Rogers Discounts Red Peace Barbs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Sunday the Soviet Union's attacks on President Nixon's new Indochina peace proposals was "standard Communist propagandist" that did not rule out serious consideration of them in Moscow or Hanoi.

Rogers and Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird both voiced hope that the President's call for a cease-fire throughout Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia along with an Indochina peace conference would provide the basis for meaningful negotiations to end the war.

Pravda, the official Russian Communist Party newspaper, denounced Nixon's peace plan as "a great fraud" Saturday and an attempt only "to legalize and perpetuate" American intervention in Indochina.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, also accused the United States of starting an "anti-Soviet campaign of slander in the American press" by charging Moscow with violating the Middle East cease-fire agreement.

And Sunday, the Red Star, the Soviet Defense Ministry's newspaper, called Nixon's proposals an election "propaganda trick" and rejected the idea of a new international conference to end hostilities in Southeast Asia. It said Nixon's proposals were intended to give the United States through diplomatic means "what it failed to attain by force."

"That's standard Communist propaganda which we expected," said Rogers, noting that the U.S. peace initiative in the Middle East also got a bad reception at first in the Kremlin but eventually won Soviet backing and "stopped the fighting" there.

"The public position that they take in the press does not necessarily correspond to their true attitude," Rogers said. "We're not discouraged that they have said all these things."

Laird and Rogers, defending the President's latest peace overtures as "very forthright and flexible," said they had got strong support around the world.

French Back Nixon

TASHKENT, USSR (UPI)—President Georges Pompidou of France said Sunday he has defended the sincerity of President Nixon's desire for peace in Vietnam in discussions with Soviet leaders.

The French President also told reporters at a news conference there is no likelihood of a new, formal Franco-Soviet accord on any subject at this time. He said earlier reports to this effect were based upon a misunderstanding.

"I have had the occasion to tell the Soviet leaders that I understand the differences that exist between them and the United States," he said. "But I insisted on the fact that, when I have talked with President Nixon, he has convinced me of his desire to evacuate (U.S. Troops from) Vietnam and to put an end to the war."

America Invited To Meet

BONN (UPI)—Chancellor Willy Brandt and Yugoslav President Tito agreed Sunday that the United States and Canada must take part in any European security conference.

"We knew that a conference including the United States and Canada would require serious preparation," Brandt told a news conference after four hours of talks with Tito. "Of course, both of us also know that it is not just a question of one conference, but of a series."

Tito stopped here on route from state visits to Belgium and Luxembourg. Later this year, he is making similar visits to other members of the European Common Market, with which the Yugoslavs signed a trade pact on March 10.

Because anti-Communist Croatians groups in Germany sometimes employ terrorist tactics against other Yugoslavs, Tito was treated as a high security risk.

Canadians Voice Plea

MONTREAL (UPI)—Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa, speaking as the deadline ran out, appealed to the kidnapers of a British diplomat and a provincial cabinet minister Sunday night to "contact the government" and negotiate for their release.

Bourassa spoke just as the 10 p.m. (EDT) deadline arrived. The Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ) had vowed to kill Pierre LaPorte, minister of labor and immigration, if the government did not yield to their demands.

Poor Sophie ...

ACTRESS SOPHIA LOREN, accompanied by movie producer Joseph Levine, left, leaves her plush hotel apartment Sunday to go to police station to look at mug shots in an effort to identify gunmen who robbed her of an estimated $450,000 worth of jewelry. (UPI)

Robbers Wrest Loren's Jewelry

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sophia Loren was robbed of an estimated $450,000 in jewelry Sunday in a holdup rivaling a movie plot in its daring and execution.

Mother love, brutality and terror—all the ingredients of a successful scenario—were present. Only it was all real and Miss Loren wasn't acting.

The glamorous Italian actress told police later she was "shaking" after the gunmen came "into my bedroom where I was sleeping. They kept saying 'give me the big stuff, give me the big stuff.'"

Movie mogul Joseph E. Levine, who produced Miss Loren's last picture, related details of the drama played out in the luxury Central Park hotel suite of the Academy Award winner and international celebrity.

According to Levine, Miss Loren attempted to bluff the gunmen by saying most of her jewels were in Italy, but a curi "Who's the baby?" by one of the gunmen, ended the charade. Levine said Miss Loren, 36, so feared for the safety of her sleeping child, 22-month-old Carlo "Chipi" Ponti Jr., that she gave them more than a half million dollars of her own uninsured jewels, plus $100,000 worth of gems on loan from Van Cleef & Arpels.

"Thank God nothing happened to my baby," the actress told reporters Sunday night outside a police headquarters where she had gone to look at mug shots of known jewel robbers. She told police she recognized none of the pictures. Miss Loren was not hurt but one gunman slugged Miss Inez Bruscia, the actress' secretary, inflicting a head injury requiring four stitches.

Hunter Wounded

SUN VALLEY — Roger O. Mongor, 30, Horseshoe Bend, is listed in satisfactory condition in the Sun Valley Hospital today after suffering a gunshot wound in the back in a hunting accident Sunday.

Mongor was one of a party of three in a hunting party on the Flat Top Sheep Co. property near Muldoon and was injured as the party was preparing to leave their camp. Sheriff Orville Drexler said Clark Monk, Ketchum, another member of the party, was putting away his rifle in a scabbard behind the seat of the pickup truck when it discharged.

The bullet went through the door of the car and struck Mongor, who was standing outside, in the small of the back. The injured man was flown to the Halley airport where an ambulance carried him to the Blaine County Hospital and then transferred to the Sun Valley Hospital.

Sheriff Drexler said there would be no charges filed as the shooting was accidental.

U.S. Re-Arms Jordan

By United Press International
The United States has started replenishing the Jordanian Army's ammunition losses from its 10-day battle with Palestinian guerrillas, Prime Minister Ahmed Toukan said Sunday night in Amman. Today there were reports of a new crisis in government-guerrilla relations.

Guerrilla operations against Israel, halted during the Jordanian civil war, were reported to have begun again. An Israeli army patrol killed two Arab guerrillas Sunday night in a clash near the frontier, a spokesman said in Tel Aviv. Israel also said a mine explosion Saturday killed an Arab guerrilla who tried to cross into Israel through the Jordan Valley.

Arab mediators worked out the fine points of a Jordanian-Palestinian agreement governing the long-range truce between Jordan's warring factions and the pact was to have been signed today. But Arab diplomatic sources said the agreement snagged on government insistence of tight controls on future guerrilla acts.

Tunisian Prime Minister Bahl Lughtham, head of the inter-Arab truce team, met Sunday night with King Hussein and today with Yasser Arafat, the Palestinian leader.

Electric War Vowed

By United Press International
Acting President Anwar Sadat said Sunday Egypt is continuing preparations with the support of the Soviet Union for "the first electronic war in history" against Israel. An influential Israeli newspaper said more than 1,000 Soviet troops already are manning Egyptian antiaircraft missile sites along the Suez Canal front.

In Jerusalem, at the same time, Prime Minister Golda Meir said Israel is ready to observe the cease-fire after the present 90-day truce expires. But she said Israel will return to the U.N.-supervised peace talks only after the Egyptians and Russians remove missiles moved into the 31-mile-wide sandstill zone along the canal in violation of the cease-fire agreement.

Mrs. Meir stated Israel's position in a cabinet meeting when asked about Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad's statement that Egypt would continue the cease-fire only if Israel returned to the talks under U.N. special mediator Gunnar V. Jarring.

New Flag ...

New Constitution Adds New Rights

By LINDY HIGH

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho's present constitution was written in 23 days in 1899 by delegates with no congressional authority but who wished to set the territory on the path to statehood.

The proposed new constitution was written over a five-year period by a 15-member Constitutional Revision Commission which held 28 public hearings throughout the state before presenting the proposal to the legislature earlier this year.

On Nov. 3, Idaho voters will choose between the two by approving or rejecting the revised constitution. In 1920, James H. Hawley, editor of the "History of Idaho," warned the existing document as originally adopted

"failed to meet the requirements of a perfect organic law and there is no doubt in the not too distant future a constitutional convention will again be assembled to present to the state of Idaho a new constitution which will meet the needs of the increased population and resources of the state."

Instead, the revised constitution — which leaves unchanged two-thirds of the present document — was written by a commission appointed by the governor, the Legislative Council and the chief justice of the Supreme Court. Submission to the electorate without a convention was approved only after a legal battle that went to the Idaho Supreme Court.

The chairman of the commission, former Supreme Court Chief Justice Raymond L. Givens, said the existing constitution was written "hurriedly, to seize a sudden opportunity for Idaho to enter the union and was worded to answer every conceivable question, objection, prejudice and demand of the factions in the state as well as of a congressional committee."

Territorial Governors Edward A. Stevenson and George L. Shoup issued the call for the first convention, following the examples of other states which had written their constitutions without waiting for Congress to pass an enabling act. Idaho's representative in Congress, Fred T. DuBois, had introduced legislation in 1888 asking for authority for a constitutional convention, but the measure failed to be passed.

The present constitution has been amended 79 times and two more amendments will be on the ballot Nov. 3. Givens said it was decided to submit the constitutional revision as a single question rather than as separate amendments — so voters could not approve a change in one section while rejecting an amendment proposing an interrelated change in another section.

There are few changes in article 1, the declaration of rights. However, there are two significant additions. Included in the inalienable rights of man is a new phrase guaranteeing the right of privacy and to have the quality of environment preserved and enhanced.

Also new is the right to "keep arms as well as bear arms" and while the existing constitution limits the right to bear arms to security and defense, the revised constitution leaves it to the legislature to regulate the right by statute.

In the proposed constitution, the legislature is prohibited against making any laws respecting establishment of religion. At one time the present constitution in effect prohibited Mormons from voting or holding office. This was amended a few years ago.

The revision allows the legislature to restrict voting in general obligations to property taxpayers, pending a U.S. Supreme Court decision on the restriction. The Idaho Legislature also established during its work on the revision a requirement that from a majority vote to a two-thirds majority vote be asked in general obligation bond elections, again pending a Supreme Court decision.

Court Rejects Abort Appeal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court today dismissed an appeal by Wisconsin from a ruling striking down the state's abortion law which—like those in 30 other states—permits abortion only to save the mother's life.

The opinion said the circumstances were not exceptional enough to justify interfering with state criminal proceedings. That did not prevent the panel from handing down its opinion against the law's constitutionality.

The court acted in a brief order without opinion. Last term it agreed to examine the District of Columbia abortion law which provides even broader grounds. No date for hearing in that case has been set.

In each case lower courts struck down the abortion laws as unconstitutional.

The District of Columbia statute was declared too vague. But in the Wisconsin case, a special three-judge federal court went much further. It ruled last March 5 that "the mother's interests are superior to that of an unquickened embryo, whether the embryo is mere proplasm ... or a human being."

The tribunal in Milwaukee refused however to grant a request of Dr. Sidney G. Bablitz for an injunction against enforcement of the law.

The three-judge court held that "a woman's right to refuse to carry an embryo during the early months of pregnancy may not be invaded by the state without a more compelling public necessity than is reflected" in the Wisconsin law.

The law provides criminal penalties of three years in prison or a $5,000 fine for anyone, other than the mother, who performs an abortion except in cases of therapeutic abortions "as necessary, to save the life of the mother."

Nineteen states and the District of Columbia have laws providing additional grounds for abortion than only saving the life of the mother. Newly enacted laws in Alaska, Hawaii and New York do not specify any required grounds. New York does not even have a residency requirement.

COMMENT City Parking

Idaho Falls Post-Register

State Planning Director Herb Derrick said this week that major Idaho cities should consider the possibility of banning automobiles from their business districts.

And he is so right, as he has been on several other statements he has made this year.

This newspaper has been advocating precisely this solution in downtown Idaho Falls for several years.

Admittedly, however, stating the solution is easier than the doing. Before all cars can be taken off the streets in Idaho Falls, for example, sufficient off-street parking to accommodate the approximate 700 cars on downtown streets would be necessary.

But there is opportunity for this measure of car parking in the downtown area already — both in applying additional stories of parking in existing downtown off-street parking as well as in land which can be acquired.

In this connection, it should also be pointed out that Memorial Drive parking as it is now handled is not only highly hazardous, as is any angle parking, but will undoubtedly clog this important artery once the new Yellowstone Freeway is completed from the present John's Hole complex to upper valley towns.

Moreover, as any one driving in the downtown area will testify, the narrow downtown streets are consistently backing up traffic during the heavy shopping season between Thanksgiving and Christmas — both because of the traffic snarl occasioned by people backing into parking places, as well as from the sheer volume of traffic downtown during this period.

Only a dramatic action in removing all of the downtown street parking will bring any genuine measure of relief to downtown Idaho Falls. The Idaho Falls Off-Street Parking Association has provided a significant amount of relief with its development, but another major leg of effort must be expended.

The city of Idaho Falls has already embarked on a feasibility study of the downtown parking problem. The professional study examined expansion of existing lots and potential for new off street parking lots — particularly in connection with a sweeping local improvement project approach supported by downtown property owners.

The devastating statistic that has showed up in the study is the grisly fact that the downtown area already needs 414 additional parking spaces in the downtown area — right now. So when one considers removal of all metered parking in the downtown core, we are talking about finding 1,114 parking places — without consideration of future growth.

But the most devastating statistic of all in the survey to date is the conviction on the part of many housewives contacted — that they forsake going downtown to shop because of "the horrible experience in trying to find parking downtown."

Idaho Falls is on the threshold of a breakthrough in the downtown area — if action is taken to both implement the urban renewal projects south of Broadway as well as the local improvement district north of Broadway. But to act this year to initiate the programs is vital. The impressive improvement downtown will be meaningless however, unless we "open up" traffic movement — which would be dramatically relieved by removal of street parking — and unless we provide adequate and convenient parking. There are blueprints which have emerged for both.

If not, we may be like the Roman General, who, upon learning of defeat of his legions to the east, said:

"The empire is falling . . . but we could have saved it if we acted in time."

Maoist Cult

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

He who would understand the motivations of Europe's university extremists has grabbed a tough assignment. This summer the European revolutionaries have been plenty busy. But it has been mostly sound and fury — slogans and graffiti — signifying little.

The wild thing about it all is that the university flamboyants profess to idolize Mao Tse-tung — ahead of Che Guevara, Marcuse, or any Soviet leaders including Trotsky. Mao is Chinese, elderly, his sayings are often banal and sometimes inscrutable, and he is a peasant leader. Yet he seems to appeal to anarchistic types in France, Germany, Britain — and to some American students.

Probably this is because the extremists have no use for liberals or the bourgeoisie. And they see the Russian Communists as rigid, traditional, outdated. So the black flag of anarchy has, for them, replaced the red flag of Russian communism.

This summer the Maoists talked big, acted less big. At the French channel port of Deauville they set fire to an expensive Italian-made sports car, daubed other luxury autos with revolutionary graffiti. They practiced their handwriting on the wall at other resorts and scribbled away on luxury yachts.

In Italy Maoists sought to indoctrinate workers at the Fiat plant in Turin. In West Germany radicals threatened to burn stalls at the Frankfurt book fair.

Probably what appeals to young extremists — some from wealthy families — or what the French calls fills a papa (rich man's son) — is that Mao is totally revolutionary. No compromises. And violence is recommended.

Some of the revolutionary ardor dispersed this year when one leader and his key lieutenant were jailed in France. But the student revolt of 1968 brought the French Government and Italian higher education almost to a standstill. Of course in Europe universities, by ancient tradition, have more self-governing rights than in America. And the colleges are overcrowded. And they have been slow to modernize in structure or in subject matter.

At the London School of Economics a radical told Editorial Research Reports: "America is reactionary. Russia is reactionary. What does that leave?" It leaves of course a lot of students who want to get on with their studies, and a strong backlash of nonuniversity sentiment which regards the extremists as dangerous romantics, who can stand neither discipline nor honest labor.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. — In the Democratic incumbent disowned by his party and running as an independent. The result: Dodd, 43 per cent; Rep. Lowell Weicker, Republican, 27 per cent; Duffey, the Democratic nominee, 11 per cent; undecided, 19 per cent. This by no means reflects the overall Connecticut situation. In comprehensive statewide polls including Quayle's, Duffey and Weicker run a virtual dead heat with Dodd a poor third. Besides, Bridgeport voters who told us they support Dodd may well revert to the habits of a lifetime on Nov. 3, and pull the party lever for the entire Democratic ticket (including Duffey). Nevertheless, our interviews do constitute a verdict of failure for Duffey's year-long effort to reach the blue-collar worker and convince him that his economic woes flow from Vietnam. Nearly half of these voters perceive Duffey, a leader in the peace movement as national chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), only dimly or not at all and back Dodd as the more familiar face. Were Dodd not running, such voters might support Duffey. But among those who do perceive Duffey, there is an overwhelming rejection, not because they consider him a radical. Thus, a maintenance man at Bridgeport's General Electric plant, normally a straight Democratic voter, opposes Duffey because "he's always with the wild students" while Dodd "is a man for law and order." Such voters would not conceivably back Duffey even in a two-man race but instead would go Republican. In answer to questions posed by us (added by Quayle pollsters Joy Stille and Hilda Schaffner), the voters who knew anything about Duffey were fundamentally in agreement: he is too liberal, too left-wing, too closely associated with the SDS, not really a Democrat. Four voters volunteered that they regard Duffey as a Communist.

Moreover, Duffey's background as a Protestant clergyman is widely resented. "I wouldn't want any minister for my Senator," a retired GE plant worker told us. But Bridgeport's blue-collar districts are not converting to Republicanism. They are unhappy with President Nixon and much prefer Sen. Edmund Muskie over him in 1972, support the Democratic nominee for governor (Rep. Emilio Q. Daddario) over the Republican (Rep. Thomas Meskill), and blame the Republicans for rising unemployment.

Where Duffey suffers is that they think there are worse things than unemployment. By a 3-to-1 margin, they view restoring law-and-order as more important than fighting recession. Thus do they choose Tom Dodd, censured by the Senate and in failing health over young, ethically spotless but ideologically suspect Joe Duffey.

Typifying Duffey's failure to capitalize on economic discontent is a middle-aged house painter who blames all economic problems on the Nixon administration and will vote straight Democratic. He really should stay with the church. All Duffey's followers are the young hippies. Dodd? "He's the man for the workingman."

Even Duffey's few supporters (7 out of 67) are not backing him as the friend of the workingman. Three of them told us they know nothing about Duffey but always vote Democratic. The other four are liberals, supporting him for the very reasons that the others oppose him.

No amount of Duffey support from the liberal suburbs can overcome blue-collar defections of this magnitude. If these Bridgeport interviews indeed reflect sentiment elsewhere in Connecticut, thus, in the campaign's last month, Duffey is dodging the radical image that Republican Weicker relentlessly applies to him — a struggle of national implications deserving full treatment in a future report.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D. A Dislike

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you give me some advice on how to cope with the child you don't like? I have three, ranging from 4 1/2 years to 13 months. The child I don't like is the middle one, a boy, 3 1/2.

I find that he "bothers" me much more than the other two. They all bother me at times, but for some reason this boy is nothing to me but a nuisance. I hit him for the most trivial things, even the way he eats, and find myself thinking how much I wish he'd never been born.

I have been acting this way toward this child ever since he was an infant and the situation now does not look any better. He is a very slow child in learning things; even to walk.

If you could help me find a solution, I would appreciate it. — Mrs. R. D. I can offer ready solutions for a lot of problems. Some I can't and this is one of them. I do not mean that it cannot be solved, but you need someone with more skill than I have in such things.

First of all, I respect you for facing the issue squarely. Too many people try to fool themselves, or try to conceal their real feelings. We continue to learn more about the prevalence of abused children. Some parents are, apparently, brutes who abuse (and sometimes even kill) their children.

Others, it has been found, develop a dislike for just one child. Often they don't know why. They may blame it all on the child — when in fact the child's behavior may really be a reaction to the parent's dislike. Why do you dislike this boy? Since he arrived only a year after the first child, you may have resented a pregnancy that

PAUL HARVEY

A No-No Word

It's hard to believe that just a few years ago we did not broadcast such words as "cancer." Even more recently the word "syphilis" was a no-no; nothing to be said aloud outside the confines of a professional medical symposium.

We'd better start talking about it. The American Social Health Assn. reports the most dramatic increase in social diseases has occurred in the last six months. The association's medical director, Dr. McKenzie-Pollock, blames the conspicuous increase on "indiscriminate sex."

And deriving from this, he says, "the gonorrhea epidemic is already out of control."

While carriers are learning, in their own self-interest, to seek medical treatment and cure, I know only one horrid remedy for the yet unhooked; a double-dose of old-fashioned, parentally administered fear — that promiscuity can ruin your life.

Because it sure can.

ANDREW TULLY

Regular Fellows

WASHINGTON — Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., has posed a question that reflects the double standard candidates who desert their party and seek to impose on what might be called the regular fellows.

How come, Hatfield asks, the Senate Republican Campaign Committee gave $40,000 each to conservative Senators George Murphy of California and Ralph Smith of Illinois this year while allotting only $5,000 to the liberal Charles Goodell of New York?

It seems to be the regular fellows' answer should be "Why not?" Or as the campaign committee chairman, Sen. John Tower of Texas, has remarked privately, "The hell with Charles Goodell. He's more of a Democrat than a Republican."

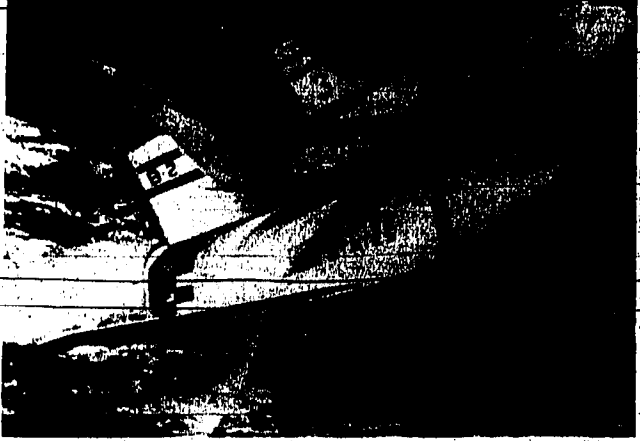

Now John Tower has never been my idea of the model statesman, but his logic on this one would seem to be impeccable. Goodell has spent most of his time as a Senator lambasting the policies of President Nixon and cuddling up to every far-out "liberal" bloc he can find — some of them under rocks. At best, like New York's Mayor John Lindsay, Goodell rates as a part-time Republican, and was endorsed by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller only because the Rock recognized the necessity of pacifying the state's numerous far-outs.

Really, Goodell and Hatfield expect a great deal from a Republican Party headed by Richard Nixon. It is all very well to argue that Goodell has a kind of civil-liberties privilege to strike out on his own ideologically, but he is guilty of presumption in expecting the party to reward him for his heresies. "The point is not whether Goodell is right. It is

Action Recorded On Bills

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Status of major legislation, second session of the 91st congress:

Crime—House has passed bill to combat organized crime and terrorist bombings and Senate, which passed the organized crime bill earlier, is expected to accept amendments.

Military—House passed and sent to the Senate $66.8 billion Defense Appropriations Bill.

Hijackers—The House has passed and sent to the Senate a bill to provide 2,500 air marshals to guard against hijackers.

Housing—Senate passed $4 billion authorization bill extending federal aid housing programs for one year through fiscal 1972. House Banking Committee approved bill.

Manpower—Senate passed bill to consolidate most manpower job training programs in Labor Department. House Education and Labor Committee approved similar bill.

Transit—Senate and House have passed similar bills to authorize $3.1 billion. Minor differences to be reconciled.

Impeach—House judiciary subcommittee studying whether Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas should be impeached.

Drugs—House and Senate approved a comprehensive bill to provide a three-year $403 million rehabilitation and treatment program for addicts. The bill goes to conference this week.

Equal Rights—House passed proposed constitutional amendment to bar discrimination based on sex. Senate has deferred action until November.

Farm—Senate-House conferees approved new farm bill.

Welfare—House passed plan of minimum annual income for poor families. Senate Finance Committee has balked at measure.

Food Stamps—House Agriculture Committee approved a three-year program. Bill is more restrictive than a Senate bill passed earlier.

Trade—House Ways and Means Committee approved a bill with mandatory quotas on shoes and textiles. House action postponed until after elections.

Israeli Government 'Delighted' At U.S. Hardened Missile Stand

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Window on the World:

Mideast Question Mark: The Israeli government isn't saying so publicly but it is delighted that the United States position has moved closer to that of Israel on the question of Soviet-Egyptian SAM missiles in the Suez Canal zone. The U.S. chance of heart has, if anything, hardened Israel's resolve to refuse to enter peace talks until the Egyptians have moved the missiles back to where they were before start of the cease-fire.

Protection For The Pope: All of the Philippines armed forces, the military and the police of Manila and the suburbs are being called upon for what is being called "task force Holy Father," the visit of Pope Paul VI to the Philippines Nov. 28-30. The task force will be assigned not only to safeguarding the Pope but also to controlling the huge crowds expected.

Red China Sinkup: Diplomats assigned to Peking are predicting a major reshuffle of Red China's government when the Chinese National Peoples Congress is convened, probably before the end of the year. Most closely watched will be the selection of a new foreign minister. Peking has never announced the dismissal of Chen Yi, appointed foreign minister in 1964. However, it long has been apparent that most of the work is being done by Premier Chou En-Lai and his associates. If one of these should get the title, it might signal a moderate Chinese foreign policy. If one of Mao's hard-liners gets the job, a tougher policy could be expected.

Vietnam Talks—Maybe: Paris diplomats believe that despite the Communists' quick denunciation of President Nixon's five-point peace plan it was not their last word and that the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong might well be prepared to discuss the President's plan in private. It will be up to U.S. chief delegate David K. E. Bruce to make the move, they say.

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—A Salt Lake City teen-ager, wearing a seatbelt, was thrown free from her automobile and killed late Friday afternoon when a guardrail penetrated her car in an accident here.

Dead is Kelsey Rae Updyke, 18.

Police said the guardrail tore both doors off her vehicle and struck the victim with such force her seatbelt was ripped in half.

Miss Updyke was northbound on 7th east about 4 p.m. when a southbound car, driven by Mrs. Ruth Weaver, 40, began a left turn and struck the girl's car.

The impact forced the vehicle into the guardrail.

Congress Faces Crunch As Business Piles Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For Congress, this is the week of the "crunch" as restless members thinking of the elections three weeks off dig into a pile of "must" legislation that they do not want to leave for a lame duck session.

Before recessing Wednesday until Nov. 16, Senate and House leaders hope to get action on such major bills as the farm program, military construction, reorganization of the manpower training program and the proposed constitutional amendment to give women equal rights.

The break for the Nov. 3 elections means there will be a lame duck session of Congress for the first time in 20 years, a session that is expected to continue well into December.

The Senate on Monday will continue work on the proposed Women's Rights Amendment and will take up an occupational health and safety measure that the House already has said it will not consider until after the elections.

The women's rights provision, already approved by the House but bitterly contested in the Senate, also is expected to be put over until next month.

The House, always conscious of "holidays" despite the pressure to quit, has listed no business for Monday, which is Columbus Day. But Tuesday it will take up the controversial compromise farm bill which would extend farm programs for another year and impose a $55,000 per farm and per crop limit on federal subsidies.

The House also scheduled a $1.6 billion compromise authorization bill for scores of military construction projects in the current fiscal year. About the same time the Senate plans to start debating the appropriations bill to provide the actual funds.

U.S. Eyes Cocaine Use Rise

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal narcotics officials are concerned about an apparent sharp increase in use of cocaine, a drug even more dangerous than heroin.

Cocaine use, once very common in the United States, fell off sharply after World War II, and until quite recently was regarded by narcotics officials as a relatively minor menace compared to heroin.

But law enforcement agencies on both the East and West Coasts have detected a strong resurgence of cocaine use within the past two years.

Its growing popularity among drug abusers is reflected in official statistics on federal seizures of illicit cocaine. In 1965, they totaled only 41.6 pounds. But in 1969, the Justice Department's Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs seized 119 pounds of raw, uncut cocaine.

So far this year, they have seized 203 pounds — five times as much as they found in the entire year of 1966.

Part of this increase may be due to an expanded staff of enforcement agents. But bureau officials told UPI there obviously has been a substantial upswing in the amount of cocaine illegally sold and used in the United States.

"It's becoming very popular among drug users of the hippie type," said one official.

He said there also is evidence that many heroin addicts are adding a bit of cocaine to their "fixes." Heroin acts much more rapidly when mixed with cocaine, so the combination is known as a "speedball."

Heroin continues to be more important than cocaine in terms of prevalence of use. Federal agents seize about three times as much heroin as cocaine.

Cocaine affects the user in exactly opposite fashion from heroin. Heroin is a depressant which induces a dreamy euphoria, drowsiness or sleep. Addicts may commit crimes (robberies usually) to obtain money for a shot of heroin, but they are not violent while under its influence.

Cocaine is a powerful stimulant. It acts on the body in much the same way as caffeine, except that it is vastly more potent. It excites the user, makes him talkative and rashly self-confident, and sometimes produces hallucinations and symptoms of paranoia. Not infrequently, it induces a violent behavior, such as murderous attacks on other people.

Former French Premier Dies

PARIS (UPI) — Edouard Daladier, three times Premier of France and sole survivor of the four leaders who signed the Munich agreement in 1938 that delivered Czechoslovakia to Nazi Germany and led to World War II, died at his Paris home Saturday, his family announced Sunday.

Daladier, honorary life President of the Radical Socialist Party he led for many years, was 86. He had retired from politics in 1961 and spent his last years at the Paris home of his sister.

In April, 1938, Daladier flew to Munich where he and British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain signed with dictators Adolf Hitler of Germany and Benito Mussolini of Italy the "Munich Agreement" which virtually guaranteed Hitler a free hand in taking over Czechoslovakia.

After Munich, Hitler felt neither Britain nor France would intervene militarily to halt his territorial ambitions in Europe and set out on the course which was to plunge Europe and the World into war, 17 months later.

Although Chamberlain returned to London waving the Munich Agreement triumphantly as a guarantee of "peace in our time," Daladier had nervous misgivings.

He had his pilot twice circle the Paris airfield before landing from Munich because he was not certain of the attitude of the crowd gathered to meet him.

On arrival however, Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet kissed him on both cheeks and he entered Paris triumphantly in an open car to the cheers and applause of thousands of Parisians.

Daladier still was certain his own mind Munich was a mistake. Amid the cheering he turned to Bonnet and said, "The fools! Don't they know what I have done?" Newareels of the parade show a gloomy Daladier trying to force a smile and cheerful waving for the delirious crowd.

Less than 16 months later Daladier declared war on Hitler's Germany. It was Sept. 2, 1939.

Sihanouk Would Negotiate

TOKYO (UPI) — Exiled Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk has offered to negotiate directly with the United States on question of peace in Indochina, the official Peking news agency reported Sunday.

The Red Chinese agency quoted Sihanouk as saying "we can negotiate together directly with the Americans. Directly in any neutral country they like. Negotiate peace, with the total, unconditional and immediate withdrawal of the American troops and their lackeys."

He said Communist China had pledged support to him and would not attend President Nixon's proposed multi-nation conference on Indochina unless he is invited as Cambodia's official representative.

The statement was made in a news conference Saturday in Peking and carried Sunday by the New China news agency in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo.

DEAR ABBY: I am French born, and after nine years in the United States I am puzzled beyond description with American men. I don't understand them. Abby, nine years ago I married an American man, and I cannot go into details here about what life was like with him. I wanted to die. Anyway, I just don't know where I went wrong, and neither does anybody else know. I've been alone for five years with my son, age six - I am now 33 and have given up on ever meeting a nice man, and your advice is the last I am going to seek from anyone.

I am college educated, fluent in three languages and I am a nice woman. I love to walk on a man, love to care for a home. I love children. I love to cook, I love to laugh, and I love people. What is wrong with me, Abby?

How do I get to meet a man? I am going to church, to school (again), even tried Parents Without Partners, and I meet only women who, like me, are lonely. In the last year I had two dates, arranged by respectable friends. In both cases the men tried to rush me into bed. I am not lying to you. Nobody wants a virtuous woman, Abby. If I am wrong, please tell me!

DEAR DISILLUSIONED: You are wrong! Don't let two foul balls put you out of the game. You have a lot to offer. If possible, change your scenery, take a trip, immerse yourself in volunteer activity, and tell your friends you are still looking.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. I don't know if I am going crazy or not. A year ago I was standing in line at the supermarket and suddenly I felt that I just had to get out of there or I would scream or faint or something. I left my cart and ran out the door. I was so embarrassed. Since that time I haven't been able to go into a supermarket without my husband. I can't go into the bank or into elevators alone either. Now I'm making excuses so I won't have to go to parties or out to dinner.

I have a nice home and family, and I keep making excuses so I won't have to go out. The crowds do not bother me, I just have the fear that I will panic again.

Don't tell me it's all in my mind. I KNOW the feeling, and it is very real and terrifying.

Outside of this problem I am a good wife and mother. Have you ever heard of anyone else having this kind of problem? God bless you for any help you can give me.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Many people have had this problem, and it is indeed a very "real" one. Your fear of experiencing the same "panic" is the problem. If you "know" you will panic, you will. Please talk to your doctor. He can recommend help for you. These fears will not disappear. You must face them, understand them and defeat them. You CAN do it. Others have. God bless.

DEAR ABBY: I am laid-off right now but my wife is working. I feel terrible about not being able to bring in my share of the money, but there's nothing I can do about it. [We've been married only a year and have no children.]

Lately, my wife says she likes to "unwind" after work, so she and a coworker (a divorcee) go to a cocktail lounge and accept a drink or two with strange men. She says there is no harm in it as she is being honest with me.

I am not by nature a jealous man, but just the idea that she wants to "unwind" with a few drinks in the company of another man makes me very unhappy. I am sure if the circumstances were reversed she wouldn't want me to buy drinks for strange girls and "unwind" with them. I would appreciate your view on this.

DEAR TROUBLED: Your wife has no business "unwinding" in a cocktail lounge with strange men, whether you're working or laid off. Exchanging her company for a "few drinks" is dangerously close to something I wouldn't want to suggest here. Tell her you appreciate her honesty, but you'd like to have her home evenings.

DEAR ABBY: I am sick and tired of hearing widows complain because they are called "MRS. JANE DOE" instead of the more proper, "MRS. JOHN DOE." I am a widow and I couldn't care less about what people call me, as long as they CALL me. LONESOME IN NEW BEDFORD

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM H. HINZ

DECLO - Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hinz were honored at a wedding reception Sept. 26 at the Declo LDS Cultural Hall after their marriage in Elko, Nev. Bishop Elden Ramsey, Elko, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the former Marjorie Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman (Wag) Wood, Declo. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Carl F. Hinz, Burley.

The young couple and their parents greeted guests before a white corrugated background flanked by tall beauty baskets of yellow chrysanthemums and tangerine carnations, accented by orange streamers.

The bride wore an empire-styled wedding gown of white crepe and lace. She designed and made the gown which featured a jeweled neckline, lace bodice and sheer lace bell-shaped sleeves. The empire-waistline was accented with seed pearls.

Lace petals and a tiara of seed pearls and iridescent stones formed the headpiece which secured her bouffant floor-length veil of illusion. The veil was borrowed from a friend, Mrs. Veldon Hill.

A lace background accented her bridal bouquet of orange roses, greenery, and white baby carnations tied with orange streamers.

Guests were greeted in the foyer of the church by the ushers, Fred and David Wood, brothers of the bride, and Jim Hinz, brother of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Nelson Mitchell, Provo, a cousin of the bride, registered the guests at a round table covered with a floor-length green cloth.

Topiary trees tied with orange ribbons flanked the bride's table which was covered with a floor-length green cloth and centered with the three-tiered wedding cake. The newlywed's initials in pale yellow accented the all white wedding cake which was topped with an arrangement of white wedding bells centered with white blossoms framed by a white heart and net. The tiers were separated with white columns with bells and lilies of the Valley adorning the cake. Tiny lace bells encircled the base of the cake which was placed on an oval mirror. Mrs. Austin Walker, Declo, made and decorated the cake.

Gifts were displayed by Mrs. Roger Price, Kayaville, Utah; Kathleen Hinz and Mrs. Jim Hinz, sister and sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and Dee Dennis, cousin of the bride. The gift table was covered with a white cloth adorned with orange bows. Shauna Price, niece of the bridegroom, and Val and Freddie Darrington, cousins of the bride, carried the gifts.

Guests were served at round tables covered with yellow lace floor-length cloths centered with white bud vases containing tangerine carnations and yellow pompons. Assisting with the serving were Judy and Jill Hinz, cousins of the bridegroom, and Marva, Louise and Merna Darrington, cousins of the bride.

Mrs. Clifford Darrington and Mrs. LeRoy Darrington, aunts of the bride, and Mrs. William Darrington and Mrs. Earl Darrington, cousins of the bride, were in charge of refreshments.

Special guests were Mrs. C. W. Wood, Ogden, and Mrs. Fred Darrington, Declo, grandmothers of the bride.

Out-of-town guests attended from Ogden, Tremonton, Kayaville and Provo, Utah; Vancouver, Wash. Boise, Pocatello, Twin Falls, Blackfoot, Ketchum and surrounding communities.

The bride is employed at the Burley Processing Plant as a secretary and the bridegroom is employed at the Continental Baking Co. They will reside in Burley.

Guidelines Offered By Foundation

NEW YORK (UPI)—If you see a blind person and wish to help, what should you do? The American Foundation for the Blind offers these guidelines:

—If you see a blind person who seems to need help, offer your services. Identify yourself and let him know you're talking to him.

—A blind person can cross a street without being pushed or pulled, so let him take your arm. He will follow the motion of your body.

—Go ahead and use words like "see" and "look." You can't avoid them anymore than a blind person can because there just aren't any reasonable substitutes.

—Speak directly to a blind person, not through a third party. Interpretation is not necessary since blindness is not a separate language.

—As tempting as it may be to pet a dog guide, remember that this dog is responsible for leading a master who cannot see. The dog should never be distracted from that duty.

—When you're leaving a blind person, let him know you are. Don't leave him stranded.

—And remember, when you do meet a blind person, common sense and sensitivity to others are most important of all.

The U.S. census in 1970 showed population of 7,239,881.

HAGERMAN - The United Methodist Church was the setting for the wedding of Marie Slane and Douglas Dyzart Sept. 28.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. Nell Slane and Mrs. Nell Slane, Pocatello, former Hagerman residents.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dyzart, Walla Walla, Wash.

The candlelight double-ring nuptials were performed by the Rev. Woodrow Harris. Altar baskets of pink gladiol and white chrysanthemums, decorated the chapel.

The traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Robert Tupper, aunt of the bride, at the organ. Mrs. Tupper also accompanied the soloist, Robert Lawrason.

Given in marriage by her brother, Kenneth Slane, Pocatello, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white crepe featuring a high rounded neckline edged with scalloped alencon lace and an empire waistline. A chapel train flowed from the back waistline. Scalloped lace also edged the train and the wrist-length sleeves. A double bow of matching fabric held her elbow-length veil of bridal illusion.

She carried a sculptured bouquet of red roses and miniature white Spider chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Charles Minard, Hagerman, was matron of honor and Nancy Slane, Pocatello, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid.

Scott Abernathy, Bothell, Wash., was best man. Ushers were Charles Minard and Steve Lawrason, both Hagerman, who also served as candlelighters.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall immediately after the wedding. Presiding at the guest book was Colleen Slane, Pocatello, sister of the bride. Gifts were carried by Connie Slane and Nancy Dyzart and were arranged by Patli Slane.

A five-tiered wedding cake centered the bride's table. The cake was decorated with clusters of pink roses and silvered latticed hearts and was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom under a ruffled archway with two tiny bells.

The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Sylvan Clark, who also cut and served it. She was assisted by Kathy Smith, Seattle, Wash. Mrs. Robert Lawrason poured coffee and Mrs. Kenneth Slane, Pocatello, presided at the punch service.

The couple resides at the Hagerman National Fish Hatchery, where the bridegroom is employed.

When children discuss a playmate who wets the bed—the result can be mercurial-teasing. And serious psychological problems. Even the entire family can be affected. The cost and work of taking care of a bed-wetting child can cause friction and irritability among parents.

Walter G. Alvarez, M.D., Prof. Emeritus, Mayo Clinic, says that he is a terrible nuisance and a disgrace to the family.

But now bedwetting, when not caused by organic defect or disease, can be ended. Safely. Permanently. Pacific International has ended bedwetting for tens of thousands of children and adults from ages 4 to 67 in the past two decades.

Urban Leadership Is Lacking

MOSCOW (UPI)—The kind of national leadership necessary to articulate urban needs, translate them into proposals and utilize the latter as a means of bringing Americans together in common support of a viable and attractive urban nation is currently lacking, a national authority said here Friday.

Addressing more than 600 students and faculty members at the University of Idaho, Dr. Robert C. Weaver, New York, former secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, said three specific elements were missing:

- The absence of a national will to face up to and act upon the domestic problems of our times;
- The inadequacy of resources allocated to meet identified needs; and
- Our failure to develop a comprehensive approach to urban policies.

According to Weaver, cities have posed the dilemma of good and evil since the beginning of time.

"The Greeks glorified their cities while the Old Testament and our earlier philosophers and statesmen told us about the evils of the cities," he said. "Even we in this country have subtly and overtly felt that cities were placed to be destroyed."

Weaver said like it or not, all Americans are going to be exposed to a certain degree of that evil from now on as people continue to gather together in cities not only in the United States but throughout the world.

He pointed out that cities and their surrounding urbanized "skirts" are where most of the "disfunction and failures" which underlie Americans' anger at each other and the world are concentrated and accentuated.

Mangled Bodies Common at Center

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI)—He was a handsome young man, with blonde hair and broad shoulders.

The only thing was, his torso, outlined beneath the hospital bed sheet, ended abruptly at the thighs.

Truncated bodies are a familiar sight in ward 35 of Walter Reed Army Medical Center. Here, casualties of the Vietnam War cease to be numbers in a communique and become mangled American men.

The Army quite properly protects the privacy of wounded soldiers. I was allowed to talk to patients in ward 35 on the condition that I wouldn't use their full names. No photographs were permitted.

The blonde youth told me his first name was Bob, and he had been a sergeant in the Americal Division, stationed at Duc Pho. On Aug. 25, he was commanding a half-track on patrol.

"Another guy and I got out to take a closer look at a suspicious place, and one of us must have stepped on a booby trap," he said.

"I had turned the other way, which saved my sight and my arms. But I lost both legs above the knee. I never knew what happened to my buddy. I kept asking, and they wouldn't tell me."

Bob said he was surprised to find, since he came home, that a lot of people here are under the impression that U.S. forces are no longer doing much fighting or suffering many casualties in Vietnam.

"That's not so," he said emphatically. "There's still a very rough war over there."

The inevitable question came up. Did he think the U.S. effort in Vietnam was worth what it cost him?

"No," he said, almost in a whisper. "We're actually doing a lot of harm over there in some ways. And the Arvins (soldier slang for troops of the ARVN, or South Vietnamese army) seem really disinterested in the war. They let us do all the dirty work. I think we ought to pull out and let them fight their own war."

Ward 35 is a long, open room with beds along each wall. There are 48 beds. When I visited it, 46 of them were occupied by soldiers wounded in Vietnam. Many of them were trussed up in elaborate traction gear, suspended from overhead metal bars.

Across the aisle from Sgt. Bob, a dark-haired youth of 19 lay on his back, very still. He raised the bandaged stump of his left leg, and stared at it. He was still staring at it when I looked at him again, half an hour later.

The nurse said he was depressed and she didn't think he'd feel up to talking to a stranger.

Weaver said like it or not, all Americans are going to be exposed to a certain degree of that evil from now on as people continue to gather together in cities not only in the United States but throughout the world.

He pointed out that cities and their surrounding urbanized "skirts" are where most of the "disfunction and failures" which underlie Americans' anger at each other and the world are concentrated and accentuated.

Spanish Shoemaker Thought Exclusive

MAHON, Spain (UPI)—When Prince Rainier of Monaco wanted a new pair of shoes he boarded his yacht and sailed to this Spanish Balearic Island of Minorca to see Antonio Timoner.

And before Spanish Foreign Minister Maria Castiella y Maliz went off to Washington this summer to sign an agreement on U.S. Air bases in Spain he visited Timoner to make sure he was well shod.

Timoner, 79, has to be the most exclusive shoemaker in the world. If you want a pair of his hand-made, custom-made shoes—you not only visit Minorca but you ride over the bumpy roads to his factory at Alayor in the center of the island.

You can buy his non-custom made shoes in the better shops of Barcelona, Madrid and Valencia and they are the finest in the world—handstitched from the best leathers and selling for around 2,000 pesetas ($42.80) about half of what they would cost in New York.

If you have them custom made they run 260 pesetas $4.28 more but then you have to go to Alayor so they can measure your feet.

Timoner runs his factory Colzados Timoner, with his son Pedro, 26, a stocky native of this island that has been captured by the Phoenicians, Romans, Moors, French, British and Spanish and where the native language has a touch of all. (Spanish is a secondary language here.)

Timoner said he was reluctant to talk—that he was afraid American shoe dealers would come to Minorca and pester him to sell them some shoes. He also was nervous that the article would be read in Madrid and that he would be pestered by Madrilenos.

"Ours is a labor of love, not of mass production," he said. "Please don't write articles which would make a lot of people come here and ask us to speed-up our work. It is all hand done, it is the last place in Spain where all the work is still done by hands."

Both Timoner and son Pedro were on vacation when I talked with them at their villa in Mahon overlooking the deep-water harbor which was captured by Britain, France and Spain in that order (The French invented a salad dressing called Mahonnaise to celebrate their victory but spell it mayonnaise now.)

And both men were wearing peasant sandals—soles made of automobile tires and held on by a leather strap over the instep.

The Timoner shoes are fashionable without being what is called high style. The toes are broad, which is the current trend, but the styles are classic. For custom work, of course, you can have them made up anyway you want.

Blacks Chase Romney

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Black demonstrators protesting alleged racial discrimination by the Housing and Urban Development department (HUD) said they chased Secretary George Romney down 10 flights of stairs Friday when he tried to evade them.

Leonard C. Ball, of the Urban League office in Washington, said the chase ended when Romney slammed a car door in his face as he tried to hand the secretary a petition demanding full equality for HUD's black employees.

The department's public information officer fully denied the charge and said Ball "literally attacked Romney as he got into his limousine in the parking lot."

The events came at the end of a day of demonstrations outside Romney's office by several hundred black HUD employees. The protesters camped at the door to Romney's office wanted to see him but were told he was tied up in meetings.

Late in the afternoon, according to leaders of the protest and a black newspaper, Romney emerged from his office and headed for an elevator. When he saw the crowd following him, he switched courses and started down the stairway, they said.

TEENAGE DELEGATES from Twin Falls took a majority of the 1970 state TORCH convention awards here Saturday. Margaret McCurdy, Twin Falls chapter president, accepted the award for outstanding chapter in the state; Mrs. John Stephens, Twin Falls, outstanding advisor; Mrs. Galley-Soule, Boise, outstanding state advisor; Karen Korslund, Boise, best scrapbook, and John Warren, Twin Falls, outstanding teen; all from left.

TORCH LEADERSHIP in Idaho for the coming year will be the responsibility of new teen age officers elected Saturday in Twin Falls. From left are Robba Turney, Boise, treasurer; Julie Parsons, Nampa, new president; John Warren, Twin Falls, vice president, and Gene Weiner, Boise, secretary. Election and candlelight installation climaxed the third annual Torch Convention of the Idaho group organization to assist retarded children in their communities.

Rupert CAP Gets Honor

RUPERT — Members of the Idaho Wing, Civil Air Patrol, received an exceptionally high rating from the U.S. Air Force for their part in the simulated bomb attack exercise last month, George Falkner, wing commander, announced today.

Falkner said he was notified by the Air Force Sunday that Idaho Wing members had received 99 out of a possible 100 points for their participation in the exercise Sept. 28. The simulated exercise was held throughout the nation with four simulated enemy bomb drops on Idaho. The CAP wing assayed the damage and traced the fallout and worked with ground and air crews.

Falkner said the entire state wing participated in the exercise under observation of Air Force teams.

Headed in 1969 the Minidoka County air cadets received the highest rating in the state on efficiency.

T.F. Torch Chapter Wins Trophies at Meet

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls Chapter of TORCH added some trophies to their collection as a result of the third annual TORCH convention last week end in Twin Falls.

The group, Teens Organized for Retarded Children, convened Friday and Saturday in the Episcopal Church here with three major state awards going to the Twin Falls membership.

Outstanding chapter award was accepted by Margaret McCurdy, local chapter president, and the outstanding teen of the state organization for 1970 was John Warren, Twin Falls member. Mrs. John Stephens, advisor for the local chapter, also received the outstanding advisory of the state award.

Mrs. Galley Soule, Boise, was given a special award for her outstanding work with the teen chapters and Karen Korslund, Boise, accepted the award for her chapter for the best scrapbook.

Young volunteers who work with retarded children in their communities elected Julie Parsons, Nampa, as state president for the coming year, succeeding Glorinda Mueller Johnson, Shelley. Other new officers are John Warren, Twin Falls, vice president; Gene Weiner, Boise, secretary, and Robba Turney, Boise, treasurer.

Delegates heard an interagency panel on services which can be provided the retarded children and teen delegates met in workshop sessions on various phases of their programs.

Mrs. Soule delegates one of the major projects for the coming year should be the growth in membership. She said the TORCH members provide a vital service in their community but there are many more retarded children who need the companionship, social outlet, and recreation and training the TORCH members are able to provide for them and which are not available through regular schools and care centers.

Members also discussed projects of the past year including the legislative breakfast which attracted several hundred persons and the special Olympics for retarded children. Dr. Ben Katz, Twin Falls, addressed the teenage membership on psychological benefits for themselves and the retarded children resulting from the TORCH program.

Patients Face Fee Increase

BOISE (UPI) — Commissioner of Social Security Robert M. Ball said Saturday hospital Medicare patients will face an additional $8 fee added to the portion of their hospital bill they must pay.

He said the increase is mandatory under the law and is a result of the long-term upward trend in hospital costs and general inflation.

He said the law requires an annual review of hospital costs under Medicare, and an adjustment of the portion of the bill a Medicare beneficiary must pay is necessary if the costs rise substantially.

The current average daily rate for inpatient hospital services is $55.70 compared to $37.94 in 1966. The formula calls for multiplying the ratio of the 1969 rate to the 1966 rate by $40, which results in $58.72. Under the law, this must be rounded to $60, the new deductible amount.

Ball said it is the intent to ask the Medicare beneficiary responsible for expenses equal to the average cost of one day of hospital care.

Two Hurt In Plane Crash

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — A crash of an Idaho National Guard light airplane shortly after 11 a.m. Sunday morning injured two Boise men and demolished their plane.

The crash occurred near the Indian Creek area close to the Idaho-Wyoming border and injured G. Barney, the pilot, Chief Warrant Officer of the Idaho Air National Guard, and an observer, Sgt. Maj. Wayne Waters, headquarters company, Idaho Guard.

The Cessna was trying from Boise to look over an encampment of the 116th combat engineers at Indian Creek. The craft was reportedly attempting to turn in Indian Creek Canyon when it ran into high tension power lines. The crash occurred on the D. Worth Smith ranch near U.S. Highway 26.

Both Barney and Waters were taken to an Idaho Falls hospital where their condition was listed as good. They suffered severe cuts and bruises but they had no broken bones.

Magic Valley Aid Overwhelms Jennifer's Mom

BOISE — Magic Valley women who have volunteered to help little Jennifer Weeks have "overwhelmed" Jennifer's mom, Mrs. Jeffrey Weeks.

Mrs. Weeks told the Times-News in a personal interview that she had not heard of the Magic Valley effort to collect mothers' milk for her youngster, who still can't tolerate any liquid product other than milk from nursing mothers. Mrs. Weeks, however, said she was truly overwhelmed with the offer from so far away, and voiced her undying gratitude to all.

The need is critical — as of Sunday night, Mrs. Weeks said, little Jennifer had just one day's milk supply left in the milk bank at St. Luke's Hospital — "just enough for Monday."

Jennifer drinks a full quart of milk each day, Mrs. Weeks said, and the supply has been increasingly hard to obtain. Each nursing mother can supply only so much, depending on her individual makeup; then others must be found.

Jennifer can eat some solid food, but remains strangely allergic to all liquids. "We tried to give her some apple juice, since she can eat the applesauce, but it didn't work," Mrs. Weeks related.

Though Jennifer can eat, she still needs her daily milk for bone development and growth, as does any youngster of any age. And, since mothers' milk is all her body will allow her to have, then mothers' milk she will have.

Since the milk bank effort started a few weeks ago, Mrs. Weeks said, her daughter has gained two pounds in weight, weighing 14 pounds at present. Though this is somewhat light for a nine-month-old infant, her doctors say it shows good progress.

Magic Valley Memorial Hospital in Twin Falls is acting as a receiving station for mothers donating milk. The milk will be collected there, probably once a week, and shipped by Home dairies freezer truck to Boise for Jennifer's use.

So far, six Magic Valley mothers have registered as donors with the hospital. Any others who wish to donate should call the hospital to register and also to sign a release form.

Gigi Erdosia of the Twin Falls Hospital, said the hospital now has some bottles to give to mothers for milk collection. She requests anyone who may have a supply of baby food jars to donate them to the hospital for sterilization and distribution to donating mothers.

Burley Lions Club Sets Tuesday Sale

BURLEY — The Burley Lions Club members will be out selling door to door Oct. 13 for the Live Inc., all the products are handmade by handicapped workers in Idaho and the proceeds are marked for them.

Bill Wetzelstein, local Lions Club chairman, reported the club members will be selling brooms, throw rugs, rubber mats, wet mops and brass wind chimes.

The Live, Inc., center is sponsored by Lions Clubs in Idaho and Southern Oregon. The Lions Clubs have provided contributions to the center and since 1954 have conducted door to door drives to market some of the merchandise.

The income from the sales is used to pay Live, Inc., the wholesale price of the merchandise. The difference between wholesale and retail price is retained by the local Lions Club to be used in the local community to support the club's sight conservation services.

Live, Inc. uses the wholesale price to pay for raw products, labor and other costs of manufacturing and training. The Burley Lions Club has sponsored the Live, Inc., by selling door to door for several years.

GOP Office Opened At Burley

BURLEY — Cassia County Republicans have opened their headquarters just off the lobby of the National Hotel. Hours will be from noon until 5 p.m. starting today, according to James Roper, Cassia County Central Committee Chairman.

Interested voters are invited to stop at the Republican headquarters where information on all state and local Republican candidates will be available. Campaign buttons, posters, and stickers for the various candidates are also available at the headquarters.

Tickets for the dinner Oct. 26 at Ponderosa Inn honoring Gov. Don Samuelson and help raise funds for his campaign are now on sale announced Mr. Roper.

Declo Youth Plays In National Band

DECLO — Terril N. Hurst, 17, Declo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman F. # Accident Probe Closed

JEROME — Sheriff James Burns of Jerome County said today he is planning no further investigation in the death of Vere Spencer, 65, Jerome, who was fatally injured in an accident at the Amalgamated Sugar Co. beet dump here.

Sheriff Burns said the Saturday death was a most regrettable accident and he can see no need for further probing in the matter. Spencer was working at the top of a conveyor belt which unloads sugar beets and separates the beets from the dirt when his arm became entangled in the belt and he was pulled into the machinery.

Mini-Cassia Youth Can Enter Citizenship Awards Program

BURLEY — The Burley Soroptimist Club will participate in the Soroptimist Federation of the Americas' Youth Citizenship Awards for 1971. Mrs. Edith Raustadt, chairman of the public affairs committee for the local club, said today.

Young men or women who will be graduating from a public or private high school during the 1970-71 year are eligible to apply for the Youth Citizenship Award.

Applications are being sent to high schools at Burley, Minico, Oakley, Raft River and Declo by the public affairs committee.

There are 17 awards, each for $1,000 which will be presented to winners in 15 regions and two affiliated areas of the Federation and the finalist, one of the 17 regional winners will receive $1,500 additional.

The Soroptimist Youth Citizenship Awards are not scholarships, but are "Awards of Merit." Each award may be used at the discretion of the recipient, in any way he may decide which will best further his aims and purposes in achieving his goal, education, travel. The cash awards are paid in lump sums to the winning student.

Judging is based on service, dependability, leadership and a clear sense of purpose.

Applicants must have taken an active part in service, in home, school, and community, with a high degree of cooperation, courtesy, and consideration for others; they must have executed responsibilities with truthfulness, loyalty, and punctuality; must have demonstrated ability to lead with self-control, dignity, and responsibility; and must have pursued selected endeavors with sincerity and integrity.

Interested students in any high school in Cassia or Minidoka county may apply for the award by contacting their school counselor.

Applications must be returned to the Burley Soroptimist Club by Jan. 1, stated Mrs. Raustadt, chairman of the project.

Other club members serving on the public affairs with Mrs. Raustadt are Mrs. Al Dawson, Mrs. Wes Karlson and Mrs. Lloyd Hollinger.

Voters Have Clear Cut Choice on Gem Supreme Court Justices

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — Idahoans should have a clear-cut choice Nov. 3 when they mark their ballots for justice of the Supreme Court.

In this runoff election on the non-partisan ballot between the two top vote-getters in the Aug. 4 primary they will find men with divergent approaches to the state's highest judicial office.

They also will pick between two men who differ in age and, to a certain extent, in background.

Clay V. Spear, 57, the appointed incumbent running for his first six-year term on the court is a native of Montana. He is a University of Idaho law school graduate and — except for military service — practiced law at Coeur d'Alene from 1938 to 1953. Since then he has served 12 1/2 years as a district judge and 4 1/2 years as a Supreme Court Justice.

Will S. Defenbach, 44, is a Lawton native who attended Boise schools before receiving an accounting degree at the University of Idaho in 1947 and a law degree from there in 1953. He is chairman of the Industrial-Accident Board, had practiced law in Moscow and Boise, has served as a prosecutor and assistant attorney general and one session in the state Senate.

Because the judicial system is under fire across the land today, UPI asked both candidates how they felt the Idaho system could be strengthened and how its prestige could be enhanced.

Spear said he felt the new court reorganization which goes into effect next January and for which the Supreme Court is charged with rule formulation will help considerably.

"Probably the best method for enhancing the prestige of the court is for the efficient and prompt dispatch of the business before the court," Spear said, adding that court sessions should be open to the public "wherever possible."

Defenbach said he felt the court system can be strengthened "by better public relations and that would have to be done probably through the Idaho State Bar Association."

"The part the court can play in that is to encourage the bar association to promote a better image that the people have for the court system," Defenbach said. "The court is ultimately judged by the decisions it hands down."

On other questions, the candidates had this to say:

Q. "Do you favor the present system of electing judges in Idaho or would you recommend any changes and if you favor change what is it?"

Missouri Plan

Spear: "The modern trend of selecting judges is under some form or modified form of the Missouri plan in which the judges originally are appointed after a careful, selective screening process. Then after having served a reasonable length of time the judges run against their own record rather than against a named opponent. This plan I think I favor."

Defenbach: "As long as the law sets up certain basic qualifications of candidates I think the people should still have a say in the selection of judges."

Q. "Is membership on the Supreme Court large enough at the present time to handle the workload or would you favor an increase in membership?"

Spear: "At the present time I'd say the membership is ample. The new Supreme Court building has been built with chambers enough for a court of seven members looking forward to the time when no doubt the court should be increased to at least that number. Perhaps with the addition of some more law clerks to assist with research problems I feel that five members are sufficient."

Defenbach: "From what I understand the membership on the court now is not sufficient in numbers. However, it doesn't necessarily mean you have to increase the numbers on that court but consider possibly an intermediate appellate court between the Supreme Court and district courts as they do in other states. Regarding appeals you could have a special criminal appeals court which could take some of the load off the Supreme Court."

Q. "What do you offer the electorate as a candidate and what do you expect to accomplish if elected?"

Spear: "I offer the electorate over 17 consecutive years of experience as a member of the Idaho judiciary — over 12 1/2 years as a district or trial judge and nearly five years as a Supreme Court Justice... If elected I shall continue to perform my duties as a member of the court and to assist in any way I possibly can in any program to improve our system of justice. The opportunity is particularly acute at the present time with our new court reorganization program which I have backed from the very beginning, going into effect Jan. 11, 1971."

Defenbach: "I can only answer that by leaving the electorate have the judicial qualifications for the position and that the only thing I can say what I have to offer is to hand down the best decisions I can in any particular case."

Near Gov. Don Samuelson.

In addition to its airplane repair capability Air-Cymus has special welding expertise exemplified by the successful completion of a new engine on the hydrostatic engine used on recent engine tests at the Idaho Division of the Federal Aviation Agency.

City Manager Urges Architectural Stamp

BY BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Staff Writer
TWIN FALLS — An ordinance will come up for third and final reading at the next meeting of the Twin Falls city council Oct. 19, which City Manager Jean Millar noted today has an important bearing on public safety in Twin Falls.

The ordinance would require the stamp of approval of a licensed architect or engineer on all plans for commercial structures in Twin Falls. Some objection has been voiced, but Millar says he feels the matter is most important to the public in general and should be given consideration.

Under present regulations the city building inspector may, if he feels it necessary, require plans from a professional designer but it leaves the responsibility of drawing the line on need for a professional on the shoulders of one individual.

Millar cited the instance, earlier this year, in which a basement wall of a new commercial building collapsed as backfill work was started. He said he believes this was the direct result of faulty building design but fortunately the wall collapsed early in construction rather than after the building was completed and filled with people.

"I believe we owe the citizens of Twin Falls the greatest assurance of safety we can possibly offer and we would be neglecting our duties as city officials if we did not take every possible action to safeguard the public," Millar said.

"I intend to urge the city council to pass the ordinance following the third reading although some members have indicated they do not feel it necessary," he said.

As for headaches, Millar said he believes anyone who can afford to construct a commercial building can surely afford a small amount extra to have it properly designed or at least reviewed by a professionally trained person in the business of structural design.

He said there are some five firms in Twin Falls, each with several employees in either architectural or engineering fields who would be available for such work.

"I would also like it understood the feeling I have in the matter is in the interest of public safety and not because I am an engineer. This is beside the point but my background probably enhances my concern for seriousness of inadequate building support," he added.

The city manager said the building inspection system, electrical, plumbing and even fire inspection are aimed at protecting the public. It is defeating the purpose of this system if it is not carried through to the fullest possible extent.

With an ordinance on the books requiring all buildings to meet the same regulations, Millar said, the city is not forcing discrimination on area businessmen. As long as the building inspector is required by law to choose who shall and who shall not meet stringent requirements, the city is discriminating, he said.

"Any instance in which the use of professional services is considered to be an undue hardship, especially in building construction, is completely unrealistic," the city manager said.

Dining in Moscow Takes Planning

MOSCOW (UPI) — To dine out in Moscow, a Soviet citizen might have to apply in person for reservations, leave a deposit, and then buck crowds at the door when he arrives. But he enjoys himself mightily and tips grandly.

A foreign resident usually reserves by telephone, one of the privileges of status in this town. Chances are he will grumble at the food, deplore the slow service and tips, perhaps 10 to 15 per cent.

offer a single restaurant that is consistently first class in food and service, by the standards of San Francisco or New York, or Rome or Tokyo?

One might, dining out in Moscow, get scrumptious cold chicken zatsivi in walnut sauce at Aravgi, the Georgian restaurant, or a crisp duck stuffed with apples at Praga, or a heavenly blind with sour cream and black faviar at the Metropole. Or one might also get the waiter's thumb in cold food after an hour's wait and there is no telling in advance which it will be.

Whatever happens, it all develops from the fact your charming host for the evening is the Soviet government. Restaurants are run by the Restaurant Trust, whose director is appointed by the Ministry of Food Production.

There are only 20 to 25 top class restaurants in Moscow, defined as those recommended in various guides, and this leads to a seller's market that can make getting through the door, even with a reservation, a trial.

Invariably there are crowds who, having failed to get a booking or forgot to ask for one, are jamming the entrance.

Once inside you will encounter delays in service that challenge comparison. There are two reasons for the slow service, and one is a perfectly good one.

Restaurants are an odd institution in both the Russian and the Communist scheme of things. They stand in for nonexistent nightclubs and casinos, make do for the citizen with a couple of paydays in his pocket, host uproarious wedding parties and family reunions and feasts of no particular excess.

Dining out top-drawer is a very special occasion for the average Moscow wage earner. For the foreigner it is, to put the best on it, an interesting experience.

Where else does the waiter pay for your meal himself in advance, getting a chit from the cashier which he presents to the cook? Where else does the cook prepare the meal from stocks purchased by a civil servant, who bought them with an eye to fulfilling an assignment in the local economic plan?

And what other city of nearly seven-million persons cannot

WARNINGS GIVEN by this sign and others of similar nature are too frequently ignored by motorists who zip through the vicinity of schools in Twin Falls without slackening their speed.

The disregard of warnings that a school crossing or a school is near — with a concentration of children almost certain — is a certain invitation to tragedy and heartbreak.

Black Leader Decries Crisis in America

DETROIT (UPI)—Robert F. Williams is a pioneer of modern black rebellion. He has been a wanted man for almost a decade. When he talks about blood and battle, crisis and catastrophe in America's streets, it is like hearing a man describe the Apocalypse in his sleep.

"America now is just like a mine in a mine," he says. "A man who sits on a railroad track and the train is coming and he can hear this train. It's a fast, crack train. And he can hear it in the distance. He can hear it hum.

"And he just sits on the railroad track. He knows it's coming. He like a dream. He just can't seem to bring himself to get up. And the train's getting nearer and nearer and nearer.

"And pretty soon that's all. But he just didn't have the will to get up. He was so demoralized, so torn apart, so frustrated. That's what's happening in America."

Many, including most moderate blacks, say the words don't match reality, either. Others, especially militant blacks, see the seeds of truth in Williams' views.

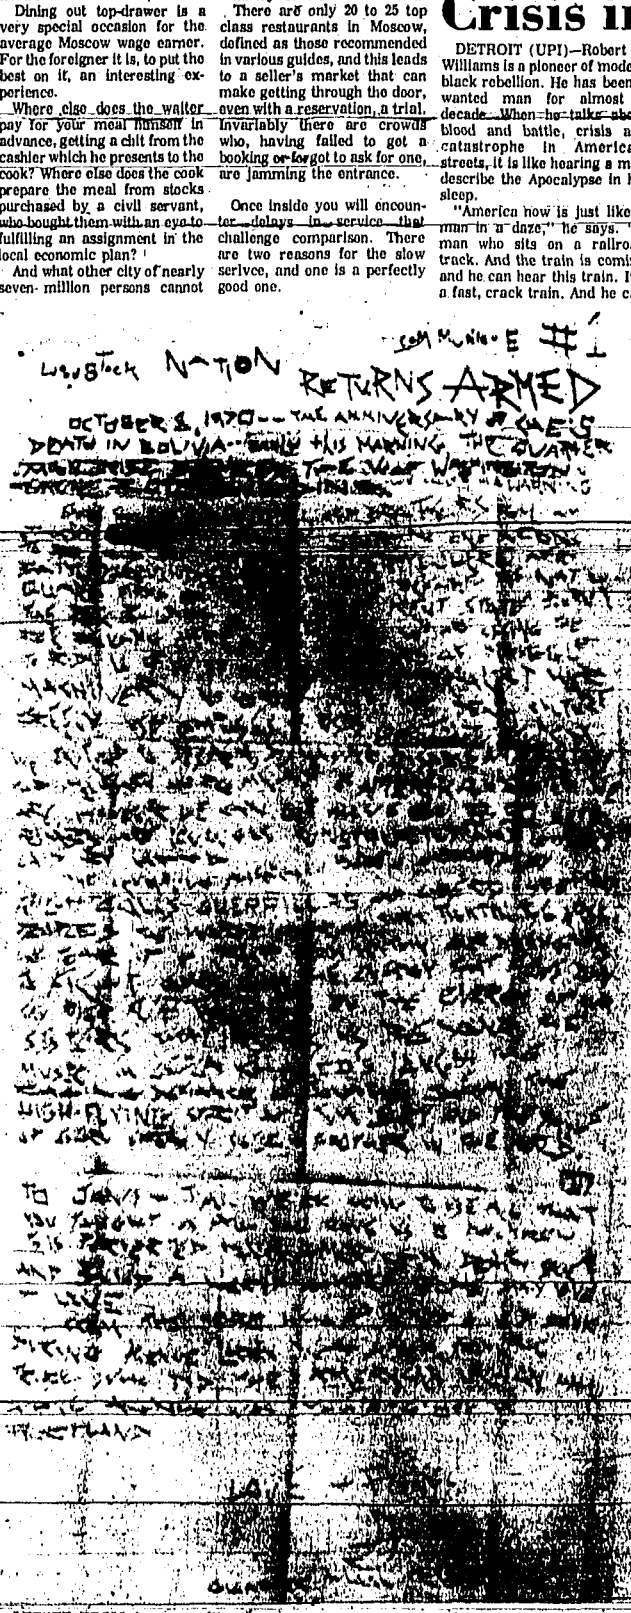

Williams, 47, is a tall, broad-shouldered man with a wide face framed between a graying goatee and bushy, graying hair. He has several firsts in the annals of American black militancy.

When he published the book "Nigger with Guns," Williams became one of the first—if not the first—of the new breed of black revolutionaries to openly urge Negroes to meet white violence with black violence.

When he fled from North Carolina to Cuba in 1961 to escape a kidnapping charge which he says was drummed up, Williams became one of the first black militants to seek exile in foreign lands. When he flew to Detroit in a jet plane one Indian summer day in 1969, alone except for the crew and a police guard, he became the first of the voluntary exiles to come back and face the charges against him.

To many blacks and whites, Williams was a leading figure in black militancy in the late 1960s and early 1960s. He became president of the Monroe, N.C., chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) in 1958 after serving a four-year hitch in the armed forces.

Randy P. Kloro, 17, Murtaugh, forfeited $5 bond in Burley Police Court for improper parking.

Terry C. Dodge, 17, Burley, was fined $10 by Judge Willis for following too closely and $10 for failure to register vehicle.

Jack D. Dexter, 32, Burley, was fined $10 by Judge Willis for expired vehicle inspection sticker.

Minuteman Sentenced To Prison

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI)—Robert Bollivar DePugh, 47, leader of the rightwing Minuteman organization, was sentenced to 10 years in prison by a federal judge Friday on charges of unlawful possession of unregistered firearms.

DePugh, who acted as his own defense attorney during the week-long trial, indicated he will appeal the conviction.

"I told the truth, my witnesses told the truth during the trial," DePugh told Judge H. Earle Payne at the sentencing hearing.

DePugh and his assistant, Walter Payson, were arrested July 12, 1969.

Capital Hacked From Jungle

BELIZE, British Honduras (UPI)—A futuristic capital city with an ancient name has been hacked from the jungle in the last British colony on the Latin American mainland.

Premier George Price and hundreds of civil servants already have moved to Belmopan, in the geographical center of British Honduras. By the end of the year, the new city's population is expected to reach 5,000.

The colonial government is committed to almost doubling its initial $14 million investment by 1980. Population is then targeted for 30,000.

The new capital was named for the Mopan Indians, Mayan rulers of the area in pre-Columbian times. It is 60 miles inland from Belize, former seaport-capital of this narrow Vermont-sized territory along the Caribbean coast of Mexico's Yucatan peninsula.

The British and colonial governments have pledged independence for the colony's 110,000 residents, who are about 70 per cent Negro. Officials here say the date depends on an end to territorial claims by neighboring Guatemala and defense guarantees by Britain. Neither has been forthcoming.

The idea to move the capital from the low-lying coast originated in 1961, when Hurricane Hattie ripped into Belize. Eighty-five per cent of the city was destroyed and 292 persons killed.

Full-scale construction started in 1965. Some local politicians oppose Belmopan on financial grounds. Their arguments are similar to those of Brazilian leaders in the last decade, who complained their nation's new capital, Brasilia, was too expensive.

Phillip S. Goldson, leader of the National Independence party, said "the new capital will greatly increase the cost of administering the country without promoting a parallel increase in development of the country."

Added People's Development Movement leader Dean Lindo: "I see no justification for it."

Also concerned are the 40,000 residents of Belize. They fear their city will shrivel in importance once Belmopan is completed.

To calm their anxiety, the colonial government said recently that Belize "will not disappear. On the contrary, it has been made clear that advantage will be taken of the opportunity which the new capital will provide for tidying up the old capital, carrying out badly needed redevelopment and selective reclamation projects."

Morale at Belmopan is high. Junior civil servants are delighted with their modern masonry homes, larger and better equipped than the ones they had in Belize. Senior civil servants have less spacious homes than in the old capital, but few are grumbling.

The 450-acre city is at the juncture of the colony's major north-south and east-west highways. Farmers are using the roads to make Belmopan a prime market for their produce.

The new capital is imaginatively laid out.

BOISE (UPI)—The commander of the Idaho National Guard has ordered stepped-up police surveillance of military and federal aviation facilities in Idaho as a result of threats of bombings.

Gen. George Bennett said he was acting in response to a directive he received from the National Military Command Center in Washington, D. C. The latter said militant members of the Weatherman faction of Students for a Democratic Society had telephoned the Pentagon threatening bombings of West Coast governmental installations.

Bennett said the recent bombings in San Rafael, Santa Barbara, Calif. and Seattle are part of the pattern of bombings threatened in the phone call.

He says the directive was issued in the wake of threats by fugitive leader of the weathermen, Bernadine Dorn, who said young people will carry the campaign from Boston to Santa Barbara and back to Kent State and Kansas.

Bennett said the increased patrols began Friday night and will continue until he receives further orders from Washington.

Guards Order Alert

Modern Thieves Ruin Germany's Old Castles

WIESBADEN, Germany (UPI)—What no medieval marauder could do to Germany's mighty castles 20th century thieves are doing.

Armed with extension ladders, lock-picking devices and hired trucks to haul away the booty, these modern raiders are looting the old fortresses almost at will.

Antique guns, swords, spears, ancient suits of armor, coins, sculpture, painting, tapestries—all are targets. Even a set of manacles was pried off a crumbling dungeon wall in one case.

Police put the losses in the millions of dollars. They believe the jobs are done on a contract basis by several gangs of well-organized professionals who sell the stolen goods abroad.

"There is a growing demand for these sort of antiques, especially among private collectors in the United States," said a police spokesman.

The rash of break-ins began in 1968 and has become so serious that earlier this year authorities set up a special office in Wiesbaden to deal with nothing else.

Thieves seem to have made special targets of the nearly two dozen museum-filled castles which dot both sides of the middle Rhine Valley between

Officers in Utah Taking Precaution

By United Press International

Government installations and some law enforcement agencies in Utah have taken extra security precautions as a result of bomb threats from militant radicals.

Local agencies and authorities report they have received various instructions from officials in Washington, D.C., to be alert for the possibility of bombings by members of the militant Weatherman organization.

The instructions reportedly said the Pentagon had received telephone threats against West Coast government installations.

Maj. Gen. Maurice L. Watts, adjutant general of the Utah National Guard, said he has increased security at guard installations, particularly aviation facilities.

D.R. Newton, assistant area manager of the Federal Aviation Administration, said he was notified of a potential threat to FAA installations by FAA officials in Washington. He said he is using contingency plans for the protection of major installations including the Salt Lake City International Airport.

He declined to elaborate on the nature of the plans in the interest of security, but the Salt Lake County Sheriff has been alerted to the possibility of assisting in security at the airport.

A spokesman at Hill Air Force Base said extra patrols are being used around the base perimeter, and extra guards are stationed at the gates and flight facilities.

Ogden City Police report they have been notified of the threat and are making extra patrols around a number of installations there.

Other major government installations in the state of Utah include the Tooele Army Depot, Dugway Proving Ground, the Hill Air Force Base Test Range west of the Great Salt Lake, the Army-Missile-launch site at Black Mesa near Blanding, and the Defense Depot Ogden.

Modern Thieves Ruin Germany's Old Castles

Coblentz and Bingen. But the castle Arolsen in North Hesse was burgled seven times in eight months, and the largest single haul to date—valued at $270,000—was of old weapons and coins from the Loewenburg near Kassel.

Often sitting alone and unlighted in forests or on remote hillides, the castles are ideal targets. Few have electronic alarms or guards and the door locks themselves frequently are antiques.

Moats present no challenge—they were turned to pasture years ago. For the more daring second-story man, vine-covered walls can be scaled easily.

In one case, raiders simply borrowed a ladder from a nearby construction site, climbed the wall, and once inside used the ladder a second time to reach the window of the treasure room.

Police have had limited success in stopping the robberies. They also are understandably reluctant to discuss more sophisticated means used to get into castles—for fear it would prompt even more thefts.

"But basically it goes like this," explained the police spokesman. "One member visits the castle as a tourist, photographs items which look saleable and inspects the security system—if there is one.

"The photographs are forwarded to a receiver of stolen goods with contacts abroad. When he gets an order, he passes it on, and the gang goes to work."

Lamonica's Bombs Let Raiders Whip Denver

OAKLAND (UPI)—Daryle Lamonica threw four touchdown passes and set up a fifth score with a 51-yard "bomb" Sunday as the previously winless Oakland Raiders handed the Denver Broncos their first defeat of the season 35-23.

Lamonica, in his best passing show of the season, completed 20 of 37 passes for 384 yards. To win, the Raiders came from behind with two fourth quarter touchdowns as they gained their first victory after two losses and a tie. For the Broncos, who were seven-point underdogs, it was the first loss after three triumphs.

Chicago Star May Be Lost

CHICAGO (UPI)—Gale Sayers, who has been out with injuries since the start of the season, returned to action Sunday, but pulled up during the first quarter with an injury which could cost his services to the Chicago Bears for the next few games or possibly the entire campaign.

The exact nature of the injury to the fancy-footed Bear running back was not immediately disclosed, but he was taken to Illinois Masonic Hospital for an examination. There was a possibility of surgery.

The injury was to Sayers' left leg, the same leg which has been hobbled by a severe bone bruise suffered at the start of the exhibition season. Sayers saw action in the league opener against the New York Giants, but had to sit out the two succeeding games. He started against the Minnesota Vikings Sunday, but had to leave the game in the second quarter after trying fruitlessly to chase down Alan Page on his way to a 65-yard touchdown run following a recovered fumble.

Packers, S. D. Play Tonight

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The question of whether the Pack Back may be answered Monday night as the Green Bay Packers and San Diego Chargers tangle in a National Football League game.

Off their victory over defending NFL champion Minnesota last week, the Packers appear ready to go the distance, but San Diego provides a challenge to the pass defense and the offense.

Green Bay is without Dave Hampton, whose touchdown kickoff return spelled the difference last week, but it still has the defense which held the Vikings to 57 yards rushing, intercepted two passes and sacked the quarterback six times last week. San Diego quarterbacks were thrown for losses 10 times against the Los Angeles Rams and do not expect to find a breather.

Bruins Open On 7-3 Win

BOSTON (UPI)—Don Marcotte scored two short-handed Bruin goals during the same Boston penalty in the third period Sunday night to pace a season opening 7-3 victory over the Detroit Red Wings.

The prong-horned antelope is the fastest mammal in North America.

Chiefs Defeat Boston

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Robert Holmes scored two touchdowns on short bursts, Jan Stenerud kicked three fieldgoals and the Kansas City Chiefs defeated the Boston Patriots 21-13.

The 35-year-old Brodie was outstanding on offense but the Forty Niner defense played a large part in the upset. Middle linebacker Frank Nunley and end Tommy Hart and Bruce Taylor and Roosevelt Taylor in Chiefs' defense held an important Boston to six first downs Sunday in a 23-10 American Football Conference victory. Joe Kapp, last year's National Football League Player of the Year played the second half for the Patriots and was given a rough greeting by the Chiefs, just as he was in last season's Super Bowl.

The Chiefs intercepted six Patriot passes, four off the arm of Mike Taliaferro and two by Kapp. Holmes scored from one yard out in the second quarter and from 2 yards away in the fourth period.

Ed Podolak carried five times in the Chiefs' seven-play, 55-yard march that put Kansas City out of reach at 20-3 early in the fourth quarter. Podolak scampered 33 yards on a third-and-one situation that put the ball on the Patriots' 13.

Stenerud's second fieldgoal, on the first play of the last quarter, covered 44 yards. The soccer-styler kicker added a 24-yarder with 5:17 left.

Boston's lone touchdown came with 1:44 to play on a 12 yard pass from Kapp to Bake Turner. The score was set up by a 72 yard return of a pass interception by Art McMahon.

Burns Fantastic Says BSC Coach

BOISE (UPI)—Next Saturday's Idaho State University-University of Montana football game in Pocatello could well decide who will be the Big Sky Conference champion.

Saturday ISU was busy keeping its title dreams alive as the Bengals dumped upset-minded Montana State University 24-21 in a game played in Bozeman.

The University of Idaho, in Pullman, Washington, looked like it might pull an upset over the University of Montana in the first half, but ran out of gas as the Vandals lost their fifth straight 44-28.

In Long Beach, Calif., Cal State at Long Beach smothered any hopes Boise State College had of winning the conference title as the Forty-Niners downed the Broncos 27-14. This game was one of four games counting as conference titles for BSC—it was a must game for Boise.

ISU head coach Ed Cavanaugh, extremely pleased over his squads third win of the season, said "the two key plays, one a blocked field goal by Steve Mandelkow and a touchdown pass from Jerry Dunne to Carlis Harris, were the clinchers in this game."

He said Mandelkow made a brilliant block of an Orvil Torr attempted field goal, which if good, would have knotted the score at 24 each.

Dunne hit him with a 70-yard touchdown strike to give the Bengals a 24-21 lead. It was the 70-yard pass play from Dunne to Harris, on a third and 15 situation, that led the game for the Bengals.

"It was just a normal game until the fourth quarter—then it just turned into a war. There was a great effort by the Bobcats, but I think our boys deserve a lot of credit—they just kept on coming back," Cavanaugh said.

"Our defense was tough—especially when it counted. Again I have to single out Ray Catolico for outstanding defensive play."

"Ray Millward, starting his first game at fullback, played brilliantly gaining 99 yards and scoring one touchdown," the ISU mentor said.

A cancelled two point conversion, that would have given the University of Idaho a 15-14 lead, may have been the key to the University of Montana's 44-24 win over the Vandals.

Drivers, slow down at sundown, advises the Idaho State Police. Drive at speeds which will permit you to stop within the clearly visible distance ahead.

A pass play by Vandal quarterback Steve Olson for an attempted two-point conversion, was called back when Olson crossed the line of scrimmage before releasing the ball. Had the play been good, it would have put the Vandals in the lead and possibly provided the spark to push the Vandals to an upset win. But life never counts in the final score.

"We just got beat by a better team than we were tonight," Boise State assistant coach George Squires said. "Long Beach's Leon Burns, who rushed for 97 yards in the first half, was just fantastic. He's one of the finest athletes I've seen anywhere."

It was the first loss of the season for the highly regarded Boise State eleven against four wins.

Dallas Aces, of which I am a member, play limit raises. As Oswald: "The thing to remember when you play JACOBY MODERN limit raises is that the single-jump raise shows a good hand. Partner wants you to continue to game and you should do so with anything more than a bare minimum."

Jim: "Today's game contract is reached after a limit raise by North. South has only 12 high-card points for his opening bid but the singleton is worth two points and the jump raise has helped him. He goes on to game cheerfully."

Oswald: "A king of diamonds lead and diamond continuation would beat the contract but West has a normal heart lead. After that, South just draws trumps and concedes two diamonds and a club."

IT WAS THE CRUSADERS returning from the Holy Wars who first introduced marijuana into Europe, I'm told.... STUDIES SHOW a boy is most apt to shoplift at age 13, a girl at age 16.... WERE YOU AWARE there's only one word in English that begins with "ud"?

LOVE-AND-WAR—To be attractive to members of the opposite sex, a girl must remember four rules. So advises an expert on romance in a letter to our Love and War man. They are: 1. Look alive. 2. Forget your faults. 3. Admire masculinity. 4. Respond with feeling. "Any young lady inevitably will draw numerous male admirers if she observes these rules," contends this authority. "They're basic."

A MORTICIAN down in Atlanta, Ga., has installed five drive-in windows in his funeral parlor. This lets the bereaved view the remains without getting out of their cars. What do you think of that?... I'VE NOTICED something peculiar. Almost every time you see somebody riding a horse along a road, that somebody is a girl. CUSTOMER SERVICE - Q. "I'd like to compete in that contest you started to find the perfect feminine figure. I'm 28, the mother of four, have dark brown hair, green eyes, and stand 5-foot-3 1/2-inches tall, weigh 112 pounds, and tape measure 38-23-36. How does that stack up?" A. Not bad, not bad. Green eyes, you say? Think of that! How come you didn't send a snapshot? Nevermind, I'll take your word for it! Incidentally, ought to confess I didn't start that contest. It has been going on for some time.... Q. "Why is it Amish men refuse to wear buttons on their coats?" A. Because buttons ornamented the uniforms of the military boys back in the old 'country, and the Amish never much went for that.

Some people suffer from nerves, and the rest of us suffer from other people's nerve.

One thing you can bet on: If your office phone gives back the "busy" signal, that's one thing that helps isn't.

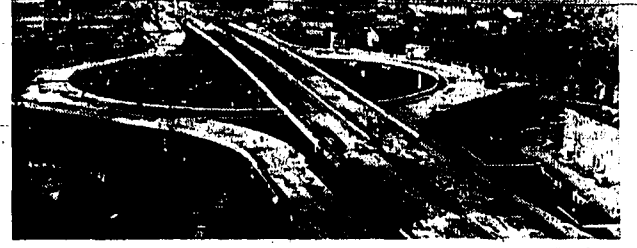

It's always spring time when three friends meet in a bar.

Insomnia we know goes to bed at 6 every evening to catch up on his sheep.

LARGEST GANTRY CRANE in the world to ride on rubber tires is shown at work at the Port of Philadelphia recently. Each of the eight tires has a 10-square-foot "footprint," and can tote a load of more than 43 tons as the huge crane travels under the power of its 775-horsepower diesel engine. The 335-ton crane rises 159 feet to the top of its raised boom and can lift up to 75 tons at a "reach of 75 feet." (UP)

CLOVERLEAF JUNCTION, a massive elevated structure, will link central London to outlying areas. It's part of the city's $79.2-million Western Avenue extension.

NOTED FOR ITS AUSTRITY, England seems to be outdone here, French policemen, left, pile on one motorcycle in a show at Japan's Expo '70. Royal marines, right, use 13 bikes to perform a trick used in their act which tours Britain in the summer. Whether it's all on one or one over all, there's no shortage of skill on part of the cyclists.

THERE'S NOTHING NEW under the sun. To today's car buyer, all-aluminum engines, remote-control electric door latches, preset speed selectors and coil springs on each wheel may sound like the last word in automotive inventiveness, but they all date back at least half a century. These photos taken in Harry Rausch's motor museum at Ellenville, N.Y., prove the point. Headlights controlled from driver's seat could turn up, down and sideways on 1922 Rolls Royce, top left. Tilted steering wheel, a "modern" feature, was found on 1943 Winston, bottom left, and a 1919 Owen, bottom right, boasted automatic transmission (legs are 1970 model). At top right, Rausch takes it easy and leaves driving to back-seat occupant holding tiller of 1914 Rausch and Lang Electric.

30 Seats Needed By GOP

By ROBERT STRAND
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Growing numbers of university researchers are seriously intrigued with notions that ghosts are real and walking on water is possible.

These researchers were given status last December when the Parapsychologist Association was admitted to membership in the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

In the last few years, the number of accredited scientists doing some kind of psychical research in the United States has grown from a small number to 750, according to Dr. Theima Moss, a psychologist at UCLA.

Yet many of the researchers fear of the implications of their work; it was agreed at a recent symposium, discussing the state of the science, at the University of California Extension, San Francisco.

"Extrasensory perception—if it really exists—would be like an atomic bomb," says Dr. Moss. "What can be used for good, can also be used for evil."

"To put it bluntly, what we are really talking about could be the death ray," says Dr. Charles Tart of the University of California, Davis. "Maybe we have this capacity. This is something we don't like to face."

"In fact, if you offered these researchers a pill called telepathy, nobody would take it. Would you like to know every thought of the people around you?"

"Parapsychologists hold no absolute conviction that psychic forces exist. But because of occasional, extraordinary events without physical explanation, they believe the possibility of psychic causes must be explored.

Jesus' walking on water was levitation, his curing of the sick was psychokinesis, and the prediction of his betrayal, precognition, Dr. Moss says.

Dr. Milan Rizi, a Czech, told the symposium that psychic research began in the Soviet Union shortly after the 1917 revolution when Durov appeared successful in conveying commands to dogs by telepathy.

At UCLA, Dr. Moss puts human "transmitters" to concentrating on emotion-evoking pictures—while "receivers" in the next room give their free associations.

At Maimonides Hospital in New York, transmitters concentrate on pictures nearby when sleeping receivers show signs of beginning to dream. After the dream, the receiver is awakened and asked about his dream.

In both experiments the receivers seem to be thinking something like the transmitter's thoughts at a rate defying the mathematical odds. Recently Dr. Moss carried out a simultaneous test in Los Angeles, New York and Sussex, England, suggesting to her that distance is not a barrier.

The most famous American experiments were those of Dr. J.B. Rhine at Duke University. Success rates of his subjects beat astronomical odds in guessing card sequences before, during and after.

A Rhine disciple, Dr. Helmut Schmidt, currently has a half dozen people who better the odds in choosing 100,000 times between four buttons, they score "hits" an average of 27 times. Chance would be 25.

Most investigations of poltergeist — invisible forces that make things jump around a haunted house—now are being pursued in England and Germany.

Dr. Arthur Hastings, a Stanford University professor of public address, a decade ago studied a household in Guttenburg, Iowa, in which eggs flew about in the dark and people were dumped out of bed. Hastings said the poltergeist turned out to be a resentful teenager.

But Hastings is convinced of the genuineness of an Oakland, Calif., case, also involving a youth. Under police interrogation, the young man later confessed the mischief, but Hastings says too many people saw too many flying things for too long—when the youth could not have been responsible.

SANDING THE SEA, this dredger is experimenting with a new method of clearing oil spills and slicks on the ocean. Equipped with two 60-foot booms, ship spreads tons of chemically treated sand on spill. Oil attaches itself to chemical and sinks to bottom of the sea. In test off coast of Holland, method cleared 100 tons of crude oil within 15 minutes with 95 per cent effectiveness. Sand must be applied on a one-to-one weight ratio with oil to work.

Savants Ponder Ghosts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Under "Foley's Law," the Republicans need issues worth about 30 House seats just to hold their own — in — the congressional elections Nov. 3.

Their campaign oratory suggests that they think they have found those issues in the crime, campus disorder, drug abuse combination that they are blaming on the "permissive" attitudes of liberal Democrats.

And they will hope that President Nixon's Southeast Asia peace plan will generate more votes for GOP candidates.

But Foley's law, proclaimed in the April issue of the monthly publication of the Ripon Society, a liberal Republican group, points to rising unemployment as a drag on the GOP ticket at election time.

The author was Duncan K. Foley, an economist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who measured the Republican membership of the House against the October unemployment index just before each of the last 10 elections. He concluded that the GOP needed an unemployment rate of about 2 per cent just to win a bare majority of the 434 House seats and that each increase of one percentage point cost the Republicans about 16 seats.

Foley acknowledged that issues other than unemployment affected the congressional election results, but he held that a high jobless rate must be the GOP's.

The September unemployment rate announced Oct. 2 was 5.5 per cent. Chairman Paul W. McCracken of the Council of Economic Advisors said the economic outlook still was favorable but that the unemployment rate might go higher before it fell.

English Actress Returns To Hollywood Unheralded

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Fourteen years ago Diana Dors, buxom, blonde and sexy, came to Hollywood billed as England's answer to Marilyn Monroe.

This month she returned on a visit unheralded, with her third husband and — if anything — might be considered England's answer to Shelley Winters.

That is no easy transition. Diana, however, has gained at least a pound for each year since her first landing on these shores.

And while she is no longer a sex kitten, neither are many of her contemporaries keeping Raquel Welch awake at night. "Sex appeal has a limited career span and professional future," Diana admitted. Her husband, Alan Lake, nine years her junior, nodded agreement: "No one takes a sex symbol seriously. You're insulted and arrows are shot at you from all directions."

Lake again agreed. The two of them will star this year on a new British television series, "Queenie's Castle." Diana will play the title role, the mother of three rowdy teen-age sons. "It's a character role and a long way from my sex symbol parts, I'm happy to say," Diana said, happy to say it.

"The show will probably never be seen in America because our situation comedies are more realistic than in this country. Our situations are plausible, in fact taken from life. Yours are fairy tales. "I don't think an American would enjoy watching a working class English family involved in its day-to-day problems. Everyday life in England is so realistic and grim that people here can't comprehend it.

"Our longest running series is 'Coronation Street.' It would have been sold to an American network long ago but it has no entertainment value over here. The accents and the situations are so thick they simply wouldn't be understood.

"No English situation comedy is not for Americans. What we consider funny, Americans interpret as grim."

Her husband nodded grimly.

ation, they believe the possibility of psychic causes must be explored.

Jesus' walking on water was levitation, his curing of the sick was psychokinesis, and the prediction of his betrayal, precognition, Dr. Moss says.
