German aide quits as dollar falters

BOON (UPI)—Finance Minister Alex Moeller resigned today in a dispute over inflation linked in part with the world monetary crisis. As he quit the American dollar sagged again in the first lively trading since money markets reopened Monday.

decision at the start of a special cabinet meeting called to consider tax reform proposals. He told Brandt he was resigning because of "the great difficulties in dealing with the budgetary demands of the various ministries" and the physical strain this imposed.

Government and Central Bank hopes for the beginning of an outflow of the billions of dollars rushed into this country by speculators earlier this month were still unrealized.

BOISE (UPI)—Sen. Len Jordan indicates he will seek another term in the United States Senate next year.

Jet's tab set at $1 billion

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The head of the Boeing Co. said today it might cost up to $1 billion for his firm to restart work on the supersonic transport (SST) program which was given a new lease on life by the House Wednesday.

Senate leery on House-passed aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The supersonic transport (SST), revived in a close vote in the House, faced a more hostile Senate today whose leader said the issue might inspire a filibuster.

vote was close, House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford had to throw in his reserves, including six Republicans who changed their votes at the last minute.

build and test two SST prototypes has been canceled. By a conservative estimate, it would take at least $300 million more to get the first two test planes into the air.

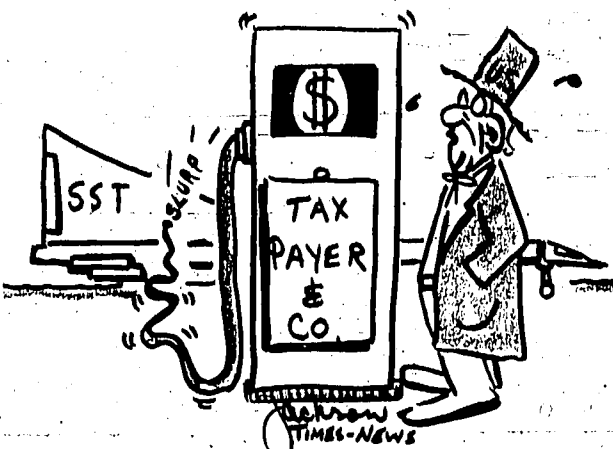

President Nixon urged the Senate to approve $85 million in funds for the 1,800-mile per hour airliner voted Wednesday by the House, which reversed a stand it had taken in March.

In March the House defeated an SST appropriations bill 215 to 204. House members who switched their votes cited as reasons the smaller appropriation this time and the fact that the project would produce jobs.

Idaho Congressmen Orval Hansen and James McClure, both Republicans, joined the majority in endorsing a revival of the supersonic transport plan on Wednesday.

Boeing's chairman, William Allen, told a news conference: "I know it is a shocking figure but in this business you just don't turn it on and off like a spigot."

"Wow—what an appetite!"

Wreck costs said high on '71 cars

WASHINGTON (UPI)—"How did we blow it?" Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., asked Wednesday after learning that new cars are more susceptible to collision damage than ones made before Congress prodded Detroit to build a better bumper.

Haddon said, resulted from higher prices for replacement parts and from "the increased delicateness designed and built into the cars we have tested—a delicateness which has the potential for generating ever larger parts sales."

Panel OKs SS reform

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Ways and Means Committee has approved a $9 billion package of Social Security and welfare reforms after rejecting another across-the-board increase in Social Security benefits for 26 million Americans next year.

The House was expected to pass the bill in June, since it usually rubber-stamps bills from its tax-writing committee. But last year a Social Security-welfare bill died in the Senate.

Arizona doctor HEW post choice

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon today nominated Dr. Merlin K. Duval, Jr., dean of the University of Arizona College of Medicine, as the government's top health officer.

Duval, 48, was chosen to succeed Roger O. Egeberg, 67-year-old former dean of the University of Southern California Medical School.

Egeberg was named a special consultant to the President and a special assistant on health policy to Secretary Elliot L. Richardson of Health, Education and Welfare.

Duval, a native of Montclair, N.J., and a graduate of Cornell University, will develop health programs and guide their implementation, Nixon said. His official title is assistant secretary for health and scientific affairs in HEW.

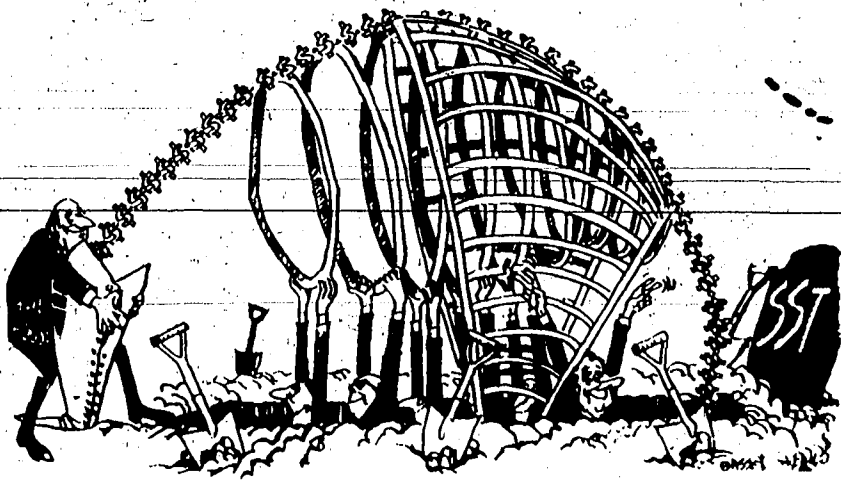

Nixon met with Duval and Richardson today at the White House. Egeberg will now concentrate on the long-term health requirements of the nation, Nixon said.

Prior to going to the University of Arizona in 1964, Duval was assistant director of the University of Oklahoma Medical Center and a professor of surgery at the University of Oklahoma School of Medicine.

Egeberg occasionally displeased White House health planners, who felt he did not show the necessary managerial ability. He had told reporters recently, "I don't want the whole job any more."

The top health post, which pays $38,000, has responsibility for a large federal health domain, including the U.S. Public Health Service and all its agencies—the National Institutes of Health, the Food and Drug Administration, and the Health Services and Mental Health Administration.

Dam effect scored

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho's proposed Lower Teton Dam will produce irreversible damage, according to a federal water pollution official.

Hurlon C. Ray, director of state and federal assistance programs for the Water Quality Office of the Environmental Protection Agency, gave that warning in a letter to Regional Reclamation Director J.T. Nelson of Boise.

Ray said the proposed dam would flood 17 miles of prime wildlife and fish production area, remove an additional 6,000 feet of natural streambed and produce irrigation waters of reduced quality.

"Actually," Ray said, "a hydro-project such as the Teton is probably the most serious form of pollution, that of irreversibly altering the natural features of the landscape by the works of man."

He said the total impact of the project would exceed by far the area inundated by the reservoir.

The Reclamation Bureau has proposed to build the dam on the Teton River east of Rexburg.

Reform package passes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Ways and Means Committee approved Wednesday a $9 billion package of new social security and welfare reforms. But it rejected another universal social security increase next year for 26 million Americans.

The panel finished writing the most comprehensive welfare bill in some three decades that would provide a $2,400 annual income floor under a family of four with no other income.

Although the bill carries $3.3 billion in improved cash benefits to selected groups of social security beneficiaries, the committee rejected on four separate votes proposals for across-the-board benefit increases. The committee also agreed to a plan which would save the states $8 billion over the next five years by picking the federal government off any new welfare costs because of more people going on welfare.

Higher payroll taxes to pay for the social security-benefits in the bill would become effective next year. The maximum tax increase would be $145.20 for someone earning $10,200 or more.

The panel rejected proposals to give all retirees, disabled persons and widows on social security benefit increases across-the-board by either 5, 10, 7, or 5 per cent effective July 1.

Congress last voted a 10 per cent social security benefit increase in March, retroactive to Jan. 1.

To pay for the higher benefit increases, the maximum tax paid each by employees and employers next year will go to $550.80, compared to the maximum $465.80 that will be paid this year.

The committee did this by raising the tax to 5.4 per cent of the first $10,200 of wages effective Jan. 1. The tax this year is 5.2 per cent of the first $7,800 in wages.

The committee has been working on a welfare-social security bill since February and most of the decisions had been approved tentatively earlier. The committee expects the House to act on the bill sometime in June.

The bill would provide $5.5

billion in welfare changes—costs to be borne by the federal government starting July 1, 1972, over and above the $10 billion federal outlay for welfare now.

Of that amount, individuals would get about $2.5 billion and the rest would go toward fiscal relief for the states and for the federal cost of taking over the entire administration of the program, now borne on a federal-state basis.

President Nixon proposed a welfare reform plan similar to the committee bill. The Nixon plan, however, would have put a $1,600 income floor under a family of four, but with another $800 in food stamps. The committee's $2,400 plan eliminates food stamps.

Holdup nets $40

BOISE (UPI)—Two men flashed a .22-caliber pistol Wednesday night and robbed a Circle K store on Overland Road of $40, police reported.

Attendant Leonard Nelson said the robbers entered the store two minutes before closing time and ordered him at gunpoint to remove money from the cash register and hand it to them. He said they then cut a telephone cord in the rear of the store and left.

ABC again will present "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau" specials during the 1971-72 season. There will be eight one-hour programs, four new ones and four repeats.

Crime code contains changes

TWIN FALLS — On Jan. 1, 1972, the new uniform criminal code becomes effective in Idaho, bringing changes in maximum sentencing, revision of felonies and misdemeanors, sex crimes and sanity determinations.

Judge Theron W. Ward of the Fifth Judicial District told Twin Falls Rotary Club members Wednesday the law was adopted by the 41st legislature, Idaho being only the second state in the nation to adopt the new code.

Principal changes, he said, involve sentencing and the maximum sentences for felonies and misdemeanors. Under the new code, first degree murder, the only crime for which the death sentence can now be ordered, the judge may make the decision as to death or a life sentence. But if he is unable to reach a decision, he may have a new jury called to consider this matter. Under present Idaho law, the judge said, the jury which reaches a verdict will also recommend a life term or the death sentence.

The new code establishes guidelines for first, second and third degree felonies with life in prison the maximum sentence for first degree felonies, aside from murder, and 15 years for second degree felonies. Third degree felonies can bring a maximum of seven years in prison.

Sanity rulings are no longer based safely on the individual's ability to determine right from wrong, Judge Ward said, but instead the new test involves determining if a mental illness or defect exists which would prevent the individual from knowing the extent of wrong doing of his acts.

The law provides various processes of hearings and psychiatric testing if the matter is in question and, if the individual is found to be mentally deficient to constitute insanity, states he must immediately be acquitted of the crime and turned over to the Idaho Department of Health for confinement and evaluation.

He can be returned to society after five years if the court is satisfied he has improved sufficiently as not to constitute a hazard to society.

Judge Ward told Rotarians adultery will no longer be a crime in Idaho after the first of the year. He said the new code also provides forcible rape is a first degree felony if the girl is under 12 years of age.

Under present law, the age limitation is 18 years. First degree felony would cover rape where the victim is injured, such as being knocked unconscious. Perversion by two consenting adults is not a crime under the new code, unless drugs, intoxication or mental incapability is involved, and other standards for sex offenses have been revised, the judge explained.

Base ready for F-111's

MOUNTAIN HOME AFB (UPI) — The Mountain Home Air Force base is ready to welcome the delivery of its new F-111 multipurpose fighter aircraft this fall.

The plane, built by General Dynamics, was billed as the "best aircraft we have for long-range, high-speed, all-weather, low level bombing" by Maj. Robert V. Baird.

Baird's remarks on the new fighter came during the Mountain Home Air Force Base press day Wednesday.

Some 77 of the F-111's are to be delivered to the air base beginning next fall to become one of the four tactical reconnaissance wings in the new tactical air command organization of F-111 aircraft.

The new fighters, built at a cost of $14 million each, will replace the RF-4C fighters which will be transferred to Shaw AFB, South Carolina.

The first personnel squadron to man the F-111's is expected to be activated in July. Two other units will assemble before the anticipated delivery of the rest of the aircraft in the summer of 1972.

The Mountain Home complement will be known as the 347th wing.

The F-111 can carry every tactical weapon in the Air Force arsenal and twice the weapon load of previous 100-series fighter planes.

It features barrel-sweep wings to decrease the distance required for takeoff and the wings can be adjusted to present less of a target for enemy radar.

More than 120 hours of training are necessary to prepare pilots to fly the new aircraft. The six-month course requires 78 training flights involving exercises in air-to-air combat, night flying exercises and air refueling practice.

The F-111 has a speed of Mach 2.5 at altitude, a maximum range of more than 3,000 miles with internal fueling and a ceiling of 60,000 feet.

Man held for drugs

TWIN FALLS — A man identified as William Trostle, 36, no known address, was in custody in Twin Falls Thursday, charged with possession of marijuana.

City police reported the man was found at Sunset Memorial Park Wednesday night and brought to the police station since he said he had no money and no place to sleep. Officers said a quantity of marijuana was found in his possession at the police station.

Theft told

TWIN FALLS — Howard Pierce, Boise, told Twin Falls City police Wednesday afternoon someone had entered his motel room and removed a wallet and suit of clothes.

City police said no forced entry was indicated at the Apollo Motel on Addison Avenue West. Pierce said his wallet valued at $10 contained $65 in cash and the missing suit was valued at about $150. Investigation was continuing today.

Sight aided

T.F. man describes cornea transplant

TWIN FALLS — An example of the benefits of the Lions Club sponsored eyesight conservation program was graphically illustrated Wednesday during the Lions Club meeting in an address from Don Bottcher.

Bottcher, the first Twin Falls resident to undergo a cornea transplant with help from the Lions Oregon-Idaho Sight Conservation Foundation Inc., told of his transplant operation on Easter Sunday in Boise.

He said both eyes were damaged by keratoconus, a disease in which the cornea expands and protrudes, gradually causing total blindness.

Bottcher said he had lost complete sight from one eye at the time of the operation and had been waiting for an eye to be made available from a donor for some time. He was called by his doctor on a Saturday night and advised to be ready for surgery in Boise the following morning.

Bottcher said two eyes are needed before a doctor will undertake an operation because of the human error element should one cornea be damaged during the transplant. Bottcher's transplant surgery was performed by Dr. Ron Ellsworth, a 1949 graduate of the local high school now residing in Boise.

He told Lions Club members the chance of rejection of a cornea transplant is only slight because there are no blood vessels involved. His doctor told him to count on a 90 to 95 per cent chance of success in the transplant surgery.

The cornea will retain life for transplant purposes only 72 hours after the eye is taken from the donor, Bottcher said, but other parts of the eye can be preserved for long periods of time and when the cornea is removed the remaining tissues and parts are held in reserve for other needs such as an injury in which repairs might be needed.

Don Zuck, former Lions district governor under whose administration the foundation was established in the local district, encouraged club members to donate their eyes to be given on their death to save the sight of someone else.

He said an eye bank is maintained through Lions Club efforts to encourage donors to leave their eyes by calling on club members in their communities.

Zuck said airlines will fly the eyes to any community where they can be used and hospitals, law enforcement officers and amateur radio operators also support the program to provide removal, transportation and communication. The donated eyes require special handling, he said, and Lions Clubs throughout the nation assist in providing an eye bank.

Bottcher told club members he could see from his eye one day following surgery but stitches around the cornea are still in the eye and he wears a perforated patch for protection.

As early as next year, he said, he hopes for a second transplant to save the sight of his other eye, also damaged by keratoconus but to a much lesser degree.

Finn hits shortage of funds

(Continued from P. 1) Thus, a district levying the maximum of 30 mills must seek voter approval for any additional levy. "This throws the burden, unfortunately, to the property taxpayer," Finn added.

Finn claims the IEA is the only organized voice for the one-fourth of all Idaho citizens who have no representation in the legislature and no voice in state affairs — the school children of the state. "This is what the game is all about," he said.

"When the legislators think cows, trees and buildings are more important than people, then it's time we had a change of legislators."

Though "some have talked of the possibility of the NEA coming in to investigate the state's finances," Finn said, "This will not happen this time. The NEA did check into the state fairly recently and they won't do so again." In short, "We're just not getting enough action from the legislators. They had this bill and they dropped it, when they could have done something worthwhile."

Prospectors

NEW YORK (UPI)—Marine surveying to find offshore oil deposits has taken a new twist. Seismic Computing Corp. in Houston, Tex., has placed in service a "Piggy-Back" combination that mates a 165-foot-long mother ship with a 53-foot-barge that can conduct seismic surveying in close-to-shore waters only two feet deep.

On arriving near shallow water the self-propelled barge is launched by winches to begin surveying while the larger ship works in deeper water. A computer aboard the mother vessel checks "Baby's" location.

New charge nets morals case plea

TWIN FALLS — A preliminary hearing for a Twin Falls man charged with lewd and lascivious conduct with a child under 16 years of age ended abruptly Wednesday afternoon when the charge was reduced on motion of Leon Smith, prosecuting attorney. Smith moved that two felony counts of lewd and lascivious conduct be reduced to the misdemeanor charge of indecent exposure and obscenity. The defendant, Norman Glenn Rutherford, 27, who was arrested by Twin Falls Police about two weeks ago, entered a plea of guilty to the lesser offense.

Judge Daniel Meehl, who presided at the proceedings in Magistrate Court, sentenced Rutherford to six months in the county jail, with the stipulation that he spend some time in involuntary custody receiving treatment at State Hospital South. The judge also ordered that any time which Rutherford spends at the hospital be applied toward the six month sentence and that if authorities at the hospital wish that he remain there for longer than six months, that he do so.

Dollar Difficulty

Complexities of the international monetary system are such that only a few experts understand it. And they are not always right in gauging its movements.

The surge to turn dollars into German marks, French francs or Spanish pesetas differs from those in the past in that it was widely predicted. The Nixon administration chose to stand pat in the belief that the storm would be brief.

Any attempt to come to the dollar's rescue by West Germany, by temporarily floating its mark or otherwise, could generate inflationary pressures within the country and make its products less competitive in international markets.

This expedient worked in the 1969 monetary crisis, however. Whether it could work again depends on the extent of the monetary imbalance that touched off the current flight from the dollar. There is widening evidence that the difficulty runs much deeper than a speculative run for quick profit.

Another expedient would be for the U.S. Treasury to borrow Eurodollars at a higher interest rate than now prevails. This would drain off some of the surplus glutting international channels.

A durable solution will require concerted effort by the United States and European nations that trade with it in order to strike a new balance that accommodates economic changes which have taken place since 1969. The present system proved its worth through a half dozen crises, but only to the extent to which its participants cooperated.

Many experts contend the present imbalance is not so great that the nations of western Europe wouldn't stand to gain much more by supporting the dollar than by abandoning it out of temporary self-interest. Only gold is a more substantial substitute, and it has been largely abandoned in international trade.

And besides, there's not enough to go around.

No Count

In all the flurry of activity over how the European currencies can cope with the influx of American dollars, it is interesting to note that the Russian ruble doesn't figure at all. That is because the ruble, pegged by the Kremlin at a value far higher than its true worth, is not convertible into other currencies on world exchanges.

The ruble is an internal script. Which means it is worth what the Kremlin says it is, but only when it comes to charging outlandish exchange rates to visitors to the Soviet Union.

When dealing with the rest of the world, the Soviet Union pays in recognizable currencies like anyone else.

Subject Gold

France's proposal to its European Common Market partners that the price of gold be increased from its longtime price of $35 an ounce may have been unexpected, but it should not have come as a surprise.

Gold has been pegged at the present level for more than three decades, and in recent years has been permitted to reach higher prices on free gold exchanges. The heavy influx of United States dollars into European central banks also concerns the French and others who see a higher gold price as one way of relieving the inflationary impact of the dollar influx.

Dial-A-Plane

Looking into the future? Think things will never change? Don't bet on it!

Here's one of the latest ideas. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration hopes to find a way to provide an effective air transportation system for travelers in smaller cities and less densely populated areas.

One concept to come from the office of advanced research and technology of the NASA is a "dial-a-plane" system which could work somewhat as an air charter taxi operation and somewhat as a scheduled air shuttle, with the fare and service being somewhere between the two.

With the aid of computerized routing, the "dial-a-plane" system would accept incoming telephone requests and seek out the best aircraft itinerary to minimize trip lengths and passenger waiting.

Beyond the route patterns of the large airlines and the regional air carriers lie thousands of small communities who are trying to obtain or preserve some form of air service. Because of the economics associated with aircraft operated in low-density markets, however, most airlines tend to discard the smaller low-density, short-length routes in favor of the higher density, longer length routes over which their medium sized jets can operate efficiently and profitably.

The "dial-a-plane" concept envisions providing small, short-haul airlines and air taxi commuter operators with a profitable system and passengers with an effective way to connect with and use the long-distance air system.

So someday in the future you folks in small towns might just step to the phone and dial yourself a plane — for a pickup at a small field near you for the jump to the big airfield in the big cities. And with the developing STOL planes — short takeoff and short landing concept — smaller fields at small towns just might work. At least the NASA is giving it a whirl.

ANOTHER SEARCH

Dear Mr. Spectator: I am working on a history of the Kessler family and would like to contact anyone who knew James and Emily Kessler, who lived in Twin Falls 40 or 50 years ago. He was the son of David Kessler, who was living in Moscow, Idaho, in 1920. James Kessler was born in 1870 and had two children, James, Jr., and Dorothy. I believe she was a school teacher.

If any of your readers know anyone from this Kessler family I would appreciate their writing me. Thanks, Morris S. Kessler, 505 Park Haven Court, Champaign, Illinois.

About That Un-Tidy Camp

WASHINGTON — Democratic strategists led by National Chairman Larry O'Brien are pleading daily with the party's potential Presidential candidates to avoid any actions or utterances that seem to place them in the same untidy camp as the more extreme anti-war, anti-establishment demonstrators. In fact, the shrewd and enormously competent O'Brien has threatened to quit unless the Muskies, the Humphreys, the Kennedys, the Bayha, the McGoverns and the Hugheses make it plain they have nothing in common with the trashing extremists. O'Brien will not go along with a Democratic nominee next year who gives the appearance of taking a casual approach to law and order, thus leaving himself wide open to Republican charges of leftism. O'Brien and other nuts-and-bolts people within the National Committee are convinced the recent anti-war, anti-everything demonstrations have given the Democrats the issue they will need in 1972. They sum it up in the charge that Richard Nixon's personal and political unpopularity is the direct cause of the demonstrations, and the argument that as long as Nixon is in the White House the country will be dangerously divided. This is the same platform both Democratic liberals and Richard Nixon used against Lyndon Johnson. Like Nixon, Democratic strategists want to present their nominee as the candidate who can "bring us together" and by doing so still the nation's unrest. The O'Briens believe there will be more demonstrations this summer and next year. As was the case with Johnson, they believe the voters will tend to blame the man in charge, Richard Nixon. But because a majority of the electorate is opposed to such demonstrations, the O'Briens want their candidates to stay aloof from the masses. Or, as one party technician put it: "The perfect Democratic candidate would be one who, in effect, called down the plague on both houses—the violent disrupters and the Republican administration—while pledging himself to a policy of reconciliation." He added, pragmatically, "There aren't enough votes in the drawing rooms of Georgetown and Park Avenue liberals and in the Chicago communes to elect a dog catcher."

Nixon himself might agree that this approach would cause him considerable trouble. His public and private utterances indicate an acknowledgment that he is, today, the target of considerable criticism for his Vietnam policy. But he is looking ahead to next year, when he insists his position will be vindicated, when events will show that the North Vietnamese enemy bear sole responsibility for whatever residual U.S. force remains in Indochina. Nevertheless, as the man in charge the President pursues his policies at his peril. The mother in Dubuque might be furious at her son's participation in these messy demonstrations, but she is just as furious as the cop who busts that son's head. More to the political point, she tends to demand an end to a national situation that has caused her boy to take to the streets. What she wants is peace of mind, and the devil take Vietnam, Rennie Davis and the people running the show in Washington.

That is why Larry O'Brien and his aides are energetically resisting the inclination of Democratic candidates to turn to the left. They are convinced that Hubert Humphrey lost by whisker to Richard Nixon in 1968 because he bore, unfairly, the label of a candidate who was soft on crime, riots and the narcotics problem. This time, they want a candidate whose credentials as a square with compassion for ordinary people are credible.

Nixon might ponder all this with profit. So far he has used toughness as a weapon to prevent the paralysis of Washington as a machine of government. He had no alternative but to crack down. Now he must get busy burnishing his image as a President who cares even about a crazy, belligerent, doped-up kid with a busted head.

Sigmund Freud

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It is not only the political, military and business establishment that are being attacked these days. No idols are sacred, it seems. This reporter was at recent discussions among psychiatrists in which Sigmund Freud, the "father" of psychoanalysis, came in for an unusually thorough drubbing. Now it is not strange for one body of modern psychiatrists to disagree with Freud's theories. But this was more.

It was suggested that some of the basic techniques and theories of psychiatry itself had been seriously and unhappily warped by Freud's own deep personality problems which he had foisted onto this branch of medicine.

And that subconsciously he had brought in certain invalid concepts because of his own femininity, his unduly great emotional linkage with his mother, his lack of a strong male image (father), his strong personal feelings of guilt, self-doubts, indecision and passivity.

Freud, it was said, was so mixed up that at one period in his life, after falling in love at a distance, he renounced the opposite sex for 10 years.

Throughout his life, it was said, Freud had a passion for masculine women. He picked a strong-willed woman for a mate and, when differences existed between them, she regularly stood up to him and "in all major issues she proved to be the stronger."

He was plagued by fears of an early end to his life.

As a young boy he had fantasies of wielding power over men.

He wished desperately to remain attached to his mother, but at the same time he feared her, though he was her favorite.

It was suggested that it was Freud's own indecisiveness that caused him to promulgate a method of psychoanalysis which sometimes goes on interminably with no end in sight.

Freud's own indecisiveness that caused him to promulgate a method of psychoanalysis which sometimes goes on interminably with no end in sight. It was argued that his particular neuroses as noted above led to these Freudian precepts — the death instinct, biological bisexuality, that women are incomprehensible, that sadistic drive motivates physicians, that one cannot deal with the relatives of mental patients. In the vernacular, Freud was almost literally described as a crazy mixed-up kid who injected his own neuroses into the warp and wool of psychoanalysis and psychiatry. As one psychiatrist put it: "It seems likely that had Freud been born into a different family constellation and had not remained so tied to his mother, psychoanalytic theory and practice of today might be considerably different and, I suggest, further advanced."

PAUL HARVEY

More Cities

Now it's Birmingham, Ala., a Southern city, that's threatening to suffocate its citizens in the name of "progress."

Sen. Ed Muskie is not a Southern favorite, but he does have a concern for ecology which prelates that of most of his colleagues. And he has been stirring Dixie with a warning that Southern cities must learn from the experience of decaying cities of the North, and avoid all forms or urban blight now.

In recent years you and I have watched the economic renaissance of our own nation's underdeveloped areas. We shared the excitement of the new gold rush to the South, the Southwest, the Northwest.

Now some of those cities have prospered past the point of what's good for them. They are taking a second look at the growth syndrome and its secondary effects.

Several states are backing off on their self-promotion efforts. Oregon's governor is asking outsiders please to stay out.

State-aided Arizona Highways magazine, which has attracted millions to that state, may not be perpetuated. Phoenix and Tucson are too smoky already.

States which heretofore offered fat tax incentives to attract any industry have become highly selective.

Federal government now gives big cities until 1975 to reduce pollution to acceptable standards, however costly and whatever changes are required. Big city industries will be shopping for relocation in places of less pollution so that they can get away with more.

But the hinterlands are increasingly alert to the potential hazards. I know few places where a dirty industry is welcome any more.

And if the Clean Air Act of 1970 succeeds in reducing industrial pollution, there remain other negative side effects of bigness.

Historically, social problems have been most amicably resolved in smaller communities. Mostly it is in New York and Newark, Pittsburgh and Detroit, Chicago and Washington, D.C. where congestion results in frustration and frustration breeds confrontation.

Then there is the most frequently mentioned justification for growth and economic increase: The one most-used excuse for small towns to grow big has been "to increase the opportunity for our young people."

They've insisted that "if our town fails to provide economic opportunity, our young people will move away and our town will stagnate, atrophy and decline."

Historically that has been so; not any more.

The New Generation is turning around. Today's young people have discovered objectives more worthy than the sterile economic goals of their fathers. They have discovered that the good life exacts a high price in the asphalt jungle, that the bright lights have lost their luster, that the bluebird of happiness is where every philosopher before and since Voltaire finally rediscovered it — right in their own backyards.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Burning Feet

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My mother is 79 and the bottoms of her feet and toes burn and hurt her so bad she can hardly wear shoes. She sits a lot with her feet in cold water. She has used so many things, but nothing seems to help. Can you help or give some reason for this? — Mrs. W. H. E.

Reasons? Yes. Help? Probably yes. But don't expect that there's something you can rub on the feet to overcome this trouble instantly. You'd be fooling yourself. In fact, there isn't anything to rub on the feet that's likely to help much at all.

Your mother is 79. By that age, faulty circulation is common, and burning feet is one of the consequences — either from hardening of the arteries or from varicose veins or both.

But there are other causes, too. Nutritional deficiencies (quite common in older people), especially lack of the B vitamins and calcium; weak arches; arthritis of the joints of the feet; diabetic neuritis and other causes less common that that.

So here are the things, not necessarily in order of importance, since the cause isn't the same for everyone, that will help:

It's always wise to have the feet checked by your doctor or a podiatrist, and get arch supports if they are necessary.

For diet, a supplement of B-complex vitamins and calcium (more milk to supply calcium). You can't expect this to help in a hurry, but the gradual benefit can be blessed relief.

Avoid circular garters, or rolling-and-twisting hose at the top — keep them up. The snugness can interfere with circulation, and circulation is usually impaired in these cases.

Support hose (if there are varicose veins) will help. And your doctor may give medication to promote better circulation in the legs and feet. Exercise is one of the most useful methods of improving circulation. Walking makes all the muscles of feet and legs do some work, and that alone improves circulation.

Special exercises are very good. Curling the toes over the edge of a book, or Burger's exercises, lying flat on the back and alternately raising and lowering each leg for a minute or two, ten times each, may help.

Putting the feet in cold water may seem to help temporarily, but it doesn't do as much real good as these other, slower methods.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have spent a great deal of time at sea, being a marine scientist, and I have been seasick many times despite taking motion sickness pills according to instructions on the box — these usually recommend taking one pill half hour or an hour before sailing.

I finally started taking the pills five or six hours before sailing, so they would have more time to work, and have had almost no problems since. — F. E. L.

Using according to the directions suits most folks, but I suspect there will be readers who may, like you, benefit by giving the pills a little more time to work.

Are you having a gall bladder problem? To find out how the gall bladder works and what types of trouble to look for send for Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "You and Your Gall Bladder."

Write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for a copy of the booklet, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover the cost of printing and handling.

British vote tests Heath

LONDON (UPI)—Britons voted today in local government elections that provided the first major popularity test for Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservative party administration since it won power last June.

With living costs still soaring and more than 800,000 jobless, British political commentators predicted a sharp swing against the Conservatives and gains for the opposition Labor party.

Voting was for city, town and borough councils throughout England and Wales. Voting in Scotland took place last week.

Nearly 35 million registered voters were entitled to cast ballots, including 5,488,000 in London. But the voting turnout in city and local elections usually is less than one half of the 70 per cent who normally vote in parliamentary general elections.

However, even in local elections Britons tend to vote along straight party lines. Consequently, the results were expected to indicate how the electorate feels on such issues as unemployment, high living costs, housing, schools and the environment.

Recent "straw" opinions polls have given the Labor Party leads of 3 to 6 per cent over the Conservatives and political experts predicted it would win back up to 1,000 or even more of the 1,600 council seats it lost in 1968.

In last week's voting in Scotland the Labor Party claimed net gains of 113 council seats, although these were largely at the expense of the Scottish Nationalist Party.

In England and Wales voting began Monday and will continue all week in small towns. Voters in London and most other big cities cast their ballots today.

Precincts separated

BOISE (UPI) — Three precincts in legislative district seven are not contiguous to the rest of the district, Director Myran Schlechte of the legislative council said Wednesday.

Schlechte said the council discovered the error — made in the bill passed at the special session of the 41st legislature to reapportion itself — in drawing a map of the reapportionment plan.

He said one precinct in district eight separates the three precincts district seven from the rest of district seven.

Under the reapportionment plan — which soon is expected to be tested in the courts — district seven is comprised of part of Latah County, part of Nez Perce County and all of Clearwater County.

Courts in the past have ruled that legislative districts must contain contiguous precincts. However, Schlechte said that because there is another session of the legislature prior to the next general election he does not believe the error is necessarily fatal.

"If we were coming up for election this year I'd say probably so," Schlechte said.

However, he said the legislature at its second regular session next January can correct the error by a "simple amendment to the bill."

Meantime, Sen. H. Dean Summers, R-Boise, said he still intends to go ahead with a lawsuit to test the reapportionment plan. He has contended the plan violates the one man, one vote concept on grounds the deviation in population among some of the districts is too great.

Summers was uncertain Wednesday just how soon he would file the suit. He said he and his attorney still were awaiting some maps and some final figures on reapportionment from the legislative council.

The council earlier supplied Summers with reapportionment information but that was before the map showing the error was drawn, Schlechte said.

Freight increase opposed

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has asked shippers to help him battle a newly announced 12 per cent interstate freight rate increase proposal of railroads serving Idaho.

Andrus told the Idaho Statesman in an interview he has asked the Public Utilities Commission to gather more data on a proposal to reduce those rates to reflect any savings made by elimination of passenger service to the state.

The 12 per cent rate increase request was received by the PUC last Friday but Andrus said he just learned of it Wednesday. The request until now has not been made public.

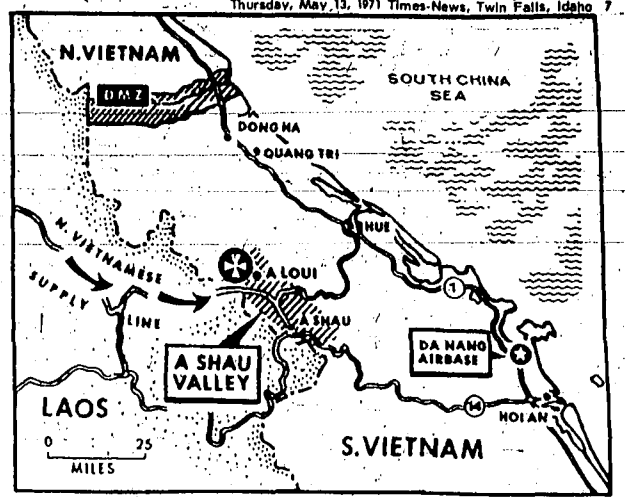

In March the Interstate Commerce Commission gave all American railroads a 12 per cent interstate increase.

Rites set

BOISE (UPI) — Admission ceremonies will be held in the Supreme Court Friday morning for candidates who successfully passed the recent bar examination.

Ceremonies, to be followed by a reception in the justices' lounge, will begin at 11 a.m. in the courtroom.

Plant razed

COMMUNIST armament plant on edge of A Shau Valley, marked by cross, was destroyed by South Vietnamese troops today. Military spokesmen said the plant was found along newly found supply trail and had capacity to support regiment. Site is 375 miles northeast of Saigon. (UPI)

U.S. boats harassed

BOSTON (UPI) — Soviet fishing vessels apparently are deliberately harassing American lobster boats in waters off New England.

The latest and most dramatic example came Wednesday when the Willy Fox, a lobster boat out of New Bedford, Mass., reported that a fleet of Soviet fishing vessels had steamed "in formation" across its lines and confiscated much of its equipment. The incident took place about 85 miles south of Nantucket Island.

It was the second such incident involving the Willy Fox in 24 hours. There have been similar incidents within the past week and about 10 since April 1.

"Russian harassment of our fishing vessels has increased tenfold over a year ago," said Joseph S. Gaziano, president of Prelude Corp., owner of the Willy Fox and the Pat-San-Marle—two of about 60 U.S. lobster boats that fish in international waters off the New England coast. Most lobster fishing is done within U.S. territorial waters.

Officials of the 1st Coast Guard District in Boston confirm they have in recent months received increased reports of American lobster boats being harassed by fishing vessels from other nations, especially the Soviet Union.

Trains collide

WRECKAGE is strewn along tracks of Burlington Northern railroad at site where two freight trains collided early Wednesday, killing four men. One of wrecked engines is at center. Location is 10 miles north of Great Falls, Mont. One conductor said his crew was not told there was northbound train on same line. (UPI)

Troop cut sidetracks Senate draft debate

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate, which has only seven weeks to act before President Nixon's authority to continue the draft expires, now is sidetracked for at least one week by a dispute over whether U.S. troop strength in Europe should be cut in half.

The troop reduction demand, backed by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, was postponed from consideration until Wednesday after Nixon administration backers decided they needed more time to drum up opposition to the proposal.

The White House attacked Mansfield's demand Wednesday, saying it was "emphatically opposed" to the idea because it would "destroy the U.S. bargaining position in any future negotiations" with the Soviet Union.

Mansfield's proposal is in the form of an amendment to legislation designed to keep the draft alive two years beyond its June 30 expiration date.

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, who has pledged to lead a filibuster against the draft extension, greeted the one-week postponement with glee.

Mansfield's amendment—the first to be voted on—would force withdrawal of 150,000 troops from Europe by Dec. 31.

Task force panels set

BOISE (UPI) — Byron Johnson, Boise, chairman of the 1972 Public School Legislative Task Force, named members of five subcommittees Wednesday.

Johnson said the task force, which agreed Tuesday its top priorities would be school district organization and funding, would submit its recommendations to the State Board of Education for action in the next session of the legislature.

Subcommittees and chairmen include kindergarten, Mrs. Jan Koch, Boise; vocational education, Calvin Osborn, Boise, chairman; finance, Jerry Evans, Caldwell; school district organization, Robert L. Montgomery, Pocatello; and accountability, Mrs. Louise Jones, New Meadows.

Hearings scheduled

BOISE (UPI) — A legislative interim committee appointed to study the school aid distribution formula and one appointed to look into automobile liability insurance meet in Boise June 17.

Director Myran Schlechte of the legislative council said a full council membership meeting is planned for Friday, June 18.

Other for the coming meetings of legislative interim committees include a meeting this Friday and Saturday in Boise of the Agricultural Labor Study Committee and one May 24 of the Ecology/Department Study Committee.

Halt asked

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus urged the governors of Washington and Oregon Wednesday to halt commercial fishing on the Columbia River Friday night to allow some fish to migrate upstream to spawn.

In telegrams to Washington Gov. Dan Evans and Oregon Gov. Tom McCall, Andrus said "fish runs this year are lower than normal and facing terrific passage problems due to extremely high runoff."

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks showing little change from early morning levels, were mixed on moderate turnover as trading moved past mid-session Thursday.

Although the news background was encouraging, analysts said the market was passing through a period of consolidation and that it may have to do a little base building at lower levels before resuming its advance.

The Commerce Department reported that gross national product rose more in the first quarter of the year than previously estimated and that business profits rebounded upward from a 1970 fourth quarter decline.

Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans said these developments were "solid confirmation of the strong resurgence" of the U.S. economy.

Near 1:15 p.m., advances barely edged declines, 643 to 608, among the 1,855 issues crossing the tape. The Dow Jones Industrial average was unchanged at 837.45.

A three-day gap of 10,230,000 shares compared with 9,400,000 shares traded at a comparable period the previous session.

Among the day's most active issues were Sperry Rand up 1/2 on 419,800 shares, Electronic Memories up 1/4 on 154,300 shares, Natpac 6 1/2 higher on 151,700 shares, Union Carbide ahead 1/4 on 127,800 shares, and American Telephone down 1/4 on 118,400 shares.

Less active Bausch & Lomb gained 2, while Honeywell, Fairchild Camera, Wrigley, and Loews Corp. rose more than 1 apiece. IBM and Burroughs, however, lost more than a point each.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The widening gap between stock yields and bond yields is being viewed with some concern by the Fraser Management Associates.

If the expected economic improvement fails to materialize, the company said, bond-stock relationships would bring a "half" to the bull market.

"Meanwhile, a business cycle expansion based on growing consumer purchases, increased inventory demand, and a gradual upturn in capital goods spending will improve earnings and dividends sufficiently to continue the preference for stocks over bonds," Fraser said.

The union represents over a half-million workers in the Bell Telephone System and other communication concerns. Training sessions such as the one planned in Twin Falls are a routine part of the union's operations in connection with current bargaining talks with the Mountain Bell and Western Electric companies, Marsh said.

Training session planned

TWIN FALLS—Training sessions covering the operation of the defense fund of the Communication Workers of America will be held Saturday in Twin Falls for union leaders from throughout Idaho.

Leaders representing about 1,000 workers who are members of the Communication Workers will be attending the training program. The defense fund is now a multi-million dollar fund created to protect the economic interest of members of the union during strike periods, officials said. It is created through a 50 cents per member contribution per month.

Pay Marsh, CWA representative, will conduct the training session in Twin Falls. He said the fund is not used to pay workers to strike, but rather is held in reserve to meet immediate needs of striking members during prolonged strike periods when members have exhausted their personal resources.

Former state employes earn right to resign

BOISE (UPI) — Two men dismissed from state service Jan. 18 will be allowed to resign and collect some back pay by admitting they held political and not merit system jobs.

In addition, acting Director of Administrative Services Robert Lenaghan will withdraw charges of "inefficiency, incompetency, and negligence" filed against Ray Clovis, former director of management services, and Delbert E. Colwell, former director of communications for the state.

Instead, the stipulation agrees both Clovis and Colwell "rendered creditable and loyal service to their appointing authority and the state of Idaho" during their terms in their jobs.

The terms of the agreement are contained in a stipulation signed by Robert M. Robson, attorney for Clovis and Colwell, and Herman McDevitt, attorney for Lenaghan. The stipulation was signed May 7 and delivered Monday to Richard Weston, hearing officer for the State Personnel Commission.

Weston said Wednesday the State Personnel Commission still must decide whether to accept the stipulation.

If the stipulation is rejected,

Weston said, the commission may still have a hearing over the matter — with one of the issues to be decided whether Clovis and Colwell were covered under the state's merit system.

Clovis and Colwell were fired from their jobs Jan. 18, Clovis after he was given a "nine working-day leave." They were dismissed by Lenaghan, named by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus as acting director of administrative services.

Clovis and Colwell claimed they were merit system employes, but Lenaghan claimed the posts were exempt political appointments and as such both were exempt employes under provisions of the Idaho code.

If exempt, they were subject to serving at the pleasure of the director of administrative services and the governor.

The stipulation agrees that both posts "are political offices" within the terms of the Idaho code and that both Clovis and Colwell were therefore exempt from the provisions of the Idaho personnel system.

The stipulation also agreed the charges of inefficiency, incompetency, and negligence against Clovis and Colwell were made "for the purpose of such manner that they could be terminated by the Idaho Personnel Commission, and if necessary the courts of the state of Idaho."

The stipulation also agreed Lenaghan had authority to discharge both men "without giving reasons or the filing of charges of inefficiency, incompetency, and negligence."

Under the stipulation, Lenaghan agreed to withdraw from the records of the Idaho Personnel Commission all forms "refecting unfavorably" upon the work done by Clovis and Colwell. In place of the charges, Lenaghan will submit forms indicating the two men were discharged or resigned upon termination of their terms of office or appointments.

Clovis will receive full pay as administrator of the Division of Administrative Services up to Feb. 12. Colwell will receive payment as administrator, division of communications, up to Feb. 25.

In addition, both men will agree not to become actively engaged in the work of his former division.

In McDevitt's stipulation, Colwell was to have drawn pay only until Feb. 12, but the extension to Feb. 25 was agreed to since Clovis had been given the nine-day leave before he was dismissed.

Colwell was receiving $1,200 per month as director of communications.

Critics cite achievements of 2 TV series

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Two series, "Civilisation" and "All in the Family," and one special, "The Andersonville Trial," are the top vote-getters in the sixth annual Critics' Consensus Awards for television achievement during the past year.

The three programs were the only nominees to receive the required two-thirds vote of 15 daily newspaper reviewers. "Civilisation" and "The Andersonville Trial"—both entries on non-commercial television's coast-to-coast network—received 12 votes each. "All in the Family," seen on CBS-TV, got 11.

The Critics' Consensus is composed of columnists in New York, San Francisco, Chicago, Los Angeles, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., St. Louis, Miami, Houston, Memphis, Newark, Detroit and San Diego. This writer is a member.

"Civilisation," originally produced for British television, traced the history of the Western world through its art. As an example of the esteem in which it was held, the competing NBC-TV organization offered a preview special about it, promoting the entire series. "The Andersonville Trial," the initial production of the now-prominent "Hollywood Television Theatre" concerned a commandant charged with mass deaths in his Civil War prison camp, and faced with individual moral responsibility although he took orders from others.

"All in the Family," a midseason comedy entry which immediately created a furor, focuses on a middle-class husband-father who sees the world in terms of his political and social prejudices. Although some observers felt it would quickly fold, it caught on in the ratings of the public and will return to CBS-TV next season.

This series, by the way, has also been cited in the 1971 Saturday Review Television Awards for, in part, "introducing a lusty note of... reality into the antiseptic mores of situation comedy."

The awards of the Critics' Consensus cover the period from mid-May, 1970, to April 25, 1971. There are no categories for nominations. The only criterion is distinguished contribution to the medium. And there are no banquets or trophies because we can't afford them and don't want to listen to more victory speeches anyway. Instead, winners get letters of commendation and are expected to be thrilled to death.

"Hollywood Television Theatre," which recently offered an exceptional production of John Dos Passos' "U.S.A.," earned other Critics' Consensus attention in addition to the award for "The Andersonville Trial." Eight votes went to George C. Scott for his direction of the Civil War tale, and seven ballots commended "Hollywood Television Theatre" as a series.

There were nine votes for the author-narrator of "Civilisation," Kenneth Clark, and for the CBS-TV documentary "The Selling of the Pentagon," with CBS-TV also getting eight ballots for standing by this controversial hour. Seven votes went to NBC-TV's "Migrant," which dealt with itinerant workers, and to the non-commercial network series "The Great American Dream Machine."

The unfortunately canceled "Senator" segments of NBC-TV's "The Bold Ones," which starred Hal Holbrook as an idealistic U.S. Congressman, earned six votes. Do did a "Senator" two-part program, "A continual Roar of Musketry," based on the Kent State tragedy. ABC-TV's Tony Awards show, which superbly presented great moments from the American Musical Theatre, also received six votes.

Five ballots, meanwhile, were marked for NBC-TV's production of Arthur Miller's "The Price," starring George C.

Scott; and for NBC-TV's "Jane Eyre," in which Scott was also the headliner. Five votes were cast, as well, for Peter Ustinov's improvised performance in CBS-TV's "A Conversation with Lord North," in which he answered Eric Sevareid's questions as the 18th Century British prime minister who simply did not understand America's rebellion against England's colonialism.

Only two Republican presidents have thus far served two full terms in the White House — Grant and Eisenhower.

DEAR ABBY:

Your answer to "L" was funny and quaint. An authority on GEESE You certainly ain't!

For a GOOSE was a "him" You seemed to infer, And the GANDER you spoke of Like "he" was a "her."

At your mix-up in genders I was amused, But some of your readers Were, no doubt, confused.

DEAR MUNCIE FAN:

For an Iowa lass I feel like a cluck For I've often mistaken

A DRAKE for a DUCK. In the realm of the barnyard I'm loathe to meander, It's plain, I don't know My GOOSE from my GANDER!

(Edgar Allan Poe-Po)

DEAR ABBY: My story is as old as the hills. I am a fairly attractive woman and the mother of three children. I became bored with the housekeeping routine and decided to get a job. That is when my troubles began.

I met a man at work. (I'll call him "Charley.") We were very much attracted to each other. I enjoyed having something to get dressed up for every day, and this new excitement did a lot for my ego. My car was laid up for about a week, and Charley offered to drive me home. One thing led to another, and we started meeting secretly. I got hooked on him, and told my husband I wanted a divorce so I could marry Charley. It broke my husband's heart, but he said he wouldn't stand in my way if that's what I wanted.

Abby, I was so wrapped up in Charley, I couldn't see the people I was hurting. My husband moved out and I could see as much of Charley as I wanted to. After a few months I realized how foolish I had been. I began missing my husband and Charley suddenly looked less attractive to me.

Now I am so ashamed of myself I could die. I realize it's my husband I really love, but what can I do now? I don't deserve a second chance, but do you think my husband would take me back?

—ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: You'll never know until you ask him.

Camp slated

RUPERT — Garth Baker, Rupert, principal of Washington school and athletic coach, has been appointed dean of the summer camp for retarded children at Camp Perkins.

The camp, scheduled for Aug. 8-12, is sponsored by the Minidoka County Council for Retarded Children for trainable students throughout the state. The facilities are owned by the Lutheran Church and located 40 miles north of Sun Valley near Alturas Lake.

Applications have been sent to school districts where special education students are being educated and deadline for the return of applications is Aug. 1, Baker said. There is a fee of $25 per student. The camp has facilities for about 70 children from ages 10 and older.

A full program is being prepared by Ron Dent, Idaho State Board of Education. Included in the agenda are nature hikes, instruction and demonstrations in various sports, water safety skill, canoeing, swimming and fishing.

Baker is seeking camp counselors and a registered nurse who will be able to donate her time for the four day camp.

Baker is serving as coach for the 18 special education students planning to participate during the Special Olympics, May 24 and 25 at Boise State College. This group also includes special education and trainable students from throughout the state. A bus is being arranged to transport the local students to Boise, stated Baker.

Accompanying the group to Boise will be parents and Teens Organization for Retarded Children (TORCH), who have held several projects to raise funds to send the students to the Olympics.

Students from Cassia County have been invited to travel to Boise with the group from Minidoka County. About 10 students under the leadership of Roger Gossel plan to participate.

Approval seen on farm credit law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration's bid for a new law paving the way to expansion of a federal farm credit program now appears headed for easy approval on Capitol Hill.

The Senate Tuesday passed the administration bill without argument. In the House, a spokesman for Rep. Robert Price, R-Tex., sponsor of the House version of the measure, said he was hopeful of action in the lower chamber. Agriculture committee as soon as that panel disposes of pending bills on sugar and pesticides.

The Nixon-backed credit measure would liberalize a farm operating credit program run by the Agriculture Department's Farmers Home Administration (FHA).

The program offers short and intermediate-term "farm operating loans" to help farmers finance annual production expenses like seed and fertilizer costs, and some longer-term investments in livestock and machinery.

Under existing law, the loans — $275 million a year — are made with treasury funds. Because any increase in lending would mean a bigger federal deficit, White House officials have refused to seek any increase in the budget despite the fact that demand for the loans has been running well above the current ceiling.

Under the new administration bill, however, the FHA would halt the use of taxpayer dollars for farm operating loans and switch to a program of government-insured lendings. Under this system, which is already used in most other FHA lending programs, the agency makes the loans with funds from private investors.

Nixon recently announced that if the bill becomes law, he will recommend an increase in the farm operating loan lending ceiling — a step which could be taken without tapping the treasury bill since all the funds would come from private lenders.

Administration sources say the White House is expected to approve a $350 million farm operating loan program — $75 million above current levels — if the new bill passes as expected.

The measure also includes a second liberalizing feature. The limit on individual farm operating loans, now set at $35,000 per farm, would be boosted to $50,000.

A rider on the bill, meanwhile, would also convert Agriculture Department lending programs for watershed development and resource conservation and development projects from direct treasury lending to insured loans.

Administration officials have been pressing Congress for speedy action on the bill. Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin said recently that passage of the measure would help loosen credit strings for Southwest farmers currently in the throes of a drought.

Pesticide law begins May 20

BOISE — As of May 20, a new pesticide use and application law will go into effect. All federal state, public utilities, irrigation districts, highway departments, municipalities, and other governmental agencies who apply pesticides will be required to license with the Idaho Department of Agriculture as a pesticide applicator.

These agencies will be required to set up training programs specific to the type of spraying that each does. All persons who apply pesticides for these agencies must complete the respective training program of that agency before a limited spray permit will be issued to him.

A state department of agriculture statement said instituting the training programs will upgrade the quality of spraying done by governmental agencies.

Farm delegation meets with aides

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A farm belt delegation called on top Nixon administration farm officials Tuesday for help in boosting rural income, but came away without any specific pledges.

Eight house members from farm states were in the group. They accompanied a delegation of six farm spokesmen from South Dakota, who gave Agriculture department officials a petition from 6,000 rural Dakotans.

The petition, which had been circulated by members of county Agricultural Stabilization Committees, asked for several farm aid steps including higher support prices.

Nelson Hunstead, Bath, S.D., a spokesman for the group, said later the meeting with Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin, Undersecretary J. Phil Campbell and Assistant Secretary Clarence D. Palmbly, would up with "no indication" the Agriculture department would take any step to improve farm income.

Agriculture department aides later said Hardin told the group he'd like to see all farm prices up. Consumer must be made to realize farmers deserve a fairer share of the national income, he said.

But a spokesman for Rep. Frank E. Denholm, D-S.D., who arranged the meeting and attended it, said administration officials were noncommittal when asked if they would back new legislation to increase farm income.

Campbell was reported to have said the administration would like to see such action if it had any chance to pass congress, but there was no reported commitment to back any specific proposal.

Dairy research project okayed

MOSCOW — A "consolidate to strengthen" program of dairy research in the University of Idaho College of Agriculture animal industries department has received regents' approval.

"In view of our limited resources and personnel, coupled with the need to support new and existing research projects adequately, we are combining the dairy research program at the Caldwell branch experiment station with the research and teaching program at Moscow," according to Dr. A. D. Mullins, animal industries department head.

The action will involve dispersing the dairy herd at Caldwell and transferring Dr. D. L. Thacker, research professor of dairy science, and two non-professional staff members to Moscow. In addition, the consolidate to strengthen program will involve dispersing the Jersey herd at Moscow so that total inputs can be used to build up the Holstein herd.

"This consolidation will strengthen our dairy research program. We have initiated interdisciplinary research efforts throughout the department, including nutrition and animal physiology. These interdisciplinary efforts bring much more talent and expertise to bear on a research problem. Furthermore, we have analytical equipment in Moscow that is not available at Caldwell. This equipment will allow faster, more efficient and complete research work to be done," Mullins said.

Mullins also pointed out that more emphasis will be placed on cooperative research work with dairymen in the state in a team approach involving extension specialists, county agents and researchers.

"We will be entering a new area of research, too. This will be on animal by-products utilization and disposal. The animal industries department will be working with agricultural engineers, civil engineers and microbiologists in investigating the problems and possible solutions.

Pamphlets compiled at university

MOSCOW (UPI) — The University of Idaho College of Agriculture information office will have compiled 32 new information pamphlets for farmers and ranchers as well as hobby gardeners by the end of the semester, according to James L. Johnson.

Johnson, agricultural editor and head of the agricultural information office at the university, said some of the pamphlets dealing with technical topics such as irrigation, pest and disease control, soil sampling and cattle management, report new, more effective farm practices or supply information of interest to farmers.

First girl state track championship scheduled in Twin Falls Saturday

The fourth district, headed by Buhl and Twin Falls in the class A and Shoshone and Raft River in class B, faws dead aim on the state's track and field championships Saturday.

The combined event, first ever offered in Idaho, will begin with field events at 11 a.m. for both classifications with running finals beginning at noon.

Immediately after, the stadium will be cleared of all spectators and teams and, after a march past the ticket window, the class A-3 second regional will begin, probably about 2 to 2:30 p.m.

Six marks fall as T.E. claims meet

RUPERT — Six records fell and another was tied Wednesday—then, the Twin Falls sophomores, paced by double winners of Woodson and Brent Thompson, took the annual frosh-sph district track championship.

Woodson flashed to a fine 10-100ths for one record in the 100-yna dash and tied the furlong mark at 23-flat while Thompson took the long jump and high jump. Twin Falls piled up 92 jumps while Minico had 60, Jerome 44, Burley 27 1/2, O'Leary and Stuart 14, Buhl 11 and just Minico 7.

To day had three double winners. Minico weightlifter Flerased the shotput mark with throw of 47 feet, 3 inches and came back with a decision in the discus to John Woodson and Thompson.

Roberts, Padres nip Pirates 2-1

Left-hander Dave Roberts, pitching his first complete game of the year and only the fourth of his minor league career, Wednesday night stopped Pittsburgh on four singles, three of them in the first inning, as the San Diego Padres tipped the Pirates 2-1.

The victory, Roberts' third against a pair of losses, halted Pittsburgh's win streak at four as the Pirates wound up a 10-game road trip with eight triumphs.

Giants 7, Reds 2

Hal Lanier's bases-loaded double was the key blow in a six-run second inning rally Wednesday that carried the San Francisco Giants to a 7-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Dodgers 5, Braves 0

Home runs by Richie Allen and Jim Lefebvre helped propel the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 5-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves Wednesday night and brought Don Sutton his first pitching win of the season.

Cubs 9, Phils 4

Philadelphian (UPI) — Ron Santo drove in three runs with a homer and Glenn Beckert knocked in three more with a double Wednesday night to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 9-4 rout of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Levies wreck budget

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Whether you rent or own your home, about 25 per cent of your total expenditures for housing represents the cost of local property taxes.

These taxes have been rising steeply. In some communities, they've gone up as much as 500 per cent over the last 20 years.

That means a man who bought a house in 1950 is now having to pay up to five times as much in annual property taxes as he figured on. That kind of thing wrecks family budgets.

Taxpayer protests against property levies are getting louder by the year. But without some basic reforms in the whole property tax system, they're not likely to do much good.

City and county governments are heavily dependent on property taxes, which bring in about 85 per cent of their locally raised revenue. At a time when they are desperately seeking additional funds, local governments would consider unthinkable any decrease in their total take from property taxes.

But there are two ways in which property taxes could be made less burdensome on the average family without any reduction in the gross revenue intake of local governments.

First, the property tax could be made more equitable. Studies by the Brookings Institution and other impartial research organizations indicate that substantial discrepancies in tax assessments of private property are commonplace throughout the country. Corrupt or incompetent assessors may tax a favored taxpayer far less than an ordinary citizen has to pay for a property of comparable value.

The second way to reduce property tax rates without decreasing total revenue is to halt the steady erosion of the tax base which results from the free-handed granting of tax exemptions.

A careful survey of 14 major U.S. cities by Martin A. Larson and C. Stanley Lowell indicates that about one-third of all the real estate in the United States is not getting a free ride—at the expense of the people who do pay taxes.

If all of this exempt property were added to the tax rolls, Larson and Lowell estimate, it would mean a saving of more than $300 a year to the average taxpayer.

There's little hope of that happening, because about 70 per cent of the tax-exempt property belongs to various echelons of government. Of the remaining 30 per cent, from one-third to one-half belongs to religious institutions. The rest is divided among a wide variety of public service institutions such as hospitals, schools and museums; individuals who fall into categories which local lawmakers have deemed deserving of special tax treatment, such as veterans and the aged; and business firms which are offered tax exemptions as bait to get them to locate plants in a community.

Although sweeping abolition of tax-exempt status is not in the cards, alert citizens can demand that local governments become a lot more selective in granting it.

Bankers wary of students

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of three articles explaining the student loan situation and why would-be students and their parents are finding it difficult to obtain financing aid for education.

By JOAN DEPPA
United Press International
Even when banks have money to loan, many of them are reluctant to get involved with too many federally guaranteed student loans because of the paper work and generally more complicated procedures such loans entail.

Bankers' dislike of the guaranteed loan program appears to be a major reason why it has not worked according to plan.

"We don't have time to make 16 carbon copies of everything for the government," Homer Ballard, vice president of the People's Bank, Kansas City, Mo., said. "There is too much red tape. Uncle Sam can just go whistle Dixie. They will have to do a lot of streamlining before we are interested."

Interested, but an official of one of the nation's largest banks, based in New York and with $2 billion outstanding in student loans, told UPI his bank was interested in financing education but had to look after "other interests," particularly when the prime interest rate soars as it did last year.

"We are a stockholder-owned corporation, and we have to come up with profits," the official, who asked to remain anonymous, said.

"If we lend $50 million to General Motors at the prime rate, and if we do the same with another $50 million in student loans, we wind up in the student loans with 50,000 accounts that we have to process while getting a smaller return on the money, although spending more in paper work," he said.

State Shares Costs
The 26 states with the most active loan programs have set up state agencies to share the cost of insuring and administering the loans with the federal government. The latter pays 80 per cent to the bank and the state pays 20 per cent if a student fails to repay his loans.

Such state programs lend only to bona fide residents of their respective states, even though these students may use the money to study at a school in another state or even a foreign country. Other states rely on a "revolving, non-profit corporation," United Student Aid Funds Inc., or on federal officials to administer the loans.

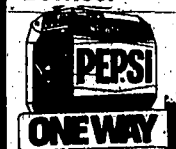

It is almost impossible to determine how many students have been forced to drop out of school or have decided not to go to college or to attend a low-cost college near home because of financial aid problems.

Trend Towards Savings
National organizations which study enrollment patterns, such as the National Association of College Admissions Counselors in Evanston, Ill., say there is a definite trend toward studying closer to home in less expensive, state-supported colleges and universities.

Students may be eyeing their belts and taking any part-time job they can find.

"If you don't take it, somebody else will," John Swartz, a sophomore at the University of Missouri, said. Few students interviewed said they would drop out of school because of the economic conditions. Some said they were better off in school than trying to find a job in the current market.

All Terseh had to do was knock out the ace of clubs and cash his 12 good tricks to score 1,440 points for Italy.

At the other table Bobby Goldman opened one diamond. His hand wasn't quite strong enough to warrant a two-club call in their methods. From then on the bidding went forward nicely, but unfortunately the club suit was mentioned and they found their 4-4 fit to land at six clubs.

We can't fault them for this. Normally there is a decided advantage in finding a sound 4-4 fit. This time it didn't work out. There was no way for Billy Eisenberg to avoid losing two trump tricks when West showed up with all five trumps. Italy took a 17 IMP lead.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Italy brought a new team to play for them in the 1970 World's championship. They were nervous at the start. When they played us in the third round they were ready. They proceeded to take an early lead when Riccardo Terseh and Enrico Cesati bid to six no-trump.

Terseh's two clubs was rather like JACOBY MODERN in that it was artificial and forcing. North's response was positive and showed a spade suit while Terseh's two no-trump rebid showed specifically at 21 points and a no-trump type hand. Cesati added 13 to 20 and bid six no-trump.

Instead of bidding five diamonds your partner has bid five spades to show three aces in response to your four no-trump. What do you do now.

AM TOLD THERE'S a small tribe of natives in South America whose entire vocabulary consists of no more than 340 words. Interesting. Did you know the science boys so far have identified approximately 350 different calls in the language of crows? This means some crows can outtalk some people, does it not? Think so.

WHAT, YOU'VE never heard of a zorse? That's a cross between a horse and a female zebra. Such there be, too... AT LAST REPORT the speed limit in Burlington, Vt., was 3 mph. Imagine that? You could make better time on a zorse... THE PRODUCERS of breakfast foods say it takes at least $3 million to launch a new cereal. But as previously stated, only a couple head of livestock to create a zorse. A thousand apologies, but sometimes a thing like that zorse comes along and you just get hung up on it.

ANCHORAGE must be the friendliest town anywhere, must be. Here's an official police ticket, placed under the windshield wiper of some over-parked car there: "Welcome to Anchorage. We noticed your out-of-state license plates. We therefore consider you a guest of the city, and instead of the usual citation for over-parking, we are happy to issue to you a warm welcome... Trust your stay is enjoyable... return soon... (Signed) City of Anchorage."

SAY A GIRL jumps off a bridge into a river. If one man is nearby, chances she'll be saved run 99 to 1. If two men are there, her chances go 85 to 15. If three men see her, the chances lower 60 to 40. And so on. If 20 men observe this imminent tragedy, the young lady's chances drop to a mere 1 in 10. Such is the claim of scholars who have made a study of suicides. Most peculiar.

CUSTOMER SERVICE: Q. "You say 's' starts the most words. So what letter starts the fewest?" A. That would be "x"... Q. "How many golf courses in this country?" A. Just about 10,000... Q. "What was Thomas Edison's first invention?" A. Quite one he sold was a stock ticker. Got $40,000 for it. First a fistful in those days.

NOT LIKELY you'd want your children to read a sordid tale like this. Of crimes. It's about thievery, murder, even cannibalism. No, certainly wouldn't do. I refer to "Jack and the Beanstalk"... THERE'S NO diminutive for the name Dwight, is there? I mean like Jimmy for James or Tommy for Thomas. Believe not. Anyhow, it's a matter of record that like Eisenhower's mother named him Dwight because she couldn't stand nicknames.

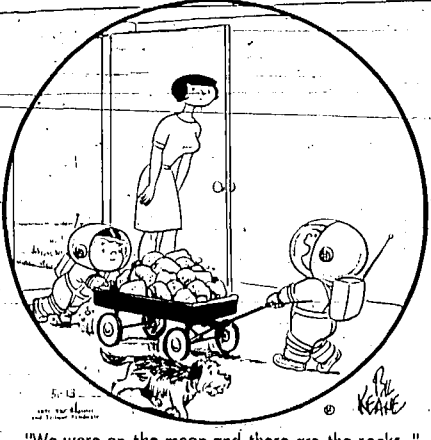

IN JOSEPH, ORE., is a bank. In its window is this sign: "Cheatham and Steele, Bankers"... AM ASKED the ratio of dogs to veterinarians nationwide. Approximately 1,400 to 1... MISTER, your winter clothes, if average hereabouts, weigh half again as much as an Eskimo's.

Q—Read your column on no-lead and low-lead gasoline and wonder if the product called Formula CA-101 used in Crown 100-plus gasoline will harm the engine?—I think they use phosphorus to replace the lead—H.D.L., Severna Park, Md.
A—DuPont makes this additive for a number of gasoline companies. A DuPont executive claims the additive contains less than 1.5 parts of phosphorus per million parts of gasoline and is supposed to make engines run smoother. Phosphorus is a transitional device to help protect some engine's valves as the lead is taken out of gasoline. Lead forms a chemical salt which coats the valves as a lubricant. There is no evidence that phosphorus in small quantities will hurt your engine. There is evidence that gasoline without any lead or phosphorus might be harmful for some car engines under a heavy load strain, such as hauling a trailer for several hours or long, nonstop freeway driving at high speeds.
If you're using a no-lead gasoline, your best bet is to top leaded gasoline in the tank every eighth to tenth fill-up. You could also use low-lead gasoline without worry. Some of the 1971 car engines have valves made of different metal compounds which do not need lead or phosphorus. Check your owner's manual.
Q—Why can't the principle of air filters be applied to automobile air conditioning?—W.H.P., Alexander, Va.
A—The air can be contained and cleaned in a home. In a car, you're forever opening doors. Manufacturers claim they can't make an air filter that will really keep the air inside your car clean—and be reasonably priced. It's a pity. We get all those noxious exhaust fumes right in the face.
Q—I keep an eye on a house for neighbors who are away most of the summer. How should I set the air conditioner to help prevent mildew?
A—Set the controls for 80 degrees. In an unused home, it would be too costly to set it lower. Check the air filters regularly and keep them clean. Dirty filters prevent the dehumidifier from working properly. Also, check for dripping faucets and "innocent" moisture sources.
Q—The drain in my second-floor bathroom stopped up. When I called the rental agency, a plumber was sent to open it up. The next day, the drain stopped again (plumber said it was too narrow) and water began leaking into downstairs rooms. They say I have to pay. Isn't the owner responsible for these "reparations"—P.L., Washington, D. C.
A—Have a lawyer look at your lease. While few leases are the same, many include a clause in which the landlord assumes the responsibility for maintenance repairs costing more than $50 or $100. Beyond such a clause, the only definite obligation your landlord has is to insure that the house or apartment—in question—is habitable within the framework of the local laws.
If, for example, your faulty drain violates local housing codes, you are not responsible for the bill. Your local housing administration can send an inspector out to check for possible violations.
In the future, you should have a lawyer go over any lease before you sign. He can make sure who pays the bills and under what circumstances.

Montana freight smashup kills 4

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (UPI) — Two Burlington Northern freight trains collided head-on on a curve six miles north of here about midnight, killing four men and injuring two others, one critically.

The victims were tentatively identified as Paul Hartman, engineer of the northbound train, and on the same train brakeman N.E. McGregor and fireman Gene Troitchka.

On the southbound train, James Vernon was killed. Ages and hometowns were not immediately known.

Injured were Tom Kirby, 57, Great Falls, a brakeman, who was in critical condition, and Donald Schiemmerick, an engineer, reported in satisfactory condition. Both were on the southbound train.

A spokesman for B-N at the Montana division headquarters in Billings said the cause of the accident was not yet known nor was the extent of damage.

The southbound train, en route from Havre to Great Falls pulled 63 cars. The northbound from Great Falls to Havre pulled 22.

Six diesel units were involved in the crash and reports from the scene indicate two of them were destroyed and the remaining four heavily damaged.

Cascade County officials here said the trains were probably going about 60 mph when they collided. A train workman said it was possible one of the trains was behind scheduled and had not reached a siding when the other train approached.

Cleanup operations began about dawn.

Two of the bodies were pinned in the twisted frame of a car until rescue crews extricated them about an hour after the collision.

A railroad spokesman said 11 cars, four on one train and seven on the other, were derailed by the accident.

CSI sets flexible summer courses

TWIN FALLS — A flexible summer school program offering one eight-week session and two four-week sessions is scheduled by the College of Southern Idaho, beginning on June 7.

Students may register for any combination of classes, taking as many as 12 credits with permission of the office of Director of Admissions, Gerald Meyerhoeffer.

Fees will be the same as for the regular semesters, running from $16.84 for one credit to $52.18 for five or more credits for in-district students, and from $26.84 to $102.18 for out-of-district enrollees. No additional fees will be charged for more than five credits.

Classes are scheduled all day, from 7:30 a.m. for tennis to 8:40 p.m. for a mathematics course.

Class lengths differ, ranging from an hour for some classroom courses to three hours for laboratory and art sessions. In addition, marathon sessions of three and four are on tap for chemistry students, who will attend class for two hours, in the "Introduction" class, five days a week, then follow the class, on Mondays and Wednesdays, with two hours of lab work. Students taking inorganic chemistry will attend an hour-long lecture class each day, plus a two-hour lab twice a week.

Details on specific classes may be obtained from Meyerhoeffer at 733-9554. The sessions run from June 7 to July 30 for the eight-week sessions, and from June 7 to July 2 and July 6 to July 30 for the four-week units.

Other summer offerings include a drama workshop from July 5 to July 29 under the direction of drama professor Phillip Rahyer, covering uses of new three-dimensional materials for scenery, costumes and makeup. The workshop will cost $35 for registration and materials.

A unique outdoor recreation series of "wilderness courses," offering two college credits for each of eight weeks of arduous effort, begins June 7. The credits, however, may not be transferable to other institutions, the college has warned students.

News Of Servicemen

BUHL — Army Spec. 4 Ralph W. Compher, Buhl, recently participated with other members of the 15th Field Artillery's 7th Battalion in offensive operations in the northwest central highlands on Vietnam.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Compher, live on Route 3, Buhl.

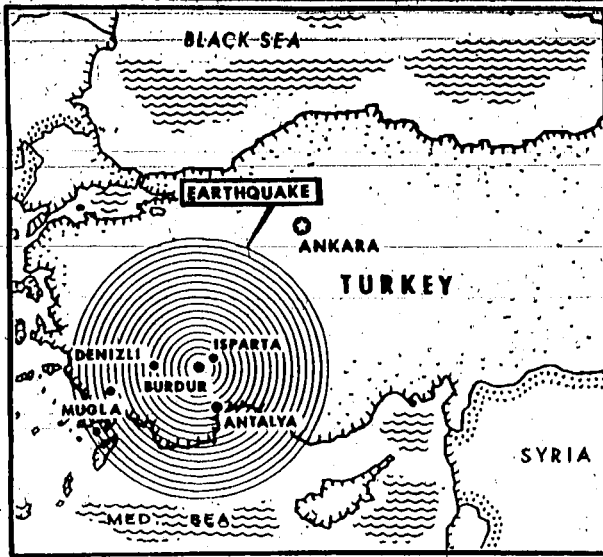

Compher's unit expended over 2,000 rounds in support of the Vietnamese Army's 42nd Regiment offensive operations in the Ben Het area. After aiding in the routing of the enemy, the battalion moved 50 miles northwest with its 177MM guns to continue support for the 22nd Division operations. Compher's unit has since been able to pound enemy staging points, which were out of range of U.S. and South-Vietnamese artillery prior to closing of the Ben Het site.

A communications specialist in the battalion's Battery C, Compher entered the Army in March, 1968. He completed basic training at Ft. Lewis, Wash., and was stationed at Ft. Ord, Calif., prior to arrival in Vietnam last October.

Red toehold dangerous

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In the English language Ceylon Daily Mirror, a recent editorial gained significance because it was cleared by government censors. "A toehold through temporary military aid could tempt the donor to attempt a foothold, if not a permanent stranglehold," the editorial said without naming names.

It was of further significance that the same newspaper also published prominently an article from an Italian weekly discussing "the dangers of Russian penetration into the Indian Ocean."

Ceylon lying off the tip of India in the Indian Ocean, is outside the main stream of international events and is no more used to worldwide notice than she is to the insurrection among her educated youth currently threatening the Ceylonese government.

Presumably the leftwing government of Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike will survive the insurrection which is cast in a mold even farther to the left, but not without changes.

At the outset of the outbreak by the "Che Guevarists" in April, Mrs. Bandaranaike sent out a general appeal for arms to help put it down. India, Pakistan and Britain were among the non-Communist nations to respond directly. The United States supplied helicopters indirectly but held up on other requested aid pending Pentagon "study" of surplus weapons.

Most generous of all was the Soviet Union, which sent five MIG17 fighters, and a MIG15 trainer along with technicians and crews to train Ceylonese pilots. Other aid came from East Germany and Yugoslavia.

While the aid extended the Bandaranaike government has been international in character, it is the extent of the Soviet effort that now causes concern. The withdrawal of Britain from East of Suez has left the Indian Ocean a military vacuum which the Soviets have been moving to fill. The fear is that Ceylon might provide the next permanent base for the Soviets to add to footholds already established in Yemen at the Indian Ocean's western Gateway and in Mauritius off Madagascar.

A thought for today: Benjamin Franklin said, "Experience is a dear school, but fools will learn in no other."
