

Hotel termed 'unsafe'

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls city fire inspector said today that the Camera Center Hotel would have been ruled "unsafe for occupancy" if he had known that its single rickety fire escape was unusable.

The steel-ladder fire escape ends in a sheer 10-foot drop to the ground, rather than the counterweighted escape ladder required by law. The counterweighted portion is missing for some reason, but the fire inspector, Clinton Earl, didn't know it was missing until he was questioned by the Times-News.

"I know it was there at one time. I didn't know it was missing," he said.

Fire Department Capt. Jack Windsor said a woman had to be rescued from the fire escape landing, by a ladder he put up from the ground. "I thought she was going to jump off before I got there," he said today.

The building, which suffered severe damage in a fire that cost the life of one man early Wednesday, had been deemed safe for occupancy by the fire inspector, since it had the required number of fire extinguishers and a standpipe, allowing firemen to pump water to upper-floor fire hose outlets.

The fire death, however, was clearly not related to the lack of a fire escape. The victim, Adam

A. Adolph, 76, a transient who came to Twin Falls from Illinois a month ago, was believed to have been asphyxiated in his room by smoke from the fire. There was no indication he had attempted to find his way to an exit, firemen said.

Reed Coulam, Twin Falls city building inspector, said the building was believed safe "since it had two exits from the second floor." The exterior steel-ladder fire escape, still used on many older buildings including the Rogerson Hotel, is no longer allowed in new construction, Coulam said.

But if it is, it is supposed to have a ladder to the ground — a counterweighted affair that is lowered by anyone stepping on

Today's building codes call for a "stairway leading to a safe dispersal area on the ground," Coulam said. The stairway must be built of "non-combustible material," such as steel. But a rickety ladder on the outside of the building is now taboo.

Earl said there's not much that can be done with old buildings that have long been standing when a building code is adopted. "You can't make the owners tear down all old buildings in town," the building inspector said.

The fire inspector said the Camera Center Hotel was inspected "about every six months. That's not as often as we would like to inspect the buildings," but it's the best that can be done with present manpower.

The fire and building inspectors are planning a thorough survey of downtown business buildings to locate unsafe areas and order corrections, Earl said. One major area of concern, however, is untouched.

"This area concerns apartment houses converted from former large residences. There is no way we can inspect them for fire safety or any other kind of safety, unless the owner invites us in," Earl explained. Residential construction is currently off-limits to fire inspectors, by state and city law.

TEN CENTS

Bugout asked

ESTES PARK, Colo. (UPI) — Delegates to the White House Conference on Youth wrapped up a controversial four-day session Wednesday by calling for an immediate end to the Indochina war, the resignation of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and the legalization of marijuana.

The action closed out a conference that provoked criticism even before it began — when President Nixon announced he was moving the site from Washington, D.C., to Estes Park, a popular Colorado mountain resort area.

Opponents said Nixon shifted the site to avoid publicity. Delegates had been expected to criticize the President on various fronts, an assumption that proved correct.

The delegates voted by a near 3-to-1 margin in favor of a resolution calling for an immediate end to air and ground action in Southeast Asia. They said U.S. soldiers should be back on American soil before the start of 1972.

Rejected was a resolution calling for support of the President's Vietnamization program.

As delegates approved a proposition calling for legalized marijuana, a number of young people lighted what some said was "pot" on the floor of the general assembly.

The delegates, who earlier overwhelmingly rejected a proposal that President Nixon resign, voted 345 to 137 in favor of the resolution that Hoover leave his FBI post.

Also approved was a resolution calling for an end to the draft.

Conference chairman Stephen Hess, who wrapped up the gathering with a final news briefing, called it "the fairest conference" that has ever been held in the youth series, but admitted there were "two biases" to begin with.

"We were looking for people who had done things," he said, "and we very deliberately overrepresented minority groups."

Death fire cause eyed

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

TWIN FALLS — Exact cause of the fire which burned the Camera Center Hotel early Wednesday was still under investigation today as charitable organizations sought to meet housing and other needs of families and individuals left homeless.

One man, identified as Adam A. Adolph, 76, who came to Twin Falls about a month ago from Illinois, died in the fire. Another 26 persons lost their possessions including clothing.

County Coroner Cloyce Edwards said Adolph died of smoke inhalation in the upper floor of the building where the fire started. His body was taken to Reynolds Funeral Home where funeral services are pending. He was a veteran of World War II and had been employed in a Veterans Administration Hospital in Illinois before coming here.

It is believed he had been doing odd jobs in the area, including work as a janitor at Jackpot, Nev. He has no known survivors.

Two families are in need of help, Red Cross and Salvation Army officials said today. Irene Basom of the Red Cross said she planned to meet with both sometime today to determine their needs and attempt to help meet them. One family, with three small children, she said, had very little in the beginning and lost everything. They had been living at the old hotel and looking for work in this area.

Salvation Army officials said they provided the family temporary shelter and efforts are being made to find them a home and to work with other agencies to find a job for the young father.

Clothing is needed for the children, Red Cross officials said. In the two families there are eight youngsters, ranging in age from two to teen-age. Items for the younger children are especially needed, Mrs. Basom said.

Water project advances

WASHINGTON D.C. — Sen. Frank Church and Sen. Len Jordan announced today the Senate Interior Committee will hold a hearing June 9 on their legislation to authorize construction of the Salmon Falls division, Upper Snake River Reclamation project.

It is the first time the legislation has come to the hearing stage. It had been scheduled for this past August, but had to be moved to the later date because of various problems in the Senate.

The legislation authorizes the secretary of the interior to approve construction of a project on the south side of the Snake River south of Twin Falls.

The project will be operated principally for irrigation and for fish and wildlife enhancement.

Surface and ground water supplies in the area are now inadequate to serve 49,000 acres of land already developed in the Salmon Falls area.

The project would develop a full supply of water for 64,110 acres of land, including the lands already developed.

Available flows from the Snake River, supplemented by waters in existing reservoirs and ground water pumping, would be delivered to the lands through the proposed project, including a 47 mile canal skirting the area.

In addition to its reclamation function, the project also provides for improvement of wildlife conditions in the area by developing non-irrigable areas with small water emplacements, protective vegetation and other habitat enhancement measures.

Sen. Church's office said similar legislation had been introduced in the House and would probably go to committee for hearing.

Migrant health shunned Earth days attract few

BOISE (UPI) — An attorney general's opinion released Wednesday said the State Board of Health does not have specific authority to establish rules and regulations for minimum housing standards for migrant farm workers.

But Assistant Attorney General Dwight Board said through other statutes — including those for public water supply, sewage disposal and solid waste disposal regulation — the state would work toward improving the plight of the farm workers.

In an opinion written for Robert H. Des Aulniers, assistant administrator of health, board said the Idaho constitution gives the state's legislative power to the legislature and added that power cannot be delegated to any other body or authority.

Therefore, he said, there are no definite limits fixed by the Idaho legislature within which the state board of health could promulgate rules and regulations for establishing minimum housing standards.

Board said it appeared any such regulations already established by the Board of Health would be unenforceable.

But, he said, "the State of Idaho is not entirely powerless" because of other statutes through which the state Board of Health might work.

This is Earth Week in Magic Valley and the nation, a time when the forces concerned with righting man's wrongs to nature are supposed to make a show of force.

But in Magic Valley, little out of the ordinary has happened. Certainly there has been no mass movement of environmentalists hoped for by the holiday's sponsors.

Most of those who are doing their part for a cleaner, healthier and greener country are youngsters, particularly from the Buhl, Filer and Valley school districts.

A few schools in Magic Valley had had programs on ecology, demonstrations this week in observance of Earth Week, but most have had nothing or plan nothing in particular for Earth Week.

This is because of other school activities in the lower grades and preparation for final examinations as well as other school-related projects in the higher grades.

CSI is particularly quiet. Jack Sims, director of student activities at the College said CSI students are "preparing for final exams and as a result have little time to do anything special" for Earth Week.

He said, however, some students are making plans for the countywide cleanup project that has been scheduled for May 8.

Jon Jund, vice principal of the Buhl High School, said Buhl's high school students have several projects going on today.

The students are clearing and lining with rock and shrubs two highway junctions near Buhl. In town, several "eyesores" are being cleaned up along with the Union Pacific Railroad right-of-way.

War dead at 45,000

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. command said today 56 Americans were killed last week in the Indochina war and 185 were wounded. It brought to 44,974 the number of U.S. servicemen killed in the war.

The U.S. death toll last week was up 14 from the previous week.

South Vietnamese spokesmen said 404 government troops were killed and 1,562 wounded in the week ending April 17.

The Allied commands placed the Communist death toll at 2,781.

Viet vets arrested

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scores of Vietnam veterans, their hands clamped around the backs of their heads like POWs, were arrested and marched off to waiting buses today when they set up a noisy, end-the-war demonstration at the Supreme Court.

The arrests were made on the marble steps of the columned Supreme Court building by Washington police when about 150 vets, part of a gradually growing number of ex-GI protesters, refused orders to break up their chanting demonstration.

They were the first mass arrests since the members of a four-year-old organization called Vietnam Veterans Against the War began a week of demonstrations aimed at getting a firm, quick date set for total withdrawal from Southeast Asia.

"Bring them home! Bring our brothers home!" the demonstrators shouted at the Supreme Court. "1-2-3-4! We don't want your f--- war!"

Seventeen hours earlier, the Supreme Court refused to reconsider a ruling banning a campout on the grassy Mall by the participants.

Nevertheless, the demonstrators stayed on the Mall during a cold, damp night—in low 40 degree weather—and no effort was made to evict them. The ban prohibited sleeping, but the men at least sought to sleep, huddled in whatever they could find from bedrolls to blankets.

The arrests at the Supreme Court came peacefully—as the vets' leaders pledged others would be if police sought to evict them from the Mall—after they were told they were violating an ordinance against impeding administration of government activities.

The veterans, most of them in ragtag clothes consisting of parts of military uniforms and many wearing beards, had said previously that when and if arrest came, they would go off peacefully, but like POWs—hands behind their heads.

That was the scene — intended by the protestors to be seen by Americans in the newspapers and on television — as they were arrested at the court and escorted to waiting buses to be taken to the police station.

Dictator Papa Doc succumbs

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier, the lifetime president of Haiti who ruled his impoverished nation with a mixture of charm, voodooism and police brutality, died Wednesday night at the age of 64 and was succeeded by his son Jean-Claude.

Papa Doc died eight days after his 64th birthday. He had been ailing for years and seriously ill for three months. He used that period to revise the constitution so that he would be succeeded by Jean-Claude, 20, a strapping youth with the looks of an out of condition football player.

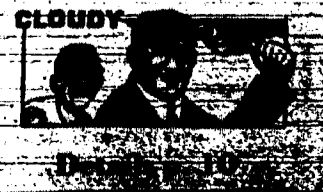

The death was announced by the government radio which said he died at 8 p.m. and that Jean-Claude already had taken over and named a new cabinet whose Foreign Minister Adrian Raymond, is the brother of Claude Raymond, head of the 5,500-man Haitian army.

Political observers said this apparently meant army support for the successor of Papa Doc who had maintained his position for years by skillfully playing off the army against his dreaded 25,000-man Ton Ton Macoute, a bogeyman personal militia steeped in the fears inspired by voodooism.

Papa Doc was an actual medical doctor but he gave up medicine in 1954 to lead an underground resistance against President Paul Magloire who was forced by popular opposition to resign in 1956. Magloire fled to asylum in New York where he was reported to have organized some of the eight or more foreign invasions Papa Doc repulsed in his lifetime.

By a twist of irony Duvalier's death was announced on April 22 — he had always considered 22 his lucky number. He was installed as president for life on June 22, 1964. Haiti's last elections were on Jan. 22, 1967 and he waited until Feb. 20 to announce the results — a Duvalier victory.

Pollution impact said second only to wars

By JERRY HERRMANN
Times-News Writer

BURLEY — "Probably no other subject has had as big an impact on this nation besides war as pollution," Dr. David L. Carter said Wednesday.

He was one of the speakers at the environmental forum, sponsored by the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation Women's Committee and Natural Resources Committee, held at the Ponderosa Inn.

"We have used the streams as dumping facilities for our wastes and as our nation has grown these wastes have come back to haunt us," he said.

"We've got to tackle these problems. However, we must tackle them in the right perspective," Dr. Carter said.

the Twin Falls area showed that even with the inflow and outflow of water measured, the explanation for the level of nitrogen in the subsurface water and runoff water was missing. "There were just too many sources for it and we couldn't pin it down," he said.

"By 1980 we could produce all the food we need by using 300 million acres of our best land," he said.

By using only the best land erosion losses could be cut tremendously. Also, the loss of nitrogen and phosphorous would be cut dramatically, and the farmer would still be producing the fiber and food needed, he said.

Dr. Carter also said that fertilizer should be increased on good lands and have the other lands retired.

"If the use of commercial fertilizer was banned next year there would be a 94 per cent decrease in the yield of grapefruit in Florida; 38 per cent decrease in potatoes produced in Idaho; and a decrease of 11 per cent in the yield of wheat in Kansas and 18 per cent decrease in Washington," he said.

"The farmland would have to be increased 1.5 times to produce the food needed," he said, "if there was a ban placed on the use of commercial fertilizer."

"We definitely have a water pollution problem. It must be approached from the proper perspective. We must find a scientific basis for what we do and the limits that must be observed," he said.

T.F. native speaks

JOHN RUTTER, northwest regional director for the National Park Service and a native of Twin Falls, addresses the Twin Falls Rotary Club Wednesday noon at the Turf Club.

Complex setup gains support

TWIN FALLS — The National Park Service's national park-nation recreation area complex will gain widespread recognition, acceptance and application, John A. Rutter, Pacific Northwest Regional director of the park service, told the Twin Falls Rotary Club Wednesday.

Rutter, a native of Twin Falls, said he also believes the complex will be used to meet public demands for both recreation and preservation across the United States.

"Nothing is perfect, but this complex comes about as close to answering our needs as anything I have experienced in more than 30 years of managing parklands and wildlands for outdoor recreation," Rutter said.

Rutter described in detail the application of the park-recreation area complex in the North Cascades National Park. The park, he said, takes in the wild alpine core of the area, most of which will almost certainly be classified as wilderness.

In addition, two recreation areas serve as buffers as well as gateways to the park, Rutter said.

"If the proper boundaries are selected for the two areas, it is probably impossible to surpass the park-recreation area complex as a workable tool for management and administration of lands possessing outstanding values for preservation and also for recreation, yet retaining essential resource use," Rutter said.

Concerning the statement that converting an area to national park status "locks up the resource and economic benefits," Rutter said what actually happens "is that when an area is made part of the national park system it achieves nationwide recognition as being possessed of outstanding scenic, recreational and natural values."

Rutter said, "It becomes a part of a collection which is unsurpassed in its magnificence, both in fact and in public opinion. Economists have determined that when public use facilities are completed the North Cascades Park and Recreation Area will generate $20 million in visitor spending a year."

He said that park values to the environment of American should not be measured in dollars. National parks are "priceless places of natural wealth," Rutter said, and "it is a happy coincidence" that the national park concept should also turn out to have economic benefits.

Rutter said that as Americans have awakened to how much the environment is changing, the parks have increased greatly in value as remnants of the original American landscape.

Rutter said that in some parks, despite tremendous increases in visitor use, management of the areas and use has allowed their condition to be improved.

He also said he is concerned with the headlines in the papers and the bills introduced in legislatures and Congress calling for the end of the use of commercial fertilizer.

"I believe we must understand the role it has in pollution and food production. I'm among those who want something done. But let's do it with reason and with scientific information behind us," he said.

Dr. Carter said that if the use of fertilizer was stopped the "food of plenty" situation wouldn't exist.

"The control of the use of fertilizer can be dangerous if not done correctly," he said.

As the use of fertilizer has increased over the past decade, nitrogen and phosphorous has increased in the streams.

In one study, Dr. Carter said, done in the Rio Grande Valley over a 10 year period it showed that the nitrogen content in a stream downstream from the project had actually decreased.

Valley offers contracts

VALLEY SCHOOL — Dr. Tom Utterback, superintendent of the Valley School District, said today the district has offered contracts to two new teachers for the next school year.

Nancy Taylor, Rupert, a graduate of Brigham Young University, was offered a contract as vocational homemaking teacher, to replace Kathleen Marley, who has accepted a similar position in the Salt Lake City School system.

Mrs. Frank Card was offered a contract to teach second grade, replacing Marian Furness who has resigned. Miss Card has been teaching in Ely, Nev., and is a graduate of the University of Nebraska.

Dr. Utterback said that a mathematics instructor is still needed who can teach college algebra, advanced algebra and general mathematics.

Gem unit studied by agency

MOUNTAIN HOME (UPI) — A national non-profit association is trying to obtain the defunct Mountain Home Job Corps Center for treatment and schooling of emotionally disturbed children.

Dr. F. William Dinwiddie, president of Youth Rehabilitation Center, Inc., said it would be used for intensive treatment and education programs for about 150 children between 8 and 17 years of age.

He said the center would utilize what is known as the "Edgemaide" method which involves testing, psychological and psychiatric counseling, physical training and a therapeutic program geared to individual needs of problem children.

Children are admitted to such centers for a two-year period. The first year they spend in residence for schooling and therapy. The second year they attend nearby public schools while continuing the therapeutic program at the center.

Dinwiddie estimated the proposed center at Mountain Home could start out with an occupancy of about 50 youngsters. He estimated it could become fully operational and self-supporting in five years.

Prisoner costs meet scheduled

TWIN FALLS — City officials will meet at noon April 29 with county commissioners in an attempt to get a bit closer on what each agency feels it costs to feed and house prisoners.

County officials have proposed cities in Twin Falls County pay $2.35 per day for meals and housing of city prisoners who, under the court reform law, are now housed in county jail facilities. City council members in Twin Falls have suggested a more reasonable fee would be 90 cents per meal with no more than two meals per day with the amount to cover other housing costs.

The difference between the $2.35 and the $1.80 will be negotiated in the coming meeting, officials of both agencies indicated Thursday.

City Manager Jean Milar pointed out Twin Falls city residents pay about one third of the county taxes which should account for some consideration. Commissioners say the county provides many services enjoyed by city and county residents alike.

It was also noted the city jail is sometimes needed because of limited county facilities and the present high population of the county jail.

When it is necessary to house juveniles or women prisoners or a prisoner for some other reason, the city jail is available. It is also used to house prisoners picked up at night on city violations or those being held pending court appearances.

Manager appointed for store

TWIN FALLS — Richard (Rich) Green, formerly of Boise, has been named manager of the new Lindbloom's Decorator Wallcoverings outlet in Boise by the owner of the firm, Richard Lindbloom.

Green has moved to Twin Falls with his wife, and is preparing for the opening of the Lindbloom's outlet at West Five Points, scheduled for mid-May. Lindbloom's will carry a complete line of wall coverings, floor coverings and paint supplies for the homeowner.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — This country is in some danger of losing its world advantage as the possessor of the highest technology among all its principal trading competitors.

Yet we cannot treat technology as some hated adversary. It is a key element in our economic growth—and growth we must have.

Foreign economic experts point out here that our selling advantage has been greatest where high technology has played a decisive role.

Experts here think it natural that our trading edge in less sophisticated products, like textiles and shoes, should decline.

Warnings like Wiesner's may indicate we are breaking out of our complacent, self-congratulatory mood.

Twin Falls' downtown fountain — more from discussion than anything else — is becoming famous. Scores (people, that is) are trying to come up with something that would make something out of the fountain and eliminate all those nasty Letters To The Editor.

China, Ping-Pong

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It all sounds light-hearted and trivial. But it would be a mistake to downgrade the importance of Red China's having invited an American table tennis team to the mainland.

China's economy growing at a sluggish rate and the major sources of possible aid concentrated in the United States and its allies.

During the eight months this reporter (as an American Army officer in World War II) had daily dealings with the upper members of the Chinese Communist hierarchy, it was clear that when it came to their national interests Mao, Lin Piao and Chou En-lai did not let ideology get in their way.

PAUL HARVEY

McCloskey?

Anybody who would beat Shirley Temple can't be all good. But he's good enough so we'd better pay attention. He's out to beat Nixon now.

tomorrow and all our support troops out this year "if we want to."

A fledgling Republican congressman presuming to run for President has to be a bold fellow: "Pete" McCloskey is.

He wants to. On issues other than the war his voting record tends to support Nixon.

Leading a Marine bayonet charge up Hill 566 in Korea, he stopped lead but did not stop leading. For taking that hill, Lt. McCloskey brought home a Navy Cross 20 years ago.

If McCloskey's politics are "Mark Hatfield" his vocabulary is "Marine Corps Joe McCarthy."

Now, four years later, with that same characteristic initiative and determination, he is threatening to storm aboard and take over our Ship of State.

True, these qualities may describe other Republicans who might challenge Nixon for the nomination next year, but the difference between them and him is — they might — he will.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

On Nerves

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Sometimes my heart beats real fast and after I exhale I can't get my breath. This lasts a few seconds and then I am all right, but it scares me.

its course. Sometimes medication may be used to help him relax. This helped you, your letter says. The pills, rather than actually "making" you sleepy, probably merely helped you relax.

My doctor checked me over and said I was in good health. He thought it was my nerves. He gave me some pills that made me sleepy. I took them for a week and had no more trouble with my breathing.

Dr. Thosteson: Your column has caused me much worry, to be exact, your writing that after a vasectomy there is a small possibility of sperm being found even a year later.

Is it possible nerves could cause this? I have had this trouble for 10 years. I am now 26 and have two children. — Mrs. D. H.

Our doctor who performed this, understanding that we would never want it undone in the future because of our age, told us we would be perfectly safe after 10 ejaculations, but still I remember what you have written. We would prefer not to have a laboratory sperm count. Could you possibly reassure us? — Mrs. B. H.

Yes, it is possible for nerves to affect breathing, heart rate, and other physical functions. Normally, we breathe automatically, without thinking about it.

The probability is that you will be perfectly safe, as your doctor said. But the fact remains that the only way to be certain is to have a subsequent sperm count.

This leads to too low a level of carbon dioxide in the blood (the dioxide level ordinarily governs our breathing rate).

Occasionally, for example, the vas, or sperm duct, is double rather than single, and unless both branches of the duct are tied off, sperm will still be getting through.

The person who is hyperventilating becomes conscious of his breathing, tries to breathe too much, and makes his own trouble even worse. He gets his lungs full, has the idea that he needs to breathe more, yet can't. So he develops a feeling of not being able to catch his breath when actually he has more than he needs.

That rather leaves it up to you. What do you want — to be pretty sure, or to be positive?

This sort of thing is not particularly unusual in colleges, especially around examination time. One simple measure, which works except in extreme cases, is to have the patient hold a paper bag to his face, and breathe in and out — he thus re-inhales some of the carbon dioxide that he has exhaled.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have diabetes. Please tell me what my blood sugar should be an hour after I eat breakfast — Mrs. L. E.

Along with this, he needs to be reassured that nothing terrible is happening to him, and that he should relax and let nature take presently he feels better.

A level of 180 milligrams or less would be acceptable — but a more significant reading would be two or three hours after a meal. That gives a better index of how well you are utilizing sugar, and whether an adjustment in diet or medication is advisable.

Further, if your fasting sugar level is high, adjustment to lower it will bring down the after-breakfast level.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Mr. Hoover, when you asked what Hale Boggs has been saying—do you mean to the newspapers, or—er—on the telephone?"

Living costs climb higher

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Higher food prices helped drive the cost of living up 0.3 per cent in March, but the first quarter of 1971 still recorded the lowest rate of inflation in four years, the government said Wednesday.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported the March increase, which coupled with a 0.2 per cent rise in February and a 0.1 per cent hike in January amounted to a first-quarter annual rate of 2.7 per cent.

That is the lowest since the first quarter of 1967 and even below the inflation pace President Nixon had predicted for this year.

Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the president's council of economic advisers, said the figures "were extremely good news and very reassuring in this battle" to try and stabilize price levels.

But McCracken said he did not think the battle against inflation had been completed. He pointed to the "cross currents" in the latest figures—a higher than usual increase in food prices but a sharp drop in mortgage rates.

The March cost of living figures showed that food—mostly meat, fruit and vegetables—went up 0.9 per cent and accounted for two-thirds of the overall increase.

But a steep, 4.2 per cent drop in mortgage interest rates and an 0.8 per cent drop in new car prices helped offset the higher grocery bills.

The March cost of living index stood at 119.8. This meant it cost $11.98 last month to buy goods and services that could have been purchased for $10 in the 1967 base period.

Even one of the administration's sharpest critics on economic matters, Sen. William E. Proxmire, D-Wis., conceded the price index figures were encouraging.

But with inflation beginning to decline, he added that now the administration could move to cut the unemployment rate, currently 6 per cent of the work force or about 5,175,000 Americans.

Both McCracken, who discussed the figures with the President before talking to reporters at the White House, and Assistant Commerce Secretary Harold C. Passer said they hoped the lower rate of inflation would lead unions to restrict their demands for higher wages.

But a spokesman for the AFL-CIO said inflation still was continuing to wipe out most of the wage gains workers had won. He noted that the cost of living in March was 4.9 per cent higher than a year ago.

"We will continue at the collective bargaining table to push for wage levels that will protect the purchasing power of America's workers," the union spokesman said.

The administration, however, viewed the March-to-March increase favorably since the rate of inflation for all of 1970 was 5.5 per cent.

Girders crumble

Hoover firing sought

WASHINGTON (UPI)—House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs today stuck to his demand that J. Edgar Hoover be fired.

The Louisiana Democrat on April 5 charged the 76-year-old FBI chief with adopting the surveillance tactics of Hitler's gestapo. He told the House then the FBI had tapped telephones of House and Senate members and said "the way Mr. Hoover is running the FBI today it is no longer a free country."

Top administration officials and key Republican lawmakers demanded Boggs retract his charge or submit proof of its truth. He refused to apologize and promised to lay out in a House speech late today "proof positive" to back up his accusations.

Meantime he told a reporter he was not backing down. "Are you kidding?" he asked, displaying a text of his speech.

"I'm throwing everything I've got at them."

Rep. Samuel L. Devine, R-Ohio, a former special agent of the FBI, got permission to address the House for an hour immediately following Boggs' remarks and was preparing a staunch defense of the agency and its veteran director.

Devine made public a letter from Hoover thanking him for his support and charging that "irresponsible charges of the nature which have been made against us in recent weeks could severely affect the FBI's efficiency" unless the charges were properly answered.

Wilderness areas of the United States are open to the public without restriction, except for fire regulations.

Manson to prison

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Charles Manson, sentenced to die in the gas chamber for the Tate-LaBianca slayings, was whisked out of his jail cell early today and taken to San Quentin Prison. Under strict security measures, he was escorted out a rear door of the Hall of Justice and got into a sheriff's vehicle.

Space site team meets with Pocatello group

POCATELLO (UPI)—A nine-man team from NASA met with Pocatello Chamber of Commerce and city officials Wednesday to discuss the possibility of locating a space shuttle launching facility in southeastern Idaho.

The team, headed by Jerry Gaffney, will present engineering and technical potentialities of sites to a higher committee charged by Congress with selecting a site for the inland space facility.

Another Idaho area being considered is Mountain Home, but Gaffney said information on the air base area is already on file and no visit was necessary.

One of the NASA officials, who declined to be identified, said "political pressure" could be a factor in choosing the location and also indicated White Sands, N. M., the state of Utah and the Cape Kennedy area appeared to be exerting the most pressure.

The Pocatello representatives discussed the availability of utilities, the type of geography, weather conditions, and personnel support capabilities of surrounding communities.

Gaffney, who described the shuttle program as the "next phase of manned space flights after the Apollo program," said a site will be chosen late this summer or early next fall.

Hickel cites need for solid leaders

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Former Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, accepting the Ripon Society's "Man of the Year" award Wednesday night, called for "a whole generation of great men" to lead the world from an era of technology into "the century of the human."

The National Broadcasting Co. declined to sell time for a nationwide radio broadcast of the speech, saying parts of it might be considered controversial and network affiliates might be forced to offer others with opposing views a chance to reply.

Hickel praised the Ripon Society, a liberal Republican group, for being "Republican at its best ... (with) your belief that the Republican party is the natural home for America's men and women who are future-oriented; who plan, dream and build responsibility for the needs of generations to come, with the human in mind."

He said the new breed of leaders must possess a rare mix of the action of the business community and the ideals of the intellectual and must not be beholden to any special interest group.

"It will take a breed of men and women as new as the era itself," he said.

"I hope my Ripon hosts will forgive me when I say that not one party will have the corner of this new breed, and the party with the majority of these people will be riding the wave of the future."

Chief hired

MONTPELIER, (UPI)—Wilson A. Allen, 53, became the third new police chief in five months in Montpelier.

Allen, Sheriff of Weber County, Utah, since 1967 and an eight-year veteran of the Ogden police force, has also been an assistant director of the Motor Vehicle Administration in Utah.

The city council has been running the Montpelier force since March 30, when the last chief was dismissed.

Activist stricken

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Julian Bond, Georgia state legislator and civil rights activist, was admitted to the Albany Medical Center Hospital Wednesday night after complaining of abdominal pains.

A hospital spokesman said Bond, 31, was in satisfactory condition and was being held overnight for further tests and examinations.

His illness had not been determined, the spokesman said, but an attack of appendicitis had been ruled out. Bond was taken to the hospital after canceling a scheduled speech at the State University at Albany.

Raising money easy for Hope

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—It's not difficult to raise almost $2 million in a single evening if you have the knack for it.

Bob Hope has the knack. He produced "An Extravaganza of Stars" this week at a $1,000-a-plate dinner at the Beverly Hilton Hotel and collected $1,865,000 for the Eisenhower Medical Center near Palm Springs, Calif.

Sitting on stage with Hope were Gregory Peck, General Omar Bradley, astronaut Alan Shepard, Lucille Ball, Glen Campbell and a dozen or two civic and national figures, not to mention millionaires.

"I feel flustered because I did so well at the Academy Awards," said Hope, addressing the crowded room.

"I'm the SST of the academy," he said in reference to the less-than-enthusiastic response of the Oscar crowd only a few nights earlier. "I feel like George C. Scott spelled backwards."

"If I'm a friend of Oscar, then General George Custer was a friend of the Indians. I put my hand out for a left-hand turn and four people put money into it."

The comedian introduced astronaut Shepard; "Alan is one of our first men in space if you don't count Timothy Leary."

He also had quips about John Wayne: "Does he sleep with a nightgown?" And Los Angeles Mayor Sam

She causes laughs

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—That giggling English lass who couldn't read the teleprompter at the Oscar awards and mispronounced the names of the contestants was Sarah Miles, a nominee herself for "Ryan's Daughter."

The diminutive actress provided more spontaneous humor than any of the script writers or comedians on the show.

It was Sarah's first trip to California and perhaps her last. "I'm allergic to the sun," she explained. "When I'm exposed to it my face swells up like a balloon."

An aristocratic lady of impeccable Anglo-Saxon heritage, Sarah has the disconcerting habit of blurting out a string of obscenities at unpropitious moments.

Refreshing paws

Movie termed comic opera

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"The Godfather" may become one of the finest movies made or a colossal disaster or fall somewhere in between.

No matter its artistic or boxoffice success, the film version of Mario Puzo's novel is a travesty of casting and a comic opera of gutlessness on the part of the producers.

Italian pressure groups have browbeaten Paramount Studios and producer Al Ruddy into deleting any mention of the terms "Mafia" or "Cosa Nostra."

But it was precisely the Mafia with which the novel dealt.

It's as if Otto Preminger produced "Porgy and Bess" with an all-white cast, or "Custer's Last Stand" replaced the Sioux with a pack of Chinese bandits.

The absurdity is evident to almost all Americans of Italian extraction, including not a few Hollywood actors.

Despite the fact director Francis Ford Coppola can trace his ancestry back to Italy, the cast includes Marlon Brando in the title role. Brando is as Italian as his native Nebraska.

Other top roles have gone to James Caan, Robert Duval and Dianne Keaton—all equally Italian as Brando.

Richard Castellano and Al Pacino have been cast in the film, but so far they are the exceptions. Vic Damone quit, allegedly because he thought parts of the script were biased.

Michale Dante, a handsome young actor whose parents were born in Italy, is uplifted about the picture as are many performers of Italian extraction.

"The studio has a right to cast whoever it wants in a picture," Dante said. "Even Brando as a family don."

TV writer living in Wales

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The season's best television drama, "Poet Game," recently shown on the non-commercial network, was written by Anthony Terpiloff, a former Hollywood writer now living in Wales. The play concerned a hard-drinking, middle-aged Irish poet trying to straighten out his personal life while on an American lecture tour.

Through the "Hollywood Television Theatre," which produced his play, I asked Terpiloff if he would care to send along some recollections of his time in Hollywood. Following is part of the reply he cabled:

"I was old enough to know what I was doing when I came to Hollywood. I had command of the cliché about disillusionment and cynicism. My idea was to make the most of it and be only as cynical and disillusioned as I had to be. Like a soldier going into battle convinced that everyone else can be killed but himself, writers go to Hollywood saying 'I'll take the money and run—God is on my side and also my talent.'"

"I went because I was sent for, paid for and loved every cliché of it. You can't cry rape when you know what's going to happen. My greatest complaint was that it didn't happen often enough. Some good fairy kept me from it. Hollywood's not a harem. Nobody forces you to stay. In fact, it's hard to stay there and make money. A good half of professional writers earn nothing in given years. Another great percentage get by on handouts for story ideas which are given to other writers or abandoned.

"I jumped into Hollywood enthusiastically and got unexpected benefits and unexpected damages. You know, brain, liver, stomach, morale. I found love, if not fame, and fortune. I got out, so no complaints! I wanted to be used. I told my agent to find somebody to use me unmercifully. They said, 'you're too good to be used. I tried hard to prove them wrong and failed utterly but, inexplicably, I wrote many American television entertainments and got on producers' short lists and was invited to previews.'"

"Agents always exhort you to go in with four great stories in the morning. I was given a useful tip by a fellow writer: to tell the story in three words. I learned. And it worked, but the laughs on me because I was then required to create a story from those three stupid words. Producers were looking at me expectantly, waiting for pages, wondering why they weren't getting pages on time. 'Is there no thinking allowed? So, you're a part-time fraud for a start, but you get paid for it.'"

"You're there to sell your services, as it says in the contract. You have to come up with current, acceptable, saleable ideas that sound great in story conferences. In my clever later years I brought a tape recorder to conferences that lasted for hours, then got my wife to type a transcript. I couldn't stand to read it so I'd ask: 'Could you boil this down to a paragraph—or, better yet, one sentence, and then would you read it to me?'"

"In Britain the audience is not deprived. Television companies take a play and; for the most part, produce it as written. Lewis Freedman (producer of the 'Hollywood Television Theatre')... is a creative producer who takes the script, enhances it, refines it but doesn't change its intent. He trusts writers, a unique experience in Hollywood."

"Seven years ago I was asked to come to Hollywood. Last June I was asked to leave but not hidden out on the rail. Given a ticket to London by Freedman, I had the good sense to stay where I began my commercial career 10 years earlier. Hollywood is no trap. Somehow I knew when I could stand it no longer I'd make my way out just as I'd made my way there in the first place. Presumably if you're a genuine playwright, you playwrite wherever you are. Any damage done to talent is not Hollywood but oneself. Done...by neglect, willful, calculated neglect."

Restaurant rising

TWIN FALLS—Construction of a new restaurant, to feature Mexican food, has begun in Twin Falls.

Glen S. Marshall, Twin Falls, real estate agent, said he is building the restaurant to be located along Blue Lakes Boulevard North near Heyburn Avenue. He said two houses have been removed from the site.

The restaurant, known as "Taco Bandido," is one of two to be constructed in Idaho by Taco Bandido Inc. The other one will be built in Idaho Falls.

Marshall said plans call for completion within 60 days and he said a mid-summer opening is planned. Danny Larsen, Pocatello, will soon move to Twin Falls to manage the business. He currently manages a similar restaurant in Pocatello and is president of Taco Bandido, Inc.

Marshall said when completed the restaurant will seat about 75 people, plus drive-in service and 20-car parking lot. Construction has begun by Otis Hall Construction Co., general contractor.

Only Mexican food will be featured, Marshall said. The interior will be in Spanish-Mexican decor.

Gooding chamber hears consultant

GOODING — Marion D. Talbot, Boise, regional representative for the General Business Services, a small business consultant firm, explained the function of his organization Tuesday for Gooding Chamber of Commerce members.

Addressing the membership meeting at the Lincoln Inn, Talbot explained his firm helps small businesses operate more profitably.

It was announced the chamber is sending Mayor Harley Crippen and Valdo Gray to represent them at the South Idaho Chamber of Commerce meeting at CSI April 29. The Gooding representatives will fetterate their approval of the site proposed by the regional airport interim board, near Highways 93 and 80N on Bureau of Land Management land. William Pyle, Gooding Farm Bureau official, asked the chamber to send representatives to an environmental meeting today at Burley. Rev. Gordon Watson, chamber secretary, and Mayor Crippen were to attend.

The chamber will invite State Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft, D-Gooding, to address the group, outlining the activities of the Idaho Public Lands Resource Council, of which he is chairman.

Power plants get new chiefs

TWIN FALLS — Direction of Idaho Power Company's Thousand Springs and Twin Falls generating plants passes soon into the hands of new superintendents — both veterans of 25 years or more with the utility.

O. B. Hutton, now Twin Falls superintendent, will take over at Thousand Springs. He will be succeeded by R. A. Phillips, chief operator of the Lower Salmon plant.

At Thousand Springs, Hutton will replace I. E. Kolar, named to succeed the late John S. Grogan as superintendent of the C. J. Strike development south of Mountain Home.

T. R. Heikes, superintendent of power, said the changes are effective April 30.

Hutton, a veteran of 28 years' service with Idaho Power, began his career as a utility man at the Swan Falls Plant. He later worked as an older and operator at Shoshone Falls, Malad, Swan Falls and Upper Salmon before serving as an operator-assistant dispatcher at the company's Ontario substation in the early 1950's.

Returning to the power plant department in 1956, Hutton was assigned to Thousand Springs as an operator and remained there until being promoted to Twin Falls superintendent late last year.

Phillips, a Pocatello native, has spent his 25-year career in generating plant operations and maintenance, starting as a utility man at the company's Salmon facility.

He rose to operator at Salmon and then joined the operating crew of the Shoshone Falls plant.

Besides directing operation of the two plants, the Thousand Springs and Twin Falls superintendents oversee maintenance of popular recreation facilities.

Conviction upheld

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today upheld Selective Service regulations which prohibit a draftee from making a conscientious objector claim between the time his induction notice is mailed and the date he is ordered for induction.

William Ward Ehlerl in San Francisco who was sentenced to two years in jail for failing to submit to induction.

The court, by a vote of 6 to 3, affirmed the conviction of Ehlerl contended that his draft board should have reopened his case when he made up his mind he was a conscientious objector after receiving his induction notice.

Plays Sorel

POCATELLO — Mary Justesen, Carey, will play the daughter, "Sorel," in Idaho State University's Theatre ISU production of "Hay Fever."

The light comedy by Noel Coward is a fast-moving story of an English Bohemian-artistic type family of the 1920's, according to Daniel W. Alkofer, director.

Production dates are May 5-8, with an 8:15 p.m. curtain time.

Pleads guilty

SHOSHONE — James Toothman, Bellevue, pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk driving Tuesday when he appeared before Magistrate C. M. Wilson.

Judge Wilson postponed sentencing and placed the man on probation for six months. Toothman was one of three men involved in an altercation at the Nebraska Bar. However, he left the site before officers were called by Mrs. Anna Mae Wilson, who was tending the bar.

The other two men, Jerry Stone, Ketchum, and Rodney Larson, Jerome, were arrested by Shoshone Police Chief Jerry Conklin. When Toothman went to the courthouse Monday to see them, officers charged him with drunk driving.

Stone is charged with public drunkenness and Larson with disturbing the peace. They have been released on $75 and $50 bonds, after pleading innocent. They are to appear April 27.

TV star proves financial whiz

LONDON (UPI)—The producer who went into a night club some eight years ago and signed a new act for his television show got more than the entertainer he bargained for. He got, in David Frost, a man who has threaded his way as successfully through the world of finance as he has to his present eminence as a television star.

Still only 32—his birthday was April 7—the British interviewer was recently estimated by a London newspaper to have amassed a fortune with a "realizable value" of $5 million. And this in a nation with income tax rates considered among the highest in the world and with few loopholes.

Anyone can do the same—providing he has the financial ability or the good sense to pick expert advisers and, of course, the huge income basic to the whole idea. Frost is frequently estimated by British sources to be earning $1 million a year now that he has a widely syndicated American show.

This is probably patriotic hyperbole, but his American income alone is realistically estimated at $250,000 or more.

Soon after the success of his first big program, "That Was the Week That Was," on BBC, Frost set up the first of the 12 companies in which he has solid interests ranging down from 99 per cent. These compartmentalize his activities. There is an administrative firm, David Paradine Ltd. (Paradine is his middle name). Under it come David Paradine Productions, David Paradine Films, David Paradine Plays and David Paradine Enterprises.

Then he has an interest in the Noel Gay Theatrical Agency whose head, Richard Armitage, acts as his personal agent. He has a film partnership deal with David Susskind of Talent Associates and others. He has a personal holding of about 5 per cent in London Weekend Television, the British station with the franchise for the rich metropolitan area.

London Weekend has been having its troubles but Frost's $165,000 holding figures to be worth much more than that when it hits its stride. It is likely the fact he was one of the applicants for the franchise, at the height of his British fame, swayed the Independent Television Authority to award it to his group.

This is another instance of using the right asset (in this case, fame) at the right time that has distinguished Frost's career. Ironically, Frost cannot now do a program for London Weekend alone—it cannot afford him. He will only return if he plans to return at all—when he can be seen on all or most of the British network. Frost often works 18 hour days, and 19 hour days are not all that unusual.

"I'm built like an ox," he once said to explain his endurance. He also likes big breakfasts.

The femur or thigh bone is the longest bone in the body. Chile's Easter Island has on it huge statues of unknown origin.

Montgomery County, Md., is the wealthiest county in the United States.

BLACKFOOT (UPI)—A request for a preliminary hearing was made Wednesday during arraignment proceedings for Bobby Beason, 18, Blackfoot, accused of second degree murder. Beason is charged in connection with last Sunday's alleged beating death of two-year-old Matthew Blair, son of Mrs. Rebecca Blair, Blackfoot.

Scribbles new reading aid

NEW YORK (UPI)—A first grader in reading class thinks of a story he wants to write. He scribbles diligently on paper. Not one letter of the alphabet is on the paper. In fact, his scribbles look very much like continuous doodles.

But, then, child stands up to read his story to the class. He doesn't take his eyes from the paper as he reads—with great enthusiasm.

The scribble writing is part of a new reading revolution that already has caught on in more than 500 school systems nationwide for a simple reason: It works better than anything to date according to stringent evaluations undertaken over the last several years.

At the center of this reading hurricane is Dr. Lydia A. Duggins, originator of the method.

Dr. Duggins is professor of education at the University of Bridgeport in Connecticut. Formerly director of the Reading Center at Columbia Teachers College and chairman of the Council on Experimental Research in Reading, she has set down her theory and technique in "Developing Children's Perceptual Skills in Reading" (Mediex Inc.)

Following publication of the book three years ago, the reading revolution gained momentum. Dr. Duggins, who discussed the method in an interview, said she comes from a long line of bookworms, that she long was distressed about reading methods forgetting that joy must be a part of reading.

The new method is based on Dr. Duggins' contention that auditory perception is the key to learning to read. Here is where the reading revolution started because, throughout the history of teaching, educators have believed that basal reader programs—endless repeating of words and sentences—provided the best way to teach reading.

"The trouble is," Dr. Duggins stated, "the child doesn't learn that way. This old idea in education, the idea that you're going to drill it into him, has caused so much of the stereotype and unhappiness.

"Actually, the child enters the classroom with a beautifully developed language, full of joy and ideas; and all the teacher has to do is bring it out of him and associate it with its printed counterpart. He's already spoken vowels. He's already wrapped his tongue around consonants. What you have to do is show the child he already knows these things and help him to make his 'talk' on paper (scribble writing)."

Dr. Duggins believes listening to the sounds is the only proper way to start the teaching of reading.

Historic villa
GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI)—This historic resort city has paid El Mina Shrine $125,000 for Ashton Villa, the first brick building built in Texas.

The 120-year-old building was an emergency hospital in the yellow fever plagues which scourged the Gulf Coast during the turn of the century.

Hansen asks Railpax to explain routing

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, has urged a House committee to seek a detailed response from members of the National Railroad Passenger Corporation explaining the deletion of the only two rail passenger routes serving Idaho.

In a letter to Rep. Harley Staggers, D.W. Va., chairman of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, Hansen asked for additional information behind the discontinuance of Union Pacific train 35 and 36 running between Butte and Salt Lake City and of an Ogden-Pocatello-Boise-Portland line.

Hansen said he felt the decision to eliminate passenger service in seven states tacitly violated the congressional mandate that recommendations by the secretary of transportation must consider the need for rail passenger service between "all regions of the continental United States" and that he look into provisions of "service to more centers of population."

Hansen said the Railpax plan "completely ignores the major population centers of the state of Idaho."

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) The stock market, lower during the morning Thursday, turned mixed as trading rounded the halfway mark. Turnover was fairly heavy.

Although profit taking, which set in Tuesday after a two-week advance, continued to work against the list, analysts noted a general feeling of optimism among investors stemming from belief the economy is now moving in forward gear.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. I am a widower and very much in love with an 18-year-old girl. Altho I am over 60, the difference in our ages doesn't matter, as the girl is very mature for her age and I am in the best of health.

But here is my problem. My son is trying to break us up. He tries to tell me that this girl is too young for me, that she is only after my money. He's tried to turn me against her, but I think he is trying to get her for himself.

First he tried to make her look bad in my eyes, and when that didn't work, he tried to make ME look bad in HER eyes. How can I get this girl to marry me before my son ruins everything between us? I don't want to lose her.—DAD

DEAR DAD: A long engagement would be to your advantage. Don't worry about "losing" the girl. If it's the real thing, it will stand the test of time. And if it's not, you're ahead to find out early.

DEAR ABBY: You will never believe this, but it is the truth: We received an announcement of the marriage of the son of old friends of ours. The last time we saw the lad he was 16. He and his bride live in another state where he is studying law and the bride is working for her Master's degree.

Not knowing what they needed, but wanting to send them something useful, we sent a generous check with our letter of congratulations.

We received no note of thanks from this couple. However, when my canceled checks were returned from the bank I found that the young man had CASHED our check the day he received it, and ON the check he had written, "Thank you."

This was a new one for us?—CINCY READER

DEAR READER: For me, too!

DEAR ABBY: I am a man who has been divorced for a year. Since then I have dated women who have no children and women who have had up to five children.

When my friends hear that I'm dating a woman with children they have been unanimous in their opinions that I should avoid getting involved with a woman who has a ready-made family.

Maybe I'm a weirdo, Abby, but I feel that children are an asset to a woman, not a liability. When I remarry, I hope the woman has a family, and the more the merrier. Children can add strength and purpose to a relationship.

So far I haven't been able to find anyone who agrees with me. How do you feel?—LOVES CHILDREN

DEAR LOVES: With your attitude, you should have a wide selection. In fact, you should have an open field as there is apt to be very little competition. Raising children is expensive in terms of money and emotions. If you can afford them, I say more power to you. I think you're generous, courageous and one in a million. [And if your identity ever becomes known, you'll need police protection.]

DEAR ABBY: This is for "TOO MUCH MOTHER": Abby is right! Take her advice and get transferred to another city if possible. And make the break while your mother is still able to adjust to being without you. If you continue to let yourself be her "whole life," neither of you will ever have a life of your own.

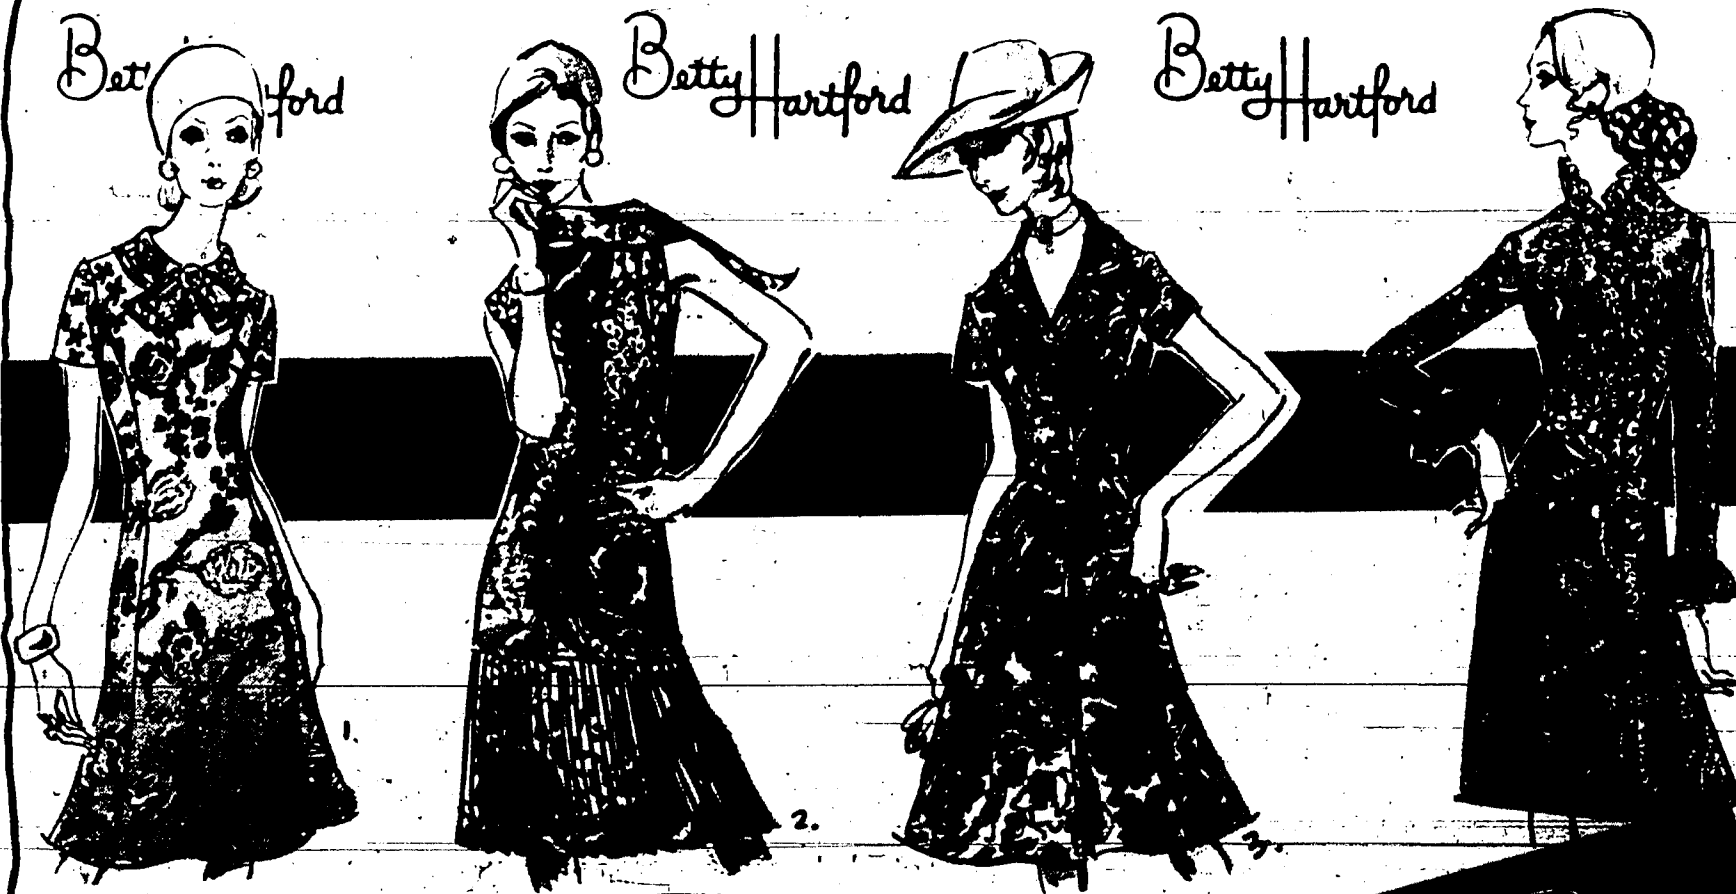

I was an only child. My father died when I was a teenager. My mother made me her whole life. She refused to let me make any close friends, and she made none of her own. She reminded me daily how much she "needed" me. She became more possessive and domineering with each passing year.

My mother is nearly 90 now and she's confined to a wheelchair so I certainly can't leave her now. Besides, I am 66, so where is there for me to go?—"TRAPPED"

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

ANNUAL SUMMER DRESS CARNIVAL Fashion Show SATURDAY, APRIL 24th, 2: P.M.

Eyecatching display featured

Unusual . . .

THE "GROUCH," on left, and "white necktie," on right are details from two pieces of artwork now on display in the College of Southern Idaho's student art display in the Fine Arts Center. The line drawing of a grouchy-looking individual is a detail from a larger drawing—or painting—or whatever. The "necktie" is an unusual plaster composition that defies description but is rather interesting, for all that. To find out who developed these and many other intricate, interesting and involved pieces of art, visit the Fine Arts Center any weekday until May 10.

Writes play

"GOV. DANIELS OF IDAHO," wearing a typical top hat, appears on stage at the conclusion of St. Edward's school play, "The Slowest Gold Rush in the West." Mike Samac, who portrays Gov. Daniels, also wrote the entire drama-musical, presented at 8 p.m. tonight at the school for the final performance.

Final performance scheduled tonight

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — An unusual all-student "operetta" will be presented by students of St. Edward's School for the final time tonight, marking a sad farewell to many years of musical performances and educational efforts.

The drama, "The Slowest Gold Rush in the West," was written and choreographed and the music was written by St. Edward's students, including Mike Samac, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Samac, Twin Falls, who wrote the entire drama from start to finish. The story tells of a most unusual "gold rush" indeed . . . one you have to see to believe.

Mike said he wrote the play almost as a dare, not thinking it would be chosen for the school's annual production. "I think the students chose it over any others themselves," he said in describing his work.

Much of the music was written by two other St. Edward's students, Deborah Thiebert and Rodney Schaffer, and Marie LeClair developed the many rhythmical dances interspersed throughout.

Many of the roles are cast twice, for the two nights of the production, Wednesday night and tonight. This gives more students a chance to act and gives them acting experience.

Mrs. Delores Dwyer, a lay teacher at St. Edward's, is overall director of the show. Mike Samac also takes a minor role in the drama, that of "Governor Daniels of Idaho," who makes a stirring speech at the close, refusing to let the state enter the slave trade.

The drama "stars" several eager "prospectors," including George Billings, Howard Pullman, Brent Powilus and Jim Clark, and their opposites, Jim Miller, Rodney Schaeffer, Bud Woods and Mark Bright, who appear tonight.

Their "women friends" include Marie Wokernien and Melody Lundin, and, in the second cast, Martha Klaas and Kathy Doerr. Both Martha and Kathy also worked with the choreography and dancing instruction.

Others in the cast include David Lang and Steve Kohler.

50th wedding anniversary observed by Buhl couple

BUHL — Mr. and Mrs. James H. Randall celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary with an open house at Lincoln Courts Community Center this week with 200 friends and relatives attending the event.

For the occasion, Mrs. Randall wore an aqua blue dress accented with gold metallic rose design and enhanced with a corsage of gold-colored chrysanthemums.

The reception table was covered with a lace cloth over gold satin. A three-tiered gold and white cake centered the table. The cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Leonard Walcott, featured doves and wedding bells and was topped with the gold numerals, "50". Flanking the cake were gold tapers in crystal holders.

Several arrangements of flowers received by the couple as gifts were used to decorate the room. Arrangements were received from Denver, Oklahoma, Fairfield, Twin Falls and Buhl.

Mrs. Leonard Walcott, Mrs. Leonard Howard and Mrs. George Ensuna cut and served the cake. Pouring punch and coffee were Mrs. Robert Kulik, Mrs. Ruth Foster, Mrs. Frank Kulik and Mrs. Randall Miller, Mountain Home. Mrs. Tom Tverdy and Mrs. Tom Smith were in charge of the guest book and gifts. Others assisting were Mrs. Irving Tverdy, Mrs. John Crawford, Mrs. Gail Wright and Jean Glodowski.

The couple's son, daughter-in-law and granddaughters Mr. and Mervin Randall, Susan and Sherry, Twin Falls, hosted the event.

The couple received calls from Mrs. Rose Van-Vleet of the head office of Trinidad Bean Elevator, Denver, and from the Chester B. Brown warehouse of Nebraska. They also received a telegram from Bill McCormick and employees of Trinidad Bean Elevator of San Francisco.

A special mass and blessing were given by Father Malachy McNeill of the Buhl Catholic Church Friday evening, at the church. At that time he also presented the couple a papal blessing in the form of a signed certificate and picture from the pope in Rome.

Hardesty attends White House conference on youth

FILER — Floyd Hardesty, 24-year-old graduate student, has been selected and is attending the 1971 White House Conference on Youth at the YMCA Conference Center, Estes Park, Colo., April 18 to 22. He is a 1965 graduate of Filer High School.

Hardesty currently is enrolled in post graduate studies at Idaho State University, Pocatello. He is the nominee of Kiwanis International and currently is serving as president of Circle K International men's collegiate service organization with a membership of 15,000.

President Richard Nixon and Vice President Spiro Agnew will attend the Colorado conference of 1,000 delegates between the ages of 14 and 24. There also will be 500 adults.

Hardesty has been assigned to a task force of four adults and eight young people who will work on the issue of legal rights and justice related to youth. They will present recommendations at the conference on the age of majority, the relationship between youth and academic institutions and the administration of justice with respect to youth. Nine other task forces will present their recommendations under the headings of foreign relations, environment, race and minority group relations, drugs, education, the draft, national service and alternatives, poverty, economy and employment and values; ethics and culture.

Members of task forces have been meeting since last summer to discuss the projects and formulate reports. "I am really excited about the conference," Hardesty said. "I am looking forward to speaking to campus organizations and others about the key issues when I return."

As Circle K International president, Hardesty had the opportunity to have an hour's discussion with President Nixon at the White House last month.

Hardesty is studying for a Master of Education Administration degree and plans to teach at the U.S. Air Force Academy next fall. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd E. Hardesty, Caldwell.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Pet Peeve: Too Few Bread Ties in Packet

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am glad to see the column expanding to include Pet Peeves. Mine is concerning plastic sandwich bags which come 80 or 90 to a box and only include 25 ties. I save all my bread ties but never have enough even though we eat lots of bread for we have 12 children. Please, Mr. Manufacturer, more ties with those sandwich bags.—SHIRLEY

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. W. A. might remove the musty-smelling drawers from her dresser, take them outdoors and let the full sunshine fall on them for several hours. When they are taken back indoors, put small bags of chemicals sold for that purpose in them. These bags are sold in most drugstores and are to absorb moisture and keep down musty smells. Moth balls will also do this but many object to their odor.—L. J. M.

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. W. A. would remove the outside wrapper from a bar of scented soap (that well-known deodorant brand would be good), leave just the white inside wrapper around the soap, put it in the musty-smelling drawers and close them. This also works in traveling bags and suitcases, as well as when storing blankets in the summertime. Put soap inside a blanket, then wrap in plastic wrap. No musty odor.—MRS. G. W. R.

DEAR POLLY—Musty drawers will lose their offensive odor if the inside surfaces are given a thin coat of fresh white shellac.—VIETTA

Polly's Problem

—DEAR POLLY—Someone accidentally dropped chewing gum in one of our chairs and my husband sat down in it. Now gum is all over the seat of his dark red, permanently pressed pants. I would like to know how to remove this gum.—IVA

Mixing measure beaten

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate defeated, 51 to 35, today a proposal to require integration of the public schools in big city areas of the North on the same basis as the South.

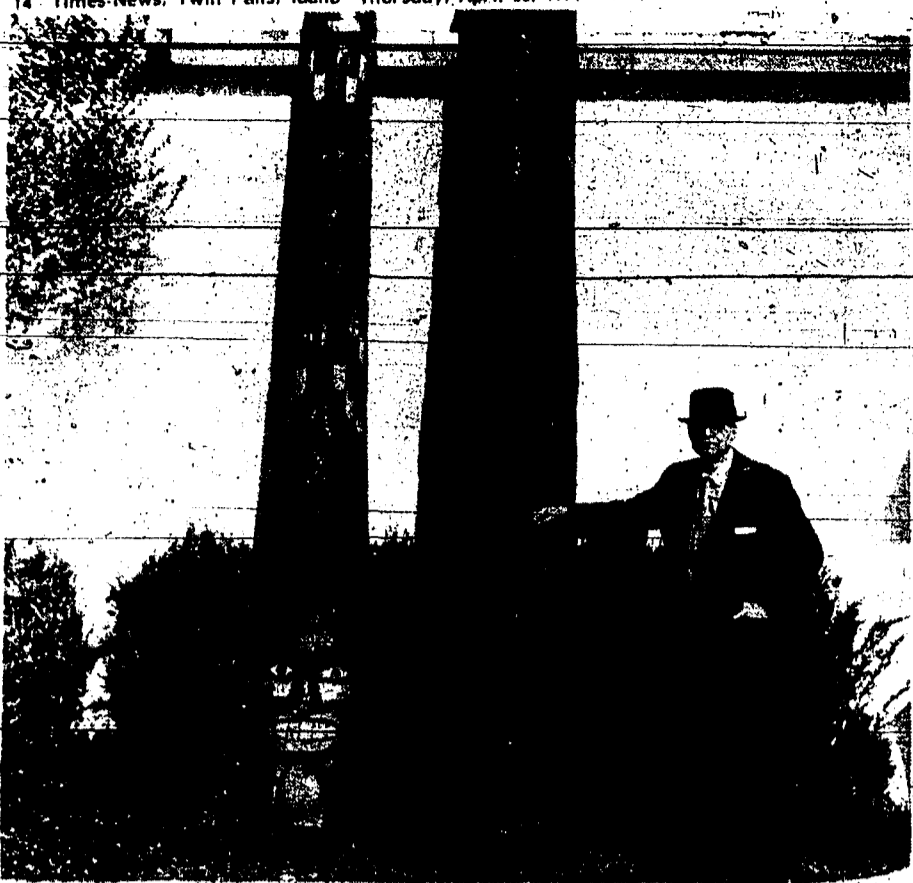

In turning down the proposal by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., Northern Senate liberals ignored charges of hypocrisy and gutlessness.

In final debate, Ribicoff appealed for approval of his plan as vital to elimination of dual school systems in the North, as the Supreme Court has ordered them eliminated in the South.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., contended the Ribicoff plan—stretched over 12 years—would delay remedying Northern segregation.

Dismissing Ribicoff's argument that the North was being hypocritical in forcing desegregation upon the South while tolerating it at home, Javits declared:

"To make us feel that we're the guilty one—that we're persecuting our brethren—is to shut our eyes. We cannot forget that a great national injustice had to be corrected."

Added to displays

NEW ADDITION to Indian displays at the Herrett's Arts and Science Museum in Twin Falls is this Northwestern Indian totem pole. It is now in two sections but will be put back together and restored to the original color and condition, says Norman Herrett, shown here with the pole sections.

Herrett's adds big totem pole

TWIN FALLS — Authentic ancient and recent day Indian exhibits at the Herrett's Arts and Science Center museum in Twin Falls will soon have a major addition.

A totem pole, nearly 30 feet in height has been acquired by Norman Herrett and is currently being researched for restoration. Now in two sections, it will be restored to as near original condition and color as possible and will be mounted in one section at the corner of the museum building on Kimberly Road, Herrett said. It was obtained from Idaho State University where it was first discovered in a warehouse in 1943 and since the museum there never put it to use, Herrett obtained it recently. He said paint on the work of art is probably a later addition and is not typical of the original Indian work. William Holm, University of Washington, well known authority on Northwestern Indian work, has been asked to help research the totem pole for restoring it, Herrett said.

Farming not big polluter

By JERRY HERRMANN
Times-News Writer
BURELY — Idaho Farm Bureau Federation President Dale Rockwood told about 150 persons attending an environmental forum here Wednesday the bureau hopes to present agriculture's side of the pollution question.

He told the group that the agricultural producer has the most influence in the fight to control pollution. The farmer, he said, has the most influence because food is a basic essential of life. Agriculture provides a source of new wealth, jobs, and by creating lakes for use of agriculture and recreationists and by turning the desert into useful land.

"Agriculture is the number one economic industry in Idaho. Agriculture and agribusiness contribute 69 per cent of the state's annual income, he said.

Alcindor sparks Bucks to opening win over Bullets

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Law Alcindor, benched because of fouls for most of the first half, came back to score 18 third quarter points Wednesday night to lead the Milwaukee Bucks to a 98-88 victory over the Baltimore Bullets in the first game on the National Basketball Association final playoffs.

Despite the early absence of Alcindor, who picked up his third foul with 5:20 to play in the first quarter, Milwaukee led most of the way building up leads of up to nine points in the first quarter, eight in the second and 17 in the third as the Bucks lived up to their favored role in the championship series.

The series continues Sunday at Baltimore. Albert defensive work gave the Bucks their first lead early in the game as Baltimore took the ball down court five successive times without getting a shot off and went from a 6-3 lead to a 14-6 deficit. Baltimore, hurting because of the absence of Gus Johnson—who didn't dress because of an injured knee—tried gamely to come back in the fourth period but couldn't get any closer than six points as Milwaukee held a steady lead.

Alcindor got only eight points and one rebound in the nine minutes he played in the first half but finished with 31 points to lead all scorers. Oscar Robertson, who picked up the slack and controlled the game when Alcindor was benched, got 22, and Bob Dandridge finished with 15 for Milwaukee. Earl Monroe got 26, Jack Marin 18 and Wes Unseld 16 for the Bullets.

Palmer favored to cop fourth tourney of champions crown

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI)—An elite field of 35 pro golfers answers the starter's call Thursday in the first round of the 72-hole $165,000 Tournament of Champions with Arnold Palmer installed as the favorite to win this title for the fourth time. Palmer, 41, qualified for the T of C by winning two tournaments—the Bob Hope Desert Classic and the Citrus Open. Only winners of designated PGA tournaments plus the British Open champion are eligible to shoot for the $33,000 first prize on the 7,114-yard La Costa Country Club course. Par is 36-38-72. Defending champion Frank Beard won last year with a 72-hole score of 273, 15 under. He had a seven-shot edge over Gary Player, Tony Jacklin and Billy Casper who were tied for second.

Solons bury Yanks on 18-hit attack

NEW YORK (UPI)—Tom McCraw collected a home run and a triple and Mike Epstein drove in three runs with a triple and a single to pace an 18-hit attack Wednesday as the Washington Senators defeated the New York Yankees, 9-6.

The loss is the Yankees fifth in the last six games. Frank Howard, who collected three hits, singled home the deciding run with two out in the eighth inning and the Senators added two runs off Stan Bahnsen in the ninth on a triple by McCraw, singles by Jim French and Toby Harrah, and a sacrifice by Jerry Janeskí and a sacrifice fly by Del Unser.

This year the rough has been permitted to grow higher—two and a half inches off the ground—and pro Eddie Susalla predicted 284, four under par, would be good enough to win. All the big names of pro golf are here except Casper who is playing host to the King of Morocco at the request of the State Department. Casper spent some time in Morocco last year giving the King golf lessons. The pro golfer was eligible for the T of C but declined so he can escort the King on his current visit to the United States.

Bernie Allen, in a pinch hit role, and Unser also homered for the Senators. Their homers came back-to-back with two out in the sixth and gave the Senators a temporary 6-5 lead. Thé Yankees, however, tied the score 6-6 in the seventh on successive singles by Jake Gibbs, Roy White and Bobby Murcer.

With one out, Don Mencher drew a walk off Eddie Fisher, the fifth Angel pitcher in the 13th inning. Bando then lashed his homer over the left field wall. It was the third baseman's fifth homer of the season and his third in two days.

There are seven newcomers who won their first official PGA tournaments during the past 12 months. They are: Brian "Bud" Allin, Carlyle Sneed, Tommy Aaron, Hugh Royer, Cesar Sanudo, Bill Garrett and Gibby Gilbert. Another three-time winner here, in addition to Palmer, for another crack at the title is Gene Littler who got in by winning the Monsanto Open last Sunday.

The pitching victory went to Ron Klimkowskí, who came into the game in the 10th inning and gave him a 2-0 record. For Fisher it was his first defeat against two victories in relief.

Rudy May worked nine innings for the Angels as the starter and struck out 13 men while allowing only four hits.

Book helps parents

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Each year, about 500,000 boys and girls under the age of 17 run away from home.

Why do they do it? Where do they go? How do they fare? What can worried parents do? Sensible and compassionate answers to these questions are found in a book called "Runaways" by Lillian Ambrosino, published this week by Beacon Press.

Miss Ambrosino's extensive research into the growing runaway problem indicates that many different motives may drive a teen-ager to leave home in search of a new life. Some children flee from alcoholic parents. Others leave homes that have been broken and demoralized by divorce or desertion.

"Ironically, many runaways actually love or respect their parents. Departure signifies disappointment. Parents do not understand, or they are unrealistically harsh in their rules or expectations, or the runaway fears recrimination for poor school grades."

About half of the runaways are girls. They are particularly vulnerable to the machinations of "friendly strangers" who pose as benefactors but actually propose to introduce them to drugs and prostitution.

Fortunately, there are other friendly strangers who respond in kindness to the need of a stray child. "Among the most moving experiences recalled by reconciled runaways," reports Miss Ambrosino, "is the generous nature of some of the poor. For every predatory adult who stalks the innocent, there are countless others who will unhesitatingly offer a complete stranger room, food, money. People who have little sometimes share it most; they can easily empathize with misery."

More and more urban churches are learning that the provision of food, shelter and counseling for runaway kids is a form of Christian service they are eminently equipped to undertake. There also are in most major cities branches of the Travelers Aid Society. "Probably no single agency has done as much" for runaway children as this voluntary service organization, Miss Ambrosino says.

On the whole, she concludes, the most practical thing parents can do is simply wait and hope. As they sweat out the agony of waiting, they may take some comfort from the knowledge that "most first-time runaways do come back home within a week." They usually have learned something worthwhile from their experience. And hopefully, their parents may also have learned something—about the need to listen and care.

Dance said failure

SIoux CITY, Iowa (UPI)—Only about 80 people showed up for Joe Hupp's benefit dance for Lt. William Calley and they didn't dance.

Hupp wound up losing $600. He didn't blame the failure of the dance on its cause, even though a local clergyman he had called the dance "more obscene" than the rock musical "Hair," which was banned when it booked into Sioux City.

"The cause may have held a share of the crowd back," Hupp said, "but I believe over 50 percent are in favor of helping Calley."

The Nebraska blamed the price ($3 per person), the weather (rain) and the night of the week (Tuesday) for the failure.

Gun sales rise

NEW YORK (UPI)—Despite the recent clamor for more control of firearms, a sale of guns is proving to be one of the nation's more recession-proof businesses.

Total sales are expected to be $550 million this year, up 5 percent on the heels of a 5 percent rise in 1970.

Sportsmen and hobbyists will spend nearly all the money. An undercurrent of patriotism is expected to bring in pistol and other sales will go to lawmen. There also is a feeling that some newly manufactured pistols are finding their way into the hands of criminals and militant activists.

Manufacturers think that diversion is tiny. They say the big surge in handgun sales is in fancy target models, too bulky to appeal to the criminal or the terrorist. The sale of cheap pistols, the kind that are just good enough to "get their owner a ticket to jail," is expected to fall again this year as it has for the past decade.

According to James F. Thompson, general manager of Leisure Group in Los Angeles, the sporting gun market is increasingly a luxury-hobbyist market. Leisure Group makes Lyman gunsights, ammunition reloading equipment and replicas of old fashioned black powder muzzle loading rifles and fowling pieces.

Winchester, Remington and large retailers of sporting firearms such as Sears, Roebuck and Montgomery Ward agree.

As proof, Thompson said the sale of cheap shotguns and the rifle of 22 caliber rifle, the "boy's rifle" of the days when farmers and villagers did a lot of meat hunting for rabbits and partridges, are going down at the rate of around 10 percent a year. Sales of the rifle 22s, which used to be quite large, probably will drop to $40 million this year, he said.

But sales of shotguns are expected to be up 7 percent to $135 million, largely the result of trading in old shotguns for "over and under" models and fancier ventilated rib double barrel guns.

Sales of expensive centerfire rifles will be about even with last year's $80 million, industry leaders believe. These are the firearms used by the real game hunters and target competitors.

Sales of replicas of the old Kentucky flintlock rifle or of late 19th century percussion cap muzzle loaders still are small but are expected to hit $20 million a year by 1975 as more gunsmiths tap the market, said Thompson. Some states give the muzzle loader enthusiasts special hunting areas and special seasons as they do for archers.

Suit filed over IRS payments

BOISE (UPI)—A mining executive from Wallace has brought suit in federal court for more than $114,000 he contends he made in excess payments to the Internal Revenue Service.

Henry L. Day said he paid deficiency assessments of $35,500 for 1960 and $81,600 for 1962 on demand by the IRS. He said the IRS returned about $4,500 after he appealed.

spade from dummy. He entered dummy with the king of diamonds and showed his hand to his opponent when East, who had discarded two spades on the hearts, had to let another one go on the last diamond.

Z was very happy about the whole thing. Turning to his old partner Y, who was dummy as usual, he remarked, "Sidney Lenz would really be proud of me for this squeeze. Of course, it really wasn't a squeeze since the queen of spades wasn't guarded. What I did was to get a complete count of the hand. I knew that East's last two cards were a spade and a high club while West was holding on to the queen of spades and a diamond. Hence the queen of spades had to drop wherever it was."

The bidding has been: West North East South Pass 2 Pass 3 Pass 4 Pass 5 N.T. Pass 6 Pass 5 N.T. Pass 6 Pass

You, South, hold: AKQJ54 VKJ32 65 42 A-Bid seven spades. You can count 12 top tricks. At worst there will be a play for 13.

Instead of responding two clubs your partner has jumped to four spades over your one spade. What do you do now?

By Oswald & James Jacoby

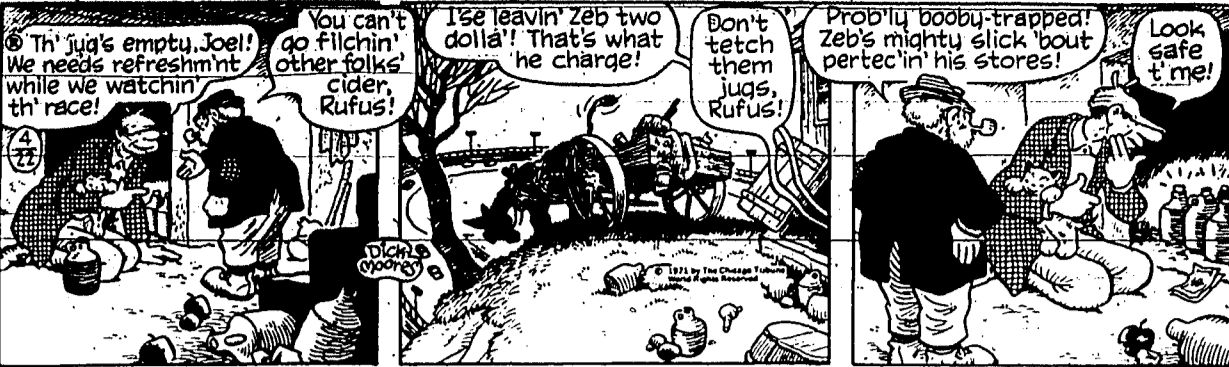

Old man Z looked over the dummy carefully. He soliloquized, "I have played similar hands for Foster, Work and Lenz back in the old days, but contract may have added something new."

Let's see. I have 11 sure tricks and can get my 12th if clubs break or if the spade finesse works. Maybe a squeeze has been added. In any case the right play is to start by a submarine-play in clubs.

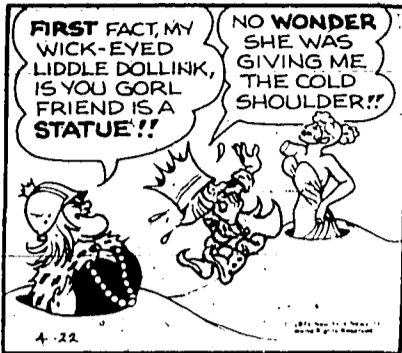

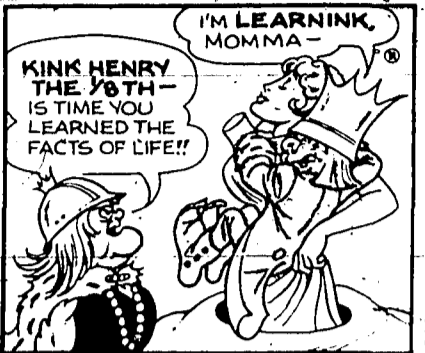

He went up with dummy's ace of diamonds, led a club and ducked in his own hand. West won and played a second diamond. Z won in his hand, cashed the ace and king of clubs and ace of spades. Then he ran off four hearts while discarding a QUICK, WHO'S the patron saint of Puerto Rico? That's right, Saint Patrick. You know he drove the snakes out of Ireland. But legend says he also was responsible for driving the great ants out of Puerto Rico. Snakes and ants. Interesting. Calls to mind an open question: Who's the patron saint of dipsomaniacs?

CHILDREN do commit murders. And frequently. But how often are they premeditated? Police psychiatrists studied that. And turned up a pair of patterns. Most knife killings by youngsters are hysterical, they found, but most gunshot homicides by youths are planned in advance. Guard duty at juvenile reformatories is exceedingly dangerous work, incidentally. Police know that. Few others realize it.

Our C.P. now says Joe Namath will retire after the upcoming season, Flip Wilson will finally cut a hit record, and Tricia Nixon's first child will be a baby.

Laird tells concern over new Red missiles

NEW YORK (UPI)—Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today the Soviet Union had started building a new, extensive ICBM system which "must be of major concern" to the United States.

In view of this, he said, the United States might be forced to take "additional offsetting actions" if the Strategic Arms Limitations Talks (SALT) in Vienna fail to produce an agreement.

In a prepared speech to the 85th annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA), Laird recalled that one year ago he told another meeting of editors that he feared the United States might find itself in a second rate strategic position by the mid-1970s.

"I regret to report today that nothing has happened in the intervening 12 months to lessen that concern," he said. "Quite the opposite is true."

Laird said that in December and January it appeared the Soviet Union was slowing its rapid deployment of intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs) after installing about 400 more than the 1,084 land based ICBMs that the United States has.

He added that in February and March, a new type of missile also had been detected in Russia that raised fears of a new ICBM program.

"More recent evidence confirms the sobering fact that the Soviet Union is involved in a new—and apparently extensive—ICBM construction program," Laird said.

"This new ICBM construction effort coupled with additional momentum in the strategic defensive area—all clearly planned months ago—must be of major concern."

Laird said the Russians also were "rapidly closing the gap" in submarine based missiles, an area where today the United States has had a clear advantage.

"We sincerely hope for convincing progress in SALT," Laird said. "But falling such progress I must tell you today that the renewed Soviet strategic weapons momentum may confront us with the need for additional offsetting U.S. actions."

During a panel discussion on the third day of their meeting, publishers heard pointed criticism that their papers were concentrating on reporting surface events rather than digging for developing trends of which the events were symptomatic.

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's mountain goats, "more curious rugged Salmon River country and closely allied Primitive Area, termed the 'rugged land, still untouched,' is prominently featured in this week's issue of Life Magazine, on the newsstands today.

A 12-page spread of full-color photos depicts the beauties, unseen even by many Idahoans, of the rugged Primitive Area, "gouged out of granite by the rushing Middle Fork of the Salmon River... a great expanse of unspoiled America," says the accompanying text.

"Life still has a primeval order: The mountain lion stalks; the eagle soars; the elk, the bighorn sheep and the mountain goats graze there," says the author-photographer, John Dominis.

The photographic essay features the famed Idaho cougar, the "gamboling"

PARIS (UPI)—Hanoi's chief spokesman in Paris said Wednesday North Vietnam would not discuss the release or exchange of American war prisoners unless President Nixon first announced a firm deadline for full withdrawal of all U.S. forces from South Vietnam.

Nguyen Thanh Le, chief press officer of the Hanoi mission to the Vietnam talks, accused President Nixon at a news conference of trying to make the prisoners of war issue a special negotiating item for political purposes.

Le also charged that Nixon, in his recent public remarks, added new conditions for the American disengagement from Indochina. He especially criticized Nixon's remarks that some U.S. combat forces and the Air Force, would stay in South Vietnam to forestall a Communist takeover.

Le's statement indicated that Hanoi has not been moved from its firm stand on the prisoner issue in spite of the pleas from dozens of American delegations coming to Paris with petitions from throughout the United States pleading for a prompt release of prisoners.
