

Nation Is Asked To 'Give Up'

By MIKE FEINSILBER WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., asked the Senate and the nation today to acknowledge the Vietnam War is unwinnable, Vietnamization is unworkable and a Communist regime in all of Vietnam is inevitable—and even in America's national interest.

Pell, in an unusually blunt speech prepared for Senate delivery today, said "I submit that our national interest would best be served by a unified Vietnam even if under Communist rule, as it would then serve as a relatively firm barrier to Chinese expansion."

Pell's speech came as the Senate prepared to wind up the sometimes acid seven-week foreign policy debate triggered by President Nixon's dispatch of U.S. troops into Cambodia.

The Senate scheduled consideration of two measures: an "end the war" amendment originally offered by Sens. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., and Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., and a proposal by Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., to water down the Cambodian amendment of Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Idaho.

U.S. Troops Come Out Of Cambodia Ahead Of Deadline

SAIGON (UPI)—The United States today completed withdrawal of U.S. troops from Cambodia a full day ahead of President Nixon's June 30 deadline, military sources reported. At the same time, the United States and South Vietnam began a massive airlift of arms to Phnom Penh.

Informed sources in Phnom Penh said eight American C130s and three South Vietnamese C119 cargo planes arrived at Phnom Penh today with arms and ammunition for the hard-pressed Cambodian army that is still being aided by South Vietnamese troops and U.S. warplanes.

The military sources said nearly 1,700 American troops stogged on foot through monsoon mud to cross into South Vietnam from Cambodia's Fishhook sector northwest of Saigon. They said 300 American advisers were still in Cambodia with the 39,000 South Vietnamese still there but would return Tuesday.

In Phnom Penh, Cambodian Premier Lon Nol said the Communist threat to the Cambodian capital had diminished, but he appealed again for continued U.S. air support.

As the last Americans were leaving Cambodia the South Vietnamese opened a new offensive. Military sources said a 50,000-man armored column was driving inland across northeastern Cambodia toward the new Communist supply route down the Mekong River valley. The sources said the offensive was moving along Route 19 toward Stung Treng, 160 miles northeast of Phnom Penh. Stung Treng has been in North

Premier Asks For More Air Support

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Cambodian Premier Lon Nol said today the Communist threat to Phnom Penh had diminished but he appealed for continued U.S. air support in his country. North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces again attacked an outpost 20 miles from the capital.

Nol, in his first news conference in three months, said the Communist threat to Phnom Penh had lessened. He said there was evidence the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese had been trying to seize Phnom Penh since last month but "it has diminished now."

"I certainly hope the Americans would return to Cambodia if the situation deteriorates," Nol said. He said he had indications from Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird Cambodia could count on continued American air support.

A military spokesman said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops Sunday night attacked the munitions depot at Long Vek, 20 miles northwest of Phnom Penh. Cambodian defenders supported by South Vietnamese helicopter gunships drove off the attack, the spokesman said. Fighting has flared around Long Vek since Thursday.

Viet Cong troops fired mortar rounds into government positions around Siem Reap near the 9th century ruins of Angkor Wat, 150 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, the spokesman said.

Five Cambodians were killed and 10 wounded Saturday in fighting at Kompong Thom, 20 miles southeast of Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of the capital.

Vietnamese hands for six weeks and is on the new supply route running down through Laos. Highway 19 links Pleiku in South Vietnam's Central Highlands with Stung Treng on the Mekong.

Pat Nixon Arrives In Peru

LIMA, Peru (UPI)—Mrs. Richard M. Nixon arrived Sunday evening to personally survey the destruction caused by the worst earthquake of the Western Hemisphere.

She was welcomed at the airport with a kiss and an embrace from Consuelo Velasco, wife of Peruvian President Juan Velasco Alvarado. She was thanked by Mrs. Velasco for coming personally "to give us the warmth and affection that today we need."

"I bring you greetings and the affection of the people of the United States who are saddened by the disaster here and the loss of life," Mrs. Nixon said. Today Mrs. Nixon was to attend a Roman Catholic Mass in the Central Cathedral before boarding a C130 U.S. Air Force cargo plane to fly over the area of the Andes hardest hit by the earthquake that killed more than 80,000 persons.

Mrs. Nixon brought with her two plane loads of relief supplies for thousands of the earthquake survivors left homeless. She said the supplies and cash she carried, including a check from her husband, were only the beginning of American aid Peruvians can expect.

43 Fires Raging In Southwest

SILVER CITY, N.M. (UPI)—Fatigued firefighters spread thin over 1,000 charras acres, battled early today to confine 43 fires raging in New Mexico and Arizona national forests.

Officials estimated 1,700 acres of grass and timberland were destroyed by fire caused by lightning and careless weekend campers. Some 135 fires were contained Sunday, but fire lines still were manned today against danger of high winds and possible new outbreaks.

Festival Crowd Is In Riot

IOLA, Wis. (UPI)—Three youths were wounded and several rapes and robberies were reported Sunday as a rock festival which began with a happy crowd of 60,000 persons ended after confrontations between rock fans and motorcycle gang members. Twenty-six persons were arrested.

Authorities said motorcycle gang members came from Milwaukee or Chicago and had apparently been harassing spectators through the night.

When rock fans retaliated by burning motorcycles, a fight erupted and three men were shot. Two were listed in good condition and one was in satisfactory condition in area hospitals.

Large Sunday night several thousand persons were milling around the grounds, but musicians and motorcycleists had departed.

District Attorney Robert Balthic said charges would be filed in connection with the shootings Monday.

"A few guns, knives and chains have been confiscated and there will be warrants charging carrying of concealed weapons, but most serious charges involving the shooting themselves can't be made until the police have finished their search."

British Troops Try To Keep Peace In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Shotgun blasts by snipers wounded two British soldiers today. Prime Minister Edward Heath ordered 3,000 more troops into Northern Ireland to enforce peace between battling Protestants and Roman Catholics.

The soldiers were wounded in Belfast, where weekend fighting killed five persons and wounded 221 others, police said. The 3,000 reinforcements—arriving today and Tuesday—joined 8,000 Tommies already patrolling the streets of Northern Ireland.

Rioting erupted when Bernadette Devlin, 23, member of parliament and civil rights leader of the Catholic minority in Northern Ireland, was sent to prison Friday for six months for her part in rioting last year. The new trouble in Belfast was brief and less serious than Friday and Saturday night rioting which police said caused five deaths and 221 injuries.

In Londonderry, police clashed with demonstrators and at one point a mob threw gasoline bombs on the roof of the post office. Postal workers threw the bombs back. Some police officials speculated the death toll was higher. They said illegal organizations try to remove their dead and bury them privately.

Bad weather hit the city of 400,000 persons—one-third of whom are Roman Catholics—shortly after new violence erupted early today. Two British soldiers were struck by shotgun blasts but not seriously wounded and an engineering works was hit by an explosion followed by a fire that took more than two hours to control.

Premier James Callaghan-Clark announced a series of new moves aimed at halting the trouble. He included closed pubs at 8 p.m., two hours early; clamped at 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew on civilian traffic in riot areas; and a call-up of the Ulster defense regiment.

In addition, the Ulster government announced emergency legislation to provide mandatory jail sentences for rioters and looters.

Tricia Is Giving Dad Real Run

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—President Nixon will be hard-pressed to match the ratings popularity of his daughter Tricia when he appears in a one-hour, three-network television conversation Wednesday night.

The attractive Miss Nixon gave a terrific ratings boost to CBS-TV's news series "60 Minutes" when she offered a partial tour of the White House in a segment of that program on May 26.

The series zoomed to third place among all shows in the national rankings. Only the Emmy Awards telecast and an episode of the medical tale "Marcus Welby, M.D." finished ahead of "60 Minutes" in the ratings for the two-week period from May 25 to June 7.

Wednesday's three-network endeavor with the Chief Executive, entitled "A Conversation with the President," will be seen live and in color at 10 p.m. EDT on ABC-TV, CBS-TV and NBC-TV.

Nixon's informal, prime-time discussion with the newsmen will be the fourth such presidential conversation that television has presented.

Charge

PANMUNJOM, Korea. (UPI)—The United Nations Command (UNC) officially charged North Korea today with plotting to assassinate South Korean leaders on the 20th anniversary of the start of the Korean War.

The charge came when the UNC brought up the attempt last Monday by a three-man North Korean infiltration team to blow up the Memorial Gate in the South Korean National Cemetery in Southern Seoul.

U.S. Army Maj. Gen. James H. Skeidon, senior UNC delegate to the commission, said if the North Korean attempt to kill South Korean leaders had been successful, peace in Korea would have been endangered.

Abortion Law Termed Tragic

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cardinal Terence Cooke says New York State's liberalized abortion law that goes into effect Wednesday will begin a "tragic chapter" in the state's history. He urged all Roman Catholics to reject it.

Speaking Sunday for the Roman Catholic bishops of New York, Cooke said, "We call upon all people of goodwill to join with us in a campaign to reverse the life-destroying trends in society which abortion and euthanasia represent."

Jury

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—A special Federal Grand Jury today begins investigating the shooting deaths of two young blacks last month at Jackson State College.

Fifty prospective jurors were under orders to report to U.S. District Court Judge Harold Cox for selection of the special 24-member Federal Grand Jury. The veniremen were chosen from the 13-county Jackson Division of the court's Southern District.

The special grand jury was ordered after Assistant Attorney General Jerris Leonard accused Mississippi officials of failing to cooperate in the government probe of the incident. Leonard charged state officials would not permit high-way patrolmen to undergo FBI interrogation and refused to turn over the weapons used in the shooting.

Another Man Found In Salmon

SALMON, Idaho (UPI)—Daring and skilled boatmen made a five-hour trip through darkness and rain to recover the body of a Detroit youth, missing in the Salmon River since last Sunday.

The body of 19-year-old David H. Gluer, son of Herman Gluer, Detroit, Mich., was reached by jet-boat in wilderness river country some 75 miles south of Salmon and seven miles from the point where the boat entered the water.

Lemhi County Sheriff William N. Baker and professional boatmen Don Smith and Everett Spaulding rode the muddy river in Smith's boat. Leaving about 6 p.m. Sunday evening, they threaded dangerous rapids, swollen by recent heavy rains, and were back on shore with the body about 11 p.m.

Gluer was lost last Sunday around 3 p.m., when the fragile folding canvas boat he was in overturned in the boiling rapids, plunging him into the river. He and his father were boating down the Salmon and were making the last run of the day. The father escaped injury.

Another body was recovered by the same group earlier in the day, but has not yet been identified. Sheriff Baker said the body was in the water for at least one month to six weeks.

Sheriff Baker also noted the unusually high number of boating accidents in the rivers this year. The recovery of the bodies Sunday leaves four others unaccounted for and still sought, including that of professional boatman William Teague, 58, who was lost in an overturn last week.

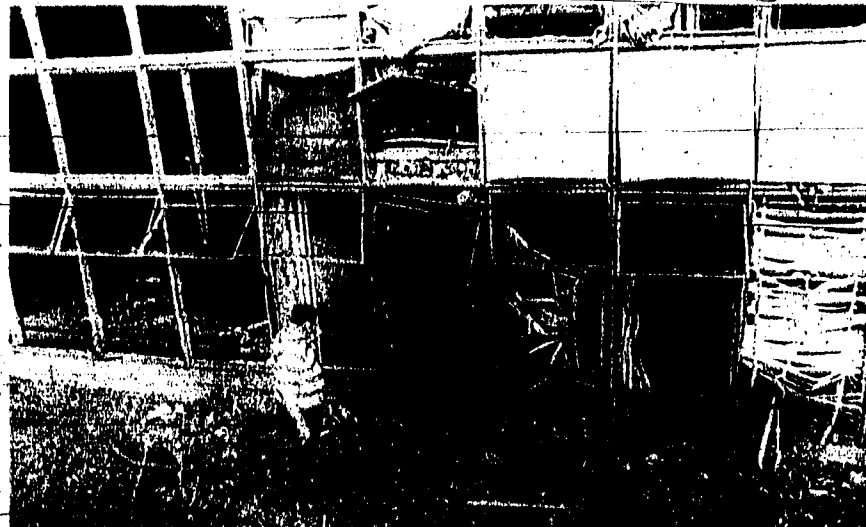

RULING WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court today postponed until next term a decision on whether a draft registrant may claim conscientious objection status specifically because of opposition to the Vietnam War.

Officer Is Injured In Dance Fuss

A Twin Falls police officer who was injured while standing private duty at a dance was released Monday morning from Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and is recuperating at home.

Richard (Buck) Wilson was struck on the head, neck and shoulders by a chair while he and Sgt. Collins Helms were breaking up fights Saturday night at a Mexican dance at the American Legion Hall.

The fights were under control and officer Wilson had started to sit down when he keeled over. Joe Hernandez told officers he attempted to intercept a man carrying a chair headed toward the officer, but was knocked aside. It is not known if the officer was struck a second time, or if he was suffering from the earlier injury.

DETECTIVES SEARCH the rubble for evidence in the bombing of Drake University science building late Monday. One security guard was knocked to the ground by the blast but escaped serious injury. The building was destroyed.

Paychecks To Show Some Gain

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The weekly paychecks of the average American will be a dollar or so fatter next week and middle income groups will soon get an even bigger boost in take home pay as the surtax and some Social Security withholding come to an end.

Although government economists minimized the effect of the added overall purchasing power on the economy, others believed it would only add to the inflation still plaguing the nation.

The first tax reduction occurs midnight Tuesday when the surtax, imposed to defray costs of the Vietnam War, expires. It is expected to put an additional $2 billion into the collective pockets of the nation's taxpayers.

The surcharge was 5 per cent for the first half of this year. It was originally 10 per cent of regular income tax bill from April 1, 1968 until Dec. 31, 1969.

Even more significant for middle-income groups is the annual phase out of Social Security contributions that will begin in mid-August for those earning $12,000 a year and early July for those earning $15,000, adding $11 and $14 respectively to their take-home pay.

President, Romanian Conferring

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon confers with Romanian Foreign Minister Corneliu Manescu today in a meeting which will allow them an opportunity to discuss recent overtures for mutually reducing troop levels in Europe.

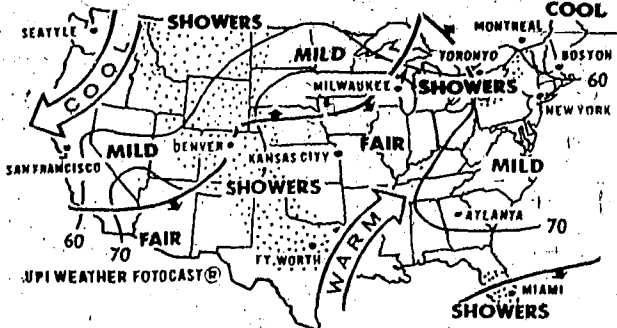

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler announced plans for the meeting Sunday following disclosure that Warsaw Pact countries for the first time had expressed a readiness to explore with NATO the possibility of reducing Soviet and American military forces in Europe.

Manescu met Sunday in San Francisco with Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who also came here for a session with the President. Manescu is in this country for celebration marking the 25th anniversary of the United Nations.

Ziegler said Nixon issued the invitation as a gesture of courtesy in recognition of his own warm reception in Bucharest during an official visit in August.

Council To Consider Jail Plan

Possibilities of a joint law enforcement facility for city and county utilization will be discussed by Twin Falls City Council members and county commissioners in a special meeting tonight.
City Manager Jean Milar said the meeting was called at the request of the county and will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council chambers.
As part of the over-all downtown improvement program, the city plans eventually to construct a city fire and police complex adjacent to the present city hall.
Tonight's meeting, Mr. Milar said, will be highly preliminary as no consideration has been given details of such a plan. Discussion at this time is largely to determine if such a proposal is worthy of further study and consideration.
If this course is to be pursued, the city manager said, it will require considerable revision in the present city plans. He said there would be no exchange of personnel or vehicles, but buildings including administration and jail facilities, communication equipment and similar facilities could be utilized to cut expenses for both departments.
City jail facilities have long needed improvement and expansion and the county is presently faced with a critical need for new jail quarters or complete remodeling and renovation of existing jail areas. County officials say they are anxious to explore the possibility of joint facilities before determining action on the jail needs.

Berlin Is Assured Of Help

BERLIN (UPI) — George Romney, secretary of housing and urban affairs, Sunday reaffirmed the American pledge to defend West Berlin, saying unless West Berlin remains free freedom everywhere is in danger.
Romney issued a statement on Berlin after a tour of East Berlin and the wall on his third day here on a European trip to study urban problems.
He denounced the wall as a "a wall of shame that makes me sick."
He expressed the hope that negotiations now in progress to reduce armaments might result in reduction of tension that would eradicate barriers like the wall.
Romney made his tour of East Berlin after attending two Mormon services at a Latter Day Saints Church. He preached at the services on the theme "freedom is not free, sacrifices must be made for liberty."

Orchestra Completes Rehearsal

STANHOPE, N.J. (UPI) — "Good," the maestro said, nodding his head in approval. "Good."
The Waterloo Village Music Festival was ready to open, the orchestra having caught the mood of the complicated final movement of a Mozart symphony which 93-year-old Pablo Casals wanted.
He had repeatedly stopped the orchestra during Saturday afternoon rehearsals, and hummed the passages to show the musicians how he wanted them played.
At night, Casals had to be helped to the swivel chair he uses to conduct, but once there he showed the 3,000 music lovers gathered in the wind-blown tent he had not lost his touch.

Question...
Some day I must make a decision concerning a Mortuary — how do I go about this intelligently?
Answer...
In the early days of Magic Valley history this would have been no problem. Before there were mortuaries a friend would have volunteered to help. Actually, it was from this sort of relationship our Mortuary evolved.
The period when death visits a family is one of life's deepest emotional experiences. We suggest you discuss with your clergyman, attorney, and family friends what things to look for in choosing a funeral home. We have many booklets available which can help you reach a decision.
In spite of the fact that a funeral must involve a certain amount of commercialism, you will find our spirit of helpfulness has not been commercialized.

DEAR ABBY: "ON THE FENCE" asked you if remarrying a former spouse ever worked. You invited your readers who had had the experience to write in and offer their advice. Here's mine:

Yes, it CAN work. But only if the couple KNOW why their marriage failed in the first place, and they don't make the same mistakes again.

Our problems were all due to family interference. After our divorce, we decided to try again, and we moved far, far away from both our families. We've been married for 12 years this time and we've never been happier. J. AND M.

DEAR ABBY: Tell ON THE FENCE not to marry the same man again. After I divorced my husband (he drank) he told me if I didn't marry him again he would kill himself. Well, I married him, and he almost killed ME. I divorced him again. I never should have remarried him, but I thought I could change him. I couldn't. TWO TIME LOSER

DEAR ABBY: I am well qualified to give advice on whether or not to REMARRY the person you divorced. I married the same man THREE times! And I'm now divorced from him. My reasons for divorcing him were the same all three times. He makes a much better lover than a husband. SINGLE AND HAPPY

DEAR SINGLE: That's not why you DIVORCED him—that's why you REMARRIED him!

DEAR ABBY: I wish I had all the money I gave to lawyers before I realized that the woman I married not once, not twice, not three times . . . but, would you believe FOUR TIMES, was not marriage material. It was a big physical thing between us—nothing else, and let me tell you, as important as that is to a good marriage, it ain't enough! ALONE AND LIKING IT

DEAR ABBY: My parents were divorced when I was two. There were four of us kids. I was the youngest. I was too young to remember at the time, but I later learned my parents got married again because of us kids. All I can remember is the fighting and yelling at our house. After we were all grown and gone, they got divorced again. As far as I'm concerned, they should have stayed divorced the first time. They sure wasted a lot of precious time. THEIR DAUGHTER

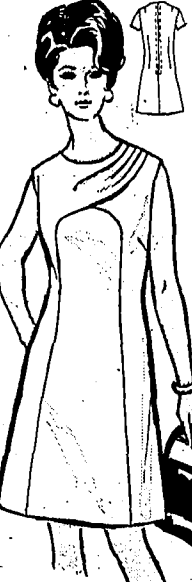

DEAR ABBY: ON THE FENCE has a soul sister. ME! I am also "on the fence" for the same reason. I married my husband during hard times. We worked side by side, and he made it—but BIG!

Well, he couldn't stand the prosperity, and he asked me for a divorce. (Yes, he found somebody else.) I gave him his divorce and he married her. That lasted just long enough for her to go thru his bankroll. Now that he's broke, he wants me to marry him again. He says now he knows there could never be anybody but me, etc.

Maybe I'm a fool, but I still love him. Should I try again with him? LOVES HIM

DEAR LOVES: You'll never be happy until you try. But this time, keep him broke.

Clothing Styles
Reviewed For Working Class

NEW YORK (UPI)—Midst all the debate over feminine hemlines and the mini versus the midlength, guess what the designers also are worrying about now. Styles of clothing for the so-called blue collar worker.

The outcome of their thinking: new uniforms for everyone from the cowboy and the waiter to the cabbie and the mailman. The designers, most of whom usually design women's fashions, showed their "Styles of Tomorrow" for the worker during this week's "Press Week" for the nation's fashion reporters in town to see all facets of fall and winter ready-to-wear.

White set the theme in a "whiteworks" show put together by a firm which makes a heavy duty "cold power" detergent (Colgate-Palmolive).

In all, 19 uniforms were shown. That cowboy's outfit was done in washable white leather, with jacket fringed at the hip and with hipster trousers.

Other suggested worker costumes included: —Bus driver. Striped shorts and knee socks with matching jacket. Since a bus driver sits a lot, the shorts were made of a durable upholstery fabric in all polyester.

—Mailmen. Slouchy white outfit with shirt jacket and huge but soft black crushed leather boots. His mail sack was made of the same material as the beret but is worn on the back. How he would reach the mail might be a problem.

—Taxi driver. A zip up jacket and pants with cuffs of pants tucked into checkboard printed socks. Included was a crash helmet. On the back of the jacket "off duty" was lettered. Fabric: nylon.

—Traffic Police-man. An Eisenhower-type jacket but with the waist dropped nearly to hip length. Cowboy type of pants, and hat like a wrangler's turned up sharply at both sides. Fabric was pure polyester.

Remarkable breakthrough from the laboratories of Chevron Research Company

"This car was placed in a clear plastic bag with its dirty engine running. The bag started to fill with dirty exhaust until the exhaust completely obscured the car. This shows how exhaust emissions from dirty engines go into the air and waste mileage."

The same car, after running on just six tankful of Chevron with Formula F-310. Dirty exhaust emissions reduced sharply. The bag remains clear! No dirty smoke. Chevron with F-310 turns dirty smoke into good clean mileage."

New F-310 in Chevron gasolines turns dirty exhaust into good clean mileage.

Now, scientists at Chevron Research Company have achieved the most long-awaited gasoline development in history! It's a new gasoline additive—Formula F-310*—that sharply reduces dirty exhaust from dirty engines. And helps toward cleaner air.

Tests conducted by Scott Research Laboratories, an independent research group, showed that Chevron gasolines with F-310 reduced unburned hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide exhaust emissions dramatically. Clearly, this is a major step towards solving one of today's most urgent problems.

F-310 also improves mileage, because dirty exhaust is really wasted gasoline. So F-310 literally keeps good mileage from going up in smoke.

How does an engine produce dirty exhaust in the first place? As a car accumulates mileage, deposits build up. The amounts of gasoline and air fed into the engine get out of balance. This causes the engine to "run rich," wasting gasoline. As a result, excessive unburned hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide exhaust emissions go into the air. F-310 can correct this condition. Just six tankful can do the job.

Formula F-310, a patented gasoline additive, is now available in Chevron gasolines wherever you see the F-310 sign.

School Lunches

IDAHO STATE JOURNAL EXTENDING THE SCHOOL LUNCH program to include breakfasts for poor families has been predicted by the business manager of School District 25. He also foresees operation of the program the year around, since "hunger and nutritional deficiency do not stop on weekends or take summer vacations."

Those statements were made by W. James Bravold when he spoke recently to the Idaho School Food Service Association meeting.

No doubt such ideas will be viewed as unnecessary and wasteful — if not socialistic — by some people. We are all too familiar with the person who chides the less fortunate for not improving themselves, thereby supposedly shifting the blame for not being successful to people who often have the least wherewithal.

"I THINK WE CAN look for expansion of the breakfast program. I look for the school lunch program to be a help to those families receiving food stamps and surplus commodities. Much of the problem of surplus commodities is the inability of the family to prepare the food and use it in a proper manner. School lunch personnel know how to use this surplus without loss of nutritional value. So I see school lunch programs in the not too distant future involved in the preparation and the feeding of entire families who are on public assistance. Lalo vision in the future that the school lunch program will be an agency that operates year round. Hunger and nutritional deficiency do not stop on weekends or take summer vacations."

Indeed, the food, the wealth and the technology exist in this country so that nobody needs to go hungry. It is a sad commentary on our supposed efficiency that we have not yet been able to get the food surpluses distributed to people who need them. We read with surprise that six Idaho counties have not signed up yet for the surplus commodity or food stamp program, with the President's deadline of July 1. The counties are Butte, Camas, Custer, Oneida, Power and Bear Lake.

Certainly the school lunch program has room for improvement. Repetitious menus which lean too heavily on large quantities, unimaginatively prepared, are a problem. However, the school lunch program is organized right down to the local level. It could be extended to afford low-income people more nutritious meals — mainly prepared with surplus commodities. We don't say this should be done, but if some other means isn't found soon to make use of food surpluses we say the school lunch people ought to test the plan in a few schools.

LEWISTON MORNING TRIBUNE

A number of signs this spring and early summer point to a marked cooling down of the nation's campuses next fall, thanks mainly to a decrease of the influence of violence-prone hotheads and their "politics of confrontation." The campus mood at this commencement time was relatively calm and at some institutions — including Washington State University at Pullman — threatened thrusts by dissidents bent on disruption were successfully deflected by students determined to seek change through peaceful means.

Assuming no new broadening of the Indochina war, no further repressive measures against campus activists, and an end to inflammatory speeches by Vice President Agnew, the chances look good for a lowering of temperatures among students and faculty.

For that reason, this is the worst possible time to bring up in the Senate a bill that would provide for the stationing of federal marshals on the campuses. As columnist Joseph Alsop points out elsewhere on this page today, such a bill has been prepared, has won powerful backing, and is solidly in the works. The bill would outlaw campus demonstrations, among other things, through the injunction process and provide for the disposal of federal marshals to enforce the injunctions. It also would permit the attorney general to seek temporary or permanent injunctions against any person or group he thinks might cause trouble — a provision that would leave American centers of learning subject to the most odious kind of repression.

Such a law, if it were used the way Attorney General John Mitchell could be expected to use it, would do more to start the campuses boiling again than any number of New Left dissidents. Congressional support for this oppressive measure reflects a widespread feeling in the country — fed by the Nixon administration for its own political gain — that student dissent has gone too far and has to be put down whatever the cost in academic freedom and personal liberty.

Public opinion, however, is lagging far behind events. The dissent will still be there in the fall because it is deeply rooted in genuine grievances, but it is finding new means of expression. At least it was. Ill-conceived and ill-timed legislation aimed at silencing dissent could easily spark new violence and create more problems than it solves.

Don't Know

PORTLAND OREGONIAN

Two Russian cosmonauts are back on earth after adding four days to the previous 13-day space endurance record set in 1965 by U. S. astronauts. They say they feel fine, which is no surprise inasmuch as that's what the Americans said also; the Soviet Soyuz 9 experiment was billed as an effort to determine how well men could stand long periods of weightlessness, but a mere four-day extension would seem to prove little.

Perhaps the flight was terminated earlier than originally planned, but western scientists can't be sure. The Russians never publish an advance space mission schedule, so only they know how well their results measure up to their expectations.

Anyway, the Soyuz 9 crewmen said they were comfortable in their mahogany-paneled cabin, ate well and warded off boredom by listening to soccer matches and playing chess. How they kept the weightless chessmen from flying around the cabin they didn't say.

Thus still unanswered is the question of whether it is physically and psychologically feasible to send men up to an orbiting space station and leave them there for long periods.

The Democratic Death Wish

CASPER, Wyo. — Monomaniacs over Vietnam inside the left wing of the Democratic party has cast a cloud over otherwise golden prospects of Sen. Gale McGee, a liberal but non-dove Democrat, for a third term from this staunchly conservative state. For the sin of supporting the Vietnam war, McGee faces a double-barreled assault. First comes a challenge against him in the Aug. 18 Democratic primary by State Sen. Mike Sivilar. When that falls, Sivilar's campaign organization will be picked up by a more formidable opponent — Ernest Wilkerson, 1968 Democratic nominee for governor — as a third-party candidate.

The danger that Wilkerson's third-party bid might drain enough votes from McGee in November to elect his conservative Republican foe, Rep. John Wold, does not concern the doves. Peace Democrats meeting recently with John Holliday, the tough, young secretary-treasurer of the state AFL-CIO, asserted their goal was to drive

McGee from the Senate, even if his replacement were a conservative Republican. "I don't know how to reason with these people," says Holliday, who strongly supports McGee because of his liberalism on domestic issues. "I think they have a death wish."

The intensity of the death wish here stems from the fact that McGee is one of those rare non-Southern Democrats not to repudiate Vietnam once Richard M. Nixon replaced Lyndon Johnson. But beyond McGee, Wyoming is a microcosm of the national split in the Democratic party between organized labor, still interested in the pocketbook, and liberals, preoccupied with Vietnam.

Actually, McGee has more political resources than the state AFL-CIO (a considerable resource which has long provided organizational muscle for the feeble state Democratic party). The influential and usually Republican Casper Star-Tribune has endorsed McGee over Republican Wold, reflecting a view among some Wyoming Republicans that McGee's growing seniority is a state asset not to be squandered. Besides that, he has significant support from Wyoming oil interests.

McGee's consistent support of the oil industry (an exception to his generally liberal voting record) is a partial cause of intense opposition from the left. In addition, intraparty disputes over the past decade are now turned against McGee; many of the ringleaders against him were kept off. Wyoming's delegation to the 1968 national convention by Humphreys McGee.

But without the overriding issue of Vietnam, the purge-McGee movement would lack both its fervor and its militant little legion of housewives, professors, and middle-class professionals dedicated to McGee's defeat.

Primary election foe Sivilar's record in the state Senate is so packed with conservative votes (as was pointed out to him last week during a fund-raising expedition to Washington and New York) that his credentials as a fire-eater are tarnished. Not so with Ernest Wilkerson, the prospective third-party candidate.

Wilkerson, an urbane and articulate Casper lawyer, feels that McGee is an absolute evil to be eliminated. Abjuring compromise, Wilkerson takes positions that might be dangerous on the West Side of Manhattan, much less Wyoming's wide open spaces — such as proposing legalization of homosexual activity between consenting adults.

Such refusal to compromise has thwarted all efforts at reconciliation. Democratic National Committeeman Teno Rencallo, a strong dove but also a loyal Democrat seeking Wold's Congressional seat, has failed to win pledges from the doves to support the Democratic primary winner.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

D. And C.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After each of my sister-in-law's three pregnancies the doctors burned the lining of the uterus, as they said women were less likely to get cancer and infections, this process being similar to a D. & C.

One of my two doctors did this, the other didn't. I'd like your comment if you think this is necessary or a good thing. — T. V.

I think you have reference to two procedures which are distinctly different — and neither one is automatically necessary or useful. Each is useful when needed. So I'll try to explain the two procedures and you can take it from there.

A D & C (dilation and curettage) means that the uterus is dilated or expanded enough so that with instruments the inner surface can be curetted, or scraped.

This is done sometimes to obtain tissue samples for diagnostic purposes. It is often done after a miscarriage since all of the tissues may not have been sloughed off and need to be removed. And there are other technical needs for a D. and C.

The other procedure to which I think you refer (you called it "burning") is doubtless cauterization of the cervix. The cervix is the neck or entrance to the uterus.

With childbirth, the cervix sometimes is slightly torn. This small damaged area can become the site of chronic infection, often with a discharge resulting from it. This can be a nuisance that goes on and on, and it can, of course, lead to more serious troubles at times.

Best way to get rid of such an area of infection is to cauterize it — cautery is a searing or burning. After destruction of the infected tissue, the area heals much more readily. (Of course cautery is used in many other parts of the body, as needed. Many years ago it was done with a hot iron. These days it is done more gently, either by chemical means or an electrical instrument.)

Cauterization is by no means needed after all births. Many women never need it, even after having quite a number of children. Others may need it repeatedly, some occasionally. If there's a torn or raw place with infection present, cautery is a good idea.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 16, has been having kernels under her arms. What can be causing them, and what can I do about them? Mrs. G. S.

Your brief description suggests enlargement of the lymph nodes which can be due to various causes, but by far the most likely is some sort of infection. At your daughter's age, mononucleosis is a possibility.

I can't suggest anything for you to do except, if the enlargement persists, to have your doctor seek out the cause and then prescribe treatment.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you give me any information on "Protein in the urine" — Mrs. C.B.

Protein does not normally appear in the urine. When it does, it may be in the form of albumin, or from red blood cells, or from infection along with white blood cells.

Albumin may be a sign of kidney trouble (although there are some cases in which it is not). And obviously either of the other two that I listed indicate some form of trouble.

PAUL HARVEY

On Indochina

When President Nixon goes on TV to explain his Indochina policy, he seems to be making a lot of sense.

But later, you get to mulling over this entire involvement and it doesn't make sense at all.

I did not say that. The Wall Street Journal — usually entirely friendly to this Administration — said it. Why?

The Administration's best friends are becoming disenchanted with the Vietnamese war since the Cambodian operation.

We chased the enemy from the border sanctuaries into Cambodia's interior where they became a larger menace to that government.

We were assured that the Cambodian intrusion would shorten the war and facilitate our withdrawal. Now it appears so many South Vietnamese may have to stay in Cambodia that it may lengthen the war. So far it has retarded — not accelerated — our own troop withdrawal rate.

Now former Hawks of the stature of Georgia's Sen. Herman Talmadge, are switching.

Talmadge says the United States is overcommitted militarily, economically and politically throughout the world. He says the burden of trying to carry on a war in Southeast Asia is too great, too disruptive, too costly for our own country.

He urges that we get all our troops altogether out of all Indochina — this year.

Sen. Richard Russell, long-time respected voice in military affairs, also "broke with the President's policy" after Cambodia.

Whatever the President might do with respect to such a sensitive consideration as this, you'd expect carping and criticizing from the political left.

But the Wall Street Journal and the customarily conservative senators from Georgia are usually found on the political right.

The Administration cannot dismiss these as either left-wing agitators or liberal intellectuals.

But the very fact that President Nixon's policy sounds so plausible when he explains it on television demonstrates the effectiveness of the old arguments in favor of "those nations and peoples who rely on America's power and treaty commitments for their security — in Latin America, Europe, the Middle East, other parts of Asia."

As we say in the Missouri Ozarks, let's shuck right down to the cob. Most everyone, in the administration and out, now concedes that it was a mistake to involve American troops in a land war in Asia.

Most everyone agrees that we must disengage ourselves. We say we'll give in on everything except "self-determination" for the people of South Vietnam.

They don't have self-determination now; they have a military dictatorship.

As have Peru, Panama, Bolivia, Brazil, Uruguay — in our own home hemisphere.

But wouldn't a multiplicity of land wars involving our forces in Latin America be pretty silly?

Paul Harvey, are you suggesting we should just pick up and leave Indochina as is? I don't think there's any argument about that. The only questions are how soon and how many die first.

WASHINGTON — The question came up at dinner the other night when people were discussing the Tory victory in Great Britain.

"Why is it that the English were able to rule the world for almost 200 years while the United States has been unable to hold on for less than 25 years?"

An Englishman at the table replied, "It's quite simple, my dear chap. There was no television."

"Of course," someone else said, "television hadn't been invented then!"

"On the contrary," the Englishman said, "it had been invented but we were wise enough not to let the secret out."

We all looked at him in amazement. "Lord Cashmere of Rutland invented television in the year 1775," he said. "You can look it up in the secret archives of the British Museum. He was actually trying to invent the radio; rather than sound, he got a picture on his box instead."

"What kind of a picture?" a skeptical guest asked. "A picture of a redcoat in Boston-flogging-a-Colonial-old man."

"It is hard to believe," someone said. "Quite. In any case, Lord Cashmere knew he was onto something big, so he took the box to King George — and demonstrated it to the court, which at the time was meeting on the Television Moors in Wales."

"So that's where the name came from," someone said. "It's all in the secret archives," the Englishman said. "The court was aghast at what they were seeing. There were large, burly redcoats beating on the poor Colonials, kicking women and children, setting fire to their homes and committing unbelievable atrocities in the villages."

Archbishop of Canterbury said, "what in God's name have you wrought?"

"Lord Cashmere said, 'I'm not sure, but it's possible that this invention could change all of mankind. Just think my noble friends, that with this box our people would bear witness to the great news events of our time. No longer would we be dependent on ships for our news. We could actually see our victories as they were happening. What a boost for the morale of the Empire!'"

"A cheer went the air over Television Moors. But then Gen. Sir Ronald Paley, the king's adviser on military affairs, spoke up: 'I do not wish to dash cold water on this box, but may I point out to you gentlemen that this invention could be the end of the Empire? Do you believe our young people would remain silent after watching what we were doing in the Colonies, or for that matter anywhere else? The country would be split asunder. The strength of England is that her people have no idea of what we're up to abroad.'"

"King George III spoke up. 'Sir Ronald is right. If we're to wage war in the Colonies, we don't want the people at home to know what we're doing.'"

"Besides, if we have to pull out, I want to do it without the whole world watching us. Lord Cashmere, you have done your country an ill deed by this damnable contraption. I order you at the pain of losing your head never to reveal your secret. We shall bury the box here on the moors, and Britannia will rule the waves.'"

The Englishman paused as he hung on to his every word. "Then you kept the secret all these years," someone said. "That's correct," the Englishman said. "Thirty years ago an American anthropologist, digging around the moors, discovered the box."

Kennedy's Wife Knew Of Party In Advance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's wife, Joan, said Monday she knew about the party at Chappaquiddick in advance and believes what her husband has told her about the tragic death of Mary Jo Kopechne.

Asked in an interview in the current issue of Ladies' Home Journal magazine whether she believed stories that Kennedy and Miss Kopechne were going for a midnight swim when his car went off the Chappaquiddick Bridge, Mrs. Kennedy replied: "No, I'm sure they weren't. Ted left the party early so he could get a good night's sleep and be ready for the next day's (yacht) race."

She was quoted as saying she thought her husband "probably should have notified police earlier."

"I believe everything Ted said," she was quoted. "I believe in giving him all the support I can. I don't believe in bugging him, in saying 'Why did you say that?' or, 'Why didn't you do this?' It was very unfortunate...a tragic accident."

Mrs. Kennedy said she did not go to the yacht races in which the senator participated prior to the cookout on Chappaquiddick because it was a long, rough race and she was two months pregnant. She said she knew about the cookout, which was "traditional after sailing races" and that the senator's cousin, Ted Gargan, had rented the cottage because "Ted's always recognized whatever he goes."

"Ted phoned me that Friday, after the race was finished, and told me, 'We came in fourth,'" she said. "I knew how disappointed he must have felt...the next morning...Ted phoned me again and said there had been a terrible accident and Mary Jo had drowned."

Mrs. Kennedy said people in public life must take risks and chances and the assassinations of President Kennedy and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy "couldn't have been anticipated, couldn't have been avoided."

"In a way, Mary Jo's death attended the festival. The three gunshot victims were not seriously hurt and were released from the hospital after treatment. (UPI telephoto) was even worse for Ted because it involved someone outside the family," she added.

Her conscious fears for her husband's own life did not begin until she watched "love turn into hate" in the turmoil of the 1968 Chicago Democratic Convention and the fear is with her — and with her husband — always, she told her interviewer. But she doesn't suppose the senator will quit politics because "public service means too much to Ted."

"And all this you hear about the Kennedy family pressuring Ted to run for president," Mrs. Kennedy continued. "What family? What's left of the Kennedys? Besides Ted, only women and children! You don't seriously think we want Ted to be president, do you? To have the one Kennedy man left risk having happen to him what happened to his brothers?"

She said the surviving Kennedy "need" her husband and "he is quite aware of how we feel."

Governors Rest On Japan Trip

SAPPORO, Japan (UPI) — Seven American governors, led by Utah Gov. Calvin L. Ramp-ton, took a holiday this weekend from the Japanese-American Conference on pollution.

The governors took a Monday morning bus trip to Mt. Showa-Shinzan where they were exposed to sulphur fumes emitted from this live volcano.

After lunch at the Sapporo Park Hotel they visited the Sapporo Breweries Co.

Sapporo is the capital of the northernmost island-prefecture of Hokkaido. The governors arrived in Hokkaido Sunday for a two-day tour.

The American governors are in Japan to meet with their Japanese counterparts and discuss environment pollution and how it can be overcome through international cooperation.

Retarded To Have New Help-

BOISE (UPI)—A spokesman for the department of health paid Monday Idaho's mentally retarded citizens will be aided by a new recreational program this summer.

Martin J. Landholm, recreation director of the mental retardation and child development division, Idaho Department of Health, said the Society of Friends Public Service Program of the American Friends Service Committee is a first in Idaho.

Eight college volunteers will direct recreation activities in Lewiston, Idaho Falls, Twin Falls, Boise, and the Nampa-Caldwell area.

They will plan programs centered around arts, crafts, swimming and camping. The eight workers will join 22 state employees and 10 other students in serving 20,000 mentally retarded Idahoans.

Landholm said the extra help from the program will enable his department to expand other projects.

money. As soon as I raised my hands, a pickpocket passed by and lifted my wallet.

"And then who should come along but George McSanguine?" During the Johnson administration, to refresh your memory, McSanguine was a tunnel-end lighter in Vietnam. He had charge of the light that U.S. officials kept sooting at the end of the tunnel every time Johnson escalated the war.

But under the Nixon administration, McSanguine changed jobs. When I last saw him he was operating the corner-turning machine at the Treasury Department.

Seat And Bruise
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—When Linda Dunson, 30, failed to give up her seat to a little old lady, she said the elderly woman called her names, hit her with a cane, relaxed for a while, and then hit her again.

The bus driver stopped the bus and the woman, about 65, disappeared. Miss Dunson was treated at a hospital for a bruise on the forehead.

TWO-TIME LOSER
CAGLIARI, Sardinia (UPI)—Police arrested cashier Angelo Sanna Tuesday on charges of misappropriating $2,200,000 lire ($147,520) and gambling it all on Italy's weekly lottery. Police said it was the second such case in Italy in two years.

Attorney General John N. Mitchell found it "a basis for encouragement."

"Mitchell was encouraged because we ran the report through the trend de-accelerator," McSanguine explained. "It showed that although crime increased again, the rate of increase was smaller than the crime jump during the same period last year. Therefore, Mitchell was able to announce a 'slowdown trend' in crime."

Feels Better
 "That makes me feel better about having my wallet stolen," I said.

McSanguine also disclosed that he had recently been in back in Southeast Asia on an emergency assignment.

"My mission was to operate the factoscope in Cambodia," he said.

"What's a factoscope?"
 "It is the instrument that fact-finding groups use to measure the success of the Cambodian insurance. It really worked beautifully in the beginning, but after the latest fact-finding group left Cambodia, the factoscope went on the blink."

 "It got clogged up with captured rice."

Aetna gives drivers in these states a new break on auto insurance.

We just threw away the rule book and the rate book for auto insurance, and have come up with a whole new approach to give you a better deal on costs and coverage. We call it the All-Driver Plan.

Here's how it works.

If you have a good driving record, chances are you're getting a break on your insurance costs. Well, in this case Aetna can probably give you an even greater break.

That's because we take so many more facts about you into account.

With a fair driving record, and one or two fender-benders over the past couple of years, you're most likely paying more for your coverage. But with Aetna's new approach you probably won't have to pay as much.

For drivers who've been involved in repeated accidents or violations, and have trouble getting insurance, Aetna has found a way to insure them with broad coverage. And we'll give them the best guarantee in the industry on renewing their policy.

You really owe it to yourself to look into this remarkable Aetna All-Driver Plan.

There are 10 ways you can qualify for lower rates or broader coverage at Aetna. Contact your Aetna agent, listed under this symbol in the Yellow Pages.

Program Expanded
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Postmaster General Winton M. Blount says a pilot program to find summer jobs for youths is being expanded into 500 cities.

Under the program, letter carriers on business routes take time to ask employers if they have any summer jobs available for teens.

Dry runs last week turned up 175 jobs in Washington, San Diego, Indianapolis, Orlando, Fla. and Niagara Falls, N.Y., Blount announced Sunday.

Navy Trip Swell, But . . .

By RUTH MILLER
Times-News Staff Writer

All three Magle Valley men who went aboard the USS Neruus recently enjoyed the cruise, but one of them, Bill Herrett of Filer, is recuperating at home from an accident he was in while enroute home.

Mr. Herrett was struck by a motorcycle on a street in Los Angeles after the cruise.

He and Warren Barry and L. James Koutnik, both Twin Falls, were those attending. Rep. Ray Lincoln of Twin Falls also had planned to go on the Secretary of the Navy Cruise, but at last minute, was unable to go because of commitments at home.

The Neruus, a submarine tender whose primary mission is to maintain the Pacific Fleet of submarines in a high state of readiness, is just like a small city, according to Mr. Barry. It is about two blocks long and 74 feet wide at its widest point.

The ship carries a complement of about 800 officers and men.

The local men, who cruise with a group of 10 other civic leaders and businessmen from Oregon and Washington, had the run of the ship and were free to talk to officers and enlisted men. Mr. Barry said all the civilians on board were extremely impressed there are so many dedicated people in the Navy who are "doing their bit to keep the Pacific Fleet in readiness for any eventuality. The general attitude of most of the enlisted men and officers was good," he said.

The civilians ate with Capt. Thomas Cuddy one night each and had lunch with the chiefs. Mr. Barry said he also lunched with the enlisted men and found their food to be excellent.

The Neruus is primarily a "floating machine shop" and has anything in the way of parts that any of the Pacific Fleet's submarines might require. The ship acts as the flagship for the Commander of Submarine Flotilla I and is flagship for the Commander of Submarine Squadron 5.

The submarines maintained by the Neruus are attack submarines which must be kept in readiness for water warfare, rather than the Polaris (missile carrying) submarines.

A highlight of the cruise for the civilians on board was passing through a Russian whaling fleet 35 miles off the coast of northern California. Mr. Barry said there was a "factory" or mother ship and five chase ships in the group. The men on board the Russian ships and the U.S. Navy men "quietly gave each other the eye" as they passed, Mr. Barry said.

The Neruus cruised from Portland to San Diego, its home port, with the local men on board. In order to most effectively carry out its maintenance function, the Neruus has to be tied up to the dock. After docking in San Diego, the civilians were allowed aboard three submarines, the USS Harder, the USS Shook, a nuclear powered submarine, and the USS Gurnard, a nuclear submarine commissioned in May, 1968. The Gurnard can remain submerged for six months at a time, Mr. Barry said. While touring the ships, the Idaho men pointed out to Navy personnel that the nuclear propellant systems for these submarines were developed in Idaho, at the Nuclear Reactor Testing Station at Arco.

In Portland the men also were taken aboard the USS John Craig, Destroyer No. 885, commissioned in 1945. The original Craig was lost in the Pacific during World War II.

The Idaho men proved to be worthy sailors, Mr. Barry said, although the sea was rough the first night out and Mr. Koutnik took a pill to ward off any possible feeling of seasickness.

Bottle Travels For T.F.

A champagne bottle from Twin Falls will make the "grand tour" of historical sites throughout the nation, as a promotional feature of the Twin Falls downtown redevelopment project.

The bottle, pictured in the Times-News when the Main Avenue demolition was launched, will travel to 15 historic locations and will be pictured at each.

Plans for the "champagne flight" were drawn up at a recent merchants' meeting at the Rogerson Hotel. The bottle will be returned to Twin Falls in time for the christening of the completed redevelopment project.

MEDIEVAL MINE

FALUN, Sweden (UPI)—A medieval copper mine which was finally shut down in 1914 has been opened again—this time to mine tourist gold. The mine, Falu Koppargruva, was known throughout Europe in its productive days for turning out good copper for use in brass for cannons.

Now an elevator takes tourists down to a shaft 163 feet below the surface, after they don helmet and raincoat. A walk through the mine, where the old equipment has been restored, takes about 50 minutes.

Walker Asks Unity

KELLOGG — Lloyd J. Walker, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, spoke out for unity of the state, citing a "common bond" between the sections of the state, in a speech before a group of miners at Kellogg.

"I would like to see the working men in this state unite and I would like to see the Northern and Southern parts of Idaho unite," the candidate said. "Too often the Northern and Southern parts of Idaho look in opposite directions. If the farmer and the laborer united, they could set common goals. Neither the farmer or the laborer are represented fairly in the state government."

Singling out the "commissioner of labor," Mr. Walker asked "What is his name? What does he do? Among his duties he is supposed to enforce safety regulations. In the nation the emphysema rate doubles every five years. In supposedly pollution-free Idaho, we should have one of the lowest death rates from emphysema in the nation. Yet we have one of the highest."

The candidate charged that "safety regulations, wage and hour laws and overtime computation of wages" have been ineffectively enforced in Idaho by "the present commissioner of labor."

Mr. Walker pledged that "as governor, I would do my best to aid and support the working men in Idaho."

Speaking at Mountain Home, Mr. Walker appealed to Idaho youth to become involved in politics now—not later. "I hope you won't wait until the next Presidential election to become political activists for the time is now and the places are local and state elections."

Citing himself as an ideal candidate for study by youth, Mr. Walker said that "if they like courage, they will like the fact that I am willing to take on the untouchable issues and the vested interests of the most powerful and admittedly selfish citizen in the state."

Transit Money

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Banking Committee has passed a bill setting aside $5 billion for mass transit projects in cities over the next five years.

If the bill passes the House in the form that cleared the committee Wednesday, it would have to be reworked in a conference with the Senate. The Senate has already approved a similar measure authorizing $3.1 billion for city transit projects in five years.

Oswald: "I can't blame him too much. We were vulnerable and with both vulnerable opponents in action it looked like something funny was going on."

Jim: "That explains his failure to bid more than five diamonds over your five clubs. Then, when you suddenly went to six diamonds it shouldn't have been difficult for him to mark you with the ace-queen of diamonds and ace of clubs."

Oswald: "He did that all right but his reason for the six-spade call was that he wanted everything not nailed down and that spades counted more than diamonds. You don't think that I could now go to seven diamonds, do you?"

Jim: "No. However, your partner had an easy way to try for the brass ring. He could have bid six hearts to see if you would bid spades rather than rebid to seven in a minor."

Oswald: "When I was your age, I used to shudder when I cut certain old timers as my partner in a rubber bridge game. Somehow or other, they never seemed to bid their hands with any accuracy. On looking back, part of our troubles may stem from the fact that I had a reputation as a very fancy bidder."

ANOTHER REASON you don't see any too many tanned elephant hides is it takes about a year to tan one. WHILE SLEEPING, one man in eight mores and one man in 10 grinds his teeth. Which do you prefer, young lady? CEDRIC ADAMS contended the oldest child in a family was generally the more selfish.

MURDER -- Maybe you've heard of the annual International Police Convention. Top officers from about half a hundred nations gather at same. Mostly what they talk about is murder. And at a recent such get-together, they agreed, almost unanimously, that the most ingenious murders are committed in England, although none could explain why British killers are so cunning.

OPEN QUESTION -- Which is better -- to wrap an infant tightly in its receiving blanket when putting it to sleep or to cover it loosely so it can wiggle and kick freely?

CUSTOMER SERVICE -- Q "I'm a retired newspaperman who suggests you be a little more careful of your facts. I make a practice of verifying your claims and found some inexcusable discrepancies." A. Is that true? All right, sir, there are 2,728, 100-letters-in-the-Old-Testament and 638,380-letters-in-the-New Testament. Certainly hope to hear from you again in a few years. Q "What's the longest island in the world?" A. That would be the Padre-Mustang crescent along the Texas coast.

GET IT RIGHT -- Always thought basketball players were called cagers because the basket looks like a cage. That's wrong. Research reveals the early players themselves performed within great wire cages. To keep the ball in and the spectators out.

WHEN THE SCHOLARS report a man's skin weighs 8-1/2 pounds and would just about fill up a gallon jar, you get to wondering how they found out, or at least I do. IN ANCIENT ROME, history records, there were only three grounds for divorce -- adultery, child-poisoning and changing the lock on the bedroom door.

"DO TODAY'S Flower Children come from Potted Parents?" inquires a whimsical subscriber. AT FILLING STATIONS, the average credit card sale runs about $2 more than the average cash sale. TO GRAZE the grass to the ground, a moose has to kneel, and this slows him down considerably.

TALK TEST -- Let's say you want to buy a talking parrot. But want to know first if said parrot can really talk. Nothing to it. Hold a mirror in front of it. If it won't talk when it sees its reflection, it can't.

Germans Ponder Minority

By TERENCE ANDREW WARSAW (UPI)—West German officials hope they soon can tackle the issue of the German minority in Poland.

West German officials have said the fate of a million or more ethnic Germans believed to be living in Poland is a prime humanitarian consideration in attempts to improve relations with Warsaw.

"The German Red Cross has received about 270,000 applications for aid from residents of Poland who call themselves German," one West German official said.

"On the basis of this and other statistics, we estimate that there are about 1.1 million Germans living here, many of them against their will," he said.

If the Warsaw and Bonn governments progress towards diplomatic relations in their talks during the second half of July, Bonn is expected to propose establishment of West German consulates in former German cities like Breslau now Wroclaw.

"We would also try to persuade the Poles to allow Germans to be reunited with their families, if they want to," the official said.

"The so-called problem of the German minority is nothing but a myth," a Polish journalist retorted.

Polish officials say the last 35,000 Germans were repatriated by the German Red Cross from 1950-1955.

The majority of Germans left their homes in East Prussia, Upper Silesia and the eastern part of the pre-war German Reich at the end of World War II.

Thousands of German refugees perished in the bitter winter of 1944, when they fled from the Red army, but several million survived to resettle in West and East Germany.

Three million Germans were transferred to German territory after the war, in accordance with the 1945 Potsdam Treaty signed by the United States, Britain, the Soviet Union and France.

Slippery Snake Is Problem

THETFORD, England (UPI)—When volunteer fireman Richard Page found a three-foot snake in his garden, he popped it in a box and put it in his car so he could ask his colleagues about it. But when he arrived at the fire station, the snake had vanished.

The firemen searched the car and even threw a smokebomb into its interior to try to force the snake out but without luck. The next day, the snake's head popped out of a pocket in the door panel—and eluded capture—and the next out a pocket on the opposite side of the car—and got caught.

Page gingerly put the snake in a sack and drove off to the country to turn it loose. When he opened the sack the snake was gone.

Mysterious Bird Poses Threat

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Florida biologists are beginning an investigation to find out if an immigrant to the United States, the cattle egret, is crowding out native egrets and herons.

Some 20 years ago the ingenious and mysterious cattle egret, a long-legged white bird, discovered a smorgasbord on-the-hoof in Florida and has been thriving there ever since. Biologists of the Florida Flood Control District and the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission want to find out if the cattle egret, which came from Africa, is competing with native birds for nesting space in established heron nesting sites.

"The cattle egret has expanded its numbers tremendously during the past 15 years or so," said Walter Dineen, chief biologist in the FCD's Recreation and Conservation Department. "I doubt that our native egret population has expanded. In fact, it most likely has decreased as have available nesting sites."

May Suffer Ostracism

If the fears of the biologists are confirmed, the cattle egret—believed to be the only bird in recent history to cross the Atlantic to establish itself as a breeding species on another continent—may suffer the same ostracism that has befallen the Asian walking catfish and the African giant snail.

Mike Fogarty, a biologist with the Game and Fish Commission, discounts theories that the egrets were swept from Africa to South America to North America in a hurricane. He believes the bird could have hedge-hopped across the ocean through island chains "with good east winds."

However he got here, the cattle egret was first sighted in the United States at Wayland, Mass. on April 23, 1952. The bird was identified among cattle near Lake Okechobee, Fla., on March 12, 1952. Since that time it has been spotted in every state along the Atlantic Seaboard and the Gulf Coast

Campers Advised To Use Caution

Now that summer and camping time are here, precautions are in order against that pest of the woods, the wood tick, according to Dr. Luther Thompson, director of the South Central District Health Department.

The ticks commonly found in brush and in the woods in Idaho and cause several different diseases, although none are found too frequently in Idaho, Dr. Thompson said.

The Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever vaccine, formerly widely used to prevent the disease brought by the wood tick, is not recommended for most people, since it must be renewed each year, and effective antibiotics are available.

Also, Dr. Thompson explained, the vaccine does not prevent other diseases carried by ticks, and, in fact, only a few varieties of ticks are carriers of disease.

Campers or woodsmen who are in brushy country a lot, such as loggers or sheepmen, should check with their own doctors about the need for the vaccine. Summer campers, fishermen and hikers are not usually considered in the high-risk group.

To protect against ticks, wear more than one layer of clothing with each overlapping the other to keep the bugs off the skin. Repellents may also be effective.

It is most important, to check the body for ticks at least once each day when in the woods, health authorities say.

Ticks do not cause much pain. Instead of crawling, they attach themselves to the skin and bury their heads just beneath the skin to find blood, which is their food. If a tick is found, use care to remove it—above all, do not crush it or yank it off, as the head can come off and remain in the skin. This heightens the chance of infection.

An effective way to remove a tick is to make it withdraw its own head voluntarily. The lighted end of a cigarette held close to the tick—but not close enough to burn the skin—will usually bring it out in a hurry. A match can be lighted and used much the same way; or you can carefully and slowly pull the tick from the skin.

Apply an antiseptic to the skin after removing the insect. If anyone who has been in brushy areas develops a feverish illness after about five days, they should contact a physician.
