TEN CENTS

"TRESPASSERS" are unpopular fellows these days around the premises of the Cascade Commodities Corp., formerly Carter Packing Co., near Buhl. This brand-new sign was seen over the weekend by Times-News staff member Gary Baxter. Apparently the result of several photos of piles of dead animals around the place, the sign attempts to keep lensmen and reporters at bay.

Warning

Agriculture priority dropped, Roberts says

(Editor's Note: This is the first of two articles on an interview with Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, involving legislative decisions and topics of general interest to readers of Magic Valley.)

By O.A. (GUS) KELKER
Times-News Editor

BOISE — Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, Sunday charged Gov. Cecil Andrus with assigning greater priority to things other than those of an agricultural nature even though agriculture is the most predominant source of income in the state of Idaho.

In an exclusive interview with the Times-News, the Buhl legislator said the governor took this step in order to make his proposed budget balance.

"The governor's idea of priority is taking money away from agriculture and assigning it in other areas," Representative Roberts said. "Every proposed reduction that he made in his budget was against the Department of Agriculture all the way down the line."

Roberts, a member of the joint Finance and Appropriations Committee, said this situation came to light when the committee was hearing the budget requests of the Department of Agriculture. It was determined, he said, that the governor recommended no funding at all for the Water Resources Board revolving fund, which is to develop irrigation projects. He also failed to ask for support for two "critical" programs. These, Roberts said, were the white fly and beet leafhopper control projects.

The legislator said the joint committee has recommended in their proposed budget that these agricultural cuts be restored "and I feel that the restorations will be approved."

"I feel that the governor's approach is the wrong approach because lack of pest control funds could be critical for farmers all over southern Idaho, and yet the chief executive completely ignores this damaging possibility," Representative Roberts said.

Turning to the kindergarten issue which is "dead" for this session following a house vote last Friday, Roberts said he is certain the request for support will be made again at the regular session next year but that "it will be defeated again."

"I still feel that there is the feeling among legislators that they want to try and solve the education problems and adequately take care of the needs of the public schools at the primary and secondary levels and also that they take care of the needs of higher education," he said. "The kindergarten proposal this year was defeated with only one vote different than a year ago. It shows that the same attitude continues to prevail."

Chou pays Hanoi visit

LONDON (UPI) — North Vietnam disclosed today that

Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai had just visited Hanoi in connection with "U.S. aggression." Diplomats said the visit meant Hanoi is in trouble and wants help.

First diplomatic assessments of the unexpected visit said Peking in turn is determined not to allow the Hanoi regime to be defeated militarily or to be weakened to the point of political crisis.

The diplomatic assessment said the Chou visit reflected the apparent success of the current U.S.-backed South Vietnamese operation in Laos against the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

The high level of the Chinese mission, its composition, the time of the visit and not least the fact that Hanoi asked for the Chinese leaders all point to new developments in crisis proportions, the assessment said.

Burley man dies from injuries

BURLEY — Harrison Mathews, 27, Burley, died early Sunday at Lutheran Hospital, Denver, of injuries received in a truck accident on Feb. 23 near Denver.

Colorado State Police said Mathews' truck brakes failed on a downgrade on Interstate 70 west of Denver and his vehicle overturned before it was struck by an auto driven by Robert B. Cass, 29, Lakewood, Colo.

Funeral services are pending at Payne Mortuary, Burley.

BOISE (UPI) — Legislators returning to the 57th legislative day today faced several major problems to be solved in the session, including that of General Fund spending for 1972.

The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee planned to meet Saturday on the basis of announcements from two sources another $3 million in revenue might be available, but canceled the session as Senate floor work continued late last afternoon. The Senate spent a major portion of its Saturday debate discussing two minimum wage laws, passed both and sent one to the governor and one to the House.

The first measure approved, S.B. 103, would raise the minimum wage in the state from $1.25 to $1.40 by July 1, and to $1.50 by July 1, 1972.

The second bill contained the same minimum wage provision, but also provided for exemptions, including those for seasonal workers. It passed 21-10 on March 5.

Court rules out objectors' claim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled today that a draft registrant may not claim conscientious objection to a specific war such as Vietnam.

Speaking for the court, Justice Thurgood Marshall said Congress in passing the Selective Service Act intended to exempt persons "who oppose participation in all war— participation in war in any form."

"Persons who object solely to participation in a particular war are not within the purview of the exempting section," Marshall ruled, "even though the latter objection may have such roots in a claimant's conscience and personality that it is religious in character."

The court's 8-1 judgment affirmed lower court decisions against two draft registrants.

Guy Porter Gillette of New York City was sentenced to two years in prison for refusing to report for induction. Louis A. Negre of Bakersfield, Calif., sought to get out of the service after he was drafted but his bid was rejected by a lower court.

In recent years the Supreme Court has broadened the right of draftees to conscientious objector status on general grounds of opposition to war but the two cases decided today were the first to deal with specific objections to a specific war—Vietnam.

Justice William O. Douglas cast the lone dissenting vote in today's action.

Gillette, in a letter to his draft board, called the Vietnam conflict "unjust and illegal."

Negre, a Roman Catholic, was drafted in 1967 but applied for conscientious objector status after he was ordered to report for duty in Vietnam. Roman Catholic doctrine differentiates between just and unjust wars and leaves the individual free to consult his own conscience on the matter.

Negre's application for discharge said that if he were to go to Vietnam: "I would be violating my own concepts of natural law and would be going against all that I had been taught in my religious training."

The court was told at the time of arguments, however, that Negre was not in the service but in the ready reserve.

The draft law exempts a person who, "by reason of religious training and belief, is conscientiously opposed to participation in war in any form." But it specifies that an exemption is not mandatory if a person's beliefs are "essentially political, sociological or philosophical views, or a merely personal moral code."

Justice Hugo L. Black concurred in the disposition of the cases but only in part with Marshall's argument.

Hearing ordered March 19

TWIN FALLS — Fifth Judicial District Judge James M. Cunningham today signed an order setting March 19 at 10 a.m. as the time for officials of Cascade Commodities Corp., Melvin Carter and Carter Packing Co. to appear in court and show cause why a temporary restraining order should not be issued against them.

The restraining order was asked in a complaint filed late Friday by Russell Lyon et al, Buhl area residents, naming Cascade Commodities Corp., Melvin Carter and Carter Packing Co., as defendants.

The complaint asks the court to restrain the plant from further operation as a rendering plant on grounds it creates an unacceptable situation in the neighborhood due to strong odors from the collection of dead animals and the rendering process.

The complaint asks for a temporary injunction against the plant pending court adjudication of the case and requests a permanent court order to stop the rendering plant's operation.

Unions postpone strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United Transportation Union called a strike against two major railroads Sunday night but then voluntarily postponed it until Thursday when the lines asked a federal judge to block a walkout.

The strike was called without advance notice for midnight Sunday against the Burlington Northern and the Seaboard Coast Line railroads.

The rapidity of the UTU in calling it off indicated the action was a strategy move by the union since "selective strikes" have been ruled illegal by federal judges in some similar cases in the past.

Negotiations aimed at avoiding a nationwide strike were recessed Saturday without any date for new talks to allow each side to study the other's offers and to prepare for more discussions.

Union officials postponed the strike against Burlington and Seaboard until 2 p.m. EST Thursday to give U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt time to arrange a hearing on the railroads' request for a temporary restraining order against the strike.

Hijacker decides to quit

MIAMI (UPI) — A teen-ager, apparently spurred by his girlfriend, hijacked an airliner today but later changed his mind and gave himself up in Miami.

The youth commandeered a National Airlines jetliner during a scheduled stop at Mobile, Ala., and ordered it to Montreal. Once in the air, however, he decided to give himself up and told the pilot to fly to Miami where FBI agents arrested him.

Authorities identified him as Thomas Kelly Marston, 16, a sophomore at Davidson High School in Mobile.

'Dimout' ordered in Cairo

By United Press International
The Egyptian Interior Ministry ordered a partial blackout in Cairo today following expiration of the Middle East cease-fire at midnight. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat warned Sunday of the possibility of Israeli reprisal raids against Egypt.

Both Arab and Israeli troops were on full alert the length of the 103-mile Suez Canal, but hours after the truce expired there were no reports that hostilities had been resumed. Sadat refused to extend the cease-fire but diplomats believed a truce would continue on an hour-to-hour basis.

Official sources said the partial blackout was ordered by Interior Minister Sharawi Gomas, underlining the seriousness with which the government views the situation. He also issued "urgent orders on civil defense measures" after a meeting with his top aides.

Yank abduction said 'pro' job

ANKARARA (UPI) — A Turkish government spokesman said today the gunmen who kidnaped four U.S. airmen were "professional urban guerrillas" subsidized from abroad.

"This is the work not of ordinary university students, but of a small group of professional urban guerrillas," the spokesman said. "They are subsidized from outside Turkey and use the tactics of South American guerrillas. Some of the ringleaders have been trained by outside groups."

The airmen—Sgt. Jimmie J. Sexton of San Angelo, Tex., and airmen I.C. Larry J. Heavner of Denver, Colo., James M. Gholson of Alexandria, Va., and Richard Carazzi of Stamford, Conn.—were abducted at gunpoint Thursday and held for $400,000 ransom. The kidnappers threatened to shoot the captives unless the money was delivered by 8 a.m.

last Friday. The ransom was not paid and no word has been heard from the kidnapers since the deadline.

Troops with mine detectors returned to Ankara's Middle East Technical University today to resume their search of the grounds and six miles of underground tunnels that honeycomb the area carrying the campus heating system.

Automatic weapons, revolvers, rifles, large amounts of ammunition, gasoline bombs, wireless equipment and uniforms had already been found in the city, the spokesman said. Police still believe kidnaped airmen may be on the sprawling campus of Middle East Technical University.

Two thousand of the university's 5,000 students have been questioned and 27 have been charged with offenses involving the use of firearms in battles with police and troops Friday.

Judge's wife succumbs

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Maureen Jones Meehl, 38, wife of Twin Falls County Magistrate Judge Daniel Meehl, died of an apparent heart attack Saturday night at her home.

She was born in Boise on Dec. 11, 1932, and was married to Judge Meehl on June 7, 1969, in Twin Falls.

Mrs. Meehl was a practicing attorney in Twin Falls, and was a member of the Idaho Bar Assn., the American Bar Assn., and the Idaho Trial Lawyers. She had served on the Governor's Study Committee for Kindergartners, and was a former YWCA board member.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension with burial in Morris Hill Cemetery, Boise.

workers and employees who receive meals or tips while working.

Proponents of the second measure argued that to not allow exemptions for students would be to cut the youth out of work since employers might be unwilling to pay the higher salaries.

The Senate also approved, S.B. 104, and sent to the governor a measure to tighten the conditions under which a fraternal benefit society would be exempt from Idaho's insurance laws. The controversial bill would allow the commissioner of insurance to disallow the exemption if the society maintains an insurance agency structure, employs agents whose primary source of income is derived from the sale of service of insurance, or has as one of its primary functions the gathering of applications for insurance.

In the House, representatives passed the measure and 18 minutes before approving, 20-17, and sending onto the Senate legislation designed to control construction and use of waste disposal and industrial wells.

Rep. Lloyd Dunn, R-Georgetown, floor sponsor, said there was "ample evidence" that drain wells pollute domestic water sources and therefore should be regulated.

The measure would go into effect in 1974 and would place control of the program under the department of water administration.

Cyclists clash, 5 men die

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The duel of knives and chains among members of two motorcycle gangs that left five men dead and 21 injured Saturday night still has police confused about exactly what happened.

Police Chief Lewis Coffey appealed Sunday to residents of the East Side neighborhood where the near-riot broke out at the Polish Women's Hall to give information to police. He promised anonymity.

The only explanation the police could make for the brawl, which erupted at a motorcycle exhibition show, was that it was the culmination of a feud between members of the Akron Breed and the Violators, a motorcycle club from New York affiliated with the Hells Angels.

Eighty-four persons including at least four women have been taken into custody for questioning, but no one has been accused in connection with the fighting or the deaths.

Calley trial enters final testimony stage

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—The Calley murder court-martial entered what was expected to be the windup week of testimony on the My Lai massacre today. Some higher brass was called into the inquiry.

A court official said testimony should be finished by Friday—four months to the day since the start of one of the most momentous courts-martial in American history.

Today was only the 43rd court day, however, because of some lengthy recesses. Only the military trials of Brig. Gen. Billy Mitchell in 1925 and Marine Sgt. Matthew C. McKee in 1956 have approached this one in public interest and dismay, in national moral import and military intent.

Question...
My father is now an American citizen but he was an Austrian citizen in World War I when he enlisted in the U.S. Army. Is he entitled to veteran's death benefits?

Answer...
As a World War I veteran, regardless of citizenship, your father is entitled to a statutory $250.00 death benefit, grave marker, flag, and grave space in a National Cemetery unless he was discharged because of his alienage.

During the basic World War I period many American servicemen, who were citizens of enemy countries, were discharged from American service either at their own request or at the request of the American armed forces. No benefits are payable to veterans who requested discharge. Your father is entitled to burial benefits, therefore, unless the Veterans Administration can prove he was discharged at his own request because he did not want to bear arms against his native country.

Agriculture priority ignored, Roberts says

 Asked if the various discussions concerning the funding and establishment of a vocational program at the high school level were reaching the legislature he said "there is a bill which will come up for discussion Monday and this would be the implementing legislation for vocational high schools. He said estimates place the price tag of state-funded vocational programs at about $5 million yearly.

He praised the program which now sees area high school students attending vocational classes at the College of Southern Idaho and said that some state funds are involved in this year-old program.

He denied published reports that Magic Valley legislators had banded together to defeat the kindergarten bill and held that although Magic Valley legislators did vote that way, it was "more of a coincidence."

Ada County legislators and those of Canyon County were also joining to defeat the bill.

Representative Roberts said he does not believe that raising the driver training program fee from $3 to $5 will keep out any youngster who wants to enter. The saving on car insurance passed on to parents and guardians will more than pay for the increase, he said.

He was critical of the way the program had been operated and said that "bad management" has contributed to the fund plagued program. He said supplemental appropriations are unfortunate and that under the new driver bill "we are setting up a dedicated fund for driver training and we are also putting it very plain in the law that if the district goes over and above what is available then they are going to be on their own."

He said supplemental appropriations were asked in 1967 and 1969 and that this year there is $432,000 in reimbursement claims from the school districts while there is a balance of only $97,000 in the fund. The bill would also raise regular driver's licenses $1, with this dedicated to the driver fund program.

Roberts said that the proposed one cent raise in gasoline tax, designated for use of cities in street programs, is not expected to be "in addition to" the money the cities are now raising by mill levy method.

"We expect that the mill levy for street work, now ranging from four to 21 mills, would be sharply cut when the gasoline money is available," he said.

(In the second article Tuesday, Roberts discusses the fate of HB-104, a different way to provide for indigent funding, the anticipated length of the legislative session, and the possibility of new taxes in this session or in next year's session).

Gem site proposed for port

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Orval Hansen has asked the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to consider Idaho's Snake River Plain for its proposed $6 billion national inland spaceport.

Hansen suggested the area between Arco, Minidoka and Aberdeen for the site, pointing out that the flat and dry location of the plain along with its remoteness, likeness to the terrain for landing space vehicles.

The Idaho Congressman noted in a letter to NASA's Administrator that although Utah, New Mexico, California and Florida are making strong drives for the spaceport, Idaho has the most ideal conditions for the facility.

The bulk of the triangle shaped area proposed by Hansen is already owned by the government as Bureau of Land Management land, and contains no major mountain ranges to impair the take off and landing of vertical and conventional planes and spacecraft.

Suspect admits charge

TWIN FALLS — A Kimberly man who stabbed himself with a small knife Wednesday night as he was being booked into the city jail on two arson charges pleaded guilty Friday to illegal possession of narcotics.

Douglas Hoops, 20, was arrested on the narcotic charge and five other violations Feb. 14 after an automobile accident on Locust Street North. The arson charges, one first degree and one second degree, arose from two fires Tuesday night and early Wednesday in Twin Falls. Robert Galley, deputy Twin Falls County prosecutor, said all charges are still in effect. He said sentence was delayed on the narcotic charge, pending outcome of a pre-sentence investigation.

Policy sales lauded

TWIN FALLS — Several Magic Valley representatives of the Prudential Insurance Co. have been honored for their sales efforts, according to Ron Swallow, sales manager for the Twin Falls office.

The salesmen in the Idaho Falls and Magic Valley areas sold insurance totaling $1.5 million in face value during the two-month period of the competition which ended recently. This is as much as is sold in a full year in some instances, Swallow said.

Magic Valley representatives included Gene Barrus, CLU, Harlan Baker and Robert Tidd, all Twin Falls; Ron Woll, Buhl (working with the Twin Falls field office), and Leo Berry, Wendell.

Part of the investigation will include Hoops' confinement in State Hospital North at Orofino for evaluation, Galley said. Hoops is expected to be taken there sometime this week.

He was released Friday from Magic Valley Memorial Hospital where he had been confined under guard since the stabbing. After release from there he was placed in custody at the Twin Falls County Jail.

He has been arraigned on the two arson charges and the public defender was appointed to represent him.

Spring pickup nearing

TWIN FALLS — Despite that hint-of-winter chill in the air every morning, Spring is on the way, according to Twin Falls City Manager Jean Milar.

With Spring will come the annual chore of collecting and disposing of the winter-long collection of trash and yard debris.

Milar said yard cleaning debris, tree and shrub-pruning clippings and other trash will be collected by the trash contractor, Parks and Sons, during regular pickup schedules. Milar said he cannot justify sending city trucks on special pickup schedules, since Parks and Sons is being paid to collect household trash, and is better equipped to handle the material.

Residents must comply with the city ordinance, he said, in preparing such items for pickup. The ordinance states tree branches must be cut in lengths no more than six feet in length and no more than 75 pounds in weight.

Clippings from shrubs and bushes must be in bundles which can be easily handled by the collection crews and must not weigh more than 75 pounds.

All leaves, grass clippings and other small items must be in containers of sturdy construction and of no more than the maximum 75 pounds weight. Large plastic bags are ideal for this, Milar said.

Magazine attacked

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Education Association Executive Director Wayne York says nation's schools' magazine concerning per-pupil expenditures in Idaho is a "disservice" to Idaho educators.

He told IEA delegates meeting in Boise Friday the publication has been utilized by the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho to argue that the Gem state does not rank low regarding the needs of schools.

He said according to the publication's research analyst, the map and statistics quoted "were the final venture into the area of education statistics attempted."

TWIN FALLS — John Kuch, Tuscola County, Mich., will be the featured speaker for a sausage supper Saturday, March 13, at the Twin Falls High School gymnasium sponsored by Zone 3 of the National Farmers Organization.

Kuch is a native of Vienna, Austria, and came to America in 1921. He is termed a dynamic and entertaining speaker, by Boyd Brown, local NFO official.

He will speak on his life history and discuss the economic plight of Germany when he was a youth.

The sausage supper will be held from 5 to 8 p.m. Saturday with Kuch scheduled to talk at 8:15 p.m.

Devon Woodland, Blackfoot, state NFO national director, will be master of ceremonies.

Driver freed after trial on charge

TWIN FALLS — A Fifth District Court jury returned a verdict of innocent Friday afternoon in the reckless driving case of Michael Squires, 17, Twin Falls.

Squires was arrested last October on a citizen's complaint and the District Court case was on appeal from Justice Court where Judge Reed P. Maughan returned a verdict of guilty.

Squires, represented by Golden Bennett, and several other area youths were arrested on various complaints signed by a Hansen man who alleged the youths yelled obscenities as they drove past his house.

The man, John Brasier, followed the teenagers and alleged that their vehicle, driven by Squires, attempted to force him off the road.

Water rates rise

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho public utilities commission authorized Saturday a rate increase for the Boise Water Corp., to add $566,000 per year to revenue.

RESOURCES Portland Oregonian

Neither the bill to establish a Department of Natural Resources nor the proposal to move headquarters of four state resource agencies to the outskirts of Salem should be considered solely on the basis of dollars saved and administrative authority improved.

subject to replacement en masse by a new governor, or an incumbent governor in response to political pressure. Fundamentally, the Department of Natural Resources bill is an attempt to further that view of government which supports centralization and strengthening of the authority of a strong executive.

WASHINGTON — In the face of continuing Israeli refusal to withdraw from Egypt's Sinai Peninsula, the United States now is almost certain to join its cold war foe and Egypt's benefactor — the Soviet Union — in putting new pressures on Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir. This means that, for the first time since the six-day war of 1967, U.S. and Soviet delegates at the United Nations may unite in a major move aimed at Israel — a move that would align Washington with Moscow at a cool point in the cold war and bring unpleasant political reaction at home for President Nixon.

recently, the Israelis had been convinced that President Nixon ultimately would understand Secretary of State William P. Rogers (author of the Sinai withdrawal plan) and support Israel's demand for semi-permanent occupation of the heights of Sharm El-Sheik overlooking the strategic strait of Tiran. The awakening for Israel came in Mr. Nixon's State of the World address last week, which pointedly repeated Rogers' demand for nearly total withdrawal from lands captured in the 1967 war.

Clean Slate

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Little notice has been given to what may be the most radical attempt in this country's history at reform in dealing with men and women accused of crime. If experiments now in their infancy are successful, there may be no trial, no sentencing and no "record" for many men and women arrested and brought to court.

experiments is simple. A man is (it's hoped) less likely to commit crime if he has a stake in society.

PAUL HARVEY Vultures

The little jackals again are yapping at the heels of the lion. And the red-beaked newshawks are circling, hoping to dine on the carcass of J. Edgar Hoover. But you and I have seen him outlive generations of them — and he will again. When the FBI director reported an East Coast conspiracy to sabotage our nation's capital and to kidnap a high-ranking government official, he kicked open a hornet's nest. "Now we've caught the director with an indefensible exaggeration," the Hoover-busters decided. "If it's true, Mister F.B.I., why don't you show your evidence to a grand jury and get the guilty indicted?" So he did — and they were. Now the red-beaked newshawks and at least one member of Congress, with egg all over their faces, appeared pretty silly. Thus personally angered — and determined to throw a smoke screen over the accused brothers Berrigan — they launched a counterattack. It's not the first time the vultures have sought to get the un-gettable Hoover. I saw another generation of these same birds gang up on him when his agents arrested Reds in 1940 and periodically since. Then, as now, they sought to portray accused conspirators as persecuted and the director as the persecutor. Then, as now, they said the FBI was a "gestapo" and the director should be forced to resign. And the non-generation of cynical cannot conceive of any public official without a personal skeleton in his private closet. So this time their tiresome attack has included

"surveillance" of the director. One of the Lilliputian scardalmongers assigned his own "agents" to follow Hoover around; to wait outside his home and trail him to the office, to watch from a restaurant table near his. Ostensibly, this childish charade is intended to show the director how uncomfortable it feels for "an innocent person to be watched." Actually, of course, the FBI does not conduct surveillance of any person except in instances where in there is already evidence of a federal crime. His detractors, amateur and professional, know that. But they are trying to throw their own shadows over him. One yellow journalist found a letter which the bachelor director had written to a long-time family friend which Hoover had signed with the word "Affectionately." And the obviously innocent letter, when published, appeared under the headline: "Hoover's Letters To A Washington Widow." Our nation's Number One Lawman, the personification of integrity, is not personally vulnerable. Always, however, there is a real danger that false charges might seriously injure the image and effectiveness of the FBI. That is Mr. Hoover's concern and we must make it ours. Congress passed a law in 1960 allowing Hoover to retire at full pay. Such is this man's love for his country that for 10 years he's been working for us for love, not money! Generations of taxpayers and eight Presidents have appreciated that rare degree of selfless loyalty, so do I.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Ulcer Diet

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About two years ago after a strict routine of diet and exercise prescribed by my doctor, I lost 33 pounds and felt so much better, and needless to say looked much better. But last year I developed an ulcer. Now I am gaining weight — 14 pounds so far. Is there any way to keep an ulcer under control and not gain weight? I drink quite a bit of milk. — Mrs. A.L.

But put a whole pat of butter on a soft-boiled egg, and you can double the calorie value right there. Or you can push the calorie total higher than that if you fry your eggs, scramble them, or make omelets. With these precautions, limiting your fat intake, you can take care of your ulcer and still avoid a lot of calories, and caloric foods are what make fat. You should thus be able to curtail your weight increase, and perhaps even shed a few of the 14 you've added. But I do concede that the necessity of keeping food in the stomach to combat an ulcer does complicate the task of controlling weight.

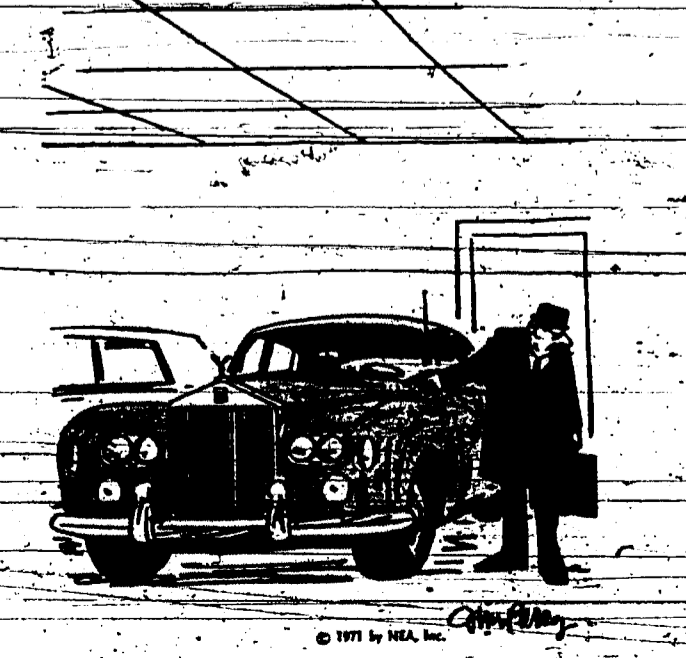

First of all, keep this firmly in mind: the main principle of an ulcer diet is to keep something in the stomach of a protein nature. It combines with the excess hydrochloric acid in the stomach and, by absorbing such free acid, protects the ulcer from being irritated. Note that protein-type foods, and not fats, are the main essential element. Milk is a convenient food for this purpose. Whole milk contains 160 calories per cup. Skim milk (with much of the fat removed) contains only 90 calories per cup, a saving of about 45 per cent in calories.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How long is it safe to keep turkeys in a deep freeze? I know of some people who plan on using turkeys that have been frozen one, two, or three years and I am worried. — Mrs. E. B.

So switching to skim milk ought to help quite a bit. But there are other ways. With meat and poultry (both high-protein foods) keep them just as lean as possible. Cut off visible fat; roast or broil rather than fry, because frying adds to the fat and hence the calories. What do you spread on your bread? A pat of butter or margarine contains about 75 calories. Spreading very thin can lop off some more calories. Cheese is a protein food, but some types have fewer calories than others, and cottage cheese is lowest of all of them from that standpoint. How do you cook your eggs? Eggs are high-protein, too, and hence helpful in using up excess stomach acid, but the way you cook them can make a vast difference in calories. An egg represents something like 75 calories, depending on whether it's a big or a little egg. Poach the egg or boil it (either soft-boiled or hard-boiled) and the calorie value is unchanged.

What are ulcers? How should they be treated? What can you do to help rid yourself of ulcers and stay rid of yours? For answers, read Dr. Thosteson's helpful booklet, "How To Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them Healed." For your copy write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling. Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

BERRY'S WORLD

Peace Corps volunteers set varied record in 10 years

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In its first 10 years, the Peace Corps has sent volunteers to improve the Phillippine rice harvest, restore the Grand Mosque in Tunis, repair city buses in Guyana and dig unworkable latrines.

They also have picketed Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in Afghanistan, been officially kicked out of 10 countries, "liberated" two floors of the agency's Washington headquarters during a sit-in, and drunk great quantities of native beer.

One volunteer was eaten by a crocodile.

Since President John F. Kennedy signed an executive order March 1, 1961, calling for recruitment of a group of "ambassadors of peace," about 50,000 Americans have spent at least two years each in trying to improve the standard of living in backward parts of the globe.

A decade later, not even the volunteers agree if the effort has been worthwhile.

Monday's 10th anniversary birthday party at Peace Corps headquarters, a block from the White House, also marks the end of an era. Long proud of its semi-independent status within the government bureaucracy, the Peace Corps is about to be merged with its domestic counterpart, Volunteers In Service To America (VISTA), and the Teachers Corps, bringing all the government's government's volunteer agencies under one roof.

Joseph H. Blatchford, now Peace Corps director, will head the new agency. Blatchford is still searching for a name for the Peace Corps-VISTA alliance.

For most Americans, the Peace Corps was born in San Francisco's Cow Palace six days before the 1960 presidential election.

Locked in a tight race with then Vice President Nixon, Kennedy proposed in a rousing campaign speech "a Peace Corps of talented young men willing and able to serve their country ... for three years as an alternative to peacetime Selective Service."

Legislation later was enacted that enlarged on Kennedy's proposals. Women were to be included and volunteers were to be deferred, but not exempted, from the draft.

Kennedy promptly named his brother-in-law, R. Sargent Shriver, head of Chicago's Merchandise Mart, the Corp's first director.

The first project tended to concentrate on "community and rural development." Young volunteers, after short but intensive training, and guided only by an "instinct" for self-government and a liberal arts education, were dropped into a strange society and expected to judge for themselves what needed to be done. Their primary skill was enthusiasm.

One critic at the time passed the volunteers off as "pony-tailed coeds and crew-cut Jack Armstrongs playing Albert Schweitzer—an appalling army of innocents abroad."

(For some corpsmen, however, it was no fling. Seventy-three have died during their overseas tours, two in the past week in West African motorcycle accidents. The other fatalities included two girls buried in last summer's massive earthquake in Peru and a 24-year-old New York teacher who was eaten by a crocodile in 1966 while swimming with friends in a river in remote western Ethiopia.)

The corps also suffered an early embarrassment when a postcard from a volunteer who had just arrived in Nigeria fell into the hands of local officials.

"We really were not prepared for the squalor and absolutely primitive living conditions rampant in both the city and the bush," Marjorie Michelmore wrote to a friend in Massachusetts. "Everyone except us lives in the streets, cooks in the streets ... and even goes to the bathroom in the street."

The unhappy Nigerian government lodged a protest and Miss Michelmore was recalled.

But these were minor irritations. With a speed unusual for the federal bureaucracy, the Peace Corps put together a staff and began to move volunteers into the field—first to Tanganyika, then to other parts of Africa, Latin America and Southeast Asia.

There were 750 volunteers in the first year; 6,600 by 1963, and 15,500 by 1966. Confident officials began predicting an eventual 100,000 corpsmen spread around the world.

But in the late 1960s the bloom began to fade. The New Frontier was gone, disenchantment with the nation's involvement in Vietnam was widespread, particularly on college campuses, and Peace Corps applications had dropped off sharply.

The corps had been "invited out" of nine countries by 1969, but almost always as part of a local government power struggle—rather than because of misbehavior by volunteers themselves.

More significantly, a number of countries began requesting more skilled volunteers and fewer "generalists."

In May, 1969, Nixon named Blatchford to be the Peace

Corps' third director at a salary of $40,000 a year. (Shriver had worked for a token $1 a year and his successor, Jack Hood Vaughn, was paid $28,500.) The wages of volunteers have not changed in 10 years—$75 a month "allowance pay" deposited for them in a U.S. bank during their service, plus a small living allowance.)

"Where has the corps been and where is it going? The answer depends on who you ask."

A poll of 7,000 returned volunteers showed most of them felt some personal benefit from their "Peace Corps duty," but only 25 per cent thought they had contributed anything worthwhile to the country where they worked.

To counter this attitude, Blatchford has revised the recruiting procedure and placed first priority on signing up volunteers with usable skills—farmers, tradesmen, mechanics and experienced teachers.

About 350 skilled tradesmen—carpenters, welders, plumbers, mechanics—will go overseas next year, compared to 60 in 1969, according to Blatchford.

"The numbers are jumping tremendously," he said.

The Peace Corps also has reduced its overall staff while increasing the number of foreign staff members and the amount of training done overseas. And volunteers are now participating in United Nations-sponsored programs.

If the volunteer spirit is alive in Middle America, as Blatchford insists, there is little indication of it among the young. Plate glass windows in Peace Corps headquarters regularly are shattered by rocks thrown by young radicals.

During the massive antiwar demonstrations of May, 1970, a group of former corpsmen seized two floors of the Peace Corps Building, hung Viet Cong flags from the windows, and made speeches through bull horns.

A committee of Returned Volunteers organization has sprung up in several cities. Its members are convinced their own Peace Corps service only foisted American mores on unsuspecting peasants, to the eventual benefit of U.S. big business.

"The Peace Corps is in a very difficult position," Blatchford admits. "We are set up as a government agency and we get called part of the government establishment by radical students. All we're trying to do is do the job."

Litter spreading

NEW YORK (UPI)—Snowmobiles are taking people to places of scenic beauty unreachable by other modes of transportation. And in so doing they are introducing previously untouched woodlands to the blight of litter.

"Wherever people go, litter seems to follow," observes Allen H. Seed Jr., executive vice president of Keep America Beautiful, Inc., the national litter-fighting organization.

Litter left behind by snowmobilers can range from cigarette butts, matchbook covers, candy wrappers, facial tissues and beverage containers to the remnants of a picnic lunch, he comments.

LOWELL WARD

RICHFIELD — A. IC Lowell G. Ward was named squadron airman of the month, according to word received by his parents, Mayor and Mrs. Clifford Ward, Richfield. The award was based on the airman's outstanding technical ability; professional attitude, military appearance, and exemplary conduct on and off duty.

The certificate was signed by Lt. Col. George C. Gilbreath. Airman Ward is stationed at George Air Force Base, Calif. He has completed one year of his four-year enlistment. His wife resides near the base and is employed in the telephone office in Victorville.

SHOSHONE — Chan Evans on leave from the Great Lakes Training station, has been visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Gardner, Shoshone, and has visited his mother, Mrs. Dean Evans, Oklahoma City.

He left March 4 for San Diego naval station and will be sent to Saigon in Viet Nam. He graduated from Shoshone high school in 1970 and entered the Navy June 13, 1970.

SHOSHONE — Dana Newby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reid Newby, left Boise this week for Lackland Air Force Base, Tex.

TWIN FALLS — Sgt. David Pinkston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmer C. Pinkston, Twin Falls, has graduated from the Special Forces School at Ft. Bragg, N. C. He will be assigned to Ft. Devens, Mass., with the Special Forces.

Sgt. Pinkston is a graduate of Twin Falls High School and attended the University of Idaho for three years before entering the service.

Movie features Kimberly man

POCATELLO — The ancient skill of flintknapping — fashioning stone tools by hand — is documented in a series of four educational films to be released soon by the Idaho State University Museum and the ISU News Services.

The films feature Don Crabtree of Kimberly, considered an expert in flintknapping. The films were made possible by a $55,000 National Science Foundation grant to the ISU Museum.

They are designed for undergraduate classroom use by anthropology and archaeology students. Museum Director Dr. Earl H. Swanson Jr. said they are not self-sufficient or self-explanatory, but will be used in conjunction with written materials. He expects them to be available for purchase and rental about May 1. They will be accompanied by supplementary print materials. The color and sound films are from 20 to 30 minutes in length.

The series includes "The Flint Worker," which shows methods of flaking stone cores to fashion tools; "Ancient Projectile Points," detailing methods of forming the points; "The Alchemy of Time," demonstrating the heat treatment of glassy rocks and techniques of replicating fluted points, and "The Hunter's Edge," which shows production procedures for various types of stone blades.

Crabtree began flintknapping as a hobby when he was a child and now is considered an expert — one of the few in the world —

Production and photographs of the films is by Norm Holve of the ISU News Services. The films are narrated by Crabtree and by William N. Harwood, director of the Division of Publicity and Publication Services at ISU. Swanson directed the filming.

The ISU museum will receive royalties from sales or rentals of the films to be used to cover expenses arising from further negotiations with the film marketing agency. Hopefully, royalties will be sufficient to permit production of further films, according to Swanson.

Aids research

STEPHEN SLANE, Hagerman, left, graduate student in psychology, aids Dr. Sheldon I. Plumer, Idaho State University faculty member, in nervous system research project.

Hagerman student assists in project

POCATELLO — Research expected to further understanding about the integrative capabilities of the nervous system has been started at Idaho State University by an assistant professor of psychology who has been awarded an $826 faculty research grant for the work.

The objective is to assess the modulating capacity that the caudate nucleus in the brain exerts on behavioral patterns," said Dr. Sheldon I. Plumer, who is carrying out the research. His assistant is a graduate student in psychology, Stephen Slane, Hagerman.

The exact title of the project is: "The Effects of Caudate Stimulation on the Acquisition and Performance of Classically Conditioned Behavior." Cats will be used in the research.

"Animals cannot perform tasks requiring extensive integration of the musculature during electrical stimulation of certain structures in the brain, such as the caudate nucleus (Plumer and Siegel, 1969)," Dr. Plumer said in a description of the work submitted for the grant.

For two decades investigations have assessed the influence that caudate activation exerts on the neural centers which regulate the motor system, but they have been unable to uncover the mechanism which is responsible for causing the behavioral inhibition," Dr. Plumer added. "The purpose of the present study is to determine whether the locus of inhibition resides at some level of motor elaboration or if it is at some higher level of the nervous system.

"Recent studies indicate that brain stimulation can produce temporary states of amnesia and confusion, making it impossible for the organism to relate to its environment.

Last year a series of experiments was initiated to determine if these disruptions were also caused by caudate stimulation (Plumer and Siegel, 1970). It was found that while caudate stimulation inhibits muscular activity it does not disrupt memory or the ability to learn new associations. However, general conclusions concerning the locus of inhibition cannot be made for the memory and learning tests were conducted after 150 trials, and caudate stimulation has been found to lose its inhibitory effectiveness as the animal gains experience with the testing situation.

"Thus, the possibility exists that caudate activation disrupted associations earlier in the training period and learning occurred only after the stimulation lost some of its influence.

Terminating the caudate stimulation during selective intervals of the acquisition period, and noting the development of the ensuing learning functions will enable a more definitive statement about whether caudate activation exerts a disrupting influence on higher neural processes or if it just disrupts motor activity. This will help further our understanding about the integrative capabilities of the nervous system."

Coeds, too

COLLEGE WOMEN can be concerned with the military almost as much as the men. Maj. William R. Foster, a ROTC instructor from Idaho State University, Pocatello, confers with a young woman at CSI on the merits of Air Force against Army careers. Maj. Foster pointed out that the Army program offers payment while in school and a commission as a first lieutenant upon graduation.

Cadets dispel fears

TWIN FALLS — Many students worry needlessly about the draft; at least one-third of all students are medically exempt anyway, so why worry? This was the counsel offered worried College of Southern Idaho students Thursday by a contingent of Reserve Officers Trainings Corps (ROTC) cadets and their instructor, who visited CSI to confer with students and promote the ROTC program.

Cadet First Lt. Jim Dauven, Buhl, said that "Most students feel they have no chance to escape the draft when they get their notice; some get the notice and head for Canada. At least one-third of all students are automatically exempt for medical reasons, so any students should at least find out before he panics," Dauven said. Any young person of draft age can ask to take the draft physical with no obligation or danger of bringing himself to the attention of the draft board, the cadet said.

"We spend as much time counseling students on the draft as we do explaining the advantages of ROTC to them," Dauven added. "Most students tell us what their draft number is and ask what their chances are," he said.

The ROTC cadets, Dauven and cadet Maj. Charles Chambers, Filer, were accompanied by their instructor, Army Maj. William R. Foster.

No hostility was expressed by CSI students, the cadet said. "We get some needling from the long-hairs at ISU, but I feel that's mainly because they think they're expected to harass us — like they're on one side and we're on the other," Dauven said.

Both Dauven and Chambers plan military careers; Dauven in Army intelligence and Chambers as an Army pilot. The ISU ROTC program paid for his flight training completely, Chambers said; "and I'll get my private license just one week from tomorrow," he added.

JAMES DAUVEN, a cadet first lieutenant in the ROTC at Idaho State University, explains the advantages offered by the ROTC program during a visit to the College of Southern Idaho Thursday. The ROTC cadets and their instructor, Army Maj. William R. Foster, spent more time counseling students on their draft obligations than they did recruiting for the ROTC, Dauven said. In for tests

NEW YORK (UPI) — Talk show host Johnny Carson entered a hospital Sunday for what an NBC television spokesman described Friday as a mild case of hepatitis. NBC said Joey Bishop would host Carson's "Tonight Show" on Monday while Carson undergoes a series of hospital tests. Joan Rivers took over Carson's spot on the program Friday night.

Faith carries pro grid star

By TERRY BRADSHAW Pittsburgh Steelers' quarterback

In one way or another, people had been warning me about the rough times in store for me. I was 21, single, just out of Louisiana Tech and about to play my first season of pro football as a quarterback for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"Sure, back at Tech you were a star," I heard them muttering, "but Tech is a small school. It never played the power teams." What they're really saying is, "Look out, kid, you might get smothered in the big time."

People have a way of hinting about things that could happen to me as I moved out of my "country" South and into places where there's the crackle of big money and the whiskey flows and the girls are waiting outside the locker-room door.

They said I run the risk of letting down a lot of sports fans, and a lot of them kids; if I don't play and live up to the best.

Maybe I should be worried about these things, but I just can't seem to work up a sweat about what could go wrong, I'm too excited about what could go right. For I took a lot more than suitcases with me to Pittsburgh. I took with me three special advantages I've had in my life. One of them is a lifetime of preparation to play pro ball. Everyday for as long as I can remember I've had a football in my hands, throwing and catching, spending hours at a time aiming at the narrow space between my mom's clothes lines.

In senior high, my body didn't seem to be mechanically ready to coordinate. I was clumsy, with big hands, big feet and such skinny legs that the other kids called me Bird Legs Bradshaw. But everyday I worked out, and I worked hard, and little by little overcame my handicaps. Now that I'm with the Steelers, I'm not going to stop working.

Another advantage I took with me was the good example of people I've known. My brother Gary's for one.

He's a year older than I am and when he was little, he dreamed of playing pro ball one day, too. Gary had a great future. Even today he can throw a ball 70 yards.

But when Gary was 10, we were off visiting my grandmother in Coshatta, La., and Gary fell 30 feet out of one of her gumtrees. He broke his back, and that meant no more football for him.

But Gary didn't give up sports. He and I both went to Tech. By the time my senior year rolled around, he was doubling as a trainer in the athletic department and as manager of the football team. He was also my greatest fan, always telling me, "You'll be the best," always the first one to get to my side when I got the breath knocked out of me during a play.

I'm taking what Gary stands for with me: You learn with a guy like Gary what courage it takes to accept defeat and come on again strong in another role.

The third advantage is a realization of my gratitude to God. I owe my health, my body, my talent, no matter what I did to improve these things, to God. Realizing that, I've known times when I get such a feeling of joy, that I want to jump up and shout to everyone my love for the Lord, my gratitude to Him.

I've discovered that when you have faith in the Lord, you can't help but have faith in yourself. So I just don't plan to drop the ball — on or off the field.

Entertainment ailing as result of imbalance

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Paul Henreid, actor, director, producer, set forth an arresting theory on the low estate of show business, observing there is an ecological imbalance in entertainment just as in nature.

Essentially he says there are too many persons being entertained. The result is poor quality for mass tastes.

Generosity backfires

NEW YORK (UPI)—Charles Eisenstein is a 25-year-old Bronx resident who worked as a $120 a week clerk at the GAF Chemicals Corp.

Charles Eisenstein also is a generous fellow who loaned his limousine driver $20,000 to buy his own Cadillac, frequently took his wife and four friends to Las Vegas and Puerto Rico, bought his wife $40,000 worth of jewelry and gave 10 color television sets as gifts to relatives and friends.

Henreid is not a cultural snob. Neither is he pretentious. But it is his thesis that while the air we breathe is polluted with hydrocarbons and photochemicals, so is it alive with deadly — well, noxious — television shows and radio rock music.

A member of Hollywood's acting fraternity for 30 years, Henreid observed, "Television is the matter with Hollywood. Any art form which must appeal to a great many persons cannot have great quality. In television's early days only professional men, white collar workers and other educated men could afford TV sets.

"They were entertained every week by as many as 20 fine anthologies: 'Playhouse 90,' 'Robert Montgomery Presents,' 'Suspense Theater,' 'Alfred Hitchcock,' 'Climax,' 'Alcoa Theater' and many more.

"The writers were literate and the dramas and comedies well conceived.

"But more prosperity gave the lower education classes the opportunity to buy television sets. They wanted 'The Beverly Hillbillies' not 'Playhouse 90.'

"The result is all too apparent today. The same is true of the theater and motion pictures. As affluence increases quality diminishes.

"Gradually television has become the mass medium. It is similar to the pulp magazines of 50 years ago. That is my feeling, at least. And I think I'm correct about it.

"But we must also remember that in any period in history there has always been only a few fine artists, actors, sculptors, writers and musicians. Today there is a greater need for more of them to provide for the larger, more affluent population."

Henreid doesn't advocate an economic depression in order that the arts may bloom. He believes instead that the arts should maintain a high standard.

"Quality entertainment will always succeed. Anything less is an affront to audiences of every economic and social level."

Governing family job

CHELSEA, Vt. (UPI)—Town government is a family thing in Chelsea. The list, elected at town meeting this week, shows:

James Kennedy, town clerk and treasurer; his sister-in-law Phyllis, auditor; his nephew, Neil, selectman; a grandson, Richard Conroy, selectman; a son-in-law, Hollister, Martin, grand juror; his son, Ernest, town agent; a brother, Jack, fire warden; his brother-in-law, Glenn Sanborn, fire chief, and brother, Walter town moderator.

Special tax rules aid some Widows, widowers and heads of households can take advantage of special income tax rules.

Widows or widowers can continue to pay the rates applying to joint returns for two years after their spouse's death.

Heads of households pay on a schedule of rates that lie between those of an individual filing a separate return and a married couple filing a joint return.

An unmarried widow or widower whose spouse died in 1968 or 1969 and who maintains a household at the principal place of abode of a dependent child or stepchild will get the full income-splitting benefits on the 1970 return at the same rates imposed on a married couple filing jointly, if at the time of the spouse's death, they would have been entitled to file joint returns.

An individual is a head of household if he or she is unmarried at the end of the year, is not a surviving spouse, and maintains a home for at least (a) one child, including a stepchild, grandchild, foster child, or an adopted child, even though such child is not a dependent, or (b) any other related person for whom he or she is entitled to a deduction for an exemption, unless the deduction arises from a multiple support agreement. He must furnish more than one-half of the cost of maintaining the household.

A taxpayer is also a head of household if he maintains for his mother or father, or both, a household which is their home even though the taxpayer lives elsewhere, if the parent has under $25 gross income and the taxpayer contributed over one-half the parent's support.

A married individual who lives apart from his spouse during the entire tax year may qualify for head-of-household status if he: (1) files a separate income tax return, (2) maintains a home for a dependent son, daughter, stepson, or stepdaughter, for more than one-half of the tax year, and (3) furnishes more than one-half of the cost of maintaining the household.

Generally, a married individual is not entitled to the head-of-household benefits. However, he or she can be a head of household if married to a nonresident alien, or if divorced or separated under a final decree at the close of the tax year.

Final vote looms

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate votes for a fourth and probably final time this week on whether to force into silence the minority of its members who oppose changing the rules to stop filibusters.

To break the impasse, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield has offered a compromise intended to win over the reform side those senators who favor easing the two-thirds requirement, but who oppose making it possible for a simple majority of 51 votes to end a filibuster.

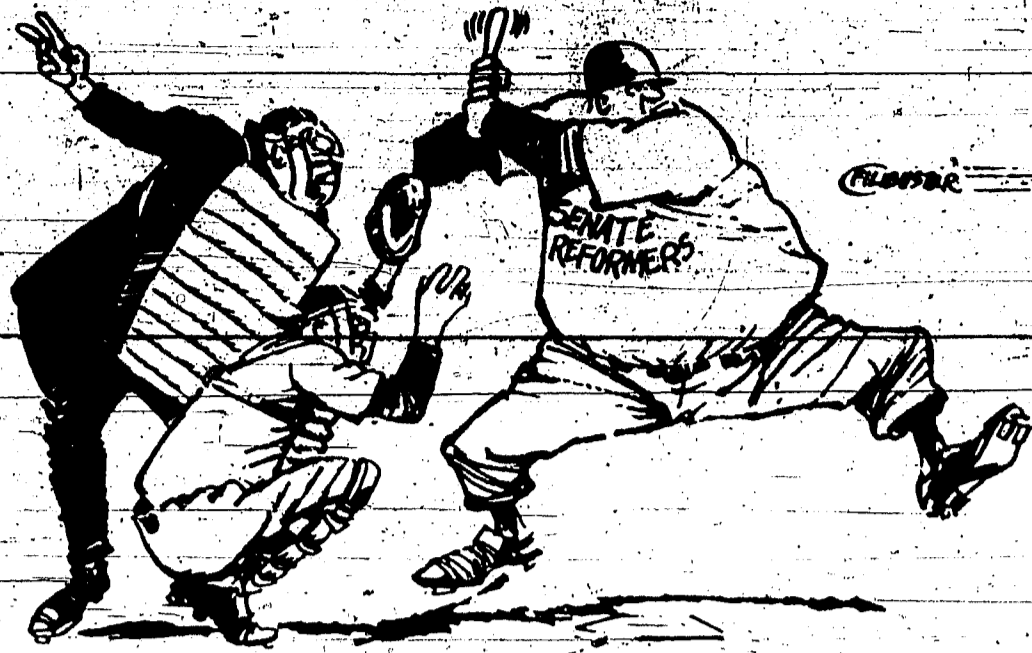

Those senators have felt that if the two-third requirement were reduced to three-fifths—a maximum of 60 votes instead of 67—the reformers' next step would be to allow a majority to impose cloture.

So Mansfield's compromise would permit a three-fifth vote to prevail on any issue except the issue of changing the filibuster rule. On that issue, under his proposal, a two-thirds vote would still be required.

Tuesday's vote will probably be the final vote on ending the filibuster. If it fails, Mansfield has warned the reformers, he will move to set the issue to rest, leaving it for next Congress, so the Senate can take up legislation.

All of the three previous votes have fallen about eight votes short of the required two-thirds majority, allowing the filibuster to continue.

"Strike one . . . Strike two . . . Strike . . ."

Increase measure delayed

BOISE (UPI)—The House put off Saturday until next Wednesday debate and action on two bills modifying the four per cent revenue increase limitation on local taxing districts.

On a nearly party-line vote of 37-26 the House cut off debate on a measure to repeal the limitation outright. Rep. Wayne Tibbitts, D - Lorenzo, voted with the Republicans to hold the bill until next week while Rep. E.V. McMan, R - Ketchum, voted with the Democrats against the motion.

Then, after brief opening remarks by Rep. John Reardon, R-Boise, the House voted 47-17 to hold Reardon's bill to make it even tougher to go over the present four per cent limitation.

More taxes due

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Millions of Americans, many of them very poor, will discover by April 15 that they owe the government money because not enough taxes were withheld from their paychecks.

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) said that although a majority of all taxpayers will qualify for a refund this year as every year, some persons who normally expect to get money back will have to send a check along with their returns this year.

The problem is a fallout from the Tax Reform Act of 1969. As often seems the case in income tax matters, the reasons for the problem are complex. But they all stem from the fact that withholding rates and actual tax rates start from different assumptions.

There are about 25 brackets—ranging from 14 to 70 per cent of taxable income—on the government's income tax rate schedule. This determines the amount each taxpayer owes.

But there are only six brackets—ranging from 16 to 31 per cent—on the withholding schedule which determines how much money actually will be deducted from paychecks.

In addition, there is a difference in the income base for withholding and actual taxes. The final tax is applied against "taxable income"—earnings minus deductions and the $625 personal exemption for each member of the family. Withholding rates are applied against earnings minus exemptions although the rate structure is adjusted to account for the 10 per cent standard deduction.

All this, of course, has been the situation for years. The difference this year is the low income allowance which Congress super-imposed on the Tax Reform Act. The provision removes from the tax rolls about 5 million poor people.

Returns no longer are required for single persons with incomes under $1,700 or from married couples with incomes under $2,300 a year.

The first new problem comes when both husband and wife work at low wages. Withholding rates assume that each spouse is the only wage earner, so if wages are low enough to qualify, nothing will have been withheld.

But when the actual tax return is filed, the couple will be entitled to only one low income allowance. In addition, their combined income might be too high to qualify for the allowance at all.

Benjamin Franklin proposed the idea of daylight saving time as far back as 1785.

Venezuela tax boost on oil starts today

CARACAS (UPI)—Venezuela will raise tax prices today on the more than 3.6 million barrels of oil exported daily in a move that will have a major impact on fuel oil prices on the U.S. East Coast.

President Rafael Caldera is expected to announce hikes of between 50 and 60 U.S. cents over the levels used here since 1967 to collect taxes from such international giants as Esso, Shell, Gulf, Mobil and Texaco.

The total impact of the new prices on the more than one million barrels per day of heavy fuel oil Venezuela supplies to major eastern U.S. cities alone is not expected to be felt until the end of the month when oil companies begin annual renegotiation of supply contracts.

Oil companies are reluctant to speculate on how much prices will go up and how much of the increase will be absorbed by the consumers.

Venezuela has waited until the March 8 deadline set by congress for establishing new oil prices in order to use the Tehran oil settlements and current negotiations in Tripoli as a guideline for fixing new levels. Last December, congress voted power to the chief of state for unilaterally fixing oil-tax prices without negotiating with companies affected.

Previously, Venezuela held direct negotiation with oil companies. In 1966, a system of tax-reference prices was established for payments of taxes on oil exports here.

Although industry sources have reported that the average tax price for Venezuelan oil will probably rise from the current $2.01 per barrel to about $2.51 per barrel, congressional spokesmen have said that the average may go as high as $2.62.

"This issue transcends regional or ideological rivalries," Humphrey said in a speech at the 8th North American Invitation Model-United Nations.

"Polluted oceans will wash the shores of nations both communist and capitalistic—old and new, rich and poor. Polluted air knows no boundaries. Rivers that flow between nations recognize no sovereignty."

The U.S. proposal, Humphrey said, should be presented at the U.N. Environmental Conference in Stockholm in 1972. Then, he said, the plan could be presented to the U.N. General Assembly the following year.

Navt Capt. Edgar D. Mitchell described space expenditures as "an investment in the future" of a type that must be made to keep America abreast of technical developments.

Air Force Lt. Col. Stuart A. Roosa assailed extreme criticisms of the space program as "irrational statements from otherwise responsible people," but would not say whom he had in mind.

As a first step, Humphrey said, "the commission ought to be given power to impose forms of commercial sanctions on nations who violate the pollution codes."

The former vice president said President Nixon should convene a White House conference this year "to consider a plan to create, through the United Nations, a body of international law directed toward protection of the environment, and a U.N. Commission on Pollution Control to enforce the law."

"The commission ought to be given power to impose forms of commercial sanctions on nations who violate the pollution codes."

British postal force returns

LONDON (UPI)—Britain's postal service creaked back into operation today and began dealing with a backlog of 70 million pieces of mail accumulated during a 47-day strike.

Postal officials estimated about 11 million items were in the nation's internal pipeline waiting to be delivered, with another 60 million items overseas waiting to come in.

The strike, one of the longest in British history, cost the Post Office at least $64 million.

Election reform ideas pour forth

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress is getting more ideas than it can easily digest about how to rewrite obsolete federal laws governing the collection and use of money for election campaigns.

There is no more evidence than ever of a bipartisan or even a partisan consensus on new laws.

President Nixon has neither offered nor promised recommendations, although his party's leaders in the House and Senate have joined in sponsoring election reform proposals. But there is little similarity between the measure introduced by Sen. Republican Leader Hugh Scott and another co-sponsored by House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield is chief sponsor of a bill bearing no resemblance to recommendations of the top officials of the Democratic National Committee.

It has been almost 10 years since President John F. Kennedy reminded that an earlier Republican president, Theodore Roosevelt, had suggested in 1907 that the national political parties should be financed by the federal Treasury.

Kennedy liked the idea and appointed a commission to propose improvements in funding presidential campaigns. The commission refused to endorse Treasury financing, at least until tax incentives for campaign contributions were tested.

Congress still has not approved tax incentives for contributions, although they are proposed in many of the election reform bills which have been introduced.

Congress passed in 1966 and later repealed a bill to allow each income taxpayer to go into presidential campaign funds. President Lyndon B. Johnson then proposed in 1967 that presidential campaign expenses for travel and discussion of issues be financed by the Treasury, but Congress balked.

Because of soaring television costs, Congress passed a bill last year to limit what could be spent for campaign broadcasting. President Nixon vetoed it with the explanation that it would plug only one hole in a sieve.

Mansfield's bill includes the provisions of the vetoed bill along with limits on other campaign advertising, tax incentives for small contributions and new disclosure requirements for campaign spending without the present spending limitations.

Democratic National Committee officials recommended that the Treasury finance campaigns for presidential and congressional candidates but said the Mansfield bill was their second choice.

Scott's bill would provide tax incentives for contributors, new requirements for reports on spending, preferential rates for campaign broadcasting and repeal of spending ceilings.

President Nixon is worrying about a crisis in confidence in the government because of the way government is functioning.

The Democratic National Committee spokesmen said a campaign financing system, based on "hypocrisies and corruption," causes a shortage of confidence in government.

Idaho receives share of wildlife aid fund

BOISE — Last June the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife distributed nearly $18 million in federal aid funds to the several states for wildlife restoration programs under the Pittman-Robertson Act of 1937.

Idaho's share of this federal aid fund was $804,072.82. An additional sum of $222,659.92, was Idaho's allocation of federal aid funds for fish restoration work under the Dingell-Johnson Act of 1950.

Both funds are matched by 25 per cent state allocations to finance approved projects. Both "PR" and "DJ" projects are administered by the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

These allocations are for the current fiscal year July 1, 1971-December 30, 1972.

In the past three decades, nearly $500 million was distributed to the states under fish and wildlife federal aid programs, (land acquisition and research and development). Of this amount, $841,800.04 was spent in Idaho.

Work that is being done this fiscal year. Pittman-Robertson and Dingell-Johnson funds for fish and wildlife restoration come from excise taxes on guns, ammunition and fishing tackle.

The present rate of collection is about $50 million a year. It is allocated to the states on a formula based on geographical area and number of paid hunting and fishing license holders.

The hunting equipment tax began with the 1937 Pittman-Robertson Act and since its enactment more than $350 million has been collected. In Idaho a total of $7,550,992.93 has been spent of PR funds.

The fishing tackle tax was provided by the 1950 Dingell-Johnson Act. It has resulted in the collection of more than $100 million. Of this $1,973,876.79 has been allocated to Idaho for fisheries restoration work.

States submit projects for approval by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, which provides 75 per cent of the cost from the PR or DJ funds, according to Vernon Eitch, federal aid coordinator, Idaho Fish and Game Department.

Any diversion of federal aid funds dedicated for fish and wildlife restoration to other uses such as the building of public roads, schools and other general fund activities is prohibited by law.

Hunters have paid their part of this self-imposed tax for more than 30 years; anglers since 1950. All of this has gone mostly unnoticed by the average American.

Why? Chiefly because he was busy and only casually interested in conservation, and probably was oblivious to the urgencies that required attention. If he knew at all, he figured it was something the Izak Walton League would take care of — Ducks Unlimited or some other type of organized sportsmen's organization.

For nearly 70 years, long before the federal aid legislation, sportsmen, particularly, were nearly the sole supporters of fish and wildlife restoration programs which benefit everybody from bird watchers to rock hounds, and not just hunters and fishermen. When few people listened to their pleas for environmental concern, sportsmen asked for federal aid programs such as the excise taxes on guns, ammunition and fishing tackle. They agreed to pay for them without general tax support.

For 34 years hunters who use and enjoy the state's wildlife resources have made, through these federal aid programs, these monetary contributions to acquire and develop land, improve the habitat and sponsor investigative projects to solve pressing management problems and otherwise to perpetuate the resource. Not one dime of general property tax is used for these purposes.

The U.S. Treasury Department collects the money, then turns it over to the Interior Department's Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife for allocation to the states following a formula based on the area of the state and the number of paid hunting and fishing license holders.

The sportsmen proponents and far-sighted legislators who passed the federal enabling legislation visualized that the accumulation of hunter license fees in the various game departments may stimulate efforts to divert these funds for other uses than fish and game operations. That is the reason these self-imposed excise taxes paid by hunters and fishermen have been earmarked as dedicated funds by federal and state laws.

According to Rich, the Wildlife Restoration Act of 1937 provided that before these federal aid funds would be available to the individual states and territories there must be:

1. Enabling legislation that would give the state's assent to the provisions of the Federal Aid Act.

2. Laws passed for conservation of wildlife which shall include a "prohibition against the use of license fees paid by hunters for any other purpose than the administration of state fish and game departments."

He adds that, according to regulations, a diversion of federal aid funds occurs whenever they are applied by state to activities or purposes which are not a part of an approved project or when real property, acquired or contributed with federal aid funds under these acts passes from the control of the state fish and game department or is used for unapproved purposes in a manner or to an extent which interferes with the accomplishment of project purposes as they were approved by the secretary of the interior, or as they may be amended with his approval.

Idaho hunters and fishermen are receiving almost a million dollars of federal aid annually by today's computations.

George Burns rolling on strong at age 75

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — George Burns, at 75 and without his beloved Gracie, continued to throw away more good jokes with his drolleries than most comedians with a staff of writers.

George drops in on talk shows, makes a few television guest spots a year, plays cards at his country club and dates a few pretty girls.

His favorite topic of discussion is Jack Benny, who also is his closest friend.

"Jack has made millions, lives in a magnificent home and has everything he wants," George said. "So he's impressed with trivia, not important things."

"One day he signed a $2 million contract with a network and he came running up to me with big news. 'Guess what? If you go exactly 28 miles an hour up Wilshire Boulevard you can miss all the red lights.'"

Burns will appear with Benny in "Everything You've Always Wanted to Know About Jack Benny—But Were Afraid to Ask" on NBC-TV March 10.

Much as he admires Benny, Burns says Al Jolson was the greatest entertainer who ever lived although he didn't admire the man personally.

"When we worked the same theaters in New York," Burns explained, "Jolson always kept the water running in his dressing room while the other acts were on. He couldn't stand to hear applause for anyone else."

"Forty-five years ago Gracie and I were third on the bill at the Palace and Jack was fifth. After Gracie and I did our act I was supposed to do a sketch with Jack during his act."

"I walked on stage on cue and Jack asked me a question we'd rehearsed. I refused to answer him."

Jack asked, "Aren't you going to answer me?"

"I said, 'No.' Then he asked, 'Aren't you going to do the act?' Again I told him no. 'Then why did you come out on stage?' Jack wanted to know, totally confused.

"I said, 'I like the way you work, and I wanted to watch you.'"

Benny literally fell on the stage and began laughing his head off. The audience loved it even if a lot of them didn't know what was going on. But it was a matinee and full of actors who broke up.

"I only work when I feel like it. But Benny is a compulsive worker. When he has a day off he takes a fiddle lesson. In another 40 or 50 years Jack will be a great violinist."

In another 40 or 50 years George Burns will continue to be one of the funniest men in show business.

Builders schedule session

TWIN FALLS — A joint meeting of the Twin Falls Chapter of the Home Builders Association and the Idaho Employers Council will be held Tuesday night at the Rogerson Hotel Roundup Room, according to Glenn Call, secretary-treasurer of the homebuilders group.

Tom Hazzard, director of services for the employers council and George Ganz, communications consultant for the employers council, will conduct a seminar on the labor climate of the '70's. Fred Smith, manager of the council since its organization in 1958, also will be at the meeting.

The cocktail hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. and dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

The presentation by Hazzard and Ganz is based on analysis of recent employment trends and attempts to give employers insight into the kind of employee program which will be successful in years to come.

The presentation by the employers' council officials is being given throughout the state in a series of lectures.

Assembly meet set

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI) — President Mohamad Yahya Khan, in a move to end political chaos in East Pakistan, announced today the National Assembly will meet on March 25 to draft a new Constitution.

The Assembly was scheduled to meet in Dacca, East Pakistan, last Wednesday, but Yahya postponed it because of a conflict between the country's two major political leaders, Sheikh Mujibur-Rehman of the Awami league in East Pakistan, and Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, of West Pakistan's People's Party.

The postponement touched off a general strike, called by Mujibur, and widespread protest riots in East Pakistan. The unofficial death toll stood at 173.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Do I have a legitimate complaint or not? The only time my wife will have anything to do with me is on a Thursday night, because Friday is the day she gets her hair done.

Now Thursday nights are out because I belong to a bowling league which used to bowl every Wednesday, but they changed it to Thursday, and I don't get home from bowling until after midnight, and my wife is already asleep by then.

I am not about to give up bowling, Abby, and I think a man is entitled to some affection at least once a week. I am missing out. Any suggestions will be greatly appreciated. Don't sign my name or I will miss out forever. CHEATED

DEAR CHEATED: Ask your wife to change her beauty parlor day. (She's missing out, too!) Arranging a time schedule for that which should be spontaneous is not exactly up my alley.

DEAR ABBY: Mine is a very touchy problem. A very close friend of ours who worked with my husband died after a long illness. During the illness, my husband gave him about a dozen books to read. One was especially cherished because it was personally inscribed by Irving Stone, the author. It has been over a year since our friend died and his widow has made no effort to return the books. Not wanting to give her anything more to worry about than she already had, I never mentioned it to her. I know she's aware that the books have not yet been returned because she once remarked, "I am so ashamed of myself for not having returned those books yet."

If the books could be replaced, we'd forget it, but most of them have been out of print long ago. Please advise. FAITHFUL READER

DEAR READER: Telephone the widow and ask her when it would be convenient for you to bring her some cookies, flowers, or something else you have for her. And while you're there, remind her of the books she forgot to return.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the bride of four months who signed herself "UNHAPPY," because her husband never said, "I love you." And he never complimented her on the way she looked, or told her how much he enjoyed the dinner.

Listen, child, I've been married for 36 years and my husband never told me he loved me. And he doesn't compliment me on how I look or how I cook. He doesn't have to.

He shows it in everything he does. He has worked like a dog all our married life to provide me and our four children with the best of everything. He's never looked at another woman. He's strong and kind and generous. And he's always there when I need him.

Actions speak louder than words. Words come so easy for some and so hard for others. His actions are enough proof of his love for me. I thank God every day for my wonderful husband, and wonder how I ever got so lucky. INDIANAPOLIS

CONFIDENTIAL TO D. D. J.: "Was I who has said on more than one occasion that "love is a mental disease." In a very real sense it is. Perhaps that explains why so many marriages fail. They were contracted while both parties were out of their minds.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Premature aging listed as by-product of modern life

By PATRICIA McCORMACK NEW YORK (UPI)—Does your husband need a drink to pick him up when he arrives home from work? And does he pop a pep pill into his mouth to get a fast start in the morning?

If he does, he's what Dr. Ivan M. Popov, a distinguished youth doctor, calls a "young old man"—a victim of stress who is aging prematurely.

It happens to women, too. Dr. Popov said in an interview that such premature aging among contemporary humans is a by-product of modern life with its unusual stress on body and mind.

In addition to stress, he also blames pollution, synthetic foods, additives, harmful drugs. "All of these things," he said, "are degenerative forces that rob us of our health, vitality, youth and age-us prematurely."

For more than a quarter of a century, Dr. Popov has been a youth doctor, specialist in revitalization therapy, in Europe. He got his start in the

where an international aviation war in Germany after World War II. He was a British officer at the time. (A native of Yugoslavia, he also once was physician to that country's royal family.)

The men he treated then were 25 to 30 years of age. But stress and malnutrition "made them look older than 50." During the intervening years, Dr. Popov did research in revitalization therapy and practiced it as director of the Popov Clinic in Opio, France.

Out of his studies and those of other "youth doctors" has come an understanding of the profound organic relationship of natural biologic mechanisms and materials to human development and growth.

"It is in nature," said Dr. Popov, "that we have sought and found in biological forms and processes the medically sound therapies that could be applied to the regenerative process in man."

The various therapies range from embryo-to-cell therapy, with such things as seaweed and vitamin therapy in between. Even in Europe, with some 30 revitalization institutes, there is no one place where an international aviation war in Germany after World War II. He was a British officer at the time. (A native of Yugoslavia, he also once was

A Lovelier You

ARMS AND THE LOVELY

By Mary Sue Miller

Here's a way to tighten up flabby arms. That's the type that carries excess weight and insufficient muscle tone. The fault was once considered a mark of age, but that's not necessarily so. Women who take updated care of themselves can put off the trouble indefinitely.

Care in this connection means keeping your weight normal and the muscles exercised. A wise woman would turn her attention to both projects before her 30th birthday. Backsliders, however, are never too old to begin such a regimen.

In addition, corrective exercise is needed to firm already lax muscles and skin. Like so:

1. Stand erect, with arms outstretched at shoulder level. Drop hands so that wrists curve and fingers fall gracefully. Keeping elbow joints relaxed, slowly raise arms about 4 inches and turn hands upward. Then lower arms to shoulder level, dropping hands. Repeat 10 times without pause and then relax.

2. In same starting position, raise arms 12 inches above shoulder level and drop them 12 inches; turn hands as before. Twenty repeats.

As you will soon discover, the routine alternately tenses and relaxes the muscles; an action that is tonic to them. Do work for strong tension. Relaxation takes care of itself. But of course!

Do you really know the calorie counts of the foods you eat? Our leaflet, POCKET CALORIE COUNTER, tells the score at a glance. It also gives a diet plan—a way to eat and slim. One-wagon schoolhouse Barlow named director

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD HONOLULU (UPI)—The students Judith Parrish teaches from her "one-wagon schoolhouse" have a lot to remember.

They are U.S. combat casualties from Vietnam, recuperating at Tripler General Hospital. Some are missing limbs. Others are wrapped in bandages with the prospect of months in bed with nothing to do but stare out the window at the Pacific Ocean and the island sun.

But Mrs. Parrish, a dynamic educator, is turning their thoughts to the future by "giving them something to build their futures on."

Mrs. Parrish and her pushcart of textbooks are a familiar sight along the miles of corridors in Tripler, the main U.S. medical facility in the Pacific for treatment of war casualties.

She runs the directed study program, an individually designed course of study for the patients.

Mrs. Parrish, the mother of two boys, will tackle just about any subject and teaches at levels ranging from elementary school through college. Most of the 140 patients she instructs each month are preparing to finish high school or enter college.

She brings her "one-wagon schoolhouse," a cart filled with textbooks she's accumulated over the years, into the wards for her bedside lessons.

"I give a lot of homework," she admitted, "but they like it."

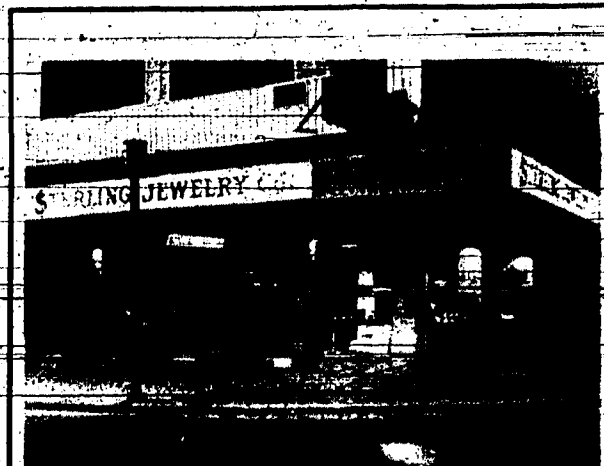

"The patients get awfully tired of TV. They sleep a lot, and there's occupational therapy and physical therapy, but reading keeps their minds busy. They know they're doing something for themselves, something that will help them when they get out."

The most elementary course she has taught was to a private who never learned to read.

Wendell clubs set day meet

WENDELL — Plans were made for All Club Day March 18 at 1 p.m. at the Wendell American Legion Hall at the meeting of the Pollyanna Club, Mrs. Fester Andersen, publicity chairman, said today.

She said the Wendell clubs to be involved are the Home Improvement Club, Mountain View, West Point, Hillandale Club, Pollyanna Club, and Hobby Club, which will serve as hostess. Each club is to provide a program number, said Mrs. Andersen, and all women of the community are invited to attend. Each should bring a dish for the potluck dinner and her table service.

Mrs. Delores Johnson presented the program, a fashion show entitled "Clothing Communicates." Samples of fabric, styles and color trends were demonstrated and each guest had the opportunity to choose a wardrobe and then have their choice verified as to the wisdom of their choice.

Mrs. A.F. Branch enhanced the program with the display of a number of antique brooches and buttons to go with today's fashions.

Guests were Mrs. Mark Strickland, Mrs. E. Sutton, Mrs. Fred McClure, Jerome, Mrs. Edwin Peterson and Mrs. John Johnson.

College fees debated

By LINDYHIGH
BOISE (UPI) — A Senate committee voted 5-3 today to send out without recommendation a bill which would permit Idaho's institutions of higher education to charge a maximum of $200 per semester for institutional fees.

But Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston, told the Health, Education and Welfare Committee he may prepare an amendment which would freeze the present fee charges rather than permitting the increase.

Objections came from those who questioned whether such a fee is constitutional in light of a court decision which declared unconstitutional fees charged to grade-school students in Idaho. The measure defines tuition as the direct cost of instruction. The fee charged would not be tuition but would cover such costs as building fees, auxiliary services, athletics and support services.

But Sen. Nels Solberg, D-Grangeville, said he felt a "free public school" system required by Idaho's Constitution extended through college and questioned whether such a fee is constitutional.

"I certainly don't want to be part of legalizing this," he said.

But other Senators argued that it is time for a court decision on such fees and the legal question cannot be raised until the legislature takes some action.

Sen. Leon Swenson, R-Nampa, said if the fees are wrong, "we should repeal them. If they're right, we should control them."

Sen. Joe Allen, R-American Falls, noted the institutions already are charging some fees and said the measure before the committee would place a limit on the fees.

"If we do nothing I can see very shortly they'll reach this maximum and then go beyond it."

Students set winter fete at Jerome

JEROME — The Jerome Senior and Junior High School winter concert is scheduled at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the high school, according to Carson Wong, music director for Jerome schools.

Performing groups will include the high school boys' and girls' Glee Clubs, junior high ninth-grade mixed chorus, the combined seventh-and-eighth-grade girls' chorus and the seventh-and-eighth-grade boys' chorus.

Wong said a concert is also scheduled March 22 by the varsity chorus, whose members will then travel to Boise for a performance during the conference of the northwest division of the Music Educators National Conference.

Retired chapter to form

BURLEY — Persons interested in joining the American Association of Retired Persons are asked to meet Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the Community Room of the Idaho Bank and Trust Co., Burley, to form a local association chapter.

Mrs. Hannah Sessions, state director of AARP in Idaho, announced plans for the organizational meeting. She said the new chapter will promote programs and services designed to involve retired citizens in community affairs.

All persons over 55 years of age, whether retired or not, are invited to attend and are eligible for membership. Those wishing further information may contact William A. Bower, at 678-7748.

T. F. man faces burglary charge

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man charged with first degree burglary was due to be arraigned today in Magistrate Court in Twin Falls.

Monte Joseph Sanborn, 27, was arrested about 2 a.m. today at Buttreys Foods in the Blue Lakes Shopping Center.

Capt. Tim Qualls of the Twin Falls Police Department said Sanborn was found inside the building by a janitor. He was taken into custody in the store by police officers and remained in custody this morning for failure to post bond.

King Hill sets school election

KING HILL — King Hill school patrons will vote Tuesday on changing the boundaries of the trustee zones and on a two-mile plant facilities levy.

The plant facilities levy, which will run for five years, will be used to purchase school buses for the district and improve and repair buildings and grounds, school officials said.

Polling places will be at the Ben Taylor ranch, home at Hammett; King Hill Grange hall; and the Glenns Ferry school administration office.

Shoshone scholars listed

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone High School junior class took the lead with number of students on the honor roll the past semester, according to principal Carl Kinney.

There were 14 juniors on the roll, nine sophomores, eight freshmen and nine seniors.

The seniors on the roll are Lisa Berriochoa, Gary Burkett, Stacie Churchman, Frank Garrett, Dorothy Hubbs, Mari Jackson, Patricia Saras, John Urrutia and Don Price.

The 14 juniors are Denise Blackburn, Cindy Chapman, Edward Chess, Jay Gaskill, Charlie Hansen, Pam Holt, John Johnson, Carman Kinney, Debbie Palmer, Mike Pate, Charlene Race, Kay Saras, Cindy Stimpson and Roy Thompson.

Club postpones

JEROME — The Northwest Music Club will not meet Tuesday evening as planned, but will meet on March 16 at the Baptist Church at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Virginia Warr, Pocatello pianist, will perform and her husband will sing.

The meeting date was changed because of a conflict with the Jerome High School and junior high school winter concert.

Church proposes anniversary coin

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church says he plans to introduce legislation to provide for minting of a set of commemorative silver coins to mark the 200th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

Church said the coins would be sold in sets to the general public on a first-come, first-served basis as collector's items.

"Until very recently, the coinage of the United States was silver," Church said. "Even today, we retain the silver Kennedy half-dollar and soon there will be a silver dollar in memory of President Eisenhower, which is expected to become a collector's item."

"The use of this precious metal not only gives intrinsic value to the coin but provides the fine detail in coinage unmatched by other metals," he said.

"It is appropriate that as we near the bicentennial of the United States we make plans to mark the occasion with commemorative silver coins, which could well become collector's items for years to come," he said.

New Jerome offices

A recently constructed, two-story, 21,000-sq-ft new office building, known as the Jerome Building, is located at 247-249 South Lincoln St. in Jerome. The building, formerly occupied by a beauty shop and a cable television firm, has been remodeled with a unique facade. The Adams and the roof of the building's base, located southeast of Jerome, is painted in the office.

Police probe thefts

TWIN FALLS — Residential sections of Twin Falls were plagued over the weekend by a series of burglaries, with five reported to Twin Falls Police by this morning.

Largest loss reported was at 224 Fourth Ave. E., the residence of Susan Hennessey, where a new color television set, valued at more than $450 was taken. Entry was made through an unlocked door, police said. The theft was reported at 3 a.m. today.

About $150 in change and bills was reported missing in theft at 1322 Heyburn Ave. E., police said. The house, occupied by Richard Morris, was entered through a door which was forced open.

At the Clyde Allen residence, 558 Pierce St., about $75 in change was reported missing. The burglary was reported about 12:15 a.m. today.

Two burglaries occurred on Sherry Lane over the weekend, with only a small loss reported in one. The Max Knight residence at 2018 Sherry Lane was entered through a window which was forced and about $5 in change was taken. The house was ransacked, police said.

At 2124 Sherry Lane, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Eblevins, nothing was taken, but the house was ransacked, police said.

Top speed pays off

THE OVER-ALL WINNER of the Goose Creek Desert Cross-Country Race Sunday was Bill Yhl, Boise, holding the trophy he won. He also received a $100 check for winning the 50-mile race. Over 92 cycles were entered in the race, but only 40 finished the race held south of Burley.

Boise cyclist wins trophy at Burley

BURLEY — A crowd of 400 turned out to cheer their favorite cycle rider on to victory Sunday afternoon at the Goose Creek Desert Cross-Country Cycle Race, sponsored by the Burley Jaycees. Bill Yhl, Boise, was the over-all winner. Yhl was awarded the large trophy, $100 and a case of beer for his 50-mile desert cycle win. He was riding a cycle owned by Wayne McCutchen, Boise.

There were 92 cycle riders that hit the trail at the shot of the starter. After the first lap, 15 cycle riders failed to make the complete round. At the end of the race about 40 riders checked in at the final check point.

The top three in each of the three classes were awarded a trophy and the next six in each class received gifts from local merchants.

Up to 125 cc. class winners were Tom Thomas, Boise, first; Dennis Robertson, Burley, second; David Bailey, Idaho Falls, third; Rande Baldwin, Idaho Falls, fourth; Clark Colkins, Pocatello, fifth; Frank Trafford, Idaho Falls, sixth; and Terry Webster, Twin Falls, seventh.

Up to 250 cc. class winners were Don Willhite, Boise, first; Jack Mortensen, Burley, second; Dave Blaylock, Salt Lake City, third; Steve Killian, Idaho Falls, fourth; Ken Gno, Big Piney, Wyo., fifth; Dick Capps, Twin Falls, sixth; Bob Koah, Idaho Falls, seventh; Robert Thompson, Burley, eighth; Barry Cazier, St. Anthony, ninth; David Peterson, Twin Falls, tenth; and Wayne Hash, Filer, eleventh.

Over-all class winners included Robert Cameron,

Pocatello, first; Cony Olson, Twin Falls, second; Robert Sword, Pocatello, third; C. P. Hammond, Freedom, Wyo., fourth; Marvin Schritter, American Falls, fifth; Vernon Bethke, American Falls, sixth; Larry Welker, Idaho Falls, seventh; and Ralph Espenosa, Hammett, eighth.

Cycle riders registered for the race from Utah, Wyoming and Idaho.

Richard Povlsen, Burley Jaycee, was chairman of the event.

Gifts donated from local merchants included meals, shirts, and cash. Sponsoring merchants included Michael Marc, Clair's Sporting Goods, Tom's Sporting Goods, Jensen's Construction Co., Garth's Music, Artie Circle, Turley's Machine Shop, Povlsen Repair, Burley Beverage Co. and Pizza Haven.

Shots hit train

SHOSHONE — Lincoln and Blaine county authorities are investigating a shooting incident in which a caboose owned by the Union Pacific Railroad was shot at Sunday.

Bill Anderson, Lincoln County deputy sheriff, said two unidentified men were riding in the caboose of a freight train running from Hailey to Shoshone Sunday afternoon when they heard two "thuds."

They told Anderson they then looked out the window and saw four boys and a car about 150 yards from the train. They noted that the time was 1:45 p.m. They later found two bullet holes in the side of the caboose.

Anderson said both counties are investigating. The incident occurred near the Shoshone Indian Ice Caves.

BSC president attends meeting

BOISE (UPI) — Dr. John B. Barnes, president, Boise State College, is in New York City this week to attend a seminar at Columbia University to study the latest techniques of management and planning.

He is one of 70 college presidents in the nation to attend the management and planning institute for higher education.

Minidoka society elects director

RUPERT — Rupert Postmaster Eytholle Greer was elected to a three-year term on the board of directors of the Minidoka County Historical Society.

Members saw a film on Alaska and heard a number of reports including a discussion of a museum workshop at Murphy by Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hollinger and Martin O'Donnell, who also said the Minidoka County Historical Museum will be open from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Other reports, Ernest Rails discussed the recently organized senior citizens' program in Rupert; Dwayne Madsen and Thomas Driesel, both of Heyburn, presented photos they took of Indian writings in the area, and discussed their study of early-day trails in the county.

Bill Schorman displayed his Indian artifact collection, most of which was located in the Minidoka-Cassia area, and Thayer Stevenson, Salt Lake City, Utah, and Mrs. Priscilla C. Hunt, Reno, former residents, said they have donated funds toward the work of the society.

The next meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. March 26 at the courthouse. R. H. Seymour, Murtaugh, will show slides and discuss his task of tracing his ancestors back to the landing of the Mayflower.

The public is invited to the meetings of the historical society.

Solons see little hope for service

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The members of the Idaho Congressional delegation believe there appears to be little hope for rail passenger service in Idaho after May 1.

After meeting with incorporators of the Railpax System, the Idaho legislators said that the Rail Passenger Service Act provides no alternatives through which service could be retained unless Union Pacific should decide on its own to continue operation of its present passenger trains.

Senators Frank Church and Len B. Jordan and Congressman James McClure and Orval Hansen called the meeting to present Idaho's case for retention of rail passenger service.

Red Cross taps Shoshone aide

SHOSHONE — Russell Sweet, Shoshone, has accepted the position as Lincoln County Red Cross chairman, succeeding Oscar Kerner, who has held the post for seven years.

The Red Cross fund drive is slated for this month. Ward Rawson will be co-chairman for Shoshone, with Mrs. Oscar Kerner for North Shoshone; Mrs. Nyle Swainston, Richfield; Floyd Silva, Northwest Shoshone, and Glenn L. Sorenson, Dietrich.

Fire damages firm's trucks

TWIN FALLS — Trucks owned by Circle A Construction Co. were damaged Sunday when a wood fire spread out of control, Twin Falls Greenway reported.

The department was called at 3:40 p.m. and battled the fire for 45 minutes. Firemen said they removed the trucks from the area of the fire on Highway 200.

Strike harms pupils

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—Michael Northern, 16, goes to his ninth grade class every day, but his mother worries he will not be promoted next year because so many of his teachers and classmates are absent.

Michael is among about half of the city's 78,000 public school students who have continued to attend classes through a bitter, five-week strike by the Newark Teachers Union (NTU).

Nonstriking teachers try to conduct normal classes for the students who come, but some of the hours are filled with extra gym classes and historical slide shows in the school auditorium. More than half of the city's 4,400 teachers are working. They admit they teach only about 50 to 75 per cent of their regular classes.

The strike, which began Feb. 1 in a contract dispute between the NTU and the school board, quickly became enmeshed in violence, legal maneuvering and other issues including race and community control of the schools.

The NTU had strong teacher support when it staged a similar strike last year. As a result, it won several important contract items including a salary scale ranging between $9,000 and $14,000 and a binding arbitration clause.

When that contract expired last Jan. 31, the union again walked out. The school board wanted to put a hold on salary increases and change the language of the binding arbitration clause. The NTU accused the board of trying to take away contract improvements it won in 1970.

The board said the teachers' new demands would cost $10 million—money the city doesn't have.

The two sides met sporadically during the first weeks of the strike, but negotiations began regularly after a state mediator stepped in.

The two key figures in the strike are black—School Board President Jesse Jacob and Mrs. Carole Graves, president of the NTU. However, an estimated two-thirds of the NTU's 3,200 members are white and many of them live in the suburbs, adding to the racial overtones of the walkout.

There are areas where the union is strongly supported and the parents are with teachers on the picket line. Vincent Russell, union negotiator said, "Then there are other areas with little support. It varies from school to school."

Many teachers who supported last year's strike have continued to work this time. About 200 teachers were arrested last year, and many feared it would happen again. Others could not afford the loss in pay.

Friday opening

Rupert agency offices set open house Friday.

RUPERT — An open house is planned from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. Friday at the new building housing offices of agricultural agencies here. It is at the junction of Highways 24 and 25.

The Soil Conservation Service occupied quarters Feb. 1, next to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices. Farmers Home Administration and Minidoka

County extension agent offices were occupied early this month. Vern Hacking, district conservationist, said it is a policy in the Department of Agriculture that when any agency has to move to larger quarters that consideration of a consolidated location in the interest of service and convenience to the farmers and public be studied.

In checking it was found that the ASCS, SCS and FHA office space was inadequate. Size of office space for each was determined and bids were let and the Rupert Bowl Inc. was awarded the contract for construction.

Working in the ACS office besides Hacking are Bill Ross, soil conservationist, Jack Palmer, soil conservation technicians and Mrs. Marjorie McClellan, secretary.

Operating the ASCS office is Leo Van Every, county executive director. Francis H. Walker, field assistant; Lorinda Hunter, Nora Harwood, Helen Miller and Alverta Tucker, all program assistants. All of the employees are supervised by an elected board of farmers including Henry Schodde, chairman; George Abo, vice chairman and Tad Abo.

Older drivers

NEW YORK (UPI)—A firm specializing in insurance for the older driver suggests such persons cut down on nighttime driving, doing as little of same as possible.

"An older driver's eyes tend to be slower in reacting to changes in light than a younger person, and as nighttime driving requires a constant adjustment to oncoming headlights, night driving presents a problem for many older drivers," said Robert Pollack, executive vice president of the firm, Colonial Penn Insurance Co.

Milk tasting tricky trade

By JAMES M. EVANS
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Ever take a sip of milk and think to yourself, "That tastes funny?"

A lot of people have, and to reduce their number there are professional milk tasters employed to weed out bad-tasting milk.

One such is Bill Randle of Starkville, Miss., a student at Mississippi State University and still a novice taster getting his practical experience at a local dairy.

According to Randle, the biggest task is to make sure that only the taste and not the substance is added to the taster's diet. In other words, don't swallow.

"After all, you don't know what you're drinking," said Randle. "That's why you test it in the first place and why it's best not to swallow."

"One day I grabbed the first two or three bottles off the line, took a big swallow and, well, swallowed. It was full of chlorine that hadn't been flushed out of the lines. I learned my lesson," he said.

Bill Lloyd, head of quality control at the plant where Randle is training, said Randle, the son of a Mississippi dairy farmer, is "pretty good."

"The most important thing Bill will learn here is how to taste," said Lloyd.

He explained that the milk should be taken into the mouth, rolled around the tongue so that it touches all the taste buds—particularly those at the back that detect bitterness—and spit out.

He said the taster searches for the presence of wild onion and bitterweeds which include ragweed, horseweed, sneezeweed and bitter rubberweed.

"There's a slight difference in taste from season to season that we notice here but the customer never tastes," said Lloyd.

Beef backer

ROBERT HENDERLIDER, administrative secretary of the Idaho Beef Council, explains promotion and advertising methods used by the council to promote Idaho beef to growers Friday in Twin Falls.

Beef seminar conducted

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Cattlemen's Association and the Twin Falls County extension office sponsored a beef-cattle seminar with specialists from throughout the state discussing aspects of beef production.

In the morning session, Alex Sinclair of Louisville and Ritten and Co., Twin Falls spoke about "Profit Insurance" in cattle raising. Don Ricketts, a market analyst from Cattle Fax, Boise, explained aspects of cattle facts in marketing.

Eden cattlemen, Henry Jones and Don McFarland, described their use of high moisture corn in the feedlot.

Dr. J. Dahmen, superintendent, University of Idaho Branch Experiment Station, Caldwell, described the process of growing and finishing steers on alfalfa silage.

Beginning the afternoon session, Robert Henderlider, administrative secretary of the Idaho Beef Council gave a presentation on the promotion of Idaho beef. He explained the different projects and displays used by the council for advertising. He accounted for the advertising dollars used in public relations, advertising and promotion of Idaho beef.

A slide presentation was given by Fred Gilber, area extension livestock specialist, Twin Falls, on beef performance testing. He said performance testing is simply evaluating the true value of each animal. He explained the different traits in reproduction and production that are recorded. He described the tools of evaluation or work records in performance testing.

Otto Florence, Jr., Independent Meat Co., Twin Falls, concluded the afternoon program with a discussion of producing beef for market demands.

CSI clashes with Western tonight

Eagles meet toughest foe in first game of best-of-three series

The match up is almost ideal, the stakes are high and the caliber of competition could be the best ever witnessed in Twin Falls when the College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles meet Arizona Western College of Yuma Monday night in the opener of a best of three series that will take one of the teams to the national junior college tournament in Hutchinson, Kans., next week. The No. 1 ranked Golden Eagles will have the home floor advantage and it appears will need every inch of it. They carry a 31-2 record into the fray.

Arizona Western, the first region champion, will bring a 24-7 mark into the series. All games will start at 8 p.m. at the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium. It could end Monday and Tuesday night but it would be surprising if it did. This one could be a bitter basket-for-basket battle right through the final minute of Wednesday night's game.

Western Coach John Whisenant, a young personable man, brings a team that comes closest to matching the Eagles man-for-man that CSI has seen this year. The individual battles should be great.

Western's top gun — and only sophomore on the starting lineup — is 6-5 Wayne Williams, an honorable mention JC All-American last year. He will be going against Ron Behegan who will have three inches in height to help offset any edge in quickness Williams might have.

The center battle should be a good one with New York Bill Hagins of Western, a 6-8 frosh going against CSI's steadiest and perhaps strongest performer Tim Bassett, who is about an inch shorter. The other "big man" battle will be between Lovard Coleman, 6-7, and Western's biggest physically, and CSI's strong Ralph Palomar.

Perhaps a key to the series will be the guard line where Western has three fine offensive players in Candy LaPrance, a 6-0 New Yorker and rated an outstanding one-on-one player; Joe Babinski, 6-2, and Duane Talley, 5-11. Babinski and Talley have been trading starting nods of late and interchange frequently during games.

Against that trio which is considered best offensively, CSI will send two defense specialists and its first-team all-American of last year, Steve Hegens. Quick Victor Kelly, the shortest man in the tournament at 5-6, and Hegens, who is better offensively than on defense usually, probably will get the starting call. But Gary Quesnell, who teams with Kelly for a tandem of search and destroy defenders, will be at Coach Jerry Hale's right hand.

Western won its regional in overtime against Mesa College, Ariz., Saturday night after the two had shared the conference title. Western got into the top 20 in the national rankings only a couple of times this year, 18th being its highest. A three-game losing spell immediately after a 13-day Christmas layoff accounted for its decline in the eyes of the voters, evidently.

CSI was crowned mythical national champion in the final poll, carrying the top billing the last four weeks.

Invaders have arrived

Eagles' mat star beaten

Clackamas junior college of Oregon City, Ore. won the NJCAA wrestling championships over the weekend, crowning two champions and totaling 75 points. Dan Osterhout, wrestling for College of Southern Idaho, was eliminated in the second round in the 190-pound class. "It was one of the toughest weight classifications in the tournament," said Golden Eagles coach Bill Scruggs after returning from Worthington with Osterhout Sunday. Another indication of that was in the 134-pound division, where Clackamas' ace was beaten.

The regions champions, who beat Ricks College for that title in Moses Lake, Wash. last week, crowned Tim Williams in the 142-pound class and Glenn Snowley in the 177 division. The usual midwest domination of the NJCAA sport was apparent after Clackamas. North Iowa was second with 66 points and Triton JC of Illinois was third with 66 points.

"It was about the best national they've ever had," added Scruggs. "They told me that this year the quarter-finals were as good as last year's finals."

This was the first year that CSI qualified a wrestler for the national meet. Under Scruggs the Golden Eagles have shown marked improvement the past two seasons, this year finishing fourth in the ICAC championships and winning five dual matches — a new high.

Osterhout is a former Decis High School wrestling standout and his brothers have also excelled in the sport.

Crippled Lakers tighten Midwest race, drop Bulls

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Will Chamberlain sank 20 points and dominated the boards for a season high 32 rebounds Sunday night as the Los Angeles Lakers won their first game since the loss of Jerry West by coming from behind to defeat the Chicago Bulls 117-108.

The crippled Lakers had trailed by nine points at 71-62 with 8:45 to go in the third period before turning the game around.

In addition to Chamberlain's rebounding, Gail Goodrich returned after missing two games due to exhaustion to pour in 23 points and contribute a season high of 13 assists.

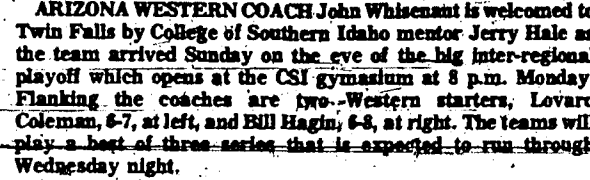

Happy Hairston and Keith Erickson also helped make up for the loss of the injured West with 22 and 18 points respectively.

Bob Love paced the Bulls with 28 points, but he scored only two in the final period when the Lakers outscored Chicago 30-21. Chet Walker also connected for 25 for Chicago.

The Bulls were still sailing along leading 82-73 with 3:22 left in the third period when Los Angeles got 16 of the next 21 points.

After Chicago recaptured the lead at 91-90 early in the fourth period, the Lakers put the game away by connecting on 14 of the next 18 markers.

Chicago started off cold hitting only 10 of their first 20 shots as Los Angeles streaked to a 29-24 first period lead.

ARIZONA WESTERN COACH John Whisenant is welcomed to Twin Falls by College of Southern Idaho mentor Jerry Hale as the team arrived Sunday on the eve of the big inter-regional playoff which opens at the CSI gymnasium at 8 p.m. Monday. Flanking the coaches are two Western starters, Lovard Coleman, 6-7, at left, and Bill Hagins, 6-8, at right. The teams will play a best of three series that is expected to run through Wednesday night.

Petty charges to Richmond 500 win

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Richard Petty, starting on the back row, quickly moved his Plymouth through the herd Sunday and claimed the Richmond 500 as his second victory of the five-race-old Grand National stock car season.

It was the 121st career win for the 33-year-old, Randleman, N.C., pilot, the wingedest driver in stock car history. He finished with an average speed of 79.836 miles an hour in the 250-mile event.

Two weeks ago he won the rich Daytona 500 and last Sunday finished third in the Ontario, Calif., 500. Petty and a brace of other top drivers were assigned to the rear of the pack in the 30-car starting field when their engines were found to be set back an inch too far on the chassis in violation of NASCAR rules.

He was forced to adopt a special carburetor plate, which he said cost him more than 50 horsepower, as a penalty. But he gunned into the lead on the 134th lap and, except for dropping it for 18 laps to Bobby Isaac during a pit stop, led all the way home.

Isaac finished second in his Dodge, four laps behind Petty. Benny Parsons was third with a Ford, Bobby Allison fourth in a Dodge and Dave Marcis fifth in a Dodge.

The win moved Petty's winnings for the year to $64,765 and moved him into a close second behind Isaac in the season's "Winston Cup" Grand National point standings, 548-535.

Indiana rolls past Colonels

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — The Indiana Pacers used the muscle of Mel Daniels and the hustle of Fred Lewis and Bill Keller Sunday to beat the Kentucky Colonels for the sixth time in their seven meetings this season, 127-122.

Daniels stuffed in a basket in the third quarter to give the Pacers a 79-76 lead and they led the rest of the way to snap a five-game Colonels winning streak.

Rockets coast by Portland

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Larry Cannon sank a short basket with 19 seconds left in overtime to give the Denver Rockets a hard-fought 142-141 victory Sunday night over the Floridians.

Cannon, who was traded to the Rockets by the Floridians last summer, was instrumental in the victory in several ways. He scored 35 points—second only to teammate Byron Beck's 36—and he sank two free throws with 2:36 left in the overtime period to keep the Rockets within range.

Cavs top Pistons 104-100

DETROIT (UPI) — Bobby Smith sank a basket with 29 seconds remaining Sunday afternoon, enabling the Cleveland Cavaliers to win their first road game since Nov. 11 and defeat the Detroit Pistons 104-100 in a National Basketball Association game.

The first-year Cavaliers, who have only won 13 games in 74 starts, were topped by Smith's 23 points and John Warren's 19, 11 coming in a furious fourth-quarter rally.

Cleveland trailed 94-94 late in the third period before they outscored the faltering Pistons 30-9 to take the lead 94-93.

The two teams traded points in the game's closing moments before Smith's baskets and Rutherford Raskley's field goal gave Cleveland the win. The victory was Cleveland's first in 27 straight road games since they beat Portland.

Bullets stave off Phoenix 117-108

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — The Baltimore Bullets withstood a last-minute Phoenix challenge to down the Suns, 117-108, in the National Basketball Association Sunday night.

The Bullets outscored Phoenix 10-2 in the last two minutes after the Suns had come from nine points down to within one, at 107-106.

Jack Martin led the Bullets with 28 points, including four field goals within a four-minute span midway in the third quarter when Baltimore sprinted to a 10-point lead.

Earl Monroe added 27 for the winners and Kevin Loughery had 23. Loughery reached the 10,000 point plateau in his pro career on a free throw with 41 seconds remaining.

The top scorer for the Suns was Connie Hawkins with 19 points; Hawkins, recovering from the flu, did not see action until midway in the third quarter. Dick Van Arsdale had 17 points and Neal Walk and Clem Haskins 15 each for Phoenix.

The Bullets, hitting 56 per cent from the floor to the Suns' 40 per cent in the first half, pulled out to a 57-52 lead. Phoenix came back with the opening five points of the third quarter to tie the score for the last time at 57-57. The Bullets then held a comfortable lead until the Suns pulled to within one twice in the final minutes.

Rockets edge by Florida

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — The San Diego Rockets, with center Elvin Hayes scoring 39 points and guard Stu Lantz 33, defeated the Portland Trail Blazers 135-121 Sunday night.

San Diego jumped on to a 40-22 lead 11 minutes into the contest and extended their margin to 67-49 at the half.

With the third period starting, the Trail Blazers cut the deficit down to eight points, 73-65 only to have the Rockets starting unit come back in off the bench and open a 16-point lead at the end of the period, 104-84.

The fourth period was played on even terms with Portland outscoring Rocket substitutes by two points.

Kinsella awarded AAU tab

CHICAGO (UPI) — Indiana's freshman swimming star, John Kinsella, received the Sullivan award as the nation's outstanding amateur athlete of 1970 Sunday. He said the trophy should give him "some incentive" to improve.

Kinsella, who set two world records and participated in a relay team which set a third mark last year, was voted the trophy in January.

He also holds three American swimming records. In the Big Ten meet which ended Saturday, he set three conference records, swam on two record-setting relay teams, and bettered two national collegiate records.

Kinsella said the award would provide him "new incentive to go out and do my best."

"I hope I haven't reached my peak," he said. "I've got to keep in shape mentally and that's the hard part right now. My immediate goal is 1972 and the Olympics and as long as I feel good, I'll keep on going."

The trophy was presented to Kinsella by Jack Kelly Jr., president of the AAU.

J.C. Snead wins Doral by one shot

MIAMI (UPI) — Easy-going J.C. Snead shot a three-under par 69 Sunday to win the $150,000 Doral Eastern golf tournament by one shot over Gardner Dickinson and take his second title in three tournaments.

Snead wound up with a 278-13 under par for the tourney — to edge Dickinson, the watercan Dickinson, a 1968 winner here, shot a par 69 on the windy par 72, 7,028-yard Doral Blue Monster course.

Miller Barber shot a 68 for a 278 and third place. Gibby Gilbert shot a 71 for fourth place at 279 and bunched at 280 were Bruce Devlin, Bruce Fielesher and Terry Dill. Jack Nicklaus ran into trouble on the first hole and fired a bogey six and finished with a one-over-par 73 and 282. Arnold Palmer fired his second straight 70 for 287 and Gary Player shot a 70 for an even par total of 288.

Dickinson tank a seven-foot putt on the 18th to pull within a stroke of Snead, who was playing behind him. But Snead put his second spot on the 18th to within 13 feet of the cup, assuring him at least par and the win.

Snead, a 29-year-old veteran of only three years on the tour, pushed his winnings well over $60,000 for the year.

Snead widened the one-stroke margin he had going into the first hole. He came up with a bogey four on the fourth, but then birdied the fifth and eighth holes for a round of 34 for the first nine.

Doctors Report Way That Relieves Itching, Pain Of Swollen Hemorrhoidal Tissues

First Applications Give Prompt Temporary Relief in Many Cases

There's a most effective medication that in many cases gives prompt relief for hours from such hemorrhoidal discomfort and actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by the inflammation. The answer is doctor-tested Preparation H. There's no other hemorrhoidal formula like Preparation H and it needs no prescription. Ointment or suppositories.

Tonight it's for real

CASSIUS CLAY AND JOE FRAZIER see eye to eye here in this montage photo provided by fight promoters for tonight's "fight of the century" that pits the two unbeaten champions. With everything riding on this one for both fighters, and the richest gate in the history of sports in the balance, they square off tonight in New York's Felt Forum. (UPI)

Champs to settle it all tonight

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Frazier is the favorite and the champion. He left the talking to Cassius Clay on Sunday, just one day before they will meet for the world heavyweight title.

"I just don't want to be bothered," Frazier said. "Right now, Clay's doing his thing, but tomorrow night I'll be doing my thing. His thing is being a clown, and mine is fighting."

However, Clay, also known as Muhammad Ali, seems to gain strength from the people who press around him. Rare to the waist, he stood up and raised his hands above his head in the familiar pose he has used after 31 consecutive professional victories.

Twenty people were crowded into his hotel room, pressing together in the sticky heat.

"Ain't no short-armed, slow-thinking, plodding fighter gonna beat me," Clay said, pointing at the television set that showed Frazier fighting Jerry Quarry.

"Nooo contest, Nooo contest." He repeated the phrase over and over.

"People come to me and say: But what about that left hook?" Clay said, "and I just tell them: Nooo contest. They look at me like I'd just said something crazy and ask: But what about the pressure, the way he takes a punch? And I smile and say: Noooo contest."

Clay is still "the real professional champion" in his own mind, and Frazier is an interloper, who has "a home-made title."

Just one year and 20 days ago, Frazier earned worldwide acclaim as champion by destroying Jimmy Ellis in five rounds in the same ring where he will meet Clay. But months later, Frazier's claim was challenged when Clay received permission to return to boxing after being of the title and banned from the sport for 3 1/2 years for refusing to go into the Army.

The stage was set by Clay's return for the biggest entertainment spectacle in history, an $18-million bonanza with each fighter getting $2.5 million. All of the ingredients are there.

Both fighters are unbeaten, Clay with 31 victories and 25 knockouts and Frazier with 28 victories and 23 knockouts, never before has a champion come back from such a long layoff to regain a world title; it is a classic confrontation between a slugger and a stylist.

But the emotional ingredients are there, too. In the United States, Frazier is a 7-5 favorite, but elsewhere Clay is favored. Clay has called Frazier an "Uncle Tom" and a "White hope" and has established himself as a symbol for many black Americans.

"There are going to be a lot of White folks paying hundreds of dollars to sit in those ringside seats and watch me get whupped," the 29-year-old Clay said. "They're going to be cheering him and booing me, and that's the way I like it."

Threat on Frazier's life made

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Frazier moved out of his midtown hotel Sunday after a threat was made on the heavyweight champion's life.

For the past few weeks, extra security precautions have been taken to assure the safety of the 27-year-old Philadelphia and his family.

In the gym, while he was training for Monday night's bout with Cassius Clay, two armed guards, one in plain clothes and the other in uniform, watched every one of Frazier's workouts, and one guard remained with him constantly, even when he returned to his motel room and did roadwork.

The call at his New York hotel warned him to "lose or else," and one of his trainers said he had moved to another location "after some trouble here that didn't amount to much." He received other threatening calls and letters while training during the past few weeks.

Stars nip Pros on 3-pointer

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Glen Combs hit a three-point basket with one second left to give the Utah Stars a 106-106 victory over the Memphis Pros Sunday.

The victory kept Utah two games ahead of Indiana in the Western Division of the ABAM. The Pacers beat Kentucky 127-122 Sunday.

With 30 seconds to play and Memphis leading 106-106, the Stars got the ball and called time. Merv Jackson threw the ball to Combs but he was tied up by Al Cusko with six seconds to play.

Cusko tapped the ball to Gerald Govan but Utah's Bud Robbins knocked the ball out of Govan's hands and Combs picked it up and fired in a three-pointer to win the game.

Memphis dominated the first half, running up a 30-24 lead and a 63-49 halftime lead. Jimmy Jones and Steve Jones combined for 27 points in the first half to offset the 10 points of Utah's Willie Wise.

Knicks tip Celts

BOSTON (UPI) — Walt Frazier scored 18 points and Dave DeBussichere pumped in 13 more in a fourth quarter burst to lift the New York Knicks to a 116-110 victory over the Boston Celtics Sunday.

Frazier scored from all over the floor in the final period to finish with 34 points as DeBussichere hit on long outside jump shots to bring the Knicks back from a 75-73 fourth quarter deficit.

New York went ahead to stay when Frazier passed to Bill Bradley who scored on a 20-foot jumper from the right side with 5:57 left.

Boston's John Havlicek topped all scorers with 27 points, 15 of them in the fourth quarter.

Bonavena says Joe will win

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Argentine heavyweight Oscar Bonavena said Sunday Joe Frazier "is going to kill" Muhammad Ali in Monday night's title fight in Madison Square Garden.

Bonavena, who lost two decisions to Frazier and was knocked out by Ali, said in an interview in the Mexico City weekly El Figaro:

"Frazier is going to kill him. The seven letters of his name are going to serve as an epitaph for Ali."

"After this fight, it will be difficult for Ali to return to boxing. Frazier is going to end the history of Ali."

Bonavena said Frazier "is a complete boxer and is in his prime. Ali has returned to boxing after a long layoff and we know that it is very difficult for him to reestablish himself."

The Argentine admitted Ali "is very able." But he asked: "What good is ability against a man who is no fool and fires blows of rocks with the force and repetition of a machine gun."

Bonavena said Frazier would land five punches for each of Ali's. "The winner will emerge from this difference," he said.

Hawks defeat Cincinnati

ATLANTA (UPI) — Lou Hudson and Pete Maravich combined for 60 points Sunday night leading the Atlanta Hawks to a 123-112 victory over Cincinnati and a 3 1/2 game lead over the Royals for a playoff berth in the Central Division.

Atlanta, which has now made up 10 games on Cincinnati in the past month, won its fourth in a row and its seventh in its last 10 outings. The Hawks have seven games left and the Royals eight.

clarer play a trump right away. East would lead a second diamond to establish a trick in that suit. South could knock out the ace of clubs. But it would be too late since East would get the diamond trick.

Oswald: "South saw this danger and went after clubs first in order to get one discard if he could. He won the diamond lead with his king and led the club 10. West ducked; won the second club and led another diamond to dummy's ace. A third club was led. East ruffed with the deuce of trumps and South overruffed. Then South got back to dummy with a heart, ruff and led a fourth club. East could only ruff with the ace of trumps this time so South was able to get rid of his diamond loser."

Jim: "If West had been able to see all the cards he might have opened a diamond and left South with no way to score 10 tricks."

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "The rule to determine when declarer should try to draw trumps is a simple one. He draws them as soon as he can afford to do so."

Jim: "The rule is simple enough. Knowing when you can afford to draw trumps isn't so simple. Take today's hand. Declarer doesn't really need dummy's trumps to ruff hearts. He can set up dummy's club suit for discards."

Oswald: "That would be correct procedure if he were given time to go about his business, but when the hand was played East put up an annoying defense. He won the first heart and shifted to a diamond."

Jim: "This created a problem of timing. Should de-

Dirksen estate varies

PEKIN, Ill. (UPI)—Inheritance tax forms filed for the estate of the late Sen. Everett Dirksen have shown everything from a package of "Big Smile" margold seeds to $53,379.43 in unspent campaign funds. The forms estimated Dirksen's estate at $302,235.

The forms were filed Friday in Tazewell County Probate Court by Davis, Morgan and Withersell, the Peoria law firm handling the estate.

Besides the margold seeds—Dirksen had attempted to have the margold named the national flower—20,000 newspaper clippings, bifocal glasses, a Bible and a "trumpeting" metal figure of an elephant were listed in the late Republican senator's estate.

The attorneys who filed the federal and state inheritance tax returns listed $14,520 in federal taxes due from the estate and $367 in state inheritance taxes.

The forms showed Dirksen had $6,000 in cash in an envelope in a lock box at the Riggs National Bank, Washington, D.C.; $53,379 in unspent campaign funds in a special checking account at the First National Bank of Washington, D.C.

AUTOMOBILES ARE TO LEASE
The trend today is to lease or rent a lot of items people used to buy. After all, why should people tie up their money in something they won't be using forever - plus having to maintain the things? Why not the same for cars?
