Six Blacks Dead As Riots Rock Augusta

By FRANK FROSCH
AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—Hundreds of National Guardsmen rushed into this riot-ridden city today with armored personnel cars and mounted machine guns to help police quell Negro rioting. Six black men were shot to death in what was described as "guerrilla warfare."

Gov. Lester Maddox instructed the guardsmen to refrain from pleading with snipers not to shoot at them—instead, he said, the soldiers, if fired upon by snipers, should "blow whatever they're in off its foundation until peace is restored in Augusta."

Nearly 1,850 guardsmen and 150 state troopers "manned roadblocks and patrolled streets of this city of 70,000 known widely as the home of the Masters Golf Tournament. Its 130-block Negro district was sealed off.

The youth was suspended from Central Valley High School last month after he refused to cut his hair.

The six men were killed as police fought snipers, looters, arsonists and rock-throwers. Officers said one man was shot to death around 4 a.m. EDT when he ran from a shooting store, firing at police with a revolver.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today the United States already has pulled "several thousand" troops out of Cambodia. But he urged Congress not to impose any limitation on President Nixon's authority there.

Judge Cunningham granted a motion for discovery in each case and said trials will continue after interrogatories are filed, within about three weeks.

A cold upper air disturbance of the coast, which has been contributing to our cool, wet weather of the past several days, is moving southeastward this morning. It will cause showers, snow flurries and possible thundershowers over Eastern Oregon and Southern Idaho today and tonight. Most places will receive measurable amounts of precipitation, some as much as one-quarter of an inch. Gusty winds will accompany the showers.

Partial clearing will spread over this region from the west late tonight and Wednesday. Temperatures will continue much below the seasonal normals today, with afternoon highs mostly from the upper 40s to the upper 50s. The air mass still will be cool enough for near freezing temperatures and scattered frost tonight. Fruit growers should be prepared to protect their orchards tonight if necessary. A warming trend will begin Wednesday, with afternoon temperatures rising into the 50s and 60s.

The extended outlook for the period Thursday through Saturday is for little or no precipitation, and for temperatures to rise gradually toward the seasonal normals by Saturday.

S. Vietnam Blockades Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—South Vietnam has set up a blockade of the Cambodian coast in an effort to halt incoming supplies for the Viet Cong.

South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Gao Ky said today. The United States said it was halting North Vietnamese and Viet Cong ships there but said this was not a blockade.

At the same time South Vietnam sent gunboats 50 miles into the Gulf of Thailand to blockade the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh in a new example of cooperation between the Saigon and Phnom Penh governments in their joint struggle against the Communists.

The U.S. Military Command in Saigon said U.S. Navy vessels were operating in the same area as the South Vietnamese navy but a spokesman insisted, "This is not a blockade." A spokesman for the U.S. Navy said, "no third country" vessels would be stopped by U.S. ships or interfered with in any way.

Israelis Punch Into Lebanon

By United Press International

Two columns of Israeli tanks and troops punched into Southern Lebanon behind artillery and air strikes early today in a reprisal raid against Arab guerrilla camps. Both nations termed it the biggest strike ever into Lebanon and said it was continuing at midmorning.

Lebanon said its men had knocked out two tanks and damaged two half-tracks from the two spearheads of 50 armored vehicles and 1,000 men that thrust across the border from the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights of Syria at 9 a.m. and 7:30 a.m.

No personnel casualty figures were given.

Military spokesmen in Tel Aviv said the strike, aimed at cleaning out Arab guerrilla bivouacs on the slopes of Mount Hermon, "is going according to plan and should be completed by sunset. The Israeli forces definitely will withdraw today."

Israeli troops passed out leaflets to Lebanese villagers appealing to them to help drive out the guerrillas. The leaflets began with a proverb: "He who sows thorns will not harvest grapes, and he who lights fires may be burned."

Lebanon said its men turned back Israeli troops from the village of al-Khureib, three miles inside the border from the Golan Heights, and were fighting to defend defensive positions at nearby Marjayoun.

President Charles Helou of Lebanon called his cabinet into emergency session at 7 a.m. Beirut Radio said. His government had been warned to curb Arab guerrilla attacks from Lebanon into Israel or face the consequences.

Safe Work Law Now Effective

An updated "red tag law" has given the Idaho Department of Labor new authority to enforce state laws requiring safe working conditions according to a department spokesman.

Under the law, red tags may be placed on equipment deemed unsafe, and the employer is required to repair the equipment, or change the working conditions, within a specified period of time.

Formerly, however, a formal hearing was required before the Industrial Accident Board, before an unsafe working place could be shut down—a procedure that often took weeks or even months.

Under the new law, passed by the Idaho Legislature, a state inspector who finds an unsafe working area or unsafe equipment gives written notice to employer, specifying the length of time within which the corrections must be made. The length of time is governed by the severity of the infractions found. The corrections must be completed as ordered or the inspector has the authority to close the job down.

In addition, in extreme cases, where the unsafe conditions could pose a hazard to life or health—such as a conflagration where a serious accident is deemed likely—the inspector may close the job down immediately.

Since the effective date of the law, March 27, 1969, 15 written orders have been issued, and in all cases the corrections were made within the time allowed. The projects were completely closed down—one in American Falls, and one at Coeur d'Alene.

The Department of Labor will soon have smaller red tags which can be placed on equipment, making that item off-limits until repairs are made, and allowing the rest of the operation to continue. The department urges all workmen, upon seeing the red tag on any piece of equipment, to refuse to work with it until the tag is removed by the state inspector.

Funds For Grandstand Discussed

Financing of the new grandstand structure at the county fairgrounds for which a contract was awarded last week was discussed at a meeting of the County Fair Board and County commissioners Monday noon.

County Commission Chairman Heber Loughmiller said the county budgeted an additional $50,000 for the fair this year and the insurance settlement reached approximately $200,000. The contract, awarded Friday afternoon and officially signed Monday by county officials goes to J. A. Clawson Construction Co., Twin Falls and provides a structure which will seat 3,000 persons.

Mr. Loughmiller said the county faces a need for more money to meet improvement costs as the contract awarded Friday does not include such things as lighting and arena equipment. All of these items were lost in the fire and must be replaced before the facility can be restored to full use.

Bridge Job Horse Show Is Slated In June

A proceed-to-work order has been issued by Ulman Construction Co., Twin Falls, successful bidder for a $3,000 reinforcement and repair job on the Pole Line Bridge over Rock Creek.

Keith Anderson, District Engineer with the Twin Falls Highway District, said he is not certain when work will begin, because of possible difficulty in obtaining one-inch plywood to reinforce the structure.

The bridge, on 41st North road, has been under a weight limit restriction for several months, but the upcoming work will open the road to heavy truck traffic as before.

The Magic Valley Western Horse Show, sponsored by the Twin Falls Junior Riding Club, will be June 19, 20 and 21 at Frontier Field, according to Dick Messersmith, chairman. The show will be approved by the American Quarter Horse Association and entries are now coming in.

A three-member evaluation team of college personnel and school superintendent met in Twin Falls Monday to study results of the "EPDA" program of teacher training.

Comprising the group were Dr. George Wallace, Boise State College; Dr. Arvin Blome of Montana State University; Bozeman, and Dick Nelson, superintendent of schools at Cascade.

The "EPDA" program, provided for by the Educational Personal Development Act, passed by Congress in 1968, provides federal funds for a teacher-training program in which young men and women with a year or less of college training who are required to obtain a teaching certificate and a degree, may complete their education at government expense.

In addition, for this year only, a student at the Boise program paid the student. Next year, however, according to Herb Smith of Idaho State University, project administrator, the stipend will not be granted, but all books and tuition will be paid.

The evaluators met with Mr. Smith and with George Staudacher, assistant superintendent of schools in Twin Falls, who serves as EPDA project director. There are at present 20 students in the EPDA program in the Magic Valley, including eight from

Although it's not the sort of thing we may like admitting about ourselves, there is a strong streak of extremism in the American character and experience.

And it is usually the great issues on which not only are we inclined to go to extremes, but which frequently find us swinging from one extreme to another, suddenly and at times even violently.

Our dealings with the rest of the world, for one obvious example, have taken us in a generation from political isolation — a conditioned rejection of anything suggesting entangling associations — to intimate entanglement with most other nations on the globe.

In public morals, we have gone in a few years from a loosely laced neo-Victorianism to the anything-goes, everything-shows kick of the contemporary theater.

As a democratic society, we are theoretically committed to the middle way. But more often than not, we seem to have difficulty locating it — or, when we do, holding to it.

Considering all this, there may be some question as to where a current great issue — rescue of the ravaged environment — may be leading us. To a population in sterile masks, on foot and totally engaged in pollution-proof hand-dicrafts?

Hardly, of course. Although there should be no doubt that correcting misapplication and overapplication of man's technology in ordering nature to his purposes — for this is the source of the ecological crisis — is going to mean considerable change in our way of living.

The process of making up for past error is already under way and occupies many. But another aspect of the problem, finding a middle way which will permit us to use technology but not suffer from it in the future, so far has come in for little public discussion. This, however, is exactly what a Connecticut congressman has in mind with legislation he has introduced in the House.

Rep. Emilio Q. Daddario, chairman of the House subcommittee on science, research and development, is proposing creation of a congressional "office of Technology Assessment" specifically charged with overseeing scientific development. As he envisions it, such a legislative watchdog on science would not itself initiate or direct research but would study, or arrange study by appropriate outside experts, of the likely effects of technological developments once they are put to practical use.

Desirability would be determined not only on the basis of workability and profitability, as in the past, but by the full range of effects on people and their environment. If possible harmful effects are indicated, it would be the assessment office's duty to raise a warning and recommend additional corrective research.

Government intrusion into another field in which free enterprise has dominated raises questions which are not going to be resolved overnight. But Rep. Daddario has put the technology vs. environment problem in terms that clarify consideration and encourage hopes of a solution.

His thesis is that there is nothing inherently harmful in the technology that is being blamed for fouling earth, air and water. The problem lies in man's understanding and control of applied technology.

Or to put it another way, technology doesn't ruin the environment — people do.

For The Birds

The save-the-environment movement, it turns out, is really for the birds — or a bird.

Highway builders in Florida are planning to shift an interstate route 300 feet to one side in order not to disturb a bald eagle residing atop a 500-foot pine tree at a point some 40 miles southeast of Tampa. The bit of genuine nature by the side of the road also will add to the attraction of the route for motorists, the road men believe.

If it's to be a continuing attraction once the highway is open to the full flow of traffic, they may have to take additional measures, however. Such as a gas mask for the eagle.

MR. SPECTATOR

Vice-President? No!

Mr. Spectator doesn't want to be Vice-President of the United States. Does it come as a shock to you dear readers? If it does, then read on.

A few nights ago we went to Boise to hear Vice-President Agnew give a major policy speech. It was quite a good talk and was well received by the more than 1,000 people in the hall — but that's getting away from the reason for writing this piece today.

So, back to our original statement. Mr. Spectator doesn't want to be vice-president.

The big reason would be that the Vice-President (and the President, too, of course) is a captive man. It's simply impossible for him to do what he wants to do when he wants to do it. It is simply impossible for him to walk around the corner for a soft drink at the drug store. It's simply impossible for him to walk around a town, say like Boise, just to see what things look like.

His every move is planned. He leaves the Presidential jet at a certain point. He talks to the press at a certain point. He gets only so close to a group of demonstrators. His car is in a certain location — so far away from another car — in a line of cars.

Someone always enters a building ahead of him. Someone always comes out behind him. He doesn't have the chance to register he's whisked right up to his room.

He doesn't go down and eat in the coffee shop. A meal is brought up to him and is inspected before he eats it.

When the time comes for his speech, he enters the hall when the secret service men tell him to. He sits in the seat he is told to sit in. In Boise, for instance, it was right in front of a concealed escape door behind him on the wall.

When he is through speaking he is escorted out. People can't press forward to shake his hand. The press are kept at a respectable distance.

Everything is in order — and right down the line. But like we said, the man is captive. The man holding the second highest office in this land cannot do what he wants to do because he might be target for some nut bent on carrying the findings of a warped mind.

So who wants to be Vice-President of the United States? Not Mr. Spectator!

SPEED Speed is with us everywhere. Last night Mr. Spectator called Mrs. Spectator who was visiting in Seattle. Knowing the number, it was a direct dial process. In just exactly six seconds the number had been dialed and the telephone was ringing in Seattle.

ROBERT ALLEN AND JOHN GOLDSMITH

The Juicy Patronage Mill

WASHINGTON — The House Education and Labor Committee apparently has one of the lushest patronage mills on Capitol Hill.

Recently, this column revealed that Hartwell (Jack) Reed, $33,495 chief counsel of the committee, had quietly added a $15,558 administrative assistant to his staff. She is Miss Elizabeth Cornett, 25, like Reed a Kentuckian, with no prior education experience or previous government employment in Washington.

This disclosure has led to another equally intriguing discovery. It is that Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., committee chairman, is the chief of one of the lushest patronage empires in Congress. Under his direct control are several score jobs with a total payroll of more than $400,000. Of this amount, upwards of $111,000 goes to 11 employees on Perkins' personal staff, and over $791,000 to some 30 others listed as on the committee's staff.

Of all the 11 employees on Perkins' personal staff, five are paid between $10,715 and $15,891 — paid to Lucille Blake, listed as his secretary. Lowest salary is $4,064, to a young clerk, a University student who works part-time.

Of the 30 employees on the committee's staff who were their jobs to Perkins five get $3,638; three between $2,300 and $28,356 and nine between $11,756 and $19,306.

In the $33,495 category is Mrs. Louise Dargans. Now listed as "research director," she is a hold-over from the regime of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., who was kicked out as chairman and ordered by the full House to pay $25,000 in deductions from his salary, for improperly spent committee funds.

Mrs. Dargans rarely gets to her office before noon. Other $33,495 pay listings are "chief clerk," "senior specialist," "associate general counsel," "editor for committee publications."

Recipient of the $28,356 plum is Mrs. Marian Wyman, listed as "special assistant to the chairman." She also seems to have considerable latitude about her working hours, sometimes coming in only three or four days a week.

Also in the $22,000-plus category are an "administrative assistant" and a "legislative specialist."

Rep. Perkins is little known outside of his rural eastern Kentucky district, but among his colleagues he rates as without peer when it comes to feathering his political nest. Not only has his chairmanship paid off lushly in high-salaried patronage, but also in tens-of-millions of dollars in federal funds to his congressional district.

The Education and Labor Committee has jurisdiction over anti-poverty legislation. As a direct consequence, in five years this program has been in operation Perkins' 7th Kentucky District, has gotten more than $72 million out of a total of $251 million in anti-poverty funds for the entire state.

Closest to this remarkable record in the 5th District, which has two Job Corps centers, but has received only $41.361 million. The 3rd District, which includes Louisville, largest city in Kentucky, got only $21.565 million — less than a third of Perkins' district, which has only one large city, Ashland, with around 40,000 population.

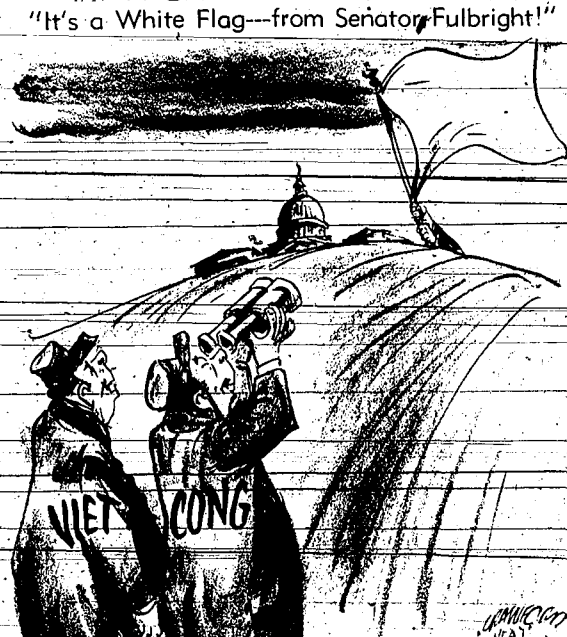

Obviously his chairmanship has paid off handsomely for his rural section. That is clearly shown by the $29 per capita in anti-poverty funds it has obtained — among the highest in the entire U.S. It is almost four times the national average of $7.73.

Reed, general counsel of the committee, is 54 and separated from his wife. She and their four children reside in nearby Springfield, Va., suburb of Washington.

In addition to his $33,495 salary, Reed also fills speaking engagements for "honorariums." Staff members credit him as claiming he made more than $1,400 in such fees last year. Congressmen are supposed to report such payments under the rules laid down by the House Ethics Committee.

It's still undetermined whether that requirement also applies to congressional employees.

During the recent spring school vacation, one of Reed's sons was given a job as a committee messenger and paid by the hour.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Double Gamble

WASHINGTON — Only days before President Nixon ordered U.S. troops into the Fishhook Communist sanctuary of Cambodia, a tentative decision had been reached at the highest levels not to permit so much as one U.S. adviser to accompany South Vietnamese troops into Cambodia's Parrot's Beak areas.

The reason for this tentative Presidential decision was obvious. Stung by the sharp political reaction to disclosures in early March that U.S. advisers in Laos had been killed, Mr. Nixon did not want to risk the loss of even one U.S. adviser in Cambodia.

That tentative decision became moot when the President decided — on Monday evening, April 27 — to approve the far more ambitious attack on the Cambodian sanctuaries which he announced last Thursday night.

The original operation was expanded from the relatively limited penetration of the Parrot's Beak area, to be conducted wholly by South Vietnamese troops with no U.S. help on the ground, to the far more sensitive and dangerous area in the north known as the Fishhook.

But the decision to destroy the vital Communist sanctuary in the Fishhook area posed a far more difficult problem. Here were not only vast food, medical, and ammunition stores, but also highly trained Communist troops. Mr. Nixon's military commanders in Saigon, strongly backed by Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker Acheson, warned that if South Vietnamese troops were sent into Fishhook alone and a strong Communist force engaged them, they might be slaughtered in short time as an operation that could be safely entrusted only to American troops.

The President agonized over his decision for days, then decided on the first of two major gambles, the military gamble of jinking his earlier, limited plan for Parrot's Beak. He approved full-scale intervention by U.S. troops in the Fishhook — with American combat forces entering one area of Cambodia, all roads to be cut, and another area of Cambodia abandoned, and advisers were assigned to the Parrot's Beak operation.

The military logic of this expanded operation seems indisputable, and is directly tied into the withdrawal of U.S. troops. Looking down the troop withdrawal road beyond next spring, when the latest withdrawal increment of 150,000 troops is supposed to be finished, Mr. Nixon has been deeply worried about continuing casualties after the U.S. combat force is reduced to some 10 percent of its mid-1969 level, when withdrawal first began.

Specifically, he did not see how he could justify a continuing casualty rate of some 8,000 U.S. dead in 1971 at the same time that combat troops were being slowly pulled out, exposing those left behind to heavy attacks. Thus, some way had to be found to reduce that casualty level during the final stages of combat — troop withdrawal or risk a massive and nationwide political demand for immediate withdrawal of all combat troops before they could be replaced with South Vietnamese units.

It was a delicate balancing act. Destruction of the Cambodian sanctuaries was his answer. It would disrupt the cycle of Communist attack and withdrawal for as much as 10 months — the time that military officials say it will take the Communists to rebuild and resupply their bases.

Impeached

WASHINGTON — No one who has followed the events of the past two weeks can have anything but admiration for the political sagacity of Atty. Gen. John Mitchell.

"I never thought of that," Mr. Mitchell's astuteness as a Nixon adviser is a President could have would be to have someone standing in the wings that nobody could accept for the office, who fits the description?

They were general look put a list. "We have few people here that might fill the role," Strom Thurmond, Gov. Kirk of Florida, Gov. Reagan of California, Carl McIntyre of the Christian Anti-Communist Crusade, J. Edgar Hoover, and that guy from Maryland.

"What do you mean what's his name?" "I have it somewhere. Here it is — Spiro Agnew."

"You have to be kidding. Whoever heard of 'Spiro Agnew'?" "That's not the point. With television we can make him into a household-name overnight. The question is, can he produce enough fear in the American electorate to keep it from impeaching you?"

"How do we know that?" Mr. Nixon asked. "We don't know it," Mitchell replied. "But we've been talking to the guy, and he sounds like someone who can really rattle people's feathers. If we send him out to fund-raising dinners for a year and let him say what he wants, no one in this country would dare impeach you."

"Precisely what I said," Mitchell said. "I don't want to be impeached," Mr. Nixon cried. "Not after all the work I put in to get the nomination." "You don't have to be, Dick. We have to make it impossible for them to take your job away."

"How do you do that?" "We have to select a Vice President that the public will be so frightened of that they would let us impeach you."

"I never thought of that," Mr. Nixon admitted. "The best insurance a President could have would be to have someone standing in the wings that nobody could accept for the office, who fits the description?"

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Darker Skin

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you give information on the pills they call psoralen? I understand some people take them to darken their skin. I'm quite fair and white. Are there any after-effects? — N. H.

This is the generic term for a potent drug, which tends to augment skin pigmentation — that is, cause more coloring (tanning) to accumulate.

It's no easy method of getting a tan, however, and it's a drug that has to be managed with care. If your skin is so fair that you cannot tolerate moderate exposure to the sun, you would be wise not to fiddle with the drug. (It has to be used under a physician's supervision.)

Its principal use is for people with extreme sensitivity to the sun or allergy to sunlight. It is given two or four hours before exposure to the sun, and even then exposure must be in limited amounts.

The skin darkening may not be uniform but intensified in certain areas, which can become a problem. Further, the drug should not be taken longer than 14 days, because it can cause stomach distress.

Therefore, if your problem is merely that you want a deeper tan, this drug is not for you. Rather, begin as early in the season as you can and build up a tan gradually. Avoid redness, and especially avoid blistering.

If you can acquire a reasonable amount of tan, then take the trouble to do so a little at a time. There are tanning creams and lotions which will help you by protecting (within reason) against burning while letting you tan.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 13 and trying to stay on a diet. It's not a really low-calorie diet, just a cut-down one. When I get home from school and again about 7:30, I get hungry. Do you have any suggestions for low-calorie snacks? I am tired of celery and carrot sticks. — J. G.

I have a separate list of low-calorie snacks in my booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing." It's on page 33. If you want the booklet, write to me with a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. But here are some. A glass of skim milk is only 72 calories and will provide calcium you need to build strong bones. Or a few tablespoons of cottage cheese.

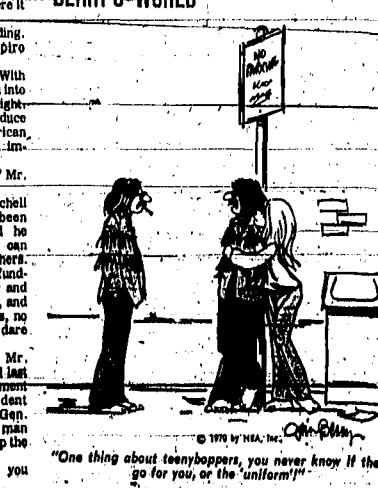

Celery's good, but when you get tired of it, there are good substitutes. Choose them according to the season; when they aren't very expensive; half a cucumber, a wedge of raw cabbage, a small apple, half a tomato or so, peaches that have been canned without sugar.

Some folks like a few crisp slices of raw potato. You can grill it like it. Some strips of green pepper. Half a cup of tomato juice. A Hill pickle.

Celery and raw carrots are fine low-calorie snacks, but there's a fair amount of room for variety.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

BERRY'S WORLD

"One thing about teenyboppers, you never know if they go for you, or the 'uniform'!"

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, a junior honor student in college, came home for Easter vacation and told us she wasn't going back because she was five months pregnant and beginning to show.

She said the man (a graduate student) agreed to marry her; but wanted a divorce after the baby was born because "marriage didn't fit into his plans." She refused his offer of marriage and has decided to keep the baby. She says she doesn't believe in signing a child away like a piece of property she can't use right now.

Her father and I are behind her all the way. We are not trash. We are educated, and considered "nice" people.

When we decided to tell people that our daughter's "husband" went to Viet Nam and when he returned he had "changed," so she divorced him. Our clergyman advised us to tell that story and to stick with it.

We still haven't worked out the problem of the baby's name. Any suggestions? NO NAME OR TOWN, PLEASE.

DEAR NO NAME: What all due respect to your clergyman for saying the baby is illegitimate. What a tangled web we weave when first we practice to deceive it.

DEAR ABBY: Re a letter from "IRKED" whose "beef" was a nurse who talked too much about her profession at a dinner party. My "beef" is just the opposite. I, too, am a nurse, and I wish people would let me forget it when I'm off duty.

When I'm in uniform I am constantly cornered by strangers who want to give me their complete medical history, and expect an instant diagnosis and even suggestions for treatment. I can be standing in a cafeteria line, in a grocery store, or waiting for a bus. When I'm out socially, my friends will do the same. I try to cut them short by saying, "Have you spoken to your family doctor about this," but it rarely shuts them up. So you may sign me...

"IRKED," TOO

DEAR IRKED: Try the standard squelch used by a doctor-friend of mine when he is asked for professional advice at a cocktail party: "I can discuss it without a physical examination first. Take your clothes off!"

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman with three children. There is something about which my husband and I disagree, and I want your opinion.

I am a fairly good housekeeper and I have a lot to do. Lately I have been getting up about 4:30 in the morning. I can't get back to sleep again once I'm up, so I very quietly get out of bed, close the bedroom door, and find some housework to do. I'm not "sleaz" or anything. I'm just all slept out and I wake up. I sometimes wash and wax my floors, do some ironing, and mending and other chores I can't do with three children running in and out.

My husband says I am "nuts!" In fact, we've gotten into some real fights over it. I say it doesn't matter what time I do my work, and as long as I can't sleep, what's the difference? I never disturb him. Am I "nuts" or is my husband being unreasonable?

EARLY BIRD

DEAR EARLY: You are not "nuts." Your husband is unreasonable. (And I am not merely taking the woman's side.) If your husband were to get up at that hour and busy himself, if you objected, I'd say YOU were "unreasonable."

CONFIDENTIAL TO "I. M. DOOMED": Please send me your address. Many readers have responded with a treasury of encouragement for you.

Minis Are Visual Delight

United Press International Maxis protect against billiards and middle look wonderful on old ladies.

Minis are groovy for an one young man put it, "a visual delight."

That was the almost unanimous verdict of high school girls and their boyfriends—polled coast to coast by United Press International this week on the mini-maxi skirt question.

In the high school league, the thugs have it.

The girls are determined to stick to their leggy look, even if it puts them out on a fashion limb. And their boyfriends, with a few rare exceptions back to them up every hemline inch of the way.

Reaction ranged from the anti-midl boycott at a Concord, Calif., high school, to the understandable disinterested reply of Margaret Carson, 16, of a South Philadelphia High, who said: "I wear minis but I would wear the other if it was in my size."

"I wear minis but I would wear the other if it was in my size."

"I wear minis but I would wear the other if it was in my size."

The girls had several objections to longer skirts that were common in high school after high school—minis were more comfortable than longer skirts, minis were frumpy, old-lady lengths and anyway the girls couldn't afford whole new wardrobes.

The boys only had one basic objection to longer skirts—they don't show enough leg.

Senate Tries To Cut Purse Strings

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted Monday to try to use the Congressional power over the purse strings to hold President Nixon to his promise to withdraw American forces from Cambodia by the end of June.

By a 94-vote, the committee approved an amendment to the Military Sales Bill that would bar the use of appropriated money for "retaining United States forces in Cambodia."

Voting against the amendment were Sens. John Sparkman, D-Ala., Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., Karl Mundt, R-S.D., and John J. Williams, R-Del. The amendment was sponsored by Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky. They emphasized it was aimed not at repeating what the President had already done in Cambodia but to prevent him from continuing the Cambodian operation indefinitely or expanding it into a war in support of the new Cambodian government.

Debate on the measure was expected to begin Wednesday or Thursday with a vote almost certain before the end of the week.

Prospects for passage appeared strong. In one of the most optimistic outlooks for the amendment, Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said he counted 42 senators committed to support it plus 18 "maybes."

Besides barring the retention of U.S. forces in Cambodia, the amendment would:

Prohibit the use of U.S. advisers in Cambodia, except to help the South Vietnamese air force.

Bar the use of American-paid mercenaries, CIA agents or other contracted forces in Cambodia.

Prohibit any combat activity "in the air above Cambodia in support of Cambodia forces."

In a letter to the committee, the State Department said the amendment was in consonance with the President's expressed intentions con-

Inhumane Treatment Charged

PERRY, Ga. (UPI)—Civil rights leaders Monday accused Georgia state troopers of "inhumane" treatment of some 430 Negro demonstrators arrested during the weekend, including the detention in a condemned prison camp, beatings, gassing and insulting food.

The charges were contained in a telegram "smuggled" out of the prison camp and forwarded to the Justice Department and Gov. Lester Maddox.

The local law enforcement officials were reported in conference with state patrol officials and could not be reached for comment on the accusations.

The 430 Negroes were arrested in two days of demonstrations, the climax to several weeks of protest in this middle Georgia city, largely centered around a school desegregation plan which blacks claim is unfair.

Those arrested included Hosea Williams of Atlanta, a vice president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and local Negro leaders Oscar Thomas, Silas Smith and Fred Hill.

Their names were on the telegram, which the SCLC in Atlanta said was "smuggled" out of the Dooley County Prison Camp at nearby Danaher where about 275 persons were taken in buses Saturday night.

The telegram charged the Negroes were "beaten like sardines" in buses for the 20-mile trip to the camp which Maddox had ordered closed after "having been found unfit for a prison."

It said they were sprayed with tear gas "without provocation" by a state trooper and they had to stand the entire trip. Some Negroes were "brutally beaten for no apparent reason while being searched," the telegram claimed.

WATCH IT, LADY CHICAGO (UPI)—A metropolitan life insurance Co. study shows that the accident death rate for women between the 1944-45 to 1968-69 was more than a third higher than for men.

The major reason for the increase due to a "distinctly higher" toll for motor vehicle accidents.

POLICE AND protesting students clashed late yesterday at Portland State University. About 20 students were injured in the clash when police moved in to remove barricades put up by the students to block traffic. (UPI telephoto)

Successor To Reuther Faces Crucial Times

DETROIT (UPI)—The man who steps into Walter P. Reuther's spot as president of the powerful United Auto Workers will have to lead the union in perhaps the most crucial auto negotiations in 25 years this July.

Whoever the man is, observers generally agree his negotiating talents will lack the blend of burning oratory and zeal that made Reuther such a respected negotiator for the 21 years he led the 1.8-million-member union.

Reuther, 62, his wife May, 59, their bodyguard, a Philadelphia architect, and the pilot and copilot were killed Saturday night when their chartered executive jet plummeted into spring-green woods near Pellston, at the northern tip of lower Michigan.

The UAW announced Monday that the Reuthers will lie in state Wednesday and Thursday in the new, white Veterans Memorial Building overlooking the Detroit River. Thousands are expected to file by their bodies.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Friday in the building next to veterans—the Fox Auditorium, named after auto pioneer Henry Ford, whose company fired Reuther in the 1930s for union activities.

Only when the funeral is over will the remaining 24 members of the UAW international executive board meet to select a successor to Reuther. A date for the board meeting has not yet been set.

Under the UAW constitution, Mazzy, 57, the union's No. 2 man, took over as acting president when Reuther died.

Students Generally Are Calm

By United Press International College students ended strikes and returned to classes at scores of campuses across the nation Monday. However, strikes, picketing and turmoil continued at many schools.

The emotional upheaval triggered by the movement of U.S. troops into Cambodia and the killings of four Kent (Ohio) State University students appeared to be subsiding.

But it was far from "business as usual" in higher education. A group that called itself the "National Strike Center" reported that at least 157 campuses were still shut down.

There was no significant back-to-school movement in the Boston area.

Stanford Strike Effective A continuing strike at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif., was reported at least 50 per cent effective. Only about 25 per cent of Syracuse University's 17,000 students showed up for classes.

California state colleges and university campuses reopened after a four-day shutdown, and the big, private University of Southern California also reopened.

City University of New York reported its 17 colleges open but most of the professors and the 172,000 students were developing class-time discussions of world and domestic problems. Some 5,000 students of City College—about one quarter of the total registration—voted to continue a student strike after a student speaker urged them to "bring down this government."

Classes resumed at most Illinois colleges and universities. University of Chicago President Edward H. Levi, announcing the university would remain open, said: "Political action to close the university is misguided—it will not end the war. It is a suppression of freedom."

Idaho State Head Praises Restraint

BOZEMAN (UPI)—President William E. Davis of Idaho State University Monday complimented the peaceful nature of antiwar demonstrations last week on the ISU campus.

"They had a high degree of discipline and restraint," Dr. Miller told a convocation.

The ISU president told an audience of about 600 students that he opposed demands last week that the university be shut down because "that would not serve the institution's purpose."

Davis approved the convocation requested by the Student Senate and allowed classes and university activities to be suspended from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The convocation was called to allow students and faculty members to discuss President Nixon's decision to send U.S. troops into Cambodia and the killing of four Kent State College students last week.

Davis, reviewing the events of last week at ISU, said he could not construe the "Swanson incident as an act of peace."

WATCH IT, LADY CHICAGO (UPI)—A metropolitan life insurance Co. study shows that the accident death rate for women between the 1944-45 to 1968-69 was more than a third higher than for men.

The major reason for the increase due to a "distinctly higher" toll for motor vehicle accidents.

Idahoans Feel Census Needed, Questions Nosey

Many Idahoans feel the government has no reason to be concerned with how many and what type of bathroom facilities they have in their homes or just what their annual income might be. A recent state-wide sampling of Idaho residents contacted by the 1970 census takers reveals while most people feel the census is necessary, many object to the nature of some of the questions and feel they are embarrassing. J and A Research, a Boise-based concern, conducted the state-wide survey on the census, obtaining response from 350 persons including 266 women and 84 men. Overall, 70 per cent

Shoshone School Fuss Is Local Matter, State Official Says

BOISE (UPI)—Attorney General Robert M. Robson told a delegation of parents from Shoshone Monday that a lawyer if they want to get rid of a teacher is available to them.

"I don't want to get in the middle of this," Robson said. "I'm not going to get into the middle of this. . . . We don't have the authority to go into the counties and school districts and run them," he said. "If we did — that's a job I wouldn't want to have. You'd have a state-level German and women after a one-hour, 45-minute meeting."

Robson said he would be glad to give the parents a contract for next year over their objections and that the town is split down the middle on the question.

Methods objectionable to the parents were the use of a "moon trip" course Bowlin allegedly is teaching the young students. He said the children are required to lie on their backs in a darkened room.

Other parents said they observed some of Bowlin's classes and that children were permitted to do pretty much as they wished — sometimes even to graze their own sheep.

Bowlin said the situation became so bad he pulled his 12-year-old son out of the school in February and has paid tuition to send him to another school district since then.

At one point it was brought out that the State Department of Education looked into teaching in the district and submitted a report to the local school board. Only part of this report has been released, the parents complained.

Engelking said he had no objection to the release of the entire report if the local board wished to do so.

Mrs. Borden read to Robson and Engelking from a letter written by Carl Kinney, principal of the Shoshone High School. Kinney has a daughter in Bowlin's class.

IEA Issues 'Sanction' On Shoshone Schools

SHOSHONE — A "sanction" was filed against the Shoshone school board at its Monday night meeting by teachers of the school system.

Presenting the verbal sanction to the board was Robert Day, Boise, past state Idaho Education Association official, who stated the action meant that teachers of Shoshone are placing an advisory sanction on the Shoshone school district because they are displeased with the action of the board, the teachers are unhappy in their work and morale is low.

Mr. Day's vocal presentation did not specify exactly what the teachers wanted done, but Supt. Kenneth Crothers Tuesday said "The core of the thing is that the teachers want Mr. Jack Bowlin removed as elementary principal."

Mr. Bowlin, who attended the meeting along with some other teachers and about 25 school patrons, challenged Mr. Day on the procedure of voting by teachers in this matter, asking for a report on whether those who did vote were paid IEA members.

Mr. Day said there are 27 teachers and three administrators, with 12 of them paid IEA members. He explained all teachers, whether IEA members or not, both in elementary or high school could vote, inasmuch as this is a "general school problem affecting all of the teachers with the blessings of the IEA but with no actual IEA involvement."

Several patrons at the meeting then demanded of Mr. Day, "Then what are you doing here?" He said he was here because teachers had invited him and he was acting as a consultant.

Local IEA public relations chairman, was then chastised by some of the audience for not handling the matter himself. The teachers, at a special meeting after school Monday night, voted on the sanction but school officials and patrons reported hearing the result of the vote on the radio station at the same time at the meeting.

The school board did not take any action on the sanction, except for a discussion during the private meeting held after the open meeting. Mr. Crothers said the only action could be taken would be to remove Mr. Bowlin.

High school teachers who voted for the sanction justified their action by explaining the unrest and unhappy atmosphere among students has spread to their teaching.

Mr. Day said he was not a member of the IEA but he was a member of the National Education Association, which is a very well organized, which well organized and the majority of the people of this town have spoken by re-election of a school board member and failure of the opposition to Mr. Bowlin to secure more than 18 signatures on a petition where in there are more than 600 patrons in Shoshone.

At 9:30 p. m. the board recessed to their executive meeting at which a contract was offered the Gene Harris, Higgins to teach English and speech in high school and Joseph Nishimoto, Manila, Utah, to teach junior high school math. There are 442 vacancies in the elementary school half-day sixth grade and music sixth grade combination. The high school and junior high staff is complete. Coaches William Closson, Dan Gillett and Edward Sandy met with the board regarding training rules. Considerable time was spent on the policy manual being printed by the board. Mrs. La Vaugh Sturgeon was elevated to the position of head cook in the school hot lunch program, replacing Mrs. Reed Hansen, now doing janitorial work. The budget was approved.

What happens if we pull our children out of school?" asked Carroll Garibay, who said Bowlin once refused to notify authorities when her daughter disappeared from a playground during the noon hour.

Don't use your children as pawns," Robson said. Mrs. Carraway said the parents are paying the teachers' salaries and there ought to be something they can do about the situation.

"There is," Robson said. "Get a new school board." "How can we impeach them?" she asked, pointing out a new school board was chosen there just 7 months ago.

Robson said he would be an assistant point out the appropriate statute but again advised her and the others to get a private attorney.

At one point, Robson told the parents who said they have battled the situation through "channels" for months — they sounded like the "new generation."

"We are, man, we are," said Mrs. James Webb. Engelking told the group he felt the matter "goes deeper than just one man."

"Until you get strong leadership in that school district you're going to have problems," he said.

WARREN VAN CAMP, biology teacher, told trustees he has withdrawn his offer to sell his collection of specimens which requested him to do so because of "undue publicity" he feels the situation was blown out of proportion and he is withdrawing his offer to sell half his material to the school.

He will leave half of the material in the school for the benefit of the students, he told trustees.

PAUL — Mindoka County Deputy Wes Woodall said a Mindoka County dog was alive Tuesday at the cost of about $600 to a driver and unestimated loss to Henry Lindh, a farmer. Officers said Rudolph K. Falechick, 32, Route 3, Rupert, answered to miss the dog and crashed into a culvert, ditch and fence, causing $600 damage to his automobile and taking out about 100 feet of fence and damaging the ditch and culvert. The driver did miss the dog, however.

The accident occurred at 4:15 a. m. Tuesday four miles west of Paul on State Highway 20. Officers said the driver suffered minor injuries.

McGinn Blanks Mets, Snaps Seaver's Win Streak At 16

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dan McGinn, making only his second major league start, scattered three hits and Jim Faley homered Monday night as the Montreal Expos shut out the New York Mets, 3-0, and ended Tom Seaver's winning streak at 16 games.

McGinn, entering the game with an 11-70 ERA, was in trouble only in the first inning when the game was tied 1-1 by Bud Harrelson and Ron Snodgrass. He allowed the other hit, Tommie Agee's single in the eighth inning. He struck out five and walked four in winning his second game against one defeat.

Faley gave the Expo left-handed all the help he needed when he hit Seaver's first pitch leading off the second inning for his second homer of the year. Montreal scored its second run in the sixth when Ron Fairly singled, Coco Laboy walked and Johnny Bateman doubled off the right-field wall. Bobby Wine's double and Marv Staehle's single brought across the Expos third run in the ninth inning.

Seaver, whose last loss was to Cincinnati on August 5, 1969, was brilliant in defeat. He struck out 12 batters to raise his National League leading total to 73. The loss was Seaver's first after six consecutive wins this season. He finished 1969 with 40 straight victories.

Montreal's ace pitcher, Steve Carlton, pitched a complete game, allowing only one run in the ninth.

Pirates 4, Reds 1

Pittsburgh (UPI)—Bob Veale fired a three-hitter and Bill Mazeroski doubled home the winning run as the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Cincinnati Reds, 4-1 Monday night.

Veale's second victory in five outings. He retired 19 men in a row at one point. Mazeroski's double broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth inning when the Pirates scored twice. The two batters to left center drove in Richie Hebner, who opened the inning with a single.

Jerome Boosters Set Final Meet Wednesday Night

JEROME — The Jerome Tiger boosters will hold their final meeting of the year Wednesday night at 8 in the Junior High building.

CHICAGO (UPI)—Hank Aaron led off the 10th inning with his 14th home run of the season, and 58th of his career, Monday to lift the red hot Atlanta Braves to a 7-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Giants 6, S. D. 5

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Ken Henderson, who opened the inning with a walk, scored the first 174 game of his season and Feeney was named as his successor in December. Backing Feeney's statement is one from Paul F. Collins, president of the A.G. Spaulding Company, which manufactures baseballs for both major leagues.

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Richie Allen's three-run homer broke up a pitching duel between Jim Bunning and Steve Carlton Monday night and gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-0 win over the Philadelphia Phillies in the ninth inning.

Cerdan Falls To Paduano On Decision

By WILLIAM VERIGAN UPI Sports Writer NEW YORK (UPI)—Donato Paduano of Canada ruined Marcel Cerdan Jr.'s American debut by winning a bloody 10-round decision at Madison Square Garden Monday night.

Cerdan, son of the late world middleweight champion, seemed to have an upset in his grasp as the 21-year-old Paduano suffered a severe cut alongside his left eye when they bumped heads in the fifth round.

The cut bit profusely, as did Paduano's nose from the first round on. But Paduano, the 7-5 favorite, refused to lose heart.

He began his rally in the 8th round, jabbing sharply to the mouth and crossing right over Cerdan's low guard, a blow which Jake Lammotta, the man who beat Cerdan, senior, for the world title, had noted in Southern Methodist.

Declarer Avoids NT at All Costs

Who would respond a spade with the North hand to look for a 4-4 spade fit, but the two-no-trump meets with our complete approval.

South has no problem with his hand. He has 23 high card points, honors in all four suits and no singleton. He should just raise to three no-trump and let his partner collect nine or 10 tricks, depending on how the defenses go.

This is too simple for the victim of notrumps. He has a four-card spade suit and is going to bid it just in case his partner also holds four spades. He does bid three spades. North looks at his four spades and raises to the spade game. East and West take the ace of hearts and three trump tricks and the rubber goes on.

Of course, if North were also a sufferer he would have bid three no-trump, not four spades and South would undoubtedly have given up and let North play the hand.

One symptom of mental weakness is that you suspect others of having the same trouble. The man with acute notrumps is always looking for the same disease in his partner. Hence, he keeps taking his partner out of no-trump contracts because he suspects that his partner is bidding his no-trumps when

North has a book two no-trump response to his partner's diamond opening. He has 13 high card points, 4-3-3-3 distribution and preparation for the lead of any suit. True, he doesn't have a guaranteed spade stopper but that is his four-card suit and it is seldom that you have to worry about your own stopper being used as the weapon to destroy you.

A CHECK of the marriage licenses of bridegrooms in their 30s show they pick brides who are five years younger on the average. IT'S REPORTED that Judge Roy Hofheiser, the Houston Astrodomo man, drinks Jack Daniels and Diet Dr. Pepper, mixed. May I leave the room... SIX OUT OF SEVEN American women of voting age tell pollsters they wouldn't, that's not, not ever, vote for a lady President.

STATUES—Let's take a look at statues of generals on horses. Rather, a look at the hooves of these sculptured horses. If the front hooves both are in the air, the general died in battle. If just one front hoof is in the air, the general was wounded. If all four hooves are on the pedestal, the general survived his battles unscathed. Our source for this item did not explain what it signifies if all four hooves are in the air. Curious.

GOURMET ITEM—Where I eat lunch sometimes goes a gentleman who orders nothing but a head of lettuce covered with light beef gravy... CUSTOMER SERVICE—Q—What's it mean among the motorcycle gangs when they say a girl "pulls a train"? A—Our Language Man says their way of saying she's not a one-man girl, but makes herself available to several... Q—Is it true former President Lyndon Johnson always wanted to have toothpicks on the White House dining table? A—No, sir, only President who insisted upon having toothpicks at hand was Warren Harding.

EVIDENTLY, nobody can explain why the statistics seem to indicate that children conceived in the last six months of any given year tend to be best apt to suffer mental handicaps. WHEN THE SURVEY TAKERS asked puerperal wives whether they would marry the same men if given a second chance to think it over, 22 out of 100 said absolutely not.

PLANET MAN—Our Planet Man is worried about Taurus girls. He says they tend to lose their schoolgirl figures at too early an age. He says a Taurus girl would be wise to learn to sew when young so she can hand-make her own clothing alterations as she wears on.

Parisians Take Food In Protest

PARIS (UPI)—Students distributed luxury food Sunday to surprised aluminum dwellers—everything from fine wines to rich candies that they stole in a recent attack on the famed delicacy shop—Fauchon—last week.

The students took the food they grabbed in a "revolutionary" raid on Fauchon's Friday to three slum areas in the suburbs of Paris.

Tourists Eye Girls In Berlin

BERLIN (UPI)—Soon it will be girl-watching season at Checkpoint Charlie in this divided city. It's hard to recall that American and Russian tanks confronted each other there nine years ago.

The tourists will be flocking to the East-West Berlin border to see the Berlin Wall and hear stories of dramatic escapes and refugees gunned down by East German soldiers.

But they'll have to wait a long time to see an incident or hear a shot. A Russian at the wall will be even rarer.

Spec. 4 Robert Damico, 28, of New York City, can remember when a refugee was shot as he tried to climb the wall near Charlie but he has been on duty there the relatively long time of 14 months.

Spec. 4 Robert Spezia, 20, of Rochester, Mich., has seen no incidents in his seven months there.

Biology Course Contradiction Noted In Nixon's Policies

BOISE (UPI)—A basic course in micro-biology will be given to food technologists from pre-existing plants in Idaho this week.

The seminar is sponsored by the Idaho Department of Health, Laboratory Division, under the direction of Dr. Darrell Brock.

Control Of Investors Unit Eyed

GENEVA (UPI)—Investors Overseas Services (IOS), the mutual fund group, set up a seven-man committee Sunday to negotiate with outside interests seeking control of the organization.

Martin Brooke, a 40-year-old Englishman and IOS director, was made head of the negotiating committee.

The team was established to allow most of the other 23 IOS directors time to get back to their regular tasks following a marathon six-day board session that ended in the resignation Saturday of IOS founder and chairman Bernard "Bernie" Cornfeld.

Cornfeld, 42, who made $100 million by introducing the hardest mutual fund business to Europe, remained a member of the board. His associate, Edward M. Cowett, 42, who also was toppled in the shakeup, will remain as a board member.

Both the King Resources Co. of Denver, owned by American oil tycoon John M. King, and a consortium of European banks led by the Rothschilds of London, have made offers for control of IOS.

IOS executives disclosed that these two groups separately, there is a possibility that King and the European banks may join forces.

President Nixon left the impression in his news conference Friday night that no U.S. personnel, whether advisers or combat troops, would ever engage in a Cambodian operation to save the weak and shaky new anti Communist government there.

Home Buyers Pay A Higher Price In Idaho

BOISE (UPI)—Some Idaho buyers of new homes in 1969 paid a slightly higher price than the national average.

Director Eugene H. Carpenter said buyers of newly built homes financed with the Federal Housing Administration paid an average price of $20,605, compared with the national average of $20,563.

He said the Idaho buyer's monthly payments, including utility bills and maintenance, were $185. The national buyer's monthly payments were $205.

Angry Idahoans Demand Schools Close

By RICHARD CHARNOCK (UPI)—A number of angry taxpayers are demanding closure of Idaho's two state universities in the wake of last week's firebombings.

Jack M. Murphy said today. While state officials have no intention of doing so at this point, the taxpayer reaction to Idaho's first destructive student outburst in the field of higher education have the officials disturbed.

Murphy, acting governor while Gov. Don Samuelson is attending a presidential briefing on Cambodia in Washington, D. C., and Attorney General Robert Robson discussed the situation informally in the governor's office this morning.

"A few more incidents and there's going to be a wave of repression that's hard to stop," Robson said, noting that until last week Idaho's "track record (in student demonstration) was good."

Murphy agreed, noting that pressure will be put on legislators to seek down on appropriations for higher education should Idaho students begin acting like those elsewhere in the nation.

"And it's too bad," Murphy said, "because the great bulk of the students don't choose to do these things."

"It's just a small percentage," Robson agreed. "Yet, they give a black eye to the whole bunch," Murphy said. Both officials reported receiving a number of telephone calls from angry taxpayers since the firebombings.

Gough, Samuelson's press secretary, said he, too, received a number of calls.
