Phnom Penh Peril

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Viet Cong forces overran a town 20 miles southwest of Phnom Penh Sunday and forced Cambodian defenders into what the government called a tactical withdrawal. The South Vietnamese command said North Vietnamese troops killed 10 persons and wounded 44 in an attack on an orphanage.

"This is just plain murder," said Maj. Thomas J. Pentacost of Camp Lejeune, N.C., of the attack on a Buddhist compound near An Hoa, 352 miles northeast of Saigon Sunday.

Communications from Phnom Penh said Communist troops had seized the town of Srang, 26 miles southwest of the capital. Cambodian spokesmen said the Communist troops withdrew "to avoid the Viet Cong pressure and give airplanes a clear target."

Heavy air strikes were called in to try to force the Viet Cong out of the area around Srang. The spokesman declined to say whether American jets took part in the attacks.

Allied officials in Saigon reported 40 shelling attacks overnight, 20 less than the previous night. At least 42 civilians died and 114 were wounded in Communist shelling and ground attacks early Sunday. The 60 rocket and mortar attacks throughout South Vietnam late Saturday and Sunday morning were the most since 60 were carried out June 4, military spokesmen said. Allied officials described "enemy activity" at its highest level since early May in an apparent attempt to disrupt South Vietnam's senatorial elections.

The U.S. Command said today American troops strength in Vietnam declined by 1,400 men last week to 402,300. It left Sunday. The 60 troops to be withdrawn by Oct. 16 under the Nixon administration's Phase 4 withdrawal program.

Fighting across Cambodia was light following the Viet Cong seizure of Srang.

School Days Again...

JEANS AND BERMUDAS must wait; the good clothes are dusted off and the shoes are polished, for they are again arrived, and Twin Falls youngsters must turn their minds to homework and hot lunches, to after-school dates and before-school plans. These young ladies were pictured enroute to school this morning — three of nearly 6,000 throughout the city who repeated the same familiar trek.

Policemen Ambushed

By United Press International
Four policemen were shot, one fatally, as they patrolled in Philadelphia.

Four other policemen were wounded as they chased suspects through a Mexican-American part of Riverside, Calif.

A newsman was killed in a riot that broke out during a rally in Los Angeles.

In New York 2,000 young people, including a group of homosexuals, stoned police in a confrontation in Greenwich Village.

These were some of the major instances of violence that plagued a number of American cities during the weekend.

In Philadelphia, Sgt. Frank Von Colln, 43, was shot five times and killed at his desk in the Cobbs Creek Park guardhouse Saturday night. Minutes earlier, a man hailed a patrol wagon driven by policeman James Harrington, 30. Harrington pulled over and the man shot him twice in the face.

Sunday night, two highway patrolmen stopped a stolen car carrying two black men in West Philadelphia, the same neighborhood of the previous shootings. The patrolmen were wounded, one critically, in an exchange of gunfire. Later, a wounded man was arrested in a private home.

Police arrested three men in connection with the Saturday night shootings and charged one with murder, possession of explosives and firearms violations. Police said he told them he belonged to a black group that had been "planning to kill pigs for several months."

In Riverside, Calif., four patrolmen chasing two men through a Mexican-American area Sunday night were wounded by a shotgun blast. Earlier in the evening, 100 young persons had tried to barricade streets. Four men were arrested, one on suspicion of attempted murder.

Filer Judge Dies

FILER — Kern Thurman, 62, Filer city clerk, treasurer and police judge, died Saturday at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital after a short illness.

Kern was born Aug. 11, 1908, at Melvin, Tenn., moving to Idaho in 1910 where he married Antonia Jayo on Dec. 23, 1937, in Wendell.

They lived in Buhl until 1948, when they moved to Filer. Kern was named to the three civic positions in 1950, serving continuously until his death.

He was a member of the Filer Kiwanis Club, and the Filer Methodist Church.

Thurman received a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Idaho. He had operated a service station in Buhl and Filer for a number of years.

Survivors include three daughters, Mrs. John (Fran) Robinson, Twin Falls; Mrs. Jerry (Judy) Lawson, Jerome, and Terri Thurman, Filer; two sons, Steve Thurman, Boise, and Doug Thurman, Filer; five sisters, Mrs. Mabel Percy, Adrian, Ore.; Mrs. Madge Harmon, Castleford; Mrs. Margie Beams, Buhl; Mrs. Mildred Graham, Eagle, and Myrtle Lee Kepner, Hawaii; a brother, Woody Thurman, Buhl, and six grandchildren. His wife preceded him in death in 1963.

The rosary will be recited at 7:30 p.m. today at the Hope Funeral Chapel, Jerome, by Msgr. Edmund Cody. Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Buhl Methodist Church by Rev. Glenn Waltman and Rev. Elam Anderson. Final rites will follow in Sunset Memorial Park, Twin Falls.

Peace Talks Bogged

By United Press International
The Middle East peace bogged down today, with the Israeli cabinet split over its course of action and Egypt claiming charges of cease-fire violations were a "coverup" for an Israeli-American electronic equipment deal.

Political sources in Jerusalem said Defense Minister Moshe Dayan is considering resigning unless Israel revises its stance toward the peace talks initiated by the United States. Dayan holds Israel should not have begun the talks unless the issues of Egypt's alleged installation of missiles in the Suez Canal cease-fire zone was cleared up.

Dayan and his backers in the cabinet appeared to have won at least a partial victory Sunday when the cabinet detained Ambassador to the U.N. Yosef Tekoaah instead of sending him back to New York for further talks.

ISRAELI sources released this aerial photo which they say shows a new Egyptian missile battery (arrow) south of Ismailia near Great Bitter Lake. Israel claims the construction is in violation of the cease-fire agreement. (UPI).

Car Kills Walking Girl, 3

RUPERT — Paula Levey, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Levey, Route 2, Rupert, died just before midnight Sunday after she was struck by a car Saturday.

The child was struck by a car as she walked along a country road about 7 p.m., Deputy Sheriff Wes Woodhall said. She, her two sisters and a brother had been swimming, and were walking home along 50 South at 100 West.

A car driven by Gary R. Gibson, 18, Rupert, and traveling west came over the raised roadway over the canal bank and struck the girl.

Officers said the children were walking west on the roadway. The driver said he was blinded by the sun and unable to see the children because of the rise in the roadway until he was almost upon them. The victim was taken to Minidoka Memorial Hospital where she died Sunday night.

Toddler Drowns

BUHL — A 1-year-old girl drowned Sunday in an irrigation lateral 1 1/2 miles east of here.

Christine Marie Koch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe A. Koch, Route 4, apparently fell into a lateral ditch which runs by her parent's home at about noon.

The body was recovered about 90 yards from where the girl fell in, according to Deputy Sheriff Curt Pryor.

Dr. Charles Cullings, Buhl, pronounced the victim dead at the scene.

Community Leaders Resigned to X Movie Showings

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Staff Writer
TWIN FALLS — What does a community feel about X rated movies?

Generally, community leaders, law enforcement officers and the clergy do not like it, but they are more or less forced to accept it.

Under present laws, there is nothing to stop showing X or XXXX films depicting nudity, obscenity or pornography, so long as they are not shown to persons under 18 years of age.

Civic leaders of Jerome and Twin Falls, including law enforcement officers, say while they do not like the films, especially as a steady diet, they say they must accept the fact adults can see what they like.

Twin Falls County probate Judge Eugene McCoy, Twin Falls, who handles juvenile cases, has strong objections to X movies.

"The morals of our communities are had enough now, and these films do not help any. They are contributing to the general breakdown in social, religious and family morals. It is time all communities begin thinking about higher standards," Judge McCoy said.

Although he does not believe the films tend to incite or increase sex crimes, he said they lower standards of community life — as do the rock festivals and the general relaxation of living standards today.

For example, he said, there are presently 10 girls under 18 years of age under his court's

6,000 Begin T.F. School

By CAROL BURNAM
Times-News Staff Writer
Restless youngsters and distraught mothers heaved sighs of relief today as summer again drew to an end and school bells changed the return to textbooks and teachers.

Nearly 6,000 Twin Falls students marched, trudged or romped to school today, depending on the grade and the mood.

About 1,500 students filled the halls of Twin Falls High School, overcrowding some of the rooms until the completion of construction of new rooms.

Dr. Ernest H. Ragland, superintendent of schools, said early registration indicated that about 950 students will attend O'Leary Junior High School this year, with another 550 enrolled at Robert Stuart Junior High. The city's five elementary schools will handle 550 to 600 students, while 80 to 90 special education students will attend classes at Robert Stuart, Ragland said.

Across the state, about 3,000 more students are attending schools this year over last year, according to D. F. Engelking, state superintendent of public instruction, with total state attendance well over 180,000.

Schools in Idaho felt the bite of a Supreme Court decision banning compulsory fees for the first time this year. The tribunal said that any materials required by the school would have to be paid for by the school, under the American system of free public schooling for all.

At Twin Falls High, for instance, students could spend up to $16.50 in strictly voluntary fees for the school annual, activity ticket, physical education fees, and the like, but would be allowed to forego part or all of the amount if desired.

Ragland said the school district will offer much the same lineup of classes as last year, depending on available funds, "especially until we have a chance to see what the impact will be from the loss of student fees."

Twin Falls students will enjoy two brief vacations next week — Labor Day, Sept. 7, and two days later, Sept. 8, when classes will be dismissed for Twin Falls Day at the Filer Fair.

Ragland said that in past years the Twin Falls schools have not opened until after the start of the fair, to give students a chance to participate. However, this year, with the 180-day requirement of the state for school operation, and the comparatively late opening of the fair, the school year would not have ended until June 10 at the earliest if the usual practice had been followed, Ragland said.

ABM Nails Target

Assistant Defense Secretary Daniel Z. Henkin said the target Minuteman missile was launched Friday from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. A Spartan missile, part of the ABM complex, was fired from Kwajalein Atoll 4,200 miles away in the mid-Pacific.

The Minuteman nose-cone was intercepted outside the earth's atmosphere, Henkin said. He would not give the altitude.

Neither the Spartan nor the Minuteman launched Friday carried explosive warheads.

The successful interception was determined by ground instruments which calculated that the Spartan's final stage, which in operation would carry a nuclear warhead, passed close enough to the Minuteman target to have caused its destruction, Henkin said.

The Safeguard system uses two missiles. The 65-foot-long Spartan has a range of several hundred miles and is the primary rocket for intercepting enemy missiles. The 27-foot-long Sprint has a range of 25 miles and is designed to attack enemy missiles that elude the Spartans.

The Sprint has not yet been tested against a live missile.

The Army has previously tested the Spartan by aiming it at points in the sky. Friday was the first time it was actually fired at an incoming missile.

Dixie Schools Integrated

By United Press International
Most Southern schools opened their doors today for the first full term of total desegregation. Officials generally felt there would be no disruptive incidents.

Among the larger school districts opening today were Miami, Atlanta, Birmingham, Ala., and Richmond, Va.

Dade (Miami) County, Fla., had 250,000 children entering 229 schools. About 38,000 students had to be bused. Classes were staggered to offset a shortage of buses, but authorities estimated they still needed 20 new buses at about $20,000 each.

Atlanta sent 110,000 children back to school, but the potential trouble spot was Savannah where eight elementary schools were paired or combined to achieve integration in the 42,000-student district.

Georgia School Supt. Jack Nix expected no trouble, however. "Last week went pretty well and I'm optimistic about this week," he said.

Richmond tried unsuccessfully last week to get the Supreme Court to delay opening day. The district must bus about 13,000 students to achieve a racial balance. The Rev. John Book, a Baptist minister, called for a boycott of schools, claiming "The combining of all races by force is communism."

North Carolina's largest school district, Charlotte-Mecklenburg, has been granted until Sept. 8 to institute a desegregation plan requiring the busing of about 20,000 of its 83,000 students.

'Black Box' Saves Lives Of Trainees

FT. RUCKER, Ala. (UPI) — During one bloody 30-month period, this Army aviation center listed 24 lives lost in 20 aerial collisions while accelerating training of helicopter and fixed-wing pilots for Vietnam combat. Since that period ended in November 1968, there have been no aerial collisions and the Army gives a large share of the credit to a five-pound black box filled with electronic equipment and costing about $3,000. The black box contains a proximity warning system which advises pilots of other craft in the immediate area, giving them time to take evasive action. The device could be applicable to commercial aviation. With a demonstration for newsmen Friday, the Army showed how the pilot is warned of an approaching plane and whether it is overhead, below him or flying at about the same level. Maj. John Harrell, operations officer for this big complex which carries out more than six million landings and takeoffs a year, said the Army launched a massive air safety program after 24 fliers were killed between June, 1966, November, 1968. Harrell said they found ground radar in the area of Cairns Airfield and a half-dozen heliports was ineffective due to the tremendous number of daily training flights. He said they adopted a new air traffic system which included assignment of areas to individual planes, restricting levels of operation and the creation of a warning system which could handle as many as 50 aircraft within a mile without confusion. The aerospace division of Honeywell Inc., won the contract to develop the proximity warning system. The device, coupled with the new air safety measures, cut reports of near-misses from 614 in fiscal 1969 to 440 in fiscal 1970. The proximity warning system sets a "field" around a plane which responds to similar radiation from other airplanes and helicopters. The field extends from one to 3,000 feet on all sides of the plane and 300 feet above and 300 feet below. When a similar-equipped plane approaches within that distance, the system is activated and the pilot hears a steady bee-bee-signal while light indicators show the general location of the approaching craft. A newer model is scheduled for tests in December. It will have a range of one to three miles and will indicate more accurately just where the approaching plane is, giving the pilots more time to avoid each other.

Lieutenant Leaves Army As Objector
FT. MONMOUTH, N.J. (UPI) — An Army lieutenant from Newton, Mass., has become the first Roman Catholic to be discharged from military service as a conscientious objector on religious grounds. Attorneys for 1st Lt. John J. Forrest, 27, said he was discharged Friday from Ft. Monmouth, where he had been stationed for six months as an attorney. Forrest's appeal, heard in May, was based on the statement on conscientious objectors issued last year by the U.S. Bishop's Division of World Justice and Peace and arising out of the recent Ecumenical Council in Rome. Attorney Mitchell Benjoya of Boston, who represented Forrest, quoted the bishops as saying in effect that "A Catholic who concluded a just war in the modern world is impossible could validly question and abstain from participation in war or the preparation for war." Benjoya said Forrest, as a Christian Catholic, felt it was his duty to let peace begin with him. He added the position is not dogma in the church. It is one strain of Catholic theology adhered to by some laymen and clerics. Forrest, a graduate of Northeastern University and Boston College Law School, was president of the Newman Club at Northeastern and passed the bar prior to his induction. Ms and Joe College

BSC Will Restrict Enrollment
BOISE (UPI) — Boise State College has closed its doors to out of state students who have not received permits to register. President John B. Barnes said the school experienced an unusual amount of applications from out-of-state students, and said they are being mailed notifications their applications had not been accepted. Barnes cited the school's responsibility to meet the needs of Idaho residents first, as the reason for curtailing out-of-state admissions. He said the restriction will be lifted for the second semester and students may re-apply for admission then.

Watson Led Killers
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two of the female principals in the Tate-LaBianca murder trial have testified that Charles "Tex" Watson led the alleged savage forays last August in which seven persons were killed. Watson sits in Collin County Jail in McKinney, Tex., appealing his extradition to California where four other members of the Charles Manson "family" are on trial for their lives. One of the female defendants, Susan Atkins, 21, told a grand jury—before recanting her story—that Watson killed all five persons at the home of actress Sharon Tate and that she had been told he killed Leno LaBianca or his wife the following night.

Police Rescue Woman

TWIN FALLS — A woman who handles the Saturday cleanup chores in the law offices of Stephan and Balleisen found herself in a somewhat precarious position late Saturday when she locked herself in the Bank and Trust building.

City police said the woman, Dorothy E. Peck, attracted the attention of a passing pedestrian who went to the City Cafe and reported her predicament. Officers found Mrs. Peck locked behind the glass door leading to the upstairs office area of the bank building. She said she had left her keys in one of the rooms while cleaning. The door automatically locked as it closed.

She finished cleaning duties and went to leave the building only to find someone had locked the main entrance door. It is necessary to have a key to get upstairs via the elevator or the stairway so she was trapped without access to a telephone. With the downtown construction program there aren't too many pedestrians in the area at 6:45 p.m. Officers said they were not sure how long the woman had been trapped, but it took about 20 minutes to find someone with a key to let her out. She had started work in the building about 11 a.m., she told officers.

Jets Too Loud?

TWIN FALLS — A complaint by a couple who resides near the city-county airport that the Hughes Air West jets make too much noise will be among topics discussed by members of the airport commission in session Tuesday morning.

The complaint has been lodged by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rayl Jr., who reside east of the airport's main runway. They complain the noise is especially disturbing when the jet planes take off to the east. They are expected to make specific charges and suggest a solution at the time of the commission meeting.

Also coming up for discussion will be the lease involving the airport cafe located in the terminal building. This discussion will be with George DeTillot.

Commissioners will select a new board chairman, succeeding Warren Barry who was named to the state aviation commission.

Farm Workers Sign Contract

SALINAS, Calif. (UPI) — Cesar Chavez' Farm Workers Union Sunday night announced the signing of a contract with one of the largest vegetable growers in the Salinas Valley.

The first victory in the union's bitter struggle to organize the nation's "Salad Bowl." Chavez told more than 1,000 cheering members of his United Farm Workers Organizing Committee (UFWOC) at an evening rally that Interharvest, a subsidiary of United Fruit Co., had agreed to terms.

The pact will cover 800 to 1,000 field workers at Interharvest's ranches in the Salinas valley and other sections of California and Arizona.

Chavez said the Teamsters Union, which previously signed contracts with 35 major growers in this valley which produces 70 per cent of the nation's lettuce, had agreed to renege its agreement with Interharvest.

Dolores Huerta, the union's vice president, said the pact provides immediate pay hikes for Interharvest employees.

Field hands operating machine lettuce pickers will receive $2.10 an hour, compared to $1.75 cutters have been receiving and the $1.85 in the teamsters' pact. Workers picking lettuce by hand will receive 40.5 cents a carton, compared to the current 31.5 cents and the teamsters' contract, 36 cents.

A possible court challenge looms for the contract.

Pic 'N Pac, a subsidiary of S.S. Pierce Co., asked a San Francisco Superior Court last week to prohibit Interharvest from signing with UFWOC on grounds it was breaking an agreement with other valley growers. A court hearing has been ordered for Tuesday.

Chavez' supporters went on strike last Monday in the valley, drastically reducing lettuce and other vegetable shipments. About 75 carloads were processed Friday, compared to the normal peak season shipment of 200 carloads.

The strike drove the wholesale price of lettuce in San Francisco, 130 miles north, from $3 for a carton of 24 to $6.50 a carton.

UFWOC has charged the teamster pacts with Salinas Valley growers are "sweetheart contracts." But the growers had vowed to honor them and refuse to negotiate with UFWOC.

Discord Mars African Parley

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (UPI) — African Foreign Ministers Monday ended their one-week summit meeting on a note of discord, failing to agree on a draft resolution condemning the arrest and detention of two Algerians by Israeli authorities.

Political sources said the last-minute hitch came during the final hours of the Conference's closing session which lasted eight hours and adjourned in the early morning hours.

The sources said after Algeria gave an account of the arrest of the two Algerians at Tel Aviv's Lydda Airport Aug.

Highway Toll Rises By 5 On Weekend

By United Press International Weekend reports of five more traffic deaths in Idaho raised the state's toll for the year today to 215, or 16 more than a year ago at this time.

Latest victims were Mary Irene Kearns, 10, Kollong; Janet Jansen, 24, Boise; Bob Leonard Doman, 43, Fayetteville, N.C.; Charles Baxter, 21, Boise, and Barbara E. Marrow, 21, Lewiston.

The Kearns child was fatally hurt late Sunday afternoon when she rode her bicycle into the path of a car driven by Marlon David McNeill, 49, Pinehurst, 3 1/2 miles south of Pinehurst on the Pine Creek Road. State Police said McNeill was unable to avoid hitting the child.

The Jensen woman died Sunday evening in a Boise hospital from injuries sustained in an accident Friday evening seven miles east of Lowman.

Officers said the woman was riding alone in a station wagon on Highway 21 when the vehicle and a pickup truck driven by Joe Stewart, about 34, Idaho City, collided. Officers blamed low visibility because of dusty road conditions for the accident.

14, Somalia introduced the draft resolution denouncing the action and calling on U.N. Secretary General Thant to take whatever measures necessary to secure the release of the two men.

The Algerians—Djelloul Khattib and Ali Belziz—were arrested aboard a BOAC airliner when it stopped over at Lydda airport. They were en route from from Tokyo.

The Somali draft held Britain responsible for the incident and called on the British government to take action to free the two men since they had been taken into custody aboard British plane.

The sources said Ethiopia proposed an amendment to the resolution which condemned plane hijackings and all acts of air piracy in general. But the proposal was met with opposition by about half the organization for African Unity (OAU) members.

The sources said both the Ethiopian amendment and the Somali draft were defeated when they were put to a vote Sunday, the ministers passed a resolution recommending African pressure to halt western arms supplies to South Africa.

The resolution, released for publication after its passage, condemned all actual or intended arms sales to South Africa but singled out France, Britain and West Germany as the main offenders in African eyes. It described the all-white government in South Africa as "racist."

Bare Land Knot

Idaho Falls Post-Register The flip-flop over the Big Horn sheep and livestock collision in Morgan Creek in Custer County in Central Idaho is a provocative profile of the different management stakes on our public lands.

It is up to the states, for example, to manage the wildlife on public lands. But it is up to the federal agencies — particularly the U.S. Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management — to handle the habitat for these same wildlife.

Yet the two, of course, are irretrievably entwined — but not always so entwined the state and federal agencies. The Big Horn sheep "problem" in the Morgan Creek area should have been targeted earlier than it was.

There is no question about it, in our opinion, not only the Morgan Creek drainage but others in Idaho on our public lands should have had an antidote many years before.

When the study by James K. Morgan, game biologist with the Fish and Game Department, showed that the big problem was loss of big horn winter range to livestock, the Bureau of Land Management did move with reasonable promptness to apply a restoration program, although it was not prompt enough for Game Biologist Morgan.

Littler 'Little Boy'

THE OREGONIAN

An important part of U. S. weaponry research since atomic bombs were dropped on Japan 25 years ago this August has been in reducing the size of the explosive package.

The "Little Boy" atomic bomb that destroyed Hiroshima, Aug. 6, 1945, weighed 9,000 pounds and measured 10 feet long and 2 feet, 4 inches in diameter.

The portability of such weapons is the best of reasons for the tightest atomic weapon security and for the international pact limiting nuclear arms development.

Census

Cries of anguish which followed release of many preliminary census figures have died out, but they could be revived when final figures are announced.

A proposal in Washington (designed to mollify protests) to hold another census in 1975, instead of in 1980 as scheduled, will not materialize.

hate, in fact, could bring on legal suits, in fact, which could have indefinitely delayed the much needed restoration project.

Gus Hormay, a range specialist of national reputation, this year studied the area and said that, in his opinion, there is no reason why this range could not be restored to provide ample feed both for livestock and big game.

All of which profiles the more cogent problem: Why has not the BLM applied a workable restoration program many years ago?

The answer largely is money and men. Both the Forest Service and the BLM can point to many places on their forests and public lands where restoration could have been achieved by now if sufficient funds and personnel could be packaged together for the project.

But no question about it, this range should have had attention long before. The dualism involved in the states being responsible for the wildlife and the federal agencies, who oversee the land, for the habitat has had the focus of the U.S. Public Land Law Review Commission.

The commission saw some of the problem in the divided jurisdictions of Congressional Committees making decisions and handling appropriations for the different wildlife programs. The commission has recommended a single Congressional committee in each house handling public lands. It also recommended merging of the Forest Service

WASHINGTON (NEA)—However high Moscow rides in the Middle East today, a professional gambler (who was also a historian) would give odds the Russians will stumble badly within three to five years.

This conclusion comes from a simple analysis of Russian "successes" in the past 16 years in aiding and supporting non-Communist developing nations.

In this period the Soviet Union has committed $2 billion in economic aid (and delivered $3 billion) and poured more than $5 billion in arms into 25 developing non-Communist countries.

Despite these billions: The tanks which surrounded Ben Bella's palace when the Soviet-backed strong man of Algeria was ousted—were into the Department of Interior, and with the BLM, under a new Department of Natural Resources.

However arguable, this is the direction that wildlife management has taken — actual ultimate decision-making on both wildlife and habitat in federal hands.

Mr. Morgan of Idaho's Fish and Game Department performed a most salutary service for Idaho in his hard-wrought and serviceable study of the bighorn sheep. And his solution — remove the livestock and restore the range, is unchallengeable.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The widely held impression is that if President Nixon keeps his promised withdrawal schedule and gets U.S. force levels in Vietnam down to 284,000 by next May, nearly all ground combat units will be gone.

Up to this time, which have reduced our total armed strength in Vietnam to just a bit more than 400,000 men, have included sizable numbers of support troops.

The most important thing to know is that a considerable number of ground combat elements will be among the 284,000 expected to remain on the Vietnam scene after May 1, 1971.

But the expressed hope is that by mid-1971 most of such units would no longer be engaged in dangerous, offensive patrol duty but would be assigned mostly to defend our logistical forces.

It is clear from this privately given indication that, whatever the President or others say publicly about the improvement of the South Vietnamese army as a fighting force, we do not yet have complete confidence in it.

To get our combat men into defensive posture, we need to train at a fairly rapid pace South Vietnamese helicopter units. It is not widely appreciated, but a high proportion of our present battlefield bases is from downed helicopters searching out and gunning down roving Viet Cong and North Vietnamese soldiers.

Russian tanks. The Indonesian army which threw out and attempted to destroy the country's Communist party was in considerable measure armed and equipped by the Soviet Union and Red China.

The good will for Moscow built up in India as a result of sizable arms shipments has been offset by the stupidities of Soviet broadcasters, who have actively campaigned against several Indian political parties during national elections.

In today's column, particular attention will be paid to Algeria, Ceylon, Ghana, Guinea, Indonesia and Iraq because these countries have been the subject of detailed studies. Some excellent work, for example, has been done at Butler University.

Witness the overseas influence and the publicity Moscow gained from 1956 to 1968. Yet her total economic aid program to non-Communist countries in that period totaled only $1.8 billion.

Second—Economic ties with the United States are cut (either severed entirely or almost so). Reliance on the Soviet Union becomes strong. The Soviet Union shows a high efficiency in this stage of the game. Characteristically, Moscow gains publicity and influence which quite often outweighs the contribution she makes.

Stronger Nails

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been using a gelatin drink to strengthen my nails for about 2 1/2 weeks and have noticed no change in my general health.

Maybe it will help you — and then again maybe it won't. There's an awful lot of hogwash being bandied about as to how to have hard, strong fingernails, so let's just look at the facts instead.

Lack of protein in the diet — and considerable lack of it — can contribute to weak nails. I strongly question whether very many people lack protein to that extent.

Gelatin is a form of incomplete protein and if lack of protein is the cause, then gelatin might help, but not in 2 1/2 weeks!

First of all, you have to wait until the protein deficiency has been corrected. Then you have to wait until the nails grow out their full length.

If the cause of the soft nails isn't lack of protein, there is no reason to expect gelatin to help. If (as is rarely the case, however) some disease is attacking the nails, you'd better see a dermatologist (skin specialist).

If some sort of preparation you are using on your nails is making them brittle, stop using it.

If you aren't doing enough manual work, the answer is obvious. People who do hard work with their hands almost never complain of brittle nails.

— either the weakening or the strengthening. That's the way it is, but human nature also being what it is, women will go on hunting for something to eat or something to put on their nails that will somehow make them strong.

Several tests have been developed for metabolism that do not require the old familiar breathing method.

On the assumption we have disrupted Hanoi's "Southern strategy" rooted in an offensive build-up in the original Cambodian sanctuaries, U.S. officials think the Reds' most severe probings now will be in the north from Hue to Da Nang. The argument is, of course, that they must maintain their fighting credibility, and that they can support northern assaults more easily because of shorter supply lines down the Laotian part of the Ho Chi Minh trail and into South Vietnam via the tested A Shau valley route.

Israel vs. U.S.

WASHINGTON — Disgruntled with Israel and in some cases downright angry, U.S. officials were set to declare as early as last weekend that the strategic balance of power along the Suez Canal had not been disturbed by new Egyptian missile emplacements.

At the last minute, they were pressured by the Israeli government of Prime Minister Golda Meir to say nothing until new intelligence photographs were sent to Washington from headquarters of the Israeli Defense Force.

These photographs, the U.S. was told, would remove all doubt about forward movement of Soviet-Egyptian anti-aircraft missiles since the Mideast cease-fire Aug. 8. And convince the Nixon administration it had only one recourse: demand that Cairo and Moscow dismantle any new sites immediately.

But when the new photographs arrived they were, in the words of a top U.S. official, "fuzzy and inconclusive." So, angry about the delay imposed by Israel, the State Department finally issued its statement on Wednesday. Conspicuously omitted from that statement was any hint of a demand on Cairo and Moscow to remove the offending missiles.

That byplay reveals the animosity which has been allowed to build up between two steadfast allies, Israel and the U.S., since President Nixon started applying inexorable pressure for a Mideast settlement.

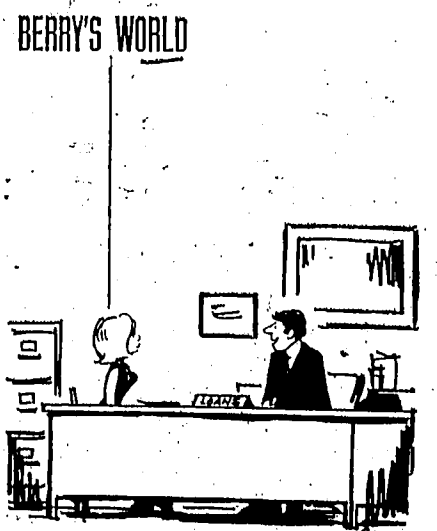

Part of the blame rests squarely on the Nixon administration. So anxious were the President and Secretary of State William P. Rogers to put the cease-fire into effect that they ignored a fundamental requirement: a foolproof system of monitoring the Suez Canal zone to prevent just what Israel now charges.

Thus, neither the U.S. nor Israel can now know for a hard fact exactly where the Egyptians placed the scores of anti-aircraft missiles strewn all over the desert on the edge of the combat zone as of the precise hour of midnight, Aug. 7. That was the time picked for the standstill when Israel, after a long stall, suddenly announced its acceptance of the cease-fire.

But even with this conspicuous failure, the President's Mideast experts see behind Israel's demand on the U.S. to crack down on Cairo far more serious implications than a few missiles which may or may not have cost Israel control of the air space over the canal.

The Presidential advisers suspect Mrs. Meir's government, already short of its right-wing Gahal faction, cannot quite accept domestically what is about to happen: forced Israeli withdrawal from almost all territories occupied in the six-day war of 1967.

As one U.S. official told us: "They are going to have to get out of the Sinai whether they like it or not and they can't face up to it."

"For you, my 'interest rate' is very high, indeed—how about dinner and a show tonight?"

CAMBODIAN carrying a bag of salt believed to be headed for the Viet Cong is forced to dump its 100-pound contents into a well at Sdong Chey, Cambodia, by U.S.-trained Cambodian mercenaries. The incident took place at a government checkpoint 40 miles northeast of the Cambodian capital. (UPI)

Propane Car Finishes First

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A 1970 Plymouth powered by propane beat out its diesel, natural gas and electric brothers Sunday to finish first in the 3,600-mile Clean Air Race.

First to cross the finish line at California Institute of Technology was the vehicle driven by University of California at Berkeley student Bak-Ying Chan.

It arrived just eight hours and 15 minutes short of a full seven days since the first of 45 entries left the Massachusetts Institute of Technology campus in Cambridge, Mass.

However, it is not necessarily the winner, which will be announced Wednesday after two days of emission tests are conducted by the state Air Resources Board.

Second behind the first vehicle, another UC Berkeley auto pulled in. A tired and hungry driver admitted he had forsaken rest and food in the final 537-mile leg of the race to beat out Caltech's two entries.

Third to arrive was a diesel-powered 1965 Mustang driven by Mrs. Roberta Nichols, 38, a UCLA graduate student.

"I feel permanently shaped like a Mustang," Mrs. Nichols said as she climbed out of the driver's seat. She added a bit of mystery to the race by reporting the UCLA car was sabotaged in Odessa, Tex. Friday night. She said the ignition wires had been unhooked and a throttle spring removed.

The race entrants were powered by natural, propane and unleaded gas, electric and electric hybrid engines.

All the autos had to meet the 1975 pollutant emission standards and will be judged on mileage, speed and the amount of pollutants emitted.

Question...

Does the Government pay the funeral and burial expenses of a deceased serviceman, or, are these costs paid by the family?

Answer...

Any serviceman who dies of any cause while enlisted or commissioned in any branch of the Armed Services is entitled to be returned to his residence of record and interred at the expense of the Federal Government.

Arrangements for the return of the serviceman are usually made by the military authorities at the place of death. The family, however, may arrange with a mortician of their own choosing and be reimbursed by the government. In either case the family indicates their choice of the receiving mortician.

$500.00 is allowed for funeral and burial in a private cemetery — or $250.00 is allowed for funeral and burial in a National Cemetery.

Certain other expenses may also be allowed. We will discuss these with anyone interested.

GIs to Mideast? Nixon Won't Say

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon today refused to speculate on whether U.S. troops might be part of a peacekeeping force policing a Middle East settlement.

Such speculation, he said in a television interview, would be harmful to negotiations now under way at the United Nations between Israel, Jordan and Egypt.

The President's remarks were taped in front of the Western White House Saturday and broadcast today (CBS Morning News).

The President scheduled a full-dress review of the Middle East crisis here Tuesday. He was meeting today with Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., who recently returned from a visit to Israel.

The Tuesday meeting, to be attended by top Defense Department and State Department officials, was expected to focus on Israeli charges Egypt has taken advantage of the American-initiated cease-fire to improve its military position.

His 15-minute conversation, the President ranged over a number of issues and appeared more optimistic about the chances for peace in Vietnam.

"So far as the United States' involvement is concerned in Vietnam, peace is certain. As far as the Mideast is concerned, we cannot speak with certainty due to the fact that the differences between various parties involved are so deep," Nixon said.

that the new U.S. negotiator in Paris, David K.E. Bruce, has "great flexibility" and is willing to respond to any initiatives from Hanoi. But he would venture no prediction on whether they would be forthcoming.

Turning to domestic issues, the President said the mood of the nation was volatile. But he said domestic strife had been less severe this summer than two years ago and said he had his "fingers crossed" that people were beginning to accept the fact that conflicts must be resolved through constitutional processes.

"The Great Issue of Our Time" "This is the great issue of our time," he said.

Nixon left no doubt he saw the beginning of massive school desegregation this fall as a significant hurdle for the nation.

Discussing the forthcoming November elections, Nixon declined to predict whether his hopes of getting a Republican majority in Congress would be realized.

"I don't make any predictions until we get quite close," he said. "About the first of October I might have some ideas."

Responding to another question, he praised the work of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew but refused to speculate on whether he would be his running mate in 1972.

"Of course this is a premature question," the President said.

Crews Halt Gem Blaze

By United Press International
Fire crews brought under control late Sunday evening a 1,020-acre fire in the Big Creek area 80 miles east of McCall and Payette National Forest, dispatchers said men would be released from the firelines today.

Earlier thought to cover only 780 acres, the fire broke out last Thursday at a boat landing about two miles from where Big Creek flows into the Middle Fork of the Salmon River in the primitive area.

Aerial, infra-red mapping showed it to be 1,020 acres, a dispatcher reported.

Before fire crews managed to control the blaze it burned about one mile up through steep and rocky terrain and to the edge of heavy timber. Had the 235 men been unable to control it at that point the fire would have presented very serious problems, officials said.

Saturday evening, Bruce Scott, a firefighter from the Nezperce National Forest, was hurt at the Soldier Bar airstrip near the Big Creek fire when a parachute he was trying to keep on the ground was sucked up into a helicopter rotor.

A cargo drop had been made and chutes and cargo remained on the airstrip when another helicopter approached to land. Air from the rotor on the second helicopter filled the parachutes on the field and Scott threw himself on one of them to try to keep it on the ground.

When the chute was sucked up into the rotor Scott was thrown into the air and then dumped back onto the ground. He sustained multiple cuts and bruises and a couple of stitches had to be taken in his mouth.

Meantime, lightning set 18 new fires in the Boise National Forest and a couple in the Payette. All were brought under control Sunday.

Fire crews also were sent to at least 22 spot fires Sunday at the Challis and Salmon national forests. None appeared very serious, however.

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — A car thief left an apologetic note when he abandoned an auto on a residential street here.

Plane Diverted

DUBROVNIK, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Three Algerians waving pistols and a Molotov cocktail held a scimitar-like dagger to the throat of an Air Algerie pilot today and forced him to fly them to Yugoslavia where they asked for political asylum.

The plane, a turboprop convair 640 with about 30 persons aboard, was ordered to Albania, but the tiny Communist country refused it permission to land and the pilot took the hijackers to Dubrovnik, on the Yugoslav Adriatic coast, after stops in Sardinia and Italy.

The pilot, identified only as Capt. Jeros, told officials, "I am utterly exhausted. I've been in that plane since 6 a.m. Sunday, a good deal of the time with a dagger at my neck. I need some rest."

Yugoslav officials said it appeared the request for Albanian political asylum would be granted. The three Algerians, all described as about 30, refused to give their names. They seized the plane on a flight from Annaba, Algeria to Algiers.

(However, in Algiers, the operations office of Air Algerie announced the three hijackers were arrested by Yugoslav authorities at Dubrovnik airport. They said the passengers and crew were safe and would return to Algeria later today.)

The hijacker ordered the crew to fly first to Cagliari on the island of Sardinia where they released 11 of the estimated 38 passengers aboard. They told the pilot to fly them to Tirana, the Albanian capital, but instead the plane was forced to land at Brindisi, Italy, only 50 miles across the Adriatic from appeared the request for Albanian

Negro Opens Fire In Southern School

By United Press International
A Negro man walked into the halls of a Miami school that was opening today for the first time on an integrated basis and opened fire with a rifle, wounding a Cuban father who was escorting his son to school.

The shooting incident and massive traffic jams marred an otherwise peaceful and easy first day of integrated classes for thousands of school children across the South.

Miami police said a Negro man entered the Allapattah Elementary School shortly after it opened this morning and before the halls were badly congested and opened fire with a rifle.

The gunman then turned and walked away. Police later arrested Frederick Williams, 27, about three blocks from the school.

Wounded was Raymond Fernandez of Miami. He was shot in the chest. Police said they could offer no motive for the shooting.

In Miami and elsewhere, traffic tieups were reported as parents drove children to school on the first day of classes rather than submit children to the often confusing busing plans that arose from recent desegregation rulings.

Cambodia Trains Recruits

NHA TRANG, South Vietnam (UPI)—"Moi pi, moi pi," the marching recruits chant, the cadence and their Vietnamese instructors exchange the tolerant smiles professional soldiers the world over have for amateurs trying to learn their craft.

The words are strange to Vietnamese ears, for these recruits are Cambodians, sent to the Lam Son training base, 24 miles northwest of Nha Trang, to learn the military arts the Vietnamese learned from their American advisers. Other Cambodians are in training at Chi Lang, in the shadow of the Seven Sisters Mountains, along the Cambodian border 125 miles southwest of Saigon, and at Duc My, near Lam Son. About 10,000 Cambodian soldiers were sent to South Vietnam for training and approximately 3,000 of them have completed the course of instruction and returned home. Six battalions of Cambodian regulars were sent to South Vietnam for a five-week refresher course. The rest of the Cambodians were recruits, who are given an eight-week training course.

Receive Leadership Course
In addition to the recruit and refresher course at Chi Lang and Cambodian non-commissioned officers are undergoing leadership training at Lam Son, largest of the three Cambodian training programs.

The first battalion of Cambodian regulars brought with them their AK47 and SKS rifles and RP46 light machine guns, provided to Cambodia by Communist China and the Soviet Union before the fall last March 18 of Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

But the rest of the Cambodians, recruits and regulars, have arrived with little more than the clothes on their backs. The South Vietnamese army provides them with weapons and equipment.

Where this equipment comes from is something of a mystery.

At Chi Lang the Cambodian regulars are issued U.S.-manufactured M2 carbines in mint condition. South Vietnamese officers at Chi Lang say the weapons come from IV Corps headquarters at Saigon, 80 miles southwest of Saigon.

Advisers Deny Knowledge
U.S. advisers at Chi Lang and Can Tho deny any knowledge of the source of the weapons, but one U.S. officer said, "The South Vietnamese had a lot of surplus M2 carbines left after their regional and popular forces units were re-equipped with M16 rifles."

The Cambodians—volunteers all—have an eagerness not apparent among either South Vietnamese or American conscripts.

As they march, they sing Cambodian war songs. "They seem happy for soldiers going through basic training," a U.S. adviser said. "But you don't create a first-class army overnight. It has taken us years and billions of dollars to do that in South Vietnam and the results are just beginning to pay off after nearly 10 years."

Producer of Movie Finds Popularity

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)
What's right with movies?

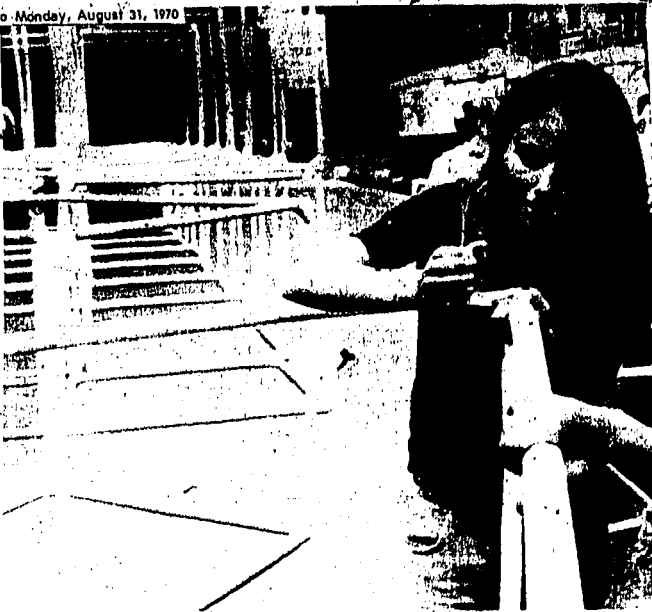

"Airport."

Its producer, Ross Hunter, is especially articulate on the subject.

"Back in February when I launched 'Airport' a few critics determined to relate to the so-called new generation at all costs tossed some undeserved barbs at the film.

"In less than six months domestic grosses have passed $35 million with foreign grosses also reporting high figures.

"There is no longer any doubt that it will establish the greatest boxoffice grosses in the 55-year history of Universal Studios. It may even double the records of the two former champs, 'Thoroughly Modern Millie' and 'Spartacus.'
Joined by Divergent Types
"What I believe is interesting is the fact that while 'Airport,' a movie with a beginning, middle and end that is designed simply to entertain, has been joined at the top of the boxoffice register by two other films of decidedly divergent content—'M.A.S.H.' and 'Woodstock.'

UNIQUE "ART CUBES" are arranged by Benedicte Kermaecq de Paris at Pioneer Court in Chicago, after 100 of the odd designs were moved from the Museum of Contemporary Art to Pioneer Court. The cubes, symbol of the "path to the new reality," were made of some very real and rather ordinary cardboard tubes joined to wooden hinges. (UPI)

Legibility Can Hurt

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—"Run into Sam Flappable the other day. He's a former colleague of mine, who left the service of journalism a few years ago to take a government job. Asked Sam how he was getting along. "It has taken me a while," Sam said, "but I have finally conquered the handicap that was hindering my career as a federal official. From now on I am looking forward to rapid advancement."

Asked Sam what kind of handicap he had overcome. "My signature was legible," Sam replied.

Asked Sam for fuller explanation. "Once you reach a certain level in government, you are expected to sign your official letters, inter-office memos and other papers with an undecipherable scrawl."

Asked Sam why that hindered him. "I couldn't get the hang of it. I would try scribbling my name real fast with my eyes shut, which is standard procedure in the style of penmanship known as the "executive scratch." But people could still recognize it as my signature.

"Consequently, nobody took my inter-office memos seriously. They figured that if my handwriting was legible I couldn't possibly swing any weight. So when I was due for promotion, I got passed over."

Asked Sam what he did about the problem. "I went to see a psychiatrist," Sam said. "The shrink told me I was subconsciously still in love with Miss Pringle, the fifth grade teacher under whom I learned the Palmer Method of calligraphy."

"When I tried to switch to the "executive scratch," I would develop a mental block caused by a guilt complex stemming from a subconscious feeling of disloyalty toward Miss Pringle."

Asked Sam how he overcame that handicap. "I simply quit signing my name," Sam explained. "Anytime my secretary brought me a paper to sign, I would mark it with an 'X.' Almost immediately, my superiors pegged me as a man with a brilliant future in the federal government."

Soft-Voiced Star Sparks New Series

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)
"Tramping out of the bondbooks of regional repertory theater and into your living rooms this fall is Robert Foxworth, star of a new television series who has faced a camera lens only once before.

A Texan with a soft voice, curly hair and a capacity for astonishment, Foxworth came unexpectedly upon success.

A year ago he was eking out an existence with his wife, Marilyn, and two children in New York City. As an actor he worked in repertory in Pittsburgh, Washington, Buffalo, Boston, Memphis and other non-showbusiness centers.

He was plucked from obscurity by CBS for the network's playhouse production of "The Sandlot" last December.

Big Shots Were Impressed
The big shots were impressed sufficiently to rush him to Hollywood the day the show bowed, tested him for "The Storefront Lawyers," and signed him to the series in less than a week.

Still off balance by his stroke of fortune, Foxworth is not without self-confidence.

"I didn't think things would happen so quickly," he said. "But I didn't believe I'd always be playing to half-full houses of disinterested people in theaters around the country."

"Regional theaters to me are

Unorthodox breakfast

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's a wise mother who will let her children have a cheeseburger for breakfast and a bowl of cereal at night if that's what they want, say nutritionists.

The nutritionists, in an article in "Family Health" magazine, said all ages need a well-balanced diet. But each age, sex and way of life call for different nutritional requirements. There's no law of nature that states breakfast must consist of bacon and eggs; lunch, soup and a sandwich; and dinner, meat and potatoes, vegetables and fruit.

like home town baseball teams where local talent can try to make the team.

"In a sense I was a bush-league player."

Talent Is Not Diminished
Foxworth doesn't give the appearance of a minor leaguer. He is a seasoned actor with more than a dozen years of performing experience. The fact that his audiences were small doesn't diminish his talent.

"I'm ready," he said. "It's a matter of whether I can meet the challenge of the camera. That 'Sandlot' drama was the only time in my life I ever acted for the camera."

Foxworth made an indirect reference to all three networks relying on old, familiar faces. When a series expires its stars generally pop up again within a year or two in a new show.

One day it might even happen to Robert Foxworth if "The Storefront Lawyers" enjoys a long run.

Negro Soldier Buried

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (UPI)—Pondexter E. Williams, a black soldier who died in a Vietnam mortar barrage, was to be buried Saturday with a 21-gun salute in a "whites only" cemetery integrated by a federal court.

For Mrs. Mary Campbell, the mother of the 20-year-old Spec. 4 with the 1st Air Cavalry, it was the tearful end to a nine-day battle to see to it that her son got a "proper funeral."

Before the funeral at the Hillcrest Cemetery, Mrs. Campbell was presented a Purple Heart medal by Robert Beattie of Rhode Island, the national commander of the Order of the Purple Heart. Williams' body lay in state at a local funeral home after church services when officials of Hillcrest Cemetery refused to honor a newspaper ad offering a free burial plot to any veteran of Vietnam.

Officials of the cemetery explained to Mrs. Campbell that all deeds to Hillcrest plots contained a clause restricting the ground to "whites only."

Atty. Gen. John Mitchell heard about it and ordered U.S. Atty. Robert Rust to join as a "friend of the court" a suit filed by attorneys for the NAACP to force Hillcrest to accept Williams' body.

Last Thursday, U.S. District Judge William McIntyre heard the suit and promptly ordered Hillcrest — which had offered to buy Williams a plot on the nearby Pine Grove Cemetery for blacks — to accept the body.

"God has answered my prayers," Mrs. Campbell said after the ruling.

AN ARMY MAJOR hands Mrs. Mary Campbell the flag which covered her son's casket during a funeral at Ft. Pierce, Fla., Saturday. Pondexter Williams, who died in Vietnam on Aug. 8, could not be buried until his mother asked a federal court to rule against a cemetery owner who refused to let the Negro soldier be buried in an "all white" cemetery. (UPI)

England's 'Apathy' Scorned

LONDON (UPI)—Mick Jagger, the gyrating lead singer of the Rolling Stones, wishes England were as swinging as it is reputed to be. Like the United States, for instance, "England's totally apathetic," he said in an interview. "That's why everything goes off peacefully. Nothing happens, man. I don't want any bloodbaths here, but America's a very vibrant society. You get all kinds of extremes. That's why people hate America, or love it, or why things come out of it which are good and bad. That's not true here.

Brillish Apathy
"You have such extremes in America that you're going to get clashes between them ... America is more extreme and it's more vociferous and it's more violent and it's more physical and it's more explosive. It's all those things. It's fantastically more varied. Here, you don't get peace. You get apathy. It drives me crazy." Jagger would like to stir England up, but doesn't know how.

"I have a certain love for it because I was born here," he said, "and I want to make it better if I can. But God knows how. I've not met many people who want to stir it up. We could do with some stirring up. It's been too long now asleep." Jagger delivered himself of these thoughts in his office atop three flights of splintered wooden stairs at 46A Maddox Street in central London. It was his first extended discussion with a reporter since he and the Stones returned at the end of 1969 from a U.S. tour that included a riot when the group gave a free concert at Altamont, Calif. Hell's Angels went on a rampage at the concert with lead-tipped pool cues.

The Altamont affair has been described as a "reverse" of the love and peace generated at the massive Woodstock, N. Y., rock festival, but Jagger doesn't buy that.

"That's just a bit of clever intellectualizing," he said. "I don't mind talking about Altamont at all, but what I do dislike is talking about Altamont and saying, 'Yeah, Altamont was this,' and sum up Altamont in three words. 'I can't, you know. I'm too emotionally involved in it and also intellectually involved at this stage ... I don't know what it's got to do with Woodstock. I don't think it's got much to do with it.'"

Dislikes Big Corporations
Jagger claims rock artists and recording companies make too much money today.

"I think the artists make too much money. I think that the record company makes too much money. I don't like the huge corporations that record companies have become, and their obvious political affiliations."

"I think that what hangs a lot of American kids up is the fact that they go in and buy a record, you know, which is part of their way of thinking, expresses an opinion as well as music to them, is part of their life style. The company which sells a million of these records makes X million dollars and donates a large amount to a rightwing organization, or spends two million dollars developing some kind of new missile, electronic missile device. Well, I think quite rightly, the kids want to separate themselves from that kind of business."

What would he suggest?
Primary Consideration
"Right now there's no way," Jagger said. "Unfortunately, And I don't think it's up to the musicians to think of the way. I think they should cooperate with people that do. After all, the first primary consideration is making music and they should stick to it. Otherwise they're going to dissipate themselves too much. I think it's up to other people who've got the organizing ability to be able to create a different outlet so that these people are cut out."

Mick Jagger has been called many things by many people. How, the reporter wanted to know, would Mick Jagger describe Mick Jagger? The question surprised him only momentarily, then he smiled broadly and said:
"I think he's a bit of a drag most of the time. I don't really feel he has much to say, not enough of the right things, you know. He should really get on with it and not talk about it too much."

We let him get on with it.

'Activists' Do Help

GLOVERSVILLE, N.Y. (UPI)—Thanks, in good measure, to a dedicated group of high school activists, Bobby played basketball Tuesday morning.

His friends clapped and cheered when he sank the winning shot. Bobby clapped, too. In the afternoon, Bobby and his friends played volleyball and tetherball.

At age 26, Bobby is what is called a "long term client" at the Lexington Training Center in this Mohawk Valley community. The privately operated center, finance 90 per cent with state funds, provides services to 60 persons, including the physically handicapped, the emotionally disturbed and the mentally retarded.

Housed in Former School. Under Executive Director Paul Nigra and his staff of 11, the center represents the only sheltered workshop and rehabilitation center between the upstate New York cities of Schenectady and Utica. It is housed in a 100-year-old brick building, a former school.

The involvement of high school "activists" began early this year when Nigra was contacted by Bill Kitchen, president of the senior class in neighboring Johnstown. Kitchen discussed the possibility of allowing the seniors to tour the facility as a class project.

Arrangements were made, and 250 pupils visited the center in groups of about 50. Nigra feels both sides benefited from the visits: The pupils became more familiar with what had been to most of them an unknown part of society—and the trainees received some much-needed contact with "outsiders."

After the initial series of visits, Kitchen and some fellow pupils began returning to the center to work with the trainees. Some supervised recreation, some helped tutor, and some helped in the workshop areas.

Continue Involvement
The teen-aged volunteers continued their involvement through the spring and into the summer months. Many attended the biweekly socials to dance with and talk to the trainees.

Johnstown High's class of 1970, nearing graduation, found it still had money in the class treasury—even after the traditional senior banquet. They could have sponsored a week-end beer blast or taken a trip somewhere, but they didn't. Instead, they donated money to the center to purchase paint. Then, they did the actual work—painting hallways, stairs and workshop areas.

Non-Food Sales Grow Although the nation's grocery stores ring up more sales each year, the increase in spending for non-food items is greater than the increase for food. Thus an ever-smaller per cent of the family "grocery" bill is for edibles. Report-bearing non-food gainers are clothing, photography equipment and garden supplies.

The young couple resides at 2401 S. Owyhee, Space No. 53, Boise, where the bridegroom is employed as a cook at the Thunderbird Inn and will attend his second year at Boise State College.

DEAR ABBY: A mother boasted that when she told her little four-year-old son that she didn't want him to play with the neighbor boy because "Billy wasn't nice," (he used bad language and his mother had a shady reputation) her son said, "But, mother, how will Billy ever learn to be 'nice' if no nice boys play with him?"

Sweet letter, but it's a sad fact that when good and bad associate, it isn't the rotten guy who gets good, it's the good guy who gets rotten. In scientific language, each entity seeks the lowest energy level. It is related to the concept of "entropy," which is fact, not theory.

So, if parents want their nice boys to grow up to be decent adults, they shouldn't let them associate with hoodlums. And of course, the same holds true for girls. Very truly yours, S. A. S.

DEAR S. A. S.: I don't know much about "entropy," but I do know something about people.

It is virtually impossible to keep one's child from "associating" with neighbors and schoolmates—rotten and otherwise. All parents can do in an effort to rear wholesome, moral children, is to teach them honesty, fairness and decency and to give them moral examples to follow.

Not all people who are exposed to the rottenness of others become rotten. Some have been known to exert their good influences on those less perfect, and make them better.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a woman who on her deathbed made her husband promise that after she died he would never marry? The husband is 50.

I honestly don't think this kind of promise holds water. What do you think? HIS LADYFRIEND

DEAR LADYFRIEND: Perhaps not. But it seems to be "holding" HIM.

DEAR ABBY: May I say a few words to all those slobos who agreed with the woman who said that a man should be able to come to the dinner table, bare-chested in his own home if he so chooses:

I suppose in his own home a husband has the right to go around without bathing, shaving or using a deodorant? He may also eat with his mouth open, belch, curse, use foul language and dispense with all courtesies—and of course, come to the table naked from the waist up if he wants to. But in the interest of self-respect and respect for his family (not to mention the example he sets for his children who know only what they see and hear) wouldn't you think he would forego those "rights"?

Ladies, if the repulsive type appeals to you, you may also sit across the table from him in a soiled bathrobe with curlers in your hair. You deserve each other! MRS. R. C.

DEAR MRS. R. C.: Everyone should enjoy a degree of informality in the privacy of his own home, but you make a valid point.

DEAR ABBY: I sit opposite a boy at work who I am gradually falling in love with. He is, I am sure, unaware of my obsession as he thinks he's totally unattractive to girls. I find him most attractive, tho he is only 5 feet 3 and is slightly built. He only weighs eight and a half stone. I am well-proportioned myself, all ten and a half stone of me. We are also of different religions, which means so much here in Ulster, Ireland.

How can I get him to ask me out? Or do I do the asking? JENNY IN ULSTER

DEAR JENNY: Ask him. If opposites attract, you'll have yourself a beau.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69704, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Extra Ham Per Hog

Home-makers today purchase pork from leaner hogs. The amount of ham and loin in hogs has increased by 23.5 percent, the equivalent of an extra ham for every hog. There's a more uniform year-around supply because with better feed utilization, it takes less time to get hogs to market.

THE BARE MIDRIFF has been Britain's biggest fad this summer. It started at the beach and was even tried at fashionable Royal Ascot, where stewards barred it at the Queen's horse race meeting. Pamela Flay displays the popular method of leaving a shirt unbuttoned below the bosom and tying it together—bringing the eyes of London's girl watchers from the mini-clad legs to the bare midriff. Miss Drake, Gartner Say Vows

FILER — A candlelight ceremony in a rose and pink setting united in marriage Margaret Ruth Drake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Drake, and Richard Frederick Gartner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gartner.

The double ring rites were held Aug. 7 in the United Methodist Church, with the Rev. Allen Reesor, Idaho Falls, former pastor of the church, officiating before a background of an arch of lighted candles and arrangements of gladioli in shades of pink.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of chiffon and peau de sole. Hand-crocheted lace enhanced the wide cuffs of the full sleeves and the square neckline and a front lace panel of the gown flowed into the chapel train which also was enhanced with lace.

Flower petals of pearlized peau de sole held the bride's shoulder-length veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of white roses and pompons, baby's breath and white satin streamers. She carried a handkerchief belonging to her great-grandmother and wore a diamond necklace, a gift from the bridegroom.

Vicki Jo Cobb was maid of honor and Bette Beard and Janette Carter were bridesmaids. Marla Drake, sister of the bride, scattered petals from a pink basket. Matt Tanning, Boise, nephew of the bridegroom, carried the rings on a satin pillow. Tammy Gartner, sister of the bridegroom, and Randy Drake, brother of the bride, wore taper lighters.

Terry Gartner, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Clyde Wright and Marvin Gartner, brother of the bridegroom.

Mrs. E. A. Beem, organist, played the traditional wedding music.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall, with Linda Driesel and Jackie Howe as reception assistants.

The bride's table was covered with lace over satin flounces and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with hearts and pink flowers. It was topped with two gold rings and white wedding bells before a heart-shaped background. Heart-shaped cakes bearing the names of the bridal couple flanked the large cake.

Mrs. LeRoy Carter and Mrs. Jay Cobb served the cake and presided at the coffee and punch service. Mrs. Reuben Lierman baked and decorated the cakes. Vicki Cobb was in charge of all the bouquets and flower arrangements and Kathy Lehna was hair stylist for the bride and her attendants.

Kathy Lehna was in charge of the guest book and Miss Driesel and Miss Howe arranged the gifts.

The couple took a wedding trip to Yellowstone National Park and the Grand Tetons. They reside near Filer where the bridegroom is assisting his father with farming.

Guests attended the wedding and reception from Boise, Twin Falls, Homedale, Buhl and Filer.

The bride was guest of honor at two miscellaneous showers hosted by Miss Cobb and Miss Beard, and by Cheryl Hatfield and Deann Eggleston. The parents of the bridegroom hosted a wedding rehearsal supper.

Imaginative Possibilities Used by Brave Decorator

It's not what you use that makes you a brave decorator, it's what you do with what you use. You know you're a brave decorator when you're able to disregard the expected, the usual use of an object and look at it as if you've never seen it before according to Glamour Magazine.

Suddenly you see all sorts of imaginative possibilities from some very ordinary things — kitchen foil, a bicycle, self-adhesive paper, aluminum foil for the wall of a dining room, the bicycle hung over the mantle. That's brave decorating!

Some brave ideas from the September issue of Glamour:

It's brave to paint a larger-than-life mural in a small space.

It's brave to have a sense of humor about design — a hand painted on a light switch, a foot painted going around a door.

It's brave to use unexpected color combinations — orange and burgundy with a little deep blue thrown in.

It's brave to use real furniture — an armchair and a loveseat — in your kitchen.

It's brave to mix modern plastics with antiques.

It's brave to display your kitchen equipment as if it were art — it is.

It's brave to use handsome self-adhesive paper for short-term flooring with a protective clear acrylic coating painted over it.

It's brave to make your windows look latticed with self-stick tape.

It's brave to pick the most unexpected paint color you can find for a wall.

Glamour says: Whatever you do, don't be timid or go half-way — even the sky isn't the limit with this kind of decorating.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Easy Ways to Remove Labels on Plastic Items

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I know just how Mrs. W. H. K. feels about trying to remove labels from plastic items. I became so disgusted with the problem that I wrote to a plastic company. All they could offer was to use lighter fluid. I found it is very effective in most cases.—NANCY

DEAR POLLY and Mrs. W. H. K.—I find rubbing alcohol is very effective for removing labels from plastic articles, such as glasses, plates and other washable articles.—LUCKY

DEAR GIRLS—If Mrs. W. H. K. is referring to stamped or inked-on labelling on plastic, both these are fine, but for glued-on paper labels it is much easier to soak first in hot water, peel off paper, then wipe off the remaining residue with either of the two mentioned liquids.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I was given some very old newspapers that have been folded. I hope someone will please tell me how to preserve such old papers.—MRS. W. K.

DEAR POLLY—A friend of mine made the cutest little sachet for her grandchild's clothing chest. She lined an odd bootie, filled it with a delicate aniset, laced a ribbon through the top and tied. There was enough ribbon left so it could be hung up if preferred. Another friend made some of the same but stuffed hers with cotton so she did not have to line them. These would make nice little baby shower gifts.

To be sure your bathroom scales are correct, weigh a now five-pound bag of sugar.—MRS. J. D. MCM.

DEAR POLLY—When sewing on the machine with any material that elides, such as jersey, nylon or chiffon, put a pillowcase over the leaf of your machine. You'll find the fabric will not slip and will be much easier to handle while sewing.—KATHY

DEAR GIRLS—I am sorry but it is not possible to answer questions by personal letters. I would so like to be able to answer each and every one of you but that is a physical impossibility. Those who are afraid of missing an answer to a problem while on vacation might ask a friend or neighbor to save the column.—POLLY

Confrontation Pits Teenagers, Adults

(EDITORS: The Detroit suburbs of Royal Oak and Birmingham are affluent, the home of concerned citizens. Last week those citizens watched as their children and others fought police for three straight nights. Before the battle ended, 564 persons had been arrested. UPI reporter Carol Marvel visited Royal Oak and Birmingham to find the reasons for the trouble and what is being done about it.)

By CAROL MARVEL
ROYAL OAK, Mich. (UPI)—The issues in Royal Oak and Birmingham are not very radical—a little pot, a bit of sex and maybe even some good, old-fashioned beer.

But for those things, and for "their" park, large bands of young people fought police for three nights last week. They used rocks, bottles and Molotov cocktails, and before it was over 564 of them had been arrested.

Now the townspeople and their children are facing the job of putting the situation back in order.

It will not be easy. They disagree on what the new order should be.

The roots of the trouble go deep. It was three years ago that "hippie" elements began gathering in Royal Oak's Memorial Park.

They had been chased from their earlier hangouts along the Royal Oak "strip" when drive-in restaurants hired guards to curb roudyism and car racing.

Word Spreads
And when a youth group was given permission to show underground motion pictures in the park, word spread that young people were welcome.

One of 15 undercover, hippie-garbed policemen who infiltrated the group this summer described Memorial Park as "a whole lot different than most people think."

"There's no talk of Vietnam or politics or even confrontations with the 'pigs,'" he said. "Mostly, the kids get in little groups, pass a pipeful of grass and compare notes on who has the best narcotics contacts and recent drug trips they have taken."

The police closing of the park last Monday sparked three nights of disturbances along nearby Woodward Avenue. Protesting young people went on a rock and bottle-throwing rampage that night and again Tuesday night when Royal Oak imposed a curfew.

On Wednesday night, the youngsters gathered in Birmingham, just north of the Royal Oak city limits, hurling stones and three Molotov Cocktails. Birmingham then imposed its own curfew. As a result, 564 persons, ranging in age from 12 to 42, were arrested.

The residents of these affluent southern Oakland County suburbs are concerned citizens, active in community affairs. Many helped organize New Detroit Inc. to help rebuild and revitalize the Inner City after Detroit's 1967 riot.

But when violence struck, it was their kids throwing the rocks—not Inner City black youths.

Drug Problem
One of the problems with the park gatherings was drug use, especially the use of "hard" drugs. The "kids" know that, and they also know it was part of the reason police closed their playground.

But they have some ideas about what must be done.

"We want the right to police ourselves from within," said a press release from the "People's Defense Committee," a loosely organized group of young people who frequented Memorial Park.

"Our whole purpose is to get it together, to decide what we want to do," Dave Wright, 17, one of the organizers, said.

Wright was one of several young people who met Friday with Birmingham Mayor Ruth McNamee and Royal Oak Mayor James P. Cline.

"They have ideas on how to cope with the drug problem. They want to be involved in solving the problems," Mrs. McNamee said.

They all want to get new programs going to combat the drug problem, however, without knowing what programs already exist. City officials are now trying to get them to work within the existing framework, she said.

A second demand of the committee is that Royal Oak and Birmingham provide funding and facilities for a drug treatment center to deal with the problem of the hard drugs which pose such a great danger to the community.

The center must be totally controlled by the youth community, the group insists.

"They (the establishment) have never taken mescaline, marijuana or LSD. How can they associate a bad trip with reality? That's why we need brothers and sisters helping us," one of them said.

Face Up To Problem
Another youth said the older generation professes concern about the drug problem. "Well, let them face up to it," he said. Although the youths say they want Memorial Park reopened immediately they're unsure how to convince authorities this summer's events won't repeat themselves.

"We can't demand the park back unless we can guarantee no hard drugs," a spokesman for the People's Defense Committee told a gathering of about 125 teens. "We want hard drugs out."

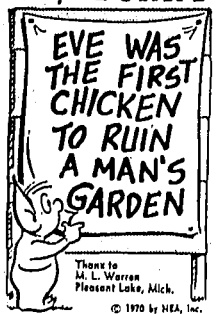

If the young people are unsure of the park's future, the neighbors are pessimistic.

"It's not a public park anymore," said Richard Oswald, 32, whose home faces Memorial Park. Authorities let the teens "have their way so long they think it's theirs."

"My children haven't set foot in the park for two years. I took a walk there twice this summer. But I wasn't welcome through there. They eyeballed me all the way through the park."

"And I don't think anything's going to change," he said.

Envoy Taken Hostage

THE HAGUE (UPI) — A group of submachinegun-wielding Indonesians shot their way into the residence of the Indonesian ambassador to Holland today, killing a police guard and taking the ambassador's wife and two children hostage.

Police said the Indonesians, many of them youths, had taken up positions in the residence and in the wooded area surrounding it and were shooting at anything that moved.

The ambassador, Taswin Natandjirat, managed to escape.

Police said the group, estimated to be 15 strong, were from the Indonesian island of Ambon, just off the northern coast of New Guinea. The Ambonese were Dutch loyalists who fought in the Dutch colonial army before Indonesian independence in 1949 and want a separate state in federated Indonesia.

The group apparently took over the ambassador's residence to demand their independence back and to protest Indonesian President Subarto's state visit to Holland beginning Tuesday.

PARTICIPANTS of last year's initial Conservation Convocation for Idaho Women are shown here admiring the wilderness area surrounding Redfish Lake, the site of this year's meeting, set for next month.

Conservation Convocation Set Next Month at Redfish

STANLEY — About 80 conservationists are expected to participate in the three-day second annual Conservation Convocation for Idaho Women Sept. 14 through 16 at Redfish Lake.

Sponsored by the Idaho Federation of Garden Clubs and the Idaho Federation of Women's Clubs, in cooperation with the USDA Forest Service Intermountain and Northern Regions, the workshop will be carried out with the theme of "Architects of Our Environment".

Planners indicate the workshop will be concerned with Idaho's residents as well as environment and the impact of people and industry upon resources will be discussed by representatives of state and federal agencies as well as industry.

Last year's speakers include Tony Horn, extension horticulturist Agricultural Extension Service, moderator, and Mrs. Orville Breneman, conservation chairman, DAR Salmon; Mrs. Helen Lucke, past president, BPW, Gooding; Mrs. Donald J. Obee, environmental quality chairman, LWV, Boise, and Mrs. James Buckham, president of AAUW, Idaho Falls, all panel members who Monday will discuss "Women — Architects of Our Environment."

Also on the agenda for the opening day are Louise Shaduck, executive secretary; Congressman Orval Hansen, whose topic will be "National Legislation and Environment"; Clement Eaton, manager, Clearwater Power Co., Lewiston; "Industry — Architect of Idaho's Environment"; and LeRoy Brady, chief landscape engineer, Idaho Highway Department, Boise, "The Environment of Highways."

Tuesday, the group will take a field trip to Yankee Fork. Conducting the trip will be Challis National Forest personnel and the Idaho Fish and Game Department personnel.

Wednesday, Ralph Cisco, ranger, Sawtooth Valley Ranger District, will discuss "Wilderness Management" and members of the Utah Women's Conservation Council will present a program on activities of their group.

Mrs. Donna Parsons, director, Snake River Regional Studies Center, College of Idaho, Caldwell, also will speak on "Educators — Architects of Our Environment."

Lightning Causes $10,000 Damage to Power Substation

About $10,000 damage to the Richfield Idaho Power substation was caused when lightning struck it during last night's storm, Earl Haroldsen, Twin Falls, southern division manager, said today.

At 8:40 p.m. Sunday Richfield town darkened when the substation stopped generating power. Then at 3:05 a.m., Idaho Power workers gave up hope of repairing the transformer and brought in a mobile transformer for the area.

The Richfield transformer will have to be taken to Boise for rebuilding, "if that is possible," Haroldsen said.

Over 1,656 customers were affected for varied periods of time during the storm.

About 300 customers lost use of power when the Richfield transformer was struck by lightning, and another 857 customers in Jerome lost power for an hour when someone threw a chain over a power line. "This has been the worst year for lightning in a long while," Haroldsen said. "During July lightning storms, a transformer burned, causing $4,000 damage."

Many individual rural transformers are still not working and have not been reported, he said, and the storm problems have not stopped.

A storm in the Shoshone — Jerome area is still causing power failure and the Jarbige — Mountain City Power line periodically loses power. A plane has been dispatched to check the line, he said.

A small range fire was caused by last night's storm in the Halley area.

Sawtooth National Forest rangers, under the direction of Dick Anderson, answered an 8 p.m. call that a lightning-caused fire was burning rangeland about one-half mile north of Claremont Hot Springs, north of Halley, in a canyon.

When the rangers arrived, there was static burning as the ground was wet from the rainstorm. Three of the five men stayed at the scene to dig trench around the area. This morning the fire was reportedly completely out.

At Jerome some basements were reported flooded by the hard rain that fell Sunday evening, as well as power outages.

The power outages also caused the Jerome city police problems. It caused burglar alarms to short-circuit, tripping many of them. The St. Benedict's Hospital also had power trouble, but continued to operate.

400 Stock Investors Meeting in Sun Valley

SUN VALLEY — "The hard facts are that the market decline we have been through is the second worst in the 20th century."

Thomas Reeves, senior vice president, sales administration, Investors Diversified Services, Minneapolis, Minn., was addressing a gathering of about 400 IVS delegates and their wives from 14 western states Monday during opening business sessions of the group's Rocky Mountain Regional Sales Conference here.

"Following the low point reached on May 26, the market rallied sharply in the next four days," he noted. "It has climbed slowly ever since and the daily trading volume is low by standards of recent years."

"We are now in the midst of one of those historic opportunities that come along once or twice in an entire investment generation. Stocks have declined to levels not seen since the bargain days of the early 1950s. Nearly everyone is convinced that the worst of all possible worlds is just around the corner and sees no point of buying stocks, even at substantial reduced prices.

"When investors of this type see the stock market declining, they view it as infallible evidence of serious trouble ahead, rather than as another buying opportunity."

Also addressing Monday's opening session, were Hal Waldram, Boise; Bob Kurzeka, vice president of sales administration, and Bill Doyle, vice president of public relations, both Minneapolis.

"Most remarks were to welcome the delegates and to explain the most recent advance of the business.

The convolve officially opened Sunday night with a Millionaire's Banquet during which Jay Hines, vice president, sales development, was keynote speaker.

He noted the Sunday banquet was in honor of the million dollar producer, who commits himself to be one, has a team-minded wife, his courage of conviction sensitivity to emotions and has a strong ego.

Tuesday's agenda calls for remarks from John Kelley, Rocky Mountain Regional vice president; Stuart Sillaway, IVS president; William Boscow, senior vice president of marketing; and Doyle and Hines.

17 Primaries Next Month

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seventeen states nominate candidates for Congress and state offices in September from a field including a former vice president, four former governors, five Negroes, two Jesuit priests and a rejected Supreme Court nominee.

Thirteen of the states will be holding one-shot primaries. Two more, Florida and Georgia, are voting in first-round primaries which may be followed by runoff before the end of September. And two others, Arkansas and Oklahoma, are holding runoffs to nominate candidates in races where none polled a majority of the vote in first-round primaries Aug. 25.

When the September voting is finished, only the Hawaii primary Oct. 3 remains to complete the choice of nominees for the Nov. 3 general elections.

The former vice president seeking a political comeback is Hubert E. Humphrey, 1968 Democratic presidential nominee and a potential repeater in 1972. He is running in Minnesota for the Senate seat held by Democrat Eugene J. McCarthy, who is retiring after the shakeup he gave the party in his quest for the 1968 presidential nomination.

Humphrey partisans fear their man may be embarrassed if a substantial share of the Sept. 18 vote goes to Earl Craig Jr., a Negro peace candidate opposing him. Rep. Clark McGreggor has only one minor opponent for the state's Republican senatorial nomination.

Minnesota has another Negro candidate, Elmer Childress, endorsed by the state party.

Irrigation Equipment Show Set

BURLEY — It sprays, it sprays, it flows in ditches, it bubbles and it gives refreshing drinks to thirsty crops. Water gives life to agriculture, the most important business in Idaho.

New and old devices for surface and sprinkler systems will be displayed and explained at an Idaho Irrigation Equipment show Wednesday and Thursday at the Cassia County Fairgrounds, Burley.

The first event of its kind in the state is sponsored by the Extension Service of the University of Idaho in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Service, the Agricultural Research Service of USDA, the Sprinkler Irrigation Association, Burley Chamber of Commerce, and Irrigation equipment industry. Doerell Larsen, Boise, irrigation specialist of the extension service and chairman of the show, said many types of equipment will be on display. Farmers from several counties are expected.

"They will have an opportunity to see new devices that improve the efficiency of irrigation on large and small acreages and in the production of several kinds of crops.

Larsen said it is important that farmers keep up with changes in the business in view of the fact that Idaho has more than 3,750,000 irrigated acres and new irrigated land is being brought into production at the rate of about 65,000 acres per year.

Wayne Cole, Cassia County agricultural agent, is assisting equipment dealers and land-agency technicians in preparing the two-day exhibit. Cole will include everything from shovels to electrical control systems and automatic apparatus.

Dealers will be displaying and explaining at an Idaho Irrigation Equipment Show at Cassia County Fairgrounds Wednesday and Thursday.

Magic Valley Batters Great Falls 19-3

Giant Pitching Helps Cowboys to 12 Runs in Sixth During Debacle

The Great Falls pitcher, showing signs of stress throughout the series, finally collapsed totally Sunday night and handed the Magic Valley Cowboys a rousing 19-3 home finale victory.

The Cowboys now head for a make-or-break four-game stand at Ogden, still two games behind in the last column of the Pioneer League standings and still with two teams to overcome. While the Dodgers and Cowboys are battling, Idaho Falls heads for Great Falls for a five-game stand. The Cowboys sent 16 men to the plate in a 12-run sixth inning but mostly they just feared for their lives as relievers Doug Capilla and Steve Tener uncorked seven wild pitches between them — Capilla pitching two completely behind the bewildered Ernie Pedersen. When the smoke cleared, the Cowboys had their 12 runs on eight walks, a hit batsman, seven wild pitches, one balk,

Ed Bell Scores, Jets Lose

ST. LAUL, Minn. (UPI)—Gary Cuozzo threw three first half touchdown passes on a 74-yard bomb to Gene Washington to lead the Minnesota Vikings to a 52-21 pre season victory over the New York Jets Sunday night.

Cuozzo, who hit nine of 16 passes for 203 yards while playing only the first half and set up two other scores, drilled a 42-yarder to Bob Grim on the Vikings' second series of downs to open the scoring.

Three and one-half minutes later, Cuozzo dropped back from his own 28 and hit Washington past middle, the fleet and outrunning defender Cecil Leonard into the end zone.

Harry Theofiles moved the Jets to two touchdowns in the third quarter on Matt Snell's three-yard run and George Nock's 20-yard run after Joe Namath—seeing his first action of the season during the second quarter—completed only two of six passes and failed to move the team.

U.S. Clinches Davis Cup Win

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—The Southern California doubles team of Stan Smith and Bob Lutz nailed down the Davis cup for the United States for the third year in a row Sunday by breezing past Wilhelm Bengert and Christian Juhnke of West Germany, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4.

Their doubles victory gave the U.S. an insurmountable 3-0 lead in the international tennis matches with two singles matches to be played Monday.

The Smith and Lutz doubles victory followed singles victories on Saturday by Arthur Ashe and Cliff Richey. Ashe, of Gum Springs, Va., beat Bengert, 6-2, 10-8, 6-2, and Richey, of San Angelo, Tex., downed Kuhnke, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

Smith and Lutz, both 23, won similar clinching doubles victories in the American Challenge Round over Romania last year and Australia the year before. The pair were teammates at the University of Southern California during their collegiate days.

Kulinke, a quiet 31-year-old lawyer from Cologne, who was the hero of West Germany's victory over Spain—in the interzone finals, again disappointed his countrymen watching the matches on television via satellite. The left-hander was broken at service by the Americans in the first and third sets and though he showed flashes of brilliance his volleying was erratic and he lacked Kuhnke's service also lacked the power and accuracy that his teammates had expected.

Harold T. Clark Stadium was packed with more than 7,500 spectators for the match. For the Germans it was a scene of disappointment and letdown. SEE TODAY'S WANT ADS for the best buys in town.

$5 Putter Lets Nichols Take $60,000 Tourney

CLIFTON, N.J. (UPI)—Bobby Nichols, using a beat up, old $5 putter, sank a 10-foot birdie putt on the final hole Sunday to win the $60,000 top prize in the Dow Jones Open, the world's richest golf tournament.

Nichols' four on the 600-yard 72nd hole gave him a three-under-par 69 for the day and a final score of 276, to edge the frustrated Labron Harris by one stroke.

Harris, playing directly in front of Nichols, made a seven-foot birdie putt at the final green only moments earlier to temporarily deadlock the $300,000 tournament, which also had been tied at the end of the second and third rounds.

But then Nichols, wireless on the tour since the 1968 Minnesota Classic, hit a long drive and spectacular second shot just short of the elevated green at the final hole.

His chip shot bounded to the green and then his putt hung briefly on the lip of the cup before falling in, the difference between the $60,000 jackpot and Harris' $34,200 for second place.

Harris, the 1962 U.S. amateur champion, wireless in his professional career, had a 34-58-70 in his final round. He took a two stroke lead briefly when he made short birdie putts at the fifth and sixth holes, but he did not make another birdie until 18.

"This is the kind of a course I like, it's tight and it makes me think on my drives," said Nichols, head pro at Firestone Country Club at Akron, Ohio.

The $60,000 jackpot was more than Nichols has won in any year except two, but he said he was not thinking about the money.

"Maybe that's one of my problems, maybe I don't get emotionally charged up enough, but it helps keep me loose," said Nichols, who now has won $102,175 this year.

Nichols and Harris had been tied for the lead going into the final round and Nichols did not go in front until the 18th hole, when he hit a wedge within 18 inches of the cup and made the putt. Then Harris tied it with his birdie at 18.

Nichols, 34, picked up his bargain basement putter in 1964 and then went on to win the PGA championship with it and placed fifth on the year's winning money list—his best performance.

He had rounds of 68-70 and 50 before Sunday.

Harris, whose best previous finish this year was fifth in the Canadian Open, picked up the biggest paycheck of his career.

Jim Nicklaus shot a final round 71 to finish second.

BOBBY NICHOLS flings up his arms and the beat-up $5 putter he used to sink a 10-foot birdie putt on the 72nd hole to win the $60,000 top prize in the $300,000 Dow Jones Open—Golf's richest prize. The Akron, Ohio pro's final score of 276 gave him a one-stroke edge over Labron Harris. (UPI)

I.F. Rallies To 13-10 Decision

IDAHO FALLS (UPI)—The Idaho Falls Angels closed out their home schedule playing a wild and wooly game with the Billings Mustangs, downing them, 13-10, Sunday.

It took two hours to play the first four innings, with Idaho Falls leading 9-8 at the end of four. The game then settled down.

But in the top of the eighth inning, Gray Schlagenhauf, Billings' left fielder, hit a towering home run over the left field fence to tie the game at nine all.

John Joseph then singled, advanced to second on an infield out, and scored on Jeff Stout's single to give Billings a 10-9 lead.

At this point, it looked like the Angels pennant aspirations were down the drain as relief hurler Greg Mintion had retired 13 Angels in a row. But with two men out in the bottom of the eighth inning, the roof caved in on him.

New Hampshire has a total area of 9,304 square miles.

Cubs 3, Padres 0

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Joe Pepitone hit a three-run homer with one out in the ninth inning to give the Chicago Cubs and right-hander Bill Hands a 3-0 victory over the San Diego Padres Sunday and a sweep of their three-game series.

Pepitone's game-winning blow came off lefthander Dave Roberts, who had turned in the first complete game of his major league career. Roberts was tagged with his ninth straight loss.

John Joseph then singled, advanced to second on an infield out, and scored on Jeff Stout's single to give Billings a 10-9 lead.

Phil's 4, Braves 2

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Tony Taylor singled in the middle of a two-run first inning and tripled to set up his team's third run Sunday and lead the Philadelphia Phillies to their fourth straight victory, a 4-2 decision over the Atlanta Braves.

Rookie Barry Lersch needed relief help from Dick Selma to pick up his fourth victory in five decisions. Bob Tillman and Mike Lum hit solo homers to enable Atlanta to tie the score at 2-2 in the third but Lersch had a five-hitter going until Orlando Cepeda doubled with two out in the eighth.

Intrepid Clinches Cup Bid

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI)—Intrepid bent Vallant for the sixth consecutive time Sunday and amid the glare of ship horns was named to defend the 121-year-old America's Cup for the 21st time against Australia's Gretel II.

The little white launch carrying the New York Yacht Club's selection committee met both contenders for the challenger's role at the dock after Intrepid's come-from-behind, one minute, 51 second victory in the final trial.

The committee also pulled along side Vallant to the skipper, Bob McCullough, for his effort and told him that Intrepid would be the defender. McCullough and his crew then walked over to the Intrepid's dock and congratulated skipper Bill Ficker while the committee told him that Intrepid had been chosen to defend against Gretel next month.

After Sunday's race in brisk 15 knot winds, Intrepid left little doubt about which boat was superior.

Expos 5, Braves 1

MONTREAL (UPI)—John Boccabella singled in two runs and Rusty Staub hit his 29th homer of the season Sunday to lead the Montreal Expos to a 5-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Laver Claims Marlboro Win

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J. (UPI)—Top-seeded Rod Laver of Australia was superb in defeating Bob Carmichael in straight sets Sunday in the final of the $25,000 Marlboro Open tennis championship at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club.

Laver, reaching the peak of his game prior to his defense of the U. S. Open championship this week at Forest Hills, walloped Carmichael, an Aussie now playing out of France, in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

Kerry Melville made it a perfect day for Australia by turning back Patti Hogan of La Jolla, Calif., 7-6, 6-4 in the women's final.

Gethin Is Ruled Winner In Can-Am

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (UPI)—Denis Hulme of New Zealand came from behind three times to finish first Sunday in the Road America Can-Am, but he lost an argument with the stewards opening the way for his team Mc Laren teammate, Peter Gethin of Britain, to win.

Hulme was penalized 13 laps for getting a push start after he spun out on the 37th lap and finished far down in the field. He had been seeking a fourth successive victory and had made up a deficit of 66 seconds in only nine laps to finish ahead of Gethin.

But, after an hour and a half delay in stewards' meeting, it was decided Hulme had used an illegal push from corner workers to get started and he was ruled out of the race as of the 37th lap of the 60 lap, 200 mile race.

Vikings' Eller Ends Holdout By Signing Pact

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)—Defensive end Carl Eller signed a contract with the Minnesota Vikings Sunday, ending his holdout following a superb 1969 season in which he won all pro honors.

The signing was announced during the Vikings-Jets preseason game.

Eller will report to the Vikings' training camp at Mankato, Minn., "immediately," according to general manager Jim Flaks. There was still no further word on Joe Kapp, the club's only remaining holdout.

Astros 9, Mets 5

HOUSTON (UPI)—Jim Wynn hit a pair of two-run homers and Denis Menke drove in three runs with two homers Sunday to lead the Houston Astros to a 9-5 victory over the New York Mets, who have lost seven of their last nine games.

Olson Shows Well In Vandals' Drill

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI)—"Kiss" was the word for the day Saturday as the University of Idaho Vandals put on their annual scrimmage for the press.

However, strange as it may sound, the Idaho youngsters weren't snuggling up to each other.

"Kiss," according to head coach Don Robbins, means, "keep it simple, stupid" and that was just what the Vandals did.

They concentrated on basics with none of the fancy stuff displayed for their visiting firmen.

Robbins said "If we go with six plays that we can work we're better off than if we have 80 that we don't know what we're doing on."

There were several bright spots during the scrimmage, one of these was Steve Olson. Olson, who hadn't played any contact since a back injury put him out of action in the fourth game of the season last year, guided the first offense to a 28-7 victory over the second team during the controlled scrimmage.

Besides handling the ball nearly flawlessly, the senior who set nearly all Idaho passing and total yardage records during a year and a half of action carried the ball twice for gains on deliberate plays and hit several good passes including a 67 yard effort to split end Jack Goodard.

That touchdown by Goodard, slated to replace Jerry Henderson among the Vandal ranks, was the only first team points not scored by fullback Mike Wiscombe.

Wiscombe, a senior running hard from his fullback position, scored on runs of 28, two and six yards and kicked all the points after touchdowns for both offensive squads.

The only second string tally came when safety Pat Sprute picked off an errant Olson toss and galloped 35 yards to score.

The Vandals displayed surprising activity considering it was only the second day they had played in pads since practice began Monday.

Robbins said although, "I love to throw the football," we're going to try to have a balanced attack.

This was displayed by Wiscombe and junior college transfer Fred Riley. Riley, although he failed to score, ripped off crucial yardage several times during Saturday afternoon's action and also threw numerous key blocks.

The now head coach said the main problem with the Vandals this year was depth.

"We've got 25-26 good ballplayers," Robbins said. "We've got to stay healthy to win. But, if we do we're going to surprise some people."

Robbins said his coaching staff had not even mentioned the Air Force Academy—Idaho's first opponent Sept. 12 at Colorado Springs, Colo.—to his charges.

St. Louis' Stagent Out For Season

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—The St. Louis football Cardinals said Sunday that Larry Stagent, the Cardinals' number one draft choice, will be out for the rest of the season.

The running back from Texas A & M, who was making his first professional appearance, was operated on Saturday night to repair ligament and cartilage damage to the left knee. A spokesman for the club said it was not the knee Stagent had injured previously.

Stagent was injured when he moved in to assist in a tackle following a pass interception in the third quarter.

Tom Hanks, a reserve center, suffered a fractured leg above the ankle in a first-quarter sneak play and will be out indefinitely.

Packers Demolish Oakland

OAKLAND (UPI)—Quarterback Bart Starr played only one quarter in leading the Green Bay Packers to a 37-7 victory over the Oakland Raiders in an exhibition football game Sunday.

The Packers, taking advantage of Oakland mistakes, jumped off to a 24-0 lead in the first 12 minutes and coasted to the victory.

Starr passed to end John Hilton for 13 yards and the first Green Bay touchdown. An interception, one of seven by the Packers, set up the second touchdown. Donny Anderson scored from the three yard line. Dave Robinson picked off a Daryle Lamonica pass and returned it 23 yards for a touchdown for the final first period tally.

The Raiders scored their only touchdown when Lamonica crossed the goal line on a quarterback sneak in the second quarter. The Raiders had three other scoring chances in the second half but two were halted by interceptions and the other by a fumble. In all, the Raiders gave up the ball nine times on turnovers.

Reserve quarterback Don Horn passed to rookie end Rich McGeorge for six yards and linebacker Fred Carr scooped up a fumble by Oakland's Ken Stabler and ran 55 yards for another Packer touchdown in the fourth period.

Honolulu. Joel is a pretty good bridge player and, as you would assume, his bidding verges on the spectacular.

Jim: "His five-club bid was a good bid. Not really spectacular. Did he make his contract?"

Oswald: "Yes. Hearts were opened and continued. Joel ruffed and led the queen of trumps. West won and led the suit back. Joel cashed dummy's ace and king of diamonds and then ran off all his trumps."

Jim: "A rather unusual Vienna coup. The diamond leads had set up East's queen as the top diamond. The last trump lead squeezed him out of his spade protection."

Oswald: "The real key play was Joel's lead of the trump queen rather than the low one. If West had ducked the first club and then played ace and his last club the Vienna coup could not have been developed."

IT HAS BEEN determined that The Pill tends to lower a woman's voice... SIGN ON A Seattle motel reads, "Cache your chicks here." They get more blatant every year, don't they? ... HAS OUR LOVE AND WAR man yet reported the average marriage proposal takes one minute, 34 seconds?

SKINHEADS - Fifteen years ago in Great Britain there were the Teddy Boys. Five years ago there were the Rockers. Today, I'm told, the latest band of juvenile vandals is known as the Skinheads. They dip their hair to an eighth of an inch, and wear work pants with red suspenders and hobnail boots. They beat up people. Particularly people who are different. Like tea-tinted immigrants and long-haired boys who walk funny and demonstrators with placards for peace. They're downright savage. That fine fellow who said there's no such thing as a bad boy was misinformed.

"IN WHAT STATES do the grown men outnumber the women?" inquires a feminine client. At last report there were only nine such states—Alaska, Hawaii, Nevada, Wyoming, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, South Dakota and New Mexico. ... WHAT'S YOUR philosophy? The philosophy of Charlie McAdam, Sr., is as follows: "Fear less, hope more; talk less, say more; eat less, chew more; hate less, love more, and all is O.K." Mr. McAdam can compress the biggest thoughts into the littlest words you ever saw, can't he?

CUSTOMER SERVICE - Q. "Didn't Kyle Rice, the sportscaster, play professional baseball?" A. As well as football! That he did. Batted .357, incidentally. ... Q. "What's your stand on the new midlife crisis?" A. Opposed. What, you think a man ought not to be opinionated in this matter? All right, but as old Lady Astor once put it, "What would women say if men changed the length of their trousers every year?"

IT IS ALSO A FACT that Daniel Boone never wore a coonskin cap, never ever. ... "AS TO WHAT you call a male ladybug," writes a customer, "how about a lordbug?" That might do. ... NATURALLY Orange County Superior Court Judge James F. Judge deserves membership in the Proper Job Club.

OLD WEST - Maybe you've noticed a screen cowboy generally wears the same costume in every scene. Always thought that was merely a show-business gimmick. To let the audience more readily recognize the fellow. But now an Old West historian says no, that's not it. The real cowboy almost invariably wore the same sort of clothes daily, this authority contends. Partly because he couldn't afford a lot of changes, certainly. But mostly because his horse identified him by his clothing. If he showed up in unfamiliar duds, the horse was apt to neigh, dance and just generally treat him like a thief.

LONG-HAIRED YOUTHS go in for lots of body-painting as they while away the hours awaiting the start of the Vortex I rock festival at Melver State Park near Portland. Thousands of rock-music fans gathered at the park for the festival, which was designed to attract many who could otherwise provide trouble for the American Legion convention in Portland Saturday.
