Congress Ok's bill limiting farm dole

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate handed President Nixon a legislative victory Thursday by passing and sending to him a new three-year farm bill that includes the first limits ever set on the amount of subsidies a farmer can receive.

After the 48 to 35 vote in which key Midwestern and Southern lawmakers opposed the House-passed bill, Chairman Allen J. Ellender of the Senate Agriculture Committee said the Nixon Administration virtually dictated the terms of the bill.

Opponents of the legislation claimed that it would mean lower incomes for the already hardpressed American farmer and "disaster to the Cotton-South."

In addition to setting the subsidy payment ceiling, the bill revises and extends for three years price support programs for cotton, wheat and feed grains and incorporates a new "set aside" acreage reduction plan which the administration says will give farmers more freedom in deciding how to use land.

Under the bill, payments to any farmer would be limited to $55,000 a year on each of his cotton, wheat or feed grain crops. The administration supported this ceiling in the face of efforts by some lawmakers to set the limit at $20,000 a year for all crops.

Welfare fraud charged

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Staff Writer
TWIN FALLS — Barbara G. Cutts, 418 Diamond St., requested a preliminary hearing on a charge of obtaining money under false pretense through Department of Public Assistance payments at her arraignment in Probate Court today.

The Twin Falls housewife appeared on the felony charge contained in a complaint signed by David Humphrey, director of the state welfare agency for Twin Falls County.

Judge Eugene McCoy set Dec. 22 at 9:30 a.m. as the time for preliminary hearing for Mrs. Cutts. She is represented by Rudy Barchas of the public defender firm of Rayborn, Rayborn, Webb and Pike. She requested legal counsel when arraigned Thursday afternoon and the arraignment was continued until Friday morning following the assignment of an attorney.

In the complaint Humphrey charges Mrs. Cutts with defrauding the state of Idaho and the Department of Public Assistance by pretending to be living separate and apart from her husband, Michael G. Cutts, when in fact they were living together.

Further, the complaint charges the husband with employing by K and T Steel Co. and he turned over to the defendant the majority of his $95 per week salary check from December, 1969 through September, 1970.

During that time, the complaint states, the Department of Public Assistance paid the defendant $1,575 for the support of herself and small daughter as a public dependent. The complaint states the woman was informed and knew she was not entitled to the benefits if provided for by her husband and fraudulently accepted the money.

Humphrey said the action against Mrs. Cutts is in keeping with the state policy in such matters and persons accepting public funds to which they are not entitled will be prosecuted when detected.

T.F. snares major show

FILER — Final approval of the Register of Merit Hereford Show to be held this fall in conjunction with the Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo has been received from the American Hereford Assn., Tom Shouse, fair manager, said today.

Shouse said this will mean about another $10,000 in premiums for fair entries this year in the way of prize money to Hereford animals exhibited here.

This is the first time the Register of Merit show has been held in Idaho or the immediate intermountain region, he said. It will attract top Hereford stock and breeders from throughout the United States and afford local residents an opportunity to see some of the nation's best livestock.

Chiang holds China seat in UN vote

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. General Assembly today barred Communist China from the United Nations for another year.

A U.S.-backed resolution requiring a two-thirds majority on the "important question" of who will take the China seat passed by a vote of 65 to 52 with seven abstentions.

On the actual vote whether to seat Peking or Taipei the vote for Peking was 51, with 49 votes against and 25 abstentions — far short of the two-thirds necessary.

Today was the first time Communist China had achieved a majority vote in the General Assembly, but the two-thirds rule barred Peking once more.

Last year Communist China received 48 votes, and Nationalist China 56 votes. There were 21 abstentions.

The suspense centered on whether a resolution to expel the Nationalists and seat the Communists could muster a simple majority for the first time, a circumstance that would increase chances of passage in a year or two.

The vote was expected before noon, with several nations explaining their votes before the balloting.

The consensus of diplomatic observers was that the Nationalists held an edge of one to three votes, but that any unexpected switch in the vote could change the outcome.

In 19 previous votes, mainland China could manage no better than a 47-47 tie, achieved in the 1965 balloting. Last year's vote was 56-48 in favor of Taiwan on the expulsion vote, with the General Assembly registering 71-48 on the resolution to require a two-thirds margin.

Ambassador Liu Chieh of Nationalist China ended the formal debate Thursday by renewing Taiwan's 14-year-old offer for a plebiscite in mainland China to determine whether the people want the Nationalists to represent them in the United Nations.

Police take stronghold

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — More than 100 heavily armed police, using an armored "war wagon" for protection, closed in Thursday on a small group of Black Panthers holed up in a New Orleans apartment who vowed a shootout.

Police Supt. Clarence Giarusso climbed into the armored vehicle and, using a turret loudspeaker, ordered the blacks to surrender their sandbagged apartment and basement in the tense Desire housing project.

Early in the afternoon, police said a shot had been fired from a building about two blocks away. The officers said the sniper's bullet and a firebomb were aimed at a police car but both missed. The shot wounded a Negro boy.

It was the only shot heard in the first five hours of the confrontation.

Giarusso offered to pull all police out if the Panthers agreed to surrender at police headquarters on charges of misdemeanor trespassing. He said they would be released on bail. The Panthers rejected the offer.

Police prepared to fire tear gas into the headquarters the blacks had occupied for a month in defiance of the city housing authority, which told them to leave then asked for police assistance.

Tate defense rests

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The three women defendants in the Tate murder trial demanded the right Thursday to take the witness stand despite refusal of their lawyers to permit them to testify on grounds their answers could be incriminating.

Chief defense lawyer Paul Fitzgerald had barely finished announcing to a startled court that the defense was resting its case without calling a single witness when defendant Patricia Krenwinkel was on her feet protesting she wanted to testify.

Codefendant Charles Manson, the man the girls called "Jesus," just sat smiling and silent.

Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older assembled the defendants and all the lawyers in his chambers where the other two young women defendants, Susan Atkins and Leslie Van Houten, said they also wanted to take the witness stand.

No action on jury

BURLEY — No action has been taken by Cassia County officials following the inquest into the death of George Martin, 65, Malta, in which the coroner's jury was unable to reach a decision here Wednesday night.

Pros. Atty. Gordon Nielson said it is up to the coroner to decide if another inquest would be held, but said cause of the accident in which Mr. Martin was struck by a car driven by Valentino Perez, 14, was adequately explained in the inquest.

The youth has been cited by Sheriff Ray Mitchell for a hit and run traffic violation.

Nielson said he is seeking advice from the state attorney general's office on point of law regarding any possible further charges against the youth who would come under the Youth Rehabilitation law.

Another spring tapped

HAGERMAN — Two permits to tap water from Bickel Spring, one of the remaining Thousand Springs in Hagerman Valley was granted Thursday by the Idaho Bureau of Water Reclamation.

Both were discussed in hearings in Twin Falls in October.

One, the first to be applied for, is granted to Norman Standal and George Lemmon who now have diverted 215 second feet to a fish hatchery, they have under construction on the Snake River below the springs.

Standal said the water is diverted at the base of the spring as the water flows into the river and does not reduce the scenic flow of the water down the canyon wall.

The other permit is to Brailsford Brothers, Buhl, and is also granted for fish propagation but will be for water above the diversion point of Standal and Lemmon.

Both permits are granted subject to prior appropriation of water which would give the Standal and Lemmon permit priority, it was pointed out during the hearing in Twin Falls. No objection was voiced to the applications for water from Bickel Springs.

Are pews really empty?

Are smaller church congregations the answer to the apparent drop in church attendance?

A recent Times-News article "Empty Pews in the Churches" is answered by several pastors of Twin Falls churches.

It is their contention that the smaller church is not showing an attendance drop. They cite many reasons for this belief.

One of these reasons, they say, is that in the smaller church everyone takes a part and has a feeling of belonging. Many times, in the larger church, a small group is active while the mass of members are just along for the ride.

The pastors' answer to "Empty Pews" will be found in the Times-News Sunday.

Prison role examined...

RAYMOND W. MAY, warden of the Idaho Penitentiary, left, discusses prison reform programs with Jack Muldoon, center, Kiwanis program chairman, and Robert Kroush, state probation and parole officer, at conclusion of the regular Kiwanis Club meeting Thursday noon at the Turf Club. May was speaker at the session and discussed the protection of members of society in the complex world of today.

'Warehouse' concept of prison out of date

TWIN FALLS — Prisons can no longer be warehouses of people in a complex world which sees up to 65 per cent or more of the prisoners becoming second offenders after their release, Raymond W. May, warden of the Idaho State Penitentiary Boise, told members of the Kiwanis Club here Thursday.

The prison head, recognized as one of the most knowledgeable wardens in the United States, said that in any given prison population about 20 per cent of the citizens are incorrigible, 30 per cent reside in the "gray" area and the balance are useful. "So far as prison population is concerned," he said, "we must realize that about 98 per cent of them will end up as our neighbors" so it is to our advantage that we "take a real look" at the proposals being made to rehabilitate them.

He said that things are changing now but everything else being equal the basic concept of handling prisoners is no different today than it was 100 years ago. In Idaho this old concept is being changed. One big change is that first offenders are not thrown in with hardened repeaters and good arrangements are in progress for vocational training, many times outside the prison walls.

"It's high time that citizens are taking a long, hard look at this problem of prison inmates," May said. "There is too much sweeping it under the rug, figuring that out of sight is out of mind. Prison operation today is a whole new culture."

The speaker was introduced by Jack Muldoon, program chairman, and Robert Kroush, state probation and parole officer with headquarters in Twin Falls, as well as Sheriff Paul Corder were guests of the club.

Officials announced that a mid-winter ladies night would be held at the Turf Club Monday and that there would be no regular club meeting until Dec. 3.

Performer honored

FILER — Magic Valley residents may remember a rodeo performer of several years standing at the annual Twin Falls County Rodeo, who has won national recognition.

The performer is "Rodeo News," a leading bucking horse of the rodeo string of Reg Kesler, producer who has staged the local show for the past several years.

Tom Shouse, manager of the Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo, said the horse has been selected bucking horse of the year by the Rodeo Cowboy Association.

Aide contends pay vote valid

BOISE (UPI) — Assistant Attorney General Thomas Frost said Wednesday that lack of an enacting clause should not disqualify passage of the legislative pay initiative.

In a letter to Myran Schlechte, director of the Idaho Legislative Council, Frost wrote that Idaho code requires petitions to set out the full text of the measure proposed.

He cited similar cases in Oklahoma, Utah and Idaho in reading the opinion. He said the Idaho case, State vs. Hanson, shows the Supreme Court has ruled state laws are never to be declared void unless their nullity and invalidity are beyond reasonable doubt.

"Guided by these definitions, we are unable to conclude that the words 'full text' as used in section 38-1801, Idaho Code, contemplated the inclusion of an enacting clause to the end that absence of one in a circulated petition rendered it invalid," he wrote.

Athletic clinic set at Filer

FILER — The Filer Booster Club will sponsor an athletic clinic at 7:30 p. m. Monday in the Filer High School, according to Bill Brake, club secretary.

George Trenkle, coach at the school, will show a film and conduct the clinic. All basketball players and wrestlers will be introduced.

Fire calls lack cause

RICHFIELD — Two false alarms in as many days have called out Richfield firemen unnecessarily, Chief Lyle Piper said.

The first ring was caused when a telephone lineman was working on the dialing system and inadvertently tripped the siren, an occurrence that has happened a number of times in the past.

Thursday's alert had no reason as far as firemen have learned. A businessman received a call from an unknown person asking for the fire department. On learning he had the wrong number the caller hung up and soon after the siren blew, but the fire phones had not rung.

Hearing asked

TWIN FALLS — A 28-year-old Twin Falls woman requested a preliminary hearing at her arraignment Wednesday on a charge of unlawful possession of a narcotic. Released under $1,000 bond following appearance before Police Judge Harry Turner was Sharon Cunningham Hopwood. She was arrested by Twin Falls Police.

Board post to Hansen

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Orval Hansen today accepted an invitation to represent the state of Idaho on the board of advisors for the Presidential Classroom for Young America. Hansen will be the first Idahoan to serve on the board.

The Presidential Classroom is a high school program which brings selected seniors to Washington, D.C. and through personal involvement and contact gives them an opportunity for in-depth study of the intricacies of the United States Government.

Hansen reported that 20 high school seniors will represent Idaho in the Classroom to be held during February and March, 1971.

Last UAW locals vote today on contract offer

DETROIT (UPI) — The last United Auto Workers locals voted today whether to accept a tentative contract with General Motors and end a strike now in its 67th day. Ratification appeared certain.

Although the union clamped a news blackout on the voting at midday Thursday, at last report 75 of the union's 155 bargaining units had voted overwhelmingly to accept the contract. Only three—including two small units and on with 3,000 workers—rejected the national agreement.

A UAW spokesman said Thursday night the union would not announce final results of the vote until Saturday morning, when it was to present them to GM.

If a majority of both production and skilled workers vote to accept the pact, it will go into effect Monday 1 GM.

GM has said the contract would cost it $2.4 billion in wages alone over three years. The wage cost for GM, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. would be over $4 billion if Ford and Chrysler accept the same agreement, as they traditionally do.

The Big Three of the auto industry employ about 700,000 UAW members, and 343,000 of them have been on strike against GM since the old contract ran out at midnight Sept. 14.

Negotiations at Ford and Chrysler are due to resume Monday. Ford already has said it expects to work out virtually the same package with the UAW as GM did. Chrysler,

Greater power use predicted

BURLEY — Increased uses for electricity because of improvement in environmental quality were outlined here Thursday during a regional advisory council meeting of Bonneville Power Administration.

Equipment used to control air and water pollution in industry demands increased amounts of electricity, Don Hodel, Idaho Falls, BPA deputy administrator, told 60 persons attending the one-day session at the Ponderosa Inn. Delegates were directors of area cooperatives and representatives of the city of Burley, all of whom are BPA customers.

Electrical heat has the greatest potential of any type of domestic heat, and electrified transportation, both rail and auto, is another area now the financially troubled for the past year, has indicated it may seek concessions the union has said it does not intend to grant object of intense research and development.

All these types of progress will require an increasing amount of electrical power, the BPA official said.

U.S. Gov. Jack Murphy, Boise, luncheon speaker, called for wise use of electricity, whether it is in supplying power to individual homes or for large industries.

Electricity in Idaho means jobs for people, the state official declared, adding large electrical supplies are necessary for the future, particularly in agricultural areas where new lands are being developed and irrigation is done with electrical pumps.

The meeting concluded Thursday afternoon with a slide presentation on environmental problems.

There's No Simple Solution

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It may be that some of our basic assumptions about campus unrest are wrong, at least for urban high schools. One group of advocates or another has blamed the war in Vietnam, youth revolt against age and the "hypocrisy" of today's world. But a careful reading of the data in a number of recent Health, Education and Welfare-sponsored research studies seems to this reporter to indicate some quite different causes.

These researchers found no such thing as a "students' point of view." "We had," said one report, "significant numbers of low-income youngsters, both black and white, who told us in no uncertain terms that there is not enough discipline around here." There are many reasons for unrest. But one important cause is best described in the words of one report: "In several of the cities we visited, such neighborhoods (slums) often defy description. Broken glass and other debris is everywhere; predators in the form of drunks, junkies, fairies and pimps abound amongst many fatherless children, surly 14-year-olds, and the vacant homes and their neighborhoods.

But, these reports indicate, the problem is not all in the minds of these students. Many schools have required courses which indeed are not relevant to the goals of many of the students required to take them — and other, perhaps quite important, subjects are taught in such a way that there is no relevancy to them. Many slum schools are so crowded, and the teachers and counselors so overtaxed, these youngsters feel as lost in school as in their homes and their neighborhoods.

Credit Cards

Thanks to a new federal law, the public will have a little more protection in this burgeoning business of credit cards.

Banks, gasoline companies, stores and other issuers of credit cards will no longer be permitted to mail out unsolicited cards in scattergun fashion. Under the new law, issuers may send cards only to fill a specific request from a customer or to renew a card already held.

The law also limits an individual's liability for the misuse of a lost or stolen card to $50, provided that the company is given notice that the card holder no longer has the card.

It is still "let the buyer beware" in one aspect of the situation, however, both as regards the relatively new credit cards and the charge cards or plates which department store customers have used for many years.

Another law that went into effect last year requires creditors to specify on monthly statements or loan applications the monthly and/or yearly rate of interest charged. For credit card and "revolving" store accounts, this is usually 1 1/2 per cent a month, or 18 per cent a year.

It is doubtful if many people take the trouble to do a little simple arithmetic on their monthly statements. If they did, they might discover an interesting new gimmick being used by an increasing number of establishments. It is the practice of figuring interest or finance charges not on the actual balance owing but on the "previous balance."

It works like this:

Suppose an individual makes purchases at Store A or on Credit Card A totaling $100. When the bill arrives, he elects to make a payment of $50. In his next month's statement, if Creditor A uses the "previous balance" method, he will be charged 1 1/2 per cent on the original $100, or $1.50, making the new balance $51.50.

But if he had made the same purchases from Creditor B, who figures the interest or finance charge after subtracting payments, he would be charged 1 1/2 per cent only on the $50 still owing, or $-.75, leaving a new balance of $50.75.

On small amounts, the difference between the two won't exactly break anyone's back. Multiplied by hundreds or thousands of accounts, however, it amounts to quite a bonanza for Creditor A.

By using the cute "previous balance" method, Creditor A is, in effect, charging a monthly interest rate of 3 per cent, or a whopping 36 per cent a year, which in any state would be outlawed as usurious if charged on a conventional loan.

Credit cards or "revolving" store accounts do, of course, perform a useful function, or they would not be thoroughly utilized by so many millions of people.

But as with any kind of convenience, people should be aware of just what they are paying for the flexibility, ease and universality of this kind of credit and govern themselves — and their purchases — accordingly.

Security On Flights

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon is taking precautions to make sure that military secrets do not fall into unfriendly hands as a result of airliner sky-jackings.

New security guidelines were circulated to defense contractors late last month, superseding previous directives. The guidelines relate, in part, to the carrying of classified documents on regular commercial flights.

The new Pentagon rules bar the carrying of documents with regular security classifications on international flights. Also barred is the carrying of classified documents on commercial flights within foreign countries or on flights to Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico or the U. S. trust territories.

The current rules also require that no classified material can be sent by regular mail, which might end up on such regular commercial flights. Such material must go registered mail to Army or Navy APO or FPO addresses.

Stiffer regulations are in effect for documents which carry certain high-level security classification. Those documents are not to travel via commercial aircraft under any circumstances anywhere.

The Pentagon guidelines also include a warning for industry experts who have been cleared for such top-level information. They are told to use "extreme caution" in the use of commercial airliners, here or abroad, but the use of regular flights is not prohibited.

Ever since the wave of plane hijackings began, individuals in sensitive government posts — in CIA, military intelligence agencies and the like — have been operating under similar orders. They must discuss air travel plans — including vacation and leave plans — with their own security officers.

Security officers try, for the most part, to arrange for transportation by military air transport, military courier flights and so forth.

The new Pentagon rules, promulgated by a letter from the Office of Industrial Security dated Oct. 26, were apparently designed, in part, to clarify confusing directives issued by various agencies after the destruction of three airliners and the detention of passengers by Arab guerrillas. Some defense contractors felt those original instructions meant that their key personnel could not use the airlines at all.

Many of the industry experts are retired military officers, and some of them are privy to tightly held information with respect to defense plans and military weapons systems. The Pentagon is understandably concerned that they not wind up in hostile hands.

Before the new guidelines were issued, with many firms under the impression that their experts must use military or private air transportation, industry sources report that there was even talk of more or less scheduled charter flights, coast-to-coast, for such sensitive individuals.

ART BUCHWALD

The Dinner

WASHINGTON — Al Capp, who has become the sex symbol of the Daughters of the American Revolution, was in Washington last week as master of ceremonies at a $150-a-plate dinner given by the Republicans in honor of Vice President Spiro Agnew.

Mr. Capp was kind enough to mention me in his opening remarks. He said, "The people who should be here tonight saying 'Thank you, Mr. Vice President' are Art Buchwald, Herb Block and Mary McGrory."

The Vice President helps them keep their jobs. Never have so many columnists owed so much to one person, and never have so many showed so little decency to a man they owe so much.

Now, first of all, I would like to say that I would have loved to have attended the dinner for the Vice President, but I couldn't. I didn't have $150.

Secondly, Mr. Capp should not have interpreted my absence at the dinner as a lack of gratitude toward the Vice President. I am well aware of the debt we all owe him for making Washington another Disneyland.

The subject I would like to address myself to is not whether Miss McGrory, Mr. Block or myself should or should not have attended the Republican dinner (it turns out Miss McGrory did), but a much larger question that concerns all American citizens, and that is: How many more fund-raising dinners can the Vice President of the United States stand?

It is no secret that, through no fault of his own, Spiro has been condemned by the Republican Party and the Nixon Administration to the fund-raising banquet circuit for his entire term in office.

Despite what Mr. Agnew thinks of the cartoonists, columnists and pundits, I can testify to the fact that he has only their sympathy and understanding. Only a sadist would not be moved by someone who was doomed for four years to eat all his meals in a Sheraton or a Hilton hotel.

No cartoonist would do it. No columnist would do it. No Vice President of the United States would do it, except Mr. Agnew.

So far, the Vice President has shown he has the stomach for it. But medical science has proved that no human being, no matter how strong willed, can survive on chicken cacciatore for four years.

The question the American people have to decide is, do we want a Vice President with a bad liver?

The men responsible for sending Mr. Agnew out day after day and night after night have shown little concern for his welfare. The White House staff refer to Mr. Agnew as "the man who came to dinner." They are not worried about him getting indigestion. As one White House staffer put it not long ago, "What's a little heartburn if you can win Mississippi?"

To prove that we are not the heartless people Mr. Capp says we are, Miss McGrory, Mr. Block and I have formed an "Ad Hoc Committee to Save the Vice President's Liver." If need be, we will take it to the courts and prove that sentencing a man to the fund-raising banquet circuit for four years is not only unconstitutional but cruel and unusual punishment.

Surely, in this great country of ours, with so much opportunity and wealth, there is something the Nixon Administration can find for the Vice President of the United States to do other than force-feed him at the Biloxi Hilton Hotel.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Eye Pupils

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What makes the pupils of your eyes dilate at times? Would this be serious? I have a grown son and also a 6-year-old grandson and I notice that at times their pupils get large. They both seem to be on the nervous side. Mrs. H.P.

Several things can cause the pupils to enlarge or contract. Basically, the pupil changes size to regulate the amount of light entering the eye. In very bright light, the pupil will squeeze down to very small size. In dim light, the pupil enlarges to admit more light.

That's why, when we go into a dim room from a bright sunlit day outdoors, at first we can't see much. Then we become accustomed to the dim light, and can see very well. Why? The pupils have enlarged to suit the illumination.

Absolute size of the pupils can vary considerably from one individual to another, but all change according to brightness.

One-sided dilation or constriction can be due to a defect in the nerve control of the pupil — not a very common occurrence. Report such a condition to an ophthalmologist.

And drugs can affect pupil size, in both directions. Narcotics (morphine, heroin) cause a small pupil. Belladonna and others cause a large, also marijuana. Older folks using "drops" for glaucoma will have small, contracted pupils. I doubt, Mrs. P., that in your case you have anything to worry about.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Am enclosing 20 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope for your booklet, "How to Control Emphysema." My husband has it. Would this condition make him frigid? — Mrs. J.M.

No, but it can have a considerable bearing on sexual vigor, which may amount to somewhat the same thing so far as you are concerned. The disease deprives him of abundant oxygen. Advance emphysema can, therefore, sap his physical energy. Sheer fatigue can dull or destroy the sexual urge.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is waterless cooking the best way to cook food without losing valuable vitamins and minerals? Do hospitals use waterless cooking? — D.F.

It isn't exactly waterless cooking — a small amount of water is used. It is an excellent means of cooking, yet preserving water-soluble vitamins and minerals. Hospitals use steam cookers which are much larger units but operate on the same principle.

MR. SPECTATOR

The Earth And Power

Mr. Spectator doesn't know if it means anything but there are some hot water springs here in our own Idaho. So it was with more than a passing interest that we scanned a recent announcement so the effect that Southern California, which pioneered the nation in the production of smog and helped make us all environment-conscious, may pioneer the development of an absolutely pollution-free energy source — underground steam reservoirs.

We don't know if we can beat California to the punch in this thing, but the opportunities which may result are, to say the least, interesting.

According to studies by University of California geologist Robert Rex, a vast underground "hot ocean" of steam bubbling at more than 500 degrees F. exists in California's imperial valley and has the potential to produce some 20,000 megawatts of electrical energy and five to seven million acre feet of distilled water annually for at least three decades.

This is 15 times the electrical production of Hoover Dam when it is all wound up and working at full blast, according to the information Mr. Spectator received.

"If developed successfully," Mr. Rex said, "this new power source has the capacity for restructuring the entire economy of southwestern United States and northern Mexico."

Mexico, is, in fact, already building a $16 million 75-megawatt generating plant at the site of a major steam field near Mexicali. The use of geothermal energy is not new — geyser-rich Iceland has employed it for generations — but it has never been exploited on a large scale in this country.

Steam fields, created when cold underground water encounters superhot rocks, do not occur everywhere, of course, and are hardly the ultimate answer either to the nation's growing demand for power or the growing problem of pollution.

They are, however, part of the answer to the question of what mankind will do when earth's fossil fuels are exhausted — an answer that includes geothermal energy, harnessing the tides, the development of safe nuclear energy and tapping the limitless radiation from the sun.

With the exception of the controversial atom, none of these exotic sources have been more than experimented with as yet.

And, come to think of it, some of this underground hot water in Idaho just might have steam along with it. Or the steam could be manufactured.

And just think what we might be able to do with our neighbor Yellowstone Park, when people get tired of going up that way.

As an aside, we might even "explore" a little the possibility of steam in the White Clouds area. There has been enough hot water in that area of late!

Trade war eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Free trade advocates, fighting a seemingly futile battle against strong protectionist sentiment, demanded to know Thursday where President Nixon stood on the measure they claimed could touch off an international trade war.

"The President will make a decision" once Congress finishes work on the bill, replied House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich. Nixon has threatened to veto the bill if the final version is laden with quotas other than on textiles, which he supports.

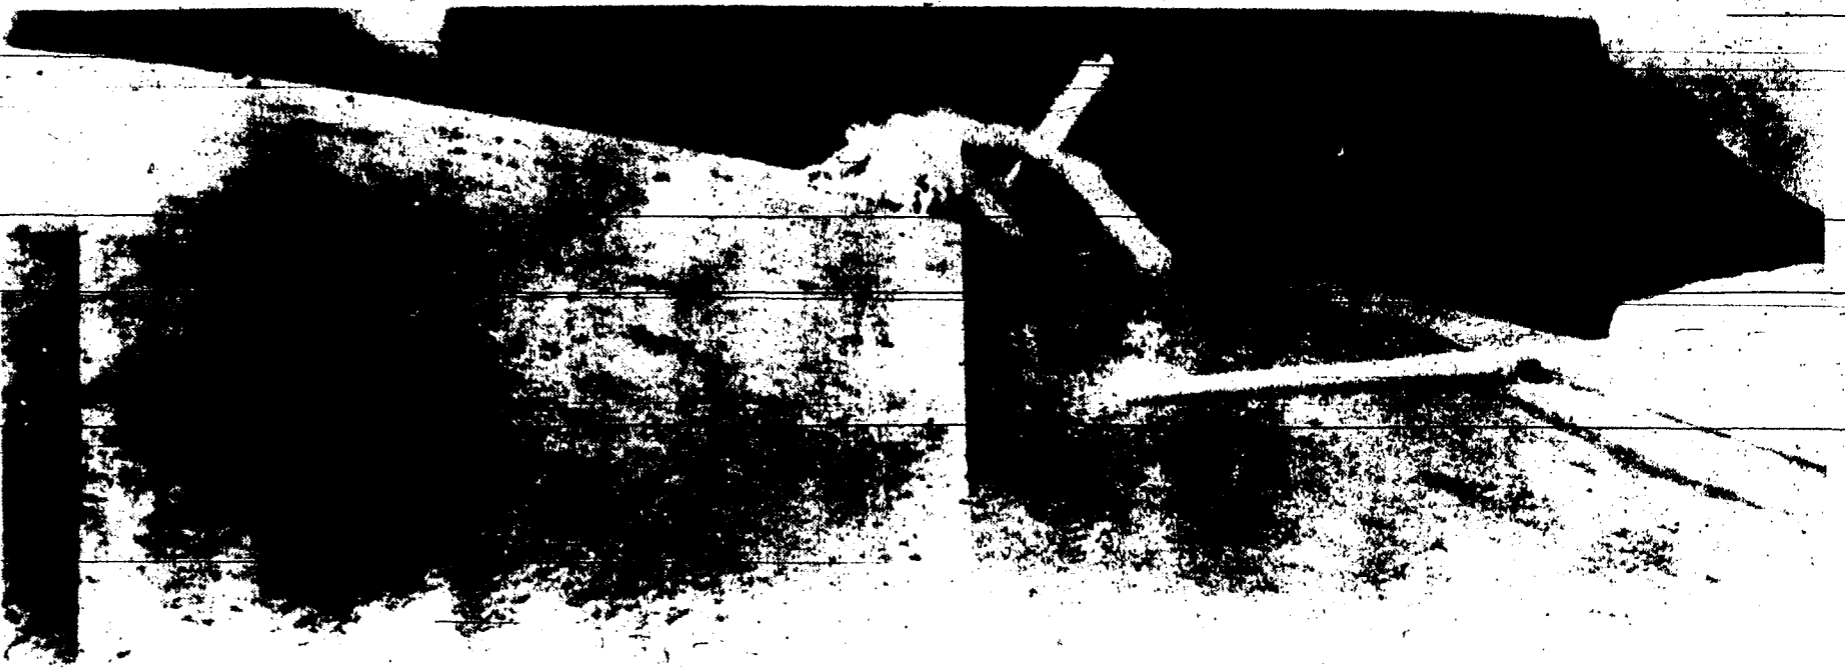

But the President has never said how he feels about the bill written by the House Ways and Means Committee and Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., said, "I was hoping the President would offer his leadership to the nation and to the Congress on this bill."

The measure the House was considering would impose quotas on textile and shoe imports, freeze oil import quotas by law, provide tax breaks for U.S. exporters and liberalize relief for import-injured American firms.

Although Fraser urged Nixon to give the House a clear sign of where he stood on the bill, he said that he had received a call from the State Department—which he said was instigated by the White House—urging him to help kill the bill.

"The State Department is very concerned about the effects of the bill," agreed Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash. He cited reports that other nations were prepared to retaliate against U.S. goods if restrictions are placed on their imports.

But Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., ranking Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, urged members to vote for it.

Mitchell 'not sure' on deaths

FT. HOOD, Tex. (UPI)—S-Sgt. David Mitchell, tears rolling down his cheeks onto the two rows of medals clipped to his chest, said Thursday he had been thinking over the events of My Lai for more than a year and still is not sure what happened in the South Vietnamese hamlet.

"But I am positive that I did not shoot anyone," Mitchell said. "I know what I did and what I did not do."

Mitchell was the final witness to testify in his court-martial. Final arguments were scheduled to begin early today. The case should go to the seven-man military court by mid-afternoon.

Ossie Brown, the attorney Mitchell retained to prove him innocent of shooting 30 Vietnamese old men, women and children at My Lai village, walked over to the witness stand where the career army noncom from Louisiana was testifying Thursday in his own defense.

Q—"Did you shoot any Vietnamese people near the ditch in My Lai on March 16, 1968?"

A—"No, sir, Mr. Brown, I did not. I am positive that I did not shoot anyone."

Army prosecutor Capt. Michael Swan cross-examined

Mitchell.

Q—"Did you see anybody shot?"

A—"No, sir, I did not."

Q—"Did you see any bodies in the ditch?"

A—"Yes, sir, I did. But that was after Lt. Calley told me to return to the village and check it out."

Lt. William Calley, Mitchell's commanding officer in Vietnam, is on trial in Ft. Benning, Ga., on charges of killing 102 civilians at My Lai.

Both Swan and Brown met late Thursday with military judge Col. George R. Robinson to discuss the judge's instructions to the court.

If Mitchell is found guilty he could be sentenced to 20 years at hard labor.

Brown tried to have Calley testify on Mitchell's behalf but gave up on the plan Thursday morning and put Mitchell on the stand. Before Mitchell's testimony the prosecution presented witnesses who said they saw Mitchell and Calley push My Lai villagers into a ditch and then shoot them with automatic weapons.

But defense witnesses said Calley and one or two other soldiers did all the shooting and Mitchell was not even at the ditch when the Vietnamese were slaughtered.

Only half Egyptian seeks another battle

LONDON (UPI)—A letter to the British Medical Journal today said a housewife gave birth to a healthy baby four months after a hospital abortion because surgeons failed to realize the woman was pregnant with twins and removed only one fetus.

Dr. Satya Vrat Sood, senior registrar of obstetrics and gynecology at West Middlesex Hospital, said in his letter, "The incidence of twins is about one in 80, but it is not usual to investigate whether a woman undergoing an abortion is pregnant with one child or more than one."

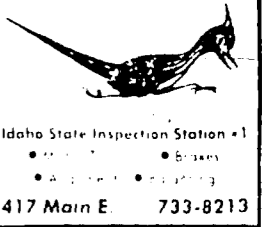

By United Press International Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Thursday night he will give "top priority to the war" to recover Israeli-occupied Arab lands, while pursuing a domestic reform program.

"Top priority goes to war first, the war second and the war last," Sadat told the National Assembly (parliament).

Government officials in Cairo said today Sadat's speech was made to give assurance that Egypt would not soften its attitude toward Israel to concentrate on domestic affairs.

Health vote due

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A plan to provide government health insurance covering the major medical expenses of most Americans under the age of 65 will be voted on next week by a Senate committee. The Nixon administration attacked the plan and there was little likelihood it would become law this year.

At a closed meeting of his Senate Finance Committee Thursday, chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., unexpectedly unveiled his plan and said he would call for a vote on it, probably Tuesday or Wednesday.

His "catastrophic illness insurance" plan calls for the government to pay 80 per cent of all medical costs beyond the first 60 days of hospitalization or the first $2,000 of doctors bills for all Americans who pay Social Security taxes and are under 65.

Turkey shoot planned

HAILEY — The initial turkey shoot at the newly installed trap shoot at Rotarun Ski area two miles west of Hailey is scheduled for 10 a.m. Sunday, according to Bill House, co-chairman.

The shoot is open to the public and participants are required to provide their own rifles. Shells will be available for sale at the site.

House said the trap shoot was installed to promote public interest in shooting. A sideline function is to raise funds for the development of Rotarun. Both projects were planned and promoted by the Hailey Rotary Club for the public.

All proceeds from the Sunday shoot will be donated to Rotarun. Prizes will include turkeys, a slab of bacon and hams. Each participant during the day-long event will pay $2 a game and will compete with four other shooters.

The electronic trap throws a clay pigeon into the air and the shooters attempt to shoot it down before another participant is able to. Should a tie occur, those tying move back several yards for a shoot-off match.

House said the trap will be open for public use until the snow gets too deep to make use feasible. Arrangements for using the trap may be made through the Rotarun Ski Club.

SEATTLE (UPI) — A jump shot by Garfield Heard with one minute remaining gave the Seattle SuperSonics a 111-110 National Basketball Association victory Thursday night over Los Angeles in a game which was tied 30 times.

Before a showdown is possible between Clay and Frazier, two more obstacles must be overcome. Clay must beat Oscar Bonavena on Dec. 7 and then must avoid going to jail to serve his five-year sentence for draft evasion. He is appealing before the Supreme Court.

Lindsey can still win title

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim Lindsey of Abilene Christian still can win the total offense championship of the college division even though his season ended two weeks ago.

Lindsey, who suffered a broken collarbone, averaged 294.9 rushing-passing yards per game compared to 265.8 by runner-up Tim Von Dulm of Portland State, according to official statistics released today by national collegiate sports services.

Heard's clutch jumper gave Seattle a 111-108 lead—its biggest of the game. Wilt Chamberlain hit a free throw with just 14 seconds left to close it to 111-109.

Clay was barred from boxing and stripped of the heavyweight title in 1967 for refusing to go into the Army and only last month made a comeback by stopping Jerry Quarry in three rounds.

Von Dulm needs 558 yards total offense in Saturday's final game of the season against Eastern Washington to overtake Lindsey.

He said recruiting and scouting were also discussed during the day-long meeting. Dolph asked what policy the league would follow if in the future teams signed players before their college eligibility had expired.

The Lakers missed a chance to tie it when a full court pass by Lenny Wilkens was intercepted by Gail Goodrich. Goodrich passed to Jerry West who fed Jim McMillian. The rookie was fouled as the game ended.

"Clay calls me a lot because he likes me," Durham said. "He told me that if he fights Bonavena he can't get nothing worse than a cut eye, and that it would be healed in time for us. I told him a lot worse could happen, that he could get knocked out. The Supreme Court could do that, too."

Another challenger faced with a large task is Leon Burns of Long Beach State, the defending scoring champion, who needs 54 points in his last two games to finish ahead of Mt. Union's Mike DiBiasi. DiBiasi completed his season with 14.7 points per game. Burns scored nine touchdowns in his last two games in 1969 to win his first championship.

He was also asked about the futures of Joe Caldwell, who signed to play with the ABA Carolina Cougars after holding out on the Atlanta Hawks of the National Basketball Association; and Spencer Haywood, under suspension by the Denver Rockets.

Mideast peace seen

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Speculation is mounting that a new chance for Mideast peace may be in the making.

On the political side it springs from the bloodless coup which ousted the extremist leadership of Syria, the cautious efforts of the successor government to the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser to establish itself and the belief that the revolutionary Arab governments must be preoccupied with internal affairs for the foreseeable future.

Militarily the picture also has changed. The take-over by Syrian strongman Lt. Gen. Hafez Assad, the firing of Iraqi Vice President Hardan Takriti, a leading hawk, and King Hussein's continuing difficulties with the Palestinian commandos has meant the virtual collapse of the Arab eastern front command.

The commandos are more concerned with Hussein's forces at the moment than with Israel.

On the Suez front, both the Egyptians and the Israelis have improved their positions, so much so that now in the overall speculation is considered the possibility of a withdrawal of both sides from the canal banks and the first steps be taken toward reopening of the water link between Asia and Europe.

Politically and militarily present circumstances seem to offer an opportunity for serious peace efforts.

General Assad is rated a moderate, who might adopt a less militant anti-Western stand and be less insistent than his predecessors on a continuing war with Israel. He is friendly toward the commandos but would take them out of politics.

In Cairo, Premier Mahmoud Fawzi of the United Arab Republic has put together a cabinet of 32 ministers, including four deputy premiers.

Three are assigned entirely to internal affairs: agriculture, petroleum and mineral wealth and public services such as

Queen goes to "club"

LONDON (UPI) —Queen Elizabeth, without furs or tiara, went to a night club Wednesday for the first time in her 17-year reign and ate ice cream between words with American astronaut Neil A. Armstrong.

The queen was one of 18 members of European royalty at a glittering dinner-cabaret to raise money for one of husband Prince Philip's pet projects, the World Wildlife Fund.

The conservation organization deprecates the use of wild animal skins for clothing. Both the queen and Princess Anne discreetly left their fur wraps in the closets at Buckingham Palace.

Other royal ladies wore theirs.

Queen Juliana of the Netherlands arrived at the Talk of the Town nightclub in the West End draped in red fox. Queen Anne-Marie of Greece, Denmark's Princess Marguerite and Norway's Princess Sonja wore white mink.

"Of course I'd prefer to see no furs worn at all," said one of the hosts, British conservationist Peter Scott. "But it's fairly all right to wear ranches mink or fox. It is only slightly antiwildlife because the species are in no danger of extinction."

Guests paid up to $1,200 a plate to sit at tables with three queens, one king and 14 other royal Europeans.

health care, education and transportation.

There has been some slight indication that the new Cairo regime also desires better relations with the United States.

The fact that both the Israelis and the Egyptians have agreed to a rather indefinite continuation of the cease-fire also must be rated encouraging.

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) —A stargazing satellite orbited two years ago has produced "clinching" evidence that comets whizzing around the solar system are dirty balls of ice. Reports from the Orbiting Astronomical Observatory (OAO) 2 also indicate that interstellar dust from which stars are born is not simply ice, as once thought, but may be made up primarily of flakes of carbon.

To add to man's knowledge of the universe, the space agency plans to launch an improved version of the two-ton OAO next Monday night. It carried a larger telescope and astronomers expect it will be able to view objects eight times fainter than those seen by OAO 2. OAO 2 began its observations of comets last January when its instruments gazed at the comet Tago-Sato-Kosaka and discovered it was surrounded by a huge glowing cloud of hydrogen. Such a cloud had never before been seen because it emits light in ultraviolet wave lengths which cannot be seen from the ground.

Data showed that the cloud surrounding the head of the comet was one million miles in diameter, larger than the sun. Four months later, OAO 2 found an 8-million-mile diameter cloud of hydrogen around the Comet Bennett.

"This appears to be characteristic of comets," Dr. James E. Kupperian, OAO project scientist, said.

He said the presence of hydrogen verifies the two-decade-old theory of Dr. Fred L. Whipple, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, that comets are made primarily of frozen water, methane, ammonia and space dust.

He said the ice is evaporated by heat from the sun and the water is disassociated into hydrogen and hydroxide ions. The hydrogen moves slowly to the head of the comet and envelopes it.

Because of their infrequent occurrence, comets have not been observed from space until this year.

Before space telescopes began returning data, many astronomers believed the dust between distant stars also was icy. However, OAO 2's observations of ultraviolet light indicate that the properties of this interstellar material are not typical of ices.

Based on OAO 2's reports, GAO scientist Dr. Albert Boggess said the actual kind of material one would visualize for the interstellar dust are flakes of graphite. And he said it is possible to build theories as to how such graphite flakes could form in the atmospheres of stars and then be scattered about the universe.

With OAO 3, he said, "I hope to be able to pin down what this solid matter in interstellar dust is."

Unique honor

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Dr. Wendell H. Stanley, Nobel Laureate and leader in the study of viruses, has been elected a Foreign Associate Member of the French Academy of Sciences of the Institute of France.

Stanley is professor of biochemistry and molecular biology at the University of California.

Spending rises

HONG KONG (UPI) —The government's expenditure on education rose from about $49 million in 1968 to about $58.3 million in 1969, according to an Education Department summary.
