggered off, shaking her head, and I sat alone in a sea of souls. Over the din and through the bar's fluorescent, bottle-tilted glow, I began to hear the words that brought me here: "Feed My sheep."

They were Christ's words. And they'd pricked my conscience two years before. As a pastor of a new suburban church, I knew we were reaching the "good" people. But who was carrying His love to the lost, the forgotten people in Saginaw?

I had not been alone in my concern. Soon there were 12 of us—ministers and priests—exploring ways to answer His command.

We had no professional guidance. How could we reach those who needed Christ so desperately?

Finally, we launched our ministry by simply going out into the city at night, covering the seven nights of the week on a rotation basis. Two of us are on duty, but we travel alone. We don't push ourselves at people; we let them approach us.

How many have we "saved"? The question is meaningless. Our criterion for success is whether we love people as we find them. To each we try to listen with sympathy and understanding.

"You know, Reverend," the bartender said, "I slipped like she did which you first walked in here last year. But it didn't take long to figure out. We've been in this business for a long time and I know that most folks coming in here are the loneliest people on earth. What they're really looking for isn't in those bottles, or in the next booth. I need that the clock behind the bar read 11, and I

First Lady Opens Wyeth Art Show

WASHINGTON (UPI)—American realist Andrew Wyeth last week became the first artist ever honored with a special White House showing when First Lady Pat Nixon opened an indefinite exhibit of 21 of his paintings.

"Thousands will get great joy out of it," Mrs. Nixon told the 52-year-old painter.

The Clinton, Pa., painter, wearing what he called an "Amish style" collarless gray suit that he conceded looked like hippie clothes, kept repeating how "overwhelmed" he was during the brief ceremony in the East Room.

phoned the answering service. We report in every hour. I noticed our "Night Watch" "must-ness card" on the wall; they're tacked up all around town.

There was a message for me. I drove to the address. A haggard-eyed man met me at the door. The hand that reached for mine was trembling. Minutes before, it had held a pistol, I learned.

He told me of his desperation. Impending bankruptcy was only one of his problems.

"What's the use of going on?" he asked. We talked earnestly, and finally he began to see things in proportion. As we parted, his eyes seemed to show hope.

It was nearing midnight as I turned down Torpedo Alley, a neon-flickering strip of honky-tonks.

In the Red Horse Lounge, a young woman reeled into me. She recognized my collar and recoiled.

"Oh, my God! What are you doing here?"

"Let's sit down and I'll explain." But I didn't explain anything. I just listened to her pour out her torment. Gwen was a divorcee who worked six nights a week to support her family. On the seventh night she "relaxed."

During our conversation Gwen began to see what she was doing to herself and her children. Finally I drove her home. At the door she turned and said, "I won't be back." I felt she meant it.

At 2 a.m. I was at another bar. Walter, a young executive, unloaded his troubles over his eleventh martini. His problem, he mourned, was a frigid wife. He insisted I accompany him home.

We three talked—about their problems. They were still talking when I left. I made a note to call one of our volunteer helpers from Alcoholics Anonymous. Other volunteers include a physician, psychiatrists and high school counselors.

At 4 a.m. I was at the hospital. A man had just lost his wife in an auto accident, and I sat with him, not talking.

The eastern sky over Saginaw began to brighten—and the night people began to drift to their homes. I headed for mine, mindful that a phone call could still reach me, for sometimes our "night" ends at 10 in the morning.

It had been another night of reliving the enriching experience of the father of the prodigal son.

For that is our privilege on a Night Watch—to be able to greet the lost and forlorn with that same message of hope: "Welcome home—welcome home to our Father's understanding and everlasting love."

Club Assists With Wardrobes

The search for a new community project has provided rewarding experiences for members of the Welcome Wagon Club recently.

They reviewed several project ideas at the start of their fiscal year, and realizing the needs of the newly organized Harbor House, decided to concentrate their efforts there in any way they could. Clothing for the youngsters is always a problem, and after talking to the home officials, members decided to furnish complete wardrobes for all ages, from infants to teenagers.

They put out an SOS among members and soon the clothes were gathered, sorted, mended, cleaned, etc. The wardrobes are complete in date, and according to Mrs. Jack (Jeri) Miller and Mrs. Dale (Clarice) Leslie, who head the Welcome Wagon committee, they are very proud of the quality and quantity of clothing they have acquired.

The wardrobes are housed at the Harbor House and have proved very valuable in many instances. "The joy of fitting a young boy into a pair of shoes is something else, especially when he hadn't had a pair of shoes on for some time," commented one woman. "One little girl was overjoyed with her newly acquired dresses and asked if she could please take them home with her," the other woman noted.

With some of the children taking the clothing with them, there is a continuing need for good clothing of all kinds.

Harbor House opened its doors in November to temporarily homeless children and since that time has had from one to eight youngsters housed there at nearly all times.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Schiffer, house parents, care for the children until permanent arrangements can be made for them through court action. All ages of children from infants to 18 years old have been housed in the facility thus far.

Much of the furniture and equipment for the home was donated by community residents and organizations and financial assistance from such events as the recent Country Music Jamboree are helping the establishment meet needs of the youngsters and licensing requirements. Some county funds are available this year for operating expenses.

Probate Judge Eugene McCoy says the establishment of a harbor house in Twin Falls has made it possible to take young children out of undesirable home conditions until other arrangements can be made, and has also made it possible to keep others out of jail cells when they are involved in minor delinquency.

1st Wedding At Area Church Sees 50 Years

CLOVER—Surrounded by fertile fields, halfway between Buhl and Filer, is the Clover Lutheran Church, a white frame building with a tall steeple, and a lighted blue cross which at night can be seen from miles around.

This simple but lovely country church has been the setting for many of the happiest moments of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Persigehl, lifelong members.

The Persigehls were the first couple to be married in the church after it was completed in 1919, and through the years they have watched as their four daughters were baptized, confirmed and married at the church altar, and they themselves celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary this winter at an open house sponsored by the congregation with special services being held in the church.

A son, Emil, was born Oct. 21, 1902, to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Per-sigehl on a farm near Sylvan Grove, Kan. The farm was later sold by the Persigehls to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Thiemert, and on Jan. 8, 1899, a daughter, Amalia, was born to the couple.

In those days nearly all births took place in the homes, so an old acquaintance Mr. and Mrs. Persigehl, who were later to grow up and be married, were born in the same farmhouse.

Amalia Thiemert came to Idaho to visit a brother who had moved out here and she decided to stay. She worked for some time for Dr. and Mrs. F. A. McClusky in Buhl. Her parents moved to Idaho a year later and lived near the former Clover store. A year after that Mr. Persigehl came to Idaho to be near his childhood sweetheart.

The Clover Church was organized in 1915 by a number of Lutheran families who had moved out from Nebraska and Kansas. Construction of a chapel was begun and finished in time for the Dec. 14, 1919, wedding of Amalia Thiemert and Emil Persigehl with rites performed by the Rev. W. F. Dannenfeldt, pastor.

The couple's first child, Betty, was born June 24, 1920, and was baptized a few weeks later in the church. A second daughter, Vera, was born June 2, 1930, and was followed Sept. 5, 1931, by a third daughter, Gladys. The youngest daughter, Joan, was born Oct. 21, 1937. All the girls were baptized by the Rev. Mr. Dannenfeldt in the church a few weeks after their births.

All four girls attended the Clover School and each was graduated from the eighth grade the same year she was confirmed into the Lutheran Church. All four also were graduated from the Filer High School.

Betty, the oldest daughter, married Willard Thiemert, Aug. 17, 1947, in a beautiful wedding in the church. The Thiemerts farm near Twin Falls and have five children, three boys and two girls.

Vera became the wife of Richard Ladendorf in rites at the Clover Church Aug. 14, 1955. Mr. Ladendorf had been a former vicar in the church and a teacher at the school. He now teaches at Kennewick, Wash., and they are the parents of three daughters and a son.

Gladys exchanged wedding vows with Gene Ruiter June 28, 1959. They farm north of Twin Falls and have one girl and three boys. Joan became the wife of Donald Stein on Dec. 27, 1960, and they reside in Tempe, Ariz., where she is a secretary for a bank president and he is a laboratory technician in a government plant. The Persigehls have resided all of their married life on the same farm a mile east of the church. She has held various positions in the Lutheran Women's Missionary League, a church organization, and at present is corresponding secretary of the group.

She is a member of the Twin Falls hospital Guild and has served as a plunk lady for 14 years. Some years ago she completed the Red Cross first aid courses and since that time, as a nurse's aide, has helped with each Filer Red Cross bloodmobillo drive. Mr. Persigehl served as a school elder for nine years and is a charter member of the Clover Lutheran Layman's League. He also served as a director of the Hightline Canal Co. board for many years.

In their spare time, the couple has many hobbies. They both have been on bowling teams in Buhl and Twin Falls. They have a pool table in their basement, and friends and neighbors are always welcomed to come over for a game.

The Persigehls enjoy playing pinocchlo with friends during the winter months. In summer they like taking their camper to Salmon Dam, Magic Reservoir or Murtaugh Lake and getting in on the good fishing. Mrs. Persigehl has a decided "green thumb" as attested by her many beautiful house plants.

An most parents will agree, they comment that "Children grow up all too fast." They remember the times when the whole neighborhood gathered at their place and the cookie jar was always empty. The lateral behind their farm was a favorite swimming place for the

THE YEARS HAVE DEALT KINDLY with Mr. and Mrs. Emil Persigehl who pose at their Golden Wedding Anniversary reception with a cake decorated by their oldest daughter. The Persigehls were the first couple to be married in the Clover Lutheran Church after it was completed in 1919.

FOLLOWING THE DEC. 14, 1919, wedding at the Clover Lutheran Church, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Persigehl, the first to be married in the church, pose with their attendants in the yard of the bride's parents' home. From left are Mrs. Emalia Schroeder, Theodore Thiemert, the bride, Emil Persigehl, the groom, and Robert Wenzel, Miss Schroeder, who later married Mr. Thiemert, is the only attendant still living.

Clover Couple Observe 50th Anniversary

(Continued From Page A-7) Younger set, and their daughters and their friends enjoyed many happy hours playing in an empty trailer house on the yard. The Golden Wedding Anniversary open-house of the Persegel's held in the Clover School last month saw a crowd of more than 300 people gather to offer their congratulations. An anniversary service by Rev. T. D. Johnson in the church preceded the open house which was hosted by the congregation.

CHECKING ORTHOPEDIC equipment donated to the VFW Auxiliary recently by Mrs. Dan Daniels is Mrs. Harold Billings, auxiliary president, and Mrs. W. W. Welch, VFW hospital equipment chairman. The equipment was donated to the auxiliary who in turn provides the items on a loan basis to any Magic Valley person needing them. Among the items donated are hospital beds, walkers, crutches, commodes and over-bed trays.

All the children and grandchildren were present for the special event, and Mrs. Thelma, oldest daughter, made the three-tiered white and gold cake which centered the refreshment table. The church and school overflowed with beautiful floral arrangements sent to the honored couple.

Mrs. Persegel greeted their guests wearing a blue dress accented with an orchid corsage. Granddaughters, Janelle Thelma and Linda Ruhler, were in charge of the guest book. Mrs. Raymond Ohlenschlaeger, Mrs. Edgar Meyer and Mrs. Edwin Lierman, elders of the church, served cake, punch and coffee.

The only sad note to mar the festivities was the death of Mrs. Persegel's sister, Mrs. Josephine Kruckenberg, 81, who died just four days before the open house was to be held. She had eagerly looked forward to her sister's 50th Anniversary as it was the first Golden Wedding to be celebrated on either side of the family. The Persegels considered postponing the event but on the advice of their pastor, family and friends, proceeded with the celebration.

Mrs. Enola Thiermer, 81, of Lake City, the only attendant at their wedding still living, was unable to be present for the anniversary. But otherwise the day was a happy warm-hearted occasion as friends, relatives and neighbors came from far and near to wish God's blessings on a special couple and to extend wishes for many more years of wedded life together.

Orthopedic Items Donated To Auxiliary

Life for an invalid can be more endurable with the aid of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary's Community Service Project.

According to Mrs. Harold Billings, president, much equipment was recently donated to the auxiliary by the Dan Daniels family. Among the donated items are hospital beds, walkers, crutches, commodes and over-bed trays.

The VFW Auxiliary is providing this equipment on a loan basis to any Magic Valley person needing them. Loan arrangements can be made by contacting Mrs. W. W. Welch, hospital equipment chairman, between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. at Welch Transfer and Storage Co. Twin Falls, who is storing the equipment, or by contacting Mrs. Billings.

The VFW Auxiliary appreciates this donation from the Dan Daniels family and hopes that needy persons will benefit from the use of this newly donated equipment.

The March 12 meeting will be hosted by Mrs. James Anderson. Mrs. Lucinda Dudley will be co-hostess.

LEAVE ROOM AHEAD

Don't be in such a hurry that you have to drive practically piggy-back on the car ahead, says the Idaho State Police. It's a sure way to attract an accident. Stay back a little and leave room to get out of trouble.

Club Banner Discussed By Nix-On-Pix

Ideas for a new club banner were discussed when members of the Nix-On-Pix TOPS Club met recently at the Twin Falls City Hall, with Vonda Wagner presiding.

Final decision on the banner will be made next week.

Winners in the "Trip to Florida" contest were awarded their prizes. First place went to Margaret Grant; Mary Powell, second place; and Wanda Mort, the "booby" prize. It was noted all entries in the contest lost weight.

Four new members were welcomed into the club: Helen Carey, re-elected; Joyce Miller, a transferee; Li Simons, and Emma Green.

Dodie Busby was in charge of the program. She introduced Mrs. Donna Kleinkoff from the telephone company who presented a talk on what to do if a person receives a nuisance phone call and how the company can trace these calls. A tape was also presented to show the different types of nuisance calls.

Twenty-four members weighed in with a loss of 16½ pounds for the week. Minerva Smith reached her KIW this week. Best loser for the week was Helen Carey and biggest gainer was Ollenas Armstrong.

"Image" Of Girl Scouts Is Updated

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Time was when the "image" of a Girl Scout was that of a little girl learning to tie knots in rope and cook potatoes in campfires.

Girl Scouts still earn merit badges along outdoor trails, but anyone who has kept up with the scouts knows the scouts have also kept up with the times.

One Senior Scout, in making out a report on a community service project, summed it up when she wrote recently: "They don't think of us any more as little girls in green selling cookies and playing games. Now they know that we do care about our community and we do want to help."

One who "acknowledged" this last week was Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, who wore Girl Scout green when she was officially installed as honorary president of a post held by all first ladies since Mrs. Woodrow Wilson—and said: "Girl Scouting exhibits the type of enthusiasm and spirit we need in this country—the concept of being friends with all."

Mrs. Nixon was particularly impressed with the Action 70 Program—a national effort to achieve freedom from racial, religious and ethnic prejudices—and told the scouts: "You can count me in as an active volunteer."

The kind of program the girls—Seniors, Cadettes, even Brownies—think up, plan, carry out and often continue with the aid of foundation grants varies greatly depending on the area in which they live.

In Chicago last summer, for instance, the girls decided on street programs for youngsters in three neighborhoods where recreational facilities and activities were unavailable.

The program was called "Come Join Us," and the scouts walked the streets of the neighborhoods chosen, inviting youngsters to join in sports, field trips and crafts programs. Casual-appearing on the surface, the scouts had worked BUIL — A $10 donation to the Educational Foundation Fund was made when the Buil Rebekah Lodge No. 29 met in regular session, with Mrs. Otto Dolar, noble grand, presiding.

The Educational Foundation Fund grants loans to worthy young people to further their education who are willing to conform to the rules and regulations set by the foundation, which is funded by donations from Odd Fellows and Rebekahs.

Members voted to have a coupon drive to be sent to the Kouskin Lodge to assist in refurbishing their lodge which was completely destroyed by fire in August of last year.

Plans were made for the official visitation of Mrs. Mabel Pierce, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Idaho. A salad luncheon will be held at the Lincoln-Courts Community Center and a banquet in her honor during the evening. Members are asked to bring salads to the luncheon and Mrs. Will Chambers will furnish rolls. Mrs. Dick Hopkins, assisted by Mrs. Inez Post and Mrs. Guy Ulrich, are in charge of the president's gift.

Mrs. Dolar announced dates for practicing the officers drill. She noted Mrs. L. D. Major is responsible for giving the unwritten work in competition at the district meeting. Mrs. Marjorie Currington, lodge deputy, noted there was a special award being given to the lodge with 25 per cent of its resident membership giving the unwritten work.

It was reported that Otto Dolar, husband of the noble grand, had moved to the Elks Rehabilitation Center, Boise, and Mrs. Raymond Ulrich, Rupert, is going to Salt Lake City for surgery.

The lodge received the 20 jewel and Rebekah pin from the family of the late Mrs. Ora Dais. The secretary was instructed to put these in safekeeping until such time as the lodge has need for them.

Mrs. Marjorie Currington, lodge deputy, had the officers read their duties from the constitution.

Annual Visit Set March 12 By Rebekahs

BURLEY — Plans were made for the annual visit of the Rebekah Assembly president of Idaho, Mrs. Mable Frazier, Pierce, on March 12 by members of Ruth Rebekah No. 107 during their recent meeting at the IOOF Hall.

The session was conducted by Mrs. Nancy Johnson, noble grand. She appointed committees including decorations, Mrs. Ina Blankenship; introduction, Mrs. Lucille Anderson and Mrs. Edna Gunnar; and program, Mrs. Hazel Janak. Mrs. Johnson announced a covered dish dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. prior to the general session.

It was reported Mrs. Dorothy Kunau and Mrs. Birdie Kennedy are ill.

Invitation were read from the Eden lodge stating the assembly president's visit to Feb. 25 and Albion Lodge March 3 for assembly president's annual visit.

It was announced clean-up day will be Monday and Tuesday at IOOF Hall and members may work either day. A covered dish lunch will be served each day.

Plans were announced for a card party Feb. 28 at IOOF Hall which will be opened to the public. Refreshments will be served.

The program was under the direction of the Odd Fellows. Francis Fenstermaker read an article about the founder of Odd Fellowship in the United States.

It was reported eight persons from Burley attended the dinner and meeting Feb. 7 in Twin Falls for the Sovereign Grand Master, Donald Smith, Linden, Calif.

Oliver Brady announced the check from the proceeds of the annual ground hog dinner will be presented to directors of the Idaho Youth Ranch March 10 and Frank Markham, grand patriarch of Grand Encampment of Idaho, will make the presentation.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Hilda Allen, Mrs. Olive Hagman, Mrs. Wilma Messinger and Mrs. LaVon Myers.

Events

Mrs. Mable Frazier, assembly president of Idaho, will make her official visit to Primrose Rebekah Lodge during a special meeting Tuesday evening at the Odd Fellows Temple. A banquet will be served at 6:30 p.m. in the lodge dining room and the meeting will be held at 8 p.m. All officers are asked to wear formal.

Twin Falls Chapter No. 29, Order of Eastern Star, will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Masonic Temple. Friendship night will be observed.

Mary Davis Art Club will meet at 1 p.m. Wednesday with Mrs. E. F. Stettler, 244 7th Ave. Officers will be elected and hostesses for the month will be chosen. Clara Walton will give a continuation on water color painting.

HANSEN — Members of the Hansen PTA will meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the small gymnasium and Supt. William Bernard will show a film on consolidation, and how it has been accomplished in other school districts.

PINOCHLE PLAYED

TUTTLE — The Travelers Pinochle Club met with Mr. and Mrs. Dan Rast for a potluck supper and cards. Mrs. Randall Stewart and William Maude won high scores honors. Mrs. Charles Skinner and Walter Stewart, consolation prizes, and Mrs. Maude, traveling.

Mrs. Quast Named Burley's ESA Chapter "Girl Of Year"

BURLEY — Mrs. Walter Quast Jr. was honored as "Girl of the Year" by members of Alpha Psi of Epsilon Alpha Chapter during a meeting at home of Mrs. Quast, with Mrs. Roger McBride as co-hostess.

The chapter presented Mrs. Quast one dozen long-stemmed red roses in a white milk glass vase, and a charm for her bracelet. The tiara used for Mrs. Quast will be presented to next year's "Girl of the Year."

The selection of "Girl of the Year" is by secret ballot and the chapter winners are entered in the state competition. A state winner will be named in May at the state convention in Burley. The state winners are then entered in the international contest.

Mrs. Quast has been a member of the sorority for the past four years. She served the chapter as vice president, publicity chairman and this year is serving the group as its president.

Mrs. Haven Gierlich was guest speaker. She told the group of home life in Australia and points of interest in the countryside. Mrs. Gierlich came to United States 23 years ago from Australia.

During a short business meeting, the group made final plans for the fund drive supporting cystic fibrosis. The group has placed canisters in stores in the Burley area and they will also make a downtown drive for contributions this month.

It was pointed out more than 4,000 babies are born each year with cystic fibrosis, a disorder which attacks the lungs and digestion. At one time there was no hope.

Today through early diagnosis and expert treatment, medical science is prolonging countless lives, but there is still much to be done. Cystic fibrosis is the leading cause of chronic lung disease up to age 20 and is a major reason for death in young children.

The group also discussed plans for hosting the State Epsilon Sigma Alpha Convention May 14 through 16 in Burley. Details of the convention will be announced.

BUIL — A potluck luncheon highlighted a recent meeting of the "World War" Barracks and Auxiliary at the VFW Hall.

Special guests at the meeting included Department Commander Harold Cholme and Mrs. Cholme of Gooding; Department Adjutant Don Holt, Hagerman; National Aide De Camp William Staley and Mrs. Sander, and 1182 Barracks Commander Jack Smith and Mrs. Smith, all Jerome; 509 Barracks Commander Vance Pulsipher and Mrs. Ella Pulsipher, Fifth District president of Twin Falls.

Ed McLean presented a gavel to the local men's barracks. The auxiliary meeting was called to order by Mrs. Blanche Voorhees, unit president. Mrs. Harold Schooley gave the opening prayer and Mrs. Cholme spoke to the group on hospital affairs and membership.

The next meeting is March 3 at the VFW Hall. All World War I wives or widows are invited to attend.

REAL SUIT IS BACK

With this spring's pull-yourself-together trend, the real suit is back. The all-white "Casablanca" look and the Marlene Dietrich look are two standouts. The short-sleeved jacket is another rerun of the forties. The new ones tend to be long and carefully shaped, over-tailored skirts.

DEACTIVATE ENZYMES Chlorine bleach will deactivate enzymes in laundry products when used simultaneously. However, when using an enzyme product in a pre-ly and in sequence, soak period, chlorine bleach may be added to the wash cycle. This will permit each ingredient to perform its specialized-function-safely and in sequence.

Co-Developer Of 'The Pill' Is Optimistic About Effects

By TOM TIEDE
NEA Staff Correspondent
BOSTON — (NEA) — When a congressional subcommittee held its profusely publicized hearings on oral contraceptives last month, one expert on the subject was conspicuously absent: gynecologist Dr. John Rock.
He co-developed the Pill. Why was he absent? He was not invited. And why wasn't he invited? Probably because the hearings were designed to air the dangers of Pill use — and Dr. Rock doesn't believe there are real dangers, not if properly administered.
His position is this:
"Over the years, I've studied the effects of oral contraceptives on countless women of all ages. I've seen a few develop physical problems which may or may not have been due to the Pill. I've even taken some women off the Pill routine. But I've never, not once, seen any hint of cancer development. And I don't think I ever will. Because, if the Pill is correctly prescribed, and used by healthy women, I don't think cancer can result."

The statement, to be sure, is sharp and candid. But, then, so is Dr. John Rock. Now 80 years old, looking like 60, acting like 40, he has spent most of his life being sharp and candid about a subject — birth — its necessity and its consequences — generally regarded as cloudy.
"Call him a rebel. Many do. But sitting in a snug office, in the suburban birth-control clinic which bears his name, he says he sees 150 million babies being born in the United States in the next quarter-century.
He sees world population going to seven billion in the same time. He sees mass starvation, food wars and rampant urban disease just over the hill. And so, if crusading for prevention of it — all — is rebellion, Rock accepts the accusatory brand with ease.
Says he, loud and clear: "I don't think we should be discouraging women from taking the Pill. I think we should be encouraging them to take it. What the congressional hearings have done is to scare women on the basis of incomplete reports. And fear is bad in the matter of birth control."

"I've gotten several letters from women who are mad as hell, now, because they are scared. A few seeds of doubt like this can undo years of work getting women to understand the Pill."
Also:
"There are enough taboos and prejudices connected with sex, without adding baseless medical ones. For example: Why do most women take Pills for only 21 days a month? Because of their 'lignose' belief in menstruating. They don't have to menstruate. It's not physically necessary. But they insist on it. In point of fact, I feel it would be better if healthy women took the Pill every day, because it would be the most proper and safe method of control."
And also:
"Of course, I don't suggest all women should take the Pill. Some women are not psychologically prepared; others have physical limitations, such as W. Ellis, of Sherman, Tex.

vascular or cerebral problems. "What I do suggest is that healthy women find a good doctor, undergo complete examination and then follow orders. If any complications result, the doctor should be immediately advised; this is only common sense and should be followed when taking any drug or medicine."
Despite his passionate feelings on the subject ("My now, don't get me going"), Dr. Rock is far from being the red-faced or wound-licking radical. Instead, he feels right will eventually succeed.
"I understand that the Gallup Poll says about one of five women have stopped taking the Pill as a result of the Senate controversy. Well, that's not much, if it is true. I think a lot of them are probably just nervous. That's understandable. But they'll start in again, you'll see.

"And I don't believe opposition to the Pill is going to grow. The data given at the hearings was very small and gave no picture of how many of the women were simply misadvised by physicians or given the wrong kind of Pill. I think as the pro-Pill evidence grows the opposition will fade."
At least, he hopes so.
"Because:
"We (as a people) have tried to keep the population down for centuries and it's pretty obvious we've never had much success. But now we've got a 100 per cent effective method — the Pill. And, given our population crisis, the use of it is not just a suggestion — it's a must.
"More than any medicine man has ever known, it can truly be said that the dangers of not using the Pill — to individuals and to the world — far outweigh any dangers of using it."

Involving Male In Birth Control Program Raises Complex Problem

By TOM TILDE
NEA Staff Correspondent

BOSTON — (NEA) — It takes two, of course, to make babies. And there is increasing insistence that it must also take two to prevent them.

Until now, clinically speaking, men have left the baby-prevention field almost entirely up to women. And in a way, science has, too.

Nine million females in the United States are now taking oral contraceptives. Two million use other mechanical devices. Countless more engage, to one extent or another, in the calendar-watching rhythm method.

But as for men?

Says famed gynecologist and contraceptive pioneer Dr. John Rock: "Most men do one of two things, if they do anything. One, they use a condom. Or two, they use the old 'coitus interruptus' withdrawal. In either case, it's risky. Look at the number of unwanted pregnancies each year."

Many men, says Dr. Rock, would like to do more. But the trouble is birth control for males is not as easy, or as simple, as for females. Complex scientific and psychological problems are involved.

Science, for one thing, has not yet perfected a workable male contraceptive that doesn't have upsetting side effects; condoms are barely 75-per-cent reliable, and most male pills tend to interfere with sexual aspects.

This leaves only one sure male-preventive method present — sterilization. It's easy. Quick. Relatively inexpensive. And 100 per cent effective. Psychologically, however, it is stereotyped as a social no-no.

And that's too bad, says Dr. Rock.

Sterilization, he believes, is an enormously sensible method of male birth control. Called a vasectomy, it is a simple surgical procedure where the vas tubes in the scrotum are snipped and tied. It can be done for between $50 and $200, depending on location, in as little as 15 minutes. There is even a clinic now in New York City, which specializes in it.

And as another plus factor, vasectomies need not necessarily be permanent. If sterilized males wish, after a period of time, the operation can usually be reversed. Surgeons say reversals are successful 50-80 per cent of the time.

Says Dr. Rock: "I don't know if I'd recommend sterilization for just everybody. Some men may not be prepared for it. And I think young people would do well to think very hard before having it done. But for the rest, especially those people who have two children already, I think sterilization is necessary if we are to keep our growing population under some control."

Increasing numbers of men apparently agree with the doctor. New York's Voluntary Sterilization Association reports more than one million American men have had vasectomies. "Population expert" Dr. Paul Ehrlich (35 of Stanford University and celebrity conservationist Arthur Godfrey (87) are among them. The VSA says the trend is moving toward a time when we'll all realize sterilization is not something humorous — that it's a wonderfully humane gesture."

But even if this is the future, sterilization at present remains mostly avoided in the nation. Because, as Dr. Rock says, it's grossly misunderstood: "Many men associate sterility with sexuality or masculinity."

They think sterilization would mean the end of their enjoyment or their urge. This is false, of course. Surgical sterility is a medically simple and permissible thing.

As an example of the simplicity of sterilization, Dr. Rock says it can be safely performed on a temporary basis, in any number of ways.

He says that unlike the female's, the male sex glands are located on the outside of the body (in the scrotum) because they are fertile only at outside-body temperatures. Conversely, if the scrotum is overheated, sterilization can result. The doctor has tested the fact under clinical conditions.

In one study of 14 men, Dr. Rock had them apply a 150-watt ordinary lightbulb near the scrotum for 30 minutes daily, a total of three weeks. All were rendered temporarily sterile—all of them eventually returned to fertility.

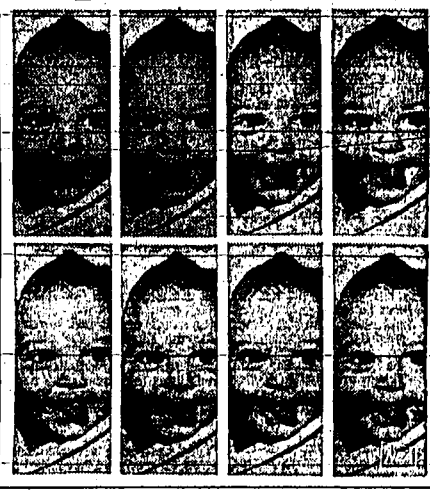

In other observations, Rock has noticed the same results when men undergo the "Rock-strap" — that is, wearing close-fitting and insulated shorts.

The point is, says Dr. Rock, sterilization should no longer be feared.

"We are in a desperate race with the population," he believes. "I think we'll see in this decade mass starvation in the world. And it's going to get worse and worse."

'People's Bill'

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Sen. Joseph Coleman, D-Clare, Thursday cast a dissenting vote from the men's room at the back of the state Senate chamber.

Coleman voted against a bill legalizing Jasper County official payment for the construction of three toilets in the Ashton-Woodwood County Park.

"This is a people's bill if there ever was one," said the bill's sponsor, Sen. Eugene Hill, D-Newton, in urging support. The bill passed 51-1.

Dogs Licensed

RICHFIELD — A total of 32 dogs have been licensed in Richfield by Wednesday. It is announced by Mrs. Ruth Swanson, city clerk. As yet, no dogs have been impounded by city Marshal Lester Johansen.

If a dog is impounded a license must be purchased and a two dollar fee paid to redeem the dog, within a 24 hour period.

Women's Salary Will Catch Up With Men's

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Women will catch up with men in salaries during the 1970s, according to the president of an employment service.

Robert O. Snelling Sr., president of Snelling and Snelling Inc., said in his book "The Opportunity Explosion" that business, industry and the professions will finally accept the female job holder at her true worth.

Snelling admits that the Civil Rights Act prohibiting sex discrimination in hiring has convinced all employers that a woman can always fill his job needs. But he notes that women now hold jobs ranging from bank president to lumberjack.

Women have almost taken over the Fuller Brush Man jobs. There are 34,500 Fuller Brush "men," according to Snelling. But 27,000 of them are women.

Snelling quotes one finance company manager, who prefers women bill collectors, as saying women are "more tenacious, more persistent, more direct."

"To put it bluntly, a lady doesn't have to be a gentleman," says Snelling.

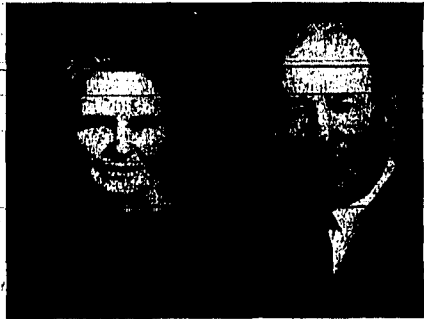

The author said almost half of the nation's females over 16 are employed. The figure is well over 27 million or almost one-third of the entire labor force. More than half of the women workers are married and the majority are between 45 and 54.

The Martha Circle of the church, grandchildren of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Webb and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Patterson, and Mrs. T. M. Knight and Mrs. Lela Vazquez, Twin Falls, will host the event. Mr. and Mrs. Hask were married Feb. 23, 1920, at the Twin Falls Methodist Church. They have resided in the Flor vicinity all of their married life. They have four children; Vivian Patterson, Portland; Dale Hask, Agona, Guam; Lynn Hask, Seattle, and Wayne Hask, Flor. They have nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

"Happiness Is" Theme Used For Local Rebekah Meeting

"Happiness Is" was the theme of the program when members of Primrose Rebekah Lodge met recently.

Mrs. Fran Rider, program chairman, related a few remarks of adults and children as to what the theme meant to them. She then read an article on happiness from "The Art of Living" by Norman Vincent Peale. Mrs. Dale Bowman, accompanied by Mrs. Rider, closed the program with a song.

Mae Chatterton, chaplain, read Psalm One for the scripture.

Mrs. Madge Panting and Mrs. Ora Simpson were hostesses. Mrs. Lewis Reed and Mrs. Vernon Ball are hostesses for the Feb. 24 meeting.

The bride was honored at a shower at the home of Mrs. Wayne Easterday, with Mrs. Dean Reynolds assisting with the arrangements. Classmates of the bride honored her with a shower at the home of Jor-nice Darrow, Florence Wasko, Darlene Foukal, Mrs. Ed Kin-yon and Mrs. Tom Grimm were co-hostesses.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is, that I am lonesome. I am married and have two children in high school, but I'm still lonesome. I have never lacked for material things. My husband is a very prosperous business executive. (Good family, fine education, etc.) We never have any real conversations. When I have his attention, I always feel that I must talk fast because after a short time he either leaves the room, or goes back to what he was reading. Or else he re-tires.

DEAR CHURCH GOER: The poor woman is probably slowly growing deaf. She goes to church to pray, right? And so do you. So next Sunday, throw in an extra prayer for her, and forever hold your peace.

I am as well educated as he is. I keep up with current events, I'm a good hostess and I take care of our home and children. I am attractive, have a good figure and know how to dress. We have a full social life, which he enjoys, but he has nothing to say to me unless it has to do with the children. So, here I sit, "Dear Abby, alone as usual in my lovely newly decorated home, wanting to talk to someone with whom I have told him how I feel. He says, "You have nothing to complain about," which is a typical one-sentence response to any dialog I might initiate. What do I have to look forward to in my old age? I'd like some suggestions.

DEAR ABBY: A brief comment to "YOUNG AT 37." Poor little ding-a-ling. Is it possible that she is making such a racket tooting her own horn that she can't hear a few bells ringing at home? It might be better to be married to someone with a "fat fanny" than a fat head!

In case you think this is a case of sour grapes, I am 58 years old, and am 36-24-35.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. E. (whose drug-using son is now in San Jose): I spoke with someone at SWANSON, who is an export in their field. I was told: "Tell that mother. NOT to send her son any more money. Kids with a drug problem must be completely released by their parents, and this includes getting no money from home. I would still be out there shooting dope, as I was four years ago, if my parents had continued to send me money."

THIRTY NINE AND LONESOME
DEAR LONESOME: You and your husband are living "parallel" lives. Perhaps a dose of adversity, which has been known to strengthen many marriages, but was absent in yours, would have been beneficial.

BEA IN MODESTO
What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 89, 700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: Our problem is a lady who sings so loudly in church that she drowns everybody else out. Not only that, but she sings way off key. She is a regular churchgoer and is getting old, and she is really a very kind lady so nobody wants to hurt her feelings by calling this to her attention, but I can tell you I sure doesn't think of very good listening. Any suggestions? She gets louder every Sunday.

ANOTHER CHURCH GOER
The art course will be held at the Lincoln Courts Community Center every Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. beginning March 5 and continuing through May 21. The course is available to any adult at a nominal fee. There are still a few openings left so any interested adult should call Dorothy Johnson at 533-4008. It is no-necessary to be a guild member.

Bishop Emery Wilsor of the Buhl LDS Church performed the single ring ceremony. Arrangements of greenery and poinsettias on the altar and pulpit formed the background for the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding dress of white antique satin. It featured a rounded neckline, fitted yoke and long sleeves trimmed in lace. It was floor-length and styled in a princess line that swept into a chapel train.

A tarray of pearls and small white roses held her veil of white illusion. She carried a bouquet of white feathered carnations centered with red roses and cascading white satin streamers. She wore an antique locket belonging to her great grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Shaw.

Darlene Foukal was the maid of honor and Bernice Darrow was the bridesmaid. Jann Easterday, sister of the bride, was the flower girl. She carried a nosegay of red and white roses.

Tony Wiggins, cousin of the bride, was best man. Rodney Allred and Kenneth Allred were ushers. Both are cousins of the bridegroom. The trainbearer was Jhannio Abshire, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. James LeGrone served as organist and also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. George Bluck.

A reception was held immediately after the wedding in the church social hall. The bride's table was covered with lace and featured a three-tiered wedding cent balloting in which the Magic Valley Art Guild and the local guild participated were announced. Mrs. Burkhardt presented a program of some of her most humorous poems. Mrs. Grace French was a guest.

CORRECT FINESSE PAYS PERCENTAGE

There are any number of ways to bid to six in a match point duplicate game. The method shown in the box is not the most scientific but it certainly is the quickest. The contract is not an absolute laydown, but the play for six is so good that anyone who went down would be rather upset.

Not that there isn't a simple way to hold yourself to 11 tricks. If South decides to attack hearts, on the theory that he will make either honor and will make an extra trick if East holds both, he will go down at the slam.

This play represents a 76 per cent chance but that isn't good enough. The best line of play is to lead the four of diamonds from dummy at trick two. If East holds the king, he may play it right away, in which case South's worries are over. If East does play low, South should play his eight, on the theory that East is more likely to hold the jack than the king. This time, you lose to the jack and West leads a second club. Now you play out all your black cards, discarding a heart and diamond from dummy and then play the ace of diamonds. The king drops and you have your 12th trick. If it failed to drop, you would fall back on the heart finesse.

This line of play would work any time that East held either the jack of diamonds or the king of hearts, a 76 per cent chance, plus the extra chances of a diamond king play from cent chance but that isn't good enough. The best line of play is to lead the four of diamonds from dummy at trick two. If

Young Prince Of England To Join Navy

To Join Navy

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles will join the Royal Navy as a $100 a month sublieutenant next year. Buckingham Palace announced Saturday, becoming the first heir to the British throne to choose a military career. "I hope I won't be too seasick," Charles told newsmen. "I will have to stock up with sea-sick pills."

crow race on the Oakland Estuary. It was a "pickup" broadcast for the three mile varsity crew race and they used four pick up stations a mile apart and at the finish the announcers joined in singing Sweet Adeline. Mr. Pierce announced the visit of the Von Hindenburg. He also announced the dedication of the San Francisco Opera House with the broadcast of a complete opera. This was one of the first trans-continental broadcasts made in the United States. He announced the program, Little Orphan Annie, and sang the theme song. The network offered the U.S.D.A. daily transcontinental broadcast time on NBC to report agriculture news and Mr. Pierce, with his background in agriculture was placed in charge of this. The program, The Western Farm and Home Hour, sponsored by Allis Chalmers, was another program that Mr. Pierce enjoyed announcing. Others were Unlimited Horizons, Pacific Story, The Four Horsemen, and the exciting story of the Atomic Bomb. A public relations man vned needed by NBC for the Western Division and Mr. Pierce was selected for this spot. He toured the various affiliated stations around the area. He met Florence Gardner of KTFI, Twin Falls. He recalls the one thing she did not like was the "ballroom" in the KTFI building. He always thought she should get rid of it. Mr. Pierce became dissatisfied with the smog and traffic problem and with the advent of TV, he left NBC for the station, KMED, in Medford, Ore. He enjoyed the challenge of a small station after the big scale operation of NBC and remained there until his retirement. He and his wife now live on a dairy farm managed by a son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Pierce, Castleford. During the winter months, Mr. and Mrs. Pierce travel. They spend much of the time in southern Mexico near Guaymas. They have three sons, Alan, Castleford; Thompson, Medford, Ore.; and Jennings Douglas, Lake Bluff, Ill. They have five grandchildren.

Clean Up Pollution Or Remake Maps, Scribe Says

By DICK WEST. WASHINGTON (UPI) — Experts who have studied pollution problems in 22 countries are reported to believe that the cost of cleaning up the environment may be much greater than is generally realized. These experts are said to fear that public support for anti-pollution programs will begin to dwindle when the bill starts coming in.

The Almanac

By United Press International Today is Friday, Feb. 20, the 51st day of 1970 with 314 to follow. The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Mercury and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn. On this day in history: In 1809 U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the power of the federal government was greater than that of any individual state in the union. In 1872 the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City was opened to the public for the first time. In 1938 Anthony Eden resigned as British foreign secretary to protest the "unpleasant" policy of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain toward Nazi Germany. In 1962 American astronaut John Glenn landed safely after three orbits of the earth. A thought for the day—Sir William Osler, a Canadian physician and an accomplished writer and philosopher, said, "The philosophy of one age has become the absurdities of the next, and the foolishness of yesterday has become the wisdom of tomorrow."

WATCH THOSE HILLS!

The Idaho State Police reminds drivers, no matter how good your eyes are, no matter how alert and watchful you are, no matter how bright your headlights, you simply cannot see over a hill. Drive carefully at all times. "Above the polluted plains. "America, America, man made a mess of this. "With urban blight a common sight. "From sea to oil-stained sea."

DEAR POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I find that placing baby on a lap pad lessens the danger of his slipping while bathing him in the bathtub.—LEE

DEAR POLLY—A spilled bottle of model car paint gave me an idea. I would like to share. Every mother who has a son who paints model cars should save those trays chicken comes in from the store. Cut holes in them for the paint bottles to fit in and have no more spills or mess.—CARRIE

POLLY'S NOTE—If the tray is turned over the bottles will be even firmer in their holders.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Try using a serrated knife for cutting bar cookies or Brownies into squares. The edges will be more even. Also use a grapefruit knife to peel oranges.—MRS. C. A. D.

DEAR POLLY—When removing buttons from a garment, first slip a comb under the button, lift up and then cut the threads with no danger of harming the fabric.—ALICE

DEAR POLLY—My mother uses white shoe polish to touch up impossible-to-get-rid-of stains on white-plaster walls.—YERRY

DEAR POLLY—Have you ever washed a cotton cap or hat that shrunk so much it could not be worn again? I discovered a way to keep them from shrinking. I measure the head size with a tape measure and then find a sauce pan the same size. After washing put the cap over the outside of the pan, smooth it free of wrinkles and let it dry. When drying out of doors tie a string to the pan handle and let it hang.—ELIZABETH

DEAR POLLY—To keep the copper bottoms on stainless steel pans shining, dissolve as much salt as possible in vinegar and stir in enough flour to make a paste. Spread paste on pan evenly and let set a few minutes. RINSE OFF WELL after shining with a steel wool soap pad.—BARBARA

DEAR POLLY—To save time when cleaning use a child's small wagon as a cleaning supply cart. It can carry all cleaning items and can be easily moved from room to room.—MRS. G. J.

DEAR POLLY—At first I had trouble assembling my party-size coffee-maker because the stem was so long I could not find the notch when the coffee basket was in place. Now after putting the stem in place I thread a plastic straw through the basket and then stick the end of the straw through a little of the stem. After the basket is in place just slip the straw out.—JEAN

Ask Them Yourself

FOR DR. THOMAS O. PAINE,

NASA Administrator
Does the National Aeronautics and Space Administration plan to set up weapons in space?
—Merrill Champagne, Breaux Bridge, La.

● There are no such plans. The Space Act of 1958 provides that NASA's activities be devoted to peaceful purposes. The United Nations Outer Space Treaty, which the United States has signed, prohibits stationing nuclear or other weapons of mass destruction in orbit.

FOR DR. RALPH R. LABENE,

Forythe Dental Center, Boston

What is the cause of the tartar that gathers on teeth, and how can it be prevented from forming?
—Mrs. Irana Rohr, Devils Lake, N.D.

● It is the result of bacteria deposits. The bacterial deposits begin to calcify, and calcium salts occur within or among the bacteria. The best method of preventing the accumulation of these deposits is effective daily oral hygiene, including use of a toothbrush, dental floss, and water-pressure cleaning devices. For some persons, it may be necessary to have professional cleaning as frequently as every two months.

FOR MRS. BRUCE B. BENSON,

President, League of Women Voters of the U.S.
Other than Victoria Woodhull has any woman been a candidate for President of the U.S.?
—Daggy Tinkey, Chelan, Wash.

● Belva Ann Bennett was the Equal Rights Party candidate in 1884 and 1888. In 1968 Charlene Mitchell ran on the ticket of the Communist Party of the U.S.

FOR SEN. MARK HATFIELD, Oregon

Has banning of prayers in public schools led to more campus riots?
—Mrs. Irana Rohr, Devils Lake, N.D.

● I don't believe that the banning of prayer in our schools can be directly connected to campus riots. The disorders, it seems to me, stem partially from a frustration on the part of many students concerning the over-institutionalizing of our American life.

FOR CAPT. J. W. CLINTON,

U.S. Navy

Is it true that the Navy is planning to construct a nuclear-powered Nimitz-class carrier to be named "Eisenhower"?
—Jim Rhora, Rantoul, Ill.

● The decision concerning the names of Nimitz-class carriers has not been made at this time.

FOR JIM "BAD NEWS" BARNES,

Boston Celtics

How did you get your odd nickname?
—Raymond D. Fig, Big Stone Gap, Va.

● I picked up the "Bad News" name as a collegian. Other teams that we were playing on a certain night would remark, "We're playing Texas Western tonight with Barnes-Boy. There's bad news tonight." It was a "takeoff" on the radio news commentator who used to remark, "There's good news tonight."

FOR ELIZABETH POST,

Is it proper to send money as a baby gift when you are not related to the child?
—Miss Cheryl Sims, Santa Monica, Calif.

● A gift—rather than money—is in better taste from a nonrelative.

FOR DAVID L. CLARK,

—Mrs. Myrinda Perlus, Bismarck, N.D.

● Ocean oil rigs have found enormous reserves of oil and gas in the Gulf of Mexico, the Pacific Ocean, North Sea, and Mediterranean. "Hard" mineral exploration is just beginning, but tin, iron, and gold already are being recovered from the Pacific, in the Far East, and off Alaska.

What in the World!

So Long, Central The 720 residents of McClure, Ohio, may be in for touch-tone dialing and color coordinated phones when their local phone company, Citizens Mutual, sells out to a big utility. But it's certain many of its 480 subscribers will miss ringling up Central for the time of day, the latest gossip, a recipe for scalloped potatoes, and getting connected to the Smiths and Joneses. George Van Tassel, president of the small phone company (whose telephone number is "1") told FAMILY WEEKLY that the younger folks want modern equipment and besides, operation costs are mounting. "But it's a good old system we've got here," he said. "Don't you hear me fine right now?" He also said that requests are pouring in from all over the country for the old crank wall telephones, but they're all privately owned and will probably be kept as souvenirs.

Ringling off for good

Paper Wedding Many girls are giving up the traditional wedding in white as too expensive. White satin and lace dresses can run from $160 to $1,500 and up. Now there is a white-on-white paper wedding dress on the market for $30 (and a far cry from the early paper dresses made before 1966). Included in the manufacturer's "Frost" collection are bridesmaids' dresses in such colors as green, red, and gold. They also can be tailored to a mini with spazzors. Good news for fathers of the brides—as well as working girls on a limited budget.

Not Worth It The classic smuggling usually involves diamonds and dashing spies. But our Customs Bureau also keeps track of the petty attempts in our 380 ports of entry. For instance, a family of four arriving in Miami from Colombia, secreted contraband of minimum value—but illegal just the same: 10 fresh mangoes hidden in shoes, boxes of steel wool and a bed pillow. They also brought in a five-pound ham stuffed in a water pitcher. A pound of grapes was sewn inside a jacket pocket. Their feast was impounded. Maybe we should get the word out that food is not too hard to find here.

Flame of Hope When the mentally retarded are not given a chance to provide for themselves, they become dependent, thus costing the taxpayer more than $100,000 each for a lifetime of institutional care. So Eunice Kennedy

Shriver founded the nonprofit Flame of Hope, Inc. It teaches the retarded skills necessary to earn a living—such as making perfume. The ingredients for the fragrances "Espere" and "New Flame" are imported from France but combined here by mentally retarded workers in 13 sheltered workshops across the country. The organization takes great pride in that more than 1,000 workers have learned enough to "graduate" into private enterprise from the program since its inception in 1964.

Discover the Beauty Potential of Your Skin

One of the most rewarding aspects of skin care is that the complexion has a constant potential for improvement—there is always the promise that tomorrow your skin can look even lovelier than it does today.

This propensity has become more and more appreciated by women the world over, particularly since the discovery of a tropical moist oil with the remarkable ability to help nature sustain the youthful splendour of your skin.

Now your complexion can benefit from luxury living every day of your life because the unique tropical fluid virtually helps to create the conditions under which the human skin will thrive and blossom best.

The difference between a "young" skin and an "old" skin is primarily a question of oil and moisture. Many complexions lose their beauty early simply because they are half-starved and thirsty. In these modern days, when the "climate" in which you live can be changed at the twist of a dial, it is easy to overlook the depleting effects on your skin of indoor heating and air conditioning. These environments, together with the outdoor elements of wind, sun and frost, are notorious oil-and-moisture snatchers that can dry out a fresh, smooth complexion in double-quick time. The tropical moist oil, however, helps maintain your own dermic humilifying system and your own built-in oil wells, bringing the natural young bloom softly to your skin.

An invisible film of moist oil applied daily to the face and neck and used as a sub-foundation for make-up will further the skin's inherent readiness to draw moisture from the atmosphere by hygroscopic attraction, constantly establishing a lovely, healthy vitality on the complexion.

At night, this rich tropical beauty fluid can be smoothed over the complexion extra lavishly, for it will then have an excellent opportunity to help protect and conserve the nutritive essentials that keep your skin satin-smooth and supple.

Available from druggists as oil of Olay, this moist oil is the precious means whereby you can discover the great beauty potential within your skin.

Beauty Skin-Care Consultants Recommend

Beauty skin-care consultants are now recommending that, to take full advantage of the benefits of this moist Olay oil, it should be smoothed over the face and neck daily before applying make-up. In this way it helps the plasma colloids to check lines and gives the skin a youthful bloom.

Radiance is restored to the complexion when it is generously cherished at night. Before you go to bed, massage gently with the oil of Olay, paying particular attention to the crow's-foot area where ageing lines and wrinkles first appear.

Now, The Sporting Suit

By ROSALYN ABBREVAYA

WHEN is a man's suit not a suit? When it's a matched set, but the upper part is not necessarily a jacket.

The sporting suit, a brand-new look for the '70s, breaks with styling tradition but is a continuation of the bright colorful sportswear of the past 10 years. The new fashion combines a vest (as seen on our cover), a tunic, or combination shirt-jacket with equal aplomb. When it is jacketed, you'll see the jacket in the new, longer length, styled with wide lapels in a shaped silhouette.

According to Ken O'Keefe, fashion director of the Men's Fashion Association, the look strikes a big victory for freedom of movement and function because these suits look dressed-up enough to take a man through many leisure activities that formerly required a strictly tailored garment.

And, best of all, the new casual sporting suit looks great sans the uptight tie! ♦

Is your leisure a dismal combination of snoozing and boredom? It is for many families until they discover both relaxation and stimulation in

Creative Making

By WILBUR CROSS

This vacationer made the most of her holiday time by enrolling in an art course.

A FEW SUMMERS AGO, I spent two weeks in a rented cottage at the shore with my wife and four daughters—our first family vacation in five years.

Though we kept saying, "Tomorrow we'll get organized and do something that's fun," the days slipped by unrewardingly with nothing noteworthy to look back on.

Later, my wife presented me with a makeshift album labeled, "Your Vacation: 1966." The candid snapshots showed Daddy listlessly reading a business magazine, yawning with boredom in a sagging hammock, and Mother washing muddy socks in a tidal pool. To accompany these dismal exhibits and others equally uninspiring, she penned in an old-Zoh proverb: "No day comes back again; an inch of time is worth a foot of jade."

By contrast, when I arrived unrefreshed back in my office, I heard from one of my associates a glowing account of the vacation he had enjoyed. Like me, he had selected a cottage at the shore. But unlike me, he had planned how to put his time to constructive use. For one thing, he had tried house swapping, turning over his Westchester home to a Maine couple who wanted a vacation near New York City. In return for compiling a personal notebook of things to see and do in the city and arranging with friends to include his guests in their activities, he received similar attention from his new shore-community neighbors, who otherwise would have been strangers.

As a result, he and his wife and two sons crowded in sailing races, enjoyed clamcakes on the beaches of private-homes-toured-historic-buildings not open to the public, and returned home with a prized collection of rewarding snapshots.

Listening to my associate, I realized how much more constructive an investment I could have made in my vacation time—if only I had possessed his perspective when we made our plans. Yet Americans, I've discovered, have traditionally found it difficult to make good use of their precious leisure time. As far back as the early 19th century, an advertisement that was to become famous appeared in a newspaper:

LOST, yesterday, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with 60 diamond minutes. No reward is offered, for they are gone forever.

If the inspired author, noted American educator Horace Mann, were alive today, his text might have referred to "two golden weeks, for the truth is that we often squander entire vacations tied up in knots and unable to relax—or, what is equally tiring, relax too determinedly, replacing one form of effort, which is at least income-producing, with another that has little purpose.

Recent studies on how we spend vacations bear out this regrettable point. The Southern California Research Council, for instance, found that leisure was seldom used to real advantage. "The point of leisure," reported the Council, "should be more than simply restoring one's working powers. We cannot happily contemplate a future society in which leisure is merely filled with hectic amusement. In particular, we need to develop new forms of leisure which stretch our minds."

There is no magic formula for planning a fulfilling vacation. But here are some guidelines, with specific examples, for achieving more rewarding, refreshing vacations:

Plan Ahead. One family we know has proclaimed for itself a "Vacation Sunday," usually in mid-January, when members gather around and spread out travel folders, newspaper clippings, letters from friends telling about their vacations, anything of interest.

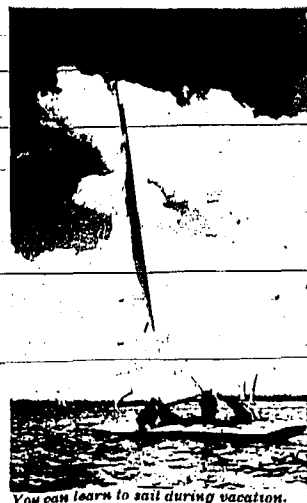

"Everyone has a chance to make suggestions," the father explains, "and we mark them all down on the calendar, no matter how wild or unrealistic they may seem. Then we circle as objectives those ideas that appeal to the most people." Their planning takes in long weekends and the most feasible dates for a full-length vacation. "It's remarkable," the father adds, "how many of the ideas become realities."

Many people justifiably ask, "How do we know that what seems in advance like a great vacation scheme won't turn into a bust?" The Robert Deanes have an answer: pretest it.

Bob and his wife became interested in folklore and decided that it would be fun to "go on location" rather than merely read about colorful characters and events in books. But they were not sure whether their three children—12 to 15 years old—could take it. So they pretested the plan, using long weekends to explore nearby regions known for legendary heroes and happenings. They were delighted to find that, far from being bored, the children became absorbed in ferreting out little-known information on their own. So, jointly, they all planned their whole two-week vacation around the theme, "Folklore Fiesta."

No matter how imaginative you may be in creating vacation ideas, it may pay to consult a travel agent. For years, Europeans and Americans have been traveling abroad on vacation to attend university summer courses, or special seminars. Travel agents and airlines now offer package tours that include everything from round-trip fares and reservations to tuition, room and board upon arrival, and other necessities.

You can learn to sail during vacation.

Vacations— the Most of Your Holiday Time

Other special tours are arranged for bridge players, fox-hunting enthusiasts, and women interested in weight-reducing courses.

If you crave something more exciting, yet not outlandishly expensive, take your cue from the Rawley Petersons. With their two young boys, they went on "safari," not to darkest Africa but on one of the hundreds of new mini-safaris organized by the travel industry—a trek through the rain forests of a Caribbean island, hunting wild goats, pigs, and colorful birds with cameras.

Become absorbed in a new interest. Good planning combines looking ahead on a long-range basis, and seizing unexpected opportunities. Consider, for example, the interesting pursuit of Pennsylvania physician Maurice Seltzer. One day, hiking across an abandoned coalfield, he paused to crack open a piece of limestone waste.

"With great wonder," he relates, "I beheld a fern fossil that had been buried in mud for 300 million years, all its harmonious details etched in yellow pigment." That chance moment of curiosity so stimulated his interest that he began to read books on minerals and the earth sciences. His wife, too, became intrigued, and they began planning vacation trips where they could find unusual geological formations: Over the years, their roving has ranged from the Delaware Water Gap to the Rockies.

Many other people agree that history can be one of the most useful door-openers to a vacation. Texans Marion and Frank Davidson learned that the state highway department had charted and tested 10 "Travel Trails" from border to border. Last summer, the Davidsons, with their 10- and 12-year-old sons, took a vacation trip along "Independence Trail," visiting places like the San Jacinto battleground and San Luis Pass (renowned for its rugged stagecoach run).

"For the first time we had a point of view," says Marion. "Everything we saw and did related to it." The experience was so stimulating that they now plan to cover all the rest of the recommended Travel Trails.

I talked with others who had made such vacations into history. A family from Ohio had been enthralled by a tour of Massachusetts historic sites—the Emerson home, Walden Pond, the House of Seven Gables, and others. Three college students from Washington, D.C., visited ghost towns of the West.

Plan vacation pursuits that you can continue all year. We have a neighbor who used to complain regularly that evenings were "so boring" because her husband was frequently out of town on business. Last year, there was a remarkable change: she took up oil painting and was soon doing well enough to exhibit.

"It all started," she explains, "because I can find bells, old and new, almost anywhere in the world, along with local fans who willingly act as guides and hosts; and antique car or airplane buffs who welcome one another like brothers.

On one visit to Old Sturbridge Village, Mass.—a living example of rural New England during that almost forgotten period right after the American Revolution—we met a man and wife who were gourmets of long standing, but whose interest in foods had begun to fade somewhat. After half a dozen trips to the Village, they were absorbed in new interests during vacations that they have actually changed careers. Jerry Wood of Annapolis, Md., an executive in the toy business, had always wanted to try his hand at sailing. Several years ago, he bought an old boat and began fixing it up. When a man on the beach asked where he could rent a sailboat for the day, Jerry offered his.

That was the beginning of a part-time rental service that gradually made it possible for the Woods to acquire a small fleet. "As the rental business grew," Jerry told me, "I started giving sailing lessons—mostly in self-defense to protect our investments from misuse." Now Jerry devotes the major part of his time to boats and has created "Sailing Vacations" and "Sailing Weekends" for novices to learn while having fun.

Use vacations to help others. A working widow in a New York suburb spends half of her vacation time taking underprivileged city children on trips—to country fairs, farms, and other places who would never have gone to alone. "It takes me out of my shell," she says. "I stay active and relaxed instead of sitting on a porch and straining mentally to relive the fun I used to have before my husband died and my daughters moved away."

You do not have to be alone, of course, to benefit from this kind of vacation. Dr. John Slaughter, a dermatologist in Evansville, Ind., and his wife, both keen on Central America, founded eight years ago a remarkable organization, Holidays for Humanity. It arranges for physicians, dentists, nurses, and technicians to spend vacations ministering to back-country regions in Central America—all on a voluntary basis, at their own expense. Today the successful program includes South America as well as a number of Caribbean islands.

Creative vacations—whatever best suit your own needs—have many rewards. They infuse something into living that becomes a continuing source of refreshment long after the vacation itself has ended.

As author and educator Sebastian de Grazia, who has made an exhaustive study of man and his free time, has written, "Work may make a man stoop-shouldered or rich. It may even ennoble him. Leisure perfects him. In this lies its future." ♦ cause of our marvelous vacation. Pete thought we ought to do something for a change instead of spending three weeks either lying on the beach or fretting indoors because the weather wasn't sunny enough for lying on the beach. So we signed up for an art course at Cape Cod. I never knew art could be such fun. And, of course, you don't have to put your enjoyment in "mothballs" once the vacation is over."

Millions upon millions of Americans belong to associations which give them a common bond with strangers and thus can serve as the key to rewarding vacation planning.

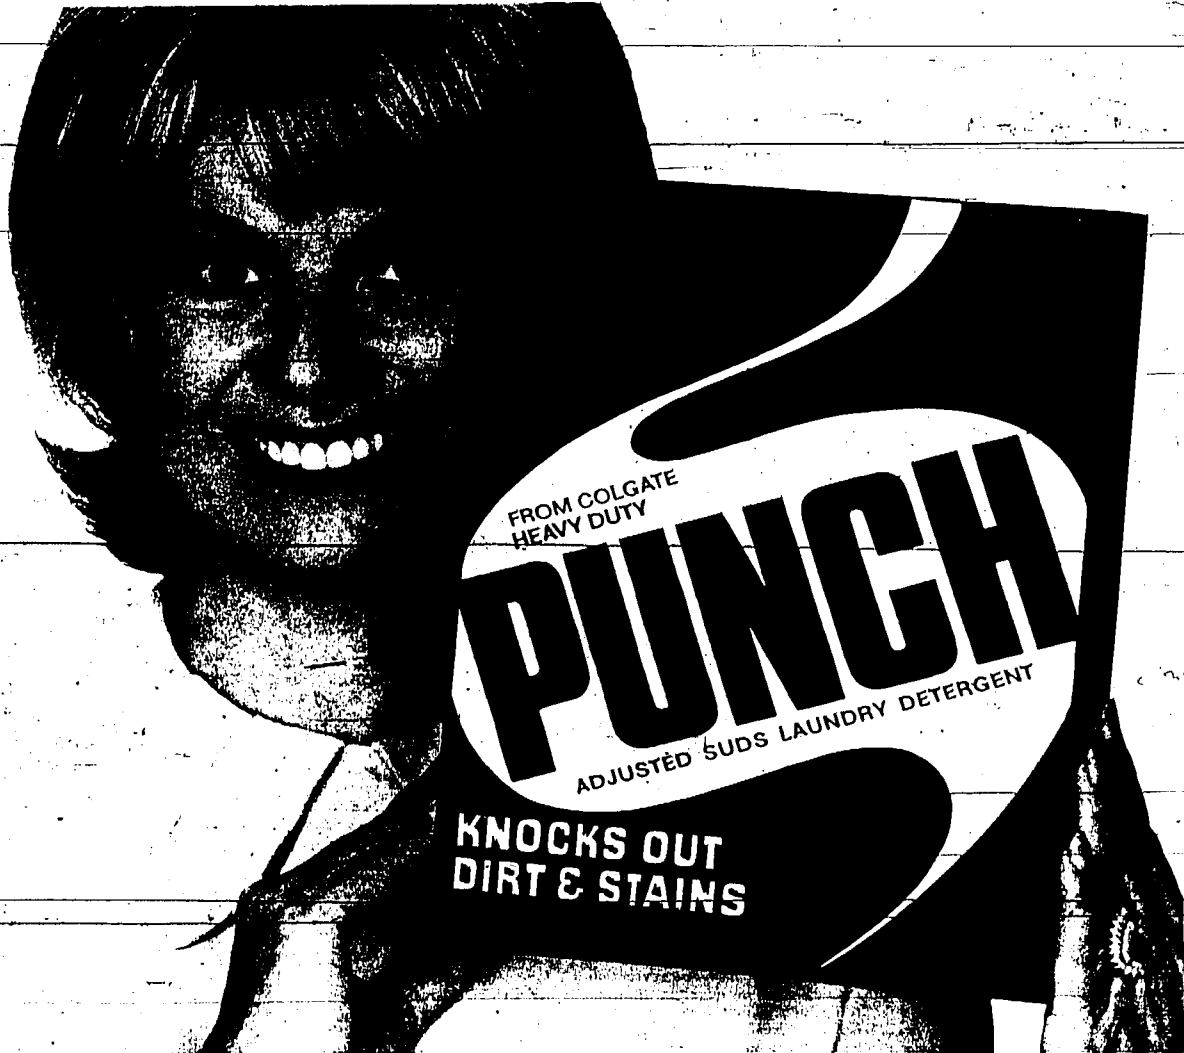

Recently, for example, I heard about the International Kitefliers Association, whose members transcend language barriers in exchanging visits; about bell enthusiasts who large, their entire outlook was renewed and refreshed as they began a study of Early American cooking. Thousands have found new hobbies at the kitchen range—or added extra dimensions to old ones.

Consider vacations that can help mold careers. A teacher I met regularly devoted part of his vacations to help his three sons and one daughter look into career possibilities. Once they devoted two summer weeks to a broad sweep of transportation facilities (a field in which his son had expressed interest)—railroad terminals, airports, shipping offices. On another occasion, they went to a dozen state capitals, as well as to Washington, D.C., for a close-up look at life in government and politics.

I'm astonished to learn how many people have become so deeply ab-

What's the Best Time of Your Life?

IN SOME WAYS life is better when you're younger. In other ways it's better when you're older.

Science has been looking into the matter and has turned up some surprising findings. Take this quiz to determine what is the best time of life for you.

1. The best time to marry is when you're between 18 and 20.

2. Youth is most prone to quick temper.

3. Mental growth stops at 18, and your I.Q. is as high then as it will ever be.

4. As age advances, you become more fearful and less carefree.

5. Middle age is the time when couples are likely to face their biggest emotional crises.

6. The adolescent—on the threshold of manhood—is the most egotistical and has the most exaggerated opinion of his own worth.

7. You become more sensitive to pain as you grow older.

8. Time goes faster for young people and slower for old people.

ANSWERS

1. False. A consensus of studies shows that your chances of a happy marriage are much greater if you wait until you are well into your 20s before taking the trip to the altar. Marriages in the 20s and early 30s were found to average excellent so far as happiness is concerned. Worst showing was among teen-agers.

2. True. Investigations have shown that in most cases, the man of 30 is more even-tempered than the 18-year-old, the fellow in his 50s still less inclined to blow a fuse over trifles; and surveys show that people in the older age-brackets tend to be the least ruffled.

3. False. Studies at University of California's Institute of Human Development have demonstrated that brain power frequently increases with age. In follow-up studies which tested subjects' I.Q.s at various ages, many showed gains in intelligence when tested in their 30s and 40s.

4. False. Studies show that while each age has its particular types of fears, they do not necessarily increase or decrease as you grow older. It would appear that rather than becoming more or less fearful as you grow older, you exchange youthful fears for other anxieties and apprehensions.

5. False. Studies by the American Institute of Family Relations indicate that a couple's most difficult time likely occurred at the time of their wedding and first years of marriage.

6. False. Though he may sometimes give the impression, it is a bluff to cover feelings of uneasiness and fears of inadequacy. Psychological studies show that the adolescent's anxieties and his lack of self-confidence and self-esteem are great. He tries to conceal his self-doubts from others by assuming an attitude of bravado.

7. False. The National Research Council at the University of Manitoba made a clinical study of pain and found that a middle-aged man is appreciatively less sensitive to pain than a youth in his late teens or early 20s. And when a man passes 60, his sensitivity to hurt or injury decreases even further.

8. False. Psychological studies at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and elsewhere have shown that the reverse is true: that time—whether measured in minutes, months, or years—tends to pass more and more swiftly with age. On the other hand, time for the young person (unless it's crowded to the hilt with activity) seems to drag; a week or even a few hours may seem to him to take forever to pass.

American Women "Invade" the South Pole

Antarctica had long been an all-male stronghold, until an expedition of lady scientists and a journalist went to the "end of the world"

By ARTURO F. GONZALEZ, Jr.

"NO WOMEN!" shouted Rear Adm. J. Lloyd Abbott, Jr., U.S.N., the previous commandant of Operation Deep Freeze in Antarctica at the South Pole.

But his stringent command barely had time to lose its echo in the -50-degree frozen wilderness before five female scientists and a lady journalist jumped off the back ramp of a military transport plane and set foot on the 9,200 feet of snow and frozen turf that cover the South Pole.

Leader of the icy expedition was Dr. Leila M. Jones, of the Institute of Polar Studies at Ohio State and more recently the University of Georgia. She was anxious to study rock weathering and salt accumulation in Antarctica, and she just got tired of begging male scientists who went there for rock samples. So she applied to the National Science Foundation to go to Antarctica—only to receive the traditional "no."

But Doctor Jones' determination led her to the Pentagon, where she got the backing she needed for the expedition. The only stipulation was that the party had to be all female since Antarctic living conditions and sanitary facilities were not set up on a co-ed basis.

The first to sign up after Doctor Jones was Eileen McSaveny, a graduate student in geology. Mrs. Kay Lindsay, an entomologist, joined to look for life forms in that area. The baby of the group was Terry Lee Tickhill, a 19-year-old from Ohio who was studying geology in college.

Joining the four ladies of Doctor Jones' expedition were Mrs. Peter Jones, a scientist from New Zealand, and Mrs. Jean Pearson, a science writer for a Detroit newspaper.

The ladies' trek into Antarctica took them from Washington, D.C., via Navy plane to Hawaii and on to Christchurch, New Zealand, before landing at McMurdo Station, where they were outfitted appropriately.

From here, the ladies got the chance to take a quick side trip on a Navy daily supply mission to the South Pole before they were eventually helicoptered out and dropped in the wilderness to fend for themselves for 90 days.

At the pole, passengers usually climb out of the plane one by one through a hatch aft of the cockpit, but the Navy feared the women might get competitive about who put the first female foot on South Pole "soil." So they solved the problem by plopping them down all together on a ramp. Arm in arm, with Operation Deep Freeze's current command, Rear Adm. David F. Welch, the ladies invaded the Pole.

The party walked 200 yards up hill to be photographed at the Pole, where a mirror-ball-topped "candy cane" is stuck in the snow with a sign identifying that as latitude 90 degrees south. Admiral Welch walked the women around the Pole, which meant that they were going around the world in just five seconds, and at the same time they had walked from one day into the next and back

At the under-ice lounge, appropriately called "Club 90," the women and hosts defrosted in comfortable quarters complete with books, movies, and pool table. On the walls of the crew's lounge are hung Antarctic memorabilia including a framed sweater of Adm. Richard E. Byrd. Here the lady scientists contributed now historic tubes of lipstick and bobby pins to the collection of those who had attained a "first" at the frozen South Pole.

After getting commemorative envelopes and taking a tour of the under-ice base, the ladies climbed back into their plane and were gone. A few days later, the gals were bucking 50-mph winds and spending nights in sleeping bags and doing their scientific thing on the ice. ▶

Inside I was crying, until I lost 105 pounds.

By Alice Banoczky—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

Everybody in Budapest knew me—the cutest fatty on the stage. How I hated the role! But without me, the "Guruló-Együlites", or Rolling Trio, would have been a skinny nothing.

I sang. I made big jokes. But inside I was crying. Because I knew when the spotlight went off, they called me "dagadt", which in Hungarian means swollen, like a big balloon.

Always I was overweight. Even from three years old. Our kitchen, you see, was very rich. Lots of soup, pork, potatoes and fűzelék (a side dish). And I loved turós rétes (strudel with cheese) as well as sweets.

By the time I was 16, I was already 200 pounds. My mother took me to doctors where I had shots and pills and low-calorie diets, even artificial orange drinks. But always, the pounds came back.

Once, when I was walking on the street, a man said to another: "If our government had as solid a foundation as that, we'd all be in better shape." Some shape!

I was miserable. I had no fun, no activities, no boy friends. I had only my singing voice. But how could I show it off, with such fatness? The only way, I decided, was radio, where I could hide myself. Later on, I grew bolder and went on the stage with my comic trio. Everybody laughed, but me.

Then came the Hungarian Revolution of 1956 and I escaped to the U.S.A. Almost immediately, I realized that because of my weight, I had even less chance to make a success here in show business. For practically everywhere, I saw the most slim and trim girls.

Discouraged, I gave up my music and took a job behind the scenes in a factory. And I again tried to reduce. Sometimes I was even starving myself. But I'd get hungry and soon I would be eating—lots of sweetness in desserts and TV snacks and before going to bed.

Finally, I met a man who preferred a good cook to a slim figure. We married, moved to Walnut Creek, California, and a son was born to us. Oh boy, some fat mamma he had! And each year that my son grew older, I grew bigger. Last summer, 230 pounds!

Being a woman, however, I still dreamed of being thin. But how was I to stop the desserts and sweets and nighttime snacks? That was the problem always, until I made the discovery of the reducing-plan candy, called Ayds. I was in a drugstore when I first saw the chocolate fudge type. (There is also a vanilla caramel Ayds and a fudgy-chocolate mint.) Ah, I thought, a low-calorie snack for my sweet tooth! I was wrong.

When I got home, I read the directions and found I should take one or two Ayds before meals with a hot drink. Then eat. Pretty soon, I didn't feel so hungry for a big meal.

In a few days, I lost two pounds. Was I excited! I grabbed my golden opportunity right then. For this was the help I needed to have more willpower. And to have a smaller appetite without harmful drugs.

Look at me, acting comical. But even without the watermelon, I could make people laugh. After all, I was 230 pounds.

For breakfast, I would take my Ayds as directed. Then I'd have grapefruit, scrambled eggs, toast, and coffee. A lot of people think to skip breakfast is to lose faster. But this is a bad idea. It is important that one should eat in the morning. At noon, I had, maybe, a sandwich. And in the evening, after Ayds again, I ate a regular dinner. But I ate less than always before because I didn't want so much. Oh, yes. And at night, if I was hungry, I ate another Ayds. It was sweet and the answer to my craving.

When I'd lost 25 pounds; I decided it was time I was completely newborn. So I dyed my hair blonde.

On the Ayds plan, more weight came off. And soon, even my wedding ring fell off. I was never so happy to spend five dollars as for making it smaller. After I lost 50 pounds, people passed me on the street without knowing me. But it was me, all right—on my way down to 125 pounds.

I wish all Hungary could see me now with my new figure. Do you blame me for lightening my hair, too?

At last, thanks be to the Ayds plan, I have a good figure. Now, I have only one more dream. To sing again—for an American audience.

MICHAEL LANDON:

Behind the Bitterness

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

AFTER 11 YEARS on top of the tv rating heap, Michael Landon is worried.

"I'm getting gray and don't know how much longer I can keep a youthful image," he said, looking himself over in a full-length mirror. Little Joe of "Bonanza" super fame is just 36 years old—but that's not stopping him from feathering a very plush nest for his future.

"I want something to show for all these years of work," he says, and he can really show something now. Landon commands one of tv's top acting salaries—$15,000 per week plus extra for any directing jobs or original scripts which he occasionally writes. On the side, he averages $7,500 for personal appearances.

He owns an 11-story condominium in Laguna, an office building in downtown Los Angeles, has part interest in a potato-socking factory, owns a company which makes seat belts, and (along with his tv cohorts, Dan Blocker and Lorne Greene) has purchased a $2-million, half-mile stretch of Malibu Beach. Not bad for a guy who once was so poor that he tried to steal a Christmas tree.

Maybe there's a good reason for Michael Landon's excessive drive for fame and fortune. As a youngster, he had more downs than ups.

Born Eugene Orowitz in New York, N.Y., Oct. 31, 1933, Michael learned early in life that there often is turmoil. "My parents didn't get along well," he recalls. "It taught me not to stay married if you don't love one another." Michael took the lesson to heart when he divorced his first wife Dodie—a legal secretary six years his senior—after six years of marriage.

His mother, musical-comedy actress Peggy O'Neill, gave up her career when she married Michael's father who, remembers Michael, "always missed the boat."

For a while, Eli Orowitz (known as EMO) managed theaters, published a fan magazine, which failed, did radio work, and finally followed Michael to California.

"Dad thought some of his old show-business buddies out West would remember him," says Landon, "and he'd get a good job. But nobody remembered. They even barred him from this movie lot," he remarked bitterly.

The shoe is on the other foot now. Paramount, where "Bonanza" is filmed, hasn't been able to do enough for EMO's son, whose every wish is granted, like the sauna and the gym equipment made available for workouts.

ame and Wealth

onanza's" star is a hero in the studio that once anned his father; but the memory still haunts him

Before the success, however, it seemed at the tough luck that plagued his father as inherited by Michael.

Colleagues were anxious to have him because of his athletic prowess. He went to a prep school and moved in with a family named Echols, which gave him the deep, secure life he craved. But even the sports scholarship he won at the University of Southern California turned out to be a trap when he tore a ligament in his arm sprung a javelin. Feeling useless to USC, Michael quit.

Unkilled and seemingly unlucky, Mike got a job in a warehouse and began to feel that his father's jinx was upon him, too.

On the side, he taught swimming, although he couldn't swim a stroke. "I always wore sneakers," he says, "so they couldn't ask me to demonstrate."

One day, as a favor to a fellow worker,
Michael went to Warner Brothers to help with his screen test. When the film was showed, it was Mike, not his buddy, who was asked to join the studio's talent school.
Mike was elated. This time no one would ridicule the intense emotions which came so naturally to him.

Just when his star seemed in assured preeminence, the roof fell in on Mike again.
"Mr. Warner walked into class one day.
I don't think he knew such a program was going on, and when he realized he was paying for it, he cancelled the whole thing!" The only survivor after the demise of the studio class was an actor named James Garner.

"I was really low," Mike remembers.
"I'd missed out again. They said I was too skinny!" At that time he weighed only 120 pounds. He now tilts the scales at a robust 165.

A week later, however, producer Jerry Stanz gave him his first job. Then followed live tv and movies. Eventually asked to costar in "Bonanza," Michael didn't dream he'd at last hit pay dirt.

Michael, his wife, model Lynn Noe, and their children, Cheryl, 16, Lealle, 7, and Michael, Jr., 5, live in a lovely modern-type home in Encino, which he insists he can't afford to sell because he has overbuilt the area by adding a swimming pool, a 5-foot waterfall, three bedrooms, two bathrooms, a children's playroom, a game room, and a private sitting room for his wife and himself.

Mike is most at ease and happiest when he is home with his family—which he measures above all else. His idea of fun and relaxation is going ice skating with the kids or playing golf.

Michael sounds a little thankful when he says his home has no room for horses; apparently he gets more than enough of them in "Bonanza."

"Horses are very uncouth," he remarks.
Then he adds, "Of course, I did buy one for Cheryl once. We were in Louisville on a personal-appearance tour, and some guy offered me a horse, complete with papers, for the price of transportation only.

"It was the worst-looking horse I'd ever seen! But I'd not committed myself so I bought it, got rid of it, and bought Cheryl a good horse, since she wanted one so bad.

"Then do you know what happened?
She forgot all about horses. She had a new craze—boys!"

When Michael works, he often alienates people by forgetting appointments, partly because he's so engrossed in what he's doing and partly because insecurity still nags at him, and he doesn't like to be interviewed.

He frequently takes refuge behind dark glasses when he faces the press or public.
But he does lose his cool whenever anyone shows disrespect or lack of courtesy to anyone working on the show.

Michael Landon has literally grown-up while playing the character of Little Joe —who hasn't been allowed the same opportunity. And that's his dilemma: he has been forced into a dual personality.

Yet taking into account all he has gained under such a handicap, one wonders what achievements may yet be his once he can stop playing someone else and be himself —less the bitter memories of the past. +
