Viets Increase Cambodia Units By 7,000 Men

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese command units reported 13,000 men Saturday in Cambodia by 7,000 men Saturday in a double-barreled offensive that drove west toward the beleaguered town of Toulle Bet and south to the outskirts of the main seaport at Kompong Som.

No U.S. troops were involved in the twin thrusts but Saigon communiques reported 13,000 Americans slain and 14 wounded in attacks by Communist forces in Cambodia's Fishhook area near the South Vietnamese border. This raised the U.S. toll in the three-week campaign to 190 dead and 731 wounded.

The South Vietnamese build-up increased Saigon's commitment in Cambodia to 47,000 men, and underscored South Vietnam's determination to press on indefinitely despite U.S. pledges that all American forces will be withdrawn from Cambodia by July 1. About 10,000 Americans remain in Cambodia.

A battalion of North Vietnamese infantrymen defiantly flew the Communist flag over Toulle Bet Saturday as a South Vietnamese task force of 13,000 men led by Gen. Phan Thanh Gian moved toward the east bank of the Mekong River.

Toulle Bet, 50 miles northeast of Phnom Penh and just across the river from Kompong Cham, fell to the Communists last Saturday after they withdrew from Kompong Cham, Cambodia's second largest city.

To the south, along the Gulf of Siam, elements of the 21st South Vietnamese Infantry Division were reported six miles east of the port at Kompong Som (formerly Sihanoukville) in a drive aimed at choking Communist supply lines by sea.

UPI newsmen Tran Dai Minh said the South Vietnamese column stopped just outside Kompong Som to await orders from the high command in Saigon on whether to move into the port and seal it.

Drippy

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—The weather beats everybody—even the weatherman.

Someone at the ESSA weather bureau doubly inserted the following paragraphs Saturday in its daily intermountain weather summary:

"The radar map this morning shows numerous showers over northern Utah, but most of the activity is over the mountains.

"These showers are due in part to the fact that a group of meteorologists are holding a picnic in Salt Lake City this afternoon."

War Foe To Crimp Pentagon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An aide said Saturday Sen. J. William Fulbright will attempt to slash the Defense Department's public relations budget by one-third on the grounds the Pentagon is trying to propagandize the American people.

As evidence, Fulbright will cite sworn testimony from an Air Force sergeant that fake battles were "staged" in Vietnam for the benefit of military photographers and U.S. television audiences.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, plans to ask the Senate Appropriations Committee to slash $10 million from the Pentagon's public information budget, which he estimates at $30 million.

Both Congress and the press are "seriously threatened by an administration experienced in using techniques of mass advertising and uninhibited in presenting inaccurate or misleading information in order to sell official policies," Fulbright contended in a letter to Walter Cronkite of CBS news.

In a letter to Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, Fulbright charged the Pentagon was producing faked battle scenes to sway American public opinion behind the administration's Vietnamization policy.

Assistant U.S. Attorney General Jerris Leonard headed off a possible new confrontation at Jackson State College where two young blacks were killed last week.

Leonard, recently appointed to head the Justice Department's investigation into the violence at the school, rushed to the women's dormitory where the shooting occurred and persuaded young blacks to allow the dismantling of the bullet-riddled wall panels and windows at the school.

Prosecutor Ronald Kane said he will convene the Justice (Ohio) County grand jury during the second week in June to investigate the fatal shootings of four Kent State University students.

The investigation was requested by Portage County Coroner Robert Sybert who said the grand jury should determine if the shootings were "homicidal or accidental."

Bomb Report
Clears Jet
For Police

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—Police emptied a Miami to New York jetliner on the pretext of a bomb threat Saturday and arrested a gaudily-clad man identified as a Black Panther teacher on a charge of murdering a rookie Miami policeman.

Charles Dawson, 26, was arrested as he and the other passengers on Eastern Airlines Flight 182 deplaned at Orlando, ostensibly while authorities searched for a bomb. Though arrested, Dawson gave up without resistance.

Police said Roland J. Lane II, a 21-year-old rookie policeman who joined the force in January, was shot to death early Saturday after he and his partner questioned three Negro men for stopping in Miami's central black district.

Lane's partner, Fred Harris, said he chased one of the suspects, who broke and ran up a nearby stairway, while Lane watched the others. Harris said when he returned he found the young officer lying on the ground, mortally wounded.

VIENNA (UPI)—One of the worst floods in Romanian history threatened Saturday to wash that independent-minded Communist country back into the Soviet orbit.

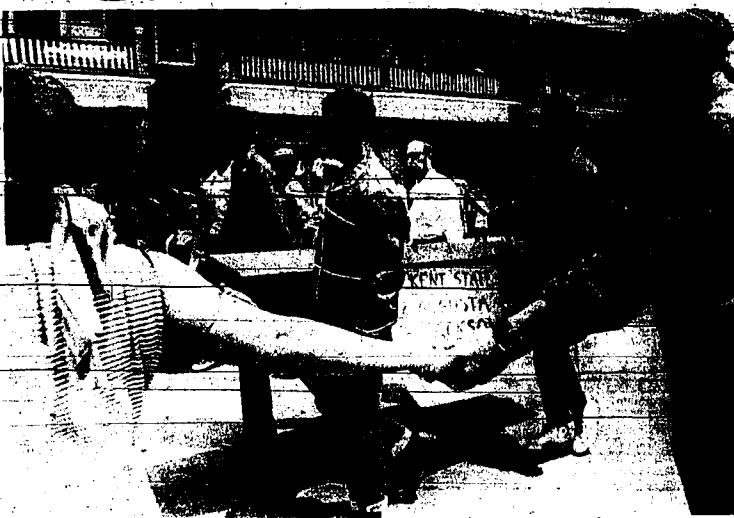

Signs multiplied that Moscow was using the floods to pressure Romania to make military and foreign policy concessions.

Flood damages expected to run into the billions of dollars could severely weaken Bucharest's ability to withstand that pressure.

Rogers Will Support NATO On European Troop Ouster

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who leaves for Europe Sunday, will strongly back NATO efforts to open talks with the Communist Warsaw Pact on a mutual reduction of forces in Europe, State Department officials said Saturday.

The secretary's presentation to the NATO Ministerial Council, which meets in Rome Tuesday and Wednesday will be to put the onus on the Soviet Union and its East European allies for not coming forward so far to negotiate the serious problems dividing Europe.

Rogers, the sources said, remains cool to the Soviet proposal for a European security conference because he believes the Russians are seeking only superficial accords to ease tensions in Europe.

Rogers leaves at 9 a.m. EDT Sunday aboard a special military flight from Andrews Air Force Base. He is scheduled to arrive in Rome at 10:30 p.m. local time.

Following the NATO meeting, Rogers will visit Madrid on Thursday and Friday and Lisbon next Friday and Saturday.

In Madrid, Rogers will meet with high Spanish officials to review progress in current negotiations for a new U.S. Spanish accord to allow American military installations to remain in Spain another five years. The present agreement expires Sept. 26, 1970.

Egyptian Guns Pound Israeli Army Base

By United Press International
An Egyptian artillery barrage scored a direct hit Saturday on an Israeli Army mess hall in a Suez Canal base, killing seven soldiers and wounding an undetermined number of others, an Israeli military spokesman said Saturday night.

Israel Saturday communique also reported four Israeli soldiers wounded Saturday by a mine along the frontier with Jordan.

Earlier Saturday, Israeli spokesmen said Arab guerrillas fired a barrage of rockets into an Israeli paramilitary settlement in the Jordan Valley. Meanwhile, fears mounted in Beirut of an Israeli reprisal attack for Friday's school bus ambush launched from Lebanon. There were reports of an Israeli military buildup along the Lebanese border.

The seven dead was the biggest Israeli toll for one day since the canal front since October, 1966, when 13 soldiers were killed in an Egyptian artillery barrage.

The attack Saturday was directed against an Israeli army stronghold.

Reds Throw Bottles At U. S. Tanks

BERLIN (UPI)—Leftist demonstrators hurled bottles, stones and bags of paint Saturday at American tanks in West Berlin but failed to deter annual Western Allied military parade.

Police responded with tear gas and clubs to break up a demonstration protesting U.S. policy in Southeast Asia.

More than 100 demonstrators were arrested for disorders that began during the parade and lasted for hours after it ended. An unknown number of demonstrators and police were injured in clashes.

French Bomb Explodes In Pacific Test

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI)—France exploded its second nuclear device Friday in a current test series with British and American ships observing the blast and participating in the operation.

American planes from Pago Pago in American Samoa flew into the nuclear mushroom cloud. Observers believed the French nuclear tests to test their own atmospheric observation equipment.

The first explosion in the series of eight planned tests was held May 13. The blast Friday, the 14th made by France in the Pacific and the 10th since French tests ended the Sahara desert in North Africa Feb. 13, 1966.

There's plenty of water going over the falls these days—approximately 18,000 gallons per second. The continuing cool weather in Southern Idaho has kept the Snake River in unusually high water. The Snake River water is running above normal amounts of water in the new pack. Glenn Himmels, Missions Project superintendent, said that water has been flowing past Himmels since early in April, and the flow is expected to continue into June. Jackson Lake and Palisades Reservoir have been holding their water for some time. The result has been that the Snake River is overflowing its banks on the Upper Snake but contains only about 1/2 inch of water. The Snake River is expected to be a minimum.

Equity In Race Sought

ATLANTA (UPI)—Eight thousand persons walked behind a mule-drawn wagon through the sweltering streets of Atlanta Saturday to "break the back of discrimination and aggression" in a march reminiscent of Dr. Martin Luther King's funeral.

"America does not yet have equity for its colored people," Mrs. Coretta, from the same shady campus at Morehouse College where her husband's funeral eulogies were read two years ago.

"Your enemy is the force of oppression which would silence dissent by any means possible," she said.

Temperatures in the 90s beat down on the marchers, who stretched at one point from the beginning of the walk at King's tomb to the campus itself, a distance of one mile.

Leading the march was a creaking wagon drawn by a mule and a horse and behind that 10 men carried two empty, black-draped caskets. Mrs. King walked in the front row of the march with Sen. George D. McGovern, D-S.D., the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, who succeeded King as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Atlanta Mayor Sam Massell and Leonard Woodcock, new United Auto Workers president.

About 30 per cent of the marchers were "hippies" from Atlanta's "hippy" hippie community. The marchers included the nation's one white youth came shirtless, with a Viet Cong flag painted on his back and flowers pinned on his face and chest.

Tired Bird

MOSCOW (UPI)—A speedy Soviet swallow flew more than 1,250 miles in four days to set an ornithological speed record, Tass said Saturday.

The Soviet news agency said the swallow received a metal leg band in the western end of the Tien Shan mountains this spring and turned up four days later in the Sayan mountains after a trip that set "a kind of record for a bird."

Steel Trucks End Dispute Over Union

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Independent steelworkers, who have been on strike for nearly two months to back demands for certification as a labor union, voted Saturday to return to work Sunday.

The steelworkers, members of the Fraternal Association of Steelworkers (FASW), who own and operate their own trucks, said they would begin returning to the road Sunday at 4 p.m. The vote was 310-194.

William J. Hill, national president of FASW, which claims to have 10,000 members in the East and Midwest, said "We've already had three increments of troop withdrawals announced and we've met every date." Laird said, "We will meet the new reduction which has been announced by President Nixon and we will meet the troop withdrawals in Southeast Asia—as far as Cambodia is concerned."

Laird Vows Troop Date Will Be Met

Defence Secretary Melvin Laird pledged Saturday that the Nixon administration's withdrawal dates for troops in Southeast Asia will be met.

"We've already had three increments of troop withdrawals announced and we've met every date," Laird said. "We will meet the new reduction which has been announced by President Nixon and we will meet the troop withdrawals in Southeast Asia—as far as Cambodia is concerned."

Entertainers Travel Snake

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI)—Interior Secretary Walter Hickel and a party of about 30 departed by jet boat here Saturday morning for a three-day trip up the scenic Middle Fork of the Snake River.

The group, which includes entertainers Burl Ives and Arthur Godfrey, will travel through Hell's Canyon of the Snake and about 100 miles upstream.

Official Clears Largest Merger

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—Among the critics of the merger plan was consumer advocate Ralph Nader and corporate gadfly Mrs. Evelyn Davis of New York City.

Cotter vetoed the last merger proposal Dec. 15, 1968, but suggested a marriage of the firms through a voluntary tender offer of stock.

Holders of 22 million shares of Hartford Fire stock stand to gain $13 a share on the terms of their holdings with a possible decision by the courts.

Nader's charges that the merger would allow the two companies to raise their prices and reduce service to policyholders were dismissed by the merger plan.

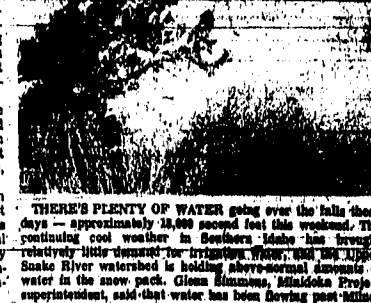

They also assured employees they would not lose jobs through the merger.

Soviet Ship Operating Near U. S.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—The Soviet intelligence gathering ship Sarychev is operating in waters off the California coast, the U.S. Navy's Sixth Fleet headquarters said Saturday.

The 300-foot ship flying the Soviet flag was seen within 100 miles of Southern California May 14, but has not violated U.S. territorial waters, the Navy said.

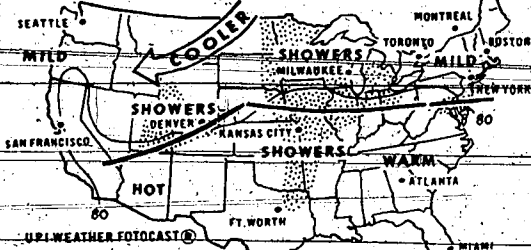

The Sarychev, last seen previously off the U.S. coast last December, has on occasions approached within 30 nautical miles of land and is currently about 40 miles off San Francisco, the command announcement said.

Synopsis

The weak cool front which intensified suddenly and caused showers and gusty winds across Southern Idaho Friday night and Saturday morning has weakened again and was located in Wyoming and Utah Saturday afternoon. High pressure is again building strongly into the Intermountain Region and will provide us with generally fair weather today and Monday. The next disturbance is approaching through the Gulf of Alaska and it likely will bring a threat of more showers about Monday night or Tuesday. Although skies will partially clear by this morning, the air mass is fairly moist and temperatures aloft are not very cold, so surface temperatures were expected to remain above freezing during the night. Tonight will be a little warmer yet. Daytime temperatures will be on an upward trend today and Monday, with highs generally in the upper 60s in Eastern Idaho to the lower 80s near the Oregon border today. Monday's highs will be in the 70s and 80s. Winds should be less than 12 miles an hour this morning.

Police, State Are Keeping Their Eyes On Racket In Phony Driver's Licenses

Highly sophisticated phony drivers licenses have caused Sheriff Paul Corder to issue a warrant to bartenders and others who sell or serve liquor and beer to ask for at least two pieces of identification from young customers.

Since the advent of Idaho licenses which have photographs of the licensee incorporated, bartenders have been relying mostly on this one piece of identification.

A Twin Falls High School student, Terry Glen Ochsenrider, was charged this week with two counts of possession of a fraudulent driver's license and one count of perjury. The perjury complaint stems from Ochsenrider allegedly falsely signing an affidavit that he had lost his driver's license.

Warrants charging him with the violations were served when he came to the sheriff's office to pick up his wallet which had been found at a park in the county.

The sheriff said one of the licenses was altered in a highly professional manner and to the naked eye, new lettering which placed Ochsenrider as legal drinking age, was not easily visible. Another case, which occurred in Boise, also has alerted Gem State law enforcement officers and drivers license examiners to use extra care in issuing licenses.

In March a Boise woman, mother of a 17½-year-old boy, called the Department of Law Enforcement and related this story:

The night previously she and her husband had gone into a bar, and to their surprise, found their son drinking in the establishment. They sent him home and later in talking to him, he produced a license which carried his picture, but not his own social security number, name, date of birth or other information.

The youth told his parents many underage Idahoans are taking identification of an older acquaintance (sometimes paying him for the service), go to the license bureau and apply for a duplicate license. The sheriff's office then teletypes or calls the Boise central files for a check on the older boy's record and it comes back "clear", opening the door to purchase of the phony permit.

The older boy, it is then handed over to the younger boy, again often for a fee. The younger boy then has two pieces of identification with his picture on both. One is to use in purchasing liquor and beer and for getting into bars and the other is valid, to use on all other occasions.

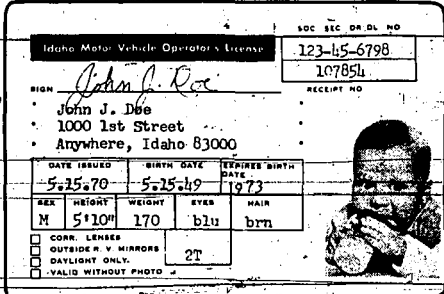

The state bureau prints out 99 per cent of all requests for duplicate licenses are made by those under 25 and 98 per cent are from persons under 21 years of age.

As standard procedure, license examiners in Twin Falls send in a check on all persons requesting duplicate licenses, those who are from out-of-state and anyone who arouses suspicion.

Sheriff Corder said since the phony license problem has come to light, many people are being detained to make a more thorough check. Boise will now furnish a full description of persons filing for duplicate licenses.

Sheriff Corder said in addition to often laying themselves open to perjury charges, persons also can lose their driving privileges if convicted of possession of a fraudulent license.

"Health Planning" Session Held Here

Representatives of some dozen agencies and organizations in Twin Falls and other Magic Valley counties met in Twin Falls Saturday to discuss comprehensive health planning as it involves low income residents.

Conducted by a leadership panel from Boise State College, the workshop was one of six being held in various parts of the state to coordinate the efforts of individuals and agencies working with low income residents.

Dan Huff, director of the project, explained sessions are designed to inform the group of low income leaders about the comprehensive health planning process and the importance of quality representation from low income citizens. They also provide experience to allow maximum effectiveness in participating in health planning councils and assist leaders in leadership techniques so they can better represent their communities. They also help selected leaders be more effective in the area of community organization and planning, Mr. Huff said, especially in the areas of identifying and making appropriate changes in local health programs.

Speaking to the community leaders Saturday were Morris W. Carlson, county commissioner and member of the governor's comprehensive health planning committee; Dr. Ben Katz from the local medical society and planning committee and Mrs. Irene Oliver, Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Administrator.

Others who participated in discussion and explained their

Paunch Corps

Everyone has heard of the Peace Corps, which has been essentially, though not entirely, a channel through which the energy and idealism of thousands of young Americans have been mobilized to help the peoples of the underdeveloped world better their lives.

Not so well-known is what is sometimes affectionately referred to as the "Paunch Corps," an organization of "old" people motivated by the same kind of idealism.

This is the International Executive Service Corps, formed in 1964 by a group of American businessmen headed by David Rockefeller of the Chase Manhattan Bank with the goal of fostering economic growth and strengthening private enterprise in developing countries.

The idea was to recruit experienced executives to serve on short-term assignments overseas, working with local businesses which requested their particular expertise or managerial skill. Since beginning operations in January, 1965, the IESC has answered requests for assistance from some 1,000 enterprises in 45 countries in Latin America, the Middle East, Africa and South and East Asia.

Volunteer executives have helped improve food production and health standards, textile and apparel manufacture, investment and banking practices, construction methods, transportation systems, communications, natural resource development, government and education services.

With many developing nations bidding strongly for foreign visitors, IESC experts have undertaken about 70 hotel and tourist promotion programs in 13 countries. One recent assignment was the development of a park, recreation area and marine-life showplace by the Republic of Singapore with the assistance of the director of Chicago's Shedd Aquarium. In a similar project, a top zoologist, the director of the Milwaukee County Zoo, was recruited to advise the city of Cali, Colombia, on plans for a new zoo.

Nine of the volunteer executives have been women, including a magazine food editor who was sent to Iran, a hospital administrator to Greece, a trade exhibit adviser to Honduras, and a shoe pattern and fitting specialist in her 70s who advised a shoe manufacturer in Panama.

Most of the executives are recently retired, though some are still in active careers and are given leaves of absence by their companies. Except for travel and living expenses, they serve without compensation.

While supported in part by the U. S. Agency for International Development, the IESC also receives financial sponsorship from over 200 major U. S. corporations. Each foreign firm contributes toward the costs of its project.

The IESC, with headquarters in New York, is managed independently by private businessmen. President is Frank Pace Jr., former secretary of the Army and chief executive of General Dynamics Corp.

Youth has the vision and the energy to change the world. Age has the experience and judgment and practical knowhow. The qualities of enthusiasm and wisdom have been combined to a remarkable degree in the International Executive Service Corps.

More power to the "Paunch Corps."

Pie In Face

Like these presidential commission straights were having a hearing in, uh, you know, Washington, on obscenity and pornography. No, man, I don't mean the Vietnam war and the military budget. I mean, bourgeois-type obscenity, like sex and porny pics and, you know, four-letter words.

Anyway, this hippie character from the Underground Press Syndicate was testifying, trying to get it through to the straights that nobody had a right to stifle his, you know, creativity. Then all of a sudden he lets fly a cream pie right in the face of the straight who was questioning him, some University of Washington sociology professor.

Man, talk about a put-down. The straights just sat there, uh, you know, gaping.

Funny thing, though. The one with the pie running down his face didn't DO anything. Just said, "Don't bug me. I'm asking you a question."

Now what kind of way to, you know, behave is that?

MR. SPECTATOR

On Wandering Thoughts

Like we say every now and then, we get a lot of letters from people far and near.

All are interesting, but some are more interesting and we give you a bit of them now and then. For instance:

Mrs. Wayne Murphy, Route One, Kimberly, sends us a clipping from the January-February issue of the Idaho Wildlife Review. It concerns the number of Cougars taken in the 1968-69 season. Here it is, in part: "Idaho trophy hunters and predator trappers bagged 104 cougars last year, an increase of 60 cats over the total for the previous year. The record season during the old days of bounty payments produced only 144 cougars.

Well, Mickey sent us a brochure of the "Cal 21" a sailboat which can be purchased right in Jerome. She even went so far as to write that it was the answer to the high cost of ocean sailing. And, she added, that Mr. Spectator could inspect their sailboat anytime he wanted to.

A fine invitation and we will keep it in mind. But come to think of it we are still trying to get out someplace to try out our new camper before the season is over. That's the trouble with having to let working "kith" with "your living, vanishing species. I understand that to hunt a cougar, a man must chase it with the help of dogs (he evidently can't face the cougar on his own terms).

"The dogs eventually corner and 'tree' the cougar and then the 'brave' hunter proceeds to shoot it while it is sitting in the tree. Is this sport?"

Then a note from Mickey Miller, Route Three, Jerome. You remember Mr. Spectator had a column in a few days ago in which he lamented the high cost of ocean sailing, or something along that line.

Well, Mickey sent us a brochure of the "Cal 21" a sailboat which can be purchased right in Jerome. She even went so far as to write that it was the answer to the high cost of ocean sailing. And, she added, that Mr. Spectator could inspect their sailboat anytime he wanted to.

BRUCE BLOSSAT

Why Did Nixon So Move?

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Long before he was elected, President Nixon used to tell associates that two of Lyndon Johnson's worst mistakes were putting too many troops into Vietnam and exposing too much trust in the military.

Why then did he order troops into Cambodia in a move widely interpreted as a yielding to long-standing military urgings to attack the Communist sanctuaries?

Some accounts have it that the venture is wholly explained by the collapse of the Sihanouk government in Cambodia and the resulting threat that intruding Reds would not only widen their border sanctuaries but conquer and use as a supply base most of the country — at least to the western edges of the fertile Mekong River valley.

Yet a man who knows the President well believes (and he is not the only one to have hinted at this) that Nixon moved in Cambodia more to present a tough image to the Soviet Union than simply to gain perhaps passing advantage in the Vietnam War.

This source said the President thinks he acted with significant restraint in curtailing plane shipments to Israel and was "deeply disturbed" to learn that at least 150 Soviet pilots are today flying combat patrol missions for Egypt as a means of diminishing Israeli attacks. In this view, the President felt himself cruelly deceived and in peril of being judged "weak" by Khrushchev if he did not respond.

His source is convinced Nixon regarded a "tough move" as vital, that the fluid Cambodian situation presented a golden opportunity, that the larger strategic consideration with the Soviet Union led him to do what even Johnson never did — lunge across that border.

Whether or not this is a true explanation of why Nixon went beyond Johnson in realms of judgment where he always faulted his predecessor, what he did has to be accepted as a daring maneuver.

He was also bold when he undertook unilateral withdrawal of U. S. troops from Vietnam, a step which highly vocal but basically timid doves never proposed in the 1968 campaign.

He grasped the nettle, too, when he offered sweeping welfare reforms of a character many leading liberals have known for years were needed but could not quite bring themselves to propose.

The biggest proof of Nixon's business acumen in the White House came after election, defeats in 1960 and 1962. To come back, he dared the risky presidential primaries and won big. But the same man who made that hard choice campaigned later with unbelievable caution. He began with some 43 per cent of the electorate on his side, and that was his vote in the narrow November scrape.

In Nixon's top circle, debate often raged that he should reach out beyond his "sure vote" to approach the young, the black, others. It was turned aside on grounds it would endanger what he already had.

He peppered his administration with some liberal types, from HEW Secretary Robert Finch down to young Ripon Society men inside the White House. But the hard truth is they do not have his ear.

He has thus dismayed not merely the publicized campers in his official family, but some of his most loyal and understanding associates — one at least of very long standing. They believe, despite his disclaimer, that he did indeed grossly underestimate the emotional quotient inherent in the Cambodian undertaking even discounting for the unforeseeable Kent State killings.

I believe a deep paradox marks Nixon's rise-up. In love with politics and government, defeats in 1960 and 1962. To come back, he dared the risky presidential primaries and won the need for the human dealings that are the stuff of politics.

Things Go Boom

Man came up from the mud with a weapon in his hand. Lacking camouflage, claws or fangs, he could never have survived — without that weapon.

When the bone became a stone and the stone became a spear, mammalian man stayed a step ahead of his pursuers.

One day his increased enlightenment produced gunpowder. Then and then, however he struggles to elevate himself above his primal past, even when he is not threatened, he'll go looking for trouble — for man remains enamored, fascinated with things that go boom.

Sometimes I think I must be more woman than man, because men waging wars seem to me like boys playing games. The other day New York's Mayor John Lindsay was speaking to students at the University of Pennsylvania. Then and there he said the real "heroes of this war" are those who "avoid military service and pay the price."

Like you, I bristled. How utterly dreadful that a civil administrator should counsel young men to "break the law."

But then I got to thinking about it. The mayor had not really counseled young men to flout the law. He said they should expect and accept the legal judgment and punishment.

And what he said is being said by so many — and considered by so many others — that we cannot longer ignore this civil revolt.

When two-thirds of the students and faculty at Princeton vote to strike in opposition to President Nixon's larger war in Cambodia, not all of those can be dismissed as crackpots.

Most young Americans really love our country and appreciate the advantages of our admittedly imperfect system, but they do not believe that patriotism commits them to be proadministration.

You and I grew up parroting some classic quotes: "My country, may she always be right; but right or wrong — my country!"

"I regret that I have but one life to give for my country."

"Give me liberty or give me death!"

And to us, patriotism implies blind acceptance of contemporary government policy in foreign affairs. "Politics stop at the water's edge," we said. "Not true," he'll go looking for things that go boom — rightly resenting paying with its lives to recover its elders' fumbles.

And you disagree on a matter of policy, without unpeeling your allegiance.

When Christ was 12 he is tarred a "youth movement." He went into the temple and pointed out to the doctors where they had gone astray. His effort was not to undermine the establishment, but to restore it — not to destroy the establishment, but to renew it.

Sihanouk's Fall

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It can be said with authority that President Nixon did not know Prince Sihanouk was to be ousted until the news reports arrived from Cambodia.

The White House was as surprised as Hanoi by Lt. Gen. Lon Nol's coup.

The U. S. government had no intelligence operatives in Phnom Penh. This was in consideration of Sihanouk's emotional nature. Washington desired not to upset the prince in any way.

For it can be said with certainty the United States was satisfied on balance with the role that Sihanouk played in the war. This government did not want him overthrown.

In fact, the Department of State for the past two years has done what it could behind the scenes to support Sihanouk nationally and internationally.

It is true Sihanouk did allow the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong to import arms through Sihanoukville. He sold them rice and fish essential for their operations in Vietnam. He allowed them to occupy bases in his country — bases they used to attack South Vietnam.

But Nixon's advisers believed Sihanouk did not have the military power to prevent these things. He was, as they saw it, essentially a captive in a country occupied by invaders immeasurably stronger than he. If he had attempted to throw the North Vietnamese out, or to completely deny them rice or arms, the worry here was the Communists would have taken military action against him and then done what they pleased.

What did Sihanouk do? As key administration men felt privately, the prince did not allow the North Vietnamese to bring in through Cambodian ports. He limited rice and fish he supplied their troops. He therefore kept a lid on the level of Communist military preparations and Communist use of bases. He achieved these results by means of frenetic political maneuvering and posturing. All this was helpful, military men say, to us in the Vietnam war.

The worry in military circles here was that if Sihanouk were overthrown, the Communists would be able through force to move in greater amounts of arms, ammunition more rice and expand their string of Cambodian military bases.

This then is why the United States did not want to upset the status quo in Cambodia under Sihanouk. It explains why we did not attack the North Vietnamese-Viet Cong bases during the years Sihanouk was in power.

Such attacks might have disturbed that balance.

One For Victory

GAMBIER, Ohio — Tense and dramatic days last week on the normally pastoral campus of Kenyon College here revealed the extent of the crisis for liberal education in America under even the best of conditions.

What happened at Kenyon was a signal triumph by administration, faculty, and students against politicizing the campus despite the volatile atmosphere. While some 450, colleagues were shutting down, Kenyon not only remained open but displayed some unfashionable virtues: civility, an appreciation of academic freedom, and mutual respect between faculty and student body.

Yet, even at Kenyon with less than 1,000 students and physically isolated in rural Ohio, worried professors and student leaders early approach the future — fearing the barbarians are at the gates. They wonder how long sanity can survive here while student fury, often abetted by faculty, engulfed Harvard, Michigan, and Berkeley. "How long can we stay quiet when all hell is breaking loose around us?" asks one Kenyon professor.

Every campus has its own peculiarity, and Kenyon's conspicuous success is no prescription for restoring liberal education nationwide or even a surefire formula for saving it here. What the Kenyon story underlines is that a firm stand by the faculty in the interest of intellectual civility is the one essential for survival of the American university.

Following the pattern of every campus today, students and faculty at Kenyon are emphatically opposed to the Vietnam war. Nor were they immune from the campus frenzy over the Cambodian operation and the killing of four Kent State University students. When Kenyon's students watched fellow students elsewhere man-the barricades via the evening television news, they started planning their own student strike.

Where Kenyon differed from most other campuses was the reaction of administration and faculty. Instead of submitting to the other day New York's Mayor John Lindsay was speaking to students at the University of Pennsylvania. Then and there he said the real "heroes of this war" are those who "avoid military service and pay the price."

Warning From Mao Was Aimed At U.S.

By CHARLES R. SMITH
HONG KONG (UPI) — Mao Tse-Tung apparently had two primary goals in issuing a rare public statement that warned of the danger of a world war and of Communist China's "biggest anti-American campaign in five years."

The Chinese Communist Party chairman's statement Wednesday appeared primarily designed to fan the fires of discontent in the United States and keep the guerrillas fighting in Indochina.

The statement was followed by mass public rallies denouncing the United States in Peking, Shanghai and other major cities.

was saying that China would get involved if forced to do so, but that the correct course is to keep the fighting limited. "Revolution is the main trend in the world today."

In speaking about the possibility of a world war, Mao was playing on the fears of many people in the United States about becoming involved in a war with the world's most populous nation (more than 700 million people) — U.S. imperialism ... becomes panic-stricken ... the mirror-rustle of leaves in the wind."

China has consistently and strongly opposed any talks or political settlement of the Vietnam War except on terms laid down by the Communists.

The coup d'etat in Cambodia and the American attack on Viet Cong and North Vietnamese bases there obviously caused some decline of Communist morale and military position. This may have made some elements in Hanoi more amenable to serious talks on a peaceful settlement.

Strengthening their unity, supporting each other and persevering in a protracted people's war, the three Indochinese peoples will certainly overcome all difficulties and win complete victory," Mao said.

"A weak nation can defeat a strong, a small nation can defeat a big. The people of a small country can certainly defeat aggression by a big country, if only they dare to rise in struggle, take up arms and grasp in their own hands the destiny of their country. This is a law of history."

With opposition to the war increasing in the United States, the Chinese consider it essential to keep the fighting going, albeit on a limited scale. This means avoiding any action that would bring about a direct confrontation between China and the United States while making it clear that China could get involved under certain conditions.

Thus when Mao spoke of the danger of a new world war he

Congress Expected To Block Proposal For Gas Shipment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It would remove all its killer chemical weapons from Okinawa by the end of spring. But on Friday, Army officials, announced that until the fate of Magnuson's amendment was decided, the plan was being postponed.

The bill to which the Magnuson amendment would be attached already has passed the House. If his plan is approved, the entire appropriations bill will go to a House Senate conference Committee.

That committee would iron out differences between the House and the Senate versions. Assuming the Magnuson proposal stayed in and this appeared likely the money bill then would go back for final approval by the House, and congressional experts said it seemed unlikely that body would reject the multi-million dollar measure merely because of that relatively minor amendment.

Agnew Renews War Against Newsmen

HOUSTON (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said Friday night President Nixon had not "muzzled" him. Then he proved it.

Agnew verbally blasted the news media, rioting students and the faculty he said supports them, and "the isolationists in the Senate."

"I have an obligation to all of the people of the United States to call things as I see them, and I have an obligation to the president to support his actions in the best manner that I can," he said. "I choose my own words, and I set the tone of my speeches. And I intend to be heard above the din even if it means raising my voice."

Quiet Picketing Outside
Outside the hotel 150 persons quietly picketed in Nixon administration.

Agnew did not restrict his attack on the news media to the "Eastern intellectuals." He cited specific examples of "liberal news media in this country" and two of them were from the South — the Atlanta Constitution and the Atlanta Gazette. Agnew also cited newspaper columnists and cartoonists.

He singled for attack The Washington Post and its two-time Pulitzer Prize-winning cartoonist Herblock, the New York Times and its writers Anthony Lewis, Tom Wicker and James Reston.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham opened his 10-day East Tennessee Crusade here Friday night with an estimated 45,000 packed into Neyland Stadium on the campus of the University of Tennessee.

Many came by school bus caravan from all over the eastern part of the state to hear the 51-year-old Evangelist open his Crusade with a fundamental gospel teaching from John 3:16 — "For God so loved the world."

Boat Lassoed

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Coast Guard chased a runaway motorboat on Lake Erie for more than an hour Wednesday before they managed to stop it. A seaman threw a line over the boat.

The line became tangled in the screw, thus stalling the engine. The boat got away from Thomas Luntar, Donald Serowski and Robert Patti in rough water. All three were rescued unharmed by the Coast Guard.

Dillon Case Heard By Supreme Court

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — A defense lawyer said today that evidence used to convict Michael Dillon of second-degree murder actually was inadmissible in court.

James May, Twin Falls, argued that Dillon was illegally arrested and therefore all evidence taken after that arrest should have been suppressed by the trial court.

Dillon, then 47, was convicted of the beating death of Alta Simerly, 65, Jerome. The woman's body was found in a sandpit near the Jerome golf course March 19, 1967 — five days after she disappeared from her home.

May contended Dillon's rights under the fourth and fifth amendments to the U. S. Constitution were violated and that damaging admissions were obtained from him before he was warned of his rights.

He also maintained that Dillon had a mental age of only 13 at the time and therefore was unable to ascertain that he was incriminating himself.

Arrest Defended

Assistant Attorney General Howard Manly contended that Dillon was not illegally arrested and that he was aware of his rights. While admitting the defendant's mental age was "fact," he urged the court to consider the "totality of circumstances" in the case in determining whether Dillon was aware of his rights.

After hearing nearly two hours of oral arguments the Supreme Court took the case under advisement.

May argued before the court that Dillon was improperly taken into custody by five officers who picked him up at a trailer house used by a sheep-shearing crew on a ranch at Bellevue and Friday that evidence used to convict Michael Dillon of second-degree murder actually was inadmissible in court.

He said the youth did not actually give his "consent" to go with the officers — who did not have a warrant for his arrest — because he was merely submitting to authority as would most children.

Contrary to Idaho law, he said, Dillon was interrogated at length before his mother was notified he was in custody. He said the law requires parents of a juvenile be notified as "soon as possible."

Authorities also failed to take him to a detention home but placed him instead in a regular jail cell used for adults, May argued.

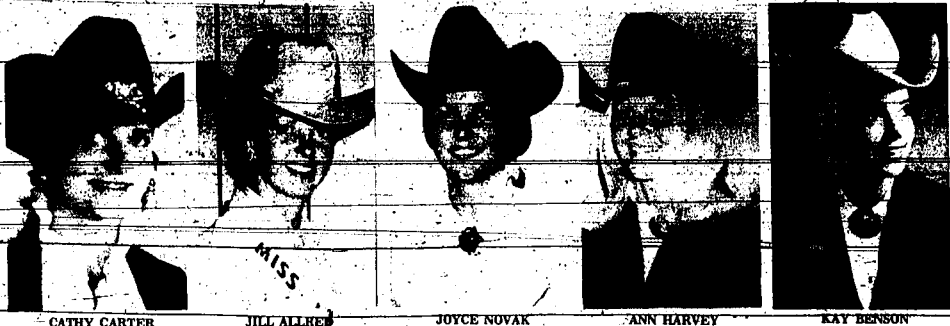

He said Dillon repudiated a confession given authorities during his sixth interrogation when he was asked about it later by a psychiatrist. He said each statement given by Dillon to authorities was different and argued the boy was trying to say what he felt the officers wanted him to say.

Although type "O" blood was found on his shoes, May said, it was not necessarily the victim's blood. He said Dillon and 43 percent of the population also have type "O" blood.

Manly argued that the significance of the blood was not that it was the same type as the victim's but that Dillon first told officers it was sheep blood which adhered to the shoes while he was stamping wool.

The significance was that Dillon lied, Manly said.

Manly said Dillon was not advised of his rights at the ranch because he was not interrogated at that time.

In Perjury

BOISE — A Twin Falls man, Rodney Lee Rusin, 21, was sentenced to two and one-half years in jail and the sentence was then reduced to a six-month jail and probation during the remainder of the period.

Rusin was convicted on a perjury charge involving testimony he gave in connection with a felony case involving another Twin Falls man before the federal court here Feb. 3, U.S. District Judge Fred M. Taylor reduced the sentence and ordered the man remain on probation for the remainder of the term.

Motocyclists Warned To Wear Helmets

Motorbike and motorcycle operators who have been getting by without safety helmets were warned Saturday by Lt. Dean Bennett, Idaho State Police, they are now required to wear them at all times while operating their machines.

He noted the Idaho Supreme Court has ruled the regulation calling for the helmets for all operators and passengers on motorcycles is legal.

The police lieutenant said the regulation will be strictly enforced immediately and all violators will receive citations.

VACANT SHELVES OF the deep freeze unit at Harbor House of Magic Valley were filled Thursday afternoon in a gift of a quarter of beef, cut and wrapped. Making the presentation are Mrs. Tom Sharp, Filer, and Mrs. Gary Turner, Hansen. Funds for this and other community service programs of the Desert Gold CowBelles are raised by conducting food concessions at the Idaho Cattlemen's Assn. bull sales at Filer each spring and fall.

Harbor House Gets Quarter Of Beef, Donated By Desert Gold CowBelles

One of the most useful contributions made to Magic Valley Harbor House is the presentation of beef from the Desert Gold Chapter, Idaho CowBelles. Mrs. Gary Turner, Hansen, and Mrs. Tom Sharp, Filer, co-chairmen of the beef promotion committee, Thursday afternoon presented Harbor House with a quarter of high quality beef, cut and wrapped for the deep freeze. This is the second such gift to the foster home by the local CowBelles and as funds permit and the beef is used more contributions are planned. Mrs. Sharp said she hopes it will be possible to keep the home's freezer well stocked with the meat.

"One of our major jobs as CowBelles is to promote the use of beef," she said, "and we feel this is one of the most useful methods of doing this. Many of the children who come to Harbor House have not had an opportunity for a wholesome and nourishing diet including choice beef," she said.

Mrs. R.W. Schiffer, housemother, said in accepting the latest gift, "The meat the CowBelles have given us is one of our most appreciated gifts. We never know from meal to meal how many children we will have, a good supply of meat makes meal planning much easier and assures nourishing meals regardless of the number."

Church Asks Easier Penalty On Marijuana

CHICAGO (UPI) — The United Presbyterian Church General Assembly has endorsed a proposal recommending marijuana use be considered a misdemeanor instead of a felony and sometimes "barbaric" penalties be eliminated. The 182nd general assembly of the 3.2-million member denomination voted Thursday night to accept "in principle" a report by its special committee on the use of drugs—with two major amendments.

The committee had recommended a "moratorium" on criminal penalties for marijuana use, but the assembly changed that to call for reducing such use from a felony to a misdemeanor.

The second amendment, added to the report, called for the committee to cooperate with the church's board on Christian education "to conduct a program of education regarding the dangers of drug use and abuse, aimed at prevention of drug addiction, stressing not only the dangerous physical effects of drug abuse, but the moral and spiritual responsibility and opportunity in light of the Christian concept of stewardship of mind and body."

The final endorsement came only after long, heated debate. The committee said the endorsed version was a step forward in many areas, but it still considered it a "punitive" approach to drug use by young people.

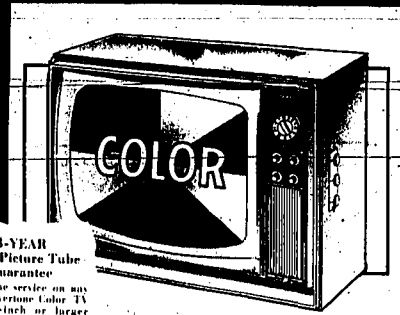

The assembly said the "basic thrust of the report was to emphasize a nonpunitive approach to the subject of the use and abuse of drugs."

The assembly voted to extend for another year the special committee's function to carry out its recommendations. The committee has been meeting for two years.

Shrum Asks State Post In Elmore

GLENN'S FERRY — James O. Shrum, Glenns Ferry Businessman, has filed for the Democratic nomination for State Representative from District 19. The House seat was vacated by Alvin Joslyn, Glenns Ferry, who declined to seek a sixth term.

Mr. Shrum operates a driveway near Glenns Ferry and is engaged in farming.

"I am deeply interested in the tax structure of Idaho," he said. "I feel that a greater burden of the property taxes should be in the hands of industry and the utilities rather than on the small personal property owner."

Shrum stated he feels the state sales tax disbursements could be revised so that it would benefit our educational system more. "This tax was supposed to have been a big boost for education," Shrum said, "but so far very little of it goes to education."

Controlled Hunt Returns To South Hills

Split Hunt Is Adopted For Elk Harvesting On North Soldier Mountain

BY LARRY HOVEY
Times-News Sports Editor

When the Southern Idaho Conference split itself into east and west divisions a year ago it put itself in a position of either opening up a new era for all of the state's athletes or falling back into the old state problem of provincialism.

Pahsimeroi Steelhead Run Ending

The steelhead run on the Pahsimeroi River has early ended with less than favorable results and combined with reports from other anadromous fish stations on the Columbia River indicate something was severely wrong with conditions during the 1968 escapement period.

Controlled hunts were returned to the South Hills deer by the Idaho Fish and Game Commission Friday when it set the opening dates and length of big game and upland bird seasons. The pheasant opening for Southern Idaho was set for Oct. 24 with the windup date to be fixed at the commission's August meeting.

The commission's actions followed the recommendation of Regional Game Biologist Dale Turnipseed both on the South Hills deer herd and for elk hunting in the Soldier Mountain area. The action also followed the public opinion that seasons should be cut back in most areas this year following a dip in hunter success last fall.

MAKING PLANS for the Magic Valley Women's Times-News Golf tournament are Mrs. Dave Barry, left, president of the host Burley Women's Golf Association, and Mrs. Bert Sorenson, tournament general chairman. The event is set for June 25 and 26.

The jury may still be out and the conference certainly has the opportunity of moving forward yet. But there are signs that sectionalism is going to win out. Always the pessimist, we predicted a year ago that the SIC would be dead within a matter of a few to several years and the divisions would become entities unto themselves.

The steelhead run on the Pahsimeroi River has early ended with less than favorable results and combined with reports from other anadromous fish stations on the Columbia River indicate something was severely wrong with conditions during the 1968 escapement period.

His idea for a split-North Soldier Mountain hunt, on the South Fork of the Boise, also was adopted. He suggested an early hunt with 250 permits for harvest on the resident herd plus a later one which would have inherent accessibility problems to trim the migrant winter carrying herd. A tagging project has proven the South Fork winters elk from a broad summer range area and the previous long, early hunt with 1,000 permits was successful in taking resident elk only while the migrants, which had kept browse use constant, had largely escaped harvesting.

The commission set opening dates for upland game bird hunting seasons, and closing dates will be fixed at a special meeting in August. Migratory waterfowl hunting seasons, bag limits and other regulations details will also be established in August after the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has set up the framework.

The biggest interplay occurs in the "major" sports of football and basketball where officiating becomes a factor and no one on the road is ever satisfied—even if they win big. In other sports where such things aren't so important, golf and track the best examples, there is little inter-divisional competition.

Quidor said it evidently has nothing to do with the hatchery fish and he has further statistics to prove that. Last year's take of wild fish on the Pahsimeroi was 52 while this year it was five females and one male. "It is evident from that that the 1968 escapement conditions were terrible," Quidor said. He noted the Idaho Fish and Game Department believes the mortality was caused by nitrogen super-saturation below the dams on the Columbia main stem.

Most highhorn sheep hunting will remain on a general hunt basis this year, but the commission indicated there was a strong possibility all highhorn sheep hunting would be controlled in years to come.

Speakers For Coach Clinic Are Named

Vince Gibson, head football coach at Kansas State University, and Dick Motta, coach of the Chicago Bulls, will be the featured speakers at the Idaho State Coaches Association clinic Aug. 3-8 at Sun Valley, announces Dick Stickle, Boise, clinic director. Gibson will present the football portion of the program along with two of his assistants, offensive coach Don Powell and defensive coach Jerry Elliott.

Very possibly the death-knell of the SIC ended last week when the Boise school board reportedly purchased the land for a fourth high school. It should be a few years away from realization, but it is entirely probable that the SIC dies the day the school opens its doors.

But back on the Pahsimeroi, Quidor said the number of adults coming into the weir this week had dwindled to 10, indicating the end was near. So far 1,400,000 eggs have been taken and Quidor estimates another 500,000 will come from the 50 females left to be stripped.

Donna Caponi Is Bluegrass Champ After Wood Shot

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Fifty Donna Caponi sank a 210-yard fairway wood shot for an eagle and a two-stroke second round lead in the $20,000 women's Bluegrass Invitational golf tournament Saturday.

Basketball will be discussed in the afternoon of Aug. 5 and all day Aug. 6 and 7. Also participating in the basketball program will be Jerry Hale, coach at College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls.

All the problems that are being discussed in the wake of the football shake up, such as recruiting, are boiled down to just one thing as of now. That is keeping boys eligible for next fall's practice. Apparently, the situation that boiled there much of the year caused an unannounced number of gridders to lapse in their studies somewhat. The staff currently is putting pressure on to try to bring these grades back up wherever possible.

Ed Troxel, who turned down the head job, said here last week that recruitment wasn't made a lot more difficult by the situation. "It's surprising,"

She just missed back-to-back eagles when her wedge shot on the 15th hole tipped the cup and she tapped in for a birdie.

Father-Son Duo Win Blue Lakes Tourney

Bob And J. A. Alexander Claim Aggregate And Overall Championships

A father and son team, A.J. Alexander and Bob Alexander, strode to victory in the Blue Lakes Invitational golf tournament Saturday by winning the daily competition and also the combined championship.

The Alexanders combined for a 12-under par 36 Saturday and a combined total of 113 for the two-day event. They had a 57 and were tied for second Friday.

The Alexanders' 56 put them one stroke up on a three-way tie for second spot. In that jam were the teams of Dan Mehl and Joe Dunn; Chuck Cosgriff and Grant Hendrix; and Grant Unger and Mike Root.

The two-day tournament was punctuated by a dinner-dance Saturday night at the country club.

Happy Birthday, Clyde You're Fired—Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Manager Clyde E. King was fired late Saturday as manager of the San Francisco Giants on his 48th birthday.

Giants' president Horace Stoneham announced King's dismissal at a news conference after the Giants had lost 17-16 in 15 innings to the San Diego Padres before a Cap Day crowd of 16,536 at Candlestick Park.

The Giants' owner said Charlie Fox, now managing the Phoenix Giants in the Class AAA Pacific Coast League, would replace King prior to Sunday's doubleheader with the Padres. The Phoenix Giants played Saturday night at Portland, Ore.

"It was a very unpleasant task in telling Clyde after the game that we were changing managers," said Stoneham. "Clyde was quite upset. I feel for him because I realize it came as quite a shock."

"But this was not made as a snap judgment. We had discussed the situation the past three or four weeks, came to a conclusion Friday night and confirmed it today (Saturday) before the ballgame."

King took over the reins of the Giants in 1969, succeeding Herman Franks who resigned. Despite a series of injuries which crippled the club and did not allow him to use a set lineup during the latter part of last season, the giants finished second in the National League West with a 90-72 record behind the Atlanta Braves.

It was the fifth straight year the Giants have finished as runners-up in the N.L. So far this season the Giants have been struggling to keep out of the division cellar with a 19-23 record.

Cannal tiger shark is a cannibal before it is born. Eggs of this shark are hatched within the mother's uterus and the first baby to emerge feeds on its weaker brothers and sisters in turn. The shark has two separate uteruses, so two young sand tiger sharks survive to be born.

Players And Owners Near Agreement

NEW YORK (UPI)—Marvin Miller, executive director of the Baseball Players' Association, said Saturday night that a preliminary settlement had been reached between major league ballplayers and club owners.

"A settlement has been reached subject to a ratification vote by the owners on one hand and the players on the other," Miller said.

The attorney added that the ballots would be sent to the players early this week so they can vote on the new offer.

Miller said the players' negotiating committee reached a settlement with the owners' players' relations committee this past week. He said the owners made some further concessions after the players overwhelmingly voted down the previous offer.

AAU To Make New Base In Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—The Amateur Athletic Union announced Saturday it will move its national headquarters from New York City to Indianapolis because of its midwestern location.

AAU President Jesse Pardue said the choice of Indianapolis culminates a six-month search for a new home. Other cities considered were Memphis, Tenn., Kansas City, Mo., Lincoln, Neb., Salt Lake City, Utah and Las Vegas, Nev.

"I believe that I speak for the vast majority of our members when I say how pleased we are with the selection of Indianapolis as our new home. We feel that, aside from the obvious economic advantages of this move, that relocation here (Indianapolis) puts us in closer contact with all the AAU associations across the nation and gives them all equal access to us, Pardue said.

Cats Down BYU For WAC Crown

PROVO, Utah (UPI)—A tie-breaking 7th inning carried Arizona into a two-run lead over Brigham Young University Saturday and clinched the Western Athletic Conference baseball crown for the Wildcats 10-8.

The two clubs were head-on at 8:45 at the top of the seventh when Arizona's Dave Jacome got to first on a walk, and made his way to second on a passed ball.

Yugoslavia Racks U.S. In Hoop Tourney

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia (UPI)—Host Yugoslavia, using a tough, aggressive attack upset the United States, 70-63, Saturday to clinch the title in the sixth world basketball championships.

The Yugoslavs led 35-32 at halftime and held on to take the victory. It left the host team with a 5-0 record in the round robin tournament which ends Sunday. The other six teams all have two or more losses.

In other games played in the next-to-last round, the Soviet Union stopped Italy, 62-58, and Claudio Menon fired in 24 points in leading Brazil to an 86-81 triumph over Uruguay.

The United States jumped off to a 16-11 lead early in the game, but the Yugoslavs whittled at the margin and finally moved ahead for good, 25-24, on a pair of baskets by Nikola Plescas.

Mike Silliman of the U.S. led all scorers with 16 points. Ken Washington had 16, Darnell Hillman 12 and Roderick McDonald 10.

T. F. To Send Seven Golfers To Boise Meet

Seven members of the Twin Falls High School state championship team, including Susan Davis, have entered the annual John Dropping Invitational Junior tournament at Boise's Hillcrest Country Club June 8 and 9.

Miss Davis will be the first girl to participate in the event, reports Bob Barbour, tournament chairman.

Entered from Twin Falls are Jim Blandford, Larry Malone, Jim Packard, Curt Thomsen, Jeff Thomsen and Dave Warner.

Two other Magic Valley youngsters will compete, Mike Mickes of Gooding and Bob Shrum of Glenna Ferry.

A total of 64 youngsters were invited to the meet which is named for John Dropping, a Borah high school golfer who was killed in a car accident four years ago.

Frozen Over

Due to the late spring, Red Fish lake, Stanley and Alturas lakes are still frozen over and probably will be unavailable to local anglers for next Saturday's opening of the general fishing season.

Helo Fish and Game Department Biologist Don Corley, Salmon, said the road to Red Fish remains under a foot of snow which will make planting impossible. In addition, Corley said the Salmon River is running high and fairly muddy. So far four Chinook Salmon have been taken at the Lemhi River weir.

INVESTATIONAL CHAMPIONS

Bob Alexander, center, and A. J. Alexander, right, are congratulated by Blue Lakes Country Club Professional Nate Ross after winning the club's two-day combined two-man team best ball tournament. The father-son duo won the Saturday daily prize and took the aggregate with a 23-under par 113 total.

Liquori, Villanova Squad Takes Cal Relays Feature

MOBISTO, Calif. (UPI)—Marty Liquori, the world's top miler in training, kicked past John Mason 400 yards from home Saturday to give Villanova an easy victory over the Pacific Coast State in the four-mile relay and launch the California Relays in fine style.

Running in perfect conditions with the temperature in the high 80s and a brisk breeze whipping across the Modesto Junior College Stadium, Liquori started the final leg of the grueling four-mile relay with a 20-yard handicap.

He was content to let Mason set the pace until they hit the backstretch of the final turn. There, Liquori turned it on and won going away to give the Wildcats the victory in the meet record time of 16:23.6. Liquori's teammates were Dave Wright, Dick Buerkle and Chris Mason.

The time easily beat the old meet record of 16:25.4 set by Oregon three years ago but was well behind the world mark of 16:09.0, set by another Oregon 447-yard dash, a new event in the California Relays, in 53.4, only a second off the world record held by Judy Pollock of Australia.

Carlos joined her as a double winner by taking the 220 in 20.6.

Bill Schmidt of North Texas State scored an upset when he beat American record holder Mark Murro of Arizona State in the javelin with a meet record throw of 280.7. Murro, who has a career best of 300 feet even, did only 270.3 while Larry Stuart of the Southern California strikers was third at 264.9.

Schmidt's throw beat the old meet mark of 270-11 set by Jorma Linunen of Finland last year.

In other events of note, George Frenn beat perennial California Relays champ Harold Connolly, 222-8 to 210-7, in the hammer throw; Jay Silvester defeated John Van Rensen in the discus, 211-9 to 204-10, and Bruce Adair of the Army won the mile walk in 8:38.2.

Benvenuti Retains His Middleweight Crown By Stopping Bethea In 8

UMAG, Yugoslavia (UPI)—The 32-year-old Italian, defending his crown for the fourth time, retained his middleweight title Saturday by knocking out challenger Tom "The Bomb" Bethea in the eighth round of the first championship bout ever staged in a Communist country.

Cardenas' Hit Lets Twins Tip Angels 5-4

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (UPI)—Leo Cardenas slipped an outside pitch into right field for a single with two out in the eighth inning to drive in Jim Holt with the tie-breaking run and give the Minnesota Twins a 5-4 triumph over the California Angels Saturday.

Holt doubled with two out in the eighth, after the game was delayed 45 minutes by rain, and Cardenas followed with the game-winning blow off Ken Tatum, who took over for Andy Messersmith at the start of the inning.

Sten Williams, who took over for the Twins in the seventh inning, received credit for his fourth straight victory with relief help from Bon Ferreras.

The Athletics knocked out White Sox starter Joe Horlen with a seven-hit, seven-run assault before two were out in the third and the White Sox used their pitchers thereafter but couldn't prevent Horlen's fourth loss.

Stars Nip Indiana To Prolong ABA Playoffs

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Los Angeles Stars guard Mack Calvin tallied six of his team's 10 points in an overtime period Saturday as the Stars beat Indiana, 117-113, to force the American Basketball Association championship playoffs to at least six games.

Indiana holds a 3-2 advantage in the series which moves to the Los Angeles sports arena for a game Monday night. Calvin finished the nationally televised game with 33 points, but it was the scoring in the five-minute extra period which put the Pacers in. He hit his jumper to put the Stars out front for good, 111-110, then added another quick bucket for a 113-110 edge. Calvin led the contest with two free throws for the final margin in the closing seconds.

Salt Lake Still Eyed By ABA Stars

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Bill Daniels, the owner of the Los Angeles Stars, has eliminated Albuquerque, N. M., from consideration of the franchise shift of the American Basketball Association team, general manager Jim Hardy said Saturday night.

Daniels announced earlier the team would not return to Los Angeles. "It's between Anaheim (Hardy) and Salt Lake City," Hardy said. "Mr. Daniels said he will make his decision in the next seven to 10 days."

Daniels, who bought the club during the regular season, and Hardy were on hand to watch the Stars beat the Indiana Pacers, 117-113, in overtime at Indianapolis Saturday in the ABA playoff finals.

The Pacers hold a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven game series. The teams play at the Los Angeles Sports Arena Monday night. The Anaheim Convention Center, where the Stars hosted the Pacers in two other playoff games, was not available.

Steelers To Test Artificical Turf

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The Pittsburgh Steelers announced Saturday that 43 players will test the new Tartan-turf at the Three Rivers stadium for four days beginning June 1.

At the same time, Coach Chuck Noll said a rookie contingent comprised of quarterbacks, running backs, receivers, linebackers and defensive backs will work out from June 5th through June 8th at the new stadium. Interior offensive and defensive rookie linemen were not invited.

Following the rookie camp a four-day classroom session will be held for quarterbacks Terry Hanratty, Terry Bradshaw, Ken Nix and Bob Leahy, a free agent from Emporia State.

Indianapolis To Boast Fastest Lineup Ever; Qualifying Ends Today

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—The fastest lineup in the speedway's 54-year history was assured late Saturday as hard-luck veteran Lloyd Ruby became the fastest qualifier on the third day of 500-mile auto race time trials.

Four previous qualifiers, three by "500" newcomers, were eliminated from the field by faster machines and the field now averages 167.05 miles per hour, compared to the previous record of 165.25 last year. The qualifications will end with another six-hour period Sunday. But the weatherman posted a 50 per cent chance of showers, which could reduce time available for unqualified teams trying to crash the lineup.

Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex., qualified for his 11th Memorial Day classic after blowing six engines; most of them in practice. He jumped into his backup car and logged the sixth fastest speed in the three-hour trials.

Al Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., won the pole position last Saturday as the fastest first-day qualifier at 170.821 m.p.h. Former world Grand Prix champion Jack Brabham of Australia and England had the day's second best speed at 166.377 on his four-lap, 10-mile trial run.

Other successful qualifying runs were made by Ronnie Bucknum, Capistrano Beach, Calif., 166.136, Greg Veld; Kansas City, Mo., 166.121, Jerry Grant, Seattle, Wash., 165.983, Bill Vukovich, Fresno, Calif., 165.753, Dick Simon, Salt Lake City, Utah, 165.548, Sam Sessions, Nashville, Mich., 165.373, and Kevin Bartlett, Sydney, Australia, 165.250.

Brabham and Bartlett became the first and probably only foreign drivers to qualify for next Saturday's holiday race. Bentley Warren of West Gloucester, Mass., qualified at 164.305 but his machine was in the lineup for only a short time. It was "bumped" by Simon.

Grant bumped the racer qualified last week by Steve Kristloff, Parsippany, N. J. Brabham eliminated Jim McEneaney, Arlington, Tex., a former Speedway "rookie of the year," and Vukovich bumped Tony Adamowicz, Torrance, Calif.

Former world Grand Prix champion Jack Brabham of Australia and England had the day's second best speed at 166.377 on his four-lap, 10-mile trial run. Shuvee Is Upset Winner Of Top Flight Handicap

NEW YORK (UPI)—Shuvee drew away from heavy-favored Singing Rain in the stretch at Aqueduct Saturday to capture the first running of the $75,500 Top Flight Handicap for fillies and mares.

Shuvee, making all the pace in the 1 1/4 mile run under Braulio Baeza, finished four lengths in front of Singing Rain, the 4-5 favorite at $8.40.

Bryna Chosen was another seven-lengths leader away in the field of 19 district runners. Shuvee was winning her first race of the year in four starts after having run second to Singing Rain in the Gallotrite Handicap at Pimlico earlier this month. For Singing Rain, who carried top weight of 122 pounds, it marked her first loss in three starts—this season.

Shuvee opened a two-length lead after going a quarter of a mile with Singing Rain in second place.

26 Valley People Tour Five East Countries

"Japan in springtime is romantic and beautiful," according to 26 Magic Valley people who just returned from a three-week trip to the Orient, hosted by Joe and Mary Salisbury.

The group left Twin Falls in April for Seattle and a non-stop flight to Tokyo, Japan, the largest city in the world. Watching Kabuki at traditional Japanese theatre was of interest to many of the travelers as were the art galleries, museums and musical shows.

A Geisha party was a highlight for some, where the Geisha girls prepared a Sukiyaki dinner, meats and vegetables cooked in individual hibachi, then dipped in raw egg and sauces, raw fish and other delights. The girls not only prepared the meal, they assisted in feeding the guests with chopsticks as they sat on chairs without legs at a long, low table.

Expo '70 was a real treat for the travelers where they spent a day and a half visiting many of the pavilions of other countries and learning about industries and organizations of the world. The Russian and Japanese exhibits were very large and most interesting, according to one of the younger members of the tour.

The ancient traditions of Taiwan were interpreted at the National Palace Museum, through artifacts dating many years before Christ. In Taiwan the group visited an ancient Confucius shrine and a pottery and jade factory. After exploring this city, they went to Hualien where they saw the Taroko Gorge where they drove along a 12-mile highway carved out of marble mountains. This highway took seven years to build, much of it done by men hanging from ropes from the top.

Three days were spent in Hong Kong with a 22-year-old guide, a refugee from Canton as a youth. With him they had a view of Red China after driving through the New Territories, a lease from Red China.

The Grand Palace grounds and the exotic ancient architecture of the many beautiful buildings were interests in Thailand. From Thailand they went to the Philippines and from there to Honolulu for a day's rest before returning to the mainland and home.

Grant Salisbury, a high school student who was one of the travelers, noted, "In each country I learned a good deal of its history, government, customs and traditions, money exchange rates and its current

Spring Finery Presented At Ketchum Fete

KETCHUM.—With a perfect weather setting for a spring fashion show, the Papoose Club's annual event was deemed a shining success. Over 100 women from the Blaine County area gathered at the Royal Wood River Yacht Club in Ketchum recently to discuss spring events and fashions over a beef stroganoff-green salad luncheon. Carroll's of Sun Valley provided fashions for the event, which is sponsored annually by the service club to raise monies for service projects.

The organization is youth-oriented, and last year donated $1000 for school ground equipment at the new Ernest Hemingway School. It also sponsors free ski lessons as well as the following Kinder Kup Races. Toys and books are donated to the children's ward in Sun Valley Hospital, and additional children's books have been purchased for the Community Library. Modeling for the two-hour event were Tammy Shith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith world-wide influence and trouble. The flight from Thailand to the Philippines was especially interesting as we flew over Vietnam and Cambodia, whose villages were clearly seen from 25,000 feet. We even saw a battle flying in the opposite direction. The extremes of poor and rich made a great impression on me. Witnessing these countries and their treasures, and seeing these unique peoples has given me a new concept of life.

Smith; Pam Loomis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Loomis Jr.; Debbie Day, Marina Zuetell, Charlene Ambrose and Happy Starr. Outfits shown included swimming suits, shorts outfits, slack ensembles, day dresses and evening wear.

MARINA ZUETELL wears an evening pants outfit, white pants with a long over-garment accented with a white bodice.

Highlights of these unique adventures through five countries of the Far East were captured in colored slides by many of the travelers. They have been compiled and are available to be shown to groups and organizations in Magic Valley by contacting Mr. Salisbury.

 LYNWOOD

Miss Anderson, Campbell Wed

The Carillon was the setting for the evening candlelight ceremony of uniting in marriage Wanda Anderson, daughter of Lynn Anderson and Mrs. Marlene Drexler, to Mitchell R. Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Campbell, Twin Falls.

Rev. Keith Maxwell performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar lighted candelabra. A Tiffany basket filled with white gladioli and pink pompons flanked the altar.

Traditional organ music was played by Karen Winkle who also accompanied Richard Foulk, soloist. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length sheath gown of peau de soie. The bodice, accented with a beauty neckline, was enhanced with alencon lace, seed pearls and cut crystals and lily point sleeves. The long detachable wateau train was fastened at the shoulders to form a cape. A strand of heirloom pearls, given by her brother, accented the dress. Her long bouffant veil of sheer bridal illusion was held with an overlay of lace with a crown of seed pearls and crystal beads. She carried a bridal bouquet of Kansas roses and white gerberas centered on a white lace-covered Bible, a gift from her grandparents.

Matron of honor was Kathy Anderson, cousin of bride. Bridesmaids were Janice Crosser and Judy Hettenback. Lighting the tapers were Mark Anderson, half-brother of the bride, and a cousin, Don Rex Anderson. Flower girl was Kande Owens.

Doug Hemingway served as best man, with Gary Van Buren, and Kenneth Anderson, brother of the bride, serving as ushers. Ringbearer was Les Sprader.

Kathy Jonas registered guests at a table which was skirted in ruffled lace accented with a cherub fountain and long feather pen.

A reception was held downstairs in the Carillon before a background setting of white floored velvet accented with satin bells and bows. The bride's table was enhanced with a white organza skirt topped with white satin draped in pink ribbon and streamers.

The table was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake decorated with white and pink bows. The top was centered a miniature bride and groom. The cake was cut and served by the bride's aunts, Doris Nelson, Aberdeen, and

MR. AND MRS. MITCHELL CAMPBELL (Dudley photo)

Pearl McKnight, Las Vegas. Jeannette Allen served the punch. Others assisting were Cindy May, Twin Falls; Nancy Rae, American Falls; Leean Spraker, Texas; and Glenda and Ronna Mitchell, Pocatello.

Quartet tables for the guests were covered with white ruffled linens and accented with pink ruffled snifters holding pompons. Miniature brides and bridegrooms, placed on heart-shaped coasters, were made by the bride.

Special guests attended from Texas, Pocatello, Boise, Blackfoot, Aberdeen and Las Vegas. Pre-nuptial showers were given for the bride by Janice Crosser, and Jeannette Allen, and another one by Mrs. Shirley Kendrick.

DEAR ABBY: After mother died, our father lost no time in finding another lady to keep him company. She is 36. Dad is 72. Dad also said he wouldn't get married again, but 2 months after mother's death he was a married man. He said we would be the first to know if he decided differently. We were the last to know.

Don't say it's none of our business. We are his children and we love him, and it's very much our business. We just can't see dad marrying a woman who is the same age as his oldest daughter. Are we wrong to be...

DISGUSTED WITH DAD

DEAR DISGUSTED: I think you are. True, since your father said you'd be the first to know should he decide to remarry, he should have kept that promise. But if you really "love" him, concern yourself only with his happiness. [P. 8. If the age difference presents a problem between them, it will be their problem.]

DEAR ABBY: My husband [I'll call him Pat] has been acting kind of funny lately — moody and depressed and like that. I finally got him to tell me what was bothering him. Well, it seems he was feeling guilty about an affair he had last summer with my best friend [I'll call her Marge]. I was so hurt and heartick I lost 10 pounds in 10 days.

Pat promised he'd never see Marge again, so I forgave him. But here's my problem: Pat and I used to pal around with Marge and Mack [he's Marge's husband] and now I don't care to have anything to do with them. Marge told me she knew that Pat had confessed everything to me, and she didn't get one bit ashamed. She's all for continuing the friendship just like nothing happened.

Now Pat says if we don't keep seeing Marge and Mac, Mac will get suspicious and wonder why. Frankly, I don't care what he thinks. Pat says I'm being unfair because he and Mac are real good buddies now and I'm breaking-up their friendship. Abby, I just don't want to see this couple any more. Am I wrong?

PAT'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: No. Tell Pat if he wants to continue to be a buddy to Mac, he can do it on his own time, but to include you out. And to forget the foursome for the time being, too.

DEAR ABBY: To back up "OKLAHOMA WHITE": I'll ask, how many whites condemned to death could be trusted to go out and buy his burial clothes, be fitted for a coffin, say goodbye to his friends and be back at the appointed place at the scheduled time of his execution? These weren't many executions, but that is how they were carried out in the Creek nation. Indians ARE honorable!

DILUTED CHEROKEE: AURORA, ILLINOIS

CONFIDENTIAL TO WINDY CITY: Don't expect to find an honest partner for a crooked deal.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 6708, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Eagle Studies Being Made In Snake River Canyon Region

By JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish-Game Department
Three decades ago there were some conservation minded people urging legislative measures to protect the bald eagles and some five years later, urging inclusion of the golden eagles. Many of these people are still at work in Idaho.

As part of this work to preserve the great birds, an ecological study is now underway along the Snake River Canyon from Bliss to Marsing on golden eagle habitat.

College students working on their thesis for masters degrees are, in cooperation with the Idaho Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit, studying the golden eagle population, nesting success, productivity, food habits, mortality and other related facts. Eyries, or nests, are studied as well as the adult birds.

Andy Ogden, Boise graduate student and John Becham, Meridian, have been engaged in the work for several years. A two year study for a thesis on golden eagles is underway this year by Mike Kochert, LaFayette, Ind.

Southwestern Idaho may support one of the highest densities of golden eagles in the United States, not to mention prairie falcons. Twenty-five breeding pairs of eagles were located on the study area in 1968, and 36 breeding pairs the following year. Sixty-one per cent of the active nests during the 1969 season were successful, with the average hatch found to be slightly over one eaglet per egg.

Eighty-three per cent of the nests on the study area are on the Snake River Plain between Bliss and Marsing, mostly on rocky cliffs ranging in height from 25 to 400 feet, surrounded by small buttes and benches and covered with big sagebrush, rabbitbrush, shadscale and cheatgrass, bounded on the north by the Sawtooth Mountains and to the south, the Owyhee Range. Elevation of eyries vary from 2,500 feet on the Snake River to 5,000 feet on the mountains north of Bliss.

Fledging, or flying, begins after about 10 weeks but the small birds remain the nesting area and are actually immature until in their fourth year, retaining white patches under the wings and tail. Elsewhere the feathers are a solid dark brown, and the head a golden color.

At five to seven weeks, the birds are eating prey material. At this age they are banded as well as until later will tend to force the young birds to jump from the nest. They are not good fliers even at 10 weeks of age.

Book Review

By ALICE FLORENCE
Twin Falls Public Library
"Higher Than The Arrow" is the second novel written by Judy Van Der Veer who has already distinguished herself as a writer of adult fiction.

It is the story of a twelve year old Indian girl named Francesca Clare Querl. The setting is a modern Indian reservation in the back country of Southern California.

The Indian reservation is on the lower slopes of a mountain which they call Higher Than The Arrow. Francie calls her mountain the best mountain in the world. She writes of it as "an amethyst mountain". Sometimes it is red and old rose and gold. In winter, and sometimes even in spring, it is white with snow. Before storms, the peak is all wrapped up in clouds, and in summer the thunderheads climb above it and turn into fancy castles and strange animals. But the great thing about Higher Than The Arrow is it always makes you look up, look high. It makes you feel as if, in a certain way, you could climb high, too.

Francie is an extremely talented artist, but often her goals and dreams are beyond her powers. She wants more than anything to create a statue of Saint Francis holding a young coyote because she feels sure Saint Francis would love the unpoplar—and—outcast

THOSE SOFT WHITE BALLS may look like cotton balls but they are infant golden eaglets. Mother eagle broods the tiny helpless creatures until they are at least two weeks old. Studies now being made along the Snake River Canyon from Bliss to Marsing reveal many facts about the vanishing golden and bald eagles.

attend most of the incubation chores, males do sit on the nest while the mother is feeding and exercising. Incubation time for golden eagle eggs is about 45 days, and the average clutch is two eggs.

As hatching time nears, the mother rarely leaves the nest, and for the first two and one-half weeks of the eaglets' lives, she broods them. They are mouth fed much like the baby robins but this last four to five weeks. The little eaglets at first are helpless, scarcely able to hold up their own heads.

They begin crawling and moving about at two weeks of age. Primary wing feathers appear at two to three weeks and within five weeks the eaglet is salt and pepper colored across the back with new feathers. Although other feathers appear as the bird grows, the soft, white or yellow down of the baby remains on the head.

Fledging, or flying, begins after about 10 weeks but the small birds remain the nesting area and are actually immature until in their fourth year, retaining white patches under the wings and tail. Elsewhere the feathers are a solid dark brown, and the head a golden color.

At five to seven weeks, the birds are eating prey material. At this age they are banded as well as until later will tend to force the young birds to jump from the nest. They are not good fliers even at 10 weeks of age.

The Name Of Game — Ecology

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In response to a widespread public apathy, here's another new board game: It's called "Ecology."

The game begins with just a few players, but more and more players join the game as play proceeds until finally there is no more room on the board for any more players.

However, the game does not stop at this point. More players continue to join the game, pushing other players off the board. This phase of the game is called "Population Control."

As each player enters the game, he selects a marker, which looks like a small white pill. The markers are placed on the square labeled "Go." The goal of the game is to reach the square labeled "Clean Environment."

If, however, a player lands on a square labeled "Air Pollution," "Water Pollution" or "Garbage Dump," or if he gets pushed off the board by the other players, he is out of the game.

Cards Determine Progress
When it becomes his move, a player determines his progress by drawing a card from one of three stacks. The stacks are labeled "Congressional Action," "Political Promises" and "Volunteer Industrial Action." Here are the key cards:

—Large industrial plant in your city volunteers to stop burning waste materials in open incinerator. Advance 5 spaces.

—Ralph Nader reveals that waste materials formerly burned in incinerator are now being dumped into river. Go back 5 spaces.

—Big 3 automakers introduce new electric cars that operate without exhaust fumes. Advance 10 spaces.

—Federal Power Commission reports that 6,000 new generating plants must be built to supply power for new electric cars. Go back 16 spaces.

—"Miracle" Ingredient
—Major soap company announces discovery of the "miracle" ingredient that gets clothes so clean they can never get dirty again, yet leaves no detergent scum in the city's water supply. Advance 2 spaces.

Ralph Nader reveals that new "miracle" ingredient in laundry detergent is DDT. Go back 20 spaces.

HOPE Reinforces Provisions For Another Summer Migrant Program

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News Correspondent

JEROME— It's spring cleaning time and members of HOPE, "Help Other People Everywhere" are counting on a windfall from the annual activity.

Mrs. James Sloat, member of H.O.P.E., said they will accept any clothes, household goods of any kind in fairly good shape. "We ask that you please don't cut off the buttons and that the articles are clean and still usable."

Mrs. Sloat said with migrant workers coming back into the valley for the spring and summer work, many items are needed. These people can bring just so much with them.

"We would also like to remind the people we do not just provide for the migrant workers here in Jerome but for all of them in the Magic Valley," Mrs. Sloat noted. "They are all welcome to come for the things they need."

H.O.P.E. will soon be starting its third year of service. The volunteers have provided a myriad of funds and services to people of the area as well as such far flung places as Vietnam, Fort Hall and the Rupert Youth Ranch.

Formed in the summer of 1968, the group's first concern was with the problems of the migrant workers. Several successful drives for clothing and bedding were held, and visits made to the camp near Jerome, to determine the needs of the people. H.O.P.E. members enrolled children from the labor camp in the first Headstart program held in Jerome, and returned again to the camp to explain the medical and dental care available through this program.

In the past two and a half years the residents of Jerome have responded to help provide H.O.P.E. with the things they need. H.O.P.E. is now asking Jerome residents to once again help not only with needed things but to let H.O.P.E. know about the people who in this area need help or tell anyone who needs help to please call H.O.P.E.

Some of the volunteers are women who have been helped by H.O.P.E. and returned to donate their services to others. Young people in the area have been most helpful, especially the Jerome High school Key club. These boys have provided muscle power when boxes are being readied for shipment, or when furniture items are located and transferred to homes where they are needed.

Several families who have lost their possessions due to fire have been helped by H.O.P.E. with men of the community donating efforts to move furniture and large items collected.

HEADQUARTERS FOR HOPE are located in an unused service station on Main Avenue in Jerome and as the sign indicates, members are not proud — they will take your money, clothing or household item donations at anytime. Most of the contributions go to assist migrant families in the area.

Food has been provided for many families, as well as fuel oil and medicine. Transportation to the doctor has been given by volunteers and on several occasions emergency baby sitting has been provided when a mother needed hospital care.

H.O.P.E. has been declared a tax exempt organization so is able to accept donations. They have cooperated with existing agencies, such as the department of Public Assistance, the employment office and the public health nurse.

Perhaps the thing that has made H.O.P.E.'s story such a happy one is the personal interest and concern found among its volunteers. Representing every faith and all age groups, these women, men and young people have provided hope with clothing, household items, food and a smile and warm friendship to the people they have helped.

H.O.P.E. is located at an old gas station in the 300 block on West Main in Jerome. The center is open every afternoon except Sunday. Anyone who wishes to volunteer time is asked to either leave their name and number at the H.O.P.E. office or mail a card. It is to be kept in mind H.O.P.E. does not receive any funds or is not connected with the government or any particular religion.

Persons who receive help from H.O.P.E. can repay the services with small cash donations or if they like, may assist others by doing washing, mending or ironing at the headquarters in return. Sometimes there is an immediate need and H.O.P.E. steps in until the individual is able to repay the bill or meet the cost.

Survey Finds Few Objecting Draftees

By United Press International
The storm of youth protest over Cambodia is barely noticeable at military recruiting centers and draft boards throughout the country.

A 50-state UPI survey showed Saturday that in a preponderant number of states, Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine recruiters report the enlistment rate is normal.

Similarly, state Selective Service officials see no evidence that President Nixon's Cambodian action has triggered any major wave of draft defiance.

There have been some antiwar demonstrations aimed at recruiting stations and induction centers but they have been generally nonviolent. In fact in some instances, recruiters reported signing up some of the people at the rallies.

Recruiters acknowledge that it may be too soon to detect any impact from Cambodia.

The situation could change, they said, if for instance Nixon failed to keep his pledge to have all U.S. forces out of Cambodia by the end of June.

Nationally, enlistments have dropped off from 45,000 last September to an estimated 30,000 in March. Defense Department officials say there is no particular explanation for this but they point out that the size of the armed forces is being cut from 3.6 million to below 3.2 million by July 1.

Further, they point out, under the new lottery draft system, a high number of youths know

Some Rates Higher
The UPI survey showed that the rate of military enlistments had actually increased recently in such states as Texas, Arizona, Oregon and North Carolina. But they have slowed down in others, including New Hampshire, South Carolina, Connecticut and North Dakota.

ISU Student Will Become Bush Pilot For Missionaries In Remote Areas

HAMMETT — A 19-year-old Hammett resident now attending Idaho State University, Pocatello, is going to combine his love of flying and his religious interests in a future career.

Ernest J. Hamilton says he plans to become a bush pilot supplying religious missionaries in either northern Canada or South America. To prepare himself for this career, he is studying aircraft mechanics at ISU. In this way he will be able to provide service and repairs on his own aircraft although based in remote areas away from such regular professional service.

A member of the Memorial Church, he is also a conscientious objector and says, except for this he would join the U. S. Air Force to obtain the necessary training. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Hamilton, Hammett.

The young Elmore county youth last year received a $150 scholarship for his continued studies. Honored with other award winners during a dinner for ISU School of Vocational Technical Education, the young man commented, "The scholarship made me feel I was more than just a number—it made me feel the school really cared."

He says he feels the training in aircraft mechanics at the Pocatello school is some of the best available. The financial

NO TIME ON THEIR HANDS for Buren Johnson, left, and Roy Wetherbee, on telephone. The two retired residents are typical of the volunteers who are working with the Senior Citizens Service, new Twin Falls agency, to make life more pleasant and to show appreciation for the area's senior citizens.

Volunteers Brighten Outlook For Area Senior Residents

One of the biggest problems facing the newly established Senior Citizens Service in Twin Falls is getting the programs to the people who need them most.

To meet this problem, the agency has turned the "detective squad" duties over to the senior citizens themselves.

Volunteers, active and interested retired residents, are now conducting a survey to establish the names and locations of senior citizens who may be living alone and in need of special attention or assistance.

Two of these are Roy Wetherbee and Buren Johnson who reside at Duval and Sunny View Courts respectively. They are donating their time and energy to assist Dennis Pratt, director, and Ray Pruett, assistant director, of the new agency in bringing the services to the area's senior citizens.

At present, says Mr. Pratt, the agency is working to establish two major services. These include a transportation system and the "telephone insurance."

Volunteers including some senior citizens, housewives and others, who have time to devote to a good cause will make check on them each day. An application will be filled out by these people giving a name and address like to be called. A volunteer will call them at that time daily to see if they need anything, are all right or maybe just to brighten their day with a friendly visit.

Should the volunteer receive no answer a personal call will be made to the home and in the event no one comes to the door and there is reason to believe the individual may be ill, a police officer will go with the volunteer to enter the home.

Mr. Pruett said this program is designed to prevent a senior citizen who lives alone from suffering an illness or injury and lying helpless for hours or even days. For those without telephones, personal calls can be made at specific intervals.

It has become a program largely of senior citizens helping senior citizens, says Mr. Pruett as much of the volunteer help making the program work here is being offered by retired persons who have time and wish to do something beneficial in the community.

Senior residents of a community represent an important segment, Mr. Pruett explained, and can offer much to fellow citizens. The local program is not only helping those who need it, but putting the talent and energy of many retired persons to good use and keeping them active and interested in community affairs.

When a person who lives alone is released from the hospital, recovery is often hampered by the lack of hot meals and care. Under future plans for the new program, Mr. Pratt said, efforts will be made to have a volunteer go into such homes to prepare a hot meal suitable to the need of the individual.

Many other services are also planned as soon as the agency has completed organization of volunteers, Mr. Pratt added. City recreation director, Chad Browning has volunteered help with recreation for the senior citizens and will provide $300 in transportation costs for chartering buses for summer outings and trips for the senior citizens. Arts and crafts, counseling, information to the senior residents as to agencies established to help with their specific problems and adult education and even health services are planned.

they will personally visit to see if they need transportation or "telephone insurance". If so they will be placed on file in the local office and will receive assistance from volunteer workers.

Community, Individuals Gaining From Valley's Lifetime Sports Program

By IOLENE HAGEN
Times-News Correspondent

EDEN-HAZELTON — The first school in Idaho to adopt a co-educational lifetime sports program is now looking back on three successful years and many individual and community benefits.

At the close of the current school year Valley High School is tallying up the benefits of the program which include many students with not only a broader educational achievement but personal satisfactions, skills and abilities not enjoyed by many other students.

phase of the program will get underway about June 1, and many adults in the community will join the activities. Tennis, golf, bowling, baseball and softball and other conventional summer activities will be available to interested residents and to many young adults of migrant families in the area for the summer.

At Valley High school youngsters have been learning to participate in such programs as weight lifting, fencing, indoor and outdoor hockey, bowling, volleyball, badminton and to use the Olympic size trampoline.

available to students but open to the community in the evenings. Most of the program is financed through Title I funds and students have a choice of activities. In the year-end open house to introduce school parents and patrons to the program, they were given an opportunity to try weight lifting and other activities.

Three years ago, Valley was the first school in Idaho to adopt the program and since that time several others have also accepted it. The plan as outlined in Valley is adopted in Bountiful and several other Utah schools and is known there as "The Valley Program."

Instructors in the program say they have found each individual student benefits in different ways in developing physical fitness. They have also increased movement skills, social aspects and improved mental and emotional health and most of all learned a better means of utilizing leisure time that will be a practice carried into adult life.

"Too many people today are content to watch others perform but through our lifetime sports events, Valley students are learning and benefitting through participation," Dr. Litterback says of the local program. "As one individual benefits, from past so does society and a vigorous nation can only be built through strong productive people."

Giving students a choice of several activities, say local school officials seems to be a major factor in "catching the students' interest. Under the universal gym some nine events are generally underway at one time in the Valley gymnasium.

Exhibitions in weight lifting, tennis and gymnastics were given during the open house and fencing and volleyball also illustrated some of the variety of the program. Officials of the Valley school say they feel more and more schools will be following this system in the future.

Conditions Improving At Camp

An annual "population explosion" is underway in Twin Falls with 50 to 600 new residents having been added in the past week.

These are the migrant families who become temporary residents each year at sugar beet thinning and hoeing time. About 100 more persons are expected to arrive in the next few days. All cabins at the Labor Camp south of town are filled and about two thirds of the barracks buildings are full says Larry Loyd, camp manager.

There's a whole new look around the camp. In addition to the population, the old store has been converted to a recreation room and the former National Guard Army building, previously used for storage, has been cleared off. This will provide for dances each Saturday night and big-name bands, those most popular with the Mexican-American residents in Texas, will be imported for the evenings. Jesse Berain is making arrangements for this special entertainment.

There is a heart breaking note, however. About $10,000 worth of new refrigerators, still in their original cartons, must remain in storage again this summer while the families in the barracks units face a problem of preparing meals with no means of refrigeration.

They will also be using small wood and coal burning stoves as their only cooking facility. This situation doesn't help during the hot summer days.

By next summer, however, there will be an improvement. Mr. Loyd says crews from Idaho Power Co. are now installing new wiring, capable of carrying higher voltage. This will mean electric heat for the homes and cabins used on a year around basis and will make it possible to operate the refrigerators and electric stoves in barracks next year.

Lack of funds has prevented the camp from bringing wiring up to standards, so the refrigerators, purchased more than a year ago, could not be used.

CARE TO COOK all of your meals this summer on this little stove? Migrant families at the Twin Falls Labor camp must use wood burning stoves like this for all cooking despite hot summer weather. Here Elsa Murphy, one of several volunteers who assist in camp recreation and other programs, inspects a typical "kitchen appliance" used by camp summer residents.

MODERN NEW REFRIGERATORS remain in storage at the Twin Falls Labor Camp because of lack of adequate wiring while migrant families face a summer with no means of diamonds from dummy. East played the four and the Professor the three. West hauled in the trick and continued with the jack of diamonds. He had noted that the four-spot was the highest diamond played but what would you do? Could you visualize what was going to happen to you?

Now the Professor was ready to give the cards their chance to help him. He took his ace of diamonds, played a trump to dummy's ace, discarded a heart on the king of diamonds, played a trump back to his king, cashed the ace and king of hearts and ruffed a third round of the suit.

When it turned out that this had accounted for all the hearts except for dummy's one, the Professor entered dummy with the jack of trumps, discarded a club on that last heart and conceded two club tricks to his unfortunate opponent.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

The Student wasn't sure what he should respond to the Professor's ruse. However, the Student's general policy is to raise the Professor so he pumped to three spades in spite of his 3-3 distribution. We need to say the Professor carried on to game.

The Professor looked over dummy for about half a second. In that brief interval he noted that there was no legitimate play for four spades while there would have been an excellent play for three. He also noted there was just might be a way to make 10 tricks if the cards and the opponents would cooperate with him.

As mentioned earlier all this thought took less than a second. The Professor thinks fast.

Then he played the deuce

AM TOLD there will be 200 million cars hereabouts by 1975. Think of that! If you want to cross the street, you'd better do it now... AGAIN, JUST about half of the U.S. servicemen killed in Vietnam were too young to vote... WHY IS mystery, but television is outlawed in South Africa... NO REDHEAD in defense of his coloring, should forget that Christopher Columbus too had red hair.

CONSIDER THIS—First taxicab meters turned up in China on the rickshaws. I don't know who they did it, but those ingenious rickshaw folk devised an intricate mechanism that caused a Gong to be struck after the wheels had turned to cover the rough equivalent of one mile. That was 300 years ago.

HANDWRITING—Next time you suffer profoundly from feelings of inferiority, bear in mind there is one thing you do better than any other person on earth. That's read your own handwriting. No, don't think me for this inspirational message. Just want you to be happy. Might mention, the handwriting experts contend the writers of the most illegible script tend to be the most creative.

OPEN QUESTION—Why is it left-handed parents are more apt to have twins than right-handed parents?

LANGUAGE MAN—What's the longest word you can think of wherein no letter is repeated? I nominate [pseudonym]. THE FIVE FAVORITE words of the late William Faulkner were "falcon", "impacted", "embattled", "sahibant", "PERISCOPE" and "gullible" are two dandy examples of words that begin and end with the same two letters. If you have nothing special to do at stoplights, try thinking of some others.

GAMBLE—Say some fine-millonaire fellow were to give you $2,000 tax-free. Then say he offered to flip you for it. Multiple or nothing. Would you take the bet? I would. A 50-50 chance to triple your money is not bad at all. However, when pollsters put the query to the citizenry, only one in four said they would accept the gamble.

USUALLY THAT AGE at which a woman tends to do the most talking is 42, it's said... OUR CHIEF PROGNOSTICATOR thinks private cars will be banned altogether from midtown Manhattan within the next several years... THE STATISTICIANS now report sadly that three out of five women in the country are overweight.

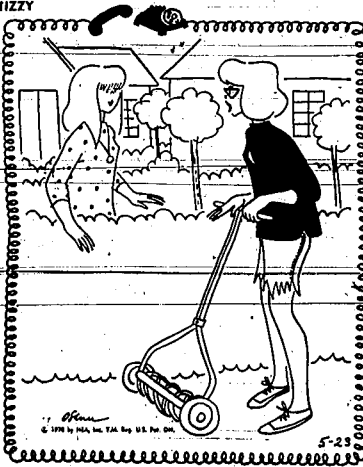

TEMPER—Note a contemporary states it's perfectly all right for a fellow to lose his temper now and then. Can't agree, can't agree. If you're right, you can afford to keep your temper under control. If you're wrong, you just can't afford to lose it. My Sunday School teacher told me that.

Rice Losses Tell Story Of Cambodia Campaign

By DICK WEST
 WASHINGTON (UPI)—Ever since the U.S. incursion into Cambodia began, the Pentagon has been providing us with an almost daily "rice count" from the erstwhile sanctuary areas. The figure probably will have changed by the time you read this, but as of this writing the count stood at 2,390 tons of enemy rice captured or destroyed. Military statisticians have calculated that this is enough rice to feed 106,160 men for a month, give or take a couple of plaf casseroles. Looking at it another way, the rice count totals 4,780,000 pounds, which by my reckoning adds up to approximately

23,900,000,000 kernels. Hawk or dove, you will have to agree that the enemy rice losses are truly impressive. And they become even more so when viewed alongside American rice losses by a comparable period. Although the exact amount is being withheld for security purposes, I am assured the U.S. rice losses in Cambodia thus far have been on the magnitude of "less than a cupful." Furthermore, I am informed that the U.S. rice losses did not come about as a result of enemy action. They occurred when an American mess sergeant accidentally knocked over a box of Minute Rice with which he was making a custard for the colonel's dinner. Any meaningful comparison of rice losses obviously must also include any rice that the South Vietnamese forces might have spilled, misplaced, let fall into enemy hands or overcooked. As in the case of the American rice losses, the precise figures are unavailable. However, we may assume the South Vietnamese rice losses have been greater than U.S. rice losses, one reason being that they had more rice to lose. Nevertheless, I have it on god authority that the South Vietnamese rice losses have been far less substantial than the enemy rice losses. Rice, of course, is by no means the only equipment the enemy has lost. Other losses include 1,286 weapons, 22,256 rocket and mortar shells, 8,375,925 rounds of ammunition and 1,200 land mines. In addition, there have been unconfirmed reports that the enemy has lost 1,492 gallons of won ton soup, 1,776 barrels of egg rolls, 1,812 crates of frozen Chinese dinners and 1,918 boxes of fortune cookies. Analysis of captured samples is said to have indicated that some of the frozen dinners were prepared Cantonese style. These findings are viewed in some quarters as positive evidence that supplies from Red China have found their way into the Cambodian sanctuaries.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—A wire cheese slicer slices refrigerator cookie dough evenly and without crumbling.—MRS. J. M.

DEAR POLLY—An old carved picture frame can be made into a magnificent coffee-table. Put one-half-inch plate glass in the frame, turn the face of the frame up, and mount it on legs stained to match the wood in the frame. If the frame is gilt, the legs could match other furniture in the room.—DONNA

LET'S TRY ANOTHER IN-LAWS PICTURE UNDER A CACTUS

DEAR POLLY—A wide rubber band around a bottle or a can of cleanser will make it much easier to handle with damp hands.—MRS. J. W. M.

Polly gets a dollar for every idea you send them to her, care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—When I am in doubt about the capacity of a casserole dish I fill it with water and then pour the water into a standard measure.—D. H.

DEAR POLLY—For rainy, chilly days put one of those inexpensive, lightweight clear plastic raincoats over your cloth coat. It serves as a good wind-breaker. These coats are so light you do not notice you are wearing one. No more worries about having the cloth coat get dry in time to wear it again.—SHIRLEY

DEAR POLLY—Turn a metal colander over a skillet. The holes let the steam escape but the grease does not spatter about. Also use on pots of boiling macaroni or spaghetti to prevent a spill-over. Use tongs rather than a fork to turn meat (Polly's note: Great for frying chicken, too) and save the juices.—MRS. J. M.

DEAR POLLY—All this cold wash, pre-soak soap, special spot removing fluids, enzyme stuff will put us in the poor-house. Did you know that old, reliable hair shampoo works just as well? Less is used and it smells heavenly. Try it on a white shirt collar or even on that pair of jeans that have some spots on them. It's also good on nylon, Banlon, etc.—FRAN

DEAR POLLY—When we have caramel or buttered popcorn as a TV snack, we lay an old plastic tablecloth in front of the set to keep popcorn and spilled beverages off the carpet.—JOANN

DEAR POLLY—When making peanut butter-and-jelly sandwiches, I spread a thin layer of butter or margarine on the bread to keep the jelly from seeping through.—JOANN

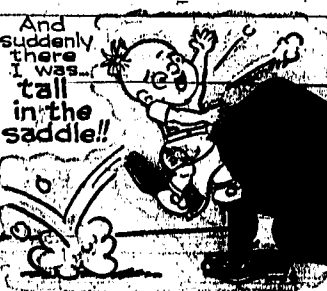

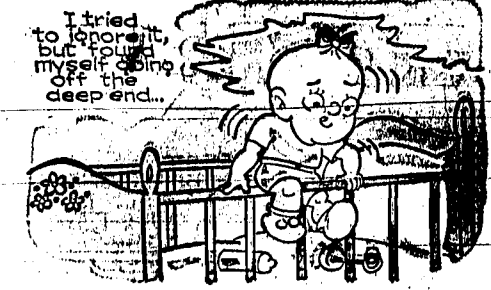

DEAR POLLY—To prevent pie crust from burning, cut a piece of aluminum foil about a half-inch larger than the pie pan. Cut out the center, leaving the band of foil about 1/2 inches wide. After crust has browned, place the foil over the pie and fold half an inch over the edge. This really works.—CAROLYN

Ask Them Yourself

FOR MRS. RICHARD NIXON

What can I do as a mother to help my nation?—Mrs. Mildred Power, Daraute, Ca.

● Become involved. Wherever human needs exist, there are vast opportunities for service. You and your family possess the gifts of time, talent, and willing effort to give to those people in need of them.

FOR GEORGE P. CRESSMAN,

Director, U.S. Weather Bureau
Which of the 50 states has the greatest annual precipitation?—Ann Brady, Biloxi, Miss.

● Louisiana has the greatest average annual precipitation, 56.85 inches. Averages vary from about 60 inches in the southeastern portion of the state to about 50 inches in the northwest. Wetter than any part of Louisiana, however, are the coastal areas of western Washington and southeast Alaska, where the normal fall exceeds 90 inches per year. The wettest spot in the world is Mt. Waialeale, Hawaii, with an average annual rainfall of 460 inches.

FOR JOE CRONIN,

President, American Baseball League
What reasoning prevails that denies a batter credit for an R.B.I. when hitting into a double play?—J. Gallagher, Lancaster, Pa.

● Until approximately 15 years ago, a batter grounding into a double play was entitled to a run batted in if a runner scored on the play. The rule was changed because the opinion was finally accepted that a batter hurt his team more than he helped it in such instances.

FOR BARNABY CONRAD,

author and bullfighting expert
In a bullfight, why is it that the bull never charges the matador, even at times when the matador is standing in front of the muleta?—Tim Rhodes, Midland, Texas

● Over a period of 15 years I, personally, have received from bulls' horns two broken ribs, one going that fractured my right knee, another of nine-inches that traversed my upper left leg, and assorted minor punctures, plus the fact that several fellow bullfighting friends have been killed. Therefore, I can only assume that one of us has been misinformed somewhere along the line.

FOR J. EDGAR HOOVER,

Director, FBI
I would appreciate your opinion as to how extensively the efforts of the Communist Party have contributed to the riots, both on and off the campuses.—Yerwin Roberts, Jr., Carmichael, Calif.

● The recent riots in our country have resulted largely from the activities of a number of extremist individuals and groups who have little regard for our laws. Among such extremist groups have been the Black Panther party and the Students for a Democratic Society. The Communist Party, USA, has been intensely interested in such riots and works constantly to exploit them to its own advantage.

FOR LIZ CARPENTER,

author of "Ruffles and Flourishes"
If a married woman is ever elected President, will her husband be called the "First Man?"

—Margaret E. Fish, Manchester, Conn.

● Maybe so—but to me, at least, the sobriquet will only rightly belong to Adam.

FOR ALDEN BERBER,

Chief executive, Boy Scouts of America
Are there Boy Scouts in all the states? What is the total? Which state has the fewest?—Mrs. J. Stoneman, Durham, N.C.

● There are Scouts in all states and 95 foreign countries. Total U.S. membership of Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, and Explorers is more than 4.5 million. Wyoming has the fewest boys registered in Scouting with 5,663.

What in the World!

Hollywood Put-On Actress Brenda Vaccaro was the 129-pound body beautiful, seductress in "Midnight Cowboy," But for her new part as Elliott Gould's

Brenda with padding and without spouse in "I Love My Wife," Brenda has to lose her shapely charms and put on extra pounds to show she's a good mother, housekeeper, and cook. To achieve her infant-frump look, Brenda was fitted out with padded undergarments, a disheveled wig, and even special cotton padding to fill out her naturally slim cheeks. By gaining the weight, Brenda almost loses her husband in the film and has to reverse the whole process to achieve the alluring look for which she is known.

Help Foreign Visitors with English

Once a week, all over the country, some 2,500 Americans get together for an hour's chat with foreigners in English. It's a nationwide volunteer program called English-in-Action, specially designed to help foreign-speaking people brush up on our language. More than 40 groups meet in churches, schools, libraries, or wherever space is available. Although it's essentially a group activity, pairs of people sit down and just talk about anything they wish. The foreigners, from more than 90 different countries, all read and write English but, because of their associations with universities, firms, or consulates here, need to improve their command of our language. What's in it for the volunteers? According to the director of the national headquarters of English-in-Action (1 East 54th St., N.Y., N.Y. 10022) "... some wonderful friendships have evolved, several marriages, not to mention international understanding." More volunteers are always needed.

Dutch Babies In Holland, 40 percent of all deliveries are performed by midwives, according to Medical World News. The infant-mortality rate is half that of the U.S.—13.4 per 1,000 births. Sixty percent of deliveries are in the mothers' homes. No drugs are prescribed, only vitamin-fortified milk and a low-salt diet. No anesthesia or interference is the general rule. New mothers are not allowed out of bed for four days; and they are provided with special "household helpers-practical nurses (kruisverzorgers) for the first 10 days. That's socialized medicine, Mum.

Well-Matched Cruisers Although they don't actually use a computer to get the right girl-boy balance, the Windjammer Cruise organizers came close to it. For more than 20 years they have used computer-type figuring to get an even number of guys and gals on each of their three sailing ships which ply Caribbean waters. The Miami-based company assembles its passengers in Martinique, French West Indies, before taking to the high seas.

Officials scan the passenger lists to make sure each ship's 60 passengers represent a good male-female balance. After all,

Programmed for sailing fun

it would be a shame to leave a lady on board alone while the other passengers were out dancing under a tropical moon.

"Excuse Me, But Mia

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

Member of a famous family, actress Tisa Farrow

DESPITE all the benefits of being a member of a famous family, Tisa Farrow finds it tough at times.

Who else can say that Frank Sinatra was her brother-in-law, that Mia Farrow is her sister, that famed composer-conductor André Previn is practically a member of the family, and that her mother, Maureen O'Sullivan, was "Jane" in the famous Tarzan movie series?

But it puts a severe professional burden on this 18-year-old actress to make just as big a name for herself. Or does she really want to have a "big" name?

Sometimes she thinks she does, and her first film role, in Cinema Center's "Homer," may just do it. In the meantime, Tisa is vacillating between writing and acting and trying to step out of her sister's giant shadow.

Tisa and Mia Farrow are closer now than when they were youngsters, but Tisa resents being questioned about her famous controversial sister. "When Mia was married to Frank Sinatra, people would always ask me, 'How's Frankie?' and things like that. I don't think that's fair," says Tisa.

And Tisa has been asked even more questions about her sister's current affair with André Previn. Mia recently gave birth to twins, and Previn acknowledged he is the father. "I think they will get married," says Tisa. "they really love each other."

I visited Tisa at her mother's Central Park West home in New York. After years of boarding schools, it wasn't surprising that she got her is struggling to achieve an identity of her own own pad in New York and lived alone until she was robbed not once, but twice. She then moved in with her mother.

Arriving a bit early, I ran into Tisa's boy friend, a pleasant young man named Terry Dene who, with Steve North, produced "Homer."

Tisa, whose real name is Theresa, but who is called Tisa by her friends and "Baby" by her family, is the youngest of seven children. She also considers herself the homeliest. I couldn't understand why. She has very pretty brunette hair, an angelic face with just-enough-freckles sprinkled over it, a well-proportioned and curvaceous figure, which is in such contrast to Mia's boyish appearance. She's 5'6" and measures 36-24-36. "But of course, all my weight is in the wrong places," she contends.

"Mia, the oldest of us girls, is the strongest and straightest. Prudence, who's now 21, is the spiritual one. She recently married and is working with Maharishi Maheeh Yogi in India. And Stephanie, two years older than I, is a model and lives in Manhattan." A brother Patrick, 26, is an artist. He's married and has two children and is presently working at a ski lodge in Vermont. Brother John, 28, is producing a movie in California. The oldest boy, Michael, was killed in an airplane crash in 1958.

The independence of the Farrow children can be traced to more than just changing times and the generation gap. Their father, the late John Farrow, former commander in the Canadian navy, writer, and film director, was an iron disciplinarian. Rebellion might have been inevitable, even without his untimely death when Tisa was 13 and Mia 18.

Growing up was not easy for Tisa. Born in Los Angeles, she was introduced to show business at an early age. Her mother became famous as "Jane" to Johnny Weismuller's "Tarzan." John Farrow took his family with him wherever he traveled to foreign film locations. Thus Tisa received much of her education abroad.

She started her schooling when she was six, in Spain, where her father directed "John Paul Jones," and attended the American School in Madrid. Within three weeks she was asked to leave. "Every day a little boy boxed my ears," Tisa recalled vehemently. "So I screamed a lot! And finally, when that didn't work, I fought back!" As a result, Tisa was sent off to a convent school.

Once she was free of school, Tisa went about living and learning—her way. Lying about her age, she managed to get an assortment of jobs, which paid for acting lessons.

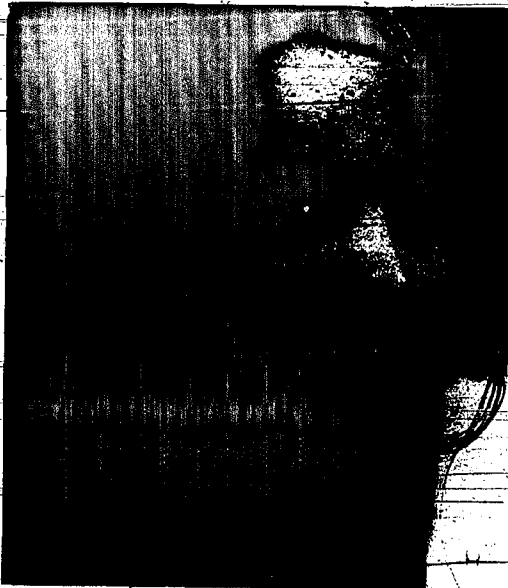

But Tisa would rather talk about the movie role in "Homer." She plays the girl friend of a Wisconsin farm boy who is alienated from his family. The conditions under which the film was shot were anything but easy.

"The first scene was shot outside, in freezing weather," Tisa recalled. "I was supposed to stand still while a real spider crawled up my arm and across my shoulder. And I was supposed to act like I didn't know it was there!"

And following the current movie trend, there is a nude scene in the film. Tisa was quite concerned about that, being a bit weight conscious as well as shy about appearing nude. "I knew about the scene when I took the part," Tisa said. "But I was still petrified. So the director agreed to shoot it on the last day, and then with only him and the cameraman around. I think they did it in good taste."

Today Tisa is delighted with the way things are working out, careerwise. Romantically, she's also content. She doesn't know whether she wants her relationship with Terry Dene to get to the marriage state or not, although she insists she firmly believes in marriage.

Tisa refuses to assume she's headed for stardom on the basis of the one film she has made and the three more she has signed to make. Certainly, she'd like to continue in movies. But if it doesn't work out that way, she insists it won't bother her. She's young, energetic, and has a whole life ahead, during which she can cast off the "Mia-Farrow's-sister" image and develop her own personality. ♦

End the Problem of Dry Skin

Unless you take particular care, low humidity, both indoors and out can easily rob your complexion of the precious moist bits quicker than the oil ducts of the skin can replace it, thus resulting in dry skin and the formation of wrinkles.

A little extra attention should be taken at this time of year by smoothing Oil of Olay before applying make-up. Oil of Olay is recommended because of its special properties that help nature to maintain the natural oil and moisture balance of the skin.

Beauty, the glow of a healthy complexion and protection of your skin from dryness are yours all year 'round when you use this unique tropical oil regularly. Skin beauty specialists are also recommending that Oil of Olay should be smoothed over the face last thing at night before retiring to give your skin the added benefit of nighttime care.

Do We Need More Aircraft Carriers?

As Congress considers another nuclear-powered flattop, two Senators present the

YES

By Sen. HARRY F. BYRD, Jr.
(VA.)

TODAY many argue that the United States is over-committed around the world. I am in basic agreement with that line of thought. We have mutual-defense agreements with 44 different nations. I do not believe the United States can be expected to shoulder indefinitely that many overseas burdens.

For example, I have felt from the beginning that United States involvement in a ground war in Asia was a grave error of judgment.

But I also believe in a strong defense. This country must not be put in the position of being forced to be inactive on the world scene because of weakness; on the contrary, we must be able to defend not only our own nation, but also our real interests abroad. No arm of our defense is more important than a modern Navy. I strongly agree with the statement last year by Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, who declared that "whoever controls the seas will control the overriding question of peace or war."

American troops ought not to be committed overseas except in the most extreme circumstances. But sea power is far more than a means of protecting troops abroad: it is our means of insuring that sea lanes of the world stay open to us, whatever the threat that is posed.

Within the fleet, the aircraft carrier is of supreme importance. It is our margin of superiority over the rapidly expanding Soviet Navy and our primary means of defense against missile-launching ships, submarines, or aircraft. Not even the opponents of new aircraft carriers contend that the United States can do without tactical air power. The real question is this: how do we move the aircraft into position when they are needed?

There is reason to doubt that land bases for tactical aircraft always will be available. When the Communists overrun all of our bases in South Korea, the only sustained tactical air power available was carrier-based.

Since 1954, the United States has lost two-thirds of its overseas bases. The most recent loss is Wheelus Air Force Base in Libya, a fresh reminder that large investments in overseas installations can go down the drain without a shot being fired. The Libyan government simply demanded that we leave. Carrier-based aircraft will be important in filling the resultant gap now left in Mediterranean air cover.

Carrier-based planes have played an important role in Vietnam, and now that we are withdrawing our forces from Southeast Asia, I wonder what will happen to all those air bases we built over there. They cost us a lot of tax dollars.

Sometimes it is argued that the carrier is too vulnerable. It must be admitted, of course, that it can be attacked, just as any other ship can be attacked. But the carrier is the toughest of all our ships: not only is it protected by its own aircraft

Congress has been asked to approve funds for a third new nuclear carrier, under a five-year construction program to replace World War II vintage aircraft carriers. Construction of the first of these Nimitz-class attack carriers began in 1968, and Navy officials warn that delays at this point could cause production shutdowns that would make the third carrier more costly.

In debate last year over appropriations for the second of the new carriers, critics charged in Congress that the Navy unnecessarily seeks to keep a fleet of 15 attack carriers because 15 was the number of battleships allotted the pre-World War Navy, and the carrier has become the new capital ship in the admirals' eyes.

Pentagon spokesmen deny this. They say the Navy is required to maintain five carriers overseas at all times, and normal peacetime rotation means one carrier undergoing overhaul and another conducting training exercises for each one "on station."

The controversy affects not only our national security but our foreign policy as well.

Regardless of how you calculate the cost of overseas bases, they certainly involve a large outflow of dollars. And that adversely affects our balance-of-payments situation.

Arguments recently have surfaced to the effect that carrier-based tactical air power is two to three times as expensive as land-based planes. But this conclusion is based on false assumptions: namely, that we will have unchallenged access to the sea lanes, overseas base availability, prestockpiling of weapons, and an assured fuel supply—all at no cost.

But considerations of cost are by no means the whole story. The aircraft carrier is well suited to the new posture of the United States, the so-called "low profile." We must remember that carriers operate on the open sea, while the commitment of an air wing to a foreign base involves at least 5,000 men, in addition to the facility itself.

The carrier is a very versatile weapon. Its use is certainly not confined to the so-called "brushfire" conflicts but is adaptable—indeed, is essential—to maintaining our general superiority at sea. As the Soviets continue to focus their naval technology on advanced-weapons systems, we must retain the ability to outrange their missile threat with our carrier-based aircraft. Unless we wish to get out of the sea-power business entirely—and that would be to surrender our freedom of action as a nation—we had better keep modern carriers in our fleet.

Sometimes it is argued that the carrier is too vulnerable. It must be admitted, of course, that it can be attacked, just as any other ship can be attacked. But the carrier is the toughest of all our ships: not only is it protected by its own aircraft and escorts, but it is built to withstand attack. The fact of the matter is this: if we cannot protect the aircraft carrier, we cannot protect anything at sea and we may as well write off all sea transport, both Navy and Merchant Marine, both of which are vital to successful overseas strategy.

Opponents of new carriers contend that the main issue in the aircraft-carrier field is the size of the force—specifically, whether or not we need 15 carriers to protect our interests around the world. But I do not argue as to whether we need eight, 10, 12, or 15. The real question is whether or not we need a modern Navy.

Surely all agree by now that building aircraft carriers with conventional propulsion would be a serious error. We must have nuclear-powered carriers. Today the Navy has only one nuclear-powered carrier, the Enterprise. The Nimitz is being built, and a second Nimitz-class craft—the Eisenhower—was approved last year. Now funds are being sought to begin work on a third Nimitz-type carrier, and I believe they should be approved.

Some people have inveighed against the high cost of carriers. I do not deny that they are expensive, but sometimes the cost is exaggerated. It should be borne in mind that the cost of carriers during the 1962-1970 period totaled about $184 million per year. That is 10 percent of the Navy's ship-building account, and only 1 percent of the Navy budget.

Congress has an obligation to cut the fat out of any military budget. Last year I voted to reduce military spending by $6 billion. But in cutting the fat, we dare not cut the muscle. To weaken our carrier force would be to cut the muscle of our Navy. That would be a tragic error. ♦

opposing views

NO

By Sen. WALTER F. MONDALE
(MINN.)

LAST YEAR'S Congressional debate over military spending demonstrated to many Americans that the Pentagon spends billions of dollars to continue programs based on questionable and unchallenged assumptions. I am convinced that one of the most glaring examples of this policy is the Navy's insistence that it needs a minimum of 15 attack carriers.

While I do not question that some carriers are necessary, I have serious reservations about the Navy's claim that 15 is the minimum. Because of the Navy's belief that the role of the carrier has not changed substantially since World War II, Congress is now being asked to appropriate $152 million to start construction of a third Nimitz-class nuclear attack carrier.

More than adherence to tradition is at stake here. Money, and a great deal of it, is involved.

Rather than give the Navy a blank check for additional carriers, Congress decided in 1969 to reassert its constitutional responsibility for military affairs by asking hard questions about the need for a 15-carrier fleet. As a result of an amendment that I introduced with Sen. Clifford Case of New Jersey, no additional carriers can be funded until Congress completes a study of the program.

I believe our carrier fleet is much too large now, and reducing its size will provide substantial savings to the taxpayer without endangering national security. With the advent of Minuteman and Polaris missiles, the attack carrier is no longer part of our strategic nuclear forces. Its main role today is to provide air cover for such limited war missions as bombing enemy supply lines and supporting ground troops. There are several reasons why a 15-carrier fleet is not called for:

First, deploying carrier task forces overlaps and duplicates our land-based air power. The Air Force maintains 23 wings of tactical aircraft at home and abroad. The geographic spread of overseas bases, either operated by the United States or available to us, provides ample facilities for bringing our air power to bear wherever it is needed. This is especially true in the Mediterranean and the Western Pacific.

Furthermore, we have an almost limitless capacity to create new bases when required. The Air Force reports that there are at least a thousand civilian airfields around the world that could be converted to fully equipped bases in three days' time.

Second, carrier air power is far more expensive than land-based air power. A nuclear carrier task force, including escorting destroyers, costs at least $1.4 billion. Since two more carrier task forces must be held in reserve, according to Navy spokesmen, this means that it costs a minimum of $4.2 billion to provide us with one carrier "on station."

In comparison, we can build an air base in the Pacific for $55 million or convert a civilian airfield into a base for approximately $26 million.

Third, their high degree of vulnerability to attack makes carriers far less effective than land bases for our jets. Half of the cost of a carrier task force is for its defense.

Its tremendous investment in a carrier task force gives the Navy an understandable reluctance to commit the carrier to combat until assured its area of operations will be reasonably safe. Once committed, the carrier cannot effectively launch air strikes when attempting to evade enemy attacks. And advanced anti-ship missiles render the carrier's position untenable in any encounter.

Fourth, the carriers that have joined the fleet since the mid-1960's—eight Forrestal-class, the Enterprise, and the two Nimitz-class ships—will enter the fleet in the next few years—are nearly twice the size of our older carriers. They are equipped with more modern aircraft that deliver a greater punch.

Fifth, we are told that 15 carrier task forces are necessary to keep five continually on station, two in the Mediterranean and three in the Pacific. Five more are in training and the remaining five are undergoing overhaul at any one time under this schedule. Naval spokesmen acknowledge that, except for the need to relieve the crew, a carrier task force could remain on its station longer.

Nuclear carrier USS Enterprise. Congress is debating need for more like it.

The Navy has dealt with this problem in Polaris submarines by rotating two crews for each submarine that is on duty.

Finally, the fact that our adversaries and potential adversaries do not have attack carriers further weakens any justification for keeping our carrier fleet at its present level.

In addition to questions of the efficiency and effectiveness of aircraft carriers, the use of these vessels has serious implications in the field of foreign policy. The Navy contends that the carriers' main advantage is that they can be employed unilaterally without involving third parties or relying on treaties. We are told they can take positions off a nation's coast and possibly influence events by their mere presence. The Senate has an obligation to debate whether it is in our national interest to have this many carrier task forces poised for unilateral action. Such a debate is needed to make certain that foreign policy determines our military expenditures, not the reverse.

In calling for Congressional vigilance over military spending, I am well aware of the high priority of national defense. But approving questionable items in the defense budget does not serve our defense. When military forces cost more than is necessary to do a job, our inefficiency may force us to abandon other policy commitments in the areas of education, health and welfare, housing, urban and rural development, and protection of our environment. At a time when our people are bearing an overwhelming tax burden and inflation demands economies in Government spending, we must take a closer look at the carrier program. ♦

Patio Supper

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ For the long holiday weekend ahead, plan casual suppers when at home. The attractive Kraut mold may be prepared a day in advance. Allow the filled loaf of bread, wrapped in foil, to wait in readiness before adding the tomato slices and popping the loaf into the oven. Frost and fill the cupcakes when time permits, and refrigerate them until serving. Be sure to keep tall glasses filled with plenty of ice and lemony tea throughout the meal. Have a fun-filled holiday.

Kraut and Chicken-Layered Loaf

- 3 env. unflavored gelatin
- 1½ cups cold water
- 4 cups chicken bouillon or broth
- 1-3/4 teaspoons instant minced onion
- 1-1/2 teaspoons celery seed
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon seasoned pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 cups diced, cooked chicken, chilled
- 1 can (4 oz.) Vienna sausage, diced
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 2 cups drained sauerkraut, chopped

1. Pour 1/4 cup of the cold water into a saucepan. Sprinkle gelatin from 1 env. over the water. Dissolve gelatin over low heat, stirring constantly. Remove from heat.
2. Stir in 1 cup of the bouillon. Remove and set aside one-third cup for garnish (see note, Decorative Garnish); mix into remaining two-thirds cup, 1 teaspoon of the minced onion and 1/4 teaspoon of the celery seed. Set aside. (Have ready a bowl of ice and water.)
3. Meanwhile, sprinkle gelatin from remaining 2 env. over remaining 1 cup water in a saucepan. Stir over low heat until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat and stir in the remaining 3 cups bouillon, 2 1/4 teaspoons onion, 1 teaspoon celery seed, salt, pepper, Worcestershire, and lemon juice. Chill over the ice and water until slightly thickened. Remove and fold in chicken, sausage, and green pepper until well mixed. Set aside.
4. Over ice and water, quickly chill until only slightly thickened, the two-thirds cup bouillon which was set aside in step 2. Remove and blend 1 in kraut; set aside.

5. See note, Decorative Garnish, and quickly prepare the garnish layer.
6. Turn kraut mixture into the loaf pan over the partially set garnish layer. Turn the partially set chicken mixture onto the kraut layer. Chill until firm, about 6 hrs.
7. To un mold, carefully run a knife to bottom around sides of mold. Turn onto a chilled platter. Garnish as desired.

Decorative Garnish: 1. Cut thin slices of radish or carrot into "flowers" and thin strips of green pepper into "stems" for a floral design. Spoon into a 9x5x3-inch loaf pan, 3 tablespoons gelatin-bouillon mixture from the one-third cup which was set aside in step 2 of the loaf recipe. Place over ice and water. Arrange "flowers" and "stems" in a floral design in gelatin on bottom of pan, placing design upside down (see photo). Remove from ice and water.

2. Carefully spoon remainder of the one-third cup gelatin-bouillon mixture over design to hold it in place. Immediately continue with step 6 of loaf recipe. 8 servings

Seasoned French Bread with Filling

A 1-lb. loaf French bread spread (see recipe)
Sweet onions, sliced
Tomatoes, thickly sliced
Bottled Italian-style salad dressing

1. Cut loaf into 1-in. slices almost through to bottom. Using a sharp-

A decorative gelled layer of sauerkraut crowns a layer of diced chicken and Vienna sausage in a well-seasoned aspic for this delightfully zesty molded loaf.

- pointed knife, cut out and remove alternate slices*, leaving 1/4 in. of the crust at bottom of the loaf. Place loaf on a long piece of heavy-duty aluminum foil on a baking sheet.
2. Spread the Seasoned Butter or Cheddar Cheese mixture generously over the cut surfaces of each slice and in between slices at bottom of the loaf.

3. Into each cavity between slices, place vertically a slice of sweet onion, a thick slice of tomato brushed with the salad dressing, and (if using the Seasoned Butter mixture instead of the Cheddar Cheese Spread) a slice of sharp Cheddar or Swiss cheese.

4. Set the filled loaf into a 400°F. oven and heat until either the cheese mixture or slices of cheese begin to melt, about 10 min.

5. Remove from oven. Using a very sharp knife to cut through the bottom crust, separate loaf into individual portions, keeping loaf intact.

6. Pull up sides of foil and lift into a long bread basket or onto a serving tray. Loosely overlap foil to keep bread warm during serving. Use tongs to serve.

Seasoned Butter Spread

Blend thoroughly 1/4 cup butter or margarine with 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 2 teaspoons prepared horseradish, and 2-1/2 tablespoons chopped parsley.
Cheddar Cheese Spread
Blend thoroughly 1/4 cup butter or margarine with 1/2 teaspoon dry

- mustard, 2 tablespoons catsup, 1 teaspoon prepared horseradish, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, and 1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese.
 - *Removed slices may be spread with either mixture, put onto the foil with the filled loaf and served hot.
- One loaf bread*

Patio Party Cupcakes

- 1 pkg. (17 1/2 or 18 1/2 oz.) devil's food cake mix
- 1 can (16 1/4 or 16 1/2 oz.) ready-to-spread chocolate or chocolate fudge frosting
- Thawed frozen whipped dessert topping

1. Prepare cupcakes from the cake mix; spoon batter into lightly greased, 2 1/4-in. muffin pan wells (14 to 16), filling each about 3/4 full. Bake as directed on pkg. Cool on wire rack.
2. Generously ice tops of cooled cupcakes with the frosting.
3. Put about 1/4 cup remaining frosting into a bowl and, by spoonfuls, blend in thawed dessert topping to desired fluffy consistency for a delicately chocolate-flavored filling. If desired, blend in a few drops of almond extract.
4. Carefully cut off frosted tops of cakes and cut remainder crosswise into halves. Generously spoon filling onto cut surfaces*, and sandwich slices together, finally putting the tops into place. Poke 8 or 4 colorful plastic or frilly cocktail picks into each for a festive touch and to hold filled layers together.

The Body Prints

By ROSALYN ABBEVAYA

Print designs are bursting out all over this season. They're as likely to distinguish the lines of a jumpsuit (as seen on our cover) as a sophisticated ball gown.

Watch their spirited men in tiny peasant florals or folklore scenes, in Byzantine to Far Eastern inspirations, in clean-lined geometrics.

The shape of these clothes you may be wearing? They take a relaxed line, are cut closer to the body—many in lithe knits in every length from just-above-the-knee to midi to ankle-grazing. These are the clothes to latch on to for drifting, romantic evenings right now! ♦

Jules Jürgensen.

Not just another pretty face.

There are 7,258,204,800 reasons why the next watch you buy should be a Jules Jürgensen.

That's the number of seconds in 230 years.

And Jules Jürgensen has been a great name in watches all that time. Most any brand you can think of is a Johnny-come-lately compared to us. You have to make a very fine product to have people buy it year after year.

You've got to have beautiful faces, of course.

But the face is there for everybody to see. It's easy to choose a watch by its looks.

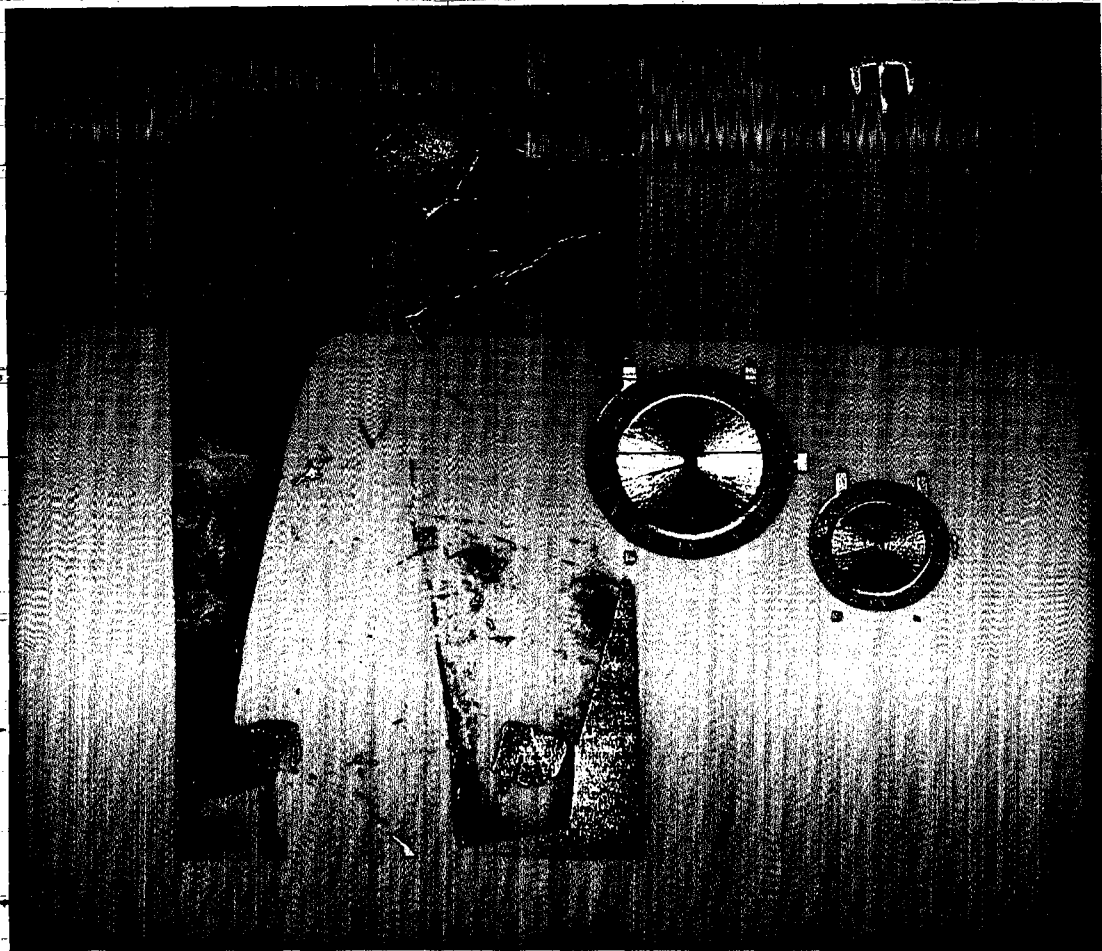

You've got to be beautiful on the inside, too. Beautifully running. Beautifully lasting. Beautifully accurate.

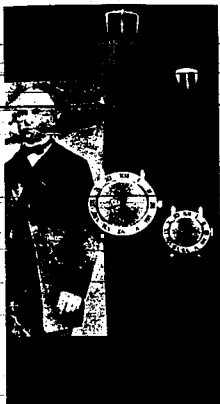

We think there is an inner beauty in a precision-made watch. That's why we're such fanatics about the tolerances of our jeweled movements—about the way they're checked and inspected—about the way they perform under brutal testing conditions.

Centuries ago, the other Swiss watchmakers said that Jules Jürgensen had a compulsive urge for perfection. We'd like to think we inherited it.

Here: the Count for him, the Contessa for her. 17 jewel movements in classic 14K gold cases, with Florentine yellow gold dials and graceful Roman numerals on the outer rim. The Count, about $155. The Contessa, about $135. Other Jules Jürgensen watches from $80 to $12,000 at fine stores everywhere. Write for an illustrated brochure and name of your nearest authorized dealer.

What Makes You Tired?

SOME PEOPLE only get tired now and then, others get tired frequently, and still others are "tired all the time."

Whatever category you fall into, you'll be interested to know that science has been looking into the matter and has come up with some fascinating findings on the subject. This true-false quiz gives you the opportunity to compare your own knowledge of what makes you tired with science's discoveries.

1. If your job makes you tired, the odds are that you're probably working too hard.

2. You're actually less prone to accidents when you're tired because instead of rushing, you tend to move more slowly and deliberately.

3. When you say, "That person makes me tired," it's literally true.

4. You can perform mental work better when you're fresh than when you're moderately tired.

5. Tiredness resulting from hard physical labor takes longer to recuperate from than fatigue caused by mental work.

6. Frequent rest periods actually make you more tired at the end of the day.

7. Regardless of the kind of work they're doing, neurotic people get tired quicker than those with well-balanced personalities.

8. There's nothing good about fatigue at all.

ANSWERS

1. False. The odds lie in an entirely different direction. If your job seems to you particularly fatiguing—if you're appreciably more tired than your colleagues at the end of the day—it isn't likely you're working too hard. The chance is that you're a round peg in a square hole, that your job doesn't provide opportunity for the expression of your talents.

2. False. You're more likely to have an accident when you're tired—whether you're a driver or a pedestrian. Studies at Pennsylvania State University have shown that when fatigue was induced in subjects, their reaction time was slowed 57 percent.

SELF-HELP QUIZ

3. True. When you react to another person's presence with unpleasant emotions, this produces actual nervous fatigue, which is the hardest type to recuperate from. A few minutes with a person you're allergic to can tire you out as much as hard work.

4. False. Studies at a leading university have demonstrated that people engaged in mental work perform significantly better when they are moderately tired than when they are fresh. However, as workers progressed to further stages of fatigue—"considerably tired" and "very tired"—their efficiency suffered.

5. False. Studies show that we recover quicker from fatigue caused by muscular activity. It requires more rest and relaxation to replenish energy expended in mental work.

6. False. Consensus of studies shows that brief and frequent breaks not only reduce fatigue but make for better performance as well.

7. True. Studies show that people with neurotic tendencies are much more subject to fatigue than others. They often wake up tired even after eight hours sleep. The reason that their energy supply is exhausted quicker is because much of it is dissipated in inner conflicts.

8. False. As Dr. David B. Dill has noted, in summing up the findings of leading studies on the subject: "Life without stress, and the resultant fatigue, is uninteresting and unhealthy. The man is fortunate whose work tires him, gives him a good appetite, and finally promotes a good night's sleep."

QUIPS AND QUOTES

A man who was very much interested in old books recently ran into an unbookish acquaintance of his who'd just thrown away an old Bible which had been packed away in the attic of his ancestral home for generations. He happened to mention it.

"Who printed it, do you know?" asked the book lover quietly. "Somebody named Guten-something," recalled the man with an effort.

"Not Gutenberg!" gasped the book lover. "You idiot, you've thrown away one of the first books ever printed. A copy sold at auction recently for over $400,000."

The other man was unmoved. "My copy wouldn't have brought a dime," he announced firmly. "Some fellow named Martin Luther had scribbled all over it."

An eighteen-year-old young man was noted for his complete lack of interest in the opposite sex, so everyone wondered whether a hitch in the Army had changed his outlook. He watched them intently until they were out of sight, then turned back to his cousin and said:

Unit Pricing: Will It Pare Your Grocery Bill?

Consumer spokesmen are pressing for a price-per-measure listing on almost all items in the food store

ONE THIRD of the average family's income each year is spent on food purchases. More than 10 percent of that is wasted because wrong selections are made on what the shopper thinks are the best values.

Can you tell which size and brand of a certain item will give you the most for your money? By reading the label of a bottle of cooking oil, for instance, can you determine whether the larger size will really be a saving? Or, for that matter, which loaf of bread is the best buy?

The answer is probably "No," because grocery shopping is still something of a bewildering experience, and consumers all over the country are registering complaints. There's a clear need for some easy way to make package size, weight, and price comparisons in the grocery market.

In New York City, the Consumer Affairs Department's solution is "unit pricing." Bea Myerson Grant, the department's commissioner (you might remember her as Miss Alorraine of 1945) says: "Everyone knows that under the current marketing conditions it is impossible to make food selections on price. Even the man who is a computer analyst will have difficulty."

Her department conducted some tests several months ago. Shoppers were asked to try to select familiar items offering the most quantity at the lowest cost. From 40 to 60 percent of their choices were wrong. These miscalculations cost the consumer about 10 cents on the dollar.

Mrs. Grant says: "The purpose of unit pricing is to see that the consumers get as much information as they need in order to know how much they are getting for their money."

New York City's "Regulation 49," formulated by Mrs. Grant's department, requires all meat and fish, cereals, cooking oils, soft drinks and beer, facial tissues, napkins, and bread to carry a price per pound, quart, or per 50 sheets of tissue. The unit price is to be posted beside the selling cost on the package, on a shelf marker, or as part of a chart listing brand, package size, and price per measure for each item in that particular category.

In other words, while a small box of corn flakes in the past has only been marked 22 cents, the new regulation requires showing that its eight ounces are being sold at a price of 44 cents per pound. This then can be compared quickly with a 12-ounce package marked not only 31 cents but also 41.3 cents a pound, revealing that the larger size here is the better value. But the larger size is not always the best buy.

Although conversion cards given out to shoppers have been tried in some stores, most often, shoppers don't have the time even to do this figuring. Some shoppers have difficulty with the cards and figuring out the three unit prices for, say, bathroom tissues in 325, 500, and 1000 tissues per roll. Then, too, they come packaged in eight roll, two roll, and four-roll packages.

But many grocers disagree, and some New York City stores opposed to unit pricing are seeking to prevent its implementation. Originally, Regulation 49 was scheduled to go into effect last Nov. 20, but was then extended 90 days to give supermarkets time to reorganize their pricing systems. Now the retailers have filed a suit questioning the authority of a consumer-affairs department to enforce such a requirement. Retailers in New York City contend that a city council or state legislature has such jurisdiction, not Mrs. Grant's department. And also they contend that it would be just too expensive to post the information.

Counties and states are beginning to take action.

Long Island's Nassau County has prepared a similar unit-pricing bill; New York State Rep. Gordon Burrows (R) has introduced a bill in the Assembly; a bill was also introduced in California in February. Legislation is being contemplated in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Ohio, and now a bill is being drafted in Michigan.

In Richmond, Calif., the Associated Cooperatives have been experimenting with price-per-measure on groceries in odd size and numerous package sizes for seven years. The Hyde Park Cooperative Society in Chicago, Ill., uses price-per-ounce labels on 2,000 items. They are inserted into metal shelf runners.

In their 49 New York metropolitan stores, Datch-Shopwell uses charts to indicate unit price on cereals and bread. But by far the largest user of price-per-measure is Jewel in its 250 Chicago area stores. Begun as a test in three stores in January, the experiment was expanded in March and includes unit-price shelf tags on 1,000 food items.

Many food-store operators feel that unit pricing is inevitable but not necessarily the answer to every consumer's dream. Then, too, there is a certain amount of resistance even from shoppers themselves who associate the change with a further complication of their lives. Time and trial will tell. If unit pricing can save even a few cents weekly on the shopping budget, it will be a sure success.

THE TWO OCEAN WAR lets you re-live every Naval battle of World War II—from every angle—aboard battleships, carriers, destroyers, minesweepers, LSTs, Navy Hellcats. You're in the thick of every sea and amphibious battle in the Pacific, Mediterranean and Atlantic. Discover hundreds of little known facts about World War II...

- Why the Pentagon went out the alarm of an impending Pearl Harbor attack by WESTERN UNION.
- Why MacArthur's air force was caught grounded on the airfields of Manila 8 hours after Pearl Harbor.
- How Nazi subs sank our merchant ships before the hor-rificed eyes of unthatching vacationers in Florida.

- How the Navy suffered more losses in a single 2 hour battle than it did in World War I and the Spanish American War combined.
- How the defense of the Philippines starred a weld U.S. "Battalion" of stray aviators, marines, and native Filipinos in wild psychedelic yellow uniforms.
- How romantic "Ball Hall" of South Pacific fame was a hellhole of malaria that drove out U.S. engineers before they could complete an airfield.
- How a handful of U.S. Navy planes chased away an entire fleet of Japanese battleships even though they had no bombs to drop.
