

Governor Asks Aid

State Farmers' Home Administration officials — under urging by Gov. Don Samuelson — will decide today whether or not to draw on federal emergency funds to aid hail-damaged farms.

Don Winder, state FHA director said today in Boise that his staff will confer with Twin Falls and Burley FHA officials today to determine whether funds allocated for the state are ample to meet the needs of Magic Valley farmers.

If not, additional federal funds will be sought immediately, he said.

Mr. Winder said he received a letter from Gov. Don Samuelson asking the FHA authorize emergency loans to farmers immediately to alleviate financial losses.

"I have the authority here to go ahead and handle emergency loans for farmers of the storm area," Mr. Winder said.

"Should immediate needs reach beyond three or four million dollars, federal emergency loan assistance will have to be requested. The only difference would be a slightly higher interest rate to farmers."

Mr. Winder said his staff feels farmers who lost wheat, other grains, beans, corn and peas must have immediate assistance because these crops are being in immediate funds for their operation. Other crops such as sugar beets and potatoes, or fall crops, would come under assistance later as farmers will not know the full extent of their losses here until as late as October.

When a decision is reached, Mr. Winder said, the governor's office will be notified and further appeals may be made. He said all information had not been reviewed, but indications pointed to meeting the immediate needs on a state basis.

He said that early estimates of $10 million damage for current and fall crops appear accurate.

'Shoddy Goods' Bill Pressed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic consumer advocates have dealt the Nixon administration an initial defeat on a proposal which businessmen fear would make them defendants in court against their own customers.

But the bill, approved by the Senate Commerce Committee Tuesday, still faces imposing roadblocks. Besides the administration, it has roused strong lobbying opposition from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers, the American Rental Federation and several individual firms including General Electric Co. and J.C. Penney Co.

The measure would let one customer file a "class action" suit on behalf of everyone gyped by the same shoddy product, phony sales pitch or fraudulent advertisement. If the suit was successful, the judge would award damages or refunds to all affected customers, with the manufacturer or retailer footing the bill.

The bill's sponsors, Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., and Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., contend the individual defrauded consumer is largely helpless under present law. In most cases, a lawyer would cost him more than he could gain by suing. The class action procedure would solve this, they say, because the lawyer's fee would come from the whole settlement, and thus would be shared by all consumers benefitting from the suit.

Gotham Skyline?

Pollution Chokes Eastern Seaboard

By United Press International
East Coast residents faced more air pollution near the hazardous level today. The weather bureau blamed an atmospheric inversion, a New Jersey official blamed automobiles and a congressman blamed the Senate.

The Atlantic Coast, from New York to Atlanta, has been covered for four days by a polluted haze trapped by hot and humid air. And the weather bureau reported it wouldn't go anywhere for a couple of days. The temperature reached 94 degrees in New York Tuesday, highest of the year, and the temperature-humidity index was 81. A THI of 70 or higher is considered uncomfortable to virtually everybody.

Forecaster Abe Zwecher of the New York Weather Bureau said, "There's no relief in sight." Cool air that was expected to move from Canada will stay there.

"It's a low. It's not going anywhere. What we need is a high before we can expect some change," Zwecher said.

Summons Control Board Mayor John V. Lindsay summoned the city's emergency control board for a closed meeting to discuss emergency procedures and preventive measures.

The chief of New Jersey's Air Pollution Control Board, William A. Monroe, said that air in Camden, a Philadelphia suburb, is reaching the point where eye irritations can be expected.

Monroe said pollutants in the air around Camden have come essentially from motor vehicle exhausts and he said he believed Gov. William T. Cahill would ask that driving be restricted if the situation reaches the danger level.

A school bus lot of Columbia came close to a smog alert Tuesday. The oxidant level at one monitoring station reached .15 parts per million. If that level had been reached at two or more stations, an alert would have been called. The alert would have largely relied on pleas for voluntary restraint on motoring and fuel use.

Boycott Succeeds

DELANO, Calif. (UPI) — Cesar Chavez today won his five-year campaign of strikes and boycotts against California table grape growers.

His United Farm Workers organizing committee has reached agreement with 25 large growers which will bring 85 per cent of the state's crop under union contract, UPI learned.

The growers — including some of Chavez's strongest critics — were to formally sign the settlement today.

Union sources said the growers, who raise half the state's table grapes, had agreed to sign a pact giving their vineyard workers $1.50 an hour plus 30 cents a box.

Bob Colner Heads Unit

BOISE (UPI) — Bob Colner, Twin Falls, has been elected chairman of the Idaho Bean Commission for 1970-71, the commission announced Tuesday. Colner succeeds Gerald Baker, Hazelton, as head of the commodity group. George Kellogg, president of Kellogg Mills bean dealership in Nampa, was named vice chairman.

A farmer in the Twin Falls area for more than 25 years, Colner attended Twin Falls High School and was graduated from Pomona College in Claremont, Calif.

Pentagon Overhaul Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's commission on overhauling the Pentagon has called for sweeping reforms in the military establishment. It wants to put the armed forces under stronger civilian control and cut inefficiency and overstaffing by abolishing 10,000 Pentagon jobs.

The panel's most controversial proposal would strip the Joint Chiefs of Staff of their traditional command of America's fighting men. It would hand this command to a separate, high-ranking military staff operating under a civilian deputy defense secretary.

Gilbert W. Fitzhugh, commission chairman, reported the Joint Chiefs — the top five men in the present military hierarchy — were "less than enthusiastic" about the proposal.

CSI Seeks Aid

In a major policy reversal, the presidents of Idaho's two junior colleges asked the State Board of Education Tuesday to endorse state support of half of the cost of educating their students.

Dr. James L. Taylor, CSI president, told the board that the two colleges are educating 14 per cent of the state's collegians.

In past years CSI has been reluctant to see the percentage of state aid grow for fear of state controls.

In addition to the 50 per cent formula, Taylor and NJC president Barry Schuler asked for $4.30 million from the state permanent building fund to finance construction of new buildings.

During the current biennium, the junior colleges were made eligible for state building fund aid, and received $350,000. The two colleges requested $1,161,495 for the fiscal year beginning July 1971. During the past two years, the annual level of state support was $700,000.

Two years ago Dr. Taylor said the colleges should expand its tax base into adjacent counties instead of relying on additional state financial support.

U.S. Deficit $2.9 Billion

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon's top economic adviser announced Tuesday that a drop in individual and corporate income tax revenues resulted in a $2.9 billion deficit for the fiscal year ended June 30.

But George P. Shultz, the director of the Office of Management and Budget, said this was a good sign because it showed that the economy was stabilized and poised for an upward thrust.

This was the ninth year in the last 10 that the federal budget has experienced a deficit and compares with a surplus of $1.5 billion forecast last February for the 1970 fiscal year. In May, the figures were revised to indicate a $1.8 billion deficit.

Shultz said the Nixon Administration's anti-inflationary moves resulted in decreases in both individual and corporate income tax receipts and added: "This in itself is a stabilizing force for the economy and helps the economy not to continue down but to now be in a position to move upward." Shultz announced the figures after holding the second in a series of meetings with President Nixon at the western White House to determine the broad outlines for the fiscal 1972 budget which will be submitted to Congress in January.

According to Shultz the Nixon Administration has been able to hold the line on spending despite the budget busting activities of Congress. Expenditures for fiscal 1970 were $106.8 billion or $1.4 billion below the $107.9 billion estimate for last February and $1.1 billion below the May estimates.

This was accomplished, Shultz said, despite a $1.1 billion retroactive pay rise enacted by Congress in April, additional outlays of $800 million for such uncontrollable items as interest on the national debt and farm price support payments and another $400 million in expenditures resulting from congressional inaction.

Kellwood Records High Absenteeism

By CAROL BURNAM
Times-News Staff Writer
The Kellwood hosiery plant in Twin Falls is "burning the midnight oil" as a result of what manager Bob Matthews calls the "seasonal worker plague."

Employee turnover is high and since the summer months began, the monthly absentee rate has soared from 2.8 per cent to 8 per cent, lowering rate of production and forcing fewer people to work longer hours.

The Kellwood Corp. employs 85 per cent women and is required by law to pay them time and a half wages for hours worked over eight hours a day and 40 hours a week.

With such a high absentee rate, available workers are forced to work overtime, for time and a half wages, replacing absent employees who would be working those hours for a regular wage.

"Summer months seem to separate women from their work," said Mr. Matthews. "Women are not the financial support for most families and they do not feel the responsibility for their work as men do."

During the summer months, women have the responsibility of child care, that they do not have during school months, Mr. Matthews said.

Royce Williams, plant personnel manager, said there are several causes for the turnover in help.

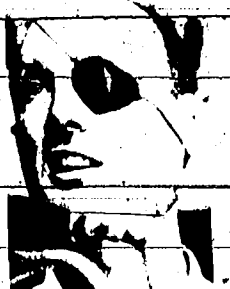

College towns are over-filled with students looking for summer work. Often they will apply for full-time work, fearing they might not be hired as part-time applicants. After a few months they quit and return to school, Mr. Williams said.

Other workers take factory work when no other job is available, then will leave when they get a new job offer, he said.

Also, Kellwood's operation is built around production efficiency, with each worker paid on a piece-work basis for the number of pairs of hosiery folded, sewn or paired.

To make top wages, the worker must develop accuracy and speed.

Many employees become discouraged and quit before they become proficient, Mr. Williams said.

ISRAELI Defense Minister Moshe Dayan says "We are not strong enough to be forced to accept dictates from enemies or friends but we are not strong enough to force allies even if this involves compromise." He spoke of the Israeli position regarding U.S. peace plan. (UPI)

Plan Splits Israelis

By United Press International
An Israeli cabinet split between hawks and doves widened today, and the hawkish Gahal party threatened to leave the government if Israel replies affirmatively to U.S. peace proposals. Premier Golda Meir appealed to the Gahal leaders not to precipitate a government crisis at this critical time.

While various ministers began a series of daylong meetings with the Gahal members of the Knesset (Parliament), the battle along the Suez Canal raged for the 60th consecutive day. There were artillery duels which wounded one Israeli soldier and new Israeli airstrikes against Egypt's canal positions.

The rift in the Arab world created by Jordan's and Egypt's acceptance of U.S. proposals for a three-month cease-fire deepened and the Sudan joined Egypt in banning broadcasts by the Arab guerrillas who have vowed there will be no letup in their war against Israel.

Al-Fatah, the most powerful of the Arab guerrilla groups, announced it would broadcast from Amman.

Spending Ceilings Raised

BOISE (UPI) — The State Tax Commission has approved property tax budget increases for Burley and Shoshone.

Chairman Luther Fremont said the commission gave the cities authority to approve the 104 per cent limitation.

Burley was authorized $70,000 in additional spending and Shoshone was given an additional $2,700.

RECEIVING BRIEFING FOR a county-wide Civil Defense exercise to be held Aug. 7 in Twin Falls are members of a simulation group. Conducting the session Tuesday was Russell Cook of the University of Idaho's Civil Defense extension program, seated, left. Others participating were, from left, Bobby Bopp, assistant fire chief, standing; Don Youtz, Twin Falls County Agricultural Extension Agent; Cloyce Edwards, county Civil Defense director; Fire Marshal Clinton Earl, and Sgt. Calvin Bernard of the Idaho State Police.

Officials Grooming For Aug. 7 Civil Defense Exercise Here

The first meeting in a series leading up to a full-scale county-wide Civil Defense exercise Aug. 7 was held Tuesday for members of one of the core groups participating in the emergency operations simulation.

Russell Cook, education director of the Civil Defense extension program at the University of Idaho, Moscow, conducted the Tuesday meeting for a simulation group composed of law enforcement, fire department and external agency officials. Also attending was Cloyce Edwards, Twin Falls County Civil Defense director.

The briefing, like other meetings leading up to the actual exercise, was in the basement of the Twin Falls County Courthouse. The simulation group will meet there again Thursday to study message writing.

From 11 a. m. until noon Monday, executives — county commissioners, mayors, councilmen and managers of all cities in the county — will meet for a briefing. From 4 to 5 p. m. Monday the executive staff, Civil Defense Director, deputy director, public information officer, legal officer, city and county clerks and military liaison officer; operations group, the group chief, law, fire, public works, medical welfare and shelter operating sections, and the support group, message controller, messengers 1 and 2, emergency log plotter 1 and 2 and operational units plotter, will meet.

On Tuesday from 3 to 5 p. m.

the operations and simulations groups will meet for briefing and from 4 to 5 p. m. Aug. 5, all participants except the resource group will meet for practice.

The exercise itself will bring all groups together from 8 a. m. until noon on Aug. 7.

The exercise will be the culmination of several weeks work on the part of local officials, staff members at the university and others.

The Emergency Operations Simulation Exercise has a three-fold purpose — to provide a method by which the community operational heads and executives may exercise, check and develop emergency plans; to demonstrate one method of emergency operations which has found favor in similar counties; and to provide the county with a trained staff of people which can carry on related training in the future.

License Deadline Nears

Validation stickers for license plates ending in 7 expire the end of this month, and employees at the Twin Falls County Assessor's office, license plate bureau, are expecting a big rush later this week.

Stickers validating the plates for the remainder of 1970 and through July, 1971, must be attached to Idaho plates by midnight Friday.

Business during the early part of the week was light and since one-tenth of the more than 30,000 vehicle plates in the county carry numbers ending in seven, there must be somewhere around 3,000 such plates, with a good share of them still not carrying 1971 validations.

Vehicle owners whose license plates end in eight, nine and zero may also purchase stickers now. Those numbers expired Aug. 31, Sept. 30 and Oct. 31, respectively.

Air West Executive Talks Here

Don Cooper, Boise, regional director for Hughes Air West, told members of the Twin Falls Exchange Club that by 1975 boardings and deboardings at the Twin Falls City-County Airport will reach the 100,000 mark.

By the end of this year the figure will be about 80,000, Mr. Cooper projected. He said Twin Falls ranks 31st in passenger service in the firm's 100-city system, which is the largest regional air service system in the world.

Mr. Cooper said of the passenger service to and from the local airport, 40 per cent is Magic Valley traffic, excluding Sun Valley, 20 per cent is from the other 49 states and the other 40 per cent is Sun Valley traffic.

In the Hughes Air West system, Twin Falls ranks 10th in freight.

He added additional jet service will be introduced by Hughes Air West as the traffic warrants it. He noted that cooperation of all Magic Valley residents, businesses and individuals is necessary to make complete jet service successful.

Court Tests State Code

A hearing into Idaho's first formal test of its new drunk driving code has been continued until next week to allow attorneys time to file written briefs.

Prosecuting Attorney Robert Galley, who filed a writ of mandate requesting Probate Judge Eugene McCoy be made to impose the mandatory 10-day sentence on people convicted of drunk driving, had not filed a written brief with Judge Theron Ward when the hearing began Tuesday afternoon.

The Fifth District Judge gave Mr. Galley until Monday to file a written brief, "since the case may go to the Supreme Court."

The hearing began the legal wheels for the new ruling to be clarified and its constitutionality decided.

Golden Bennett, attorney for Judge McCoy, argued that the setting of a 10-day sentence by the 1970 legislature is an encroachment of the legislative branch of government upon the judicial branch. He argues that the judicial branch is entitled to discretionary practices in sentencing defendants.

Mr. Galley, on the other hand, argues that this discretion is not an inherent right, but a given right, given to the judiciary branch in certain cases by the legislature. He maintains that the setting of a minimum sentence of 10 days in jail is no different than setting up a one-to-14-year sentence for those convicted of burglary.

The case evolved when Judge McCoy failed to impose the 10-day sentence on Ernesto Pedraza Medina, 30, who since has left the state. He was fined $125 and sentenced to 30 days in jail. The sentence and a portion of the fine were then suspended.

The writ of mandate was filed and Judge Ward then issued an alternative writ of mandate, forcing Judge McCoy to impose the 10-day sentence or show cause why he should not. He chose the latter because as he has previously stated, he thinks the ruling should be clarified. He has failed to impose the 10-day sentence on first offenders only.

Following the filing of Mr. Galley's brief, Mr. Bennett will have until the following Friday to file a rebuttal brief if he chooses.

Nursing Home Group Elects Harold Drake

McCALL — Members of the Idaho Association of Licensed Nursing Homes re-elected Harold Drake, Twin Falls, as their president at concluding sessions of their annual convention in McCall.

They also elected Godfrey Penrod, Lewiston, first vice president, and Charles Eastman, Wallace, LaVerne Brown, Boise, and Tom Moen, Idaho Falls, as area vice presidents.

Ruby Crosby, Jerome, was chosen secretary and Dwayne Baker, Moscow, treasurer.

Blast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission has recorded seismic signals from the Soviet Union, presumably from an underground nuclear blast.

The agency said the signals originated in the Semipalatinsk nuclear test area and were the equivalent of what would result from a blast in the 20 to 200 kiloton range.

For All Of Us

A year after the first manned landing on the moon, popular enthusiasm for the nation's space exploration program has probably fallen to its lowest ebb since the tragic Apollo capsule fire in January, 1967.

At a cost of tens of billions of dollars, we have extended our reach to a dead rock 240,000 miles in space, but no dramatic change or improvement in man's life on earth has resulted either from the feat itself or from the much-vaunted "spin-offs" from the research that made it possible.

Yet the spin-offs continue to accumulate, little by little. One of the latest examples is a report that equipment designed to examine lunar soil samples may soon be used routinely by dentists to spot potential cavities in teeth.

The device, called an "ionizing radiation detector," is being modified to study the density of tooth enamel at the University of Chicago's Zoller Dental Clinic in a project funded by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

The device beams a stream of radiation in the form of beta particles at a tooth. Particles that strike the calcium in the tooth enamel bounce back and are counted by a detector.

The enamel of normal, healthy teeth is equally dense all over and reflects the same amount of radiation from all surfaces. But any area where the enamel has begun to dissolve and where decay is certain to start reveals itself by low amounts of backscatter. This would allow such steps as treatment with fluorides to prevent cavities from starting long before they could be detected by current methods.

In another field, scientists at NASA's Lewis Research Center in Cleveland are searching for ways to build a battery. Specifically, they are looking for a solid electrolyte to take the place of the sulfuric acid in conventional batteries.

The space agency's interest in the project revolves around weight considerations for future space flights, but the implication of the research in the development of a battery-powered automobile which would give off no exhaust pollution is no less significant.

Neither of these examples is as spectacular as a rocket launch to the moon, yet in the long run could affect our lives and well-being to a far greater degree.

No Castle

Congress is proceeding at a snail's pace in consideration of pending anti-crime legislation, even in Washington itself. The excuse is that the measures introduced may conflict with the Constitution, but the arguments of opponents suggest they are perhaps imbued with concern for the criminal rather than for the law-abiding citizen.

Attorney General John N. Mitchell told Congress the "no knock" authority sought by the Justice Department is widely misunderstood and by no stretch of interpretation means that agents may enter private homes at any time on their own decision.

"Quick entry" would be a better description, said Mitchell, in view of the fact that agents must obtain a search warrant from a court which must be persuaded that unless entry is quick and unannounced, delay might allow destruction of evidence and might endanger the life of the searchers.

Mitchell reminded the House Ways and Means Committee "we are dealing with clever and ruthless drug peddlers, who have no hesitation about taking the life of an agent."

Drug abuse among young people has reached epidemic proportions, Mitchell said, and may worsen after the opening of school this fall.

If Congress is slow to move against crime in Washington itself, where the rise in crime has been twice as fast as in the rest of the nation, there is little hope for more responsible action on other anti-crime legislation of broader application.

The people are primarily concerned with protection of the lawful and less with the criminals' right to hide behind overzealous interpretation of the Constitution.

MR. SPECTATOR

Four Score And Seven

A 107-year-old pamphlet unearthed at the Kent State University library disputes the story that Abraham Lincoln's address on the battlefield at Gettysburg on Nov. 10, 1863, was greeted with utter silence. The pamphlet indicates that the short speech was interrupted no less than five times by applause and was followed by "long continued applause."

Lincoln's speech takes up only a half-page in the pamphlet given by Edward Everett, a former governor of Massachusetts and secretary of state under President Fillmore.

According to tradition, no one applauded Lincoln's address, either because they were disappointed at its brevity in contrast to Everett's oration or because they were stunned by the emotional impact of the President's simple eloquence.

Many people may want to go on believing the latter. Five interruptions for applause in the few minutes it took to deliver the address could only have marred its meaning and blunted its effect and suggests that the audience was applauding not the words but the man or the office he represented.

Indeed, the rediscovered pamphlet actually lends new credence to the belief that it was not until after the event, when people had a chance to read Lincoln's words and think about them, that they could begin to appreciate their greatness.

BRUCE BLOSSAT

MUNICH, GERMANY

(NEA) — Before I could crumble a sugar-cube wrapper and toss it in a dinner table ashtray, a German had reached out and done it for me. It was book form. The Germans detest litter, and there is almost none to be seen in their cities, along highways, anywhere.

Those in America and elsewhere who live by stereotypes, and there are always too many, profess to see in this sense of order some fatal cue that translates first into excessive discipline and then into a perilous tendency toward autocratic rule and repressive, militaristic behavior.

Though it is clear that fear of a restored Germany (already an incredibly accomplished fact) is very real in eastern Europe and the Soviet Union, I think a change has been wrought. It is a generation in time since the 12 wild years of Hitler's frenzy of fire and death. You will not often today find his name graven anywhere on stone, and when you do, it will not be in celebration, as the French still glorify the all-conquering Napoleon.

In West Berlin, I stood with a German woman, mother of two children, before a memorial wall which bore Hitler's name. Behind it lay the hanging room of a prison where the Nazi dictator executed 1,800 German political prisoners. She said: "The first time I came here I could not say one word."

She hates even to look at Berlin's massive Olympic stadium, for when the games took place there in 1936 Hitler was at his peak and his armed, uniformed hordes packed the great oval for all the world to see.

It cannot be forgotten that World War II was a much sterner lesson for Germany than World War I, when for all the military losses the nation was untouched by the winning allies. The second time, on top of Germany's (including Austria) 3.5 million battle deaths, millions more died as British and American bombers pounded German cities into crushed stone and left the acrid smell of burning flesh in the survivors' nostrils.

They, and many who have come after, hold the memory strong. Some are beset with guilt. Others are not, though their voice resolve that such slaughter shall not again be initiated by Germans. Despite endless stories of the rise of neo-Nazism, only a relative few would do it all again, and their political strength today is woefully unimpressive.

Still, the German drive, the German ambition, is undiminished. The beautiful city, which many Germans call the "secret capital," is a lovely restoration of the best in the nation's storied past.

One hardly would know 40 percent of it had been wiped out by allied bombers. The great old churches, the "Yllis" and museums are all there as if untouched. The one reminder is a great pile of fragmented brick and stone, grass-covered, at the site where Munich in 1972 will play host to the Olympics.

A bus barker may point out where, in 1923, Munich police crushed Hitler's famed "beer hall putsch," killing some of his followers and setting back for years his rise to power. But the story is told endlessly.

If Munich is the restored museum of old Germany—cities like Frankfurt am Main (the new great commercial and financial hub), Düsseldorf, Duisburg, Hannover and Hamburg have been rebuilt mostly in a modern mold that conveys the country's postwar economic resurgence. High-rise dwellings set in spreading green suburbs impart a gloss of newness in many places.

In the busy Ruhr and nearby zones, a third of West Germany's 60 million people now cluster.

ROBERT ALLEN AND JOHN GOLDSMITH New Labeling

WASHINGTON — The federal Food and Drug Administration is studying a new labeling policy which, if approved, would have an impact in many American homes and cause comment around the coffee-maker in many offices.

In contrast to the complex and rarely used drugs with which FDA is sometimes involved, the labeling policy would affect non-dairy "creamers"—both liquid and powdered cream substitutes and whipped or aerosol dessert toppings. Under discussion are requirements that labels show more accurately what kind of fats the products contain.

Also at issue is the type of oil used in making the cream substitutes. Most vegetable oils contain polyunsaturated fats, and it is the saturated fatty acids which, according to medical authorities, raises the cholesterol level of the blood and may therefore be linked with heart disease.

Under a 1940 policy, food processors are allowed to describe the fats and oils as "shortening," as "vegetable oil" or as "hardened (or hydrogenated) vegetable oil." FDA now says it has power to require a more specific declaration.

GFDA experts have been discussing the question with the Federal Trade Commission and, recently, with a spokesman for the National Heart and Lung Institute. A new statement of policy is to be issued shortly.

Coconut oil—Rep. Sidney R. Yates, D-III, has been prodding the FDA to act on the non-dairy "creamers." He describes himself as a man "who has a high cholesterol count," and he has supplied the FDA with data which he describes as "shocking."

His information indicates that the substitutes have higher percentages of the suspect saturated fats than regular cream. According to one Harvard researcher, the substitutes have as much as 20 percent more saturated fat content, the congressman reports.

Natural creams may contain as much as 38 percent milk fat, according to this data, and the fat content of substitutes ranged up to 55 percent. According to the data, more than 90 percent of the fat content in 13 of the substitute cream products was of the saturated type.

Yates says the Harvard researcher, Dr. Elaine R. Monsen, found that the substitutes are made mostly from coconut oil. They are therefore described as vegetable oil products, but coconut oil—unlike corn, safflower and peanut oils—is a saturated vegetable oil.

Congressman Yates complains that he has been trying, for more than a year, to get an FDA answer as to why food which is made from coconut oil should not be labeled so on the label, rather than use of the designation, vegetable oil.

"I wish someone in your office would tell me why, if coconut oil is used in a food, it should not be labeled as coconut oil," the congressman said plaintively in a recent letter to Dr. Charles C. Edwards, Food and Drug Commissioner.

ART BUCHWALD Language

WASHINGTON — There is a book called "Body Language" which deals with the nonverbal communication. Julius Fast, the author, maintains that body gestures can tell more about a person than what he says. An unconscious movement, kinesics tells us, is all-revealing.

Fast is not the only person who is an expert on "Body Language." My friend, Dr. Heinrich Applebaum, has been working on a project for some time to find out if President Nixon's gestures tell more about him than what he says.

Dr. Applebaum has been watching every TV program that President Nixon has appeared on and has come to some interesting conclusions.

"The President," Dr. Applebaum told me, "uses his body as well as anybody we've had in the White House. I have been able to interpret many of the gestures he makes."

"Could you give me an example?"

"Well, as you know, when he appears before large crowds he always raises his arms out and upward. Most people have felt he does this to acknowledge the cheers. But subconsciously he is at the floodgates trying to hold back the waves of inflation."

"That's very interesting." "I have noted also, that President Nixon is a flat-cleaver. When he's trying to make a point he clenches his fist and moves his arm up and down."

"What could that mean?" "It means that he's subconsciously would like to sock somebody."

"I don't believe it." "It's true. If you recall in his TV appearance with John Chancellor, Eric Sevareid and Howard K. Smith a few weeks back, the President was constantly clenching his fist. He started doing this after Howard K. Smith asked him what legal right did we have for being in Indochina, since the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution had been repealed."

"He didn't want to sock Howard K. Smith, did he?"

"No, stupid. He wanted to sock someone on his staff who hadn't prepared him for the question."

"What else?" I asked. "The President is constantly using a karate chop when he's answering a question at a press conference. He keeps cutting the air with the flat of his hand."

"How do you explain it?"

"In 1962 the President said the press wouldn't have Nixon to kick around any more. What he meant by that was he was going to take karate and make sure they didn't kick him. Naturally, as President, Mr. Nixon can't chop a reporter in the neck, so the gesture is symbolic of what he would like to do if he weren't in a position of responsibility."

"I notice the President wrings his hands a lot when he's speaking."

"Hand wringing is not uncommon for a President of the United States. I don't think you could put too much importance in President Nixon wringing his hands. But you could be concerned when he keeps his arms straight at his sides."

"What does that mean?"

"It means that no matter what he says, he doesn't plan to do anything about the problem."

"What does it mean when the President sits with his legs crossed?"

"It means he has a plan for getting us out of Vietnam, but he isn't going to tell us what it is."

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Measles

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a son, 5, and have been trying for three years to have another child. Neither my son nor I have had German measles.

My thought was that by having him immunized I would greatly reduce the chances of my getting German measles.

Our pediatrician told me I should not be pregnant when my son gets the shot, so I thought that I could have him inoculated at the time of my period. However, my gynecologist tells me that if I want my son immunized I will have to go on birth control pills for three months, for fear of my coming in contact with the virus.

I don't want to take the pill, so do I have another choice? — Mrs. F.V.

Your intentions are wise. As you obviously realize, German measles is a rather trifling disease — except that if a woman gets it in the first part of pregnancy, it can cause devastating damage to the unborn child.

You are right that having your son immunized is a valuable safeguard to you (and to other women like you, since the disease is chiefly spread by epidemics among children).

However, your doctors also are right, because the vaccine is made from the German measles virus. Your son, while the vaccine is gradually giving him protection, is actually carrying some of the virus in his system. And you must avoid contact with it if you are pregnant. Even a sub-clinical case can cause damage. (That is, a case of German measles so mild you don't even know you have it still carries a threat to an unborn child.)

If you don't want the pill, see whether he can suggest some other contraceptive measure that is suitable. People seem to have forgotten about other contraceptives since the advent of the pill.

I doubt it, but to the best of my knowledge there has been no comprehensive study of inhaling cigar smoke. It's easy to find enough cigarette smokers for reliable surveys, but not easy to find cigar-smoking inhalers. This "don't know" situation is far from being, as your husband claims, a green light to go ahead.

Quite aside from his lungs, he is absorbing a lot of nicotine monoxide and other poisons which can have a harmful effect on his blood pressure and circulation. I suspect that he is kidding himself.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Judy, have you seen my Sphro Agnew watch?"

TALKING WITH SECOND District Representative Orval Hansen, left, is Spec. 4 Malcolm Johnson, Route 4, Buhl. Rep. Hansen visited Spec. 4 Johnson at Cam Ranh Bay, Vietnam, as part of Hansen's recent trip to Southeast Asia as a member of a select committee of the House. 4 Johnson is serving at Cam Ranh Bay as a member of the 35 Engineer Group.

TWO WAVES FROM Jerome met again while home on leave this week. The girls, from left, DPSN Susan Mein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mogensen, enlisted together last September. They had also graduated from Jerome High School together in 1969 and underwent basic training together at Bainbridge, Md. Miss Mogensen is stationed near Washington, D.C., where she works in the Pentagon. Miss Mein also was scheduled to be stationed near the capital, but got a last minute change of orders to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, to be near her fiancé, who is a Navy man.

HOLBROOK
Aviation Electrician's Mate 3C Jack Holbrook, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne D. Sken, Twin Falls, was awarded the Navy Commendation Medal for meritorious service while attached to Light Photographic Squadron 63, Detachment 34 embarked in USS Oriskany as an Aviation Electrician's Mate from 16 May to 31 Oct. 1969, during combat operations against the enemy. PO Holbrook played a vital role in maintaining maximum combat readiness in spite of an arduous schedule and hazardous flight deck maintenance working conditions. His superlative performance of duty and effective troubleshooting prevented a loss of many important missions and was directly responsible for providing safe flight conditions for the aircrews of the detachment. He continually performed tasks beyond the capabilities of anyone else in the detachment, and displayed unusual knowledge in other rates associated with the aircraft.

LEGAL NOTICE
NOTICE TO BIDDERS
The State Purchasing Agent will receive sealed bids at his office, Room 205, Statehouse, Boise, Idaho, until 11:30 A.M., August 11, 1970 for the following: REG. NO. 51 for Barley and Wheat for the Fish and Game Department at Jerome, Idaho. All bids will be publicly opened and read at the above time and place. Formal bidding conditions must be received before bidding. These are available from the State Purchasing Agent's Office.
TED CRAMER,
State Purchasing Agent
PUBLISH: July 29, 29 & 30, 1970

The Army "buddy program" is a program where enlisting men can arrange to serve in basic training together.
Bradley Crane, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Crane of Burley, and Jacob Behner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Behner of Boise enlisted under the "buddy program" after oaths were taken in ceremonies at Boise.
After being separated for years, Mr. Crane and Mr. Behner were surprised to find themselves enlisting in the United States Army together. The two boys had attended school together in Burley, and were seeing each other for the first time since the Behner family had moved away.
This month they flew to Ft. Lewis, Wash., for basic training, but will again be separated when they go into their own field of training.
Mr. Bradley was enlisted by the Twin Falls Army recruiter and will attend Aircraft Maintenance Schooling, which he will take at Fort Rucker, Ala. after basic training.
Mr. Jacob was enlisted by the Boise Army Recruiter and will be trained in Automotive Mechanics.

Military Plans To 'Try, Then Buy'

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, following a conference with President Nixon, said Monday future defense contracts would be awarded on a step-by-step basis designed to eliminate costly overruns.
"We will fly planes before we buy," Laird said.
Laird's statements were made to a news conference shortly after a 90-minute meeting with the President attended by Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's national security affairs adviser, and other domestic counselors.
The second in the series of conferences, called by the President to take a hard look at the budget and the economy, is scheduled for 1:15 p.m. today.
Laird's remarks to the press on Pentagon contracts were a sharp departure from the old system of package deals under which contractors handled all phases from the drawing board to the finished product.

TAX OFFICIAL QUITS
BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—Enunoh Batson, chief counsel for the State Revenue Department named by Life Magazine as having Mafia connections, has resigned his position. The magazine charged that, among other things, Batson had been paid $100,000 for the past several years. Batson admitted he had not paid the return during 1969. He said he was under the influence of the revenue department.

Empty Shops Belie Success of Cuban Revolution

By WILLIAM GIANDONI

Latin American Editor

Copy News Service

After 11 years of Fidel Castro's dictatorship, and nine of "economic emancipation" from the United States, Cuba is the only nation in the Americas where everything anyone wants is rationed or in short supply.

So sad is the plight of Cuba and Cubans that even Castro's apologists now are commenting publicly on the way he has ruined his Caribbean island country.

Latest of the true believers to lose faith is Rene Dumont, a French Socialist who last year made his third study of Cuban agriculture at the invitation of Castro himself.

First in the Paris newspaper, Le Monde, then in a new book, and in subsequent interviews, Dumont has given vent to his disenchantment.

"Since May, 1960," Dumont wrote, "there has been almost no distribution of fruits and vegetables in Havana. Rationing of consumer goods is 'very severe' and shops are almost empty," he reported in Le Monde.

In his new book, "Cuba: Is It Socialist?", Dumont said that "haste has caused so many errors that one should know better in the future how to avoid them. But they have been made in Cuba for 10 years now without serving as a lesson."

Dumont reports that while, in public, everybody is apparently for Castro, in private his supporters are much less numerous.

What the French agronomist recounts has been said before. But rarely by as staunch an admirer as Dumont.

Day after day, Cuban exiles arriving in the United States tell harrowing tales of life under communism in Cuba.

But so often are the stories repeated in essence that they seem to have lost their impact. "Neither bread without freedom, nor freedom without bread," Castro pledged in the days when Cubans regarded the revolution as a promise of social progress and political and individual liberties.

That Cubans ended up with neither bread nor freedom is something that no longer seems to concern the rest of the world.

That, at least, seems to be the saddening realization of such as Guillermo Martinez Marquez, veteran Cuban newspaperman who has been in exile since 1960, when his paper was confiscated.

"No one pays us attention," the former editor and publisher of the Havana Newspaper, El Pais, says.

But, according to information he receives by roundabout fashion from sources in Cuba, life there is difficult and conditions are worsening.

Shortages are so widespread that items listed in ration books are hard to obtain.

For more than a year now, even dust rags have not been available.

"When you go to the store to buy a little of what arrives, you have to take something to put it in, a bottle or paper, because there are none in the establishment," Martinez Marquez informants wrote him.

"There are no flowers, not even for funeral wreaths, which are made of paper now and cost dearly.

"Due to shortages, you always have to get something on the black market. But the prices are terrible. A pound of rice or other grain, costs $3 to $5; coffee, $5; pork, $5; a can of condensed milk, $2; a turkey, between $40 and $50; a Havana (cigar) or a pack of cigarettes, $1; a broom, $3.

"The stores are dirty, their glass showcases broken. For more than 10 years now, things are not painted or repaired."

Mario Rivadulla, a Cuban journalist who spent six years in Castro's jails and another three getting out of Cuba once he served his time, offers an impression of how difficult life can be for an "enemy of the revolution."

He was given a 10-minute trial by a revolutionary tribunal, charged with being a Central Intelligence Agency spy, of having contact with U.S. naval personnel on Guantanamo, of having led a terrorist cell and of having made an attempt on the lives of Castro and the Soviet ambassador. His court-appointed defense lawyer had 10 minutes to study the case and Rivadulla never received a chance to voice his own innocence.

Conditions in Cuban Communist jails are abysmal. Rivadulla says that for months after the 1962 missile crisis between Cuba, the Soviet Union and the United States, political prisoners literally lived on kegs of dynamite. The explosive was buried under their detention place, then on the Isle of Pines, and prisoners were told that they would be blown up in event the United States sought to attack or invade Cuba.

Life in prison was painful and debilitating. One hunger strike, he recalled, saw a prisoner lose 105 pounds in 30 days. Escape from Cuba is all but impossible. There are said to be hundreds of thousands of Cubans waiting for a place on the twice-a-day freedom flights from Varadero to Miami; the only direct connection between the United States and Cuba, and fewer than 200 a day make it.

The year's long wait between the time a would-be exile's application for exit from Cuba is approved and when a seat on the plane becomes available takes its toll, too.

According to a report from a relative in Costa Rica, one Cuban mother recently arrived on a freedom flight with her child so exhausted from the physical and mental torment she had undergone that she lay down to rest and died in her sleep.

Jungle May Save Peru's Poor

LIMA (UPI)—The Peruvian government is going to try to combine a dream and a nightmare and come up with a better life for more than 100 Peruvian families who have lost everything in the great earthquake.

It is a project born out of desperation and of a dream.

The participants, 118 families from the earthquake-devastated state of Ancash, already have lost everything except their lives.

The idea is not new. For half a century the government has recognized the need to relocate the poor families of the city slums and the miserable, barren highlands. The logical place to put them was in the vast, potentially rich jungles on the eastern side of the Peruvian Andes.

The projects have had little success.

Government Tries Again Now, the government is trying again, this time pushed by the urgency of people who lost their homes, and in some cases their families, in the catastrophic earthquake and avalanches of May 31.

The Peruvian Ministry of Health says 70,000 are dead or missing. But the work now is directed for the living. The Ministry of Agriculture will be responsible for transporting the 118 families into the edge of the Amazon Jungle along the Huallaga River not far from the isolated jungle town of Tingo Maria.

The families are farmers, mostly from the highland valleys where they raised wheat and potatoes at altitudes up to 13,000 feet. Where they lived, the days were cool and bracing, the night cold.

The new home is the hot, humid climate of the jungle. They will not raise wheat, but will have to learn about fruits, pepper and the other crops of the jungle. They will have to learn how to build homes out of materials they have never known before.

Know Nothing of Jungle They know nothing about the benefits or the dangers of the jungle—the insects, the animals, their new neighbors. Resettling the poor in the jungle in the hope of giving them a better way of life was the great dream of Fernando Belaunde Terry, the former president of Peru who was overthrown by Peru's current military president, Gen. Juan Velasco Alvarado.

Belaunde, an architect, long dreamed of a highway which would connect the potentially rich jungle—with its unlimited supply of fruit, timber, spices and other products—with the populous desert coast of Peru. With 800,000 left homeless by the earthquake, the Agriculture Ministry is trying again. This time the colonists, as the government calls them, will get more help.

Plan May Cause London Exodus

LONDON (UPI) — Picture of central London in the year 2070 as a ghost city after dark. Restaurants, bustling at lunch, shuttered. Theaters, musty with disuse, empty. During the working day it pulses as usual. But come nightfall, millions migrate to suburbia and beyond.

Left are pockets of the very rich and the very poor.

It's grim possibility, according to 3,300 London members of the Royal Institute of British Architects.

They say municipal officials plotting London's long range development for the 1970s have whipped up "a recipe for environmental disaster."

The architects are the most vocal critics of the Greater London Council (GLC) plan, the most controversial feature of which is three beltway road systems around London to encourage automobile usage.

If the GLC plan is followed through, the architects say, London by 1981 will be dirtier. It will have fewer people, more roads, more traffic and so many commuters that under-staffed and inadequate public transport could not cope.

Because of the furor since the plan was unveiled last March, the British government recently ordered an inquiry into its merits.

The GLC plan suggests six major strategic shopping and arts centers in outer London.

The GLC said it expects 600,000 persons to leave the greater London area by 1981 but such centers would forestall an even larger outflow.

The plan declares that ability to move about efficiently is basic to the functioning and prosperity of London. In lobbying for the three beltways, the plan says:

"The total environment in relation to transport has to be considered and safeguarded if Londoners are to travel about and to work and bring up their families under reasonably efficient and healthy circumstances."

In their critical report titled London 1981, the architects said:

"The Greater London development plan is mainly directed at the educated, relatively affluent, car-driving suburban family which comprises only one part of London's social fabric."

The architects said: "Our view is that the motor vehicle represents a major threat to the environment and that its use must be restricted."

"The population must be retained as far as possible within London, and within central London; this can only be achieved by an approved environment consisting of more mixed communities, fewer vehicles, more dwellings and a sophisticated public transport system conveniently linking traffic-free areas."

The report said there is a strong possibility that within 100 years central London will be as the City (financial district) is today, deserted outside office hours.

The architects gave an economic warning:

"Once the garbagemen, milkmen, postmen and hotel waiters, for instance, have to move from inner London to the suburbs and beyond, they are more likely to accept employment in the areas to which they move rather than bear the cost and difficulty of daily commuting."

The architects suggested redefining central London to include large swatches of the more impoverished East End, much of which was blitzed during World War II.

This, they said, would redress the balance of investment which favors the west in roads, public transport, shops and overall environment.

"There is nothing in the GLC development plan to prevent Londoners in the future, being left only to the very rich and the very poor," they said.

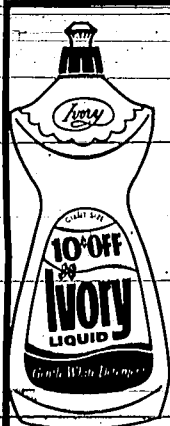

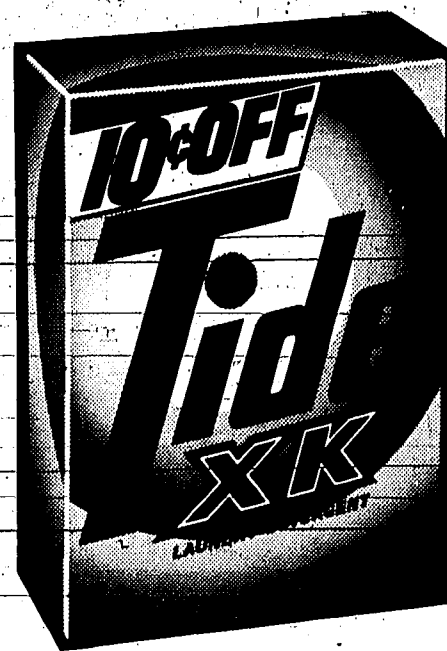

The problems confronting London development in the 1970s are akin to many being thrashed out in urban America.

Because of rocketing house prices, 85 per cent of London's present 7.9 million population cannot afford mortgage repayments on properties costing about $12,000.

FORMER-CANYONSIDE school south of Jerome is being remodeled into a $75,000 home by Mr. and Mrs. E. M. McCurdy, Twin Falls, who purchased it about a year and a half ago from the Jerome school district. The former classrooms are being converted into four large bedrooms, each with private bath. Plaster and wood paneling are being put over the lava rock walls, making the walls almost 24 inches thick. Electric heat is replacing the old furnace.

T.F. Couple Remodeling Jerome Old Jerome Schoolhouse Kitchen Opens

JEROME — What do you do with an old school building, the school district no longer needs? If you are Mr. and Mrs. E. M. McCurdy, Twin Falls, you buy it and make it into your home.

The McCurdy family purchased the Canyonside school south of Jerome about a year and a half ago, from the Jerome School District 261 and is now in the process of remodeling the building into an attractive, spacious home.

Workmen have been busy turning the classrooms into four large bedrooms, each with a private bath. The top floor will also include living room, kitchen, library, den, and family room with a large fireplace and half bath.

The basement when completed will have a large recreation room with fireplace, room for two more bedrooms and plans to restore the two restrooms.

Workmen on the job said they are putting in wood paneling on the walls after putting plaster over the lava rock walls on the inside making the walls almost 24 inches thick. The old furnace has been removed and electric heat will be installed.

The exterior of the building will remain the same with the old lava rock. New windows have been added and the trim has been repainted.

Mrs. McCurdy will use a large part of the basement for her hobby of ceramics. Workers will install kilns and other needed equipment for her in a large workroom in the basement.

The school was constructed in 1921 and until 1950 had four school teachers. In 1950 it was consolidated into a three-room, three-teacher school. The Jerome school district has not used the building for sometime before the McCurdy family purchased it.

Workmen said that the estimated value of the home will be in excess of $75,000.

SHARRON GREER

Turkish Student Traits Surprise K.H. Teacher

KING HILL — "The most astonishing trait of the Turkish student to American eyes is his extraordinary capacity for memorization," declares Sharron Greer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Greer.

Miss Greer has just returned from a three-year teaching assignment at the American College of Girls in Istanbul, Turkey. A native of King Hill, she was graduated from the College of Idaho, Caldwell, and earned an M.A. at the University of Utah before going to Turkey.

"I was at first awed and impressed by my students' ability to repeat entire lectures and to quote lengthily from the literature they were studying, but my respect soon turned to frustration in failing to persuade them that I was more interested in what they thought than in what I thought — something American students seldom had trouble telling me."

"But my students' responses were not surprising, for they belong to an Eastern cultural system which usually emphasizes conformity rather than individuality and stresses traditional cultural values rather than questioning and the possibility of change."

The students at the American College of Girls in Istanbul were just as disconcerted by the difference in educational philosophy as their teachers, Miss Greer states. These girls, a highly selective student body who had received intensive preparation in English, spent half their time in Turkish classes studying Turkish literature, history, geography and military science and the other half in English language classes, studying mathematics, science, English literature as well as psychology, sociology and philosophy.

This meant going from a geography class in which they were asked to recite 20 pages of the textbook every Friday to an English class where the teacher's main question was, "What do you think?"

Turkish teachers are somewhat unhappily bound to a curriculum schedule established by the Ministry of Education, Miss Greer notes. The system insures uniform schooling for students throughout Turkey, but little room for flexibility. The American teachers were convinced that our emphasis on individual thought and creativity meant a better education, but our smug assumption of superiority was tempered by the discovery that our students sometimes had difficulty passing the entrance examination for the University of Istanbul in competition with

The freer Western education may be better for the students as people, the King Hill teacher feels, but it didn't help them deal with the practical demands of a Turkish university.

Student-teacher relationships are more formal in Turkey than in the U. S. Traditionally, students rise when the teacher enters the room. An easy comradery between teachers and students is hard to establish for a casual mannered teacher who refuses an authoritarian role endangers the respect of his students.

Because they have little opportunity to assume responsibility — and make decisions, Turkish teenagers are less socially mature than Americans. When rebellion does occur, as it has in riots and boycotts at the University of Istanbul and other Turkish institutions, the students easily turn to extreme violence, perhaps because they've had little previous practice in asserting themselves, Miss Greer thinks.

Thus, the educational system, while trying to preserve a stable, traditional society, fails to prepare students for many problems which arise from change. Miss Greer plans to continue graduate study at Tufts University, Medford, Mass., where she has been awarded a doctoral fellowship in English.

Jerome Girl Scout Conducting Guided Tours At State Capitol

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News Correspondent
BOISE — Jerome Girl Scout, Carrie Hays, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Hays, has been selected as a tour guide at the State Capitol building.

Miss Hays is now serving as a guide at the capitol and will be there until Friday. She began her two-week volunteer assignment last week.

She is a member of Cadette Troop No. 149 with Mrs. Stan Fritzler, troop leader. Miss Hays is representing Neighborhood 18, a scouting unit in District 2 of the Silver Sage Council.

Tour guides were selected from questionnaires filled out by members of the Silver Sage Council and Oro-Ida Scout Council.

Both girl Scouts and Boy Scouts are working for two weeks in cooperation with the State Department of Commerce and Development in conducting tours of nearly 70 visitors per day.

Capitol records show 2,000 tourists passed through the building in June, 1969, representing every state in the union and 33 foreign countries.

This is the first time the guided tours have been conducted at the capitol.

Mrs. Hazel Keefer, Gov. Don Samuelson's secretary, said that the scouts have been doing a fine job with the tours and has added to the interest of the capitol building.

"They are a pleasure to have around," she noted.

Comments from tourists so far, indicate the program is very successful, says Girl Scout program and camping director, Carolyn Bowser. Miss Bowser is working in conjunction with Mrs. Phyllis Huffman of the State Commerce and Development staff and Ron Bromley of the Boy Scouts.

Miss Hays tells the visitors of many of the interesting features of both buildings, including facts, stories and rumors, in her hour-long tour.

She explains that the exterior of the capitol building consists of 10-ton sandstone blocks cut from the table rock quarry behind the State Penitentiary and drawn across the desert to the capitol building site by horse and wagon.

The building was completed in 1920 for a total cost of about $2,300,000. Today not even the land it stands on can be purchased for that price.

Marble on the capitol walls comes from the state of Vermont. Gray marble on floors and staircases originated in Alaska, the red trim marble on the floor is from Georgia and the deep green and black inlaid pieces on the first and second floor of the building and in the old Supreme Court chambers are from Italy.

The law library contains books on unusual and out-of-print books. The library offers records on every Supreme Court case in Idaho and all other states, as well as laws passed by the Idaho Legislature. A complete United States Record is also included.

By doing the tours service the scouts are earning points toward proficiency badges and the active citizenship challenge. Forty-one girls and seven boys are working in the program. They come from Twin Falls, Jerome, Nampa, Idaho Falls, Caldwell, Weiser, Soda Springs, Gooding, Pocatello, Glenns Ferry, Boise, and also Ontario, Ore.

GIRL SCOUT, Carrie Hays, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Hays, Jerome, is being shown a display case in Gov. Don Samuelson's office by his secretary, Mrs. Hazel Keefer, to help her explain the items to visitors. The Jerome girl is on a two-week volunteer assignment as tour guide at the state capitol building.

Veteran Car Club Plans Tour In S.V.

Idaho was chosen this year for the Western National Tour of the Veteran Motor Car Club of America Aug. 3-6, according to the Idaho Department of Commerce and Development.

Over 100 cars are expected with around 300 people attending from across the United States. The Eastern Idaho Chapter, headquartered in Pocatello, will host the many activities included in the tour based at Sun Valley.

Side-trips are planned to Redfish Lake and Craters of the Moon National Park. In recognition of the vintage costumes worn by members, an Antique Clothing Fashion Show will be held at 7 p. m. Aug. 5 on the Sun Valley Lodge Terrace. Public is invited to the show.

In order to participate, all cars must pass safety inspection and be as bright and shiny as new. There are three categories of cars: antique, vintage and classic, with awards and trophies to be given.

Antiques are automobiles manufactured prior to 1917. Vintage cars were made between the years 1917 to 1935. A classic is any pre-World War II automobile recognized by the Classic Car Club of America; such as Rolls Royce, Deussenbergs, Corbs, Auburns and most Packards, Cadillacs and Lincolns.

TWO NORTH SIDE ARTISTS, Mrs. Stella Walters, right, and Mrs. Joy Shropshire, have had their paintings chosen to compete in the DeVinci Open Art competition at the First International art show in New York City. Their work is on display

Paintings Compete In N.Y. Art Show

WENDELL — Some of the paintings of a Magic Valley artist are hanging in the Idaho First National bank at Wendell, while another is on display this week at the DeVinci Open Art competition at the First International Art Show in the United States.

Shown this week through Aug. 9 at the New York city coliseum is a landscape painting of Mrs. Stella Walters, 62, longtime Idaho resident and housewife for 60 years. A member of the Wendell Art group, she helped organize the Jerome Art Guild 10 years ago.

Mrs. Walters, who lives in Jerome, says her favorite theme is landscapes and oil is her favorite medium, but the picture chosen for international competition is a water color entitled, "Autumn on Wood River."

Another Jerome artist, Mrs. Joy Shropshire, also has had one of her paintings chosen for competition in the international competition. "Spring Flowers in Texture" is the title of her oil painting.

The youngest adult member of the Jerome Art Guild, Mrs. Shropshire says she has no favorite medium but is interested in a variety of types and mediums. She studied under Mrs. Emma Bradshaw for three years and at College of Southern Idaho. She also has studied with Mrs. Eugene Kluender, Jerome, and attended workshops of Lee Parkinson, Utah artist.

Last weekend her paintings were displayed at the Sun Valley lodge in connection with the Magic Valley art guild, and she has displayed her work at the YWCA, the Jerome library and other area business houses. The mother of three children, ages 4 to 13, she manages the Husky self service station at Jerome and belongs to the First Baptist church.

Mrs. Walters, mother of eight children, with 33 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren, started painting 28 years ago as a hobby after her family was grown. She has demonstrated watercolors at the Dietrich Elementary school and use of pastels at the Long term care unit at Jerome. She has studied under Carl Orren, Twin Falls; Margaret Young, Buhl, and Mrs. Virginia Ikard, Jerome.

Area Man Selected By School

SHOSHONE — Gordon G. Croft, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Croft, Shoshone, has selected to attend the University of Oregon Dental School at Portland, after having been accepted at three dental schools in the United States.

He will begin his studies at the University on Sept. 21.

A graduate of Shoshone high school, young Croft fulfilled pre-dental requirements at Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, in May. He served a two and one-half year mission for the LDS Church in Finland. This summer he is employed by the Bureau of Land Management, Shoshone.

Top Clown To Appear During Gooding Fair, Rodeo Aug. 9-12

GOODING — One of the top clowns in the RCA Rodeo business will set up shop at the Gooding County Fair and Rodeo Aug. 9-12.

Tim Oyler is considered one of the "up and coming" bullfighters in professional rodeo today. Having clowned amateur rodeos in all parts of the country, Tim decided his real love was in the Rodeo Cowboys Association. In 1968 he became a member in good standing.

Tim and his wife, Suzanne, spend their winter months in Pocatello. They are attending Idaho State University prior to becoming secondary education teachers.

This summer Tim is working top shows as Pocatello Frontier Days, Famous Preston Night Rodeo, with other top rodeos in Caldwell, Burley and the Oneida County Rodeo in Malad. For the second year in a row, Tim will travel to one of his favorite rodeos in Granite Falls, Minn., also the Calgary Stampede and Ogden's Pioneer there this week through Aug. 9. Mrs. Walters, an 82-year-old great-grandmother, has been painting for 28 years, while Mrs. Shropshire is the youngest adult member of the Jerome Art Guild.

Wendell Wendell Engineer Studies Pump Bids

WENDELL — Wendell city engineer, Wendell Smith, is studying bids submitted by three firms at the last city council meeting to build a new pump house and install pumps. Bidders included Killian Plumbing and Heating, Pocatello; Nowell J. Olsen and sons, Logan, Utah, and Drake Plumbing and Heating, Boise. The contract is to build a new city pump house, furnish and install pumps, motors and electrical equipment and install piping and plumbing and a city-owned chlorinator to utilize the new city well which was drilled in April, 1969.

The group discussed the recommended divisions that will be endorsed if the council's recommendations for city zoning are accepted by the citizens of Wendell at the public hearing which is scheduled for Aug. 8 at 8 p.m. in the city offices. The plan provides for an area a block wide on Idaho Street and West Main to be residential.

All area from Avenue A between Hagerman and Shoshone Street to the railroad tracks has been designated as industrial. The southwest corner is to be residential industrial. The city center will be

Days. The end of a "Booked Solid Season" will be at Castle Rock, Colo., after which Suzanne and Tim will rest their rodeo equipment and take up the books because Tim feels that, "I can't fight bulls all my life."

Wood River Group Sets Tour July 30

GOODING — The Wood River Resource Commission will host a tour of the Wood River Resource Area Thursday to view work under way and work already accomplished in this area in the last few years.

The bus will leave Lincoln County Courthouse in Shoshone at 9 a.m. Thursday. Stops being made in the morning will include Dietrich Flood Control Diversion at Richfield; Mont Johnson Daily Rotation System and the Dietrich Bule Range Management Plan — BLM.

A no-host lunch is planned at the Lincoln Inn, Gooding. Afternoon activities will include Wendell Grazing Plan, BLM; Sprinkler systems on sandy soils; Malad Gorge Proposed State Park; George Talbot Fish Ponds and Snake River Trout Ranch. Bob Erkins will host a trout dinner at the Snake River Trout Ranch. The bus will travel back to Shoshone following dinner.

Fiddler Crabs — Fiddler crabs are so-called because of the extreme difference in size of the claws of the male, one claw resembling a fiddle or violin and the other the bow.

Dodge, Twin Falls, was fined $5 for defective equipment.

NASA Head Quits

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—Dr. Thomas O. Paine, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, is leaving his post with a feeling of mission accomplished. Under Paine's guidance, man first landed on the moon.

Paine's resignation effective Sept. 15, was accepted Tuesday with deep regret by President Nixon.

Paine planned to return to General Electric in a new high level job outside the aerospace and defense operations of the firm.

His successor for the $42,500-a-year job has not yet been named. Paine joined the space agency as deputy administrator in January, 1968. In March, 1969, Nixon named him administrator filling the vacancy created with the retirement of James E. Webb.

"It has been a very heavy responsibility but I lay it down most reluctantly," Paine told newsmen.

"My first fundamental responsibility was to make certain the United States met its commitment to land on the moon on time within the budget," he said.

Paine also said there is "no question" that before the end of the century man will set foot on Mars.

He urged the United States to continue "to press forward vigorously in space."

Nixon Signs Demo Eyes War Error Merger Act

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon has signed into law a bill to allow newspapers in danger of financial failure to pool non-editorial operations.

The President's action affected joint newspaper operations in 22 cities, which until now were subject to prosecution under antitrust laws.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien came close today to confessing his party was wrong in its Vietnam policy of the 1960s and in the conduct of its turbulent 1968 National Convention.

O'Brien gave prominent attention to these two political problems in his prepared statement as the leadoff witness at a hearing of the Democratic reform commission headed by Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota. The hearing was called to take testimony about the role of young people in American politics.

O'Brien said the next president can be elected by the young if votes are cast by only half the 18-to-21 year-olds, newly enfranchised by the 1970 Voting Rights Act. If its provisions are sustained by the courts.

O'Brien testified that national problems were much influenced by the Indochina War, which he called an "increasingly senseless conflict" that had caused the country nothing but grief. No political group helping to perpetuate the war, he said, could win the allegiance of young people.

"The young like to place blame, and there is plenty of that around for all of us," he said. "Working closely with two Democratic presidents in the 1960s, I defended that war publicly. I urged congressional candidates in 1964 to run in support of the President's efforts in Vietnam."

Spy Ship Named

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The Navy has identified a Russian trawler cruising off the missile test center as the electronic spy ship Laptev.

The shot was postponed from last Monday and informed sources said it may be rescheduled for as early as next Monday. The James Madison will conduct the important undersea firing in international waters about 30 miles east of the cape.

The Laptev's presence will not affect the Poseidon's launch schedule, the Navy spokesman said in reply to a query.

The law permits a newspaper in "probable danger of financial failure" to pool its advertising, circulation, business, printing and other production operations with another paper. However, the papers must maintain separate editorial departments.

The law was proposed after the Supreme Court ruled on March 10, 1969, that the joint operating agreement of the Tucson, Ariz., Evening Citizen and Morning Star violated antitrust laws.

The Soviet vessel apparently is waiting for the nuclear submarine James Madison to launch the new multi-warhead Poseidon missile from beneath the ocean's surface for the first time.

Drilling Ends at A-Site

GRAND VALLEY, Colo. (UPI)—The drilling at the controversial Project Rulison site on Colorado's Western Slope has ended.

Workers are now making preparations to tap natural gas freed from underground rock formations by a 40-kiloton nuclear explosion last Sept. 10. Tapped gas will be tested for radioactivity.

The drilling, aimed at an underground cavern formed by the blast, ended Tuesday at a vertical depth of 8,234 feet. Spokesmen say they are not sure whether the re-entry well penetrated the cavern, centered at the blast point of 8,431 feet below the surface.

But they say they are in the area. Workers began drilling the re-entry well in May.

The project, which met with much opposition from local residents, state officials and many environmental scientists, is a part of the Atomic Energy Commission's Plovershare Program. Plovershare is a program designed to develop peaceful uses for atomic energy.

Rulison is sponsored jointly by the AEC and Austral Oil Co. of Houston, Tex.

Robert Thalgot of the AEC said there appeared to be little danger of any "appreciable amount" of radioactive gas escaping from the re-entry well. He said the well is capped and filled with mud.

Tuesday night there was no "surface pressure," Thalgot said, indicating no gas was coming up from below. Workers are currently preparing to pull the drill pipe from the well to clear it for final production casing at the bottom, he said.

Conductor Succumbs

LONDON (UPI)—Sir John Barbirolli, conductor-in-chief of Britain's Halle Orchestra, died Tuesday night. He was 70.

The former New York conductor had been under medical treatment since collapsing during a rehearsal May 29.

His greatest fame came in England when he resigned as conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in 1948 to reorganize the relatively weak Halle Orchestra in Manchester. He rapidly transformed this group into an orchestra of worldwide fame.

"Unfinished Symphony" Schubert's "Symphony No. 8 in B Minor" is called his "Unfinished Symphony" because it has just two, instead of the three or four movements of the classical symphony.

Postal Reform Slowed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Presayers from special interest groups and from the postmaster general are threatening to blow apart efforts to get a postal reform bill—and a pay raise for the nation's mailmen—out of Congress this year.

Conferees from the House and Senate were in their third week of meetings today trying to iron out differences between separate postal bills passed by the two bodies last month. The legislation calls for the post office to be turned over to an independent government agency to be run by a board of governors.

The conferees have deadlocked, however, on what rate-making powers the new U.S. postal service would have.

One source inside the closed conference meetings told UPI: "The whole thing could blow up any day now. Interference from the PMG (postmaster general) is the main cause and we seem to get further apart with each meeting rather than closer."

Postmaster General Winton M. Blount and his aides have set up an office in the Capitol, reportedly working out of House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford's office, while representatives of bulk mailers have maintained a constant vigil outside the conference committee meeting rooms.

House conferees Tuesday agreed to accept language in the original Senate bill that would create a five-member Postal Rate Commission whose actions on rates would not be subject to congressional veto. The nine presidentially appointed members of the board of governors, who would have overall operating authority for the department, could veto the rate proposals; but only if the veto was unanimous.

Senate conferees, meantime, said they had a new package affecting the entire rate picture which did not agree with the original language of their bill, and therefore could not agree with the House action in receding to the original Senate bill.

Jackie Gets Yacht

ATHENS (UPI)—Aristotle Onassis' yacht Christina has been described as the world's finest with its 10 guest rooms and marble swimming pool. Yet he promised his wife, Jacqueline, an even better one Tuesday on her 41st birthday.

Onassis presented the former Mrs. John F. Kennedy with an order for "the best yacht in the world to be completed by the same date next year."

It will be called the Jacqueline and will be constructed by the Japanese shipyards that turn out huge oil tankers for Onassis' worldwide fleet. The only announced specifications were that it surpass the 325-foot Christina in luxury. The Christina is decorated with old masters, has a spiral staircase and carries its own seaplane.

It took a fleet of helicopters most of the day Tuesday to carry hundreds of birthday telegrams, flowers and gifts from the Greek mainland to Onassis' private island of Skorpios in the Ionian Sea, where Mrs. Onassis spent the day.

Dirty Pool

WEST PATERSON, N.J. (UPI)—Anthony Destassi was fined $15 Tuesday for violating zoning ordinances by building a pigeon coop without permission. His neighbor, Joseph Barbagelino, filed the complaint.

"They do all their taxing and have their flight pattern right over my pool," Barbagelino said. "It's a lousy situation—Pigeons sure aren't the cleanest birds in the world."

First Flag Raising

The first recorded raising of a flag over a school took place on Catamount Hill, Colrain, Mass., in May, 1812. A monument marks the site of the old log schoolhouse.

KEEPING THE RECORD STRAIGHT "Government reorganization is saving you money!"

— GOVERNOR DON SAMUELSON

FACT: We are trimming the state government down to size. Over the years, it had grown out of control — there were more than 135 departments, agencies, commissions and boards in the Executive Branch alone.

FACT: I am determined to keep working until Idaho's government is fully streamlined and all wasteful overlap is eliminated.

FACT: One important step already has been taken. The Department of Administrative Services is doing the job it was designed to do — saving you money by eliminating duplication and consolidating services.

FACT: Such an organization, with data processing services now centralized, is absolutely necessary to bring Idaho government into the computer age.

FACT: It is saving you money now, and it will save you a great deal more money in years to come, in the areas of Budget, Management, Communications and Buildings.

FACT: Beyond this start, I strongly support the formulation of an overall plan for Executive Branch reorganization.

FACT: During '67-'69, twenty other states began executive reorganization and modernization. I am firmly convinced that you, the people of Idaho, want this job completed.

FACT: All this is being accomplished to make your government more efficient, more economical . . . to help prevent any increase in state taxes. And this is how I aim to keep it!

New State Office Building houses centralized data processing department of Administrative Services.

Don Samuelson sees what has to be done . . . and he does it, with honesty and integrity.

STATISTICS COMPILED in Magic Valley by FHA officials and farmers were forwarded to Boise Wednesday where they were under study to determine if a federal or state emergency program is needed to cover storm damage losses. Reviewing figures compiled in Cassia county are Andres J. Passey, Boise, State FHA loan officer; State Rep. James Martin, Burley, and Fred Johnson, Burley, FHA director, all from left.

Low Cost Housing Plans Made At Blaine Confab

HATLEY — The Blaine county community is suffering from an acute shortage of adequate housing for low income residents and at least one group of individuals feels something can be done about the problem. A short-range goal of 20 living units is the immediate goal.

Meeting for a second evening Tuesday with representatives of Idaho State University Government Research, the group of about 20 business and civic leaders and private individuals were given tools for approaching a solution to the housing problem.

Conducting the workshop were Dr. John Eyré, chairman of the Department of Government, associate professor of government and director of the Institute; Dr. Victor Hjelm, assistant professor of government and research association, and Paul Kelly, community development specialist for the Institute.

It was agreed that the housing problem exists because residents of the area are paid low wages or suffer from seasonal employment and cannot afford the housing which is available.

Proposal for a non-profit organization to develop rental units for the low income group met with the approval of the pilot group, with funding planned from the Farmers Home Administration. It was recommended that representatives from the various city councils, county commission, civic organizations school and church groups form a non-profit organization to achieve a concerted effort for the project.

Planning members also suggested that the housing development be advocated on otherwise non-productive land in the county, thereby adding value to the tax rolls. A short range goal of 20 living units, with a long-range plan of 100, is advocated.

7 Directors Selected For Area Health Board

Appointment of a seven member board of directors to administer the South Central Idaho Health Department was announced Wednesday following a meeting of county commissioners and other officials from the eight county area.

Two ex-officio members will be added for a total membership of nine, William Chancey, Twin Falls County Commissioner reported. The members were selected in a meeting in Jerome Tuesday afternoon and will take office officially on July 1, 1971.

Under new legislation calling for the creation of health districts throughout the state, each area selects a board of health to include not more than one physician and to represent all counties in the area.

Mr. Chancey said plans were made to pass the seventh official board position around among the smaller counties.

Jack Jairo, Blackfoot, newly named program director of sanitarian services in the South Eastern District, explained the sanitarian program being established there.

Dr. Luther Thompson, medical director for the South Central District, said this is part of the over-all revised health program in Idaho and other districts will be establishing broader sanitarian departments with new and additional responsibilities.

Albion Downpour Leaves Silt Trail

ALBION — A flash flood in this community Tuesday evening caused considerable excitement, wet basements and a trail of sand and silt Wednesday morning, but damage was negligible.

Marvin Tremayne, service station operator, said the downpour started about 4 p.m. and by 5 p.m. the drainage creek from the dry farms in the country had filled and was overflowing. It was some four hours later before the water was contained back in the creek bed.

During the interim many residents were pressed into service sand bagging in an effort to keep the creek water in its bed. Sand bags also were used around the Tremayne service station and the Buggy Inn cafe next door.

Water seeped into the two buildings, but no damage was reported, only a film of silt which necessitated thorough cleaning today.

"Some of the best top soil in the country was in my service station," Mr. Tremayne declared. The street past his station was running about knee deep.

Lawns on homes for a block south of the main highway also were inundated Tuesday night, and this morning were covered with top soil silt. The overflow water was reported as far east as the Chatham place on the edge of town, where water also washed into the corals.

Men handling the sandbags, estimated the force of the runaway water at between 2,500 to 3,000 second foot.

Officials at the D.E. Evans bank said water covered the bank's parking lot and was lapping at the door, but did not reach the inside of the building.

Keith Amende, dry land farmer, reported no serious damage to his wheat fields, but said small gulleys were washed out by the flash flood.

Parade Entries Sought

GOODING — The Gooding County Fair Board has extended their invitation to anyone in the area interested in entering the Gooding parade, set for Aug. 10 at 2:30 p.m.

Those interested should contact Ted Molinet, Gooding, chairman of the parade.

The queen's contest has been closed, fair board officials noted. Five girls have entered in the contest and 17 have entered in the junior princess contest.

Will Thomas has been asked to bring his team of horses to pull the fair board's wagon in the parade this year. Service clubs, church organizations or people interested in opening game booths at the fair, are asked to contact the fair board.

Goal Missed By 12 Pints At Gooding

GOODING — The Gooding blood drawing quota of 100 pints was missed by 12 during the Tuesday drawing at War Memorial. Ninety-two donors turned out, but four were rejected.

One gallon pints were presented to Walter Nelson and Ed Koester, both Gooding; a two-gallon pint to Doran Butler, Bliss; three-gallon pints to Roy Shoup, Tony Zlatnik, Don Simis and Mrs. Lella Stutzman; and a four-gallon pint to Mrs. Dolores Thomas.

Receiving five-gallon pints were Andy James, Gooding, and Mrs. Mary Butler, Bliss.

Sixty-four replacements went to Bobby Reed, who was injured in a motorcycle accident recently. There was a total of 81 replacements.

Doctors who donated their time were Dr. M.V. Klinger, Dr. Douglas Smith and Dr. James McChesney. Nurses were Mrs. Hazel Walston, Gooding; Mrs. Dorothy Alexander, Lincoln County; Mrs. K. Cutler, Wendell; Mrs. Johnette Braga, Gooding.

Rupert Plans For Disposal Of Autos

RUPERT — Residents of Rupert will have the opportunity to dispose of old or wrecked automobiles the last of August, according to Mayor Wendell Johnson.

The mayor reported to councilman this month that the Raycliff Brothers Co., of Caldwell, contacted him advising that his company will crush and bale vehicles in this area providing the response is great enough. He said his company would like about 150 vehicles on hand in order to set up operations at Heyburn.

There is no charge for this disposal operation, but owners are asked to move vehicles to the appointed place, which will be advertised later. The official said, the company can't dispose of gas tanks, however, and would like them removed by owners.

In other council business, Ray Ulrich, received a pledge for $250 toward the veteran memorial to be erected at the Courthouse grounds by the VFW.

Charles Dalry was appointed to serve on the three-man board of the Electrical Distribution System for the Association of Idaho Cities. Other members will include a man from Bonners Ferry and a man to be appointed by the city of Burley.

The annual picnic for city employees is scheduled for Aug. 7 at Neptune Park with Mr. Dalry as chairman.

In other business, councilmen:

- transferred a beer license from Dolan's Market to Albert Schell of Al's Grocery;
- approved city audit presented by Helen Dickinson, CPA;
- heard a report from Gary Towell concerning a broken aerator at the city sewer plant, and authorized the Mayor to sign an agreement with Delores Wilkinson for removal of trees on H Street.

Jerome Has Two Contests

JEROME — Only contests in the Jerome county ballot for the Aug. 4 primary election are for the GOP bids for state representative and assessor.

Walter Shouse, Jerome county farmer, is seeking the GOP nomination for the state legislative post, opposing Earl Greenawalt, former Jerome mayor.

Frank Holmhorst, Hazelton, is seeking the assessor's nomination vying with Howard Jepson, Jerome.

Other candidates running unopposed on the Republican ticket are Cleo Ambrose, county commissioner in district 1; Claude Bernard, third district commissioner; Mrs. Ella McVey, Auditor; Dr. Lauren Neher, coroner; and S. A. Kolman, prosecuting attorney.

Charles H. Andrus, constable, on the Democratic ticket; Carl Stephens, for county treasurer, was the only candidate to file.

Candidates for legislative district chairman in District No. 22 are Leslie Ruby, Democrat, and H. E. Wilson, Republican.

Polling places for Jerome county are Bishop precinct, Episcopal Parish Hall; Canyonside precinct; Canyonside Club Hall; Courthouse precinct; Jerome Grange Hall; Eden precinct, City Hall; Falls City precinct, Sugar Loaf Grange; Grandview precinct, Frontier Hall; Jerome; Greenwood precinct, Greenwood Sunday School; Hazelton precinct, City Hall; Northeast precinct, American Legion Hall; Northwest precinct, Senior High School; Southeast precinct, Washington School; and Southwest precinct, Jerome Implement.

Truck Rolls

RUPERT — LeRoy Slater, 28, Rupert, was treated and released from Cassia Memorial Hospital early Monday morning after losing control of his 1948 Ford pickup one mile west of Burley on Interstate 80. About $200 damage was estimated after the vehicle overturned, according to State Police Dean Holloway, who cited Slater for failure to register his vehicle.

Charles Creason, Jr., 17, Rupert, escaped injury Saturday night after the 1969 Mercury he was driving northeast of Rupert on 200 East, struck two sheep.

Lincoln Slates Talent Event

SHOSHONE — District three Farm Bureau Talent contest will be held at 8 p.m. Friday at the First Baptist Church, Shoshone.

County winners in the senior and junior divisions will participate.

Judging Contest Slated

SHOSHONE — The home economics judging contest at the Lincoln county fair will be held at 7 p.m. Friday, with the home economics and special demonstration contests at 8 p.m., reports Mrs. Jay Fowles, home economics agent.

Girls in charge of the judging contest are Lorinda Knowles, Mrs. Marvin Langholf, Peggy Falls and Mrs. Ronald Ralls.

All girls enrolled in 4-H home economics clubs are required to enter the home economics judging contest. Each contestant shall place four classes and shall give written reasons for placing one class that corresponds to her club project. Ten minutes will be allowed for writing reasons.

In the Demonstration contest Tom Dallas is in charge of agricultural; Charlene Jones, home economics contest with Penny Fixson assisting, and Bonnie Laughlin is in charge of the special demonstrations.

The three winners will enter the district fair. For the junior contest ages are 10-14, and 12, intermediate 13, 14 and seniors are 15 years and up.

Simplot To Open Thursday

HEYBURN — The J.R. Simplot Heyburn Operations will re-open the Heyburn plants Thursday with anticipations of a better season. They have been shut down since July 21, according to Hugo Dalsoglio, area manager.

The official said the company completed a longer than usual season processing the 1969 crop. He said the company had a large quantity of potatoes last year making the season longer. Although they had a large quantity, he noted the quality wasn't as high as in the past and had a lot of hollow centers.

Although company contractors received less this month from the hall, the official said it wasn't so great as to hurt this processing season.

The company employed about 1,200 workers when it shut down last week, and is currently employing about 600 during repair and maintenance being done. Operations will begin Thursday with three shifts on a 24-hour schedule.

Picnic Set

JEROME — The annual Arkansas Picnic will be held at South Park East Main at Jerome at 2 p.m. Aug. 9. All Magic Valley people, family and friends who are from Arkansas or the Ozarks are invited to attend.

Buel McChesney wished to remind each to bring their own table service and food. Entertainment will be provided.

Blaine Voters Have 5 Contests Aug. 4

HAILEY — Few controversial issues are involved with Blaine county's Aug. 4 primary election although voters are offered five contests.

Contests exist on the Democrat ticket for treasurer, with incumbent Dorothy Povey opposed by Artelle Dick; prosecuting attorney, with incumbent V.K. Jeppesen opposed by E. Leo Schlender; assessor, with incumbent W.D. Martindale facing Kenneth Wright; and on the Republican ticket for representative in District 21A with newcomers E.V. McHan, Stephen Boller and C.E. Chatfield opposed, and District Three county commissioner, with Robert Neely facing J.F. Colven.

Unopposed in the county primary include Rodette Fry, Bellevue, Republican, treasurer; G.W. Ward, Republican, Legislative District 21 chairman; John Peavey, Republican, senator, District 21; Oscar Argstein, Democrat, senator, District 21; Floyd Kialing, Democrat, representative, District 21A; George McCoy, incumbent, Democrat, clerk of the district court; Ray Sweet, Carey, incumbent, Democrat, County Commissioner, District 1; John R. Rannett, Democrat, county commissioner, District 3; and Ronda Hunt, Carey, Democrat, Legislative District 21 Chairman.

Precinct committee men filing are Ira Hoffman, Democrat, and C.W. Dunn, Republican, Hailey 1; Bill Mallory, Democrat and John Davis, Republican, Hailey 2; Jean Terra, Democrat, and Mary Sidwell, Republican, West Ketchum; Betty Clark Laverly, Democrat, and Jane Kneeland, Republican, East Ketchum; Jerry Alfred, Democrat, and Homer Gordon Eccles, Republican, Gannett-Pleasor; Joyce Peterson, Republican, Carey; and Joe Bergin, Democrat, and Ric Schmidt, Republican, Bellevue.

Mrs. Dick claims six years experience in the county's assessor's office and noted she believes in "doing only office work in the office." Taking issue with the statement, Mrs. Povey noted that over the past eight years tax collections charged to her office have nearly doubled, from $223,239 in 1962, to $1,018,074 in 1969, with 1970 charges to be higher.

Despite the added work load, she noted that she and her deputy, Zee Nelson, have continued to handle the work without hiring extra help, in such a manner as to receive praise from the Certified Public Accountant who audits the county records.

Mr. Boller promises to work to shift the local tax burden away from the ad valorem property taxes, to obtain more highway improvement for the district, to simplify probate laws to reduce time and expense and to increase the state funding for local education, including public kindergartens.

His opponent, Mr. McHan, said he is seeking the bid "for many people in the three-county area lack representation in regard to roads, local schools, protection of fish and game and other natural resources, and problems of the farmer and livestock man."

"You need experience and mature judgment in your prosecutor and Blaine County attorney," incumbent Jeppesen states in his campaign, while his opponent Mr. Schlender feels there are no real points of disagreement between the two as to how the office should be run.

"Because Blaine county is one of the fastest growing P.C. Miller residence, Valley counties in the state, the assessor's position demands the highest degree of training and organization. We are in a critical period of growth where judgment, based on experience and training, is essential to attain the goal of equalized taxation." So says incumbent Mr. Martindale while his youthful opponent Mr. Wright promises "full time, public minded service for the county residents."

While Mr. Colven feels the county needs someone that can get things done in the county commission seat, his opponent Gen. Neely has expressed concern about tax inequality in the county, the rising drug problem and the food stamp situation. He feels the county should undergo re-evaluation, which has not been done since 1961; that drug users and suppliers should be severely prosecuted; and that those who presented mis-statements to get food stamps should be prosecuted.

Voting places for the primary will be the Hailey armory for Hailey Precinct 1; Hailey city hall, Hailey 2; Bellevue school, Bellevue; Gannett-Pleasor residence in Gannett-Pleasor; Carey school, Carey; West Ketchum school, West Ketchum; and the Ketchum school, Ketchum.

Utah Judge Files Suit Over 3 Islands On Gooding Farm

BOISE (UPI) — Federal Judge William W. Ritter, Salt Lake City, has filed a citizen's claim to three small Snake River islands. He claims will be sold to the state Fish and Game Department.

Ritter, owner of Thousand Springs farm in Gooding County, contends the islands were created through private action of Sand Springs Creek which flows through his property. An 1893 survey of the area shows no islands in the Snake River, he said.

He petitioned U. S. District Court in Boise for judicial review of the Bureau of Land Management's decision to sell the islands for $50 to the Idaho Fish and Game Department for use as a waterfowl habitat.

Ritter's action names Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, Idaho BLM Director Joe T. Patton, and BLM land office manager Orval G. Hickey, Boise, as defendants.

Tickets Sold

Ticket sales for the Thursday night premiere showing of "Airport" in the Magic Valley area, have moved into a good momentum, Patrick Florence said Wednesday. He reminded residents they may be purchased in benefit of the local Harbor House project at the Cinema theater or from any Jaycee.

Biscuit Company Denounces Testimony

National Biscuit Company today denounced as confusing and misleading the testimony before a Senate Investigating Committee on July 23 that most ready-to-eat cereals have little nutritional value.

"Either this testimony is confused and based on faulty assumptions, or the findings of numerous studies by nutrition authorities over many years are completely wrong," Nabisco declared.

human nutritional requirements are best met by a proper combination of these foods.

Nabisco Shredded Wheat was invented in the last century as a wholesome, 100 per cent natural whole wheat grain cereal. It is a basic source of nutrition and has been so recognized by dietetic authorities for decades. It is low in sodium content and a source of iron and vitamins. Nutritional studies conducted by Dr. Frederick J. Stare and Associates at the Harvard School of Public Health found the protein quality of Nabisco Shredded Wheat to be superior to that in raw wheat as a result of Nabisco's careful processing.

Cathy Wegman, Graham Recite Nuptial Vows

KING HILL — Cathy Wegman, daughter of Mrs. Frances Wegman and Clayton Wegman, both Grand View, became the bride of Phillip Graham, son of Mrs. Gerald Hochstrasser, Glens Ferry, and Kenneth Graham, Ontario, Ore., July 3.

Rev. Earl Frauborch officiated at the double ring ceremony at the Church of Brethren, Fruitland.

The bride was attired in a white afternoon dress with matching accessories, accented with a corsage of pink carnations. Christy Wegman, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bert Soolsey, Ogden, Utah, was best man.

After a wedding dinner in Ontario for the families and guests, the bride and bridegroom left for a short wedding trip.

The bride is a graduate of the Grand View high school, and the bridegroom attended Glens Ferry and Ontario schools. The young couple resides in Ontario.

A bridal shower was held in honor of the bride July 17 at the Grand View Knight Church, with Mrs. Thomas Collett, Mrs. Gary Lawson and Mrs. Hugh Ridley as hostesses.

Debra Hankins, Grand View, assisted the bride in opening her gifts. Special guest attending from King Hill was Mrs. Cecil Bott, grandmother of the bride.

Museum-Like Rings Head List

By United Press International

Among museum-like pieces from the Pauline Triguere collection of costume jewelry is a group of Aztec rings, brooches and necklaces. Many have the look of old gold and are studded with tiny jewel-like stones and mini pearls.

For fall and winter, midi coats with the Robert Hall label go over mini skirts in fresh new colorations and take to pants with equal aplomb. Plaid ponchos go over straight-leg pants which vie with knickers for the fashion spotlight when pants are the order of the day.

Purple tweed knickers in the collection take purple suede patches as a practical accent.

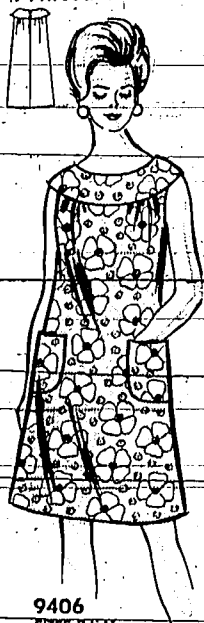

Envelope purses for fall range from little clutches to huge ones suspended from the shoulder. In between are a dozen other sizes. Some of the handsomest envelopes took like huge rectangles instead of being long and lean.

In case anyone asks, cowpats is a heavy, grainy leather that looks a bit like elephant hide. It's used in handbags for fall and winter.

For the first time, six of America's trend-setting designers combined forces to demonstrate the breadth and originality of American fashions to the women of the world. The designers' creations were featured at Expo '70 in Japan. The designers included Rodi Gernreich, Stan Herman, Gayle Kirkpatrick and Chester Weinberg, Ferdinando Sarni and Victor Joris.

MR. AND MRS. RONNIE SOLDERS

Miss Culver, Solders Say Nuptial Vows

BELLEVUE — Marsha M. Culver and Ronnie L. Solders, both Bellevue, were united in marriage during an evening, double ring ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer G. Solders, Bellevue.

The bride is the daughter of Irene Barayazarra, and Lawrence Culver and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Solders. Probate Judge Bill Grant performed the ceremony beneath an archway of pink and white flowers.

Given in marriage by Wayne Baher, Shoshone, the bride wore a floor-length white satin gown covered with white lace. A high standard standup neckline and long-butterfly sleeves in white lace trimming accented the gown which was made by the bridegroom's sister, Jeanne Solders.

Her elbow-length veil of white lace was held by a headpiece of pink satin. She carried a bouquet of white carnations accented with pink rosebuds tied with white and pink satin streamers.

Bridesmaid was Jeanne Solders, with Fred Knoepfel serving as best man. Johnny Solders, brother of the bridegroom, was ringbearer. Ushers were Calvin Solders, brother of the bridegroom, and Jim Owens, cousin of the bridegroom. Dixie Owens, cousin of the bridegroom, registered the guests.

Rustin Sherbine and Louise Benson played the traditional wedding music.

A reception was held after the ceremony. Made by the bridegroom's mother, the bride's cake was white with pink flowers, topped with two silver bells. Serving refreshments were Pam Culver and Chris Maccarillo. Gifts were displayed by Carrie Werrle and Jackie Filder. The newlyweds reside in Bellevue after taking a wedding trip to Sunbeam Resort, Clayton.

Social Events

The Magic Valley Military Waiting Wives will meet at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the Depot Grill for a dinner meeting. All wives of servicemen serving elsewhere are encouraged to join the group which gets together on the first and third Saturdays of each month. More information concerning the group can be obtained by contacting the Chamber of Commerce.

BURLEY — The annual Golden Glean picnic will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the VFW Hall, Burley. Members are asked to bring their own table service and a covered dish.

An old time dance will be held Wednesday from 8 p.m. to midnight at the Twin Falls Moose Hall.

SHOSHONE — A Woods family reunion will be held Aug. 1 and 2 at the Wendell Park, reports W. L. Woods, Shoshone. Those attending are asked to provide their own eating facilities and may make arrangements for housing in Wendell. Pictures will be taken Saturday evening and Sunday morning. Friends of the family are invited for part or all of the festivities.

Malta Social Club Convenes

MALTA — Mrs. Glen Parko, president, was hostess to the Malta Social Club recently at her home.

The acquisition of several lace tablecloths for party rental in the Malta area was among the items of business discussed.

Earlier in the month the club hosted a luncheon for a group of county residents who made the Historic-Trail tour in Cassia County. The meal was served at the Lions Club.

Mrs. Pat Kelly assisted Mrs. Parke in serving refreshments.

Experts Needed For Mental Care

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A shortage of trained health experts is crippling the delivery of effective care for mental disease, reports a group of psychiatrists.

"Children have it particularly tough," said Dr. Irving Phillips of the University of California's Langley-Porter Institute.

"There are about 1.4 million children who need psychiatric care, but less than 500,000 are getting it."

"Less than 10 per cent of the mentally retarded who could benefit from help are getting that help."

"There are vacancies for trained psychiatrists all over the country but we just can't fill them," said Dr. L. Douglas Lenkowski of Western Reserve University in Cleveland. "We must step up the capacity of the medical schools. In my mind, the situation is going to get worse before it gets better," said Dr. Alexander Simon, head of Langley Porter.

Magic Valley Breaks Ogden's Five-Game Win Skein On 9-3 Decision

OGDEN (UPI) — Magic Valley ended Ogden's five-game winning streak here Tuesday night with a 9-3 victory over the league-leading Dodgers.

Prior to Tuesday, the Dodgers had taken five straight games, scoring 56 runs to 14 for the opposition.

Magic Valley broke open the game with three runs in the fifth and three more in the sixth to take a 7-3 lead over the home team. Cowboy first baseman Jack Pierce went four-for-five at the plate, including one triple, scored one run and had two RBIs to pace the Cowboy attack.

Lewis Galendez also tripled and scored two runs and two RBIs.

Ogden scored a single run in the third inning when Tom Jenkins singled to bring home Elmer-Mixon. They added two more in the fifth on a single by

Cuellar 3-Hits White Sox, 4-2

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Rookie Bob Grich capped a three-run explosion in the fourth inning with a bases-loaded single and Mike Cuellar pitched a three-hitter for his 14th victory as the Baltimore Orioles downed the Chicago White Sox, 4-2, Tuesday night.

Grich delivered his two-run blow with two out off loser Joe Horner after Brooks Robinson singled across Merv Rettenmund with the inning's first run. Rettenmund led off with a double, and after Robinson's single, walks to Terry Crowley and Elrod Hendricks set the stage for Grich.

DETROIT (UPI) — Bob Oliver's second two-run homer of the game — a wrong field ball to right with two out in the ninth inning — provided the Kansas City Royals with a 7-6 win over the Detroit Tigers Tuesday night.

Oliver's 20th homer of the season followed a single by Lou Pinella off the leg off losing pitcher Fred Scherman and turned Ted Abernathy from a loser into a winner.

Abernathy gave up a leadoff single to Gate Brown in the bottom of the eighth and Norm Cash followed with his 11th home run of the season to vault Detroit into a temporary 6-5 edge. Bill Freehan then doubled and went to third on a sacrifice but was cut down at the plate when Cesar Gutierrez missed the ball on a suicide squeeze attempt.

The Royals had taken a 5-4 lead in the top of the eighth on singles by Pinella, Billy Sorrell and Rich Seaver off starter Joe Niekro.

Kansas City had struck from behind to take a 4-2 lead with three runs in the fifth.

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Al Downing fired a two-hitter and the Milwaukee Brewers scored two unearned runs in the seventh inning Tuesday night to beat the Washington Senators, 5-1.

A homerun by Tommy Harper in the sixth inning, his 22nd of the year and third in as many games, enabled the Brewers to tie the game at 1-1. Frank Howard's error with none out in the seventh started Washington's downfall. The miscue put Ted Savage on first and he moved to second on a groundout. After Dave May was intentionally walked, Roberto Pena hit into a fielder's choice, putting runners on first and third.

OAKLAND (UPI)—Two-run homers by Sal Bando and Don Mincher and a bases empty blast by Reggie Jackson powered Oakland to a 6-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox Tuesday night and extended the A's winning streak to seven games.

Chuck Dobson pitched the first 5 2/3 innings for the A's to record his fourth straight victory and his 11th of the season compared to 10 losses. Jim Grant pitched three shutout relief innings to pick up his 17th save.

Vicente Romo was touched for five hits and five runs and suffered his first loss since Aug. 31, 1969, a span during which he won nine games, six of them this season.

Rico Petrocelli's 17th homer, after a walk to Mike Andrews and Reggie Smith's second of four hits, produced three runs for the Red Sox in the third.

McCoy Earns 'Killer' Tag For Depredations On All-Stars

CHICAGO (UPI) — Notre Dame's huge defensive tackle, Mike McCoy, has a new nickname. In the College All Star camp, the coaches call him "the killer."

"I didn't know that," McCoy said. "Nobody said anything to me."

The coaches obviously kept the information from McCoy because they don't want him to lose his enthusiasm for contact when the All Stars play the Super Bowl Kansas City Chiefs Friday night in Soldier Field in the annual test of the best of graduating college seniors and the pro champs.

But McCoy got his nickname because in routine, man on man drills, he eliminated two potential starters from the All Star roster, running back Larry Seigert and defensive tackle Phil Olson.

"Both injuries were just one of those things," coach Otto Graham said. "It didn't even look like McCoy hit them very hard. But we lost both of them, and hurt."

McCoy will get his major test Friday night when he plays against the Chiefs. And while he recognized the problems he's going to face, he was looking forward to the combat.

"They've got about the biggest offensive line I've ever seen," McCoy said. "I don't know whether we'll be able to get to their quarterback at all."

"It's going to be tough," McCoy said. "We're going to have to work on it. We're going to have to work on it. We're going to have to work on it."

McCoy conceded the All Stars defensive unit could find another problem in the Chiefs' pint sized sprinter at running back, Mike Garrett.

"He's got more than just speed," McCoy said. "He's strong, too. You can't put out one man and stop him. You've got to hit him, and I imagine we will some. But for a rabbit like that, you've got to be ready to fall on him when somebody else gets him off balance."

McCoy believed the All Stars defense was fairly well coordinated despite lack of scrimmages during the training period. "We had one brief scrimmage," he said, "and we found out what we had to do, and I think we did it through meetings and talks. And maybe it'll work out for the best. Nobody would be here unless he knew how to hit, and we'll all be well rested."

NL Bans Tossing Ball Into Stands

MONTREAL (UPI) — The National League has banned its players from throwing baseballs into the crowd.

League summer meetings Tuesday "we have one lawsuit against us this year because of a player whose name I don't wish to mention who tossed a ball into a crowd. We are forced to take steps to cut this practice out."

The National League owners also went along with a proposal by the Philadelphia Phillies to allow the club to install the new artificial grass infield in their new stadium, which is scheduled to open next season. The field, similar to the one being used in the new Cincinnati stadium, will feature the same 15-foot of dirt in front of the bag for sliding.

The Phillies, however, must get final sanction from the rules committee. They did not foresee any obstacles, though.

In an executive move at Tuesday's session, John Hales of the Montreal Expos was appointed to the National League Council. He replaces Bob Carpenter of the Phillies. The two-day session, being held in Canada for the first time, concludes Wednesday with a joint meeting of the two leagues. The first session on days of sunshine every year.

Las Vegas, Nev., has 300 days of sunshine every year.

Texas Open Tells PGA It's Folding

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Open, one of the oldest golf tournaments in the country and a forerunner of the multi-million dollar golf tour of today, will not be held next year.

Gilbert L. Brown, president of the San Antonio Golf Association, said Tuesday he had sent a wire to golf commissioner Joseph C. Dey, advising Dey that the dates the PGA offered San Antonio for next year were not acceptable.

Under the present conditions, we find it necessary to decline your offer for 1971," Brown's letter to Dey said.

The PGA had offered the tournament dates in either October or during the New Year's holiday.

"The dates were not acceptable because it would amount to inviting a financial loss," Brown said.

The Texas Open was first played in 1922, and has been called off on only five occasions since then. The tournament was not held for four years during the depression, and once during World War II.

In recent years, the tournament has failed to draw the big names of the game, despite the fact it has kept pace with the steady increase in prize money. It also has a history of bad weather.

Baughman Decides To Rejoin Rams

FULLERTON, Calif. (UPI) — Maxie Baughman, middle linebacker and defensive signal-caller, is coming out of retirement to play with the Los Angeles Rams again this season, the club reported Tuesday.

"This is great news for Ram coaches, Ram players and, most of all, for Ram fans," said Coach George Allen.

NFL Owners Call For Recess; No Progress Seen During Talks

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The negotiations between the National Football League owners and players were recessed indefinitely Tuesday night at the owners' request and the players immediately charged the owners with breaking off the talks.

The break-off was announced by Thomas Kneel, a labor consultant for the owners, who said, "Unfortunately, no progress has been made and the parties are just as far apart as when they were when we first met here."

He added, "In view of the gravity of the situation, it is necessary for the owners' negotiators to confer among themselves and with the other owners on what to do next. That's why it is necessary to propose a recess."

Kneel also denied the players' charge that they have broken off negotiations. He said they have merely asked for a recess.

Kneel said the owners would return to New York to talk among themselves and, as soon as we are in a position to know what steps can be taken to bring about an agreement."

Kneel said he was sorry but it was not possible to say when the owners would meet again.

When asked whether the training camps would be open to veterans, he said, "that was a matter to be decided by the owners."

Association president John Mackey, tight end of the Baltimore Colts, said he was sorry the owners had come to Philadelphia, "not knowing what their position was."

He repeated the players' assertion that the owners have broken off negotiations and said he was returning to the players' headquarters in Washington to make a report there. He said he was going, "immediately," because we want to play football."

Both sides carefully avoided making any direct mention of the amount of money involved in the pension plan negotiation but Mackey said, "the figures you see are wrong."

Bucks Slate Exhibitions.

In Hawaii
MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—The Milwaukee Bucks Tuesday announced an exhibition basketball schedule that features a round robin "tournament" in Hawaii and a unique basketball-hockey doubleheader.

Peterson And Weitz Combine For Two-Man Best Ball Crown

John Peterson and Phil Weitz of Caldwell put together a four-man team to win the second straight day Tuesday to win the team title in the Kihito Chapter PGA two-man best ball tournament.

Wally Lowe of Boise finished fourth with 132. Haneke took the pro sweeps with a 136 — after shooting an opening one under 67 Monday.

Mike Renshaw ended second with a 140, and Val Toolson of Rupert, carded a final 36-hole total of 142 for third, to end tied with Lenny Stroup of Payette.

Clendenon Powers Mets To 12-2 Win

NEW YORK (UPI)—Don Clendenon set a club record by batting in seven runs with a pair of three-run homers and a sacrifice fly and Jim McAndrew pitched a five-hitter Tuesday night in leading the New York Mets to a 12-2 rout of the San Francisco Giants.

Clendenon's 11th and 12th home runs of the season paced a 17-hit attack and helped him eclipse the one-game Mel-RBI record of six set by Frank Thomas in 1962 and tied by Jerry Buchek in 1967. The first homer followed a double by Bud Harrelson and a walk to Ken Singleton in the third inning and increased New York's lead to 6-0.

Giant starter Rich Robertson was knocked out in the fourth after allowing a single to Jerry Grote and walking McAndrew. Harrelson, who tripled home the Mets' first run in the opening inning, got his third hit by singling home Grote off reliever Mike Davison and, after Singleton fled out, Clendenon ripped his second homer over the 390-foot sign in left-centerfield.

Expos 5, S.D. 4

MONTREAL (UPI)—Ron Fairly drove in four runs with two homers, including a tie-breaking solo shot in the eighth inning, Tuesday night to lead the Montreal Expos to a 5-4 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Fairly homered in the third inning which saw the Expos push across four runs.

Lindquist continued in a prepared statement, "When the owners are ready to negotiate in good faith, an agreement will be concluded. The Association, the players and the fans want the 1970 professional football season to begin on schedule."

Lindquist said that "a settlement must be reached if the public is going to enjoy pro football. However, the owners have broken off negotiations and are leaving Philadelphia."

"It is, once again, apparent that the owners of the NFL are putting the 1970 pro football season in jeopardy by this action."

Lindquist said the owners requested a recess and "we are in objection."

He added, "the only way to have talks concluded is to stay in session. The season is approaching rapidly and players must get camp if the season is going to be played. The exhibition season is almost upon us. There is one exhibition game scheduled on Aug. 7th and nine on Aug. 8th.

Washington ABA Club Goes Regional

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)—The Norfolk City Council agreed to a gymnasium-leasing arrangement Tuesday that would shift the Washington Caps here and give the American Basketball Association its second regional franchise.

Councilmen approved an arrangement authorizing the city to lease a 3,200-seat gymnasium from Old Dominion College here and sublease it to the Caps for the 1970-71 season. The university's board of visitors approved the arrangement earlier.

The council also agreed to add 2,000 seats to the state-owned gymnasium, bringing it to the ABA standard of 5,000 seats for the 17 home games the Caps will play here next season.

Legion Tournament Delayed By Rain

BURLEY — Mountain Home officially dropped out of the district American Legion baseball tournament and rain took care of the Twin Falls-Burley game Tuesday night.

Twin Falls and Burley will meet at 6 p.m. Wednesday with the loser meeting Paul-Heyburn immediately after. The winner will go against Rupert Thursday evening.

Agnew Praises Golf As Sport

NEW YORK (UPI)—Vice-president Spiro T. Agnew Tuesday night praised the game of golf as sport of class, quality and accomplishment.

The vice-president made his remarks at the sixth annual All-America Collegiate golf dinner at the Waldorf Astoria where he received an award for his promotion and support of the game.

High Brone Draft Pick Doesn't Show

DENVER (UPI)—The Denver Broncos' third round draft choice, 255-pound tackle John Kohler of South Dakota, was listed as a "no show" Tuesday when he failed to report to the Broncos training camp.

Kohler was scheduled to arrive for the Denver camp Monday night, but failed to show up, a Broncos spokesman said. Kohler has not signed a contract with Denver.

The Broncos spokesman said the contract trouble with Kohler was not over money, but whether the 6-5 defensive tackle wanted to play professional football.

Cards 6, Braves 4

ATLANTA (UPI)—Vic Davila drove in three runs and Bob Gibson struggled to his 13th victory Tuesday night as the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Atlanta Braves, 6-4.

Gibson was tagged for 12 hits but had a 6-0 cushion going when the heat and humidity got to him in the sixth and the Braves erupted for three runs. He allowed another run in the seventh but then blanked the Braves in the final two innings.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)

Mauri Wills singled three times, scored two runs and drove in a third Tuesday night to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 6-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Dodgers' triumph spoiled loser Jim Bunning's bid to join Cy Young as the only pitchers in baseball history to post a 100 victories in each major league. Bunning, now 8-10, is 99-77 in the National League.

Pirates 4, Reds 3

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Dave Glust, taking over with none out and the bases loaded in the ninth inning, cut short a Cincinnati Red rally to preserve a 4-3 victory for the Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday night.

Jimmy Stewart touched off the Reds' ninth inning with a pinch single.

Joe Gibbon replaced starter Bruce Dal Canton and was tagged for singles by Bobby Toland and Pete Rose which landed the bases.

Glust replaced Gibbon and Tony Perez sacrifice fly scored Stewart. After an intentional pass to Johnny Bench again loaded the bases, Glust struck out Bernie Carbo. Leo May then hit a game-ending fly to Willie Stargell in left field.

A three-run homer by Bill Mazeroski in the second inning and doubles by Richie Hebner and Al Oliver in the fifth enabled the Pirates to carry a 4-2 lead into the bottom of the ninth.

The Reds got two of the runs back in the second on Bernie Carbo's double, a triple by Dave Concepcion and a single by Bobby Toland.

Astros 10, Cubs 4

CHICAGO (UPI)—Home runs by Jimmy Wynn, John Edwards and Doug Rader powered the Houston Astros to a 10-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday and helped Jack Billingham gain his ninth victory with relief help from Jim Ray.

Wynn provided Houston with a three-run lead in the first inning when he hit his 17th homer of the season.

Today's Market And Financial Report

Stocks

NEW YORK (UPI)—Advances topped 200 in a moderately active trading session at the halfway point Wednesday.

The S&P 500 index, measuring all stocks traded, rose 0.85 percent to 1,453.15, with 1,453 issues crossing the tape. There were 330 advances and 349 declines.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 selected blue chips was up 5.34 at 730.79.

Volume to 1 p.m. was 8,820,000 shares compared with 5,470,000 in a like period Tuesday.

Analysts said the market, apparently having found support at the 720 level on the Dow Jones Industrial Average, was attempting to challenge the 740 mark.

Among the biggest movers were National Starch, up 4 1/4, and Merck, off 5 1/4. The companies announced a preliminary agreement to merge.

Let the Jacobys put you in the declarer's seat today and see how you will try to make four hearts. The simple way is to try the diamond finesse unless you have marked West with the king for his spade overcall. In that case, it won't work.

How about playing West for exactly one diamond with the king? Rather poor percentage, so you give that line up.

There is a complicated elimination play that will work if trumps break 2-2 and West holds four or more clubs. This play is to play the third spade and play three rounds of clubs, ruffing the third club. Then you play two rounds of trumps, winding up in dummy, and lead the fourth club. If East fails to follow, you discard your small diamond. West will be on lead and between a rock and a hard place. He will either have to lead a diamond or give you a ruff and discard. That play is ingenious but is not going to work this time.

How about some solitaire play? Just ruff the third spade and run off all your trumps. Maybe East and West will discard poorly and give you two diamond tricks anyway. Worth considering and also should be abandoned.

When the late Frank Perkins of Boston, the great New England bridge player of the '30s and '40s and one of the true gentlemen of bridge, held this hand, he tried a different deceptive play.

He discarded his four of diamonds on the third spade. West was still on lead and, while he should not have fallen for this play, he did. West decided Frank couldn't hold anything in diamonds and led a diamond right up to the ace-queen.

Blood for Sale: How Much Is Good?

By TOM TIEDE

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The Community Blood and Plasma Service is located on lower Broadway in Manhattan and several other urban streets in the nation. It's where people who have run out of everything else go to sell their blood. Six dollars a pint.

Seven dollars for the second visit. And $10 if you've got RH negative.

I walked in the other day. I said I wanted to give. Or sell. A nurse jabbed my finger with a pin, took a small sample and told me to sit over there.

There are approximately eight million pints of blood used each year in medical surgery around the nation. A startling percentage of it is bad. According to the National Institutes of Health, one of every 200 recipients of single blood transfusions (or about 5,000 a year) contract hepatitis, an ugly virus which attacks the liver and can torment victims for a lifetime.

Since there is no way of detecting the hepatitis virus, it can be carried in blood from any source—voluntary donation or commercial sale. Yet because commercial sales are so often negotiated by needy derelicts, alcoholics and even dope addicts—all of whom are especially susceptible to the bug—there is a continuing demand that commercial outlets be closed for the public good.

So, with this knowledge as the reason, I sat where the nurse told me, looked around the blood bank walls (pinned up were a Code of Ethics and an admonition to "givers to Tell the Truth") and waited while a kid with a guitar, a girl who had no identification and a nervous man with a briefcase were handled first.

Then my turn.

"Name, please?" the nurse asked, as she filled out a double set of information cards, looking up only to assure me, at my prodding, that "Oh, no, we never tell your employer. This data is confidential. It never goes out of our files."

When she finished, the nurse directed me to the examining physician, a rotund, elderly man who sat in the straight-back chair and read a religious pamphlet. I was told later he was retired, "but entirely competent, you can be sure of that."

The doctor took my temperature, pulse and blood pressure. He didn't leave the thermometer in long enough, but he read it 98.6 (it wasn't). He lingered at my pulse for the shortest of time and read it 90 (it never has been that high). I know he pumped my pressure correctly because I could see it myself. But he failed to hear my heart imperfection, which has often prevented my donating blood before.

Then he got to the medical history card, which listed 33 taboo ailments. He asked me about four of them. I shook my head "no." And he dittoed all the rest negative.

"Ever had malaria?"

"I've been to Vietnam."

"Get malaria there?"

"I don't think so."

"O.K. Terrible war, isn't it?"

The doc marked me "approved" and I was laid supine on a cot where a technician asked me which arm I wanted to use. I said the left. He said fine. And to my surprise he neglected even to raise my right sleeve to inspect for any needle marks.

It was routine after that. My type "O" was drawn into a hidden pouch with the help of my pumping hand. Professionally. Cleanly. Without a hitch.

I looked around then at the other clientele. To be sure, they weren't Park Avenue executives: an artist who paints nothing but milk bottles, in for his sixth "or is it seventh?" time; an obvious wino, still healthy enough, but overacting a straight and narrow performance; a plump young woman who said she "popped a few pills" in her time but "God, I never been on the needle, honest." Yet still, there wasn't the assortment of wobbles and wounded I expected to see.

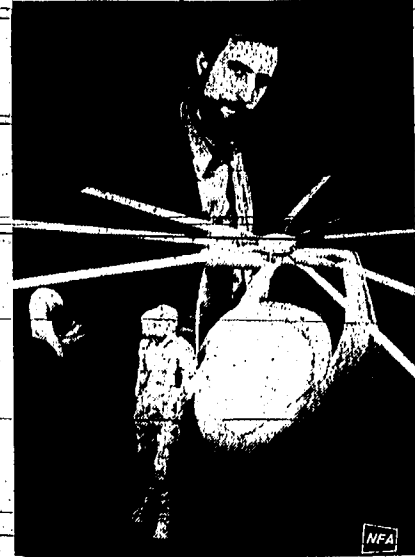

How many had hepatitis nobbly could say. Especially not that rotund doctor who has a peculiar way of counting pulse. Some critics maintain that federal studies have indicated as much as 61 per cent of commercial bank blood is bad.

But even if such blood does have higher hepatitis danger, it's all but impossible to close down the source. Nearly 65 per cent of all U. S. blood transfusions come from commercial houses, and as one NIH official says: "Despite risks, we have to have this commercial blood source or face a catastrophe."

So the technician withdrew the needle from my arm, swabbed the puncture mark, pasted on a flesh-colored Bandaid and pulled the $6 payment out of his pocket.

As I started to go the doctor was still reading his religious tract, the nurse was stabbing somebody else in the finger and a man with crippled feet was waiting his turn. I felt a little sad, dropped my $6 on the floor and left.

You Ain't Heard Nothing Yet: Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass (RCA LSP 4334)

Trumpeter Danny Davis is no Al Hirt, but he does play a respectable horn. He and his eight-man group provide a good hour's entertainment in this new album.

It makes no pretensions. It is merely country flavored fun on a dozen rollicking tunes which ran the gamut from the old New Orleans standard, "Lassus Trombone," through to the more contemporary "A Little Bit of This."

There's almost an even tossup of country tunes and those jazz and dixieland oriented numbers. Davis group obviously leans toward the country numbers, but handles the traditional jazz and dixie numbers (like "Columbus Stockade Blues") with almost equal enthusiasm.

What it all adds up to is an enjoyable album of instrumental favorites, not unlike a Lawrence Welk production, but with a brassy flavor.

Three stars.

Live: Iron Butterfly (A&O SD 33 318)

This heaviest of the heavy lays there heavily during a live concert performance, at least partially recorded in San Diego last year.

Holding the whole thing down is a monstrous 19 minute version of the keystone of their last album, "In A Gadda Da Vida." This version is equal to but different in texture than the last.

The basic trio plus organ group makes some very heavy music in the remainder of the album, weighing down everybody's brains with things like "In the Time of Our Lives," and "Filled With Fear," and "You Can't Win" and "Are You Happy."

While you may or may not agree with what they do, even the most hardened critic will concede that all four of the butterflymen are excellent musicians, stroking the most from their instruments.

The mystic quality of the Iron Butterfly's music, the trills of guitar and organ which lend so much to the ethereal quality of the tunes the group performs, seems the mainstay to the group's success.

One of the best new tunes on the album is "Soul Experience," which grooves through mystic psychedelia to arrive in your ears with a sound best described as electric fun.

Three stars.

Poco (Epic BN 26522)

Poco is back again, with another album of music which is drawn from the same mold as their last album.

Their is little to distinguish this album from their "Picking Up The Pieces" album. The music has that same almost country flavor now as then.

Downstairs, and a tune by Jim Messina.

Dominating the album is a huge tune, "El Tonto de Nadie, Regressa," which may have been an improvisation. It comes at the end of another tune, "Nobody's Fool," and it appears that the group just grooved on in the spirit of the moment.

"El Tontom" as the title might imply, has Spanish heritage and bloodlines, although its character is rock. It is a tune which Latin rock groups like Santana would love to get their hands on.

Furay's several contributions are inclined toward heavy rock in structure, although they get lightened somewhat in playing. Messina's tunes, one the other hand, lean toward the country and stay that way.

Messina's tune, "You Better Think Twice," is one of the best in the album. It shares top billing with "Tonto."

Three stars.

On A Clear Day Steve Lawrence Sings Up A Storm (RCA LSP 4347)

We've come to expect consistently fine work from Steve Lawrence, and his new album is no exception to this rule.

It's all fine vocal phrasing from Steve, backed by a fine orchestra, working with good arrangements from five fine chartmen. There is no flash and dazzle; just good solid singing and playing.

All the songs are standards or soon to become standards. There are a few unfamiliar tunes in the album which haven't been recorded very much, but should be in the future.

Some of the unfamiliar tunes are "Mama, A Rainbow," from "Minnie's Boys," and "You'd Better Love Me," from "High Spirits," and "What Did I Have That I Don't Have" from "On A Clear Day," and "She Loves Me" from the musical of the same name.

Familiar tunes include the title tune, "Who Can I Turn To," and "Try To Remember," and "If I Told The World," and "What Kind of Fool Am I" and "People."

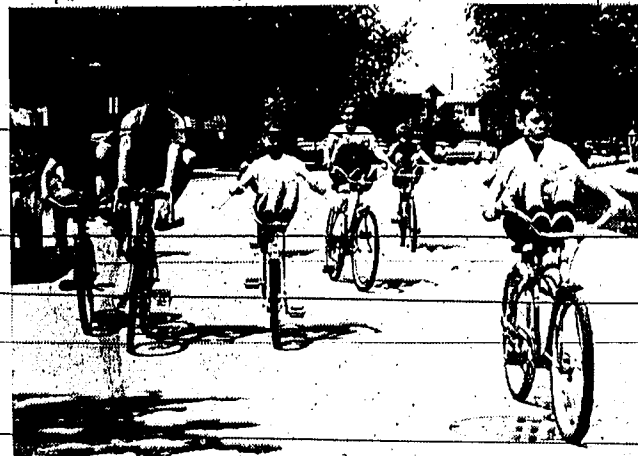

All in all, it's a highly enjoyable album, full of fine ballads from one of the nation's most reliable mainstream voices.

Four stars.

Sammartini: Symphony In A for Strings, Symphony In A for Horns and Strings and Symphony In G for Trumpets and Strings; Orchestra Accademia dell'Orso, Newell Jenkins, conductor. (Dover HCR 5247)

Among the great baroque symphonic composers, few martini fans high. Few composers of that musical era can compare with "Sammartini's" output of 78 symphonies.

In addition to his outpouring of symphonies, Sammartini, son of a French oboist who was born in Milan, also wrote an imposing number of concertos, concertini, quartets, trios and sonatas.

HAVING FUN or accidents looking for a place to happen? Cycling in this manner violates two basic bicycle rules of the road: Stay to the right and ride single file, to say nothing of keeping feet on the pedals. According to National Safety Council estimates, 85,000 children will be injured in or near school in 1970, another 50,000 will be injured between home and school and 75,000 children will be crippled for life. In a new program called PAY—Protect America's Youth—insurance agents will participate in youth safety programs, providing promotion aids, speakers and speech kits, and helping sponsor safety awards to community leaders.

largely recorded today. One of the few record labels which offers an extensive collection of his work is the Dover label, a subsidiary of Dover Publications.

This recording carries three of his most exquisite small symphonies, which brim with beautiful baroque stylings and instrumental phrasings.

Also included are one of his sonatas, in G Minor for Horns and Strings, and his Sinfonia No. 2.

They are finely performed by the Orchestra Accademia Dell'Orso under the direction of Newell Jenkins, who offer accurate readings of the intrinsically beautiful music.

A measure of the popularity of the man's work during his lifetime is that Vivaldi was the conductor of one of his symphonies as early as 1730.

He was internationally known for his symphonies; during his lifetime. But his music is largely neglected today.

Debussy: Piano Music (Deutsche Grammophon SLP 139458)

One of the modern masters of the piano, in a chromatic and melodic sense, Claude Debussy produced some of the finest solo piano works of the 19th century.

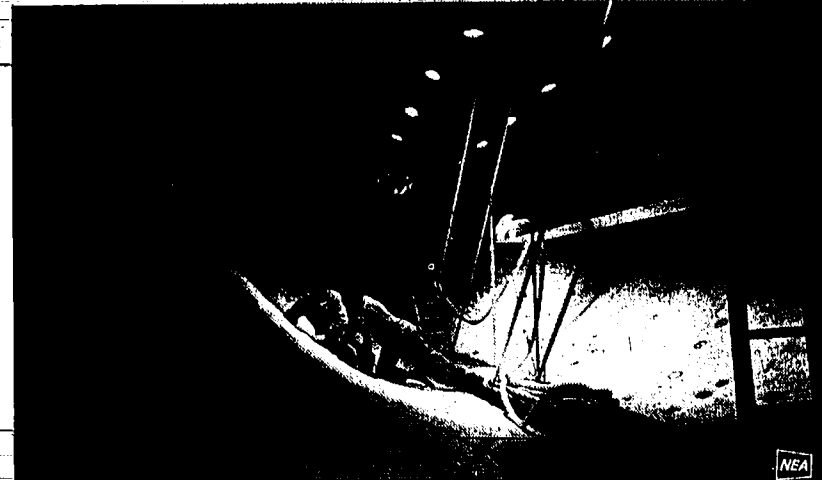

His work transcends much other contemporary solo piano compositions, for in addition to being technically masterful, brilliantly assembled and musically rewarding, it is utterly beautiful as well.

This album features the delicate stylings of Tamas Vaszary, a young but masterful pianist who has yet to truly make his mark in the U.S. His work is well known in Europe, however.

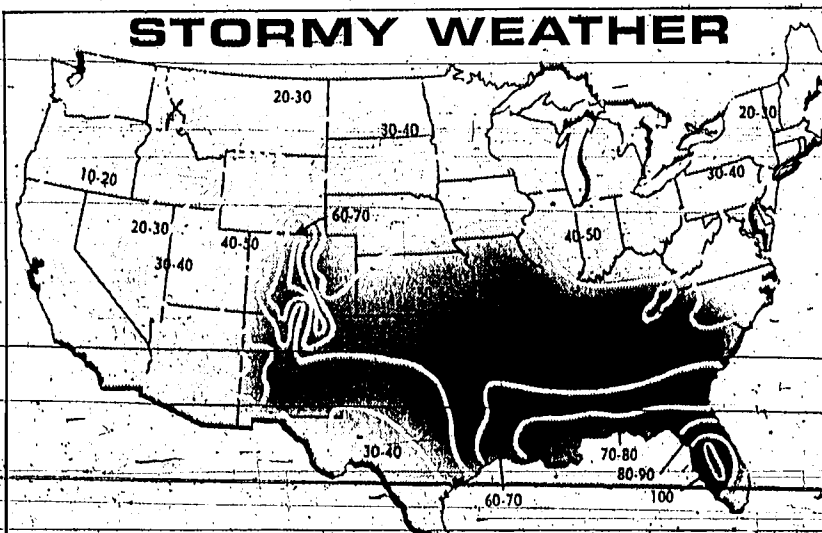

Included are the lovely Suite Bergamasque, Danse, Deux Arabesques, Pour le Piano, La Plus que Lente, L'Allegro, and Masques.

The vastly popular "Clair de Lune" is taken from the Suite Bergamasque, while the Danse and Deux Arabesques have gained much recognition in their own right. The fragile La Plus que Lente is also a solo piano favorite.

For the lover of the delicate beauty of Debussy piano, or those who simply enjoy fine, quiet music, this album is a treasure.

GREEN JENKINS CHEVROLET

313 Main Avenue West 733-3033

TRENCHES ALONG SHOSHONE Street in Twin Falls are being dug for installation of a storm drain line to carry rain and melting snow water from the downtown area. City officials said work will progress one block at a time, with the block involved in the work being closed to traffic. Here, Neilson and Miller construction crews work in the block in front of the County Courthouse and O'Leary Junior High School, the first block involved in the project. Some relief also will result at the intersection of Shoshone Street and Sixth Avenue North and East by installation of larger intake pipe.

Fresh Air Not Poverty Cure-All

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is a still hardy belief in American folklore that the way to make a law-abiding, productive citizen out of a dead end kid is to move him from the slums to the great outdoors.

This faith in the uplifting properties of fresh air probably reflects nostalgia for the hardy self-sufficiency of the frontier and the feeling of country folk that evil lurks in the cities.

More than a nation's foreign policies are shaped by its myths. The Job Corps was created in 1964 in large part because many members of Congress believed 16 to 21-year-old ghetto youngsters needed to get out of the city as much as they needed remedial education, medical and dental attention and job training.

Robert A. Levine, a former Assistant Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), wrote recently that "many legislators had fine memories of the Civilian Conservation Corps of the 1930's and wanted to apply the concept to the new anti-poverty program."

In fact, the needs of the 1960's for vocational training did not relate too well to CCC types of programs because conservation work provides little such vocational training. Levine wrote in "The Poor Ye Need Not Have with You," a book reviewing the war on poverty.

needed jobs from an economy that couldn't provide them. Levine wrote, "In the Sixties, the problem was different."

But the myth overcame what few warnings were offered against the Job Corps concept by manpower experts. Suggestions that experience with pick, shovel and axe would do a young man little good in the mechanized modern job market were waved aside.

President Nixon all but promised to wipe out the Job Corps during his 1968 campaign, but his objections were standard — high costs and poor results. He didn't say anything about the fresh air theory.

And Nixon didn't kill the Job Corps when he took office. Instead, he took it away from OEO and told Labor Secretary George P. Shultz to fix it. Injuring a major Congressional flap, Shultz closed down more than half of the conservation centers.

A year later Shultz was gone from Labor and the Job Corps still was spending $6,500 per trainee-year and still losing a high percentage of recruits. Department officials close to the corps feel improvements they have made are substantial, but privately complain they still are hampered by the political necessity to continue operating the remaining conservation centers in isolated locations while trying to give the corpsmen useful training for real jobs when they get out.

Washington Window

By EUGENE V. RISHIER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

Backstairs at the White House: All Presidents have suffered under the constructions of the White House. John F. Kennedy often fled to the bracing sea breezes of Hyannis Port and Palm Beach, and Lyndon Johnson frequently sought solace at his ranch on the banks of the Pedernales.

President Nixon has spoken often and affectionately of the White House, the grace of its rooms and the history in its corridors. He delights in taking visiting dignitaries on personal tours of its public and private rooms.

But he is no exception when it comes to feeling confined by the venerable house, and it is a rare weekend when he remains in it.

During the winter, he goes to his home on Key Biscayne, Fla., about once every three weeks.

In the spring and summer his favorite retreat is at San Clemente, Calif., where his Spanish-style villa overlooking the Pacific is the centerpiece in a complex that has officially been named the Western White House. This now is his residence of record and probably will be his home when he leaves the White House.

Other weekends he goes to Camp David, the Alpine-style retreat in the Catoctin Mountains of Maryland, a half-hour helicopter ride from the south lawn of the White House.

Even in Washington, Nixon has a private hide-away suite of offices in the Executive Office Building adjacent to the White House. He goes there when he wants to be alone and think.

Inevitably, Presidents come under criticism for maintaining out-of-town retreats. Detractors mumble about the enormous expenses involved and wonder who's at home to mind the store.

In fact, Presidents never get a day off. Even on vacations there are stacks of background papers to read, daily intelligence briefings and sessions with staff assistants.

When Nixon goes to Camp David or Key Biscayne for weekends he takes folders of background material that his assistants on the national security and domestic staffs have compiled. In California, his business as normal for Nixon with, perhaps, an occasional afternoon off for golf or swimming.

But it is an expensive proposition. Special airplanes transport the President and his staff. Courier flights run back and forth to Washington. Sophisticated and expensive communications equipment follow them everywhere. Helicopters and sedans frequently are flown thousands of miles simply to move the President a couple of miles.

Plan Outing

Southcentral Dental Assistants will hold a potluck dinner at 7:30 p. m. Thursday next to the swimming pool at Neptune Park in Rupert.

Those attending should bring their own table service. The association will furnish drinks.

LDS Pageant Top Spectacle

By ALLAN R. BRUCE

PALMYRA, N.Y. (UPI) —

With shocking realism the sights and sounds of a civilization's self-destruction will clatter through the normally sleepy valleys of this Finger Lakes resort community this week.

Using the fabled Hill Cumorah as a stage, 500 young men and women — members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormons) — portray the rise and fall of a civilization they believe flourished in America six centuries before the birth of Christ.

In its 34th year, the Mormon pageant, "America's Witness for Christ," is perhaps the most elaborate and majestically performed religious spectacle in the nation today.

Each year the six nighttime performances, running Monday through Saturday, attract a total of more than 100,000 spectators. Few, if any, members of the cast are bent upon a theatrical career but each performance carries the authority and professionalism of a full-fledged Broadway Production.

The pageant, enriched by brilliant sound and lighting systems, brings to life the Book of Mormon, keystone of the Mormon faith.

Church members believe the chronicle of his civilization on a set of golden tablets which his son, Moroni, buried on the Hill Cumorah as the society disappeared in the 5th century A.D.

In 1827, a young farm boy named Joseph Smith was visited by Moroni, then appearing as an angel of God. Moroni directed Joseph to unearth the tablets.

The pageant graphically traces the history of this ancient civilization, culminating in the destruction-by-earthquake and fire of Zarahemla, a city split by dissension, distrust and disbelief.

Ear-splitting thunder seems to make the very ground shake and quiver. Flashes of lightning crashing into the hillside appear too real to be part of a stage production. The helpless, agonized cries of a doomed people echo through the valley.

The pageant is directed, as it has been for all its 34 years, by the inventive Dr. Harold I. Hansen of Brigham Young University's Dramatic Arts Department.

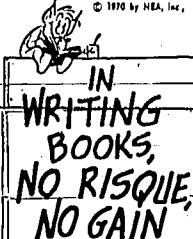

Break-In At Church Probed

Twin Falls Police Tuesday morning were investigating an apparent illegal entry at the United Methodist Church at Fourth Avenue and Shoshone Street.

Officers said there was no sign of forced entry and nothing appeared to have been taken although there were indications someone had been in the church between Monday night and Tuesday morning.
