Mountain Fate Pondered

By O.A. (GUS) KELKER
Times-News Editor
SUN VALLEY — Establishment of a national park, a federal recreation area or both in the White Cloud-Sawtooth Mountain regions of Idaho became a clear-cut political issue here today as Governor Don Samuelson and Cecil D. Andrus presented their views before members of the U.S. Interior House Sub-Committee on National Parks and Recreation.

Andrus wants a park. Samuelson wants more studies before deciding.

Andrus, the Democratic standard-bearer who seeks to unseat Governor Samuelson in the November election, told the committee a "national park would demand a management plan which is obviously needed" and that "a national park would assure that any mining would be subject to regulation to give the utmost in protection, should such mining occur."

Gov. Samuelson, in his statement read by Al Minton, head of the Department of Commerce and Development, warned that "through the years this state's basic revenue has come from natural resources."

He urged that "proposals before us today be backed up with a detailed input-output study so that the very best use of the Sawtooth-Stanley area is made for all concerned."

"It would appear that the first step would be that a realistic inventory of the economic wealth and scenic values in this area should be made and thoroughly reviewed and studied from economic impact and aesthetic standpoint," his statement read.

"Secondly, with this information and facts before us, that an administrative policy and a program be formulated and included as part of the legislation. The least we should strive for is clear guidelines to insure continuity of programs and elimination of contradictory and arbitrary positions through various federal agencies, local government and our people."

"To this end I would suggest that the state of Idaho, the Congress of the United States, together with various agencies involved, generate immediate and thorough input-output study of all the potential of the area under consideration."

"This study should be completed forthwith, and at its conclusion, a plan formulated that would utilize the total potential."

"Having participated in such a program, the state of Idaho could then, in good faith, support the resulted legislation," the Governor said.

On the other hand, Andrus said he believed the program as advocated in legislation introduced by Representatives McClure and Hansen and Senators Church and Jordan "to be a forthright legislative program to deal with the problem of mining in the White Clouds, and other long-range requirements of the entire south central Idaho mountain region."

"A national park here would assure that any mining would be subject to regulation to give the utmost in protection, should such mining occur."

"We need legislation to provide immediate protection for the fragile, alpine beauty of the Sawtooth area; legislation which would also permit all people to enjoy the scenic wonders of the Sawtooths," Mr. Andrus said.

"Through the years," Samuelson said, "Idaho has developed an excellent and stable economy. Most of this development has come from our national resources and most of those basic resources from public land."

"Our timber, our mining, our grazing and for agriculture, the abundant water, has allowed the growth of a steady economy."

"We must inevitably and rationally take a long and hard look at the closing off of any of these resources," Samuelson's statement said.

Among the parade of witnesses was John A. Doerr, Twin Falls, president of the Southern Idaho Fish and Game Association. He said in his statement which he read and which, he said, represented the views of 800 members that "support was given to a national recreation area, and a moratorium on mineral land entries."

He voiced opposition on creation of a national park in combination with a national recreation area.

"We believe the area is too small for a national park," he told members of the committee.

Bob Harvey, vice-president of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, presented a statement calling for designation of the area as a national recreation area administered by the forest service, and urged that no national park be established.

Committee members, of which Rep. James McClure is a member, got to Sun Valley early this morning after spending a day and night in the White Cloud-Sawtooth Mountain areas. Chairman of the committee, who presided today, is Rep. Ron A. Taylor, D-N.C.

In late afternoon the hearing was continuing. A total of more than 300 views on the subject were scheduled before completion, some in filed statements, but many of them in person.

Male Camp Under Siege

By United Press International
The male chauvinist camp was under siege today.

Women's Liberation movement hoped its one-day strike nationwide demonstrations by its devotees on the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage would win a fairer shake for the fair sex.

Parades, speeches and stronger action were planned for most of the nation's larger cities as the movement known as "Women's Lib" pressed demands for equality in education, and employment, free child-care centers and unrestricted free abortions.

In Houston, a ladies group called the "Bow-Wows," gugged and bound male broadcasters Tuesday and "threatened to tear up their music sheets."

They went on KPRC Radio from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. today.

Milder tactics were planned in New York City, where women said they received assurance from police they could march down Fifth Avenue at 5:30 p.m. with only one lane left open for traffic.

The Secret Service announced Tuesday it had selected the first seven women to serve on the White House police force, explaining, "There are places where only women can go."

President Nixon paid tribute to the 50th anniversary of suffrage, praising "the brave and courageous women, knowing their cause was just, drawing strength and inspiration from one another through generations, (WHO) fought long and hard for woman suffrage."

Among the officials less enthusiastic about the day was San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, who said, "I don't understand this struggle, I'm trying to get a handle on it. What is it they want done differently?"

In Indianapolis, Ind., women planned a "theater in the street" production which might give the mayor an answer. It was titled, "Male Evo."

Though strike coordinator Betty Friedan said the strike should include any woman "who has ever felt she is not quite a first-class citizen because she is female," there were some lady naysayers.

Safeway Releases Tally

TWIN FALLS — Lynwood Safeway store officials said today police have been notified of the amount of money taken from the store by gunmen Friday. But neither the store officials nor police have yet made public the amount.

Lee VanderDoes, Lynwood Safeway manager, said today he must wait for verification of the loss by company officials. He said the figures eventually will be released, "probably."

A statement was incorrectly attributed to VanderDoes Tuesday that store officials were afraid of triggering other robberies in the supermarket chain. The Times-News regrets the error.

Agnew Reassures Formosan Chief

TAICHUNG, Taiwan (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew arrived on Taiwan today to reassure Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek that American overtures toward Communist China will not jeopardize U.S. defense commitments to Nationalist China.

While flying to Taiwan from Seoul, Korea, Agnew's first stop on his Asian tour—the vice president told newsmen he and South Korean President Park Chung-Hee reached basic agreement in two days of intensive talks. But he said the United States does not go along with Park's position that withdrawal of 20,000 troops must come only after the United States modernizes South Korea's armed forces.

"President Park understands this and he accepts it," Agnew said.

Agnew shook hands with some of the 200 American military personnel at the base and greeted Nationalist Chinese Vice President C. K. Yen and Vice Premier Chang Ching-Kuo, eldest son of Chiang Kai-Shek. Agnew then drove to Sun Moon Lake, a resort where Chiang Kai-Shek has a retreat.

He was meeting the 82-year-old Nationalist Chinese president for brief discussions later to be followed by a dinner given by Chiang in Agnew's honor.

Agnew said in the news conference aboard his jet plane that he expected to discuss what he called obligations and limitations of the defense treaty between the United States and Nationalist China when he met with Chiang.

Nationalist China has been disturbed about the Nixon administration's attempts to improve relations with Communist China and recent decisions by the White House to ease trade restrictions against Peking.

Negotiable Cow

LONDON (UPI)—Punch Magazine today paid its most senior writer with a check written on the side of a cow.

The writer, Sir Alan Herbert, 80, cashed the check for five pounds ($12) at a bank near St. Paul's Cathedral.

It was perfectly legal—affixed to the cow's left rump was the mandatory two penny (two cents) tax stamp required for all check cashings in Britain.

William Davis, editor of the 120-year-old humor and satire magazine, wrote the check on the left flank of the golden guernsey, to mark Herbert's 60th year as a Punch writer.

In 1930, Herbert wrote about a man presenting a check written on a cow to the tax inspector.

Court To Test Vote Law

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court has agreed to hear arguments in October on the constitutionality of the Voting Rights Act, and has indicated it would try to rule on its most controversial section—the vote for 18-year-olds—before the provision takes effect Jan. 1.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger issued a brief notice Tuesday agreeing to rule in the case and setting a hearing for Oct. 19 on four test cases involving the 18-year-old vote, a ban on literacy tests and a limit on state residency requirements for presidential elections.

The statutes were passed as amendments to legislation extending the 1965 Voting Rights Act. Four states—Texas, Oregon, Idaho and Arizona—have challenged one or more of the provisions or have been sued by the Justice Department, and all four cases will be combined at the Oct. 19 hearing.

In announcing the hearing, Burger said, "All counsel in these cases have indicated their views that an early decision by the court is desirable and in all cases motions to expedite have been filed."

The most controversial provision orders the minimum age for voting be lowered to 18 in all federal, state and local elections. The Nixon administration opposed it, saying a constitutional amendment was the only way to lower the voting age.

In signing the law, President Nixon ordered Attorney General John N. Mitchell to seek a quick court ruling.

The prohibition on literacy tests affecting 14 states—went into effect June 22, and has been viewed by some as the most pressing issue because it affects November's elections.

A northbound flight will leave Los Angeles for Spokane, via Boise, at 8:10 a.m. non-stop, at 9:15 a.m., via Boise. Daily flights will leave Boise for Los Angeles at 6:50 p.m. non-stop.

A northbound flight will leave Los Angeles for Spokane, via Boise, at 8:10 a.m. non-stop, at 9:15 a.m. A non-stop flight will leave Los Angeles at 5:15 p.m. for Spokane.

The announcement said the best existing service presently between San Diego and Spokane takes 12 per cent longer than the new route, proposal. Present San Diego-to-Boise service is 51 per cent longer.

Ladies' Lib Day Fizzles Locally

The Woman's Liberation movement apparently has had little impact in Magic Valley today—at least openly.

Employed women in town were at their jobs today, saying in hushed voices that they go along with the basic idea, but are afraid to say so.

Males are inclined to laugh the whole thing off, saying if women want equal rights, they should be prepared to accept a man's responsibility, but most of the women who are concerned about the issue say that's exactly what they are doing.

There have been comments today about second class citizens and failure to insure women with constitutional protection. So if the wishful thinking undercurrent was visible the scene would bustle with activity.

Salt Lake City women's liberation advocates plan to dramatize their feeling today by boycotting all consumer products, distributing handbills in stores asking other women to join them and set up a child care center in the rotunda of the state capitol, demonstrating the need for expansion of child care centers.

The main focal point of the protesting American women is in the east, with many activities underway as scheduled.

N. Viet Envoy Returns

PARIS (UPI)—North Vietnam's chief negotiator at the Paris talks, Xuan Thuy, returned today after an eight-month boycott and said he was bringing "goodwill and a serious attitude" to the deadlocked peace conference.

Thuy's arrival set the stage for the first face-to-face encounter between the chief North Vietnamese and American peace negotiators since last December. The regular weekly negotiating session will be held Thursday.

The chief American negotiator, Ambassador David K. E. Bruce, stayed away from last week's session, apparently to protest Thuy's failure to appear. Bruce arrived in Paris earlier this month to head the American team after an eight-month gap following the resignation of Henry Cabot Lodge.

Thuy flew into Paris from Hanoi via Peking and Moscow. He was met at Le Bourget Airport by members of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations, and Soviet and Red Chinese diplomats.

He cited the Vietnamization program in South Vietnam and the spread of fighting into Cambodia as showing the Nixon Administration "continues its aggressive policies." He called for a change in American policies.

Air West Seeks New Service Links

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Hughes Air West has announced filing of a request with the Civil Aeronautics Board for new routes to provide first-time non-stop passenger service linking Los Angeles with Spokane and Boise.

The plan also provides first-time, single-plane service between San Diego and Spokane and Boise, via Los Angeles.

The San Francisco-based regional airline estimated it approved the new routes would reduce its subsidy by $134,000 while providing service and fare benefits to the public.

Under the plan, flights will depart Spokane for Los Angeles twice daily at 8:10 a.m. non-stop, at 9:15 a.m., via Boise. Daily flights will leave Boise for Los Angeles at 6:50 p.m. non-stop.

A northbound flight will leave Los Angeles for Spokane, via Boise, at 8:10 a.m. non-stop, at 9:15 a.m. A non-stop flight will leave Los Angeles at 5:15 p.m. for Spokane.

The announcement said the best existing service presently between San Diego and Spokane takes 12 per cent longer than the new route, proposal. Present San Diego-to-Boise service is 51 per cent longer.

Senate Kills GI Pay Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A move to raise the pay of GIs as a means of switching to an all-volunteer army and ending the draft was defeated in the Senate Tuesday.

With Democrats voting by a margin of more than 2 to 1 against the proposal, the amendment co-sponsored by GOP Sens. Barry M. Goldwater, Ariz., and Mark O. Hatfield, Ore., was rejected, 52 to 35.

Opponents said it was too expensive, and that it also would tend to shift fighting burdens to the "less affluent."

Goldwater and Hatfield proposed to raise military pay by $3.2 billion. They said the higher pay would attract enough volunteers to make it possible to drop the draft when the present extension of the selective service law expires next June 30.

Goldwater told the Senate that under the administration program of pulling out most combat troops from Vietnam by next May, "I am willing to predict that the army will not have to rely upon draftees to fill its needs after June 1971."

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, led opposition to the proposal, insisting that "as long as this war is going on, you're not going to get men at $160 a month extra pay to be riflemen over there in the jungles." And he said "My prediction is that this war is by no means over."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said that few well-off white youths would be inclined to enter a volunteer army, with the burden of war falling "on those less affluent Americans who are induced to join the army by a pay raise."

In the roll-call, 34 Democrats voted against the proposal while only 15 favored it. Twenty Republicans voted for it and 18 against.

Nixon Applauds Women's Vote

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon today hailed the 50th anniversary of American woman's suffrage and gave a boost to the Women's Liberation movement strike goals.

In a proclamation saluting the 19th Amendment giving women the vote, Nixon said "Let us also recognize that women surely have a still wider role to play in the political economic and social life of our country."

And in respect for American women, he added, "let all of us work to bring this about."

Pat Nixon and her daughters Tricia, 24, and Julie Eisenhower, 22, had no activities or plans in connection with women's equality rallies being staged throughout the country today. Her aides pointed out, however, that Mrs. Nixon has "always supported equal rights for women."

A highlight of the President's working day at the Western White House is to be his (7:15 p.m. EDT) meeting with Cardinal Terence Cooke, the Roman Catholic archbishop of New York, who will report on his recent tour of U.S. military bases in Europe. Cooke also will be Nixon's guest at lunch at his seaside Spanish-style villa.

Cardinal Francis McIntyre, former archbishop of the Los Angeles diocese also will attend.

16-Month 'Bug-Out' Deadline Vote Set

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate has scheduled a crucial vote next Tuesday on legislation designed to force U.S. withdrawal from Southeast Asia in 18 months.

Sponsors of the measure, led by Sens. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., and Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., agreed to an austere, six-hour debate limitation on the amendment as the Senate struggled to finish work on the $10.2 billion military procurement bill.

Debate on the procurement bill, which in former years took only a day or two to whip through the Senate, is now in its second month.

Strict time limitations were imposed on other amendments, including an anti-herbicide proposal by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., scheduled for today. The Nelson amendment would bar defoliants and anticrop weapons now being used in Vietnam to destroy enemy food supplies and jungle hideouts.

"If our role is to defend Vietnam, how can we risk destroying the environment in which they must survive when we leave?" Nelson asked.

Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., opposed the amendment contending herbicides were of "critical importance in saving American lives in Vietnam."

Tuesday, the Senate considered—and quickly rejected 52 to 35—an amendment to lay the groundwork for an all-volunteer Army and an end to the draft.

The proposal, made by Hatfield and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., was designed to attract thousands of new recruits with a $3.2 billion, across-the-board military pay hike.

Although opponents attacked the voluntary Army as too expensive, unworkable and unfair to poor blacks, who would be lured to fight wars for rich whites, antidraft sentiment was still alive. Several members predicted Nixon would run into trouble if he asks Congress next year to extend the draft beyond its June 30 expiration date unless Vietnam withdrawals are speeded up.

SCATTERED SHOWERS or thundershowers are forecast today for the Rockies, Southern Texas, along the coast of the South Atlantic states and from Northern New York to Northern New England. It will be warmer from the Northern Plains across the Upper Mississippi Valley into the Great Lakes area. (UPI).

Weather Forecast & Synopsis

Twin Falls and vicinity: Partly cloudy this afternoon and evening; with isolated thundershowers near the mountains; mostly fair Thursday. Cooler with high today and Thursday 85 to 95; low tonight in the 50s. Gentle southwesterly winds at times today. Chance of rain 10 per cent today and tonight, and near zero Thursday. Outlook for Friday: Fair and cooler. Camas Prairie: High today and Thursday in the 80s; low tonight in the 40s. Central Idaho mountains: Partly cloudy today and tonight with widely scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers, mainly in the east portion. Mostly fair Thursday, except for some clouds in the east. Cooler with high both days 82 to 92; low tonight in the 40s. Chance of rain 30 per cent today and tonight, then 10 per cent on Thursday. Outlook for Friday: Fair and cooler.

The weather pattern over Idaho continues quite stagnant with the weak low pressure trough off the Pacific Northwest coast and southwesterly wind flow aloft over Idaho. However, a weak impulse did move out of the trough and across Idaho to kick off some thundershowers over the northern mountains and Southeastern Idaho.

There will still be some thundershowers over Southeastern Idaho today and a slight chance of some over the mountains elsewhere over the area this afternoon and evening, but mostly fair weather will prevail otherwise.

High temperatures yesterday were in the 90s and there will be some slight cooling of perhaps 3 to 5 degrees today and tomorrow. The nighttime lows will continue mostly in the 45-55 degree range.

Surface winds will be light and variable in the west portion and southerly to westerly between 8 and 15 miles per hour in the east portion except gusting to near 30 miles per hour in the vicinity of the showers.

Outdoor activities should go unhampered except for the chance of thundershowers in Southeastern Idaho.

Rockefeller, Albert Win Ballots

By United Press International
House Majority Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma and Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas easily won renomination to their offices in primary elections Tuesday.

But former six-term Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus faced a runoff in the Democratic primary for governor after mustering about 36 per cent of the vote against seven opponents.

Primary elections were held in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Alaska Tuesday. Interest centered on races for governor. There was only one contest for senator—in Alaska where GOP Sen. Ted Stevens was a runaway winner.

Albert's victory in the Democratic primary in Oklahoma was tantamount to election, because he has no opposition in November. It also means he likely will be speaker of the House next year, assuming the Democrats retain a majority in Congress.

In Arkansas, Rockefeller easily rolled over three opponents in the GOP primary, but his real test will come in November when he probably will face Faubus, governor from 1965 to 1967, whose name became a national household word during the 1957 crisis over the integration of Little Rock schools.

Faubus defeated Rockefeller in 1964, but retired in 1967. Faubus in the Sept. 8 runoff primary will face either attorney Dale Bumpers or Attorney General Joe Purcell. Bumpers was slightly ahead of Purcell as the count neared completion.

In the Oklahoma Democratic primary for governor, former Tulsa County Prosecutor David Hall fell short of the required majority vote, and faced a runoff with state Sen. Bryce Baggott. The winner of the Sept. 15 runoff will run against GOP Gov. Dewey Bartlett.

In Alaska, spurs early returns gave GOP Gov. Keith Miller an early lead over Howard W. Pollock in the Republican primary.

In the race for the Alaska Democratic nomination for governor, former Gov. William A. Egan led Larry Carr.

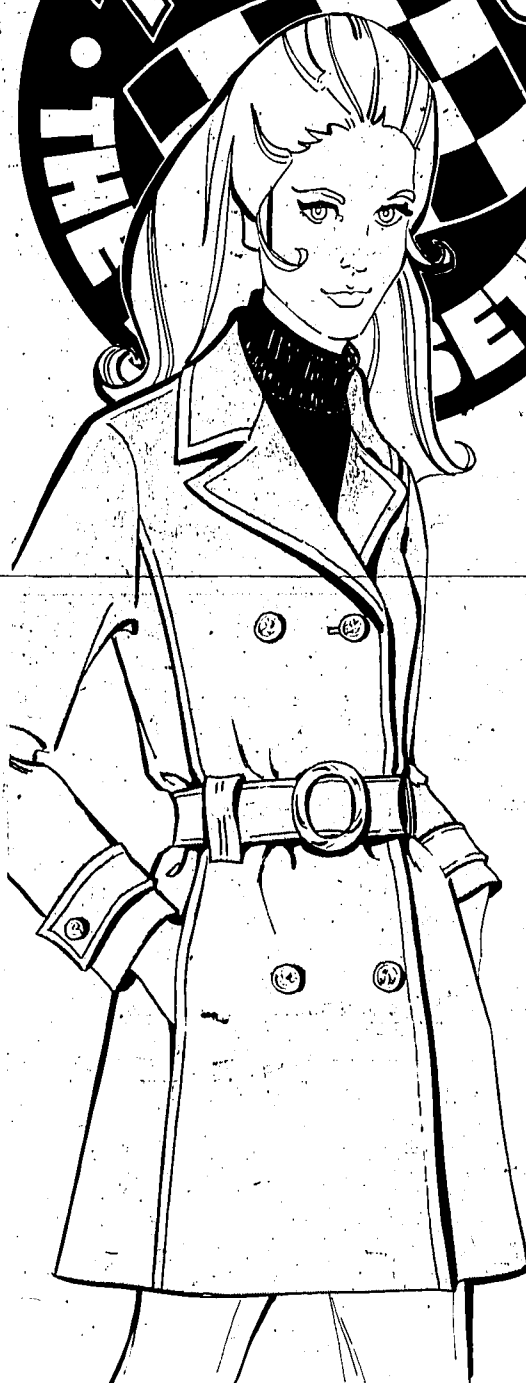

U.S. Will Consider Dispute

MIAMI (UPI)—The Justice Department entered the case Tuesday of a black soldier killed in Vietnam but denied burial in an all-white cemetery.

U.S. Attorney Robert W. Rust, at the request of Attorney General John N. Mitchell, joined the suit as a "friend of the court." The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) filed suit Monday in an attempt to force Hillcrest Cemetery of Fort Pierce to bury Spec. 4 Pondexter Eugene Williams.

The Justice Department and the NAACP will join forces to argue the case in federal court Thursday.

Williams, 20, was killed by mortar fire Aug. 8 in Vietnam. His mother, Mrs. Mary Campbell, saw a newspaper advertisement in which Hillcrest offered free burial for all servicemen killed in Vietnam. But the cemetery took back the offer when it learned Williams was black.

Case History

Back in 1964, a number of psychologists and psychiatrists, who should have had more sense, attempted to analyze Republican presidential candidate Barry Goldwater at long distance.

The general conclusion: The man was an absolute paranoid who would plunge the nation into a full-scale war in Vietnam, causing the deaths of tens of thousands of American boys. (He was even crazy enough to defoliate large stretches of the Vietnamese countryside.) At home, his repression of blacks and dissidents would result in riots and revolts and severe polarization between blacks and whites, young and old.

Fortunately, the voters rejected Goldwater and none of these terrible things happened.

Now George W. Albee, president of the American Psychological Association, has diagnosed the Nixon administration. His verdict: "It is irrational and its priorities are completely askew." The President and his supporters are anti-intellectual, moralistic and authoritarian, "exaggerating the 'masculine virtues,' which include militarism, war, sports and cut-throat competition."

Furthermore, the administration gives no sign of "compassion or concern for the poor, the weak, the sick, the unemployed and the helpless." Its neglect of social problems "will have devastating human effects" in several years, Albee warns.

While we wring our hands and gnash our teeth until the 1972 elections, it might be instructive to pursue one of these symptoms a bit further — the administration's exaggeration of the "masculine virtues," specifically, militarism and war.

Robert H.B. Baldwin, an undersecretary of the Navy, under President Johnson (and who may also be neurotic, though no panel of psychiatrists has yet analyzed him) recently listed some of the things President Nixon has done or plans to do to end a war he didn't start but inherited. By next spring, he will have withdrawn 265,000 men from Vietnam, or just under 50 per cent.

Not officially announced but officially "leaked," all U.S. offensive ground operations will cease by May 1, 1971. All U.S. troops will be withdrawn by the end of 1972, except for 20,000 advisers.

By July 1971, Nixon will have reduced military spending by almost $10 billion and total military and civilian personnel in the defense establishment by 682,000 people, or about 15 per cent.

Also planned, says Baldwin, is a total reduction of military manpower to 2.5 million men by the end of fiscal 1972, hopefully all volunteers. Indications are that our defense budget in that year will be less in comparable dollars than President Kennedy's first military budget.

In fact, says Baldwin, Nixon will have slashed military spending so much that some people are already worried that we will be returned to a dependence on our nuclear deterrent in our national policy, "with all the dangers inherent therein."

To balance this, there should be noted the promising SALT nuclear disarmament talks and the fact that William P. Rogers, secretary of state in this "irrational" administration, has come up with a plan which offers the first real hope of peace in the Middle East in 20 years, and a consequent lessening of East-West tensions.

"I believe," says Baldwin, "that the long, hard years in Southeast Asia are drawing to a conclusion and I am sure that all the people of this great nation hope that President Nixon can accomplish this result at the earliest possible time commensurate with a sound and restrained foreign policy for this nation."

Including, certainly, all psychologists and psychiatrists. Dr. Albee is partly right, however. Nixon is a sports nut. How d'ya explain that away?

MR. SPECTATOR

Remember Sept. 13

If you have a calendar handy then listen, brother!

Take a pencil and mark a circle around September 13 — because that is the start of National Rodent Control Week. Sort of a get-rid-of-the-dirty-old-rat week.

Now remember what we are talking about is the "rodent" rat — not the human rat — so don't get any idea of getting rid of your husband, gals.

We received a publication from the Home and Garden News Notes people, who publish a give-away publication from Chicago. If you do not think this rodent problem is serious, then you have another think coming.

We quote from just the headlines on one page of the publication; to wit:

"Thriving Rats. Contribute To World-Wide Starvation."

"Americans Keep Rats Well Fed."

"Don't Treat Rats."

"Many New Structures Have 'Built-In' Rats."

"Rats Gnaw to Keep Dentures In Shape."

"Rats Bite 50,000-Plus Each Year."

"Man Waging War on Armies Of Deadly Rats."

"Rats Snub Poisoned Bait When Trash Is Available."

"Rats Are Cannibals."

So there you have it. If you don't think there is a rat problem in this here old country then you have another think coming.

And, remember September 13, which (for your information) is on a Sunday.

THE LANGUAGE

A lot of wrenching adjustments will have to be made when, as it eventually must, the United States adopts the metric system of measurement. But one that has seldom been mentioned involves the very way we talk.

Consider these "metric equivalents" of some of the common expressions as noted by World Week magazine:

"A miss is as good as 1.61 kilometers."

"There isn't 0.06 gram of truth in it."

"He felt 3.05 meters tall."

"First down and 9.14 meters to go."

"Don't hide your light under 25.25 liters."

These adages are so much a part of the language, however, that possibly they may remain as archaic hangovers. We still say "Penny wise and pound foolish," and it has been a long time since the pound was a unit of money in this country.

SOBERING THOUGHT

We cannot understand why a lot of people still fail to buckle their seat belt when in an automobile.

Mr. Spectator wants to point out that not one person who was in an automobile accident while the car was going under 60 miles an hour, and while seat and shoulder belts were being used, has been killed.

What better reason could you have to buckle those belts?

ANDREW TULLY

Cost Of Overseas Garrison

(Editor's Note: Andrew Tully is on holiday. During his absence his column is being written by various national figures. Today's column is written by Sen. Mike Mansfield, Senate Democratic Leader.) WASHINGTON — On Oct. 26, 1963, the late President Eisenhower said in an interview in the Saturday Evening Post: "Though for eight years in the White House I believed and announced to my associates that a reduction of American strength in Europe should be initiated as soon as European economies were restored, the matter was then considered too delicate a political question to raise. I believe the time has now come when we should start withdrawing some of these troops."

It is now almost seven years since that statement was made, over 25 years since World War

II ended in Europe and over 21 years since the North Atlantic Treaty was signed. Yet we still have 300,000 U.S. military men in Western Europe, two-thirds of them in West Germany alone, and our forces in Western Europe are accompanied by some 200,000 dependents and 8,000 U.S. nationals employed by the Defense Department as civilians in related jobs. There are, thus, over 510,000 Americans in Western Europe either in our military forces or associated with those forces, a larger American presence than in Vietnam today. The cost of that overseas garrison is enormous. The current estimate is that the budgetary cost to the U.S. taxpayer is $14 billion a year, while the balance of payments drain resulting from our military deployment in Europe is currently about $1.5 billion a year or almost a third of our total balance of payments deficit on a liquidity basis. Part of this foreign exchange drain goes for the salaries of local nationals employed by our military in Europe, part for the costs of buildings used by our forces, part for transportation, power and other services, part for runways, roads and other "infrastructure" items and part for property, business, import, excise and other taxes paid to foreign governments.

Unlike the situation 20 years ago, the economies of the European countries are, of course, no longer ravaged by the effects of war, as anyone visiting Europe can easily see. Yet we continue to devote a larger share of our resources, our men and money to defense than our European allies, in part because we have continued to keep over a half-million Americans in Europe at government expense for two decades. We maintain a higher rate of defense expenses per capita and a higher percentage of our gross national product in defense expenditures than any other NATO country, and we have a higher percentage of men of military age in the armed forces than every other NATO country except Portugal.

One of my colleagues in the Senate recently suggested that now that we have adopted a policy of "Vietnamization," designed to turn a progressively larger share of the defense of Vietnam over to the Vietnamese, we should put into effect a policy of "Europeanization." In NATO, with this aim in mind, I have submitted Senate Resolution 202 calling for "a substantial reduction of U.S. forces permanently stationed in Europe." A majority of the members of the Senate have expressed their support for this resolution.

It should be emphasized that this resolution does not urge that all U.S. troops be brought home or that we should reduce our forces precipitately. Nor does the resolution imply that we will not continue to honor our solemn obligations to our NATO allies. On the contrary, it states that such a reduction could be made "without adversely affecting either our resolve or ability to meet our commitment under the North Atlantic Treaty."

But the NATO countries also have a commitment under the North Atlantic Treaty, as well as an obligation to themselves for their own defense. Without continuing to rely on 200 million Americans to the extent that they have to date, the 280 million people of the European countries in NATO, with their tremendous industrial resources and long military experience, should be able to organize an effective coalition to defend themselves against 235 million Russians who are, after all, contending at the same time with some 850 million Chinese.

The policy of the present Administration, enunciated in the Guam Doctrine, is to help other Asian nations to help defend themselves. It is time to apply that doctrine to Europe. The status quo has been safe and comfortable for our European allies but it has diminished their interest in their own defense, distorted the relationship between Europe and the United States and diverted our resources from the urgent problems we face at home.

About Edema

(First in a series of two articles)

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes edema (or dropsy) and is there a treatment a person can use to ease the swelling at home? — F. O.

If you'd given me some notion of your age and physical condition, perhaps I could give you a more specific answer.

It's not difficult to give several causes of edema, so I guess you'll have to choose what applies to you.

Hormone levels, some medications, excess salt in the diet, faulty circulation, and other conditions (including pregnancy) can cause edema. Edema (or the older term, dropsy) means that water and sodium are being retained in more-than-normal amounts in the body tissues.

Many women have some degree of edema which comes and goes with the rise and fall of hormones (oestrogen) in the menstrual cycle. This can be accentuated if the woman gets too much salt or not enough exercise. Fluids accumulate as the menstrual period approaches, then are lost at the onset of the period. A weight gain of five pounds or so, purely from this fluid is not unusual. Sometimes it is more.

Some edema is associated with pregnancy, in part from the changed hormone level, and swelling of the legs late in pregnancy can be due to pressure from the enlarging uterus on veins deep in the pelvis.

Low thyroid function also can cause water retention. This frequently is accompanied by puffiness around the eyes and a pitting of the skin, giving a clue to that particular cause.

A quite different cause of edema is allergy. Swollen membranes of nose and eyes are an example of this. Likewise angioneurotic edema, or "giant hives," is of allergic origin.

Clearly with this variety of causes, no single type of treatment is going to suit all cases. If the thyroid is at fault, treat the thyroid gland and the edema will take care of itself.

If allergy is the root cause, learning to avoid materials to which you are sensitive is obvious, but desensitization courses may help, and medication to suppress the allergic response (antihistamines) is useful.

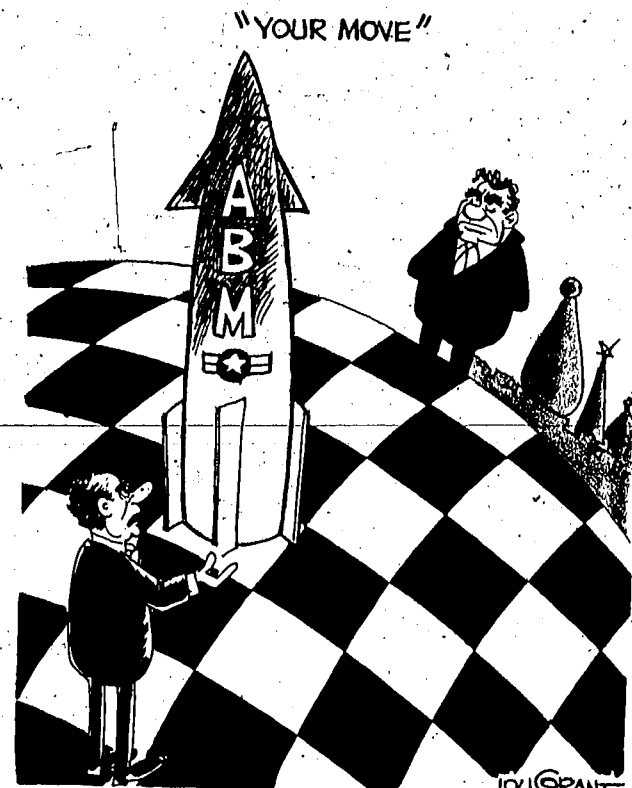

If the edema of the menstrual period is enough to be really annoying, salt reduction a week or 10 days in advance usually makes a marked difference. In some cases diuretics (drugs to promote loss of fluid) may have to be prescribed by your doctor.

Tomorrow we'll discuss some of the types of edema which are more likely to come along later in life.

Faculty Factor

WASHINGTON (NEA) — For the past year, this reporter has been collecting information on professors and instructors active in the campus upheaval. In a random sampling that now runs to 72 sketchy biographies, the first thing to note is that these protesting faculty are not a young group. Even including the teaching assistants, the median age is 37. The oldest is 72. Ten are between 47 and 59, 15 between 40 and 45.

Only 11 are under 30, even when teaching assistants and student instructors are included. Eighteen more are under 30. (Since the names of teaching assistants and student instructors are often omitted in news reports, this list, undoubtedly does not include the proper proportions of the junior faculty.)

The second thing to note is the range of academic fields and departments which are strongly or one slightly represented.

One-fifth are in psychology and philosophy, one-fifth in sociology and economics, one-fifth in English and modern languages and one-fifth in the physical sciences (mathematics, physics, chemistry, biology and bacteriology).

Together, these four groups account for 80 per cent of the teachers listed.

Interestingly, the list includes only one man who teaches law, two in engineering and one in religion (though two campus ministers and one campus rabbi are involved).

Inasmuch as the majority of the protests involve Vietnam in one way or another, it is interesting to note that only three history teachers are included in the list.

Likewise, since numbers of the protesters have strongly questioned the workings of this government, it is curious to note that only three teachers of government and political science are included.

There is only scattered information on the organizational backgrounds of these 72 men and women and even less data on how many have openly advocated violence either in their classrooms or out. Therefore, the numbers listed below have no quantitative meaning.

But even so, it is interesting to note that seven are or were members of the Communist party (some were officials in the party). Three more have identified themselves as Marxists or Trotskyites. Six others have or had memberships in the Socialist Workers Party, three in the Young Socialists Alliance, two in the Progressive Labor Party and one each in the American Youth for Democracy, the Labor Youth League and the Socialist Club. As might be expected, numbers have at one time or another had some connection with the Students for Democratic Society (SDS).

PAUL HARVEY

Ocean Ports

The circle is complete. Our United States — before it was "united" and before it was "states" — grew up along its river banks. Our infant nation was nourished to maturity by waterways.

Along these arteries moved the cotton and coal and crops and lumber that kept us alive until the West could be spanned by steel rails and condensation trails.

And guess what? A dozen generations later, rivers which have been sleeping in their beds are being awakened — dredged by mighty machines, opened to navigation — affording our nation in its middle years an exciting new economic rejuvenation.

We will have new ocean ports in mid-America by this time next year.

Recently I visited Yazoo, Miss. No place I've ever been appears so small on the map, and so big when you get there. And beautiful.

There, where the Delta begins, I arrived in springtime. The rook, the dogwood and the wisteria adorned the manicured lawncapes of hillside homesites — all red and white and blue.

The loveliness of Lady Bangs rose climbed the trees as high as the house tops and sequined their green with gold. And azaleas everywhere.

Elegance, opulence, a gardenlike golf course — in Yazoo, Miss., population 10,222. That's right. For the new Yazoo is healthy from Delta agriculture, oiled with oil, hyped by an exciting influx of new industry. And that industry is nourished by the old river. The Yazoo is soon to be navigable to the sea.

From there I went to Fort Smith, Ark., on the Arkansas River. Here, too, the metropolitan area is scarcely recognizable from my last visit four years before. And much of the influx of new industry here and hereabouts is predicated on the certainty that the Arkansas River — which we waded across during my Oklahoma boyhood — by this time next year will connect cities as far inland as Tulsa with the waterways of the world.

When Fort Chaffee closed, Fort Smith was driven to its knees. But with self-help, hard work and the knowledge that the old river is now pregnant with new promise, Fort Smith erased the disastrous deficit, added 123 new industries, expanded others, created 15,000 new jobs, doubled its bank deposits; all in less than a dozen years!

I'm aware that many factors have contributed to the industrial renaissance of the American outback. Air-conditioning, for example. And jet transportation. Malaria control and superhighways. Overcrowding elsewhere accelerated redistribution of our nation's population here.

But more than any other single factor — is water.

For the Yazoo, appropriation awaits authorization. For the Arkansas, a seaport in Tulsa by next spring.

Under consideration other exciting possibilities: dredging the Red River navigable to Dingerfield, Texas, and the Trinity to Dallas and Fort Worth.

The Columbia River all the way to Wonatchee and the Missouri to Sioux City and Yankton.

And Army engineers say a barge canal can connect the Tennessee River to the Gulf of Mexico.

Industry is already staking claims on these river banks. Cities long dormant are driving pilings and building docks and piers and warehouses where the mud was. And all the Fort Smiths and Yazooes, thus baptized, are being born again.

Military Pay Hike Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate was asked Tuesday to give military personnel a $3.2 billion pay raise to produce an all-volunteer army in 10 months. But opponents said it would take more than money to induce men to go to Vietnam on their own free will.

Sens. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., and Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., brought the controversial measure to a vote as an amendment to the $19.2 billion military procurement. Their proposal would lay the groundwork for expiration of the draft next June 30.

They contended that a 2.0 million-man military force for Vietnam and elsewhere could be raised and maintained by an increase in pay and allowances—including a 50 per cent raise for first-term enlisted men.

But Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, scoffed at the proposal. Although 2 million men now serving are volunteers, Stennis contended that only 20 per cent of the new entrants into the army would have enlisted had they not faced the alternative of conscription.

"As long as this war is going on you're not going to get men at $100 a month extra pay to be 'fillemen over there in the jungles,'" Stennis told the Senate.

"Men are dying every week in Vietnam," he said. "To reasonably expect to map our fighting forces on a volunteer basis under these circumstances is to indulge in unrealistic expectations."

Goldwater, a reserve major general in the Air Force, argued that by next May—under President Nixon's Vietnamization program—only a handful of infantrymen will be needed in Vietnam.

Sen. Church Says Spaniards Fined in Air Base Hassle

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, reported today a group of Spaniards were fined by the Franco government for protesting the secrecy surrounding extension of an agreement for American military bases in that country.

"Ironically, in both Madrid and Washington attempts were made to explore the impending agreement publicly before it became binding," he said.

The senator also said in a Senate speech the administration had finally agreed to permit Undersecretary of State U. Alexis Johnson to be questioned about the agreement. He said Johnson will appear in both public and private hearings before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Wednesday.

Church said an attempt was made to deliver a letter to Secretary of State William Rogers signed by 120 prominent Spaniards when the secretary was in Madrid last spring. The letter raised questions about the agreement.

"But the attempt was blocked by local security officials. The outcome for the letter's signers was a harsh and costly one. The Franco government has imposed substantial fines, issuing decrees, which in effect, declare the signers guilty of contempt of government,"

Church said. He added the fines ranged from $300 to $1,420.

"It is ironic that, in both countries, the executive authority insisted on both negotiating the new agreement and putting it into effect without benefit of public discussion prior to disclosure; also that in both countries an attempt was made to explore publicly the full implications of the agreement, but, in each case, the effort was ignored; neither government being willing to submit to such an open process," Church said.

The new five-year pact giving the United States the right to maintain air and naval bases in Spain was signed Aug. 6,

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Chief Justice Warren E. Burger refused Tuesday to order a delay in lower federal court rulings that would compel a group of southern school districts to carry out integration edicts when schools open next month.

The major request for a stay involved North Carolina's largest school system in the Mecklenburg-Charlotte case.

Burger also turned down without comment petitions for delay from the Forsyth County Board (Winston-Salem) in North Carolina and from Dade County (Miami) in Florida.

All had asked for additional time to comply with lower court rulings which require integration in the near future.

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg Board asked that its integration order be blocked until after the Supreme Court hears arguments in the case sometime in the future.

The Supreme Court has agreed to decide the legal issues of the case, including the problem of busing, probably after it reconvenes for a new term in October.

Meantime, U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan directed the school system to institute a broadscale integration program when the school year opens.

The school board in its brief to Burger claimed that if his order became effective in September, elementary schools might have to be closed because of lack of bus transportation.

The southern school authorities appealed to Burger because he has supervisory jurisdiction over their districts.

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg appeal was taken to Burger after Judge Clement F. Haynsworth of the 4th Circuit Court of Appeals refused to set aside McMillan's expedited order.

Desegregation Delay Bid Refused

"But the attempt was blocked by local security officials. The outcome for the letter's signers was a harsh and costly one. The Franco government has imposed substantial fines, issuing decrees, which in effect, declare the signers guilty of contempt of government,"

Church said. He added the fines ranged from $300 to $1,420.

"It is ironic that, in both countries, the executive authority insisted on both negotiating the new agreement and putting it into effect without benefit of public discussion prior to disclosure; also that in both countries an attempt was made to explore publicly the full implications of the agreement, but, in each case, the effort was ignored; neither government being willing to submit to such an open process," Church said.

The new five-year pact giving the United States the right to maintain air and naval bases in Spain was signed Aug. 6,

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Chief Justice Warren E. Burger refused Tuesday to order a delay in lower federal court rulings that would compel a group of southern school districts to carry out integration edicts when schools open next month.

The major request for a stay involved North Carolina's largest school system in the Mecklenburg-Charlotte case.

Burger also turned down without comment petitions for delay from the Forsyth County Board (Winston-Salem) in North Carolina and from Dade County (Miami) in Florida.

All had asked for additional time to comply with lower court rulings which require integration in the near future.

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg Board asked that its integration order be blocked until after the Supreme Court hears arguments in the case sometime in the future.

The Supreme Court has agreed to decide the legal issues of the case, including the problem of busing, probably after it reconvenes for a new term in October.

Meantime, U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan directed the school system to institute a broadscale integration program when the school year opens.

The school board in its brief to Burger claimed that if his order became effective in September, elementary schools might have to be closed because of lack of bus transportation.

The southern school authorities appealed to Burger because he has supervisory jurisdiction over their districts.

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg appeal was taken to Burger after Judge Clement F. Haynsworth of the 4th Circuit Court of Appeals refused to set aside McMillan's expedited order.

Nikita Recovers

MOSCOW (UPI)—Nikita S. Khrushchev Tuesday was declared completely recovered from a heart ailment, by top Kremlin physicians who have kept him hospitalized for nearly three months, members of the former premier's family said.

The doctors had planned to release Khrushchev Tuesday, but decided to keep him in the Kremlin hospital for final checks a few days more, the sources said.

By all accounts the one-time Supreme Soviet ruler is again hale and hearty at 76, and is ready to resume what he once described to this correspondent as "the life of a pensioner."

The life of a pensioner for such historic figures as Khrushchev means total public silence and vigorous preoccupation with hobbies such as photography, hydroponics (raising vegetables on water) and painting.

Khrushchev was hospitalized early in June when he called on his Kremlin physicians for a routine check after he had suffered a ruptured blood vessel.

He and his family were told there was no serious danger at the time of the illness.

Physicians leaned backward to cure for the health of a patient who, although an "unperson" since his fall from power in 1964, is still considered worthy of the medical attention accorded the country's most eminent citizens.

Tate Defense Unity Crumbles

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The defense unity in the Sharon Tate murder trial showed signs of crumbling Tuesday when the attorney for Charles Manson tried to extract testimony damaging to codefendant Patricia Krenwinkel.

The line of questioning by Irving Kaharek drew objections from other defense counsel and an angry protest from Manson himself, who asked permission to denigrate the burly attorney and represent himself.

"I have no control over this man," Manson told the judge. "I tell him I don't want him to ask certain questions and he asks them anyway."

Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older denied Manson's request, as he has several times in the past.

The controversy arose during testimony by County Coroner Thomas T. Noguchi, who said under cross-examination by Kaharek that Miss Tate's house guest, Abigail Folger, was so severely stabbed no doctors could have saved her.

Kanarek apparently was trying to show that had the state's star witness, Linda Kasabian, intervened or sought medical help, the victims might have lived.

"Since Miss Folger had six individual stab wounds which each classify as fatal, I doubt very much her chance of survival would have increased even if she had medical attention," Noguchi said.

Under California law, the testimony of an accomplice to a crime must be corroborated by scientific evidence.

Since the trial began, Kanarek has been trying to show that Mrs. Kasabian was an accomplice who did nothing to prevent the slayings, and therefore her testimony against Manson must be backed up by other evidence.

However, since the defendants have been trying to maintain an "umbrella" defense, they objected to any line of questioning which seemed to pinpoint an individual defendant.

Earlier, Noguchi testified that after the killers stabbed Miss Tate, they strung her up—still alive—from a ceiling beam in the living room of her home.

Noguchi said rope burns on the throat of the pregnant actress indicated she was suspended or partially suspended by the neck while she was dying.

The nylon cord found knotted around her throat was tossed over a beam and connected at the other end to the body of another victim, hair stylist Jay Sebring, to whom she once was engaged.

Navy Pregnancy Discharge Hit

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI)—An enlisted Wave is fighting the Navy's attempt to discharge her for becoming pregnant out of wedlock. She says sailors aren't discharged for sexual reasons.

Seaman Anna Flores, a Wave communicator, has filed suit in federal court protesting an administrative decision to discharge her one year early.

Attorney Charles Morgan of the American Civil Liberties Union describes his client as "a very dedicated young woman who wants to serve her country." He said she is "in no way affiliated with any women's liberation organizations."

The Navy is processing an administrative discharge for Miss Flores because she became pregnant and on May 28—which was to have been her wedding date—suffered a miscarriage. The wedding has been postponed.

"She doesn't care if the discharge is honorable or anything else—she doesn't want it," said Morgan in an interview Tuesday night. "She told me, 'This may sound mundane to a lot of people, but I really believe what President Kennedy said about asking not what your country can do for you.'"

The Wave has been in the Navy two years, and Morgan said she does not plan to reenlist if she is allowed to complete her hitch. He said she is working her regular duty shifts with no restrictions or other punishment while her discharge papers are pending in Washington.

"Lemonade Lucy"
The nickname, "Lemonade Lucy," was sometimes used for Lucy Webb Hayes, wife of President Rutherford B. Hayes and an ardent Prohibitionist. During her husband's administration, she banned alcoholic drinks from the White House.

CHICAGO (UPI)—After two days, most of the on-schedule cars in the transcontinental clean air race were the ones with a familiar internal combustion roar.

The whirr of electricity and the wheeze of steam were beginning to lag behind. And a hybrid steam-oil burner vehicle was still trying to get started.

Most of the vehicles which pulled into Detroit for the second overnight stop were internal combustion types, the Chicago headquarters of the race said Tuesday night.

Some use regular unleaded gasoline, others substist on liquid propane, liquid petroleum gas, diesel fuel or liquid natural gas.

One hybrid electric car, No. 71 from Worcester, Mass., Polytechnic Institute, arrived at the General Motors Corp. plant in Warren, Mich. It was towed the last five miles, however, because of a fire caused by overheating.

Two steam-driven vehicles were completely and finally out of the race with insuperable problems.

A third steam car, designed to draw steam from boilers fired by a home furnace oil burner, was still garaged at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, starting point for the race.

"We can't seem to get the boilers to stay lighted," Brunn W. Roysden Jr., 25, Owensboro, Ky., adding that they hoped to get on the road early enough to be considered an official entry.

Each of the 42 cars which entered the race was designed and built by students. Many received help from automakers and other industry sources.

The winner will be determined by a formula including the rate of pollution emission. Contestants are expected to begin pulling into the California Institute of Technology at Los Angeles about Sunday.

Cyclist 'Terrorizes' Naples

NAPLES, Italy (UPI)—A youth on a souped-up motorcycle is driving Naples nuts.

At least 30 persons have been injured in two nights of fighting between police trying to trap the cyclist—who calls himself "Agostino the Mad"—and thousands of Neapolitans jamming the heart of the city to see him.

Some police believe the youth, who does acrobatic tricks, chases policemen, leaps over cars and weaves among sidewalk cafe tables with siren screaming and muffler popping, is paid by gangs of thieves to keep police busy while they steal from cars and apartments.

The youth—police do not know his name—stayed out of sight Monday. But thousands of persons turned out hoping to see him. In the pandemonium, much of it caused by other motorcyclists, more than 100 persons were arrested and 18 injured badly enough to require treatment.

Another 21 were injured Sunday night when the youth ran wild in the middle of While all this was going on, police said several cars and buildings were broken into.

"Maybe it's the heat," a policeman said. "We could use some rain and a breeze."

Air Force Scuttles Silo Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Force said Tuesday it had dropped consideration of a plan to build new, virtually invulnerable underground silos for Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles. It said the project, entailing protecting the missiles in solid granite, would be too expensive.

The pentagon has spent $40 million since 1968 studying the hard rock program, which protect the Minuteman from almost any kind of attack except a direct hit by a big missile.

"Hard rock was one of several options we had," an Air Force spokesman said. He said other methods were still being considered to give the minute-man additional protection.

Defense sources said the hard rock program would have cost $5 billion to $7 billion.

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Many foreigners live in Argentina, a sparsely populated country which has always attracted immigrants.

But the British hold a singular place in this bustling South American nation.

Although British power and strength have dwindled here as in other areas — over the past century, there is little likelihood that the British impact on Argentina will fade away.

One of the pillars of Britain's continuing influence is the Anglo-Argentine. He descends from Britons but was born in Argentina.

Some "Anglo" families go back for five generations or more. The Anglo-Argentine is bilingual and sometimes resorts to a "Spanglish" combining Spanish and English words.

Although he may hold a British passport, his feelings as an Argentine will often stand out when discussing international affairs with Americans or other foreigners.

There is one issue, however, where "Anglos" find themselves at loggerheads with other Argentines. This dispute centers around the Falkland (Malvinas) Islands, a wind swept archipelago off the Argentine coast at the southernmost tip of the continent.

Ever since their occupation by the British more than 150 years ago, Argentina has demanded that the British hand over the islands. Both countries are engaged in talks aimed at reaching an agreement on the islands and the 2,500 inhabitants.

A British embassy spokesman estimated there are about 35,000 English residents in Argentina who are still British subjects. Counting Irish and Welsh would bring the figure close to about 60,000, he said.

There are other reminders of Britain in Argentina's way of life such as a Big Ben tower, five o'clock tea, English clubs, the British Hospital and shopping at Harrods in downtown Buenos Aires.

Despite their relatively small numbers in this nation of 24 million people, the British have succeeded in leaving a distinct imprint on Argentine life.

Waves of British immigrants flocked to Argentina in the late 19th century to help build the country's railroad system. However, Britain's grip on Argentina came a century later with the so-called "Roca-Runciman" treaty.

The agreement was signed by Walter Runciman, then president of the British Board of Trade and Argentine Vice President Julio A. Roca in 1933. It required Argentina to sell all her wheat and beef to Britain or face losing her biggest trade partner. Argentina also agreed to import British coal free from tariff. At that time British coal was Argentina's chief power source.

However, a rising nationalism in Argentina in recent decades, coupled with Britain's need to sell foreign holdings during World War Two, forced Britain to liquidate most of its interest in Argentina. It reached its peak in 1947 when former dictator Juan D. Peron nationalized the British-owned railroads.

Since then the Anglo-Argentines have continued a strong influence on Argentina's way of life.

It is an influence bolstered by many interests and practices which Argentines have made their own.

The Argentine craze over soccer football — introduced by the early British immigrants — is second to none, including the British.

English gourmet specialties, such as chicken curry pudding, can be had at "The London Grill", one of Buenos Aires' best restaurants, under portraits of a smiling Queen Elizabeth II.

And when fashion-conscious Argentines look for a new suit, they often choose British styles.

School Resumes Monday

FILER — The Clover Trinity Lutheran School will begin its 55th school year Monday. Registrations will be accepted up to and through the opening day, according to William Rupprecht, principal, who also teaches grades six, seven and eight.

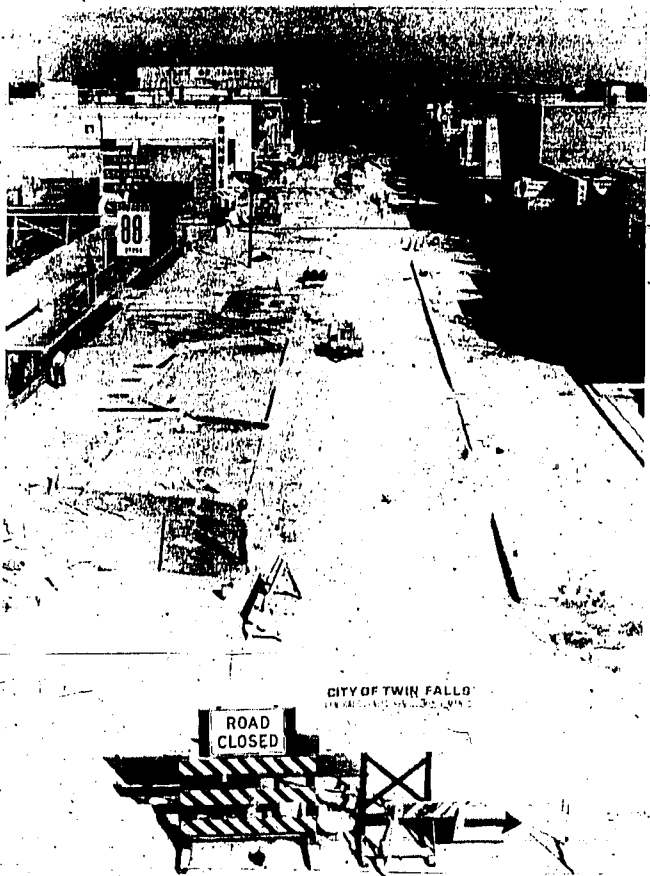

The buses will run as usual and hot lunch service will be announced to the student body later. The opening day will feature a chapel service in the church. Rev. T. D. Johnston, pastor, will teach advanced religious instruction again this year.

The staff and founders of the school believe a Christian education gives the children a chance to learn of the Gospel of Jesus Christ and assists parents in developing children's abilities to become good Christians and good citizens.

Two new members of the teaching staff are Joan Cloro, Burns, Ore., who will teach grades four and five, and Katherine Hesse, Kenosha, Wis., who will instruct grades one, two and three.

Miss Cloro attended Hines Grade School and Burns Union High School in Oregon and was graduated from Pacific Lutheran University with a B.A. in Sociology and religion.

Miss Hesse attended Friedens Lutheran School and Mary D. Bradford High School in Kenosha, Wis., and was graduated from Concordia Teachers' College, River Forest, Ill., with a B.A. in curriculum and instruction.

Jerome Fair Opens; Samuelsons Guests

JEROME — Jerome County Fair officially gets underway today with a parade in downtown Jerome, set for 4:30 p. m. with Gov. Don Samuelson and his wife Ruby as special guest of the Jerome County fair board, John Stelle Jr., chairman of the Jerome County Fair board announced today.

Stelle said after the parade a group of oldtime fiddlers will perform at the fairgrounds until the rodeo begins.

Jerome will have two big nights of R.C.A. Rodeo, tonight and Thursday, with the highlight of Thursday night being the crowning of a new fair queen by the present queen, Janie Fife.

The Governor and his wife also will be guests of honor at the rodeo.

Two specialty acts will perform both nights of the rodeo, one of them an Indian act and the other an act put together by six young ladies and the rodeo clowns.

Carolyn Harvey, Miss Rodeo Idaho, will also be a guest of honor during the parade and will ride in the grand entry both nights of the rodeo.

The carnival produced by Ray Cammack Shows, Lennox,

S. D., has an added attraction this year with a live animal act on the midway. Paul Fisher and his wife perform with the animals that include a bear and a tiger. The couple have raised all the animals and have trained them. They will have performances on and off during the time the carnival is open.

Today was the opening of the home economics displays and crop exhibits as well as the women's department and crafts division.

Thursday, community exhibits and farm produce will be judged. Light horses will be judged on Saturday.

Thursday and Friday will feature livestock judging. Saturday a 4-H tractor driving contest is planned as well as tree identification.

The grand champion fitting and showing of animals competition and the awards assembly will be held on Saturday.

Stelle said a free jamboree will be held Friday and will start at 8 p. m.

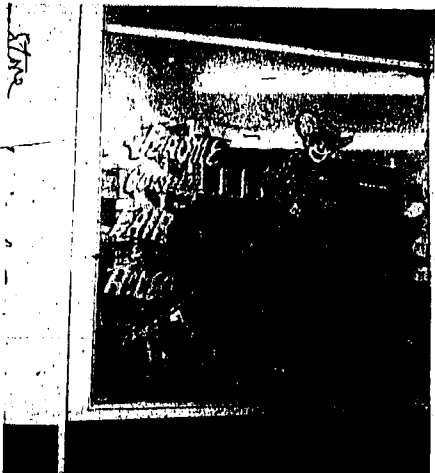

Also planned for Saturday is a Battle of the bands contest with a dance to follow.

Faculty Tea Held At Richfield

RICHFIELD — Richfield teachers were welcomed at a faculty tea in the lunchroom of the elementary department. Mrs. Neil Andreason, PTA unit president, was in charge of arrangements and presided at the tea with Mrs. Wendell King, PTA secretary.

Decorations featured floral arrangements of gladioli arranged by Mrs. Edward Schlaser, and a punch service borrowed from the Richfield Woman's Club. Mrs. Charles Buttane, a PTA vice president, did the decorating. Mrs. Jay Ward, a member of the executive board, served on the refreshment committee with salads featured.

The annual opening of school event was attended by school board members, school personnel and the faculty.

Legislative "New Look" Planned Choice 'No Surprise' For T.F. Fairgoers

JEROME — Legislative District 22 Republicans responded today to the appointment of Vernon Ravenscroft as Democratic candidate for legislator on the November election ballot.

Ravenscroft was named Monday evening to fill the vacancy left by Joe McCarter, Corral, who resigned to assume duties as the newly-elected state Democratic chairman.

H.E. Wilson, Jerome, Republican chairman for District 22, said it was no surprise that Democrats of Legislative District 22 appointed Ravenscroft as representative candidate for the district.

He said, "We have heard it rumored all along that if Ravenscroft did not win the bid for governor, McCarter would resign and let the district appoint Ravenscroft to fill the vacancy."

"Now that the Democrats have found a place for McCarter, it would be real interesting to see how a small conservative county boy, like McCarter, gets involved with the big city liberal like Cecil Andrus."

He said the money would not allow the kindergarten classrooms could be equipped within three years. He emphasized the $4,800 figure did not include transportation or construction of facilities.

Mrs. Russell A. Brown, Idaho Falls, a subcommittee member, asked Hill whether the governor was willing to "follow but not to lead" in the kindergarten issue.

Hill noted Samuelson "is the governor of all the people. I think if the governor can justify in his mind there is a need and we do have the funding... he might be enthusiastic."

Mrs. Lucille Parsons, Kellogg, asked whether the governor would support a public school kindergarten program if funding agreeable to him could be found.

"I would give a qualified yes," Hill said. "There are other factors to be considered but I think he would give it careful consideration."

Hill indicated the governor would be more receptive to the idea if the recommendation for public kindergartens came through the state board of education, would not interfere with funding of current programs and would not involve any increase in taxes.

TWIN FALLS — Hardly a fairgoer will be able to visit everything on the approximately 60 acres of entertainment and displays that will make up the 1970 Twin Falls County Fair. But in a single day's visit he is assured of finding many of his special interests satisfied.

This was indicated Tuesday night in a dinner sponsored by the Twin Falls County Fair Board and County Commissioners for the benefit of news media of the county. The dinner, held in the Roundup Room of the Rogerson Hotel was attended by 50 persons including principals of the annual fair program.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cammack, Lennox, S. D., will bring their carnival to Filer again this year and the same rodeo producer, who presented the 1969 show, Rag Keating will be moving his stock to Filer within a few days for the nightly rodeo show.

Fairboard members this year are especially proud of the "new look" at the old fairgrounds. Not only is it larger with the purchase of an additional 35 acres of land which will allow at least 15 acres of parking, but it has been revised.

The new concrete grandstand will be complete for the afternoon and evening shows with a new location. All new bucking chutes and holding pens and lighting will be offered this year because of the fire last fall which destroyed the old stands and surrounding structures.

The first Idaho State Hereford Show is being planned in conjunction with the fair with about 125 entries from four states already scheduled for display, Herschel Boydston, show chairman, reported.

As Harold Hove, board chairman, told the Tuesday-night gathering, "Every year we say it will be a bigger and better fair and somehow it always is. This year will be no exception."

The Miss Rodeo Idaho contest will again climax the Saturday night rodeo with Gene Hull as chairman. Tom Shouse, fair manager, said there are about 20 young horsewomen entered in the event, the winner of which will receive the crown from Carolyn Harvey, Twin Falls, 1970 title holder.

Have introduced fair officials and show producers and L. W. Moore, Hansen, board member, introduced news media. Shouse outlined improvements and fair plans for this year.

Jerome Blood Quota Missed by 23 Pints

JEROME — Jerome County residents missed the 125-pint blood quota Monday by 23 pints during the bloodmobile visit in the Moose Hall.

A banquet for officers and their wives was held in the American Legion hall in the evening. Awards were presented to the winners of the events.

Bill Daley of the Burley Police Department was directing the shooting matches and Camas County Sheriff Paul Cox was host to the event.

1,600 Books Circulated By Sun Valley Library

KETCHUM — Nearly 1,600 books were circulated through the Ketchum-Sun Valley Community Library during the past month, according to a report from Barbara Hart, librarian.

Mrs. Hart told the monthly board of directors meeting this week that 808 adult and 888 juvenile books were circulated as were 60 phonograph records. In addition, she said, 116 books were added to the library's collection.

Included in the additions are several books on antique bottle collecting, sports cars, outdoor lore and hunting, astronomy and interior decorating. Specific collections include "Zelda," by Millard; "My Lal Four," by Herah; "Please Touch," by Howard, and "Sexual Politics," by Millet, in the non-fiction division. Fiction additions include "Crystal Cave," by Stewart; "Such Good Friends," by Gould; "Vector," by Sutton, and "Quiet Voyage Home," by Jesup.

Mrs. Hart also noted that 5,000 brochures have been mailed to local prospective donors in an attempt to raise additional funds for the library and the response has been encouraging. She said over 800 individuals toured the homes on the recent tour sponsored by the library, with special thanks going to Mary Rolland who assisted with the art show on the Sun Valley Mall, and to Rita Hogg for her publicity efforts. It was noted the summer reading program concludes Saturday, with 61 local youths having participated. Saturday, certificates and prizes will be awarded.

SHOSHONE — Shoshone schools will begin Monday morning, states Supt. Kenneth Mothers.

He said the teaching staff is filled and hot lunches also will begin on Monday.

There is no noticeable tide in the Great Lakes. The lakes do have a barely perceptible seiche, which is partly due to atmospheric conditions.

ONTARIO (UPI) — A group of Oregon and Idaho onion growers agreed Monday not to negotiate with "those outsiders responsible for the recent disturbances" in Treasure Valley farms.

Eldon Andrew, Wilder, said the 150 to 200 growers met and agreed not to discuss or negotiate with "those outsiders" causing "interferences with workers wishing to continue their work in the onion fields."

Andrew also said those at the meeting asked to have attorneys look into the "question of preparing an injunction asking for damages and a court order restraining such irresponsible actions in the community."

He also said there was some criticism of government aid payments to employees who refused to work after it was disclosed a good worker could earn as much as $20 per day

As she neared the bench where several students were sitting, it collapsed, breaking two toes on her right foot.

Samuelson Eyes Kindergartens

BOISE (UPI) — An administrative assistant to Gov. Don Samuelson indicated Tuesday the governor might be more receptive to state-supported public school kindergartens if the funds were not diverted from existing educational programs.

Jerry Hill, speaking to the kindergarten subcommittee of the Task Force on Educational Financing, said Samuelson did not want to be "pushed in the direction of justifying kindergartens over and above some of the other programs if the money is not available from other sources."

At the same meeting, Harold T. Farley, assistant state superintendent of public instruction, said it appeared a state-supported kindergarten program would cost $2,962,200 per year.

Farley, who emphasized his figures were "nothing more than estimates," said his total was for $4,800 for each kindergarten unit consisting of 22 students.

Farley noted the $4,800 per unit would include teacher salary, $30 per student for "consumable goods," such as paper, paints, funds for custodial services and possibly utilities, and some equipment.

Jerome Rodeo Slated For Tonight, Thursday

JEROME — The Jerome County Fair Rodeo is scheduled for tonight and Thursday evening in Jerome, according to Ted Peterson, rodeo chairman. Performances will begin at 8:30 p. m. at the Jerome County Fairgrounds.

The rodeo, sanctioned by the Denver-based Rodeo Cowboys Association, will feature professional competition in bareback bronc and saddle bronc riding, bull riding, calf roping and steer wrestling. The cowboys competing in the rodeo may come from anywhere throughout North America. They pay their own travel expenses plus rodeo entry fees, and receive only what they are good enough or lucky enough to win in the arena.

A $1,000 purse has been put up by the Jerome Rodeo Committee to be added to the cowboys' entry fees for the total prize money. Last year at the rodeo, 75 contestants competed for $2,920.

This was part of the $3.8 million won that year at 533 association-sanctioned rodeos in 40 states and four Canadian provinces.

Dell Haalam, Ovid, will supply the livestock for the rodeo again this year.

QUILT MAKING for Mrs. Edith Baugh, Shoshone, left, started four years ago as a gift for her grandchild. Now she makes and sells the quilts to people from most all states in the nation who ask for one. So far she has made about 300 of them. Here she shows one of them to her grandson, Rusty Eberhard.

Quilt Making Started As Gift for Grandchild

SHOSHONE — Four years ago Mrs. Edith Baugh, Shoshone, decided to make a quilt for a grandchild. Since that time, she has made over 300 such quilts, some of them crib size, some a little smaller.

She has sold them for about the price of the material, and they have gone to almost every state in the United States, to Hawaii, Alaska, and even one to Okinawa. There are a number of them in Utah, she said, some in California, New York and West Virginia.

When people see the quilts and order one, she said they usually tell her to just make whatever pattern she would like. With this, she has used her own imagination to form a variety of patterns and all of her quilts are original. She has made her own version of all the nursery rhymes.

The patterns are taken, usually, from children's coloring books. She traces them off, then puts them on the material for applique to the background top of the quilt. Unless requested to do otherwise, she uses cotton material, with a dycron filling in the quilt.

Many of the patterns, Mrs. Baugh said, she "dreams up" during a sleepless night, and poet-like, she often makes rhymes to go with them.

The quilt is placed on a quilting frame, shaped like a large embroidery hoop, and Mrs. Baugh said by working steady and long hours, she can do a quilt in four or five days. Major part of all the quilts is hand done, with some machine edging used.

Detail work on the quilts added to the color combinations, catches the eye of an adult, and children love the tiny "childlike figures."

Typical is a quilt with blue sky, pond of blue color, ducks on the pond, white fence in background with tiny white kitten on the fence or bears, rabbits, trees and geese, one about to eat a lady bug.

One of her own favorites, Mrs. Baugh said, is a swan on a blue lake, with pink lilies.

Stationery Goes "Wild" For Swingers

The newest thing in stationery for the under-21 generation comes in unconventional sizes, unobscure colors like purple, green, pink and orange, and uninhibited designs like heads, hats or bearded faces.

While it might shock Great Aunt Mabel, Hallmark's "Somethin' Else" stationery line is helping to speed and brighten communications among the younger crowd with huge sheets of decorated notepaper and outrageously colored envelopes.

Typical of this swinging stationery trend is a sheet of writing paper with a border of orange-on-yellow dots and an illustration of a long-haired youth wearing a pink, blue and yellow polka-dotted shirt and striped pants.

Described by the manufacturer as "the new anti-stationery by the Hallmark establishment," the youth-oriented line includes violet notepaper with quotations from W.C. Fields and other writing papers shaped like a hippy's head, with shoulder-length hair outlined in vivid yellow, orange or purple.

The designs also feature a foot high with a clenched fist and bulgy-muscled arm bearing a tattoo inscribed to "Mother," and a psychedelic pattern of waves with the words "Denr" and "Love" picked out in rainbow colors at top and bottom.

"Somethin' Else" stationery is available in packs containing five sheets and five envelopes at shops and stores selling Hallmark cards.

Clean foam rubber upholstery only with soap and water. Most cleaning fluids will deteriorate rubber.

Secretaries Urged to Strike By New York Liberationists

BOSTON (UPI) —Feminist Betty Friedan predicts millions of American women will demonstrate for equal rights with men Wednesday, the 50th anniversary of woman suffrage, "on a scale none of us dared dream of even two years ago."

"After this day, nothing in this country will be quite the same again," she promised, launching national women's strike week Sunday night before some 250 cheering women and a scattering of men in the city where the feminist movement was born in 1936.

"Man is not the enemy," said the author of the best-selling "The Feminine Mystique" and the founder of the National Organization of Women (NOW).

"Man is a fellow victim; We will end the war between the sexes by ending the conditions that make women bitter ... by allowing men and women to see each other as people, not as object or oppressor." Women will parade Wednesday in virtually every city in the nation to dramatize the strike's three demands: Equality in education and employment, free 24-hour daily child care centers and free-abortion on demand.

Miss Friedan drew her biggest response when she reminded her audience of women's subordinate role in politics. "This year women will not lick the stamps, look up the zip codes, man the polls unless they also make the decisions in the smoke-filled rooms. Democrats, Republicans, Socialists, the new left, the old left, the conservatives—all of them are pretty bad."

She continued, "On Wednesday husbands and brothers, sons and lovers march with us; working women and housewives, bitter Playboy bunnies—our liberation is your liberation too."

The week was kicked off Sunday morning with a karate demonstration at the Charles Street Meeting House. "Women who can defend themselves have the confidence to resist this oppression, which ranges from physical attack on the one hand to harassment, whistling, hisses on the other," said one petite young karate expert.

Wednesday, a parade of women will march in Boston to City Hall from the statue of Ann Hutchinson, who was exiled in 1636 for her statements on women.

Miss Friedan was warmly applauded when she said television advertising "seems to think a woman is fulfilled when she waxes the floor wearing false eyelashes."

Pussycat League Promotes Harmony Between Sexes

NEW YORK (UPI)—Broadway producer David Merrick says he believes in women's liberation, even though a group that opposes the movement gave him an award Saturday.

The Pussycat League, which claims to have 7,000 members who don't want liberation, gave out "humanism awards" for the promotion of harmony between the sexes. Merrick was cited for having said, "I hate actresses as much as I hate actors."

But he said he was misinterpreted. "I'm all for women's liberation. I would like to see women as plumbers, ditch-diggers, construction workers. They should be allowed to do every dirty job men do."

The Pussycat League, whose motto is "The Lamb Chop is Mightier Than the Karate Chop" gave other awards to:

—Construction workers, "for constantly reminding women that they are women and look good."

—The powder room at the Waldorf-Astoria, "for being an oasis of calm and luxury for the frazzled lady in need of a total remake."

—Canada's Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, a bachelor, "for bringing a becoming masculinity to high public office and finally putting to rest the political bromide that a politician must have a wife."

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am just about ready to blow my brains out. What did I do wrong? I went with Al for four years. He was married, but he and his wife never got along. We spent every weekend together. Pretty soon Al had more clothes at my apartment than he had at home. I even paid for his psychotherapy for a year. I never looked at another man. I loaned him money, shared my car with him, cooked for him, did his laundry and waited patiently for the day his divorce became final. Well, it did, five weeks ago. Last night he told me that the only "real" love in a man's life is his first love, so he has decided to remarry his ex-wife!

Why are men such rats, and why are women such fools?
ADELE

DEAR ADELE: You have just qualified for the "Old-to-Soon, Smart-to-Late" Club (women's department). Listed below are the most common traps which make membership automatic:

(a) An affair with a married man whose wife doesn't understand him. (She's usually "cold," extravagant or sick.)
(b) The working woman who keeps working while her boy friend keeps telling her he can't marry her until his mother dies, his kids are grown, or he gets all his debts paid off. (This never happens.)

(c) The woman who falls for the man-about-town who boasts publicly that he's not the marrying kind, but she gets hung on thinking she's the one woman in the world who can get him to change his mind.

In the meantime, nothing changes but the color of her hair.

DEAR ABBY: I think the daughter who sent you her mother's letter about having her favorite cat "put gently to sleep" and buried with her ought to see about having her mother "put gently to sleep." It sounds to me as tho the old brood is a little dippy.

Ask her if there isn't perhaps a friend or two-whom she'd like to "reward" for their devotion by having them "put gently to sleep" with her.

If she doesn't, I have a few I'd like to volunteer, among them, that fat-headed daughter who sent in her mother's letter. Sounds to me as if mental aberrations run in the family.

I agree completely with your reply. "Let nature decide." However, I'd like to suggest to the old bat that if she's really worried about the cat's welfare, she should make provisions in her will for the cat's care.

Falling that, she should make sure somebody competent will care for her cat after she's gone. I only hope that somebody isn't the same sort of "animal lover" she is. (Sign me)
"OWNED BY A CAT"

DEAR OWNED: Thanks for your support. I needed it. Would you believe my mail ran two to one in favor of doing away with the cat? In the interest of fairness, here is a letter from the opposition:

DEAR ABBY: You apparently don't know much about cats, judging from your advice to that lovely elderly cat owner who asked if she should have her cat put gently to sleep and cremated with her, should she outlive the cat.

May I send word to her via you? She should, by all means, have that precious pet put to sleep and buried with her. Cats are essentially one-person animals. Having lived with her all these years, he would be lonely and forlorn without her, looking for her, crying for her, and wondering why she had deserted him. And at last he would wander off somewhere to die alone of a broken heart.

I hope you will reverse your decision.
CAT LOVER

DEAR LOVER: I'm a cat lover, too, and I can't see killing a perfectly healthy cat just because somebody decided that he is destined to die of a broken heart. He may miraculously survive the loss and have a ball. Besides, it could be his sixth life.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

just wanted to get to game, so he made a bid for five clubs. Then, when he bid five hearts, he revealed his hand. Obviously, he was showing the king of hearts and trying for a grand slam. Could she be doing this without both the ace and queen of trumps? No, unless she had a six-card suit. Could she have a couple of small spades? No chance. He had never shown his spade ace. Was his queen of hearts likely to be valuable? Indeed it was. Wally closed the bidding at seven clubs.

The play was elementary for someone of Barbara's caliber. She won the spade lead and promptly called for dummy's king of clubs. There would be no problem about the grand slam as long as all four trumps didn't show up in one hand. If West held them, the grand slam would not be made. Since East held them, Barbara was able to pick up the jack-10 by leading through them twice. She also had to ruff a diamond, but that was child's play once she had made the correct play in trumps.

HQSHHOLD HINT - Thinking about remodeling your house? If so, don't spend more than 30 per cent of the fair market value on such a remodeling job. That's the experts' advice. They say that's about as much gussying up as any old homestead can stand without putting the owner in the hole financially.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks were broadly higher at mid-session Wednesday. Turnover was moderately active.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 5.06 to 764.03. The blue chip indicator gained steadily throughout the day.

Advances outpaced declines, 865 to 370, among the 1,481 issues crossing the tape.

The three-hour volume of 9,440,000 shares slipped from the 10,650,000 shares in the comparable period Tuesday.

The market has been on an upswing for more than a week. Analysts attributed this generally to signs that credit may be easing and inflation slowing.

A further indication of the slowing was a Labor Department report showing that wholesale prices in August dropped for the first time in two years.

Q—When a company such as Detroit Edison issues rights to stockholders to buy common at slightly below the market price, are the new shares eligible for dividends?—R. H.

A—In this case, yes. However, a corporation may offer a shareholder the right to purchase bonds, as did American Telephone, or it might proffer shares of a subsidiary or shares of another company bought previously as an investment.

Corporations, especially utilities, are faced with periodic demands for new capital, and in times when interest rates are high some rather ingenious methods for raising money are employed.

The type of offering made by Detroit Edison is one of the less exotic and is used rather commonly by utilities. The company raised about $47 million and plans to raise a similar amount later this year through the sale of common shares.

And although there are now 10 percent more common shares outstanding, the dividend rate will remain as before, at 35 percent quarterly.

Q—We have a small profit in Green Shoe. With all the talk about imports, should we continue to hold?—F. P.

A—Green Shoe, because it manufactures children's shoes exclusively and concentrates its production in the higher-priced lines, is not seriously affected by competition from lower-priced imports.

Stride Rite, the company's major product line, enjoys a good degree of consumer loyalty, and Green is thought to account for about 40 percent of the better-quality juvenile shoe market.

In the first half of the current fiscal year to end November 30, net income advanced 23 percent on a 13 percent advance in sales.

Per share results equalled 99 cents versus 79 cents in the 1969 interim. Full year earnings could reach $2.20 a share, up from the depressed $1.93 the previous year. At only 11 x this estimate, shares are selling at a historically low multiple.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bull markets do not start with a thunderclap; a number of preconditions begin developing over a period of months and, when the light flashes on, they are already in place, the Dines Letter says.

There is no evidence yet that an economic or a stock market turnaround will soon get under way and caution is advised, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. The picture should become clearer in a few months and there should be no rush to acquire equities in the interim, the firm adds.

Turning to local problems in Utah, Starkman told the scientists gathered at the University of Utah the people of Salt Lake City "are going to have to make some hard decision in the future — whether they want industrial payrolls or whether they want a clean environment."

Colts File Suit On Orioles

BALTIMORE (UPI)—The Baltimore Colts filed suit Tuesday asking a court to settle a scheduling dispute which threatens the football team from playing a proseason game Sept. 28 in Memorial Stadium—also the home field of the Baltimore Orioles baseball team.

The game with the Kansas City Chiefs was scheduled for Monday night so it could be televised. But, the Orioles have a clause in their lease with the city government which bars any other athletic activity in Memorial Stadium less than 26 hours before an Oriole home game. The Orioles are scheduled to play a double header with the Washington Senators Sept. 20.

Colts' owner Carroll Rosenbloom announced last Tuesday that he had filed suit against the Orioles, Orioles owner Jerry Hoffberger, Mayor Thomas A. D'Alessandro III and Joseph Rash, chairman of the city board of parks and recreation.

Senior Veterans Will Carry Hansen's Hopes

HANSEN — A big squad turnout and a solid nucleus of senior veterans — headed by 3-year letterman quarterback Walt Freestone — has coach Gordon Hogan voicing guarded optimism before the Hansen Huskies 1970 opener Friday at 2 p. m. against Mackay.

Hogan, assisted this year by Robert "Dutch" Sherman, says Hansen's season could be highly successful if some of the seniors have years that they are capable of. "We're looking for a good season. We've had a big pre-season turnout and should get more as soon as school starts," comments Hogan.

Walt Freestone, Lynn Pearson, Gary Moore, Cliff Barnard, Carl Crockett and others have shown well in practice. Freestone and Pearson are capable of having great years.

Freestone (6-foot 100) will run the offense. Barnard, a two-year senior letterman (5-9 160) is slated to start at tailback; Moore, 2-year senior veteran (5-7 145) at flanker, and Pearson, 3-year senior letterman (6-1 200) will run at fullback.

Carl Crockett (6-foot 160) and Roger Perkins (5-4 130), both two-year veterans, will be Freestone's receivers on each side. Dan Vassar (5-10 140) and Darrell Campbell (5-9 170) are the guards — both are seniors. Chuck Daw (6-foot 180) will start at center. Two-year letterman Jim Hopkins (5-11 140) adds depth to the receiving corps. Hopkins and Guntor are Juniors.

Non-letterman prospects are Alan Bodily, tackle (6-1 225); Kevin Stanger, guard (6-11 160); Rex Clark, tackle (6-11 160); Andy Clift, center (6-7 150); Les Pollard, tackle (6-7 160); Ralph Hopkins, guard (6-7 140); Ron Motherhead, guard (6-6 150); Darwin Rasmussen, fullback (5-10 160) and Mark

Syracuse Blacks Given 24-Hours to Agree On Terms, Rejoin Teammates

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI)—Recommendations for ending a dispute between black football players at Syracuse University and head coach Ben Schwartzwalder with the players given 24 hours to agree to terms which would permit them to rejoin the squad.

The meeting was held at Schwartzwalder and his staff prepared to open preseason practice for the 1970 season. Chancellor John E. Corbally Jr. said proposals for ending the dispute were discussed and the terms included a stipulation that the ousted players sign a promise to "commit" himself to 100 per cent effort in working for the team.

Another term of the truce proposal would require players to channel future grievances through the coaching staff. Seven black athletes, including Al Newton, top guard on the team last year, were not invited to participate in preseason practice after they presented Schwartzwalder with a list of demands.

One of the demands of the players, made last spring, was hiring of a black football coach. The school has since hired a black coach, Carleton Jones, a Florida A. and M. graduate.

Three of the black varsity players, including Newton, recently filed charges of discriminatory practice by the coaching staff. The charges were filed with the Onondaga Human Rights Commission. Schwartzwalder, in turn, outlined six commitments he feels are necessary for the players. "A student athlete who is fully prepared to participate as a member of our football squad will find a complete effort made by the coaching staff to provide him with a secure and honest opportunity to so participate," Corbally wrote to the commission.

Agnew Solidifies Commitment

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—Backstairs at the Western White House: On his tour of America's Asian allies, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is giving voice for the first time to points that have been implicit in President Nixon's Cambodian policy all along. Namely, that a non-Communist future for Cambodia is vital to the success of the American withdrawal from South Vietnam and the United States is prepared to go to substantial lengths to preserve the pro-western government of General Lon Nol.

In his report to the nation on Cambodia June 30 and in subsequent remarks about Cambodia at news conferences, President Nixon emphasized the success of the limited American border thrusts in disrupting North Vietnamese sanctuaries and supply systems. While not ruling out the return of American ground troops he said the border operations had been so successful that the only American military activity in Cambodia would be bombing raids aimed at interdicting the flow of men and supplies toward South Vietnam. Under no foreseeable circumstances would American troops again cross the border.

And now the vice president, under instructions from Nixon to offer some reassurances to worried Asian leaders, is publicly relating vital interests of the United States in South Vietnam to the success of the Lon Nol government in stronger terms than have previously been used. The limits of the Nixon Administration's support of the Lon Nol government still are understandably ambiguous. But it appears that the president felt that a firmer statement of the American interest in Cambodia would serve both as a warning to Hanoi and as encouragement to America's allies.

Further Defense Cutbacks Rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Nixon Administration has concluded it would be a needless gamble with the National Security to cut military spending next year below the $73.6 billion level proposed for this year, it was disclosed Tuesday.

Although efforts will be made to keep the next Pentagon budget from rising, there is little room for another $6 billion cut like the one President Nixon ordered in his current budget. Caspar W. Weinberger, deputy director of Management and Budget, said in an interview.

"I don't see a great deal of room with any commensurate degree of safety for a very substantial reduction in the defense budget," Weinberger said.

The Pentagon spent about $80 billion in the fiscal year that ended last June 30 and $81.2 billion in the previous 12 months. The budget Nixon sent to Congress last January for the fiscal year that began July 1 calls for outlays of $73.6 billion. That estimate has not been officially changed since the budget was submitted.

"We have already taken a great deal out of defense," Weinberger said. "We are spending in constant dollars (to eliminate the effect of inflation) something like 25 per cent less for defense than we were spending a few years ago."

Fast Air Blamed In Crash

MAMMOTH, Wyo. (UPI)—Swift air currents in a rugged canyon east of Yellowstone National Park apparently caused the crash of a light plane on a 10,000 foot mountain slope and the deaths of four persons, officials said Tuesday.

The single engine Cessna, piloted by Dr. Jack Tiller, his wife Kay, the couple's daughter Paula, and her husband, Joseph Biddinger of Englewood, Colo., were removed from the wreckage by a park ranger team Tuesday.

The bodies were carried by helicopter to Sylvan Pass and taken to Cody, Wyo., by a coroner.

Tiller, about 50, was flying to West Yellowstone, Mont., and apparently was following U.S. 14-20 into the park, Anderson said.

"It appears Tiller took the wrong turn up the canyon and was probably turning to go back when hit by a downdraft," Anderson said.

Future Life Appears Odd

By WELLINGTON LONG
BONN (UPI)—The postman of the future will not ring twice, or even once. Mail will be delivered via television and most office employees and school children will be able to do their work and study at home in front of a television screen.

Students will learn to take television pictures at the same time as they are taught to read. They will be taught computer programming simultaneously with instruction in writing.

These were some elements of life in the next millennium as foreseen by half a dozen international experts gathered here last week for the German radio and television exhibition.

Five of the six were optimistic about the benefits to mankind of visual communication.

But Sir Hugh Greene, former general director of the British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC), was pessimistic. He suggested, only half-humorously, that governments of the future will control all television, that it will be transmitted by wire thus denying the viewer a choice, and that all other sources of information, particularly newspapers, will have been eliminated.

Jiri Pelikan, general director of Czechoslovak television until the Russian invasion two years ago and now a refugee in the West, differed with Greene. Pelikan saw television as a means of insuring more democracy.

As proof of television's power, Pelikan recalled the illegal television stations that stayed on the air for a week and one-half after the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia, and claimed these transmissions prevented a blood bath.

"Television held an army of 500,000 men in check," Pelikan said.

Two inventors peered ahead for a look at uses of visual communication in the future.

Walter Bruch, German inventor of the Pal Color Television System, said every home will be hooked into a computer system as it now is hooked to the electricity grid. Homeowners no longer will need to have an encyclopedia, dictionary or other reference works because they will be able to call a central computer to ask for any information they need.

"Letters will be transmitted by television, with scramblers insuring privacy," Bruch said.

James Hillier, Executive Vice President of America's RCA, echoed Bruch's vision.

"The Home Information Center will provide your children with individual instruction on virtually any subject of educational interest and value," Hillier said.

A PILLAR OF SMOKE boiling from the motor ship Don Jose Figueras, owned by the Republic of the Philippines, testified to the violence of the flames that ravaged the ship, 65 miles northwest of San Francisco on Tuesday. A Coast Guard crew boarded the abandoned ship, but failed to extinguish the flames, though the fire had been quenched in three of the ship's holds. Officers said they hoped the fire would burn itself out. The flames broke out Friday and forced the 40 crewmen and two passengers to abandon the ship about 24 hours later. The cause remained unknown, pending a thorough investigation when the fire is finally put out. (UPI)

Pageant to Have New Swim Suit

By ROBERT MUSEL
NEW YORK (UPI)—Not long ago the folks who run the Miss America Pageant met in solemn session to select a new bathing suit for the girls to wear in the final parade before a crowd of thousands in Convention Hall in Atlantic City and an audience of millions on television.

This was not the simple matter it sounds, for the pageant takes itself very seriously and does not believe in change for the sake of change. But the decorous front-panel suit worn for the past few years was no longer fashionable and experts had suggested a switch to a newish waffle-weave material or to a silky, clinging fabric sexier than anything the girls had ever worn before.

The Miss America Pageant is always one of the nation's top televised shows and with all those young bodies in clinging silk it figured to blast through the roof of the ratings as well as to infuriate the Women's Liberation Front, which plans to picket the proceedings anyhow, on the grounds it is exploitation of the female form.

But Albert A. Marks, Jr., the stockbroker who is executive producer of the two-hour NBC-TV colorcast, Sept. 12, said in an interview that the committee had decided—predictable perhaps—on the waffle weave. "Imagine," he said sternly, "those clinging silk suits under the 450,000 volts of light we've got shining down on the stage?"

There was a pause while this scene was imaged from several angles.

"Well," said Marks, firmly returning the interviewer to the practical present, "we are not a cheesecake outfit."

"Outside the Women's Liberation Front this is a charge no one has ever leveled at the Miss America Pageant, which this year celebrates its golden anniversary. It was created by a group of newspaper executives in 1921 and the winner on Sept. 12 will be Miss America of 1971.

Marks said one of the things that has given him most pleasure this year was the selection of Cheryl Adrienne Brown, 19, a student of Luther College at Decorah, Iowa as Miss Iowa. She is the first black girl to be chosen to compete in the national finals.

"I'm overjoyed," Marks said. "I've been looking forward to this happening for years. All I've ever wanted is that the judges choose those girls they consider the prettiest and most talented."

Bert Parks will be master of ceremonies again for the 16th year, singing once again a song that begins "There she is, Miss America."

Fight on duplication
PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The American College of Physicians is urging its 16,000 members throughout the country to exert local leadership in eliminating duplication of equipment, services and personnel among private hospitals.

The college's board of directors sees this duplication as one of the reasons for the rising costs of medical care in the U.S.

Early Aircraft Looked Simpler

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—When the Air Force sets forth specifications for a new aircraft these days, hundreds of hours have gone into preparing them and they run into many thousands of words.

It wasn't always this way. When the U.S. Army decided to get into the flying business it called for bids and set down the specifications. The contract was signed Feb. 10, 1908 by a Capt. Charles S. Wallace, representing the Army Signal Corps.

It was signed by the builders, described as "Wilbur and Orville Wright, trading as the Wright Brothers." In the contract the Wright Brothers agreed to "manufacture for and deliver to the United States of America,

One heavier-than-air flying machine, in accordance with Signal Corps Specification No. 488, dated December 23, 1907.

The Specifications were simple to understand. They covered a "flying machine supported entirely by the dynamic reaction of the atmosphere and having no gas bag."

It is desirable that the flying machine should be designed so that it may be quickly and easily assembled and taken apart for transportation in Army wagons. It should be capable of being assembled and put in operation in about one hour.

"The flying machine must be designed to carry two persons having a combined weight of about 350 pounds, also sufficient fuel for a flight of 125 miles.

"The flying machine should be designed to have a speed of at least forty miles per hour in still air."

"It should be designed so as to ascend in any country which may be encountered in field service. The starting device must be simple and transportable; it should also start in a field without requiring a specially prepared spot and without damaging its structure.

Japan 'Dynamism' Boosts Economy

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Even the mention of the East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere is enough to draw a reminiscent shudder from most Asian diplomats.

It was the Japanese dream of a co-prosperity sphere running on a great arc from Australia to Burma that led to Pearl Harbor and pitched the United States into World War II. "Asia to the Asians" was the way the Japanese put it.

Linked to apprehension over a possible Japanese military rebirth is the fact that Japanese dynamism in the 25 years since the end of World War II has given Japan the world's third largest gross national product, behind the United States and the Soviet Union.

Inside this larger picture is the disclosure that Japan now is "totally responsible" for her own defense against conventional military attack.

The disclosure came in just-released testimony before a House subcommittee on foreign relations by Ambassador Alexis Johnson, under secretary of state for political affairs, told the committee that the United States has "no forces, either ground or air, in Japan that are directly related to the direct conventional defense of Japan."

The U.S. nuclear "umbrella," however, remains a key to Japan's over-all defense.

On Asian security, Japanese Premier Eisaku Sato has declared that "It is Japan that is gradually going to play the leading role while the United States will be cooperating from the sidelines."

Japan is in the process of acquiring more than 100 Phantom jet fighter-bombers to back up its "self-defense" forces of about 250,000 troops. While the Japanese have no immediate fears of outside attack, they worry about the nearby Soviet Air Force and the possibility of nuclear "blackmail" by the Red Chinese.
