TEN CENTS

Crew unhurt as plane hits

By RUTH MILLER
Times-News Writer
BUHL — Three Denver, Colo., men who are part of a geological survey team operating out of Twin Falls escaped injury Friday morning when their twin-engine Convair 240 belly landed in a field southeast of Buhl.

Falls City-County Airport. The plane came down in a fallow field owned by Ernie Jagels, Buhl. It skidded for about 100 yards, going through a fence and into a grain field before stopping. The left propeller, which was still operating when the plane went down, was ripped from the plane and the right propeller and engine were damaged. The crew was conducting airborne magnetometer mineral surveys over the White Clouds. Allen said he didn't know anything about the White Clouds controversy in Idaho and did not know if the environmental studies had anything to do with that dispute. Allen and the pilot, Maurice G. Steward, 52, were in the cockpit when the craft crashed. The third member of the crew, technician Edward P. Smith, 50, was strapped in a seat. Except for bruises and blisters on Smith's hands where he was "hanging on," none of the crew was injured.

A fourth member of the survey team, which had been in Twin Falls since May 3 making daily flights over the White Clouds region, Dick Sneddon, remained in Twin Falls Friday because of an inner ear infection. "I guess somebody up there likes me," Sneddon said. The landing gear of the Convair was kept up because the crew was fearful the craft would flip if the landing gear was lowered.

"Primary objective of the emergency landing," Allen said, "was to avoid hitting anyone's house, livestock or other property."

Several residents of the area about five miles south and one-half mile east of Buhl saw the plane losing power and going down. The crew said they had just alighted from the plane when people started flocking to the scene. Gasoline had spilled from the damaged engines and the crew was fearful that someone might throw a lit cigarette into the fuel. A fire truck was called to stand by at the scene.

Twin Falls County sheriff's officers were called to the scene as were investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration. They were due in Twin Falls later Friday.

The plane owned by the federal government, is valued at about $80,000, the crew said, and the equipment on board, most of it undamaged, is valued at about $200,000. A sheriff's deputy remained at the scene to guard the craft until government authorities arrived.

Smith said both wings probably will be removed from the craft and the fuselage will be hoisted onto a truck for salvage.

The Convair, which under normal usage will carry 42 passengers, carried a total weight of about 38,500 pounds.

Allen said the survey crew was about one-third done with its White Clouds project Friday. He said the crew is from the main office for the flight section of the U.S. Geological Survey at Denver.

United Airlines used to operate Convairs through the Twin Falls Airport and although the craft are no longer manufactured, they are still in service.

Arab states rally in Egyptian crisis

CAIRO (UPI)—Government leaders or their deputies from Libya, Syria and the Sudan flew unexpectedly to Cairo today to pledge their solidarity with President Anwar Sadat in Egypt's current cabinet crisis. Sadat Thursday accepted the resignations of six cabinet ministers and three high policymakers in the biggest governmental shakeup since the death of President Gamal Abdel Nasser last Sept. 28.

The shakeup was foreshadowed by Sadat's dismissal two weeks ago of Vice President Aly Sabry. Though Sabry was considered the most pro-Soviet figure in the Egyptian hierarchy, his immediate cause for his dismissal was his opposition to the signing April 17 of a loose federation linking Egypt with Syria and Libya and, eventually, the Sudan.

The Middle East News Agency said that in telephone conversations with Sadat Thursday night, Syrian President U. Gen. Hafez Al Assad and Libyan Premier Col. Moammar Al Khadafy pledged "complete support."

Warfare checks assailed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers vigorously opposed today legislation that would require a president to obtain Congressional consent before committing troops to overseas combat. He said it would narrow the president's constitutional powers and seriously limit his ability to conduct foreign policy.

Volpe doubts cost

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe said today it would not cost "anywhere near $1 billion" to resurrect the supersonic transport (SST) program, as the board chairman of the Boeing Co. suggested.

Volpe took issue with a statement Thursday by the Boeing chief, William Allen, that it would cost "about $1 billion or at least $500 million" to revive the SST, which was killed early this year by Congress.

Volpe did not say how much he thought the cost would be but "I don't think it will be anywhere near $1 billion."

Volpe was interviewed on the NBC-TV Today show. He said "I don't know how anyone at this stage can determine" extra costs.

Volpe said it was vital that the Senate agree to resurrect the program, largely because of the progress the British and the French were making on their own SST program—the Concorde.

"I just can't conceive that the United States of America would ever drop out of a race without ever getting to the starting line," Volpe said.

Brezhnev asks arms parley

TEHLISI, Georgia, USSR (UPI)—Soviet Communist Party Chairman Leonid I. Brezhnev called on the western powers today to begin negotiations with the Soviet Union on reducing troops and armaments in central Europe.

Brezhnev, in this birthplace of Josef Stalin for celebrations marking the 50th anniversary of Georgia's admittance to the Soviet Union, chided western leaders for hesitating in starting such talks.

He did not specifically mention the United States which is embroiled in arguments in Washington over a proposal by Mike Mansfield, the Senate majority leader, to halve American strength in western Europe.

Brezhnev spoke of western leaders and said: "Their spokesmen ask: 'Whose armed forces—foreign or national? What armaments—nuclear or conventional—are to be reduced? They asked whether the Soviet proposals concern all this taken together.'"

Brezhnev said such questions reminded him of "a person who tries to judge the flavor of a wine by its appearance and without tasting it."

"If anything is not clear to somebody we are ready to make it clear," he said. "But you have to muster the resolve to try the proposal—you are interested in according to its taste. Translated into diplomatic language this means to start negotiations."

Brezhnev's speech was carried on television in the Soviet Union. The broadcast was also monitored in Washington.

Watch that hat

TWIN FALLS — The first "casualty" of the coat-check room in the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Center has been reported — a hat belonging to Superintendent of Schools Dr. Ernest H. Ragland turned up missing Wednesday night after the school's Band Night.

Del Staughter, instrumental music instructor for the Twin Falls schools, said Dr. Ragland left his hat in the check room before the concert. The hat was gone after the event, Staughter said.

No one was on duty in the check room at the time of the concert.

CSI jobs

Student work grants cut

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — Sixty students hoping for summertime jobs at the College of Southern Idaho in the federally funded work-study program are in for a disappointment — there'll be no money and no jobs for them this year, according to David L. Perkins, dean of students at CSI.

may lose his summertime job, Stamps commented that "For the first time, I can begin to understand why college students want to stage protests. I don't know — I've never been really angry at a President, but I am now."

Perkins said he was told that "we wouldn't be cut back that far. We were promised more money than we're going to get."

"This is certainly one of the most worthwhile programs on campus," the CSI spokesman said. "Students can earn the money they need to attend college, campus jobs are filled, and the college budget is protected by the federal subsidy."

13 N.Y. Panthers acquitted

NEW YORK (UPI)—A jury of eight whites and four blacks, in a surprisingly swift decision Thursday, acquitted 13 Black Panthers charged with conspiracy to blow up police stations, department stores and attempting to murder two patrolmen.

The panel took only 90 minutes to bring in a verdict of "not guilty" on all charges against the defendants who had been on trial for eight months—the longest trial in New York State history.

Squeals of jubilation were mixed with tears as jury foreman James Fox, a black musician, replied "not guilty" to each of the total of 168 counts brought against the defendants—two women and 11 men.

The women, Mrs. Afreth Shakur, who is eight months pregnant, and Joan Bird, cried as the foreman intoned the verdicts in reply to the charges read by the court clerk.

A number of spectators in the court screamed approval at the verdicts and in the corridors outside the courtroom afterward there was a general tableau of kissing, hugging, laughter and exultation.

N. Viets accept POWs

TOKYO (UPI)—North Vietnam agreed today to accept the return June 4 of 570 ailing prisoners of war held in South Vietnam, the largest group of Vietnamese prisoners ever returned.

South and referred to them in the broadcast as "Vietnamese illegally arrested in South Vietnam whom they (the Saigon government) called North Vietnamese prisoners of war."

Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. Ambassador to South Vietnam, immediately hailed the impending return as "an encouraging sign."

In a brief statement issued in Saigon, Bunker said "I consider this an encouraging sign and I hope it will be the first step leading to the release of American and allied prisoners" held by North Vietnam.

The South Vietnamese government had no immediate comment on the return, but it was expected that they would accept North Vietnam's terms for the release which are similar to those agreed upon in the past.

South Vietnamese Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam, whose department traditionally handles the mechanics of POW releases, was reported en route back to Saigon from consultations in the United States and Europe.

This was the seventh release of prisoners to the North dating back to 1966. South Vietnam has released 228 POWs in previous efforts with 11 POWs receiving permission to remain in the South at their request.

The government, in recent figures, said it was holding 9,389 North Vietnamese. However, they also are holding nearly 20,000 Viet Cong prisoners or a total of about 30,000 Communists, North Vietnam never has released any South Vietnamese to return to the South, but a few Americans have been released. The Viet Cong have released some prisoners in the South, however.

TWIN FALLS — Rate increases for Trans-Magic Airlines went into effect today following approval of the fare changes by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission. The PUC approved the increases on Wednesday for the Boise-to-Pocatello and Boise-to-Idaho Falls routes. Fares are now $28 for one-way tickets on both legs, up from $25, and round-trip tickets are $56 instead of $49. Trans-Magic had requested the rate increase on April 2, hoping to bring the carrier's rates to the same level as Hughes Air West rates. There were no protests filed, according to the PUC.

Democracy boost voiced by Pope

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI urged mankind today to develop new forms of democracy to deal with problems which he said place man's future in jeopardy.

The Pope's message came in a dramatic "apostolic letter" updating the Roman Catholic Church's teaching on social conditions on the 80th anniversary of the famous papal encyclical "rerum Novarum" (Of New Things).

This document, by Pope Leo XIII, the church's answer to Marxism, dealt with the condition of working classes in newly emerging industrial societies.

Many problems have sprung up since then—pollution, race conflicts, the youth revolt, even women's liberation—and the present pontiff tackles them in a 66-page document which Vatican sources said could be one of the most important of Pope Paul's nearly eight-year reign.

He said a Roman Catholic could not "adhere to the Marxist ideology, to atheistic materialism, to its dialectic of violence and to the way it absorbs individual freedom ..."

Nor could he adhere "to the liberal ideology (unchecked capitalism) which believes it exalts individual freedom by withdrawing it from every limitation ..."

But he allowed greater freedom of choice for Roman Catholics to associate with socialist movements.

The Pope, in calling for a new democratic structure, expressed impatience with most modern systems. "Bureaucratic socialism, technocratic capitalism and authoritarian democracy are showing how difficult it is to solve the great human problem of living together in justice and equality," he said.

Part of the Pope's letter, which will be used to guide the International Synod of Bishops in a discussion of world justice here in October, was devoted to a sharp analysis of modern problems, among them strikes, discrimination and emigration.

New judge takes over Davis trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A sixth judge took over pre-trial proceedings Thursday for black militant Angela Davis with the comment: "It's just another case."

Superior Court Judge Richard E. Arnason, 49, of suburban Contra Costa County, was assigned by the state's chief justice to preside over the murder, kidnaping and conspiracy case of Miss Davis and Russell Magee.

Arnason, whose two predecessors disqualified themselves on motions by Magee, said he will set an early date for resumption of hearings after reviewing the records of previous sessions.

Miss Davis, 27, an avowed Communist and former UCLA professor, and Magee, 32, a San Quentin convict, are charged in connection with a shootout last Aug. 7 at Marin County Courthouse in which four persons were killed, including a judge.

On bench CONTRA Costa County Superior Court Judge Richard E. Arnason, 49, was appointed Thursday to take over Angela Davis murder-conspiracy case. He is sixth judge to be assigned the case and said of it, "It's just another case." (UPI)

Yank planes duel SAMs

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. command reported today that two F105 fighter-bombers fought electronic duels, Thursday night with Soviet-built SAM2 missile crews over Vietnam in the 37th such incident of the year. It also reported a dramatic drop in U.S. helicopter losses.

The command said that in the week ending Tuesday not a single American helicopter was shot down over South Vietnam, the first time this has happened in 44 months. However one helicopter was shot down in Cambodia with a loss of three crewmen.

southwest of Saigon.

In two battles, infantrymen of the 21st ARVN division, backed by U.S. artillery, air strikes and helicopter gun ships, reported killing 83 Communist soldiers at a loss of one dead and three wounded.

Two U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief jet fighter-bombers fought electronic duels with Soviet-built SAM2 anti-aircraft missile crews inside North Vietnam Thursday.

The U.S. command said today the F105s were flying over Laos when their "Willy Wensel" electronic detection gear warned them they had been "locked on" to SAM2 radar screens on the other side of the Mu Gia Pass inside North Vietnam.

The jets turned toward the SAM2 batteries and fired their radar-homing Sidewinder missiles, which literally ride down the radar beam of the anti-aircraft battery.

Goodpastor flew to Washington Thursday to confer with President Nixon and administration officials on the proposed unilateral reduction of American troops in NATO.

"The proposed force reductions are cause for deep concern from the standpoint of future peace and security of the United States and the alliance," Goodpastor told a news conference.

Weekly plane losses including accidental helicopter crashes and fixed wing aircraft losses were put at nine, the lowest total in four months. This brought to 7,768 the number of U.S. aircraft lost to all causes in the 10-year-old war.

Ground fighting involving American troops dropped sharply, and for the fifth time this month no American combat deaths were reported during the past 24 hours. One infantryman of the Americal Division was wounded Thursday night near Chu Lai in a skirmish in which four Viet Cong were killed.

At the same time, South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky flew today to the Cambodian border to speak at a ceremony returning a religious shrine to the Hoa Hao sect—and disclosed he was late because his (South) Vietnamese Air Force (VNAF) helicopter had made an emergency landing in a rice paddy because of a mechanical failure.

Castreau, Belgium (UPI)—Gen. Andrew J. Goodpastor, the supreme allied commander in Europe, warned Thursday that proposed substantial cutbacks of U.S. forces in western Europe could destroy the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

Goodpastor flew to Washington Thursday to confer with President Nixon and administration officials on the proposed unilateral reduction of American troops in NATO.

"The proposed force reductions are cause for deep concern from the standpoint of future peace and security of the United States and the alliance," Goodpastor told a news conference.

"There should be no mistake about it. The proposals for unilateral reduction would lead to the destruction of NATO and the deterrence and defense it provides."

"NATO has had 20 years of success. NATO Europe is a zone of success in the troubled world today. Unilateral reductions would jeopardize that success."

The general was commenting on a proposal by Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., Democratic floor leader in the Senate, to cut American troop strength in Europe by half by the end of the year.

Goodpastor said that when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower built the NATO force 20 years ago, it started two decades of peace.

"U.S. forces then as now put the glue into NATO," he said.

Solons' spending varied

WASHINGTON (UPI)—You get three guesses on this one: What kind of business would be purchasing eight motorcycle helmets, 800,000 cassettes, two cases of bowl brushes and two copies of "The Greening of America"?

"Want a hint? This same enterprise paid $3,871.18 to a masseur for six months' work, reimbursed the FBI $59,931 for one month's "personnel services," and laid out $9.50 to buy coffee for the mayors of Krakow, Wroclaw and Plock.

"You must have it by now. The House of Representatives, of course. These and thousands of other items, contained in 381 pages of small print, comprise the July 1 to Dec. 31, 1970 expenditure report of House Clerk W. Pat Jennings. The whole business adds up to $59,414,137 and change.

The booklet covers all expenses of the House except the pay of the members and the cost of their quarters—the Capitol and the three big House office buildings. Taken together, the House probably would be a $100 million operation for six months.

Jennings' report for the last half of 1970 represented a startling innovation—it was easy to read. In the past, the House has not encouraged public scrutiny of its books, but this time the clerk not only reported House expenditures down to the last 80 cents paid to the Penn Auto Supply Co. for fuses by the Capitol police.

Ky unhurt

CHAU DOC PROVINCE, South Vietnam (UPI)—Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam "escaped" injury today when the military helicopter he was aboard made a forced landing in a rice paddy.

The vice president, who was on his way to deliver a speech at a religious gathering in a remote area of this province near the Cambodian border, boarded an accompanying Vietnamese Air Force helicopter and proceeded to the ceremony without further incident.

Tonahill, of Jasper, Tex., was indicted April 14, 1967, on charges he cheated the government out of $124,732 during the years 1960, 1961 and 1962.

Returned writer on vacation

SYDNEY (UPI) — "Health fine. Still tired, as told to expect by doctor. Drinking quantities of Australian beer with former journalist colleagues."

The message sent today to United Press International headquarters in New York, in reply to a query as to her health and well being, was typical of Kate Webb. It was brief and to the point and read like an entry from the diary she kept during 23 days as a prisoner of Communist forces in Cambodia. Her account of her captivity has been printed in newspapers around the world.

Two weeks after her release, the 22-year-old UPI bureau manager in Phnom Penh is vacationing in Australia, with members of her family.

Miss Webb said she was being "generally overwhelmed" by the attention she has received since arriving in Sydney Wednesday morning.

Her return brought about reunions with friends from her days as a reporter six years ago with the Sydney Sunday Mirror.

One was Jack Lowitz, a paraplegic and owner of a pub favored by local journalists. Lowitz had not had a drink in 52 years but Wednesday he bought for the bar—and had a belt himself.

Shooting wounds 3 police

CHICAGO (UPI)—Patrolman Genn Rosiak's hands shook as he held a match to his cigarette and recalled what he had thought would be a routine call for help.

"Police officer needs assistance. Shooting at 56th and Michigan," Rosiak's radio squawked. He sped to the site—a three-story apartment building.

"When I got here, the shooting was still going on," Rosiak said. A policeman standing next to him was shot in the leg and Rosiak pulled him from the line of fire.

By the time the battle was ended Thursday, three policemen were wounded — one seriously — and four suspects were in custody. They were identified as Robert Gordon, 30, Irving Williams, 19, Bernard Reynolds, 21, and Van Smith, 20.

Police said the shooting occurred after three officers were sent to the apartment on a complaint from Williams' wife, Vignette, 10.

Mrs. Williams told police her estranged husband was going to kidnap her 6-month-old daughter, Nyeta. Sgt. Wayman Jones, 33, and two other policemen responded to the complaint.

When the policemen arrived, they were met by Williams and Gordon. Gordon was carrying a knife and an empty holster, police said. The officers asked Gordon to surrender.

Jones said as he reached for Gordon's holster, a man in the first-floor apartment opened fire. Jones was struck first but managed to return fire. Patrolman Joseph Mikulskis, 28, and William Kane, 40, responded to a call for help from Jones and were shot down in the street. Kane was hit in the abdomen and Mikulskis in the left thigh.

Rosiak said he was standing beside Mikulskis when he was shot that front window and all of a sudden the glass broke and there were two simultaneous shots, Rosiak said. "Mikulskis yelled out and fell. I and other policemen grabbed him and dragged him into a passageway."

Al Jenkins has returned from Ketchum/Sun Valley and is now associated with John Chris Motors. Al would like to invite his friends and former customers to stop in and discuss their transportation needs.

River safety advisory plan drawn

Crash scene

POLICE inspect pickup driven by William Horace Allen, 24, Twin Falls, which crashed into corner of City Drug Co. building at intersection of Main Avenue and Shoshone Street about 7:45 p.m. Thursday. Allen was not hurt.

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Department of Water Administration and the Intermountain region of the Forest Service announced Thursday they will co-sponsor a new Idaho river recreation safety advisory.

The river condition forecast will be issued by the National Weather Service to news media, field offices of the Forest Service, and State Fish and Game Departments, along with private ranches and Forest Service guard stations at entry points.

The warning system, which grew out of winter meetings of various federal and state agencies and boatmen of the Idaho Outfitters and Guides Association, was formed to prevent accidents and fatalities such as those occurring last spring when boatmen put into the main Salmon and Middle Fork Salmon rivers during a period of extremely hazardous high water.

The condition forecast will relate the existing river stage to the weather forecast in the foreseeable future, the measure of water in the snowpack in the watersheds, and a sizeup of the potential hazard made by experienced boatmen and others who use the rivers for recreation.

Cooperating agencies include the National Weather Service, the U.S. Geological Survey, the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, the Idaho Fish and Game Department, the Idaho Department of Parks, the Idaho Department of Commerce and Development, the Idaho Outfitters and Guides Licensing Board, the Idaho Outfitters and Guides Association, and the Upper Salmon River Boatmen's Association.

Those involved with the project indicated the middle fork of the Salmon River was hazardous at all times, but rated various river segments as follows:

—Dagger Falls to Pistol Creek: Unusually hazardous during high and low water stages, but decidedly dangerous during high water to craft less than 18 feet long.

—Pistol Creek to the Bernard guard station: The widest and mildest section of the river, decidedly dangerous during high water to craft less than 10 feet long since there is little chance to abandon the river except by trail after leaving Bernard.

—And Bernard to the mouth of the river: The most hazardous segment and the least accessible, it is dangerous during high water to all craft and especially to craft less than 18 feet long.

Pickup crashes building Suspension list for area given

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls motorist escaped injury late Thursday but his 1963 pickup truck was heavily damaged when he swerved across the main intersection of downtown Twin Falls and crashed into the City Drug Co. building.

City police said William Horace Allen, 24, Twin Falls, was charged with driving while intoxicated following the accident.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $300.

Police reported the driver was crossing Shoshone Street on Main Avenue going west when he suddenly swerved to the right and collided with the corner of the building. Damage to the building was slight, police said.

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Department of Law Enforcement has released the listing of drivers whose licenses were suspended during April.

Those from Magic Valley are:

Blaine County: John T. Plumer, Halley, reckless driving.

Cassia County: Eugene C. Hernandez, Burley (suspension time completed); Nelda J. Hutchison, Malta, and Rex H. Martin, Burley, all for driving while under the influence; M. Terry Davis, Burley, and James L. Thurston, Burley, (suspension time completed), both for drag racing; Terry L. Elquist, Burley, (suspension time completed), accumulation of violation points; Richard T. Brown, Burley, (suspension time completed), failure to appear; Jesse L. Roncher, Burley, revocation until test completed.

Gooding County: Lonnie D. Watts, Gooding, reckless driving; Saul K. Cook, Gooding, driving with a restricted license; Danny J. Burnum, Gooding, (suspension time completed), driving with a suspended license, and Vernon J. Cox, Hagerman, habitual violator.

Jerome County: John Burdett, Jerome, and Darwin G. Shulson, Jerome, both for driving while under the influence; Lonnie C. Walz, Jerome, (suspension time completed), reckless driving; Enny R. Johnson, Jerome, accumulation of violation points, and David E. Handy, Jerome, (suspension time completed), violation of restriction.

Lincoln County: Donald Elmer Helken, Dietrich, driving while under the influence, and Robert Martin Crandall, Shoshone, (suspension time completed), violation of restriction.

Minidoka County: Glenn N. Caudle, Rupert, twice for driving while under the influence; Douglas, E. Nelson, Rupert, (suspension time completed), driving while license suspended, and Joseph A. Marcotto, Rupert, (suspension time completed), accumulation of violation points.

Twin Falls County: Troy Lee Broner, Castelford; Bonifacio Duran, Buhl; Joseph M. Special meet sighted

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah House Speaker Richard C. Howe, D - Salt Lake said Thursday he hoped a special session of the Utah legislature would be called by the end of June.

Howe, a member of the Utah Legislative Reapportionment Committee, said "I personally hope we can have it in the latter part of June."

He added that the committee's deadline for reapportioning the state was the first of next year.

In a news conference at the capital Howe and Sen. Douglas C. Bischoff R-Salt Lake said a majority of the reapportionment committee felt that reapportionment plans were not far enough along to have a special session on May 24.

"The governor agreed to delay calling the special session," said Howe.

The legislature must reapportion itself to comply with the Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote ruling. The special 10-man committee composed of five senators and five representatives has met four times to consider reapportionment plans.

Rep. Howe outlined two plans for the House, one providing for 69 members and one providing for 65 members. He said that the 65 member house came closer to the one man one vote requirement but that the 69 member house would probably be more acceptable to the people in the state's rural areas.

Sen. Bischoff described two plans for the Senate, one with 29 seats and one with 31 seats. Both plans violate the Utah State Constitution by crossing county lines to form senate districts.

"By the second meeting," he said, "the committee decided that we must cross county lines to meet the requirements handed down by the Supreme Court."

When asked if an amendment to the Utah Constitution was necessary, Howe said, "The possibility exists that the state constitution is already null and void because of the court ruling."

He also told newsmen that if the special session reconsidered a 4 to 4 cent sales tax increase to aid municipalities, there was a "possibility that with some modification it could pass the House."

However, Sen. Bischoff said the prospects looked dim for its passing the Senate.

On the 18-year-old vote question, Howe said "It is my guess that if the legislature meets in the next month it will pass."

After that, he said, it may be academic since 28 states have already ratified a Constitutional Amendment lowering the age nationally.

Educational program explained to realtors

SHOSHONE — An explanation of the new educational program to be carried out in the state of Idaho for the real estate business was given by George Haney, Twin Falls, to members of the North Side Board of Realtors Wednesday at the Oxbow Cafe, Bliss.

The other main event of the evening was awarding of the "Realtor of the Year" plaque to Harrell A. Thorne, Shoshone. Edgar Dryden, Jerome, was chairman of the selection committee, assisted by Phil Hurrell, Wendell, and Harvey Iverson, Gooding. Roger Brown, Wendell, was program chairman.

Haney gave background information on the current fund being accumulated for the educational program, made possible by legislative action to eliminate the real estate bond system and allowing setting up of a recovery fund type of protection for services of real estate personnel to customers.

Haney said the committee is attempting to gear the state education program to a position of the primary type—training—and listed some of the goals such as phaseout of the certificate program and obtaining instructors for the seminars for next February's first classes. He said "There is no substitute for knowledge and professionalism," and said the next five years will see tremendous growth in Idaho.

Mrs. Dale Standee, Jerome, secretary, read the qualifications and gave background on Thorne's nomination as Realtor of the Year for the board. He entered the real estate business in 1956, combining it with his insurance agency. Thorne taught school for 20 years, 14 at Shoshone with seven years as high school principal. He along with seven other members of his family, have given more than 100 years to the teaching profession, most of them in Idaho school systems.

Active in community life, Thorne has served as a Boy Scout leader, been secretary and president of Shoshone Chamber of Commerce, president of the North Side Communities, Inc., president of Shoshone Rotary club, held various positions in the LDS Church, currently serving as state Sunday school superintendent. Affiliated with him as sales personnel in the Thorne Agency are Herbert Thorne, Murtaugh, and Mrs. Ann Wilson, Wendell.

May 25 was announced as the spring real estate clinic at Burley. President Ray Assendrup, Jerome, encouraged both agents and salesmen to attend.

Jim Muffley, Gooding, reported on passage of the landlord's lien law by the legislature, stating it was the exact wording of the bill sponsored by the North Side Board of Realtors. Copies of this bill were distributed. It will give protection to landlords in handling of undesirable tenants, he pointed out.

The next meeting will be at Hagerman.

On The Collision Course

WASHINGTON — The dangerous collision course being travelled by President Nixon and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California was dramatized in an emotion-charged telephone conversation Wednesday between Reagan and one of the President's most loyal California supporters.

The Governor, absolutely frantic about developments in his quarrel with Washington over legal services for the poor, placed the call to a liberal Republican who long has been a steadfast Nixon man: state Assemblyman William T. Bagley. Federal "bureaucrats," charged Reagan, were driving a wedge between him and Mr. Nixon. Bagley retorted bluntly that the Governor's criticism was hurling the President in California.

Reagan's intensity of feeling underscored a risky dilemma for the President. Unless Reagan agrees to a face-saving compromise on legal services, Mr. Nixon will be faced with either humiliating surrender by repudiating his own subordinates or dangerously alienating the Governor.

At stake is far more than legal services. Mr. Nixon cannot carry California in 1972 if Reagan is recalcitrant, and failure to carry California would mean failure to be reelected. Consequently, the White House has tried everything to avoid a confrontation with Reagan.

The upshot was Reagan's May 5 letter to the President attacking "bureaucrats" and his telephone call the same day to Assemblyman Bagley, then attending a session of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee. The Governor's immediate cause for displeasure was Ways and Means approval, Bagley concurring, of a bill to abolish the state OEO (which is headed by a former John Birch Society member).

But early in the half-hour conversation, Reagan got to what really bothered him. "Nixon and I are like peas in a pod," he told Bagley, adding his problem was with bureaucrats — "all the bureaucrats, right up to and including Jack Veneman." He referred to fellow-Californian John G. Veneman, Under Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, who has been jousting with Reagan over welfare regulations. Reagan's implications: Mr. Nixon ought to either rein in or fire these offending bureaucrats.

That is why the White House on Jan. 30 ordered Mr. Nixon's antipoverly chief — Frank Carlucci, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) — not to override Reagan's veto of funding for the highly aggressive California Rural Legal Assistance (CRLA). That decision went against Carlucci's own inclinations; the "compromise" worked out was a six-month temporary funding of CRLA with an investigating commission appointed.

A few shrewd Presidential staffers speculated this only postponed trouble, and they were right. Reagan has charged the commission (consisting of three respected state judges from outside California) is not functioning as agreed upon and he has called on its members to resign. High OEO officials claim Reagan's aides were advised well in advance of how the commission would function.

A possible reason for the disagreement can be traced to Mr. Nixon himself. In private

The Package

On May 11, 1946, a package arrived in Le Havre, France — the small beginning of an operation destined to involve every continent on the globe, touch the lives of hundreds of millions and, a quarter-century later, still be engaged in a never-finished mission.

It began just six months after V-E Day. The devastation of Europe was tremendous. Millions of people were refugees. Houses, factories, entire cities were destroyed. The task facing governments was a tremendous one, and the U. S. government was to play a major role in the rebuilding of Europe.

But Americans and Canadians wanted a way to send direct aid to friends and relatives and to needy people in general. CARE was their answer.

Down through the years, since inception, hundreds of Magic Valley residents have participated in this outstanding program.

CARE was incorporated in November, 1945, by 22 major American voluntary service agencies. One of its first acts was to purchase 2.8 million 10-in-one packs from the U.S. Army. Each contained enough food to feed one soldier for 10 days or 10 soldiers for one day.

For $15, donors could buy a pack, designate the person to whom it was to be sent and obtain a receipt from him.

As the supply of 10-in-ones dwindled in a flood of requests, CARE began designing and producing its own food parcels, creating special packages for the differing nationalities of Europe, as well as packages of clothing and household articles.

Today, the CARE mission in Greece is the only one remaining in Europe. But CARE continues to feed people. This year alone it will send enough food overseas to feed 25 million people each day.

Through its Self Help program, the organization is helping East Pakistanis rebuild 10,000 homes destroyed by last fall's monsoon, and doing the same for 600,000 Peruvians left homeless after the disastrous earthquake of May, 1970.

Under another service called MEDICO, visiting volunteer specialists from the United States and Canada spend one-month tours of duty abroad teaching and treating in their specialties.

In its 25 years of operation, CARE has fed more than half a billion men, women and children. The value of goods shipped to all its missions since they were opened totals $1.2 billion.

New Forests

You've heard of breakfast cereals "shot from guns"—but trees!

In one of the rare examples of man replacing machines, foresters in Georgia-Pacific's tree farms are literally shooting new trees out of guns.

The machine in this case is the helicopter, once hailed as the most effective way to reseed harvested forest-lands on a mass scale. The gun is a special "inertia" gun, which does an even better job.

Instead of seeds, the gun fires two-inch seedlings encapsulated in fertilized "bullets" into the ground.

One man on foot can plant up to 2,500 trees a day.

The new method permits transplanting of vigorous seedlings from nursery stock and allows more natural spacing. It also eliminates losses of seeds to birds or the need to treat them against rodents.

With better trees, low mortality and a head start, it is believed that the growth cycle may be reduced from the present 40 years to 35. In the face of this country's increasing consumption of trees and tree products, that's good news.

Wasted

The problems of the underprivileged, the undereducated — in a word, the underqualified — to find decent employment are bad enough.

But now it is the "overqualified," too, who are being forced to turn to the relief rolls.

"Overqualified" is, in fact, the word more and more professional people are hearing from placement services and company personnel officers, particularly scientists and engineers affected by federal cutbacks in defense and aerospace spending and the economic slump in certain industries.

They are "overqualified," they are told, when in desperation they apply for lower-paying jobs demanding lesser skills and education.

—It is a predicament both for those looking for employment and for potential employers.

MR. SPECTATOR

Give Her A Degas

Diamonds may be a girl's best friend but these days chances are she'd gladly settle for a work of art. With Van Goghs going for better than a million, Rembrandts topping two million, and a small Degas sculpture drawing down $380,000 or so, who would blame her?

Except, possibly, the girl-friend she may have beaten out.

The soaring value of masterpieces is understandable (and Mr. Spectator says this with his tongue in his cheek.) After all, art is a prime product in the free flowing field of supply and demand, because there are no factories capable of grinding out new models that make the old ones obsolete.

Certainly tastes change, and art-fads come and go. For example, a canvas by Picasso that was all the rage a few years ago didn't draw a buyer at a recent sale. Then, too, the risk of getting stuck with a forgery is ever present.

late Dutch painter Han Van Meegeren, who collected $2.8 million for eight false Vermeers, and De Hoochs that rolled off his easel. And the experts of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, confessed they unknowingly were housing at least one fake sculpture and several canvasses of dubious pedigree.

But even the stock market's managers have to agree that life is full of risks, as are all investments. The nice part of dabbling in art, there's so much to enjoy along the way.

And so with that thought Mr. Spectator leaves you to return to his brush!

Mess Hall Wasps

WASHINGTON — There was so much publicity attached to the announcement last week when the U. S. Navy promoted its first black officer to rear admiral that little attention was paid to another breakthrough in rigid Navy tradition. With no little pride the Navy announced that it had appointed its first while Anglo-Saxon Protestant our officers' galley's are staffed by the best men available, regardless of race, creed or color.

The public information officer then introduced Seaman Jones to the press. Jones read a statement: "I am very proud to be the first one of my race to be selected by the U. S. Navy to serve in an officers' mess. For many years WASP seamen were only allowed to work in gunnery, engines, aviation, navigation and radar. We were not permitted to work in the pantry. I believe this policy, which has now been changed, will benefit not only my brother WASPs, but the U.S. Navy as well."

Seaman Jones was asked if he expected to find any hostility among the other mess boys.

"Perhaps at first, but I'm going to prove that WASPs can do anything Filipinos can. I feel I represent every white Anglo-Saxon Protestant whose dream it has been for 192 years to serve in Navy officers' messes on land as well as on sea. This is a golden opportunity, and I plan to make the most of it."

After the press conference Seaman John Paul Jones VII was taken to the White House, where President Nixon presented him with a white mess jacket and an aluminum tray. Witnessing the scene was Jones' father, a retired U.S. Navy admiral, who at the end of the ceremony broke into tears.

ANDREW TULLY

About Sports

WASHINGTON — Since I am neither psychiatrist nor college president, I am specially qualified to offer an objective judgment on the question of why so many college students behave like French culturers, with a helping of Skid Row. They learn the ropes at Old P. U., notably in the department of athletics.

This opinion is submitted in reply to more than 50 letters from anguished readers wondering why collegians do not avail themselves of the wholesome therapy of campus sports instead of scampering naked around Hell City, practicing arson. The answer is that sports at too many colleges are hard-nosed Big Business, operated and served by characters with all the integrity of a bank embezzler.

We have lived so long with a situation that would bring a blush to shame to the visage of the most hardened Mafioso that we tend to forget the effect of its exposure on our campus cutups. I speak to the system which has made a dirty joke of the sanctity of contracts signed by college coaches and the practice of signing up high school athletes, for money, to perform as "amateurs."

Recently, the University of Oregon stole a basketball coach from the University of Pennsylvania, although the coach had a long-term contract at Penn. Joining the spirit of fun, Ivy League Penn pilfered a new coach from Boston College, his unexpired contract with B. C. notwithstanding. Meanwhile, Notre Dame helped itself to Fordham's coach.

In all three cases, suggestions that the deals smacked of practices usually pursued by dopa pushers were dismissed with the explanation that the colleges had permission to negotiate with these builders of character. Besides, there is the acknowledgment that colleges don't win many games with coaches retained against their avaricious will.

The dirty part is that there is nothing unique about these cases. It happens all the time at our holler-than-thou halls of academe, and indeed has acquired a kind of underworld legitimacy through long usage. It is why, I am sure, college athletes sign million-dollar contracts with one professional team, then jump to a club that offers a zillion smackers, with car and comely housekeeper.

With the colleges showing the way, there was little annoyance voiced in print over the case of Curt Flood, a baseball player. Flood made headlines by suing baseball over the reserve clause, as a matter of principle. But he forgot principle long enough to sign a $110,000-a-year contract with the bumbling Washington Senators, and then rejected it wholly by fleeing to Europe after collecting more than half of his annual booty. At this writing, Flood has said nothing about returning any of this dough.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Brain Test

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please send me your booklet on headaches, for which I enclose 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Also could you give me any information on an EEG test? Would that indicate tumors or cancer? — Mrs. A.B.W.

EEG is an abbreviation for electro-encephalogram, also known as a "brain wave test." While it can be useful in diagnosing some forms of headaches, its purposes go far beyond that.

The test amounts to measuring the patterns of the tiny electrical currents which are forever coursing through the brain. In that sense, it is very similar to the familiar electrocardiogram, which measures the electrical impulses in the heart.

For the EEG, a number of wires are taped to the head at various specified points. In case you are worried about it, there is no pain. In fact, there is no sensation at all, any more than there is when you have a cardiogram.

Some migrain headaches will result in recognizable EEG patterns; others won't.

So far as tumors (and cancers are one form of tumor) are concerned, the EEG is valuable not only in identifying them but in indicating the exact location, which of course is vital information for surgery.

Among other important uses of the EEG is diagnosing epileptic or seizure disorders by the brain wave patterns.

Since, Mrs. W., you asked for the booklet on headaches, it might be well to point out that the EEG is also of considerable value in ruling out certain conditions — it may not necessarily prove what is causing your headaches, but if it can show that certain things are not, you've narrowed the field, and that's something.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 19 and several days ago an itching sensation started in the public region. I have now discovered a rash there. Could this be serious? Please don't tell me to see a doctor as this is very embarrassing. — D. H.

Such itches as you describe are more likely to be a nuisance (perhaps a long-lasting nuisance) than something "serious."

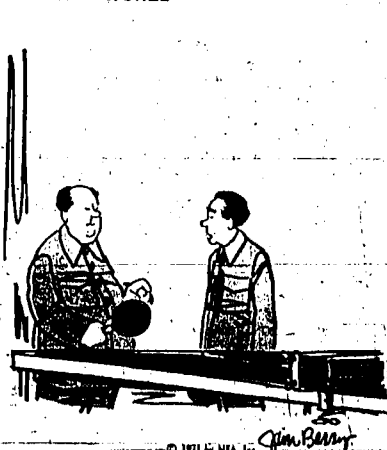

But when you say, "Don't tell me to see a doctor," you aren't being reasonable, are you? That's what doctors are for — to diagnose people's ills; and, within the range of present knowledge, take charge of curing them, or preventing them from becoming serious. This rash could result from the menstrual pad, tight underclothing, soaps — a variety of possibilities which makes it necessary to have the area inspected.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the difference between myocardial ischemia and angina pectoris? — E. P.

About the same as the difference between "cause" and "result."

Myocardial ischemia means that there is a restricted blood supply to the heart muscle. Angina pectoris is chest pain which can result when the heart muscle is not getting adequate circulation. (There may be other causes of angina, however.)

UPI Foreign News Analyst
On May 20, two small Central American countries, Honduras and El Salvador, will, it is hoped, take the first steps back from a vest pocket war which came close to wrecking the new world's most successful attempt at a common market.

The war was a four-day affair which broke out in July, 1969, as result of Honduras' eviction of Salvadorean migrants from a hundred-mile stretch of disputed border.

It cost the two countries about 1,000 dead and millions of dollars in military expenses.

It brought to a standstill new foreign investment in the Central American common market designed to integrate the economies of El Salvador, Honduras, Guatemala, Costa Rica and Nicaragua with an over-all population of 15 million.

The market had been responsible for an enormous expansion of trade among the five, going from $71 million in 1963 to $280 million in 1969.

Aside from damage to the common market, the war created special hardships for both Honduras and El Salvador.

From Honduras, some 65,000 refugees, most of them penniless, poured into already overcrowded El Salvador, a tiny nation about the size of Vermont, creating a major unemployment problem.

Against El Salvador, Honduras also applied an economic blockade, among other things cutting off the Pan American Highway, blocking overland routes between El Salvador and Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

The action hurt Honduras more than it did El Salvador which substituted air and sea routes for the highway and found other markets for the $22 million in goods it normally sold to Honduras.

Honduras, on the other hand, proved unable to find other markets for the beans, corn and other agricultural products it normally sold to El Salvador.

Stans lauds expansion

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Commerce Department issued reports today showing upward trends in the gross national product and corporate profits and Secretary Maurice Stans declared the economy "is well launched on a major business expansion."

The reports showed that the gross national product—the total output of goods and services—rose more in the first quarter of this year than previously estimated and that business profits rebounded upward from a 1970 fourth quarter decline.

The developments, Stans said in a statement was "solid confirmation of the strong resurgence of the U.S. economy."

Other signs also "point to vigorous economic growth in the second quarter," he declared.

Stans added that a number of factors "clearly point the way to a rapidly expanding economy in the months ahead (and) show clearly that the economy is well launched on a major business expansion."

"One of the most important is retail sales, which have risen substantially for four consecutive months," he said. "Furthermore preliminary data indicates that the uptrend continued through April and into early May."

Officials said the rebound in corporate profits resulted largely from the economic recovery after settlement of last fall's General Motors strike.

The report said after-tax profits rose during the first three months to an annual rate of $47.5 billion, an increase of $6 billion.

The department also reported that gains in economic activity during the first quarter helped to increase treasury receipts and reduce an anticipated deficit.

Anti-war battle moves inside

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Demonstrations against the war in Vietnam shifted from the streets of the capital city to the staid Senate floor this week.

Last week's demonstrators wore ragged, shaggy, impetuous, lean and young.

This week's are mostly impeccably clad and barbered. They are polite, flabby and middle-aged to elderly.

The lawful assemblies of the young frequently turned into illegal disruptions. Thousands were arrested for their efforts to interfere with the processes of government in protest against the war.

The senators assembled legally, too. They never acted illegally in any sense of the word. But their aim is the same as that of the young: stopping the war through disruption and interference.

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, has vowed to disrupt the draft by filibuster—a form of legislative violence that disrupts and interferes with orderly parliamentary processes.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., joins Gravel in this move to kill the draft. But if that effort fails, McGovern has proposed raising the minimum age for selective service from 18 to 20.

McGovern even once suggested that if Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., supported the war so much, maybe he should personally lead the troops in Indochina. He also suggested that generals be required to spend a specified amount of time dodging bullets at the front—the same as conscripts.

The young demonstrators tried to block the doors of the Internal Revenue Service to prevent bureaucrats from collecting taxes for prosecution of the war.

Diplomacy need on Peoria visit

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI)—Former Ambassador John Kenneth Galbraith will need all the diplomacy he can muster if he ever comes to Peoria.

This city of 140,000 is smarting from what it considers an insult by the noted economist while he addressed a women's liberation group in London.

Galbraith was quoted as telling the group:

"So often in the states I've seen a first-class woman scholar fall in love with a man who has half her brains ... (and) he takes her off to Gallup, N.M., or Peoria, Ill. In effect, he drags her down to his level of intellectual incompetence." Peoria Mayor E. Michael O'Brien was incensed about what he considered Galbraith's slur on the intellectual climate of his city.

"I certainly don't think women become intellectual dullards because they come here," O'Brien said.

Asked why he thought Galbraith might have picked Peoria as such an example, O'Brien said, "I don't know. I'm sure it wasn't because he's ever been here."

The mayor said the city has an orchestra, arts, ballet, theater, Bradley University, and many other cultural interests to offer.

who learned his prejudices from childhood. Archie is a reflexive figure. I think there's some hope for him but probably not much."

O'Connor is a pleasant, intelligent man born in New York, educated in Ireland who lives in Hollywood, Manhattan and Rome.

In researching the role of Archie Bunker, O'Connor delved into the personalities of friends and acquaintances. As well as drawing in his own experience with the cliches of bigotry, finding what humor there is in the casual slur, the blind animosity, the ignorance of hate.

"I know a lot of Archie's," the actor said. "He's a composite of a half-dozen men I know."

"The producers are liberal with me as far as the script goes. I can throw in my own inflections and ideas."

"I was brought up in New York City so I know the breed of bigots pretty well. New York is the most poisonous community in this country as far as bigotry is concerned."

O'Connor has little in common with the blunt, uneducated, dictatorial Archie.

The actor's blue eyes are soft and kindly. He adopted an Italian child and is raising the youngster to be proud of his heritage.

"I hope there isn't a little of Archie in everyone," O'Connor said. "But that is wishful thinking. Naturally our show gets lots of mail, but only one letter in a hundred is filled with hate. The rest is encouraging or simply fan mail."

Calley case ethics due airing

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Notes to watch television by: The Headliners: A one-hour broadcast examining the ethical and political issues of the case of Army Lt. William Calley, and the reactions to the court-martial decision, will be presented by ABC-TV on Sunday afternoon, May 23 ... title of the hour is "The Calley Case: A Nation's Agony," and Edward P. Morgan will be moderator of the panelists on hand.

Rock Hudson will star as the police commissioner of San Francisco next season in a new NBC-TV series, "McMillan and Wife," which is one of three alternating 90-minute shows that comprise a weekly entry called "Mystery Movie" ... Sonny and Cher, the husband and wife singing team, star in a weekly one-hour summer variety series beginning on CBS-TV Aug. 1.

Jimmy Stewart, who has a new half-hour series on NBC-TV in the fall, will also star on the network next season in a major adaptation of the wonderfully poignant and droll play about a lovable boozier, "Harvey" ... The producer of Stewart's series, by the way, says the actor refuses to have a laugh track on his weekly show and that there won't be one.

Another major special on NBC-TV next season will be an adaptation of the old comedy "The Man Who Came to Dinner" ... The network will also offer a new production of the Pulitzer Prize play "All the Way Home," based on James Agee's book "A Death in the Family," and starring Joanne Woodward and Richard Kiley in the tale of Tennessee people in 1915 who must surmount a tragic accident that befalls the husband of the house.

Dave Garrow will be the host of the summer series "The CBS Newcomers," which bows in July 12 with a weekly hour of variety and comedy featuring performers discovered in a 56-city talent hunt ... The show, formerly titled "New TV Faces" ... NBC-TV will rerun two George C. Scott acting vehicles next season, "The Price" and "Jane Eyre."

David Brinkley, who hasn't done many specials since his excellent old "Journal" series, will be chief correspondent of four Xerox-sponsored programs — in September and December, 1971, and March and June, 1972 — that, according to the network, "will reflect the pace of events of the preceding three months and attempt to isolate those events that might bear heavily on our future."

Rites set

BOISE (UPI)—The 38th annual commencement at Boise State College will be held in Bronco Stadium Sunday at 5 p.m., with 455 baccalaureate degrees and 135 one- and two-year diplomas and certificates to be awarded.

Diplomas will be presented by members of the state board of education and Dr. John Barnes, president of the school.

Gem panel accepts settlement

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Personnel Commission agreed Thursday to accept a settlement which names the jobs of administrators of the communications division and management services as political offices.

In doing so, the commission, polled by telephone, agreed two men dismissed from the jobs Jan. 18 would be able to collect back pay after resigning. Charges of incompetency, inefficiency and negligence against the men will be withdrawn, and they will be instead commended for their service to the state.

George Murphy, director of the Personnel Department, said he contacted Leonard A. Munther, Idaho Falls, commission chairman, E.B. Newsome, Moscow, and Blaine Evans, Boise, by telephone and received their assent to the stipulation.

Murphy said because of the settlement, the directors of the budget, management services, communications and building services will all be political spots since the Idaho code wording is the same in each instance.

Presently, only the job of building services is filled. The Idaho code wording provides for appointment to the jobs by the director of administrative services with the approval of the governor.

Ray Clovis, former director of the management services division, will be allowed to resign as of and receive pay to Feb. 12. Delbert E. Colwell, former director of the communications division, will be allowed to resign as of and collect back pay to Feb. 25.

Robert Lenaghan, acting director of administrative services who dismissed both Clovis and Colwell Jan. 18, said Thursday as soon as the Personnel

Commission determined whether to accept the settlement he would "consider stabilizing the department of communications."

Earlier in the day, KBOI radio and television station, Boise, reported a former Idaho newsman now working for a Washington, D.C. radio station is expected to be named director of communications.

The station said Barrett Rainey, a former newsman for KBOI and for KID in Idaho Falls and Pocatello, was in line for the appointment.

Rainey, who is working for WTOF in Washington, D.C., was press secretary to Gov. Cecil D. Andrus when Andrus made his first run for the governor in 1968.

Lenaghan said he had interviewed "several people" for the vacant post, including Rainey.

Presently Al Balzar is acting director of the communications division.

When Clovis and Colwell were dismissed, they appealed to the Personnel Commission, claiming both jobs were under the state's merit system.

Lenaghan, contending the posts were political offices, filed charges of incompetency, negligence and inefficiency against both.

Herman J. McDevitt, Pocatello attorney for Lenaghan, and Robert M. Robison, Boise, former attorney general and attorney for Clovis and Colwell, agreed on a stipulation settlement May 6.

Under the settlement, Clovis and Colwell will agree their jobs were in fact political offices and both will agree to not become actively engaged in the work of the former divisions.

In return, charges will be dropped against both men and all records showing the charge will be withdrawn from Idaho Personnel Commission files. In place, both Clovis and Colwell's resignations will be filed.

Charged in death

POLICE have charged Vincent Terry, 18, below, with the fatal shooting of Elizabeth Feeley, 21, above, model who was gunned down in her apartment Monday by a robber who made off with two pounds of marijuana and $200 in cash. Terry surrendered late Wednesday after he learned he was being sought for questioning in connection with several other crimes. Miss Feeley was fatally wounded in the neck when a gunman forced his way into her apartment and demanded she turn over marijuana one of her roommates had purchased. (UPI)

Log drive moves toward Orofino

OROFINO, Idaho (UPI)—The rearing crew on the last whitewater sawlog drive in the country began working out of Elk Creek camp 15 miles east of here after pulling into the area late Wednesday.

Potlatch Forests Inc. is in the midst of its 40th and last log drive on the north fork and main Clearwater rivers in northern central Idaho. By this fall the bypass tunnel at Dworshak dam four miles east of here will be closed, effectively blocking any further drives.

After the first few days the drive, which is expected to move 51-million board feet of sawlogs to the PFT holding ponds at Lewiston at the confluence of the Snake and Clearwater rivers, has moved smoothly with high water aiding the drivers.

Wine sales cleared

OROFINO (UPI) — The Orofino City Council Wednesday night passed an ordinance allowing the sale of wine in grocery stores effective July 1.

The Clearwater County Commissioners earlier approved a similar ordinance after the state legislature passed a law allowing someone other than the state liquor dispensaries to sell table wines.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
NOTICE IS GIVEN THAT THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, will hold a public hearing at the City Hall, 321 Second Avenue East, Twin Falls, Idaho, on May 17, 1971, at the hour of 8:00 p.m. to consider the Urban Renewal Plan of the Urban Renewal Agency of the City of Twin Falls for the redevelopment and rehabilitation of the Four Parks Project, Project No. Idaho R-1, the boundaries of which are hereinafter described. Said plan proposes to demolish buildings and other improvements; to install, construct, or reconstruct streets, utilities and other site improvements; to prepare such land for use consistent with the general plan of the City of Twin Falls; and to make the land available for the development and redevelopment by private enterprise or public agencies authorized by law. (Within the project area, some present streets are to be abandoned and new streets created; certain utility lines of the adjacent land and to provide for better traffic circulation.) The urban renewal area will be devoted to light industrial uses in accordance with the general plan and will eliminate the existing non-conforming and varied uses; substandard, obsolescent, and deteriorated structures; and irregular and inadequate lot patterns. The project area will result in a higher economic use of the land than at present and will remove existing blighted influences which constitute a serious threat to the health, safety and welfare of the present residents of such area in particular, and of the City of Twin Falls, Idaho, generally.

The project area is proposed as described as follows:
Beginning at the North corner of Block 120 of the Original Twin Falls Township subdivision of Section 16, Township 10 South, Range 17 East, thence northeasterly along the southeast right of way line of Third Street South and Third Street East a distance of 790 feet to the west corner of Block 74 of said subdivision; thence northeasterly along the northeast right of way line of Second Avenue East and Second Avenue North a distance of 1470 feet to the south corner of Block 70 of said subdivision; thence southwesterly along the northwest right of way line of Second Street North and Second Street West a distance of 790 feet to the east corner of Block 116 of said subdivision; thence southeasterly along the southwest right of way line of Second Avenue West and Second Avenue South a distance of 1470 feet to the true point of beginning.

All interested persons may file written communications concerning said Urban Renewal Plan at any time prior to 5:00 p.m. on May 17, 1971 at the office of the City Clerk in the City Hall, 321 Second Avenue East, Twin Falls, Idaho. Oral presentation of persons attending said hearing will be limited in time to accommodate all persons desiring to be heard. All persons desiring to make an oral presentation at the hearing shall advise the chairman at said hearing prior to commencement of the hearing.

The Urban Renewal Agency of the City of Twin Falls, Idaho, has heretofore adopted a "relocation plan" for said Project No. Idaho R-1, and the same is on file in the office of the Urban Renewal Agency, 131 Second Street West, Twin Falls, Idaho, and available for examination during regular business hours. Said relocation plan provides for the relocation of all persons to be displaced by the proposed Urban Renewal Plan and will be open for discussion at the hearing.

Interested persons may obtain additional information at the office of the Urban Renewal Agency of the City of Twin Falls, Idaho, 131 Second Street West, Twin Falls, Idaho, or at the office of the City Clerk, City of Twin Falls.

District Nazarene meet set in T.F.

TWIN FALLS — Plans for the 56th annual assembly of the Idaho-Oregon District Church of the Nazarene will be held in Twin Falls May 20 were announced today by Rev. Joe Chastain, local pastor.

The district assembly will continue through May 21 with sessions in the local church of the Nazarene. Dr. Eugene Stowe, one of the church's general superintendents, and formerly a resident of Nampa, will be presiding officer. Rev. Grady Cantrell, district superintendent, will be in charge of arrangements. Mrs. Robert Jackson, formerly Twin Falls, is district missionary president and Rev. Bob Miller, Nampa, church school chairman.

Delegates from more than 50 churches in the Idaho and Oregon area will be attending the assembly and special convention sessions. Rev. Chastain said.

Will of God known by living close to Him

By LARRY BROWN, Youth Minister, First Christian Church. I once heard of a woman who lived in the hills of Tennessee and being very religious, turned to her Bible every day for guidance.

So how do we find the will of God? First of all we must be sure that we WANT to find the will of our Creator. You know there are two kinds of people that seek God's will; (1) those who live in close harmony with Him, who seek fuller and deeper understanding, and (2) those who mumble around about wanting to do God's bidding while pursuing their own gain.

The will of man and the will of God is an interesting topic for discussion, even more interesting to live. I would suggest that we quit trying every new philosophy that comes along or taking flying jobs at the Bible in hopes that we will hit upon THE ANSWER and try a little honest prayer and self-analysis. I think you will discover something rather remarkable also. Man's will and God's will don't seem to have any difficulty in meshing gears either when we become enveloped in Him. I know that for a fact.

Metal for '73 Gem license plates to stretch 199 miles

BOISE — If you will imagine a half-foot wide strip of metal extending from Boise to Grangeville you will have a fair idea of the amount of aluminum needed to manufacture new Idaho license plates due in 1973. Inmates working the license-making branch of prison industries at the penitentiary will use an estimated 199 miles of aluminum, six inches wide, to make 1,084,697 plates. Manufacture of the plates, which will cost $520,946, has been started. Fred Abrams, Boise, prison industries manager, estimates the issue will be completed in 12 to 16 months. The new, green on white, reflectorized plates, the second five-year issue ordered by the legislature, will be delivered in boxed units to county assessors by Sept. 1, 1972. They will not go on sale until a month later. Inmates, Abrams said, earn from 10 to 25 cents per hour making plates, depending on their classification and job and work an eight-hour day. He estimates a minimum of $3,300 plates can be processed each working day. State law requires that license plates be manufactured by prison inmates and recently the penitentiary installed new equipment to handle the job. Most of the cost of the plates is for materials — aluminum, reflectorization and packaging — in excess of $400,000, according to Jack F. Farley, Boise, director of the Motor Vehicle Division of the Department of Law Enforcement. Vehicle owners are required to pay 50 cents per plate when new ones are obtained, which just about covers the cost of materials and manufacture, Farley added. The motor vehicle department has arranged for the new issue to be boxed numerically for each county assessor so distribution can be handled more rapidly. Plates ending in 1 will be boxed separately as will other consecutive numbers through 0, representing the months, January through October, when plates issued under the staggered system expire. New plates for passenger cars and pickups will bear the year "74" while plates issued to vehicles registered annually will display "73." Vehicle owners when obtaining the new issue will be given a license ending in the same number as plates held now so as not to interrupt issuance under the staggered system. A vehicle owner with a plate ending in "1" will get a "73" validation sticker in January, 1972, which will expire January, 1973, when he will obtain his new plate. Likewise, a motorist with a plate ending in 6 will get a "73" sticker in June, 1972, which will expire in June, 1973 when a new plate will be issued. The number of plates needed by each county assessor is determined by the department, based on previous sales. Plates are shipped to the assessor, with 120 in each box. Contemplating the new plates, the first session of the 41st Idaho Legislature decided to stay with the present color scheme, explaining the white reflectorized background is a stand-out safety feature and also that the penitentiary had a holdover supply of this reflectorized material. Regarding the manufacture of the plates, Abrams said, "It's considered to be one of the best means to finance our industries program. In addition it provides work for the inmates and allows them to earn a small wage for their efforts." The more than 1 million plates to be processed include: Passenger and pickup, 848,400; farm trucks, 57,120; rental utility trailers, 5,000; utility trailers, 51,655; house trailers, 18,700; large farm trailers, 2,205; motorcycles, 28,180; commercial trucks, 26,080; commercial trailers, 10,080; use fee, 20,600; reciprocity, 6,200; motor vehicle dealers, 8,101, and motorcycle dealers, 376.

Guerrilla life weakens writer before release

On The Other Side of the War: The Release—'Tell the Truth.'
EDITORS: In three previous dispatches, Kate Webb, UPI bureau manager in Phnom Penh, told of her capture and her life as a captive of the Viet Cong in Cambodia. In the following dispatch, the last of four, she tells of her release.

(Living guerrilla style was weakening us, especially me, daily. Our captors seemed unaffected by the tough regimen. Our release was hinted at but never promised. I began to be racked by fevers. Then suddenly, we crossed from one world to another, a world of shadow in the night to the unaccustomed glare of light, sound and noise. Symbolically, it was at dawn when we made the crossing to freedom, a lonely, hesitant and frightened group waving a white flag on Highway 4. I remembered what I had written at the time of a prisoner of war release in South Vietnam in 1968: "Their eyes look like those of sleepwalkers, but their feet tell you it was real.")

An entry in my scrap paper journal: "Monday, April 26. Ache all over, cold with fever. Still no cigarettes. Fever cold as cold. Wrapped in mine and Saz mosquito nets. UPZ over funk radio says PP rocketed. Helos over again. Spend 30 mins trencher. Gap Toth says release in three days, but secret. I figure that a deliberate leak to get something out of us. Eyes burning with fever."

That evening we sat in a circle in the dark listening to Radio Hanoi news. Several of the officers came down to ask how I felt, shining their flashlights at me. The doctor had given me a tiffmynch tablet after Toshiichi Suzuki had called him.

The interpreter I called Mr. Liberation squatted beside me in the dark. "You must do your best to keep your health," he said. I nodded, thinking of the malaria case I had seen passing on one of the marches; delirious screams coming from a poncho litter. It was becoming more difficult to force my mind into reality.

Tea Kim Heang, the freelance photographer whom we called Moonface, moved beside me, guessing my state of depression. "Ba tangal," he whispered. (Cambodian for "three days.") He put his finger to his lips and jerked his head at the guard we called Gap Toth. He fingered a bracelet I had woven out of vines and threads from a peasant scarf they had given me and pulled more vines from the trees around us to make me a necklace.

The following day, April 27, Dad, the man assigned to answer mine and Suzuki's questions, said we would be released. We had been talking of Shanouk all morning, hunched over the bamboo table in our shelter. "Bunker" and "Ky" two of the camp dogs, dozed under our hammocks. My fever was down. But I was still wrapped in mosquito nets and Suzuki's shirt which he had discarded because of the heat.

"You will be released at Trapeang Krallang on Highway 4," Dad told us. "The Liberation Front will assure your safety. You will have two sets of clothing, and 300 rolls (between $5 and $8) each for transport. If that is not enough, you must not be afraid to tell us. Your personal possessions will be returned, but according to the rules, your cameras will be taken."

Suzuki and I were silent. Dad did not seem puzzled or surprised. Our release had been hinted at earlier, but not mentioned again. "Are you satisfied? Have you anything to say?" he asked. We simply nodded. "Cam on," we said (Vietnamese for "thank you.") I wondered if the cameras were being given to the Khmer Rouge as a ransom for our safety. I thought it probable, but said nothing.

Another journey entry: "Wed. 28th. Wrapped up with burning head and shivers all day. Cambodians say bath means release. Doctor gives me four pills and head rub. Scolds me for taking bath. Try to force food. Must eat. Getting too weak, can't even walk to John without floating head. Long slow day. Dad goes thru list of possessions, but says no more. Suzuki is betting on May 1. We discuss northerners and southerners."

"A day seemed like weeks before, now it seems like years," Sarah said. He was right.

But although we were to walk two more days, our official release came the next (Thursday) morning.

The guards woke us before 5 o'clock, earlier than usual. Mr. Lib arrived and said, "put on your new clothes. The officer of the high command is up here." I emerged from the bath house in a new green uniform they had given me and Sarah said, "pack, miss, everything."

Each of us was given a small green cloth bag and I packed "everything"—the torn shirt and jeans I had been captured in, the necklace Moonface had made for me, my black pajamas, toothbrush and toothpaste. "Hammock and mosquito net, too," Mr. Lib ordered.

We stared at each other. Was it release or just another long march? At 9 o'clock we were photographed, individually and in a group, by a man Mr. Lib confided was a "very high ranking officer." Mr. Lib was flustered and nervous, although it is not Communist habit to salute or show deference to officers. We discussed the value of a camera lens with the officer as he squatted beside us. Mr. Lib was mistranslating in his nervousness.

We then were taken to the tree-hidden shelter where we had been interrogated. Wooden benches were arranged in a semi-circle before a table covered with the traditional green and white checkered cloth.

The squat old military man who had been in the background during our interrogation presided. Before him lay a sheet of documents—the official orders from the Southwest Command for the release of four journalists and two driver-interpreters, according to the humane principles of the Liberation Armed Forces.

We felt awkward in our new clothes. The high command representative cleared his throat, put on his spectacles and looked up. He seemed weary and read the order slowly.

Translations were read to us and when the sections about the "humane" policies were read we were signalled to applaud. We did.

More group photographs followed before we returned for our personal possessions. I was handed back my purse, watch, a Chinese charm I wear around my neck, my ring, aspirin, wallet and id cards. Nothing was missing. I signed for them, and for the 300 rolls they gave each of us for transportation. "You now have the opportunity to say thank you," Mr. Liberation informed us, producing his tape recorder.

Suzuki took the microphone and thanked them in English. Moonface followed, in Cambodian, then me and Charoon. We shook hands all around, the officers included, and plates of bananas and candy and tea were placed on the table. We also were given a full package of cigarettes each.

We asked about other journalists (there are 17) missing in Cambodia. The command representative looked almost embarrassed, I thought. The Liberation Forces could not be held responsible for journalists who followed. The Lon Noi troops, he said, it sounded like a warning. Suzuki and I pressed the question. He repeated that it was the policy of the Liberation Front never to kill prisoners, but said that in the southwest region he had no knowledge of other captive journalists.

I felt a sense of failure. It was at 5:40 p.m. that evening under a sickle moon that we moved out on the first leg of the last lap to freedom. The entire camp turned out to shake hands and say goodbye. We were photographed together with the officers, then moved off into the dusk, turning to wave. From 20 yards away, the camp looked like just another clump of trees.

We were not tied. The men carried rice in scarves slung around their necks, and also their "release bags." There were, as usual, six guards—Dad, Dave, Gold Tooth, Mr. Lib, The Teacher and one of the members of the new party that had arrived in camp. The Cambodians were told that if we walked fast it would take one night instead of two to reach Highway 4.

I was told I was walking "very well" and that I must keep doing my best. My head was swimming, my hair and new suit drenched with sweat. At the next rest stop we simply leaned against one another backs, too tired to sit.

We saw what looked like a town, with scores of bright lights, but it was villagers fishing for crabs and frogs in the flooded but shallow paddy fields by the light of oil flares. Gold Tooth and Dad joked with them and bought four live frogs, which croaked behind me the rest of the march. (They ate them for breakfast the next morning, roasted over a fire on a bamboo skewer.)

I fell at least three times despite Dad's flashlight. Finally, he stopped and gave me his Ho Chi Minh sandals, put them on my feet, and took my shower shoes. The Ho sandals had curved rubber sticking out in front to protect the toes and were much more comfortable, aside from protecting one from thorns, scorpions and bamboo spikes. Greater love hath no man, I thought.

Dad seemed to have difficulty, too, walking in the shower shoes. They either mud stuck them off, and he began to tear them apart. He decided to carry them and walked barefoot. It was past midnight and we were exhausted when he handed Suzuki and me lumps of fudge-like sugar. A thick patch of jungle was our camp. The Teacher had strung my hammock and I fell into it.

It rained that day and we amateurishly strung ponchos over our hammocks. Moonface caught an inch-long thorn in his heel and went straight to Dad with a confidence that amused me. Dad dug it out for him.

We were scared. Even the guards seemed nervous. There was fighting about 300 yards away near the end of the march, with flares and the crash of mortars. We skirted villages and the guards held long consultations at each stop. Dad kept dropping out of line. He had the stomach upset known to American GIs in Vietnam as "Ho Chi Minh's Revenge."

We stopped at a place lit by the moon and flares, where straw had been stacked under a spreading tree. We were told to sleep but I didn't. The guards went off in groups and seemed to be arguing over their plans. Gold Tooth appeared out of nowhere, bringing news, and by the light of the flares over the battle on the road I could see him drawing maps in the dust for the others.

"It is time to move," Mr. Lib said. We scrambled up and in minutes were moving off again. I lit my next to last cigarette.

It was sometime after 3 a.m. We did not use flashlights. We stopped suddenly on what I thought was a new trail. The Teacher was whispering in Cambodian, we were shaking hands, wishing good luck to each other. Then the six of us were alone in the dark. "Where are we?" I asked Sarah.

"Highway 4, but not at Trapeang Krallang. Quick, we must move from this place. The soldiers say we must move."

"Still we stood. The Teacher appeared from somewhere behind us. "Move," he whispered, then disappeared. We moved about 500 yards, our shower shoes making a loud flapping sound on the road. I walked in front because you have a white face," as agreed beforehand.

We argued about moving to a nearby abandoned house with old foxholes around it. The guards had said to wait until after the government armored road-clearing patrol had passed. We had said we would take civilian transportation back to Phnom Penh. But we knew we were not in a town, but territory controlled by the Khmer Rouge.

Moonface won out. He took a piece of white parachute silk I had and tied it to a stick. We stripped off our gift clothing and dressed in the dark in what we had left of our civilian clothes. The pink grey dawn came slowly, illuminating an empty stretch of highway littered with spent shell casings.

Shakily, I picked up my little bag. Moonface, clad only in his torn trousers—now too large for him—raised the white parachute silk flag. The two of us stepped out onto the highway, the others shuffling behind. There was the familiar flap of shower shoes in the unfamiliar naked light of day.

Troops appeared on the crest of a hill ahead of us. We stopped and Moonface's face fell, as did the flag he was carrying. We quickly shoved it up again, snapping at him nervously.

Government or Khmer Rouge? The drag column moved slowly down the hill toward us. "Lon Noi," Sarah and Moonface said simultaneously. The approaching troops stopped, staring. We continued walking, slowly.

I could see their uniforms now and for the first time in 24 months I was able to think to hold back the tears. A first lieutenant was standing in the middle of the road.

"Journalists," we said lamely, still waving our flag high. The officer pointed at me. "Miss Webb," he said. "You're supposed to be dead."

Egyptian aide quits high post

CAIRO (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat accepted the resignation of Vice Premier and Interior Minister Sharawi Gomaa Thursday in a surprise move reported by the semi-official Middle East News Agency. It was the second shakeup in two weeks affecting a high Egyptian minister. No reason was given for the resignation of Gomaa, a cornerstone of the Egyptian government since he was named interior minister in 1966.

The semi-official agency said Sadat appointed Mahmoud Salem, governor of Alexandria, as the new interior minister and added he was sworn-in by the president immediately. Gomaa's resignation followed the Egyptian president's decision to dismiss Vice President Ali Sabry last week. But it was not immediately clear whether the two departures were connected.

Officials had announced Wednesday that Sadat was postponing for a week three official functions originally scheduled for next weekend. They involved speeches by the president in Alexandria and the "liberation province," a desert reclamation project southeast of Alexandria.

Cairo's Voice of the Arabs radio broke into its 8 p.m. newscast to make the Gomaa announcement. It came amid these other Middle East developments:

A high-ranking British Middle East expert visiting Cairo, said hostilities could break out again between the Arabs and Israel unless an over-all settlement was found to the Middle East conflict. But the official, Richard Evans, added there was still "a real hope" for a settlement.

The semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram quoted Sadat as saying there was little more than a one per cent chance for peace in the Middle East. Sadat added, according to the newspaper, that Egypt insists its troops should cross the Suez Canal under any interim settlement and "this is not negotiable."

At United Nations headquarters in New York, U.N. Middle East peace envoy Gunnar V. Jarring returned to his desk and held a meeting with Secretary General Thant on the latest developments in the Middle East.

Cadettes, Brownies fete mothers

JEROME — Jerome Cadette troop 144 and Brownie troop 451 held a special Mother's Day program to honor their mothers at the Presbyterian Church in Jerome. It was announced today.

Mrs. Barbara Stein, Cadette troop leader, gave the invocation and Mrs. Lois Hammond, Brownie troop leader, gave a formal welcome to the mothers on behalf of the troops. Mrs. Hammond thanked the mothers for all the help they have given her throughout the year on the many different projects.

Poems were read by Karen Ridley, "What Rules the World"; Paul Frederickson, "A Mothers Picture"; Shonna Walker, "Mother's Knee"; Vicki Meyers, "Mother," all from the Brownie troop, and Cadette Hanna Furberville gave the poem, "A Mother's Love."

Corsages made by the Brownie troop were presented to each mother as she was introduced by her daughter.

Candles in special holders also made by the brownies were presented to each of the mothers following refreshments served by cadette members Karen Arbaugh, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Arbaugh; Melonie Stein, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Stein; Brenda Welshans, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Welshans, and Hanna Turberville, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Laswell.

Beauty hint

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — If you have a round face, you are the recipient of a mixed blessing, according to famed beauty authority Max Factor. While the round face, more than any other shape, usually maintains its youthful appearance well into the middle years, it also may add unwanted pounds to a woman's overall appearance if it is not made up properly.

Choose a light, creamy foundation and apply it as you would normally. Then, use a darker tone to shade the area around the jawline and just under the chin to give an impression of more delicate oval contours.

To eliminate the look of any extra pounds and slim the face, highlight the cheekbone with a lighter shade of foundation or blusher. Apply a deeper tone to the area directly beneath the cheek bone.

Scholarship presented

BUHL — Sheryl Reinke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Reinke, Buhl, has been awarded the C. C. and Henrietta W. Anderson Scholarship for the 1971-72 academic year at Idaho State University.

Miss Reinke is completing her sophomore year at ISU, majoring in nursing. The scholarship in the amount of $600 will pay $300 each semester next year.

A Lovelier You

THE CARBOHYDRATE DEBATE

By Mary Sue Miller

A Lovely asks: What are the advantages of the so-called low carbohydrate diet? As I understand it, the diet allows all the meat, eggs, oils and fats you can eat, but absolutely no sugar or starch—ever. What about calories? Nutritive balance?

The Answer: Carbohydrate diets, of which there are several versions, have a medical background. Just so, before going on one, you really must seek your doctor's advice.

It is a fact that Americans overeat in the carbohydrate department. Just think how French fries and chocolate floats alone are consumed in staggering amounts. To lose weight, most approved diets call for cutting way down on starches and sweets, but not for cutting out. By the same token, oils and fats are limited.

The phrase "all you can eat" is rare in dieting of any kind. It is usually used half in jest. A diet regimen may advise you to eat all the raw spinach you want. Well, how much do you want or can you eat?

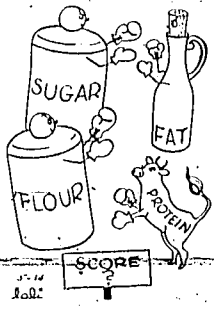

Limitations on meats, animal fats and eggs are traditionally governed by calorie counts and, where there is a problem, by cholesterol content. Those who advocate the low carbohydrate diet believe that its protein-fat equation eliminates dietary poisons along with weight.

You asked me what I think. Now, what do you think?

BURLEY — A special program was held in honor of the 152nd Anniversary of Odd Fellowship during the May meeting of Ruth Rebekah Lodge No. 107 at IOOF Hall, it was announced today.

Each branch of the order presented numbers on the program.

Kester Brady, noble grand, introduced Richard Arbogast who did magic tricks, assisted by his wife, Donna.

Mrs. Nina King, adviser for the Theta Iho Girls, presented the girls of the club wearing their blue robes in a flag drill ceremony. Jan Bennett, president, was the reader; and Lulu Rae Davis played the piano for the marches and accompanied group singing.

For the Rebekahs' part of the program, Mrs. Walter Stoller sang, accompanied by Mrs. Amy Clark at the piano. Mrs. W.H. Kenney is the noble grand. "The Last Degree" was ready by Capt. Francis Fenstermaker of the Canon.

The Ladies Auxillary Patriarchs Millant presented Delain Horn who sang, accompanied by Mrs. Clark. Mrs. LeRoy Fenton is president of the LAMP.

A reading, "The Cremation of Sam McGee" was given by Herbert Kennedy for the Entertainment. Dan Martin is the chief patriarch. William Core served as master of ceremonies.

Mrs. Frank Messenger reported on the recent rummage sale. Assisting with details of the rummage sale were Mrs. Clara Crismon, Mrs. Hazel Osterhout and Mrs. Hazel Schwaezler. Mr. Fenstermaker made the sale posters.

Mrs. King reported that 14 girls attended the Theta Iho district meeting at Idaho Falls at which time Charlene Stephan, state president, and Mrs. Dolores Carico, board member of the youth committee made their official visits. Both are from Payette.

It was also reported Mrs. Carico made her official visit in Burley during April and dinner was served by Mrs. Wilma Messenger, Mrs. Irene Clark, Mrs. Faye Gumnow and Mrs. Margaret McLean.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Gumnow, Mrs. McLean, Mrs. Sumi Abo, Mrs. Myrtle Lott, Mrs. Messenger, Mrs. Louise Tabert, Mrs. Grace Bixler and Mrs. Kennedy at the close of the special program.

Slides shown to Kiwanis

FILER — Leslie Jones showed slides of Mexico to Filer Kiwanis Club members at the weekly luncheon meeting in the fellowship hall of the United Methodist Church. Laura Louise Blake, a granddaughter of Seth Blake, played a piano solo during the program hour.

Directors met for a board meeting after the regular session.

Guests included Kenneth Jones, Dr. Fred Kallusky, Rev. Kendall North, Wendell Gannon and Glenn Waltman, all Buhl, Carl Grinstead, Ed Barker, Solen Hyde and Kip Horburgh, general manager of the Magic Valley Baseball Club.

news about the people you know

Valley Living

DEAR ABBY: Tell me honestly how a guy can concentrate in a classroom when right across from him sits a pretty girl in a see-thru blouse.

When I should be concentrating on my studies, I find my mind slipping off on an entirely different subject. Don't get me wrong, Abby, I have nothing against girls-looking sexy, but there's a time and place for everything, and I'm in college to prepare for my future. —DISTRACTED

DEAR DISTRACTED: Maybe she's in college to prepare for her future. Sublimatise and concentrate!

DEAR ABBY: My husband is due home from Viet Nam in two months. Already he has planned for us to go on a second honeymoon the day after he gets home!

We have a child, just seven months old. My husband has never seen the baby, except in pictures, so I can't understand why he wants to leave so soon without getting acquainted with his son.

I think we should leave on a later date, or else take the baby with us, but my husband already has informed me that he wants me to get a baby-sitter (either my mother or his) because he wants to go away with me alone. I know he loves me, Abby, but doesn't he love his son, too! What is your advice! —WIFE AND MOTHER

DEAR WIFE: Of course he loves his son, but that's not the kind of love he has misused for so long. Line up a baby sitter and be ready to go on that second honeymoon when your husband wants to go. Give him a first class welcome home, with no arguments.

DEAR ABBY: May I use your column to help all those kids who have dropped out of high school and wish they hadn't?

If you are a dropout and how regret it, you don't have to settle for the lowest paying job all your life, and be referred to as "uneducated." And you don't have to go back to high school for two or three years to get your diploma, either.

Every state in this country offers a high school diploma by examination. The exam is called "General Education Development" test. It is offered to everyone, and is even accepted for college entrance!

Abby, this may not be news to you, but it was news to me, and I'm sure there are thousands, maybe millions of people who have never heard of it. I learned of it thru a friend after kicking myself for five years for having dropped out of high school. Exactly two months after I heard about G. E. D. I had my high school diploma in my hand. Then I passed my college entrance exams and went on to college.

I shall be eternally grateful to the person who told me about G. E. D., and I'm sure your readers will be grateful to you if you pass on this information to them. —MARCIA

DEAR MARCIA: Count me among those who had never heard of G. E. D. I checked it out and what you say is absolutely correct. Thank you for writing. Anyone interested in getting a high school diploma may call any high school in his community and obtain the necessary information. Or write to: General Education Development Testing Service of the American Council on Education, 1 Dupont Circle, Washington, D.C. 20036.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 8700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90060. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Club collects for cancer

TWIN FALLS — A total of $335.30 was collected by the Salmon Tract Homemakers Extension Club for the Salmon Tract Cancer Drive. It was announced today by club officials.

Mrs. C. J. Boss was chairman, assisted by Mrs. Marvin Taylor, Mrs. Dwight Shaw, Pam Miller, Joni Matney, Mrs. Hobor Loughmiller, Mrs. Randy Whitney, Mrs. Howard Kinasthater, Mrs. John Courtney and Leonard Peters.

BUHL — A public meeting is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. May 21 at the statehouse, Boise, sponsored by the Idaho Commission of Federal Land Laws. It was announced at the Cedar Draw Grange May meeting.

Idahoans, with two-thirds of their state lands included in the public domain, have much at stake in congressional and executive agency actions, it was pointed out.

The Cedar Draw Grangers requested Harvey Grindstaff, legislative committee chairman, to write grange representatives to attend the hearing and advise the membership on proposed changes.

The U. S. Senate Interior Committee has scheduled a hearing for June 7 at which state and local public officials will voice their opinions. Changes in the federal land policies, as contained in Senate bills 632 and 692, were discussed at the Grange meeting.

Appreciation was expressed to John Luntey and Ray Ward for repairing the Grange hall walls and roof.

John C. Pearce reported on the estate planning meeting he attended. Scott and Steve Atkins, grandsons of Mr. and Mrs. Lon Moore, each played a piano solo and then concluded with a duet.

The entire Grange membership will attend the Buhl First Baptist Church Sunday and hold a picnic after the service, with the location to be announced, according to Mrs. John C. Pearce.

Loser named

TWIN FALLS — Zandra Funke was best loser of this week and Chris Friel the biggest winner for the Nix-On-Fix TOPS Club.

During this week's meeting, Nieves Bortia spoke on fashions, stressing the do's and don'ts.

WADE WILLIAMS

son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Williams, received the Eagle Scout rank at a court of honor at the Hollister LDS Church. W. J. Loughmiller, scoutmaster, was in charge of the program. Williams is in the eighth grade at Filer Elementary school and belongs to Scout Troop 99, sponsored by the Hollister LDS Church.

Buhl miss selected

BUHL — Anne Shields, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Shields, has been selected to participate in the Summer Science Training Program in oceanography to be conducted at the Scripps Institute, La Jolla, Calif.

Miss Shields is one of 40 students to be selected from throughout the country to participate in the program which will last six weeks from June 28 to Aug. 8. The program is made possible by a grant from the National Science Foundation.

High GPA maintained

MOSCOW — A total of 14 senior members of the University of Idaho chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta, national freshman women's honorary, have maintained a grade point average of 3.5 or better from a possible 4.0 since their freshman year.

They are Kathleen A. Brassey, Robert E. Casper and Kathleen A. Doss, all Boise; Judith A. Deatherage, Buhl; Renee E. DeShields, Demet; Patricia L. Johnson, Lewiston; Karen D. Castellaw, Linda G. Heidel, Jane Peterson, Penelope P. Williamson and Linda E. Sparks, all Moscow; Janet R. Tiley, Murtaugh.

Francie White, Wzorek wed in Jerome LDS ceremony

JEROME — Francie White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan G. White, Jerome, became the bride of Kenneth G. Wzorek, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wzorek, Chicago, Ill., in rites May 1 at the Jerome LDS Chapel.

Bishop Neal H. Perkins officiated at the double ring ceremony. Prayer was given by Wendell G. White, Marsha Lee played the prelude music and the wedding music on the organ. Mrs. Duane Alexander was soloist, accompanied by Connie Lee.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown of nylon organza accented with Chantilly lace. The chapel train was fastened at the waistline by a bow. Her bridal veil of illusion net was held by a floral headpiece. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink sweetheart roses surrounding a white orchid.

Mrs. Garry Deuel, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, with Mrs. Wendell White, sister-in-law of the bride, and Marie Wzorek, sister of the bridegroom, as ushers.

Flower girls were Debbie Deuel, Annette Deuel and Wendy Sue White, nieces of the bride.

Best man was Garry R. Deuel, Salt Lake City, with Wendell White, Denver, Colo.; Richard A. White, Murray, Utah; David L. White, Arlington, Va., and Kent White, Jerome, all brothers of the bride, as ushers.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony in the LDS Cultural Hall. Serving were Mrs. David White and Mrs. Kent White, Mrs. Myrtle Harris, assisted by April Johnson and Wendell Deuel.

Guests were registered by Mrs. Richard A. White. In charge of the gift table were Mrs. Maybon Johnson and Linda Snow.

Russians deny charge

MOSCOW (UPI)—Two defendants in the Leningrad trial of nine Jews, accused of plotting to hijack a Soviet airliner to Israel denied they were guilty of spreading anti-Soviet propaganda, Jewish sources said today.

The sources said Lev Yagman and Viktor Boguslavski admitted to preparing an underground publication titled "Exit." But they said the publication was not anti-Soviet in nature.

The information from the sources—who said they obtained it from relatives of the accused—was the first to indicate that any of the defendants disputed any part of the state's case. Most information to date has come from the Soviet news agency, Tass, which has not listed specific charges against the defendants or reported how they pleaded to the charges.

In general, the Tass accounts have dealt with admission and repentant statements of the defendants.

The sources said several defendants testified to partici-patting in the hijack plot in June, 1970. But one, Hillel Butman, testified that he changed his mind in April and attempted to convince the leader of the plot, Mark Dymshits, to abandon it.

Troop cut plan flayed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson has described as "absolutely insane" Senate Leader Mike Mansfield's proposal to tie a 50 per cent cut in U.S. troop strength in Europe to extension of the draft.

Acheson was a member of a group of 10 former State Department officials and retired generals summoned by President Nixon to map an attack upon the Mansfield proposal, which will come to a Senate vote Wednesday.

Acheson, who served President Harry S. Truman as secretary of state, said he spoke for the nine other former high-ranking officials. He said he found Nixon "adamantly against" the troop reduction proposal.

Driver counsel program ready

BOISE (UPI)—Law Enforcement Commission Chairman John Bender of Boise, said Thursday he hoped to have a new driver improvement-counseling program approved by the legislature in operation in the near future.

Rules of participation for the statewide program were approved Thursday by an advisory board. Sen. John Mix, D-Moscow, is chairman of the advisory committee.

The program will be limited to Idaho residents, except that out-of-state drivers who lose driving privileges in Idaho may be accepted into the program by special approval of the commissioner of law enforcement.

Under the program, drivers may become eligible for participation when licenses are subject to either a permissive or a mandatory suspension or revocation upon recommendations of a district court judge or magistrate or a state hearing officer

Yippie chief indicted

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A federal grand jury investigating this month's peace demonstrations in Washington has returned its first indictment—against Yippie leader Abbie Hoffman. Protest planners announced another antiwar offensive in the capital later this month.

Hoffman was charged with crossing state lines to organize and take part in a riot, and with obstructing a policeman. Both incidents allegedly happened in the May Day Week drive to shut down the government during which 12,000 persons were arrested.

The grand jury, sitting in Washington, reportedly may indict as many as a half-dozen other protest leaders. Rennie Davis and John Froines, like Hoffman defendants in the Chicago Seven conspiracy trial, already have been charged with obstructing federal employees and with interfering with the civil rights of other persons, but neither has been indicted.

Protest stings Heath

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Edward Heath's governing Conservative Party suffered stinging losses in local government elections today in what was widely interpreted as a protest vote against soaring unemployment and inflation.

In their first major popularity test since winning power in June, the Conservatives were ousted from control of 17 of London's 32 metropolitan boroughs, according to incomplete returns.

They also were swept from power in local governments in Manchester, Hull, Doncaster, Warrington and many other big industrial cities.

The voting was for City Councils in London and 350 other cities and towns in England and Wales. Voting was held in Scotland last week.

With all but 3 of 374 contests decided, the Labor Party scored net gains of 2,029 Council seats and the Conservatives suffered 1,843 net losses.

Asked if he anticipated another confrontation of the type that resulted in 1,000 arrests on the Capitol lawn May 5, Zetlow said "That's going to happen, I expect."

Another demonstration leader, Bradford Lyttle Jr., was charged Thursday with assaulting a police officer with a dangerous weapon as the result of an incident which allegedly took place May 3.

Lyttle is a coordinator of the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice. Another coordinator, Carl P. Zetlow, Thursday announced plans for large-scale demonstrations at the Capitol beginning June 1.

Zetlow said word was going out to hundreds of college newspapers urging students to come to Washington when classes recess for the summer. He said there would be "guerrilla theater and civil disobedience" up until June 1 when a "round-the-clock vigil would begin outside the Capitol building."

Santa letter author dies

VALATIE, N.Y. (UPI)—Mrs. Laura Virginia O'Hanlon Douglas, the woman who received the "Yes, Virginia, There is a Santa Claus" letter 74 years ago, died Thursday in a nursing home. She was 81.

Virginia O'Hanlon was 8, when she wrote the New York Sun, asking:

"Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says if you see it in the Sun, it's so. Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?"

Assistant Editor Francis P. Church penned the famous editorial reply in which he answered Virginia's friends were wrong and concluded:

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas, how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus. It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias."

Mrs. Douglas often was reticent about her part in the editorial and said it was Church, who died in 1916, who should have been remembered. She said it was Church's reply that carried the "philosophy of hope and love."

She lived most of her life in New York City as a teacher and principal and retired about 15 years ago. She lived in North Chatham, near Albany, with relatives.

Mrs. Douglas's health has been falling for some time and she spent the last two Christmases in the hospital.

She is survived by a daughter, seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild. The funeral is scheduled for Monday.

Indian funds backed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Legislation to distribute $500,000 to the Shoshone-Bannock tribes at Fort Hall has been endorsed by Idaho's lawmakers.

Senators Frank Church and Len Jordan, both members of the Interior Committee, said the settlement to the Fort Hall tribes is part of the $15.7 million compensation granted by the Indian Claims Commission in 1968 to the Shoshone tribes for land taken in 1868 and 1869 in the states of Idaho, Wyoming, Utah, Colorado and Nevada.

Jury deliberates case in Garcia murder trial

By LePAGE LAYTON
Times-News Writer

BURLEY — Jury deliberations in the murder trial of Jesse Garcia, Burley, continued this morning in Fifth District Court.

The jury received the case Thursday afternoon, and after an overnight recess, convened at 9 a.m.

Garcia is charged with first degree murder in connection with the shooting of Anacitio (Chico) Diaz in front of a bar on the east side of Burley March 4.

Garcia took the stand in his own defense during the final presentation of testimony Thursday before Judge Sherman Bellwood charged the jury and gave it the case for deliberation.

Before the jury was brought into the courtroom, Defense Attorney Tom Church and Prosecuting Attorney, Gordon Nielson argued before Judge Bellwood about what past records could be used as evidence.

Bellwood said that some of the police and FBI records were not applicable and could not be entered into the case. Bellwood stipulated specifically those that could be entered and those records that could not.

The jury was then brought into the courtroom and Burley Police officer, Allen Smith was called as the first witness. He stated that he had arrested Diaz at an east side bar sometime in 1970. He said Diaz showed some resistance and was handcuffed to be taken to the police station. Smith said that Diaz was apparently intoxicated.

Garcia then took the stand. He claimed that he first came to this part of the country around 1960 when he was 16 years old. He admitted while here he got into some trouble. He said that he had once stolen a car in Rupert in 1960, driving to Utah and back to Rupert. He was then picked up and admitted to stealing the car.

Garcia said that he was sent to the juvenile detention home in Englewood, Colo., for a five year term. After a year he was paroled, and came back to Rupert.

In Rupert, he got into trouble again, violating the parole, he said, and was sent to another detention home in California for parole violation.

Church then questioned Garcia about the gun he allegedly used in the shooting. Garcia said that he bought the .38 caliber pistol from Fred's Sporting Goods in Burley sometime in January 1970.

Garcia was then questioned about the fight at the bar. He said there was two or three arguments inside the bar. With the last disturbance, a number of those in the bar went outside on the sidewalk in front of the bar. Garcia said that several fights broke out and then he saw Diaz take a knife out of his pocket. Garcia then testified that he pulled his gun and shot twice in the air.

He said Diaz kept coming at him and he shot two or three times at Diaz. Garcia said he later threw the gun into the Snake River.

Church then asked why Garcia had purchased the pistol. Garcia said he bought the gun for the protection of his home and family because Diaz had threatened him several times before.

He said that Diaz had pulled a rifle on him at his father-in-law's place one time and at another had pulled a knife and said he was going to kill Garcia. Garcia said that Diaz threatened him a third time in the rear room of a cafe, saying he was going to cut Garcia.

Mrs. Garcia then took the stand, testifying about the gun her husband bought. She said the firing pin had broken and the gun had to be taken back to a sporting goods store for repairs. They gave her the repaired gun March 3.

She also testified that they had planned to move to Indiana. She said that on the night of March 4, Garcia came in sometime after midnight and that she was about packed and ready to go. Mrs. Garcia said her husband said nothing about shooting a man.

The next day, they finished packing and left at 7:30 p.m., going east. When they got to Hawkins, Wyo., the Garcias were stopped and Jesse was arrested by police on information from Burley.

She said that this was the first time that she knew that her husband was in trouble. He had not said anything to her at any time about the shooting.

Several character witnesses were called for both Diaz and Garcia.

Loretta Hanks, an employe at the sporting goods store, told the court about transactions

JIMMY WICKEL

KATHERINE ALLRED

School leaders listed

MALTA — Jimmy Wickel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arden Wickel, is valedictorian of the Rafi River High School graduating class, and Katherine Allred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reed Allred, is salutatorian.

Wickel has been active in Future Farmers of America, the R Club and Future Teachers Association. He lettered in football, basketball and track for three years and was a delegate to the state FFA convention.

He was named king of the senior ball and is vice president of his senior class.

Miss Allred is yearbook editor this year and has been active in Pep Club, drill team, Future Homemakers of America, school paper staff, Future Teachers Association and was a Girls' State delegate.

She has served as district seminary counselor and is student body seminary president this year. Miss Allred was named the Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow and has been parliamentarian and secretary of FHA.

Valley budget okayed

VALLEY SCHOOL — Valley School trustees this week adopted its 1971-72 school budget after no protest was heard at the regular meeting. Dr. Tom Utterback, superintendent, said today.

The total budget is $408,823.00 which is $2,120 less than last year.

Alan Smith, executive secretary of the Idaho School Trustees Association, told the board of the value of its membership in the School Trustees Association. He clarified the function of the association in the area of legislation and finances and noted the many advantages of the association to the trustees.

Dr. Utterback told the trustees that the school has offered a reward of $125 for information which would lead to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for vandalism at the high school. Dr. Utterback said that an amplifying system was stolen from the school and a number of windows have been broken.

with the gun. Judge Bellwood read the instructions to the jury specifying what verdicts they could bring in. Garcia is charged with first degree murder and Judge Bellwood explicitly explained that if the jury found him guilty of this charge, it would also have to set the penalty. Judge Bellwood also explained the technical differences of the four other possible verdicts, second degree murder, voluntary manslaughter, involuntary manslaughter or not guilty.

Radar plan suggested

By PEGGY CHIU
Times-News Writer

GOODING — Gooding Traffic Safety Council members have been asked to compile a list of projects for state approval and funding, including new radar installation.

The state can fund up to 63 percent for approved safety projects. Mel Laraway, state highway traffic engineer, told the Gooding council members Wednesday night.

He also presented sketches and recommendations for the traffic problem on Main Street and Orchard Avenue, where surveys have shown most of the accidents in Gooding occurred in the past year.

The official suggested the south side of Orchard be curbed and guttered, which would narrow the street and eliminate the making of U-turns. He urged the safety council present these suggestions to the city council.

Gerrard Parke, assistant state director of the Idaho Traffic Safety Commission, Boise, spoke on traffic safety methods, procedures and recommendations as they pertain to the 1971 Highway Safety Program analysis.

He showed a folder of clippings on what other cities in the state are doing in the field of traffic safety and reported on a safety workshop held earlier this year in Pocatello.

The state traffic commission hopes to have funds to hire a man to assist cities in safety programs, he said, but it is uncertain if funds will be available. He also stressed the importance of uniform highway markings and suggested the committee obtain copies of the Uniform Vehicle Code.

Kamiah man in custody

KAMIAH, Idaho (UPI) — Steven II. Glover, 23, Kamiah, remains in custody on charges of assault with a deadly weapon after police said the young man barricaded himself in a house here and began firing indiscriminately at cars as they passed by.

One man, Josh Bohannon, Kamiah, suffered a wound in the left ear, was treated for the injury at a nearby hospital and was released.

A total of four cars were struck during the shooting spree; officers said, including two parked cars.

Kamiah Police Chief Scott Winscomb said his office first learned of the situation when a woman came to his office and reported her car had been hit at least five times by shotgun blasts. She was not injured, but her car was peppered with pellet marks.

Six armed officers surrounded the house and Glover gave up without incident.

Chief Winscomb said the youth had 11 rifles and a handgun — all loaded — when he was arrested.

Fatal fight probed

EMMETT, Idaho (UPI) — Gem County sheriff's deputies are investigating a May 3 fight which apparently led to the death of Frank Jacob Johnson, 64, Emmett.

Johnson was found dead in his apartment Tuesday evening by a friend who noted he had been missing for several days.

Coroner Glenn Beatty said the death was caused by a brain hemorrhage stemming from a fractured skull.

Sheriff Don Rowland said it appears the fracture was caused by a fight in which Johnson was involved earlier this month.

Shoshone's top scholars told

SHOSHONE — Patricia Saras, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E.D. Saras, Shoshone, has been named valedictorian for Shoshone High School. Lisa Berricocha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Berricocha, Jr., is salutatorian, according to announcement today by high school Principal Carl Kinney.

In addition to her scholastic record of achievement, Miss Saras has served as president of her freshman class, was junior class girl representative to the student council; senior class secretary; Beta Club president, and varsity cheerleader.

She was a National Merit Scholarship Letter of Commendation recipient, homecoming attendant three years and homecoming queen her senior year, was the Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow for Shoshone High School, member of the Pep Club, annual staff and Tatler Staff, outstanding high school student her junior and senior years and listed in Who's Who in High Schools her senior year. She was the Girls' State delegate last year.

Miss Berricocha was also active in extra-curricular school events, was a member of Beta Club, member of Pep Club four years, and was cheerleader four years, two as junior varsity and two as varsity.

She was a member of the Ski Club, a Girls' State alternate, received a four year varsity letter in track going to state her senior year, FFA Chapter Sweetheart and member of DeSales Club at St. Peter's Catholic Church.

rejection of the League of Nations in 1919."

Fuhrberg charged that the administration—based on its actions in Cambodia and Laos during the past year—"believes itself to be at liberty to initiate war at will, and to do so, to ignore not only the constitution but also the explicit will of the senate."

But Rogers argued that the framers of the constitution envisioned perpetual cooperation between Congress and the president on foreign policy.

"In the absence of such cooperation," he said, "no legislation which seeks to define constitutional powers more rigidly can be effective. Conversely, given such cooperation, such legislation is unnecessary."

Rogers said there was "a clear need in terms of national survival" to preserve the president's power to act in emergency situations.

He contended that it would have been impossible for President John F. Kennedy to have carried out the delicate diplomatic negotiations with the Soviets during the Cuban missile crisis of 1963 "if there had been a full-scale Congressional debate prior to his decision on a course of military and diplomatic action."

He contended that restricting the president's authority to deploy forces abroad without Congressional consent in a situation "short of hostilities," constituted "a serious Constitutional issue of interference with the president's authority under the constitution as commander-in-chief."

It would "deprive the president of a valuable instrument of diplomacy which is used most often to calm a crisis rather than inflame it," he told the senators.

Blaine flood aid approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Thursday the Department of Housing and Urban Development had approved Blaine County as eligible for subsidized flood insurance coverage.

Church said beginning Friday owners of family residences and small businesses in the county may buy flood insurance from local insurance agents at low subsidized rates under the emergency flood insurance program of the federal government.

He said Blaine County became eligible for the program when it agreed to adopt land use and control measures that will minimize flood damage to future construction.

Church said the subsidized insurance program was set up to provide flood insurance in areas where frequently flooding made regular insurance either unobtainable or prohibitive in cost for homeowners and small businessmen.

Castleford rites slated

CASTLEFORD — Student speakers for graduation ceremonies Monday evening at the Castleford High School will be Susan Burkhalter, Sharon Jones, Sherry Pretl and Ronald Kaercher.

Commencement exercises will begin at 8 p.m. in the high school gymnasium. Miss Burkhalter has been active in FHA and has received her junior and chapter degrees. She was active in Pep Club, C Club, speech and declamation as well as serving in several student body offices. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Burkhalter.

Miss Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones, has been a member of Pep Club, C Club, track, speech and declamation and a four year member of FHA receiving both junior and chapter degrees. She plans to attend the University of Nevada.

Miss Pretl has been an honor roll student throughout high school, served as editor of the school paper and worked on the annual staff. She served as cheerleader and was homecoming princess and queen and FFA 'sweetheart'. She has been active in Pep Club, C Club, Pep Band, drill team, track, chorus and band. She served as a chapter and state officer of FHA. She is the daughter of Mrs. David Reese and Joe Pretl. She plans to continue her education at CSI majoring in commercial business.

Ron Kaercher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wasko, served as student body vice president and was a Boys' State delegate his junior year. He has been active in football, basketball, track and FFA. He served on the staff of the school paper and is a four year member of band.

Jerome visit set

JEROME — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, will be in Jerome Wednesday on his annual "Report to the People Tour." It was announced by Hansen's office.

Saturday is the last day that letters may be sent for six cents

Graduating seniors include Jackie Allred, Vivian Allred, Debby Baughman, Belle Burkhalter, Susan Burkhalter, Lon Castleton, David Easterday, Grant Easterday, Jack Frey, Keturah Heworth, Sharon Jones, Ron Kaercher, Roxanne Keen, Tamara Keller, Leslie Lewis, Linda Newlan, Juanita Parker, Neil Parker, Sherry Pretl, Rosita Reeves, Eldon Reinhold, Jeannie Roberts, Melvin Ruhter, Linda Severa, Laurene Sill, Howard Stahlacker, James Watkins, Kelly Welch and Sidney Wing.

Baccalaureate service will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. in the gymnasium with the Rev. Kendall North as guest speaker.

"regular" and 10 cents by airmail; the postage rates go up on Sunday, according to Lloyd Libert, officer in charge at the Twin Falls Post Office.

First-class letter postage will go up to eight cents for all letters mailed on or after Sunday. Airmail will cost 11 cents, post cards go up from five to six cents, and air mail postals will cost nine cents.

Letters and packages mailed before Saturday midnight will still be delivered at the present rate, but any mail postmarked after midnight Saturday will have to carry the new rates, Libert said.

The stamp machine at the Twin Falls Post Office will be modified eventually to dispense eight-cent and 11-cent stamps, but the changes may take some time, as parts must be delivered and installed by official post office maintenance personnel, Libert said. For the present, six-cent stamps can be combined with one-cent stamps for the proper postage.

4-H camp available in August

KETCHUM — The South-Central Idaho 4-H Camp near Ketchum is available for use by any interested group during the month of August. The camp will accommodate up to 150 people at a nominal cost. It is available for weekends and weekday functions anytime during August 1971. It is open for any type of group from family reunions to church or civic groups.

Interested parties can contact Blaine Linford, Extension District Supervisor, 634 Addison Avenue, W., Twin Falls.

Hagerman sets rites

HAGERMAN — Zane Harrison, Fairfield, will be the commencement speaker at the high school graduation services 8 p.m. Sunday.

Harrison is past president of the State Trustee Association, a member of the Camas County school board for many years and a rancher near Hill City.

Eight grade graduation will be held at 8 p.m. May 19 at the Prince Memorial gymnasium.

Air pollution index 95

The pollution reading was taken by the staff of the South Central Health District of the Twin Falls City Hall. The reading is expressed as the number of micrograms of particulate matter per cubic meter of air for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today.

Federal pollution regulators say pollution levels should be kept below 70 micrograms per cubic meter per day, and should not be permitted to rise above 360 micrograms for even a short period of time.

Forecast
Today: Excellent
Tonight: Poor
Tomorrow: Excellent

This forecast provided by the Idaho Department of Health indicates the ability of the atmosphere to disperse pollution during as permitted by law should be exceeded when the air is poorly able to disperse pollutants.

Soroptimist club sets installation

BURLEY — Burley Soroptimist Club officers will be installed June 9, Mrs. W. Gay Jones, president, said today.

Mrs. Wayne Konrad, chairman of the installation meeting, said a social hour is scheduled for 7 p.m. with dinner to be served at 8 p.m. June 9 at Bryan's Cafe and guests are welcome. Reservations are to be made with Mrs. Konrad.

The Soroptimist Club scholarship will be announced during a special meeting Tuesday at the Burley High School. Mrs. Jones will represent the club and present the scholarship.

Mrs. Harlow Cheney, ways and means chairman, reported at the last meeting on a successful rummage sale held recently. Mrs. Helene Coffey gave opening exercises and Mrs. Kenneth Grimsman gave the thought for the day.

The next meeting will be held at noon May 26, Mrs. Jones said.

Youths attend safety session

RUPERT — Two teen-age members of the Rupert Traffic Safety Commission — Charlene Spence and Tony Saras — were welcomed when the panel met Wednesday.

The commission recommended that stop signs be placed at Fifth and B Streets, making B Street a through street.

Returning two way traffic to Twelfth Street was also discussed by the panel, which concluded that move would create hazards. The commission had recommended one-way traffic on the street.

Placing a one-way traffic sign and a "do not enter" sign at an alley between H and G Streets and Twelfth and Thirteenth Streets was also approved.

Elmer Eddington suggested stop signs be placed at each end of Fremont Avenue for traffic making right turns, with a yellow divider line separating right and left hand traffic. He also proposed that no crossing of lanes be permitted at the southeast corner of the town square.

Bill Whitton said he would take the proposal to the Rupert City Council.

Whitton, who has been appointed chairman of the policy and resolutions committee for southern Idaho, will present a report on traffic safety and law enforcement to the traffic safety commission at 8 p.m. June 8 in the council chambers at Rupert.

Letters regarding safety of newspaper delivery boys were read to the commission. They were submitted by Mark Gibson, Idaho State Traffic Safety Commission Director, and Clifford M. Barrow, circulation manager of the Deseret News.

Members of the commission also examined information about bicycle safety and a rodeo conducted by the Mountain Home Optimist Club and police in that town.

Prepare kits

WORK MEETING was held by members of the Minico and Burley Toastmistress clubs to prepare items for the kits which will be presented members attending the Snake River Regional Toastmistress conference June 18-20 at the Holiday Inn, Twin Falls.

Council Toastmistress meeting set May 22

By GEORGIA LAYTON Times-News Writer

RUPERT — Council Seven Toastmistress luncheon meeting will be held May 22 at Bryan's Cafe, Burley, it was announced at the Minico Toastmistress Club meeting.

The Burley club members, who will be hosts for the council meeting, were guests of the Rupert club and members worked on kits for the Snake River Regional Toastmistress Conference, scheduled for June 18-20 at the Holiday Inn, Twin Falls.

Mrs. Ken Shufeldt, president of the Minico club, said the Rupert group has been assigned to prepare kits for the regional meet with Mrs. Norman Larimer as chairman of the kit committee.

She will be assisted by Mrs. Harold Holton, and Mrs. Robert Rucker, both Rupert; Mrs. Walter Povlsen and Mrs. LePage Layton, both Burley, and Mrs. Ben Eldredge, Mrs. Robert Miller and Mrs. Ethel Martin, all Twin Falls.

The club members cut and made dish scratchers of various colors which will be placed in the convention kits.

Mrs. Rupert Lindsay directed table topics during which time the group listened to poetry which had been taped. A roundtable evaluation was given on the poetry.

Mrs. Rucker gave the parliamentary lesson and Mrs. Larimer was toastmistress for the evening. Mrs. Vernon Murray gave a speech on flag etiquette. General theme for the evening was "Listening" and Mrs. Dale Stoller was general evaluator.

Utah deputy slain in road shooting

FARMINGTON, Utah (UPI) — A Davis County deputy sheriff was shot and killed shortly after 3:30 a.m. today when he stopped a vehicle on U.S. Highway 91.

Two suspects in the shooting were taken without resistance in Kemmerer, Wyo., about three hours later by units of the Kemmerer City Police and Lincoln County Sheriff's Office.

Utah authorities identified the slain deputy as Don Jensen, who they said had been on the force only a short time. Jensen's body was found just off the highway at the intersection Tibbets Lane by a fellow deputy.

Lincoln County Sheriff Max Braegger said the suspects were armed with two revolvers and a shotgun. A similar shotgun, or "riot gun," was missing from the stolen patrol car when officers recovered it.

The Utah Highway Patrol said the patrol car was driven 10 miles south to Bountiful, where the suspects apparently transferred to a white 1970 pickup truck with camper. From there they eluded authorities of Utah, Weber, Davis and Salt Lake counties and "escaped to the Wyoming line.

Sheriff Braegger said he was alerted by Zvanston, Wyo., police and told the suspect vehicle might be heading toward Kemmerer. He and his deputy spotted the truck and radioed for assistance.

He then pulled the suspect truck into a parking lot, where city police were waiting to complete the arrest.

"We made the arrest without incident—they came out with their hands up," Braegger said. Names of the suspects were being withheld pending formal charges and legal processing.

Trustees push levy

COEUR D'ALENE, (UPI) — Trustees of Coeur d'Alene School District 271 say they are going to be in trouble if the special election May 27 fails.

Robert J. DeArmond, board chairman, in asking for public support of the $2,992,809 maintenance and operations levy at Wednesday night's meeting, said recent actions of discontinuing parochial schools has thrown several hundred new students into the district.

DeArmond said projected enrollment in the district next year is 5,927 compared with the present 5,102.

He said this means an increase of 38 teachers and 13 other personnel is needed by the district.

BPW state convention set in Burley June 3-6

BURLEY — Burley members of the Business and Professional Women's Club are preparing for the state convention scheduled here June 3-6 at the Ponderosa Inn Convention Center.

Committee reports were given on preparations for the conclave at a dinner meeting at the Ramada Inn, which featured a candlelight installation ceremony.

Officers include Mrs. Anna Laura Westrom, president; Mrs. Kenneth Grimsman, vice president; Mrs. W. Gay Jones, treasurer, and Mrs. Otto Vanek, secretary. Mrs. Tom Gurr, was installing officer.

Mrs. Gurr reported "The Classics," a barbershop quartet, will entertain at the reception on the opening night of the state meet and the Sweet Adelines will sing during the June 5 banquet.

Committee chairmen for the coming year appointed by Mrs. Westrom were Mrs. Russell Anderson, membership; Mrs. Walter Baker, program; Mrs. Evelyn Phillips, personal development; Mrs. Walter Sanda, civic participation; Mrs. Earl Carson, world affairs; Mrs. Jones, finance; Mrs. Afton Buckley, legislation; Mrs. Fred Bedke, public relations; Mrs. Vanek, publicity; Mrs. Vera Williams, parliamentarian; Mrs. Sarah Harrison, historian, and Mrs. Gurr, safety.

Mrs. Williams presented the program on BPW Club orientation. Mrs. Anderson gave a review of the history of the Burley Business and Professional Women's Club.

It was announced the next meeting will be held May 24 at 8 p.m. at home of Mrs. Anderson.

Controls on news not job

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus told the president of Taxpayers Voice, Inc., Thursday, it is not the proper role of state government "to mediate or control the news media."

Andrus made his statement in a letter to Don Rowe of Boise, who met with the governor earlier to request a commission charged with investigating the news media to evaluate and determine whether it was fair and accurate.

Andrus said the attorney general's office had, at his request, investigated the possibility, but said results indicated "the appointment of a commission such as you suggest would be ineffective in light of its potential impact."

"Even should a commission conclude that the news media in Idaho is biased in one way or another, the state would be without power to act," the letter said.

Andrus said the broadcasting industry was under the jurisdiction of the Federal Communications Commission. He said the state was advised by F.H. McCann, engineer in charge of the Portland office of the FCC, that a state attorney general has no authority to directly enforce FCC policies and regulations.

Andrus also said the investigation determined "any attempt by the state to dictate policy as respects acceptance or rejection of paid announcements or views would run counter to the concept of federal jurisdiction."

Andrus said the attorney general told him publishers of newspapers had been held by the courts to be free to contract with whom they please and to reject material with which they do not agree.

Rupert continues baseball signup

RUPERT — Registration for boys baseball and girls softball will be continued Saturday in the Rupert Recreation Department office at the city hall.

Terry Duffin, recreation and parks director, said today it was planned to end registration last week, but the demand was so great that registration was continued. Saturday will be the final day for signup.

Registration will be held from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. and the fee is $4 per person. Duffin said the program is open to boys and girls between the ages of 6 and 16.

Crime drive set

LEWISTON (UPI) — Police officials here announced Thursday they are laying plans for a crime check program similar to the one which has been in effect at Spokane for the past several months.

Under the plan, citizens are asked to report crimes or suspicious happenings to a well-publicized police number, which is manned 24 hours a day.

Indications are the program has caused a significant decrease in the crime rate in Spokane, although no figures are presently available to verify it.

Roy Mosman, Nez Perce County prosecutor, said the city has received a large amount of help from Spokane officials in setting up the city's program and said Lewiston was desperately in need of such a program.

"We have only one policeman for each 3,000 citizens," Mosman said, "and must rely on people to help."

St. Benedict's hospital honors employes during week

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News Writer

JEROME — St. Benedict's Hospital paid special tribute to the 125 persons employed in all departments during National Hospital Week this week.

Leon Felder, hospital administrator, said "A hospital is more than a mere building; it is people who care and we at St. Benedict's do care. That is why we have made it one of the finest hospitals in Idaho."

The head of each department is highly qualified for his position and by their efforts have made the hospital one of the most efficient in Magic Valley, Felder said.

Felder, who has been administrator here the past six years, has a B. A. degree in economics from the College of Idaho, Caldwell, studied law at the University of Idaho, and before coming to St. Benedict's he was assistant administrator at Caldwell Memorial Hospital. He also was administrator at Mary Secor Hospital, Emmett.

He is a member of the American College of Hospital Administrators, a director of the Idaho Hospital Association, the American Hospital Association and the Blue Cross. Sister Mary Mathew, OSB and RRI, has the distinction of holding four key positions with St. Benedict's hospital staff, Felder said. She is medical records librarian, religious superior, president of the board of directors and directs junior volunteers.

She belongs to the Idaho and American Medical Associations and has a B.S. degree from Seattle University. She taught school while she was associated with St. Mary's Hospital at Cottonwood. She has been here four years.

Don Anderson, director of the financial department, has been with St. Benedict's for two and one half years. A graduate of Wendell High School, he attended Twin Falls Business College and worked for Firestone and Tempo stores before coming to the hospital. He belongs to the Idaho Hospital Financial Management Association.

The personnel director of the hospital, Mrs. Lois Lee Gooding, has held this post for six years. She was graduated from Oak Grove High School in Louisiana and attended Twin Falls Business College, coming here from Tuscaloosa, Ala.

She was business administrator for Gooding Memorial Hospital for 14 years and has been awarded the William G. Follmer merit award by the American Hospital Association. She also is past president of the Idaho chapter of American Association of Hospital Accountants.

John Miller, controller and business manager, has only been on the staff for six months but has added greatly to the hospital's efficient operation, Felder said.

Miller was a pilot with the Navy before coming to the hospital. He was graduated from Blackfoot High School and attended Idaho State University, Pocatello, where he is originally from.

Mark Lallatin has been director of pharmacy and purchasing for four years. He worked as manager and assistant manager of several stores, including the former Thriftyway Drug, now Hamilton Drug in Jerome and holds a B. S. degree in pharmacy from Idaho State University. He belongs to the Idaho Society of Hospital Pharmacists and has served as president, and also is a member of the American Pharmaceutical Association.

Warren Bergoy, head of the X-ray department, came to the hospital two years ago after retiring from the Air Force with more than 21 years of experience in X-ray work. He has earned the Air Force Commendation medal, Korean Service and Vietnam Service medals and bronze star. He is a registered technologist with the American Society of Medical Technologists and the American Society of Radiologic Technologists.

Gary Anderson, managing director of all laboratory services, has been with the hospital for three years. He has a degree in medical technology from McKennan Hospital, Sloux Falls, S. D., and a B. S. degree in biology from Southern State College, Springfield, S.D. He belongs to the American Society of Medical Technologists, Idaho Medical Technologists Association and the American Society of Clinical Pathologists and has 11 years of experience in his field, six as chief technologist.

Gerry Jacobson is managing director of the dietary department at the hospital. He replaces Jack Sahling who resigned to return to school to obtain a teaching degree.

Jacobson worked at the hospital previously and in February, 1968, became associated with the Saga Food Service, Menlo, Calif., which provides service for the hospital.

He has worked at Willamette Hospital, Portland; Encino Hospital, Los Angeles, and Hollywood Hospital, Hollywood, Calif.

Sister Mary Agnes Reichlin, director of nursing and supervisor of the obstetrical department, has been in the post eight years. A graduate of St. Benedict's School of Nursing, Ogden, Utah, in 1957, she has a B.S. degree in nursing from Seattle University and a master's degree in nursing services administration and maternal-child health at the University of Washington.

She belongs to Sigma Theta Tau and the American Nurses Association. In 1969 she was appointed to the Idaho State Board of Nursing by former Gov. Don Samuelson. She worked at St. Benedict's as a staff nurse and instructor of practical nursing from 1957 to 1963 and then returned in 1969 after furthering her education.

Dolores Hansen, Shoshone, managing director of in-service education, has been with the hospital six years. She holds a B.S. degree from the University of Portland and St. Vincent's hospital and did graduate study at the University of Idaho, Idaho State University and Boise State College and has taken courses from the intermountain regional medical programs and the American Hospital Association.

She was an instructor at St. Joseph's school of nursing, Tacoma, Wash., with the Army Nurse Corps and instructor and in charge of nursing at the Idaho State Tuberculosis Hospital. She belongs to the American Nurses Association and the Idaho State Nursing Association.

Ruby Crosby, who has been with the hospital seven years, is managing director of the Long Term Care Unit. She has a B. S. degree in nursing and attended College of Idaho, Provo, Utah, School of Nursing, Seattle, and Idaho State University, Pocatello.

Before joining St. Benedict's staff she worked for the Find Foundation, Seattle, and was a staff nurse at the Twin Falls Clinic. She is president of the district nurses association and this month is attending a rehabilitation nursing workshop in California.

Helen Shewmaker has just begun as head of a new department at the hospital, the home health service.

She has been with the hospital since November, 1966, and is from Reno County, Kan. Before coming to St. Benedict's she was assistant supervisor of student health services at the University of Kansas, staff nurse with the Kansas Medical Center and county health nurse in Reno County, Kan.

AMONG THE DEPARTMENT heads at St. Benedict's Hospital, Jerome, are Sister Mary Agnes Reichlin, seated left, director of nursing; Dolores Hansen, in-service training and education, while standing behind the sister is Mrs. Ruth Crosby, in charge of the Long Term Care Unit, and at the far end of the desk, Mrs. Helen Shewmaker, who heads the home health service. All 125 employes were honored this week during National Hospital week observance.

Another award set for Archie Teater

BLISS — Archie B. Teater, who was honored last week with a distinguished citizen award from Gov. Cecil Andrus, will receive another award Sunday night in Boise.

Artist and Mrs. Teater have been invited by President John B. Barnes of Boise State College to attend the commencement exercises of the college Sunday at 5 p.m. in the stadium.

At that time the College's Silver Medallion award will be presented to the Hagerman Valley artist for his outstanding contribution in the field of art. The Teaters were invited to join officials in the president's box of the stadium and to accompany the platform party for a dinner at the Hillcrest Country Club following the commencement exercises and reception.

Teater, well known artist, observed his 70th birthday anniversary last Saturday in Boise with a special benefit show for the Archie B. Teater Handicapped Children's Fund. In conjunction with the showing, he was awarded a large replica of the state seal by Gov. Andrus.

CSI student's letter sparks 'absence' bill

TWIN FALLS — An inquiry from a College of Southern Idaho student, Andrew J. Riksem, to Idaho legislators in Washington was instrumental in the introduction of a bill designed to alleviate a strange situation in which some college students are being penalized for being "absent" during Christmas vacation and the spring break.

Riksem's letter was printed in the Congressional Record on May 5, at the request of Sen. Len B. Jordan. Riksem wrote Jordan as well as Sen. Frank Church and Second District Congressman Orval Hansen.

Riksem told the legislators that as a vocational student attending CSI under the GI Bill, he is being "personally persecuted" by a provision in the law regarding absences from college classes. The federal legislation allows a maximum of 30 days of absence for illness or other reasons during the college year. The colleges must report all days in which the student is absent — even if the college is closed for vacations. Under terms of the bill, vacations are regarded as unexcused absences, and the student's monthly allocation from the Veterans Administration is trimmed correspondingly.

"My last two checks from V.A. have been considerably short. I assume because I have used up the allotted days of absence," Riksem told Sen. Jordan.

Riksem conferred with Neil Cross, assistant director of the CSI vocational school, and was allowed to "read recent correspondence ... concerning this particular matter," he said in his letter. "Also, I have perused several letters concerning the V.A.'s outlook of this situation."

"So I understand what is happening to me ... and I also want to know why I am being discriminated against," he told Sen. Jordan.

The 30-day restriction does not apply to servicemen attending academic classes, but specifically to vocational students — another obvious attempt to discriminate against the "vocationals" that irritates Riksem.

Sen. Jordan and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, working together, have introduced an amendment to the bill allowing a student 30 days of absence which would not count official college vacations or holidays.

But the mills of Congress grind slowly on any items considered of minor importance by the majority of harried lawmakers.

"We'd like to get some more interest from other states on the bill," Cross told the Times-News. Only if other legislators are approached and pressured to realize the importance of the change in the GI Bill, can the amendment be put into force.

The Veterans Administration has been contacted repeatedly about the problem, Cross said; he has written numerous times to the Idaho delegation, but with no result. "They would just refer the letter to the VA, and it would be quickly 'lost' in the files, and nothing would happen."

Pinched pork

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — The nation's economic pinch apparently has hit the swine-raising industry.

A Penn. State University nutrition expert says pork today isn't the same product it was five years ago. It isn't as fat.

Mrs. Ruth Buck says research indicates the meat is leaner and more digestible. According to Mrs. Buck, pork is 98 per cent digestible and is top source of vitamin B.

Heyburn approves property purchase

HEYBURN — Members of the Heyburn City Council have approved the purchase of property owned by Rudolph Jensen and located adjacent to the city's present sewage treatment plant.

Mayor Howard Hurst said the land is needed when the city undertakes an expansion program of the present treatment facility. The land was approved subject to purchase at the price set by the council.

The mayor was also authorized by council members to take steps necessary to move a "Welcome Burley" sign from its present location on Western Seed Co. property to a site nearer the Snake River.

City approval was also given a new plan for simplifying the issuing of city checks. A check system has been adopted to replace the former city warrant and check system.

Other matters discussed by the council Wednesday night included complaints on neglect of horses by two owners; new city building inspection standards; summer street improvements; stray dogs and junk cars, and the hiring of summer help for the city. Two young men, Blains Alphin and Tim Kay have been hired for the summer.

Council members voted to withhold action on membership in the South Idaho Resources and Development Association, until further study can be given the organization's constitution and bylaws. Heyburn will provide $150 toward the expenses of the annual convention of the Association of Idaho Cities this year.

Spiral's dangers traced

DETROIT (UPI) — The United States could become a "service nation," taking care of other nation's goods rather than producing its own, if the present price-inflation spiral continues, Henry Ford II warned Thursday.

The board chairman of Ford Motor Co. told the annual stockholders meeting of his company that safety and emissions requirements of the government could result in hiking the cost of cars an average $600 to $1,000 each.

And later, he said that the demands of labor in the United States are such that "I don't see how we're going to meet foreign competition."

"When the costs of wages, both salaried and hourly, outstrip productivity improvement, you have inflation," Ford told interviewers after the meeting.

He expressed disappointment that Ford's Pinto and the General Motors Vega, two minicars introduced to fight foreign imports, had failed to stem the rising tide of imported cars into the country.

These imports which had taken 11 to 12 per cent of the total U.S. market in 1970, are now taking 18 per cent of the market so far this year, he said. "We may become a service nation some day," he warned.

He was particularly apprehensive about the Japanese imports which he said are fine products with good engineering. "Wait until the Japanese get hold of the market in the central part of the United States, then see what they do," Ford said.

State officials study Gem work

BOISE (UPI) — State Treasurers and deputies from 16 of the 13 western states toured Idaho's Statehouse Thursday, hearing explanations of data processing services and check writing under Idaho's Public Depository Law.

State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon, hostess of the three-day meeting, said there were 38 persons registered.

During a tour of the state's data processing facilities, Chester Graham, chief accountant for State Auditor Joe R. Williams, termed centralized data processing a "sound concept," but said "from experience here in Idaho it would appear certain things must take place before centralization can be brought about efficiently and effectively."

Graham said there should be standardization of equipment and standardization of the technical aspects of data processing before centralization is attempted.

Graham said the "needs and problems of user agencies must be well known and understood by the people carrying out data processing functions."

Navajos assail officials' acts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spokesmen for a group of Navajo Indians who want the Four Corners power plant to clean up its operations said today they think two cabinet members have "violated their trust" to the Indians.

The Navajos, helped by the "Black Mesa defense fund" and Navajo legal services, filed suit in the U.S. District Court Tuesday, naming Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton and Elliot Richardson, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

The suit seeks a court order changing the terms of leases the Navajos and the government signed concerning use of the land on which the big power plant sits, in the area near where Arizona, New Mexico, Utah and Colorado come together in "Four Corners."

The Indians contended Morton violated his obligations, as head of the federal agency closest to the Indians' matters, to the tribe by approving lease provisions that have proved harmful.

The Indians said Richardson violated his trust obligation by "failing to implement recommendations from a study by his own agency that said vegetation suffered from the emissions of the power plant."

The power plant, near Farmington, N.M., generates electricity that is sold in west Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California. The Navajos have several of their tribe working for the plant and also sell the plant coal from their lands.

But the Indians contend the plant's emissions of coal dust and other particles and of gases have gotten too high for the health and environment of the area. The suit contended the plant spews out more pollution per day than the non-transportation air pollution sources in New York City.

The Navajos want the lease changed to require strict control of pollution from the plant.

They contend the filters that catch the ash really trap only three-fourths of it and the rest escapes into the western sky.

As a result, the suit contends, Indians' land and flocks and herds are damaged, and "aesthetic and cultural employment" of the Navajo Reservation itself is harmed.

Automatic Sold Set Irrigation

A fully automatic Lateral Control Valve system that can be installed in hours ... paid for in less than a season!

To install, simply replace existing manually controlled riser valves with Shur-Rane Lateral Control Valves ... install the automatic timer ... and run wire down length of field to connect timer electrically to each Lateral Control Valve.

To operate, simply set timer dial for desired length of each set and for number of sets ... timer then successively activates solenoid switch in each Lateral Control Valve on command for desired pre-set irrigation period.

To program, simply connect properly numbered plugs to timer wire, insert plugs in Lateral Control Valves, and timer then automatically activates all similarly numbered plugs. Low voltage operation assures safe, yet positive valve opening.

Agency keeps report

Agency keeps report

SAN FRANCISCO — The United States Department of Agriculture has rejected a proposal to discontinue the Rocky Mountain market news report on dry beans.

USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service said the proposal was submitted by the Rocky Mountain Bean Dealers Association, which contended that information in the USDA report is a duplication of market news already available to bean growers and other members of the Rocky Mountain dry bean industry.

CMS' Grain Division said that subscribers to the report and other interested parties were recently informed of the proposal and were asked to comment. More than 200 replies were received, mostly from growers in Colorado, Idaho, Nebraska, and Wyoming, but also from members of Congress, trade organizations, and interested individuals. All of the replies requested that the Rocky Mountain report be continued.

No comments were received favoring discontinuing the report. The Rocky Mountain bean market news report is a comprehensive report which includes prices collected from both buyers and sellers. It was started in March 1964 to provide farmers and members of the dry bean industry with an accurate weekly report of grower and dealer prices, supplies, market trends and conditions, exports, and government purchases.

Grain market news reporters in Denver collect the market information from major producing and marketing areas in Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Washington, Idaho, Nebraska, and Kansas.

None indeed . . .

ONLY REMINDER that lake once existed on almost dry site near Frog City, Fla., is sign forbidding fishing. South Florida drought has nearly dried up this part of Everglades canal and lake, once bustling with airplanes and canoes. (UPI)

Marketing gains major billing

BOISE — Marketing will have high billing at the annual meeting of the Idaho Poultry Industry Federation, June 3 and 4 at the Rodeway Inn, Boise.

About 100 producers and handlers of poultry and eggs are expected, says Gordon B. Meyer, Moscow, secretary. Meyer is poultry specialist of the University of Idaho extension service.

T.F. livestock

Choice heifers, 27.50-29.50; standard to low good heifers, 24.50-26.50; utility heifers, 21.00-23.00; and cull heifers, 18.50-21.50. Commercial and standard cows, 21.50-23.00; utility cows, 20.50-22.00; and cull cows, 18.50-21.50. Commercial and standard bulls, 24.00-27.00; utility bulls, 21.00-23.00; and cull bulls, 18.50-21.50.

Corn blight restricted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department says cool weather in the south and Midwest so far has prevented any early outbreak of the corn blight which destroyed 18 percent of last year's crop.

Only minor infestations have been reported in Florida, Mississippi and Texas, the department said, and no outbreaks elsewhere. Officials said it still was too early to determine how serious the blight problem would be this year.

Idaho Falls livestock

IDAHO FALLS — Results of the Idaho Livestock Auction sale this week show 430 sheep, 133 hogs and 1,888 cattle were sold. Spring lambs were 50 to 75 cents higher, horn lambs were 10 lower and ewes were steady. Spring lambs, 28.00-38.00; good to choice spring lambs, 27.00-38.00; spring feeder lambs, 27.00-38.00; horn lambs, 25.00-38.00; horn feeder lambs, 22.00-35.00; odd rough feeder lambs, 21.00-30.00; utility lambs, 15.00-18.00; over 450 down; light fat ewes, 5.50-6.75; and ewe and buck, 3.00-4.00.

Farm Businessman thrives on job

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — On a recent morning John Wesley Ruby left his home in Morgantown, W. Va., at eight, boarded a plane and landed in Charleston, W. Va., for a meeting with state officials.

"That's a routine day for me," Ruby said. "I frequently work 12 to 18 hours at a stretch."

This schedule would tax the energy of a man in his 50s. Ruby is nearing 70 and he thrives on work.

A business associate once described him as a "one-man conglomerate."

Ruby has interests in 18 businesses including manufacturing, mining, construction, real estate, food processing, poultry, recreational development, hotel management, horse and catle breeding, and a small airline.

An Ohio farm boy with a ninth-grade education, he moved to Morgantown 31 years ago and has since started or saved about two dozen businesses.

Ruby began his career as a buffer in the Sterling Faucet Co. in Nowcomerstown, Ohio, his home town. Within a few years he was superintendent.

The Sterling firm, which manufactures copper and brass fittings for the plumbing industry, moved to Morgantown in 1940 and Ruby became vice president and general manager.

Soon he owned the plant, now a subsidiary of the Rockwell Manufacturing Co. of Pittsburgh. Ruby is a member of the Rockwell board of directors.

Although it is traditional now, "Aho!" — used by sailors when calling to another ship — was originally the battle cry of the Vikings.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stock market indicators were mixed as trading reached the halfway mark Friday. Turnover was active.

Of the 1,581 issues crossing the tape, 676 declined and 658 advanced. The Dow Jones Industrial average of 30 selected blue chips stood up 0.77 at 937.11.

The three-hour volume of 10,380,000 shares barely edged the 10,230,000 shares traded in a comparable period Thursday.

Texas Gulf Sulphur off 7/4, International Paper up 1/4 and Grumman off 1/4 were among the day's most actively traded issues.

Active issues sporting attractive gains were Commercial Solvents up 2 3/4 and Dentsply International up 5/4. Commercial Solvents said an Italian unit has received approval from the Italian government for a new heart drug, and Dentsply recently announced it had begun shipping its new sealant tooth decay preventive.

Showers in the Rockies

DURING the night, shower and thunderstorm activity will be indicated over the Rockies and the southern portions of the Gulf coastal area. Clear and pleasant to partly cloudy skies elsewhere with little temperature change expected. (UPI)

Chance of light frost tonight

Twin Falls, Northside, showers mainly eastern sections this evening. Decreasing clouds tonight becoming mostly fair early Saturday then increasing clouds into Saturday with chance of rain.

Barley-Rupert area: Fair tonight then increasing clouds late Saturday. Highs 58 to 68 Saturday. Overnights lows 30s with chance of light frost.

Outlook for Sunday, partly cloudy with chance of showers. Probability of measurable precipitation near zero tonight and 10 per cent Saturday.

Camels Prairie, Halley and lower Wood River Valley: Partly cloudy with chance of showers.

Highs 50s to low 60s Saturday. Overnights lows mid 20s to mid 30s.

Outlook for Sunday. Mostly cloudy with chance of showers.

Synopsis: Fair skies covered southern Idaho and east central Oregon this morning. Some clouds should develop over mountain areas this evening with a chance of isolated showers over eastern mountains. High pressure is expected to push into the Gem State with light winds, practically no warming. Tonight's low temperatures are expected to dip low enough for a chance of light frost in all valley areas.

An approaching Pacific frontal system will bring increasing clouds to southwestern valleys over the weekend.

Valleys Saturday afternoon with a chance of rain on south-western facing slopes.

The frontal system approaching Saturday afternoon is expected to split forming a low pressure center over Nevada which should indicate mostly cloudy skies and periods of light rain over the southeast and variable clouds with a chance of showers over the southwestern valleys over the weekend.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—With the advent of the latest monetary crisis, Walston & Co., was surprised at the "modest amounts of profiteering" which came into the stock market. But the company warns additional bouts may come "when a lot of bargains" purchased in late 1970 edge above the six months holding period and become long term for tax purposes.

Usually investor confidence rises with the market, according to Sindlinger & Co., but the firm says confidence has dropped while the market rose and adds that this is "a very significant situation." Thus the firm terms the current correction a "good thing" because the market "was going too far ahead of all confidence levels" while investor confidence was waning.

Hawks blank Canadiens to regain lead

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Black Hawks scored on a power play goal in the first period and hung on to beat the Montreal Canadiens 2-0 Thursday night, taking a 2-1 lead in games for the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup.

Next game of the best of seven series will be Sunday at Montreal.

The Black Hawks, seeming to be revived by a return to their home ice were a vastly different team from the one which the Canadiens beat Tuesday night at Montreal.

The Hawks' first goal was almost pattern hockey.

Henri Richard of Montreal went off the ice at 10:25 on a hooking call, one of nine penalties called by referee Bill Friday in that period and 32 seconds later the Hawks took the lead. Montreal goalie Ken Dryden hardly had a chance.

Bobby Hull passed from left wing to Cliff Koroll, whose right wing pass caught Dennis Hull barely two feet in front of the crease and he scooped it in.

The second period, a free-swirling and loosely skated affair, was more than half over before the Hawks could add to their total. Dryden was partly screened when Koroll tossing the goal from the Montreal net keeper's right took a flip from Stan Mikita and slapped it in.

Donohue officially cracks 180-MPH barrier at speedway

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Speedster Mark Donohue roared around the Indianapolis Motor Speedway at 180.977 miles per hour Thursday, leaving no doubt in anybody's mind that the 180 mph barrier has been cracked during practice for the 500-mile auto race.

Donohue ran only three laps just before the track closed for the day, turning one lap in 178, then the 180 lap and finally 179 on his third trip round the 2 1/2 mile course.

His speed was caught on the track's electric timer, ending any doubt that Donohue has hit 180 mph.

Donohue was clocked by his crew Wednesday at 180.2 mph and by others using stop watches at 179.6, but that fast lap was not caught on the electric eye.

The Media, Pa., ace who finished second in last year's "500", was one of four drivers over 170 mph to improve their speeds Thursday.

Peter Rovson of New York City moved up to 176.1 mph, becoming the fastest driver behind Donohue. Mike Mosley of Brownsburg, Ind., also bettered his previous best time, reaching 175.850, and three-time race winner A.J. Foyt Jr. of Houston improved his top speed to 174.850.

Denis Hulme of New Zealand turned a lap at 175.4.

Revson, driving Hulme's car, also had a lap at 173.980.

Mario Andretti, of Nazareth, Pa., the 1969 champ, and Lloyd Ruby of Wichita Falls, Texas, turned laps in excess of 173 m.p.h., while defending champion Al Unser and his brother, Bobby, the 1968 winner, had laps in the 172 bracket.

In all, 46 cars were on the track Thursday, trying to build up speeds in preparation for Saturday's first day of qualifications for the May 29 race.

Bruce Walkup of St. Paul, Ind., escaped harm but his car was damaged when it struck the wall in the No. 3 turn. It was the third time a car has struck a wall since the Speedway opened for practice May 1.

Roger McCluskey of Tucson, Ariz., and Jerry Grant of Seattle, Wash., escaped injury when their cars spun during practice laps.

Rookie John Mayler of Bettendorf, Iowa, completed his driver's test.

Owners take hand in all-star plans

NEW YORK (UPI)—Piously promising permission, but also threatening legal action, the National Basketball Association commissioner and club owners Thursday told the players slated to see action in Houston's Astrodome May 23 that the game would have to be cleared by the NBA.

On Tuesday, players from the NBA and ABA said they would stage their own "super game" to demonstrate that interleague play was possible without the merger of the two leagues.

Commissioner Walter Kennedy informed NBA players' attorney Larry Fleisher that "participation in the game by NBA players is a clear violation of paragraphs 5 and 17 of their (the players) contract with their employers, unless each (player) has the written consent of his employer to participate in that game."

"Every owner has expressed to me his strong protest that the game was scheduled without such consent and I have been instructed to inform you that if the breach of contract takes place as has been announced, each owner will hold the participating player responsible to the full extent permitted under the contract and by the law."

Kennedy said, but did not include in the letter that "most if not all of the owners would readily give their consent if they could be assured that every penny derived from the game were going to be contributed to charity."

Paragraph 5 and paragraph 17 of the standard player contract, negotiated by the players association, declare that the player will play only for his club and not engage in any game or exhibition without the written consent of the club.

Fordham hires new cage coach

NEW YORK (UPI)—Hal Wissel, who led Lafayette to its best season in a decade this year, was appointed new head basketball coach at Fordham Thursday to continue the rebuilding program that Dick (Digger) Phelps started this season.

Phelps coached Fordham to its best season in history last season, his first year at the helm, but then left earlier this month to take the position of head coach at the University of Notre Dame after Johnny Dee retired.

Wissel was signed to a four-year contract and athletic director Pete Carllesmo said, "We are very pleased and proud to know we have a man of Dr. Wissel's caliber and we're sure he will continue Fordham's tradition of winning basketball."

Wissel said his first task will be to continue the recruiting begun by Phelps before he left and said he will talk to the players that Phelps had ready to go to Fordham.

Last season Wissel paced Lafayette to a 17-9 record before losing to LaSalle 74-71 in a Mid-Atlantic Conference Playoff.

Indiana inks Crosswhite

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—The Indiana Pacers Thursday announced the signing of their ninth-round draft choice, Tom Crosswhite, a 6-7 forward from the University of Dayton.

Crosswhite is considered a rugged rebounder with a soft shooting touch. He weighs 225 pounds and has the size to battle under the boards for the rebounds.

"He was a regular for the Dayton Flyers in 1970-71 and as a result of a good season the team was invited to the National Invitation Tournament."

Crosswhite led the team in free throw accuracy as a junior, connecting on 84 percent. He averaged 18.4 points and 10.6 rebounds per game as a senior.

Previously, the Pacers signed rookies George McGinnis of Indiana and Darnell Hillman.

Soldier field to house Bears

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Bears and the Chicago Park District announced Thursday that the Bears have found a new home—in venerable Soldier Field, and for at least three years.

President George S. Halas of the Bears and Dan Shannon, president of the Park District, announced after a joint negotiating session that the Bears have signed a three-year lease on the lakefront quarters, with two successive one-year options.

At least $700,000 in improvements will be made, including installation of all-weather synthetic turf and a recasting of the seats and boxes. Seating capacity will be over 52,000.

For years, the Bears have played at Wrigley Field, the home of the Chicago Cubs. During the 1970 season, they made a run at getting Dyche Stadium at Northwestern University in suburban Evanston and played one game there, but the Big Ten turned down their effort to get it on a regular basis.

Remodeling will be started immediately on Soldier Field, which was built in the 1920s.

The Bears will play a preseason game there with the Denver Broncos on Sept. 1, and on Sept. 19 open their NFL championship schedule with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

M. Hagge has Sealy meet lead

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Marlene Bauer Hagge, a 21-year LPGA tour veteran, shot a four-under-par 69 despite gusty winds Thursday to grab a two-shot lead in the $50,000 Sealy Classic.

"I felt this was going to be one of my unlucky days when those winds came up," Mrs. Hagge said.

The 37-year-old woman golf pro had six birdies and two three-putt bogeys in carding a 34-35—69 over the par 36-37-73, 6,423-yard Desert Inn course.

There was a four-way tie at 71 for second place among Donna Caponi, North Hollywood, Calif.; Jane Blalock, Concord, N.H.; Peggy Wilson, Boca Raton, Fla., and Sharron Miller, Marshall, Mich.

Mrs. Hagge, Sarasota, Fla., had birdies on the first, fourth, 10th, 12th, 16th, 17th and 18th holes. She had a pair of 15-foot birdie putts.

Bidding for her first LPGA victory since August, 1969, she bogeyed the 11th and 15th holes.

Miss Caponi, the U.S. Women's Open champion the past two years, had nines of 34-35 with birdies on the fifth, sixth, 10th and 18th holes.

Sandra Haynie of Dallas, Tex., shooting for a record-tying fourth straight tour win, came in at 36-38-74. She was in a five-way tie for ninth place.

A three-player team captained by Marilyn Smith of Jupiter, Fla., won the pro-club celebrity division with a net score of 55. She carded 70.

Pro basketball star Jerry Lucas, playing with a 12 handicap, had a 70.

Zarley feels he can win after taking early lead in Houston meet

HOUSTON (UPI)—Kermit Zarley is not a man to make predictions, but he thinks he is going to win the $125,000 Houston Champions International.

He was tied for the lead with Larry Hinson going into today's second round. Both had four under par 67s in the opening round Thursday.

"I've been playing pretty well and I felt confident coming into this tournament," Zarley said. "I told my wife the other day I want to win this tournament and I don't think I ever told her that before. I can as long as I keep from hitting Spanish moss in the bunkers."

Zarley was penalized two strokes for hitting a piece of Spanish moss on his backswing in a bunker off No. 11. It gave him a double bogey six.

A 1953 ruling by the U.S. Golf Association says that any golfer hitting a loose impediment in a hazard such as a bunker is penalized two strokes. Zarley called the penalty on himself, but protested to commissioner Joseph Dey in New York who PGA officials said it cost him two strokes. He lost the appeal.

Ben Hogan, the immortal hawk, withdrew on the 12th hole after a disastrous fourth hole. He took a nine on the par three No. 4, hitting three balls into a ravine and rejoining his ailing left knee when he tried to retrieve the first one.

He limped gamely for seven holes before quitting.

"I hate to play and quit," he said. "That just burns me up. But I couldn't keep up with the fellas."

Ken Venturi, forced off the tour because of arthritis in his left hand, also withdrew after an eight over par 44 on the front nine. Hogan also had a 44 on the front nine and was 11 over par when he quit.

Hinson and Zarley had a one-stroke lead over New Orleans Open winner Hubert Green and two strokes over Dave Hill and Bob Murphy. Defending champion Gibby Gilbert was at 70 with Bob Goaly, DeWitt Weaver, Dan Sikes, Homero Blancas, Chi Chi Rodriguez and amateur Ben Crenshaw.

Arnold Palmer was one of six tied at even par 71 over the 7,166 yard Cypress Creek 36-35, layout.

Zarley and Hinson both ran birdie strings of four straight holes to take the lead. Zarley started on No. 4 with birdie putts of 15, 5 and 14 and also had putts of 15, 20 and 20 on Nos. 13, 15 and 18.

Hinson, who earned $120,000 last year without winning a tournament, started his string on No. 7 with a birdie putt of seven feet. He had a 20-footer on No. 8, two putts from 23 feet on the par 5 ninth hole and sank an eight-footer on No. 10.

His other birdies were four-footers on Nos. 3 and 13.

Knee forces Hogan to leave tourney

HOUSTON (UPI)—Ben Hogan, his ailing left knee aching so much he could hardly walk, withdrew from the $125,000 Houston Champions Golf Tournament on the 12th hole Thursday. He already had taken a nine on a par 3 hole and was out of contention.

"My damn knee started bothering me and I couldn't play," Hogan said. "I shouldn't have played yesterday, dammit. I never play on the day before a tournament, but it rained the day before yesterday and I played yesterday."

Hogan, at 58 making only his third start in the last year, was unhappy, but was cordial to reporters. He was 11 over par on the par 71 course.

"It's a big disappointment to me," he said. "I hate to play and quit. That just burns me up. It was hurlin' me so I just couldn't walk out there. There's no use going through that misery. I couldn't keep up with those fellas."

Hogan played with Masters champion Charles Coody and Dick Lotz. Chi Chi Rodriguez came over to Hogan, shook hands and said, "Tough break, Mr. Hogan."

That's how much the other pros respect Hogan. Rodriguez, 35, and a tour regular 12 years, still calls him mister.

Hogan's downfall on this bright sunny day came on the 228-yard fourth hole which borders a 20-foot ravine and doglegs to the left. It's a three-iron shot across the ravine to a superlarge green, but Hogan put his first two shots on the rocky, grassy bank halfway to the bottom.

Someone asked Hogan how long since he had taken a nine.

"When I was about 9, I guess," he said, grinning.

Then he remembered an 11 on a par 3 hole in the Jacksonville Open in 1946 when he was tied for the lead in the third round. He finished with an 81 or 82 that day and it was the worst competitive round of his 38-year career, he said.

It was such big news that day the Jacksonville paper put out an extra edition.

Battered Colonels fighting for life

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—The battered Kentucky Colonels returned home Thursday to prepare for Saturday's sixth game here in their bruising American Basketball Association championship playoffs with the Utah Stars.

The Colonels came off second best in both the score and their physical well being after Wednesday night's game in Salt Lake City which the Stars won, 137-127, to take a 2-2 lead in the series. One more Star victory would give them the ABA championship.

Forwards Cincy Powell of the Colonels and Willie Wise of the Stars swapped punches in a three-period brawl, which ended with both players sprawled on the floor and a gash over Powell's right eye.

Powell said Thursday he thought Wise's teammate, Ron Boone, inflicted the cut with a sneak punch.

"Ron Boone sneaked in there and hit me and then sneaked back in the crowd again," Powell said. "But I got him a good shot later when he went in for a layup and now we're going back to Kentucky, so I'm not worried."

Powell's cut eyebrow was not the source of concern for Coach Frank Ramsey's Colonels as Jim Ligon's aching back.

Ligon, a Kentucky forward, was in such pain after straining his back in the third quarter of Wednesday's game, that he could not sit down.

But the veteran hook-shot artist vowed he would play Saturday, regardless of what his doctor may say.

The Utah squad appeared in better physical condition after Wednesday's contest than last Saturday when Red Robbins had intestinal flu and Merv Jackson was bothered by an ailing knee. Jackson contributed 20 points and Robbins 16 to the Utah victory Wednesday night.

The Colonels hope the home-court winning pattern holds up for the sixth game. Neither team has been able to win on the other's floor.

If the series goes seven games, the Colonels will have to buck a season-long jinx when the finale is played at Salt Lake City Tuesday night. They never have beaten Coach Bill Sharman's Stars in the Utah capital.

King likes fighting in U.S.

LONDON (UPI)—World lightweight Champion Ken Buchanan of Scotland said Thursday it is necessary to appear in the United States if a man wants to be called a true professional.

"Forget the money? I'd like to know where you can earn more?" he asked, adding "it all happens there. The entire setup is different, from the pre-flight publicity to the actual show."

Buchanan, sporting six stitches in his forehead as a result of his fight Tuesday with third-ranked Carlos Hernandez of Venezuela, was speaking as a luncheon guest of the British Sports Writers' Association.

"Nine months ago, before I beat (Ismael) Laguna in San Juan to win the title, I was a boy. Three fights across the Atlantic have made me grow up. I feel like a champion now as a result of the attention I received in Los Angeles and New York. I walk tall. I am full of confidence," he said.

Buchanan displayed that confidence Tuesday when he stopped Hernandez, the former world junior welter king, in 30 seconds of the eighth round. He gave Hernandez such a beating that the Venezuelan announced his retirement from the ring on Wednesday.

Warning to his theme, Buchanan said: "They're so professional in the States it makes you wonder what our people are doing at home and in Europe. From the moment you step off a plane you feel you are important, a champion. It makes you fight like one."

Missing outfielder returns

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Carl Taylor reported Thursday to the Kansas City Royals that he was in Sarasota, Fla., where his mother is ill.

The 27-year-old outfielder jumped the team at Baltimore Wednesday night after he removed himself from the game and was suspended by Manager Bob Lemon.

Taylor, apparently in a fit of temper, bundled his baseball equipment—shoes, glove and underclothing—in front of his locker in the clubhouse and set fire to it.

Taylor telephoned General Manager Cedric Tallis Thursday and said he hoped to have his personal affairs straightened out in time to rejoin the team the first of next week.

Old Crow's good taste begins with men who love to work with their hands.

Anthony Clark has a big responsibility. One false move of his hands and he's mixed the wrong measure of grain for the Old Crow formula. Does he ever miss? The proof is in the good taste of our Bourbon.

Making Bourbon which tastes good, bottle after bottle, made Old Crow famous. Back in 1835, our people figured out the formula that took Bourbon-making out of the hit-or-miss category. Later, they handmade the first sour mash Bourbon. We still use our hands in making Old Crow.

After work, most of our men keep on using their hands. Anthony Clark calls on the same craftsmanship mixing grain as he does tying fishing flies.

Over the years, craftsmanship like this has made Old Crow America's best-tasting Bourbon.

Canonero II out to prove credentials in Preakness

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Canonero II's trainer pronounced the Kentucky Derby winner ready today to prove he is more than a one-race horse when he goes to the post in Saturday's running of the $189,000 Preakness stakes at Pimlico.

Downs still was regarded as a "flake" by many rival trainers and stories of fever and coughing have circulated throughout the backstretch all week long.

Trainer Juan Arias and the entire retinue at Pimlico with the horse, merely shrug this off as an unfounded rumor and an exaggeration of a problem the colt had with two baby teeth last week.

Canonero II takes on 10 other 3-year-olds in the Preakness. He beat five of them in the Kentucky Derby, Jim French, Bold-Reason, Eastern Fleet, Vegas Vice and Impetuosity.

Yanks rip Brewers in 10 innings

MILWAUKEE, (UPI) — Horace Clark blasted his second triple of the game in the 10th inning and scored on Jake Gibbs' double Thursday as the New York Yankees edged the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 for their fifth consecutive victory.

Minico outduels Bruins in extra innings to claim district crown

Terry Browning scored from third base on a passed ball in the eighth inning Thursday to lift the Minico Spartans past the Twin Falls Bruins 1-0 and into the fourth district basketball championship.

Minico's tournament-ending decision came after the Bruins had topped Minico 3-0 in an earlier game to force the extra inning sudden-death playoff.

Eric Day bunted him to second base and Larry Ward singled him in with the insurance run.

Rookie shortstop makes Giants go

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — With men on first and second and none out in a scoreless game the other day, Tommy Helms of the Cincinnati Reds sent a hot roller through the box and toward centerfield.

Nearly every pitcher on the San Francisco Giants staff has had occasion to lead once this season to put his arm around the rookie shortstop, who has "stolen" at least 15 base hits from opposing teams this far with fine plays like the one he made on Helms.

A-2 meet at the Twin Falls track. Running finals will begin at 6:30 p.m. with the two classifications alternating.

Chris Speier, getting a quick jump on the ball, cruised about 15 feet behind second base, speared the ball off the carpet and flipped to second baseman Tito Fuentes, all, it seemed, with one motion.

The Reds, their "Big Red Machine" of 1970 in near shambles these days, are reluctant to go around praising players on the Giants but Pete Rose, one of two Cincinnati players not in a slump this year, called Speier "the best looking rookie infielder I've seen in a long long time."

The girls meet will begin with field events at 11 a.m. Saturday for both Class A and B divisions. The running finals will start at noon.

Ex-diamond great dies of cancer

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Funeral services will be held here Saturday for baseball Hall of Famer Henry A. "Helmie" Manush who died Wednesday after a two-year struggle with a variety of illnesses. He was 69.

The umpire signaled out at second. It was a big out at that point and it was one struggling Don Bryant needed to get started. He retired the next two batters without incident to get out of the inning unscathed upon and as he walked off the field he made sure to put his arm around Speier.

All three boys events have the primary purpose of qualifying finalists for the state track and field championships slated next Friday and Saturday at Boise State's Bronco Stadium.

Boise signs cage prospect

BOISE — Cal Clevenger, from Eugene, Ore., one of the top high school basketball players in Oregon, has signed a national letter of intent to attend Boise State next fall.

Dean Smith, head coach at North Carolina, was on hand for the signing of Stahl, who averaged 23 points and 17 rebounds per game in leading his Columbus Walnut Ridge team to a 25-0 record and the state Class AAA championship.

That hardly impressed anybody. Other starters breeze the same distance in 1:00.

Bobby Goldman threw a monkey wrench into the Italian bidding machinery by jumping to three diamonds with his eight-card suit and one king.

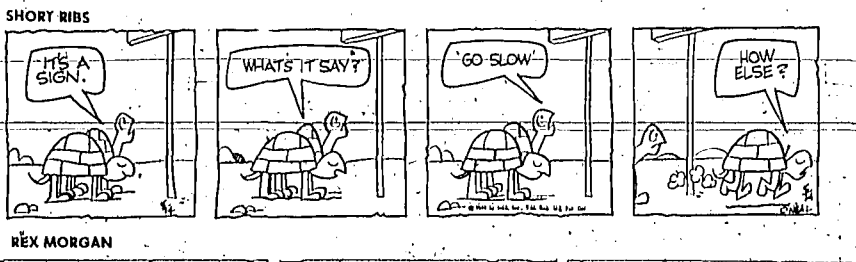

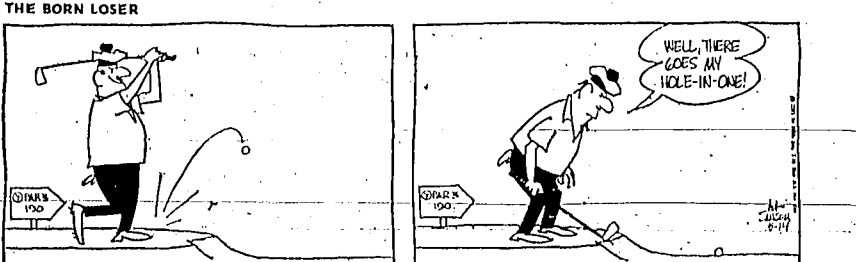

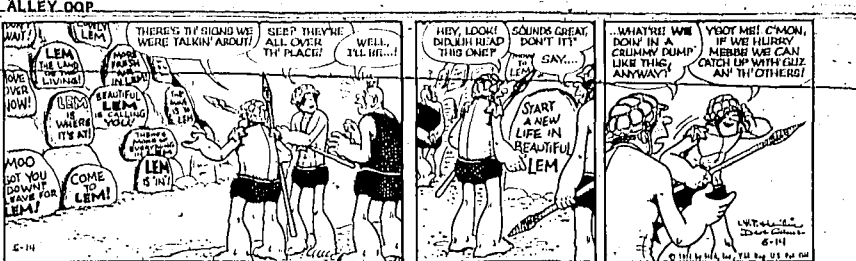

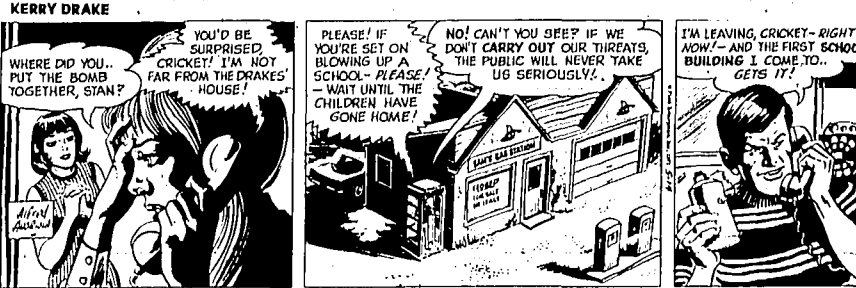

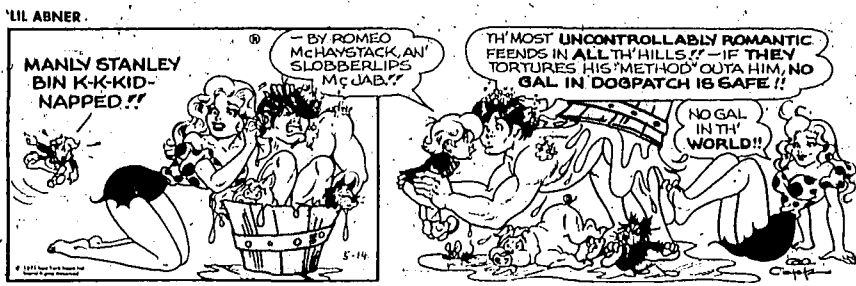

This didn't shut Morini of Italy out. He cue-bid four hearts. Morini cue-bid diamonds again. North's five no-trump bid showed a diamond stopper. This bid also showed that his club opening was the balanced 12-16-point hand.

Morini considered going to seven but was afraid that his partner might hold three small clubs, so he just settled for the small slam. We are sure that Italy would have reached seven if Bobby had sat back quietly and let them bid along without interference.

It looks like a cinch to get to seven with the North-South cards. North has a sound opening bid and South is looking at game-right in his own hand, so when Hamman and Lawrence held the North-South cards for North America they reached seven spades with no trouble at all.
The bidding in the box shows what happened when they got the good cards on the replay.
They were playing the Roman Club. In this system the club opening shows one of several type hands but most of the time it is a balanced hand with 12-16 high-card points, so North opened one club.

'Study now, pay later'

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of three articles exploring the student loan situation in the nation today.

By JOAN DEPPA
United Press International
The good old tradition of working your way through college is being supplemented and supplanted by a relatively new one: "Study now; pay later."

Despite the fact that student loans are not available to all who apply, the number borrowing their way through college is rising. One reason is a shrinking part-time job market; another is the lack of funds for others types of student aid.

"Study now, pay later" will become the primary source of federal aid for all students except the very poor if the Higher Education Opportunity Act of 1971, sent to Congress by the Nixon administration March 4, is adopted.

The administration plan, which proposes to make an added $1 billion in aid available to one million students, would sharply reduce the amount of money available to any one student but theoretically would guarantee help to all students from families with incomes below $10,000 a year.

Only students from low-income families would be eligible for grant and work-study funds. The maximum proposed is $1,000 for a student whose family income is $3,000; a student with a family income of $6,000 would get $300.

To meet any costs above that amount, low-income students would be expected to borrow. Students with a family income above $10,000 would have only one source of federal aid, the guaranteed loan program.

Loans play such a major role in the Nixon plan that discussions with college officials almost invariably raised the question: To what extent should students be expected to go into debt to go to college? "The idea seems to be that students, particularly poor students, should pull themselves up by their bootstraps," Ted S. Cooper, executive director of the National Association of College-Admissions Counselors, said at his office in Evanston, Ill.

"What the government seems to forget is that many of these kids don't have any boots. Asking a kid from a family with an income of $3,000 to borrow $1,500 a year is just not realistic."

The guaranteed loan program is popular, however, with many government officials because it requires a minimum amount of federal funds—and because students have proved to be surprisingly good risks.

Nationwide, less than 1 percent have failed to repay their loans according to schedule.

Most educators closely acquainted with the problems in the guaranteed loan program said it needed to be made more attractive to banks.

A banker spelled out the reason why educators and the government agree that loans have a place in student aid, even when they do not agree how large a proportion of student aid, even when they do not agree how large a student financing should be through loans, or under what terms.

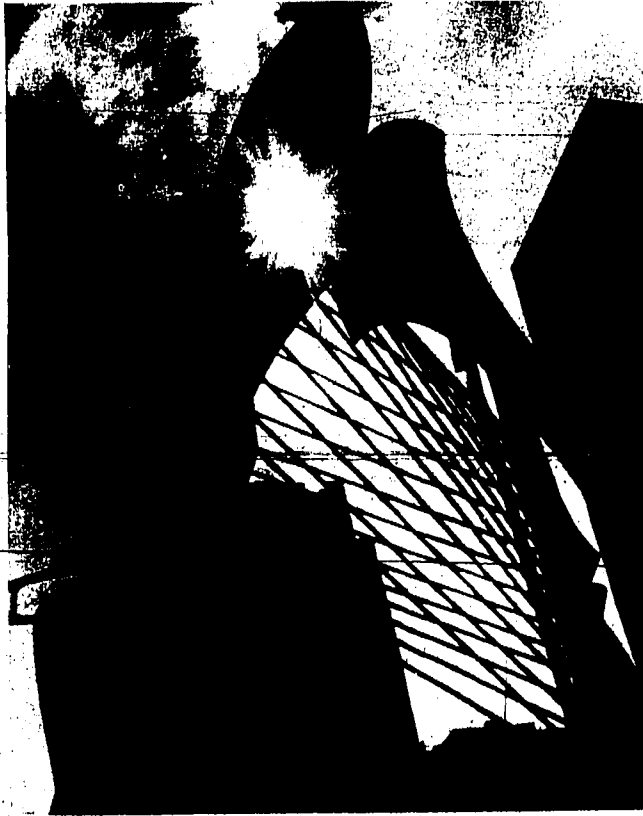

"It's the lesser of two evils," Thomas Sporer, second vice president of American National Bank and Trust Co. in Chicago, said about loans to students.

"It's better to get out of school with a debt than not to get-out at all."

Black colonels to gain stars

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Army, which in early World War II was the first service to promote a Negro to general, announced today the appointment of three black colonels to the rank of brigadier general.

Their nomination, approved by President Nixon, raises to 10 the number of blacks who have attained the rank of general or admiral or have been nominated for that rank in all of the services, the National Guard and the reserves. Several of the ten have retired.

The three nominated today were Col. Roscoe C. Cartwright, 51, of Kansas City; Col. Oliver W. Dillard, 44, of Margaret, Ala.; and Col. James F. Hamlet, 49, of Alliance, Ohio. Their promotions are subject to usually routine Senate confirmation.

Cartwright is now stationed at the Pentagon in the office of the assistant Army chief of staff for force development. Dillard is a senior province adviser in Vietnam, where he has been stationed since mid-1969. Hamlet is commander of the 11th Aviation Group, 1st Cavalry Division, in Vietnam.

Wider medical aid asked for nurses

BOISE (UPI)—A research professor of health law says nurses should have the opportunity to serve as physicians' assistants and perform and make decisions limited only by education and experience.

Nathan Hershey of the University of Pittsburgh's Graduate School of Public Health, told 70 health professionals in Boise Wednesday that some nurses resist the idea they could fill the gap that physicians' assistants now are beginning to fill in patient care.

"They view nursing as a separate and distinct discipline and service as a physician's assistant does not call for the skills and qualities of professional nurses," Hershey said.

But he said he would look up on this role for nurses as one that "would demonstrate the interdependence of nursing and medicine."

Canyon care lid proposed

BOISE (UPI)—A governor's advisory council decided Wednesday no more long term care or nursing home beds should be constructed in Canyon County.

The health facilities subcommittee of the Governor's Advisory Council on Comprehensive Health Planning met to decide whether a second hospital should be established in Nampa.

Joe Karpach, chairman of the advisory council, said the Treasure Valley Health Planning Agency had asked the council to investigate the proposal. The subcommittee recommended that before any construction of additional hospital beds in Canyon County, a joint study by the Caldwell Memorial Hospital and Mercy Medical Center of Nampa should be made.

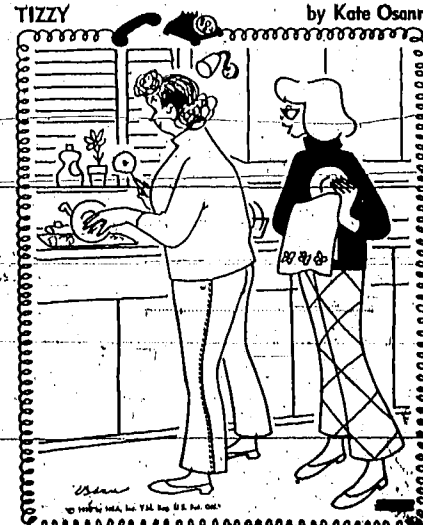

Borrowing boost due

BOISE (UPI)—A vice-president of the San Francisco investment firm, A.G. Becker, told a meeting of the Western States' Treasurers Thursday that federal agency borrowing should pick up soon.

Douglas J. Robbins told treasurers and deputies from 10 of the 13 western states the rise in federal agency investing should help restore confidence of public fund investors in the money market.

But he said the federal agency investment practice would be a departure from the tradition of treasury bills since the agencies would be doing their own financing.

Texas leads all other states in number of farms and number of acres in farmland. North Carolina follows. Texas in number of farms and Montana has the second highest farmland acreage.

Every effort is made to eliminate false and misleading advertising. If you are a convenience or disappointed reader, please do not place in these columns. In the event of error, notify the Classified Department at once. Advertisers are expected to check the first insertion of their copy will not be responsible for errors after the first day.

Wishes appearing in a Classified Ad always apply for the wording to be repeated back to you. Be certain to check the first day ad appears to make sure it is right. Especially check phone number and address.

All "Help Wanted" ads must state the nature of the work. "Sales Help" ads must name the product to be sold and if the pay is salary or commission or both.

The publisher assumes no financial responsibility for typographical errors, errors in duration of publication, wrong classifications, the omission of copy (partially or completely) or complete omission of the total ad in either the classified or display advertising sections of the paper. Liability for errors or omissions shall not exceed the cost to the advertiser of that portion of space occupied by such error.

Changes in the classification of the cost of the ad must be made within 10 days of publication. Credit is allowed for first insertion only. Receipts must be presented for each refund.

62 NEW CARS MUST GO IN MAY!

1971 MERCURY COMET SPORT COUPE
 Fully equipped with: wall to wall nylon carpet, economical 170 engine, big 645-14 tires, handsome padded dash, door operated dome lights, deluxe steering wheel, locking brake system with warning light, 2 speed electric wipers with washers, plus deluxe styling for "Now".

Buy For As Little As $192 Down $65.41 Per Month

Yes, you too can afford to move up to a new Comet for as little as $192 down and then break those payments into easy as you go system. As little as $65.41 per month for 3 years (that's $14.18 per week) will put you in the driver's seat. However, if you have a trade-in the payments can even be lower. But if not you get all the federal taxes paid in the $2188 price along with the Idaho Title Transfer paid. If financed, the total contract would be $2334.76 which is including A.P.R. of 11.08 which makes finance charges $358.76.

Delivered in Twin Falls $2188 Or
