New safeguards asked for U.S. consumers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon asked Congress today for legislation empowering the government to ban hazardous consumer products, regulate warranties and quickly stop allegedly deceptive advertising and sales practices.

In a consumer message to Capitol Hill, Nixon proposed federal standards for testing of certain products so buyers would know whether an item met federal standards.

Nixon also asked for a study aimed at creating a "small claims" system that would arbitrate disputes between a consumer and a store or manufacturer. But he maintained his opposition to a Democratic proposal under which buyers could band together in "class action" lawsuits.

Nixon said he would propose a federal consumer advocacy function among existing departments to take the buyer's side in arguments before regulatory agencies. Democrats have proposed order reinforcing the powers of the White House consumer affairs office, headed by Virginia H. Knauer.

Although broader than his own consumer proposals that foundered in Congress last year, Nixon's message appeared certain to spark a new battle with congressional Democrats who have introduced he would issue an executive order reinforcing the powers of the White House consumer affairs office, headed by Virginia H. Knauer.

Although broader than his own consumer proposals that foundered in Congress last year, Nixon's message appeared certain to spark a new battle with congressional Democrats who have introduced consumer legislation they consider much stronger than the President's.

"In today's market place," Nixon said, "the consumer often finds himself confronted with what seems an impenetrable complexity in many of our consumer goods. In the advertising claims that surround them, the merchandising methods that purvey them and the means available to conceal their quality.

"The result is a degree of confusion that often confounds the unwary, and too easily can be made to favor the unscrupulous," Nixon said. "I believe new safeguards are needed, both to protect the consumer and to reward the responsible businessman."

Lanting sees session lasting 60-65 days

BOISE (Special to the Times News) — Idaho House Speaker William Lanting, R-Twin Falls, told members of the South Idaho Chamber of Commerce Tuesday the first legislative session is proceeding "on schedule."

He said the legislators may be able to adjourn at or near the 60 day scheduled length.

He said, however, legislators probably will have to spend another 20 days in special session to consider redistricting and reapportionment.

Lanting said the legislature had "made up its collective mind" on many of the major issues, even though the legislation has not yet been approved.

For instance, Lanting said, the budget can be predicted within about $2 million.

"The budget is going to be tight. There is not going to be a tax increase," he said.

Education, Lanting said, "won't get much more than the status quo."

He said speculation on the length of the legislative session was risky because of the rapid progress of the "heavier legislation" the session may last between 60 and 65 days. His estimate is for a much shorter session than other legislative leaders have estimated.

He said the special session for redrawing legislative and congressional districts could be much more difficult to resolve than past redistricting efforts.

For example, he said, Cassia County now has a population of about 3,000 in excess of what is needed for a legislative district.

Lanting said it would be difficult to determine who should be taken from the Cassia district. He said reshaping one district then forces the redistricting of its neighbors clear to the state line.

He said the special session could either be called immediately after the regular adjournment or could be called into session after a pause of several weeks.

Employer cost may jump 35%

BOISE (Special to the Times News) — Rep. Jack D. Claiborn, R-Twin Falls, told representatives of the South Idaho Chamber of Commerce here Tuesday a proposed revision of the state workmen's compensation law will increase employers' costs by about 35 per cent.

He said studies received by the Idaho House Affairs Committee, of which he is a member, show the increase will be 35 per cent above last year's — not counting any inflationary increases in medical care costs.

He told the Times-News following the meeting he and many legislators feel the proposed state program is better than being forced to comply with federal workmen's compensation standards.

Claiborn said costs under the federal program could be up to 300 per cent higher than the current state program.

He said because of the more costly federal alternative the state bill's chances are "pretty good."

"An injured person just requires more protection now," he said.

He said the state plan has received backing by representatives of both employers and employees. He said one source of objection had been removed — a provision which would have brought newspaper boys under provisions of the act. That section had been opposed by newspapers arguing it would undermine the subcontractor relationship between the paper and carrier.

Identity confirmed

GOODING — The body found in a stream near Hagerman Sunday was positively identified Tuesday afternoon as that of Mrs. Claire Mickelson, 65, Eugene, Ore., Sheriff Earl Brown said today.

He said the identification was made by comparing dental charts of Mrs. Mickelson with X rays taken of the teeth on the woman's body.

Mrs. Mickelson disappeared March 6, 1970. Her car was found the next day at Blackfoot and her purse was later found in the Gooding area.

Oregon authorities have a suspect in connection with the disappearance of the woman, the sheriff said. His office will continue the investigation however, until Oregon officials close the case. He said he did not know when any Oregon officers will arrive here.

Reds blast Viet bases

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist troops staged a rocket attack tonight on Quang Tri, the major staging and supply base for the South Vietnamese strike into Laos. The U.S. Command also reported the loss of three more American helicopters in Laos and the deaths of 11 crewmen, heaviest one-day toll of the Laotian operation.

The South Vietnamese incursion into Laos to cut the Ho Chi Minh supply trails remained stalled 18 to 17 miles inside the border, and front dispatches reported heavy rocket attacks had resumed on an isolated ARVN paratroop unit 15 miles inside Laos.

The U.S. Command so far has reported the loss of 29 helicopters with 40 Americans killed, 25 wounded and 15 missing since the incursion into Laos began Feb. 8. Correspondents in forward posts put the helicopter loss at 72 or more over Laos and South Vietnam.

Officially, despite heavy losses, the South Vietnamese incursion has been described as a "success" since it disrupted Communist supply lines. Today the U.S. Command said American air strikes had killed more than 500 North Vietnamese and destroyed 900 tons of ammunition plus vast quantities of other supplies.

N.S. officials also disclosed new air strikes against missile sites in North Vietnam Tuesday night and today.

No transfer due

BOISE (Special to the Times News) — The chairman of the Idaho Senate Finance Committee of the legislature told members of the South Idaho Chamber of Commerce here Tuesday the senate would not permit major transfers of money from the permanent building fund.

In answer to a question from Dr. James L. Taylor, president of the chamber group, Sen. Richard S. High, R-Twin Falls, said transferring money from the building fund would jeopardize projects such as the College of Southern Idaho's planned vocational building.

He said the proposal to take money from the building fund had thrown building projects such as the one at CSI into doubt.

Senator High said a number of other legislators have joined him in opposing the transfers.

Rabbits on way to Italy fields

The rabbits travel to Salt Lake City by truck, air liner to New York City for a change of planes, and then to Milan — a trip that takes less than three days, according to Nereo Battistuzzi, importer of live rabbits with his uncle, Giulio Battistuzzi.

The rabbits cost the Battistuzzi at least $12 apiece by the time they get to Italy, considering air and truck freight as well as the cost of buying them locally. The Battistuzzi pay $1.50 apiece for each live jackrabbit, or $1.80 apiece in lots of 100 or more delivered at one time. Freight costs average $1.33 per pound, including the wooden crates which weigh 37 pounds each when fully loaded with rabbits. Each crate, manufactured locally, holds six rabbits in individual compartments. Each rabbit is given a bed of greenery for its trip, and provided with food and soaked oats for water, plus a carrot to nibble on. The rabbits seem to be surviving the long trip in good shape, the Battistuzzi said.

About 1,000 rabbits have been shipped from Twin Falls since the project started, and several hundred more had been collected by Tuesday afternoon, waiting for their crates to be built. The rabbits are carefully fed and held at a warehouse on Audubon Avenue East, preparatory to shipping.

The Battistuzzi said they plan to collect "at least 80,000 rabbits" from the Magic Valley area and an equal number or more from Mud Lake, near Idaho Falls.

Meet slows trial

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—My Lai court-martial of Lt. William L. Calley Jr. was delayed for more than an hour today under mysterious circumstances in which the judge was closeted separately with each of the jurors.

The one colonel, four majors and one captain constituting the court panel were escorted one by one into the judge's chambers by Military Police.

Callay, who is charged with the premeditated murder of 102 civilians at the South Vietnamese village of My Lai in 1968, was present with his defense attorneys and the prosecutors during the meetings.

Newsmen were not permitted in the section of the courthouse corridor near the chambers of Col. Reid W. Kennedy, the military judge.

The meetings broke up after more than half an hour, and Kennedy sent out word that the trial session, scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. EST, would start some time after 10 with Calley undergoing cross-examination.

The difficulty apparently began at the close of Tuesday's session when one juror, Maj. Charles C. McIntosh, 38, of Denora, Pa., went into a closed session with the judge.

Prison escapee nabbed

FULLERTON, Calif. (UPI)—A San Quentin prison escapee was captured by a laundry owner Tuesday after kidnaping a policeman's wife and her children and another woman and forcing them on a flight across nearly half the length of California.

The kidnap victims, all abducted in the Northern California city of Novato near San Quentin before the fugitive's 13-hour flight south, were released unharmed along the way.

The escapee, Jimmy Dee Harvey, 24, barefoot and clad in a prison uniform, was armed with a pair of scissors believed taken from the prison barber shop where he worked. Harvey, sentenced for auto theft, was to have been paroled in August.

"The 13 hours were the most frightening of my life," said Mrs. Cheryl Jean Smith, 23, who was released by the suspect in Anaheim five hours after the other woman and her children were freed in the Central California town of Bakersfield.

"A couple of times I felt a little scared. He had a pair of scissors ... he made a gesture with them toward the children as if to tell me to use common sense."

Mrs. Joyce Elaine Stansfield, 30, and her two children, Robert, 6, and 4-month-old Suzanne, were released after she promised not to notify authorities for three hours. She kept the promise.

Mrs. Stansfield was unable to answer reporters' questions because of a sore throat and a severe case of laryngitis. Her husband, Gary Stansfield, a Novato policeman, spoke in her behalf. "My wife has lost her voice because she was trying to talk all night and partly because of her emotional experience."

He explained she tried to carry on a continuous conversation with the kidnaper to keep from alarming the children and to try to persuade him to release them unharmed.

Shortly after Mrs. Smith's release, the vehicle Harvey was driving was sighted in nearby Fullerton where his common-law wife lived. Harvey headed for her home where staked-out detectives surprised him. They chased him for nearly three miles at speeds up to 100-miles per hour, firing one shot through his rear windshield. He was not hit.

Harvey drove into a shopping center parking lot at high speed, smashed into a parked car and fled on foot into a laundry. There, owner Herb Bordon, 31, tackled the suspect. "I had him so tight he couldn't do anything. He didn't say much except 'Let me go' and then he tried to bite my arm," said Bordon. Seconds later police arrived and subdued Harvey, who was "violent and kicking."

Total pullout denied

By United Press International Israel said today it will formally refuse total withdrawal from Arab territories when it replies to Egyptian peace proposals.

A statement issued by Prime Minister Golda Meir's office said reports the reply would not reject complete withdrawal were "groundless."

In Amman, Foreign Minister Abdullah Salah said Jordan will consider recognizing Israel if there is a total withdrawal from Arab lands.

The Israeli cabinet announced Sunday that Israel would not withdraw to the boundaries it had prior to the 1967 Middle East war, but political sources in Jerusalem had said there would be no specific reference to this in the formal reply to be submitted to the U.N. peace envoy Gunnar V. Jarring.

The prime minister's office said today "The draft of Israel's reply to the Egyptian proposals which were submitted through Dr. Jarring contains the government's decision as reported in its official communiqué, i.e., that Israel will not return to the armistice lines of June 4, 1967."

The Israeli cabinet directed Mrs. Meir and Foreign Minister Abba Eban Sunday to draft a reply to Egyptian peace proposals.

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram said Egypt did not consider the Israeli cabinet statement Sunday to be an official reply and was awaiting Israel's reply to Jarring.

Set goals, teachers told

BOISE (UPI) — Despite contentions the state cannot afford it, the House approved 35-33 Tuesday legislation requiring the schools to tell the parents just what they intend to teach their children.

"If you want to know why kids fall in school...it's because we don't tell them specifically, precisely what it is they are required to learn," Rep. Larry Looney, D-Coeur d'Alene, told the House.

By requiring teachers to put in writing and send to the parents "measurable goals" of their courses, and then report on them later, he said, the legislature will make schools more responsible and parents "more involved."

As written, the bill requires all school districts to comply by Sept. 1, 1972, or lose some of their state money until they do. Looney, an educator in private life, pointed out the state spends $100 million a year on education and that the schools

"need to be in the position to show the public somewhere down the line that another dollar's worth of support is another dollar's worth of learning."

Rep. Helen McKinney, R-Salmon, also an educator, said she felt the measure could become "a sifter." She said there are many paths to learning and that this bill could destroy a teacher's creativity.

But Rep. Ed Hedges, R-Boise, drawing on a nautical analogy, urged the House to approve the bill.

"If you kick a ship off the dock at San Francisco without a navigator and proper instrumentation you'll be very lucky to get out of the harbor let alone get to Tokyo," Hedges said.

Rep. Paul Worthen, R-Boise, said if any teacher or school board objects to provisions of this bill "they do not know what they are doing."

Saying the bill or one like it probably will pass someday, Rep. Don Bronnan, D-Pocatello, urged the House to wait a while.

He said it poses many new and difficult problems, among them:

— Not all educational progress can be measured as required in this bill.

— There is insufficient time for districts to comply with the legislative mandate to institute the program.

— It would cost a large sum of money to implement the bill at a time when schools are already in a financial squeeze.

In Pocatello's district alone, he contended, this bill would cost $87,000 to implement. "What about the entire state of Idaho?" he asked.

Rep. Lester Hartvigsen, D-Malad, pointed out the legislature already is searching for funds to keep the schools open while at the same time it is trying to implement a kindergarten program.

"I see no reason to enter into a crash program at this time that we don't know we have money to pay for," Hartvigsen said.

But Rep. Robert Haakenson, D-Coeur d'Alene, another educator, said he knew what the basic problem of the bill was — the teachers.

"The problem is that some of these people in education have not learned what they are supposed to be doing," Haakenson said.

Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs, said he was in agreement with the philosophy behind the bill but said he was concerned about putting an additional burden on the school districts.

Wage rate rule eased

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, proclaiming an emergency in the construction industry, has suspended a depression-era law originally enacted to prevent pay-cutting in the building trades. He stopped short, however, of imposing a widely rumored freeze on construction wages and prices.

The President's action was the mildest of the anti-inflation alternatives available to him. It means federal or federally assisted contracts let from now on will not require contractors to pay "prevailing" local wage rates to plumbers, carpenters and other construction workers. Prevailing wage rates usually are the highest union-negotiated scale in the area involved.

It may be months before the action starts showing up at the paycheck level, but criticism from organized labor was immediate. AFL-CIO President George Meany said "it is an open invitation to unscrupulous employers to exploit workers by competitive undermining of fair wages and labor standards."

"We consider it unfair. We resent it. We think construction workers do not deserve to be treated in an arbitrary, one-sided fashion," Meany added. Edward J. Carrough, president of the Sheet Metal Workers Union, predicted the nation's 3.5 million construction workers would be "angry as hell."

Of the $90 billion worth of construction slated this year, $25 billion involved federal or federally assisted funds and was covered by the now suspended Davis-Bacon Act of 1931. It was not known how much of the $25 billion already was contracted for.

Existing contracts will not be changed, and ones for which bids have already been submitted will have to be re-bid. And although bidders bidding on government work are now freed of the legal wage requirement, many still will have to pay going wage rates if they hope to hire workers.

Road fund accounting bill loses

BOISE (UPI) — House members beat down 23-39 Tuesday an attempt to amend a bill requiring cities, counties and highway districts to account for how they spend highway user funds.

Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, moved unsuccessfully to put the measure into committee of the whole to require the State Highway Department also to account for how it spends highway user funds.

The bill was killed in the House Monday and then revived for further consideration.

Church in repeal bid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, Tuesday introduced a joint congressional resolution to repeal the Formosa Resolution of 1955 which gives the President the authority to involve American forces in a conflict between Nationalist and Communist China.

Church said repeal of the resolution would restore to Congress participation in any decision committing U.S. forces to a war with China in the Formosa Straits.

Revenue proposal defeated

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate killed 15-18 Tuesday another of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' revenue proposals which the governor said would bring $454,000 to the general fund for fiscal year 1972.

But Sen. William Crutcher, D-Orofino, said he would ask for reconsideration of the measure which would have disallowed the 50 per cent capital gains tax for corporations.

Sen. Neil Miller, D-Blackfoot, floor sponsor of the measure, said the corporations affected by the bill would be able to increase their federal income tax deductions.

Nominated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Tuesday nominated Lt. Gen. Raymond G. Davis for four-star rank and assignment as assistant commandant of the Marine Corps to succeed retired Gen. Louis W. Walt. Davis won the Medal of Honor as a battalion commander in the Korean War and holds every other U.S. medal for valor.

Former employe attacks actress

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Katharine Hepburn was attacked and bitten early today by a hammer-swinging woman who had been hiding in a closet in the home of Miss Hepburn's father, police said.

Miss Hepburn, who opened in the lead role in "Coco" at Hartford's Bushnell Auditorium Tuesday night, was treated for an injured finger at Hartford Hospital and released.

Police arrested Louella G. West, 55, of Richmond, Va.,

whom they said was a "recently discharged employe" of Miss Hepburn.

Miss Hepburn, appearing for the first time in her hometown, told officials the woman came at her with a hammer but apparently did not strike her, then bit her when the actress' brother tried to interfere. The woman was held on $10,000 bond charged with burglary with personal violence. She was to be arraigned later today.

New power project on Snake approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Federal Power Commission examiner recommended Tuesday a license be granted to build a $275.8 million dam and hydroelectric project on the Snake River between Idaho and Oregon.

But FPC Examiner William C. Levy, in a decision subject to review by the commission, said construction should not begin until 1975.

FPC concurrence in the decision would permit Pacific Northwest Power Co., Portland, Ore., and the Washington Public Power Supply System, Kennewick, Wash., to build the two dams at the Mountain Sheep and Pleasant Valley dam sites above the confluence of the Snake River with the Salmon River.

In recommending construction not start until Sept. 11, 1975, Levy said this would give time for Congress to determine whether the middle Snake should be designated as a scenic river under the 1968 Wild and Scenic Rivers Act. Such a designation would permanently bar construction of a dam in the area.

The proposed project would produce 1,640,000 kilowatts of power.

Budget fronts drawn

BOISE (UPI) — One day before appropriations measures were due to be introduced — a deadline which will be missed — Idaho's legislators drew up the lines for the battle of the budget.

The co-chairmen of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee said the bills would not be ready until late this week or early next week.

Democrats meeting in a joint House-Senate caucus Tuesday appeared to favor a $123 million to $124 million level of general fund expenditures for fiscal year 1972.

But Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, pegged the figure at somewhere between $121 million and $122 million.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus proposed a general fund budget of $128.1 million, but since then the lawmakers have killed three of his revenue proposals: a $2.3 million diversion of sales tax monies from the counties, a $1.5 million transfer from the permanent building fund to the general fund, and a $454,000 change in corporate taxing.

But High said there were two other factors which would change the budget picture.

He said in his revenue predictions Andrus said approximately $4.5 million could be saved from the present biennium's appropriations for use in the next fiscal year by tightening up on state expenditures. High said the figure will probably be closer to $3 million.

In addition, High said, Andrus' budget failed to include $900,000 in legislative funds which have already been transferred for use in the next fiscal year and over $1 million in supplemental requests.

Senate Majority Leader Wayne Kidwell, R-Boise, concurred with High's figure and predicted "generally speaking" the caucus would go along with the final appropriations outlined by the joint committee.

But Sen. William Crutcher, D-Orofino, Democratic caucus chairman, said it was his feeling "the Democratic caucus will support the governors' proposed budget — minus what has fallen up to this point."

Crutcher said the final general fund level would be between $123 million and $124 million.

The co-chairmen of the joint committee, which has lately been holding its closed-door sessions into the evening hours, admitted the bills would not be ready by the 4th legislative day.

High said the committee hoped to finish its deliberations by Saturday night.

Rep. Jenkin Palmer, R-Malad, said another week would be necessary, "around the 50th day." Palmer said the main problem was that members of the committee are "either in caucus or there in legislative business on the floor."

Bookkeep bill gets new look

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate reconsidered and sent to the 14th order for amendment Tuesday a bill which would take a portion of dedicated funds to give to the state to pay for bookkeeping costs.

The original measure — which would have taken a flat five per cent of each fund — was killed 10-24 Monday after some legislators argued the move would tax commodity growers for the benefit of the general fund.

But Sen. C. C. "Cy" Chase, D-St. Maries, said some senators had requested another look at the bill, possibly to amend it to change the percentage.

The senators voted 19-13 to reconsider, then 20-13 to place the legislation on the amendment order.

Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert, objected, saying, "It's late in the session. This was a bad bill yesterday, it's a bad bill today."

Black Progress

The blacks in America have their own "silent majority" and it has been forging a quiet revolution of marked progress despite the handicap of a militant handful bent on destruction.

A survey by Sociologist Gary Marx discovered eight out of ten Negroes feel that things are getting better for them and analysis of their financial gains and job upgrading proves they are eminently correct.

The most casual look around any city shows evidence of the movement of blacks into jobs once rarely available to them. In fact, between 1957 and 1969, Negro clerical workers increased from 400,000 to more than a million. Black craftsmen and foremen virtually doubled from 380,000 to 700,000.

Even the militants have quieted down in face of the great gains that have been made during the last few years and no one is happier about the decline in violence than the majority of blacks, who have been among those most hurt by riots and arson.

Negro impatience with the rate of progress is fostered by the militants and civil rights leaders although it is obvious that education and training take time and must precede progress to more highly skilled jobs. These changes are rapidly taking place and the number of Negroes employed as farm laborers and household help have declined by hundreds of thousands.

The result has been that while only ten per cent of Negroes earned $8,000 or more a year in 1957, the number had risen to 32 per cent in 1968 and in the North and West the percentage was 43 per cent of the total Negro population.

Almost anywhere else in the world such progress would rate as sensational.

With Negroes representing about 11 per cent of the labor force, they account for 6.8 per cent of the building-trades locals and 12.4 per cent of non-construction union locals.

Some unions are far behind the trend, Sheet Metal Workers reporting only six-tenths of one per cent and Plumbers only eight-tenths of one per cent.

During the past dozen years a new generation of blacks has come into the labor market, better equipped than their parents for the competition for better jobs.

Most of them prefer economic progress to the profitless risks of violent tactics, which have disrupted progress.

WASHINGTON — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's characteristically hardbitten pitch for passage of revenue-sharing continued at a Republican fund-raiser in Richmond last week in the face of backstage requests from several governors and mayors that he be quietly relieved of this duty.

Most outspoken of these please came from liberal Republican Gov. Francis Sargent of Massachusetts, assigned by the Administration to round up revenue-sharing votes from Northeast states Congressmen. Sargent bluntly informed a Treasury official that Agnew, because of his hard-partisan reputation and style, would lose more votes than he wins for revenue-sharing in Congress. Other governors and mayors have relayed similar sentiments to the White House. Senior aides at the White House, who originally handed Agnew his revenue-sharing mission, were not moved. They all and speculate that some Republicans would be criticizing the Vice President if he were NOT coming on strong for the President's pet project of 1971.

Besides, revenue-sharing is regarded by the White House as the last, best vehicle to carry the Vice President toward a more positive image, which may be essential to keep him from being bumped off the 1972 ticket. Presidential aides feel Agnew, for ideological reasons, has shied away from White House plans for him to also plug Mr. Nixon's health insurance plan, a more distinctly liberal proposal.

When Rep. Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey of California was purged from the program of the annual Young Republican leadership training school here last week, it marked the second time within a year that the "Republican dove" had been abruptly cancelled out of a Republican-sponsored youth meeting.

At the eleventh hour last August, McCloskey was removed from a forum at Irvine, Calif., run by the White House Conference on Youth. The avowed reason was the sudden discovery that McCloskey was up for reelection and, therefore, should not appear. However, McCloskey suspected reasons of ideology.

There was no room for doubt why the handsome 43-year-old ex-Marine hero was removed from heading a panel on the youth vote; his sizzling speech at Stanford Feb. 13 which bronched the subject of impeaching President Nixon because of his Laos policy.

THE WAY IT WAS

A Long Ways Back

FEBRUARY 21, 1929 JEROME — The Twin Falls Bruins took the long end of a basketball game here tonight by defeating the local high school boys 19 to 9. Al Westergren, Twin Falls, was referee and high point scorer for Twin Falls with 8 was Taylor.

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Latter Day Saints Relief Society at a social meeting Tuesday afternoon, were addressed by Mrs. P.W. McRobert who gave a review of the play "What Every Woman Knows."

At the Idaho Theater all was set for the initial showing of Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool." It was the first talkie. The grand opening of the "seeing and hearing" picture was set for February 22 and prices were raised for the event. Matinee prices were 10 and 40 cents and evening prices 15 and 50 cents.

HAZELTON — Funeral services for Mrs. H.O. Freeman, pioneer resident, will be held at the Grossman Chapel in Twin Falls at 1 p.m. on Friday. Services will be under the auspices of the Seventh Day Adventist Church and burial will be in the Twin Falls Cemetery.

Frank Henry and Glenn Whitney have been confined to their homes with influenza.

BURLEY — Burley businessmen today were on record as retaining the state highway as now routed over the Old Oregon Trail. BERRY'S WORLD

The Transient

Of the estimated four million—more or less — unemployed in the United States today, less than half are classified as belonging to the ranks of the transient workers, some of whom are usually employed at certain seasons and others are "drifters" who seldom hold one job for more than a brief period.

That there are fewer than two million transient workers in the U.S. today points up a remarkable change from the former pattern of industry. In an era when the total work force was less than half its present size, a much larger number of workers subscribed to the theory that to stay in one job long was deleterious to ambition and tended to make life dull and work routine.

Those with trades and others of no particular occupation migrated from state to state and coast to coast, seeing the scenery as they worked. Some seemed never to have difficulty in landing jobs, others fell upon occasional parlous days.

Various reasons are advanced for the decline in the ranks of transient workers. The one most often mentioned has to do with the more intricate processes of getting on a payroll. Business generally frowns upon a large labor turnover and seeks workers who will remain for lengthy periods, bookkeeping, taxes, etc., being what they are.

RAY CROMLEY

The China Army

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Intervening in Laos would not be easy for Red China.

This reporter has word from Hong Kong contacts of intense covert dissent among Red Chinese army officers in South China, of necessity the stepping-off point for any movement into Laos.

The Red Eagles, Petrels, Fighting Eagles, World Freedom Party are secret-fueled South China anti-Maoist sabotage-propaganda units drawing on 13-to-26 year-olds but backed surreptitiously by Red army officers, some of general rank. These officers are attempting to tighten their hold on the local government. They would welcome orders for a wartime footing in the South China region but not orders to march south, leaving control with civilians.

In fact, through much of China, the Red army's political hold on the countryside is so slim, its struggle with old party members "peasants" and other groups so bitter, and differences of opinion so strong within the upper echelon officer ranks, that major military shifts become very important political problems.

The situation becomes especially difficult when a foreign adventure is involved which includes a confrontation with the United States. Top Chinese military men remember Korea. The high-level internal confrontation after Korea was so serious that Defense Minister Peng Teh-huai was purged and Lin Piao put in this place to bring the army under control.

The decision was made, over the opposition of some very experienced and influential army generals, that the Chinese Red army would not modernize on Soviet or U.S. lines except (to overemphasize) for some nuclear weapons and an improved air and submarine force.

As a result, the army is especially weak in long-range transport and logistics generally, except on interior lines in China itself. Only with the greatest difficulty could the army mount a sustained conventional operation 300 miles outside China. Southern Laos is 400 to 450 miles distant.

But there is one thing that Mao could do easily and with maximum effect. He could move a force from South China just across the border into northern Laos, where Chinese engineers have been building a military highway for the last six years. This short move would have a major psychological pay-off in the United States. It would "threaten" Laos and Thailand. Mao could also send a limited number of advisers south for an ever greater psychological effect. These steps would cost him little.

ANDREW TULLY

One Thing

WASHINGTON — One thing, unhappily, is for sure concerning the upcoming trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and five anti-war colleagues on kidnap-sabotage charges. It is that the proceedings will be conducted in an atmosphere of nasty innuendoes.

Already, suspicions have been circulated in print that the Federal government was "forced" to indict Berrigan and Co. for allegedly plotting to kidnap White House aide Henry Kissinger and blow up heating tunnels serving Federal buildings here. The suggestion is made that the indictments are a vindication of FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover, who a couple of months ago had told a Congressional committee about the "plot."

For the moment that such commentary implies the Berrigan Six are guilty before trial, although that is an ugly thing to let pass even momentarily. What is almost incredibly damaging is that the suspicions of government motives ignore the methods of due process.

The government, as such, did not indict the Berrigan Six. Neither did Hoover nor Atty. Gen. John Mitchell nor any other Federal or local law enforcement official. The Six were indicted by a Federal grand jury in Harrisburg, Pa., composed of plain citizens, who heard the evidence of government witnesses and concluded there was probable cause to find out, in a public trial, whether the suspects were guilty or innocent.

It is a fact, however, that the Justice Department pressed for indictments — AFTER Hoover let the cat out of the bag on Capitol Hill. Justice probably would have sought indictments anyway; after all the grand jury alleges 22 "overt acts" by the defendants in furtherance of the conspiracy. What makes things awkward, to say the least, is that the indictments followed Hoover's announcement that his agents had "learned" that something called the East Coast Conspiracy to Save Lives was planning the kidnap-sabotage operation.

When Hoover's testimony hit the headlines, the Berrigan Six quite properly demanded that if the FBI boss had evidence of such a conspiracy somebody should be indicted. The indictments were returned Jan. 13. Predictably, the Six and their camp followers said the government did it just to protect Hoover's integrity, to save him from looking foolish.

Thus, whether the public wills it or not, the trial of the Six already has become a political thing. We are told by the defense that the suspects are being persecuted for their political beliefs and eyes for their religious affiliations. The suspicion is circulated that the government had to move after Hoover's testimony, otherwise his position as the nation's No. 1 cop would have become untenable. There are even whispers that the government's decision to press for indictments was made at the highest level — meaning the White House.

That last one is hard to swallow. Whatever his other qualities, Richard Nixon is a political animal, and nobody has to tell him to keep hands off any case that involves the clergy of any denomination. The rights and wrongs aside, no President would go out of his way to upset a huge bloc of voters. It seems to me the height of frivolity to suggest the Berrigans speak for the country's 45-million Catholics, but politicians take no chances.

MR. SPECTATOR

So You Feel Poor?

Do you pay income tax? Well, don't let it throw you because now you are joined by none other than Queen Juliana of the Netherlands.

Scanning the interesting pages of the Holland Herald the other day (it's printed in the vicinity of Amsterdam) we came across this income tax article involving the Queen.

The Dutch Parliament, it seems, had to decide if a tax-free income of $1.25 million is fit for a Queen. The Queen is said to have the highest annual income of any European head of state.

From now on, however, her salary, paid out of the treasury, will be cut to $208,300. Before you start feeling sorry for her, let us hasten to point out she will probably be better off in the long run.

Out of her original salary she had to pay things like maintenance of buildings, the cost of horses and coaches, State visits, official receptions and so forth. The new reduction in her salary is offset by an arrangement whereby the State will pay for all these expenses.

Under the new system the Dutch Royal Family will have to pay income and property tax just like anyone else. But the state will take another financial commitment off the Queen's shoulders by paying for the personnel in her service with exception of 22 court officials who receive their instructions from the Queen personally. Now her income will fluctuate like those of other citizens.

Under the new setup there will be other changes. The tax-free payment to Prince Bernhard will be maintained at $131,940 a year, that of Crown Princess Beatrix will be increased from $83,300 to $125,000 and that of her husband Prince Claus raised from $83,300 to $104,160.

So, as you trot down to the accountant this year or mail in your own returns after doing your own figuring, just remember that the Queen is in the same spot you are in. She will be paying income tax.

But Mr. Spectator points out — just for the fun of it, that the tax-free salaries of the two Princes and the Princess are not to be sneezed at!

STRAY DOG DEPT.

Folks at 970 Beverly Circle in Twin Falls — their telephone is 733-7679 — have acquired a stray German Shepherd female puppy that has come in to live with them. They must get rid of the animal and, hopefully, they hope the owner will read this and give them a call or drop around.

Committee misses budget deadline

BOISE (UPI)—Members of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee will be unable to meet the deadline imposed by law for submitting a state budget for the next fiscal year, a spokesman said Tuesday. Rep. Jenkin L. Palmer, R-

Malad, co-chairman of the joint committee, said it will take the group nearly another week to come up with a general fund budget for the lawmakers to consider.

That was the 44th legislative day and by law the joint committee is supposed to come forth with a budget by the 45th day. Palmer said no budget will be forthcoming until "around the 50th day."

"We're not going to make it," Palmer said when asked about the deadline. "We have a hang up getting together with the joint committee."

"The members are either in caucus or there is legislative business on the floor. There are so many other committee assignments going on around here."

"There are morning hearings, night hearings," Palmer said. Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, a Democrat, has proposed a general fund budget of $128.1 million for the next fiscal year. Republicans control both houses of the legislature and many leaders among these have said the budget will be less than that.

Most estimates put the size of the budget—when it finally is hammered out by the joint committee—between $120 and $123 million. Palmer said one of the problems confronting the committee is an "information explosion" which has enabled the committee to make more intelligent decisions but at the cost of much more time. He said the committee is working very closely with Dr. Sidney Duncombe, a University of Idaho professor who is Andrus' special budget adviser.

"We have gone back and requested from Dr. Duncombe a minimum balance each agency can live with," Palmer said, adding the joint committee is looking at a "bare bones budget" for most general fund agencies.

"He's working night and day and he's just keeping ahead of the committee by hours," Palmer said. The joint committee does not want to cut the agency request by arbitrary percentages. But he said slashes must be made and the joint committee is attempting to make them in such a way as to wreck the least havoc with the agency administrative operations.

"We've had a multitude of figures we've never had before," Palmer said. "It takes 30 minutes to review one budget that will be only $40,000 or $50,000."

He pointed out that health, education and welfare make up approximately 85 per cent of the budget. To do justice to these areas, he said, the committee must chop away at the budgets of the other agencies of state government—which spend only 15 per cent of the total general fund budget.

Dr. Duncombe is providing the joint committee with agency spending for the last six months or quarter or this biennium, Palmer said.

Then, the committee is doubling that figure as a possible budget or the agency for the next fiscal year.

"Very often we are staying there," he said.

Boat hits shark, hurts 14 persons

MANILA (UPI)—A hydrofoil-equipped boat jammed with American tourists struck a large shark in Manila Bay Tuesday and the jolt, which brought the craft to an abrupt halt, injured 14 persons.

None of the injured was in serious condition.

At least two of the passengers saw the fish before the vessel hit it. They identified it as a shark.

Thirty of the 44 passengers and three crewmen aboard the 75-foot craft were from the U.S.S. Frederick Wilson, Pacific cruise ship that arrived earlier Tuesday from Hong Kong. The hydrofoil was returning to Manila from a visit to Corregidor, the World War II fortress in Manila Bay, when the collision with the fish occurred.

"It was like hitting a stone wall," said Marshall Ventman of Kennett Square, Pa.

The force of the collision threw most of the passengers to the deck, and it knocked out the hydrofoil's engines. Another inter-island ship, the Dona Florentina, took aboard the injured and carried them to a hospital at the Mobil Oil Co. refinery at Limay, Bataan.

Overtime limits retained

POCATELLO (UPI)—Despite objections the bill would discriminate against women the Senate declined to reconsider legislation Tuesday which would exempt women executives from overtime pay provisions.

The measure was approved 13-10 Monday, but the motion to reconsider met with a 16-16 tie and without a majority the bill could not be debated again.

Sen. Charles Bilyou, D-Pocatello, asking for the reconsideration, said the proposal would "negate the tremendous struggle the women have had in American history to achieve equality with men."

Bilyou expressed fears that any woman could be named an executive and thus be exempted from the eight-hour day, 48-hour work week provisions of the present law.

The first passage through the Panama Canal was made on Aug. 15, 1914.

Pocatello, firemen in accord

POCATELLO (UPI)—City Manager Charles Moss said Tuesday firefighter negotiations which began in January were completed late Monday.

Moss said the contract with the Pocatello Firefighters Union, Local 743, ended about a dozen meetings and added it was the first contract negotiated under legislation passed by the 40th session of the Idaho Legislature.

Moss said the contract must be ratified by local firefighters and will then be presented to the Pocatello City Council at its March 4 meeting.

Some 60 Pocatello firemen will be affected by the contract, which includes longevity pay, wages, conditions of employment and vacation schedules.

This combination, RPO, indicates the vehicle has been repossessed by a lending agency, according to the county assessor's office.

'Cat in Hat' special slated for TV screen in early March

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Dr. Seuss, the fanciful progenitor of the Grinch, Thidwick and Oobleck, strikes again March 10 with his third animated television special.

"The Cat in the Hat," the first Seuss book published for children under the overall name of Beginner Books in 1957, is the title of the special and a tome responsible for teaching hundreds of thousands of youngsters to read their first words.

Seuss in reality is Ted Gelsel, a whimsical man somewhere near 60. He makes his home in La Jolla, Calif., visiting Hollywood rarely.

Gelsel, a graying man with an oblique sense of humor, is among the most humorous men in the arts. Asked how he is able to bridge the chasm between himself and the sand pile set, Gelsel answered, "I don't pay any attention to them."

"Most juvenile authors fail because they talk down to children. I talk to them as equals. I give them one thought at a time, then cut it down and simplify it."

"On a personal basis I have no special rapport with youngsters."

Gelsel's attitudes are distinctly adult. "Before 1957, I couldn't make a living with children's books," he said. "The market wasn't there. But then along came the post-World War II baby boom, and by 1957 there was an enormous market. "The most popular figure in my books (he's written 33) is the cat in 'The Cat in the Hat,' probably because he was the central figure in my first beginners book. He was someone a child could read about by himself."

"The cat doesn't even have a name. I'd chosen him from a word list to rhyme with 'hat.' Actually, he's not a cat at all, but the best cat I could draw."

Seuss and-or Gelsel is no threat to Normal Rockwell as artist or illustrator. His drawings leave little to be desired, however with small fry who have taken to his characters as they have to Disney's.

Anyway, how can you knock the veracity of a Sneeth and a Grinch when no one—save a wretch in the throes of a hangover—has ever seen them. Gelsel's previous video specials, "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" and "Horton Hears a Who," met with tremendous success.

"There will be a fourth CBS Television special next year," Gelsel said. "It hasn't been decided yet which of the books will be chosen as the basis for the show."

"I won't be doing all the drawings. I took one art course in high school and lasted only a single day. My teacher scolded me for turning my drawing upside down."

"I quit after that. Now I find I really can't draw anything except what goes in my books."

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: There is a young woman living next door to us who is in the process of divorcing her husband. She has two beautiful sons, ages 3 and 7.

These children have not been fed properly, Abby. Once when I returned from the market and was putting away the groceries, the older boy asked if he and his brother could please share a carrot. I gave them each a carrot which they devoured like they were starving to death. Since then I give them a good nutritious meal with milk and fresh fruits and vegetables every day.

I know for a fact that they have gone without lunches before I started to feed them. Their dinners consist of hamburgers from the corner drive-in. Their mother has a good job and could feed them properly, but she doesn't.

My husband and I don't mind feeding the boys, but we won't always be living next to them, and the next neighbors may not want to be bothered.

Should I talk to the mother about the boys' nutrition? She is one of those hard, tough women who runs with a motorcycle crowd and may not appreciate my interest.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Talk to her anyway. Don't be critical of her, and don't give her any cause to feel guilty and defensive, and she'll not be resentful. You have nothing to lose and you could help those boys a lot by educating their delinquent mother.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a wife who gives her husband a birthday card with a note enclosed saying, "I owe you a present!"

HURT IN LOUISVILLE

DEAR HURT: It's better than being forgotten.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my sister. Brenda is 12 and I am 14. Our job is doing supper dishes every night. We have a system. I clear off the table and wash, and Brenda wipes and sweeps up. And we both put away. Doesn't that sound fair to you? Well, Brenda always gripes that her job is harder than my job, and she picks a fight, then my mother hears us fighting in the kitchen so she comes in and chases us both out and ends up doing everything herself. Brenda goes out and watches television and I don't even want to be in the same room with her so I go to my bedroom. How can I teach Brenda a lesson?

JILL

DEAR JILL: Since the argument is always over whose job is harder—and you think they're equal, offer to switch jobs with Brenda. And if she still complains, tell her to keep her voice down. Kids have been using this dodge to get out of helping their mothers for years because they know mother would rather do it herself than referee a fight.

DEAR ABBY: Is it ever possible to forgive and forget?

TRYING HARD

DEAR TRYING: Yes. But don't dwell on what it is you're "forgiving,"—or you'll never forget.

A Lovelier You

FASHION, THE KNITTY GRITTY

By Mary Sue Miller

Knit fashions continue to grow—and grow. The newest are fine gauge single knits, cotton knits with silky surfaces, knit denims and polyesters with jacquard and tapestry patterns knitted in. Colors come clear, with black the important exception.

Designing is soft, sometimes even slinky. In the separates group, shrinks have really shrunk. Other tops come close, only sleeves balloon out. Skirts widen to dird and ruffy proportions. Below-knee to above-ankle lengths get the nod. Pants, knickers and short-shorts are right in there.

In the dress department, possibly the first target of spring shoppers, a totally fresh look prevails. Knit dresses have gained distinction and individuality. Just by way of example, there are amazing giant plaid coat dresses, long "tunics" rippling with pleats, rows of fringe circling a late-day dress. All body-toughing.

Therein is the key to wearing... the undertouches. Bras, pantie girdles, the new again all-in-one, slips and petticoats must shape languidly to the figure without show of seam or wrinkle.

It is possible that many a Lovely will have to rethink her lingerie. Her figure, too.

Coughers: silence is golden

NEW YORK, N.Y. — "Silence is golden" according to the old adage, and indeed, oftentimes words uttered in haste would have been better unspoken. Moreover, family and friends of a person with a cold will thank him for applying the excellent preventive medicine of keeping his mouth shut.

It is well known that a cold victim can fill the air with thousands of virus-laden droplets every time he sneezes or coughs. What is not common knowledge is that by merely talking he can infect a healthy person breathing the same air he does.

In addition to keeping quiet, what else can a cold sufferer do to help himself and his fellowman? He should keep to himself, and keep warm, especially during the first stages of his affliction. After the first bid for sympathy, to which he is usually entitled, he should drink hot tea, lemonade, fruit juice, or something stronger, if it makes him, and therefore those around him, happier. Physicians often recommend that he take aspirin to relieve his aches, mild nose drops or spray to reduce nasal congestion and help prevent secondary infections.

Cough medications and vaporizers help, too. However, doctors also warn that none of these medications should be overused, and if fever is present, a physician should be consulted before any are taken.

The cold victim should use paper tissues which once used should be kept in a disposable container. He, and any member of the family with whom he comes in contact, should wash hands frequently with an antibacterial cleanser.

HOUSE HOLD HINTS

Never put pins through a heating pad or blanket. Pins can short circuit the heating coils or break them.

Use fish and shellfish as soon as you can. Preferably, do not buy it unless you plan to use it the same day, although it is safe to keep for a short time when you must. If storage is necessary, remember that the lower the temperature, the slower the deterioration.

Avoid leaving food standing in an aluminum vessel longer than necessary. Minerals in foods cause pitting of aluminum.

Blood Drive set March 3

MRS. JEANETTE JONES

WENDELL — All Wendell-Hagerman area residents are urged to contribute blood at the Red Cross drawing here March 3 at the American Legion Hall by Mrs. Jeanette Jones, Wendell, practical nurse, recipient of 12 pints of blood during open heart surgery.

Mrs. Jones was charge nurse at the Magic Valley Manor here at the time of her heart attack, and had worked there since 1964. She underwent surgery at St. Luke's Hospital, Boise, last December, and hopes to return to work before the end of the year.

The bloodmobile will be in Wendell from 11 a.m. through 3 p.m. March 3, according to Mrs. Harold Holsinger, chairman of the Wendell blood bank, who said Wendell residents have done very well in meeting their quotas in previous drawings, but are greatly indebted to Hagerman residents who have donated at the Wendell bloodmobile visits.

She reported the Red Cross recently served a Wendell family by making gamma globulin, a "blood derivative," available when a member of the family had hepatitis. Fresh blood is usable for 21 days after it is drawn, and then is made into blood products.

Now and younger donors are urged to participate in the blood drawing March 3, the chairman said.

In addition to the blood program, in which all area hospitals are served by the Boise Regional blood center, the Red Cross conducts home nursing, first aid and swimming programs.

POSTAL PROGRESS
ROME (UPI)—Italians may no longer have to bother to stick stamps on envelopes. The Post Ministry says it is considering selling envelopes with stamps printed on them.

Mrs. Bertus is now contacting all teachers in the Wendell area. She said the posters will be judged during the first week in May by the Wendell Art Group.

Theme of music week is "Joy through Music." All poster entrants should use this theme.

The community chorus sponsored by the Northside Music Club will present the oratorio, "The Creation," by Joseph Haydn during the first week in May.

Clinic slated March 27

WENDELL — An out-patient clinic for children who have been patients at the Primary Children's Hospital, Salt Lake City, is scheduled in the area March 27. Mrs. Lawrence LaRue, Wendell, said today.

Dr. Garth G. Meyers, director of the birth defects division of the Children's Hospital, will conduct the clinic. Appointments may be made with James R. Ingalls, acting director of the South Central Idaho Health District, Box 281, Twin Falls.

Mrs. LaRue said all parents in Gooding County with children who have birth defects and wish the help of the March of Dimes Foundation should contact Mrs. Beryl Bevercombe, Gooding.

Second man to walk on the moon

For several weeks prior to the scheduled lift-off of Apollo 11 back in July, 1969, the pastor of our church, Dean Woodruff, and I had been struggling to find the right symbol for the first lunar landing. We wanted to express our feeling that what man was doing in this mission transcended electronics and computers and rockets.

Dean often speaks at our church, Webster Presbyterian, just outside of Houston, about the many meanings of the communion service.

One of the principal symbols, Dean says, "is that God reveals himself in the common elements of everyday life." Traditionally, these elements are bread and wine — common foods in Bible days and typical products of man's labor.

One day while I was at Cape Kennedy working with the sophisticated tools of the space effort, it occurred to me that these tools were the typical elements of life today. I wondered if it might be possible to take communion on the moon, symbolizing the thought that God was revealing himself there too, as man reached out into the universe. For there are many of us in the NASA program who do trust that what we are doing is part of God's eternal plan for man.

I spoke with Dean about the idea as soon as I returned home, and he was enthusiastic.

"I could carry the bread in a plastic packet, the way regular inflight food is wrapped. And the wine also — there will be just enough gravity on the moon for liquid to pour."

I had a question about which scriptural passage to use. Which reading would best capture what this enterprise meant to us? I thought long about this and came up at last with John 15:1. It seemed to fit perfectly. I wrote the passage on a slip of paper to be carried aboard Eagle along with the communion elements. Dean would read the same passage at the service held back home that same day which would be Sunday, July 20, the day when Neil Armstrong and I were scheduled to be on the surface of the moon.

Then we were launched on our flight from Cape Kennedy. The Saturn 5 rocket gave us a rough ride at first, but the rest of the trip was smooth.

On the day of the moon landing, we awoke at 5:30 a.m. Houston time. Neil and I separated from Mike Collins in the command module.

Our powered descent was right on schedule, and perfect except for one unforeseeable difficulty. The automatic guidance system would have taken Eagle to an area with huge boulders. Neil had to steer Eagle to a more suitable terrain. With only seconds worth of fuel left, we touched down at 3:30 p.m.

Now Neil and I were sitting inside Eagle, while Mike circled in lunar orbit, unseen in the black sky above us. In a little while after our scheduled meal period, Neil would give the signal to step down the ladder onto the powdery surface of the moon. Now was the moment for communion.

So I unstowed the elements in their flight packets. I put them and the scripture reading on the little table in front of the abort guidance-system computer.

Then I called back to NASA headquarters in Houston.

"Houston, this is Eagle. This is the LM pilot speaking. I would like to request a few moments of silence. I would like to invite each person listening in, wherever and whomever he may be, to contemplate for a moment the events of the past few hours and to give thanks in his own individual way."

For me this meant taking communion. In the radio blackout I opened the little plastic packages which contained bread and wine.

I poured the wine into the chalice our church had given me. In the one-sixth gravity of the moon the wine curled slowly and gracefully up the side of the cup. It was interesting to think that the first liquid ever poured on the moon, and the first food eaten there, were communion elements.

"And so, just before I partook of the elements, I read the words which I had chosen to indicate our trust that as man probes into space we are in fact acting in Christ.

I sensed especially strongly my unity with our church back home, and with the Church everywhere.

I read: "I am the vine, you are the branches. Whoever remains in me, and I in him, will bear much fruit; for you can do nothing without me."

Crowds at Yellowstone create need for 'people management'

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of four articles dealing with the attractions—and problems—of our national parks.

By JOHN LEIGHTY
United Press International

More than two million people will drive, fly, or hitch-hike to the northern Wyoming-Idaho-Montana border this summer to visit the oldest and largest of the national parks.

Yellowstone, with its gushing geysers, boiling paint-pots and wild rivers, is still one of the scenic wonders of the world. Next year will mark its 100th anniversary as a national park.

Only 10 miles away are the saw-tooth peaks of Wyoming's Grand Teton National Park, providing along with Yellowstone a magnificent, double-barreled dose of natural beauty.

Elk, moose, buffalo, bears and other wild animals roam the region today as they did when the Lewis and Clark expedition camped there and buckskinned hunters and trappers blazed paths in the wilderness.

On a typical summer day, campfires at both Yellowstone and Grand Teton fill to capacity before noon. Private campgrounds outside the parks are usually sufficient for the overflow.

Recently, Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., said he would reintroduce his Washakie wild-life bill during this session of Congress in an attempt to relieve some of the visitor pressures on the two parks.

"I think we all realize we will have to limit the use of Grand Teton and Yellowstone National Parks ... by making better use of the contiguous national areas around them," Hansen said.

Hansen says his legislation would "set aside a truly magnificent part of the Shoshone National Forest." The bill passed the Senate last session but failed in the House.

Yellowstone's administrator, Jack Anderson, says an $18,000 study is underway by a California firm for the feasibility of a rail system through the park. A prototype "people carrying module" would first be built to carry visitors in a circular journey to the north brim of the Yellowstone River in the Grand View area and return.

"We are in a changing time and people change their habits," Anderson said. "There are new methods of transportation. It is difficult to say what we can accommodate here, but we are attempting to spread the impact area."

Anderson said during the summer as many as 25,000 persons a day come in the park and about 500 persons have to be turned away. He said the turnaways can almost always find a way the next morning.

The average turnover at Yellowstone is three and a half days per family.

To help relieve congestion, park officials are considering a system under which campfires could be reserved in advance.

"There should be a reservation system for, say, 60 to 70 per cent of the campgrounds," said Anderson. "It would give a person a chance to make reservations six or seven months in advance."

Anderson said naturalist programs are being introduced to visitors and he foresees no immediate danger to the abundant wildlife of the park.

In neighboring Teton, though less famous, drew a million more visitors than Yellowstone last year and officials said overcrowding has become a problem there, too.

The Teton's 3.5 million visitors were drawn partially by the winter activities and ski slopes and the convenience of a small airport.

In summer or winter, a favorite activity is riding an aerial tram up nearby Snow King Mountain to get a closer view of the 13,747-foot Grand Teton or gaze at numerous other jutting peaks and deep crevasses.

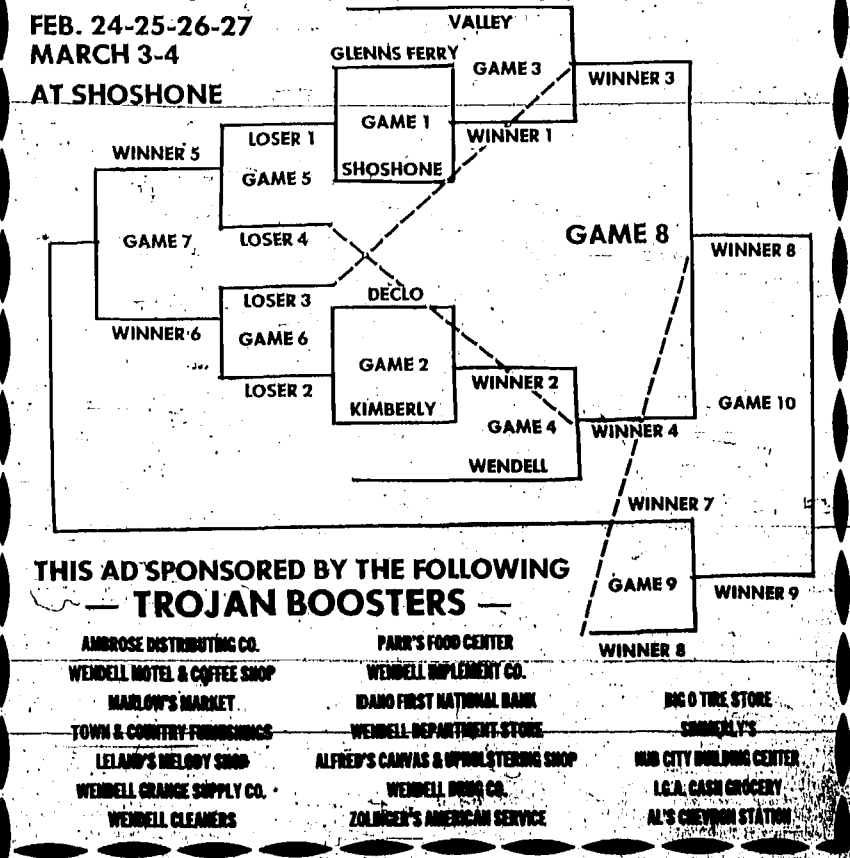

"I think we have the same conditions as all the parks, said management assistant Dick Monroe. "We have problems trying to protect the very thing people come to see."

TWIN FALLS — Charles Epperson, Twin Falls, will appear before Fifth Judicial District Judge James M. Cunningham Monday for sentencing on charges of forgery and illegal possession of an enumerated drug.

Epperson appeared Monday afternoon before Judge Cunningham and entered pleas of guilty to the two separate charges.

Auto romance fading, head of leasing firm believes

DETROIT (UPI)—Is America's romance with the automobile fading? Is pride of ownership dwindling? One man who thinks so is Walter Heingartner, president of Genway Corp., an independent company that provides leasing and renting services to General Motors dealers. Heingartner says the American public, not big companies which need fleets of cars, is leading the great expansion in leasing that has developed in recent years. This boomlet has had no help from the automakers. In some cases, the dealers who have leasing services try to hinder the trend. He said that some dealers with a leasing service which "they put out on the back lot" do everything possible to divert a prospective leaser to buying. They lease only as a last resort, he said.

Leasing started out with fleet leasing by companies that did not want to tie up capital. In 1970, according to Heingartner, 803,000 individuals leased cars, comprising 40 per cent of the entire leasing market. Since 1964, says Heingartner, individual leasing has grown 274 per cent, while fleet leasing has grown only about 9 per cent per year.

The public, he says, is learning that investment should be an appreciating item. Automobiles depreciate.

Heingartner thinks leasing would dominate the new car market and car ownership by individuals would decline. If manufacturers supported the leasing system as they once pushed time-payment purchases of new cars.

More than half the individuals who lease cars from dealers in the Genway system, he says, earn over $15,000 per year. Another one-third have incomes of $10,000 to $15,000. Blue-collar workers are now in that income range. Two thirds of the Genway leasers own their homes and Heingartner says "we car people know that among home owners, multi-car usage increases."

Heingartner contends that leasing is "a rare animal" because it benefits the dealer and manufacturer as well as the user. He emphasized that individual leasing has reached a peak totally through consumer demand for a service.

Squeezed boulders produce petroleum

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Bureau of Mines said Monday it has squeezed oil out of big boulders of shale rock almost as well as with bits and pieces.

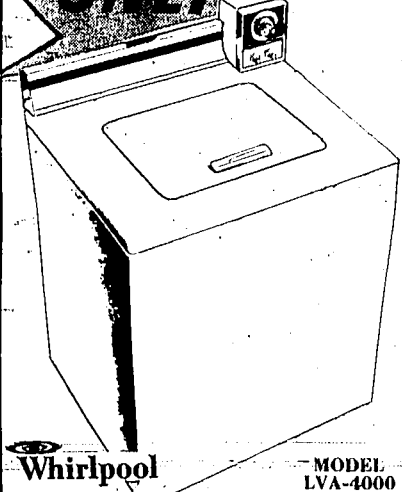

The development may be a significant step in finding a profit-making way of getting oil out of the huge shale deposits of the Western United States.

The bureau said it ran boulders weighing 7,500 pounds and 10,000 pounds through its "retorting" process — basically, forcing the oil out of shale rock with application of heat in a combustion chamber. The experiments are being carried on in the Energy Research Center of the Bureau of Mines, at Laramie, Wyo.

The boulders seemed to lend themselves as well in "retorting" as broken-up pieces of the shale, the bureau reported. The bigger pieces heated quickly, which is one criterion.

Amendments requested

BOISE (Special to the Times-News) — Two Magic Valley legislators said Tuesday a bill regulating man-made alterations in stream beds should be amended.

Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert, and Sen. Don Fredericksen, D-Gooding, members of the Idaho Senate Resources Committee, said the measure should be amended to better protect the rights and needs of water users and landowners.

Both men said they did not feel the bill pitted landowners against sportsmen and environmentalists.

The sportsman and environmental organizations had supported the measure on grounds it would control destruction of fish habitat and pollution of state waterways.

The measure was opposed by landowners who claim siltation deposits cause streams to overflow, damaging property. Water users said they often need to alter a stream's course or clear a channel to permit delivery of water.

The bill would require issuance of a license by the Idaho Department of Water Administration. The application would have to be filed 60 days in advance of planned work.

Fredericksen challenged the bill on grounds the waiting period is too long. "If you need water for your crops anything more than 10 days is too long," he said. He said the proposal is unlikely to be approved in committee until it is altered to be more protective of property rights. Senator Peavey said the bill should be amended to permit Soil Conservation Council to receive applications to make stream bed alterations.

He said the SCC — a state agency — would be able to use federally paid personnel of the Soil Conservation Service to administer the program without additional cost to the state. He said the soil conservation organizations would be more considerate of the rights of property owners.

Revenue sharing would help T.F.

TWIN FALLS — The City of Twin Falls would receive $195,668 under terms of President Nixon's federal revenue-sharing proposal, now under consideration in Congress, according to Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho.

Rep. Hansen, who sponsored the bill in the House of Representatives, said Idaho would receive a total of $20 million if the measure is approved. Of this amount, $3.3 million would go directly to city governments, and $4.9 million would be repaid to the counties.

The revenue-sharing proposal would extend federal financial assistance in a broad and unconditional manner, Hansen said. Each county, city and township would be included directly in the allocation of funds, with local needs and priorities determining their ultimate distribution.

Major cities in the Second Congressional District, and their allocations, would include Burley, $95,569; and Twin Falls, $195,668. Counties in the Magic Valley would include: Twin Falls County would receive $425,077; Blaine, $68,243; Camas, $13,882; Cassia, $64,882; Gooding, $64,882; Jerome, $55,091; Lincoln, $26,303; and Mindoka, $62,251.

Scouts become leaders

JEROME — Boy Scout leaders will turn the tables and become members of a Scout troop, with the Scoutmasters as patrol leaders, during the annual leadership training session of the North Side District, Snake River Council, Boy Scouts of America.

The first of seven weekly sessions will begin 1 p.m. Thursday in the First United Presbyterian Church, Jerome. John Hill, Twin Falls, institutional representative for the Council, and Jim Archibald, Wendell, district training chairman, will direct the sessions.

North Side District committee members will become members of a Scout "troop" organized for the training, Archibald said. The Scout leaders will study all aspects of organizing and leading a Scout troop.

Each weekly session will meet in a different community of the North Side District, including an overnight campout on March 11 at the new Camp T. C. Roach in the Hagerman Valley. The second session will be held at Gooding, and other sessions will follow throughout the district.

All adult Scout leaders are urged to attend the training sessions, Archibald said. Each session will run about two hours, and each meeting will be conducted much like a Scout patrol meeting, to provide insight into problems facing troop leaders.

Gooding Lions hear student

GOODING — Roger Wurst, sophomore at Idaho State University, Pocatello, spoke on his work in Costa Rica and showed slides and art objects at the Gooding Lions Club charter night dinner at the Lincoln Inn.

Wurst spent a year in Costa Rica with the World Youth Development program, a government sponsored project. He is from Bellevue.

Thirty-year Chevron awards were presented to two of the club's three charter members, Clark Williamson and Leland Fleischman. The other charter member, Al Smith, was unable to attend.

Ed Leach, club president, presented 100 per cent attendance pins to Wayne Bretz, Harley Crippen, Gene Gibbons, Valdo Gray, Fred Locke, Walter Locke, George Nelson, John Robertson, George Silva, Frank Stone, Williamson, Harvey Wood and Leach.

Gooding board studies principal appointment

GOODING — Applicants for the position of Gooding High School principal were interviewed at a special trustee meeting Tuesday night.

Principal James Muscat, who has been named superintendent for next year, said today the choice will be announced next week after a contract has been signed.

Trustees rehired Darrell Schnitker as vocational agriculture teacher, but Muscat pointed out the program will depend upon state funds allotted. He said schools previously received a flat fee for the vo-agriculture operation, but now state funds will be allotted on a per capita basis, so it is possible not enough money will be received to keep the program in operation the entire 12 months.

Trustees framed an addition to the student handbook, authorizing them to cope with drug abuse problems. The school administration has the authority to suspend students suspected of drug abuse until board action can be taken, Muscat said.

The new policy states, "The board of trustees unequivocally goes on record that any student attending school or school functions after drinking alcohol or is suspected of consuming or possessing drugs will immediately be reported to trustees for corrective action."

Muscat said, while the drug problem is not as exaggerated as some people believe, it does exist and there is more trouble with girls than boys at present. He said some of the worst users in the past five years now left school.

Truck overturns; damage $10,000

KING HILL — A semi-truck and trailer owned by the U and I Sugar Co., Idaho Falls, overturned on the King Hill exit from Interstate 80 late Tuesday night, with damage estimated at more than $10,000.

Heritage display opens

TWIN FALLS — A unique exhibit of American history and culture, the American Showcase, opened a five-day visit to Twin Falls this morning at the Lynwood Shopping Center.

Twin Falls Mayor Frank Feldman issued a proclamation commemorating the arrival of the exhibit at opening ceremonies today, attended by Ray Rostron, manager of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, and business representatives of the Magic Valley.

The exhibits, housed in three large trailers, will be open to the public at no charge from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. each day through Sunday.

Idaho State Police said Carlo N. Erickson, Rexburg, driver of the truck, reported his brakes failed and the vehicle went through the guard rail and overturned about 11:30 p.m.

Erickson was pinned under the truck for more than two hours because his left foot was caught under a floor board, officers said. Two Glenns Ferry Showcases, Dick Anderson and Paul Shrum, who happened upon the scene, used a small jack to free the man.

Erickson was taken to Gooding Memorial Hospital where he was treated and dismissed this morning.

The accident is the 11th mishap reported at the exit three and one-half miles east of King Hill since the Interstate opened last October, state police said.

The load on the truck, which was sacks of material used in the sugar making process, did not spill. The truck was on route to Moses Lake, Wash.

Burley legislator favors increase in Gem sales tax

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Ernest Hale, R-Burley, Tuesday said he favors increasing the state sales tax to finance the needs of education.

Hale, a member of the House Education Committee, said he would support legislation raising the sales tax to four per cent from three to finance education properly in Idaho.

"With this extra penny we should be able to include a state supported kindergarten system as well as improve our trade and vocational facilities in Idaho," Hale said in a prepared statement.

If Idahoans really want a kindergarten system established, he said, they are going to have to pay for it.

"There is no way of funding all the wants of the public at this time without additional revenue," Hale said.

"Even with a four per cent sales and use tax Idaho would have a lower sales tax rate than most of our neighboring states."

He said that "we have shoved the tax burden off on the property owner for years and it's time that everybody pay for the facilities they use."

Solons honor Lana

BOISE (Special to the Times-News) — A joint resolution was introduced in the Idaho House Tuesday congratulating Lana Brackenbury, Jerome, Miss Rodeo America.

The resolution cited Lana's "unique combination of skilled horsemanship, beauty, and personality" and her "dedication to the finest qualities of the American cowgirl," which resulted in her honor.

The resolution called Lana "the personification of the highest quality of young womanhood which brings credit to her, to her family and to the state of Idaho." The resolution said the members of the 41st Legislature take the opportunity to extend congratulations and the very best wishes in her year as Miss Rodeo America to Miss Lana Brackenbury.

Lana had been scheduled to be introduced to the legislators but was unable to attend because of illness, according to Sen. Don Fredericksen, R-Gooding.

Shoshone chamber opposes rail pact

SHOSHONE — Shoshone Chamber of Commerce members will write Gov. Cecil Andrus and secretary of transportation, John A. Volpe, opposing the proposed rail pact which will eliminate all passenger service in Idaho as of May 1.

Members took the action following a detailed discussion of the effect of the cut in service at the chamber meeting Tuesday noon at the Manhattan Cafe.

Myron Johnson, chamber president, said all organizations and individuals in Lincoln County and surrounding counties are urged to write letters to try and stop the elimination of passenger service.

Chamber members feel the economy of the entire Magic Valley area will be hurt if the passenger trains are eliminated, he said.

A special committee was named to handle the Melba Gray memorial fund. Members include Carl Kinney, high school principal; Roy Hubert, employe of First Security Bank, Shoshone, and Mrs. Imogene Saras, a friend of the family. The fund stands at $2,377.59, Johnson said, received in contributions since the November murder of Mrs. Gray.

The committee will handle investment and expenditures of the money, with the approval of the chamber.

Kenneth Blackburn reported more than 80 Boy Scouts and fathers attended the chamber-sponsored Scout breakfast Feb. 14.

Health unit sets meeting

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Mental Health Assn. will elect officers and plan priorities for the year's program at a meeting set for 8 p.m. Thursday in the Bishop Rhea Auditorium of the Ascension Episcopal Church.

Six task groups will discuss areas of need during the meeting, returning to the plenary session with recommendations for implementing programs and services of the local group during the next year. They will include community communications, education, fund raising, regional mental health services and other community needs.

Officers-elect include Rev. Leslie Brown, president; Mosell Nora, vice president; Roy Slotten, secretary, and Lotus Schmucker, treasurer.

Choice confirmed

BOISE — The Idaho Senate has confirmed four gubernatorial appointments including the selection of Mrs. Vena Waggoner, Piler, as a member of the Idaho State Historical Society Board.

She and her husband, Harold Waggoner, are directors of the Twin Falls County Historical Society Museum at Curry. Other appointments included Scott W. Reed, Coeur d'Alene; John Streiff, Lewiston; and George L. Yost, Emmett, to the Idaho Water Resources Board.

Newman makes history

By MIKE ROBERTSON Times-News Staff Writer

TWIN FALLS — Raymond Newman of Twin Falls wrote a page in United States Navy History Tuesday when he became the eighth son of one family to be sworn into the Navy.

With the exception of Kirby Newman Jr., six of Raymond's brothers are all career sailors still on active duty in the Navy.

The oldest member of "Newman's Navy," Kirby, was killed in an air crash in February, 1970. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Newman, Sr., Twin Falls.

Raymond Newman's attempt to get into the Navy was a struggle for him and CPO-Ron Jennings, recruiter in charge for Twin Falls and PO1. C. Dean Getchell.

Raymond went to the recruiters about two years ago to try and enlist in the Navy.

They sent him to Boise for the induction physical and mental tests. He didn't score high enough on the mental test to qualify. After 30 days, Jennings sent him back for a re-test. The results were somewhat better but still not high enough to qualify.

It was a year before Raymond was eligible to be tested again. During this time he went to the Navy recruiting office and studied booklets on how to take an Armed Forces test. He also used the library to study any book he could get that would help him to pass the test.

Jennings and Getchell tutored him in every way possible. Jennings said that he could see a great improvement in Raymond after all the work.

When he was able to take the test again, Raymond passed easily. He said that his main goal of life was becoming one of the members of "Newman's Navy."

At the time Raymond was sworn in Tuesday, his seven brothers had compiled a total of 76 years service in the Navy.

Kirby was the first brother to enlist, being inducted in July, 1947. At the time of his death he had served 17 years and ranked first class petty officer.

George enlisted in August, 1954, and after 16 years of service is first class petty officer and stationed at El Centro, Calif.

Brothers Joseph and Edward are both first class petty officers. Joseph enlisted in 1960 and is serving at Bolger Transfer School at Philadelphia, Pa. Edward is stationed aboard the USS Parsons. He entered the Navy in 1960.

Weldon and David are second class petty officers.

They went into the Navy in 1966 and 1968. Weldon is now at the Naval Training Center in San Diego and David is stationed at Little Creek, Va.

The most recent of Raymond's brothers to enlist was John. He went on active duty in September of 1967.

Jennings was responsible for John being recruited, and re-enlisting at the end of his first tour of duty. He also re-enlisted David.

Many members of the family, Navy and press were at the ceremony to swear in Raymond. Among them were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Newman Sr. They were presented a plaque of appreciation from the Navy for their contribution to the country and Navy.

Also at the ceremony was a nephew of the Newman brothers, John Anthony. He has recently enlisted in the Navy and is the first Newman nephew to do so. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Anthony.

John and Raymond will leave together Thursday on active duty.

School election planned

— GLENNS FERRY —
Residents of the Glenn Ferry School District 192 will go to the polls March 9 to vote on decreasing the plant facilities mill levy.

At the same time, patrons of the district will also vote on the realignment of trustee zones. Supt. George Powell said the mill levy question would actually be a reduction from the present three mills to a two-mill levy to cover a five-year plan to purchase school buses and make repairs to existing buildings and grounds. Powell said the reduction will be possible by setting up a long range purchase program on new equipment and eliminating costly repairs and continuous overhauling of the nine year old buses.

As for zone revisions, the superintendent said a petition has been filed with the school board asking revision of boundaries as provided by Idaho Code 33-313. This law says boundaries shall be established to provide equal population, and assessed valuation in each trustee zone as far as possible. Powell said maps showing the proposed boundary revisions are available at the superintendent's office for inspection and will also be available at the polling places.

Voting will be from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. with polling places including the Ben Taylor Ranch, Hammatt; King Hill Grange Hall, school administration office of the new elementary and high school building in Glenns Ferry.

A WELL-BUILT BOOKCASE, constructed by Solon Short, an eighth-grader at Robert Stuart Junior High School, claimed first place in the industrial arts division at a science fair Monday at the school. Keith Farnsworth, industrial arts instructor, admires his student's work.

Workshop for handicapped set

Bartlett is directing a regional study of handicapped adults in preparation for the opening of a "sheltered workshop" in Twin Falls by this fall, Burnett said.

Bartlett will also visit other similar workshop operations for handicapped children and adults throughout the country to gather ideas for the local facility. Following the Sacramento conference, he plans to visit five workshops in San Francisco and will confer with leaders Salkind, director of the Workshop Administration Program of the University of San Francisco.

Magie Valley business and industrial leaders will be visited by Bartlett in an attempt to locate services or work which could be sub-contracted to the workshop. "We will attempt to secure 80 per cent of our income from sub-contract work with local businessmen and industrial leaders, but we realize this may be difficult to do, due to the agricultural economy of the area," Burnett said.

"However, we believe that with the cooperation of business and industrial leaders we can find things that handicapped people can do, and do well."

The workshop program will train handicapped people for employment throughout Magic Valley, Burnett said. "We are anxious to know of firms that would be willing to work with us in providing a full or part-time job for a handicapped person."

"We would work with the employer in analyzing the job to be done and breaking it down into steps that a handicapped person could handle, then train one of our people to do the job."

"We would work with the person on the job for the first few days, and, in cooperation with the Vocational Rehabilitation Service, would continue to work with the employe, seeking a successful job placement."

Employers are asked to call Bartlett at 734-3810 or the Child Development Center at 734-2235.

Science winners listed

TWIN FALLS — The Scientific talents of the "younger generation" were ably demonstrated by a large number of scientific and industrial arts displays on Monday at Robert Stuart Junior High School.

Rodney Stephens, an eighth-grader, took first place in the crafts division with a handsome display of wood craftsmanship, and Solon Short, also in the eighth grade, was named first-place winner in the industrial arts division with a handcrafted bookcase.

Other top-ranked crafts projects were entered by Rod Peterson, a seventh-grader; second; Marlin Fischer, ninth grade, third; Karen Cook, ninth grade, fourth; and Bettie Mabie, eighth grade, fifth.

In the industrial arts division, Bill Sweet, ninth grade, was second; Kelly Kleinkopf, seventh grade, third; Dave Sweet, ninth grade, fourth, and Terry Conner, eighth grade, fifth.

Hearing set on fuel price hike

BOISE — Members of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission have received an application from Intermountain Gas Co. of Idaho for authority to increase rates to customers in the state effective March 31.

Commission members have set a public hearing on the application for March 10 at 9 a.m. in the Civil Defense Briefing Room, New State Office Building, 650 West State St., Boise.

The Idaho natural gas distribution firm has asked for the rate increase to off set costs of purchase of gas from El Paso Natural Gas Co.

Crash response released

NEW YORK (UPI) — In difference followed by hostility was the Federal Aviation Administration's response to a recommendation that might have prevented the October crash of a Wichita State University chartered airliner, the latest issue of Look Magazine has reported.

The non-commercial flight crashed in the Colorado Rockies Oct. 2. The school's athletic director, head coach, and most of the starting football lineup were among the 31 fatalities.

The FAA adopted the confidential recommendation after the tragedy.

The Look article said an FAA member, Philip I. Ryter, advised the administration its regulations for non-commercial charter flights should be as stringent as those applying to commercial airlines.

For his confidential report, Ryter "at first met indifference and then outright hostility from the top echelons of the agency FAA," the article said.

He said his "superiors harassed him out of the FAA for making a nuisance of his confidential report."

New census set in Elmore County

GLENNS FERRY — Elmore County residents have been selected to provide information for a new census the Bureau of the Census has designed to learn how much housing in specific areas is mortgaged and the amounts owed on mortgages.

Other Idaho counties in which sample information is being collected include Bannock and Washington.

Officials of the Census Bureau said those receiving questionnaires for the special information are required by law to fill them out and return them. They are to go into the mail this month to homeowners and rental property owners. Nationwide about 65,000 persons will be interviewed by the mail questionnaires.

Information is strictly confidential and law prohibits the Census Bureau from disclosing any information about an individual or company property.

Statistics gathered in the survey will be collected by late summer and will be published with the 1970 census on population. It will serve a wide variety of uses in financial planning, decision making and other services to federal and private lending institutions, census officials say.

Quit Indochina, Democrats urge

WASHINGTON (UPI)—After two hours of bitter debate, Senate Democrats Tuesday adopted an unprecedented resolution urging President Nixon to withdraw all U.S. forces from Indochina before the end of 1972.

The 318-vote marked the first time that Senate Democrats, as a group, have taken a position on the highly divisive war issue.

The resolution has no legal standing nor is the party position binding on any senator. But it does pledge Senate Democrats in the 92nd Congress to work to the end of the involvement of Indochina and to bring about the withdrawal of all U.S.

forces and the release of all prisoners in a time certain.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott scoffed at the resolution as too vague, with not enough attention to prisoners-of-war and said it was written so that "all of the presidential candidates can live with it."

"The purpose is constructive," Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said. "It is designed to be helpful to the President in the situation he finds himself."

"It is not meant to bind the President's hands but to free him from the manacles ... of the war," he added. Mansfield said there would be no attempt "at this time" to implement the resolution through legislation.

Mansfield declined to name the senators who voted against the resolution, but two, Sens. John G. Stennis, D-Miss., and Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., identified themselves.

When the Senate Democratic Policy Committee approved the resolution Monday, Mansfield said the deadline was the end of the 92nd Congress. Those attending the closed-door meeting said the setting of a deadline by which Nixon should act highlighted much of the debate.

The phrase "in a time certain" within the term of the 92nd Congress was a compromise between those who wanted a greater flexibility and those who wanted to set a fixed date—some as early as this summer.

Liberal runner winner

LIBERAL, Kan. (UPI)—Mrs. Barbara Rinehart, wife of an oilfield worker, bounded down the icy brick streets of Liberal today in 67.7 seconds to win the annual Shrove Tuesday International Pancake Race against the women of Olney, England.

Ruth Faulkner, a 19-year-old physical education student, earlier had won the Olney leg on the S-shaped, 415-yard course in 88 seconds.

Mrs. Rinehart's victory evened the series between the two towns at 11 wins each and represented Liberal's second victory in as many years.

The 24-year-old Mrs. Rinehart battled a treacherous ice-covered course following Monday's blizzard which swept through this Kansas prairie town. Snow plows had worked through the night to clear the streets.

Returns reflect tax reform moves

It's been more than a year since enactment of the comprehensive Tax Reform Act of 1969, but many of the new reform provisions carry their first impact on 1970 returns.

Due to the "staggered" effective dates of many Reform Act provisions and the sheer immensity of the law, some questions are sure to be raised about the new tax rules by taxpayers in preparing their returns.

Below are principal provisions of the Tax Reform Act affecting 1970 calendar-year individual tax returns:

First, the tax surcharge expired June 30, 1970 after being reduced to 5 per cent at the beginning of the year. Thus, the effective tax surcharge rate for 1970 is 2.5 per cent.

Further, the value of a personal or dependency exemption increased from $500 to $650 effective July 1, 1970. This makes the exemption worth $625 for 1970.

Drastic changes also take place in the filing requirements for 1970 returns. A single person is not required to file a return unless he has gross income of $1,700 ($2,300 if he is 65 or older). The gross income figure for a married couple filing a joint return is $2,300 ($2,900 if one spouse is 65 or older, $3,500 if both are 65 or older). The income level for filing returns remains at $600 for a married person filing a separate return or living apart.

In the area of the standard deduction, the old minimum standard deduction has been replaced by a new low-income allowance which is designed to remove low-income families from the tax rolls. The low-income allowance, built into the Internal Revenue Service Optional Tax Tables, permits a maximum deduction of $1,100.

The optional tax tables, by the way, are now available for use by taxpayers with adjusted gross income up to $10,000. Formerly, the tables could only be used by taxpayers with adjusted gross income under $5,000.

A foster parent may now claim a dependency exemption for a foster child on the same terms as a natural child provided that the foster child has the foster parents' home as his principal place of abode and was a member of the household for the entire year.

A new 10 per cent minimum tax is imposed on certain tax preference items. These tax preference items include accelerated depreciation on real property, the bargain element in stock options, and the amount allowable under the 50 per cent capital gains deduction. There is, however, a $30,000 exemption ($15,000 in the case of a married person filing separate returns).

Other changes to watch for in preparing 1970 returns crop up in the areas of the moving expense deduction and income-averaging. Deduction is now available for additional types of moving expenses, such as the cost of traveling, meals and lodging on pre-move house hunting trips, temporary living expenses at the new job location, and certain expenses incident to the sale of the old residence.

However, there's an overall limitation of $2,500 on these types of expenses.

Income-averaging is available for most types of income in 1970, including capital gains. Also, the rules have been relaxed to make the device available to more individuals. Prepared by Commerce Clearing House.

Castleford stuns Devils, Trojans upset Hansen to start tournament season

BURLEY — Top-heavy favorite Hagerman finally got past Rockland 61-48 but two other favorites didn't make it when Castleford and Raft River came up with upsets Tuesday night to open the sixth district A-4 basketball tournament, Castleford, which had lost nine straight to close the season, stunned the Murtaugh Red Devils 58-55 but the biggest surprise came when the Raft River Trojans toppled the Hansen Huskies 57-52. The results will send Murtaugh against Rockland at 5 p.m. Wednesday, Castleford against Hagerman at 6:45 p.m. and Raft River against Oakley at 8:15 p.m. all in the Burley High School gymnasium. It was a tough night for the team sheet, particularly since the teams were seeded according to conference play and there were definite favorites. Hagerman was more than ripe for an upset as the Pirates came off a 10-day layoff and showed tournament jitters, too. But Rockland, hampered continually by poor passing and turnovers, wasn't able to beat the Pirates on a bad day. But Castleford, making only three turnovers in the second half, played its best game of the season in dropping Murtaugh while Raft River, after waiting in the second quarter for Hansen to pull out of sight, got a big third quarter and game from 6-5 Jim Wickel and tucked its decision away in the final minutes.

Wickel scored 26 points and Raft River did a fine defensive job in keeping Hansen outside most of the night. But for a while it didn't appear that would help as Cliff Barnard, Walt Freestone and Lynn Pearson consistently from 15 feet. Raft River pulled into a 21-13 lead early in the second period but ran into a rash of turnovers — mostly on guard passing — as Freestone, Pearson and Moore hit the points that caught Hansen up at 23-all. After two more ties, Barnard shoved Hansen ahead and Freestone and Carl Crockett got buckets to give Hansen a 33-27 halftime lead. Points from Freestone and Barnard pushed Hansen up to 37-27 early in the second half and Barnard and Pearson got back-to-back buckets to extend that to 43-32. But in the final four minutes of the third quarter, Wickel hit 11 points while coldness was settling in on Hansen's outside hand and the Huskies took a 48-43 margin into the final period.

It took 4:10 for Raft River to make the upset idea stick when Wickel and Tracy got points to tie it at 50-50 with 3:50 remaining.

Neddo shoved Raft River ahead with 3:01 left before Barnard got Hansen's fourth and final points of the last period. Wickel moved inside for a 54-52 Trojan lead with 1:38 and that was enough as it turned out. With 42 seconds remaining, Neddo got a crumple off a Wickel feed and Darrington topped it with a free throw.

In the other surprise, Lynn Reese clutched through four straight free throws and Castleford showed good ball control tactics in the final three minutes to defeat Murtaugh.

Castleford led most of the time, its biggest lead in the first half being 21-13. But Murtaugh came back to within two by halftime and the score was tied six times in a tight third period. The last tie developed at 50-all with 6:01 remaining. Then Ron Kaercher got loose for two buckets before John Flynn hit a Murtaugh field goal. Castleford took its three-point edge and went into a deep delay game, although it was looking for shots.

Murtaugh finally fouled after 1:37 but Reese hit both free throws. After the Devils had a turnover, another foul sent Reese to the line with 1:36 left and he pushed it out of reach with 1:35 to play.

Murtaugh got back to within three points with 28 seconds left. Hagerman, noted for its great shooting percentage, had a poor one but it still was better than Rockland's. The Pirates hit only two of their first 10 shots — but managed a 4-9 lead. Hagerman led by five to nine points but it appeared the upset bug was nibbling midway through the third period when Rockland cut a 10-point deficit to 36-30. But the Bulldogs then turned the ball over three straight times and Loughlin's three points and two from Nicholas got the Pirates going again.

Early in the fourth period, Loughlin, Hepdrickson and Nicholas got consecutive points to shove Hagerman ahead by 15 and the Pirates coasted home.

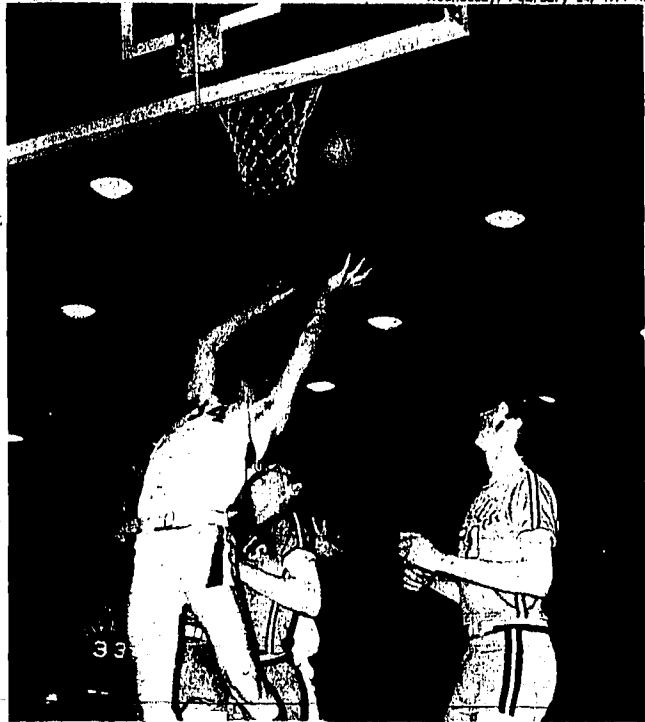

Castleford vs. Murtaugh 55-58
Raft River vs. Hansen 57-52

Illini to renovate quarters
CHICAGO (UPI)—New Football Coach Bob Blackman revealed Tuesday that Illinois will spend half a million dollars to revamp its football training table quarters, locker room and coaches' offices.

Blackman said the training table quarters would resemble "a night club," and that it would cost about $130,000 for the renovation.

The locker room and coaches' quarters will be moved from the current location at the northeast corner of the stadium to a position under the bleachers at the south end.

The new locker room will be completely carpeted and equipped with stereo, a communications system, a sauna bath, more complete training facilities, private conference rooms and more and larger meeting rooms.

GETTING INSIDE, Dan McHargue of Rockland, (34) getting a gentle nudge in the back from Hagerman's Nicholas, scored on this unique two-handed release during A-4 district tournament play Tuesday. Hagerman shook off the effects of a layoff and the tournament jitters to finally beat the Bulldogs 61-48.

Weber rallies to edge Utags 63-62

LOGAN, Utah (UPI)—Willie Sojourner and Brady Small combined for 35 points to lead the Big Sky champions Weber State to a 63-62 victory over 18th ranked Utah State Tuesday night.

NFL Bears shift to new site

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Bears signed a lease Tuesday allowing them to play all their home games for the next five seasons in Northwestern University's Dyche Stadium.

Trailing much of the game, Weber allowed the Aggies but two field goals in the final five minutes as they came from behind for the win. It was a tenacious man-to-man defense that controlled the tempo of the game and gave the Wildcats a victory in the first meeting between the two schools.

For Utah State the high scorer was Nate Williams, who tied Small for high point honors with 18 points. Utah State actually scored more points from the field, hitting two more goals, but Weber took advantage of 26 foul pitches, sinking 19, while Utah State could hit only 14 of 19.

It was a tight game throughout as the score was tied 11 times and the lead changed hands eight times.

A university spokesman said Northwestern's need for a rent-paying tenant such as the Bears was "economic."

As for the Bears, the university's stadium seats 55,000 persons as compared to Wigley Field, their present gridiron, which has a capacity of about 46,000 for football.

Under the terms of the lease, Northwestern will receive 12 per cent of the box office receipts for each of seven home games on the Bears' regular schedule. The Bears, according to the agreement, will schedule an eighth game in Dyche Stadium with the city of Evanston as beneficiary.

The lease provides for Evanston to receive approximately $100,000 each year from the one pre-season exhibition game, the spokesman said. The estimated $100,000 for the city's coffers will be in addition to about $11,000 per game, or $88,000 per season the city will receive from admission taxes. The five-year lease could result in an income of about $2.2 million for the university, the spokesman said.

Grand jury calls owner

CLEVELAND (UPI)—A federal grand jury investigating possible anti-trust violations by the National Football League has subpoenaed Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell to appear when hearings resume here March 8.

Modell would be the third president or former president of an NFL team called before the jury, which started its inquiry late last year, but has been recessed several times. John Maccom Jr., owner, president of the New Orleans Saints, and Jerry Wolman, former owner of the Philadelphia Eagles, testified previously before the panel.

TWO AT ONCE, Murtaugh's Mark Howard, in background, backs the arm of Howard Stahecker, Castleford (30) with the result that teammate Lynn Reese got a poke in the eye. Action came on a rebound play during Castleford's 58-55 upset of the Devils. At left is Castleford's Steve Peterson.

Increased concentration has returned Palmer to top rung major championship which has eluded him, said Tuesday there is a simple reason why he's playing golf better these days: "I'm working at it much harder than I have in a long time," said 41-year-old Arnie in the clubhouse after a practice session for the PGA championship which opens here on the PGA's own East Course on Thursday.

Palmer, who has finished second in the PGA three times, including last year, scored his first tournament victory of any kind in 14 months when he won the Bob Hope Classic at Palm Springs, Calif. a week ago and obviously that triumph has helped his confidence that he finally can end his jinx in the PGA.

Man ends 65 years with Giants

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI)—Eddie Brannick, who has seen 'em all from the carriage days of Christy Mathewson to the jet age of Willie Mays, resigned Tuesday as secretary of the San Francisco Giants, a club he was associated with for 65 years.

Brannick, in failing health the last five years, informed Giants owner Horace Stoneham of his intentions to retire by telegram from Palm Beach, Fla., and Stoneham made the announcement here with obvious emotion.

Gooding, Mushers favored in meets opening Thursday

The Gooding Senators and Camas County Mushers carry the favorite tags into the fourth district A-2 and fifth district A-4 tournaments, respectively, Thursday night but neither will see action until Friday.

Gooding, with only a couple of scares, has not lost to any of the teams it will face in the A-2 meet at Jerome and Camas County has the same boost against its Northside A-4 counterparts.

The A-2 tournament opens at 7 p.m. Thursday with Wood River going against Filer and Buhl taking on Jerome in the nightcap. The Wood River-Filer winner will have a bye Friday night with the two first-night losers playing at 7 p.m. and the winner of the Buhl-Jerome tournament taking on Gooding.

At Richfield, both Camas County and Richfield will be in the wings while Carey meets Gooding State at 7 p.m. and Dietrich goes against Bliss. Friday night, the Mushers will meet the winner of the Carey-Gooding State game while the Dietrich-Bliss winner tackles Bliss.

TWO OF 28 points scored by Haft River's Jim Wickel are on the way over the rim stretched hand of Hansen's Walt Freeston (44) during sixth district A-4 tournament play at Burley Tuesday night. At right is Hansen's Carl Crockett. Haft River spunned the Huskies 57-52.

First-round sites for NCAA basketball tourney selected

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—First round sites in the NCAA basketball championship were announced Tuesday as West Virginia University, St. John's University, University of Pennsylvania, University of Houston and Utah State University.

A spokesman said the selections completed the sites as Notre Dame was named earlier. All first round games will be played March 13. Invitations to at-large teams will be extended next Tuesday. Pairings will be made March 3 and starting times announced March 4.

The East Regional first round will include three single games, at West Virginia, St. John's and Pennsylvania. Three at-large teams will compete with automatic qualifiers from the Ivy League, Middle Atlantic Conference, and Southern Conference.

Issel dups but keeps ABA lead

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dan Issel of the Kentucky Colonels fell below the 30 point mark this week but he still remained in first place in the American Basketball Association scoring race with a 29.7 average.

John Brisker of Pittsburgh and Mack Calvin of the Floridians are second and third but the real threat now is Rick Barry of the New York Nets. Off to a slow start because of an injury, Barry is practically tied for third and he's barely two points a game off the pace set by Issel; Barry has a 27.45 mark while Calvin is 27.51.

Winners along with the victor of the Atlantic Coast Conference will advance to the Regional at North Carolina State March 18 and 20. Houston will host the Midwest Region's first round in a doubleheader. Participants will be three at-large teams and the Southwest Conference champion.

Roberts runs past Vandals

NEW YORK (UPI)—Terry Sawchuk, who set National Hockey League career records for most shutouts and games played by a goaltender, Tuesday was chosen a posthumous winner of the Lester Patrick Memorial Trophy for 1971.

Roberts runs past Vandals

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI)—Nationally-ranked Oral Roberts University won their 21st game of the season against five losses as they downed the Idaho Vandals, 94-80, in a non-conference game Tuesday night.

Carr hits 45, Irish belt NYU

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Austin Carr and Collins Jones led Notre Dame in a romp over the New York University. Tuesday night for a 106-68 victory in non-conference basketball.

Carr scored 45 points, bringing him to a 2,325 point career total and putting him in a tie with Lew Alcindor for 11th place in all-time college scoring honors.

Jones, who had 25 points, got his team's massive lead over NYU off to a good start early in the game. The score was tied three times in opening minutes and stood 9-9 when Jones took the ball for five straight points.

Defending champion says he doesn't deserve favorite tag in PGA tourney

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (UPI)—Defending champion Dave Stockton, "tired" and suffering from low blood pressure, insisted today he shouldn't be a favorite in the PGA golf championship opening here on Thursday.

"Just because I won the PGA six months ago in Tulsa, Oklahoma, doesn't mean I should be favored to win the PGA this week in Florida," said the dark-haired, 30-year-old champ from Westlake, Calif.

"Some fellow who has actually won over this particular course would be a better choice," he added, but then admitted that he believes he does "have a chance" because he has been playing well recently despite not feeling very well.

myself doing it. "As far as I'm concerned," he said with a grin, "I'm ready to tell Arnie Palmer that he can have all this chasing around in airplanes, going here and there."

"I was in New York City last week," he went on, "and when I got home to California on Wednesday I was feeling punk. So on Saturday I went to the doctor. He took my blood pressure and then took it again because he didn't believe it. I always have low blood pressure, anyway, but this time it was 70."

"Heck, my doctor said he's got cardiac cases that have better blood pressure than that. He told me I should rest four or five days, but I told him I couldn't because I had to come here this week. He laughed and gave me some shots, and I took one day off with my family, and then came here, and I'm feeling quite a bit better now."

Stockton, who won by two strokes in Tulsa, and the par 36-72 East course of the PGA National Country Club, where the tournament will be held, could be the kind of course on which he plays well.

and were forced to fly here after a rain-delayed 36-hole windup on Monday. The Tucson players straggled into West Palm Beach via a charter plane and reached their hotel at 4:30 a.m. Tuesday.

4 added to golf shrine

HOUSTON (UPI)—Singer Bing Crosby, golfer Homero Blancas, oil millionaire R. E. "Bob" Smith and sports editor Dan Shulls of the Houston Post were elected Tuesday to the all-America Golf Hall of Fame.

Stockton and Palmer were not among the pros who competed in last weekend's Tucson Open

The four will be inducted April 13 at a banquet during the 17th annual all-America Intercollegiate Golf Tournament, which features 28 of the nation's top college golf teams.

Stockton's reign could be the shortest in PGA history. If he loses here, because the PGA was the last of the "Big Three" U.S. tournaments to be played in 1970 and is the first this year. But history is on his side—the last time there was only six months between tournaments, Denny Shute successfully defended the crown in 1936.

Stockton and Palmer were not among the pros who competed in last weekend's Tucson Open

Crosby, founder of the Crosby Pro-Am, was cited for his contribution to amateur and professional golf the last 30 years. If Crosby is not able to attend, Maurice Luxford, who supervises his Pro-Am, will accept in his behalf.

Blancas, who won more than $100,000 on the pro tour last year, is the first former winner of the tournament to be honored. He won the event in 1961, was co-champion in 1960 and was runnerup in 1962 when he was an all-American golfer at the University of Houston.

Smith, considered the richest man in Houston, was one of the original owners of the Houston Colt .45s, now the Houston Astros. He also underwrote the prize money for the 1953 Houston Open Golf Tournament.

Czech plan crumbling

VIENNA (UPI)—The last remaining clause of Alexander Dubcek's short-lived "action program" is crumbling.

That clause is the one that instituted Czechoslovak "federation"—a move that gave Slovakia, for the first time in its history, more or less equal status with the more educated, industrialized, prosperous and powerful Czech lands.

Dubcek, a Slovak, included this federation in the "action program" when he introduced it on April 9, 1968, at a time when his now-discredited liberalization was at its height. The "action program" also included a range of civil rights—freedoms of speech, assembly and the press, secret elections, freedom of travel—that disappeared within a year of the Soviet-led invasion of the following August.

But Dubcek's successor, Communist Party First Secretary Gustav Husak, also is a Slovak and there were hopes that, whatever else he chipped away, he would allow the federation plan, which was enormously popular in Slovakia, to remain.

Federation is likely to remain, at least on paper, for some time. But a series of measures taken over the Christmas holidays have reduced it to an empty shell.

Through government decrees and parliamentary moves, the regime has all but eliminated Slovakia's autonomy in economics and put the nation's economy back under central control from Prague—a Czech city. This is called "integration" and the purpose, as the parliamentary bill put it, is "to strengthen the integrating function in the sphere of developing a united Czechoslovak economy."

Under federation, separate Czech and Slovak passports were issued. The new law
