Teaching sisters get plea

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Staff Writer
TWIN FALLS — The decision by the Order of the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart to withdraw from the teaching staff of St. Edward's Catholic School here will be appealed by the Catholic Diocese of Idaho.

Rev. William Wassmuth, Boise, assistant director of Catholic education in Idaho, said today the appeal will be made immediately. He said there probably will be a wait before a decision is reached.

He said many persons interpreted the withdrawal as meaning Catholic schools in Twin Falls and Coeur d'Alene served by the order would be closed. He said such a decision has not been made and every effort will be made to keep the schools open.

There are 350 students in the St. Edward's eight grades and the teaching staff consists of six sisters and two lay teachers. In Coeur d'Alene, two grade schools and a high school academy are staffed by teachers from the Order of the Immaculate Heart.

Rev. Wassmuth said there is a serious shortage of teaching sisters in the Catholic education program and headquarters for the order in Scranton, Pa., has called the western area sisters there for assignment to the Scranton area. Only the Twin Falls, Coeur d'Alene and Oregon schools are staffed by the order in the western states, he said.

A spokesman in the office of Mother Superior Veata, Marywood College, Scranton, Pa., said the "Times-News" that no further comment can be made on the withdrawal order at this time.

The spokesman confirmed the teacher shortage in the order prompted the action.

If the appeal is denied and the six sisters now teaching in Twin Falls are withdrawn, Rev. Wassmuth said, efforts will be made to obtain another order to supply teachers.

Other alternatives, he said, would be to staff the school with lay teachers — which would increase operation costs of the school — or to close the school.

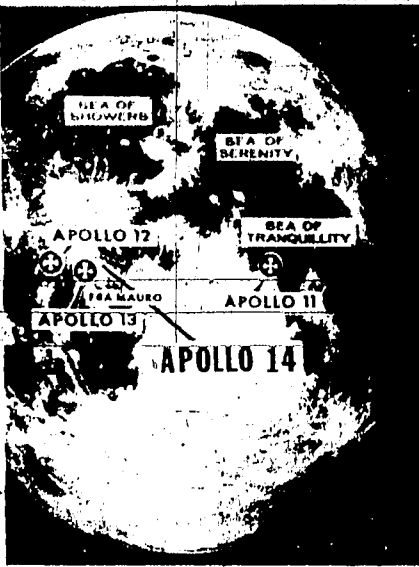

Should the school close there would be 40 pupils in Jerome County and 310 in Twin Falls County to be absorbed by the public or other school systems.

George Staudacher, assistant superintendent, Twin Falls School District, said if these pupils could be absorbed evenly through the system there would be no problem, but if it becomes necessary to increase classroom space it would be a different matter.

The Yt. Edward's school building might be rented by the district and additional teachers hired, he said. There is no teacher shortage in public schools at this time, Staudacher said.

Tax revenue from property within the district would not increase to meet the added enrollment, he said. State funds appropriated on a basis of student enrollment would be up, he said.

An additional 310 students in one year's time would mean added costs to the district, he said, especially if it were necessary to provide additional space and teachers, he said.

Red signals

LONDON (UPI) — British Rail's signalman Fred Sherwood, fed up with often having to wait for a tardy relief man, switched all his signals to red and went home Wednesday when his shift ended at the suburban Dagenham Dock station.

The result: the busy lines between London's Fenchurch Street Station and Tilbury were shut down for two hours while the signals stayed red.

A railroad spokesman said: "There was nothing to stop the man going home once his shift was finished. He told our control what he was doing and went off. He was quite within his rights."

Count passes midpoint

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The countdown sailed without a hitch past the midway point today and weathermen added to the wave of optimism by forecasting satisfactory conditions for Sunday afternoon's launch of Apollo 14 to the moon.

Partly cloudy skies and cool temperatures were predicted for the 3:23 p.m. EST blastoff with 12 mile-an-hour winds sweeping in off the ocean. Acceptable conditions also were forecast for ocean recovery areas.

Alan B. Shepard, Stuart A. Roosa and Edgar D. Mitchell inspected the monstrous 28-inch camera and other gear that will be stowed in their command ship cabin and then returned to spacecraft trainers to polish their lunar orbital flying skills.

Apollo 14's backup astronauts — Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Joe Henry Engle — maintained the training pace set by the prime pilots and, for the first time, could step in at the eleventh hour and replace the prime pilots if necessary to meet the launch date.

"It's been theoretical in the past and it's a reality now," said a space agency official.

Beret mission at end

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. command today announced the closeout of all Special Forces operations in South Vietnam and said the Green Beret, symbol of the elite troopers, will disappear from the battlefields of Indochina.

The last major Green Beret installation in Vietnam, the 6th Special Forces headquarters at Nha Trang, ceased operations Jan. 15 after nearly a decade. Spokesmen did not specify when all the troops would be out of the country.

Military spokesmen also said Communist troops violated Wednesday's 24-hour Tet lunar new year cease-fire 78 times. American casualties during the day-long stand-down were a low for a Vietnam cease-fire — one American killed and three wounded.

However, 25 South Vietnamese soldiers and civilians were killed and 81 wounded by Communist bombs and bullets during the period.

The worst Communist attack came from terrorists who tossed three hand grenades into a holiday crowd watching a movie at the coastal town of An Nhon Wednesday, killing 10 Vietnamese and injuring 19. However, it came two hours after the allied cease-fire ended. The Communists are honoring a four-day stand-down ending early Saturday.

The American casualty toll for the week ending last Saturday rose to 50 — its highest point in more than two months, the U.S. command said. A spokesman attributed the sharp increase in combat deaths to "an increase in aircraft incidents" involving Communist action.

Last week before 37 Americans were killed and the week before that 27. South Vietnamese spokesmen reported 274 government troops killed during last week, and 1,381 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed.

The Command also disclosed for the first time the exact dimensions of recent U.S. air intervention in Cambodia.

County hearings slated

TWIN FALLS — Official public hearing for the 1971 Twin Falls County budget will be held Monday and can be continued for as much as five days under state law, Harold Lancaster, county clerk said today.

He said county commissioners are asking persons and organizations interested in the budget to meet with them during the public hearing time.

The budget will be published in the Times-News under legal advertising today, he said. Persons interested in the 1971 expenditures are asked to clip it out and study it before meeting with the commissioners.

Lancaster said it is difficult for his office to make copies for all persons who come in and request them but if these people would cut them from the legal advertising columns it would save time and effort for everyone.

He said persons protesting any or all parts of the county budget should make their feelings known now before it is adopted as a permanent county spending schedule.

Aide asks RR freedom

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a harsh attack on the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Nixon administration's anti-trust chief today strongly urged an end to regulation of railroads, trucks and other surface transportation.

"Under ICC rate-making proceedings, rates generally are allowed to rise to the level of the highest cost carrier in the market," Assistant Attorney General Richard W. McLaren said in a speech prepared for the New York State Bar Association in New York City.

"For the most part, only inefficiency is rewarded in this protective atmosphere and in the long run the nation's resources are seriously misallocated," McLaren charged. "Shippers, consumers and carriers all pay the cost of high rates and inefficiency."

Stressing that he was speaking for himself and his Justice Department division, McLaren said his views against regulation "do not represent any existing administration position."

In recent months, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield has led a move to abolish the 11-member ICC which regulates most of the nation's surface transportation.

White, 50, is a practicing architect and vice president of the American Institute of Architects. He will succeed George Stewart, an engineer and ex-congressman.

Candidate sets date

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., the first announced 1972 Democratic presidential candidate, has introduced legislation that would force a complete withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam by Dec. 31.

He said such a deadline would open the way to a political settlement.

Candidate sets date

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee called Secretary of State William P. Rogers to a closed meeting today to find out what is going on in Cambodia and whether U.S. military action there violates congressional restrictions voted last year.

"The purpose of this meeting is to find out what's going on out there," a committee spokesman said. "We know there have been Americans on the ground in Cambodia. We saw the pictures in the paper."

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird gave his version of U.S. involvement in Cambodia at a closed meeting Wednesday with the Senate Armed Services Committee.

An amendment by Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, prohibits the use of ground combat forces or military advisers in Cambodia. Laird testified there had been no violation of either the language or the intent of the amendment.

Foreign Relations Committee members wanted specific information from Rogers about eyewitness reports that American servicemen were on the ground in Cambodia, citing pictures of soldiers dressed in civilian clothes to back up their question.

When Laird was asked about the multi-clad servicemen, he said the American ambassador to Cambodia, Emory C. Swank, had requested the attire for members of a U.S. contingent delivering equipment to Phnom Penh.

Laird left the impression with reporters at an impromptu news conference in a Senate corridor that he was not advised of the civilian dress until after the mission was completed. He said he thought the men should have been in uniform.

Date set on murder trial

By MELBA THORNE
Times-News Correspondent
SHOSHONE — Trial of Danny Howard Williams, 18, Shoshone, on a charge of first degree murder was set for April 27 during a five-minute hearing in Fifth Judicial District court in Shoshone today.

Williams entered a plea of not guilty to the charge before Judge Charles Scoggins.

He is charged in connection with the death of Mrs. Melba Gray, 33, Shoshone. Her body was found east of Shoshone on Nov. 13.

Williams was represented by Phillip Becker, public defender for Lincoln County. County Prosecutor Howard E. Adkins represented the state.

A formal complaint filed Williams with murder was charged Nov. 16, three days after the battered body of Mrs. Gray, was found on the railroad tracks a mile and a half east of Shoshone.

The woman, who officers said apparently died after being beaten about the head with a rock, also was run over by a train.

Her body was found the morning of Nov. 13 by a railroad section crew.

Williams appeared in court a week ago before District Judge Charles Scoggins. At that time Williams requested his statutory time in which to enter a plea.

Gem House OK's Sawtooth measure

BOISE (UPI) — The House approved 45-20 Wednesday and sent to the Senate a memorial endorsing a proposed Sawtooth national recreation area despite arguments it will embarrass the congressional delegation.

Floor sponsor J. Vard Chaburn, R-Albon, steered the proposal to passage during a 42-minute debate in which he got a mighty assist from Rep. Vernon F. Havenscroft, D-Tuttle.

Seven Democrats voted with the Republican majority to approve the measure but only one Republican voted against the memorial — Rep. William Onweller, R-Boise.

Chaburn, who also is chairman of the House Committee on Resources and Conservation, said the measure is necessary to preserve the Sawtooth area weller, R-Boise.

City job market worsens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of metropolitan areas suffering from substantial unemployment has risen to 40, the highest in seven years.

The new total was reached Wednesday when the Labor Department added three areas to its substantial unemployment list — Atlantic City, N.J., with 8.3 per cent jobless rate; Buffalo, N.Y., with 8.8 per cent; and Kalamazoo, Mich., with 7.4 per cent.

Cambodian war probed

RR aide laments industry crisis

TWIN FALLS — This is the railroads' "darkest hour" ... an hour when the railroads of the nation face disaster without the means to avert disaster ... an hour when government regulation could conceivably wipe out an industry.

This gloomy view was outlined for the Twin Falls Rotary Club, and later for the Times-News, by one who should know: Sam Grayson, assistant to the president of the Union Pacific Railroad.

Grayson pointed out "There's an industry in this country that can't readily raise its prices — even when necessary to cover expenses. It can't freely lower prices, either — even when this would allow it to meet competition and gain new business. Nor can it easily begin new services that would allow it to make money ... or automatically drop services that cause it to lose money.

In fact, there's very little this industry can do — without government permission," Grayson said. "This industry is the railroad."

The railroads of the nation, "faced with severe governmental restrictions on their operations, while their competitors receive far more financial assistance with considerably less regulation, are finding it difficult to keep pace with the present and grow for the future," the speaker said.

He pointed out in expanding his remarks to the Rotary that the Interstate highway system has been "subsidized," through federal construction grants, to the tune of $30.5 billion; airlines of the nation receive federal subsidies of $21.5 billion and even the trucking firms are "subsidized" in that they enjoy the privilege of federally constructed highways without paying their fair share of construction and maintenance costs.

Barge lines have no user charges, he charged, while all other forms of transportation are relatively free of federal controls. Yet the railroads are "100 per cent controlled" by the government.

Railroads cannot change their rates in any way without permission of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the various state public utility commissions, Grayson said, and these regulatory bodies are "too slow to act and too strict in their rulings," or even allow the railroads a fair profit.

Airlines frequently cancel flights if there are too few passengers to return a profit, "but we can't cancel a train without an act of Congress," Grayson charged. "We have to travel from coast to coast even if we travel empty."

Grayson reviewed a report from the "ASTRO" group — "America's Sound Transportation Review Organization," created by the board of directors of the Association of American Railroads in September, 1969, "to make an in-depth study of present national transportation policies and recommend steps needed to assure a balanced and progressive system."

The ASTRO report, released June 29, 1970, indicated that the railroads "are rapidly losing the ability to build for the future. Earnings are the cornerstone. If a business cannot earn money after paying its current expenses, it has no resources to invest in future growth to repay debt or attract new money."

"In the case of railroads, every known standard for testing the health of an industry points to a chronic and spreading illness."

Grayson said that the "illness" of the railroads hints at a "solution" by the government — nationalization." He said this is a solution the railroads and the public do not want at any cost.

The Astro report presented a comprehensive series of conclusions and recommendations, urging equal treatment by the government of all modes of transportation, including elimination of favoritism which gives other methods an unfair advantage.

Grayson also called for more realistic labor practices, and cooperation between railroad management and labor unions. The unions hold to the century-old practice that a 100-mile trip constitutes a day's work, developed in the days when a rail journey of 100 miles actually required most of a day.

Today, he said, a 100-mile stretch of rail travel requires only about 90 minutes; yet still the unions require a full day's pay for an hour and a half of travel. A train crew will travel from Pocatello to Montpelier, or Pocatello to Glenn Ferry, and their day's work is usually finished.

Engine crews, however, do continue on to Huntington, Ore., where they swap with the next crew.

A major change in train service is due May 1, which will change the entire picture, Grayson said. The Rail Passenger Service Act, signed into law last Oct. 30, rescinds the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission in authorizing the railroads to discontinue intercity rail service.

Storms howl in Northeast States

By United Press International

A howling storm raked the Northeast today, stacking snow in heavy drifts, closing roads and bringing biting cold temperatures. Four hikers from the Rutgers University Outdoor Club were lost on mile-high Mt. Washington, N.H., where the wind-chill factor made it feel as if it were 100 degrees below zero.

A search team waited at the base of the mountain for a break in the weather to resume the search called off by the bitter midwinter storm. The four young men, all from New Jersey, were not found by three search parties Wednesday, one of which reached the 5,600-foot level of the 6,288-foot mountain, highest in the Northeast.

The temperature was 30 on the mountain, and the winds were 40 miles per hour. Mt.

Washington is the windiest spot in the United States, with average winds over 35 miles per hour and gales clocked as high as 231 m.p.h.

The storm showed mercy to no one, from Ontario's premier to a shell fisherman from New Jersey.

Premier John Roberts was rescued Wednesday after spending the night with 400 other stranded motorists at a highway service center near Ingersoll, Ont.

A Point Pleasant, N.J., fisherman, Richard Knapp, spent a harrowing night in an open boat amidst howling winds and frigid temperatures before he was safely recovered Wednesday.

The men were only two of thousands who suffered as blizzards closed half the roads in New York state and immobilized much of southern Ontario.

Upstate New York today continued to shiver under biting winds and near zero temperatures, and a 250-mile stretch of highway from Buffalo to the Pennsylvania state line remained closed for the second day.

Blizzard warnings were issued for the northern Finger Lakes and counties east of Lake Ontario as winds up to 40 miles per hour blew into the state from central Quebec.

Albany today recorded an early morning wind chill factor of 54 degrees below zero.

In Rochester, more than 150 schools and businesses were closed Wednesday by the cold weather and impassable roads. At least three highway fatalities in the state were blamed on the weather.

Scrap heap

TANGLED wreckage of 70 vehicles is piled up on U.S. 99 near Bakersfield, Calif., after a series of crashes in a blinding fog killed six persons and injured 22. A four mile stretch of the highway was turned into a junkyard and it took 13 hours to clear away the debris. (UPI)

Parents to give testimony

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles Manson, Susan Atkins and the parents of all three young women defendants in the Tate-LaBianca murders will testify in an attempt to "save the four cult members from the gas chamber."

The four were found guilty Monday on 27 counts of murder and conspiracy to murder in the seven deaths. The same jury which convicted them will begin deciding their fate today — death or life imprisonment.

Gem office opposes Dillon case review

By RUTH MILLER
Times-News Staff Writer
BOISE — The Idaho attorney general's office opposes a petition for review by the U.S. Supreme Court of a case in which a Jerome man was convicted of murder.

Martin Ward, of the attorney general's staff, said a reply was mailed on Wednesday to the Supreme Court, opposing a petition seeking a review of the case in which Michael Dillon was convicted in 1968 of second degree murder.

Dillon, convicted by a jury, was charged in connection with the death of Mrs. Alta Simerly, Jerome.

James May, attorney for Dillon, filed the petition after an Idaho Supreme Court appeal failed in mid-1970.

Late in December the U.S. Supreme Court instructed the Idaho attorney general's office to file a reply in the case. The deadline for filing is Jan. 30.

Ward, criminal deputy attorney general, said Wednesday he had "just mailed" the 22-page document to the high court. He said May should receive his copy of the opposition reply on Thursday.

May's petition contended that admission of oral statements violated Dillon's rights under constitutional amendments because Dillon was 17 years old at the time and of below average intelligence.

Ward said "we maintain that based on a review of the record and the trial court's findings concerning Dillon's ability to make and understand a waiver that none of his rights were violated."

The trial court in the Dillon case was Fifth District Court with Theron Ward as presiding judge. The trial was held at the Jerome County courthouse.

The defense attorney's petition also cites the failure of the court to appoint a psychiatrist at county expense for a hearing prior to trial.

Ward said the attorney general's office maintains the Idaho Supreme Court was correct in holding that an indigent criminal defendant is not entitled to the aid of a psychiatrist at this point in procedure.

The Dillon case was appealed to the Idaho Supreme Court, which in June, 1970, upheld the Fifth District Court jury's decision.

Ward said that in the Supreme Court's decision it was said that the petitioner (Dillon) could not shop around at county expense until a "psychiatric advocate" was found.

Ward's reply points out that Dillon was allowed a psychiatrist during the trial and prior to trial he had the benefit of a state psychiatric examination.

The state also maintains in its reply that evidence gathered during a consensual search should not be suppressed as requested by the defense.

The state maintains that at the time the search was made Dillon was not under arrest and the accusatory process had not begun to function. At this point, Ward said, Dillon was only "one of those people which the police would naturally check out because of his acquaintanceship with the murder victim."

Basically, he said, the point the state raises is that it was not an "in custody" interrogation or search.

The defense raises the question whether Dillon's age and mentality may have affected his decision in consenting to the search and waiving his rights to search and seizure.

The testimony given by Dillon at his trial, Ward said, indicates "he knew exactly what he was doing."

A point which May raised in his petition to the United States Supreme Court which Ward said was never raised in the appeal to the state supreme court, regards Dillon's status as a juvenile.

The opposition reply says that because Dillon was prosecuted as an adult, the Idaho Youth Rehabilitation Act did not apply to him.

The record as a whole, Ward said, substantiates all minimal safeguards required under the youth act and under the due process clause of the 14th Amendment were afforded Dillon.

When May received notice earlier this month that the United States Supreme Court had requested a reply be filed he said it showed the high court was "at least interested" in the Dillon case.

A petition for a writ of certiorari is a request for the high court to review the case. If the court decides to review the case, it will file a writ of certiorari with the Idaho Supreme Court, requesting all records contained in the state appeal.

Idaho U. aid totals $659,639

MOSCOW (UPI) — A total of $659,639 in voluntary support was received by the University of Idaho between July 1, 1969, and June 30, 1970, according to Donald P. Reid, associate director of development at the university.

Reid said Wednesday this is the first time figures on voluntary support to the university have been compiled.

Andrus vows span help

BOISE — Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus pledged the full cooperation of his office Wednesday in securing funds for a new Perrine Memorial Bridge — a project which will cost more than $8 million.

Gov. Andrus said the Federal Highway Act of 1970 will probably provide the funds, but the measure allows only $100 million for the entire nation in fiscal year 1972 and $150 million in fiscal 1973. The secretary of transportation has the final decision on allocation of funds to specific projects, according to the Idaho Highway Department.

Gov. Andrus said he was pleased that the long-awaited design phase has been approved, and that work on the bridge will follow. "I have been vitally interested in the need for a new bridge from the beginning of my campaign," the governor said.

The help of Magic Valley citizens, particularly the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, will be required after the formal request for funds is forwarded to the Department of Transportation in Washington, D.C., Gov. Andrus said. However, no action should be initiated until the request is received in Washington.

The federal government will also help finance the $25.6 million contract to design the bridge, according to the highway department. A request for this participation will be forwarded in "about a week," a department spokesman said.

The Idaho Highway Board Tuesday approved a contract with a Seattle engineering firm to design the bridge.

CAP cadet choice said 2 weeks away

TWIN FALLS — Selection of five or more Twin Falls Civil Air Patrol Cadets for special summer activities will be announced in about two weeks, CAP spokesman said today.

Nine candidates appeared Sunday before a board in Twin Falls. They are Jeff Frazier, Curtis Oakes, Peter Whitby and Calvin Johnson of the Boise Cadet Squadron; Glen Kober, Gary Rendla and Karen Fulkner of the Joe Engle Cadet Squadron of Burley; Denise Shepherd, Kimberly Cadet Flight, and Laura Dillon, Pocatello Cadet Squadron.

Activities for which the cadets are competing includes the international air cadet exchange, a one-month program, designed to foster international good will through the exchange of CAP cadets with similar organizations in Canada, Central and South America, Europe and the Near East and Far East.

There also will be a cadet flying encampment which provides 30 hours of flight instruction in ground school training to cadets who already are solo-qualified and want to obtain their private pilot's licenses. Other activities are a survival training course to be held at the Air Force Academy in Colorado and in aerospace, communications and nursing.

The record as a whole, Ward said, substantiates all minimal safeguards required under the youth act and under the due process clause of the 14th Amendment were afforded Dillon.

When May received notice earlier this month that the United States Supreme Court had requested a reply be filed he said it showed the high court was "at least interested" in the Dillon case.

A petition for a writ of certiorari is a request for the high court to review the case. If the court decides to review the case, it will file a writ of certiorari with the Idaho Supreme Court, requesting all records contained in the state appeal.

Tools stolen

TWIN FALLS — Tools valued at about $90 were reported stolen Wednesday by a Twin Falls resident.

George Burlington, 404 Adams St., told officers the tools were taken from the trunk of a car parked at his residence. The theft occurred, he said, sometime between Dec. 18 and Wednesday.

About Boggs The Leader

WASHINGTON — In the confused hours immediately following his hard-fought victory as House Majority Leader, Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana showed he is not about to play the customary second fiddle to first violinist Carl Albert of Oklahoma. Speaker Albert was sympathetic to liberals' demands that the majority whip, No. 3 man in the Democratic party hierarchy, be selected by the full party caucus instead of the usual appointment by the leadership. Boggs disagreed vehemently, arguing the whip must be somebody he could work closely with. He also warned that an election by the caucus could give an all-Southwest cast to the party leadership. Albert finally agreed and joined Boggs in the caucus in voting down the election proposal.

Supporters of Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, the liberal runner-up to Boggs, next suggested that Udall be named whip as a conciliatory gesture. Albert seemed interested, but Boggs flatly disagreed. He had no intention of a hostile Udall becoming his whip.

Added to this is a history of coolness between Albert and Boggs. Among close friends, Albert has held forth on Boggs' limitations as whip. For his part, Boggs owes Albert exactly nothing in his difficult campaign for Majority Leader. The result is a widespread expectation among Democrats that Majority Leader Boggs will by no means be the subservient lieutenant to Speaker Albert that Majority Leader Albert was to Speaker John McCormack. Rather, many Congressmen expect the aggressive, expansive Boggs to try to eclipse the self-effacing new Speaker.

In the aftermath of Boggs' surprisingly easy victory, Udall intimates are disconsolate and bitter. Shortly after his defeat, Udall allies toted up their pledges again and came up with 131 — enough to win and 43 more than he actually received. "In this honorable body," one Udall insider told us, "there are some not so honorable men."

Moreover, Udall's campaign managers, while withholding public statement are angry with organized labor in general and AFL-CIO lobbyist Andrew Bloomer in particular. Bloomer backed his close associate, Rep. James O'Hara of Michigan, for Majority Leader, as expected. But after O'Hara ran fifth in a field of five on the "first" ballot, both Bloomer and O'Hara refused to endorse Udall. In fact, Bloomer told House Democrats that Udall was not his second choice but, rather, his fifth choice. Bloomer's hostility stems from Udall's 1965 vote against repealing Section 14 (B) ("right-to-work") of the Taft-Hartley Act. More important, however, Boggs, though less liberal than Udall, has been labor's invaluable ally on the conservative Ways and Means Committee.

Although a deep, dark secret within Republican ranks, members of the Republican National Finance Committee were angry and rightly incredulous at the highly un-Republican debt of just under one million dollars they learned about at last week's party meeting here.

That debt, down from a post-Presidential election debt of $1.6 million two years ago, will be paid off by ruthless pruning of the National Committee's operating budget.

Thus, the Committee is being forced to reduce spending for the current year by $900,000 just when it should be primping for the 1972 campaign.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Catching Cold

Dear Dr. Thosteson: One of your recent columns raised the question of whether getting your feet wet or being chilled or sitting in drafts will give you a cold. I read what you said about colds being from viruses, but in the long years I've lived, I've learned that galoshes and a scarf do some good, no matter what you say about viruses.

I freely admit, however, that drafts and chilling can do other mischief, hithering some people much more than they bother others, stiff neck, occasionally allergic reactions, and sometimes a rare disease that causes some thickening of the blood from exposure to even mild chilling — those are samples of things that can at times happen.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 19 and have this thing with aspirin. I feel I have to take two a day, every day; or I will get a headache. I know it's in my mind but if I don't take the aspirin, the headache will surely come. Will this aspirin eventually harm me? I have been taking it for nine months already.

Mrs. K. G. Two aspirins a day probably won't hurt you. In some people, however, they can cause stomach irritation and bleeding.

It would be smart to find out why you have the headaches. If it's "all in your head," the point is to figure out what anxiety, frustration, chronic anger, or fear may be bugging you. But it would also be wise to check to see whether improper diet, low thyroid activity, hypoglycemia (low blood sugar), or a variety of other causes might be at work.

"Never mind the snow conditions — what are conditions around the fireplace?"

A Good Choice

Members of the Board of Trustees of Twin Falls School District 411 made a good choice when they selected George Staudaher to succeed Dr. Ernest Ragland as superintendent.

Mr. Staudaher is well acquainted with the various situations in the local school system. Prior to his appointment as assistant superintendent he was principal of the high school. He knows the feelings of the students, the parents, the administration officials and the teachers.

So many times school boards have selected someone from outside the district to fill such an important post. If a qualified person is available within a district then he should get the nod over the outside. The changeover is more reasonable because of this thinking.

We felt all along that Mr. Staudaher should be the choice. We are glad the board members decided the way they did because we're sure the appointment has the backing of all interested people.

Mr. Staudaher is a good man for the job. He's qualified both by training and temperament. While we admit that stepping into the shoes of Dr. Ragland is not something to be taken lightly, we are sure Mr. Staudaher can fill them.

The changeover will take place about June 1 when Dr. Ragland's retirement becomes effective.

Breakdowns

The U.S. Public Health Service reports that one out of every five adult Americans has wither suffered a "nervous breakdown" or has felt on the brink of one at some time or another.

In round numbers, of the 111 million adults aged 18 to 79, at least 5.4 million have suffered nervous breakdowns and another 14.2 million thought they were going to have one but didn't. The figures are extrapolated from a sample of 6,672 persons; 88 per cent white and 10 per cent black, who were interviewed by the service.

The interviewees were asked to fill out questionnaires reporting their experience with 12 symptoms of psychological distress, including nervousness, insomnia, hand trembling or sweating, nightmares, fainting, headaches, dizziness and heart palpitations.

Perhaps not surprisingly, women had "significantly higher rates" than men for every symptom, especially "nervousness." This was true of both races.

Also, never-married persons reported the fewest symptoms while separated persons reported the most.

But oddly enough, complaints were higher among less-educated than among well-educated people, and people living in big cities had fewer symptoms than those in small cities and rural areas.

Geographically, residents of the Northeast had the lowest symptom rates while supposedly easy-going southerners had the highest.

What may be the most surprising thing of all, however, is not that nearly 20 million adult Americans have had or have thought they were going to have nervous breakdowns, but that despite all the private and public crises of these frantic times, the other 91 million have somehow managed to remain calm, cool and collected.

MR. SPECTATOR

Anent The Weather

A Nimbus-4 weather satellite is taking Mt. Rainier's temperature eight times a week as it passes 600 miles high over Washington State.

Not that the dormant volcano is about to erupt. Geologists are merely keeping an eye on certain "hot spots" at the peak of the 14,410-foot mountain.

Mt. Rainier has exhibited just enough physical change in recent years to warrant being watched, says the U.S. Geological Survey. A major warming trend could conceivably melt glacier ice, with resultant flooding in the valleys.

Keeping tabs on a volcano's temperatures is only one example of how space satellites, whose launching once made headlines around the world, have become indispensable scientific tools. They have also proved of great benefit to all mankind.

Over the past 10 years, meteorological satellites have helped prevent countless losses of life through advance warnings of storms, as in last year's great Hurricane Camille.

Since 1960 no major storm anywhere on earth has gone undetected. Airlines, shipping and other weather-sensitive commercial enterprises routinely use data from weather satellites.

Now, Mr. Spectator asks, what do you think of that?

NEED MONEY?

Mr. Spectator: Want to earn an easy $100? Find an authentic nest of the Marbled Murrelet.

Don't you know what a Marbled Murrelet is? It's a bird of course; it is often seen around the Pacific Coast, flying to and from nests during the breeding season. It covers a sizeable range, from Southeastern Alaska to Northwestern California.

The problem is, according to the National Audubon Society, that nobody has ever seen a nest of the Marbled Murrelet — the one bird north of Mexico whose nest has remained a mystery.

The Murrelet is a funny-looking critter; shaped somewhat like an undersized penguin, the rascal stands less than eight inches tall when standing, which it doesn't much like to do. It is a very poor walker and prefers to fly or swim, either above or below the surface.

The National Audubon Society will pay $100 to any person locating an authentic nest of the Marbled Murrelet. The claimant must submit photographs and complete details to the Society.

(We wonder, however, if the Society isn't missing a bet. The answer is obvious — the Marbled Murrelet nests under water!)

WHIPLASH

PAUL HARVEY

Peace And Quiet

In President Nixon's behalf, his most trusted political allies are now getting organized for the next presidential election campaign.

This next time, Mr. Nixon will not be able just to "promise" peace and prosperity; first, he'll have to deliver on his previous promise.

Can he do it in time? At every opportunity for four decades, the American people have voted AGAINST WAR.

We re-elected F.D.R. because "he kept us out of war."

We elected Dwight Eisenhower because he promised to end the fighting in Korea.

J.F.K. defeated Richard Nixon by a margin so minute that his victory can be attributed to the manner in which Mr. Nixon was then portrayed as "irresponsible," frequently pictured shaking his finger in Khrushchev's face. Instinctively, the electorate backed off from the prospect of confrontation.

L.B.J. was elected largely because voters were sold the notion that Barry Goldwater was trigger-happy, favored nuclear war. And we, the people, voted for peace.

And when Mr. Nixon was elected in 1968, it was largely because he said he had "a plan" to end the war in Vietnam.

Every opportunity the American people have had to vote on the real or imagined issues of war or peace, we have voted for peace.

And in this country we have ways of "voting" between elections.

The presently prevalent public preference for "peace and quiet" is measurable in our television listening habits.

For several seasons now TV has sought to capitalize on social issues.

They tried dramatizing the generation gap by turning law courts over to wet-eared school-agers.

They played up race differences in dramatic series, documentary specials and talk shows.

All of those chip-og-the-shoulder-type programs are dead or dying, while Lawrence Welk goes on and on and on.

And the new breed of comic, epitomized by Flip Wilson, prefers to depolarize us; Flip laughs at our hangups instead of emphasizing them, and agitating us. Americans have been up-tight on social issues since the mid-Fifties; they want time-out from troubles, foreign and domestic, for awhile.

Nowhere is this tendency toward amelioration more conspicuous than on high school and college campuses. The militants are not getting the following any more, not getting the support they need to survive.

BRUCE BLOSSAT

'72 Issue

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Democratic Senate leader Mike Mansfield's proposal for heavy withdrawal of U.S. troops in Europe, which he promises to revive this year, already is being caught up in the newly unfolding 1972 presidential campaign.

Two Democratic candidates, the declared Sen. George McGovern and the still undeclared Sen. Edmund Muskie, just back from overseas, have spoken out. McGovern reaffirms his support of the Mansfield resolution. Muskie, after a talk with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, says he is having "second thoughts."

Probably with deliberate intent, Muskie dealt with the issue a little misfally. He did not wish to divulge what Brandt told him in Bonn Jan. 17. Nor could he want suddenly to appear at sharp odds with Mansfield, an avowed Muskie presidential supporter.

McGovern voiced his view with accustomed directness, but in the process committed a gross — if perhaps inadvertent — error. He told newsmen it costs $14 billion a year to sustain our 300,000 men in Europe.

The use of that dollar figure is fairly common among advocates of large troop withdrawals from Europe. But it is dead wrong. The real annual operating figure is $3.2 billion.

To reach that astronomical $14 billion, you have to allocate part of the yearly cost of operating the U.S. Atlantic fleet, maintenance of mobile, backup ground forces stationed in this country and sometimes elsewhere outside Europe, and other indirect charges. Furthermore, you must throw in a large sum representing the estimated value of U.S. held military properties, most of them acquired in Germany at the time of our World War II occupation — at no cost to us in money. This net worth calculation has nothing to do with annual operating costs.

No matter what pullback of forces we made in Europe, those charges not truly related to their maintenance would go on largely as before. To imagine they will not is like presuming that, when our role in Vietnam ends, there will be no more costs for the U.S. Seventh Fleet presently serving in Southeast Asian waters.

Muskie's "second thoughts" clearly reflects the kind of caution any important U.S. visitor to Europe can pick up by talking either to Brandt or other top Western leaders.

Generally speaking, they do not want us to withdraw any sizable part of our NATO force for a considerable time, at least. They see our ground-force presence there as a real deterrent to Soviet aggression, not merely as a symbolic, token thing which could be satisfied with a mild sprinkling of American uniforms around the continent.

Brandt in particular wants our strong hand in sight as he moves, through his celebrated "eastern policy" toward an easing of tensions with the Soviet Union, Poland, and perhaps with East Germany and other Iron Curtain countries.

Our leaders really are mostly followers, you know. They try to anticipate and shape trends, but they must respond to them. To refuse to stand pat — is to drown in the next tide.

Every militant organization in our nation, right and left, is right now on the financial ropes. Now — in a government "of the people" — the initiative for change comes from Main Street, not Pennsylvania Avenue.

Our leaders really are mostly followers, you know. They try to anticipate and shape trends, but they must respond to them. To refuse to stand pat — is to drown in the next tide.

Our leaders really are mostly followers, you know. They try to anticipate and shape trends, but they must respond to them. To refuse to stand pat — is to drown in the next tide.

Everton plant nets Tahoe job

TWIN FALLS — The first shipment of several thousand mattresses will be sent by Everton Mattress Co. to a Boise Cascade condominium project at Lake Tahoe's Incline Village this week.

The Twin Falls company will produce all of the mattresses for each of the three to five bedrooms in the condominium project. There will be 140 condominium units in one phase of the project and 134 units in the second phase.

The present shipment will supply only the first two model units with about 800 sets in one and 450 sets in the other.

Since the major part of the construction on the projects will be done this summer the rest of the mattresses will be shipped this fall. The mattresses will be produced up until that time and stored in the company's warehouses.

Don Everton, owner and manager of the company, said the firm has also been doing all of the work for the condominium units at Sun Valley and Calico at Warm Springs.

It was through this association that he became the mattress supplier for the Lake Tahoe project. Sammy Ericson, the interior decorator for the Sun Valley condominiums is also the decorator for Lake Tahoe. She chose his company, Everton said, because in the past he had been able to give her fast service at Sun Valley.

He said the Twin Falls plant is closer than many mattress factories in California.

Everton also uses its own transport truck to move its products. He said that the use of the firm's own trucks reduces potential loss and damage and keeps the mattresses under the company's eye to the final destination.

The output of the factory is presently about 100 units a day with a capacity of one mattress every two and one half minutes.

Magistrate says law invalid

BOISE (UPI) — Ada County Magistrate Edward A. Johnson says the state vagrancy law is unconstitutional.

Johnson ruled the law invalid in dismissing a charge against a 26-year-old woman arrested by police in a Boise motel room Monday night.

He said it contained the same wording as a Boise city ordinance he declared unconstitutional last June.

In his ruling last June, Johnson said the vagrancy ordinance was used by police in violation of the constitutional principle that a person is innocent until proved guilty.

T.F. firm awarded college contract

NAMPA — Nelsen-Miller, Inc. of Twin Falls has been awarded a $1.5 million contract for construction of a new physical education building at Northwest Nazarene College in Nampa.

Nelsen-Miller bid $1.15 million for the basic structure, and the seating, facilities and equipment for the building will bring the total cost to $1.5 million.

Construction is scheduled to start within 30 days on the project, after formal approval is received from the federal Department of Housing, Education and Welfare and the Bank of Idaho, who will jointly finance $1 million of the overall cost.

Nelsen-Miller is highly experienced in institutional construction, building all of the structures at the College of Southern Idaho, as well as the $2.7 million Turnkey housing project in Boise and a new wing at Caldwell Memorial Hospital in Caldwell.

Tahoe task

DON EVERTON can perform any of the operations in the construction of a mattress when the output demands his time. Here he is using the tape edge machine, the final step in the construction process, pulling together and stitching the top, bottom and sides of the mattress.

Society studies purchase

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls Historical Society board of directors will hold a special meeting Friday night to discuss purchase of additional land adjacent to the Curry museum.

Mrs. Harold Waggoner, museum director, said more land is needed to display large equipment. There is a possibility the society will be able to obtain the old Ketchum ore wagons if space can be made available.

The museum is located on the old Union School property and includes only the grounds, school and one house. About an acre is available at the rear of the property. Mrs. Waggoner said if the museum could expand as far back as the railroad tracks it might be possible to obtain a steam locomotive and train.

The board meeting will be held Friday at 8 p.m. at the home of Earl Peck, society president, 1410 Poplar Ave.

In a meeting Tuesday night members elected five new directors and re-elected two others. Re-elected were Mrs. L.H. Perrine and Morris Moore, both Twin Falls. New directors are Elmer Dossell, George Walton, Robert Balleisen and Charlotte Spencer, all Twin Falls, and Ed Vogel, Buhl.

Arthur Hart, museum director, Idaho Historical Society, Boise, addressed the membership Tuesday night. He discussed Idaho history relating to mining, Indians, pioneers, ghost towns and work by the society in preserving historical sites in the state.

Hart complimented the Twin Falls society on the Curry museum and the collection of period clothing, farm machinery and photographs. He also offered information on preserving photographs and displaying them.

Over half interstate roads done

BOISE (UPI) — More than half of the Idaho portion of the interstate system is complete now and construction is proceeding on schedule, the State Highway Department said today.

In a report on the status of the interstate system in Idaho, the department said 387 miles of the 811-mile system were completed to four lanes of divided highway at the end of 1970.

It said an additional 74 miles of two-lane highways, with full control of access, have been finished. But these will require construction of two additional lanes prior to the end of the program in the mid 1970's.

Construction on the primary and secondary highways continues at a rate equal to the amount of available funds, the department said.

The increase in the state gasoline tax from six to seven cents per gallon had made it possible to expand the state program of minor construction to slow depreciation and prolong the life of older highways.

Jury finds man guilty

PAYETTE, Idaho (UPI) — Third District Judge Edward J. Lodge has ordered a pre-sentence investigation for an elderly Payette man convicted Tuesday of involuntary manslaughter.

After deliberating for about three hours, the jury found H.O. Bodily, 73, guilty of manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Nellie Smit, 73, New Plymouth.

Mrs. Smit died from injuries received in a two-vehicle accident on Highway 20 near New Plymouth Oct. 13, 1969.

Bodily was driving a beat truck, and it and a vehicle in which Mrs. Smit was riding collided.

Theory proved wrong

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's revenue sharing proposals raise a basic question about the working of American democracy: Can state and local governments spend tax money more wisely and efficiently than the federal government?

The centralization of power in Washington which has been going on steadily since 1833 began after state and city governments had failed utterly to cope with the human problems of the Great Depression.

They say he votes in strict rotation for Communist, Roman Catholic, Socialist, Republican and liberal politicians.

River project studied

BOISE (UPI)—The Senate Resources and Environment Committee has scheduled a meeting Thursday at 7 p.m. to discuss the Southwest Idaho Project and the possibility of total state ownership with all interested parties.

The project as approved by the Idaho Water Resource Board would be a joint project between the state and Idaho Power Company, with the state building the dams at Guffey and the utility the power facilities.

Under a tentative agreement worked out between the state and Idaho Power, the power company would then repay to the state approximately $3.3 million each year as the amount its costs would have been to construct the project by itself.

During a committee meeting Wednesday, Sen. Ray Rigby, D-Helixburg, asked Water Board Director Robert R. Lee whether a potential fight before the Federal Power Commission over a license for the project was the only attraction for a joint project rather than a wholly-owned state project.

But Lee said there were several other factors to be considered, adding, "What does the state gain by spending an additional $30 million (for the power facility)?"

Lee said there were no assurances Idaho Power Company would use the same formula for repayment if the state owned the license as it would if the license were owned jointly.

In addition, Lee said, the power company under the joint proposal would pay about $50,000 per year in taxes to the state and the county which might not have to be paid if the state owns the entire project.

Lee also said a possible conflict might arise in subordination of upstream water rights to downstream power development.

If the power company were a partner in the development, Lee said, it would have to assume the risk of lower levels of water at times when upstream water users consumed the water.

Lee said a possible savings under a wholly state owned project would be that the revenue bonds would have a 6 1/2 per cent interest rate instead of an 8 1/2 per cent interest rate which might mean savings of $600,000 per year on the $30 million needed for the power facilities.

However, he noted, Idaho Power still has a current license on the plant at Swan Falls and if the state were to have the license for the Grandview project it would have to pay the utility for the value of its Swan Falls plant.

Separate pre-school fund asked

BOISE (UPI)—Officials of the State Department of Education suggested Wednesday funds for public kindergartens be separated from the public school allocation until definite costs of the program can be determined.

D.F. Engelking, superintendent of public instruction, and Harold Farley, deputy superintendent, appeared before the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee to discuss the program which Gov. Cecil Andrus suggested be funded with $2.8 million from the general fund.

Farley said if the funds were not separated from the formula by which state funds are allocated to public schools the legislature would be "obligating yourselves for more funds next year and the year after that."

There was also some discussion that the Idaho Education Association might prefer the money to go to increases for teachers salaries.

But Sen. James Stotcheff, D-Sandpoint, said the IEA could be called a "professional lobby for higher pay and better working conditions" and "will teachers themselves if surveyed would probably support a pre-school program."

Sen. Neils Solberg, D-Orofino, said he also felt the $2.8 million for kindergartens was not meant to be part of the general fund budget for kindergartens and said he felt if kindergartens are not approved the $2.8 million will not be available for other educational programs.

"The IEA thinks that money is going to come to their general fund and it's not true," he added.

Session probes school funds

BOISE (UPI)—A special subcommittee held a "think session" late Wednesday to discuss the possibility of funding all basic education from the state level and leaving public school enrichment programs to local support.

The four-man subcommittee of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee met with educators and teachers' representatives to discuss the plan by which the state would completely support 75 per cent of the cost of education in Idaho's public schools. The remaining 25 per cent picked up by the local levels would include buildings and maintenance, administration and all auxiliary personnel or enrichment programs.

Rep. Allen Larson, R-Blackfoot, chairman of the Revenue and Taxation Committee, said if the plan succeeds, "we can put first things first for the first time in the history of Idaho—the public education appropriations."

He said revenue and taxation took on the chore because "until we solve this education funding problem we are not going to solve the taxation problems."

Rep. Vernon Havenscroft, D-Tuttle, said the plan was to "try to build the state program in education upon a basic fundamental program—and that means even in the smallest schools."

Under tentative proposals discussed, students would be counted on "average daily membership" rather than "average daily attendance."

Harold Farley, deputy superintendent of public instruction said average daily attendance counted the "youngsters who are really in school" during a week and average membership "youngsters who should be in school."

Harry Haynes, field representative for the Idaho Education Association, said he liked the average daily membership count because it took in "the cost of operating a room and the absence of a student has no bearing whatsoever—the teacher and the books must still be there."

Further, proposed plans were built around the concept of a "classroom-unit" which would consist of one teacher, books and instructional materials used in the classroom, one guidance counselor and one librarian for every 450 students or a major fraction, and one librarian for every 450 students or a major fraction, and one classroom for every eight

Appraiser board gets run-around

BOISE (UPI)—A bill creating a board of certification of tax appraisers for ad valorem purposes was shuffled to another House committee Wednesday for the purpose of hearings.

Members of the Revenue and Taxation Committee, where the measure originated, voted the bill to the floor for action on Tuesday. But Chairman Ray Ljcoln, R-Twin Falls, of the Local Government Committee won a floor fight to put it into his committee for hearings.

Rep. William Onweiler, R-Boise, an ardent supporter of the bill, fought the move to put it into Lincoln's committee for hearings. He said a similar proposal was heard by the last legislature and that some bills are being "heard to death."

"I don't think holding a hearing is drastic action on a bill," Lincoln said, in reply.

He added he would prefer to have the House take care of legislation rather than send it on to the Senate for hearings.

Rep. John Edwards, R-Council, offered a substitute motion to put the measure back in the Tax Committee for hearings but was defeated 27-43 on a roll call vote. Then, on a voice vote, the House put the bill into Lincoln's committee.

Water aides to speak

BOISE (UPI)—Water resource agency directors from Utah and California will appear Feb. 2 before a joint session of the Idaho Senate Resources and Environment Committee and the House Resources and Conservation Committee.

Dan Lawrence, director of the Utah Division of Water Resources, and William Gainelli, director of the California Department of Water Resources, will report on water resource development programs in their states.

Gainelli will review the purpose and status of the California state project with special emphasis on hydro-power arrangements.

Sen. J. Marsden Williams, R-Idaho Falls, and Rep. J. Vard Chatburn, R-Albion, committee chairmen, said the public is invited to attend the 7:30 p.m. hearing in Room 420 of the Statehouse.

MOSCOW (UPI)—A University of Idaho nutrition specialist said Wednesday in her opinion tuna fish currently on the market is safe to eat.

Esther Wilson said, "You may have turned on your panic button during the mercury scare, but you need not worry."

"All the tuna that was above the Federal Drug Administration's guideline for mercury content has been removed from grocery store shelves," she said.

The FDA has set one half part per million as the cutoff point for mercury content in tuna.

"This guideline offers a substantial margin of safety because it is based on all the available information of toxic effects of methyl mercury on humans and laboratory animals," she said.

The nutritionist said the guideline is also based on the only known cases of health damage due to mercury poisoning from fish which were in Japan, where the average persons eat nearly one half pound of fish per day compared to an average of slightly over one ounce per day in the United States.

Long, short hair arguments slated

BOISE (UPI) — Arguments concerning hair—the long and short of it—are scheduled in federal court this week and next.

U.S. District Court Judge Ray McNichols will hear several motions next Monday in a suit brought by John Baugh, 26, Boise, who is trying to stop his induction into the Army for active duty.

Baugh was ordered to report

Slack water navigation termed aid

BOISE (UPI)—Slack water navigation to Lewiston could save Idaho citizens $2.3 million a year, according to the manager of the Port of Lewiston.

Carl C. Moore told the Idaho Food and Grain Dealers Association Tuesday financial benefits already have been realized by shippers because of the navigation channel now open below Lewiston despite the fact lower Granite dam is not finished.

"Much of the grain produced in the area has been shipped by water during recent years," Moore said.

"It is interesting to note that in 1958 rail rates to coastal ports from Pasco, Wash., had reached 58.5 cents per hundred weight.

"Since that time—because of water-compelled rate reductions—rail rates have been reduced to a figure below nine cents a hundred-weight from the same area," Moore said.

Pupils to draw reference books

TWIN FALLS — A unique educational experiment which is expected to yield long-range results in the elementary grades will allow students to take reference materials, including encyclopedias, home for study.

George Staudaher, assistant superintendent of schools, who will succeed Dr. Ernest H. Rogland in the superintendency on July 1, said that a grant of $7,500 has been received from the federal government under Title II, Elementary-Secondary Education Act (ESEA), in a new program entitled the "President's Right to Read Program."

The funds will be used to purchase additional reference materials which will be placed in the Harrison Elementary School library. Students will be allowed to check out the

Time for living

In a recent column I described how I think it's up to each one of us to improve the "image" of aging—and make age a most productive and enjoyable time of life.

But you might be asking: "What can I do? I'm just an ordinary person."

Ah, my friend, you aren't. The very fact that you've lived this long—that you've survived bathtub gin, the depression, some World Wars and assorted riots—makes you part of the "survival of the fittest."

Also, I believe that something special is in each of us. Each of us knows something the other guy doesn't. Just see how many of us stand out individually in a crowd as an "expert" in a particular field or activity! You'd be surprised at the type of speciality that can bring recognition to you.

For instance, there's my friend, Charlie Davis, whose doctor urged him to take up a hobby after a nervous breakdown. "But, what...?" Charlie asked. "Collecting stamps or coins leaves me cold."

"What interests you the most?" asked the doctor.

"Elephants!" replied Charlie, pointing out that he'd loved elephants since his boyhood. While Charlie agreed that he couldn't collect elephants, he could collect elephant hairs! So he started making the round of circuses, explaining his unusual interest. Owners, trainers, and even the elephants cooperated, and at age 80 Charlie Davis finds himself the world's foremost authority on elephant hairs, having collected and classified over 500 of them.

Another friend, J. Austin Vincent, combined his business knowledge of the glass industry with a natural creative bent to become one of the world's foremost restorers and engravers of glass.

You may have seen some of his outstanding works, such as the handsome grey plate glass plaque that stands at the entrance to the Glass Crafts Building adjoining the Toledo, Ohio Museum of Art... the International Bowl he engraved as a presentation piece for Toledo's International Institute... a "thoroughbred" set of English highball glasses (the only such set in the world)... and the restoring to near perfection of three of Hitler's cocktail glasses (complete with monogrammed, All- and emblazoned, with swastikas) that General Patton's men smashed against a stone fireplace after tasting their triumphant invasion. His retirement projects include a set of presentation bowls and a moon vase commemorating the successful moon landing.

Each one of these men drew upon some natural interest—combined it with study, practice, and persistence—to gain a "pat on the back" for individual achievement and personality. In his own way, each became a recognized expert.

And I'm convinced that you and I, in our own unique ways, can win recognition for a special accomplishment. We've lived long enough—and learned enough—to draw upon a deep well of patience, interest, training, and experience.

By "doing our thing" in the best possible way, we're bound to reach a state of "expertise" that will win friends and impress people.

Most certainly, of all things, this can do much to make "aging" the attractive feat that it is, and a real success story for all of us.

Machines aid escape, create new problems

By JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish-Game Department
BOISE—A prime goal in life these days is to get away from it all for a few days or a week, away from the smell of gasoline, traffic hang-ups, noise, air and water pollution and junkyards.

Such a thing was not possible for most people as recently as the last decade or so. Only a few rugged types managed it—sometimes to their own dismay when blizzards, avalanches or other hardships came.

Trappers, ranchers, stockmen, lumberjacks, missionaries, Eskimos and other workmen had vital jobs to do in the snowbound hinterlands. Most other people were locked out until greenup time, which often was from October to April, or as long as there was any snow.

A French Canadian named Joseph Bombardier built the first practical snowmobile, but only a few hundred were sold. The boom did not start in this country and Canada until 1964, when there were about 8,000 light-weight machines in parts of 18 states and the Canadian provinces. By the end of 1970 the growth was expected to reach at least one-half million of the iron dogs in the United States and about the same number in Canada.

The number in Idaho is believed to be approaching 10,000 machines.

The machines are now so dependable on the Arctic rim of Alaska that they already have written obituaries for about 75 per cent of the dog teams.

Snowmobiles literally float on snow, using as their primary support a flexible rubber track which also is the drive mechanism, powered by an air-cooled gasoline engine. Skis in the front of the machines are used for steering at slow speeds. "Body English" is a critical factor in steering at higher speeds.

All terrain vehicles (ATV's) such as trail bikes, four-wheel-drive vehicles and snowmobiles, among others, are influencing wildlife and game and fish management programs, with both good and bad effects. For example, these conveniences bring to remote areas some of the problems of civilization that their riders are trying to escape.

More specifically, cross-country skiers and snowshoers are concerned with having the quiet solitude and remoteness of a snow-locked environment disrupted by the noise and commotion of snowmobiles. In fact, one of the greatest concerns relating to snowmobile use is noise in a naturally quiet environment.

The impact of off-road vehicles of all kinds on outdoor recreation involves their physical presence, as well as noise and attendant effects on fish, game and rangeland. There are cultural, historic, aesthetic and wilderness values. They are recognized in two federal acts setting up national wilderness and trail systems. This legislation stipulates that such recreation requires the absence of motor vehicles.

The Park Service generally restricts off-road vehicles (except snowmobiles) to existing roads, while the Forest Service encourages maximum use of the public domain for recreation with as few restrictions as possible. Of course, motor-vehicle travel of any kind except aircraft is prohibited within all designated wilderness or primitive areas of forests.

Snowmobiles, like aircraft travelers, create disproportionate safety problems simply because anyone of nearly any age or shape can go to a wild, lonely spot quickly. Many are neither equipped for nor capable of walking out of such remote places if they must. Injuries and fatalities by avalanche, breakdowns, sudden weather changes and inevitable reckless driving (running into fences, trees, cars and trains) unfortunately are becoming commonplace.

While it is true that wintertime search and rescue operations have been greatly aided by snowmobiles, paradoxically these machines have themselves created new search and rescue situations. All snowmobiles should carry minimum emergency equipment in the event of breakdown, sudden storms, accidents or becoming lost. A statewide safety educational program is recommended by H. M. (Duke) Wellington, Boise, past president of the Western Snowmobile Association and editor of the magazine, Snowmobiling.

He has just published a 40-page training manual which is available to agencies or individuals who may want to sponsor a safety training program for snowmobilers. It is being used this winter by the Washington State Department of Parks, with the first instruction now being given at Wenatchee. The booklet covers such topics as nomenclature, maintenance and care of snowmobiles, lost or overdue snowmobiles, evacuation and first aid.

Snowmobiles often cause damage to rangeland where the snow cover is too thin or where brush and trees protrude above the mantle. Many snowmobilers are unaware of the damage being caused. They also cause serious problems in areas of wildlife harassment and additional stress on winter-weakened animals. Much of the problem is caused unintentionally by snowmobilers trying to observe or photograph wild animals.

Much of the Idaho harassment activity is in Fremont County, where hundreds of snowmobilers converge every weekend and holiday from the eastern part of the state and Utah. According to Dale Barney, St. Anthony, district conservation officer, there is nearly as much wintertime activity by humans as there is during the summer months. In this region there is a wintering herd of about 1,000 elk, 400 moose and numerous deer. These big game animals come down to the desert for the winter, with many of them ranging near St. Anthony and Ashton.

Unprotected species of wildlife—coyote, for example—sometimes are extremely vulnerable to snowmobilers.

Many states and provinces report on the group method of hunting predators. Two or more snowmobile operators team up and run coyotes down, especially in soft snow, shooting them, clubbing them to death or running over them with their machines. A group of three snowmobilers in Alberta killed 319 coyotes in one winter using this method. This type of hunting could make the steel trap obsolete as well as raise objections concerning the humane aspects.

Oregon grows most of the nation's ryegrass.

Russ to invade if unrest spreads

VIENNA (UPI)—The Soviet Union is ready to invoke the "Brezhnev doctrine" and invade Poland if the current labor unrest there grows into new riots, East European sources said Wednesday.

The sources said any invasion would be justified on grounds which the Soviets take very seriously—that more violence would threaten the Communist system in Poland. They said the Soviets feel they cannot afford this risk in any Communist nation, let alone Poland with its strategic position between Germany and the Soviet Union.

The "Brezhnev doctrine" enunciated by Soviet party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, states that a threat to communism in one country is a threat to all Communist countries, and therefore demands military intervention in the "threatened" nation. It was this "doctrine" that was used to justify the 1968 invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The continuing strikes in the Polish Baltic port cities of Gdansk and Szczecin, have come as a shock to the Kremlin, which assumed that the situation would be quieted by the ouster of former party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka after last month's riots.

The sources said the Soviets know that economic and political problems are so closely linked that further strikes could lead to more violence which could, in turn, lead to the toppling of the new party leader, Edward Gierek.

All this, they said, could force a basic change in the structure of Poland and, just as seriously, spread to other East European countries.

A top-level decision has been taken in the Kremlin, the sources said, to nip this threat in the bud with military force if Gierek cannot prevent new rioting.

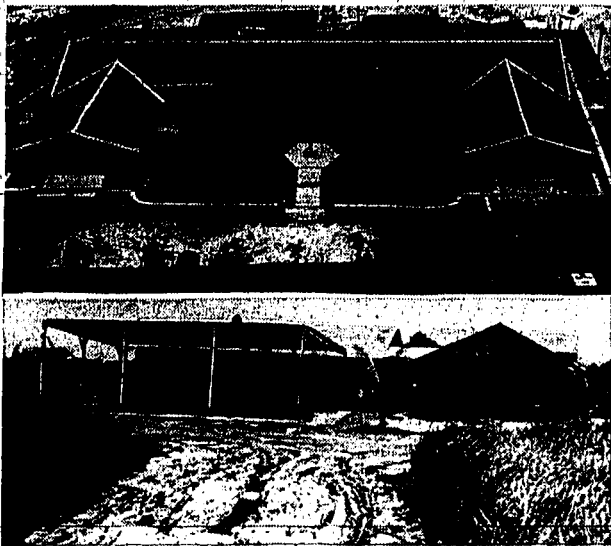

Gierek was believed to be aware of this decision. The Polish leader went to Gdansk and Szczecin over the weekend to talk to the rebellious workers.

There are Soviet troops stationed in Poland.

Board rejects request

BOISE (UPI) — The State Highway Board has rejected a request from Clark, Blaine, Camas and Butte counties to extend state Highway 22 from Dubols to U.S. 101 near Mack's Inn.

Supporters claim tourist-season traffic on U.S. 101 between Idaho Falls and Ashton would be relieved by such a routing which they call the "last link of incompleting highway on the Sun Valley-Craters of the Moon-Yellowstone Highway Association route."

But C. Ed Flandro, Pontello, chairman of the highway board, said:

"Merely adding the deficient section to the system without sufficient additional department maintenance and construction money in sight would not accomplish what is needed—improvement to state highway secondary road standards with an added surface."

He said the board feels the section could be brought up to desirable standards by local efforts and forest development funds long before the highway board "could see its way clear to accomplish the desired objectives."

Meantime, the board approved an engineering agreement with Howard, Needles, Tamman and Bergendoff, Seattle, for $256,651, for planning and design of Perrine Bridge north of Twin Falls.

Deputy Highway Engineer Donn Tisdale said the board wants to be ready to receive funding for the structure if it becomes available through provisions of the 1970 Highway Act.

He said the estimated cost of providing four-lane crossing of the Snake River on the high span — "at today's prices" — is $7,540,000.

Gem matron visits T.F. O.E.S. unit

TWIN FALLS — Roberta Showalter, worthy grand matron of the Grand Chapter of Idaho, O.E.S., paid her official visit to Twin Falls Chapter No. 29 Tuesday evening, accompanied by William Grange, worthy grand patron; Hope Clemons, grand treasurer; Penny Grange, grand marshal; Mary Ramsey, grand Esther; and Lurline Bragg, grand warder.

Mrs. Showalter held a school of instruction during the afternoon, preceded by a noon luncheon.

Initiation was held, with Marian Jenkins, worthy matron, and Craig Graybill, worthy patron, presiding.

Past grand matrons present were Lillian Barton, Hope Clemons and Erna McFarland. Past grand patrons included Alonzo Clayton and Delbert Remaley.

The theme of the worthy grand matron's message was "Take Time to be Kind." Grand representatives introduced were Emily Ballard, Utah; Ada Albin, Texas; Hazel Nelson, Indiana; and Edith Joiner, Illinois.

Worthy matrons and patrons of other chapters and those working with youth groups were also introduced. Fifty year members were also recognized and welcomed.

Joyce Marlow and Marjorie Pippitt headed the refreshment committee.

Craft in orbit

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—Intelsat 4 drifted toward a permanent orbit over the Atlantic Ocean today where it will operate as the world's most powerful commercial communications satellite.

The spacecraft was kicked into an "essentially synchronous orbit" late Tuesday night as it reached its third apogee, a maneuver which originally had been planned for this morning at the height of its elliptical orbit some 22,300 miles above earth.

But the Communications Satellite Corp. (COMSAT) said "an assessment of telemetry information indicated it more appropriate to fire the apogee motor on the third apogee rather than the planned fourth."

Comsat said Intelsat 4 was in orbit at approximately 123 degrees east longitude and drifting toward its intended orbit at 24.5 degrees west.

The satellite is seven times more powerful than five other communications spacecraft already in operation. When it goes into operation in about two weeks it will be capable of handling some 9,000 telephone conversations simultaneously and provide communications for about a third of the earth.

A second communications spacecraft is due to be put in orbit this week to provide a hotline for North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) nations, but launching was postponed from tonight to 8:48 p.m.

Gem Senate votes end of present land board,

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Senate approved 32-3 Wednesday a proposed constitutional amendment which would abolish the present Land Board and replace it with a board chosen as outlined by statute.

Sen. Art Manley, D-Coeur d'Alene, said Senate Joint Resolution 101 was identical to a constitutional amendment approved by the Senate in 1970, but which was held in the House by the Ways and Means Committee with all other constitutional amendments to allow the constitutional revision to be placed on the ballot.

Manley told the Senate the elected officials who make up the board—the governor, attorney general, secretary of state, superintendent of public instruction and auditor—“simply do not have the time” to pursue the smallest details.

He said records showed during the past year the Land Board held 19 meetings which averaged 1½ hours in length and said at over half of the meetings one or more members were absent.

Sen. Dean Summers, R-Boise, said he could document the “lack of business and common sense shown by the board over the past several years.”

He said the board managed the state lands in “a most ineffective and inefficient manner” and said it was “high time this body and the citizens of Idaho have a chance to review the board’s activities and see just how rotten they’ve been.”

Sen. Ray Rigby, D-Rexburg, also supported the constitutional amendment, saying approval by the legislature would give the voters the chance to decide on the issue.

“I don’t see how I can possibly stand on this floor and say this board has done a good job.”

The basic problem, Rigby said, was that “the continuity has been missing.”

Rigby noted the board—which can change in make-up after a general state election—picks the director of the Land Department, a post which he said “is by its very nature political” and one which “is kicked around from party to party.” He called for a professional board, and said present State Land Commissioner Gordon Trumbley “has that professionalism.”

Southern solons eye filibuster

Move made to quash priest plot subpoena

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Southern senators discussed privately Wednesday the possibility of agreeing to a limited weakening of the filibuster.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., now dean of the Senate and leader of the Southern forces, confirmed that Dixie senators had not ruled out a compromise on the issue.

One possibility discussed by the Southerners was agreeing to a change in the rules which would allow three-fifths of the senators to cut off debate on all appropriations bills and conference reports. The current two-thirds rule would apply to all other legislation.

Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., who has promised to consider backing a dilution of the filibuster, told reporters, “There is good reason to believe careful consideration is being given to some form of compromise.”

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — An attorney Wednesday attempted to quash a subpoena issued to a Baltimore priest by a grand jury investigating an alleged plot to kidnap one of President Nixon’s advisers.

Attorney Frances X. Gallagher, council for the Baltimore Roman Catholic Archdiocese, argued before U.S. District Judge R. Dixon Herman on behalf of the Rev. William Michelman, a member of Inner City East in Baltimore, a Catholic-sponsored anti-poverty agency.

Gallagher based his arguments to quash on grounds the grand jury was making a “blatant attempt” to harass Michelman, use of the subpoena was a “vehicle for a fishing expedition,” and that Michelman received unreasonably short notice to appear before the panel—less than 24 hours.

Michelman had appeared here as a character witness two weeks ago at a bond reduction hearing for the Rev. Joseph R. Wenderoth and the Rev. Neil R. McLaughlin, both Baltimore Catholic priests, and former priest Anthony Scoblick of Baltimore.

Wenderoth, Scoblick, McLaughlin, the Rev. Phillip Berrigan, Sister Elizabeth McAulster, a Tarrytown, N.Y., nun, and Egbal Ahmad of Chicago, a Pakistani citizen, were indicted by the grand jury here on charges they had plotted to kidnap Henry A. Kissinger, a presidential adviser.

He made landing decision

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Stephen F. Bales made the critical split-second decision that kept Apollo 11 heading for man's first lunar landing and he is sure no one will have to face the same situation on Apollo 14.

Bales was guidance officer in Mission Control when Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. started their descent to the moon in the lunar lander "Eagle" on July 20, 1969.

"The trouble started about five minutes into the descent when we got our first warning the LM guidance computer was being overworked," Bales said. "We got five alarms in all, about a minute apart, but we decided it wasn't bad enough to call off the landing," he said.

Bales said in the 20 seconds it took to receive the warning from "Eagle" and relay a command the ground crew diagnosed the problem as a non-emergency overload on the computer.

"The rendezvous radar was the culprit," Bales, 28, said. The radar, which wasn't needed during descent but was vital to link up again with the command ship "Columbia" was feeding unneeded information into the computer handling the descent and landing.

The computer was programmed to handle the most important information first so it didn't have time for the unneeded data and let the ground crew know it was being overworked. Bales' team decided the information the computer did not have time to process was not necessary.

"Just before ascent, we found what had caused the problem and worked around it by placing a switch in a different position," Bales said.

On Apollo 12, the problem was solved by blocking the rendezvous radar from feeding information to the guidance computer.

"For Apollo 14, we've even taken another step which I think is important. We've inserted two more extra pieces of information into the computer that lets the flight controller anticipate an overload," Bales said.

New theme

"GOOD LUCK APOLLO 14" is the new theme of the Idaho Capitol display sponsored by the American Nuclear Society and the Idaho Nuclear Energy Commission. The display features a training mission of the Apollo 14 to the Craters of the Moon National Monument. At the unveiling this week were Gov. Cecil Andrus, from left, Donald MacKay, of the INEC, Supt. Paul Fritz of the Craters, and Pete Henault of ANS.

Alan Shepard flight changed family life

By United Press International

Ten years ago when Alan Shepard's 15-minute Freedom 7 flight made him America's first spaceman, his wife, Louise, said she "couldn't have stood another minute," but now she enthusiastically studies the Apollo 14 flight plan that will keep him in space for nine days.

"It's like the difference between a short story and a novel," Mrs. Shepard, a trim blonde, explains in the living room of their $150,000 home in Houston's exclusive River Oaks section.

Shepard's flight rocketed his wife and daughters, Laura Snyder, recently married and 23, and Julie, 19, into a storybook life of presidents, society and wealth.

Mrs. Shepard, her daughters and several other family members planned early to fly to Cape Kennedy for the launch but will follow the rest of the mission in Houston.

Jean Roosa, wife of command module pilot Stuart A. Roosa, compares the wait before the flight to being pregnant—more uncomfortable the closer it got.

—The chubby, black-haired former seventh-grade history teacher from Tupelo, Miss., recalls the discussion in 1960, that started her husband toward the moon.

"I read him an article about NASA's (National Aeronautics and Space Administration) impending selection of astronauts. I knew it would amount to that someday," Roosa joined the corps that year.

Their brick home in El Lago near the Manned Spacecraft Center is filled with Japanese furniture and paintings—souvenirs from one of Roosa's overseas assignments with the Air Force.

Survival equipment will be included on Apollo flight

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Space agency officials don't like to talk about the Apollo 14 astronauts needing survival equipment after their trip to the moon, but the crew will be prepared if the need arises.

Two complete survival kits will be included aboard the Apollo 14 spaceship. One kit will contain lights, a desalter kit, sunglasses, a radio beacon with spare battery, a sheath knife, water containers, sun lotion, two utility knives, three survival blankets and netting material.

The second kit contains a three-man liferaft, sea anchor, sea dye markers, sunbonnets, a mooring lanyard and three manlines. The kits are designed to help the astronauts survive for at least 48 hours in the temperate regions.

Medical kit part of flight

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—The Apollo 14 astronauts will have to be their own physicians—and they will carry along a well-stocked medical kit to treat most common ailments from headache to motion sickness.

A special medical kit stored aboard the spaceship will include motion sickness and pain suppression injectors, first aid ointment, eye drops, nasal spray, compress and adhesive bandages and an oral thermometer.

Pills include antibiotics, nausea pills, stimulants, pain killers, decongestant, diarrhea and antacid tablets and aspirin.

A smaller medical kit will also be stowed aboard the lunar lander.

Tooth brush goes along on journey

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—The Apollo 14 astronauts, following the advice of their friendly space agency dentist, will have to brush daily—even on their lunar voyage.

Packaged neatly with their food will be a toothbrush and a two ounce tube of toothpaste. Each food package will also carry a wet-wipe towel to prevent sticky fingers.

In addition, the spaceship will carry almost two dozen towels and a healthy supply of tissues in case someone gets the sniffles.

Two wardrobes slated

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—The Apollo 14 astronauts will carry two wardrobes with them on their Apollo moon flight—one to be worn inside the spaceship and another for the two lunar hikes.

The interior model, called the intraveicular pressure garment is very similar to the exterior model, designated the extraveicular pressure garment, except it offers no protection from possible flying meteoroids and does not include the additional hardware needed by the moonwalkers.

The interior garment weighs only 35.6 pounds while the exterior suit weighs 183 pounds. However, the extra weight will not hinder the moonwalkers because of the moon's light gravity.

4-lane road requested at Ketchum

KETCHUM — A group of Ketchum area residents would like a four-lane highway between Ketchum and Sun Valley. Bud Esterholdt, manager of the Ketchum Chamber of Commerce, said today a delegation from Ketchum met with the state highway board in Boise requesting a traffic study between Ketchum and Sun Valley to determine if a four-lane road is warranted.

Esterholdt said the board was told that the present road between Ketchum and Sun Valley was breaking up badly and that major repairs were inevitable.

He said the delegation felt increasing use indicated the need for a four-lane highway. The delegation also asked the state board to consider replacement of the old highway bridge, two miles south of Ketchum, Esterholdt said.

Highway engineer Ellis L. Muthes told the group final plans for such a bridge could not be made now pending further study on three alternate routes for improving U.S. Highway 93 south of Ketchum as far as state Highway 68 and 10 miles north of Ketchum.

The delegation was told that the board will take under advisement the traffic study request.

Burglars net loss

JEROME — Burglars who entered a utility building at the Jerome Cemetery may feel a bit cheated.

Among the loot was a lawn mower which doesn't work. Bill Block, sexton, said aluminum elbows for the cemetery sprinkling system were also taken when the building was entered Wednesday night. Two windows and a door were broken. The Jerome County sheriff's office is investigating.

Highway limits posted

BOISE — Load and speed limits have been placed on two roads in the Castleford-Buhl area. Stan Thompson, Buhl Highway District superintendent said today.

The load and speed limits apply to the Castleford Road from Balanced Rock to Castleford, and the road from Castleford to Buhl, Thompson said.

The road limit is 350 pounds per inch of rubber and the speed limit is 35 miles an hour, Thompson said.

A side road, four miles south and four and one-half miles east of Castleford, extending to the Filer Highway District, will also be posted, Thompson said. Several other roads will probably be posted as well.

Truckers are asked to watch for signs indicating the restrictions, Thompson said.

Glenns Ferry bank names directors

GLENN'S FERRY — Four Magic Valley residents have been elected to the board of directors of the Idaho State Bank, Glenns Ferry, at the annual meeting.

Named to the board were Mary S. Jensen and Lloyd James, Glenns Ferry, and James E. Kevan and Robert G. Newhouse, Fairfield, and Milton W. Branch, Middlevale.

Directors and stockholders in the bank were advised that at the close of business on Dec. 31, total assets of the bank exceeded $11.4 million, Lloyd Jensen, president, said. The bank maintains branches at Grand View, Kuna and Cambridge.

Littered ditch

TRASH AND GARBAGE dumped along farm roads, such as this pile left in a ditch near Filer, is a common sight as some persons evidently believe the farmer can burn the trash when he burns ditch banks. The Twin Falls County dump is only a few miles from this site.

Gooding panel studies traffic safety ideas

GOODING — Gooding committee members of the Idaho Traffic Safety Commission are studying recommendations from the state safety council prior to making suggestions to the city council and school administration.

Police Chief Lyle Clifford, local coordinator, said the recommendations received from the Idaho Traffic Safety Council are the result of a survey he conducted in the Gooding schools. Members of the local committee met here Wednesday night to review monthly accident summaries for Gooding during 1970. There were 90 accidents throughout the year in the city, with no fatalities, the chief said.

He said three of the drivers involved were drinking. There were 82 traffic violations included in the 90 accidents and 48 citations issued.

Members, who were appointed by Clifford last month, also discussed how to cut the number of accidents and potential traffic hazards in town, such as unmarked intersections and obstructed views.

Members include Don Sims, Mayor Harley Crippen, Roger Maxwell, John Schoettger, Severt Swenson, chamber president; Bob Goodman, Eugene Kelly and Frank Olander.

Lions slate session

BURLEY — The mid-winter conference of Lions Clubs of District 39-W will begin Saturday at the Ramada Inn with the Heyburn Lions Club serving as host.

Grady Pulliam, Winston-Salem, N.C., international director Lions board of directors member, will be the featured speaker.

Registration will be Saturday morning and at 10 a.m. a sight foundation meeting is scheduled followed by a noon luncheon. Fred Chubb, past district governor of Idaho, will conduct the session.

The afternoon will be taken up with business sessions. The dinner will begin at 7 p.m. and Don Zuck, district governor, will be the master of ceremonies.

Pulliam was elected to the international board of directors at the 1970 convention in Atlantic City, N.J. He was charter president of the Twin City Lions Club and served his district as zone chairman, deputy district governor, district governor as well as chairman of many district committees.

He was also the recipient of two extension awards, president of the Tynd Life Insurance Co., and a member of the Winston-Salem Chamber of Commerce.

For two years he served as president of the North Carolina Eye Bank and also served as chairman of the Forsyth County March of Dimes.

Pulliam's wife will accompany him to Idaho and the conference at Burley. This will be the couple's first trip to Idaho.

Sunday at 10 a.m. the District 39-W cabinet will meet.

Crystal Springs site to state

HAGERMAN — Idaho Power Co. donated to the state its 80 acre Crystal Springs site in the Thousand Springs area of Hagerman Valley for development as a public recreation facility today.

A deed to the scenic site was presented by Wendell F. Smith, Idaho Power environmental affairs director, to the Idaho State Parks Board at its regular meeting in Boise.

Receiving the deed were board chairman Harold Brown, Filer, and Wilhelm Beckert, state parks department director.

The site, one of the most picturesque in the area, includes springs that cascade down the steep lava bluff on the north side of the Snake River into a sizable lake some 15-20 feet deep with a potential for excellent sports fishing.

Smith said Idaho Power long has been interested in recreational development of the Thousand Springs area, an attraction to both local residents and tourists for many years.

The utility previously made its Banbury Springs site available to the Snake River Council for Boy Scouts of America on a long term, no-cost lease.

A camp developed by the council on the site was dedicated last fall to T. E. Rouch, Idaho Power board chairman.

In addition, Idaho Power has established a park for free public use near its Thousand Springs generating plant, a facility carefully built along old-world lines by a predecessor company in 1912 to fit into its scenic surroundings.

The company's environmental director said that when the utility acquired the springs sites, it was anticipated they could be developed as hydro generating plants providing a steady source of dependable power.

However, he explained, the company subsequently found that the sites would produce only relatively small amounts of power and did not represent an economic development when compared with such large projects on the Snake as Brownlee, Oxbow, Hells Canyon, C. J. Strike and Bliss.

Saxvik raps fund bids

BOISE — Fund requests by Twin Falls and Pocatello airports to finance major projects have put the Idaho Legislature in a difficult position, State Sen. Robert Saxvik, Burley, said today.

In a hearing before the combined Revenue and Taxation Committees of the senate and house, Pocatello city officials presented requests for $150,000 and $125,000 respectively.

"This has put the Department of Aeronautics and Director Chet Moulton and his five-man board into a completely new ball game," Saxvik said.

Senator Saxvik, questioning Moulton at the hearing, asked if these types of large requests from major airports had ever been made before. Moulton replied that they hadn't and reported to the joint committee that in past years they had been chiefly concerned with air safety and the development of small county and small city airports.

"The suggestion was brought before the committee to place an ad valorem tax on commercial airlines serving Idaho. However, in the light of time demands on the present legislature, it is unlikely that kind of legislation could be pushed through to fund these two airport requests," Saxvik said.

Pocatello's need is for an air terminal and Twin Falls has an emergency need for renovation of their present runway. Saxvik commented that Twin Falls' situation "has been brought on by bad planning."

"The responsibility of this should be shared by the Twin Falls City-County Airport Commission and Air West," Saxvik said. "In an effort to prematurely get jet air service, an extension was built to the Twin Falls runway with little or no regard for the sub-standard condition of the existing runway. Apparently the Twin Falls City-County Airport Commission wished to gamble on the fact that the old runway would hold up for two or three years until additional money could be appropriated."

"But after its first full year of operation, the Twin Falls airport has now closed on at least two occasions because the runway needed emergency repairs due to breakup caused by the weight factor of the large DC-9 jets," Saxvik said.

"Pocatello's need is not immediate although the terminal may be inadequate. Twin Falls' need is immediate but with the belt tightening program presented by Gov. Cecil Andrus and the general concurrence of the 41st legislature, it would appear that these fund requests to major airports will go unanswered during this session," Saxvik said.

Gettert turns age 103 today

TWIN FALLS — Magle Valley's best known centenarian and probably the oldest resident of the area, Henry C. Gettert observed his 103rd birthday anniversary today.

Confined to Hazel Del Manor where he is recovering from a hip fracture, Gettert received many cards, congratulatory messages and visits from friends this afternoon.

Among telegrams received was one from Gov. and Mrs. Cecil Andrus.

"Most sincere congratulations from Mrs. Andrus and myself today as you observe your 103rd birthday with your wife. We understand you also recently celebrated your 53rd wedding anniversary. This, too, is a remarkable feat. We hope if you are ever in the Boise area you will accept a standing invitation to visit the governor's office," the telegram from Gov. and Mrs. Cecil Andrus read.

Dale Davis, Twin Falls Social Security Agency, said there are only 25 centenarians in the state of Idaho according to regional records.

POINTS WHICH will be covered under a new roadblock system being devised by a Magic Valley Peace Officers Association Committee were charted Wednesday during a meeting in Twin Falls. Working on the revision are, from left, Chief C. H. Pantney of the Jerome Police Department, Bill Beas, Gooding County deputy sheriff, and Bill Stonemets and Capt. Kenneth Johnston, Twin Falls Police Department.

Gooding budget smaller

GOODING — Gooding county's 1971 budget shows a sizable decrease of $283,199.51 over the 1970 budget, but much of the 1970 "bulge" was due to construction of new courthouse, according to Mrs. Vivian Burden, county clerk.

The proposed 1971 budget of $503,310.55 is 34.3 per cent less than the 1970 total of $766,510.06. However, $237,233.37 of the total reduction of $263,199.51 comprises payments on the courthouse project, leaving an actual reduction for 1971 of $25,965.74, or 3.39 per cent.

Last year, Mrs. Burden said, $310,134.84 was budgeted for the courthouse project. Of this, $72,000.00 remains to be paid.

The 1971 budget includes reductions of $18,410.04 in the court division due to elimination of the positions of probate judge and justice of the peace under the court reform legislation, and a reduction of $4,846 in the county clerk's office — down to $24,339 for 1971 from $29,724 in 1970.

Mrs. Burden said the clerk's office help which allows fewer people to do the work.

Individual items in the current budget, listing this year's compared to last year, are sheriff — $88,640 and $42,290; jail — $2,950 and $4,790; assessor $22,265 and $25,850; revaluation — $4,650 and $5,550; prosecuting attorney — $9,424.46 and $8,990; treasurer — $14,815 and $13,690; district court — $13,940 and $5,000 last year, with salaries not listed; commissioners — $8,975 and $5,575; county agent — $13,850 and $13,245; coroner — $633.75 and $683; elections — $1,440 and $9,650; civil defense — $770 and $800; county building, $32,738 and $12,090; general and reserve funds, $34,894.49 and $56,518; Niagara Springs Park, $1,500 and $2,500.

In other budget items, the airport budget remains at $8,000 while the county fair is $24,000 compared to $30,000; indigent fund is $63,285.35 compared to $60,000 last year while the junior college tuition remains at $20,000. Public health is $14,900 and $14,037; road and bridge, $4,750 both years; War Memorial hall remains at $23,700 and wood eradication, $45,325 and $36,930.

Miss Chaplin, Copps say nuptial vows

TWIN FALLS — Debbie Chaplin, daughter of Mrs. Jim Cobb and Jack Chaplin, became the bride of Ken Copps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Copps, Salinas, Calif., in a candlelight ceremony Jan. 16 at the Immanuel Lutheran Church, Twin Falls.

Rev. Harold Iben officiated at the double ring ceremony before a background setting featuring candelabra with pink tapers, accented with rose-colored satin bows and bouquets of pink gladioli.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Bridal Original gown with Venice lace accenting the Camelot sleeves. The crescent waistline gown of organza featured a snowflake-trimmed detachable chapel train. Her elbow-length four-tiered veil of nylon illusion was held by a crown of alencon lace, pearls and crystals. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations and rosebuds.

Liz Bamesberger was maid of honor, with Cheryl Chaplin, Hayward, Calif., and Janelle Thaele and Connie Sinclair, sister of the bridegroom, both Twin Falls, as bridesmaids. Junior bridesmaid was Jacki Chaplin, sister of the bride, and flower girl was Jana Lampe.

All Twentieth Century Club members are invited to attend and bring guests.

Mrs. Brooks was appointed by President Nixon in March, 1969, to be the 28th director of the United States Bureau of the Mint, the third woman to fill this important position.

As director of the mint and its six field institutions, Mrs. Brooks heads one of the fastest growing and technologically expanding government bureaus. She is responsible for the manufacture and distribution of an adequate supply of coinage to meet the daily needs of our continually growing economy. Other activities, which come under the supervision of the director of the mint, concern the safeguarding of the government's holdings of monetary metals, the refining of gold and silver, coinage for foreign governments, the manufacture of medals for the armed services, and the manufacture and sale to the public of medals of historic interest and special coin sets of numismatic interest.

Mrs. Brooks assumed her duties as director of the mint on Sept. 1, 1969. She had been assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee since May of 1965. She was also a senator in the Idaho State Legislature. She was elected to the Senate in 1964 from Blaine County and re-elected from the 21st District in 1966 and 1968. During her tenure in the Idaho Legislature, Mrs. Brooks was chairman of the Republican Caucus as well as the State Affairs Committee and served on the Fish, Game and Recreation Committee and the Transportation and Defense Committee.

Mrs. Brooks was born in Colby, Kans., and raised in Gooding. She attended Mills College in California and received her bachelor of arts degree from the University of Idaho. She is the daughter of former United States Senator, John Thomas of Idaho and served as his administrative assistant, prior to his death in 1945. Mrs. Brooks also was Let's wear a fink!

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Pink coats may be in high fashion in a few years if Michigan State University scientists can work it out. A fink, the result of mating a ferret with a mink, would ideally have the lush fur of the mink and the calm disposition of the ferret, they say. "I don't know if the mink will tear the ferret apart in the mating process, but we're going to try it this spring," said Dr. Richard Aulerich, head of the university's mink-research.

Retirement noted

SHOSHONE — Amy Morse will retire Thursday from the Idaho Power Co. Shoshone office, after having worked for the company 18 years.

Mrs. Morse has been in Shoshone office three years, coming here from Halley. She spent eight years in the Twin Falls office before going to Halley.

She was born in Clayton, Ga., began working this week at the coming to Notus, Idaho, when 2 years old. She moved to Twin Falls in 1925.

Mrs. Morse worked for the Rogers Brothers Seed Co. in Twin Falls and the Randall Floral shop there prior to going to work for Idaho Power Co. She said she has enjoyed her hobbies of knitting, bowling and belonged to the Wood River Rock Club while in Halley.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in the carpet business. We do beautiful work and our prices are right. When so-called "friends" show us carpet they have installed in their homes, which they bought somewhere else, and they ask us what we think of it, what should we say? (They even have the nerve to tell us how much they paid for it.)

Nine times out of 10 it is a poor job of installation, and they paid too much. I always tell them the truth! My husband says that I should never knock the competition, regardless, otherwise it will sound like sour grapes.

These same people never even let us give them an estimate! I say why should we consider their feelings if they don't consider ours? What do you think?

—CARPET PEOPLE

DEAR PEOPLE: I think your husband is right. And the same goes for the jewelry business, furniture business, fur business, and every other kind of business.

DEAR ABBY: Our first baby is 7 weeks old, and I am breast-feeding her. A lot of young mothers wouldn't want to be bothered with breast-feeding, but I don't mind because I think it's healthier for the baby. My husband doesn't appreciate it at all, in fact, I think he'd rather I put the baby on the bottle. He has as much as said so.

The problem is that when I feed the baby and my husband has some of his friends here he asks me to go into another room. I don't see why. There is nothing bad or sexy about a mother nursing her child. He says he doesn't like for me to feed the baby that way in front of his friends and I am hurt. Do you see anything wrong with it? Please settle this, as I think he is wrong and he thinks I am.

—NURSING MOTHER

DEAR NURSING MOTHER: Knowing how your husband feels about it, nurse the baby in private and keep the peace.

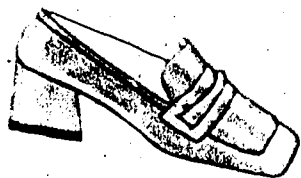

DEAR ABBY: A while back you had a letter from a woman who made her husband shave his chest. She must be screwy. And any man who would let his wife talk him into it must be screwy, too.

I have a very hairy chest which I wouldn't shave for any amount of money. I sleep only in pajama bottoms and my wife says she'd rather feel my hairy chest against her cheek than the collar of a milk coat.

Livestock hall of fame to honor

Johnny Jones, pioneer sheepman

HAGERMAN — A pioneer sheepman who started out in life as a stable boy and carriage driver for a lawyer in Wales took pride in his work and as a result has been named to the Southern Idaho Livestock Hall of Fame.

John W. Jones Sr., who came to this country in 1903, will be honored at the annual Hall of Fame dinner Feb. 15 at the Ponderosa Inn for his outstanding contribution to the livestock industry — particularly the sheep industry.

Jones, known to most everyone as Johnny Jones, was born on Nov. 15, 1886, in Carmarthenshire, South Wales. When he was 14, he became self-supporting, working for a Welsh lawyer as stable boy and carriage driver.

A year later, he went to London where he worked for 25 cents a day delivering milk. Each morning at 5, he met the Welsh milk train, filled his milk cart and then pushed the cart up and down London streets, filling milk containers.

During this time he went to night school and sang in the Welsh choir at St. Paul's Cathedral.

In 1903 he came to the United States and being only 16 years old, he was too young to get employment in the north Idaho mine where his uncle worked. He spent most of his first year there as cook and general flunky in the mining camp. The next two years he worked in the mines until he got pneumonia and decided to change his line of work.

In 1906 he came to Hagerman where another uncle owned a ranch. He became interested in sheep which were being fed on the ranch.

Johnny became night herder for four years for the Owen and Becker Sheep Co. After this he worked for the Clinton Sheep Co., owned by the late Jim Farmer and Theo Painter.

He became foreman and a working partner in this operation which ran 10,000 ewes. Painter then sold his interest to the other two partners and in 1924 Jones bought out Farmer. Jones then ran 6,000 ewes.

Jones ran the sheep out on the Bruneau desert during the spring as there were natural water holes for the sheep, but water was hauled from Buhl for the men and horses. Whenever the sheep were near the Snake River, they drank from it.

A few years later, the Civilian Conservation Corps dug up the watering holes so Jones had to haul water for the sheep. He hired trucks to haul the water until he was able to purchase his own trucks. Today two watering trucks haul water to the sheep in the spring.

Land in Camas, Gooding and Custer counties was purchased by Jones and the home ranch east of Hagerman was purchased in 1936 from his sister, Mrs. Mary Thomas. During summer months, the sheep are run in the Sawtooths near Cape Horn.

Johnny married Ethel Justice in 1922 at Hagerman. She is a Hagerman High School graduate and Albion Normal School graduate.

They have two children, John W. (Bill) Jones Jr., and Mrs. Alfred (Florence Mary) Sandy, both Hagerman, and seven grandchildren.

After graduating from the University of Idaho, Jones' son, Bill, went into the sheep business with his father and when Jones retired a few years ago, Bill took over the operation.

Today, Jones' son-in-law, Alfred Sandy, is in with the outfit known as the Jones-Sandy Livestock Co., with holdings of 3,000 acres of deeded land, 200 head of cattle and 4,500 ewes. Sandy operates the home ranch and cattle while Bill handles the sheep operation.

Johnny Jones took pride in producing top-grade lambs and wool and has constantly worked to improve the industry. His contribution to the sheep industry has resulted in his being honored next month by the Hall of Fame.

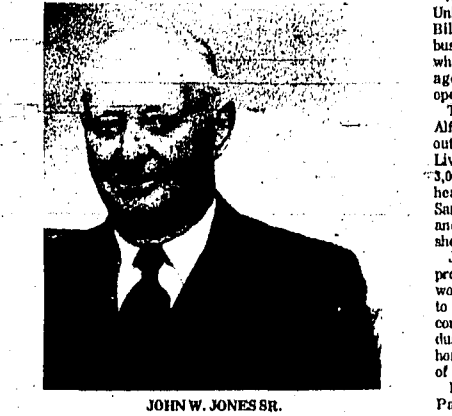

Because Johnny has Parkinson's disease and is confined to Green Acres Terrace, a nursing home in Gooding, he will be unable to accept his award at the Hall of Fame dinner. However his son, Bill, will accept it in his behalf.

Johnny Jones served many years on the predator animal control board and has been a longtime supporter of the National Wool Growers Association, missing only two national conventions during the past 50 years.

He has been a civic and community leader, serving on the Hagerman school board 24 years and attending all school activities. He is a member of the Methodist Church, serving on the board of trustees for many years.

He also was a strong supporter of the 4-H program, donating lambs for 4-H projects to local youngsters.

BOISE — The Idaho Livestock Production Credit Association of Boise will have its annual meeting at noon Feb. 5 in the Holiday Inn, Twin Falls, says Ray Royce, manager.

Royce said during the annual meeting directors will be elected and a report of the year's business will be given. Guest speaker will be Max Yost, Boise, executive manager of the Associated Taxpayers Association of Idaho.

Royce said a total of $32.4 million was loaned to farmers and ranchers in the state during the past year. The figure, he said, represents an increase of $2.7 million over a year ago.

He said the association makes short and intermediate term production loans to farmer and rancher members throughout Idaho, south of the Salmon River and a portion of Malheur County, Ore.

Gooding meets Wendell and Buhl, Hagerman travels to Hansen for cage features

The Gooding Senators, still smarting from their first loss of the year, run into pressure in two conferences this weekend while the Hansen Huskies and Hagerman Pirates collide in a key Magic Valley Conference game and the Camas County Musters take their one-game Northside Conference lead to Rimrock Raiders.

Gooding crosses the river to play at Buhl in a South Central Idaho Conference rematch. Gooding won the first one by two points. Gooding holds a one-game lead over Wood River in the SCIC with Buhl two steps back at 2-2. In the Big Six, Gooding and Wendell are deadlocked at 5-0 while Glens Ferry and Filer share third at a distant 2-3.

Okley's loss to Hansen made that possible Tuesday but it wouldn't appear that a loss to either of the co-leaders would give them much of a chance to pick up a game on two clubs. That one comes Saturday night at Hansen. Camas County has only a game to spare over Richfield in the Northside Conference while Rimrock has a pair of losses but would be back in solid contention with a victory.

In other games Friday, the Burley Bobcats leave the arena to play Madison at Rexburg in an Eastern Idaho Conference game, trying to shake a losing streak. Buhl returns a visit to Valley having won the first game. Valley, after a lot of games early, has been about semi-retired in January but the Vikings are leading the Little Six Conference. Jerome leaves the state, Coach Billy Emerson's crew traveling to Elko. They'll be home Saturday night to play Mountain Home which may have won its spurs by upsetting Gooding last weekend.

Gilmore leads in rebounds; Humes third in NCAA scoring

NEW YORK (UPI)—When Artis Gilmore does his thing, he's the best there is. Gilmore's "thing" is rebounding, and the 7-foot-2 Jacksonville center is the leader in that category for the 20th straight week, according to figures released Thursday by National Collegiate Sports Services for games through Saturday, Jan. 23.

The 500-yard dash and that headlines the field for the Sun Belt Invitational Track Meet Saturday night at the Mindomo. High School events start at 6:30 p.m. and the open action starts at 7:15 with the introduction of open athletes. Also, an outstanding afternoon of high school track commences at 1:30 with admission free. Admission to the evening show is $3 for a family ticket and $1.25 for general admission.

Gilmore has had an uninterrupted reign as the nation's leading rebounder since he joined the Dolphins last season. The 24-pound senior from Chipley, Fla., has snatched 22.9 rebounds per game and scored 24.5 points a game to lead the Dolphins to a 12-2 mark. In career rebounding, Gilmore's 22.4 is ahead of the major-college record of 21.8 set by Marshall's Charlie Slack in 1953-56.

Okley, the weight of that 36-game win streak gone, should be a little sprier and looser Friday night at Declo and that could bode ill for the young Hornets. Coach Keith Wilson's Hornets have come on well after a slow start on a blend of basically underclassmen. Murtaugh, which dropped a four-point decision to Hagerman earlier, will be at the Pirates' den Friday and the Pirates had best not be looking past the Devils and toward the game with Hansen Saturday.

Evans predicts mark in Idaho State meet

POCAHELLO — The United States' quarter-mile of the century Lee Evans promises to shatter his own world record in Jacksonville.

The 500-yard dash and that headlines the field for the Sun Belt Invitational Track Meet Saturday night at the Mindomo. High School events start at 6:30 p.m. and the open action starts at 7:15 with the introduction of open athletes.

Kermit Washington, American University's 6-foot-8 sophomore, ranks second in rebounding with 21.2 and Julius Erving of the University of Massachusetts is third with 20.5. Mississippi's Johnny Neumann continues to lead all major-college scorers, but his lead has been steadily shrinking. A month ago, Neumann led Notre Dame's Austin Carr by 9.1 points a game. This week, the margin is 4.2 points a game, with Neumann scoring at a 42.1 clip and Carr hitting for a 37.0 average.

Jacksonville flurries past Florida State

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Powerful Jacksonville University rattled off 13 consecutive points midway through the first half and then stormed past arch-rival Florida State 83-65 Wednesday night.

Bill Smith of Syracuse is the new leader in field goal percentage with .629, while Greg Starrick of Southern Illinois, on 54-of-60-for .900, is the new place-setter in free throw percentage. Jacksonville continues as the most explosive quintet, averaging 101.7 points a game. Army has yielded 57.1 points a game to rank as the top defensive team.

Jacksonville continues as the most explosive quintet, averaging 101.7 points a game. Army has yielded 57.1 points a game to rank as the top defensive team.

The sixth-ranked Dolphins, getting 16 points from 7-0 Pembroke Burrows and 15 from 7-2 Artis Gilmore, scored a surprising easy win over the Seminoles, who earlier this season held Jacksonville to a 114-108 victory in the finals of the Jacksonville-Civitan tournament.

Evans posted a 54.4 mark two weeks ago in the 500. At the same time Ron Whitney was speeding to a 55.5 clocking in the Mindomo in the same event, the fastest non-Lee Evans time ever posted. Whitney said he could have broken the record himself if he had realized the ISU track has only four turns to the 500. Then he called up Evans and told him he could break his record easily. Evans called ISU Track Coach and Meet Director Bob Beeten and asked to be included in Saturday's field.

On the Northside, Camas County is at Rimrock for the feature while the big rivalry "hate thing" will find Richfield going to Carey. Dietrich will be at Bliss for the other loop contest.

The win boosted the Dolphins' record to 13-2 while Florida State is now 12-6. The ball-hawking Dolphins grabbed the lead to stay midway through the first half, scoring on four consecutive fast breaks for a 26-16 margin.

Another world record is possible in the high hurdles. Colorado's Marcus Walker hurdled run 13.3 and the 120-yd. indoor record is 13.5 by Willie Davenport.

On the Northside, Camas County is at Rimrock for the feature while the big rivalry "hate thing" will find Richfield going to Carey. Dietrich will be at Bliss for the other loop contest.

Reggie Boyan picked up his third foul. With 5:40 left and Royals on the bench, the shorter Seminoles began a stall and Jacksonville held a half-time margin of 38-22.

Beeten doesn't predict another world record in the 100, but says the winner will probably equal the old mark of 9.4. Cliff Branch, latest claimant to the title of world's fastest human, of Colorado, ran a 5.0 60 to equal the world's record and he'll be here, as will teammate Larry Brunson (9.5). Carl Lawson clocked 9.5 last week and Phil Price 9.6 for high State.

On the Northside, Camas County is at Rimrock for the feature while the big rivalry "hate thing" will find Richfield going to Carey. Dietrich will be at Bliss for the other loop contest.

Armstrong keeps chair

RICHFIELD—Forrest Armstrong has been re-elected chairman of the Richfield Rod and Gun Club. Other officers re-elected are Melvin Pope, secretary, and L. T. Sanders, treasurer. A membership drive has been started with each member to serve by signing up new and former members for the new year. Wintering conditions for upland game birds and big game animals was the discussion subject for the Monday night meeting at the school cafeteria.

A fine group of 440 runners led by the PCC great Bob Fray (45.0) could challenge the Mindomo record of 47.5 set by Edsel Garrison last week. Larry Lewis ran 49.9 in that meet, very fast for his first indoor outing. Terry Musika, fastest indoor quartermiler in the world last year, has slumped a bit but the PCC runner could claim an upset win if he runs back to his 1970 form. The state of Idaho has never seen a four-minute mile but it's a distinct possibility now with John Mason and Dave Wilborn in the field. Mason is fastest US indoor miler right now at 4:01, and Wilborn ran 3:56 last year. Utah's Scott Bringham could claim all the marbles if the other two falter in the altitude.

On the Northside, Camas County is at Rimrock for the feature while the big rivalry "hate thing" will find Richfield going to Carey. Dietrich will be at Bliss for the other loop contest.

SCORES

Table with 2 columns: School Name and Score. Includes Glens Ferry vs Wood River, Bonanza vs Idaho, etc.

Beeten figures ISU's Carl Lawson has an outside shot at the 300 world record. His 30.4 on Jan. 18 was the best ever run on a track in the U.S., although it doesn't count for a U.S. record since Lawson is a citizen of Jamaica. Lawson will be trying to beat Bill Hurd's 29.8. Pushing him are the Colorado swiftness Branch and Brunson. The two-mile, one of the highlights of the ISU invitational, should be exciting again. Nelson Karagu, who was nipped by a yard in that one, will duel Northern Arizona's cross-country All-American Richard Siney and 9:20 twomiler Mike Peterson of Colorado.

Twin Falls and Minico entertain Boise, Nampa in conference action

The Twin Falls Bruins shoot for a winning season while the Minico Spartans try to get out of an even record when they tip Southern Idaho Conference opponents Boise and Nampa Friday and Saturday nights.

Boise brings a 6-6 overall and 5-5 conference mark into the weekend while Nampa is 3-9 and one-game behind in the standing lost column, will entertain Boise Friday night while the Nampa Bulldogs are at Minico.

The key for both Twin Falls and Minico will be stopping the scoring and rebounding of Steve Swanson. He currently is averaging 16.8 points in the league with 211 rebounds for his 12 games. The Braves also have a 15.2 average scorer in Kelly Troutner but Troutner is shooting only 31 per cent for the season against 40 for Swanson.

Appeals court holds baseball decision

NEW YORK (UPI)—The U.S. Second Circuit Court of Appeals reserved decision on baseball's reserve clause Wednesday after arguments over Curt Flood's law suit to overturn the clause were heard for 90 minutes.

Appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. Baseball has enjoyed immunity from Federal antitrust laws since 1922. In arguing Flood's case, however, Goldberg contended that a "player is tied for life" under the reserve clause and added, "flood wants to be a free man for which there is no substitute."

Coach Charles Farmer sees a weekend as a must for his Bruins. "Boise is a good ball club and Swanson is hard to stop. Highland couldn't stop him last week when I scouted them (the Braves). I haven't seen Nampa so we'll go into that one with just some scouting reports to go by."

Four share top prize in pro-am

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Defending champion Pete Brown, Rocky Thompson, Ted Hayes, Jim Weichers and Lee Elmer shot matching six under par 68s Wednesday in the second half of the pro-am prelude to the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

Practising Judge Jerry R. Waterman, sitting with Judges Leonard P. Moore and Wilfred Felner, listened to arguments by both sides and then announced: "we will reserve a decision on the reserve clause."

Ontario, Ore. (UPI)—I was just back to Minnesota, and there was a lot of talk about resting me this year, and I don't care for that at all—means I'm getting old, I guess."

Flood, who is represented by former U.S. Supreme Court Justice and Ambassador to the United Nations Arthur Goldberg, began the suit shortly after he was traded by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Philadelphia Phillies in late 1969. The undefeated College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles boomed into second place in the national junior college basketball ratings this week to mark another new plateau. But the news comes on the near eve of the first big road trip in the Intermountain-Collegiate Athletic Conference and Coach Jerry Hale says the battle has just been joined.

Bowl-rich SEC isn't in financial stress

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The bowl-rich Southeastern Conference looked at some of its struggling neighbors Wednesday and began talking about money and how the rich do—with a calm, cold eye on future costs.

SEC schools at the opening of their three day annual meeting.

Broncos, Jets swap kickers

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Jets Wednesday traded Jim Turner, their placement specialist who set a pro scoring record with 34 field goals in 1968, to the Denver Broncos for soccer style kicker Bobby Howfield.

But the SEC is taking its time about any drastic economy moves.

Turner, the leading scorer in Jets' history, had 34 field goals in 1968 and followed that with 32 the following year, both pro records. He is the 13th leading scorer in pro football history but fell out of favor last season after failing to kick off up to standards.

One committee recommended Wednesday that traveling squads be limited, but it won't be acted on at the current meeting.

Howfield, an English-born 34-year old who was discovered by Hank Stram of the Kansas City Chiefs, is a long kickoff man and Coach Weeb Ewbank of the Jets said that's exactly what the club needs.

Except for football Beard said the recommended figures "are pretty much in line with what we're doing now."

"We wanted somebody who could kick off into the end zone," said Ewbank. "And kick field goals. In Howfield we got someone who could do both."

Beard said the size of football squads vary, tremendously, depending on the game and the health of the teams.

Ewbank said that both were "good field goal kickers, but I think we got the edge in kickoffs. Our opponents were getting good field position on kickoffs and everybody today has good return men."

"When you've got a first string player who's hurt you want to take him with you even if you know he can't play," Beard said.

Steady 3 entered in tourney

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Bobby Lunn, Tom Shaw and Miller Barber are the "big cats" of the 1971 PGA tour to date.

Beard said the conference is also looking at television's effect on ticket sales.

All three are in San Diego this week for the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open which starts Thursday at Torrey Pines, another one of those California seaside courses.

"We get a lot of money from television in this conference," Beard said, "but there's always a little bit of hurt because TV sometimes keeps a game from being sold out."

Lunn won the Los Angeles Open to launch the $7.1 million tour, beating 1970 player of the year Billy Casper in a playoff.

The conference might also take another look at the number of grants given to minor sports, which Beard defined as those "that don't make any money."

Shaw took the Crosby pro-am and Barber followed by winning the Phoenix Open last Sunday with a record 23 under par score of 281.

OSU nips LIU in overtime

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI)—Sam Whitehead's 20-footer with one second remaining in regulation play Tuesday night gave Oregon State a tie with Long Island and then the Beavers went on to down the New York club 71-70 in overtime.

Utah claims third in row

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Glet Combs scored 38 points and guided Utah's fast break in the second half Wednesday night in leading the Stars to their second straight victory, a 111-105 win over the Denver Rockets.

The Beavers trailed the entire game, sometimes by as much as 10 points, before rallying in the closing seconds of the fourth quarter to tie the regulation game at 63-63.

Combs hit 11 of 18 from the field and 16 of 18 from the foul line to help the Stars stay in a tie with Indiana for first place in the ABA Western Division.

In the overtime, Gary Arbelbide scored what proved to be the winning basket when he hit on a jumper with 43 seconds left. Long Island lost the ball to the Beavers when they brought it inbounds and were unable to get the ball back before time ran out.

Utah broke away to an early lead on the shooting of Combs, Willie Wise and Zelmo Beath. But Denver came back to tie it at 18-18 with 8:56 to go in the first quarter. Combs' shooting proved too much for Denver and the Stars took a 26-20 lead at the end of the quarter. The Stars led 63-63 at halftime on the strength of shooting 55 per cent from the field.

Long Island's Alvin Gibson led all scorers with 24 points. Arbelbide led the Beavers with 19.

Rockets edge Bulls 111-106

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Forward Chet Walker stole a bad pass and then scored on a 10-foot jumper with one minute remaining to lead the Chicago Bulls to 111-106 victory over the San Diego Rockets Wednesday night.

The Bulls outscored the Rockets 8-0 with three minutes left after forward Toby Kimball brought the Rockets to within one point 101-100. The Rockets twice trailed by 10 points, 34-28 in the second quarter and 65-55 in the third quarter.

Palomar and notes Gene Stroebel has become a valuable sixth man, particularly defensively.

The Eagles will not return to the home court until Feb. 4 when they host Ricks College.

The problem at hand, however, is getting past Eastern Utah and Mesa College Friday and Saturday.

"Eastern has the leading scorer and the best rebounder in the ICAC," Coach Hale opened, referring to 6-8 Sid Hansen (21 points per game) and 6-3 Charles Anderson (14.8 rebounds per game.) They also have a small floor that makes it difficult to play well."

Mesa dropped two games last weekend to Dixie and Snow College, leading by 10 to 14 points at halftime but then seeing most of the regulars foul out. Snow shot 52 free throws against the Mavericks.

Mesa lost the big man, a 6-8 center who was a fine offensive player. He didn't come back from the Christmas holidays. They start three boys 6-5 and two 6-2 so they are a pretty good sized club and are well coached. Their coach believes they have come back to about the same caliber they were playing before the big man left."

CSI came through its first giant road test, beating Utah State Monday night, the first time CSI has ever won on the Logan floor. "This was a big win," Coach Hale agrees, "but we played pretty well down there. You have to play very well on the road and so far we have been. We've had a few spells in different games we didn't but basically we've had good games. It would be possible to keep going that way but with the traveling and everything else, we're just going to have to run into some bad games," he continued.

Tim Bassett reports his knee is fine after injuring it and missing part of the game at Utah State. Steve Hegens' knees still are keeping him below par. Coach Hale continues to praise the mid-season showing of Tom Behagen, Vic Kelly and Ralph

Beard said the conference is also looking at television's effect on ticket sales.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Ken Gray, former offensive guard for the St. Louis Cardinals football team, Wednesday filed suit against the Cardinals seeking $1,795,000 in damages for alleged breach of contract and alleged use of drugs on him without his consent.

Gray claims the team owes him $45,000 in wages because the contract was to run until May 1, 1971, and was void even if he was unable to play because of injuries.

Gray was released last August after 12 years with the club. The club said he was released because of bad knees, however, he later played for the Houston Oilers.

In addition, the suit contends that "potent, harmful, illegal and dangerous" drugs were administered to Gray without his consent. The suit names sodium pentobarbital, dextro amphetamine sulphate, chlorpromazine hydrochloride and carbromal as the drugs.

Gray also alleged use of drugs on him without his consent.

The suit said, "These drugs were knowingly and intentionally given to the plaintiff not for medical reasons but for the purpose of stimulating and exciting his mind and body so that he would perform more violently as a professional football player for the Cardinals."

contract if East holds the ace of clubs.

The second is to lead a club from dummy and play East for that same ace of clubs.

The third is to assume that West holds the ace of clubs and East the queen of hearts, but that West will only have two clubs so the ace will have to be played if South just plays two low clubs.

Any one of these gambles might work. If South chooses the right one he will be in one of those lucky streaks. If South is a winning bridge player he will take the sure thing play.

He will win the second trump in dummy and ruff a diamond. Next will come three rounds of hearts, with the third round ruffed in dummy. Then South will lead dummy's last diamond and discard a low club from his hand. West will score a surprise diamond trick, but South will make his contract. West will either have to play a club or give South a ruff in dummy and discard a club from his own hand.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two diamonds your partner has bid two hearts over your one spade. What do you do now?

Answer Tomorrow

We know a philosophical gambler who feels that you should gamble some every day. Otherwise, you might get into a streak of good luck and never know it.

We aren't going to go into the merits and demerits of this theory except to point out that the winning bridge player avoids gambling any time he has a sure thing play.

South ruffs the second round of diamonds and draws trumps. At this point he has three ways to gamble with his contract. The first is to lead a heart toward dummy and finesse the jack. If it works he can discard one of dummy's clubs on the king of hearts and be sure of 10 tricks. If the finesse loses he will still make his

IT HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED that women in general find it harder to quit smoking than do men... AMONG the underwater treasures to be found off the African coast, it's said, are tons of ivory elephant tusks... WHAAT FEW PEOPLE realize it's perfectly legal to change your name without going to court.

DO YOU FEEL fairly chipper when you first get up in the morning? Or does it take you awhile to get into gear? Nevermind, it's your own business. Personally, however, don't mind mentioning I'm a pretty slow starter. Most men are, it turns out. The science boys now say far more women than men get up with an optimistic bounce, eager to have at it. In office jobs, it's known, women tend to do their best work before noon, men after.

HERE'S to the years of 1835 and 1836, the only time in American history when the U.S. Treasury had enough cash on hand to pay all the Government's debts... clink!... BESIDES proceed, succeed and exceed, what other words come to mind that end in "ceed"? None? No wonder. There aren't any others, says our Language man.

WHY IT SHOULD TAKE 32 months to get an ordinary patent on a new invention is a mystery, but that's average... AM ASKED HOW many persons first reported missing turn out to be the victims of murder. Just about one in 3,000... ONE MORE SPOT where the women outnumber the men by an enormous margin now is East Germany.

ANOTHER THING the researchers are trying to figure out, they say, is why breast cancer is so much more common among women who have a lot of money than among women who don't. That's not so baffling, thought I. Rich women are not as inclined as poor women to breast-feed their infants. But that's not the answer, evidently. In surveys confined exclusively to women who never have breast-fed, the incidence of such cancers is still much greater among the rich than among the poor. So study continues.

CUSTOMER SERVICE—Q. "What's your Name Game man say about a Dennis?" A. All he knows about "Dennis" is it's "sinned" spelled backwards... Q. "How long would it take you to get sunburned on the moon?" A. Maybe one minute. That is, if you can pick up a good sunburn in as little as 50 minutes here.

METHUEN is what the ancient Germans called the mead they made from honey. A highly intoxicating beverage, it was. Newlyweds customarily drank it daily during the first 30 days of their marriage. And some theorists contend that's why we eat that time the honeymoon. Most fanciful.
