TEN CENTS

HOWARD TANKERSLEY, Boise, at blackboard, writes out a proposed membership chart for the new South Idaho Planning and Development Association during an organizational meeting Wednesday night in Twin Falls. Delegates included members of county commissions, city officials and Soil Conservation Service districts.

Plan planners

Bylaws, name OK'd for Valley planning group

TWIN FALLS — The South Idaho Planning and Development Association was formally named and strengthened with the adoption of bylaws by delegates from four counties Wednesday night in a meeting in Twin Falls.

The multi-county group has been meeting periodically in Cassia, Minidoka, Jerome and Twin Falls counties under the direction and guidance of Howard Tankersley, Boise, representing the University of Idaho Extension Service.

Tankersley and Twin Falls County Commissioner Heber Loughmiller conducted Wednesday's meeting which was attended by members of county commissions, city councils and city officials from the four counties, 17 incorporated communities in the four counties, and delegates from the seven Soil Conservation Districts in the region.

The title "South Idaho Planning and Development Association" was chosen to indicate that the interests of the group extend throughout south-central Idaho, and may ultimately involve all eight counties in the Magic Valley.

Dr. James L. Taylor, representing Twin Falls County as an "at-large" member, made the suggestion for the name which was endorsed by the other delegates.

Membership in the association will include one member of each county commission, one representative from each of the 17 communities, and one representative from each of the seven soil conservation districts for a total of 28 members.

An executive board will be named from the general membership, which will include one county-commission representative, one municipal spokesman from each county, who will represent all communities in the county, and one representative from all seven soil districts.

The executive board will meet at regular intervals to conduct the business of the association, while the full membership would meet about once a year, Tankersley said.

Tankersley presented a sample set of bylaws which were adopted by the delegates after lengthy discussion.

A three-fold "purpose of this association," according to the bylaws, includes: "Study district and governmental problems of mutual interest and concern; coordinate the planning efforts of the several members to the end that a coordinated comprehensive plan for the district shall be developed, and to formulate recommendations for review and action to implement plans and to encourage action by members, the Idaho Legislature and agencies of the state and federal governments."

Tankersley said funds might be available through the federal Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) Department's 702 fund series, available to properly organized planning and development groups. Each state is allocated a sum of money for distribution to regional development organizations, Tankersley said, and the new multi-county group might qualify.

Yanks leave border base

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. forces closed down their armed base at Lang Vei two miles from Laos today and pulled back deep inside South Vietnam. Communist forces moved across the border and their attacks claimed at least 22 American lives, field reports said.

UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman reported that a 90-vehicle convoy left Lang Vei on dusty Route 9, rumbled past the Khe Sanh air strip and stopped at a combat base 24 miles inside South Vietnam. That left Khe Sanh, 12 miles from the border, as the closest American base to Laos.

Military spokesmen in Saigon said all of the South Vietnamese forces that had moved into Laos Feb. 8 to cut the Communist Ho Chi Minh supply trail had moved back across the border by this morning. However, field reports said company of South Vietnamese marines were airlifted to Artillery Base Hotel, two miles inside Laos, by American helicopters to form an infantry outpost "with reconnaissance responsibility."

At Khe Sanh, GIs were busy dismantling the 360,000-square-foot helicopter assault pad, from which thousands of support missions were flown during the Laotian campaign.

The U.S. command also reported the loss of five more helicopters, bringing to 94 the number of American choppers destroyed while supporting the operation. Five men were reported killed.

Minico district crowded

BOISE — Legislative District 21-B in Minidoka County is "4,000 people too large; we've got to find a way to drop that many people," Rep. Steve Antone, a Republican, told the Times-News this morning.

Rep. Antone said that all legislative districts must be drawn to contain a population within five per cent of the "ideal" of 20,350 people, according to the 1970 Census. "We can be either five per cent up or five per cent down, but no more," Rep. Antone said. This means that each district must have between 19,333 and 21,767 population.

"There are 106 maps around here," Rep. Antone said. "Everybody's got one." Legislators are still debating the district lines at length, proposing an almost endless variance in boundaries.

"However, when you get down to drawing maps, they tend to get serious," Rep. Antone added.

"We heard today that the North Idaho and West Idaho areas are pretty well settled in their boundaries. It looks like they'll have to drop one district in eastern Idaho and add one in western Idaho, because of the population shift."

This would leave the same number of legislative districts throughout the state — but would shift their position somewhat.

"They may draw up a bill tomorrow," Rep. Antone said.

Murtaugh debated

BOISE — The Murtaugh area has become a point of contention for planners designing realigned legislative districts, according to Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl.

Sen. Barker told the Times-News today that "They want to take Murtaugh into District 25 in Cassia County, but we're resisting it strongly." He identified "they" as the District 25 legislative delegation.

"If they take Murtaugh into Cassia County's district, we'd have to realign both our districts all up and down the line," Sen. Barker said.

A preliminary realignment of Districts 23 and 24 in Twin Falls County would shift Precincts 2 and 7, now in District 23, into District 24, and would put Precincts 17 and 27 into District 23.

This would give District 23 a population of 20,913 and District 24 a population of 20,894, Sen. Barker said.

"The dividing line (between districts) would come up Harrison Street to Addison Avenue, then over along 7th Street North to Shoshone, and west along Shoshone to Washington Street," Sen. Barker said.

Streets aided, HB304 repealed

BOISE (UPI)—Gov. Cecil D. Andrus signed into law Wednesday bills giving cities revenue from one cent of the state tax on gasoline and repealing the four-per-cent limitation on automobile revenue increases.

Andrus also signed measures establishing a Consumer Protection Act, providing for comparative negligence in auto accident cases and four bills amending state election laws.

Among the election law changes are bills shifting the date of the primary back to Tuesday after first Monday in August and to make it possible for 18-year-olds to cast ballots for presidential and congressional candidates.

He also signed a bill to make the cougar a game animal and to remove the kingfisher, pelican, and cutthroat from the list of unprotected birds.

Russia injects new Suez arms

By United Press International
The Soviet Union has recently supplied Egypt with additional large quantities of war materiel including electronic air warfare equipment and sophisticated SAM-3 anti-aircraft missiles to protect the vulnerable Nile Valley from Cairo to Aswan, informed sources said today in Cairo.

The reports coincided with a series of warlike statements by Egyptian government and other officials that Egypt was prepared to resume the conflict with Israel if necessary. Egypt-Israel and Jordan were disclosed to have carried out large scale military maneuvers in recent days to prepare for such a contingency.

At the same time, Egypt was launching a major diplomatic initiative to get the stalled peace talks going again. Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad flies to Paris Friday where he will meet Dr. Mohammed Hassan Al Zayyat, the Egyptian ambassador to the United Nations, and Ashraf Ghorbal, Egypt's representative in Washington.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers was reported in Cairo to have briefed Ghorbal Wednesday on the U.S. Middle East position. Rogers, at the invitation of U.S. Senate leaders will give a similar briefing to all members of the Senate this afternoon.

UPI correspondent Maurice Guindi reported from Cairo that the Soviet Union in recent weeks had sent in supplies by ship and by transport plane not only to strengthen defenses along the Suez Canal but to set up a string of anti-aircraft defenses along the 500-mile stretch of the Nile from Cairo to Aswan.

Riad, meeting with 300 diplomats at the Foreign Ministry on Wednesday, was quoted by Al Ahras as telling them Egypt has reached the end of the road in its efforts to solve the Middle East crisis.

Hospital money OK'd for Cassia

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Staff Writer
BURLEY — The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has authorized allocation of $177,919 as partial payment of the three-quarter-million-dollar Cassia Memorial Hospital expansion — but a maze of red tape may hold up construction for a while yet, according to Robert G. Barton, hospital administrator.

Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, reported the federal approval of funds on Wednesday. However, Barton told the Times-News that "my office has had the confirmation of this money for a year. This money is the allocation for fiscal 1970."

HEW still has to approve another allocation of $173,000 for fiscal 1971, Barton said.

Before construction can begin, bids have to be called... and before bids can be called, formal approval must be received from the Comptroller-General in Washington, D. C. This approval is the road block holding up the project, Barton said.

"We hope to have the approval to go to bid within a week," Barton added. The architect, Keith Wilcox, will issue the bid call as soon as the federal government gives the green light.

"We'll go to bid as soon as we get the authorization — whether or not we have the 1971 allocation of $173,000 — we know we'll get it eventually," Barton said.

The HEW funds were held up by congressional debate until late in February. Further approval by federal agencies was required; then the funds must be channeled through the Idaho Department of Health. This requires further approval, Barton said.

The project, when completed late next year, will provide a new 40-bed wing for the hospital with remodeling of other facilities included in the contract. The new wing will provide short-term care for patients in single-bed quarters.

The construction project also will remodel a number of older rooms, currently reserved for acutely ill patients, into facilities for nursing-home care on a long-term basis, Barton said. An 18-bed nursing area will be added to the long-term patient wing.

Inmate's appeal studied

TWIN FALLS — Sessions of the Idaho Supreme Court continued here today with arguments before the five justices on an appeal of Newell Lindsay, an inmate in the Idaho State Penitentiary.

The plaintiff-appellant was arrested in 1969 on burglary charges in Burley. He entered a plea of guilty and while in custody filed a petition for post-conviction relief claiming he entered the plea while under the influence of narcotics. District Judge James M. Cunningham, Twin Falls, denied the relief.

Wednesday afternoon supreme court justices heard arguments on a Twin Falls County case designed to obtain a high court ruling on the validity of the mandatory 10 day jail sentence on driving while intoxicated cases.

The appeal by the state of Idaho in its case against Eugene L. McCoy, former Twin Falls County probate judge requested the state high court to uphold the right of the legislature to set punishment for various crimes. Martin Ward, assistant attorney general, represented the state.

SST downed ... but backers scramble for private salvage fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government and industry forces hunted today from Wall Street to the West Coast for $400 million in private capital to salvage the supersonic transport from Congress' decision to cut off funds. Their chances appeared bleak, perhaps nonexistent.

President Nixon, stung by the Senate's rejection 51-48 Wednesday of further government money for the controversial 1,800-mile-per-hour plane, criticized the action as a severe blow to the nation's "continued leadership in the aerospace industry."

Within hours after the Senate voted to stop spending government money on two prototypes of the SST, firms connected with the project began announcing layoffs that may total 14,000 and Nixon promised he would not allow the "setback" to reverse America's tradition of commercial air supremacy.

But those on both sides of the issue seemed to agree the project was dead for now.

William Magruder, SST project manager in the Transportation Department, said he had sounded out a number of banks and financial institutions about private financing to finish work on the two prototypes for which the government already has paid $884 million. But Magruder made it plain this chance is remote if not impossible.

He said he asked an advisory committee made up of Wall Street and West Coast banks to determine if private funding was available, but said their conclusion was that such financing was not.

Boeing Co., which announced in Seattle, Wash., that it was laying off 7,000 workers as soon as possible, also said it had no indication private investment would fill the gap.

Among the alternatives to reviving the project are:

- Sale of government-backed bonds on the open market. Critics of this idea claim interest on such bonds would add another $600 million to the program's cost.
- A government-insured loan to industry to build the planes. Critics claim this would only add to the government's loss if the plane turns out to be a commercial flop.
- Formation of a consortium of aerospace companies, possibly including financing from another nation, such as Japan or Germany.

Didn't fly

VICTORVILLE — William Frawley, D-Ind., who led the effort to get the SST project canceled, said today that the plane "didn't fly."

Gem solons oppose SST

WASHINGTON — Idaho's two senators voted against federal subsidy for development of the supersonic transport airplane Wednesday.

Sen. Frank Church and Sen. L. Jordan were among 51 senators voting against the measure.

Solons may have funds on agenda

BOISE (UPI)—Legislators returning to the fourth day of the special session today had been warned Gov. Cecil D. Andrus may expand his session call to include more money for public health and public schools.

Late Wednesday Andrus announced he had vetoed a bill which would have imposed a 1 1/2 mill state ad valorem levy destined to be matched with federal funds to pay nursing care costs for welfare recipients.

But Andrus also said he may veto the $4 million appropriation for public schools, adding, "you've got to get their attention."

Andrus originally called the session to discuss re-apportionment, re-districting and changes in election laws, but said if he expands the agenda to include more funding, he will also offer alternate methods to get the monies.

He did not say what the methods would be but indicated the would probably be similar to those he proposed during the legislature's regular session which were rejected by the Republican-controlled body.

Those plans included diverting one fourth of the inventory tax phase out monies to the school and siphoning off some of the excess liquor profit for these purposes.

Andrus reiterated his promise he would not approve any tax increase to support either schools or public health and said while he approved the intent of the ad valorem measure, he found the method unacceptable.

The chief executive said in 1965, when the legislature enacted the sales tax, it said in any period during which a sales tax is in force in Idaho there would be no levy of the general state ad valorem tax.

"Perhaps the legislature has forgotten this promise to the people of the state of Idaho," Andrus said. "I have not."

Andrus would not be pinned down as to how much money he may seek for schools and how much for public health. He said it all will depend on revenues available and how best they can be divided between the two needs.

The governor had asked the legislature in his second budget address to add $3.6 million to the tentative budget for public schools, hiking it to $46.6 million.

But the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee added only $1 million, bringing it to $44 million, and declined to re-open the $9.1 million public health budget for which Andrus had sought another $1 million.

Both bills were approved by the legislature, although attempts were made to amend the public school appropriation upward.

Legislators continued Wednesday to work on re-apportionment maps, and Rep. Terry Crapo, R-Idaho Falls, House majority leader, said he hoped the first bill could be introduced by Friday.

Libyans, oil firms in accord

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI)—Oil company sources said today agreement had been reached with Libya after nearly a month of bargaining on the price of Libyan oil.

"The only thing left now is the signing of the agreement," one oilman said.

Other oil sources said the agreement contained a 30 per cent increase in the price of Libyan oil, now priced at $2.55 per barrel.

Libyan sources said they believed terms would become public only when Premier Moammar Al-Khadafy speaks Monday in Tobruk at a meeting marking the first anniversary of the closing of British military bases in the country.

Settlement of the Libyan oil price would remove the threat of an oil embargo which could have forced rationing in Western Europe, which obtains about one-third of its oil from Libya.

Three other Mediterranean oil shippers, Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Algeria, also warned Western companies March 16 they would join any embargo.

HB304 repeal termed no surprise in T.F.

TWIN FALLS — Taxing agencies said today they were not surprised at the repeal of House Bill 304 which had maintained an unrealistic four per cent tax revenue increase on cities, counties and school districts for several years.

City Manager Jean Milar said he had not taken the regulation into consideration in this year's city budget, feeling it would either be repealed or the city would, like many other agencies, appeal to the state tax commission for relief.

Gov. Cecil Andrus signed the repeal bill making it final Wednesday. Dr. Ernest Ragland, superintendent of schools, said the repeal of the bill will give the district a better outlook for the coming year. No school budget has yet been submitted to the board, he said, but it will reflect an increase in both revenue and expenses with a higher district assessed valuation and rising operation costs. He said the district probably could not have met requirements under the four per cent limitation.

At the same time, city officials expressed a greater interest in the bill, also signed yesterday by the governor, giving cities a one cent per gallon gasoline tax revenue for street improvements.

City manager Milar said the money will be used locally to bring the city streets up to better standards.

Funds from the special tax will not be available until the end of this year, too late for the current summer program. However, he said it will mean something like $140,000 annually for Twin Falls. He said he will recommend to the city council a priority program be set up over the ensuing years to improve and rebuild streets. No funds will be spent, he said, where curb and gutter installations have not been made, and this is the responsibility of the property owners.

Councilman Paul Ostyn said city streets in Twin Falls have rightfully become the object of many citizens complaints and while the $130,000 to $140,000 additional revenue annually is not a large amount it will help greatly in gaining ground in the continuous upkeep and improvement work.

Calley shows strain

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—Lt. William L. Calley Jr. is beginning to show the strain of the long wait for a life-or-death verdict from his court-martial jury.

The short, balding officer was puffy-eyed during Wednesday's court session, which he was required to attend because of the reading of further testimony to the six-officer jury.

One of his attorneys said Calley had not slept Tuesday night.

A guilty verdict by the jury, in its ninth day of deliberation today, could bring a sentence of death or life imprisonment on charges that Calley murdered 102 civilians at the South Vietnamese village of My Lai on March 16, 1968.

There were indications the military judge, Col. Reid W. Kennedy, would allow the jurors to continue their deliberate pace at least through the weekend. The defense has asked that Kennedy prod the jurors into faster action, but the judge, instead, commended the panel for its thoroughness.

The jurors, all combat officers, requested and received two blackboards Wednesday, apparently to chalk up key facts of testimony by 104 witnesses and other pertinent data. Speculation was the jurors might be using the blackboards as they are used in military classrooms—the facts on one board, the courses of action on the other.

The jury is being read, at its request, testimony from some witnesses who appeared earlier in the trial which probably was hazy in their minds.

Boeing starts SST burial rite

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Wednesday the Senate killed the SST.

Today the Boeing Co. began burying it—deciding which 7,000 workers will be laid off. The job losses will begin "as soon as possible."

Company officials said Congress' decision cutting off funds for the supersonic transport was a death blow to program despite White House talk of alternate sources of money.

The demise of the SST was a severe blow to Boeing and its workers and to the already financially-depressed Puget Sound region.

State officials said Wednesday about 12 per cent of Washington's work force—or 165,000 persons—already are unemployed. Half the jobless live around Seattle where Boeing has laid off nearly 60,000 workers in the past two years.

Boeing started adding another 7,000 names to the jobless rolls today by deciding where to transfer most of the 4,500 persons working on the SST project.

Lowell P. Mickelwait, vice president for industrial and public relations, said most of the high-skilled SST staff will be moved to other jobs. Workers with less seniority and skills will be bumped.

Another 2,500 persons not directly connected with the project nor bumped by SST workers also will lose their jobs.

Charges denied

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Hearst Corp. today joined Cowles Communications, Inc. in denying Federal Trade Commission (FTC) allegations of deceptive tactics in door-to-door magazine subscription sales.

Hearst said it has "never engaged in any of the acts or practices charged to be unlawful" by FTC. A Hearst subsidiary, Periodical Publishers Service Bureau, Inc., also denied the allegations, as did a periodical licensee, International Magazine Service.

Cowles, accused of the same practices, answered similarly Wednesday.

Demos seeking war funds end

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Democratic Policy Council prodded the Democratic majority in Congress today to vote for a cutoff of all funds to support U.S. military operations in Indochina after Dec. 31.

The action came at the start of a week of meetings by various Democratic groups to prepare for the 1972 presidential campaign.

Democratic state chairmen gathered today for a two-day session on campaign organization and to hear some of the party's prospective candidates for the 1972 presidential nomination.

The policy council met Wednesday with 68 of its 100 members present, under the chairmanship of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the party's 1968 presidential nominee.

By a vote announced as unanimous, the council approved a resolution calling for "a firm, unequivocal declaration by the government that all American forces will be withdrawn by the end of this year" from Indochina.

The resolution suggested the announcement should be used to negotiate the safe withdrawal of U.S. troops and release of war-prisoners and that the action would lead to serious negotiations at Paris for a cease-fire.

The pullout deadline and a request for legislation to forbid use of funds for military operations in Indochina after Dec. 31 jibed with terms of a resolution coming before a House Democratic caucus March 31.

Scuba training starts tonight

TWIN FALLS — Special training in the handling and use of scuba diving equipment will begin tonight in a new program being offered by the Twin Falls YMCA.

The program offers eight weeks of training and will be held Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. in the "Y" building and is open to persons interested in scuba diving. YMCA officials note the sport is becoming increasingly popular and there is a need for expert assistance in use of equipment and proper equipment to be used before the diver enters the water for the first time.

The first six classes will be dry-land instruction in the "Y" building with the final two weeks to involve actual diving by participants.

Instructors will include Norman Fillmore and Terry Quinn.

Persons interested in the classes are asked to register prior to 7:30 p.m. tonight. Fins and masks should be furnished by participants. Persons from high school age up are eligible to attend.

Idaho Supreme Court continues sessions

 Judge McCoy had sentenced Ernesto Medina to 30 days in jail and imposed a fine following a conviction last year on driving while intoxicated charges. He then suspended the jail sentence and part of the fine. Prosecutor Robert Galley moved for a district court writ of mandate to compel the judge to sentence Medina to at least 10 days in jail as stipulated by the state law.
 District Court Judge Theron Ward ruled a conflict of state statutes and upheld the lower court's action.
 In the Supreme Court session Wednesday Weeks argued it is valid to legislate sentences in such instances and the statute supercedes previous laws.
 J. D. Sudweeks, arguing for the respondent, stated the legislative and judicial authorities are separate and distinct and one has no right to enter the field of the other. Setting a sentence in such cases is the sole right of the judiciary, he said. He also noted there is a trend to rehabilitate rather than confine even the more hardened criminal and to impose a jail sentence on a first offender is not in keeping with this policy. Sudweeks argued in the light of this such a sentence does constitute cruel and unusual punishment.

Wednesday morning the court heard arguments in the appeal of Charles and Florence Skaggs to a district court decision in their case against owners of the Overland Shopping Center, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Jensen.

Burley, and Sears' Roebuck, Co., regarding lease contracts for their furniture store in the shopping center.

All arguments heard here will be considered at a later time with a decision on each announced in Boise.

The sessions will continue here through Friday. R. H. Young, clerk, said the justices will go to Pocatello for a seven-day session this spring and to northern Idaho as well.

A case of Valmont-Pacific Inc., appellant against Leonard M. Kelley, Jr., respondent, also scheduled for Wednesday was submitted on briefs and not argued before the court. It is an appeal to the judgment of Judge Sherman J. Bellwood, Burley, fifth district, concerning payments on sprinkler irrigation equipment purchased by Kelley. Judge Bellwood denied the company any damages against Kelley, a Malta farmer.

Court to hear water appeals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Wednesday rebuffed the federal government's efforts to avoid subjecting itself to certain types of water rights suits in state courts.

Opinions in two Colorado cases by Justice William O. Douglas said any questions as to U.S. water rights can always be appealed to the Supreme Court.

One case involved waters reserved for the White River National Forest, withdrawn from state use in 1905. The water comes from the Eagle River, a tributary of the Colorado.

The other, under a different state law, concerned monthly proceedings before a water referee on water rights applications.

Normally the United States cannot be sued without its consent, but a law enacted by Congress in 1952 subjected the government to certain types of water rights litigation.

When the Colorado court sought to bring the federal government into the Eagle River case, the Justice Department argued that the law applies only to water rights acquired under state law, not to those so-called "reserve rights" arising from withdrawals of land from the public domain.

In the other case, the department argued that the monthly proceedings did not come within the law because all water users on a stream system are not implicated.

Douglas rejected both arguments.

Most of the Western states had joined the case as "friends of the court," urging the type of decision the court issued Wednesday.

Brown facing remap dilemma

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Warren Brown, R-Mc Call, is facing one of the more frustrating aspects of re-apportionment: that of being blocked into an area without sufficient population and with seemingly no place to go.

Brown, who represents Valley, Gem, Boise and Adams Counties as the senator from District 9, has a total population of 17,636.

He said Wednesday he has to pick up 2,112 more persons to be at the absolute minimum population for equal apportionment according to guidelines set by the courts.

But whether he turned east, west, south or north he ran into problems.

One proposal was for Brown to move west and pick up Custer County, a plan complicated by the fact the only road between Brown's home town and Custer County is a dirt road open only in summer months.

He said it would be "almost impossible" to get into the area during winter months without driving southeast before turning north again.

To the north, Brown could pick up enough people by taking everything south of Whitebird. That move, however, would push District 8 into Lewiston.

Another guideline set by the courts is that people represented must be of the "same kind" Brown said, and the move north would push the senator from District 8 into representing both urban and rural areas.

The same problem is experienced if Brown were to move south and pick up the necessary population by either taking part of Ada County or two precincts off Canyon County.

Brown, who now represents livestock, lumber and logging territory, would be representing urban population if the move were into Ada County and would meet agricultural interests in Canyon County.

Further, he said, the two precincts in Canyon County are next to District 12, now represented by Sen. Leon Swanson, R-Nampa.

"They're right at his back door," Brown said. "They're neighbors. You'd say to them, 'Brown is going to represent you and he lives in Mc Call.'"

To the east, Brown would run into Washington County, but said that was not a practical plan since Washington and Payette Counties combined now reached the desired population.

At the end of the day, Brown had still reached no solution.

Drug levy veto asked

TWIN FALLS — County commissioners here urged legislators Wednesday to take action to persuade Gov. Cecil Andrus not to sign a bill which would require a 1.5 mill levy in all counties for local matching funds to provide drugs for indigents.

Commissioner Merl Leonard said the bill would provide local matching funds for such drug purchases by nursing homes and would cost the local county much more than is currently required.

He said last year the county paid $76,660 for the indigent drug program. He said it is estimated as much as $85,000 more would be paid by county taxpayers under the proposed bill.

"We urged our legislators to persuade the governor not to sign the bill until it has been clarified for the various counties," Leonard said.

On the surface, he said, it would appear counties would simply be increasing local taxes to meet state-initiated programs.

Under the present program the county provides drug purchases for indigent patients on an individual basis and commissioners feel under this system they are able to hold costs at a minimum and cover only the direct needs of each patient. Commissioners requested copies of the bill in order to better understand all provisions, Leonard said.

T.F. coed subject of story

SPOKANE, Wash. — A Twin Falls girl, Paula Hawks, daughter of Mrs. Robert Ullman, is featured prominently in the current issue of the Gonzaga University publication "Signum," which details her work with handicapped people.

Miss Hawks, a sophomore at Gonzaga University in Spokane, is working with the Gonzaga Action Program (GAP), which brings "Zag" students into close contact with the problems of the surrounding community. GAP is composed of Gonzaga students who work as volunteers in a wide variety of helpful capacities.

Miss Hawks is working with the mentally retarded as a teacher's aide in a school "totally dedicated to educating mentally retarded youth," the report says. She spends each Thursday morning helping retarded youngsters learn the intricate skills of living "which we take for granted."

Narcotics crackdown ordered

BOISE (UPI) — Attorney General W. Anthony Park Wednesday announced plans to crack down on narcotics and organized crime by formation of a new division in his office.

Park said he has added Fred Kennedy, Elmore County prosecutor since January, 1965, to his staff as a deputy attorney general in charge of the new division.

The attorney general said he created the division to combat the narcotics and drug problem more effectively in Idaho, to ascertain the condition of organized crime and to recommend legislation governing and coordinating law enforcement agencies investigating organized crime.

'Hot seat' on block

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va. (UPI) — The state of West Virginia has a hanging scaffold and an electric chair for sale. Gordon Faulkner, state corrections director, said because the two instruments of justice are state property he can not destroy them but must sell them. The death penalty was abolished in West Virginia in 1965.

Kimberly man cited

TWIN FALLS — Edward T. Edgerton, 25, Kimberly, was charged by county officers with leaving the scene of an accident after his vehicle allegedly collided with one driven by Dr. Charles I. Manners, 37, Twin Falls.

He was taken into custody after a county officer saw a collision at Blue Lakes Boulevard North and Filer Avenue Tuesday evening.

City police were called to investigate the accident and the man was taken into custody by the sheriff's office. Police said he was driving a 1958 model sedan which collided with the Manners pickup truck.

Pumping gear sale planned

TWIN FALLS — Pumping equipment on six wells formerly used in the Twin Falls City water system is being salvaged and will be sold, City Manager Jean Milar said today.

The wells include one in Lynwood, one at the golf course and the Willow Lane Park well, all owned by the city, and three others, on the Johnson and Long properties south of town, both owned by the Twin Falls Canal Co. They were used for supplemental water when the city system utilized Twin Falls Canal Co. water from Snake River as a supply for domestic uses.

During the past several years the pumps have been unused as the supplemental supply from these wells is so small it does not warrant pumping costs and is not needed in view of the volume of water available from the pump system and Alpheus Creek in Snake River Canyon, Milar said.

Milar said the two large wells south of Twin Falls will be retained but the six small ones are of no further value.

One of the wells reaches a depth of 400 feet, he said. He estimated the cost of the pump equipment at about $15,000, which he said can be used for other city projects or needs.

Vote drive planned

BURLEY — Grant Fillmore, president of the Burley Chamber of Commerce, announced Wednesday following a special board meeting that the chamber will urge people to vote in the proposed school district rezoning election Monday.

Proposed in the election is a change in boundary lines so trustee zones will represent equal populations.

Those Sell-The-Army Efforts

WASHINGTON — That $10.6 million barrage of TV recruiting advertisements is only part of the Pentagon's merchandising program to clear the way for an all-volunteer army. Other types of join-the-army advertising will swell that budget to $15 million this year. In addition, the Pentagon is planning a "service attractiveness" program which will cost nearly $11 million more.

Like the television ads, the service attractiveness program is being launched as a test — at Fort Benning, Fort Bragg, Fort Carson and Fort Ord inside the United States, and at some Army installations in Europe. The aim is to improve living conditions, "remove irritants," and make army life more satisfying. In the process barracks life will get some of the comforts of home. More importantly, some of the old army irritants — like K.P. and policing the area — will be farmed out to civilians hired for such chores. One of the aims of the service attractiveness program, as outlined to congressional committees, is to "provide a desk, chair, lamp and rug for each soldier."

The Army plans to transform old-style barracks buildings with movable partitions, so that the new creature comforts will be placed in smaller rooms. Washers and dryers will be installed to provide ready access to a free laundromat. More on-post bus service, more recreation equipment and better facilities for welcoming and processing recruits are also a part of service attractiveness. Just about all that is left of the old recruit training image is that first, free army haircut — budgeted for the rest of this business year at $200,000. In his annual presentations to congressional committees, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird is saying that the service attractiveness campaign will take three years and will eventually improve the life style of 450,000 men and women in the armed services.

"There is no doubt," says the secretary, "that further elimination of 'make work' and modification of unnecessary rules and restrictions will enhance the attractiveness of service life. Experimental programs suggest that the elimination of unnecessary irritants is reflected in higher first-term reenlistments. Improving barracks life by providing more privacy and additional living comforts is another step toward increasing volunteers," says Laird. Also included in the Pentagon's preparations for MVA — that's for "Modern Volunteer Army" — of course — are about $1 million dollars worth of additional recruiting stations, additional pay for recruiters and — additional — travel allowances. Another $1 million will be spent to publicize the advantages of the ROTC program at colleges and universities. Laird is telling Congress that ROTC enrollments are also a part of the transition to an all-volunteer army.

The problem is, says Laird, that ROTC is the preliminary source of officers — but ROTC enrollments have dwindled from 218,466 in the 1968-69 college year to only 114,590 in this one. The Pentagon estimates that preparations for an all-volunteer army are costing about $41 million in the year which ends June 30. That sum will be larger next year, of course. The $10.6 million for TV ads will be exhausted, for example, in the usual broadcast test period — 13 weeks. If Laird's office, which is monitoring the operation, thinks the effort successful, costs for that purpose alone will go to about $25 million next year.

The Army TV advertisements handled by N. W. Ayer & Son, a Philadelphia advertising firm, prompted speculation in the Wall Street Journal last week, that the armed services might be headed for an expensive advertising war in their efforts to fill their ranks with recruits.

Wilbur Mills

Rep. Wilbur Mills, the Arkansas Democrat whose power as chairman of the Ways and Means committee has given him virtual control of the federal tax laws, has branched out into foreign negotiations.

Mills is credited with working out with the Japanese their recent proposal to limit voluntarily textile exports to the United States, a move designed to prevent Congress from setting limitations by law.

President Nixon was unhappy with the proposal and unhappier with Mills' direct negotiations, which he felt undercut the Presidential prerogative to negotiate international agreements, and he said so.

As a result, attention has been diverted to the power play rather than to the obvious shortcomings of the Japanese proposal, which would permit increases in total textile exports to the United States.

It would also allow freedom to greatly increase certain exports in some categories by reducing others. This caused the Textile Workers Union to brand the proposal a "travesty" and to urge its rejection.

The Japanese proposal also specified no action would be taken, to limit exports until her major competitors, Hong Kong, South Korea and Taiwan, had agreed to similar limited increases.

Some Washington observers have criticized the President for impairing his relations with Congress. Others have mentioned the possibility of Mills seeking the Democratic Vice Presidential nomination.

The immediate result is likely to be prolongation of the negotiations, greater acrimony on both sides, and bitter debate over enactment of restrictive legislation.

'Copter Pilots

Somehow the nation always finds brave men when it needs them.

With Army morale in Vietnam so low that troops sometimes refuse to engage the enemy, when an officer who dares to exercise his authority is fair game for "fragging" (which may be anything from simple harassment to having a grenade tossed into his tent), and against revelations of the activities of fast-buck civilians and corrupt brass safely out of the fighting, the daily heroism of the helicopter pilots and crewmen — supporting the Laos operation — outstanding at any time — is all the more extraordinary.

Some 2,000 whirlybirdmen in an estimated 600 helicopters have flown tens of thousands of sorties against the heaviest concentration of antiaircraft guns in the war — which is an indication of how important it is to North Vietnam to defeat the operation.

Dozens of the vulnerable, slow-moving craft have been shot down. Scores more have been wrecked, but since they have been retrieved by Chinook or Skycrane helicopters they are not officially listed as "shot down," though their crewmen are just as dead or just as wounded as any of the others.

And all these men are volunteers.

Quite naturally, many of them have had second thoughts about that.

"Face it," says one 24-year-old pilot. "I'd rather hang it out for my own people — all of us would. The guys thought they were coming over here to work with Americans, and now we get blown away for people who don't even like us."

"This is supposed to be an ARVN (South Vietnamese army) show," says another, "but we're still getting our tails shot off over there, and I'd like to know why."

Yet they are there and each day answer the call of duty, as good soldiers always have, even as they too wondered why.

They are there because the Man in Charge has asked them to be there, because he believes that weakening the enemy's offensive capabilities is essential to enable American withdrawal to continue, if not be stepped up, and that precious time will be bought in which South Vietnam can gain the strength to stand on her own feet.

Perhaps someday when America is indeed out of this war, when passions have cooled and Vietnam is no longer a bitter political or ideological issue, perhaps then we will begin to appreciate the bravery and sacrifice of these men.

ART BUCHWALD

A "Changin"

WASHINGTON — If everybody in the country is becoming schizophrenic, they're entitled to it. Even the banks have gone bananas.

Just a few months ago, because of the tight money situation, it was impossible to get a loan from a bank. In order to attract deposits, they were offering everything from hot water bottles to color television sets if people would just leave their savings in for 90 days.

You can imagine my surprise then, when I turned on the radio the other day and heard a commercial for my bank which said that anyone borrowing more than $500 would get a free fondue cooking set.

I couldn't believe it, so I rushed down to the bank to see my friend Stokesbury, who is a vice president.

"Stokesbury," I said, "what is this about you offering a fondue cooking set if someone borrows $500 or more?"

"It's true," Stokesbury said. "If you don't want a fondue cooking set, we'll give you a wooden salad bowl with an ox-boned butter knife."

"But I was here three months ago, pleading with you for a loan of $500 and you threw me out," I said.

"I hope you're not the kind of person who holds a grudge," Stokesbury said. "Here's $500 and to show you there are no hard feelings, I'll loan you another $10,000 at the prime interest rate."

"No dice," I said. "As a matter of fact, I'm thinking of making a deposit."

"Oh, no," cried Stokesbury, "don't make a deposit. Everybody is making deposits. We need people to borrow money, not to save it."

I don't understand what's happened in just three months to turn you around," I said.

Stokesbury held his head in his hands. "It's fear. People are afraid of being thrown out of work. If Kellerman on Chestnut Street loses his job, everybody else on Chestnut Street suddenly becomes frightened and says 'Let's put the money in the bank. We could be next.' No one wants to get into debt any more. How can we have a thriving economy if people SAVE, SAVE, SAVE, SAVE?"

"I'm very sympathetic to your problem, Stokesbury," I said, "and I wish I could help you out by borrowing money, but my wife says we should put something aside for a rainy day."

"You could be dead by the time it rains," Stokesbury shouted at me. "Listen, suppose I make you a token loan of $200, payable at your convenience, and I throw in a washer and dryer. Would you go for it?"

"I don't know."

"What do you want, my blood?" Stokesbury cried. "I haven't made a loan in a week. Help me!" He was down on his knees. "Please, help me."

"All right," I said. "I'll borrow the $200 but we want the washer, dryer and the fondue cooking set."

"It's yours," said Stokesbury, shoving the $200 in my pocket.

After he helped me load the washer, dryer and fondue set into the car, he grabbed my hand warmly and said, "I'll never forget this."

I turned away so I wouldn't cry.

Pollution?

By CHARLOTTE BELL

Times-News Correspondent
(Editor's Note: This is one in a series on today's air-water-land problems)

JEROME — Just what is pollution? Pollution is the addition of harmful substances to a body or system of water beyond its capacity to assimilate them. While it may occur from natural causes, pollution is usually the result of human activities.

The main sources of pollution are communities, through discharge of their basically organic wastes; industry, through discharge of all kinds of wastes; and agriculture, through wastes, silt runoff, and chemical poisons.

Everyone who adds any harmful substance to a body or system of water is a polluter. Everyone who releases water without doing everything in his power to make it safe for re-use is guilty of a crime against his fellow-man and his environment.

Industries are polluters. They use fantastic amounts of water, and return it for re-use contaminated with chemicals, wastes, oil, refuse, and other pollutants. Some industries try very hard to avoid pollution. Some do not. Few succeed.

People working in industry are polluters. They are the owners and workers — are the reason that many anti-pollution measures aren't used, and that much pollution-control equipment doesn't work. They are careless; reluctant to change methods or employ new ideas. They resist the cost of treatment of their discharges.

Careless land management leads to choking silt runoff. Drainage from livestock finds its way into streams. Careless use of chemical pesticides and herbicides contaminates waters with poisons.

Cities, towns, villages, they create vast amounts of human wastes, sewage, garbage, trash, then dump it raw or inadequately treated into our rivers, lakes and oceans. This water often must be reused later by other communities.

Pollution is not a government problem, or an industry or agricultural problem or even a community problem. It's your problem.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

About Salt

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you kindly tell me the how and why of salt in a heart patient?

I claim that a certain amount of salt must be used, not 100 percent reduction.

Doesn't salt affect the fluid movement of the blood? What and why about salt? — F.J.M. Of course a certain amount of salt must be used. A 100 percent reduction is the goal; it isn't even possible!

The explanation is that a great variety of food contains a little natural salt — enough for the body's needs.

If you can eliminate all added salt, that is, salt used in cooking as well as salt at the table, you'll still be getting enough — and by avoiding any salt in addition you will be doing your heart a favor.

Why? Because salt, you see, contains sodium, and sodium has a strong chemical affinity for water. Which means that it attracts and holds water.

A person with a healthy heart and good circulation has no fear of this. His brisk blood flow picks up any excess water (and sodium) in the body's tissues and carries it to the kidneys where it is filtered out and discharged.

But with heart disease, obviously the blood flow is not going to be as vigorous and plentiful. The blood stream no longer picks up as much of this excess sodium and water. The result is congestion and edema — gradually the amount of water increases in the tissues, often in the feet and legs but to some extent in other parts of the body, too, such as the lungs. This is edema — swelling due to water that remains.

The more such congestion in the body, the more work the heart has to do to provide circulation. And, naturally, you don't want to add to the heart's labor. You want to ease it.

If you can achieve a 100 percent reduction in the kind of salt that comes from a salt-cellar, either at the table or in the kitchen, you'll be better off.

In actual practice, it is doubtless impossible to avoid having a little salt creep into your food, without your realizing it, but do the best you can.

And of course avoid foods prepared with salt: salted meat or fish, virtually any processed meats, potato chips, salted nuts, such things as pickles and relishes which usually contain salt (although vinegar isn't harmful). Try to avoid bread or pastry that is made with either salt or baking soda (which contains sodium).

If you look, you'll find such things as low-salt bread of vegetables canned without salt added.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A friend told me about seeing something in your column about neuralgia-like pain in the jaw coming from the teeth. I have that kind of pain and at times it is difficult to eat. Could you repeat the information? — Mrs. J.B.

Malocclusion — a "faulty bite" — can be the source of such pain. The teeth don't come together properly and that throws the jaw joint off line, putting pressure on nerves. What to do about it? Have your dentist check your bite. If it is out of line, he can advise proper treatment.

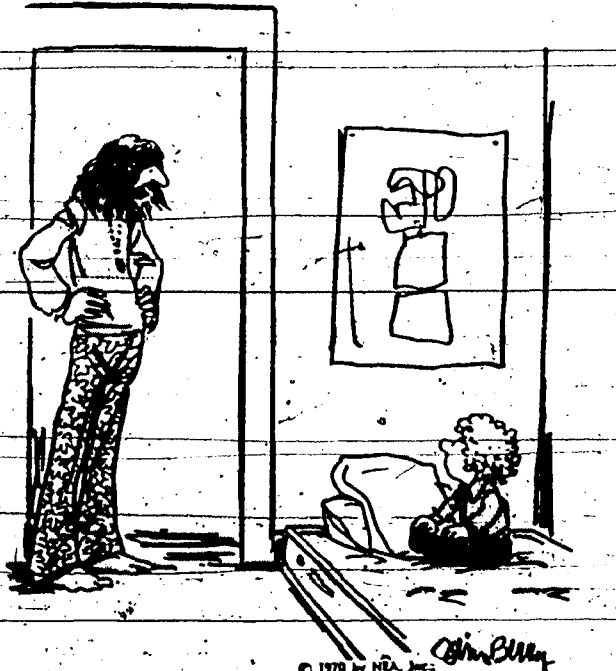

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We had roasting corn put in the locker with husks remaining around the corn, all uncooked. Would there be any danger of being poisoned from corn frozen in this manner? — Mrs. W. S.

No. And anyway, you're going to cook it when you get around to eating it anyway.

Much heart trouble is preventable. Write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for a copy of his booklet, "How To Take Care of Your Heart," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

BERRY'S WORLD

"From now on, I don't want to see you sitting around here chanting 'Om' when you haven't finished your homework!"

Revamp plan proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon sent Congress today a bold, massive federal reorganization plan. He said it would let the government focus its work on results for the people instead of red tape for bureaucrats.

The plan, as Nixon had outlined earlier in the year, would abolish seven of the 12 existing federal departments and redistribute their work among four new super departments. Only the State, Defense and Treasury departments would not be affected.

In a 7,500-word message to the House and Senate, accompanied by charts and "fact sheets," Nixon said the job had to be done to avoid the danger that the people would completely lose faith in their government. He said the idea was to organize around goals.

"When government is organized by goals, then we can fairly expect that it will pay more attention to procedures," the President said. "Then the success of government will at last be clearly linked to the things that happen in society rather than the things that happen in government."

Nixon's plan, embodied in four bills, would dismantle the Departments of Interior, Agriculture, Labor, Commerce, Transportation, Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

In their place, there would be new departments of Human Resources, Community Development, Economic Affairs, and Natural Resources.

Virtually untouched by the shakeup and streamlining besides the Pentagon, State and Treasury would be scores of agencies that regulate industry and other public activities. These probably will be the subject of a later reorganization plan. One existing department—Post Office—already is scheduled for reorganization under a 1970 law that will put the mail service under a federally chartered corporation.

Although the President revealed his intention to seek the big reorganization in his State of the Union message, there has been little reaction from Congress or private and public groups affected by it to indicate the proposal's likely fate.

However, it appeared unlikely that the plan would sail through Congress without long and probably abrasive debate.

President goes west

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President and Mrs. Nixon plan to fly to their California oceanside villa Friday for a stay that will probably last until April 2.

A spokesman said the President would concentrate on polishing his domestic proposals to Congress during the stay and expects to conduct a full schedule of business.

Wilderness area meet set in Boise

BOISE (UPI) — A public meeting is scheduled in Boise for 7 p.m. April 5 to consider feasibility of including the Idaho Primitive Area in the nation's wilderness system.

Supervisor Howard E. Ahlskog of the Boise National Forest said the meeting concerns a forthcoming study of the area for possible reclassification under the Wilderness Act of 1964.

Forest service representatives will explain the proposal and provide facts about the area, he said, and the remainder of the time will be left open for discussion and questions from the public.

Established in 1931, the Idaho Primitive Area was enlarged to 1,232,744 acres in 1937.

Nixon says war won't be issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has promised cheering Republican leaders that U.S. involvement in the Indochina war will be defused as a political issue in the 1972 election year.

"When we go into the year 1972 Americans can see what they have wanted to and have not had ... not only an end to the involvement in the war but a full generation of peace," Nixon said Wednesday night.

The President was the principal speaker at a $1,000-a-plane affair labeled "Kickoff '72 Republican dinner." GOP sources said the dinner raised about $1.6 million. The money will be divided between the Republican National Committee and the two GOP congressional campaign committees.

PUC studying Railpax impact on Gem routes

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Public Utilities Commission is studying the economic impact of the new Railpax system on the six railroads serving the state.

Under Railpax, there will be no passenger service for the state except for a stop at Sandpoint in northern Idaho. Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has called for a decrease in rail freight rates in Idaho as a result of the abandoning of rail passenger service but there could be a rate increase.

Commissioner Ralph Wickberg said the PUC will evaluate the savings to the railroads, especially Union Pacific, by the abandoning of passenger service. The cost to the railroads to join Railpax also must be considered, Wickberg said.

The PUC, meantime, has scheduled a public hearing on a proposed six per cent rate increase for railroad freight service within the state. He said the proposed increase has been before the PUC for some time.

A spokesman for the Idaho Wheat Commission said a percentage freight rate increase given railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission this week is a major blow to the agricultural economy of the state. Administrator Harold West said it will damage Idaho's competitive position in reaching major markets with state commodities.

During the last six months, West said, freight rates for grain have gone up a total of 11 per cent.

NEW SPRING IMPORTED
BULBS
GLOBE Seed & Feed

DST option endorsed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Transportation Department official told a Senate commerce subcommittee today it favors legislation to allow states with divided time zones to have an option whether to impose Daylight Saving Time in all or part of the state, but balked at another bill to reduce the DST period from six to three months.

In backing the split zone proposal, J. Thomas Tidd, acting DST general counsel, cited Indiana, which is one of four states which have exempted themselves from the Uniform Time Act. Indiana, however, is in both the Eastern and Central time zones.

"The effect of statewide exemption in a split state brings disorder and confusion to the logical time pattern that the Uniform Time Act otherwise created," Tidd testified.

He noted that on Apr. 25, when "fast time" goes into effect this year, Gary and Evansville, Ind., two cities in the eastern part of the state, will be two hours behind nearby Louisville and Cincinnati; one hour behind Indianapolis, Chicago and Detroit, but on the same time as Denver, Boise, Idaho, and Valoe, Ore.

Twelve states are currently in the split-zone status: Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Florida, North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, Texas, Idaho, Oregon and Alaska.

Tidd said the Transportation Department did not support the bill to limit daylight time to a period from Memorial day to Labor day. Currently it is in effect from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October, a six-month period.

"We assume a majority of the people are satisfied with the six-month period," Tidd told the committee.

Sen. Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., who is sponsoring the reduced time proposal with Rep. Tim

Lee Carter, R-Ky., noted that there was sentiment for the longer period among part-time gardeners and farmers and golfers.

"To these people, and to the critics of Daylight Saving Time, I must say that this amendment would provide an enormous benefit to a large number of Americans, while creating an inconvenience for very few," Cook said.

Giant trout season set

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Fish and Game Department reports Priest Lake's special fishing season for Giant Mackinaw trout runs from April 15-Dec. 15 with gaff hooks prohibited when landing fish from a boat from April 15-30, and Dec. 1-15.

The special season, the department noted, for Mackinaw trout also applies to Upper Priest Lake with the same restrictions.

Priest and Upper Priest Lakes are open-year-round for fishing for Kokanee with the daily bag limit, for sportsmen, 50 fish. There is no possession limit.

The general season for taking fish in the area waters, not otherwise listed in the 1971 regulations, is May 29-Oct. 31 for streams, and May 1-Nov. 30 for lakes.

Date set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tricia Nixon, after some days of indecision, has settled on June 12 as the day for her wedding to Edward Finch Cox.

The couple had planned the ceremony for either June 5 or June 12 but the later date was selected to give Cox, a law student, and others in the wedding party more time to complete their studies.

LOVERS AND OTHER STRANGERS
is FUNNY

DEAR ABBY: I have a very intelligent friend whose company I enjoy a lot until he starts asking personal questions which make me very uncomfortable. For instance, he wants to know how I feel about sex. Then he asks about my dreams, my earlier years, and other highly personal things which always end up with sex. Abby, I want to be perfectly truthful in all discussions, but I think some of the things he asks are none of his business.

What should I do? I hate to tell him off and lose his friendship. I know you are supposed to like people in spite of their faults. Can you give a confused young lady some hints on proper conduct in this situation? I am unmarried and so is he.
JOAN OF ARC

DEAR JOAN: Tell him that you prefer to keep your "ideas" about some subjects strictly personal, and sex is one of them. His questions sound to me like a prelude to other intimacies. Keep him in his place and don't be drawn into discussions which make you uneasy. And if you lose him, you lose him. The woodwork is full of men like him.

DEAR ABBY: My husband of nearly one year will not go visiting with me to see my family, and particularly my parents. He has no objections to my going, but he would rather go fishing or sit home alone than go with me.

He refuses to go to church with me and has recently stated that he will not attend my sister's wedding. Why should a man who used to court me from my parents' home and used to attend church regularly suddenly decide he doesn't want to see my family anymore and church is out?

He loathes wearing a tie. I am going to have a baby next month and he has just told me he will not attend the christening. Any help you can give me will be greatly appreciated. Thank you.
BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: If your husband changed "suddenly" — something could be physically or mentally wrong with him. He'll need a doctor to determine that. If he has simply decided that now that he has you, he doesn't have to put up with anything that displeases him, he is behaving like a spoiled little boy. If you can't get him to listen to some fair counseling, you will either have to get rid of him or get used to him.

DEAR ABBY: About three years ago I was in such a serious mental state that I was guilty of actually inflicting physical abuse on my helpless child. This would occur only when I was terribly depressed, but these depressions were becoming more and more frequent. Many would have said, "Put her in prison and take her child away from her."

Fortunately I must have seen a ray of light, as I telephoned our Community Mental Health Service. Instead of condemning me, they said, "Come let us help you."

It has taken three years of treatment for me to reach this point, and I have more ahead of me yet, but I have come a long, long way.

To your readers who are experiencing the same or similar problems, I say, seek help now. Don't be disheartened by the slowness of your recovery, since it probably took more than just a few months to acquire the problems which are surfacing now. Stay with the treatment in search of mental health as I did, and you, too, will enjoy being a mother.
HAPPY IN SEATTLE

DEAR HAPPY: Unfortunately you will never know how many have been helped by your letter. Thank you for writing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWAN": Retirement means, to most wives, twice as much husband on hand as much income.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Mary Costa recital planned

TWIN FALLS — Opera star, Mary Costa, recently prompted Patterson Greene to exclaim in the Los Angeles Examiner, "Why does one girl have to have everything? Miss Costa is unreasonably beautiful and she has a voice like sunlight made audible."

Twin Falls residents will have an opportunity to see and hear this extraordinary singer at 8 p.m. April 6 when she appears in a recital at the College of Southern Idaho.

Recital numbers will include "Parollette, Vezzi e Squardi" by Handel; "Leggiadri Occhi Belli; "Alleluja" by Mozart; "Chants D'Auvergne" by Canteloube; "Song to the Moon" from "Fusalka" by Dvorak; "Romance de los Petegrintos" by Obradors; "Del Cabello mas Sutil" by Obradors; "El Jilguero con Pico de Ora" by Nin; "So Anch'io la Virtù" from "Don Pasquale" by Donizetti; "La Cazione di Doretta" from "La Rondine" by Puccini; "Water Cresses" by John Jacob Niles, and "Ching a Ring Ching," "Shall We Gather at the River" and "I Bought Me a Cat," by Aaron Copland.

This program is being sponsored with the co-operation of the Idaho Arts and Humanities Commission of Boise.

The concert will be followed by an invitational only reception in Miss Costa's honor.

Miss Costa is currently making her annual tour of the United States under the management of S. Hurok.

In June, 1970, Mary Costa chose the operatic role of her Metropolitan Opera debut, Verdi's "La Traviata," for her first appearance at the Bolshoi Opera in Moscow which took place as part of her first Russian tour. She made such a tremendous impact on the Russian audiences that she was asked to extend her stay for three additional weeks.

Born in Knoxville, Tenn., Miss Costa comes from Irish and Italian heritage. Always musical, her family moved to Southern California when she was in her teens in order for her to have first class training. She studied there with Mario Ciamlee, former Metropolitan Opera tenor. She was soon discovered by S. Hurok who signed her to a $250,000 contract and she made her debut at the San Francisco Opera. The rest is history. Mary Costa has appeared with nearly all of the world's great opera companies and symphony orchestras and continues to give recitals whenever time permits.

Invitation given to Theta Rho

KETCHUM — The Ketchum Theta Rho Girls Club of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows has been invited to attend the district meeting scheduled April 17 in Idaho Falls, announces Penny Noxon, worthy president.

The Ketchum chapter will perform the ceremony of admitting a Rebekah sister into the club. After a banquet set that evening, each chapter will present a skit or musical number.

The Ketchum club has also been asked to attend a June workshop planned by the Rupert Theta Rho Club. The local group will assist the Rupert chapter by making 45 tote bags to be filled and presented to each girl as she registers for the workshop.

A candy booth will be held during the IOOF fund-raising project set Saturday night. Funds from the project will be used to further several charitable programs slated by the Ketchum Club.

Tracy Sorenson played her guitar and sang during the March program. In charge of refreshments were Robbi and Leene Smith.

A special guest during the meeting was Mrs. Al Fiddler, Rebekah noble grand.

Guest list

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mother of the bride Pat Nixon indicated Tuesday she and Tricia are having a hard time working out a guest list for her daughter's wedding.

"I think we'll have to put names in a bowl and pull them out," smiled the First Lady.

She told reporters that Tricia, who is engaged to Harvard law student Edward Finch Cox, hasn't made "a decision on anything yet."

"I'm being very honest," she said.

But there were indications that the wedding, originally scheduled for June 5, will be held in the East Room on the afternoon of Saturday, June 12.

Cox ends his exams on June 2 and his groomsmen, not yet publicly named, also will be busy then in the last days of their law school studies.

Award given

FILER — Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Meyer have received word that their son, John Meyer, who is attending Oregon State University, Corvallis, Ore., has been awarded an "outstanding student" scholarship by the Phi Kappa Phi Fraternity at the university. He also has been accepted as a member of the fraternity.

Merchandise pickup set by area library

KETCHUM — An all-out merchandise pickup drive is scheduled for April 3 by the Ketchum-Sun Valley Community Library. It was announced at the March meeting of the board of directors.

Mrs. Robert Ackerman, chairman, said those who have items to contribute to the Gold Mine Thrift Shop should leave their pick-up orders with Mrs. Fran Clifford, 726-5611. Housewares and good-usable clothing are always in demand, and all donations are tax deductible.

Bundles can also be left at the drop box next to the shop entrance located at the rear of the library, or at the lodge or Challenger Inn Bell Service, Sun Valley. The Gold Mine, main financial supporter of the library, is open for business Tuesdays and Saturdays from noon to 4:30 p.m.

Mrs. Daniel Hart, librarian, reported 593 adult books were circulated during the past month, 749 juvenile books and 35 musical records. A total of 91 books and 16 records were added to the collection during this period. In honor of National Library Week, April 18-24, Mrs. Hart expressed the wish that every member of the community visit the library by that date.

Because of the popularity of the pre-school story hours, a third summer series may be initiated this year, in addition to the spring and fall series, according to Mrs. Louis Mallane, who heads the program.

Mrs. Nick Orr was elected to serve on the board of directors.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon probably will face the politically risky prospect of vetoing a bill to raise prices for dairy farmers unless he beats Congress to the draw by boosting milk supports voluntarily, a top Democratic farm bloc leader said today.

Nixon's latest farm bloc headache grows out of the administration's decision earlier this month to refuse any increase in milk price supports for the 1971-72 marketing year which begins April 1.

On the heels of the refusal, a growing parade of legislators in both the House and Senate have introduced bills to require an increase. The list of some 80 House sponsors, including members of both parties, is topped by Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, and Chairman W.R. Poage, D-Tex., of the House Agriculture Committee.

"If the administration doesn't act, I think we can and will pass the bill," Poage told UPI in an interview.

Nixon could veto the measure if he remains adamant against higher milk supports, Poage said. But this would bring on a spotlighted confrontation with many farm interests, the Texan said.

Poage added, meanwhile, that Congressional farm leaders intend to give the White House some time to decide whether it wants to reverse its first decision on 1971-72 milk prop. The House farm leader said his committee had many other matters on its schedule and it "may be some time" before hearings could be set on the milk support bills.

"If the President intends to accept an increase, I would think he would act on his own and get credit for it, rather than waiting for Congress to act," Poage said.

Nixon, meanwhile, met Tuesday with 16 dairy cooperative leaders including spokesmen for Associated Milk Producers, Inc., San Antonio, Tex., for what a White House spokesman described briefly as a discussion of milk prices and government supports. Other sources later said the dairymen indicated they felt some increase in supports was justified.

For the current 1970-71 marketing year, which ends this month, the Agriculture Department supports the price of manufacturing grade milk at $4.66 a hundredweight. Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin announced recently the same $4.66 rate would be used for the new season which begins April 1.

Many, though not all, dairy groups had urged the administration to push the 1971-72 support to the legal ceiling of 90 percent of parity, or about $5.21 a hundredweight. Failing that, some spokesmen had indicated they wanted supports brought to 85 percent of parity, or about $4.92.

The pending Congressional bills would put supports at the 85 percent of parity rate.

The current $4.66 support rate amounted to 85 percent of the "fair earning power" parity price when it was set a year ago. Since then, however, rising farm costs have eroded the value of the $4.66 price, bringing it down to about 81 percent of parity. Setting an 85 percent of parity support again for 1971-72 would raise the dollars-and-cents support by 24 cents to a new level of $4.92, but this would no more than offset the impact of inflation on dairy farmers over the past year, some dairy spokesmen maintain.

Secretary Hardin, who announced the $4.66 rate would be continued, said the decision was made because a price boost at this time might lead to surplus milk production in the long run, this would hurt dairy farmers, Hardin contended.

At least one dairy farmer group, the big Midwest Land O'Lakes Cooperative, has backed Hardin's position. But many other dairy groups have urged an increase.

The support price applies directly only to the manufacturing-grade milk used in making butter, cheese and similar products. But the program also indirectly affects prices for bottling milk.

Signup period passing

TWIN FALLS — Pointing out to producers that the farm program sign-up period, March 1 through April 9, is more than half over, Carl Boyd, chairman of Twin Falls Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, urged farmers to sign up as soon as possible at the county ASCS office.

"To date 800 farms have been signed up for the 1971 feed grain and wheat programs," he said, "out of a total eligible number of about 1850. This indicates that we will have the usual last-minute rush near the close of sign-up period. Farmers may save standing in line if they come in now to sign up," he said.

The new 1971 program will give farmers the freedom they haven't had before to adjust their cropping patterns to market demands and still receive the income protection that came from participating in farm programs. The essential difference between the 1971 set-aside programs and previous diversion programs is that rigid acreage limitations have been lifted.

Participation in the feed grain and wheat programs is voluntary. Those who sign up and comply with the program provisions will earn benefits such as eligibility for price-support loans, price-support payments or wheat marketing certificates. Preliminary program payments will be made to producers as soon as practicable after July 1.

Farmers can sign up for feed grain and wheat programs at the county ASCS office, 582 Bthe Lakes Blvd. N. on or before April 9.

He said Friday Nampa lawmen arrested a Libby, Mont. operator who allegedly had charged an elderly Nampa couple $792 for spraying around their home and several trees.

He said operators must have passed a written examination before they can do business in the state and must also carry an applicators license with them.

Arstein said homeowners should ask to see the applicators license before signing any contracts. He said that two or three bids should be sought or that the work be contracted to local firms.

Garden care problems eased by right tools

By JIM HILDRETH
United Press International

Growing and caring for a garden can be hard work, but satisfying. To make the work load easier, however, a few tools can be useful.

A small backyard garden plot can be grown entirely with the use of hand tools. The key items include a steel spade or spading fork, a hoe, a steel rake, watering can, garden cord and stakes for making straight rows. In addition, a hand duster or sprayer, a shovel and a hand trowel may be useful. After that, you'll probably also want a wheelbarrow, an ax and mattock, pruning and clipping shears.

For larger gardens, a fertilizer spreader and a wheel hoe are also desirable.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says clean, sharp and high-grade tools will greatly reduce garden labor. A cheaper tool may not be the least expensive in the long run if it has to be replaced too soon.

A wide variety of garden machinery is now offered to the suburban and country gardener with a good sized plot to cultivate. The equipment should be chosen to fit the amount of work to be done, the contour of the land and the character of the soil.

Cultivating and other light work can generally be done with a three-horsepower garden tractor. However, a medium size tractor is desirable for plowing. A rotary tiller will do the job in light to medium soils.

In deciding on a power lawn mower, it's well to remember that of the two types of mowing blades—the reel and the rotary—the reel blade will provide a finer cut. However, it tends to be less effective on uneven ground and is more costly to keep sharpened. Now is a good time to have your lawn mower checked and blades sharpened by an experienced repairman.

A few reminders about using fertilizers: don't guess at the type and amount you need. Start out by consulting your county agricultural agent—usually working out of the county seat. He'll arrange for a soil test or tell you how to get one. If that's not possible, invest in an economical soil testing kit to guide you in deciding what fertilizers to use and how much lime, if any, should be added to the soil. Some plants, like tomatoes and azaleas, prefer acid soils and generally do best with little or no lime.

Fertilizers are packaged in many forms and sizes. Some are liquid, others appear in powdered or granule form. Some contain added materials such as mineral elements or pesticides and some are for use on a specific kind of plant.

According to the Department of Agriculture, fertilizers in granule form are more convenient to use although they cost more. Liquid fertilizers, applied with a garden hose, permit absorption of some nutrients through the leaves as well as the roots.

Fertilizers are graded by the primary nutrient content of the mixture. A mixture classified by the numbers five-ten-five, for example, contains five per cent of total nitrogen, 10 per cent of available phosphoric oxide and five per cent of soluble potash.

These nutrients are used in large amounts by plants and are therefore likely to be deficient in the soil.

You may save money by remembering that fertilizers with the same ratios of primary nutrients can be used interchangeably by altering the amount used. For example, a five-ten-five mix has the same proportions as a six-twelve-six mix... that is, one part nitrogen, two parts of phosphoric oxide and one part of potash.

In the same way, one pound of 10-20-10 fertilizer contains the same amount of nutrients as two pounds of five-ten-five. Yet the double richer mix often costs only a third more.

For gardeners with sandy soil a little clay can be added to improve it, or clay soil can be improved with sand. Both, of course, will be enriched with lime and fertilizer.

If you have time and want to save money, there is always the compost heap. One method is to dig a pit three feet deep and as wide as you want. Line the sides with boards. Then put in a six-inch layer of leaves, grass clippings, vegetable tops and similar waste plant material. The layer should be sprinkled with lime and some five-ten-five fertilizer, then covered with a thin layer of soil. Wet the soil and let it remain for several months. The result will be richer soil at a low cost.

Gem spuds purchased for needy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some 25 million pounds of dehydrated potatoes for needy families have been purchased by the federal government, half of the amount from the major spud-producing state of Idaho.

Idaho Sen. Len Jordan referred to the purchase Monday and said the government has indicated a $5 million potato purchasing program for this season.

In other statements, he said he had joined 42 other senators urging President Nixon to release $56 million in Farmers Home Administration funds for water and sewer grants.

Congress appropriated $100 million for the program for fiscal 1971, but the $56 million was caught in a budgetary freeze.

Noisy toys attract safety investigators

By United Press International
A toy that has been described as "the biggest fad since hula hoops" has had kids across the nation clacking like mad. It also has the Federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and other investigative groups concerned whether it is safe to play with.

The toy in question is known by a variety of names. At the recent New York toy fair dozens of toymakers were showing them, with a steady clackety-clack coming from the sales booths.

But in Detroit and Chicago, major department stores took them off the shelves after a public warnings against them by the FDA. Similar action has been taken by other stores in other cities.

The toys are balls of plastic, somewhat smaller than those used in tennis, connected by cords with a finger ring in the middle.

To make them perform, the user moves the ring up and down with one finger. The balls begin to swing and knock together, finally meeting on the upswing and again on the downswing.

More than anything, the toy resembles the bola, the double-weighted rope used by Latin-American cowboys as a flying snare for bringing down cattle or horses, or for killing small

Schools' cost set 15 mills

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — It will take a 15 mill maintenance and operation levy increase to maintain the status quo after this city's three Catholic schools close at the end of this school year and the estimated 700 parochial school youngsters enroll in public schools next year.

Robert Dearmond, city school board chairman, said this means "at least" $180,000 in teacher salaries alone.

Dearmond told a special seven-member committee studying the increased enrollment prospects "the Catholics have been paying a double burden over the years."

"The problem now is to provide the same kind of education with the same amount of money," he said. "The only way is to increase the funds."

The seven-member team is expected to return April 12 with additional cost figures on such items as buildings to be used, either by purchase or rental, books, equipment and availability of faculty.

game. But attractive as it may be, or whatever its origin, warnings against its sale or use continue to pile up. Among the latest was one from the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness. The society suggested restraint from buying until the FDA issued safety standards for their manufacture, expected next month.

The FDA warning issued in February said at least four injuries had been reported to it. It cautioned the balls can sometimes shatter into fragments that can inflict cuts.

The FDA also reported that the balls, when made of clear plastic, could start fires in the same fashion that a flame can be sparked by a magnifying glass, by focusing the sun's rays when the balls are left on inflammable material.

A spokesman in the National Safety Council's Toy Safety Division in Chicago said that most of the balls are made by one of two methods: A ball of liquid plastic poured into a mold and then cured; or a cast ball, which is seamed. In some cases, the cords are sealed into the interior of the balls. In others, the cord runs through a hole bored in a ball is then secured with a knot.

One manufacturer, this source said, reported that he made the balls of opaque plastic which would stand a pressure of up to 50,000 pounds per square inch without shattering. All toymakers seemed conscious that in some of the early entries on the market there had been danger from shattering, this source said.

Party suit dropped

BOISE (UPI) — Fourth District Judge Marion J. Callister has dismissed a suit in which the American Party attempted to force the state to recognize it as a political entity. Earl C. Manchester, Boise, chairman of the party, told the court Tuesday that legal barriers to recognition of the party were removed by a bill enacted by the 41st Legislature. He said party members cast more than three per cent of the votes in 1970 gubernatorial election, thereby qualifying as a political party under the new law.

Airline tax returns total 3,140 annually

NEW YORK (UPI)—Income tax headaches. Think you have them? You might get some comfort from an inside look at what the income tax staff at a company like United Air Lines goes through.

The average taxpayer goes through the April 15 torture test once a year. UAL files an average of one tax return every 39 minutes if you figure on a 40 hour week. Its tax department of 16 full time men prepares 3,140 returns annually, including 1,818 payments to various federal, state and local bodies.

In United's case, the 1970 federal income tax return required 247 pages of forms and supporting schedules. And UAL got back $21.8 million because it lost $40.8 million. The year before it paid $37 million on profits of $47.6 million.

But the federal tax is only the beginning of UAL's tax worries. It also prepared 45 returns for state income and franchise tax, 852 payroll tax and information returns, 130 property tax returns, 423 sales and use tax returns and 168 fuel tax returns. United pays a sales and use tax in 28 states, the District of Columbia and Canada. Its property taxes range over 31 states, the District of Columbia and Canada.

Aside from federal income tax, UAL pays Washington the federal unemployment insurance tax and a licensing tax for each of its 375 planes. It also is responsible for matching the employer's FICA (Social Security) tax.

The there are the excise taxes. Airlines must pay a federal liquor tax. Their planes are considered by the government as a retail liquor dealer at large, and each plane must be licensed as a cocktail lounge or tavern.

State and local taxes, generally for the privilege of doing business, come in the form of a license or franchise. The tax is based either on income or capital investment.

Death rate record low

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America's infant death rate, long a cause of debate over health care for the poor, dropped to a record low in 1970, the Health, Education and Welfare Department (HEW) said today.

The death rate for infants under one year of age, estimated from a national sampling of death certificates, was 19.8 deaths for each 10,000 live births in 1970, compared with 20.7 per 1,000 in 1969.

From 1915 to 1919 the rate was 95.7 deaths per 1,000. In 1950 it was 29.2, and in 1960 it was 26.0.

However, the new figures also showed that the "color gap" between infant death rates for whites and rates for all other races widened slightly for the first time since 1960, said HEW's National Center for Health Statistics. The gap had been narrowing through the last decade.

The infant death rate for white children dropped from 18.8 per 1,000 in 1969 to 18.0 last year, while the death rate of nonwhite children increased from 32.3 to 32.5.

Catholic school end announced

WALLACE (UPI) — The Catholic Church appears to be phasing out of the education field in northern Idaho.

Tuesday Boise Diocese Bishop Sylvester Treinen said Catholic grade schools at Wallace and Kellogg will be closed at the end of this school year. He said the decision was made by the Sisters of Charity of Providence of Spokane, who operate St. Alphonsus grade school here and St. Rita's school in Kellogg, the only parochial schools in the area.

Earlier this month the announcement was made that IHM Academy in Coeur d'Alene would also close this spring.

In the past several years 12 other Catholic grade schools and two high schools have been closed in Idaho.

Rigby junior high destroyed by fire

RIGBY, Idaho (UPI) — Fire which possibly started from faulty electrical wiring destroyed the 52-year-old Rigby Junior High School early today at a loss of some $340,000.

A school janitor discovered the blaze shortly before 2 a.m. and turned in the alarm. Firefighting units from Rigby, Jefferson County and Idaho Falls responded and brought the fire under control about 4:30 a.m.

A spokesman for the Idaho Falls Fire Department said that

"other than the boiler room at the rear of the building" the structure was completely lost. Although it was made of brick the building collapsed during the course of the fire, he said.

Fire officials said it appeared the blaze began near the stage in the old gymnasium.

District Superintendent Virgil Powell estimated the value of the building itself, built in 1919, at $250,000. He said the contents were worth about $90,000.

Jerome chamber elects

JEROME — James Keith was elected president of the Jerome Chamber of Commerce at the annual dinner Wednesday night at Wood's Cafe. More than 130 persons attended the event which featured Gov. Cecil Andrus as speaker.

"If we cut back appropriations to less than what they are spending this year, the department will not have personnel to even inspect migrant camps in Idaho," the governor said.

"In all good conscience, if I ask for more help, I've got to have funding available," the governor said. "I can't arbitrarily say we need more money if it's not available."

He said if we do not fund these things at the state level, the problems "Keep hitting people at the local level, increased property taxes and they just can't stand that."

Andrus fights RR hike

JEROME — Idaho shippers should get a decrease, not an increase in rail freight rates, Gov. Cecil Andrus said here Wednesday.

The governor said he intends to fight the 15 per cent freight increase granted this week by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"Basically, if we do not get continuation of rail passenger service, the railroad will get out from under one of the portions of their business which has been causing them a loss," the governor said.

Youth use barred

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls builder Earl Peck won't be able to help out area teen-agers as he has done for many years with his latest project, the $53,000 department of employment addition.

But the government turned a firm "thumbs down." "Nobody under 18 can work on this construction project," Eldon Ryals of the department of labor told Peck.

The department of employment project is the first state-controlled project his firm has done, Peck said.

Saxvik hits remap move

BOISE — Sen. Robert Saxvik, D-Burley, charged Wednesday that legislators may be "gerrymandering" his Cassia County legislative district.

Sen. Saxvik assailed in particular a plan to link Oneida County's legislative district with District 25, in Cassia County, saying that "Some of the alternate plans smack of gerrymandering."

Saxvik also protested a proposal to equalize the population within the Magic Valley legislative districts by "including a sparsely populated area in eastern Twin Falls County" in District 25.

Sawtooth park bill opposed

GOODING — The Wood River Resource Association has resubmitted to U.S. Congress a resolution opposing a national park in the Sawtooths and favoring a recreational area instead, Idaho State Sen. Don Fredericksen, chairman of the WRRRA, said today.

The decision was made at an association meeting Tuesday. Howard Tankersley, Boise, University of Idaho extension service representative, reported that the public opinion survey mailed to residents of Gooding, Camas, Lincoln and Blaine counties should be concluded by April 5.

A report on sewer and water planning over the next two years was given at the meeting by Marshall Edson, Boise, of the Idaho Water Resource Board. Also attending the meeting from Boise was Robert O'Hara of International Engineering, a consulting firm, who spoke on possible grants and the importance of recycling solid wastes on a regional basis.

GOODING — The ninth annual Oldtime Fiddlers Contest, sponsored by the Gooding Chamber of Commerce and Merchant's Bureau, will be held Saturday at the Frahm Junior High Auditorium.

Gooding is the only town in Idaho certified by the fiddler's association which can hold official contests.

Mannie Shaw, Corral, will be master of ceremonies. Shaw organized the nation's fiddler's association in 1960, the nation's first, at the request of the governor. Its original purpose was to provide entertainment at the Territorial Centennial of 1963.

Registration for the event will be Saturday morning and 50 contestants from all over the state are expected to participate, Sams said. The elimination contest will begin at 2 p.m. and the top 10 finalists will compete for the Idaho state championship at 8 p.m.

Inquest delayed

GOODING — The inquest into the death of a Mountain Home airman scheduled for Friday has been postponed, Deputy Sheriff Bill Burn said today.

The inquest into the fatal plunge of a car carrying S. Sgt. Charles S. Booker into the Malad River Canyon Sunday was first scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday.

Deputy Bunn said the widow, Mrs. Nancy Booker, has taken the body of her husband to Bluffton, Ind., for funeral services and burial. She is expected to return next week when the inquest will be rescheduled.

Red tape forms office foundation

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Staff Writer
TWIN FALLS — A multitude of federal and state regulations surrounding construction of a state-funded project was explained to the contractor, Earl Peck, two subcontractors and officials of the Idaho Department of Employment during a pre-construction conference on Wednesday in Twin Falls.

The project, costing about $53,000, involves construction of an addition to the department of employment office in Twin Falls. Peck has been named as prime contractor by the Idaho Department of Public Works, watchdog for the project. His "subs" include Parr Electric, represented at the conference by Darrell Edwards, and A & B Plumbing and Heating, represented by Jack Boriasse.

Architects and his representative Robert Parlato; John Leimen, manager of the Twin Falls office of the state department of employment; Leland Chatterton, Boise, from the department of employment headquarters; Eldon Ryals, Filer, representing the U.S. Department of Labor; Ron Nielson, Boise, project manager for the department of public works, who conducted the meeting; and Harry Stone, Boise, acting Idaho Commissioner of Public Works.

Ryals told Peck and his "subs" that federal regulations on safety are strict. "Hard hats" must be worn at all times; aluminum ladders may not be used for any electrical work, and all electrical equipment must be thoroughly grounded. "We will not back down on this grounding requirement," Ryals said.

Federal inspectors will visit the job site regularly to make certain that all regulations are followed, he said.

Nielson said that the Idaho Department of Public Works is the controlling agency for state construction work such as the Twin Falls project. Regular reports on all phases of the project, from payroll to materials used, must be forwarded to the department through the architect. All "communication" between the department of employment and the contractor must be completed through the architect, which is in effect the local representative of the state agency, Nielson said.

The subcontractors must issue regular reports on their progress to the contractor, Peck, who will forward the reports to the architect. Peterson, who in turn will send them on to Nielson at the department of public works.

All changes in the original plans must follow the same route — from the "subs" to the contractor, from the contractor to the architect, and from the architect to the state. Approval of change orders will follow an even more circuitous route: after the department of public works receives the request for a change in plans, the department of employment in Boise will be asked to approve the change; the approval will go back to the department of public works, and Nielson will send the approval back down the "chain of command."

Should the contractor or his "subs" be delayed in completion of the project due to bad weather or other unpredictable events, a complete explanation and justification of the delay must be forwarded through the chain of authority to Boise.

Nielson said the department will "study the explanation for the delay" and, if justified, an allowance will be made in the contract which allows just 120 calendar days for completion of the project.

Any plans for overtime or weekend work by the contractor or the subcontractors must be approved well in advance of the actual work, so that an inspector can be on hand, Nielson said. State inspectors will visit the job site periodically, to "make sure that all specifications are being met." A violation will bring a warning and, usually, a personal visit to the job site by Nielson. Flagrant violations could conceivably force the contractor to suspend work until the problem is solved.

Monthly meetings will be conducted during the progress of the project, with Nielson and all others present to review construction and solve any problems that have arisen. Nielson presented an 11-item agenda that must be followed in all subsequent meetings.

Nielson explained that his job is specifically to watch costs of state project. "I save the state the amount of my salary every month by trimming expenses on change orders and other construction items," he said.

He told the Times-News after the conference that he travels throughout the state constantly, keeping control of many projects, including the new vocational-technical building of the College of Southern Idaho, which is partially funded with state money.

Monthly progress conferences are required on all projects, including the state work.

Bassett named to all-American JC team

Rebounding stalwart becomes third straight CSI first-unit choice

Tim Bassett, 20-year-old, 6-8 Washington, D.C., product, was named to the National Junior College Athletic Association All-American first team Wednesday. Bassett became the third CSI star in as many years to earn the honors, joining Tom Bush and Steve Hegens. It marked a climax for the young giant's list of honors in the past three weeks, starting with being named the most valuable player in the 18th regional tournament at Coeur d'Alene plus, of course, all tournament selection; all-regional team selected by coaches in Idaho, Oregon and Washington; all-Intermountain Collegiate Athletic Conference, and all-tournament team in the national finals after helping the Eagles finish second.

"It is something I dreamed about last summer, not making first team but getting honorable mention junior college or something like that. I'm really surprised," Bassett said when informed of his latest and biggest award.

The first-team all-America is dominated by big men. Joining Bassett in the six-man lineup were 6-11 Robert McAdoo of Vincennes; 6-7 Clyde Turner of Robert Morris, Ill.; Dennis Bell, Gulf Coast, Panama City, Fla.; 6-6 Abe Stewart, Casper, Wyo., and 6-5 Aaron Stewart, Essex, N. J.

The second team was composed of Joe Crips, Southwest Oklahoma; Gerry Newby, Broome Tech, N. Y.; Larry Kenon, Amarillo, Tex.; Benny Clyde, Ellsworth, Ia.; Roy Simpson, Vincennes, and Tom Henderson, San Jacinto, Tex. Third team — Wayne Williams, Arizona Western; Martinez Denmon, Coffeyville, Kans.; Darryl Minnifield, Independence, Kans.; Tom Riccardi, Gulf Coast, Fla.; Sam Harvey, Kilgore, Tex., and Joe Cafferky, Brandywine, Del.

The rise to all-American came only five years after Bassett was cut from his ninth grade basketball team. "I figured then I would never be a basketball player," he smiles. After turning his attention to baseball, Bassett drew the attention of the varsity coach at McKinley Tech in Washington, D.C., who saw him playing the game during P. E. periods. He invited Bassett to try out for the varsity. "I told him I wasn't even going to try out for the jayvee team," Bassett recalls. But he went out and made the team as a sophomore.

He went on from there to win all-metropolitan honors, all inter-high in Washington, D.C., and his senior year was selected a high school all-American. But that wasn't such a big deal, as it turned out. "We had four high school all-Americans on our starting five," he says. Bassett averaged 22 rebounds, 17 points and ranked 11th in the nation in rebounding.

"I talked to coach (Jerry) Hale when he was at El Paso. He told me he was getting a good job here and felt that if he could get (Ron) Behagen from New York and if I could talk (Steve) Hegens into coming out here with me, we would have a good chance of going to junior college nationals. Lou Schaffel (a New York attorney) was the man who introduced me to Coach Hale and he had a lot to do with getting me to come out here," Bassett said.

Looking toward his final two years of college ball, Bassett is uncertain where he will wind up. "The phone has been ringing constantly for Behagen and me since we got back (from nationals). I would like to stay in the west for my last two years and I plan to stay in Twin Falls this summer."

It is not unlikely that Bassett and Behagen will end up going to the same college. About the only school that hasn't put in a bid as yet is UCLA and that could change when the NCAA finals are completed.

Although Coach Hale was on a recruiting trip and unavailable for comment, assistant Coach Jerry Meyerhoffer spoke for the school. "We are very happy for Tim. He has been a fine representative of CSI for the past two years. He's a fine young man and he'll have success no matter what he chooses to do after school."

College coaches told to shun ABA

HOUSTON (UPI)—Kentucky basketball Coach Adolph Rupp said Wednesday he was bitterly disappointed in the American Basketball Association's signing of Johnny Neumann and an NCAA official said ABA scouts should be barred from college campuses.

Charles Neinas, assistant to the executive director of the NCAA, said he would recommend barring the scouts if any athletic director asked.

"Any institution which rents to the ABA should think twice about it," Neinas said. "I would assume that our members and the National Association of Basketball Coaches will adopt a fairly strong position of non-cooperation of anything that has to do with the ABA."

Rupp, president of the NABC which is meeting in conjunction with this week's NCAA basketball finals, said the coaches will discuss the situation at their convention, which continues through Friday.

"You've just hit me like Nagasaki," Rupp said when informed of the Mississippi sophomore's signing with Memphis of the ABA.

"Johnny Neumann and I have been personal friends," Rupp said. "I had hoped he would remain in our conference. He is a truly great athlete and I am sorry to see him take this route. I believe he made a mistake."

Neinas doubted the $2 million figure Neumann was supposed to have received for signing. "It is difficult to realize that he can afford to pay the salaries they are quoting, according to their attendance figures, and I suppose their attendance figures are exaggerated," Neinas said.

"I think the ABA is trying to use this device to force the merger," Neinas said. "I think there still is a question in many people's minds of how long the league can last with the unfortunate result that many of these young people may be signing with a league that might not be in existence in a couple of years."

"I think they're getting desperate," Neinas said.

Mayor likes bowl, needs $250,000

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Mayor Moon Landrieu said Wednesday he considers New Orleans' selection as the 1972 Super Bowl site, "a great achievement that's going to mean a big pay for the community."

But the mayor said he did not know at present how the city is going to come up with the $250,000 to install artificial turf in Tulane Stadium.

The announcement that New Orleans had been chosen to host the National Football League world championship game came after an NFL team owners' meeting in Palm Springs Tuesday.

Commenting on NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle's stipulation that artificial turf would have to be installed, Landrieu said Rozelle's reason for the condition was the possibility of rain on the day of the game.

Landrieu said he did not know exactly where the money for the turf would come from, but that a committee would be meeting immediately to plan a fund-raising campaign. He said Tulane University, the New Orleans Saints and some private concerns expressed interest in helping raise the money.

The mayor said he considers the quarter of a million dollars "a small enough investment to get down here this type of function that most cities would pay just publicity, much less the $5 million the city expects to derive from the game itself."

"If you want to play in the big leagues," he said, "you've got to put up."

Landrieu said he believes New Orleansians' attitude toward the game played an important role in getting the game here for the second time in three years, and added that the city "wants to put on the best game in the world."

Newest CSI all-American

TIM BASSETT of College of Southern Idaho has been chosen to the first team of the junior college all-America squad selected Wednesday. Bassett averaged 16 rebounds and 15 points in helping CSI finish first in the national rankings and second in the national tournament this year.

NFL owners reject proposal for two-point conversions

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Reminded of the philosophy of the late Vince Lombardi that the object of the game is not to get beat, National Football League owners Wednesday voted down a two-point conversion proposal.

It was the second time the NFL bosses turned down a proposed change in the rules to give a team the option of running or passing for two points following a touchdown, as was done in the old American Football League for 10 years.

"Like Lombardi, they feel that in pro football it's important to win, but the big thing is not to get beat," said Mark Duncan, supervisor of league officials.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle's press aid, Don Weiss, said the proposal was defeated by a margin but there seemed to be more sentiment in its favor this time around.

He pointed out that in the AFL in 1969, the two-point conversion was attempted only 15 times after a total of more than 300 touchdowns. Only four of those were successful.

The owners, holding their annual winter meeting at the rambling, old Breakers Hotel, settled down to routine business Wednesday after a stormy session the day before which ended with Super Bowl VI awarded to New Orleans.

The decision to turn the showcase game to the Mardi Gras city was considered a compromise to settle a deadlock between Dallas and Miami forces.

The owners also turned down a change in the encroachment rule which would have permitted play to continue to its conclusions during a field goal attempt or extra point try. The current rule, which will stand, gopped plays immediately and does not give the defensive team the option to refuse the penalty. Thursday's agenda focuses on a controversial alteration in field goal rules. On a field goal attempt outside the 20-yard line the ball would be returned to the previous line of scrimmage if a touchback develops on a missed kick. A complicated rule change dealing with double fouls was tabled for action at the NFL's

Knicks' title hopes keyed to Willis Reed

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Knicks open defense of their National Basketball Association title against the Atlanta Hawks Thursday with their chances of gaining back-to-back championships depending on Willis Reed's state of physical preparedness.

Reed, still suffering from tendonitis of the knee, may be forced to ask for pain-killing shots if the nagging ache becomes unbearable and hampers his movement. To accentuate New York's injury problem, substitute forward Phil Jackson twisted his right ankle in practice Tuesday. His playing time may be limited.

The Knicks rate 6 1-2 point favorites over Atlanta on the basis of their home court advantage. The teams split six games during the regular season, but Atlanta has shown the most ability down the wire as the Hawks beat out Cincinnati for a playoff berth in the Central Division. Reed says his ailment is "like a person suffering from arthritis. One game you're high and the next you're low. I could be off three days and the knee can bother me. I can play two games in as many nights and it won't bother me."

Reed doesn't have the support this season that the Knick captain had last year when the club rallied around him after a near disastrous hip injury in the Los Angeles playoffs. He was hurt in the fifth game of the finals but the Knicks surged back from a 16-point deficit to beat the Lakers.

After Los Angeles tied the series at three-all, Reed made a token appearance in the seventh game, scored the first four points of the contest and then watched his teammates rip Los Angeles for the title. "If our starters play up to their potential...it'll make the difference in the playoffs," Reed said.

Atlanta has rebounding and firepower and a good floor general in Walt Hazzard. Bill Bridges is averaging 15 rebounds a game, compared to Reed's 13.7. Pete Maravich is the league's eighth leading scorer with a 23.2 average and Hazzard is sixth in assists with a 6.3 average.

Walt Frazier is the Knicks' leading pointmaker with a 21.7 average, 13th best in the NBA. Reed follows with 20.9, ranking him No. 17 among the scorers. Frazier is also the league's No. 5 man in assists with a 6.7 average.

The battle of the boards could be the decisive factor in this series. Walt Bellamy, a former Knick who always works well against New York, will try to wear down Reed with his weight and maneuverability.

Lakers rally in last minute to edge Bulls

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—Gail Goodrich sank two pressure free throws with 1:01 remaining Wednesday night as the Los Angeles Lakers battled back from a 17-point deficit to

Low grabs point title at 31.7

NEW YORK (UPI)—Lew Alcindor, 7-foot, 2-inch star of the Milwaukee Bucks and the National Basketball Association's most valuable player for 1970-71, was officially crowned the league's scoring champion today with a 31.7 per game average.

Statistics released by the NBA showed that Alcindor tallied 25.9 points compared to 28.9 by John Havlicek of the Boston Celtics. Elvin Hayes of the San Diego Rockets was third with a 28.7 average and Dave Bing of the Detroit Pistons was fourth with 27.

Alcindor averaged 28.8 points during the 1969-70 season when he was the NBA's rookie of the year.

Johnny Green of Cincinnati won his second consecutive field goal percentage title with a .587 mark; Chet Walker of Chicago won the free throw percentage crown with an .859 mark; Wilt Chamberlain of the Los Angeles Lakers copped the rebounding championship—his ninth—with an average of 18.2 per game and Norm Van Lier of Cincinnati was the leader in assists with an average of 10.1 per game.

Trevino fishes while Player shoots 64

MIAMI (UPI)—While Gary Player was out shooting a 64 in preparation for the $200,000 National Airlines Open which starts Thursday, defending champion Lee Trevino was fishing—and not doing too well.

Trevino, fishing in the ponds that dot the par 72 Country Club of Miami west course, came up with only four small bass.

But he had no complaints about the 6,970-yard course itself. "I've played it once, and I've won once," last year's leading money winner said with a grin. "Yeah, I guess you could say I like it."

Trevino was confident enough he played only nine holes prior to the 18-hole pro-am Wednesday. "I'll be ready when it starts Thursday," he promised.

Player, as usual, was taking things a little more seriously. The winner of last week's Greater Jacksonville Open in a playoff with young Hal Underwood said Wednesday, "Last week's over. I can only say I played well last week. That doesn't mean I'll play well this week."

"Golf's a great humbling game—a fractional game," he said.

edge the Chicago Bulls 100-99 in the first game of the Western Division NBA semi-final playoffs.

After missing the first free throw on a three to make two situation, Goodrich put in the next two. The Bulls missed two shots at their end of the court and Los Angeles was able to get the ball out of bounds with 30 seconds remaining.

The Lakers worked the clock down until rookie Jim McMillian attempted a shot with six seconds to go. The shot bounced off, the rim into the waiting hands of Goodrich who dribbled away the last few seconds.

McMillian, who was in the lineup as a result of an injury to Jerry West, paced the second half comeback and wound up sinking a career high of 28 points.

The first year man from Columbia connected on 10 of 14 field goal attempts in the last two periods.

Goodrich ended with 25 points, while Keith Erickson added 23 and Wilt Chamberlain 18.

Bob Love led the Bulls with 24 points while Chet Walker had 15.

The Lakers reversed their first half play in the last 24 minutes of the game. Chicago built up a 56-39 bulge early in the third period by outbounding and outshooting Los Angeles.

Los Angeles bounced back to score 21 of the next 27 points, eventually cutting the lead to 62-60.

But Chicago again built up a seven-point advantage in the fourth quarter. And Los Angeles played catchup until McMillian tied it at 90 on a drive with 4:50 remaining. The Bulls again took the lead on Bob Weiss' jump shot but Goodrich got the next four for the Lakers to knot the count at 93. The lead changed hands four more times in the final two minutes.

Walker's layup with 1:19 to go gave Chicago a 99-98 advantage until Goodrich got his free throws for the win.

The Bulls were able to make a second and third effort count in the first half when they jumped into a 54-38 dash at the intermission.

Andretti has mishap in tuneup

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI)—Mario Andretti spun out in his Formula One Ferrari Wednesday during practice for Sunday's $250,000 Quesor Grand Prix at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Andretti was not injured in the mishap, which occurred on the 14th corner of the 20-turn road course when a wheel got into the soft sand on the inside.

The car went into a spin and smacked against the outside wall, damaging the suspension assembly on the left front wheel. Plans were made to fly in a new assembly from the factory in Modena, Italy.

The suspension parts were not expected to arrive before Friday and Andretti was scheduled to be in Phoenix, Ariz., that day to qualify for a NASCAR 150 mile race in which he will drive Saturday.

With no opportunity to qualify the Ferrari here, it was expected Andretti would start at the back of the pack for the invitational race.

Before the spinout, Andretti had the fastest lap of the practice session—1:04.289 miles an hour. The Nazareth, Pa., driver is the leader in the world championship driver standings with his win in the South African Grand Prix.

College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles will try to get their home baseball season underway Friday when they entertain the Idaho State University Bengals in a doubleheader at Jaycee Park. Cold, wet weather has hampered the conditioning of both teams. Southern Idaho enters the games with an 0-2 record, having dropped a twin bill to Boise State last week.

St. Bonaventure, Georgia Tech gain semi-finals

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rich Yunkus, using his experience to perfection, scored 27 points and grabbed 16 rebounds Wednesday night to spark Georgia Tech to a 78-70 upset over

Michigan, enabling the Engineers to join St. Bonaventure in the semi-finals of the National Invitation Tournament. St. Bonaventure, paced by sophomore Carl Jackson's 13 second-half points, scored 10 consecutive points in the last five minutes to play to score a 73-64 come from behind victory over Hawaii in another quarter final game earlier Wednesday night. Georgia Tech will meet St. Bonaventure in the semi-finals Thursday night. A pair of Atlantic Coast Conference teams, North Carolina and Duke, will meet in the other semi final game.

Tunkus, a 6-9 senior center, completely outfoxed Michigan's sophomore center, 6-9 Ken Brady with inside moves as he poured in 16 second half points to rally the Engineers to victory.

Georgia Tech, which led 33-31 at halftime, took command of the game early in the second half as Yunkus poured in six points in a three-minute stretch to give the Engineers a 43-35 lead. Michigan pulled to within three points with 8:07 remaining but never got any closer as Yunkus kept connecting on key baskets.

Yunkus received help from Tommy Wilson who scored 15 points, including 11 in the second half and from Bob Murphy, who finished with 16. Brady led Michigan with 20 points and Henry Wilmore, another sophomore tallied 18 for the Wolverines.

Michigan ended its season with a 19-7 record while Georgia Tech boosted its mark to 22-8. Jackson, held to two points in the first half, was the instrumental force in the Bonnies' comeback victory as he scored six of his points during a three-minute stretch when the Bonnies turned a 62-59 deficit into a 70-63 lead with 1:08 to play.

Hawaii, which trailed by as many as 12 points in the first half, had rallied to take a 62-59 lead with 6:13 to play but did not score a point for the next five minutes as the Bonnies rattled off 10 points in a row. Greg Gray's basket with 4:05 to play put St. Bonaventure ahead, 63-62, and two baskets by Jackson and two by Paul Hoffman gave the Bonnies a commanding 70-63 lead with 1:08 left.

Gary scored 20 points to lead St. Bonaventure, Hoffman added 18 and Jackson tallied 15. John Penebacker scored 18 points to lead Hawaii while Tom Newell chipped in with 17. Bob Nash, who scored 13 points and grabbed 14 rebounds in the first half for Hawaii, spent seven minutes of the second half on the bench with four personal fouls and this contributed heavily to the Bonnies' victory. Nash scored only two points in the second half and finished with 19 rebounds.

Frazier may have suffered head injury against Clay

NEW YORK (UPI)—Heavyweight champion Joe Frazier faced possible suspension today by the New York State Athletic Commission on the recommendation of commission physician Dr. Edwin Campbell.

Campbell examined Frazier for three days after Frazier's successful 15-round title defense over Muhammad Ali on March 8 and revealed the champion was suffering from the symptoms of either a concussion or a subdural hematoma.

During the days after the bout, Frazier suffered from severe nausea, including vomiting, and "was more exhausted than any fighter I've ever seen," according to Campbell. He also showed an increase in blood pressure, a decrease in pulse rate and headaches before he was later hospitalized in Philadelphia for a series of extensive tests. Because of the symptoms, Campbell said he hoped Frazier would decide to retire and added that he was recommending suspension because of the probability of a head injury. Frazier was hospitalized a week after the bout when he returned home to Philadelphia, and he will not be discharged until Saturday. He was described as "feeling fine."

Dr. James C. Giuffre, who has been administering tests and treatment to the 27-year-old Frazier since he arrived at St. Luke's Children's Hospital, said, "I'm perfectly satisfied with my findings that he's fully recovered. He has a strenuous schedule ahead of him and we want him back in a month to check him."

"We want to make absolutely certain he is top physical shape," Giuffre added. "I'm perfectly satisfied that he suffered no head injury or brain damage in the fight. He came to me showing signs of tension and stress. His main complaint when I saw him was of tiredness. It was because his blood chemistry was abnormal and his blood pressure was elevated. There was no evidence of any head injury."

A subdural hematoma is a blood clot in the tissue surrounding the brain, and it can grow larger, forcing an operation. Symptoms for a concussion or subdural hematoma include nausea, headaches, high blood pressure and a low pulse rate. Frazier had all of those symptoms.

A neurosurgeon explained that a brain (subarachnoid) hemorrhage, in addition to a concussion, would also cause the symptoms experienced by Frazier. He added that if the cause had been a subdural hematoma, the clot would have to be a very small one or else Frazier's condition would have gotten progressively worse.

The "punch drunk syndrome" found in some fighters was attributed to a series of minor hemorrhages in the brain over several bouts by the neurosurgeon.

SEC chief rips ABA raiders

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Southeastern Conference Commissioner A.M. "Tonto" Coleman said Wednesday he believes if professional teams are allowed to sign college sport stars at any time it could have a "devastating effect" on intercollegiate athletics.

Coleman, asked for comment on the Johnny Neumann case, said he had nothing to say about Neumann "per se" except he believed the Mississippi star "probably did what he thought was best."

Coleman said he had received assurances from the "pro football leagues and the National Basketball Association" that they will not sign players early but he "understands the ABA (American Basketball Association) has drafted several college athletes who have eligibility remaining."

"You can easily see if a professional organization is permitted to sign any college athlete at any time in their career it will have a devastating effect on intercollegiate sports—football, basketball and so forth—and will, ultimately, have the same effect on the professionals themselves," Coleman said.

Giants' move from New York definite

TRENTON, N. J. (UPI)—Gov. William T. Cahill said Wednesday the New York Giants football team has assured him they would move to New Jersey if the state provided a new stadium where they could play.

Cahill said a bill would be introduced in the Legislature Thursday or early next week to create a sports authority to build a sports complex in the Hackensack Meadows lands in northern New Jersey, across the Hudson River from New York City.

"There is no commitment with them (Giants) at the present," Cahill said at a news conference. "Our capacity to perform is the question. If we produce, I'm confident the New York Giants will produce, but the first step is our ability to produce."

Cahill said he was hopeful the Giants, a National Football League team, might be able to play their first game at the new facility by November, 1973. The governor did not reveal the precise site where the sports complex would be built. He said the complex would probably seat 75,000 fans for football.

He said building the sports complex would cost about $100 million. He said the state would incur none of the costs since funds would be raised by floating bonds through the sports authority.

Cahill said the complex would include a stadium, a 40,000-seat racetrack, a hotel, ample parking and improved roads. He said it could also include facilities for basketball, hockey and conventions.

The move to attract the Giants, and possibly the New York Yankees baseball team, has put Cahill in competition with New York Mayor John Lindsay.

The mayor has already pledged to renovate Yankee Stadium as a way of assuring those teams will remain in the city. Soon after Lindsay made that announcement, the Yankees indicated they would

Morton out to prove rookie of year award was deserved

By United Press International Carl Morton says he is out to prove that 1970 was "no fluke" and it looks like the Montreal Expos' sophomore pitcher will achieve that goal.

An 18-game winner and the National League's Rookie of the Year in 1970, Morton went the nine-inning distance Wednesday in pitching the Expos to a 6-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves. Morton allowed only four singles as the Expos scored their ninth victory in their last 11 games.

Mack Jones and Ron Fairly homered for the Expos and Bobby Wine weighed in with a run-scoring triple. Morton, a converted outfielder, had a 3.60 earned run average to go with his 18-11 record in 1970.

On other fronts: Thurman Munson and Bobby Murcer hit homers as the New York Yankees downed the Boston Red Sox, 9-5, while pummeling former 22-game winner Jim Lonborg for six runs, seven hits and two walks in four innings. Lonborg, attempting to recapture his 1967 form when the Red Sox won the American League pennant, has yet to make an impressive showing this spring ... Bob Robertson's sixth homer of the spring, a three-run clout in the first inning, paced the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 9-2 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies. John Briggs homered for the Phillies.

Tommy Helms and Hal McRae had three hits each and Mill Wilcox pitched seven scoreless innings in the Cincinnati Reds' 8-4 win over the Houston Astros. Cesar Cedeño, Ray Busse and Jay Alou homered off Joe Gibboz during the last two innings ... Al Kaline's three-run homer off Dave McNally, helped the Detroit Tigers to a 7-2 decision over the Baltimore Orioles despite a homer by Boog Powell.

Richie Allen had a triple, double and two singles to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 10-9 victory over the Washington Senators. Curt Flood drove in three runs with a single and double for the Senators ... Leroy Lee's seventh-inning double drove in the tie-breaking run as the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Chicago White Sox, 3-2. It was only the sixth loss in 19 exhibition games for the White Sox.

Dick Drago allowed only four hits and an unearned run in seven innings in the Kansas City Royals' 6-3 win over the Minnesota Twins. Drago, 9-15 last season, is the first Kansas City pitcher to go seven innings this spring ... Tom Murphy's three-hit pitching for seven innings paced the California Angels to a 2-0 win over Salt Lake City, their Triple A affiliate ... Bobby Bonds' two-run tie-breaking homer in the fifth inning led the San Francisco Giants over the Oakland Athletics, 10-7. Willie McCovey also homered for the Giants while Dave Duncan connected for the Athletics ... Rookie Chris Chambers had two doubles and a single to lead the Cleveland Indians to a 7-3 win over the Chicago Cubs. Kent Holtzman struck out eight batters in five innings but suffered his fourth straight loss of the spring.

Capt. James Cook is generally credited with the discovery of Australia.

Hawaii wasn't best, but it was colorful

NEW YORK (UPI)—They weren't the best team in the National Invitation Basketball Tournament, but the Hawaii Rainbows certainly lived up to their name. They were colorful.

They came with boxes of orchids, professional hula dancers, a four-piece band complete with Hawaiian guitar and 10 of the prettiest cheerleaders ever to grace the floor of Madison Square Garden.

They wore hats made of coconut leaves during warmup drills and had warmup suits of Hawaiian print which dazzled the eyes. The girls wore hot pants and peasant blouses which exposed a bare midriff and they made everyone want to leave for the islands immediately.

In short, the University of Hawaii put on quite a show in their first post-season basketball tournament ever. And everyone agreed it helped put Hawaii on the college basketball map.

"Playing in the NIT is going to help our recruiting program a lot," said Coach Red Rocha Wednesday night after his team lost to St. Bonaventure, 73-64, in the quarterfinals. "Our young men gave a real good account of themselves."

T.F. sets 5-way meet for Friday

The Twin Falls Bruins will host four other teams in a track meet starting at 3:30 p.m. Friday at Bruin Stadium.

Running against the Bruins will be teams from Highland, Minico, Pocatello and Skyline.

Twin Falls is heavily favored in the event but the meet also will give area fans a close look at Highland which figures to be one of the better teams around in a month or so. Highland has a pair of aces in Grant Gertsch and Ted Tomlinson who haven't been off the basketball floor long enough yet to get into condition for running.

The meet is the second of 11 Twin Falls will participate in this year, six of them at home. The Bruins have won 13 straight outdoor meets and are the defending state champions.

The remainder of the schedule includes Feb. 2, Minico Invitational; April 7, Highland Invitational; April 16, Minico-Twin Falls dual at Twin Falls; April 23, Hank Power Invitational at Twin Falls (participating will be Buhl, Jerome, Minico and Burley; April 27, triangular meet at Boise; April 30, Eastern Division, SIC, at Highland; May 7, SIC championships at Twin Falls; May 14, regional at Twin Falls, and May 21-22, state at Boise.

Montana loses its cage coach

MISSOULA, Mont. (UPI)—University of Montana basketball coach Lew Rocheleau resigned Wednesday after spending only one year at the position in which he guided the Grizzlies to a fourth place finish in the Big Sky conference.

Rocheleau said he was quitting for "personal reasons" and indicated he would stay with his family in the Missoula area and enter private business.

The resignation marked the second time in two years a former Montana athletic star had given up the post.

Rocheleau, 45, had been named head coach in March of last year following the resignation of Bob Cope, who, with Rocheleau, were stars on Montana teams from 1948-49.

A former four-time selection as Montana coach of the year during an 18-year period at Missoula Sentinel High School, Rocheleau had left the position to assume the duties of assistant coach for the Grizzlies for the two-year period in which Cope was head coach.

The Grizzlies had compiled a 6-8 conference mark and an 8-16 overall record last year.

University of Montana Athletic Director Jack Swarthout, who announced Rocheleau's resignation, said no immediate successor has been named. But he added he has possible successors in mind and expects a new coach to be named in the near future.

Billings Gazette sports editor Norm Clark had reported in last Sunday's edition that Rocheleau was "on his way out" and said reports indicated a Washington coach would replace him.

Clark said Dean Nicholson of NAIA power Central Washington and Don Zech of Puget Sound were among those being given consideration for the job.

Time runs out on protest

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Cleveland Cavaliers Coach Bill Fitch was beaten by the clock in his attempt to file an official protest of his team's loss to the Portland Trailblazers in the final game of the National Basketball Association season Tuesday night.

Fitch had planned to file the protest against a call by referee Bob Rabeck with 3:24 left in the second period and the Cavaliers trailing by 16 points — with the NBA Wednesday.

But league rules state that all protests must be filed by midnight of the last day of the regular season. Since Tuesday was the last day, Fitch was unable to make the protest.

Fitch maintained that after a Cleveland foul against Portland's Dale Schuster — and Schuster's two foul shots — the Cavaliers should have gained possession of the ball.

UCLA, West Kentucky favored in opening round of NCAA finals

HOUSTON (UPI)—Defending champion UCLA, relying on defense and discipline, and Western Kentucky, featuring a "get it and go" offense, were favored in the semifinals of the NCAA basketball tournament at the cavernous Astrodome Thursday night.

UCLA, shooting for its fifth straight national championship and its sixth in the last seven years, meets Kansas in the second game of the opening doubleheader at 9:40 p.m. EST. Both teams have 27-1 records. Western Kentucky, 23-5, the Ohio Valley Conference champion making its first trip to the semifinals since 1939 when it lost to Ohio State.

All four teams worked out Wednesday on the portable floor sitting on iron scaffolding four feet off the ground in the huge domed stadium. All four coaches said their teams were in good condition.

Coach John Wooden, the only one of the coaches who has had a team play in the Astrodome, said it "isn't the best place in the world to have a single game, but it's a good place to have a tournament."

"There'll be problems for us and everybody else as well," said Wooden, whose Lew Alcindor-led team lost to Houston in the dome. "The floor in the open presents a visual depth problem and hurts shooting."

The basketball floor sits in the middle of a four-acre expanse 208 feet below the dome's roof. This could work in Wooden's favor because, unlike his 1968 national champions who were terrific shooters, this year's edition depends on defense. They're also strong on rebounding and experience.

All-American Sidney Wicks (6-8) and Curtis Rowe (6-7) were starters on the 1969 and 1970 national champions. Center Steve Patterson (6-9) and quarterback Henry Bibby (6-1) also started on last year's team, which means they shouldn't get stagefright in front of the record-breaking crowd of 35,000 expected opening night.

Villanova won't have the same kind of pressure. The Wildcats, ranked only 17th, have everything to gain and nothing to lose because they weren't expected to get this far.

They upset ninth-ranked Fordham and third-ranked Pennsylvania to get here — so being an underdog now doesn't bother them.

"Games aren't won because you are an underdog or a favorite," Coach Jack Kraft said. "If we play good basketball, we can win. If we don't, we don't deserve to win."

Villanova uses a fast break offense with a safety valve. Kraft encourages his team to take the fast break if it has the chance, but not to force it if there's a question of whether it will work.

Coach John Oldham of Western Kentucky lets his team run regardless. "We just get it and go," he said.

When they're not fast breaking, the Hilltoppers have

Owens rips Wooden for snooping

HOUSTON (UPI)—Coach Ted Owens of Kansas, whose team meets UCLA in the semifinals of the NCAA tournament Thursday night, was miffed Wednesday when he saw UCLA Coach John Wooden watching the Kansas workout in the Astrodome.

"It was highly unusual," Owens said. "If he thinks that's all right, everyone has his own belief. I wouldn't do it, though. I won't do it now."

UCLA was taking the court for its practice session as Owens spoke. The Kansas coach then went over the railing into the baseball dugout and to the dressing room without looking back.

Wooden said he watched the final 15 minutes. "I didn't see anything I didn't really know," Wooden said. "I wasn't scouting them. They seemed to shoot well and so did we."

"I assumed it was an open practice," Wooden said. "I saw all these people around. I've never seen a closed tournament practice yet."

7-foot Jim McDaniels hitting from the wing or inside. He averaged 29.3 points and 14.9 rebounds a game this season.

Villanova's scoring punch is 6-8 Howard Porter, who carries averages of 23.5 points and 15 rebounds into the semis.

76ers overpowered Bullets in playoff

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Hal Greer and Billy Cunningham sparked a string of 13 straight points midway in the third period that led the Philadelphia 76ers to a 128-112 victory over the Baltimore Bullets Wednesday night in the opener of their East Division NBA playoff series.

Greer finished with 30 points and Cunningham 26, as the 76ers veterans did the most damage in bringing the winners from a 62-61 deficit to a 74-62 lead with 6:48 to go in the third period.

The Bullets, who got 19 points apiece from Ken Loughery and Gus Johnson, got no closer than 77-71 with 4:17 left in that period as Philly gained a 90-77 bulge after three periods.

Philadelphia, which hosts the second game in the best of seven series on Friday night, got 16 points from Archie Clark, 15 from Bailey Howell and a surprise 13 from rookie center Dennis Awtry.

Earl Monroe, suffering from the virus and bruised ribs, was held to six points. Jack Marin added 18 and Fred Carter 16.

Baltimore, champions of the Central Division, held a 56-55 halftime lead over the 76ers who finished second in the Atlantic Division behind New York.

Twin Falls will test two teams

The Twin Falls Bruins will travel to Borah and Boise Saturday afternoon for a baseball doubleheader and will not play on its home field until April 8.

Coach Harold Brown, seeing his Bruins hurt heavily by graduation in the loss of veteran infielders and pitching, will be running into one of the best clubs in the state against Borah.

The Twin Falls schedule includes April 1, Twin Falls at Burley; April 8, Burley at Twin Falls; April 10, Highland at Twin Falls (doubleheader); April 17, Mountain Home at Twin Falls (doubleheader); April 19, Dietrich at Twin Falls; April 22, Idaho Falls at Twin Falls; April 24, Twin Falls at Highland and Pocatello; May 1, Borah and Boise at Twin Falls; May 4, T.F. Jayvees at Twin Falls; May 6, Twin Falls at Dietrich; May 8, Twin Falls at Minico, and May 11-13, district tournament.

The sophomores will play an 11-game schedule, opening April 1 at Burley.

Defending state champion Twin Falls golfers will host Burley and Minico in the opening golf match of the season at 1 p.m. Friday at the Twin Falls municipal course.

Coach Reid Pfeiffer returns two veterans for the two-time state champion team in Jim Blandford and Jeff Thomsen, who also is the state amateur champ. Underclassmen probably will fill the other ranks.

The schedule includes April 2, Eastern division of the SIC at Twin Falls; April 7, Eastern SIC at Highland; April 9, Twin Falls and Minico at Burley; April 22-23, BYU invitational; April 28, Jerome, Buhl and Filer at Twin Falls; April 30, Eastern SIC at Idaho Falls; May 7, SIC championships at Twin Falls; May 14, district tournament at Burley; May 20, state tournament at Twin Falls.

Director showing talents

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Steve Spielberg, a striking director of 23, quaked at the thought of directing Joan Crawford and Barry Sullivan in a television pilot. It proved harmonious despite occasional reminders by Miss Crawford that she was a major star before Steve was born.

Spielberg is under long-term contract to Universal Studios, and a rare bird indeed. Most directors his age are either directing underground pictures or sitting around arty hang-outs telling one another how they'd improve on "Airport" or "Patton".

Accused of being a traitor to his generation, Spielberg replied: "I feel as if I'm working in the establishment and causing tidal waves which are more effective than underground films or talk."

"On a single television show I reach 20 million viewers. An underground film is lucky if it reaches a few thousand."

Spielberg's tidal waves so far have not swamped the public nor caused panic in the ranks of directors. But the young man has something important to say. It is this:

"I have a tendency to rewrite the script as I direct. The networks don't like it. They complain. For instance, I reinterpreted the ending of an episode of 'The Psychiatrist' from a pat, happy ending to one with a tenuous, open-to-speculation finale."

Spielberg began directing when he was 12 years old. He had an 8mm camera and imagination. Odd jobs and help from his parents kept him going.

At California State College, Long Beach, he stepped up to 16mm sound pictures with improvised stories and drama scripts starring his actors. While still in college he filmed a 35mm short subject, "Amblin," that won awards in Venice, Atlanta and other festivals.

Universal picked "Amblin" and signed Spielberg when he was 21.

"Maybe I'm different from others—in my generation I've learned to make compromises—like using television as a stepping stone to feature films."

"By the time I make that step I'll be free enough not to compromise. I'd like to be a member of a co-op of filmmakers where several of us could share ideas and stimulate one another artistically."

Spielberg's studio concept of 1911, isn't it," Spielberg concluded. He laughed.

Bald tires threaten Gem autos

BOISE — Almost every third car in Idaho is running on one or more bald tires which could cause a serious highway accident, based on a study of recent government reports of the state's 280,000 registered passenger cars, it is likely that some 84,000 of them are equipped with tires which may be unsafe.

These figures were reported today by W. F. Cronquist, district sales manager for the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, after he reviewed findings of the U.S. Department of Commerce's National Bureau of Standards.

"These figures on potentially unsafe tires in use on cars in our state are frightening," Cronquist said.

He said 24 states have put minimum tread depth requirements into effect. Cronquist said the Tire Industry Safety Council, an organization of 18 American tire manufacturers, is attempting to convince motorists in the remaining states, including Idaho — that their highway safety is endangered unless careful attention is given to worn tires.

Although tires are involved in less than one per cent of all accidents, the council has also pointed out that in more than half of 6,000 of the accidents, the tires are bald or worn to the cord.

"Modern tires have built-in wear indicators which appear as smooth, half-inch bands across the face of the tire when the tread gets down to one-sixteenth inch," the Firestone executive said.

Sinatra to turn teacher

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI)—Frank Sinatra, an often stormy and controversial performer during his more than 30-year career, announced Tuesday he is retiring from show business to write and teach.

Sinatra, 55, said he hoped to spend more time with his family, his close friends and perhaps "writing a little bit." He said he had no plans for future motion pictures, television or recording activities.

"I'm retiring from public life," Sinatra told his family Tuesday in a letter, copies of which were sent to several friends. He also said he would enjoy doing some teaching.

The decision, the millionaire singer-actor said, was final. He also excluded further participation in politics.

Sinatra would not comment further on his "retirement" but a spokesman for the singer said his decision to quit show business was sincere.

"He has suggested and threatened retirement in recent years and he is sincere," said his press agent. "He hopes to teach and write and is in the process of putting a book together, sort of bordering on an autobiography."

The spokesman said he probably would not fulfill a commitment for a motion picture for Warner Bros. But that he would perform in his last scheduled public appearance, the Motion Picture Relief Fund Benefit at the Los Angeles Music Center June 13.

According to a copyright story in the New York Daily News by society columnist Suzy, Sinatra said his career has been "a fruitful, busy, upright, loose, sometimes boisterous, occasionally sad, but always exciting three decades."

But he said his activities had allowed "little room or opportunity for reflection, reading, self-examination and that need which every thinking man has for a fallow period, a long phase in which to seek a better understanding of the vast changes taking place everywhere, transforming changes taking place everywhere in the world."

Sinatra began his career as a dance band singer, first with Harry James and then with Tommy Dorsey in the late 1930s. The skinny kid from Hoboken, N. J., had hit after his 1940 and 1941 with his specialized vocal arrangements, including "I'll Never Smile Again."

He shot to fame with the advent of swooning, screaming bobby-soxers at New York's Paramount Theater just prior to World War II. It was Sinatra fans who set the style for the subsequent teen-age mania for male vocalists.

His career dipped following the war when his marriage to Ava Gardner failed. But he made an astonishing comeback in "From Here to Eternity" for which he won an Academy Award in 1953. It was a straight dramatic role.

Thereafter, Sinatra's career soared in motion pictures, nightclubs, and recordings.

His personal life matched his professional career for color and headlines. He was involved in innumerable arguments with the press, brawls, and dated some of Hollywood's biggest stars.

He has an apartment in New York and a home in Beverly Hills but spends most of his time at this desert community on the fringe of a golf course. His mother, Mrs. Anthony Sinatra, lives with him.

Nez Perce war's last rider dies

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — The last of the men who rode with Chief Joseph on his famous retreat from the U.S. Cavalry in 1877 is dead.

Joseph Red Wolf died here Tuesday at the age of 98.

Red Wolf was 5 years old when he served as a horse herder for Chief Joseph's band. He was a member of the Nez Perce tribe on its retreat across Montana and later refuge in Canada. He and his relatives were spared the battle of the Bear River.

After his retirement he lived in Lewiston.

AHEAD of withdrawing South Vietnamese units, Laotian mountain tribesmen stream past American artillery and tanks while crossing into South Vietnam. U.S. units are covering South Vietnamese troops pulling out of Laos after six week campaign. (UPI)

Evacuees Laos incursion ends

SAIGON (UPI)—The South Vietnamese operation in Laos ended Wednesday but military sources said 2,000 Saigon marines remained to watch over approach routes to the South Vietnamese border. Border defenses were fortified as U.S. planes attacked advancing Communist tanks.

Waves of other U.S. jets attacked supply depots and troop concentrations in North Vietnam Sunday and Monday, military sources said, as well as Communist missile sites. About 200 fighter-bombers and B52s took part in the raids 15 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone that separates North and South Vietnam.

The U.S. command had announced raids only as "protective reaction strikes" against SAM missile sites in North Vietnam. But the sources said primary target of the raids was a North Vietnamese supply and troop buildup that could have been directed at Saigon troops pulling out of Laos or against South Vietnam itself.

The Laos campaign was the center of controversy and debate as the operation ended. Both sides claimed success and huge kill figures.

Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said the South Vietnamese task force "achieved its primary objective" of disrupting Communist supply lines in Laos but he also said, in a Washington statement, that "tremendously vicious and violent attacks" by Communist troops forced it to end early.

The Viet Cong said the Communists in Laos had "smashed" the offensive after 45 days of "sustained, fierce fighting."

U.S. headquarters in Saigon said American warplanes destroyed one Soviet-built North Vietnamese tank, and damaged two others in raids along Highway 9 in Laos two miles from the border outpost of Lao Bao. Three other tanks were reported destroyed Tuesday.

The 2,000 South Vietnamese marines still in Laos, military sources said, were manning an outpost called "Hong Ha" or "Hotel" two miles from the border and two miles south of Highway 9, a route which had served as the axis for the offensive.

"Hotel will remain an outpost because it is the highest point in that general area," one military source said. The base provides a commanding view of routes North Vietnamese units could use for an attack against positions in the northwest corner of South Vietnam.

It appeared that South Vietnamese commanders were preparing for such an eventuality.

New fortifications were built Tuesday for Khe Sanh, which had served as the main U.S. support base for the offensive, and for a hilltop base called Ham Nghi, five miles closer to the Laotian border. Field reports said the western defenses of Ham Nghi were tightened and a third line of barbed wire strung around the position.

The Sanh came under Communist rocket and mortar attack Wednesday for the ninth consecutive day. Field reports said 82 shells were fired without causing damage or casualties.

Salon communique, in claiming success for the Laos operation, reported 13,672 Communists killed and 166 taken prisoner. It said U.S. and South Vietnamese forces destroyed more than 110 tanks, several thousand trucks, 1.3 million liters of gasoline, 176,264 tons of munitions, 1,000 tons of foods, 740 tons of rice and more than 7,000 yards of fuel pipeline.

The Saigon reports said 1,145 South Vietnamese were killed, 4,199 wounded and 235 listed as missing in action. U.S. casualties were placed at more than 60 men killed and 70 wounded in helicopter crashes.

Training sessions described

TWIN FALLS — Reports on special training sessions attended by officers of the Magic Valley Automotive Credit Union were given Tuesday night in a meeting of the members and prospective members.

Hazel Wilder, president, and Robert Murphy, treasurer, reported on a seminar sponsored by the Idaho Credit Union League. The seminar was designed to keep officers of such organizations abreast with changes in credit union programs. Mrs. Wilder reported on classes she attended at the College of Southern Idaho for members of board of directors of credit unions.

Murphy attended a promotional educational class at CSI and will utilize information in connection with an expansion program of the Magic Valley Automotive Credit Union in which officials hope to greatly increase membership.

The two officials and Buddy DeWeese are working closely on the expansion program.

Ceilings requested

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., introduced a bill Wednesday that would establish a worldwide ceiling of 300,000 immigrants into the United States annually, beginning in 1974. "We seek to put on the books the most orderly, equitable and humane system for allocating visas to applicants of all countries on a first-come, first-served basis," he said.

Lower voting age to bring difficult decisions

BOISE (UPI) — If the voting age is lowered to 18 nationwide, and if appears this will happen, legislatures in Idaho and many other states are going to have to make some difficult policy decisions.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has said he will amend his call for the current special session of the legislature to include ratification of the U.S. constitutional amendment lowering the voting age for all elections.

Based on the unanimous vote in both houses last month to put a similar state constitutional amendment before the people in 1972 it would appear Idaho will ratify the national amendment.

Rep. Aden Hyde, R-Idaho Falls, at 77, one of the Idaho's legislature's senior members in age, is one of those who believes Idaho will ratify the amendment. But he also believes the "ramifications will be enormous."

Pair meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House adviser Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, continuing his practice of meeting with antiwar spokesmen, talked with economist John Kenneth Galbraith for 30 minutes Wednesday at the White House.

have to go back through these old statutes and find how many other limitations there are on 18-year-olds," Hyde said. "How many other phases should they participate as adults?"

"We're going to have the momentous job of having to determine how far their rights should properly go," he said.

"If they are qualified, competent citizens capable of voting for the president of the United States are they competent to walk into a bar and order whisky?"

"No, I don't think they are," he said, adding, "sure there's an inconsistency there."

"Anybody who is qualified to vote for president of the United States ought to be able to do a lot of things such as enter into contracts."

Hyde personally believes the legislature should ratify the constitutional amendment and added that "as far as I'm concerned, the earlier maturity is justification" for the action. But he said he also believes "these youngsters are going to have a profound effect on the political structure of the United States."

House Speaker William J. Lanting, R-Hollister, shares Hyde's view that other present limitations on 18-year-olds will have to be studied by the legislature with an eye to policy decisions.

He said perhaps the Legislative Council should undertake this as an interim study between now and the next regular session in January, 1972.

"It would be quite appropriate to have the problems identified so we know what they are for possible policy decision," Lanting said.

He and Myron Schlechte, council director, said perhaps they can have the codes researched for references to 18-year-olds through a computer. They said other questions have been researched this way at a small cost of $150 to $300.

Rep. Melvin Hammond, D-Rexburg, a 38-year-old political science professor at Ricks College, is another legislator who believes the legislature must come to grips with some policy decisions if it votes to lower the voting age in all elections.

"There's nothing more sacred than that right," Hammond said. "If we give them that privilege there are many others they're just naturally going to get."

"I think there'll be some problems with it," he added, "especially with drinking privilege."

He said it is going to put some "real stress on the legislature" but added, "we're living in an age of transformation."

Sen. Edith Miller Klein, R-Boise, an attorney and chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said the minimum age for doing certain things under the law does not have to be the same in all cases.

She said there are a number of laws now on the books setting different minimum ages for different things although she said there seems to be a trend to lower many of these to 18.

"Voting is in a class by itself," she said. "It has no legal effect on any other age requirements — except possibly a persuasive one."

However, Mrs. Klein said she would like to see "everything lowered to 18 to make it compatible — everything except liquor."

"I think the longer anybody is kept from drinking the better," she said.

Sen. Darrell Manning, D-Pocatello, said ultimately if the voting age is lowered to 18 "you have to lower full citizenship to 18."

"I believe they should be granted full citizenship," Manning said, "but this does involve some tough policy decision in some areas."

May primary election proposed in Gem state

BOISE (UPI) — A joint committee voted Wednesday to introduce a bill which includes a May primary for major state offices and selection of minor offices at state conventions despite contentions the measure does not adhere to the call of the special session.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus asked the session to consider and enact legislation to bring state and county assemblies — and selection of delegates to national party conventions — into conformance with the "one man, one vote" principle.

The bill approved for introduction by the legislative committee met the "one man, one vote" question by changing the manner of selecting delegates to state conventions.

The measure would not allow automatic delegates as the present law does for county and legislative district party chairmen and state legislators.

Instead, the bill calls for election of 10 delegates for each party and 10 alternates at the early primary election, with the candidates to file for the positions.

In addition, however, the proposed bill goes further and makes other changes in Idaho's political structure. Proposals include:

—A May primary, rather than an August primary, at which party candidates for governor, lieutenant governor, U.S. senator, congressman and the state legislature will be chosen.

—State conventions in June at which party candidates for attorney general, auditor, secretary of state, treasurer and superintendent of public instruction will be chosen, with those chosen to be placed on the general election ballot.

—A provision that if only one party has a candidate for an office on the primary election ballot the vacancy cannot be filled by the other party at the convention except in certain cases but can be filled by a write-in candidate.

A provision a party convention must accept a candidate for an office if the candidate is the only one to file for the office.

—A new method for balloting at state convention whereby the successful candidate must receive more than 50 per cent of the votes cast. If there are several candidates and no candidate reached the required number the candidate receiving the lowest number of votes will be dropped and the balloting will begin again.

—And a "catch-all" provision which allows conventions to select delegates to national conventions at state convention as "in the manner prescribed by national party rules."

Rep. John Moyniaux, D-Coeur d'Alene, questioned whether changes made other than in the method of selecting legislative district delegates to the state conventions were in accord with the call of the special session.

Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, also questioned whether the allowance for 10 delegates to state conventions from each party from each legislative district truly met the "one man, one vote" principle.

"I can't figure it that way," he said, noting areas with high Democratic or Republican participation would not be represented as equally as they would if both parties had equal participation.

He suggested a "weighted ratio" which would allow for representation of realistic party participation.

Little also indicated the extensive changes in the election laws would not be required to satisfy national party "one man, one vote" requirements.

"I think we're trying to do a job that can be accomplished very easily...by allowing the parties to set their own rules," he said. "All we'd have to do is say political parties will set forth rules...consistent with national party policies."

Sen. Charles Bilyeu, D-Pocatello, also questioned the move and said he felt any legislation approved should be as permissive and flexible as possible.

He suggested the committee follow Little's suggestion until after the 1972 election "when we'll be in a position to assess what the two political parties have done."
