Public land post Samuelson's hope

SUN VALLEY — Gov. Don Samuelson would like to continue working in government,

Statistics guarded

SUN VALLEY — The length and breadth of the wives of the Republican governors here for the Republican governors' conference might be said to be under security wraps. Among several gifts which Idaho's First Lady, Ruby Samuelson, will give to the visiting wives are several pairs each of Idaho famed party hose, manufactured by the Kollwood Company in Twin Falls. Questioning of Mrs. Samuelson by Gus Kelker, Times-News editor who is covering the conference, went something like this: "Ruby, could you tell me what the largest size party hose will be and what the smallest will be?" "Gus, that's something you will never know, and you ought to be ashamed of yourself asking a question like that." "Well, Ruby, sorry about that but just thought our readers would like to know how things are developing."

particularly with public lands. He is hoping he can find his spot in the Department of Interior or the Department of Agriculture. He is looking for a working position in which he would be helping the Western States and is not looking for a "prestige position." He wants a position with active participation. Idaho's governor, here as host to the national Republican Governors' Conference, said in an exclusive interview Saturday evening that he really had no idea what he is going to do after his term ends in January but that he wants to be of help to the Nixon administration in any way possible. "I would like to have a post in which I would be dealing with public lands and would be working in the interests of the people of the Western states," Gov. Samuelson said. He cited his 20 years of "close experience" with public land problems including his time as vice president of the Idaho Wildlife Federation, chairman of the resources committee in the Idaho Senate where he served for six years, and chairman of the land board for four years. Answering questions about what the governors will discuss during the conference, the governor said it is his opinion that revenue sharing, the election results, the economy, and the welfare program will be among the topics. "The most troublesome thing facing Idaho right now is the rising cost of the welfare program and the liberalization of some programs," he said. "The costs will be increased tremendously and Idaho will probably need from $4 million to $5 million in additional money at the state level during 1971. Now, the welfare costs are about $48 million with $18 million coming from state and the balance from federal sources." The governor said he was "disappointed" that an increase in grazing fees on forest and BLM lands has been decided upon. The announcement was made in Washington, D.C., by Fred Russell, acting secretary of the Department of the Interior, and will cost stockmen and sheepmen about $3.8 million more a year. "I'm sorry this had to be done," the governor said, "because it adds a pretty heavy load to a segment of our population which is economically overburdened at the present time." The governor also said: "The lumber industry in Idaho is pretty depressed and that it looked like it will take another six months to get it out of a stalled position even if housing starts rising. Idaho is fourth in lumbering importance in the nation." He will hold a press conference at the Challenger Inn at 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Thirty governors, including Gov. Samuelson, who is host, are registered for the conference. Practically all were in Sun Valley Saturday night and attended an "early bird" reception for the executives and their wives, the press media, and special guests at the Sun Valley lodge. Security continues heavy at this resort but there have been no incidents. Sunday will see many of the officials attending various church services in this area and spending time on the ski slopes. A reception for the governors, their wives, aides and the news media will be held at the Leadville Art Gallery in Echidnum at 2 p.m. Dinner for the governors and their wives will be at the Trail Creek Cabin at 8 p.m. with Gov. and Mrs. Samuelson as hosts. The first business session starts at 9 a.m. Monday. Opening remarks will be by Gov. Samuelson and the address will be by National Chairman Rogers C.B. Morton. Vice President Agnew is to attend the formal state dinner Tuesday evening, but is not expected to give a prepared address. He will remain overnight and eat breakfast with the governors Wednesday morning. Gov. Samuelson said the vice president will bring the heads of state a message from the White House and will be receptive to suggestions the governors may like to make.

Positive emphasis required

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI)— Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon said Saturday night President Nixon must "do a better job" of emphasizing "positive things" if he is to win a second term in 1972. He said the President should present a "firm, but moderate and progressive image" to the American people. The Oregon governor was interviewed after arriving at this Rocky Mountain ski resort for the Republican National Governors' Conference, which officially begins Monday. McCall said he and his fellow governors will "have a lot of steam to blow" during the meeting, which concludes Wednesday at a private breakfast skull-session with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. Seven incumbent Republican governors were ousted from office on Nov. 3 as a nationwide GOP gubernatorial party of 321 turned into 21-29 minority. McCall was re-elected.

Castleford man shot

CASTLEFORD — An accidental shooting Saturday in the west end of Twin Falls County has resulted in the hospitalization of a 22-year-old Castleford man. Twin Falls Sheriff's officers said Douglas Johnson was alone when the accident occurred. They said the victim's .357 magnum revolver jammed, and while he was attempting to unjam the weapon it discharged and a bullet struck him in the left leg.

A public hearing will be scheduled early in 1971 to explain the report and to receive testimony regarding the closure, Higginson said. The hearing will be conducted in Buhl at a date to be determined. Copies of the report are available from the Idaho Department of Water Administration.

Buhl boy dies in hunt mishap

BUHL — A 14-year-old Buhl youth was accidentally shot to death Saturday while hunting with two companions in the Salmon Falls Creek Canyon west of Buhl. Sheriff Paul Corder identified the victim as Jimmy Arthur Tappen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Tappen. He was struck by a charge from a shotgun fired by Kelly McManaman, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McManaman, Buhl, the sheriff said.

The victim, his younger brother, Mark, 13, and the McManaman youth all were firing at a goose which was landing on the Blue Gill Lake, the Sheriff said. As the McManaman youth fired his shotgun, the victim stood up and was struck in the head. The sheriff said death apparently occurred instantly. The two other boys walked to the top of the canyon where they notified a man who was working in the area. Sheriff's officers were notified about 4:30 p.m. The Tappen youth's body was taken to Albertson-Dickard Chapel in Buhl.

Collision injures 2

TWIN FALLS — Two Sun Valley residents were receiving medical treatment late Saturday at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for facial lacerations received in a two-car collision. Twin Falls Police said Donna Boyce, 36, and Fredrick Hambrugh, 48, were in a car which collided with a vehicle driven by John Francis LeClair, 42, Twin Falls. Officers said LeClair lost control of his vehicle, which was southbound on Washington Street North and it skidded into the north-bound car occupied by the two injured parties.

Plane damaged

CAREY — Minor damage resulted in a private plane Saturday which force-landed on Carey's snow-covered landing strip. Blaine County Deputy Don Green said the plane piloted by Jim Howard, about 24, Pocatello, apparently developed engine trouble about 12:10 p.m. He said the engine began throwing oil back onto the craft's windshield about five miles west of Carey. The pilot made one swing over the airport to check snow depth before attempting to land. After the craft set down it traveled for about 150 to 200 feet until it broke through the snow crust and nosed into snow, bending the propeller. The pilot was not injured and no other damage was reported to the plane which was en route from Boise to Pocatello.

Wells banned near Buhl

BUHL — The Idaho Department of Water Administration has closed an area west of Buhl to further well drilling, declaring the area "critical". R. Keith Higginson, director of the state agency, announced the establishment of the "Blue Gulch Critical Ground-Water Area" on Saturday. The order, effective Dec. 9, was based on data collected over the past two years, Higginson said, and is contained in a report entitled "Water Resources of the Blue Gulch Area, Eastern Owyhee and Western Twin Falls Counties, Idaho." The authors of the report, Shirl L. Chapman and Dale R. Ralston, said that a "highly discontinuous aquifer system in the Blue Gulch area west of Salmon Falls Creek" is tapped by at least 33 producing irrigation wells which draw about 28,500 acre feet per year. This withdrawal has dropped local water levels 27 feet in some areas, with an average decline of about five feet per year. Present water applications on record with the department indicate that the total withdrawal could be quadrupled in the next five years — and could quadruple the rate of decline of the water level. A public hearing will be scheduled early in 1971 to explain the report and to receive testimony regarding the closure, Higginson said. The hearing will be conducted in Buhl at a date to be determined. Copies of the report are available from the Idaho Department of Water Administration.

School funds sought

BOISE (UPI) — The executive secretary of the Idaho Education Association called on the 1971 legislature Saturday to give to education the 20 per cent of the sales tax destined to replace funds lost in the inventory tax phase-out. Wayne York, speaking to the IEA delegate assembly, said turning the money over to education would total about $4 million of the $16 million increase asked for public schools in the state.

York, Governor-elect Cecil Andrus; IEA President Mrs. Louise Jones, Now Meadows; Dr. J. F. Munson, Sandpoint, chairman of the Public Schools Legislative Planning Task Force; and D.F. Engelsing, superintendent of public schools, spoke at the special meeting called to discuss legislative goals for 1971. In 1967, when an inventory tax phase-out was agreed to, the legislature earmarked 20 per cent of the sales tax for local taxing districts to replace revenue lost by the phase-out. York described the move as "one of the rawest and shrewdest trading of votes ever perpetrated in the Idaho Legislature" and a "great aid on the sales tax and the general fund." Andrus, keynote speaker at the meeting, said he agreed with the phase-out, but questioned whether 20 per cent of the sales tax was the correct figure.

York said the $16 million increase for public schools could be justified. He said $6.5 million is necessary to raise teachers to comparable levels of surrounding states' salaries, $8.7 million for 142 new teachers and 130 ancillary personnel, $3.7 million for instructional supplies, plant operation and maintenance, and the remainder for kindergartens and data processing.

Andrus backs cleanup

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Staff Writer
BOISE — Governor-elect Cecil Andrus told the Times-News today he intends to strictly enforce pollution abatement laws to clean up the Snake River. He said he will meet with the Idaho State Board of Health to discuss his view for a change of direction in the department (of health). He said "It's true that state government has ignored the needs of pollution in Idaho. The state's department of health has been established for its purpose to control serious pollution control decisions that have not been made by the municipal pollution abatement boards." "With the assistance of a new attorney general," Andrus said,

"we will meet with polluters at all levels, including municipal and industrial polluters, and advise them of our intent to enforce pollution laws. We will ask for their time schedules for correcting pollution problems; we will establish mutual time schedules and implementation plans. "All individuals and concerns will be treated equally and litigation will be instigated only when necessary for the betterment of all Idaho," Andrus said.

power to enforce pollution laws of Idaho, but the prosecution must be handled in a factual and professional manner," Andrus said. "A realistic, firm approach will very likely make it unnecessary for litigation in pollution cases. However, we would not hesitate to use this means if necessary." The governor-elect was also asked about his intentions regarding Dr. Terrill O. Carver, Idaho administrator of health. Andrus said "Dr. Carver is employed and directed by the State Board of Health. He does not serve at the pleasure of the governor. I do not anticipate meeting with the board of health and discussing my view of a change in his position."

POCATELLO — The daughter of the wife of Twin Falls city manager Jean Millar is in fair condition at St. Anthony Hospital, following a shooting incident early Saturday at her home in Pocatello. Nat Adams, 41, Pocatello, was arraigned Saturday on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. Adams is accused of wounding his wife, Linda, 29, when she returned to the couple's home about 12:30 a.m. Saturday. Pocatello police said the woman was shot in the back with a bullet which punctured a lung. Adams told officers his wife fell on the front lawn. He said he picked her up, carried her to the living room and placed her on a couch. He then called the police station, the chief of police and the ambulance service. Adams was remanded to county jail in Blaine County jail.

Police own campuses, Nixon says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon said Saturday he had tried to use the "immense moral authority" of his office to end violence and promote justice in America, but responsibility for keeping the peace on college campuses belongs strictly to the academic community.

In a long-awaited reply to the Scranton commission's Sept. 28 report on campus unrest, Nixon rejected its overriding assertion that only the President can provide the moral leadership to prevent further campus disorders.

"Moral authority in a great, and diverse nation such as ours does not reside in the president alone," he said in a letter to former Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, the commission chairman.

Nixon praised Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as among those others to whom the nation looks for leadership and who have "spoken or acted with forthrightness and courage, on and off the campus, unequivocally condemning violence and disruption as instruments of change."

The President defeated his programs to end the Vietnam War, poverty and the draft, to eliminate racial discrimination and to help more young people of every race to attend college.

all issues the commission said concerned today's students.

Nixon said dissent was inevitable in any administration and any society. "But no minority, no matter how united, how vocal, or how articulate, has veto power over a President's decision to do what he believes is right in the nation's interest," he said.

Nixon applauded the commission's work, which he said had "expanded our understanding of what has been happening," and promised it will "continue to receive the closest attention within the administration."

Shortly after the commission delivered its 361-page report to the White House, Agnew criticized it as "scapegoating of the most irresponsible sort," the report's declaration that "only the President can offer the compassionate, reconciling moral leadership that can bring the country together again."

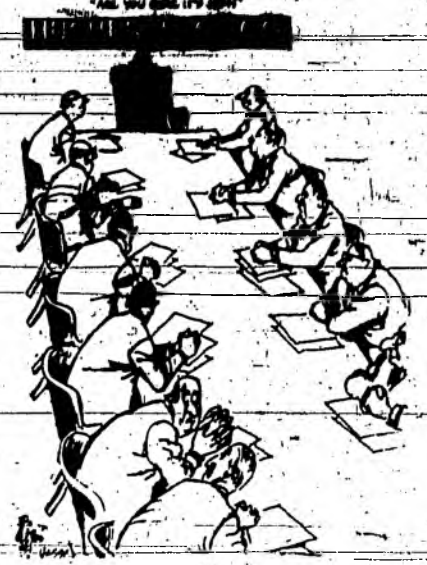

Nixon told a nationally televised news conference Thursday night he disagreed with Agnew's contention that the report was "more pabulum for the permissivists," but in his letter to Scranton he made clear he did not share the commission's view of the power of his moral leadership.

Although the White House released Nixon's Dec. 10 letter

Saturday, Scranton's wife said in Dalton, Pa., that he had not yet received it. Scranton was in New Haven, Conn., for a meeting and Mrs. Scranton refused comment until he had read the letter.

As the commission did, Nixon condemned violence and said both students and law enforcement officers must act responsibly.

"Responsibility for maintaining a peaceful and open climate for learning in an academic community does not rest with the federal government — it rests squarely with the members of that academic community themselves," he said.

Actor Murphy defends Calley

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Audio Murphy, America's most decorated soldier of World War II, said Saturday that if Lt. William L. Calley Jr. was carrying out orders at My Lai "then he's guilty of nothing."

"That's what a soldier is supposed to do — follow orders," said Murphy, commenting on the Calley court-martial, now in its second month at Ft. Benning, Ga.

"If the man was carrying out orders, he should be exonerated," Murphy said. "If he went out on his own and did the things he's accused of, he should be punished."

Calley is charged with premeditated murder of 102 South Vietnamese civilians at My Lai on March 16, 1968, the day he led his platoon on a search-and-destroy sweep through the village, which had served as a Viet Cong stronghold.

During the three weeks the prosecution had the spotlight, it produced witnesses who testified that Calley, 27, moved down defenseless civilians in cold blood. The defense, which took over last Thursday, countered with witnesses who said that many "civilians" in the area were suspected of sniping at U.S. troops and committing other acts of terrorism.

Defense attorneys also stressed that whatever Calley did at My Lai, he did under orders from his superiors.

Murphy, a Medal of Honor winner credited with killing, wounding or capturing 246 Germans in World War II was sympathetic to Calley's situation.

"We were indoctrinated — brain-washed — to kill anything that moved when we went to the beaches," Murphy said. "But in a stagnant situation like Vietnam I don't think the same would hold true."

"That war has been going on a long time and normally soldiers wouldn't be that happy."

"I'm not saying Calley's innocent or guilty, but there's no excuse for the kind of behavior he's accused of unless he was following orders. If orders came from above then he's guilty of nothing."

Murphy, now an actor-producer in Hollywood, said, "It's exasperating to the military mind, for a man trained to be a good soldier, to be a statesman, politician, judge, jury and executioner all at once.

"A lot of decisions have to be made in a split second. Naturally, not all of those decisions can be correct."

"In Calley's case if those civilians were helpless and could have been taken prisoner, then that's what should have been done."

"There's one other thing, the only people I shot at were soldiers. And in my opinion World War II was the last war I thought was worth fighting — and I'm not so sure about that one either."

Lalla Littler

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Lalla V. Littler, 86, of Twin Falls, died Saturday at Sky View Manor following a short illness.

She was born March 23, 1884, in Tecumseh, Neb., and married Edgar Alfred Littler on March 25, 1906, in Buhl. He preceded her in death on Dec. 8, 1940.

Mrs. Littler came to Buhl from Boise in 1907, and moved to Twin Falls in 1924. She had lived in the city since that time. She was a charter member of the Buhl Rebekah Lodge, and belonged to the Country Women's Club of Buhl.

Survivors include one daughter, Mrs. Lealie (Alice) Anderson, Twin Falls; one son, Herschel Charles Littler, Alameda, Calif.; three brothers, Ward V. Sonner, Twin Falls; Luke V. Sonner, Buhl, and Irl V. Sonner, Boise; one sister, Mrs. Vere V. Griever, Twin Falls, eight grandchildren, 23 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild. She was preceded in death by her parents and one sister, in addition to her husband.

Services will be conducted at 1 p. m. Tuesday at White Mortuary by Rev. John W. Sears. Final rites will follow in Sunset Memorial Park with the Buhl Rebekah Lodge No. 29 in charge.

Friends may call at White Mortuary this afternoon, Monday and Tuesday until noon.

W.P. Grissom

WENDELL — William Peter Grissom, 91, died Thursday at St. Benedict's Hospital, Jerome, of a lingering illness.

He was born Jan. 19, 1879, at Santa Rosa, Calif., and moved to Lake Creek, Ore., with his parents as a youth, and later moved to California where he worked in the lumber industry. He later returned to Oregon and engaged in farming.

He married Minnie Stinson at Medford, Ore., on Sept. 17, 1912. She preceded him in death in 1961.

The couple moved to Gooding in 1917, where they farmed until 1947, when they moved to the Wendell area, continuing in farming until his retirement at the age of 85. He then moved to the home of a daughter west of Wendell.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Mark (Evelyn) Erickland, and Mrs. James (Elva) Sutton, both of Wendell; one brother, Herb Grissom, Central Point, Ore.; three sisters, Mrs. Al (Florence) Coe, Ashland, Ore.; Mrs. Anna Tomm, Central Point; and Mrs. Lillie Cingcade, San Diego, Calif.; 14 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by three sisters and two brothers.

He was a member of the IOOF Lodge at Shasta, Calif.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Monday at the United Methodist Church, Wendell, by Rev. Woodrow Haffel. The Wendell IOOF Lodge No. 131 will conduct final rites in the Wendell Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Leeper Mortuary, Wendell, this afternoon and until services on Monday.

Set display

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — A block-long Christmas display donated to the city by a funeral home will be assembled in the Civic Center by employees who have volunteered their time.

City officials turned down the offer from Lima-Salmon-Erickson Memorial Chapel Thursday, saying it would cost $4,000 in labor to erect the display and the city couldn't afford it.

The city workers' associations offered their services free after learning of the situation. About 100 volunteers, assembled, worked crews Friday.

Land use hearing due in Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A hearing on management practices on public lands will be the Senate interior and insular affairs subcommittee will be conducted early in the next congressional session, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Friday.

Church said he has received numerous requests to conduct such hearings. He said the requests cited considerable evidence to justify charges that some present management practices are detrimental to the environment and economy.

Church, who is chairman of the subcommittee on public lands which would conduct the hearings, said certain building practices on public lands have also been under fire and will be examined. The dates will be announced in January.

Mr. Williamson

GARDENA, Calif. — Taylor Scott Williamson, 79, a former Twin Falls resident, died on Thanksgiving Day in Gardena.

He was born May 23, 1891, in Clinton, Mo., and graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1913. He attended the University of Idaho, earning both his bachelor's and master's degrees, and completed other graduate studies at the University of Kentucky.

Mr. Williamson wrote professionally for a number of years, writing several books on English and philosophy, which have been used widely for research.

He served in the Marine Corps during World War II. Survivors include three brothers, Leslie Williamson, Twin Falls; Rupert Williamson, Filer; and Millard Williamson, Oakland, Calif.; and three sisters, Mrs. Lela Hahn, Buhl; Mrs. Octavia Townsend, Fullerton, Calif.; and Mrs. Hazel Shockley, Gardena.

Funeral services with full military rites were conducted in Gardena. Burial followed in the Sawtelle Military Cemetery near Los Angeles.

McClure assails decision to raise graze fee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho Rep. James McClure, a Republican, said Friday the raising of grazing fees is a "political decision" and a slap in the face of the farmers throughout the state.

McClure said the decision to increase fees from 44 to 84 cents on Bureau of Land Management lands, and from 60 to 78 cents per animal unit month of forest lands, was made by acting secretary of Interior Fred Russell.

More Israeli help pledged

By United Press International
The Israeli state radio said Saturday that President Nixon has pledged a continued flow of U.S. economic and military aid to Israel to maintain the Middle East arms balance. It said Nixon also promised to warn Russia not to intervene directly in the Middle East conflict.

The report was broadcast as Cairo government sources disclosed Egyptian armed forces held a four-day offensive maneuver this week marking the culmination of a crash training program using new advanced weapons supplied by the Soviet Union.

The Egyptian sources said exercise "Rosa" was designed to test Egyptian combat readiness after four months of rigorous training coinciding with the Suez Canal cease-fire with Egypt.

The broadcast by the official Israeli radio said President Nixon's promises were contained in a recent letter to Israeli Premier Golda Meir. It was Israel's Agriculture Minister Chaim Givati disclosed key points of the Nixon letter at a political rally Friday night of the labor party in the Maagan Kibbutz (communal farm).

The radio said Givati outlined four major points of the Nixon letter:

- The President assured Israel a continuing flow of economic and military aid to maintain an arms balance between Arabs and Israel in the Middle East.
- Nixon said the United States would veto any moves against Israel in the United Nations Security Council.
- He promised to warn the Soviet Union not to intervene directly in the Middle East conflict.
- He said no Israeli soldier would have to withdraw from positions in occupied Arab territory until the present cease-fire had become a binding peace treaty.

In Cairo, government sources said that weaponry involved in this week's Egyptian military maneuvers included advanced long-range guns and armor delivered to Egypt by the Russians in the months just before and after the death of President Gamal Abdul Nasser in late September.

Egyptian sources said the maneuvers and other moves to strengthen the Egyptian armed forces have been undertaken in preparation for possible resumption of fighting should Israel decide not to return to the Middle East peace talks in New York under U.N. special envoy Gunnar V. Jarring.

Docking vows violence end

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI)—Gov. Robert B. Docking, described by an aide as "fed up" with violence at the University of Kansas, Saturday inspected a campus computer center rocked by a Friday night bombing.

The governor vowed an all-out effort to apprehend those responsible. The bomb exploded in a stairwell outside the university's computer center three minutes after a caller warned his bomb threat was "no joke." The blast blew a six-foot square hole through a cinder-block wall, but the $3.5 million honeywell 635 computer was not damaged.

The explosion caused minor structural damage to the four-story building housing the center. There were no serious injuries.

"The University of Kansas has experienced too many disruptions in the past few months," Docking said in a statement before leaving the capital of Topeka. "There have been too many incidents of violence."

"The persons who are committing these acts must be shown we will not tolerate them and their destructive acts. The person or persons who planted that bomb committed a criminal act. They should be treated as the criminals they are."

Dr. E. Laurence, Chalmers Jr., university chancellor, called the bombing an act of "pathological behavior," but cautioned against speculation that any large radical group was responsible.

The computer continued to run until shut down by an operator. It apparently was protected somewhat by stacks of keypunch cards which acted as a buffer from the blast.

GOP job to Dole?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas was widely regarded in Republican circles today as the leading contender for the national party chairmanship.

The new chairman, who will be President Nixon's personal choice, will be formally elected at the GOP National Committee meeting here Jan. 15 to succeed

Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton of Maryland. Morton is resigning to become secretary of Interior. Dole acknowledges he wants the job, but said Friday, "I have not heard anything official about my being considered for the chairmanship... I think the President will announce the new chairman in a week to 10 days."

Washington (UPI)—The Defense Department today issued a call for 17,000 Army draftees in January. It was the highest monthly quota since last April, when 19,000 were drafted.

The Pentagon said only that the draft rate was being boosted to assure "a timely flow of replacements." In the Army, but it was believed low calls of only 8,000 for November and 7,000 for December made the sharp increase necessary.

The draft for 1970 is being held to a total of 163,500—compared to 290,000 in 1969 and just under 300,000 in 1968. During the Vietnam buildup it reached a peak of 365,000 in 1966.

The calls early this year were 10,000 each for February, March and April and 15,000 each for May, June and July. But in August the draft fell to 10,000. The calls for September and October were 12,000 each responsible. The bomb exploded in a stairwell outside the university's computer center three minutes after a caller warned his bomb threat was "no joke." The blast blew a six-foot square hole through a cinder-block wall, but the $3.5 million honeywell 635 computer was not damaged.

The explosion caused minor structural damage to the four-story building housing the center. There were no serious injuries.

"The University of Kansas has experienced too many disruptions in the past few months," Docking said in a statement before leaving the capital of Topeka. "There have been too many incidents of violence."

"The persons who are committing these acts must be shown we will not tolerate them and their destructive acts. The person or persons who planted that bomb committed a criminal act. They should be treated as the criminals they are."

Dr. E. Laurence, Chalmers Jr., university chancellor, called the bombing an act of "pathological behavior," but cautioned against speculation that any large radical group was responsible.

The computer continued to run until shut down by an operator. It apparently was protected somewhat by stacks of keypunch cards which acted as a buffer from the blast.

at town of Prey Totung. Hand to hand fighting was reported as Cambodians tried to drive attackers back. (UPI)

Hanoi spurns warning

SAIGON (UPI)—The official North Vietnamese military newspaper Saturday called President Nixon's threat to resume bombing of the north "the fury of a desperate man."

The newspaper Quah Dol Nhan (People's Army) said Nixon's statement at a Washington news conference Thursday "is the ultimate in brazenness and insolence."

The commentary, entitled "the fury of a desperate man," was broadcast by Radio Hanoi and monitored in Saigon.

Nixon said Thursday former President Lyndon B. Johnson had a "clear" understanding with the North Vietnamese that the Nov. 1, 1968 bombing halt was ordered on condition that U.S. reconnaissance flights would continue. "I want to make it very sure

Large earner

MANILA (UPI)—Copper has become the Philippines' largest earner of foreign exchange Central Bank statistics disclose. It has replaced timber and logs at the top of the hard currency gainers.

For the first six months of 1970, copper exports earned $115,318,000, against $113,242,000 for timber and logs. Copper was in third place for the first half of 1969.

that understanding is clear," Nixon said in warning that he would order resumption of bombing of North Vietnam military targets if Hanoi showed signs of interfering with the U.S. troop withdrawal program.

The broadcast called Nixon's remarks a "despicable invented story."

"Nixon has used the excuse to protect the lives of American soldiers whenever he escalates the war," the broadcast said. "Now he has given himself the right to give orders to attack North Vietnam whenever and wherever he wants without any reason, even invented."

That Sub Base In Cuba

WASHINGTON — Russia is playing cat and mouse in a highly suspicious manner on that sinister submarine base in Cuba.

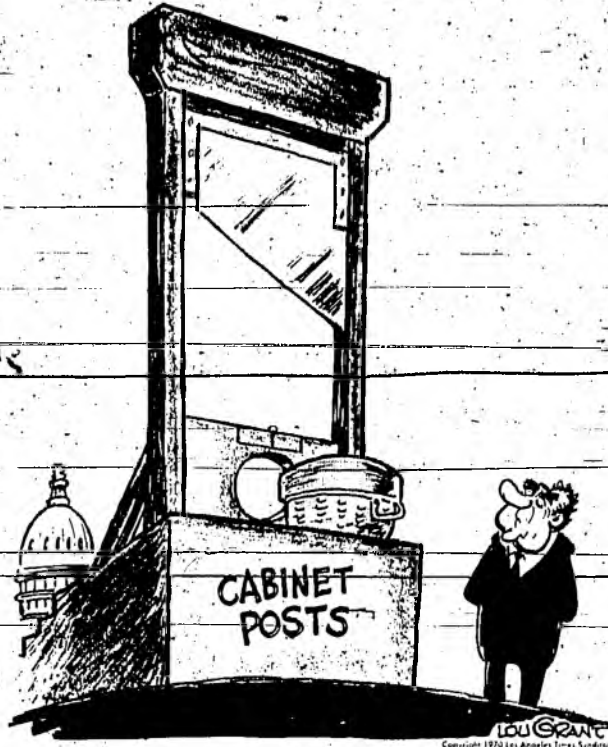

This grim reality has been authoritatively established at a series of closed-door hearings conducted by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on Latin America.

On the basis of what Chairman Fassel has learned at both series, he is fully convinced that the presence of a Soviet submarine base in Cuba is still very real.

Other knowledgeable congressional leaders are more blunt and outspoken. Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the powerful Armed Services Committee, says flatly Russia has a submarine base in Cuba.

But I do know the Russians have a submarine base in Cuba. Rep. Louis Wyman, R-N.H., member of the Appropriations subcommittee that handles the vast military budget, exceeding $65 billion, is equally positive.

These Polls

WASHINGTON — These days, polls tell us what we think about everything and so it is not surprising that their proprietors consider it their duty to issue annual pronouncements on male drivers versus female drivers.

are better drivers than men because they are conservative by nature. As a sex, girls drive more slowly and observe traffic laws with more fidelity.

Huey's Big Flop

WASHINGTON — The elaborate campus tour by Black Panther leader Huey Newton has fallen flat, in keeping with his unexciting performance since release from prison Aug. 5 by court order.

Under Tower and Dominic (now a vice chairman of the campaign committee), liberal Republicans charged that the committee discriminated against liberals in passing out often lucrative campaign funds to Republican candidates.

Tower claims the test was electability and that Bishop had no chance against Sen. Edmund Muskie.

Women are better drivers because they have more patience. The average male blows his top in a traffic jam because he considers it a personal affront.

Railroads

WASHINGTON — The question of what to do about American passenger railroads is still very much on the Administration's mind.

Rye and Larchmont would all be waiting to be picked up by the freight train. When the train arrived at Grand Central Station, the containers would be taken off by cranes and opened on the platform, and everyone could go to work.

Psychologically, they wouldn't have to worry about customer relations; as the commuter service would be run by the freight department.

BERRY'S WORLD

A Water Grab

Once more someone is trying to get our irrigation water away from us and if the effort is successful it will also result in a power shortage.

This time it is not California or Arizona trying to steal the waters of the Snake River. You will find it hard to believe but it is fellow Idahoans from the Lewiston area.

Joined by citizens from Clarkston, Wash., these folks are urging the Army Corps of Engineers to release more than 5,000 cubic feet per second of water presently required in the federal power commission license granted to the Idaho Power Co.

The plan for this diversion, simply for recreation use, is comparable to the 1964-65 demands of the City of Los Angeles because any increase in the Snake River minimum flow requirements would, in fact, jeopardize the future optimum reclamation development in the Upper Snake River Basin.

The Idaho State Reclamation Association has said a requirement that the minimum flow at Lewiston must be doubled in the low-flow months would be as detrimental to instream development as the proposed diversion to Los Angeles which raised such an uproar.

We contend that the plan backed by the Lewiston and Clarkston groups is in-itself grounds for an uproar. We urge the Army Corps of Engineers to see through this thin veil of water piracy and cease their studies and that the Federal Power Commission continue to permit the operation of the Snake River in accordance with the license now held by the Idaho Power Co.

This is a time for immediate action and we urge individuals and organizations opposed to this water grab to attend one or both of the scheduled meetings.

This threat to our water is not to be taken lightly.

Inflation's Pulse

The latest government taking of the economic temperature reveals that the rising cost of living is slowing down. That is, it's still going up, but not as fast as before.

Which is remindful of the answer given by the man who was asked if he had stopped beating his wife: "Not yet, but I'm not hitting her as hard as I used to."

MR. SPECTATOR

That Time Of Year

It's that time of year again — and it brings as much joy to the older hearts as it does to the younger ones. The joy for the older hearts is a memory. The joy for the younger heart is anticipation.

So it is with this thought we give you today's column. The anticipation is felt by the youngster after penning a letter to Santa. Such a letter was received by Lloyd E. Libert, officer in charge of the Twin Falls postoffice.

Brett Allen Stauffer was the young author. We give the letter to you as it was received by Mr. Libert — and, of course, you know full well it will be passed on to Santa. The letter:

"Dear Santa, "How are you? I am fine. I want a real spaceship I can go to the moon in. I ask for one every year. I ask you in the store and I write you letters but I never get one. My Mom says its O.K. (to get me one)"

"X X X X" "O O O O" "Brett Allen Stauffer." "P. S. Get one the size for me. I don't know how big I am but you do because you are Santa Claus."

To which Mr. Spectator adds: Take note of this Santa, and get the one that will fit!

GIVEAWAYDEPT: Here are some pets which will make nice Christmas gifts for some youngster — and older youngsters, too. They're free; so take your choice.

Want to give away a small dog — part Poodle and part Chihuahua. Is a female, three months old and a good pet. Call 733-1278 or see at 169 1/2 Elm St. in Twin Falls.

We would like a good home for three half-Siamese cats. The mother is coal black and so is one kitten. One is a blue point. May be seen at 344 Madrin St. in Twin Falls.

Because of allergy, we must give away two Siamese cats. Both female — mother and daughter. Mother is now spayed. Are real nice. Call 733-8799 in Twin Falls.

Have six Australian crossed with Dingle puppies to give away. See them at 1979 Eldridge in Twin Falls or call 733-8818.

Must give away a pure-bred Brittany Spaniel male. Has had the shots. Also a small black dog which wandered in a couple of years ago and has been living here since. The black dog will be better with adults. See at 155 East Avenue B in Wendell or call 536-2375.

Mr. Spectator wonders if you have heard of the "large American city" where the dentists (or residents, if you like that word better) never see the sun through the smog? They know it's morning only when the birds start coughing.

DONALD L. STEARNS, third from left, a Navy third class petty officer whose home town is Twin Falls, receives congratulations from the husband of the woman he and two other sailors rescued from drowning near Honolulu. The three were awarded the Navy Commendation Medal at a Pearl Harbor

T.F. man cited for heroism

HONOLULU — Donald L. Stearns, a Navy third class petty officer attached to the submarine USS Gudgeon, was one of three to receive the Navy Commendation Medal for rescuing a woman from drowning in a stream near

Honolulu. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Stearns, Sr., Twin Falls, Idaho. The 21-year-old Stearns and two other sailors — Mike J. Curdy and Bob D. Dale — were honored at special ceremonies at Pearl Harbor. The medals were presented by Rear Admiral Paul L. Lacey, jr., commander, submarine force, Pacific fleet.

In attendance was the rescued woman, Mrs. Fernie Fogley, and her husband, Vernon.

On Oct. 17 Mrs. Fogley was forced off the highway by another motorist, smashed into a culvert and flipped upside down in a stream between two highways. The submariners, who were riding in a bus jumped off and ran to the stream bank. Stearns and one of the other sailors dove in and pulled the unconscious woman from the submerged car.

The third sailor, holding onto a bridge support, helped raise her to a concrete piling where Stearns applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

According to the bus driver the sailors had her revived in about four minutes.

The Commendation Medal is presented to members of the Navy for meritorious or heroic achievement. It ranks high among military decorations.

Review of World War II evokes nostalgia, humor

Don't You Know There's a War On? by Richard H. Lingeman. (Putnam, $7.95)

Air raid drills, ration stamps, movies set in jungle islands no one ever heard of until those years, songs such as "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition" and "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree..."

That's the stuff memories of World War II are made of, and those are some of the vast array of details Lingeman reels off in his book, subtitled "The American Home Front, 1941-1945."

Some of it is a bit grim, even after all this time, but a good portion is tinged with the nostalgia the passing years can bestow on events that were not particularly endearing when they occurred.

When Lingeman strings together the movie dialogue clichés of the era, or reminds us of the lyrics of such forgettable songs as "There's a Star Spangled Banner Waving Somewhere...." Well, who can help but smile?

There even are surprises for those who lived through those days, including details of the unsuccessful Japanese attempt to set off vast forest fires with "fire balloons."

Lingeman begins the book with a good gimmick. He starts off with Dec. 6, 1941. As he points out, everyone alive at the time can remember where he was on Dec. 7. But where were you on Dec. 6?

John Hanauer (UPI)

QB VII, by Leon Uris. (Doubleday, $7.95)

QB VII stands for Queen's Bench Courtroom Number Seven, an old London law court. Uris' novel is a portrayal of a libel suit brought by Sir Adam Kaulo M.D. (Polish surgeon, nationalized and knighted in Britain) against Abraham Cady (popular Jewish American author) over a sentence in Cady's best seller accusing the doctor of "littering thousands or more experimental operations without the use of anesthetic" in a German concentration camp. The operations were said to be part of a development program for methods of mass sterilization.

The book is divided into three distinct if unequal parts. The first two concern the character development of the two antagonists, and the later and longer section covers the trial. All move at a very fast pace. In the course of the trial the plaintiff becomes the defendant, and suspense is built on the innocence or guilt of Dr. Kaulo.

The major flaw in the book is the plasticity of Cady—a baseball player and World War II pilot, fantastic lover and motorcycle rider. His all-American life style becomes a bit indigestible.

Still the book is tightly written, and one looks forward to picking it up and reading onward.

John Alger (UPI)

Previews of Coming Attractions, by William Murray (World, $8.95)

Previews of Coming Attractions, subtitled "Scenes and Faces from the Permanent L.A. Fun Game, is an assortment of short pieces about people in the hills, gullies and plains of Greater Los Angeles.

William Murray, a free-lance writer born in New York, took his family to Los Angeles in 1964 for what was meant to be a short stay. Once there, Murray discovered he didn't want to visit, he wanted to live there.

Previews is a sampling of the articles that have made it possible for the Murrays to become Angelenos.

Personality pieces, labeled "Faces," alternate with descriptive articles called "Scenes."

The principal subheads are "The Golden City and its Dreamers," "Life Styles,"

Mahler recordings draw criticism

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Chicago Symphony's newest recordings on the label of the English maker, London, are of Mahler's 5th and 6th symphonies, with its music director, Georg Solti conducting. That's a lot of Mahler in one offering.

Many admirers of the orchestra and of Solti would have preferred variety, if only for contrast. Mahler's 5th and 6th give little of it, one against the other.

But Solti is a sensible conductor—prized because it is not universal among conductors. He is not so carried away by the mesochistic emotional outpourings of his composer that he neglects structural and other technical niceties.

Indeed, he is meticulous in bringing them out and in relating them. These are the considerations which make Mahler a giant among symphonists, which are the moving wheels of his emotional dramas, and are the justifications of his excesses.

In these technically excellent recordings, Solti also makes it clear that he commands a fine orchestra. The 5th symphony (2228) is filled out with four songs from Mahler's "Das Knaben-Wunderhorn" and to the 6th (2227) are added Mahler's "Songs of a Wayfarer." The invective singer was Yvonne Minton.

The sensational young pianist, Andre Watts proves both his muscle and his heart in Rachmaninoff's 3rd concerto, with the New York Philharmonic, Seiji Ozawa conducting. It requires muscle for its mighty chords and heart for its sentiment (Columbia 30059).

One is not likely to hear a more eloquent performance of Richard Strauss' "Don Quixote" than that of the New York Philharmonic—under Leonard Bernstein. Lorne Munroe and William Lincer played the demanding cello and viola solo parts (Columbia 30067).

An interesting gimmick devised for the Christmas trade is called "Portrait of the Composer" which combines an anecdotal booklet with three records of the composer's music. So far three composers are available—J. S. Bach (Angel 3769), Ravel (3768) and Schubert (3770).

Migrating waterfowl enthralling

Times News-Tribune
Sunday, December 12, 1970

By JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish-Game Department
BOISE — Twice a year the coming and going of migratory waterfowl is the most enthralling of all natural phenomena observed by people who lift their faces skyward and watch tiny black specks riding in on the wings of a storm.

Ducks, geese and swans are not the only wild creatures that migrate to other regions and climates for whatever reason. Birds of many species, as well as big game animals and anadromous fish, also migrate.

Perhaps the movement of chinook salmon and steelhead trout, returning mysteriously and against heavy odds after several years in salt water to the very brook where they were spawned, hundreds of miles from the ocean, is more meaningful to some scientists.

But spawning runs of fish never have captured the imagination like great rafts of northern mallards circling and climbing, wheeling and descending, sometimes appearing as wisps of smoke in the distance.

Why do they do it? Nobody knows, though theories abound. It's been going on probably since the beginning of time, and hopefully, will continue until the end. But mankind never has seen such a truly explainable mystery — how these wild creatures got started in the first place.

Some of the more generally accepted theories that try to explain away some of the whys of twice-a-year migrations include one that contends birds merely followed the spread and retreat of glaciers. Another theory holds that a population explosion among various species of birds forced them northward to find more nesting habitat, then southward again with the coming of winter until such movements became instinctive.

Still another idea is that light stimulates the development and activity of breeding glands in birds. As the days grow longer when a hemisphere moves from winter to spring, sex drives grow stronger with the increase of daylight. This triggers the start of northward migration of birds.

Some authorities claim this also helps explain why some birds are so punctual on spring migrations, since the hours of daylight on any given date are the same from year to year.

Some of the literature likewise explains that some birds, such as teal and snow geese migrate much earlier than other species, and as a result the migratory push is spread over several months. This arrangement seems to prevent possible traffic jams on the flyways.

Much study of the migration of ducks and geese has opened new vistas for biologists.

For example, there is good reason to believe that some species sometimes fly so high that they cannot be seen by ground observers — but they can be heard. Hunters at elevations of 7,000 to 8,000 feet claim that they often hear the call of wild geese — and sometimes see them. Such birds have got to be at least 10,000 feet.

There is no reason for believing that they do not sometimes fly at the same heights when not over mountains. Thus, they could not be seen from the ground. It is reasonable that they would take advantage of favorable tail winds, even if they found them two miles high. Birds seem to be able to get enough oxygen to stay up there.

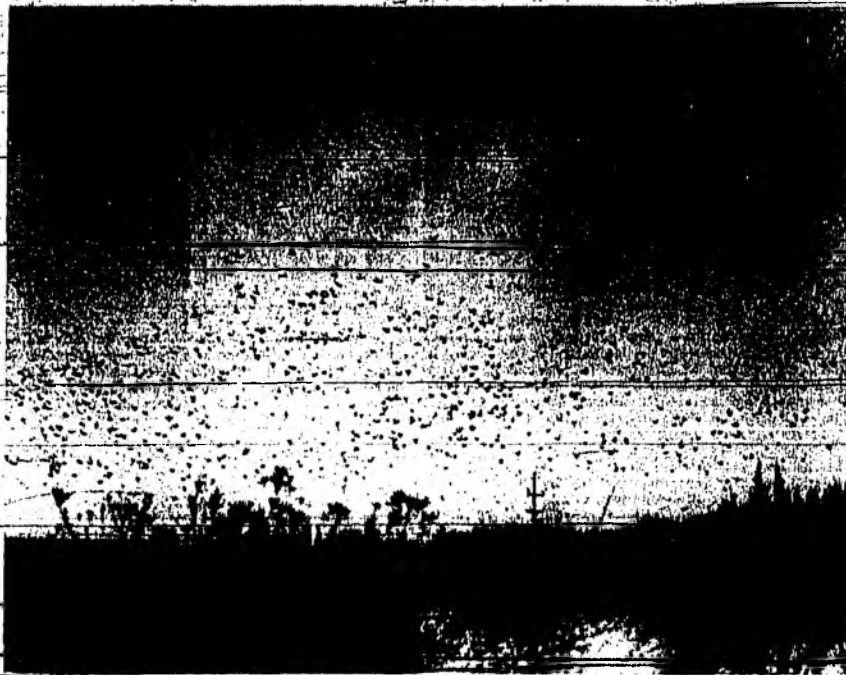

Hunters know that it's useless to try to "talk down" a big flock of ducks coming over away up, highballing it to distant parts. Hunters know that they wouldn't come down to a thousand live, noisy mallards and pintails on the water. They're traveling.

The current number of migrating ducks into southern Idaho, compared to previous statewide mid-winter counts, is about 34 per cent above the previous 36-year average, and 20 per cent above the 1969 level. Cold weather in eastern Idaho and Montana started the big flights of "northerners."

Idaho hunters are having the good waterfowl season that was predicted earlier this year on the basis of abundant water supplies in the Canadian Pothole Country, the breeding grounds for the bulk of the state's migrating ducks. Prospects for the 1971 nesting-brooding season in Alberta appear favorable at this time because of heavy rains and snow during late October.

A current report from Ducks Unlimited says that southern Alberta will not go into the winter with its soils in a dry condition and its lake and pond levels very low. Water conditions in central Alberta are generally good to excellent.

However, Elmer Norberg, game bird supervisor, Idaho Fish and Game Department, suggests that sportsmen should not despair the next time drought comes to the Prairie Provinces and waterfowl numbers go down. He urges that sportsmen remember that the duck population will bounce back during good water years, such as now. Some drought years are necessary to marsh ecology to stabilize and perpetuate the shallow ponds.

HUNGRY DUCKS FLOCK into field to feed. One of the greatest mysteries of nature is the seasonal migration of waterfowl from pothole nesting grounds in the prairie areas of the United States and particularly Canada and other nesting areas north to the Arctic Circle to friendlier skies and open water and fields thousands of miles to the south — and back once more with the first signs of a change in seasons.

TWIN FALLS — Want to review your biology, hear a concert or check up on your Spanish?

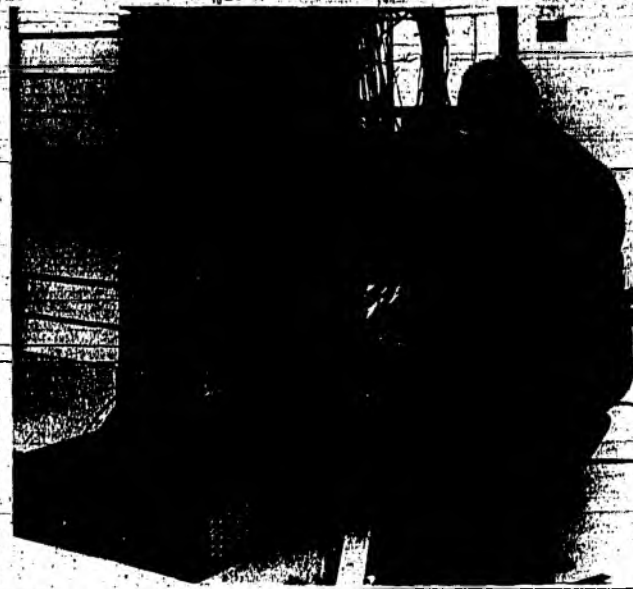

Dial a number and listen with a new dial-access information retrieval system now being installed at the College of Southern Idaho.

The heart of the new system is a complex network of 10 tape decks located in the new Commons building. A maze of wiring will connect the playback units with 32 rooms in the Shields Academic Building and with a number of listening booths in the college library.

Instructors in Shields may select any of the tapes currently offered by the system by dialing an "access number" on a telephone-like dial located on a panel in the room. A speaker will broadcast the program to the students.

Students may select individual programs for review and research. A feature of the system will allow students to repeat any portion of any tape at will. The recorders — with four channels each — will start and stop automatically.

Truis Anzjon, a technician with the Electromedia Corporation of Salt Lake City, Utah, who is installing the system, said there are more than 1,500 individual connections to be made and miles of wiring to be put in place. The system will be in operation by the start of the second semester next month.

Haux promoted at Shoshone

SHOSHONE — William Haux was appointed postmaster at Shoshone, effective Saturday, Fred Huleen, director of the Seattle postal region, announced Friday.

Haux, who has been in charge of the local office since July, 1969, when the former postmaster retired, began working for the post office in 1956 as a substitute clerk. He was promoted to clerk in 1963. Huleen said this is one of the first postmaster appointments made since the Postal Reorganization Act went into effect. No appointments have been made since Feb. 5, 1969, when President Nixon and the postmaster general made a joint announcement there would be no more political appointments.

Under the reorganization act, the postmaster general is now authorized to make appointments without congressional approval and the post office department is being loggally transferred to the U. S. Postal Service which will operate as an independent federal agency, not requiring congressional action on rates or other matters, Huleen said.

The contest, sponsored by the John Chris Motor Company, gives speech students a chance to demonstrate their salesmanship before an audience. Mrs. Fran Tanner, professor of speech and drama, said that the contest is designed to "honor those students at the College of Southern Idaho who demonstrate outstanding ability in sales speaking."

By selecting annual winners and recognizing them with appropriate awards, the John Chris Motor Company and the CSI speech faculty hope to stimulate student interest and achievement.

Students displayed and demonstrated actual merchandise, ranging from the electric scissors and a hand-made wallet to larger items, including a rifle and motorcycle.

Mrs. Justice, a sophomore student from Hazelton, majoring in business administration, was presented a trophy which will be engraved with her name by Keith Kelly, representing John Chris Motors.

Linda Hansing, a freshman student from Filer, won second place with a demonstration of a fondue set, and Marcia Lickley, a freshman student from Jerome, won third with a set of handcrafted marionettes. Each received trophies from the sponsor of the event.

Russia cancels U.S. trip by opera, ballet theater

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union today cancelled a projected American tour by the Bolshoi Opera and Ballet Theater and threatened to discontinue all cultural exchanges with the United States if "Zionist provocations are not curbed."

First Deputy Foreign Minister Vassili Kuznetsov summoned U.S. Ambassador Jacob E. Beam to the Foreign Ministry and delivered the protest cancelling the trip of one of the world's most prestigious theaters. The protest apparently was chiefly directed against the Jewish Defense League of America, a small Zionist group which has broken up appearances by Soviet performers in the United States and damaged the Tass and Intourist offices.

The embassy had no immediate comment on the protest.

The arrangement to send the Bolshoi to America took several years to negotiate and was considered one of the greatest coups of American impresario Sol Hurok, who persuaded the Soviet government to let the entire Bolshoi ensemble go to the United States.

of what appeared to be successful negotiations with the Bolshoi.

War puzzles observers

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — If at a distance of several thousand miles it seems difficult to understand what's going on in the Cambodian War, don't be too distressed. It's a puzzle close up, too.

On the scene, the problem is there are two views of the war. One is based on official announcements of the progress of the fighting and reports on Communist designs and capabilities. The other is what one sees.

Even having made that distinction, nothing comes through very hard and clear. In a war where communications are poor and soldiers wearing baggy pants and two left-footed tennis shoes ride off to battle in gaily painted commercial trucks, it is often an exercise in frustration to try to separate reality from unreality.

The situation is further muddled by the fact that no one really knows what Communist intentions are in Cambodia. One Western observer who is in day-to-day contact with the war says there may be some indication when the dry season gets firmly established. Now he says simply, "I wish to hell we

The public statements are relayed mainly through a military spokesman in Phnom Penh who has gained a fame of sorts as a military briefer because of his apt name—Lt. Col. Am Rong.

Some ranking officers in the field add to the fog on occasion. Casualty figures on which side controls a piece of territory at a given time are the most elusive points, but the range of misinformation and misconception covers the entire military situation.

Despite the confusions, Western sources with access to high levels of the Cambodian Command say that their estimates and the battlefield reports with which they work are often quite accurate.

The Cambodian Command's estimate of the number of Communist troops fighting the Cambodian army is 80,000 men. Western sources put the total of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers in Cambodia at about 40,000 men. The figures are not far apart.

The sources believe, however,

Feared Piranha offers threat to Florida folk

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI)—Wildlife biologists said Thursday the ferocious Brazilian piranha may have gained a tooth-hold in Florida's everglades along with the now-famous "walking catfish."

A flesh-eating, red-bellied piranha was caught last week by a youth fishing for bream in a fresh water canal on the eastern fringe of the Everglades, sparking a mild panic by wildlife biologists.

"If piranhas ever get established in south Florida, it would have a disastrous effect on fresh water game fishing," said Vernon Ogilvie, a game and fish commission biologist.

that most of the Communists are either occupied protecting supply and infiltration routes in the northern part of the country, or are in bases to the east of the Mekong River where government troops never venture.

They estimate that, at most, only about 5,000 regular Communist soldiers actually are fighting the Cambodian army.

In addition to this force, there are Cambodian "Khmer rouge" guerrillas fighting with the Communists. Some of them are holdovers from the days of former chief of state Norodom Sihanouk and others have been recruited since the March 18 coup ousted Sihanouk.

Government spokesmen do not like to discuss "Khmer rouge" or the possibility that Cambodians would fight on the side of the Vietnamese Communists. They dismiss the subject by saying there are only a few Cambodian drifters, hoodlums and other "bad people" with the Communists.

Western sources say, however, that from a pre-coup estimate of 2,500 to 3,500, the present estimate of the total number of "Khmer rouge" in Cambodia is about 10,000.

Solid smog?

A UNIQUE USE for the famed and feared smog of Los Angeles has been found — compress it and turn it into jewelry. Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty holds a ring made of hydrocarbons and solids gathered in an experiment at Queen of the Valley Hospital. The compressed particulate smog is a beautiful golden color, scattered with glittering flecks of almost gem-like hardness and color. (UPI)

Bankers want funds for helping needy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The President of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America wants the government to divert some of the money it spends to build new homes for the poor into rehabilitating existing structures.

"Existing housing, in most instances, can provide decent shelter for more people in more communities at least cost than can sole reliance on new construction," Everett C. Spelman argued.

Spelman, a Denver mortgage banker, said in a recent speech 160,000 housing units will be financed this year through government programs for low and moderate income families, and only 10 per cent of them will consist of existing or rehabilitated dwellings.

He said federal programs have been converted from efforts to house people into efforts to promote new construction. Officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) say they would like to finance more rehabilitation projects but they point to some major problems. It is often more expensive to remodel a run-down home than it is to build a new one, they say.

Controversial jet gains new role with NATO forces

UPPER HEYFORD AIR BASE, England (UPI) — Ignoring the lacerating rain and hammering wind, the camouflaged F-111 jet fighter spread its wings like some great prehistoric bird and gently touched down at this World War I flying field.

From his blue, radio-equipped U.S. Air Force pickup truck parked at the end of the wet runway, Col. Richard M. Baughn gave a wide smile of approval.

"You couldn't ask for a better plane to perform our mission," he said. "This is typical weather here today — cloudy and wet — but this aircraft just isn't bothered by bad weather."

Baughn's plaudits for the F-111 were echoed time and again — in hangars and ready rooms — and on the guarded aircraft parking ramps — by pilots of the U.S. 20th Tactical Fighter Wing who are flying the warplane in its first permanent assignment overseas. Most call it the best aircraft they have ever seen.

To some, that is a surprising endorsement for the revolutionary swing-wing fighter. Originally designed for use by both the Air Force and Navy, the F-111 quickly became the center of one of the sharpest weapons controversies in recent times.

The criticism ranged from charges that the contract (awarded under the Johnson administration) went to the wrong state — Texas — to a series of crashes and other problems that almost wrecked the program. The Navy did give up on the plane because of weight problems that made it useless for carrier duty.

The Air Force stuck with it and Assistant Defense Secretary David Packard finally gave its version a clean bill of health last Sept. 17. He wrote Congress that "the F-111 is structurally sound and will indeed perform its intended mission."

The 20th Wing already has received 18 of its F-111s, and by year's end will have an even two dozen to round out the first squadron. A total of 79 are scheduled to be delivered by June, outfitting three squadrons on round-the-clock NATO alert to guard Western Europe. "For the mission it's intended, there's not another airplane that can touch it," said Lt. Col. M. N. Hath of Parkston, S.D.

"It's our best all-weather airplane for bombing missions, as well as a hot fighter." Baughn, deputy commander of the wing and a native of Sioux City, Iowa, said the intense training pilots must receive before flying the F-111 is the biggest holdup to getting the entire wing equipped with the new airplane.

"We could have — all — our aircraft here right now, I guess, but we wouldn't be able to put crews in them," he said. Other operational F-111s are at Cannon Air Force Base, N.M.

The Green Thumb

The so-called purple velvet plant or "purple passion" plant is oddly enough a member of the chrysanthemum family.

This is the house plant which has purplish, hairy leaves, and at the right time will produce yellow daisy-like flowers. Passion plant has a bad habit of growing spindly and into a single stalk, causing it to lop over and look unsightly. You can prevent this by nipping the plant back when it is small.

Take your thumb and forefinger and pinch out the tip to induce bushiness.

If it insists on growing spindly in spite of the pruning, then train it to grow on a wire coat hanger. Gynura likes a bright window. Grown in a dull window, the plant gets spindly. Best soil is equal parts of sand, peat and loam.

You can easily start your own plants by taking cuttings and rooting them in plain tap water. If you see gray specks on the foliage, that's a sign of aphids, the worst pest on gynura. The specks are the skeletal casts of aphids.

Control: Spray the plant with malathion, 1 teaspoon to 2 quarts of soapy water. It won't do a bit of harm if you dip the entire plant in a tub of soapy water to remove the aphids.

FREEZING PARSLEY: Recently we suggested freezing surplus parsley by washing, cleaning and rolling up the stems and leaves in aluminum foil.

We suggested making them into "parsley balls" and freezing them.

A reader writes: "My method is easier. After washing, cleaning and draining a large bunch of parsley, I chop it all up and put it in a tight plastic container and into the freezer. This way it is always ready for use. It shaves off easily and there's no extra work to it. Keeps indefinitely and is ready for whatever purpose is needed."

I treat green peppers the same way. They can be cubed, sliced or cut up in any way preferred, and in this way there's no waste. Always on hand and ready for use."

MARKERS FOR TREES: Recently a reader asked us about markers for trees to be planted in memory of loved ones. A manufacturer of markers read our column and sent us samples of plaques and markers that can be on wood or aluminum stakes. We'd like to see more of those markers in parks, on trees or shrubs, so folks can learn botanical and common names of plants. We also think that the idea of planting a tree in memory of loved ones is a good one.

If you're interested in the names of manufacturers of markers send me your name and address on a piece of paper, or postal card. Please remember, we have no interest in a marker firm, but are willing to send you addresses for those who want tree markers for one reason or another.

"RUBBER PLANT" CARE: What is grown as a "rubber" plant is actually a fig (Ficus elastica). There are many varieties of rubber plant, all grown for their large, bold-textured and even colorful foliage which is even variegated. All "rubber" plants have the same culture: semi-shady window, a soil mixture of equal parts sand, peat and loam and a soil that's kept evenly moist.

NOTE: If a rubber plant is overwatered, or has poor drainage, the bottom leaves turn yellow, then black, followed by shedding. If your Ficus or rubber plant gets tall (and most of them do) cut the top out and root it in a jug of plain tapwater. This will not only make you a new plant (takes a couple months to root) but will cause the mother plant to bush out.

Another (less) erroneously called a "hibiscus" plant, and which is found in the majority of homes is the jade plant (crassula argentea). The Jade has fleshy leaves and the plant resembles a cactus, which it isn't. The Jade likes a bright sunny window, or a semi-shady window.

Troubles: withering of leaves and stems due to excess water, or poor drainage. Let plant get dry between waterings. Leaf drop is due to poor light or too much water.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: W.S. of Twin Falls: "Last Mother's Day I was given a fuchsia plant which blossomed heavily for a long time. It's almost three feet high now and I'm wondering what should be done with it. Can it be grown on for another season?"

Fuchsias are normally spring and summer bloomers, and winter is their resting season. I'd keep the old plant on the dry side and in a cool window until spring. In February you can cut the plant back, give it warmer quarters and more water as shoots begin to show. Many want their fuchsia to bloom during winter, but the plants are not ever-blooming. That's why they need a rest during the winter months.

You can start new plants from cuttings rooted in plain tap water, or a box of perlite or vermiculite (both kept moist). A plastic tent over the cuttings maintains proper humidity and will hasten rooting.

While all fuchsias will work in hanging baskets, there is one type that is suitable for this, since it is drooping and almost vine-like. The variety is Fuchsia magellanica gracilis, and you'll find it listed as hanging basket fuchsia. Bud and blossom drop are common complaints and it can be due to too hot or dry an atmosphere, red spider mites, white fly or soil too wet or too dry.

D.F. of Malta: "If you're looking for a solution to keep dogs and cats away from shrubs, try the following mixture: 1 oz. of cayenne pepper, 1/4 oz. of powdered mustard and 2 1/2 oz. of flour. Shake these together in a box or bag to mix, avoid mixing the dust or getting it into your eyes."

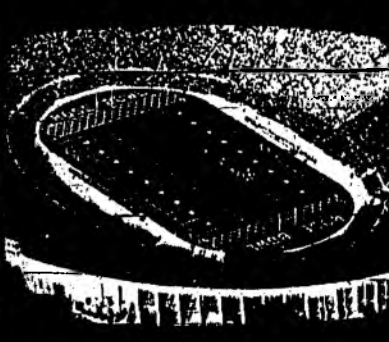

Last summer we used the following as a spray on our redwood fencing: Melt flakes in a concentrated solution of mineral spirits. The solvent evaporates leaving the crystals to give off vapors. Works well and lasts a long time."

Green Thumb-note: Thanks for these tips. Please send more along so fellow gardeners can benefit from them.

Names UN envoy...

PRESIDENT NIXON announced at the White House Friday appointment of Rep. George Bush, R-Tex., as U. S. ambassador. to the United Nations. He replaces Charles Yost, right. Bush gave up a safe House seat to run for the Senate but lost to Democrat Lloyd M. Bentson Jr. (UPI)

Filibuster slated on fund request

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate opponents of the superonic transport (SST) vowed Friday to filibuster to death funds for the huge jetliner, even if it means blocking Congress' pre-Christmas adjournment.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who has fought SST development for years, denounced the compromise recommendation of a House-Senate conference committee Thursday that $210 million be spent on the controversial plane this year, the Senate had eliminated all funds for it. The House had voted all of President Nixon's request of $290 million.

Nixon said at his news conference Thursday night that if the 300-passenger, 1,800-mile an hour SST is not built, the United States will lose its place as No. 1 in the world in commercial aviation. He also said 150,000 persons would lose their jobs and billions of dollars in foreign exchange would be lost.

"The cards were stacked in this conference," Proxmire said in a Senate speech. "A majority of the conferees were for the SST ... there was no way, no way we could win in this conference."

"We intend to stop action on any conference report ... that contains SST funds," Proxmire said.

"This bill must not pass the floor from the time the House passes it until we adjourn sine die."

Sen. Gavlor Nelson, D-Wis., said blocking further development of the plane is "extremely important."

"I'll talk as long as I am able," Nelson said. "They better start putting turkeys in the kitchen for Christmas and New Year's too."

Earlier, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, also an SST opponent, predicted that threatened filibusters on the SST, and controversial trade legislation could stall final adjournment until Jan. 3, when the 91st Congress will end under law.

Loan sought on 840 acres near Brunéau

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho's Water Resource Board authorized its staff today to assist developers with preparations for two loan applications and then heard a report on a natural resources management project.

One of the projects for which a loan is sought calls for development of 560 acres of private land and partial development of an irrigation system for an additional 840 acres of desert entry land between the Snake and Bruneau Rivers eight miles northwest of Brunéau.

James Morrison, Nampa, has filed a letter of intent to apply for a $100,000 loan for the project. His plan is to pump water 175 feet from C.J. Strike reservoir to a canal.

Solls in the area appear to be generally sandy loam, the board was told, and good for potatoes and sugar beets. Morrison tentatively plans to acquire a lessee to farm the 360 acres next year.

The other project calls for a $2,000, one-year loan to provide interim financing for development of two desert entries totaling 360 acres six miles west of Meridian near the northwest corner of Mountain Home Air Force Base.

Applicants are F.H. Bradberry and O.I. Streeter, 5070 Mountain Home. The well for their project has been completed and the money is needed to finance a pump, motor and a sprinkler system. A gravity-irrigation system also is being considered.

Warren Reynolds, chief of the board's economics branch, gave a report on the Owyhee Project of the Bureau of Land Management.

He said it embraces more than five million acres of land area in southwestern Idaho in addition to small areas in Nevada and Oregon.

Owyhee County and a western segment of Twin Falls County, Idaho, and small portions of Elko County, Nev., and Malheur County, Ore., comprise the area he said.

Primary purpose of the project is to intensify management of the basic natural resources to provide for increased uses of wildlife, recreation, livestock and other minor uses.

Structural measures necessary for this program to progress include seeding, brush control, fencing, water development and miscellaneous items such as cattleguards, erosion control and roads.

From the time the project was proposed in 1962 through 1980 approximately $2,507,000 was spent by the BLM on it. The budget for fiscal 1980 was $380,000.

Recall plan started on trucks

DETROIT (UPI)—Chrysler Corp. Friday announced it has notified owners of 244 Dodge trucks to return them to their dealers for inspection and, if necessary, correction of possible safety defects.

In one recall campaign, the company said 197 owners of 1969 and 1970 model heavy duty trucks equipped with 44,000-pound suspension systems should return their vehicles to their dealers for correction of a suspected defect in a spring hanger pin which could cause a loss of steering control.

In another campaign, the company said 47 owners of 1970 model pusher buses should have corrected, if necessary, a hydraulic throttle control system which could cause the accelerator to stick.

The company said it would pay for all necessary inspection and correction work.

Wendell probes closure plan

WENDELL — City Councilmen George Benson and John Wert are investigating a request from Larry Stevenson to close Blocks 133 and 134 for construction of two buildings. Stevenson, owner of the Tri-Valley Irrigation Co., wants to build an office for his business and a private dwelling. He requested the closure at the Wendell city council meeting Thursday night.

Councilmen also heard a complaint from Ted Taylor that access to his alley is blocked by garbage cans. Councilmen will send notices to residents along with their water bills, advising citizens to keep garbage cans on their own property.

Earl Wood was appointed building inspector to fulfill requirements of the building and zoning code recently adopted by the city.

It was announced dog licenses are due Jan. 1. Councilmen approved Christmas bonuses to city employees and volunteer firemen.

The next meeting will be held Dec. 23 instead of Dec. 24.

80 fired in strike near dam

LEWISTON (UPI)—An estimated 80 laborers participating in a wildcat strike at the Dworshak Dam powerhouse near here were fired Thursday afternoon after refusing to put down their pickets and return to work.

The men walked off the job Wednesday and set up picket lines over a jurisdictional dispute.

Donald O'Hagen, project manager for Dworshak Dam constructors, the combine building the giant power plant on the North Fork of the Clearwater River, said the walkout was "hurting the company quite badly."

The walkout was not sanctioned by the union and after attempts to get the men to put down their pickets and return to work, all were fired.

Dog's return insures holiday

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—For Larry and Faith Leech, it would have been a "bad Christmas without Lucky. But their poodle lived up to his name and made it home.

Lucky was stolen from a car in Hedwood City, Calif., three weeks ago when the Leeches were visiting friends there. Lucky is something special to the Leeches, so they tried very hard to find him.

"We don't have a child," Mrs. Leech said. "He kind of takes the place of one. We had to get him back."

They placed advertisements in newspapers, distributed more than 150 posters to stores and offices, and sent notices to pet hospitals and veterinarians. About 10 days later, Mr. and Mrs. Dorothy Trahan of Pacifica, Calif., telephoned and said they had found a dog answering Lucky's description. Leech flew there immediately.

"The dog didn't respond and Larry didn't recognize the dog. It was in a state of shock. His hip was broken. It hadn't eaten in a week," Mrs. Leech said. "But I wouldn't give up. The next week we both flew there. The dog walked to me immediately. I knew it was him."

The Trahans, who refused the Leeches' offer of a $1,000 reward, had found the dog along the highway 30 miles from where he had been taken.

Church survey noted

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Anyone who thinks there's a simple explanation for declining church attendance should take note of a survey conducted recently among Christian laymen in Yorktown, Va.

Dr. W.J.B. Livingston distributed questionnaires among members of his Kiwanis Club, most of whom are active churchmen. He asked each of them to set down, anonymously, his personal opinion as to the reason or reasons why many people are drifting away from churches.

The most popular theory—cited by nearly one-third of the respondents—was that churches are driving people away by helping too much on controversial social issues instead of concentrating on biblical themes of personal salvation.

"The vibrant, growing churches I've visited recently have all had one thing in common," said one Kiwanian. "They were Bible-studying, evangelistic churches comprised of people who are interested primarily in salvation of souls."

A second group of laymen, almost as large as the first, took the opposite view. They thought ministers are dispensing too much shouting syrup and falling to confront honestly the real issues of modern life.

"The church has too much old-fashioned ritual and does not face the very down-to-earth problems of today's world," one said. And another complained, "We are told only what we want to hear, instead of what we ought to hear."

Although a majority of the laymen blamed the clergy one way or another, a sizable minority (about one-fourth) acknowledged that men and women in the pews might be responsible for the lethargy of church life.

Other reasons suggested by the group of laymen included:—Disgust with inadequate Sunday schools that are "merely baby-sitting services" for young children.

—Churches have become so large that individuals "just get lost in the shuffle" and there is no sense of community or fellowship.

—The decline in church-going is related to the massive shift of population from small towns and rural areas to big cities.

One man confessed that his own reason for not attending church was simply that he'd rather do something else on Sunday morning.

"My world is so full from Monday through Saturday that Sunday is my only day to breathe and take stock, he said.

What's your reason?

Fast-freeze

CHICAGO (UPI)—Liquid nitrogen, which has a temperature of minus 320 degrees F., is being used to prefreeze meats and other foods and, paradoxically, help "thaw" the resistance of shoppers to these products, reports one of its producers.

As a result, sales of the gas, once an unwanted waste product obtained during the distillation of oxygen from the atmosphere, are booming say the National Cylinder Gas Division of Chemetron Corporation.

North Vietnam's old soldier slowly fading

By DAVID J. OESTREICHER
United Press International

North Vietnamese Defense Minister Vo Nguyen Giap was the hero of Dien Bien Phu and the architect of the Communist war in Laos, Vietnam and Cambodia. But his hero's mantle appears to have worn thin since failure of the Communist Tet offensive in 1968.

Giap, now 60, has all the old titles but little of him is heard these days and diplomatic sources in London told UPI correspondent K. C. Thaler this week that Giap's influence in the councils of Hanoi appears to be steadily fading.

This thesis was reinforced in private conversations conducted by UPI correspondent George Sibera with North Vietnamese officials in Paris who say Giap's importance in the Hanoi hierarchy has diminished since the death of President Ho Chi Minh, his old friend and protector, in September, 1969.

In Saigon, UPI correspondent Margaret Kilgore reports the firm evidence that Giap has been replaced or downgraded in position as Hanoi's foremost military leader despite occasional rumors to that effect.

Most recently, Giap was listed by Hanoi Radio as among top officials bidding farewell on Nov. 23 to Penn Nouth, Prime minister of the Cambodian government in exile, at the end of a Hanoi visit.

Correspondent Sibera reports that the last time Giap was mentioned in a major statement was in an interview he granted a year ago to Europeo, an Italian magazine, in which he was quoted as saying that he would not hesitate to sacrifice thousands of men and permit the war to go on for years in order to score a victory over American forces. He admitted 500,000 already had died.

North Vietnamese officials subsequently claimed that Giap had been misquoted and actually did not give an interview.

Giap masterminded the defeat of French Foreign Legionnaires at Dien Bien Phu in 1954 and served as Ho's minister of interior in the early days of the Hanoi regime before moving up to defense minister and chief military strategist.

The tactics Giap used at Dien Bien Phu are generally regarded as classics of modern warfare. He sent a ragtag army of guerrillas against a far better equipped force of 12,000 French troops manning heavily fortified garrison in the mountains 110 miles west of Hanoi.

Giap's men, who packed artillery and ammunition into the hills on bicycles they pushed up the slopes, laid siege to the fortress and, in an epic battle that lasted 56 days, overran it in a humiliating defeat that brought France to its knees in Indochina. The war ended a few weeks later.

Hughes' exit equal in melodrama to his arrival

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—The security guards of the Jack Hooper organization patrolled the corridor of the ninth-floor penthouse of the Desert Inn on Thanksgiving eve outside the specially air-filtered suite of the second richest man in the world.

The Hooper men under standing orders not to permit anyone to approach Howard Robard Hughes Jr.

They had a second—and just as vital—mission: To keep their own employers informed of any unusual activity by Hughes himself.

Robert A. Mahou had gone to a cabin in the mountains outside Las Vegas for Thanksgiving. The 52-year-old Mahou, a former FBI agent, had been Hughes' right hand man in his hotel-casino operations for the past four years but there were indications something big was in the wind and Mahou was worried about his unpredictable boss.

The regular elevators at the Desert Inn, run only to the eighth floor. There is one elevator to the penthouse but it can be operated only with a special key and that was in possession of the Hooper guards.

On the macadam parking area at the hotel's entrance, a coterie of black limousines drew up. They caused no special notice in the hubbub of holiday activity on the garish Las Vegas "strip."

Late in the day, Hughes flew the coop.

The 64-year-old billionaire recluse apparently was whisked through the fire door, down the stairwell and out to the waiting cars. They drove to McCarran Field where Hughes boarded a private jet and took off.

The next thing anyone heard about Hughes was that he was alive and well in another ninth floor suite, this one at the Britannia Beach Hotel on Paradise Island in the Bahamas. At least that was where rumor put him because, as usual, no one could be found who actually saw Howard Hughes.

It was an exit matching in melodrama the occasions of his arrival exactly four years before on Thanksgiving eve, 1966.

At that time, a private train pulled off on a siding outside Las Vegas after a trip from Boston. An ambulance brought a figure on a stretcher to the Desert Inn. Tourists in the lobby gawked for a closer look at the prostrate form, overlooking a tall, thin man among the party escorting the stretcher.

The next day Hughes had set himself up in the penthouse and started buying up seven hotel-casinos, mining claims, ranches, real estate, an airport, a golf course and a TV station with a total investment of $300 million.

Hughes' disappearance caught Mahou completely off balance. He had not seen Hughes for months. (Some anti-Mahou sources in Las Vegas claim he never met Hughes in person.)

Mahou had dropped all his other interests to come to Las Vegas from Washington to work for Hughes, representing him not only in the gambling resort but acting as his agent on such matters as buying control of Air West. But recently he had been very concerned about his position and had asked Hughes by letter for reassurance about his future.

But another faction was apparently very much privy to Hughes' departure. These were the directors of the Hughes Tool Co. of Houston, Texas, the property that Hughes inherited on his father's death when he was 10.

Over the years the Hughes enterprises burgeoned to encompass at various times airlines, aircraft factories, a movie studio, oil wells and other properties estimated to be worth around $1.5 billion—second only to the wealth of J. Paul Getty if not matching it. But Hughes Tool Co. remained the parent, controlling organization and Howard Hughes was its one and only stockholder and still is.

The board of directors, 10 men in all, is headed by Senior Vice President Frank W. Gay. Its general counsel is New York lawyer Chester W. Davis who represented Hughes in his protracted litigation over control of Trans World Airlines which he sold in 1968 for $500 million.

Public word of Hughes' departure did not come until the middle of the next week after Thanksgiving and that next Friday a group headed by Gay and Davis surfaced at the Sands Hotel, another Hughes' property. They announced that Mahou and Hooper had been fired on orders of the Hughes Tool Co. and with Hughes' approval. They gave no reason for the dismissal publicly.

Mahou refused to accept his termination. He filed suit in a state district court and got a restraining order prohibiting Davis and Gay from taking over physical control of the casinos and hotels with 8,000 employees and an annual payroll of $50 million.

Nevada Gov. Paul Laxalt stopped personally into the picture early last week. Laxalt had long been on friendly terms with Hughes although he, too, acknowledged that he had never met the man in person. Laxalt announced that Hughes had telephoned him from the Bahamas and that Clark County District Attorney George Franklin had talked with Hughes at the same time. Laxalt said Hughes confirmed that he approved of Mahou's dismissal. Asked how he could be certain that it was Hughes speaking, Laxalt said he recognized his voice and that they spoke of matters only the two of them could have known about.

That did not satisfy Mahou. He said in an affidavit that he could not believe that after his years of service to Hughes, the Toxan would fire him with no word whatsoever.

The New York lawyer, Chester Davis, argued the case before District Judge James C. Babcock.

Davis said he found it incredible that Mahou was taking the position that he could not be dismissed.

Russia, Romania feuding

VIENNA (UPI)—A "battle of the communiques" this autumn has raised, once again, the tense issue of Romania's independence from the rest of the Soviet bloc.

Russia and her allies say that Romanian troops took full part in maneuvers by the Warsaw Pact—the Communist NATO—in East Germany in October.

Romania says it did no such thing. The Romanians maintain they sent a few officers—and that's all.

Bemused observers here can only conclude that somebody is lying. Yet the issue is important, because it could tell how far a Soviet bloc nation can go in asserting its freedom to act independently of the bloc.

The last Warsaw Pact maneuvers in Romania itself took place in 1962. In 1964 and 1967, Romanian troops joined Soviet and Bulgarian units in maneuvers in Bulgaria and, in 1969, the same nations held exercises in Russia.

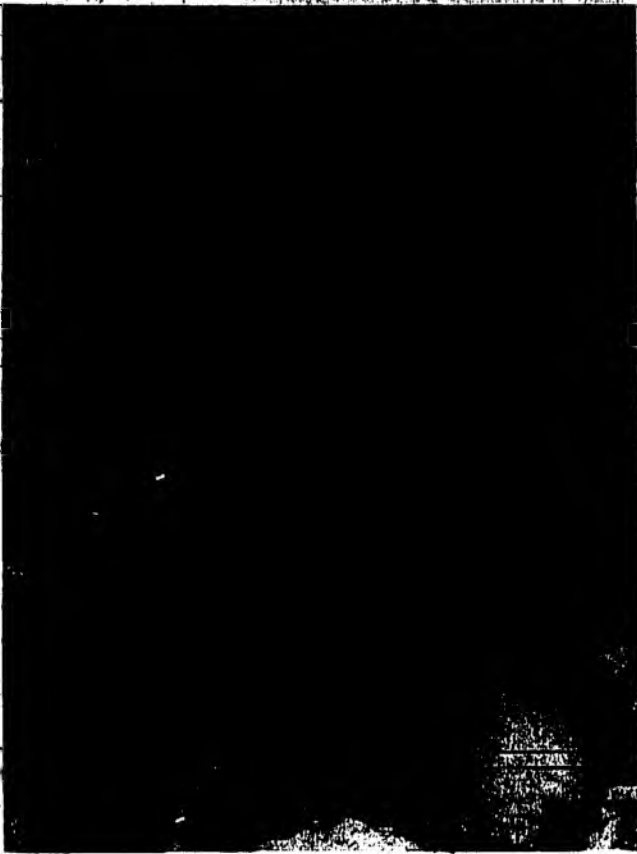

But Warsaw Pact maneuvers are held several times yearly, and Romania has boycotted most of them. Moreover, she resisted holding any more maneuvers on her soil and even went to the extent of passing a law saying parliament had to specifically approve the presence of any foreign troops there.

The law followed the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia—in which Romania did not take part. Soviet troops left Romania in 1969 and no Romanian wants them back.

Romania has campaigned for Warsaw Pact reforms, including a rotating leadership to eliminate the permanent-Soviet rule of the alliance. At the same time, she has urged an end to all military blocs and, earlier this year, submitted a resolution to this effect to disarmament conferences in Geneva.

The aid did not arrive. A Soviet-Romanian "friendship treaty" signed in July called for the two nations to take steps to strengthen the Warsaw Pact, but Romanians said privately that this was just so much wordage.

Hence, it came as a surprise when the governments and press of Russia, Czechoslovakia and East Germany talked about "Romanian troops and mobile infantry units" taking part in the October East German maneuvers. It was quickly concluded that Romania's isolation from all-bloc maneuvers had ended.

Beethoven composed one opera, Met to present it

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Metropolitan Opera will dutifully celebrate Wednesday night the operatically embarrassing fact that Beethoven composed an opera, one which exalts the faithful wife and conjugal love. The Met will do it by staging "Fidelio" with new sets, new costumes, and the most sympathetic conductor and singers it could find. It couldn't have done otherwise without sacrificing some of opera's prestige.

Exactly 200 years ago come Wednesday, the mighty Beethoven, destined to become a musical godhead, came into this world. That he managed to compose one opera, honors opera and obligates opera people. But no one can safely had mouth Beethoven. That's how you get instantly identified as a barbarian. Yet it had not been the work of a godhead it couldn't have survived in the repertory for 165 years.

Nothing wrong with its theme, of course. All men and probably most women exalt the faithful wife and surely conjugal love is prized now as much as Beethoven prized it even though he never had a wife. "Fidelio" contains powerful music, of authentic Beethovenian stamp. But it is not operatic. It expounds neither human character nor action. It imposes enormous burdens on singers. In self preservation some will have no part in it. Beethoven showed little mercy for the voice.

Eire may change its banking system

DUBLIN (UPI)—Irishmen managed so well without banks for six months, they have now set up an inquiry to find out how they did it.

From the result may flow proposals for a radical overhaul of Ireland's whole commercial banking system.

Professor Michael P. Fogarty director of the Economic and Social Research Institute is heading the inquiry into the basic causes of the crisis that closed the banks, and will make recommendations to the government as to how such closures may be avoided in the future.

He also will attempt to unravel how a modern, sophisticated economy managed to operate more or less smoothly for so long outside a banking system.

As Fogarty and his team of experts got down to work, Ireland's banks were still a far cry from normal operations after the longest and bitterest shutdown the nation has ever suffered or, as some would say, enjoyed.

On Nov. 17 the banks reopened to the public for the first time since labor trouble closed them on April 30, but only for two and a-half hours a day in order to take in the $8.4 billion worth of checks that had piled up outside the system during the marathon shutdown.

Previously, bank clerks had worked for several weeks behind closed doors tackling a similar pile-up inside the system, the legacy of a two-month so-allow by clerks prior to April 30.

For Irishmen the sight of closed bank doors was no novelty. It had happened twice before, once in 1961 when commercial banks closed for seven weeks, and again in 1968 when they shut for 12 weeks. In 1964, they worked restricted hours for 14 weeks.

Behind the latest closure stretched a history of bitterness and discontent within the banking service reaching back to the days of British rule. In 1917 when the bank officials association was formed to represent the staffs, strike action had to be threatened before it was recognized as a negotiating body.

Ever since it has been engaged in a running fight with the management—represented by the banks standing committee—in its efforts to better salary and work conditions of its 7,000 members.

Banking in Ireland has traditionally been a somewhat genteel profession, high in prestige and low in money benefits. It has also been something of a closed shop, operating in a club-like atmosphere with employment preference given to the sons and daughters of staff members.

Throughout the years its method of conducting business or drumming it up changed but little. Emphasis was on the country-club, make-friends-in-town approach. The local bank manager and his staff were the pillars of town society, even though their take-home pay averaged around $36 a week.

If the banks could be persuaded to give a little more money, make promotion a little more rapid, and shorten the working hours to a five-day week, most of the workers would have been quite happy with the staid old way of things.

The management gave a little. It introduced the five-day week, it upped salaries and gave longer holidays.

But it also decided to change other things, too. It introduced American-style banking methods based on a study by a U.S. firm of consultants. Veteran employees were pushed aside for aggressive young men using "results-by-any-method" approach.

Stress was placed on degrees, examinations and courses, and the courtly ways of other years were out. American banking interests had moved into Ireland and they had to be met by American-style go-getting for business.

Young and sometimes brash executives with fast expense accounts living in bank-financed houses, with cars and other "perks," set the pace for the old-timers. Discontent spread rapidly. The battle-lines were drawn.

It was only a matter of pretax before the showdown came. This was found in a demand-backed by the state's labor conciliation court—for payment of revised salary scales before the old agreement ran out.

Christmas-tree flocking. Place your order now to have yours done. GLOBE Seed & Feed 733-1373 Garth Management dug its heels in and a war of attrition began. Bank staffs worked restricted hours, they refused overtime. Management cut their salaries in a ratio of unworked hours. Paper work piled up, clogging the bank system.

At precisely 12:20 p.m. on April 30, the clearing banks which between them employ 7,000 workers in 800 branches across the republic announced they had no option but to close because of the backlog that had been built up.

Since the banks had taken the initiative it was, strictly speaking, a closure. The staff called it a lockout. For the public it meant another whirl on the financial merry-go-round with every man becoming his own banker overnight.

They reacted with ingenuity garnered from past experience. They turned to the local pub keeper, the garage owner, the supermarket, the local cinema and scores of other businesses they knew must have their custom to keep going. The price of their custom was a piece of paper, taken in trust and kept in hope.

Governor meets newsman . . .

commented on arrival that "This air's so fresh it almost makes you sick!" But he admitted that he actually was greatly enjoying Idaho's fresh air after years in the smog of New York City and other East Coast metropolitan areas. (Photo by Dan Johnson)

Sheriff says hunters met 'foul play'

anyone having seen the two men or having information about them contact him.

Although the official search for Robert Bailey, 28, Wendell, and Joe Conquest, 34, Jerome, has officially ended, Deputy Sheriff Bill Bunn says if any new information is received, it will be continued. Custer county officials directed extensive search with snowmobiles in the Copper Basin area and a plane search was conducted in the Magic Reservoir area also.

Wives of the two men said they left home with little food and no change of clothing. They were driving a light grey 1953 Ford van which has never been located. They went hunting Nov. 28 and when they did not return by late the next day the families notified officers.

Lawmen gird for conclave

TWIN FALLS — State, county and city law enforcement officers are combining forces for security measures in Twin Falls and Sun Valley for the Idaho visit of the nation's Republican governors.

City Chief of Police Frank Barnett said his men, with at least two cars will be on hand at the Twin Falls City-County airport for the arrival and departure of all planes carrying the governors. Conference at Sun Valley. He said local officers will also work shifts to provide a 24-hour guard around private planes flown here by convention delegates. He said if the flying governors traveling by private plane are not too numerous, all light craft will be confined to a single area of the airport, making it possible for two men from the police and sheriff's staff each to handle the detail. If two tie-down areas are required, the situation will be somewhat complicated.

When governors leave the local airport for Sun Valley they become the security responsibility of the Idaho State Police, Barnett said.

State officers from several districts will be in Sun Valley throughout the conference to provide security measures and to control any disturbances which might occur in connection with the governors' gathering.

Land uses considered

TWIN FALLS — Participants at a two-day land use symposium voted Saturday in Twin Falls to draft a recommendation to present to Idaho's governor regarding the need for a land use policy in the state. Three of four discussion groups held near the close of the symposium felt this would be the right approach to take to the problem.

ecology out of step. He said man is the only being with a mind capable of planning but he has lived thousands of years while totally ignoring the demands for ecological balance. "The world has now begun to give man danger signals," he said; "warning it cannot survive the many changes he has created through overpopulation, misuse of resources and man's disruption of the recycling concept of other beings. All other things put back into the earth what they have taken from it."

Dr. Stanford urged his listeners to keep in mind what man does on one hand affects the other and he said even many Forest Service officials have begun to question the multiple use program as not actually multiple use at all but small segments of single use which may have to be put back in balance.

Bruco Hronek, assistant regional planner, U.S. Forest Service, Ogden, commented briefly while outlining Forest Service land use policy and the multiple-use concept to review an "attitude" study he made involving residents of Blaine and Custer Counties, on the future of the White Clouds.

He said people there have the feeling the scenic mountains of Idaho are their own and should not be invaded by people from other states or from federal administrative agencies.

They resent the authority of agencies such as you and they also feel they pay the price of working for lower salaries to enjoy Idaho's scenic and natural resource advantages and they feel this has given them the authority to say how they shall be administered.

The ability to change is the key to survival of the many groups utilizing forest resources, he said, noting that unless the cattlemen, miner and others can adapt to changing demands they will eventually be eliminated. Recreation, he said, will have increased in use by 300 per cent in the coming 30 years and space and planning must be made to meet its demands.

Mayor Eddie Pedersen, Idaho Falls, discussing land use policies in city planning and zoning, said any land use must be based on long range planning. He said a land policy must coordinate community programs and services, and promote a desirable environment of housing, commerce, industry, recreation and urban development.

Neil Sanpson, resource planning specialist, SCS, told delegates that the growth areas around population and recreation centers constitute the most critical environmental problems in terms of land use the country faces today.

The speaker said instead of meeting development problems with "a bigger bulldozer" planners must look upon growth as a pattern on the land — a pattern which is beneficial only when it recognizes the principles of good land use.

Herb Derrick, former Twin Falls city manager, now state director of planning and community affairs, criticized the current generation's "lip service" to ecology and resource planning. Derrick said too many conservationists are crying ecology but at the same time are continuing to do what they have always done — contribute as individuals to air, water and land pollution. Until the individual is willing to pitch in and do his small part and support of the people is forthcoming from the grass roots level laws will be worth little in pollution control.

Keynoting Friday night dinner meeting was Mrs. Eugene Smith, Idaho Falls, who said "people power is the essential element in whatever land use policy is recommended for Idaho."

Election dinner slated at Shoshone

SHOSHONE — The annual election dinner for the Chamber of Commerce is scheduled for 7:30 p. m. Monday at the Manhattan Cafe.

Reporters banished at meeting

BOISE (UPI) — Two reporters from a Boise-based weekly newspaper have been denied press credentials that would allow them to cover the Republican governor's meeting in Sun Valley on the grounds "they are not bona-fide newsmen."

The editor of the Intermountain Observer, Samuel H. Day, Boise, said he has filed a formal protest with Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic society, charging that the denial is "arbitrary and discriminatory."

Day said the reporters, Willis S. Ludlow, campus minister at Idaho State University and Michael Shepard, an ISU history professor, have both written regularly for the paper and "have my complete faith and trust."

William (Bill) Grange, formerly of Twin Falls and now director of industrial and commercial relations with Idaho Power Company, Boise, will speak.

A barbershop quartet, called the Gem Statesmen, from Twin Falls, will sing.

Committees for the event include Herb Luv, Kenneth Blackburn and Douglas Hansen, arrangements and nominations; Dennis Everett, Wilson Chidchren and Gilbert Pierson, ticket sales.

Seven directors will be elected. Candidates include Roger Maxwell, Wilson Churchman, Dennis Everett, Leo Santen, Burton Thorne, Howard Adkins, Clarence Magoffin, Elwood R. Werry, Victor Bezous, Ted Ueters, Harold Williams and Roy Hubert.

Holdover directors are Francis Bergin, Kenneth Blackburn, Myron Johnson, Douglas Hansen and Pierson.

Chamber reports of officer vote

RUPERT — 1971 officers of the Rupert Chamber of Commerce are preparing to take office in January, after their election by mail balloting this week.

W. G. (Bill) Strasser is president; Peter Ford, first vice president; Dwinelle Allred, second vice president, and Ruth DeThomas, secretary-treasurer. Don Reed and Wayne Ranstrom were named three-year directors. Holdover directors are Gar Looal, Jay McBride and George Falkner. Ed Hartman, retiring president, announced at the chamber meeting Thursday that the chamber office will be open mornings only from Dec. 21 to Jan. 1. Anyone needing to contact the chamber may call Mrs. C. E. Smith, 436-5164.

Allen Allen, chamber director on the civic relations committee, reported H street has been widened between Eighth Street and East Minico Junior High School.

District 21 legislators, State Sen. John Peavey and State Rep. Steve Antone, spoke on upcoming legislation and problems facing the state legislature when it opens in January.

Peavey said the state does not have enough funds to carry out all the projects outlined in the budget, and Antone discussed the proposal to establish kindergartens, consumer credit and state funds to help cities improve their streets.

Hartman said the Rupert Jaycees have been voted a non-paying member of the chamber to improve communication between the two groups. Roberta Koppes, of the Small Business Administration, will be in Rupert in January and in Twin Falls Dec. 17.

Gar Looal, reporting for Otto Hough, chairman of the Christmas lighting contest, asked residents with holiday lighting displays to contact the chamber office if they wanted to enter the contest.

Red Cross asks donation of blood type

BURL — The Boise Regional Red Cross Blood Center, which will be making a drawing Wednesday in Burl, reports a critical need of type O-Negative blood.

A spokesman at the center said 14 units of O-Negative are needed for open heart surgery. Burl has exactly 15 O-Negative donors listed, officials there said.

The drawing will be from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Burl Moose Hall.

Farm aide to address conclave

BURLEY — Roy Kappel, Davenport, Iowa, president of the National Pork Producers Council, will be featured speaker at a two-day meeting of the Idaho Swine Producers which opens here Monday.

Other speakers during the Monday and Tuesday sessions at the Ponderosa Inn will be Paul Gorbarn of the El-Lilly Co., and Wade Wells, Boise, of the Idaho Extension Livestock Service.

J. Carl James, Blackfoot, president of the state association, is in charge of the annual meeting. A demonstration on pork cooking will be conducted by Carolyn Barnes, Cassia County extension home economist, and a 4-H member.

Between 75 and 100 swine producers are expected to attend.

Two graduate

JEROME — Two Jerome men are among those who will graduate Dec. 18 from the Operating Engineers Training School at Walla Walla.

They are Timothy Griffin, student in crawler tractors and scrapers; and Dave Butler, student in construction.

Memorial fund reaches $2,091

SHOSHONE — The Melba Gray Memorial fund has reached $2,091.44, according to Myron D. Johnson, custodian of the fund, which was started after Mrs. Gray's death on Nov. 13.

Johnson said the checks come in daily with amounts from $2 to $25. Several Shoshone business firms have contributed $100 each.

The HOPE chapter of Jerome sent $100 and on Wednesday night the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Twin Falls, sponsored a dance with proceeds and additional contributions to be given to the fund.

The Gray children, ages six through fifteen, are now living with their father at Burley. Johnson said some of the money may be used to provide Christmas presents for the children. Further distribution of the money will be determined by the Chamber. Most favored at this time is the thought of establishing a savings account for future education of the children, with a Chamber committee in charge of the fund.

Screening test slated for youths

BURLEY — The Denver developmental screening test and behavioral rating scale to Head Start students are being completed under the direction of Mrs. Charles Wrigley and other volunteers.

The purpose of the test is to screen the child's performance on development items with that of a standard group of children of the same age. Muscular coordination, ability to use pencil, manual dexterity, use of language to express meaning and presence of emotional problems are revealed by the test.

The teachers will plan activities to develop the children in these areas. Referrals will be made to a psychologist and a social worker when their services are needed.

Deadline set for acquiring license tags

BURLEY — Dec. 31 is the deadline for renewal of all vehicle license tags not on the staggered system, according to Calvin G. Heiner, Cassia County assessor.

These include trucks, utility trailers, motorcycles, trailer houses, National Guard and radio amateur plates. Snowmobile registrations expire on Oct. 31 of each year and must be renewed annually. If the machines are to be used in Idaho, Heiner said.

Lighting Contest

Yes, we would like the judges to swing around and look over our Christmas display in connection with the Times-News and Idaho Power Co. Christmas Lighting Contest in Twin Falls. If we are one of the winners we will keep the display lit through January 1, 1971 to permit public inspection. I reside within the city limits.

Executive named by Rogers firm

IDAHO FALLS — Rogers Brothers Co., an Idaho based seed and dehydrated food products firm this week announced the appointment of C.E. Loozeveldt to the Rogers Brothers executive organization.

Loozeveldt, an 18-year veteran of the food industry, will head a Rogers Brothers task force to be responsible for identifying new opportunities within the food industry, more specifically opportunities in potato processing.

Loozeveldt is one of the better-known and respected potato industry executives having filled a wide variety of production positions with both Libby, McNeill and Libby, and Western Farmers. His most recent position was that of Director of Operations for the Western Farmers organization. Loozeveldt attended St. Marlin's College in Olympia, Wash., and served in the United States Navy.

Rogers Brothers Co., in addition to dehydrated potato products, is one of the leaders in the breeding and development of pea, bean and hybrid sweet corn seed for the canning and freezing industries. Rogers Brothers Company of California, a Division of Rogers Brothers Co., dehydrates onions, garlic and a variety of other vegetables at two plants in the San Joaquin Valley in California.

MODERN FARMING

Machines take place of harvest hand labor

For centuries men stooped to harvest their cereal crops with a sickle, the flinted grain to be later bound into sheaves. After days of drying, there was still the back-breaking process of separating the grain from the stalks with a flail.

Although the first practical reapers and threshers appeared in the early 1800's, you could still find men using harvesting methods that dated back to Biblical times. The scythe or cradle had replaced the sickle, but labor requirements had changed little.

The reaper eventually replaced the scythe and the threshor replaced the flail, ushering in an era that saw 30-men threshing crews teamed with mules. By the turn of the century a typical grain harvest began with a horse-drawn binder cutting the crop and dropping it in bundles. The job of threshing that followed took so much labor that it was a cooperative job. Wagonloads of bundled grain had to be hand-fed into team-powered threshers and hauled away for storage. Farmers hired custom threshing crews or, more commonly, joined their neighbors in threshing gangs that moved from farm to farm.

During his lifetime, a man born in 1850 saw the development of more improved harvesting methods and equipment than in the previous 5,000 years. Even greater changes were to come.

Girl gets market award

The award was announced Thursday at the association convention in Denver.

As regional winner, she receives a wrist watch, a ribbon, a gold pin and blue ribbon.

Miss Bickford won a trip to the National L.H. Club Congress in Chicago for her projects in horticulture.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Bickford.

Family dinner slated by grange

RICHFIELD — Members of the Richfield Grange made plans Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burl Akins for the annual family Christmas dinner.

The dinner will be held at 7:30 p.m., Dec. 23, in the Methodist Church recreation room.

During the meeting Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wood, Portland, were reinstated as members.

Attendance at the recent National Grange Convention in Boise was described by Mrs. Eugene Alexander, grange master. Alexander reported on the recent ASLS MEETING IN Jerome.

Members will make popcorn balls Wednesday at the home of Mrs. H.A. Ross for community Christmas treats.

A program of readings was given by Mrs. Rupert Goloschen, lecturer, and Glen Ross and Mrs. Akins.

The Jan. 13 meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Behr.

Islands' tourism slumping

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados — All over the Caribbean, island hotel managements have been regretting the fast expansion of their facilities in recent years and hoping against hope that things will not get any worse as the big winter tourist season starts this month.

Summer business tends to be very slack in most hotels despite price cuts by a third or even half. Occupancy rates drop to 40 per cent and less. This summer they slumped.

There have been fewer guests than expected (and on some islands fewer than last year) and they have tended to stay fewer days. There is little doubt that the whole area has had to "pay" for the riots in Trinidad this spring.

But basically a holiday in the Caribbean has become a straightforward money question. Americans used to accept Caribbean prices, but the recession has made them more price-conscious. Many of them have either stayed in the United States, or gone across the Atlantic. For the first time the Caribbean has felt European competition.

With transatlantic fares slashed an American can travel and spend a fortnight's holiday in Europe for between $250 and $300. The cheapest return air fare New York-Barbados costs $165 and a hotel bed and food for a fortnight will add anything from $20 in summer and more like $30 in winter.

Hitherto most hoteliers in the Caribbean have hardly bothered about other tourists, in particular the Europeans. They have had plenty of North American business. As a result many islands have become dangerously dependent on the annual flow of Americans and to a lesser extent on Canadians.

Buhl writer makes few comments on pollution

Editor, Times-News:

A few years ago I made a statement about Rachel Carson's book, "Silent Spring." I now want to correct that statement. I had been led to believe she was more concerned about the ill effects of pollution on wildlife than people.

I have since read the book. I find she was very interested in humanity and all creatures and plant life. She was a biological scientist.

Years ago she tried to sound the alarm and awaken the people as to what was and is being done to the earth. At long last they are rolling themselves from lethargy, somewhat. The things they see are not pretty at all.

Millions of tons of garbage, creeks, rivers, lakes and even the oceans are polluted with chemicals and human waste.

We used to think deep wells would provide clear water. Not so. The waste from cesspools seep into them. Now I am sure we all know about the contents of cesspools—and the fact the cities and towns have always run their sewage into the nearest creek or river.

This is the filthiest of all pollutants—some of the people still believe water purifies from flowing through rocks and gravel. That is not true either.

They also want us to think those terrible chemicals poured into city reservoirs destroy germs. Not so.

We once talked with a nurse friend who used to test the water. She said the chemicals do kill a few germs, however, the more harmful ones are very tough and survive all chemicals.

Actually the chemicals in our drinking water almost kill people. Not suddenly, but after a number of years they accumulate in the system, therefore causing many ailments.

They say every living creature, human and animal, all over the earth is just full of DDT. It is in the air, the water, the soil. What they do not tell us is that DDT contains a small amount of arsenic. It affects the spinal cord and brain, causing strokes, hardening of the arteries and other illnesses.

You may perhaps want to know why they go on using those poisonous chemicals. Well it is being done because it makes a lot of people rich.

When I say rich, I do not mean just well to do. Nowadays, they are not satisfied with millions, they want billions. Their greed is insatiable.

Temperatures Voters had say on legislative pay, notes man

Editor, Times-News:

I've been reading about all the crying and hand wringing the legislators are doing about the legislative pay cut and how they are going to resign if they don't get their way.

Seems that they would realize that the voters of Idaho have spoken in a loud and clear voice that they would like to be heard above all the noise in Boise.

I say let them resign. Then maybe we would get some new names, faces and ideas for Idaho.

They complain they are losing money serving as legislators. Yet year after year these same people seek the same job and I am sure they go to quite a bit of expense to get these jobs.

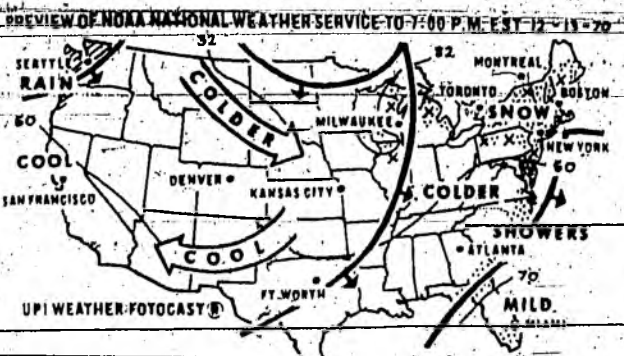

Yet they claim they are underpaid and that to get better qualified people in the legislature, they should make more money. Yet the same names and faces turn up for reelection year after year.

I think it's about time our state and federal government both practice what they preach about holding the line on prices and buying only what you need until prices come down.

SNOW IS FORECAST from the Great Lakes eastward to the Atlantic Coast today, while showers may occur over the Middle and Southern Atlantic Coast. Rains is also anticipated in the Pacific Northwest. It will be colder from the Rockies eastward through the Plains States in the Mississippi Valley, the Great Lakes region and the Ohio-Tennessee Valleys. Most of the Southern states will be on the cool side with the exception of Florida. (UPI)

Snowfall may end sunny valley days

Magic Valley, including Twin Falls and vicinity, North Side and Burley-Rupert area: Increasing clouds today with a chance of snow showers mostly over the mountains. Partly cloudy Monday. High today 25 to 35; low tonight 12 to 22. Chance of precipitation 20 per cent. Tuesday and 20 per cent. Wednesday.

Camas Prairie; Halley and Lower Wood River Valley: Increasing clouds with a chance of snow showers today; partly cloudy Monday. High today 25 to 35; low tonight 5 to 18. Chance of precipitation 50 per cent today and tonight.

Central Idaho mountains, south of Salmon River: Increasing clouds today, becoming mostly cloudy in the west today and in the east late today through early Monday with a chance of snow or snow showers; partly cloudy Monday in the west and late Monday in the east. Windy today. High today 25 to 35; low tonight 5 to 18. Chance of precipitation 50 per cent today and tonight.

Weather synopsis: High pressure was centered over Idaho Saturday afternoon, but was slowly moving eastward. A cold front followed moving inland from the Pacific during the night, and traveling across Eastern Oregon and Southern Idaho today, bringing light amounts of rain or snow in the valleys and snow over the mountains and at higher elevations. Occasional gusty winds are forecast today. Skies will remain partly cloudy Monday as the front moves into Wyoming. Winter sports such as snowmobiling and skiing will benefit with additional powder snow as forecast this afternoon at higher elevations.

On Saturday, generally sunny skies prevailed over Eastern Oregon and Southern Idaho with temperatures in the mid-30s in Eastern Oregon eastward through the Magic Valley, and mostly in the 20s in Southeast Idaho.

Saturday morning saw the season's coldest temperatures set in many areas, including Twin Falls, where the overnight low dropped to 13.

depreciation and interest charges; and intense competition in office equipment which accounts for about one-quarter of SCM's sales.

While one of its marginal operations will benefit from a recently received $5.9 million contract and the second will be helped by the sale of a segment of its operations, it is doubtful that earnings will recover very sharply in this fiscal year. These shares should be sold unless you possess considerable patience.

Jerome resident says kindergartens not free

Editor, Times-News:

It seems to me that the temperature and rainy weather conditions existing in Jerome on the evening of Dec. 8 did not hold true for one certain area of town. Down at the Junior high building in the A. V. room someone must have turned up the air conditioner or something, because there was quite a bit of snow falling by the time 10:30 rolled around.

To begin with, and I hope, accidentally, the United States flag was there, but it was folded in a triangle and in repose on the top of a TV set.

It seems a few people, some admittedly not educators, would like the taxpayers of Idaho to add another year or so of education expenses to their already crushing load of tax payments for a new program of 100 per cent state funded, therefore "free" on a local level, system of kindergartens.

The point was clearly made that the ideal would be to make the kindergarten mandatory in order to involve every child of pre-school kindergarten age, though this idea will not be in the proposed legislation.

An educator from a neighboring town seemed anxious to question parents as to their families in order to "grab a five year old out of them," and mentioned that there are still parents around that believe in keeping a child at home until he or she is six years old.

The hint was dropped, like lead, that just maybe, without statistics to back it up, if we had kindergartens the per cent of people on our welfare rolls and in prison would drop, and here might be a place to cut into some more money. A very commendable thought but highly debatable.

Another point made was that it would take several, perhaps five, years to obtain teachers for adequate staffing of such a program. So what do we do in the meantime with the increased tax load if such a bill is passed now, and work out the "details" later?

Committees in the legislature are even now exhausting their mental processes, before the legislature is convened, trying to come up with additional means to pull in more money, such as an $18 fee, on top of everything else, upon every car and pickup in the state.

How would that grab some of the farmers, and other people for that matter, who can barely afford to keep an auto now? So how can we fund an entirely new program 100 per cent from the state level?

This brings me to a more subtle set of events that have been transpiring. In the Everett (Wash.) Herald, Monday, Feb. 16, 1970, appeared an article headed "Meeds Enthusiastic About Idea - U. S. Preschool Care to Follow Israeli Kibbutzim?" It seems Congressman Lloyd Meeds, Washington and several other parents in the U. S. may have to recognize their imperfections and come up with a new version of the Israeli child care system. He says "A lot of our ideas about Head Start come from Israel."

Now what is this, Israeli system? In the congressional report of this excursion, "Educating in Israel," this system, the Kibbutz, is briefly described as a primarily collective agricultural settlement, the land being owned by the nation, which is based on collective property and communal work and living, with the underlying principle in the slogan "to each according to his need and from each according to his capacity."

That is a long statement to say that the Kibbutz is a state owned commune where the parents send their children "within four days to six weeks after birth" to live until age 18, and the parents get to visit the children for a few hours a day. The state controls the education and upbringing of the child and the parents are freed to work. Does that ring a bell when compared to a large nation to the north of Israel?

Congressman Meeds says in the Herald article that the Israeli Kibbutz provides "pure democratic communism, which is the essence of Karl Marx." In Pageant magazine for Dec. 1970, an article on the Kibbutz (Hebrew word for group) states that the "Kibbutz philosophy rejects close family ties. The Kibbutz stresses comradeship and identity with one's peer group."

Now I ask you, would this kind of pattern be what you would want in a kindergarten? With the National Education Association promoting "Deweyism" and Idaho involved in an Eight State Project in education which promotes sensitivity training, among other things, and so called "professionals" calling for a modified Kibbutz system in the U. S., can we really afford to let the schools have our children for another one of their formative years, either financially or mentally?

Oh, and don't forget the new technique being tried to induce the children to learn faster and control their behavior, which is being tried in some schools in the U. S. now. This is giving drugs to them, drugs which have been put under control of the Drug Abuse Control Act to prevent their indiscriminate use, but it's evidently OK for teachers to give them.

I wonder if the people of this blessed land will ever wake up to the dangerous situation being played upon them and get back to asking "God for His guidance, instead of some money-titled 'authority' from some college somewhere?"

JIM PAYTON (Jerome)

Woman says give young people chance

Editor, Times-News:

I would like to speak my piece about the grown ups that are so quick to accuse and put our young people down without even trying to understand them.

Recently we hosted a party for a group of young folks, a going away party for one of the group and it was immediately circulated among the small hearted and small tongued of the area that there was a POT party here. If you call pots of chicken, pots of salad, pots of ham, and cheeses and crackers a pot party, then that's the kind of POT party we had.

If more parents would take time to mix with their younger folks and host these kind of parties, help them make up the guest list and join in the fun with them, you will soon find they still like to bob for apples, (some of them never have), play games, shoot pool, and just sit around and talk about the good old days and times.

If you really take time to look around our area you will find the long long hair disappearing, the boards are starting to go and the dress is much neater.

We worry about the drugs just as much as the next person but if you parents get busy and host a party, maybe you'll keep the younger people away from a real pot party. Sure you'll have to put up with loud music, lots of noise, and laughter, but when you are thanked graciously for such a neat party and they help you clean up, you'll find you really enjoyed it.

So give them a chance; keep them off the streets and poor environment by letting them entertain supervised in their own homes having good old-fashioned fun. It really does work.

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR

I have 1,000 shares of GAF Corp., purchased at 18 1/2 and 18 3/4. Should I sell, or do you think they will ever come back to my purchase prices? — L.N.E.

A recent weakness in GAF shares may be attributed largely to the company's poor year-to-year earnings comparisons. Because of the cyclical nature of GAF's business (building materials, photo products, etc.), a general sluggishness in profits has characterized 1970.

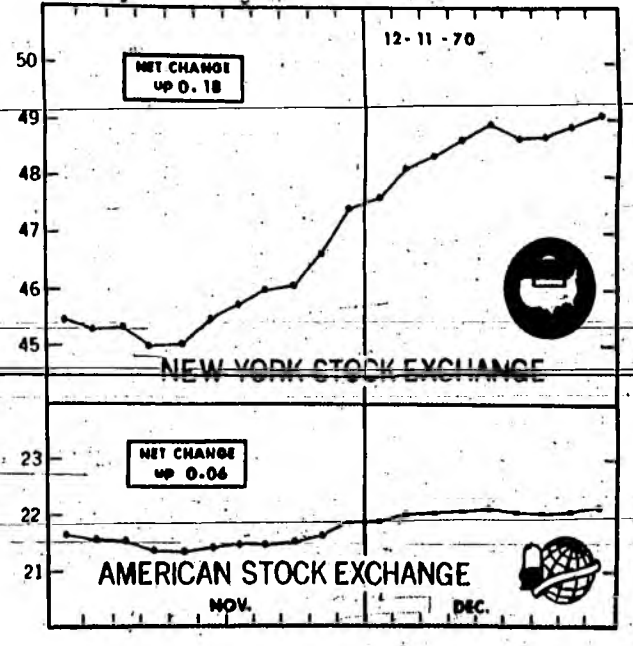

For the 9 months ended September 30, earnings slipped to 26 cents a share from 1969's 77 cents, while sales showed a marginal gain of 2.0 per cent. It should be noted that 3rd quarter net of 16 cents a share was a vast improvement over the 2nd period's 1 cent share deficit. Near-term prospects are relatively discouraging.

The after effects of the GM strike may cut into 4th quarter profits; and a strike-accelerated softening in general business may further reduce consumer spending. However long-term retention may prove rewarding as the company gets back on an even keel.

I have 400 shares of SCM Corporation at an average cost of $28 per share. The dividend was omitted in September, but I do not need this income. Should I hold for recovery or sell? — K.S.

A. After reaching a peak in fiscal 1966 and 1967, SCM's earnings have drifted downward to reach a seven year low at 7 1/2 cents a share. This fiscal year is off to another bad start with net at 14 cents a share, down from 51 cents in the quarter-ended September 30, 1969, despite a 1.7 per cent increase in sales. Contributing to the profit squeeze were: loss operations at 2 divisions; heavy

Are we doomed by fate?

Is man a victim of fate? Have we sprung up here on this small terrestrial ball to live a few brief, often miserable, years, only to vanish, forever?

An ancient book says NO. A host of men moving across the pages of history say NO. A wooden cross pounded into the crest of a hill in old Judea proclaims NO!

It is a long story of men turning away from their God. Of men flouting His law with selfish desire. Of men pitting their will against the will of God!

And yet God has a plan for us. Fate is not a part of that plan. God has set His laws before us, to show us how to live. To show us how to do unto others. And how to do unto Him.

But God's plan embraces more than law. It is love. For "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him might not perish, but have everlasting life."

God's gift of love purchased for us eternal life... if we believe in Him!

You can know more of this stirring story and of God's plan for you. Send for the free brochure, "God and Fate in Collision." No one will call on you.

Bonn pressing German unity

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — The Bonn government's drive for reconciliation with Communist Eastern Europe spilled over into the sports arenas last month when it was announced that East and West Germany had decided to resume full sports ties after more than nine years.

That would appear to open the door for the development of keen rivalries between athletes living on either side of the boundary.

But observers here feel the decision represents more of a paper victory for the politicians than an advance for athletics. These observers tend to think it unlikely that any sponsor is about to make himself a bundle promoting sports events between teams from the two halves of Germany.

Of course just one or two such major contests would be present situation.

Arguments scheduled in trial

TWIN FALLS — Defense and prosecution arguments will be heard Thursday at 1:30 p. m. in the preliminary hearing for Lawrence Lang, 30, and Terry Hartley, 24, charged with robbery.

Testimony in the three-day preliminary hearing concluded Friday afternoon and Judge Harry Turner continued closing arguments of the attorneys until Thursday.

The two are charged with robbery of the Safeway Store in Lynwood Aug. 21 in which $2,842.33 in cash was taken from store employees.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Harry Carey Jr. has been added to the cast of "The Million Dollar Kidnapping," starring John Wayne.

Exercise program planned

TWIN FALLS — A community-wide "exercise program" is gaining acceptance at the College of Southern Idaho, according to Chuck Charlton of the college physical education department. Two 16-week classes aimed at businessmen and housewives are sponsored by the college, offering a wide range of activities, including archery, badminton, basketball, exercise routines, fencing, golf, gymnastics, table tennis, use of the trampoline and "universal gym," which includes a variety of exercises and volleyball.

The classes will accept new participants at any time, at a cost of $6.50 each. One class meets for 30 minutes from 12 to 12:30 p. m. each weekday in the new college gymnasium, and is limited to men.

On Monday and Wednesday nights, classes are open to men and women, with a joint "coeducational" class conducted on Mondays and a women-only group meeting Wednesdays from 7 to 8 p. m. Miss Janice Middlefield will teach the women, and Charlton works with the men. Anyone interested should call Charlton or the college administration offices.

Notice required

RICHFIELD — Parents who wish to talk to teachers, must make an appointment through the superintendent's office, Supt. Neil Andreason announced Friday. He said trustees have authorized him to announce the new policy because of at least two cases where parents disrupted classes by making unscheduled calls and becoming irate with the teachers.

Anyone wishing to talk to teachers must call the superintendent who will set a specified time for problems to be discussed.

He said this is a preventive measure to preclude any more disruption of classes.

Ski sale scheduled at Ketchum Friday

SUN VALLEY — Another ski sale is scheduled for Dec. 18 through 20 by the Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation, Inc., at the Ketchum Odd Fellows Hall. The annual swap will be held 10 a. m. to 7 p. m. daily at the hall, located a block west of Main Street in Ketchum. Items to be sold should be delivered at 10 a. m. to the hall Dec. 18. Foundation officials suggest each item be tagged accurately with the selling price. The selling price should include 15 per cent to be donated to the Junior Racing Team.

Mrs. Mary Lou Simpson, swap chairman, said "unused items must be picked up at the end of the sale Sunday evening. Those not picked up will be donated to the Gold Mine Thrift Shop."

Mind your money

By PETER WEAVER
American women (and an increasing number of men) are really flipping their wigs. In 1960, $10 million worth of wigs were sold. This year sales are expected to top $1 billion.

If you're thinking of getting a wig for Christmas, take care. There are some shaggy products being pushed this time of year. A good number are poorly made and advertising claims are often confusing or outright deceptive.

To find out how professional buyers tell good hair from bad, I assigned my assistant, Martha Williams, to interview major buyers and suppliers and then — shop for wigs. Here's her checklist:

REAL vs. FAKE: Originally, natural hair from Europe or the Orient was considered the best for wigs. Now, most women (and men) are buying wigs made of synthetic fibers because they're easier to manage. Real hair must be set in a beauty shop. With synthetics, the curl is put on like permanent press in fabrics and will retain its shape.

BUYING TIPS: Wigs are mostly made in Korea or Hong Kong and are marketed in this country by such names as Adolph Halsten, Jerome Alexander Carousel, Tovar, Helene Curtis and Reid Meredith.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called today for a drastic reduction of American troops and military bases overseas in an effort to improve the nation's economy.

Mansfield proposed "a drastic withdrawal of personnel overseas and a drastic reduction of bases overseas and a more rapid ending of the war in Vietnam."

Wintry sport...

WITH SNOWFALL of up to 15 1/2 inches blanketing southern Wisconsin, four University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee students built this 7 foot snowman in front of the house. Placing finishing

David's sea legs in trim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House: Dwight David Eisenhower II must make a choice between future sea duty and shore duty after his four-month Navy training course is over.

The President's 22-year-old son-in-law will be asked to state his preference later this month. Then it will be up to the Navy to determine in January where he will be posted after graduation in mid-March from the naval training school at Newport, R.I.

David has in the past expressed a desire to perhaps become a Navy pilot but apparently has decided to try his sea legs instead. The White House military aides who keep tabs on his progress say "he is enjoying it a lot."

He is learning to become a junior officer on board ship and is being trained in navigation, radio and other naval skills.

There is a good chance that David may prefer shore duty to be near his wife Julie, 22, who will be getting a teaching certificate at Catholic University here at the end of the spring term. Julie wants to become a school teacher wherever David is ultimately stationed so she can be near him.

The oldest public building in the United States, the Palace of the Governors, was built in Santa Fe, N.M., in 1010.

They have managed to see each other often despite David's confinement to the Newport area.

Yule-guest list lengthy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the 18th day before Christmas the White House released its holiday guest list. It included: 535 congressmen, 35 singing schoolboys, 12 bell ringers, two famous Britons and "friends of the Nixons from all walks of life."

The Christmas preparations get under way in earnest today when Mrs. Nixon supervises the placing of a 20-foot white spruce in the Blue Room.

OFF AND ROLLING

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Twentieth Century-Fox began its fall shooting schedule with "The Marriage of a Young Stockbroker," "The Seven Minutes" and "The Panic in Needle Park" all in the same week.

On Monday, after a weekend of decorating by the household staff, the Nixons begin the holiday festivities with an open house for half of the Congress, alphabetically speaking.

This group will be entertained by the 12 Southminster Bell Ringers of Pittsburgh, 12 young men and women skilled in the ancient art of English handbell ringing.

By Frank Schell

From D. R. L., Twin Falls: I have heard that $1 bills dated 1963 with a "K" for Kennedy on them are very valuable. I have found some of these. Where can I find out their value? Where can they be sold? Also, I have one dated 1963 with an "A", also with the "K" on it. What about this one?

Answer: This story crops up regularly and has, since the death of the President. After many years of printing the $1 bill as a silver certificate, the government finally decided to make this note a "Federal Reserve Note," thus making it no longer necessary to keep silver dollars in the treasury to redeem silver certificates.

On the silver certificate are printed the words "This certifies that there is on deposit in the United States Treasury one silver dollar."

In other words, for each silver certificate in circulation, it was necessary that the government keep a silver dollar in the treasury. In order to get rid of the silver dollars held, which amounted to many millions, Congress authorized the issuance of the $1 Federal Reserve Note in 1963, which had no promise of any backing in any metal; in other words, all Federal Reserve Notes are simply promissory notes.

These have been twelve Federal Reserve Districts:
A—Boston, B—New York, C—Philadelphia, D—Cleveland, E—Richmond, F—Atlanta, G—Chicago, H—St. Louis, I—Minneapolis, J—Kansas City, K—Dallas, and L—San Francisco.

Each Federal Reserve District issued money imprinted with its own letter of the alphabet. Also on the note will be found the number designating the district — 1 for A (Boston), 2 for B (New York) and so on.

It is quite coincidental that the first notes issued by the Dallas Federal Reserve are dated 1963, which was the year Kennedy was assassinated. The "K" on the note stands for "Dallas" — not Kennedy, and has been used for many years to designate Dallas. 1963 was the first year of issue for these notes and has nothing to do with Kennedy's death.

There is no way of knowing how the story got started that this note was to commemorate Kennedy's death — but it is not true. These Federal Reserve notes have no more value than any other Federal Reserve note.
Every so often this story crops up — and the column receives letters about it. Please pass the truth along if you hear the story again.

The original 1963 issue bears the signatures of Granahan and Dillon. When Dillon was replaced by Fowler, the 1963A series was born, with Granahan and Fowler signatures on it. The 1963 B carries the signatures of Granahan and Barr, and the Series of 1969 the signatures of Elston and Kennedy. They can all be found with the letter "K" on them if the note was issued at Dallas. Incidentally, most of our notes come from San Francisco, so they bear the letter "L."

From A. R., Burley: I have a $1 note which has across the ends of the face side the word "Hawaii." This is a Series 1935A, signed by Jullian and Morgenthau. What is this note? Is it valuable?

Answer: Two notes, dated 1935A, were printed for use in war zones. Your note, for the South Pacific, and a yellow seal note, for North Africa and Europe. The imprinting was done to distinguish the note in case the money fell into Japanese hands, so that it could be voided.
The Hawaiian overprint was placed on the $1, $5, $10, and $20. The larger denominations carry the 1934 and 1934A Series number. Some 35 million of these $1 bills were printed, and many of them were saved. Collector value is about $10 now, but badly worn or crumpled notes are worth only about three times face value.
Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o The Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.

Andrus' wish may stay hope

(Editors note: This is the twelfth of several dispatches outlining problems that may confront the 41st session of the Idaho Legislature when it convenes Jan. 4, 1971. Today: Should the Department of Administrative Services be abolished?)

By RONALD B. SCOTT BOISE (UPI)—Governor-elect Cecil D. Andrus, who campaigned on the platform of abolishing the Department of Administrative Services, probably won't get his wish during the 41st session of the legislature.

This is the indication of a recent poll conducted by UPI. More than 75 per cent of the legislators responding said they did not favor abolishing the controversial department.

Nearly half the legislators polled favor keeping the department as presently constituted, while about 25 per cent want to re-empower it.

The department has been the center of controversy between the administration of Gov. Don Samuelsen, Democrats and some of his own party workers for quite some time. Democrats have charged the department is too powerful and is a prime example of legislative bloat.

State Auditor Joe R. Williams, a Democrat, claims the department's computer and budgeting services belong in the auditor's office or at least under his control.

Rep. Rudy Anderson, R-Boise, responding to the question "should the Department of Administrative Services be abolished," said, "You'd better believe. We can't be suckers twice in a decade. Let each department go back to their own areas of responsibility."

Rep. Lloyd Dunn, R-Georgetown, said the functions of the department should be placed wholly under the jurisdiction of the auditor.

"There is too much duplication of services, however, a legislative auditor is a must," he said.

Sen. Arthur Murphy, D-Mullan, feels that by appointing competent department heads the department with its "overlapping" services could be eliminated entirely.

One legislator, who declined to be identified, said he felt the department's powers should be limited and the accounting responsibilities should be returned to the state auditor's office.

Sen. John Mix, D-Moscow, said "obviously these services must be performed — as the department must be revamped. We don't need dynasties in state government. I would like to see each agency have a part in this, with emphasis on cost-accounting and make an honest effort to cut costs."

Rep. Torry Crapo, R-Idaho Falls, said "I think we need a general review and tightening of the department, but I don't favor its abolishment."

Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, also chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said "general service type functions are best performed by a central agency. Decentralization of such activities as communications and data processing would be a grave error."

"I would like to see increased emphasis on the management service function of management analysis on the functions of state agencies," he said.

Another legislator who declined to be identified said maybe some minor administrative procedural changes are needed, but added, "It's hardly been in this program long enough to have a smooth running operation."

At the 41st session nears its opening date, Governor-elect Andrus is becoming more and more aware that his pet project, abolishment of the Department of Administrative Services, may well be blocked by the Republican legislature.

In that case, if recent statements from his office are indicative of what may happen, Andrus may settle for a complete re-working of the department — a move which most legislators in both parties favor.

Whatever happens, one thing is almost certain: The Department of Administrative Services is in line for changes during the 41st legislative session.

Time for Living

In last week's column I listed some holiday gifts we senior citizens like to get. This time I want to describe how lots of people over the country make the holidays happier for themselves and others.

To throw the holiday commercialism, Mrs. Albina Gostomski, Detroit, Mich., invites neighborhood children to her home. Here, in between baking and decorating cakes and cookies, she helps them make over 200 simple, inexpensive gifts—colorful corsages for the women, brightly decorated "folk" vases with a comb tucked inside for the men. The children share the cost of the materials.

For the Christmas present, they collect old sheets, scraps of material, discarded drapes—their slitch and dye them into costumes.

When finished, Mrs. Gostomski and her flock visit the elderly at two hospitals and a home for the aged. As they present their program of Christmas carols, their nativity play, and distribute their little gifts, laughter and love shine from both young and old.

Why does Mrs. Gostomski volunteer so much of her time every year? Simply because, as she says, "Children and old people have so much to give to each other, so much to share."

During the holiday season we always find other people opening their hearts and homes to strangers, too. This is the spirit that inspired Mr. and Mrs. James Harvey, Salt Lake City, to plan a neighborhood open house.

"As our home filled with neighbors, some of whom we'd never met before, we were both surprised and delighted," they said. "We entertained schoolteachers, laborers, ministers, merchants, the rich and the poor... and everyone mixed and mingled without any social barriers. Some became acquainted for the first time—all came to feel that their neighbors were people, too."

Col. John R. Flahdick, "Mr. Benefit Auction," Eagle River, Wis., is known far and wide for his fund-raising activities.

"The holiday season always finds me close to home," he told me, "to conduct charity auctions for hospitals, schools, churches, youth organizations. This is my way of helping these groups raise money to make the holiday season a little brighter for others."

Mrs. C.J. Shafer, Wilametta, Ore., decided that "this year I would be of service to people who wished to send holiday greetings, but needed a little help to send them." While visiting convalescent homes, Mrs. Shafer noticed that patients receive gifts, and thought that they'd like to send gifts in return.

"I simply offered to run any errands like shopping, wrapping packages, and writing messages. For those who wanted to send holiday greetings, but didn't have money for cards or stamps, I arranged to leave cards at the desk. Then patients could make a choice and at the same time think that management provided this courtesy for all patients. I'm afraid this isn't just an unselfish act on my part. If what I do makes someone happy, it makes me happy, too!"

And may Mrs. Franklin and I wish all of you the happiest of Holiday Seasons!

British find retarded can do useful farm work

Sunday, December 13, 1970 THE NEWS-TIMES, Twin Falls, Idaho, 25

LONDON (UPI)—With an IQ of 39 Richard Handy was virtually unemployable. Today he works as a senior cowman, a product of Luton Manor, the world's first experiment in training mentally handicapped youngsters for normal employment in agriculture.

When Richard entered Luton two years ago he was 18 and unable to read or write. He is still almost illiterate and has no concept of time or season, but he has a way with cattle. From the elegant country house at Luton in Somerset led the center's Jersey and Galloway cattle to four first and five other placings in cattle shows this summer.

"A fitting climax to the season was when the Jersey Judge at the Fyrome Show offered Richard a job on his farm," said David Carter, 46-year-old director of the center run by the National Society for Mentally Handicapped Children. The center opened two years ago to train educationally and severely subnormal youngsters for normal open employment. On 35 acres of difficult clay soil 32 boys and 7 girls learn the mysteries of agriculture and horticulture.

"Many of the children show an unexpected aptitude for work with plants and animals," Carter said.

"We are just starting to evaluate the experiment from a scientific point of view," the director added.

"Five of the first 14 to come here have now been discharged. Of these Richard has a good job on his parents' farm. Another has a job on a pig farm. Two others have had interviews and secured jobs and a fifth has not yet found employment."

"Of the original 14, eight can drive one of our three tractors and three are almost good enough to go on the roads."

Luton Manor with its ornamental gardens, lawns and rare plants, shrubs and trees provides a ready-made center for the experiment. For more than 30 years it was the home of the Luton herd of Red Devon cattle which were exported around the world.

David Carter and his staff are obviously enthusiastic about their experiment which has the backing of several trusts and foundations, as well as Government ministries and local authorities. But he scotches the idea that mentally handicapped persons have a greater aptitude for looking after animals.

Young people gather trash

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — At a parking lot of the Berkeley Consumers Cooperative, the cans, glass and newspaper refuse of 15,000 persons — 150 tons a month — are collected, processed and sold for re-use by members of a commune called Ecology Action.

The collection began on Earth Day last April. Volunteers such as young Mrs. Cathy Dinnear and her husband, wrote to everybody on their block offering to take their trash to the commune.

Mrs. Dinnear now drives a truck full of refuse 15 miles a week to a recycling center. She is busy enough raising two small children and working part time as a graphic designer, but she says the time she spends on refuse is "worth it because I'm doing something for the cause."

As he stacks boxes of flattened cans in a huge brewery van, Greg Voehm, one of the commune members, expresses amazement at how the collection effort has caught on.

"Every week we are worried that this is the week we will be overrun," said Voehm, a bearded, hairy-chested youth.

In addition to the 150 monthly tons collected by Ecology Action, a similar total amount is gathered by other groups at four other consumers cooperative locations in the area.

"According to classic psychological theory," said Voehm, 24, whose Antioch College major was psychology, "this can't work, but it is working."

The refuse donors are sufficiently worried about filling the environment with junk they strip metal neck rings at home from bottles, take paper off cans, bundle newspapers and take it all during the weekend to collection points for free.

Seventeen weekly tons of bottles are separated by color and smashed with heavy pounders into barrels by members of the ecology action commune.

"Glass, at $20 a ton, is our big money maker," Voehm said.

Flattened tin cans bring $20 a ton and aluminum cans $200, but Voehm said the government's anti-inflation policies have ruined the market for cardboard. "Now the price of cardboard won't even pay our gas."

The sixteen young men and women in Voehm's commune earn as much as $400 a week for their effort, but this figure is not much more than 50 cents an hour.

On graduation, Voehm decided against going to graduate school because "that seemed a cop-out with things in this country as bad as they are, and education as bad as it is."

"Our whole society is cut off from reality," he said. "Well, you have to break in somewhere, and this is one place we are able to break in."

Working on a heavy, rusty can flattener, Mrs. Janet Seim says she brings her family's trash regularly "because mounting piles of garbage are multiplying us right out of the bay area."

"Ever since I was a kid I have wondered why we don't utilize materials we already have, instead of producing new materials," said Mrs. Seim, wife of a civil engineer.

"All this makes a lot of sense you know," said Jim Fildale, 23, who keeps his long hair tied in a knot. "If you put your stuff in the garbage, they'll use it to fill up San Francisco Bay."

Mrs. Kay Homsey, a housewife who drives a minibus crammed to the ceiling from a small Episcopal church in San Francisco, said her congregation is impressed at how much can be accumulated by just a few families.

Voehm regrets the number of items no business concern is recycling. "People bring us coat hangers, and we say take them home and let them multiply in your closet."

He does not believe projects like his can be made to pay people a living wage, but hopes

Russians worry

POLLUTION WORRIES the Russians, as well as the Americans. With 16 per cent of the world's land mass within its borders, but only 11 per cent of the world's fresh water, pollution of rivers and lakes has become a major Soviet problem. The Russian humor magazine their success will attract governmental subsidies to make up the difference.

"Krokodil" comments on the problem frequently; in this cartoon, a sign on the fence tells the youngster to "wipe your feet" before entering the beach play area. On the left, an industry pours smoke into the air and pollutants into the water. (UPI)

Gold mine may close

LEAD, S.D. (UPI) — Gold pollutes. More accurately, the means used to extract gold from the Black Hills of South Dakota causes pollution.

If Homestake Mining Co., the largest producing gold mine in the western hemisphere, cannot find a feasible means of eliminating the mercury it discharges into Whitewood Creek, company officials indicate Homestake could conceivably be forced to close.

Homestake estimates it produces 40 per cent of all the gold mined in the United States — 600,000 ounces a year which sells at a current price of $37.50 an ounce.

The mine, employer of 1,800 persons, uses mercury to extract 60 to 65 per cent of its gold. A calcium cyanide solution is used in recovering the remainder of the gold.

Consequently, mercury is released into Whitewood Creek, which eventually discharges into the Missouri River, which in its upper reaches is one of South Dakota's favorite fishing streams.

Recently, traces of mercury were detected in fish taken from the Missouri in western South Dakota. In November, the Federal Water Quality Administration ordered Homestake to stop mercury discharges by next Jan. 1.

Homestake has asked a six-month extension of the order to give it time to figure another way to get rid of the mercury.

Otherwise, Homestake Manager James O. Harder said, the only way to meet the deadline would be to eliminate the use of mercury in the mining process.

"This may reduce our recovery to the point where it is no longer economic to run the operation," he said.

"This is not a scare tactic," he added. "It is just a simple fact of life. Every time you drop the percentage of recovery by 1 per cent, you lose $200,000."

Hegens, CSI break records, drop BYU

All-American Steve Hegens broke the College of Southern Idaho one-game scoring record with 38 points and the Eagles set another record in racking up 116 points Saturday night in defeating the fine shooting Brigham Young University freshmen 116-100. The combined score for the two teams was also a CSI record.

Earlier, Casper junior college dropped the Boise State frosh 81-67. The result of the two doubleheader night left CSI undefeated, having defeated Casper 82-82 Friday night, and Casper and BYU evened up at one and one. Boise lost both games.

BYU gave CSI some trouble over the first 10 minutes before Hegens, playing on a sprained ankle, started hitting from the outside. BYU's 7-foot Steve Lackey kept the Cougars in the game for the first while with his rebounding and scoring.

CSI started moving away after a Lackey field goal had cut the margin to 24-22. Hegens hit five points and Bassett three to stretch CSI in front by six and it hung at four to six points for another two minutes. CSI didn't get a 10-point lead until Palomar hit five straight points to make it 45-35 with 3:25 remaining. Then Heggons quickly pumped through seven points and Bassett and Gene Stroebel joined in to shove the Eagles out of reach at 61-39 by halftime.

Palomar and Hegens did most of the scoring as the Eagles pushed to their largest margin at 83-50 with about 12 minutes left. Then Coach Jerry Hale went to the bench and BYU's plethora of fine shooting guards started coming on. The Cougars hit 60 points in the final 12 minutes and their half court trap press gave the Eagles problems.

In the first game Saturday, Casper had its hands full with Boise State and couldn't break away until five minutes into the second half. Abe Stewart and Cutshall, backed by Ken Clark did most of the scoring as Casper finally got control when it pushed in from 62-49. The lead reached 21 points once before BSC brought it back.

Friday night, rebounding and defense proved the difference as CSI thumped previously undefeated Casper, Wyo., junior college 82-62. Little Vic

Kelly, although everyone joined in a solid CSI defensive effort, took Casper's offense away with his quickness.

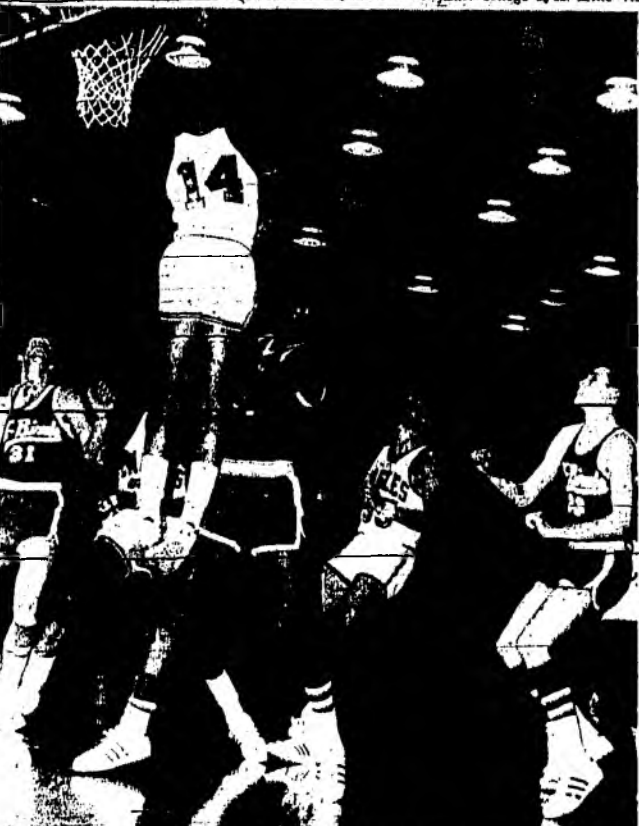

The 6-4 New York product was matched up against Casper's stout guard Larry Crowe and won the battle in the first five minutes. Crowe came into the game reportedly as a true one-on-one player who worked well in an isolated situation. But Kelly slugged away two passes for turnovers to CSI in the first 90 seconds and then with four minutes gone, stole the ball from Crowe and drove for a cropper. Casper then changed its alignment, bringing 6-5 forward Abe Steward out to bring the ball downcourt. Kelly, who hit six of CSI's first 11 points, held Crowe to four points.

In the meantime, Tim Bassett and Ralph Palomar took control of the backboards while Ron Bohagen turned in one of his best all-around performances, defending against Steward.

All-American Steve Hegens, Kelly, Bohagen and Bassett opened up a quick 9-0 lead for the Eagles but soon after ALL TIED UP, College of Southern Idaho's Ralph Palomar is stymied on a try for a crumple Palomar lost this chance but scored 17 as the Eagles lost an 82-82 victory.

CAN STEVE HEGENS JUMP? Can a duck swim? The 6-4 all-American CSI guard from Washington, D. C., soars well over the head of Casper, Wyo., center, 6-7 Ken Clark to block a shot during action Friday night. CSI won 82-62.

Sports FROM ALL ANGLES

BY LARRY HOVEY

Times-News Sports Editor Glenn Potter, a three-sport letterman at Twin Falls high school when he graduated in 1956, is reportedly the next in line for the head basketball coaching job at Brigham Young University.

Potter, who might best be remembered for the jump shot from just above the free throw line that beat Jerome in the finals of the district tournament his senior year, currently is serving as an assistant coach to Stan Watts, who has been at the Cougar helm for many years.

"Coach Watts would like to finish this year and coach one more," Potter said in summing up the situation at Provo. Asked if he was the heir apparent, he said "You can't look ahead like that. A lot of things could happen."

However, Potter is taking more of a coaching responsibility this year since Coach Watts is under daily medical treatment. The doctors have concluded his accompanying the team to the Rainbow Classic tournament in Hawaii during the holidays and let him go only to Oregon State and USC on the current stand. He will miss the Seattle game. Coach Watts has been able to attend only one practice in the past three weeks.

Potter got into coaching while at the University of Idaho. He was a member of the Vandal football team and he and Coach Joe Cipriano became good friends. Potter assisted Joe while at Vandaville going to school as a student assistant, and then became Cipriano's righthand man when Joe went to University of Nebraska.

Vic Kelly proved there definitely is a spot in basketball for the little man, but he also proved the small man had better be quick. Kelly's quickness forced Casper out of the game it likes best—having a frosh guard—Larry Crowe handling the ball and that along with rebounding and overall team defense took the Golden Eagles to victory.

"I have never seen one man so completely stop an offense," says CSI Coach Jerry Hale. "Vic forced them to bring (Abe) Steward out from underneath offensively, and that helped us just that much more on the backboards."

Coach Hale further stated he felt that Casper was a very fine team. "I think throwing them off their game early like that confused them and our boys just never let them get back up. You can easily see that Vic had a great part in establishing the team but I feel everyone played extremely well—although we got a little tired—and I count it as an overall team win. I've had never seen a team so jacked up and ready to play defense as we were early last night."

Idaho holds on to defeat Portland State by 85-81

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI)—The Stoudamire brothers, Charlie and Willie, scored 20 points to lead for the entire Idaho team in a second half Portland State spurt, but the Vandals held on for an 85-81 win Saturday night.

Idaho led the win in the final minute with two fast break buckets by Malcolm Taylor. Idaho had an easy first half, leading by nine to 15 points much of the time and showing a 46-39 lead at intermission.

Much of that lead was built on the strength of Taylor's 14 points and 10 rebounds in the first 20 minutes.

In the second half the Stoudamires took over the Portland State attack and nearly pulled out the win in a fantastic display of shooting.

Hansen outlasts Rockland

ROCKLAND — The Hansen Huskies burst into an early 13-point lead and then battled the rest of the night to nip the Rockland Bulldogs 48-49.

With Walt Freestone and Lynn Pearson again combining for the scoring and Cliff Barnard handling the ball well, Hansen jumped ahead 17-5. But Rockland rallied into a 23-27 halftime lead. The Huskies regained the lead early in the third period and held sway from four to seven points until the end. Rockland won the preliminary 87-83.

Burley rolls past Am. Falls

BURLEY — The Burley Bobcats stuck a sticky defense on American Falls and rolled almost effortlessly into a 59-34 victory Saturday night.

American Falls, in addition to having trouble with Burley's defense, compounded its problems by releasing the shots it worked itself clear for. The visitors managed only nine field goals.

Meanwhile, Burley settled it in the first period, running up a 23-0 edge. American Falls went into a deliberate game after trailing 64-27 going into the last period.

Burley also discovered Saturday morning that senior and team captain Bob Jackson would be lost for the remainder of the year. X-rays showed a broken bone in his wrist, evidently

Oakley runs past Malad

OAKLEY — The polished Oakley Hornets won their 27th straight game Saturday night by running past the Malad Dragons 63-65.

Oakley, which lost its second game last season and then stormed to the state title almost unopposed, burst into a quick 24-12 lead over their A-2 opponents and coasted in. Coach Neal Wyatt used 12 men in the game and the Hornets again feasted off the full-court press of Malad.

Keith Adams hit four field goals, two on long set shots, and lanky Russ Hardy crumpled in six points in the early going to set Oakley into motion. By the end of the period, Oakley had things in hand, cranking up its fast break and rushing in from 46-20 by halftime. Eleven Hornets had tasted action by then.

Malad won the opener 45-42.

Jacksonville State whips Florida A-M

MIAMI (UPI)—Workhorse tailback Boyce Callahan set up two touchdowns Saturday night, scoring one himself, as Jacksonville State crushed Florida A&M 21-7 in the 38th annual Orange Blossom Classic.

Fullback Mike Little took a handoff from quarterback Doc Lett in the first period and plunged over from the one for the Gamecocks, after Callahan set up the tally with a 22-yard gallop around left end.

Four seconds into the final period, Callahan smashed over from the one, capping a 64-yard drive during which he picked up 53 yards on five carries. The speedy freshman, considered too small by most Alabama colleges, was voted most valuable player for the Gamecocks and ended the evening with 226 yards rushing in 31 carries.

Lett passed to wingback Terry Owens from eight yards out in the closing minutes for Jacksonville State's third touchdown.

A&M got its lone touchdown on a 10-yard pass from southpaw quarterback Steve Scruggs to split end AJ Sykes in the final quarter. Scruggs piloted the Rattlers 79 yards to the Gamecock one yard line with 2:01 left in the game, but fumbled away A&M's last scoring opportunity.

The Gamecocks were only the third predominantly white team to face all-black A&M, and the first to play in the Orange Blossom Classic. The Rattlers beat their first white opponent, whipping Tampa 34-28 last season, but those same Spartans smothered the Rattlers 49-7 at the end of this season.

Houston has 81-68 upset

HOUSTON (UPI)—Poo Welch and sophomore Steve Newsome led the University of Houston to an 81-68 upset over previously unbeaten Oregon to win the 11th annual Blagbonnet Basketball Tournament for the eighth consecutive year Saturday night.

Tulane won the consolation by defeating Texas A&M 69-69.

Raiders drub Chiefs to claim west division title

Oakland (UPI)—Marv Hubbard, a reserve running back, ran six yards for his first touchdown of the year and Daryle Lamonica threw 35 yards to Fred Biletnikoff in the second half Saturday to lead the Oakland Raiders to a 20-6

The Raiders, one point underdogs, controlled the tempo of the game after a Jim Lynch interception of a Lamonica pass set up a 20-yard field goal by victory over the Kansas City Chiefs and the AFC West Division title.

Jan Stenerud midway through the opening quarter. The Chiefs Super Bowl champions a year ago, made only one good drive throughout the game and that didn't come until they were behind 20-3 with 12 minutes left and the Raiders in a prevent defense. Larry Dawson, who completed six of 12 aerials for 80 yards, passed Kansas City to the Oakland 17 but the Raiders defense then threw him back for two long losses and the Chiefs had to settle for a 40-yard field goal by Stenerud.

In between those scores, the Raiders, who now have won four division titles in 11 years, scored on 23 and 35-yard field goals by George Blanda and the Hubbard and Biletnikoff touchdowns.

The victory gave the Raiders an unbeatable 8-3-2 record and dropped the Chiefs to 7-4-2 with one game left. The only way the Chiefs can make the playoffs is if they win their final game next week and Miami loses twice.

Hubbard, with little playing time this year, rushed for 93 yards in 16 carries. He got 41 of those yards in seven tries into the third quarter to climax a long drive and give the Raiders a 31-3 lead.

Lamonica, who completed nine of 19 for 136 yards, then threw to Biletnikoff in the corner of the end zone early in the fourth quarter for the insurance score. Biletnikoff made a run over the end zone grab with Jim Marsalis a step behind him.

It was an interference call on Marsalis that set up Hubbard's TD, putting the ball on the 16. The Raiders played ball control from the start, sticking mostly to a ground game while eating up the clock.

Cowboys nip Browns 6-2 with two second-half field goals

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Mike Clark kicked two second-half field goals and Chuck Howley recovered a Cleveland fumble in the Dallas end zone to stop a late Browns' drive Saturday as the Cowboys beat the Browns, 6-2, on a muddy field.

Dave Edwards then preserved the crucial triumph for Dallas by intercepting a pass with 2:35 left in the game.

By winning, the Cowboys moved into a virtual tie with St.

Louis for first place in the Eastern Division of the National Football Conference while Cleveland fell a half-game behind Cincinnati in the American Football Conference's Central Division.

Both teams failed to move the ball in the first half and the Browns took a 2-0 lead when Cowboy Bob Hayes was tackled in the end zone for a safety. Hayes fumbled a Cleveland punt on his three-yard line, attempted to swing wide but was tackled in his own end zone by Chuck Reynolds with 4:15 left in the first quarter.

Richard Flowers blocked a Browns' punt at the start of the third quarter and Steve Kiner returned to the Cleveland three-yard line. Two penalties pushed the Cowboys back to the 32 and Clark put Dallas ahead, 3-2, with a field goal from the 39-yard line.

After Dan Reeves fumbled a snag from center on another field goal attempt by Clark with 6:02 left in the third quarter, the Cowboys held the Browns and then marched 54 yards to the Cleveland 24-yard line. Clark, kicking into a strong wind, sent one through the uprights from 31 yards out with 12:22 left in the game.

The Browns, with Bill Nelsen hitting on three passes good for 37 yards, took the kickoff and moved 52 yards to the Dallas 19. An offensive pass interference call put the ball back on the Dallas 34. Nelsen then hit Gary Collins on the 10-yard line.

But the wide receiver jumped the ball and Howley recovered in the end zone for a touchback. The Browns moved the ball again but another pass interference call with 2:35 left put Cleveland back on the Dallas 32. Edwards then picked off Nelsen's next pass to stop the drive.

Arkansas State wins Pecan Bowl

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI)—Quarterback James Hamilton guided Arkansas State to its 14th straight win Saturday, as the Indians captured a 30-21 Pecan Bowl victory over Central Missouri State.

The Indians, the nation's top-ranked small college team, went to the air when the fighting Mules' defense began keying on Arkansas State runner, Calvin Herrell.

Hamilton, a junior from Marked Tree, Ark., broke the game open by completing 12 of 24 passes for 244 yards and three touchdowns.

Two of the scoring shots were second-quarter bombs of 49 and 42 yards to flanker Chat Douthit that paced the Indians to a 17-7 halftime lead.

Steven Eckinger kept the underdog Mules in the game by hitting 22 of 44 passes, including a 12-yard touchdown to Reggie James in the second quarter.

But Hamilton put the game out of reach late in the third quarter with a nine-yard pass to Steve Lockhart, completing a 56-yard drive that was highlighted by Johnnie Carr's 39-yard run.

Texas A-I wins NAIA grid title

GREENVILLE, S.C. (UPI)—Karl "Deerslayer" Douglas, displaying the kind of cool that bagged him a nine-point buck two weeks ago, quarterbacked the Texas A&I Javelinas to a record third NAIA championship Saturday, scoring a 48-7 victory over the Wofford Terriers.

Douglas rifled 14 passes for 107 yards, chalking up 8 completions and two touchdowns before a crowd of 12,625. He also picked up 31 yards on six carries, ran a two-point conversion and passed for a two-point conversion.

Teammate Clarence Alberta contributed a record of his own with a 71-yard touchdown run from scrimmage, the longest in 15 National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Championships.

Follow-up teammate Ernest Price started the rout with a one-yard slash off right end late in the first quarter.

Price added another touchdown in the fourth quarter when he carried four defenders over from the sight. He played most of the game at his normal defensive right tackle spot, and turned in several key tackles.

The Terriers could not get their attack off the ground. Quarterback Harold Chandler, who carried a 81 per cent completion average into Saturday's game, completed only 9 of 23 for 100 yards.

The loss broke a 20 game-win streak for Wofford and knocked it out of the No. 1 spot in the NAIA rankings.

After Price and Alberta scored in the first and second periods, Douglas unloaded a 42-yard scoring bomb into the arms of flanker Dwight Harrison in the end zone. David Hoskin missed the extra point after kicking two previously.

Tenn State rallies in Rice Bowl

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—Quarterback Joe Gilliam passed for two touchdowns and ran for another Saturday, leading 5th ranked Tennessee State to a 28-25 win over Southwestern Louisiana in the Grantland Rice Bowl.

Spilt back Albert Davis scored on a five yard run with 3:22 left for the winning touchdown, and Alfred Reese kicked two extra points to round out the scoring for Tennessee State.

Defensive end Mike Courville recovered a kickoff in the Tennessee State end zone with 6:52 left in the fourth period to put Southwestern Louisiana ahead 25-20, apparently locking up the victory for the Ragin' Cajuns.

Jerome, Buhl win in overtime

Tigers outscore Burley by 14-4 in extra period

BURLEY — The Jerome Tigers watched a 12-point deficit disappear in the last four minutes, saw Burley blow two chances to win in the final seconds on free throws and then stormed away in an overtime period to drop the Birley Bobcats 76-66 Friday night.

Jerome shot hot from the field in taking an early lead and holding it until the final four minutes. But then Burley's full-court press shook the Tigers and the Bobcats, behind the scoring of Bob Jackson, came back to within one. With seconds left, Jackson hit a free throw to tie it but then missed the second. Jerome tried a long inbound pass but was charged with a foul and with only a couple of seconds left Burley missed the first of a one-and-one free throw.

The Tigers regained their composure in the overtime period and their shooting touch returned. They led it when they scored three points from the foul line on a two-shot foul and a technical that pushed the Bobcats behind by eight.

Valley has second win over Filer

EDEN-HAZELTON — Larry Richman and Kim Gorgen opened hot Friday night and led the Valley Vikings to a 76-60 decision over the Filer Wildcats. Valley won the first meeting of the year 62-54.

Gorgen hit 10 of his 14 points in the first period as Valley rushed into a 22-14 lead, although the Vikings got some early squabbling from Gary Wright and Thaeot. Valley stayed ahead through the second period and then saw Richman turned it on in the third period when the Vikings exploded in front 66-32.

Valley won the first game 41-28.

Dennis hits 32, Wendell claims win

GLENN'S FERRY — Kirk Dennis pumped through 32 points and Bennett added 15 more as the Wendell Trojans crushed the Middleton Vikings 69-43 for their first win of the season Friday night.

Wendell did it in the middle quarters. After trailing 15-14 at the end of the first period, the Trojans outscored Middleton 17-3 at one stage of the second quarter and held a 31-22 half-time edge. Dennis maintained the margin at seven to 12 points through most of the last half.

But with 40 seconds left and with a nine-point lead, Wendell Coach Ed Otten sent in his second unit. Four of them forgot to report in and Middleton pumped through four free throws on technical fouls.

Bears push by Garden Valley

GARDEN VALLEY — The Bliss Bears blazed for 19 points in the fourth quarter Friday night to sweep from behind and drop Garden Valley 64-49 in a non-conference game.

The first quarter was tight, Bliss trailing 11-9 after the first eight minutes but pushing on top 16-15 by half-time. Garden Valley scored 22 points in the third quarter for a 47-40 lead but the host team then struggled through the final period with only two points with the victory.

Mark Lee topped all scorers with 20 points for Bliss while teammate Ray Teohanne added 15. Dooley had 18 and Roberts 14 for Garden Valley. Garden Valley won the opener 64-40.

Salmon uses height to edge Wood River

HAILEY — The highly regarded Salmon Savages turned to the backboards to awe the game their way Friday night as they beat back the inspired Wood River Wolverines 59-57.

The Savages, with good bulk to go along with their 6-2 and 6-5 back line, trailed through most of three quarters and couldn't count the game in the bag until the final seconds.

Although Wood River shot 50 per cent from the field, the Wolverines managed only 19 rebounds as Salmon on several occasions got the third and fourth shots.

Wood River took a 15-9 first quarter lead and pushed it to 21 at half-time. But Salmon started coming back in the third period and managed a 39-38 lead at the buzzer. Early in the fourth period, the Savages moved ahead by five but Wood River came back into a tie. Salmon decided it with a field goal with about 15 seconds left for a four-point bulge and Wood River cut the final edge to two with four seconds remaining.

Duo leads Hansen by Richfield

HANSEN — The Hansen Huskies, paced by the scoring and rebounding of Walt Freestone and Lynn Pearson, burst away in the third quarter Friday night and defeated the Richfield Tigers 76-63.

Freestone and Pearson combined for 14 points in the first period to open up a 24-10 Hansen lead before the Tigers clocked in the second period to cut the margin to one. But Hansen decided it right after the half, out scoring the Tigers 10-7 in the third period.

Castleford outlasts Dietrich

CASTLEFORD — The Castleford Wolves wasted most of a 15-point lead in the second half Friday night but stood off an rally by the Dietrich Blue Devils for a 46-44 decision.

The victory avenged a 50-46 loss to Dietrich last week. Castleford led at all the quarter rests, taking an eight-point bulge into the final eight minutes. But Dietrich's ball hawking paid off in an 18-point fourth period against 12 for the Wolves.

Castleford took the preliminary 52-38.

Badgers whip Loyola 94-82

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — The University of Wisconsin basketball team, led by balanced scoring which saw four men score over 15 points, defeated Loyola, La. Saturday 94-83.

The Badgers, faced with superior height of Loyola, did a brilliant job on the boards and swamped Loyola in rebounds 64-34.

Wisconsin led at the half 45-41, but when the second period began, Clarence Sherrad and his teammates began hitting and at the 10:25 mark led 69-58.

Sherrad led all scorers with 25 points, Gary Watson had 19 for Wisconsin and Leon Howard and Glen Richgels each had 15.

Bob Bassant led Loyola with 20 points and he was followed by Ty (The Guy) Marionaux, Loyola's 7 foot center with 19.

The Badgers are now 3-1 and Loyola is 1-3 for the season.

Hudson's jumper in last 11 seconds beats Aberdeen

BUHL — Diminutive Tim Hudson plunked in a short jumper with 11 seconds left in overtime Friday night to lift the Buhl Indians past Aberdeen 76-73.

Hudson shared the spotlight with Bob Anderson who clinched through two free throws with 23 seconds left in regulation time to fashion the tie.

Buhl won it at the free throw line, although the Indians hit a horrendous 25 of 52. Aberdeen collected on 19 of 20 at the arip and hit 52 per cent from the floor.

The Indians had five men in double scoring figures with Hudson and Steve Meier tied at 17 but game honors went to Aberdeen's Tlezen who displayed a fine touch with a hook shot to score 23.

Aberdeen won the first game 65-50.

Gooding bounces Mtn. Home

MOUNTAIN HOME — The undefeated Gooding Senators combined the board strength and shooting of big Frank Krahn and Gary Gorrell Friday night to whip the tall Mountain Home Tigers 47-35.

Gorrell pumped in 17 points, Krahn had 11, and the Senators dominated the boards against the Tigers. The Senators only led 9-5 in a slow moving and turnover-plagued first period, stretched that to 18-11 at half-time, and 30-21 after three quarters.

Gooding also got seven points from Jeff LaCroix and four apiece from Monte Funkhouser and Gary Sagers. Mountain Home, with an 0-3 mark, couldn't put anybody in double figures. Dave McAbee was high scorer for the Tigers with eight points.

Murtaugh rolls over Musher

FAIRFIELD — Mark Howard blazed for 18 points in the first quarter Friday night to give the Murtaugh Red Devils a lead they never lost in topping the cold-shooting Camas County Musher 76-56.

Howard's first-quarter blitz stalked Murtaugh to a 28-15 lead but the Musher started coming back in the second period and appeared they could make a game of it in the third quarter. But then John Flynn pumped through eight points to break Murtaugh away as the Devils enjoyed a 20-point period. They matched points in the final quarter.

Murtaugh won the preliminary 54-45.

Kentucky nips Indiana 95-93

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Tom Parker bagged 9 of his 24 points during the overtime period as Kentucky's third-ranked Wildcats edged provincially unbeaten and 11th ranked Indiana Saturday, 95-93.

Kentucky slipped behind, 74-67, with 8:36 to play but Indiana committed three straight errors and the Wildcats tied the game at 76-76 with 3:26 remaining.

The teams were deadlocked, 80-80 after regulation time. Indiana's John Ritter hit a 60-foot desperation shot with 3 seconds left but the basket was disallowed because an Indiana teammate had called time out.

Parker's 24 points topped the 4-0 Wildcats. Kent Hollenbeck hit 19, Mike Casey got 18, and Tom Payne and Mark Soderberg each scored 13.

Vacation in Hawaii in February

TWIN FALLS — For five hours you have been flying at 30,000 feet, or higher, in a boundless panorama of drifting white on blue. Then in the distance in your far a misty form begins to emerge from the clouds. The captain of the big Pan American jet airplane directs passengers' attention to this first glimpse of Hawaii — the giant dome of a slumbering volcano, sunning itself at 13,000 feet above the sea and clouds. Below you the ocean's deep blue-violet gives way to the kaleidoscopic hues produced by coral reefs — jewel green, pale aqua, vivid turquoise, and blue marbled with lavender and black. The white waves where waves exhaust their energy along the reef. Beyond the line you see the quiet waters of a sand-trimmed bay. Another island comes into view. Within minutes you are over its shoreline. Below you a spreading city reaches up from a harbor into lush mountains. Almost before you've had time to show surprise at the size of Honolulu, your plane glides down the runway, and you prepare to step forth into what generations of travelers have agreed is the finest thing available to paradise. If you are like most "malihinis" (newcomers), you come to Hawaii expecting to find sunny beaches caressed by gentle surf and trade winds, tropical forests and flowers, simple people, and a relaxed way of life. And you will find them. But you will also find many facets of a modern

Hawaii you may not have expected. You will find Honolulu a burgeoning capital city of 600,000 people where industry, trade and business move at a rapid clip. Here the cosmopolitan people draw their ancestry from around the world and live together in harmony. Here thrives a unique blending of eastern and western worlds, of ancient and modern traditions. And here, you can partake of a rich array of recreation and entertainment opportunities. Fish, sail, golf, hunt, swim, sightsee, or just sun yourself on warm Hawaiian sands.

When you leave Hawaii — and you probably will do so reluctantly — you may carry away not only a tale of paradise, but also a new awareness of the excitement and energy that is modern Hawaii.

So quit dreaming — join the Times-News "Magic of Hawaii" tour scheduled to leave Twin Falls Feb. 15. Norma Herzinger, Times-News society editor, will serve as tour guide again this year. Further information concerning the tour can be obtained by contacting Mrs. Herzinger at the Times-News, 733-0931, or Magic Carpet Travels, 733-1068.

'Operation Baby Airlift' brings happiness

(Editors note: This is the first of a three-part story written by Phyllis Colonna about a Wendell couple and their five children — all adopted.)

By PHYLLIS K. COLONNA
Times-News Correspondent
WENDELL — "A lot of people try to tell me adopting your children is the easy way to get them," says energetic and outspoken Sarah Bitterli. "Hah! They should have a few of my gray hairs." She ought to know what she's talking about. She and her husband, Dale (Bud) Bitterli, are the parents of three sons and two daughters — all adopted.

Certainly they've had some experiences acquiring their family that never confront most prospective parents.

For instance, how many mothers and fathers are there whose children arrived already speaking a foreign language? Or who were told at the height of their anxious waiting: "I'm sorry, there'll be some delay. Your two boys have been misplaced at the New York airport."

These are two of the difficulties the Bitterlis have had to surmount getting their family "the easy way."

More time was the length of time required to do it.

"I don't know when Bud and I started looking for children to adopt," Sarah muses. "I suppose as soon as we were certain we'd never have any ourselves. 'Somehow we'd just never thought of not having a family — I mean, what do you do with your time if you don't have children?'"

Because Bud is 14 years older than Sarah, state agencies refused to accept an application for adoption. For four years they tried through churches and private agencies to find someone who would consider them eligible for parenthood.

More time was the length of time required to do it. Because Bud is 14 years older than Sarah, state agencies refused to accept an application for adoption. For four years they tried through churches and private agencies to find someone who would consider them eligible for parenthood.

Through him they learned of Harry Holt in Creswell, Ore. A retired farmer, Holt had become interested in the plight of Korean orphans through a film he saw at church. He and his wife had sufficient income to travel, and their own six children were grown. So they went to Korea to look for a child to bring home.

They eventually returned with eight for themselves and two for friends.

Between that time and his death a few years ago, Holt was instrumental in placing more than 5,000 Korean and Korean-American orphans in homes throughout the world. Bud and Sarah put in their application for two on Jan. 2, 1960.

Six months later they were standing at the Portland airport, waiting for the plane that would bring their daughters, Rachel (one year old) and Ruth (six months).

"It was a marvelous experience," Sarah remembers. "I still get choked up every time I think about it. Here were all those people who had waited so long for children. . . . In spite of her own excitement she couldn't help getting caught up in the drama around her. 'I remember this one couple especially. They had a little girl about ten years old they had adopted two years previously.

"From the time they got her she kept trying to talk them something, but of course they couldn't understand Korean. Finally, when she learned a bit of English, they decided she was talking about another little girl back in Korea — her sister, they thought."

"So they asked the authorities to see if they could find her. . . . They did find her, abandoned or in some sort of orphanage, and she was not only a sister, she was an identical twin. . . . When the plane finally landed and those two little girls ran to each other, looking just alike — dressed alike (the family had sent clothes ahead) — well, I think we all had tears streaming down our cheeks." The children arrived with tags on their arms and legs, telling the name of the child and the name of the new parents. One by one they were disembarked and brought through customs; their names read out to the waiting families.

"There were 83 children on that plane," Sarah says with feeling, "and I'm sure Rachel and Ruth were the 82nd and 83rd."

What were her feelings when at last she stood looking at them for the first time? "They were beautiful. And they were ours! There wasn't one minute when they weren't ours. . . ." she said.

Great snow depth greets governors

SUN VALLEY — This is the greatest snow depth before Christmas in the memory of skiers — at least since Sun Valley opened in 1936. When the Republican-Governors convened for their annual western conference Saturday it almost seemed as if old Baldy had turned conservative.

until the resort closed for World War II. Gov. Dan Evans, Washington, is an excellent skier who visits annually at Sun Valley. He was the forerunner of the World Cup race won by Billy at Crystal Mountain, but says he will never do that again. Gov. John Love, Colorado, is a good skier as he naturally would be coming from that great skiing state in the Rockies. Surprisingly enough the governor of American Samoa, John Haydon, is an excellent skier, but could not be present at the conference.

A governor's conference leaves little time for skiing, but not a few governors are interested in the sport or are active skiers. Gov. Nelson Rockefeller was on the original board of governors of the Sun Valley Ski Club and a member

Slimming gifts for Christmas

NEW YORK (UPI) — If there's someone in your circle who doesn't need padding to pose as Santa Claus, give the Christmas cheer that slims.

First, there's the Christmas stocking. Stuff it with packages of sugar substitutes. Also try the low calorie grapefruit.

The goodies under the tree should carry an equally alluring message. Just remember to wrap whatever you select in back issues of "Weight Watchers" magazine.

Low calorie foods are ideal. Instead of the outsize box of chocolates you give every year, tie a red ribbon or better still a measuring tape around an assortment of melba toast, instant diet drinks, bouillon cubes, a basket of cucumbers (cucumber sandwiches make great late day low-cal Christmas snacks), or even cottage cheese, if delivered on Christmas day.

Another food idea offered by one New York store is a yogurt maker. There are about 120 calories in a cup of yogurt, and this machine whips up one and one-half quarts in less time than it takes to make a batch of brownies.

Diet books also are to be considered, but give several. A collection will give the overweight an opportunity to select the one that best suits him. By New Year's of next year, he'll be able to resolve to go on either the apple, avocado, banana, buttermilk, cereal, cheese, date, doughnuts, ad infinitum diet.

Other alternatives are low calorie cookbooks such as Nancy Gould's "How to Gorge Without Fattening Fanny." If you've already bought Julia Child's "Mastering the Art of French Cooking," save it for yourself and think of all the lovely "gifts for the weight watcher" you'll receive next Christmas.

The wonderful world of machines is not to be overlooked. Designed to take inches off "effortlessly" is the Dynabell Electronic exerciser. For about $69.95.

Special... MRS. JOHN BRECKENRIDGE displays an informative poster on UNICEF as she announces a UNICEF Holiday T.V. Show to be presented at 6:30 p.m. Dec. 22 on KMYT through the CBS Television Network. It will be broadcast direct from the U. N. General Assembly Hall. The sale of UNICEF cards and calendars, which are displayed daily at Warner Music Co., will end Dec. 19, according to Mrs. Breckenridge, co-chairman of the UNICEF committee of Magic Valley.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 years old, and enrolled in a creative writing course at school. My main purpose in taking this course was to get courage to express my feelings. I have been writing all my life, but have never shown anyone my work. Well, I loved this course as well as the teacher. He was one of the nicest men I have ever known. One day I expressed my feelings in the form of a poem and gave it to him. It went like this:

I dreamed you were my father
This dream did make me weep.
I dreamed you were my father
My love for you runs deep.
I dreamed you held me in your arms
And told me I was good.
I dreamed that you would punish me
Each time you thought you should.
I dreamed you were my father
This dream did make me weep.
I dreamed you were my father
The I was not asleep.

Abby, I never had a father, and in this poem I was trying to tell my teacher how much he meant to me. Well, after he read it, he never even looked at me again. He won't call on me in class, and he turns his head when he sees me in the hall. I feel so embarrassed and ashamed. I don't want to go to his class any more, and I don't think I will ever show my work to anyone again. Was it corny of me to have expressed my feelings in poetry? I hate being rejected, and believe me, I've been rejected a lot.

DEAR HURT: I think your poem was good, and I urge you not to let this unfortunate experience discourage you from writing, and sharing your work with others. Your teacher appears to be strangely insensitive for one who teaches creative writing. He cannot be expected to know the battles you are fighting in your personal life. (And you know nothing of the battles he could be fighting in his.) The feelings you expressed obviously turned him off. But I think he was more frightened than displeased.

DEAR ABBY: It is so difficult to know what is morally right and what is morally wrong these days. What used to be considered wrong 25 years ago is suddenly "right." How is a person supposed to know how to behave?

DEAR BIG: Let your conscience be your guide. For some strange reason, we now have about 20 million laws trying to enforce the Ten Commandments.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 6970, Los Angeles, Cal. 90008. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Local students think of others

Thinking of others . . .

A SHOPPING-SPREE by Twin Falls LDS Seminary students will provide Christmas gifts for Indian youths in South Dakota and the Duck Valley Reservation, Owyhee, Nev. More than 400 local seminary students participated in the project, purchasing a variety of gifts for youngsters 5 to 18 years of age. The M. H. King store in the Lynwood Shopping Center was opened before school hours one morning for the young shoppers. In the picture at right, Pam Call admires one of her purchases.

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls LDS Seminary students are making it possible for many Indian youths in South Dakota to have a merry Christmas this year. Perhaps for many of the Indian youngsters, this will be the only Christmas presents they will receive. The project of purchasing the gifts has been undertaken by some 400 local seminary students and a shopping spree was held this week, selecting items for youths 5 to 18 years of age. Some of the gifts purchased will go to the Owyhee, Nev., Reservation on the Duck Valley Reservation. Bob Kuhl, manager of the M. H. King store in the Lynwood Shopping Center, opened his store one hour early so the students could purchase gifts before going to school. Mervin L. Gifford is the Central Idaho Seminary coordinator, with Gayland Erickson, area supervisor of Twin Falls and Twin Falls West Stakes. The LDS Seminary program follows several courses taught over a four-year period, Old Testament, New Testament, Book of Mormon and Church History. Young people attending the classes get up early each school day, morning and attend a 50-minute class which begins at 6:15 a. m. During this time, they receive religious training over and above what they are taught on Sundays. A student who has completed three or four years of seminary receives a graduation diploma which is awarded him at a special graduation exercise sponsored by the LDS Church Stake Board of Education.

Debi Gilbert installed Job's Daughters leader

WENDELL — Debi Gilbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Gilbert, was installed, honored queen of Bethel No. 12, International Order of Job's Daughters, in ceremonies at the Masonic Temple. The Christmas Story ceremony was enhanced with new officers carrying lighted poinsettias which were placed in the east of the bethel to form a bell. Mrs. Earl Schrenk, aunt, served as mistress of ceremonies, and narrated the service. Officers installed were Teri Cooper, senior princess; Cindy Hoschouer, junior princess; Pam Parr, guide; Stacey Saffa, marshal; Pam Klimes, recorder; Kay Henderson, treasurer; Vikki Pepper, librarian; Janet Callen, chaplain; Karen Thompson, first messenger; Elizabeth Henderson, second messenger; Penny Bird, third messenger; Tami Gilbert, fourth messenger; Diane Glick, fifth messenger; Betty Tronson, lunar guard; Helen Maltz, outer guard; Cynthia McClood, senior custodian, and Penny Archibald, junior custodian. Chiel members are Mary Mowery, Janice McCord, Stephanie Hoekstra, Mary Bird, Bonnie Tronson and Terry Peterson. Jan Haganbothen, retiring queen, served as installing queen. She was assisted by Anna Schrenk, guide; Ynez Durfee, marshal; Mrs. H.S. Lamb, musician; Mrs. Mildred Frith, recorder; Mary Weenstrom, senior custodian; Sharon McCrue, junior custodian, and Cathy Gilbert, chaplain. Carla Bird registered the 100 guests who attended. During honors and escorts, the new queen introduced her parents and other family members, including her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E.A. Branch; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bowers, uncle and aunt, and Kenny McCrue, Jerome, uncle. Officials introduced include Mrs. Mona Marlow, guardian; Larry Nielson, associate guardian; Kathy Thomason, Jerome, Grand Bethel honor queen of Idaho; Kristi Roberts, Jerome, senior princess; Cindy Hoschouer, Grand Bethel representative to Hawaii; Mildred Frith, Grand Council fifth messenger; Mrs. Blance Bungum, Mrs. Earl Nielson and Tom Frith, past guardians. Marsha Hartwell, Jerome, honored queen; Sharon Bungum, Julie Strickling Want,

DEBIGILBERT

Scottsdale, Ariz., and Mrs. Gloria Thompson, past honored queens; Mrs. Dorothy Harris, Mrs. Helen Cooper, Mrs. Golda Lancaster, Mrs. Jamaica Hoschouer, Thelma Bunn and Phyllis Sonnichsen, Jerome, visiting council members; Ronald Lancaster, Jerome, worshipful master and worthy patron of the Wendell Masonic Lodge. Job's Daughters were presented from the Jerome and Glens Ferry Bethels. Other presentations acknowledged by Miss Gilbert was a check from Mr. and Mrs. Phil Hirrel for her project. A red carnation corsage was presented to Bonnie Tronson commemorating her election as "Job's Mother." Golda Lancaster was recognized as Miss Gilbert's "Job's Mother." All installing officers were given a poinsettia corsage preceding the ceremony. A reception and program followed the installation. A cake depicting the Job's colors was baked and decorated by Mrs. George Bird. Favors were lavender and white nut cups made by Mrs. Branch. The program consisted of readings by Mrs. Branch and Vikki Pepper. Teri Klimes was soloist, accompanied on the piano by Pam Klimes.

Book Review

By KATHRYN GALLOWAY
Twin Falls Public Library
TWIN FALLS — "X" rated books! Two are on the new fiction shelf of the public library: The titles are "Wild Goose," and "The Wild Runner," both by Mel Ellis. These books contain all that is expected of "X" rated books: adventure, rivalry, detailed description; love, whether emotional or just loyalty, and life of both poverty and plenty. Duke, the hero of "Wild Goose, Brother Goose" is a beautiful male with all male attributes. Told from Duke's point of view we learn of his loyalty to his mate; his care of their fledglings after her sudden death and his many encounters with danger. Our hero is an aristocrat of his species ingenious, keen of eye, a bird that flows with magnificent grace. With Duke, a Canadian goose, we relive two years of his life told so boldly that we soar with him in flight and feel with him sorrow and triumph. "The Wild Runners" is the story of a big dog called Buzz Saw by men. Buzz Saw was largely golden retriever, which accounts for his color; enough bloodhound to give him long ears, a loosely knit brow and strong legs with pads of iron. He was also part woods wolf. "The Wild Runners" is also the story of an American Indian halfbreed boy. Both boy and dog are "Wild Runners" for neither has a place in man's world or in wild society.

T.F. church women hold yule luncheon

TWIN FALLS — Members of the United Presbyterian Church Women held their annual potluck Christmas luncheon Thursday in the Fireside Room. The tables were decorated with Christmas greens, colored balls and candles. The regular business meeting was dispensed with and after lunch the group enjoyed singing Christmas carols, accompanied by Mrs. Mary Brown. Special music was provided by Mrs. Oren Boone, accompanied by Mrs. Kenneth Shaw. Rev. Edgar Toews gave an inspirational talk using the theme of Christmas which was not celebrated until three hundred years after the birth of Christ. He stated that God cares for his people and that through Jesus Christ He is saying, "I love you." The Christmas message today is "What God's Purpose Will Be Accomplished." New officers were installed by Rev. Mr. Toews who used an original poem for the installation. It was announced a new Bible study class will meet on Wednesday, Jan. 6, at 10 a. m. in the Fireside Room. All women of the church are urged to attend. This group will continue throughout the spring.

Camas club names leaders

FAIRFIELD — Mrs. Harold Stroud has been elected president of the Camas Prairie Extension Homemakers Club. Mrs. W. D. Simon is vice president and program chairman; Mrs. Norma Lang, secretary, and Mrs. David Lemons, treasurer. Installation will be at the next meeting Jan. 13 at the home of Mrs. Gwinn Rhee, Hill City. The Christmas meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Russell Pate, with Mrs. Dave Lemons and Mrs. Richard Dallin assisting. Handmade Christmas decorations and gifts were displayed by Mrs. Lonzo Baldwin, Mrs. Don Bauscher, Mrs. Wm. D. Simon, Mrs. W. H. Wilson, Mrs. Herbert Storey, Mrs. Richard Dallin, Mrs. Carroll Vansklick, Mrs. Dave Lemons and Mrs. Pate. Many ideas were shared from the demonstrations. It was reported that about $21.50 was netted from the Tour of Homes sponsored by the club. $20 was donated by the club to 4-H work. The next meeting is a potluck dinner with favorite recipes. Those attending are asked to bring the recipe for their dish.

Yule-basket distribution scheduled

TWIN FALLS — Baskets for the needy will be filled Dec. 23 and distributed that afternoon and evening by St. Edward's Council of Catholic Women. It was announced today. Any woman wanting to help with this project is asked to call Kathryn Bongoechen, 733-8306. Members brought gifts to go into the baskets during their recent meeting. St. Edward's School Choir presented the program, under the direction of Sister Myles. Refreshments chairman was Betty Fries.

Bullet belt makes debut

Yule party, held by area Soroptimists

NEW YORK (UPI) — The "little woman" is beginning to look like the Lone Ranger these days, from the top of her cowboy hat to the tips of her boots—and now including her cartridge belt.

The latest look in fashion fads in the making is the bullet belt that some of New York's chic set have taken to wearing, either along low on the hips or over the shoulder and across the chest.

Not content with wearing the pants in the family, these ladies have added ammunition that may really "send" the more militant members of women's liberation, but will send the anti-gun moll right up the wall.

The bullet belts are worn minus the bullets—at least so far—to black tie parties as well as with jump-suits and sweater and pants costumes.

It's too early to say whether cartridge belts will go over with a bang, but they seem to be catching on.

The most common price for the brass-on-leather version in department stores was $25, but a boutique version with silvered bullets was priced at $35. For the woman who likes fads, but not at $25 a clip, one store has its own American-made version for $7.50—with silver-colored plastic bullets.

BURLEY — The annual Christmas party of the Burley Soroptimist Club was at Bryan's Cafe. It was announced today:

Mrs. W. Gay Jones, president, welcomed members and guests. The program included a reading by Mrs. Retta Payne dealing with Christmas thoughts; a reading, "The Second Christmas," by Mrs. Harlow Cheney, and a closing Christmas prayer by Mrs. Glenn Bailey.

A gift exchange was directed by Mrs. Helene Coffey and Mrs. Ralph Butters.

Mrs. Jones announced the business meeting for the month will be at noon Dec. 23 at Bryan's Cafe. She said a board meeting has been set for noon Dec. 18 at the same cafe.

50th anniversary celebration set

TWIN FALLS — The children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Smith, 524 Monroe St., are giving an open house in honor of the 50th wedding anniversary of their parents.

Friends and relatives are invited to the function which will be from 8 to 9 p.m. on Dec. 20 at the First United Methodist Church fellowship hall.

Their children are Warren W. Smith, Garden Grove, Calif., and Ralph Smith, Buhl. The Warren Smiths have two children, Charles Roger Smith and Torry Warren Smith, and the Ralph Smiths have two children, Ray Dean Smith and Curtis Lynn Smith.

Mrs. Smith is the former Vorne Plymire of Bolot, Kan. She and Mr. Smith, also Bolot, were married at Lincoln, Kan., on Dec. 18, 1920. They lived in Kansas before moving to Richfield in 1937. In 1951 they moved

High score winners

HANSEN — Mrs. Ruth Wright, Mrs. Thomas Steelamith, Mrs. Vergil Ball and Mrs. Earl Tridle were high score winners at the annual Christmas party of the July Pinochle Club Thursday at the home of Mrs. Ralph Simmons.

Mrs. Wayne Smith was co-hostess. Mrs. Mary Taylor received a special prize. Kay Steelamith and Tracy White, Jerome, granddaughter of Mrs. Simmons, were dinner guests. Turkey dinner and secret pal gift exchange were held prior to the card game.

Stick 'em up . . .

FASHION FOLLOWERS of New York's chic set are now packing ammunition belts. A customer at a New York store tries on one of the belts worn low on the hips or over the shoulder and across the chest. Bullets are optional. One department store employe commented on the budding trend: "I'm against guns, and don't like it. What's next? Bows and arrows?" (UPI)

Separates women from girls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There's a way to separate the women from the girls. Look at their hemlines, according to Frankie Welch of Virginia, the noted fashion designer.

"During the short skirt period we all looked alike," says Frankie. "Now women want to look more elegant. Right under the knee is where the hemline is settling."

Frankie's boutique in Alexandria, Va., is a mecca for smartly dressed Washington women whose job or social life commands her wardrobe. "I pick for others what I'd wear myself," says Frankie.

She has managed to stay nonpartisan in her fashion designs. She created the green and blue "Humphrey" campaign dress and the Daisy" dress for the Republicans in the election campaigns.

But she is best known for her signature scarves, the most famous of which is the one figured with the Cherokee Indian alphabet. Frankie, a native of Rome, Ga., is 1-32nd Cherokee and proud of her heritage. She carries the Cherokee design in dresses and pants outfits.

For Lady Bird Johnson's beautification tours, she fashioned the "Discover America" silk scarf, and for President Nixon's inaugural, the "Forward Together" scarf.

Her customers, who include the elite among Washington-area wives, also own a "Frankie" hostess dress which can be worn six different ways and comes in everything from cotton to silk at prices ranging from $18 to $85, and fits any size.

Drunk drivers add color to our highways.

Nothing adds color to our highways like a car crash. And drunk drivers are involved in at least 800,000 crashes a year. And drunk drivers are involved in the killing of at least 25,000 people a year. Highways don't have to be this colorful. It's up to you. Drunk driving problem drinkers and abusive drinkers may be sick and need your help. But first we've got to get them off the road. For their sake and yours. Do something. Get in touch with the National Safety Council, Dept. A, 425 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois 60611. And your voice will be heard. Scream Bloody Murder.

BAR-S-RANCH HAGERMAN, IDAHO OPPORTUNITY SALE

We have sold our ranch and are offering all of our bulls for sale.

There are eleven two year old registered Hereford bulls for sale. All were purchased last spring at the Gooding Hereford Sale and the Clark Hereford Ranch Sale.

We are also selling four Angus bulls. One is a three year old, all other registered (registered). Two are registered yearlings out of our own registered cows and are very good. The third yearling is a fine calf bought in dam from Mon Raposa and is by the embryo 214 (bull sale). He is unregistered, but is eligible for registry.

These young bulls have not been over worked and are now in good breeding condition.

Valley Briefs

Big snowfall great for T.V. filming

SUN VALLEY — The big snowfall at Sun Valley in December has been great for the filming of the Peggy Fleming TV special at Sun Valley.

The lovely Olympic skating star and the crew of Bob Banner associates, the producers, arrived early in December and will be at work until Dec. 14. Jean-Claude Killy is here for the filming of the skiing scenes.

In contrast with other films made at Sun Valley when companies stayed inside and prayed for sunshine, the present director, Sterling Johnson, is happily shooting some of the scenes with snow falling.

Sun Valley is called the co-star of the production. Sun Valley was chosen for this role after the producers stopped by last March in a blizzard looking for a ski resort in which to film "Ascend into Hell," a story of FIS ski racers. They found Sun Valley, they said, "as overwhelming as everyone does. It had a magic name already going for it. It occurred to us that it might be the place to film the Peggy Fleming Spectacular as well as the ski script."

For today's ever-increasing breed of young beauties who want makeup that doesn't make them look made-up, Max Factor introduces "the young naturalists." The manufacturer says the new makeup promises to make a natural beauty out of any young sophisticate who is desirous of a more natural-looking look. Is it the new make-up?

If you wonder what fashion's all about, listen to Pierre Balmain's fashion philosophy. "I believe the woman is more important than the clothes," the French designer says. "A woman should never be a walking advertisement for a designer—the designer must help her be herself. Her personality has got to be enhanced and beautified by what she wears, and should not be overwhelmed by the dress."

Winter coat buyers ought to check the lining seams to see if same fall in line with the coat seams. When lining is tacked to coat hem, it stays in place and usually is prevented from gradually sagging below coat hem. Checking the lining and inter-lining before you buy is getting the most for your money.

DEAR POLLY—I find using paste floor wax on a cloth for removing paint from my hands is much easier on the skin than turpentine. Works well and has no smell. I also have been able to remove excess paint that accidentally got on a wall while I was painting the baseboards.—ALMA

DEAR POLLY—I have a great idea for making a gift that any girl's boy friend will love. Make a simple vest and sew buttons all over it until it is entirely covered. This gift cannot be bought in a store. The whole thing costs little if you have a button box, and if you don't you will find that most thrift shops do.—MARGARET

DEAR POLLY—We have found that small plastic margarine tubs make great individual popcorn dishes. They are a good size for little hands to handle.—BEVERLY

DEAR POLLY—My husband owned a jacket too good to throw away, but the knit cuffs were worn out. I bought a pair of girls' black-nylon knee socks cut about one-inch off the tops and about the same above the heels—this depends on how long you want the cuffs. I folded the socks just like store-bought cuffs and sewed them on the same way. That was done two years ago, and though the jacket is now worn out, the cuffs are still good. This would work, too, on children's snowsuits.—ANNA

THE BUTTONHOLES ARE SEWED SHUT AND I CAN'T PUT IT ON!

DEAR POLLY—A beautiful shower-curtain hangs in my bathroom and I don't like it if a plain white one is put inside as a liner. Hang liner on the same rings as the outer curtain. It will take the brunt of the wear.—ARVILLA

DEAR POLLY—Take six one-pound coffee cans, spray-paint them, and arrange in a pyramid with three cans on their sides with the open ends facing the same way, then two more on top of those and one on the very top. Paint at least 70 clothespins gold and attach clothespins to the cans to hold them together, and you have a wine bottle rack.—JUDY

GET BUSY WITH THE CANS... I'LL GO GET THE WINE!

DEAR POLLY—Using a dust cloth while in my wheel chair was a real problem till I put the cloth in a mop stick that has clamps. I can now reach high spots, tables, legs and many places that were formerly impossible for me to reach.—CLARA

Ask Them Yourself

FOR GEORGE F. SCHULZ,

Ex-Secretary of Labor

How do the Federal minimum wage laws affect salaried employees? Can the employer expect them to work an indefinite number of hours without extra pay?—Mrs. R. L. Fyatt, Ravenswood, W. Va.

● Most salaried employees are covered by the Federal minimum wage law. Unless a salaried worker qualifies for exemption as an executive, professional employee, or outside salesman, he is eligible for overtime pay. The law requires that a person who works more than 40 hours per week be paid not less than time and a half his regular rate for over-time hours-worked.

FOR WILSON D. MCKERROW,

Executive Director, Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children

Which society was founded first, the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals or the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children?—C. F., Brooklyn, N.Y.

● The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (ASPCA) was founded in New York City in 1866 through the efforts of Henry Bergh, who was concerned over cruelties inflicted upon animals, especially horses—the chief means of providing transportation and trucking at the time. The New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children (SPCC) was founded in 1875 through the efforts of Eldredge T. Gerry, an associate of Henry Bergh, and resulted from public concern aroused by cruelty inflicted upon an eight-year-old girl who was rescued from her tormentor through the intervention of the ASPCA on the grounds that the child was an animal.

FOR HARRY REASONER, newscaster

A friend of someone who was interviewed by you on "60 Minutes" told me that he was actually interviewed by someone else, and then the video tapes were edited to make it look as though you had asked him the questions. How often is this done?—Wilda W. Morris, Urbana, Ill.

● It's never done intentionally. When more than one interviewer works on a project—often because the reporter who is narrating the story can't be in two places at once—I think it's usually clear that the reporter is simply introducing the interview in question. There's certainly no intent to give the impression that one man does all the work.

FOR JOAN CRAWFORD, actress

Of all the movies which did you enjoy making the most, and have you made any recent movies? I'm a great fan of yours and would like to know.—Angela Bell, San Antonio, Texas

● "Mildred Pierce" is my favorite film because I was lucky enough to win the Academy Award for my performance in it. But I have two other favorites—"Possessed," with Raymond Massey and Van Heflin and also "Humoresque," with John Garfield. My newest, "Trog," was made in England and is a science-fiction film.

FOR GEORGE M. ELSEY,

What person now holds the record for giving the most blood?—John R. England, Green Bay, Wis.

● The American Red Cross does not maintain a national compilation of individual or group donations. There is no "national record" of the most blood given.

FOR ART BUCHWALD, columnist

In your column you slaughter sacred cows of both the Democratic and Republican parties. Are you a registered voter of either party? If so, which one?—Stewart G. Kool, Charleston, S.C.

● I don't belong to any political party. I'm against whomever is in power.

FOR TOM JONES, singer

Is it true that your attire for your TV show is personally selected by you and purchased at your expense?—A. Hooper, Huron, S.D.

● I design my clothing for my show, but it isn't bought at my expense.

FOR MARK DUNCAN,

Director of Officials, National Football League

Do football referees have to attend a special school like the baseball umpires school?—Leo Smith, Detroit, Mich.

● No specific school is established such as the Baseball Umpires School. Applicants, who have had many years of officiating experience on high-school and collegiate levels, are selected to join the professional football officiating staffs after having been observed under actual game conditions. All men must take yearly rules examinations, attend a lengthy pre-season clinic, and conduct weekly crew conferences prior to every game. The previous week's film is observed, and League reports based upon over-all performances are discussed in detail.

FOR FRANCES KNIGHT,

Director, U.S. Passport Agency

Is it true that the three-year passport has been extended to five years?—Mary Krauss, Trumbull, N.Y.

● Under Public Law No. 90-428, all passports issued on or after August 26, 1968, are valid for a period of five years from the date of issue, unless specifically limited. In addition, the validity of all outstanding passports valid on that date was automatically extended to five years from the original date of issue without the need of renewal.

FOR ROBERT YOUNG,

of the "Marcus Welby, M.D."

I have heard that you carry the real-life title of "Doctor." What formal education do you actually have?—J. T. Blackburn, Key West, Fla.

● I have absolutely no medical education. As an actor, I rely completely on the expert advice provided by the series' medical advisers.

FOR DR. ARTHUR E. HARRISON,

Professor of Electrical Engineering, University of Washington

How fast is the "gallop" speed of a glacier?—Mrs. Laura Hill, Humboldt, Saskatchewan, Can.

● Not all glaciers "gallop." Different glaciers gallop at different but comparable rates, moving as far in a day as ordinary glaciers move in a year. They quickly attain this maximum speed, maintain it for several months, then gradually come to a complete halt. In 1956 the ice in the Muldrow Glacier on Mt. McKinley suddenly moved more than a mile per month for four months, after being virtually stationary during the preceding 50 years. A huge "wave" moved 35 miles through the glacier five-times faster than the motion of the ice itself.

FOR DR. L. TED FRIGARD,

author of "B4D"

How did the "whiplash injury" get its name?—Betsy Reinhardt, Suixun, Calif.

● The whiplash injury derives its name from the similarity to the lash of a whip. The body serves as the handle and the head is similar to the knot at the tip of the whip which increases the lashing effect to the neck. Whiplash injury is the term used to designate the recoil injury to the soft tissue structures of the neck, usually as a result of a rear-end automobile collision. The term "whiplash injury" was first used by the medical profession in 1928 and recognized as a traumatic injury in 1953.

FOR MARTHA MITCHELL,

wife of Attorney General John Mitchell

I have heard several explanations about your early-morning phone call asking the Arkansas Gazette to "crucify" Senator Fulbright. What's the real story?—Mrs. D. L., Austin, Texas

● That was the night the nomination of Judge Carwell had been rejected. I couldn't sleep, so I called the Arkansas Gazette in my home state. My intention was to dictate a letter to the Letters-to-the-Editor column; My thoughts ended up on the front page.

Want to ask a famous person a question? You can through this column, and we'll get the answer from the prominent person you designate. Send question, preferably on a post card, to Ask Them Yourself, Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We cannot acknowledge questions, but $5 will be paid for each one used.

How Your Job

fed up with being alone so much."

Similarly, a suburban housewife on Long Island, N.Y., felt she couldn't put up any longer with the long night hours her husband worked as a radio broadcaster. She began to wonder whether he was staying away from home so much because he didn't like being with her or whether he might be having an affair. Questioning her desirability as a woman, she became depressed, and her health deteriorated.

Near divorce, the couple met with a caseworker of their community Family Service Bureau. The husband was made to understand his wife's emotional vulnerability and her feelings of insecurity. As a result, he applied for a change in his hours, and the marriage was saved.

When a wife complains to her husband, "Why don't you pay more attention to the kids?" her question is often symbolic of her own sense of rejection. But children, too, are affected by the nature of Father's job. Harvard sociologists found that middle-class fathers commonly expect their sons to go into the same general occupational sphere. Men in highly competitive fields, such as advertising, like to see their youngsters acting in a competitive and aggressive way. Self-employed businessmen tend to encourage individualistic behavior in their children.

Children are also affected by the tensions of a father's job. Take the case of Allan, a Miami man, who supervised plane loading for an airline. With planes leaving every 15 minutes, the work pressure kept his nerves drawn tight all day long. By the end of the day, Allan felt completely drained. For an hour after he came home from work, he just wanted to sit by himself with a drink. When his two sons—too young to understand their father's need to unwind—tried to tell him what had happened in school, he would lash out at them. This pattern was repeated night after night until the youngsters developed emotional problems.

Allan's wife, torn between loyalty to her husband and concern for her children, tried valiantly but unsuccessfully to act as mediator. Finally, she implored her husband to switch to a desk job with the airline, even though it paid less. In this case, the husband decided that family happiness was more important than his job interest and did arrange a transfer.

A man's domestic life is often influenced by the kind of work he does. Marital unhappiness, for instance, is rated high among traveling salesmen and musicians, because of their irregular hours and frequent absences from home. Professional work imposes strong commitment, potentially competing with the demands of family. Doctors, lawyers, and engineers often expect "professionalism"—high competence—from their wives and children. Executives, pampered at work by secretaries and assistants, frequently assume members of their family will also obey orders, and that their homes will be just as neat as the office.

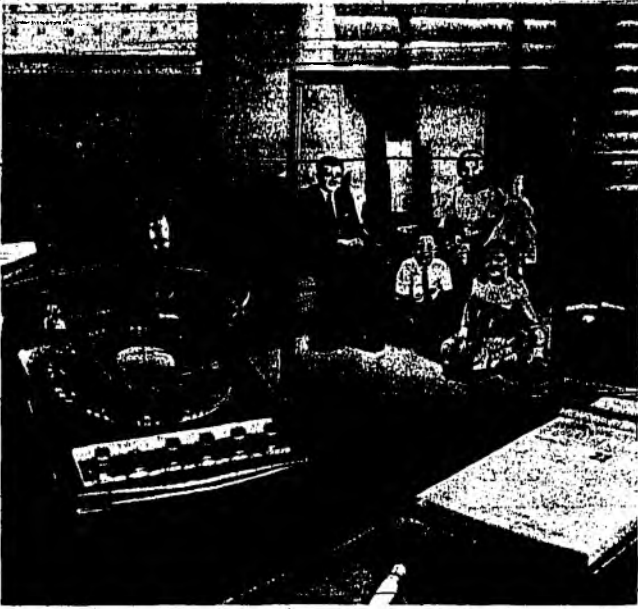

In contrast, factory workers in boring mechanized jobs—as well as blue-collar craftsmen and men in low-level office jobs develop a greater interest in home life. They look to the family as a haven from the monotony of their jobs and as a source of satisfaction that is missing in their work.

Men doing dangerous work (coal miners, astronauts, racing drivers) tend to expect their wives to be subservient. Laborers and service workers, more irregularly employed, are least involved in family tasks and decisions.

Odd working hours also have a significant bearing on the meshing of job and family. A University of Michigan survey revealed that afternoon-shift workers have special difficulty acting as fathers, while night-shift workers experience most discord with their wives.

Whatever a man's type of work, friction or harmony at home may be determined by what sociologists call the life cycle. A family is affected one way during the period when a junior executive is climbing the career ladder, or a young blue-collar worker is trying out different jobs. It's in these peak pressure years, Doctor Aldous observes, that men are likely to find it hard to cope with both job and family life. The squeeze eases in the 45-to-54-year stage, when job worries and financial pressures often lessen. Marital satisfaction usually increases, and career aspirations are apt to subside.

In subtle ways, too, life on the job makes its impact felt at home. If a man is treated with dignity at work, this is

When Bill Tompkins, an aggressive young salesman, was offered a promotion to be field representative with a boost in salary, he eagerly accepted. But his wife kicked up a storm.

She was used to seeing her husband every morning at breakfast and having him come home every evening—and a field-representative's job would keep him out of town for weeks at a time. Rather than fight a civil war in the family, Bill reversed his decision and turned down the promotion. But later, feeling that his career had been stymied, he began to brood and to turn away from his wife. A little more than a year later the couple separated.

Conflicts like this between the demands of a man's—or woman's—job and those of his home life have always existed. But nowadays they occur more frequently and are often more serious. Large corporations require their up-and-coming young executives to travel more. They also require them to relocate. In certain industries today a man may have to move his home every three or four years as he assumes new titles and duties, and the number of moves he makes is often a reflection of his success. But relocating means uprooting one's family from a familiar community and settling, often with some trepidation, in a new one. A man's wife and children may be violently opposed to

The breadwinner, therefore, finds himself in a dilemma. Does his career come before domestic harmony?

Dr. Joan Aldous, Associate Professor of Family Studies at the University of Minnesota, feels that it does. For the "overwhelming majority of men," she says, their work ranks first as a "life interest."

Professor Robert R. Bell of Philadelphia's Temple University, who has studied the effect a person's job has on his family life, agrees. "Given a choice between filling his occupational role or his family role, the ambitious man will choose his occupation," he says. "Often this will be socially applauded—for he may be defined as performing above and beyond the call of duty as family breadwinner."

When the requirements of a job become extra heavy, most wives try to cooperate, at least at first. Some corporate wives resign themselves to the "rules" and accept the premise that the company has the right to make certain personal demands on a man seeking advancement. But other wives begin to feel ignored, bitter, and unloved because they are literally deprived of their husband's companionship.

The wife of a much-traveled engineer put it this way: "In the past few months I've had to handle alone the premature birth of our new baby, a fire in our house one night, and the children's misery when our dog was run over. I'm can create a host of problems at home

reflected in his own attitudes toward his family. If he is pushed around by his boss, he may take it out on his wife and children.

As for the impact on children, much depends on whether a mother likes her outside job. If she does, the influence is positive; for instance, she uses only mild discipline at home. According to sociologist J. Richard Udry of the University of North Carolina, children of mothers who hate their jobs are hostile to her. These women resent the pressures of doing housework in the evenings and on weekends, and they show it in short tempers, fatigue, and family arguments.

What can you and your spouse do to avoid having work endanger family harmony? Clark Blackburn, the General Director of the Family Service Association of America, offers this advice:

- When a husband is so involved in his job that he cannot or will not cut down his efforts or his hours, a wife should concentrate on the positive aspects of the situation. She can be proud of his accomplishments. Beyond the bigger paycheck, she can appreciate her husband's ability to handle responsibilities or do important work.

- A wife can build her own satisfactions. She can work part time, as a volunteer or a paid employee. If her husband takes pride in her accomplishments, she will find them even more rewarding.

- Even when a man is under severe job pressure, a couple must keep their long-range common goals in mind.

- For both the father and working mother, it's the quality of the relationship with children, rather than the hours spent, that count most. Despite limited spare time, busy parents can let a child know they share his interests and hobbies. His problems can be aired and discussed at mealtimes. "No job is so inhuman," says Blackburn, "that you can't find time to be involved with your child. Make a point of demonstrating in indirect ways that you really care about him."

- The husband who constantly takes work home can't expect his wife to be delighted at being left to her own devices every evening. He should ask himself: "Is all this overtime work really necessary? Am I doing it to avoid her? If not, shouldn't I have more fun with the family?"

- To prevent blotting out his wife from his world of work, a busy husband should try to share his satisfactions and problems with her. If she is willing to listen, she can give him emotional and moral support. Whenever possible, he should take her along on a business trip or out-of-town convention.

- When family friction erupts and persists, talk it out. Try to appreciate one another's feelings and needs, and those of the children. In the process, view your long-term aspirations as a total family. Work out a family plan for the allocation of responsibilities and for projects to enjoy as a unit.

- If help is necessary to cope with a family crisis, seek professional counseling as a positive step. Consult your phone book for a family-service agency in your community.

"Every marriage has its testing points," says Clark Blackburn, "and pressures in a man's work can be critical. With re-evaluation and compromises, obstacles can be overcome and adjustments made. Such tests can usually be met effectively when there is a sound marital relationship with good communication between partners." ◆

... executives, such as one above, may be spoiled by office staff, then want same treatment at home. Workers with high-risk jobs (r.) often expect wives to be subservient.

What kind of a nut would make a pie this rich?

Diamond Walnuts.

If you're the kind of cook who won't do anything halfway, you'll make this Caribbean Edge Pie with Diamond Walnuts. We know you like to celebrate good times with a great dessert.

So, give everyone a taste of the Caribbean with lots of chocolate, coffee, rum, and Diamond Walnuts. Just for old times' sake.

CARIBBEAN RUBOS PIE

1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup brown
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup coarsely broken Diamond Walnuts
1 9-in. unbaked pie shell
1/2 cup Diamond
Walnut halves

Cream butter with sugar, beat in eggs, one at a time. Add melted chocolate, instant coffee and rum extract. Stir in flour and broken walnuts, and turn into pie shell. Top with remaining 1/2 cup walnut halves. Bake at 375° F. for 25 min. Cool. Top with whipped cream, if desired. Makes eight servings.

TURKEY MENU

Sherried Bouillon      Nibblers

Stuffed Turkey with Gravy

Parmesan Potatoes

Brussels Sprouts      Candied Yams

Cranberry Mold      Ginger Relish

Hot Dinner Rolls      Butter curls

Celery and Olives

Mince Pie      Pumpkin Ice Cream

Coffee

Sherried Bouillon

2 cans (10½ oz. each) condensed beef broth
1 cup chilled ginger ale
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ cup sherry

Chill ingredients. Combine in a pitcher; stir gently. Pour over crushed ice in 6-oz. glasses. Serve with nibblers. 6 to 8 servings

Roast Turkey with Cran-Prune Stuffing

A 12- to 15-lb. turkey
Salt
Cran-Prune Stuffing (see recipe)
Glaze (see recipe)

1. Prepare turkey for stuffing. Rub body and neck cavities with salt. Lightly fill cavities with stuffing. (Extra stuffing may be put into a greased, covered baking dish or wrapped in aluminum foil and baked with turkey the last hour of roasting time.) Fasten neck skin to back with skewer and bring wing tips onto back. Push drumsticks under band of skin at tail, or tie with cord.

2. Place turkey, breast up, on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Generously brush turkey with glaze. Insert a meat thermometer so that the tip is in the center of the inside thigh muscle or the thickest part of breast meat. Roast in a 325°F. oven, brushing frequently with remaining glaze.

3. When turkey has roasted for two-thirds the required time (3 to 3½ hrs.), remove from oven. Create a large piece of aluminum foil lengthwise to make a tent, and arrange it loosely over bird. Return to oven and continue roasting. The tent keeps turkey moist and prevents overbrowning.

4. The turkey is done when thermometer registers 180°F. 185°F., and drumstick twists off joint easily. (Total roasting time will be 4½ to 5½ hrs.)

5. Transfer turkey to heated serving platter. Let bird stand covered with the foil tent for about 30 min. This allows the meat to absorb juices and makes the bird easier to carve.

6. Garnish platter with lettuce leaves and pear halves filled with Cranberry-Ginger Relish (see recipe).

About 12 servings

Note: For roast capon, prepare and stuff a 6- to 7-lb. capon as for turkey. Roast in a 325°F. oven about 2½ hrs.

Cran-Prune Stuffing

2 pkg. (8 oz. each) herb-seasoned stuffing croutons
1½ cups fresh cranberries, rinsed and drained
1 cup diced pitted prunes
1 cup diced celery
1 large onion, chopped
½ cup butter or margarine, melted
1¼ cups orange juice

Holiday Idea in a twinkling with SPAM

SPAM 'N' EGGS-BENEDICT

SPAM - English muffin
Eggs - Hollandaise sauce

For this slice of SPAM, place on split toasted English muffin. Nestle a poached egg on top and drizzle all over with rich Hollandaise sauce. Use your own Hollandaise recipe or quick packaged mix.

SPAM SPREAD CUT-UPS

For canapes with a gay party flair, slice out several different kinds of bread with small cookie cutters. Toss with a variety of colorful garnishes like cream cheese, pimiento, olive slices, green pepper or even classy caviar. You'll like the good Hormel Ham in SPAM and SPAM Spread. Hormel FINE FOOD PRODUCTS

Combine stuffing mix, cranberries, prunes, celery, and onion in a large bowl. Gradually add a blend of butter or margarine and orange juice, tossing lightly until mixed.

Stuffing for one 12- to 13-lb. turkey

Glaze

Blend ½ cup butter or margarine, melted, ¼ cup cranberry juice cocktail, and ½ cup orange juice. Brush poultry frequently with the mixture.

Giblet Gravy: Follow directions for Orange Gravy (for duckling), using a mixture of giblet broth (prepared from neck, heart, liver, and gizzard of turkey) and pan drippings for the 2 cups of liquid. Finely chop the cooked giblets and add to thickened gravy the last few minutes of cooking.

Parmesan Potatoes

Instant-style mashed potatoes (using amounts as indicated for 12 servings)

1 cup grated Parmesan cheese

1. Heavily grease a 2-qt. casserole. Set aside.
2. Add eggs, one at a time, to mashed potatoes, beating thoroughly after each addition. Continue to beat until potatoes are fluffy. Adding gradually, beat in cheese just until blended.
3. Remove 1½ cups potatoes and lightly spoon remainder into casserole. Filling bag no more than two-thirds full, spoon reserved potatoes into a pastry bag having a large star decorating tube.

Force onto top of potatoes in casserole, forming a decorative design. If desired, refrigerate until ready to use.

4. Bake at 375°F. 35 to 40 min., or until thoroughly heated and top is lightly browned. If not refrigerated, heat only until top is lightly browned.

10 to 12 servings

Brussels Sprouts and Walnuts

- 2 lbs. Brussels sprouts, or
- 3 pkgs. (10-oz. each) frozen Brussels sprouts, cooked, following pkg. directions
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

1. Cook the fresh Brussels sprouts, covered, in boiling salted water 10 to 15 min., or until tender. Drain.

2. Heat butter or margarine in a large skillet. Add nuts and stir occasionally until lightly toasted. Add Brussels sprouts and toss until well coated.

3. Turn into a heated serving bowl and serve immediately. 10 to 12 servings

Cranberry Christmas Mold

- 4 pkgs. (3 oz. each) strawberry-flavored gelatin
- 2 cups boiling water
- 3 cans (16 oz. each) jellied

cranberry sauce

¼ cup lemon juice

1. Pour boiling water over gelatin in a large bowl and stir occasionally until dissolved.

2. Empty the jellied cranberry sauce into a bowl, and beat until smooth using a rotary beater. Mix in lemon juice. Stir into dissolved gelatin.

3. Pour mixture into a 2-qt. ring mold or a fancy mold. Chill until firm, a hrs. or overnight.

4. To unmold, quickly rinse a chilled platter with cold water (so mold may be centered). Carefully run a knife or small spatula around edge and tube of mold. Dip mold into a pan of warm, not hot, water for only about 10 seconds. Remove and briskly tap bottom of mold to loosen. Cover with the rinsed, chilled platter and turn mold upside down. Lift off mold. Repeat dipping procedure if necessary.

5. If desired, fill a small bowl with Cranberry-Ginger Relish (see recipe) and place in center of gelatin mold.

Cranberry-Ginger Relish

- 2 navel oranges, rinsed and cut in wedges (do not peel)
- 4 cups fresh cranberries, rinsed and drained
- 1½ to 2 cups sugar
- ½ cup finely chopped crystallized ginger

1. Grind oranges and cranberries, using coarse blade of grinder.

2. Combine with sugar and ginger; mix well. Chill relish until ready to use.

About 4 cups relish

Christmas Tree Mince Pie

Pastry for a 2-crust 9-in. pie

(Prepared from a pie crust mix)

1 jar (28 oz.) prepared mincemeat

1 cup chopped walnuts

1. Thinly roll two-thirds of the pastry into a round 1 in. larger than over-all size of pie plate. Fit pastry into a 9-in. pie plate. (Use overhang for decorative edge.) Set aside remaining one-third of the pastry.

2. Combine prepared mincemeat, brandy, and nuts and turn into the pastry-lined pie plate.

3. Roll out remaining pastry into a round large enough to cover the top of pie. With a Christmas tree cutter, cut out small trees.

4. Place top crust on filling. Complete decorative edge around pastry crust. Set cutouts on top of pastry in an attractive design (see photo).

5. Bake pie at 400°F. 35 to 40 min., or until it is lightly browned.

6. Decorate exposed filling with lines of white frosting and dot with red cinnamon candies (see photo).

Pumpkin-Pecan Ice Cream

- 1 cup canned pumpkin
- 1/2 to 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 3 tablespoons orange juice

- 3 teaspoons vanilla extract

- 1 cup chilled heavy cream, whipped
- Candied Pecans
(see recipe)

1. Mix pumpkin with a blend of the sugar and spices in a large bowl. Stir in orange juice and extract. Fold in whipped cream.

2. Turn mixture into a refrigerator tray and freeze until firm.

3. Serve in stemmed sherbet glasses, and immediately spoon Candied Pecans over ice cream.

About 1 1/2 pts. ice cream

Note: Pastry tart shells baked with a sprinkle of pumpkin pie spice may be cooled, filled with Pumpkin Ice Cream, and topped with Candied Pecans.

Candied Pecans

- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1 cup pecan halves

1. Combine butter or margarine and brown sugar in a small heavy skillet. Cook and stir over medium heat until bubbly. Add nuts and stir until they are evenly coated.

2. Spread out nuts in a shallow baking pan; place under broiler about 3 in. from heat. Broil about 1 min. or until nuts are lightly toasted; sprinkle lightly with salt.

3. Use as a topping for ice cream or pumpkin pie.

Beet Soup

- 1 can (16 oz.) whole beets
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 5 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 egg, well beaten

3. Heat beet-water mixture, sugar, salt, and lemon juice to boiling in a saucepan, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat and gradually add 1/4 cup of the hot mixture to beaten egg, stirring constantly; stir into beet mixture in sauce-

Mini Cocktail Biscuits

- 1 1/2 cups all-purpose buttermilk biscuit mix
- 3 tablespoons shredded Cheddar cheese
- 1/4 teaspoon ground thyme
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup milk

1. Combine biscuit mix, cheese, and thyme in a mixing bowl. Stir with a fork to mix. Cut in the butter or margarine; add milk and stir with a fork until blended.

2. Gently gather dough, forming it into a ball, and turn it out onto a lightly floured pastry canvas. Knead gently with fingertips.

3. Roll to 1/4-in. thickness. Using a 1- to 1 1/4-in. biscuit cutter, cut dough and place on baking sheets.

4. Bake at 450°F. 8 to 10 min., until biscuits are delicately browned.

5. Just before serving, split warm biscuits and fill with slivers of thinly sliced ham; arrange on serving trays.

Roast Duckling à l'Orange

- 2 (4 lbs. each) ducklings
  - 1 to 2 teaspoons salt
  - 1 cup orange juice
  - 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- Orange Gravy
(see recipe)

1. Prepare stuffing if desired (see recipe for Cran-Prune Stuffing, preparing one-half recipe). Set aside.

2. Rinse ducklings and pat dry with absorbent paper. Rub cavities with salt.

3. Heat orange juice and butter or margarine together over low heat until melted. Set aside.

4. If stuffing is used, lightly fill body and neck cavities with it. To close body cavities, sew or skewer and lace with cord; fasten neck skin to backs and wings to bodies with skewers.

5. Place ducklings, breast up, on rack in roasting pan. Brush with juice mixture and frequently during roasting.

6. Roast, uncovered, at 325°F. 2 1/2 to 3 hrs. Remove drippings to a bowl as they accumulate. Place ducklings on a platter; remove skewers and cord. Garnish with broiled orange slices, maraschino cherries, parsley; serve with Orange Gravy.

Stained Glass Window Fruit Cake

1 1/2 pounds pitted dates
1 pound candied pineapple chunks
1 pound candied cherries
2 pounds walnut or pecan halves
2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup KARO Dark Corn Syrup
1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1/4 cup Mazola corn oil

Grease 10 x 4-inch tube cake pan; line with greased paper. Mix fruits and nuts. Sift dry ingredients. Mix eggs, Karo, sugar and oil. Gradually beat in dry ingredients; pour over fruit mixture and mix. Firmly pack into pan. Bake in 275°F oven about 2 hours 15 minutes or until top appears dry. Cool in pan. May be baked in 2 (9 x 3-inch) loaf pans. Top with Holiday corsage and green velvet ribbon.

Lollipop Candy Tree

1 cup sugar
1/2 cup KARO Light Corn Syrup
1/4 cup water
3/4 teaspoon favorite extract
4 to 5 drops food coloring

Grease small cookie cutters with oil; place over end of thin sticks on greased baking sheet. Mix first 3 ingredients. Cook and stir over medium heat until sugar is dissolved. Boil, without stirring, until temperature reaches 295°F, or until drops of syrup separate into hard threads in cold water. Remove from heat. Stir in extract and coloring. Immediately pour into cutters to depth of 1/8 inch. Makes about 20 lollipops. Insert sticks into Styrofoam cone.

Dill-pickles and pimiento form the "holly" garnish for this Sweet Pickle Appetizer Ring.

Orange Gravy: Leaving brown residue in roasting pan, pour remaining drippings and fat into a bowl. Allow fat to rise to surface; skim off fat and measure 3 tablespoons into the roasting pan. Blend in 3 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Cook and stir until mixture bubbles. Remove from heat. Continue to stir while slowly adding 2 cups reserved drippings from bowl. (If necessary add orange juice to make 2 cups.) Return to heat and cook rapidly, stirring constantly, until gravy thickens. Cook 1 to 2 min. longer. While stirring, scrape bottom of pan to blend in residue. Stir in ¼ cup orange marmalade; pour into gravy boat.

Using a small metal spatula, shape (see photo). Garnish with dill pickle slices cut in holly-leaf shapes and pimiento berries.

3. Serve with garlicky toast rounds and assorted crackers. 4 cups spread

- ¼ cup light corn syrup
- ¼ cup white wine vinegar
- 2 to 3 tablespoons grenadine
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon grated onion
- 1 cup salad or cooking oil

1. Combine all ingredients except the oil in a small bowl. Beat with rotary beater until thoroughly blended. Add the oil very gradually heating constantly. Continue beating until mixture thickens. Chill.

2. Pour dressing over a tossed salad of dark greens, avocado chunks, and pomegranate seeds. About 2 cups salad dressing

Walnut Vanilla Caramels

- 1 can (14½ oz.) evaporated milk
- 2 cups sugar
- 1½ cups light corn syrup
- 1 cup butter or margarine
- 4 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 1 cup finely chopped walnuts

1. Combine the evaporated milk, sugar, corn syrup, and butter or margarine in a heavy 3-qt. saucepan; mix well. Insert candy thermometer; cook and stir over high heat until thermometer registers 210°F.

2. Reduce heat and continue cooking to 248°F., stirring gently. Immediately remove from heat. Mix in extract and nuts; stir as little as possible. Cool to 220°F. Pour into a buttered 9x9-in. pan. (Do not scrape saucepan.) Cool until firm. Turn out onto a wooden board; if candy sticks to pan, put over heat for a few seconds and invert.

3. Lightly press silver dragées onto candy. Using a long sharp knife, cut with a sawing motion into squares. Put pieces into bon-bon cups. About 2½ lbs. caramels

Sweet-Pickle-Appetizer Ring

- 3 8-oz. rolls liver sausage
- 8 oz. cream cheese, softened
- 1 tablespoon grated onion
- 1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
- ¼ cup well-drained sweet pickle relish
- ¼ cup chili sauce

1. Beat the liverwurst, cream cheese, onion, and horseradish in a bowl until well blended. Stir in pickle relish and chili sauce. Chill slightly before shaping ring.

2. On a chilled serving plate, spoon dollops of the mixture close together forming a circle.

Listless

While shopping, I like a grocery list. So nothing of importance will be missed; I note in columns, organized and neat, Lettuce and potatoes, ice cream and meat; Dog food for the dog, cat food for the cat, Boxes of cereal, cans tall and flat; I jot it all down with the utmost care, Then go to the store and discover there That my list cannot accomplish a thing, Because it is what I forgot to bring.

A woman who went to a formal sit-down dinner at the home of a very wealthy friend was so pleased with a delicious dish served that she asked for the recipe. Her hostess said she'd send it to her.

She followed the recipe carefully. It was marked "Serves Two," but the result was much more abundant. Baffled, she telephoned to ask if the recipe was correct.

The call was answered by the butler. "Oh, yes, madam," he assured her. "The recipe is most definitely for two—and of course, three servants."

QUIPS AND QUOTES

The coach at a Midwestern university was discussing the loss of a key football player with a group of enthusiastic Monday-morning quarterbacks.

"He'll be a tough one to replace," said one alumnus. "What happened?"

"Well," the coach replied, "he could do absolutely everything with a football—except autograph it."

A young father was telling a group of friends what a terrible time he had when his baby was born. He was recounting all his anxiety, his pacing up and down, the many cigarettes he used up, his lack of sleep, his exhaustion—and on and on and on.

Finally a young matron asked: "Who had that baby, you or your wife?"

The young man glanced over at his wife and smiled.

"She did, of course," he answered seriously. "But she had an anesthetic."

One morning four high-school girls decided to skip classes to go for a drive in the country. Coming to school after lunch, they reported to a teacher that they were late because their car had had a flat tire.

To their surprise and relief, the teacher smiled understandingly.

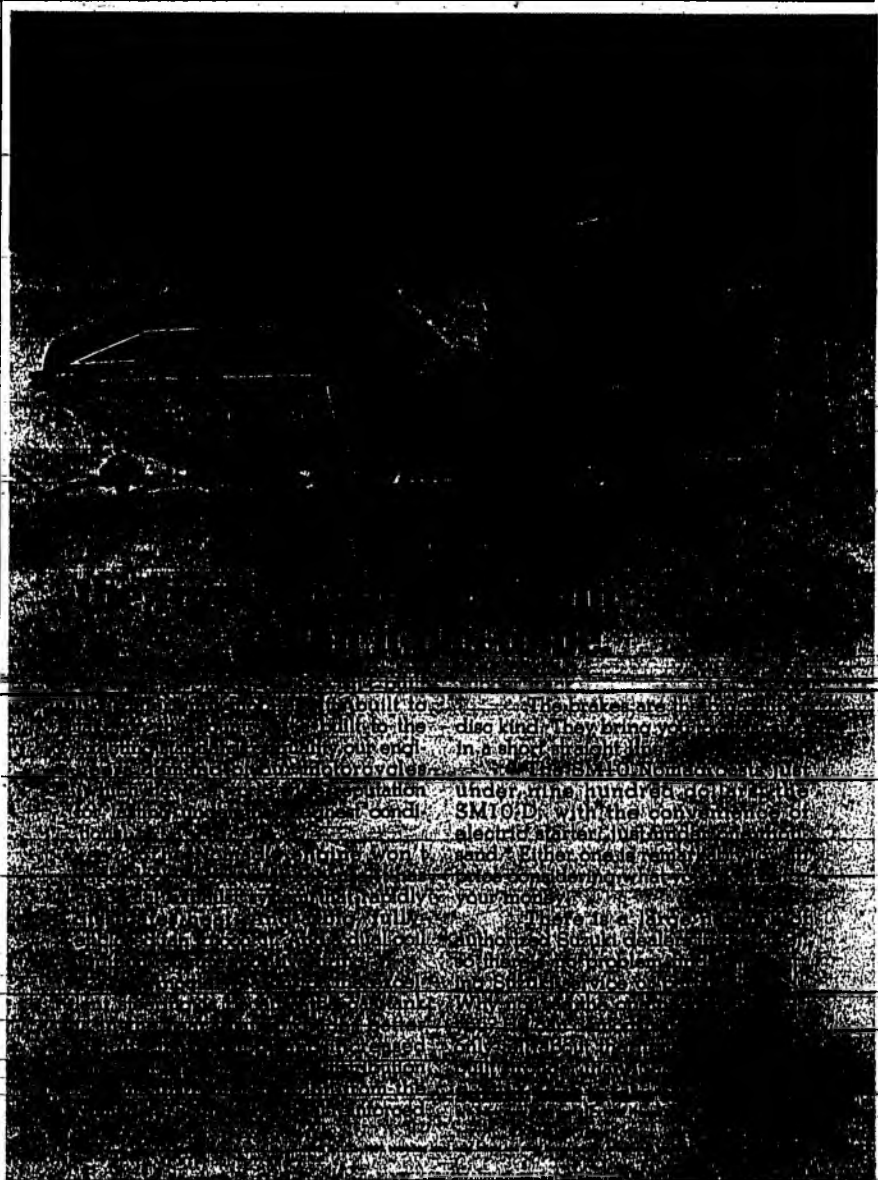

"I see, girls," she said. "But since you missed a test this morning, you'll have to take it now. Take seats in four different corners of the room and be ready with paper and pencil."

When they were settled, the teacher continued: "No talking, now. Simply write the answer to this question: Which tire was flat?"

JACKIE STEWART:

Go-Go Champ of Auto

By A. F. GONZALEZ, JR.

Sports-car racing champion Jackie Stewart would drive at twice the speed of sound if he thought he could stay on the track.

"The funny thing is," says Jackie, "I get no real impression of speed at all when I'm driving. The only time it frightens me is when something goes wrong. Then things start happening in a bit of a hurry."

Nothing went wrong in last year's multi-race Grand Prix season. Stewart out-drove everyone in sight to pile up six first places and speed home with the world crown atop his tartan-emblazoned white racing helmet.

But this year was something else. Jackie decided to switch cars—from a blue Matra to a March model, an English car with a Ford engine. Later in the race series he switched again to a Tyrrell. Outcome for the 1970 Grand Prix races found Stewart with only one first place, two second-places, and one third place for an over-all fifth in the standings. Aficionados agree that it wasn't the fault of the driver, but the change of cars. According to the experts, Jackie Stewart is the best driver in the world today—and all eyes are on him for the 1971 races.

Jackie is racy in more ways than one. He wears his hair in early Beatie style, likes bright yellow trousers worn with orange see-through shirts, and could be taken for a pop-rock hero. He's small—five-foot, six-and-a-half inches and 148 pounds of Scotsman. He's also very rich; he earned a quarter of a million dollars in 1969 alone. If he lives, he is likely to become the fourth superstar of postwar auto racing, rivaling greats such as Juan Manuel Fangio, Stirling Moss, and the late Jimmy Clark for the affection of racing fans.

He and Helen, his bride of seven years, now live in a $240,000 villa on the hills overlooking Switzerland's Lake Geneva. The nine-room mansion is packed with silver trophies and awash in fan mail and advertising contracts.

A keen competitor, Jackie is also a sharp businessman. "Naturally I live in Switzerland for tax reasons," he explains. "What else would you expect of a Scot?" He's signed up with the same business manager who guides the fortunes of top golfers. His money goes into mutual funds, franchises, and blue chip shares. Just five years after he started big-time racing, Jackie stands to take more money out of the sport than anyone else ever has.

"I am a true Scot. I have this ever-present feeling of financial insecurity," he grins. "I reckon I have another 10 years of championship racing. I don't want to win the title just once. That could be pure good luck. Fangio won it five times. That's the main thing—keep on winning and stay alive.

"Helen goes with me to the races," he reveals, "though she doesn't hang on my coat-tails. We have a full-time nanny to look after the boys." Jack is the proud father of two tow-heads, Paul, four, and Mark, three. Helen shuts her eyes to the dangers of the sport. "When you are close to someone it is unthinkable to think of anything happening to him," she explains.

There's no sense to that kind of logic, but it is an instinctive reaction with me. All the times I watched Jackie race, I always had the feeling he'd be all right. The car might go, but not him."

The racing world began hearing Jackie's name in the early 1960's. The speed bug hit him after his brother Jimmy, eight years older, went into the racing game. Jim gave it up after two serious crashes, vowing to give his parents a little peace of mind. Younger brother Jackie picked up the torch, however. To avoid worrying his mother, "I started out to race under the name of A. N. Other. I thought that terribly clever." By 15, he was thoroughly launched on a career of international competition.

Stewart dissipates hardly at all. "It's very important. You have to be alert. I drink very little, and I eat lightly. I have wine with meals but don't even drink that two days before a race. I keep in good shape, run, play squash, take sauna baths, and have massages."

Wee Jackie is the perfect size for the car—small enough to squeeze into its tiny, two-foot-wide cockpit, yet big enough to see over the hood. Like a jockey, his hands and arms are strong, and his eyesight is phenomenal.

Jackie analyzes his style of racing: "A racing driver synchronizes his mind and body to the elements he is competing against. He reduces the blur in front of him to slow motion; approaching a corner, braking, changing gear, lining up the car, hitting the apex, and leaving the corner with a calculated and unhurried action. You've got the track, the car, the speed, and you've got to merge them all into one, so that all of you are on the same wave length. To do it exactly right is a wonderful sensation. I get a tremendous thrill from driving a car fast and properly and proving that I can do it. Proving that I can go faster than anyone else."

His constructive reaction to death on the track has been to lobby vociferously for increased safety protection for drivers. He recently got one Grand Prix canceled because he felt the race was too dangerous on wet grounds. He's among the first Grand Prix drivers to use the six-point, contact seat belt, and he pioneered the idea of remote-control fire extinguishers in the engine compartments and cockpits of racing cars. He goes into races himself wearing a flameproof shirt and hood as well as fireproof socks. On his racing shirt are stamped details of his blood group and his R.H. factor.

"My critics say I am frightened," he admits, "and that's why I am going on so much about this safety business. I only say that if I were frightened, I wouldn't be racing." And he proves this by continuing to race, win or lose. In fact, Jackie Stewart can hardly wait to get behind the wheel, start the car, and hear that sweet varoom—varoom—varoom! ♦

PARTY LOOKS

for Every Life Style

We're at a point in fashion time when a girl wouldn't hesitate to wear her Pucci nightgown out to an evening party properly accessorized, of course.

That's an extreme example—but one actually seen—indicating the exceptional freedom a woman now enjoys in choosing what to wear when, especially after dark.

The fashions for holiday partying shown here tell the story. Unlike other years, when an evening dress was identified by its décolletage, the way to tell this season's holiday evening clothes may be by a jewel-buckled belt, or several bands of velvet.

Current styles can range from an understated plaid dinner skirt and satin top to a ruffle-hemmed dress, awash in glitter, that sparkles in the cover photograph. Simply cut, all these clothes blend their gala good looks with softly draped fabrics that move comfortably with the body.

FAMILY WEEKLY cheers those designers who are literally creating a contemporary evening look for every life style. Today's woman is not about to go back, for too long, to the tightly cinched waist, or put-up-with wearing layers of clothing and masses of accessories—not if she has a freedom of choice!

NOW THERE'S A TABLET FOR SINUS CONGESTION HEADACHES THAT CAN MEAN THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SUFFERING AND FEELING BETTER AGAIN.

Sinarest is a new tablet made specifically for people who get sinus headaches and congestion.

It was created by a research scientist who's suffered from sinus headaches nearly all his life. So he knew just what he was looking for. It wasn't a cold tablet or an allergy tablet. It was a tablet for sinus congestion headaches.

And he found it.

He called it Sinarest. And he made it strong so it would be effective. The idea behind Sinarest is to relieve your headache pain first and fast. Then to go to work on what's causing the headache. Your poor congested-sinus cavities.

To do this he used a pain-reliever that's easy on your stomach, a decongestant that helps drain your sinus cavities and an anti-histamine.

He even added a mild energizer to help keep you from getting drowsy.

Sinarest for sinus headaches and the congestion that causes them.

It can mean the difference between suffering and feeling better again.

Denture Invention

For People With "Uppers" and "Lowers"

For the first time, science now offers a unique plastic cream that holds dentures—both "uppers" and "lowsers"—as they've never been held before. It forms an elastic membrane that holds your dentures to the natural texture of your mouth.

It's FIXODENT—a revolutionary discovery for daily home use. So different it's protected by U. S. Patent #3,003,988.

FIXODENT not only holds dentures firmer, but it holds them more comfortably, too. It's so elastic you may bite harder, chew better, eat more naturally.

The special pencil-point dispenser lets you put FIXODENT exactly where it's needed. Results lasting hours.

Just one application may last for hours. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get easy-to-use FIXODENT Denture Adhesive Cream at all drug counters.

Vital Issues, Watch Out!

Here Comes Woody Allen

Mark Twain and Will Rogers were masters of the art of the "spoof," and comedian Woody Allen is their modern heir—a man who handles his worries over troublesome issues by making fun of them.

The owl-faced Woody, is a versatile humorist who acted as coauthor, director and star of a recent film success, "Fake-the-Money and Run." He is doing the same triple duty for his new film, "Bananas," while at the same time keeping a perceptive eye on the world around him. FAMILY WEEKLY decided to put some questions to Mr. Allen on various burning issues of the day.

- Q. What has television done for your mind?
- A. Over the years, it has improved the level of my taste to the point where I no longer watch it.
- Q. If you were appointed as mediator of the Arab-Israeli conflict, what would you do?
- A. Duck.
- Q. Why are you against meat?
- A. I never said I was against meat. I'm against eating meat. Actually, I like meat—as meat. I've been known to stare at a veal cutlet for hours; You can Issue-facer Allen turned director for new film, "Bananas," in which he also stars. At left, he is more or less at work on movie set.

- look it up, it's in the court record of my first divorce.
- Q. What's your new movie, "Bananas," all about?
- A. It's about man's search for truth and beauty in a world corrupted by material desires.
- Q. Interesting. What prompted you to make "Bananas"?
- A. I needed the money to buy a penthouse.
- Q. How has Women's Lib changed your life?
- A. I no longer regard women as sexual - objects. And no matter how much they beg me, I won't change my mind.

- Q. You once were a love-starved child. How did you overcome this deficiency?
- A. It's hard not to attract love when one combines virility, dash, and an animal magnetism that outrivals even Art Linkletter's. Actually, from being love-starved, I'm now so stuffed with love it's done dangerous things to my cholesterol count.
- Q. Do you think Americans pay too much attention to sex?
- A. Not the Americans I go out with.

- Q. If you were stranded on a desert island with one man and one woman, whom would you choose and why?
- A. My uncle Blender and Jane Fonda. My uncle Blender because he likes to swim a lot. Jane Fonda because she doesn't.
- Q. Do you consider yourself antisocial?
- A. You might say that. Once my father and mother taught me to wave bye-bye, they couldn't stop me.
- Q. If you were to leave the world with one message, what would it be?
- A. Don't call me, I'll call you. ♦

What in the World!

Snowmobiles to the Rescue Although most snowmobiles have been bought as recreational vehicles, some businesses are finding them invaluable for more serious pursuits. Cattle and sheep ranchers, for instance, have rescued snowed-in herds with the vehicle when they couldn't get through a blizzard any other way. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police are replacing their dog teams with a snowmobile fleet. One was pressed into service as an emergency ambulance for an expectant mother. And finally, more and more utility companies employ them to reach downed lines in snowbound areas.

One Man's Achievement In 1954 a public-spirited Texas citizen, who'd done well in oil, left a portion of his fortune as the Jim Collins Scholarship Fund for needy and worthy graduates of the Corsicana (pop. 20,000) Public Schools. The result is a school unique in Texas, and perhaps the country. Other local benefactors were encouraged; almost 80 students have received four-year college grants worth $1,200 a year. The school is also nongraded, placing students in class levels based on their past achievement; chronological age is secondary. The students know the responsibility to learn rests on them, not teachers. Less than two percent of the students have ever broken the code of dress and conduct (no drugs, weapons, disrespect, truancy). Asst. Superintendent Joe Seale speaks of Corsicana's achievements proudly: "All along we have known that boys and girls are more important than oil."

Hard Old Days? Ten years ago the average factory-production worker had to work 98 hours and 42 minutes to make enough money to buy a small refrigerator, according to the U. S. Dept. of Labor. Today it takes only 86 hours and 46 minutes working time to buy a refrigerator with two doors and a separate freezer. A 21" table tv required 90 hours and 29 minutes work in 1959; now 43 hours and 33 minutes will buy a 19" portable. And the beer to watch it with requires less labor, too—23 minutes for today's six-pack as opposed to 34 minutes 10 years ago.

Flameproof "Flowers" For years, the busy town square of Luton-Bedfordshire, England, was noted for huge ornamental floral decorations. But with progress, traffic increased, and soon gasoline fumes did lethal damage to every variety of flower the Parks Dept. tried to plant. Then Director Robert English hit upon a splendid idea: why not cabbages? These showy plants keep their vivid greens, reds, and yellows the year round and are immune to the heavy exhaust. The man-on-the-street approves of the vegetable decorations, but worries: if car fumes killed most plants, what must they be doing to us?

NEEDLEWORK

You don't have to be a Scotsman to like thistles. Here are some extra special ones to embroider. The lovely seed-puffs have a dimensional quality like the real thing. The wool embroidery has been sheared so it looks and even feels like thistledown—only this won't blow away and the "thorns" won't prick! The size is a magnificent 16 by 36 inches.

The rock garden has a serene quality all its own. Prim little blossoms rear straight up behind the striated gray rocks. Overall size is 18 by 22 inches. Both embroideries designed by Barbara Sparre.

The handsome fruitwood finished frames have an inner edge of gold to highlight the embroideries.
