Court releases wiretap leash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, in a flurry of clashing views, left federal agents free Monday to eavesdrop — without prior court approval — on conversations between a suspect and a government informer who has been "wired for sound."

The court deadlocked 4 to 4 on whether previous decisions allowing the practice are still valid in light of a more recent ruling.

Justice Hugo Black brought about the standoff because he did not think eavesdropping should be measured against the constitution's ban on "unreasonable searches and seizures" as was done in a previous case.

With the previous rulings left standing as "good law," the court then voted 6 to 3 to reinstate the per se conviction of James A. White of Chicago, who as a second offender was sentenced to 25 years in jail and a $35,000 fine. He has been free under $10,000 bond.

Part of the evidence against White consisted of incriminating statements made by him and overheard by government agents through electronic eavesdropping without a warrant.

An informer to whom White talked wore a transmitter.

The justices clashed specifically over whether a widely cited eavesdropping decision of Dec. 18, 1967, overturned prior decisions that permitted the kind of activity used against White. The 1967 ruling declared that an individual is protected under the 4th Amendment against governmental "seizure" of conversations he justifiably expects to be private.

Justice Byron R. White, speaking for Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Potter Stewart, Harry A. Blackmun and himself, held that the prior decisions are still good law.

In any event, they said, the 1967 decision was later held not retroactive and White's case came up before that. Therefore he could not have had the benefit of that decision in any event.

Mideast talks bogged

By United Press International

Diplomatic sources in Jerusalem said today another U.S. attempt to get Arab-Israeli peace talks moving again appears to have bogged down. Israel's armed forces were reported in a "high state of alert," prepared for any eventualities.

T.F. delays annexation

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Staff Writer

TWIN FALLS — People living south of Twin Falls along State Highway 74 will have to wait another two weeks before they know if they are to be residents of the city.

Mayor Frank Feldtman announced Monday night after the third and final reading of a proposed amended annexation ordinance a decision on the matter would be delayed "probably until our next meeting."

before a final vote.

Strong opposition has been voiced by prospective city residents during recent city council meetings in which the proposed ordinance has been read, then amended and read an additional three times.

Persons attending the meeting asked the councilmen to eliminate properties along the west side of the highway as not suitable for annexation.

Property owners said they felt the city could not provide sewer service to the west side of the highway and annexation would mean few benefits but much higher taxes to them.

Mayor Feldtman said their objections would be considered.

Ketchum bans heavy industry

By WARREN GOSSETT
Times-News Correspondent

KETCHUM — Ketchum City councilmen voted Monday night to move to prohibit any industry which might pollute the air or water in this resort community.

By a unanimous vote, councilmen instructed City Atty. Stephen Boller to draw up an ordinance amending ordinance 85 to re-zone areas of the town from industrial to light industrial.

The move will check any attempt to establish factories or plants which emit dust, fumes, odors, refuse or smoke within the city.

Firms prohibited include junkyards, auto wrecking yards, dumping operations, rendering plants or concrete or asphalt plants.

Permitted under light industrial operations would be research and testing laboratories, manufacturing, including toys, drugs, precision instruments, textile, candy and food products; publishing and printing firms, warehouses, lumberyards, blacksmith shops and cabinet shops.

Sawmills or planing mills would be prohibited under the new ordinance. The Monday night meeting was a public hearing on the zoning proposal which drew no protests.

Councilmen also approved a zoning variance as requested by Edelweiss Condominiums for construction of a second unit at the base of the Warm Springs lift. The council earlier had refused a variance for the project, but reconsidered after further study.

It was reported the city zoning and planning commission will meet at 8 p.m. Monday to consider several changes in the city zoning ordinance as proposed recently by Arlo Nelson of Environmental Planning Group, Inc., Boise.

Jerome raid nets 7

JEROME — Seven Jerome suspects were arrested for possession of narcotic drugs during a combined raid by Jerome city and county officials and agents of the Idaho Bureau of Drug Control, headed by C. E. Barnett, Boise.

FBI said tailing key solon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs charged today the FBI has had him under personal surveillance.

The FBI said the claim was "absolutely, utterly false." Attorney General John N. Mitchell said charges by Boggs against the FBI were "slandorous falsehoods."

Those were among repercussions of a demand by Boggs Monday that Mitchell ask FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to resign. Boggs accused Hoover of "Gestapo" police tactics, including tapping of the telephones of some members of Congress.

Boggs was interviewed today on CBS radio.

The raid and resulting arrests were the culmination of months of intensive investigation by agents of the state Bureau of drug control, according to Eugene Fredericksen, Jerome County prosecutor.

Found throughout the residence were quantities of marijuana, hashish and enumerated drugs. The occupants of the house were taken by complete surprise in the raid and some were found in the act of smoking marijuana, Fredericksen said. Drugs were found in the pockets of the subjects, in the various rooms of the house and in the vehicles parked outside the house. The prosecutor participated in the raid and attended to the legal details.

Arrested were Douglas Morgan, Tim Mazzullo, Frank Perme, Jim Strunk, Dennis Tubbs, Rose Ann Olander and Tom Gibson.

Soviets stress

consumer

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin Monday submitted to the 24th Communist Party Congress a sweeping five-year plan for raising the national living standard with more bread and clothes but not at the expense of steel and rockets.

"We must insure a considerable rise in the people's material and cultural level on the basis of a high rate of development of Socialist production, greater efficiency, scientific and technological progress and accelerated labor productivity," Kosygin told the 5,000 delegates in the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses.

For the first time in Soviet history, Kosygin's plan attempted to reduce the enormous imbalance between heavy industry and consumer goods by setting a slightly higher rate of growth for light industry and food.

"Never in the history of agriculture and production of consumer goods has so much been spent as will be done now," Kosygin said.

Industrial output will rise by 42 to 46 per cent, according to Kosygin's figures, but 70 per cent of all capital investment is meant to meet the needs of heavy industry, including armaments and items for space exploration.

"Heavy industry has been and remains the foundation of the country's economic might, and of the further growth of living standards," Kosygin said.

Housewives were promised an increase of 60 per cent of the market supply of meat, fish, vegetables, oil and eggs.

Composer Igor Stravinsky dead

Musical pioneer dead at 88

NEW YORK (UPI) — Igor Federovich Stravinsky, the Russian-born composer who fathered modern classical music, died early today in his Manhattan apartment. He was 88.

Stravinsky had been ill with a heart ailment for about a year and was released from Lenox Hill Hospital only a week ago following 43 days of treatment.

Despite circulatory and digestive problems, Stravinsky was active into his mid-80s. At 80, he was still working four to five hours a day and it was not until he was 84 that it became necessary for him to sit down to conduct an orchestra.

Stravinsky suffered a stroke when he was 85. Last April, at the age of 87, he entered Lenox Hill for treatment of his heart ailment. He was released shortly thereafter but was readmitted this past March 11. He was released from the hospital March 30.

"The Firebird" and "Le Sacre Du Printemps" (Rite of Spring) were among the best known of his 35 major works, although both were written before the 1920s when he was credited with inventing the neoclassic style.

Stravinsky's music was avant-garde but adhered to basic principles of structure.

His style did not change radically during his career but it made its mark on younger composers whose work was more radical and less controlled. In a sense, the Stravinsky personality is reflected in the character of all modern classical music.

"Old age is a time of humiliations, the most disagreeable of which, for me, is that I cannot work long at sustained high pressure with no leaks in concentration," Stravinsky told an interviewer when he was 85. He had just completed a concert tour that included Miami, Beverly Hills, Seattle and Honolulu—a tour which garnered him rave reviews.

Stravinsky was born June 17, 1882, in St. Petersburg, now Leningrad. His father was the leading bass singer at the Imperial Opera but he wanted his son to study law.

Stravinsky was sent to the University of St. Petersburg with that end in mind but he continued to study music on the side and showed some of his early compositions to composer Nikolai Rimsky-Korsakov who encouraged him to continue.

When Stravinsky graduated, he decided to devote himself entirely to music and became Rimsky-Korsakov's pupil.

India army move hit

NEW DELHI (UPI) — President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan of Pakistan today accused India of moving troops up to the frontier in what he termed a direct threat to Pakistan's security. Yahya warned he will not permit any foreign power to interfere in the revolt by the east wing of the divided nation.

The government-controlled Radio Pakistan, in a news broadcast monitored in neighboring India today, quoted Yahya as having said India sent the equivalent of six army divisions, or about 60,000 men, into West Bengal state on the border with East Pakistan.

Intersection plan rejected

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls city councilmen rejected Monday night a proposal by the Idaho State Highway Department to install a new traffic signal and minor construction at Blue Lakes Boulevard North and Flier Avenue.

Council members balked at the $10,590 total cost of which the city would pay half. The state's proposal was for a new more functional traffic control light but still with only a four-way traffic movement plan. It would also have widened turning lanes at the intersection, making it possible for vehicles to turn right without swinging into the center lanes.

Admitting the corner is one of the heaviest traveled intersections in the city and the one with the highest rate of accidents, council members called for more extensive changes and a look at long range plans for U.S. Highway 93 routing before the intersection is torn up.

In other business, city officials approved the low bid of Fosschler Sheet Metal Co., Burley, for $15,858 for installation of new gas heating equipment and a filtration system at the Harmon Park swimming pool. They also approved the bid of Twin Falls Construction Co. for gravel for the coming year. This was also the low bid of three received.

Lease of the Cowboy Baseball Park was granted to the Chester Corp., on the same terms as the lease formerly approved with the Magic Valley Baseball Club Inc.

Council members discussed a lease for Harmon Park concession areas at a fee of $300 per year but decided to ask the city Parks and Recreation Commission to meet and make a recommendation on the agreement.

A five-man board was suggested for hearing appeals on the enforcement of the city's Dangerous Building Code. Members of the city's Planning and Zoning Commission will be asked to recommend nominees.

I-80N mishap claims woman

EDEN — A former Burley woman died Monday night in a single-car accident on Interstate 80N three miles east of Eden, according to the Idaho State Police.

Officers identified the victim as Mrs. MARY Ann Kamekoma, 29, Hawaii, driver of the vehicle.

Chet Hillman of the state police said Mrs. Kamekoma was driving east near the Valley Interchange about 7 p.m. when she apparently attempted to correct one of her children in the back seat.

The car went off the shoulder of the road and into a skid. It came back onto the highway and rolled one and a half times, coming to rest on its top. The victim, who was wearing seat belts, was thrown from the car. She died as the ambulance reached Cassia Memorial Hospital.

Hillman said he did not know whether Mrs. Kamekoma's seat belt broke or whether she was thrown out of it. He said her sedan has been placed in locked storage and he plans to inspect the seat belt today.

Passengers in the vehicle were Mrs. Kamekoma's two daughters, Jennifer, 1, and Candia, 7, and her mother, Anna Jones, 61, Burley. All are hospitalized at Cassia Memorial Hospital where they are held in good condition.

Next move up to House in Gem remap campaign

BOISE (UPI)—With the next move apparently up to the House, Idaho's legislators returned to the 18th day of the special session today with reapportionment and redistricting the major items left.

The Senate passed one bill 18-17 Monday and sent it to the House, killed three more, introduced two new reapportionment measures, but held the three killed for possible reconsideration.

The fate of the bill passed by the Senate remained uncertain. House Speaker William J. Lanting, R-Hollister, said the measure would either be amended or canceled by a new bill, but said tentative plans were to amend the Senate-approved plan.

The main point of contention appeared to be the linking together of Oneida and Cassia counties. House leaders said the bill was rejected unanimously in both the Democratic and Republican caucuses.

The combination of the two counties would eliminate one of the Democratic Senators in Eastern Idaho. Cassia County now is represented by Robert Saxvik, D-Burley, while Minority Leader John V. Evans, R-Malad, represents Oneida County and a portion of Bannock County under the present reapportionment.

During floor debate, Evans had sharp words for the house for its lack of action to that point on reapportionment plans and said it "irritated" him that the lower chamber apparently waited for Senate action.

"They can see what needs to be done as well as we can," Evans said "They should have been working just as hard as we have."

Meantime, the Senate passed 26-6 and sent to the Governor a bill which would chop the counties' portion of the liquor fund surplus to place $650,000 in the cooperative welfare fund.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., proposed Monday an overhaul of the nation's antitrust laws which he said are so outdated and vague they lead to court decisions that actually discourage competition.

Dog fee hike studied

TWIN FALLS — An ordinance amending the city code pertaining to control of dogs in Twin Falls was placed on first reading Monday night with one of the changes being an increase in license fees.

Under the proposed ordinance, dog owners will be paying $4 instead of $3 license fees for male dogs and spayed female dogs, and up to $8 for unspayed female dogs. License fees are offered at a slightly reduced rate prior to July 1 to encourage licensing early in the year. After that time, the fees will be $4 for male and spayed female and $8 for unspayed females. Early season rates are $3 and $6.

The new ordinance also stipulates all dogs not claimed at the pound after 72 hours may be sold by the poundmaster but female dogs must be spayed before they are taken out by their new owners. Funds from such sales will go to the city clerk's office. Charges for spaying will be retained by the veterinarian or poundmaster.

Persons bringing animals to the pound or having them picked up by the dog catcher for destruction must pay $1.50 per animal, the new law stipulates. It also reduced the time limit for holding dogs suspected of rabies of a dog having bitten a person from 14 to 10 days. If adopted after two additional readings, the ordinance becomes effective May 1. It also defines responsibilities of the city's humane officer and the poundmaster.

City officials also approved a three-year dog pound lease with Dr. Charles Manners in which he is required to provide additional space for retaining dogs collected by the humane officer. The lease can be terminated by the city at the end of any year if the operation is not satisfactory.

Site deed given

MEL QUALE, left, and Rev. Eugene Tjarks sign over a deed for 1.5 acres of land to Harbor House, given by Our Savior Lutheran Church. Tom Nelsen, center, drew up the deed. Harbor House is a short term residence for juveniles. A building with complete residential facilities, costing about $45,000, will be built with funds provided through the Law Enforcement Planning Commission and the Safe Streets and Crime Control Act.

Cats' day due

TWIN FALLS — Dogs have always held sway with city codes and have brought about some heated debates between dog lovers and the neighbors of dog lovers — but soon the cats may have their day.

City Councilman Tom Nelson suggested Monday night the city give some consideration to a cat regulation ordinance. The action came at the close of a meeting in which council members heard an ordinance regulating dogs and voted on a new lease agreement for the dog pounds.

"There are a lot of cats around and I would like to make a motion we have our city attorney draw up a cat control ordinance," Nelson offered.

"You won't get a second to that motion from me," commented Councilman Paul Ostyn and the matter was tabled.

First bids sought for new Snake span

TWIN FALLS — The first bids in the lengthy project to construct a new Perrine Memorial Bridge have been called by the Idaho Department of Highways.

The board of directors of the Idaho Highway Department has called for bids on core drilling for the "foundation investigation" for the new bridge. The bids will be opened at 2 p.m. April 20 at the Boise offices of the highway department.

The core drilling is necessary to determine the nature of the rock foundation on which the new bridge will rest. The prime contractors in the planning phase of the years-long project, Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, Seattle, Wash., will utilize the results of the drilling in drawing plans for the $8 million bridge.

The Idaho Highway Department requires that all bidders guarantee to avoid "discrimination on the ground of race, color or national origin" in their employment practices.

Vocal festival, concert slated

TWIN FALLS — A three-school music "festival" will blend 195 young voices under direction of Dr. Will Elliott, music director at Boise State College, Wednesday in the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Auditorium.

The public concert at 8 p.m. will climax a day-long clinic for students from Burley, Minico and Twin Falls High Schools. Each has been working on an involved program that includes a lengthy Latin number, "Gloria," by Vivaldi, and others designed to develop the full range of the young voices.

Dr. Elliott will work with the students all day Wednesday to blend the diverse vocal ranges into a unified whole. In addition, the Twin Falls High School symphony orchestra will join the students in their concert, according to Richard Smack, Twin Falls choral director.

The 195 students will remain at the college all day, eating lunch in the college dining hall on a special arrangement with the college. Smack said the students are required to stay together for lunch, and may return for dinner if they like. The evening meal will be served to the out-of-town students and to any local choir members who wish to stay, Smack said.

The evening concert is one of the year-long series of high school concerts, and ticket-holders for the series may be admitted without further charge. Others will pay $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Hearing in fraud case due

TWIN FALLS — A preliminary hearing was requested Monday by a Twin Falls man accused of defrauding the Department of Public Assistance of more than $3,000 during 1970.

Norman D. Stutznegger, 40, turned himself in Monday to the Twin Falls sheriff's department and was arraigned before Judge Reed P. Maughan in Magistrate Court. The complaint, charging Stutznegger with obtaining money under false pretenses, was filed Friday in Magistrate Court by Dave Humphrey, director of the DPA office in Twin Falls.

The Idaho Highway Department requires that all bidders guarantee to avoid "discrimination on the ground of race, color or national origin" in their employment practices.

Further, the call for bids declares that "It is the purpose of the board of directors to build the improvement in the shortest time consistent with good construction. Necessary equipment and an effective organization will be insisted upon."

Faulty controls said blast cause

TWIN FALLS — An explosion which literally lifted the house at 351 Martin Street from its foundation Monday morning has been blamed on faulty safety controls of the home's hot water heating system.

Acting Fire Chief Bobby Bopp said several furnace experts were called to the home to reconstruct the explosion. They agreed the cogl furnace and stoker had apparently continued to heat the nearby boiler which furnished hot water to the baseboard circulating system.

scene said it appeared it had been lifted from the foundation and moved over several inches. Cupboard doors were blown open and built-in drawers were thrown open and their contents scattered about. Walls throughout the house were cracked and wall and ceiling seams were separated by the blast.

Bopp said damage estimates are pending a review of the building by insurance adjusters.

Mr. and Mrs. Slatter were in Salt Lake City at the time of the explosion and the home was empty. Bopp said had they been at home they would probably have been injured or killed.

In the basement area a brick wall was blown out and the blast completely demolished the furnace and stoker making it difficult at first to determine the source of the blast, Bopp said.

Burglary plea filed

TWIN FALLS — A plea of guilty to a charge of first degree burglary was entered Monday by William Richard Thomas, 27, Twin Falls.

Thomas was sentenced to not more than three years in the Idaho State Penitentiary at Boise by Fifth District Judge James Cunningham, who, upon request of Thomas' counsel, will retain jurisdiction in the case for 60 days.

Thomas was arrested following a burglary at Robertson-Obenchain Insurance in Twin Falls.

Auto theft plea filed

TWIN FALLS — A Boise man accused of grand larceny in a complaint filed by Twin Falls Police a year ago was arraigned Monday in Fifth District Court before Judge James Cunningham.

Douglas Kenneth Martin, 22, is accused of taking a car from a Twin Falls resident a year ago and driving it to California. Action in the case was delayed, pending outcome of court action against Martin in Boise.

Martin entered a plea of guilty to the grand larceny charge and requested that a pre-sentence investigation be conducted. He is free on bond.

June work start set

TWIN FALLS — Target date for starting Phase II of the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Project is June 1, Voy Hudson, president of the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency, said today.

Phase II represents about one half of the $1.3 million overall project cost wise. It will include placing all utility lines underground, surfacing and metering several additional parking lots and removal of three more buildings. Additional storm sewers will be installed as the project progresses.

Beginning June 1, alley work will start, he said, to install trenches for burying of power, removed from the Twin Falls landscape. These include a brick building behind Hudson's Shoe Store, a wooden building or two adjoining buildings behind the Idaho Department Store and the State Hardware store on Main Avenue East.

Now being torn down are the old Workman garage building and the Wiley Drug Co. building. Hudson said the Shoshone Street location of the former Wiley Drug building is scheduled for retail commercial use while the Workman building will make way for off-street parking.

Construction has started on a new building where the old Sweet Furniture Store structure was demolished and new buildings are also going up across from the Grayhound Bus

Depot.

Rex Ulrich is building a business office structure where the old Waite Electric Co. building was removed and the former Rayborn law offices will be replaced by a building to house Case Interiors, a new business.

Hudson said demolition of buildings now being removed is ahead of schedule and indicates this year's program should be able to finish in October as planned.

About Pipsqueak Politics

WASHINGTON — Big city mayors, despite having achieved their long-sought audience with President Nixon, left Washington last week disturbed and angry over an inexplicable White House snub to one of their colleagues — a situation that goes to the roots of a foremost Nixon political problem.

Even now, a week later, the preponderantly Democratic mayors are not talking about their agreement with the Republican President (and disagreement with national Democratic leaders) over revenue sharing. Rather, they ponder this puzzle: for what earthly reason should Mr. Nixon bar Mayor Wesley C. Uhlman of Seattle from his meeting with the mayors? Congressmen have been pondering similar puzzles the past two years.

The partial answer is found in pipsqueak politics of the kind that excluded Mayor Uhlman. Indeed, the White House was playing pipsqueak politics in long ignoring the Dec. 29 request by the mayors to confer with the President. The reason: displeasure that the mayors were too critical and not sufficiently helpful. After months of stalling, the White House agreed to a March 23 meeting but complained about the proposed list of mayors to see the President: not enough Republicans, not enough small town mayors, too many mayors altogether. After torturous negotiations, the White House finally agreed to a list of 25 mayors — with one exception: the mayor of Seattle, C.D. Ward, Vice President Agnew's aide handling liaison with the mayors, informed them, with apologies, that Uhlman, a 38-year-old first-term Democrat, was not invited. Why? Ward said he did not know.

Next followed efforts by mayors, including Republican Harry Haskell of Wilmington, Del., to get Uhlman invited. No success. Uhlman discouraged talk by fellow mayors of a boycott. But Mayor Kenneth Gibson of Newark, which desperately needs Federal help, did not attend. Gibson, a Negro, told colleagues he had been excluded irrationally too often to tolerate Uhlman's treatment. Clearly, Uhlman told the mayors, this was caused by John Ehrlichman, Mr. Nixon's powerful domestic policy chief. As lawyers back in Seattle, Ehrlichman and Uhlman had been on amiable terms. But now Ehrlichman was hostile. Some mayors assumed this was tied to the possibility that Uhlman might run for Governor next year.

But what drives the White House frequently has no such practical grounding. Rather, Uhlman's exclusion stems from a visit paid his office in December, 1969, by U.S. Treasury agents who proposed a Seattle raid against the Black Panthers. Uhlman refused, arguing it would disrupt racial peace. Shortly thereafter, during a confrontation with student militants, Uhlman disclosed he had blocked the Nixon administration from raiding Seattle's Panthers — a story that received widespread national attention.

The aftermath came weeks later in Washington when Uhlman was visiting a low-level White House official, to discuss the District of Columbia police force. Without warning, an angry Ehrlichman barged in. "Yes, that was a cheap shot," stormed Ehrlichman. Referring to his Black Panther statement, Ehrlichman charged the mayor had saved his own hide by "attacking" Mr. Nixon. Uhlman was amazed so important a government figure had sought him out and was so personally exercised that long after the event.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Whirlpool

Dear Doctor: Over the years I have found the use of whirlpool therapy of great advantage for a back condition that would appear to be muscular. The advantage of whirlpool bathing, especially before severe soreness develops, would appear as do-it-yourself home-type remedy, rather than resorting to hospital or out-patient facilities, and in the expense. — A. C. N.

and married, and went to the doctor for an infection, and later he sent me a card saying, "Your cancer test was normal." "What did he mean? What is wrong with me?" — Mrs. S. L. He probably gave you a Pap test as part of your pelvic examination, and, incidentally, a useful part of the routine. It is used primarily to detect cancer of the cervix in early stages. Your test was normal. No indication of cancer. So just relax.

I agree with you up to a point. Whirlpool therapy — including home therapy, with a whirlpool contrivance that can be hitched up in your bathtub — is a recognized and useful form of treatment. Its value is twofold. It encourages muscle relaxation and also stimulates the circulation. Once you have the equipment, treatment is readily available and the cost is trivial. That's all to the good.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter has an enormous weight problem. She is about 300 pounds. She was a breast-fed baby, and I fed her (without realizing it) while I was pregnant with another. She is now 28. All these years I have blamed myself for feeding her bad milk.

In your case, I trust that the trouble has been definitely found to be purely muscular and not some other condition. This home therapy isn't intended for just any old kind of back distress. It's a good do-it-yourself adjunct only when you know that it suits your case, and you aren't trying to cure yourself of some ailment that needs treatment of some other kind.

No one seems able to help. She has an appetite that is uncontrollable and it hurts me no end as it might be my fault. — A. H. Blaming yourself for having given her "bad milk" is absolutely, totally wrong, so stop torturing yourself with that.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like information on gout, if possible: What causes it, how it affects your body, can it be cured, diet, how often attacks occur, what you can do to keep it from occurring? — V. F.

You may, possibly, have to criticize yourself for having used this as an excuse for her obesity, but she's now 28 and it's her problem. First thing she should do is go to her doctor for such tests as are needed to determine whether there is a problem other than her weight. If not, then she'd better get busy with one of the groups of weight-reducers who know that even the 300-pounders can get down to normal weight if they really want to.

You'll find nearly all of that in my booklet, "Gout: The Modern Way to Stop It." Send 25 cents in coin for printing and handling costs, and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Thosteson, care of Times-News.

Much heart trouble is preventable. Write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for a copy of his booklet, "How To Take Care of Your Heart," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

There's no way to predict how often attacks will occur, but the disease today is a very treatable one in most patients.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 17

Vera C. O'Leary

It's official now. The O'Leary Junior High School is now known as the Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School. An attempt to have the name "official" was unsuccessful several years ago but then Mrs. A.J. Peavey took on the project as something personal. She knew Mrs. O'Leary very well when the latter was a teacher and principal at the school, several of her grandchildren had gone through that school (and so had a son or two) and it irritated her to have only the last name of the late school official used.

The thing probably came to a head when one of her grandchildren, being shown the school, asked "who was Mr. O'Leary?" It takes only one straw to break the camel's back and that question, in this case, just had to be the straw. Well, to bring an interesting story to a conclusion, we must point out that the School Board has now officially named the school the Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School. Our hat is off to Mrs. Peavey. It just shows what a knowledgeable woman can accomplish when she puts her mind to it.

Mobile Parks

Mayor Harley Crippen, Gooding, said the other day that the community is not going to enact any ordinance regulating mobile homes "because Gooding needs new residents and does not feel it is in a position to dictate terms to people who would like to move here." Praise be for Mayor Crippen. In Twin Falls and Twin Falls county, where good mobile home parks are really needed — and wanted by many people — the city and county commissioners just can't see any use at all in having them. In most instances they will not touch the direct issue with a 10-foot pole. We fail to see their reasoning. Mobile living is a way of life. A nice mobile park is nothing to be ashamed of. No longer are there "trailer" parks as in days past. The modern "mobile" home park is well planned and well groomed. Yes, we fail to see the reasoning. You need only to drive up and down some of the streets in Twin Falls to see what we are talking about. Some of the sections in Twin Falls cannot, by rights, be called slums — but there is a name for them.

ROBERT ALLEN & JOHN GOLDSMITH

A Disruption

WASHINGTON — Generally speaking, statistics make for dull reading, but it is the overall statistics on the South Vietnamese invasion of Laos which brighten the picture for President Nixon and his foreign policy advisers. No final assessment of the Laos operation is possible now. Time will tell how extensively traffic was disrupted on the Ho Chi Minh trails and, consequently, how much of a logistic problem has been created for the North Vietnamese in Cambodia and Vietnam in the months ahead.

South Vietnamese force. The point is NOT simply that, once the full enemy force was engaged, the South Vietnamese were very heavily outnumbered.

WASHINGTON — One of the things we're going to be hearing more about as time goes on is "no-fault insurance." Everyone has his own idea of what no-fault automobile insurance should be, but basically it boils down to the idea that when someone has an accident, his own insurance company would settle the claim instead of seeking damages from the other party or HIS insurance company.

The advantages of no-fault automobile insurance are that you would eliminate a lot of phony claims from people who say they had suffered grievous injury. Litigants would have to wait years to be paid off for an accident, the nation's courts would be free to deal with other matters of much higher priority, and, hopefully, automobile insurance premiums could be reduced.

The disadvantage is that no-fault insurance could put a lot of lawyers out of work. It therefore comes as no surprise that the trial lawyers are cranking up a fierce lobbying campaign to prevent no-fault insurance from becoming the law of the land.

more at stake here than two cars getting into a lousy accident. "But Briefless, surely there is other law work that you can find?" I said. "Nothing that pays as well. Sometimes, if it's a difficult case, we get 50 per cent of the settlement. The very least we'll get is a third. If we lose we get nothing. But it's the only thing we know how to do. You can't say to a man who has been trained in 'whiplash' and 'pain and suffering suits' to go out and learn a new trade. Do you know what has made America the great country it is today?"

1.) Troops committed: The information here is that the two South Vietnamese divisions, some 22,500 troops, which moved into Laos were engaged, and rather quickly, by four reinforced North Vietnamese divisions — as many as 50,000 troops.

"I'm not sure," I admitted. "The right of one person to sue another person for an automobile crash." "No kidding?" "And also the right to select counsel to sue the other person, plus the right of the other party to select counsel to defend the suit. If you take these rights away from Americans, what have they left?" "No - fault automobile insurance?"

"Exactly. The American dream in this country is to be hit by a cola truck or a Greyhound bus that was in the wrong." "I never thought of it that way." "Are you going to take this American dream away from the people? What fun is it to have your own insurance company settle with you, when in your heart of hearts you know that with a sympathetic jury you'll get $100,000 from the other guy's insurance company?"

2.) Casualties. After all the lurid accounts of casualties inflicted on the South Vietnamese, the information here is that about 1,000 South Vietnamese troops were killed. North Vietnamese killed are said to be numbered, conservatively, at 15,000.

The point of the casualty figure is quite obvious. If some South Vietnamese units were mauled in the course of the withdrawal, it is also true that the North Vietnamese took terrible casualties in repelling the drive.

"You make a strong case against no-fault insurance," I told Briefless. "The legislators think no-fault insurance is a great idea," he said, slamming a law book on his desk. "But when they find 2 million lawyers collecting unemployment insurance, they're going to be sorry they didn't leave automobile insurance alone."

After the 1968 Tet offensive in the South (which was also painted as a costly defeat in the early assessments) there was a rather slow realization of the effect of casualties inflicted on the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese. Some of the experts here think the effect of the Laos drive will also be slow to make itself apparent.

As analyzed for top administration officials, there is an even more important message in the rapid commitment of four North Vietnamese divisions to repel the

Hairy Question

As if it is news, it is reported that longhairs are now in the majority on college campuses. (Remember when a "longhair" was a rather not-with-it square?) To be specific, a Gallup College Survey reveals that 23 per cent of males like their hair long but not over the ear, 20 per cent wear it over the ear but not down to the shoulder, and seven per cent go all the way. But what is really surprising is that 45 per cent of those polled still prefer the traditional shorter length, including the crewcut. That's what the man says. The figures don't add up to 100 per cent. Maybe the difference represents the premature baldies, who don't have any choice either way.

Those Green Eyes

Anyone lose a couple of green eyes? Well, come to think of it, not eyes but contact lens. They do look green tinted, however, so must have been for someone who liked green eyes. To make a story of reasonable length, we must point out we received a call from Mrs. Marjo Beckstead. She said that she had found a couple of the things over on the Lynwood parking lot. Apparently they were lost during the day the combined chorus of the LDS Institute was performing in town. So if you lost a couple of green eyes — and want them back — then get in touch with Mrs. Beckstead right away. Her telephone in Twin Falls is 733-4729.

I am writing this letter in an attempt to find someone who will take the trouble to forward me an outdated automobile number plate. I have a hobby of collecting these auto plates and only need five more to complete the entire United States. "Your state is one of them. Most people everywhere have outdated plates around their garage or elsewhere and it is one of these discards I would like to receive. It might even come from a wrecked car at a junkyard. "All I need is one plate, for any year, in fairly good condition. If someone will do this I will return the postage cost. Hoping to hear from someone soon, I remain William R. Kenny 8 Knight Avenue Littleton, New Hampshire 03561

NUMBER PLATE

Mr. Spectator received a note from Mrs. Louise Bush, over at the Chamber of Commerce office, and she asked for help. Seems as though a fellow from Littleton, New Hampshire had a request that the local chamber was unable to fill. So we will publish the note from the fellow and if you can aid him then go ahead and do it. This is the note:

Dear Mr. Spectator: Since the Vietnam War started in 1964 it has cost us $104.5 billion, and we have killed 703,280 of the enemy. That means each Communist killed cost the U.S. taxpayer about $148,589 apiece. Mr. Figuring

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Recently, a date of mine kissed me in the ear and injured my eardrum. He caused a suction which blistered the eardrum and made it hemorrhage. Altho my hearing is not permanently impaired, I have spent a considerable amount of money seeing an ear specialist.

I really think this fellow should pay for all the medical expense since he caused the damage, but since he didn't do it intentionally, I suggested that he split the bill with me. He just laughed.

I know there is no way I can force him to pay, but under the circumstances, do you think I am being unreasonable in asking him to at least pay half?

NO JOKE IN INDIANA

DEAR NO JOKE: Certainly not! I've heard of girls paying thru the nose for a little thrill—but this is ridiculous!

DEAR ABBY: I wonder if any other woman has this problem? For years my husband complained about those ugly, woolly pajamas I wore every winter. We bought an electric blanket recently, and I got rid of my warm winter sleepwear, and bought myself some sexy nylon nighties, which pleased my husband to no end. I was happy, too, because I was warm and cozy under that electric blanket.

Now, the problem: My husband says the electric blanket dries out his feet and makes his heels rough. He refuses to use it, except to warm up the bed before we get in. Both of us have sinus trouble and cannot sleep in a heated room.

What's the solution? I don't want twin beds or bedrooms separate from each other. And if I go back to those ugly but warm pajamas my husband will think I'm being spiteful.

ICE COLD KATIE

DEAR KATIE: The electric blanket is not drying out your husband's feet. His skin is exceptionally dry in winter. Before bedtime, massage his feet with hand lotion. And if that doesn't eliminate the dryness, he'll be so touched with your eagerness to please him, I'll bet he lets you sleep in a gunnysack!

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem concerning the meals my mother has been making lately. First she sees something in the newspaper that looks good to her, and the next thing you know, we have it for supper. Last night she made something that looked like miniature submarines. Mom said that dish was called, "The Mistake that Became a Famous Success." Well, I don't know that much about food, but as far as I am concerned, it was still a "Mistake!"

Now Mom says she is going to make something called "Stuffed Cabbage." It sounds terrible.

If you have any ideas on how a 18-year-old boy can get his mother to cook plain meals and quit experimenting around, I would sure appreciate it!

STARVING IN HOUSTON

DEAR STARVING: I have yet to see a mother who could say no to her 13-year-old son who played his cards right. Just put your arms around her and give her a little kiss on the neck, and say, "Mom, how about sticking to the plain old recipes?" [P. S. Don't knock the stuffed cabbage until you've tried it!]

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Nationwide search held for high school cover girl

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Imagine being put on a plane to New York, treated to the big city excitement of theaters and "in" restaurants, meeting celebrities, modeling and being a runner-up for a $1000 educational scholarship — all for just being one's best possible teen-aged self!

That's only part of what happens to the five regional winners of the Tenth Annual High School Cover-Girl Contest sponsored by Co-ed, the classroom magazine and Noxell Corp. makers of Cover Girl Cosmetics.

All girls in grades 7 through 12 are eligible and the nationwide search is first for five girls who typify the teen-age ideal of an all-around, great looking girl with personality and manners to match; then from the five finalists emerges the national winner, High School Cover Girl of 1971!

Finalists selected from five regions of the country (Northeast, Southeast, Southwest, Midwest, Far West-Canada) are judged by the editors of Co-ed Magazine according to pictures and written descriptions of daily beauty routines they submit to the contest.

All five regional winners are flown to New York City where they stay at the Waldorf Astoria, famous for receiving dignitaries and celebrities in every field of endeavor. In a three-day whirl, the girls have their hair styled by a top New York stylist, are given a complete new designer ensemble and a model's kit of Cover Girl Make-up — and are photographed by one of fashion's hot young photographers for the pages of Co-ed. Each girl also receives a $100 Savings Bond. And the national winner, High School Cover Girl of 1971, gets the grand prize, the $1000 scholarship from Noxell and the thrill of seeing her picture appear in color on the cover of Co-ed Magazine!

To enter the contest, girls in grades 7 through 12, should submit one full-length and one close-up photo together with a statement of 75 words or less describing her daily grooming routine and the beauty aids she considers most important.

On the back of both photos and statement, name, address, school grade, weight, height and measurements must be clearly written. Co-ed Magazine editors will judge statements for originality and clarity and will count them equally with the good grooming, charm and poise shown in the photos in the selection of the five regional winners. Entries, which become the property of Noxell Corp., should be mailed to 1971 High School Cover Girl Contest, Box 5768, New York, N. Y., 10017 before the contest closing date, April 30.

This annual contest is a fabulous opening wedge to exciting careers. Two of last year's finalists, Dale Weston of New Jersey and Candy Oste of Wisconsin are already successful models while Joyce Ingalls, the national winner of 1966, has become a nationally famous cover girl. Barbara Siegel, the title holder in 1968, used her Noxell scholarship to study drama and is now a rising young TV actress, and Kathy Hogue, the High School Cover Girl of 1969, applied her scholarship toward studying law.

POCATELLO — A national science foundation grant for $1,279 has been awarded an Idaho State University scientist for a study of the patterns of demography and density regulation in voles occupying semidesert habitat.

A vole is a small rodent closely related to the lemmings and muskrats but in general resembling stocky mice.

The scientist is Dr. Barry Lee Keller, assistant professor of biology. He listed these two objectives of the research: to obtain a description of the seasonal and yearly changes in population size, birth and death rates in natural populations of the mountain vole, "Microtus montanus," and to begin experimental manipulation of populations in order to test the hypothesis that animals in expanding populations differ in quality from those in stationary or declining populations.

"The study of periodic fluctuations in natural populations of small mammals has been largely limited to palearctic and nearctic tundra or temperate grasslands," Dr. Keller wrote in a description of the work.

"Comparative demographic data from western mammalian populations is minimal. No data are available on populations of voles found in cold semidesert communities."

Recent workers have suggested that rodents belonging to the vole family may be capable of regulating their own density without depending upon extrinsic factors such as predators, parasites, disease, or weather to control their numbers.

Physiological, demographic and behavioral changes may initiate population declines, primarily through reproductive processes but field research has failed to establish physiological derangement at high density of voles.

Genetically determined behavioral changes may also regulate population declines. Recent studies have established that selective pressures are operative in fluctuating populations and that adult males from declining populations differ behaviorally from adult males in expanding populations. It remains to be established whether these behavioral changes are genetically determined.

Recent published works suggest that the demography of different vole species shows strikingly similar patterns of reproduction, mortality, and body-weight distributions. These patterns, established in climatic and vegetational areas different from that found in Pocatello, appear to be predictable as they are associated with specific density patterns. They include:

- An association between winter breeding and rapid population expansion.
- The cessation of breeding early in the year of peak density and the late initiation of breeding the following spring.
- An association between early maturation and rapid population expansion.
- A lack of correlation between litter size and population fluctuations.
- A lack of correlation between prenatal mortality and population size.
- An association between high body weights and rapid population expansion.
- An association between peak populations and poor juvenile survival.

the Western Great Basin is being made by Dr. Keller.

Extensive vole populations have been located and trapped for identification northwest of Pocatello. This research will undertake a demographic analysis of these populations initially, and will be followed by extensive experimental manipulations of natural populations.

Several short term experiments will be completed on isolated areas. Removal and addition of animals will be made to simulate fluctuations and some populations will be started with animals of known reproductive and body-weight (growth) quality.

Preliminary experiments will be made to test the effects of population quality on population demography. Dr. Keller has recently suggested that reproductive quality may be important in controlling natural fluctuations of voles.

The combined descriptive and experimental studies should clarify the demographic similarities of voles and the mechanism and density regulation. The probable duration of the project is two years.

Tight money crunch easing for farmers

Farmers will have more money to borrow in 1971. The tight money crunch of recent years has relaxed, and interest rates are beginning to retreat from some of the highest levels in half a century.

Dr. John E. Lee, Jr., Economic Research Service, says, "The increased availability of funds will offer some farmers a chance to expand and other's necessary production credit."

Recently, Dr. Lee, Chief of the ERS Agricultural Finance Branch, was interviewed by the USDA magazine, "Agricultural Situation."

Q — Dr. Lee, what is happening to farm credit right now?

Lee: Money is becoming more available. Its wholesale cost has shown some substantial declines.

For example, prime interest rates dropped to 6 percent in early 1971 from their high of 8.5 in June 1969. Also, money now costs less in the central money markets to agencies such as the Farm Credit Administration.

Already some of the production credit associations (PCA's) have reduced their interest rates from the predominant range of 8.5-9.5 percent in mid-1970. Rural banks indicate that more money is available now than has been the case in recent years.

Q — Does that mean that things are returning to normal?

Lee: No. We're not back to where we were prior to the tight money situation. That is, we're not back to 1966 — the most recent year that things were more or less normal. However, the credit situation looks brighter for 1971 than it has for 2 or 3 years.

Q — Will the credit situation continue to get better?

Lee: We expect it to improve during the first half of 1971. After that, if we have a big economic boom, money may get tight again.

Q — What will this mean to the farmer who wants a loan from his local bank? How will this be reflected when he seeks to borrow cash for production expenses?

Lee: It'll affect farmers in three ways.

First: The sound commercial operator has been able to get adequate production cash even during periods of tight money. The credit ease will mean he'll get expansion money. He'll be able to invest in new machinery, add to his breeding herd, or perhaps build a new porch or home. Many of these kinds of expenditures were postponed during the tight money period.

Second: Some farmers who were considered marginal borrowers during tight money times will be able to get credit. These were the people hurt most during the past 3 years.

I might add, though, that there's no evidence that farmers as a group were any worse off than other borrowers in the economy.

Finally, for all farm borrowers, the cost of using borrowed funds will be lower.

Q — Has there been any change in farmers' loan sources during the past 3 years?

Lee: The commercial banks have seen their share of the market decline slightly during the past year.

The PCA's have expanded their share some, because they had an advantage over the banks during the recent tight money period. They could still go to the central money markets and sell bonds and debentures to savers in the large national money centers.

The PCA's paid dearly for this money, so PCA interest rates were often higher than those charged by other lenders. But when farmers couldn't find money elsewhere, they could get it from PCA's.

The Farmers Home Administration has always had a very small share of the lending market, and it remained very small — about 3 percent.

Q — What about the insurance companies?

Lee: During the tight money times, insurance companies had less capital to lend. Consequently, they allocated most of it to high return investments — shopping centers, urban apartments, and that sort of thing.

Also, some of the State have low ceilings on interest rates — 7 and 8 percent. When the cost of money got above these rates, life insurance companies could no longer lend in those States.

Prior to the recent tight money period, life insurance companies held nearly a fourth of farmers' real estate debt. That share has declined to less than a fifth because the insurance companies had little new money to lend or could not lend it at the high rates they had to charge.

Q — Who filled the credit gap?

Lee: The Federal land banks (FLB), and noninstitutional lenders. Federal land banks went straight to the central money sources regardless of high prices.

These banks are not affected by State usury laws. FLB mortgage loans outstanding jumped 94 percent between 1965 and 1971.

In addition, there's been a big increase in the amount of land transactions financed by sellers. Something like 53 percent of the land sellers have worked out their own land purchase contracts with buyers.

Q — Now that money is more available, will life insurance companies enter the picture again?

Lee: That's the big question farm credit people ponder.

Some life insurance companies say they're out of farm credit for good because during the last 3 years they dismantled their network of agents scattered throughout the farm States. Given the decline in farm numbers and the limited volume of farm credit, it may be too expensive for them to reestablish offices and restaff them.

But three or four of the larger companies have insisted all along that they never wanted to be out of farm credit at all and that when money was available they would be lending to farmers again.

Several other companies may be back, but not making the same kinds of loans. One company now considers only loans for $100,000 or more.

Q — Will new sources of credit arise?

Lee: Within banking circles there's been quite some discussion on improving the flow of funds to farmers. There's not a critical need for improvement right now, but there are always better ways to do things.

One group that continues to have problems lending to farmers is commercial banks, particularly small rural ones.

Small rural banks have limited loan funds and so are limited on loan sizes to any one customer. But as farms grow, there's a need for larger operating loans. The growth of small rural commercial banks has often not kept pace with farmers' needs.

Say, a farmer with a moderate-size operation in the Midwest or Great Plains needs $30,000 or even $40,000 cash for production expenses. A small bank may be limited to lending only $20,000 to a single borrower.

A committee of agricultural economists in the Federal Reserve System is discussing how to overcome lending limitations of small country banks. Some proposals would allow the bank to resell the debt to a larger outfit.

There's also quite a bit of discussion on improving correspondent bank relationships, which work like this:

A small country bank needs to make a loan of $40,000 to an individual farmer. The small banker gets together with a larger bank on the loan. The small bank lends the farmer $20,000. The larger bank puts up the other $20,000 but the small bank services the whole loan. In other words, the small bank acts the part of an agent for a big city bank.

Q — What about outside credit?

Lee: Well, remember around 40 percent of production credit comes from noninstitutional sources. It comes from merchants, dealers, and individuals — who through delayed billing, and that kind of thing, give farmers credit.

In addition, some of the larger feedlot operators and other farm operators have been going around traditional sources of farm credit. Some deal directly with big city banks.

ATTENTION ALL POTATO GROWERS

Ore-Ida Foods Inc. has notified the Potato Growers of Idaho, Inc. that they plan to contract potatoes in Idaho on a pre-season contract that is not approved by the Potato Growers of Idaho, Inc.

The average potato grower in Idaho delivered a crop that graded approximately 65% US No. 1's for the 1970 crop. This proposed Ore-Ida contract would pay 16 cents less per cwt for the average potato crop in 1970 or approximately $40 per acre less.

This contract does not pay the average grower for his efforts in delivering quality potatoes. It is not a quality contract.

Ore-Ida's proposed contract pays substantially less for growers potato storage and shrinkage on their out contracts than provided in the approved 1970 contracts. This is a Sub-standard contract.

We want to help you. We need your support. Please don't sign this unapproved contract. Demanding a Potato Growers of Idaho, Inc. approved contract is your assurance of a fair and equitable contract.

Drug ad crackdown asked

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Food and Drug Commissioner Charles C. Edwards today called for a crackdown on "atrocious" false advertising of non-prescription drugs instead of any government action to remove many of them from the market.

Edwards said he would meet soon with Chairman Miles W. Kirkpatrick of the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), which enforces laws against false advertising, to coordinate action against drug advertising claims which lack scientific documentation.

But the FDA head said he had decided against requiring the same tough proof of effectiveness, or efficacy, for such over-the-counter remedies as FDA now requires for prescription drugs.

"The amount of scientific efficacy information on over-the-counter drugs is practically zero," Edwards said in an informal meeting with newsmen. "If we took a hard line on over-the-counter drugs, we'd have to take practically the whole bunch off the market."

"I don't know if we're a strong enough agency to do that, politically or scientifically," he said. "The worst thing about over-the-counter drugs is their labeling and advertising. The advertising is the really atrocious thing."

In response to questions, Edwards said advertising claims for non-prescription remedies frequently are false and probably deceive consumers into spending money on medicine they don't need. He cited some familiar television commercials as example. Tens of thousands of non-prescription drugs are sold in the United States, Edwards said, many of them virtually identical copies of one another. According to published estimates, retail sales of non-prescription drugs total about $1.7 billion a year compared with $4 billion for prescription drugs. Edwards said most non-prescription medicines have a long history of safety, and by their nature are less hazardous than the more potent prescription drugs. Hence, he said, the FDA will let them remain on the market while figuring a way to eventually test their effectiveness.

Under a 1962 law, drugs must be both safe and effective to remain on the market. Edwards said he was publicizing FDA's relatively soft line on proof of effectiveness for non-prescription drugs in response to fears voiced by the industry that recent FDA policy statements promising strict enforcement of drug laws might lead to wholesale removal from the market of over-the-counter remedies.

Apollo checkout delayed

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The first manned test of Apollo 15's command ship in an airless chamber was postponed Monday until Thursday because of oil leaking from a chamber light fixture.

Backup astronauts Richard F. Gordon, Vance D. Brand and Harrison H. Schmitt, wearing pressure suits, waited in the spacecraft for more than an hour before officials decided to call off the test as a precautionary measure.

The prime Apollo 15 crewmen, David R. Scott, Alfred M. Worden and James B. Irwin, now will test the command ship first, on Thursday according to the tentative schedule.

Scott and Irwin are scheduled to test their lunar landing craft Tuesday in another chamber, simulating the vacuum of space. Gordon and Schmitt will repeat that exercise Wednesday.

Two attempts by the backup pilots to test the lunar module last week were called off, once because someone failed to open an oxygen valve and then because two faulty oxygen regulators were discovered in the cabin.

Apollo 15 is scheduled for launch to the moon July 26 and a space agency spokesman said the testing delays will not affect the launch date.

Water meet opens today

BOISE (UPI)—Representatives from the 11 western United States were to gather here Tuesday for the 22nd session of the Western States Water Council.

The organization was formed by resolution of the Western Governor's Conference in 1965 to foster cooperation in planning programs leading to integrated development of water resources.

The council is composed of three representatives from each state and functions in the realm of both regional and westwide planning for development of interstate water projects.

The council reviews water project plans and submits recommendations concerning contemplated projects to the governor of each state and establishes criteria for evaluation of plans to protect state and local interests.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus will keynote the two-day event Wednesday at 10:30 a.m.

Attending the meeting will be Warren D. Fairchild, assistant commissioner of the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, Washington, D.C.

Railpax profit need emphasized

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The new National Railroad Passenger Corporation (Railpax) has decided to tell the lawmakers who created it that if it is to make a profit it cannot run money losing trains just to satisfy complaints from Congress.

The semipublic corporation designed to save the nation's vanishing passenger trains plans to take over all non-commuter passenger service on May 1, keeping only about 184 of the present 284 passenger trains.

Since the details of the Railpax routes were unveiled, Congress has been hit by complaints from angry constituents. Six states—Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Wyoming, South Dakota and Arkansas—would be left with no National Laboratory 383's passenger service, as would the city of Cleveland.

Railpax Chairman David W. Kendall was prepared to tell today's hearing of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee investigating the situation that engineering geology and soils cutbacks in service are the only way to save passenger trains.

Critics claim Railpax never will show a profit, that the $40 million Congress appropriated to start the new company is not enough to keep it operating efficiently and that Kendall eventually will have to ask for more funds.

Despite the May 1 deadline, it is possible for communities left without service to buy their way into the system. The law setting up Railpax allows it to extend service to left-out areas, if some local agency or community will underwrite two-thirds of the cost.

Gem area menaced

BOISE (UPI)—A seismologist from the Argonne National Laboratory says eastern Idaho faces danger of earthquakes and should have building code requirements to prevent severe damage.

Dr. Melvin Jackson told the ninth annual symposium on engineering geology and soils engineering Monday a series of active earthquake faults extends from Utah's Wasatch to the $40 Mountains north across eastern Idaho and into Montana.

Log limit sought

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., told a Senate Interior Subcommittee Monday of plans to introduce legislation soon to impose a two year moratorium on "clear-cutting" in U.S. forest lands.

McGee said the moratorium would facilitate an independent study of forest management policies.

Another legislator, Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., told the subcommittee he favored establishment of a national forest management commission. Clear-cutting is the practice of removing all the timber from a given area. "Under the guise of clearcutting many areas of our national forests already have been severely damaged," McGee told Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, subcommittee chairman.

"And it will be several generations at best before these areas will be restored, if they can be restored at all."

He said once great forests in the nation "have been depleted to the point that would shame Paul Bunyan."

McGee expressed displeasure at the failure of the U.S. Forest Service and its parent Department of Agriculture to undertake an independent study of forest management.

McGee said he was proposing the moratorium "in the light of the Forest Service's arrogant judgment that only it can sit in judgment of itself."

The senator noted extensive controversies over clearcutting exist in Montana, Wyoming, Oregon, Colorado, Alabama, Alaska, Virginia and West Virginia.

Randolph added some of the concern involving even-aged management centers around concentration of clearcuts within prime recreation areas favored by hikers, hunters, fishermen and campers. He said such a practice was "a clear violation of established land management procedures."

In calling the hearings, Church said no legislation was pending, but said the subcommittee needed "to inquire into practical improvements in the application of harvesting practices on the ground."

More state control of funds proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon asked Congress today to consolidate more than 30 federal aid to education programs into a $3 billion revenue sharing package.

He said that would allow local authorities to "make the hard decisions about the best ways to educate their children."

The proposal, last of six special presidential revenue sharing measures forming what he calls a "new American federalism," would combine $2.8 billion worth of existing federal programs and $200 million in new money.

Nixon said more than half of the total $3 billion proposed for the first year would go to providing compensatory education for disadvantaged children. "States would have the authority to transfer up to 30 per cent of the funds from one of five broad categories to another except funds directed to the disadvantaged."

Nixon said his proposal would preserve all existing safeguards against racial discrimination. He proposed a specific requirement for states to certify that services provided in all schools within a single district be fully comparable.

Nixon renewed his proposal last year for a national institute to develop research and experimentation in education similar to the federal government's efforts in agriculture and medicine.

Corps center studied

By PEGGY CHU
Times-News Correspondent
GOODING — Possibility of using the old former Gooding Memorial Hospital building as a training center for Peace Corps nurses and doctors was suggested by Gov. Cecil Andrus at the Gooding Jaycee Distinguished Service Award dinner Monday night at the IOOF Hall.

The possibility, which the governor said was only an "if," was brought out during a question period in reference to environmental problems.

"We don't want to build a fence around Idaho, but we should be selective of who we invite in," Gov. Andrus said. He mentioned the possibility of Peace Corps training as "the kind of thing we want, as opposed to factories which do not meet environmental standards."

Mrs. Claire Majors, Gooding High School French teacher, was honored as "the distinguished young educator and Don Brooks as the outstanding young farmer. Mrs. Bill France accepted the DSA award for her late husband, who was a school trustee and civic leader prior to his death in January in a snowmobile accident.

During his speech, Gov. Andrus said the $44 million allotted to education won't keep the schools at their present level, since costs per student have increased $40 during the last two years and the appropriations have not kept up with this increase.

He said there are two alternatives — an emergency levy at the local level, or increasing the student-teacher ratio which would mean poorer education for the student.

"Either there will have to be an increase in local property taxes or there will be a lower quantity of education," the governor said. He added the long term sources of revenue which he proposed were not approved by the legislature.

Mike Reed, retiring Jaycee president, served as master of ceremonies.

Action asked on pall from smoke

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Staff Writer

TWIN FALLS — A complaint from choking nurses and patients at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and an inquiry from the Times-News may bring action to eliminate the heavy pall of smoke that has been evident for many weeks at P and E Concrete, just west of the hospital.

The smoke comes from burning trash dumped into a large canyon on P and E property — but the concrete firm denies responsibility.

"We have a sign banning dumping of anything without permission — we just want fill dirt — but people come in on weekends and at night to dump their trash and set it afire," Don Coats, office manager at P and E, told the Times-News.

Dirt mixed in with the trash makes extinguishing the smoky blaze difficult, Coats said. "We don't have the water to do the job," he added.

Hospital personnel called county commissioners Monday night when prevailing winds blew the thick, choking smoke into hospital ventilators.

However, no action to extinguish the blaze was planned until late this morning, when Commissioner Merl Leonard told the Times-News he would ask a county weed-control crew to take its tanker out the area and "see what can be done."

Controlling illegal burning in county areas is a difficult problem, although the county has a law banning "creating a nuisance" by dumping dead animals and trash along the roadside or in any location other than a regular dumpground, Leonard said. The county ordinance provides for a $300 fine for violation.

The problem is in catching and convicting the violators. Enforcement personnel have to be on hand at likely locations in order to apprehend the dumpers. Citizens of the area can help, by reporting license numbers or other identifying data. Charges are pending against a suspect who was reported to be dumping dead animals on the Piner dump, and whose license number was reported to the sheriff's office, Leonard said.

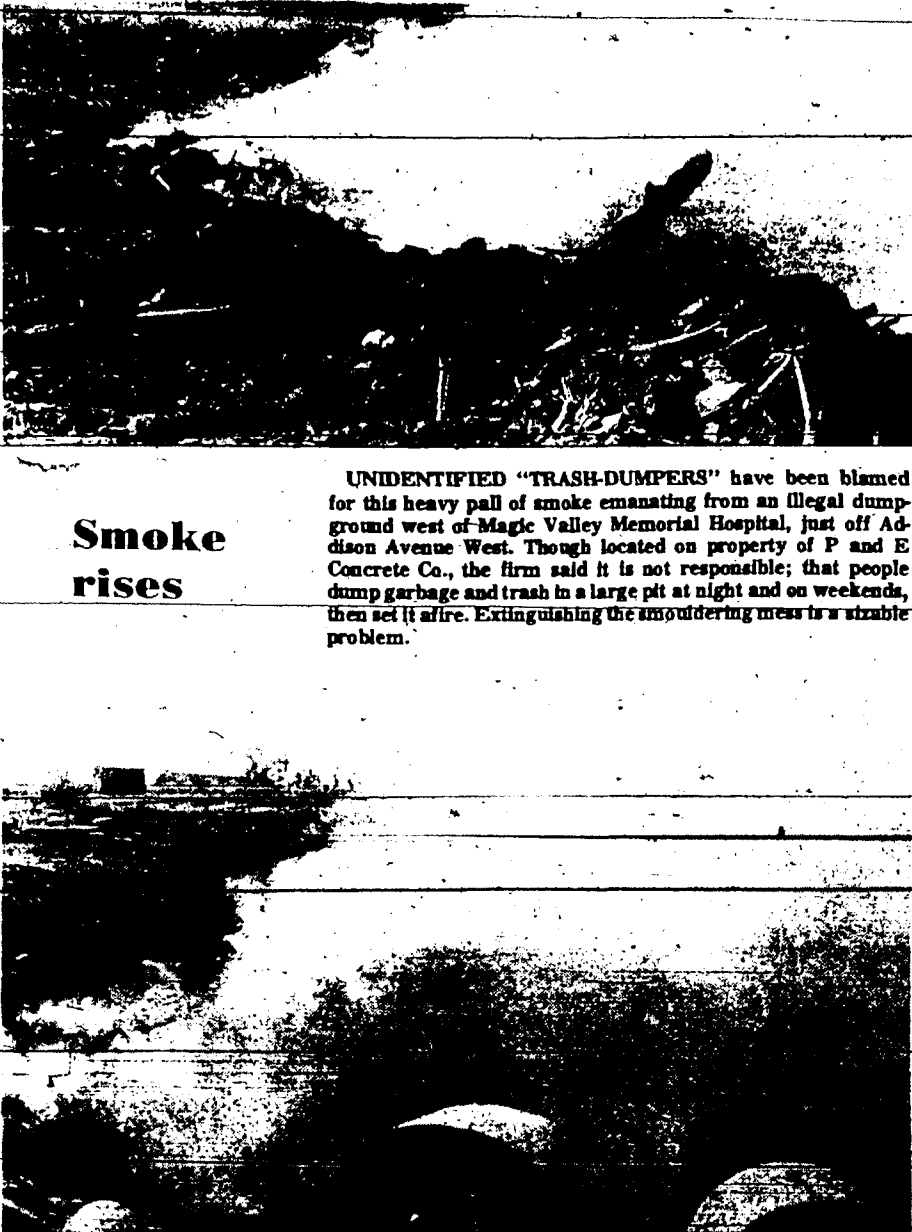

The commissioner said the commission would look into the problem at P and E Concrete and would hope to control it by enforcing county ordinances.

The Idaho State Health Department is also interested, according to Al Eiguren, director of the Air Pollution Control Division. Eiguren told the Times-News today that he had not been informed of the problem, but would confer with Attorney General Tony Park on responsibility and control measures.

Man held for theft

TWIN FALLS — A Colorado man is in custody in Twin Falls, charged with auto theft. He is being held for California authorities, according to Twin Falls Police.

Officers arrested Mike Murphy Nicks, 30, Colorado Springs, Colo., Monday night. The vehicle which he had in his possession was reported stolen from California, officers said.

Smoke rises

UNIDENTIFIED "TRASH-DUMPERS" have been blamed for this heavy pall of smoke emanating from an illegal dumpground west of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, just off Addison Avenue West. Though located on property of P and E Concrete Co., the firm said it is not responsible; that people dump garbage and trash in a large pit at night and on weekends, then set it afire. Extinguishing the smoldering mess is a sizable problem.

Burley TV setup studied

BURLEY — Cable-View is investigating possibility of making closed circuit television available to this area, John Cline, manager of the firm's Burley operation, told Burley Chamber of Commerce members Monday at Bryan's Cafe.

This way, Cline said, programs originating locally can be broadcast to those on cable only. He said a recent FCC ruling that is effective this month that any cable firm with 3,500 or more subscribers must have local origination unless they apply for a waiver.

He said for local origination, the firm must set up a studio to broadcast the local TV programs. He said closed circuit TV means that only those on cable will be able to receive the locally originated programs.

He said the firm also is considering taping local meetings and activities for re-broadcast. He explained FCC rules regarding nonduplication of programs within a 24-hour protection for local stations.

The FCC has just held hearings and new rules are expected to be released within the next two to three months, he said. Presently there are 2,500 cable hookups in the area, he said.

Snowmobile club elects Johnson

TWIN FALLS — Orval Johnson was elected president of the Magic Valley Snowmobilers Club at an election of officers Monday at the Idaho Power Co. auditorium.

Other new officers include Richard Murphy, vice president; LaPrell Lillibridge, secretary-treasurer, and Harley Hammond, Don Sharp, Ron Bushorn, Bryan Harris Jr., and Bob Whitlock on the board of directors. Mrs. Ron Bushorn and Mrs. Bob Whitlock will comprise the refreshment committee.

Bellevue voters choose Ballard as city mayor

By WARREN GOSSETT
Times-News Correspondent
BELLEVUE — Claude

Ballard, a relative newcomer to the community, was elected mayor here by a large margin in Monday's election. He received 65 out of 113 ballots cast.

Ballard, 32, currently is serving on the city council and will resign that post when his position as mayor becomes effective May 3.

He defeated Arzy Lance, who polled 29 votes, and Woodrow Watts collecting 18 in the three-way competition.

Charles Wright, the incumbent mayor, declined to run again because of health reasons. Four city councilmen also were elected Monday.

Joseph Bergin, incumbent, retained one of the two-year posts with Kenneth Wright and Ralph Griffin named to the other posts. Tom Barrett gained the one-year seat.

Bergin polled 81 votes of the 321 ballots cast for the two-year positions. Griffin received 69, Wright 42, Glen Stelma, 39, Bill Showalter, 37, Garth Sims, 29, and Floyd Boushele, 24.

Barrett received 52 of the 99 ballots cast for the one year term, defeating James Pigg who had 47.

Retiring councilmen are Stelma and Orville Cameron. Ballard said he is looking forward to the challenge and feels he will "enjoy working" with the people of this community.

Code change denied

BURLEY — The Burley City Council denied a request to amend the city's building code Monday evening.

Cliné Preston of Burley, who is building a new building for CAL Ranch and Farm Supply in the 400 block on North Overland in Burley. It will cost $100,000.

The present city building code requires any building built within the Burley city limits with 12,000 square feet or more of floor space to have an overhead sprinkler system installed in it when it is constructed.

Preston told the council that since the building will be constructed of cement and cinder blocks he didn't think the overhead sprinkler system was necessary. The council was also informed that CAL Ranch didn't want its new building to have the overhead sprinkler system in it.

However, the council could see no reason to amend its building code and denied Preston's request.

Jay Nichols, manager for Swift and Co. feed yards in the northwest corner of Burley, informed the council of the methods his firm plans to use to combat the dust and odor problem coming from the feed yards.

He told the council that his company is thinking of using a tank truck to spray the feed alleys and yards and use chemical to help keep down the odor. The right combination is still being sought, he said.

Nichols then told the council his company wants to pump water out of the Snake River. To do this, 3,000 feet of power line and a transformer would be needed.

If this isn't possible then the company would need to get water from the city water system. It would take 3 million gallons of water a month to do the spraying and to water the stock, Nichols said.

The council took Nichols' request under advisement.

Leon Bedke, city engineer, proposed an amended ordinance on weed control. This ordinance calls for the cost of cleaning up lots to be levied against the property owner.

The council placed this ordinance on first reading.

Burley POW mails letter

BURLEY — Mr. and Mrs. Verle Chesley have received a letter from their son, Capt. Larry Chesley, who is a prisoner of war in Vietnam.

This is the second letter received from him — the first one last summer.

Mrs. Chesley said the letter, received Saturday, was written in her son's handwriting and was in the standard form in five lines and that Capt. Chesley wished his father and brother happy birthday and said he was in good health and to tell everybody hello.

For security reasons, the Air Force asked that the exact text of the letters the Chesleys have received not be published. However, Mrs. Chesley said the wording and phrasing of the letter they received made them believe that their son was happier and in better health than when the first letter was received.

She said it was a real boost to them and it sounds a little more encouraging and the letter was received through a New York peace group.

Capt. Chesley was shot down April 16, 1966, over North Vietnam while on a bombing mission.

Mr. and Mrs. Chesley were in Boise over the weekend for a meeting to discuss the statewide POW organization.

Direct lines out

By NINA BRUSH
Times-News Correspondent
RICHFIELD — Rumor to the contrary, Richfield won't be getting direct long-distance telephone dialing in the near future.

Information received here from Donn L. Dahl, manager of the Grandview office of the Gem State Utilities Corp., said misinformation had been directed to Richfield in the expectation that the town might be next to obtain the direct distance dialing.

It had been reported that the service was being installed by the company in Mountain City, Nev. Dahl also said the possibility of Raymond Paulson, Richfield manager, being transferred is in the planning stages only.

Richfield temporarily had telephone servicing out of Grandview while Paulson was working for the company in Nevada. Dahl said the firm has received only three requests for new telephones in the past one and one-half months and they had been completed in "reasonable period of time."

Richfield now has 226 telephone listings.

Dentist didn't have a chance

TWIN FALLS — A visit to the dentist's office was all that was needed for an 11-year-old boy to pull two of his own teeth instead of letting the dentist do it.

Ronnie Piercey, 349 Adams, was told two months ago to work on his cuspid and bicupid on his right jaw to loosen them so that they would come out on their own and make room for his permanent teeth to replace them.

However, according to his mother, Mrs. Glenn Piercey, Ronnie hadn't worked on his teeth during the two months so it was left for the dentist to pull them.

After the dentist gave Ronnie a shot to deaden his jaw he left the room. When he came back he found that Ronnie had pulled one of his teeth and when he opened Ronnie's mouth to pull the other one it fell out.

Ronnie's work during the time the dentist was out of the room saved his parents $6. Now he has two weeks to loosen and pull out two other teeth on his left jaw or have the dentist do it.

Fair book printing bid taken

FILER — Allow bid of $1,188.95 for printing 3,500 premium books for the Twin Falls County Fair was accepted Monday night by the fair board at a meeting in Filer.

Harold O. Hove, chairman of the board, said the accepted bid was made by Times-News Ace Printing of Twin Falls.

The board also discussed the possibility of undertaking work at the fairgrounds for a race track as soon as possible. Hove said the track would be used for horse racing and chariot racing, but did not know how soon a track could be completed.

He said two horse barns on the southeast side of the grounds will be moved to the northeast side to make room for a race track.

Dates of the county fair and rodeo are September 7-11, with the 7th to be judging day.

The fair board meets the first Monday of each month. County commissioners Heber Loughmiller and Merl E. Leonard attended the meeting.

Potato price-fix suit rejected in U.S. court

BOISE — Federal District Court Judge Ray McNichols has rejected a multi-million dollar charge that the J. R. Simplot Co. and Ore-Ida Foods Inc. conspired to fix contract potato prices to growers.

Sixty individual growers from southwestern Idaho and eastern Oregon as well as a large farm corporation based in the area brought the case against Simplot and Ore-Ida.

Judge McNichols rejected the case Monday following closing arguments by three attorneys in the 17th day of the trial of the suit, which McNichols described as "unique" in the annals of anti-trust law. The 60 growers and the Farm Development Corp. alleged the two processors jointly agreed on prices to be paid growers prior to bargaining sessions from 1963 through 1966.

Acknowledging that contracts issued growers during that period by the two firms appeared to be "parallel," McNichols said some of the similarity might be attributed to activities of two bargaining associations representing growers from Idaho and Malheur County, Ore.

He said prices paid growers were common information known by everyone.

TWIN FALLS — County Commission Chairman W. L. Chancy, Twin Falls, is in Washington, D. C., this week attending the annual convention of the National Association of County Officials.

He has been appointed as a member of the organization's transportation committee which studies national trends in highway, airport, bridge and other travel planning and construction.

Senators rip Oakland

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Dick Bosman threw a six-hitter, and the Washington Senators dispelled their opening-day jinx with a vengeance Monday by whipping the Oakland Athletics, 8-0, before a sellout crowd of 45,061.

Theismann signs with Argonauts

TORONTO (UPI)—Notre Dame star quarterback Joe Theismann, spurning the Miami Dolphins, has signed a three-year contract to play Canadian football with the Toronto Argonauts.

Details of the signing beyond its length were not revealed.

The Argonauts first made Theismann an offer after the NFL draft, when he was picked fourth by the Dolphins.

But Theismann disappointed the Argonauts by announcing he was signing with the Dolphins. However, an ensuing disagreement between Theismann and the Dolphins over a bonus for signing led to his decision to try Canadian football.

John Bassett, chairman of the Argonauts board of directors, said Theismann got in touch with the team early last week.

He said Theismann wanted to return to South Bend, Ind. with the Argonaut offer to think it over. "But we told him that he would have to make up his mind before leaving because time is running out. We need a quarterback."

The Argonauts were the disappointment of the eastern division of the CFL in 1970, mostly because of an uncertain quarterback situation.

Foreman to fight Peralta

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A Las Vegas promotional firm announced Monday the signing of a 15-round fight between George Foreman, the World Boxing Association's No. 1 heavyweight, and Greg Peralta of Argentina.

Lorine Cassena, president of K.O., Inc., said the match is scheduled May 3 in Oakland. He said the bout is one of three that will be shown on closed-circuit television in Canada and the United States.

The other two fights are a 10-round bout between George Chubalo and Jimmy Ellis in Toronto, and a tentative 10-round match between Ernie Terrell and Luis Perez from Chicago.

Foreman, a former Olympic heavyweight champion, is undefeated in 27 fights and has 24 knockouts. Peralta has a professional record of 79-7-6.

The fight will be a return match of a fight in which Foreman decided Peralta in February, 1970.

It will be the first time that Foreman, of Hayward, has fought as a professional in Northern California.

Palmer still earns top money

NEW YORK (UPI)—Arnold Palmer, who passed up the Greensboro Open to practice for this week's Masters classic, remained the top money-winner among pro golf stars Monday with earnings of $98,178.

Miller Barber, who leads the field in the exemption point standings, continued in second place with $88,884 after pocketing a check for $7,315 by finishing fifth in the Greensboro.

Tom Shaw is third in the money-winning standings with $77,681. Gary Player fourth with $76,414 and Billy Casper fifth at $61,130.

Rounding out the top 10 are J. Carlyle Sneed, $59,143; Jack Nicklaus, $56,275; Lee Trevino, $52,940; Dave Eichelberger, $51,191; George Archer, $48,817.

The 40-year-old Barber, who has finished fifth or higher in six of his 12 tournaments this year, increased his exemption point lead to 83,478.4 with his high Greensboro finish. Player is second at 75,514.3.

All the money winners were among the top 10 point leaders. Sneed was third with 55,610.6 points.

eight straight openers since the John F. Kennedy days of 1962, won this one with the rooting help of an Army master sergeant instead of President Nixon. Sgt. Daniel Pitzer, a former prisoner of war in North Vietnam, threw out the ceremonial first ball as a starliner for Nixon, who was in California.

The Senators' cause also was helped, however, by the A's themselves. Two errors by Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris opened the way to a pair of runs in both the first and second innings—three of them unearned.

Three walks, a hit batsman and sacrifice flies by Frank Howard and Joe Foy added two more in the fourth. The final two runs came in the fifth inning on a double by Paul Casanova, followed by singles by Tim Cullen, rookie Toby Harrah and Howard.

Bosman, who had a 16-12 record for the last-place Senators last year, was in command throughout. He allowed only two runners to get as far as third and twice induced Oakland hitters to ground into double plays. The steady righthander walked three and struck out two. He also drew walks that led to scoring innings.

Petty named top race driver

NEW YORK (UPI)—Richard Petty, winner of this year's 500-mile stock car races at Daytona Beach and Rockingham, N.C., was named top performer Monday in the first phase of the Martini and Rossi American Driver of the Year Award balloting.

Three more voting sessions will be conducted by a panel of automotive sports writers before the end of the season. The winner receives $7,500 and a Golden Eagles Trophy that denotes speed, strength and courage.

Unser won the inaugural United States Auto Club race in Argentina and the first event of the American championship season at Phoenix. Airdretti won the South African Formula One Grand Prix and A.J. Foyt captured the Ontario 500-mile stock car race. Rodriguez and Oliver won the 24-hour Daytona.

The theory around here, he says, meaning Mauch and Cal McLish, the pitching coach, "is that you can only pitch like yourself. You try to pitch like someone else, you're gonna make mistakes. I gotta pitch like me and nobody else."

'PLAY BAL-timore!!'

Montreal Expos to leave National League cellar

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Montreal Expos are going to move.

At least that's what they're going around telling people. Now before this creates a new crisis in Canada—it probably is a good idea to point out that the move the Expos have in mind has to do with leaving the National League cellar and not the dominion.

The Expos are only three years old. They've finished on the bottom two years in a row and don't intend to again. They're fixing to move up this year, and that's the move they're talking about.

If Gene Mauch's crew does get out of the basement in the National League East this year one of the prime movers will have to be Carl Morton, who appeared in eight games with Montreal the year before and compiled an .03 record. "I found out I could. That's the first hurdle I had to get over and I did."

The next two hurdles for Morton are walks and home runs. "I've got to cut down on them," he says. "I gave up 27 homers and 125 walks and that's way too many. I led the National League in walks."

There's one other thing Morton will have to cut down on this year. His candor. It got him into a beef with Tom Seaver last May after Morton beat him with a shutout.

"The writers came in and asked me why I thought he (Seaver) was wild," Morton says. "I said maybe he was trying too hard because he had been shut-out by Dan McGuinn nine days or so earlier."

Morton's remark was relayed to Seaver and the Mets' pitcher, upset by the loss called it "silly" and suggested Morton concentrate better on his own affairs.

Named the NL Rookie of the Year last season, Montreal's 6-foot 190-pound righthander pitched one two-hitter and three other three-hitters. His 18th victory was an 11-inning 1-0 decision over St. Louis on Sept. 27 for the Expos' 71st win of the season.

"I had never gotten big league hitters out before last season," says Morton, who appeared in eight games with Montreal the year before and compiled an .03 record. "I found out I could. That's the first hurdle I had to get over and I did."

The next two hurdles for Morton are walks and home runs. "I've got to cut down on them," he says. "I gave up 27 homers and 125 walks and that's way too many. I led the National League in walks."

"I didn't mean it as a slur," Morton explains. "Look, I think he and Gibson have to be the best pitchers around today. I certainly don't put myself in Saver's class. But I was a little vulnerable that day because I pitched a shutout and was so happy. I know what it is to be on the other end. To get shut out, I mean. It's the hardest loss to accept. But I won't say I'm sorry for having said what I did."

"I've always been too honest. My wife says she can read my face like a book. I know I'm gonna run into some trouble down the line by speaking too candidly. What generally happens is that you hurt somebody's feelings. But I don't intentionally want to hurt anybody. And I don't want to hurt myself."

Talking to Morton you get the idea he wouldn't say what he did again. He goes against Seaver today in the Expos-Mets opener but no matter how it comes out trust Morton to be much smarter.

"I try to be a professional," he says, "and when you're a professional you don't criticize another professional. Looking back at that particular (Seaver) episode I'd say I was a little too candid. I'm learning though."

Pahsimeroi weir nabs 108 more

Hope for the Pahsimeroi steelhead spawning run took another sharp jump for the better Monday when 108 of the ocean-going Rainbows were taken from the Idaho Fish and Game Department weir just above Ellis.

C. R. "Bob" Quidor, superintendent of the Niagara steelhead hatchery, said in addition the smolts planted in the Pahsimeroi are now leaving in good numbers.

The department was worried—and still is to a degree—about the size of the run due to heavy mortality in downstream and upstream migrants in the lower Columbia River due to nitrogen saturation from dam spill.

Through last Tuesday only five adults had entered the weir. But an increase in water temperatures from about 37 degrees to 44 degrees sparked a good start late Thursday when 66 were found in the trap. The 108 that arrived from Thursday night through Monday morning were welcome additions.

The department is hopeful of taking two million eggs from the Pahsimeroi run to maintain the annual cycle. Meanwhile, another load of smolts is being transported from the Niagara raceways to the Pahsimeroi each day.

Millán, King spark Braves to victory

CINCINNATI (UPI)—The Atlanta Braves, sparked by the bats of Felix Millán and Hal King, bunched four runs off Cincinnati starter Gary Nolan and added three more against three relievers Monday to take a 7-4 decision and spoil the Cincinnati Reds' National League opener.

Sonny Jackson singled to right to score Perez for the fourth and final run of the inning.

Atlanta added a run off reliever Wayne Granger in the eighth after Millán tripled and scored on shortstop Woody Woodward's wild throw.

Don Gullett and Clay Carroll each gave up a run in the ninth inning with Orlando Cepeda scoring Ralph Garr with a single off Gullett and Hank Aaron scoring on a single by Boyer off Carroll.

Carr signed the contract in ceremonies at a downtown restaurant following his first meeting with Cavaliers officials. Terms of the contract were not announced, though Carr had been reported seeking $1.4 million.

Carr was accompanied here by his agents, Jerry Davis and Lewis Schaffel. They met with Cleveland owner Nick Mileti and coach Bill Fitch.

Fitch and Mileti had spent the weekend in Los Angeles meeting with their No. 2 draft choice, Steve Patterson of UCLA.

After he was notified of his choice by Cleveland in the draft, Carr had said he liked Cleveland and preferred playing in the NBA.

"I like the whole situation in Cleveland," he said.

The Cavaliers, who finished their first season with a 15-67 record, got first choice in the draft by virtue of winning a coin toss from the Portland Trail Blazers.

Oregon miss to be jockey

PORTLAND Ore. (UPI)—April Clubine Monday became the second woman in modern Oregon history to be licensed as a race track jockey.

Mrs. Clubine received approval of stewards after riding three mounts last Saturday and Sunday at Portland Meadows. All her mounts were longshots—in contention briefly, then facing in the stretch.

Mrs. Clubine, under contract to trainer H. D. Loveday, follows Violet (Pinkie) Smith, who became the first licensed woman rider in both Oregon and Washington in 1969. Mrs. Smith now ranks third in number of victories among lady jockeys in North America.

Pacers nip pros for 3-0 lead

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Indiana captain Fred Lewis scored 23 points to lead the Pacers to a 91-90 victory over Memphis in the American Basketball Association Western Division playoffs Monday night.

The win gave Indiana a 3-0 advantage in the best of seven series with the next game scheduled at the Mid-South Coliseum here Wednesday night.

The Pros opened the scoring and held the Pacers scoreless for two minutes until Lewis sank a free throw for a 4-1 mark. Memphis maintained the lead throughout most of the game, increasing the edge to as much as nine points, 72-63, in the third quarter.

Indiana then began to close the gap and tied the score, 87-87, with 3:44 remaining. Center Mel Daniels then put the Pacers ahead by two points on a short jump shot.

North's two-club bid was Stayman and South's two-spade call showed four cards in that suit.

When this hand was played at New York's Regency Whist Club, Tim Holland, sitting West, had to lead against the no-trump game. Tim, one of our best amateur golfers and perhaps the World's best backgammon player, is also pretty good at bridge. Tim led the three of spades. He didn't mind fooling his partner. It was apparent that East wasn't going to be taking any tricks.

South reached over to dummy and played the deuce. He didn't think of playing the 10 and when East played the nine deuce was dead. It didn't matter whether he played the king or ducked. Tim was sure of four spades, the ace of hearts and a profit.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Pick up "Win at Bridge with JACOBY MODERN" or any other book that covers the play of the cards and you will find a table that shows which card to lead from various high-card combinations.

These tables aren't exactly the same, but they do agree that the proper lead against no-trump from a suit headed by ace-queen-jack is the queen.

On most occasions you want to knock out the adverse king and set up the rest of the suit while retaining control. Like all rules at contract they apply in general. The winning player should learn to break them at the proper time.

No, it's the contention of Bob Hughes, an authority with the Northern California Dart Assn. Has to do with the sense of balance. Sounds reasonable. Night meetings enliven Bible

By THERESA THAMES

Pensacola, Fla. "What's going on in here?" a harsh voice demanded. Three policemen stood in the doorway.

Paul Royal, the church's minister of music, went forward. "We're from the First Baptist Church," he said. "This is a church meeting."

"We have permission to be here," Miss May said bravely, though she looked scared.

"You got it in writing?" the policeman thundered at her. Miss May shook her head. Now Mr. Royal came back, trying to explain, but one of the policemen cut him off.

"I don't care who you are. You're trespassing, and you're all under arrest."

We drove in a long caravan to the police station, patrol cars at the front, middle and rear of the line of cars. When we got there, the police ushered us to a large, hot cell. Royal was told he could make one phone call and he went to call Pastor Pleitz.

We were all worried sick that we could get a police record, that we had done something we could never live down. Then James Cornwall stood and began talking about Paul and Silas and how fortunate they considered themselves to be persecuted and put in jail for their love of Jesus Christ.

Then Pastor Pleitz was at the cell door. "What in the world are you doing in jail?" he shouted. And we were set free.

Back at the church a pizza party had been prepared for us and, of course, we soon found out all the details of how the raid had been arranged to give reality to our worship service.

As long as I live I won't forget those four nights, not just because of the excitement, but because they taught me about the "aliveness" of the Bible. You don't have to meet in secret places or stand on the deck of a fishing boat or get put in jail to learn the excitement of following Jesus; but if you're a teen-ager who likes to be where the action is, it sure helps!

Then we started to sing hymns — at the top of our lungs, to be sure everybody in the building heard us. I thought then that I couldn't care less if I got on my record that I was caught worshipping Jesus Christ!

Then Pastor Pleitz was at the cell door. "What in the world are you doing in jail?" he shouted. And we were set free.

We met again the next night in a large yard, to get the feeling of Gethsemane, the garden where Jesus spent His last night before His death.

Then came the fourth night. More than 75 kids met in Pensacola's waterfront area. The car doors closed quietly, and we whispered and sneaked about as though we really were conspirators.

We climbed a flight of outside steps to the second floor of a deserted warehouse. I found myself more frightened than I had been at the dank fort.

The warehouse floor was covered with trash and grime; there was a smell of decay. Suddenly a rat ran across the floor. Some gasped and clutched one another. Someone screamed.

Just then a candle was lighted, and James the brother of Jesus, began talking to us. Actually, James was James Cornwall, a Navy flier who had been working with our youth group while stationed at the Pensacola Naval Air Base.

He calmed us and talked to us about the Apostle Peter's experiences in a Jerusalem jail. Then the real excitement started. Suddenly the door burst open, surprising and scaring us all. At first the only thing we saw were the beams of high-powered flashlights, searching our faces.

AREN ERDOISA of Bruneau, a seventh-grade student at St. Edward's School in Twin Falls, proudly displays her complex exhibit entitled "The Blueprint of Life," a description of the intricacies of genetics, during the last-ever science fair for the school. She was awarded a trophy by the judges of the science fair.

Variety of displays at last science fair

TWIN FALLS — The last science fair for the doomed St. Edward's School, which must close its doors for good in May, attracted a wide variety of exhibits ranging from genetics to nutrition and including live lizards and hamsters. St. Edward's students displayed an amazing variety of talents in their depictions of the intricacies of science, according to the school's principal, Sister Mary Zita. The students demonstrated sound waves, discussed proper care of lizards and other pets, constructed a spark coil and probed nearly all phases of science.

Carla Howa, an eighth-grader, won first prize with a display on the theme of nutrition and vitamins, including plates containing nutritionally balanced meals. Chery Uriguen, a seventh-grader, captured second place. Perhaps the most outstanding display, however, was a discussion of genetics developed by young Aren Erdoisa of Bruneau, who lives in Twin Falls. She wrote a comprehensive treatise on genetics as background, then drew carefully illustrated diagrams of DNA and RNA molecules and depicted their role in life.

Permit totals pass $500,000

TWIN FALLS — Building construction and Urban Renewal demolition represented an investment of $589,631 for the month of March in Twin Falls, City Clerk Edythe Koontz said today. A total of $499,000 in non-residential buildings permits was issued during the month. One, the Longview Fibre Co. application for construction of a new dry storage warehouse, accounted for $400,000 alone. The building is 200 by 440 feet and of steel, concrete and wood construction. It is located at 348 South Park Avenue W. Urban Renewal demolition permits included the old Lind Garage at 146 Second Ave. E., $10,900; the old building at 144 Second St., E., $4,600, and the old Wiley Drug Co., and adjoining building, 124 through 130 Shoshone St. N., $17,100. Another commercial permit is the application of Western Motels Inc. for $60,000 in additional building. The motel proposes a 24 by 90 foot addition to provide 14 additional motel units on Blue Lake Boulevard North as part of the Fairways Motel. There were 24 permits issued including five for new buildings, $67,000; six for non residential buildings, $499,300 and 13 additions, alterations and repairs, $23,331.

Adlai claims U.S. backs Thieu power

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., charged Monday that U.S. officials were acting behind the scenes to keep South Vietnam's Thieu-Ky regime in power in next October's elections. Stevenson, backed by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, introduced legislation to create a 10-member congressional commission to make sure the United States stays out of the campaign. Republican Leader Hugh Scott said the measure amounted to a "reputation of the government of South Vietnam." Stevenson said a U.S. civilian agency responsible for pacification in South Vietnam had conducted a survey of political attitudes in the nation's 44 provinces, and turned over the results to President Nguyen Van Thieu. He said the U.S. Information Agency also was using its facilities to help the current regime communicate with the electorate. "The United States," he said, "cannot be true to its commitment to self-determination in the world and also support the election of one candidate or another, however covertly, in Vietnam," Stevenson told the Senate. Mansfield agreed. Blasting the war as a "corrosive cancer on the American body politic," he said, "we have preached self-determination since the time of Woodrow Wilson and I think it is about time to put that principle into practice."

Recall law test asked

BOISE (UPI) — A deputy attorney general has recommended attempts be made to seek a declaratory judgement in court to solve an apparent conflict in Idaho statutes regulating recall procedures.

Licenses, stickers expiring

BOISE — Motorists owning passenger cars or pickups whose license plates end with the number four are required to obtain new validation stickers before April 30, according to the Department of Law Enforcement.

The department says the black on white 1972 stickers are to be placed on the lower left hand corner of their present plates.

Motorists are also advised by department spokesmen that vehicle inspection stickers with a black number four expire in April and that a re-inspection is necessary before the end of the month.

All motorists are urged by the department to check their inspection stickers to see that they have a valid sticker. Any inspection stickers on motor vehicles registered in Idaho that do not carry a number are invalid, officials said.

Numbers were first used on stickers by the Vehicle Inspection Section in March, 1970, to identify the months of inspection.

In a letter to Bonneville County Prosecuting Attorney Seward French, Deputy Attorney General Richard Greener said there was an "unworkable conflict" in present statutes concerning recall elections.

Attempts have been made in Bonneville County to recall state legislators, apparently because made on a pay bill during the regular session of the legislature.

Greener pointed out present recall statutes were written for counties and were not changed when the last reapportionment plan changed to legislative districts.

Under the statutes, petitions for a recall election require signatures of 20 per cent of the aggregate total of voters who voted in the last general election for governor from each county.

However, Greener said, some legislative districts include parts of counties and said it appeared the 20 per cent requirement would mean the 20 per cent must be gathered "notwithstanding the fact that such county may be only partially within the boundaries of the legislative district."

He added, "therefore, perhaps the more prudent course would be for the interested parties to seek a declaratory judgement on this matter."

Seven Virginians signed the Declaration of Independence, including its author, Thomas Jefferson.

Policies up

SAN FRANCISCO — Personal life insurance issued in Idaho by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. during the past year amounted to over $18 1/2 million an increase of 8.3 per cent over the previous year, James E. Stretch, vice-president in charge of Metropolitan's Pacific Coast head office, said.

News Of Servicemen

BLISS — Major Margaret Layne, United States Air Force Reserve information officer, has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel, according to Col. Rudy Ashenbrenner, commanding officer of the 9430th ARS, Twin Falls. Lt. Col. Layne, (Mrs. Bob Brown of Bliss) has recently transferred here from California. She has received the Navy Sikorsky Award for valor and the Meritorious Citizenship Award from the city of Los Angeles, both in the past two years.

Registry law veto sought

BOISE (UPI) — Earl Manchester, state chairman of the American Party, sent a letter to Gov. Cecil Andrus today, urging him to veto legislation requiring voters to register by political party.

The measure, said Manchester, "is in clear violation of numerous U. S. Supreme Court decisions, and does not allow the elector voting the candidate of his choice."

The third party leader said, "It is a grave illness in our society for our legislators to usurp the dignity of their respective office in an attempt to build a political dynasty for an amorphous party, and against the welfare of the electors."

Recycling meet topic

BOISE (UPI) — Trash recycling and enforcement of anti-litter laws will be the primary topics Thursday at the second annual conference of the Idaho Beautification Council.

Gov. Cecil Andrus is to open the session. Aaron L. Robinson, Idaho Falls, council president, said the meeting is open "to anyone interested in litter prevention and the beautification of Idaho."
