Russian flies to Egypt

By United Press International
Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny flew to Cairo today to discuss the Middle East situation with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and attend dedication ceremonies for the Aswan High Dam.

A Palestinian guerrilla spokesman in Beirut said government forces fired on guerrilla areas in Amman today but the commandos did not return the fire. He said a number of people were killed and wounded.

Podgorny's visit to Egypt is his first since a few days before the 1967 Middle East War. He will attend ceremonies Friday dedicating the Aswan Dam, the largest Soviet-aided project outside the Communist bloc countries.

Egyptian sources said there would be lengthy discussions of the proposals that Israel gave to U.N. peace negotiator Gunnar V. Jarring in his weekend visit to Jerusalem. Jarring relayed the proposals to Egyptian Ambassador Mohamed Hassan el-Zayyat in New York Monday and met Tuesday with Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoni and Jordanian Ambassador Muhammad H. el-Farrar.

The refusal of any of the parties to publicly discuss the proposals was seen by some U.N. observers as an indication the talks may be reaching a serious bargaining stage.

The head of the Arab truce team in Jordan, Bahi Ladgham of Tunisia, met in London Tuesday with Jordan's King Hussein who is hospitalized there with a heart ailment irregularly. Ladgham, who had threatened to resign unless he received assurance of government cooperation in his peace-keeping efforts, reached a "tentative agreement" to remain on the job, Tunisian officials said.

DC black tagged for Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Rev. Walter E. Fauntroy, a top aide to civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., today won the Democratic nomination for nonvoting delegate to Congress from the District of Columbia.

It was the first time in 60 years the people of the nation's capital had a voice in who represents them in Congress. The nonvoting delegate's post was created by the last Congress following the defeat of a proposed constitutional amendment to give Washington voting senators and congressmen.

Counting of ballots was delayed some 5 1/2 hours by four separate computer breakdowns. The ballots had to be counted by hand.

Some 47 per cent of the district's 250,000 registered voters turned out to cast their ballots. Seven candidates, all black, ran for the Democratic nomination.

About 80 per cent of the city's registered voters are black and most are Democrats.

Joseph P. Yeldell, 38, a computer marketing specialist, came in second with 31 per cent of the vote, and the Rev. Channing E. Phillips, whose name was placed in nomination for president at the 1960 Democratic National Convention, had 22 per cent. The remaining 3 per cent was divided among the other four candidates.

Moon's rocks spawn debate

HOUSTON (UPI)—Two leading scientists disagree over whether the moon was born with a liquid, seething core. Two others argue whether the layer knocked off lunar rocks each year by cosmic rays from space in one atom or 10 atoms thick.

from lunar rocks, or 10 atom layers a year. Price said, referring to Walker.

They said there were also reports of mysterious, long "trucks" left in moon rocks by some kind of "wildly exotic" rays that have yet to be identified. They might be from super-heavy elements, or from a type of particle called a magnetic monopole that some scientists have speculated might exist.

Big and small, the learned debates are raging at the second annual lunar science conference here as the men who have studied moon rocks from Apollo 11 and Apollo 12 test their findings against theories about the origin and history of earth's nearest neighbor.

Today their discussions center around specific aspects of the geology, chemistry and mineralogy of the moon.

Dr. D. W. Strangway of the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston said Tuesday he is convinced from studying the physical properties of lunar rocks that the moon had a magnetic field about 3.5 billion years ago that was about one-tenth the strength of the earth's.

He speculated that this magnetic field was produced by a molten core that has now cooled and solidified.

In contrast to this, Dr. Charles P. Sonett of the space agency's Ames Research Center in Mountain View, Calif., reported Monday he feels the moon has always had a solid core. Strangway called their opposing viewpoints "a difference of interpretation" of data on magnetic properties of the moon.

A pair of experts on cosmic rays and their behavior in lunar material, Dr. P. B. Price of the University of California and Dr. Robert M. Walker of Washington University in St. Louis, reported their session also was "filled with controversy."

"The man next to me and I argued over whether it was one atom layer a year being eroded

Irish youths hurl bombs

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Youths sprinted out of the sidewalks and hurled 29 gasoline bombs at British troops and military vehicles during the night, army officials said today.

An army spokesman said 10 persons were arrested in the second night of disturbances in the Roman Catholic Ballymurphy area of the Northern Ireland capital.

Army officials said persons using similar tactics threw 20 gasoline bombs at British troops and vehicles Monday night and Tuesday morning.

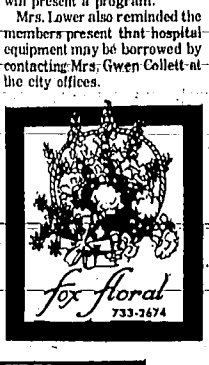

The army moved heavy concentrations of troop carriers into the area and these became targets of the attacks, the officials said.

Kidnap swap arranged
RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—Anti-government guerrillas Tuesday night delivered a note agreeing to free kidnaped Swiss Ambassador Giovanni Enrico Bucher in exchange for freedom of 70 political prisoners. Delivery of the agreement was the last government demand prior to release of the prisoners, who waited at a military base near Rio. A Varig International Airlines jetliner stood by to fly them to exile in Chile.
Bucher, 57, was seized five weeks ago as he was driven to the Swiss Embassy and his bodyguard fatally shot.

Teacher pay talks set

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls School Board members will meet Monday night with a faculty committee on negotiations for 1971-72 salaries and other working matters, Dr. Ernest Ragland said today.

At the same time, he said, the board will probably discuss the pending decision on hiring a new superintendent for the district. Dr. Ragland has submitted his resignation effective in June, and board members had set Jan. 25, the start of the second semester, as a deadline for selecting a replacement.

In a board meeting Monday night, Dr. Ragland reported salaries of district personnel for 1970 totaled $2,304,602.24.

compared to $2,985,067.79 for the previous year or an increase of $218,634.45.

Dr. Ragland said the faculty and staff of the district contributed $301,273 in federal income taxes during 1970, an increase of $5,871.49 over the previous year.

In addition $63,696 was withheld from the salaries for state income tax. This increase was up $10,723 over 1969. Social security withheld totaled $104,992.02.

Trial slated — CSI coed dorm offers most comforts of home

SPOKANE (UPI)— Trial of Roger Peterson, 42, Caldwell, Idaho, in connection with last summer's haystack fires in eastern Washington has been scheduled for Jan. 20 in Spokane County Superior Court.

Monday Spokane County Superior Court Judge William H. Williams allowed amendment of three counts filed against Peterson and addition of a fourth.

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Staff Writer

TWIN FALLS — The new coed dormitory at the College of Southern Idaho provides nearly all the comforts of home — including individual telephone lines if residents wish.

Pearl Utter, who "has had experience with handling college men as house mother at the former athletic dormitory for CSI, has been named house mother for the first dorm, — and first coed dorm — at the young college.

The dorm has been carefully designed to accommodate both college-age men and women, with the women assigned to the southern wing and the men to the two east-west wings. Two lobbies are provided adjacent to each other — one each for the boys and girls.

A door separating the lobbies, which are furnished with comfortable armchairs and sofas, will be left open during the day, but will be locked at night, according to Mrs. Utter.

On the second floor, similar lounges are provided for each wing — but with a solid wall between the groups.

The dorm is designed for a maximum of 150 students, mostly two to a room, but with a few single rooms for students who like privacy and don't mind paying a bit more. All students must purchase a meal ticket for the Commons dining hall when they reserve their dorm rooms.

Regulations for operation of the dorm will be drafted by a council of six student-proctors and six student representatives, Mrs. Utter said. Some rules have been adopted by the college, including the requirement that the students must clean their own rooms, and must not hammer nails or tacks into the walls.

In addition, no pets are allowed; no cooking will be done in the rooms, and no hazing of students by other students will be allowed.

Firearms or explosives must be checked in a central storage — not taken to the rooms.

The girls must be in their wing of the dorm by 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday nights, and 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday nights. Nothing has been said yet about late hours for the boys — that will be left up to the student council.

About 70 students have checked into the dorm, and a few more are expected for this semester, but there will be plenty of room, as it appears now, for early registrants for summer and fall terms, Mrs. Utter said.

The telephone lines — perhaps a "first" for an Idaho college or university dormitory — have been installed by Mountain Bell, with access to each dorm room.

Airport bond vote dropped

Airport Commission Chairman O. A. (Gus) Kelker, who presided at the special meeting, named Bill Powell and George Colner, commission members, and "Harry" Merrick, airport manager, to meet with the state commission on the matter of possible available funds and also on a change in the regional airport concept as it now exists.

During the discussion on this topic, County Commissioner Heler Laughmiller said that, under the existing regional airport law, Twin Falls County "could never afford a regional airport as contemplated" because regardless of the overall cost, this county would have to stand half of it and that at the present time this could be in the neighborhood of $5 million. In a taxing district situation the local field, already established, would thus become the regional field and cost would be shared there equally among the various counties of the district.

Action on a project at Joslin Field came to a head recently when the older portion of the main runway started to break up both because of heavy traffic and also because of weather conditions. The breaking portion of the runway is 23 years old. Some 1,200 feet of runway was built last spring at the east end of the old runway. This is not affected in the breakup.

Engineers feel that continued patching of the main runway to keep it in operation will be impossible much after early summer and that, unless it is replaced, the runway will have to be closed. If this is the case then Hughes Air West planes would bypass Twin Falls and there would be no major airline service available for the valley.

Commission Chairman Bill Cheneey said the requested mill levy would be included in the proposed budget but that it would be subject to discussion at various budget sessions planned over the county before formal adoption. Commissioner Merle Leonard concurred in this feeling.

Councilman Christoffersen will report to other members of the city body the action taken at Tuesday's session.

The airport commission serves in an advisory capacity so far as recommendations to the city and county commissions are concerned.

In connection with the urgent need for funds to keep the airport in operation, the city and county officials were told the airport governing board is planning to raise landing fees, rental fees and other charges at the airport effective in February.

School plans traced

BOISE (UPI)—The Senate's Health, Education and Welfare Committee outlined plans today to discuss teacher negotiations, distribution of funds, public kindergartens and vocational-technical training areas during the first session of the 41st legislature.

Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, chairman of the committee, also discussed with his committee a "meadox" program, a training program for former Armed Service medical corpsmen who will be further trained to assist physicians.

Barker said the program, funded with federal monies at the University of Washington, will be extended to Idaho.

The committee agreed to make copies of its minutes available to interested House committees, but decided for the most part to stay away from joint committee sessions with the house.

The committee will discuss two professional negotiations bills, one proposed by the Idaho Education Association and the other by the Idaho School Trustees Association.

Referring to distribution of state funds to public education under the formula program, Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, said, "I think we have reached the point where we must sit down and decide just what is our obligation."

Budge said the high school at Soda Springs "offered 43 courses over a four-year period, but said Pocatello can offer 66 courses over three years."

He suggested if some school districts "want to offer exotic things like Hawaiian dancing," the local districts should pay, but said the state's burden should be only to assure equitable courses offered in the schools.

Meanwhile, the vice-chairman of the powerful House revenue and taxation committee, Rep. John Edwards, R-Coeville, said one of the governor's three major tax proposals has a good chance of passing.

That is the proposal to repeal that section of the law limiting local taxing units to a four per cent revenue increase from property taxes each year. He noted that a repeal passed at the last session although then Gov. Don Samuelson vetoed it.

Edwards said he felt "there's logic" behind a proposal to take a fourth of the inventory tax phase-out monies and return them to the general fund. But he was uncertain just what fate it may meet in this session of the legislature.

This proposal would increase general fund revenue by an estimated $2.3 million the next fiscal year and would "make up" most of the extra money needed to fund public kindergartens.

Edwards doubted whether the governor's proposal for a constitutional amendment to permit assessment of different types of property at different ratios would make any headway at all. He said many felt it would be "just opening Pandora's box."

In the Senate, the State Affairs Committee made tentative plans to meet with its companion House committee to discuss re-districting, re-apportionment, and election law revision.

Sen. Dean Summers, R-Boise, chairman of the committee, said it would probably be April or May before census enumeration district figures are available.

Sen. John Evans, D-Meridian, noted a suit has been threatened unless the legislature takes immediate action to re-district the state.

Mayor aids hospital trash haul

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Mayor Peter F. Flaherty, dressed in old clothes, helped haul garbage from 12 hospitals and schools Tuesday to comply with a court ruling that the waste created a health hazard.

The garbage accumulated during the past nine days as a result of a strike by nearly 2,000 municipal workers including sanitation and road department employees.

Common Pleas Court Judge Lorán L. Lewis ruled Monday that the accumulation of garbage was a health hazard and ordered the city to have it removed.

Flaherty and a group of his aides elected to remove the garbage themselves, presumably in preference to having the courts force a partial break in the municipal walkout.

The mayor has refused to negotiate with the strikers unless they first return to work. A jurisdictional dispute between painters and plumbers was among issues in the walkout.

Ecology office plan submitted

BOISE (UPI)—Attorney General W. Anthony Park said Tuesday his office has prepared and submitted to the 41st Idaho Legislature legislation to establish a Department of Ecology.

The bill would create a separate department with authority to plan, coordinate and regulate the utilization of natural resources.

Park said the department, with the advice of an ecological commission appointed by the governor, would be authorized to control and regulate water pollution, solid waste pollution, noise pollution, radioactive pollution and air pollution, functions formerly authorized to be performed by the Department of Health and the Air Pollution Control Commission.

Park also said the measure would allow all state agencies concerned with the management, protection and development of natural resources to coordinate their activities through one central pollution control agency.

"It certainly seems to make sense to gather the various pollution control efforts together under one roof," Park said, "so that a unified and coordinated effort can be made to meet and resolve the pollution and environmental problems which face the state of Idaho in the 70s."

Park said he was convinced the proposal "would not only result in more effective enforcement of our pollution laws, but would also result in a more efficient expenditure of the taxpayers' dollar."

"I am hopeful that the legislation will look favorably on this proposal," he added.

Chairman J. Vard Chaburn, R-Albion, of the House Resources and Conservation Committee said he was convinced the proposal "would not only result in more effective enforcement of our pollution laws, but would also result in a more efficient expenditure of the taxpayers' dollar."

lee, said he felt the theory of the department was a good one but he questioned its practicality.

"In practicality, when ever we've set up something to combine departments and increase efficiency we've just increased our total obligation."

RETIRED Maj. Gen. Carl Turner, former chief of U.S. marshals and formerly Army's top policeman, was indicted Tuesday by federal grand jury at Richmond, Va., on charges of unlawfully obtaining firearms and of federal tax evasion. (UPI)

Firearms charges leveled

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Retired Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, the Army's former top policeman and also former chief of U.S. marshals was indicted today on charges of unlawfully obtaining firearms and of federal tax evasion.

Turner, 58, was indicted by a federal grand jury in Richmond, Va., Attorney Gen. John N. Mitchell announced.

Turner, who now lives at Springfield, Va., in Washington's suburbs, was indicted on 13 counts.

Five counts charged him with unlawfully soliciting gifts of 423 firearms from the Chicago police department and misrepresenting that they were for government use.

He was accused of evading $16,579 in federal income tax payments.

During his testimony, Turner told of purchasing 536 confiscated handguns and other firearms from the Chicago and Kansas City, Mo., police departments.

He said at the time there was full understanding that he intended the arms for his personal use.

Officials of both police departments denied under oath that there was any such understanding. The chairman of the investigating subcommittee, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., on Oct. 22, 1969, accused Turner of perjury and asked the Justice Department to investigate.

Ribicoff also accused Turner of helping to arrange "an extensive cover-up" within the Army of questionable activities of Sgt. Maj. William O. Woodruff in connection with alleged rackets in operation of clubs for GI's.

Bacteria invades pepper

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Food and Drug Administration said Tuesday that 116,000 tins of ground black pepper were being recalled because of contamination with salmonella bacteria.

The FDA said the manufacturer, Frank Ton and Spice Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, agreed to recall the pepper from wholesalers but refused to order it removed from grocery shelves. The agency did not insist on recalling the product from stores because the contamination was not considered a significant health hazard, an FDA spokesman said, noting that salmonella does not multiply readily in black pepper.

Fifteen brands of pepper were involved: Frosty Acres, Ploezing, Nugget, Foodland, Frank's, Forbes, Frankford, IGA, Mary Ann, McMahon's, Galanides, Nilda, White Villa, Sureline and Unity.

Space economy next NASA goal

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—As four-time space veteran James A. Lovell sees it, the federal space agency's next big challenge is to learn how to operate economically in space.

"And we can do it, just as we've made other breakthroughs," said Lovell, commander of the abortive Apollo 13 moonflight and the man who has spent more time in space than anyone else.

"He said the moon has been conquered and we weren't too careful about how much money we spent to get there. Now the breakthrough in NASA is to do the job economically. I think that we really have to look at ourselves very closely and say we can do the job."

"It's going to take some learning, but I think it's a possibility that we can build the shuttle and build the space station and do it so it's not a big drain on government expenditures," Lovell said in an interview.

The space shuttle is the key to the nation's future in space. It is seen as a reusable rocket plane that will be able to ferry a dozen passengers or 25,000 pounds of machinery to and from orbit at something like $5 million a trip.

Lovell now is the head of an advanced planning group in the astronaut corps working on the shuttle—"putting the operators' inputs in early so we don't have a vehicle that wasn't oriented or tailored to the people who will use it."

As soon as Lovell, John L. Swigert and Fred W. Haise made it back safely from the Apollo 13 mission, they helped investigators pin down the cause of the oxygen tank explosion that struck 205,000 miles from earth last April.

Lovell and his colleagues then went on a good-will mission to Europe and Lovell found the people overseas "are quite enthusiastic" about the space program.

When he returned home, he toured colleges and universities with Swigert and former astronaut William A. Anders, now executive secretary of the President's Space Council. The tours ended last month.

Lovell said they went to colleges to try to see if the space agency's way of approaching problems systematically could be applied to the problems interesting students. Many of the students he talked with were "very critical" of the space program.

Grades out in school experiment

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—A "new generation" school has its eyes on the next generation.

It's happening at the Ralph Bunche Elementary School in Tulsa, not far from the inner city with its social, economic and educational handicaps.

From a teacher, or from Dr. Gordon Cavell, school superintendent, you'd get this description of the school:

"Bunche is now a project in non-gradedness, with team teaching of a continuous progress plan for individualized instruction by a differentiated staff that is utilizing an auxiliary staff, a media center of their own development, and more planning time during the professional day."

Here's what that means.

They've eliminated standard grades one through six and replaced them with 15 phases or levels of educational achievement.

The normal practice of putting a teacher in a classroom and closing the door has been outdated by teaming clusters of teachers working together to develop lesson plans in a common specialty—like reading or math.

Students are not "stuck" in a class for the entire year. Those measuring up are moved ahead into another phase as soon as they are ready. Teaching is focused on the individual and the rate of his learning.

The library, enlarged, includes projectors, audio and video tape units, lesson kits and more texts. Students are encouraged to use the facility for study on their own.

And instead of being free only during lunch or recess periods, teachers now have from 45 to 90 minutes a day to plan the next day's lessons, either alone or in teams.

"If that sounds like a lot for one school to try at once, it is," one of the teachers said. "And if it sounds a lot different from the school you attended, it is. It's also a lot different from the one school teachers are used to teaching in."

The program, financed with $115,000 of federal funds, will continue to get federal aid for at least the next two years.

"I would hope that by three to five years, these characteristics of the Bunche project will become increasingly common in all the schools," Dr. Cavell said. "There's no question in my mind that Bunche is a prototype, though, the real school of the future will be Columbia Elementary or Sandburg."

Cavell told how the school got started.

"When we first chose Bunche for the project, we assembled the staff and asked 'What would you do differently if you could?'"

"They said they would spend more time on reading and mathematics. And they came up with the idea of spending half the morning in reading, half in math, and the afternoon in other subject areas because Bunche students are really deficient in reading and math, as is the case fairly well citywide."

Bunche has 533 students in four, eight white, the rest black.

Afternoon classes include periods in social activities, including physical education, music, speech and art.

Monday afternoons are "demand times," meaning the student can do what he or she "demands," or the teachers can have them concentrate on special areas in which they are lacking.

Chamber to elect 4 directors new eyes

TWIN FALLS — Four new directors of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce will be elected Jan. 18 by mail ballot.

Ballots have already been sent all members of the chamber and are to be returned prior to the official tabulation at 4 p. m. Jan. 18, chamber manager Ray Rostron said.

Rostron said hold-over board members and those elected Jan. 18 will meet prior to Feb. 1, to elect a president and other officers.

Hold-over board members include Robert Harvey, John Bishop, Jack Ramsey, Charles Steber, Norm Tarter, Fred Wanzendorf, Bill Workman and Wayne Wyatt. Those whose terms expire include Holland Houburg, Paul Jones, Steve Bancroft and Jack Sears.

Installation of new directors and officers will be during the annual chamber of commerce banquet planned for Feb. 11.

Tom Dooley's medical work still expanding

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dr. Thomas A. Dooley died 10 years ago Wednesday but his medical work among the poor of Southeast Asia continues, to expand through the efforts of men and women who share his dream.

Temples drums—the jungle telegraph—daily herald the coming of Thomas A. Dooley, Foundation houseboat-clinics to Mekong River villages, bringing hope to thousands who normally live short, disease-racked lives.

Dooley, who was a legend in his own time when he died Jan. 13, 1961 at the age of 34, believed Americans could "with the friendship of people by working beside them, humans-to-humans, toward goals they understand and seek themselves."

He set out to do what he could in a small way to provide medical care and education in a part of the world he grew to love as a Navy doctor aiding the evacuation of North Vietnamese refugees in 1954. Since he began with a hospital he established at Nam Tan, Laos, his work has spread in Laos and Nepal—and will shortly be introduced to Cambodia.

Dr. Verne Chaney, an associate of "Dr. Tom's," helped form the foundation in 1961 and still heads it at the expense of giving up his own surgical practice.

An imaginative man, Chaney started an airline hostess volunteer program, constructed 40-foot houseboat-clinics to ply the Mekong in Laos and Cambodia and embarked on building a series of 10-bed, easily assembled hospitals in Laos. The hospitals are known as Dooley Homes.

"All of this takes money," said Chaney, in New York from foundation headquarters in San Francisco for a foundation fund-raising benefit. "We raised $1.5 million last year from 80,000 contributors who give an average of $10 and $15."

"We have never sought government grants or contracts for a very good reason—we cannot afford any taint of the political."

Because Asians know the Dooley doctor-nurse teams of Americans are strictly humanitarian, houseboat-clinics are able to visit without difficulty villages which come under the control of the Communist Pathet Lao from time to time. The foundation must, of course, avoid combat areas and only recently American personnel at Khong Island Hospital in Laos were evacuated because Viet Cong infiltrated nearby Cambodian areas.

The foundation undertook a health survey of Nepal in conjunction with the University of Hawaii that became the basis of a medical program there. Dooley teams operate at a Nepalese orphanage, a Tibetan refugee camp, a leprosanarium, and at two mobile health units in the Pokhara

"Sesame" opening new eyes

NEW YORK (UPI)—The child who spends part of his day visiting friends and friendly monsters on "Sesame Street" now can add to the learning experience with a set of five "Sesame Street" books.

These are color-illustrated soft cover editions selling for 95 cents each, which makes them easier on the pocketbook than the larger but more expensive hard cover "Sesame Street" material. Published by New American Library and created in cooperation with the Children's Television Network, producers of the television program, the set includes:

—The Sesame Street Book of Letters, with Letters grouped into "shape families" to help the child remember.

—The Sesame Street Book of Numbers, which contains numbers and with illustrations taken from the number "commercial" used on the television program.

—The Sesame Street Book of Shapes, explaining circles, squares, rectangles and their friends, with familiar objects to illustrate.

—The Sesame Street Book of Puzzles, using the Muppets to explain concept words such as up and down, or around and through, as well as the "which of these things is different" poses.

—The Sesame Street Book of People and Things, a sort-of pot-pourri of childsize learning.

The books are illustrated in color and there is something parent heartwarming about seeing a small child flip through the pages of a book and fall on the number eight as an old friend.

Monday sports studied

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Year-round programming of sports in Monday night prime time is being considered by ABC-TV as a future possibility.

That is the word from James Duffy, president, of ABC-TV. The basic reason for the possibility, of course, was the enormous success of the network's new Monday prime time pro football series this season.

The first step in possibly using Monday nights for more than just football was taken recently when ABC-TV tried a prime time pro basketball game between the Los Angeles Lakers and Milwaukee Bucks.

Duffy says the network was definitely pleased with the overnight rating results in New York City. And the adds "pro basketball is a 'good possibility'" for weekly showings in Monday prime time next season when the pro football schedule is completed.

"Eventually," he says, "Year-round sports programming on Monday nights is possible."

Some observers had felt that ABC-TV's commitment to old movies following this season's football windup was the reason the network did not take a quick step to move right in with pro basketball—especially after the rating results of the Los Angeles-Milwaukee game.

But Duffy says this was not the reason. The problem, he indicated, was in booking the required arenas on such short notice.

Duffy feels pro basketball has really arrived as a major sports attraction.

"It now has a star system," he says.

As for this season's recent pro football games, he added that the average audience for an ABC-TV Monday night contest was 30 million persons, of which about eight million were women.

What other events is ABC-TV considering, besides pro football and pro basketball, for year-round Monday night sports programming if it should come?

Shultz strong man on Nixon's economic team

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The way the Washington grapevine tells it, former Gov. John B. Connally of Texas was assured he would have direct access to President Nixon in his new job as Treasury secretary and would not have to go through George Shultz.

The story is probably true. But if Connally, slated to become the first Democrat in Nixon's cabinet, hopes to influence economic policy, he might do better to seek guarantees of ready access to Shultz.

George P. Shultz, the 40-year-old former economics professor who was Nixon's first labor secretary, is emerging as the strong man on the administration's economic team.

Shultz carries the title of director of the Office of Management and Budget. But his imprint has been clear on all of Nixon's recent efforts to cure the current combination of inflation and recession.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that of the several top-level strategists who give Nixon economic advice, Shultz's word carries by far the most weight.

Shultz is worried that a crash program to snap the economy out of its doldrums would result in a disastrous inflation. Accordingly, the administration has modified its plans to restore full employment by mid-1972.

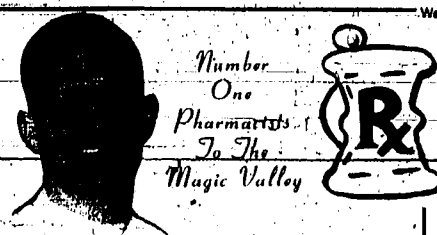

One high-ranking government economist who has felt the weight of Shultz opposition commented wryly: "The council of Economic Advisers says more; the Treasury says less and George Shultz says no."

The council wants to stimulate the economy enough in 1971 to increase the physical output of goods and services by 8 percent. This output, known as the gross national product, declined in 1970 for the first time since 1958 after taking inflation into account.

Shultz, it is now apparent, vetoed the 8 per cent growth goal. He clearly thinks it would be disastrous overall.

Shultz' rise to power was as unexpected as it was meteoric. When the former dean of the University of Chicago's Graduate School of Business Administration was appointed to the cabinet, some of Nixon's staff members had trouble spelling his name. It occasionally appeared in official memos as "Schultz."

Gooding Girl plans project

By MYRTLE SCHRECK Times-News Correspondent

Boise, state extension horticulturist, and was chosen as western winner.

the wonderful opportunities offered in the field of horticulture.

WENDELL—Marilyn Bickford, 17, Gooding high school junior, already is making plans to compete the National Junior Horticulture Association's demonstration division in Miami, Fla., next December.

Her greatest concern is that of the 350 delegates and leaders present at the convention only two were from the Western states. She hopes to acquaint youth people of the area with successful transplantings of nursery stock to the home garden-plot.

In the past 35 years the association has developed from projects restricted to those involving vegetable crops. Miss Bickford says, to those including judging, production and marketing, demonstrations, flowers, fruits, edible nuts, ornamental and turf.

The busy teen-ager recently returned home from the 36th annual convention of the National Horticulture Association in Denver, where she was one of two participants from the Western states in the fresh produce marketing section.

Also during recent years projects have included those dealing with experimental phases, and environmental beautification.

Miss Bickford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Bickford, Gooding, won both the Denver trip and one to the National 4-H club congress in Chicago last fall for her gardening project.

MARILYN BICKFORD

Miss Bickford plans to become a teen leader in her mother's 4-H club next summer and says her goal will be to convince younger members they can learn through experience.

In addition to helping with the family garden, she raised one-half acre of sweet corn for sale to local customers and grocery stores. She kept records of all her sales, experimented with fertilizer and then recorded the information in a record book.

Besides growing enough vegetables for family use during the summer and enough for canning and freezing, she grossed $115 from the corn and $25 from tomatoes, cucumbers and other vegetables she sold.

Besides gardening she holds responsible school and civic positions. She feels the Idaho Pride beautification program of the county 4-H clubs is "great."

Miss Francis says each student may choose his own media and work at his own pace. At Christmas time those who wanted to made their own Christmas cards. Designs were made by the student on a linoleum block, then carved with special tools and reproduced on paper by a printing process.

At present the class is drawing from models.

MOON'S interior has a basalt-like mantle 210 miles deep, which apparently surrounds a cool core of primordial oviline-like rock, according to first measurements announced by NASA scientists. The measurements suggested that the Moon's outer layer was melted during the first billion years of its 4.5 billion-year history. (UPI)

Rocks indicate Moon didn't split

HOUSTON (UPI) — Evidence piled from lunar soil and rocks has cast discredit on one of three major theories about the origin of the moon—the one that says it split off from the earth.

To a number of leading scientists at the opening session Monday of the second annual lunar science conference this theory, which until recently held the No. 2 spot, is fading from the scene.

Dr. Charles P. Sonnett of the U.S. space agency's Ames

Research Center in Mountain View, Calif., said the question now is whether the moon was captured by the earth or whether it formed through conglomeration of material in the dense atmosphere of the primeval earth.

"I think the information we have today is sufficient to resolve the question, but it will take several more years of work," he said.

And Dr. James S. Anders of the University of Chicago said "The question has not been settled by any means. That's why each of us is looking for evidence that will help shift the balance."

In an unprecedented move, the Soviet Academy of Sciences sent its vice president, Dr. Alexander P. Vinograd to the meeting at the invitation of the U.S. space agency.

Vinograd arrived Monday with what looked like a large roll of charts and said he was prepared to tell about studies conducted on lunar soil returned to earth by Russia's robot Luna 16.

Freighter goes down

DUNGENESS, England (UPI) — The 2,895-ton German freighter Brandenburg sank within two minutes early Tuesday when it hit what was believed to be the bulk of the tanker Texaco Caribbean. The tanker had sunk only Monday in a collision with a Peruvian freighter.

Coast Guard officials said seven bodies were found and 14 crew members were missing of the crew of 32. Eleven survivors were rescued by fishing vessels and taken to Folkestone Hospital in southeastern England.

4th G.I. arrested in officer death

QUANG TRI, South Vietnam (UPI) — A fourth Negro soldier has been arrested in connection with the slaying of a white Major and the wounding of another following an argument over a loudly played stereo phonograph, U.S. military sources said Tuesday.

Three blacks were arrested immediately after the two officers were shot early Friday morning at the base camp on the 1st Brigade, 5th Mechanized Division, 404 miles northeast of Saigon in South Vietnam's northern reaches.

Although Negroes and whites were involved, military spokesmen said they do not consider the incident was sparked by racial animosities. The slain officer was identified as Maj. Robert Degen, 34, operations officer of the 1st Battalion, 77th Armor, 1st Newburgh, N.Y., major was the father of three children. The wounded man was identified as Maj. Michael Davis, 34, of Bennettsville, S.C., executive officer. He is a graduate of South Carolina's Citadel military college and the father of two children.

None of the four Negroes in custody has been charged with any crime, military sources said. The Army's criminal investigation division is conducting an inquiry. None of the arrested men has been identified.

Arab pact cited

AMMAN (UPI) — Premier Wasfi Tal announced today he has reached agreement with Palestinian guerrillas to end five days of guerrilla-army fighting that has been the worst since last September's civil war. Some fighting continued, however.

Amman radio broadcast a communiqué it said was signed by both sides ending the shooting in Amman and in the hilly wastes of northern Jordan.

There was no immediate confirmation from guerrilla sources in Amman that their leaders had approved the ceasefire, and occasional gunfire still rattled across the capital.

In Beirut, a spokesman for Al Fatah said it had received word that fighting was going on in north Jordan, that Jordanians and Israelis were operating against guerrillas and that army land rovers with machine guns were harassing civilians in parts of Amman.

My Lai slaughter said result of high order

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI) — A witness testified Tuesday that Lt. William L. Calley's task force commander called for action against the village of My Lai because Americans were "losing too many men" there to the Viet Cong.

"Something is going to have to be done about that damn village," David B. Hein, 23, of Jansenville, Wk., quoted the task force commander, Lt. Col. Frank Barker, as saying about a week before the alleged massacre at My Lai.

Calley is charged with premeditated murder of 102 Vietnamese civilians on March 16, 1968, the day his platoon made a sweep through the village to clear out the enemy.

The name of the deceased Barker also cropped up Tuesday at the My Lai court-martial of Sgt. Charles E. Hutto at Ft. McPherson in Atlanta. A witness testifying for Hutto,

Buckley won't join up

NEW YORK (UPI) — William F. Buckley Jr. filed suit in federal court Tuesday challenging the constitutionality of the requirement that he join the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists (AFTRA) in order to appear regularly on radio and television.

Buckley, the conservative editor and columnist who moderates the weekly discussion program "Firing Line" broadcast over 80 television stations, charged that AFTRA's union shop was a "form of vassalage."

"It is my opinion," Buckley said at a news conference at the Overseas Press Club, "that the requirement that an individual pay dues to a private organization in order to work is a modern writ of indenture, the requirement that he do the same in order to express an opinion over the public airways involves an act of coercion by a private organization operating under government sanction."

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court by Buckley and the National Review, Inc., also names RKO General, Inc., which owns and operates WOR-TV, the New York station over which "Firing Line" originates.

Under the "Code of Fair Practices" RKO had signed with AFTRA, RKO was forbidden to buy or broadcast any package show made or originating in New York in which the performers are not members of AFTRA in good standing, the suit said.

The suit charged that the requirement that Buckley pay dues to AFTRA and obey its orders on threat of "denial of his access to television and radio stations places an unreasonable restraint upon plaintiff Buckley's right of free speech, deprives him of his property without due process of law, and breaches his rights under the First, Fifth and Ninth Amendments of the Constitution."

Board votes health funds

GOODING — Gooding county's share of support for the South Central Idaho Health District was approved by newly installed county commissioners Monday.

The county's support is $14,600, an increase of 4 per cent. James Ingalls, district director of the health unit, Twin Falls, met with commissioners to go over the budget for 1971. He said 49 per cent of the funds are designated for nursing services, 25 per cent for sanitation and 26 per cent for administration. The state provides matching funds of $5,110, which is 35 per cent of the total figure for Gooding County.

The oath of office was administered to all county officials by Jim Barlogi, Hagerman. Sworn in were Nelson King, Wendell, new commissioner, and Ben Gaurer, Gooding, newly elected chairman of the commission.

Other county officials include Andrew F. James, prosecuting attorney; C. E. Spencer, coroner; Vivian Burden, clerk; Doris Robertson, treasurer; Wes Tronson, assessor, and Charles Shaw, magistrate.

Trustees back school project

RUPERT — Minidoka County school trustees approved a remodeling project in the biology lab at Minico High School when they met Monday night.

Title III funds have been approved for half of the $11,550 project. Doyle Lowder, assistant superintendent, said: "The project will include purchase of new equipment as well as remodeling. Work will begin as soon as possible, he said."

Five parents attended the board meeting to protest the double starting time now used by the county school system of 8 a.m. and 9 a.m. They suggested having all classes start at 8:30 a.m.

Trustees took the request under advisement, as they did another suggestion to install a milk machine and snack bar instead of the candy and pop machines now used at the school.

A contract was approved for Mark Odum, who began teaching the sixth grade at Washington school in December.

New firm caters to young adults

TWIN FALLS — Among recent business additions in Twin Falls is the Embors Teen Center, 226 Shoshone St. E., catering exclusively to young adults and teens in the community.

Charles Slerer, owner and manager, said the purpose of the establishment is to give young citizens a place to meet socially for good wholesome entertainment and enjoyment. He and his wife, Kathy, who operate the business, say there will be adult supervision at all times. Young persons may buy snacks, soft drinks and fountain items, dance to live music or play pool or operate the pinball machines.

A large dance floor is provided and dancing is allowed at all times with live music on Friday and Saturday nights. The center is open from 10 a.m. each day until 10:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday and to midnight on Friday and Saturday. A folk singing group will be appearing one night each week, Slerer said.

Although the establishment is a commercial business, policy and operation are directed by a governing board of young adults, teen-agers and community residents with an interest in youth. These members meet on alternating Monday nights at the center and the public is invited, Slerer said.

Mind your money

They have from two to six wheels. Some have skis and rotary tracks.

They're called off-road vehicles and Americans are using them to crawl, climb, race and roar all over the hitherto quiet countryside.

Right now the most popular off-road, recreational vehicle is the snowmobile, although ATVs (all-terrain-vehicles), dune buggies (converted Volkswagens) and trail bikes (special motorcycles) are gaining fast. Conservationists are in an uproar because in some states, game is being harassed and killed off. Medical men are worried because off-road vehicles are causing an increasing number of human deaths and injuries.

Still, these off-road vehicles can be a lot of fun, opening up new territory to explore. If you're thinking of buying one this year, be careful how you select your machine, and be especially careful how you use it. Here are some tips:

Snowmobiles: Last winter, snowmobiles caused 84 deaths and an estimated 15,000 injuries. Major mishap areas: collision with cars, running into hidden wires, rocks, branches and falling through thin ice.

Best bet for safety is to join a snowmobile club. Many clubs offer driver instruction and have strict safety rules. By joining a snowmobile club you can often get cheaper insurance. Also, members know what kind of equipment to buy and can indicate dealers that give the best service.

There are at least 80 snowmobile manufacturers with Ski-Doo (Bombardier Ltd.) and Arctic-Cat (Arctic Enterprises) accounting for more than half the sales. Most manufacturers give one-year warranties but some, such as Moto-Ski, give two-year warranties on the tracks. You can get more, specific product information and a "Safety Handbook" by writing International Snowmobile Assn., 5100 Edina Blvd., Minneapolis, Minn. 55435.

HAZARDS: It's a good idea to rent a snowmobile (or any off-road vehicle) with some expert instruction before you buy one. Average price for a new snowmobile is $1,200. Make sure there's enough room for hooked feet under the cowling. Getting feet stuck inside can be dangerous. If possible, get deep-V or padded handlebars. According to Dr. William Ghent, a Canadian surgeon who has studied hundreds of snowmobile accidents, Snow-Prince has the only machine with handlebars adaptable for padding. Snow-Prince also has one of the most effective brake handles.

According to a University of Vermont study, you should get an extra padded seat. Spine injuries have been on the increase with snowmobilers who "jump" the machines over rough spots. The Vermont study also showed the need for wearing heavy ski goggles (eyes can be lashed by branches) and motorcycle helmets.

ATVs: The most popular all-terrain-vehicle is the six-wheeler. It can go on land and water but shouldn't be used in deep water, just marshes and streams. Prices average $1,800. Amphicat (Mobility Unlimited), the first to market an ATV, was quickly followed by the likes of Scrambler (Action Age), Atrex (ATV Manufacturing), Terra Tiger (Allis Chalmers) and Chaparral (FTS Corp.). Sears and Star-Craft now sell ATVs through their sports and recreation outlets.

Lease prices needed

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said Tuesday he will not sign state land lease renewals unless they are accompanied by supporting information showing prices charged represent an up-dated classification.

Andrus presided at the first meeting of the State Land Board since the Jan. 4 inauguration of state officials. Control of the board now rests with Democrats, four to one.

Andrus also let it be known immediately he plans to carry through his promise of efficiency in state government and said he hoped to keep future meeting dates flexible so the board could convene at short notice.

D. F. Engelking, superintendent of public instruction, noted his calendar was quite full and said a target meeting date each month would allow him easier scheduling.

"But your calendar ceases at 5 p.m. formally, doesn't it?" Andrus asked.

He said in the future he would like to keep the meeting times "flexible, the dates variable and the time short."

The land board will meet shortly — probably within the week — to discuss the future for Land Commissioner Gordon Trombley, who serves at the pleasure of the land board.

Andrus made his request for further information on land lease renewals after he declined to sign several such renewals which were placed on his desk the second day in office.

Gordon Trombley, however, said the renewals — one in Cassia County, two in Bannock, one in Gem and Payette counties and one in Gem county — had been reclassified during the past year and were rated according to the new classifications.

In one case, he said, the price had risen from nine cents per acre to 25 cents.

All four leases — which were eventually approved — had already terminated, which raised the question of public advertising on a lease which has terminated.

State Auditor Joe Williams noted he didn't want to "pit stockman against stockman, but I think people are entitled to know when leases are expired."

Trombley, however, said advertising of the terminations "could amount to quite a little monetary outlay" and said some 200 leases would come up for renewal in 1971, 516 in 1972, 524 in 1973, 519 in 1974, and 488 in 1975.

Andrus suggested through public newspapers the board could inform the public the time has arrived for lease expirations and that notices of the leases could be posted in each county courthouse.

The board also approved ten of 11 lease assignments transfers, which had been held up by the former land board.

Trombley said part of the problem was that former Atty. Gen. Robert Robson was concerned about pollution problems in the Heyburn Park area and had asked all leases in the area be held up "as an added measure perhaps to gain some level of compliance."

Rep. Harold Snow, R-Moscow, appeared before the board and said an attorney general's opinion had cast some doubt on the validity of the leases and said lease holders were reluctant to do any improvements on the land without knowing whether they could retain the land.

Take cover

POLICE wearing protective clothing fired hundreds of shots and lobbed tear gas into Black Panther headquarters in Winston-Salem, N. C. Tuesday after they were fired upon from the building while investigating a case of truckload of meat. No one was injured and police flushed two negroes out. Inside officers recovered about 20 boxes of frozen meat and an assortment of weapons. (UPI)

Hearing disturbs Peavey

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. John Peavey, R-Idaho, said Tuesday the "most disturbing" budget hearing of the week was that presented by the Department of Public Assistance.

Peavey, a member of the Senate Finance Committee, said recent Supreme Court decisions forcing the Idaho Department of Public Assistance to eliminate its one-year residency requirement have "caused a tremendous increase in requests for all phases of public assistance."

He said the department "will need a large increase in appropriations just to be able to keep each person on welfare on an even payment with last year."

"If the more fortunate would support the charitable efforts of their churches and civic organizations to a greater extent, and those efforts were concentrated on the local level, a real need could be taken care of on a local level and the other, on a much reduced budget, might find work and get off the public dole."

All four leases — which were eventually approved — had already terminated, which raised the question of public advertising on a lease which has terminated.

State Auditor Joe Williams noted he didn't want to "pit stockman against stockman, but I think people are entitled to know when leases are expired."

Trombley, however, said advertising of the terminations "could amount to quite a little monetary outlay" and said some 200 leases would come up for renewal in 1971, 516 in 1972, 524 in 1973, 519 in 1974, and 488 in 1975.

Tax bid eyed

BOISE (UPI) — A key Republican on the House Revenue and Taxation Committee cast doubt Tuesday on the future of two of Democratic Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' three major tax proposals.

In his "State of the State" address, Andrus Monday called for repeal of the four-percent ceiling on annual, local revenue increases, for return of one-fourth of the inventory tax phase-out monies to the general fund, and for a constitutional amendment eliminating the ban on assessing different classes of property at different rates.

Rep. John Edwards, R-Council, vice chairman of the tax committee, said in an interview he felt "there's logic" behind the proposal for returning a portion of the inventory tax phase-out monies to the general fund. But he said he was uncertain how favorable a response this would generate in the house.

When the legislature voted in 1967 to phase out the personal property tax on business inventories, livestock and timber products it decided to replace it with sales tax revenues.

Over a period of four years the law provided for eventual diversion of 20 percent of the sales tax receipts back to local government to replace the inventory tax revenue. The governor, however, recommended this be cut back to 15 percent — compelling a full 20 percent would be more than the local units were losing.

"I think there's logic behind it," Edwards said. "But I don't think it's big enough to make a dent in our problems."

However, he said he doubted if the legislature would go along with the proposal.

Don't wait

BOISE (UPI) — The Department of Law Enforcement advises owners of vehicles registered under the staggered licensing system and having plates ending in one not to wait until the end of the month to obtain new 1972 validation stickers.

Plates ending in one become invalid at midnight Jan. 31, the department notes. Jan. 31 is on a Sunday, so the final date for obtaining new stickers will be Friday, Jan. 29, as assessors' offices are not open on Saturdays.

CATV bill disputed

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. E. Don Copple, R-Boise, told the House Business Committee Tuesday he did not like a bill that would put control of Community Antenna Television under the public utilities commission.

"I feel that the dispute should not be presented to the legislature," Copple said later in an interview, "because there are adequate controls in the municipality issuing the franchise and in the viewing public."

Copple said the bill brought before the committee was simply a "repeat of the bill that was presented last time."

"It appeared to me that if we had a hearing on it that there would be the same arguments between the two that we had before," Copple said.

"I would say that in my opinion the program selection afforded the Boise viewing public is less than desirable and that the people of this area are entitled to as good facilities as are available," Copple added.

It was decided to allow the proponent of the bill to come before the committee at a later date to make an adequate explanation of the legislation.

Legislature begins work

BOISE (UPI) — Legislators working in committees continued today to outline areas of consideration during the first regular session of the 41st legislature.

Only four bills were introduced Tuesday — two in the house and two in the senate.

But the lawmakers working in committees touched on taxation which the Board of Education problems, education funding, re-apportionment and redistricting, and finances.

The administration of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus began its legislative program as Atty. Gen. W. Anthony Park sent legislation to the house which would create a Department of Ecology to control and regulate pollution problems in the state.

Rep. J. Vard Chatburn, R-Albion, said he felt the theory behind the proposal was good but questioned the practicality of creating another department.

"Everybody's for ecology and a good environment in which to live and work, but I'd have to think quite a while about setting up a separate department," he said.

The senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee outlined a work program which included teacher — professional — negotiations legislation, distribution of funds to public schools, a statewide kindergarten program and vocational — technical training areas.

The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee held a lengthy hearing on the general fund budget today to outline areas of consideration during the first regular session of the 41st legislature.

The schools and the office asked for approximately $31.5 million from the general fund and all institutions agreed to abide by a distribution formula which the Board of Education would distribute the funds according to number of students, programs of instruction, levels of instruction offered and services needed to support instructional, including teaching and research.

"In the house, the state affairs committee gave top priority in the session to congressional redistricting, with plans for a joint house-senate committee to work on the problem.

Andrus had noted the problem during his state of the state message and had suggested splitting Ada County between the two congressional districts and putting Elmore County in the second.

Jewish leaders quiet militants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American Jewish leaders have been working behind the scenes to cut off the anti-Soviet campaign being waged in this country by the militant Jewish Defense League.

They achieved one of their prime objectives Tuesday when New York police arrested Rabbi Meir Kahane, the league's leader. He was arrested for failing to appear in court Jan. 6 to answer riot charges growing out of a demonstration at the Soviet Mission to the United Nations last year.

Several Soviet installations in New York and Washington have been attacked and the league has claimed responsibility. Sunday Kahane said the JDL would continue to harass Soviet diplomats in this country to retaliate for "persecution of Jews in the Soviet Union."

U.S. officials have expressed concern that the incidents may further strain U.S.-Soviet relations. And, American-Jewish leaders fear activities attributed to the league, plus Kahane's statements, could jeopardize the lives of Jews in the Soviet Union and change U.S. opinion on the cause of Israel.

Their disapproval of the league's tactics has been voiced in numerous public statements, the latest of which was a letter to President Nixon signed by 78 Jewish leaders from 27 cities.

The letter, released by the Western White House earlier this week, voiced "outrage" at acts of violence which, the Jewish leaders said, "injure the lives of Jews in the Soviet Union."

But the Jewish community's opposition to the league has been expressed even more forcefully in private. Some of the top Jewish leaders in America met secretly in New York recently to explore what forms of pressure they might exert to curb extremist threats and actions by Kahane and his followers.

As an outgrowth of that meeting, law enforcement officials in New York were advised that a stern crackdown on the league in general and Kahane in particular would bring no protest from the Jewish community. Rather, they said it would be welcomed.

Leaders of major Jewish organizations scoff at Kahane's claim to represent a league membership of 15,000.

Soft drink taxation studied

BOISE (UPI) — Acting Chairman John Edwards, R-Boise, of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee appointed a special subcommittee Tuesday to look into a proposal for a tax on soft drinks.

As proposed by a subcommittee of the Commission on Comprehensive Health Planning, the revenue from the tax would be put into an "environmental pollution control fund."

In its present form, the bill, drafted by the legislative council, would tax each 10 fluid ounces of soft drinks one cent or each gallon of syrup, 80 cents. It also would apply to powders used to make soft drinks.

Rep. William Onweller, R-Boise, and Rep. Wayne Lovelace were named to the subcommittee. Onweller said the tax would return an estimated $2.1 million in revenue. He said it would amount to $3.65 per person in the state of Idaho.

He said the estimates on the revenue were based on the experience of two states having such a tax, South Carolina and West Virginia.

Legislative action log

By United Press International
Introduced in House
HBT (Williams) — Prohibit cities from annexing property with in 91 days prior to any general city election at which candidates for elective city office are to be voted upon.
HB2 (Williams) — Increases expenses of highway commissioners to $25 per day from $10.
Introduced in Senate
SB1001 (Mitchell) — Makes opening or attempting to open coin depository box a misdemeanor.
SB1092 (Agricultural Affairs) — Amends Idaho code to allow slaughterhouses to process both inspected and custom meats.

Nezperce position disputed

LEWISTON (UPI) — John Bone Monday filed suit in District Court here seeking to retain the seat on the Nezperce County Commission he has held less than one month.

Bone was named last Dec. 18 by then Gov. Don Sampson to succeed Elmer Heltman, who died of a heart attack.

However, Gov. Cecil Andrus appointed Willard Duclos to the position and Duclos was sworn in Monday to the seat held by Bone.

Bone, in his suit, charges Duclos was not entitled to be sworn in to the position because there was no vacancy and that he had been legally seated on the commission.

Duclos had no comment Tuesday on the suit.

Air search slowed

TWIN FALLS — Bad weather today continued to hamper efforts to search for a light plane with three men on board which has been missing since Sunday on a flight from Jackpot to Halley.

Harry Merrick, manager of the Twin Falls City-County Airport, said Wednesday he has pilots ready to fly any time, but weather conditions have made air conditions hazardous for the searchers.

Merrick, who has been appointed local search coordinator, has plotted areas on a map and is assigning sections for a rough plane to cover. Despite weather problems, the searchers have covered a substantial share of the area between Jackpot and Twin Falls and also have flown over the route of the proposed flight.

Plot of the missing plane, Ir Clayton Duffy, Bellevue, his son, Carson Duffy, and a passenger, Howard Simms, left the Jackpot Airport in the PA-24-146 Cherokee about 5:45 p.m. Sunday and have not been seen since.

Merrick said the white plane, if down in the Twin Falls to Jackpot area, will be extremely hard to sight because of a snowfloor. He said most of the areas above the 5,000-foot mark is snowcovered.

As of Wednesday Merrick had 10 pilots ready to take to the air, but another storm moving in over the area was a discouraging factor.

Operation in doubt

HAZELTON — Future of the dump jointly operated by the cities of Eden and Hazelton northeast of here remained in question after the Hazelton City Council meeting Tuesday night. Mrs. Jackie Christopherson, city clerk, said it is understood the county will assume the operation, but nothing legal has been signed as yet. The matter will be further discussed at the Eden City Council meeting tonight.

Mayor Elmer Pyne appointed Councilmen Wallace Bragg in charge of water; Kermit Douglas, street and park; Robert Stokesberry, police and fire and Richard Bloxham, sewage.

Third reading was given of an ordinance updating the city building permit code.

Don Kauffman, filer, presented a retirement plan for city employees, which councilmen took under advisement. Gene Fredrickson, new Jeromo County prosecuting attorney, and S.A. Kohman, Eden city attorney, also attended the meeting.

Planning

PLOTTING a sectional map, Harry Merrick, Twin Falls, at right, shows Terry Johnson, Twin Falls, the area he is to search by air. Merrick has been appointed local coordinator of a search being conducted for a light plane missing on a flight from Jackpot to Halley.

Subdivision legislation endorsed

BURLEY — Proposed legislation permitting school districts to be subdivided has been endorsed by Cassia County School District trustees. The endorsement has been sent to county legislators in Boise for passage during the 41st session.

Supl. Harold Blauer said the school board approved the proposal Monday evening during a special meeting. Under provisions of the measure, if it is passed, a school district could subdivide for bond issue purposes, he said.

He said this way, when additional school buildings are needed, the school district could set up a bond election in that particular subdistrict and only that subdistrict be taxed, not the whole school district.

He said this proposal would affect other school districts in the state if there are four or more high schools within one school district.

In other business Monday, the trustees sold five school buses. Vera Teasley, Twin Falls, was high bidder for three buses. His bid was $1,700 for the three. Others purchasing buses were Roscoe Ward, Almo, $601.50 for one bus, and the Trinity Church of the Nazarene, San Francisco, $631.05 for the remaining bus.

Saxvik disagrees on pollution ideas

BOISE — Freshman Democratic Sen. Robert Saxvik, Burley, disagrees with the anti-pollution recommendations contained in Gov. Cecil Andrus' "State of the State" message.

Saxvik praised the governor's speech although he took exception to those proposals. Whereas Andrus asked for strict enforcement of the state's water quality standards and called past pollution control efforts "woefully deficient," Saxvik argued the "proper method for pollution control is self-control rather than the enforcement power."

Bedke defending double district

BURLEY — Herman Bedke, public defender for Mindoka and Cassia counties, is probably the only county official in Magic Valley to be sworn into office twice.

Since he serves as part of the official county family in both counties, Bedke participated in ceremonies at both Rupert and Burley Monday.

District Judge Sherman Bellwood administered the oath of office to Glenison D. Anderson, first magistrate for

Changes but

NEW JEROME COUNTY magistrate, Russell Stroud, has changed titles, but is operating out of his same office. He was formerly probate judge, but Monday assumed the title of magistrate under the new court reform.

Lincoln board elects

SHOSHONE — C. E. Chatfield, was re-elected chairman of the Lincoln County board of commissioners at a meeting which concluded its January session at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Commissioners Glen Sorenson and Burl Williams, both new members, were administered the oath of office and they in turn administered the oath of office to other county officers.

These county officers included Mrs. Luella Kinsey, clerk; Mrs. Imogene Helsley, deputy clerk; Sanford Connell, assessor; Myron D. Johnson, treasurer; Mrs. Jeff Rapp, deputy treasurer; Howard Adkins, prosecuting attorney, and Bill Anderson, newly-appointed deputy sheriff.

In other business, commissioners: Set up an ordinance creating all of Lincoln County as a weed eradication area. Retained Dr. R. G. Neher as public health physician. Named the Lincoln County Journal as the county's newspaper. Salary for the new county weed supervisor, Bryan Hall, was approved for $3,400.

Routes opened

SHOSHONE — U.S. Highway 20-26 from Shoshone to the Craters of the Moon was reopened this morning after being closed overnight by heavy drifting.

H.H. Hubbard, maintenance superintendent for the Idaho Highway Department at Shoshone, said the route was closed about 9 p.m. Tuesday.

All other roads in the district are open but slick and are in fair winter travel condition, Hubbard said.

Morning fire rips milk barn

CAREY — Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a milking barn on the Bob Whitty Ranch five miles north and east of Carey about 4 a.m. today.

Deputy Sheriff Don Green said investigation to determine the cause of the fire is continuing. The blaze began at the front of the barn near the bulk tank. He estimated damage at "several thousand dollars."

The blaze was seen by Mrs. Whitty about 3:40 a.m. She told Green that at that time the barn "was well afire."

Wendell chamber hears Malad park fund bid

By MYRTLE SCHIRENK Times-News Correspondent WENDELL — Donations are urgently needed to help raise the $7,500 for the cost of land in the planned Malad River George Park. Clyde Peterson told Wendell Chamber of Commerce members this morning at a meeting at the Motor Inn Cafe.

He said it is important to raise the money as soon as possible so the loan may be paid off because of the 10 per cent interest rate.

Gem mine head asks $246,100

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Bureau of Mines and Geology requested $246,100 from the general fund for fiscal year 1972 Tuesday in a hearing before the joint Finance-Appropriations Committee.

Dr. Roland Reid, director of the bureau, said the figure included funds for an electron microprobe analyst and a technician to operate specialized equipment.

Reward offered

BURLEY — Ore-Ida Foods, Inc. officials have announced they will pay a $1,000 reward for information leading to arrest and conviction of person or persons reporting a bomb threat on Jan. 8 to Ore-Ida Foods, Inc. plant.

Information will be kept confidential. Persons with information may call the Cassia County sheriff or Paul Bandy, Ore-Ida Foods, Inc. plant manager.

Meeting Thursday

BURLEY — The Southwest Elementary School PTA will hold a special meeting Thursday at the school. Rooms will be open for visits by the parents from 7:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. followed by the business meeting.

If extra money is raised, it will be used to develop other recreational sites in Magic Valley, Peterson said.

A letter was read from H. L. Johnson, Shoshone, district highway engineer, saying the chamber sign west of the city on the most interstate must be moved by Feb. 1, and no other sites are available. But if county zoning is adopted the decision could be reversed, he said.

Eleanor Freeman, secretary, was instructed to invite Johnson to the Feb. 10 meeting to discuss deferral of moving the sign until the weather is more favorable.

Members agreed to a site for the proposed regional airport north and east of the Interstate 90 interchange with Highway 93 in response to a letter from Clayton Stewart, South Idaho Chamber of Commerce asking for a suitable site.

Petersen was instructed to continue study for possible utilization of the former Idaho Tuberculosis Hospital at Gooding. John Wert, new president, said he will appoint committees before the February meeting.

Increased equity in values sought

SHOSHONE — Greater equity for all classifications of property under the reappraisal program for the benefit of the taxpayer was asked Tuesday at a meeting of the Shoshone Chamber of Commerce.

Lincoln County Commissioners and property appraiser Edward Messenger met with the chamber to discuss the reappraisal of all county property which is now required by state law.

Chamber members suggested it might be more fair to property owners if the program covered farm property one year, business property the next and urban residential on a third. Messenger told chamber members the purpose of the reappraisal, revolving on a five year cycle, is to keep property assessments equal and in line with true values.

He said without reappraisals some counties are taxing a home at a long established value while a home across the street of about the same age and quality may be taxed on a much different assessed value. Some properties will go down, for the benefit of the taxpayer, while others will be raised, he said.

Listing two specific homes in Shoshone, Messenger said one of the two, of about the same age and quality and in the same location, will drop from $43,299 to $242,400 in assessed value while the other will go up from $127 to $160.

He said in the Kimama area of the county the total assessed value will go from $378,650 in 1970 to $587,811 for 1971 or an increased tax base of $209,161.

Value of the property is actually $3,301,872 on the new records while the cash value figure for 1970 was $2,227,351.

The appraiser said new aerial maps are now in use in the county. He also said the land in the east end of the county has been properly appraised at this point and commercial property is entered on the last books under the new program with true cash value appraisals for this year.

County commissioners asked businessmen to attend the public budget hearing set for the second Monday in February.

In other business the chamber set Feb. 7 at the Lincoln school for the annual Boy Scout breakfast. Named to the committee were Kenneth Blackburn, William Mabbutt and William Thomason.

Mrs. Betty Lou Newby will be the new secretary for the chamber of commerce.

County commissioners introduced were Burrell Williams, C. F. Chatfield, Glenn L. Sorenson, with Assessor Sanford Connell and Messenger also present.

Boisean arraigned on kidnap charge

JEROME — Gary L. Hayes, 20, Boise, charged with robbery and kidnapping, was arraigned Tuesday in Jerome Magistrate Court before Judge Russell Shaud.

Hayes, who was arrested Tuesday morning in Twin Falls, had not decided when he will be arraigned whether he will request a preliminary hearing.

He was arrested in company with a 16-year-old girl at a Twin Falls hotel. Hayes is charged in connection with the abduction of a grocery store clerk from Boise and the holdup Tuesday morning of a Jerome gas station in which the station attendant also was taken hostage. Both hostages were released unharmed in Twin Falls.

Bond was set at $3,000 and by Wednesday morning Hayes had not posted bond and remained in custody in Jerome. Sheriff James (Pat) Burns of Jerome County and Jerome Chief of Police C.H. Funtney picked the couple up Tuesday in Twin Falls and transferred them to Jerome. The girl also remains in custody.

Camas coal lack may close school

By ROBERTA DANIELS Times-News Correspondent FAIRFIELD — A critical coal shortage is facing the Camas County schools, according to Supl. Harold Stroud. Both the grade and high schools depend on coal for heating.

Stroud said if the schools run out of coal there will be a real freeze-up in the buildings that will result in costly repairs.

Mrs. Osborne said a variety of circumstances have prevented the company from getting its usual shipments of coal this year. There has been a shortage of coal all fall and winter and most of the shipments had to be rationed among the various users.

Snow closes 2 routes

BOISE (UPI) — More snow fell on Idaho's major mountain passes today, requiring use of tire chains in some areas and forcing closure of two roads.

State Highway 200 — Sandpoint, snow floor.
State Highway 41 — Spirit Lake, broken snow floor.
Interstate 90, U.S. 10 — Fourth of July Canyon, Kellogg to Wallace, broken snow floor.

Bortz Jr., Twin Falls, in a double ceremony Dec. 27 in the Twin Falls Church of Christ. The afternoon ceremony was performed by Rev. Bennie J. Whitehead, pastor, before background decorations which featured cherub vases filled with deep purple and white feather flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white floor-length gown of crepe, fashioned with lace sleeves and a lace bodice. Pearl trim outlined the empire waistline and rounded neckline of the gown which was made by the bride.

Her shoulder-length veil, borrowed from Mrs. Bruce Brown, was of bridal illusion and was held in place by a headpiece of solid pearls fashioned with a bow. She carried a cascade bouquet of feathered flowers and fern.

Katie Fleenor was maid of honor and Carol Mills, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Lori Lancaster, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, and James Howard Mills, brother of the bride, was ringbearer.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My grandson (I'll call him Jimmy) is a 19-year-old college student. A few weeks ago I noticed that a stage play was coming to town. Because Jimmy had taken a role in that play in high school, I wrote him a note offering to treat him and a friend to two tickets. I asked him to let me know which performance he wanted to see so I could purchase the tickets and put them in the mail to him. Two weeks went by. I didn't hear one word from the boy. Then his other grandmother told me that Jimmy was "pleased" with my offer, but was "too busy" to go.

I told my son (Jimmy's father) that I was hurt and displeased that his son didn't bother to give me that message personally, whereupon the father immediately took Jimmy's part, pointing out what a fine lad he was—"No drinking, no smoking, no dope. . . I added, "—and no manners."

Now I am the villain. Everyone is mad at me and I am mad at the boy. Your comments, please. THE VILLAIN

DEAR VILLAIN: Your grandson should have personally acknowledged your offer with thanks, regrets, or whatever. But since he failed to do so, you shouldn't have attempted to punish him by reporting his bad manners to his father. A 19-year-old college student is old enough to take his own lumps. Next time, sock it to him—not his father.

DEAR ABBY: Our son will be coming home from Viet Nam soon after having completed four years there. He has a good job waiting for him when he comes home, but we don't know exactly how much he will be earning a week.

We would like to have some idea as to how much room and board to charge him, keeping in mind that there is always beer and drinks in the house which he likes, and will be helping himself to unless he has changed. Can you give us a suggestion? TEXARKANA

DEAR TEXARKANA: I don't know what the going rate for room and board is where you live. Meanwhile, what's your hurry? Would giving your returning G.I. son a "break" break you?

DEAR ABBY: I've been tempted to write to you many times, but now I can't resist. When I read the letter from "Can't Forget," who was still in love with her algebra teacher whom she hadn't seen for 13 years, I was shocked to learn there was someone else so much like myself.

I was in love with a college classmate, but he married someone else. I also married and even after four years and a beautiful baby I still dreamed about this fellow. Whenever I saw a car like his, my heart would pound even though he had left town years before and I knew it couldn't possibly be his.

Then one day I saw a picture of him in the newspaper. I nearly died. He was fat and bald and ugly. Needless to say, all my dreams vanished. All the psychologists in the world couldn't have done as much for me as that one picture. Now, every time I think of him, I count my blessings for not marrying him; and I kick myself mentally for wasting my day dreams on him. FINALLY FORGOT HIM

DEAR FINALLY: If your "love" lasts only as long as your lover has his hair and boyish figure, it's a good thing you didn't marry your college dreamboat.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ANDREA: Don't play games. If you want him, say yes. While you are playing "hard to get" he may meet somebody else, and decide it's "love at first sight."

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 6796, Los Angeles, Cal. 90060. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

BURLEY — Plans are under way for the annual Sweet Adelines barbershop show scheduled for 8 p.m. Feb. 6 at the Burley High School Auditorium. This week members of the Sweet Adelines began selling advertising for the program booklet. Special features on the show will be a men's quartet, top performers in the Regional Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America and the Pocanella Chapter of Sweet Adelines, who rated second in the regional competition held last year at Reno, Nev. Directing the show arrangements are Mrs. Robert Ramsey, chapter president and Mrs. Dick Jensen, general chairman of the annual event. Other committee chairmen will soon be announced. Sweetbriar celebrates 40th anniversary

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Leona Peters, local manager of the Sweetbriar Shop, announced 1971 as the year of Sweetbriar's 40th Anniversary. The theme of all advertising during the year will be "40 Years of Fashion Leadership." Mrs. Ethel Barrow, chairman of the board, and her husband, the late Mr. A. C. Barrow, founded Sweetbriar Shops, Inc., in 1931. Starting with three small shops, one in North Platte, Neb., one in Lamar, Colo., and one in Goodland, Kan., Sweetbriar has grown to an organization with 55 fashion shops in 15 western states. The Barrows came to Denver in 1931 from Lynchburg, Va., after selling out a successful manufacturing business, and eventually decided to go into the retail business. Searching for an appropriate name, they hit upon "Sweetbriar," naming it after a well-known women's college on the outskirts of Lynchburg — Sweet Briar College. With no retail experience, Mr. and Mrs. Barrow survived the depression years of the thirties, and built their business to 21 stores by 1941. Expansion was curtailed during the war years, however, seven new locations were added soon after World War II. In 1948 J. G. Stuart was appointed president and general manager and the company continued to flourish under his leadership. Sweetbriar grew to 50 stores up until his retirement in 1967. H. Wade Barrow, son of the founders, has succeeded Stuart as president and general manager, and five more stores have been added during his tenure. The home office of Sweetbriar is in Denver in the new Montbello industrial area, where all merchandise is received from the fashion centers of New York, California, Dallas, Chicago and St. Louis. Fashions are processed, ticketed and then distributed to the 55 stores, from the Denver office. Sweetbriar also maintains its own buying office in New York.

New 4-H clubs, projects planned

TWIN FALLS—As the 1971 4-H year opens, urban and rural youth alike are encouraged to look at the 4-H club program, says Dick Fueher, county 4-H club agent.

He says many projects are adaptable to urban and suburban living — electricity, entomology, home improvement, bicycle, gun safety and many others.

A new 4-H entomology club is forming, Fueher said, in the Twin Falls-Kimberly area. Those interested in insect study and collecting should call Dale Fisher at the Snake River Conservation Research Center, 423-5582.

Fisher is an amateur entomologist and would like both now and experienced 4-Hers in his club.

Another new club forming in Twin Falls is a livestock club. For further details, contact Fueher.

Two new projects available this year that are adaptable to both city and country youths are bicycle and gun safety. The bicycle project will cover all aspects of bicycles from history to maintenance and customizing.

On gun safety, youths of 12 years and older who enjoy shooting are invited to participate. This new project will emphasize safety and hunting regulations. If there is enough interest, Fueher said, the Twin Falls Gun Club will help organize shooting matches. All types of air and conventional guns are welcome, he said.

Fishery grants awarded

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) today awarded the University of Washington, Seattle, a $1.1 million sea grant designed to improve fisheries in the northern Pacific.

A third of the University's sea program will be matched by non-federal funds. The NOAA grant will make it possible to carry the program into its fourth year.

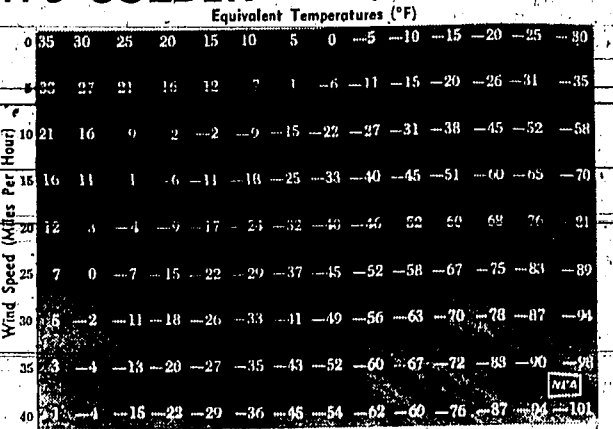

The University will undertake a new project called "Northfish" which will attempt "a total systems analysis" of North Pacific fisheries, something never done before. The fishing industry, government agencies, and other universities of the Pacific Northwest will participate. The aim is to apply computer techniques to resources planning.

"Today's grant brings the total allocation to the University of Washington to $1,728,700 since 1968.

IT'S COLDER THAN YOU THINK

How cold is cold? Your thermometer is not always a reliable indicator of how chilly it is outdoors—better check the wind speed, too, says the 1971 World Almanac. Studies show that heat loss from the body's surface is strongly affected by both temperature and wind. For example, a calm-air temperature of zero degrees has an equivalent cooling effect of minus 40 degrees at a windspeed of 20 miles-an hour. Using above chart, you can determine equivalent temperature at a given windspeed by finding calm-air temperature along top line and reading down to windspeed line.

Canada defends valley against high dam plan

VANCOUVER (UPI)—A pretty little mountain valley, a tiny section of what politicians like to call the world's longest undefended border, is being hotly defended by Canadians who don't want to see it fed to the light-bulbs-and-refrigerators of Seattle.

The center of the dispute is Seattle's plan to raise the level of a dam about 20 miles south of the Canadian border to get more electric power. But a higher dam would flood the Skagit Valley on the Canadian side of the border.

The Seattle plan and the protests against it are moving to the federal level, and a decision either to allow the flooding or stop it will have to come from Washington or Ottawa.

The Skagit (rhymes with gadget) River runs south to the international border through the Skagit Valley, a flat, little rivercourse about 100 miles east of Vancouver.

The water is clear, cold and quick running. The gravelly riverbed is good for rainbow trout. In many places, logjams form beaver ponds. Many kinds of wildlife live in the valley, including deer, bear and grouse.

The Seattle City Council recently voted 8-2 to seek approval from the U.S. Federal Power Commission (FPC) to raise the Ross Dam in North-Central Washington by 125 feet, bringing its reservoir elevation to 1,725 feet.

Ross Lake, the reservoir held by the dam, now extends about a mile into Canada when full, receding about nine miles during the dry season.

If the dam is raised, Ross Lake would back up eight miles into Canada when full, covering about 5,200 acres of the valley.

Opposition to the plan is led by a coalition of ecology and wildlife groups from both nations called "Run Out Skagit Spoilers," or "ROSS," which has gained backing from politicians and the press in British Columbia.

Canadian Fisheries Minister Jack Davis, whose home parliamentary district is in Vancouver, has spoken against the plan, as have opposition leader Robert Stanfield, who took a helicopter tour of the valley in November, and even Seattle Mayor Wes Uhlman, who does not have a vote in his own City Council.

The opposition to Seattle's plan has spoken out with petitions—one bore 27,000 names—pamphlets and appearances at Seattle's public hearings on the plan.

Their main argument is that the valley is irreplaceable resource and should be preserved. ROSS members call the Skagit a prime fishing, hunting and camping area, and say it should be kept such rather than becoming a commonplace fishing and boating lake.

They worry, too, that much of the valley's wildlife will be lost. ROSS spokesmen are pessimistic about the chances of shifting wildlife to other areas already supporting game populations. Many spawning areas now used by trout would become lakelottom, and they doubt that the fish would switch to similar areas in unlooded upper reaches of the river.

Seattle has passed its plan up to the federal-level FPC. In Canada the protests, and requests that it be found to halt the flooding, have been taken to the Canadian federal cabinet by Davis. The dispute was bound to reach the highest level, since it comes under an international agreement.

Most of the replies to the anti-dam critics have come from a report prepared for Seattle by a Vancouver firm, professional consulting engineers and foresters, F.F. Slaney and Co.

The Slaney report, a professional study and assessment of the situation, quietly advises making the best of an agreement to which British Columbia is committed under earlier settlements allowing U.S. use of Canadian land.

Slaney and Co. is continuing a year-long in-depth study of the valley. So far, they say, the effect of the flooding on Skagit wildlife cannot be accurately predicted. They're cautiously hopeful, however, that losses will be slight.

Western dressed list set

DENVER (UPI)—The Western Apparel and Equipment Manufacturers Association today named movie actors Rex Allen, Dale Robertson and Roy Rogers to its list of 10 best Western dressed men for 1971.

Others named by the association were singing star Jimmy Dean; rodeo performers Larry Mahan, Casey Tibbs and Shawn Davis; Lynn Butcher, rodeo stock contractor from Elk City, Okla.; rodeo announcer Bill Tallon of Denver; and Bill Powers, a Western apparel salesman from Scottsdale, Ariz.

All except Powers, Davis and Rodgers were named to the association's 10 best dressed in 1970.

The Association said it based its selection on authentic and consistent wearing of Western apparel.

The Association said it would present its silver spur award to the "Television Western 'Gunsmoke'" as the TV "Show of the Decade."

Cleaner Clothes... Or Cleaner Streams?
Many people are concerned about our environment. Because Buttrey believes in your right to be an informed consumer, we display a list of phosphate content of detergents in each Buttrey Food Store.

Phosphates, while they provide you with "cleaning power" for your wash, are still one of the leading contributors of pollution of streams and lakes. The lower the phosphate content, the less pollution caused. Check the Phosphate Content Chart in Buttrey's detergent-section. It's there to help you make your own decision about how you can help keep our streams and lakes free from pollution.

NBA may bring suit against Seattle for signing Haywood

SAN DIEGO, (UPI)—The National Basketball Association's owners have warned Seattle owner Sam Schulman the Supersonics are in trouble for signing Spencer Haywood. The Board of Governors met on the day of the league's 21st annual all-star game Tuesday and directed Commissioner Walter Kennedy to "consider bringing charges" against the Sonics.

"The commissioner is directed with the aid of counsel to consider bringing charges against Seattle before the Board of Governors in connection with the Spencer Haywood matter and to advise the board of the most drastic penalties lawfully in its command if such charges should be sustained."

The possibility of going exclusively to permit hunting for mountain sheep and the probability that the state's sage grouse population has peaked were among items reported by members of the Idaho Fish and Game Department to members of the Southern Idaho Fish and Game Association at their annual meeting Tuesday night.

"The owners' next meeting will be at Kennedy's directive but the commissioner said he didn't know when that might be. Despite the owners' resolution, the Haywood case remained unclear."

proposal to the "need" plan put forth by an NCAA committee. A major change proposed in NCAA rules is the use of freshmen on varsity teams, and this was to be put to two separate votes at the windup session — one vote on permitting freshmen competition in the college division (small college) level and then another on permitting it on the university (major) division level.

Buffalo and Seattle feel that the Bills had "waited patiently for four years" for legislative officials to resolve their differences and build a new stadium.

Wilson's statement came as the Erie County Legislature met to discuss several proposals, including one that would rescind the $50 million bond resolution it passed for stadium construction in May of 1962.

Wilson's statement said the Bills were being "encouraged" to leave Buffalo by "many of our colleagues in the National Football League."

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Rick Hoyat scored Illinois' final 10 points Tuesday night, including the winning baskets on free throws with five seconds left, to lead the Illini to an 84-82 Big Ten basketball victory over Wisconsin.

Chances were good the proposal, which is put forth as an economy move that would enable schools to field varsity teams with smaller number of total athletes in school, would pass for college division teams but be rejected for universally.

"Other NFL clubs feel that they can do better financially anywhere in the country," Wilson said. "We must remain competitive and cannot tolerate our present situation."

Wilson brought the Bills here in 1960 as one of the eight charter teams in the fledgling AFL. The club won Eastern Division championships in 1964, 1965 and 1966 and went on to the AFL title in 1965 and 1966.

Northeast — the so-called "7.6 rule" be abolished. This is the rule which prevents a school from enrolling a student-athlete unless the school will forecast he will achieve at least an academic average of 1.6 points of a possible 4.0.

The plan was sharply criticized immediately by football coaches, who claimed it was "loaded with inequities."

Opening lead: ♠ 10

Her partner didn't know where Helen was heading but he made his normal bid of three no-trump. At this point Helen showed her spade support.

Jacoby had a very sound opening bid. He also knew that Helen was showing a slam interest. It was obvious that she had intended to get in spades all the time and could have bid the spade game immediately but took several detours. Helen never bid to help her opponents. Clearly she wanted to invite a slam.

Jacoby decided to bid five clubs and leave it up to Helen who proceeded to bid the slam without further ado. There was nothing to this play after both opponents followed to the first trump lead since there was only one heart loser.

YOU KNOW THAT during the astronauts' launch from the moon? Researchers used some of it to fertilize patches of lettuce, parsley and radishes. And acid vegetables grow considerably lushly and larger than normal. Why isn't clear, not yet. WHAT WAS the greatest smoke screen ever laid down by military forces in combat? So intricate a customer. Expect that was the 60-mile blanket along the Rhine back in 1945. It covered the 21st U.S. Group's crossing of the river.

IT'S CLAIMED every U.S. President except Teddy Roosevelt qualified by place of birth as a "small town boy." THE POLLSTERS purport to know one man in every 460,000 whose neighbors are. A 40-YEAR-OLD WIDOWER is just as apt to find a wife as a 30-year-old bachelor.

RARELY DO YOU run across a curvaceous, provocative, alluring girl at work in an office managed by a lady executive. But not because a lady executive refuses to employ such boudoir ingenuities, that's not it. On the contrary, she's usually more intrigued by the challenge than by the threat. It's because the more enticing bundlers are used to working their charms and are uncomfortable where those charms don't work. So they look elsewhere to hire out to some old boy who can admire more than their typing. Our Love and War man has noted this and is working up an opinion on it. Expect that soon.

CUSTOMER SERVICE - Q "Who do you figure are the world's strongest men?" As a group, I mean Professional football players?" A. How about the Japanese wrestlers? ... Q. "Don't half of all the new radios go into cars?" A. Almost. Just 46 per cent.

NO TOWN in the country is named Eisenhower. Odd. Surnames of all the other Presidents are matched by the names towns. Four called Nixon, eight called Johnson, five called Kennedy, one called Truman and 10 called Roosevelt, for instance. However, there are a Dwight, David and a couple called Ike, that's something.

AM ASKED "HOW long the tracks of those prehistoric mammoths grew. Up to 16 feet, the record shows. Incidentally, whose do you suppose the longest ever of those tracks was found? In Texas, sure enough. Near what's now the bustling little metropolis of Post.

DON'T IMAGINE this will be news to school teachers, but it's now known you can sleep with your eyes open. Surgeons recently taped open the eyes of several citizens at a sleep clinic, then monitored their brain waves to prove decisively they did fall asleep.

RAPID REPLY - No, it was not an imaginative gypsy, but an oddball English mathematician named John Dee who invented the fortune teller's crystal ball.

Back in 1968 when Helen Sahel Smith was about to play in her last tournament she announced to her teammates that she liked to play limit raises. When asked what she wanted to do about forcing raises her reply was "We'll work them out when we come to them."

What Helen meant was that when you have support for your partner and what looks like a sure game you can get there easily in any number of ways and still keep the slam zone clear.

Today's hand shows how Helen handled the first one of these. Her two-club opening was forcing. When her partner rebid two hearts Helen continued the force with her three-diamond call. This was perfectly safe, because no matter how high her partner might take her in clubs or diamonds she could still go back to spades.

Schools for tots get nod

TWIN FALLS — League of Women Voters of Idaho has endorsed a kindergarten program in the Idaho elementary school system, Mrs. Roy Stotten, local league president, said today.

During the meeting of the Idaho league board of directors Jan. 8 and 9 in Boise, members recommended the program to be financed through the school distribution formula rather than dedicated funds but specified it should not be done at the expense of existing educational programs, Mrs. Stotten said.

Mrs. Hubert Nelson, Twin Falls, state treasurer and board member, attended the meeting. She said a publication is planned by the league for about Feb. 1 explaining the kindergarten study and recommendations of the league.

Tutors top foes in game

JEROME — The Jerome faculty defeated the Jerome Booster Club, 30-28, in the final minutes of play Monday evening in the Booster Club sponsored Donkey Basketball game.

Player-coach Earl Thompson headed the booster team and John Campbell coached for the faculty. Jerry Diehl was the outstanding player of the evening.

Donkeys for the game were rented from Wesley P. Williamson, Clayton, Calif., who travels throughout the West furnishing donkeys for basketball and softball during summer months.

Good reason

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The first building code in the United States dates back to 1828, according to HUD Challenge, official publication of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. It prohibited thatched roofs in the Plymouth Colony, presumably because the roofs were targets for flaming arrows.
