Famous Newsmen Speaks His Mind

NEW YORK (UPI)—Chot Huntley says President Nixon is shallow and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is appealing to base elements, Nixon frightens him, Agnew makes him resentful.

"I've been with Nixon socially," the retiring NBC newscaster said in an interview with Life magazine. "I've traveled with him in his private plane. I've seen him under many conditions.

Bishop Not Bitter For Sentence

HONG KONG (UPI)—American Bishop James Edward Walsh said today the severity of the 20-year jail sentence passed on him by Communist China on spy charges was unjustified but he is not bitter against those who imprisoned him.

The 79-year-old Maryknoll priest from Cumberland, Md., expressed his feeling about his 12 years' confinement in a Shanghai prison in a conversation with the Rev. John McCormack, superior general of the Maryknoll Fathers.

Troops Blacks Take Over Oklahoma Radio

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (UPI)—National Guard troops were stationed outside this Northern Indiana city today after two nights of disturbances in Negro neighborhoods in which least 30 persons arrested.

Sporadic fire bombing and rock-throwing was reported Sunday, shortly before a dusk-to-dawn curfew. Calm was restored shortly after midnight Sunday, when a company of the Indiana National Guard was placed on standby alert at nearby La Porte, Ind.

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—Three hundred blacks took control of Radio Station KBVE during the weekend in what the station's management called the first case of radio piracy in U.S. history.

The station resumed broadcasting Sunday but without $25,000 in records and tapes allegedly stolen during the takeover.

Local civil rights leader Clara Luper said the blacks were angered because the station was run by whites for a negro audience and the management was ignorant of what blacks want.

Clever Going To N. Korea

MOSCOW (UPI)—Eldridge Cleaver and a candidate for the U.S. Senate from California, Robert Scheer, led an 11-man delegation to North Korea today to try to make the American military presence in South Korea a new target of the antiwar movement.

"By going to Korea, we want to take on the brainwashing and propagandizing that has gone on about Korea in the United States since the time of the Korean War," said Scheer, former editor of Rampart magazine.

Papyrus Boat Hits Barbados

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (UPI)—Explorer Thor Heyerdahl's papyrus boat Ra II arrived in Barbados to cheer and a calyps band Sunday night, ending a 67-day voyage intended to prove Egyptians could have reached the New World 3,500 years before Columbus.

Nikita's Relative Is Dead

MOSCOW (UPI)—Lev Petrov, son-in-law of former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, died of kidney failure a few days ago, friends of the family said today.

The 79-year-old Petrov was editor of Soviet Weekly, the English language magazine prepared by the unofficial news agency Novosti for distribution in Britain.

"I want to see to it," said Cleaver, the fugitive Black Panther leader and author, "that wider and wider circles of American people become familiar with a part of their history that has been lost and still exists in Korea—a history of U.S. imperialism in Korea."

Prime Minister Errol Barrow of Barbados welcomed Heyerdahl and his seven-man crew. A tuxedo-clad delegation of the Knights of Malta wrapped the swimsuit-clad explorer in scarlet robes as he climbed off the boat.

Ra II's arrival in a light rain concluded a 3,273-mile voyage that began May 17 in Safi, Morocco, in Heyerdahl's second attempt to show Egyptians of the pharaoh's time could have lashed together bundles of reeds that grow along the Nile and used them to sail to Central America.

Two Killed In Truck Car King Hill Crash

KING HILL — Two people were killed and two others injured early Monday morning in the collision of a car and a large truck just west of the King Hill Port of Entry on U.S. Highway 30.

Idaho State Police identified the victims as Genaro Esquivel, 21, driver of the car, and Pedro Mayorga, 14, both of the Weiser Labor Camp. Officers said the accident occurred at 4:40 a.m. as the driver of the car apparently dozed at the wheel and crossed the center line into the path of the east-bound truck.

Officers said both victims were thrown from the car and the entire driver's side of the vehicle was ripped away. Others in the car were Mrs. Esquivel and the couple's one-year-old daughter. Both are in fair condition at Elmore County Hospital.

Traffic was able to pass the scene for most of Monday morning, but while wreckers were attempting to right the wrecked truck and grader, traffic through the area was stopped.

Durante Illness Detailed

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI)—Jimmy Durante, hospitalized Friday after suffering dizzy spells, probably will be released later this week, a spokesman at St. John's Hospital said Sunday.

The spokesman said tests indicated the 77-year-old comedian may be suffering from labyrinthitis, an infection of the middle ear.

Durante suffered the spells following his appearance Thursday night at the Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas.

Red Camp

KUALA LUMPUR (UPI)—An abandoned Communist terrorist camp capable of accommodating 40 men was found Friday about six miles northeast of Kuching near the Thai-Malaysian border, the National Operations Council said Thursday.

The council said 26 persons were arrested during the week for illegal possession of arms and subversive activities.

"We Can Survive!" "I think we all want the world to realize that man is man and if we collaborate, if we cooperate, we can survive," Heyerdahl said in a dockside speech. The crowd responded with sustained cheers and the calyps band struck up again.

The voyagers experienced Atlantic waters that ranged from dead calm to 40-foot waves that snapped a steering oar nearly as thick as a telephone pole.

Nixon Is Briefed On Mid-East Area

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers briefed President Nixon today on recent diplomatic talks on the Middle East and Vietnam undertaken during his just-completed, 11-day global tour.

Rogers returned here Sunday from London amid reports of a mounting Mideast crisis. He refused to discuss results of his trip with newsmen who met his plane.

retused to give details about the Israeli nuclear weapons program but he indicated the Israelis were working on bombs rather than missiles.

"I don't think there's any question about the fact that Israel is doing its best to develop nuclear weapons and... they don't have to be launched—they can be dropped," he said.

Bands Of Miners Protest

MULLENS, W. Va. (UPI)—Roving bands of disabled coal miners today shut down at least nine mines in southern West Virginia and idled about 1,500 miners to protest the pension policies of the United Mine Workers Union (UMW).

The disabled miners of southern West Virginia, headquartered here, charged that UMW President W. A. (Tony) Boyle refused to discuss hospital and pension benefits with them.

American Party To Seek Funds

Idaho executive committee members of the American Party meeting in Twin Falls Saturday night appointed two committee chairmen and made plans for holding their state central committee meeting in Twin Falls Aug. 8.

Paul Whaley, Twin Falls, who was elected chairman of a public information committee, said Eldon Wert, Idaho Falls, was named finance chairman and will make plans for a finance campaign to give the party "some capital" for the coming election campaigns.

Marine Is Released By Hanoi

SAYGON (UPI)—The Viet Cong announced today the release in Hanoi of a U.S. Marine said to have defected to the Communist side early in 1969.

A Liberation Radio broadcast said Pfc. Jon Sweeney would go to Sweden to seek political asylum—U.S. military sources said Sweeney has been listed as missing in action since Feb. 10, 1969. His birthplace was given as New York City.

Father Pleads For Daughter's Return

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Max Murningham, former mayor of this capital city, waited in vain for three days at police headquarters for word about his kidnaped daughter—Laurie.

Officers said both victims were thrown from the car and the entire driver's side of the vehicle was ripped away. Others in the car were Mrs. Esquivel and the couple's one-year-old daughter. Both are in fair condition at Elmore County Hospital.

"Perhaps you're not a father, but if you are, you know how important a daughter is to a family."

"Or, you may have brothers or sisters who are dear to you. If you are an only child, you are unaware of the loneliness we may have to suffer."

"Your capture is of no concern to me. My daughter's safe release is vital to my family's future."

Asked by one interviewer whether Egypt was getting ready to cross the Suez Canal into territory occupied by Israel since the 1967 war, Sisco replied: "I don't say that, but I certainly will agree with the judgment you've expressed—it certainly does not look like defensive equipment to me."

Symington, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees,

Official Refuses Comment—An official of the Israeli Embassy here, asked to comment on Symington's statement, said only that his government still stood by its formal pledge not to be the first country to introduce nuclear arms in the Middle East.

Rogers, whose trip included visits to Japan, the Philippines, South Vietnam and Romania as well as Great Britain, told British officials he hoped for a favorable reply from Egypt on the U.S. peace proposal which calls for a 90-day cease-fire and a new effort to get peace discussions going.

At this time, Mr. Whaley said, the party still has candidates only for second congressional district and superintendent of public instruction. Joel Anderson, Pocahontas, is the candidate for the U.S. Representative seat now held by Congressman Orval Hansen, Republican, and Lane Blank, Republican, of Lane Blank, Chapard, St. Anthony, is seeking the state school superintendent office.

Mr. Whaley said an additional candidate, for the post of governor, is expected to announce in the near future.

Cambodia Action Continues

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Cambodian commandos called South Vietnamese warplanes a battalion of U.S.-trained tribesmen today into the battle for resort town of Kirirom, on a 1,800-foot plateau southwest of Phnom Penh.

Communist soldiers captured the town Saturday and government spokesmen said fighting still was in progress. Kirirom lies between the capital and Kompong Som, the deepwater port where an estimated 1,000 guerrillas are reported poised to attack.

Parades In Belfast Peaceful

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Britain mobilized 18,000 troops and policemen throughout this tense nation today to keep the peace during parades climaxed three days of so-far-peaceful Protestant celebrations of a victory over the Roman Catholics in 1690.

Most of the security forces were concentrated in Belfast, where 60,000 Protestants were expected to participate in a nine-hour march through the capital in one of 19 major parades throughout the province.

Choir

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI)—About 10,000 persons gathered in Carolina Coliseum Sunday afternoon to hear a concert by the famed Mormon Tabernacles Choir in its only performance in the east this year.

The afternoon concert was sponsored by the South Carolina Bicentennial Commission. James Barnett, executive director, said tickets for the concert had been sold to persons as far away as Jacksonville, Fla., Richmond, Va., and Tennessee and Alabama.

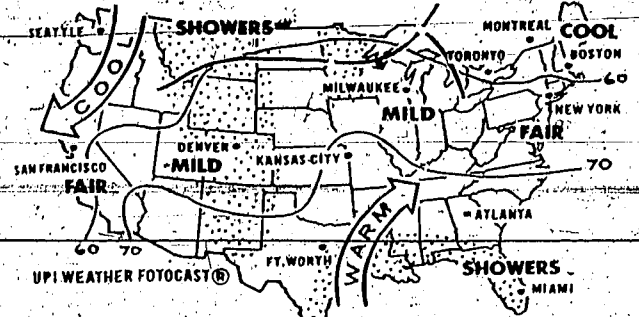

"The kidnaper was described as a black man 30 to 35, wearing a mustache and long hair."

Mrs. Murningham has been missing since Thursday afternoon. She was abducted from a local gift shop where she worked as a clerk by a gunman who also stole $20 after she refused to change a $20 bill.

The kidnaper was described as a black man 30 to 35, wearing a mustache and long hair.

Bessie Thurman

BUHL.—Mrs. Bessie Omega Thurman, 47, of Los Angeles, former Buhl resident, died Friday at a Salt Lake City, Utah, hospital of a short illness. She was in Salt Lake City visiting a son at the time of her death.

Mrs. Thurman was born at Stringtown, Tenn., Oct. 6, 1902 and married Orvan E. Thurman on Oct. 17, 1921 in Stringtown. She had taught school before her marriage. They moved to Idaho in 1925, returned to Tennessee in 1927, and moved to Los Angeles in 1947, where she had made her home since.

Survivors include three sons: Gales Thurman, Salt Lake City; Eston (Chuck) Thurman, Los Angeles; and Eugene Thurman, Rowland Heights, Calif.; one daughter, Mrs. Jessie (Gerardine) Heppner Jr., Hampton, Va.; three brothers, Sherman L. Wright and H. Hayden Wright, both of Buhl, and Gentry H. Wright, Salt Lake City; two sisters, Mrs. Jim (Lillie) Price, Porterville, Calif., and Mrs. Cordie Northrup, Twin Falls; one half-brother, Clyde Wright, Piler; five half-sisters; 13 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by two sisters and two brothers, and by her husband in 1965.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Hopkins Funeral Chapel, Buhl, at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday by Rev. E. P. Hartley. Final rites will follow in the Buhl Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Hopkins Funeral Chapel today and Tuesday until time of services.

Speed Limit Imposed On Eastland

Traffic speeds on Eastland Drive east of Twin Falls will be reduced on a petition from residents in the area, the Twin Falls Highway District said today.

The speed limit will be reduced to 35 miles per hour for half a mile, increased to 45 miles per hour for a mile, and finally returned to the regular 50-mile-per-hour speed limit. Signs will be posted to indicate the varying limits, the district said.

W.A. Foreman

CASTLEFORD.—William A. Foreman, 86, died Sunday of an extended illness at a local nursing home.

He was born Nov. 10, 1881, at Sheridan, Mont. and married Ellen G. Griffitt at Virginia City, Mont., on June 27, 1906. The couple moved to Idaho in 1910 and purchased a farm south of Castleford where they have since resided.

Surviving, besides his widow, are one son, Willis E. Foreman, Castleford; a daughter, Mrs. Rufus (Isabelle) Fields, Buhl; two sisters, Mrs. Effie West, Lincoln, Neb., and Mrs. Usher Stalcup, Spokane, Wash.; two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10:30 a.m. Thursday at the Buhl First Church of the Nazarene by Rev. E. B. Hartley.

Friends may call at Albertson-Dickard Funeral Chapel Wednesday until 8 p.m. Final rites will be at the Buhl Cemetery.

Nixon Will Keep Viets In Control

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Because of his fervent opposition to putting any Communist government in power, President Nixon intends to keep the "no matter how tyrannical"—in command of South Vietnam, says Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D.

"Mr. Nixon has really devoted his public career for the last quarter of a century to fighting Communism," McGovern said Sunday. "He thinks that even any kind of government—even one, I suspect, that had the support of their own people."

And, the senator said, Nixon will tolerate the "Con Son" tiger cages, political prisoners unless there is a public reaction in the United States to "the shocking revelations of torture and brutal treatment."

McGovern's candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1968 and a possible candidate in 1972, was interviewed Sunday on television (Bullseye-Metromedia). He was asked Nixon's intentions in Indochina.

"I think he would love to get out of Vietnam if he could do it with the assurance that he would have an anti-Communist government in power in Saigon that could hold the line," McGovern said.

Egypt Uses Music To Reduce Births

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Headline: "Egyptians to air anti-love songs to help population planning."

The extent to which love songs are responsible for the population explosion has never been determined statistically. Logically, however, we know that romantic music does not go hand-in-hand with planned parenthood.

We also know that the anti-cigarette commercials broadcast in this country have helped curb smoking. It therefore is reasonable to conclude that the Egyptians have hit upon a highly effective method of birth control.

And, in view of the questions that have been raised about the safety of the pill, it seems prudent to suggest that the Egyptian approach be tried in the United States.

Unfortunately, the quality of anti-love songs currently available is meager and it probably will take our composers a good while to build up a sizable library.

Meanwhile, perhaps we could take some of the existing love songs and convert them into anti-love ballads.

Take, for example, a romantic duet such as "I'm in the Mood for Love." After a bit of tampering with the lyrics, it could be reissued as "I'm in the Mood for Badminton."

"I'm in the mood for badminton,"

"Simply because you're near me."

"Funny, but when you're near me,

"I get in the mood for badminton."

If played regularly by the nation's disc jockeys, that should make a dandy population deterrent. Any time you can get a loving couple out of the badminton court, you've gone a long way toward reducing the birth rate.

Another love song that undoubtedly has made a big contribution to present over-crowded conditions is "I Cover the Waterfront." Two of my own children are a direct result of Billie Holiday's recording of that number.

So now what we should do is revise the lyrics and have Dionne Warwick record it as "I Cover the New York Mets."

"I cover the New York Mets; I'm watching TV,"

"Will the team I love

"Soon score a run-for-me?"

As long as you can keep a guy's mind on baseball, he isn't likely to overrun the earth with offspring. And the best part is that there is no risk of harmful side effects.

Suspect Is Charged With Death

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A maintenance worker whose family once shared the home where an attractive divorcee and her two daughters were beaten to death was booked on suspicion of their murders Sunday.

Mrs. Carolyn Stafford, 37, and her daughters, Julie, 6, and Carol Lynn, 17, were bludgeoned to death in their beds sometime Saturday night in what police termed a "copycat" killing similar to the slaw hammer attack which killed two members of a San Gabriel family and critically injured three others last week.

The suspect was identified as Gerard Trent Jr., 25, who, together with his wife, Bonnie, 22, and her two children by a previous marriage, lived on the second floor of the Stafford's two-story Wilshire District home.

Police said Trent "looks like a prime suspect in the case." He reportedly had argued with Mrs. Stafford when he and his family moved out last month. They had lived in the Stafford home about one month.

Detective Sgt. Bob Calkins of the Homicide Division said several "blunt instruments" which could have been used in the slayings were impounded. He refused to identify the weapons.

Police refused to speculate about a motive or to release evidence they said linked Trent to the slayings. However, they said there were "several inconsistencies" in statements he made to officers after he was arrested at his job Sunday afternoon.

Officers also refused to say whether the slayings were definitely related to the beatings of the Fred Seiff family in their San Gabriel home Wednesday. Seiff, 28, and his wife, Gloria, 33, are reported still in critical condition from the beatings. Their daughter, Jennie, 6, was reported in improved condition.

Navajos Go To Movies For Study

BURNHAM, N. M. (UPI)—Navajo Indians, fearing missiles fired over their reservation from the U. S. Army's Blending, Utah, firing complex, went to a movie Saturday for their "first look at the system."

"Most Navajos believe the Pershing missile program is part of atomic bombs," said Ernest Bencenti, president of the Eastern Navajo Council. Bencenti narrated a film presentation to give his people an understanding of the system.

"The missiles that caused the strike were also destroyed in mid-air when they veered off course. The 'missiles' are 'launched' in southern Utah for a target sight in southern New Mexico White Sands Missile Range.

Bencenti, an employe of the Ft. Wingate Army Depot, said the films, photographed by military personnel, were about the national responsibility of the missiles and White Sands Missile Range.

"Basically, what we're doing is to educate the Navajos to the grass-roots or chapter-level to show them this (missile) program is vital to our national defense," Bencenti added.

The Army also fires missiles from its Green River, Utah, launch site.

Installed

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—What is labeled as the nation's first foolproof system to prevent airplane hijacks will be installed this week at New Orleans International Airport.

In announcing the device, the Federal Aviation Administration said the system involves use of a meter to detect hidden metal on passengers or in baggage, and a "behavioral profile chart" for identifying persons with "characteristic hijacker personality traits."

Librarian Attends Conference

Robert Bruce, librarian of the Twin Falls Public Library, and Mrs. Norma Creed, librarian of the Elementary Schools District No. 411, have returned from Boise where they attended an Idaho Library-Association Leadership Conference July 9 and 10.

Delegates to the meet were members of the Idaho Library Association's Executive Board, Library Development Committee and Legislative Committee.

The purpose of the meeting was to consider the needs of Idaho librarians and the goals toward which the Idaho Library Association should work over the next several years.

Reads Testament

LONDON (UPI)—Capt. George Twitchee, 43, of the Salvation Army, finished reading the New Testament in 19 hours and 22 minutes Sunday.

Twitchee's wife said $108 was collected from persons who stopped by the Salvation Army Chapel where her husband was reading aloud. She said the money would go toward purchase of Bibles for Sunday school.

U.S. Will Settle Methadone Argument

NEW YORK (UPI)—A long standing quarrel between morality and expediency over the synthetic narcotic drug methadone is on the way to settlement now that the federal government has stepped in to referee.

Methadone is described as a harmless substitute for heroin. Ten dollars' worth can relieve the destructive pressures of a heroin habit for one year.

Because all the costs of heroin addiction come out of the hide of society, so to speak, no one disputes that it is expedient to provide heroin addicts with methadone at public expense.

For the most part heroin addicts are thugs, sneak thieves, drug pushers, prostitutes and pimp in order to remain heroin addicts. Whatever must be done to get heroin, they do it.

A conservative estimate of the average monetary cost of one heroin addiction is $20,000 a year. By an official estimate there are 200,000 heroin addicts in the United States. That means $4 billion is the annual cost for the nation's heroin addicts.

The social costs in the damage addicts inflict upon their victims, their families and themselves, are incalculable but enormous.

The expediency of the methadone substitute thus is not questioned but the morality is. Like heroin, methadone is an addictive drug. Is it moral to substitute one addiction for another? Strict medical ethics say it is not.

Any treatment which is not therapeutic is unethical which does not cure the disease, in this case drug addiction, nor eliminate its symptoms, in this case the horrendous withdrawal ills that seize any addict deprived of his drug.

Methadone comes under federal and state laws which permit doctors to be the arbiters of how it is used, for what patients, to what purpose. Methadone is a pain-killer. By strict ethical definition it is not therapeutic for anything else.

Doctors who prescribe methadone conspicuously for heroin addiction run the risk of being disciplined by their medical societies. The professional penalties can be severe and in addition they expose a doctor to prosecution under criminal statutes.

In big cities where heroin addiction is widespread enough to frighten even the most conservative medical groups, the risk is minimal. Yet only a few years ago Dr. J. T. Nix of New Orleans had to defend himself—before his medical peers because he operated (and still does) a clinic "maintaining" several hundred addicts on methadone.

Nix is a nationally known surgeon. It has been said only his prominence saved him from capture. At this very time Dr. Peter J. Carter of Lake Worth, Tex., is trying to prevent the state board of medical examiners from censuring him for operating a methadone clinic.

These are among the publicized cases in which doctors persisted to the showdown. No one knows how many doctors quickly gave up methadone with the first breath of disapproval from other doctors but their number is doubtlessly sizeable.

It takes a dedicated doctor to treat heroin addicts for anything. They are hostile, uncooperative, sneaky. They often don't pay doctor's bills and they may well steal the doctor's instrument bag.

If circumstances compel the average doctor to treat heroin addiction, he begins by commanding the addict to use his will power and give up heroin forthwith and forever. This is the traditional "cold turkey" treatment. When it works it is therapeutic in the full moral sense.

It has been applied to many thousands in jails and special hospitals which are actually prisons. After they've been released however, a high percentage of the "patients" return to heroin at once, some after 10 years of imprisonment and abstinence.

Methadone doctors and federal, state and municipal officials who finance their work with public funds bristle indignantly at any suggestion their work, though expedient, is in any way immoral.

Where, they ask, is the immorality of substituting one addiction for another when the addiction substituted for is entirely destructive to its victim, his family, and society and the substitute addiction permits its victim to function as a constructive, law-abiding citizen?

The favorite argument for methadone is that no one considers it immoral for diabetics to have the shots of insulin which keep them going, now the federal government is going to referee methadone through the Justice Department's narcotics bureau and the Food and Drug Administration. More methadone clinics will be established across the country. About 30 are now operating. More "issues" are recognized. Doctors who follow the referee's rules no longer will be in jeopardy.

There is today hardly an American city with any large heroin addiction problem that does not have methadone clinics operated by humanitarian doctors and supported by municipalities or states. Fifteen are sponsored by the federal government's Institutes of Mental Health.

These clinics have accepted methadone treatment as therapeutic in a broad sense, and the practice has had a limited acceptance by the American Medical Association. The range is from Oregon, with a relatively tiny problem of 250 addicts, to New York, which has from 60,000 to 100,000, about half the nation's total, largely concentrated in Harlem and other ghettos of New York City.

The first methadone clinic was started in 1963 with two addict patients in Harlem by Dr. Vincent P. Dole Jr. and his wife, Dr. Marie E. Nyswander, of the Rockefeller University.

Methadone was created by German chemists during World War II as a cheap pain killer to substitute for morphine. In heroin addicts, Drs. Dole and Nyswander discovered, it satisfied the physical craving for heroin without giving addicts the "high" of a sublime sense of wellbeing. It prevented the physical horrors which overwhelm heroin addicts who no longer are getting heroin, and it also prevented a heroin "high" should an addict sneak in a shot of heroin while taking methadone.

The first clinic now "maintains" some 2,000 addicts. To be "maintained" is to get a daily gulp of methadone mixed in an orange soft drink to kill the bitter taste. The addicts report to a network of hospitals where nurses deal out the shots and watch them being downed to be sure there is no cheating.

Social workers guide the addicts under such care to employment and social responsibility. Approximately 75 percent of the 2,000 being maintained by the Dole-Nyswander clinic have jobs or are in trade schools, according to the statistics, and 83 per cent are "socially acceptable members of the community."

AN OFFER to buy used beverage cans and bottles for two cents each, in a move to reduce litter, has snowballed into an expensive proposition for the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Mt. Vernon, Wash. A bank spokesman estimated that 546,000 empty containers had been turned in by Saturday afternoon for a cost to the company of $10,920. They had originally estimated that the campaign would cost between $500 and $1,000. Crews here load the cans aboard huge trucks for disposal. (UPI telephoto).

Troop Use Deemed 'Mistake' By U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The use of U.S. troops to aid small nations threatened by outside aggression is a mistake and only weakens a victim nation, a member of a House Asian fact-finding committee said Saturday.

Rep. Hastings Keith, R-Mass., issued a separate report on the now-controversial inspection trip made last month by the 12-member panel, two of whom sharply criticized South Vietnam's treatment of prisoners.

Keith referred only briefly to the widely publicized findings of Reps. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., and William R. Anderson, D-Tenn., that prisoners on Con Son island were kept in "tiger cages" and mistreated. "Such shocking activity cannot be condoned by the United States and is, of course, personally deplorable to me," Keith said. He said he was certain U.S. officials "are pursuing the matter with South Vietnamese officials and I am positive that action will be taken."

The bulk of Keith's report agreed with conclusions of other committee members that U.S. troops should be withdrawn speedily from Vietnam, and should not be committed again to Cambodia or elsewhere in the area, but that U.S. military and economic aid should be continued.

Keith said the buildup of U.S. troops in Vietnam in 1965 through 1967 "virtually forced the Vietnamese to take a sideline sent to watch U.S. soldiers defend their nation."

Pollution Begins With Washer

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Much of America's water pollution problem begins with the rinse cycle of your automatic washing machine or dishwasher.

When the detergent or presoak is flushed into the sewer, it carries with it into our lakes and rivers 2.5 billion pounds per year of phosphate, the miracle ingredient that made modern washday products possible.

Phosphate washing compounds are not poison and by themselves pollute nothing. It is safe to wash baby's diapers in them. In fact, phosphorus is one of a number of chemicals that are necessary to all life.

But most scientists now agree that the excess phosphate compounds that man is dumping into his environment through such sources as detergents and farm chemicals are triggering a form of pollution that can turn relatively shallow lakes into useless, stinking bogs.

When certain other ingredients—such as carbon and nitrogen—already abound in the lake, the excess phosphates cause an overgrowth of tiny water plants called algae. The algae grow into a thick mass of scum. When they die, they not only smell, but also use up the oxygen in the water, killing the fish. The lake is rendered useless.

As the algae pollution becomes worse, the pollutants settle to the bottom of the lake, making the lake even shallower. Sunlight then raises the temperature of the lake, accelerating the process. The lake turns into a bog or swamp and eventually the swamp becomes dry land.

This is the process mainly responsible for the pollution problem in Lake Erie and the Potomac River around Washington.

The process, known as eutrophication, is not an isolated or a minor problem. A top government official involved in environmental problems said in an interview that "of all the emerging water pollution problems, eutrophication will be the major problem."

Even the most modern treatment plant can't take phosphates from sewage without a special secondary treatment process.

Phosphates are not always the culprit. Sometimes an increase in carbon, nitrogen or the other life-giving chemicals starts the process. But phosphates, according to present scientific knowledge, create the problem in the majority of the cases.

The housewife who wants to help in the battle against pollution has a dilemma. She is showered with advertising slogans and is told constantly of the "active green granules" and "perma power brighteners" and "active enzymes" that will lift her to a cloud of washday bliss.

Nowhere on her detergent box is she told that it contains phosphates, much less the quantity of the compound.

One major manufacturer (Procter & Gamble) is advertising that it is substituting a new ingredient for some of the phosphate in two of its products (Gain and Cheer). Even so, one of its major competitors complained at a Senate hearing that after the alteration, these products still have more phosphates than his company's products.

Electricity

Portland Oregonian... Dr. Lee A. duBridge, the President's science adviser, certainly did not overstate the case when he reported the nation faces a crisis in the task of generating enough electricity to meet our rising everyday demands.

Disastrous outages could occur in many areas, including the Pacific Northwest which is singularly blessed with hydropower and whose per capita consumption is highest in the nation. Reduced voltages, industrial shut-downs, brown-outs and partial black-outs can and probably will occur in many areas.

Reserves are far too low, nationally, and acute in some areas such as New York City. "We may have to mount a national campaign to turn off unnecessary lights, to reduce the use of air conditioners and other electrical equipment," said Dr. duBridge.

Such conservation measures in the face of impending severe shortages will not, of course, answer the problem. There is no way to avoid the necessity of a lot more generating capacity, which in the Northwest now must come from thermal plants as well as fuller utilization of the main-stem flow and storage in the Columbia River.

H.R. Richmond, Bonneville Power Administrator, stated the situation clearly in a recent address. To summarize:

Some environmentalists urge a limit on consumption to present levels, suggesting two major options: (1) stabilization of population, and (2) elimination of electroprocess industries.

Economists have computed that even if the objective of two children per family is achieved by 1975 (unlikely), it will not be until the year 2050 that our population will be stabilized, said Mr. Richmond. There is a disproportionately large number of young people in the present population. But if population were stabilized as of this moment, power requirements in the Northwest in 20 years would exceed 40 million kilowatts, almost 2 1/2 times the present use. Only 1 1/2 per cent of the estimated 6 per cent load growth per year in the next 20 years is attributable to population growth. The rest will come from increase in per capita consumption.

As for the electroprocess industry, which will be permitted only minimal growth under Northwest joint power planning, its present use of power is 13 per cent of regional firm loads and will decline to 9 per cent of the 1990 firm load. If all electroprocess loads were eliminated tomorrow — an extremely harmful blow to employment and capital earnings — Northwest firm peakload requirements in 1990 still would exceed 49 million kilowatts. (Regional power production now is 17 million kilowatts; the power planners project a need for 54 million kilowatts in 1990.)

What some environmentalists overlook in their attacks on increased power generation and other "villains" of the anti-pollution war is that electricity is a major tool in curbing pollution. Again drawing on Mr. Richmond's report:

More than a half-million homes in the Pacific Northwest now use more than 6 billion kilowatt-hours per year for space heating, which does not pollute the air. And more than 1.6 million Northwest homes are heated with fossil fuels which produce more than 38,000 tons of pollutants each year.

There is a lot of talk about getting rid of the automobile's internal combustion engine which is blamed for 60 per cent of aerial pollution. But if all passenger cars now in use in the Northwest were converted to electric power, the energy requirements of the region's utilities would be increased by more than 22 billion kilowatt-hours a year.

A car crusher in Vancouver, Wash., is powered by a 5,000-horsepower electric motor. A machine to shred, bale and compress old auto bodies and other junk uses up to 10,000 horsepower. A secondary sewage treatment plant to serve a population of 60,000 requires a half-million kilowatt-hours a year. Industrial water users now are required to install water pollution control equipment which needs millions of kilowatt hours for the operation of pumps, motors and fans. One metal smelter uses 40 million kilowatt hours a year to control air and water pollution alone. The next step in reducing air pollution from smelters will be high energy electrostatic scrubbers requiring as much as 50,000 kilowatts for operation.

These kinds of examples are endless and they all point to the absolutely essential installation of tremendous generating capacities, not to destroy the environment but to improve it, while providing the employment people must have to live comfortably in an increasingly complex society. Sure, electricity can be rationed. That could become a necessity, but it is not a sensible goal.

Flower Plea

Christian Science Monitor

On the edge of a drab demolition site we see every day is a shabby apartment building waiting to be demolished itself. The top floors already are empty and shuttered. The first floor is still inhabited, and there, at one of the windows, is a vivid, wholly unexpected splash of color.

Have you guessed? It's only a window box, you say. But here's one person who cares enough to fill the box with a bright array of generously flowering petunias and geraniums. Window boxes — why aren't there more of them in America's eastern cities? Europeans coming to the United States Atlantic Coast are surprised at the fewness — sometimes the total absence — of flowers. Yet flowers can do so much to add gaiety, freshness, and beauty to the looks of a city. We would like to see flowers burgeoning from thousands of American windowills, brightening hundreds of streets.

That Democratic Difficulty

WASHINGTON — Two private political meetings held in California recently have hammered home little deeply foreboding messages to the Democrats: there will be no financial aid from out-of-state sources for the voter-registration campaign so essential to the party's chances in November.

Committee money to finance voter registration, but what they got from the committee's two top officers — Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien and Treasurer Robert Strauss — was an appeal for contributions from California.

Education (COPE) said big labor would limit its California registration efforts to labor union members — a mere sliver of the unregistered potential. Those two meetings indicate that while President Nixon's difficulties with Indochina and the economy provide nice issues for the Democrats, they do not seem to compensate for severe structural deficiencies in state Democratic parties.

What has brought ulcers to Democratic pros in California has been the inattention in recent years party registration. Vast numbers of voters, Democrats in California are really conservatives who habitually vote Republican. Thus, state Democratic victories have not been produced with Democratic registration much — below 57.5 percent of the statewide total. Today the Democratic proportion has slipped to a telltale 54.5 percent.

There have been looking longingly to Washington (though on a more modest scale than 1962). Managers of Rep. John V. Tunney, nominee for the U. S. Senate, want the National Committee to finance an expert technician to run the registration campaign. The man Tunney wants is Matt Reese, a skilled but expensive professional.

The justification in California for this expense is that, even though the National Committee verges on bankruptcy, contributions to California would be used money for the Presidential campaign of 1972. State Assemblyman Jess Unruh is known to feel that, if he could upset Gov. Ronald Reagan, the magnetism of a Democratic governor in Sacramento again would draw vastly more money into the national till than any present nickel-and-dime fundraising.

Nevertheless, the National Committee is in no position to subsidize anything. When O'Brien and Strauss came to the Beverly-Hilton seeking pledges of $100 a month, their goal was to keep the debt-ridden National Committee's doors open.

The state organization is in no better shape financially, and considerably worse organizationally.

Spine Disc

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a condition diagnosed as "narrowing of a disc" in the spine. I would appreciate any information. — Mrs. D. M.

Your spine, you know, is a column of bones or vertebrae. Between these vertebrae are "discs," or cushions of fibrous tissue, which let the bones move easily and smoothly.

Various things can happen to these discs. With passage of time, they can become thinner, or narrowed, with part of the disc bulging into the spinal canal. (Changes in the shape of the bones may be associated with this.)

Anyway, the bulging part of the disc can put pressure on roots of the nerves, which radiate outward from the spinal canal, and produce pain. The pain may be in the back, or it may involve the sciatic nerve which extends down the back of the legs — sensation. The pain is commonly in the leg although the cause of the pain is in the spine. (Usually one leg is involved.)

Injury or sudden compression also can damage a disc, a fall in sitting position, or jumping downward for some distance, so that abrupt pressure is exerted on the discs.

A disc can be ruptured, or misshapen. While this is often referred to as a "slipped disc," it seems to me much better to call it a damaged or ruptured disc.

Pain, difficulty in raising the leg, changes or absence of reflexes are among the symptoms that, together, identify the trouble.

Whatever the cause of the damage, the usual practice is to try conservative treatment at first, with bed rest. After a week or 10 days, a back brace may be tried. Occasionally traction is helpful.

If these conservative methods do not bring improvement, then surgery may be necessary. Surgery can't do anything to replace a damaged disc, but adjacent vertebrae may be fused by means of a bone graft or other measures taken to prevent the damaged disc from exerting (or permitting) pressure on the nerve roots.

There is a tendency for the discomfort or disc damage to come and go, depending largely on the patient's activity. Thus it pays not to make up your mind in too much haste as to whether a form of treatment is doing what you want it to do. Generally speaking, however, persistent and progressive disc pain that does not yield to conservative treatment will usually respond to surgery.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Tell that lady who walks in her sleep to put a sheet of tin beside her bed and when her feet touch it she will wake up. My sister was a sleepwalker and that was what stopped her. — Mrs. M. F.

That's new to me, but if it works, that's fine. Thank you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have severe headaches. The doctor has given me several prescriptions, but they do not alleviate the headaches and instead make me sick and nauseated. I have these headaches two or three times a month and they last 24 hours. Are these an indication of diabetes? — Mrs. G.R.

I see no connection with diabetes. The description sounds more like migraine headache. Some who suffer with that become nauseated and can't take pills or keep them down. For them the use of medication in suppository form by rectum often is the answer. Might suggest it to your doctor.

Headaches! You can beat them. Write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for a copy of the booklet, "How To Tame Headaches." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

On Obscenity

Two years ago a presidential commission was appointed to consider the probably related problems of "obscenity and violence."

The objectives of their investigation include one which has confounded jurists, clergymen and semanticists for generations: A definition for obscenity.

You and I know dirt when we see it, but what's urgently needed is a definition which will stand up in a court of law.

Maybe we ordinary folks can help these learned scholars. The Presidential Commission on Obscenity and Violence has designated 40 institutions around the country to conduct separate surveys. Wayne State University, one of those institutions, got some dirty pictures together and turned them over to the Index of the local Council on Better Literature for Youth.

When the president of that council, Mrs. R.G. Johnson, saw the first 60 slides, she was indignant. All were "unnecessarily filthy," she said. "We thought we were doing something constructive for our country. You don't need to provide 60 such slides to get a point across."

Her indignation gets us right down to the nitty-gritty of this unresolved dilemma: What's acceptable on a Broadway stage may not be in Gross Point, Mich.

The Rev. Winfrey Link, Methodist minister, is a member of the presidential commission. Recently he criticized the commissioners for "sitting around talking to ourselves, exchanging our own ignorance."

He said he was speaking out in advance of the commission's formal report in September because "The American people have a right to know on what we are spending their millions of dollars."

hearings — but he was.

Dr. Link says a federal government standard for what's obscene is impractical because what is accepted in New York may not be in rural America. However, the U.S. Constitution, Article III, empowers Congress to make "exceptions and regulations" to the Supreme Court's appellate jurisdiction.

ANDREW TULLY

Not Unhappy

WASHINGTON — Politically, Nixon administration strategists are not as unhappy as they seem over the difficulties encountered by the President's welfare reform program in the Democratic Senate. They figure, with unsavory logic, that Richard Nixon can't lose on this one.

If the Senate follows the House's example and passes the bill, which seems most unlikely, Nixon will get the credit. If the Senate balks, Nixon will be presented with an important issue in this fall's Congressional elections campaign. After all, it's Nixon's bill, and when last year the Democrats still owned and operated the U.S. Senate.

This is not to say the administration will drag its feet on the legislation — which guarantees an annual income of $1,600 a year for a family of four. The bill is one of Nixon's pet projects, quite aside from representing an answer to those critics who fault him for neglecting the poor. He will intercede personally on the Hill if the Democratic-dominated Senate Finance Committee continues its delaying tactics, led by Sen. Russell Long, D-La., its chairman, and Republican conservative under Sen. John Williams of Delaware.

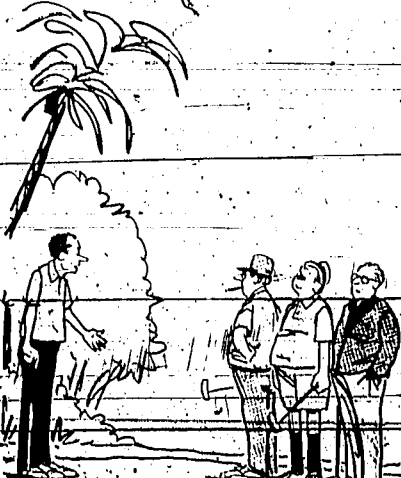

Among other tactics, Nixon if necessary will appeal over Long's headstrong posture. Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, Mansfield favors the bill, with certain reservations. He is also running for reelection in November, and although Montana is not New York it has not in modern times elected any Republicans to the Senate.

To objective observers, the bill's difficulties offer another example of a fact of Capitol Hill life: to wit, that the liberal Democratic bloc can't count. With even conservatives warning of more trouble ahead in the cities if more is not done for the needy, the liberals so far have spent their time out to lunch.

Little has been heard from those self-styled humanitarians — Sens. Teddy Kennedy, Abe Ribicoff, Gene McCarthy, George McGovern, Ed Muskie and Fred Harris. Admittedly, Long's foot-dragging tactics in the Finance Committee are strengthened by support from GOP conservatives, but — again — the Democrats run the show, generally along liberal lines, and they could apply enough pressure to pass the bill, as they did to defeat the Supreme Court nominations of Clement Haynsworth and G. Harrold Carswell.

The whole thing adds up to a curious situation, as noted by Daniel Patrick Moynihan, counselor to the President and resident White House liberal. Moynihan says he can't understand why the legislation is not getting any real support from the people and organizations who should be with us in this critical hour. Although he says he can't understand this, Moynihan nevertheless put his finger on the reason for lack of liberal support. "They do not want us to fail," he says. "That part of their spirit and goodness survives. But they somehow do not want us to succeed. They do not, I sometimes think, want anything to succeed."

Health Centers Sought For Poor

By DAVID HASKELL
BOSTON (UPI)—Somewhere in the slums of New York City—or it could be Boston or Los Angeles or Chicago—a rat climbs into a baby's crib and bites the infant. Doctors treat the bite but nothing is done about the rats.

A mother on the Mississippi Delta gets medical help after becoming sick from drinking putrid water, but chances are the next time she gets thirsty she will drink the same water.

A father barely able to support his family suffers chest pains but can't afford to take the time off from work to have an examination. Medical help for him is available, but virtually inaccessible because of a myriad of barriers.

These are just a few of the contradictions facing today's medical profession, skilled in the treatment of illnesses but, until recently, generally ignorant of—of perhaps ignoring—the environmental causes, suffered most harshly by the poor.

It is toward the goal of bringing the medical help to the poor who are unable to come and get it that Dr. H. Jack Gelger has been striving.

Gelger, chairman of the department of community health and social medicine at Tufts University School of Medicine, advocates a network of comprehensive community health centers as a way to begin solving first the health problems of the poor and eventually those of the rest of the population. He already directs such centers in Boston and Rolliver County, Miss.

In Gelger's thinking, the poor come first because they suffer most.

"We have sat here in our institutions and said, OK, if you're sick, come in, we'll lay our hands, we'll treat you, we'll

Drug Abuse Is Problem In Business

NEW YORK (UPI)—Drug abuse not only is becoming a problem among the young, it is growing "omniously" within the business world. This was a conclusion of a report released Sunday by the New York Chamber of Commerce.

Thomas Stainback, executive vice-president of the chamber, said business leaders were concerned the drug problem within the past two years had become almost as serious as drinking.

"It is evident that business does not want to sweep the problem under the rug by pretending it does not exist as they did for so many years with the problem of alcoholism," he said. "But business doesn't yet have guidelines to handle the situation, he said.

The Research Institute of America gathered the material for the report based on interviews and questionnaires conducted with 80 major business firms, most with headquarters in the New York area.

The 64-page document said drug abuse had increased to a "startling extent" within the business world and was becoming an "omniously growing problem."

Buhl Youth Attends Camp

Eric Ahlm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Ahlm, of Buhl, is one of two Idaho representatives who toured the Washington D.C. area recently, along with 98 other delegates of the National Youth Science Camp.

The nation's top graduating high school students, two from each state, visited the Goddard Space Flight Center, the White House, the Capitol and the Smithsonian Institution. They were guests of honor at a luncheon at the new Senate dining room, where they had the opportunity to chat informally with their Senators and other government officials.

Dr. Thomas G. Paine, NASA's chief administrator and guest speaker at the luncheon, predicted great expansion and unlimited potential for nation's space effort in the 1970's.

Pollution Conflict Arises

By NORMAN KEMPSTER (WASHINGTON UPI)—A growing number of communities have temporarily banned new home building because of overburdened sewage treatment facilities cannot handle additional waste without producing unacceptable water pollution.

The situation dramatizes a seeming conflict between two of the nation's basic goals: production of a decent home for every American and protection of the environment.

Most government officials think there is only one constructive way to settle the problem. New sewage treatment facilities must be built. But that cost money and both federal and local governments are having fiscal problems.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has announced plans to give priority treatment to applications for urban renewal funds from communities which are making the best progress in solving their own air and water pollution problems.

But details of that plan, announced recently by HUD assistant secretary Lawrence Cox, have not yet been worked out.

And even though the plan would give cities an incentive to solve their pollution problems, it would not be much help to communities that find it difficult to finance needed sewer projects. Construction freezes have been imposed in areas in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Indiana, Ohio, Georgia and California. Most of the bans were ordered until new sewer facilities can be installed.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards recently said the pollution problems could hurt home building more in the long run than the current tight money situation.

In its official publication "rentor's headlines," the association said: "Many builders have said the time has come for local governments to reassess their priorities and to put more emphasis on sewage treatment plants and less on providing the latest refinements for their school systems."

"These builders point out that it does not do any good to provide more classroom or recreational facilities if building development in the community is frozen because present treatment plants are overtaxed."

Local pollution control officials who have imposed the ban apparently believe it does little good to provide more houses if the communities will drown in their own sewage.

The conflict between protecting the environment and meeting the nation's housing goals is more apparent than real. The housing goal, after all, is for a "decent home in a decent environment" for every American.

Burch Sees No Change In TV Reporting

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Dean Burch, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, said today he could detect no drastic change in television commentary since Vice President Spiro T. Agnew began his criticism of the networks.

In fact, he said, some members of the news media have been "a little over-hysterical about their First Amendment rights" since Agnew spoke out late last year.

"I think the First Amendment guarantees criticism," Burch told a news conference.

"I think anybody in this country, up to and including the President and vice president, has the right and even an obligation to criticize the news."

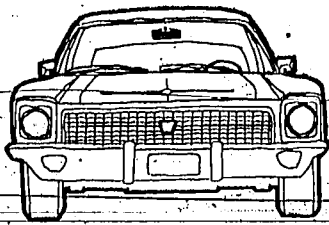

"It would be dangerous if they were immune to all criticism," Burch said and added: "There is no cabal on the part of anybody in this administration to discipline the news-media."

The proposals for purchase and development of the properties indicated in this offering shall be through sealed bids and shall be submitted to the Urban Renewal Agency of the City of Twin Falls, 26 Second Street East, P. O. Box 213, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301, no later than 2:00 p. m., Mountain Standard Daylight Time, on the 12th day of August, 1970, at which time all proposals will be publicly opened.

All proposals shall be submitted in sealed envelopes plainly marked "PROPOSAL TO PURCHASE LAND IN THE FOURTH URBAN RENEWAL BUSINESS DISTRICT URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT."

All proposals must be submitted on the appropriate bidding forms and in accordance with "Instructions to Bidders" which are available at the Office of the Urban Renewal Agency, 26 Second Street East, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.

Bidding forms and related documents may be obtained by depositing ten ($10) dollars with the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency for each set of documents to be obtained. Each such deposit will not be refunded.

Each bidder must enclose a certified check, bank draft, bank cashier's check, negotiable bonds or other similar obligation of the United States or of a surety bond, payable to the order of the Urban Renewal Agency of the City of Twin Falls in an amount not less than ten (10) percent of the sale price of the parcel for which he is bidding. This deposit is to insure that if he is selected as the successful bidder, he will sign an agreement with the Urban Renewal Agency to develop the property and complete the development in accordance with his proposal and the agreement, including payment in full by cash or certified check upon delivery of deed conveying property to purchaser, in the event the successful bidder fails to do so.

All bids shall be received for a period of sixty (60) days following the date of bid opening and shall remain in effect thereafter until and unless withdrawn in writing by the bidder.

After having considered all bids, the Agency reserves the right to reject any or all bids received, the right to waive any informalities in the bidding and the right to accept such bids as it seems to be in the public interest and the furtherance of the Urban Renewal Plan.

A UNIQUE "GRASS" is "planted" with a unique "fertilizer" — a bucket of adhesive — on the south side of the new Times-News building by a Caldwell landscape expert. The polyethylene turf, similar in construction to the famed Astroturf now being extensively used in football stadiums across the nation, is composed of realistic blades of "grass" which never need mowing or watering, in the usual sense, though it can be scrubbed when dirty with a stream of water from a hose. The installation, by the Parma Water-Lifter Company, through Magic Valley representative Fred C. Malitz of Wendell, is believed to be the first of its kind in the State of Idaho.

GOP Official Says Many Are 'Fed Up'

By RAYMOND LAHR
WASHINGTON (UPI) — James N. Allison Jr., deputy chairman of the Republican National Committee, says his travels show that "a lot of people are fed up with the ins" in this national election year. He applies his findings to Republicans as well as Democrats.

The Rev. Joseph Duffey, national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, says he believes "ins" plus "for" candidates this year. He says he does not already hold elective office.

These conclusions, from points far apart on the political spectrum, represent two ways of saying that the voters are in a mood to throw the fascists out. But while the crucial tests

Rogers Says U.S. Frets On Mideast

LONDON (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Saturday the United States is "concerned" about the situation in the Middle East and expressed hope the parties concerned will bring negotiations after a cease-fire.

Rogers expressed his view at a news conference after four-hour talks with British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas Home.

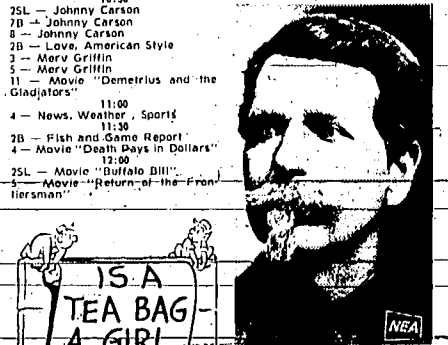

Rogers said the American proposals for a Middle East peace settlement were constructive and he hoped the parties involved would carefully consider it.

He said the Soviet peace proposals constituted a "step forward" but that a good deal depended on the parties involved whether progress could be made.

Rogers said that the United States is concerned lest the buildup of Soviet SAMs anti-aircraft missiles in Egypt may be moving closer to the Suez Canal than previously.

Rogers shrugged off suggestions that the United States wanted Soviet troops "expelled" from the Middle East but added it would be desirable not to have them in Egypt, especially when a settlement becomes reachable.

Prolonged Moscow talks between the Kremlin leaders and Egyptian Premier Gen. Gamal Abdel Nasser appeared, he suggested, to suggest that some serious consideration was being given to the U.S. peace plan.

FATHER OF FATHER'S Day was William Jackson Smart of Spokane, Wash., a Civil War veteran, who raised six children after his wife's death. A daughter, Mrs. Bruce Dodd, organized the first Father's Day observance in Smart's honor in 1910.

Doctor Looks On Middle Years With Optimism

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — We usually refer to it as middle age. Some persons approach it with apprehension, seeing nothing but a gloomy downhill road for the rest of their lives. For others, it marks the beginning of a whole new freedom, an enjoyable pattern — "gateway to a new and interesting life," as one British physician puts it.

Dr. Margaret Smyth looks on the middle years with these optimistic words:

"It has been generally thought that men and women started to show general decline after the age of 40, but this has been found to be true only of a minority of people whose premature aging arteries caused them to show signs of wear and tear before they really should.

"We all know of 50 or even 60-year-old film stars and ballerinas and female politicians and television personalities who are at the peak of their careers."

Dr. Smyth describes changes after 40 or so in a new "Family Doctor," publication of the British Medical Association. Primarily, she talks of what happens when female menopause sets in, but there's valuable advice for both men and women in matters of mood and emotions, and sex activity.

She dismissed much of the folklore as "a lot of ... nonsense." Some women have no discomfort and no problems, some do need medical attention. But Dr. Smyth believes that the majority adapt to the change as naturally as they adapt to the first gray hairs. The middle years bring changes in men too, she reminds.

Accordingly, she advises: "In changes of mood and tempo, the sympathy that lies between husband and wife is based on the understanding of the differing personalities of each sex."

"During the middle years, if added understanding can go out from each side, it makes changes in body and emotional rhythms much easier to accept.

"There is no need at all for middle age ... to herald a dramatic change in sexual habits," she says. "The couple who have led a full sexual life will continue to experience pleasure ..."

DEAR ABBY: Apropos of Helen who is 25, single, Roman Catholic and "hopelessly in love" with a Lutheran, 33, who is divorced with two children; Helen says she will not give up her religion to marry him, she's broken up with him a dozen times but they always get back together again. She's begged him to leave her alone, but instead the "Foxy Romeo" moved into her apartment building, so now they are seeing more of each other than ever!

I suspect it's Helen who doesn't want to get married. Many girls "fall in love" only with men they can't marry. (Either the man is married, or divorced, or he is a priest.) My sympathies are with Foxy Romeo. If he's looking for a wife and a mother for his two kids, he'd better forget Helen. She wants a boyfriend—not a husband. No girl "breaks up" and makes up a dozen times unless she enjoys having the man around.

If you want to call Helen's bluff, advise her to take her Romeo to a priest (or contact me). Due to legal technicalities, some divorced persons can remarry. It's a longshot, but it's worth a try. If it turns out that Helen can marry her Romeo, I will wager that instead of rushing into his arms, she will move to another apartment building to avoid him.

Very truly yours,
Rev. Anthony P. Vaz
St. Luke's Rectory,
Westport, Conn.

DEAR REVEREND VAZ: I appreciate your offer to help Helen. And heaven help YOU with the mail you are likely to receive after this.

DEAR ABBY: I was once in Helen's shoes. A more devout Roman Catholic would have been hard to find. Then I fell in love with a beautiful Protestant, the son of a minister, yet I was torn between him and my church.

Then it occurred to me that my church is changing so rapidly. What happened to the "No-Meat-On-Friday" church? How about St. Christopher who is no longer a saint? And nuns who, with the blessings of the church, wear mini skirts and boots? And the pressure to permit priests to marry could conceivably win out in time. Now I'm wondering what will Helen think if she gives up the man she loves to some other woman, and the church decides a month (or a year) later that Roman Catholics MAY marry divorced non-Catholics?

Because I married a non-Catholic and practice birth control, I cannot go to confession or receive communion. I have not been back to the Catholic church because according to them I am living in mortal sin and shall surely go to hell. If I sound bitter, maybe it's because I am. But I am not the only good Catholic they have lost.

I gave up my church for this wonderful man, but I did NOT give up my God. NO REGRETS IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR ABBY: This is in reply to "Helen." MARRY HIM! Many years ago I fell in love with a divorced man. I was born and raised a Catholic and wanted to remain so. The strength of my convictions led me to say goodbye to my lover. We agreed never to see each other again and I have regretted my decision ever since.

I remained single for a long time because I still felt deeply for the man I gave up for my religion. Now for the ironic twist: I fell in love with another divorced man, but this one I married. He is a fine man and we are happy. I still go to church, but am denied the sacraments.

I am better off happily married to a divorced man than unhappily married to a Catholic who boasts that he hasn't ever been married. (I was engaged to two such men.)

So, Helen, I know your sorrow, and feel mine again just by reading your letter in Abby's column. I don't believe God will damn us because we love and marry a divorced man.

LIVING AGAIN AND NO REGRETS

What's your problem? You'd feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Miss Schwartz is the granddaughter of Mrs. O. A. Schwartz, Twin Falls.

Father Donoghue performed the late-afternoon ceremony. Mrs. Eldon Meyer, Salem, Ore., was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Carol Williams, Stanford, Conn., Anne Marie Toolson, Rupert, and Linda Lewis, Long Beach, Calif.

J. Bryan Williams, Jr., served as his son's best man. Ushers were Robert W. Armstrong, Stanford, Roger Welch, Redondo Beach, Calif., and Henry J. Gerken, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Special guests at the wedding were their grandparents, Mrs. O. A. Schwartz and Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Toolson, all Twin Falls; and Mrs. George H. Sigrist, Phoenix, Ariz.

Out of town guests attended from Twin Falls, Rupert, Jerome, Phoenix, Ariz., Stanford, Conn., and Dallas, Tex.

CAPT. AND MRS. J. BRYAN WILLIAMS-III

After a honeymoon trip to Europe, the couple will reside in New York City, N. Y., where the bridegroom is employed, starting Aug. 1, at Shearman and Sterling, attorneys.

The bride attended Temple Buell College, Denver, Colo. The bridegroom attended the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. and New York University, School of Law, New York, N. Y.

Single-Greeting Card Production Is Interesting

As many as 3,000 people, executing up to 300 separate processes, are required to create a single greeting card. And the final product of all those people will sell for a mere 25 or 35 cents — sometimes as little as a nickel.

So say production specialists at Hallmark Cards, who publish more than 10,000 new greeting card designs a year.

Cards may be lithographed, silk-screened, glossed, embossed, flocked, filtered, dyed, coated, glued, folded, laminated, die-cut or engraved. They are treated to look like cloth, parchment, leather, suede, wood, satin or metal. They are permeated with oil, ink, filler, dye, wood-grain, cellulose fibers, colored threads or diamond dust sequins.

Each card is routed through more than 30 testing stations before it is considered ready for the customer. The entire process, from writing the verse and drawing the illustration to completely finished product, takes more than three months.

Reading Aloud To Children Is As Vital As Vitamins

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — You whistle, toot, growl, roar like a lion, meow, moo and make other sounds, some of them unworlily, when reading to toddlers.

In addition to bringing out the latent actor in you, such goings-on are required if your child's to get the proper start in life. Authorities say reading aloud to children under the age of five probably is as vital as vitamins and balanced meals. Besides, it's fun — whether you're reading about a red bus, the garbage man's adventures or Henny Penny.

To help you, the Child Study Association of America has put together a guide called "Reading with Your Child — Through Age 5."

The guide was prepared by the Children's Book Committee in cooperation with the staff of child study's project Head Start.

It contains tips on introducing children to the fun and learning to be found in good books. More than 150 titles are listed by subject, such as children and families, animals, city stories, real things and machines, ABC and counting books, fantasy, humor and folk tales, verse, songs, and of course, Mother Goose.

In addition to learning your child also has his feelings touched when you read aloud to him.

"Sometimes the stories are happy, sometimes funny, sometimes sad," the association said. "These stories help your child understand his own feelings and those of other people."

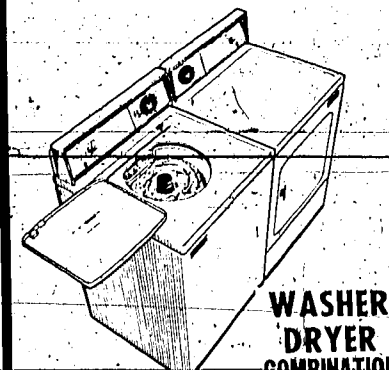

The authorities caution against trying to make your toddler read. Encourage him when he shows an interest, but don't insist that he learn the alphabet or how to spell. Let him go at his own pace.

"Most important is his pleasure in books," the association said. Child Study is a voluntary non-profit national agency that for nearly a century has been dedicated to "improving the quality of family and community living for parents and children."

One nice thing about reading to children: You don't have to be an expert. There is no best way to do it. Just be yourself.

Queen Hears Gripes

THE PAS, Manitoba (UPI)—A Canadian Indian chief told Queen Elizabeth II Saturday the government had failed to live up to its promises to the Indians of peace, harmony, social advancement and equality of opportunity.

The criticism was in sharp contrast to the usually bland statements made before the Queen. It was believed one of the most strongly worded complaints ever made before her.

In her response, made in a sombre and thoughtful manner, Queen Elizabeth acknowledged that the Indians were among the neediest of her subjects in Canada.

David Courchene, chief of the Manitoba Indian Brotherhood, criticized the treatment of the Indians when the queen visited an impoverished reservation of 1,000 Indians near this town; known as the "gateway to Manitoba" northward, 300 miles north of Winnipeg.

"It is with sorrow that we note the promises of peace and harmony, of social advancement and equality of opportunity have not been realized by Indian people," said Courchene, who wore ceremonial garb.

"I am sure you will note on your visits to Indian communities that Indians have not, in effect, profited fully by the prosperity of this great and wealthy nation," he said.

In reply, the queen, speaking from a prepared text, said: "Ever since Europeans began to penetrate central and western Canada, it has been a story of turbulence and change. The changes of the last century have affected people all over the world, but here in Canada they have been felt most acutely by the Indian people."

She said she hoped that in the future all the people of Manitoba "will play a full and responsible part in the administration of the province and its future development, for the benefit of all Canadians whose home this is."

Residents of the reservation and the 54 tribal chiefs and six appointed senators presented warmly applauded the queen's words.

The queen was accompanied by her husband, Prince Phillip, and her daughter, Princess Anne. Prince Charles, who also is on the tour, visited the mining town of Elin Elen while the royal party was at the reservation.

MARK L. LIERMAN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Lierman, Filer, was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army during commensurate exercises at the University of Idaho. He was presented the Superior Cadet ribbon, given annually to an outstanding Army ROTC cadet. Assisting him in planning on his gold bars were his sister, Mrs. Lester Goren, left, and his mother. He will attend the Quartermaster Officers basic course at Ft. Lee, Va., beginning Feb. 1. He also received a B. S. degree in agriculture from the U. of I.

War Foes Arrested

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)—Eight antiwar exponents from the Minneapolis area were arrested Saturday when they attempted to raid three Minnesota draft board offices. All were charged with attempted sabotage.

In a fourth Minnesota town, Wabasha, all current draft records disappeared.

Police and Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, who were awaiting the group inside the offices, said Francis X. Kroncke, 75, and Michael D. Thorrault, 23, were arrested as they entered the Little Falls draft office; Brad K. Böncke, 21, Donald H. Olson, 26, and Peter A. Simmons, 19, were arrested at the Winona draft office, and William L. Tilton Jr., 22, Clifton L. Ulen, 28, and Charles L. Turchick, 23, were arrested at the Alexandria Draft Office.

All are from Minneapolis except Turchick who lives in suburban St. Louis Park.

Neither the FBI nor local authorities would disclose how they knew of the impending raids. But a spokesman for the committee to defend the eight said he was sure the information came from an informer, whom he said he did not know. Little Falls is about 90 miles northwest of Minneapolis, Alexandria is 130 miles west of Minneapolis, and Winona 120 miles southeast of Minneapolis.

The charges of attempted sabotage carries a maximum penalty of $10,000 or 10 years in prison or both.

Turchick, Olson, Simmons, Ulen, Therrault and Tilton were listed as students in the 1969-70 University of Minnesota student directory. Böncke is a laborer and Kronke teaches theology at St. Catherine's College.

Bail was set at $50,000 each for the eight. No damage was reported at the three offices.

Auto Collector Moans Over Theft Of Hubcap

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (UPI)—Lyle Vanderbaugh auctioned off his extensive antique collection Saturday but at least one "collector" got a souvenir without paying.

The auction featured a coach believed to have belonged to the royal family of England, buggies and vintage cars.

Vanderbaugh, whose auction began before noon and ran into the evening, reported he was a "little bit sick" because somebody stole a hubcap from a 1920 Packard automobile.

"We let them get up too close to the cars, and somebody lifted a 1920 Packard hubcap and a few other things," he said.

Vanderbaugh, 58, a propane gas dealer, decided to auction off his collection after he was unable to establish a museum for them.

He said he became discouraged at the idea after everybody he interviewed about becoming curator showed more interest in salary and working conditions than in the collection.

Vanderbaugh said he acquired the royal coach and another more elaborate coach several years ago when they were imported from Europe. The second coach also is believed to have been used by the royal family of England. It currently is being restored.

The nation's longest boxing bout occurred in 1893, when Andy Bowen and Jack Burke fought 110 rounds to a draw in New Orleans.

Regional Antique Car Show Attracts Thousands In Twin Falls

IT WAS ONE of the best attended exhibitions to be staged in Magic Valley and people interested in "old" cars made the trek to Sears parking lot in Twin Falls on Sunday to satisfy their curiosity. Sponsored by members of the Gooding regional group of the Horseless Carriage Club of America, there were more than 50 antique autos on display. There was, in addition, an old steam engine in operation during the day and there were also displays of old license plates and related items. During the day there was also much "horse" trading as antique car owners bartered back and forth for items they required. All in all, officials said, the weather cooperated to the point that thousands took advantage of the opportunity to inspect the displays. They looked at the front of them, the back of them and the inside and outside of them. Many, of course, were "just like Mom and Dad used to drive when I was a kid." Most of the antique cars drove to and from the lot under their own power. Pictures by Gus Keiker of the Times-News show some of the activity.

Care Of Tots Said Crucial

BURLEY — Renee Stewart, Day Care Director for this area, was guest speaker during the Burley Rotary Club weekly luncheon.

Mrs. Stewart told the group of the serious problem facing young mothers in trying to support children left to their custody as a result of broken homes and divorces.

The Day Care Program in Burley is sponsored as a part of a federal program and fills a vital need for these youngsters and their mothers, she added.

Under Day Care program a building is provided at 1600 Albion Ave., for the youngsters to be guided and directed while the mothers accept employment.

The average mother going out to work receives about $200 per month and this is very meager in providing a home for children. Those who have to pay baby-sitters find it virtually impossible to come out ahead.

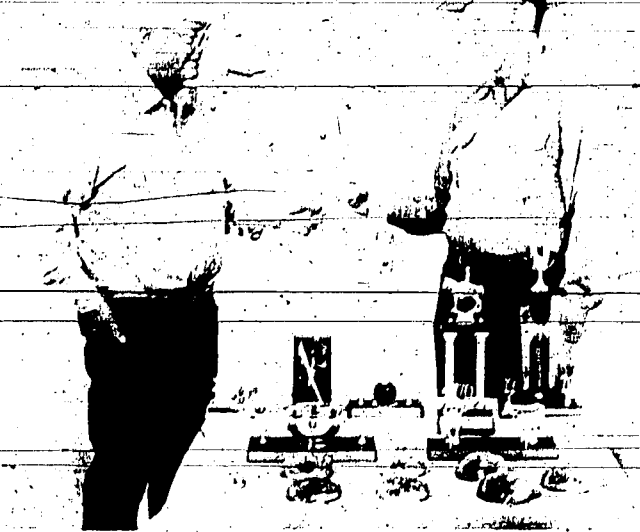

A trained director is in charge of the Day Care Center. As many as 50 youngsters have been in the school, but presently the enrollment is down.

The school can accept more children if application is made to the school. Youngsters from two and one-half years to five years old can be cared for at the school.

Mrs. Stewart urged the Rotary Club members, many of whom are business and industrial leaders, to employ dependent mothers who seek employment. She said these women are in great need and take opportunities more seriously than most types of employees because of their responsibilities.

Guests were John Snow, Burley; Robert Hatch, Salt Lake City; Robert Peterson, Twin Falls; George Mueller, Ken Bell and Robert Wall, all Rupert.

It was announced that the Rupert Rotary Club now meets each Thursday at Rupert Elks Lodge.

OFFICIALS OF HAGERMAN'S Pioneer Day celebration on July 24. Jack Allen, parade chairman, and LeRoy Jolley, rodeo chairman, look over trophies and buckles to be awarded at the annual event. Carolyn Harvey, Twin Falls, Miss Rodeo Idaho, will reign over the parade and rodeo as Pioneer Day Queen.

Hagerman Plans Celebration Of Pioneer Day On July 24

HAGERMAN — Plans for the annual Pioneer Day celebration are well under way to make this year's July 24th another outstanding event in Hagerman Valley.

Reigning over the parade and rodeo will be Pioneer Day Queen and reigning Miss Rodeo Idaho, Carolyn Harvey, Twin Falls. Mrs. Howard Haslam, Bliss, said that several girls have registered as queen contestants, but there is room for a few more. Queen contestants will be limited to 12. Mrs. Haslam noted that some girls had to be turned down last year as they were too late registering or inquired after the quota had been reached. For further information, any girls interested may contact Mrs. Haslam.

Queen contestants will be judged on horsemanship, personality and appearance. Rules for the contest will be the same as for previous years. A breakfast for the queen contestants will be served at 6 a.m. at the Oxbow Cafe, Bliss.

At a recent committee meeting, LeRoy Jolley, rodeo chairman, and Mrs. Jolley displayed trophies and "belt buckles" which will be presented for various rodeo events as well as to first place parade winners.

Regarding some concern over the acceptance of book donations, Mrs. Warnke said it has always been the policy of the library to accept donations, "using as many of them as possible." "If you have books you wish to dispose of, please remember the library," she said.

Queen Competition Begins At Gooding

GOODING — The Gooding County Fair and Rodeo Board has opened its contest to find the 1971 Gooding County Fair and Rodeo Queen.

To enter a girl must be over the age of 18 by September 1, but not over 24 years of age.

There will also be a junior princess selected and this contest is open to girls between the ages of 14 and 17.

Entry blanks may be obtained by calling Mrs. Bob A. Robinson at Tuttle.

Soroptimists Open Historic Display

BURLEY — The Antique Show and Historical display sponsored by the Burley Soroptimist Club opened for public viewing today in the basement of Van Engelen's.

The show will be open from 10 a.m. Mondays and Wednesdays and from 3 to 8 p.m. on Fridays, according to club officials.

Mrs. Ralph Fink, chairman of the display, said antiques will still be received this week during open viewing hours. Persons who have items they wish to display may call Mrs. Fink, Mrs. Fred Sherrard, or Vivien Odney.

No display of antiques is planned at the Cassia County Fairgrounds this year because the building which housed antiques for several years has been torn down. The display in downtown Burley sponsored by the Soroptimist Club is being held in honor of the "100 Years of Progress in Cassia County" and replaces the show held annually at the Fairgrounds by the club.

Missing Girl Reports To T. F. Police

Sixteen-year-old Michelle DeTillot turned herself in to Twin Falls Police early Sunday morning.

The girl was reported missing late Friday night by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George DeTillot of Twin Falls. She has been released to her parents and officers report court action is pending.

Officers said the girl had apparently remained in Twin Falls. She came into the station about 1 a.m. Sunday.

Walker To Talk Before Kiwanis

Lloyd Walker, a Democratic candidate for the office of governor of Idaho, will be speaker at the regular Thursday noon luncheon meeting of the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Walker will be introduced by John Wolfe, program chairman for the day. The Twin Falls lawyer is one of three Democratic candidates seeking the post. Kiwanis members have heard the other two and will hear Governor Samuelson and Richard Smith, Republican candidates, at the two following meetings.

Kiwanis meetings are held at the Turf Club.

Walker To Talk Before Kiwanis

Speakers may sit on tree-shaded bleachers to enjoy the amateur rodeo which will begin at 1:30 p.m. Buckles or trophies will be presented in each event which will include bareback riding, saddle bronc riding, calf roping, wild cow milking, team roping, ribbon roping, and bull riding. There will also be kids' calf riding. Parents must give their consent for any youngster planning to ride a calf.

Howard Haslam, arena director, reported rodeo stock will be furnished by Ralph Stevens, Middleton, and Wood Ranch, Bliss. Mrs. Haslam said that the entries will close at 10 p.m. July 23. Money must accompany the entry or be guaranteed.

Ruby Samuelson Visits

Coroner Orders Inquest

BURLEY — C. Bruce Young, Cassia County Coroner has called an inquest at 9 a.m. Tuesday at the Courthouse into a car accident which resulted in the drowning of three Burley children.

Victims in the July 1 accident near Declo were Anita Manriquez, 7, Erna Manriquez, 10, sisters, and Joe Louis Hernandez, 12, a cousin of the two girls.

The three were passengers in a car driven by Eduwiges Manriquez, father of the two girls. Manriquez, his wife and five other children were able to free themselves from the submerged car.

Mr. Manriquez said he landed in the canal when he had to swerve to miss another vehicle, a pickup driven by Lynn Taylor of Declo.

Mr. Taylor said he was about to turn left onto the canal bank as the Manriquez vehicle was approaching, and that he drove to the right side of the road as the Manriquez vehicle went into the canal.

IDAHO'S "FIRST LADY," Mrs. Ruby Samuelson, wife of Gov. Don Samuelson, is pictured during her talk to approximately 250 people Sunday in a photograph by Times-News staff member Lee Tremaine. She discussed her Heritage on Wheels program and outlined cultural aspects of running the governor's mansion in Boise.

'Heritage' Program Presented

Mrs. Ruby Samuelson presented her "Heritage on Wheels" program Sunday, displaying the many items donated by private organizations and individuals as permanent possessions of the governor's house to approximately 250 persons at the Twin Falls County Historical Museum. Because of the number of people and the beautiful day, the program was presented outside.

Official state china, crystal and silver were displayed along with books which are to be part of a library of books by Idaho authors and on Idaho history. A picture of the governor's house after it was completed in 1914; a montage of Idaho's First Ladies; a hand-embroidered Oriental outwork linen tablecloth, a silver bowl, a silver tray and silver pitcher.

Mrs. H.F. Waggoner, curator at the museum, introduced the special guests and the various activities. The event, sponsored by the Twin Falls County Historical Society, featured a potluck dinner prior to the program and Karen and Bob Jones, Filer, and Paul Crumbly, Twin Falls, presented a musical program. Mrs. A. H. Axen, Buhl, gave telling demonstrations inside the museum for those interested.

New Hours Listed For Library

BURLEY — Following a special meeting of the Burley Public Library board of trustees, new hours for the library were announced.

The new hours for opening are from 12:30 to 6:30 p.m. daily, from now until the opening of school. The revised schedule was changed to meet public demand, according to Mrs. Lorena Warnke, librarian.

Regarding some concern over the acceptance of book donations, Mrs. Warnke said it has always been the policy of the library to accept donations, "using as many of them as possible." "If you have books you wish to dispose of, please remember the library," she said.

The four trustees also discussed the price charged for library cards for non-residents of Burley. Presently the fee for persons living outside the city limits but owning property inside the city limits is 10 cents. Only persons not paying city taxes are required to pay the $5 library card fee.

The trustees set Aug. 20 as their next meeting in the conference room of the library.

A FEW OF THE MANY who turned out Sunday to hear Ruby Samuelson discuss Idaho's historical heritage. The program was conducted on the lawn of the Twin Falls County Historical Society museum west of Twin Falls. Nearly 250 people turned out in ideal weather for the picnic and discussion.

Raid Nets 14 Arrests, Keg Of Beer

Fourteen arrests were made and a keg of beer was confiscated during a midnight raid at the Buhl trash dump Saturday, reported Twin Falls County Sheriff's officers.

Approximately 35 people were suspected to be involved in the illegal consumption of alcohol, but only 14 were located during the raid.

Four Twin Falls County policemen and Idaho State liquor officer Ed Robinson, carried out the raid early Saturday morning.

Following the raid, three juveniles were confined in the Buhl City jail and one in the Twin Falls Jail. Presently, all have been released to the custody of their parents.

Large Crowd Hears Fiddlers In Shoshone Musical Fete

SHOSHONE — A crowd estimated at 1,100 was in Magic Valley Sunday to listen to the day-long Oldtime Fiddlers Jamboree sponsored by the Shoshone Chamber of Commerce.

Spectators from throughout Magic Valley listened to about 40 musicians from Boise, Malad, Idaho Falls, Pocatello, Bruneau, Burley, Buhl, Corral and Flaggstaff, Ariz.

Musicians played atop a raised platform at Mary Gooding Park. Instruments included violins, guitars, pianos, accordions, banjos, mandolins, harmonicas, a few fiddles, a bass tuba and a washboard.

The annual affair began at 10 a.m. with a flag-raising ceremony by members of Boy Scout Troop 88 and continued into the evening. Food consisted of a ham and sweet corn dinner.

Members of the chamber committee in charge of the event were Howard Adkins, chairman, and Reid Newby, M.J. Dille, T.V. Strunk and Kenneth Blackburn.

Valley Traffic Courts

POCAHELLO — Lefty Kevin Nelson fired a three-hitter and struck out 14 Sunday afternoon and Ron Blackwood continued his hot hitting with a pair of RBIs as the Twin Falls Legion team defeated Pocatello 5-1.

Nelson faced just 25 men, struck out seven of the nine batters in the lineup at least once — two of them three times — and was never in difficulty as Twin Falls scored the first five runs.

Eric Day's two-run single and a sacrifice by Paul Clark were the big blows in a three-run first, and Twin Falls scored two more in the fourth on run-producing singles by Blackwood and Will Ward. Pocatello scored its only run in the fifth when Pajani walked and eventually scored on a wild pitch.

Blackwood, who went two-for-three Sunday, Saturday collected three hits in the first game of a twin bill with Bonnevile — including a decisive three-run homer in the third inning and an RBI double in the seventh. Wayne Graham's no-hit bid in the contest was broken with two out in the seventh as pinch hitter Scott singled up the middle.

Spitz And Debbie Meyer Win In Meet

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (UPI)—Mark Spitz and Debbie Meyer, not quite in top competitive shape, finished below their record times Sunday while winning their specialties in the Santa Clara International Swim Meet.

Spitz, upset earlier in the meet's 100-meter freestyle, had an opportunity to eclipse his own world mark in the 100-meter butterfly until he spun too slowly into the last lap. The Olympian from Indiana University was clocked in 56.45 seconds, off his international mark of 55.6.

Miss Meyer, trying to bust her own American mark and Karen Moras' world record in the 800-meter freestyle, slowed down halfway through the 16-lap event and turned in a clocking of 9:14.63.

The three-time Olympic gold medalist from Sacramento, Calif., was hoping to regain the world mark now held by Australia's Miss Moras at 9:09.1. The victory made Miss Meyer the only triple winner during the meet, which attracted hundreds of athletes from 17 nations.

Spitz, beaten by Dave Edgar of the University of Tennessee in the initial session of the three-day meet, said he was aiming toward the AAU Nationals six weeks away in Los Angeles.

"When I go into the Nationals I plan to be in shape," Spitz said. "The 100 butterfly is the first event and I plan to start winning right off the bat."

Orioles' Jim Palmer Climaxes Comeback Tale As Starter For Americans In All-Star Game

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Just two years ago, Jim Palmer was a sore armed pitcher struggling in the minor leagues.

On Tuesday night, he'll climax a brilliant comeback from an ailing shoulder when he makes his first appearance on the American League All-Star team—as the starting pitcher.

Palmer will get the starting assignment against the National League in the 41st classic at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium. The American League will be a 7-6-5 underdog after losing seven consecutive games and winning only one of the last 13.

The National League will counter with their Tom Seaver of the New York Mets or Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Palmer had a 15-10 season back in 1968 at age 29 and helped Baltimore sweep the World Series from the Los Angeles Dodgers when he beat Sandy Koufax in Koufax' last game. But in 1967 he pitched only 49 innings for the Orioles and in 1968 he didn't throw a single inning for them. Most of the time he was either on the disabled list or in the minors.

In 1967, he pitched seven innings for a manager named Earl Weaver at Rochester.

Palmer, though, finally overcame the ailments last season and posted a 16-4 record. This year he's 12-6 and the ace of the Oriole staff and Weaver—now the Baltimore manager and the A. L. manager in the All-Star game—is going to start him in this classic.

Palmer was one of the nine pitchers selected by Weaver for his staff. Palmer will go into the game with three days rest since he last pitched against Detroit on Friday night when he was beaten 4-2.

Weaver named three Oriole pitchers—Palmer, Mike Cuellar and Dave McNally—along with Mel Stottlemyre and Fritz Peterson of New York, Sam McDowell of Cleveland, Jim Hunter of Oakland, Clyde Wright of California and Jim Perry of Minnesota. Weaver named all starting pitchers because he said he didn't want to pick and choose among the standout relievers in the league.

Gil Hodges of the New York Mets, who beat Weaver's Orioles in last year's World Series, picked only eight pitchers for his staff. Besides Seaver and Gibson, he took Jim Merrit and Wayne Simpson of Cincinnati, Claude Osteen of Los Angeles, Gaylord Perry of San Francisco and two relief specialists—Joe Hoerner of Philadelphia and Hoyt Wilhelm of Atlanta.

Hulme Takes Can-Am

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (UPI)—New Zealand's Donko Hulme grabbed the lead on the first lap and then fought off world champion Jackie Stewart of Scotland in a Chaparral for 14 laps to win the Canadian-American racing championship Sunday.

It was the 16th consecutive Can-Am win for the McLaren team and the third this year. The string of victories stretches back over three years.

It was a disappointing race for Stewart and Jim Hall's revolutionary Chaparral, which set the fastest lap of the day at 125.85 miles per hour.

The Chaparral was able to complete only 14 of 87 laps in its maiden race, but during that time became the first car in more than one year to seriously threaten the McLarens.

Hulme had to push his car around the track at top speed of 181 m.p.h. to stay ahead of the Chaparral, which was nicknamed the "vacuum cleaner" because of a rear-mounted device that exerts 1,000 pounds of suction to keep the car on the track.

Krause Has 6-Hitter To Tip A's 2-1

OAKLAND (UPI)—Low Krause of Milwaukee bent his former Oakland teammates 2-1 on a six-hitter Sunday for his fourth win in a row after the A's scored twice in the ninth inning of the opener to pull out a 4-3 victory.

Large advertisement for Chevron F-310 gasoline. Features a photo of a car with a dirty exhaust pipe before and after using F-310. Text: "BEFORE... AFTER F-310... A clear balloon was attached to the exhaust pipe of this car with its dirty engine running. The balloon began to fill with dirty exhaust until it looked like this showing how exhaust emissions from dirty engines go into the air and waste mileage." Scott Carpenter, Assistant Aquanaut, personally witnessed the dramatic demonstration.

New F-310 in Chevron gasolines turns dirty exhaust into good clean mileage.

Now, scientists at Chevron Research Company have developed a remarkable new gasoline additive—Formula F-310®—that sharply reduces dirty exhaust from dirty engines. And helps toward cleaner air.

Tests conducted by Scott Research Laboratories, an independent research group, showed that Chevron gasolines with F-310 reduced unburned hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions dramatically. Clearly, this is an important step towards solving one of today's major problems.

F-310 also improves mileage, because dirty exhaust is really wasted gasoline. So F-310 literally keeps good mileage from going up in smoke.

What causes an engine to produce dirty exhaust in the first place? Over a period of time, deposits make engines "run rich." They actually consume more gasoline than they can burn efficiently. Result: wasted gasoline goes out the exhaust pipe as unburned hydrocarbons, along with increased carbon monoxide emissions. You can even see the emissions as dirty smoke. And you can feel—and hear—the rough idling. It all adds up to a car that is unnecessarily emitting dirty exhaust and wasting gasoline. Just six tankfuls with F-310 can correct the condition.

Formula F-310, a patented gasoline additive, is now available in Chevron gasolines wherever you see the F-310 sign.

F-310 Registered Trademark For Polybutene Amine Gasoline Additive.

Fixed Idea Needs Later Adjustment

result of my good play. West opened his king of spades. I took my ace and promptly led a heart toward dummy's queen. West went right up with his ace and played his queen of spades. This friendly play set up the rest of dummy's spade suit. I had nothing left to do except to draw trumps and pick up the marbles.

Jim: "The slam contract wasn't too bad on the surface but the combination of three trumps to the jack and a diamond shortage in the East hand with four spades in the West hand doomed you to defeat without West's help."

Oswald: "It was all a matter of the fixed idea. West planned to set up his trump trick. His opening lead was fine but when he got in with the ace of hearts it really required just a little further study of the dummy to see that, if his queen-of-spades was going to be a winner, there would be no way for South to take it away from him and he could wait."

Jim: "Haste sure made waste for poor West!"

(Newspaper-Enterprise-Asst.)

Oswald: "Some years ago, I watched a pretty good player struggling with a doubtful contract. He was so sure that the doubler held all four missing trumps that he made a no-trump play to guard against that bid break after both opponents had followed to the first trump lead."

Jim: "That was more of getting a fixed idea and forgetting that you could change your mind after additional information."

Oswald: "Here is another example. I was South in a rubber bridge game. My bidding wasn't too scientific but my partner was a member of a player. I bid the slam by guesswork."

Jim: "You might well have been entitled to mark your partner with better than the high-card points. How did you make your contract?"

Oswald: "It wasn't as a TIZZY

CONSIDER THIS - Young fellow, the psychiatrists think they can tell something about your nature by the kind of woman you prefer. If you go for long-legged girls, you are thought to be exceedingly shy. If you like particularly full-busted women, you are known to be ambitious. If you prefer small girls, you are said to be a kindly sort who likes to be helpful. Such were the preliminary conclusions reached in a study at the University of Illinois. Research continues.

HOW WOULD YOU like to own a pet vulture? Neither would I. But a Chicago pet store/operator sells approximately one vulture per month to private citizens (thereabouts...). CERTAIN MEN develop toothaches every time their wives get pregnant. So says a British medical expert. But he can't explain why.

GROWTH - Another reason your face doesn't look the same as it looked when you were a youngster is this: The upper part stops growing when you're about 15, but the lower part doesn't. Consider that. You rarely see a lad who appears strong of jaw and jaw. It takes time.

CUSTOMER SERVICE - Q. "What's the minimum salary for a professional football player?" A Figure $4,000 - in the NATIONAL AND AMERICAN LEAGUES. Incidentally, minimum for a rookie-baseball player in the big leagues is $10,000. Average pay for a seasoned player in either, however, runs around $30,000.

MAKING THE SCENE - In Los Angeles, the hippie bum rides mostly. In New York City, they panhandle money. There, a team of Columbia University researchers went out to beg on the streets recently. Just to find out how much they could get. A boy who works alone, they discovered, will score with three out of 10 persons he approaches. But if he works with a girl partner, they found, he'll score with five out of 10 persons. Most effective routine goes like this: The boy and girl approach the touch. The boy gives the name, introduces the girl, says he just lost his wallet, and requests subway fare home for the girl. This pitch, the researchers claim, scores with seven out of 10 marks.

THE NAME - You've heard of the Lone Ranger's sidekick Tonto. And of Jay Silverheels who played that role. But have you ever heard of Harry Smith? One and the same. Mr. Silverheels started out in life as Harry Smith.

Your questions and comments are welcomed and will be used in PASS IT ON wherever possible. Please address your letters to: L.M. Boyd, P.O. Box 39055, Seattle, Wash. 98119.

Mexican Artist Assails Mural 'Plot'

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Mexican artist Rufino Tamayo Saturday called Smith College's reported plan to sell or demolish the first mural he painted in the United States "a puritan plot."

"They're trying to get rid of my mural," Tamayo said, "not because the building in which it was painted is going to be razed, but because the mural is of a naked woman."

Tamayo, recognized as one of Mexico's great artists, said he did the mural for the wife of former U.S. Ambassador to Mexico Dwight Morrow who, in turn, donated it to Smith College in Northampton, Mass., in 1943.

He called the college's alleged offer to sell the work for $15,000 "an offense" and urged the United Nations Organization for Education Science and Culture (UNESCO) and the Mexican Fine Arts Institute to save it.

Asked if he himself would be willing to buy the mural in order to preserve it, Tamayo replied: "But what would I do with it? Where would I put it? I demand that that mural be seen."

In Northampton, a Smith College spokesman denied there was any plan to destroy or sell Tamayo's work, and said he was "sorry" the artist was upset.

"The mural has been very carefully taken off the wall already by art restoration people and it's being mounted on panels so it will be preserved," said George Mair, assistant to the president of Smith. "The possible places it will go have not been worked out yet, but it certainly was never going to be destroyed, and at the moment there are no plans to sell it."

As to the nakedness, Mair said, "That's irrelevant. Certainly the whole thing has nothing to do with the fact it's a naked woman; my land, art museums are full of them."

Asked if he himself would be willing to buy the mural in order to preserve it, Tamayo replied: "But what would I do with it? Where would I put it? I demand that that mural be seen."
