Red China Launches 'Vocal' Satellite

HONG KONG (UPI)—Communist China announced its entry into the space age Saturday with a 380-pound satellite broadcasting a revolutionary anthem titled "The East is Red" to a world wondering what military use Peking would make of its leap into the heavens:

The Chinese, who invented the rocket almost 1,000 years ago and became a nuclear power in 1964, said the satellite was orbiting the earth every 114 minutes on a looping course that took it as high as 1,265 miles. U.S. officials in Washington said the feat indicates Communist Chinese scientists have made significant progress toward developing an intercontinental ballistic missile which could threaten the United States. The Chinese successfully tested a missile with a nuclear warhead in 1966.

The Chinese accomplishment was expected to add fuel to arguments of those in the United States urging the Nixon administration to bolster U.S. defense against missile attack:

A scientist who served as a colonel in the U.S. Air Force in World War II, Chien Hsueh-shen, was believed the driving force in the Chinese space program. He was a member of an American team sent to study German rocket development at the end of the war.

The satellite launching made China the fifth nation to launch an earth orbiter with its own booster. The other full fledged members of the space race are the United States, the Soviet Union, France and Japan. Britain, Canada, Italy and Australia have flown earth satellites with American help. Japan beat China to the punch two months in becoming the first Asian nation in the competition, launching an 84-pound satellite with a lambda 4SS rocket.

Cambodia Troops Speed To Scene Of Fighting

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI)—Cambodian commanders Saturday rushed reinforcements to the town of Angkassom where government troops battled a force of 500 Viet Cong in the third consecutive day of fighting for control of a highway junction only 40 miles south of Phnom Penh. "The Viet Cong have been everywhere since we arrived here two days ago," said Lt. Muong Sarin, 34-year-old commander of the 1st Paratroop Battalion at Angkassom. "The situation looks quite serious. We have been fighting all day."

Police Bribes Probed

NEW YORK (UPI)—City officials said Saturday a widespread investigation was underway into charges of police bribetaking amounting to millions of dollars yearly and failure of some authorities to take action against the corruption.

Hundreds, perhaps thousands, of Vietnamese have been reported slain by Cambodians in recent days in apparent retribution for attacks by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops. On another front Saturday, military sources said Cambodian air force planes parachuted supplies to at least three government battalions isolated by Communist forces near the Vietnamese border.

Rebellion Ends On Caribbean Island

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (UPI)—Police Commissioner Tony May said Saturday rebellious army troops were surrendering weapons and freeing hostages, apparently ending a Black Power mutiny on this Caribbean island.

"The rebellion appears to be over," May said, explaining that the surrender of weapons by an estimated 400 men in the Telenor Bay stronghold was one of the conditions agreed to by the rebels in talks with Col. Joffre Serrette, commander of the Trinidad and Tobago Regiment. Serrette was appointed commander Friday, fulfilling a rebel demand that Col. Stanley Johnson be fired as the unit's chief.

Teamsters May Scrap Pact, Ask New Talks

By United Press International
The Teamsters Union raised the possibility Friday that the tentative, three-year wage agreement it recently reached with the trucking industry may be scrapped and negotiations opened again.

Frank Fitzsimmons, acting Teamsters president, said the trucking industry had agreed to do this if an independent teamsters local in Chicago negotiates a higher settlement with the major trucking firms in that area.

A spokesman for Trucking Employers Inc (TEI), which represents 12,000 firms, gave a different version of the agreement. He said TEI has agreed that if a "substantial segment" of Chicago truck firms accept a higher settlement, TEI will consider whether to reopen negotiations.

Man Who Knifed Woman Is Sought

A 10-year-old woman told Twin Falls police she was stabbed in the right side by a man who broke into her apartment shortly before she returned home Saturday night.

Bonnie Cox suffered a superficial wound and did not require medical attention. But police searched late Saturday for the man, who has not been identified.

The Cox woman went to her apartment at 7:20 p.m. with her infant son and found the man inside. She told police the man wanted to talk to her and when she refused he ripped off her blouse and stabbed her with the knife.

Blaze In Prison Is Quenched

BOISE (UPI)—A fire started by a home-made incendiary device burned about one-third of an abandoned theater used as a store room at the Idaho State Penitentiary Friday afternoon.

Director of Correction, Raymond May said all 380 inmates at the facility were accounted for. He said there was an immediate official count "to be sure this was not diversionary."

May said the fire was "naturally" set by a homemade device.

Bomb Is Mailed To President

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Government agents have detected bombs mailed to President Nixon and Selective Service Director Curtis W. Tarr from "apparently the same source" in Seattle, the Post Office Department said Saturday.

A spokesman said post office inspectors are cooperating with the Secret Service and other government agencies in investigating the attempted bombings, but so far have no suspects. He said both bombs were believed to have come from the same source because of the similarity of the packages and types of bombs found in them.

Reds Drop 25 Planes Over Laos

SAIGON (UPI)—At least 28 American planes and helicopters have been shot down or destroyed over neighboring Laos in less than two months, records of the U.S. military command in Saigon showed Saturday. Four of the U.S. pilots are known dead and at least seven missing.

Total value of the lost aircraft was estimated at nearly $30 million. The planes and helicopters, downed since the command began reporting such losses over Laos March 10, ranged from six Phantom jets worth upward of $2.4 million each to seven propeller-driven Skyraiders worth $141,000 each.

The losses also included two A7 Corsairs valued at $3 million each and two F106 Thunderbolts worth a total of nearly $5 million.

Chiang Visits Cadets

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI)—National Chinese Vice Premier Chiang Ching-kuo, traveling under tight security since an assassination attempt in New York, arrived Saturday for a tour of the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Chiang, son and heir apparent of Chiang Kai-shek, was also scheduled to visit the headquarters of the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD). In New York, two Formosan revolutionaries, members of a movement seeking independence for their countrymen, were held without bail Saturday after a shot was fired Friday at Chiang as he walked through a revolving door of the Plaza Hotel.

Peter Huang, 32, a member of the World United Formosans for Independence which seeks overthrow of the Nationalist regime, was charged with attempted homicide, possession of a dangerous weapon, resisting arrest and obstruction of governmental administration.

Huang gave police an Ithaca, N.Y., address and said he was a researcher. Officials at Cornell University said he was a graduate student in sociology there for three years but dropped out in the spring of 1968 without earning a degree.

Lacks In Draftees Indicated

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Local draft boards have delivered only 80 per cent of the manpower requested by the military during the past three months, it was learned Saturday.

To fill the Pentagon's order, National Selective Service headquarters has served notice that the deficiencies will have to be made up by August.

During the past three months, Selective Service called for induction of 50,000 men. But local boards fell short by more than 10,000.

Tornadoes Hit Northern Texas

Tornadoes and violent winds moved through northern Texas Saturday, ripping roofs from homes and injuring at least 15 persons. Heavy rain fell across portions of the South and Northwest. The rest of the nation basked under sunny skies and warm temperatures.

Rupert Man Killed In Car Wreck

RUPERT — Burning weeds causing low visibility apparently led to the death of a 65-year-old Declo man, Roy H. Droz, on a rural road three miles north of here Saturday.

Minidoka County Sheriff's Deputy W. Woodall said a car driven by Mr. Droz's wife, Ina, 54, collided with a truck driven by 22-year-old David Miller of Rupert.

Weeds were being burned in a ditch nearby and it was reported visibility was low at 2 p.m. when the accident happened.

Minidoka County Coroner Robert Walk said there will be an inquest. The traffic death raises the Idaho toll this year to 80, compared to 66 the same time last year.

Mr. Droz was pronounced dead on arrival at Minidoka County Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Droz suffered minor injuries and was not hospitalized, and Mr. Miller was not injured, deputies said.

A tragic aftermath to the accident was reported when Mrs. Earl Munson, about 80, of Declo, mother of Mrs. Droz, suffered a fatal heart attack on hearing of the death of her son-in-law.

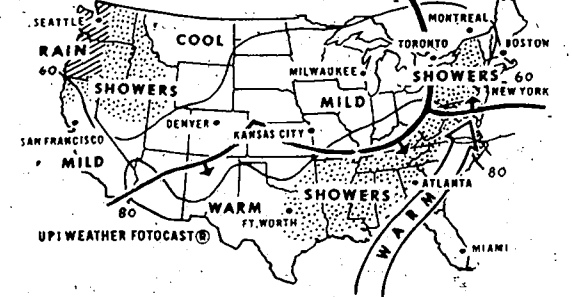

Services for Mr. Droz and Mrs. Munson will be announced by Payne Mortuary of Turley.

Snooze In Bar Was Too Long

An unidentified man fell asleep in a downtown Twin Falls bar early Saturday and had to call police to let him out.

Officers were called to the bar at 3 a.m. The man explained that he fell asleep and apparently was missed when employees locked the business up for the night.

Police said they don't get many requests from men to be let out of bars.

THE DIRECTOR OF the Idaho State School and Hospital at Nampa, Dr. Gall Ison, was the guest speaker Saturday at the District 3 Teens Organization for Retarded Children (TORCH) meeting at the Episcopal Church in Twin Falls.

Area Youths Urged To Aid Mentally Retarded

There is a generation gap, Dr. Gall Ison, director of the Idaho State School and Hospital at Nampa, told more than 100 youth attending a mental retardation convention at the Episcopal Church Saturday.

The youths, members of the District 3 Teens Organization for Retarded Children (TORCH), were told to keep open minds on the subject of aid to the mentally retarded.

Dr. Ison said adults of today are not aware of retardation problems because they have not been made aware of the problems.

"You, the youth of today, will be the adults of tomorrow and you can be made aware of the problems and help."

He said with help, mental retardation can cut in many areas.

The day-long session started with youth workshops and seminars on problem children and the mentally retarded. The youths were given pointers on how to help in combating mental retardation.

"Dr. Ison said he was 'optimistic' about help from the youth of today, and said, 'I am betting on you in the future.'"

The convention ended with a banquet at which the Rev. Fr. John Riley, pastor of the Episcopal Church, spoke. He praised the students for their interest in helping the mentally retarded.

Proceeds of the event will go to help the mentally retarded in Magic Valley.

The Head-Count

Americans, long inured to income tax chores this time of year, face a double dose of form filling this April.

Taking the statistical pulse of a continental nation such as we are is, understandably, a major undertaking.

Most of us, however, will never see a census taker, unless the mailman can qualify.

Even after weeding out queries on alimony, contraceptives, mental illness and other sensitive subjects which ran into press and congressional fire, there are still some complaints that some questions, such as number and sharing of bathrooms, are an invasion of privacy.

The census is both tabulator and a creator of change, the latter most directly in the political sphere.

new seats in the 1960 census, should add six more, moving into first place with 44. Long-dominant New York will drop from 41 to 40.

Determining House membership was the original purpose of the census, as authorized in Article I, Section 2, of the Constitution.

From its year-to-year rough check on population growth, the Census Bureau estimates we numbered 204,334,344—at the beginning of 1970, about 25 million more than at the start of 1960.

But in the Soviet Union, where this is also a census year, the count is expected to show Russians are no longer a majority, outnumbered by more than a hundred other ethnic groups in a now estimated population of 241 million.

Nixon: A House Of Errors

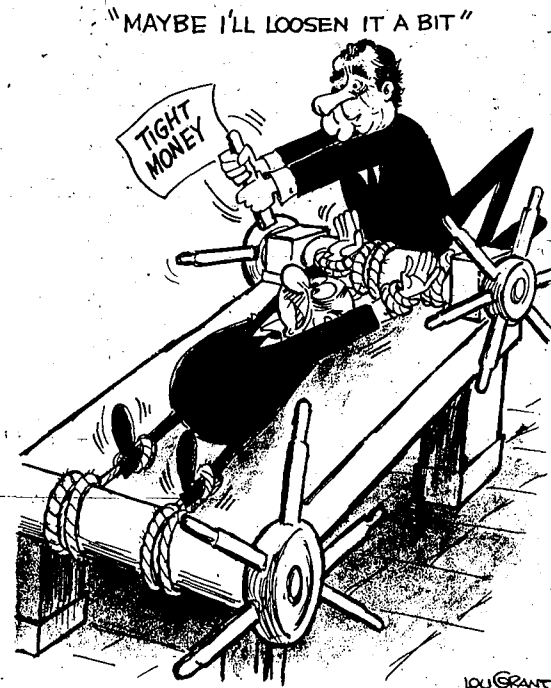

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Critics of government plainly have a vital role as our permanent skeptics-in-residence, questioning everything keeping useful erub on the immense power of entrenched authority.

good share of the blame for today's excesses and misjudgments falls upon the critics themselves, not least the frenetic liberals who seem to think they deserve a charmed life.

In the domestic sphere, every social ill not cured by President Nixon, during his first 15 months in office — poverty, bad housing, bad schools, racial and social unrest, crime — is being tossed smack in his face.

The incumbents, whoever they are, always turn out to be far more thin-skinned than they say they will be.

Few doctrinaire liberals seem even faintly acquainted with the agonies of the 1951-53 "negotiations" over the Korean war.

PAUL HARVEY

Another Vietnam?

Americans will not blunder into another Vietnam; that's all there is to it. This is not intended to comfort our enemies; I think they know now.

So Americans are quite rightly anxious. We are not going to fight for Laos; not under a Nixon Administration.

troops into Laos, even if that country falls to the Communists. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), a frequent critic of Administration policy in Vietnam, came away from that hearing "feeling better."

It is now the consensus of Americans that no place in Southeast Asia is a proper place for American troops to try to preserve, protect and defend.

Andrew Tully, a frequent pundit in politics so often depends on a kind of hearty phoniness, it should come as no surprise that good old Arthur Goldberg is spouting preposterous twaddle as he speaks up the pace of his campaign for governor of New York.

Meanwhile, let us remember that Goldberg was poor Lyndon Johnson's Ambassador to the United Nations from 1960 to 1968. I don't know what he was doing up in New York, but it is not recorded by anyone, including Goldberg himself, that he urged this Vietnam "solution" on the White House.

Cleaning Water

A lot of sewage has gone over the dam in the 14 years since the National League of Cities and the United States Conference of Mayors first marched up Capitol Hill to seek federal aid in cleaning up the nation's waterways.

These two groups have stood head and shoulders over other crusaders for clean air and water. Their efforts finally paid off several weeks ago in congressional approval of an $800-million appropriation under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (FWPCA).

This will at least kick off a program in which the states, cities and federal government will jointly share in financing construction of facilities required by municipalities to meet water quality standards.

The $800 million is only a beginning. Estimates of immediately needed FWPCA assistance range from a low of $128,000 for Idaho to nearly $1.3 billion for New York state.

Speaking of separating storm and sanitary sewers, something which every city must eventually undertake, there may be an unlooked-for "spin-off" from this in addition to the obvious benefits of preventing the discharge of raw sewage into waterways, controlling flooding and improving water quality.

"Of all the major types of construction activity, the one that requires the highest percentage of unskilled labor is the placement of sewer lines," says Norman Krumholz, Cleveland planning director.

Direct payment in wages to laborers constructing a dual sewer system in Cleveland would total $150 million, he says. At an average annual income of $6,000, this would generate 25,000 man-years of employment.

In other words," says Krumholz, "this one project could employ all presently unemployed men in the city for two years."

He adds, however, that these basic laboring jobs must not be seen as a dead-end but must form the springboard apprenticeship for permanent positions in building or construction.

Pollution, not unemployment, was the major concern of the League of Cities and Conference of Mayors when they began their campaign 14 years ago. But if we may prove that they wrought better than they knew.

Smart Move

The new government of Cambodia has announced that it is going to hold onto the U.S. munitions ship that was bound for Thailand until it was hijacked by two mutinous crewmen on March 14 and diverted to the port of Sihanoukville.

their part. Should Cambodia's dispute with North Vietnam, which has already led to the overthrow of Prince Sihanouk, begin getting hotter, all those bombs will give us a leg up on our next involvement in Southeast Asia.

RAY CROMLEY

To Be Fired

WASHINGTON (NEA) — There is a strong feeling in some government circles that key men responsible for the postal strike must be fired if they can be found and their guilt determined.

Officials say President Nixon tipped his hand in this matter when he called the postal strike an "unlawful" work stoppage.

Once the word "unlawful" is used officially in referring to a strike, the provisions of the law come into play, these men say. According to the law, the government can ask for prison terms but it is not required to. It may or may not levy fines. But men found guilty must be severed from government jobs.

Government men are convinced the original New York walkout was carefully planned and co-ordinated, not spontaneous. When that many workers walk out at once, one official says, you know work was put into it.

Only firmness, these administration men believe, will prevent an epidemic of walkouts. It will not be enough to suspend a few men from work with out pay for short periods.

There is some suspicion the light punishments generally meted out in the past few years may have paved the way, in part, for the postal strike.

Officials would like to find and oust what they believe to be the handful of leaders (not necessarily union officials) who organized the Kefauver strike.

However, if this fire-the-guilty philosophy does prevail,

"It looks as though the Americans know more about activity on the trail than we thought!"

Twin Falls

Schools To Trim Summer Sessions

A cutback in federal funding to Twin Falls School District No. 411 has forced the elimination of 10 teachers aides, reduction of services of seven others and reduction of the summer school session for elementary students.

George Staudaher, assistant superintendent, said funds received from the federal Office of Education, and administered by the state are only $73,174, about $4,500 less than expected.

He said those teachers aides who have been eliminated will be finished April 30 and hours worked by the seven who were retained will be reduced. The summer school program has been dropped from five weeks to four weeks in length and the number of teachers retained for the session will be five instead of eight.

Since there are about 20 students per teacher in the summer school, this will mean about 60 less students will be in school this summer.

Mr. Staudaher said "the district has been given to understand that the teachers aide program will be funded again next year and those women who have been affected by the cutback have been asked to return to work in the fall."

He said the women run office machines, serve on lunchroom and playground duty and do secretarial work. The end of the school year, he said, is one of the times of year when there is a particular need for these types of services.

Pencils Won By Speakers

Mrs. J. O. Cok and Mrs. Bill Cannedy both received Blue Pencils for best speeches at a meeting of the Twin Falls Toastmistress Club at the Colonial House.

Mrs. Carl Grabert, council nominating committee member, reported on the nomination of council officers. Those nominated and unanimously accepted were Mrs. Lee Bitzenburg, chairman; Mrs. James Sinclair, vice chairman; Mrs. Eldred Taylor, secretary; Mrs. John Kooztz, Jr., treasurer, and Mrs. Cannedy, council representative.

Mrs. LeRoy Arrington was appointed to serve as teller at the council speech contest at Burley and Mrs. Cannedy was named to serve as timer.

The meeting centered around the theme of "Women in Government and Politics." Mrs. Sinclair conducted a table topics session on "Political Views and Interpretations" and Mrs. Kooztz delivered the lexicology lesson on "Emotional Words and Their Use in Politics." She received the "traveling trophy for her presentation."

Others taking part in the program were Mrs. Eldred Taylor, invocation and pledge; Mrs. Ben Eldred, welcome; Mrs. Lee Bitzenburg, toastmistress, and Mrs. Ellis Fuller, evaluator.

The club scheduled a cooked food sale for Monday at the J. C. Penny Co. Proceeds will be used for expenses of members who will attend the regional speech contest.

The next meeting will be at 9 a. m. May 1 at the Colonial House.

Guests were Mrs. Marvin Taylor, Mrs. Frank Garrison, Mrs. Peter Thornton, all Twin Falls; Mrs. Wayne Murphy and Mrs. Art Reinstein, Kimberly, and Mrs. Clyde Murphy, recently of Braumholder, Germany.

News Of Record

BLAINE COUNTY State Police Blotter
John Allan Casey, 19, Jerome, was arrested at a Ketchum police station Wednesday afternoon for driving a stolen auto. The 1969 Charger he was driving had been stolen from Twin Falls earlier that day and belonged to a Ketchum resident.

Casey was held in custody by the Blaine county sheriff's office until returned to Twin Falls by sheriff's officers there to face the charges against him. He was reportedly attempting to sell stereo tapes at the service station when the attendant recognized the vehicle.

Magic Valley Patients At Clinic Doubled Last Year

Patients At Clinic Doubled Last Year

HAILEY — Community needs, clinic structure, clinic functions, goals and projects for the Wood River Mental Health Clinic were discussed during a day-long meeting of the committee members recently in Hailey. It was noted the number of patients has increased 200 per cent.

Conducting the policy-planning meeting were Dr. Fred Kolouch, director of the clinic, from the University of Utah; Dr. M. Pullen, director of the state Board of Health, Mental Health Division, and Larry Burman, supervising psychologist for the state. Board members attending were Rev. William Kelly, Russ Horn, Orville Drexler, Chris Meaney, Emily Olson, Rita Hogg, Sharon Purdy and Roberta McKeercher, with staff members Gertrude Twombly and Bess Standford.

On the agenda for the immediate projects of the group is the hiring of a psychiatric social worker for the area; the bringing of the clinic to the community level; consultation services for law enforcement schools, doctors, ministers and lawyers; training of volunteers; crisis intervention when the social worker has been employed; patient evaluation clinic facilities; vocational and special education facilities for those over 12 years of age; and the building of office space.

At present, the school system is providing special education for children under 12. A testing program is now being established within the school system, however, which will provide the initial paper work to enable workers to determine some of the problems facing students with low I.Q.'s as well as emotional problems.

Goals of the clinic are to care for the mentally ill which includes educating the public as to how to obtain help; establishing better communication in families, community and county; to get the staff functioning with patients, community, and referral sources; to work with the law enforcement and courts; to effect community contact through church and schools; and to assist youth groups.

Presently, the newly-appointed clinic practices committee is organizing a brochure on clinic activities, procedures and available help to be distributed to the schools, doctors, lawyers and interested individuals. The committee consists of Chairman Rita Hogg, Chris Meaney, Bill Hanson and ex-officio member Rev. Kelly.

Four members were also appointed for "complaint investigation" work. They are Ray Jefferson, Sharon Purdy, Orville Drexler and Doctor Alden Packer.

The number of patients served by the clinic has increased by 200 per cent in the past year. The clinic has also been able, since January, 1969, to gain the interest and participation of law enforcement, create school awareness of the clinic facilities, achieve better publicity, secure county and state funds, and acquire Lincoln county participation.

Lincoln county is allowed two ex-officio board members, since the contract between the clinic and state calls for 11 Blaine county board members. Fees for Lincoln county and Blaine County patients are determined according to ability to pay, while patients from other areas are charged a flat rate. A meeting is planned in the near future between area church leaders and clinic heads to educate leaders how to handle problem cases when brought to their attention.

In other action, the board agreed to place a memorial plaque in the hospital in recognition of the long service given to the group and the hospital by the late Robert Rigger. Mr. Rigger was replaced by Bob Vernon, and with the changes, Ibo Stavros was named to the executive committee of the hospital board and named chairman of house and grounds. Mr. Vernon was given appointment to the personnel and the finance committees of the group.

Bill To Limit Campaign Expense Is Hot Potato

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans are loaded with funds for this year's election campaigns, with the promise of more coming in, and they are not out to make things any easier for Democrats, who are loaded with debts.

But it might cause President Nixon some embarrassment, if he should veto a bill to limit campaign spending for political broadcast time in federal elections.

The story goes back 10 years, when John F. Kennedy and Nixon were running for president.

Congress suspended the so-called equal time provision of the Federal Communication Act to enable broadcasters to make available free time for Kennedy-Nixon debates in 1960 without doing the same for fringe candidates.

In 1964 when President Lyndon B. Johnson was running for election, and in 1968 when most people expected him to, similar legislation was bottled up quietly in Congress.

No Desire to Debate

Johnson had no desire to debate his opponents nor to grant them free broadcast time to campaign against him.

Planning for the 1972 elections, Democrats started moving through Congress a bill to repeal the equal time provision so that the major presidential candidates would get some free broadcast time.

In Senate committee, the Democrats wrote into the bill a provision to make available to all candidates for public office—from town councilman to president—wholesale rates for political broadcast time. It would go into effect this year.

Some Republican as well as Democratic senators, concerned over soaring costs of election campaigns, endorsed the committee provision.

But GOP endorsement turned out to be premature. Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania made clear later that he was opposed and would try to stop the bill. He said the Democrats were trying to get by law what they could not obtain through voluntary action.

Would Limit Spending

When the bill reached the Senate floor, the Democrats amended it with a third provision—to limit broadcast spending for candidates for federal office to an amount equal to 7 cents per vote based on the total vote for that office in the last election.

With the GOP campaign treasury well-filled, Republicans opposed the amendment but it passed in the Senate, 50 to 35.

Republican National Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton denounced the amendment as a possible unconstitutional restriction on the right of political candidates to communicate with the voters. He did not mention that there already are legal limitations on the amount of money candidates may spend in campaigns. The trouble is, they are just ignored.

If the amendment prevails in the House, Morton will urge President Nixon to veto the bill.

CSI Sets Drug Abuse Symposium

About 75 people, including 25 College of Southern Idaho students have pre-registered for a two-day drug-abuse symposium Monday and Tuesday on campus.

The seminar, sponsored by CSI in cooperation with District IV, Public School Superintendent's Association, opens at 9 a. m.—at the Fine Arts Center. Registration will be from 8 a.

m. to 9 p. m. and it is expected between 300 and 400 people will be registered by the time the session begins. Among those now registered are law enforcement officers, educators, nurses and physicians.

It has been stressed by symposium coordinators that the public is invited to register for the conference. Those attending need not be in occupations directly associated with the drug abuse problem. Interested parents are particularly invited to attend.

Monday's session will run from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. and Tuesday's session will be from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. Cost of registration will include two lunches. Among scheduled speakers are Mike McKeivitt, Denver, president of the mission, State of Utah. Coordinators of the symposium are Rex Engelking, superintendent, Buhl schools, and Dr. James L. Taylor, president of CSI.

National District Attorney's Association; Gerald Starkey, M. D. of Denver General Hospital; Lincoln Clark, M. D., University General Hospital, Salt Lake City; Otto Helnecke, Seattle, regional director of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs; J. Thomas Ungerleider, M. D., Los Angeles, assistant professor psychiatry, UCLA

Here's How You Can Help Fight Pollution

(Editor's note: Until recently, most of us have thought of pollution as someone else's problem. Now we are becoming aware that each citizen has a vital and individual responsibility to save our environment. To participate in the city and county-wide cleanup campaigns, the League of Women Voters of Twin Falls has prepared a series of articles on ways to combat pollution. The material was compiled mainly from "The Environmental Handbook," ed. by Garrett de Bell.)

Selective buying and individual awareness are two of the most important contributions to anti-pollution. Every effort should be made to cut down the five pounds of solid wastes which the average American generates each day. Some suggestions:

1. Use returnable bottles, not throw-aways or cans. Do not buy or consequently burn polyvinyl chloride bottles.

These are the soft, milk-white plastic containers. They do not disintegrate rapidly and give off lethal hydrochloric acid when burned.

2. Compact your garbage into cans and keep tightly covered.
3. Don't buy products with unnecessary packaging. Many articles don't need outside boxes, etc. Do use "biodegradable" packaged materials (cardboard, paper, etc.).
4. Take your own cloth shopping bag to cut down on paper bags.
5. Use cloth handkerchiefs, napkins and towels instead of paper.

6. Develop compost piles that cut down on the volume of organic matter you throw away.
7. DON'T LITTER.

In using pesticides and herbicides, there are some very important rules to follow:

1. Never dispose of these materials into a water supply. Call local health officials and the Idaho Cooperative Extension Service for types for use and for disposal methods.

2. Teach your own children and those you influence that our future depends on us — we must learn to preserve our environment.

3. Avoid direct contact as many poisons can be absorbed through the skin.

4. Apply carefully, never near food, water or animals, and only when absolutely necessary.

Are you aware of the air pollution in our area? It is on the increase! Some suggestions for each of us include:

1. Do not burn leaves or trash.
2. Do not leave your car idling. Keep it well tuned, as it will emit less pollutants. If buying a new car, buy one that is equipped with the best pollution abatement device.
3. Form car pools or use public transportation to eliminate carbon monoxide.
4. Watch for the new lead-free fuels and support the manufacturers of these important anti-pollution gasolines. Use low-octane gas if possible.
5. Burn wood in your fireplaces and stoves, if you must use either, not coal.
6. Report those air polluters you detect to the Department of Health.
7. Encourage the planting of trees and plants.

Homes In S. F. Good Investment

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A 10-year study of home prices in San Francisco shows they increased at an average rate of 7.5 per cent, compounded annually.

That is a pretty good rate of return on an investment you are using all the while.

The average market price for the single-family dwellings went up from $15,383 in 1958 to $29,416 in 1967, according to a massive study by Leonard P. Vidger, a professor at San Francisco State College.

The increase in value of the average home varied from $1,010 in the poorest year (1966) to $2,417 in the best year (1964). The rate varied from 6.3 per cent in 1960 to 10.3 per cent in 1964.

Vidger published his findings in the California Real Estate Magazine.

He said the increase in home value, of course, is owing to increased demand for houses, and varies according to the demand and the availability of mortgage money.

Vidger correlated his data with other statistics about San Francisco and found, for example, that the population size had no relation to the price of housing. This was explained by the fact that there is no more room for population increase in this city.

The increases correlated well with increases in building costs and consumer price indexes.

Guerrillas Harass Cuban Government

By ROY CENTENO
NEW YORK (UPI)—A freelance photographer who said he accompanied recent Cuban exile guerrilla leaders in Cuba last Friday, said their purpose is to harass the Castro regime and seek its downfall through internal revolt.

Ernesto Hernandez brought back what he described as still and newsreel pictures of recently landed expeditions in eastern Cuba. He said the groups were small but their effectiveness could not be disputed.

"Castro knows how destructive the guerrilla actions are and that is why he turns loose his militia and his oratory against what he knows to be his biggest danger," Hernandez said.

Hernandez said the small-scale invasion groups were not seeking to immediately overthrow Castro but to set the stage for his "inevitable collapse."

Castro knows "how nervous and ineffective the guerrilla action is," Hernandez said. The mission of the guerrillas is to find and organize people opposed to Castro and Communism, Hernandez said.

"The idea is to help such people into the fight," he said. "To give them the opportunity to fight; perhaps to throw the first rock."

"If the people could, they would be out fighting tomorrow," Hernandez said. "Even in militia ranks there are plenty of people opposed to Castro. The peasants are hoarding arms, too."

CUBAN GUERRILLAS check out rope-like plastic explosive, left, and their M16 weapons while en route to an invasion point. The "invasion" of Cuba by anti-Castro forces has been reported by an observer on the scene, and confirmed by the Castro government.

The boats used were small motor boats which were pulled by shrimp boats to the landing area. The men were trained and taken from a base outside the U.S. (UPI telephoto)

Agnew Is Welcomed By Crowd

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, responding to strains of "Dixie," assailed senators who blocked President Nixon's recent Supreme Court nominations and drew a rousing reception Friday when he reaffirmed the administration's stand on school desegregation.

Speaking at a Republican fund-raising rally, Agnew blasted the Senate for its "learned idocy" in rejecting high court nominees Clement Haynsworth and G. Harrold Goffett.

"I intend to continue to speak strongly against those who would reject all of the traditional American values in their attempts to accommodate the childish screams of the new left," Agnew said.

FDA Condemns Use Of 'Relaxacizor'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Food and Drug Administration, listing a catalogue of alleged medical hazards associated with an exercising device, Saturday warned the owners of 400,000 Relaxacizors not to use them.

"The device has a serious potential for damage to the heart and other vital body organs," the FDA said.

U.S. District Judge William P. Gray last week issued a permanent injunction against distribution of the electrical devices in a Los Angeles case initiated by the Justice Department.

He found "a wide spectrum of conditions in which the relaxacizor is hazardous...such as intra-abdominal, gastrointestinal, orthopedic, muscular, neurological, vascular, dermatological, kidney, gynecological and pelvic disorders."

Cancer cells that are otherwise dormant may be activated and spread by the sudden, violent, rapid, repetitive and unnatural movements of inter-

Fouquet Is Sentenced To Death

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A Superior Court jury of eight men and four women Friday ruled that Ronald Fouquet be put to death for the murder of the 5-year-old son of his common-law wife nearly four years ago.

Festivity during the emotion-charged trial alleged the 32-year-old mechanic, quaffed beer and watched television cartoons while Jeffrey Landau lay gasping and dying on the floor after nearly three weeks of savage beatings and torture.

The jury, the same one which convicted him earlier of the Sept. 17, 1966 slaying, brought back the death sentence after nearly nine hours of deliberation. Superior Court Judge Adolph Alexander set formal sentencing for May 15.

Mrs. Fouquet admitted helping dispose of the body in an iron chest east of Saugus, Calif. She said she did not report the beatings or the death because she feared Fouquet would kill her and her other children.

Queen Praises Aussie Miracle

CANBERRA, Australia (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth II called Australians miracle workers Saturday as she switched on a rainbow. She opened the Captain Cook Memorial here by setting off a stream of water that soared 300 feet. Sunlight on the water created the rainbow. In her inaugural speech, Elizabeth said of Australia, "The establishment of a free, democratic, prosperous community in 182 years is little short of miraculous."

$20 Billion Arms Bill Scored

By DANIEL RAPOPORT
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Three dissident members of the House Armed Services Committee charged Saturday that a pending $20.2 billion military bill contained everything from a $200 million "stush fund" for Lockheed Corp. to seed money for a multi-billion dollar bomber fiasco.

The accusation was made by Reps. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., Lucian Nedzi, D-Mich., and Charles Whalen, R-Ohio. It was included in a free-writing minority report on the annual weapons procurement authorization cleared by the committee and scheduled for House action Wednesday.

The final total, including additions as well as deletions, was only $34 million below the administration request, but the dissidents promised efforts on the floor Wednesday to knock out another $1.4 billion. Amendments would be offered to eliminate:

$200 million the Pentagon is seeking to cover "contingencies" arising from the financially tangled and controversial C5A cargo plane.

The three lawmakers said they weren't objecting to the $344.4 million to pay for cost overruns already identified, but they considered the $200 million "a slush fund for Lockheed, the producer, to take care of extra costs which the Air Force stoutly maintains are not the Air Force's responsibility."

$665 million destined for further spending on the one Safeguard antiballistic missile site authorized last year, procurement of materials for two more and a start on land for still another five. Left in the bill would be $65 million for continued research and development.

$100 million for research and development on a new strategic heavy bomber known as the B1. The Air Force has told the committee that approval would authorize it to contract for five prototypes of the new plane at a

Various Culprits Blamed In Mishap

By EDWARD K. DELONG
UPI Space Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Possible culprits behind the Apollo 13 oxygen tank explosion include combustion, mechanical failure of the fan motor or the fan in the tank, and electrical short circuits.

Heat plays a factor in the each. After four days of probing into the cause that aborted the third U.S. lunar landing flight on the way to the moon, accident review board Chairman Edgar M. Cortright said Friday these areas were under "close examination."

He said his board has neither limited itself to these possible causes, however, nor eliminated anything as a potential cause. And he gave no indication that any one area was believed the most likely reason for the blast that endangered the lives of three astronauts.

"We're getting into the problem in some depth," Cortright told newsmen in his first meeting with them since his board started work.

"We've been going through that period when everyone who starts to look at the data immediately invents his own explanation and then has to discard it the next day. But I think we're almost through that."

Data was about all anyone had to go on. Apollo 13's crew jettisoned the part of their craft ripped by the explosion just before they re-entered earth's atmosphere.

Cortright's review board, divided into specialty areas, monitors the accident investigation and simulation being performed by more than 100 engineers under the direction of Apollo spacecraft chief James A. McDivitt. From this work and its own probes, the board must determine what went wrong and how to keep it from happening again.

Methodists Back Funds To Blacks

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—The General Conference of the United Methodist Church Friday rejected a resolution which would have prohibited the denomination from giving funds to militant groups.

The conference's final session was stalled in lengthy debate on the question of giving money for Negroes.

The Black Methodists for Church Renewal had asked for $21.6 million, and the Council on World Service Finance indicated that at least $10.5 million would be available. The money would be distributed by the Commission on Religion and Race.

Douglas Debate Still Unsettled

By ROBERT J. TAYLOR
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Although House liberals have won the first round of the impeachment fight shaping up over Justice William O. Douglas, the contest is far from settled.

The jurist of 71 years on the high bench still could find himself the defendant in a Senate trial. Both Douglas' adversaries and advocates are treading warily, this being an election year. Political necessity is likely to play at least as large a role in impeachment proceedings as the presence or lack of evidence of misconduct.

House Democratic leaders succeeded last week in placing the impeachment investigation sought by 112 mostly conservative congressmen in a forum considered favorable to Douglas, a special subcommittee on the House Judiciary Committee.

In exchange, the two key

U.S. Eyes Satellite Attackers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Force says the United States has a "very limited capability" of intercepting satellites, but could develop a satellite attack program for about $300 million.

In highly censored congressional testimony, made public this week, Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans Jr. said the United States is "studying the possible use of either Minuteman or Safeguard (missiles) for antisatellite purposes."

But Seamans said he was not recommending a satellite interception program "at this time." During the testimony before the House Appropriations Committee, Seamans said, "This is another area that we are watching very closely; namely the possibility of satellite negation or interception. We have a very limited capability ourselves..."

Seamans said that since the United States can send men to the moon, orbit, rendezvous and dock, that it would be possible to develop an anti-satellite program.

members of the five-man investigating panel — Reps. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., the chairman, and William M. McCulloch, R-Ohio, the ranking minority member, had to promise a full, fair and swift examination of the misconduct allegations, leveled last week by House OOP Leader Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich.

'Train' Of Mao Keeps On Tracks

TOKYO (UPI)—Right thinking keeps the record-breaking "Mao Tse-Tung locomotive" on the track and its frugal crew bent to its task.

Peking's New China News Agency in a broadcast heard here Friday, said the coal-burning locomotive was named for Chairman Mao 24 years ago and has since run the rails for more than 1.2 million miles.

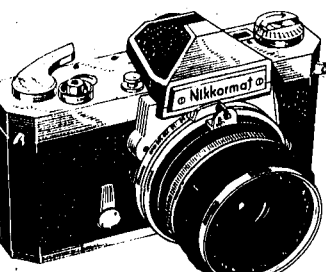

"Guided by Mao Tse-Tung thought," according to Peking, the sturdy engine has "set an all-time record for freight in the annals of China's railways."

The crew is stoked and fired by Mao Think, the radio said. It recalled the time a fireman thought he needed a new shovel.

"Once, when a young newcomer suggested a worn-out shovel for stoking be thrown away and replaced by a new one, the acting chief of the crew, Kuo King-Fu, drew his attention to the long-preserved reminders of frugality and told him about the crew's glorious tradition of hard struggle," the broadcast said.

Weak Economy Cited In Riots

which subscribes to a principle of noninterference for its member states. Trinidad is an OAS member although it is in the British Commonwealth.

The disorders had their origin in the arrest and trial of a group of Trinidad students, apparently Black Power advocates, in Canada. The incident, remote as it was, ignited in long-simmering feeling among West Indians of African descent the political independence acquired in 1962, also means the end of the white man's role in the political and economic life of these islands.

Although the government of Trinidad and Tobago is in black hands, economic dominance is held by a minority of the population consisting of whites, Chinese, Lebanese and Syrians.

British and American economic interests in the islands also are a source of resentment to Black Power advocates, and the United States already has felt the sting of anti-Americanism in the current situation.

Washington dispatched arms and ammunition to the island. It said it received permission from Port-of-Spain to sail warships into Trinidad waters, and even land Marines on the island, to evacuate U.S. citizens if the situation should require it.

"This is strictly a precautionary measure for the protection of American citizens," the State and Defense Departments asserted. "We have no intention of involving ourselves in the internal affairs of Trinidad," said White House Press Secretary

Betty Bever Seeks GOP Bid For Solon

A race had developed Friday in the Legislative District 23, state representative nomination in the August primary election with the announcement by Mrs. Betty Bever, Twin Falls, as a candidate on the Republican ticket.

Market Review
Stock Prices Tumble
As Fear Grips Market

By HOWARD LUXENBERG
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Sellers tightened their grip on the stock market last week in the face of new economic uncertainty at home and the threat of an expanding war in Southeast Asia.

The "war" part, Fred Ansell, vice president of Shearson, Hamill & Co., said, "is that it's hard to imagine a news development that would change the market's trend over the near term."

This was just a sampling of the said commentary on Wall Street in a week when the Dow Jones industrial average suffered its second heaviest loss of the year.

The closely watched barometer of 30 selected blue chips plunged 28.65 to 747.29. During the week ended Jan. 30, the DJ surrendered 21.80 points to 745.09. Other leading market averages also were shaved.

The White House said it was "seriously concerned" about the presence of 40,000 North Vietnamese troops in Cambodia and still had under intensive consideration an urgent appeal for the Cambodian government for military assistance.

Among other items that plagued the investment community were a weaker bond market, a rise in some short term interest rates, disarranging with corporate earnings for the first quarter, a feeling that second quarter results may not be much better, and fear that the inflationary price spiral may be unstoppable.

The Labor Department reported a 0.5 per cent jump in the cost of living index in March. White House Secretary Ronald Ziegler said "it is not at a level we would like in the best of worlds."

Ziegler said this is representative of the fact "we still have work to do and we still are getting price increases higher than we want."

Herbert Stein, a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, said "unfortunately persistent inflation in the economy raises questions about how best to combat it."

A Wall Street analyst said the cost of living report suggests that Administration's attack on inflation has not been too successful and may discourage it from easing money further.

Inflation and draught credit have handcuffed the stock market for over a year.

Market analysts say the market was "totally arrested in the dismal quarterly earnings reports" while still another view was that many investors were "scared" off by events in Cambodia.

The UPI market indicator, measuring all stocks traded, advanced 0.2 to 82.75, while the New York Stock Exchange index mirrored a loss of $1.76 to $53.51 in the average common share price.

Added Comment Given
On Rupert Drug Action

Editor, Times-News:
I have been following with a great deal of interest the comments both pro and con regarding the sentencing of Rupert youths on drug charges. A letter written by Mary Lynn Burkhardt which appeared in your paper April 19 has prompted me to write.

Of particular interest to me was Miss Burkhardt's statement, "...neither can I condone the vindictive, unreasoning sentence put upon four teenagers who could be actually helped in conditions other than a penitentiary."

First of all, I would like to know why Miss Burkhardt feels that the sentences were so unfair: It is my opinion that those engaged in the selling and distribution of narcotics have sunk to the lowest possible level, for their profits depend on the misery and despair of others. How many lives have been damaged or destroyed by the drug pusher may never be established.

I fully support the sentences handed down in Rupert. Secondly, we tend to forget that our penal system is designed primarily to remove from society those persons who have a total disregard for the rights of others. This does not mean that it is our prison should resemble torture chambers, but neither should they be the equivalent to a Sunday school picnic. Granted, certain prison reforms are needed, but true justice demands certain protections for the innocent as well.

The increasing leniency with which we deal with law offenders has been closely paralleled by an increase in crime and criminal activity. I think that there is ample evidence that leniency in law enforcement has failed. Perhaps a return to strict, but fair, law enforcement is in order.

What it all boils down to is this: these youngsters are old enough to know what they are doing. By the same token they are old enough to be held accountable for their actions.

NFO In Forum Letter

Editor, Times-News:
We would like to reply to the letter which appeared in most newspapers throughout the state recently, taken out of context by Dale Rockwood, President of the Idaho Farm Bureau. Mr. Rockwood says that the NFO in the current holding action is trying to establish a nationwide price of $3.50 per cwt. for potatoes thus putting Idaho on a price basis with other states, and if NFO is successful in doing this it could reduce Idaho potato growers' income by millions of dollars; and many farmers would not be able to compete with these other states, and thus many growers could be forced out of the potato business.

We have always been of the opinion that the Farm Bureau was a national organization, and as such should be interested in the welfare of all potato growers regardless of the state they live in. Mr. Rockwood speaks of farm as though they should be different, but the grower if they were to receive the same price for their potatoes. It costs money to grow potatoes regardless of which state you reside in and surprisingly enough the cost of production is practically the same nationwide. With each state having different situations to contend with. Shouldn't every farmer be entitled to a profit for his potatoes regardless of where he lives and farms?

Mr. Rockwood is concerned about the price advantage that Idaho has over other states because of the superior quality of Idaho potatoes. If Idaho potatoes are the best on the market the price advantage will still be there. People buy what they like. Wouldn't it be better for every grower to be making a profit, and Idaho growers a little more profit for their superior potatoes than other growers go broke because of cheap prices?

Mr. Rockwood talks about the millions of dollars that Idaho could lose by selling for $3.50 per cwt. if other states get the same and nary a word about what we stand to lose right now. He says that we are being offered. We would like to see Rockwood that our chances and every other potato grower's chances of staying in the potato business will be much better at $3.50 cwt. (with all other states receiving the same) than they are right now with the low price being offered. The $3.50 of course is a basic price to be revised upward as our costs increase.

We can see nothing wrong with having a good image but how many bills can you pay with it? Would Farm Bureau accept bills in payment? How do their insurance policies? How do you think Gov. Samuelson would like to try paying his bills with Idaho's potato image? He would be singing a different tune quick.

This so-called farm organization is still trying to turn us back to sleep with this kind of talk and leadership. Those who follow blindly will still fall for the same old baloney being put out by the Farm Bureau, but the thinking farmer and his wife have refused to be duped any longer.

The old game of pitting one farmer against another is past. We are dedicated to being a farmer get out of production plus a fair profit, not just the Idaho potato grower at the expense of potato growers in other states. If rural America is to remain as a place where we can live, work, go to the church and school, and take our children how to work, and the value of having work to do there is going to have to be a profit in farming for every farmer and it's going to have to be right now, not next year or the year after that.

NFO is working towards this goal with the Farm Bureau continuing to brag about their great numbers of legislative influence; and how they have been bargaining for the farmers those many years. It hasn't been five years since collective bargaining was a dirty word to the Farm Bureau, and now they would like to make you believe that they started it and it has been their program right along.

Mr. Rockwood states that the Farm Bureau bargained for some $250,000,000.00 in 30 commodities for their members in 1950. 1,800 members divided into $250 million makes a little over $134.00 per member. Some bargaining — everyone must have had a buck yard garden.

Their kind of bragging, thinking, legislative influence and bargaining we can do without.

Legal Problems About Pollution Mentioned

Forum letters must be concerned with topics of general interest and must be of a reasonable length.

The editors of the Times-News reserve the right to refuse publication if, in their opinion, the subject matter is of a libelous nature, is not in good taste or is repetitious and has previously been thoroughly covered in the forum.

All letters must bear the signature and address of the writer. The name of the writer will appear when published unless there is a personal request that it be withheld and the reason for such a request stated. This request will then be published by the editors and it will either be granted or the letter will be returned to the writer.

However, even as we settle back into the overstuffed chairs of our self-assurance, our magnificent state is being ravaged by the negligence of industry as well as individuals. In our immediate area all one needs to do to validate this claim is to look toward the south on a clear day and notice the abundant smoke screen which is created by a local factory during its active month of the year. Or, to further convince the disbeliefing, one should examine Rock Creek and the Snake River, both of which have become almost unbearable.

Throughout the state, similar neglect is continuing, unchecked, in much greater scale than most of us are aware. The smoke-belching factories surrounding Pocatello are another excellent example of Idaho's industrial defilement, as is the Portneuf River in the same area which has recently been infested with infectious hepatitis.

The solution of the problem of pollution in Idaho is being hindered by legislative blockades which prevent effective control of pollution release. One-state law which concerns smoke release demands that before charges may be brought against the offender, the effluent being released into our atmosphere must be monitored for an extended period of time, encompassing an area which radiates 360 degrees around the point of contamination. When one considers the varying wind climatic conditions, it becomes apparent that for all practical purposes, it seems impossible to build a legal case against a company which is flagrantly contaminating our atmosphere.

The remedy to this problem lies with those who are directly affected, the residents of Idaho. Laws should not be changed by the residents and legislators of our state in order to preserve the grandeur of this land we value so highly. We must not allow the superior monetary power of industry to destroy one of the last relatively pollution free sanctuaries left on our continent.

Therefore, it is up to us whether our state will remain Idaho the beautiful or be converted into another cesspool of smog and pollution. Through orderly legislation and support of the residents, a vote end to our state's natural beauty can be averted.

Shoshone Reader Seeks
Changes In Education

Editor, Times-News:
What is the matter with our traditional public system? We have built the richest and the most powerful nation the world has ever known. We have the most advanced science, the best hospitals and doctors, the best leisure and the highest standard of living in the world.

We operate a "let-stay-and-we-are put on the moon and we have brought them back safely after a serious accident, which seems to me to be even a greater feat.

So I ask again — what can be very wrong with our traditional system of teaching the young and who are the people who want to change it?

We do need to upgrade our schools somewhat and we need to bring the poorer schools up to the standards of the good ones. It seems to me that two simple changes within the framework of the traditional system of teaching would improve our schools enormously and would not be very expensive.

We need to increase the salaries of superintendents and principals greatly to make a few positions in education really worth striving for. Then we need to start our first graders on the slow motion, but to promote the top one-third to the second grade. The slower two-thirds would go on to intermediate class that would review first-grade work and take some second-grade work. That way there would be no slumps in the hold back, but the slower two-thirds would go on to the second grade they should

Salesman Of Beer Takes Issue On Littering Note

Editor, Times-News:
As a beer salesman I must take exception to the letter that attempts to find a scapegoat for the slob in our society that strew their filth around the country. Objects do not litter, people litter.

In order to determine the extent of the litter picked up along highways, parks and so on a survey was conducted in 1969 by the National Research Council, which is part of the National Academy of Sciences. Twenty-nine states fully cooperated in this survey. The results of this survey disclosed that on a national average roadside litter was composed of 60 per cent paper items, 16 per cent metal cans of all types, bottles of all types, six per cent, and plastic items six per cent and others, 12 per cent.

Banning non-returnable containers has proven to be ineffective. The state of Vermont for three years banned non-returnable containers. At the end of this time, a high-level commission appointed by the governor of the state to study the litter problem in relation to the law reported that the bottle ban had no beneficial effect, what-so-ever. The ban was lifted.

The only conclusion is the simple one that we cannot blame our littered countryside on anyone but the people who throw the garbage. They must be stopped by education, law or any other way. In my opinion, law making a driver of a car responsible for the litter going from his car regardless of who throws it would be effective.

A fine reasonable enough so that a judge would impose it and everyone would be willing to turn in violators.

be able to compete with the quicker group. They would go on together to the sixth grade, where the same thing would occur again. The top one-third would go to junior high and the slower two-thirds would get an extra year of preparation.

These two steps would not be very expensive and I believe would give our schools the improvement and prestige that they need.

Park Service Plan Calls For Total Ban On Autos In Beautiful Yosemite Valley

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Prior to 1913 any automobile found in Yosemite National Park was impounded and chained to a tree.

Since then the automobile has become king here, as it has throughout most of the rest of these affluent United States. But its noisy, congestive, smog-producing reign may be nearing an end.

A park service plan now under consideration calls for a total ban on private vehicles in the park's main tourist attraction—beautiful Yosemite Valley itself.

where man is supposed to be able to get away from the frustrations of urbanization and see nature in the raw.

A tourist from New York City remarked several years ago that parts of Yosemite Valley reminded him of Broadway and 4th Street.

Since then the problem has become even more acute as more and more visitors pile in to see the wonders of this glacier-carved valley with its sparkling waterfalls showering down from the tops of mountains cut in half by the ice age.

But people themselves are not the problem, says park service planner Ronald Mortimore, so long as they leave their cars behind.

"We feel we can handle many more people in the valley and give them a much better experience by removing their cars," he said.

The bold plan, which is one of several under consideration to end congestion throughout the park, calls for visitors to leave their cars at a staging area at Big Meadow, inside the park but several miles west of the mouth of the canyon-like valley.

They then would take a 20-minute ride on an inexpensive transit system into the valley where they could hike, bicycle or take train tours.

Present camping facilities would remain for those who wished to bring their gear with them.

The kind of transit system to be used has not been determined but Mortimore said it probably would be a rail system.

Park information officer Larry Quist emphasized that the auto ban is a long way off—probably 10 years—and is not yet a certainty. The plan comes up for a public review soon.

Mortimore said that, as of now, there is no meaningful cost estimate for such a project.

But the fact remains that something must be done to cut down on the ever increasing number of vehicles which choke the roads circulating through the 10-mile square valley.

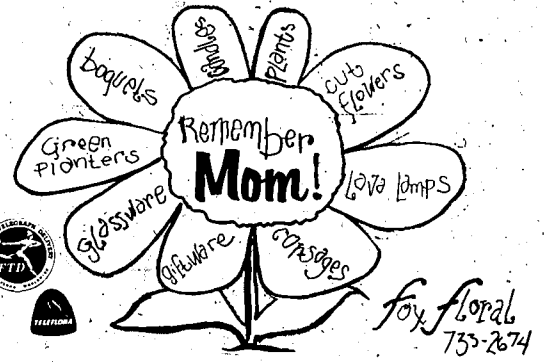

There were an estimated 20,000 vehicles in the area during the three-day Memorial Day weekend last year.

Last summer this reporter waited nearly 20 minutes to walk across a traffic clogged two-lane highway near the center of the valley.

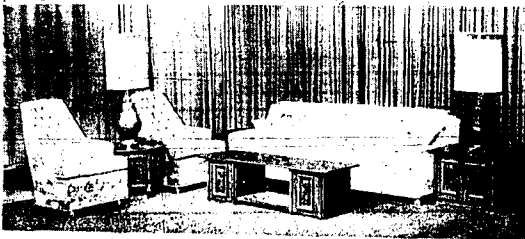

LITTER CRACKDOWN

VICTORIA, B.C. (UPI)—A new anti-litter bill believed to be the toughest in Canada has been introduced in the British Columbia legislature by Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

The bill, if passed, would require all manufacturers of beer and soft drinks to make a two-cent refund on cans, bottles and other containers.

Genealogy Library Gets Gift Volume

BURLEY — Morris Mitchell, executive secretary of the Burley Genealogical Library, was recently presented a gift copy of "Early Cassia County Marriages," by Mr. and Mrs. Ezra E. (Bud) Davidson who have prepared the volume.

The volume will be placed on the shelves at the Genealogical Library, Mitchell said.

Mr. and Mrs. Davidson reported their information for the volume was taken from the two earliest marriage records in the county. Other copies of the volume are available from the Davidsons and price are earmarked for the Burley LDS Fourth Ward Building Fund.

Mitchell reported that a staff of 40 volunteers assist with the work at the Burley Genealogical Library which is the repository of some 2,000 books and 7,500 microfilm for genealogical research. All members of the staff are research specialists.

Special evenings are set aside for specific area research with Tuesdays devoted to England and - Wales; Wednesdays, Denmark and Scandinavia; and Fridays dealing with America.

The Genealogical Library is open to the public from 1 to 9:45 p. m. Monday through Friday and 1 to 7 p. m. Saturday and is located in the basement of the LDS Seminary at 14th Street and Hansen Ave., Burley.

Indian Plight Told At State League Meet

America's only real natives—the Indian—have been cruelly cut by the "cookie cutter of conformity" which insists on running a "factory of assimilation."

Poignant examples of how this mania for conformity hurts Indians were given by Ferry Swisher, Pocatello, at a banquet Friday night at the 10th biennial council meeting of the League of Women Voters of Idaho. The state convalesce closed Saturday noon.

The former newspaper man and the state legislator gave a philosophical setting to his remarks which dealt with his association with Ft. Hall Indians through his present position with Idaho State University Special Services.

Noting that while under our Judeo-Christian tradition "we preach belief in individuals and the right to be different, in reality, we run a factory of assimilation which is dehumanizing to minority groups and violates the principles of our founding fathers."

As an example he told of a 5-year-old Indian boy whose mother had to cut his long, lovingly cared for braids before he could enter school. To him, it meant the end of his identification as a child of his family.

Mr. Swisher, who ran for governor four years ago as an independent candidate, urged the inclusion of minority groups into the mainstream of politics and groups such as the League, now run completely by white, middle class Establishment, he asserted.

He also urged Legislators to promote the adoption of the states proposed new constitution to others outside the Establishment.

William J. Lanting, speaker of the Idaho House of Representatives and a legislator from District 24, Twin Falls, told League members at a luncheon meeting Friday to be politically effective means hard work in the ranks of a political party.

Mr. Lanting praised the League of Women Voters for their "non-partisan" activities, but said citizens must be partisan and must become a part of their favorite political party, and be willing to ring doorbells, pass out literature and do the other work required in any party headquarters.

The difference between the speaker and the politicians, he pointed out, is politics is the election of those who will be elected.

with committees being formed from the membership as a whole rather than confined to board members.

Mrs. Clifford Dobler, Moscow, president of the Idaho League, conducted the two-day convention in the Holiday Inn. Other Friday topics included special districts projects discussed by Mrs. Robert Hosack, Moscow, and constitutional revision by Mrs. Robert Nelson, Twin Falls.

Rampton Barlow, state representative, Pocatello, joined Mrs. Robert Hay and Mrs. Osborne Head, League members in a panel discussion Friday afternoon on financing education and present educational programs of Idaho schools.

Karen Maskarinec, Idaho Falls, Idaho's delegate to the national youth conference of the League of Women Voters was introduced and provided musical entertainment for the Friday luncheon.

Minidoka Students To Study Outdoors On May Field Trip

RUPERT — About 1,000 Minidoka County sixth grade students will again have the opportunity of seeing conservation in action this year, according to Lanny Wilson, coordinator.

Mr. Wilson said the students will attend a two-day course at Howell Canyon May 12 under the direction of seven area departments. This is the third year of the project, which involves students from both counties, Cassia students attend in the mornings and Minidoka County students attend afternoons.

Also having filed is William Mallery, an existing trustee in Halley.

"I think a mother is in closer touch with the problems of the schools and is more directly involved in the educational process of children," she said, adding, "I don't claim to have all the answers to the many challenges facing our schools, but I have the capacity to learn and the willingness to listen."

Mrs. Kneeland is the mother of four children, one of whom attends the Ernest Hemingway Memorial School. She is also chairman of the Ketchum-Sun Valley Community Library Association and president of the Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation.

Mrs. Kneeland is also a member of the Sun Valley Ski Club Board of Governors, director of the Hemingway School Committee, and a member of the Sun Valley Hospital Auxiliary.

Twin Falls Wins ISU Relays; Robertson, Miller Vault 14 Feet

POCATELLO — The undefeated Twin Falls track team, becoming the first school in state history to put two men over 14 feet in the pole vault in the same meet, won the double A division of the intermountain relays Saturday afternoon.

The Bruins piled up 70 points to defeat Highland at 62, Idaho Falls 48, Skyline 29 and Intermountain School of Brigham City, Utah, 8. Junior Bill Miller and senior Jack Robertson shared the pole vault title at 14 feet with Robertson getting his maiden voyage over that height.

Twin Falls' chances appeared a little dim early in the day when Highland went one-two in the high jump and took eight points out of the high hurdles with three of the five hurdlers showing up coming from the Pocatello school. Skyline of Idaho Falls won the 400 and 800-yard relay quartet of Mark Miller, Allen Howe, Rocky Reece and John Turner won in 1:32.9, although Skyline was disqualified out of first spot.

ISU Dominates Relays To Take Track Crown

POCATELLO (UPI) — Idaho State won five of six relays Saturday to take the first annual Intermountain Relay college division in a close dual with the University of Utah.

ISU scored 72 points to the Utah 16. Other teams were Utah State with 48, Weber State with 42, Montana State with 35, Brigham Young University, which entered a partial team, with 23, Boise State College with 18, and Rice College with six.

Other winners were Utah State in the four-mile team race, while Gary Desires ran a 4:17.7 mile. Tom Hedford of BYU took a 14.9 clocking in the 120 yard high hurdles and Curt Dudnick of Utah won the discus with the best throw of 166.3.

Five Drake Relay Marks Bettered

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Ray McGill, Kansas State high jumper, reversed a personal string of bad luck Saturday at the Drake relays, setting one of five records established under sunny skies and 78-degree temperatures before a crowd of 17,500.

McGill out-duelled Brigham Young's Ken Lundmark and broke the old record of 6-10 1-2 with a leap of 7 feet, one inch. Lundmark went "out" after clearing 7-0.

Getting the other Twin Falls points were Greener with a second spot in the discus and Keegan with fifth in the shotput.

ISU Handicapped by the World's Eight-ranked Quarter Miler Larry Lewis, who is nursing a pulled Achilles tendon and may be out for the rest of the season.

Although Lewis was expected to anchor the 400, 800 and mile relays, ISU won them anyway. ISU's winning times were 4:16 in the 400 relay, 1:35.1 in the 800 relay, and 0:26.5 in the distance medley relay.

Other marks that fell were set by Alti Alarout of Brigham Young in the pole vault, 16-6 3/4; Jerome Liebenberg of Western Michigan in the 3,000-meter steeplechase, 8:54.6; and Bruce Mortenson of the Twin Cities Track Club in the Marathon, 2 hours, 33 minutes, 27 seconds.

But the qualifying that will be done should turn the SIC meet into one of the best in the state's history. The whole thing shouldn't take more than an hour and one-half and at least 10 state champions will be included in the program.

Knicks' Title Hopes Ride On Recovery Of Reed's Shoulder

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Knicks' hopes of satisfaction in their opening game victory over the Los Angeles Lakers in the National Basketball Association championship playoffs turned to deep concern Saturday over the condition of Willis Reed, the NBA's most valuable player.

Reed, the Knicks' 6-foot-10 center, scored 37 points and grabbed off 16 rebounds Friday night to lead New York to a 124-122 triumph over the Lakers. But in the process, he injured his left shoulder and is undergoing treatment prior to Monday night's second game at Madison Square Garden.

going to feel Monday night yet," said Reed, a left-handed shooter. "I'm going to have some heat treatment on it and I hope it responds."

The banquet, which will honor basketball, tennis, golf and wrestling team members, is set for 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Turf Club.

Reed was the key in the Knicks' first game victory. With Walt Chamberlain's mobility impaired by a knee injury, Reed, a former forward in his first two seasons in the NBA, drifted to the outside and connected on long jump shots over Chamberlain, who was forced to remain under the basket.

"That man (Reed) is a great basketball player," said Chamberlain following the game. "But he's got a lot of help. We were all pretty tired, at least I know I was. I can't play 48 minutes. They just keep sending guys in. You help on one guy and another hits a 15-footer. You stop that guy and somebody else comes off the bench to hit one."

Solution To Little Problems Could Mean Big Returns For Inventors

Not all inventors can strike it rich by coming up with something like the "horseless carriage" or "flying machine". But if it were not for the inventive minds of citizens like Del Butterfield, Twin Falls, housewives and wage earners would continue to live with many little inconveniences and difficulties.

Currently, the local inventor has three new ideas he has put into reality and has obtained patents or patent pending status for them. One is a small household gadget he calls the Sanitary Closet Vacuum. It takes little imagination to know some of the comments he has received when explaining his invention to friends and associates. Undoubtedly, he believes it has great possibilities and may become a standard item in modern homes in the immediate future.

The innovation consists of a small vacuum head which attaches to a standard toilet bowl rim and completely eliminates all bathroom odors. A control box and vacuum hose can be hidden behind the wall and the force of the vacuum is so mild it cannot be detected. It can be operated either by push button or by an electric eye which can be left in operation to automatically turn the vacuum on or off as an individual breaks the beam by entering the room and sitting down.

Just what kind of promotional material the advertising agency handling the account for such an item would use is yet to be reckoned with, but Mr. Butterfield says this is not his problem, he simply handles the inventing.

Another of Mr. Butterfield's inventions is his own answer to solar heating. He has also invented what he feels is the solution to the high cost of maintenance and repair of submersible water pumps.

For about 12 years, Mr. and Mrs. Butterfield used solar heat as a supplement to the regular heating system of their home in Twin Falls.

In nearly all cases, Mr. Butterfield said, solar heat must be used in this capacity because of the problem of long time storage. Great savings in fuel costs can be obtained, however, by using solar units during sunlight hours. Solar heat itself can be enjoyed at a cost of about two and three-quarters cents per day. This rate used during most of the day can go a long way in reducing natural gas, electricity, oil and coal bills. In addition, it is much more healthful. Like coal, the heat is very even, but it is 100 per cent clean and in fact, is almost germ free. With electric heat, Mr. Butterfield said, there is very little circulation and air is heated over and over again. With solar forced air and hot water heat, the air is changed every few minutes in the room and is subjected to infra red and ultra violet rays which kill germs and virus, helping keep down the spread of colds and other illnesses.

In his solar heating system, Mr. Butterfield uses plastic absorption plates instead of copper or other costly metals. A heat storage tank located in the basement of the home can extend the period of time the solar heat can be used on a cloudy day or after dark. It would cost about $150 to install the system originally under Mr. Butterfield's design and from then on the home owner needs only set back and save money. Many solar heating systems have been designed and many are in use, especially in Europe, the inventor says. Maintenance, once the installation is complete, is almost nil, consisting largely of keeping the glass covering clean.

What may revolutionize the submersible pump industry is one of Mr. Butterfield's latest inventions. In order to pull an electric pump for repair or regular maintenance, several men and heavy equipment are needed. Part of the problem is the weight and suction of the water in the well causing above the pump. Many companies have attempted to develop a valve that would correct this but have not solved the problem.

With the use of plastic hoses instead of metal pipes, the weight is greatly lessened. Mr. Butterfield has also developed a mechanism which allows the water to flow back below the pump and to also control air pressure making it easy for one man to raise the pump in a matter of a few minutes. The system is adaptable to any well in 100 horse power motor, on domestic or irrigation wells.

Mr. Butterfield has been inventing things as long as he

SIMPLE SOLUTIONS to annoying little problems around the house often represent the greatest inventions. Here Del Butterfield, Twin Falls, displays the Sanitary Closet Vacuum. The equipment, guaranteed to eliminate bathroom odors includes the vacuum attachment held in Mr. Butterfield's right hand and the equipment box in the background. In his left hand is the electric eye which automatically operates the vacuum.

INVENTING IS SERIOUS business, Butterfield who has already obtained patents and patent pending status for three inventions. Research into possible other inventions of the same type takes long hours and intricate plans must be prepared for patenting. Here Del can remember. In 1945 he worked as a civilian in a radar laboratory and assisted in developing storage units for electronic computers for planes and ships.

Since then he has joined other patriotic citizens in donating ideas, time and effort to perfect the missile program and other defense systems. For his efforts he has been awarded a certificate of appreciation from the American Ordnance Association, Washington, D. C., for his help to the nation in industrial preparedness.

Getting an invention on the market is a complicated process. Mr. Butterfield is president of Butterfield Inventive Research Inc., a corporation which also includes Mrs. Butterfield and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Brent as officers.

"The first step in obtaining a patent, Mr. Butterfield says, is to file a proof of patent. A good patent attorney is not easy to find as there is only one in the area of Idaho, Montana and eastern Oregon, the local inventor says. Proof of patent will protect the inventor for up to a year from duplication by other inventors. Approximately 8,000 new inventions per month go on record at the U.S. Patent office in Washington, D. C., Mr.

Butterfield says, and in many cases it is the person who obtains the patent first who realizes the benefit. Many times an inventor who does not do sufficient research, and sometimes through no fault of his own, will work years on an idea only to find someone else has already had it patented.

About 60 per cent of the inventions patented each year are invented by women and most involve a new idea for the kitchen or elsewhere in the home to streamline housework.

REPORT WITHHELD
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has told the U.S. Information Agency (USIA) that its withholding of national opinion polls it considers "sensitive" would be "unethical and uncalled for."

USIA Director Frank Shookspere had refused Fulbright's suggestion that the polls be released. Shookspere said disclosure would give a distorted picture to someone not familiar with the entire operation and "would seriously compromise national security."

Kupert Passes Ordinance On Litter From Beer Drinking

RUPERT — A step towards cleaning up Rupert city streets, has been taken by the city council, which this week passed Ordinance 497 concerning consumption of beer on city streets or sidewalks.

The ordinance was instigated by councilman Bill Whitton, after an incident involving a city policeman and a "beer drinking" stranger. The stranger reportedly asked the policeman to "hold his can of beer while he looked for his identification."

Whitton, who is committerman over streets and garbage, took several personal tours of various city areas and noted that a large percent of litter, especially around the city square, is composed of beer cans and bottles, some broken. He noted that these items are almost impossible for the Commercial city sweeper to clean up because they roll in front of the unit instead of getting picked up.

The ordinance makes it unlawful for having an open beer container in a parked vehicle, because Whitton said the drinker usually opens the car door and discards containers near the curb.

He noted the state regulates liquor, but it is up to cities to pass ordinances controlling consumption of beer.

Whitton said this ordinance won't affect picnics or outings in the city or city parks, with the exception of the city square.

Whitton maintains that these public locations are not the proper place for consumption. He rapped persons seen carrying beer containers in the vicinity of the theater and civic building, "which is a gathering place for your youth."

"Our youth is our greatest industry and it's high time we segregate our youth from this type environment", he said. Whitton serves as scoutmaster at the Idaho Youth Ranch.

Wendell Students Exploring New Versions Of Art

By MYRTLE SCHRENK
Times-News Correspondent
WENDELL — Very few junior high school students have the opportunity to learn pottery making, wood carving, copper and leather work, all in the same year and on an elective basis.

With new do-it-yourself trends now in the lime light, the Wendell school system has gone modern. Through the arts and crafts class taught by John Parke, the students are turning out ceramics, pottery, picture frames and many other useful items and at the same time learning an artistic new talent. Popularity of the class is attested to by the fact about 40 per cent of the enrollment or 53 students participate from seventh and eighth grades.

Beginning at the opening of the first semester, the class takes students through numerous types of art work. They have already completed projects in copper, leather tooling, paper mache, plaster of paris, wood carving and picture framing.

Currently they are making pottery. Clay has been obtained from Aldrich and Di Bowler of the Snake River Pottery Co., Hagerman. Not only are they learning how to make pottery but they have had to improvise their own equipment.

A potter's wheel now in use in the class was a one-half horse power motor taken from an old B27 bomber and purchased by the students from a surplus store. The students assembled the two wheels and the school board authorized purchase of a portable kiln capable of firing pottery to 2,000 degrees F.H.

When not using the potter's wheels the students make pottery articles by the "pinch pot method." For this, they use lava rocks of various sizes and fit the bowls, cups and other articles on these by hand. After being shaped and fired, the pottery is glazed and fired again.

One of the more popular items the Wendell Junior High School students are making is the square cup for "squares."

Most of the items being made, whether they are tooth pick holders or salad bowls are suitable for home use.

Students spend about two weeks in each of the art mediums and in some may work as long as a month according to their degree of interest and proficiency.

Psychidetic art studies involved water coloring and wood carvings included the making of masks common in primitive art. Some of these, mounted on wooden blocks are on display in the school library.

School officials say they feel they are on the right track in current school trends. Gov. Don Samuelson has recommended the State Board of Education do everything within its means to promote this type of work for Idaho schools to encourage teachers and children to work with their hands and to acquire skills that will continue to benefit them as adults.

Stream Alteration, Pollution Deplete Idaho's Fish Life

By STACEY GEBHARDS
Fishery Management Supervisor

As the glaciers covering the mountains and valleys melted at the end of the Ice Age, drainage patterns of Idaho streams were formed. Evolution of streams has taken some 7,500 years of development. An inventory in 1966 revealed a total of 15,700 miles of fishing streams in Idaho. Why then, should sportsmen worry about their future?

Although streams comprise only 22 per cent of the available water area in the state, they support an estimated 56 per cent of the total fishing effort. A questionnaire on angler preferences sent out in 1968 showed about 65 per cent of Idaho's 370,000 anglers fished streams for trout and whitefish. Streams are vital for the perpetuation of salmon, steelhead, cutthroat, sturgeon, and other native fish species.

Demands for water are growing at a fast pace. The amount of water available to the nation is a fixed amount. Already the demand exceeds the supply in many areas and water has to be reused. By 1980, the average reuse of water will be six times. Diversion and impoundment of waters for irrigation, power, and flood control leave many Idaho stream channels "high ... and dry."

Idaho has had anti-pollution laws on the books for over 50 years. Yet hundreds of miles of Idaho streams are so badly degraded only carp and suckers can survive. During the ten-year period from 1960 through 1969, 1.5 million fish were killed by pollution in Idaho streams. In 1969, the loss of 250,000 fish in Milner Reservoir was the second largest recorded pollution kill in the entire United States for that year. Although Idaho never has achieved first place, the state has maintained a perfect record for pollution-caused fish kills every year since 1960.

While fish kills are the obvious indicators of water pollution, unseen to the casual observer are the deposits of organic sludge and bacteria which smothering stream bottoms. These are the environmental by-product of the nutrient wastes released into streams from food processing industries, domestic sewage and livestock feed yards. One of the most subtle and devastating forms of pollution originates from improper land use. Civilizations 8,000 years ago battled silt pollution. Siltation of stream channels drastically reduces the spawning and fish rearing capacity of a stream. Muddy water such as this interferes with recreation use. Silt pollution comes from many sources. These include overgrazed rangelands, logging roads and skid trails, construction activities, erosion on agricultural lands, and industry.

Dams and reservoirs have already flooded out 600 miles of streams in Idaho. Within the next 30 years, scheduled dam construction for power, flood control, and irrigation will eliminate 19 per cent of the state's present stream acreage. Few streams exist today which do not show some evidence of man's activities either on the watershed or in the stream itself. Man, in just a few hours with a bulldozer, can turn the evolutionary clock back 7,500 years.

No restrictions exist in Idaho to protect stream environments from this kind of abuse. This type of activity is being conducted by private individuals at their own expense or with federal subsidies, by cities and counties, by state and federal agencies.

Early in 1967, a fishery biologist was assigned to conduct a statewide survey with two objectives: (1) to inventory the extent of channel alterations in streams, and (2) to determine the effects of these alterations upon stream productivity.

Some 45 streams were chosen to provide a cross-section of conditions throughout the entire state. The occurrence of channel alterations was universal on all of the survey streams, averaging 1.2 alterations per mile with an average length of 1,935 feet. One stream, 20 miles in length, was 100 per cent altered. Others ranged from four to 89 per cent altered.

Over a two-year period, a total of 1,138 miles on 45 different streams were surveyed. Of this total, 434 miles of stream channels, or 38 per cent, had been physically altered. Over 60 per cent of the channel alterations were associated with road construction; 19 per cent with flood control; and 13 per cent with mining. Sampling with an electrical fish shocker in undisturbed

POTTERY IS "IN" at the Wendell Junior High School at the present time and students are learning the production of useful items for the home and school. From left, Mark Frances, Beth Arnold and Janice Chandler display some of their work in stream sections produced from 1 1/2 to 112 times more pounds of game fish compared with adjacent stream sections that had been physically altered. In some instances, the altered sections produced no fish whatever. Biological sampling on 29 different streams showed an average of eight times greater fish production from undisturbed stream sections.

In other words, any channel disturbance, on the average, will reduce the productivity of the affected area by over 87 per cent. How long is the productivity of a stream affected by these physical changes? Arenas on the Yankee Fork of the Salmon River, dredged mined 30 years ago, are still 97 per cent less productive than unfilled portions of the same stream. On the Portneuf River, a channel change associated with the building of the railroad in 1882 still remains 83 per cent below the productivity of an undisturbed channel after an 86-year recovery period.

Within the next 30 years, the numbers of fishermen nationally are predicted to be 2 1/2 times that experienced in 1960. Idaho waters will likely see even greater expansion in fishing pressure. An improved transportation and leisure time will bring more people to one of the last frontiers in outdoor recreation. Idaho can ill afford to allow the continued degradation and destruction of stream fisheries. The value of this resource will increase manifold in the years to come.

A LAPPFUL OF QUALITY is displayed by young Nancy Harkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Harkins, breeders of the wirehaired pointing griffon, an unusual hunting dog recently introduced into the Magic Valley. Miss Harkins holds two of a litter of six recently whelped by Auben Vom Neltagram, "Bennie" to her fond family.

PROUD OF HER TROPHIES is nine-month-old Heidi Link, a wirehaired pointing griffon who shows off her recently won awards with her owner, Peter Link of Hansen. Heidi recently captured three trophies at a California field-and-water trial, proving herself adept in retrieving birds from any locale.

rarity increases their value considerably. Thoroughbred blood lines can bring $150 to $200 per pup; Mr. Harkins tells of one breeder whose registered dog "Threw" 11 pups in her first litter and brought the breeder $2,200 at $200 per pup.

All in all, the griffon is a lot of fun to raise and to handle; they train easily and remember their orders with precision. Mr. Link's "Heidi" will follow any order without argument; she even seems proud of her trophies.

But "pretty" the griffon isn't. The "Gun Dog Supreme," a publication for breeders, declares that "There is one reservation. The griffon just isn't 'pretty.' He has been described as 'rustle,' 'handsome,' 'noble,' and even as 'lovely,' but never as 'pretty.'"

Sentence Commuted

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Gov. Preston Smith Thursday commuted the prison sentence of a Mission, Tex., man who escaped from jail 23 years ago and raised a family. Guadalupe Rivera was arrested in January and a routine check of fingerprints revealed he was an escaped prisoner. But friends, neighbors and the parole board asked that he not be sent back to jail.

Saturday, A Grocery Clerk—Monday A Star

On weekends, Judy McFarland, Ketchum, is often found checking out groceries in a Pocatello grocery store. Most other times she's an average Idaho State University coed.

But, when it's time for an ISU theatre production—she's a star. Judy made her ISU debut last summer in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" when she appeared as Honey—a naive and uncertain young wife. Since that time and in slightly more than three semesters and one summer, she has played ten roles ranging from a teen-age girl of modern times to one of Henry the Eighth's wives.

The young sophomore is gaining increasing applause with each new play production ISU offers. In addition, she is gaining backstage experience, is taking theater classes, keeping up with her general academic work and holding down that part time job as a grocery clerk.

Judy may sound like a busy young woman, and she is. She is also well traveled, having elected to go to Europe instead of college after she graduated from Wood River High School in 1967. Born in Nampa she attended school in many Idaho and Nevada communities as the family followed her father, King McFarland, a musician. When he moved to Sun Valley, she became a permanent resident and completed her high school in Wood River Valley.

Much of her enthusiasm about theatre was gained from a high school drama teacher, Sue Galligan, now known for her work with the Antique Theatre Festival.

During her year in Europe, Judy visited an Air Force family and lived in Germany and Spain. Returning to the United States she worked in Arizona and saved her money in

A CASUAL MISS, Judy enjoyed the modern roll of Star Spangled Girl, in which she had only to act naturally, order to enroll in ISU.

The young coed is willing to concede some of the modern theatre trends are "interesting," but for the most part she thinks they are a bit too "weird." Audience participation stunts do not appeal to her and as for nudity in the theatre, Judy says, "No, my upbringing is much too strict for that."

As for becoming a professional actress, she hasn't made that decision as yet but says she has one goal in mind. "I would like to be a pilot—it could make traveling so much easier," she says.

Hookup Cost Hiked At Rupert

RUPERT—Cost of electrical meter hookup has been raised from $15 to $25 by the Rupert city council.

A group representing the McCoal addition discussed problems concerning traffic, junk cars and garbage cans. It was noted this addition was developed without alley right-of-way and garbage is picked up from the front. Councilmen reduced the speed limit on South D Street and South C Street from 30 to 20 miles per hour.

Councilmen agreed to investigate an ordinance to control junk cars within the city limits.

Councilmen also: — Voted to post two-hour parking signs on Fremont Avenue and Sixth Street between F and G Streets between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. weekdays after Lamont Kulater, operator of the Blue Room requested parking control.

— Granted O'Dell McLane, fire chief, permission to attend an arson school next week in Salt Lake City.

— Authorized Jack Alexander Drilling Co. to proceed another 80 feet for the well in the Big Valley sub-division. His rig has hit lava rock at 500 feet.

Being Pretty Isn't All That Important

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Staff Writer
Shaggy-haired and ready for a romp—that's the wirehaired pointing griffon, an unusual lack-of-all-trades hunting dog recently introduced into the Magic Valley by two area breeders, Larry Harkins and Peter Link.

To dog-fanciers used to the sleek-haired, lean look of most hunters, the griffon is a surprise. Equally at home in the field or in retrieving birds from the water, the griffon is taking many prizes in field-and-water trials throughout the West.

Adult griffons are large, loose-limbed, rather ungainly appearing in their manners. They love to play and love to fetch, whether it's a ball or a bird.

But turn a trained griffon loose at a water hole, or around a lake or stream, and watch out! This ungainly seeming pet turns speedy retriever, leaping into the water with abandon and bringing back the bird undamaged.

The breed originated in Holland, and many of the blooded dogs which can trace their ancestry back carry Dutch names. Breeder Larry Harkins, east of Twin Falls, has three adult breeders, Mickey vom Friedrichthal, Auben vom Neltagram (called "Bennie by her family) and a recent Dutch import, Arapahoe of Windy Hill. "Bennie" was purchased by Mr. Harkins from another Idaho griffon breeder, Tomie LaFon of Mountain Home, who has also found the breed an interesting challenge.

"Some electric water heaters never quit"

"Our electric water heater was estimated to be 34 years-old," said Ronald Ivey of New Plymouth. "It was still working good as ever but not putting out enough hot water for modern living. So we replaced it with a quick-recovery. Some electric water heaters never quit."

Flameless electric water heating has no match for efficiency

Fast, clean, quiet and carefree, flameless electric water heaters are completely packed in insulation and wrapped in a cool, white shell. All of the heat goes into the water...not up a chimney nor into the room. They have no match for efficiency. See the new models at your electrical dealer's or plumber's. It's another among the many things electricity does best.

Pizza Prince Crowned By Hagerman High

IT TAKES A TOUCH of this — and a dash of that to make a pizza prince and here four Hagerman High School students prepare their pizzas to vie for the title of Hagerman High School

Pizza Prince for 1970. From left, Jeff Tupper rolls the dough with a rolling pin rather than using his fingers to press it into the pan; Greg Nickolas, flour smudged, presses dough to edge of pizza pan before adding filling; John Boyer, in a trim pretty pink apron with green trim, carefully watches the hamburger and onion he is browning to add to his pizza, and Kirk Strawser carefully adds fried hamburger which he topped with lots of cooked and crumbled bacon and grated cheese.

"IS IT DONE YET?" Leo Zimmers wonders as he checks his pizza during the recent Pizza Prince contest sponsored by the Hagerman

Chapter of Future Homemakers of America. Ten male students, all selected to represent their class or organization, participated in the contest.

Takes Originality With A Touch Of This And That

By WILMA LARSON
Times-News Correspondent

HAGERMAN — What Makes a Pizza Prince? Take one young man between 14 and 18 years-of-age. (Size makes no difference, but a roguish smile and pleasant disposition are an asset.)

Add an apron, several sizes too small. Surround with a kitchen equipped with a sink, a stove, and a cabinet stocked with all the ingredients for a king-size pizza.

Add a touch of "know-how" and a dash of originality. Surround with "oh-ing" and "ah-ing" girls of similar age and several "judges" looking on.

Pile on the compliments and praise (well earned, of course). Treat to a special dance. Serve up a throne, furnished with a crown.

That's a Pizza Prince!

Amid the flurry of classes, ten male students at Hagerman High School, all selected to represent their class or organization, took time out to compete for Pizza Prince of Hagerman High School for 1970 in the third annual Pizza Prince contest. After much long discussion, tasting and re-tasting, the judges pronounced Rick Bendorf, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Bendorf, and a senior, Pizza Prince.

Announcement of the winner was withheld until intermission of the dance held Friday evening in his honor, when the Pizza Prince was crowned with a huge chef's hat surrounded with a silver crown and presented a Pizza Pillow.

From the basic recipes and a little originality, came forth hamburger, sausage, Canadian bacon, shrimp, pepperoni, bacon and hamburger, and mushroom pizzas — all with one or two kinds of cheese.

The candidates were judged on organization, neatness in appearance and procedure, and cleaning up after themselves, while the pizzas which were proudly set before the judges were judged on appearance and taste. No stipulation was made as to whether or not they could use mixes if the pizzas had to be made from "scratch," so mixes were used by all except Leo Zimmers and Jeff Tupper.

Candidates were Rick Bendorf, senior class; Brett Titmus, Band; Jeff Tupper, student council; John Boyer, annual staff; Greg Nicholas, junior class; Leo Zimmers, FFA; Rick Madron, freshman class; Dean Batey, sophomore class; Kelley Behrens, H-Club, and Kirk Strawser, National Honor Society.

The Pizza Prince contest, a modernized version of the former Kookie King contest, is sponsored by the Hagerman Chapter of Future Homemakers of America. This year's contest was under the direction of Susan Brooks and JoAnn Berry.

"This is my first experience at anything like this. I didn't know what might happen," commented Mrs. Richard Hagerman, home economics instructor and FHA adviser, who is new to the Hagerman school system this year.

Mrs. Tom Gibson, Mrs. Alfred Sandy and Mrs. Glenn Patterson, chapter mothers, served as judges. As the last contestant removed his steaming pizza from the oven, Mrs. Sandy was heard to remark, "Please bring my sample to me — I'm too full to move."

"A junior class girl, sneaking in for a 'look and a taste," commented as she left the room, "He made that from 'scratch' and I can't make one that good from a mix."

And the Pizza Prince licked his lips and smiled.

HOLDING AN over-sized "pizza" pillow presented to him after he was crowned Pizza Prince for Hagerman High School is Rick Bendorf. Smaller versions of the pillow were presented to runner-up, John Boyer and Greg Nickolas. The pillows and chef-hat crown were made by FHA members.

TAKING CAKE OF the less glamorous part of cooking is Rick Bendorf as he waits for his pizza to finish baking. This year's contest, a modernized version of the school's former Kookie King contest, was under the direction of Susan Brooks and JoAnn Berry.

"THIS IS A DIFFICULT job, they are all good," commented the judges, from left, Mrs. Richard Hagerman, FHA chapter adviser, and Mrs. Tom Gibson, Mrs. Glenn Patterson and Mrs. Alfred Sandy, chapter mothers, as they sampled the pizzas. No stipulation was made as to whether or not the contestants could use mixes or if the pizzas had to be made from "scratch," so mixes were used by all except two students. The candidates were judged on organization, neatness in appearance, procedure and cleaning up after they were finished.

Timely Beauty Hint

If you are one of the many women with problem nails, famed beauty-fashion authority, Max Factor, suggests that you begin an immediate program of sensible care to regain their natural, strong and healthy state. Regular manicuring and an application of the newest fashion shades of UltraLuce Nail Color not only provide needed protection, but also enhance the beauty of the nails. Never cut or file away the innermost corners of the nail in an attempt to give it shape. This often results in hangnails and hard skin, as well as breaking or flaking fingernails. Take special care of the cuticle, as this is an important facet for healthy nail growth. Gently work around this sensitive area with a cotton-tipped orange stick. Where nails are brittle and weak, give them sturdy, added protection with special preparations, such as Fortify Instant Nail Conditioner and Fortify Instant Nail Mend which actually help to protect, strengthen and mend fragile, split and broken nails.

Social Events

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am turning to you with a situation which has gone on for years, but now it's become unbearable.

My mother's hobby is "junking." For years she's haunted thrift shops, stores where sales are going on, and also antique shops. She has found some items which she has restored and resold, which is fine, as it kept her busy and she's even made it pay.

Now the problem is this. She keeps bringing me stuff I cannot use and do not want. For instance, partial sets of dishes, beat up pots and pans, and today she brought me a hideous orange knit dress which was apparently somebody's first attempt at knitting.

My father tells me that she now goes to the grocery stores where sales are advertised and she lugs home large quantities of groceries. He says their basement is lined with 20-pound sacks of sugar. What would you do? Thanks.

EXHAUSTED

DEAR EXHAUSTED: I would get her to a doctor for a complete examination, after having alerted the doctor to what you've told me. Her behavior is symptomatic of a mental disturbance. And hurry, before her collection starts to collect rodents.

DEAR ABBY: Parents complain because their kids are bull-headed, won't listen, and refuse to profit from somebody else's experience. Well, here's a switcheroo for you. One of the parents died after a long and happy marriage, and the remaining parent is now getting himself into a mess like you wouldn't believe. It's sickening to watch. And nobody can tell him anything either. Kids at least have the excuse that they are young. But what's the parents' excuse? DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Second childhood, maybe? Or the same excuse the kids have—lack of experience.

DEAR ABBY: I am 49 and Henry (made up name) is 52. We've been married for 33 years.

A year ago Wilma, a friend and fellow worker of Henry's, lost her husband, so Henry has been driving a mite out of his way each morning and evening to take her to and from work. Wilma doesn't drive. She is well-groomed, attractive, always smiling and very friendly.

For some time now I have had the feeling that Henry has been enjoying Wilma's company too much. On his day off he seems restless and "hot," and is constantly thinking up excuses to go to her house (She has the same day off.)

When I ask him if there is anything between them he denies it, but he looks guilty.

She is 65, but looks much younger. How can I get him to forget her? Should I ignore it, or try to get to the bottom of it? JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: Ignore it, if she's 65, she should be retiring soon and the idea to and from work will cease. Out of sight, out of mind.

DEAR ABBY: The envy of every woman today are the women who have saved their dainty shoes of long ago. In summer, like bootleggers, we pass the word along when we find a store with a supply of toleas, sling pumps and slims, graceful heels.

There was a day when I drooled over all the pretty shoes to buy and my closet floors were wall to wall with them. No more. I merely "nailed" my one pair of "horse shoes" to the wall until the next day. JANE IN CHEYENNE

Beauty Matches Fashion

Beauty changes its face to match fashions in the '70s. Today's women look more feminine, fragile and delicate—fashion sends us the fragile message: soft fabrics, lots of knits, flowery prints. And beauty begins where fashion leaves off—with translucent skin, gently blushed cheeks, softly colored mouths and softly colored and shadowed eyes.

"White House Diary" Published

By HELEN THOMAS WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson was in town recently plugging his forthcoming memoirs.

But he seems to enjoy even more touting "Lady Bird's Book" to be called "White House Diary." The former first lady's opus may be on the stands by Christmas. If not then, spring at the latest.

"She had the book all written before she left the White House," says Johnson proudly. "The always disciplined first lady used a tape recorder faithfully during her White House years piling up a tome of 1,800,000 words. The big job is to boil the diary down to 300,000."

She quotes author William Faulkner on editing: "It's like cutting up one of my darlings."

Her diary is very personal and revealing. She has a poetic gift of expression and her guide has been the diary of Abigail Adams.

Those who saw her on her return to Washington say she has never looked better. She was relaxed and gay. Clearly she enjoyed her new freedom.

But she still finds the book a pressing burden. And when it goes to the printer, Mrs. Johnson says "It's hello world for me."

She wants to travel and fulfill parts of her life long neglected as she sublimated her own special interests in deference to her husband's political ambitions.

If she has any regrets about leaving her vaunted position, she does not show it. Quite the contrary, she and First Lady Pat Nixon hit it off again like old friends with special bonds.

The Johnsons obviously are going to be happy to have their own books out to rebut the prolific writings about the Johnson era by former members of the administration and of course the former president's brother Sam Houston Johnson who wrote the devastating "My Brother Lyndon." Johnson made it clear that his one-time faithful worshiper, George Reedy, also is persona non grata. Reedy wrote "The Twilight of the Presidency" and while not mentioning LBJ, it was clear he was often talking about the only president he ever served.

Johnson says he has not read the Reedy book and does not want to.

One author whose book was read and enjoyed by Johnson is Liz Carpenter, press secretary to the former first lady. The Johnsons turned out to help her hustle her book "Ruffles and Flourishes" when she toured the Texas hill country.

Minis Scarce At Fall Show In California

By KATHLEEN NEUMEYER LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The only minis seen at the fall fashion showings by California designers this week were destined for the movie screen and not for department store racks.

Buyers and the press were shown the short-skirted costumes created by Moss Mabray for Dyan Cannon and Rachel Roberts to wear in the forthcoming movie, "Dr.'s Wives."

They included a smart camel pant suit with flared pants and fitted jacket and a daring decollete white crepe jump suit cut nearly to the waist and laced partway up, to be worn by Miss Cannon.

Ernst Strauss showed two lengths for fall—neither baring the knee.

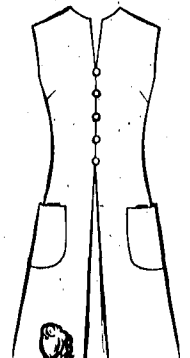

He cut his dresses off just below the knee but he dropped coats to mid-length and showed them over pants and over the shorter dresses.

Strauss showed short waist-length jackets with his daytime suits.

His pants were cut like Humphrey Bogart trousers with pleats in the front and high waistbands. He showed them with long belted jackets and with mid-length trench coats and long cardigan coats.

One evening costume combined a mustard colored shirtdress with belt just below the knee, worn under an ankle-length black and white tweed vest.

DISCUSSING MUSIC WEEK with Filer's mayor, Dan Kauffman, as he signs a proclamation proclaiming National Music Week to be observed May 3 through 10 is Mrs. Emil Bernardi, music teacher and Music Club member. Mrs. Bernardi displays a poster announcing Music Week in which clubs, churches and schools will participate to further music appreciation. The Magic Valley Music Clubs are affiliated with the National Federation of Music Clubs.

National Music Week Observance Set

FILER — National Music Week, May 3 through 10, will be observed in the Filer area with special emphasis on music in club programs, school assemblies and church services, according to Mrs. Emil Bernardi, Filer music teacher and member of the Twin Falls Music Club.

Mayor Dan Kauffman signed a proclamation at the Filer City Office proclaiming the week as one in which individuals and organizations should participate in a number of planned events featuring music.

National Music Week is sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs with this year's theme, "Music Brings Understanding." The object of the week will be to help create a greater understanding and appreciation of music in the home and community. Music is the language of all peoples and one of the greatest forces in creating peace and harmony.

Mrs. Maurice Honigman, president of the NFMFC, received a letter from President Richard Nixon commending the clubs for their observance and extending his best wishes for their continued success.

The President said, "In this age of sophisticated technology, music of all ages, tastes and cultures reaches with unerring precision the hearts and mind of all who seek it. It is the most powerful and persuasive international language. It furthers human understanding and fosters the kind of communication which leads to peace and progress among men and nations."

Looking For 25-Hour Day? Economist Gives Ideas

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI)—Memo to housewives: Faith Prior, home economist with the University of Vermont Extension Service, has some help for you if you're looking for a 25-hour day.

"There's no magic formula for saving time and energy," she advises. "You have to develop your own formula that works best for your home and family."

She's written a pamphlet, "What to do about housework," which contains a couple of quick hints:

—Question the job: Why do it? Who should do it? When and how well should it be done?

—Question setups: What's the best place to store needed equipment and is the equipment all it should be?

—Question work conditions: Am I dressed comfortably? Is the room warm or cool enough?

—Clutter: Have a central spot for unclaimed clutter, such as a chest, deep drawer or cupboard and as claimants appear, let him or her dig out the item. Words wander on childhood clutterbugs.

Economist Breaks Sharp With Experts

By GAY PAULEY UPI Women's Editor NEW YORK (UPI)—A London economist breaks sharply with all the financial experts who advise newlyweds to make saving money as much a part of the marriage ritual as the honeymoon.

Saving for a "rainy day" is not sensible in the early days of marriage. Start stashing away later.

The economist is Prof. Maurice Peston of the University of London. And what he does is outline a savings plan based on the fact that a husband's—and possibly the wife's—income will soar "astronomically" in the years ahead.

The economist explains, "If you are bound to be receiving higher real incomes in the course of time—these incomes being well above those required to maintain a minimum standard of living, let alone bare subsistence—it does not make sense to save excessively at the earliest stages of your earning life."

The economist points out that today's young marrieds have led all their lives in a period of rising incomes. Prices, of course, have risen too, eating into those increases.

But looking at the economy in Britain alone, he said that by the time "our married couple of today reach either 60's—say around the year 2009, incomes will have increased in money terms by 800 per cent, in real terms by 150 per cent.

Part of his projected increase is in the ever-growing trend of wives taking on paying jobs. If he continues, he says, "real incomes...will be higher still."

Peston discusses family budgeting in "Getting Married," published by the British Medical Association. The current issue is the 15th of this annual publication.

He makes a case for a savings plan as the years go by—especially if quite correctly, you do not regard social security and supplementary benefits (like pensions) sufficient. "It also makes sense to save for retirement," he continues.

Largest bell in the western hemisphere is the Howland weighing 10 1/2 tons, in the Rocketteller carillon, Riverside Church, New York.

Mrs. Eldredge Reviews Book

Mrs. Ben Eldredge reviewed "Airport" by Arthur Hailey during the April meeting of the LeLivre et La Plume Literary Arts Society at the home of Mrs. Gordon Cox.

"Among those aboard a mammoth jet as it takes off for Rome are its veteran captain, his stewardess sweetheart, a little old lady stow away, and a nervous man with a briefcase. Their interaction with one another produces events that make this a breath-taking story," Mrs. Eldredge noted.

The author's sketch was given by Mrs. Jess Summers, and the guided thought presented by Mrs. Labell Waldron. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Edgard Dutry, Mrs. Jerry Holman and Mrs. Ilay Moss.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Richard Rand; James Feehan, Portland, Ore., was best man, with Donald Hanna, Portland, and Richard Rand, Salem, Ore., as ushers.

On Nov. 9-10, 1968, seven states in the northeastern United States were struck suddenly by the greatest power failure in history. The World Almanac notes that about 30 million people, in an 80,000-square-mile area, were unexpectedly plunged into darkness. Amazingly, only two people died due to the calamity. New York City's power failed at 6:27 p.m., stranding thousands in subways and elevators.

FILER'S CLEAN-UP Week got a head start when Campfire Girls from two of Filer's units cleaned the rose bed on Yakima street. The Ki-Nun-Ka group and leader, Mrs. David Goodnight, and Wo-Ka-Ta group and leader, Mrs. William Zink, cleaned grass and leaves from the rosebed, also cleaned along the street. Afterwards the groups held a wicener roast at the fairgrounds.

Richfield Park Is Improved By Lions

RICHFIELD — Richfield Lions Club members continue to contribute much to the beautification and upkeep of Richfield's city park. Their clean up day saw most of the club members helping with cleanup at the park as well as other parts of the city.

Principal facilities at the park have been projects of the Lions Club. Two of these are the stone fireplace which has seen 20 years of use and the modern restrooms much appreciated by the many trailer tourists that use the park each year. Improved trailer parking area is another feature added for this year's enjoyment.

A row of trees was planted on the east side of the park during clean up week. Several large hazardous trees will be removed soon. Types of trees planted include Mountain Ash, pine and Blue Spruce.

Melvin Pope and Kale Ellis were in charge of the Lions' Club tree planting and clean up. Pick ups for hauling were donated by Lion's Club members and other community residents. Youth from the 4-H clubs and Boy Scout groups assisted with the clean-up.

Continued planting of trees is planned with a large number to be planted at the Richfield school grounds.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—My son, 5, had the habit of wiping his muddy hands on his shirt front while playing. This left stains and time-consuming pre-soaking before each wash. I finally had an idea which I proved to be a real clothes-saver. I run an old dish towel through the belt loop on his jeans or even over his belt. He thinks this is great since he has a towel like football players on which to wipe his hands. —MRS. J. R. L.

CAN'T WE GO BACK TO PRE-SOAKING?

DEAR POLLY—When making curtains or draperies always turn up the hem width twice to make a double hem. They look better and hang better and you have some extra material in case of shrinkage. —EMILY

Polly pays a dollar fee every idea used. Send them to her, care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—If you place a cake on a lace paper daily before icing it, put triangles of waxed paper just under the cake. Let them stick out enough at the edges so that they catch icing drips. When they are pulled away, the dolly is clean and fresh. —LORRAINE

MOM, HOW ABOUT BAKING A CAKE TO TRY THE LACE POLLY TRICK?

DEAR POLLY—My son in the service suggested that I use old nylon hose as fillers in any box I send to him. The men use the hose as polishing cloths. —M.

DEAR POLLY—Do not discard baby's silverware just because he has grown too large to use it. While saving it for the next child, use the spoon, fork or knife for serving condiments or appetizers such as relishes, jelly, cheese, olives, etc.—A MOMMY READER

DEAR POLLY—I find it a great help to keep a toilet bowl brush by the water faucet in the yard. It is always ready for washing waste baskets, garbage cans, garden tools and even muddy shoes and boots. —D. S.

DEAR POLLY—To save space when ironing clothes, I use a dog's choke chain instead of a clothes rack for hanging each garment as it is ironed. Hook one end of the chain on a nail, placed at the desired height, and hook the hangers in the links of the chain. —MARIANNE

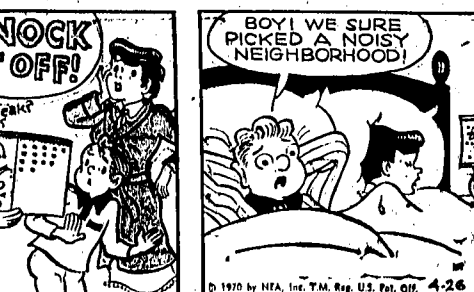

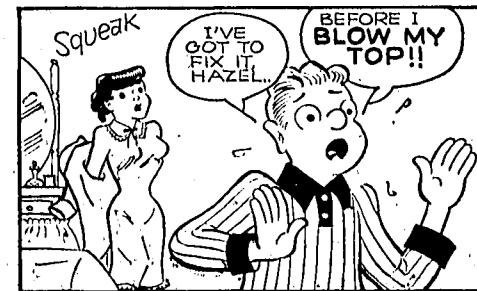

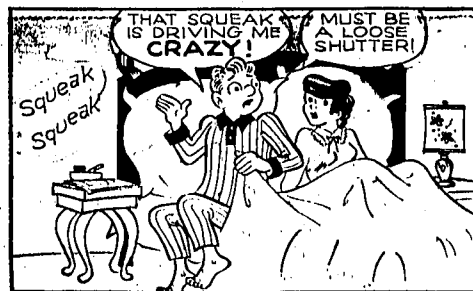

DEAR POLLY—No more spilled coffee when pouring it from its original can into a canister. Cut a triangular hole in a plastic cover saved from an emptied can, place on the full can and pour through the hole. —GERT

DEAR POLLY—There is no guessing in our family as to what some one person would like for a gift on any occasion because we each have a "Wish Folder." When any of us think of something we would like to have we jot it down on a paper or, if possible, cut out an ad or picture of such an item and put this in our own special folder. The folders are kept together in the family room for easy reference and revision. Gifts received are usually what we want. —KIM

FOR MELVIN LAIRD,

Secretary of Defense

What are the Congressional Medal of Honor entitlements?—Robert Kaslyn, Wood Ridge, N.J.

● Recipients of the Medal of Honor are eligible for entry on the Medal of Honor roll. They may elect to receive a special monthly pension of $100, in addition to other pay and emoluments or pensions to which their service entitles them. While the special pension is more than nominal, it does not pretend to measure fully our debt to these heroes. Additionally, the award distinctly enhances the recipient's opportunities, whether or not he remains in the military service.

FOR DR. F. WAYNE KING,

Curator of Herpetology, Bronx Zoo

Is it true that snakes in captivity must be fed live rodents? What is the biggest snake you have in captivity and what is it fed?—Mrs. C. R. Preston, Canton, Ohio

● Not all captive snakes are fed live rodents. Some snakes feed on lizards, some on fish, and some on birds or mammals. Most can be fed dead food items. The biggest snake in the Bronx Zoo is a 21-foot-long reticulated python, which is fed dead whole chickens and rabbits.

FOR MARY BROOKS,

Director of the Mint

Is it true that the Treasury is melting silver coins?—Ralph Angelillo, Edison, N.J.

● The critical shortage of silver in the United States, which necessitated the change to "clad" coinage, has also necessitated the melting by the Treasury of silver dimes and quarters. These coins are withdrawn from circulation as they flow back to the Federal Reserve Banks and branches through normal circulation channels.

FOR VINCENT PRICE

What are your favorites among the many horror movies you have made?—R. D., Birmingham, Ala.

● "The Fall of the House of Usher" and "The Fly."

FOR ERIC SEVAREID, CBS News

In a recent commentary, you emphasized the intrinsic value of friendship and reiterated your friendship for a controversial public figure. Do you have a personal definition for friendship?—H. Aune, Dana, Ill.

● I have none, but surely it includes bearing in mind a friend's total life and works, not just one incident—whether a mistake or not.

FOR TINA COLE of "My Three Sons"

Did you personally select the three boys who play your sons in the show? They are superb.—Ann Hoover, Haron, S.D.

● Not by myself. The triplets, Guy, Garth, and Gunnar Swanson, were selected by Don Fedderson, executive producer; Ed Hartman, producer; Virginia Martindale, casting director; and mine.

FOR JIMMY DURANTE

Just when did you become a star and under what circumstances?—Thomas Wiley, East St. Louis, Mo.

● There is never a "date" when a performer becomes a star. It is a lifetime of hard work, experience, and luck. I became a night-club "name," however, in New York during the 20s.

FOR GUY LOMBARDO

Why did you name your band "The Royal Canadians?—William Christie, Lowell, Mass.

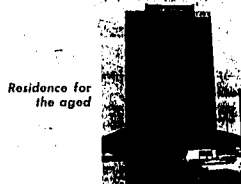

● We got the name when we were getting started in Cleveland many years ago. One of the men there suggested that since Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians and Al Lyman and his Californians were doing all right, we might do well as Guy Lombardo and "the Royal Canadians."

Old Timer Daylight Saving Time was first instituted in 1916 as a World War I measure. This stepple clock in Thomaston, Conn., was 103 years old then. The clock is still in use today. So is Daylight Saving Time, and this weekend marks the beginning of its 1970 season. Setting your clock hands may be easier for you than Residents must be at least 62, with a maximum yearly income of $4,185, to rent an $80-a-month efficiency or a $122 one-bedroom apartment. The project took the Jaycees four years to complete, from their first awareness of the need for middle-income housing for the aged. The chapter is so pleased with the results that it has purchased adjoining land for an eventual second building.

Dopey Plant Did you know that there is a common plant which can be anesthetized? The mimosa is so sensitive that, if touched, the leaves fold at once. According to Ware T. Budington in her new book, "Performing Plants," it is also so sensitive that it responds just as a human would to chloroform! The mimosa plant, if placed in a tight container for a half hour with the anesthetic in a small dish nearby, will no longer respond to touch—not until the effect of the chloroform wears off.

Tennis Through History Some of the early tennis dresses would be right back in style today—but not for tennis. Eastman Kuddel points out three from their pre-wash-'n'-wear collection, beginning with the 1880s: that lady wore boots, pantaloons, petticoats (including a bustle petticoat to fill out the dress), designed full-length in a tiny flowered print, popular this season. The 1900s Gibson Girl wafted about the court in long, flowing sleeves and tie—a look that's again in Jules Jürgensen. Not just another pretty face.

There are 7,258,204,800 reasons why the next watch you buy should be a Jules Jürgensen.

That's the number of seconds in 230 years.

And Jules Jürgensen has been a great name in watches all that time. Most any brand you can think of is a Johnny-come-lately compared to us. You have to make a very fine product to have people buy it year after year after year.

You've got to have beautiful faces, of course.

But the face is there for everybody to see. It's easy to choose a watch by its looks.

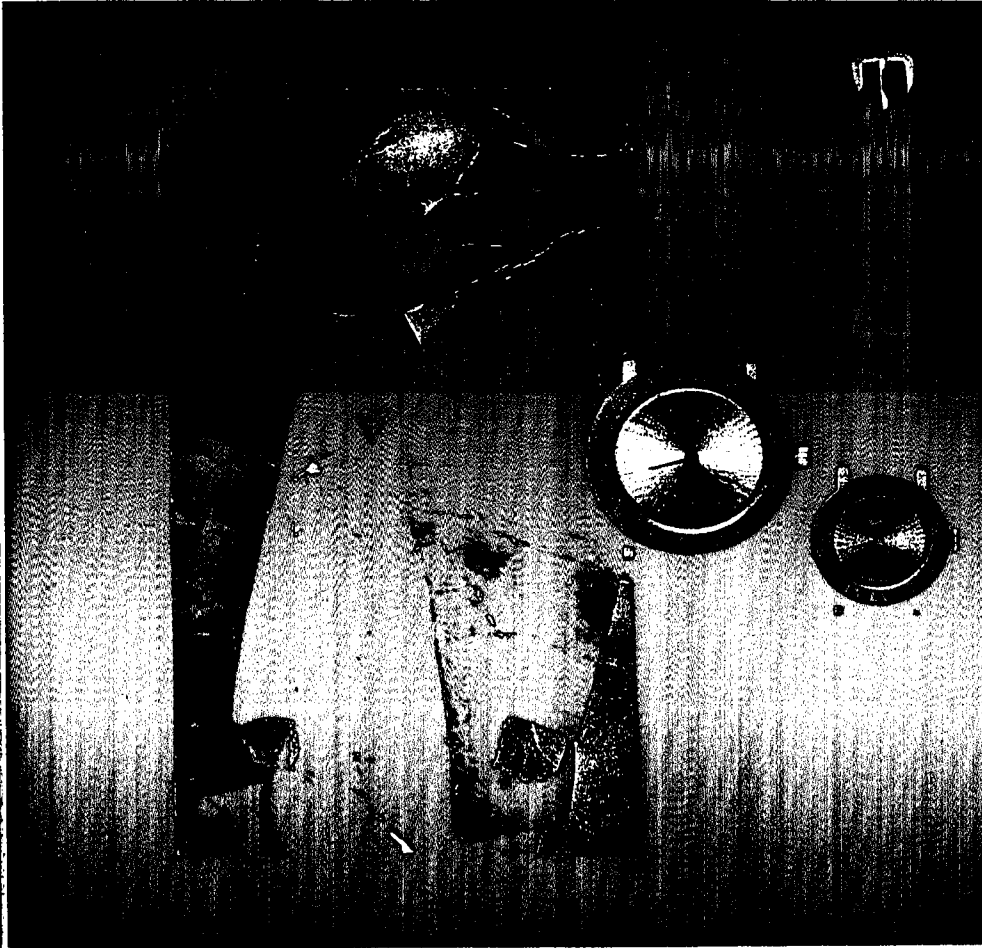

You've got to be beautiful on the inside, too. Beautifully running. Beautifully lasting. Beautifully accurate.

We think there is an inner beauty in a precision-made watch. That's why we're such fanatics about the tolerances of our jeweled movements—about the way they're checked and inspected—about the way they perform under brutal testing conditions.

Centuries ago, the other Swiss watchmakers said that Jules Jürgensen had a compulsive urge for perfection. We'd like to think we inherited it.

Here: the Count for him, the Contessa for her. 17 jewel movements in classic 14K gold or Florentine yellow gold dials and graceful numerals on the outer rim. The Count, about $135. The Contessa, about $135. Other Jules Jürgensen watches from $80 to $10,000 at fine stores everywhere. For an illustrated brochure and name of your authorized dealer.

The Fun and Profit of a Vacation

Growing numbers of Americans are finding them a sound investment

By THEODORE IRWIN

DO YOU dream of having a hide-away mountain cabin, seashore cottage, or A-frame ski house of your own?

For at least three million American families, this dream has come true, and this year another quarter-million are expected either to build or buy a second house.

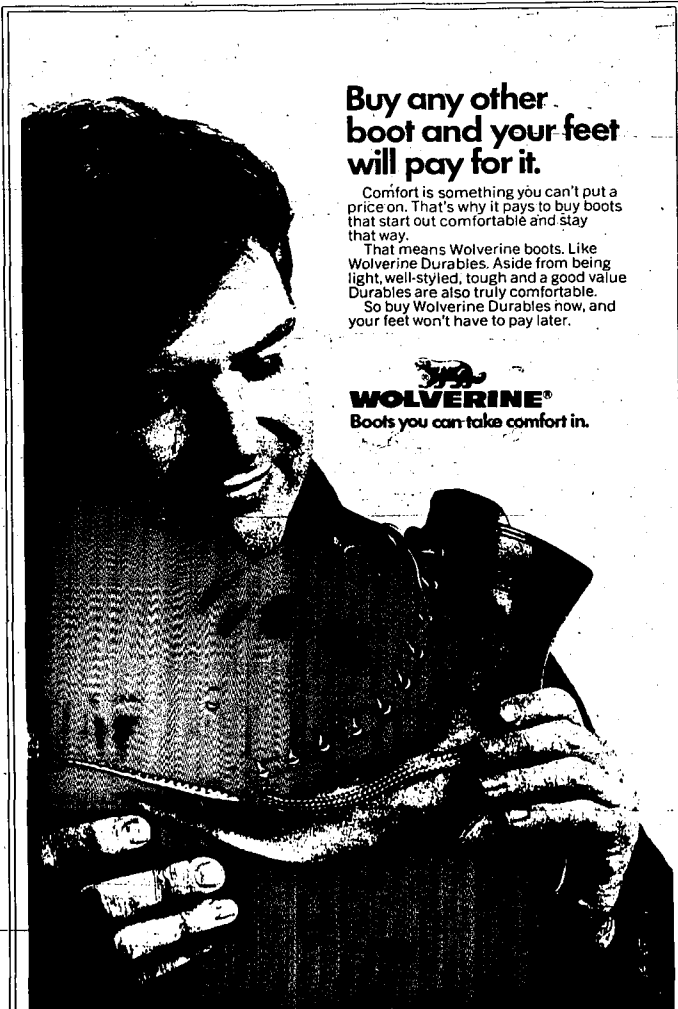

The weekend or vacation home, once a symbol of wealth and status, has now become a fervent goal of those with moderate incomes. A University of Michigan survey reveals that fully half of American families want a second home, and one out of 10 is saving for it.

Bill and Martha Carroll, for example, for years had gone to Cape Cod for summer weekends and vacations, staying at inns, motels, and rented cottages. Gradually the Carrolls realized that, like the average U.S. family, they were spending as much as 10 per cent of their income on recreation and leisure activities. Last year, they bought a small cottage, then rented it for three months to help pay for needed equipment.

Behind the great demand for away-from-it-all places are several factors: the increase in leisure and vacation time, better roads and highways that make seasonal homes easily accessible, and the growing urge for relaxation in our high-pressure society.

More and more, too, people are learning that it's possible for a second home to pay for itself, at least partly. That is, if you start by figuring what it would otherwise cost for vacation stays at hotels or motels, weekend trips, summer-cottage rentals, and, perhaps, camp for the youngsters as well.

Besides these actual savings, other features—often overlooked—usually make a vacation house a good investment.

First, the value of a well-built house is likely to increase about 5 to 10 percent a year, especially if it is in a thriving region with such recreational amenities as swimming, fishing, or skiing.

Many seasonal homes have doubled in value during less than a decade. For my own lake-front cabin—in Connecticut—was recently offered 100 percent more than I paid for it five years ago. My neighbors around the lake have had similar offers through real-estate agents. As good vacation property becomes scarcer, the upward trend continues.

Dr. Richard Lee Raga of Cornell University, who made a far-reaching analysis of the vacation-home phenomenon, points out that increasing the equity in a house, while enjoying it, is "an important criterion for consumers with limited resources." The growth in equity is regarded by most economists as an effective hedge against inflation.

To cover a substantial part of what it takes to own the house—taxes, maintenance, and mortgage payments—many second-homeowners rent out his house for part of the season and off-season.

At one Gulf Coast beach resort in Florida, an owner recouped his entire investment in four years through rentals. About Vermont ski slopes, vacation chalets rent for as much as $350 for a seven-day week or $100 a weekend. More than one private owner has used the income to build another bedroom and bath.

A third, though indirect, way of making a vacation home pay for itself rests on the concept of "leisure now, retirement later." Among middle-aged couples, Dr. Ragatz found, the mortgage on their primary residence may have been paid off, and they see in a vacation house a way to invest funds that were previously allotted for monthly mortgage installments. Later, when the children are grown and on their own, the large primary house is sold and the vacation house is refitted for comfortable year-round living. Then the retired couple settles down to a simpler, less expensive way of life.

Lately, the pattern of vacation homes has been shifting from the isolated retreat to the planned community. That's where rentals and appreciation in value are more favorable to the homeowner.

A developer smooths your path to a seasonal home by finding the land, installing essential services, exploiting the recreational potentials, and often creating a few that nature overlooked. Financing a vacation home there is easier; banks in the area are more inclined to grant mortgages in established resort areas. For another type of vacation getaway place, mobile homes are also increasingly popular, particularly on Maryland beaches. Financing is as easy as buying a car. One disadvantage is that while a house rises in value over the years, a mobile home depreciates.

Much newer is the idea of living on a vacation houseboat, which can be financed with only 25 per cent down and seven years to pay. You'll see them in Kentucky's vast network of interconnected lakes, in Florida, Georgia, and on the rivers and deltas of Northern California. They are for the adventurous who glory in the joys of waterfront living. However, neither the houseboat nor mobile home can ever be expected to pay for itself.

Before picking a more conventional vacation home, get to know the area before buying by spending weekends in the neighborhood and talking to residents about local conditions. Consider travel time: the place should be far enough from your city apartment or suburban house to provide a total change of scene, yet not so far that driving to it becomes a chore.

To command decent rentals and ensure your investment over the long run, the house must have good kitchen and bath facilities. Bedrooms may be small, but living spaces should be generous, with some kind of outdoor porch, deck, or terrace.

You can start with a small house, adding to it as the family grows. Many people are buying land and putting up an economical pre-fab, shipped from the factory in sections, with wiring and plumbing.

Evidently, the need to escape from the stresses and strains of urban living is universal. As one couple wistfully remarked to a realtor the other day, "We don't want much, as long as we have a view, a stream, and some rocks." Once you find your getaway retreat and learn that it can almost pay for itself, the rewards of relaxed living are infinite. ♦

DR. SPOCK: From Child Care to

The "nation's godfather" is again in the news, this time with some provocative views on sex, marriage, and morality

THE COUNTRY'S most publicized pediatrician, Dr. Benjamin Spock, has just written a new book called "Decent and Indecent—Our Personal and Political Behavior." The book had only been on stores' shelves a few hours when an indignant Philadelphia woman charged back to where she had earlier made her purchase and indignantly demanded her money back:

"I raised my Arnold on Doctor Spock's theories. I agreed wholeheartedly with his sentiments about ending the war in Vietnam. I wept with joy when his indictment for helping others to cope with the draft was overturned. But this is just too much! My goodness, there's a new Doctor Spock—he's a sexual reactionary, and he favors hypocritical enslavement of women!"

She then showed the startled saleslady several sections of the book that had enraged her:

● "For decades," writes the peacenik-pediatrician, "I was an uncompromising civil libertarian and scorned the hypocrisy usually involved in the enforcement of obscenity laws. But recent trends in movies, literature, and art toward what I think of as shock-obscenity, and the courts' acceptance of it, have made me change my position. . . . I would now join a majority in favor of new laws which would determine guilt simply on the basis of judges' and juries' sense of shock and revulsion."

● "When a husband tells his wife about his troubles at the office, he wants her to sympathize with him in his feelings of frustration. He does not want her to tell him how easily she herself would have surmounted these difficulties."

● "It would be fairer if they (women) were brought up at home and educated in such a spirit that they would enjoy, feel proud of, and be fascinated by child-rearing rather than frustrated by it."

Other passages of the book are equally provocative:

● "Americans can now talk boldly or jokingly about sex in mixed company—though I think there is often a forced quality to this."

● "Man can be the most affectionate and altruistic creature, yet he's potentially more vicious than any other. He is the only one who can be persuaded to hate millions of his own kind whom he has never seen and to kill as many as he can lay hands on in the name of his tribe or his God."

● "Most Americans who consider themselves thinking people are disillusioned but are not conscious of this feeling. They are not disenchanting with the physical aspects of civilization. They are proud of spaceships and artificial hearts. What they have lost is a belief in the dignity of man."

"My family settled in New England long before 1776," he said, "and as long as I can remember, we were rock-rib Republican. My father was a lawyer for the New Haven Railroad. He believed that you could best serve mankind by being physically fit—that it was your moral responsibility to keep in shape."

Spock "keeps in shape" by bicycling. He accompanied him on a cycling trip around New York's Central Park. While pedaling vigorously in a cold, wet wind, he told us that he was sent to Andover, the classic preparatory school for Yale and then to Yale itself. There he made Scroll and Key, one of the most exclusive clubs, and pulled an oar on the rowing team that went to the 1924 Olympics. He decided to become a doctor and attended the Yale Medical School and the College of Physicame to be written.

He has no explanation for its phenomenal success. The message was simply love your baby, observe him sympathetically to see what he needs and wants, enjoy him, true yourself. Somehow, it answered the condition of large numbers of mothers. The phrase "Dr. Spock says . . ." became a tender shield against other, more rigid doctors. A large part of a whole generation of babies was fed when hungry, cuddled when they cried, and allowed to crawl and play in the mud.

Doctor Spock's babies grew up to throw him a rough challenge. "Just because 23 million copies of my book were sold doesn't mean everyone who bought it did what I said," he remarked a little plaintively. "Some wouldn't or couldn't. I had no idea I was going to be charged with organizing a new life style, nor did I intend to do so."

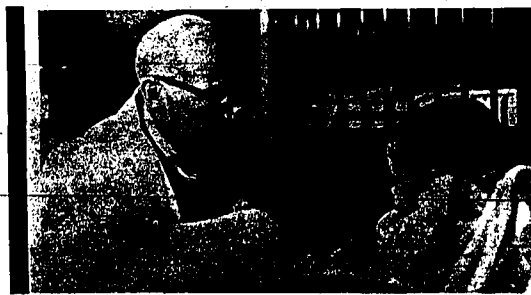

Nevertheless Doctor Spock has been blamed for the hippies and the yuppies, the flower children and the "Hell's Angels" and for some college rebels. He has participated in dozens of peace demonstrations, and in every one of them there has been at least one gawky youngster who carried a sign that said, "I was a Spock baby."

"Usually," says Doctor Spock wonderingly, "when the mothers who claim they raised their children by my book see their youngsters marching down the street, they begin to cry. I don't know why. I've been told I'm a Pied Piper, but the fact is I've never made any strong pitch to these kids—they made it to me."

In the early 1960's, scientific material passing across Doctor Spock's desk made him feel increasingly concerned about the dangers of nuclear fallout. He spoke out against nuclear-weapons testing and soon found himself drawn into the total anti-war protest.

"I know it upset a lot of parents that a baby doctor could take a controversial stand," he told us. "But if they hold me responsible for having a lot to do with bringing their children up, I have to ask what's the point of doctors and parents working and sacrificing to bring up healthy well-adjusted children if they are going to be incinerated?"

"If a baby gets to be one year old,"

Dr. Spock, child authority for thousands of mothers, examines hospitalized boy.

Doctor Spock's new book will surprise many parents who learned to love and trust him and whose children are "Spock babies." We found out that the doctor defies being put into a convenient slot when we recently traveled with him, talked with him, listened to the man who has changed more parent-child relationships than anyone in the country.

Doctor Spock feels that his radical response to the Vietnam involvement was dictated by his own parents. "They used to counsel me," he told us, "choose the right way and not the easy, and, 'accept service to others as a moral obligation.'

Spock is a member of the American Academy of Pediatrics and is a member of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology and the American College of Surgeons of Columbia University. In 1927, while still at medical school, he married Jane Cheney, a pretty Connecticut girl. They have two children, both boys.

Spock studied pediatrics and psychiatry. He was one of the first American doctors to complete residencies in both fields. When the demands of World War II inducted Spock into the Navy, the mothers of his patients begged him to write down instructions on child-rearing that would cover everything but emergencies until he got back. That's how the popular book, "The Common Sense Book of Baby and Child Care" he continued, "It's chances of dying before age 21 are only 1.5 per cent. Does anyone think the risk of nuclear war is that small? And does it make sense to present to your lovingly reared child a society that is confused about sex, callous about brutality, prone to violence?"

It was then that he decided to devote his energies full time to speaking to young people who are concerned with serious social problems. Thus far, he has spoken at more than 100 colleges and universities across the country. He doesn't receive a lecture fee—it all goes into a fund that helps young men who are in legal trouble with the draft.

We went with Doctor Spock to the State University at Stony Brook, New York, where 2,500 students gave him an ovation as he clambered onto a shaky platform composed of folding tables—Still ram-rod straight and lean and six-foot four, he looked at the hirsute male faces and told how he had ordered his son Michael 20 years ago to shave off his beard. "I was wrong," he admitted as he fingered a heavy watch chain that ran across his vest. "I wouldn't do that now," he laughed. The students cheered.

More serious, he went on to describe his angry disillusionment with former President Lyndon Johnson. "I campaigned hard for him," he said, "because he promised he would not escalate the war. Among others, I helped to get him elected. A day after his election, he telephoned me and said that he hoped he could live up to my faith in him. Then a few months later he did escalate the war. I'm very ashamed that I worked for him. But I suppose a man can be a humanitarian at home even if he's a war monger in Vietnam! I wrote him letter after letter. No use!"

Doctor Spock said, "Pretty soon I learned that the F. B. I. was questioning the doorman of our apartment house about my comings and goings. I laughed. Who could be interested in an aged pediatrician? Next thing I knew I was indicted."

Spock's Federal indictment followed the so-called "Whitehall Caper" in New York City. Accused of abetting draft resistance, he brought his case to court by breaking through a police line that was formed to protect the Whitehall military induction center from a demonstration.

"It began," he said, "when I tapped a policeman on the shoulder and said, 'Excuse me, I want to break through your line to commit civil disobedience. . . .'"

The rest is recent history. Spock, with others, was tried and convicted. But he was subsequently acquitted of the charges. "Many parents wrote to me during that time," he said. "They told me that they were sorry they had used my book to raise their children. I couldn't figure it out because the young men and women who said they were Spock babies seemed absolutely great. It was really very strange. It was as though the babies had read my book and raised themselves."

The man who has been called the "nation's godfather" decided to write a book that would help adults understand themselves. He sailed around the Caribbean on his 35-foot sloop Carapace until he had finished the new book.

At a recent reception, Spock discussed the book. It turns out that he isn't all that permissive. He's against rock-throwing and locking up college deans. He offers a lesson on how to organize a peaceful and effective protest movement and says the first thing is to pass out leaflets and call a meeting. He says he would join a revolution only under extreme situations—if the President abrogated the Constitution. He is against obscenity and brutality in books and movies and especially in reality. He's against sexual promiscuity and warns us that it produces a callousness that eventually blunts the sex experience. But he thinks we'll eventually have to accept sincere, unmarried love.

Right or wrong it would be hard to dimble the kindly gallantry of the doctor who has been hissed, kicked, jailed, and vilified in the course of his concern for society. We asked him if he had a message for young mothers. He answered with his now-classic first line from "Baby and Child Care": "You know more than you think you do." ♦

The Real Meaning

A child's playthings are steppingstones to health.

By KEVIN V. BROWN

AT A RECENT party, a group of mothers were discussing their children.

"My little boy seems fascinated by different colors."

"Mine likes anything he can grab."

"And I'll bet anything he grabs, he put in his mouth, just like mine."

"Well, my Johnny just likes things he can bang on."

All of these mothers were right, in way, probably without knowing the reasons why children are attracted by some objects more than by others, why they prefer playing with some simple toy and ignore more expensive ones, or even why they would rather bang on a kitchen pot with a soup spoon than play with new toy that just came from the store.

Psychologists have proved that children know exactly what they are doing when they react to their environment, including toys, in often-puzzling ways. And it is wise parent that studies the reasons behind some of this behavior to help the child progress smoothly and effectively through his several levels of learning.

A judicious selection of toys can help immeasurably. From the beginning, toy can be necessary stimuli. According to Dr. Lee Salk, clinical associate professor of psychology in pediatrics at Cornell University Medical College and brother of Dr. Jonas Salk, the discoverer of a polio vaccine, "Toys can be more than diversionary playthings. They can be a vital factor in the growth of a normal child."

A child is born into the world with five senses that need development and a mind and emotions that need nourishment and confidence. Even lying in a crib, an infant is learning. He probably discovers his body first of all. The simple, normal act of putting his thumb in his mouth provides two stimuli, one to the mouth and one to the thumb, and he learns that his thumb is part of him.

The next thing he puts in his mouth performs a learning ring, touches him there are other objects that are not part of him. He then begins to distinguish between himself and objects that are not part of him and to distinguish other objects from one another. "As the child grows and learns to use his hands, rubberized rings can serve several purposes," Dr. Salk says. "He can grab it, touch it, feel it, put it in ore than fun—they are the

his mouth, and gum on it and taste it."

The more objects he is exposed to, the more "inputs" this wonderful infant of a "computer" will receive, the quicker his senses develop. And the more confidence he builds in himself, the more comfortable he feels in this brand-new world.

So-called "mobiles," dangling conglomerations of miscellaneous items that hang from strings and balance one another and sway in the breeze, can stimulate his sight with movement and color, his ears with tinkling sounds, and, if he can reach it, his sense of touch.

Goldfish can also be an effective substitute. They can be placed at the head of his bed, encouraging him to raise his head when on his stomach and exercise his neck and back muscles, and fascinate him with their colorful, random movements.

When he is old enough to sit up and reach for things, objects of different sizes and shapes that he can pick up and handle—odd-shaped teethers, multi-colored balls, rattles—delight him because these are all new touch sensations. And it's a natural instinct to put any or all of them to his mouth not because he's hungry but because the taste or the massaging of his gums is another new sensation. If the toys can be shaken to make noise, all the better, otherwise don't be surprised to see the child deliberately throw them to hear the sound when they hit.

The next step in the development of a child, aided immeasurably with thoughtful selection of toys, is when he begins manipulating his environment not just to feed his senses but, to use his now-found confidence and exercise some power over his surroundings. "When he begins to crawl," says Dr. Salk, "his environment becomes a factor. He learns he can move around and manipulate the things around him. He learns he can change his environment and is not a prisoner of it. His play materials should be something that he can handle and do something with."

It involves not just observing and absorbing his stimuli but controlling it. He begins to push, pull, twist, turn, put one object on top of another, and tear them down again, and fit pieces together and take them apart. He's now at the stage when push-pull toys that make noise or strange movements, blocks that fit together in multi-colored patterns, or noise-making toys that can be hit and be made to do something are all fascinating to him.

About this time, it often puzzles parents when the child is more fascinated by, say, the box a toy came in than he is in the toy itself. The box may be newer to him than the toy. It's a new texture he has never felt before, and he may be able to tear it apart and make two pieces from one.

Further development through toys begins when the child not only observes, then controls, his surroundings but creates ideas of his own toward them. He is now at the age where he wants to use toys and other objects for a purpose. He begins to sort, match, select, and fit things together.

It is also at this period that paints and crayons and sand and water begin to fascinate him because he can construct things with them creatively. And recognition for his artistic talents—essential for his growing confidence in himself—is vastly important. After drawing a picture or building a sand castle, it's instinctive for him to show it to someone, his mother or father usually, for the much-needed praise. "See what I did?"

The period of imitation comes along, too, when girls mimic their mothers with dolls and toy dishes, and boys mimic their fathers with toy cars.

Dr. Salk interprets this as a period when the child begins to see results and becomes interested in working toward an end product.

All of this miniature-toy activity, however, will not be enough to fill up all their days because their young bodies will cry out for physical activity and competitive games. Then the parks and playground become their second home with their swings and slides and "firemen's gym" that they can climb all over.

It is a wise parent who sees, through the proper selection of toys, that the child gets enough of the right kind of stimuli.

"Children need toys and playthings the way adults need books and music and the performing arts," Dr. Salk concludes. "They stimulate the child the way the arts stimulate adults." ♦

Every Woman Wants the Gift Of Complexion Beauty

If every woman in the world could choose just one gift of beauty, nine out of ten would ask for a lovely, flawless complexion. Of all feminine beauty assets, this is the one that is most desired, most cherished.

Today, simply by smoothing a tropical moist oil over your skin, you can at last lavish the very ultimate of loving attention on your complexion. The discovery of this rich, remarkable fluid has made it incredibly easy to cherish and beautify the skin so that it holds its lovely appeal for years and years to come.

The moist oil helps the complexion to keep always at the peak of its perfection. Its special enriching constituents of oil and moisture exert an isotonic pressure to balance easily with the skin's own fluids, helping to alleviate wrinkle-dryness, smoothing the complexion to a velvety softness and successfully capturing a radiantly lovely bloom.

When skin protective processes begin to slow down with the passing of time, or become inadequate in effect due to the influence of a hot sun, drying winds or biting frost, the complexion very often suddenly finds itself in dire need of supplementary care that will encourage and guard its basal cellular functions. The purpose of the revolutionary tropical moist oil is to assist nature when necessary to boost these natural fluids and so give your complexion a fuller measure of health and beauty.

An invisible film of moist oil applied daily to the face and neck besides serving as a sub-foundation for make-up, will promote nature's efforts to conserve precious dermic moisture, for its perfect blend of oil and moisture is homologous to the skin's own fluids.

This unique moist oil is available in Europe and other parts of the world. In America it is available from druggists—as Olay, the phenomenal discovery of our time that reconfirms the eternal truth that an exquisite complexion is the most essential criterion for beauty.

Beauty Skin-Care Consultants Recommend

For sheer loveliness in complexion beauty, consultants are now recommending that a film of moist tropical Oil of Olay should always be smoothed over the face and neck before applying make-up. This will cherish and beautify the skin as well as protect it against the drying effects of wind and weather.

Towards maturity cherish your skin with a little extra care to smooth wrinkle-dryness and help keep facial lines at bay. Before retiring, apply a generous film of Oil of Olay, massaging it with the fingertips in circular movements that spiral upwards and outwards.

To keep your lips soft and pretty, give them a generous quota of the beautifying moist oil when you do your face. This light film of Oil of Olay will also act as a foundation for the smooth and lasting application of your lipstick.

SHELLEY WINTERS:

The World's Her Stage

Shelley Winters
and Robert DeNiro in scene from new film, "Bloody Mama."

SHELLEY Winters was not one of the scheduled guests on a recent tv talk program. She was just a member of the audience who had come to enjoy the show. But the two-time Oscar winner just couldn't contain herself.

Shelley voiced her opinions from the audience on subjects ranging from peace marches to rebellious youths in a loud and dramatic manner. She shouted out her feelings to host David Frost and debated violently with guest William Buckley, Jr.

That's Shelley Winters. Actress cum laude, social protagonist, mother, and everybody's next door neighbor.

She has just opened in a Broadway play on the life of the Marx Brothers, called "Minnie's Boys," as well as having completed four movies in a year's time.

Unlike many actors who live in a show-business world, Shelley Winters is actively involved and interested in politics and society in general.

She lives with her 16-year-old daughter Tory, who is the center of her life and draws a strict line in raising her.

The reason behind Shelley's great concern for her daughter is probably based on her own experiences. Shelley has been through a lot of marital crises. "After two-and-a-half marriages, I've come to the conclusion that most men feel that their wives must always be where they are."

"During the War I was married to a navigator. I hardly knew him. We didn't even recognize each other when he came back; I had the marriage annulled."

Shelley's marriages to Italian actor Vittorio Gassman, Tony's father, and then to actor Anthony Franciosa were less than successful experiences.

"My life had been marvelous," she said, "until I got married. For instance, Tony and I acted together four years. Then we got married. I would often ask myself, 'What am I doing here?' We couldn't work together any more."

Making her way to Hollywood, Shelley persevered until she landed a contract with Columbia Pictures, which tried to turn her into a glamorous starlet. One day she heard George Stevens was looking for an actress to portray the role of the factory girl in "A Place in the Sun." She read for the part and got it.

The actress has won Oscars for her roles in "The Diary of Anne Frank" and later for "A Patch of Blue." The good roles keep coming, and Shelley keeps commuting between Hollywood and New York. Her other most recent films are "Arthur! Arthur!", "How Do I Love Thee?" and "Nobody Loves Flapping Eagle," which are scheduled for release this year.

Shelley knows what it means to work unselfishly for something she knows how to get outside herself and become involved in a cause rather than be just a spectator. Perhaps that's what makes her the fine actress that she is, and the one and only—Shelley Winters. —TERRY SCHAEFFEL

A theatrical agent would have no part of a performer who claimed he could do any kind of bird-imitation.

"At least see my act," he begged.

"No," replied the agent, "bird imitations died with vaudeville."

"Okay, if that's the way you feel about it," said the performer—and flew out the window.

At a big city hotel one noontime, two private luncheons were being served—one to a group of clergymen and the other to a meeting of wholesale liquor dealers. The liquor dealers ordered a special dessert, watermelon soaked with brandy, rum, and Benedictine.

The manager of the hotel discovered to his horror that there had been a mix-up and the spiced melon had been served to the ministers.

"What did they say?" he asked the headwaiter. "Were there many complaints?"

"They didn't say a word," the headwaiter reported. "They were too busy putting the seeds in their pockets."

I nearly turned into a banana sour-cream cake, before I lost 83 pounds

By Ellen Clausing Jepertinger — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy.

Believe it or not, I began to cook at the age of seven. Not because my mother made me, but because I wanted to. And up in Saskatchewan, where I was raised, that meant hot rolls, cream puffs, baked bread, everything that was delicious and fattening. It was a great beginning for one who was to marry a Milwaukee, Wisconsin grocer and develop a wide reputation for banana sour-cream cake. Unfortunately, it was a terrible start for someone who wanted to be slim. The fact is, between my mother's cooking and my own, I ate myself into a size 22½ dress, which is a lot of body. 230 pounds in all!

Of course, I wasn't that heavy on my wedding day. Just good-and-solid. Changing my name from Clausing to Jepertinger also meant adding some hearty German dishes to my collection of recipes. Sauerbraten, cheese cake, chicken fried in beer, tortes — no wonder I had little success trying to diet.

The birth of my daughter didn't help my figure, either. And even after she was born, I continued to eat for two. This added 30 pounds in almost no time. When I look back now, I realize how wonderful my husband was about the whole thing. Never a sarcastic word. All he used to say was: "There's more of you to love." But in my heart, I wasn't fooled.

I went to the doctor more than once about my weight. Then I'd wind up with diet pills, but somehow I could never stick to them. The last batch was red, but my appetite got the better of them and I continued to eat. Besides, they made me feel nervous, so I finally stopped taking them and went back to baking banana sour-cream cakes. At least, they brought me praise. Even got me some newspaper publicity. You see, my cakes were very much in demand at school PTA meetings, where I was an officer. And they made a great Easter pastry special for the store.

Isn't it a shame that everything that tastes so good going down looks so ugly showing up on the scale?

I guess what really jolted me into reducing was a photograph, taken by a friend of mine at her son's confirmation. When my daughter saw it, she said: "Mother, you've taken up the whole picture." That did it. At last, I saw myself as others did. I'll always be thankful to her, because it made me do something about my weight, and faster than all the warnings I'd had about my health and high blood pressure.

It was my husband who remembered that my mother had used the Ayds Plan to lose weight. And I can tell you, she had a figure any woman would be proud of.

On the sofa is yours truly, all 230 pounds of me. Funny how I feel like strutting in my new clothes.

Now that I'm down to 147 pounds, you can see why I feel like strutting in my new clothes.

Well, I went to the drugstore and bought a box of the plain chocolate fudge Ayds. Though later on, I switched around and tried both the chewy vanilla caramel kind and the chocolate mint fudge. I took them like the directions say, one or two before meals with a hot drink. For me, it was coffee. And you know, it had the same effect on me that eating candy before a meal has on kids. I just didn't feel like eating as much when I sat down at the table. It actually helped me to cut back my appetite. Yet, this candy contains no harmful drugs, but it does have vitamins and minerals.

I might mention that in reducing, one other thing was working for me along with the Ayds Plan. My husband sold the grocery store and I took a job in an office. And having all those slim young girls around made me really want to reduce. So I not only took Ayds before meals, but also at my coffee breaks and while watching television in the evening. And I started to lose some weight.

That doesn't mean I stopped baking. I'm quite active in Joh's Daughters and Eastern Star and we have lots of luncheon meetings and affairs where we sell food to earn money. So I still make my banana sour-cream cake, but Ayds keeps me so satisfied, I don't have that craving to eat everything I bake.

Of course, the most satisfying part of the Ayds Plan is the compliments. When I'd lost most of my weight, I went to a school meeting with my husband. Afterwards, Bob showed the principal his new model car. Then laughingly, but proudly, said: "Now meet my new-model wife." Having lost nearly 83 pounds, I'd gone from a size 22½ dress to a 14 and, believe me, that's some difference.

I just can't tell you how good it makes me feel to think about it. Especially since it's the first time in my life, thanks to the help of the Ayds Plan, that I weigh less than my husband.

How Much Do You Know About the Opposite Sex?

THE opposite sex is probably the most explored and talked about subject in the world. And yet men sometimes appear to be strange animals to their female associates, and women just as often leave menfolk in a state of bewilderment.

Here's a true-or-false quiz on the subject which gives you a chance to see how your beliefs stack up against the facts uncovered by scientific investigators.

1. Men are easier to understand than women.
2. Women are more subject to feeling "blue" and depressed.
3. Men spend more time thinking about sex than women do.
4. A man is more likely to have a guilty conscience than a woman.
5. A woman's glance takes in more territory than a man's does.
6. Women who are avid readers are likely to be antisocial creatures who prefer books to people.
7. Women have a better sense of direction than men.

ANSWERS

1. False. Psychological studies show that men are much more inclined to conceal their emotions, to keep their real feelings under wraps, than women are. Women, tests show, are more gregarious, more outgoing, more communicative, more willing to exchange confidences, and to reveal themselves to others.
2. True. In a survey conducted by the University of Michigan, when students were asked, "Do you ever get very depressed?", twice as many females as males answered yes to the question.
3. False. A battery of interviewers from the University of Colorado conducted a confidential survey, collecting data from men and women in an area-amplifying technique encompassing nearly every stratum of society. The question asked was, "What percentage of the time would you estimate that you think about sex?"
The findings showed that women spent just as much time thinking about sex as men did. As for how much time, this ranged from "never" or "hardly ever" to over 60 percent of the time.

4. False. Studies show that men are far more inclined than women to regard their conscience as something to outwit, and women are more prone to feel guilty—to listen to the "still, small voice," and to obey its counsel.

5. True. At the University of California, Los Angeles, the vision of over 17,000 men and women drivers was tested. Women demonstrated a significantly larger field of vision without even turning their heads or moving their eyes.
6. False. Women who got the greatest pleasure out of reading tend to be outgoing toward people.

7. False. Psychologists at one university administered special sense-of-direction tests to nearly 300 men and women students. The men averaged appreciably better scores than the women.

What Can You Do About Today's $54-a-Day Hospital Costs?

LIKE EVERYTHING ELSE, the cost of being sick or hurt has gone up sharply. The average daily cost of one day's stay in the hospital has tripled since 1952—from $18.35 to $54.08 a day. Experts say hospital costs will rise even higher, because everything hospitals buy today costs more, and they must make huge investments in modern, life-saving equipment.

These $54-a-day hospital costs have put millions of Americans in a dangerous spot, because their health insurance is no longer enough to pay the bills. They'll either have to pay the lion's share out of their own pockets—or buy more health insurance, using money they'd rather save for the future.

But now there's a remarkably different kind of money-back health insurance that solves this problem. This revolutionary plan takes the worry out of life because it returns money to you if you don't get sick or hurt.

Like ordinary health insurance, this remarkable plan pays you generous tax-free cash benefits if you do get sick or hurt. The cash comes to you direct-by-check, to spend any way you wish. It pays you regardless of other hospital, medical or surgical insurance you may have, including group.

People over 65 get the cash they need to help fill the gaps in Medicare.

One of two things will happen—you'll either get sick, or you'll stay well. You'll feel more secure knowing that, either way, you must get paid.

But unlike ordinary insurance, this low-cost plan means you no longer have to get sick or hurt to collect. If you stay well, you still get a big check. Instead of paying premiums which return no money if you have no claims, you get a cash refund of all your basic annual premiums at maturity. It's like having an extra savings account for your future pleasure and security.

You don't even have to stay 100 per cent healthy to get money back. If you collect less than what you paid in annualized premiums, you get a cash refund of the difference. So no matter what, you must collect. It's the sensible, "no-risk" answer for people who no longer want to gamble against today's rapidly rising medical costs.

This remarkable Money-Back protection is guaranteed by Bankers Life and Casualty Co. as part of the famous White Cross Plan protecting over 6,000,000 Americans. And the White Cross Plan also includes new low-cost protections to help folks over 65 fill the gaps in Medicare that could cost them thousands.

The story of this revolutionary health insurance that also pays you cash if you stay well, and special "Over-65" plans to supplement Medicare, is told in the Gold Book, an informative booklet offered free by Bankers.

NOTE: Readers of Family Weekly can get a free copy of "The Gold Book" by using the postage-paid reply card attached to this page. There is no cost or obligation.

When our new merchandise man was offered an exclusive on these indestructible nylon socks, he called the manufacturer a liar.

"Can't be done!" he said. "If the socks are as strong and durable as you claim, they've got to be so stiff underfoot, they'll be unwearable!"

"Kitten-soft," said the manufacturer.

"Then they won't wash satisfactorily."

"Always come out like new," barked the manufacturer. "Permanent colors, lasting texture and shape."

"Or you'll weasel the guarantee," added our man, doubtfully.

"Unconditional!" snapped the manufacturer.

"What's the catch?"

"No catch, no secret!" said the manufacturer happily. "8-ply yarn of DuPont nylon—instead of the usual 4. Woven so closely, they make ordinary socks look like they're three-quarters air, by comparison! Styled by one of the world's great sock designers—for perfect proportion and fit. This yarn is guaranteed to wear forever, in normal use. That "normal use" simply means regular ordinary wear—don't burn holes in them deliberately, or try to cut them with a scissors or razor."

We still had to be shown. So we got samples. And we wore them. And wore them. And machine washed them. And Laundromatted them. And tortured them. Like wearing one pair for a week straight—till we thought they'd drown in sweat.

Then we washed them—with no sweat! They looked and felt like new. The socks didn't stretch. We did: They're for real—and forever. So here they are. The forever socks. All black in a 6-pair assortment of smart solid colors to complement any wardrobe, 2 pair black, 2 pair navy, 1 navy, 1 loden. Ankle length, with elastic tops for snug fit. Fit any size 9½ to 13.

— IMMEDIATE DELIVERY GUARANTEED —

Now! MOTALOY gives your car's rings and valves a replating job while you drive!

SEE HOW ONLY $6 WORTH OF MOTALOY RECONDITIONS YOUR ENGINE — HELPS PREVENT THE NEED FOR $100 RING & VALVE JOB!

Just drop 4 Motaloy tabs into your gas tank... and you've started your engine rebuilding job! Each tab is a scientifically compounded alloy of 9 metals and elements. As you drive, tiny Motaloy particles are released into the fuel. These Motaloy molecules are carried through the fuel line into the combustion chamber... where the intense heat of ignition activates them to soften, then remove carbon deposits. Then, Motaloy starts metal-plating pitted and worn surfaces of cylinder walls, piston rings, valve seats, and stems.

A SINGLE MOTALOY TREATMENT DOES ALL THIS-FOR YOUR ENGINE!

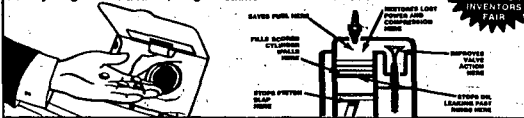

The more you drive, the more protection Motaloy deposits in the form of a fine, anti-friction metal plating that rebuilds, smooths, and protects vital surfaces! As Motaloy continues to plate and re-plate engine compression is increased without a ring and valve job! Gas mileage improves, your engine eats less oil! And over fifteen years of use by over a million motorists — some of them with cars that have clocked over 100,000 miles after a single Motaloy treatment — prove that Motaloy can keep your engine running younger and peppier... for years longer!

PROTECTS NEW ENGINES... REJUVENATES OLD ONES!

Getting a new car? Start it off with a Motaloy treatment — 6 dollars of protection that can mean invaluable extra engine life for your car. Can actually help maintain full factory compression for the life of your car... so you'll get better performance for years longer... and a better trade-in or resale price whenever you decide to sell! And Motaloy's track record on cars that have rolled up 50,000... 70,000... even 90,000 miles shows fantastic results in improved compression, lower gas and oil consumption, better pickup, smoother running — just as if the engine were years younger! Give your car's engine a new... and longer... lease on life with amazing Motaloy! Remember — a single Motaloy treatment lasts for the life of your car! And Motaloy cannot harm even the finest engine in any way!

HERE'S HOW MOTALOY WORKS!

Here's all you do and you do it only once! Just drop 4 Motaloy Tabs into your gas tank and this single treatment does all this...

"About 1960 I put some Motaloy tabs in my gas tank, and I have driven this Mercedes-Benz 135,000 miles since!"

L.A.M., Sioux City, Iowa

"About 5 years ago I put Motaloy tablets in my Cadillac. I drove this car 125,000 miles and it never used any oil between changes—1,500-2,000 miles!"

V.P.G., Cincinnati, Ohio

"My Chevrolet had 49,000 miles on it. It had noisy valves and other troubles. Motaloy corrected all this. It is running better than new."

L.P.M., Waterboro, S.C.

"After using Motaloy in my Chevrolet my compression increased an average of 3 1/2 pounds per cylinder, which to me is conclusive proof that Motaloy will do everything that is claimed for it."

W.P.C., Elkhart, West Va.

"My Dodge used one quart of oil every 225 miles. After using Motaloy I drove 1,245 miles and did not have to add any oil."

G.W., Cincinnati, Ohio

"Since adding Motaloy I have driven more than 1,500 miles, and I must say that I am amazed about the wonderful results. My gas consumption improved 40%, and my oil consumption is practically nil."

W.G.K., Fort Ashmun, Wash.

TESTS BY TRINITY TESTING LABS PROVE MOTALOY RESULTS!

Radioactive isotope Tracer Tests Confirm Motaloy's Plating-Action! ... The activation of the Motaloy and the subsequent tracing operations of the activated Motaloy was conducted by an independent research laboratory especially licensed by the Atomic Energy Commission to supervise the industrial application of radioactive isotopes.

Approximate Amounts of Activated Motaloy Deposited on the Surfaces (After approx. 60 hours of operation)

Piston Rings.....	Light

Cylinder Walls.....	Light

The above tracing of the radioactive Motaloy is positive proof of the actual transfer of the Motaloy particles from the gasoline tank on to the surfaces of the above surveyed parts of the engine.

TRY MOTALOY AT OUR RISK!

A complete Motaloy package (4 tabs) is only $6.00. Try Motaloy in your car for 30 days, to give its plating action a fair chance. If at the end of that time your car's engine isn't running smoother... if you aren't using less oil... if your gas mileage hasn't started to improve (as it will continue to do until you've reached full factory compression)... if you don't agree that Motaloy has given your engine a new lease on life — just return the empty Motaloy package, and we'll send you back every penny of your purchase price! If you do find Motaloy does all the wonderful things we say it will, tell your friends about it. They'll thank you for spreading the good word!
