T.F. schools face building program

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Staff Writer
TWIN FALLS — "The people of Twin Falls must face up to a school building program, and an increase in school taxes. We have no choice."

With these words, George Staudaher, incoming superintendent of schools, outlined the crucial space problem in the Twin Falls district brought on by two unavoidable events — the closure of St. Edward's Catholic School this fall and the impending replacement of Washington School.

"We're at capacity right now in our classrooms," Staudaher told the Times-News. The addition of 310 students from St. Edward's will boost many classes beyond the size considered the maximum allowable for efficient teaching conditions.

With the normal growth anticipated in the district with families moving in, and families growing in size, complicated by the Washington School dilemma, a "building program" is the only alternative, Staudaher said.

Washington School, located at the strategically important North Five points intersection, has been the focal point of a long-brewing argument between the city and the Idaho Department of Highways.

The Highway Department has made plans to reconstruct the five-way intersection where Shoshone and Blue Lakes Boulevard meet. The plans involve widening of Blue Lakes Boulevard north of the intersection — a project that would carve away about half of the school.

The highway department met a storm of protest from Twin Falls citizens, and delayed the plans for some time. The plans are still in the "offing," however, Staudaher said, and replacement of Washington School may be the only solution. "That's a very dangerous intersection, anyway; it's a wonder someone hasn't been killed," Staudaher said.

Home today

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho's national runner-up basketball team will arrive home at 1:40 p.m. today at City-County Airport. The Golden Eagles will return by airliner from Hutchinson, Kan., where they placed second in the National Junior College Athletic Assn. tournament Saturday evening.

Fragment injures Hansen man

HANSEN — A Hansen man received serious injuries Saturday afternoon in an accident at a sawmill south of Hansen.

Bill Pullin, 32, was rushed by ambulance to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital after he was struck in the face and neck by a piece of flying metal.

Twin Falls County Sheriff's officers said Pullin was injured about 3:30 p.m. Saturday while working with Ray Graham at the sawmill owned by the two men.

They said a piece from a motor apparently broke loose and struck Pullin.

His condition was listed as "guarded" Saturday night.

Cyclist injured

HAGERMAN — A 16-year-old Twin Falls man was injured about 3:30 p.m. Saturday in a motorcycle accident south of Hagerman.

Gooding County sheriff's officers said Russ Cline was driving the motorcycle when the accident occurred. A passenger, Larry D. Muegerl, 23, was not injured, officers said.

Spring's here ...

PICNIC FOR two atop a slide at Cascade Park in Twin Falls was held Saturday by Stephanie and Eric Kahn, children of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Kah. They found the weather a little brisk for going costless, but warm enough to climb atop the platform for their first picnic of the season. Today is the first day of spring and scenes similar to this are sure to be seen often now that warmer weather appears to have arrived.

Cassia action pends

BURLEY — Now that the subdistricting legislation is on the books, the sponsoring Cassia County School District has no plans to use it.

The measure, signed this past week by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, allows a school district which operates four or more high schools to create subdistricts within the overall district.

The Cassia County district, operating four high schools throughout the county, reportedly sought the legislation and sponsored its introduction in the Idaho Legislature.

Harold Blauer, superintendent of schools, told the Times-News on Saturday that "What I'd like to see first is for the county to try one more district-wide building program before we go to subdistricting."

Blauer said he submitted three separate building programs to the board of trustees at the March meeting, but no action was taken. The district badly needs additional space, Blauer said.

However, the March 29 election to redraft the district's trustee zones "must come first," before any other action, Blauer said.

The superintendent said any decision to create subdistricts "would have to come from the board of trustees," and the people of the district.

"It's permissive legislation; it's there if we want to use it. But we have no plans at the present time," Blauer declared.

Special session next for solons

BOISE (UPI) — After a five-hour fight over legislative pay, Idaho's 41st legislature completed its first regular session Saturday and prepared for a special session on reapportionment at noon Monday.

Speaker William J. Lanting, R-Hollister, vetoed the House to adjournment sine die at 5:36 p.m. President Pro Tempore James Ellsworth, R-Leadore, rapped the final gavel in the upper chamber at 5:38 p.m.

In the waning minutes of the session, the House killed a $382,702 appropriation to the public employees retirement system by the simple expedient of leaving it hanging on the calendar.

When the Senate-approved bill came up for final consideration, Majority Leader Terry Crapo, R-Idaho Falls, successfully moved to put the bill into committee of the whole for amendment. But the House never went into committee of the whole.

Members said they took the action because the Senate earlier killed a similar bill which also included money for a public employees retirement office building.

If the retirement system is to be funded during the next fiscal year Gov. Cecil D. Andrus probably will have to amend his call for the special session to include it.

Andrus called the special session Saturday to consider legislative reapportionment, Congressional redistricting and political convention representation. It will start at noon on Monday and under the constitution can run for 20 days. Lanting said he believes it will require the full 20 days to get the job done.

Culminating the work of the regular session on the 69th legislative day, both houses bogged down in the final hours over an issue that has ridden with this legislature since its December organizational session — legislative pay.

With their action calendars virtually clear, the two houses addressed themselves to proposed constitutional amendments on legislative salaries and it took several party caucuses in both before they could agree.

House members wanted to remove the $10 constitutional daily limit and substitute a higher amount. Senators wanted to change the constitution to let the legislature set the pay scale for its successor.

Legislative leaders were concerned about the disagreement because Andrus approved a legislative compensation increase this session with the understanding the lawmakers would put the question before the people.

They finally comprised by proposing two constitutional amendments. One would provide for creation of a nine-member citizens' committee appointed by the governor to set legislative pay. The other would set their annual salaries at $1,500.

Mideast confab sought

NEW YORK (UPI) — Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban met for the first time Saturday with the new U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, George Bush, and urged again that there be a start of Arab-Israeli negotiations.

"I am happy to make the acquaintance of Mr. Bush," Eban said. "I think that the common values and interests of Israel and the United States come together at the United Nations. I don't agree with the tendency to sharpen our divergencies — our basic relationship is our deep interest in peace in the world."

"There is room for the Jarring mission to continue, for we believe that documents presented by the U.A.R. and Israel offer a road ... we have given a commitment concerning boundaries, and we believe that our position offers an opening for negotiations."

Festival to get Albion facilities

BURLEY — The City of Albion will allow the Oregon Trail Festival of Arts, Inc., to use all furniture and equipment now on the campus of the former Albion Normal School, according to Mayor Odeen Redman.

Redman said the city has no plans to reclaim the furniture, but will allow the new occupants of the campus to use it free of charge.

The Oregon Trail Festival of Arts, Inc., has signed a 99-year lease to use the Albion campus for an educational institution. Classes will start this summer, with creative writing a major item of study, according to festival officials.

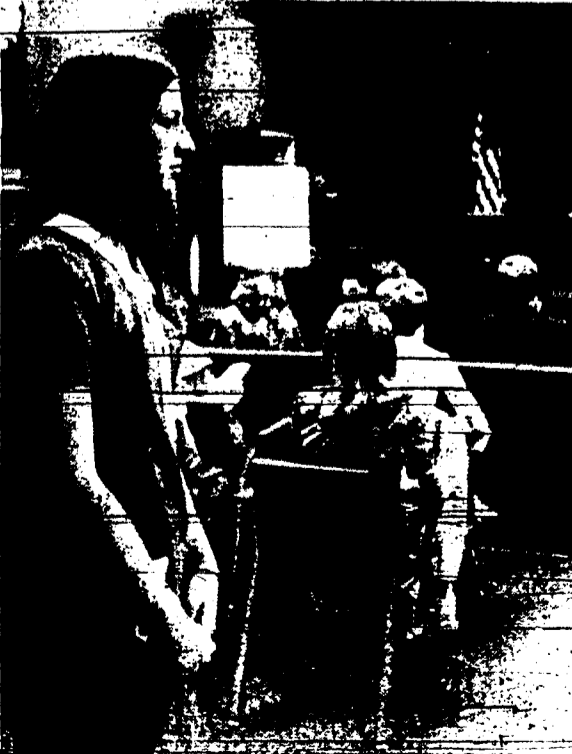

Perrine drilling planned

TWIN FALLS — Initial rock boring will begin soon at the site of the new Perrine Memorial Bridge, according to the Seattle engineering firm of Howard, Tammen, Needles and Bergendorf.

A spokesman for the company told the Times-News Friday that the comprehensive engineering studies needed to plan for the new four-lane structure will involve extensive testing of the rock foundation.

Heavy-duty drilling equipment will be brought to the site this spring to do the work, and will be the first evidence of the lengthy preparations for construction of the $8 million bridge, to be built upstream of the present two-lane bridge.

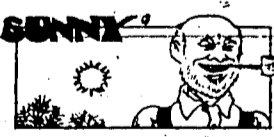

Engineering studies and drawing of the plans will require nearly two years before construction can begin, the engineering firm said.

Pollution bill passes

TWIN FALLS — Only two bills were carried through the full legislative process Saturday when the Magic Valley Youth Legislature met in session at the Twin Falls County judicial building.

One, introduced by youthful delegates from Burley, amended the Idaho code to read that "Minors are: males under 18 years of age."

The other dealt with setting up an Idaho water pollution control-enforcement committee within the Idaho State Board of Health. This was a bill which youth governor Carolyn Rhodes, Twin Falls, felt had exceptional merit and which she backed fully.

The committee, as defined in House Bill No. 1, introduced by the Declo delegation, would be set up as a control agency for all purposes of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act. The committee would include the secretary of the board of health and five members elected by the state legislature. None could be state officers or employees.

"The purpose of the committee," the bill stated, "is to enhance the quality of our water resources and to establish policy for the prevention, control and abatement of water pollution."

The bill called for a $300,000 annual appropriation from the state's general fund.

A bill which would require all people over 40 years of age to have a physical examination by a licensed physician was carried then, certify their ability to maintain a driver's license was passed by both the senate and the house but vetoed by Gov. Rhodes because of lack of a set standard for the physical or a guideline on how often the medical tests should be given.

The only memorial introduced, urged Congress to implement legislation making contraceptives available at no cost to any person above the age of 12. It was tabled after a lengthy debate in the senate.

Another bill which Gov. Rhodes was backing, but did not receive action, was one parallel to a bill just signed by Idaho's Gov. Cecil Andrus. The legislation makes a distinction between students and members of the legislature.

About 100 students from throughout Magic Valley participated in the session sponsored by the Magic Valley YM-YWCA. Former State Sen. George Blick of Castelford acted as special advisor to Gov. Rhodes.

Other officials of the teenage session were Scot Stanfield, Burley, lieutenant governor; Stan Preston, Declo, speaker of the house; Robb Jensen, Twin Falls, chaplain of the senate; Carl Crockett, Hamsen, chaplain of the house; Kris Anna, Pfler, secretary of state; Mac Knight, Kimberly, chief clerk of the house; Wayne Johnson, Burley, senate floor leader, and Chuck Daw, Hansen, house floor leader.

Viet forces flee major Laos base

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese troops abandoned their major tank base in Laos Saturday and fled bloody battlefields in U.S. helicopters flying through intense Communist antiaircraft fire.

skids but lost their grip and were reported killed when they plummeted hundreds of feet into steaming jungles. One pilot complained that the South Vietnamese were not protecting the U.S. helicopters as they landed and that American commanders were unnecessarily risking lives.

There was increasing evidence that the South Vietnamese offensive against North Vietnam's Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos was ended as advancing North Vietnamese were in the full stride of a counteroffensive to protect the military supply line. The size of the Army of the Republic of Vietnam (ARVN) task force was reduced to less than 15,000 men from a peak of 34,000. South Vietnamese troops, military sources said. U.S. and South Vietnamese commanders said the purpose of the campaign, now in its 41st day, was not to remain in Laos but to stage hit-run attacks against Communist supply points and get out. Communiques issued Saturday claimed great success for the offensive.

South Vietnamese headquarters announced that Artillery Base A Loui, 11 miles inside Laos, had been abandoned in "a tactical move." It had served as the major ARVN tank base for the 7th Airborne Division campaign. One hundred tanks and armored personnel carriers moved back toward South Vietnam.

The announcement said the South Vietnamese troops who had manned A Loui "were still in Laos" but he gave no details. But other ARVN units at Fire Base Brown, 2 1/2 miles south of A Loui, left Laos in a fleet of American helicopters which knifed through a curtain of Communist antiaircraft fire and flew them back to Khe Sanh, the big base on the South Vietnamese side of the border.

North Irish leader out

BELFAST (UPI)—Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark of Northern Ireland resigned Saturday night despite a last minute British effort to talk him out of quitting.

of the imperial general staff, Sir Geoffrey Baker, to Reinforce the plea. At Newry, 30 miles southeast of Belfast, Catholic demonstrators led by outful member of Parliament Bernadette Devlin dared Chichester-Clark to give in to rightwing demands for tougher measures against Catholic militants.

KHE SANH, South Vietnam (UPI)—A U.S. Army gunner whose helicopter was shot down in Laos was reported surrounded by Communist troops Saturday and directing air and artillery strikes against enemy forces only 10 yards from the jungle redoubt where he was trapped.

The helicopter pilot was killed in a burst of gunfire that brought down the craft. The pilot and one of the door gunners were killed by Communist snipers as they fled the wrecked helicopter.

The surviving door gunner, Ogburn said, dived into positions left by the South Vietnamese paratroopers. A second UH1 helicopter swooped into the base to pick up the gunner, but the pilot of that aircraft was driven off by Communist fire.

Chichester-Clark bowed to the demands of rightwing Protestant members of his ruling Unionist party who had clamored for his resignation, contending he was too soft on extremists and especially on measures to crush the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA).

"If they do, then they will know what trouble really is," Miss Devlin told a rally. "Let them try it. They can frighten us, jail us and shoot us. But by Christ, they can't stop us!"

The story of heroism was told by other helicopter crewmen who tried to rescue the stranded American. He was not identified under rules promulgated by U.S. headquarters.

The drama began Friday when Communist gunners shot down a U.S. Army UH1 Huey helicopter as it tried to land on a mission to pick up South Vietnamese paratroopers from an area in Laos four miles west of Lao Bao. Three of the four men aboard were killed.

The gunner radioed that the South Vietnamese were trying to walk out of the jungles. There were no further reports. U.S. headquarters in Saigon said it had no information on the man but a communique reported the loss of a helicopter with three men killed and one missing in action.

Field reports said nearly 300 Communists were slain by South Vietnamese troops and American air support in fighting over a 48-hour period around A Loui and Fire Base Brown. South Vietnamese losses were placed at 23 men killed and 185 wounded.

Florida ranks second to California in the number of motels and hotels within its boundaries.

More than 50 Americans have been killed in helicopter losses.

Sharon Slemmons, student teacher with Mrs. Gladys Boyd's fifth grade class said the youngsters of the room have completed numerous posters and window cards urging attention to the ecology of the community.

Anthony, an Army reservist, reportedly was on his way to a Reserve meeting at the headquarters in front of the Veterans Hospital grounds when the explosion ripped through his vehicle.

The IRA, banned on both sides of the border, has helped fan the traditional discontent into open hostility against both the Protestant majority and the 8,400 British troops stationed in Northern Ireland to keep the peace.

Mansfield defends coverage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield Saturday defended television network coverage of Southeast Asia and urged newsmen not to be "intimidated" by Republican charges of bias.

Chancey has been a member of the organization for a number of years and has attended convention sessions during the past several years. As a member of the Transportation committee, he will work with chairman, Edward Crawford, New York, and other members from various sections of the nation. The committee will review and recommend action on such matters as the proposed revenue sharing program, airport improvements, highway programs and other matters pertaining to public transportation.

Ralph Tabor, director of Federal Affairs will assist with the April 4 meeting in Washington.

Sharon Slemmons said the children in the class are talking about sending pictures and information on their work project to President Nixon.

T.F. skier manages U.S. team at 7th world games

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Staff Writer

TWIN FALLS — Early this winter, Gary Mortenson, Twin Falls, boarded a plane at the airport, flew from Idaho's snow-covered ski country to Adelboden, Switzerland and the Seventh World Winter Games of the Deaf.

On arriving in the heart of Europe's ski country, he found the Alps surprisingly short on snow and unlike Idaho, many resorts were closed. In the Adelboden area, he said, four of the seven ski resorts had closed and it was difficult for the American team to find practice area.

Gary, who previously had raced on the American team, this year served as team manager.

Americans made a good showing this year, although only one team member was able to bring home a gold medal, Mortenson said. Star of the American team proved to be an attractive young blonde from Massachusetts, Tamara Marcink, who won the gold medal with a combined first place time in two slalom events. She also won first place in one of the giant slalom events.

A Utah miss, Susan Stokes, placed fifth for the United States in giant slalom events, and seventh in the slalom. Mortenson said it was necessary to replace the downhill with a second giant slalom race because of the scarcity of snow. In the men's competition, he said, the United States team took a third place in the first event of slalom with several placing in the top eight. In the total event, the Americans took three medals.

Presentation of the medals by the president of CISS (International Sports Committee for the Deaf) Pierre Bernhard, was described by the Twin Falls delegate as an impressive ceremony. Every time a Swiss racer received an award, four giant bells were rung in honor of the sponsoring country's achievement.

Mortenson boarded a plane in Twin Falls Jan. 8, and on Jan. 7 he joined the 18 United States team members and officials for departure from New York City. The group flew to Amsterdam, Holland, and en route to Adelboden, Swiss ski and winter sports resort, they spent one night in Montreaux and visited the Castle of Chillon where Lord Byron, English poet wrote his poem "Prisoner of Chillon." In Adelboden, American team members felt at home when they checked into the "Hotel Nevada."

Here the team met contestants from 13 other countries and began preparing for competition. American skiers were dressed in colorful warm-up pants of stars and stripes with red, white and blue caps and sweaters.

Swiss and Italian racers took home most of the medals but Mortenson, said United States officials agreed the U.S. team had made a good showing.

Local skiers were impressed with the beauty of the area despite the unusual lack of snow.

On the way home the American team took time to visit other points of interest in Switzerland, Germany, and England. They spent one day in relaxed "fun" skiing in the famed resort at Zermatt in the shadow of the 14,780 foot high Matterhorn.

Mortenson said the meals served by restaurants in Switzerland were outstanding with different menus offered each day. Visitors were treated in royal fashion throughout their stay, he said.

The team members and officials spent 12 days at the Hotel Nevada and not one time did they have a meal duplication. Each main meal consisted of five courses.

The many dishes dished in each five-course meal caused some concern for hotel dishwashers.

"I told them we were here to ski and eat and the dishwashing was the problem of the hotel," Mortenson said.

During the CISS meeting following the games, bidding for the site of the World Games for the Deaf in 1975 resulted in a tie between the United States and Norway, with the United States winning a tie-breaking vote.

In 1975 the games will be held in Lake Placid, N. Y. Plans are being made, Mortenson said, to add events other than Alpine and Nordic skiing events with figure skating and ice hockey being considered. There must be at least three nations with athletes to participate in such an event before it can be added to the program, he said.

A United States official, Jerald Jordan, Washington, D. C., was elected new president of the CISS and Simon Carmel, also of the United States, gained a position as ski technical commission member.

Mortenson said between 2,500 and 3,000 deaf persons gathered in Adelboden for the games this year.

"There were 14 different sign languages among us, but it was not too difficult to understand one another. Mostly they spoke German and some knew quite a bit of English," he said.

On the way home, the United States team spent three days in Berlin visiting West Berlin, Checkpoint Charlie, Philharmonic Hall, Brandenburg Gate, Congress Hall, Castle Bellevue, Flotzensee, the memorial to victims of the Nazi regime and the Charlottenburg Castle.

At Checkpoint Charlie, Mortenson said, the fences between East and West Berlin were monitored by television cameras recording any suspected vehicle or individual. Members also spent three days in London.

DENVER (UPI) — Mountain Bell announced Friday increased earnings for the three-month and 12-month periods ending Feb. 28.

Robert Timothy, president of the massive public utility, reported earnings of 55 cents and $2.03 per share for the respective periods.

Earnings for the same periods last year were 52 cents and $2, Timothy said.

Operating revenues for the quarter ending Feb. 28 were $188.3 million, up $15.2 million over the year before, he said. Timothy added that operating expenses increased $11 million to $112.5 million for the same period.

The utility head also said that "strong" growth in telephone service continued. Nearly 50,000 new telephones were installed during the first two months of 1971, compared to 44,000 for the same period last year.

Long distance calls were up 15 per cent over 1970 for the first two months of the year, Timothy reported.

Pair, possibly 3 wars on in Laos

VIENTIANE (UPI) — There are two separate wars and possibly three going on in this country.

One revolves around the stymied peace talks between the government and Pathet Lao. The second involves Communists' desires to punish the Meo Tribe and Gen. Van Pao's army in the northeast for having fought so well for the Americans in the last five years. The third is of course a function of North Vietnam's need to secure the Ho Chi Minh Trail and South Vietnam's need to cut it.

The war in the north—around the capital of Luang Prabang—involves roughly six battalions of government troops defending the city and six battalions of mixed North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao attacking it.

There is an annual attempt to put pressure on Luang Prabang but this year the pressure is stronger. Possibly that is because the capital has been proposed by Souvanna Phouma as an alternative site to Communist-controlled Khang Khay for the Laotian peace talks.

Nobody thinks the Communists actually will try to seize the capital seat of King Savang Vathana, unless there is a radical shift in the military position all over Indochina.

Long Cheng is a different kettle of fish. There the Communists are trying, in the words of Pathet Lao Vientiane representative Soth Pethrasay, "to teach them a lesson that they can't use that base to attack the liberated areas" of Northeast Laos.

The lesson is being administered through a siege of Long Cheng, the Meo capital and its associated defense bases of Sam Thong, Ban Na and Pha Khao.

A new offensive launched by government forces this week apparently is intended to put pressure on the North Vietnamese all over North Laos by choking their major supply line, Highway 7 from Hanoi.

If it succeeds, it may lift the siege of Long Cheng and reduce the pressure against Luang Prabang as well. Even if it fails it probably will neutralize the Communist threat at least for the current dry season.

In the south the entire character of the war has been changed by the South Vietnamese incursion. Pressure on the Bolovens Plateau, south of the Route 9 area, has been nowhere near as strong as has been expected. The Communists have moved farther west along Route 9 this year than for many years in the past, but so far they represent no real threat to government forces.

It is possible that all their energies in Laos will be devoted counter attacking the South Vietnamese through the rest of this dry season.

As a result of the apparent military success of the current operation, it appears that Prime Minister Souvanna Phouma and his government are shifting noticeably to the right.

Gem land laws
office closed

BOISE (UPI) — The chairman of the Idaho Commission on Federal Land Laws has ordered the commission's secretary dismissed and the offices of the commission closed.

In a letter to the commission's executive director, John E. Martin, Chairman Herman J. McDevitt ordered Martin to terminate Mrs. Lydia Tippett, commission secretary, "instantly and close the office."

Martin was also told to deliver commission records and files to Robert Lenaghan, acting director of administrative services, who is to keep them until McDevitt can pick them up.

The letter to Martin, dated March 16, apparently was brought about by Mrs. Tippett's request for McDevitt's signature on a payroll summary sheet which showed her salary to be $327.25 and Martin's salary to be $1,100.

The letter to Martin said: "What is going on here? I thought this girl was to be paid by the hour. She hasn't done enough work this month to justify any salary, let alone this insinuation to me that she has $327.25 coming before the month is half over."

The letter Mrs. Tippett sent to McDevitt said the auditor's office required all payroll to be submitted no later than the 2nd of each month.

Copies of the letter were sent to all eight members of the commission, including the seven Democratic state senators named to the commission by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus in January.

McDevitt, who lives in Pocatello, sent the letter to Martin, who lives in Priest River.

Chemists seek better ways to process shale

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI)—The University of Wyoming chemical engineering department has been awarded $23,270 by the Bureau of Mines to find improved techniques of processing oil and gas from oil shale.

A recent study conducted as part of a prototype oil shale development program for Wyoming, Utah and Colorado concluded there was sufficient data and technology available to justify a program in Wyoming.

The study said such a program could have a "tremendous" impact on the state.

The recent grant will help finance a project first begun in 1967 to develop a knowledge of the kinetics and reaction mechanisms associated with the hydrogenation of shale gas oil so improved processing techniques might be found.

Seven graduate chemical engineering students and 12 undergraduates have been involved in the study. Project coordinator for Wyoming is Howard F. Silver while Howard B. Jensen of the Laramie Energy Research Center is coordinating the Bureau of Mines portion of the study.

Some two trillion barrels of oil are estimated to be recovered from the oil shale deposits in the three states once processing techniques are perfected. Wyoming alone has known oil shale deposits containing 430 billion barrels of oil.

A major problem associated with shale gas oil is presence of nitrogen and sulfur, which would become a source of air pollution if left in the heavy fuel oil. UW scientists have been able to remove some of the nitrogen and sulfur through use of catalysts.

The new grant will finance studies of using other compounds to seek more efficient catalysts in removing the nitrogen and sulfur.

Three sites in Sweetwater County were inspected by the recently completed "environmental and economic report on Wyoming oil shale."

One site was estimated to be able to yield about 200,000 barrels of oil per acre, another site was expected to yield about 180,000 barrels per acre while the third site was predicted to have an average yield of 100,000 barrels to the acre.

Ending tensions Germany's role, Brandt thinks obstacles... this is a task, no one can take on for us. We shall have to tackle it ourselves.

Rainer Brazel parliamentary leader of the opposition Christian Democrats, complains Brandt's "ostpolitik" (eastern policy) so far consists of unilateral concessions by West Germany with no matching moves by the Communists.

On the record, American and other Allied governments backed Brandt's policy without reservation.

But some Americans—among them Lucius D. Clay and John J. McCloy (the "founding fathers" of the West German republic), former Undersecretary of State George Ball, and reportedly one or more inside the White House—thought Brandt was moving too fast and perhaps weakening West Germany's links to the North American Treaty Organization (NATO) and the European community.

Brandt rejects, however, any suggestion he is wittingly or unwittingly bargaining West Germany's Western alliances against any kind of promised or actual deal with Moscow.

Helmut Schmidt, Brandt's peppery defense minister, told a Georgetown University audience in Washington in February the Atlantic Defense Alliance was essential to Bonn's "ostpolitik." Furthermore, one complemented the other.

The chancellor traveled

"... Only we can clear the way of a number of barriers and obstacles ..."

across the demarcation line to Erfurt on March 19, 1970, to meet East German Prime Minister Willy Stoph, and conferred with him again on May 21 in the West German city of Kassel. They were the first chiefs of government or even cabinet ministers of the two rival German states to come together in the 20 years since they were formed.

On Aug. 12, 1970, Brandt went to Moscow to sign a nonaggression treaty. He put his name to a similar contract with Poland in Warsaw on Dec. 7.

But Brandt made clear at each step that he would not ask parliament to ratify either treaty until and unless the Russians recognized the ties linking West Germany and East Berlin. The recurring Berlin crises which Brandt hoped to bring to an end were the result of Russian and East German challenges to these links.

Brandt's critics within the Nixon administration thought he should have withheld his signature of the Moscow and Warsaw pacts until American, British and French negotiations with the Russians about West Berlin had borne fruit. Some also feared that with Brandt's signature on the nonaggression treaty, Moscow would lose interest in reaching further arms limitation agreements with Washington.

But during his first few months in office, Brandt appeared driven by the fear that President Nixon, in keeping with his desire for a lowered profile and under Senate pressure, would begin large-scale unilateral troop withdrawals from Europe by mid-1971. Brandt felt he had to negotiate with Russia while his hand was still strong. The situation changed when the President gave an open-ended promise at the end of 1970 to maintain the American garrison in Europe at its current strength. By then Brandt had been to Moscow, Warsaw and Erfurt.

Russian actions seemed to confirm the Brandt analysis. Technical ministers from Moscow fanned out over West Germany and indeed all of Western Europe trying to put together consortia to building automotive and chemical factories and other industrial establishments. Directors of the Soviet state bank studied the possibility of establishing a branch in Frankfurt to help arrange the financing.

On the political front, however, the Russians and their allies remained unyielding. By late winter of 1971, Russia still was unwilling to give way on a single point in the Berlin negotiations, where delegates could not agree even on nomenclature. The East German regime, having broken off political talks with Brandt after the Kassel meeting, had resumed them again at the turn of the year. But two months later they still had not gone beyond the stage of "preliminary exchanges."

Despite or perhaps because of the parallel talks, the Communists stepped up their harassment of overland traffic across East Germany to and from West Berlin, and continued to widen and deepen the death strip on their side of the demarcation line, and shoot anyone trying to cross it.

Brandt was undimmed. At least the Russians were conferring with the Western powers about Berlin for the first time in a decade, and the West and East German governments were talking with each other for the first time. No one had expected a situation that had been totally cramped for 26 years to become unraveled overnight.

The chancellor says he will persevere despite all discouragements. As he had declared in his initial policy statement, "Our country needs cooperation and coordination with the West and understanding with the East." That is the goal of West Germany under Willy Brandt.

Germany called giant, midget

BONN (UPI)—"An economic giant, but a political midget," was a rueful complaint West Germans often made during the 1960s about their own republic.

Chancellor Willy Brandt's new "ostpolitik" (eastern policy) is an attempt to turn West Germany's economic strength to its political advantage.

He is using it in Western Europe to break through French objections to British membership in the Common Market, and to developing the Common Market toward a monetary union.

Brandt breaks barriers

BONN (UPI)—Willy Brandt, breaker of precedents, is the first Social Democrat to head a German government in 40 years.

Until he squeaked through to power in October, 1970, Germany's Social Democrats had been assumed by many experts to be a permanent minority party incapable of forming or leading a national government.

Brandt was forced to flee for his life when the Nazis came to power in 1933. When he was stripped of his German citizenship, he became Norwegian. But he returned to Berlin after the war and resumed his German nationality. Nevertheless, it was a shibboleth of German politics that no war-time refugee could become chancellor. Brandt broke the taboo.

Until the Social Democrats came to power, West German governments refused to recognize the existence of an East German state or to consider negotiating with its Communist leaders above civil service level. Brandt accepted the existence of two German states and opened negotiations with East German Prime Minister Willi Stoph.

The 57-year-old Brandt is no weakling who compromises just to avoid trouble. He demonstrated this mettle during years of crisis as mayor of West Berlin, shouting defiance at the surrounding Communist armies.

Report due

RUPERT—The Rupert Chamber of Commerce will hear a progress report on the proposed road connecting Rupert with Arco, chamber officials said Saturday.

The report will be presented at the regular Thursday noon luncheon meeting of the chamber at the Elks Club dining room.

A slide presentation will accompany the report.

Treaty records borders

BONN (UPI)—West Germany's nonaggression treaty with Russia is historic because for the first time Bonn formally recognized the borders drawn in Eastern Europe at the end of the fighting in 1945.

Critics complain its central section involves the recognition of one frontier which is neither West German nor Russian, and of another which is West German but not Russian.

But Brandt said there was no other way to liquidate the war and make a new start.

"I regard this treaty in certain ways as a final stroke and at the same time as a new beginning which enables our two states to turn their eyes to a better future," the chancellor said in a toast to Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin the night of the signature.

Meet called

RUPERT—The Rupert Chamber of Commerce rodeo committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the chamber office, Chamber President William Strasser said Saturday.

Markers changing color show icy roads, warn motorists

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Markers that will automatically change color to warn motorists of icy road conditions may be lining the world's highways within the next few years.

The new markers, developed by Batelle Memorial Institute's branch at Frankfurt, Germany, consist of luminous reflectors that change color as the air temperature lowers, thus informing drivers that slippery conditions are developing.

Dr. Peter Kuhn, a Battelle scientist from Frankfurt and one of the inventors of the device, said in an interview the reflectors could be mounted on existing guide posts.

The reflector would show green at temperatures above 45 degrees; yellow when temperatures reach 37 degrees, and, at lower temperatures, the color passes through orange to become red at 30 degrees.

"The development of the reflector was originally sponsored by a German advertising firm, which hoped to be able to use the concept (of changing colors) in billboard advertising," said Kuhn. "This, however, was discounted because the colors did not change rapidly."

Kuhn said the color changes prompted by temperature decreases take about one hour to occur.

"This will work to the advantage of the driver," said Kuhn. "If the color is red, signalling icy temperatures, it will be slow to change to green although the air temperature may rise rapidly."

"The slow color change will allow for the usually slow melting of ice even in temperatures above the freezing mark."

Kuhn said the reflector, composed of ground glass and a liquid, needs no power supply. By simply switching on high-beam headlights, even in daylight a driver need only look at the reflector to determine if ice-forming temperatures exist along the highway.

The price of the reflector would vary from country to country, the German scientist said, "but mounted at about 170-foot intervals, the cost would not even amount to about 10 per cent of the annual costs resulting from accidents caused by slippery conditions."

Biggest problem of car owners termed service

DETROIT (UPI)—Ask any automobile owner to name his biggest problem once the money to buy wheels has been lathered and he'll probably say "service."

There are thousands of auto owners who feel Detroit ignores them once it closes a sale.

The Big Three auto companies finally have closed ranks to do something about this growing discontent. Chrysler recently embarked on a person-to-person campaign to receive customer complaints and try to resolve them.

Ford started last fall by inviting dissatisfied customers to call Dearborn in a campaign which used as a theme "We Listen Better." General Motors recently opened a toll-free telephone line from the Chicago area to its Detroit headquarters so customers could phone complaints.

But Chrysler's campaign has a difference. It puts a face and a name in front of the corporation so the customer can communicate with live flesh instead of a computer.

The company calls him "your man in Detroit," and he is Byron Nichols, vice president for consumer affairs.

Chrysler's plan, tested in a pilot program in the Cleveland area, includes channeling of all consumer complaints and suggestions through Nichols, whose channeling of all consumer complaints and suggestions through Nichols, whose staff sorts them out as to type, then funnels them to the proper departments.

From there, the local dealer or company regional office is contacted to make an appointment for the customer to bring his car to the dealer for inspection and repair of what is wrong.

The program is designed to get action for the customer within three to seven days. After that is done, the program provides for a follow-up by the company. The customer is asked whether his complaint has been handled and if he is satisfied.

If not, another appointment is made for the dealer handling the problem. If that doesn't clear the problem, the customer will be sent to another dealer until the complaint is resolved.

John Ricardo, Chrysler president, says his main interest in the program is in "reaching those customers who, when they are dissatisfied, don't complain but just leave the company and buy other products." He figures there are more of this type than there are complainers. "We lose customers that way," said Ricardo.

Spoke helps shipping

TULSA (UPI)—Paper mills in the Mississippi and Arkansas valleys now can ship directly by water to Europe and compete right under the noses of the Finns, who dominate the European paper industry.

This has been made possible by expansion of the U.S. Inland Waterway system. A new spoke has just been added in Arkansas and Oklahoma that saves users of steel in the region $12 a ton and farmers $2 a ton on fertilizer.

The new spoke is the 440-mile Arkansas-Verdigris river canal from the Arkansas's confluence with the Mississippi to Tulsa. This canal could make Tulsa one of the biggest inland ports in the world. It already serves the largest territory of any inland port. Its creation not only has brought freight savings by waterway but has forced down the rates of competitive carriers.

For example, the railroads have slashed their rate on steel from Pittsburgh to Tulsa by $9 a ton.

John A. Creedy, president of the Water Transport Association, estimated during a recent visit to Tulsa that rate competition created in anticipation of the new canal had saved southwestern farmers $50 million over the past three years.

ingly, says the Army Corps of Engineers, which has primary responsibility for maintaining the inland waterways. The Corps reports that Arkansas exported 13,000 tons of coal to the Far East in the last four months. In the first year after completion of the barge port facilities at Little Rock, total cargo tonnage on the Arkansas River spurted to 3.4 million tons from 2.6 million the previous year. Opening the system northward to Fort Smith in 1970 brought a 25 per cent rise in haulage of bauxite and a 240 per cent spurt in steel transport. Grain haulage was up 193 per cent; chemicals 500 per cent.

The Corps of Engineers said overall tonnage on the system last year was three or four years ahead of original expectations.

The Engineers also said various industries have announced projected capital outlays of almost $900 million to build or enlarge plants along the system.

Sale tips

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—In buying bed linens, often the advertised bargains stores offer this time of the year, for best results follow these tips, suggests the University of Nebraska Extension Service:

Read the label. Buy the correct size for bed and pillows. Look for closely woven, even surface and firm selvage. Notice if hems are straight and with fine stitching. Be sure that corners of fitted sheets are reinforced. Avoid excessive "sizing." Replenish bedding regularly.

For the past year and a half, Oklahoma farmers have been able to ship wheat at 6 to 8 cents a bushel less than before, in spite of an inflationary economy.

Exports from the river ports already are growing astonish-

Observers hold keys to Mideast cease-fire

CAIRO (UPI)—The Austrian officer leaned back in the chair and puffed his pipe. "We are prepared for everything, but our influence is limited," Lt. Col. Gerhard Zoppoth said. "We can only try to arrange a cease-fire if they start shooting."

Zoppoth serves as the U.N. peace observer team's senior liaison officer with the Egyptian armed forces. It is his job to convince the Egyptians to silence their guns, if fighting against Israel erupts.

And despite his adopted low profile, a number of Western diplomats say the career officer and the 90 observers stationed along the Suez Canal could hold the key to war or peace in the coming weeks.

"The biggest risk right now is an accidental war that neither side wants," one diplomat said. "And, the observers are in the best position to prevent such a mishap from escalating."

In an interview at his headquarters in a fashionable suburb of Cairo, Zoppoth said accidents could be a dangerous element in the current de facto truce, but remained confident the observers would be able to soften their impact.

These officers from Argentina, Chile, Austria, Finland, France, Ireland, and Sweden are stationed on the canal have a big job. Three have been killed and five seriously wounded trying to do it since the team was created to police—but not supervise—the truce lines that emerged from the 1967 Middle East War.

Zoppoth was quick to note the limitations of the team, whose weapons against renewed hostilities are restricted to diplomacy and the cooperation of the combatants.

"We are only permitted to observe and nothing else," Zoppoth said. "We cannot impose a cease-fire on them."

This lack of authority has been one of the most telling factors about the team's role since it was created.

Whenever the two sides have wanted peace since then, the observers have been effective. They became virtually powerless, however, when the situation degenerated into the so-called war of attrition that preceded the first formal cease-fire last August.

Subsequently, the observers recovered from this low ebb to prevent several minor violations from escalating out of control. They also sought to avoid misunderstandings by convincing the two forces to give them advance warning of any unusual military activity so they could inform the other side.

Rusted, broken guns stand as war symbols

SHARM EL SHEIKH (UPI)—The two Egyptian 12-inch guns stand rusted and broken as littered symbols—stained with graffiti—of a war that was and one that could be again.

They are deserted now, these two hulks of steel the Egyptians moved onto this southern tip of the Sinai Peninsula to close off the Strait of Tiran, precipitating the 1967 Middle East War.

The Egyptians had one aim in mind—to deny Israel access to the Red Sea and to block its "back door" port at Eilat on the Gulf of Aqaba. The U.N. peace-keeping force pulled up stakes at Egypt's behest and the guns came in.

In the tracks of the Israeli troops who captured this sandspit promontory has sprung up a tourist spa attesting to the permanence Israel attaches to its presence at Sharm el Sheikh.

There are two motel-like complexes, with small house trailers or cabins for sleeping and communal showers, and a third is going up on one of the two blue fingers of water jutting into the desert sand.

None of the main tourist attractions—the picture postcard-tropical fish, the clear sky, the beaches, the sun—betray the key this place holds to peace in the Middle East.

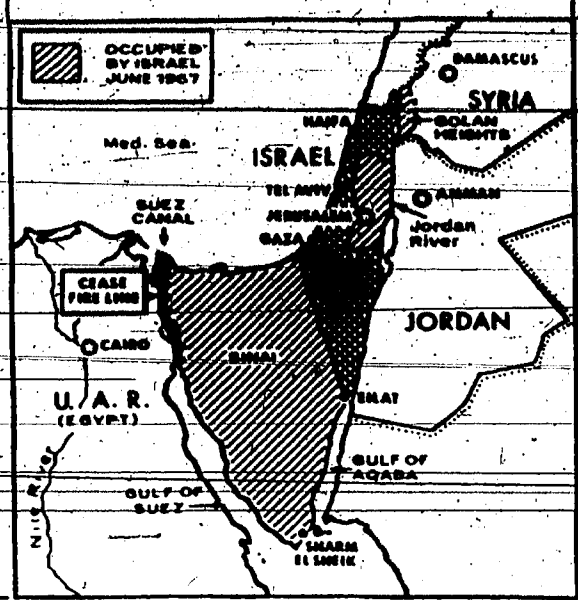

But the constant snarl of earthmovers and bulldozers digging the Israeli roots deeper, the off-limits military installation that may not be photographed, the vast airfield and the old Egyptian guns do.

Two-hundred yards down the coast is the site the U.N. troops, Yugoslavs, abandoned at the late Egyptian President Nasser's request, thereby opening the way for the Egyptian blockade.

It serves as a reminder to Israelis from Prime Minister Golda Meir on down that, as she says, "The international guarantees we have known taught us—and this is what we are proud about—that we can depend only on ourselves."

No withdrawal from Sharm el Sheikh. This is one of the pillars of Israel's bargaining position. Moshe Dayan: "I would rather have Sharm el Sheikh without peace than peace without Sharm el Sheikh."

An Israeli ship passing through the Strait of Tiran, from the Red Sea to the Gulf of Aqaba, bound for Eilat, is the reason why. So, too, do ships bound with ammunition for Jordan use the strait as a gateway to Aqaba.

Trouble spots

MAP of the Middle East shows key trouble areas in the outgoing dispute on the fate of territory occupied by Israel during the 1967 war. Strained relations with the U.S. took a turn for the worse when Israel rejected U.S. pleas to withdraw from the occupied territories. (UPI)

Matching funds asked

BOISE (UPI)—The House Appropriations Committee introduced Friday a bill imposing a one and one-half mill ad valorem tax to provide matching funds for federal public assistance activities.

The revenues are to be collected in the same manner and at the same time as all county taxes and deposited in a public assistance fund to be created in the state treasury.

These revenues then are to be appropriated to the Department of Public Assistance on a continuing basis to supplement the amount now paid by the state to licensed nursing homes at the minimum rate of $1.50 per patient.

South Africans asking West for social help

LONDON (UPI)—The lieutenants of the late Chief Lutuli, the Nobel Peace Prize-winning president-general of the African National Congress, are turning to the West to help finance vocational training, libraries and social welfare in South Africa.

M.B. Yengwa, a black South African lawyer with a long history of political imprisonments, banishments and restrictions at home, is about to go on a world tour to collect money for a new memorial foundation dedicated to the Rhodesian-born chief's ideals of democracy.

Yengwa, the son of a peasant farmer, is director of the new Lutuli Memorial Foundation launched in London and Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, with an initial budget of $1,800,000 under the sponsorship of such statesmen as President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania.

The foundation's aims are strictly limited to financing cultural and welfare projects for the peoples of Southern Africa. Nevertheless, it is pregnant with political implications for the West.

As one of the sponsors of the foundation has warned, the guerrilla organizations of South Africa have been for many years neglected by the West—and thus forced to turn to the East for financial backing and training in ideology as well as arms. The foundation may now widen the meager Western support.

Comfortably settled in North London, the 47-year-old director of the foundation appears more like a relaxed suburbanite than a member for two decades of the national executive council of a fighting organization.

Yengwa was perhaps the closest associate of Chief Lutuli as a neighbor. He recalls, "We shopped in the same town of Stanger—Dukuza in Zulu—famous as the place where Shaka, the Zulu king, was killed and now famous as the place where Chief Lutuli was killed. I knew him even better when he became president of the ANC (African National Congress) in Natal and I became its secretary."

Briefly, the foundation intends to finance a program of scholarships and bursaries for students from Southern Africa as well as a major vocational school to be placed somewhere in Africa north of the Zambezi to counter the crippling apartheid in technical training in the south.

The projects include an emergency fund for a welfare program; a library to be established at an African university to form the nucleus of scholastic material on the history of South Africa and its democratic movements, and an information center to generate books, films and lectures on Chief Lutuli and the cause to which he devoted his life.

Chief Lutuli was killed in a train accident in 1967. He was born near Bulawayo and trained as a teacher. His 15 years as leader of the ANC were to prove the most critical in the history of the organization. He was banned, banished and finally imprisoned. Cut off in a remote village in Natal, his organization outlawed, his colleagues jailed or in exile, he continued to grow in stature to become a symbol of the mass movement for universal democratic rights in South Africa.

AN EMPTY FIELD today will become an attractive new building at the College of Southern Idaho, when the vocational-technical building is completed early next year. CSI project start set contractors for the $500,000 project. No formal groundbreaking ceremonies are anticipated, Neilsen said. CSI President Dr. James L. Taylor has been out of town most of the week, and could not be reached for comment.

TWIN FALLS — The contract has been signed, plans have been drawn and construction of the new vocational-technical building at the College of Southern Idaho will start early Monday morning, according to Ray Neilsen of Neilsen-Miller,

Construction of the new building, which will consolidate the CSI vocational and technical classes on the growing campus, will take about a year, Neilsen said. When complete, the structure will replace the vocational school presently located on Kimberly Road. The vocational school is financed with college funds, state education department grants and federal office of education financing in a three-way contract.

Senate passes $44 million Idaho school appropriation

BOISE (UPI)—Despite cries the money wasn't enough, the Senate beat off an attempt today to amend the appropriations bill for public education and passed 34-1 the measure giving schools $44 million from the general fund.

Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, warned any increase to the appropriation would mean a tax increase.

But Sen. John Evans, D-Malden, who moved to amend the measure upward, warned the majority "you're $2 million in the red right now" on the $125 million general fund budget.

Evans, whose motion to amend the bill was defeated 14-21, pointed out lawmakers in both chambers had defeated some of the revenue-raising measures suggested by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus and had held others in committee.

"So don't plead poverty to the people of Idaho today," he said. "You've had plenty of suggestions and guideline and you've refused to move."

Sen. Ray Rigby, D-Rexburg, suggested the appropriations measure be accompanied by a letter of intent "so the money we're appropriating in this year of scarcity will go to the teachers themselves and not to frill programs."

"I think the statistics are clear—that we are at the bottom of the totem pole and whatever we're giving our teachers it isn't enough."

Main points of contention during the debate were the lack of equity in the present distribution program, dissatisfaction with the general fund appropriation, and questions over the amount of revenue actually available to the state.

High maintained the legislative auditor—who said some $116 in revenue can be expected for fiscal year 1972 rather than the $114 million Andrus said is available—is accurate since his figures ran through January and Andrus was basing his figures through October.

Sen. C.C. "Cy" Chase, D-St. Maries, said there was "no question in my mind if we'd set our minds to it we could have...tightened up on some of the general fund agencies and put it into public schools."

But Sen. Wayne Kidwell, R-Boise, maintained the appropriation outlined by the joint committee for schools is higher than the one recommended by Andrus if the $2.8 million for kindergartens is deleted.

"Attempting to pull the bacon out of the fire at this last minute...I don't think will sell."

Sen. Darrell Manning, D-Pocatello, said under the present formula for distributing funds to schools "you put the money in the top and it is slowly bled off on the way down."

He said the present distribution system "implies those who are rich should have a better education than those who live in poor districts."

SST backers seek new ways to put giant plane on wing

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Appropriations Committee approved continued federal financing of the supersonic transport plane (SST) Friday, but supporters fearful of final defeat on the Senate floor quietly sought alternative ways to keep the embattled program alive.

The day after the House voted 215 to 204 to end federal support for SST development as of March 30, the White House expressed hope the Senate would reverse its own opposition of last year and vote to keep federal money flowing into the $1.7 billion project.

But Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler told newsmen that if the Senate defeated the measure again, other means of financing construction of two SST prototypes probably would be sought. "Our position is that the SST prototypes should be developed," Ziegler said.

The Senate Appropriations Committee, by a 17-5 vote, approved the bill to provide an additional $134 million for the plane in the last three months of the current fiscal year, ending June 30. Congress last year consented only to stopgap financing until April 1.

The Senate agreed to take up the issue next Tuesday and set the showdown vote for 4 p.m. EST Wednesday. If the Senate follows the lead of the House and rejects the SST again, said Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, "I would say that would be the end of it."

Last year the Senate defeated Nixon's request for a full year's financing at $290 million by a vote of 52 to 41, and the latest informal UPI poll of sentiment among the senators indicated that the decision next week will be extremely close. The outcome, it appeared, may ride on the votes of a handful of senators.

The survey showed 48 senators announced or believed to be privately opposed to the SST—17 Republicans and 31 Democrats. Those similarly for continued financing totaled 46 senators, 25 Republicans and 21 Democrats.

Although their positions were unknown, two Democrats were believed to be leaning in favor of the plane, Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, Minn., and Joseph M. Montoya, N.M. Believed to be leaning against further financing were two Republicans—Sens. Margaret Chase Smith, Maine, and John Sherman Cooper, Ky. Sens. Karl Mundt, R-S.D., and B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., were expected to be absent because of illness.

Ziegler said that if the Senate delivers the final blow to the SST for the rest of the fiscal year, "I assume that a number of suggestions will be forthcoming on how to deal with this."

Both industry and congressional sources were reluctant to admit it in advance of the Senate vote, for obvious psychological reasons, but it was known that contingency plans have been under discussion for some time to keep the program afloat, in the event Congress balks at further federal support.

Proposals have included a consortium of the major aerospace companies to raise money, or borrowing from banks and other institutions by the Boeing Co. of Seattle, the prime contractor for the airframe.

But reliable industry sources said current discussions center on the proposed sale of government-guaranteed bonds to private investors, or government-guaranteed loans. The latter idea has the greatest support, but both proposals would require congressional approval.

Agency study set

BOISE (UPI)—The House State Affairs Committee introduced a new bill Friday to create a department of ecology but its chairman said the action simply was to provide a vehicle for study the next year.

Chairman H. Ferd Koch, R-Boise, said his committee has studied the measure at length and proposed a number of amendments to it. Rather than confuse the legislature with page after page of amendments it was decided to engrass these into a new bill and introduce it.

There is a concurrent resolution calling for an interim study of the proposed new department and the effects it may have on the health and other departments of state government.

By introducing this bill, Koch said, the interim committee will have a measure to study and the bill can be printed and distributed around the state.

Travel agency to open

TWIN FALLS — A former airline stewardess and world traveler, Patty Summerfield, and a well-traveled, knowledgeable Twin Falls woman, Betty Muldowney, will open Twin Falls' newest business, a travel agency, in mid-April.

Mrs. Summerfield, who has worked in the classified advertising department of the Times-News for the past year, was affiliated with Western Airlines as a "ground-bound" sales agent and as an aerial stewardess for four years previously. She has flown throughout Western Airlines' extensive network of routes, and honeymooned in Australia after her recent marriage.

Mrs. Muldowney, wife of the former publisher of the Times-News, also has extensive travel experience. Their agency, the American World Travel Agency, will be located at 117 2nd St. W., in Twin Falls.

The agency will work as a branch office of American World Travel of Boise, operated by Joyce Ward.

"We will offer tours and travel to everywhere—and then some," Mrs. Summerfield said. "We aim to serve our traveling public in the best way possible."

A grand opening will be scheduled in the near future, with representatives of airlines on hand from Los Angeles, Seattle and San Francisco, Mrs. Summerfield said.

No 'mod squad' for Salt Lake

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Salt Lake City's Police chief doesn't want people to think he plans to start a "Mod Squad" just because the city attorney says he can use minors in undercover work.

"We most certainly are not interested in anyone publicity-motivated," Chief Calvin C. Whitehead said Thursday.

He said persons under age 18 would be used in narcotics cases only after much planning, and said the force would not employ any of the teen-agers as police.

A city attorney said Wednesday that minors could be used to buy narcotics and other drugs with the consent of a parent or guardian.

Asst. City attorney O. Wallace Earl said children age 6 and older, would be considered competent to testify in court on drug, pornography or liquor buys.

Whitehead asked for the opinion three weeks ago and after it was presented Wednesday the City Commission ordered it filed.

Some youngsters have volunteered to be undercover agents for the police since he raised the possibility a month ago, Whitehead said.

Police have broken up pot parties and prosecuted offenders in the past acting on tips from young people, but this has not been effective in catching drug pushers, the chief said.

We Feel NOW — after 3 years of extended research on varieties that would mature exactly at the same time (2 of these varieties are not normally raised in this area).

These SS36 short mixed Grain Seed are adaptable to ALL AREAS of Magic Valley... as proved by 16 farmers with over 350 acres planted last year.

EQUAL OR BETTER YEILDS can be expected than the taller mix grains P L U S... these SS 36 Mixed grains are ideal for cover crop with alfalfa seed or grass seed. (Not one failure this last year with SS36 Short Mixed Grains) ... BUT there were failures with the taller mixed grains.

MATURITY 1 to 2 weeks earlier with SS36 Short Mixed Grains than with taller mixed grains — NO LODGING.

Only available this year through Globe Seed & Feed Co. due to quantity available.

TWIN FALLS — George Haney Jr., Joe Clements and Derald Fitzsimonds all of Twin Falls, have been named the "Key Three" men of Scouting in the Southside District, Snake River Area Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Haney, as the district committee chairman, is responsible for all phases of Scouting in the Southside district. He works with the other "key" men in all phases of Scout work, according to Darl Gled, council Scout executive.

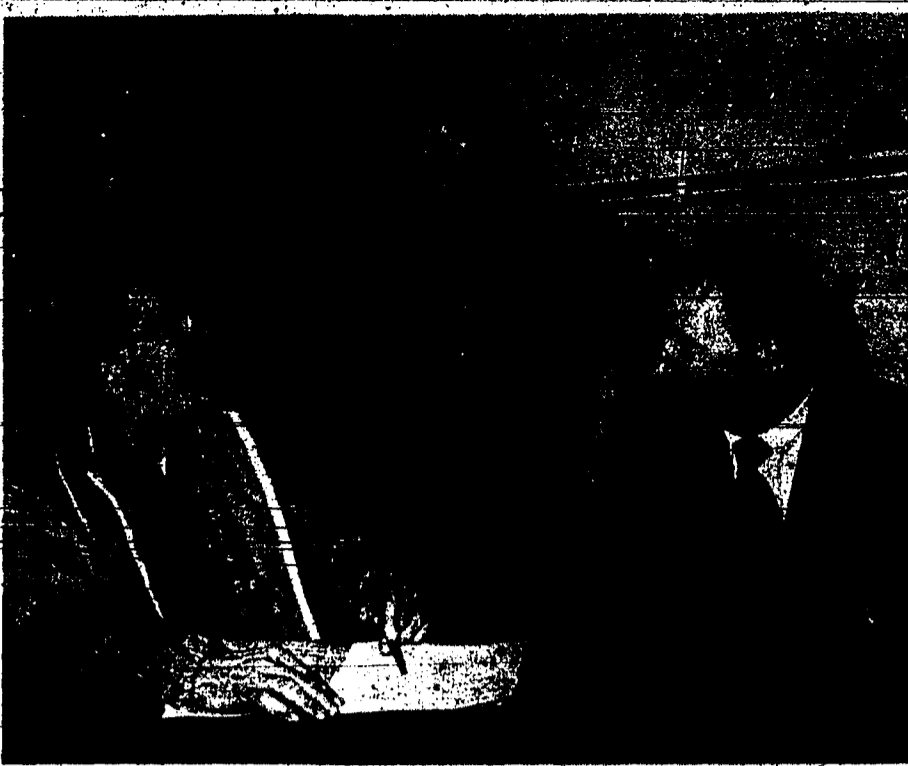

Clements, as district commissioner, is responsible for the recruitment and supervision of a staff of neighborhood commissioners and the operation of the quarterly roundtable discussions.

The major concern of the commissioner and his staff is the development of a high-quality Scout program.

Fitzsimonds, as district executive, is responsible for the total operation of the Scouting program in the district. He helps plan recruitment, training and motivation of volunteer leaders, and maintains a district office at the council headquarters in Twin Falls.

Other Southside Scout officials for 1971-72 include John Massey J. Hamilton Smith and Bill Glaze, all Twin Falls, vice chairmen of the district; Leo Campeau, Twin Falls, chairman, advancement committee; Robert C. Bruce, chairman, camping committee; Roger Marsh, chairman of the activities committee; Elvis Cain, chairman, finance committee; Bill Stover, chairman, leadership training committee; Joe Marshall, chairman of the exploring committee; Charles Stuart, chairman, organization and extension committee, and John Carlson, chairman of the public relations committee.

MAJ. JAMES DAYLEY

BURLEY — Maj. James H. Dayley, former Burley resident, has received a meritorious service medal from the U.S. Air Force. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Dayley, Burley.

Dayley is stationed at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, and is a development engineer with the Military Airlift Command.

From July, 1968, through December, 1970, as commander of the 1st Geodetic Communications and Electronics Squadron at Forbes Air Force Base, Kan. Maj. Dayley, through his outstanding technical and management ability, judgment and initiative contributed greatly to the successful accomplishment of the worldwide cartographic and geodetic mission of the Military Airlift Command.

Maj. Dayley graduated from the Burley High School in 1952 and received his B.S. degree in zoology in 1956 from the University of Utah. He entered the Air Force in 1956.

BURLEY — Army Staff Sgt. Jess F. Spencer, son of Mrs. Susie Spencer, has been assigned to the 62nd Signal Co. near Chu Lai, Vietnam. He is a lineman. His wife, Louise, lives at Collinsville, Okla.

TWIN FALLS — Army Pvt. Robert A. Fender, Jr., has completed eight weeks of basic infantry training at Ft. Ord, Calif. His wife, Sandra, lives in Twin Falls.

TWIN FALLS — Air Force Staff Sgt. Curtis E. Gossett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Herbert E. Gossett, Twin Falls, has been stationed at Ching Chuan Kang Air Base, Taiwan. He is a communications specialist and was previously stationed at Lake AFB, Ariz.

English teachers set meet

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Council of Teachers of English will hold a Region 4 Language Arts Conference at the Twin Falls High School March 27, reports Mrs. Gem Howard, head of the English department at the local school.

Keynote speaker will be Dr. James E. Goodwin, Idaho State University, Pocatello, who will discuss positive and negative instructional techniques in teaching of English.

Melba Barnett, Highland High School, Pocatello, will discuss "Composition - Punishment or Pleasure." Following a business meeting and lunch in the cafeteria, Mrs. Delores Dudley will speak on creative writing. She teaches in the Twin Falls High School.

Mrs. Howard will describe her recent unit study on "Huckleberry Finn Opens a Door to Black Literature."

All English teachers in the area are invited to attend. Participants are asked to enter at the front entrance of the high school as the conference will be held in the new wing, and another group is meeting in the gymnasium, Mrs. Howard said.

Mrs. Dudley and Esther Whiting, Rupert, directors of the organization, will introduce speakers.

Restored funding reviewed

TWIN FALLS — The Tri-County Head Start board of trustees discussed use of funding which has been restored by the Office of Economic Opportunity, parent agency of the Head Start programs, in a board meeting this week in Twin Falls.

The federal agency had earlier trimmed Head Start funding by 7.5 per cent but recently pledged to restore the "lost" funds, when federal allocations were announced. The three-county Head Start board must make recommendations on use of the funds to the Tri-County South-Central Community Action Agency board, which in turn will make the final decision. The CAA board operates the Head Start programs in Jerome, Cassia and Twin Falls counties.

Anna Kaster, Head Start director for the CAA, said the increased funding will allow restoration of high-quality instruction in the Head Start activities in the three counties.

Heavy work ahead

Special session set

Last Nov. 3, the people approved an initiative which cut legislative expenses to $25 per day from $35; set limits of 60 days on the first session and 30 days on the second and eliminated the $200 per month office allowance.

Monday, the legislature returns for an extraordinary session on legislative reapportionment, congressional redistricting and political conventions.

Contending they could not live on that plus their constitutional salary, the lawmakers provided a $10 per day "second home" allowance for legislators residing outside Ada County, took the limits off both regular sessions, and provided $3.50 per day interim expenses.

School board plans vote on trustee

FILER — Filer School District No. 413 will hold a trustee election May 4 and on the same date will hold the annual school budget hearing. Lawrence Knigge of District 3 is seeking re-election as trustee. He has completed one three-year term.

Richfield to purchase school items

RICHFIELD — New hot lunch equipment will be purchased for the Richfield school, including a meat grinder, salad-maker electric griddle, can opener and food mixer, according to School Superintendent Neil Andreason.

The polls will be open from 1-7 p.m., May 4 at the Filer High School. The vote is limited to residents of that trustee district.

Murtaugh group sets deadline

MURTAUGH — Florin H. Hulse, recently elected president of the Murtaugh Water and Sewer Association, said Saturday that April 15 is the deadline for membership in the Murtaugh Project.

Highway district calls job bids

FILER — The Filer Highway District will receive sealed proposals until 8 p.m., April 13 for the laying and fogging of approximately two and one-quarter miles of bituminous road mix, and three and one-half miles of seal coating of roadways within the district.

Coors expands barley planting over valley

GOLDEN, Colo. — About 15,000 acres of farmland in Cassia, Jerome, Minidoka and Twin Falls Counties will be planted in late winter to Moravian brewing barley, grown for Adolph Coors Co., and expected to yield about $2.2 million to the 1971 southern Idaho economy.

Other sub-contractors include Wright Construction, Heyburn, concrete foundation work; Rupert Iron Works, Rupert, miscellaneous steel; and Dairy Electric, Burley, electrical work.

The completed storage facility will be 900 feet long, 110 feet wide and 45 feet high at the peak. It will have a capacity of 3 million bushels. The building will be divided into two 420-foot, thermally-protected compartments with a 60-foot machinery bay, between.

The new Moravian barley seed, which will be planted extensively this year in both Idaho and Colorado, was developed from a single superior seed selected from the Coors malthouse in 1961.

Restraining order issued against rendering plant

TWIN FALLS — Residents of Buhl who brought court action against Cascade Commodities Corp. and Mel Carter, company official and former owner of the firm when it operated as Carter Packing Co., won a temporary restraining order in Fifth Judicial District Court here Friday against the plant.

In the show-cause hearing before Judge James M. Cunningham Friday morning, attorneys Ted Behm for the plaintiffs and Ronald Carter for the defense, stipulated that the plant does emit "nauseating odors" and the odors "do cause a nuisance to residents of the community."

while installing costly equipment which would prevent the process from spreading the unpleasant odors.

He told Judge Cunningham he felt the immediate closure of the plant would cost the company about $15,000, as contracts now in effect could not be filled and it would probably be necessary to hire new employees.

Carey Scout earns medal

TWIN FALLS — A Boy Scout from Carey, Kay Adamson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adamson, was awarded the National Medal of Merit by the Snake River Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, during the annual awards banquet Friday night in Twin Falls.

Lawrence Ruebel, Jerome, and Don C. Anderson of Twin Falls, Young, as guest speaker, spoke on his experiences in Scouting, the history of Scouting in America and the honor of being a Scout.

Blaine bureau formed

BELLEVEUE — Publisher Al Westergren announced today creation of a full-time Times-News bureau office here to provide intensive coverage of Blaine County.

Ketchum repaid $65,300

KETCHUM — The fourth grant dispersal by the Economic Development Administration was presented to the City of Ketchum Friday in the form of a $65,300 check as reimbursement for the city's new sewage-treatment plant.

The total cost of the sewer plant was about $1.35 million. Of the total, 42.5 per cent was financed by the EDA and the Federal Water Quality Administration. The remaining funds were provided through general obligation bonds and local improvement district funds.

This session of the legislature probably conducted more hearings on proposed legislation than any other in state history. Three and four nights a week in addition to afternoon and morning hearings — committees met to take testimony.

Corless was honored for his activities in church work and in Scouting. He and Patterson have both served as City Councilmen in their respective communities and in civic activities. Both are members of their communities' Kiwanis Clubs.

Westergren announced the appointment of experienced newsmen Warren Gossett as bureau chief.

Council to amend budget for park plan

WENDELL — City council members of Wendell announced late Friday afternoon they will amend the temporary 1971 city budget to allow for development and improvement of McGinnis Park.

At the same time, the legislature admitted that its work still was not done in many of these and other areas and ordered a number of continuing interim studies.

Anderson is also an active church leader, PTA officer and has been active in Scouting for 20 years.

Gossett, 29, has been a journalist for four years, working with the Times-News and at the Standard-Examiner in Ogden.

Company spokesmen also report construction is "on schedule" at the $1.5 million, 95,000-square-foot barley

Ed Edmund, vice president-engineering for Adolph Coors Co., has indicated that the first unit of the new storage building will be completed in late 1971. Moravian barley grown for Coors by Idaho farmers in 1971 will be transferred to the building after temporary on-farm storage.

The facility will include four storage silos with a combined storage capacity of 2.5 million pounds of cleaned and treated seed.

Declo Lions to sponsor unique game

DECLO — The Declo Lions Club and the school faculty will sponsor a donkey basketball game at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Declo school gymnasium, with the proceeds going toward the scholarships and football field equipment.

Airline merger would favor city

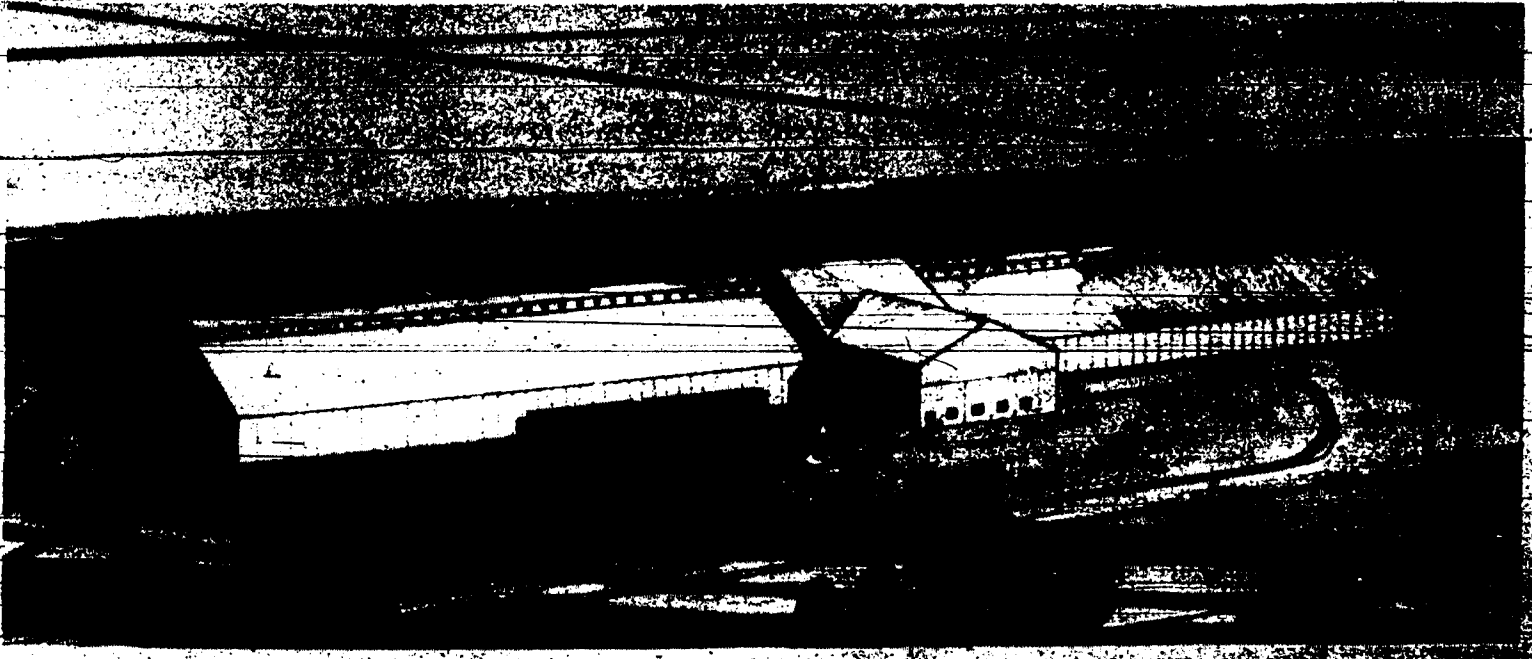

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The proposed merger of Western Airlines with American Airlines could make the Salt Lake International Airport an important hub for the new company.

Stockholders of American and Western Friday approved the merger of the two carriers during special meetings in Wilmington, Del. and Beverly Hills, Calif.

Warren has moved to Bellevue with his wife Betty, son Eric, 3 months and daughter Kimberly, 1 1/2 years. Warren can be reached at 788-4464 or at the River Road Trailer Park in Bellevue.

Budget hearing set

SHOSHONE — The budget hearing for the City of Shoshone will be held at 8 p.m. Monday at the City Hall.

Storage unit

MORAVIAN barley storage facility being built by Coors Co. west of Burley will hold 2.5 million bushels of barley. Estimated cost, $1.5 million. 95,000 square foot capacity. Construction due 1971.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ADKINSON

Home gardeners who want to have the first tomato in the neighborhood will tell you that potted tomatoes help produce earlier fruit.

You can start your own potted tomato, or buy them from your local garden store. Seed is placed in various types of pots: paper plant bands, clay pots, peat pots, manure pots, Jiffy 7 pellets, or a gadget known as BR-7 blocks. Roots grow through the porous walls of all these pots (except the clay types) and you set out pot and all, with no transplanting shock.

Potted tomatoes may grow tall and have blossoms at transplanting time. Some gardeners remove the open blossoms before setting out the plants, other leave them alone. Don't worry about the tiny green tomatoes that might be on the plant. They'll develop into big husky fruit.

Most home gardeners find that if their plants are started too early (say in February), they become lanky by the time planting season rolls around. Don't worry about the length of stem. You can set them into the ground deeply and they'll form roots all the way up the stem. When the plant takes hold you'll see it practically jump.

NOTE: When you set out potted plants, it's a good idea to break the pot gently (without disturbing the roots), so that the roots will grow directly into the garden soil. We've found that if the peat pot goes dry, roots will sometimes actually curl up inside the pots, instead of growing out through the organic container.

Another word of caution: Keep in mind there are early, midseason and late tomatoes. If you live in a region where frosts come early in the fall, then select an early maturing variety. If you don't, you'll have green tomatoes at harvest time.

GRASS - Every lawn in our neighborhood contributes to our health - in the late 1800's, Sen. John J. Ingalls wrote: "Next in importance to the divine profusion of water, light and air - may be reckoned the universal beneficence of grass. Grass is the forgiveness of nature - her constant benediction."

Grass planted to the good earth has a wholesome influence on our health and climate. One acre of grass near your home has the cooling effect of a 140,000 pound air conditioner (that's 70 tons). But that's not all. That same grass gives off 2,400 gallons of precious water (48 barrels) each single summer day. Also, grass acts as a blotter, soaking up noise, dust, soot and pollutants.

Grass, like trees, is nature's garbage collector, working to keep the earth clean.
HOME LANDSCAPING: Your home is one of the best hedges there is against inflation, recession or depression.

Anything you can do to enhance it on the inside or outside, is like putting money in the bank. Don't hesitate to spend a few dollars on trees, shrubs or lawns because such expenditure is a necessity, rather than a luxury. If you plan to do any landscaping, don't make the mistake of using the hit-and-miss method of planting. Selecting the right plants should take just as much thought as selecting your drapes, wallpaper, furniture or carpeting.

Don't hesitate to talk to your local nurseryman about ideas for planting. If you can't afford a complete landscape job, tell him, and he can suggest a few plants for this year, some for the following.

A common mistake is to use shrubs of all one color or variety. If you plan on making a planting, try to select different kinds of shrubs so that you get different color of flowers, foliage and heights that vary. No planting should be overdone, and you don't need a great variety of plants. You aren't out to start a botanical garden.

What you want is just a few shrubs to take away that bare look something that will soften the appearance of the base structure. When you have a variety in height and plants you get away from any resemblance to a hedge. So avoid selecting shrubs which all have the same height.

Incidentally, you can get some good ideas by driving through your neighborhood and studying other plantings. Keep in mind that money and labor spent in dressing up the home yields returns in satisfaction, comfort and pleasure out of all proportion to the cost.

YELLOW SHOULDERS ON RED TOMATOES: Recently we tried to explain why home gardeners had "yellow" shoulders on their red tomatoes. A grower writes: "Yellow shoulders on red tomatoes is caused by a deficiency of potash and is more prevalent on sandy soils since they are more apt to be short on this plant nutrient. I have worked with tomatoes commercially since the 20's and 30's and was at one time in charge of a research program for a large canning company. These yellow shoulders were costly to the cannery before we learned to use at least 200 pounds of potash per acre."

Green Thumb note: Glad to get this tip. Home gardeners who have had a yellow shoulder problem on tomatoes should try using Muriate of Potash at the rate of one-half pound per 100 square feet of soil applied this spring. If you want to use it as a solution, put one-half pound in 10 gallons of water and apply to 100 square feet. Most home gardeners get enough potash if a mixed fertilizer such as 5-10-10 is used at rate of a pound per 100 square feet of soil.

D.R. of Burley: "Last year we had scads of tomatoes but most of them were ruined because of snails. Is there anything we can pour on the soil to kill snails before we set our tomatoes out this year?"

Snails were a problem last year, especially in areas where rains were plentiful. Actually, it's foolish to dump chemicals on the garden, hoping to kill snails. In the first place, it is difficult to find a good insecticide (or rather molluscicide) to kill snails. Metaldehyde baits, the standard snail-killer for decades are poisonous and not too efficient.

What's the best cure for snails? Stale beer. Three years ago a doctor wrote and told us he accidentally used stale beer for snails and it worked 100 percent. Placed in shallow pans or tie tins, the beer attracts 30 times as many slugs as metaldehyde. The night marauders crawl into the pans and drown, apparently finding it a wonderful way to go. One reader of this department said she counted nearly 200 slugs or snails in one pan of beer. Fresh beer is just as effective as stale beer. Place the pans in strategic spots in your garden in the evening.

Another way to get rid of snails is to sprinkle salt on them. Take a salt shaker and a flashlight and go out in the garden at night. You'll easily spot the snails at work. A light tap from the salt shaker and the snails are gone. Incidentally, if you do go out at night to salt down snails, take a little stick along to scare night crawlers into their holes. You wouldn't want to get salt on these beneficial animals. Earthworms enrich the garden by passing more than 10 tons of dry earth through their bodies annually in 1 acre alone.

A.D. of Twin Falls: "We have a birch tree which produces lots of seeds each year, but we've never noticed any young plants coming up. Why is it?"

Birch seeds are small and very sensitive to moisture and temperature conditions at germination time. Under average conditions, germination of seed is less than one per cent, and those that do germinate seldom make the grade. Under natural conditions, up to 400 seeds may be needed to produce a single one-year-old seedling. Sunlight is death on young seedlings also. Your best bet is to start seed in a pot of sand and peat moss, making sure the seed never dries out.

Warning given on product

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) warned the public today that a meat tenderizer labeled "Spice of Life" or "Country Tavern" may contain a deadly poison. The warning was issued following the death of a man who ate garlic toast sprinkled with the tenderizer at a Washington, D.C. restaurant.

Technology assists in environmental problem

BOISE - A Boise Cascade official says technology is now advancing to correct environmental problems. Wally Cory, environmental engineer for the company's wood products plants, told a seminar at Boise State College such advances are being undertaken by his and other companies to curb abuses of air and water pollution.

"In the nation's total air pollution problem, industry accounts for only 17 per cent of the total pollutants emitted into the air each year," Cory said.

Kansas roars back to tip Drake 73-71

Robisch leads rally for Jayhawks after early Bulldog blitz

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI)—Kansas, down by as many as 12 points and with two starters out with five fouls, roared back Saturday behind the 27-point scoring of Dave Robisch to defeat Drake 73-71 and win the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball tournament.

Houston, led by Poo Welch's 38 points, set a regional tournament scoring record with a 119-106 victory over Notre Dame in the consolation game.

Kansas' victory was sealed when Bob Kivisto sank a free throw with 17 seconds to play and Roger Brown added another one a second later, but it was Robisch who brought the Jayhawks from behind.

Robisch scored 27 points, but 19 came in the second half. He was Kansas' lone scoring threat after Bud Stallworth fouled out with 14:45 to go and Pierre Russell followed at the 5:56 mark.

Drake was on the verge of winning its second regional title in three years when the Bulldogs uncorked a 12-point blitz midway in the first half, erecting a 31-19 lead from a 19-19 tie.

The Big Eight champion Jayhawks finally tied the game at 55-55 when Robisch sank a free throw 8 1/2 minutes from the end.

Drake, led by Leon Huff's 20 points, fell behind by as many as five points with 3:45 to go, but had a chance to tie it when Kivisto missed a free throw with 1:22 to go. But Jeff Halliburton's 20-foot shot went awry and the two free throws at the end assured the Jayhawks of their first trip to the NCAA finals since 1957, Will Chamberlain's sophomore year.

Brown had 15 for Kansas, 13 in the second half, while Stallworth added 13. Halliburton finished with 17 and Tom Bush 16 for Drake.

Houston frittered away most of a 16-point lead it held never the end of the first half before outscoring the Irish, 22-5, midway through the second half. The streak turned a 70-67 lead into a 92-72 runaway.

Notre Dame's brilliant All-America, Austin Carr, closed out his collegiate career with 47 points. Steve Newsome tallied 29 for the Cougars, while Collis Jones had 25 for the Irish.

Buhl sets record in Mini-Dome meet

POCATELLO — The Buhl Indians' foursome of Berry Watson, Rick Long, Joel Watson, and Ben Allen set a new high school Mini-Dome record Saturday night in the medley relay at the USTFF Intermountain Track and Field championships in Pocatello.

Buhl clicked off a 3:44.8 to break the old mark established earlier this year by the Calgary Stampede's Berry Watson ran the 440 leg, Long the 220, Joe Watson the 220 and Allen anchored it with a fine 880.

Two high school records were broken by the little Brigham City Indian School. Hoski ran a 4:32 mile and H. Willi had an extremely fast two-mile with a 9:48.8. He broke the two-mile record set earlier this year by Randy Suter of Jerome.

Brent Lammers of Filer won the 300-yard run in 34.1, and teammate Jim Daniels took third in the 120 high hurdles. Kimberly's Rod Rudolph, took his speciality—the 440 dash—with a good 2:3 clocking.

The meeting the Mini-Dome marked the climax of a fine indoor season which saw several Magic Valley athletes set records.

The two-mile record set by the Brigham City runner erased Suter's mark — set a month ago, by a longshot. The Indian school is known for its production of fine distance runners.

Boston has title

BOSTON (UPI)—The streaking Boston Bruins clinched their first Prince Of Wales trophy in 30 years and closed in on a new flock of records Saturday night in a 5-3 victory over the Philadelphia Flyers.

Goals by John McKenzie, Fred Stanfield, Don Awrey, Phil Esposito and Bobby Orr assured the Bruins of a first place finish in the National Hockey League's East Division.

Villanova smashes Penn by 90-47

RALEIGH, N. C. (UPI)—Villanova, enjoying a sizzling 61.7 shooting percentage from the floor, defeated its crosstown Philadelphia rival, third-ranked and unbeaten Pennsylvania, 90-47, for the first time in three years Saturday for a berth in next week's NCAA semifinals.

Howard Porter scored 35 points for the 17th-ranked Wildcats, who jumped to an eight-point lead in the NCAA Eastern title game before Penn ever scored. While Villanova had a hot hand from the floor, Penn suffered with a 29.9 percentage.

Tom Ingelsby, Villanova's sophomore field general, kept the ball away from Penn until Porter could work it inside.

When Porter was unable to get a shot, Hank Siemiontkowski and Clarence Smith often connected. Siemiontkowski scored 20 points and Smith 15.

Not a single Quaker was in double figures. Phil Hankinson led Penn's scorers with eight. Villanova forged a 43-22 lead by halftime and broke the game open immediately after the intermission. The Wildcats scored eight straight baskets before Steve Bilsky was able to end the Penn drought six minutes into the second half.

Villanova continued to expand the victory margin and used substitutes the last two minutes.

Charley Yelverton scored 25 points and sparked a second half rally as Fordham defeated South Carolina 100-90 in the consolation game.

Ninth-ranked Fordham, down 48-42 at the half, took the lead seven minutes into the second half at 64-63 and kept it.

Yelverton scored 14 points during the second half rally. Teammates William Mainor and John Burik had 23 apiece for the game. Burik scored 17 of his in the second half.

South Carolina's Tom Riker scored 39 points. Kevin Joyce had 18 points and Tom Owens 13 for the Gamecocks.

South Carolina scored 10 points before Fordham got its first field goal of the game. The Rams fought back to tie the game at 28-28 with 8:30 left in the half.

But the Gamecocks forged back into the lead on Riker's inside shooting to regain the lead by halftime.

Porsche outduels field to take 12 hours of Sebring

SEBRING, Fla. (UPI)—A silver Porsche Audi piloted by Britsher Vic Elford and Frenchman Gerard Larrousse freed off a gallant challenge by a pair of spunky little Alfa Romeo Spiders to win Saturday's punishing 12 Hours of Sebring road race.

The Martini and Rossie entry in a recraft setting run, finished 3 laps ahead of a Spider driven by Italy's Giovanni (Naimi) Galli and 13 in front of another little red machine with Sicilian Nino Vaccarella at the controls.

Elford, a 35-year-old former life insurance salesman who was forced out of last year's Sebring race when his car was bumped by another racer, said the 5.2-mile road track gave the super car jockeys a tough workout.

"I like the layout," said Elford, winner of the 1968 24 Hours of Daytona, "but it's tough. Its surface was rough and bumpy."

The unusual race drew protests from race king Roger Penske whose distinctive blue and gold Ferrari was bumped up in a collision with Pedro Rodriguez' Gulf Porsche.

It looked like Andretti was going to make it a runaway after the Donohue-Rodriguez crash, and Jackie Icks was giving him a rest when the transmission went out. Andretti, in the pits, shook his head and commented, "that's it."

Andretti had predicted before that the gear box could cause trouble on the little 3-liter Ferrari, the only factory model out of Modena, Italy, in this year's race.

"I have to shift two times more each than any of the others," he said.

An angry Donohue said Rodriguez hit him from the rear three times in a turn leading into a back straight.

Rolf Stommelen of Kohn, Germany, who finished eighth at Sebring last year, shared the driving chores with Galli as the small three-liter cars from Italy stunned race fans with their strong finish. Toke Hezemans of Holland helped drive the Vaccarella car.

Elford lapped the Sebring course 200 times Saturday, to beat Mario Andretti's last year record by 12. He averaged 112.5 mph, another record.

The native of Helston, England, moved into the lead less than midway of the grueling marathon run, and stayed out front for the final 142 laps.

He got his chance when a Gulf Porsche driven by 24 Hour of Daytona champion Pedro Rodriguez rammed the rear of the Penske Ferrari, driven by Mark Donohue, sending both to the pits.

Then Mario Andretti blew a gear box on his three-liter red Ferrari, opening the way for the Elford Porsche and the Spiders.

Donohue was sent to the pits for 55 minutes while crewmen worked to repair a gasoline tank. He angrily blamed Rodriguez for the collision.

"I passed him on the inside and then he hit me from the rear," Donohue said. "Not once, not twice, but three times."

Rodriguez was sidelined only briefly, but he could never make up the lost time. He finished fourth, less than a lap behind the second Alfa.

The other John Wyer Gulf Porsche finished 5th, with Jo Siffert at the controls.

A plan to keep our two-way bottle from becoming a one-way bottle.

A returnable bottle of Coke is the least expensive way you can enjoy the real thing. Coke. Provided you return the bottle. If people don't, it can be an expensive way to buy Coca-Cola. For you. For us. For the community. Now for years, we had a 3¢ deposit on most returnable bottles of Coke. And the system worked great. But lately a lot of our returnable bottles have been winding up in the garbage instead of being returned. (The last thing our communities need is more garbage.)

So we're going to give you an added incentive to return returnable bottles. They'll be worth a nickel. If you return the bottle, you'll still be paying the same low price for the Coca-Cola. And that's all you'll be paying for. Returnable bottles of Coke. Your best buy—economically and ecologically.

It's the real thing. Coke.

Miller, Underwood tied for lead in Jacksonville Open

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Young John Miller fired a 3-under-par 69 in a howling wind Saturday to tie Hal Underwood for the third-round lead in the $125,000 Greater Jacksonville Open.

Underwood, a former University of Houston standout, toured the 6,943-yard Hidden Hills Country Club course at 71 to share the lead with Miller at 210, six under par.

Colorful Lee Trevino surged into strong contention with a 71, putting him one stroke back of the co-leaders. South African Gary Player was another stroke back at 212 after posting a 72.

Grouped at 213 were Don January, Dave Eichelberger and John Schlee. Eichelberger shot a 73, Schlee a 70, and January, the second round co-leader, a 76.

Hometown amateur Steve Melnyk, who had shared the lead with January, soared to a 77 and was alone at 214.

Miller, a 23-year-old Californian, said a 15-foot putt for a par after three bad shots on the first hole was the key to his round.

"That putt eased all the tension," said Miller. "It was the best round I ever played as far as eliminating mental errors."

Asked about the wind, which gusted up to 30 miles an hour, Miller said, "I never played in anything like this in my life. I didn't know whether I would shoot 80 or 85 or what. I didn't expect to shoot a 69."

Miller sank birdie putts of one, ten and fifteen feet in his bogey-free round.

"I haven't been missing many putts," he said. "I just tried to get it on the middle of the green and I figured if I did I would make the putts."

Underwood, playing in only his third tournament of the year, birdied the par 5, 552-yard 9th after hitting a wedge to within six feet. He bogeyed 14 when he missed the green with his approach and birdied 16 with a 14-foot putt from the fringe.

"I don't know how it feels to be leading yet," said Underwood, who usually misses two tournaments a month because of Army Reserve commitments. "I've never been here."

Trevino, who shared the first round lead with a 66, started "a little shaky" and was two-over-par after six holes.

"Scrambling brought me back," said the jovial Texan, who canned putts of 25 feet, 5 feet and 14 inches on the back nine. The 14-inch came on the 415-yard finishing hole where his eight-iron approach struck the flag stick and stopped inches away.

NBA playoffs to begin Wednesday

NEW YORK (UPI)—The National Basketball Association announced Saturday that its championship playoff series will open with two games on Wednesday, March 24.

The first two games have Philadelphia at Baltimore and Chicago at Los Angeles. The series between New York and Atlanta will begin on Thursday afternoon, March 25, in New York, and the series pairing Milwaukee and San Francisco will start Saturday, March 27, in Oakland.

The first and second place teams in each of the four NBA divisions qualify for the playoffs.

In the Eastern Conference, New York will finish first in the Atlantic Division and Atlanta will be second in the Central Division while Baltimore will be first in the Central Division and Philadelphia second in the Atlantic Division. The winners of each of those series will play each other for the Eastern title.

Mrs. King advances

ROCHESTER, Mich. (UPI)—No. 1 seed Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., and No. 2 seed Rosemary Casals of San Francisco knocked off their semi-final opponents in the $10,000 K-Mart Invitational Tennis Tournament Saturday to earn the right to face each other in Sunday's finale.

It took Mrs. King three sets to defeat a stubborn Ann Jones, No. 4 seed from Great Britain, on a very fast surface in a hard-fought 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 match. Miss Casals was able to eliminate her able opponent, Mary Ann Curtis of St. Louis, in two sets by a 6-3, 7-6 score.

Sweden tips U.S. in hockey

BERN, Switzerland (UPI)—Sweden's "Three Crowns" came from behind to beat the United States 4-2 Saturday night in the toughest and most exciting game so far in the 1971 World Ice Hockey Championships.

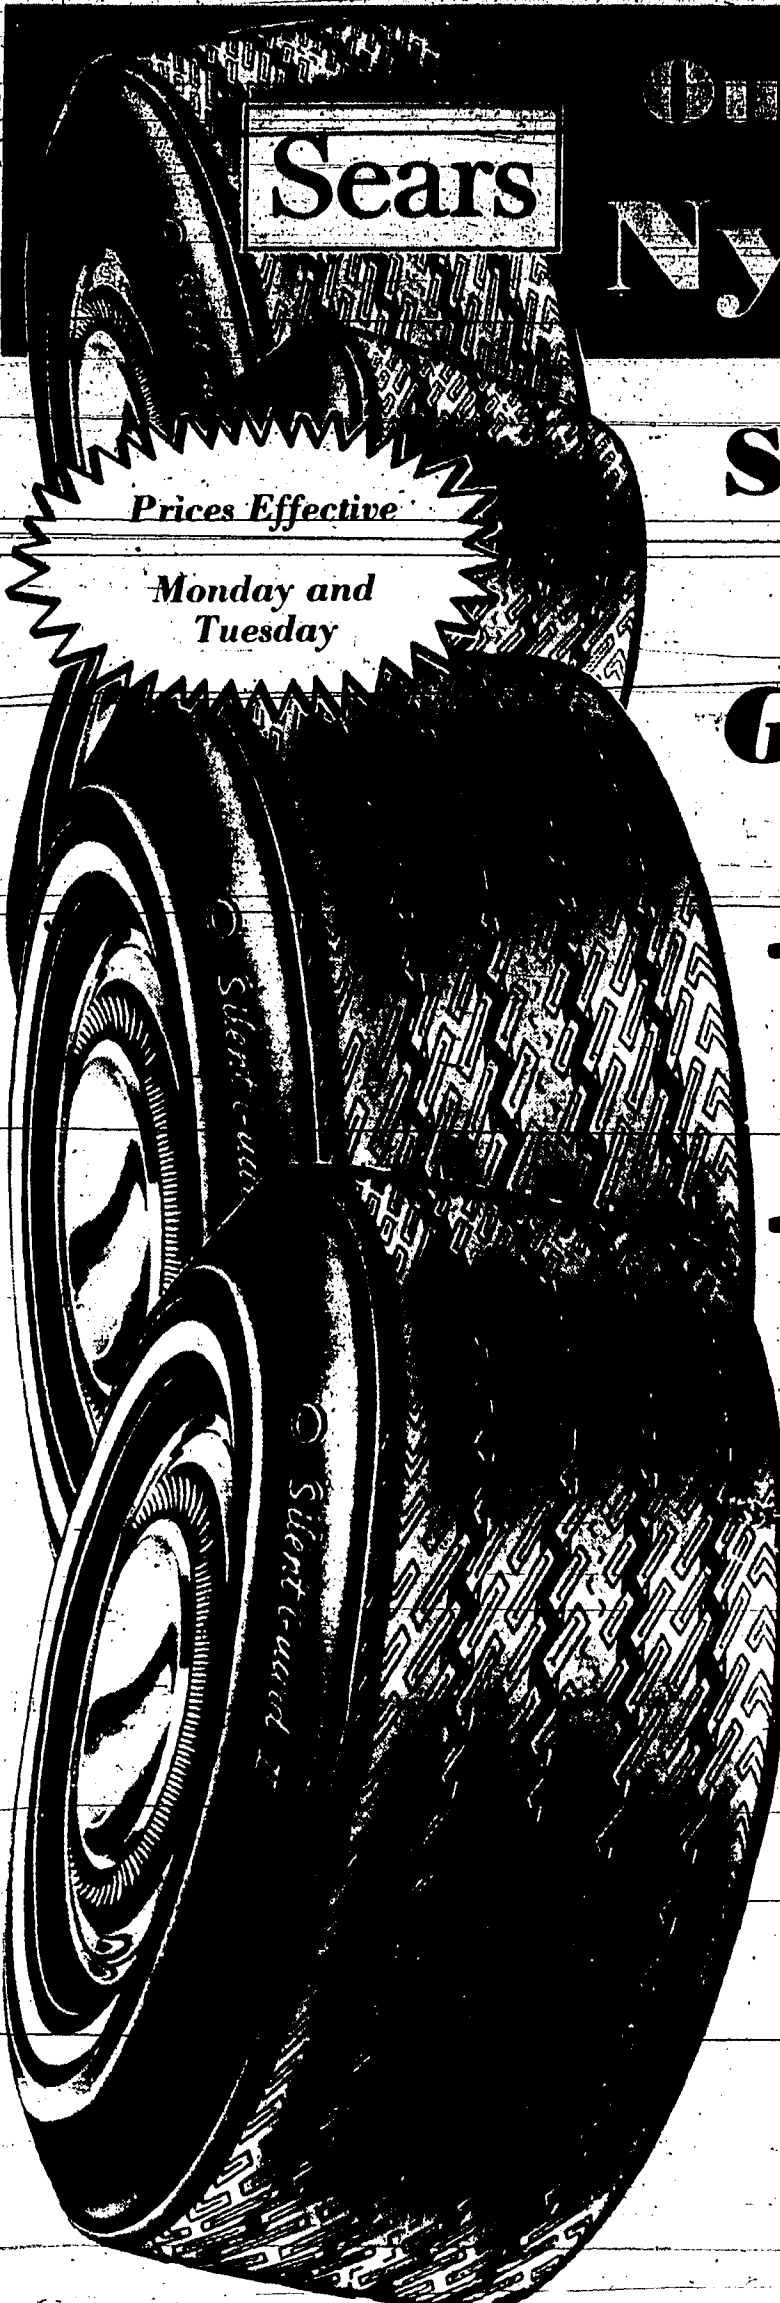

For two periods it looked like the Americans would repeat their giant killing of Friday when they skated to a shocking 5-1 victory over highly favored Czechoslovakia in their opening game.

Temper erupted in the end and the crowd of 8,000 spectators were treated to a free-for-all between Swedes and Americans. It began with U.S. center Keith Christensen attacking Swedish goalie Christer Abrahamsson.

Hilltoppers edge OSU in overtime 81-78 for title

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI)—The Western Kentucky Hilltoppers, trailing by 14 points late in the first half, beat Ohio State, 81-78, in overtime Saturday to win the NCAA Midwest Regional championship and a berth in next week's finals at Houston, Tex.

The Hilltoppers widened their lead to three points 19 seconds later on a jumper by senior Jim Rose and then clinched the victory with two last second free throws by Glover.

McDaniels, a 7-foot senior and second team All-America center, scored 31 points Saturday to give him a total of 66 in the two regional games.

Sophomore guard Allan Horvay was high scorer for Ohio State with 26 points, while another Buckeye sophomore, 7-foot Luke Witte, had 23.

Dunn falls on steal try

WESTERN KENTUCKY'S Jerry Dunn (51) spins to the floor on a steal attempt from Ohio State's Luther Witte in the championship game of the NCAA Midwest regional playoff. The Hilltoppers won in overtime to advance to Houston Thursday night. (UPI)

All of the other four Western Kentucky starters were in double figures with Bailey scoring 14 points, Rose 13, Jerry Dunn 12 and Glover 11.

The Wildcats trailed by only one point, 22-21, before Meminger and Chones cranked up. Late in the half the Warriors were ahead by 13 points, 41-28, even with Meminger hampered by four fouls and they led 50-43 at halftime.

Twin Falls rolls up 131 points in easy track win

The defending SIC and state-champion Twin Falls Bruins opened their outdoor track season Friday afternoon and took an easy runaway victory over five other schools in a meet held in the face of a tremendous east wind that had nearly everything going its way.

Kleinkopf said he was highly pleased with the showing. "That's the strongest wind we've had to run against in Twin Falls in 10 years," said Kleinkopf in reviewing the frigid meet.

Astros tip Twins 12-4

COCOA, Fla. (UPI)—Doug Rader and Dennis Menke batted in four runs each as the Houston Astros beat the Minnesota Twins 12-4 Saturday.

The Bruins totaled 131 points Friday, Skyline getting just 41. Rick Spriggs was the high point man for both teams, getting 14 points on a win in the low hurdles and a second place in the high hurdles and high jump.

Spriggs time in the lows was 22.8.

Mets top Reds 6-5

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—Ron Swoboda, who hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning, drew a bases-loaded walk in the 10th off pitcher Ed Sprague to give the New York Mets a 6-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in a Grapefruit League clash Saturday.

Swoboda's walk, coming with two outs, was one of three issued by Sprague in the 10th. The Reds bunched three of their 13 hits, one a bases-loaded single by Stan Swanson in the third inning, to take a 4-1 lead at the expense of Tom Seaver.

The Mets came back in the top of the fourth to tie the score at 4-4, getting three runs, two on Swoboda's homer to left.

L.A. whips Phils 12-7

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI)—The Los Angeles Dodgers outslugged the Philadelphia Phillies; 12-7, Saturday in their only exhibition meeting of the spring.

Star pole vaulter Billy Miller just made one jump and ended second behind Blake of the Bruins, who reached 11 feet.

Randy Suter of Jerome took the mile easily with a 4:47.5, later finishing second to Jack Cooper in the 880 run. Cooper won with a 30-50 2:08.4.

Angels beat A's

MESA, ARIZ. (UPI)—Jerry Moses' first homer of the spring, a two-out two-run shot in the eighth, powered the California Angels over the Oakland Athletics, 6-5, Saturday in an exhibition baseball game.

The Angels went into the inning trailing, 5-3. But back-to-back doubles by Jim Spencer and Ken McMullen off losing pitcher Darrell Osteen moved California within a run.

One out later, Moses delivered the Angels' second two-run homer of the contest. Spencer hit the other with two out in the third.

Georgia Tech advances to NIT quarterfinal round

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rick Yunkus scored 17 points in the second half, including the tie-breaking basket with 1:15 remaining, Saturday night to pace Georgia Tech to a 70-67 victory over LaSalle, enabling the Engineers to join Tennessee, North Carolina, Providence and Duke in the quarterfinals of the National Invitation Tournament.

Sophomore Greg Hawkins tied the score with two seconds left at the end of regulation time with a 15-foot jump shot and sank four free throws during an overtime period to spark Tennessee to an 84-83 triumph over St. John's (N.Y.) in the first game of the evening doubleheader.

In an afternoon tripleheader, North Carolina, paced by Bill Chamberlain's 24 points, routed Massachusetts, 90-49; Providence upset Louisville, 64-58, and Duke got 20 points from Rich O'Connor to defeat Dayton, 68-60.

North Carolina will meet Providence and Tennessee takes on Duke Monday night in a quarterfinal round. Georgia Tech will face the winner of Sunday's Michigan-Syracuse game in the quarterfinals Wednesday night.

Yunkus, who scored 27 points before fouling out with 50 seconds remaining, broke a 64-64 tie with a driving layup with 1:15 to play and a basket by Tommy Wilson 24 seconds later enabled the Engineers to lock up their 21st victory in 29 games this season.

LaSalle, which finished its season with a 20-7 record, stayed close to Georgia Tech throughout the game despite a subpar performance from star forward Ken Durrett. Durrett, whose lateral movement was hampered by a tight bandage on his right knee, managed only 14 points in the game—13 below his average—and connected on only three field goals.

Durrett also was guilty of two goal-tending violations in the last three minutes of play which twice enabled Georgia Tech to take the lead.

Bob Fields, who hit only three of 12 floor attempts in the first half, sparked the Explorers' attack with 25 points, 17 of them in the second half.

Hawkins, who came into the game as a replacement for Dick Johnston after Johnston fouled out, climaxed a sensational rally by Tennessee in the final minute of play when the Vols scored four points in the last 42 points to tie the score.

Hawkins' jumper, which tied the score at 74-74, came after St. John's twice blew one-and-one free throws in the last 25 seconds which would have locked up the game.

St. John's led 74-70 when a basket by Johnston brought the Vols to within two points with 42 seconds left. Johnston then fouled Larry Jenkins with 25 seconds left but Jenkins missed the free throw. St. John's still grabbed the rebound and Tennessee then fouled Mike Kelly with 13 seconds remaining.

LEASE YOURSELF SOME PLEASURE

It's always a pleasure to drive home in a new car. And you can do that every year or two for less than you'd think by making your next new car a lease car.

Just one small fixed amount per month and you can forget about such things as down-payments and trade-in worries. Come in and see for yourself how easy and how smart it is to lease a new Mercury or Lincoln. See how much pleasure your next car can give you.

For as little as $65 per month you can drive a 1971 MERCURY COMET.

Money Box

By Frank Schell

Question from R.J., Twin Falls: On a recent trip I saw some two-headed Kennedy 50 cent pieces. I would like to know how these coins came to be minted. Are they worth anything now? Are they likely to be worth anything later on? I would like an answer by May 1.

Answer: Two-headed and two-tailed coins are almost as old as money itself. They were NOT made at the mint. Regular coins are split in two and then the heads (or tail) sides soldered together. These are gambling coins — used for matching and as crooked as a marked deck of cards or loaded dice.

You can buy any denomination of such coins — depending on which you prefer. The mutilated coins are worth nothing — cannot even be spent, and I believe the last I saw quoted were at $2 each, for the half-dollar, less for smaller denominations.

Question from V.W., Twin Falls: I have a $2 bill, 1928, with Jefferson's picture. Does this bill have any value.

Answer: Your 1928 bill should have Tate and Mellon's signature on it. It is currently selling around $10 if in very fine condition. Collectors are only interested in paper money which is in excellent condition — no tears or bad folds.

The 1928 if the first small-sized two-dollar bill, and commands some premium over face; later two dollar bills are plentiful. Write this column if you want to locate a buyer.

From L.G., Rupert: I have two coins about the size of a dime. On one side is a woman's head, with the words around it, "Victoria Dei Gratia Regina." CANADA on the bottom. The other side has a flowered wreath with a crown on top, and the date 1897 — the other date is 1892. And "5 Cents" in the center. Would like to know if these coins have any value.

Answer: Canada began striking its own coins in 1958 — and among the regular issue coins were the small silver 5-cent pieces like the ones you describe. The small coin was struck until 1921, when a change to the larger coin was made (about the same size as our nickel).

You do not tell me the condition of your coins and this is the principal method of determining value.

The 1892 coin is worth from $2 to $5, and the 1897 from $1.35 to $3.50 — depending upon condition. Uncirculated coins are worth more.

From L.A.R., Twin Falls: Is it true that the United States is going to make $2 bills? I was under the impression that these had been discontinued. Would appreciate information on them.

Answer: It is not known right now whether any more will be printed or not. South Dakota legislators have proposed that a picture of Mt. Rushmore Memorial be put on the reverse of the one-dollar bill, and falling that, proposed that $2 bills be again printed, and include the Mt. Rushmore picture.

No decision has been made on either suggestion, which has been pending before Congress for about two years now.

(Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o The Times News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.)

Decision on award praised

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Comedian Bob Hope has praised a decision by the New York City Council of Churches to cancel presentation of an award to him in favor of giving it posthumously to Whitney Young Jr.

"I appreciate the Americans who have laid down their lives for our country. I got hooked on that thing, and if that stops me from getting awards, then I'll have to live it," Hope said Thursday.

The church council voted Wednesday to give its 1971 Family of Man Award to Young, Executive Director of the National Urban League, who died last week.

Six weeks ago the council had approved the presentation of the award to Hope but, under pressure from a group of activist young clergymen, it voted to rescind that approval on grounds Hope has "uncritically supported the military establishment" and the Vietnam War.

Hope, after learning the award was going to Young, said, "That's beautiful. Here's a man who had been working for his people and had done a magnificent job. I couldn't say anything against that man and I was glad he got the award instead of me."

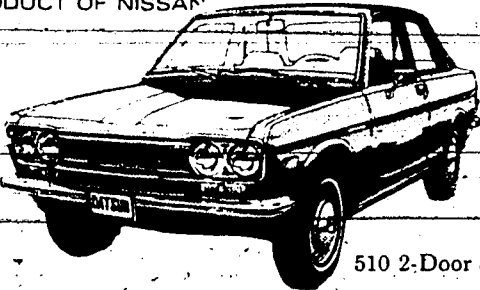

Way to riches

HANOVER, N.H. (UPI)—Daniel Webster had a profound effect on the history of the United States, but what he had to say to his son remains relevant for today's youth.

Included in the first comprehensive edition of his papers, published on microfilm by Dartmouth College and University Microfilms, is this excerpt from a letter to his son, written in 1836: "It gives me great delight to hear, that you have learned to sit still, and read a book. If you have really accomplished that, you have certainly made your fortune."

"Jeans" look strong

By TERESIA FOX
Teresa's
TWIN FALLS — The jeans look is most important in sportswear for summer — either in a brushed look, plaid or solid color.
It goes so far as overalls and sturdy apparel to a more dressy jumpsuit in dressier fabrics.
Right now anything with an antique look is big. Something out of the 1880's, such as cameo jewelry is good. Long dresses are super feminine with puff uppers and cuff sleeves.
Coordinates are a boon to extend a wardrobe and express what the wearer wants to express.
New fashions can make a lady's looks. It is important to wear the kind of clothes that do something for you. With pants always wear the proper accessories like jackets and vests and proper show for balance.
Different lengths are great. Something long makes sense over a bikini to screen out the sun. Norwegian prints are refreshing and fun for clothes.

QUEENLY—which is just how you'll feel in these fashion accessories from Van's. These navy blue shoes and matching purse will step out prettily with the popular red, white or blue dressy pantsuits of spring. The high riding front is set off by a gold decoration.

Q is for . . .

RINGS AND other things for spring. Bold, flashy rings are much in demand and popularity, with the antique look especially good for coordination with the "back then" fashion trend.

Young adults pose great challenge for retailers

By MARGARET PERKINS
 The Paris

TWIN FALLS — The young adult market is the merchandiser's biggest opportunity and challenge. Predicting what a junior miss will be wearing six months from now is not only a challenge — it's a threat!

The obvious, for the immediate future of the junior world as we see it, is the hot pants scene. In time all young girls will believe that the hot pant is the newest way to play it cool for spring and summer.

Hotpants is a word coined for short-shorts. Young girls will be wearing them in fabrics of all descriptions — velvet, satin, denim, leather, polyester and cotton — both patterned and unpatterned.

When the weather is chilly hotpants will be worn with pantyhose, knee socks, body stockings and knee high boots. We expect the hotpants fever to take a strong hold.

One can expect to see our girls dusting the floor with a long dress. The mini length is by no means out, but the refreshing pioneer or granny look is new and fun. It is interchangeable because it is good in the daytime or evening for formal or casual wear. The junior group welcomes the opportunity for versatility.

Jeans will be worn in every pattern and color, with the same old shape the young girls love, some waist-high, other hip hugging.

One of the newest and most accepted-jean shirts is the 100 per cent cotton long sleeved shirt with cuff and front embroidered to give a feminine touch to the age-old jean.

Colors of most importance seem to be red, white and blue for spring, along with any shade of purple or yellow-gold.

The most exciting accessory for the feet will be the clog to be worn with dresses or hotpants. They are shown in every color, material and design which can be imagined.

The wrapped sandal is as versatile as the weather. It is being shown in sueded leather, kid leather, denim and tapestry. The wrapped sandal is hot for hotpants, ankle-length-dresses or the still popular miniskirt. The boot is summer weight is still on the scene. Accessories to be noted and given a second look are in the jewelry line — macrame belts, chokers, earrings, wristlets and long necklaces made from cotton or satin cording and ancient looking colored stones. The young teen is not gullible to fad changes, but when the fashion world comes up with something they accept, the merchandiser must be ready to supply the demand.

Spotlights STAGE "7"

Poolside

Seaside or poolside, just about anything—or next to nothing—goes this season. So Bobbie Brooks provides the means to let gals bare what they dare or cover up with flair.

Their new swim collection covers all the contemporary persuasions, from seal sleek 'Funtastiks' to the frolic of cascading ruffles in a pristine eyelet embroidery group called 'Eyelet Icing.' Blooming too, are a bevy of beautiful prints. One group, in guy-catcher pastels, 'Garden Party,' is surely destined to flourish in sand-swept environs.

Styles run the complete gamut as well, from a long-sleeved, quick zip romper with wet suit inspirations, to the teeniest, flower-strewn bikini. A smart gal will simply let her conscience be her guide.

Fashion projects many influences

By DALE ALLRED
 Penney's
TWIN FALLS — Is it an ever changing world or our anxiety about our leap into the space age that inspires us?
 Whatever it is, clothes this season are drawing colorful inspiration from almost every ethnic culture.
 There is an exciting innovation awaiting those who try on Penney's fashion-packed fashions for spring.
 Shoppers can find everything from the young contemporary look to fashionable knits. But, it is not a costume look — it's a look that spans designs of colors ranging from snow whites and hot pinks to fireworks orange and green.
 We owe thanks to the midi for the emergence of frontier clothes. It's reputed to have given the fashion establishment a shot of inspiration sending it along all avenues of creative design.
 A happy result — more clothing styles to choose from.
 Whether it's dresses, blouses, skirts or pantsuits, you'll create a slimmer, more fashionable you!

Nerve, not money for chic look

It takes nerve, not money to dress with chic. The daring to wear something different, an as yet untried combination of clothes and accessories, a new shade of lipstick or navy blue mascara — these are the little touches that mark the difference between the trendsetter and the follower.

Many women, acclaimed by fashion designers and editors as befitting the best-dressed list, have said that some of their most prized acquisitions came not from the world-renowned houses of fashion, but rather from little second-hand stores. Through their imagination and nerve, they have managed to escape the rubber-stamped look that is so prevalent because of the mass manufacturing of clothes.

Today especially, when fashion is teetering awkwardly from mini to midi to pants, a woman can have her pick of almost any type of clothes and make it into her new look. Capes and ponchos are quite the thing. Accessories from the Middle East, fabrics from Africa, beads and semi-precious stones from South America can all be used to pull together an exotic aura that permeates in everyone's memories.

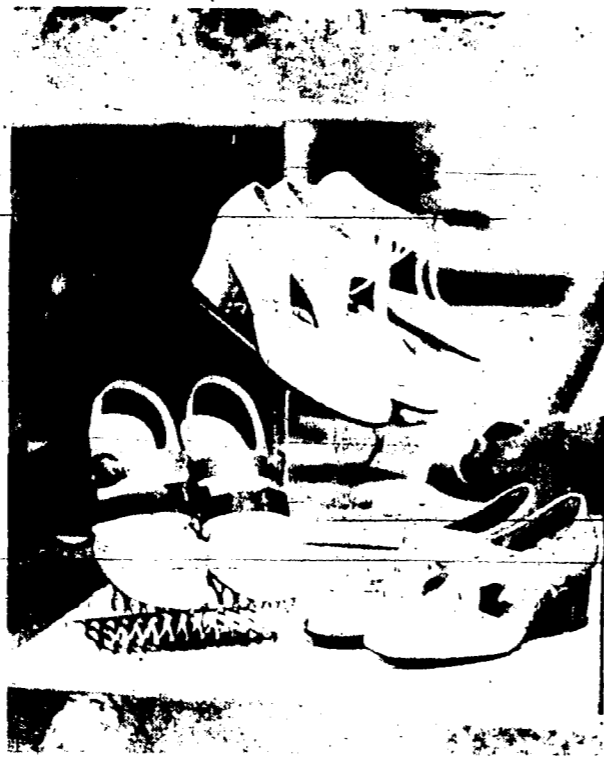

But elegance in clothing must be backed up by the knowledge that you are looking your best.

X is for . . .

TWIN FALLS — Sportswear forecasts are great for 1971 and what better place to run the gamut of the variety than Magic Valley? Clothing just right for swimming, boating, fishing, hunting and other outdoor sports are available. Today's sportswear fashions can turn anyone into a sports enthusiast.

TWIN FALLS — Hotpants are "hot" right now. Teen-agers are buying them in large quantities, but even the more sedate will find them fun. Some are in denim and bibbed coverall style which just beg to be put on for an afternoon of fashionable yard work.

By ANNE COHEN
Anne's Casuals

Dress lengths have been established — the middle of the knee cap for most women over 30, and four to six inches above the knee for the younger girls.

Color and unaffected simplicity are everywhere. Rejected in the better wearing apparel is the cluttered and gimmicked look.

Pants, pants and pants! Today's pants fit — no matter what your shape or size. Unbelievable! Just try on one of the better quality known brands and be surprised.

Pantsuits and pant formals are No. 1 for comfort, versatility and THE look. The pant formals rest lightly on the shoulders and the wide skirt sweep of the pants catch every air current to give the body that flashing litheness. Fabrics are soft and fluid as a gentle breeze. The two-piece pant formals may take two forms — the accordion pleated or the very full flared pant, as well as the straight, more tailored pant.

Pantsuits have taken over for daytime wear. Fabrics include 100 per cent wool, still on top, with polyesters and silky arnells following. They may be in exotic prints, vertical or horizontal stripes or good solids with contrasts. Colors include tomato, mocha or navy and white.

The weekender, a pantsuit with matching skirt is perfect for all-around wear. Freshness of flowers in prints (some are gorgeous hand-screened prints) or the unusual geometrics in fabric design are the most popular.

Dresses are still important, even though they are in No. 2 place. There are still some places where pants are frowned upon — like in church. Dresses in double knit polyester, some elegant enough to use for dressy occasions, all practical and packable.

TWIN FALLS — The fashion approach for spring is feminine, soft and even classic. Women will look more attractive and sophisticated and girls will look prettier.

Here are a few fashion points to remember:

- The dress, more important for daytime, will be seen in a variety of fabrics.
- Easy care, easy wear are the by-words.
- Knits tell the strongest story: polyester double knits, cotton knits (one of summer's big items) and single jersey knits.
- Strong interest will be in fabrics with a flax content and home spun look.
- Most dress lengths will be 38 to 40 inches, with junior fashions slightly shorter.
- Folklore prints are everywhere — folk ways from all over the world. It is not a costume for juniors only, but will be worn by all ages. These are made in ankle length dresses and skirts to be worn with peasant blouses with folk art trim, old world embroidery, all-over tucking, smocking and petticoat ruffles.

— Pantsuits are stronger than ever. There will be more activity in pantsuits of all styles and fabrics that can be worn daytime and evening.

— Short pants in every length from short-shorts to knee breeches to knickers also are in for summer.

— The hotpants craze is new and will be seen on nearly everyone — juniors and misses. Fabrics will include cotton, denim and polyester.

— Accessories are important, with belts No. 1, followed by chain pendants, dog collars and long masses of beads.

— Bags are still soft and pouchy, with short or long shoulder straps.

— And, boots are still very much in, of course!

Pantsuits in great demand locally

By BOB HARVEY
The Mayfair
 TWIN FALLS — Pantsuits continue to be in great demand. Dressy, evening types and tailored daytime and street-wear styles are very active. We predict the demand to diminish slightly as we get nicer weather. However, pantsuits strictly for sportswear and the active life will continue very strongly. All pastel shades, plus traditional red, navy and white will be very good. Polyester knits, denim and other sportswear type fabrics will be in demand.

Dresses are coming back very strong with much greater interest in dresses than a month ago. Dress lengths have finally established themselves at about 40 inches, or to the knee, with some a little below the knee. All colors except very dark will be good. Polyester is still the magic fabric because of the crisp feel and the ability to take color beautifully. Knitted fabrics also are very strong. Costume (dress and jacket or dress and coat) are in big demand. We expect ladies to return to looking like ladies again — customers are looking for a more feminine look. Easy-care fabrics are the key in sportswear. Polyesters and other easy-care blends are what our people want. They want fabrics and garments for a more outdoor type of leisure. Cottons in tops and denim type fabrics in novelty pants are big for the younger set. Knickers are selling but not big in our area. Hotpants is just another name for all types of shorts from the briefest to bermuda lengths. We feel they will be a big item as the weather turns nicer and especially in sportswear type fabrics with little overskirts, tops of various kinds, bib overall and novelty styles. There is not much change in the swimsuit market. The needs will depend on each customer — her age, figure and preference. Two piece suits or modified bikinis will sell well to the young and one piece to the more mature, less daring ladies. There is quite a lot of interest in novelty capes in various fabrics and sportswear jackets in cotton, suedes and novelty fabrics. Inexpensive all-weather coats and jackets in washable fabrics and pastel colors are very strong. Chains in belts and necklaces are still very good and selling well here. Handbags are great in straws and novelty styles and fabrics like homespun and tapestry. These are much stronger than traditional basic handbags. Belts are in demand in leathers and novelties, especially for wear with novelty sportswear pants. Generally our people read fashion magazines and are very fashion conscious of changing trends and demand new items very soon after they are established in metropolitan areas.

Ups and downs of fashion create large variety

By FRED VAN ENGELEN
Van's Department Store
TWIN FALLS — The ups and down of ladies hemlines in dresses and sportswear, and in the children's wear, can be found with a length to please everyone.

Peasant blouses and skirts are strong in the ever-pleasing small patterns. Puffed sleeves, beautiful embroidery trim are featured with navy, red, brown and black as strong colors and which to build a wardrobe.

Pants can be found in plains, stripes, plaids and in lots of colors and many styles.

Pantsuits are a must for everyone. Knits, perma-press fabrics in a wide variety are available. Jackets with short sleeves, long sleeves or no sleeves also are popular.

Dresses are longer, with many featuring belted waists, sleeves with wide cuffs and lots of trim.

Men's fashions are changing very rapidly with brighter colors in a large variety of fabrics and styles. Both single and double breasted suits with attention-getting details like action backs, new flap pockets and broader lapels are good this year.

Men's fabrics are generally lighter and feature easier care. There is plenty of vim and vigor in these styles to get a man out of his winter doldrums and do his spring thing!

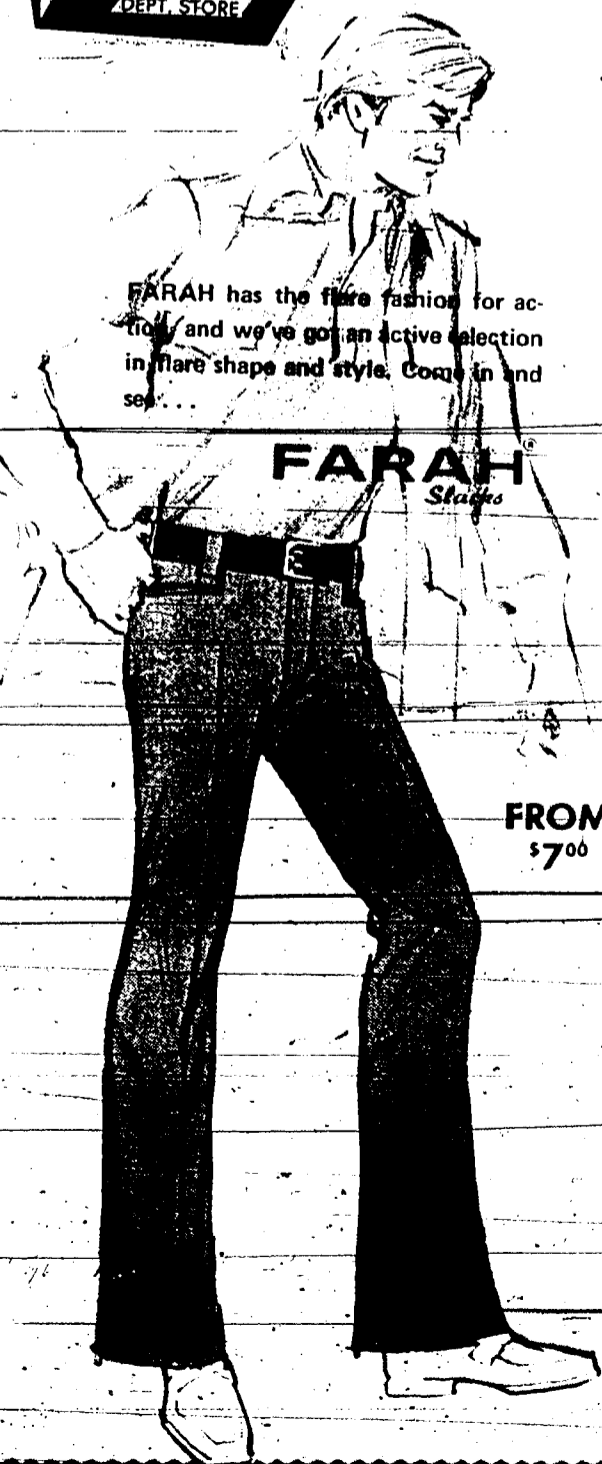

Fabrics, too, are exciting for the home fashion seamstress. The peasant look of small prints, beautiful easy care knits and denims, solids and prints, can be spruced up with many, many trims to make each garment just right.

Sheers and flocked patterns for the dainty look are ideal for weddings, graduation and Easter. Decorator fabrics to spruce up the home for spring are not to be overlooked.

Colors also predominate the shoe picture for spring. Lots of fun with cork soles and heels, sandals, clogs, strap pumps, high heel or low, are in store.

Shoes are generally much lighter and appealing — ready for spring fun. Men's shoe styles are getting away from the same old thing and this spring we find two-tones and lighter colors with straps being very predominant.

Rabinof duo will present Burley concert March 26

BURLEY — The Mini-Cassia Community Concert Association will present Benno and Sylvia Rabinof, a violin-piano duo at 8 p.m. Friday, March 26, at Burley High School Auditorium.

The couple is listed as one of the world's finest and most popular husband and wife violin-piano duos on concert stage today. They have been acclaimed by cheering audiences not only in the U.S. and Canada, but in Asia, Africa, the Middle and Near East and Europe.

They have given over 2,000 concerts in the 21 years they have been playing together and are noted as champions of outstanding contemporary music, as well as exceptionally sympathetic performers of the tried and true classics.

The versatile team's

BENNO AND SYLVIA Rabinof, a violin-piano duo, will be presented in concert by the Mini-Cassia Community Concert Association. The concert is set for 8 p.m. Friday at the Burley High School Auditorium. The couple is listed as one of the world's finest and most popular husband and wife duos.

repertoire comprises virtually the entire piano-violin sonata literature, plus double concertos ranging from Bach through Chausson to works they have commissioned by such composers as Robert Russell Bennett and Bohuslav Martinu whose Concerto for Violin and Piano they have played with over 15 major orchestras.

Rabinof also commissioned Paul Creston's Violin Concerto, which received its world premiere with the Detroit Symphony under the direction of Paul Paray.

Each season the Rabinofs garner new artistic honors, and as a matter of fact, can claim the distinction of being the only husband and wife team to have been simultaneously awarded the degree of Doctor of Music which was conferred upon them by Lincoln Memorial University.

Among their unusual concerts in recent seasons were performances of all 10 Beethoven sonatas for violin and piano which they played in a single day at New York's Town Hall. This acclaimed recital was repeated during the Beethoven Year (1969), at New York's Alice Tully Hall. Another New York appearance, this time at Carnegie Hall, was a recital given as a benefit for the Friends of Music of the Halifa Symphony.

In addition to their annual North American tours, the Rabinofs make frequent trips to far flung ports of call. A recent trip abroad included engagements in Greece and Turkey, where they were described in Athens as "two brilliant soloists." They also appeared in concerts in Spain, Portugal and Holland.

Benno Rabinof, a native New Yorker, is the last in the great line of Leopold Auer pupils that included Heifetz, Elman and Zimbalist. At the age of 19 he was introduced to New York concert audiences by the professor himself, who conducted the Philharmonic for Rabinof's debut in the Tchaikovsky Concerto. The concert was an unmitigated triumph and Rabinof became one of the most sought-after artists of the day.

Rabinof plays the priceless "Lord Amherst" Stradivarius, one of the three greatest "Strads" in the world, formerly used by Fritz Kreisler, and given to him by a donor who insists upon remaining anonymous.

Mrs. Rabinof first came into the musical world in her Paris debut at 18 years, the pupil of Paderewski and Serkin, and is one of the foremost women pianists of the day but also composer of more than 150 works, including instrumental solo, chamber music, an orchestral suite, and an opera. Her latest work, a pre-Biblical cantata is entitled "The Deluge." She is one of the few pianists to play accompaniments and sonatas by memory.

Book Review

By JEANNUTILE

TWIN FALLS — The boat was found floating in that portion of the North Atlantic known as the Sargasso Sea. The small cabin of the three-hulled vessel certainly didn't look deserted — dirty dishes piled in the sink, radio parts and tools strewn about, log books piled on the chart table. But no one was aboard. Donald Crowhurst, lone sailor of the 41 foot trimaran Teignmouth Electron, was gone.

He was never seen again. The story is told in "The Strange Last Voyage of Donald Crowhurst," by Nicholas Tomalin and Ron Hall.

The famous seaman Sir Francis Chichester has described the Crowhurst story as "the sea drama of the century." So dramatic is this peculiar adventure that, save for the clear, factual style, the reader must keep reminding himself he is not reading a fantasy.

When he disappeared, the 36 year-old Englishman was only a few days from England and appeared a sure winner in a single-handed non-stop race around the world. Not only was Crowhurst never found, but examination of his logs revealed that in actuality he had never left the Atlantic.

Authors Tomalin and Hall have done detective work worthy of Scotland Yard in reconstruction of the bizarre Crowhurst tragedy. With journalistic thoroughness and understanding they have revealed the external events and the inner motivations that led to Crowhurst's ultimately tragic decision.

The book skillfully captures the chaotic scenes before departure — the boat hastily and inadequately prepared, the high spirited arguments between pro and anti-Crowhurst fans, the doubts that reduced

Crowhurst to private tears, the hint of doom sensed by perceptive BBC reporter Donald Kerr: "He (Kerr) quietly ordered his camera crew to shoot in the awareness that they were no longer publicizing a potential triumph, but a potential tragedy."

Once at sea, Crowhurst met insurmountable obstacles. Much of what actually occurred on the "Electron" can only be surmised but, based on exclusive access to all records, the authors have revealed a man tortured by frustration, hopelessness and, finally, madness.

They point out Crowhurst was a man trapped by circumstance. Both his monetary difficulties and his self-respect dictated he must succeed. Desperation drove him to deception. He falsified his daily speed and position reports, entered into strange periods of radio silence, and made a secret landing. In the end, loneliness and the impossibility of his position proved too much for him. His log entries become increasingly erratic, ending in the philosophical ravings of a madman.

Tomalin and Hall have told it all, yet have managed to treat with compassion the actions of a basically courageous man. It's the kind of book you can't put down.

New hairstyles for spring and summer are pretty and romantic, reports the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association Inc. They are usually composed of supple waves that flow either in languidly sensual lines, or soft wavelets which are either highly defined or have just a suggestion of motion. Curly hair, too, makes the scene in all variations, from short half curls to clusters of spirals of true or false hair.

"So What's New?" theme scheduled for country club fashion show

TWIN FALLS — Using the theme, "So What's New?" members of the Blue Lakes Country Club Ladies Golf Assn. will present their annual luncheon and fashion show Thursday, March 25, at Blue Lakes Country Club.

The luncheon will be served at 12:30 p.m., with the fashion show to follow immediately.

Special music will be furnished by Johnnie Martizia, with models, Mrs. Glenn Jenkins, Mrs. Charles Sieber, Mrs. Gladys Lauterback, Mrs. Robert Warberg, Mrs. Harry Brown, Mrs. Robert Alexander, Mrs. Douglas Borlase, Mrs. Gordon Edgar, Mrs. James Henry and Arlie Harris, showing the latest in fashion's finery for Magic Valley women.

The models will be wearing fashions from the Mayfair Shop and Dave's Pro Shop, with shoes from Hudson's Shoe Store.

Mrs. Grace Cosgriff is serving as general chairman of the annual event, with Mrs. Vic Fliflet as co-chairman and Mrs. Clayta Christensen as decorations chairman. The show will be narrated by Mrs. Wayne Bauer.

Mrs. C. D. Hiatt and Mrs. A. Westergren will assist Mrs. Nell King in preparing the models for the show.

DISCUSSING FINAL arrangements for the Blue Lakes Country Club fashion show with two of the models, Mrs. Charles Sieber, center, and Mrs. Glenn Jenkins, right, is Mrs. Wayne Bauer, the narrator. Mrs. Sieber and Mrs. Jenkins are wearing current fashions from the Mayfair Shop. The Ladies Golf Assn.'s annual show and luncheon are set for 12:30 p.m. Thursday at Blue Lakes Country Club.

She introduced musicians, Ernest Moss and Kaye Nally, violins; Juliene Slaughter, viola; Helen Coiner, cello; Helen Allen, organ, and Del Slaughter, flute, who played hymns of the Moravian faith and accompanied Jacke Westendorf, soprano soloist.

Clinic slated Friday

TWIN FALLS — On Friday, March 26, the march of dimes will hold a special Birth Defects Clinic at the South Central District Health Department offices in the Twin Falls City Hall.

This clinic will be staffed by Dr. Garth Myers and associates of the LDS Primary Children's Hospital in Salt Lake City. This is a follow-up service of children who have been treated at the Birth Defects Center there. This is a consultative service to doctors in the area who have new and old patients whom they wish to have seen. Approximately 25-30 patients from the eight counties of Magic Valley will be seen.

The South Central District Health Nurses for all of Magic Valley are advisory to these patients throughout the year, along with their over 500 Crippled Children's Service patients who are under their regular programs for the children with neurologic, orthopedic, heart, cleft-palate, plastic and burn, and other defects or handicaps referred by local physicians.

Auxiliary honors guests

Guests were Neta McClain, Eden, fifth district president, and Lena McClain, Hazelton, department community service chairman.

Mrs. W.L. Lockhart was chairman of the special meeting. Mrs. Laverne Koutnik poured coffee and Mrs. Rose Sinclair poured tea at a table decorated in a St. Patrick's theme. Committee members included Nora Lewis, Lysle Gardner, Maurine Terry and Avena Jackson and Mrs. Leone Salmon.

Their children are Verl McBride, Burley; Glen McBride, Rupert; Kenneth McBride, Bountiful, Utah; Elva Merkley, Layton, Utah; and Bonnie Bartlett, Pocatello. They have 21 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

This week . . . Where to go in Idaho

BY PHYLLIS J. HUFFMAN
Idaho Dept. of Commerce and Development

BOISE — For the young and young at heart, Lewiston has two very special events this week. Fanciful puppets prance across their wee stage to the delight of all on Tuesday, 7 to 8:30 p.m., Lewis-Clark Normal School Auditorium. Admission is only a quarter or fifty cents, depending on age. Camp Fire Girls stage "Thinking Day" on Saturday at Nez Perce County Fair Pavilion with exhibits to stimulate and encourage creativity and good old-fashioned fun!

YWCA and Valley Peace Action Force sponsor a Festival of Peace and Hope, Saturday, Boise YWCA Auditorium, beginning at 2 p.m. The Festival includes art displays, music by Marsin Job Corps, social-action information booths, theater sketches, and musical jam sessions. Everyone's welcome.

Concerts and music programs are many this week with four scheduled in Rexburg alone. Of course, the reason for all this preponderance of sound might be the Spring Festival of Fine Arts at Ricks College.

University of Utah Chamber Singers begin the Rexburg Festival on Monday, followed on Wednesday by Ricks College Choir, and Thursday it's the Women's Choir Concert. Friday and Saturday, the World of Dancing unfolds with everything from ballet to jazz. All events are free (if you can imagine such a thing) and take place in Ricks College Fieldhouse, 8 p.m. each (except for the women's choir, performing at 2 p.m.)

Pocatello's Idaho State University has a recital listed for Sunday. Not like the ordinary, but a Festival of Music, 2 p.m., Goranson Hall; while in Twin Falls, Magic Valley Community Concert is Friday, 8 p.m., College of Southern Idaho Auditorium - Tipton Trio performing.

Lewiston has two contributions to music. On Friday, both reading skills and fine music will be combined to present "Letters of Mozart," 7 p.m., Lewis-Clark Normal School Auditorium (no charge).

Sweet Adelines produce their annual show on Saturday, 8 p.m., Lewiston High School Auditorium.

Set your alarm early on Friday so you don't miss this chance to see Yas Kakoshima perform expert mime as part of College of Idaho Convocation, 9:10 a.m., Jewett Auditorium, Caldwell. He's a fantastic artist and certainly well worth a few missed "winks" of sleep. University of Idaho-Wind and Jazz Ensembles tune up for a very different kind of concert on Tuesday, 8:15 p.m., also the Jewett Auditorium, Caldwell. Both events without admission tickets.

For fast paced thrills, mark Saturday on your calendar in the town of Lewiston; Banana Belt Stock Car Racing, time trials 1 p.m., races at 2:30; Speedway; Camas Prairie Trap Shooting Assn. meet at Lewiston Gun Club; and final matches of the Idaho State Championship Bowling Tournament both days of the weekend.

College baseball at the University of Idaho in Moscow: Monday, Eastern Washington; Tuesday, Whitworth College; and Thursday, Central Washington. Washington State University plays Lewis-Clark Normal School in Lewiston, Saturday. All the baseball games start at 1:30 p.m.

All you Boise Moms and Dads — if you're not planning a real trip for spring vacation, consider local fun for the youngsters. The YMCA offers an exciting program of activity, there's special matinees at the movie houses, and just about any Boise business would consider it a compliment if an adult-chaperoned group wanted to tour their facilities. Bogus Basin is experiencing one of the finest winter seasons ever, and it's far from over. Even if you don't ski, how about tubing, sleds or metal and plastic discs. The home-cooked food is great at the lodge and there's no sign saying only skiers can eat.

Don't forget the state museum, new state library, Boise Gallery of Art or countless other places that invite the visitor to stop in and look around. It amazes me how many children have never seen Idaho's state bird, on display in the capitol, or who walk casually over the four "famous" cracks on first and second floors without realizing they were caused by the 1959 Yellowstone earthquake. And if all this doesn't work, try spring housecleaning. That's always one sure way to keep the kids busy!

KATHY WALKER, right, works on another art-piece in the class she did the poster in that won her first place in the state Jay-C-ette competition on drug abuse. Her poster was not available for the picture as it is in Boise and will be sent for the national competition. Miss Walker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Walker and is in the ninth grade at O'Leary Junior High School. Kathy's art teacher is Gordon Bybee, who is overseeing her present work.

DEAR ABBY: I have seven kids and a husband I cannot trust around the corner. When he goes out at night I never know how late he will be coming home. If at all.

I have found lipstick on his handkerchiefs, and even on his underwear. If I yell at him and say I am going to leave him, he asks where I think I am going to find a man who will want a woman with seven kids. Then he tells me that he is going to leave me and find a quieter, more understanding woman.

I am a good woman. Neat and clean and folks say I am a good looker. What can I tell him? ONE, PLUS SEVEN

DEAR ONE: You can tell him that it might be a lot easier for you to find a man who will want you and your seven kids than it will be for him to find a more "quiet and understanding woman" who would want him after he gets thru shelling out child support for seven kids.

DEAR ABBY: Ouch! I saw myself in one of your letters, and it hurt. A girl wrote that her father came across an article in a magazine which he thought was very interesting so he read the whole long boring thing aloud to his daughter and her boy friend who was there at the time. The young fellow, obviously bored, got up in the middle of it and found himself a newspaper to read.

One of my faults is interrupting my wife while she's busy watching television in order to read something to her. It usually turns out that she wasn't as interested in the article as I thought she'd be.

Come to think of it, Abby, maybe it was my wife who wrote that letter to you, and she used that "father-boy friend" bit just to throw me off the track.

I'm guilty, so I'll take 10 lashes with an old sermon outline. KENTUCKY PREACHER

DEAR PREACHER: If the shoe fits, wear it. But I can't allow you to suspect your wife. The letter came from New York.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, age 16, is pregnant and the boy is 18. They want the baby and want to get married right away. That is all right with us and with his folks, too, but here is the problem.

We have heard that if they get married in Minnesota the judge could force them to give up the baby. If this is true, we will see to it that they get married in another state, like Iowa or Wisconsin. Or do they have the same laws as Minnesota?

Please understand, the parents of both the boy and girl are backing up these kids 100 per cent and are willing to help out. DESPERATE IN MINNESOTA

DEAR DESPERATE: There is no such law in Minnesota, or in any other state.

DEAR ABBY: I cried when I read the letter from that mother who asked you how much room and board she should charge her son when he comes home from Viet Nam. If I knew that soldier's name and address I would invite him to come and live with my husband and me. For free.

We have a nice home and with an empty bedroom. Our only son was sent to Viet Nam a year ago. Three months later he was killed in action. He was only 18.

ERIN'S IRISH POTATO SALAD
3 large Idaho potatoes
4 tablespoons minced onion
1 teaspoon dry mustard
3 tablespoons sugar
2 eggs
1 cup cream, whipped
3 hard boiled eggs
Salt and pepper
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons melted butter
1/2 cup hot vinegar
Cook potatoes with their jackets on. Cool. Skin and dice. Add chopped hard boiled eggs, onion and salt pepper to taste. Set aside a few minutes before adding dressing.

For dressing, mix mustard, salt and sugar. Beat up eggs with melted butter and hot vinegar. Cook over boiling water or low heat until thick. Cool thoroughly.

Combine with whipped cream and mix with potatoes. Makes six servings.

The Times-News will pay $5 each week for Magic Valley Favorites. If you have a favorite recipe, just mail it to the Recipe Department, Women's Page Editor. The recipe becomes the property of the Times-News and cannot be returned.

Free bowling instruction set for girls

TWIN FALLS — Free bowling instructions for Camp Fire and Blue Bird girls will be held March 22 after school at the Bowladrome.

The instructions are given free only to those girls who have never bowled. This is preliminary to the bowling parties April 12 and 15 at which time no instruction will be given.

The next leaders' association meeting is March 31 and will be held at the Camp Fire office at 9:30 a.m. All leaders are urged to attend since bowling parties are scheduled for April. The Mother-Daughter social and leaders' preparations for Grand Council Fire will be discussed. If the leader is unable to attend this meeting, she should encourage her assistant or sponsor to sit in.

The third grade leaders with girls doing special programs should have their reports in to the Camp Fire office by April 1st so awards can be obtained. All leaders are reminded to turn in their award sheets on girls for Grand Council Fire by April 1.

The roller skating parties which were held this past week were very successful according to officials. Two-hundred-eighty-one girls had attended through Wednesday. The Grand March seemed to be the highlight of the parties. Refreshments were served at the close of each session.

Now that you've been through the ABCs of fashion and furniture with the Times-News and local merchants, meet Kathy Hernandez, modeling some of the now clothes for the young woman. Kathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jose Hernandez and a junior at Twin Falls High School. Her clothes, starting at the top, include a brushed velvet look light blue two-piece vest suit for school or dress wear; a brown and white checked two-piece pioneer outfit which looks like a dress but is actually wide ruffled pants, topped by a short top which bares the midriff, and a pair of bright yellow hotpants featuring a bib centered with a patch pocket, all from the Paris. The pantsuit at the bottom is from the Mayfair and boasts a great look for spring and summer sportswear. The brown two-piecer is trimmed with brown. Kathy's shoes are from Chuck's at the Top of the Stair. All photos in this special edition are by Mike Robertson, Times-News staff photographer.

FOR SEN. HUGH SCOTT,
Pennsylvania

If industry and big business find it advisable, in some cases, after many years of excellent service to the company, to retire personnel, when they reach the age of 65, regardless of position, why should this not apply to elected public officials as well? Or should we consider the task to legislate less demanding on mind and body?—E. R. Weiss, York, Pa.

● Age should not be the qualifying condition for public service. When one reaches the age of 65, he need not be put out to pasture. Living this long and gaining great amounts of wisdom and experience should in itself make one an even greater asset to his profession. Many industrial organizations do not necessarily agree with the philosophy of mandatory retirement at the age of 65 because of the outstanding ability many people over 65 possess.

FOR VIRGINIA KNAUER, Presidential Adviser on Consumer Affairs

How can we tell, in order to avoid, which toothpaste and mouthwash contain sugar for flavor?—Mrs. Bette Beabes, York, Pa.

● Generally, toothpastes are considered cosmetics and therefore are not required to list their ingredients according to federal regulations. Mouthwash manufacturers are also not required to list the contents. Your only alternative is to request the information from the manufacturer of the product.

FOR MAX COLWELL,
Executive Secretary of the Tournament of Roses

How many U.S. Presidents have seen a Rose Bowl football game?—Bill Hill, Langdon, N.D.

● Presidents Richard M. Nixon, Dwight D. Eisenhower, and William Howard Taft all saw Rose Bowl games. Mr. Nixon attended the 1939 USC-Duke game with Kathryn Patricia Ryan. They were married a year later.

FOR CURT COWDY,
NBC baseball reporter

What ever became of "Barefoot" Joe Jackson, who was involved in the 1919 baseball scandal?—John C. Terry, Mesilla Park, N. M.

● "Shoelace" Joe Jackson died on December 5, 1951, in Greenville, S.C.

New York City

Regarding an estimate of the population of Manhattan Island, what is its resident population, what is its (work-week) daily population, and what is its estimated daily transient and tourist population?—G. I. Holden, Lakewood, N.J.

● The resident population of Manhattan is 1,600,000. On a weekday, the total swells to 4,250,000, including 2,200,000 who commute to Manhattan to work and 450,000 who visit us as tourists on an average day.

parapsychologist and Research Assistant, Newark College of Engineering

I have heard that you test executives for Extrasensory perception potential and claim successful executives have ESP. If so, would you please explain the test?—John Long, Bloomington, Ind.

● If I tested you, I would give you an IBM card that would have 100 rows of the numbers one to 10. You would then be asked to punch a hole in each row. Before you started, you would be urged to do it without thinking or trying to outguess the card. When you were finished, you would have a number of 100 digits. Then I would slip the card into the computer and the computer would come out with a random number. Now say the first 10 digits of your serial number were 1210339607. The computer's first 10 were 3222348177. The second, fifth, and 10th numbers all match up. For the executives who have been producing money-making decisions for their companies, the score has been about 12.5 match-ups per 100. For the presidents who have been missing the boat, the average is about seven match-ups per 100.

FOR JOHNNY CASH, singer

Who and what contributed most in turning your career into success?—Jean M. Obrey, Paradise, Utah

● I can cite no single point at which I became a singing success. My first recording for Sun Records over 15 years ago was a hit ("Hey, Porter"). I have been making money at it ever since. The recording of "Folsom Prison" in 1968, however, did seem to launch me to new heights, giving me a whole new audience and broadening my general appeal. Soon after that came the offer of a network television show.

FOR RAYMOND BURR, actor

Do you really make good chili, or is it part of the tv character, "Ironside," you portray so well? I would love to see your recipe since it is a favorite with us in this part of the country.—Mrs. Therese LaForge, Santa Fe, N. M.

● Yes, I can make chili—also bouillabaisse and a number of other complicated dishes, since gourmet cooking is a hobby of mine. I won't, however, go on record with my chili recipe because making chili to suit yourself is like making a martini . . . somebody always insists he knows a better way. (Let's just say that my chili tends toward the kind they serve in Santa Fe—very hot!)

● There is no reason to exclude any American of any ethnic background, male or female, from the office of President of the United States.

FOR JACKIE GLEASON

How did you get started in show business?—Bruce Garabrandt, Neptune, N.J.

● I knocked a Bible off a lectern at grammar-school graduation from P.S. 73, Brooklyn. The kids laughed when the principal stopped and picked it up for me. I liked the laugh and figured that comedy was for me. After graduation, I went to work for $2 a night emceeing amateur nights at the Folly Theater in Brooklyn.

FOR ANTON HULMAN, JR.,
President, Indianapolis

Who selects the pace car for the Indianapolis "500" race, and what qualifications are necessary for a car to be selected?—Tom Mucha, Green Bay, Wis.

● The pace cars for the annual 500-mile race are selected by the management of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. The car is frequently selected to recognize a particular innovation in styling or performance. Or the choice may be made to honor a certain manufacturer's accomplishment in the transportation field over a long period of years. Usually we try to choose the "most exciting" new car or the one which is likely to gain greatest public acceptance in the passenger-car line.

FOR THOMAS M. TIERNEY,
Director, Bureau of Health Insurance, Department of Health, Education & Welfare

What is the biggest threat to Medicare?—Mrs. D. F. Cooke, Utica, N.Y.

● The greatest threat to Medicare is the continuing escalation of medical-care costs. From 1965 to 1968, medical-care prices increased at the annual rate of 5.8 percent, compared with a 3.3 percent increase for all consumer items.

FOR ROONE ARLEDGE,
Vice President,
Sports, ABC-TV

How is it possible for the "swish" sound of a golf club used in a mid-fairway shot to be heard on tv?—H. J. Johnson, Middletown, Ohio

● We always have cameras and microphones at the scene of action, even in mid-fairway.

Should We Raise the Minimum Age for Marriage?

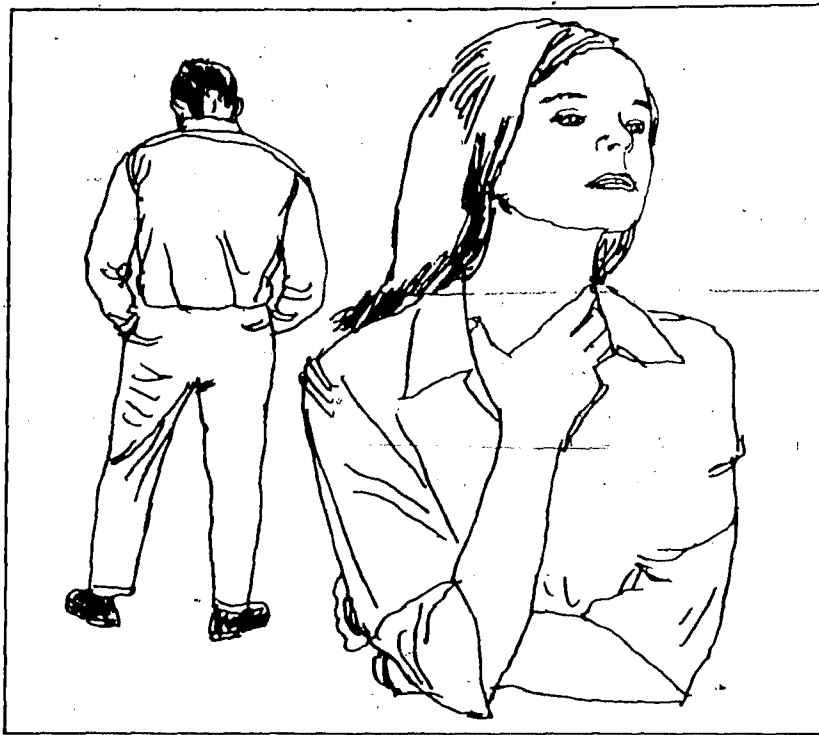

By Francene Sabin

Alice North's father died when she was a baby, and she grew up in a home where she was entirely surrounded and influenced by women. As a child, she created a fantasy about the father she never knew, basing it on her yearnings and the lovely things her mother and older sisters said about him. So it was predictable that she came to idolize an unreal, ideal male, and she romantically vowed to marry the perfect man.

When Alice was 12, she began steady-dating Bob, a school classmate. Her mother and sisters laughingly called it "puppy love," and she so resented their mocking her "true love" that she made Bob promise to marry her as soon as they were old enough, to prove everyone wrong. For the next five years they rejected all arguments against the marriage. When Alice's mother asked how Bob would support them, Alice accused her of being too mercenary. In her movie-version view of marriage, Alice would scrimp and save, and, with her perfect husband, have a beautiful life. Their parents finally gave permission, and the two 17-year-olds were married.

For a while Alice rejected the idea that Bob could do anything wrong. Her reasoning was: since he is perfect, everything he does is perfect. Consciously, Alice excused all of his faults. Subconsciously, she was storing up a catalog of complaints. Bob, defeated by his wife's martyrdom, and aware of the impossible role he was playing, began to feel inadequate. He knew that he could never be accepted by Alice as anything less than ideal. He tried to talk with her about it, but she refused to listen. At last, in an attempt to release his suppressed rage, Bob began secretly dating a more realistic, accepting female. Alice found out, and the marriage fell apart.

This real case is one of thousands of immature-marriage histories added every year to the records of Family Service Associations. The United States is a nation of people who marry early and, increasingly, divorce early. Our divorce rate rises each year, and currently more than one of every four marriages ends in divorce. Many more continue in sadness and misery.

"Society does not give a driver's license to any applicant until he proves he can handle a car. What knowledge does a person need to be mature enough for marriage?"

While every sensitive adult shares the FSA's concern about the breakdown of America's family life—resulting in divorce, desertion, abandoned children, abused children, etc.—few seem to be willing to accept changes that might help our marriage-minded youngsters grow up socially and emotionally. The National Center of Health Statistics of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare estimates that more than half of all divorces in this country occur before the parties involved reach the age of 24. Almost 33 percent of all divorced couples are teen-agers. Additional evidence: 62 percent of all divorced men and 75 percent of all divorced women were under 25 at the time of marriage. This is ample proof that, while being older doesn't guarantee maturity, the probability of divorce does drop as the age at marriage rises. In the words of the U.S. Divorce Statistics Analysis, "The likelihood of divorce is higher for persons who married at an early age than for the total married population."

Dr. Nathaniel Boonin is a New Jersey psychiatrist and child psychiatrist with a special interest in the problems of the too-young marriage. Says Boonin, "In teen-age marriages, in particular, there is a fantastically high percentage of premarital pregnancy. It is extremely rough on children to be born when their parents aren't ready for them and don't have enough to give them. The sad part—and I've seen this over and over again—is that the teen-age girl who gets pregnant and marries is having a baby to make up for the fact that she wasn't taken care of. Case after case has shown that the emotionally starved or malnourished girl isn't able to give love to the child because her own needs haven't been met.

I recently spoke with a teen-age girl who had an illegitimate child, then ran off and married the child's father, who is in his 20s. Since she is a minor, the ceremony was illegal—but once they're married, they're married. If we leave this girl to her own devices, the odds are certainly against her and her baby. If the state is willing, we can provide a mother substitute who will be the kind of mother that can help this teen-ager become an adult. It would be much cheaper for society than taking away the child and putting the girl in an institution—which probably would mean that when she got out in a couple of years, she would get pregnant by somebody else. We have to help teen-agers rather than punish them for being human and having needs."

Can these teen-age tragedies be prevented from happening thousands of times each year? Doctor Boonin believes so. Society, he says, does not give away a driver's license to any applicant until he proves he can handle a car in traffic and unless he can see well and understand the signs and law. What competence and knowledge does a person need to make him mature enough for marriage? A married person should be able to take responsibility for another; should be emotionally able to share; and should be prepared for the sexual part of the relationship. Doctor Boonin believes we must make premarital counseling and sex education a significant part of every young person's schooling.

The 1970 White House Conference on Children agrees: "At the present time, American schools give only minimal attention to the one sphere of activity which almost all their graduates will share as adults—parenthood. The best preparation for parenthood that can be given to school-age children is direct experience, under appropriate supervision, in caring for, and working with, those younger than themselves."

"We need a system to help young people grow up emotionally healthy as a means of preventing the immature marriage," Doctor Boonin says.

"My proposal is—let us see if we can generate, stimulate, and focus a broad-based concern about the fact that an awful lot of people in our society enter marriage before they are ready and have children before they are ready. There are many people who are 21—legal adults—who are very wet behind the ears and very unready for marriage. I'd like to see a program that provides some assistance in growing up for this kind of person, rather than the one we now have, which says, 'Okay, at 21 you can do whatever you want, whatever the consequences are.' I'd like to see marriage considered from the standpoint of maturity and the degree to which a person is aware of the fact that he is taking on responsibility as well as achieving certain status." ♦

"For many, the tired, worn-out morning feeling is an old story. The cause of such fatigue can be too much rest."

You Can Get Up In the Morning

and Margaret M. Regnier

A sage once said, "To develop character, each day do two things you dislike." Replied the wit: "That's easy. Every night I go to bed, and every morning I get up again."

For millions of bleary-eyed Americans, morning is the low point in the day. They wait until the clock shows the last minute, then disrupt the family, mistreat the dog, and anger co-workers waiting in the car-pool.

When a young couple came to Conciliation Court—last resort before divorce in some states—one of the wife's chief complaints was that her husband loathed getting up in the morning. He would dress in frantic haste, demanding that she hold a breakfast tray at his elbow so he could shave and eat at the same time.

In another case, a salesman, Jack A. lost three jobs because of persistent tardiness and absenteeism. His manager told a creditor who came to see him about Jack, "He would have been our top man if he had performed on the road as he did here at the home office on Mondays and Fridays. As it was, away from home he couldn't get started. We had to let him go."

You're fortunate if you are instantly alert on awakening. For many, the tired, worn-out morning feeling is an old story. Strangely, cause of such fatigue can be too much rest. Too much sleep can be as disruptive as too little. It can be debilitating.

Studies with volunteers have found that sleeping late—getting 10 or 11 hours of sleep—can result in a feeling of being lethargic and irritable for up to four hours. Late sleepers on weekends may complain of mild headache, of being washed out, blah. Despite extra sleep, they feel tired, even exhausted.

There are people, called hypersomniacs, whose lethargy has a medical origin. Real hypersomniacs sleep through the alarm and continue to be drowsy, confused, and disoriented up to two hours after awakening. But true hypersomnia is abnormal and rare. Some people normally wake up slowly. If it's difficult for you to begin the day, you probably have lots of company.

Such all-worn-out symptoms bring many to seek medical advice. Yet doctors generally agree that 75% of "fatigue" cases they see in their offices are psychosomatic—the result of tension, anxiety, depression, and other factors taking the joy out of life.

Writing in "Psychosomatic Medicine" Dr. Gordon C. Globus says, "Excessive sleep is frequently seen in the milder neurotic depressions, particularly among young adults. It is a defensive response which accomplishes withdrawal from painful reality." In "Keeping Young in Business," author Auren Uris says, "A man besieged by troubles at home, in conflict with a colleague or superior, or facing a particularly unpleasant assignment can be tired without ever lifting a finger. If the problem is emotional, the only way the man can find relief is to quit worrying; he must realize that worry doesn't alleviate the basic problem and can only impair his physical health."

Psychological problems are rough on us. But we only make them worse by letting them go on and on. If you feel all dragged out after a night's sleep, have a checkup with your doctor. A medical examination can rule out physical causes of chronic fatigue.

When you see the doctor, tell him what you think is really bothering you. Dr. Walter Alvarez says he never overlooks human nature in his practice of medicine. "Very often," he recalls, "I talk with the patient's spouse as well as the patient. Soon he or she will say something like, 'Well, doctor, the trouble started when . . . and then will relate specifics in the patient's history which point to an underlying cause of his trouble. This has happened too often to ignore."

"Sleeping late can result in lethargy."

Related to resolving emotional conflict is the practice of looking at the positive side of the picture. Develop a positive mental image of yourself.

The idea is to form in your mind the picture of yourself as you want to be. Instead of a slug-a-bed, see yourself up and doing. "A person's self-image is the only thing which sets the limits of his potential achievement," insists Dr. Maxwell Maltz, famous plastic surgeon and angel of thousands whose features, altered by his skill, now give them a new view of their inner selves. Like a self-fulfilling prophecy, the self-image or picture of yourself you habitually carry in your mind, tends to come true. To change your habits successfully, change your self-image.

First, check with your doctor to rule out physical causes for your morning fatigue.

Second, make it easier to get up in the morning by making all decisions as to what you will wear the night before. Lay out keys, samples, work materials.

In the same manner lay out your morning schedule. Write down the night before the first two or three jobs you will do the next morning. Writing will firm it in your mind, so that the next morning your follow-through will be almost an impulse. Each night, give calm, direct, clear orders to your subconscious mind. You will thus tap a great source of energy and remove much of the resistance to getting up.

If you need an alarm clock to rout the sandman, get a good one. Then sound a new note for peace of mind and family tranquility—first thing every morning. ♦

Tampax tampons were developed by a doctor so you can assure her they're safe. Even if your friend has just started menstruating.

They're comfortable to use because the container-applicator is silken-smooth. And it helps her place the tampon correctly. Tampax tampons are softly compressed for maximum protection . . . protection she can count on. And disposal's no problem at all. Everything flushes away.

The Problems That Worry Today's

By Jean Adams

The President's recent Commission on Campus Unrest appeals to all adults to undertake to understand the feelings of the youth of today. The Commission's findings suggest that the dangerous gap in our society is threatening the survival of our nation. Perhaps my teen mail and daily contact with teens will give you a better understanding of youth's needs of the moment.

Six years ago, when I started answering teen-agers' questions, few wrote me, and most of those who did had simple matters of etiquette on their minds. Today I get up to 2,000 letters a week. Only a smattering of them are about etiquette. Ninety percent are about sex, drugs, trouble with parents, or some mixture of the three.

I have just finished a lecture tour on which I personally talked to, and listened, to 20,000 teen-agers. These conversations, plus the thousands of letters written to my Teen Forum question-and-answer column in newspapers, tell dramatically where teen thoughts are today.

1. Boy-girl problems, including serious questions on sex—50 percent.
2. Parental problems, including alcoholic, quarreling, or divorced parents—25 percent.
3. Vices, including drug use—15 percent.
4. Grooming and fashions—eight percent.
5. Etiquette—two percent.

When I began "Teen Forum" six years ago, teen boys were interested in how to help a girl into a car; girls wondered about what length gloves to wear. Today both boys and girls are more interested in such subjects as world affairs and sex.

Anyone who says our young don't indulge in sex doesn't know what's happening in 1971. I'm not saying that all teen-agers do, but I am saying that more do than ever before—and they don't hesitate to talk about it.

As a statistical example, I recently visited a school in Europe. The school nurse informed me that they had had two pregnancies in the past school year. Upon returning to the United States, I visited a school of the same size in the Southwest. The school nurse informed me they had had 60 pregnancies in the past school year. This is one reason why I'm for sex education beginning at least at the fourth-grade level. I am also concerned that I get the following type of letter each month:

Can I become pregnant at parties where we play kissing games? I think I know how far to go with a boy, but I just want to make sure.
—Worried.

People often ask me whether I receive many nut or kook letters. No, I don't. When a teen-ager sits down and writes five to nine pages pouring his heart out, he's not being silly; he's usually desperate. In answering their questions, my philosophy is to tell young people the price they will pay for any of two or three choices—whether the question is about interracial marriage or drugs or alcohol. I believe parents, administrators, religious leaders, and other adults must be honest, reasonable, and free in their discussion of today's problems, so that our youth can know the price of every decision. Then, hopefully, the young people will make sensible decisions about what route to take. Sweeping such issues as pregnancy and marijuana under the carpet will not help us cope with the problems of our time.

Children of divorced or alcoholic parents contribute heavily to my parental hangup mail (25 percent). But even in some of the happiest families, when teen-agers are writing about such mild problems as their hair length, they will add a P.S., "Please don't send me a personal answer. My parents read all my mail!" Only a few teen-agers (yet enough to cause me concern) are threatening suicide or running away from home because of a parent-child communication gap. An example of severe communication-gap-itis is illustrated by the following letter:

I have a problem which I think is pretty serious. I hate my parents. It sure isn't a very nice thing to say, but I hate them. I dread living with them! They are so weird I just can't stand them. All they do is force me to do things. I have been wanting to write to you because they make me so mad, but I always forgive them. But now I just can't stand them any more. How can I tell them I hate them and don't want to live with them? I am so embarrassed and upset about it.—Parent Hater.

Recently I was judge at the All-American Family Search. The teens of the 51 families attending were very honest in our forum discussions. They confirmed what my mail says about problems with parents:

- Teens want respect from adults.
- They don't respect an adult just because he's an adult. An adult must do what he can to merit a teen's respect.
- They want their parents to trust them more. Just because a girl broke her parents' trust once, she doesn't want to pay a price for it forever.
- They abhor inconsistent or hypocritical adult behavior—i.e., a father who takes up the collection plate on Sunday but goes out with women during the week or keeps pornography in his desk drawer.

I feel that much of the communication-generation gap could be avoided if we parents wouldn't make such big issues of what are essentially minor problems in the 11-to-13 age group. When a full-blown crisis develops over something, such as when to begin shaving legs, a girl is less likely to come to her parents when she's got a truly serious problem later. A sample letter:

How can I get my mother to listen to me about getting a bra and wearing make-up? I'm 13, and she still won't let me have or do these things. When I ask her about them, she laughs. I can never have a serious talk with her.—Laughed At.

About 15 percent of my mail deals with vices such as drugs, alcohol, cigarette-smoking. Drugs are the number-one vice. Most teens who write about drugs have tried them, have already paid a price, and are urging their peers to abstain. Many have had friends who have died from overdoses.

Some letters are from boys and girls with a friend on "Mary Jane" (marijuana) or LSD or heroin. They want to know what they can do to help the friend shake his habit.

A few girls, and a few boys too, have friends who drink or smoke too much and wish they would cut down or stop. And of course many, many are deeply worried about drinking parents.

Fashions and grooming have diminished to only eight percent of my teen mail. In this category, however, the number-one question of the moment concerns the mid-length. Ninety percent of the teens I interviewed dislike the new longer skirts (especially the boys). Teens want to wear what they like. They couldn't care less about what New York or Paris dictates. If they tend at all towards the midi, it's for an inexpensive coat to wear over a mini-dress.

One thing is clear: the day when a boy sits down and writes to ask me what side of a girl to walk on is long gone. And this should tell the adults who have their heads in the sand to pull them out. I would make these four suggestions:

- Consider drugs and sex at an early age.
- Listen before saying no—and try to have a two-way communication.
- Endeavor to be honest.
- Show that you genuinely care.

Today's teens are pretty smart. We can't fool them. And, if we try to, we're in trouble. ♦

Teen-agers Most

Jean's lecture series takes her all over the country talking to thousands of young people about problems.

"Only a few teens who write me are threatening suicide or running away from home because of a parent-child communication gap. But even in the happiest families, when teens are writing me about such mild problems as their hair length, they will add a P. S., 'Please don't send me a personal answer. My parents read all my mail!'"

James Brolin: The Fireplace And Slipper Type

If you were to visit James Brolin, Robert Young's young assistant on ABC-TV's "Marcus Welby, M.D.," at his Northridge, Calif. mini-breeding farm, and thought you were seeing spots before your eyes—you'd be right!

There are black spots on the white campaign chairs in his living room, black spots on his rare white harlequin great Dane, Buck, and spots on the white horses out in the back yard.

The chairs are both functional and decorative. The dog is but one of three canines lumbering about, and the horses are Appaloosas, which Jim is breeding as a business.

Lean and tall (almost six-three) Brolin looks a bit younger than he does on television (he's 30), but more handsome, with piercing hazel eyes that watch you from deep within his head. In spite of the fact that Jim's energetic little three-year-old Josh repeatedly emptied and filled his piggy bank, enjoying every metallic clank, Jim remained the loving father—contented, calm, and unruffled while we talked across the clanks.

There can be no doubt that Jim loves his home, his wife Jane, and his son. "I'm the fireplace-and-slippers, hearth-and-home type," he said.

Actually, Jim's introduction to fatherhood was not as smooth as he'd planned. He and Jane had arranged to have a nurse from Santa Monica come in after the baby was born. But when Jim went to pick up Jane and Josh at St. John's hospital in Santa Monica—the same city where he was born—he couldn't find the nurse. She had taken off by car for a funeral back East, and there wasn't time to find anyone else. Undaunted, Jim took over himself. "It was a little difficult for the first day or two because I didn't know anything about babies," Jim grinned. "Although there were four kids in my family, and I was the oldest, I never really had to do anything for the others. So it was trial and error there for a while. But we got along fine."

Taking care of Josh was a new experience, but Jim felt right at home preparing the meals. "He's an excellent cook!" Jane assured me. "In fact, I didn't like Italian food until I tasted the dishes he fixed, and now I am crazy about it. And while he's a gourmet cook, and I'm a plain-type cook, he likes everything I fix."

Jim is no harder to live with than he is to cook for, according to his slender, attractive Texas-born wife. "I'm the aggressive one. When I get mad, you know it! Temper in Jim doesn't exist. If we disagree, he'll think about it. Later on when the subject comes up, we quietly discuss it."

A friend of his family planted the idea of becoming an actor in Jim's mind when he was still in junior high in Santa Monica. He suggested Jim read for a part in a tv series he was doing. "I got all spruced up," Jim remembers, "and rode the bus down to Sam Goldwyn Studios. Looking up at those walls all around it, I felt the people inside must be something special—like royalty. When I walked in, it took me about 20 minutes to realize they were just like everyone else! And then I felt at home. I read for the part of a young cadet—rather, I stumbled through the pages of printed words they handed me—and then they told me to forget it! That hurt! The man had built me up to think I really had a chance. Then wham! Nothing."

Jim didn't give up. But he kept secret his decision to become an actor. Outwardly, Jim had many other interests. "I played football for a year and then spent a lot of time girl-chasing," he chuckled. He also became known as something of a mechanical genius around school and soon had more cars to hop up, overhaul, and rebuild than he had time for. "I like doing things with my hands," he said. "I like the intricacies of how things fit together. I've never had a repairman in the house." Still, he didn't enjoy working for his father, Henry Bruderlin, a building contractor. "I didn't like his being 'boss,'" Jim admits. "Besides, that was just so much pounding nails and sawing boards."

With the money he earned fixing cars, Jim paid his own way to Hollywood Drama School and later attended Santa Monica Junior College for a year "because I had to get my grades up to get into UCLA. I was a bad student. I didn't like school." Then Jim's father built a house for director Henry King, who got Jim an appointment with the casting director at Fox. I went there feeling, 'Well, here we go again.' But instead, he signed me up that very afternoon!"

Jim met Jane Agee in October, 1966. They were married 12 days later. "I'd been in Wyoming on location for 'The Monroes' for six weeks. A buddy picked me up at the airport, and I suggested we have dinner together. He couldn't because he was going over to Jane's place. I'd seen Jane before because she'd worked in almost every production capacity at the studio for 10 years. But we had never been introduced. He called Jane to ask whether she minded his bringing along 'poor old lonely Brolin.' She didn't."

The Broilins got into the horse business partly because they love animals, and partly because Jim feels it's good for his career to be able to handle a horse well. (He also writes, sings, surfs, and skin dives with the same idea in mind.) "If things get too bad acting, I'll just pull out. I can always raise horses. Don't misunderstand. I want to act. And I want to make a killing financially so I can make movies. Television is awful—you always have to settle for second best because there isn't time to do scenes over."

"On the show I come off like a young Robert Young. That's not the way I wanted to play it. When I was in Boston, I saw young doctors with long hair, beards, mustaches—really wild. They were honest enough to admit that one day they'd settle down and end up in practice, but right then they were going into the homes of people who were sitting in front of television sets waiting to die, and helping them. That's who I wanted to play. Somehow, it didn't work out that way. At least they let me ride a bike."

Jim has had his own Honda for about eight years and often goes trail-riding with some of his pals. "I may look very Establishment," he insisted, "but inside my head, I am very close to the young!"

Brolin, as Dr. Steve Kiley, on the set with Robert Young of "Marcus Welby, M.D."

All prizes will be awarded.

Official Rules Kent Castle Contest

- Using only the letters from the words "KENT MICRONITE FILTER CIGARETTES," make as many English words as you can consisting of four letters or more. Ex.: RENT, SCENT. Use letters appearing in the phrase "KENT MICRONITE FILTER CIGARETTES" as often as you wish. Ex.: MINIMAL, KNOCK. Winners will be judged by highest total of eligible words made.
- You may not use proper nouns, abbreviations, contractions, words with a hyphen or apostrophe. Decisions on word eligibility will be made by an independent judging organization whose decisions are final. Only words appearing in the main body of Webster's Seventh New Collegiate Dictionary are eligible.
- Word lists must be legibly typed or printed by hand on paper of your choice. You must also show total number of words made, plus your name, address and zip code. This is your entry.

4 Include with your entry the bottom flaps from any two packages of KENT or KENT MENTHOL cigarettes. Mail your entry and bottom flaps to KENT CONTEST, P.O. Box 1, Murray Hill Station, N.Y., N.Y. 10016. Enter as often as you like; each entry must be mailed separately with two bottom flaps enclosed and post-marked by May 15, 1971, and received no later than May 25, 1971. Entries become property of Lorillard. Winners will be notified by mail.

5 Entries for this contest of skill must be wholly the work of the person in whose name the entries are submitted and winners will be determined on the basis of the highest totals of eligible words.

6 In case of ties among potential Grand Prize Winners, a new phrase will be developed and will be supplied as needed to break the ties. Tie-breaking phrases will be sent by June 15, 1971 and must be returned by July 5, 1971. In case of ties among Second Prize Winners, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

NOTE: In the event of tie-breaking runoff further proof of purchase is not required.

7 The fifty Grand Prize Winners will each receive a one week stay for two at the elegant Churchill Hotel in London including a fabulous Castle tour and medieval feast in Kent, England. Trips will commence on August 8, 1971 and run through September 5, 1971. Each Grand Prize includes round trip air transportation for two and spending money of $500.

One thousand Second Prize Winners will each receive an attractive golden toned set of Kent Castle ladies' brooch and men's tie tac specially created by famous Trifari. ALL PRIZES WILL BE AWARDED. No substitutions or cash exchanges of prizes. A Grand Prize winner who cannot take the trip may transfer it to another individual of his choice.

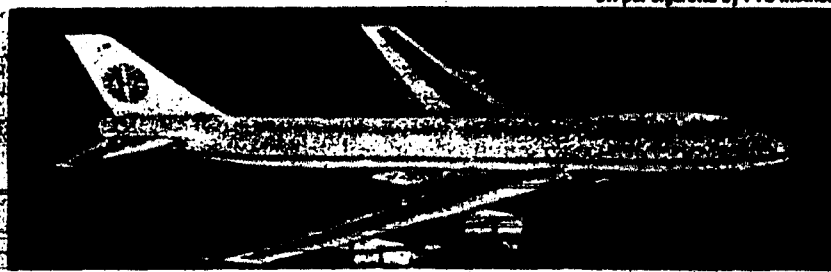

8 Contest open to all residents of U.S. over 21 years of age, except employees of LORILLARD and their families, its advertising and promotion agencies. Winners may be required to execute affidavits of eligibility and release for the sponsor's publicity purposes. Only one prize to a family. Liability for taxes is sole responsibility of the individual winners. Contest subject to all Federal, State and Local laws and void wherever prohibited or restricted by law.

HILLS OF SNOW

• Easy to grow • Fast growing

(3 for $2.50)
(6 for $4.98)

The Hills of Snow (Hydr. gea A. G.) is one of the most magnificent flowering shrubs. Begins blooming in July and is truly a sight to behold! Its large clusters of snow white blooms reach a diameter of about 6" and are borne so profusely that the bush appears to be a rolling mass of white. It blooms for weeks — from early July to October. Very easy to grow. Grows to only 4' thereby making it an excellent low growing flowering hedge, border or specimen plant. Requires little care or attention — grows even in poor soil. You receive hand selected 1 1/2 to 3' well rooted plants that will brighten even the darkest corners of your yard and garden.

RED TWIG DOGWOOD HEDGE

Only $2.98

(25 PLANTS)

(50 plants $5.75) (200 foot)

Some shrubs give beautiful spring flowers, others give nice summer foliage, and most seem to wither away unattractively each winter. But these hardy Red Twig Dogwood (Cornus Stolonifera) have beautiful clusters of white flowers in the spring, loads of lush green leaves in the summer, and in the winter, when you expect a drab yard, they put on a fiery show of color with their bright red stems contrasting against the snow — an outstanding year around hedge! You get nice 1 to 2 foot well rooted nursery grown shrubs. Grow to 6 feet, but can be trimmed for a beautiful hedge. SEND NO MONEY. On delivery, pay $2.98 for 25 plants or $5.75 for 50 plants, plus C.O.D. charges. We pay postage on prepaid orders. If not 100% satisfied, just return shipping label for refund of purchase price — you keep the plants. (1 year limit)

(100 for $5.00)
(200 for $10.00)

The last time you picked strawberries — or bought them — how many did it take to make a quart? Eighty? One hundred? More? Regular strawberries are so small — most people lose count! But with this hardy variety, you can expect quarts FROM JUST 30 STRAWBERRIES! And these extra-sweet berries (Giant Robinson) are highly disease resistant, they ripen very fast, plus they produce lots of new runners to give you a bigger patch every year! Have wonderful big strawberries for jams, freezer, fresh desserts for months! And GET A HEAD START — by planting now! SEND NO MONEY. On delivery pay postman cost shown, plus postage and C.O.D. charges. We pay postage on prepaid orders. If not 100% satisfied, just return shipping label for refund of purchase price — you keep the plants.

CAUTION!

The most frequently noted "complaint" on these marvelous berries is that most people just didn't think to order enough! Honestly, you will want at least 50 of these plants to start — even for smaller patches.

Sensational GROUND COVERS!

Easy-To-Plant, Easy-To-Grow . . . Become More Beautiful Every Year!

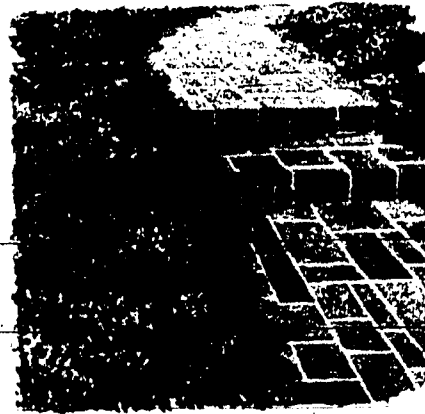

Masses of color

CREeping PHLOX

3 for only $100 (8 for $2.00)
(20 for $4.00)

Can you imagine a sight more lovely than dwarf masses of glowing color appearing in early spring? Creeping Phlox makes a sight this lovely. Perfectly rounded balls of color growing only 4 inches tall. And Creeping Phlox have three wonderful advantages. First, they stay green the year round. Secondly, they are masses of color in the early spring when few other things are in bloom. Third, they are wonderful for ground covers and borders. Grow in part shade or full sun. Rich color assortment of our choice: Rosy red, steel blue, pure white, pearl pink. You receive strong northern grown field divisions. Now is the time to plant so order TODAY. SEND NO MONEY. On delivery pay $1.00 for 3 plants, $2.00 for 8 plants or $4.00 for 20 plants, plus C.O.D. charges. We pay postage on prepaid orders. If not 100% satisfied, just return the shipping label for refund of purchase price — you keep the plants.

for 20 plants, plus C.O.D. charges. We pay postage on prepaid orders. If not 100% satisfied, just return the shipping label for refund of purchase price — you keep the plants.

CREeping RED SEDUM

Dragon's Blood)*

An Extraordinary ground cover for masses of summer flowers . . .

4 for $100 (8 for $1.75)
(12 for $2.50)

Rock gardens, borders, edging, under shady trees, and steep banks will be alive with carefree color when you plant this Creeping Red Sedum. Just place these hardy, northern nursery grown plants about one foot apart and watch them take over! Fill troublesome areas with a neat 3 1/2" tall cover that spreads fast yet doesn't need pruning. Depend on it for bright red, star-like flowers from June through September, attractive, thick, semi-evergreen foliage the rest of the year, even in sub zero weather! SEND NO MONEY. On delivery pay postman $1.00 for 4, $1.75 for 8 or $2.50 for 12, plus C.O.D. charges. We pay postage on prepaid orders. If not 100% satisfied, just return shipping label for refund of purchase price — you keep the plants.

GROWS AND SPREADS WITHOUT SPECIAL CARE IN SUN OR SHADE, EVEN IN POOR SOIL!

PLANT NOW — GROWS DURING WINTER!
THIS THICK, BLUE-GREEN SPREADING EVERGREEN

Spreads like mad to cover bare areas, steep banks and other tough spots!

SPREADING EVERGREEN

(3 for $4.00)
(6 for $7.00)
(12 for $13.00)

Now, with this Evergreen Carpet (Juniperus horizontalis procumbens), see one plant grow over ugly bare spots, even in poor soil, to cover 4 to 6' with a lovely, thick carpet of green that lasts 365 DAYS OF THE YEAR. NEVER GETS MORE THAN 5 TO 10" TALL! Instead, this hardy, drought-resistant plant uses its energy to grow horizontally. Does just fine in well-drained areas — even where sand and rocks prevail, in sun or partial shade! BEAUTIFUL WAY TO COVER "EYESORES." And it stays fresh and green year around, without getting that dull "winter look". Start it on trouble spots now. Plant about 4' apart — six plants will cover 24 to 36'. You get hardy plants from 3" pots. SEND NO MONEY. On delivery pay $2.00 for one, $4.00 for three, $7.00 for six or $13.00 for twelve, plus postage and C.O.D. charges. We pay postage on prepaid orders. If not 100% satisfied, just return shipping label for refund of purchase price — you keep the plants.

Spreads like a green carpet with Blue Flowers!

PERIWINKLE

- STAYS GREEN ALL YEAR
- BLUE FLOWERS IN SPRING
- NEEDS NO SPECIAL CARE

10 for $100 (25 for $1.98)
(50 for $2.98)
(100 for $4.98)

Now, for shady areas beneath shrubs and in other dim places, even where grass won't grow, you can have a 12-month carpet of thick, abundant, evergreen Periwinkle (Vinca minor). And every spring, in May, shade-happy Periwinkle gives you a wide profusion of beautiful lavender blue flowers that make the dulllest part of the yard look like a showcase! And it grows so vigorously, you can put Periwinkle in poor, stony soil on steep banks in rock gardens — practically anywhere. Does better in shade than grass, but likes sun too. Spreads and spreads — one plant grows to fill two square feet; (for quicker, denser effect plant one foot apart) gets 4 1/2" tall — all without special care. You get healthy, nicely rooted plants, ready for easy transplanting —

A Reader Writes: How I Met Danny

I had just gotten my plane ticket at Washington's Dulles Airport when my young son, staring at a man who had just passed, began to pull at my arm and exclaimed, "That man looks just like Danny Thomas!"

This followed with identical remarks from my wife and two daughters.

"Well, I'll just go up and ask him," I said, walking up beside a man I had only seen from behind.

I blurted out, "My son thinks you're Danny Thomas."

The man turned and smiled at me. "Where is your son?" he asked, looking around.

"I guess he ran away."

"Then I must be Danny Thomas."

He extended his left hand, excusing his bandaged right arm. "That's what shaking thousands of hands at a benefit last night did," he said.

He shook each of our hands awkwardly, palm down. When he extended it to me, I, feeling comical myself, remarked, "Shall I kiss it or shake it?"

Is Skibobbing "Next Year's Thing"?

It's easier, and a lot of skiing wallflowers may rush to meet the skibob's lesser challenge

When you visit a ski resort, your activity limited to drinking hot toddies by the fire or to nursing sprained and bruised portions of your anatomy? Then skibobbing may be for you.

One of America's fastest growing sports—and already a major winter activity in much of Europe—skibobbing is the happy faculty of combining the rousing excitement of skiing with the effortless navigational properties of bicycling. This winter, nearly 10,000 Americans, young and old, many of them beginning skibobbers, have negotiated slopes previously traveled only by expert skiers.

"If you already know how to ski," says Lee MacDonald, executive secretary of the American Ski Bob Association, "there's absolutely nothing to learning how to skibob. If you don't know how to ski, it may take you a little longer to learn—maybe as much as an hour. Almost anybody can become an expert with five lessons."

It is the safe and sane side of skibobbing that particularly enchants sporting manufacturers and winter-resort operators. At moderate speeds a skibob handles as easily as a bicycle. There is a ski beneath the saddle and a separate forward ski that can be swiveled from side to side for steering.

The rider sits astride a long, narrow, padded seat, crouched forward, grasping the handlebars. On his boots he wears a pair of 18-inch long "minis," on the back of which are attached sharp steel claws. It is the gripping property of the claws that enables a beginning skibobber to coast lightly down trails that only a skilled skier can handle. Also, because of the wider distribution of weight, he can lean across deep powder snow that would bury a pair of skis.

The "instant skiing" afforded by the skibob makes one wonder why the concept wasn't thought of long ago. As a matter of fact, it was—in 1892, when one John Stevens of Hartford, Conn., attached skis to his bicycle frame and invented the "Ice-Velocycle." Several other types of "single-track guidable sleds" were designed in different parts of the world during the early years of the 20th century, but

In the upper Bavarian ski resort of Kiefersfelden in 1950, another snow vehicle appeared. It was much lower than earlier models and had two movable skis. Its inventor was Georg Gfandler, Sr., and he called his invention a "skibob." It wasn't long before competitive skibobbing down the slopes of Bavarian mountains had begun to rival skiing as a major sport in the area.

In 1961 representatives from most European countries met in Innsbruck, Austria, and organized the Federation Internationale de Skibob (FISB) with headquarters in Munich, Germany. In 1965 the first American skibob club was organized in Santa Rosa, Calif., by William Cartwright, who was instrumental in forming the American Skibob Association two years later. Pioneering in the development of a sport runs in Cartwright's family. He is the great-grandson of Alexander Cartwright, who carried the gospel of the new game called baseball across the country more than 110 years ago.

William Cartwright also was instrumental in bringing the upcoming World Skibob Championships to the United States for the first time. The third world-title meet is being held in Reno, Nev., March 22 to 28, and more than 20 nations are expected to take part.

The international skibobbing body hopes to make the sport part of the official Olympic program at the 1976 Winter Games scheduled for Denver, Colo.

Competitive skibobbing seems certain to zoom in popularity in the next few years. But the recreational aspect of the sport and its availability to a vast American audience that would never dare to attempt skiing, should result in even more growth.

"There are some amazing stories of people who have taken up skibobbing," says Leonard Potter, president of Brenter Skibob, a major international manufacturer of the vehicle. For example, there's a 74-year-old man in Colorado who learned how to skibob two years ago and now goes skibobbing every weekend. There's even been an 87-year-old woman out on the slopes in Arapahoe Basin, Colo."

Clear evidence that skibobbing has become a major winter sport is the attention lavished on it by skiing people. "When I saw a skibob for the first time, I thought it was laughable," says Rinaldo Incomelli, noted Italian skier and a leading entrepreneur in Montana. "But one ride and I knew the skibob had to stay. Suddenly there was a way to do something for all those people who come to ski resorts only for the après-ski."

Herb Schneider, owner of the Mount Cranmore Skimobile in New Hampshire, says, "I'm sure the skibob will be a factor in every ski-area's future, even though many resorts have been unhappy with the way skibobs mark up the ski trails. Separate trails made especially for skibobbing will have to come."

Possibly the most optimistic statement concerning the future of skibobbing comes from the unlikely lips of Willy Schaeffler, coach of the University of Denver ski team, a former U.S. Olympic coach, and one of America's foremost promoters of skiing. "I believe," says Schaeffler, "that eventually skibobbing will be larger than skiing—two or three times larger."

Another sure sign that skibobbing has arrived is that two leading manufacturers of skibobs have begun to sign the top racers to exclusive contracts—and are suing each other. Can the first international skibobbing scandal be far behind? ♦

"One day it dawned on me that I was boring my husband to death."

When you're married as long as I am, you can reach a point where you start taking your husband for granted. Good old dependable Jim I used to say, and I guess that's how he was beginning to think of me, too. Good old dependable Barbara. It was horrible.

One day it dawned on me that I was boring my husband to death. It was hard for me to admit it—but it was true. It wasn't that I didn't love Jim, but often by the time he came home at night I was feeling dull, tired and drowsy. And so Jim would look at television and, for the most part, act like I wasn't even there. And I wasn't.

I decided that I had to do something. I had seen an advertisement for a tablet called Vivarin. It said that Vivarin was a non-habit forming stimulant tablet that would give me a quick lift. Last week there were a couple of evenings when I felt that I needed Vivarin. So, on those days, I took a Vivarin tablet at 5:00 p.m., just about an hour before Jim came home, and I found time to pretty up a little, too. It worked.

All of a sudden Jim was coming home to a more exciting woman, me. We talk to each other a lot more than we have in years—like we used to when we first were married and we'd take long rides in the old car just to be together and talk. And after dinner I was wide awake enough to do a little bit more than just look at television. And the other day—it wasn't even my birthday—Jim sent me flowers with a note. The note began: "To my new wife..."

A Pup's First Etiquette Lesson

How to Paper-train Your Dog

When a new puppy arrives in your house, it's instant love. But when the first spot appears on your rug, is it instant regret?

It shouldn't be. Those inevitable puddles are reminders that you have a job as well as a joy on your hands. Dogs are incomparable pets, but they do take time and training. Your urgent first step in teaching the house rules is, of course, housebreaking. So get out the newspapers, mount your patience, and keep a watchful eye on puppy for a while.

During the first week or two, it's a good idea to keep your new pet confined to one room, with a sizeable area covered in newspapers. Set up a short and easy trip from bed to "bathroom" for him by putting his bed in the same room but well separated from the papers. Dogs are naturally clean, and puppy won't want to soil his own nest.

Show puppy what is expected of him by placing him on the papers frequently—as soon as he wakes in the morning and after naps, following all meals, whenever you see him circling or squatting, and the last thing at night. Add a few extra times for good measure. When he uses the papers, even by accident, praise him. When you catch him in a mistake, scold him with a firm "No!" and immediately place him on the newspapers.

A few words of caution on praise and punishment: experts at Friskies Research Kennels advise that striking a dog, and especially a very young dog, accomplishes nothing. Even worse is the old cure of rubbing puppy's nose in the mess—a disgusting and totally ineffective punishment. And finally, discipline works only if it comes at the moment of the crime. Puppy has a short memory, and if you scold him five or 10 minutes later, he simply won't understand.

Dogs want very much to please. They respond to praise and verbal punishment better than to any other form of discipline. So when your pet performs in the right spot, tell him what a fine fellow he is, pat him, and occasionally reward him with a tidbit. Scold him firmly for mistakes, and don't follow your scolding with a remorseful hug.

As you see signs of progress, gradually cut down on the size of the papered area, and let puppy have the run of the house now and then. But watch him to make sure he has learned his lessons well. Dogs tend to return to their own odors. Take advantage of that inclination by keeping a damp paper on top of the pile during the early stages of training so that he'll keep coming back to it. And be sure to scrub immediately all mistake spots so that he won't return to these (use a strong disinfectant to remove odors).

How soon to expect success depends largely on the age of your animal. You should start training immediately, no matter how young your puppy, but don't expect victory until your dog is three to four months old.

Just remember that puppy is trying, and that he does want to please. If you make your lessons in household etiquette clear and simple, he'll give a spotless performance.

YOU MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS AND NOT KNOW IT

Fidgeting, loss of sleep and a tormenting itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infect 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do... and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge... small, easy-to-take tablets... special sizes for children and adults.

Denture Invention

Fixodent

For People With "Uppers" and "Lowers"

For the first time, science now offers a unique plastic cream that holds dentures—both "uppers" and "lowers"—as they've never been held before. It forms an elastic membrane that helps hold your dentures to the natural tissues of your mouth.

It's FIXODENT—a revolutionary discovery for daily home use. So different it's protected by U. S. Patent #3,003,988.

FIXODENT not only holds dentures firmer, but it holds them more comfortably, too. It's so elastic you may bite harder, chew better, eat more naturally.

The special pencil-point dispenser lets you put FIXODENT exactly where it's needed. Resists oozing over and gagging.

Just one application may last for hours. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get easy-to-use FIXODENT Denture Adhesive Cream at all drug counters.

THOSE HORRID

FADE THEM OUT

*Weathered brown spots on the surface of your hands and face tell the world you're getting old—perhaps before you really are. Fade them away with ESOTERICA, that medicated cream that breaks up masses of pigment on the skin, helps make hands look white and young again. Equally effective on the face, neck and arms. Not a cover-up. Acts in the skin—not on it. Fragrant, greaseless base for softening, lubricating skin as it clears up those blemishes. If you have these age-revealing brown spots, blotches, or if you want clearer, lighter skin, use ESOTERICA. At your favorite drug and toiletry counter. $2.00.

BACKACHE Joint Pains

You long to ease those pains, even temporarily, until the cause is cleared up. For palliative, or temporary, pain relief try DeWitt's Pills. Famous for over 60 years DeWitt's Pills contain an analgesic to reduce pain and a very mild diuretic to help eliminate retained fluids thus flushing out irritating pain causing bladder wastes.

DeWitt's Pills often succeed where others fail. If pain persists always see your doctor. Insist on

Shortcuts To Mexican Cookery

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ We can all enjoy the art of Mexican cooking because of the excellent frozen and canned Mexican convenience foods now available in supermarkets across the nation. Plan a complete Mexican menu using the prepared foods along with a few of your own favorite south-of-the-border recipes.

Cocktail Tacos with Creamy Dip

- 2 oz. bulk pork sausage
- 1 small onion, minced
- 1 cup drained canned tomatoes, cut in pieces
- 2 canned peeled green chiles, drained and chopped
- 2 pkgs. (12 oz. each) frozen cocktail-sized beef tacos (2 doz.)
- 1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 1 cup dairy sour cream

1. Brown the pork sausage and onion in a heavy skillet. Mix in the tomatoes and chiles; simmer, uncovered, 15 min.

2. Meanwhile, heat beef tacos following package directions for crisp tacos. Arrange on a heated platter and garnish with parsley sprigs.

3. Stir a blend of the cream cheese and sour cream into the hot sausage mixture in skillet. If desired, season with salt and pepper. Heat thoroughly.

4. Pile the warm dip into a serving bowl and serve with the hot tacos. About 3½ cups dip

Note: If desired, remove half of the sausage mixture from skillet to a bowl. Stir half of blended cream cheese and sour cream into mixture remaining in skillet; reheat when ready to serve. Mix remaining cream cheese-sour cream blend into mixture in bowl. Mix in 1 large avocado, peeled and mashed. Chill before serving with hot tacos.

Fiesta Tamale Casserole

- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 3 large cloves garlic, minced
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 lb. boneless lean beef, cut in ½-in. cubes
- 1 lb. boneless lean pork, cut in ½-in. cubes
- 2½ cups tomato sauce
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- 2 teaspoons oregano, crushed
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- ½ cup pitted green olives, sliced
- 1 pkg. (1 lb. 4 oz.) frozen beef tamales
- ½ to 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

1. Heat the shortening in a large skillet. Add the garlic and onion and cook 2 min. over medium heat, stirring occasionally. Add the meat cubes and brown evenly on all sides. Stir in the tomato sauce and a blend of the seasonings. Cover and simmer about 1 hr., or until meat is tender. Mix in olives.

2. Meanwhile, heat tamales in 425°F. oven following package directions.

Mexicali Punch is served icy cold as a contrasting complement to the highly seasoned hot Fiesta Tamale Casserole or Cocktail-Tacos with a creamy dip.

3. In a greased 2-qt. casserole, alternate layers of the heated tamales (with their gravy) and meat sauce; spoon some sauce across center top. Sprinkle with cheese. Set in a 425°F. oven until thoroughly heated. 6 servings

Mexicali Punch

- 1/2 cup chilled Sugar Syrup (see recipe)
- 9 cups (46-oz. can and two 12-oz. cans) Hawaiian punch, chilled
- 1 can (6 oz.) frozen grapefruit juice concentrate, thawed
- 1 qt. ginger ale, chilled
- Chilled fruit (strawberry halves, orange and lime slices)

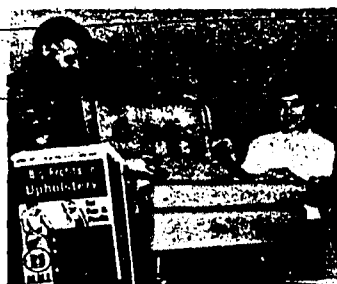

1. Combine Hawaiian punch, grapefruit juice concentrate and sugar syrup in a large pitcher with ice cubes.
2. Pour in the ginger ale and mix just until blended. Add desired amount of fruit. About 3 qts. punch

Sugar Syrup: Pour 1 cup water into a saucepan. Add 1 cup sugar and bring to boiling, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Cover and boil 5 min. Cool; chill covered in refrigerator. Use to sweeten beverages. About 1/4 cups syrup

Chicken Mexicana

- 2 broiler-fryer chickens (2 1/2 to 3 lbs. each), cut in serving-sized pieces, browned, and partially cooked
- 2 cans (8 oz. each) tomato sauce
- 1 can (13 1/2 oz.) chicken broth
- 2 tablespoons (1/2 env.) dry onion soup mix
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 6 tablespoons peanut butter, chunk-style or crunchy
- 1/2 cup cream
- 1/2 teaspoon chili powder
- 1/4 cup dry sherry

1. While chicken is browning in a large skillet, combine in a saucepan the tomato sauce, 1 cup of the chicken broth, the soup mix, onion, and garlic. Heat thoroughly, stirring constantly. Pour over chicken in skillet. Simmer, covered, 20 min.
2. Adding gradually blend the cream and remaining chicken broth into the peanut butter. Stir into skillet with chili powder and wine. Heat thoroughly. Serve with cooked rice. 6 servings

MINK OIL and BEAUTY!

You'd never guess my age if you met me in person. That's because my face is free from dryness and premature wrinkles. I discovered an astonishing beauty secret in my own back yard, I think most women will be excited to know how it happened. This is my story:

My husband owns and manages a mink farm where we live. Yet I taught him something that he, one of America's leading mink experts, had never realized. And that is this: locked within the oil glands of this costly small creature is a complexion beauty secret more precious than even the beautiful coats that come from it.

Almost without exception, men who handle raw mink pelts have hands that are "young." Some of our employees have been with us 25 years and more. A great many are approaching retirement. Yet there is hardly a one of them whose hands are not soft, smooth, unwrinkled—since the mink oil counteracted the excessive dryness and premature wrinkles.

None of them had those ordinary signs of aging—the thin, watery, tissue-y skin that is the usual sign of growing old caused by premature wrinkles.

I came to the conclusion that some substance in the body or skin of mink was being transferred to their hands during the processing procedures. Nothing else could account for their skin staying youthful looking while they grew old otherwise.

Then I decided if it was so good for hands, it must be equally good on face and throat—areas where most women first note the resentful signs of the years.

So I managed to extract a small quantity of the mink skin oil and enlisted a friend who is a chemist. He compounded the oil into a balm base and I used it on my face, throat and hands for a couple of weeks.

Imagine my delight and amazement when my skin responded to the mink oil that combated excessive dryness which causes premature wrinkles. Yes, my complexion became smooth and clear. I felt like a young girl again.

In just a few weeks I believed I had really uncovered a seeming miracle. Premature wrinkles gradually disappeared, leaving my complexion young, vibrant, glowing-looking and with that freshness every woman wants.

So, I am surprised to find myself in the beauty business—directing the production of my precious complexion aid and offering it to women for the first time... so that every woman can know first-hand the excitement of skin that stays young looking... Thanks to Mink Oil.

Yes, the secret I discovered from the mink workers is now yours. The precious mink oil that keeps their skin young looking is the basic wonder-worker in my fabulous beauty-aid—EMLIN® Essential Creme.

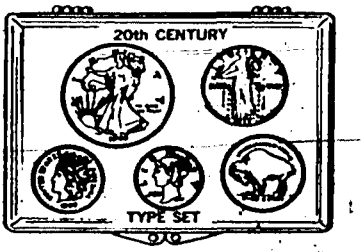

You can find out for yourself how amazingly effective it is. Like enjoying an expensive beauty treatment in a posh salon—but you do it in the privacy of your own home, without muss or fuss. And you don't risk a single penny for the revelation that took me years to uncover.

For... the fantastic results that my friends and I have enjoyed must be duplicated for you or I'll gladly refund your purchase price. I am so positive EMLIN® will work for you as it is doing for thousands of other grateful women, young and old, that if you are not totally delighted, all you have to do is tell me so and... no questions asked... I'll send you my personal check for your purchase price including postage.

Order your first supply of EMLIN® today. Send $5 cash, check or M.O. for 40 day supply. In no time, be on your way back to youthful-looking attractiveness.

*Changes in climatic conditions, temperature, humidity—the use of soaps and detergents—are often the leading causes of excessive dry skin which is accompanied by premature wrinkles and lines.

What in the World!

Totie on a Tiny Scale When roly-poly comedienne Totie Fields entertains on tv. or in a club, her audience is always enormous. When Totie entertains at home, however, it's always on a tiny scale. "I can devote more time to friends," Totie says, "if there aren't too many of them around. To me over 10 people is a mob scene." But what about parties? "I go to parties for good conversation, so I never ask a hostess who's coming," Totie insists, "only how many. You can't have good conversation in a mob scene." A big crowd is a very necessary thing, professionally, to a performer. How does she deal with that? She reduces any audience "mob scene" to her favorite "tiny scale." Her secret: "Talk to a million people as though you were talking to one person."

Buying Up the Good Earth Saved: some 150,000 acres of woodlands, lakes, prairies, in 42 states. The Nature Conservancy, Arlington, Va., is a non-Governmental agency which has been buying up some of America's natural beauty to preserve it from developers. According to the Ford Foundation Letter, the organization was founded in 1950 by dedicated volunteers—long before the present widespread concern for our vanishing wilderness. Of its 450 land-saving projects, the majority have been acquired through gifts. The Conservancy is able to guarantee that a family's property will be kept in its natural state in perpetuity. It also makes advance purchases for such Government agencies as the Park Service or buys up acreage in a checkerboard pattern to block woodland from being turned into denuded tracts. Some sites recently saved from the bulldozer are—a marsh in Jacksonville, Fla., a winter range for elk in Montana, 300 acres of California redwoods, parts of New York's Sawangunk Mountains, and a sagebrush strip of Death Valley.

Newspapers Against the Cold Whenever Holland has an "ice winter"—and it hasn't since 1963—the canals of 11 cities around Friesland become the scene of a 150-mile skating-endurance race. During the 14 grueling hours, competitors encounter a piercing east wind, churned-up ice, snow storms, hail, darkness. And frosbite! Many skaters swear by layers of newspapers worn under clothing to provide extra insulation and warmth. Some still use the old storybook wooden skate laced to their shoes. Die-hard Frisians strap them on—loosely, like slippers—to their stocking feet. Since the 17th century—when the first race was instituted—enthusiasm has run high. So has the mortality. Of about 5,000 skaters who enter each time, only a few hundred can endure to the bitter end.

What's in a Trillion? The term "trillion" is probably the largest number most of us have heard. A trillion is a thousand billion. It is also a million multiplied by a million. Americans write it with a 1, followed by 12 zeros. Britons and Germans write it with a 1, followed by 18 zeros. If this higher mathematics is too complicated, try using "zillion." The definition is up to the user ("a large, indeterminate number," according to one dictionary).

A Write-In President You could have been voted President of the United States in 1968! That is, if you'd filled basic requirements, like age, and had a well-known name. That year, only 73,211,562 out of an estimated voting population of 120 million voted. If the 39 percent who didn't had balloted one write-in name, instead, says Og Mandino, who wrote "U.S. in a Nutshell," that one could claim the majority.

A city man who owned a very small ranch had a half-dozen steers on the place.

Fearful that they might wander away and he would lose them, he decided that they ought to be branded with his initials. Calling the foreman of a nearby large working ranch, he said, "I'd like to discuss the branding of a number of steers of mine."

"Yeah, how many?" roared the busy, impatient foreman.

"Six," came the reply.

There was a deathly hush, broken only by the background noise of hundreds of steers on the large ranch.

One clerk, fed up with red tape, buck-passing, forms, office politics—and above all, efficiency experts—growled, "I don't do a thing."

The interrogator nodded and made a note, then turned to the other clerk. "And you, what's your job here?"

The second man, following his fellow worker's lead, replied, "I don't do a thing, either."

The investigator's face lighted up. "Hmmm," he said knowingly, "duplication!"

"Six," came the reply.

There was a deathly hush, broken only by the background noise of hundreds of steers on the large ranch.

—Dan Bennett

An efficiency expert asked two clerks in a Government office in Washington, "What do you do here?"

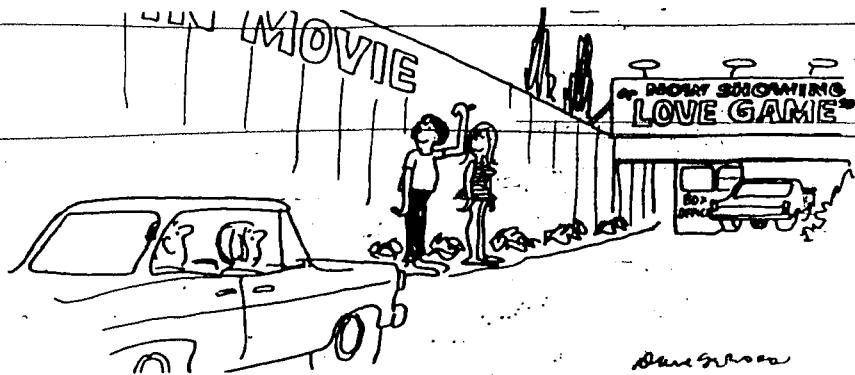

One clerk, fed up with red tape, buck-passing, forms, office politics—and above all, efficiency experts—growled, "I don't do a thing."

The interrogator nodded and made a note, then turned to the other clerk. "And you, what's your job here?"

The second man, following his fellow worker's lead, replied, "I don't do a thing, either."

The investigator's face lighted up. "Hmmm," he said knowingly, "duplication!"
