Space Endurance Record Set By Russian Fliers

MOSCOW (UPI)—A space commentator today told the Soviet public for the first time the Soyuz-9 cosmonauts had broken America's space endurance record and passed beyond "the borders of the unknown," a feat already hailed by U.S. astronauts.

Col. Andrian Nikolayov and Vitaly Sevastianov orbited earth for the 15th day of a mission sources said would continue another week.

Nikolayov, 40, and his rookie partner Sevastianov, 35, broke the endurance record of 13 days, 18 hours and 35 minutes set by America's Gemini 7 at 4:35 p.m. Monday.

Until today, progress reports in the Soviet press noted the hours Soyuz 9 had been in flight since its June 1 blastoff but took no notice a new record had been set.

Science writer T. Borisov broke the silence with a few lines in today's edition of the trade union daily, Trud.

"At 4:35 p.m. Moscow time Monday the clock of Soyuz 9 showed the figure of 330 hours 35 minutes of flight," he said.

"The same result was on the clock of the American space-ship Gemini 7 when cosmonauts (Frank) Borman and (James) Lovell finished their 14-day flight on Dec. 18, 1965.

"Since that there have been 19 Soviet and American ships in space but not one flight was so long as that.

"Thus cosmonauts Nikolayov and Sevastianov yesterday crossed the borders of the unknown and continued orbiting earth."

In Houston, Tex., the pilots of the 1965 Gemini 7 mission issued a message of congratulations. "Your accomplishments are adding new evidence supporting the capability of man to live and work in extended periods in space," it said. "We wish you continued success... and safe return to earth."

The official Soviet news agency, Tass, said at the close of the 14th day the cosmonauts "are continuing their program... both feel well."

Besides setting the record, the cosmonauts continued their experimentation in photographing the surface of the earth and changed the orbit of Soyuz 9 to test its manual and automatic controls, Tass said.

The new path took the ship around the earth once every 88.8 minutes at a maximum distance of 138.84 miles and a minimum of 129.06 miles.

(One message which appeared to have instructions to release the ambassador was held up because it lacked proper authentication.

(West German Embassy press officer Hans Bayer said "We are confident that the ambassador will be placed in liberty. It's only a question of time now. We are grateful that Brazil has confirmed its humanitarian tradition.")

Von Holleben, 61, was kidnapped Thursday by terrorists with submachine guns who stopped his car, killed a federal agent guarding him and wounded two policemen.

Political Prisoners Arrive For Algiers Exchange Plan

ALGIERS (UPI)—Forty men and women freed as ransom for kidnapped West German Ambassador Ehrenfried von Holleben reached asylum in Algiers early today, some displaying scars they said came from torture in Brazilian prisons.

One woman said she was crippled by torture and another showed burn marks the prisoners said were caused by electric shocks.

(Officials in Rio de Janeiro broadcast cryptic code messages from a leftwing guerrilla group apparently containing instructions for the kidnappers and waited expectantly for the release of Von Holleben.

Manson Murder Trial Underway

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Charles Manson sat quietly facing the court, staring down at a table and slowly turning a yellow pencil when his trial finally started in the Sharon Tate murder case.

Manson's three "family" members and codefendants—Susan Atkins, Patricia Krenwinkel and Leslie Van Houten—followed their leader's example and sat primly in three theater-type seats at the rear of the well of the courtroom Monday.

Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older ordered selection of a jury to begin at 10 a.m. PDT today.

In a courtroom just down the 8th floor corridor of the Hall of Justice Building, another member of the cult, Robert Beausoleil, was sentenced to death Monday for the killing of musician Gary Hinman a month before the Tate killings.

Numb

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Elliott Ashton Welsh II, a "nonreligious" conscientious objector to the draft who won his appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, said he is glad the fight is over because "it's been a long four years."

Welsh, a member of the Conservative Young Americans for Freedom until a peace march in 1962 changed his thinking, said Monday, "I'm just glad it's over. I'm very pleased, but I'm numb."

Agnew Will Continue To Speak Fearlessly

DETROIT (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew Monday vowed to keep speaking "forcefully, factually and fearlessly" about dissenters. Outside, about 400 demonstrators picketed Cobo Hall, taunting police and shouting obscenities aimed at Agnew.

Agnew, addressing 4,000 Republicans at a $100-a-plate dinner, said he parted company with the "irrational dissenters, not rational ones."

Although several cars were stoned in the demonstration outside the hall, there were no incidents or arrests.

In his speech, Agnew said newspaper editorial writers lately have been urging him to cool his rhetoric about dissenters.

However, the vice president said, the nation should encourage "peaceful argument" which "automatically discourages violent protest." Agnew said it is irrational dissenters, not rational ones, whom "I part company with."

Agnew said the word "rhetoric" is badly misused. "It is being defined as vituperation, as poisonous invective, but rhetoric is not that

All reports indicated this delay was due to progress from the talks.

Plans To Overhaul Post Office Alive

WASHINGTON (UPI)—After the nation's first postal strike and months of effort by the Nixon administration, the proposal to give the post office the biggest overhaul since Ben Franklin reaches a milestone today—debate on the House floor.

A vote was believed three days off. And the bill was jeopardized by another in a long series of controversies, this time over union rights for the estimated 700,000 postal workers.

As recommended by the House Post Office Committee, the bill would convert the post office into an independent government agency called the U.S. Postal Service. It would be run by an 11-member commission, including the postmaster general, but he no longer would be a member of the Cabinet.

A separate board would be instituted in the agency to set postal rates, subject to a veto by a majority vote of either chamber of Congress within 90 days.

The Postal Service would bargain with postal unions, who would come under the jurisdiction of the Taft-Hartley Act and have the right to negotiate for a union shop.

New York postal workers have threatened to strike, as they did in March, if there is not quick and favorable action on the bill which includes an 8 per cent retroactive pay raise for them plus other fringe benefits.

Windows Smashed In Miami

MIAMI (UPI)—About 300 Negroes smashed store windows and threw rocks at motorists Monday night. Police said officers were fired upon by snipers.

Riot squads and sniper teams, wearing bulletproof vests, restored order in the area early today. There were no reports of any gunshot wounds.

Police fired tear gas canisters to disperse groups of blacks along a 10 block strip of 27th Avenue. Four persons were arrested.

The trouble apparently stemmed from a controversy at a white-owned grocery. Blacks claimed the grocer refused to cash a welfare check Saturday and began picketing the store, which closed.

Youths began throwing rocks and bottles at passing cars Monday night, and at least three motorists were dragged from their cars and beaten, police said. Two cars were overturned and burned. A police patrol car was commandeered by blacks and later found in a canal.

"We are being fired upon," officers reported over the police radio. Asked how many shots were fired, one officer replied, "Three or four."

Wanted

LEWISTON (UPI)—An all points bulletin alerted police in four states to be on the lookout for two men wanted in connection with the shooting death early Monday of Ralph Russell, 31, a Lewiston police officer.

Officials said the men had been seen in several northern Idaho night spots during the past two weeks and were described as in their 30s and speaking with strong southern accents.

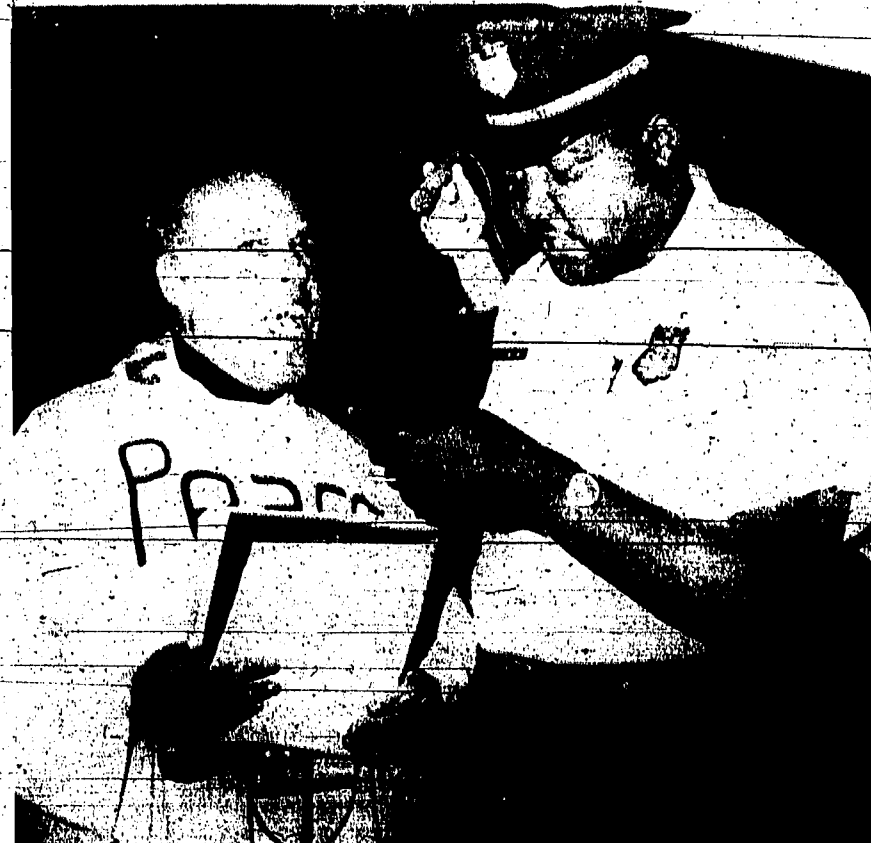

It's Now Two-Way Again

Twin Falls residents seem to be adjusting to the city's new traffic pattern. Amid red faces, embarrassment and frustration, Main Avenue turned back to a two way street Monday.

Although the street saw more than its share of near misses Monday, City Police received no reports of accidents on the street.

One-way directional signs have been removed from the street and stop lights in the south-bound lane have been turned to face that lane. Stop signs also have been placed at Stonehenge on Main just as an extra ounce of precaution at the city's busiest intersection.

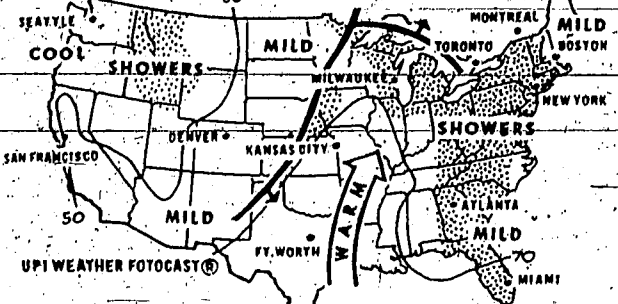

One of the biggest quandaries facing motorists was the problem of trying to decide which parking meter to put money in — the one in front or the one behind. Chief Frank Barnett said the parking meters behind cars on the south-bound lane are actually the ones which are intended for the parking spaces, but said motorists "shouldn't worry about it."

REV. MALCOLM BOYD is arrested by a Pentagon policeman as he attempted to celebrate an Episcopalian Mass at the Pentagon in Washington D. C. Rev. Boyd, along with 16 other persons representing the Episcopal Peace Fellowship, New York, was charged with making "false and unusual claims" on federal property. On previous occasions, more than 50 of the same Episcopalian group have been arrested. (UPI telephoto)

Weather Synopsis

The upper air flow pattern which has been bringing cool, showery weather to Southern Idaho and East Central Oregon for the past several days seems to be breaking down, allowing fair, warm, dry weather to develop along the Pacific Coast. A few showers will remain in Southern Idaho today, especially in the south eastern highlands area, but rainfall amounts will be light compared to the last few days. Skies across Southern Idaho this morning contained a few scattered clouds and were expected to remain fair to partly cloudy all day. A slow warming trend is expected through Saturday. Today's highs are forecast in the upper 60s and 70s and tomorrow should be 70 to 80. Tomorrow morning's lows are forecast to be 40 to 50.

2 Die, T.F. Pair Hurt In Crash

WELLS, Nev. (UPI) — Two Utah men were killed Monday in a fiery automobile collision on U.S. 93 about 10 miles south of here. The Nevada Highway Patrol identified the victims as Chase Corbin, 17, Layton, driver of one of the cars, and Paul Van Ostrand, 52, Salt Lake City, a passenger. The collision involved the car and a pickup truck carrying Mr. and Mrs. Rouel Lessey of Twin Falls, Idaho. Both were taken to the Elko Hospital where Mrs. Lessey was in critical condition. Officers said the Lessey vehicle burst into flames after the head-on crash.

Leasing Of Parking Lots Eyed

Members of the Urban Renewal Agency board of Twin Falls were brought up to date on the local project when they held a meeting Tuesday morning. General discussion of the project as a whole was held, according to James Kelsch, director. He said the plan to lease cleared Urban Renewal lots to the city for metered parking areas was discussed, but no decision was reached. He said a decision might be made later Tuesday. The current phase of demolition, which includes six buildings, should be complete in about three weeks, it was reported. A Seattle, Wash., firm, Iverson Construction Co., is contractor on the demolition.

Miner Predicts Shortages

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — Many consumer products may be in short supply soon because manufacturers have been given insufficient time to clean up their pollution, a mining industry official told the annual conference of the Pacific Northwest Industrial Development Council here Monday. S. Norman Keaton, chief geologist for American Smelting and Refining Company, said some smelters may have to curtail production because insufficient time has been allowed or because corrective standards are "unnecessarily stringent." "Monetarily, the effect of this may not be noticeable because in the short range the supply of metal may not be tight," Keaton said. However, he continued, "in the middle range and possibly in the long range period, the result will be a shortage of metals and higher bidding on the market for the available supply." Keaton said the mineral industry recognizes the need for pollution control and has accepted the responsibilities toward maintaining environmental quality. "If those who are screaming would come down to earth and be quiet long enough to think just a little, they might recognize that the problems are somewhat more complex than they had thought," he said. The industry is responding to the contemporary thrust toward clean air, Keaton said, but cannot provide instant clean air and water and a reversal of the polluting trend take time.

FBI Eyes Onassis During 1942 Trip

NEW YORK (UPI) — FBI is no information available indicating Mr. Onassis has any other motive for making a trip to the United States, but it was reported he has expressed sentiments inimical to the United States war effort, and that his activities and movements while in the United States should be carefully scrutinized, she quoted the letter.

Onassis, she said, "knew nothing of the letter, nor dreamed that he was under surveillance by government agents on his trips from New York to Hollywood and to Buenos Aires."

Miss Lilly noted that Argentina, officially neutral during the war, was "a little more neutral on the side of the Axis than on the side of the allies" and that Onassis "was close to the Argentines and the leaders of their Axis-leaning government."

But, she said, Onassis "has never been a political animal."

The article was adapted from Miss Lilly's forthcoming book, "Those Fabulous Greeks."

Fishing Derby Attracts 200

Over 200 fish were caught by children from 2 1/2 to 14 years of age at the recent Harmon Park Fish Derby. Chairman Virgil Malone said.

Gift certificates were awarded Rose Hranac and Tim Bailey as the first boy and girl to catch a fish.

A transistor radio was awarded to Michael Jones, who caught 16 fish; as the boy to catch the most fish, and a hook holder was awarded to Bonnie Hranac, who caught 10, as the girl to catch the most fish.

A baseball mitt was awarded to three-year-old Ricky Bailey as the fisherman with the oldest fishing pole. His fishing pole was constructed of a stick, fishing line and hook.

An unidentified 2 1/2-year-old boy was awarded a baseball as the smallest fisherman, Mr. Malone said.

Leslie Curtis of Anselmo, Neb., was awarded a baseball mitt as the fisherman to travel the longest distance for the derby.

Japan Eyes Successor To Top Man

TOKYO — The Japanese prime minister, Eisaku Sato, has held office for five years, having been twice re-elected to the position by the ruling Liberal Democrats who have governed the country without a break for 15 years.

Now, however, Sato is 63, near retirement—perhaps in the next 12 months or so—and the search is on to find his successor.

To some extent, the events of the next few months must play a part in the choice of the next prime minister. From June 23, the United States-Japan security treaty may, in theory, be ended at the request of either party to the treaty.

No one for a moment expects the treaty, under which the United States guarantees Japan against external aggression, to be ended in the near future. However, there is just an outside chance of violence around June 22-23, and in any event the government must come out with a statement on the treaty on June 23.

In the statement it is expected to affirm its strong desire for the treaty to continue, almost for an indefinite period of time. In practice, nothing should go wrong with these procedures, but, should they not go smoothly, there would inevitably be repercussions within the Liberal Democrat party (LDP), recriminations and whispers of the need for change.

If all goes well this month, however, the politicians will retire to the hills this summer with a fairly clear idea of who will be chosen to be prime minister next November, when the LDP leadership elections are due to take place. The next prime minister, in fact, could well be the present one for Sato has a splendid record in office. He has scarcely put a foot wrong in five years, in conservative eyes; he led the party to a record 300-seat victory in the lower house elections last December, and—best of all—he obtained an American promise to return to Japan the island of Okinawa.

Much of the forward planning necessary for a Sato victory in November has already been done, and the Japanese press already has been quietly advised that he will run in November—though this has not been made public yet.

The likelihood is that even if Sato is re-elected for another two-year term, he will not want to go on for the whole term but will choose rather to retire at mid-term, after helping to pave the way for a successor.

One problem at present is that there is not very obvious successor to Sato in sight and, in fact, this is not the least of the reasons why he is likely to carry on into next year, come what may.

'Low-Grade' Rich Folks Commended

BY DICK WEST WASHINGTON (UPI) — At last count, the number of national associations headquartered in Washington stood at almost 800, give or take the National Association of Official Inspection Stations.

Some of these organizations may be altruistically motivated, but by and large they serve as spokesmen for "pressure groups." For that reason, ordinarily would be loath to see the republic burdened with yet another association.

Recently, however, I learned that an important socio-economic group in this country is being battered about, apparently for lack of organizational strength.

I am therefore recommending that all of the low grade millionaires in America band together and form the National Association of Little Rich.

The plight of this group came to my attention in a published comment by Mayor Ned Feldman of Englewood, N.J., regarding the economic impact of the recent stock market slump.

"This market has been particularly hard on the little rich," Feldman was quoted as saying. "People worth $1 million to $4 million—somewhere in there—have started to pull in their horns."

I am sure you will agree that in a democratic society such as ours, a strong little rich class is needed for political stability.

The little rich have long played a valuable sociological role by serving as a buffer between the non-rich and the middle rich, just as the middle rich serve as a buffer between the little rich and the big rich.

Since preservation of the little rich as an economic class obviously is in the national interest, I would like to see them organize an association to lobby for protective legislation.

One goal might be a federal subsistence program. Anytime the net worth of a little rich man dropped below $1 million,

Religious Messages Located

HELSINKI (UPI) — Shortly after the end of World War II some Finnish religious organizations began sending "bottled religion" to the atheist Soviet Union and its Baltic satellites. Bible messages were dropped into the Gulf of Finland with the idea they would drift to Soviet shores.

Now it appears someone else has gotten into the act. Bottles with the word of God have been found in the gulf that are not of Finnish origin.

Tuomas Alhava, chief of the security police which are investigating the latest finds, said the new "bottler" probably was some central European religious organization, "operating possibly from West Germany."

Alhava's investigation began when fishermen and vacationers along Finland's south coast discovered sealed bottles containing excerpts from the Bible, including the Gospel of John.

Divorce Is Condemned By Vatican

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano said in its Sunday edition divorce breeds more divorce.

It said statistics from countries where divorce exists show a steady increase in the number of divorces.

"Instead of healing the wounds of the few whom matrimony has disappointed, divorce compromises the health of the many no longer strengthened in moral principles and in the guarantees of legal systems," editor Romano Mazzini said in a front page editorial.

The editorial avoided any mention of the divorce bill which begins floor debate in the Italian senate Thursday.

It took nearly two months to form the present Italian government because of disputes over the bill and charges the Vatican sought to interfere with the Italian government because of Pope Paul VI's statements opposing divorce.

The bulk of the quarter-page editorial was devoted to the divorce situation in France, where a pending bill would allow divorce by mutual consent.

"The crucial point is whether one recognizes the nature of matrimony whose laws are not changeable," Mazzini said.

"Man is free to choose matrimony or not, but must then accept its laws, which were written in nature before they were written in the law books," the editorial continued.

It said what is needed is better preparation for marriage, with recognition of the difficulties of living together, better economic and social conditions, and an "education to the altruistic and social sense of conjugal love."

Nixon's Conviction Is Stronger

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Nixon clearly has a much stronger conviction today than he had a year ago that he can preserve his political skin...

middle-range Americans who elected him, wanted this country out of the war and the President understood that thoroughly.

Nixon's utterances on withdrawals and related matters have invariably carried with them firm warnings to Hanoi not to "take advantage" of our pullouts in any way that would imperil our troops remaining in the country.

heavy stress on "Vietnamization" of the war, with the unmistakable intent among other things of suggesting to the American people that we would be doing our best to assure the South Vietnamese their full chance of survival in independence.

respond to new Hanoi action — in this instance, moves to enlarge and link up sanctuaries menacing U.S. and South Vietnamese soldiers.

Those Restrooms

Could be we have seen no mention of it because it might be considered too personal to put into public print — but we would like to publicly ask if any provisions have been made in the downtown improvement plans for inclusion of public toilets.

don't mind asking a clerk or waitress for directions, you can probably find your way. But for most people such a public facility just doesn't exist unless there's a gas station close at hand.

So, if in fact no plans have been made for a public restroom, why not? What's wrong with a public facility or, perhaps, even direct financial aid to merchants willing to install and maintain such restrooms which would be available to customers and the public alike?

Toilet might not be a word tossed around in general conversation by the honored planners of Twin Falls, but it is more necessary than a lot of other words.

So we leave the suggestion for restroom facilities at the doorstep of the downtown planners. Not that we really expect they will do anything about it, but rather because a lot of folks feel the same way we do about the lack.

In The Tradition

WASHINGTON — In the White House tradition going back to George Washington, President Nixon's elegant hirelings do not knock themselves out leaping bad news to the press.

security against the possibility of a war with the Soviet Union, China's encouragement of heightened North Vietnamese operations in Cambodia is seen in Moscow, intelligence says, as a natural attempt to protect its Southeast Asian flank in behalf of possible military adventures elsewhere.

Pollbuck agrees with President Nixon that the U.S. cleanup in Cambodia is some kind of a success. Like most American military experts, the Russians view the North Vietnamese losses of arms and equipment in relative terms.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

After 60

Dear Dr. Thosteson: This is in regard to hardening of the arteries. I will soon be 67. I know that we cannot "unharden" the arteries, but at my age would it pay to go on a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet? — G.P.

Hanoi's generally low-level fighting from mid-1969 encouraged such a judgment. But the sudden fluidity in the Cambodian backup zones, induced by Prince Sihanouk's fall, was the irresistible cruncher.

A question with an "iffy" answer! Cholesterol is not the sole factor in hardening of the arteries; your ancestry has something to do with it, too. And some other factors.

every morning before school. Should I run the mile before or after breakfast? Also I have oily skin which causes blemishes. What should I eat more of or less of to help clear the blemishes? — T. A. F.

Generally speaking, the cholesterol level tends to descend after age 60 — but any damage due to too much cholesterol has been earlier. And as you say, we haven't found a way to "unharden" arteries.

I suggest that you do your running before breakfast, or after school in the afternoon, not when you have a full stomach.

However, a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet in some cases is still advisable after age 60, with special emphasis on the low-fat aspect.

Best way to cut down your calories is to eat less sugar, starches, and fats — meaning eat more of or less of to help clear the blemishes? — T. A. F.

If you are overweight, if you have elevated blood pressure, if you have a family history of heart disease, if you have emphysema for any or several of these conditions, you, you have something to gain by a low-fat diet. The principal purpose, however, is to reduce weight and thus reduce the burden on your heart, lungs, and circulatory system.

Reason for avoiding fat and fried foods is that fat, ounce for ounce, has twice the calories that sugar does. Reducing fats may help your oily skin, but frequent washing and thorough rinsing — don't forget the rinsing! — will help, too.

If your cholesterol level is high, proper diet to reduce it makes sense.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is chicken or beef bouillon made from cubes and hot water a good source of protein? Does it have any food value? Is there any harm in drinking it? — J. G. B.

Do not underestimate the benefits of lowered fat intake, quite apart from the cholesterol. You'll find both fat and cholesterol discussed, as well as some other related matters, and food lists and sample diets in my booklet, "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly." Send 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for the booklet.

Note to Mrs. R. K. L.: Sweets in the diet do not cause boils. That's an old but discredited belief. Boils are caused by germs on the skin, usually the staphylococcus germ.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 15 and want to lose some weight, so have decided to run one mile represented by the late Walter Reuther cool to the Republican conservatism. And the business recession, with its rising unemployment and dimishing take-home pay, could prompt a good many blue-collar workers to consider the "pocketbook issue" and retain their residence in the Democratic camp.

Add the behavior of the "hard-hat" construction workers in New York, when they paraded lustily in support of President Nixon and against Mayor Lindsay (today a very doubtful Republican), and the argument that the Republicans are latching onto America's blue-collar workers takes on added plausibility. The blue-collar allegiance could have very great significance in the Republican Party's future.

Yet there is visible here a kind of instinctive, visceral reaction, from which Republican strategists hope to profit. These lower middle-class Americans, of many ethnic-European backgrounds, tend to be hawks on Vietnam, moral in their outlook on society, and patriotic to the core. If a fairly permanent Republican majority emerges in these churning years, it will be largely because the blue-collar families have joined the "silent" mid-Americans to produce a coalition comprising the South, the West, and the middle-class North, mostly suburban and rural but with big-city strengths as well.

Of course the party of Nixon and Agnew and a "Southern strategy" has not captured all of organized labor, by any means. Particularly are those progressive laborites

MR. SPECTATOR

A Poem From Vietnam

Mr. Spectator recently received a poem which was written by Sgt. Charles R. Clark, with the HBB 4th Battalion, 60th Art. in An Khe, Vietnam. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Clark, 258 Sycamore St. in Twin Falls, and a brother of Mrs. Ray Orr, also of Twin Falls. It is called "Being Away."

We all must go on Day after day Feeling the hurt and pain Of just being away. I'm sure you all realize The job we must do To keep our country free— Orders we follow through. And as time goes on We hear news from home. Our towns being burned— Will my house be gone? I'm too young to vote But old-enough to die Yet too little to love And too old to cry. I don't mind being here There's a job to be done. Just keep my town free. Why can't we all act as one? So I'm begging you people, I know you care We all want to come home— Let our homes be there. So please stay behind us In everything you do. Think of us and pray for us, We're all thinking of you.

YEAH, CAN YOU? The wooden sewing thread spool is going the way of the whalebone corset. Spools are now being made of lighter, cheaper plastic.

Maybe so, but one suspects that not until the toothpick manufacturers cease their depredations will our forests really be safe. Anyway, the question in the minds of millions of us kids is: Can you patch a plastic spool to make a decent Halloween window-rattle?

NEVER THE TWAIN

The rancher and the farmer can be friends, as the song from "Oklahoma!" has it. And they have been. But lately new friction has developed between them and there's nothing John Wayne can do about it.

The situation is similar to that which once existed in the matter of butter vs. oleomargarine. "Analogous" might be a better word, for "meat analogs" are beginning to compete with real meat for the housewife's shrinking dollar.

They're called analogs because they look, smell and taste like (or nearly like) real meat but are actually made from soybeans.

Currently, about a half-dozen companies across the country are producing some two-dozen different kinds of analogs, from bacon to chops to sausage to smoked turkey. The manufacturers are, in a way, cutting out the "middleman." Instead of feeding high-protein soybeans to animals and then feeding the animals to people, they are processing the beans directly into meat analogs, which have comparable food value to meat but no bones or fat and are cheaper. Oleo and butter long ago stabilized with respect to the share of the market held by each. Meat analogs have yet seriously to challenge the genuine article.

Nevertheless, better smile when you say "analog" to a cattle rancher. Especially if you're a soybean farmer.

Not To Say

WASHINGTON — The Women's Liberation people take themselves very seriously and well they might. It's very hard to say anything to them without getting them very mad. While I have no idea what you should say to someone in Women's Lib, here are some of the things you should not say:

"Well, now that you've got your college degree, I suppose you're going to find yourself a husband."

"You ought to meet Hugh Hefner — he's your kind of guy."

"How do you like this picture of the sexy girl in a bathing suit?"

"Have you heard the latest one about the woman driver who..."

"What's the name of your hairdresser?"

"Ha, ha, ha... A woman President, that's a good one, Ho, ho, ho."

"Would you like to go out to Lady's Day at the ball park?"

"The thing I like about you the best is your legs."

"I met this woman doctor the other day, at the hospital, and she really seemed to know what she was doing."

"What do you think about when you're having a baby?"

"I beg your pardon, ma'am, is the head of the house home?"

"Would you like to feel my muscles?"

"Show me a woman who really likes working and I'll show you a woman who likes other women."

Soviet Officials Decry 'Progress'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Russian leaders say, in effect, that the "era of negotiations" President Nixon proclaimed 17 months ago has produced no visible progress so far.

President Nikolai Podgorny says Soviet-American relations are in a "deep freeze." Premier Kosygin says relations "have undergone no development in recent years." Party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev says "contradictions between the USSR and the U.S. are really deep."

Those statements were made last week in speeches connected with the Russian elections and naturally the propaganda content was not negligible.

However, American officials acknowledge that the Russians are essentially correct in saying that no real progress had been made.

Whatever the reason for the gloomy Soviet view on relations made.

Whatever the reason for the gloomy Soviet view on relations with the United States, review of the major efforts to ease tensions and find even limited solutions to world problems shows virtually no progress during the past 18 months. In some cases, things seem to be worse.

MIDDLE EAST — Despite Soviet-American negotiations for more than a year on a Middle East peace formula, the diplomatic progress has been zero and the military situation is worse.

INDOCHINA — The Soviet Union has refused Washington's pleas for the convening of a New Geneva conference to discuss settlement of the conflicts in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

SALT — The Russians have said nothing about progress at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks in Vienna, but their delegation there has shown signs of being divided in its approach. This presumably reflects a split in the Politburo between those who believe in agreement to limit nuclear weapons is in the interest of the Soviet Union and those who believe Moscow should put no limits on its potential.

EUROPE — The United States agreed at the recent NATO meeting to explore the Soviet idea of a European security conference, although most American officials believe Russia's main interest would be to try to secure recognition of Communist East Germany.

Nixon put no time limit on his "era of negotiations," and it may yet produce some progress but the current scene suggests the odds against it are considerable.

Doctors Would End Medicaid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Medical Association (AMA), testifying with the largely Negro National Medical Association (NMA) for the first time, urged Congress today to scrap Medicaid and replace it with federally subsidized health insurance for all.

Under the plan, prepared for submission to the Senate Finance Committee today, health insurance would be purchased from private companies.

But poor people would get it free, with the federal government paying the premiums. Others would get income tax credits for their premiums, with families of moderate means getting a better tax break than rich people.

AMA President Gerald D. Dorman, a New York physician, said the plan was similar to that proposed by President Nixon in his revised welfare reform bill now before the Senate committee.

Dorman and NMA President Julius W. Hill of Los Angeles said their associations jointly endorsed the plan. Dorman called for "poor review" of the program, meaning doctors, not the government, would decide whether care was sufficient and costs were in line.

Yellow Hue Enlivens

LITCHFIELD PARK, Ariz. (UPI) — Ever head of a yellow firetruck?

All the trucks in this new town are yellow, because yellow is 10 times more visible than red, greatly increasing safety and ease of identification.

Litchfield Park is a new town, being built on empty farmland near Phoenix. Fire protection comes from the Rural Fire Protection Company, a private, profit-making corporation. It is one of two private companies in the country. Homeowners subscribe to the service on an annual basis, paying a fee based on the resale value of their homes. A typical fee is $24 annually for a $25,000 home.

The Litchfield Park firemen do all the odd jobs that ordinary firemen undertake, such as rescuing cats and giving first aid in accidents.

What if you don't subscribe to their service? If you ask them to put out a fire, they will — but the Arizona Corporation Commission has set the fee at 17 times the normal annual rate, or about $400 for a typical house. The company protects about 150,000 persons, and has stations in Tucson and Scottsdale. In Scottsdale, 65,000 people get protection for $2.50 per capita, compared with a national average of $11 for cities of that size. Insurance rates are comparable.

Bids Asked For Mail Carrying

A call for bids to provide mail messenger service between the Twin Falls Post Office and the airport, meeting six flights at the present time, was announced today by Postmaster Fred Sanger.

Mr. Sanger said the distance from the Post Office to the field is 5.60 miles and that the present schedule of trips is available at his office. Due to frequent airline schedule changes, the number and time of mail messenger trips will vary throughout the year.

Bids must be received before June 25 to be considered. Full particulars regarding the bids are available at the office in Twin Falls.

Ads Request Jobs To Aid Ex-Convicts

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI) — A parole officer for the California Department of Corrections has launched a campaign to get newly freed convicts jobs by use of newspaper advertisements.

Richard Nagy said his program has been so successful that he is asking civic organizations to get behind it and foot the bill.

Nagy fell upon the advertising idea quite by accident.

"I was trying to find a parolee a job," he said. "We looked on foot for two days with no results. Then we decided to advertise. It worked."

Nagy said at first he could not decide whether to mention anything about prison in the employment ad.

ARTHUR G. BARKLEY, indicted on air piracy charges in the hijacking of the TWA jetliner over Arizona on June 4, leaves District Court in Alexandria, Va., after his arraignment.

He was chained to several prisoners. Mr. Barkley faces a minimum of 20 years in jail and a maximum penalty of death on the air piracy charge. (UPI telephoto)

Letter-Writing Gains Status

HONG KONG (UPI) — By estimate one-third of Hong Kong's four million predominantly Chinese residents are illiterate.

That's where the Sheu Shun Lo letter writers come in. If you provide the paper, envelope and postage — indeed, you are required to — the Sheu Shun Lo will write whatever you tell them to, for a normal charge of 50 Hong Kong cents, about 8 U.S. cents.

Letter writing is a profession in Hong Kong is not a very lucrative one so the letter writers have all sorts of sidelines such as fortune telling, acting as marriage brokers, employment agents, house hunters and translators.

Even with the sidelines the average income of a letter writer is meager. On the average they earn from as little as $20 a month to a maximum of $100 a month.

A typical letter writer is Au Chi-ping, 55, whose desk sits in front of a post office and a cable office in downtown Kowloon, one of Hong Kong's communities.

Au's self-advertisement of his services reads like this: "C calligraphy — flats — licenses — c o n t r a c t s — t e l e p h o n e s — e m p l o y m e n t — t r a n s l a t i o n — c a b l e c o d e s — m a r r i a g e s — l e t t e r s i n c h i n e s e a n d E n g l i s h ."

Au said he was a high school graduate, a government official and a major in the army before the Communists took over the China mainland in 1949. He came to Hong Kong to work as an office boy, before he took up letter-writing 10 years ago.

"I have tried many times to find white-collar jobs," he said. "But they said my English is not good enough. And now I am getting old, they don't want me."

Another letter writer is 76-year-old Leung Hoi-tien, who also practices as a fortune-teller with a golden tortoise shell, three ancient coins and a book which he said only fortune-tellers can understand.

Anybody can make a hard liquor. A soft whiskey is something else.

The difference between hard liquor and soft whiskey is more than just a matter of taste. What makes Calvert Extra soft is the way it is distilled and blended. So while soft whiskey has a unique taste, it is also as smooth and mellow as the best imported Scotch and Canadian. It took us many years and thousands of experiments to develop the unique taste of soft whiskey. It wasn't easy. But we think you'll agree it was worth it.

Vienna's Sewers Attract

By JOHN F. SIMS
VIENNA (UPI)—The sewer police of Vienna talk about Harry Limb almost as though he were a real person. The filming of Carol Reed's movie "The Third Man" was the most exciting thing that's happened in the sewers since World War II.

When a four-man patrol of the Kanal Brigade took me on a four-hour guided tour of the most extensive sewer system in the world—2,000 miles of tunnels and canals—they first took me to the spot where Joseph Cotten chased Orson Welles.

"Things have been quiet since then," patrol leader Andreas Worderitach said. "But we occasionally see a rerun of 'The Third Man' on television."

Vienna's first sewers were built in 1300 just after the city itself was founded. Since then they have grown into a honeycomb that builders take into account each time they consider a multi-story building. The sewer's own police force is made up of men who have served at least 10 years on the surface. Their tedious work consists mainly of checking to see that no unauthorized person is using the sewers.

The wartime days when thieves would dig from the sewers into banks, warehouses and palaces are long gone. The most tempting tunnels are bricked off.

During the four-power occupation of Vienna that followed the war, the sewer police were the only persons who could move unrestricted from one sector to another. On the surface, the sectors were more rigidly policed.

But the arrival of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) has brought a little spice to the work of the sewer police.

They regularly check under the American and Russian embassies, where the SALT talks are held, to make sure no one is trying to bug the meetings. The danger is slight because the conference rooms in both embassies are on upper stories.

The work is not pleasant. The police wear olive drab coveralls with hoods and high-boots as protection. They carry powerful flashlight units and smaller flashlights for emergencies. They wear regulation pistols but can't remember the last time one was drawn in the line of duty.

The smell is the worst part. The air underground is heavy and sickly-sweet with the scent of decay. The light varies. In some spots it is as black as Harry Lime's heart. In others, daylight filters down from glass grilles in the sidewalks 30 feet above.

The police know most of the sewer system as well as a pedestrian knows the streets above. But they carry maps in case they get lost. They maintain radio contact with an officer on the surface who warns them if it starts raining. Sudden rains cause floods.

The water level ranges from a trickle in minor canals to a fast-flowing six-foot depth in the biggest. In some places the flow halts and debris piles up in a thick sludge.

One tunnel contained a 10-yard-long pile of what looked like the remains of a year-long party—thousands of corks, cigarette ends, lemon and orange slices—and the biggest of the patrol members had to carry me piggyback through the squelching mess.

We were under one of Vienna's most famous hotels. The air smelled great when we emerged.

"You can understand we don't often feel like having lunch immediately after coming up," Worderitach said.

The war was not finished. The patrol showed me a tunnel entering into the Danube canal and a 70-year-old man who fishes at the exit. He doesn't catch fish. He uses a long pitchfork to harpoon pieces of animal fat and tories them in steel barrels.

"He sells that to England," Worderitach said, wrinkling his nose. "They sell it to fishermen to use as bait."

REMEMBER LIDICE

VIENNA (UPI)—Czechoslovakia laid wreaths Sunday at the memorial to the town of Lidice, destroyed and its male inhabitants slain by the Nazis 28 years ago in reprisal for the killing of Reinhard Heydrich, Gestapo chief for Czechoslovakia. The Czech news agency said 9,000 persons attended the ceremony.

A HAPPY MAN is Elliott Ashton Welsh II as he talks on the phone with newsmen about the favorable ruling he received from the U.S. Supreme Court on Monday. The tribunal declared that a draftee may claim deferment even though he has no religious grounds. (UPI telephoto)

Tribunal Backs Deferments Without Religious Grounds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court ruled Monday that a draftee may claim conscientious objector status even though he is not "religious" in the generally accepted sense of the term.

Justice Hugo L. Black, speaking for the court ruled that the draft law "exempts from military service all those whose consciences, spurred by deeply held moral, ethical, or religious beliefs, would give them no rest or peace if they allowed themselves to become a part of an instrument of war."

Black said however that conscientious objector classification cannot be claimed by those "whose beliefs are not deeply held and those whose objection to war does not rest at all upon moral, ethical or religious principle but instead rests solely upon considerations of policy, pragmatism or expediency."

Only three other justices, William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood

Marshall, joined Black in his opinion. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Byron R. White and Potter Stewart dissented.

But the court was able to avoid a tie vote in the case because Justice John M. Harlan went further into the legal problems presented by the case and found the draft law's conscientious objector exemption an unconstitutional abridgment of the 1st Amendment's freedom of religion guarantees.

Conrtry to Black, Harlan read the law as exempting only those with "athletic beliefs" but he found this discrimination wrong. The decision came in the case of Elliott Ashton Welsh II of Los Angeles, given a three-year sentence for refusing to submit to induction.

Welsh appealed to the Supreme Court from a 9th-U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision holding that his draft board properly denied his application on the ground that his beliefs stemmed from sociological, economic, historical and philosophical—rather than religious—considerations. Welsh, a computer engineer, had checked the "no" square opposite the question "Do you believe in a Supreme Being?" on his conscientious objector form.

At draft appeal hearings, Welsh said he did not believe in life after death or in what might be called a human soul. He described taking a human life as a social "error."

Later he said he believed that "both ethical and religious values usually arise from the same source: an individual's concern for other individuals."

Black's opinion stemmed from a decision on March 8, 1965, in the case of Daniel A. Seeger of New York City. The law at that time exempted from combat service persons who by reason of religious training and belief were conscientiously opposed to participation in war in any form and specified a belief of some sort in a Supreme Being.

The court ruled in the Seeger case that registrants need not declare belief in a Supreme Being in such a narrow sense.

In 1967, Congress, following a series of draft card burnings, deleted "supreme Being" from the statute, eliminating the court's broader interpretation and leaving "religious training and belief" as the only yardstick.

Though Illegal, 'Minis' Hang On

By RAY WILKINSON
CAIRO (UPI)—Ironically, miniskirts may last longer in Egypt than elsewhere.

Ironically because they are very unpopular with the Establishment here—parents, educators and government authorities. But they may be cheaper than newer, more faddish clothing.

An English language newspaper, The Egyptian Gazette, noted in a recent editorial why the mini may be hard to erase here—the higher cost of minis and maxis.

The Gazette expressed the hope that the rise in fashion of longer skirt lengths would hasten the demise of the mini, but conceded unhappily:

"The maxi (long) lengths cost more and perhaps in these times of austerity it is asking too much to demand maxi magic by day as well as night."
Egyptian girls who persist in wearing minis still risk raised eyebrows, abrasive comment, school expulsion and occasional physical abuse or even divorce. Dr. Zelnab Ef. Soubki, the head of Egypt's blood bank system, expressed a fairly typical Establishment view when she said the minis are so outrageous they are grounds for divorce.

Miniskirts and other exciting clothes are against our traditions," she said. "A man should divorce his wife if she insists on wearing a mini!"

Most educators stand firm against miniskirts. Wafaa Abdel Sami, 17, was expelled recently from school permanently for wearing one. Twenty other girls at the Helmy Secondary Modern School in Cairo had to pledge in writing they would "conform" and not wear minis, or else they were not allowed to attend classes.

Anonymous persons threatened to burn university buildings unless teachers insisted that girl students wear below the knee clothing. Egyptian men also prove formidable opponents for miniskirted girls by staring, hooting, jeering and making obscene remarks at mini wearers. Several girls have been roughed up in isolated incidents and many Egyptian youths flatly refuse to date girls who wear short dresses.

Unveils Computer

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Goodyear Aerospace Corp. has unveiled a computer capable of 40 million mathematical operations per second that it hopes will solve the growing threat of midair collisions. Goodyear said the computer, known as Staran, would allow air traffic controllers to reduce the amount of space needed between planes landing and taking off at congested airports.

TO BE LESS REMOTE
BATHURST INLET, N.W.T. (UPI)—A 9,000-foot airstrip is scheduled to be built this summer in this remote Arctic community, according to the Arctic Development Trust.

'Pull' Helps Russ

MOSCOW (UPI)—A little pull helps in Russia, too. And no one knows this better than the man who wants to buy an automobile.

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, cited chapter and verse in complaining about the runaround ordinary mortals who wish to buy automobiles are getting compared to those who seem to know the right people.

For instance, in the city of Vladimir, Pravda reported, the chief of the fire department at a local factory was able to jump a long list of "waiting" car buyers and get himself an Avto. The average citizen of Vladimir, said the newspaper, could wait up to 100 years for a car the way things are going.

Pravda was not, apparently, satisfied with the explanation that the lucky fireman got his automobile "in connection with the forthcoming 50th anniversary of Soviet fire services."

And it had other cases in its dossier, including that of Iza I. Borozina, a lady who bought a car through connections in the Sabinaki City Council. Then there was the case of Yuri Zhdanov, an engineer who was 40th on the waiting list for a new Moskvitch last year. He was mysteriously dropped to 148th place this year. By contrast a "citizen Shukalov" who was 97th on the waiting list last year, managed to buy a car this year "with the help of the director of Vladimir's car shop."

Lining up to wait for things is a way of life in the Soviet Union where a shopper can wait hours to buy meat, bread or just about anything else. But, Pravda implied, fair is fair.

To top it all, Pravda found there exists a public committee charged with keeping a vigilant eye on the auto waiting list. Pravda described this public unit as "a very curious commission of mysterious origin," whose members "long ago bought themselves automobiles."

"A telling thing is that the most active commission member, V. Borodin, in a short time managed to buy three automobiles and is now in line for the fourth," Pravda said.

Many Russians have enough money to buy a car, but there are not enough cars to go around. The Soviet production of personal automobiles has only reached the point where the United States was in 1914, when American car production was about 300,000.

Council Hears Program On Expanded Nutrition Plan

Alice Reed, county home extension agent, explained the Expanded Home Nutrition Program at the Twin Falls County Extension Homemakers Council meeting held at the Turf Club.

The program, Mrs. Reed noted, is given to the low-income families of the community. It first started in January, 1969, in Twin Falls. It is presently in operation in five other counties of Idaho. The aim of the program is to improve the diet and standards of low-income families.

Mrs. Rogmarie Fairchild, program aid coordinator, told of her work with the aides who go into the home and explain the program. Although diet is the main subject, other areas of homemaking are also taught to these families. Each aide works with 25 families for a period of six months. She goes into the home to demonstrate how to do cooking, cleaning, or sewing.

After this the aides meet together to attend classes. Mrs. Fairchild explained what it feels like to be on welfare, receiving only 84 percent of what is required to exist. The purpose of the program is to make people food conscious, feeding their families rather than filling them.

Mrs. Reed finished by telling how the home extension members could help. The families are in need of: children's clothing, dishes, pots and pans, curtains, sheets, furniture, fruit jars and taxi service. She added that many of the children need dental work. If any of the members can supply these items or money for dental care, they are asked to contact Mrs. Reed.

Mrs. Reed was introduced by Mrs. Garth Kirkman, family life chairman. Mrs. Beth Lierman, the cultural arts chairman, then told about the book reports they were having at her local club meetings. She encouraged the other clubs to do the same thing or have reports on current movies or tour the local museums.

Mrs. Harry Sharp was given special thanks for her work on the table favors for the District Convention and all who had worked on the project.

A reminder to all clubs was given that the Sharp Award envelopes are due in December.

A general discussion followed concerning the tote bags that the members are to furnish at the State Homemakers Convention at Burley, Sept. 28-30. Mrs. Donn will be chairman for this project. Three hundred tote bags are needed and several kinds were shown that had been given at other conventions and meetings.

All club chairmen were urged to attend the state seminar for which they are chairmen in their local club. The publicity chairmen were especially urged to attend the publicity seminar.

Mrs. Robert Norris, state health chairman for the Idaho Extension Homemakers, asked for help to distribute the Roblox Vaccine in September. The March of Dimes, Idaho State Department of Health, and the Idaho Extension Homemakers Council are working on the state-wide project.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for printing those letters from women whose biggest problem in life was a husband who came to the table bare-chested. One sweet young thing dumped a bowl of molasses on her husband's bare chest to "teach him a lesson." She's lucky he didn't dump his flat on her offended little eye.

After three children I still find my husband's bare chest gorgeous—anywhere! I thought a woman married a man—not a stuffed shirt. What warped values dictate that prudish protocol comes before your man's comfort in his own home? The home he provided for YOUR comfort?

DALI'S WIFE

DEAR ABBY: I would like to get a look at that lady who was uptight because her husband came to the table without a shirt on. I don't say a woman has to have a fresh paint job and fancy hairdo when she sits down for dinner, but some women come to the table with their hair hanging in strings and not a drop of make-up on. I'd sooner look at a hairy chest.

HAIRY AND BARREL CHESTED

DEAR ABBY: Here?

DEAR ABBY: The wife and I had a good laugh over the letters about whether or not a man has the right to come to his own dinner-table bare-chested.

Our kids are all grown and gone now, and the wife is at that age where she gets a hot flash now and then, so more than once I'll be sitting at the dinner table while SHE takes her blouse and bra off. I never complain, nor do I find HER bare chest repulsive. NO SWEAT IN HOUSTON

DEAR ABBY: Having finished the episode concerning MR. BARE CHEST at the dinner table, and his offended wife, I WAS suspicious of the rather abrupt ending. I not only expected that "BARE CHEST" never came to the table without a shirt on again, but that he never returned at all. And who could blame him? Poor devil. There happen to be quite a number of women around who would appreciate a man at their table with or without shirt.

As for the trauma-ridden wives who find a bare chest "repulsive," they belong to the cult of poor dears who, after 20 years of marriage, are still dressing and undressing in the closet.

My attitude toward the issue is identical to your own comment frequently following your column, Abby. That is, "You'll feel better if you get it off your chest."

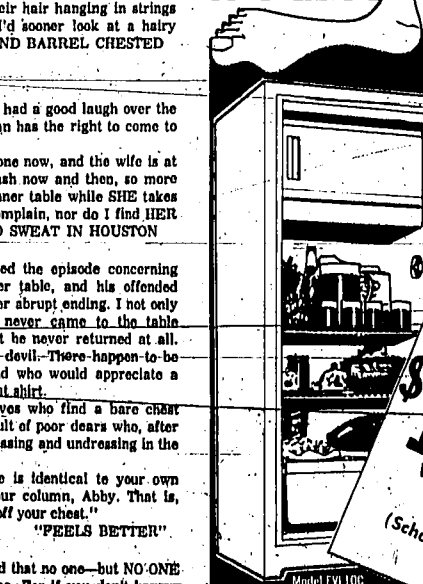

"PEELS BETTER"

DEAR ABBY: I am convinced that no one—but NO ONE—can possibly live without problems. For if you don't have a problem, you will MAKE one.

I refer to the big deal some women make out of a bare chest at the dinner-table.

If a man is clean and feels more comfortable without a shirt, there is no reason why he should be asked to wear one in the privacy of his own home.

ONE OF THE LATEST aircraft models, displayed at a private showing by Mr. and Mrs. Phil Payne, owners of Skyways, Inc., at the Burley airport, is this Cherokee 140 C, a basic trainer.

Several other models were displayed and Mr. Payne pointed out advantages of the various models, listing their speed and passenger and baggage facilities.

BURLEY — Five of the latest models in aircraft were displayed at a special showing at Skyways, Inc., at the Burley airport last weekend.

The special showing was by special invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Payne, owners and managers of Skyways, Inc. One model, the Cherokee Arrow, 200, has automatic gear drop and cruises at a speed of up to 170 miles per hour. The Cherokee 235 is ideal for getting off the ground in short distances, Mr. Payne noted, and will travel at 235 miles per hour. It has a fixed landing gear.

Another model, the Cherokee 6 Model C, is adaptable for taking all the family or friends for an air ride. Mr. Payne said it travels up to 300 miles per hour and can carry up to 1,750 pounds of weight. A special feature of this aircraft is the nose baggage compartment and four large suitcases plus an overnight case will fit into the space.

The Cherokee 180 E model has a fixed landing gear and will carry 1,100 pounds of weight, including the passengers' weight. The basic trainer the Cherokee 140 C has 150 horsepower motor and will travel at 125 miles per hour and is a four-passenger plane.

TF. Council Okays Taxi Insurance

A new ordinance requiring Twin Falls taxi-cab service to carry liability insurance at a minimum of $10,000 property damage, $25,000 for injury to one person and $50,000 for injury to more than one person, was passed by the city council Monday evening.

An agreement for a traffic signal at the corner of Second Ave. and Addison Ave. was made between the city and the Highway Department, with the city paying a cost share of $79115 and agreeing to sole maintenance of the light.

Planters that are located in the downtown area will be relocated at the request of the owners. These planters will be used to decorate the two Second Aves. off street parking areas, and lack street store entrances, according to City Manager Jean Miller.

Mr. Miller requested that the council allow him to open bids for the sanitation contract that will be opening at the end of September. He suggested that the opening of bids on July 18 will eliminate any gap in service caused by the ending of the old contract and the beginning of the new one. The council agreed.

Mr. Miller informed councilmen that an increase of 130 parking stalls in the downtown area will be made after the improvement plan has been completed.

In other business, the council tentatively approved Leon Wright's request for the use of Jaceco Ball Park on July 17, and referred the question of a speed limit change on Main Avenue to the City Highway Traffic and Safety Commission.

Historic Ore Wagons To Stay In Ketchum, Owner Decides

KETCHUM — Ketchum's ore wagons, long in use during past wagon day celebrations here, appeared to be out of danger of being taken from the city Tuesday, although they will not be used this year.

The wagons presently are stored as there will be no Wagon Day celebrations in Ketchum this summer. City councilmen believe if the wagons were not used they would be taken elsewhere.

Seattle, the council learned that under the terms of the deed of trust between Mr. Lewis and the city, Ketchum is only required to maintain and protect the wagons, using them when possible.

In a telephone conversation with Mayor Kenneth Richey, Mr. Lewis said that he had received indications from the Twin Falls Historical Society that the group would like to have the wagons for display and that Ketchum had no plans for the

Magic Valley Food Service Unit Opens State Meet

BURLEY — Some 400 persons connected with the school hot lunch program are attending the 12th annual convention of the Idaho School Food Service Association which opened today at the Ponderosa Inn.

Theme for the three-day conclave is "School Lunch With a Punch." Most of the persons attending are women, but there are some men also. Several rooms have been taken over with displays and demonstrations of various phases of the hot lunch program. The general assembly opened after lunch today, with registration and an executive board meeting this morning. A banquet is slated for 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Wednesday's general session will include workshops for both officers and members. Food displays will be set up and work sessions also are scheduled on such topics as nutrition, buying guide, sanitation, and public relations.

A panel discussion will follow the workshops. Participants include Esther King, western regional director; Mrs. Edith Dille, Burley, school lunch director; and Gene Snapp, Rupert, Lincoln-Memorial school.

Dr. John Perryman, Denver, will speak Wednesday night and Thursday's schedule includes a breakfast and installation of officers. Workshops are slated again Thursday so all delegates can attend each of them.

Pipe Laid At Elmore State Park

GLENN'S FERRY — The rapidly-progressing Three Island State Park is installing 35,000 feet of irrigation, sprinkler, and domestic water pipe in a maze of ditches and trenches.

Manager Jerry Hoyer and his family will move their trailer home to the park soon, to permanent sites, in hopes this will reduce if not eliminate the vandalism that's been plaguing the new installation, scheduled for opening in less than two months now.

Not only will this be the first state park for the Glenns Ferry area, famous for its Oregon Trail crossing by ford of the Snake River, but the Hoyers are planning a first themselves. A new Hoyer is expected by mid-August.

Classes At Richfield Hold Fete

RICHFIELD — Alan (Happy) Erwin was master of ceremonies for the Richfield High School graduating classes of 1928, '29, '30, and '31 when they held a joint reunion at the Manhattan-Cafe in Shoshone. The event was part of Richfield's Outlaw Day celebration.

Mrs. Ivan (Zella Coffman) Pace acted as secretary and was presented an appreciation gift for making reunion arrangements.

Maurice Connor, San Diego, was awarded a prize for traveling the farthest to the reunion; Harry Pridmore, Patterson, Calif., Mrs. Don (Veda) Newby, Johnson, Shoshone; Clarence Lemmon, Richfield; and Joe Brennan, Pocatello, other prizes.

Other class members attended from Seattle, Othello, Wash., Thousand Oaks, Calif., Boise, Bliss, Twin Falls, Gooding, Jerome, and Richfield. Those still living in Richfield include Mrs. Lyle Deeds, Mrs. James R. Brown, Forrest Armstrong, Mrs. Theo (Donna Flavel) Ollieu, and Clarence Lemmon.

Reunion Set

HANSEN — A class reunion for Hansen graduating classes from 1948 through 1954 is being planned for June 28. A 2 p.m. potluck picnic will be held in the Kimberly Park.

Anyone interested in attending to visit with friends are invited to do so, and for any further information Mrs. Kenneth Daw, phone 423-5422, or Mrs. Erice Standee, 423-4068, may be contacted.

Bankers Are Warned Over U.S. Decadence

SUN VALLEY — "Very few great civilizations have commenced the third century of living, and 19 of the 21 great civilizations that have collapsed, fell because of decadence from within." Carl Terzian, warned here Monday.

Mr. Terzian, addressing some 465 bankers and their wives during the opening business session of the 63rd annual convention of the Idaho Bankers Association, is consultant with Carl Terzian and Associates, Los Angeles. He said "the silent majority has been afraid they might be folded, spindled or mutilated long enough", and added that "the banking industry needs an image change, it needs to give something back to the communities it served."

"At this rate, America has little time left. Bankers must develop local programs to get banking people out in the field, to closer associate with the people served. For the first time in America, more people are making their living providing a service rather than producing goods."

In other business Monday, Dix Godney, manager of finance, International Business Machines Corp., Princeton, N. J. discussed the computer in banking in the second decade. He forecast that trends during the 1970s tend to be toward larger and fewer computers, a growth in the tele-processing network, and increased involvement in bank executive management in data processing.

He predicted innovations forthcoming include larger, more sophisticated computers, a central information system, on-line accounting files, and electronic storage of data with the ability to retrieve information in a convenient manner.

Problems anticipated include those of personnel, with the emphasis to be placed on youthful employees; education to operate the computers, planning for the installation of computers and communication.

Prior to Monday's address, the annual American Bankers Association meeting was held during which three Idaho men were elected to serve the ABA. Robert Montgomery, executive vice president, Idaho Bank and Trust, Pocatello, will serve as executive councilman for Idaho to the ABA; and Fred Humphreys, Idaho First National Bank, Boise, president of the Idaho association, will serve as voting delegate to the ABA convention in Florida this fall. Alternate delegate will be Willard Reese, Twin Falls Bank and Trust.

Speaking to Tuesday's business meeting was the first woman to head the American Institute of Bankers, Mrs. Anna Foster. Dr. Roy Moor also spoke during the concluding session. The convention closed this afternoon with election of new state officers.

Ketchum Plans Local Improvement District

KETCHUM — Preliminary plans for Local Improvement District 1-A to be established within the Ketchum city limits were presented to the city council Monday night by Steve Bolter, city attorney.

He presented the computed assessment rolls as prepared by city engineer William Briggs, Boise, and said a notice will be mailed to property owners soon.

A public hearing on the rolls will be held in July after which the LID will be established to repay cost of sewer line installations presently under way in the city.

Average estimated assessment is $5.50 linear foot of property with the computation based on the shortest side of the lot. After establishment of the LID, property owners will have 60 days to pay the amount in full or will be billed over a 10-year period at an estimated seven per cent interest.

Santa Clara Hoop Coach Might Quit

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (UPI)—Dick Garibaldi who has coached Santa Clara basketball teams to three straight conference titles, contemplated resigning Monday.

Santa Clara athletic director Pat Malley said Garibaldi is considering a lucrative job offer from the Converse Shoe Company.

"There's no way of telling at this time whether Dick will accept the offer or not," Malley said. "He's considering it, and he might have his mind made up by Tuesday."

Garibaldi could not disclose who would succeed Garibaldi if the resignation went through.

"I can't say now who I have in mind," Malley said, "but if Dick resigned I'd be able to pick a successor immediately."

Other sources indicated Carroll Williams, assistant varsity coach and head freshman coach for seven years, would be Malley's choice.

Garibaldi has been head coach of the Broncos for eight years, during which time he twice was named coach of the year in the West Coast Athletic Conference. His clubs have topped the WCAC in each of the past three seasons.

Garibaldi is a Santa Clara graduate.

Streaking Englehorn Tops Whitworth For LPGA Tourney Crown

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI)—Shirley Englehorn won the biggest match in her 11-year pro career Monday when she defeated fellow veteran Kathy Whitworth for the Ladies Professional Golf Association championship.

Miss Englehorn, who was tying a four record by winning her fourth straight tournament, triumphed by four strokes in an 18-hole playoff after the pair had deadlocked in 72 holes of regulation play.

Shirley, playing out of Palm Desert, Calif., shot a one over par 74 before a small gathering at wind-whipped Pleasant Valley Country Club. Miss Whitworth shot 78, five over par.

The match was actually settled on the 330-yard, par four 12th hole when Miss Whitworth's tee shot went into the trees on the left. Her recovery attempt bounced off a tree and out of bounds onto a roadway.

Kathy sank a 30-foot putt on the hole for a double bogey, but lost two strokes as Shirley went through in par.

Englehorn just over $13,000 in a little under a month.

Shirley's four-stroke margin all stemmed from bogeys. Her first stroke lead came on the ninth hole when Kathy missed a three and one half foot putt.

In addition to her two stroke pickup on the 12th, she added another as Miss Whitworth bogeyed the 18th when her approach shot went over the green and onto the far fringe.

NCAA Wins

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Favorites Haroon Rahim of UCLA and Pat Cramer of Miami (Fla.) swept to easy victories Monday in the NCAA tennis championships.

Rahim's quickness and overpowering serves carried him to a 6-1, 6-4 win over Mackey Dominguez of Southern Illinois in a second round match.

Cramer, seeded No. 2 behind Rahim, eliminated Mike Gillfillen of California 6-2, 6-2, in the tournament being held here at the University of Utah. Both drew first round byes.

The No. 3 and No. 4 seeds—Erik Van Dillen of Southern California and Roscoe Tanner of Stanford—also registered straight set victories in their opening matches. Van Dillen dropped Jim Ward of Tennessee, 6-1, 6-4, and Tanner beat Ronnie Flores of Houston, 6-4, 6-4.

AFL Boston Still Looks

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI)—The Boston Patriots are still officially homeless, but some trees were knocked down Monday in preparation for final federal approval which will allow construction of a new sports stadium.

The voters of this town 25 miles from Boston have approved construction of a 50,000 seat stadium to permanently house the Patriots, who have used Boston University Field, Fenway Park and Boston College's Alumni Stadium in their 10-year history.

The stadium builders, Stadium Realty Trust, have applied to the Securities and Exchange Commission to sell stock to finance the construction of the facility, but have not yet received approval.

The Patriots have applied to Harvard University to use its stadium in the coming season on a one-year lease for seven home games. Harvard has not replied, but is expected to approve the lease once official word is given that the football team will have its own stadium in 1971, when the proposed stadium would be ready.

The Patriots will keep the name "Patriots" at least another year. A concession organization has readied helmets, blankets, shirts, etc., with the name "Boston Patriots" and its contract won't run out until the end of the coming season.

After that, it's anybody's guess what the Patriots will be called, but most observers predict the words "New England" will be in there somewhere.

Texas Sweeps To Favorite Role In NCAA Baseball

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—Texas moved into the favored position in the College World Series Monday night by defeating the Florida State Seminoles, 9-1, leaving the Longhorns the only unbeaten team among the four still in contention for the title.

Earlier in the day, Ohio University knocked the Iowa State Cyclones out of the double-elimination tournament, 9-6, and Southern California sent Dartmouth home by deciding the Indians, 6-1.

Ohio U.'s fourth-ranked Bobcats meets third-rated Florida State Tuesday night, with the loser out of the playoffs.

Texas, ranked second in the nation, will play Southern Cal. Burt Hooton, ace of the Texas staff, hurled the victory over Florida State. It was his twelfth win in 13 games. Hooton pitched about half for the first seven innings, striking out 12 and walking none.

The Longhorns got their first run in the top of the fifth, when starting Seminole pitcher Mike Slado walked Lou Bagwell with the bases full. They got three more in the sixth when they banged out four singles and were helped by one Seminole error, and notched a single tally in the seventh.

Florida State's only run came in the eighth on a two-base error, followed by a single by Ron Cash. The loss went to Elaine and brought his record to 7-2.

The South Cal trojans received a lot of help from the Dartmouth pitching staff in registering their win. They scored four times in the top of the fifth on three walks, a loop single to center, two wild pitches and a passed ball. That gave the Californians a 5-1 lead.

18-Year-Old Fires Pirates To 5-2 Win Over Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Jim Nelson, an 18-year-old right-hander making his first major league start, pitched the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-2 victory Monday night over the Los Angeles Dodgers with the relief help of Dave Giusti.

It was only Nelson's third big league appearance but the Sacramento, Calif., youngster displayed poise as he limited the Dodgers to five hits in the seven innings he officially worked.

The Pirates ran up a four-run lead in the first two innings off Dodger starter and loser Joe Moeller, whose record evened at 2-2.

In the first inning, Matty Alou led off with a double and scored after two successive groundouts.

Moeller led the bases in the second with none out on singles to BOB Robertson and Bill Mazeroski and a walk to Jerry May. Robertson scored on Fred Lutek's sacrifice fly, Mazeroski came home on Nelson's infield hit and Rich Hobner singled in May.

The Pirates made it 5-0 on Willie Stargell's lead off homer in the eighth, his 14th of the season—it came off reliever Pete Mikkelsen.

How to get the most from your life insurance

It's a three step suggestion and, as it should, it starts with you. When you purchased life insurance, you no doubt had in mind definite jobs for it to do for your family if you die; for you if you live. But time brings many changes... and it makes good sense for you to review your objectives and to check whether your life insurance currently meets them.

There are two other people who can help. The first is your wife. Your life insurance is designed for her and the family and it's wise to have her know your plans. The more she understands your objectives, the more she will be able to help you keep them up-to-date, and the better she'll be able to use this priceless protection that is being paid for through her careful budgeting.

The second is the Man from Manufacturers. Through him, the flexibility of your policies will come to life. His experienced, practical recommendations add up to an invaluable source of service for you now and for your family later.

Atlanta Braves Ask Waivers On Reliever Kline

ATLANTA (UPI)—The Atlanta Braves Monday asked waivers on 16-year veteran Ron Kline for the purpose of giving the 38-year-old pitcher his unconditional release.

Kline appeared in only five games for the Braves this year, pitching only 7 1/3 innings. He allowed nine hits, four of them homers, and had a 7.50 earned run average with an 0-0 win-loss record.

The deletion of Kline will leave the Braves with only 23 players on their roster—two below the limit. However, pitcher Ron Reed reportedly will rejoin the team this weekend after being out since March with a shoulder injury and the Braves are expected to call up a pitcher from their AAA Richmond (Va.) farm club.

White Sox Make Trade For hurlers

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago White Sox traded outfielder Buddy Bradford to the Cleveland Indians for pitchers Bob Miller and Barry Moore Monday night, beating the midnight deadline for major league trades.

Bradford, 25, was batting .185 for 38 games. Sisk had a 1-1 record in 17 appearances this season.

Moore, 27, had a 3-3 record as a starter for Cleveland this season. Last year he was 9-5 for the Washington Senators.

Miller, 31, had a 2-2 record as a reliever pitcher. He was 1-0 in 4 games for the Minnesota Twins last year, winning 5 and losing 5.

spade. Back came the nine of hearts. Dummy's king took West's queen, a diamond was led and the queen finessed successfully.

At this point all that was necessary was a little care. If South became careless and played his ace of diamonds East's king would fall and West would have an entry for his spades but South wasn't going to let this game get away from him. He led a club to dummy's ace, played the second diamond from dummy, let East's king hold the trick and wound up with one spade, two hearts, four diamonds and two clubs. His contract and a feeling of satisfaction.

"See," glanted North. "Yes," said South. "All I needed was to find East with just three spades, the ace of hearts and the king of diamonds. Also diamonds had to break 3-2 and West had to hold the heart queen."

OUT OUR WAY

THAT CONVIVIAL BEER-DRINKER who habitually goes to taverns is known to spend an average of 19 hours a week therein... WHAT'S THE OLDEST profession? Wait, I refer to the oldest among men, it's gardening, Adam's job. See Genesis 2:15... HERE IS A MEDICAL FELLOW who seriously contends that men who can wiggle their ears rarely get bald.

LOVE AND WAR.—I'm asked if those Arab sheiks who have numerous wives, tend to favor some and ignore the others. No doubt. However, our Love and War man says Moslem law requires the sheiks to divide their attentions equally among their true wives. Unfortunately, it does not require them to play fair in this manner with the harem concubines. An uninspiring concubine can toll around for months without even so much as a "Hello, honey."

OPEN QUESTION — Does anybody still carry a chestnut in the pocket as a charm against rheumatism?

MANY A DOCTOR labels his car with a distinguishing plate to identify it as a physician's. Now, I am sure that's dangerous. Too many doctors so singled out have been knocked over of late by drug addicts... A MAN REPEATEDLY nagged by his spouse we refer to as henpecked. Odd, isn't it? There's no such thing as a henpecked rooster. No, sir, any hen that pecked a rooster would get her beak knocked off.

CUSTOMER SERVICE — What do most Negroes prefer to be called now? I mean colored or black or what? A "Afro-American" is the No. 1 choice; it's said—No. 2, black; No. 3, Negro. No. 4, African-American. No. 5, colored. Or so the magazine "Jet" recently reported after a survey on the matter.

WINE AND NOSES — Red wine is tasty, all right. Doesn't agree with me, however. Never has. Vertigo-like. With a touch of funny fever. Now a team of medical researchers in Paris, France, explain why. It's not just the alcohol. Red wines contain histamines, they say, to which numerous citizens are allergic. White wines and champagnes do, too, but nowhere near as much. Maybe there's something to that. Cold capsules likewise make a lot of people with stuffed up noses too sick to care.

TOOTHACHES — Entirely too little sympathy is given to elephants. Refer to the fact an elephant can get a toothache in its tusk. And an exceedingly painful toothache, too. The cavity, when such occurs, shows up only at the tusk's base where the nerves are. Think of that! Gum-line cavities the size of coffee cups.

Apollo 13 Negligence

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—A space agency board said Monday negligence from the launch pad through the entire Apollo program and poor design caused an oxygen tank explosion near the moon and forced Apollo 13's astronauts to fight for their lives to get home.

The April 13 blast 205,000 miles deep in space prevented America's third moon landing. Astronauts James A. Lovell, Fred W. Haise and John L. Swigert had to battle 87 hours on their harrowing trip around the moon and back to earth.

"The Apollo 13 accident... is a harsh reminder of the immense difficulty of this (lunar flight) undertaking," said Edgar M. Cortright, chairman of the board that investigated the aborted mission.

In its final report, the board said the explosion was caused by a fire that started with an electrical short circuit inside the oxygen tank, burned through the tank top and probably spread to materials outside the tank in equipment bay No. 4 on the Apollo 13 command ship.

The board said more than twice the rated voltage was applied to a pair of thumb-nail-sized thermostat switches in the tank after a practice countdown at Cape Kennedy.

This welded the switches shut before blastoff and damaged wiring insulation in the tank. Cortright and his investigators concluded the fire itself started 55 hours, 53 minutes after launch when wires leading to a fan motor short circuited and sparked, causing the tank to explode slightly more than one minute later.

The board recommended the manned spacecraft center reassess all Apollo spacecraft and systems and the work of "its prime contractors" to insure adequate understanding and control of the engineering and manufacturing details of subsystems at the subcontractor and vendor level.

The board said the switch failure occurred while technicians at Cape Kennedy were using emergency methods to drain the tank after normal steps failed. The board said the technicians did not notice instrument readings indicating the failure which later pushed temperatures inside the tank to 1,000 degrees Fahrenheit and damaged wiring even before the launch.

The board also cited a failure after the Apollo 1 fire, which killed three astronauts in 1967, to "recognize deficiencies of the tank," the failure of tankmaker

Bechtel Aircraft Corp. of Boulder, Colo., to require the upgrading of the safe voltage level in the switches and the failure to test the switch under increased specifications.

In addition, the board called "questionable" the use of two aluminum-cased fan motors flammable in the presence of high pressure, liquid oxygen, and criticized the lack of communication among the interested groups during countdown. The board said personnel at Cape Kennedy, Houston and North American Rockwell Corp., prime contractor for the command ship, were unaware the switches would weld shut if subjected to 65 volts of electricity at an open position.

The investigators also noted many steps and instances of carelessness in manufacture, and shipment that might have damaged the tanks. They recommended extensive modifications, including removing all wiring from the oxygen atmosphere or "other wires (insuring) against a catastrophic electrically induced fire in the tank," lessening the use of teflon insulation flammable in pure oxygen and an extensive study of the entire modified oxygen system.

Executions To Follow A Communist Takeover

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Captured "blacklists" indicate a blood bath of at least 100,000 executions would follow Communist takeover in South Vietnam, the Pentagon has been told by a research group.

The Rand Corp. at Santa Monica, Calif., gathered the information for the Defense Department's Advanced Research Projects Agency and the 241-page report was written by Steven T. Hosmer. Rand is one of the oldest study groups receiving military support.

"The role of the blacklist in the Communist scheme of operations is clear," the report says.

"A long-range purpose of the list is to provide a master roster so that, once the Viet Cong gain control of an area, they can systematically seek out and deal with individual targets," it said.

"The number of executions alone (not counting assassinations) could well total many tens of thousands," Hosmer said.

"One can only guess at what the minimum would be, but this author finds it difficult to believe that the number would be much less than 100,000."

About a month ago, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said the United States already was involved in a blood bath in Vietnam. He charged the administration's references to a blood bath that might occur if the United States were to pull out were designed to draw attention away from the blood bath that already is going on.

Kennedy said several hundred thousand civilians already have been killed in the Vietnam War. The figure would go much higher, Hosmer believes, if the Communists decided on a "radical and rapid transformation of society (including collectivization)."

Hosmer said the present conflict in South Vietnam "has engendered far more violent antagonisms than the Viet Minh's earlier struggle against the French."

Captured documents and the estimates of the South Vietnamese government analysts indicate the Communists are carrying out as many as 5,000 executions a year, he said.

Hosmer also saw a danger of widespread assassinations. Since 1967, he said, the Viet Cong have had three-member "hit squads" composed of teen-agers, desperate and likely to get out of hand.

Skirmish Ends With One Dead

SEOUL (UPI)—A North Korean infiltrator was killed in a gun battle Monday with South Korean troops but two companions escaped, the government said today.

The clash occurred 23 miles north of Seoul, well below the western sector of the Korean truce front, the command said. The fight lasted one hour and 30 minutes. The command said troops were looking for the two survivors.

It said an AK47 machine gun, 150 rounds of ammunition and other weapons and equipment were recovered on the scene.

The clash was the fourth along the Korean truce front in three days.

War Investigation Of Onassis Told In Story

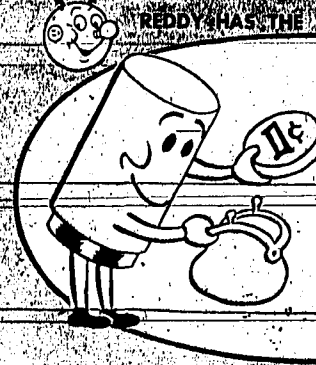

NEW YORK (UPI)—Aristotle Onassis was placed under FBI surveillance during World War II at the order of J. Edgar Hoover as a result of an informant's report that the Greek shipping tycoon was anti-American, it was reported today.

In a condensation in Look magazine of Doris Lilly's book, "Those Fabulous Greeks," the informant was identified as a resident of Buenos Aires, where Onassis lived in 1942, the year he allegedly came to the attention of Hoover. The report resulted in a letter from Hoover to Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, then head of the War

Shipping Administration, the article said. In the letter, Hoover said Onassis reportedly had "expressed sentiments inimical to the United States war effort, and that his activities and movements while in the United States should be carefully scrutinized."
