TEN CENTS

Gem House would lift tax ceilings

BOISE (UPI) — After a one hour, 14-minute debate, the House approved 44-25 and sent to the Senate Thursday a bill to repeal the percentage taxing limitation on local taxing districts.

Rep. Robert Haakenson, D-Coeur d'Alene, steered to passage the controversial measure which lifts the limit of four per cent on annual ad valorem revenue increases of local taxing units.

Haakenson told the house that local units "must have the freedom to operate within the limits previously set — the millage limits."

Rep. John Reardon, R-Boise, said the limit should not be repealed but tightened. He urged the House to consider instead his bill to strengthen the restriction by removing the appeal to the State Tax Commission.

Reardon's bill, which was re-committed to the Tax Committee for study, reconsideration and a "decent burial," would have set up an election as the only means of exceeding the four per cent limit.

In urging defeat of the repealer, Reardon said that "inordinate use of taxing power" was striking at the elderly pensioner and forcing him to leave his city home and move into a mobile home.

"How long can we take these people who are on pensions and club them into the ground?" Reardon asked.

"If there is anything that could destroy this state, this nation is the inordinate use of taxing power," Reardon said.

Rep. William J. Murphy, D-Wallace, said the limitation was bad when it was enacted and it is "bad today." He said the system of government in operation in Idaho already has a system of checks and balances.

"If we're going to have local government then we're going to have to have faith in those who serve," Murphy said.

Rep. Harold Reid, D-Craigmont, agreed. He said when he took out his petition to run for the legislature he did not take out one for county commissioner or county assessor.

However Rep. Terry Crapo, R-Idaho Falls, said if the house feels the legislature should not restrict local government then it should repeal all restrictions on local government if it really is sincere.

He said the legislature has enacted many bills which severely restrict local taxing units.

Valley's portion

The National Association of Counties has released its estimates of the amount of money each Magic Valley county would receive under President Nixon's proposed revenue sharing proposal.

The valley total would be $883,000.

A list of county by county figures includes:

Blaine, $68,243; Camas, $13,882; Cassia, $84,882; Elmore, $101,853; Gooding, $64,882; Jerome, $55,091; Lincoln, $28,303; Minidoka, $82,251 and Twin Falls, $425,877.

Court overhaul agency proposed

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger today suggested creation of a central agency to undertake a "comprehensive examination" of ways to overhaul state courts.

Burger said such a "desperately needed" central agency could help state courts dispense justice more fairly and quickly through recommendations on such matters as methods of selecting judges, removal of minor cases from courts, equalization of judicial salaries and preventing parties from using the court as a pressure tactic in cases they intend to settle out of court.

He said more than 500 specific problems were outlined by a recent conference.

Burger spoke to a national conference of the judiciary one day after President Nixon called for a major streamlining of the nation's court system before the same meeting.

Jr. college fund hiked

BOISE (UPI) — The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee voted late Thursday to give Idaho's two junior colleges a general fund appropriation of $1,025,000 for fiscal year 1972.

The amount is higher than the $900,000 first outlined for North Idaho Junior College and the College of Southern Idaho in the committee's first tentative budget, but was the same amount the governor recommended for the schools in his second executive budget address.

Approval of the change meant defeat for a motion made by Rep. Emery Hedlund, D - St.

Maries, that the two schools be given $1,125,000.

One of the co-chairmen of the joint committee indicated a $125 million general fund budget for fiscal year 1972 has almost been completed.

Sen. Richard High, R - Twin Falls, said the joint committee planned to "attempt to finish by today," but indicated the $125 million figure appeared fairly firm.

The level of spending would be less than the $129.3 million proposed by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus and would be built on different revenue projections than those used by Andrus.

PX probe halt bid failed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., said today the late L. Mendel Rivers of South Carolina tried to stop the Senate investigation into corruption in military service clubs and post exchanges involving former Brig. Gen. Earl F. Cole.

Ribicoff's statement came during testimony to the Senate investigating subcommittee when Cole said he once called Rivers to ask him to arrange a telephone conversation with Ribicoff about the investigation.

When Cole said Ribicoff's staff did not comply, Ribicoff said sharply:

"Mendel Rivers did intervene with the acting chairman of this committee on your behalf to try to stop this investigation. And Mendel Rivers did not succeed."

Ribicoff did not elaborate on Rivers' attempted intervention, but did say exactly what the then chairman of the House Armed Services Committee asked him to do about the investigation.

Cole was called to testify today concerning a list of 43 separate charges of alleged corruption on his part connected with service clubs and PX's in Germany and Southeast Asia.

More than two dozen civilian and military witnesses have testified that Cole was involved in corrupt practices at the clubs.

Selective service merger set

Proposed mergers of Selective Service offices throughout Magic Valley will be explained at a meeting at 1 p.m. Wednesday at the Twin Falls Moose Hall.

Maj. Gen. George Bennett, Idaho selective service director, will attend the meeting, which all county selective service board members and clerks have been instructed to attend.

Present plans call for combining the Blaine, Jerome, Gooding, Camas and Lincoln County offices, as well as the Bull office with the Twin Falls office, and the merging of the Cassia and Minidoka offices.

This means the closing of the Cassia office at Burley, and moving the operation to the Rupert office, according to Mrs. Lawanda Manning, clerk of the Cassia County board.

She said it is her understanding that all county boards would be maintained, but additional information will be given at the Wednesday meeting in Twin Falls.

CSI may gain $100,000 aid

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho stands to gain about $100,000 more than last year if the $1.025 million earmarked for the state's two junior colleges is approved by the legislature, the CSI president said today.

The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee recommended the figure. If approved, the money would be divided between the junior colleges on an enrollment basis.

According to President James L. Taylor of CSI, last year's division was 58-42, with CSI taking the lion's share.

CSI's enrollment has increased somewhat this year, but the final figures have not been tallied, so the distribution for this year's appropriation has not been calculated.

With the same enrollment as last year, the $1.025 million appropriation would provide $100,000 more this year than last year, Dr. Taylor said.

The 1970 state allotment amounted to $335,000 initially. CSI then applied for supplemental appropriations of $50,000 and $25,000, providing a total of $410,000, Dr. Taylor said.

The 1971 college budget is about $300,000 higher than the previous year's figure — $1.4 million last year and $1.7 million this year. CSI will also receive about $50,000 in additional income from the tuition increase allowed by a bill now awaiting Governor Andrus' signature.

New school aid formula okayed

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — In a major breakthrough that could become the hallmark of the 41st legislature, the House approved 44-26 Thursday a "radically" new school funding concept that puts the money "where the children are."

It took two hours and eight minutes of debate to do it and the path was not a smooth one. At the midpoint in debate, proponents of the bill beat down, 28-43, a motion to recommit the measure to the Revenue and Taxation Committee for a one-year interim study.

Basically, the bill provides for funding 75 per cent of the cost of the public schools from the state level through a general fund appropriation, endowment funds, 18 mills of state and county property taxes 54 per cent of the inventory tax phase-out monies and county income from area and miscellaneous fines and forfeitures.

This money would be distributed to the schools on the basis of classroom units. These units would be determined by the number of children in average daily membership at the start of each year according to school size and whether it is elementary or secondary.

Provisions are included in the bill for "grandfather rights" of existing school property levies and for "hardship" cases. One per cent of the money derived from the central funding is to be used by the State Board of Education in contending with hardship cases.

To make certain school districts do not get carried away with additional mill levies there is a provision that restricts

Fire at students

Students battle PR police

SAN JUAN (UPI) — Snipers killed two policemen and an ROTC cadet Thursday in a campus battle between Puerto Rican students and University of Puerto Rico students favoring Puerto Rican independence.

One of the dead was Maj. Juan B. Mercado, head of San Juan's police riot squad. He and police Sgt. Miguel Rosario Rondon were killed by bullets in the back. The other victim was Cadet Jacinto Gutierrez Ortiz.

Sixty-two persons were injured — half of them with bullet wounds — in the three hours of rioting that broke out about 11 a.m.

Pullback Copters evacuate Viets from base

SAIGON (UPI) — A fleet of American helicopters evacuated a force of 1,000 South Vietnamese from a fire support base 24 miles from Sepone in Laos today to prevent their being overrun by the North Vietnamese who have thrown 50,000 men into the battle for the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

Firebase Sophia, named after movie star Sophia Loren, was the closest artillery base to the Laotian trail, a major hub of the Ho Chi Minh Trail of roads and jungle tracks. A force of 1,000 South Vietnamese who entered Sepone last week were withdrawn earlier.

Front dispatches said the infantrymen and artillery pieces were ferried from Sophia to another firebase seven miles closer to the border of South Vietnam — an area where North Vietnamese tanks were reported on the move to backup Communist ground probes.

At the same time, two fresh battalions of Saigon infantry were reported flown in American helicopters from South Vietnam to a new, undisclosed operation in Laos.

The South Vietnamese said fresh troops were moved in to keep government forces on hilltop bases controlling any movement in the Sepone valley area and to maintain the 2,500 to 3,000-man-troop level in the area.

South Vietnamese military sources said earlier today the North Vietnamese had sent 50,000 troops into the general area where the South Vietnamese entered Laos and that a force of 29,400 Communists were within 12 miles of Sepone, which lies 25 airmiles west of the border.

Stranded party returned

TWIN FALLS — Three Twin Falls residents who spent Wednesday night stranded in the desert southwest of Balanced Rock returned safely to Twin Falls Thursday afternoon.

John Doerr and his children, Kathleen, 13, and Tom, 12, had just unstuck his vehicle from the mud when a ground party reached them.

The family had been the object of an air search Thursday morning. Twin Falls pilot Robert Harney spotted the vehicle from the air. Sheriff Paul Corder said Harney apparently misunderstood the children's signals and thought Doerr had started to walk for help.

The sheriff said Doerr was never actually more than a few feet from the vehicle, but was not spotted by the pilot.

After the family was sighted, a ground party set out for the location about 25 miles from Balanced Rock, but when the party arrived, the Doerrs had the vehicle removed.

Monday night openings set

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Staff Writer

TWIN FALLS — Beginning March 29, the majority of merchants in downtown Twin Falls and in the Lynwood Shopping Center will be open on Monday nights until 9 p.m.

Most of the merchants will be switching from Friday night openings at that time to Monday nights, but the larger department stores will remain open both nights for the present time, John Massey, chairman of the Twin Falls Downtowners' Assn. said today.

The change, he said, is being made as a customer convenience, and if it is proven later the customer would rather shop on Friday night the stores will go back to the old system.

Reasons for the change, he said, are based on what the merchants feel would more suitably meet the needs of customers. Weekends are generally busy and many schools have Friday night activities such as basketball games and other conflicting events.

Massey said last fall several members of the association suggested a change in view of national trends toward Monday night openings. As a result verbal surveys were made at that time and last week a mail ballot went out to all downtown merchants.

These were returned with an overwhelming majority indicating they would like to try the Monday night opening, he said. A poll was taken in Lynwood Shopping Center Thursday which also supported the move.

Stores such as those mentioned with national openings, he said, are still being surveyed and will be included in the move.

Military ousts Turkish premier

ANKARA (UPI) — Turkish Premier Suleyman Demirel resigned today in the face of an ultimatum to quit or face a military takeover. Military leaders had demanded the move to save Turkey from what they said was the threat of civil strife.

Turkey has been rocked in recent months by the terrorist tactics of left-wing radicals pressing for the withdrawal of U.S. forces from the country and attacking government policies. Similar student disorders brought an Army coup in 1960.

The ultimatum to Demirel came in a joint memorandum signed by Gen. Memduh Tagniac, chief of the general staff, and the commanders of the army, navy and air force. It was sent to President Cevdet Sunda and the chairmen of both houses of the Turkish Parliament.

Troops took up positions in front of the state radio and television buildings. Witnesses said they first surrounded the Parliament building and then were withdrawn. Parliament began its regularly-scheduled session with a reading of the ultimatum as the deputies sat silent and stony-faced.

Demirel called an emergency meeting of his cabinet at his office. Witnesses said all appeared nervous as they arrived. None would comment and one told newsmen, "I won't answer you."

The joint memorandum was broadcast on Turkey radio's second major news program of the day at 1 p.m. The text said Demirel's government had brought Turkey to the "brink of civil strife and social and economic discontent" and had lost public confidence.

Officials in Ankara said the air force had been alerted, and despite the troop movement there was little outward sign of disruption of Ankara's day-to-day life. Army officers in Istanbul said they had received no alert from general staff headquarters in the capital.

The left-wing radicals have battled right-wing students and police and kidnapped four American airmen a week ago Thursday, releasing them unharmed on Monday. They have robbed banks to finance their cause and bombed government buildings.

The leftists protested American policy in Vietnam and the presence of American troops at NATO bases in Turkey.

Death probe pushed

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Northern Ireland today called in Scotland Yard to investigate the killing of three Scottish soldiers by a six-man execution squad.

Police sources disclosed the move as Britain alerted an additional 3,000 troops for action if called to quell disorders in the province.

About 7,000 Roman Catholic and Protestant shipyard workers marched in Belfast in rare unity, demanding tough action against violence.

The demonstrators staged an orderly march through the center of Belfast carrying a petition denouncing the execution by terrorists of three British soldiers.

The petition demanded the introduction of internment without trial and the re-arming of police in Northern Ireland.

An army spokesman reported today that Belfast had an "unusually quiet night." He said the only incident was a small explosion at a post office which caused minor damage. Another unexploded bomb was also found on the premises, he said.

Pullout said only Mideast solution

By United Press International

The Cairo newspaper, Al Akhbar said today there is no hope for a solution of the Middle East crisis unless the United States persuades Israel to withdraw from all captured territory. The State Department has emphatically denied it has applied such pressure on Israel.

The report coincided with previous assertions by diplomats in Cairo that Egypt would resume diplomatic relations with the United States if it persuaded Israel to withdraw. Israel itself has said it would not permit itself to be pressured into this.

Al Akhbar said if the United States refused to "pressure Israel, this means that it does not want Israel to withdraw and does not want the peaceful solution but it prefers to exacerbate the situation."

The newspaper Al Gomhouria said the answer could come next week during a U.N. meeting of Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban and U.N.

William P. Rogers was meeting in Washington today with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to brief members on deadlocked Middle East peace efforts. He was expected to explain that the United States was not applying pressure to either side but hoped to play a supporting role in peace efforts.

In Tel Aviv, the influential newspaper Ma'ariv said Defense Minister Moshe Dayan had reversed support for a plan he was reported to have put forward to ease tension along the Suez Canal.

He was recently quoted as saying he favored an interim agreement including mutual troop pullbacks to permit opening of the canal.

Flooding 'certain'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate passage is assured for a bill that would increase Social Security benefits by 10 percent, raise the minimum benefit to $100 and give the economy a $5 billion shot in the arm.

The key remaining question was whether the provision boosting the present minimum payments of $84 for a single person and $96 for a couple would survive when the bill reaches the House. The likelihood was that it would not.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., powerful chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, always has opposed raising the minimum level for people who, he says, have not "earned" more through the payroll tax they paid before retirement.

He contends a $100 minimum would chiefly benefit people who work only a year or two for private enterprise, then move onto a government payroll and, upon retirement, draw both the minimum Social Security payment plus a generous government pension, sometimes 80 per cent of their former earnings, tax free.

Monday shopping night scheduled

Many other stores are already operating more than one night per week and will continue their policy, he said.

Friday night has not been a bad business night, Massey said, but many merchants felt Monday might be better. The chairman said nobody will be able to say for certain what the customer will favor until the system has been operating for some time.

With Twin Falls serving as a business center for many of the smaller surrounding towns, Massey said, it could be Friday night serves their needs better. Farm customers might be more likely to shop on Friday than Monday but on the other hand they may find Monday more convenient.

Stores will continue operating Friday nights until March 29 when the majority will switch to Monday openings. Massey said an extensive advertising campaign will be conducted in conjunction with the new shopping night.

Domestic programs may suffer

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon's rejection of a Japanese offer to restrict textile imports may have touched off an all-out free trade battle in Congress and—perhaps more significantly—dropped a new roadblock in front of Nixon's domestic legislative program.

Nixon turned down Thursday a Japanese offer to restrict the growth of that country's noncotton textile exports to the United States during the next three years. The President said the offer was unacceptable because it would have used current export levels as a base, and those exports were at a record level in January.

One factor in Nixon's decision was an admitted irritation that the Japanese had by-passed the long-stalled negotiations between the two governments and reached their decision with the help of Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Nixon said he now would submit legislation to roll back the Japanese import of noncotton textiles to their 1965 level. His move drew praise from the American textile industry, which claims it is losing business and jobs in a flood of cheaper Japanese imports.

But Mills promptly pledged no such quota legislation would pass Congress if he has anything to do with it. As chairman of the committee which controls the congressional pursestrings, Mills has plenty to do with it—and many other things besides.

Last year Congress passed the first restrictive trade legislation since the early days of the Depression. That legislation would have restricted noncotton imports, as Nixon has requested, but also would have established quotas for shoe imports, which Nixon did not want, and set up machinery for possible other quotas.

Control grab hit by suit

BOISE (UPI)—Sunshine Mining Co. has filed a civil action in federal court alleging a former president is trying to grab control of the company illegally.

U.S. District Judge Fred M. Taylor has ordered the former official, Thomas F. McManus, to show cause why he should not be restrained from engaging in activities alleged in the action.

Sunshine claims McManus, the company president until last May, is soliciting proxies and authority of shareholders to acquire control of the firm without registering solicitation materials as required by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

That measure died in the closing days of Congress, but not before widespread debate between the free trade and protectionist forces. Mills now says the free traders, largely unorganized early last year, have grown to the point where they can offer a coordinated opposition to any attempt to put dampers on two-way trade.

Truck fuel fire doused

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls firemen were called to 253 Second Ave. W. about 9 a.m. today when leaking gasoline ignited in a 1970 model-truck owned by Tom Majors, owner of Twin Falls Armored Car, Inc.

The blaze was extinguished by the time firemen arrived. No damage was reported.

'Golf ball' Saturday at Burley

BURLEY — The third annual "golf ball" will be held Saturday at 9 p.m. at the Burley Elks Lodge Hall. The public is invited.

A buffet dinner will be served at midnight. Dale Platt's orchestra will furnish music. The annual event is sponsored jointly by the men's and women's golf associations of Burley.

Mrs. Lynn Dalling, president of the women's group and Darwin Williams, president of the men's group are serving as co-chairmen of the dance.

Other committees include Kent Church, tickets; Mrs. Norman Wall, and Nick Crofts, both invitations; Mrs. Ted Smith, decorations, and Mrs. Keith Stoddard, publicity.

Tickets are available from all of the officers. Proceeds will be used to purchase carpet for the club house. Other improvements are also planned.

Jury finds man guilty

SHOSHONE — A six-member jury found W.A. Turska, Shoshone, guilty of a charge of speeding in a trial before Magistrate C.M. Wilson Wednesday.

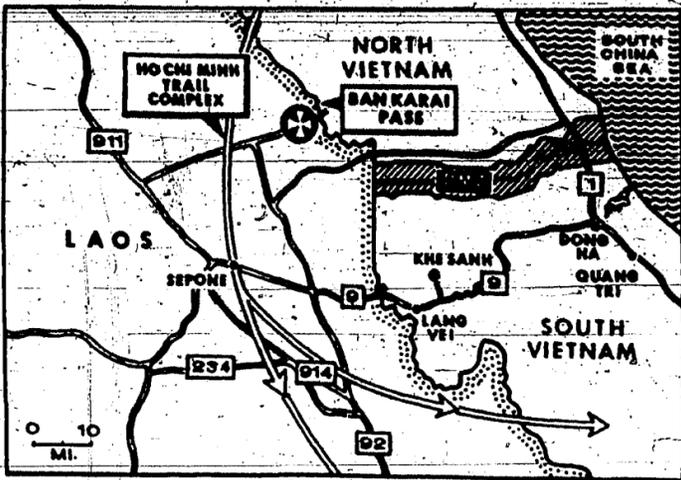

Turska acted as his own attorney to plead his case, and Howard E. Adkins, prosecuting attorney for Lincoln County, represented the state. Magistrate Wilson fined Turska $24.50.

Jurors were Reba Toomey, Edna Johnson, Dorothy Seward, Imogene Saras, Carol Swainston and Wanda Sant.

Turska asked for the trial earlier after pleading innocent to the charge.

Worth topic

TWIN FALLS — The spiritual nature of each individual's genuine worth will be emphasized at services at First Church of Christ, Scientist, at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Burley physician chosen advisor

BURLEY — Dr. Charles A. Terhune, Burley, has been appointed as a general practice representative to the Medical Advisory Council of the Health Services Corp., announces James O. Mason, commissioner of the Health Services Corp., of the LDS Church.

Dr. Terhune will join Don H. Nelson, Dr. William E. Daines, both internal medicine; Dr. Richard Hebertson, obstetrics and gynecology; Dr. Richard A. Call, pathology; Dr. George L. Veasy, pediatrics; Dr. Richard H. Keller, radiology; Dr. Walter D. Gaistord, surgery; Dr. Louis Moench, psychiatry; Dr. Frank Daughters, general practice; Dr. Homer R. Warner, medical computer, and Dr. Homer E. Smith, ophthalmology.

The council will recommend in all matters of medical policy to the Health Services Corp. and the addition of Dr. Terhune will result in significant input of information which will help promote understanding of the problems of rural medicine, Mason said.

As has always been the church's position, said Mason, many services that may be developed will benefit non-members as well as members of the church.

Dr. Terhune is qualified by his training and experiences in providing health care services in a rural setting. A member of the Idaho Medical Assn. since 1934, Dr. Terhune has served on several major committees including medical planning, public health, tuberculosis and cancer and in 1958 served as president of the Idaho Medical Assn.

Dr. Terhune's experience and skill qualified him for membership on the American Board of Surgeons where he served on the credentials committee. Dr. Terhune was one of the founders of the Cottage Hospital and in the Cassia Memorial Hospital has served as chief of staff and

New snow covers Valley ski runs

TWIN FALLS — Ski resorts serving the Magic Valley area report new snow for the coming weekend, and in most cases new depths range to about six inches.

Sun Valley reports a new snowfall of six inches, with snow still falling this morning. Depths range from 75 inches at the top of Baldy Mountain to 70 at the Roundhouse and 35 on the valley floor. Temperatures are 26 to 37 degrees and skiing is listed as excellent.

Soldier Mountain also received new snowfall of four to five inches, bringing total depths to 54 inches at the bottom of the lift and 64 at the top. The road is reported plowed but snow tires are recommended. Temperatures range up to 40 degrees during the day time.

Magic Mountain has six inches of new snow in the past two days with exceptionally good skiing. Runs are being packed and the areas open Thursday through Sunday with both the Poma lift and double chair lift in operation. The T-bar will not operate during the remainder of the season. The road is good but rough in the upper canyon. A bus leaves Twin Falls Saturday at 9 a.m.

Rotarun reports six inches of new snow for a total depth of 35 inches and exceptionally good skiing. Night skiing continues Tuesday and Thursday with ski lessons by appointment only during the remainder of the season. Roads are good but snow covered in spots.

Pomerelle reports six inches of new snow with total depths ranging between 72 and 98 inches of snow.

Portland firm wins piling job

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Upper Columbia Construction Co., was the apparent low bidder Thursday to drive pile which will support the foundation of the university of Idaho's new outdoor football stadium.

The company, a subsidiary of Willamette Western Corp., Portland, bid $268,464. Other bidders included Raymond International, Oakland, Calif., at $425,743 and Skyline Construction Co., Salt Lake City, at $306,300.

The new football stadium is being constructed in phases on the site of the present Neale Stadium. Future plans call for a switch from grass to artificial turf and eventually a roof over the complex.

A Friend

"I Am a Human Being, Please Do Not Fold, Spindle or Mutilate Me," was one of the first slogans of the campus revolution.

An Eastern bank recently advertised that "we do not computerize our customers."

A standard excuse for a billing error is, "We have switched over to a computer and don't know where anything is."

"Computer error" was the widely quoted explanation by a government official for the near collision of two aircraft.

An article in Fortune magazine blamed the bankruptcy of the Penn Central Railroad on the inability of the Pennsy computers to "talk" to those of the New York Central.

It's things like this that make computer professionals want to climb the wall. One of them is Walter M. Carlson, president of the Association for Computer Machinery and a technical consultant to IBM.

Ten years ago, computer reliability was a problem, he writes in The Office magazine. But today, computer hardware is "breathtakingly reliable."

What then accounts for the blame the computer syndrome?

For one thing, Carlson believes, it is a symptom of everyone's growing sense of isolation and frustration in a world of de-personalized systems.

Also, experienced office managers often resent young computer people coming in and taking over, talking a strange new language of input, output, feeds and speeds.

Carlson is convinced the anti-computer reaction is only temporary. It has to be.

"Without computers," he says, "we will never be able to monitor the air and water pollution that surrounds the globe. Without computers we will never be able to build successful models of our economic system so that we can design ways of minimizing the effects of economic fluctuations."

"Computers extend the mind of man, giving it near-infinite leverage. They might be the ultimate tool fulfilling the promise of man's encounter with machines to finally improve, not the standard of living, but the quality of life."

Wide Freedom

The right of news reporters to publish almost any factual material about a candidate for public office or a public official, has been upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Justice Potter Stewart, in the rulings on two libel cases involving candidates, wrote: "A charge of criminal conduct, no matter how remote in time or place, is always open to reporting by the news media when the charge is leveled against either an office-holder or a candidate."

In one of the cases, a Florida newspaper reported that a candidate for assessor had been charged with perjury. Actually, it was his brother who had been indicted on the charge.

Malice, it was made clear, would not have been permitted; human error is allowed for when a newspaper seeks to inform the public about a candidate or public official.

In the other case, a New Hampshire congressman was called an ex-bootlegger while he was campaigning in a primary. Only if a newspaper knowingly prints a lie, or doesn't bother to check facts when writing of such public officials, can it be held liable, the court ruled.

And in a third ruling, the court also said that a news-magazine could not be charged with malice for the account it gave of a police raid. The publication did not use the word "alleged" in saying that a Chicago policeman had taken part in the raid.

Cautioning the press not to feel free to drop the use of "alleged" when discussing information that could damage a reputation, the court nevertheless made it clear that there is much more freedom in discussing public officials than other persons.

It isn't the newspapers that the court is concerned about, but the public. The public has every right to know all the facts, good or bad, about the people elected or appointed to serve it.

MR. SPECTATOR

So Long, Harold

The death of Harold Lloyd was, of course, not unexpected but his passing brought back fond memories to thousands and thousands of those people who lived through the "silent" picture era.

Mr. Spectator remembers seeing several of his films. All were thrilling — in their day — and Mr. Lloyd was always the good, innocent individual everybody loved.

But a quiet evening — with the TV turned off so you can think clearly — will bring most of them back into memory.

We hate to say it but today's stars are just not like the ones of the "old days" who were practically worshipped. Trouble is that today, when you see a star practically every night, he or she wears out in a few years. The old stars did not die from overexposure.

BECAUSE HE WANTS TO When a man goes to the trouble of constructing a special greenhouse.

including an unusual heating system and employing special fertilizers, just to grow a small crop of bananas in the middle of Kansas, he has got to have a reason.

Gus Lind, who is retired from the Army Corps of Engineers, does.

"I do love bananas," he said, "but that's not why I raise them. I do it to prove I can do something people said was impossible to do — namely, raise bananas in Kansas."

Like the mountain climber who tackles the peak no one ever scaled, or the adventurer who tries to sail the Atlantic in a rowboat, the Kansas banana grower was attracted to a cause which seemed hopeless.

This adventurer probably won't have to worry about any competition in his endeavor, but that really is not the point. Another man has done something which everyone surely thought was not possible.

Even if his reward was nothing more than a bunch of very expensive bananas.

Hope Is For McGovern

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, the only declared candidate for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, says front-running Sen. Edmund Muskie has to win the first four or five 1972 primaries to stay high in the race.

Corollary to this assertion is the notion, openly accepted by McGovern, that Muskie's strength comes purely from his "winner image" gained in the polls, and that he will be quickly done in if anything happens to blow that picture. What we have here from McGovern is more than just a rather bold forecast. In reality, the view is at the core of his strategy of hope for 1972. "Hope" has to be a key word for a candidate who, at this stage, scratches up a bare two or three per cent in the polls.

If, by the way, it seems much too early to be talking about the campaign, the answer is that it is not. So many primaries are in store next year (20 is the present prospect) that the serious candidates have no choice but to work some states very hard in 1971. The tightly bunched early primaries McGovern is saying Muskie must take without fail are those planned for Florida, New Hampshire, Arkansas (not yet adopted; but soon to be), Illinois and Wisconsin.

The South Dakotan laid out his strategic judgments in an informal, late-hour chat in the midst of his first campaign probe into New Hampshire. He said if Muskie wins the first five next year, and according to indicated schedules they should all be under the belt by April 4, then the craggy New Englander could perhaps afford to lose one or two in April and May, when there will be certain or potential primary battles in Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Alabama, Indiana, Ohio, Nebraska, West Virginia, Maryland and Oregon.

What McGovern did not say in the chat is this: The logic of his argument is that if Muskie does win the first five outings, then McGovern himself will be largely out of contention.

More than once he has publicly stated that no one who fails to do well in the early tests can expect to get the kind of big money needed for the costly June primaries, involving more than one-third of the delegate votes required for nomination, set for California and New York.

McGovern clearly believes he has the potential for sticking the early course, that Muskie could falter, and that Democratic voters thereafter might make the crucial switch. This aspect of the matter will be the subject of a second report, since it goes to McGovern's view of himself, his emotionally-charged anti-war attitudes, the mood of the country, and his contrasts with Muskie.

McGovern's strategy of hope may be harder to achieve than he perhaps foresees. Sensibly, in light of evident sentiment, he does not expect to gain more than a "respectable showing" in New Hampshire.

He counts on doing very well in two states where the delegates are not legally bound by the presidential preference test — Florida (81 votes) and Illinois (170). But soundings in these states cast heavy doubts on his prospects in a head-to-head fight with Muskie.

General southern resistance to McGovern as too liberal and too dovish also makes him a poor bet for the developing match in Arkansas.

What it really comes down to is that McGovern's best chance to force a Muskie fumble is in the vital Wisconsin primary next April 4.

Baby Sleep

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm wondering how far out I am. My daughter-in-law has a six-week-old baby and this little one has to sleep according to the mother's schedule.

If she should happen to fall asleep before she "should," the mother takes a flash camera and snaps a picture a couple of feet from the baby — not for a picture, but to awaken the baby. Can this have any effect on the baby? — Mrs. A. K.

Nature knows a lot more about when a baby is ready for sleep than anyone else. An infant should be allowed to develop a suitable sleep pattern naturally.

It is true that babies ordinarily adjust very easily to people who have to live upside-down hours — people who work nights and have to do some sleeping by day. Babies readily learn to do most of their sleeping when others in the household do.

But that is quite a different matter from the sort of thing you describe — when baby is sleepy but now allowed to sleep. (Where, by the way, did the mother get the idea that an infant should be awakened arbitrarily?)

No, I do not think you are "far out" at all, and I certainly hope someone can straighten out this mother's screwy thinking.

This flashbulb trick, if continued, can have more than one bad effect. It can create fears or, at least, can create an unnatural and undesirable sleep pattern. I wonder if the mother has ever been in the position of trying to force herself to stay awake when she was sleepy. Or worse yet, having someone else do the forcing.

If she keeps up what she is doing, she may find that the little one grows into a nervous or a rebellious child.

Is it possible that she doesn't know that many very young infants spend 18 to 20 hours a day sleeping — and need it?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please send your booklet. "How to Control Emphysema," for which I enclose 20 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Is the use of salt in the diet of an emphysema patient harmful? Does milk have salt in it? — Mrs. E. J.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: At what age do a woman's sexual desires usually leave? I am 61, my husband is 54, and we have been married six years. The first six months were perfection plus. Then he started drinking again and from then on sex became more and more obnoxious to me. My husband has become an alcoholic and at times quite abusive.

Are there shots that I could take, or is the trouble psychological? While I don't drink, I have no objection to moderate drinking by anyone else. However, drinking to excess is objectionable to me because of episodes in an earlier marriage due to heavy drinking.

I am not a normally frigid woman and cannot understand what has happened. — U. N.

You probably answered your own question most accurately. Sex, all by itself, wears thin. True affection nurtures it. Love, in other words, I don't think there's any medicine that will do you any good, but I suspect that a change in your husband's behavior would have considerable effect.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is an operation always required for chronic prostate trouble and hydrocele resulting from gonorrhea? — N.L.E.

No, not always. To learn the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery — write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for his booklet, "The Pesky Prostate," enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to cover cost of printing and handling.

Heathens

The heathens are coming! The heathens are coming! The least capable, least equipped, least disciplined people in our midst are threatening to take over.

Assuming the best... Assuming with wisdom Americans can somehow resolve their acute problems on the home front: inflation, environment, narcotics, laziness and crime.

Assuming the moral regeneration of our nation. Assuming we do not decay away internally.

There yet remains one "if" in our outlook: We are menaced by the forward thrust of the world's backward people. In a sense, to a degree, we see this up-RISING at home.

But in Africa and Asia and the Orient the least enlightened, least disciplined masses are multiplying. Next year inevitably there will be 70 million more people than this year.

When they overflow their own homelands to menace ours, we'd better pray they will be Christians, restrained by religion.

Remember Genghis Khan was a nothing, a rude, crude nomad who came riding out of the Gobi desert with a bunch of wild riders — and conquered most of the known world.

He had been a herder of beasts, nothing more, yet he out-generated the armies of three empires.

So if only in our own enlightened self-interest, we'd better get the Gospel to the barbarians before they get to us.

Yet today a third of the world is closed to white, western missionaries; soon half of it will be.

So what do we do? The Apostle Paul, to be sure, Christianity can be exported to other nations only if it is delivered by nationals indigenous to those nations.

This is the present emphasis in foreign missions by all mainline denominations. John Haggis, of Evangelism International, is an American, but interdenominational, and with an olive complexion and an obvious third-world profile — and headquartered in neutral Singapore — and thus especially suited to such a world ministry.

Presently his organization is training 459 leaders of diverse nationalities. They, returning to their homelands, in one year may preach to 238,000 others. Those, in one more year, could reach 487 million.

Also, American dollars, exchanged for lesser currencies to finance the ministry of local leaders — those dollars multiply themselves like the Biblical loaves and fishes.

In a sense, this amounts to Vietnamizing religion. Our President is seeking to Vietnamize war, to encourage and arm Asians to fight their own wars.

How much more constructive to send them a Bible instead of a gun.

By teaching leaders to teach others, the multitudes may be led back to Calvary. Then the frightened, frustrated, frantic residents of our rebellious planet will again have something better than a red star to steer by.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Nixon is convinced that a Russian accommodation with the United States depends to considerable degree on the way we handle ourselves in the Indochina war.

If we cut and run, the Russians won't be interested in accommodation. They will test and probe for U.S. weaknesses (in will) with increasing vigor, perhaps so strongly they will miscalculate and precipitate a confrontation.

Nixon is known to believe, however, that if we show our determination to achieve what we believe in Vietnam, there is hope for a reasonable arrangement with Moscow.

(Providing he includes with that a willingness to take unpredictable political risks such as the Cambodia and Laos sweeps and the suppression bombings in North Vietnam.) Nixon and his closest advisers are convinced Leonid Brezhnev and his fellows in the Kremlin inner circle are constantly on the watch for signs of deterioration (or strengthening) of U.S. will.

This White House circle is convinced:

That the original Cuban missile crisis came about because the United States showed a lack of resolution at the Bay of Pigs.

The apparent lack of U.S. determination in several major and minor international crises led to the Russian adventurism which precipitated the Middle East crisis and probably to the recent Soviet moves aimed at building a missile submarine base at Cienfuegos in Cuba.

Nixon and his foreign strategists hold that until Soviet misconceptions are clarified, there may be little progress in easing Communist pressures on Berlin, in settling the Middle East confrontation, in strategic arms limitation, or in achieving peace in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

The President is known to believe that recent history shows conclusively that relations with the Soviet Union have consistently improved.

BERRY'S WORLD

"I don't know whether it makes me feel better, or worse, to learn that Liz Taylor is going to be a grandmother in August!"

BOISE (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy broke his first tie of the session Thursday and sent to the House a bill to allow the State Board of Education to charge fees up to $200 per semester at Idaho's institutions of higher education.

Murphy broke the 17-17 tie just shortly after he broke another 17-17 tie on a vote to send the measure back into the amending order. Murphy voted against the move, thus clearing the way for passage of the institutional fee measure.

Some sources say the fee charge could bring as much as $1 million to Idaho's institutions of higher education and Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, floor sponsor of the measure, said approval would allow "a little leeway" to the institutions facing tight budgets.

The measure defines tuition as the "direct cost of instruction" and specifically does not allow a tuition charge as definied.

Instead, it allows the institutional fee charge, which could cover such things as athletics, retirement of building bonds, student activities and auxiliary services.

Sen. John Mix, D-Moscow, asked to have the measure placed in the amending order after Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston, said he would rather see fees presently charged frozen at the current levels.

Mitchell also said he would like to have the legislature study the fee situation at the schools.

But Sen. Ray Rigby, D-Rexburg, told his colleagues it is the responsibility of the legislature to oversee such fee charges and said the measure suggesting the limit was one way to do so.

To do nothing, he said, would allow the institutions to charge "at will...without any direction from the legislature."

"Why can't the legislature have some control on this?" Rigby asked. "It would be like the national debt limit...we could change it each year we came here."

"Either we ought to have a definition (of tuition and fees) or else if we don't want them, then I suggest to those who don't want the fees, get a bill in here and let's forbid our universities to charge the fees."

Fees are already being charged at the four senior institutions, the highest the $170 per semester being charged at Idaho State University.

Senate amends fuel tax bill

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate placed amendments on a House bill to regulate surface mining Thursday, but defeated another proposal which would have made the measure extend to all forms of mining.

The amendments, guided by Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert, included:

- One which would allow several operators to haul out of a state-owned gravel pit but leave the state the responsibility for any reclamation work;
- A requirement that no surface mining operations will begin until a reclamation plan is approved by the State Board of Land Commissioners, which Peavey said was the "real crux" of the changes;
- Consideration for a man who posts a bond on a mining project but submits an alternate plan after the first is accepted, and,
- A requirement that operators doing exploratory work next summer be responsible for reclamation of the land.

The move to extend the regulations to all forms of mining was made by Sen. Dean Summers, R-Boise, who urged the senators to support the change "if you care that mining in general needs cleaning up."

But Peavey said Summers' proposal would "effectively kill the bill" and also said the proposal for the change came from "one of our leading industrialists."

The amendment was defeated.

The bill was sent to the amending order after Sen. Darrell Manning, D-Pocatello, said, "Without amendments, we really don't have a bill because it really doesn't do anything."

Manning described the unamended measure, which had already passed the House, as a "middle ground between miners who wanted to do anything that they wanted to...and environmentalists who didn't want them to mine at all."

The floor sponsor of the original measure, Sen. David Bivens, R-Payette, urged passage of the original measure first to provide a "vehicle" upon which amendments could be placed.

Addict aid bill defeated

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate killed 8-16 Thursday a measure which would have allowed minors to seek treatment for addiction to drugs without notifying law enforcement officers or their parents.

Opposition came from Sen. Ray Rigby, D-Rexburg, who said he objected to the prohibition in the measure which would not allow physicians treating the youngsters to notify parents.

Rigby, an attorney, said one foundation of law practice was that minors could not give their consent "because they don't know what's good for them."

He said the measure listed 3-1/2 pages of narcotic drugs, adding, "Is it all right that someone is giving your kids some of those drugs and you don't even know anything about it?"

Sen. Mike Mitchell, R-Lewiston, floor sponsor of the measure, said he felt sometimes communications were "so broken down the minor will not seek treatment if it involves notifying his parents."

Senate OK's mining bill

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate took a House bill which raised the gasoline tax to eight cents and amended it Thursday, dropping the tax back to seven cents and creaming one cent off the top for use on city street work.

The amendments made the bill identical to House Bill 266, which was passed by the House 33-33 March 5, but which has been held on the House calendar since then.

The original House measure would have raised the gasoline tax from seven to eight cents, and given the cities the new penny for use on city street construction and maintenance.

But Sen. Wayne Kidwell, R-Boise, who herded the amendments through the Senate, admitted the changes would make it the "city street bill."

He said the one penny of the seven which would go to cities would allow two-thirds of the cities in Idaho to reduce to some extent property taxes.

Under the amended version, six of the seven cents would be distributed along an unchanged distribution formula, which gives 70 per cent of the money to the state highway department and the other 30 per cent to cities and counties.

Of the city - county portion, counties are given 85 per cent and cities 15 per cent.

The only debate over the amendments came over a change which would distribute the funds to cities "which construct and maintain roads and streets."

Sen. John Evans, D-Malad, said the measure would take "something away from the small cities which need this money" and said the change would "muddy the waters."

Weekend recess in Calley trial

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI) — The Calley murder court-martial jury began a three-day recess today under a schedule that indicated they would start deliberation on the third anniversary of My Lai.

Testimony ended Thursday, the 46th court day since the start of the jury-picking that resulted in the seating of a colonel who is a veteran of World War II and Korea, and four majors and a captain who have had combat experience in Vietnam.

When the 104th witness, Col. Oran K. Henderson, completed all trial testimony Thursday morning, the jury was told to return Monday for summations by the government and defense.

The government attorneys will open and close the final arguments with the defense in the middle.

The judge, Col. Reid W. Kennedy, delivers his charge-

It is called "instructions" in military court to the jury after the summations. If the oratory is not too prolonged, the officers who will decide the fate of Lt. William L. Calley Jr. should get the case sometime Tuesday.

That is the third anniversary of the March 16, 1968, search and destroy mission of American infantry into the Vietnamese hamlet that Army intelligence said harbored the 48th Viet Cong Battalion.

The attackers found not an armed battalion but unarmed civilians.

Calley, 27, is charged with premeditated murder of 102 women, children and old men while leading a platoon on the sweep that resulted in what has been called a massacre. The government contends the slaying was done by him and by his men at his order.

A verdict of guilty as charged would make it mandatory for the jurors to give him death or life imprisonment. The jury also could reduce the charge down as low as manslaughter.

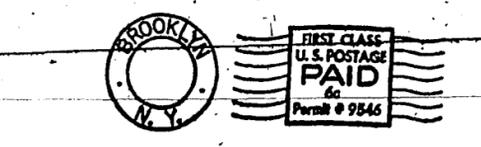

Suez crossing warning issued

By United Press International

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram said today Egypt will face one of the toughest battles in the history of warfare if it ever tries to cross the Suez Canal to attack the Israel-held Sinai Peninsula.

Mohammed Hassanein Heikal, editor of the newspaper, said what made such an invasion formidable was the water barrier and the natural terrain on the canal's eastern bank, added to what he said was the mammoth arsenal of weapons Israel has amassed in the Sinai.

"In this case, there would be three armored divisions of 1,300 tanks, five mechanized infantry divisions and the entire Israeli air force of 600 planes, including Phantoms, Skyhawks and Mirages."

Jordan supporting health bills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Len B. Jordan, R-Idaho, announced Thursday he is cosponsoring two of President Nixon's health bills — the Health Manpower Assistance Act and the Health Maintenance Organization Act.

He says the manpower bill would encourage financially disadvantaged students to enter the health professions by increasing the assistance programs and liberalizing repayment terms and would also provide incentives to practice medicines in areas where there is a shortage of health service personnel.

The maintenance bill provides a program of assistance to public or private organizations to plan and develop health maintenance organizations and to expand existing ones.

Nixon issues warning to 'new isolationists'

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — President Nixon told a class of Navy ensigns, including his son-in-law, David Eisenhower, today there are "new isolationists" in the United States who "have refused to learn the hard lessons in the history of tyranny."

He said in his speech to the graduating class that the same refusal has been responsible for Americans having to fight in four wars in this century.

"And they would tell us—as predecessors in other times have told us—that the appetite for aggression can be satisfied if only we are patient and the ambitions of the aggressor are justified if only we understand them 'properly,'" Nixon declared.

"I am never surprised to see these positions held but I am always astonished to hear them held in the name of morality."

"We seek to do the work of righteousness," he said in remarks prepared for delivery to the Navy officer candidate class in which Eisenhower, and 24 other young men have participated for the last 18 weeks.

"You serve the forces of peace in the world," Nixon said. "There are those in America who question this. But the record is clear. Our power has always been used for building the peace, never for breaking it for defending freedom, and never for destroying it."

Mrs. Nixon and daughter Tricia accompanied the President to Newport where he began his own World War II naval service 29 years ago.

David's wife, Julie, arrived Thursday to be with her husband prior to his graduation.

The Eisenhowers were scheduled to accompany Nixon to the Florida White House at Key Biscayne for the weekend.

They will be in Washington Tuesday for the announcement of Tricia's engagement to Edward Finch Cox.

Tupamaros effective

By PHIL NEWSOM
 UPI Foreign News Analyst
 The men who appeared at Buldo Berro Orbe's home in Montevideo said they wanted "an official talk" and took him away with them.
 It would not have been such an unusual circumstance were not Berro Orbe Uruguay's attorney general and the men who suddenly appeared at his doorstep in the exclusive Malvin section revolutionary Tupamaros with whom the Uruguayan government is in a no-quarter, life-and-death struggle.
 It was last August that the Tupamaros, named after an eighteenth century Inca rebel, abandoned their Robin Hood pose of robbing from the rich to give to the poor and launched upon a campaign of murder and kidnappings to end what they call the "system."

They are believed to number no more than 1,200, their ranks drawn mostly from the upper and middle classes, but their threat to Uruguay, long known as one of South America's oldest and most sophisticated democracies, is far greater than their numbers.
 One of their murder victims was Dan A. Mitrone, a United States public safety adviser to the Uruguayan police, kidnaped last July 31 and found shot to death 11 days later.
 Leading the battle against the Tupamaros is President Jorge Pacheco Areco, a man of no compromise and just as tough as they.
 Violent death in Montevideo's streets has become almost commonplace. Yet it was not until last December that the government permitted even mention of the Tupamaros and the official attitude today largely is one of "Revolution? What revolution?"

 And it is true that day-to-day it is less the violence that depicts the struggle than the gradual disappearance of freedoms, littered, down-at-the-heel streets; antiquated public transportation, patched up old cars and empty hotels.
 Uruguay normally draws about $50 million a year, about one-quarter of her foreign exchange income, from tourism. This year the tourists stayed away in thousands and Uruguayans as result face a bleak winter.
 In their stepped up harassment of the government, the Tupamaros have forced the closing of secondary schools and bank branches deemed incapable of defending themselves.

Air, naval units due for 'mothball' fleet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A sweeping reduction and modernization of U.S. armed forces will mothball 30 aging B52 bombers, decommission eight diesel submarines and reduce personnel at several Army posts, the Pentagon announced Wednesday.
 More than 12,000 military and civilian personnel from all three-branches of the armed forces at bases in 20 states would be affected by the move, the announcement said.

 Spokesmen said the largest and most significant changes would be in the Air Force's Strategic Air Command. They said introduction of the FB111 would allow inactivation of some of the oldest B52 bombers. The report did not say where the FB111s would be deployed.

Pacific fleet of older ships, eliminate some naval air squadrons and shift others to new locations, and consolidate administrative offices to reduce overhead costs. The actions would take $15.2 million away from payrolls at 14 bases in eight states and lead to reassignment of 618 officers and 4,579 enlisted men, plus the loss of 232 civilian jobs, spokesmen said.
 Changes in the Army would eliminate 1,171 military jobs and 195 civilian jobs at 10 posts or offices in seven states.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks were soft at the halfway mark Friday. Volume eased from the week's pace.

The Dow Jones Industrial average of 30 selected blue chips stood off 2.81 at 896.52. Of the 1,556 issues traded, 726 declined and 521 advanced.

The three-hour volume of 8,550,000 shares was well below the 13,750,000 shares traded in a comparable period Thursday.

One analyst described the market as "tired" and said it was waiting for the economy to justify its dramatic advance of the past few months.

Another said the market was regrouping for another assault upon the 900 level on the Dow Jones industrial average.

Sony up 1/2 was the leading active issue. Other active issues were Occidental off 1/4, University Computing off 1/4, Federal National Mortgage up 1/4, and Midland-Ross off 1/4.

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q— I purchased Axehoughton B Fund on a monthly investment plan. When I retired I started to receive dividends and capital gains every three months until the last quarter. The October 1969 capital gains payment was 48 cents; this October I received nothing. Can you explain? What do you think of this fund? — M.M.

A— You should have received an 11 cents capital gains distribution in the first quarter of 1970 but the October distribution was omitted. Capital gains payments are neither fixed nor guaranteed; and when a fund experiences losses, as your fund did in 1970, this distribution is often reduced or dropped. Overall, Axehoughton is an average performer.

In rising markets, fund scored moderate gains in net asset value. As of Oct. 31, 1970, the fund's total asset value amounted to $220 million plus. When a fund is of this size, sale

Gem 'bunny boppers' cut tourism, official says

BOISE (UPI) — Publicity on eastern Idaho's "bunny boppers" may be cutting into the state's tourist business, acting state commerce secretary Lloyd Howe said Thursday.

Howe said he has received some 30 letters from throughout the nation about the practice of clubbing jackrabbits to death to cut down on crop and hay damage.

Virtually all of them were critical of the practice, he said, although six or eight of them expressed genuine curiosity about the reasons behind it.

He said he was answering the genuinely curious writers by pointing out the damage caused to crops by jackrabbits and pointing out that "overkill" of coyotes has intensified the problem.

In the past, he said, coyotes used to keep the jackrabbit population down but extensive killing of coyotes has upset the balance.

Most of the letters, Howe said, seem to be coming from such states as Ohio or Indiana. However, he said he also received a number from New York and one southern state.

A few of the letters, he said, came from persons who earlier requested tourist information about Idaho.

"Thank you very much for sending me the information I requested concerning points of interest, hiking and camping in the state of Idaho," said a letter from Mrs. Harry H. Hollis, Bloomington, Ind.

"However, after recently seeing a 'rabbit bop' on the evening news telecast, I have decided I do not care to spend a single one of my tourist dollars in a state which is so backward in humane practices."

"I talked with a 60 year old woman who is a native of Idaho who told me this practice has been going on there for years and that she remembered such events as a child," Mrs. Hollis wrote.

"If the problem of overpopulation in rabbits has existed for that long a period, surely you could have found a better solution if you had wanted to," she said that as an active member of the humane society she intends to write to the U.S. Humane Society as well as any that might exist in Idaho to "see if something cannot be done to stop this out-dated, inhumane treatment of wildlife."

Saying she could understand such a problem might exist she feels certain a different method of coping with it is possible. She suggested netting the rabbits and then killing them with gas or chloroform.

Mrs. Janet Weidman of Ithaca, N.Y., also wrote to the department complaining of the practice.

On a post card she said that "We are planning on vacationing in your state this summer but after seeing on TV your practice of 'rabbit-bopping' we have changed our minds."

"There is no excuse for any 20th century American Govt. (sic) or society to tolerate such cruelty, with all the humane methods of combatting (sic) problems available," Mrs. Weidman wrote.

"How can you think that any parent would expose an impressionable child to such an event or such a society?" she asked. "Please do something to stop this cruelty immediately."

Contestant

AREA WINNER of the American Legion Oratorical contest, Frank Garrett Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Garrett Sr., Shoshone, will enter the state contest at Pocatello later this month. He previously won local and district contests.

Authority extended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has passed, 381 to 19, and sent to the Senate legislation which would extend for two more years President Nixon's authority to impose wage, price and rent controls.

The current authority ends March 31. The administration asked for such an extension, but said it did not plan to use the authority across the whole economy unless a national emergency demanded it.

Time, money used up by Texas 'rainmaker'

ASPERMONT, Tex. (UPI) — Homer Berry is out of time and out of money.

"Fortunately, we had a stockpile of chemicals left over and I'll be operating on the chemicals I have left," Berry said. "I'll rest up two or three days, go home and clean up and then come back."

Berry was hired by 30 west Texas ranchers who needed rain for their cattle and their crops. The ranchers told Berry they would pay him $10,000 for five inches of rain in 30 days.

The 30 days ended at midnight Wednesday and in that time it has rained only .65 inches in Stonewall County.

"That's the end of the money here," he said Wednesday as he realized he would not meet his deadline. "We ran out of money several days ago."

But Berry has told the ranchers he is not quitting until he brings them rain.

"It's easy to control the weather, the only meddlesome thing about it is we have people who look down their nose at you," he said.

"I can get them as much as five inches. I've gotten 15 inches before. The people who live here know how difficult it is for nature to produce them a rain and they are sympathetic. "I hate to dub myself a weather control authority," he said. "But I can stop a storm and I can bring on a hail. I can bring snow in winter or summer (although he admits the snow won't land on the ground in the summer). I can raise the temperature in the winter and lower it in the summer ... People got to come off of this high horse thing that you can't control the weather."

KIMBERLY, IDAHO

Law puts teeth into requirement

BOISE — A new law which has been signed by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus puts "teeth" in legislation requiring mufflers on vehicles by specifying just how much noise is allowed in decibels.

House Bill 111 amends the Idaho Code by specifying just what "excessive noise" is. The Idaho Code has required mufflers on vehicles for some time, but said only that the muffler must "prevent excessive or unusual noise and annoying smoke ..."

The new law says that any vehicle noise above 92 decibels is unlawful and allows the Idaho Air Pollution Control Commission to set lower levels if desired.

Not only is a strict limit applied to the mufflers, the law states that this sound level shall apply to "any sound made by a passenger motor vehicle or a motorcycle at any time under any condition of grade, speed, acceleration or deceleration ..."

In addition, the law declares that "No person shall modify the exhaust system of a motor vehicle or a motorcycle in a manner which will amplify or increase the noise of such vehicle or motorcycle above that emitted by the muffler originally installed on the vehicle by the manufacturer."

The law also specifies technical details of the type of sound meter which should be used to determine the maximum allowable level of vehicle or muffler noise.

Training 'serious'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — David Eisenhower, ranking 17th of 255 naval officer candidates, says he took the training "seriously" at Newport, R.I.

Eisenhower, who was in the last class at the school required to get an "onion skin" to start training, is letting his brown hair grow in preparation for Friday's graduation ceremonies from the Naval Officers Training School.

His father-in-law, President Nixon, will present Eisenhower's graduating class with reserve commissions as ensigns and give the commencement address.

Eisenhower, who will be 23 on March 31, has been offered a regular commission in the Navy because of the outstanding marks that won him recognition as one of the "distinguished naval graduates" in his class.

In a telephone interview with UPI, the grandson of President Dwight D. Eisenhower said he has not decided whether to accept a regular commission. He said he would "sort of like to get out with the (Atlantic) fleet and see what it's really like."

"Navy training is basically mental ... the academic pressure was hot and heavy," he said. "It was competitive. I took it seriously."

All-grange fete slated March 27

KIMBERLY — The All-Grange banquet will be held at 7 p.m. March 27 at the Twin Falls Moose hall, J.W. Messersmith, Kimberly Grange master reports. Kimberly and Murtaugh Granges are in charge of the event.

He said persons wishing tickets should contact their grange master. The Kimberly group will have a potluck dinner at 7 p.m. March 22 and the fifth degree will be presented at the Jerome Grange hall March 18, he reported at the Kimberly grange meeting.

The charter was draped for Frank Stewart and $5 was donated to the Rupert Youth Ranch in his memory. Lanny Wall, resolutions committee member, presented a resolution which points out the corner of Center Street and Highway 30 is an awkward and dangerous corner. This will be presented to the Kimberly Chamber of Commerce, State Highway commission, State Highway Department and state police.

Bruce Lulloff reported no beet contract has been agreed on for this area.

Mrs. Messersmith gave a reading during the program which was under the direction of Mrs. Bruce Lulloff who gave facts about St. Patrick. Irish jokes were read by Mrs. Dean Britt and Wall. Skits were given by Bruce Lulloff, Delbert Harmon, Ogle Wall, Burton Harman, Mrs. Glenn Miller and Mrs. Burton Harman.

Corporate profits decrease 8 per cent

NEW YORK, N.Y. — U.S. corporate profits fell 8 per cent last year under the triple impact of a recession in sales, inflation in costs and disruptive strikes, First National City Bank reports.

During the same period, corporate profit margins dropped to the lowest level since 1945, a year of war, price controls and excess profits taxes, the bank says in its March economic letter.

After-tax profit margins of leading nonfinancial corporations dropped sharply to 5.0 cents for each dollar of sales in 1970 from 5.8 cents a year earlier, the letter points out.

Of 2,531 U.S. companies surveyed, two thirds reported a decreased rate of return on net worth in 1970, "an indication that the recession was widespread and not just a setback for a few large firms."

The average rate of return was 9.3 per cent, compared with 10.8 per cent for the same group of firms in 1969 and was the lowest since the recession year of 1961, the bank says.

Profit margins of 1,504 manufacturing firms in the survey dipped to a post war low of 4.7 cents for each sales dollar from the already depressed level of 5.6 cents in 1969.

Aluminum can use plans set

PORTLAND — Blitz-Weinhard Co. has announced plans to change its beer containers to redeemable aluminum cans to help solve the litter and solid waste problem.

With the switchover to aluminum cans, which Blitz will buy back at 10 cents a pound, the potential for the containers becoming litter will be substantially reduced," Board Chairman William Wessinger said.

Changeover to aluminum cans is planned as soon as the aluminum industry can accommodate the change. Blitz will complete a $250,000 retooling change in its packaging plant for aluminum cans.

Effort asked on system

CHICAGO — William A. Bresnahan, president of American Trucking Associations (ATA), today called upon the railroads and "all others interested in a sound transportation system" to join forces in a "cooperative and constructive" effort to press for a program that would be beneficial to the entire transportation community and the public generally.

Addressing a luncheon of the Chicago Traffic Club at the Palmer House, the chief spokesman for the trucking industry outlined several specific proposals and suggested that others probably could be developed through "friendly and constructive dialogue."

Grange considers state meeting

SHOSHONE — Members of Lincoln-Blaine Pomona grange is considering the possibility of hosting the State Grange meeting this fall in Halley, officials reported after their March meeting held at Upper Big Wood River Grange hall. Subordinate grange reports were given by Mrs. Glen Rice, Halley; R.B. Kelley, master of Wood River Center Grange, who sent his report via Mrs.

Automatic Solid Set Irrigation

SHUR-RANE LCV

A fully automatic Lateral Control Valve system that can be installed in hours ... paid for in less than a season!

To install, simply replace existing manually-controlled riser valves with Shur-Rane Lateral Control Valves ... install the automatic timer ... and run wire down length of field to connect timer electrically to each Lateral Control Valve.

To operate, simply set timer dial for desired length of each set and for number of sets ... timer then successively activates solenoid switch in each Lateral Control Valve on command for desired pre-set irrigation period.

To program, simply connect properly numbered plugs to timer wire, insert plugs in Lateral Control Valves, and timer then automatically activates all similarly numbered plugs. Low voltage operation assures safe, yet positive valve opening.

Capitol power in 3 blocs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The power structure here currently appears divided into three parts: the White House, Congress, and Rep. Wilbur Daigh Mills—not necessarily in that order.

The biggest recent foreign policy development broke this week. It was engineered by the Japanese, working not with Nixon, not with Secretary of State William P. Rogers, or with presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger—but with Mills, powerful chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

For two years Nixon's negotiators have been trying to get the Japanese to agree voluntarily to limit their textile sales to the United States. Nixon made campaign promises to seek limited sales to help the southern-based textile industry, which claims it is hurting from foreign competition.

This week Japanese textile makers announced they would hold down their exports of synthetic fibers and wools to 1970 levels with gradual increases over the next three years to accommodate expanding markets. They already had cleared the statement with Mills, apparently ignoring the U.S. negotiators since talks had broken off weeks ago.

Mills was properly gratified. In a diplomatic-styled statement he said if other Far East countries follow through there will be no need for mandatory quotas, similar to the bill Mills steered through the House last year, but which did not win final congressional action.

This was the stick in Mills' soft-speaking policy in dealing with the Japanese. He said there would be mandatory quotas if they didn't come around voluntarily.

Nixon reportedly is miffed. He doesn't like to see a congressman messing around with the nation's foreign affairs.

The administration also is said to believe the United States could have reached an agreement similar to the unilateral Japanese offer any time in the past two years. The administration was pressing for item-by-item quotas, not just the overall limits announced by Japan.

Mills urged U.S. textile companies to give the Japanese plan a chance to work, but the industry has denounced the proposal as unworkable. Labor unions joined in, claiming the Japanese offer would not hold back imports which they say are causing Americans to lose jobs.

What does this mean so far as trade legislation is concerned this year?

There will be a trade bill, Mills said, extending the President's authority to negotiate trade agreements, and also more relief—either tariffs or other benefits—for U.S. industries which prove that imports are hurting them severely.

But in an interview, Mills said there will be no mandatory quotas, not if he has anything to do with it, until the Japanese plan gets a "fair trial."

Tall story

BUILDING high above ground appears to be safe refuge during flood, or perhaps whim of tornado near Arlington Heights, Ill. But truth is it was built atop stone also about 60 years ago. (UPI)

Female marshals on wing

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Several lady sky marshals, packing pistols and trained in karate and judo, soon will be taking their places beside the men assigned to guard against airplane hijackings in the United States, it was learned today.

U.S. Customs Bureau sources confirmed that "several ladies" had been accepted for the program and will soon start the arduous four-week training course at Ft. Belvoir, Va. They will learn expert marksmanship and agility in hand-to-hand combat.

Amnesty proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., has introduced a resolution to restore, posthumously, Gen. Robert E. Lee's citizenship. To back the move Byrd said the National Archives recently revealed that Lee took an oath of allegiance to the union in 1865, five years before he died.

The 14th amendment to the Constitution requires a two-thirds vote of Congress to restore citizenship to any Army officer who rebels against the United States. "I feel that Congress should act now to restore the full rights of citizenship to one of the greatest Americans of all time," Byrd said.

Byrd said President Andrew Johnson probably would have asked Congress to take similar action, but Lee's oath of allegiance somehow never was forwarded to the White House.

Utah gets mail center

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Salt Lake City has been selected to join 32 other cities as sites for a new bulk mail handling facility, Postmaster General Winton M. Blount announced today.

Revenue increase tabled

BOISE (UPI)—A Senate committee voted today to table a bill which would have limited property tax revenue increases in the Boise School District after an Ada County legislator said the Ada County delegation wanted no further discussion of the proposal.

Blount told the House Post Office Committee the Army Corps of Engineers will handle the nearly $1-billion project. He said the building program of 21 major facilities and 12 "satellite" service facilities should be completed before June 30, 1975.

The measure, which was introduced in the State Affairs Committee and then sent to the Health, Education and Welfare Committee, would have limited the Boise School District to a four per cent annual increase in property tax revenue, although the limitation could be exceeded by a vote of the people.

Salt Lake City will be one of the so-called satellite facilities supporting the major centers, along with Billings, and Missoula, Mont., Albuquerque, N.M., Reno, Nev., and Phoenix, Ariz.

Sen. Ray Rigby, D-Rexburg, said he understood the Ada County delegation had agreed to introduce the bill and said on that recommendation the HEW committee should give the bill "our blessing and send it out on the floor."

The Salt Lake facility, scheduled for construction at 21st So. and Redwood Rd., will handle mail traffic for Utah, most of Idaho, and some of Nevada and Wyoming.

But Sen. Lyle Cobbs, R-Boise, the only Ada County legislator on the committee, said the Ada County legislators did not want the bill to be put out for debate.

The postal service said all facility plans are tentative because evolving mail handling concepts and availability of existing buildings may necessitate changes in the projects.

"I think we've made our point with the trustees," he said. "We don't want any part of it on the floor. We think it would be detrimental to our school district."

However the proposed facilities, with cost estimates where available, included: Billings, Mont., $3,850,000; Reno, Nev., $3,488,000; Seattle, Wash. $8,160,000.

But Sen. Leon Swenson, R-Nampa, told Cobbs the Ada County legislators were "making a farce out of this" and added they should have consulted the local school trustees before introducing the bill.

The service said several hundred smaller postal facilities also would be constructed under the new building program and these would be announced by regional postal service officials during the budget year.

Beat Rising Labor Costs!

TEX-FLOW®

TRACTOR MOVE SPRINKLER SYSTEM

A tractor move system enables you to take advantage of the low operating costs of a hand move system and, at the same time, cut labor costs.

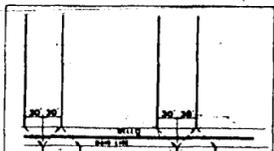

One man can move a quarter-mile of lateral line in less than 15 minutes. That's something to think about. Just keep in mind...

ONLY TEX-FLOW OFFERS SO MUCH

One tractor move system may look like another, but upon closer inspection you find many differences that make a difference to you.

Tex-Flow sprinkler pipe is thick wall and made of the hardest aluminum alloy available. The separate, one-piece coupler is designed to permit the use of a pressure regulator. Automatic quick drain valve is extra large and completely protected against trash. Skid is small and compact, presenting a low drag profile.

Furthermore... Tex-Flow offers a pan and coupler clamp that requires no holes in the tube and can be installed in the field without even a wrench; and exclusive threadless, slip-out risers with automatic water shut-offs that enable you to remove a riser without shutting down the entire line.

This diagram shows one of several ways in which a tractor move system may be re-set, depending upon the machine location and the length and the location of your lateral. When the mainline is in the middle of the field, it can be laid in a small ditch, thus allowing the tractor move line to go over the mainline without damage.

Head Starts get windfall

The tri-county Head Start program in Twin Falls, Jerome and Cassia counties has been promised a $23,000 windfall from the federal government. The Seattle region of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which operates the Head Start programs through funds applied by the South-Central Community Action Agency, said that Congress has appropriated the full allocation to Head Start programs throughout the nation for 1971. Previous allocations had trimmed Head Start funds by 7.5 per cent, according to Ann Kaster, Twin Falls, director of the program in the three counties. "This meant we had to tighten our belts in all areas and plan for a program of somewhat lower quality than desired," the director said. The full impact of the increased funds will be determined by the tri-county Head Start council, in which representatives from the three counties will consider how best to apply the $23,000 in additional money, Mrs. Kaster said. "We will look and see where the needs are, where the target areas are, and where the money is most needed," she said. The council's recommendations will be forwarded to the tri-county CAA board of directors for a final decision.

The CAA-sponsored Head Start program involves a maximum of 310 children in the three counties, including 110 in the Twin Falls half-day Head Start classes at the Presbyterian Church and 20 in the full-day Day-Care Center activities at the First Baptist Church. In Jerome, only the full-day Day-Care Center program is in operation. Cassia County Head Start activities are planned for 120 children in the half-day program and 20 enrolled in the full-day session. In addition, 20 children are enrolled in the Murtaugh-Hansen half-day program.

Dealer backing slated

TWIN FALLS — An attempt by Continental Oil Co. to take the lead in ending gasoline price wars in southern Idaho has ended with the announcement today by officials of the company in Houston, Tex., that dealers will again receive price support from the company. An announcement by Tom W. Sigler, marketing vice president for Conoco, said dealers in the Utah and southern Idaho area will again receive company assistance when it is necessary to lower prices to meet competition. Sigler said the company has approved a temporary price program for Conoco distributors and dealers due to intensive competitive pressures of suppliers who have continued to install substantial price support in this area during the past few months. The company had declared a test period for the past two to three months in which no assistance was given dealers. Ralph Smith, local bulk plant manager for Conoco, said most of the dealers in this area did not lower their prices during the test period but held them stable in an attempt to bring all prices into line and end the continuous price war. Because of the return to support pricing, the company announced it will be forced to rescind earlier reductions in normal tank wagon and jobber prices in the two market areas. Sigler said Conoco's "no allowance pricing test" did accomplish one goal. The company succeeded in calling attention to some of the primary causes of chaotic market conditions, he said. The plan suggested a partial solution which appeared to be in the best economic interest of the dealer, jobber and supplier as well as the customer, Sigler said. The company official said the actions should not be interpreted to mean the company is giving up the search for improved pricing practices. He said the firm is evaluating other pricing practices to find a solution to price wars.

Eviction measure examined

SHOSHONE — A report on progress of House Bill 236, which gives landlords power to remove undesirable tenants from property, was given at the North Side Board of Realtors meeting Wednesday night at the Lincoln Inn, Gooding.

James Muffley, Gooding, who headed the committee to promote preparation of such a bill from the North Side Board, gave the detailed report. He said the actual bill prepared by an attorney for the realtors had not been passed, but one covering the same aims, presented by the Idaho Apartment Owners Assn., has passed the House and been introduced in the Senate.

Ray Assendrup, Jerome, said a clinic will be held March 17 in Twin Falls under sponsorship of the Idaho Real Estate Assn.

John LeMoine, Hagerman, and Harvey Iverson, Gooding, led a discussion on current legislation and insurance coverage for realtors. Harrell Thorne, Shoshone, was asked to report on the insurance program at the April meeting, to be held at Shoshone. R.W. Grove will be host.

House OK's new school formula

(Continued from p. 1) them to 16 mills for local maintenance and operation. There also is a six per cent limitation on revenue increases which is supposed to allow for natural growth and emergency growth. To go beyond the six per cent limitation a school district would have to have approval of the electorate.

"There has never been a school formula devised that had inherent in it a printing press to take care of all of the dollar needs of the school districts of this state," Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft, D-Tuttle, principal author and floor manager of the bill, told the House.

"The formula we are operating with now is not understandable," he said. "Those of us who do not work with it do not pretend to understand it. At long last we bring forth a formula that every legislator and school trustee of the state can understand," he said.

Rep. Robert Haakenson, D-Coeur d'Alene, explained the working of the basic classroom unit in the formula and said there is no need to fear it is a move to force school districts to consolidate. "We wanted to make it perfectly clear we were not trying to consolidate or combine any schools in this bill," he said. "If you want to consolidate you'll have to do it in another bill."

Rep. John Sessions complimented the Revenue and Taxation Committee for its hard work on the new formula but said he felt "this bill is a little premature."

"It gives no consideration to smaller districts carrying on enrichment programs," he said, adding some districts have a middle school concept for which there is no provision in this plan.

Charging that the legislature was pursuing an avenue where the State Board of Education was telling counties how many mills to levy he called for further study of the bill. Rep. Jenkin Palmer, R-Madison, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, made the unsuccessful motion to put the bill back in committee and study it until next year.

Rural aid panel set

JEROME — John Van Orman, Jerome County commissioner, and Thomas P. Mahan, temporary chairman of the newly formed Jerome County Rural Development Committee, are compiling a list of five to 10 persons to serve as the group's steering committee. Purpose of the new group, according to Van Orman, is to make the rural area attractive for living, particularly to outsiders. Mahan said he views the organization as one in which local residents can discuss matters of mutual interest concerning Jerome County's problems and future.

There are three possible plans the group could follow, Van Orman said. They could become part of a four-county planning group, consisting of Twin Falls, Minidoka, Cassia and Jerome counties; join the Wood River resource area, which already is

Treatment concludes for woman

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Helen Wilcox, 64, Twin Falls, accused in the Jan. 2, 1971, strangulation death of her mother, will be returned to Twin Falls Saturday after undergoing a month of psychiatric evaluation and treatment in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Sheriff's officers in Twin Falls said they have been notified to travel to Utah Saturday to return the woman to her cell at the Twin Falls County jail. Mrs. Wilcox was arrested on a first degree murder charge the day her mother, Mrs. Anna Laura Wilcox, 88, was found dead in bed at the women's home. She remained in custody at the county jail until Feb. 12 when she was taken to Salt Lake City.

Her attorney James May successfully argued his motion for the treatment and evaluation in Magistrate Court before Judge Dan Meehl. The court order stipulated Mrs. Wilcox remain in Utah for no more than six weeks.

operating and consists of Blaine, Lincoln, Gooding and Camas counties, or work toward creation of an eight-county planning group involving the entire Magic Valley. Van Orman said he attended a special meeting in Burley where the possibility of forming a four-county group was discussed. He noted the four-county group would be in a better position to seek federal funds if such a need arose. A multiple county organization would have more power and authority than a single county, he said.

The county official said it was mentioned at the Burley meeting that because of Twin Falls County's larger tax base and population, an imbalance could result in the four-county structure and equal representation would have to be assured. About 30 persons attended the organizational meeting Tuesday night in Jerome and the question was raised, Van Orman said, as to whether or not Jerome County plans would be advanced if Twin Falls County was included in the group.

State and federal support for education, moreover, has increased these disparities. State aid, delivered under existing state education formulas, has benefited suburban schools far more than their urban counterparts, according to the report. In addition, federal grants earmarked for the urban disadvantaged have frequently been channeled to suburban schools.

To equalize the financial resources available for education throughout the state, the Committee urged the adoption of state equalization measures, which would tailor state aid to the financial requirements of different localities.

The report cited the Hawaii educational system in which the state assumes full responsibility for the financing and operation of schools, and the Michigan plan which would shift the burden of finance from local districts to the state, and recommended that these examples be carefully studied by other states.

Kimberly man held for drugs

KIMBERLY — A 19-year-old Burley resident is in Twin Falls County jail today on charges of illegal possession of a narcotic and illegal consumption of alcoholic beverages. Kimberly Patrolman Jim Campbell said William James Hutchison was arrested about 11:15 p.m. Thursday in Kimberly.

A 16-year-old female companion also was charged with illegal consumption of alcohol. Campbell said the two were stopped as they were traveling in a car on a Kimberly street. He said a quantity of marijuana was confiscated.

Computer meet set at Burley

BURLEY — The use of sophisticated computer data in aiding education administrators is the theme of a conference at the Ramada Inn, Burley, March 17-18. The meeting, called Management Information Systems for Decision-making, is sponsored by the School Superintendents Assn. of Magic Valley (Region 4), and faculty in educational administration in the department of professional preparation at the Idaho State University College of Education.

Dr. Lee Wicklund, principal of Lorene Handricks Laboratory School at ISU, is director of the project. Magic Valley school superintendents and their office personnel, principals and school trustees will attend the conference.

Consultants scheduled to present information at the meeting are from Alaska, Colorado, Oregon, Utah and Idaho. They include school superintendents, J. E. Engeling, Eugene, Ore.; Clark, Idaho; and others.

Food gifts for center requested

JEROME — The Jerome Day-Care Center, though backed by the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is almost out of food. An appeal has been issued to Jerome service organizations, churches and individuals to donate food, sleeping cots, blankets, furniture and money to keep the center operating.

The appeal was issued by Mrs. George Bennett, family life chairman of the Homemakers' Extension Council, an arm of the county agent's office.

The Day-Care Center has been funded by HEW to care for 20 children. Only two are being cared for at the present time, but they are to be fed a hot lunch, under terms of the HEW contract. Funds given the center are strictly dedicated to such expenditures as salaries and rent, and cannot be spent for food. The food is to be furnished by another government agency from surplus stocks, according to Mrs. Susan Staples, teacher at the center. However, the surplus food supplies cannot be furnished for another full month, the government told Mrs. Staples. No reason was given.

The Day-Care Center also has insufficient funds at present to buy school supplies, Mrs. Staples said. Organizations are being asked to provide these supplies for the center.

The Jerome Methodist Church, where the center is located, has been helping out by donating church supplies, Mrs. Staples said, but more help is needed.

Horses set for auction at Jerome

JEROME — A total of 19 horses will be offered for stud services during a stud auction at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Producers Livestock Marketing Assn. arena here.

The event is sponsored by the Jerome County Recreation Assn. Proceeds from the auction will be donated to the recreation association. Jim Rupert, co-chairman said. Thoroughbreds, Quarter Horses, Appaloosas and Paints will be featured at the auction, he said.

Horseman gets fine

JEROME — Eusebio Abeyta, 39, Denver, was fined $25 Thursday by Magistrate Russell Shaud and given a five-day suspended sentence for being drunk in a public place.

He was apprehended Thursday while trying to ride his horse into the J.C. Penney store where he wanted to buy a pair of work pants.

Police said Abeyta was herding sheep for Duane-Hansen near the Producers Livestock Assn. west of Jerome.

Jerome murder probe stymied

JEROME — The Jerome County sheriff's department is at a standstill today in the investigation into the murder of Reuben Stohler, who was found dead at his farm home southeast of Jerome last September.

Two sons of the victim, Delhardt Stohler, San Mateo, Calif., and Albert Stohler, Twin Falls, found their father at the foot of the basement stairs on Sept. 24, 1970. He appeared to have died from natural causes, but an autopsy revealed stab wounds.

Mr. Stohler's car had been stolen, as well as a rifle and a stereo set, according to his sons. The car was located in Des Moines, Iowa, several months after the murder, according to police, but no clues developed from the discovery.

The FBI entered the cause when the car was located, helping local law enforcement officers search for clues. The car was intensively checked, but FBI agents have refused to reveal what was discovered.

Mr. Stohler was a farmer in the Barrymore district east of Jerome. His home and personal effects were auctioned, and his home is currently being rented until it can be sold. The car was sold after law enforcement agents finished their work.

A letter opener was believed to be missing from the home, police said. An intensive investigation failed to uncover any trace of the knife-like device.

No trace has ever been found of the rifle or stereo set which were also taken from the home.

Blaine charts cancer drive

By WARREN GOSSETT
Times-News Correspondent
HAILEY — Campaign plans for the Blaine County Cancer Society fund drive scheduled for April were formulated during a meeting Thursday night at the Hailey Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Robert Gardner, Gannett, Blaine County chairman, said workers were given pointers on how to conduct the drive by Ronald Grisham, Boise, divisional representative for the American Cancer Society. He showed several films, distributed campaign packets and reviewed new educational material now available to volunteer workers.

Mrs. Gardner said she felt the Thursday night meeting will enable Blaine County to conduct a successful drive.

Other county officers include Mrs. John Woodbury, secretary; Mrs. Elsa Odermat, treasurer; Mrs. Carmalo Garatea, service chairman; Mrs. George Fritz, public education; Mrs. Nick Purdy, crusade chairman, and Mrs. Roberta Mc Kercher, publicity.

TWIN FALLS — Jerry Lee Robinson, 28, Twin Falls, was elected the new student body president at Idaho State University in balloting this week.

Robinson's running mate, Roger Carlisle, 25, Burley, was elected vice-president.

Three candidate teams were running for the two top offices. The Robinson-Welt team received 61.8 per cent of the vote, according to Bill Isley, Pocatello, the outgoing student president.

The high vote percentage of the team made unnecessary a runoff election which some observers had expected. The Robinson-Welt team received 1,113 votes.

Robinson is a junior marketing major and Welt a senior recreation major.

For other offices, Twin Falls student Robert D. Kuhn received 81 votes for vote-tech president, and Jerry Higgins, Twin Falls, won a seat in the student senate from the College of Business by drawing 81 votes.

Ronald Bollinger, Twin Falls, ran unopposed for one graduate school student senate seat.

Church merger studied at Buhl

BUHL — The second meeting in a series of group study sessions on "A Plan for Union" will be held Sunday at 7 p.m. at the Buhl First Presbyterian Church.

Local churches participating in the series include First Christian Church, Harrie Young, pastor; Holy Trinity Episcopal, Rev. John Wallace, pastor; United Methodist Church, Rev. Glen Waltman, pastor; and First Presbyterian Church, Rev. David Turnmire, pastor.

About 10 years ago Dr. Eugene Blake, a Presbyterian minister, and Bishop James Pike, an Episcopal bishop, held a joint service in San Francisco. At that time it was agreed that the re-uniting of churches should be considered. Since that time delegates from several different denominations have been meeting to produce a plan for union.

This document has been submitted to local congregations for study, evaluation and response. It offers the opportunity for churches to look at each other in the light of their major point of agreement or disagreement,

Rev. Turnmire said. Church of Christ Uniting (CCCU) is the major ecumenical movement sweeping the country. The group study series is being held for members to become more fully informed about "A Plan for Union." The proposal is not to be interpreted as the final word on church union, but rather a plan whereby union could be accomplished.

The discussions are open to the public with the members of the involved churches particularly urged to attend.

Linfield choir sings March 18

TWIN FALLS — Linfield college a cappella choir, McMinnville, Ore., will present a concert at 8 p.m. Thursday at the First Baptist Church, Twin Falls.

The appearance is part of a 10-day tour through California, Nevada and Oregon. The choir, directed by Prof. Marlon Van Dyk, will perform sacred and secular music including selections of earlier periods as well as contemporary music, according to Rev. James B. Hughes, minister.

Touring with the choir is a young group called "Thirteen's a Crowd" which will sing such numbers as "Aquarius," "The Look of Love" and "Bridge over Troubled Waters."

Goal set on 'love gifts'

FILER — A goal of $150 for "Love Gift" was set by the American Baptist Women's Assn. when they met at the church for the monthly meeting and lesson.

The group is still collecting used postage stamps which are being sent to a German orphanage where the proceeds from the stamps buy milk for the children.

New vice president and chairman elected to office were Mrs. Everett Andrews, interpretations and communications; Mrs. Edward Sharp, Christian service and special interest missionaries; Mrs. Clarence Edwards, love gift chairman. Mrs. Marshall Johnson was elected new group secretary. Mrs. Eliza Prough was elected president of the Naomi Circle and Mrs. Paul Patterson, president of the Judson Circle.

Genevieve Rutherford read letters from Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Fountain and Rev. and Mrs. Harold D. Schock, missionaries to the Congo and Hong Kong, during the devotional period.

Mrs. Gene Kovar reminded members of the Pacific Northwest regional convention at Boise, March 26-28, and the association meeting at Filer April 25.

Hostesses were Mrs. Veta Herd, Mrs. Nola Shropshire and Mrs. Marshall Johnson.

Stanton to speak at Buhl

BUHL — Rev. Edmund Stanton, pastor of Gooding United Methodist Church, will be the guest speaker for the third of a series of Lenten services sponsored by the Buhl and Castleford United Methodist churches 8 p.m. Sunday at the Castleford church.

Rev. Stanton has served the Gooding Methodist Church for three years, coming to Idaho as a minister at American Falls, Aberdeen, and as associate pastor at Caldwell. He has served Indian missions in Alaska at Metlakatla, and near Klamath Falls, Ore. at Fort Klamath-Chilliquin.

Churches

Evangelistic team sets visit

BURLEY — A Nazarene Evangelistic Thrust team, composed of 15 teen-age singers, three ministers and an evangelist, are in Burley today through Sunday.

Headquarters for the "Operation NET" will be the Church of the Nazarene, 2601 Miller Ave. The teen-agers have been selected from many churches in Idaho and eastern Oregon.

Rev. Gerald Fosbenner, vice president of development at Northwest Nazarene College, Nampa, will be the featured speaker at services at 7:30 p.m.

both today and Saturday at the church at which the singers will perform.

The teen-age singers presented a program this afternoon at Burley Junior High School and will sing at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Overland shopping center. Following this they will visit in pairs from house to house in Burley, inviting local residents to attend the evening services.

Sunday morning the youthful singers will participate in Sunday School at 9:45 and worship services morning and evening at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Retiring bishopric feted at Shoshone

SHOSHONE — Members of the retiring bishopric of the LDS Church were honored at a dinner party at the church recreation hall in Shoshone Tuesday evening.

Bishop and Mrs. D.H. Hansen, and Counselors Kenneth Blackburn and F.N. Stowell and their wives were presented gifts from the new bishop, LaMar Duffin.

Ferry Hadlock was master of ceremonies and program chairman. Tom Croft played two piano solos. Singing in a trio were Kelvin Rands, Austin Webb and Dale Dille. M.J. Dille played numbers on his "one man band" and a skit prepared by Mrs. Harrell Thorne featured the retiring bishopric.

A tribute to the retiring of officials, written by Mrs. Virginia Burton, was read by Mrs. Barbon Thorne.

Other members of the new bishopric are William Harris and Dennis Andrus. Lawrence Rands, Richard Jensen and Ward B. Rawson continue as ward clerks.

Program given by students

SHOSHONE — Members of St. Peter's Catholic Church Altar Society heard a program by Perla Bazan, Brazil, and Maria Giordano, Chile, when they met at the church.

The girls are attending Shoshone High School this semester and are staying at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Neher. They are with the Youth for Understanding program.

Lenten Guideposts

Kindness repaid only by helping another

By ANNAMAE CHENEY Escondido, Calif.

As the wife in a family that once was bogged down in debts, I listen sympathetically when someone starts talking about money problems. Then, when I get a chance, I tell my story — about a man my husband and I can never repay.

It all started ten years ago when my boss handed me a check for $300, with the explanation, "I happened to overhear your phone conversation with your husband, that he lost his job last week and still hasn't found work."

"But you don't even know me," I protested. "I've only been here a month."

"Long enough for me to judge character. Call your husband and let him cash the check — there's something about money in the pocket that helps find work."

I had worked for attorney Gilbert Stern only four weeks. I had found him different from any other attorney I had ever worked for. I had planned to take the job for only two days, while he looked for another secretary. The first day on the job made me realize that he was a tremendously compassionate man, vitally interested in helping others — not just in collecting their fees.

At the end of the second day I asked him, "Have you found a secretary yet?"

"Yes, You."

I quickly explained my reasons for working out of a temporary legal secretaries' agency — with two small children, their unpredictable illnesses, I was unreliable. "Never mind," Mr. Stern replied. "If kids are ill, just call me. I'll understand."

I decided to accept his offer. I confided in him the dream my husband and I had of becoming missionaries, explaining that Bill couldn't accept a pastorate because of our financial obligations.

A month slipped by, and then came the phone call from Bill: "The company has folded — I'm out of a job."

We soon were desperate. Bills were mounting. I'm sure Bill's desperation was evident during job interviews.

The last straw was when our heat was cut off. It was a rainy month, unusually cold for southern California. I had wept every morning for a week as 18-month-old Pam shivered in the cold house until I could get her and the baby to the sitter.

We had prayed fervently the night before. Now came this $300 check.

My phone call brought Bill in a few minutes. I handed the check to him. "Get the gas turned on, food in the house, then try for work, honey," I whispered. But Mr. Stern heard me, and he was angry.

"Do you mean your gas has been turned off in this cold? Why didn't you tell me?"

I turned away, but Bill answered, reluctantly, "How could she? New on a job. She —"

"I just couldn't," I interrupted. "It's going to take a long time to pay you back as you is."

"Who said anything about paying me back? If you can, fine. If you can't, forget it?"

Bill went to work that same week driving a milk truck. The cash in his pocket had given him confidence — and enough money to join the union.

A few days later Mr. Stern called me in, asking me to bring him a detailed, itemized list of all our bills. I was horrified, feeling sure he might not want me to work for him if he knew how deep we were in debt.

With a heavy heart, I gave him the list. The total was staggering to me. Mr. Stern read it silently, then said, "Quite a formidable list. Bill will never get into the ministry at this rate. Even without the balance on the car, it's over $2,000."

He called the loan department of the bank he used. The desk speaker was on — I could hear every word as he asked for a $2,500 loan, repayable at $75 a month, in Bill's and my names and himself as cosigner.

Bill and I signed the papers the next day and returned from the bank with a stack of money orders made out to our creditors.

With a thrill of delight, I dropped them in the mail.

At his suggestion Mr. Stern helped us set up a budget. Under his guidance we began to save money. Soon we doubled and tripled our bank payments. We tithed our income and increased our missionary giving. Bill began to preach again on weekends.

Exactly one year later Bill and I stood with our children on the deck of an ocean liner, bound for the Philippines. Our dream of becoming missionaries had become a reality.

Mr. Stern took our hands. "The only sad thing about this is losing such a good secretary. But you are doing what you feel you should do. I'm happy for you."

I looked at Mr. Stern, realizing it would be years before I saw him again, and how much we were indebted to him for his generosity. My thoughts were deep, and I spoke quietly, trying to express how I really felt. "You've been an angel. I wish I knew how to thank you."

"You can — by being an angel to someone else. You'll find it's the most satisfying way to live."

He turned and walked down the gangplank. My husband took my hand as we watched him go.

Fortunately, and not a moment too soon, churches are beginning to wake up to the fact that worship is supposed to be a shared happiness, not a penance.

The Roman Catholic Church has extensively revised its liturgy in the past five years. Many of the major Protestant bodies — including Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Lutherans and Methodists — are in the process of overhauling their accustomed rites.

Worship, too often dreary, becomes joyous observance

By LOUIS CASSELS UPT Religion Writer

When young people complain that church services are boring, they are merely saying out loud what a great many adults have always thought.

The plain truth, to which any veteran churchgoer can attest, is that worship all too often is as dull, dreary, formalized and uninspiring a routine as one is likely to encounter in modern society.

It got that way because of a notion widely held among our Puritan ancestors — and still fairly prevalent in churches that worshipping God is a grave duty to be undertaken at the proper times and places with the utmost solemnity.

This grim approach to piety finds no warrant in the New Testament. To Jesus Christ, worship was a joyous business, a way of celebrating the good news that God is and God cares.

Rebekahs initiate four new members

SHOSHONE — Four new members were initiated when Opal Rebekah Lodge No. 74 met in regular session it was announced today.

Mrs. T.V. Strunk, noble grand, extended a special welcome to the new members, who spoke briefly and expressed appreciation for the degree conferred upon them.

Mrs. Strunk also welcomed Mrs. Forrest Armstrong, Richfield, a member of Golden State Rebekah lodge No. 110 Stockton, Calif.

Report was made that Arthur Osburn, a nephew of members Mrs. Floyd Silva and Mrs. Corwin Silva, had died in a Portland hospital, and that Mrs. Elizabeth Tews and Mrs. Erma Driskell were both home from the hospital.

Mrs. Strunk announced a special program for the March 23 meeting in honor of Schuyler

Collax, founder of Rebekah degree.

A thank-you note was read from the Rebekah Assembly, president for the donation made to the educational fund to assist worthy students.

Members voted to donate a ballot box, two gavels and an American flag to the Wilder Rebekah Lodge, in as much as all of the lodge's belonging were destroyed in a fire at the Odd Fellows Lodge there on Nov. 28, 1970.

Mrs. Hazel Powell and Mrs. A.G. Biswell thanked the lodge for the gift sent them at the time they underwent surgery and for all the cards and courtesies extended to them.

Mrs. Dale Chatterton was presented a gift by Mrs. Strunk for her services in making a bulletin board for each month's activities. Mrs. Strunk and Mrs. Omer Shook reported on the district meeting held in Gooding recently at which Shoshone lodge exemplified the presentation and introduction of officers, past and present.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Floyd Silva, Mrs. Margaret Boulware Mrs. John Conway and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Chatterton.

Clothing program presented

WENDELL — "Clothing Communicates" was the topic of the program given Wednesday by Mrs. Dorothy Grieve, home agent, at the club's March meeting. She used slides with comments and group discussion to present this lesson. The object of the lesson was to help members select the right clothes for special occasions.

Club members met at the home of Mrs. George Hudson, with Mrs. Hazel Haverland serving as co-hostess.

Mrs. Ruth Wahler, president, opened the meeting with a poem, "Friends." Roll call was answered with cooking tips.

Announcements included All-Clubs Day March 18 at 1 p.m. at the Wendell American Legion Hall.

The next regular meeting is scheduled for April 13 at the home of Mrs. Hugh Caldwell.

A Lovelier You PAINT YOUR PICTURE, LADY?

By Mary Sue Miller

Portrait painters of lovely women use color to heighten both a subject's beauty and personality. Simply stroll through a museum of art and you see at once how the sitter is enhanced by the subtle shadings of her costume.

Just so, fashion colors can create loveliness for every woman. Shades coming onto the spring and summer scene are charming and diversified as the colors in nature. Let us begin with an analysis of the look of raw fibers. Next for scanning are sun and flower tones, followed by chromatic brights and the deep dyes of far-off lands.

The question is: How do you identify "your" shades among a plethora? As you might suspect, a flattering choice is based on an art principle stating that complementary colors bear the same undertones. Thus, colors that enhance your skin bear a trace of its pigmentation. To exemplify in terms of spring shades:

Blond Skin — wears pink-carnation, grassy greens, palest honeysuckle, sea blues, navy, blue-purple, and dill, which is the newest raw neutral.
Brunet Skin — pastel red, sunny yellow, soft orange, jade and olive green, turquoise, all beiges, black with white and bright touches.
Flord Skin — a contradiction wherein pink is played down—deep navy, gardenia white, dove gray, flat beige, palest lemon, light gray-blue, olive and water green.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am 25, work 40 hours a week, have been married five years and have a stepson who is now 10.

I have taught this child neatness, manners, respect for his elders and the property of others. If he misbehaves, he is punished either by spanking, or I take his bike away. He is made to clean up his plate before getting dessert, and he's not allowed a lot of junk candy between meals. He is also taught not to interrupt others while they are talking.

I have no children of my own and don't want any. I am told by friends and relatives that I am too hard on the boy, and I am accused of not liking children because I don't want any more. Am I wrong raising him the way I am, and for not wanting any more? WONDERRING

DEAR WONDERRING: You are raising a neat, respectful, courteous, responsible citizen, which is to your credit, and from your letter I don't think you are "too hard" on the boy. But if you "love" him, you failed to mention it in your letter. [Children need to feel loved.]

You are not "wrong" for not wanting more children but because you obviously advertised that fact, I can understand why your friends and relatives would accuse you of "not liking" children. [Do you?]

DEAR ABBY: Can you tell me exactly how a girl is supposed to kiss a boy? I have heard that it just comes naturally, but in case it doesn't, can you give me some directions? Should you quit breathing? I know you aren't supposed to make a "smack" sound when you are kissing a boy, but it's if you are kissing a relative, isn't it? Another question: Are you supposed to move your head? Or do you move your lips? One last thing: What are you supposed to do with your nose? 13 AND NEVER BEEN KISSED

DEAR 13: You should not quit breathing. No "smack" sounds. Not even with relatives. It's not necessary to move anything. And all you do with your nose is breathe thru it.

DEAR ABBY: What can you give an 81-year-old man to make him behave himself? You wouldn't believe how much life there is in this old goat! By the way, he is not my husband. 72 AND TIRED OF RUNNING

DEAR 72: You can give him the back of your hand.

DEAR ABBY: My husband snores. He doesn't snore like an ordinary person. He snores like a 400-pound water buffalo.

If I don't fall asleep before he does, I'm sunk. He not only snores, he snorts, mumbles, groans and whistles up a storm. Don't tell me to get him to a doctor. He IS a doctor. What's more, he insists that he doesn't snore. He says I snore. Can you help me? NO SLEEP IN HARTFORD

DEAR NO: Even doctors need doctors, and your "water buffalo" should see one. Minor surgery can frequently eliminate excessive snoring. If it doesn't in this case, browse around in a "sleep shop" and try some of the remedies suggested. Some actually work. If your husband's case is hopeless, earplugs for you and adhesive tape for his mouth is the last hope. After that—separate bedrooms.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 6700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90029. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

RUPERT — Deon Hunsaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hunsaker, Rupert, became the bride of Blaine Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cook, Acequia, in a ceremony Feb. 27 at the Idaho Falls LDS Temple.

A wedding reception was held that same evening in honor of the couple at the Rupert Fourth Ward LDS Cultural Hall.

They greeted guests before a backdrop of white Austrian curtains with two shades of purple featured in the valance and purple shag carpet. Placed at each end of the receiving line were cherubs atop white Grecian columns holding large vases of white spider chrysanthemums. A large white tulle ball, enhanced with purple ribbon and greenery, extended overhead.

The bride wore a white "A" line gown of Peau de soie, fashioned with an empire waistline, rounded neckline and long puffed sleeves accented with nylon bands with two rows of scalloped re-embroidered lace at the wrists. Scalloped re-embroidered lace adorned the neckline with two rows falling the entire length of the front panel of the gown.

The gown was enhanced with a detachable chapel train fastened to a self-bow in the back and edged with scalloped re-embroidered lace. Her elbow-length veil of bridal illusion fell from taffeta petals adorned with re-embroidered lace and tiny heart-shaped seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white baby roses surrounding a large orchid nestled in purple tulle and purple ribbon and streamers.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Becky Hunsaker, sister-in-law of the bride, with Vickie Anderson as maid of honor and Sheryl and Karleen Hunsaker, Debbie Cook, sisters of the couple, and Judy Stallings as bridesmaids.

Jim Cook served his brother as best man. Groomsman were Bruce Hunsaker, brother of the bride, Sam Terry, Dave Miller, Frank Patterson and Mike Mickelsen.

Guests were registered by Diane Barlow at a round table with white lace covering in front of a white iridescent backdrop and fillgree with a light purple valance.

Backdrop at the serving area was a white Austrian curtain accented with iridescent sides with a purple valance. The area was sectioned off with aisle stanchions of white tulle toppers topped with purple bows and connected with two tones of purple ribbon.

Refreshments were served at round quartet tables covered with re-embroidered lace over white tulle centered with floral arrangements and purple candles. Assisting with serving were Pam Cook, Linda and

MR. AND MRS. BLAINE COOK

Jackie Jensen, Julie Whittaker, LeAnne Larson and Lea Rae Bagnall.

The bride's table was placed in the middle of the floor and was covered with white lace with white tulle liner and small purple bows caught at the corners of the scalloped re-embroidered overlay. It was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake on a round mirror decorated with purple baby roses, white hearts, cherubs, doves, filigree butterflies and green leaves. The two top layers were separated by Grecian columns and nestled upon each separation were purple and white tulle bows to which small white wedding bells were attached. A stairway on either side of the two bottom tiers led to the top of the second tier where a miniature bridal party was ascending to where a miniature bride and bridegroom stood. The cake was topped by a bridal couple in an iridescent diamond crown. The cake was decorated by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Richard Paoli.

Six foot lighted candelabra completely surrounded the bride's table with three rows of crystal beads draped from one candelabra to the other. White chrysanthemums and greenery surrounded the white shag carpet under the table and a purple shag carpet runner led to the bride's table from the reception line. A large two-toned purple floral arrangement graced the front of the stage.

Gifts were displayed by Mrs. Dennis Loosli, Mrs. Fred Barras, Mrs. Don Whittaker, Mrs. Louise Erickson, on a long table covered with white re-embroidered lace trimmed in purple satin ribbon. Giftbearers were Janie Rasmussen, Paula Jensen, Brad and Shelly Cook, Steven Barras and Brent and Dennis Loosli.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hunsaker, Mrs. Ira L. Chamberlain and Mrs. E. A. Hendrix, with the grandmothers being presented white feathered carnations and baby rose corsages and the grandfather a white carnation.

Background music was played on the organ by Jay Roy Jensen, cousin of the bride.

Jim Baker was master of ceremonies for the program. After a honeymoon trip to Salt Lake City and Provo, the couple will reside in Rupert until this fall when the bridegroom will again enroll at Brigham Young University and complete his education.

Worthwhile club meets

HANSEN — The Rock Creek Worthwhile Club met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Vernon Bernie, with the hostess reading the Ten Commandments as the opening exercise.

Guests were Mrs. Virgil Bernie, Mrs. John Hayden and Mrs. Virgil Cowles, all Twin Falls, and Mrs. Jessie Posey. Plans were made for a benefit card party and cooked food sale for 1:30 p.m. April 7 at Woodman Hall, Hansen.

Mrs. Melvin Tilley was program chairman, with prizes going to Mrs. Tilley, Mrs. Virgil Bernie, Mrs. Glenn Gott, Mrs. Don Tilley and Mrs. Pete Austin.

MALTA — The Salt Lake City LDS Temple was the setting for the Feb. 25 wedding uniting in marriage Estella Vera Hall and Merline C. McKee.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mr. and Mrs. J. Deward Hall, Malta, and Mr. and Mrs. Loren R. McKee, Tridell, Utah.

Accompanying the young couple to the temple besides their parents were Mr. and Mrs. Lynn McKee, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Seth Banner, brother-in-law and sister of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Jay Cattle, cousins of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. William McKee, uncle and aunt of the bride, and Daniel Dyer, Terry Jessop and Allen Cook, classmates of the bridegroom.

After the ceremony, a wedding dinner for members of the bridal party was held at Harmon's Cafe, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

A reception and dance were held the following evening at the Raft River High School Gymnasium. Guests were greeted before a background setting of white drapes flecked with gold and flanked with beauty baskets of white chrysanthemums and blue daisies.

The bride was attired in a floor-length white satin wedding gown with an organza overlay. The fitted lace bodice featured a high mandarin neckline and long sleeves with lace cuffs.

The wedding dress was designed and made by the bride, assisted by her sister and mother.

Her floor-length veil of tulle was secured with a lace flower. Blue rosebuds surrounded with white split carnations formed a cascading arrangement for the bridal bouquet which was tied with white satin streamers.

Mrs. Seth Banner, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Redge Peterson, Claudia Armstrong and Geraldine Jones.

Serving as best man was Daniel Dyer.

Guests were registered by Mrs. Rodney Hall, sister-in-law of the bride. Giftbearers were Kenneth Hall, Neil Banner, Ronda Hall, Sherrille Hall, Annette Banner, Rochelle Banner and Leann Banner, nephews and nieces of the bride.

Gifts were arranged by Mrs. Morris Hall, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Kevin Tracy and Mrs. Vernon Tracy, cousins of the bride.

The bride's table, covered with white lace, was centered with the five-tiered wedding fruit cake made by the bride and decorated by Betty Walker, Deelo.

It carried forth the blue and white color scheme of the wedding decorations in the white icing, blue flowers, white doves and lattice work featuring a curved stairway on which were miniature wedding guests led by a miniature bride and bridegroom. White wedding bells and blue flowers with small ruffles of white tulle concealing a wedding ring and an engagement ring topped the cake.

A large crystal punch bowl centered the refreshment table which was covered with lace. Assisting with serving were Mrs. Edwin Paskett and Mrs. Alvin Neddó, aunts of the bride, and Juline Cattle, cousin of the bride.

Guests were served at quartet tables covered with white lace and centered with floating blue flowers and white birds in miniature brandy snifters with white candles in the center and blue ruffle trim.

Marvin C. Hall, brother of the bride, was master of ceremonies for the program which was presented by friends from Brigham Young University.

The Allan Devries Orchestra furnished music for dancing. Guests attended from Idaho, Utah and California.

"Women's Day" in Russia

MOSCOW (UPI)—March 8 is the one day of the year when every Soviet woman is supposed to be a queen and every man is her slave.

This year it is a three-day holiday, for men as well as women, since if the women are to relax and be served, the men must be free to do the household chores.

Sunday, shops were already virtually cleared of perfumes, chocolates, apparel dainties, flowers and all other conceivable gifts.

Were it not for the Georgians, with an eye for a fast ruble there would be no flowers, which here, as in most capitalist countries, is a symbol of appreciation of the fair sex.

The enterprising Georgians, who live in a subtropical climate, have been filling up planes with flowers and minting a fortune on the icy streets of Moscow by charging one ruble ($1.11) for one flower.

"Women's Day" started 61 years ago when Clara Zetkin, a German Communist leader, persuaded an international conference of women at Copenhagen to declare March 8 "The international working women's day of struggle for liberation and equality."

On the theory that women have been completely emancipated here since the Russian

Revolution of 1917, the holiday has become one to mark "the struggle for peace and democracy."

Actual usage, however, has made it a combination of Mother's and Valentine days with the accent on Valentine. By definition, a Women's Liberation Movement here is inconceivable since the Soviet constitution, statutes and propaganda assert that liberation occurred in 1917. How emancipated is Soviet womanhood?

There is no question about full and equal rights for women, including equal pay for equal work. And the work could not be "more equal" since women do almost everything from high level political leadership to digging in the coal mines and shovelling snow.

SWISS STEAK

- 1 1/4 pounds round steak,
- 1 1/2-inch thick strips
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons fat
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 1/2 cups stewed or canned tomatoes or tomato juice
- Mix the flour, salt and pepper. Spread half the mixture on a molding board. Place the steak on the board. Sprinkle with part of the remaining flour.
- Pound the steak with a wooden mallet or the edge of a heavy plate until all of the flour has been absorbed by the meat. Turn occasionally so that both sides are evenly floured.

Heat the fat in a frying pan. Pan fry the pounded steak on both sides in the hot fat. Add the onions and tomatoes. Cover tightly and simmer until tender or bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees for one and one-half hours.

The flour which was pounded into the steak should thicken the liquid, making a sauce which can be poured over the meat. The Times-News will pay $5 each week for Magic Valley Favorites. Minico tops Capital as Rams, Poky, Borah fall

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News Sports Editor
POCATELLO — The Minico Spartans shocked Capital 56-52 and Moscow and Coeur d'Alene came up with big wins over Highland and Pocatello, respectively, in the opening round of the state class A-1 basketball tournament. It was a bad day for the Southern Idaho Conference leaders as only Skyline of the state's largest loop and Minico could advance into the semifinals. Highland, defending state champion and ex-SIC titlist with Skyline, was drubbed

82-71 by Moscow while Coeur d'Alene, looking ragged and battered for three and one-half quarters, rallied past the sporadic Pocatello Indians 69-58. Minico, which finished ninth in the SIC, led throughout the second half in trimming Capital. Skyline tapped Borah

69-58. Minico fell behind 10-3 in the opening four minutes against Capital but started coming back before the first period ended while the Eagles went into the beginning of a poor shooting night. The Spartans, starting three juniors, kept their cool throughout and stuck with Coach Gary Swan's game plan. The Swan one-on-one press which really shouldn't work, again turned the trick as it had during the district tournament.

Minico didn't get its head in front until it came out running in the third quarter to pick up six straight points that turned a 22-19 intermission deficit into a 25-22 advantage. Within 4:08 of the third period, the Spartans moved ahead by eight, Toby Harding hitting a free throw and John Fennel a three-point play. But Capital stayed within four through the rest of the period and cut the deficit to two when Kent Olsen opened the fourth quarter with an Eagle bucket.

Then in a 16-second span, Minico tucked it away. Randy Ketterling and Tony Saras hit free throws and Ketterling took a steal for a field goal to boom the Spartans ahead 43-36 with 7:25 left.

Minico went into a more deliberate game, moved into its only 10-point advantage at 48-38 with three minutes left and coasted home. Ketterling took point honors for the Spartans with 18 while Saras tanked 14. Olsen hit 13 and Keith Larson got 12 for the Eagles.

Trailing most of the contest, Coeur d'Alene caught fire in the final minute when 6-8 center Dick Shafer laced a turnaround jumper through the nets to give the Northern Idaho five the lead. Mike Spencer hit two free throws with 15 seconds left to give the Vikings a comfortable four-point bulge.

There was never any question that Skyline would win, as the hit Grizzlies relied on the sharpshooting of Miles Hurley, who hit 25 points, and the deadly aim of Chad Rogers who chipped in 16 counters.

Nick John, Moscow's 6-5, center was the man of the hour in leading the upset win over Highland as he canned 28 points, mostly on short jump shots. Steve Duncanson canned 18 for the winners.

A tight Moscow defense held the Southern Idaho conference's leading scorer, Rick Cutright, to 17 points, while his teammate Craig Avery picked up 16 counters in the losing effort.

Oakley rips Clark Fork but Camas County and Hagerman lose A-4 tilts

BOISE (UPI) — Oakley remained the only defending state champion alive in four state tournaments as it whipped Clark Fork 74-53 in the opening round of the A-4 basketball tourney in Coeur d'Alene. In other action, Troy tipped Midvale 65-61, Leadore pinned Hagerman 78-66, and Plummer advanced to the semifinal round with a 75-53 thrashing of Camas County. Oakley's 6-5 center Randy Hardy was the big gun for the defending champs, as he pumped in 18 points and pulled down 17 rebounds. Bob Lowther led the losers with 17 points. Troy, which ended up on top of a see-saw battle, finally grabbed the lead for good with just over two minutes remaining in its game with Midvale, when Roger Osborn pumped in an 18-foot fielder. He finished the evening with 17 points, while Midvale's Bruce Fox led all scorers with 20 followed by teammate Driggs Jessup with 19 goals.

Randy Stroud led Leadore to its victory over Hagerman by ripping the nets for 24 points — 10 of which came in the first quarter. Hagerman came within one point at the end of the first quarter with the hot shooting of Doug Butler, who hit for 24 points in the losing effort.

Plummer connected on 25 of 31 free throws in taking a first round victory over Camas County which hit only 15-34. High point man for the winners was Steve Mundt who canned 22 points, while Dave Coats tallied 14 points for the losers.

They upset Texas and now the Irish cagers are favored to defeat the SWC basketball champions, TCU, and advance to the NCAA's midwest regional in Wichita, Kan., next week. The host University of Houston, 20-6, meets New Mexico State, 19-7, in the other game with that winner also advancing to Wichita.

The Notre Dame-TCU game starts at 7 p.m. CST and the Houston-New Mexico State game starts two hours later. The Irish, 19-7, including a victory over top ranked UCLA, were the first team to arrive. TCU and New Mexico State both arrive Friday and all four teams will work out Friday at Hofheinz Pavilion.

Notre Dame is ranked 18th nationally while TCU, 15-11, has not had a national ranking all season. Carr, a 6-foot-3 senior from Washington, is the No. 2 scorer in the nation this year with a 37.5 average and his 34.3 career average is second only to the 44.2 mark set by Pete Maravich last year.

Carr leads Irish into Texas again

HOUSTON (UPI) — Austin Carr, the second highest average scorer in collegiate basketball history, and his Notre Dame teammates came to Houston Thursday to prepare for Saturday night's showdown with Texas Christian in the NCAA midwest pre-regional.

3,605 to bid for open spots

NEW YORK (UPI) — An entry list approaching the record of 3,605 golfers is expected for the 71st U.S. Open scheduled for the Merion Golf Club in Ardmore, Pa., June 17-20. All pros and any amateurs with handicaps of two strokes or less computed under the USGA handicap system are eligible to enter if they send their entry and a $25 fee to the USGA office in New York by May 5.

The process of whittling down the three thousand entries to 150 tourney qualifiers will start with a series of 36-hole local qualifying rounds at 55 locations on May 24-25. Local qualifying will take place over two courses — at eight of the locations.

Dodgers were interested in Sadecki, until beating him

By United Press International
The Los Angeles Dodgers are reportedly interested in obtaining Ray Sadecki from the New York Mets, but the veteran southpaw may have flunked his job interview.

The Dodgers, who are supposedly ready to deal either catcher Jeff Torborg or catcher Tom Haller to the Mets for Sadecki, got a look at the 30-year-old lefty in an exhibition game Thursday and tagged him with a 5-4 loss.

Sadecki, who worked three innings in relief, was tagged for four hits, walked two and struck out two but failed to retire a batter in the ninth inning when the Dodgers rallied for two runs to win.

Bobby Darwin started the rally with a double and Maury Wills singled. After Maury Mota walked, Jim Lefebvre was sent up to bat for Von Joshua and delivered a double to left-center to chase home the winning run.

Jerry Grote of the Mets had the game's only home run. In other camps: Lou Brock's three-run homer in the eighth inning carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 7-4 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. It was the Cardinals' fifth straight victory over the Yankees. The Cardinals' first straight victory over the Yankees since 1954.

for 6 2-3 innings but had to rally for four runs in the 10th inning to score their first spring victory, 7-3. Joe Keough's run-scoring triple was the big hit for Kansas City in the 10th. Amos Otis had a 450-foot homer for the Royals early in the game.

Al Kaline drew a bases-loaded walk in the ninth inning to force home the winning run as the Detroit Tigers edged the Houston Astros, 8-7. The game featured five homers, two by Detroit's Norm Cash. Jim Northrup had a three-run homer for the Tigers while Doug Rader and Jim Wynn each homered for the Astros. The Atlanta Braves took advantage of two Pittsburgh errors to score three unearned runs in the seventh inning and defeat the Pirates, 5-2. Phil Niekro of the Braves turned in four innings of two-hit ball to spark the victory.

Johnny Bench had two hits and drove in three runs and Bill Plummer had a two-run homer and a run-scoring single as the Cincinnati Reds edged the Minnesota Twins, 9-8, for their first victory this spring. The Reds had lost five in a row. Cesar Tovar finally agreed to terms with the Twins for $50,000. Carlos May paced a 16-hit attack with four hits as the Chicago White Sox bombed the Philadelphia Phillies, 9-2.

Rafael Robles collected three singles, scored four runs and drove home a pair to lead the San Diego Padres to an 11-7 triumph over the Chicago Cubs. Larry Stahl also had three hits for the Padres. Danny Walton hit a three-run pinch-hit homer in the seventh inning to give the Milwaukee Brewers a 7-6 triumph over the San Francisco Giants.

Reggie Jackson and Dave Duncan each hit two-run homers to spark the Oakland Athletics to a 6-1 victory over the California Angels. The game was hotly disputed by California manager Lefty Phillips and general manager Dick Walsh over use of the three-ball experiment. The Angels claimed the rule should not have been enforced since both teams had not agreed to it beforehand.

Jerry Davanson's two-run single in the eighth inning carried the Baltimore Orioles to a 6-4 victory over the Tokyo Giants. Ken Harrelson collected two doubles and rookie Mark Ballinger worked five scoreless innings as the Cleveland Indians blanked the Lotte Orions of Japan, 3-0.

UCLA, USC battle Saturday

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA, the No. 1 team in college basketball with only one loss in 28 starts this season, goes after the Pacific-8 title Saturday against No. 3-ranked University of Southern California at Pauley Pavilion.

It will be the teams' second meeting. The Bruins overcame a nine-point deficit in the second half to beat the Trojans 64-60 at the Sports Arena five weeks ago. "We're a better team this time," UCLA coach John Wooden said. "We're playing better team ball. We're more hungry, more enthusiastic, more aggressive."

UCLA, which is 13-0 in the Pacific-8, actually has a conference co-title wrapped up. If Southern Cal wins, it will mean a co-championship and a Monday night game at Pauley to decide which school will advance to the semifinals of NCAA Western Regionals at Salt Lake City next Thursday night.

Winners of an incredible four consecutive national titles, the Bruins looked almost unbeatable at home last weekend. They polished off California 103-69 and then ran over Stanford 107-72 in conference games. It was the most impressive UCLA has looked this season. The Bruins will have to be at their best against the Trojans, who have beaten UCLA at Pauley the last two years.

Southern Cal also has a 24-1 record and has what many think is the best guard combination in the country in Dennis Layton and Paul Westphal.

"We're going into the game thinking we can win," Trojan coach Bob Boyd said. "We have the type of team to do it. I know if we do pull it off, there'll be no doubt in anyone's mind how good our team is."

Sabala racing in big meet

KETCHUM — John Sabala, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sabala, Ketchum, along with four other outstanding skiers from the western United States, is in Lake Placid, N.Y., participating in an international ski meet held through this weekend.

Sabala just finished the winter meet in Winter Park, Colo., where he scored an upset in the downhill slalom with a combined time of 1 minute 33.55 seconds on two runs. This was during a national collegiate athletic association regional qualifying meet.

He came in with the fastest run of the day — 46.5 seconds — at Winter Park. The University of Denver Ski Team had been expected to enter the fastest skier in the downhill. The U of D won the meet, but Sabala edged out Denver entrants in the downhill by several seconds.

Sabala is a senior at the United States Air Force Academy in Colorado. He is a graduate of Wood River High School.

Evansville gains finals

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (UPI) — Evansville scored an 82-74 victory over Ashland of Ohio here Friday night and earned the right to meet Central Michigan for the Great Lakes regional title of the NCAA College Division basketball tourney.

The Aces stopped an 18-game winning streak by the Ashland Eagles to earn the finals. Central Michigan held off a tough Augustana of Illinois team to be paired against the Aces; the two teams will meet Friday night for the regional title, and a chance for the college division finals here next week.

Glenns Ferry wins but Wendell loses in first round of A-3 tourney

REXBURG (UPI) — There will be a new champion in the A-3 division this year as Thursday defending champion Wendell lost 76-65 to Homedale in the tournaments first round play in Rexburg.

Wendell managed only a brief lead, late in the third period, and other than that it was all Homedale's game as Richard Pearson pumped through 31 points and pulled down 17 rebounds to lead the victory.

In other first round action, Genesee outpointed Teton 61-46, Glenns Ferry topped Immaculate Heart 61-53, and Sugar Salem looked strong as it romped to a 76-64 win over New Plymouth. The tall Genesee crew was paced by the scoring of Ron Hopkins counters. Brad Kunz was high for the losers with 15 points.

Glenns Ferry, led by the 20-point output of Bob Shrum and Rich Brown, who added 19, gained the right to enter the semifinals by defeating IHM. IHM's flashy guard Jim Valenti added 14 points in the losing effort.

Five men scored in double figures and led the Sugar-Salem attack that literally overwhelmed New Plymouth in the final first round game of the day. Lynn Peterson led the Digger attack, but gave up scoring honors to the Pilgrims' Meyers who tallied 27 points.

3 cutter teams set for finals

TWIN FALLS — Three cutter racing teams left Thursday for Tremonton, Utah, where two of the teams will compete for the world's champion cutter racing championship for two-year-olds.

A team owned by Bob Juker, Buhl, and Sonny Ward, Twin Falls, and one owned by Bob Juker and George Juker, both Buhl, will compete for the All-American Futurity title for two-year-olds with about 40 teams. The top two teams from each association will race.

States expected to be represented are Idaho, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado and Montana. Jim Evans, Idaho Falls, will drive the Juker-Ward team, and Jeff Juker, Buhl, will drive the Juker brothers' team.

George Juker also will enter his three-year-old team in the three-year-old derby at Tremonton. Chuck Ewing, Buhl, will drive that team. All are members of the Snake River Racing Association.

Gooding batters Lakeland to gain A-2 semi-finals

BOISE (UPI)—A well balanced scoring attack paved the way for a victory for Snake River, 63-51 over Weiser in the opening round of the A-2 basketball tourney Thursday in Boise.

In other action, Gooding blasted Lakeland, 61-48; Preston tripped Orofino 62-52, and Salmon overpowered Kelly

Snake River's offensive attack was led by four players, all of whom hit in the double figures. They included Chad Dance, Doug Sprague, and Jerald Jones, with 12 points each; and Stan Bowman with 10 counters.

Snake River couldn't shake the Wolverines in the first quarter and held only a 16-15 edge at its end. But a rugged defense and a fired-up offensive gave Snake River a 39-24 halftime lead.

Preston's Tom Dunn staged a 10-point scoring outburst in the third period to boost his team to a 43-39 bulge over Orofino with just 30 seconds remaining in the third period. Teammate Boyd

Lewis hit for 13 while Orofino's Rick Chase had 11 and Gary Blendon, added 10.

Salmon's Mark Heald was the big reason for Salmon's victory over the Knights of Kelly, as he tanked 28 points and put his team into the early lead, one that Kelly never recovered from.

Paul Gramer helped Kelly along with 16 points, but it was never enough to close the gap Salmon had after taking an early 22-9 lead.

N.C. State stuns Duke, S.C. drops Maryland in ACC meet

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI)—North Carolina State, minus its top scorer, upset Duke 68-61 Thursday night to join North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia in the semifinals of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament.

Virginia whipped Wake Forest in a cliffhanger 85-84 victory in the nightcap to be paired against North Carolina, a 76-41 victor over hapless Clemson, in Friday's semifinals.

South Carolina downed Maryland 71-63, and will oppose North Carolina State in the second game of the semifinals.

Virginia's victory was the only really close contest, decided by Barry Parkhill's 15-footer with four seconds on the clock.

The lead changed hands 19 times in the second half.

Virginia led 83-80 when Scott McCandlish of the Cavaliers tied up Wake Forest guard Charlie Davis as he went up for a layup with 26 seconds to go.

Wake controlled the tip-up, and Bob Rhoads hit for two to make it 83-82 with 23 seconds left. Rhoads was fouled by McCandlish two seconds later, and hit a one-and-one to put Wake ahead.

It was the last point of the night for Wake Forest.

Davis and Virginia's Bill Gerry tied for scoring honors with 23 points each. McCandlish had 19 for Virginia and Parkhill 18.

Gary McGregor hit 20 points for Wake Forest.

Gooding made it obvious why it's favored as it methodically destroyed the Lakeland Hawks 61-48.

The Senators used the inside strength — both scoring and rebounding of 6-7 Frank Krahn and 6-3 Garry Gorrell plus the outside punch of Monte Funkhouser and Jeff LaCroix to rattle the Hawks early and then climb to an ever-increasing lead.

In the fourth quarter Gooding stalled — despite a 52-35 lead — and forced the Hawks to foul numerous times.

Krahn was the source of constant misery as the big Senator, one of three juniors starting for Gooding, lofted in 20 points and tore down 10 rebounds.

Funkhouser threw in 16 points while LaCroix had 12 and Gorrell added 11. High point man for Lakeland was Bob Bedard with 15 points followed by Ron Viebroch with 12, all in the second half.

Utags will test NCAA jinx on BYU

LOGAN, Utah (UPI)—Weber State will attempt to scuttle Long Beach State's 15-game winning streak and Brigham Young battles Utah State for a rare third time in a season Saturday night in the opening round of the NCAA's Western Regionals.

Weber, Big Sky Conference champions four years running, will be shooting for revenge against Long Beach State, winner of the Pacific Coast Athletic Conference, in the opening game of the doubleheader in the new 10,000-seat capacity Spectrum.

The 49ers, an experienced club boastful of its physical prowess, walloped Weber, 92-73, last year in first round action in the NCAA tournament at Provo, Utah.

Brigham Young, whose strong road finish clinched the Western Athletic Conference championship for the Cougars, is matched in the nightcap against independent Utah State, which has made a near habit of eliminating the WAC champions from NCAA tournament play. In the past nine years, the USU Aggies have met the WAC king five times in the NCAA meet and won four of them.

Three of the teams in this tournament, led by BYU in 1970, are nationally ranked in the top 20 poll of United Press International. USU and Weber are lodged in a five-way tie for 18th.

The winners advance to the second round of the regionals next week in Salt Lake City with the Long Beach-Weber winner taking on University of Pacific and the BYU-USU winner meeting the eventual champion of the Pacific Eight, either UCLA or USC.

Weber was clearly outclassed in its last meeting with Jerry Tarkanian's 49ers but Willie Sojourner, the Wildcats' 6-9 center, promises it will be a different story this time around.

"I stunk last time, no doubt about that, but it will be a different story this time," said Sojourner who averaged 18 points and 14 rebounds during the regular season.

That lopsided defeat still rankles Weber's young coach, Phil Johnson, and he is confident this year's team possesses the necessary outside shooting strength — namely 6-6 Bob Davis (a 16.5 average) — to prevent the 49ers from blanketing Sojourner.

The 49ers, who have plenty of muscle and shooting skill, are led by forward George Trapp, a 6-8 senior averaging 19 points and 11 rebounds, and 6-6 sophomore guard Ed Ratleff, who has a 19.8 scoring average.

BYU's victory hopes will ride to a great extent on the slender 6-11 frame of sophomore center Kresimir Cosic, who played for Yugoslavia in the 1968 Olympics.

St. Joseph fighting long jinx

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—St. Joseph's hasn't been victorious in three years against Villanova, its opponent Saturday night in the opening round of the NCAA tournament at the Palestra.

The Hawks, who lost to Villanova's Wildcats twice this year, don't appear worried about the losing streak, but Villanova coach Jack is concerned.

"When I found out we'd be playing St. Joseph's a third time this year, I thought our team could become overconfident," says Kraft, who considers St. Joseph's a dangerous opponent and one which is troublesome for his 6-foot-7 all-American, Howard Porter.

"I've been telling the team this game is entirely different," says Kraft. "This is a tournament game and it throws a completely different light on it."

Jack McKinney, coach of the Hawks, says his team "isn't jittery" at the thought of meeting the Wildcats, despite the 85-75 loss in the Jayhawk classic and a 63-55 defeat in a big five game Feb. 20 at the 9,200-seat Palestra.

"This is just like playing Villanova any other game at the Palestra," McKinney says. "The game doesn't have great NCAA atmosphere, because we're playing in town and it's just like playing a Neighborhood rival."

The NCAA tournament is nothing new to Kraft, who has a 4-3 record in three previous tournaments, including a loss to St. Bonaventure in last year's Eastern Regional finals.

St. Joseph's seniors, 6-foot-6 John Connolly, 6-6 Eric Mitchell and 6-2 Jack Snyder, played for McKinney in his only previous NCAA appearance as a coach, a loss to Duquesne in the 1969 opener.

St. Joseph's, with a 19-8 record including victories in 10 of its last 12 games, reached the NCAA by defeating Rider and LaSalle in the Middle Atlantic Conference tourney. Villanova earned an invitation as an independent with a 23-6 record.

Duke feels Penn will be toughest

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI)—The Duquesne Dukes this season have conquered such teams as Notre Dame, LaSalle and Villanova. But Coach Red Manning thinks his team's toughest test comes Saturday night against undefeated Pennsylvania in an NCAA open round game.

The game is in the new Coliseum at West Virginia University where a sellout crowd of more than 14,000 will be on hand, most of them Duquesne fans since the campus is only about 80 miles away.

"It's the best club I've seen all year," Manning said. "They're right up there with UCLA and Notre Dame. They have depth, are big, strong, good speed; shoot well."

Manning saw Penn close out its perfect season (28-0) against Columbia last Saturday night.

"They say the Ivy League does not have tough teams," he said. "Penn killed Columbia rebounding. If we're going to do anything, we'll have to hold them on the boards."

Duquesne (21-3), making its first appearance in the NCAA in two years, has the respect of Penn Coach Dick Harter.

"I scouted Duquesne against La Salle and they are the most physically powerful team I've ever seen, especially the two Nelsons."

"I think we have depth on them, and we'll see if we can hold them off in other areas. We'll be playing our usual man-to-man defense."

Duquesne players average 6-7, two inches taller than the Quakers. Barry and Garry Nelson, the 6-10, 240-pound identical twins of the Dukes are one reason their team is called "physical" by opponents.

Teammates Mickey Davis, also 6-7, paces the scorers with a 19 point average and 6-5 Jarrett Durham, is the second best dunker with an 18.3 average. Moe Barr, the 6-3 player makes rounds on the first team talent.

Coin flip to start NBA draft

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Cleveland Cavaliers and Portland Trail Blazers will participate in a coin flip at noon next Monday to determine which team will pick first in the 1971 college draft, it was announced Thursday night by Commissioner Walter Kennedy of the National Basketball Association.

Cleveland and Portland, two of the three teams to join the NBA in 1970, already are assured of finishing last in the Eastern and Western Conferences, respectively. The coin flip will take place in the commissioner's office.

In commemoration of the NBA's Silver Anniversary season, an uncirculated 1946 silver half-dollar, minted the year the league was established, will be used for the flip. The coin has a current market value of six dollars.

Portland will call the flip, and the team currently is staging a contest in its home city, asking Blazers' fans to write in whether the call should be heads or tails. The majority vote of the contest will prevail.

Heard and Palmer share Citrus lead

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—Jerry Heard, a 23-year-old Californian who's never been in the lead in a professional golf tournament, sank a 35-foot putt on the final hole Thursday to share first round honors with veteran Arnold Palmer in the $150,000 Florida Citrus Invitational golf tournament.

"When I was out there I told my caddy I wanted to catch Palmer," said Heard after posting a six under par 66 at the pine-shaded Rio Pinar Country Club course. "I was lucky to do it."

Palmer, who lost here last year on a muffed four-foot putt, socked home five consecutive birdies and said "As far as striking the ball, my game probably is better than ever."

"I played well but I would have liked to have putted better," added Palmer, who seemed tense and eager to dismiss his interviewers after Thursday's round. "But I didn't putt bad. You don't shoot 66 and putt bad."

Jacksonville's Dan Sikes, in a pack one stroke behind the leaders, said Palmer always plays good at Rio Pinar. "Among other places."

Also ending the day with 67s were Dick Lotz, Bert Greene, John Lister, Julius Boros and Jerry McGee.

Two strokes off the pace was a herd including Kermit Zarley, Hugh Royer, Dale Douglass, Vic Loustalot, Bob Murphy, Orville Moody, Gary Groh, Bobby Nichols, Lee Trevino, Bobby Mitchell, Jerry Abbot, Charles Sifford and Dick Crawford.

Heard, whose father raises citrus and olives near Visalia, Calif., finished 34th on the money list last year with $44,919 and had five finishes in the top 10. This year he tied for fourth in the Bing Crosby National Pro Am, but figures a 9th-place tie in the PGA championship his finest effort.

About that 35-foot putt on the 18th green, he said, "to be honest, I was just lagging it up there and it went in the hole."

Asked how it feels to be in the lead in a major tournament for the first time, the former high school football star said, "I'll get to sleep on this one, anyway."

A key shot in Heard's round came at No. 5 after he had made two bogies in a row. He hit his tee shot into the trees and had only a two-foot window to the green.

"It really was a stupid play, but I decided to go for it and zinged it right through," he said.

He finished with eight birdies against two bogeys.

Still unhappy with his putting — "the longest I hit was 20 feet"—Palmer had birdies at 8, 9, 10, 11, 12 and 15; a par five 510-footer. He had no bogeys.

Bert Greene, in the pack at 67, said he's been venting his frustrations by hanging on his irons with a hammer.

"I took out some bad feelings after missing the cut at the Doral," said Greene, who last year won the Los Lagartos International and the Brazilian Open. "I put them in a vice and started hammering on them—real scientific." He explained, however, he's been advised his clubs should be more upright.

A field of 144 golfers are entered in the sixth running of the Citrus Invitational.

Esposito gets mark

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—Phil Esposito became hockey's alltime single season top goal producer Thursday night when he tipped in a shot from the point by teammate Ted Green for his 59th goal of the year in a game between the Boston Bruins and Los Angeles Kings.

Esposito's record-shattering goal came after 7:03 of the first period off goalie Denis DeJordy. The nine-foot shot enabled the Bruins to tie the score 1-1.

An estimated crowd of 14,000 cheered loudly when Esposito scored and all his Boston teammates rushed out to congratulate him as action was stopped on the ice. Esposito was presented with the puck as a souvenir of his feat before play resumed.

Cal to host U.S.-Soviet track meet

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—The Amateur Athletic Union announced Wednesday the 1971 United States-Russia World All-Star track and field meet will be staged July 2-3 at the University of California at Berkeley.

"In awarding this spectacular meet to the University of California, we do so on the basis of the tremendous interest in the sport ... in the greater Bay Area ... said John B. Kelly Jr., president of the AAU.

'Lib' strife

Berkeley leftists intending to beat 'system' in voting

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Nobody needs to tell the leftists in this citadel of dissent to work "in the system." They're doing it with a vengeance.

In fact, they intend to beat the system next month at the polls, city council included.

A loosely knit coalition ranging from over-30 liberals to hardcore revolutionaries has put up four candidates for the nine-man council in Berkeley's April 6 election, and is backing a charter proposal to split the police department into three autonomous parts.

"We're after community control of police, community control over zoning and construction, user developed parks, adequate child care facilities, and reduced rents (for students)," says Jeff Gordon, a law student at the University of California.

Gordon was an organizer last year in the April 6 movement—a collection of students who successfully campaigned for Democratic congressman Ron Dellums and state assemblyman Ken Meade.

The April 6 movement was transformed into the "April coalition" early this year and picked up the support of ecology action communes and moderate and liberal Democrats who are backing the police charter amendment.

In addition, far left radicals and revolutionary communes, who previously had been opposed to working within the electoral process, joined the coalition.

Gordon, who claims the students have no voice in city politics although they comprise a large part of the community, sees the April vote as more than simply a local election.

"If we are ever to have any hope of turning this country around from its domestic and foreign policies..." Gordon said, "we must first be able to gain political control of our local communities."

"We have an opportunity to set a nationwide precedent that could cause as much change on campus and in the country as the free speech movement helped spark during the past seven years," he said.

The April coalition and the black caucus, an organization also highly instrumental in electing Dellums, have not endorsed a mayoral candidate since none of the nine seeking the notice supported the police amendment. But they are backing a slate of four radical city council candidates.

The four are Rick Brown, Loni Hancock, D'Army Bailey and Ira Simmons.

Brown, 29, a graduate student in education, is considered to be the campus representative on the radical slate.

The founder of the UC Center for Participant Education, Brown initiated a course in 1969 that was to be taught by Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver. When the university regents ruled Cleaver could not teach the course, it touched off one of Berkeley's largest mass protests. Brown and 121 other students were arrested.

Mrs. Hancock, 30, a mother of two school-aged girls, ran for a council seat in 1969 as a liberal-radical candidate and polled 10,341 votes, which was about 2,000 short of what she needed to be elected.

The two other candidates—Simmons, 28, and Bailey, 29—are black attorneys who have not previously been involved with Berkeley politics, but both were active in the Dellums campaign.

The unifying goal of the coalition is the "community control of police" amendment. The proposal originated in the black community when the committee to combat fascism, a political arm of the Black Panther party, began circulating a petition to put the measure on the ballot.

Later, moderates joined the petition drive for the amendment. A broad-based group called the citizens' committee for community control, which includes criminologists, UC faculty members and even former policemen, was formed to campaign for the amendment.

But, more importantly the police amendment brought the radicals into the campaign.

"The community control of police amendment turned on the south campus students, many of them living in communes, the ecology groups and the radical collectives," Mrs. Hancock said.

The police amendment calls for three "neighborhood" police departments—one in the predominantly black community, another in the mainly white section in what is called "The Hills" and a third in the campus area.

Each police department would be autonomous, administered by a fulltime commissioner elected by neighborhood councils. In addition, policemen would be required to live in the community where they work.

Vice Mayor Wilmont Sweeney calls the proposal "a legal separation and a step backward into the dark ages."

The police department has actively opposed the amendments and city attorney Robert Anderson says it is "so vague and uncertain, it would be unenforceable."

Street fund bill sought

BOISE (UPI) — A Senate committee decided Thursday to ask for introduction of a measure to provide additional highway user funds for Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls.

Snooping termed no help

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., said Thursday the surveillance employed in a military intelligence system to assemble dossiers on him and thousands of other civilians helped "no one except the revolutionaries."

"Terror leads to fear, and fear leads to spying and wire-tapping and no-knock jaws," he told the Women's National Democratic Club.

"And that perhaps is what the revolutionaries who resort to violence seek ... the spying and snooping and data banks profit no one except the revolutionaries."

Stevenson, calling for increased congressional vigilance over the military establishment, linked government snooping with such "demented" acts as the recent bombing of the U.S. Capitol.

"The military spying activities were uncovered during hearings by the Senate Constitutional Rights subcommittee."

During testimony Thursday on government snooping and data banks, Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., charged that the Small Business Administration was requiring victims of the recent California earthquake to attest to their good moral behavior as a condition for loans to repair their business establishments.

Tunney said applicants for financial aid were forced to fill out an SBA form with this "unctuous warning."

"It is against SBA's policy to provide assistance to persons not of good character and therefore consideration is given to the qualities and personalities traits of a person, favorable and unfavorable, relating thereto including behavior, integrity, candor and disposition toward criminal actions."

Aid funds approved by Senate

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate Approved 34-0 Thursday and sent to the governor a measure giving the Department of Public Assistance a $667,193 deficiency appropriation for use in the current fiscal year.

Sen. Nels Solberg, D-Grangeville, floor sponsor of the measure, said the additional money was needed mostly as a result of a supreme court decision which eliminated residency requirements for welfare recipients, which he said "affected us" quite drastically.

Solberg said benefits to recipients had not been raised during the past year and were "very meager and probably less than subsistence level right now."

The measure also included $65,322 to be used for legal proceedings between the department and the federal government, but Solberg said if it is decided the state does not owe the money it will be returned to the general fund.

Transportation Committee it appeared the measure was "the most palatable bill we can come up with at this time."

The measure would give a portion of county highway user funds to cities of more than 30,000 population. The formula for distribution would take into account the proportion of mileage of the streets in such a city to the total city and county road mileage would be added to the city mileage.

Another bill from the committee, one to increase the gasoline tax one cent to eight cents a gallon with the revenue from the extra cent distributed to the cities, has been placed by the Senate in the amending order.

Committee Chairman Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, said one of the amendments would be to eliminate the extra cent and provide for distribution of revenue from one of the remaining cents to the cities.

The measure, however, if amended, would reduce revenue to the State Highway Department.

Council members chosen

BOISE (UPI) — Democrats meeting in caucus Thursday elected Sen. James Stolcheff, D-Sandpoint, and Sen. Art Murphy, D-Mullan, to two-year terms as minority representatives on the legislative council.

Sen. John Evans, D-Malad, Senate minority leader, is automatically a member of the legislative council.

Evans said the council would meet shortly to determine which studies it would make this year.

The Republicans have not yet chosen their membership, but Majority Leader Wayne Kidwell, R-Boise, said members would probably be chosen early next week.

Contract agreement reported

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Hughes Air West and the Air Line Employees Association, AFL-CIO, announced today they have reached agreement on a new contract after meeting with a federal mediator since Jan. 25.

Details of the agreement were not disclosed, pending its ratification by the union's 1,500 members. The members do not include flight or maintenance personnel.

An Air West spokesman said issues most difficult to resolve concerned pay, work rules and the duration of the contract.

Attack fatal to rights leader Young

WHITNEY YOUNG JR.

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI) — Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League and a leading U.S. civil rights leader for the past decade, died Thursday of a heart attack suffered at Light-house Beach, a popular Lagos bathing area. He was 49.

Nigerian officials said the six-foot, two-inch Kentucky-born Negro leader collapsed while walking after an afternoon swim. A doctor was summoned immediately, and he pronounced Young dead.

Officials said Young's body was taken to a local mortuary where an autopsy was to be performed.

Young, a moderate in the struggle for racial equality, was among the most polished and articulate of spokesmen for black Americans. He was at home in the corporate offices of Wall Street and the inner sanctums of Washington and had the ear of some of the most powerful men in the white establishment.

Prominent whites were quick to voice concern over Young's death. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said it was "a serious setback to the forces of moderation." David Rockefeller, chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank said a career "of dedicated service which immeasurably benefitted all Americans" had been cut short.

Young became director of the Urban League Oct. 1, 1961, after serving as dean of the Atlanta University School of Social Work. The league at that time was restricted to traditional social work and was oriented to the middle class. He transformed it into an agency that attacked the grass root problems of ghetto Negroes through job training and self-help efforts.

During his directorship, the league grew from 60 to 98 branches across the nation with an annual program costing $45 million. He increased the staff from 300 to 1,200.

Born in Lincoln Ridge, Ky., in 1921, the son of the head of a boarding high school and a former schoolteacher, Young received degrees from Kentucky State College and the University of Minnesota.

Young had served on seven presidential commissions, was a past president of the National Conference on Social Work, and was a member of the boards of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the Rockefeller Foundation, the Urban Institute, and the Urban Coalition. He was awarded the nation's highest civilian award, the Medal of Freedom, by President Lyndon G. Johnson in 1969. Young is survived by his widow, the former Margaret Buckner, and two daughters, Mrs. Marcia Boles and Lauren Young. The family lives in New Rochelle, N.Y.
