Reds press S. Viets into 12-mile retreat

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. helicopters flew through sheets of Communist antiaircraft fire today to take South Vietnamese marine and Ranger reinforcements into Laos to try to stem a North Vietnamese drive that has forced a 12-mile retreat by government forces.

The helicopters also flew out infantrymen bloodied and battered from four days of fighting, taking 2,000 of them to Khe Sanh from the jungles between support bases Brown and Lolo, an area 15 miles inside Laos where they suffered their heaviest casualties today in a single battle in Laos.

Firebase A Lolo, 12 miles inside Laos on French Colonial Route 9, axis of the government drive across the Ho Chi Minh Trail complex, appeared doomed and the 160 men there were ordered to break out of the position today. They were surrounded and under attack after losing 100 dead and wounded.

Support Base Brown, 6 1/2 miles east of abandoned Firebase Lolo, still held out but South Vietnamese spokesmen said the Communists were preparing an all out assault on the base. Officers at northern operational bases said 2,000 more infantrymen were still at the base, now the westernmost position in Laos.

South Vietnamese spokesmen declined to say how many reinforcements were sent into Laos but said the task force in Laos remained at between 20,000 and 21,000 troops. The size of the force has been reported previously up to 24,000 men.

Li Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, commander of South Vietnamese forces in Laos, said his troops had maintained a 10-1 kill ratio over the Communists since the drive into Laos began Feb. 8 and that these figures were "a victory...a sign of winning."

In Seattle Wednesday Gen. William Westmoreland, the Army chief of staff and former commander in Vietnam, said the incursion into Laos by the South Vietnamese had been a success. He said the current withdrawal was "not a retreat; it was planned."

Heavy overcast and rain prevented U.S. helicopters from carrying out an emergency resupply mission to a battered South Vietnamese battalion under Communist attack southwest of "A Lolo," 11 miles inside Laos on Highway 9.

Field reports said the unit was surrounded and had taken losses of at least 100 dead and wounded. They said the estimated 160 men still at the outpost were ordered to "break out of the position" but no further reports were available.

South Vietnamese spokesmen said 10,259 Communist troops had been killed in the five-week-old Laotian campaign with government losses of 860 killed, 3,235 wounded and 193 missing.

The U.S. command said today 45 Americans were killed last week and 156 wounded. It was one more dead than the previous week and down from the previous week's 434 wounded. Three GIs were killed and 14 wounded in the U.S. air mission over Laos.

It brought to 44,676 the number of Americans killed and 296,034 the GIs wounded in more than 10 years of war since 1961. Another 9,335 Americans have died of non-hostile causes.

Five Americans were killed Wednesday when a U.S. UH-1 Huey helicopter collided in flight with an AH-1 Cobra gunship in Cambodia and four GIs and two South Vietnamese were killed in the collision of an AH-1 chopper and a fixed wing plane at Can Tho, 90 miles southwest of Saigon.

Area mental unit formed

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News Staff Writer

TWIN FALLS — Articles of incorporation were signed Wednesday night by residents of five counties seeking a regional mental health center for Magic Valley.

The decision gave legal entry to a regional planning group which has been meeting intermittently since July, 1969.

Lloyd Webb, Twin Falls, chairman of the regional group, said legal details of incorporation of the non-profit, private group, to be known as the South Central Idaho Mental Health Group, Inc., should be completed prior to April 1. The Idaho Health Department has called a meeting here then to discuss plans for developing mental health services in the area.

The corporation will consist of an executive group with two persons from each of the eight Magic Valley counties. Representatives attended the Wednesday night meeting from Camas, Gooding, Jerome, Minidoka and Twin Falls counties.

Webb reviewed the past activity of the regional group which was formed in September, 1969, after an organizational meeting initiated by the Twin Falls League of Women Voters.

Since that time individuals from each of the eight counties have attended meetings and a grant was written, but it did not satisfy the diverse interests of the counties involved, Webb said.

He said Cassia and Minidoka counties have offered more financial support for the proposed mental health services than any other counties and should have professional people located in the Burley-Rupert area.

Last fall, at a meeting in Shoshone, Webb said the state was willing to appoint a professional person to assist in writing the grant application and hiring personnel for a center.

He was instructed to ask Dr. M. W. Pullen, head of the state mental health division, to make this appointment, but a freeze on hiring of any new state personnel made by Gov. Cecil Andrus, has delayed any assistance from the state.

Top Buhl schoolman to transfer

BUHL — Rex E. Engelking, Buhl superintendent of schools for the past 11 years, said today he has resigned to become superintendent of schools in Nampa.

Engelking said the appointment becomes effective July 1 and he has signed a three year contract there. He replaces Dr. Donald Oglesby who resigned four months ago in Nampa.

Engelking said he submitted his resignation to the Buhl School Board officially Friday. Members have scheduled a meeting tonight to discuss a replacement, the superintendent said.

In addition to his Buhl post, Engelking served as superintendent of schools at Parma for nine years. He entered the education field in 1941 and served as an elementary school teacher, secondary school teacher and as principal of the Parma High School for several years before becoming superintendent.

He came to Buhl in 1960 as superintendent from Parma.

Schools 'may' remain afloat

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls School District No. 411 will "probably" not have to cut back on its educational program, with the possible exception of driver training, this fall, though many school districts may have to lay off teachers.

George Staudacher, incoming superintendent of schools, told the Times-News today that the driver-training program is still "in the air," depending on state funding. If the program is canceled, instructors Leo Wright and Eugene Smith will be given other positions and will not lose their jobs, Staudacher said.

Elsewhere in Idaho, however, trouble is brewing in the form of potential teacher layoffs, crowded classrooms, and the likelihood of a statewide "withholding of services" by teachers this fall, according to Wayne York, executive secretary of the Idaho Education Association (IEA).

York told the Times-News today that the $1.6 million increase in state funding of schools just won't do the job. "We're getting a great many inquiries from teachers wondering what to do if their jobs are abolished this fall," he explained.

"There's been talk in the Idaho Falls school district that they would have to cut their staff by 40 teachers this fall," York said. The East Bonneville school district in eastern Idaho also has mentioned trimming its staff.

York said Alan Smith, Bancroft, executive secretary of the Idaho School Trustees Assn. told him that "you've got to expect this; it'll happen all over the state. You're going to have a lot of teachers without jobs."

Gem dam project advances

BOISE (UPI) — The House approved Wednesday legislation to put the state into the power business and negotiate with private power companies and other utilities for building and operating dams.

It also approved and sent to the Senate for concurrence a resolution setting up a legislative interim committee to review contract negotiations relating to construction of the project in the Grandview-Guffey reach of the Snake River.

After an hour and 22 minutes of debate, interrupted for lunch, the House approved 34-30 the principal bill authorizing the State Water Resource Board to undertake the power project, then it approved 35-32 another bill which permits the board to negotiate either with private companies or with other utilities.

The two bills already have passed the Senate. The resolution still must go through the upper chamber.

Rep. J. Vard Chaburn, R-Albion, said the House bill is a "good starting for the salvation of Idaho's water." He said the power development will bring the state $1.5 million a year.

The bill provides for a dam or dams on the Grandview-Guffey reach of the Snake River by Nampa and for sale of power by the state. It permits the water board to enter into a joint venture with a private utility to develop power revenue from the dam project.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most American families pay about the same percentage of their earnings in federal, state and local taxes whether their annual income is an impoverished $2,000, an affluent $40,000 or anywhere in between, Census Bureau figures showed today.

Direct and indirect taxes — direct and indirect taxes — take about 30 per cent of the income of the vast majority of American families because regressive state and property taxes offset income taxes which are scaled to the ability to pay.

Consider air Pulp mills given clean air guides

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Staff Writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Air Pollution Control Commission adopted comprehensive standards for control of pollution from Kraft pulp mill operations in its quarterly meeting Wednesday in Twin Falls.

The commission met with the Idaho Board of Health in a joint conference to consider pollution problems and their solutions. The pollution commission adopted the pulp-mill standards unanimously after a brief discussion, saying that the regulations were "in the best interest of the people of Idaho."

The standards set limits for emissions by the mill operated by Potlatch Forests, Inc., in north Idaho, and for any similar mill. Strict limits are set for the emission of hydrogen sulfide, mercaptans, dimethyl sulfide, dimethyl disulfide and "any other organic sulfides present."

Deadlines are set by the regulations ranging from July, 1972, to July, 1975.

In addition, the regulations require that every Kraft mill in Idaho must install equipment for the continual monitoring of sulfur emission, and provide that more stringent regulations may be imposed on any new mill or on any expansion of any existing mill.

Al Eiguren, administrative director of the air pollution control commission, outlined proposed federal standards for control of air-borne pollution, pointing out that the federal standards are more stringent than those adopted by the commission in recent actions.

Eiguren presented copies of a letter to Gov. Cecil D. Andrus from William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, outlining the federal program; a check-list of the required state authority over air pollution; and a summary of the federal "episode program."

The latter outlines what action can be taken when air pollution reaches a specific level, referred to as an "episode" in federal jargon, Eiguren said. Thus, a "forecast level" warning is issued to indicate the "early presence of adverse meteorological conditions," according to the EPA regulations.

An "alert" is issued when pollutant level is such that "short-term health effects can be expected to occur," including three-tenths of one part per million of sulfur dioxide, on a 24-hour average, or similar levels for particulates and other pollutants.

A "warning" would follow the alert stage, indicating a more severe pollution problem. The "emergency" level, indicating a potential crisis, would bring stringent action.

Attitude 'must change'

TWIN FALLS — Though no formal action has been taken to discharge Dr. Terrall O. Carver, former administrator of health in Idaho, he is going to have to "change his attitude" in order to satisfy the Idaho Board of Health, according to Fred Humphreys, chairman of the board.

Humphreys told the Times-News on Wednesday, during a board meeting in Twin Falls, that Carver was suspended for 30 days by action of the board, pending an investigation of unnamed problems. At the end of the 30-day "vacation," Humphreys said, Carver will resume his position automatically, unless the board takes formal action to discharge him in the interim.

Humphreys said "a difference of opinion" between Carver and the board of health led to the suspension. Carver issued orders that were directly contrary to board policy, Humphreys said, but so serious on the orders could be released at this time, pending final solution of the problem.

Humphreys said the board of health has conferred "informally" with Gov. Cecil D. Andrus on "a number" of matters, but that no direct action have been given by the governor to the board on the health policy in Idaho.

Gov. Andrus told the Times-News shortly after his inauguration that he planned to "coordinate" with the board of health on the health policy.

Herman P. Miller, chief of the Census Bureau's population division, revealed the figures in a speech prepared for the Congressional Board, a research organization for congressmen and industry meeting in New York. The text was released here.

But Miller said state and local taxes — mostly sales and property taxes — were "regressive" and "hit all income levels."

Total tax burden said similar for rich, poor

The biggest tax bite is felt by the poorest group of families, those with income of less than $2,000 a year. They pay an average of 50 per cent of their earnings in taxes.

But taken together, persons with income of less than $2,000 and more than $50,000 account for less than 18 per cent of the population. For the rest of the income groups, the total tax percentage is strikingly similar.

$10,000-$12,000, 20.2 per cent; $15,000-$25,000, 20 per cent; $25,000-$50,000, 22.8 per cent.

$10,000-$12,000, 20.2 per cent; $15,000-$25,000, 20 per cent; $25,000-$50,000, 22.8 per cent.

Final drive launched

BOISE (UPI)—Hoping for final adjournment by tonight, Idaho's lawmakers buckled down to work early today as speculation grew concerning the time and agenda of the expected special session.

Still to come up for debate were major appropriations bills for public and higher education, public health and welfare and the final legislative action on the measure could determine subjects of the special session.

By law, the lawmakers are limited to 20 days in the special session and consider only items put on the agenda by the governor.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus will almost certainly put re-districting of Idaho's congressional districts, reapportionment of legislative districts, and a reworking of Idaho's political convention law, which falls to conform with the one-man, one-vote theory, on the agenda.

But there was also speculation the governor could include the problem of funding for public education if the lawmakers appropriate only the $44 million recommended by the Joint Finance - Appropriations Committee.

Some lawmakers also implied public school kindergarten may be included in the special call, but advisers to the governor are believed to have discouraged the topic so soon after a bill for the preschool program was killed in the House.

Legislative leaders met with Andrus earlier this week and later went to caucuses to discuss the timing of the special session. Some lawmakers are hoping for a brief respite from legislative duties before returning to the State House, but others have indicated they would prefer "back-to-back" sessions.

The lawmakers are paid for each day in regular session and each day in special session, but will not receive compensation for days in between the two.

MANILA (UPI)—Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos appealed to United States leaders to inform leaders of non-Communist Asia well in advance of any basic changes in America's Asian policy.

In an interview with UPI, Marcos spoke of the worries of Asian leaders over the American withdrawal in Vietnam and the reduction of troops elsewhere.

"I get all these calls from leaders all over Asia. They ask me—'You're much closer to the Americans. Do you know what they're intending to do? ... What is meant by low profile? ...'"

"We have always tried to put across this message. When I say we, I mean the Asian leaders—that if there are any basic changes in policy that we be prepared for it," Marcos said.

By being "prepared," Marcos made clear he meant the United States should supply troop training and equipment for Asian nations to fill any military gaps.

Marcos, 53, the Philippines' most decorated soldier in World War II, said some Korean leaders had told him if the United States had not withdrawn its heavy equipment and armor before 1950, there might not have been a Korean war and the subsequent need for American fighting men.

"I asked why and they said they could have been prepared for it," he said.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former Sen. Charles E. Goodell of New York said today liberal Republicans should start laying the groundwork for a possible "dump Nixon" movement in 1972.

Goodell predicted Nixon would dump Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in 1972 and choose a running mate "who is relatively uncontroversial ... a political enunch."

Goodell, defeated last fall at least in part because of opposition from President Nixon, criticized the President for "widening" the Indochina war and for his handling of domestic problems, adding, "I would support opposition to the President now."

Goodell said he was not "urging open revolt" within the party at this time but is meeting with dissident GOP liberals throughout the country "to see if we can get a significant insurgency within the Republican party with the threat of moving toward a challenge in the primaries."

He said such a challenge to Nixon's renomination would be "a healthy thing" and "we should at least be laying the groundwork for this possibility."

Laos drive aid cited

PARIS (UPI)—The South Vietnamese delegation to the Vietnam peace talks said today the "remarkable results" obtained by Saigon's forces in Laos may bring a quicker end to the Indochina War.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese chief delegates boycotted the talks for the third week in a row to protest the allied drive into Laos, leaving their subordinates to represent the Communists at today's 107th session of the talks.

The Viet Cong accused the United States of "barbaric atrocities" against the Vietnamese people and said massacres had increased since President Nixon took office.

The chief U.S. negotiator, David K.E. Bruce, told the Communists: "You continue to indulge in sterile propaganda and useless maneuvers. We continue to look for a more responsible approach to serious negotiations than you have displayed so far."

"When you are ready to discuss the issues in a reasonable manner, you will find us ready to do so."

Pham Dang Lam, chief negotiator for South Vietnam, said his nation's successes during the incursion into Laos had substantially reduced North Vietnam's military potential by reducing the supply flow along the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

"The war in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos will decline in intensity and will have even a chance to come to an end more rapidly," Lam said. "The remarkable results obtained by South Vietnam illustrate the limited aspect of this mission and confirm the necessity for this operation."

Nguyen Minh Vy, representing North Vietnam, said, however, that the South Vietnamese troops in Laos had been "put out of action almost in totality."

Policy guides sought

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The special session may then have to consider revenue-raising proposals made by Andrus earlier in the first session of the 41st Legislature which were killed, held in committee, or simply not acted on.

Some lawmakers also implied public school kindergarten may be included in the special call, but advisers to the governor are believed to have discouraged the topic so soon after a bill for the preschool program was killed in the House.

Legislative leaders met with Andrus earlier this week and later went to caucuses to discuss the timing of the special session. ## Historic site guard proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Proposed legislation to provide for the protection and recovery of scientific, prehistoric, historical and archaeological data has been introduced by Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah.

Moss said the bill is specifically aimed at preservation at data which might be affected through alteration of the terrain by a federal or federal-assisted activity or program.

The measure is "basically a conservation measure," Moss said in a Senate speech Tuesday. "Its enactment will help us protect and recover one of America's great non-renewable resources—the evidence of the past. Without this bill, a majority of our archeological sites will be damaged or destroyed within the next 25 years."

For 20 years, said Moss, the National Park Service has maintained a program of cooperative agreements with state and local institutions for recovery of archeological data about to be lost by flooding behind dams.

He was born April 4, 1904, in Delta, Utah, and attended school in Spanish Fork and Delta. On Nov. 18, 1931, he married Thelma Jacklin in Burley. He was a member of the LDS Church and the Moose Lodge.

Surviving are his widow in Burley; two sons, Dick E. Einch, Burley, and Jim L. Einch, Gooding; his mother, Mrs. Martha M. Einch, San Bernardino, Calif.; three brothers, Henry Einch, San Bernardino; Bert Einch, Pico Rivera, Calif., and Max Einch, Arizona; two sisters, Mrs. Blanch Cogar and Mrs. Lois Simpkin, both San Bernardino, and six grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday in Joseph Payne Memorial Chapel by Bishop F. C. Paskett. Burial will be in Pleasant View Cemetery. Friends may call at the mortuary Friday afternoon and evening and Saturday prior to services.

Question...

What is the correct and proper way to acknowledge expression of sympathy received by a family when death occurs.

Answer...

Without question the most intimate method of saying "Thank You" is a personal letter of thanks. Today, however, because of the many and varied ways people have of expressing sympathy the number of acknowledgements to be made often mounts into the hundreds.

The greeting card type of condolence, notes of sympathy and telegrams do not require a personalized acknowledgement. Flowers, masses, memorial donations to charity and other personal acts of service and kindness do require special recognition.

We furnish acknowledgement cards to those we serve and suggest they be personalized with just a few words of written thanks. This brief message lends a personal touch and conveys so intimately the feeling of gratitude experienced by these acts of thoughtfulness.

Emergency radio bids sought

TWIN FALLS — Bids will be opened March 29 at 11 a.m. in the office of the Twin Falls County Commissioners for two-way emergency radio for use at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

The equipment is part of the state-wide HEAR system, Hospital Emergency Administrative Radio System. Cloyce Edwards, Twin Falls ambulance operator and member of the highway safety division, Idaho Board of Health, said the local equipment should be installed and ready for use this summer as part of the state-wide emergency communications network.

In time of emergency in which a power failure might occur it could become the only functioning communications network, Edwards said.

It will also be used for civil defense programs and will be in use daily between the hospital and ambulances to notify hospitals directly of the nature of injuries when a patient is being brought to the hospital for treatment.

Edwards said the system will connect to the county base emergency communication headquarters in the courthouse.

An emergency generator is already in operation at the hospital and will be available to operate the equipment if necessary. A similar generator will be installed at the courthouse, Edwards said.

The system has been endorsed by the state health department as one of a number of items to improve ambulance service.

Fumes return

SALEM, Ore. (UPI)—The Oregon House of Representatives kicked the smoking habit for 24 hours but was back to its old ways Wednesday.

The house voted 34-24 Monday to ban smoking in its chambers and committee rooms. But after a day of withdrawal, the legislators changed their minds and struck down the new rule, 32-25.

TV photos bring FBI for arrest

BOSTON (UPI)—Several of Arthur L. Grefeld's friends called him this week to say they had seen him on television.

Wednesday he was arrested by FBI agents and charged with robbing two Boston banks in the past eight days. The FBI said automatic cameras took pictures of the robberies and the photographs of the bandit were used by newspapers and television stations. Grefeld's friends called to let him know about the pictures when they were made public, he told the FBI after his arrest.

Proxmire undecided

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., describing himself as a "very dark horse" so far as his party's 1972 presidential nomination goes, says he would run nationwide, not just in Wisconsin, if he decided to enter the contest.

He said Wednesday he would not be just a favorite son or a "spoiler" candidate.

DRAWN BY THE SOUNDS of construction equipment working "in the hole," a young Twin Falls resident watches a loader moving loose dirt in the basement excavation for a building which will house State Hardware Co., now at 249 Main Ave. E. Concrete walls for the basement of the building, which will have a 100 foot frontage on Main, have been poured. William R. Hoops, owner of the property, is constructing the building, which is to be occupied by June.

T.F. cleanup effort pressed

TWIN FALLS — City Sanitation Superintendent Joseph Koon said today one resident has been taken into court and several warnings issued in connection with the start of the spring cleanup campaign in Twin Falls.

He said Lysle Davis, 327 Seventh Ave. E., was fined $50 and costs and given until Friday to clean his property. Several warnings were issued, Koon said, and a deadline set for the correction of conditions on the Davis property but no action was taken by the property owner, necessitating court action.

City Manager Jean Milar said

this will be the first of several such actions by the city if residents failing to meet sanitation requirements do not heed warnings issued.

Residents on Seventh Ave. E., complained about the Davis property, Milar said, because of old car bodies, trash and junk collections in the residential area.

Milar said the city is again planning an extensive spring program to promote a cleaner and more attractive residential and business areas in the city.

He reminded residents they may dispose of all types of junk and debris from their homes and lawns providing it is placed in proper size containers and packaged so it can be easily lifted by the trash collecting crews.

In the event of old car bodies and other large items, he said, property owners should make arrangements to have these hauled away or to remove them with their own equipment.

Gem health department 'loses' $3.5 million

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Health Department has "lost" more than $3.5 million of anticipated revenue for fiscal year 1972, according to Fred Humphreys, chairman of the board of health.

An error in the budget of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus "stole" about half a million dollars; a reduction in all budget allowances trimmed another million off the top, and the budget director has taken an additional $947,000 from the department, Humphreys told the board of health at its meeting Wednesday in Twin Falls.

The lost funds include $350,000 in "receipts to appropriations," involving funds to be collected by the health department in its many areas of activity from March 1 to June 30, the end of the fiscal year. This money, formerly used to operate health department activities, must be returned to the general fund by order of the budget director, Humphreys said.

In addition, another $597,000 in departmental income and appropriations will not be granted, the board of health has been told. No reason was given by Humphreys for the lack of funds.

The South-Central Idaho Health Department, however, and other health districts throughout the state, will continue to receive their full allotment of health department funds, Humphreys told the Times-News. The district funds are already committed, and cannot be trimmed without crippling local health programs.

The board of health will consider belt-tightening measures to allow for the reduced income at a future board meeting, the members decided at the Twin Falls meeting.

Director appointed

TWIN FALLS — Kenneth L. Ward, Twin Falls, has been named area director of General Business Services Inc., a national counseling firm for small business and professional people.

Ward will cover 10 southern Idaho counties. He is a retired Air Force officer. He has a master's degree from Ohio State University, is married and has four children.

Health board sets pulp mill rules

Each warning level brings a correlated corrective action, increasing in severity as the hazard increases. In the alert stage, open burning is to be eliminated, incineration of trash and other burnables is curtailed, and industries are alerted to reduce aerial contamination.

In the "warning" stage, all incineration is halted immediately, coal or oil-fired steam-generating facilities must make a maximum reduction of pollution by switching to low-ash or low-sulfur fuels, and manufacturing operations that are easy to curtail will be asked to cease operations wherever possible.

At the "emergency" level, however, severe restrictions must be imposed, including halting of many manufacturing operations, closing of schools where coal-burning furnaces are used, shutting of many other businesses, and elimination of all industrial air contaminants.

The federal regulations even provide for prohibition of all use of motor vehicles, except for emergencies, in the "emergency" stage.

The commission and board of health also considered periodic reports on vegetation fluoride levels in eastern Idaho and discussed an open-burning survey taken in Idaho counties and cities of more than 1,000 population. A model open-burning ordinance was drafted by the state agency, in consultation with the Association of Idaho Cities and presented to the cities.

A few communities have adopted the model ordinance or a modified version, while others say there is no serious problem in their areas.

Eiguren said that 52 per cent of the communities now have a burning ordinance, and 48 per cent prohibit or control burning at refuse sites. None of the counties, however, have ordinances to control burning outside city limits, though some fire districts require permits to burn trash.

Eiguren said the commission has made "real progress" in dealing with the lumber industry to control emissions from teepee burners and other waste-disposal methods.

In the previous report to the commission, Eiguren said, about half of Idaho's mills were complying with state standards, and most of the remaining mills now expect to complete their modifications soon.

Some of these are currently shut down due to a slump in the lumber market, and hope to have their smoke-control modifications completed by the time they open in the spring.

Health board approves requests at T.F. meet

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Health Department's board of directors, meeting in an abbreviated session Wednesday afternoon at the Holiday Inn in Twin Falls, approved two requests and considered a reported shortage of funds brought about by state austerity programs.

The board of health approved allocation of $48,000 in federal funds to construct the Bingham County Health Center at Blackfoot, and approved a three-year lease of acreage at Idaho State Hospital South, Blackfoot, to allow the LDS Church to build a softball court.

The board of health met with the Idaho Air Pollution Control Commission throughout the morning in an annual combined meeting to consider pollution-control activities throughout the state.

The health department directors heard a report from Chairman Fred Humphreys that $526,000 in planned-for "receipts to appropriations" will not be collected this fiscal year and must be considered "out the window" when the new budget is figured.

The $526,000 is the amount which cannot be collected out of $1.3 million demanded by the state director of the budget, Humphreys said. "We cannot possibly collect more than about $700,000 of the $1.3 million," Humphreys said.

"The rest will have to be considered as a deficit in our budget."

Costly Strike

Britain's postal workers agreed to end their costly 47-day strike without a pay increase but with the assurance that more money will be forthcoming from recommendations of a three-man inquiry commission.

There was a difference of only four per cent in the increase offered and the demands of the workers when the strike began. The department had offered nine per cent and the union held out for 13 per cent increases on wages ranging from $36 to $65 weekly.

As a result of the walkout, the postal union exhausted its reserve of $1.2 million, went into debt $1.6 million to other unions, and overdrew its bank account $816,000. Business losses ran into the millions and recovery will be slow. In fact, the postal service may never again be the same. People had to reduce their dependence upon the service and find alternative means of essential communication.

Weeks, even months, may be required to catch up with postal deliveries, which may be cut from three to one a day.

There is even talk of combining milk, newspaper and mail deliveries.

Telephone service, which postal workers also handle in Britain, was disrupted although automatic service continued where available.

Observing Britain's costly and unnecessary experience, we can only applaud the decision of the United Transportation Union to postpone its threatened strike against selected American railroads.

The negotiations broke off in Washington over work rules, an item the public might consider of less consequence than the dispute over $2.50 a week or so that cost Britain so dear.

Surely compromise offers better promise for the future than more strikes.

Mrs. President

Women's lib marches on. For the first time since the U.S. Air Force Academy was established in Colorado Springs, Colo., a woman was invited to address the cadet Public Affairs Forum lecture series the other day.

Not only that, but she suggested that the cadets think seriously about the possibility of having a female commander in chief sometime during the projected span of their military careers, which for most of them will extend into the 21st century.

There will be eight presidential elections between now and the year 2001, said Jayne B. Spain, a member of the board of directors of Litton Industries. "It would be almost incredible if one or more women did not run for the highest office in the country — and perhaps win it."

One of those elections is almost sure to swing on the ticket which includes a woman as either president or vice president, she predicted. If it is only the No. 2 spot, vice presidents have been known to succeed to the White House with frequency.

"I would be the loudest to abhor having a woman for president for the simple reason that she is female, the presidency having come to her as some manifestation of a fairness doctrine," said Mrs. Spain.

"It will be the time and the special events of that time, coupled with competence to deal with them, which will make a woman in the presidency possible."

Women's leadership is hardly new, she reminded the cadets. England embarked on its empire under Elizabeth I and reached its greatest extent under Queen Victoria. In modern times, a woman named Indira Gandhi heads India, the world's most populous country in relation to area. Golda Meir is prime minister of Israel at a time when that nation is being tested as never before.

"Therefore I ask you not to be amused or outraged at the thought of a female chief executive, but to add that one more eventuality to all the others for which you are being prepared. The one thing for which a military leader can never be forgiven is for being surprised."

A woman as president of the United States, as commander in chief?

"It is not as unreasonable as it sounds," says Mrs. Spain, "and it's getting more reasonable every day."

MR. SPECTATOR

Student Rights

Do a majority of students who go to college to learn, study and graduate possess the same civil rights as the minority which goes to school to condemn, incite, interfere and harass?

Mr. Spectator thought you might be interested in some thought along this line — thoughts which came across the desk the other day.

To some, this question may seem unfairly stated, but a review of events which have occurred on numerous college campuses — hardly isolated cases — over the last several years would leave no doubt that it is the student who does not participate in demonstrations and riots, but who is nevertheless curtailed in his activities by them, who is the main loser each time a campus goes up in protest.

In an attempt to correct this situation, and largely as a result of disruptions which occurred at the University of New Hampshire last spring, a New Hampshire state legislator has sponsored what he calls the students' bill of rights.

The measure guarantees students the right to pursue their studies in peace and provides fines for any who would interfere with that right.

Introduced by Rep. Malcolm J. Stevenson, the legislation would guarantee students free access to campus buildings and would protect them against threats, intimidation or harassment which "cause the cancellation of any duly authorized school speech, class, meeting or program."

Any group of five students could file suit for redress under the measure and seek damages up to $100 per day. One of the advantages seen for the legislation is that it would provide college administrators the legal authority some may feel they lack to enforce orderly conduct on the campus.

A drastic measure? Perhaps, but ask an honest student who is sincere about his education and who may have a tough time raising the thousands of dollars required to enroll, and then finds himself thwarted by disrupters who commandeer a building, force a speaker from the stage, blow up a lab, or intimidate the administration.

That student has the right to receive the academic services he paid for, even if it requires a special bill of rights to see that he does.

Mr. Spectator's hat is off to Rep. Stevenson. It's a step in the right direction.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK

Nixon's Textile Fetish

WASHINGTON — So intensely does President Nixon feel the obligation of his 1968 campaign commitment to the textile industry that he very nearly issued a statement last week denouncing the voluntary Japanese textile import limitation in a way that would have inflicted irreparable damage on himself.

Even the more restrained statement he finally made put him in bad enough trouble. It risks another Congressional struggle over trade legislation and an international trade war.

In a President whose flexibility and pragmatism are normally invaluable assets, this unyielding adherence to his old campaign pledge of textile quotas defies rational explanation. Still more puzzling, Mr. Nixon calls himself a free trader, and yet by any objective test the case for textile relief is notably weaker than for several other industries.

Moreover, an argument can be made that Mr. Nixon has fulfilled his 1968 bargain. He flinched much by aggressively pushing a textile quota bill in 1970, but the textile lobby responded by logrolling the measure into a protectionist grab-bag. A 1970 admonition to textile lobbyists on this score from White House Aide Peter Flanigan did no good.

Similarly, the intransigent textile men last year rejected an offer from the Japanese government considerably better than the voluntary limitation negotiated last week by Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas and the Japanese manufacturers. With the mandatory quota bill at that time still alive in Congress, Flanigan said no.

Thus, as the new Congress convened in January, negotiations were dead. Mills reintroduced a quota bill at White House request, with an intention of pushing it. Presidential agents pondered attaching it to some innocuous bill on the Senate floor. But if that happened, the logrolling would breed proliferating quotas for other commodities, confronting Mr. Nixon with a bill far beyond textiles.

Mr. Nixon would not be the only one back on the hook. As chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, Mills' plate is overflowing with welfare reform and national health insurance. He does not need another trade nightmare, where control of his own committee would be tenuous. Accordingly, he was most receptive when Japanese textile representatives paid him a secret visit to seek help on a voluntary limitation.

Nor should this have surprised the White House. The Feb. 10 New York Journal of Commerce reported that Michael Daniels, Japanese textile lobbyist here, carried Mills's proposal to Tokyo. Besides, Mills informed the White House through Budget Chief George Shultz (though how completely is now disputed).

When the Japanese announced their voluntary limitation March 8, Mills tried his hardest for at least grudging White House acceptance (using free trade Republican Congressmen as emissaries). He never had a chance. Although staffers offered such an option to the President early last week, he felt his commitment to the textile men was so inflexible that not even Shultz, an ardent free trader, actively promoted it.

Pressed by Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans and political aide Harry Dent, Mr. Nixon was actually primed to issue a statement eviscerating Mills for infringing on Presidential prerogatives and promising a crash effort to pass a textile bill. Apart from alienating Mills, that would have provoked an immediate trade fight.

Cooler heads — especially domestic policy chief John Ehrlichman and the President's new trade expert, ex-Bell and Howell campaign prevalent Peter G. Peterson — prevailed to get a softer stand. But they could not remove a recommendation for a textile quota bill. The adamant President refused even to permit a trial period for the Mills plan.

That puts Mr. Nixon squarely on the trade hook. At best, he will appear impotent before his Southern constituents while the Mills proposal goes into effect. At worst, he risks a ruinously protectionist bill in Congress with horrendous international implications.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

The Test

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I noticed a discoloration of my urine and had it tested. It was blood. I took medication. Two months later the discoloration started again. I changed doctors, had complete pathology and X-ray tests. They showed everything fine.

But "advice for young men." After eight months I took a cystoscopic test (which I had been trying to avoid). It revealed a cancerous tumor in the bladder. I had it removed immediately.

My question is this. I'm supposed to have scope tests every three months for two years, then every six months for the rest of my life. Is there another means of checking for regrowth of cancer? Will there ever be in the foreseeable future?

Most men I know avoid these scope tests because of their discomfort. — F.C.B.

Your "advice to young men" (or to old ones, or middling ones, or to women of any vintage) is sound. Blood in the urine always should be investigated until its source is found. And the blood may not be plentiful enough for you to recognize it as such — but, as in your case, just discoloration. A "smoky" tinge of the urine may mean blood.

Your insistence on wanting to avoid a cystoscopic test isn't such good guidance.

Granted, nobody has this test just for the fun of it; and it's in a tender area, but you do nobody any favor by making it sound so prohibitively uncomfortable. It's not that bad.

What's more important is to get across the message that in certain instances there is no substitute for it — which you reluctantly found out. That cancer was so located, and in such a stage of development, that no test would disclose it. Only the cystoscope, which is the only means by which the physician can actually see the interior of the bladder.

You avoided the scope for eight or more months; luckily some doctor was insistent enough to find where that blood was coming from. Luckily he found it in time. If you had waited until other signs became unmistakable, it would doubtless have been too late. There are, of course, plenty of other causes of blood in the urine besides cancer, and cancer in that organ is more prevalent later in life than early. But it CAN start early. Found early, it is rather readily curable. Neglected too long, it isn't.

Wish I could promise you some simple, easy, sugar-coated substitute for the cystoscope that would do the job. But I know of none, and I'm not a seer and don't know when or whether such a thing will be invented.

So let's just agree that, although it's not the most agreeable medical test, it isn't the worst one, either. And — it saves lives. Such as yours.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you explain the difference between hepatitis and yellow jaundice, or are they one and the same? — Mrs. K.S.

Approximately the same. Specifically, jaundice is a symptom (yellowness) which results when bile backs up into the bloodstream. Hepatitis usually brings on this yellowness, but other ailments of the liver or bile ducts also can do so.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does low-fat milk, with no more than 2 per cent butterfat in it, contain calcium? — W.D.C.

Yes, it's just as rich in calcium as other milk. Some of the fat is all that has been removed.

Don't take chances with "kidney trouble." It may be only minor, but it can be dangerous. Read Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Your Kidneys — Facts You Need To Know About Them." Write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

RAY CROMLEY

Stand And Fight

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Mao Tse-tung, who has been quite successful in guerrilla war, says it is more important to destroy one enemy division than to defeat 10.

The psychological blow is harsh, like stepping off at the bottom of a staircase only to find nothing there. Large numbers of hard-to-replace officers, sergeants and battle-hardened troops are lost. Enemy strategy tends to become unbalanced.

The South Vietnamese and Americans have had few opportunities to destroy sizable Communist units to date. The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese armies fade away. They're playing, in part, by Mao's rules.

But there have been times when the North Vietnamese bunched and fought set-piece battles. At Dien Bien Phu, for one, against the French.

Dien Bien Phu gave a clue to when the enemy would mass its forces and slug it out — when crucial supply lines were cut. And when he believed he had his opponents surrounded and cut off from aid.

Dien Bien Phu has always been regarded a classical French blunder. But if that battle is studied carefully, it will be seen that with sufficient air power and other backing, Dien Bien Phu would have been a trap for the Communists. The French bungled in that they attempted this gambit with insufficient power to support the garrison. But the strategy itself had merit.

The French strategy at Dien Bien Phu was tried once in this war. At Khe Sanh, in 1968, a major enemy supply line was cut. U.S. and South Vietnamese troops were placed in a forward exposed position. The enemy attacked in mass and lost 10,000 to 15,000 men. A "division" was destroyed. The foe made the mistake of bunching and fighting in a battle in a fixed position.

In Laos, the South Vietnamese are attempting the Dien Bien Phu-Khe Sanh tactic. Vital

North Vietnamese supply lines are being cut. Our allies are putting themselves in dangerously exposed position. The gamble is that the North Vietnamese again will bunch and fight. And that our helicopter mobility and intense firepower will make possible the destruction of an enemy "division." At a time when he can't afford this kind of a loss.

BRUCE BLOSSAT

Nixon Plague

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — A Republican analyst who is sympathetic to President Nixon believes the still faltering economy makes him highly vulnerable to attack; and that he may never develop the sure touch to ease this threat to his 1972 reelection chances.

In this man's view, Nixon waited too long to undertake tough measures like the suspension of supports for union wages earned on federal construction projects. Over a two-year span, he has seemed hesitant and half-hearted as unemployment rose and inflation flared.

The consequences, it is argued, is a very serious erosion of confidence among decision-makers in business, to whom we must look for the real upward climb.

The economy in 1971 is offering some hopeful signs, not least the sharp decline in interest rates which should improve the money flow. But the planners of new capital investment for plant and equipment are not plunging in a big way. Their confidence has not been restored. And their outlays are the vital generating force.

The cited GOP analyst suggests that, in a curious way, the President's economic policy failures in 1969-70 are today feeding upon themselves and keeping things down. Understandably, the Democrats see political opportunity in Nixon's difficulties. They dwell heavily upon them. Every time they say the economy is bad, the capital outlay types tighten the grip on their money. This kind of circular effect, reinforced by some critical economists, could prolong the recession for months.

Since economic processes grind slowly, the President is judged not to have too much time to begin getting out of this box. Unless the managers of capital cast off their shabby mood this year, he may find there is no way to make the economy really shine in 1972.

My anonymous Republican worrier thinks this prospect spells grave political danger for the President. The man feels that, barring the unforeseen in Vietnam and adjacent lands, the next selection will turn on the condition of the economy.

This does not mean the war does not contain possible pitfalls. Nixon's announced pledge of reducing U.S. ground forces in South Vietnam to 284,000 by May 1 requires that he take out another 46,000 in the next two months. The pullout will have to be swift in the days just ahead.

Somewhere in late April, the President will tell the American public what lies beyond the already scheduled withdrawals. It is really useless to speculate on the size and the time frame for the next pullouts. According to custom, he will not settle that finally until just a day or two before he announces the plan.

The administration is on record, however, as indicating that, whatever complement of ground troops stays on, it will include from 30,000 to 45,000 men of combat capability.

House sinks water use bill

BOISE (UPI) — A Senate bill spelling out beneficial uses of water floundered in the House Wednesday and finally sank 21-47 into defeat.

Forced out of the Agricultural Affairs Committee earlier by threat of a slowdown, the measure lists domestic, agricultural, mining, manufacturing, electric power generation, municipal, fish and wildlife propagation, recreation, artificial ground water recharge, transportation and water quality control as "beneficial uses" for water.

"All this bill does is give the 20th century recognition to uses of water in this state," said Rep. Larry Looney, D-Coeur d'Alene, the measure's floor sponsor.

But Rep. Vernon F. Ravenscroft, R-Tuttle, said that while he agrees with the concept of the bill he cannot support the measure because it oversimpli-fies a major economic consideration of the state.

Ravenscroft said the bill is not specific enough, says absolutely nothing about whether state agencies can file on water, says nothing about in-stream uses of water and is silent on priorities.

"The basic principle, the basic philosophy, the basic theory is correct," Ravenscroft said. "But the mechanism needs to be crystal clear and flytime tight."

Rep. Jack Claiborn, R-Twin Falls, said he has talked with three law firms specializing in water legislation and that it is so loosely drawn it may be unconstitutional.

Looney countered that objections to the measure simply were "red flags."

He said state agencies now are appropriating water and mentioned Horse Thief Reservoir on Payette River for which the Fish and Game Department has a beneficial use of fish and wildlife propagation.

The parks department has a beneficial use of recreation on the lake at the Sand Dunes State Park, he said.

"All this does is admit the fact there's some other beneficial use in this state than pouring it out on the desert," he said.

Contending it may help Idaho to protect its water from raids by the thirsty Southwest, he said that "When the chips are down and it comes to keeping Idaho water in Idaho you're going to have to convince people there are other beneficial uses for water than irrigation," Looney said.

Senate holds for study park appropriation bill

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate held for further study Wednesday an appropriations measure for the State Parks Board following a dispute over use of $500,000 of waterways improvement funds.

The debate also turned into a hassle over the general fund budget for fiscal year 1972, set by the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee at $125.3 million.

The argument began after Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert, floor sponsor of the measure, noted there was a "point of contention" over inclusion of the $500,000 in the $3,208,100 budget, but said the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee had an "informal opinion from the attorney general's office that any money spent of the $500,000 must have approval of county waterways authorities.

But other legislators argued that the waterways funds had been transferred from the Department of Law Enforcement to the State Parks Department in 1969 despite fears the waterways funds would be spent on things other than improvement of areas near waters.

Sen. James Stoicheff, D-Sandpoint, indicated the budget meant the parks department was "attempting one way or another to use this for parks."

He added he felt the money "isn't being handled the way it was intended."

But Sen. Walter Yarbrough, R-Grandview, said the waterways funds could be used by the parks department to pick up federal matching funds.

"We feel — and I'm sure the governor felt — that by selective use of the money it would give them a better operation than any other way."

Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, pointed out inclusion of the waterways improvement funds in the parks department budget was done at the recommendation of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus.

High opposed a move to return the bill to committee for further discussion on grounds the bill had been reviewed many times by the committee. He also opposed a move to put the bill into the amending order to strike the $500,000, asking, "Where are we going to find the replacement money?"

But Sen. John Iins, D-Malad, said he felt the joint committee

"has overspent already."

He said Andrus has stuck with anticipated revenue projections of $113.7 million, when the joint committee has used $116 million, "and the point it we've got some recommendations from the governor as to whether we can get these funds but the majority (the Republicans) hasn't approved them."

He noted in any event the $500,000 could not be used for the parks department but had to be spent on waterways improvements.

High, however, responded, "Are we going to start at this point in time increasing general fund measures and then going back and finding the revenue? It's too late in the session."

Peavey added, "The cookie jar is empty, fellows."

"There just isn't any more money."

He said it may have been true in the past that the funds had not been used correctly after consulting with county officials, but added, "In light of the heat we're getting on this bill now and because of the attorney general's opinion I imagine they'll be consulted very, very closely this year."

The session ended after Senate President Jack Murphy asked Evans and Peavey to get together to find whether they could both support some proposal, including a suggested letter of intent.

License quotas approved

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate passed 27-0 Wednesday a bill to authorize the Idaho Fish and Game Commission to establish each year the number and kind of non-resident licenses which will be sold.

Sen. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry, floor sponsor of the measure, said the bill allowed the commission to pick the number of non-resident hunters which would be allowed to participate in controlled hunts.

Steen said the number of non-residents had decreased in the last eight months of 1970 after non-resident combination license fees were raised to $135 from $100.

He said the authority to limit the number given to the commission was one of several measures aimed at decreasing the non-resident numbers. Other measure introduced would increase to antlered deer only, and another to limit the $5 non-resident gun licenses to eight months from Jan. 1 to Aug. 31.

Rock festivals under new rule

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate approved 16-9 Wednesday and sent to the governor a bill the floor sponsor said was written to "prohibit and discourage rock festivals" in Idaho.

Sen. Lyle Cobbs, R-Boise, said the House-approved measure provides for licensing of any assembly of 1,000 or more people which is anticipated to last 22 or more consecutive hours.

The measure does not apply to any regularly established, permanent place of worship, stadium, athletic field, arena, auditorium, coliseum, or other similar permanently established place of assembly for assemblies which do not exceed by more than 250 people the maximum seating capacity of the structure where the assembly is held."

In addition, the measure does not apply to government sponsored fairs held at established fairgrounds.

Cobbs said he understood there was a possibility a rock festival was being planned at Farragut State Park.

He said under the legislation "we will not have any rock festivals in Idaho."

Objection to the measure came from Sen. Bill Crookham, R-Caldwell, who termed the measure "inconsistent."

"On the one hand we want to let a man use his property the way he wants and on the other hand we restrict him," Crookham said.

Chinook catch off during '70

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Fish and Game Department reports the 1970 chinook salmon sport catch in Idaho dropped from 13,000 in 1969 to 5,500.

James Keating, fishery research supervisor, said this is the lowest catch of record since 1954 except for 1965 when the season closed because of poor escapements over downstream dams into Idaho. The salmon catch in 1968 was 11,500.

Keating said an extended high water period through June, a sharp decrease in angler participation brought on by permit charges, and an unknown loss from nitrogen gas disease all contributed to the catch decrease.

Solons extend capitol mall

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's legislature eyed the Ada County Courthouse Wednesday for possible inclusion in the State Capitol Mall.

The House Appropriations Committee introduced a bill directing the Department of Public Works to negotiate for purchase of the courthouse and land for inclusion in the mall at some point in the future.

It directs the Department of Public Works to obtain services of at least two impartial, qualified appraisers to determine the value of the building and land.

"Said appraisers shall be members of the Appraiser Institute as designated by the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers," the bill said.

The cost of the appraisers will be defrayed by Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council contingency funds.

The bill states flatly that this is a long range planning action. It does not authorize the Department of Public Works to commit the state to any funding obligation.

It says the state might not take possession of the property for 10 years or more.

Tax boost bill offered

BOISE (UPI) — Taking Gov. Cecil D. Andrus at his word, House Republicans forced introduction Wednesday of a bill to increase the state tax on gasoline to eight cents per gallon.

Andrus told newsmen Tuesday he would have preferred the legislature raise the tax a penny from the present seven cents per gallon if it is going to give revenue from one cent to the cities for streets.

Such a bill won House approval earlier but ran into objections in the Senate. The upper chamber Tuesday passed a House-initiated bill that simply gives the cities revenue from one cent of the tax.

But Democrats would not agree in caucus to suspend rules on a new bill, pointing out the House already has sent the Senate one bill to increase the tax to eight cents a gallon.

Then, the leadership Ways and Means Committee met and the Republicans on a party-line vote conducted behind closed doors forced introduction of a new bill.

Yanks, Russians draw criticism

GENEVA (UPI)—The United States and the Soviet Union are having a rough time at the Geneva Disarmament Conference this year.

There is a groundswell of criticism over the inability of the two major powers to make progress towards halting the nuclear arms race.

This criticism is bound to grow unless positive results emerge from the parallel Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) between Washington and Moscow—and that is considered unlikely at this stage.

Sweden, Japan and Ethiopia have already openly taken the Americans and Soviets to task for continuing to build up their nuclear arsenals despite assurances, contained in international treaties, to stop this upward spiral. Mr. Alva Myrdal, the Swedish negotiator and wife of sociologist Gunnar Myrdal, went as far as claiming that SALT in its present form is "meaningless."

Both Mrs. Myrdal and the Japanese negotiator, Horoto Tanaka, said a simple numerical limitation on nuclear missiles would have little or no effect as long as the two big powers remain free to continually improve the quality of their nuclear weapons.

Criticism at Geneva centers on the apparent policy of Washington and Moscow to pay lip service only to the idea of a comprehensive nuclear test ban which would outlaw underground explosions until something comes out of SALT. Negotiators from other small, non-nuclear countries said they are preparing even stronger statements on this point than those delivered so far.

Gerard C. Smith, chief U.S. negotiator at SALT and also director of the U.S. Disarmament Agency, said when the Geneva Conference resumed last month that a test ban would almost certainly come after rather than before a SALT agreement, if at all.

The neutrals in Geneva believe, on the other hand, that a SALT agreement would have next to no effect unless there is a complete test ban.

As long as underground tests continue, they argue, the major powers can go on improving the quality of nuclear warheads without any end in sight.

Classic 'Jane Eyre' telecast scheduled

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—A partial answer to the plaint of viewers that television is a tasteless morass comes from director Delbert Mann who provided the "Heidi" and "David Copperfield" telefilms in the past.

On March 24 his "Jane Eyre" will beam on NBC.

Classical and familiar works of renowned authors have met with mixed reaction. According to Mann, "Heidi" was a smash in the ratings. "Copperfield" was disappointing. Mann is optimistic about "Jane Eyre."

"It is a classic work of genius because Charlotte Bronte drew memorable and eternally real characters," Mann said. "The characters are involved in suspense, mystery and melodrama in what amounts to a Gothic story."

"In my opinion we are dealing in terms of emotions and intriguing characters. This is the essential basis for entertainment."

Mann, who won an Oscar for directing "Marty," feels he and his partners—Fred Brogger and actor Jim Franciscus—are providing quality programming. The two-hour films are shown as feature movies abroad.

"This series of classics grew accidentally," he explained.

"I was tired of doing pictures that had no substance. I wanted to direct something meaningful. And the response to the first two has been astonishing."

"I heard from more people about 'David Copperfield' than I did from any of my movies. They were delighted to see this sort of work on television."

'Bridge' takes Grammy honors

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Simon & Garfunkel's "Bridge Over Troubled Water," which ushered in a spiritual trend in pop music, won six Grammy awards Tuesday night including record, song and album of the year.

In taking the top award of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, the group's spiritual folk song beat "Close to You" by the Carpenters; "Everything is Beautiful" by Ray Stephens, "Fire and Rain" by James Taylor, and "Let It Be" by the Beatles.

The brother and sister team of Richard and Karen Carpenter's "Close to You" did win best contemporary vocal performance by a group and they also were named best new artists of the year.

Stephens' "Everything is Beautiful" was named best contemporary male vocal performance. Best contemporary female vocal went to Dionne Warwick for "I'll Never Fall in Love Again."

B. B. King's "The Thrill is Gone" won best rhythm and blues vocal by a male.

One of the biggest surprises at the national televised awards presentation, held simultaneously in New York, Chicago, Nashville, Atlanta and originating at the Hollywood Palladium, was the appearance of Paul McCartney.

Contemporary flavor goal of CBS network

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—CBS-TV's official program schedule for next season confirms that the network, trying for a more contemporary flavor, has eliminated its numerous rural comedy series, including some longtime favorites.

Canceled are "The Beverly Hillbillies," "Mayberry R.F.D.," "Green Acres," "Hee Haw" and the Andy Griffith and Jim Nabors shows.

Also gone from the new fall lineup are "Lassie," "Hogan's Heroes," "The Interns," "Family Affair," "To Rome With Love," "Men at Law," The Ed Sullivan Hour and the reruns of Jackie Gleason's "The Honey-mooners."

The overriding point of the new schedule is to free CBS-TV from its basic image, sometimes unfairly exaggerated by competitors, of being a network that appeals chiefly to children, old folks and rural viewers.

CBS-TV is all too aware of the growing number of persons concentrated in urban areas, as well as the young adult audience and its buying power. Nevertheless, the network is sticking with some of its veteran series.

Returning are "Gunsmoke," the Carol Burnett and Glen Campbell variety hours, the Lucille Ball, Doris Day and Mary Tyler Moore comedies, "My Three Sons," "Mission: Impossible," "Mannix," "Hawaii Five-O," "Medical Center," "Arnie," "All in the Family" and the two weekly movies.

The Thursday movies will return as before, but the Friday motion pictures will be switched to Sundays—at 7:30 p.m. EST. In addition, the network has scheduled a new series of 90-minute, made-for-television films entitled "CBS Friday Movies."

As CBS-TV President Robert Wood says, the new lineup is marked by the most extensive program changes in the network's history. Because of the schedule's attempted image-altering, as well as the cutback on network prime time by the Federal Communications Commission, 13 of CBS-TV's current 29 series—almost half—are being eliminated. The entire Sunday, Tuesday and Friday night lineups are to be wiped out.

Amid this slashing, however, some of the retained series indicate the network's commitment to a new look. While letting go rural shows, CBS-TV renewed two comedy programs regarded on the borderline in earlier tentative schedules: The controversial "All in the # Court backs discipline

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Appellate Division of the Manhattan Supreme Court ruled Tuesday a father did not have to support his 20-year-old daughter who disobeyed his orders by moving off the University of Louisville campus and taking up a hippie life style.

"The father—in return for his maintenance and support—is entitled to set reasonable standards, rules and regulations for his child," the court said.

A Family Court on Nov. 30 threatened the father with 30 days in jail if he did not support his daughter, a student at the University of Louisville, until she is 21. She will be 21 Oct. 20.

"The court below (Family Court) misconceived its function," the Appellate Division said Tuesday.

Annex bill up April 5

TWIN FALLS — An ordinance to annex property along Idaho Highway 74 south of the present city limits of Twin Falls will be on third and final reading during the next regular Twin Falls City Council meeting April 5.

Mayor Frank Feldtman said after the third reading, members of the council will vote to accept or turn down the annexation proposal.

Residents in the area in question have attended council meetings during the past month to object to being taken into the city limits during discussions and initial readings of the ordinance.

Several petitions have been filed with the city showing property owner opposition to the move on the basis of higher taxes and more restrictions if the property is within the city limits.

Mayor Feldtman said verbal and written objections have been taken under advisement by the city council and will be weighed prior to a vote on the ordinance.

Council members pointed out in an earlier meeting the city must annex property around its boundaries as the property develops in order to protect present city areas as well as the new developments from undesirable industries, commercial businesses or other types of construction which could hinder city growth and property values.

City council members also point out many of the residents of housing developments around the city are enjoying city services and privileges but are not helping pay the costs.

Water rates to those outside of the city are double and would be cut in half if the property were taken in. Insurance rates would also be reduced greatly as soon as city fire fighting equipment becomes available to the property owners, it was pointed out.

Council members said these two factors alone would offset tax increases in nearly all instances.

Winners

House OK's bill stripping education officials' votes

BOISE (UPI) — The House approved 64-0 and sent to the governor Wednesday a bill stripping the state superintendent of public instruction and the director of higher education of votes on the board of education.

This measure would make both officials strictly ex officio and non-voting members of the board.

Floor sponsor Kurt Johnson, R-Idaho Falls, said the bill was not in any way a "reproach" of either official for his actions. He said both have helpful background to give the board. But he said they are distinct and separate in their offices and duties and therefore should not make motions and vote on board actions.

Rep. Edward V. Williams, D-Lewiston, said the state constitution lists the school superintendent as an ex officio member of the board and added that ex officio members are not supposed to vote. He said the incumbent superintendent, however, has been doing so.

Chairman Ernest Allen, R-Nampa, of the education committee said many persons were "shocked" to discover the director of higher education has been voting and making motions at state board meetings.

He suggested the legislature or the legislative council study the powers of the superintendent and the board in their relationship to each other.

Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft, D-Tuttle, said he, too, was "amazed" to learn the executive director of higher education was participating in state board deliberations. He compared this with allowing a local superintendent or school principal to vote on the local school board.

Panel retains funds formula

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate voted 19-16 Wednesday to excuse a committee from reporting out a controversial school funding formula after the committee split over the merits of the bill.

The bill, already approved by the House, would provide for 75 per cent funding of public education from a state-controlled source which would include the general fund appropriation, inventory tax replacement moneys, state and county mill levies, endowment funds and miscellaneous sources.

But the health, education and welfare committee voted Tuesday to table the measure on grounds there was not enough time for the committee to study the measure, which reached the Senate on the 61st legislative day.

HEW chairman, John Barker, R-Buhl, explained to his colleagues the House revenue and taxation committee had worked on the proposal "since the early days of the session" but said the HEW committee had run into opposition to the bill.

Barker said the night before the bill was tabled the committee heard "considerable objection" from school superintendents.

But Sen. Lyle Cobbs, R-Boise, a member of the HEW committee, described the measure as "perhaps one of the most important pieces of legislation that has been placed before this legislature in many decades" and added that the bill be "either defeated or passed by the entire legislature, but not bottled up in our committee."

the measure approved 30-1 today would "give the state and water board added advantages in their negotiations with the power company," according to Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert.

Peavey said, however, there was "very little chance" the water board would be able to utilize anything but private power, but added, "at least we're not tying their hands."

Sen. Reed Budge, R - Soda Springs, who opposed the original measure, told his colleague he regretted the state could not take the Idaho Power Company-owned existing power plant at the site and utilize it.

Road fund accounting measure passes Senate

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate suspended its rules today and passed 29-1 an "accountability" bill which would require cities, counties, highway districts and the State Highway Department to report expenditures of highway users funds.

The measure came one day after the upper chamber approved and sent to the governor a bill giving cities one-seventh of the gasoline tax revenue, a move which would give cities approximately $3.8 million more than they now receive.

Sen. Wayne Kidwell, R-Boise, noted during Tuesday's debate "everybody was saying they wanted this and the interim committee on transportation has recommended this."

Sen. John Mix, D-Moscow, said an interim committee had studied highway needs. He said the committee found "one of the things we need is accountability so we are sure highway users funds — no matter where they are spent — are used to construct and maintain streets."

Mix said the measure also includes a uniform accounting requirement.

Kidwell noted more than $44 million in highway users funds are distributed each year and said sometimes questions arise over expenditures of the funds.

"This may be the time to tighten up on accountability so we can be sure how these monies are spent," he said.

Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert, noted the new distribution bill approved Tuesday gave cities over a 300 per cent increase.

The gasoline bill was approved 33-2 Tuesday despite contentions the diversion would take funds from the Highway Department and shortly afterwards the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee voted to reduce the fiscal year 1972 budget for the department to conform with the newly approved bill.

Petitions approved

BOISE (UPI) — A Senate bill that gives residents of subdivisions authority to petition for removal from an irrigation district won House approval 61-3 Wednesday.

Rep. Paul Worthen, R-Boise, said the measure was "one small step" toward helping urban residents get rid of an encumbrance.

Service license basis

BOISE (UPI) — A Senate approved measure to make failure to serve the public grounds for revoking an outfitters and guides license was defeated 29-35 in the House Wednesday.

Rep. Helen McKinney, R-Salmon, said the bill would damage the entire business operation of the outfitters and guides of Idaho even though it is aimed only at one person.

"This would do harm to the little guy," she said. "The rich guy has plenty of money to fight."

Rep. Vernon F. Ravenscroft, D-Tuttle, said the bill was an outgrowth of the purchase of one of Idaho's "most attractive outfitting concerns" by a Nevada night club.

He said the measure was aimed at a trend to lock up some of Idaho's back country hunting for the rich elite from out-of-state.

Senate approves power negotiations

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate suspended its rules today to approve a bill allowing the Idaho Water Resource Board authority to negotiate with utilities other than private power companies in a Snake River Water project.

Earlier, the Senate had approved legislation authorizing the water board, subject to legislative approval, to negotiate over construction and operation of a dam or dams on the Grandview-Guffy reach of the Snake River south of Boise.

But the original bill, however, included only private power companies in negotiations and the measure approved 30-1 today would "give the state and water board added advantages in their negotiations with the power company," according to Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert.

Peavey said, however, there was "very little chance" the water board would be able to utilize anything but private power, but added, "at least we're not tying their hands."

Sen. Reed Budge, R - Soda Springs, who opposed the original measure, told his colleague he regretted the state could not take the Idaho Power Company-owned existing power plant at the site and utilize it.

End seen in workers fight

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An end to the prolonged fight between the Teamsters Union and the United Farm Workers organizing committee may be in sight, including a 30-day moratorium to be called this week, it was reported today.

Harry Bernstein, labor writer for the Los Angeles Times, said secret meetings were held in Fresno between top representatives of the National AFL-CIO, the Teamsters and the UFWOC. Bernstein said one source said a general understanding was reached but is now subject to review by AFL-CIO President George Meany and Frank Fitzsimmons, acting president of the Teamsters.

Both unions have pressed massive boycotts of lettuce with each side accusing the other of violating past agreements.

The conferees in Fresno reportedly agreed to let a neutral arbitrator rule on future disputes between the unions, Bernstein reported.

Finar Mohn, head of the Western Conference of Teamsters, was expected to fly to Washington today to discuss the proposed new peace treaty with Fitzsimmons.

Below normal

NATIONAL Weather Service's 30-day outlook for mid-March to mid-April is for temperatures to average below seasonal normals over the midwest, the northern half of the great plains and the Pacific Coast. Above normal temperatures are indicated for the southern plateau, the southern plains and Florida. Precipitation is expected to exceed normal over the north Pacific Coast, the northern plains, lower Great Lakes and from the middle and lower Mississippi Valley to the Appalachians. (UPI)

DEAR ABBY: In regard to WACO WOMAN, who claimed that her husband was no different from any other man—he just likes "a change" once in a while:

My husband and I have been married for 26 years and have six children. We not only love each other—we like each other. I am considered a very attractive woman and my husband is handsome, intelligent and a good provider.

My husband is also no different from any other man, and admits that he has considered infidelity just for the novelty of it. For that matter, so have I.

We have resisted temptation [and at times it hasn't been easy] out of sheer will power. We know that the true joy in living comes to those who do right for no other reason than the right thing to do is the wise thing to do.

BEHAVING OURSELVES

DEAR ABBY: For the information and enlightenment of "Waco Woman," just as all women are not opinionated martyrs as she is, neither are all men alike.

In my 25 years of married life, perhaps to the credit of my wonderful wife, I never have cheated on her.

There have been many opportunities, and I would be lying if I said I wasn't tempted from time to time, but [and here I know there are many men like me] it isn't worth losing a lifetime of joy and love and everything my wife and I built together for a few minutes of ecstasy with someone who may not even care how I like my coffee.

HAPPY HOMER

DEAR HOMER: Now, let's hear it from the distaff side!

DEAR ABBY: The letter sent to you by "Waco Woman" [or was it "whacky"?] has prompted me to ask you a question my mother and I discuss often. Is monogamy natural for the human male?

Being newly married, now I wonder if I should expect my husband to stray? My married brother has had some extra-marital affairs, and he brags about these conquests to my mother and me, and mother just laughs. Yet if I were to do the same thing my mother would lock me in the cellar for a month!

The preacher says, "What God has joined together, let no man put asunder." Doesn't that go for women, too?

DEAR MRS. L.: Yes. The mating game has the same set of rules for the goose as it has for the gander. But for some reason, society has never really ostracized the goose who files the coop, but the gander gets her wings clipped. This is known as The Double Standard. [Or more appropriately, The Double Cross.]

DEAR ABBY: So "Waco Woman" says her husband is just like all the other men. He would like a "change" once in a while. Well, ain't that lovely? I would like a change once in a while myself. And the change I would like is Paul Newman. But if my husband ever caught me with Paul Newman he would break my neck. I don't need to worry, however, because if Paul Newman wanted a change, he sure wouldn't pick me.

Computer plan ready

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Pinch your arm, poke your shinbone, measure your wrist, take your pulse, and answer a flock of questions.

That's how you get into the novel computer-generated personalized diet plan featured in the April issue of Family Circle magazine.

The plan is based on a computer program prepared over the course of a year by Dr. Irwin M. Stillman, the well-known diet authority.

(The arm-pinch, for instance, helps determine the amount of fat under the skin — the shinbone-poke test is an indication of water retention.)

In all, the plan (it takes $6 and three weeks to get it back from the computer) takes into consideration the needs, food preferences, and eating habits of the individual reader. The magazine notes that the plan is to be used as a supplement for the advice of the reader's own physician.

Forest study nears

TWIN FALLS—Specialists working the past several months on a White Cloud-Boulder-Pioneer Mountains study are compiling information for the release of a technical summary to be available in the near future, P. Max Rees, planner coordinator for the Intermountain region, U.S. Forest Service said today.

The study was conducted with the help of Sawtooth National Forest personnel in Twin Falls, officials of the Challis Forest and regional officials. When documents have been collected into a summary report, information will be available to the public and public comment will be solicited, Sawtooth officials said today.

Rees said the study is aimed at the entire ecosystem and when complete will be an environmental analysis including inventories on water, wildlife, forage, soils, timber, recreation and mineral values.

Additional field work is planned for the coming summer, Rees said, with study teams from the forest service and other federal and state agencies for a final report to be complete sometime in 1972.

Purpose of the study, authorized more than a year ago and begun last summer, is to serve as a basis for long range planning and use programming of the scenic mountain region, Rees said.

Back in jail

Dillon to begin term

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News Correspondent
JEROME — Michael Dillon, convicted of second degree murder of Mrs. Alta Simerly, Jerome, in January, 1968, was taken today by Jerome Sheriff Pat Burns to Boise to begin serving a 20-year sentence in the state penitentiary.

He was turned over to the sheriff's custody Wednesday by his attorney's investigator, Doris Paxton. Dillon appeared to be in good spirits and said he has not given up hope and he is sure "everything will turn out in his favor."

Dillon, upon entering the same cell he had occupied for three years prior to his release more than a year ago, picked up a stack of books and magazines off a table, commenting, "These are probably the same ones they had before." Dillon said his wife, who has been working in Twin Falls, will continue working there and has no plans to move to Boise. James May, Dillon's attorney, said he will file a motion for a new hearing on his writ of certiorari to the U.S. Supreme Court. He indicated he also will file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus after Dillon is in the penitentiary and will attempt to get Dillon's sentence reduced and have the three years he spent in the Jerome County jail applied toward the 20-year sentence.

Springs measure passes

BOISE (UPI)—The Senate approved 30-0 and sent to the governor Wednesday a bill authorizing the state to appropriate certain waters in the Thousand Springs area despite warnings the bill may lead to a constitutional court test.

The measure authorizes the state park board to appropriate and hold in trust for the people of the state all unappropriated water in the Malad Canyon area, the Niagara Springs area, Big Springs area, Box Canyon area, and the Thousand Springs area once Idaho Power Company is finished with the water for electrical generation.

The measure has been questioned on grounds it may not be constitutional for the waters to be appropriated except with a specific beneficial intent for the waters. Sen. Marsen Williams, R-Idaho Falls, questioned whether the lawmakers would approve a bill "asking for a lawsuit when we swear to uphold the constitution of the state of Idaho."

But Sen. Don Fredericksen, D-Gooding, floor sponsor of the bill, noted waters had been appropriated under similar measures before, adding, "If this isn't right, maybe we should have a court case to see if this should be done."

Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, said in 1925 the legislature had approved a similar bill for the waters in the Big Payette Lake and had repeated the action in 1927 for Priest, Pend O'Reille and Coeur d'Alene lakes.

Valley draft board shift to cut jobs

TWIN FALLS—A consolidation of the Selective Service system, ordered by the Selective Service headquarters in Washington, D.C., will "co-locate" seven draft boards at Twin Falls, but will cost four people their jobs.

A conference Wednesday in Twin Falls brought Maj. Gen. George B. Bennett, state director of Selective Service, Col. James Cruzen, deputy director, and Maj. James DeChambeau, deputy chief of manpower, to confer with local board officials on the change. A number of aides and secretaries from Boise accompanied the Selective Service officials to the conference, according to Mrs. Faye Hoffman, executive secretary of the Twin Falls draft board.

Draft boards in Camas, Gooding, Jerome and Blaine counties and Buhl will be "co-located" with two in Twin Falls in one office under the consolidation. Yet the present office staff of eight people, many part-time, will be reduced to four full-time employees, Mrs. Hoffman said. Selection of the survivors will be made on seniority and work record.

In addition, the local Selective Service office, which moved to its present location at 340 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. only last December, will have to move again to larger quarters. No location has yet been found, Mrs. Hoffman said—any offers would be appreciated.

The change is to become effective May 15. Many details are yet to be worked out, including whether draft prospects from the outlying counties will have to come to Twin Falls to be processed, Mrs. Hoffman said.

Local county draft boards will continue in operation, but all office work and all records will be moved to Twin Falls.

Gen. Bennett told the meeting that the consolidation is part of a continuing effort to eliminate the draft completely and rely on an all-volunteer army, Mrs. Hoffman said.

District may keep programs

York said cutbacks are planned principally in the fields of driver education, vocational agriculture and home economics, according to "rumors" relayed to him from the various school districts.

A move by the IEA delegate assembly to withhold services this fall, in order to force a special session of the legislature to increase school funding, "will most likely be revived" in the regular IEA convention April 16-17, York said.

Teachers attending a special assembly earlier this month in Boise had discussed a move which they declared was not a teachers' strike, but would have much the same effect. However, an unidentified caller forced an end to the assembly with a fake bomb scare before final action could be taken.

Had the bomb scare not arisen, York said, the "non-strike" would "probably" have been endorsed. The move called for all IEA members and other cooperating teachers to "withhold services" as of August 15 if adequate funds are not voted by the legislature.

York said the IEA's next move will be to "recommend override elections in all school districts," in an effort to boost property-tax levies for school support.

"I don't like this way to raise funds, but what alternative do we have?" York said. State funds are being reduced, and federal subsidies are shrinking. "The property tax is the only place left to raise funds."

Murder suspect freed on bond

TWIN FALLS—Mrs. Helen Wilcox, 64, Twin Falls, accused of the Jan. 2 first degree murder of her mother, Mrs. Laura Wilcox, 86, has been released on a $10,000 cash bond.

Twin Falls Magistrate Dan Meehl signed an order Wednesday afternoon releasing Mrs. Wilcox from jail on a $10,000 bond but with the stipulation she be confined to Hazel Del Manor and in their custody pending the preliminary hearing or other disposition of the case. She is now in the manor.

Judge Meehl said Mrs. Wilcox was scheduled to appear before him today, but Wednesday after meeting with defense attorney

James J. May and Prosecuting Attorney Leon Smith, "it was determined that the case was a bondable offense."

Judge Meehl said usually a first-degree murder charge is not bondable if the proof of guilt is great, but in this case it was agreed between the three—May, Smith and Meehl—that the proof of guilt was not great.

Judge Meehl said Mrs. Wilcox has been examined by a Salt Lake City psychiatrist, but results have not been announced.

Judge Meehl said the preliminary hearing for Mrs. Wilcox will be set within two or three weeks.

Murtaugh Jaycees formed

MURTAUGH—Organization of a Jaycee chapter in Murtaugh with Bob Buchanan, as charter president was announced today.

Buchanan will be assisted in getting the Jaycee organization into action by Paul Pickett, vice president; Dick Anala, secretary and treasurer and Bryce Biggerstaff and Bernard Knighton, directors.

Efforts are still underway, Buchanan said, to increase membership. He urged all young men in the Murtaugh area between the ages of 21 and 35 who are interested in bettering their community to join the Jaycees.

Members of the Twin Falls Jaycees sponsored the new chapter and for the next year will assist in projects and programs. Delegates from the sponsoring chapter will attend all of the Murtaugh meetings during the first year.

Oakley budget decreases

OAKLEY—The Oakley City budget of $32,250 for 1971 shows a slight decrease from last year's figure of $32,722.56, Mayor Nathan Tanner said today.

Higher expenditures are budgeted for the clerk and treasurer, with $1,400 for 1971 compared to $1,313.76 last year; city police, $4,500 compared to $4,358.80; insurance and bonds, $600 compared to $550; miscellaneous, $2,000 compared to $1,700.

Decreases are shown in the road and bridge fund which is $7,000 compared to $6,500 last year; civic improvements, $1,800 compared to $1,500; car expenses, $2,700 to $2,500; state tax, $1,050, compared to $1,000.

Other items in the budget which are the same as last year are street and office lights and power at well, $4,500 telephone, $300; office rent, $350; stamps and office supplies, $250; printing and publication, $200; audit, $300; attorney fees, $50; airport, $1,000 and library, $300.

Valley highway limits imposed

SHOSHONE—The Idaho Highway Department reports restrictions on several state highways in Magic Valley.

Those which are restricted to 350 pounds per inch width of tire with 10,000 pounds allowable on front axles is equipped with 10 inch of larger tires and 14,000 pounds allowable on all other axles include U.S. 20 from Arco to mile post 295; U.S. 20-25-93 alternate from Shoshone to Carey; Idaho Highway 24 from Shoshone to Rupert; U.S. 26-93 alternate from Shoshone to Arco; Idaho Highway 27 from Burley to Oakley; Idaho Highway 46 from Gooding to the junction of Idaho Highway 68, and U.S. 93 from Halley to Ketchum.

Restricted to legal allowable weight are Idaho Highway 25 from Bliss to the Jerome Interchange; Idaho Highway 25 from Jerome to the Declo Interchange; U.S. 30 from Mountain Home to King Hill; U.S. 30 S from Burley to the Utah line; Idaho Highway 74 from the Junction of U.S. 93 to Twin Falls; Idaho Highway 77 from Declo to Interstate 80N interchange; U.S. 93 from Shoshone to Halley, and U.S. 93 from the Nevada line to Shoshone.

Because of extreme break-up, several sections of state highway are being restricted to 50 miles per hour for all traffic.

besides truck weight and speed restrictions. In Magic Valley, Idaho Highway 25 from Bliss to Jerome is under this restriction. E. L. Mathes, state highway engineer, said trucks and buses exceeding 10,000 pounds will be restricted in critical areas on sections of highway to 30 miles per hour. Restricted speed zones will be marked by red and yellow markers.

A red marker will mean speed is restricted to 30 miles per hour and a yellow marker will mean normal speed may be resumed. The markers will usually be attached to existing highway sign posts.

Two-lane sections of highway posted for less than legal allowable weight, or for less than 16,000 pounds per axle, will automatically be restricted to special permits not exceeding 12 feet, six inches, Mathes said.

Such restrictions will be removed when road and weather conditions permit, Mathes said.

Defy Seabees

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Navy Seabees have constructed a 104-unit park for mobile homes in San Diego despite picketing by civilian construction workers. The civilians said Seabees' work was not supposed to remain standing except by force.

Woman suffocates in trailer fire

GARDEN CITY, Idaho (UPI)—An elderly Garden City woman suffocated early today but policemen managed to save her husband when fire engulfed and destroyed the couple's mobile home.

Police identified the victim as Lucretia Wade, a woman in her late 70's. They said her husband, Andrew Wade, was admitted to St. Alphonsus Hospital in adjacent Boise for treatment of smoke inhalation. Officers Ed Storch and Tom Sheffield were patrolling West 37th Street shortly after 1 a.m. when they saw smoke billowing from the Wade's trailer house. They rushed into the dwelling and pulled both occupants and a little dog outside.

It was too late however to save Mrs. Wade, but the husband and dog survived.

Police said the fire occurred when an electric heater apparently was placed too close to a drape and set it aflame.

Route open to travel

SHOSHONE—Highway 93A through Arco and the Craters of the Moon National Monument is open today to traffic, Harry Hubbard, district maintenance supervisor for the Idaho Highway Department, said.

Hubbard said the highway was closed Tuesday morning because of ground blizzard conditions, but was opened to traffic Tuesday afternoon.

Last trip

AN "ANTIQUE" automobile will pass its price in a public auction for the second year on Wednesday. The Grand National and Transamerica models are being sold at the auction.

Rupert ponders zoning

RUPERT—The Rupert City Planning and Zoning Commission has set a public hearing at 7 p.m. March 30 in the city library room on a petition to change the zoning status of the area where Trevino Equipment Co. is located.

Larry Freeman, chairman of the zoning commission, said the Trevino firm has petitioned to have the area, which is along the highway, changed from residential to commercial.

At the city council Monday night, councilmen agreed to request the zoning commission to act on the matter. A contract was awarded Larry Fairbanks, contractor, to install 2,633 feet of water pipe for $16,623.

Councilmen agreed to recommend that newspaper delivery boys wear white jackets or light clothing. This suggestion results from an accident recently when a newsboy was struck by a vehicle.

Councilmen also decided not to raise sewer costs at this time. Roger Johns, of Magic Valley Foods Corp., asked councilmen not to increase sewer costs until after July.

Since his firm is under a contract for potato production and he said the sewer costs were fixed at $100 per acre, he asked the council to consider the matter.

Gem base wage reaches $1.40

BOISE (UPI)—Gov. Cecil D. Andrus advised the legislature Wednesday he has signed into law a new minimum wage and a reclassification of the workmen's compensation statutes. His action raises the state's minimum wage to $1.40 per hour from the present $1.25 next July 1. It will boost the minimum to $1.60 per hour on July 1, 1972.

Included in the workmen's compensation code are new benefit provisions which will cost employers a 35 per cent increase in premiums.

Andrus said he also signed into law measures providing for high school subdistricts for construction purposes, increases in junior college tuition and a uniform probate code.

He also signed a bill requiring him to fill legislative vacancies with persons who belong to the same political party as the legislator whose office became vacant.

Still another bill signed into law by the governor provides for annexation to highway districts of areas in which there are no residences to be gained by consent of governing boards of taxing districts involved.

Telephone adaptations spur creation of new industries

NEW YORK (UPI)—A psychiatrist uses a telephone answering machine to leave soothing messages for anxiety-ridden patients.

A legislator frees his secretary for more productive work by letting an answering machine take calls from constituents.

Business firms use them to take orders from salesmen after office hours. Hospitals and life insurance company medical departments save hours with the answering devices in getting reports on medical examinations.

Ads for cheap answering and recording devices fill the boards, burglar alarms and lie-in devices for data transmission, have created a large independent telephone equipment business.

It has been some years now since the Bell System lost the power to insist on the use of only Bell made or Bell approved equipment by its subscribers.

Independent makers of telephone equipment from all over the world have rushed in to help supply the U.S. market with a remarkable variety of telephonic devices.

According to President Tom Pledger of Burnup & Sims, Inc., West Palm Beach, Fla., both the Bell System and the fast-growing independent telephone companies have found demand outstripping their ability to build new facilities.

In consequence, a large but little known industry has emerged, contract maintenance and installation service for the telephone industry.

Pledger estimated there are 250 companies in this field and that Bell and independent phone companies depend on them for $250 million worth of work in 1970 and will farm out $300 million in work this year to the

Death suits filed

BOISE — Two lawsuits totaling $300,000 in the drowning deaths of three children near Declo last summer have been filed in U.S. District Court.

A spokesman in District Court said the lawsuits were filed Tuesday by James Annett, Burley attorney, in behalf of his clients, Mr. and Mrs. Edwiges Manriquez and Mr. and Mrs. Rosendo Hernandez, all Burley, in the deaths of their children.

The court spokesman said the actions were brought against Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Taylor, Declo, on allegations that Taylor was driving a pickup truck that caused a car in which the victims were riding to swerve into a canal on U.S. 20 east of Declo.

The Manriquez' are suing the Taylors for $200,000 in the deaths of their children, Irma, 10, and Anita, 7. Mr. and Mrs. Hernandez are suing the Taylors for $100,000 for the loss of their son, Jose.

CSI streaks into NJCAA semi-finals

By LARRY HOVEY - Times-News Sports Editor
(Editor's note - Larry Hovey is in Hutchinson, Kan., with the College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles as they try for the school's first national title) HUTCHINSON, Kan. - Battered and beleaguered, the wounded College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles limped past a little but lightning quick Columbia, Tenn. team 77-72 Wednesday night to gain the semi-finals of the NJCAA tournament.

The Eagles play again at 7:30 Friday night, and should they win that one will play for the title Saturday. Right now the top-ranked Eagles can place no worse than fourth.

It was perhaps CSI's best six-man effort of the year and came when the Eagles were physically at their lowest. Ron Behagen, who came down with a cold Wednesday, sparked with 27 points and 18 in the first half. Steve Hegens, who sprained an ankle, and sat out Wednesday's game for the most part, came in with six late points and Ralph Palomar, still hobbled by that badly sprained ankle, pumped through 25.

Late in the game Tim Bassett reinsured his knee, and Gary Rejnured fell on his left elbow late in the game and it immediately swelled to goose egg size. Fortunately the Eagles will have today for rest and relaxation.

Columbia was easily the fastest team CSI has ever faced. It started only one man over 6-2, but used seven men who weren't far behind Vic Kelly for quickness.

Kelly and Behagen combined in the early going to shatter the Columbia press and pile up a 20-5 lead in the first seven minutes. But the very physical Chargers tightened their press and despite the protest of coach Jerry Hale managed to shred CSI with innumerable incidental contact speals.

Columbia started coming back with two quick buckets but over the next five minutes CSI maintained a 10-point advantage. With the score at 32-22 Columbia ripped off 10 points in 1: to tie it and managed a 38-34 lead with 2:21 remaining. But

Kelly, Bassett and Behagen hit on extra points to give CSI a 40-38 halftime lead. The Eagles nursed 1-5 point leads through the first nine minutes of the second half before Columbia went ahead by three on consecutive buckets by Benny Newsome and Harry Gillmore. But the Eagles rallied almost immediately as Palomar hit two field goals and Quesnell and

An easy hoop underneath

TWO OF THE BIG STARS in College of Southern Idaho's win over Columbia, Tenn. Community College Wednesday night battle under the boards in the Golden Eagles' second-round game. Ralph Palomar (55) lays in an easy shot off the glass while forward Ron Behagen watches to make sure it goes in. Palomar, still limping with that sore ankle, tanked 25 points and Behagen had 29 as the Eagles topped Columbia 77-72 and moved into the semi-finals. They get a day off today before playing Friday night. (UPI)

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — Host Hutchinson, Kan., in the NJCAA national tournament for the first time in several years, easily got past the first round along with Poplar Bluff, Mo. Wednesday afternoon.

The Dragons of Hutchinson outscored Bacone, Okla. 106-94 and the Missouri club outsped Niagara Falls, N.Y., 100-75.

Rockets outlast Detroit

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—The San Diego Rockets, led by center Elvin Hayes with 28 points, outlasted the Detroit Pistons 106-99 in an NBA contest here Wednesday night.

The victory was the fifth in a row for the Rockets to tie a team mark. It was also win number 38 this season, breaking a club record. The win still keeps San Diego in the Pacific Division playoff race. San Francisco beat Cincinnati 110-92 and leads by two games with two remaining.

San Diego guard Stu Lantz scored 17 points, four of which came on consecutive free throws in the fourth quarter. With 4:25 left in the game and the Rockets leading 98-95, Detroit center Bob Lanier and coach Bill van Breda Kolf received back-to-back technical fouls. Lantz two other free throws came with three minutes left when Jimmy Walker fouled him on the way to the basket.

Frazier's not dead, he just needs little rest

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Joe Frazier is not dead.

The heavyweight champion is alive and well, it still "tired", in a Philadelphia hospital. He's munching watermelon, listening to his stereo at full blast and entertaining any friends who manage to slip past the 24-hour guard standing outside the door.

"Take my picture, put it in the papers," Joe said on Wednesday. "Then they can see for themselves."

The rumor began late Tuesday night that the 27-year-old Philadelphia was "seriously ill" and by Wednesday morning he was supposed to be dead. Calls flooded the switchboards at newspaper offices in New York for information on his condition, and some radio stations carried the "news" that Frazier was dead.

The injuries he was supposed to have suffered ranged from broken ribs to a detached retina, and Frazier's physician, Dr. James C. Giuffre, spent the morning telling callers the rumors were not true.

"It's going to be hard to hold him down because he feels so well," Dr. Giuffre said, "but I want him to stay isolated here for one week. I was concerned because any time you take a guy like Joe, a healthy, vibrant specimen, and he complains that he is tired, it's cause to look for something more serious."

"After taking his blood pressure I found an elevation," the doctor added. "We took lots of other tests and a few results were not to my liking. I wanted to make sure that he was not coming down with some chronic medical problem. Since he's been here there has been tremendous improvement, and his condition is good. I would definitely not suggest to him that he retire for physical reasons."

Frazier has not yet decided whether to retire. His manager, Yank Durham, has urged him to quit boxing, and so has his wife, but Frazier said he will wait until he confers with them and also with several officials of Cloverly, Inc., which owns his contract, before making a final decision.

"I want to do some living now," Frazier said, "but I haven't decided anything. I'll get together with Yank, Bruce Wright (counsel of Cloverly) and my wife to talk things over. I figured up the other day that I've been fighting 10 years. That means I've spent three years of my life in training."

After the fight, Durham said, "I want him to retire, but I'm not going to force the man to quit if he wants to keep fighting. I'll be right in his corner if he wants to fight again, but once he does quit, I'll turn my back and walk away if he tries to come back."

Wright said in a statement, "Cloverly, Inc. is presently concerned with Joe Frazier's health and continues its active interest in his future. We know of no plan for Joe's retirement from boxing. He has not told us of his plans for the future. Meetings were scheduled for this week."

"Of course, the decision to retire from boxing will be that of Joe Frazier entirely," he added. "We would respect any decision he made."

As soon as he is released from St. Luke's Hospital, Frazier said he will visit his mother in Beaufort, S. C. He also said he was looking forward to personal appearances, and perhaps a movie in which he plays the part of the governor of an island.

He was given an extensive series of tests, which revealed high blood pressure, and also was fed intravenously to clear his system for some of the tests.

Menke switches positions Astros whip Boston by 8-2

By United Press International Denis Menke, who might be the best shortstop in the National League, apparently is going to be the Houston Astros' first baseman this season.

Menke, 21, who hit .304 last season and covers more ground than any other shortstop in the league with the possible exception of Don Kessinger of the Chicago Cubs, knew it was coming because the Astros want their regular shortstop to be either Roger Metzger or Marty Marintez.

Menke was switched to first base for the first time this spring Wednesday and had three singles as the Astros whipped the Boston Red Sox, 8-2. The performance suggested to Manager Harry Walker what he has been claiming all along, that Menke will hit "regardless of where he plays."

On other fronts: Jose Cruz, ninth-inning double gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. Jose Cardenal hit a three-run homer for the Cardinals, who have won nine of their 12 spring games. Cleon Jones hit a double and a homer and Gary Gentry pitched five innings of one-hit ball as the New York Mets beat the Kansas City Royals, 6-1. The Minnesota Twins said that outfielder Tony Oliva, two-time American League batting champion, had agreed to a two-year contract which it indicated called for slightly less than $100,000 a year. Oliva batted .325 last season, drove in 107 runs and had 204 hits.

Dave Campbell singled home Rod Gaspar with the winning run in the ninth to give the San Diego Padres an 8-7 victory over the Chicago Cubs. The Milwaukee Brewers took advantage of five errors to beat the San Francisco Giants, 10-9. Bobby Grich drove in five runs with two doubles and an infield out as the Baltimore Orioles routed the Minnesota Twins, 10-1. Lee Richards homered as the Chicago White Sox beat the New York Yankees 4-2.

Kansas favorite in Midwest meet

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI)—Kansas, ranked fourth in the nation, rates a shaky favorite to win the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball tournament, which opens here Thursday night.

The Big Eight Conference champion Jayhawks (25-1) will meet independent Houston (21-6) at 9:05 p.m. (CST) after independent Notre Dame (20-7) plays Missouri-Valley Conference champion Drake (20-7) in the 7:05 p.m. opener.

Sensational Austin Carr, Notre Dame's Naismith Award winner as the outstanding collegiate player of the year, heads a talented array of players, which includes Drake's Jeff Halliburton and Tom Bush, Houston's Dwight Davis and Poo Welch and Kansas' Dave Robisch and Bud Stallworth.

All 11,017 seats in Henry Levitt Arena on the Wichita State campus have been sold for both sessions. Thursday night victors advance into Saturday's championship game at 3:10 p.m. (CST), with the losers playing a consolation game at 1 p.m.

Kansas has won 19 straight games after a December loss at Louisville and was the first team in 12 years to go through the 14-game Big Eight schedule undefeated.

The Jayhawks' meeting with Houston will be the second of the season, Kansas winning the first, 89-73, in the finals of the Jayhawk Classic last December.

"We certainly don't view them with any overconfidence," Kansas Coach Ted Owens says. "That was one of our two or three best games of the year."

While Kansas was coasting through the last few weeks of the regular season, its NCAA berth virtually locked up, the others were fighting for their existence.

Notre Dame and Houston had to sweat out being extended invitations as at-large entries before winning first-round games at Houston last Saturday. Carr scored 52 points as the Irish defeated Southwest Conference champion Texas Christian, 102-84, and Houston had to come from 19 points behind to outlast New Mexico State, 72-69.

Drake, though, had the toughest road to hoe of all. The Bulldogs of Coach Maury John were two games behind Louisville with a week to go in the heated Valley race. Louisville lost both of its last two regular-season games to finish in a three-way tie with St. Louis and Drake.

The Cardinals edged St. Louis, 68-66, in the first playoff game before Drake subdued Louisville, 86-71, last Saturday at Peoria, Ill.

Berth to ride on one game

NEW YORK (UPI)—NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy announced Wednesday that in case of a tie for second place in the Central, Midwest or Pacific divisions at the end of the regular season, a single game will be played to decide the playoff berth.

The winner of the season series between the two deadlocked clubs will be the home team for this game. In case the two clubs have split their season series, a flip of a coin will decide.

The date of the game or games will be announced later. If there is a triple tie for second place in the Pacific Division among San Francisco, San Diego and Seattle, there will be a drawing whereby one of the teams will be given a bye and will play the winner of the game involving the other two clubs. Home sites for these games also will be determined by the season series of the clubs involved.

Prior to Wednesday night's action, Atlanta led Cincinnati by 1-2 games for second place in the Central Division; Chicago led Phoenix by four games in the Midwest; and San Francisco led San Diego by two games and Seattle by 2-1-2 in the Pacific.

The regular season for all these clubs ends no later than Sunday.

Babe Ruth, with a lifetime record of .344, holds the all-time major league home run record.

Bengals in meet

POCATELLO — Idaho State makes its long-awaited baseball debut Thursday at 11:30 a.m. in the Banana Belt Tourney in Lewiston, Idaho. ISU faces Eastern Washington. The Bengals were slated to start the 1971 season three previous times but the weatherman refused to cooperate and so ISU had to leave town to get a game in.

Actually Babe Caccia and company will do considerably more than get a game in. To be exact they will play five games in three days. Teams in the tourney include Idaho, Montana, Montana State, ISU, Eastern Washington, Washington State, Puget Sound, and one other.

Caccia has nominated All-Big Sky returnee Ken Mendenhall (5-3, 2.16 ERA) to be his opening game hurler. Lefty Jim Lonchar (4-2, 3.19) will pitch the second game Thursday, possibly against Washington State.

Caccia has had his troubles this spring determining a starting lineup. He's even sitting up his trainer Ivan Milton the squad is so depleted by injuries and grade problems.

Touted squad defeated but tournament has showmanship

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (UPI)—Southwestern Louisiana upset top-ranked Assumption, 110-99, while Old Dominion, Kentucky Wesleyan and host Evansville also scored opening round victories Wednesday in the NCAA College Division Basketball Championships.

Old Dominion edged Puget Sound in overtime, 81-80, three-time champ Kentucky Wesleyan trimmed Cheyney State, 89-83, and four-time winner Evansville bombed Hartwick, 105-69.

Thursday night's semi-finals match Old Dominion against Southwestern Louisiana and Evansville against Kentucky Wesleyan.

Evansville hit 10 of its first 14 shots and rolled into a 22-12 lead over the Warriors in the first six minutes.

John Wellmeyer topped the aces with 20 points and Willie Mackey was high for Hartwick with 19. Evansville is now 20-8 and the Warriors finished 21-6.

Old Dominion's Monarchs tied the opener at 73-73 with 12 seconds left, on Skip Noble's field goal, to send the contest into overtime.

The lead changed hands five times in the extra period before sophomore guard Rick Nau copped two free throws with 11 seconds left to give Old Dominion an 81-78 lead.

Charles Lowery of Puget Sound led all scorers with 35 points. Steve Cox hit 23 for the Monarchs, who are 20-5. The Loggers finished 20-8.

Condors mum on Hawkins

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Condors of the American Basketball Association announced today they had given their No. 1 player, John Brisker, a pay raise but declined to comment on reports they had hired Connie Hawkins from the Phoenix Suns of the National Basketball Association, effective at the end of the current season.

A Condors' spokesman said the club renegotiated Brisker's three-year contract, which still has two years to run. The spokesman indicated the pay raise, the size of which he declined to give, was enough to end any thoughts Brisker may have had about jumping to the Philadelphia 76ers of the NBA. Sources said Brisker had been approached by the 76ers.

"When you've got a good thing, you keep it," the Condors' spokesman said concerning Brisker's raise.

The Condors were reported to have used $100,000 as bait to lure Hawkins.

Levias' fake in headlines

DETROIT (UPI)—William D. Street, who tried to pass himself off as a football star at the Detroit Tigers' training camp in February, was charged Wednesday with attempting to extort $20,000 from the wife of Tiger outfielder Willie Horton.

The 23-year-old Detroit allegedly threatened to kill Mrs. Patricia Horton, 26, and the couple's two children unless he was given the money, according to District Detective Inspector James D. Bannon. The threat allegedly was made March 9 while Horton was at the Tigers' training camp in Lakeland, Fla.

Street last Feb. 19 arrived at the Tigers' camp posing as Jerry Levias, a wide receiver for the Houston Oilers of the National Football League. He told club officials he had had college baseball experience and wanted to switch sports.

He was exposed when the real Levias was told by newsmen that he was supposed to be working out with the Tigers.

Street stood mute at his arraignment was ordered held in lieu of $5,000 bond by Recorder's Court Judge A.R. DiBaisi. Street's lawyer asked that he be given a psychiatric test before a court examination on the charge March 26.

Street allegedly went to the Horton home about 12:15 a.m. on March 9 and talked over the intercom to Mrs. Horton who said she refused to open the door.

"Mrs. Horton identified herself to Street as her sister and told him to leave a note in the mailbox," Bannon said.

The note read in part: "Draw $20,000 from the bank in small bills. Put in paper bag, turn over to this man ... Do not contact anyone. He is ordered to kill you if you try something. Your husband's children's lives are at stake."

Mrs. Horton told Bannon she recognized Street from a newspaper photograph taken of him after the training camp hoax.

pendents, the NIT doesn't command the national respect of the NCAA tournament. However, this year's tournament, which begins Saturday, has a circus-like quality about it which just might make it a major attraction.

For one thing, Madison Square Garden, in an effort to beef up attendance to the early round games, has scheduled a pair of tripleheaders which lends a different approach to the tournament. Secondly, the appearance of Hawaii and Tennessee in the tourney will provide quite a bit of color for the spectators.

Hawaii, which is the first team from outside the continental United States ever to appear in the NIT, features hula girl cheerleaders who throw orchids into the stands, and Tennessee has a pre-game warmup drill that features Globetrotter antics and unicyclists.

It all sounds very entertaining, but the Garden is still worried that a large number of seats to the early rounds won't be filled. The reason is that the NIT committee wanted a more national flavor this year and so chose only one local team—St. John's.

It is the first time in nine years that the NIT will have less than two local teams, and it will be interesting to see if out-of-town clubs can draw in the early rounds.

The tournament opens at 11 a.m. EST Saturday with North Carolina meeting Massachusetts in the first game of a tripleheader. Louisville takes on Providence and Dayton meets Duke to conclude the afternoon round and the first day's action continues Saturday night with Tennessee opposing St. John's and Georgia Tech meeting LaSalle.

On Sunday there is another doubleheader as first-round action continues. Michigan meets Syracuse in the first game and St. Bonaventure takes on Purdue in the nightcap.

Hawaii finally swings into action on Monday against Oklahoma in the first game of a tripleheader to conclude first round play. Two quarterfinal games will conclude Monday night's triple bill.

Quarterfinal action will conclude Wednesday night with a doubleheader. The semis are set for Thursday night and the finals for Saturday afternoon.

This year's field isn't as weak as many are inclined to believe. Louisville, LaSalle and North Carolina all came very close to winning their respective conferences and Massachusetts (22-3) and Hawaii (22-4) have outstanding records. Tennessee also is a strong team, with a victory over NCAA entrant Kentucky to its credit.

Fans also will get to see several of the top individual stars in action. The biggest names on display will be Ken Durrett of LaSalle, a 6-7 forward who was a second team All-American selection, and Julius Erving of Massachusetts, a third team All-American choice.

Deacons' Davis has ACC tab

RALEIGH, N. C. (UPI)—Slender sharpshooter Charlie Davis of Wake Forest Wednesday was named basketball player of the year in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Davis, from New York City, won handily in voting by the Atlantic Coast Conference Sportswriters Association, receiving 86 votes.

Davis scored 30 or more points nine times this season and was below 20 only once.

ISU to hold medic clinic

POCATELLO — Idaho State will hold its annual Sports Medicine Clinic Friday and Saturday in the ISU Minidome. The clinic will be under the direction of Idaho State's athletic medical staff headed by ISU Team Physician Dr. Paul Jentes, ISU Trainer Phil Luckey, and Team Surgeon Dr. Gilbert Bacon.

Registration takes place Friday at 9 a.m. on the north side of the dome and the fee is $5. Dr. Jentes said that the clinic is open to the general public and that anyone with an interest in sports or who might someday be coaching athletics on any level from Little League baseball or football right up to the college or professional level will be able to pick up some valuable medical information.

Gilmore signing proves ABA's still in business

NEW YORK (UPI)—"The signing of Artis Gilmore is just one more proof that we're in business."

Those confident words came from the lips of Jack Dolph, Commissioner of the American Basketball Association, as he presided over a news conference Wednesday that introduced the 7-foot-2 Gilmore as a member of the Kentucky Colonels.

"We are tremendously proud of the Colonels' organization," Dolph said. "They are obviously doing and they get the job done. We are proud to have Artis Gilmore in our league."

The signing of Gilmore to an estimated $2.7 million multi-year contract Tuesday in Louisville, Ky., marked the second time in the past year that the Colonels have lured a big name college basketball player away from the rival National Basketball Association.

Dan Issel, currently the leading scorer in the ABA, agreed to terms with the Colonels after starring for the University of Kentucky last year. Issel, a 6-foot-9 center, signed for a $1 million bonus contract.

Wendell Cherry, ABA President and Chairman of the Board of the Kentucky team, was jubilant over the acquisition of Gilmore.

"We are delighted to have attracted Artis Gilmore to our league," said Cherry. "This has exploited the last myth of the NBA as far as attracting all the big men. In Issel and Gilmore we have two of the finest players in the game."

"I think I'll call them the terrible duo. Now, if they get around Dan, they'll have to come fact-to-face with Mr. Gilmore."

At Jacksonville University, Gilmore was an awesome defensive giant the past two seasons, leading the Dolphins into the NCAA champion ships and blocking an incredible 238 shots in his senior year alone. Gilmore averaged 22.3 points and 23.2 rebounds per game this season.

"He's the most intimidating basketball player in the history of the game," says Jacksonville coach Tom Wasdin.

Harvard's Coach Bob Harrison agreed and called Gilmore "better than Lew Alcindor...He will be the greatest player ever...There's only one Gilmore." "All I can hope for in the pros," said the towering Gilmore, his lanky frame extended by his bushy Afro, "is to make a lot of success as far as winning, which is kind of a tradition with me. But still, I've got to make the adjustments."

Gilmore was contacted by the NBA as late as 2 a.m. Tuesday morning but the Colonels finally won out in the bidding war.

"They (The NBA) made a big offer," said Gilmore's attorney, Herb Rudy. "The owner authorized by the league made the offer but I'm obligated not to release his name. I can tell you that it didn't come from the team that won the coin flip to draft first (Cleveland Cavaliers)."

Gilmore clowns at Toots'

THE GIANT (7-2) Artis Gilmore, who signed with the Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Assn. for an equally huge sum of around $1 million, plays with a television cameraman at Toots Shor's restaurant in New York Wednesday. Gilmore was expected to be one of the prize picks for the NBA along with Sid Wicks of UCLA in the older league's draft. (UPI)

Haywood continues battle with pros

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Spencer Haywood spent his second day on the witness stand Wednesday in the federal court trial over his contract with the American Basketball Association Denver Rockets, and the subject was his attorney, Al Ross.

Ross is part of All-Pro Management, Inc., the outfit which handles Haywood's commercials and endorsements. He was hired by Haywood last Oct. 20 as a personal representative and to handle all financial and business affairs.

Haywood, Ross, and All-Pro are all being sued by the Rockets—Haywood for breach of contract, and Ross and All-Pro for allegedly talking the 6-foot-9 star into leaving the ABA team.

The 21-year-old former University of Detroit player said he first signed a contract with All-Pro and agreed to pay 25 per cent of his earnings from commercials and endorsements. Ross was working for All-Pro at the time.

Haywood said that after signing Ross, he tore up his All-Pro contract. The terms of the attorney's pact called for him to get 10 per cent of the athlete's gross income.

Haywood, who was the star of the 1968 U.S. Olympic team's victory in Mexico City, was signed by the Rockets after his sophomore year in college. The ABA allowed the signing on a "hardship waiver," and Haywood reportedly was to receive $1.95 million. Haywood subsequently left the Rockets in his contract dispute and now plays for the NBA Seattle Superonics.

After the 1969-1970 season in which Haywood was both the ABA's most valuable player and rookie of the year, he said he began to doubt that his contract was actually worth the publicized amount.

Warriors deal jolt to Royals

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Jeff Mullins scored 30 points and Nate Thurmond added 23 as the San Francisco Warriors handed the Cincinnati Royals a 110-92 defeat Wednesday night, virtually destroying the Royals' hopes for a playoff berth in the NBA.

The Royals shot a poor 35 per cent from the field, scoring only 36 points in the first two periods, to fall two games behind second-place Atlanta in the Central Division. Each team has two games remaining.

The Royals were never closer than 11 points in the second half and the Warriors, outbounding Cincinnati, 65-42, dominated the boards.

The Warriors easily maintained their big lead through the fourth period with Mullins and Thurmond combining for 19 of San Francisco's 39 points.

Rockies dominates

BOREAL RIDGE, Calif. (UPI)—The Rocky Mountain Division swept both the boys and girls races Wednesday at the National Junior Nordic Ski Championships sponsored by the U. S. Ski Association.

The team of Raul Wittke (18:18), Britt Lovelace (18:22), Ron Yeager (17:34) and Roger Sanstead (18:03) won the boys event over 20 kilometers in 72 minutes and 15 seconds.

The girls team, racing over 15 kilometers, clocked 63 minutes, 13 seconds. It was made up of Twila Hinkle (20:37), Alita Grites (21:47) and Kris Zedchik (20:40).

Bergman restored

DETROIT (UPI)—Detroit Red Wing defenseman Gary Bergman was restored to the National Hockey League club's roster Wednesday after he and coach Doug Barkley "ironed out" their differences.

Barkley had ordered Bergman out of Olympia Stadium Tuesday night during the first period of the Wing's game with Boston which Detroit lost 11-4. Barkley refused to discuss what happened on the bench that led to the veteran defenseman's ouster.

"We had a personal confrontation and we've ironed it out," said Barkley Wednesday morning after the two met for just over one hour. "He back with the team and he has been fined. The matter will be forgotten."

Barkley refused to divulge the amount of the fine, and the 31-year-old defenseman, a seven-year NHL veteran, accompanied the team to Boston for a game Thursday night.

Florida topples Stars

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bill Melchioni's 20-foot side set with three seconds remaining carried the New York Nets to a 122-120 victory over the Kentucky Colonels Wednesday night and a berth in the American Basketball Association playoffs.

Melchioni was part of a devastating one-two punch as he scored 32 points. Rick Barry netted 45 for the Nets, eight short of his season high.

The Floridians defeated Utah 120-116 behind Mack Calvin's 41 points in the opener of the ABA twin bill at Madison Square Garden.

The Nets, who lost to Kentucky Tuesday night, moved within 2 1-2 games of the second-place Colonels in the Eastern Division by winning their 13th game in the last 16.

Barry scored 20 points in the first half as the Nets trailed, 68-62. His 16 point third period gave New York a 95-94 edge. Kentucky ran off seven straight points for a 105-100 advantage with eight minutes remaining, but Barry then scored eight of New York's next 10 points to spark a Nets' rally.

Kentucky took its last lead at 120-118 on Cincy Powell's basket with 1:56 to go, but Melchioni tied it 20 seconds later. There was no further scoring until Melchioni's winning basket.

Calvin's two free throws with 13 seconds remaining in the opener proved to be the insurance points for the Floridians.

Indiana closes on West lead

ANDERSON, Ind. (UPI)—The Indiana Pacers trimmed Texas, 123-109, Wednesday to move into a virtual tie with Utah for first place in the Western Division of the American Basketball Association.

Utah dropped a 120-116 decision to the Floridians. The Stars now are 61-23 and the Pacers are 52-24, and although the Pacers are a half-game ahead of Utah, the Stars hold a percentage lead, .689 to .688.

Roger Brown pumped in 28 points to lead the Indiana assault and Mel Daniels added 24. The Pacers were without the services of All-Star forward Bob Netolicky, who sprained an ankle in a game Sunday.

Don Freeman with 25 and John Beasley with 20 led the Chapparals, the last-place club in the west with a 26-50 mark. The Pacers broke a 39-39 tie on Warren Armstrong's 3-point "home run" shot and never trailed the rest of the way. They built up an 18-point surge at 79-61 in the third period.

Oliva has new pact

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI)—The Minnesota Twins said Wednesday night that two-time American league batting champion Tony Oliva has agreed to a two-year contract and indicated that it called for slightly less than $100,000 a year.

It was believed that Oliva's contract will call for $95,000 a year. Oliva, who led the AL in batting in 1963 and 1964, batted .345 last season, drove in 167 runs and hit 200 home runs.

Palmer's putts falling, he could win Jacksonville Open

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Those short putts are beginning to fall again for Arnold Palmer and that's a sure sign for the other golfers in the $125,000 Greater Jacksonville Open to look out.

Palmer, who says he has been switching putters with practically every round, will be gunning for his second straight victory in today's opening round over the tough 6,924-yard Hidden Hills Country Club course.

Coming off last week's win in the Florida Citrus Invitational, Palmer ranks as a solid favorite in this event, one of his final tuneups before the Masters. The graying, 41-year-old golfing millionaire tied for low pro honors in Wednesday's par 69 on the wind-swept course.

Palmer, who broke a long drought with a win in the Bob Hope Classic earlier this year, explained the dry spell by saying he "just didn't work as hard as I should have on my golf."

He said he is "hitting the ball" as well as he ever has, with putting the key to victory. "I've said all along if you can make a couple of putts, it can make a lot of difference," he added.

Palmer gave defending U. S. Open champion Tony Jacklin a brief putting lesson Wednesday after the young British golfer came up and jokingly asked to borrow the putter Palmer used at Orlando last week.

"I don't know which one it is," quipped Palmer. "I used a different one every day last week."

The two swapped putters and went to the practice green where Palmer canned three straight from about 10 feet.

Nelson, Celtics top L.A.

BOSTON (UPI)—Don Nelson exploded for 14 points in the second quarter and John Havlicek took it from there as the down and out Boston Celtics upset the Los Angeles Lakers, National Basketball Association Pacific Division winner, 112-104, Wednesday night.

Nelson, who finished the night with 18 points, hit seven of nine attempts from the field as the Celtics moved from a three-point first quarter edge to a 55-36 bulge at halftime. The cold-shooting Lakers could only manage six of 25 shots during the period.

Havlicek, who led all scorers with 27 points, pumped in 16 points in the third quarter while Nelson rested.

Coach Tom Heinsohn emptied his Boston bench in the final period as the Celtics coasted to victory.

Condors pad skein

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (UPI)—The Pittsburgh Condors handed the Carolina Cougars their 10th consecutive loss here Wednesday night, 133-120 in an American Basketball Association contest.

George Thompson led the Condors with 35 points. Center Mike Lewis hit 14 of 17 shots for 28 points and John Brisker added 25 more.

Joe Caldwell had 25 as high man for the Cougars. After trailing by 13 points at halftime, the Cougars rallied to within one point in the opening minute of the final period. But key baskets by Joe Kennedy and Thompson enabled the Condors to pull comfortably ahead.

PGA champion Jack Nicklaus, another favorite, posted a 6 in Wednesday's pro-am and said he was in a "good frame of mind" for the tournament.

Nicklaus, also looking to the Masters which he hopes will be the second leg on a possible "grand slam" this year, said the greens were very tough to putt.

Nicklaus said his chances of getting the grand slam—the PGA, Masters, U. S. Open and British Open—have improved because he is "more mature and more adjusted."

Gary Player and Lee Trevino were a little more concerned about their game after shooting 74 and 73 respectively in Wednesday's warmup.

"I haven't played well all year," said Trevino.

"I left my game at home," he quipped. "I just hope I make my tee time. I may sleep in this week."

A field of 147 golfers will be battling for the top prize of $25,000 with the only top names missing from the lineup being Billy Casper, Julius Boros and George Archer.

Smith, Grant on small all-America

NEW YORK (UPI)—Elmore Smith and Travis Grant, a pair of extraordinary players who sparked Kentucky State to its second consecutive NAIA basketball championship, today were named to the United Press International's 1970-71 small college All-America team.

Smith, a 7-foot-2 center who averaged 25 points and 24 rebounds a game, and Grant, a 6-7 forward who scored at the rate of 31.2 points a contest, were selected to the All-America squad by the coaches who comprised the weekly UPI small college ratings board.

Also named to the first team by the coaches were high-scoring Dwight Lamar of Southwestern Louisiana, Richard Fuqua of Oral Roberts and Lloyd Neal of Tennessee State. Oddly enough, none of the five players are seniors. Smith, Grant and Neal are juniors while Lamar and Fuqua are sophomores.

Ed Huston of Puget Sound, who broke his school's all-time scoring record, heads the second team, which also consists of 7-foot Greg Northington of Alabama Tech, Mike Green of Louisiana Tech, Ken McIntosh of Eastern Michigan and Larry Baker of Wittenberg.

Named to the third team were Jake Jones of UPI's small college champion Assumption, Bubba Jones of Ashland, Tom Dinger of Wobster, Ted "The Hound" McClain of Tennessee State and Mike O'Brien of St. Leo (Fla.).

Smith received more votes than anyone else in the balloting, and the pro scouts consider him one of the top prospects in the country. A tremendously agile player for his size, Bubba had no peer among small college big men. Besides his offensive and rebounding contributions, the big center averaged seven blocked shots per game in leading the Thorobreds to a 31-2 record.

Although he still has another year of college eligibility left, Smith also was eligible for the pro draft this year and was picked by the Carolina Cougars in the American Basketball Association draft.

Grant, who is the only repeater from last year's All-

America squad, paced the Thorobreds in scoring and chipped in with nine rebounds a game. A phenomenal outside shooter, Grant connected on 64.7 of his field goal attempts this past season.

Lamar, a 6-1 guard, is the top scorer among the first five with an average of 38.6 points per game. Lamar established five school single game scoring records this season, including most points (46). He also holds six school season scoring records.

Fuqua, a 6-3 guard, connected on 50.4 per cent of his field goal attempts and averaged 31.8 in leading Oral Roberts to a 21-5 record. Fuqua set all the school's single season scoring records and his 60 points against the University of the South broke the single game scoring record of all Oklahoma collegians. Bob Kurland of Oklahoma A&M, now Oklahoma State, had the previous record of 58.

Neal, a 6-7, 235-pound center, averaged 23.6 points and 17.8 rebounds per game in leading Tennessee State to a second place finish in the UPI's final small college ratings.

Bullets edge by Cavaliers

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Kevin Loughery stole the ball from Dave Sorensen with three seconds left and scored the game-icing basket at the buzzer to give the Baltimore Bullets a 113-109 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers Wednesday night.

The Bullets rallied twice to snap a four-game losing streak, erupting from a 58-55 halftime deficit and again after Cleveland held a 102-94 bulge in the fourth period.

Earl Monroe's 32 points led the Bullets with teammates Jack Marin and Loughery adding 26 and 24 points, respectively.

Walt Wesley of Cleveland led all scorers with 33 points. The Cavs got 22 points from Bobby Smith.

Nine consecutive points by Marin provided a 109-106 Bullet lead with 1:36 to go. A basket by Monroe with 45 seconds left tipped it to 111-108, after a John Warren free throw. Loughery knocked the ball away from Sorensen and scored on the game-ending play.

Housing progress noted

By PEGGY CHU
Times-News Correspondent
GOODING — Construction of the new senior citizen's housing units is ahead of schedule, Bell Taylor, FHA agent, announced today.
The first occupants could move in as early as April 1. In some units only carpeting is left to be installed, he said.
Painting, carpeting and fixture installations are under way in the rest of the units to be completed by May 1.
The Senior Citizens' Housing Council has established rental fees of $60 low and $100 high, depending on the occupant's income.
The occupants have already been notified of their acceptance; however, cancellations could occur, Taylor said.
Those still wishing to apply should contact Jim Muffley of Gooding, chairman of the housing council.
The senior citizens' housing, located on Fourth and Idaho, consists of eight units financed by the FHA with a loan of $90,000. Additional units may be constructed if a need arises, Taylor said.

Idaho tree proposed

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, has proposed that an Idaho tree be selected as the national Christmas tree during one of the next two or three years to be lighted by the President at the traditional White House ceremony.
There are no finer trees in the nation than those found in Idaho's vast forests," Hansen told the National Park Service. He offered to supply a 75-foot tree to be erected and decorated on the ellipse behind the White House as the national community Christmas tree.
"Idaho has some of the most magnificent forest lands in the nation," Hansen said. "All or part of 15 national forests with more than 20 million acres lie within the state's borders. No other state has as high a percentage of its territory in national forests."
"Idaho's forests have a wide variety of trees, including the famous Idaho white pine, the Douglas fir, the principal Christmas tree in Idaho," he said.

Journalism conference opening

Clean lungs no more

BOISE — Finding a "clean" pair of lungs in anyone past the age of 12 is almost impossible. One pathologist at the University of California School of Medicine, Dr. Russell Sherwin, has examined thousands of lungs. He thinks nobody over 12 has clean lungs. But, much more chilling, he speculates that everyone above this age also has some degree of emphysema. Because of pervasive air pollution.
Speaking about emphysema, Dr. Sherwin says, "It's just a question of when it becomes clinically significant. I believe everyone over 12 knows I can't find a normal lung in anyone over that age."
Not all doctors agree with the pathologist's statement. But many chest specialists are concerned about the effects of air pollution on the lungs. A recent study shows that illness and death from respiratory disease would be reduced by 25 per cent in air pollution in big cities could be cut in half. The combination of air pollution and cigarette smoking also drastically increases the incidence of emphysema.
Emphysema is a chronic disease that develops gradually and causes damage to the sacs of the lungs that cannot be reversed. But the lungs must be heavily damaged before abnormalities appear in routine lung function testing. "The real problem in air pollution is not as air pollution — check with the Idaho Tuberculosis & Respiratory Disease Association; 2012 Cassia Street, Boise, 34-5776.

two-trick set? Yes, there was!

Alice saw a chance to make the contract by means of a most unusual play—a forced-double-discard play. If the March Hare held exactly one diamond and two clubs, she cashed the king of trumps, ace-king of clubs and ace of diamonds. Then she led her jack of hearts.

The March Hare won, took his high trump and then had to lead a heart. Alice discarded a diamond from dummy and the last club from her hand. On the next heart lead she was able to discard dummy's last losing diamond, ruff in her hand and claim the rest of the tricks.

"Cut and deal!" said the March Hare.

"Not a chance," said the dormouse. "I quit. She's too good for us."

Here is another hand from Wonderland's mad tea party.

After each side had a game Alice dealt herself a comfortable spade opener. The March Hare overcalled with three hearts and her partner the Mad Hatter jumped to game. Alice decided to pass and get the rubber over.

She looked at the dummy after the king of hearts was led. She won with the ace. "Curiouser and curiouser. That must be the worst jump to game ever made. Still he is supposed to be mad. It looks like down one."

She laid down her ace of trumps. The dormouse woke up just enough to discard the eight of diamonds and things looked bleak indeed. Was there any way to avoid a

But all the white collar workers I see anymore wear blue, red, yellow, pink, green or whatever collars. No doubt the blue collar workers soon all will wear, never mind, too whimsical. Anyhow, white collar workers used to make twice as much as blue collar workers. That's changed. Last year the blue averaged $130 a week, the white $105.

MAJOR HOOPLE

Army faces tough tests

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States Army traces its long, proud lineage back to the Revolutionary War and Gen. George Washington.

It is by far the largest of the services, accounting for 1.2 million of America's 2.9 million men in uniform at the end of 1970.

The Army faces virtually all the problems that the other services face and—because it is the only service that depends directly on the draft for the base of its great manpower pyramid—some that are uniquely its own.

Its traditions are very sacred, its pecking order very solidly entrenched, its rules and regulations a comfortable framework within which most career officers and senior non-commissioned officers live.

And its attempts to find ways of adjusting to the present and future are, on a local and experimental scale, among the most innovative. Ft. Carson, Colo., is an example.

At Ft. Carson, home of the 4th Infantry Division's 25,000 men, Maj. Gen. Bernard W. Rogers is trying to find ways of salvaging "our self-inflicted wounds." He seems to be meeting with success.

Rogers has switched from an authoritarian to a participatory type of leadership, making an effort to let each soldier feel he has a stake in the success of the division.

The post, sprawled west of Colorado Springs, has its own coffee house. Psychedelic posters and graffiti—including the scrawled word "resist" and a peace symbol—adorn its walls.

Men decorate the semi-private cubicles in their barracks with posters, stereo sets, colorful rugs and pin-up girls. There are no Saturday morning inspections.

And if it can be taken as a preliminary indication of success, re-enlistment rates have risen 45 per cent at the post.

In the field of drug addiction, too, the Army has applied an innovative military approach—amnesty—on a limited basis. The results here are mixed.

The idea of an amnesty program for drug users who recognize their problem and sincerely want help originated in Vietnam in 1969. Since then it has been expanded elsewhere in Asia, where drugs are far more plentiful than they are in the United States, and to the Army's big U.S. base at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

Basically the amnesty program provides treatment without punishment for those seeking help, particularly for users of hard drugs such as heroin or for heavy marijuana users who feel they are about to cross the line to hard drugs.

The drug problem brings out another, more far-reaching problem felt in the Army and the other services as well—the gap between young officers and enlisted men, and those who have made the Army their home.

"There is a fantastic generation gap," a Pentagon drug abuse investigation team quoted military judge in Vietnam as saying. "The lifers who are in leadership positions are worlds away from the enlisted man. They do not even attempt to communicate, but merely close their minds to the kids' problems."

In a way, the Army did not know how good it had things before the Vietnam buildup forced the drafting of college students. The ranks then were filled mostly with the black and the poor, and obedience was more common than questioning.

"The private is more educated today than he ever has been in the past," said Capt. Ted Purdom of Blackwell, Okla., a company commander in Berlin. "You don't tell the private any more you do this and you do that with no explanation."

Set across the generation gap from the privates and the junior noncoms, and from the lieutenants and the young captains like Purdom, are the older officers and senior non-commissioned officers.

The Army, as any wise officer knows, is run on a day-to-day basis by its senior sergeants. At the top of this order are the sergeant majors, men with a rank every bit as privileged as generals.

Army is a way of life to the senior sergeants, and they often live almost exclusively within its tight little society. For them the written and unwritten rules, learned over years of working up through the ranks, constitute a Bible of life.

Perhaps more than any other group, they are having trouble adjusting to new ways. To the new breed of soldier they are not awesome figures of power, but merely misguided "lifers."

Peronism had edge?

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
When the Argentine military ousted Juan D. Peron in 1955 it was to abolish dictatorship and restore democracy. Today, after a decade and a half of intermittent military rule interspersed with unstable civilian governments, mounting violence, including political kidnappings and murder, and the rise of a Marxist government in Chile, there is a growing wonder whether Peronism was so bad after all.

Peron codified those he called "the shirtless ones" and even though he and the top echelon among his supporters milked the Argentine treasury of an estimated $700 million, he left behind a reservoir of affection that today continues to control about one-third of the Argentine vote.

At the root of Argentina's problem is an economy which has not kept pace with the expectations of the ethnically European population. To keep up with the standard of living which Argentines have learned to expect, many work two and three jobs.

But in the big provincial cities outside Buenos Aires, the capital, these jobs are not always obtainable.

It was in June, 1966, that Lt. Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, dissatisfied with the efforts of an elected civilian government to restore economic stability, took over the government in a bloodless coup. In June, four years later, for similar reasons, and because Ongania had become known an anti-labor, he also was deposed and Brig. Gen. Roberto Marcelo Levingston put in his place.

Ongania had halted inflation and, on the surface at least, given the country a healthy economy. But it had been accomplished through rigid suppression of political and trade-union activities, including a freeze on wages and prices.

Under Levingston a new tactic was attempted. A little inflation, it was decided, wouldn't hurt. Wages were increased and there was a vague promise of free elections in "four or five years."

But a little produced the appetite for more.

In Cordoba this week it led to the second general strike of 1971, to looting and burning and to one rioter dead and dozens injured.

In government promises of elections sometime in the future, there also was a promise that Peronists would be permitted to vote under their own banner and by that time it might even be permitted to return from his Spanish exile.

With exceptions already noted, most Argentine military men oppose Peron's return, and with good reason since they could become the objects of his revenge should he return to power. But more than they fear Peron, they fear imported communism.

Mind Your Money

Q—How do we find out more about the possibility of the Federal government paying part of our rent as mentioned in your series of articles for the elder consumer? —D.B., Menlo Park, Calif.

A—Everything hinges on what's available in your area. Some of the housing programs I mentioned are not available in every locality or are restricted by local regulations.

To dig into what's available, you have to do some determined detective work: (1) Check with local Senior Citizens organizations. They often know who has the information you need. (2) Check your phone book under the "housing" subtitles such as "Model Cities" (which are often helpful). (3) Your phone book also might list state, county and municipal housing administrations or authorities.

Somewhere among these listings, you might find the right person who can give leads on current or future housing programs that fit your needs. If your detective work fails or you are given a bureaucratic brush off by a federal official, write to: Marie McGuire, Office of Information, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Washington, D.C. 20410.

Also, as part of your research, you should read "Guide to Retirement Housing." You can get a copy by sending 50 cents to: Harvest Years Publishing Co., Dept. L.A., 104 E. 40th St., New York, N.Y. 10016.

Q—Can you tell me how one can know for sure if food has been refrozen? — have heard that you can buy some frozen foods with a tiny device which registers a change of temperature by change of color. Does this work? — Mrs. N.B., Charlottesville, Va.

A—There have been attempts to put devices on packages to test temperature changes but none have really worked. They have to be on the surface to be usable. When the surface warms up a bit, as it will when a package is handled, the temperature device changes color even though the product is still frozen.

If ice has formed a flat surface on the bottom of the package, then you know it has been refrozen. The Frozen Food Institute claims refreezing affects the quality (taste and looks) of meats and fish but is not, in itself, dangerous.

The same kind of problem occurs when you buy some chickens or other meats on sale and freeze them in your home freezer. They don't freeze fast enough in home machines and the taste suffers.

Q—I saw an item about a credit union connected with the Parents Without Partners organization. I've been an officer in PWP and I've never heard of the credit union. Can you give more details? — Mrs. L.M.M., Derby, N.Y.

A—The credit union was formed by a local PWP chapter. If you want to form your own credit union, you have to have a membership of at least 100. For more information, write: CUNA International, 1617 Sherman Ave., Box 431, Madison, Wis. 53701.

TAKE NOTE — If you are planning a career, will your particular skills be in great future demand or in oversupply? In "Finance Facts," published by the National Consumer Finance Assn., it was reported that teachers, mathematicians and life scientists are likely to be in oversupply through 1980. On the other hand, chemists, geologists and geophysicists are likely to be in short supply.

Other shortages, and therefore potential career opportunities, the publication noted are likely to appear in "counseling, social work, urban planning and a variety of occupations related to the planning and administration of local government." # Emergency call brings purpose

By RICHARD MATES
Maple Heights, Ohio

By 7 a.m. I was in a squad car beginning another day as a policeman in Maple Heights, Ohio. It was Sunday, Sept. 22, 1968. I was feeling restless and edgy.

The reason was not my job, but my life. Two years previous I had attended a cursillo — a weekend retreat — at which people can learn how to develop a deeper involvement with Jesus Christ by making Him an active partner in daily life.

I had always tried to be a good Catholic, but that cursillo put lightning into my faith. It was the difference between watching football on TV and actually being in a game.

Lately, however, that excitement had dimmed. That Sunday morning, driving around town, I knew perfectly well that my God was in the car with me. This should have been enough to fill me with joy. Instead, I felt let down. I felt unused. And I knew the fault was mine.

At 12:30 p.m. I stopped at my house and told my wife, Mary Ann, I'd be home for lunch at one. She said, "One sharp, then. We're having steaks. You know how you are when yours isn't rare enough."

"I'll be here at one sharp," I said, "raring to go." She moaned.

The call came at 12:45. I took the name and address. The instructions: "A pregnant woman needs transportation to the hospital."

I was at the address in seconds.

As I got out of the car, I heard a scream from upstairs. At that instant, I knew I was going to deliver the baby.

Months before, the police department had shown the men a movie of a birth — just in case. Heading for the building, I prayed, "Help me remember that movie!"

The young man at the door said, "I'm Bob Hill. It's my wife. I think she's having the baby now."

We hurried upstairs and to the bedroom.

I said, "Mrs. Hill, I'm sorry to meet you like this, but I think I'm going to have to help you. Wait till I wash my hands."

I thought I heard her laugh as I went to the kitchen. My wife had been a nurse; we had five kids of our own, and we had discussed childbirth. But I couldn't remember a word.

The woman screamed again, and I headed back into the room.

Bob was at the foot of the bed. "Can I do anything?"

I said, "Yes. You can take my place."

He stepped back. "No. I can't."

"Then call the fire department and have them get their ambulance over here fast." I turned back to Mrs. Hill. I could see the baby's head had already entered the birth canal. "Okay, Mrs. Hill," I said, "take a deep breath and hold it and give a good push."

Most of the head was now in view, and I said, "That's fine, Mrs. Hill. Let's do that again, only push harder this time."

I prayed, "Almighty Father, this is Your creation I'm trying to help. Show me what to do."

The head was out. I reached for it, holding it softly but firmly at the back, and I turned the baby clockwise to allow the baby's shoulders to exit easier. I said, "Good, Mrs. Hill. This time, let's give a really, good push."

As the baby emerged, I took more and more of its little body into my hands, holding it above the bed. Bob came back into the room just as the baby came into the world. He said, "The ambulance is on the — my God, it's here!"

"Yes, it's a boy."
"Do they all look like that?" Bob asked.

The baby was dark blue. I said, "I don't know. I've never seen one this soon." Getting scared, I asked, "Will it be all right if I baptize the baby?"

"Yes, please," Mrs. Hill said. I hurried to the bathroom and moistened a cloth. At the bed, I squeezed a few drops on the baby's head and said, "I baptize you in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit."

At first I thought I had performed a miracle. The baby's body began to lighten to a more natural pink. Later I learned this happened to all babies, their color improving as their systems acquired oxygen.

As Bob and I were putting towels under Carol to make her comfortable, we heard the ambulance siren. The narrow hall prevented the use of a stretcher, so we sat Carol in a chair, the baby against her stomach, the afterbirth still in place, and this was the way she was taken down to the ambulance, Bob with her.

I paused to relive the wonder which had begun for me just seven minutes before. "Thank You, God, for using me, for giving me purpose."

It was 1:20 when I reached home. I went in by the side door and was met by the strong fragrance of overcooked beef.

In the kitchen Mary Ann had her back to me, clearly annoyed. "The steak is ruined, of course," she turned. "Where have you been?"

"To heaven and back," I told her. And I took her into my arms.

Senate passes works program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Brushing aside President Nixon's objections, a Senate committee voted 15 to 2 Wednesday to recommend a $1.75 billion public works program to put the jobless to work over the next two years.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., who sponsored the measure — identical to one Nixon vetoed last year except in a few minor details — said they hoped the Senate would approve the measure before month's end.

Under it, an estimated 150,000 unemployed workers could be hired immediately in local public service jobs. The bill would authorize $750 million for this in the first year after its passage and up to $1 billion would be available the second.

Their bill called for money to become automatically available for these public works jobs any time the national unemployment rate hit 4.5 per cent of the work force for three months in a row.

The current unemployment rate is 5.6 per cent. It has been higher than 4.5 per cent since about mid-1970.

A provision in the bill called for additional federal money to become available to states, counties and cities each time the jobless rate rose one-tenth of 1 per cent above the 4.5 per cent level.

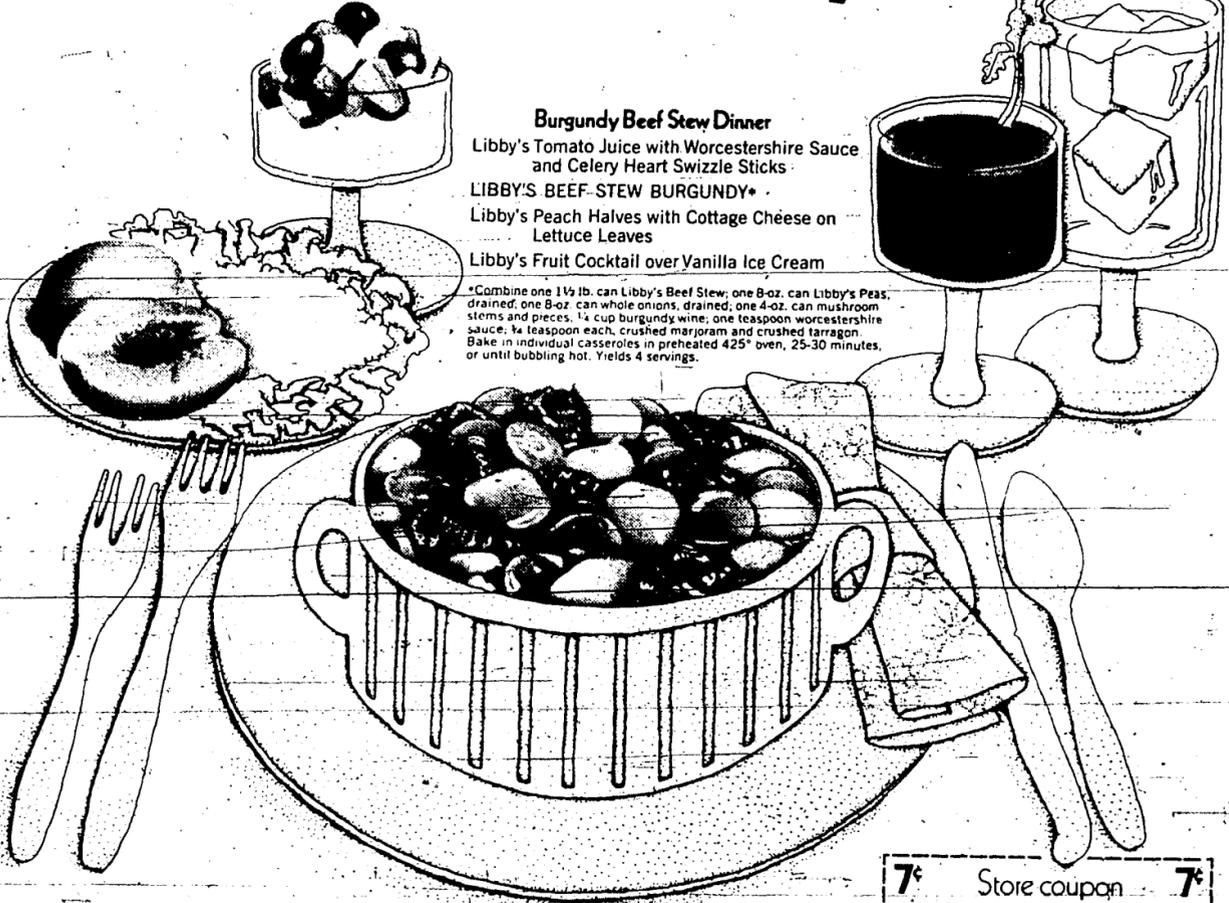

Javits and Nelson said there was vast need for workers in public service fields such as the environment, health, safety, education, recreation, pollution control, and waste removal.

But they said local governments did not have the funds to hire them.

Their bill would pay those taking public service jobs in these fields, the minimum wage, now $1.60 an hour, or the prevailing wage for similar work in that particular area.

Festival scheduled at Wendell

WENDELL — Members of foreign language classes in Magic Valley high schools and their teachers have been invited to attend a foreign language festival at Wendell High School April 4.

Lyn Fernworth, adviser for the school's French department, said the event will start at 7 p.m.

A play, written for the festival by Anne Lorraine Smith, will be presented in French, English and Spanish. Songs, poems, a puppet show, pantomime and Basque dancing will also be presented during the evening.

Fernworth said plans call for setting up a food booth for several nations and serving dishes from the various European countries represented at the festival.

Church blasts gas war treaty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A treaty that would ban germ and gas warfare, brought off the shelf after 45 years, encountered stiff Senate resistance once again Tuesday.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said he objected to ratification because of the Nixon administration's insistence that the pact does not bar combat use of tear gas and chemical herbicides.

Church's views are believed to be shared by several other Senate Foreign Relations Committee members and there is now some doubt whether the treaty can muster either a committee majority or the required two-thirds vote on the floor.

The administration has warned it will not sign the pact if the Senate interprets it to cover herbicides and tear gas.

The treaty, which the United States helped draft in 1925, was never ratified because of heavy lobbying by the U.S. chemical and munitions industry. It laid dormant until President Nixon — under pressure from members of Congress — resubmitted it and announced sweeping reforms of U.S. chemical — biological warfare policies, including the destruction of all germ warfare stockpiles and the renunciation of lethal gases except those for use in self-defense.

La Paz, Bolivia, is the highest capital city in the world, 12,000 feet above sea level.
