

Idaho Primary Election Today

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI)—An estimated 150,000 Idahoans mark an end today to a primary election campaign remarkable mostly for the number running for governor and seeking write-in nomination for other offices.

Monday, on the eve of the election, still another major write-in candidate opened shop when Wallace Connolly, 40, a Boise trust officer, announced for the GOP nomination for state treasurer.

If he gets the nod—and Republicans mounted a last-minute telephone campaign to get voters to scratch his name into the vacant post for that nomination—write-in incumbent Senator Rith Moon, who is un-posed for the Democratic re-nomination, in November. Last week, State Budget Director Jack Holley started a last-minute write-in campaign to fill the other major GOP vacancy—the nomination for state auditor. Three-term incumbent Joe R. Williams is unopposed for the Democratic nomination to that post.

Five men are listed on the ballot for governor—two on the Republican portion and three on the Democrat. Incumbent Don W. Samuelson seeks nomination for a second term and is opposed by former State Sen. Dick Smith of Rexburg. After the Democratic nomination are former State Sen. Cecil Andrus, Boise, the party's unsuccessful standard-bearer in 1966, Rep. Vernon Rivescroft, D-Tuttle, and Lloyd Walker, Twin Falls.

On the statewide partisan ballots there is one other contest—for superintendent of public instruction. H. Louis Hooban, Pullan, and Gilbert McKinlay, Rexburg, each want the GOP nomination to go after the job now held by D.F. Engelking, a Democrat unopposed in his own primary for re-nomination to a fourth term.

A non-partisan, judicial ballot also features a statewide race among four men seeking election to the supreme court. If one of them gets a majority vote in the primary he is elected. If not, the top two will vie for the office in the Nov. 3 general election.

GUBERNATORIAL candidate Lloyd J. Walker, Twin Falls, Democrat, prepares to cast ballot in Idaho's primary election today. Polls in Twin Falls County were opened at 8 a. m.—four hours earlier than usual—to permit enough time for voting machine familiarization.

Machines Don't Deter Voters

In spite of predictions for a tight turnout, voters began marching to the polls in steady numbers at 8 a. m. today as Twin Falls County polls opened with voting machines for the first time.

Several of the larger precincts had 30 votes cast in the first hour, County Clerk Harold Lancaster said. The polls will remain open until 8 p. m.

Mr. Lancaster said it took exactly 15 seconds for him to cast his ballot. The voters are voting so much faster with the machines our election boards are surprised to find out how many have voted in the first few hours," he said.

Party leaders and election officials predicted a small turnout because of lack of primary election contests. Some predicted the use of mechanical voting equipment would discourage some voters, but Mr. Lancaster said early indications are that voting will be about average for a primary in the county.

A review of absentee voting for this year and 1968 shows this was just about an average year, he said. 480 absentee ballots were cast this year and in 1968 500 were received.

The only contests on the local level are in the county commission and county prosecutor races. On the Republican ticket, Merle Leonard, Filer farmer, opposes Marlon Ambrose, former Buhl mayor, for first district commission nominations.

Nixon Slip Upsets Tate Trial

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon says he was misinformed when he told newsmen in Denver that Charles Manson "was guilty, directly or indirectly, of eight murders without reason."

"To set the record straight," the president said in a statement drawn up while the presidential jet circled outside Washington Monday night, "I do not know and did not intend to speculate as to whether the Tate defendants are guilty, in fact, or not."

"All the facts in the case have not yet been presented. The defendants should be presumed to be innocent at this stage of the trial."

Manson, 35, and three of his female followers are on trial in Los Angeles for the killings a year ago of actress Sharon Tate and four other persons at her home, and Los Angeles grocer Leno LaBianca and his wife. In addition, Manson is charged in the murder of musician Gary Hinman.

Appearing before reporters at the beginning of the meeting, he chided the news media for its tendency to "glorify and to make heroes of those who engage in criminal activities," and added:

"I noted, for example, the coverage of the Charles Manson case when I was in Los Angeles. Front page every day in the papers. It usually got a couple of minutes in the evening news."

"Here is a man who was guilty, directly or indirectly, of eight murders without reason." He said despite this there was a tendency to glorify Manson. Manson's lawyers immediately sought a mistrial when they learned of the president's statement, and the country's legal fraternity reacted with surprise that Nixon, himself a lawyer, would say such a thing.

The word of Nixon's comments about Manson and the press coverage of the trial came as a thunderbolt Monday and led Manson's lawyers to demand charges be dismissed on grounds a fair trial was now impossible.

T.F. Seeks Sewer Aid

Twin Falls applied Monday for state and federal matching funds to build a $1.65-million secondary sewage treatment plant in Twin Falls.

City Engineer George Michaels told City councilmen Monday night that applications had been sent to the Idaho Department of Health.

He said the city's $413,750 share of the project is available. If the project is approved, the state share would be the same as the city's and the federal share would be $272,500 according to the 25-25-50 formula. $200,000 of the total is earmarked for construction of new trunk sewer lines.

Local industries—except the Amalgamated Sugar Co.—would use the treatment facility. Industries would pay fees according to the amount of waste processed.

Michael said detailed studies are underway to determine the total amount and type of wastes discharged by the industries. He said state financing probably holds the key to the project since federal officials are reportedly willing to embark on the project of the state likewise agrees.

He said the city's share is now available following 10-year sewage-fee collection since construction of the primary treatment plant 10 years ago. Councilmen said the long-range planning permitted embarking on the project without bond issue or payment of interest charges.

The facility is designed to meet disposal needs of a community of a 100,000 population without industry. It is estimated by 1990 the Twin Falls population could be 30,000. The remaining capacity will service industrial demands making a use ratio of 7 to 3 in favor of industry, Michael explained.

Preliminary plans for the plant are to be completed by the spring of 1971 and the plant itself is scheduled for completion by early 1973, as required by the State Department of Health.

Hurricane Vents Fury

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI)—Hurricane Celia, which cloaked the Texas coast with 161-mile-an-hour winds Monday, cut through scores of inland towns today on a 250-mile path of death and destruction.

The unbelievable mess looked like atomic war. "We ain't got no lights, no water, no power—nothing but trouble," said Police Cmdr. C. C. Hagan.

Israel Hawks Quit

By United Press International
The hawkish Gahal party withdrew early today from Premier Golda Meir's Israeli government to protest acceptance of the U.S. plan for Middle East settlement talks, opening the way for a more flexible Israeli position in the quest for peace.

Gahal's decision meant Mrs. Meir and other Israeli leaders could resume their drafting of Israel's qualified acceptance of the American proposals for submission to parliament, where the grandmother repeller was scheduled to speak at about 10 a.m. EDT.

Russ Ship Eyes Poseidon Launch

ABOARD USS OBSERVATION ISLAND (UPI)—A Russian spy ship boldly watched the first undersea firing of America's new Poseidon missile Monday, then risked collision in an unsuccessful bid to beat U.S. ships in retrieving vital debris.

The test was carried out by the nuclear submarine James Madison in International waters, 30 miles off the shores of the nation's missile center at Cape Kennedy.

The spy ship, Hariton Laptiev, which had been cruising off Cape Kennedy for days in apparent anticipation of the test, positioned itself just 3,000 yards away Monday for a grandstand view.

Precisely on time at 11 a.m. EDT, a mushroom of steam erupted from beneath the waves, and the stubby 34-foot Poseidon—successor to the Polaris missile—shot skyward trailing a tail of orange flame.

Postal Reform Gets Nod

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Monday ignored warnings members were voting for a "domestic Gulf of Tonkin Resolution" they would later regret and approved a bill to create an independent U.S. Postal Service.

The 67-to-6 vote sent the measure to the House for final Congressional action. It is expected to reach President Nixon's desk before the end of the week.

During brief debate, Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough, D-Tex., denounced the measure setting up an independent postal corporation as "the Tonkin Gulf Resolution of domestic legislation. Many who wrote this bill this week will regret it in years to come as they live with a deteriorating postal service."

Yarborough said the measure takes away the only voice citizens have on postal matters and "turns the Post Office into an instrument for raising money at the expense of postal workers and the American people."

Gem Aide Asks Test Of Vote Act

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho Attorney General Robert Robson, in a letter to U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell, wrote Idaho will not implement the 18-year-old voting law unless ordered by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Robson claims the statute is unconstitutional and questioned Congress' power to amend the constitution by statute. He says the 18-year-old vote is not the question, but whether Congress has the power to change the constitution without adding an amendment which would require approval by three fourths of the state legislatures.

The Idaho Attorney General wrote it is historically evident that voting rights changes have been made only through constitutional amendment. He noted that Mitchell's reliance on the 14th amendment's equal protection under the law clause is not sufficient to "define the statute giving the 18-year-olds the right to vote."

"In my opinion Congress has no right to violate the constitution or alter it by statute. The 14th amendment has been abused in that the Supreme Court has used it as a legislative tool and that isn't the court's responsibility," he said.

Cambodians Get Victory

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—The Cambodian army has driven Communist troops from Kompong Thom in one of its bloodiest battles yet, military spokesmen said today. U.S. planes were reported flying in support of another embattled Cambodian garrison at Skoun.

Spokesmen said at least 32 Cambodians were killed and 74 wounded in driving the guerrillas from Kompong Thom, an important communications center 20 miles north of Phnom Penh.

City To Confer With County On Airport Board Appointment

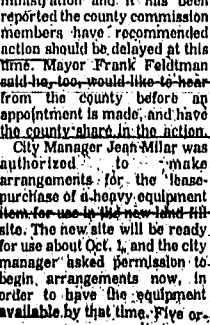

Action on appointing a member to the Twin Falls Airport Commission was delayed Monday night by members of the city council to allow time to consult with the Twin Falls County Commission. A report from the airport commission following a special meeting last week, recommended the appointment of Rudy Ashenbrenner or Bill Powell to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Warren Barry. Mr. Barry has been named to represent the local area on a newly formed state aeronautics advisory board. Winston Jones, council member, said since the county now shares in the airport administration and it has been reported the county commission members have recommended action should be delayed at this time. Mayor Frank Feldman said he, too, would like to hear from the county before an appointment is made, and have the county share in the action. City Manager John Miller was authorized to make arrangements for the purchase of a heavy equipment item to use in the new land fill site. The new site will be ready for use about Oct. 1, and the city manager asked permission to begin arrangements now, in order to have the equipment available by that time. Five or dinances to adopt various volumes of the Uniform Building Code of 1970 were placed on first reading. It was pointed out the city is now using the 1967 code, and if all five ordinances are adopted the city building permit fees will be increased. Volumes being adopted are 1 through 4 and volume 6 dealing with general building regulations covered in the first volume and supplemental regulations in other volumes covering housing, dangerous buildings and dwelling house construction. In other action, the city referred an ordinance on public park rules to the city recreation commission for a recommendation and approved a bid from Magic Valley International for furnishing two trucks to the city street and sanitation departments. Council members voted a unanimous "no" on second reading of an ordinance to establish a funeral escort service in Twin Falls after it was disclosed the individual interested in the service has dropped plans. Tom Major, who made application for the service, said he did not wish to compete with the city police department and the ordinance as now proposed would allow for commercial or police escort at the discretion of the funeral home. Permission was granted Norm Tarter's OK Tire Shop for revising of curbs and improving his property on Sixth Avenue West. Councilman Eugene Stacey introduced a guest who is visiting at his home from Mexico City. Marcos Gojman, a student at the University of Mexico, is in Twin Falls to visit at the Stacey home and to observe Western United States community life.

Dreams Come True For Ten Needy Area Youths

Because a former Los Angeles resident learned to enjoy the rugged Idaho mountain country as a boy, 10 Magic Valley boys have had an opportunity to spend a "dream-come-true" week on a dude ranch this summer.

Roy Strickler, 20, whose family owned the Strickler ranch and outfitters for many years, enjoyed spending his summers there as a boy, although he lived in Los Angeles. He has now taken over operations at the ranch, in remote country some 40 miles from Challis.

In looking back on the enjoyment he had in the Idaho mountains and the fun the many Los Angeles guests he took with him had, Mr. Strickler decided there must be many young boys in Idaho who never have an opportunity to visit a real ranch.

He wrote to the Department of Public Assistance in Boise, and his letter was then forwarded to Mark Hopper, district children's services consultant for the Magic Valley area.

Working with Dave Humphrey, Twin Falls county director, and directors in several other area counties, Mr. Hopper was able to select a number of boys from DPA families whom they felt would not normally have an opportunity for a mountain vacation.

In groups of three or four young boys at a time, the youngsters have been taken to Challis by a DPA field worker on a Sunday, met by Mr. Strickler, and after spending the night at his home in Challis they were off to the ranch.

Here, as guests of Mr. Strickler, the youths have been given board and room, instruction and an opportunity to enjoy such things as horseback riding, fishing, outdoor overnight camping and even marksmanship for the older boys.

At the end of the week Mr. Strickler returns the boys to Challis, where another case worker meets them and returns them home.

In Twin Falls Monday to discuss children services with Mr. Humphrey, Mr. Hopper said this is one of the most unusual "gifts" DPA has ever received, and said it is hoped the program can continue in future years.

Most of the boys this year were between the ages of 10 and 14 and efforts were made by the DPA staff to select those they felt would not have vacation opportunities this year, and youths who do not enjoy outdoor activities through Boy Scouting and other youth programs.

APPROXIMATELY 120 COLLEGE-BORN Southern Idaho students sat, stood and waited in line Monday for early registration. The students spent the day discussing classes with their counselors and filling out application cards. Regular registration will take place Aug. 26 through 28 and into students may register up until Sept. 21.

Testimony Urged On Sawtooth Bill

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Congressman Orval Hansen today encouraged Idahoans interested in the future of the Sawtooth Mountains to testify later this month at Sun Valley when the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs holds hearings on his bill to establish the Sawtooth National Recreation Area.

Hansen said that members of the Committee's Parks and Recreation sub-committee will hear testimony from witnesses on Aug. 26 on his bill, H.R. 5900, and on a similar bill, S.B. 533 sponsored by Idaho Senators Len B. Jordan and Frank Church which has passed the Senate.

Testimony may cover other proposals not included in the bills already before Congress, such as a plan to authorize a Sawtooth National Park or a combination park and recreation area, Hansen said. The Idaho Congressman emphasized that anyone interested may submit testimony to the Committee. Oral statements will be limited to five minutes, or possibly three minutes in length in order to permit as many persons as possible to testify in person. Twenty-five copies of the statement should be submitted to the Committee in advance. Persons wishing to testify should indicate their desire to Hansen's Washington office, or to his district offices in Idaho Falls (P. O. Box 386) and Twin Falls (P. O. Box 382).

Anyone who would like to testify, but who will be unable to appear in person at the hearings, should submit 25 copies of his statement to one of Hansen's offices. All statements will be printed in the hearing record.

Movie Benefit Planned For Day Care Center

Proceeds from the premiere showing of the movie "Paint Your Wagon" will be donated to the Twin Falls Community Action Day Care Center by the Orpheum Theatre. The showing will be at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Unless the Day Care Center is able to raise approximately $2,000 it will be forced to close. The Day Care Center was initiated under an eight-month plan by the Federal government, and unless the funds can be raised, the center will close at the end of August.

Jean Barchus, director of the program, has asked for public support in aiding the 20 children under the Day Care program. Advanced tickets may be purchased for $3.50 at Penny Wide Drugstore, Helen's Record Shop, the Day Care Center, KEEP radio, the Boy Scout Office, in Twin Falls, and Savor Drug in Bull.

"Paint Your Wagon" is a rollicking, spectacular musical starring Lee Marvin and Clint Eastwood.

On the rugged trail in the days of the Gold Rush, hard-fighting, hard-drinking, happy-go-lucky Ben Rumson, Lee Marvin, meets and joins forces with quiet-living introspective, Clint Eastwood.

The pair, moderately successful in prospecting for gold, are tired of their womanless world. When Mormon Jacob Wooding arrives with two wives, the fun and excitement begins.

Three months of research was spent in finding a mountain valley as raw and untouched as those which greeted the eyes of the gold rushers. It was found in Wallawa National Forest of Oregon, northeast of Baker, and another three months were devoted to restoring it to its primitive state after the filming was completed.

As in the words of the show, "Got a dream, boy? Got a song? Paint your wagon and come along."

Suspects Caught In Clubhouse

Two men, believed to be from Oregon, were arrested for first degree burglary at 2 a. m. Tuesday at the Municipal Golf Course, police reported.

The country club's alarm sounded the eight police cars, one deputy and one state police car responded. On the arrival, police surrounded the building and soon observed two male suspects inside the building by the snack bar area. After the suspects noticed the police, they attempted to hide, police said.

Approximately 10 minutes later another officer arrived with a key and unlocked the building. Officers made a search and found one suspect hidden behind two foam tea chests and the other hidden in some cupboards behind the snack bar.

The suspects were arrested and searched, but no identification could be found, and the suspects refused to give their names, police said.

About one hour later, a black Ford with Oregon plates was found and officers believed it belonged to the suspects. The car was impounded and searched, and two wallets bearing the identification of John Delbert and Allyn Dorsey were found. The suspects denied that identification was theirs, police said.

Vandalism Reported

Three cases of vandalism, causing approximately $90 of damage, were reported by police Monday evening.

A glass window at the residence of Jean Chandler, 330 Sixth Ave. N. was broken and glass was knocked from around a lock. Entrance was not gained when the window could not be unlocked, police said.

A beer bottle was thrown through the rear window of a camper owned by Dave Chandler, 176 Fillmore. The camper was attached to a pickup truck and parked along the public highway, police said. No other damage was done.

A spotlight on a vehicle owned by Otto Florence, 143 Ninth Ave. E., was broken. The car was not broken into, and no other damage was caused, police said.

Rocket Attacks, Terrorism Expected

WASHINGTON—More rocket attacks on Saigon and other areas of Viet Cong terrorism are to be expected in the weeks ahead, according to the experts here.

Partly as a result of the mop-up operations in the Cambodian sanctuaries, supplies and ammunition are reported short, even for guerrilla-scale operations.

The expectation is that the Communists will begin assembling new stockpiles while they make their presence felt with terrorist activities which upset the populace and attract publicity without materially depleting available resources.

In the northernmost provinces of South Vietnam, as recently stated by the Marine Corps Commandant, Gen. Leonard F. Chapman Jr., the North Vietnamese have men and material available for an offensive. There is some question here, however, whether they will want to accept the losses which would, as Chapman noted, result from such action.

Ho's Legacy—Ten months after the death of Ho Chi Minh, analysts who follow the political twists and turns in Hanoi find that policy is still being set by a collective leadership. While the emergence of a first-among-equals has been expected, it has not yet occurred, according to top U.S. experts.

Secret Ballots

The House of Representatives has taken the first step toward doing away with its antique system of voting secretly on legislation when it chooses.

Even this historic move was taken by voice vote — no record of how each member voted. Now, if the Senate concurs, House members will be recorded by name as they cast their ballots on amendments, effective with the opening of the next Congress.

The Senate has no similar system for concealing the position of individual members on amendments.

This is a step toward more responsible government, but it is only a step. House committees still will be able to make important decisions in secrecy.

Since 1789, when the first Congress approved the present system, House members have been able to vote without being recorded individually so that the voters who elected them could not attack specific votes they did not approve.

leaders of both parties threw their support behind the reform and it was approved with only a few scattered "no" votes.

"Be honest with your constituents," was the slogan of Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill, (D-Mass.) who with Rep. Charles S. Gubser (R-Cal), led the fight against secret votes.

Gubser put it mildly when he said "The taxpayers, the poor, the rich, men of all races view Congress with a minimum high regard."

"If you don't want to be counted," Rep. Hale Boggs, (D-La), chided, "why did you come here in the first place."

Prompt approval by the Senate should be forthcoming. With the expected signature of the President, future House votes will be recorded and the voters can know just where their representatives stand.

This is a solid gain for democracy and representative government.

Planning Our Future

During World War II, there was considerable discussion of the advantages of decentralizing industry so that a single bomb attack could not disrupt an entire national capability.

With the end of the war, this strategy was forgotten; centralization proceeded apace, and cities absorbed more of the population and factories.

Now, a commission appointed by the President has reported on a year's study of national goals during the Seventies.

The National Goals Research Staff returned to the question of a generation ago but from a different approach, facing not the possible enemy from without but the enemy within — the choking of our cities by pollution and traffic.

The researchers did not set goals but defined the major problems of growth, and suggested: "We need to decide on whether or not we will adopt a deliberate strategy to encourage internal migration to negate the forecasts of ever-growing urban congestion."

In the years between the end of World War II and the present, the public has indicated a growing willingness, even a desire, to relieve urban congestion. The rush to the suburbs proved only a temporary palliative. Something more effective and permanent is needed, as well as new approaches to protect the environment of the entire nation. A wider distribution of the population should serve the interests of all.

In the past, economic growth was the chief goal. To that now is being added that ill-defined target of a better "quality of life."

The researchers conclude: "The major lesson to be extracted... is the high desirability of an explicit growth policy with a relatively long-term perspective. The central ingredient... will be for the American people to decide just what sort of country they want this to be."

It is impossible for the nation to turn back the clock to the halcyon days of clean air and pure water available everywhere without effort. But it is certainly possible, even essential, to come to terms with the growing population and the imperative need for a nationwide cleanup and a stable life style which will control pollution within manageable and livable limits.

DICK WEST

The Lighter Side

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wouldn't you like to be the first person in your neighborhood, office, therapy group or bowling league to own a Harold Stassen wristwatch?

Of course you would. Political timepieces are the newest fashion and everyone likes to be out in front with the style-setters.

Show up at the next PTA meeting with a Harold Stassen watch on your wrist and people will think you are a regular Ethel Kennedy.

Maybe the plans I have to produce Stassen watches are only the gingerbread dreams of a sweet, impractical kid from Merkel, Tex. But if I can put the deal across, you'll soon be able to buy one for your very own.

And I'm convinced the Stassen watches will be even more popular than the Spiro Agnew watches, which started the fad, and the Dick Nixon watches, which are just now coming on the market.

The Stassen watch will have more to offer than a caricature of a leading political figure on the dial. It will have a special spring that will give it an extraordinary amount of persistence.

ordinary watch. You just whisper a few words of encouragement. And then it runs. And runs. And runs. And runs.

In fact, I view the Stassen watch as the harbinger of a whole new line of political watches, each of which will have a distinctive feature that advances the watchmaking art. Here are some of the items in the proposed catalog:

The Barry Goldwater watch—only runs when you wear it on your right wrist.

The George Wallace watch—no matter what time it is, the hand always points South.

The Hubert Humphrey watch— you wind it up and it never unwinds.

The Lyndon Johnson watch— runs fine until it gets to Vietnam and then stops.

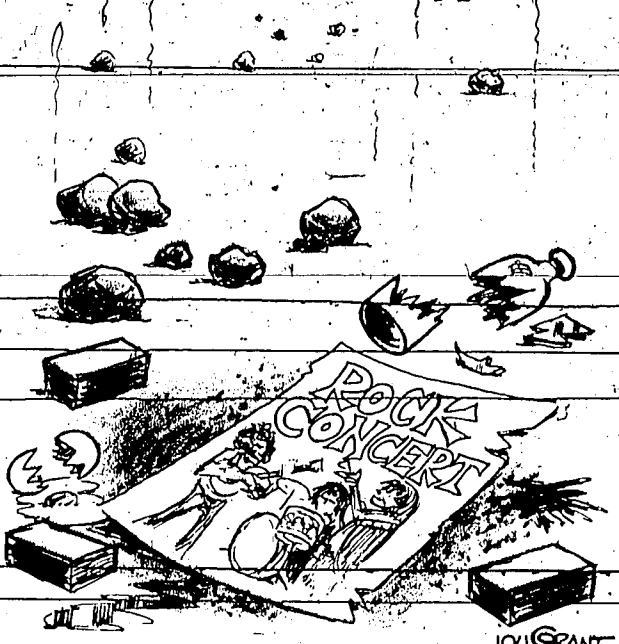

The Lester Maddox watch— you don't wind it; you make it run by hitting it with an ax handle.

The Ronald Reagan watch— only runs in California.

The Nelson Rockefeller watch— starts running too late.

The Eugene McCarthy watch— runs well if you ignore it; but if you try to wind it up, it stops.

AGE OF AQUARIUS?

ANDREW TULLY

Hooray For Sidney Hook

WASHINGTON — A professor named Sidney Hook, who has been around some, apparently sneaked into those hearings of the President's Commission on Campus Unrest when nobody was looking. So before they indict him for sanity — whoopee!

Hook teaches at New York University and has been recognized as a philosopher of high competence even by the befuddled New York Times, for which he occasionally writes a piece. Which is by way of saying that when Hook calls college administrators and faculties a passel of poltroons he should not be suspected of doing his bit for pay, for the American Legion, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce or the Association of Retired Cotton Plantation Overseers.

It was lovely enough when Hook denounced "administrative cowardice... the mood of peace at any price together with actual physical fear of harassment." His Hook deserves a medal for his casual daring in calling these allegedly intellectual educators plain stupid. The fact that Hook politely dressed his charge in the phrase, "failure of intelligence," merely reveals that he can speak the language of academe.

A medal? How about renaming Pennsylvania Avenue for an educator who rejects the fashionable premise that unless social and foreign policy problems are solved, campus disruptions and violence will continue? And who goes on to describe as "nolens inogitans" the "poisonous claim that the current threat to academic freedom comes from outside the university?"

It is a measure of the confused, and chickenhearted thinking of the times that Hook found it necessary to remind us all of a fact of life in this Republic. To wit, "The political process is open to students and faculty on the same footing as all other qualified citizens to express their point of view."

This, of course, is a fact the rioters and arsonists and abductors on campus have purposefully overlooked, possibly because it is not as much fun to participate in an orderly and rational dialogue. They are in this for kicks, and although they whine about democracy they show what Hook calls "profound contempt for the democratic process to use or to threaten or even to condone violence when they have failed electorate." This brings us to what Hook calls the "connivance of university administrators in behalf of causes that had nothing to do with educational issues." These administrators, says Hook, have "substituted for the goals of learning the political goals of action."

Hook even had the audacity to name names. He coolly looked down his nose at Yale and Harvard, which used to be pretty fair country grammar schools. Yale, he said, departing from the "quest for truth and integrity in inquiry" by sponsoring a strike in behalf of the Black Panthers, Princeton for announcing it would close down for two weeks this fall to permit electioneering for so-called peace candidates.

For his courage, I suppose Hook will be dropped from his club and cut on the street by his more exquisite colleagues. But if those who write the history of this lunatic era are not completely bereft of their senses, they will find room for one of his utterances that explains what this Republic is all about.

Country Music

What's the future for country and western music? We have to know now.

VTR, Visual Tape Recording, soon will sweep the country. Instead of playing records or tapes of your favorite music, you'll be buying Visual Tape Recordings and playing them through your TV set. You'll see what you hear.

For recording companies the investment is astronomical; they need to know what kind of music you will want to hear NEXT year.

Will country music have a future to match its past? No music has been more durable — up to now. If it's new to the new generation, it's not new to those of us who grew up listening to Bob Wills and his Texas Playboys and the Alabama Boys and the dulcet voices of Red Foley and Gene Autry and the cow country ballads of Lulu Belle and Scotty on the Grand Ole Opry and the Chicago Barn Dance.

To us, these new songs are not new. What's happening is not a renaissance. There has never been a time when what we used to call "hillbilly music" was not somewhere in demand.

Only difference is, now it's "everywhere." Now they guffaw to Ho-Haw in New York City.

Country music is "pulp music," "formula music." It's "soul music" for white folks.

As New Orleans Southern blacks gave birth to the sad blues and happy Dixieland jazz, Nashville is mecca for importers and exporters of Western-brand laughter and loneliness.

If the girl who sings country because the tear in her voice is real. She's seen or been the faithless spouse.

When the man sings of freight trains, funerals and prisons, he's been there.

And when they laugh big belly-bouncing, knee-slapping laughter, it's at themselves or some relation's darn foolishness.

The Beverly Hillbillies are today what Amos 'n Andy used to be.

With our increasing hypersensitivity, white hill people are the only people in our culture we dare to laugh at any more.

Theirs is the only "safe" dialect left on radio or TV.

There are efforts to mongrelize country and western music, and they are doomed.

Nightclub acts and some deejays try from time to time to peddle a "mixture loosely defined as 'mod country,'" but they end up with what author Paul Homphill calls "bland and packaged Glen Campbell."

On early TV the Ozark Jubilee was a smash success until some New York advertising genius decided to spice it up with nightclub acts, and the show, diluted, died.

Nashville, preparing to bet fortunes and fame on the future of its best cash crop, should not complicate the remaining simplicity of Johnny Cash and Dottie West.

The acknowledgment of plain, old-fashioned but everlasting human emotions — of love and loneliness, fear and frivolity. These songs speak to the hidden heart of a man, if nothing else, reassuring him that in his inevitable fears he is not alone.

Sprained Ankle

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any point in seeing a doctor about an ankle sprain that occurred five months ago? It doesn't pain badly, just an ache and cramps in the leg especially when I am in bed at night. — Mrs. H.M.

There are good reasons for not waiting that long! But yes, there's still something to be gained by seeing a doctor now. A sprain, which of course can vary in degree, may involve a torn tendon; or tendon detached from the bone.

These injuries can be just as painful as a fracture and can take even longer to heal. There is also the possibility that you may have fractured a bone in the ankle along with the sprain. An X-ray would reveal that and perhaps other conditions in the ankle. Depends on just what happened, but it's best to find out.

The leg cramps are probably related to muscle tension resulting from "favoring" the injured ankle. An elastic ankle support might be of considerable help.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Kindly send me your booklet on "How to Control Emphysema," for which I enclose 20 cents and a long-self-addressed, stamped envelope. Does emphysema make your stomach stick out — in other words a big belly? I used to have a 34-inch waist and now am 44. — H.J.W.

Emphysema, in some cases, can cause a "barrel chest," the chest-and-lungs expanding in nature's effort to compensate for lost efficiency of the lungs. That should make very little if any difference in waist measurement. Better look elsewhere for the reason for that. Are you putting on weight? How long did it take for you to gain those inches? And how old are you?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any truth to the old saying that swimming "saps your strength"?

Also, how about the rule, "No swimming until one hour after eating"? Is it old-fashioned, or wise? — N.W.

No, swimming doesn't "sap your strength." It's a good form of exercise. Of course, if you stand around too long in the water, your body burns up a good deal of energy just keeping you warm, but that isn't "sapping your strength."

Waiting at least an hour after eating is an old-fashioned rule, but that doesn't make it any less valid. Your body diverts circulation in response to needs. For example, your face gets red in cold weather because more circulation is drawn to the exposed skin surfaces to warm them.

When you eat a meal, considerable circulation is diverted to the digestive tract. This means somewhat reduced circulation elsewhere, and that becomes one factor in making cramps more likely. People still drawn because of cramps. Waiting an hour (or more if possible) before going in the water is a safety precaution.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If a person had one weak eye and one strong eye and he put a patch over the weak one, would the weak eye get stronger from not being used? — D.G.

No; it's the other way around. If a lazy eye is forced to get to work, it may gain strength from being used.

What about constipation? Many can be relieved of it, both mentally and physically, by reading the booklet, "The Way To Stop Constipation." For a copy write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 25 cents in coin to cover printing and handling.

BERRY'S WORLD

"I miss 'Good Night, Beulah' too bad."

Army Aide Urges Hasty Nerve Agent Disposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring that 12,500 deteriorating nerve gas rockets were becoming more dangerous every day, Army Undersecretary Thaddeus R. Beal told Congress Monday they must be dumped into the ocean without delay. "Time is of the essence," he said.

Meanwhile, Congressional sources said that the Army's plan to sink the rockets 282 miles east of Cape Kennedy, Fla., on Aug. 16 exceeded a scientific panel's recommendation to submerge the gas by Aug. 1.

Beal said early destruction of the rockets was imperative because they were posing an increasing danger of explosion at their current storage sites at Anniston, Ala., and Lexington, Ky.

"There is no practically feasible alternative to the course of action we are following," Beal told a House Oceanography Subcommittee considering the effect the gas might have on ocean ecology.

"Throughout consideration of this intricate problem, the two criteria have been to avoid hazard to people and to minimize damage to the environment."

Beal said the Army could not guarantee there would be absolutely no adverse environmental effect at the ocean disposal site, but that the best scientific data indicated the effect would be "inconsequential."

Nevertheless, Beal promised that this would be the military's last plan to dump chemical weapons in the ocean.

A scientific advisory panel, headed by Dr. Paul M. Gross of Duke University, told the Army it was risking "a high order explosion" through continued storage of the World War II rockets and recommended that they be disposed of by Aug. 1.

A spokesman for the Army, which plans to sink the gas Aug. 16 in 16,000 feet of water, said the Aug. 1 deadline was only a "target date" intended to avoid the worst part of the hurricane season.

The spokesman said modern forecasting techniques allowed for a little more leeway but he acknowledged anytime after Sept. 1 was too risky.

LEGS appear to be sprouting from stone in play structure designed for avantgarde play. (UPI)

Church Asks Viet Prisoner Exchange

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Monday he is co-sponsoring a Congressional resolution calling for an exchange of prisoners held by North Vietnam, including Americans, for prisoners held in South Vietnam.

Church said priority would be given to sick and injured prisoners on both sides of the Vietnamese conflict.

The resolution was introduced in both the House and Senate following a fact-finding trip to Vietnam by a House select committee on United States involvement in Southeast Asia. The resolution condemns certain treatment of prisoners by South Vietnam as being "counter-productive of the goals the United States seeks in Southeast Asia" and calls for reforms on the part of the South Vietnamese government.

The resolution also condemns the refusal of the Hanoi government to permit inspection of prisoner-of-war facilities in North Vietnam despite the fact that facilities under the control of the United States in South Vietnam are open to international inspection under terms of the Geneva Convention of 1949.

State Department Charges Fulbright Revealed Secret

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Monday that Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had made public confidential information concerning U.S. negotiations for renewal of a controversial military bases agreement with Spain.

Fulbright, D-Ark, immediately denied the charge.

The department made the allegation — without naming Fulbright — in a statement issued in response to reporters' requests for comment on his assertions Sunday that under the secret agreement:

— The United States would give Spain about $400 million in aid over the next five years in exchange for use of three air bases and one naval facility built on Spanish soil during the 1950's.

— The assistance would include 36 used F4 Phantom jet fighter-bombers and some surplus warships.

At the time, Fulbright insisted he was not disclosing confidential information because he was able to outline the shape of the new Spanish agreement by quoting from various newspaper stories.

But the State Department claimed Monday that his statements were based in part on testimony given by top Government officials "in executive session before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee."

The department formally referred only to "articles" published Monday about Fulbright's speech to avoid mentioning the Senator directly.

A few hours later, Fulbright denied that he had violated security rules by revealing the terms of the agreement. Almost all of the information that came from news reports originating in Madrid or from "leaks" in the Department of State and Defense, he said.

Untapped Western Oil Reserves Chronicled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Western Rocky Mountain region has the potential to produce many times the amount of oil and gas already brought up from its underground basins and belts, the National Petroleum Council (NPC) believes.

The NPC has done a three-year study of oil and gas potential in the nation. The study was requested by the Interior Department and the NPC had a committee, headed by Otto N. Miller of Standard Oil of California and Hollis M. Dale of the Interior Department, carry it out.

Divided into regions, the study included Utah, Arizona, western Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, western New Mexico and a part of Wyoming.

The area has solid potential oil and gas, the report said, including the possibility of some vast yet-undiscovered fields.

It estimated oil reserves may range up to 50 billion — including "probable, possible, and speculative reserves" — and gas under that part of the country may total 26 trillion cubic feet that can be recovered some day.

When you get down to considering what is "recoverable" with the technology available, the NPC said, the oil figure is about 14.1 billion.

The NPC gave this capsule view of the areas within the Western Rocky Mountain region:

Idaho — Wyoming overthrust belt (a slender band near the border of the two states) — "Fair to poor potential." Structures are complex and probability not until better seismic techniques are available will the area promise significant oil discoveries.

"Great Basin" (Nevada and western Utah) — "Essentially unexplored (for oil and gas)... a high probability that any large petroleum accumulations present have been destroyed by the repeated severe structural deformation (of the area)."

Southwest New Mexico, south Arizona — Prospects fairly slender because of structural deformation, lack of established production, and presence of water in many possible reservoirs. "No estimates of the future oil and gas resources are feasible now."

Warhead Found In Mexico

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The Mexican Foreign Affairs Department announced Monday that the remains of a radioactive cobalt head of an Athena missile were found Sunday in northern Mexico.

A search had been on for the missile since July 11 when it was fired from a point near Green River, Utah. Its destination had been the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico.

The remains of the misfired 100-pound missile were found Sunday just north of the San Ignacio Hill, 18 kilometers from Carrizillo, Mexico.

The Foreign Affairs Department announcement said there was radioactive contamination in an area 15 meters long, 5 meters wide and 3 meters deep.

It said the Mexican government had authorized the United States to collect the radioactive waste material.

Hassle Delays Farm Act

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House farm leaders abruptly called off floor action on a new farm bill Monday. They said they wanted President Nixon's firm assurance that he would fight efforts to lower a committee-approved limit on yearly farm payments.

Rep. Bernard F. Sisk, D-Calif., the Rules Committee member entrusted with bringing the bill up for action at the proper time, said he decided against starting debate Monday after receiving reports the Administration might not resist efforts to write a lower ceiling.

The House Agriculture Committee bill calls for a $55,000 per year, per crop limit on payments to individual farmers. Some House members have been campaigning for a $20,000 per crop, per year limit and some key Republicans have been hinting at a compromise.

Against this backdrop, Sisk said, "It is not now my intention to call it up until we get some assurance that the President is sticking by his original assurance that he was for the $55,000 limit — not only that he was for it, but would fight for it."

Idaho's Supreme Court took under advisement Monday oral arguments in a case testing the constitutionality of the method of submitting the proposed revised constitution to the electorate.

The arguments, the first heard in the new supreme court chambers, stemmed from a suit originally filed by Raymon L. Smith against Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa. Smith alleged the submission of the revision to the electorate without a constitutional convention was unconstitutional.

Fourth District Judge Marion Callister ruled the method unconstitutional and Howard Manly, then an assistant attorney general and now a Boise attorney representing Cenarrusa, appealed to the high court.

Manly told the high court the Idaho Legislature in 1965, deciding revision of the 1890 constitution was long overdue, provided for a revision commission and laid groundwork for a constitutional convention if it were deemed necessary. He said during the last session of the legislature the lawmakers approved senate joint resolution 122 — which contained both the proposed revision and the method of submission — with provisions for a direct submission to the electorate on the November election ballot.

Manly said the important question to be decided was whether section three, article 20 of the constitution, which provides that the legislature may call a constitutional convention if necessary — is exclusive of other articles which provide for both amendments and revisions. Under the constitution, revisions must be presented separately.

Manly said the provision for a convention was contained only to provide an "orderly manner" of calling the convention.

Chief Justice Joseph McFadden asked Manly why the legislature apparently changed its original intention and decided not to call the convention after laying the groundwork.

Manly noted the constitutional revision commission spent five years working on the revision, and said the legislature apparently decided "nothing better could be accomplished if they took two years to call a convention."

Iver Longetieg, Meridian attorney representing Smith, contended the constitution "clearly contemplates the convention as the only means for revision."

He noted the legislature had no power to change the constitution itself. He noted through a constitutional convention the people would have two chances to approve the document — once at the convention and once at the election.

He added constitutionality "is measured by the fundamental law of 1890 in this state... not in dollars, or hours spent, or time before the election."

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I caught your radio program and heard you rattle off a long list of things a person stands to lose if he is arrested for possession of marijuana. I'd like to show them to a few kids I know. Thank you very much. Sign me...

"SIXTEEN AND NO DOPE"

DEAR SIXTEEN: He stands to lose: The right to vote. The right to own a gun. The right to run for public office. The right to become a licensed doctor, dentist, C. P. A., attorney, architect, realtor, private detective, pharmacist, school teacher, barber, or any of a number of career job opportunities.

He may be forbidden the opportunity to work for the city, state or federal government. He cannot be admitted to West Point, Annapolis or the Air Force Academy. He would be permitted to enlist in the military service, but would not have a chance of service.

Not to mention the loss of approval of family, friends, potential friends and society at large.

This is a high price to pay for "trying grass" ... or even agreeing to "hold it for a friend," which is often the case. Think about it.

DEAR ABBY: First off, let me explain that I am no kid. I am a 23-year-old college graduate, female type.

After being engaged since last winter, my fiance and I decided to go off by ourselves and get married. It was a religious ceremony. My brother was best man, but that was all the "family" had at the ceremony.

To be honest about it, the wedding plans became so complicated, nerve-racking and ridiculously expensive we decided to skip all the frills and get it over with.

My problem is my mother. She wants to send out engraved marriage announcements and "at-home" cards to the 360 people we had on our wedding invitation list. I told her I didn't want to do that, but her reply was, "Your father and I have been giving wedding gifts for 30 years, and these people owe us a gift for you." Furthermore, she says the parents (she and Dad) announce the marriage, and the bride (me) has nothing to say about it. Is she right?

MARRIED IN CONN.

DEAR MARRIED: The parents do "announce" the marriage of their children, but rarely without the approval of the bride. Since you don't want announcements and "at-home" cards sent, I think your mother should respect your wishes.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married only a few months and already I have a very serious problem. My husband divorced his first wife because she had an affair with another man. Believe me, now I can understand why she did, because even though he has many good qualities, this man has got to be the world's worst lover!

I have tried to make him think he's great, because I know how hurt his pride was when he found out about his first wife's unfaithfulness. But, Abby, I don't know how I can stay married to him with this constant frustration.

I have considered seeing some old boyfriends. I really think it could save our marriage, because we get along so well in every other department.

I'm in my mid-thirties and this is my first marriage. I know it won't be easy to find another husband as good as this one at my age, but marriage with no sexual satisfaction is worse than being single.

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Since you get along so well in every other department, I suggest you initiate a truth session with him. As long as you keep telling him how "great" he is, when he's the "world's worst lover," why should he improve? There are plenty of excellent books on this subject. Your doctor can recommend several. So can your public library. And so can I. If you're interested, please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HAZELTON — Dianne Marie Pool, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Pool, Hazelton, and Jay Dee Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Johnson, Berryville, Ark., were united in marriage during a candlelight double-ring ceremony June 28 at the Valley Presbyterian Church.

Expand Checklist!

Summer vacation time is here and chances are you've written a checklist of things to do before you leave. But have you included "care for appliances" on that list?

Actually, there's not too much to do for your appliances before you leave. You probably do all the necessary things anyway. Let common sense and good housekeeping be your guides. But if you have any doubts, the following suggestions may prove helpful.

For instance, clean all appliances thoroughly. Then you won't have to worry about returning from your vacation to find bugs, drawn by crumbs and spills, invading your kitchen. It's really not necessary to turn off pilot lights or disconnect appliances from the power source when you leave on vacation. However, it's a good idea to consult your local utility company and your owners manuals just to be sure.

Here are some specific guidelines for each appliance: Refrigerators and freezers. They do not need to be turned off. However, if you plan to be gone for a long time and do not want to leave it running, empty the refrigerator, disconnect it, and clean it thoroughly. Be sure to leave the door propped open enough to permit air circulation.

If your refrigerator-freezer has an ice maker, it's a good idea to turn off the water leading to it. There's no need to make ice while you're gone... and besides, it's always good practice to turn off the water supply to appliances when you're not using them.

So you won't return from your vacation to find thawed food in your freezer, ask someone to check the power source to the freezer every few days to be sure it's still on. Then give instructions as to what should be done in the event something happens; for instance, fuses to check, the electrician to call, or another place to get the food frozen.

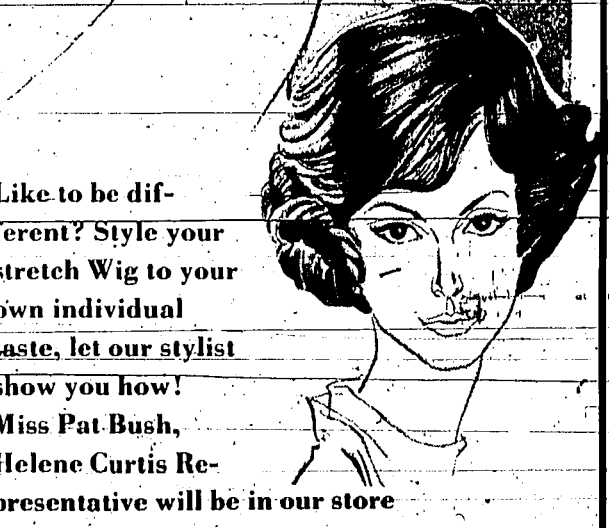

Dishwashers—Don't leave soiled dishes or food particles in the dishwasher. Leave the lid or door open slightly so air can circulate. Automatic washers and dryers—Remove all soiled clothes and turn off water leading to the washer. A dryer takes no special care... but be sure all controls are turned off. Food waste disposers. Run cold water through the disposer for several minutes after the food is ground to clean the unit. Never use drain cleaner in your disposer because it may harm some of the parts. Put the disposer cover in the drain position to prevent anything from accidentally being dropped into the unit.

Air conditioners and dehumidifiers. You'll probably want to turn off your air conditioner, but the choice is yours. If your dehumidifier has an automatic control to turn off when the pan's full, or has a drain hose on it, then it's fine to leave it on while you're gone. However, if you must empty the pan by hand, then turn off the dehumidifier while you're gone.

A chapel train of Chantilly lace fell gracefully from the shoulders. The wedding dress, made by the bride's sister-in-law, was accented with sequins. Her bouffant shoulder-length veil of bridal illusion was secured by a jeweled tiara.

White baby roses surrounded with purple carnations formed a cascading arrangement for the bride's bouquet, which was tied with white and purple satin streamers.

Mrs. De Van Tolman, sister of the bridegroom, registered the guests. Gift bearers were Todd Erickson, brother of the bride, Sheila Roundy, niece of the bride, and Wendy Zaharias, niece of the bridegroom. Douglas Shill, aunt of the bridegroom, Mrs. Richard Jones and Mrs. Harold Durfee. The bride's table, covered with white lace over purple, was centered with the four-tiered wedding cake which was made and decorated by Mrs. Bert Tracy. Flanked by white end purple tapers, the cake was topped with the traditional miniature bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Rulon Koyle cut and served the cake. Caroline Teeter and Mrs. Ronald Zaharias, sisters of the bridegroom, poured. Clark Ward was master of ceremonies for the program. The Allan Devries Orchestra, Twin Falls, furnished music for dancing. Diamondfield Jack Play Draws Praise At Burley

By MARJORIE LIERMAN Times-News Correspondent BURLEY—People who were unable to attend the premiere performance of "Diamondfield Jack" at the Cassia County 100-Year Observance at Burley, will still have a chance to view this outstanding performance at the Gooding Fair next Sunday.

The play, written especially for the Cassia County Centennial, was well-received in Burley and many favorable comments were heard from members of the audience.

David Sufel, theatre arts student at the University of Colorado, wrote the original play based on the series of events which took place in Burley and the town of Albion where the famous-murder trial was held.

Michael Cullen gives a convincing performance as William Borah, prosecuting lawyer who sways the jury and courtroom with his oratory, and Robert Nelson, who portrays James Hately, defense lawyer who never ceases his efforts until he sees his client fully pardoned, is excellent in his role. John Dunwell brings the starring role of "Diamondfield Jack" to life. Was Diamondfield Jack really a criminal or was he instead an innocent victim of circumstances? No one can ever be sure. Without a doubt he was a scoundrel, a blower and braggart, yet, he emerges as a somewhat lovable rogue, and when at the gripping finale, he is freed from hanging by a last-minute reprieve, the entire audience applauded.

The entire cast of the Antique Festival Theatre served in supporting roles, and a dance group from Boise presented a lively dance as sheepmen celebrate the anticipated "hanging."

Mr. Sufel received several curtain calls at the close. The Burley production ended with a stirring fireworks display of the American flag amid the glare and noise of rockets, a fitting end to a well-loved evening

America which is meeting in the Sun Valley area this week. Today the members toured Redfish Lake area and will hold a fashion show and barbecue Wednesday at Sun Valley.

Shoshone Trustees Discuss Transfer

SHOSHONE—Shoshone Dietrich and Gooding schools school board must decide whether or not to grant approval for 19 students from the of tuition, transportation and school system to transfer to average daily attendance, Supt.

Kenneth Crothers told school trustees and petitioning parents at a special meeting Monday night at the high school.

Not to do so, the nine sets of parents claim, will constitute an emotional hazard to their children. Their petitions stated their children had experienced during the past school year severe emotional strain, that parents objected to the standards of teaching and administration in the grade school and have voiced their objection to the elementary school administration.

The parents also claim their children have been ridiculed and abused because of their objections to the school administration and that such abuse and reprisals constitute such a hazard to the best educational interests that "we think it imperative that our children be transferred to a different school."

Some named the Gooding school district, while others listed the Dietrich.

The parents referred to Statute 311402 which allows school board to call a hearing for such a purpose. The petitions were signed by parents and included additional written testimony from supporters under notary seal.

They include Mr. and Mrs. Loren D. Hubbs, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Stimpson, Mr. and Mrs. DeLen Stears, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Borden, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Clayton, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hays, Mr. and Mrs. Farrell Carraway, Mr. and Mrs. James Elwin Webb, and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Sorenson.

Earlier petitions of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Braun and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jensen, were withdrawn upon their request.

Attending the meeting, in addition to about 50 school patrons, were Howard E. Adkins, school attorney, and Daniel Slavin, Twin Falls, representing the protesting parents.

Elmer L. Terry, board chairman, said a ruling will not be made until after the transcript of the Monday night hearing is reviewed by trustees under legal counsel.

Children involved range in age from first grade through junior high school.

Oral support of the petitions was given Dolmas Carraway, who said he had not asked for his children to be transferred, but still approved of the action.

Opponents of the proposal who testified were Donald Runberg, a taxpayer who objected to transferring students at cost to the school district; Robert Lewin, who asked about cost to the district, and Mrs. Rex Thomas, who said "We have an accredited school district. I see no reason why we should pay for these children to go to another school."

Mrs. Hal Ross and Mrs. Helen Magoffin also opposed the transfer. In rebuttal, J. O. Stimpson said, "I am not thinking of the money. As I look around the room I don't see anyone who pays more taxes than we do. The interest of the child should come first."

During questioning, parents brought out reasons why their children allegedly were harassed by other Principal Jack Bowlin or other children and adults. Mr. Hobbs said "I am not anti-Bowlin, but an alternative to moving children to another district would be to remove the source of the trouble, Mr. Bowlin."

The parents claim the principal harassed the children on the playground and their children have suffered indignities and damage has occurred to their personal property.

During questioning, parents brought out reasons why their children allegedly were harassed by other Principal Jack Bowlin or other children and adults. Mr. Hobbs said "I am not anti-Bowlin, but an alternative to moving children to another district would be to remove the source of the trouble, Mr. Bowlin."

The parents claim the principal harassed the children on the playground and their children have suffered indignities and damage has occurred to their personal property.

The position was vacated by Ben Dunn whose resignation was accepted by a special board meeting. Applications also are being taken for three cleaning women for the coming school year.

The book damage deposit for grade schoolers remains at $1. The deposit is returnable at the end of the year if books are returned in good condition.

Supt. Black was given permission to attend the state superintendent's meeting scheduled for Aug. 12-14 at Sun Valley.

With the hot summer weather, we have noticed an alarming increase in acute encephalitis lethargica disorders - or - defender's sleeping sickness.

The disease is characterized by careless play and is frequently accompanied by a partnership psychosis that blames partner for one's own solmence.

East took his ace of clubs and promptly shifted to the queen of diamonds. South ducked and West signaled as strongly as possible, by playing the seven. South won the next diamond and played a trump in dummy's jack. He cashed the high club to disconcert the diamond. He ruffed the lost club, entered dummy with the queen of trumps, ruffed dummy's last diamond and played his ace of spades.

West had been following suit peacefully and continued to do so. He dropped his five of spades.

South led another spade and West was in with the king. Now he woke up and looked around for a good play. There was none available. He could lead either a club or diamond but that would allow South to ruff in dummy and discard his losing spade at the same time.

West promptly blamed his partner. "Why didn't you lead your queen of spades at trick two? In that case, I would have known to drop my king," he demanded.

We can't print East's reply in spite of the modern tendency to let anything into print.

We might also point out that a very smart declarer would have played that ace of spades earlier than this one did, in which case it would take a really wide-awake West to drop the king under it.

QUICKEST WAY - for an unmarried man to make the acquaintance of a new girlfriend is to enroll in an upholstery class at a trade school. ON THE AVERAGE, a fugitive from justice only remains at-large four and a half months after his name crops up in the FBI's Most Wanted list. A MEDICAL FELLOW in a position to know claims at least one out of every 100 grownups hereabouts has sought and got surgery to be sterilized.

OUR LOVE AND WAR MAN disapproves of that fellow who calls his wife "the ball and chain," "the better half" or "the little lady." He also disapproves of the girl who calls her husband "my lord and master," "the old man" or "his ribs." But then our L. and W. man is a little stuffy. You may recall he doesn't like to refer to a man as a guy or a girl as a gal, either.

GRAHAM KERR, that bouncing skillet slinger - you've seen him on TV - have you not? He jumps around so much on the set, it's reported, the network had to employ a special crew of ice hockey cameramen to keep him in focus. STILL IT'S REPEATED - the increasing population will inevitably outstrip the food supply. What nonsense! Never happen. Men will do what they have always done for it. Kill one another.

CUSTOMER SERVICE - Q. "Has anybody ever gone without food for an entire year?" A. Fellow named Angus Barberi did better than that. He fasted 382 days. Put away nothing but tea, coffee, water and soda water. In Merryfield Hospital, Dundee, Angus, Great Britain. That was five years ago.

NOTE IT STATED all British sailors wear uniforms with bills because once it was believed they could not eat without spilling their food, the rascals. That's not right. They wear bibs to cover up their hairy chests. The sight of same during a review long ago embarrassed Queen Victoria. Terribly. She could hardly bring herself to look.

NO SKIN DIVER ever got the bends, I'm told. A CHECK OF the photo-finish camera records shows about 250 horse races each year end in dead heats. DID YOU KNOW the largest crocodiles in all the world once lived in Montana? They got up to 60 feet long. WHEN A HUSBAND uses his wife for divorce, odds run one in nine he'll cite her drinking as the reason.

CURIOSITY HOW boys and girls differ in the way they carry books. A boy will almost always cup the books in his hand at arm's length against his hip. A girl generally clutches them to the front of her with both arms. BEST DESCRIPTION of a gun I ever heard came from a Georgia boy in basic training years ago. "A gun?" he said, "why that's one of them things that barks over heal and bites way over Yondah."

MAJOR HOOPLE

Was LBJ Tucked Away?

'NEW YORK (UPI)—Former presidential aide Kenneth O'Donnell said in an article published Sunday that John F. Kennedy selected Lyndon B. Johnson as his running mate in 1960 to deprive Johnson of the Senate leadership and get him "safely tucked away" as Vice President.

In excerpts published by Life Magazine from a forthcoming book, O'Donnell also writes that Kennedy had plans for withdrawing all U.S. forces from Vietnam in 1965 after his election to a second term, a plan that was frustrated by his assassination in 1963.

O'Donnell, in a third major point made in the article, says Johnson tried to avoid picking Hubert Humphrey as his running mate in 1964 and preferred Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana for the same reason that Kennedy wanted Johnson—to remove him from the Senate leadership.

As one of Kennedy's closest advisers, O'Donnell served as White House Chief of Staff and sat in on many of the most confidential presidential meetings. He served Johnson under strained circumstances in the same capacity after the Kennedy assassination but quit in January, 1965, and is now seeking the Democratic nomination for governor of Massachusetts.

According to O'Donnell, Kennedy's decision to pick Johnson as his running mate was hammered out in a conference in a bathroom of the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles during the 1960 Democratic nominating convention.

O'Donnell, who with other liberal Democrats opposed Johnson as too conservative, said Kennedy called him—O'Donnell—into the bathroom to settle the matter.

"This is the worst mistake you ever made," O'Donnell told Kennedy. "You came out here to this convention like a knight on a white charger, the clean-cut Ivy League college guy who's now promising to get rid of the old political ways. And now, in your first move, you go against all the people who supported you. Are we going to spend the whole campaign apologizing for Lyndon Johnson and trying to explain why he voted against everything you ever stood for?"

O'Donnell writes that Kennedy "became pale, livid with anger" and finally answered by saying:

"I'm 43 years old, and I'm the healthiest candidate for president in the United States. You've traveled with me enough to know that I'm not going to die in office. So the vice presidency doesn't mean anything. I'm thinking of something else, the leadership in the Senate. If we win, it will be by a small margin and I won't be able to live with Lyndon Johnson as the leader of a small Senate majority. Did it occur to you that if Lyndon becomes the vice president, I'll have Mike Mansfield as the Senate leader, somebody I can trust and depend on?"

On Vietnam, O'Donnell says that Kennedy called Mansfield into his office in the spring of 1963 to discuss Mansfield's arguments for a U.S. pullout at a time when there were about 16,000 Americans in the war zone.

"The president told Mansfield that he had been having serious second thoughts about Mansfield's argument and that he now agreed with the senator's thinking on the need for a complete military withdrawal from Vietnam," O'Donnell writes.

"But I can't do it until 1965—after I'm reelected."

Violence Increase Forecast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. James E. Check, White House consultant on campus affairs, said Sunday there would be more student violence next month unless there is "moral leadership from President Nixon."

Check said he was "very, very pessimistic with respect to the coming school year," but that there was still time to head off trouble.

Check is president of Washington's Howard University, the nation's elite college for Negroes. He has just completed a tour of both white and black campuses to gather information on student unrest for Nixon.

The report to the White House said there was "outrage" among white students and "frustration" among black students.

Check said students are still worked up about the U.S. invasion of Cambodia in April, and it was abetted by campus disturbances in Kansas and Tennessee this summer.

He made the comments in a television interview, Face the Nation—CBS.

Disposal Of Nerve Gas Eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists advised the Army one year ago that increasing danger to surrounding communities made it imperative that stocks of surplus nerve gas be destroyed by Aug. 1, 1970—preferably by means of an underground nuclear explosion.

The gas involved is contained in 415 concrete vaults which the Army now plans to ship Aug. 10 by train from Anniston, Ala., and Lexington, Ky., to Wilmington, N.C., for eventual burial at sea.

Last year's advice on disposal of the gas came from a panel of outside experts specially convened by the Army to devise a method for getting rid of approximately 12,500 World War II nerve gas rockets had been encased in massive blocks of steel and concrete because their liquid content was leaking or threatened to do so.

Although the Army generally agreed with the importance of destroying the gas this summer, for several reasons it rejected the disposal method recommended by the committee, headed by Dr. Paul M. Gross, professor emerging of chemistry "at Duke university."

The Army has not yet made public the Gross committee report; a portion of it, however, was obtained by Rep. Richard D. McCarthy, D-N.Y.

Dated Sept. 10, 1969, it said the propellant and detonating explosives in the rockets were in danger of exploding accidentally. Not only had their long deterioration caused instability, it said, but encasing them in concrete added new pressures and new volatility.

Should one of the "vaults" explode, said the committee, it could endanger the population downwind of the area. Each of the 305 vaults at Anniston and 113 in Lexington contains 30 rockets. The Gross committee estimated about 260 lbs. of the lethal gas would be released from each in event of an explosion.

Accountant Certified

KETCHUM — Gerald Leland McClure, Ketchum, has received his certification from the State Board of Accountancy as a Certified Public Accountant.

The next examination will be given Nov. 4, 5 and 6 in Boise, Moscow and Pocatello. Information pertaining to the examination is available at the State Board of Accountancy in Boise, or at the business departments of the four-year schools.

Take Keys

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An increasing number of states are making it a criminal offense for drivers to leave keys in the ignitions of unattended automobiles, warns the American Automobile Association. The offenses usually are punishable by fines of up to $500, or a year in jail, or both.

FIFTY-ONE NURSES from throughout the Northwest recently completed a two-week workshop on current concepts of school nursing at Idaho State University. Among those receiving certificates upon completion of the workshop were two women from this area. Seated from left, they are Eugenia Whiteley, Twin Falls, and Johnette Braga, Gooding.

Dub-Dub Mexico's Magic Mushroom Mecca Lures Hippie Visitors

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — Dub-dub, the oldest seal in captivity, celebrated his 32nd birthday over the weekend—about 12 years older than marine biologists figured he ought to live.

Not many years ago, the scientists thought the life span of a seal was about the same as that of a dog, with 20 years being about as old as the sea creatures get. But Dub-Dub has forced them to do a bit of refiguring.

The whiskered harbor seal was captured Aug. 20, 1938, in Puget Sound when he was estimated three weeks old.

Since then he has been kept at the Pt. Defiance Zoo where he has become one of the prime attractions. Zoo attendants say Dub-Dub is beginning to show his age. His eyesight is failing and they think he is deaf. Nevertheless, he fathered an offspring three years ago, about nine years after scientists thought he should have died of old age.

Dub-Dub just keeps telling the scientists to guess again.

The Danube River has been a major highway for commerce and invasion for more than 2,000 years.

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The Indians call it "The flesh of God." Hippies call it paradise. Police call it trouble.

All of them refer to Mexico's "Magic mushroom," the latest of Mexico's contributions to the international drug scene.

Since 1937 when a Roman Catholic priest tried to disseminate the Mazatec Indians from their centuries-old practice of consuming the mushroom, its strange powers were kept secret.

It wasn't until the early sixties when Gordon Wasson, a New York banker and amateur hallucinogenic expert, discovered Huautla de Jimenez that the mushroom gained international renown.

Over the past five years Huautla, a rickety Indian town with an unreal above-the-clouds aura, has become the hallucinogenic mecca for thousands of hippies.

They flock by bus, jeep or on foot up the winding dirt roads that lead to Huautla at the beginning of the rainy season in June and stay in makeshift shacks or caves until September.

One person who ate the mushrooms described the effects: "You feel as if thousands of reptiles were crawling all over your body, even coming out of your mouth."

A French scientist, on the other hand, says the mushrooms "could be useful in therapeutic treatment of the mentally ill, allowing them to better analyze their problems." The mushrooms taste like earth. The darkness and dampness of the hut are necessary to conserve the mushrooms' hallucinogenic quality after they have been picked.

Some of the effects manifested in those who eat the mushrooms are strong feelings of opposition, continuous fear, anxiety as well as joviality, uncontrollable laughing and laquacity.

The effects of the mushrooms have been compared to those of LSD. The acid in the mushrooms can provoke delirium which can become violent and aggressive.

Mexican army troops and police have tried to thwart the "mushroom fever" by stationing patrols on the main roads leading to Huautla and infiltrating agents into the town.

But they are hampered by the fact that the consumption or trafficking in mushrooms is not a crime in Mexico. Despite this, hundreds of hippies have been arrested in the Huautla area on charges of possessing other drugs, or simply of violating public morality or health.

Auctioneer at Conclave

Col. Jim Messersmith and wife, Justine, Jerome, are among those attending the 21st Annual Convention of the National Auctioneers Association at the Pfister Hotel and Tower, in Milwaukee, Wis.

Auctioneers and their families from 40 states and the Dominion of Canada are attending this three-day event. Seminars and speakers, experts in their respective fields, lend to the educational aspects of the convention. Evening sessions feature entertainment for all members of the family.

"Alice in Dairyland" is greeting the delegates in person, along with other city and state dignitaries. Closing the event is the Grand Banquet, at which time two auctioneers will be honored for their outstanding contributions to the profession. This is the highest achievement in auctioneering.

Deputy Sheriff Resigns

Jack Parrot, Twin Falls, has resigned his position as a sheriff's deputy, Sheriff Paul Corder announced Monday.

Show moved to Twin Falls in 1950 and worked as a state policeman, serving three years in a patrol car and twelve years in ports of entry.

Kenneth Show, former state policeman of this area, will be filling the position vacated by Parrot.

In 1955 he resigned his position and worked in the state tax revenue department and as a salesman.
