White Panther 'Minister' Joins FBI's Top Suspects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lawrence Robert Plamondon, the hippie "minister of defense" of the White Panther party, was placed on the FBI's list of 10 most wanted criminals today.

Plamondon, 24, is charged with federal charges of bombing the Central Intelligence Agency recruiting office at Ann Arbor, Mich., and on narcotic charges in three states—New Jersey, Illinois and Michigan. A federal warrant also charges him with furnishing false names to gun dealers in purchasing firearms.

The FBI describes him as "very dangerous."

The White Panther party has been identified as a group which supports the aims of the Black Panthers and advocates revolution in the United States. Plamondon also has been a member of the "hippie commune" in Ann Arbor known as "Trans-Love Energies" which police say is a source of narcotics.

Uses Drugs Regularly

The wanted man is said to be a regular user of marijuana, hashish and LSD. He is also closely associated with underground newspapers and "hard rock" bands.

The dynamiting of the CIA recruiting office occurred Sept. 29, 1968. Two of Plamondon's associates have been arrested in connection with the destruction of government property and conspiracy in connection with the bombing.

Plamondon has been arrested frequently since 1962 on such charges as indecent exposure, distributing obscene and lewd material to minors, assault and battery, drunk and disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, leaving the scene of an accident and possessing narcotics.

A native of Traverse City, Mich., Plamondon has worked as a construction worker, labor organizer, musician, producer, public relations man and writer.

May Be Clean Shaven

He stands 6-foot-1 and weighs between 155 and 165 pounds. He has a pallid complexion, brown eyes and dark brown or black hair which may be worn shoulder length. He has been bearded and mustached in the past but may now be clean shaven to avoid identification, the FBI said.

There are scars below his right eye, on his right cheek, near his left eye, on his right hand and on his left hand.

The FBI said his normal appearance is "dirty and unkempt and his living, eating hygienic habits are poor."

He usually dresses in hippie garb but may have adopted neater dressing habits as a disguise.

TWIN FALLS POLICE DETECTIVES Jim Howells, on left, and Jim Kistler pinpoint locations of recent burglaries in the city on large maps which locate each of the 104 cases reported during 1970. The three city maps, divided into business, residential and auto burglaries, indicate a trend that the largest concentration of residential crimes occur on the Presidential streets; business entries are reported in the downtown area of the original to waste, and auto burglaries occur most often in off-street parking areas and in the northeast residential area. The trends help the detectives locate troubled areas for concentrated law enforcement efforts. The procedure has been used for years by the Police Department's uniform division to determine traffic trends, but this is the first time a thorough breakdown on burglaries has been mapped out.

Bunker Gains Fame For His Diplomacy

By MARGARET KILGOR SAIGON (UPI) — If Saigon's democratic government succeeds, it will be the first of U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, a diplomat, has been in the city for more than three years.

The courtly white-haired ambassador—he will be 76 on May 11—returns to Washington on Wednesday, and there are reports that he is going to ask President Nixon to relieve him of the Saigon post before the end of the year.

Bunker, like many others connected with the war effort in Southeast Asia, is tired. But he wanted to stay, with the complete support of President Nixon, until the Vietnamization program showed some progress and the U.S. troop withdrawal was under way.

Probe Fails To Link Murder Of Yablonski With Election

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary George P. Shultz said today his investigators had not turned up any evidence to link the murder of Joseph A. Yablonski with the United Mine Workers election last Dec. 9.

Shultz made the statement in testimony before the Senate labor subcommittee which has been investigating several aspects of the union election.

Shultz said the Labor Department has not found any merit in some of alleged election and campaign violations charged by Yablonski and his supporters against the union and UMW President W. A. "Tony" Boyle, who defeated Yablonski's insurgent candidacy.

Some involving mine workers' officials.

On March 5, Shultz announced his department would ask a federal court to void the election results. He charged union members were denied the right to vote as they chose without being subject to penalty, discipline or improper interference or reprisal.

Shultz appeared before the Senate panel to explain why the Labor Department resisted demands to step into the UMW election campaign before the balloting, as asked by Yablonski and his supporters.

He said the Landrum-Griffin Act does not give the Labor Department authority to investigate a union election until after the balloting. Pre-election intervention, he said, would give the government opportunity to influence the outcome of the balloting and would be "repugnant to a healthy independence of unions in their internal affairs."

Among charges Shultz dismissed were allegations of violence against Yablonski during the election campaign; that there was danger of ballot tampering after the election; and that Boyle's action last year in increasing pension benefits for miners was an illegal act to gain votes of retired UMW members.

Admiral Is Irate Over Collision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For years liberals have blamed the Vietnam War for everything from riots in the streets to the dissatisfaction of youth. Now the country's top admiral has blamed the war on causing one of his ships to run into a bridge.

The facts are that what I call the experience-level has been lowered by the fact that we have been fighting a rather extensive war in Vietnam with peacetime personnel policies, Adm. Thomas H. Moorer told a House appropriations subcommittee recently.

The admiral indicated that because experienced men are needed to man ships in the war zone, there are not enough to go around—particularly for ships in home waters.

"We are very much concerned about this," Moorer said, adding that in meetings of senior officers, "we talk about it all the time."

Designers May Solve Dilemma

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fashion designers of the world are in a terrible bind because of the peculiarity of the American market.

Hemlines in this country traditionally rise and fall with the economy. Milady shortens her skirts during periods of national prosperity and lengthens them during a slump.

But what does milady do when the economy is going up and down, at the same time as now appears to be the case?

Consumer prices and certain other economic indicators show that we are having a recession while stock markets and certain other economic indicators show we are having a recession.

Which leaves fashion designers impaled on the horns of a dilemma.

He has been called "the Gray Ghost" of diplomacy because of his quiet, humorous, but insistent methods in debate.

Bunker served as ambassador to Italy and to India-Nepal from 1958-61.

His attractive second wife, Carol Laise, 53, is U.S. ambassador to Nepal, making the couple the only U.S. husband-wife ambassadorial team in the world. Because of the demands of their respective jobs, they are only able to get together either in Saigon or Kathmandu every several weeks which is said to be another reason for Bunker's wish to retire to his farm in Vermont.

Bunker's first wife, Harriet, died in 1964. She was said to be the inspiration for the person in the book "The Ugly American" who introduced long-handled hammers to a mythical Asian country to straighten the backs of bent-over sweepers.

The late Mrs. Bunker worked on a similar project when her husband served as ambassador to India. They had three children and he has 12 grandchildren.

Bunker served as a United Nations delegate, diplomatic troubleshooter and was an ambassador-at-large when former President Lyndon B. Johnson named him ambassador to Vietnam in March, 1967, replacing Republican Henry Cabot Lodge.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — LaSalle's George P. Shultz said today his investigators had not turned up any evidence to link the murder of Joseph A. Yablonski with the United Mine Workers election last Dec. 9.

Shultz made the statement in testimony before the Senate labor subcommittee which has been investigating several aspects of the union election.

Shultz said the Labor Department has not found any merit in some of alleged election and campaign violations charged by Yablonski and his supporters against the union and UMW President W. A. "Tony" Boyle, who defeated Yablonski's insurgent candidacy.

"We do not know now that there is any connection between the election and the murders," Shultz said, but he conceded that the murder of Yablonski, his wife and daughter less than a month after the election had "cast a pall over the election."

"No man can review the history of this election without feeling the shadow cast back by the horror that happened after it was over," the labor secretary said.

Several indictments have been handed down in connection with the murders, including Magret is chief of naval operations and will become chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff this summer. He was questioned by congressmen recently about one of his amphibious cargo ships, the USS Yancey, which smashed into the Chesapeake Bay Bridge in Virginia Jan. 21, temporarily closing the bridge to auto traffic.

"In this particular case, the watch was manned strictly in accordance with the requirements," Moorer testified. "People were on station. But the young officer who was on the watch, again, had very limited experience."

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Tuesday, May 5 the 125th day of 1970, with 240 to follow.

The moon is new.

The morning star is Saturn.

The evening stars are Mars, Mercury, Venus, and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1821 Napoleon Bonaparte, of France died in exile on the Isle of Saint Helena.

In 1847 the American Medical Association was founded in Philadelphia.

In 1923 biology teacher John Scopes at Dayton, Tenn., was arrested for teaching evolution in violation of a state law.

In 1961 Alan Shepard rocketed 115 miles from Cape Canaveral, Fla., to become America's first space explorer.

A thought for the day: Greek poet Pindar said, "Longer than deeds lie the words."

DAVIDSON'S COCKROACH BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — The common household cockroach is capable of spreading Salmonella food poisoning as well as more than 40 other species of harmful bacteria, plus a number of viruses, according to Owen A. Kearns, Kern County, Calif., health officer.

Fashion designers are nothing if not resourceful, however, so in confident they will defeat the dilemma upon which they are hooked. Perhaps along these lines:

PARIS—Christine Porta, the famous French fashion designer, announced today that she had dehorned the dilemma caused by the American economy.

At the opening of her new creations in the Salon de Bizarro, Mlle. Porta unveiled a sensational "spyglass" dress which has a skirt that expands and contracts in length like a telescope.

It can be worn as a micro-mini, a mini, or a midl or a maxi, depending on the latest economic indicator.

Mlle. Porta explained that the skirt consists of our panels of varying circumferences. The micro-mini panel fits inside the mini panel, which fits inside the maxi panel.

"The panels slide up and down like the sections of a telescope and can be adjusted from 'affluent' to 'dead broke' in a matter of seconds."

RÔME—Emily Poody, the famous Italian fashion designer, announced today that she had dehorned the dilemma caused by the American economy.

At a showing of her new creations in the Palazzo di Pasta, she introduced a sensational "split level" look in pajamas for formal wear.

One leg, representing the stock market, reaches to the ankle and the other leg, representing the cost of living, stops at the top of the thigh.

"A lady in those pajamas is prepared for anything," the designer said.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Gov. Don Samuelson said this morning Idaho now ranks among the top Western states in weights and measures excellence.

He spoke at dedication ceremonies of the new Idaho weights and measures laboratory in Boise.

The 100,000 cubic foot counter was constructed by Atlas Tuna and furnished by $80,000 in federal funds.

Direct Voting

There is a determined push under way to do away with the Electoral College...

Senator Birch Bayh (D-Ind.) is the sponsor of a proposed Constitutional amendment...

Not only would Bayh do away with the Electoral College, he would have a national popular vote for President...

The effect of such a change is impossible to foretell but it would certainly add to the great concentration of power...

Big cities, traditionally the source of most electoral skulduggery, might offset by chicanery the honest votes of smaller states such as Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, New Mexico and North Dakota.

Furthermore, the geographical weighting which has been an integral part of the whole system and a part of its checks and balances, would be set aside completely in the choosing of a President.

The implications are frightening. It is at least conceivable that the theft of sufficient votes in Chicago, for instance, might change the outcome of a national election.

There is no need for such a drastic, far-reaching change, the ultimate results of which cannot be known. The chief argument for the change is a chimera of partisan imagining and not once in our history has it been real.

The Electoral College may be an anachronism which has never functioned as it was designed to do, but it can be put aside without also adopting the national direct election, vitiating states' right, and raising new problems of great magnitude.

The people should know full well what they are doing before they vote for any change in the Constitution of the United States, the greatest safeguard for the freedom of men in all history.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (NEA) — George Wallace's close race for the 1970 governorship with incumbent Gov. Albert Brewer has him pressing to the point where his fabled political skills sometimes wear thin.

He keeps hearing of polls which show him trailing Brewer from eight to 12 points for the May 5 primary, but he denies he has seen them.

He still has most of his old theatrical stump speaking talents and can be very funny. But today he finds it necessary to use the parade of out-of-state newsmen here as spear carriers in his rolling country music opera.

unemployment insurance, for basic state government workers pay, for highways. He pledges new medical schools and mental health centers and general colleges.

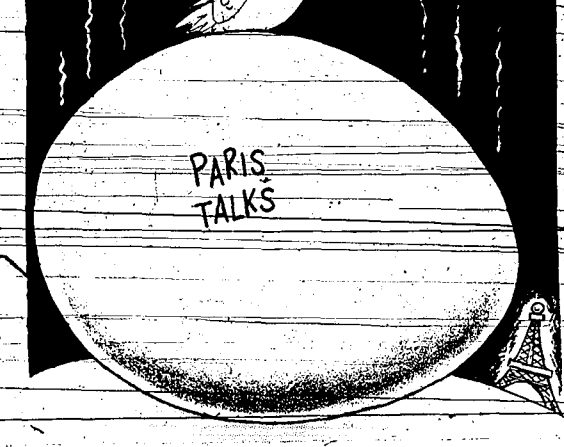

One leading Democrat in the state says that in the social field, George Wallace is running the most liberal campaign in court directives decreeing a unitary rather than a dual school system.

At the same time, Wallace says he will repeal the state's new tax on a wide range of utility services and will instead sock it to the utility companies.

George's door to register. Furthermore, when Gov. Lurleen, acting on his advice, seized the whole state public school system to try to bar bused desegregation, it gave the U.S. courts the excuse to put nearly all of Alabama's school districts under a single court order.

That order, replete with detailed plans for setting up unitary systems, takes full and final effect this September, four months before Wallace could take office as governor.

Since that order was first adopted, the U.S. Supreme Court twice has unanimously restated that "freedom of choice" plans are out and unitary systems must be put in place.

Lipomas

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes a lipoma? Is it the beginning of cancer? Can it become irritated and break open and drain? Should it be removed before that occurs?

My mother had this small lump that was diagnosed as lipoma. One day it became red and swollen and that night it began oozing a yellow-looking liquid.

A lipoma, also called a "fatty tumor," is the most innocent of tumors. It is a localized accumulation of fat.

They may be large enough to be unsightly or a nuisance. They may extend deep enough to put pressure on certain nerves and thus cause discomfort.

Or they may remain small, never cause any trouble, and never need anything done about them.

Some individuals may have quite a crop of these lipomas; others only one. They are, however, rather common.

They are not cancerous and do not "turn into cancer," which is what your mother needs to be told.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son is 2 1/2. Is he too young to be transferred from his baby bed to a large double bed? I have heard that transferring them too young will cause sleep-walking.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had my uterus, cervix, and one ovary removed. Is this called a "partial" or complete hysterectomy?

Defense Of Mutts

Today we speak out in defense of collies, beagles, wire-haired terriers, airedales, Boston bulls, Labradors, German shepherds, Dalmatians, setters, chows, pugs and just plain mutts.

These dogs are annoyed, jealous and frustrated because they seldom get their pictures in the papers anymore.

This may sound stupid, but it isn't. If you owned one of the above-mentioned dogs, you'd like to see his picture staring lovingly out at you from the pages of your favorite newspaper.

MR. SPECTATOR

Amusing Comment

Mr. Spectator was amused when he read that a woman stockholder of the Boise Cascade Corp., attending the annual meeting in Boise, said the business should be back-east "and out of the sticks."

So? Well, we might point out to that woman that the people of Idaho are just a little proud of Boise Cascade and are not about to stand still for any such suggestions.

We have a sneaking suspicion that the company — which is a Delaware corporation — came to Idaho and started here 13 years ago because this was the place. No doubt about it, in fact!

So they have their world headquarters up in Boise and, right now, are engaged in building a headquarters building that will cover an entire block. Boise Cascade is a big company. In 1969 the net sales came to $1.7 billion and the company earnings topped $84 million. So it could probably "settle" most anyplace.

Mr. Spectator had the pleasure of meeting R. V. Hansberger, president and chairman of the company. He heads a group of knowledgeable men who make the company tick.

Why does it tick? Because, like the president says, the "people of Boise Cascade continue to be our dogs — the basset hound, the poodle, the chihuahua and the cocker spaniel — that's what you see.

There's nothing wrong with a basset hound that a good face-lifting job couldn't improve. And we've nothing in particular against those hammy poodles, those emaciated chihuahuas, and those panhandling spaniels.

We could have criticized the St. Bernard, too, and we will, when we give up mountain climbing.

Yale's Rally

WASHINGTON — Maybe it is improvement over the bad old days when a Yale degree was a license to snoot the neighborhood. But I mourn Yale's descent to the second level of banana republic university.

Must we unwash now pity a Yale man where we used to sneer amiably at his foolish pretensions?

The rally on New Haven's Green in support of the Black Panthers in trial in a Connecticut court for murder and kidnapping is respectable because Yale has endorsed it.

I refer to Yale as an entity in this one because students, faculty and even its usually sensible president, Kingman Brewster, are involved.

At the end of 1969 the Boise Cascade "family" totaled 51,920 souls, described as "individual people" by the president.

We believe that highly motivated people perform more efficiently when they do their work in their own individual way," he said.

So there you can see the big reason for their success. They are a "people" company working as a team. They are controlled by waves of change but they put all their minds together to solve these changes.

The people of Boise Cascade are, not just so many bodies filling so many jobs. They are partners in what is going on and, because of this, they do a much better job.

Our hats are off to Boise Cascade and may it long stay in Idaho!

ART BUCHWALD

Roman Circus

WASHINGTON — "Good line, afternoon, everybody. This is Chris Schenkel speaking to you from Yale University on this beautiful June day. As you recall, after the tragic events of May when the students struck the university in sympathy with the Black Panthers, the authorities agreed to dispense with normal judicial procedures and hold the trial of the Panthers in the Yale Bowl with the students deciding the guilt or innocence of the Panthers by popular acclaim.

The idea for the compromise was suggested by a professor of Roman history, who felt that this would satisfy both the legal requirements of the state as well as the complaints by the student body and faculty that the Panthers could not get a fair trial.

At first the Connecticut courts objected to this type of trial, but when the students said they would refuse to go back to school unless their demands were met, the courts had no choice but to give in. Everyone knows the country cannot run without Yale.

And so today I am sitting here in the press box on the top of Yale Bowl, which is packed with students and faculty, ready to decide if the Black Panthers did or did not kill a so-called police informer.

If you'll forgive me for saying so, there is a Roman circus atmosphere here today as well as a sense of excitement.

A professor who decided to hold classes during the student strike was found guilty of racism and was thrown to a group of hungry lions which are now tethered at the 40-yard line. "A judge of the state supreme court who issued an injunction against holding the trial in the Yale Bowl was also thrown to the lions.

And just before I went on the air the mayor of New Haven as well as the fire chief were tried as counter-revolutionaries. All I can tell you, folks, is that those lions aren't hungry any more.

Well, we're just about ready for the big trial. The cheering section across from me is now doing card tricks. There they go with "Five fiery Newtons." Now they're spelling out "Well, let's skip that one... And here is the final card stunt... all I can make out from here is the word 'mother'."

Wait a minute! Wait a minute! That roar you just heard from the crowd means... Yes, here they are, coming in at the far corner of the stadium... The Black Panther defendants — the crowd is on its feet waving their BP banners. It is an unbelievable sight... "Now they're starting to boo. Oh, I see, the government witnesses are coming out of the crowd and of the stadium. The crowd is starting to throw bottles and cushions at the government witnesses."

Offtrack Betting Bugs N.Y. Bookie

By LEE MUELLER

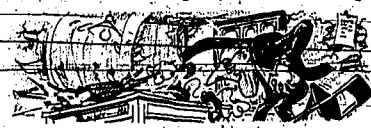

NEW YORK (NEA) The news that offtrack betting has been legalized in New York does not make Darford Damon extremely happy. Darford Damon owns and operates a business on Broadway which is closely associated with legalized offtrack betting—the only difference being that Damon's business is occasionally subject to arrest.

Damon is a professional bookmaker, which is to say that he takes bets on horses for his livelihood and spending money.

When the sun shines, Darford Damon spends his mornings leaning against a drugstore near 47th Street. Citizens wishing to do business with him merely slip him a duce or whatever and say to him, quietly, "Five horse in the 6th at Aqueduct."

When the sun does not shine, Darford Damon moves into his office, which is located in the back of a cigar store in the neighborhood. The room is very small and consists of a steel folding chair, a little table, a black telephone and an old umbrella that does not work. He keeps it around to work with, knock in the door.

Darford Damon is a thin man with bitter lines, tired hands, the ruins of fine blue eyes and a superior nose. An unshockable man, one might say if one said such things.

He writes down wagers in a little notebook with a red and white ballpoint pen he keeps in his pants pocket. He writes very small, he says, because he is a neat fellow and anyway does not care to waste good paper.

It has been known around and about for several years now that numbers/gambling has replaced illegal betting on horses as the most popular legitimate wagering in the city. (In numbers, the bettor places his dough—from a dime on up—on any combination of three digits. He wins if the three numbers he has picked match exactly, say, the last three digits on the stock market that day. Odds usually run from 500 to 1 to 600 to 1.)

"It is true that the numbers racket was somewhat disastrous to the bookie business," says Damon, "but bookies can always depend on his regulars to continue playing the horsefeet. To guess a number requires no skill whatsoever in my book, but to study racing charts and decide upon a victor is a great challenge and demands no little skill."

"Anyway, I have it on good information that the numbers people will not pay off if one happens to make a big hit. My own first cousin won $35,000. His runner refused to pay him. My cousin went to the police and last week they found him guzzled right at his front door. My own cousin. For a lousy $35,000."

Legalized offtrack betting presents horses of a different color, Damon said, not the least of which concerns the total extinction of small bettors. "What the numbers did not take away, this will," he said.

"I'll, Darford Damon thinks the bookie will carry on. "The way I view the situation," he said, "was of the bookmaking business got three things going for us. "First, the big bettor is still going to bet with us because he is looking for what ain't taxable."

"Second, it don't matter how many betting shops the state puts up, there is no way they can replace the telephone—which takes us to the third thing—credit."

"I have found that a customer will return to the scene if you let him place a bet on the cut—although it is true that in my lifetime I have had to knock a few people down and stay on their knees in order to get what is mine."

"There are some very hard guys in this business, including guys who will shoot you in the head, or maybe the stomach, and think nothing whatever of the matter. I am not that way. If the book is going to persist and carry on, he should keep his customers."

GOP Leaders See South As 'Fertile'

By RAYMOND LAHR
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The GOP may or may not have a southern strategy, but Republican leaders are surveying the South as fertile territory for the election of more Republican governors.

In the 11 Dixie states, Republicans now occupy the governors' offices in Arkansas, Florida and Virginia. All three were elected in the last four years.

Lonesome Old Man Tells Tale

By JAMES K. CAZALAS
ATLANTA (UPI)—The old man spends the twilight of his life wandering through the park, taking an occasional sip of cheap beer and looking at the flowers.

In their own appraisals of the outlook for 1970, the Republicans see chances ranging from good to remote of taking governorships now held by Democrats in Texas, South Carolina, Tennessee and Georgia.

The old man has a chronic cough and his eyes are red and filmy. His "bulbous" face is tracked with little blood vessels and his stooped walk is almost a shuffle.

In Florida, Gov. Claude R. Kirk Jr., is running for reelection and must win a primary contest for renomination. In Arkansas, Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller is expected to seek a third two-year term.

"I'm not a bum or a thief," he said, "I worked most of my life. I went to Cornell. I used to be in real estate, but I'm retired now."

A delegation of Republican governors held a private session with President Nixon in March to review prospects in the state elections to be held Nov. 3. The governors may compile another report for him at their semi-annual meeting at Santa Fe, N.M., this week.

"His hard times began in 1962, he said, when his second wife died after a long illness."

Nationally, the Republicans must wrestle more about defending the governorships it now holds than about displacing Democrats. Of 35 governorships at stake this year, 34 are now held by Republicans and 11 by Democrats.

"I never went back to work. I went down to the office of a few weeks after the funeral and cleaned out my desk. Then I sat around and drank my money away. That was in Chicago. I wandered around for a few years and came here 13 years ago."

In the 10 most populous states, the Democrats now hold a governor only in Texas. Eight of those states elect governors this year—Victories in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio would bring the new bases of power to the Democrats.

"The old man asked for a cigarette and after lighting it cupping his hands around the proffered lighter—against the brisk April breeze, he looked up and said "Can I buy you a beer?"

There are two main reasons: The Japanese have got money these days, and the government is at last allowing them to spend it on overseas travel pleasure.

"At a nearby bar he settled down with a beer and said 'I get so lonely. Not many people to talk to.'"

Last year the authorities decided, after long pondering, to permit the Japanese tourist allowance to go up from $500 per person per trip to $700.

"He signed his beer slowly, then peered over the rim of the glass and said, 'I want to show you something.'"

There has been other changes, each time a Japanese goes overseas he must get a new passport. The process of issuing passports used to be a tiresome one, involving long delays while the immigration people fiddled with their "hanko" (Chinese character name stamps).

"We drove back to Piedmont Park and down a winding road on the north edge where there is a small forest. We stopped at a small bluff near a sign that said 'Tree Trail'—a cloyed tree, displaying trees indigenous to the area."

"The old man smiled for the first time that morning. A 10-minute walk down a trail carpeted with pine needles brought us to the edge of Peachtree Creek."

"THE BEAR WHO WENT TO COLLEGE" has returned to his young mistress, Miss Debra Sparrell, on left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sparrell, Dorm Drive. Japanese Tourism Soars As Travel Curbs Are Eased

By HENRY SCOTT STOKES

TOKYO—For years Japanese businessmen have been great travelers. But nowadays it's not only the businessmen who are traveling. The Japanese are becoming tourists.

These days they have been told to get a move on, and the process of getting a passport goes more smoothly. Basically, the authorities are happy to see tourist spending overseas go up, because they have a big balance of payments surplus—one of embarrassing size, which they want to reduce.

Golden Bennett Will Seek Office

Golden R. Bennett, who has filed nominating petitions for the office of Twin Falls County Prosecutor on the Democratic ticket, said in a statement in declaring his candidacy that he intends to fairly and sensibly enforce laws if elected, giving no favored treatment to any economic or religious segment of society.

Mr. Bennett said in his statement he would devote the time necessary to assist and acquire Twin Falls county law enforcement officers with the constitutional principles that are basic to the American system of government so arrests will not be made on mere suspicion and evidence will not be collected by unlawful means.

T.F. City Directory Off Press

The new Polk City Directory for Twin Falls is off the press and has been distributed to subscribers in the area. The edition lists 20,592 personal and business names in Twin Falls, including Buhl and Twin Falls County taxpayers.

Mr. Bennett said he has 18 years of legal experience over 12 of which were spent in enforcing state and federal criminal laws. As an Air Force lawyer, he said, "I have participated in both the prosecution and defense of criminal cases with equal vigor and results."

Mr. Bennett said he believes he can save the county many thousands of dollars by sensible handling of criminal cases. Prosecutions should not be pursued without sufficient lawful evidence available to assure conviction, he said.

Hospital Quality Mullied

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—The Defense Department is analyzing its military hospital system with an eye toward not only improving the "new generation" of hospitals but also the facilities as well.

Arthur D. Little Co. of Cambridge has been conducting a 15-month survey and analysis at nine army, air force and navy hospitals. It plans to complete the study in the fall.

The first phase of the program revolves around analyzing the current military hospital network. The second segment includes construction of prototype military hospital to test improvements recommended for the so-called "new generation" of hospitals after 1975.

The 40-member Arthur D. Little team, in a recent review of its work for the Pentagon, identified four possible areas of saving and improved care:

- Reorganization of the health care system to provide ambulatory care and the use of paramedical personnel where possible.
- Increasing use of light-care facilities.
- Development of a flexibility process to make structures adaptable to unexpected changes in a situation, both during and after construction.
- Improved management information system and incentives for efficient operation of the system.

The prototype facility will serve as an experimental hospital in evaluating the recommendations. Information obtained in the study will be made available by the Pentagon to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the American Hospital Association, other medical and surgical groups and the Association of American Medical Colleges for possible implementation in civilian hospitals.

The hospitals being studied are at Fort Dix, N.J.; Fort Belvoir, Va.; Fort Bragg, N.C.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Naval Air Station, Oakland, Calif.; March Air Force Base in California; Andrews AFB outside Washington, D.C.; and Lackland AFB, Tex.

The Defense Department operates more than 240 hospitals with about 50,000 beds and 450 dispensaries. Staff personnel numbers about 200,000.

Where Does 'Dan' Lie?

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI)—On a scenic bluff overlooking the Kentucky River and the state's capital here lie the remains of frontiersman Daniel Boone and his wife Rebecca.

Theory behind this question is one of the most intriguing in the state's history, even more so because it has never been factually answered.

Boone first came to Kentucky, then a part of Virginia, in 1767. Two years later he led the first group of settlers over the famed "Wilderness Road" into what was to become the new state of the Union.

Boone helped to settle the state and in 1788 moved to Virginia. Ten years later he got the job to move on and took his family to Missouri, where he died in 1820. His wife had died five years earlier.

The Kentucky legislature, in 1844, asked Missouri for permission to remove the remains of Boone and his wife to Frankfort. Actually, the request had economic overtones. The Frankfort Cemetery was then in the process of being established and the cemetery correctly named "Boone" buried there would help their enterprise.

The next year, in 1845, permission had been obtained by Boone's direct descendants to disinter the bodies. But Missouri finally caught on to what the loss might mean and appropriated $500 for a monument to be placed over the graves.

The Kentucky disinterment committee was quicker, however, and arrived at the grave site, near Marthasville, Mo., on July 17, 1845 to claim the remains.

And it was then the catch occurred.

Missouri historians claim the bones removed were not Boone's, but those of an unknown stranger. The authenticity of Rebecca's remains was apparently not questioned.

The Missouri version of the story goes that when Boone died, the grave diggers penetrated the remains of an earlier grave next to Rebecca's. So they buried Boone at his wife's feet. But his gravestone was placed next to his wife, leaving the impression that they were buried side-by-side. This is what the Kentucky committee thought. They dug up the remains and carted them back to Frankfort where they were reburied on Sept. 13, 1845 after lying in repose in the cemetery for a month.

Ninety years later Missouri sent its lieutenant governor to formally request the Kentucky Historical Society, which maintains the grave site, to return the remains. In 1937, Warren, Mo., mentioned then Gov. Albert B. Chandler of Kentucky to return them. And in 1955, the Chamber of Commerce at St. Charles, Mo., asked the return of Rebecca's bones for reburial with her husband, whose grave, they claimed, had not been opened 110 years before.

But Kentucky has refused all requests and the mystery remains. It is probably a good bet that the issue will stay unanswered.

AB this, though, really makes little difference, according to Allan Trout of Frankfort, a noted Boone historian and former newspaper columnist.

"Actually, it makes very little, if any, difference whether the mortal trace in Frankfort Cemetery is of Boone or a stranger," Trout says. "In the minds of millions, he and his wife are buried here on a picturesque bluff overlooking the capital of the Bluegrass state he founded 200 years ago."

Laura Vincent Packs Bags, Heads For 'Miss' Pageant

Laura Vincent's feet are getting a little tired, but other than that, she's having a great time getting ready for the 1970 National Junior Miss Pageant.

Idaho's Junior Miss, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Vincent, Filer, packed all her pageant finery and took off Saturday morning from the Twin Falls City-County Airport bound for Washington, D.C. and Mobile, Ala.

One thing she overlooked, however, was her "loafers" and she has since called her parents, asking them to mail them to her. She took several pair of dress shoes and a pair of tennis shoes which she will be using for on-stage shows, but she had no practical footwear for just general use-and-practices.

The 50 girls entered in the pageant have spent three days touring the nation's capital, prior to going to Mobile to begin intensive practice and judging sessions in preparation for the Saturday pageant.

The girls visited with their congressmen while in Washington, and were scheduled to meet with the President. However, because of the Cambodian situation, President Nixon has cancelled all his social engagements.

As Idaho's ambassador to the national pageant, Laura took along paper weights and Idaho potato pins to distribute to the other 49 girls in the contest.

While at the pageant, Laura and Miss Tennessee are staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Walker, 3901 Camilla Drive, Mobile, Ala. 36608. "It is a case anyone wants to write to her," her mother said.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent will fly to Mobile Friday to be with their daughter during the pageant. Mrs. Vincent said Laura was disappointed that the whole family could not be there. She has five younger sisters and brothers. Her aunt, the former Myrna Willis and her husband, Mike Oliver, of Gainsville, Fla., also will be in Mobile for the finals.

The pageant will be broadcast on KMVT at 7 p. m. May 13.

Bulgaria's 'One-Way' Policy Spurs Tourism

RICHARD LUNGWORTH SOFIA, Bulgaria. (UPI)—The most modern and efficient shops on Sofia's Ruskli Street are the ones housing the western airline companies. But they get little business from Bulgarians.

As far as tourism goes, the Bulgarian government issues mostly one-way tickets. Western tourists can come in and welcome. But few Bulgarians get to go out.

It has been this way since the Communists took over after World War II. A new passport law passed by parliament last year is not expected to change things.

Bulgaria's campaign to lure foreign tourists—and hard Western currency—has shown striking success. Only 2,800 foreigners came here in 1965 and 414,000 in 1969.

By contrast, an estimated 2 million persons visited Bulgaria in 1969 in response to the country's publicity about its scenic and mountain scenery and its construction of new hotels. About half of these tourists came from the West.

The outgoing traffic is something else. Only 270,000 went abroad in 1969 and the figure is expected to be little higher. More significant, not much more than 10 or 15 per cent of this total went West, with the rest all going to Russia or other Communist countries.

The new law lays down restrictions on who can have passports. Among those barred from getting a passport are "persons whose trips abroad are inconsistent with state interests, or whose stay or behavior abroad has damaged the prestige of the Bulgarian People's Republic."

This restricted rule can be applied to almost anybody—and probably will, according to analysts here.

Passports in Bulgaria are issued by the Interior Ministry—the police ministry—and not the Foreign Ministry. According to reports it is rare for a passport to be issued on the first application.

Passports specify which countries may be visited and are usually given for trips to close relatives in the West—especially those who are willing to pay all the costs. Most other travel is by carefully-chosen groups.

This tough attitude toward travel has two main reasons behind it—the Bulgarian shortage of Western currency and fear of technological subversion. Both also are major factors in the equally tough Soviet travel laws.

The new law went one step further than the old in cutting down contact between Bulgarians and foreigners. Under the old law, potential Bulgarian tourists themselves went to Western embassies in Sofia to get their visas. Under the new act, the Foreign Ministry will do this for them.

Mosquitoes Serve As 'Patients'

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI)—Brain surgeon Adren O. Lea's patients are so small he has to use a microscope to see what he is doing.

Lea is a neurologist and his surgery is performed on mosquitoes which are usually up and flying about five minutes after the operation.

Lea and fellow researchers at the University of Georgia are studying salt marsh mosquitoes and their reproduction. Their goal is better control of the insects.

Lea has already proved the brain and glands in the post for nine years. He was Montpellier city attorney from 1958 to 1967.

While in the attorney general's office, he specialized in tax problems and acted as prosecuting attorney of Bear Lake County, serving in this post for nine years. He was a graduate of Creighton University School of Law, Omaha, Neb., in 1952.

He is married to the former Millie Thomas of Valentine, Nebraska, and they are the parents of three children.

FOR THE BIRDS SINGAPORE (UPI)—Singapore is trying to lure song birds out of the jungle. With urbanization, singing birds have taken refuge in thick forests. Ornithologists now are creating bird sanctuaries in places like the Botanic Gardens, King George V park and other parks in the hope the birds will return.

Aging Solon Typifies 'Odd' Capital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Odds and ends from the nation's capital — mostly odd: Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., finally has gotten around to letting constituents know he's showing a sign or two of age (he'll be 50 in August).

In his weekly newsletters through Vol. 10, No. 11, a slender-faced guy with black hair beamed out from the letterhead with the U.S. Capitol in the background.

In Vol. 10, No. 14, the Capitol is still there. But Pike suddenly has put on quite a bit of weight, his hair is heavily streaked with gray — and the smile is gone.

"What is an antique?" The Treasury Department's bureau of customs inquired of itself in a release, then replied:

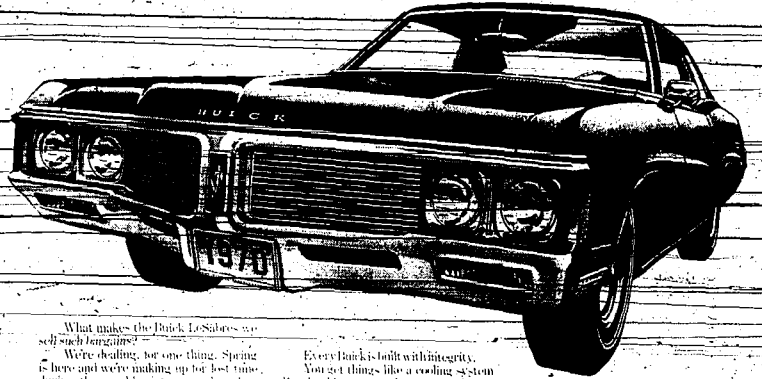

"Time was when U.S. customs declared that an antique to be admitted duty free, had to be manufactured prior to 1830. For rugs and carpets the date was 1701, and for violins, violas, violoncellos and double basses, 1801.

"All of that has changed. Today, customs says an antique is an antique when it is 100 years old. There is an exception for ethnographic objects made in traditional, aboriginal styles. These must be only 50 years old to merit duty free status."

So now you know that.

Church To Host Visit By Bishop

The First United Brethren Church of Twin Falls will host a visit by Bishop Raymond G. Waldfoegel, bishop of the Western United States, on Wednesday.

Bishop Waldfoegel will inspect improvements in the church facilities located at 502 Third Ave. E., according to the Rev. Del Story of the Twin Falls church. Rev. Story said that the church has tripled its attendance during the past three months and has completed an extensive remodeling project, including laying of new carpeting and installation of upholstered pews.

A pot-luck dinner at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday will honor Bishop Waldfoegel, followed by a worship service at 7:30 p.m.

On Grassy Plot Of Ground The Reporter Watched Tragedy Come

By ROBERT E. CORBETT
KENT, Ohio (UPI)—The Kent State University Commons is a large, rectangular grassy plot of ground. It is surrounded on four sides by administration and classroom buildings and slopes up one side to a grove of trees atop a knoll.
On the commons, I watched crowd disorder turn to tragedy. About noon, I stood along the side of the Commons, midway between about 100 National Guard troops and a group of about 600 demonstrators, who gathered in violation of a ban against assembly.
A lone jeep, carrying three Guardsmen with fixed bayonets and one campus policeman with a bullhorn, left the ranks of the troops and headed toward the center of the Commons.
"Attention all K-S-U students, you have five minutes to leave this area. Leave this area immediately."
Defiant students
The students waved their clenched fists in a power salute, and shouted "Fight, fight, and 'One two three four, we don't want your bloody war."
The jeep stopped. The troops moved out on line, with fixed bayonets. Many Guardsmen carried M79 grenade launchers from which they fired tear gas shells. The tear gas canisters flew about 100 yards into the center of the demonstrators. The students moved back. They reformed at the top of the knoll, overlooking the Commons. Several students charged down the hills toward the Guardsmen, picked up the burning tear gas shells, and hung them back at the troops.

Blount Says Nixon Administration Restoring Nation's Faith In Self

DETROIT (UPI)—Postmaster General Winton M. Blount said Monday the Nixon administration was "well along in the task of restoring a society shaken and shattered by discord and violence."
"We have an administration which has begun the long, hard task of restoring in the people of this nation the faith that their destiny lies truly in their hands," Blount said at a luncheon of the Economic Club of Detroit.
"We have an administration well along in the task of restoring a society shaken and shattered by discord and violence," Blount said.

Blount said the country would survive the youth revolution. He said civil disobedience "doesn't fit reality and it doesn't fit modern-day America."
Blount said civil disobedience was fine in the past, "in a nation without a vast communications network, without transportation, without any of the opportunities for such a doctrine to work its natural mischief."
He said the country would survive the revolution of rising domestic expectations, and the revolution of equality between the sexes, and equality between the races, and the technological revolution, and all the other real or imagined revolutions that help the editorial writers earn a living.
"I think we're going to survive the youth revolution after all, we created it," he said.

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, challenged young people Monday to turn even greater energy toward making the world a better place in which to live.
Hansen spoke at a political issues forum at Texas A & M University. The stop was made on his return to Washington from California where Hansen was involved in the house select education subcommittee's public hearings on the proposed environmental quality education act which he has sponsored.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (UPI)—Scientists at the Department of Agriculture research station at Lethbridge have found a new way to increase growth of chickens by adding fat and protein to their diet.
Dr. E. E. Gardner, a poultry nutritionist, discovered that growth was increased by adding lysine, from which chickens make protein, and ordinary animal fat to the chickens' normal diet of wheat and soybean meal.

Days Past No Good For Today

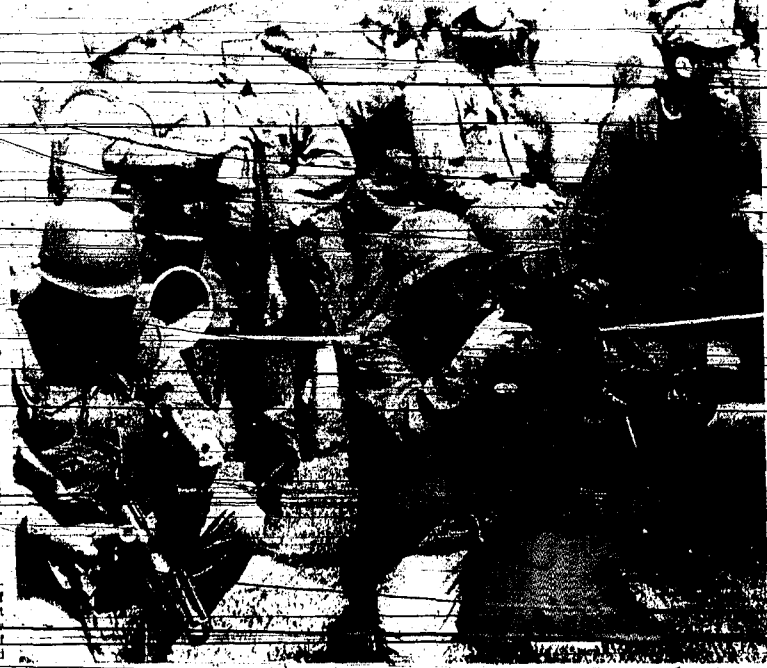

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — Regents and other university administrative heads cannot regain arbitrary powers of bygone days because they will find no legal backing," James B. Willard, assistant Washington state attorney general, said Monday.
Wilson, chief legal counsel for the University of Washington, expressed the opinion during the opening session of the Conference of Western Attorneys General here.
He told a group of about 75 attorneys, "It takes too much time to go through the old channels. Students like immediate action."
Wilson noted, as an example of the old ways, that the student disciplinary code at the University of Washington was circulated in committees for more than two years before it was passed.

Solution Lies In Schools

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — The real solution to disruptive and destructive campus behavior lies with the students and teachers themselves, Idaho Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy said here Monday night.
Murphy was keynote speaker for the Conference of Western Attorneys General.
He said he believes a large number of students do not have any identity on the campus, so to get attention "students turn to sensational acts to get an audience."
Murphy said when the students and teachers find they are the solution to stopping campus disorders, "then, and only then, will the restlessness on the campus find what it seeks—its destiny to teach and learn in a tolerant and orderly atmosphere."

"If we are to protect the environment that sustains life we must learn more about it and put forth a massive educational effort to awaken the nation to the crisis that exists," Hansen said.
"What we cannot stop there. We must find and implement effective programs that will improve and then maintain the quality of our air, water and soil."
He added the nation would "look to young people for leadership in this common effort to clean up our environment. The primary emphasis must be on youth."

The ambassador said the terrorist fired five shots from a revolver during the attack. He said Mrs. Peers, who had a clerical job at the embassy, was at her desk at the time.

Her husband is presently in Rio de Janeiro. The trio were said to have arrived here last April 1.

Freak Windstorm Strikes In Wendell

WENDELL — "It looked like a small tornado," said David Rodriguez, Sr., Monday afternoon when a whirlwind appeared unexpectedly. He stated the wind blowing toward the Northeast at approximately 3 p. m. tore the roof from a storage shed and lifted lumber and farm machinery in the immediate area several feet high. Mr. Rodriguez was repairing machinery at his home on East Ave. F. when the dust storm came. He stated that the roof of a toolshed measuring 20 feet long and 25 feet high, standing about 30 yards from where he was working, was torn off and landed some 15 yards behind the shed.

Other damage resulted to a camper when the top was blown 25 feet in the air and landed some 100 yards from the original position in a pasture. Also lumber was whipped about in the air like paper.

Mr. Rodriguez and two sons, Charlie and David, spent an hour picking up the debris. He stated the whirl wind covered an approximate 100 foot area. He stated further that he was badly frightened, as he is a former resident of Southeastern United States where tornados are common and threw himself flat on the ground during the time of the short whirlwind as he felt he was likely to be picked up by the

City Council Requests T.F. Water District

Organization of a Twin Falls irrigation district for the administration of ditch water and assessment of its users to eliminate one of the major inequities in city administration was called for Monday night by city council members.

City officials said they felt it would be passed on to the city. City Engineer George Michels was asked to give further study to water and sewer rates for mobile home parks and apartments and place the matter under franchise which the proposed ordinance would do.

Members heard a report by the city engineering department and city manager, Jean Milar, city manager, said such a district would be paying the cost of its distribution and purchase from the Twin Falls Canal Company.

VEW Commander Offers Support To Nixon On Asia

SHOSHONE — "Full support is given President Nixon in his stand in Vietnam and related area," reports Lee A. Doolittle, Coeur d'Alene state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars who made an official visit to the Shoshone VFW post officers Sunday.

In talking to Shoshone post commander, Bill Anderson, Mr. Doolittle stated he is in accord with the National VFW stand with full support of President Nixon and warned against international military and political strategy who provide false hope and misleading comfort to the enemy with a desire to have us retreat from Vietnam no matter what the cost.

He said "The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States believes that our cause is just, and right and proper in Vietnam and we intend to challenge loudly and clearly those divisive elements in this which would backdown form the challenge of Communism and set out our men on the fighting front."

He further said "Never in the history of our nation has there been a greater need for national unity and support of our constituted leaders, and it is difficult for our enemies to understand that America's freedom to debate and dissent does not mean a lack of resolve to honor our commitments."

Filer Will Hear Two Ordinances

TWO ORDINANCES were placed on first reading by Twin Falls city council members Monday night.

One would require taxicabs licensed in Twin Falls to increase their insurance to $20,000 for property damage and $100,000 and $300,000 on public liability. Council members recommended first reading to give taxi companies an opportunity to investigate the new regulation.

The other ordinance, called before the council by Councilman Tom Nelson, would revise the city's drunken driving ordinance to coincide with the new state law which makes a 10 day jail sentence mandatory and lowers the blood alcohol content limitations for drunken status.

Mayor Frank Feldman also issued three proclamations including those for Loyalty Day, Carnation Day for American War Mothers, and National Music Week.

Magic Valley

The council adopted an ordinance under emergency procedure to plumbers who work on the city sewer system. It stipulates that plumbers must have certificates of competency from State Board of Health and must purchase a city permit to make hook ups to the city sewer line. Cost of the permit will be $20.

Councilmen also approved a bill of $26,887 from the Tony Russell Construction Co. for a portion of Phase II of the city sewage installation project. Councilmen approved a request from Lee Schlander, attorney, to participate in the Ketchum Housing Authority. The authority was granted $40 for miscellaneous expense to be incurred in preparing information for HUD in San Francisco. The information must be submitted before the city can qualify for federal funds for a low cost housing development here. Mr. Schlander said the authority is ready to go on the project, but the funds were needed for required studies on the project. Councilmen agreed to send a letter to Marilyn Walker, ordering her to stop operation of a nursery school in the Warm Springs Area, on the complaint of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bennett, who told councilmen that Mrs. Walker was in violation of city ordinance. She is taking children of all levels instead of the 2 to 5-year-old limit. They said she has too many children for her floor space, as provided in the ordinance, and that she has never maintained permanent residence at the site, which is also required by the ordinance. Mr. Bennett said Mrs. Walker had earlier been contacted by the council and promised to correct the situation, but had not done so.

Members attended services at the Methodist Church following the breakfast. The next meeting will be at 4 p. m. May 18 at Wood Cafe.

GLENN'S FERRY — The Elmora Opportunity Center is now enrolling children for the summer Head Start program. The 8-week course for children starting school this fall gets under way on May 20 in Glenn's Ferry. For further information, the EOC office in Mountain Home may be contacted.

Ketchum Ventriloquist Entertains

By WILMA LARSON
Times-News Correspondent

HAGERMAN — Al Fiddler, well-known Ketchum resident and entertainer, and his assistant, "Homer Hemlock," entertained more than 350 guests with his outstanding ventriloquism and quick wit.

Local entertainers were Peggy Hendrickson and Cheryl Sandy, high school seniors, who sang several selections accompanied by Miss Hendrickson on the guitar; Helen Woody, Salt Lake City, formerly of Hagerman, and Vernell Beede, Miss Woody sang several selections accompanying herself on the guitar and Beede presented a humorous reading. Besides ventriloquism, Mr. Fiddler also sang and played the guitar. Alfred Sandy was master of ceremonies.

The annual barbecue has become well known throughout Magic Valley for its good food and superb entertainment and is but one of the many money-raising projects for the local Lions Club.

The organization also sponsors trap shoots, concessions at the Hagerman Valley Openness Day, light-glove sales, LIVE, Inc. productions and recently sponsored a return engagement of Merlin, the Magician.

To help promote community awareness of pollution, the organization recently sponsored a film on water pollution, free of charge, to the public. "Ice Serve," the motto of Lions Clubs International, is exemplified by the local club which will observe its 10th Anniversary this year.

Although, a comparatively young organization and quite small in membership in comparison to other clubs in the area and state, the Hagerman Lions Club has many projects which have been its priority projects and this project alone has provided eye glasses for some 20 persons in this area.

Three pairs of eye glasses were purchased during the past year, but as many as 12 pairs have been purchased during the year. Proceeds from the light-glove sale each fall are used strictly for the eye-sight conservation program. Products made by LIVE, Inc., Boise, where blind persons made such articles as rugs, door-mats and brooms to help support themselves, are also sold by the Lions.

Probably one of the most satisfying projects in recent years is the Christmas tree lighting purchased for the city through the joint efforts of the Lions Club, Chamber of Commerce, American Legion, Lea Owsley Post No. 31 and the city. Plans are underway by the Lions to add two additional strings of lights by this December.

Each Christmas, crates of oranges are donated to the Magic Valley Manor, Wendell and Christmas treats are provided for the local pre-school and school children.

Each spring, a special day is set aside for the Lions members to assist the older residents of the community in cleaning up their yards and hauling off the winter's accumulation of trash. May 9 has been selected for "clean-up" day this year, which will be under the direction of Marie Orlov.

The club also contributes to the local "Little League" baseball team for uniforms and other expenses and cooperates with the American Legion to help sponsor three delegates each year to Boys' State.

Another community project currently underway is a cemetery canopy.

The pending efforts of the Lions members throughout the state brought eyesight to a blind Preston man through a cornea transplant. He received the first eye donation in the state of Idaho to fall under the Anatomical Gift Act passed by the state legislature March 11, 1969. From this has stemmed the Eye Bank through which members may donate their eyes after their death that others may see.

The attitude of the leaders of any organization is of utmost importance in whether or not the organization is a success. R. F. (Bob) Adolf, current president of the Hagerman Lions, was recently presented the Lions White Medal pin as a symbol of appreciation for bringing in three new members in the organization during the January-February membership drive. According to Don K. Zuck, district governor, "Adolf is the top Lion in the district by

Linda Heller, Geissler Exchange Nuptial Vows

GOODING — Linda Heller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Heller, Gooding, exchanged wedding vows March 22 with Spec. 5 Martin Geissler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Geissler, Wendell.

The ceremony was held in the home of the bridegroom's parents in Wendell before a large fireplace. Floral arrangements of white lilies and carnations completed the background setting.

Rev. Helen Davenport of the First Baptist Church, Gooding, officiated for the double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her mother and father, wore a floor-length sleeveless gown. The empire-fashioned dress of white featured a burst of daisies on the bodice and ribbon at the waistline. Her shoulder-length bridal veil was held in place by a single lace daisy. The bride carried a bouquet of daisies.

Carole Ann Moline, Gooding, served as maid of honor, with Mary Ann Estep, Gooding, as bridesmaid. Sisters of the bride Laura, Sandra, Debbie and Janice, participated in the ceremony by presenting the bride her traditional tokens of sentiment.

Serving as best man for his brother was Francis Geissler. Brother of the bride, Mike Heller, served as usher.

Wedding solemnity was the featured part of the ceremony, accompanied by Patsy Clements. A reception was held immediately after the ceremony. The bride's table was centered with a lily and carnation floral arrangement, flanked by white taper candles.

The three-tiered wedding cake, carried out the wedding colors and flowers with decorations of yellow and white daisies and lilies. A miniature bride-and-bridegroom-topped the cake.

The bride will join her husband shortly at his new station in Germany, where he is serving as a chemical specialist in the Army.

Local Mentor Club Observes 50th Year At Luncheon Meet

Mentor Club, organized during the summer of 1920, observed its 50th Anniversary recently with a luncheon at the Colonial House.

Quartet tables were centered with pink velvet roses, the emblem. Favos included small white Bibles and gold nut cups.

The speaker's table was centered with a decorated cake and Mrs. Tempa Ellenwood, acting president, was in charge of the meeting and program.

The Mentor Club was organized by Mrs. W. B. Wolfe as a study club. The first club project was study of Montaigne's essays from which the name was derived. The club gradually became a "working" club and belong to this rural Federation and the National Federation of Women's Clubs.

The club served a great need for social activities in the early years in the Curry community. Project money was usually raised by serving luncheon for farm auctions and by having silent auctions among the members. For many years money was donated each year to Capper's Farm in Kansas City to assist in financing a school for crippled children.

During the later years donations have been made to many organizations including the YWCA, Easter Seal, Red Cross, Harbor House and New Jersey. Now, among social activities, a banquet is held each year, with husbands of members as guests, and a family picnic during the summer.

Tips Given On Persuading Youngsters To Read Books

Getting a youngster to read and enjoy it is not so much a matter of leading him to books as it is of creating a climate in which he sees reading as an enjoyable and rewarding experience.

Educators agree that early exposure in the household involving other members of the family is a powerful way to get a youngster off on the right foot.

One authority, William J. Worrell, suggests that if a parent can create a warm atmosphere of reading pleasure it could be the beginning to a lifelong interest in reading and learning for that child.

Mr. Worrell is president of the Pilgrim Book Society, which he founded 12 years ago to promote book-reading.

Aided by professional librarians and the American Library Association, the Pilgrim Book Society has devoted itself to creating reading lists designed to expose individuals to outstanding literature and reinforce reading experience.

"America's top leaders, its all fields, are invariably avid readers," Mr. Worrell notes. "The ability to communicate, whether writing, reading, speaking, or even listening, is an essential quality and it is rooted in good reading habits which are formed early."

"The role of the parent and teacher is to inspire the youngster to want to read and learn—not to pressure him to do so before he is ready, or able."

Here are a few suggestions from Worrell for developing a child's early interest in books and reading, and for selecting books to maintain that interest:

1. Associate reading with your warm, loving relationship with your child. There are many ways to do this and one of the best is to let your child sit on your lap while you read. Always develop the idea that reading and listening to stories are pleasant experiences for everyone.
2. Make bedtime reading a habit as soon as your children are responsive to bedtime-type stories. Commented Mr. Worrell, "This creates a good transition from a hectic day of activity for all to a night of peaceful sleep. Just one key-word youngster can keep other children awake for hours with restlessness and a bedtime story is a classic example of slowing down a child's level of activity."
3. Set an example, let your child see you reading. "Just sit down with the evening newspaper and watch the news, your youngster join you while you read," added Worrell. "If the child has a book nearby, he will begin to imitate the reading adult."
4. Keep reading materials for the child with you. "A book is an excellent way to pass time on a long, tedious car ride or while waiting at a doctor's office," Worrell said. "This makes a book become a pleasant time-killer."
5. Expose your pre-school child to the local library when he begins to develop an interest in your family book collection. Let him select his own reading materials from the pre-school book shelves. If the book he selects is not of great interest, he will become bored and can be guided to books closer to his own level. The child then has the option of pacing himself as his reading ability grows. Investigate the music and art rooms of most libraries with your children.
6. Point out written words around the child. This includes advertisements, candy bars, traffic signs, newspapers and other "non-book" sources of reading.
7. Words surround the adult in his world," commented Worrell. "This could impress a child on the future importance of reading and that he should learn to read as quickly as he can."
8. Read as much advanced material as possible. Try advanced poetry. Never establish a limit to reading.
9. Give books as gifts. Build a family library.
10. Stress reading as often as possible. Said Mr. Worrell, "As in adult life, reading is always with us. Show your child that reading is a continuing affair. Keep a reading program on your daily program as the youngster nears the school years. Perhaps, an hour of reading for the whole family might be a good idea."
11. Develop a reading chart of books read to show a child's achievement. To know the range of reading materials available today, you may wish to obtain a doctor-approved reading list for various age-groups of children.

Still barbecuing the same old dirty way?

Go to the store! Buy charcoal. haul it home. Spill some in your car. Spill some more on the way through the house. Get some on yourself when you load it in the grill. Squirt some lighter fluid and jump back. Wait... wait... wait... THEN COOK?

Eliminate all this nonsense! Cook on a gas barbecue. The briquettes are made of stone. You cook over them for over with a short 10-minute warmup. The food flavor is superb. Exactly the same as charcoal except you don't have to buy and fuss with the messy stuff!

Fairs Are Proliferating

By JAMES R. JOHNSON CHICAGO (UPI)—The tendency often is to take to the attic and hide when the call goes out for volunteers to help with a fund-raising event at school, church, or PTA. But if you choose a book fair, these evasive tactics may no longer be necessary. Fairs are proliferating around the country, and new developments in staging them have simplified the task and made them more popular than ever with volunteer groups.

"Book fairs have become solidly established as an excellent way to raise funds, with over 10,000 fairs held annually in the United States," reports Myron Mason, head of the "EART" Development Co., Jacksonville, Ill., a major supplier to book fairs.

"The real trick in making these fairs easy to hold and successful in raising funds is to choose books that are keyed to the interest of the fair-goers. Enable the customer to buy his book on the spot, rather than order it and have to wait for delivery," Mason said.

Using the program, the chairman of the book fair orders a complete assortment of books which arrive shortly before the fair's opening date. The titles are chosen especially for elementary or high school readers. Up to seven books are shopped for each title, so the customer can buy the book and take it right home with him. The paperback books furnished range from 45 cents to $2, with most of the titles priced between 50 and 75 cents. The sponsoring group keeps 20 per cent of the price of each book sold, including royalties. And the best part—unsold books can be returned.

Among the factors making a fair successful are proper timing and promotion. Here are some of the steps Mason recommends to book fair organizers:

While any time is a good time for a book fair, it's best to make the fair coincide with meetings of the PTA. Other especially good times are just before Christmas, during Book Week, National Library Week, or in the late spring, just before the summer vacation, when children's interest in reading is high.

Publicize and promote. Notify local newspapers of the date and place. Place posters within the school or library and in neighboring store windows.

Involve a lot of students and parents in the fair—the more, the merrier. They can act as sales people and guides.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I became engaged to a man I'll call FRANK. He had been divorced for 3 years when I met him. His ex-wife married shortly thereafter.

My problem is the close family ties Frank maintains with his ex-wife's people. Especially his ex-wife's sister. This sister keeps calling Frank to tell him her troubles. She invites him to all the family "reunions" and he goes.

One evening Frank took me to this ex-sister-in-law's house and I felt uncomfortable all the while. She looks like Frank's ex-wife and all the talk was about "family" and mutual friends. I didn't know any of these people and sat there like a wart on a pickle.

I have told Frank that I didn't see where his keeping in touch with his "ex's" family was ethical. He said he saw nothing wrong with it. [They had no children.] Am I wrong to feel this way? What should I do? FRANK'S FIANCEE.

DEAR FIANCEE: I'd take a long hard look at a man who persisted in hanging on to "family" ties long after those ties were legally severed. Especially knowing it makes his fiancée uncomfortable.

DEAR ABBY: It's fashionable these days for women to wear wigs, and I wear one. [Not all the time, but sometimes.]

Apparently mine looks so natural that people will stop me on the street and ask, "Are you wearing a wig, or is that your own hair?"

This is annoying. No matter what I say, their response is always, "It sure LOOKS natural."

Well, if my wig LOOKS so "natural," why do they ask? WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING: Because it must look "natural" as they say it looks. If I were you, I'd discount the remarks of strangers, and ask a few good friends.

DEAR ABBY: I am faced with an important decision. Should I marry the husband I divorced 4 years ago? I know his faults and he knows mine. I am not "longsome," I don't need a meat ticket, and there are no children to consider.

He has brought out the best in me. [Also the worst.] If any of your readers have had the experience of marrying the same [man or woman] more than once, I wish they'd write in. Does it ever work out? ON THE FENCE.

DEAR ON: Readers! Does it—

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "LONG BEACH WIFE" to get off her husband's back regarding his wearing a wedding ring, and to count her blessings. [She says she knows he's faithful, and she trusts him but she "feels better" when he wears his wedding ring.]

I've been seeing a man for the last 6 years, and he wears a wedding ring. He has for 30 years. I am not proud of it, but this is the way it has to be. He took it off because it got too tight, but his wife had it made larger so now he's wearing it again. But ring or no ring, it made no difference in his conduct. Some women are such fools! ONE WHO KNOWS.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CONFUSED IN COLUMBUS": Even a whole pie right smack in the kisser is too good for him. Tell him the pastry cook is on strike until she negotiates a new contract.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, CAI, 90069. For a personal reply, enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Construction And Destruction Mark Growth Of Twin Falls

BUSINESS MUST WAIT while at the Sam Thomas Chevron service station, 465 Addison Ave. W., while remodeling project is completed. Workmen are pictured pouring cement for a new floor in the service bay. The complete renovation will include an enlarged section of gas pumps, and other improved facilities. Mr. Thomas said he hopes for completion of the extensive work sometime in May.

SEE ANYTHING? There's not much to see at present, though there was a small gas station here, on the edge of the Blue Lakes Shopping Center on Blue Lakes Blvd. N., a while ago. It has been demolished, and a modern gas outlet and car wash will be constructed in the near future... weather permitting.

Notes Help Water Inequity Explained

Solon Keep Up To Date

BOISE (UPI)—A spokesman for the Idaho health department said Monday charges by a national magazine that some Idaho cities provide substandard drinking water to interstate carriers shows a lack of personal rather than a health hazard.

State Department of Health, said charges made in the May 2, 1970, issue of Saturday Review were partially correct but needed additional explanation. The magazine cited Lewiston Orchards, Nampa, Pocatello and Idaho Falls as Idaho cities serving interstate carriers with water supply systems deficient in quality.

Anderson said the latest report on Lewiston Orchards, on Feb. 10, directed the community to implement a cross connection program.

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House of Representatives appropriations committee since 1964, is a note keeper. And that's of interest to a lot of Texans, including Lyndon B. Johnson.

He started keeping notes and unusual events in a 400-page notebook in 1917 after graduation from high school and before entering Simmons (now Hardin-Simmons) University, Mahon said. "I'm now in my fourth notebook."

Pension Fund Holdings Soar

BY MIKE FEINSLIBER
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The nation's public and private pension funds have holdings of about $178 billion—almost as much money as the federal government collects in taxes in a year.

Small wonder, then, that some politicians, in a day of increasing demands that the government do more for its citizens, have an eye on those pension funds.

Why not, they ask, require that pension fund managers be required to invest at least a portion of their assets in "socially useful projects" like housing, which is starved for funds, school bonds or minority businesses.

That question has come under examination by a subcommittee of the House-Senate Economic Committee.

Nothing Doing
The answer from most of the experts who have testified: Nothing doing.

"It will undermine confidence in pensions and thus add to inflation," said Roy A. Schot-land, associate dean of the Georgetown University Law Center here.

"Any legal requirement that pension funds buy certain kinds of investments will be bad for pensioners—today's and tomorrow's."

Former Demo Chief Walters Dies In Boise At Age 63

BOISE (UPI)—John G. Walters, former state land commissioner and onetime Democratic party chairman in Idaho, died Sunday at the age of 63.

Walters was chosen state chairman of the Democratic Party in 1952 and directed a campaign which saw his party grab every elected state office except the governorship.

He served as land commissioner from 1959 until he resigned in 1962 to make an unsuccessful bid for his party's nomination for governor.

At the time of his death he was a specialist with the U.S. Department of Commerce's Economic Development Administration.

Walters was born in 1906 in Caldwell. He was a graduate of Caldwell High School and the College of Idaho.

His father, the late T.A. Walters, served as Idaho attorney general and, in the administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, an assistant secretary of the interior.

Molotov's Wife Dies In Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI)—Paulina Zhemchuzhina Molotov, the wife of former Soviet Premier Vyacheslav Molotov, died Friday of cancer, family sources said Sunday.

Madame Molotov, who was 76, joined the Bolshevik party before the 1917 Revolution and subsequently held top government posts. She will be buried Wednesday at the Novodevichy Cemetery, the family sources said.

SALEM, Ore. (UPI)—The state Division of Motor Vehicles has decided that driver's license applicants who fall their driving test two times in a row will have to wait for 10 days before they can try again.

The division has also announced it can deny further behind-the-wheel testing if inspectors feel "further testing will unnecessarily endanger life or property."

Survivors include his widow, Alice, and two sons.
