Made it!...

MOUNTAIN CLIMBER Warren Harding lifts his hands in triumph, too, as he arrives at the summit of 3,400-foot El Capitan in Yosemite National Park. He and his fellow climber, Dean Caldwell, started climbing Oct. 19 and completed the ascent shortly before noon Wednesday. Below, weary, but smiling, Caldwell emerges over the crest of the face of El Capitan. (UPI)

30-day climb meets success

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (UPI)—Dean Caldwell and Warren Harding are men of enduring courage and physical strength, each with a different feeling upon becoming the first to conquer a 3,000-foot sheer granite monolith that draws the floor of the Yosemite Valley.

TWIN FALLS — New schedules for solid waste collection in Twin Falls become effective Dec. 3, City Manager Jean-Milard said today.

The new schedules provide for service five days each week by Parks and Sons, contractor for the service. A discussion of the revised schedules is carried on Page 12 of today's edition of the Times-News.

Their success came one week after a party dispatched by park rangers to rescue the pair from the storm-buffed granite precipice was shooed away by a bellowed "like hell!" from Harding.

"This is the greatest thing I've ever done," Harding said. "Warren says he smells like a decaying rhino," said Caldwell, "and I think I smell like a beached whale."

Jury hits deadlock

BURLEY — Cassia County officials were seeking legal advice today to determine what to do with what may be the county's first hung coroner's jury.

A six-member jury Wednesday night returned a verdict of no decision in the cause of the death of George Martin, 65, whose body was found Nov. 11 in a borrow pit along Highway 30 south of Malta.

Sheriff Ray G. Mitchell has cited Valentino Perez, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Perez, Malta, with a hit-and-run traffic violation. The youth, who must appear in court within five days, was one of eight witnesses to testify at the inquest.

Coroner Bruce Young said the jury was unable to agree if the death should be "properly categorized as involuntary manslaughter or a simple accident case."

They indicated Martin's death was caused by being struck by a motor vehicle, knocking him into a metal sign, the impact causing his death. The vehicle was operated by an individual in violation of the Idaho code, the jurors' statement reads, in that he held no valid driver's permit.

The statement indicates there was no evidence of negligence or recklessness on the driver's part, but the fact remains had not the individual violated the law by driving without a permit, he would not have been on the highway to become involved in this accident.

Coroner Young said Pros. Atty. Gordon Nielson, after getting advice from the state, will decide whether another inquest should be called, or the matter dropped. According to law, a coroner's jury is to establish cause of death, but its action is only advisory and not legally binding, he said. Decisions must be unanimous, Nielson indicated.

During the inquest the Perez youth testified he had hit something, but saw nothing. When he got home he told his father and they both went back to the site and looked, but found nothing.

Mr. Martin was last seen alive Nov. 7 by his employer, Blaine Wight, Malta.

Jurors were John Almanza, Wendell McMurray, Jim Henderson, Al Nielson, Reed Bowen and Ralph Rasmussen.

Raids net Jerome, T.F. Men

TWIN FALLS — Three arrests, two on drug charges, have been made by Twin Falls and Jerome police following raids on residences in those two cities.

Capt. Tim Qualls of the Twin Falls Police Department detective division, said Bob Slack, 23, Jerome, and Lyle Scott Harman, Twin Falls, 18, both are charged with illegal possession of dangerous drugs. Also arrested, on a charge of receiving stolen property, was Walter Glenn Ellison, 18, Twin Falls.

Slack was arrested in Jerome. Harman and Ellison were arrested in Twin Falls, Qualls said. He said drugs valued at about $900 on the illegal market were confiscated in the Twin Falls raid.

Qualls said the two residences had been under surveillance by officers in Twin Falls and Jerome. Search warrants were obtained for both places Wednesday because it was believed activities at the two were related, he said.

The arrests, Qualls said, took place between 10:30 p. m. Wednesday and 4 a. m. Thursday in a cooperative effort of the two police departments.

Qualls said items taken in a recent burglary in Magic Valley also were recovered at both houses. He said more arrests are pending.

Starving victims scabble

DACCA, East Pakistan (UPI) — The starving peasants scrambled in the earth for rice between the carcasses of cattle dead six days. It was the only food available.

United Press International Television News cameraman Ed Van Kan and I walked carefully between the thousands of human and animal bodies littering offshore islands which we visited in the wake of the cyclone and tidal waves which last week killed, by unofficial estimate, 300,000 people.

Devastation was everywhere as we looked down from the small 25-year-old seaplane which first landed on Mampura Island, 160 miles south of Dacca.

There, people crowded around a relief boat that was making its southernmost stop so far.

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI) — The Army is piling up evidence of pointblank slaughter of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai but two of its key witnesses said they never saw Lt. William L. Calley Jr. in the ill-fated hamlet.

The stocky, 5-foot-3 Calley, who led his infantry platoon on a sweep of My Lai on March 16, 1968, is charged with the premeditated murder of 102 unarmed civilians.

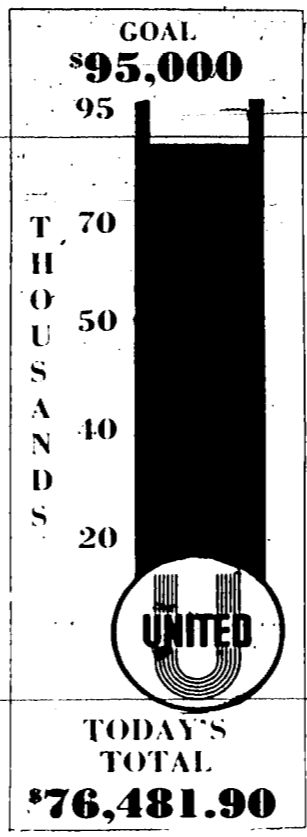

The court-martial went into its third day of testimony today.

The final witness Wednesday told the court-martial board of six officers that he entered the hamlet with another platoon on the same sweep by Charley Company that day. Approaching the village, he said, he saw 15 or 20 pajama-clad women and children standing and sitting, with two or three American GIs on "both sides of them."

The witness, Spec. T4 Frank Beardstee, 23, of New Lothrop, Mich., said he accompanied a squad away from the scene and eventually returned.

The women and children were still there, he said—but "all dead...at the exact same location."

U.S. keeps surveillance

PARIS (UPI) — The United States informed Hanoi today it would continue its reconnaissance flights over North Vietnam and would take "whatever measures are necessary" to protect the planes and pilots.

The statement by Ambassador David K. E. Bruce followed last week's incident in which North Vietnamese gunners shot down an unarmed reconnaissance Phantom jet 100 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone and presumably killed the two pilots.

Before today's session began, North Vietnamese peace negotiator Xuan Thuy told reporters North Vietnam will not allow the United States to carry out reconnaissance flights over its territory. In doing so he rejected a statement by U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird that the United States halted its bombing raids on North Vietnam under a 1968 tacit agreement allowing the reconnaissance flights.

Bruce remarked that on Nov. 13 the Communists shot down an unarmed reconnaissance aircraft with two crew members, and that Hanoi had denounced such flights "in an attempt to justify this attack."

He said: "We have always made it clear that the United States would continue aerial reconnaissance over North Vietnam following the cessation of bombing on Nov. 1, 1968. Aerial reconnaissance is not an act involving the use of force. Reconnaissance flights are essential to the safety and security of our forces in South Vietnam."

"We have also made clear that we would take whatever measures are necessary to protect our reconnaissance aircraft and their pilots. Our policy with respect to reconnaissance flights and to related measures of protective reaction remains unchanged."

There was no immediate indication what would be the Communist Vietnamese reaction at the Paris peace talks.

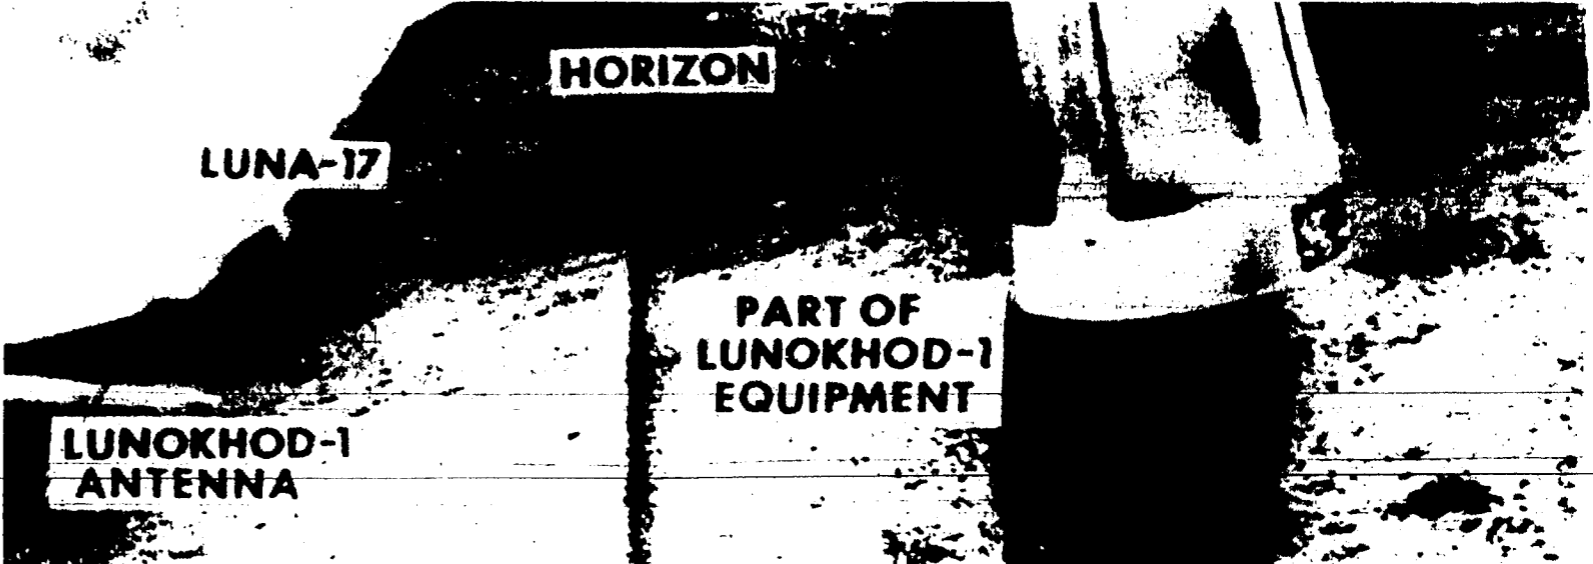

Taiwan may hold seat

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Nationalist China appeared headed for success today in its struggle to keep its United Nations seat despite mounting support for the admission of Communist China that is expected to make Friday's vote the closest in years.

Observers estimated the Nationalists would win by three or four votes.

In the event that prevote calculations were wrong, Chiang Kai-shek's delegation is protected by the perennial "insurance" resolution backed by the United States that would require a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly to effect a change. Not even the most enthusiastic supporters of Mao Tse-tung's Peking regime believed the Chinese Communists could muster a two-thirds vote. The best Peking achieved in 19 previous votes was 47-47 tie in 1965. The 1969 vote was 56-48 against admission, with 21 abstentions.

Ex-Blaine coroner dies

HAILEY — Dr. R. H. Wright, 88, retired physician and former Blaine County coroner, died Wednesday night at the Wood River Convalescent Center, Shoshone, of a brief illness.

He was born Dec. 29, 1881, in Powder County, Ore. He was graduated from medical school in St. Louis, Mo., and moved to Hailey in 1907.

He had practiced medicine in Hailey for 60 years.

He married Cynthia Beamer on June 30, 1906, in Bellevue.

Funeral services are pending at Bird Funeral Home, Hailey.

Trade bill survives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The most controversial trade bill in a generation was intact and all but assured of House passage today, despite a cliff-hanging battle waged by its opponents.

The free traders—those opposed to the bill's restrictions on the import of shoes, textiles and possibly other goods—said they lost their battle Wednesday because of the last-minute efforts of Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., who threatened to withdraw the bill if it was hit with amendments.

"It was the old pro with a key play in the clutch," Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., said of Mills after he and his allies found themselves on the short end after a series of House votes.

Typhoon hits Philippines

MANILA (UPI) — The worst typhoon to hit Manila since 1882 swept through the Philippine capital area today, apparently causing heavy damage and casualties.

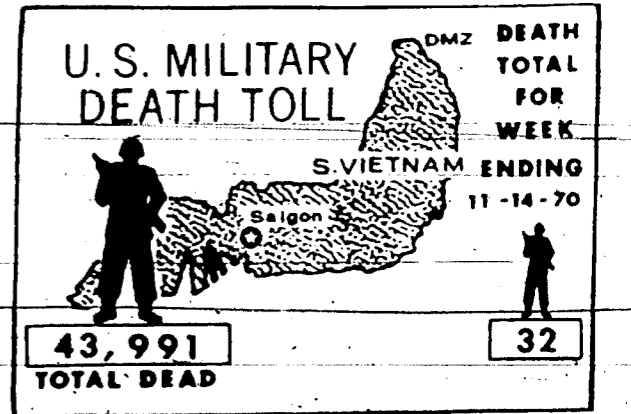

Winds of 120 miles per hour and heavy rains brought by Typhoon Patsy struck the greater Manila area shortly after noon, flooding scores of houses, uprooting trees and disrupting the lives of the metropolitan area's 3.5 million people.

Early reports indicated casualties and damage would be heavy.

The Manila weather bureau called it the worst typhoon to hit Manila since 1882.

The late-season typhoon roared westward from the Pacific Ocean and cut directly across the heavily populated central Luzon province. Savage winds knocked down powerlines, uprooted trees, hurled metal signs about and destroyed hundreds of flimsy squatters huts.

The Manila Electric Co. turned off power throughout the metropolitan area, blacking out all businesses and hotels.

DEATH TOLL in Vietnam war rose to 43,991 through Nov. 14, with the addition of 32 American men to the list in the week ending that day. U.S. command said total dates from end of 1961. (UPI)

U.S. claims Gem private holdings

ST. ANTHONY (UPI)—Some 400 to 450 persons in the upper Snake River Valley are facing the prospect of having to purchase from the federal government lands they believe they already own.

The Bureau of Land Management will host a public hearing in the Fremont County Courthouse Nov. 24 at 7:30 p.m. to discuss plans of a survey which will be filed in the Boise Land Office Nov. 25.

According to Floyd Law, Fremont County assessor, the lands in question — township seven north range 40 east and township eight north range 41 east — contain some businesses and "about 30 or 40" residences.

Included in the land the federal government has claimed as public domain are C and C Lumber Co., a J.R. Simplot Co. warehouse, a starch factory, O.K. Tire Service, and Blair's service station in St. Anthony.

The federal claim to the lands is not a new one, according to Richard H. Petrie, manager of the Idaho Falls district of the BLM.

He said some 20,000 acres of land in Idaho, extending from the American Falls reservoir to north of St. Anthony, have been re-classified as public lands as a result of a survey begun in 1957.

Petrie said the first survey of the-land done in the late 1800s was not exactly correct since the surveyer did not actually go along the meander of the Snake River.

"He just drew lines out there where he thought the river was," Petrie said. "It turned out the river was frequently missed."

"In this particular case, both the meander lines he put in his notes were south of the river and the land in between the lines (and the river) the government is claiming."

As early as 1916 and 1917, Petrie said, there were attempts made to straighten out the titles. As a result, the omitted lands act passed by Congress in 1964 gave the secretary of interior the right to sell or retain the lands.

Petrie said if the lands are to be sold, each person now using the land will be given first preference to buy. He said prices would be at "fair market value" according to BLM assessments and would exclude any improvements made on the property.

Law said, however, he had received many inquiries from persons who have been informed the land they are using falls within the federal claim.

"A lot of them are pretty well shook up about it, too," he said, "and you can't blame them. The land has changed hands dozens of times."

Former St. Anthony Mayor Clyde Keefer has discovered that not only is his land being claimed by the government but he in turn has been threatened with lawsuits from persons who bought land from him over the years.

Keefer purchased the old St. Anthony Hospital from the city in 1959 for $20,000 and received a municipal deed for it. He also had some 30 acres of land near Idaho Falls for which he has a U.S. patent dated in 1892 and on which he has paid taxes since 1916.

He said he has sold all but two acres of his Idaho Falls land "and the people I sold it to — one of the big ones is the Sky-Vu Theater — are threatening me with a suit to buy back what I sold them and gave them a good abstract on years ago.

"Now, I don't think I want another U.S. patent on something I'm going to buy for a second time when the first one isn't any good," he added.

Cliff Brownell, Idaho Falls coordinator of the omitted lands program, said the question of title to the lands varied from case to case.

Red grenade rips crowd

SAIGON (UPI) — Terrorists threw a grenade into a group watching an outdoor movie at a village outside Saigon Wednesday night, killing nine and injuring 43.

The terrorists escaped after the incident, which took place at a village 20 miles from Saigon in Bien Hoa province.

U.S. military spokesmen reported Communist shelling attacks in South Vietnam fell to their lowest point in over nine months during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Wednesday. There were only four rocket and mortar attacks, the fewest since Feb. 6 when two were reported during the truce period called for Tet, the lunar new year.

In Phnom Penh, a government spokesman said today that Cambodian troops failed to dislodge a well-entrenched Communist unit from a bombed-out village 42 miles northeast of the capital despite heavy Allied air strikes and bitter fighting.

He said two days of fighting Tuesday and Wednesday at Meann, a village on Highway 7, could not get the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers out of their fortified positions. Allied air strikes destroyed most of the village, he added.

At Kompong Cham, the beleaguered city eight miles to the east, the airfield still was closed to traffic today and helicopter and parachutes were being used to resupply the Cambodian forces defending the field.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The country's top health officer says a national health insurance program would not work now because there are not enough doctors and hospitals to deliver the required care.

Dr. Roger O. Egeberg said in an interview the nation's health system does not have the capacity to handle a government-backed national health insurance program.

"We don't have enough doctors, dentists or institutions to deliver this health care," said Egeberg, assistant secretary for health and scientific affairs in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"If we voted some kind of a universal health insurance program right now, we would make the people think that this year or next year, or at the latest the year after, they are going to get a doctor just by clicking their fingers."

Cambodian aid sparks new fight

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon's request for an extra $1 billion in foreign aid this year has rekindled the summer-long dispute over Cambodia and further complicated plans for a swift adjournment of the 91st Congress.

Nixon asked Congress for the money Wednesday to shore up U.S. allies militarily and economically in the Middle East and Southeast Asia.

His request immediately ran into trouble from senators who led the fight to restrict military actions in Southeast Asia after Nixon's surprise May offensive into Cambodia.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called the measure a "very serious enlargement of our responsibilities in Southeast Asia." Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he would insist on "quid pro quo" assurances from the administration that withdrawal of American troops from Southeast Asia and Korea would be hastened and that American forces would not become involved in the Middle East.

The expectation was that at least part of Nixon's request will be postponed until next year. Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott had urged the administration not to send up any major new proposals during the current lame duck session and to wait instead until next year.

The exception may be Nixon's request for $500 million to help Israel finance purchases of military equipment from the United States. Congress already has voted broad authority to sell Israel an unlimited number of airplanes and other military hardware on easy credit terms. All that remains is the appropriation of the funds.

The rest of the package Nixon submitted, however, must be authorized by Congress before an appropriations bill is drafted—and this means it must clear Fulbright's committee.

Nixon said the purpose was to "help those who demonstrate their determination to defend themselves."

Fulbright, however, said "we are undertaking a whole new responsibility to carry Cambodia along like Vietnam."

Mitchell eyes final witness

FT. HOOD, Tex. (UPI)—The defense attorney for the first American soldier to stand trial for the alleged My Lai massacre said he will call "possibly one more witness"—perhaps Lt. William Calley—from Ft. Benning, Ga., and then rest his case today.

Defense attorney Ossie Brown has been trying to get Calley to testify on behalf of S. Sgt. David Mitchell. Calley is standing trial at Ft. Benning charged with murdering 102 Vietnamese at My Lai. Mitchell is charged with assault with intent to murder 30 unarmed Vietnamese civilians and could get 20 years at hard labor if convicted.

Brown presented testimony Wednesday from witnesses who said Mitchell was not at the ditch at the time he allegedly killed the Vietnamese old men, women and children.

James Dursi, a New Yorker awaiting an opening on the New York City police force, told the court he watched as Calley and Paul Meadlo, now a Terre Haute, Ind., civilian, slaughtered a group of Vietnamese who were pushed and beaten into a drainage ditch.

Meadlo and Allen J. Boyce of Bradley Beach, N.J., refused to testify on grounds of possible self-incrimination. But statements they had given to Army investigators were read into the court record.

Meadlo described in detail how he twice was ordered by Calley to gun down defenseless old men, women and children. One of those incidents was at the ditch where Mitchell allegedly assaulted the civilians. But Mitchell was not mentioned as being at the ditch in either Meadlo's or Boyce's statements.

"Calley pushed three or four in and shot them," Meadlo's statement said. "Two or three had parts of their heads blown off by the impact of the bullets. I shot one ... we began hitting them with rifle butts ... hitting and shoving them into the ditch."

Meadlo's statement said he, Calley, Daniel Simone and Harry Stanley "killed all these people."

Asked by investigators why the civilians were killed, Boyce replied in his statement: "War does a lot of things to people, and you are miserable over there and they might have wanted to take it out on somebody."

BURLEY — A film on the uniform consumer credit code narrated by former television newsman Chet Huntley was shown Tuesday night to members of the Burley Soroptimist Club at a dinner meeting at Bryan's Cafe.

The film, which discussed credit buying, payments, proper use of credit and credit abuse, was shown under the direction of Jim Roper, Burley.

The film said Oklahoma and Utah have adopted the uniform credit code and it is working well in both states.

Roper reported that prior to adjournment of Idaho's last legislative session the uniform consumer credit code was authorized for printing. The bill for adoption will be taken up during the next legislative session, he said. He also announced the film will be shown throughout Idaho, prior to opening of the legislature.

A short business meeting was conducted by Mrs. W. Gay Jones, president. Opening exercises were by Mrs. Gerald Bryan. A report on the Jubilee Club in connection with the 50th year anniversary also was given.

Mrs. Harlow Cheney, ways and means chairman, conducted a silent auction, assisted by Mrs. LePage Layton and Mrs. Joe Hinz, committee members. Items for the sale were donated by the members.

The annual Christmas dinner will be at 7 p. m. Dec. 9 at Bryan's Cafe. The business meeting will be a noon luncheon Dec. 23.

Musical auditions in March

TWIN FALLS — Music auditions will be conducted by the Idaho Federation of Music Clubs next March 21 instead of Saturday. A story in Wednesday's Times-News indicated the auditions will be conducted on Saturday at O'Leary Junior High School.

Mrs. Donald Youtz, state scholarship chairman, said the announcement of the auditions is designed to alert music students to the competition, that they may prepare for the test of skill.

The Twin Falls auditions are part of a series conducted throughout the state by the Idaho Federation of Music Clubs, Mrs. Youtz said.

The Times-News regrets the error.

'Old West Days' panel seeks aid

HAILEY — Members of the Days of the Old West planning committee and guests will gather for an evening of dining and dancing Dec. 3 in an attempt to interest more workers in the celebration.

The potluck dinner party will begin at 7 p. m. at the St. Charles Parish Hall in Hailey and will be followed by dancing. Music will be provided by a live orchestra.

Shirley Worden and Lois Knight are in charge of decorations and Marlene Ellinger and Roberta McKecher will handle the dinner details. Rolls and coffee will be provided by the planning committee.

The Days of the Old West celebration is held each July 4. This year's celebration netted about $1,000 profit which will be used to help finance the 1971 event.

The Losing War

Some pragmatists question whether there is any way a government can eliminate poverty within its borders. Certainly, the United States has been unable to do so despite its position as the richest and most powerful nation in the world.

When President Johnson and the Congress launched the "War on Poverty" in 1964 as an opening effort to build The Great Society, the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) was created hastily into another sprawling bureaucracy with little idea of how to conduct its campaign.

So, it turned to literally hundreds of private companies to study, evaluate, revise and operate every battle.

Now we have found that at the end of fiscal 1970, OEO was paying 123 consulting, evaluation, technical assistance and support contracts totaling $56,746,275 and 254 firms, half of them in Washington, have received $100,000 or more in OEO contracts. There may be more.

Government's apparent reluctance to use existing machinery for helping the poor resulted in nothing less than scandalous waste of public funds and in mighty little benefit to the poor.

A flock of former OEO employees and their newly-formed companies of social workers won their own battles against poverty by evaluating OEO programs — or the lack of them. And state and local officials of the OEO found themselves in high-paying jobs where procedures were more important than the purpose of the grandiose scheme to lift the poor to affluence.

The poor people the program was designed to help found precious little changed, as the funds appropriated went chiefly to advisers and executives.

Presenting monthly government doles to the poor might alleviate conditions of poverty temporarily but it runs counter to human nature to work when there is no need to do so. Incentive is lacking, especially among the poor and uneducated.

A real war on poverty should be conceived as a Thirty Years War — with a generation for development and education.

Education is the chief weapon against poverty and there is no need for another bureaucracy to activate it. There are needs to be filled if and when people of adequate training and skills can be found and employed.

Yet Congress so far has failed to give President Nixon his projected "workfare" program which would provide training for those who need it.

OEO has failed signally and it's time Congress washed it out and started all over again with "workfare" instead of welfare.

Good jobs, adequate housing at a reasonable price, and a stable economy — these are the things that will enable individuals to win their individual battles against poverty, the only way the "war" can be won.

Lost Cause

Humanity continues to lack a cure for the common cold. Doctors still say the best way to get rid of a cold is not to catch one.

To accomplish this, medics recommend plenty of sleep, warn against becoming chilled or overheated, and say it's advisable to stay away from people who have colds.

But for many the winter will as usual be divided into three parts: getting a cold, having a cold, and getting over a cold.

MR. SPECTATOR

Christmas Shopping

Approaches now the time of turmoil known as The Christmas Shopping Season, and to welcome it a news service comes up with a helpful plan to avoid the pressure and rush of shopping.

Mr. Spectator would like to pass it on to you.

It begins with a revolutionary suggestion: Decide in advance what a friend or relative would like and draw up a gift list. You'll probably kick yourself because you never thought of that!

The fact is the Christmas gift list began generations ago when kids started filing orders with Santa Claus. Preparing the list is no great problem, once all hands have been asked what they want and in what shapes, sizes and materials.

Filling the specifications is where the going gets rough. And when all is wrapped and ribboned, the weary shopper can never be sure they all really want what they said they want.

If the plans of the automation people are fulfilled, Christmas shopping in future years should be simple. Already in the works are automated food supermarkets. Applying automation to Christmas shopping may take a bit longer, but it can present no real difficulties to planners of mechanized merchandising.

One final reference to the Christmas labor programming offered by the news service follows. Efficiency and foresight in gift shopping will leave madam with a whole final week with nothing to do. Now, she can either make Christmas cookies during that week or, if she can get everyone to give their gifts ahead of time, she can take the presents she gets back for exchange before the usual rush.

Not a bad idea, huh?

ALL IN A NAME: We were told that there couldn't be a regular fountain downtown because the wind would blow the water here and there. So? Well, if it is not a fountain then let's call it what it really is — a shower!

CLOSE CALL: Dear Mr. Spectator: Sitting over at the council meeting the other night in Twin Falls and hearing the councilmen turn down the call for several trucks and the improvement to the airport building had me shook up for awhile. I thought it was a new trend — but it wasn't. In the next order of business they ordered new parking meters. Which is really lucky for the downtown shoppers! Thankful of T. F.

ROBERT ALLEN AND JOHN GOLDSMITH

Lecture Circuit And Revolution

WASHINGTON — William Kunstler, stridently turbulent attorney for the Chicago Seven, fugitive H. Rap Brown, the violence-tarred Black Panthers and other extremists, is back on the lucrative college lecture circuit again — openly preaching revolution at fancy fees of $1,000 and up.

Graphically illustrative of both is his harangue to a jam-packed crowd of some 800 students and faculty members at Catholic University, Washington, for which he was paid $1,200.

Arriving a half hour late, Kunstler, long haired and heavily sideburned, tempestuously told the goggle-eyed throng that it is up to youth to reorder the world and conditions because "older people" no longer have what it takes to do so. Carefully unmentioned by the stormy declaimer is that he is 50 years old. "I am trying to sell a state of mind," he thundered. "Call it a revolutionary aura if you will. I am trying to sell it to young people because they are honest and responsive. Older people are extraordinarily hard to move." Further pitching his spiel directly to the student audience, Kunstler flatly charged that authorities (carefully unmentioned) are deliberately using campus disturbances to suppress freedom the way the Nazis did in Germany. Following is the way he put this propaganda over:

"There is no doubt that the system, the state, the government, the establishment or whatever you want to call it, has made a policy decision against the students on college campuses in this country. They have been selected as the scapegoats for a planned American Reichstag fire.

"Hitler and the Nazis blamed that fire on the communists, and used it as a 'hate symbol' to polarize the German people and seize dictatorial power. President Nixon and his administration are using student disorders in this country in the very same way.

"The point is now being made that there is a terrible enemy of the state and the system known as the 'student,' and that the student is going to create another terrible enemy known as 'campus disorder,' and that campus disorder will destroy the American system. The crucial question is where do we go 'from here'?"

Kunstler had a ready and not unexpected typical ideological answer to this rhetorical question

"If the war in Vietnam is wrong, indecent, immoral and unjust," he proclaimed, "then the system that started it should be destroyed and anyone who says anything else is evading the issue."

In keeping with his wily line, Kunstler with straight face assured his listeners that he is "not an advocate of violence."

Revolution, yes, but violence, no. Then he, immediately added that "violence is an inherent part of American politics."

"Was it the students," he declared, "or the Black Panthers that started the war in Vietnam, that shot the Kennedy brothers and Martin Luther King Jr.? Is it the students or the Black Panthers who day after day use the illegal process of the law to grind down one dissenter after another?"

Responsible for this, charged Kunstler, are the American system and those in control of it. "The only real hope for change," he announced dramatically, "is youth."

The audience applauded, yelled and whistled tumultuously. They loved it. A recent House Internal Security Committee report disclosed that scores of universities throughout the country are paying hundreds of thousands of dollars in lecture fees to white and black leftists, extremists, revolutionaries and other activists.

"MAMA MIA! THAT'S A ONE SPICY MEAT BALL!"

PAUL HARVEY

On Dollar Aid

Cambodia is in trouble. Cambodia, next door to Vietnam, faces much the same situation which recently faced Vietnam and we are responding in much the same manner.

President Nixon prefers contingency plans for evaluating crises before they develop.

We'd better evaluate this one now.

Since the United States thrust into Cambodia last spring the situation for the Cambodians has steadily deteriorated. Since President Nixon took full responsibility for the consequences of that intrusion, he must feel morally obligated to rescue the Cambodians.

Toward that end, quietly, our dollar aid to Cambodia has been multiplied.

Our government persists in pretending that American planes are not flying direct support missions in Cambodia, when, in fact, they are.

That's the kind of "unofficial escalation" which got us in over our heads in Vietnam.

Despite our $50 million worth of recent generosity, the Cambodian government continues to demand more.

Despite the commitment of our planes, in contradiction to our President's promise, the Communists have seized two-thirds of the country and are now at the gates of the stronghold cities.

While official Washington seeks to focus your attention on the chronic Arab-Israeli standoff in the Middle East, the Indochina situation is critical.

Most Americans find reassurance in our much-publicized piecemeal withdrawals from Vietnam.

But meanwhile the Communists are squeezing the life out of Cambodia and — to a lesser extent — Laos.

In Cambodia, last time I looked, the Lon Nol government was still in control of the capital city, Phnom Penh, and Kompong Thom and Siem Reap.

Yet all those strong points are hit from inside by guerrilla raiders and periodically cut off from outside by Communist siege.

Four of Cambodia's seven major highways have been cut off almost continuously for five months.

At Kompong Thom, a provincial capital, food is so short that townspeople have had to slaughter and eat zoo animals.

But in Cambodia, as in Vietnam, the Communists show no inclination to mobilize massive, costly attacks on the cities. It's less costly and eventually more distressing to the defenders if the Reds hit and run and survive to hit again.

Cambodia is trying to mobilize 60,000 additional soldiers by the end of this year. No way. Already Cambodia's army includes many juveniles and some women.

Now the monsoon rains are ending. Dry weather will facilitate increased Communist attacks in the northeast. More American planes will be committed and there will be pressure on us to commit American troops.

And a chorus from 45,000 flag-draped coffins cries out "In heaven's name, not again!"

ANDREW TULLY

Open Secret

WASHINGTON — Whispered intelligence has become an open secret in Nixon administration circles that, naturally, the President is too shrewd a politician to make effective control of firearms one of his important projects when a new Congress convenes in January.

This is depressing, but understandable. Despite the nation's raging "crime" wave, opposition to gun control has increased during the past few years, aided and abetted by the patriots of the National Rifle Association and businesses that specialize in manufacturing murder weapons. And Richard Nixon, who sees all politically, surely noticed that Sen. Joe Tydings of Maryland lost his bid for reelection mostly because he bucked the gun lobby.

It's a funny (not ha ha) country we have here. Americans are relatively docile in complying with laws that require licenses to get married, own a dog and operate a motor vehicle. But there is in us a kind of frontier anarchism that vigorously resists efforts to control the firearms racket.

Those brave politicians, never numerous, who believe in control have never pressed for anything more than legislation which would make possession of a handgun illegal unless the owner is licensed by local police.

Surely, a law requiring the licensing of handgun owners is no more repressive than those applying to automobile and dog owners. Persons of good reputation would still be able to buy pistols and revolvers, but — as in the case of dog and car owners — the vicious, creepy, careless and irresponsible would be shut out. Americans applaud the revocation of the driving license of an individual found guilty of highway homicide, but seem to take in national stride the crime of shooting some poor cop or a neighbor who erected an unattractive fence. Well, cop-killing has become virtually a national sport. Nine New York City policemen have been killed by guns so far this year; 46 altogether have been involved in firearms attacks. In Baltimore the other day, Milton S. Eisenhower, chairman of our national Violence Commission, reported that the United States, with 200 million people, averages 50 times as many gun murders annually as England, Japan and Germany, with a combined population of 214 million.

This is, indeed, a funny (meaning barbaric) country. In Eisenhower's words, "We lag behind every other civilized nation in the world in failing to have a comprehensive, effective national policy of arms control."

That is putting it mildly. A less polite man than the gentle Eisenhower might have concluded that the United States no longer deserves rank under the heading "civilized." There is nothing civilized inherent in the statistic that more than 90 million firearms — 25 million of them concealable handguns — are privately owned by Americans. I spit in the eye of the bloke who tells me these guns are all owned by mother-loving, PTA-member types who like an occasional spot of target shooting or seek to protect the castle called home.

Yet too many of these admittedly respectable sportsmen joined in the vitriolic abuse of Eisenhower when his commission recommended a restrictive arms control law requiring confiscation of all handguns except from individuals showing need for such weapons, and requiring registration of all long guns.

I believe President Nixon is utterly sincere in his concern over violent lawlessness in this pathetic country.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Harelip

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have searched for information about a "hair lip" and can find nothing. I am sure there is a scientific term for it which I don't know.

I would appreciate a discussion of cause, effects, etc. I have been told that surgery is completely successful. Statistically how often does it happen and is it hereditary? — Mrs. A.W.

It's hare lip, not "hair," which may have caused you some trouble. The more technical term for it is cleft lip, and there is a companion defect that often goes along with it, cleft palate.

The fetus, or baby-to-be, is formed in part from separate sections which subsequently fuse together. This is true of the skull, for example, with four separate bones which fuse and join into a solid bone structure. Well, tissues of the mouth join together in similar fashion.

If this joining does not occur in the lip, there may be one cleft or two. Some cases may involve only the lip. Some extend up as far as the nose.

The companion fault, cleft palate, is a similar gap or lack of fusion of the roof of the mouth.

Either fault, but especially the latter, can be serious for the baby. With a cleft palate, when he tries to take food, some of it can get up into the nasal passages and cause him all sorts of trouble. A cleft lip can make it difficult for him to eat, the difficulty depending on the size of the fault or cleft.

When he is old enough to talk, or start learning to talk, the cleft palate and harelip interfere very seriously. Indeed, with such defects, a person cannot speak entirely normally.

Appearance also is impaired.

Thus there is every reason to repair such defects as early in life as possible. While the correction can be made later on, and successfully, the final results will not be as good as when the correction is made in infancy — before the second year, and sometimes earlier than that, for cleft palate; at three months or sooner for harelip.

Techniques have been worked out also for using plastic to close the cleft palate, then making the permanent repair with a second operation later on, with the idea of letting growth proceed as normally as possible instead of fusing the cleft solidly to begin with. The decision depends on the individual case.

Whichever course, the answer is yes, surgery is successful. Usually a scar, but often not very noticeable. In palate repair, a plastic surgeon and orthodontist may work together.

Without exact figures being available, it is thought that about a thousand babies a year in the U.S. are born with this type of defect.

It can be hereditary, but not necessarily so. A mother may have an infection (German measles is a ready example) during pregnancy, and a defect results.

Colitis can include a variety of intestinal ailments from serious to merely uncomfortable. For a better understanding of its causes and treatment, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this paper for his booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints," enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long stamped, self-addressed envelope to cover cost of printing and handling.

BERRY'S WORLD

"O.K., I'll bite—the one on the right is 'Sales,' and the one on the left is 'Costs!'"

Cannibal evidence given

LIVINGSTON, Mont. (UPI) — Seven witnesses were called Wednesday in district court in this mountain-ringed resort community as testimony began in the first degree cannibal murder trial of Harry Alan Stroup, Sheridan, Wyo.

Stroup, with Stanley Dean Baker, 22, also of Sheridan, was charged in the July slaying and mutilation of James Schlosser, Great Falls, who was a welfare worker in the eastern Montana community of Roundup.

Baker earlier pleaded guilty and is serving a life term in the Montana State Prison. Stroup pleaded innocent, saying he was not present when Schlosser was killed, his body cut up, his heart eaten and his headless torso thrown into the Yellowstone River.

Richard Miller testified he found the torso July 11 floating in the river while he was fishing on his property six miles north of Gardiner, a northern entrance to Yellowstone National Park.

Mrs. Elizabeth Schlosser, mother of the victim, testified earlier Wednesday that the last time she saw her son he was in good spirits and excited about his new job with the Musselshell County Welfare Department.

Mrs. Evelyn Beetle of Roundup, an employe of the welfare department, said she last saw Schlosser July 10.

Stroup, 20, is accused of taking an active part in the crime. He is being tried before a jury of seven men and five women, chosen from 100 potential jurors who were questioned on whether they had been influenced by earlier news stories about the case.

Baker and Stroup were arrested a few days after the discovery of the torso while in Schlosser's car 20 miles south of Big Sur, Calif.

After his arrest Baker admitted he killed Schlosser, cut up the body and ate his heart.

He said he was under the influence of the drug LSD at the time and during a thunderstorm in the mountains along the Yellowstone River that night said he had visions of talking with the devil.

AF search extended

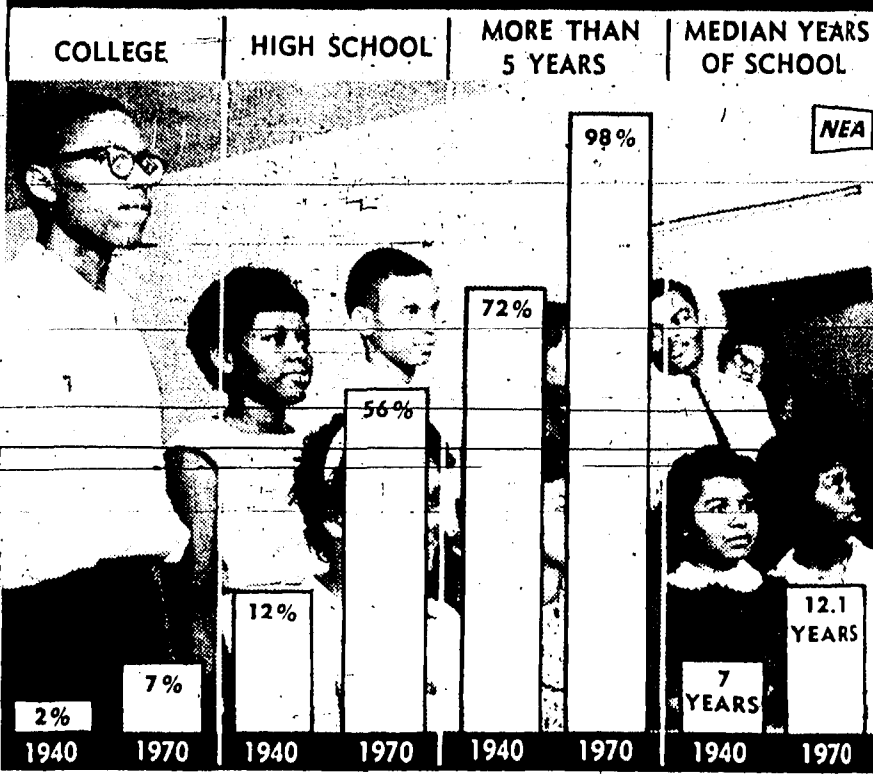

MOUNTAIN HOME AFB (UPI) — The search for a missing RF4C reconnaissance jet was extended into western Wyoming Wednesday, according to Col. Henry Warren, commander of the 67th Tactical Reconnaissance Wing at MHAFB.

The Phantom II aircraft failed to return last Thursday from a training mission. On board were the pilot, Maj. Carlton Sprague, 41, and the navigator, Capt. Terrence Andrews, 25.

Warren said searchers have flown more than 89,000 square miles on 282 sorties in an attempt to locate the aircraft.

Earlier, the search covered southern Idaho, northern Utah, and northeastern and north-central Nevada.

CLOSING THE EDUCATION GAP

A Census Bureau study documents significant gains during the past three decades by black Americans in overcoming longstanding educational disadvantages. More than three times as many (7 per cent as compared with 2 per cent) young black adults have completed four years of college today as in 1940. Similar increases have been registered for high school graduates and minimum schooling (five years). The results show up in a jump of the average young adult's education level to slightly above high school and a narrowing of the gap with white Americans. In 1940, the average young white had four more years of school than the average black. Today, the difference is less than half a year.

Mrs. McKay eulogized for roles

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The widow of former Mormon Church President David O. McKay was eulogized Wednesday as a rare woman "whose greatest achievements grew out of her role as a wife and a mother."

Mrs. Emma Ray Riggs McKay died Saturday night at the age of 93. Her death came only 10 months after her husband, the ninth president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, died at the age of 96.

Speaking before the estimated 2,000 persons attending Mrs. McKay's funeral services at Temple Square, Church President Joseph Fielding Smith said "Sister Emma Ray Riggs McKay (was) one of the great women of the Church and the wife and eternal companion of one of the greatest men of our day and age."

Smith, the 94-year-old successor to David O. McKay, added that "Sister McKay was a woman of rare charm, of simple faith, and of sound judgment whose greatest achievements grew out of her role as a wife and a mother."

During the services in Assembly Hall, the second son of Mrs. McKay, 66-year-old Llewellyn McKay, collapsed and was rushed to the LDS Hospital.

Officials later said he had apparently suffered a stroke, although it was not considered extremely serious. A church spokesman said Llewellyn McKay had been ill for some time and had a history of two strokes.

He was admitted to a private room at the hospital for observation and treatment.

Gem Republicans begin rebuilding

LEWISTON (UPI) — Roland Wilber, Lewiston, Idaho Republican state chairman, said Wednesday the Idaho GOP, smarting from its losses in the general election earlier this month, is beginning already to build for 1972.

During the recent general election the Republicans lost both the governorship and the attorney general position to the Democrats.

Wilber said questionnaires have been mailed to every Republican county and state committee member asking for an analysis of the 1970 campaign as well as suggestions for improving campaign techniques.

"This information," he said, "will enable us to devise methods to correct weaknesses discovered in past campaigns."

Welfare bill finds enemies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For seven months, President Nixon's welfare reform bill—which he calls the most important domestic legislation since the New Deal—has been stalled in a Senate committee, under attack by conservatives who call it a welfare state proposal.

Now it is under even sharper attack, this time by an organization which claims to speak for 125,000 welfare recipients.

Somewhat ironically, the new criticism would enhance the bill's chances. The attack from the left makes the bill look like moderate, middle-of-the-road legislation, denounced from left and right.

An official "people's hearing" was arranged Wednesday by Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., to hear from welfare recipients who were denied a forum at weeks of Senate Finance Committee hearings this summer. They denounced the bill as repressive, regressive, demeaning and stingy. Spokesmen for the National Welfare Rights Organization (NWRO), who brought 400 welfare recipients here from 17 states, said the bill would force mothers to take "sweatshop" jobs paying $50 a week or less, while leaving their children unattended at home.

George Wiley, executive director of NWRO, said the bill is "a fraud on poor people... a sham that purports to be reform... a regressive measure." Even the present "welfare mess," he said, would be better.

McCarthy said the bill "increases the income of fewer than 10 per cent of those now on welfare and does nothing to bring the other 90 per cent up to a recent basic minimum."

The measure's provision of $1,600 a year and a family of four "is not enough for subsistence, let alone an adequate standard of living," the senator said.

Girl page set for Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., intends to name the first girl page in the history of the Senate.

He concedes he's bucking hallowed tradition, but he believes young girls can respond as eagerly and efficiently to the snap of a senatorial finger as Senate page boys, and that their exclusion violates the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

"I don't detect any significant enthusiasm" for girl pages, says Sen. Everett B. Jordan, D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, which ultimately would have to consider the question.

"Without being prudish," said Jordan, "it somehow seems to lack dignity and grace to picture young women sitting around on the steps of the Senate chamber waiting to be dispatched."

Brazil voting light

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Brazil's just-completed national elections were more interesting for those who did not vote than for those who did. Among Brazil's approximately 36 million voters, up to 40 per cent apparently stayed at home because they were not interested. Some 5,000 others failed to vote because they were in jail as suspected subversives.

The government said that captured terrorist documents two weeks before the Nov. 16 elections disclosed plans to kidnap one diplomat and one high-ranking government official with the twin-fold objective of disrupting the elections and of observing the first anniversary of the death of guerrilla leader Carlos Marighella on Nov. 4, 1969.

Brazil, whose population of more than 88 million makes it the largest Latin American nation, is one of sharply etched contrasts.

The sharpest is provided by the military-based government itself. Since taking over on March 31, 1964, Brazil's armed forces have led the country from economic and political chaos into a continuing economic boom.

But it has done so at the expense of political freedoms, even as it maintains the outward appearance of an elected government.

Even the economic boom itself is a contradiction for there are millions, particularly in the impoverished northeast, who do not participate.

And among the electorate are those in whom military rule has induced a political numbness and those increasingly determined to bring the regime down by force.

In the major cities leftist violence has included the successful kidnappings of three foreign diplomats, street battles with government forces and bank robberies with a "take" running into millions of dollars.

In this month's elections, the government ran up the expected majority in 21 of Brazil's 22 states in races for the senate, the chamber of deputies and state legislatures. The single opposition party permitted by the government, the Brazilian Democratic Movement (MDB), won in Guanabara state which is metropolitan Rio de Janeiro.

While the methods of Brazil's military rule may be controversial, they continue to build an impressive record.

This year the country is expected to show a balance of payments surplus of $500 million. Exports hit a record $2.5 billion last year as against imports of $1.9 billion and should do as well or better this year.

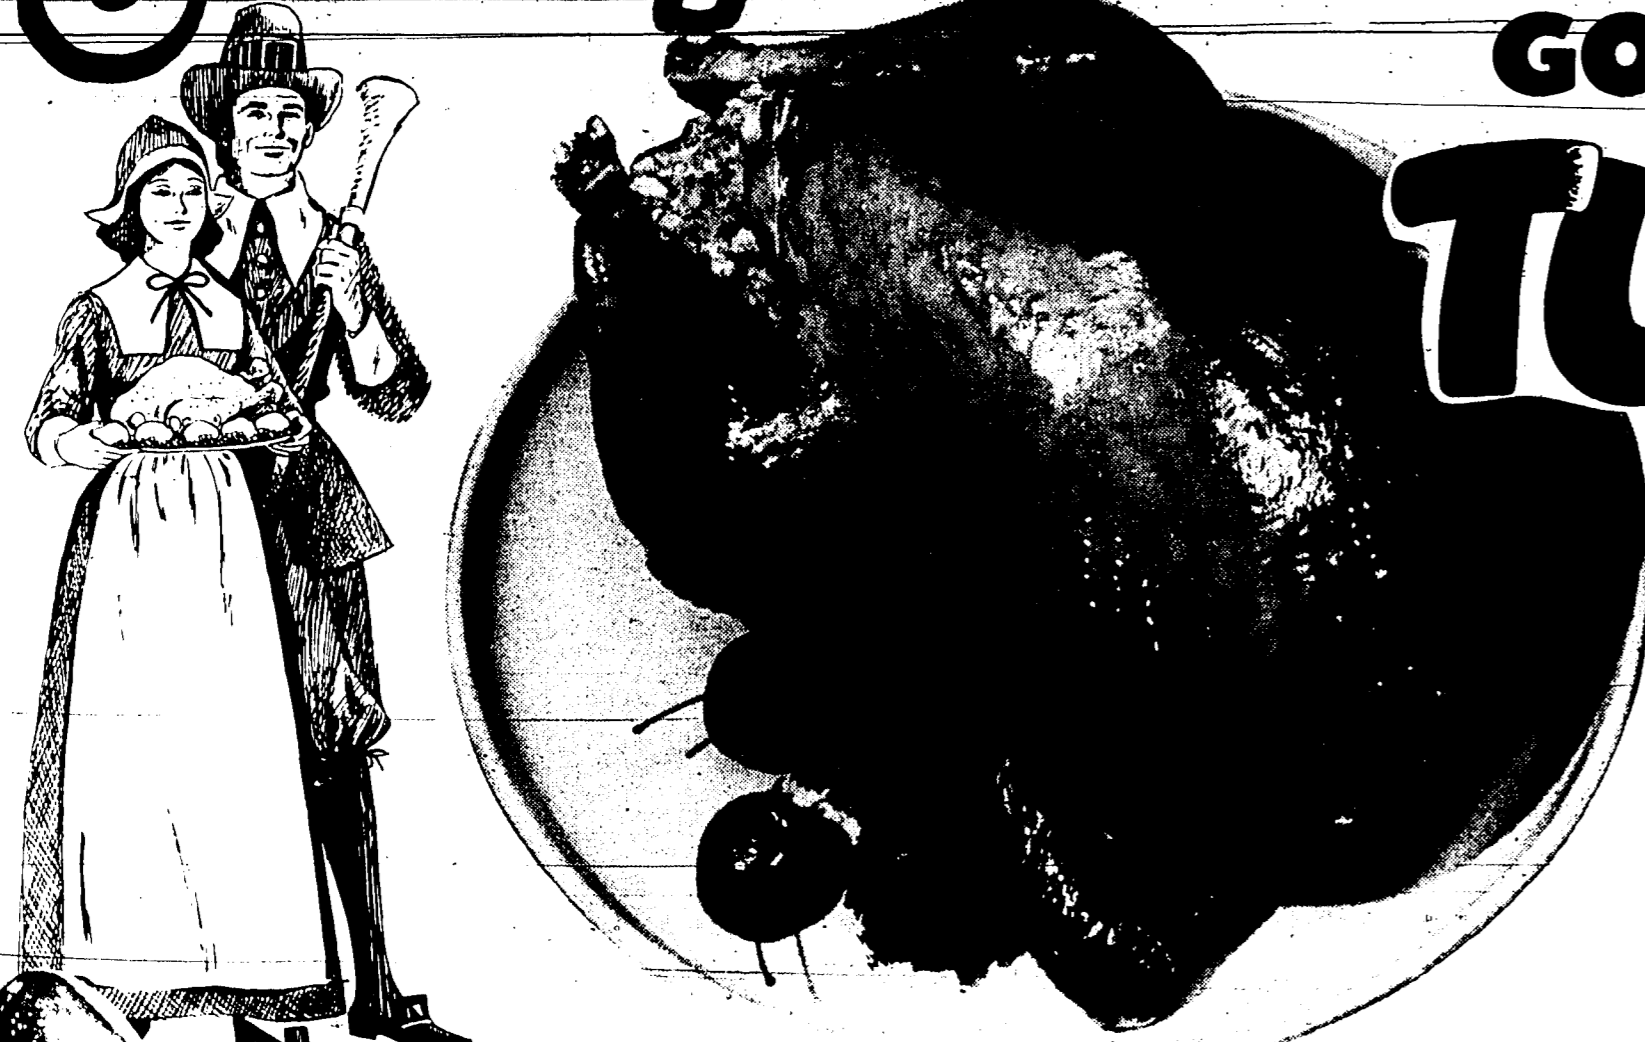

Under cultivation is expanding and agriculture at last is receiving long-needed assistance in the form of minimum price supports, lower taxes and easier credits.

President Médici has declared four areas to have priorities under his administration. They are education, agriculture, science-technology, and industry.

Herbert Spencer, English philosopher (1820-1903), coined the phrase "survival of the fittest."

Forced safety passes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved 82 to 3 Tuesday a bill that would authorize the federal government to write and enforce on-the-job health and safety regulations for 80 million American workers.

Sent to the House where a similar bill is awaiting action, the measure was a compromise between what the Nixon administration wanted and organized labor had sought as its major objective in this congress.

Voting against the bill on the final roll call were Sens. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. None offered any explanation for his no vote.

The bill would give the Labor Secretary authority to write safety standards and the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare responsibility for health standards.

Under the measure Labor Department officials would make inspections to see if the standards were being met, and a presidentially appointed commission would be given enforcement powers.

The AFL-CIO had sought to invest the enforcement powers in the Labor Secretary, but Republicans argued that it would be wrong to invest a single official with authority to bring charges, make judgments and write the rules.

Textile effect stated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American workers could lose as much as $3 billion a year in wages by 1975 unless Congress acts to stop a flood of cheap textile imports, a Commerce Department official said Wednesday.

Stanley Nehmer, deputy assistant commerce secretary for resources, made the estimate as the House prepares for a scrap today over the import-restricting trade bill — legislation considered among the most controversial of its kind since the depression.

Nehmer's comments were a rebuttal to remarks made last week by Andrew F. Brimmer, a member of the Federal Reserve Board. Brimmer said that pending trade legislation could cost American consumer $3.7 billion a year in higher prices for clothing and shoes.

Nehmer said in addition to lost wages, failure to slow the increase in textile imports could cost taxpayers billions in welfare benefits and assistance payments to displaced workers and businesses.

The bill, drafted by the House Ways and Means Committee, would impose mandatory quotas on shipments of wool and synthetic fiber textiles, shoes and some other goods. The quotas would cease to operate if voluntary agreements can be negotiated with Japan and other exporters.

four and at South's five. He looked at the ceiling and the floor. He communed with nature and finally played out his ace of hearts. After this bit of help, South was able to discard one of dummy's diamonds on the good heart and score his game.

Frank pointed out that West really shouldn't have played his heart ace. West could well have afforded a shift to a trump. On the other hand, West could not be sure of the location of the deuce of hearts. If his partner held that card, he had started an echo and West had a problem.

Suppose South had dropped the deuce instead of the five. Then West would have known that his partner had not echoed and surely would not have continued hearts.

Frank K Perkins of Boston was for many years the dean of New England's bridge players and writers. He retired so completely a few years back that we made the mistake of referring to him as the late Frank Perkins. We are delighted to report that Frank is very much alive and looks as if he will be with us for many years.

Here is a hand from a 1943 article by Frank on the importance of spot cards.

West opened the king of hearts against South's four-spade contract. South noted that he had four potential losers in the red suits, but there was one ray of hope. If West could be persuaded to continue hearts, South's queen would set up for an eventual diamond discard. So South dropped the five of hearts and prayed for help.

It was a long time coming. West looked at his partner's

PASS IT ON
 by L.M. Boyd

AT WHAT AGE is a woman in her prime? By prime, I mean most confident, most capable, most attractive. Surveytakers who put this inquiry to numerous ladies nationwide said the majority by far stipulated age 38. A man's own opinion of his prime depends on what he does for a living. Executives say age 50, salesmen age 43, laborers age 32.

IF YOUR GRANDMOTHER was average when in her twenties, she weighed 116 pounds. If you're average in that age bracket, young lady, you weigh 126 pounds. MEDICAL MEN say the blondes who get skin cancer outnumber the brunettes who do so by about nine to one. THE FOCUSING RANGE of your eyes at the age of 40 is only about one-fourth of what it was when you were 10 years old.

HISTORY - Was proposed in Congress once that there ought to be three U.S. Presidents. One each for the East, the Midwest and the Far West. It was also proposed once that inasmuch as the presidency is a 24-hour-a-day job, there ought to be three men to handle it. One on days, one on swing and one on the graveyard shift. What's your stand on this matter? Do you have a nominee for the graveyard shift at the other end of the country? Nevermind, this is not a political pillar, and I ought not.

OPEN QUESTIONS - 1. Why are strangers referred to as perfect? 2. What's the origin of the peace symbol known by some now as the track of the chicken? 3. What do you call a lady chef?

NAMES of four state capitals include the word city. What, you can't identify them in a trice? All right, Salt Lake, Carson, Jefferson and Oklahoma. AS TO THAT MATTER of which tree is first in the season to shed its leaves, a New Englander says the walnut, a Carolinian says the aspen. LONGEST MANE of a horse was about 12 feet, longest tail about 10 feet. A schoolteacher told me that, so I know it's true.

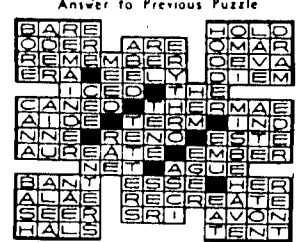

CUSTOMER SERVICE - Q "Do you carry a briefcase, old boy?" A. Not anymore. Used to. But I've given up packing my lunch except on fishing trips. Q. "Quick, what five states have more Senators than representatives in Congress?" A. Alaska, Delaware, Nevada, Vermont and Wyoming. Q. "Are cats color blind?" A. So it's said.

LOVE AND WAR - He married 400 girls. And never once saw the face of any bride before the wedding. That's the story of old King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia. Sounds like something out of the ancient Arabian Nights, doesn't it? But it wasn't so long ago, at that. He has only been dead 17 years. Just imagine, 400 wives, and potluck every time. Romantic roulette, what? Our Love and War man is studying the case, intensely.

CSI's 'Rashomon' opening night set

TWIN FALLS — Drama department players of the College of Southern Idaho are going deep into the mystery of the Orient for their first production of the 1970-71 season which opens tonight in the Fine Arts Center.

The initial curtain will go up at 8:15 p.m. on "Rashomon," one of the earliest suspense type stories in eastern literature. Directing the production is H. Paul Kliss of the CSI speech and drama staff.

Performances will be held again Friday and Saturday at 8:15 p.m. in the Fine Arts Auditorium and tickets are available at the door prior to performances.

"Rashomon" has been performed in all types of productions from Buddhist parable to Japanese film and American films and even a westernized stage play.

Basic theme of the ancient Japanese mystery classic is "What is truth?" To illustrate this, the story winds through murder, theft and assault with the final decision as to what is truth left to the audience.

For the first production of the season, the CSI drama staff has constructed settings which echo architectural designs of the 14th century in the far east and costumes reflect the color and patterns of the classic Noh theater.

Students and drama department staff members have combined modern 20th century stage lighting and design with the violent action familiar to the Kabuki Theatre of ancient time.

Characters in the play are traditionally Japanese and recognizable from the Feudal period.

Included are the bandit, accused of unlimited crimes; the vanishing Samurai warrior to whom honor is greater than living in shame; the dutiful wife who attracts men; a woodcutter, who like his trees, holds many secrets; a priest, disillusioned by violence; a wigmaker driven to robbing corpses in order to compete in an expanding commercial world; a doting mother who lives the great lie, and the medium who brings them back "from the other side."

Portraying the various roles and others are Phillip Rayner, David Bolster, Linda Spain, Jim Langley, John Robinett, Scott Williams, Valeta Burke, Vickie Caughet, Marcia Lickley and Candy Smith.

Exhibit set

HANSEN — Oil paintings by Mrs. Barbara Fausett Allen will be exhibited for two weeks in the small gymnasium at Hansen School.

Superintendent William Barnard states the gymnasium will be open daily for anyone wanting to view the paintings.

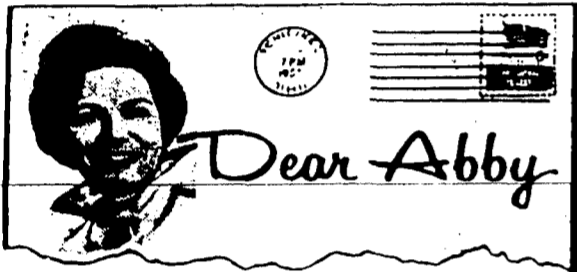

Mrs. Allen recently held an exhibit in Twin Falls and has paintings displayed in various places in Twin Falls. This is her second individual showing.

She is the wife of Jack Allen, director of Farmers Home Administration, Twin Falls.

A FIGHT SCENE from "Rashomon," CSI drama department's play, is shown here during dress rehearsal. The production, which goes deep into the mystery of the Orient, is set for 8:15 p.m. tonight at the CSI Fine Arts Center. Performances will be held again Friday and Saturday at 8:15 p.m.

DEAR ABBY: I help run a very high class nursing home and there is something which puzzles me.

Why is it when a person has spent months and even years in our nursing home, and he dies here, the family doesn't want it mentioned in the obituary that their relative died in a nursing home?

Do you think it is because they are ashamed that their loved one didn't pass away at home under their family's care?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Some people still suffer some guilt feelings about putting a family member in a nursing home, especially if the nursing home is not regarded as first class. These feelings are quite unnecessary in most cases, of course. The nursing home is becoming more and more a commonplace institution in our society.

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman with a devoted husband and four, beautiful, school-age children. Money, we have little, but we have been blessed after struggling with this problem for years I have decided to write to you. Maybe one of your readers can help me.

Nothing will wake me up in the morning. I've tried everything I have ever heard of. Sleeping with the alarm clock next to my ear. Sleeping with the alarm clock clear across the room. Setting two alarm clocks on opposite sides of the room. I have even set one alarm clock in the dishpan.

Before I go to sleep I keep telling myself over and over that I must get up in the morning. The rest of my family is as sleepyheaded as I am, and if I don't wake everybody else up, we all oversleep. I hear the alarm turn it off, and go back to sleep again. Can you help me?

SLEEPYHEAD

DEAR SLEEPYHEAD: First try getting to bed earlier. And earlier and earlier. Then set two alarm clocks on opposite sides of the room, and after you have shut them off, immediately bathe your face and hands (all the way up to your elbows!) in cold water. Another suggestion. Don't let your husband and children depend on you to get them up. Insist that they get themselves up. After they have suffered the consequences of being late for work and school a few times, they'll cure themselves.

DEAR ABBY: Last Sunday, my husband and I drove over to visit his widowed mother.

As we were leaving, my mother-in-law says to my husband, "Next time, come alone so we can talk." (And she didn't whisper it either.)

Abby, I always knew that my mother-in-law wasn't the smartest person in the world, but wouldn't you think she would have more brains than to say this in front of me?

On the way home I told my husband that from now on he can visit his mother alone all the time, and then they can "talk" as much as they want to.

Abby, I have bent over backwards to be a good daughter-in-law. Do you blame me for being burned up?

BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED: No, I suspect the poor dear isn't playing with a full deck.

DEAR ABBY: Tell "Young Mother" there is no "right" time to tell her adopted child that he is adopted. The time is now!

My wife and I have an adopted son, now three and one-half, and he knows he is adopted and he will tell the world he is. And so will we. God knows we love him, and he knows we love him, and we don't care who knows he's adopted. We are proud of it.

We have three other children, born to us, and they know we love them, too. No more because they are our "natural children"—and no less. That's what it's all about, L-O-V-E.

Sincerely,

BILL M., CINCINNATI

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Films, slides planned for Friendship club meetings

WENDELL — Buel McGhee, for Dec. 10 of the Heritage Jerome, president of the Magic Valley Friendship Club for Handicapped Adults, reports that a film projector, a gift from the HOPE organization, Jerome, is working and that club members are invited to bring films and slides to monthly meetings to share.

A committee has assembled clippings of the past five years of club history in the scrap book. Miss McGhee stated they would especially like to thank members of the Wendell American Legion for the use of their hall for the past four years.

Fred Hills, Jerome, has consented to take items to the state school at Nampa that club members have collected for a rehabilitation project. Miss McGhee stated the club adopted the collection of normally rejected items as an on-going project and that boxes would be placed in public places for the convenience of persons wanting to participate in the project. Items include egg cartons, light bulbs, scraps and bits of sewing trim and material, and cardboard.

The next meeting is scheduled

GLARE AWAY

NEW YORK (UPI) — If yours is a bright and sunny kitchen, here's one way to keep the sun glare out of your eyes while working.

Choose window shades in exactly the same color as the new appliances above which they are to hang. Shades now also match or blend well with many new wall and cabinet colors. Also helpful today's vinyl coated shades wipe clean with the brush of a damp cloth. The suggestion on kitchen decor comes from the Window Shade Manufacturers Association.

Bay trout carrying seeds of own death

PORT ISABEL, Tex. (UPI) — Trout in the bay between Texas and dune-rippled Padre Island may be carrying within them the seeds of their own destruction due to DDT sprays.

Candles demonstrated

HAILEY — Mrs. Jahaza Patterson, Carey, gave a demonstration on making candles at a meeting of the Blaine County Hospital Auxiliary Tuesday afternoon at the hospital.

She also gave ideas on Christmas decorations for the hospital. A membership of 38 was reported for the group which formed about two months ago. More volunteers are needed for handling the telephone at the hospital from 6 to 8 p.m. daily, all day Sunday and holidays.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 19.

The number of juvenile trout in the bay has diminished at an alarming rate and tests point toward DDT deposits in the trouts' reproductive organs as a possible cause for sterile eggs.

Joe Breuer, biologist with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, said a fish census in 1964 showed about 30 juvenile trout per acre in the bay. This year, the survey found about one per acre.

Breuer explained that DDT used years ago to spray crops was washed by many rains into streams which feed the bay. The DDT is picked up by small marine organisms which in turn are eaten by shrimp, which are eaten by the fish. The DDT does not kill the fish directly, but is stored in fatty tissues such as the reproductive organs.

"We haven't used DDT for crops in years, and yet we are just now finding out what it does," Brauer said. "This might be a lesson for the future."

Stars seek to banish clouds

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — By and large, Italians are reputedly artistic, romantic, temperamental and, to their everlasting fury, somehow connected to the Mafia.

Show, business Italians are particularly touchy about Cosa Nostra.

Nov. 20 a group of descendants of that noble Mediterranean land will hold a benefit at Madison Square Garden in New York to promulgate the good names of Italians everywhere.

Frank Sinatra will head the list of stars appearing for the Italian Civil Rights League.

On the bill, too, will be Connie Francis and other prominent pisanos. Connie, whose real name is Franconero, explained that Trini Lopez (of Mexican descent) and Sammy Davis Jr. also would be on hand.

"Sammy said he's Italian one night a year," Connie said.

This assembly, it appears, is to remove the cloud which hovered over a previous meeting held by the Italian-American Anti-Defamation League.

"That rally got a bad name because it was supposed to have been controlled by the Mafia," Connie said, her voice heavy with regret.

"The whole purpose of Italians have these benefits is to prove that very few Italians have anything to do with the Mafia. Most Americans think if you're Italian you're connected with the Mafia."

"We want to destroy that image forever."

It began a decade ago when Italians across the country were wroth at the television show "The Untouchables" in which Eliot Ness (a G-man) slaughtered Italian gangsters by the truckload.

"They finally quit giving the gangsters Italian names," Connie said. "But the actors all looked Italian even though their names in the show are Irish."

In addition to proving (hopefully) that not all Italians belong to the mob.

MRS. OLLIE WERTS

Service observer in the traffic department of Mountain Bell in Twin Falls will retire Nov. 27 after nearly 44 years of service, according to K. G. Mann, district manager. Mrs. Werts began her career in Jerome in 1925 as a junior operator and was promoted to chief operator in 1949. She held this position until conversion to dial telephones in 1957 when she transferred to Twin Falls. Mrs. Werts will continue to live in Jerome after retiring, Mann said.

New collection plan . . .

REVISED SANITATION routes for Twin Falls city residents going into effect in December are shown by various shadings on the above area map. Principal changes are in the Thursday and Friday zones with all previous Saturday pickups now scheduled for Friday and some previous Friday service moved to Thursday. Residents are asked to check their locations on the route map for any change in service dates.

Refuse collection schedule change effective Dec. 3

TWIN FALLS — Solid waste collections in Twin Falls will be streamlined with the first new pick-up schedules becoming effective Dec. 3, city manager Jean Milar announced today. Parks and Sons, contractor for the city service, has been operating more than a month on originally established routes and will now be switching to a five-day week and eliminating service on six major holidays, Milar explained. Changes will be confined to those now served on Friday and Saturday, the manager said. Some of the Friday pickups will be transferred to the Thursday schedule and all of the Saturday service will be switched to Friday.

Holiday being observed by sanitation crews will include New Years Day, Christmas, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, Independence Day, and Memorial Day. To make up for the holidays, persons who would normally receive pick up service on that day will be served on the day following and all backlog will be made up within a two-day period, with some of the regular days after the holiday being postponed to the second day's routes. Milar suggested persons now being served on Thursday and Friday and who must place their trash in a special location for pick up, check the map to make certain about the schedule change. He said special maps and information sheets are being mailed to all city residents who participate in the city services. Commercial service is not involved in the city program.

Welfare ranks growing

WASHINGTON (UPI) —New evidence that an increasing number of welfare families are moving to cities, that more are fatherless, and that most are white was revealed today by the Nixon administration.

The announcement came a day after the administration also released figures showing welfare spending doubled during the last five years to $12.8 billion, and welfare rolls fattened to include a record 12.6 million persons.

The administration predicted another doubling of welfare costs by 1975 and asked for passage of its House-passed welfare reform bill now stalled in the Senate.

During the 1960s the percentage of welfare families living in cities climbed from 61 to 72 per cent, the Health, Education and Welfare Department said in today's report. This meant 7 of 10 welfare families were living in cities, typically in crowded inner city slums. The number of fatherless families getting welfare aid jumped from two-thirds of the total national caseload, to three-fourths.

Total listed

TWIN FALLS — Unofficial election returns reported for the Nov. 3 general election in the Times-News incorrectly listed 24 votes for Gov. Don Samuelson in precinct seven in Twin Falls.

Republican Precinct Committeewoman, Oriette Sinclair reports the correct number was 240 votes for the Republican candidate.

Hansen board rules on work

HANSEN — Members of the Hansen Sewer and Water Improvement Association needing plumbing work on their properties must handle the work themselves or have a plumber do it at their cost. That was the ruling of the association's board of directors during a business meeting Tuesday night. Several Hansen area residents have asked about the board's policy and the decision was reached to clarify the situation, according to W. D. Wiseman, board chairman.

Some sewer equipment which has been purchased by the association may be used by members for a fee, the board said.

Airman awarded honors

TWIN FALLS — A local man, Airman 1C William S. Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Young, has been named "Team Member of the Month" for his unit, the 625th Military Airlift Support Squadron.

The squadron is currently stationed at Torrejon Air Base, located a short distance from Madrid, Spain. Following the Spanish bullfight theme, the squadron selected a bull as its emblem, symbolizing strength and determination.

Under the new program, one man is selected each month for his outstanding contributions to the squadron's maintenance effort. Airman Young was the first winner in his squadron.

Air West staff post to Tuttle

SAN FRANCISCO — Shelby G. Tuttle, 50, a 23-year veteran of Hughes Air West, has been named staff vice president of flight operations for the regional carrier, it was announced today.

He will direct all flight operations for the airline; oversee the company's more than 400 pilots; supervise flight training, flight operations, engineering, flight control and crew scheduling. He will be based at San Francisco International Airport.

Tuttle joined Hughes Air West in 1947 as a flight officer and became captain a year later. Since then he has been check pilot, manager of flight operations, director of operations and, most recently, assistant vice president of operations.

Navy seeks enginemen

TWIN FALLS — The Navy is seeking enginemen first class or enginemen second class, according to Chief Ron Jennings, local Navy recruiter.

Jennings said if former servicemen in these categories have been out of service for four years or less they can re-enlist for two years at their former rate.

Jennings said those interested may talk to recruiters to find out which billets are available.

Patrick Henry made his famous "Liberty or Death" speech March 23, 1775.

Contempt citation dismissed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A federal appellate court cited the "need for an untrammelled press" Tuesday in ruling that a New York Times reporter does not have to appear before a grand jury investigating the Black Panther Party.

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, however, restricted its decision to reporter Earl Caldwell, 32, in dismissing a contempt citation issued in San Francisco by Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli of U.S. District Court.

Caldwell, a Negro who specializes in coverage of militant organizations, termed the decision "a victory for the whole communications business."

He had declared that even an appearance before a secret jury session would cut off his confidential sources among the Panthers.

Zirpoli, who had ruled Caldwell in contempt for not appearing before the jury, had said the reporter did not have to testify on subjects his sources had not given him for public disclosure.

"Where it has been shown that the public's first amendment right to be informed would be jeopardized by requiring a journalist to submit to secret grand jury interrogation, the government must respond by demonstrating a compelling need for the witness' presence" if he is forced to appear, the appeals court declared.

The appeals court found that the government had not shown a compelling need for Caldwell's appearance, but did not spell out what it considered "compelling."

A "need for an untrammelled press takes on special urgency in times of widespread protest and dissent," the appellate judges said, while noting the First Amendment was intended to protect "communications with dissenting groups."

The Constitution's First Amendment guarantees freedom of the press.

Amish people said exempt

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Finance Committee voted Wednesday to exempt from withholding taxes Amish people who refused to accept Social Security benefits on religious grounds. Most members of the religion believe the Bible forbids them from accepting government aid.

Plan to create nucleus of Arab unity doubtful

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. officials doubt that Egypt, Libya and the Sudan will succeed in their plan to create a federation to serve as a nucleus of Arab unity.

Leaders of the three countries, in announcing the proposed federation last week, said one of its purposes was to protect the Arab world from "world imperialism and international Zionism."

U.S. officials cite the fact that earlier attempts at unity among the Arab nations have failed because of traditional intra-Arab rivalries and conflicts in domestic politics.

The view of most U.S. experts appears to be that the only man who had sufficient stature to carry out such a federation was the late Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, and even he failed to hold together the United Arab Republic with Syria, although the name still persists.

Despite their doubts, U.S. officials are not completely writing off the possibility that the new federation eventually may succeed. They cannot afford to do so for the simple reason that if it ultimately works, the ideological and economic ramifications for the Middle East and Europe could be tremendous.

The federation which Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Prime Ministers Muammar Qadhafi of Libya and Jaafar Numeiry of the Sudan announced is a more logical grouping than some of the combinations considered earlier.

Egypt, although it has lost much by Nasser's death, still ranks as the first among equals in political leadership and military power in the Arab world. Libya, governed for more than a year now by a revolutionary command council of young officers patterned after Nasser's regime, brings to the proposed federation an oil income of more than $1 billion a year. The Sudan has vast agricultural potentialities and a supply of manpower to contribute to the pool.

Officials say the federation can have no particular effect at the moment on the Arab-Israeli dispute. However, evidence that the three countries have already achieved some political cooperation came at the United Nations when the Sudan and Libya voted along with Egypt for the resolution to resume peace talks, although they were actually opposed to the move.

The military and political significance of such a federation in northeast Africa is obvious. If it proves ultimately to be a cohesive and effective force, it could greatly alter the power balance against Israel.

Senate proposal acts as check on doctors' taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Finance Committee Wednesday approved a proposal intended to make it harder for doctors to cheat on taxes owed on income earned for treating patients under the $15 billion Medicare and Medicaid programs.

The action was an outgrowth of testimony by Meade Whitaker, a tax expert in the Treasury Department, that half of 3,000 doctors who received more than $25,000 each from the government in 1968 failed to pay taxes on a "substantial" amount of their earnings.

Under the committee's action, Blue Cross and other insurance firms which handle Medicare claims would be required to report to the Internal Revenue Service the names and Social Security numbers of all doctors receiving more than $600 a year for treating Medicare patients.

Using its computers, the IRS would be able to check the tax returns of doctors and other health practitioners to see if they reported the insurance money as part of their taxable income.

Whitaker told the committee Sept. 21 that experience had shown that making such information available to the IRS "can expect an almost miraculous reversal of a serious deficiency in voluntary reporting of income."

Housing standards discussed

BOISE (UPI)—Donald L. Winder, Idaho state director of the Farmers Home Administration, said directors from six Pacific Northwest states and members of their housing staffs met in Boise today to discuss present FHA housing construction standards.

"In the past there has been too little correlation between the states involved and the standards used by county supervisors in housing construction," Winder said.

"It is hoped that at this meeting standard methods of construction can be established that will correspond very closely with the Federal Housing Administration minimum property standards, a guide that has been used for years in urban construction."

An informal meeting was planned for the evening session, with the main topics of the agenda to be discussed with all FHA personnel Thursday.

The band of men known as the "Raccoon-Roughs" in the Civil War were organized by Gen. John Brown Gordon. They came from Raccoon Mountain, Ala.

Music clinic opens Friday

TWIN FALLS — Music educators of the fourth district will sponsor the 1970 high school music clinic in Twin Falls Friday and Saturday, Del Slaughter, local high school music instructor announced.

During the two-day workshop sessions students from Magic Valley high school bands, mixed chorus and girls' chorus members will rehearse for a final concert Saturday at 7:30 p. m. in the CSI gymnasium.

The concert will be open to the public and will feature top musicians from the participating schools in band, mixed and girls' choruses.

Those selected for the clinic band will rehearse at CSI under the direction of guest clinic director, R. David Missal, Idaho State University.

Chorus members will rehearse under the direction of Bert Burda, state music consultant, at the O'Leary Junior High School auditorium. The girls' chorus will be under the direction of James Anderson Boise High School, and will rehearse in the First Christian Church building.

Students attending participating schools are Buhl, Burley, Camas County, Carey, Castleford, Declo, Glenns Ferry, Gooding, Gooding State, Hagerman, Hansen, Jerome, Kimberly, Minidoka, Murtaugh, Oakley, Richfield, Shoshone, Twin Falls, Valley, Wendell and Wood River.

Clinic manager is John Lawrence, local high school principal and Slaughter will act as clinic chairman; Kent Severe, Oakley, mixed chorus chairman, and Richard Youree, Hansen, band chairman.

Slaughter estimated there will be 250 students in the mixed chorus; 250 in the girls' chorus and 180 in the band.

The chairman said the college, O'Leary school and First Christian Church have donated their facilities for the clinic.

Inspection . . .

Ways to dispell opposition told

TWIN FALLS — How to handle adverse public views of the Urban Renewal concept, financing, and parking facilities were factors holding the major interest of Nampa city officials who inspected the downtown Twin Falls redevelopment program Wednesday.

About 25 delegates from Nampa visited the new downtown core area in Twin Falls Wednesday and then met with city officials, Urban Renewal Agency representatives and business representatives who spearheaded the improvement program.

Mayor Ernest Starr, Nampa, explained his community is now in the second step of the planning phase of an improvement program.

Cooperation at all levels is the key to a successful project, the visitors were told by those who have just experienced completion of the local redevelopment program. Asked by Nampa delegates which faction should lead in the move toward redevelopment, Voy Hudson, Urban Agency member, said in Twin Falls there was no one leadership faction, but joint effort from the city administration, the downtown merchants and the Urban Renewal agency.

Financing of the $2,165,000 project, Hudson explained included $1,400,000 from federal funds through Urban Renewal; $260,000 from the city; $255,000 from local improvement district financing and $250,000 from the Off-Street Parking Association.

Hudson and Mayor Frank Feldtman, Twin Falls, explained there was opposition to an Urban Renewal program in Twin Falls, and they warned Nampa to anticipate similar opposition.

To meet this phase of the program in Twin Falls, Hudson said, a committee of downtown supporters visited the opposition individually and sold them on supporting the program.

He explained the key sales "punch" was the fact an improved tax base by bringing up property values in the downtown core would have an economic effect on the property taxes elsewhere in the city. Local officials also stressed importance of adequate off-street parking space at the outset of the project.

Others who explained various phases of the local project to Nampa delegates included Rudy Ashenbrener, Joe Cilek, and Ray Rostron, chamber of commerce manager who served as master of ceremonies. Ed Peterson, project architect and Paul Newton, project engineer, also answered questions for Nampa officials.

Among those attending from Nampa were city council members, businessmen, members of the Nampa City Planning Commission and chamber of commerce members.

Library starts story series

TWIN FALLS — Story hours for adult readers? Not exactly, but almost, says Twin Falls Public Librarian Robert Bruce, in announcing the launching of a new type of service at the local public library.

Bruce said National Book Week is being observed with the start of a revised "story hour" program starting with preschool children and hopefully to be extended to adult readers in the form of book discussion groups.

Beginning today, pre-school children's program in the form of a story hour was held with parents invited to attend and offer their suggestions and ideas. Two sessions were held, one at 1:30 p. m. and another at 3:30 p. m. for the convenience of all area residents.

In workshops attended by local library staff members and conducted by Augusta Baker, New York City Library staff member, it was suggested children's reading programs be tailored to a specific age group rather than open to youngsters of a wide age range. This is now being put into practice locally, Bruce said. Announcements will follow on programs for various other age groups, he said.

Each group will meet about once a month, he said, and will gather in the room across the hall from the children's library.

Bruce also announced the children's library will now be open Mondays from noon to 9 p. m. beginning this week. The adult library is open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Monday through Thursday and the children's library regular hours are 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Bruce said there is a steadily increasing use of library facilities in evening hours, especially by high school and college students. He said it is hoped when the staff is sufficient to handle increased hours, the facilities for both adults and children can be available every evening.

New heat unit for pool eyed

TWIN FALLS — Purchase of a new filter and heating system for the swimming pool at Harmon Park is under discussion by the Twin Falls Parks and Recreation Commission, Howard Johnson, parks department superintendent said today.

The new system, which would cost in the neighborhood of $19,000 would allow the pool temperature to be maintained around 84 degrees, much warmer than is now possible. Johnson said the present filter and heating system, in use many years, is presenting a maintenance problem and needs replacing.

Commission members took no action on the proposal but suggested it be considered in preparing the 1971 budget for the department.

Should a new pool be constructed, he said, the equipment could be used in the new structure and under present operations would save about $1800 in costs per year. It would pay for itself in about 10 years, Johnson said, and has a life expectancy well beyond this.

Commission members, meeting Tuesday night, also approved the name of Kit Moon be recommended to the city council for appointment on the commission. She would fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Vonnie Wheeler.

Discussion was also held on furniture for the golf course club house and storage facilities for golf carts. No action was taken.

Western studies ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department said today it had ordered studies be made of five western river basins as a preliminary step in evaluating cloud seeding programs.

The studies, to be completed by May 31, 1971, will be in these river basins: North Platte in Wyoming and Colorado; the upper Missouri in Montana and Wyoming; the Snake in Wyoming and Idaho; the Bear River in Idaho and Utah and the Rio Grande in Colorado and New Mexico.

North American Weather Consultants, Inc., Goleta, Calif., was given a $40,000 contract to conduct the studies.

HAILEY — Hailey Chamber's Christmas Caper will begin at 6 p. m. Nov. 27 when merchants turn out their lights and await the arrival of the torchlight parade.

The members of the adult community choir, and all other interested singers, will form the parade from Wolf's American corner to the First Security Bank on Main Street. The carriers will carry multi-colored flashlights and will signal in the Christmas season in the valley.

Upon the arrival of the parade at the bank at 7 p. m., members of the community will join in Christmas songs and lights in the city will be turned on. Santa will then ride into town on the fire engine and will bring sacks of candy for all the community's children.

Festivities will then conclude with two hours of evening shopping, with many Christmas specials scheduled by the community's merchants.

Prior to the parade, Santa face decorations will be installed on the city's light posts on Main Street Friday, and Boy Scout Troop 6 will decorate the tree which will rest on the bank corner.

Landfill changes studied

JEROME — Representatives of the Jerome County Commission and Mayor J. A. Russell today discussed modernizing the city-county operated landfill east of town.

Mayor Russell said the 120-acre site about four and one-half miles east of town serves Jerome and the west end of the county. Another facility serves the east end of the county.

The landfill operations must be made to conform to Idaho Department of Health standards, the mayor said. This is required if the lease of the site, set to expire, will be approved for renewal. The site is leased from the Bureau of Land Management.

One of the necessary revisions, the mayor said, may be employment of a landfill operator on a full-time basis.

Plans will be completed and presented at a later date to the city and county officials for formal approval.

Catholics denounce abortion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America's Roman Catholic bishops have asserted that abortion is morally murder, and that Catholic hospitals, physicians and nurses must have no part of it.

It was the first time the Catholic hierarchy had applied the term "murder" to abortion.

In a statement adopted 224 to 8 Wednesday at their fall meeting, the bishops said liberalization of abortion laws "ignores the most basic of an unborn child's civil rights, the right to live itself."

BURLEY — William Roper, long time Burley businessman, will be honored at a dinner at 7 p. m. Friday at the Ponderosa Inn, sponsored by the Burley-Rupert Shrine Club.

Milner Dam has 10 times as much water as year ago, report shows

IDAHO FALLS -- There's plenty of water in eastern Idaho -- the Snake River has more than 10 times as much water at Milner Dam as it did a year ago and snowfall levels are already well above last year's reports in several places.

That's the report from the U.S. Geological Survey, which coordinates water reports from the Bureau of Reclamation and cooperating agencies. The Snake River at Milner was flowing at the rate of 3,920 second feet (cubic feet per second) on Nov. 16, compared to 301 second feet on Nov. 16, 1969. The American Falls Reservoir has almost twice as much water this year -- 1,160,000 acre feet as against 604,400 acre feet in 1969.

By gallons, the figures are even more impressive. The Snake River is flowing at a rate of 29,400 gallons every second or 176,400 gallons per minute. And there's enough water in American Falls to cover 1,812.5 square miles one foot deep. Only Jackson Lake, with 557,200 acre feet, is lower than the 1969 level 595,200 acre feet. Palisades Reservoir lists close to a million acre feet -- 940,700 acre feet of usable water, against 692,800 last year, and Island Park Reservoir reported 73,200 acre feet, up from 54,200 last year.

The Neeley station also has plenty of water -- 3,380 second feet, compared to a flow of 47 last year. Again by gallons, that's 25,350 gallons per second at Neeley or 152,100 gallons per minute going by. Snow depths are higher so far this year also. Island Park lists 14 inches of snow, compared to nine inches last year; Lewis Lake Divide has 35 inches, almost three times the 12 inches reported last year; Twogottee Pass reports 22 inches, up from 18 inches in 1969, and Grassy Lake has 32 inches, against 14 inches a year ago. Only Moran, with six inches of snow, reports the same as the 1969 level. Rainfall (and snow water) is also higher than a year ago, and approaching normal levels. Island Park lists a total of 1.67 inches for the period of Nov. 1 through 16, a considerable increase over the .98 inch recorded for the same period in 1969, and rapidly approaching the average of 2.74 inches over the entire month. Moran has 1.18 inches, compared to .51 last year and a November total of 1.88 inches; and Palisades lists just under an inch, or .96 inch, against only eight-hundredths last year and 1.67 inches for the month.

PART OF THE Wendell area's potato crop is being stored in this new cellar constructed by Blick and Reese Contract Co. south of Wendell. The firm presently has about one-half million sacks of potatoes stored in the Wendell area.

Potato cellar finished

WENDELL -- The Blick and Reese Contract Company completed construction of a potato cellar in the industrial area of south Wendell shortly before harvest of the 1970 potato crop. The design of the cellar is new. It is all above ground and is equipped with air-conditioning units. The area covered is 340 feet by 50 feet. It has capacity for 100,000 sacks of potatoes. In addition to filling this cellar the company purchased another and has leased three others. It presently has 500,000 sacks of potatoes stored in the Wendell area. Blick and Reese has contracted over a million sacks of potatoes for Idaho Frozen Foods, Twin Falls, during the 1970 season. The potatoes are stored in a number of cellars in Magic Valley. John Hohnhorst, Hazelton, field representative for Idaho Frozen Foods, said "The Wendell area is the greatest place in the world to raise potatoes, pasture, alfalfa, and corn because of the large supply of underground water which is unique to the area." He said "With water and fertilizer the sandy soil of the Wendell area will grow a terrific amount of high quality crops." Potatoes grown in the area are largely irrigated by the sprinkling system which controls the amount of water applied per acre. It is said that sprinkling has doubled potato production in the area but experts say this is a conservative statement. A producer south of Wendell harvested 350 sacks per acre that averaged as high as 83 per cent No. ones. Some report 350 sacks running as high as 75 per cent and most can truthfully quote a 300 sack figure of at least 50 per cent ones.

Idaho Frozen Foods has potatoes in the Hazelton, Burley and Bruneau areas that are irrigated by conventional methods. Crops in these areas are not as profitable as the yields are not as high and the cost of water is greater and cannot be controlled by gallon per acre as easily, Hohnhorst said. Idaho Frozen Foods contracted 15,070 acres of potatoes in the Wendell area. This is about half of the amount that was planted in the area in 1970. Other companies operating in the area are Simplot, Lamb-Weston, Ore-Ida and Jim Henry. The future of the industry depends on the ability to adapt, Hohnhorst said. To have a sound program the producer must adopt a sound rotation program as land will only produce about three high quality potato crops without rest.

MALCOLM STUART, Jerome, has been appointed as chief aviary inspector, reports Idaho Agriculture Commissioner Stanley I. Trenthall. A beekeeper for 40 years, Stuart will operate from his home in Jerome. His duties involve coordinating a program to prevent loss of bees from pesticide spraying and checking with beekeepers throughout the state to control "foul brood," a serious disease of bees.

Green Giant reorganizes

MINNEAPOLIS -- Green Giant has realigned the marketing function of its U.S.A. grocery products division into two major areas of responsibility, it was announced today by L. H. Polsfuss, vice president and general manager. Donald A. Osell, previously director of new concept development, has been named director of marketing and will head one of the two areas. He will be responsible for product marketing, market research and home services. The other major area will be headed by R. C. Henley, whose title remains vice president of sales. He will assume the additional responsibility of trade relations.

Toy ban asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Two nonprofit groups aided by a public service law firm urged federal officials today to ban eight allegedly unsafe toys. Otherwise, they said, they would sue the government on grounds it failed to enforce the Toy Safety Act.

The petition was filed with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) by Consumers Union (CU), publisher of Consumer Reports Magazine, and the Children's Foundation.

"Since the Child Protection and Toy Safety Act took effect Jan. 6, HEW has done nothing to assure its enforcement despite letters from Consumers Union citing several toys with potentially lethal hazards," the two organizations said in a statement.

Rep. James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., made a similar charge Oct. 30 and called for quick action so children would not receive hazardous toys for Christmas.

Morris Kaplan, CU technical director, released an exchange of letters with HEW officials dating back to March 16 in which his organization pointed out alleged hazards of various toys and unsuccessfully sought action against them.

"We expect immediate action by HEW on the petition, and are fully prepared to take this matter into the federal courts if such immediate action is not forthcoming," Kaplan said.

He said the legal work would be handled by the Stern Community Law Firm, a Washington public service firm.

DEADLY, UNSAFE TOYS like this "Wasp Cap Gum," held by Morris Kaplan, Consumer Union technical director, are asked to be banned by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Seeking the ban are Consumer Union, which publishes Consumer Reports magazine, and the Children's Foundation. Otherwise, they said, they would sue the government on the grounds it failed to enforce the Toy Safety Act. In the foreground are lawn darts with pointed steel tips that are two inches long and have seriously injured at least two children. (UPI)

Austria, Red China may soon have diplomatic ties

VIENNA (UPI)—Chancellor Bruno Kreisky of Austria says his government expects to start negotiations toward diplomatic recognition of Communist China.

"We think it does not make sense for us to ignore a country with a population of 700 million," Kreisky said in an interview with UPI. "Moreover, we think that principal questions like disarmament can be solved only if the Peoples Republic of China takes part in negotiations."

The interview, which took place in Kreisky's wood-paneled office in the Vienna Chancellery, ranged over both foreign and domestic policy. State papers and two scholarly books—one on the German poet Goethe—littered Kreisky's large desk as the chancellor, speaking very slowly in fluent English, made these other points:

—Any European security conference now would necessarily be based on the status quo. However, nobody could make me believe that this status quo could be changed now with peaceful means—and only peaceful means can be considered by responsible politicians."

—A security conference, part of the preparations for which he supports, could lead to a non-aggression treaty in Europe. But a solution to the "Berlin problem" should be such a conference.

Canadians "birdproof" planes with help of "chicken" cannon

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The National Research Council (NRC) of Canada has a cannon that fires not shells but dead chickens.

It fires them at speeds up to 620 miles an hour at such targets as aircraft windshields and tail assembly sections.

The cannon, which gets its propelling force from compressed air, is used in research on how to "birdproof" airplanes. The NRC says its equipment is the most advanced of any now in operation.

Bird-plane collisions, according to the NRC, "have triggered air disasters." There have, however, been happy endings to such encounters.

In April, 1969, a Canadian Pacific Boeing 737 transport with a full passenger load was coming in for a night landing at Winnipeg's International Airport. Flying at 335 miles an hour at 3,000 feet altitude, it ran into a flock of geese migrating northward. Seven of the geese, weighing 10 to 12 pounds, struck the plane.

The fuselage was pierced near the pilot's windshield. Both engine cowlings were hit and damage was inflicted on the fuselage and on the righthand wing slots.

Luckily, the NRC said, "no vulnerable parts were damaged and the pilot was able to bring his aircraft down safely." Vulnerable areas include windshields, tail assembly sections, and openings where birds might be ingested into the engines.

Progress has been made in clearing birds from the vicinity of airports, but there remains the hazard of collisions enroute. The best way of dealing with this, the NRC said, appears to be birdproofing of the craft themselves by strengthening and increasing the energy absorbing capabilities of vulnerable parts."

So the Canadian Research Council with its pneumatic cannon and chicken carcasses is trying to find out how best to accomplish birdproofing. It uses chicken projectiles in weight sizes ranging from four to eight pounds.

Green plants manufacture all the vitamins they require for themselves, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

School noise varies

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The tone of noise at a happy high school is different.

The noise is the same whether the high school is seething with dissension or bubbling with fellowship. Bells ring, buzzers sound, the public address system drones out messages, the hallway decibel level reaches shattering heights.

Yet, the authors of an unhappy report on turmoil and disorder in city high schools told the U.S. Office of Education they could spot the difference easily.

"The differences show up in the tone of the noise, not necessarily its level, and especially in the kinds of brief human contacts among adult staff, hall guards or whatever, and students moving hurriedly to their next assignment," the Policy Institute of the Syracuse University Research Corporation said.

"The smiling level is important. The kinds of jocular interplay are probably more important.

Unfortunately, the Institute found little to smile about. "One cannot visit urban high schools and not be directly aware of the clashes produced by mixing large numbers of young people and adults who come from very different neighborhoods, very different racial and ethnic strands, and very different age brackets."

Too often, the trouble is racial. And the unhappiest city high schools of all were those that were racially integrated, the authors repeatedly declared throughout their 130-page report.

"Disruption is positively related to integration," the report said.

"We found that much of the physical fighting, the extortion, the bullying in and around schools had a clear racial basis."

Too often, trouble results from inadequate response. "One principal told us that a black group in his school wished to have exclusive use of a particular sector of the cafeteria, removed the American flag from that area, and substituted the Black Liberation flag," the report related.

"It is difficult to see how permission for this behavior could be given but it was."

The results were predictable — angry parents, outraged teachers, shocked officials of the school system, and compromise.

Smokin' Joe KOs Foster early in second round

Detroit (UPI)—Heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, smoking away with thundering left hands, knocked out light heavyweight champion Bob Foster at 49 seconds of the second round Wednesday night. The impressive victory by the aggressive champion from Philadelphia was his first defense of the disputed title he won nine months ago and kept open the possibility of a big money championship fight with former heavyweight king Cassius Clay, probably in New York in February.

Frazier, fighting in his usual furious non-stop fashion, forced Foster backward throughout the short fight and floored him twice in the second round.

The first knockdown came only seconds after the second round opened with a booming left that caught Foster high on the cheekbone.

The light heavyweight champion made it up at the count of eight, although he slipped again seconds later before straightening up completely. Frazier pounced on him in a rampaging effort to seal the victory quickly, crowded him against the ropes and knocked him flat with another tremendous left.

Foster, who was outweighed by 21 pounds at 188 to Frazier's 209, lay flat on his back near Frazier's corner as referee Tom Briscoe tolled the full count of 10.

The light heavyweight champion was so stunned that he still was on his back two minutes after the knockout as his handlers used smelling salts to clear his head.

But he was able to tell them, "I'm all right, I'm all right." He regained his feet and was able to leave the ring under his own steam.

The first round of the scheduled 15-round title match in 15,000-seat Cobo Hall, was fairly closely fought. Frazier had the edge with several good head punches, but Foster also scored with one solid left that made Frazier blink.

Foster, the taller and slimmer, may have lost his only chance to win early in the first round when he twice potted Frazier with two solid right hands. Foster is regarded as one of the toughest right-handed punchers in boxing, but those two wallops didn't seem to faze Frazier at all and "Smokin' Joe" seemed to sense that he had the fight won.

"I felt him in the first round," Frazier admitted. "But I wasn't hurt. I knew he was gonna go in the second after that left."

Referee Briscoe said he thought Foster had "come back strong" after the first knockdown.

"But that last punch did it," Briscoe added.

Thus both of the fights staged as a closed circuit television "doubleheader" ended in the second round. Earlier, in the first half of the show at New York's Madison Square Garden, George Foreman, the olympic heavyweight champion, stopped Boone Kirkman of Seattle, in the second.

Foster's failure to lift the heavyweight champion's crown marked the 11th time in 11 attempts that a light heavyweight champion has met and lost to the reigning heavyweight champion.

Frazier and his manager, Yancey Durham, who had avoided talking about Clay during preparations for the Foster fight, also avoided it afterwards.

"I'm not going to say anything about Clay now," Durham said. "I am going home and Frazier is going home and after two or three weeks we will talk about it."

Durham disputed the referee's opinion that Foster recovered from the first knockdown.

"They should have stopped it after that first knockdown," Durham said. "Anybody who knows anything about boxing could see it was over after the first round."

Frazier was to receive 40 per cent of the receipts, including the television, with a guarantee of at least $150,000. This was his first bout since defeating Jimmy Ellis nine months ago to gain the undisputed title.

Bulls bump Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (UPI)—The Chicago Bulls defeated Cincinnati, 128-107, Wednesday night in a National Basketball Association game, getting a strong third period from 7-foot Tom Boerwinkle who took control of the boards.

After leading by 58-53 at the half, Chicago pulled out to an overwhelming lead as Cincinnati hit on only five of 27 field goal attempts for 18 per cent in the third period.

The Bulls, now 10-6, had five men in double figures, led by Chet Walker with 27 points and Bob Weiss with 25.

Tom Van Arsdale led Cincinnati with 24 points, 16 in the first half.

"Clay Can't Win"

DETROIT (UPI)—"Clay is not going to beat no Frazier."

This from Bob Foster, who had just felt the punishing lefts and rights from aggressive heavyweight champion Joe Frazier Wednesday night on the "dream bout" everybody has been talking about.

"(Cassius) Clay don't put any pressure on you," the beaten Foster said with conviction after the fight. "You don't put no pressure on him and he don't put any on you."

"I don't think Clay has anything to keep Joe off."

What the gallant in defeat 31-year old, who plans to defend his light heavyweight title before returning to the heavyweight wars for another possible shot at the crown, was talking about was the constant pressure the determined Frazier put on him.

Foster, of Silver Springs, Md., said he "didn't hear either count...he just caught me with clean shots."

"He's a good fighter, he put a lot of pressure on me but he's not hard to hit," said the man who "wouldn't start out as fast as I did" if they fought again.

"I was hitting him in the first round," he said. "No—not with everything I had."

"But there's no way Clay is going to beat him," Foster went on. "I'm a better puncher than Clay is—I would have had a better chance against Clay than against Frazier."

Foster was calm and apparently unscarred when he met the press in the dressing room.

Clay says Frazier too slow

ATLANTA (UPI)—No sooner had Joe Frazier knocked out Foster over closed circuit television than Cassius Clay leaped from his seat in Atlanta city auditorium and screamed "I want Joe Frazier. I want Joe Frazier."

Performing before a slim crowd, Clay began shadow-boxing, narrating his efforts with lines like:

"Is Joe Frazier this fast? Can he do anything about this?"

Clay was followed through the auditorium to a brief press conference by a crowd of what appeared to be almost all the paying customers. He said he is ready to fight Frazier anywhere and would like to fight in Atlanta.

"I won't have any trouble with Joe Frazier. I'll show him who the heavyweight champion of the world is. He never fought anybody. Bobby Foster is skinny and can't fight and Jimmy Ellis is skinny and that's the kind of people he has been fighting."

Clay said Frazier has no footwork "and he just can't move against a fighter as fast as me."

He left the auditorium followed by a large crowd and stopped on the street and shouted, "Do you all want to see Frazier against me?" The crowd responded affirmatively.

Colonels whip Cougars

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI)—The Kentucky Colonels, behind the shooting of Cincy Powell and Dan Issel, gave new coach Frank Ramsey his first American Basketball Association success Wednesday night with a 122-112 win over the Carolina Cougars.

Powell and Issel both had 28 points, while Carolina's Joe Caldwell was high man of the game with 30.

New champ will fight

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Juan Carlos Lactour, manager of this city's Luna Park Boxing Stadium, said Wednesday newly-crowned middleweight champion Carlos Monzon would fight Pascal De Benedetto, of France, on Dec. 19 in a non-title bout.

Monzon, from the northern Argentine city of Santa Fe, won the title Nov. 7 in Rome, where he knocked out former Champion Nino Benevenuti.

Playoff schedule revamped

NEW YORK (UPI)—A revamped playoff schedule and an enlarged post season jackpot of $700,000 in prize money were the only two items of business determined Wednesday as National Basketball Association Commissioner Walter Kennedy, met with the 17 club owners.

Kennedy, who said "we had a lot of housekeeping to do during the morning meetings and I don't expect much else to be settled today," outlined the NBA's new playoff setup for this season.

In the Eastern Conference the winner of the Atlantic Division (New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Buffalo) then plays the runnerup in the Central Division (Baltimore, Cincinnati, Atlanta, and Cleveland) with the winner of the Central playing the second place team in the Atlantic.

The same system applies in the Western Conference, with the Midwest Division champion (Milwaukee, Chicago, Detroit, and Phoenix) meeting the runner up in the Pacific Division (Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, San Diego and Portland) and the winner in the Pacific playing the No. 2 team in the Atlantic.

Bullets top Cavs 111-98

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Kevin Loughery logged only 22 minutes of playing time Wednesday night but the Baltimore guard flipped in 20 points to pace the Bullets to an easy 111-98 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers in a National Basketball Association game.

The Bullets, who lead the Central division with an 11-8 record, took a 27-17 first quarter lead and Loughery pumped in 12 second quarter points. Jack Marin added 10 to give Baltimore a 59-41 lead at halftime.

Gus Johnson and Eddie Miles, who each finished with 17 points, combined for 20 third quarter markers as the Bullets increased their lead to 23 points at 89-66.

Bobby Smith paced the Cavaliers with 26 points, but the Baltimore defense held John Johnson, Cleveland's leading scorer, to two points in the first half. The rookie from Iowa finished with 10.

Frazier will think about Clay after Bonavena fight

DETROIT (UPI)—As soon as Joe Frazier emerged from the dressing room Wednesday night after destroying Bob Foster in two rounds, the chant began:

"What about Clay? Clay was watching you on television, you bum. You can never beat him."

However, the 26-year-old heavyweight champion simply ignored the jibes and continued walking.

"I ain't thinking about him yet," Frazier said. "I'll wait until after Clay fights (Oscar Bonavena). Bonavena's got a chance to ruin any plans."

The first visitors into Frazier's dressing room after the victory included former champion Floyd Patterson; Jimmy Ellis, who was defeated last February to give Frazier undisputed possession of the title; George Chuvalo and then Foster.

"I told the reporters there's no way Clay can beat you," the defeated light heavyweight champion said. "You're something else."

Foster should know, too. He was knocked down twice, lying in semi-consciousness for nearly three minutes while Dr. Robert Bennett worked to revive him.

"I thought he was very badly hurt," Dr. Bennett said. "It's hard to tell just how badly a man is hurt, but he shouldn't fight for at least three months."

Frazier was asked if he considered Foster merely a tuneup for a bout with Clay in February.

76ers rally past Knicks

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Veteran Bailey Howell scored 12 of his 15 points in the last period Wednesday night as the Philadelphia 76ers spurred in the final four minutes and 30 seconds for a 113-106 victory over the New York Knicks in a national basketball association game at the spectrum.

Bill Cunningham, who scored 29 points to lead the 76ers, put the winners ahead to stay at 101-100 with 4:30 remaining.

Cunningham's basket began a streak of nine straight Philadelphia points which produced a 108-100 Philadelphia lead with 2:46 remaining and the Knicks never came closer than six points the rest of the way.

"Any time I risk my title it's no tuneup," Frazier said. "If I were in there against my Mother I'd be giving it all I had."

"He hurt me with a right hand in that first round and I came back to my corner shaking my head," he added.

"I asked my manager, Yank Durham, what I was doing wrong and he said, keep the left up. When I came out for the second round I was smiling because I knew I was gonna do it right now. They shouldn't have let it continue after that first knockdown, and after the second one, I was a little scared that he might be hurt bad."

"I was just glad when he wasn't."

Emerson stunned by Taylor

WEMBLEY, England (UPI)—English southpaw Roger Taylor whose participation in the tournament was threatened by a stiff neck, Wednesday continued the run of upsets at the $60,000 Embassy tennis championships by beating sixth-seeded Roy Emerson of Australia in straight sets, 6-4, 6-

Taylor had little difficulty in defeating Emerson to qualify for a quarter-final match with third-seeded Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., the ITF grand prix leader with 49 points.

Other second round winners Wednesday were South Africa's Cliff Drysdale, first round Victor over fourth-seeded Arthur Ashe who beat British lefty Mark Cox, 9-8, 6-3, and Romania's ILYA Nastase, who beat Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash., 6-8, 6-2, 6-4.

S.F. staves off Celtics

BOSTON (UPI)—The Boston Celtics tied the score twice in the last minutes but it wasn't enough as the San Francisco Warriors, led by Jeff Mullins' 30 points, pulled out a squeaker Wednesday 90-89 before 3,853.

Sloppy was the word for both teams in the first half, with the Warriors hitting only 16 of 50 field goal attempts and Boston scoring 14 of 51. Adrian Smith's jumper with two seconds on the clock gave San Francisco a 43-41 lead at the half.

Boston never led in the second half.

Fitzpatrick has PPK area title

Ford's Punt, Pass, and Kick competition began with over a million boys from all over the United States. After the area finals at Denver last week only 26 remained. One of those was Twin Falls' Casey Fitzpatrick—who now advances to the national semi-finals at San Diego Dec. 20.

CASEY FITZPATRICK won the Area Punt, Pass, and Kick finals in Denver last week and will represent Twin Falls at the national semi-finals in San Diego Dec. 20.

Falls has now gone through a half-dozen different competitions and if he can get past the eight-year-old division in San Diego he will earn a trip to the national PPK finals in Los Angeles at the AFC-NFC Pro Bowl.

Casey beat his nearest competition at Denver by 22 points in the pre-game PPK area final conducted at the Bronco-Oklaid Raider game. The remaining 26 finalists will be halved for the semi-finals—13 going to San Diego and 13 to New Orleans before the final winners get together at Los Angeles.

Casey—the only Twin Falls boy to ever get this far and one of three from Twin Falls who made it out of the Boise competition for the first time ever—is taking his fame in stride. "He hadn't shown much nervousness until this Denver game," commented his mother, "but he was about 20 points ahead of the other boy after his kicks and when we saw that his pass was just about as far we knew he had it won. They had him run from the goalposts to the 50-yard-line to get his trophy in front of that big crowd and he was really thrilled."

named recipient of the Ostyn award and the top lineman of the year for the Bruins in addition to second team Southern Idaho Conference mention while Borah was named the top Bruin-offensive back plus first team SIC mention.

Borah of Twin Falls, Torix make all-SIC first team

Richard Borah, who fought off a season of nagging injuries to spearhead the Twin Falls attack over its last four games, and Minico tackle, Steve Torix, were rewarded Thursday by being named to the first team 1970 all-Southern Idaho Conference football team. Borah, a senior, was joined on the

"dream team" by center Eric Day, a senior, and junior middlelinebacker Dennis Blackwood, both of whom were placed on the second unit. Those four were the only Magic Valley men selected by the voters. Meanwhile, the voters named Capital junior Ron Emry, the league's new all-time rushing leader, as the back of the year; selected Borah wide receiver Gene Bleymaier and Highland tight end-kicker Ted Tomlinson as co-linemen of the year, and Jim Koetter of Highland and Dee Pankratz of Borah, whose teams won their respective divisions, as co-coaches.

The voting turned up two oddities. In the first, they were unable to select a clear cut decision at quarterback and the top three statistic leaders wound up tied as first teamers. These include Ross Goddard of Skyline, Bill Green of Highland and Mark Lindgren of Borah. In the other, the voters went heavily for juniors, particularly at linebacker where the top three vote getters have a year's eligibility remaining.

The first team offense includes Goddard, Green and Lindgren at quarterback with running backs Ron Emry, Borah and Jeff Simmons of Highland. Bleymaier and Tomlinson hold down the end positions while Torix is joined at tackle by Brian Page of Skyline. The guards are Kevin Norby of Highland and Dave Whitman of Caldwell with Scott Ahlstrom of Capital at center.

Green led the conference in total offense with 2,215 yards and also in passing yards. Lindgren broke the conference mark by throwing for 19 touchdowns over the year and was second in the yardage departments. He had 2042 total yards with 1510 passing. Goddard has 13 touchdown throws with 1487 yards passing and 1,614 yards total offense.

Bleymaier paced a tight battle for wide receiver, winning the first spot over Kelly Diest of Skyline and Brad Peck of Highland. Bleymaier tied the season record with 12 touchdowns and had 43 receptions for 893 yards. Diest took the second spot with Peck, although the conference's leading receiver statistically, fell to honorable mention although only two votes out of first team.

The western division dominated the defensive units with Highland placing three men on the first team and the only eastern representatives. The unit includes ends, Cordon Bronson of Borah and Frank Hoford of Boise; tackles, Steve Miller of Borah and Bill Rice of Capital; nose guard (tie), Randy Matkin of Highland and Jim Nowierski of Borah; linebackers, John Cantlon of Caldwell and Scott Dickson of Boise; cornerbacks, Grant Gertsch of Highland and Ralph Sherman of Caldwell, and safeties, Craig Avery of Highland and Scott McKibben of Borah.

The second team offensive unit included backfield, Rick Janes of Caldwell, Ron Laursen of Boise, Grant Gertsch of Highland and Marv Gibbons of Meridian; wide receiver, Kelly Diest of Skyline; tight end, Larry Bearg of Capital; tackles, Russ Baer of Boise and Dave Wakeman of Borah; guards, Don Morishita of Skyline and Ed Hight of Capital and center, Eric Day, Twin Falls.

Day, McArthur honored at Bruin fete

Eric Day, a 170-pound offensive center who earned second team all-conference mention, was named winner of the Ostyn award for "the hardest working player with the greatest desire to win" at the Twin Falls high school fall sports banquet Wednesday night.

Day was one of about 100 football and cross country participants honored at the event which featured Coach Ed Cavanaugh of Idaho State as the main speaker. Day joined an illustrious group of previous winners ranging back to 1959 and the presentation was made by Paul Ostyn, current vice principal, who began the award when he took over the football helm at Twin Falls in 1959.

Borah, the only Bruin to be named to the Southern Idaho Conference all-star first team, was selected as the Twin Falls offensive back of the year. Defensively, junior Dennis Blackwood, a second team all-conference linebacker, won the lineman defensive award for the team while Kevin Call won the outstanding defensive back award.

Also in the program, Coach Jerry Kleinkopf, cross country coach, presented his state champions and paid particular tribute to Jay MacArthur, a senior who overcame the debility of an accident to serve as the inspirational leader of the team. Coach Kleinkopf presented the top five in the state competition including Stan Doten, Dave Sears, Bob Billington, Jack Cooper and Darrell Groves.

Also honored was Dr. Ernest Ragland, superintendent of Class A school district No. 411, who has announced his retirement at the end of the current school term. Dr. Ragland was praised for his leadership in erecting the physical facilities available to the athletic department and was presented with special awards plus a standing ovation for the large crowd.

Tampa hikes poll lead on strength of big ISU win

NEW YORK (UPI)—Tampa turned on its biggest offensive show of the year last Saturday to virtually walk off with top honors among small college football teams.

Fran Curci's Spartans, led by Leon McQuay's 213-yard performance, piled up 507 yards, 465 on the ground, to rout Idaho State 68-7. The impressive victory, Tampa's ninth without a loss, helped the Spartans gain 25 first place votes and 316 points from the 34 members of the 35-man United Press International Board of Coaches who participated in the ninth week's balloting.

The total left Tampa well ahead of second-place Arkansas State, which had only four first place votes and 285 points.

There were few changes in the top 10 as Montana captured third, followed by North Dakota State, Tennessee State, Wofford, Western Kentucky, Delaware, Abilene Christian and Long Beach State.

Walsh said the Angels have entered into a working agreement with the Salt Lake City Baseball Club Inc. for the 1971 season, thus assuring PCL baseball in Utah's capital city.

Walsh told a luncheon that although he couldn't predict championship for Salt Lake next season, he was confident the Angels will field a title contender.

A field manager for the Salt Lake team, which apparently will carry the nickname "Angels," has yet to be chosen, but a selection is expected in a week or two.

Walsh said some of the players who will be assigned to Salt Lake City will be members of the Hawaii team that won the PCL Southern Division championship in 1970.

Salt Lake City was the chief farm club of the San Diego Padres last year but was dropped at the end of the season for economic reasons.

Jim Barnett poured in 34 points for the winners, including 16 of 16 from the foul line while Geoff Petrie added 24. But Portland got its best work from the pivot where LeRoy Ellis and Dale Schleuter split the time and combined for 34 points and 31 rebounds.

Hudson had a startling 21 points in the first stanza and wound up 31 points at the half while Maravich hooped 22.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Larry Jones poured in 35 points Wednesday night to lead the Floridians to a 127-115 American Basketball Association victory over the Virginia Squires.

Sam Robinson contributed 30 points in the Floridians' second straight win after dropping six in a row.

The Floridians led 59-48 at the half and at one point in the third quarter had a 23-point lead.

Bucks top San Diego by 117-111

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—San Diego rookie forward Don Adams scored 23 points including 11 in the final quarter as the Rockets made a run, but Lew Alcindor and the Milwaukee Bucks held on for a 117-111 National Basketball Association win Wednesday night.

The Rockets outscored the Bucks in the second half, but the Eastern Division leaders had built up a 14-point halftime lead and with Alcindor scoring 25 and four other Bucks in double figures they held on.

The closest San Diego got was at 110-106 with 2:15 left in the final period, but Alcindor connected on a three point play to open the lead. The loss was San Diego's eighth in a row to the Bucks since Alcindor joined Milwaukee last season.

The win was Milwaukee's 11th in a row in a 12-1 season. San Diego is 9-11.

Following Adams in scoring for the Rockets was Stu Lantz with 21. Larry Siegfried scored 18 while Elvin Hayes and John Trapp hit 16 each.

For Milwaukee, Greg Smith had 21, Oscar Robertson 19, Bob Dandridge 18, and Jon McGlocklin scored 10.

Rocket forward John Block went out of the game in the first half with a sprained back.

Pacers down Rockets

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI)—The Indiana Pacers, hitting at a torrid 48 per cent from the field, overcome a big rebounding deficit Wednesday to hand the Denver Rockets a 119-114 American Basketball Association defeat.

Denver outrebounded the visitors 74 to 48 in a game played at the Colorado State University Auditorium, but failed to match Indiana's shooting accuracy. The Rockets averaged 36.8 per cent of their shots.

Fred Lewis dumped in 34 points and Roger Brown added 22 to lead the Pacer attack.

Don Sidle had 20 points and Larry Cannon chipped in with 28 for Denver. Byron Beck had 19 rebounds and Julius Keys had 17 to lead Denver in that department.

The score was knotted seven times in the third period, but Indiana pulled away in the final quarter, boosting the lead to 13 points before coasting in for the win.

Salt Lake will get PCL team

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—The California Angels, pledging to field a championship contender, announced an agreement Wednesday that assures Salt Lake City of Pacific Coast League baseball again in 1971.

"I expect to have a contender in Salt Lake City," said Dick Walsh, executive vice president and general manager of the American League club in making his announcement.

He said the Angels have entered into a working agreement with the Salt Lake City Baseball Club Inc. for the 1971 season, thus assuring PCL baseball in Utah's capital city.

Walsh told a luncheon that although he couldn't predict championship for Salt Lake next season, he was confident the Angels will field a title contender.

Policy change sought

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — The Public Land Law Review Commission advocates a reversal of the statutory policy of large-scale disposal of public land in favor of selective disposals, Commission Director Milton A. Pearl said today.

Pearl addressed a regional public hearing aimed at giving representatives and citizens of eight western states a chance to give their views on commission proposals for managing public land.

Pearl said the selective disposal idea topped a list of 18 basic underlying principles in the form of recommendations to provide the broad outline of public land policy of the future.

"The commission believes disposals will be modest because at this time most public land will not serve the maximum public interest in private ownership," Pearl said.

He said the commission, which will cease to exist next month, is satisfied its report lays the foundation for "significant, meaningful modernization" of the practices governing the management and disposition of one-third of the nation's land.

He said it has not asked for the enactment of legislation to put into effect all of the recommendations "but we have said that after spending 5 years and $7 million, it is now time to get out of the legal jungle that the public land laws now present."

In addition to the 18 basic recommendations, the report contains 137 numbered recommendations and 250 subsidiary recommendations, adoption of which, he said, "would leave no public land law intact."

German-Polish bridge brings edgy glances

By PHIL NEWSOM UPI Foreign News Analyst

Quite rightly, the West German-Polish accord is being hailed as another major accomplishment for Chancellor Willy Brandt's bridge-building policy toward the East.

Like a nervous relative at a wedding ceremony, the United States approves it but at the same time wonders where it will lead, its effect upon NATO and the European Common Market and what, if any, secret motives Moscow may have in this and the similar non-aggression treaty signed by the Soviets and West Germany earlier.

Obviously the Poles could not have entered the negotiations in the first place without prior approval from Moscow, and the same must be said of other negotiations which the Germans now plan with others of the East European Communist bloc.

Between the Germans and the Poles, however, were elements lending special interest to their negotiations.

The first and overriding one, of course, was the Polish demand for recognition of the Oder-Neisse border which gave them some 40,000 square miles of former German territory.

This was in compensation for some 70,000 square miles taken from the Poles by the Soviet Union after World War II. The western allies at Potsdam approved the takeover of the German lands as a temporary measure to be settled finally only by a formal peace treaty. The East Germans long since had recognized it under the treaty of Gorliz.

The West Germans recognized the "reality" of the Polish demand, while at the same time assuring the Western powers that such recognition in no way impinged upon Western rights in the final treaty.

Two other elements bore strongly upon the Polish-West German negotiations.

One was the backlog of ill-will left by the war which cost Poland one-fifth of its population and the succeeding 25 years in which Communist propaganda bore heavily upon the theme of German revanchists, war-mongers and revenge-seekers.

A second was that portion of the population beyond the Oder-Neisse line that remained German despite the fact it now was in Polish hands. Approximately nine million left the area with retreating German armies, were expelled or left for other reasons.

The Poles said that was it and that there were no other Germans left. The Germans declare there were some 2 1/2 million remaining, and made it an issue of the negotiations.

This is the "humanitarian" question which apparently is to be handled in a document separate from the main treaty.

Arms topic of SALT

WASHINGTON (UPI) —It would be no great exaggeration to say that the future of mankind may depend on SALT. Not the table salt you sprinkle on your vegetables—although that's pretty vital too. Salt, when spelled with all capital letters, is an acronym for the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks which the United States and Russia are conducting in Helsinki, Finland.

These talks have been under way for a year. Diplomats say they are going forward in a calm, serious and purposeful atmosphere, with neither side trying to score propaganda points. U.S. officials are cautiously optimistic that some kind of arms limitation agreement eventually will be reached.

The chief obstacle to agreement is, of course, the intense mutual distrust built up between the two nuclear superpowers over the past quarter century of cold war confrontation.

The chief reason for hoping this obstacle can somehow be overcome is the realization on both sides that the nuclear arms race has reached the point where it no longer makes sense—militarily or economically.

Both the United States and Russia have stockpiled enough nuclear warheads to destroy each other many times over. Some experts say the U.S. stockpile is sufficient to bomb Russia out of existence 1,000 times, while Russia has enough warheads to destroy America 16 times.

The United States derives no security advantage from having a greater "overkill" capacity than Russia. To be able to demolish a land 1,000 times is, from a practical viewpoint, no greater threat than the ability to wipe it out once. Wiped out is wiped out.

Israel seeks more arms

By United Press International
Israel is asking the United States for more sophisticated military hardware on easy credit terms, diplomatic sources said today in Tel Aviv. Israel has said it needs such things as Phantoms and modern tanks if it is to resume the Middle East talks.

The sources said Foreign Minister Abba Eban would put forth the Israeli request at a meeting in Washington today with Secretary of State William P. Rogers, and that he would ask the United States continue the shipments through 1971.

Political sources in Beirut said Syria's strongman, Lt.

Gen. Hafez Assaad, openly took control of Syria today by naming himself prime minister and party leader. Political sources said this could end Syria's hardline isolationist policy and increase the chances of peace in the Middle East.

Egypt also got a new government today. Premier-designate Mahmoud Fawzi named a 32-man cabinet in which Gen. Mohamed Fawzi remained as war minister, Maymoud Riad as foreign minister and Sharawi Gomha as interior minister. Riad and Gomha were promoted to deputy premiers.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Tuesday night he favors resumption of the peace talks if a new cease-fire agreement can be worked out with Egypt based on "certain physical arrangements of a more permanent nature." Diplomats said they thought this meant a mutual pullback by Egyptian and Israeli troops from the Suez Canal.

Damascus radio meanwhile reported fighting broke out today in the northern part of Jordan between Arab guerrillas and the Jordanian army.

The outbreak of fighting in Jordan near the Syrian border town of Ramtha and several neighboring villages came at a crucial time for Jordan. Palestinian leaders had called a meeting to merge their commando groups and asked Arab truce officials to condemn "elements" obstructing peace agreements.

Prison buildings planned

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho's Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council will consider final plans for construction of three more buildings at the new state prison site when it meets in Boise Dec. 2.

Director of Correction Raymond May said prison architects have finished plans for a mass hall, a prison industries building and an educational building.

He said they are ready to submit for competitive bidding if the Building Fund Advisory Council approves them.

May said the three new buildings are the fourth phase of a five-part construction program readying the prison for occupancy by the convicts. He estimated that date will occur sometime in the latter part of 1972.

An administration building, an infirmary, fencing and guard towers and remodeling of the reception and diagnostic unit are scheduled for the final phase of the construction program.

Butchers striking at Boise

NAMPA (UPI)—A union official says members of Amalgamated Meat Cutters Local 368 were told last Friday not to report to work until notified by their respective employers.

Union employes are locked out by Wells and Davies of Payette, H.H. Keim of Nampa, Boise Valley Meat Packing Co. of Eagle, Gem Meat Packing Co. and Davis Meat Co., both of Garden City, and Van's Packing Plant of Boise.

The lockout is in its fifth day.

A new three-year contract is at issue. Union members want a 22-cent per hour wage hike during the first year and increases of 25 cents each during the second and third years as well as cost of living raises.

Drain cleaners studied

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Food and Drug Administration has proposed new rules under which household drain cleaners could not be sold unless they were packaged in containers children could not open.

The agency said a rising number of children are being injured by drinking the cleaners because "corrosion and destruction of the esophagus and stomach walls may follow seconds after ingestion." It cited 10 brands it said would be in violation of the proposed rules unless they change their packaging.

Upper and Lower Canada were joined under the Union Act of 1840.
