Russian Venus probe silenced on impact

MOSCOW (UPI)—Scientific sources said today the unmanned Venus 7 spacecraft that landed on Venus Tuesday probably was crushed by heat and pressure as it parachuted down.

Their silence at that point paralleled official coverage of the three previous Soviet attempts to soft-land on Venus, none of which survived the descent intact.

The Lunokod 1 robot on the moon Nov. 7, reported Venus 7 descending by parachute Tuesday. There the official reporting ended.

Output declines

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The output of the nation's factories declined for the fourth straight month in November, indicating the economy continues to sag despite the Nixon administration's predictions of recovery.

Laird supports captive release

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A suggestion that 1,600 North Vietnamese prisoners of war should be released unilaterally has been endorsed by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird.

Such a dramatic, humanitarian initiative would breathe worldwide an expectation of response in kind by the Communist side," Griffin said.

Armor moves to put down Poland food price riots

WARSAW (UPI)— Polish troops and tanks won control today of three northern Polish cities where crowds infuriated by food price increases stoned Communist Party headquarters, set fire to cars and looted shops.

The Polish news agency Psp, in the first official report by the central government in Warsaw, said six persons were killed and several dozen were injured "due to the clashes caused by the hooligans."

The diplomatic reports also told of widespread arrests in the three stricken cities — Gdansk (formerly Danzig), Gdynia and Sopot, Poland's third largest metropolitan area and biggest seaport and naval base.

happened to exist among the staff of the Gdansk shipyards, adventurist hooligan elements, having no connection with the working class, demolished and set on fire several public buildings and looted several dozen shops," PAP said.

The Polish news agency Psp, in the first official report by the central government in Warsaw, said six persons were killed and several dozen were injured "due to the clashes caused by the hooligans."

Despite reports the uprisings were under control, Western diplomats said it appeared the unrest was spreading. They said they had unconfirmed reports of a coal miners' strike in the volatile Silesia area and that the government quickly granted raises. Warsaw was quiet, but anger was mounting.

The Polish news agency report came nearly 24 hours after the clashes ended, indicating it had taken the entire day to choose its words carefully and have them approved by the highest levels. What emerged appeared to concede that the dockworkers who started it all may have had some legitimate grievances but made it clear a hard line would be imposed.

"The necessary steps under these circumstances, taken by the authorities, led to the defeat of the adventurist elements and to the restoration of law and order. Simultaneously, the authorities warned they would react with full decisiveness toward all kinds of trespass of public order and against all antistate attempts."

Chiefs ask 'solutions'

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI)—Republican governors took a soul-searching look at their party Tuesday and generally agreed it must offer the American voter more solutions — not slogans — if it is to win in 1972.

It was a warm-up in some respects for a private breakfast meeting planned Wednesday morning with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, whose 1970 campaigning tactics have been both condemned and praised here.

Keller announced plans to retire Monday night. He has served 14 years as superintendent. He said he has spent 40 years in the field of education, all of it in Gooding county. He is taking an early retirement effective next June but plans to remain in Gooding.

Keller began teaching in the Wendell school system in 1931 and after three years there moved to the Gooding Junior High School where he taught until 1949 when he joined the staff of the state school in Gooding. He entered the U.S. Army in 1944 and returned in 1946 to the Gooding Junior High School.

Children's conference in turmoil

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The seventh White House Conference on Children reached the halfway point today with a sizable group of delegates threatening to revolt if they fail to win approval for a meeting of the full convention.

About 1,500 also attended a musical extravaganza Tuesday night called "The Sounds of Children" that featured preschool violinists, bell ringers, electronic music and a group of singing girls from Nebraska called "Ten Bananas and a Lemon."

The problems surfaced Tuesday, the third day of the weeklong conference held once a decade to focus on the problems of young children.

Andrus wrestles budget

BOISE (UPI)—Governor-elect Cecil Andrus said Tuesday he is asking state departments to come up with budgets necessary to continue present services in an attempt to close the $45 million gap between General Fund requests and estimated revenue. Andrus said even at that there would be a lot of "fat" on the budgets, but promised to balance the executive budget before he presented it to the Idaho Legislature in mid-January.

Earlier Tuesday, Andrus met with the Board of Health and said he asked members to come up with a budget necessary for continuing present services. The board gave him a copy of policy statements and also a list of proposed legislation. However, he declined to discuss the legislative matters since "they have direction from the present chief executive to put everything through that office and I wouldn't want to embarrass the board" by discussing the proposals.

The governor-elect said he will seek statutory changes in two departments before making the final decision on appointing department heads.

One of his changes would be dropping the requirement that the commissioner of finance be required to have five years banking experience.

Andrus said he would also propose two divisions in the Department of Commerce and Development—one for commerce and development and the other for tourism and recreation.

He said he had discussed the importance of taking health programs to the people with the Health Board, and noted regional health centers are one solution to the problem. In regard to the gap between the requests from the General Fund and anticipated revenue, Andrus said the figures he is now working with are not the budget. He said when he finalizes the final figure will be the budget for continuation of services.

Andrus said he would announce his staff's estimate on projected revenue at the end of the week, and said a recent estimate from the State Tax Commission is down "but not as far as people say."

On other matters Andrus said: "His plans for the department of administrative services were 'not concrete as far as areas that may be eliminated,'" He questioned whether earmarking 20 per cent of the sales tax to make up funds lost by the inventory tax phase-out is necessary. He said the Idaho

Education Association's proposal to place 20 per cent in education was "interesting." He said, "I don't believe you'll see a change in where the money comes from, but you may see a change in the figure."

He said "It's a bit strange the way the president fell prior to election and after the election. For a man who doesn't like governors, he traveled pretty much during the campaign."

Clean air logjam broken

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A House-Senate conference committee, deadlocked two months over a tough or relaxed approach to a massive air pollution control bill, has begun serious negotiations which prompted an aide to say "we're starting to get somewhere."

Congressional sources said the negotiations began Tuesday. The Senate has favored a get-tough version while the House has backed a more relaxed approach favored by the White House. The major areas of contention, according to the sources, involved exhaust standards for automobiles.

"It was the first time since Oct. 8 that anybody took off their coats, loosened their ties, rolled up their sleeves and went to work," said one staff member. "Now we're starting to get someplace."

The Senate, led by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, approved exhaust controls that would require Detroit to have virtually pollution-free cars on the road by 1975. Only Congress could change the deadline, and only if technology wasn't advanced enough so the automakers could meet it.

That approach won tentative conference endorsement in mid-October but the agreement came unstuck during the month-long election recess when the Nixon administration began applying heavy pressure for its plan.

Arabs shipping oil

DESPITE MIDDLE-EAST tensions and ancient hatreds Israel has started transporting Arab oil to Communist eastern Europe via a new Israeli pipeline that bypasses the Suez Canal, a British newspaper states. According to the paper, tankers carrying Arab oil from the Persian Gulf, many of them Israel-owned, dump loads of oil into the 160-mile pipeline at Eilat for pickup at Ashkelon by similar ships that take it to such destinations as Romania and Yugoslavia. (UPI)

High price due new canal lease

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — According to the Panamanian government the 67-year-old "lease" on the Panama Canal has expired. As landlords are apt to do Panama is going to ask the tenant, the United States government, to pay dearly before the lease is renewed. And the price won't be exclusively in rent, if Panama has its way. If the "lease" is to be extended amicably the United States will have to turn over to Panama much of the political power it now exercises freely in the Canal Zone — the 10-mile-wide strip of land adjacent to the freshwater canal. Sometime before the end of the year Panama will tell the United States exactly what it wants in a new treaty governing the canal. And by early 1971 Panama's ambassador to the United States, Jose Antonio de la Ossa, is expected to begin talks with U.S. negotiator Robert G. Anderson in Washington over the U.S.-controlled canal. Although the Panamanian position in the negotiations is not yet public, the small nation, now ruled by a "revolutionary" government, set up two years ago by the national guard commandant, Gen. Omar Torrijos Herrera, is expected to ask for everything short of operation and defense of the canal. Informed sources on both sides of the negotiating table agree that Panama does not want to take over the canal or the responsibility of defending it. As one high Panamanian official confided after returning from an official visit in Washington, "What would we want to operate that canal for? We don't want to operate any canal. We don't even want to defend it." What the country does want is jurisdiction over the canal zone. Most sources agree that Panama will demand in negotiations: —Control of the Canal Zone Police Department and court system which enforces the law for the zone's 65,000 American and Panamanian residents. —Control of the zone's customs houses and the collection of duties. —Control of the zone's civilian government which is appointed by the President of the United States through his secretary of the Army. —A percentage of the tolls which could amount to five or six times the annuity of $1.93 million the United States now pays Panama. Panama also will stress several negative demands in any treaty organizations. Government officials reportedly have told the United States to stop expanding the present canal because they consider such construction a violation of the 1935 revision of the 1903 treaty. The United States argues that construction, such as the recently completed widening of the main channel from 300 to 500 feet to handle more traffic, falls under the definition of maintenance as defined in the 1935 revision. Another complaint Panama will bring in the negotiations concerns the presence of more than 12,000 military personnel connected with the U.S. Southern Command in the zone. In addition to defending the canal, the Southern Command is in charge of U.S. military missions in all of Latin America and conducts several training schools for Latin American soldiers. But Panama argues the 1903 treaty provides for only enough troops and equipment to protect the canal.

Another Friday

MIAMI (UPI) — Christmas in Cuba will probably be a working day this year, like any other Friday. While no reference has been made to the holiday in Cuban radio broadcasts monitored here, observers of the Cuban scene point out that Premier Fidel Castro virtually abolished Christmas last year. At that time, the island was struggling to bring in a record sugar harvest of vital importance to the Cuban economy. Castro announced that the holidays would be celebrated in midsummer, after the harvest was over.

He kept his word, and Cubans had a holiday season centered on the July 26 anniversary of Castro's movement. The observers think it unlikely that the old Christmas holiday will be restored this year, considering the distaste of the Communist regime for all traditions connected with religion, and the fact that another sugar harvest is under way. Churches will probably be open for those who wish to attend Christmas mass, as in the past. But they will have to do so before or after putting a day's work.

Democracy faith must for teachers

RICHFIELD — Teachers must believe in American ideals of Democracy if they want to teach in Richfield. This is the point of a statement adopted by trustees at the monthly board meeting here Monday night. Supt. Nell Anderson said the need is for teachers, who by virtue of training and experience, know how to exemplify this faith for effective leadership of boys and girls. The people of Richfield want teachers, competent to teach in such a manner that practical citizenship values accrue to the public which employs these teachers, the superintendent said. Board members also discussed additional courses to be offered next year, particularly in the business education. Rules for regulation of the new student lounge have been made, with the superintendent setting guidelines. Students have helped arrange the room, Anderson said. The audit report of Bill Oakley, Gooding accountant, was accepted and the firm of Carrico and Oakley was retained for the 1971-72 school year. Christmas vacation starts Dec. 23, and students will return Jan. 4.

Pierce attacks fee hike

MALTA (UPI) — The Idaho Cattlemen's Association president has expressed concern for the stockman and the industry following the announcement that grazing fees on public domain will be increased 20 per cent. John A. Pierce, Alta, said the industry does not oppose paying reasonable fees to graze on public lands, but said it felt there should also be a fee for other purposes such as recreation of commercial.

Pierce said the industry is trying to assist interested agencies in drafting legislation to design a grazing fee structure fair to all users of public lands. He said the industry will base its legislation on the recommendations of the Public Land Law Review Commission. "Idaho's economy is tied very closely with livestock and agriculture in general and every businessman and employe in every town in Idaho should be aware of the cost-squeeze being applied to livestock operators," Pierce added.

Snow unit ordinance amended

HAILEY — Halley's snowmobile ordinance was changed Monday night by members of the city council, Dale Peterson, council chairman.

Peterson said several streets were deleted from the list of routes on which snowmobiles may be operated, and several others were added, in order to allow residents to get in and out of town with the machines. Councilmen also heard a report on the progress of the city's new sewer and water system. Peterson said 12,000 feet of pipe has been laid between Indian Springs to the city which is part of phase one of the overall project. He said bids for phase two are expected to be advertised within 30 days so work can start early next spring. In routine work, councilmen approved bills to be paid and heard various reports.

3-way X-ray tried

LONDON (UPI) — British scientists are experimenting with a form of three-dimensional X-ray so realistic one researcher said a view of the head was like looking into an actual skull through the eye sockets. Another researcher said the system could give the effect — when perfected — of a transparent patient who could be looked into from different angles. The three-dimensional X-ray is a joint project between the Aldermaston Nuclear Research Establishment and the Royal Postgraduate Medical School. Members of the team said the principle had been established but translating it to practice was difficult and expensive. They said they were hoping to be able to show the Department of Health enough progress to warrant a grant of from $72,000 to $98,000 to make one machine. The system, as explained in Medical News-Tribune, "freezes" light waves onto a photographic plate, a technique called holography. Then a very pure light, such as that of a laser, stimulates it to become visible to the eye in its original three-dimensional form. David Redman and other scientists involved are thinking in terms of a machine that would rotate around the patient and take 360 pictures in seconds. A radiologist passing these through a device called a holographic multiplexor could look into the patient from any angle he thought necessary. When and if the three-dimensional X-ray is completed, and the scientists said they were getting better results all the time, doctors and surgeons will be able to see the actual shape of, say, a tumor in the body.

WASHINGTON — The panicky haste with which the Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) Department began last September to shovel out a $75 million emergency fund to help desegregation of Southern schools has now resulted in the suspension of at least 15 grants — and that may only be the start.

South desegregate, the $75 million was disbursed on a "36-hour turn-around" basis; that is, no more than 36 hours between a bona fide application coming in and money going out.

This hurriedly made it impossible for HEW to obey stringent regulations written into the law to prevent Federal dollars from going to school districts still discriminating against blacks.

The problem arose from HEW's self-enforcing regulations which permitted recipient school districts to judge their own eligibility for emergency funding in the interest of speed. In a confidential memorandum to HEW Secretary Elliot Richardson Nov. 19, the acting head of the Office of Education,...

Moreover, so naive were HEW officials that they gave Republican candidates for Congress first crack at announcing local grants from the fund on the assumption it would be a political boost. In fact, however, HEW quickly learned the Republicans wanted no part of Federally encouraged desegregation.

The Jackson grant was ordered approved in a telegram from HEW in Washington to the Atlanta regional office on Aug. 27, four days before the application had even been received at the Atlanta office. That is just one sign of the panic in Washington to pour out the money.

More important, a Senate education subcommittee now has evidence that Jackson is ineligible because it had approved the transfer of state-owned textbooks to private academies (mushrooming throughout the South and attended largely by middle-class whites).

At issue here is no Nixon administration plot to circumvent the law and reward school districts cooperating with white hoodlums against desegregation. Rather, the Administration's purpose was precisely as President Nixon defined it last spring when he proposed the emergency fund: to help hard-pressed Southern school districts meet the traumatic experience of switching from 200 years of the dual, black-and-white school

That memorandum admitted that the Office of Education was "particularly concerned" by allegations of "subtle forms of discrimination" in school districts which had given "assurances" to HEW of living wholly within the law.

As a result, both HEW and the Justice Department have now quietly dispatched 100 civil rights agents to the South to investigate HEW's suspicions of violations and far graver charges by six civil rights organizations last month that the program was "a fraud upon Congress."

What they are certain to find, in the opinion of responsible HEW officials, are gross violations by school districts now getting a piece of the $75 million: the gift, lease, or sale of public school properties to private academies; discrimination against black teachers; racial isolation of black pupils in supposedly desegregated systems.

Beyond this is the impact of these violations on Mr. Nixon's hopes for the full $1.5 billion emergency school fund, now snarled in Congress with no chance of passage this year.

With conservative Southerners opposed, and liberal Northerners suspicious of the way the first $75 million was mishandled, the President's excellent idea may die aborting — along with other Presidential plans, well conceived but badly executed.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Serious Problem

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 17-year-old girl and I think I have a very serious problem. Having all the symptoms, I am almost positive. I think I have the venereal disease gonorrhoea.

back to him and ask him to check with the health department. He'll find that I'm right about your state having this law. (I have checked it to be sure.)

I tried calling our family doctor but he told me I couldn't see him without my mother because I was a minor. That's the last thing I could do over. I've also been told that county health centers help young girls and do not charge very much. The symptoms are burning of the urine two days after discharge started a week and a day after continuing fishing.

You have the classical symptoms of gonorrhoea, and the sooner you are treated, the better for you. Until you are cured, I trust you will take pains not to pass the disease along to anyone else. (Charles A.S., the boy you get it from knew he had it, so I don't think much of him.) No, you don't have to go to a hospital.

I will be 18 in six months. Is there danger in waiting that long to go to a doctor on my own? Can it be cured with penicillin or pills or something, or do I have to go to a hospital?

There's no fixed time as to how soon the disease will begin causing permanent damage if not treated. It is, after all, an infection, and can cause such things as scarring of the Fallopian tubes to the extent of making it impossible to have children later in life.

Our modern "sex freedom" isn't as enlightened as some people seem to think — and an alarming increase in venereal disease is one of the consequences.

If your family doctor still won't treat you without having your mother along, then go to another doctor.

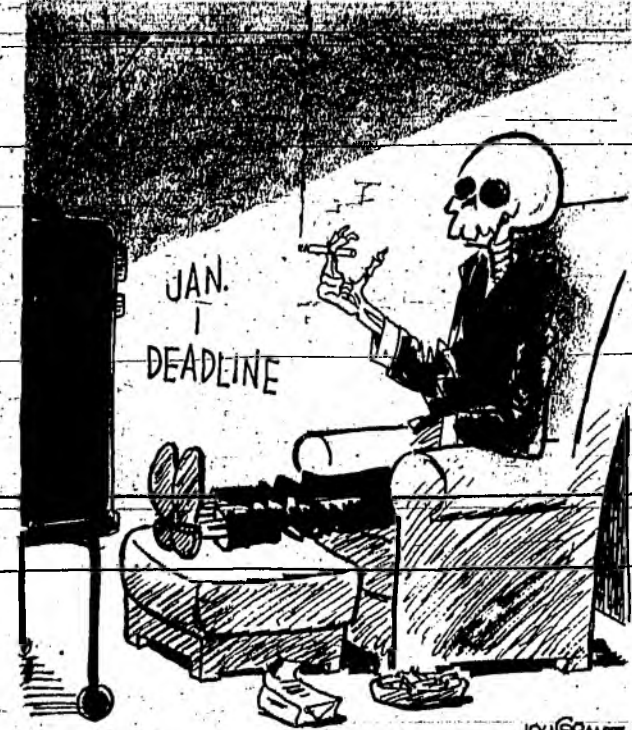

You did the right thing in going to your doctor; he was in error, because your state is one of quite a number which now have laws permitting physicians to treat minors for V.D. without consent of parents. Your best bet would be to go

Since some strains of the gonorrhoea germ now are known to be developing resistance to penicillin, it's wise to go back for a re-check later, in case added treatment with another antibiotic is necessary to finish the job.

OK, OK! You have anxieties about the uncertainty of the market — I have anxieties about the uncertainty of the market.

No More Laughs

WASHINGTON — The last person to laugh in the United States was Robert Ketchum on Monday, Aug. 3, 1970. There was no law passed to prevent people from laughing; they just quit voluntarily.

To make sure that people would go back to their old ways, Washington raised taxes, passed outrageous laws, told of international threats and gave out grim economic reports. Life indeed presented a dismal picture.

ANDREW TULLY

The Symptom

WASHINGTON — "Wally Hikel by himself is unimportant," said the conservative White House aide. "But Wally's a symptom of a situation we've got to face — that the President doesn't exactly have a united Republican Party behind him."

California Gov. Ronald Reagan's people already privately have said Reagan will seek the GOP nomination in '72. New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, on the opposite side of the spectrum, is also interested. So is liberal Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon.

"There's nothing to laugh about," they said to each other in despair. "Everything is rotten. The government, the establishment, the system and life itself. We're doomed to a plastic existence, and we'll be damned if we're going to laugh about it. If we show in any way we're happy, it will be a sign of weakness."

This is hereby, all right. But there is a practicality about it on a day, for example, when conservative Wally Hikel describes the heretical Republican, New York Mayor John Lindsay, as "a great guy," and tells a television audience he condemns this fall's White House campaign tactics and would oppose similar tactics in 1972.

"Toynbee points out that anything you did in the United States was eventually picked up by the adult population, and when young people stopped laughing, older people started to emulate them.

White House people tend to dismiss Hikel as a man whose constituency stops at the Alaska state line." But if not yet a household word, Hikel has achieved considerable celebrity by his much-publicized letter to the President last May which expressed sympathy with protesting college youths. And Hikel has announced he will tour the country making speeches on conservation-as-a private citizen.

Quite aside from the sacking of Interior Secretary Hikel for "disloyalty," there are other disconcerting signs of a handwriting on the wall for Nixon. Some moderate- to conservative Republicans deserted the President on the Senate vote to reject the administration's request for $200 million for the superonic transport plane. Without their defection, the SST would have been approved. And there is restlessness in GOP ranks over inflation, the Vietnam War and the administration's refusal to cut back on U.S. troop strength in Europe.

In effect Hikel has joined the anti-Nixon forces in the Republican Party. In doing so, he put his finger on the greatest weakness of the Nixon administration — its seeming lack of direction.

Advertisers, sensitive to the mood of the consumer, canceled all comedy shows on television; the networks put out memos ordering all laughter blocked from their programs, and newspapers dropped any stories or comic strips which might produce a chuckle for the reader.

In short, less than two years before he must run again, Richard Nixon is facing a growing discontent among the politicians whose support he will need even to be renominated by his party.

There were certain key clubs where people could go to hear a comedian or see a funny motion picture from the past. But as the older generation started dying out the clubs went bankrupt, as there were no young laughers to take their place.

The thought that a party would discard an incumbent President is so startling as to seem idiotic. For one thing, it would be an admission of party failure. For another, it would mean scrapping the political muscle that resides in the White House. Yet — the possibility definitely exists.

One reason is that party politicians, acknowledging that Nixon is a minority President, can't help wondering whether he can win again in 1973. Frank Roosevelt and Dwight Eisenhower were the recent exceptions to the rule that an incumbent President suffers an erosion of popularity merely by occupying the office, especially in times of turmoil such as now exist. Another is that the GOP is not lacking in most ambitious to take a which is leading Richard Nixon.

Laughter in public buildings was forbidden and considered exceptionally bad taste. Anyone who laughed in a restaurant or theater was asked to leave. The government contributed to the anti-laughter campaign by issuing pronouncements every day that things were worse than they were the day before.

Health Insurance

Since Social Security has become a keystone of national policy, the politicians have taken it for granted that nearly everybody is in favor of the principle and ever-increasing benefits.

above $2,000 a year. Beneficiaries would pay the remaining 20 per cent. The measure would apply to those under 65 covered by Social Security, or about 95 per cent of the employed.

As a result, the pending bill in Congress to increase benefits — and taxes to provide the raise — is becoming a catchall for controversial projects of all kinds, on the theory that no one wants to vote against the pension boosts and therefore will not accept the amendments, including $2.2 billion for a national major medical insurance program.

Another amendment approved by the Senate Finance Committee would set up a new federal corporation to provide child care through contracts with businessmen or non-profit groups to enable welfare mothers to go to work. Foreign trade restrictions and changes in the welfare system also have been tacked on to the Social Security measure.

Politics of a dangerous and cynical bent leads to inclusion of irrelevant and controversial items in popular measures believed certain of majority support. This is wrong in principle, denying each topic separate and objective analysis and debate, and leads to an inordinate complexity in the law.

Measure revision of the welfare system, proposed by President Nixon, deserves separate treatment and tariffs or quotas have no place in a social security measure.

National health insurance is too costly and too important a step to be taken without due deliberation and consideration of its manifold ramifications.

The lame duck session of Congress is doing once again what it has done time and again — but policies first and laid the groundwork for future controversy.

The present proposal, approved by a lopsided committee vote in the Senate, would meet 80 per cent of hospital costs after the first 60 days each year and of medical expenses

National health insurance may be a fine thing, but if it is determined to be in the public interest, it should be established with due care to prevent abuse, inequity of future breakdown, either because costs become unmanageable or because doctors and hospitals can't handle the inevitably increased workload.

U.S. Wilson

Few histories record the name Samuel Wilson, although the legendary name by which he was more popularly known has lived through generations as one of the strongest symbols of the United States. The caricature known as Uncle Sam may little resemble the man who supplied meat to federal troops during the War of 1812, and placed the initials U.S. on the barrels to indicate federal ownership.

Mass., Wilson's birthplace, are convinced that it is how Uncle Sam was born. When the curious inquired about the U. S. markings, so the legend goes, a watchman said they were the mark of Uncle Sam Wilson. Soldiers soon popularized the name, and it came to stand for much more than beef and pork.

But the people of Arlington,

A memorial for Uncle Sam? What is more fitting than the nation which adopted him?

Last week a big load of debris, collected by Prozak, was hauled away by a city trash truck. It included tires, papers, cans, lumber — well, you name it and it was in the load.

We have three puppies — seven weeks old — to give away. They will be small dogs and you can see them at 397 DuBois in Twin Falls or call 733-0373.

The newcomer to our community noticed the "mess" one day while out walking — so he started his one-man cleanup project.

From time to time we get requests for the correct addresses of our Congressional delegation in Washington. We have assembled them and pass them on to you at this time. Please clip and file someplace so when you need them you have them:

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Resolute in their effort to impose an unconditional ban on use of U.S. ground combat troops in Cambodia, Senate war critics sought today to block the Nixon administration's "dollars instead of blood" foreign aid proposal for the battleground nation.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., led a fight to push aside a $250 million Cambodian aid measure in the adjournment rush, contending it amounted to congressional sanction for a new American commitment in Southeast Asia. But administration supporters said they had the votes to pass the measure. The aid measure is accompanied by a ban on the introduction of U.S. ground troops or advisers into Cambodia—a provision inserted by Fulbright's Foreign Relations Committee before it cleared the bill for floor action.

But the impact of that provision was diluted by Tuesday's decision by House-Senate conferees to permit the President to send U.S. soldiers not only into Cambodia, but into Laos and Thailand, if he feels such action is necessary to speed U.S. disengagement from Indochina.

That provision was sealed into a $68.6 billion defense appropriations bill to finance the war in Indochina and other military activities. Removing it from the measure would be a virtual impossibility.

The action was a victory for the administration in its year-long fight to stop Congress from "tying the hands of the President" in the conduct of the war.

The Senate had unanimously written a ban on ground combat troops in Laos, Thailand or Cambodia into the defense bill. But the House version contained no such language. The conferees com-

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress is gearing to stop another national rail crisis by providing a $100 million loan guarantee to keep the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad running.

Both the House and Senate Commerce committees were expected to approve legislation for the government-backed guarantee so the nation's largest rail system can borrow to pay its help and keep running at least through Feb. 28.

promised—at the insistence of House Republicans—by adding language permitting the President to take action in any of the countries "to promote the safe and orderly withdrawal or disengagement of U.S. forces from Southeast Asia or to aid in the release of American prisoners of war."

A Senate subcommittee has approved the legislation and a House commerce subcommittee was to approve it before full committee action.

Trustees of the railroad told a House Commerce panel Tuesday they would be forced to curtail pre-Christmas freight shipments and shut down the 22,000-mile line within 30 to 45 days at a maximum, possibly even by early January, because of a cash squeeze.

The Penn Central, sixth largest corporation in the nation, went into receivership June 21. It connects with three-fourths of all industrial activity in the country.

Former Penn Central Secretary, William W. Wirtz and three other court-appointed trustees said the current crisis was brought on by last week's congressional action ordering retroactive 13.5 per cent wage increases for rail workers. Congress voted the pay raise through Feb. 28, 1971, to head off a rail strike that would have crippled commerce.

Rep. J. J. Pickle, D-Tex., a House Commerce Committee member, said he expected a fight on the House floor over the legislation, since Congress probably would have to take more action early next year to provide additional loan guarantees for the Penn Central.

But Pickle said, "Congress had little choice. The iron horse is a sick turkey," he said of the railroad.

Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe and Vice Chairman Dale W. Hardin of the Interstate Commerce Commission both endorsed the loan.

Volpe, saying a shutdown would be a "catastrophe of major proportions," added, "I could under no conditions envision the Congress or this administration allowing the Penn Central to cease operations."

Higher court due flag case appeal

By RUTH MILLER, Times-News Staff Writer
TWIN FALLS — A decision on a flag-desecration case made Tuesday in Twin Falls Police Court seems destined for test in a higher court.

Lee Koehnoff, 19, was found guilty of desecration of the American Flag in a decision handed down by Judge Harry Turner after several hours of testimony.

Parents of the young man and defense attorney Golden

Bennett said they would "have to appeal the case."

Koehnoff was arrested by Twin Falls Police in October following a citizen's report that Koehnoff had the flag wrapped around a sleeping bag on the back of a motorcycle.

Because of employment reasons Koehnoff did not appear in court Tuesday but his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Koehnoff, testified in his behalf.

Both said they believe their son meant nothing disrespectful toward the flag by his usage of it. They said, in fact, that he had traded personal items to a friend for the flag and before and since his arrest he has "proudly displayed it" on the wall of his room at their home.

On the day he was arrested, the Koehnoffs testified their son was preparing for an outing and they feel he only wanted to take the flag with him. They said they do not believe he was using the flag for a cover for the sleeping-bag because the bag has its own cover.

Mrs. Koehnoff said when her son left the house with the sleeping bag and flag rolled together, she questioned his judgment, but he assured her it was "all right."

Koehnoff said he neither "condones nor condemns" his son's actions. "If I felt, however, he actually had desecrated the flag, I would not appear in court for him," he said. Also testifying was officer John Wellard of the Twin Falls Police Department, a witness called by prosecutor Robert Galley. Officer Wellard made the initial contact with Koehnoff and later signed the complaint against the young man.

Judge Turner said although he believes the Koehnoffs' testimony that their son is a respecter of the flag and that he has been a well-behaved young man, he also believes "any time we begin to use the flag in a manner such as this or we allow this type of thing to occur, our system is in jeopardy."

Judge Turner said the United States flag stands for many principles. "It is a symbol of a principle." And, "one of those principles gives us the right to be here in court today and allows us to disagree as we are disagreeing today."

Bennett argued his client had actually committed no crime because the intent to desecrate had not been shown. He cited similar cases where flags or portions thereof have been used for purposes other than normal display. The cases he cited were overruled in court, Bennett said.

Pant suits approved

RICHFIELD — Nell Anderson, superintendent of schools, announced Monday that under a new policy girls will be allowed to wear slacks and pant suits to school.

Boys' dress was not affected by the ruling, Anderson said.

The policy was adopted by the school board for District 316 at its meeting Monday. Anderson said no blue-jeans or "cut-offs" will be allowed.

Stainless steel car rolls along

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Ian Kittle frequently drives a car that has traveled more than 650,000 miles and looks and runs as well as it did when it rolled off the Ford Motor Co. assembly line in 1935.

A vintage car buff, Kittle attracts attention in the Ford area near Detroit when he whizzes by in the two-door model Ford with a stainless steel body.

Kittle is district manager of the Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corp. in the Detroit area. He owns three vintage cars, but the stainless steel 1936 Ford, one of two owned by his company, is his favorite.

Originally, Ford Motor built six stainless steel 1936 model cars for Allegheny Ludlum of Pittsburgh, a leading maker of stainless.

Allegheny Ludlum first introduced stainless steel to the auto industry in 1931. The company originally had six cars built of stainless to demonstrate the durability of the metal and its beauty.

Two of the six Ford cars are still owned by Allegheny Ludlum. The cars are driven more than 35,000 miles a year to appear in displays at auto shows, county and state fairs and exhibitions.

In 1960 Allegheny Ludlum had Ford Motor build two stainless steel Thunderbirds. A few years later Ford constructed three Lincoln Continental convertibles for the company. All had the satin finish bodies of the type 302 stainless steel.

Murrin Held, director of product information for Allegheny Ludlum, coordinates the appearance of the stainless steel cars throughout the United States and Europe.

He recalls the day when a Thunderbird was driven up to an Italian automobile plant. He said the assembly line workers stopped working to look at the stainless steel car.

Held said persons who see the cars for the first time ask: "Won't it get rusty?" "What kind of metal is that?" "Has the car been painted?"

A group of Allegheny Ludlum officials, on their way to a meeting in one of the 1936 Fords, were stopped by a policeman near City Hall in Philadelphia.

Hot water beneficial

NEW YORK (UPI)—Hot water effluent from large power plants, far from being a source of pollution, could be of enormous benefit to mankind, according to one leading anti-pollution expert.

"Already hot water effluent from the big Hinkley Point power station at Bridgewater, England, is being used to grow shrimp to maturity in 18 months," said Dr. J. I. Bregman of WAPORA, Inc., Washington D.C. "In the natural waters of the nearby Bristol Channel, shrimp take three to five years to mature."

He said that since Britain imports $12 million worth of shrimp yearly, the possibility of using power plant water effluent to grow shrimp could mean a big saving.

British shrimp normally are cold water shrimp but shrimp grow fastest in warm water such as the Gulf of Mexico and overfishing has seriously diminished the yield.

Bregman said similar experiments to grow warm water shrimp, fish and lobsters are being conducted successfully with cooling water effluent from a big power plant at San Diego, Calif. A 5-acre pond is being built and will be stocked with 600,000 shrimp, which are expected to reach maturity in one year.

It also is believed that power plant effluent water can be used to grow lobsters to a size in two years that would take four to seven years in the sea, he said.

Bregman's company is a subsidiary of Alcolac Chemical Corp. of Baltimore, which is headed by the distinguished chemist, Dr. Vasolod Blinoff. He advocates taking the longest possible view of the problems of water pollution and water utilization. He believes any short-cut treatment will turn out to be expensive and useless.

Hot water effluent also could prove extremely valuable in agriculture, poultry and hog breeding and for heating homes and business premises, Bregman said.

While the cost and technology of distributing the hot water might be too difficult, it nevertheless is true, he said, that Consolidated Edison Co.'s nuclear power complex at Indian Point on the Hudson River above New York City can generate enough effluent to heat 800,000 homes. This would be done in the same way water from natural hot springs is used for home heating in several parts of the world.

He said some experiments are underway to show that hot water effluent used for irrigation can increase crops substantially. The public water board at Eugene, Ore., is starting such a project on a 170-acre fruitland tract using effluent from a Weyerhaeuser paper mill. The warm water also is expected to protect the fruit trees from frost.

Pacific Power & Electric Co. is conducting a similar experiment but is using electric cables to heat the soil. However, if the experiment is successful, the company said it would recommend use of hot effluent water instead of electric cables to warm the soil.

Country store atmosphere prevails in T-F business

TWIN FALLS—An old country store atmosphere prevails in the newest business in the Twin Falls mall.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Schiermeier have opened the "Sawtooth House" at 123 Main Ave. E. The firm deals in antiques and reproductions of some of the good antiques such as glass, bed warmers, English and Dutch influenced antiques. Schiermeier said modern cut glass from Poland and Czechoslovakia also are carried at the store.

The Twin Falls firm is a branch of the Schiermeier business at Sawtooth City north of Ketchum. "We're probably the only business on the mall that started out in a log cabin," Schiermeier said.

The interior of the store, in the former Barbara's Wig Salon location, is decorated with brick wallpaper, old style counters, a coffee grinder and pot belled stove. The firm opened prematurely Saturday, Schiermeier said when paper covering the new store front sign was taken down. People expect to see the store although the opening had been delayed awaiting arrival of more stock.

WITNESSES for the defense in the trial of Army Lt. William Calley, Thomas R. Parisch, left, and Salvatore Lamartine, right, told of instructions they were given in the My Lai incident. Parisch testified of being told to "kill everything" in a pre-attack briefing by Capt. Ernest Medina. Lamartine said he "killed everything that breathed" at the hamlet. (UPI)

By RICHARD CHARNOCK SUN VALLEY (UPI) — Gov. Russell Peterson of Delaware won support of a majority of his fellow Republican governors Tuesday for President Nixon's Family Assistance Plan.

After Peterson debated for the plan and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California spoke against it at a closed luncheon session of the Republican Governors Conference, those present voted 14-2 for the Ribicoff-Bennett Amendment designed to push the plan through Congress. There were three abstentions.

Gov. Louis B. Nunn of Kentucky, new chairman of the association, said Reagan voted against the plan. He indicated Gov. Jack Williams of Arizona cast a qualified vote "no." Governors Harold LeVander of Minnesota and Warren Knowles of Wisconsin and Gov. elect Winfield Dunn of Tennessee abstained from voting.

Nunn planned to tell Vice President Spiro T. Agnew about the endorsement when Agnew arrived at this winter resort Tuesday afternoon. He said he also will notify the White House and appropriate cabinet officials.

"There were some very strong feelings about the plan — for the plan," Nunn said. "We want to support the President."

Reagan was obviously disappointed by his defeat.

"You do not reduce or eliminate a program that has been a colossal failure by doubling the welfare rolls," Reagan said.

Reagan later issued a statement declaring that "the answer lies in a reform of the welfare system, not a new layer of more government programs on top."

The $4 billion Nixon proposal, among other things, would guarantee each family of four a minimum welfare payment of $1,600 annually and require able-bodied adult recipients to accept job retraining.

The working poor would be eligible for partial welfare on a declining basis as their incomes rose.

Peterson said he told his fellow governors that "people all over the country are upset by our present welfare system."

He said he argued that the amendment would make advances in welfare reform. He said he explained it does contain "inequities."

"But while it doesn't solve all of them it cures many, many more than it creates," Peterson said. "We should make it law and then work in the months ahead to modify it and make it more perfect."

Peterson said he, too, is concerned about the states' share of welfare costs and is aware that many are unable to budget for increasing costs.

"The amendment transfers more responsibility for the escalating costs to the federal government," he said.

Williams told newsmen he wants to see the plan tried out on a test basis in a few states first to determine whether it is workable. He said, "We cannot afford many failures in our welfare structure."

"I want to support the President and Agnew," Williams said. "I just want to do it in a different way."

Some governors left the luncheon before the vote was taken. Among them were chief executives on both sides of the execution.

"I have been consistently in favor of a family assistance plan," Gov. Francis Sargent of Massachusetts said as he pulled on his coat and prepared to return home because of commitments there.

"We have been reexamining welfare in our state," he said, adding that what Massachusetts is doing is similar to the President's proposal. "I favor the overall concept and whatever modifications are necessary to get the program through." Gov. Raymond Shafer of Penn-

Viets, Cambodians launch joint drive

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—The Cambodian Command today announced a joint Cambodian-South Vietnamese drive to clear North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces from embattled Highway 7. Light initial Communist resistance was reported.

U. S. Col. Am Rong, the official Cambodian military spokesman, said the Cambodian and South Vietnamese forces could link up by nightfall.

Am Rong said Cambodian troops set out from the supply base of Skoun, 35 miles northeast of Phnom Penh to link up with a joint South Vietnamese-Cambodian force that left Kompong Cham, the nation's third largest city. The city has been cut off from all land supply routes since Nov. 9.

Cambodian forces at the strategic towns of Meun, Prey,

Tolung and O-Dar withstood regiment-sized attacks with help from heavy U.S. and Cambodian air support, but were hampered by lack of helicopters to evacuate wounded and inability to reinforce their positions, reports from the front said.

The Cambodian Command said Viet Cong units carried out harassment attacks only today against Cambodian troops along Highway 4. Cambodian forces have been trying for three weeks to reopen the highway, which links Phnom Penh with the nation's only oil refinery at the port of Kompong Som. The long closure of the road has caused a fuel shortage crisis in the capital, although a tanker delivered 300,000 gallons of gasoline in Phnom Penh Tuesday to ease the situation.

At least four persons were injured in a series of terrorist incidents in Saigon, including the bombing of a hotel housing U.S. officers.

The U.S. Command in Saigon reported the loss of two Army observation helicopters to Viet Cong ground fire Tuesday. Five Americans were wounded in the crashes.

Lengthy report clears Douglas

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A House special subcommittee has ended its investigation of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas with a 924-page report that clears him of impeachment charges but brings out new details of his controversial relationship with businessman Albert Parvin.

The judiciary subcommittee report, issued Tuesday, discloses that Douglas once tried to get Parvin to lend him money to buy some property. It also reports that he sometimes exchanged gifts with Parvin while serving as the $12,000-a-year president of a nonprofit foundation sponsored by the Los Angeles businessman, a man that Douglas' critics maintain has links with organized gambling.

But the subcommittee report found nothing wrong in Douglas' acceptance of gifts from Parvin, and said the investigation turned up no evidence that the 72-year-old court liberal misused his office, advocated revolution, associated with underworld characters or committed other breaches of the law and judicial conduct claimed by his critics.

Conservative congressional foes of Douglas denounced the report and said they would press for a fuller inquiry. A liberal Democrat who brought impeachment charges against Douglas in April in a move to head off a conservative-led investigation said he, too, was dissatisfied.

Nampa school aided

BOISE (UPI)—The Idaho Board of Health Tuesday allocated $230,000 in supplemental funds for continuation of health department programs with the largest percentage going to the Idaho State School and Hospital in Nampa.

The state school will receive $200,000 to cover operating costs. The bulk of that money will be used to hire additional attendants to staff 10 new cottages at the school.

The board allocated an additional $22,433 to the environmental improvement division of the department for programs to control solid and nuclear waste.

Board Chairman Fred Humphreys, Boise, said should any other funds become available, they should be allocated to the environmental programs.

The division will use the money to retain a specially trained heavy equipment operator for the solid waste program to assist local towns and counties in scientifically operating disposal sites.

To help with radiation control, the division is asking that a senior physicist be retained, primarily to work with the Atomic Energy Commission.

Racing of chariots popular

By MYRTLE SCHRENK
Times-News Correspondent

WENDELL — Chariot racing is becoming a way of life for hundreds of horsemen and their families in the West, and Magic Valley is no exception, according to Dan Leach, Bliss.

The season officially opened Sunday for the Snake River Cattle Racing Association at Bliss with Tom Webb, Wendell, winning over Morris Nielson, Gooding, "by a whisker." The next race is scheduled for Dec. 20 at the Jerome fairgrounds.

Leach, who serves as starter for the races, recalls that cutter races are an outgrowth of street challenges among ranchers in Taylor, Wyo., who used to meet during the winter for "horse talk." Instead of a gun fight, the challenges took the form of horse races.

At first work horses were used to pull the bobsleds, then ponies, and now quarter horses and thoroughbreds are used, Leach said.

Shoshone and Paul.

During the season, the members compete with other racing groups at Boise, Burley and Jackpot, Nev. The season, which extends from December to late March, is climaxed with the world championship usually held in Pocatello.

Leach says the sport is not a money-making operation as there is no organized betting. The association provides the top five teams with a purse, but the greatest reward is the family participation, as the finale of each race, when the wife and children pile into the chariots of the winning driver and parade the length of the race track.

The use of quarter horses and thoroughbreds has encouraged horse breeders to produce quality horses and the sport has helped develop a market for their stock.

Leach says anything can happen at a race, as was proved last season when a member of the Boise Association died of a heart attack at the starting gate.

At almost every race a team gets over excited and leaves the track for the open country. Leach says his 4-foot-1-inch height is an asset in controlling a skittish team or an excited driver at the starting gate.

Two of the top drivers and teams are Morris Nielson, Gooding, and Tom Webb, Wendell, Leach said, and Bob Robinson, Bliss, is expected to be a top contender this season.

Other officers are Nielson, vice president and Jerry Loveland, Hagerman, secretary-treasurer. Directors include Webb, Wayne Thompson, Jerome; George Juker, Buhl; Howard Haslam, Bliss; Bud Rosberry, Jerome; Don Clark, Buhl, and Harold Peterson, Filer.

In Magic Valley, wheeled chariots are used when there is not enough snow for sleighs. Most of the chariots weigh about 120 lb if they are of all steel construction, and less if lighter materials are used.

The Cattle Racing Association was formed in 1964 and has grown from 13 associations in five Western states to 30 local groups. The Snake River association boasts 30 teams which are divided into two classes, 2-year olds and seasoned teams.

A seasoned team runs a quarter of a mile, while the 2-year-olds run a shorter distance. Members of the Magic Valley association come from Wendell, Bliss, Filer, Castlerford, Fairfield, Wood River, Richfield, Ketchum, Shoshone, Bellevue, Halley, WENDELL — Mrs. Ruth Lower was elected president of the Wendell Health Council at their Christmas meeting Monday held at the home of Mrs. Agnes Byce, Mrs. Warren Clary will assist as vice president and Mrs. Ray Tener will represent as secretary-treasurer.

During the business meeting a letter was read from Mrs. Lillian Barton, Nampa, former member of the group.

Mrs. Mattie Lorain, president, announced the new hospital-mattress ordered from Exerton Mattress Co., Twin Falls, has arrived and can be borrowed by contacting Mrs. Gwen Collett at the city office.

Mrs. Byce the hostess for the night had decorated her home with a Christmas motif. Following the business meeting the group enjoyed a social hour and a gift exchange.

Buys Idaho craft

MINIATURE NATIVITY scene of Idaho-made pottery appealed to Mrs. Paul Sherman, New Jersey, traveling to Sun Valley for the governors' conference with the party of Gov. William Cahill. Typical of the shoppers, she selected the Idaho souvenir at the Leadville Art Gallery in Ketchum.

Gems appeal to Republicans

SUN VALLEY — Women attending the Republican Governors' Convention did lots of shopping this week at the Idaho resort and what seemed to hold the most appeal were art forms of the Republican party symbol, the elephant, and Gem State gems.

Betsy Douglas, who owns and operates the America Shop in Sun Valley Lodge, said many sculptures, metal pieces and small paintings of elephants were provided for the Republican delegates and nearly all were gone. Tiny silver elephants made by Sun Valley artist Luther Douglas for the shop proved extremely popular.

Many of the governors' wives and other women delegates also wanted the sterling silver jewelry set in rare gems, especially those which came from Idaho desert and mountain areas. Opal, agate and amethyst jewelry set in silver ring mountings proved extremely popular. Zodiac jewelry and art were also in demand, Mrs. Douglas said.

Some sculpture items, especially the smaller ones were also popular, especially if done by Idaho and other western state artists.

At the Leadville Art Gallery, in Ketchum, housed in one of the oldest buildings in the old mining town of Leadville, where women were taken by bus for a special visit Monday, many women purchased items made of Idaho clay and by Idaho artists, painting of the Idaho resort and other western scenes.

Time against red Viet negotiators

PARIS (UPI) — Time is working against negotiators in Paris, and there are growing indications Hanoi and the Viet Cong are feeling increasingly defensive about their settlement demands.

Although the Communists had insisted for more than a year that they would never budge from their May, 1969, demands for a negotiated settlement, the Viet Cong nonetheless felt compelled on Sept. 17 to sweeten — if only slightly — their "global peace solution" which the United States and Saigon have found too bitter to swallow.

Possibly because the Viet Cong have been taking some propaganda bumps on the prisoner of war issue, VC delegate Mine. Nguyen Thi said on Sept. 17 dropped her insistence that talks about prisoners could not be held until all other political issues were settled. She and the North Vietnamese delegate agreed to enter into prompt discussions about prisoners, if (and that's a

"Creativity gap" threatening industry

College tests set

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Creativity gap" that is reducing the flow of new inventions has become a threat to American industry, two patent experts said today.

Richard Fenner of New Orleans, a prolific inventor and Raymond Lee of New York, who founded a national firm in 1962 to help grass roots inventors patent and sell their ideas, agreed that industry needs to look beyond the regular corporate research and development departments for significant inventions.

"Many workers who deal with production and distribution have more practical ideas than the isolated corporate research man," said Fenner.

"Too many ordinary folk have good inventive ideas but just let them slide," says Lee. "They have the mistaken notion that it takes thousands of dollars and expert engineering knowledge to get a patent."

Fenner and Lee agreed that the first essential in perfecting an idea and getting a patent is to take it seriously enough to keep accurate records right from the start. "Make a rough sketch of your proposed invention, write a description of it, sign and date both and have them witnessed by someone trustworthy," says Lee. "Be sure the witnesses aren't related to you," adds Fenner. "A court will not accept relatives as witnesses."

Fenner said it's also important to leave nothing out of the description. "Don't hold any secrets and don't erase any mistakes, leave them and add the corrections," he said. "It's best not to use a loose-leaf notebook for your notes and to attach the dated notes slip for the notebook itself."

Fenner told of losing exclusive rights to what he regarded as his best invention, the Perma-Press system for garments, because he didn't take the idea to the patent office quickly enough.

Lee, whose firm has offices in Boston, Dallas and Los Angeles as well as New York, established his business what other agencies do for corporations — help get and give advice on marketing the invention.

In the past eight years, the Lee Organization has received a substantial flow of grass roots inventions. "Interestingly enough," he said, "they reflect the general social and business trends of our time. Many are for recreation and leisure. Others seek to improve the Most interesting fact of all is that 30 per cent of the ideas come from women. When we started eight years ago, we rarely encountered a female interested in inventing something."

In not every case does the Lee Organization recommend that even a marketable idea be patented.

District clerks meeting

TWIN FALLS — Clerks and their deputy clerks from all counties in the Fifth Judicial District were meeting in Twin Falls today for an afternoon seminar on court reform procedure.

Judge Theron W. Ward was scheduled to address the group on court reform procedure in the local district. Other seminar speakers included Walter Fry, Canyon County; Clarence Phanting, Ada County; and August Bethke, Blaine County.

Harold Lancaster, Twin Falls County clerk, said all phases of the new system including fee collections, auditing of various fines and fees and docketing of court matters would be covered in the afternoon program.

Nixon's threat needed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon said his threat to resume bombing of North Vietnam if Hanoi increases the level of fighting in the South was necessary to insure continued withdrawal of American forces.

This went beyond previous guidelines and, naturally, has raised the question whether the "Vietnamization" program, under which Saigon's forces are supposed to be taking over most of ground combat, is really working.

This question has been raised not by the usual critics of administration Indochina policy, who have concentrated on charging that Nixon is turning back the clock and widening the war. It has been raised by several representatives here of U.S. allies in NATO, who are anxious to see Nixon succeed in extricating the United States from the war.

Until very recently, administration officials were virtually unanimous in picturing Hanoi's forces as badly mauled and incapable of mounting any significant offensive.

Now, however, intelligence reports tell of relatively heavy infiltration south along the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos since the dry season began in October. And the North Vietnamese have begun building up a major headquarters and supply base in southern Laos just across the border from the narrow neck of northern South Vietnam.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, is said by Pentagon officials to have asked President Nixon to delay any more troop withdrawals below the 34,700-man level reached this week, three weeks ahead of schedule. Abrams wants to hold up on a promised withdrawal of an additional 50,000 by May 1 until he can determine the real extent of the danger.

Some high administration officials believe that North Vietnam is preparing a major assault against Cambodia.

Nixon said at last week's news conference that he could foresee no circumstances that would lead him to send American ground forces back into Cambodia. Any assistance for that country is supposed to be furnished by South Vietnamese troops. But the withdrawal of any considerable number of them from their present holding positions in South Vietnam would provide a major setback for the "Vietnamization" program.

Rockefeller's next move uncertain

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—Winthrop Rockefeller, who adopted Arkansas 17 years ago, took a bad beating at the hands of Arkansas voters Nov. 3 when he tried for a third term as governor.

It was an especially hard blow since he had deemed it necessary, more than the other members of his famous family, to prove his merit. He had been called the black sheep of the playboy Rockefeller, and few men in public life had received a worse press.

More than a month after his loss he was coming out of the depression. But his plans are uncertain, his next move undecided.

It took Winthrop Rockefeller a long time to keep reporters from tagging him with that insupportable title. Mentioning his family settled on Petit Jean Mountain northwest of Little Rock with its great view of the rolling Arkansas River and surrounded by the 6,000 verdant acres of Winrock Farms, which he purchased to go with it.

In 1961, the Rockefeller they used to call a ladies man, who quit Yale to go roughing it in millions. Up went buildings, housing developments and an arts center. He pumped money into schools, hospitals and education programs. He got busy in the state's mothy old Republican party and soon it was moving and shaking.

In 1961, the Rockefeller they used to call a ladies man, who quit Yale to go roughing it in the three all states named Republican national committee man for Arkansas.

He tried for governor in 1964 and lost to six-term leader Orval Faubus, considered unbeatable by anyone. The next time around Faubus stepped down and Rockefeller won, the first GOP governor of Arkansas since Reconstruction. He won again in 1968 and this year was they said, a grumbled man.

But in November, his try for a third term was defeated by a country lawyer, a Democrat with the unlikely name of Dale L. Bumpers.

For three days Rockefeller did not see anyone. He made no statement election night nor did he appear the next day. He was, they said, a grumbled man.

Autumn prices mixed

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said prices received by Idaho farmers for the month ending Nov. 15 were mixed with crop prices generally higher and livestock prices lower.

The report said prices received for wheat, oats, barley, mixed grain, potatoes, dry beans and alfalfa hay were all higher than the October prices.

Apples and dry peas were unchanged, with only alfalfa seed showing a decrease in price.

Prices shown for beef cattle, cows, steers, and heifers, calves, lambs and hogs.

Gem spud stocks hit peak mark

BOISE (UPI) — Total stocks of potatoes held by growers, dealers and processors in Idaho Dec. 1 is estimated at 62.6 million hundredweight, according to the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Stocks at the estimated level are a record for the date, exceeding the previous record high last year by eight percent.

The quality of this year's potato stocks is reported to be very good, the announcement said.

Pack sets second try

KIMBERLY — Members of Cub Scout Pack 42 will try again Saturday to deliver funds to Karyn Prestwich, 6-year-old Salmon girl who is recovering from a gunshot wound in the University of Utah Hospital, Salt Lake City.

Members of the pack sponsored by the Kimberly Methodist Church, were to go to Salt Lake City last weekend to deliver more than $300 to the girl, but hospital officials canceled the trip because of her condition.

Harry Givens, club leader said the girl was accidentally shot last month by a 10-year-old boy while she was standing on a highway near the town of North Park, and was taken to Salt Lake City for treatment.

Ex-soldier says Lt. Calley ordered "wipe out" of village

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—A former soldier testified Tuesday that Lt. William L. Calley's commander, Capt. Ernest Medina, ordered the Vietnamese village of My Lai wiped out, then later advised his men to keep "quiet" about it.

Michael A. Bernhardt, 34, a surveyor from Tarpon Springs, Fla., told of seeing Medina personally shoot and kill a woman picking rice in a field, and also recalled that Medina had with his troops — one of them the day prior to the My Lai mission and the other three days after an alleged massacre was carried out in the village.

Calley, who led one of the platoons in Medina's company, is accused of the premeditated murder of 102 Vietnamese civilians on the day of the mission, March 16, 1968. Medina is accused of the overall responsibility for the killing of "at least 178" civilians that same day, but no formal charges have yet been lodged against him.

Like seven defense witnesses before him, Bernhardt said it was his understanding that Medina wanted My Lai wiped off the map, and that orders were to leave nothing "walking, crawling or growing" in the village.

Bernhardt said that following the sweep, he mentioned to his platoon sergeant, whom he did not name, that he was considering reporting the incident to his congressman. He said the sergeant apparently passed this word to Medina.

Man sentenced for mutilation killing

LIVINGSTON, Mont. (UPI)—Harry Allen Stroup of Sheridan, Wyo., was sentenced to 10 years in prison Tuesday for his part in the brutal mutilation killing of James Schlosser of Roundup, Mont., last summer in Yellowstone National Park.

It was the maximum sentence he could receive for manslaughter.

Stroup was convicted of manslaughter last month. Another Sheridan man, Stanley Donn Baker, has been sentenced to life imprisonment in the slaying. He pleaded guilty to murder charges.

District Judge Jack Shastrom told Stroup he would give no lectures, but said he believed Stroup had ruined his life with drugs. The judge said he hoped Montana youths would take note of it.

Schlosser, a welfare worker, was slain and his body dismembered. Baker told authorities he ate parts of the body and that he believed in devil worship.

The grisly crime was discovered when parts of the body were found by a fisherman.

First ladies enjoy Gem scenery

By Donna Jones
Times-News Reporter
SUN VALLEY—Republican first ladies from 39 states enjoyed Idaho's winter scenery and the hospitality of Ruby Samuelson, as hostess. The style show was narrated and arranged by Barbara Alley, New York City, fashion director for the International Ski and Winter Sports Show. Modeling the latest fashions for skiing, snowmobiling and outdoor wintertime play were members of the Bonne Bell Ski Team.

On the Monday agenda for the wives of the winter Republican Governors' Conference, delegates, and their staff guests, was a reception at the Leadville Art Gallery in Ketchum. Mrs. Don Samuelson, hostess, set a genuine Idaho resort community fashion pace when she appeared in a leather tunic trimmed in fur over a red one piece pant suit and topped with a brimmed black fur hat.

Women attending the convention gathered for the Leadville Art Gallery reception in the lobby of the Sun Valley Lodge dressed in ensembles ranging from informal ski outfits and boots to fur trimmed dresses.

From the art gallery where many out-of-staters purchased models, Betty Lyons, Seattle, Wash., Pacific northwest regional representative for the team, Sally Lipman, one of the original Bonne Bell girls from the Sierra Nevada. Suzette Curtis, Borin Follitt, Linda Terra, Julie Richardson, and for the men's fashions, Gary Glaaver and Gary Dixon, and Marsha and Mauppett Hemingway.

Each governor's wife attending the luncheon received a special souvenir from Twin Falls, a hand-blown glass miniature elephant made by Matt Vice at the Holiday Inn gillianop. The gifts were sponsored by Club 93 of Jackpot, Nev. Each wife also received a gift of a pair of Clingalon hose from Kellwood Corp., Twin Falls.

Many Magic Valley Republican women assisted Mrs. Samuelson in presenting an Idaho welcome to the delegate wives. Mrs. Douglas Kramer and Mrs. James Sinclair, both Twin Falls; Mrs. Nell Weir, Burley; Mrs. George Forschler, Burley; Mrs. Harold Hove, Kimberly; Mrs. Holland Houfburg, Kimberly; Mrs. Bill Satterfield, Twin Falls and Mrs. Mex McMurray, Burley.

Las Vegas trip noted

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hodkins, 1237 Elizabeth Blvd., Twin Falls, have just returned from a four-day, expense-paid vacation at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas. They were awarded the trip as winners in a sales contest conducted by American Oil Co. for all agents and IEC plant managers in American Oil's 11-state Western Region.

The nine-month contest in which Agent Hodkins competed with 236 other employees concerned the sale of company products in rural areas. T. B. Redmond, regional vice president, said.

In Las Vegas the couple were joined by 25 other agents, plant managers and their wives. Among the many activities they enjoyed were the Lido de Paris show at the Stardust and the Robert Goulet show at the Frontier.

Wendell couple faces language barrier with adopted sons

(This is the second part of a three-part story written by Phyllis Colonna about Wendell couple and their five adopted children.)

By PHYLLIS K. COLONNA Times-News Correspondent WENDELL — Seven years passed after Mr. and Mrs. Dale (Bud) Bitterli got their daughters before they added two sons to the family — although the boys are older than the girls.

"It seems almost a miracle to us that we found them at all," Sarah says. "Bud was working at the gas station (Bud's Conoco Service, Wendell) when our doctor, Maurice Scheel, drove up. He asked if we were still looking for children.

"Bud said we were, so Dr. Scheel handed him a folder on two brothers in Germany, Robert and Michael. He said to look through it, and if we were interested maybe we could get them. If we were interested."

Dr. Scheel had been helping another Wendell family arrange the adoption through their daughter who was stationed in Germany, when suddenly the father died of a heart attack. His widow asked Dr. Scheel if he didn't know of a family in the area who might be able to continue with the adoption. At once he thought of the Bitterli family.

From Dec. 1, 1966, until March 21, 1967, Bud and Sarah struggled with paper work and legal formalities. But at last they were told the boys were theirs, and on their way.

"We went to Salt Lake City to meet their flight, all four of us. It seemed like the plane never would come in. When it did, we watched every person get off, straining our eyes to see an eight- and ten-year-old who looked like our snapshot. Finally even the pilots came in. I couldn't stand it any longer. I ran up to them and demanded what they'd done with our boys," she said.

"This was when the Bitterlis got a phone call telling them the boys had somehow been misplaced in New York City. It seems a German-speaking stewardess had taken them into a corridor at the New York terminal and told them to wait there. Since no one else came along to tell them anything they could understand, that's what they did. For hours.

"The airlines personnel were very upset and apologetic. They told us the boys had been found safe, if somewhat bewildered."

The Bitterlis were assured of their well-being. A German-speaking ticketing agent had been assigned to take them to a hotel and see they had dinner and a good night's sleep, then put them on the proper flight the next morning.

"This time they really were on it. You know that sign at the airport that says: 'Absolutely no one admitted beyond this point?' Well, that's where we ran. Right past that sign. We wanted to grab them before anything else could happen."

This is when the Bitterlis — all six of them — became acquainted with the language barrier.

"We ran up to them and threw our arms around them; they gave us big smiles and told us 'Hi'. We hugged them and smiled back and started asking them questions — were they tired, did they want to know where was their luggage — They gave us big smiles and answered 'Hi'.

"Of course it must have been at least as frustrating for them as for us. I remember on the way home Ruthie discovered a game. She would point out the window at something and say the name in English, then Mike would repeat it. This went on for some time, then Mike started saying something in German, and Ruthie would repeat it. He kept saying the same thing over and over, each time a little louder.

"Finally we got out our pocket dictionary and one by one, painfully looked up the words. We discovered that for several miles he'd been telling her, 'Say no more; say no more,'" Sarah said.

Potatoes bake in half time if they're split lengthwise before being placed in a preheated 425-degree oven. The skin and cut sides should be rubbed with oil before being placed cut side down on a baking sheet. Just before serving, turn cut sides up, brush lightly with butter and sprinkle with paprika.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: There is a girl in our small town I'll call Mary, who has been telling others that our son is the father of her child. It is quite possible, as he was separated from his wife at the time. However, Mary is the available barfly type, and almost any of the young men around town could be responsible. I don't know why our son had to be singled out for this dubious honor.

Our son has since reconciled with his wife and they moved out of town long before this rumor got started.

However, the 12-year-old sister of Mary told our 11-year-old daughter at school that they were "related" because our son and her sister "had a baby together." Altho we never discussed it with our daughter, she responded that her brother was already married to someone else and Mary must be crazy. Then she ran home from school and cried about it in my arms.

Can we do anything about this? We told our daughter to ignore the other girl and forget the talk.

Mary is raising the baby, and is just as available as ever. There has been no legal action taken against our son. In fact, I doubt that he even knows about the child's existence. I have never met Mary and am not about to. Your advice will be greatly appreciated.

NO NAME OR TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO: Let sleeping dogs lie.

DEAR ABBY: When someone asks me, "Do you mind if I ask you a personal question?" I never know what to say. Any suggestions? SHY

DEAR SHY: Say, "Not at all. Do you mind if I don't answer?"

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 and have this steady boy friend I'll call Buddy. His parents live in a different town so he rents a room in town near his work. I live with my parents. Here is my problem:

I have been helping Buddy out by doing his laundry at home. I also do my family's laundry. Well, my mother gets mad and yells at me every time she sees me doing Buddy's laundry.

Will you please tell me why it bugs my mother because I do Buddy's laundry? The work is not on her. I'm not complaining. Why should she? NO NAME

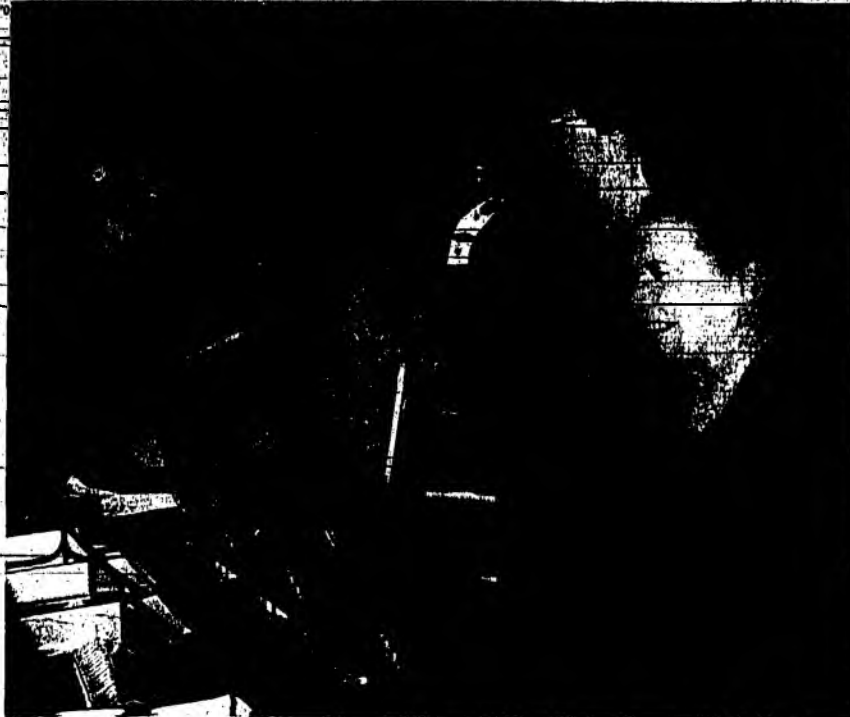

DEAR NO NAME: Your mother is probably "bugged" by the sight of her 17-year-old unmarried daughter doing "wifely" chores for her boy friend. It's my guess that if she liked Buddy more, she'd complain less.

DEAR ABBY: I am going with a nice young man who used to be a wild, hippie type, but he is reformed now, and if he hadn't told me about his past I wouldn't have known anything about him, except there is one little telltale mark which gives him away. He has a rather ugly hole in one of his ears. He said he used to wear a "pirate's" ear ring in it.

Is there any way this hole can be filled up? It may not be noticeable to others, but it bothers me a lot.

BOTHERED

DEAR BOTHERED: Level with him. A plastic surgeon should be able to repair it so there will be no trace of his ever having had a hole in his ear.

Snake flow hike in canyon rapped

TWIN FALLS — The South Idaho Chamber of Commerce went on record during a business session Tuesday opposing any increase in the minimum flow of the Snake River through the Hells Canyon dam complex.

The Lewiston and Clarkston Chambers of Commerce are seeking an increase in the minimum flow to 10,000 cubic feet per second (CFS) from the present limit of 5,000-CFS to provide increased water for boating in the Lewiston area, chamber members were told by Mark Moorman, Murtaugh, president of the Idaho Irrigation Pumpers Association.

As association president, Moorman asked for a formal vote on record to inform the Army Corps of Engineers, who determines the flow, of the opposition. Farmers using irrigation need the water in the Snake River throughout the Magic Valley. Doubling the release of water in Hells Canyon would drain the Snake River through the valley, and could virtually dry it up in the winter low-water period.

Chamber members approved Moorman's request to oppose the increased flow.

Moorman also outlined a proposal for a state-level Idaho Irrigation Pumpers Commission to operate in the same manner as agricultural commissions which boost and control use of their products.

The commission, financed by a levy on the "total energy bill" of growers pumping water for irrigation, would "promote the efficient use of irrigation by Idaho growers," Moorman said. Chamber members also heard committee reports on needed legislation.

Laird Noh, chairman of the Agricultural Committee, and Bob Colner, a committee member, outlined committee views, including endorsing the phase-out of the state inventory tax, asking that the sales tax be spayed females and $20 to unspayed females.

Councilmen authorized purchase of materials for the widening of U Street bridge. The city will pay half the cost of the project, which is already in progress, and the county will provide the rest of the financing. City crews will furnish the labor.

The amendment to the dog license law occupied the attention of Rupert city councilmen Tuesday night. The first reading was heard on the amendment which sets March 1 as the deadline for dog owners to purchase licenses, or 60 days after a dog is purchased.

The amendment does not change the license fees which are $2 for males or spayed females and $10 for unspayed females, but would increase the cost to persons who fail to comply with the license deadline to $12 for males and spayed females and $20 to unspayed females. Councilmen authorized purchase of materials for the widening of U Street bridge. The city will pay half the cost of the project, which is already in progress, and the county will provide the rest of the financing. City crews will furnish the labor.

Most of the thefts were of outside lights. Residents of the city reported from one or two bulbs to several strings being stolen, police said.

The Public School Legislative Task Force includes 21 members from all areas of Idaho.

Chamber members at first voted down the committee's recommendations. Later, on urging of Engelking, the Task Force Committee recommendation was dropped and the committee's suggestions were adopted.

Enlarged jet field studied

By LEE TREMAINE Times-News Staff Writer
TWIN FALLS — An airport capable of handling long-range jet planes may be built north of Twin Falls in Jerome County, in five to 10 years, according to plans under consideration by the South Idaho Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber members meeting at the Holiday Inn on Tuesday heard a report from Clayton Stewart, Sun Valley, chairman of the chamber's aviation committee, on estimated costs of construction at three sites. Stewart said his committee urgently requests the valley chambers of commerce to petition the Bureau of Land Management for an option on the land to reserve it until construction plans are complete and financing is arranged. With an option, the land cannot be sold, Stewart said. "We need a regional airport to grow; we need the backing of the communities to get the airport," Stewart said. The problem at present seems to be the selection of a site. Three sites were outlined — one near the Hansen Bridge and two north of Twin Falls.

The Hansen Bridge site would involve purchase of BLM land and about 50 small "farm units," which were defined by Stewart as individual farms. This could prove much more costly than the sites north of Twin Falls, on BLM land exclusively. "No doubt the flyovers at the Twin Falls Municipal Airport will increase, due to the wind factor," Stewart said. An alternate airport is urgently needed to attract tourist trade and industrial firms.

"An out-of-state skier, for example, might just once fly over to Boise and ride a bus back four hours to Sun Valley — but next year he'll go somewhere else," Stewart told the chamber members.

"We feel we should get enough land to look 40 or 50 years into the future," he added. A runway capable of landing the large 707 or DC-8 jets would require at least 12,000 feet of straight-line land.

"To my way of thinking, it doesn't matter if a runway extends over four or five miles in one direction if we have the land available," he said. "But we've got to be close to highways; we've got to have access to heavy transport for the industries."

Industries are interested in Idaho if the proper facilities can be assured, Stewart said. He said he has been contacted by a representative of a large California engineering firm which would construct and finance a jet-plane sized airport in Twin Falls County, then turn it over to an airport commission or any authorized controlling agency.

If this offer didn't work out, the federal government would finance 55 per cent of the construction costs of a regional airport, Stewart said.

The prime site under consideration by the committee, Stewart said, is north of the Perrine Memorial Bridge, along U.S. Highway 93 and just north of Interstate 80. Preliminary construction estimates, drawn up in 1968, list the principal east-west runway at $2,112,000; expansion of the runway to accommodate long-range jets, $377,000; and construction of a terminal building and other facilities, about $500,000, for a total estimated cost of $4.5 million.

Another site under consideration in the vicinity would cost about $5 million to develop, while the Hansen Bridge site would cost about $3 million.

Chamber members agreed to discuss the proposals with their respective chambers of commerce before taking formal action to endorse any specific site.

Idaho faces money bind

TWIN FALLS — The 1971 Idaho Legislature faces a situation never before experienced in the state's history — no more money, but mounting expenses, according to Sen. Richard S. High, Twin Falls, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

Sen. High said that always before, new legislative sessions could count on a continuing increase in state income, as sales rose, tax income continued upward, excise taxes were paid into the state treasury, and income taxes rose. However, the new session faces a "stable situation," with about the same income as last year, Sen. High said.

He said the national economy is feeling the pinch of inflation, and that sales have not risen as anticipated in Idaho. The extensive General Motors strike slowed the sale of new cars, which in turn cut back on sales tax and other state income.

To complicate the situation, the Idaho Education Association and state agencies are asking for $45 million in additional state allocation during the new fiscal year.

Jerome official resigns post

JEROME — Harvey Lewis, Jerome dog catcher, submitted his resignation to the city council Tuesday night, effective Jan. 1.

Lewis, who is a full time fireman, told councilmen the position of dog catcher requires too much time and should be considered as a full time job. Councilmen agreed to hire a full time person, Mayor Jack Russell said.

Councilmen discussed decreasing the license fee for female dogs from $10 to $7, but decided to delay action on this matter until the dog catcher position is filled.

Dudley Stroud reviewed the budget and expenditures in the city water department. Clag Ambrose, chairman of the Jerome County commission, met with the council to discuss plans for the county taking over operation of the sanitary fill east of town which has previously been operated by the city with county assistance.

Councilmen agreed to bring the full control of the operation. Ambrose said the commissioners plan to purchase equipment necessary to operate the landfill over a three-year period.

The county official also discussed the problem of out-of-state or out-of-city traffic violators who have to wait until Monday to pay their fine and suggested having the police dispatcher authorized to handle fines and bonds, but councilmen pointed out every violator should be entitled to a trial.

Pay vote 'mandate'

TWIN FALLS — Idaho legislators must live with the apparent "mandate of the people" who voted down the legislative pay increase, and will not be able to restore the lost salary increase for at least two years.

That was the opinion of several legislators attending the South Idaho Chamber of Commerce luncheon and meeting Tuesday afternoon, including Sen. Richard S. High, Twin Falls, and Sen. John Barker, Buhl.

Sen. High said that the new legislature will have to wrestle with an extremely tight financial situation, and there will be little chance to shake any extra funds loose for a legislative pay increase — even if there were a legal way to circumvent the defeat of the initiative.

Sen. High also said the principal problem appears to be the 60-day limitation placed on the regular legislative session by state law. After 60 days, according to the law, the legislators would lose their daily pay, and would be paid only for specific committee assignments.

"Several North Idaho teachers have said they would have to leave the session if that happened," he said. Sen. Barker agreed that the 60-day limit poses a major problem, but voiced the hope that "there would be no great objection" to authorizing a brief extension of legislative pay beyond the 60-day limit if the legislators could wrap up the session in a few days.

"The governor could quickly call a special session to continue the pay after the end of the 60 days, but this would add more cost than just extending the pay a few days," Sen. Barker said.

"Under current state law, a special session of the legislature would require reprinting of all pending legislation, introduction of all bills, new voting on all measures, and would generally cost the taxpayers much more than continuing a regular session, Sen. Barker said.

"A constitutional amendment will "probably" be drawn up and presented to the voters in two years at the next general election, to spill out increases in legislative pay, Sen. Barker said.

In California, the legislature lost a proposed pay increase, much as did the Idaho lawmakers, Sen. Barker said. However, when a reworded constitutional amendment was presented specifying a flat $16,000-per-year salary for the legislators, the voters endorsed it without question.

Pay vote 'mandate'

TWIN FALLS — Idaho legislators must live with the apparent "mandate of the people" who voted down the legislative pay increase, and will not be able to restore the lost salary increase for at least two years.

That was the opinion of several legislators attending the South Idaho Chamber of Commerce luncheon and meeting Tuesday afternoon, including Sen. Richard S. High, Twin Falls, and Sen. John Barker, Buhl.

Sen. High said that the new legislature will have to wrestle with an extremely tight financial situation, and there will be little chance to shake any extra funds loose for a legislative pay increase — even if there were a legal way to circumvent the defeat of the initiative.

Rupert amends dog leash law

RUPERT — An amendment to the dog license law occupied the attention of Rupert city councilmen Tuesday night. The first reading was heard on the amendment which sets March 1 as the deadline for dog owners to purchase licenses, or 60 days after a dog is purchased.

The amendment does not change the license fees which are $2 for males or spayed females and $10 for unspayed females, but would increase the cost to persons who fail to comply with the license deadline to $12 for males and spayed females and $20 to unspayed females. Councilmen authorized purchase of materials for the widening of U Street bridge. The city will pay half the cost of the project, which is already in progress, and the county will provide the rest of the financing. City crews will furnish the labor.

Most of the thefts were of outside lights. Residents of the city reported from one or two bulbs to several strings being stolen, police said.

The Public School Legislative Task Force includes 21 members from all areas of Idaho.

Chamber members at first voted down the committee's recommendations. Later, on urging of Engelking, the Task Force Committee recommendation was dropped and the committee's suggestions were adopted.

Budget includes specials

FILER — Budgeting for the Twin Falls County fair for the coming year includes arrangements for a number of major events such as the National High School Rodeo, Fair manager Tom Shouse said.

He said some clean-up type payments are yet to be made on the new grandstand when finishing touches are added by the contractor, and the budget should include showers under the stands and a few additional horse stalls for the high school rodeo event.

He said fair board members and county commissioners have agreed no additions or improvements such as paint or additional asphalt will be possible this year at the fairgrounds because of the tight budget resulting from last year's heavy expenditures to rebuild the grandstand and rodeo chutes which were destroyed by fire a year ago.

Jerome official resigns post

JEROME — Harvey Lewis, Jerome dog catcher, submitted his resignation to the city council Tuesday night, effective Jan. 1.

Lewis, who is a full time fireman, told councilmen the position of dog catcher requires too much time and should be considered as a full time job. Councilmen agreed to hire a full time person, Mayor Jack Russell said.

Councilmen discussed decreasing the license fee for female dogs from $10 to $7, but decided to delay action on this matter until the dog catcher position is filled.

Dudley Stroud reviewed the budget and expenditures in the city water department. Clag Ambrose, chairman of the Jerome County commission, met with the council to discuss plans for the county taking over operation of the sanitary fill east of town which has previously been operated by the city with county assistance.

Councilmen agreed to bring the full control of the operation. Ambrose said the commissioners plan to purchase equipment necessary to operate the landfill over a three-year period.

The county official also discussed the problem of out-of-state or out-of-city traffic violators who have to wait until Monday to pay their fine and suggested having the police dispatcher authorized to handle fines and bonds, but councilmen pointed out every violator should be entitled to a trial.

T.F. mall inspected

TWIN FALLS — Ten Caldwell Chamber of Commerce members and businessmen inspected downtown Twin Falls Tuesday in the interest of finding out how a city goes about a core redevelopment.

George Michaels, Twin Falls City engineer, said the prime interest of the Caldwell delegation was to find out how to organize for such a project and also how to finance it.

Dean Miller, Caldwell attorney and chamber of commerce president, headed the delegation which arrived at about 11 a. m. in three private planes.

Ray Rostron, local chamber manager who welcomed the group here, said they were most impressed with the downtown project here. Voy Hudson, Joe Chik, Mayor Frank Feldman, Ed Peterson, architect, and Michaels attended a luncheon with the visitors to answer questions on the program.

Hudson reviewed the project from the beginning of the off-street parking program more than 10 years ago, and said planning for the redevelopment began about five years ago.

Michaels said the Caldwell delegation indicated they are feeling the need for some improvement in their city's major business area but are still in the preliminary planning stage.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market was in reverse gear for the third consecutive session as the halfway mark Wednesday.

Analysts regarded the weaker tone as a continued readjustment from the sharp November-early December gains. Normal year-end selling for tax purposes also weighed on the market.

After more than three hours, the Dow Jones industrial average of 30 selected blue chips was off about 3 points at 818.61, and declines topped advances, 698 to 489, on 1,567 issues crossing the tape.

A three-hour volume of around 8,000,000 shares was about in line with Tuesday's pace.

Among the most active issues were Telex Corp., down 1/4 on 808,000 shares, Chase Manhattan Corp. off 1/4 on 210,000 shares, Lois Star Cement off 1/4 and 181,000 shares of Tennessee higher on 145,000 shares and Jersey Standard down 1/4 on 117,000 shares.

Heavily traded Westinghouse was off 1/4, and Federal National Mortgage was ahead 1/4.

Magie Valley Weather

Some snow or snow showers and colder.

Carnas Prairie, Halley and lower Wood River Valley:

Same as Magic Valley except temperatures. Lows tonight 10 to 15. Highs Thursday mid 20s.

Synopsis:

A vigorous front moved into southern Idaho last night and is located along the Continental Divide at the present time. Strong gusty winds accompanied the front. The highest gust of 47 miles per hour was reported in the Mountain Home area.

Traveler's warnings were in effect for blowing and drifting snow in southeastern Idaho this morning but with diminishing winds. Traveling conditions should improve in that area this afternoon.

Precipitation associated with the front was mostly in the form of rain from the valleys of eastern Oregon into Magic Valley but fell as snow over the mountains and southeastern Idaho valleys.

The low pressure center associated with this front is remaining along the Washington Coast and will continue to feed moist unstable air inland. This will result in widely scattered showers continuing over southern Idaho and east central Oregon tonight with most activity over the mountains in the form of snow.

Expected to form over Nevada on Thursday and may cause increased cloudiness and some snow shower activity.

Gusty winds, snow showers

Generally cloudy with widely scattered snow showers through Thursday. Turning cooler.

Afternoon highs 30 to 40. Lows tonight lower to mid 20s. Highs Thursday 31 to 35. Winds variable 8 to 15 miles per hour, with some stronger gusts vicinity showers. Precipitation probability 40 per cent tonight and 60 per cent Thursday.

BOISE (UPI)—The State Board of Health and Board of Corrections voted jointly today to co-sponsor a proposal to create a maximum security facility for the dangerous mentally ill.

Fights erupt as French rename Arch of Triumph

PARIS (UPI)—Anti-Gaullists chanted and whistled and flat fights broke out around the Arch of Triumph area Tuesday when authorities in a formal ceremony renamed the Place de L'Étoile for the late Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas angrily waved his arms at demonstrating leftists and other anti-Gaullists protesting the city council decision to rename the huge traffic circle in the middle of which stands the Arch of Triumph the "Place Charles-de-Gaulle."

Police reported no serious incidents in the skirmishes between young militant Gaullists and World War II veterans on one hand, and young leftists opposing the name change of one of France's most hallowed spots.

The site of the Arch of Triumph, sheltering the eternal flame and the grave of the nation's unknown soldier, also is regarded as the symbolic heart of Paris. It is the hub of 24 avenues built at the order of Napoleon III. Chaban-Delmas was visibly annoyed when he arrived to represent the government and was greeted by whistles, boos and chants of "Étoile, Étoile" from opponents of the change.

Ohio State's Stillwagon voted UPI lineman of year

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jim Stillwagon, considered by his coaches to be the best player on the undefeated Ohio State team this season, has been declared the best lineman in the country by a group of sportswriters and sportscasters across the nation.

The muscular, 6-foot, 210-pound Stillwagon, the star of the Buckeyes' defensive unit, Tuesday was named Lineman of the Year by United Press International in a balloting of 192 sportswriters and sportscasters. Stillwagon received 44 votes to easily outdistance runnerup Larry DiNardo, an offensive guard from Notre Dame.

DiNardo's teammate, offensive end Tom Gatewood, finished third in the voting with 16 votes while offensive guard Chip Kell of Tennessee and defensive end Bill Atestas of Texas received 13 and 11 votes respectively. Thirty-six players in all received votes, one of the highest totals in the history of the voting.

A two-time All-America, Stillwagon plugged the middle of the Buckeyes' defensive line and consistently scored the highest grades on performance despite the fact he was often triple-teamed.

Buhl beats Kimberly wrestlers

KIMBERLY — The Buhl Indians nailed down a 29-29 wrestling decision over Kimberly Bulldog Tuesday night when Meler came up with a pin in the final match.

Kimberly's highlight came when Steele, usually fighting heavyweight, dropped to 185 pounds and upset Buhl's Morrison.

Kimberly travels to Valley Thursday night while Buhl will be at Flor.

Results of the matches, Kimberly men listed first, include 88 pounds, Kimberly forfeited to Schmidt; 105 pounds, Martin was pinned by Partin; 112 pounds, Hunt pinned Reese; 119 pounds, Schewmaker pinned Stlegmiller; 126 pounds, Johnson was decimated by Kuntz; 132 pounds, Dan-Young was pinned by Rhodes; 138 pounds, Dick Young decimated Thomez; 145 pounds, Ledbetter was decimated by Drown; 155 pounds, Dry was decimated by Davis; 167 pounds, Reinstein decimated Watson; 185 pounds, Steele decimated Morrison, and heavyweight, Knight was pinned by Meler.

Indiana stuns Notre Dame

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Indiana upset 9th ranked Notre Dame 106-103 Tuesday despite All-American Austin Carr's 54 points and Irish domination of the game into the fourth quarter.

The Hoosiers pulled ahead for the first time with 9:29 remaining, 77-76. The lead changed hands four more times before Indiana moved into the lead for good with 8:14 left on two free throws by Jim Harris. The Irish threatened by pulling to within one point at 102-101 with 31 seconds remaining but Harris shot another pair of free throws.

"Jim is the finest lineman I've ever coached, and he was without a doubt our finest player," said the Buckeyes' defensive coordinator, Lou McCullough. "They were triple-teaming him all season because no one man can handle him."

Stillwagon, who beat out fellow All-Americans John Brockington, Jack Tatum and Mike Sensibaugh, for most valuable player honors on the Buckeyes, credited hard work for making him an outstanding player.

"My feeling is that if you do something, do it the best you can. I just tried my best and it paid off, I guess. I try not to think about what honors might get. Coach (Woody) Hayes says that anything you work hard to get you appreciate more. I owe all my honors to the coaches and the guys I played with," said Stillwagon.

Line coach McClain praises Stillwagon as one of the most dedicated athletes he's ever seen.

"Jim is tremendously strong and has great lateral movement. Those are his greatest assets. He works like a dog. He is a surprise to everyone because nobody thought he would be this good. That shows you what dedication can do. He made himself an athlete by dedication," says McClain.

Stillwagon, who also won the Outland Trophy as the nation's outstanding lineman, is small by pro standards, but McCullough feels the pros would be sorry if they passed over him because of his physical stature.

Castleford outlasts Kimberly

KIMBERLY — The Castleford Wolves blew a chance to break it wide open early and then stayed off the Kimberly Bulldogs throughout the fourth quarter Tuesday night for a 42-39 victory. The win ended the season series.

Kimberly got the first field goal of the night but Castleford scored the next time down the floor and then quickly ran up a 16-4 lead when the Bulldogs couldn't find the bucket again.

Castleford then went cold itself, pinking up only 13 points in the middle quarters and that allowed the Bulldogs to cut the margin to 29-28 at the end of the third period. But the Wolves regained their touch for a small flurry that carried them to five and six points ahead for the rest of the night.

Kimberly won the opener 47-44.

Allen compares Giants with his late-rush club of 1967

NEW YORK (UPI)—George Allen remembers a team just like the 1970 New York Giants. It was the 1967 Los Angeles Rams. After years of mediocre teams, the Rams' jolted in Allen's second year in 1967 and lost only two of 22 games counting pre and post-season action. The Rams were beaten by Green Bay but they seemed to be the team of the future in pro football.

Of course, it hasn't worked out that way for either Allen or the Rams. The team has yet to make the Super Bowl and all the turmoil the last two years over Dan Reeves' firing and rehiring of Allen hasn't helped the situation.

But Allen hasn't forgotten the mood the Rams captured when they felt the pro football world was ready to be conquered by them. That was the year the Rams blocked Donny Anderson's punt to beat Green Bay and then blasted Baltimore to make the playoffs and cap an eight-game winning streak.

Now the Giants, who've won nine of their last 10, have suddenly captured that same feeling. After six years of failing to get above .500, the Giants are winning for the first time in the memory of most of the current players on the club and they feel they can't stop rolling.

"I remember how it was in 1967, Allen said Tuesday. 'I know they've got that tremendous spirit and spark and they never know when they're beaten.' And it's just a little ironic, of course, that the Giants and Rams will meet Sunday in New York in the 1970 regular season finale. It's a game that will go a long way toward deciding the three playoff berths still up for grabs in the National Football Conference.

The Rams, who once had all that promise, are now wheezing. It's a veteran team and has some key injuries with Merlin Olsen, Clancy Williams and Maxie Baughan all on the doubtful list for Sunday's game. Their quarterback, Roman Gabriel, has had a series of nagging ailments and hasn't looked like the player of the year of 1969.

The continuing controversy about Allen's future hasn't helped, either. His contract is up this season and no one knows whether Reeves, who tried to fire him two years ago, will renew it or not.

"I don't know if that's affected the team," Allen said Sunday. "I don't think it's helped. But it hasn't affected me personally."

After Monday night's loss to Detroit, the Rams can make the playoffs only if they beat New York and San Francisco losses to Oakland. It's a slim shot.

CSI tops Boise frosh, sets two-game tour of north Idaho on weekend

College of Southern Idaho's Golden Eagles, getting a 27-point show from all-American Steve Hegens, romped past the Boise State frosh 83-67 Tuesday night for their eighth victory of the young season.

The Eagles, who are anticipating no worse than a third-place ranking in the first national junior college poll Thursday, now hit the road for two games in the northern part of the state. They will take on North Idaho JC at Coeur d'Alene Friday night in what will be a big preview of next March's regional tournament and Saturday travel to

University of Idaho frosh where they will play another seven-foot center.

Boise State showed a little different Tuesday than it had in two outings here last weekend. Coach Bus Connor put his youngsters into a deliberate, pattern offense and switched defenses often on the other end of the floor. Cottrell and Franklin, Boise's big men, did a job on the offensive boards early and it took a while for the Eagles to pull away.

CSI didn't start breaking out until Hegens hit twice for a 16-11 lead. Vic Kelly then sparked a couple of fast breaks a minute later to shove the Eagles on top by 10 and that was as close as the young Broncos got thereafter.

Ralph Palomar and Tim Bassett started raking in points off the offensive boards as the Eagles pushed on top by as much as 21 but Boise remained disciplined and in the late going managed to trim the deficit to 14.

It was the 38th straight home court victory for CSI in the one coming when Boise State was BJC. The Broncos managed a three-point decision that night.

Coach Jerry Hite, looking toward Friday's battle with North Idaho, noted "they brought in some very fine people this fall to replace those lost to graduation and through trouble with the law last year. They will be basically a freshman ball team with the back line going around 8-5, so we will be a little more experienced and taller. They (the Cardinals) haven't lost a game this year," he concluded.

Valley will entertain Kimberly Thursday night.

Results of the matches, Jerome men listed first, include 98 pounds, Hills was pinned by Bloxham; 105 pounds, Otto pinned Sellers; 112 pounds, Mick Otto pinned Black; 119 pounds, Campbell was pinned by E. McClain; 126 pounds, Mike Diehl decisioned Miller; 123 pounds, Hart decisioned Waters; 138 pounds, Callen pinned Powers; 145 pounds, Weigle pinned D. LEADING THE BREAK, CSI guard Vic Kelly flips a backhand pass to teammate Steve Hegens for an easy bucket after splitting Boise State's defense on the initial charge. Franklin in background, and McCarty (23) try to make the play for Boise State frosh. CSI won 82-67.

Valley rates slight nod in Murtaugh holiday meet

MURTAUGH—The Valley Vikings, carrying a 3-1 record, enter Thursday night's holiday tournament at Murtaugh as a slight favorite as four of the arch rivals of middle Magic Valley get together for a two-night bash. The Vikings will meet the Hansen Huskies, also 3-1, in the first round after Kimberly, 2-3, takes on homecoming Murtaugh, 2-1, in the opening, starting at 7 p.m.

There already has been some interplay among the fourth with Kimberly nipping Hansen 46-45 and Valley thumping Murtaugh 65-43. But none of the four coaches figures they mean that much.

Frazier says layoff has changed Clay

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joe Frazier says sure, why not, he'll be glad to tell you what he really thinks of Cassius.

That's what Joe Frazier calls him. Actually he seldom uses the name of the man he's going to meet for the world heavyweight championship most likely in March, generally identifying his future opponent as "he" or "him," but in those cases where he does refer by name it's Cassius Clay.

Frazier figures Clay had a motive for fighting Oscar Bonavena the way he did: "He loafed and fooled around," says Frazier, who saw the fight on closed circuit TV. "He probably did it for a reason. I think he wanted to go the distance."

as most people think he is. The thing that makes him seem so fast is his clowning. He calls it the "All Shuffled" and that's not true. But if someone puts him down to business making him stick to work and no clowning, you find out he's not so fast. That way he has to fight or get out of the ring.

Angels and Reds swap Russell, Mikan listed as NBA's top centers

ANAHEIM (UPI)—The California Angels announced Tuesday they have obtained veteran righthanded pitcher Jim Maloney from the Cincinnati Reds for rookie southpaw relief hurler Greg Farrell.

The trade was climaxed on the final day of interleague dealings by Reds general manager Bob Howsam and Angels general manager Dick Walsh, who is in Puerto Rico looking at the winter league teams there.

Maloney had been with the Reds since 1960 but had one of the mainstays of the Cincinnati mound staff for most of that time. The 30-year-old Fresno, Calif., pitcher suffered a ruptured achilles tendon in his left leg in April and had to undergo surgery that sidelined him until September.

As a result, Maloney worked only 17 innings in seven games and had an 0-1 record.

Virginia takes first defeat

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI)—Unbeaten North Carolina scored 10 straight points late in the second half to overcome a five-point Virginia lead and hand the Cavaliers their first loss, 80-75, in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game Tuesday night.

Russell, who made defense an offensive weapon, is the only unanimous choice on the team selected by players who achieved All-Star recognition since the NBA's founding in 1946.

The 6-10 former Boston player and coach helped start a Celtic dynasty that brought the Hub City 11 championships in 13 years. An All-America at San Francisco, Russell joined the Celtics as a rookie in 1957 and starred with the club until 1969.

An expert at blocking shots, Russell's credo was that "you must learn just what a player is going to shoot, what type of shot he has, and where you have to be to block it. You have to know exactly where you are on the floor at all times. You can only block a shot 10 or 20 per cent of the time. I don't know at what given moment

Ohio edges Wisconsin

Plant operator facing charge

BOISE (UPI) — William J. Bendell, Troy, operator of Bendell's Meatpacking Plant, was arrested last week for failure to appear on a charge of slaughtering beef animals while his plant was under suspension. Dr. Wilson's Horse, state director of the Federal Wholesale Meat Act, said Bendell had been directed to appear before Latah County Justice of the Peace Mrs. Carole Limer. He was to answer the charge brought against the firm by the meat inspection division. Bendell was sentenced to 10 days in the county jail after he declined to make a plea before the court, according to Latah County Prosecuting Attorney William E. Anderson.

Mind your money

Q — Excellent article on toys was marred by its sexist bias. Women are capable of using tools and aren't capable of using cooking utensils. Why reinforce attitudes which are repulsive to both sexes?
 Mrs. C. G. Washington, D. C.
 A — I quoted Dr. Ira Gordon, director of the Institute for Development of Human Resources, University of Florida, as saying one of the best toys ever devised for a boy is a "basic set of tools . . . and scrap wood."
 "He didn't limit it to boys; I did. If I had more space, I should have said a hammer, nails and scrap wood also make an excellent toy for a girl if she likes that sort of thing. Teachers tell me that little boys love playing "kitchen." As you know, the best cooks in the world are men (chefs). Introducing a little boy to the fascinating chemistry of cooking is a great idea if he shows interest. Also, teaching a little girl how to repair such things as broken doors and windows is not a bad idea at all. She may have to do a lot of carpentry work later on if she marries a fellow who is "all thumbs."
 Q — How many quarters will I have to work to qualify for social security payments?
 Mrs. M.E.T., Boynton Beach, Fla.
 A — A person born in 1929 or later must work 10 full years (40 quarters) to qualify. For each year earlier than 1929, subtract one quarter. For example, if you were born in 1924, you subtract five quarters, which would give you 35 quarters of work requirement.

Q — When buttermilk contains less buttermilk than richer milk, why does it cost more?
 Mrs. H.C. Ottaville, Mo.
 A — Buttermilk is made by a steeper, more costly process. First, solids are removed. The milk is pasteurized and cooled. It's kept at 70 degrees for 14 hours. Then the skim milk and a "starter" of bacteria are added to form butter solids. The buttermilk must be bottled slowly and carefully so as not to disturb the butter solids in suspension. Which all makes for more labor, more cost.

Final payment for high school made

On advice of Tim Robertson, district attorney, the trustees agreed to pay J. A. Clawson, the contractor, $26,382.87, and architect Harold Gerber $270.34 without deducting damages for late completion.

The project was originally scheduled to be complete in August, but a delay in arrival of materials forced an extension of time. Robertson said the contractor could not be held liable, under terms of the contract, for late arrival of materials.

The attorney suggested, however, that future contracts be worded more strictly, since there was a question as to whether the contractor was aware that the materials would be late when he bid for the job.

The trustees also authorized expenditure of $1,200 of district money to apply toward purchase of a $4,000 wrebling mat for the high school. The major portion of the cost, $2,800, will be provided by student funds from snack bars and concessions. Dr. Ernest H. Ragland, superintendent of schools, said.

The board members approved transfer of $10,000 from the instructional cost budget to capital outlay to provide matching money for purchase of equipment. The federal government will provide an additional $10,000, allowing the district to acquire $20,000 worth of equipment.

The trustees agreed to purchase band and orchestra equipment for $7,217.77; audio-visual items for elementary and special education classes, $4,252.39; audio-visual and science materials for the junior high schools, $2,472.14; and a new metal lath, drama department drapes, audio-visual equipment and arts and crafts materials for the high school, at $5,804.80.

The trustees approved employment of two new teachers to replace Mrs. Diana Babbitt and Mrs. Joyce Lloyd, both of whom are resigning Dec. 23. Florence Diane Jones-Pier, was hired to teach second grade at Harrison School, and AITON LOUISE Diemart, Twin Falls, was employed to teach second grade at Bicket School.

The board accepted the resignations of Mrs. Babbitt and Mrs. Lloyd without liquidation damages.

Just look at the bidding and the North-South cards. You arrive at a normal four-heart contract. West who has overcalled with one spade opens the king of his suit.

MEANWHILE

PASS IT ON by L.M. Boyd advertisement featuring a portrait of a man.

THE PRESIDENT of the South African Witch Doctors Union is P. Mammod Rodolo. He has come into the news recently because complainants there accuse his union of fixing the charges by which doctors upwards as much as 50 per cent.

MATE A FEMALE ANT just once and she can lay fertile eggs for 10 maybe 15 years. Efficient, isn't she? YOU SAY YOU never heard of O.J. Gude? He was the adman who 69 years ago first identified New York City's Broadway as 'the Great White Way.'

IF YOU WANT to raise cattle, you need about four acres, counting two for pasture, to feed one cow for one year. So says an agriculturalist. That's like a fair-sized city block, four acres. But it doesn't mean a cattleman with 50 head has to own 200 acres.

LEONARDO DA VINCI wasn't so dumb. Knowing there's no sense in going up if you don't know how you'll get down, he invented the parachute before he designed the airplane.

CUSTOMER SERVICE - Didn't President Franklin D. Roosevelt write a script for a motion picture? 'A That's Right. About Old Ironsides. Hollywood turned it down.'

HOW CAN YOU call yourself a gourmet if you turn down the real Eskimo ice cream? It's known as capcatop. And is a mix of greases, seal oil, reindeer fat and snow.

Your questions and comments are welcomed and will be used in PASS IT ON wherever possible. Please address your letters to L.M. Boyd, P.O. Box 99068, Seattle, Wash. 98199.
