Twin Falls librarian to retire

TWIN FALLS — Robert R. Bruce, Twin Falls city librarian since March 29, 1966, has advised the city library board he will retire next October.

In announcing his retirement, Bruce said he is submitting it in advance to give the board ample time to hire a replacement and to allow the new librarian some time to work in the position before Bruce leaves.

Dr. F. M. Wright, chairman of the library board, said the members regret Bruce's decision to retire but realize he has served many years in the library field and is most deserving of some time to enjoy travel and pursue other interests.

"He has done an outstanding job as librarian," Dr. Wright said, "and I know the entire board agrees his resignation is a great loss to us. We are thankful, however, he has agreed to stay to October to give his successor an opportunity to better understand the library situation here."

Dr. Wright said Bruce has helped provide a better library service in Twin Falls in many ways and has made statewide contributions through the Idaho Library Association.

Bruce, 35, came to Twin Falls from Fort Collins, Colo., where he was librarian for about six years.

In Twin Falls he worked to promote better library facilities for the public, with special emphasis on a regional library concept.

Bruce, along with other library officials, has been instrumental in developing the Library Reference Center, including Twin Falls and 15 smaller community libraries working in a cooperative program of material and information exchange.

Bruce said he regrets leaving the library, but has many things he has not found time to do while working full time. He said he plans to travel to Southeast Asia.

Before coming to Idaho, Bruce was affiliated with libraries in New York state, Georgia, California, Tennessee and Washington.

A native of California, he attended school here and completed graduate work at Yale and Columbia universities. Bruce has traveled in Europe, visiting England, Germany and Scotland and has also toured Mexico and several Central American countries.

Bruce thanked the local library board for the support and cooperation he has received during his five years here, adding he feels the local library board is one of the most outstanding in the state.

The vacancy will be advertised through national library publications, Bruce said, and several applications are now on file.

POW swap denied

PARIS (UPI) — The Viet Cong and North Vietnam today rejected American proposals to exchange 36,000 Communist prisoners for 8,000 American and allied captives and warned they will intensify the war if their peace package is not accepted.

Returning to the negotiating table after a one-session boycott because of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam, both the Hanoi and Viet Cong officials said the prisoner of war issue was a "maneuver" of the Nixon administration in its effort to "prolong and extend the war" in Indochina.

Madhu Nguyen Thi Binh, the Viet Cong delegation chief, said, "If the U.S. government runs headlong into its war of aggression, the Vietnamese people, side by side with the two — and — Cambodian brotherly peoples, are determined to step up their just struggle until final victory."

The Communists, who forced a suspension of last week's session to protest U.S. air raids on North Vietnam, attacked the overflights again today as "adventurist military acts" which, they asserted, would be "duly punished."

Claiming that U.S. military activity in Vietnam was being stepped up, Madame Binh said: "Meanwhile, the U.S. government has resorted to the 'American POWs issue' in order to deceive and excite public opinion, thereby trying to cover up its crimes and adventurist acts of war."

"This," she said, "is simply the trick of a thief crying: stop thief."

Students try pot

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Of Stanford University's 5,700 students, 60 per cent have smoked marijuana at least once, a research study shows.

A similar study in 1968-69 showed 21 per cent experimentation with pot.

Mrs. Emile Garfield, who headed the latest study for the Institute of Public Policy Analysis, said 11 per cent reported using marijuana twice weekly or more and there is "very, very little" abuse of so-called hard drugs.

Buy phones ...

STOP ENDLESS waiting from the phone company and buy your own extension telephones. This is the point made by Mrs. Alberta Slavin, longtime advocate of consumer protection. Mrs. Slavin, left, and Mrs. Nancy Lynch announced

ARMY PSYCHOLOGIST, Capt. Morris Stanton, Ft. Meade, Md., told a Senate Labor sub-committee looking into drug abuse in the Armed Services Wednesday that drug use among troops in Vietnam has skyrocketed in the last four years. He said 50.1 per cent of 994 enlisted men surveyed just before leaving Vietnam a year ago reported smoking pot during their duty tours there, one out of six of them more than 200 times and/or more than once a day. (UPI)

SST curbs

Senate bans U.S. supersonic flights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted Wednesday to prohibit faster-than-sound supersonic flights over U.S. territory to resist airport noise levels by the proposed Supersonic Transport (SST).

Backers of the SST argued that the provisions through the Senate in less than two days to try to head off a growing move to cut off federal funds for the plane by denying opponents a key argument against it.

Opponents have mounted their most serious attack on the proposed 1,800-mile-an-hour plane in preparation for a persistent noise boom and showdown vote, either Thursday or Friday, over $200 million more in federal funds for development of two SST prototypes.

Sponsored by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., the hurry-up provisions would prohibit overland SST flights by either U.S. or foreign-made planes. The ban has already been proposed as a regulation by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) but the Senate decided it should be written into law. In addition, Magnuson's measure would require the transportation department to modify its contract with the Boeing Corp. to provide that the plane prototypes would comply with current FAA regulations regarding takeoff, approach and "sideline" noise created by the jets.

SST backers claimed Wednesday's vote gave an "ironclad guarantee" to environmentalists that their fears of noise created by the SST would not come true.

As debate on more federal money for the SST began, Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said the SST is such a questionable project that bankers are unwilling to raise a penny on it. "Why should we stick the taxpayer?" he asked.

"They are not willing to put one single penny into it," Percy said of the private investment industry. "If the bankers won't finance it, if the airlines won't finance it, why should we stick the taxpayer ... just for a businessman to save a couple hours several times a year when we can't get him to the suburbs and back in less than three hours?" Percy asked.

The government has already spent about $700 million on the project and President Nixon now wants a new appropriation for two prototypes of the 1,800-mile-an-hour plane.

Nixon pledges NATO strength

BRUSSELS (UPI) — President Nixon, in his most sweeping commitment yet to America's European allies, pledged today there will be no U.S. troop cutbacks in Europe without reciprocal military reductions by the Communist "adversaries."

On the contrary, he said, "given a similar approach by our allies," the United States will improve its forces in Europe.

Nixon's statement was contained in a message read by Secretary of State William P. Rogers to the foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

Hailey grant approved

By LIZ BOLTON Times-News Correspondent
HAILEY — An additional grant of $100,000 has been approved by the Federal Water Quality Administration to assist in the construction of the city's sewage treatment plant.

Steve Boller, city attorney, said today that as soon as plans for the $434,500 project are approved by the federal agency, bids will be called.

The current grant is in addition to $27,000 received in 1967, which at that time was 30 per cent of the estimated cost of the sewage treatment plant.

Since then the state has provided 25 per cent matching funds, Boller said, and the federal share has increased to 50 per cent, leaving the city to pay 25 per cent.

With the new grant the federal government has provided $217,000 — half of the estimated costs for 1970. The state grant of $108,000 is combined with a local share of $108,000 for the remainder of the sum.

The first phase of the overall project is now underway. Drake Plumbing and Heating, Boise, is laying water pipes from Indian Springs to the city limits and improving facilities at the spring.

The final phase, for which bids already have been let, includes installation of water and sewer lines throughout the city. No contract has yet been awarded, but the Tony Russell Construction Co., Kelchum, submitted the low bid.

My Lai suit asks $4 billion
FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI) — Paul Narkin, a Hong Kong attorney who said he was representing 50 survivors of the alleged My Lai massacre, filed a $400-million suit Wednesday against 1st Lt. William L. Calley Jr. and the U.S. government.

Narkin said he would seek a 10-day delay today in the court-appointment of Calley so he can bring some of the survivors from Vietnam in hopes they could identify Calley, his suit filed in the District Court in Columbus, Ga.

Calley, a platoon leader in the American Army company that swept through My Lai in March of 1968, is being tried on a charge of murdering 102 civilians in the Vietnamese hamlet.

The suit names as defendants Calley, Army Secretary Stanley Resor and Defense Secretary Melvin Laird. It seeks $200 million in compensatory damages and $200 million in punitive damages.

Narkin said his list of 233 victims and other survivors of the massacre was compiled by the My Lai War Memorial and Veterans' Association of the United States. The list also lists the possible whereabouts of completely new towns as

Valley solons keep strength

BOISE — Magic Valley legislators were expected to retain their powerful position in the Idaho Legislature as the three-day organizational meeting of the 1st Idaho Legislature gets underway formally today in Boise.

Among legislative leaders indicate the following line-up will emerge.

Rep. William Lanting, R-Hollister, will likely retain his post as speaker of the house. An early move to elevate Rep. Ray Lincoln to a position of leadership in the House appeared unlikely to succeed — primarily as a result of fears by legislators from other sections of the state that Magic Valley would have undue influence in the House.

In the Senate, Sen. John Barker, R-Butte, is expected to trade off his former position as assistant majority leader to assume control of an expanded Senate Education Committee.

Population shift asked

By GEORGINA LAYTON Times-News Correspondent
BURILEY — Moving people from congested cities into under-populated areas such as Idaho was suggested today by the U.S. Commissioner of Reclamation.

In remarks prepared for delivery this noon at the Idaho State Reclamation Association convention in the Ponderosa Inn, Ellis L. Armstrong said the National Geographic Research Station has suggested this as one way to solve the congestion problem in metropolitan areas and also lists the possible establishment of completely new towns as another help.

"The issue is not whether we can feed and clothe a population of any size," he said, "but rather whether a technologically advanced and industrially prosperous nation wants to continue to pay the price of congestion and contamination from our overall affluence."

Troop plane missing

SAYGON (UPI)—The U.S. command said today a U.S. transport plane with 23 American servicemen and 12 Vietnamese aboard was missing and presumed down over central South Vietnam. It was the second such plane missing in the same area in a week.

Military spokesmen said the twin-engine C-123 Provider transport had been missing since Sunday.

Military spokesmen said the men aboard both planes officially have been listed as missing. Military sources said both planes apparently went down shortly after takeoff from areas near the South China Sea coast.

Reforms

Vast constitutional change proposed for Portuguese

LISBON (UPI)—Premier Marcello Caetano has proposed to Parliament the most sweeping constitutional changes in Portuguese history, including the granting of self-government for the nation's embattled African colonies.

The laws would also increase individual constitutional rights for the citizens of Portugal, who lived under a virtual dictatorship and police state under the 36-year regime of Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar.

Even Caetano himself acknowledged the changes he seeks are "profound."

"I know for many people, impressed by intensive propaganda ... the idea of autonomy for the overseas provinces is shocking," Caetano told Parliament Wednesday. "But there is no cause for this fear."

Caetano said racial segregation would be abolished in the colonies.

The legislation which Caetano proposed and which the Parliament seemed certain to pass was a huge stride in the administration's policy to turn Portugal into a modern, democratic nation. Caetano began the process almost as soon as he became premier in 1968 following a stroke suffered by Salazar, who died earlier this year.

The constitutional changes include the nation's first press law, which has the effect of abolishing censorship of news published in the country, although numerous restrictions remain.

Additional constitutional changes include the spelling out of the rights of individuals, expected to curtail the nearly unlimited powers Portuguese police have exercised for four decades. The proposal also would guarantee a citizen the right to profess and practice any religion, the right of parents to decide whether their children should receive religious education, and outlaw religious discrimination.

But perhaps the most radical of the changes were those pertaining to autonomy for such vast colonies as Angola on Africa's west coast, and Mozambique on the continent's east coast. Liberation forces have fought Portuguese troops in both areas for years at a staggering cost to the mother country in both men and money.

Viet vets cite torture

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of Vietnam war veterans have told an unofficial inquiry that American soldiers torture and murder Viet Cong prisoners to gain intelligence information.

They said prisoners were thrown from helicopters, tortured with electrical shocks to genitals and breasts, six-inch pegs were driven into their ears, and women were threatened with their children's deaths.

The veterans commented at the National Veterans Inquiry into U.S. War Crimes Policy, sponsored by antiwar groups.

Dr. Gordon Livingston, a former Army surgeon in Vietnam and now a resident in psychiatry at Johns Hopkins University, said American soldiers go through a "whole process of dehumanization" that starts with referring to Vietnamese as "gooks" and "slants."

"The acceptance of the inferiority of the Vietnamese is so broad, so pervasive that there is practically nobody not involved," he said. "In that context, it is not surprising that individual soldiers will kill innocent Vietnamese."

Livingston said that when a helicopter pilot temporarily was grounded for flying so low he killed two Vietnamese women on bicycles, he said, "It's ridiculous. He should be grounded for killing a couple of gooks."

Kenneth B. Osborne of Washington, a former intelligence specialist, said he was along on two helicopter flights when American officers ordered Viet Cong prisoners thrown out to force other prisoners to talk.

Osborne also said American soldiers put six-inch pegs in prisoners ears and kept tapping them inward in an effort to make them talk.

Former Sgts. Edward Murphy of Philadelphia and Stephen S. Noetzel of the New York area said American servicemen hooked the wires of battery-operated field telephones to the genitals of men and the breasts of women and gave them electrical shocks to prod them into talking.

Murphy said "terrorism" also was used.

Returning Pope visits Indonesia
JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — Pope Paul VI, on the homeward of his 20,000-mile voyage, arrived in Jakarta today in the midst of Indonesia's biggest moster holiday. He praised the country and its government for letting people of all races and religions live in harmony.

Pope Paul, 73, emphasized the ecumenical in his report speech, the first official act of his 16-hour stopover here. Indonesia is the world's fifth most populous nation and 86 per cent of the 120 million people who live here are Moslem. There are about 2.5 million Roman Catholics.

The nation is in the midst of a week-long celebration of the end of Ramadan, a month-long fast. Most businesses are closed and much of the week is devoted to entertainment.

In his speech, the pontiff said Indonesia is "a country in which many races, cultures and religions live side by side. All the great religions of the world meet here: Moslem, Buddhist and Christian."

"All of them are recognized as official religions by the country's constitution...we consider it, consequently, a duty and a joy to praise the government and the people for their own and reciprocal enrichment in diversity."

Security precautions were extremely tight, with only Catholic officials, government representatives and journalists admitted to the airport for Paul VI's arrival.

Ace In The Hole

Of all the criticism that has been made of the unsuccessful attempt to rescue American prisoners of war from a camp near Hanoi, the least persuasive is that it may have set back peace negotiations with the North Vietnamese in Paris.

How do you set back something that has never really begun? Even some senators, sharing the universal desire for an end to this ugly war, have lulled themselves into the belief that if we just keep plugging away in Paris, if we are patient enough, the impossible dream of achieving a "just and lasting" peace with a regime (North-Vietnam) that is, and always will be dedicated to the overthrow of another regime (South Vietnam) will somehow be magically realized.

The belief persists in the face of the fact that the United States is, month by month, reducing its military strength in South Vietnam. By this time a year hence, we will once again be essentially advisers and suppliers to the South Vietnamese rather than active combatants capable of mounting ground offensives on any significant scale.

The North Vietnamese, against most historical precedent (although fully in keeping with Communist precedent), as well as against simple humanitarianism, have chosen to make the prisoner-of-war question a central issue in the over-all peace (sic) talks.

And why not? The prisoners constitute one of the strongest cards they hold in their hands, and statements by some prominent Americans do nothing to weaken that card.

For example, said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in his response to the abortive rescue attempt:

"The quickest way you get the prisoners out is to announce that we're getting out lock, stock and barrel."

The only trouble with this is that the North Vietnamese may have a different understanding of "lock, stock and barrel" than does the senator or most other Americans.

They have not promised to release the prisoners of war once our troops are out of South Vietnam. They have said they will consider it at that time. There is nothing to stop them from raising the ante on the prisoners to include not only withdrawal of all U.S. troops but withdrawal of all U.S. support — military, economic and moral — of the Saigon government.

There is no end to the blackmail potential in their continued holding of American prisoners.

The North Vietnamese have spurned our offer of a prisoner exchange with a better than 10-to-one ratio in their favor. They refuse even to release the names of the prisoners. They have violated the Geneva Convention on prisoners of war in every respect.

Yet a daring attempt to rescue a few of them is questioned in the Senate as an abandonment by the Nixon administration of the negotiation process.

No senator said, if only for rhetorical effect, and at the risk of sparking an eruption on some campus:

"The quickest way you can get the prisoners out is for this body, this government, the nation, to make it plain to the North Vietnamese that there will be no more withdrawals and no more negotiations until an exchange of prisoners is agreed upon."

There seems to be an unspoken but definite feeling abroad in the land that all guilt for this war rests with the United States and that whatever happens to our fighting men held prisoners is part of the price we must pay for our sins.

We are thus left with the faint hope that someday, out of the goodness of their hearts, the North Vietnamese will forgive us and will permit these unfortunate men, those who survive, to return to their homes and families.

We call it "negotiations."

Reds Chip Away

Though the pace of meetings has been stepped up since summer, the four-power talks over an easier status for beleaguered Berlin are going nowhere. Frequency of contact has exposed at frequent intervals Soviet posture.

The stakes are very high. West German Chancellor Willy Brandt has asserted that success in these talks is a prerequisite to ratification by his country of the 1970 Bonn-Moscow pact renouncing use of force and recognizing the Oder-Neisse line as the German-Polish border.

Brandt tied ratification to the four-power talks when premature disclosure of the original treaty made it plain his government was preparing to give much but get almost nothing in return from the Soviet Union. He had to offer some semblance of balance.

Given this situation, the Russians' conduct in four-power negotiations this fall has been unbelievably crude even for them.

The Western powers' demands are really, quite modest. We want easier access to Red-held East Berlin for West Berliners with relatives and friends there. Despite the ugly wall dividing the city, Berliners themselves feel a continuing sense of unity. The Western allies, eager to keep West Berlin a viable community, want this unity cast in more tangible terms — for obvious benefit to its harassed citizens.

The Russians evidently are willing to yield some ground here. What is so staggering is the price they are trying to exact in return.

This means, this time, more than just avoiding token sessions in Berlin of the West German parliament, or announcing minor "showcase" agreements of the Federal Republic which keep shop in that city.

provides for the city's people that wide range of services we call social programs — social security, sickness benefits, etc. Moscow's prescription for a new agreement would sever this life-support. The city already is in enough trouble trying to keep itself workable economically. We and the British and French have told Soviet representatives the obvious: Their proposal is nothing but a plan to destroy West Berlin as a West German entity, and we are not buying.

Why We Hit

WASHINGTON (NEA) — To say the bombing of North Vietnam was to protect U.S. reconnaissance planes or disrupt Hanoi's supply lines is to miss the major purpose.

It is, of course, necessary to protect our spy planes. Otherwise, North Vietnam would catch us flat-footed with a major build-up.

Knocking out supply dumps is crucial to slow a Red build-up and prevent higher American, South Vietnamese and Cambodian casualties.

But that is only one corner of the picture. Studies made in South Vietnam on the risks of a unilateral cease-fire have brought out that a truce would be feasible only if the Viet Cong and Hanoi were convinced they would retaliate firmly against major violations.

The worry in South Vietnam is that given U.S. public opinion, enforcement of a truce would be impossible. The Middle East violations intensified this belief. Until that fear is exercised, meaningful steps toward a unilateral truce are impossible.

What makes the situation so critical is that over the years, the North Vietnamese seem to have convinced themselves that violating truces is inevitable. In such an atmosphere a truce is fully in Vietnam.

by and allow major violations in any tract in which it is a direct or indirect party.

The situation has parallels in the Middle East. Thus President Nixon's strategists hope the Russians and Egyptians will not miss the lessons of these bombings.

This is not to suggest the United States intends military action to take out Soviet missile bases installed or moved in violation of the Israeli-Arab truce.

Beyond stopping up arms shipments to Israel, it is not clear what would be done if new violations occur. The case of possible American actions has supposedly been discussed to create uncertainty in Moscow.

But note this: The truce Nixon and Laird are protecting in bombing North Vietnam was a unilateral declared truce. When President Johnson stopped air strikes on the north he told Hanoi that in return he would assist in no more shelling of South Vietnamese cities; 2) no more violations of the demilitarized zone between the North and South; and 3) no attacks on U.S. patrol planes operating over North Vietnam.

If Hanoi did not live up to these conditions, bombing might be resumed. Hanoi has violated "understanding," shelling cities and shooting down reconnaissance planes. This is the "second time" the United States has retaliated.

Hiccups

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Hiccups have just about got me out of my pea-picking mind. I had surgery in 1962 and had hiccups for five months. In 1968, surgery again, and hiccups two years later. My doctor has tried about everything, and I've tried every remedy I've heard of, and still have them 87 percent of the time. — J.C.

Dear Doctor: My husband gets hiccups and can't get rid of them. It even happens when he first gets out of bed. The only way he has found to get rid of them is to induce vomiting. This is embarrassing if we are not at home. — A.

A hiccup is a spasm of the diaphragm when it sets up as a repeated reflex — hiccups that won't stop.

There are lots of causes of hiccups, lots of home remedies, and a few methods that aren't very well known, which I'll mention.

Commonest cause of hiccups is stomach irritation, from overeating, from highly seasoned foods, or too much alcohol. But again, hiccups can result from some serious conditions — uremia, or brain infections such as encephalitis and dehydration.

One commonly overlooked cause is related to the ear drum — a hair, or wax pressing against the ear drum, setting up a reflex mechanism and producing the spasm of the diaphragm. Cleansing the ear often is the answer. For the same reason wax can cause chronic earache, too.

Finally, anesthesia can bring on hiccups during or after an operation, as in Mr. J.C.'s case.

There are many other home remedies for the hiccups, and usually one of them works: breathing into a paper bag; gulping (or sometimes sipping) cold water; extending the head backward and holding the breath as long as possible; producing a sneeze — inducing vomiting; tickling the throat with a cotton swab. (An anesthesiologist reported he does this with a rubber catheter, and it usually works.) Various medications have been tried, ranging from simple antacids like soda or aluminum hydroxide to special drugs administered intravenously. Medication, though, produces transient results as a rule. The purpose in any of these treatments is to break the nerve-reflex circuit, which is why sneezing, vomiting, or tickling often works. Or the old trick of scaring or startling someone.

When the ordinary methods won't work, more complicated procedures may be necessary. One is instillation of ammonia or a pledget soaked in ether into the nostril. This is either for a physician to perform, or not to do — it yourself remedy.

Finally, in a few instances severing or crushing of the phrenic nerve, in the neck, may be a last resort.

Keep in mind, first, that possibility of irritation of the ear drum. Not widely known, but if it should be that and the irritation continues, so can the hiccups, until the irritation is relieved.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After a person has had a heart attack, does he continue to take blood thinners tablets for the rest of his life? — H.C.

No. In fact, experience with such medications is establishing the belief that there is little if any point in continuing them over long periods. But use for short periods is important.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am four months pregnant and have been bleaching my hair. I was told by a friend that bleaching the hair during pregnancy is harmful to the unborn baby. — G.J.Z.

Non-sense.

MR. SPECTATOR

Idaho Food To Japan

Ever wonder where some of the agricultural products from Idaho and the Magic Valley end up? One place is in Japan.

Mr. Spectator received a booklet from the United States-Japan Trade Council in Washington, D.C. and the announcement is made — among other announcements — that for the first time U.S. agricultural exports to a single country reached $1 billion. This was during the fiscal year that ended June 30 and the exports were to Japan. Actually the amount exported came to $1.3 billion.

So this is one of the big milestones in the annals of U.S. agriculture and Idaho products, of course, were among those going to market of the Rising Sun.

Last year American farmers supplied more than five-sixths of Japan's soybeans; nearly three-quarters of the tobacco; almost three-fifths of the feed grains, fats and oils and hides and skins; about one-half of the wheat; nearly two-fifths of the prepared animal feed and meat; one-fourth of the meat and meat preparations; one-fifth of the fruits and nuts; and nearly one-sixth of the cotton imported by the Japanese.

We are told that the successful introduction and acceptance of Western-type foods in Japan has been brought about largely through the efforts of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and numerous private agricultural associations. During the past 15 years more than 30 such associations have cooperated with the USDA on market promotion programs in Japan. Among these are the American Poultry Industries, the Western Meatpackers Association and The Western Wheat Associates.

Mr. Spectator thought you farmers would like to know about this.

Panel would circumvent court welfare rulings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In 1962 and 1963, the Supreme Court handed down decisions which had the effect of adding perhaps as many as 700,000 mothers and children to the nation's welfare rolls. Now, the Senate Finance Committee, which writes welfare law proposals, is working to reverse the impact of those decisions and to get a measure of revenge against the government-paid poverty lawyers who filed the lawsuits which led to the decisions.

The panel prohibited the states from denying welfare payments to newly arrived families.

States paying high benefits had enacted the residency requirements to stem the flow of millions of families from southern states, where little or no benefits were paid, to wealthier northern states more generous to welfare recipients. The court also struck down laws which states denied payments to mothers because there were able-bodied men living in their households.

At the time, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimated the decisions could make between 600,000 and 700,000 more people eligible for welfare.

Seeking to undo what the court had done, the finance committee Wednesday approved amendments to a Social Security bill which goes before the Senate in about two weeks. The amendments would:

- Require a state to continue paying welfare for a year if a family moves from Mississippi to New York, it would have to live for a year on the lower Mississippi payment before it could collect the higher New York payment.
- If Mississippi paid the family nothing, the family would not qualify for New York welfare for a year.
- Allow states to deny payments to a household which includes a man if he maintains a "parent-child" relationship with the children in the household.
- Permit states to deny welfare to mothers who refuse to identify to caseworkers the father of their child and to mothers who refuse to let investigators into their homes.
- Forbid the use of federal funds to pay the salaries of anyone who files a lawsuit challenging the legality of federal welfare laws or policies.

REJECTING arguments it was setting a precedent every Indian tribe would rush to take advantage of, the Senate gave final approval to a bill giving the Taos Pueblo Indians of New Mexico title to the land they call their sacred shrine. Indians get back lands

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, rejecting arguments it was setting a troublesome precedent, has voted to give the Taos Pueblo Indian tribe "trust title" to 48,000 acres of ancestral lands in New Mexico.

The Senate approved the bill, already passed by the House, in a 70-12 vote Wednesday. The land surrounds Blue Lake, N.M., which the Indians call the Fountain of Life and use as their sacred shrine.

Opponents led by Sens. Clinton Anderson, D-N.M., and Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., contended the Taos tribe should be given "exclusive use" of the land, but that title should remain with the U.S. Forest Service. Jackson said the legislation would inspire other Indian tribes to file "trust title" claims.

"We are going to have to face a long series of claims," Jackson said. "In conscience, you cannot treat one Indian tribe differently from another."

But Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., described this as a "spurious precedent argument."

Idaho legislators map reorganization

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — Members of the 41st Idaho Legislature converged on Boise Wednesday for a three-day organizational session and further discussion of alternatives to a pay cut.

Both houses of the legislature officially convene at 1:30 p.m. Thursday to pick leaders and work out committee assignments for the first regular session scheduled to get under way Jan. 11.

Senate Republicans planned an informal, no-host-dinner caucus Wednesday night to discuss their leadership desires. Senate Democrats meet at 10 a.m. Thursday.

House Republicans and Democrats are scheduled to caucus at 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

By law, the organizational session is limited to three days. Senate Democrats faced a leadership fight between John Evans, Malad, minority leader in the 40th session and Ray Rigby, Rexburg, his assistant in 1960 and 1970. Sen. Nels Solberg, D-Grangeville, was bidding for assistant minority leader to succeed Rigby.

Sen. Arthur Murphy, D-Muliam, a former minority leader who served as caucus chairman the past two years, indicated he was willing to serve in that post again. But he said he would not "run" for the position.

Republicans control both houses of the legislature, the senate, 19-16, and the house of representatives, 41-29. For the first time since 1950, the legislature will be controlled by one party and the governorship by another. Governor-elect Cecil Andrus is a Democrat.

In 1959, Democrats controlled both houses. The governor, Robert E. Smylie, was a Republican.

Senate President Pro Tempore James Ellsworth, R-Landuse, was expected to be chosen for the top leadership job in the senate again. Sen. Wayne Kidwell, R-Boise, appeared to be in line for the majority leadership, succeeding Sen. P.M. Ball, R-Idaho Falls, who did not seek reelection to the legislature.

There was a move to replace Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, with Sen. David Bivens, R-Payette, as assistant majority leader. Barker was offered the post of caucus chairman although there was some static over that move because Barker was in line for committee chairmanship as the ranking republican on education.

In the house, only one change was foreseen — replacement of former Rep. Alvin Joslyn, D-Glenns Ferry, as minority caucus chairman.

Speaker William J. Lanting, R-Hollister, was in line for reelection. So were minority leader Terry Crapo, R-Idaho Falls.

assistant majority leader Harold Snow, R-Moscow, and caucus chairman Ernest Allen, R-Nampa.

There was a little flak about Allen's re-election because he also is slated to be reappointed chairman of the House Education Committee.

Minority Leader Edward Williams, D-Lewiston, and his assistant, William J. Murphy, D-Wallace, also appeared assured of re-election by their caucus.

At this session of the legislature, the number of inexperienced lawmakers will be at one of its lowest ebbs in years. Of the 105 legislators in the two houses there are only 14 without previous legislative experience.

While the legislature has passed a law providing for the organizational session and compensation at the rate of $25 per day there seemed to be some question about whether the lawmakers would have to deduct that pay from their 60-day regular session coming up next month or serve at the organizational session without pay.

When the electorate approved an initiative measure Nov. 3 it cut the lawmakers' expense allowance to $25 per day from $35, chopped off their $200 per month "office allowance" and limited their compensation to 60 days at the first regular session and 30 days at the second.

Ellsworth said he did not think the initiative affected the organizational session but others were not so certain.

Meaning, it appeared likely the legislators may modify it, not outright repeal the initiative law when they convene in January.

All but nine of those answering a UPI questionnaire said they felt the compensation should be raised — if not back to where it was at least to what they consider a "realistic" level.

While about half of those taking part in the poll said they could continue to serve, more than a third said it may affect their future plans for legislative service.

One of those was Bivens. "I can't afford to make a sizable donation to our state out of my pocket just for the privilege of being an elected official," Bivens said.

"Anything less than about $5,000 a year will eliminate grass root representation by fair, capable people," Sen. John Mix, D-Moscow, said he favored "outright repeal of the measure."

"Most certainly this will affect my personal plans," Mix said. "It will be difficult to serve with the cost of moving nowadays. I would favor outright repeal of the measure."

Rep. Angus Condie, R-Preston, took a slightly different tack. "A raise should take into consideration the wishes of the voters," Condie said.

Andrus picks aide

BOISE (UPI) — Governor-elect Cecil Andrus Wednesday announced the appointment of Jean Taylor, Nampa, as staff executive secretary.

Mrs. Taylor is a member of the Democratic State Executive Committee and chairman of Legislative District 12. She is the wife of Dr. Sam C. Taylor, a practicing surgeon associated with the Canyon County Medical Center. They have five children.

Legislators shun budgetary augury

BOISE (UPI) — Four legislators appeared before the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho Conference Wednesday, but declined to make specific budget predictions until Governor-elect Cecil Andrus makes his wishes known.

Rep. Jenkin Palmer, R-Malad, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said higher education had asked for an additional $5 million just to maintain present programs, with another $825,000 to start new programs.

Palmer said it would be "extremely difficult to speculate at this time," but added all institutions of higher education had agreed to abide by a distribution formula for appropriations.

Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, said it was difficult to predict the needs of the Department of Public Assistance since the state agency is dependent on changes in federal Health, Education and Welfare regulations.

High said as the national economy declined welfare roles in Idaho were "very dramatically" affected. He said there was a 35 per cent increase in welfare rolls during the past year with a 42 per cent increase in costs. High said the $9.2 million given to the Department of Public Assistance "is going to be inadequate," and said the agency would request an additional $1 million or $2 million to get it through the fiscal year.

High said the $11 million requested by public assistance for fiscal year 1972 was also insufficient.

ject to change.

Rep. Wilbert Cammack, L-Blackfoot, said the Public Health Department had several "built-in" budgets that made it difficult to project its needs exactly. As an example, Cammack said, the state must share 35 per cent of the cost for the seven new health districts but said at this time it is difficult to tell what the costs will be.

Sen. Richard Egbert, D-Teton, recommended appropriations for public schools be the first considered during the next session of the legislature.

Egbert said he had voted for public kindergartens during the last session but said he would have to reserve judgement on a new proposal until he saw furthering possibilities.

He said kindergartens are very teachable but said he would not detract from existing programs to fund kindergartens.

Rep. James McClure, R-Idaho, told the group government economists have failed to take into consideration the "psychology of the market place" when attempting to bring spiraling inflation under control.

McClure said he felt the economy will be in recession for at least 100 million years, with traces of the illness having been found in the skeleton of a Neanderthal man dating from around 40,000 B.C. and in dinosaurs of the Mesozoic period.

"The people in the market place do not believe the upward trend was going to be reversed," McClure said, referring to predictions by economists the economy could be contracted and controlled with regulation.

He said the people "did not respond to the normal stimuli. As a result inflation continued while certain parts of the economy contracted."

Earlier in the day, Edward Sawyer, director of administrative services, warned Idaho could be confronted with a "serious situation" if its economy should slump.

He said after four months of operation in fiscal year 1971 the general fund position is almost identical to that of a year ago. Nothing there are still eight months to go in the fiscal year, Sawyer said the "moment of truth may not confront us until as late as early May 1971, when virtually all of the income tax returns will have been received and requests for refunds will have been received."

"As of this point in time we are so close to complete balance between capabilities and requirements that it makes you hold your breath," he added.

Police resign

MONTPELIER, Idaho (UPI) — Four Montpelier policemen, which includes the total force with the exception of the chief, resigned Wednesday charging the department was being run like a military outfit.

Four police officers and the dispatcher handed their resignations to city Mayor James Olson. The resignations said police chief Charles Corbin, who recently retired from the Army after 20 years of service) was running the department like he would the military police.

The officers agreed to remain on the staff until replacements can be hired. Olson said he has accepted the resignations and is looking for new officers.

The tenure of the policemen handling resignations ranges from three years to 16 years.

T.F. gets county agent

BUHL — Though negotiations in the labor dispute at Carter Packing Co. of Buhl are still deadlocked, Paul Mals, secretary-treasurer of the Meat Cutters Union, said today there is hope for progress "in the near future."

Mals, who is secretary-treasurer in the executive office of the union, said that there are three principal issues still under negotiation. They include the disputed check-off of union dues, pay scales and a joint-company-union pension plan.

Both the company and the union serve as trustees of the joint pension plan, Mals said; neither can take decisive action on individual pensions or pension amounts without the concurrence of the other.

Mals declined to go into details on the points in dispute but said that the negotiations are continuing in an effort to reach agreement and end the strike, which began last September.

Naval officers study

MONTEREY, Calif. (UPI) — The education of a naval officer doesn't end with Annapolis. Then we design programs to train the people who will be dealing with Navy problems, many of which we can't even imagine now. In 10 years."

Reactor study set

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — The executive director of the Idaho Nuclear Energy Commission said Monday the National Science Foundation had authorized a six-month study of the Materials Testing Reactor.

Genn Rutledge said the study would determine the feasibility of using the MTR at the Nuclear Reactor Testing Station as a possible neutron center.

He said the study, scheduled to begin in the immediate future, would address itself to a detailed cost analysis as well as technical evaluations of the MTR.

The study, which would be conducted by the University of Utah, has support of the State Nuclear Energy Commission, the Idaho Nuclear Corporation and the Associated Western Universities.

Funding for the project will include $25,000 from the National Science Foundation; $10,000 from the State of Idaho; $5,000 from the State Nuclear Energy Corporation; and $2,500 from the University of Utah.

U.S. growth slows in 1960's

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States population increased at a slower rate in the prosperous 1960s than in any decade since the hungry 1930s.

The Census Bureau, completing the 10th national population count since 1790, reported to President Nixon Monday there were 204,765,770 Americans in the country and living temporarily abroad as of April 1, 1970.

The decennial census, both a link to the nation's past growth and a tool to chart its future, will have one relatively quick political effect. As required by the Constitution, the Census Bureau used the new official figures to apportion the 435 seats in the House of Representatives among the 50 states. Five states will gain seats and nine lose them in the Congress to be elected in November, 1972.

The census noted that while the growth of U.S. population in actual numbers between 1960 and 1970 was the second largest on record, the percentage increase of 13.3 was the second lowest.

Congress, if it wishes, may increase the size of the House to fit the newly earned seats into the membership without decreasing the size of existing delegations. But that is not expected to happen (an effort to increase the House size in the 1960s failed), and it will be up to state legislatures to redraw congressional district lines to conform with the census apportionment.

The legislatures, of whatever political persuasion, will have to make larger congressional districts in 1971 than in 1961. Ten years ago, the population of the "ideal" sized district was 410,481; now it has gone up to 469,955. That, according to the careful records kept by the Census Bureau since it made the first enumeration, compares with an ideal district population of 34,436 in 1791.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am 26 and have a sister who is 30. It is the custom in our family that the younger sister does not marry until the older sister has married.

I met a wonderful young man and he's asked me to marry him. As you have probably guessed by now, I want to do it. But my sister is not so sure.

My sister doesn't have anyone special in sight right now which doesn't seem to bother her. She is intelligent and holds down a well-paid position but she is rather plain.

What should I do? I don't want to upset my old world parents.

DEAR WANTS: I don't want to upset your "old world parents" either, but if you are asking me what I would do, I'd marry the man and ask him if he knows someone who would like to meet an intelligent, but rather plain 30-year-old girl.

DEAR ABBY: I cannot forget the letter from that horrible daughter named "Uncertain" who wanted to hasten her mother's death. It was bad enough that the poor old woman was dying of an incurable disease, without having a miserable daughter who wanted to put her out of her misery.

For eight months I nursed my mother who was full of cancer. She has been dead for nearly a year now and I still cry every day, wishing she were still here so I could have the pleasure of taking care of her. Oh, God, how I miss her!

How I envy "Uncertain" that she still has her mother to care for. And how I despise that selfish daughter for wanting to see her mother dead.

SHEDDING TEARS

DEAR SHEDDING: It seems more "selfish" to wish an incurably ill loved one prolonged suffering in order to provide you with the pleasure (?) of nursing her. I could better understand a prayer that the Good Lord either restore her good health or take her mercifully.

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor with whom I have been very friendly for several years, however, I recently inherited a few thousand dollars and this has been causing me problems.

This neighbor gave me a list of things she wants me to give her for Christmas, and on the list she has a $200 sofa bed and a $150 China closet and a $40 handbag, which she's already got picked out! I sure can't go that high. I intended to give her a nice big box of homemade cookies and candles like I always did.

How can I keep this neighbor's friendship and my money, too?

NEIGHBOR LADY

DEAR LADY: You may not be able to. It's time your neighbor learned that there "ain't" no Santa Claus. So gently break the news to her, and if you lose her friendship, you haven't lost much.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WANTS TO KNOW, BUT HATES TO LOOK STUPID": Ask anyone. There is no such thing as a "stupid" question if it's sincere. Better to ask and risk appearing "stupid" than to continue to wonder and make a stupid mistake.

Now is era of women

NEW YORK, N. Y. — The present, more than any other time in history, is an era of female assertion. Women are not only talking up, they're out doing things.

One reflection of the forward drive of women in what has been basically a man's world is seen in female achievement in terms of time. Some interesting facts in this area have been turned up by The World Almanac in its search for winners in the second annual Bonrus Citation Awards for "The Best Time of the Year."

The Bonrus Awards are judged by the editorial board of The World Almanac, and are presented for time-based achievement in any area of endeavor. The board has noted that the names of more women are being offered in nomination this year.

In the rugged area of sports, Chi Cheng, a pretty Chinese girl from Taiwan, has been nominated for setting time records all over the place in track events.

Mountaineering this produced two female contenders, a pair of Japanese women, Junko Tabei and Hiroko Hirakawa, who scaled Annapurna 3 in the Himalayas, the first time women have ever made the 24,853 foot ascent.

From the tops of mountains to the bottoms of seas, women have been making their mark. An American five-woman team, headed by Dr. Sylvia Earle Mood, spent two weeks continuously under water — a feat accomplished by females for the first time.

In theatre, Joan Crawford has been nominated as the longest-time film star, and Ethel Merman for the longest time in the musical-comedy stage. Other nominations for Women Keep coming in.

Among last year's winners were Sharon Sites Adams who was the first woman to sail alone across the Pacific non-stop, and Barbara Jo Rubin who was the female jockey who won a pari-mutuel fat race for the first time in the United States.

Formal announcement of this year's winners will be made at a reception at Tanta Shore Restaurant in New York City, Jan. 14, 1971.

Old-fashioned handwashing given medical boost

NEW YORK, N. Y. — Antibiotics and other modern medicines help to control infectious diseases, but ironically that have also contributed to some, according to Dr. Thomas Neilson, director of surgery for St. Vincent's Hospital and Medical Center of New York.

What has happened, he explained at a seminar on "The Role of Hands in the Spread of Disease," is that there is sometimes an exaggerated reliance on new drugs and methods and not enough attention to cleanliness.

Clinical studies conducted by another physician on the program, Dr. Louis Gluck, have proved that bacterial infections are spread primarily by hands that have not been adequately washed. His studies further proved that in newborn nurseries such infections have been largely or wholly prevented through careful handwashing before and after handling infants, and by bathing the infants themselves with a three per cent hexachlorophene emulsion — pHisoHex.

Dr. Gluck is currently professor of pediatrics, University of California, San Diego, School of Medicine in La Jolla.

20th Century club holds yule luncheon

TWIN FALLS — The Christmas season was ushered in Tuesday by the Singing Mothers of the Twin Falls LDS Stake at a luncheon meeting of the Twentieth Century Club at the Turf Club.

The birth and life of Jesus was portrayed in song and story. Five narrators, the Inkeeper's wife, Olive Henry; a shepherd, Dennis Graybill; a young Jewish boy, Jerry Vander Lee; a village woman, Nina Bastow, and a Galilean mother, Doris Bingham, told the story. A chorus, directed by Mrs. Lloyd Graybill, was accompanied by Mrs. Jay Smith.

Mrs. Jean Kendrick, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Nolan Victor, stake president, who introduced the program.

Femininity conceptions revealed

NEW YORK, N. Y. — How have writers influenced the concept of "woman"?

What have men, through the years, feared "woman" to be? The answers are revealed in fascinating detail in two books just published in Harcourt paperback editions. (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich).

"Thinking About Women" by Mary Ellman is a witty, glib, startling, and sharply serious investigation of our conceptions of femininity as revealed by writers from Jane Austen to Mary McCarthy and Norman Mailer. The New York Times called the book "packed with witty dynamite, all to advance the cause of American women."

P. J. Kavanagh in the Manchester Guardian wrote "This is a difficult time for women in many ways and more books like this should be written . . . this one is usefully embarrassing to the male reader." Mrs. Ellmann, who taught college English after receiving her Ph.D., is married to a Yale professor. They have three teen-age children.

"The Fear of Woman" by Wolfgang Iser, M.D., an inquiry into the enigma of woman and why men through the ages have both loved and dreaded her, is an important pioneering study giving new insights into the relationship between man and woman. A San Francisco psychoanalyst, writes "man has so spidily sold himself of being superior, that he can take great pride in granting woman 'equality': a magnanimous pretense implying that she is inferior to man, but that she can be helped to his level — presumably because she will never become a true competitor or threat."

Jazzmen gather in museum

WASHINGTON (UPI)—While it may be in decline in some spots around the country, jazz is alive and well here—in all places, the Smithsonian Institution's National History Museum.

Down among the stuffed tigers and rare cabinet hangings of the museum's auditorium, jazzmen gather every other week for public concerts that offer a cut to be sold out.

A current feature for example is the Lee Morgan Quintet, whose appearance was arranged by the Left Bank Jazz Society in partnership with the Smithsonian's Performing Arts Division.

As America's most original contribution to music, jazz has long led a peculiar existence. All too often its fortunes have swung on the erratic high and low tides of the music business, although performers are more and more moving to the concert stage when they can.

The Left Bank was conceived by local enthusiasts to awaken and increase jazz appreciation by providing low-cost music to area residents. It takes its name from a similar, older Baltimore group, with which it often works.

"The problem with jazz is exposure," says Gil Crumpton, the Left Bank's business manager. "Disk jockeys are afraid to put it on the radio, because they think it doesn't give the music a chance."

But it's really a matter of giving the music a chance. It is ridiculous to measure an art form's popularity by whether or not it can draw 100,000 people to a concert, he asks.

The answer, for the Left Bank anyway, is contained in the scope of their activities. Their concert schedule, for the period running roughly from September to June, has been stepped up to a bi-weekly basis. They also presented a three-day outdoor jazz festival last summer as well as a spring jazz symposium featuring concerts and discussion groups.

The society is currently waging a campaign to increase AM radio air time for jazz.

relations officer Norval Perkins says, "some local help" has been obtained.

Perkins added that when the "most of the stations didn't even bother to answer us," but the Left Bank now has secured some time for jazz on an FM station.

Social Events Carrie Snodgrass? she's Oscar hopeful

BURLEY — The Golden Glades Club will have its Christmas dance at 8 p. m. Friday at the Burley VFW Hall.

Those attending are asked to bring a covered dish, table service and a gift for the Christmas exchange. Anyone needing a ride may contact Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smythe.

TWIN FALLS — The Royal Neighbor Lodge will have a regular business meeting at 8 p. m. Friday at the 1001 First.

Officers will be elected. Louie Bowne, Nampa, state supervisor will attend. She will be in the city for business purposes. Anyone wishing to contact her may call the recorder, Mildred Shobe.

TWIN FALLS — A dance featuring music by Walt Schroeder's band and one of the Sons of the Pioneers will be held from 8 p. m. until midnight Saturday at the Twin Falls Moose Hall. All Moose members and their guests who have attended previous Saturday night dances at the hall are invited.

BUSY ROCK — When Rock Hudson completes his role at MGM in "Pretty Maids All in a Row," he will fly to London to star in two BBC-TV specials.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Tina Turner was when an aura of excellence surrounded an address who was almost certain to be nominated for an Academy Award because she was generally a movie star as well.

Her parents trip easily along: Audrey Hepburn, Grace Kelly, Ingrid Bergman, Elizabeth Taylor, Joan Crawford, Bette Davis, Vivien Leigh and a score of others.

Interviews with them provoke a kind of electricity.

Genuine or not, they possessed a self-esteem, an awareness of accomplishment, a queenly hauteur.

A definite Oscar contender this year is Carrie Snodgrass who gave a truly remarkable performance in "Diary of a Mad Housewife."

Her portrayal of a contemporary-wife-and-mother was so stunningly believable that it left no room for Carrie. That is to say Miss Snodgrass virtually disappeared in the character of Tina Baker.

Carrie sat at a lunch table in the Universal commissary looking unsure of herself. She twisted and fiddled with a strand of chain around her neck.

There was an intensity about her. Her eyes begged for approval, to be liked, admired. Her voice and otherwise, however.

"Ask me what I want to do more than anything in the world," she said. Okay, what? "I want to have five kids and live on a farm and have a milk cow, some horses, and cook bread and make meals with my man working on the land. Maybe I would take his lunch out to him."

With only two movies to her credit it would appear that Carrie was prepared to give up her career to become a farmwife.

"Oh, no," she replied. "I have to work to support myself until I find a man. After that I don't know if I'd retire from acting because I want to feel is very much a community group. In addition to college students, performing members also include adults from the Magic Valley area and a few outstanding high school students. The stage band will be heard in several jazz selections such as Simon and Garfunkle's "Mrs. Robinson" and Burt Bacharach's "Going out of My Head."

Other upcoming CSI Department of Music events include the Choir's Dec. 13, 8 p. m. performance and Curtis will give a faculty recital Jan. 21.

The stage band, or jazz band,

CSI's instrumental winter concert set

TWIN FALLS — Lawrence Curtis, the new College of Southern Idaho band director, announced that the college's Instrumental Music Winter Concert will be held Sunday at 3 p. m. in the Pines Arts Center Auditorium on campus.

The program is free and will feature the college concert and stage bands. The concert band will be heard in selections from Leonard Bernstein's "Westside Story," the new Broadway Show, "1776," a Christmas madley and several other pieces.

Mortgage market boost scheduled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal National Mortgage Association (FNMA) announced today tentative plans to begin in February to support the conventional mortgage market.

The announcement followed by one day a cut in the interest ceiling for FHA to VA mortgage loans from 8 1/2 to 8 per cent, the first reduction in a decade.

FNMA, a government-owned private corporation, has been buying FHA and VA mortgages since the 1930s to stabilize the market and provide additional money to mortgage lenders that can be used to make new loans.

The corporation announced plans to move into the conventional mortgage market under a bill approved by Congress earlier this year. Conventional mortgages are home loans not insured or guaranteed by the government.

FNMA President Oakley Hunter predicted that the association's participation would expand the funds available for conventional mortgages, under which a majority of Americans buy their homes. The buyer usually must be prepared to make a much higher down payment for a conventional loan than under the government-insured programs. Conventional mortgages usually call for at least one third down. Hunter said FNMA will buy only conventional mortgages for between $10,000 and $33,000 in single family homes.

Housing Secretary George Romney and Veterans Administrator Donald E. Johnson announced the reduction in the FHA and VA loan ceiling. It means that the interest charge over a 30-year period on a $25,000 mortgage backed by the federal housing administration or Veterans Administration would be reduced by $3,165.

Church burns . . .

TWIN FALLS (UPI) — A fire that did an estimated $1 million damage to a string of buildings in Cleveland, including the St. Francis Catholic Church, pictured here. Fire broke out in a five-story apartment building, then quickly spread to surrounding buildings. There were no reports of injuries, although 50 persons were evacuated from the building. (UPI)

Election scrutiny planned

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — The nation's Republican governors meet in Sun Valley, Idaho this month and one of them said there is going to be a lot of post-mortem about what happened last election day.

Democrats gained 11 state houses on Nov. 3. The line-up of 20 states, 10 governors and 21 Republican governors.

Speaking to some municipal officials recently, Oregon Gov. Tom McCall pondered whether the Governors Conference on Dec. 22-13 'oughtn't to be held in Death Valley instead of Sun Valley.

McCall, the nation's tallest governor at six-foot-five, may well have grown more in stature since fellow governors as a result of his re-election victory. Among the 13 Republican governors who were re-elected, McCall was one of the highest vote-getters with 56 per cent.

He also may be in line for the vice-chairmanship of the Republican Governors Conference.

Second go-round

PARIS, France (UPI) — Henri Lefevre, 63, was honey-mooning Wednesday with his fourth wife — the wife he first married 50 years ago and then divorced. He married Marie Martine Floret for the first time in 1933.

A few years later, Lefevre then married and got divorced twice more. "For my fourth try at marriage, I'm going back to my first love," he said.

Building declines

TWIN FALLS — Building construction in Twin Falls for November amounted to $69,150 in structural values, City Clerk Constance Leiser announced today.

Included were three building permits for new dwellings in the amount of $44,500; one other new construction, $250; four additions and structural changes, $10,000 and six repairs and improvements, $9,000.

A year ago, November building in Twin Falls included 18 permits in the amount of $70,050.

Rupert to seek project money

IDAHO (UPI) — Mayor Rupert will apply for federal funds to bring its sewage disposal system up to requirements, the city council decided Tuesday night.

Jim Boeller, of Hamilton and Boeller consulting engineers, Pocatello, said estimated cost for the project will be $245,300 and will include installation of a clarifier which will upgrade the city sewage disposal system, built in 1960, from intermediate to include a secondary plant, which every city in the state must have by 1973.

Ron Klebe, city public works director, said in addition to the clarifier, one and one-half miles of new line would be laid on A street and H Street and other improvements made in the buildings at the sewage disposal plant.

Federal funds will cover 75 per cent of the cost, if the city's application is approved by the state. In other business, councilmen were presented posters from two fifth graders from Acquia, Timmy Biggs and Steven Whiteselden, who said they Pollution Club and feel they can do as much as their parents to Roger Jones and Philo West, of Pomorello Ski area, asked financial assistance from the city in providing bus transportation to the ski area. Councilmen said if schools and other groups in the county support the plan, they will cooperate.

Councilman also approved a dust collector, displayed at the meeting by Dave Early, of the Big O Tire firm, who said he is using it to handle the air pollution caused from his tire recapping process.

Requirements not changed

NORTH BRUNSWICK, N.J. — Officials of the Boy Scouts of America say that organization hasn't changed its religious requirements even though it appears that the Rhode Island Scout who was denied Eagle Rank because he was thought to be an atheist, may qualify after all.

Chief Scout Executive Alden G. Barber, professional leader of the 6-million member B.S.A., issued a statement today that Jimmy Clark of Foster, R.I. will appear before a board of review next Saturday to determine his eligibility for Eagle Rank. Barber said, "After reviewing a statement made last night by young Clark that he can subscribe to the Scout Oath and Scout Law, we concur with the action taken by Scout Executive Robert Parkinson who has forwarded the boy's application to a board of review to be conducted by the Narragansett Council." The board of review is composed of volunteer scouters who review all applicants for advancement in rank.

Annual sales talk contest set at CSI

TWIN FALLS — An unusual speech contest in which merchandise will be sold by the participants is scheduled Dec. 10 at the College of Southern Idaho.

Speech students will compete in the annual Sales Speaking Contest in the Fine Arts Building on Dec. 10 at 7:15 p.m.

The purpose of the contest, according to Fran Tappan, associate professor of speech and drama, is to honor those students at the college who demonstrate outstanding ability in sales presentations. The John Chris auto dealership will award trophies for first, second and third places in the competition. Other finalists will receive honorary award certificates.

Approximately 30 CSI students will speak, and will be judged by local businessmen. The sales talks will run four to five minutes, and the students are expected to sell the products they demonstrate.

Prison buildings OK'd

BOISE (UPI) — The Permanent Building Fund Council gave its approval today to three new buildings at the penitentiary, new site, re-activation of the penitentiary farm dormitory and work on relocating the prison farm.

The academic, dining and industries buildings will cost $4 million, but Public Works Commissioner Robert DeShazo said each building will be bid separately so the state can take advantage of the lowest combination of bids.

Edward Jensen, Boise architect, said the dining room building will cost $807,476, or $22 per square foot; the industries building $1,531,185, or $23.50 per square foot; and the academic building $584,202, or $23 per square foot.

Tom Hoff, a council member, inquired about the difference in square footage costs between the buildings, and Jensen said the dining room building had to meet certain requirements for the handling of foodstuffs.

Board of Corrections member Tony Naegle presented the plan to re-activate the farm building, idle now for two years. He said prisoners taking part in a Manpower Development including fencing and moving kitchen supplies, will be $4,850.

Training Act program sponsored by Boise State College would have to use the farm building used during the last course, must be remodeled.

Naegle also agreed the rehabilitation aspect was the most important, although he said the prison site atop Gowen Field was a poor location for a farm operation.

He said both were the "finest training areas" and said businesses were waiting for them as they guarantee.

Seniors given college info

TWIN FALLS — The annual College Day at Twin Falls High School on Wednesday gave senior students a chance to investigate the college of their choice by talking to spokesmen of 11 colleges and universities. Senior students were excused from English, American Government and World Problems classes to meet the collegiate representatives. No evening meetings were scheduled. Spokesmen represented the College of Southern Idaho, Boise State College, Brigham Young University, College of Idaho, Idaho State University, Northwest Nazarene College, Twin Falls Business College, University of Idaho, University of Utah and Utah State University. High school counselors, Mrs. Doris Watts, Frank Schoro, George Holmes and Kenneth Kail arranged the program.

Broken cable halts service

TWIN FALLS — Telephone service has been restored to five Magic Valley communities which were isolated for a time Tuesday when a telephone cable was cut at Murtaugh.

Kenneth Mann, district manager, Mountain Bell Co., said the private contractor was installing sewer lines in the vicinity of the Union Pacific Railroad depot at Murtaugh when equipment severed the cable.

For about three hours Tuesday, from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m., residents of Burley, Rupert, Declo, Oakley, Elba and surrounding rural areas had no outside telephone communications, Mann said.

He said partial repairs were made by 1:30 Tuesday and permanent restoration had been made Wednesday.

Microwave system, planned for the area between Twin Falls and Burley for next year would eliminate total service failures if the towers, Mann said. Plans for microwave installations would give some customers cable service and some microwave connections, giving the communities an auxiliary outlet in the event of total failure of one system.

He may take trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some of his colleagues maintain only one thing is certain: H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, will not travel abroad.

A member of Congress for 22 years, Gross is noted among other things for the fact he has never been on a congressional trip. He is reported to be as much a junkie and frequently he turns a sarcastic tongue on colleagues who do go overseas.

"I see that we have three warm bodies in Paris today," a typical Gross remark on the House floor.

Gross, 71, is a member of the foreign affairs subcommittee on inter-American affairs, but he has never been south of the border. He is on the "Near East" subcommittee, but he has with fine impartiality to visit both Israel and its Arab neighbors.

Two congressmen, who describe themselves as "two of the warm bodies in Paris," have decided to test the waters and only an act of Congress could dislodge Gross from his native land.

Reps. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, and Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.Y., are sponsoring a resolution to create a committee consisting only of H.R. Gross, with the task of inspecting U.S. economic and military aid expenditures throughout the world between the two nations.

The resolution states that it shall be known as the "H.R. Gross Special Congressional Investigating Committee."

"If I can get this resolution to a vote, it should pass almost to a certainty," Gross said.

"But some members want to amend it to say he must go," Gross did not seem amused.

"I don't know what prompted them to introduce that resolution," he said. "Maybe they are trying to get rid of me." Should it pass, he added, "I'd probably ignore it."

Lewiston ousts council

LEWISTON (UPI) — All but one of the incumbent city councilmen were defeated in Tuesday's recall election as the Orchards Community Project took control of the city's ruling body.

Only John Skelton of the original council managed to retain his seat during the record voter turnout that saw 7,228 persons cast ballots. Skelton outpolled OCP candidate George Allen, 3,689-1,441, in the narrow victory.

Orchards Community Project candidates winning election were Melvin R. McGeeary, Bryan Bundy, George Geise, Dale Gordon, Ron Jones and Donald K. Mellen.

The new council takes office immediately and will serve until next November when a regular election will be held.

Issues in the election were the annexation of the Lewiston Orchards area, a sharp increase in property taxes in the Orchards and lack of representation for the Orchards on the City Council.

The recall movement started last December when the largely residential and agricultural area of about 12,500 persons was annexed into the city against its wishes. The Orchards Community Project had battled the annexation for more than two years before the city dropped its charter and came under the state municipal code and annexed it without a vote of the residents. Under the old charter Lewiston could not annex an area without a vote of the area's residents but under the state municipal code it could.

In March the OCP presented valid recall petitions to the council which ignored them until forced about two months ago to get a recall election by the state courts.

No problems were encountered during the election in which a new element was introduced. Ten off-duty policemen were hired as constables to guard the polling places because of the emotional nature of the election. This was the first time since the head hunt hired for a local election.

Other than the one seat they lost, OCP candidates easily outpolled their opponents by margins ranging from 20 to 50 per cent.

Education rates top Gem priority

Editors note: This is the first in a series of dispatches outlining problems confronting the first regular session of the state Idaho Legislature today.

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — Education still is the top spending priority of Idaho legislators although health, welfare and environmental preservation are moving up on it.

An overwhelming majority of lawmakers who answered a UPI questionnaire picked education as their number one spending preference.

About half of those legislators said they wanted to put the money into the public schools. The remainder listed kindergartens and vocational education as priorities within the education category.

While the increased emphasis on health, welfare and ecology seems to be following the national trend it is not surprising that eight per cent of the present general fund budget is going for education.

What is significant is the education category of spending is the renewed emphasis on vocational education and on kindergartens. Some lawmakers are beginning to question the idea that all vocational education opportunities might not be better for some.

Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, is one who listed vocational education at the top of his spending priority list.

"We must do something to reverse the high school drop-out trend," Budge said. "This seems the proper direction."

Sen. Ed Miller, R-Boise, listed as her top priority "Education with increased allocation to vocational education."

All but seven of those answering the questionnaire said they favored public school kindergartens in some form or other. But they differed widely on how and where they will get the money and many had financial strings on their approval. This will be examined in a subsequent dispatch.

Although most lawmakers listed the big four of education, health, welfare and environment as their top priorities for spending there were some other views.

Sen. H. Don Summers, R-Boise, said he wants to give more money "To agencies who will return some to the state."

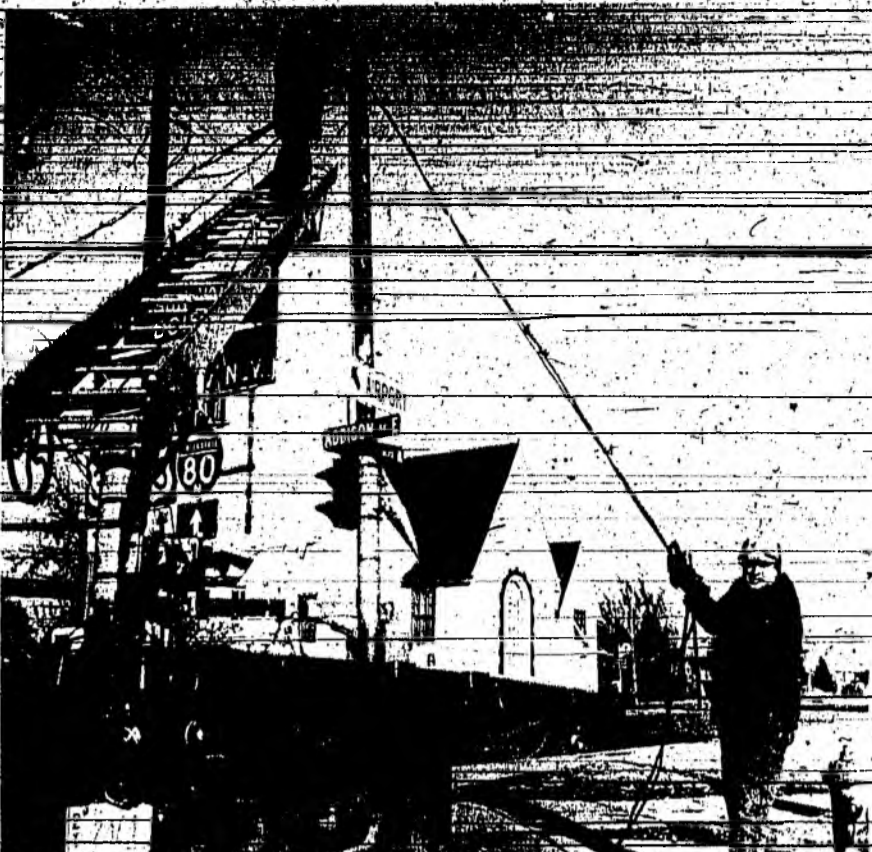

As examples, he said, "Additional tax auditors, more staff in state land department, same in insurance department."

During the campaign, now governor-elect Cecil Andrus said it appeared possible there would be a general fund surplus this year of some $1 million.

Significantly, only one legislator answering the poll indicated he believed there would be such a surplus.

Many were skeptical of possible surplus. But, should it occur, most favored allocating it to education or pollution control. Significantly, only two favored giving any surplus back to the taxpayers.

House removal clears Blue Lakes shop site

TWIN FALLS — Moving of a one-story house, about 30 years old, from 884 Fairway Drive Wednesday will make way for a new business establishment in Twin Falls.

Gordon Crockett, Magic Valley Realty, said the house was moved from property purchased by a national chain, Winchell-Donut House with western headquarters in Los Angeles.

He said the new firm will probably begin construction of a small building in April to handle customer service and provide for take-out orders. Remainder of the property will provide drive-through space and parking.

The property is located directly across Blue Lakes Boulevard North from the Lynwood Shopping Center. Crockett said the site and

M.V. ski areas open

TWIN FALLS — Three ski areas in Magic Valley will be open this weekend, with Pomerelle opening Wednesday and continuing in operation through Sunday each week.

Dollar mountain at Sun Valley will open for two pre-season days of skiing Saturday and Sunday. This early weekend results from the unusual snowfall in the Ketchum area this week, with more than three feet of snow on Dollar.

There are four feet of snow on Baldy, but that run won't be open to the public until Dec. 12 when the GOP governor's conference opens for a three-day meeting. Sixty inches of snow are reported on Roundhouse.

At Pomerelle, near Albion, 12 inches of new snow are reported with a total of 36 inches at the base of the runs and 44 inches on the runs, according to Mrs. Roger Jones. Snow tires or chains are advised.

Snow, ice on Gem roads

BOISE (UPI) — New snow made most major roads in Idaho slick for travel today and in some areas tire chains were advised for safe driving.

By road, this was the report from the State Departments of Highways and Law Enforcement:

U.S. 12 — Lolo Pass, snow floor, snowing, chains advised; Orofino to Kooskia, icy spots.

State Highway 55 — Horse-shoe Bend Hill; icy; Banks Canyon to Cascade, snow floor; Cascade to New Meadows, broken snow floor, some fog.

U.S. 95 — Riggins to Adams County line, Coldspring Hill, Lewiston Hill, Midvale Hill to Weiser, icy spots; Council to Mesa Hill, broken snow floor, chains advised; Marsing to Oregon line, icy spots; Whitebird Hill, Craigmont, Grangeville, snow floor; Sandpoint, icy spots, snowing; Bonners Ferry, Mica Hill, broken snow floor.

U.S. 95A — Snow floor or broken snow floor.

State Highway 46 and 68 — Fairfield, snow floor, snowing; Mountain Home area, snow floor, chains advised.

U.S. 93A — Snow floor, snowing.

Jerome to Hazelton, Burley, Idaho City, broken snow floor; Idaho City to Lewman, broken snow floor, chains advised.

Agents elect Mecham

TWIN FALLS — Bruce Mecham was elected president of the Twin Falls Board of Realtors for 1971 during a meeting Tuesday night in the Rogerson-Hotel Roundup Room.

Others elected included Douglas Vollmar, vice president; Nadine Koepnick, secretary-treasurer; and George Gould, three-year board member. Holdover board members are Harley Mathers and W. J. Schmittmann.

Beth Wickham, current president of the board, announced Karl Freeman had received an appointment to the National Multiple Listing Service. He will attend a conference in California during January as a new member.

The January board meeting will be an installation dinner honoring the new officers. The date will be announced.

Growers retain slate

TWIN FALLS — Officers and directors of the Bean Growers Warehouse Association were re-elected Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Holiday Inn.

Bob English, general manager, Twin Falls, said directors re-elected Leotis Jones, Miller, as president; M. R. Cothran, Castletford, vice president; and J. D. Claborn, Jr., Kimberly, as secretary-treasurer.

Wash., accountant, gave the firm's annual financial report, pointing out the firm is in stronger financial condition than it has been in several years.

In the manager's report, English noted volume has been stepped up in the past year through the development of new marketing areas by the association with a number of new outlets. He said in most areas of Magic Valley, where washhouses are operated

Two false fire alarms were reported at the Twin Falls Fire Department Wednesday night and Thursday morning, Fire Department officials reported.

A fire in Rock Creek Canyon behind the Idaho Frozen Foods plant was reported Wednesday evening, but department officials said it was a permit fire in which a property owner was burning old tires. The caller reported a slightly different location and a truck was sent to check the call.

New home aid slated

TWIN FALLS — Federal assistance in the middle and upper income housing bracket will be one of several items discussed Dec. 8 at 7:30 p.m. in a meeting of the Twin Falls Chapter, National Association of Home-Builders.

Carpenner noted this law will not be operational until Congress appropriates contract authority.

Bob Wills, local president, said the meeting will be held in the Idaho Room of Griggs Motel in Twin Falls and will be open to all contractors and associate contractors involved in home building.

Appearing with Carpenner will be Rowland Ward, chief FHA underwriter, and Roy Bryan, chief architect, both Boise. The men will discuss FHA procedure and minimum standards.

Three Farm Home Administration representatives will address the dinner meeting. E. H. Carpenner, director of the Boise Insurance Office, FHA will speak on "FHA Small Homes." In the address he will cover the "old standby" program of lower income housing financing, and a relatively new program available for such homes. Carpenner will also discuss the completely new program of Wills said efforts are being made to bring more area builders into the organization and to keep them abreast of developments in the FHA financing programs for which they may be eligible.

Galena opened

SHOSHONE — Galena Summit was expected to open to traffic again today, after being closed Wednesday noon because of blizzard conditions, Harry Hubbard, district highway official, said Thursday morning.

Three feet of new snow fell in the last few days at North Fork Store, seven miles north of Ketchum. He said crews worked on Highway 83 over the summit all night and this morning were running a rotary plow on the Stanley side.

All other roads in the Shoshone Highway district were reported as open and in good condition. Trout Creek road and the Stanley-Lowman road both have been closed for the winter, which is done every year, Hubbard said.

2 false alarms reported

TWIN FALLS — Two false fire alarms were reported at the Twin Falls Fire Department Wednesday night and Thursday morning, Fire Department officials reported.

Two state champs feature 26-game weekend schedule

Descending state champions Wendell and Oakley make their first showings of the year and the Twin Falls Bruins will meet a pair of old foes under new coaches as the Magic Valley high school basketball season gets underway with 26.

Wendell will be home to the Buhl Indians Saturday night while Oakley plays host to North Gem Friday. Twin Falls will be at Burley Friday and help introduce Coach Ivan planned for Vallivue, near Caldwell, and Payette while Jerome will be at American Falls and Bliss goes to Rockliff Friday while Gooding travels to Kelly of Boise and Wood River visits Butte of Arco Saturday.

One of the features of the weekend should come Friday when the Buhl Indians travel to

Twin Falls has height and depth but may lack scoring punch to be champ

Increased rebounding strength and depth will be the strong points of the Twin Falls Bruins this year but a question mark as to defense and shooting keeps Coach Charles Spriggs, Randy Walters, Tom Alderson, Don Reddick, all 7-0, Steve Chapman, 6-4, and Jerry Barbour, 6-6.

"I think we are strong enough in enough other departments like rebounding, size and depth to say our prospects are better than a year ago," Coach Far-

Coach Farmer has five men in the 6-3 to 6-6 area and a squad dominated by seniors. He has three returning starters and another who moved into a starting role late in the year for a couple of games before injury took him out for the season.

The returning starters are Mike Crandal, 6-1 senior who is probably the best shooter on the club; 6-4 John Van Engelen who promises to be a stalwart at center if he can shake the rash of fouls that kept him on the sideline much of last year, and 6-1 Larry Blackwood, a fade-away jump shot specialist who was voted the team's most inspirational player last season. With them is Walt Sinclair, 6-foot guard, who came on well last season as a defensive player and quarterback but then missed the Stillwagon moved from Ohio State sub to nation's best

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Jim Stillwagon, the All-America middle guard from Ohio State, started out as a substitute but dedication made the difference in turning him into the top defensive collegiate lineman in the nation.

From that September day four years ago, when he was listed No. 2 at his position, Stillwagon has risen to the nation's outstanding college lineman, twice being named to the United Press International All-America squad.

announced the Buckeyes' 22-game winning streak and is the only Ohio State loss in Stillwagon's three years.

"We thought about the game a whole year," Stillwagon continued, "and how they treated us last year up there. This was a grudge match. A personal thing between us and Michigan."

Stillwagon said he nearly enrolled at West Virginia University when he got out of Augusta Military school.

AAU eases limitations on athletes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—In a rapid reply to demands of dissident track stars, the governing body of amateur athletics in the United States has taken a giant step toward entering the 20th century.

The track and field committee of the Amateur Athletic Union moved Wednesday to liberalize several stringent regulations restricting athletes.

Clay too fine, cuts training

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cassius Clay had to slow down his training schedule Wednesday for the second bout of his comeback Monday night against Oscar Bonavena because he was getting "too sharp."

"He continues to amaze me," said his trainer, Angelo Dundee. "He was in great shape against Jerry Quarry in September. After that fight he took off for about seven or eight days, and he's already at the fighting point."

Pirates swap for top hurler

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, who came close but missed winning the big prize in 1970, bolstered their bid for the 1971 flag Wednesday by acquiring another starting pitcher, Bob Johnson, in a six-player trade with the Kansas City Royals.

Meanwhile, the Baltimore Orioles, who played up a starting pitcher in Pat Dobson from the San Diego Padres on Tuesday, continued to hunt for still another by offering the New York Yankees slugger Frank Robinson for 20-game winner Fritz Peterson.

All four points also were supported by AAU vice president Jack Kelly, expected to be named president on Saturday, final day of the organization's 83rd annual convention.

However, the four recommendations must be approved by the AAU's 400-member board of governors before they can be forwarded to the International Amateur Athletic Federation (IAAF), governing body of worldwide amateur sports.

"The IAAF gives the power to act to individual countries," said Connolly. "And we keep living in 1875. We know as athletes that the IAAF won't flip over athletes being paid."

Connolly has charged that the U.S. restrictions on amateur athletes were "hypocritical and unrealistic" compared to rules governing athletes in other nations.

Crandal probably will open at guard where he will have about the lone Bruin outside scoring punch — with any consistency.

CSI opens new fieldhouse by hosting Weber tonight

Coming off "as fine a first night as you could hope for," the College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles meet the Weber State Frogs Thursday night in the first game to be played in the new CSI fieldhouse.

The Eagles ripped the Boise State Frogs 24-20 in their season opener Tuesday night and will host the Weber State Frogs on Friday and Saturday night battles with Powell, Wyo. junior college and then travel to Pocatello to meet the Idaho State team Monday night.

Coach Jerry Hale was more than pleased with his charges. "Victor (Kelly) and Gary (Quessnell) completely intimidated the Boise State team from the outset and our big men played great defensive ball. We had 28 uncontested points on set-ups in the first half and you can't expect more than that," the coach said. "I think I was most pleased with our defense well-offensively. They moved the ball well and we only had seven turnovers for the night."

and that's playing with 12 men and using all kinds of combinations. We may look like in our next game, but for an opener I don't think I've ever had a club that came close to looking that good."

UCLA is overwhelming choice to repeat as NCAA champion

NEW YORK (UPI)—UCLA, the basketball powerhouse of the last decade, is the overwhelming favorite to win the 1970-71 national basketball title.

The Bruins, who captured their fourth straight NCAA championship last season after being nosed out by Kentucky for the national title after regular season play, received 23 of the 28 first place votes cast by the 35-member UPI Board.

UCLA piled up 267 points, to edgily outdistance runner-up South Carolina, second with the three remaining first place votes and 104 points.

That's the verdict handed down Wednesday in pre-season balloting by the United Press.

Jacksonville, runner-up to UCLA in the NCAA tourney, was third in the pre-season balloting, followed by Kentucky and Marquette. Notre Dame captured the No. 6 ranking. Penn was rated seventh.

Gem growers should look at wine grapes

BOISE (UPI)—An extension horticulturist for the University of Idaho thinks Idaho fruit growers should experiment in cultivation of such "luxury" crops as wine grapes.

Tony Horn, who also is secretary of the Idaho Horticultural Society, told an evening session of the group's 70th annual meeting that "Fairly good yields" of concord grapes could be expected in southwest Idaho.

Horn said reports from California indicate that wine dealers will enjoy strong business activity during the next decade.

Parma Seed case ruling reversed

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho's Supreme Court reversed Monday the judgment of Canyon County District Court in the case of Parma Seed, Inc., versus the General Insurance Company of America.

Parma Seed brought an action against the insurance company seeking indemnification for monies it paid to various farmers in Canyon County.

The district court held that the seed company was liable for damages which occurred away from their premises.

In a unanimous opinion written by Justice Henry F. McQuade, the high court held that the terms of the insurance policy by General Insurance did not cover accidents which occurred away from the premises of Parma Seed Company.

In another unanimous opinion, this one written by Justice Clay V. Spear, the Supreme Court affirmed a judgment of the Fourth District Court in Alta County.

District Judge Merlin S. Young held that a written contract for the sale of Ben F. Stadler's 1966 hay crop to Larry C. Gillingham was not ambiguous. The judge said state laws must be gillingham as to the condition, age and value of a crawler tractor, given as a down payment on the hay crop, did not constitute fraud.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Investors, confident that the Nixon administration is stepping up efforts to bolster the ailing market higher for the ninth consecutive session Thursday.

As trading rounded the halfway mark, the Dow Jones Industrial average closed with its highest level of 1970, 811.34, its closing high for the year was 811.31 last Jan. 6.

The tape, 1,011 advanced, while 352 declined.

A three-hour turnover of around 25,000,000 shares was running well ahead of Wednesday's pace.

Helping market sentiment was a forecast by Guy E. Noyes, economist for Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., of a further drop of one-half point in both the Federal Reserve discount rate and prime bank interest rate.

Noyes expected to say how soon he declined basic rates to drop again but said a decline is inevitable because loan demand continues to be slack.

SHOWERS will be indicated over most of the Pacific coastal area during tonight, while snow and snow flurries are anticipated over the northern Rockies, the upper Mississippi Valley and also in portions of the Great Lakes. Clear to partly cloudy skies should prevail for the remainder of the nation. (UPI)

Following this front, variable cloudiness with a chance of scattered shower activity will continue on Friday. The extended outlook Saturday through Monday with a continuing throt flow over this area - calls for generally cloudy skies with some periods of precipitation. However during this period the now will be warmer moving the snow level back into the higher mountains and giving highs in the 50s and 60s from 20 to 30.

Successful Investing

Government Nat. Mortgage Assoc. Tax treatment of income on these bonds and notes is not identical. Income from FNMA and GNMA debt issues is fully taxed; on the other five, bond income is subject to Federal but not local, state or municipal income tax. Debt issues of GNMA are direct obligations of the U.S. Government. Although this is not true of the other six agencies, their debt is considered second only to that of the treasury.

A potential investor should check carefully whether the bond or note his is interested in is issued in coupon (bearer) or registered form and when interest is payable, semi-annually or at maturity. In addition to these agencies the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) auctions participation in Local Public Agency Project Notes - tax-exempt - in minimum denominations of $25,000. The Farmers Home Administration (FHA) issues debt in large denominations; and Export-Import Bank has a limited amount of debt outstanding.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The "high catch-up production rates at GM" will mean a gradual pick-up in steel output, according to the Argus Research Corp. The company believes that this, combined with an "upswing in homebuilding and consumer outlays," should launch the economy into recovery. The firm says its points toward an "improvement in equity prices."

The administration is determined to drive interest rates down, according to Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis Inc. The company says "lower interest rates mean higher bond prices (and those who've been bullish on bonds have been right)—The company adds that historically bond strength has preceded strength on the stock market—"this, inferably, higher equity prices would also appear a logical expectation."

"Time is running out on the bears," the Dines Letter warns. The letter says "August and September witnessed the kind of buying orgy frequently found before crashes." But the letter says instead of declining in price, the company's stock market digested its gains and this indicates "if we don't get a severe decline within the next month or so... we are not going to get one at all."

"What is bad for the country may this time be good for the stock market," Hoppin, Watson & Co. says. The company says a portion of the money being pumped by the Fed will find its way into speculative channels, such as a bull market in stocks.

Flow of new money into stocks is established, it is secondary importance whether parallel flows are leading to a pararep or a bear market.

Stalin's book may be next

MOSCOW (UPI) — If the alleged memoirs of former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev published abroad have generated a global sensation, other memoirs exist which someday will prove infinitely more interesting.

Among them are the reminiscences of Josef V. Stalin himself and those of his right-hand man, the 80-year-old Vyacheslav M. Molotov, one-time premier, foreign minister and one of the few surviving old Bolsheviks whose career spanned more than half a century.

No official information can be obtained about Stalin's memoirs. But in the past few years there have been intimations that the man who for 30 years was the supreme ruler of his country put down at least part of his extraordinary experience on paper.

Dead men tell no tales but when and if Stalin's memoirs are made public an interesting new light will be shed on Khrushchev's indictment of his onetime patron and associate.

Molotov, alone who is still alive and who actually battled against Khrushchev's unbridled de-Stalinization campaign, can assume the role of Stalin's advocate and defend his' into comrades.

In complete retirement since 1961, Molotov, who early in his political life was described by Vladimir I. Lenin as the "best filing clerk in Russia," has an elephantine memory and has been walking the corridors of supreme Soviet power since the 1917 revolution.

He was reported reliably to have completed his memoirs about two years ago.

The late John Foster Dulles once described Molotov as the ablest foreign minister of his age.

The tales he could tell would dwarf everything Khrushchev said into relative insignificance. But the legend Molotov has not taken anyone into his confidence and his memoirs are unlikely to see daylight until after his death, if then.

'Politics' jeopardized Gem arts commission

Boise (UPI) — Partisan political activities by an employee of the state Arts and Humanities Commission may have jeopardized the commission's right to receive and use federal money, auditors said Wednesday.

"It came to our attention that the executive secretary of the agency has been engaged in partisan political activities which, in our opinion, may be in direct violation of the federal Hatch Act," auditors from the Bureau of Public Accounts reported.

A violation of this act could jeopardize the agency's rights to receive and use federal money," they said.

They recommended the commission immediately study and ascertain its right and duties under this law so that the law will not be violated inadvertently, thereby jeopardizing the right to use federal funds.

ascertain its right and duties under this law so that the law will not be violated inadvertently, thereby jeopardizing the right to use federal funds.

In other findings, auditors criticized failure to keep personnel files on all past and present employees, account coding errors "which in the aggregate were material in amount" and use of a commercial bank account for the first two years of the commission's existence.

commission had its office located in Mrs. Benninger's home, partly for financial reasons. They questioned whether this would be advisable in the future.

Auditors also criticized ways in which travel expense vouchers were filled out, saying in some instances the purpose of the travel was not stated on the voucher.

They recommended complete personnel files be kept and that more care be exercised in preparation of accounting documents.

"During the first two years of its existence," the auditors said, "the commission used a commercial bank account and a separate petty cash fund.

Extraterrestrial life? ...

A HINT that life may exist elsewhere in the universe was found in a meteorite that fell in Australia. NASA said that the meteorite was found to contain amino acids — the building blocks of all life — which originated outside the earth. Positive identification of the acids was made by Dr. Cyril Ponnamperuma, shown with a piece of the meteorite. (UPI)
