Rail strike law asked

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Railroad signalmen went on strike today, shutting down the nation's rail lines, and President Nixon proposed emergency legislation to force the men back to work until at least July 1.

Within five hours after the 15,000-man Brotherhood of Railway Signalmen went on strike, effectively shutting down all rail passenger and freight traffic, the Florida White House announced Nixon's plan to Congress, calling for a new round of negotiations.

Urging passage of a joint resolution to halt the shutdown that started at 8:01 a.m. local time, Nixon said a continued national strike "would cause great hardship to all Americans and strike a serious blow at the nation's economy."

"It is essential that our railroads continue to operate," the President said.

The President recommended that Congress promptly enact legislation to extend the present contract negotiation between the signalmen, union and the railroads until July 1.

He further asked Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson to follow the situation closely as it developed and to continue assisting both sides of the dispute. He said that if no settlement had been reached by June 21, it should be reported to him and Congress.

The signalmen, who maintain and install signal equipment, struck when the railroads refused to meet their demands for wage increases almost double what other rail unions have accepted.

Key members of Congress pledged in advance to give prompt consideration to Nixon's request. Veteran observers said that in spite of traditional reluctance of lawmakers to enact legislation during an emergency, Congress would likely approve the Nixon request—or something similar to stop the strike—some time today.

He said that would put an end to the "chaotic nature of collective bargaining" in the transportation industry.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said "we feel this piecemeal method is no way to run a railroad."

Some 600,000 other rail workers honored the picket lines of the signalmen, who comprise only about 2 per cent of the rail work force.

With a few exceptions, all train service was idled across the nation from Boston to San Diego.

The people most immediately affected were an estimated 600,000 railroad commuters.

Manufacturing plants immediately began slowdowns. One of the first was the Chrysler stamping plant at Tinsburg, Ohio, which said it would work half shifts today and would lay off all its 4,200 workers if the strike continued into Tuesday.

Strike ties rail lines

TWIN FALLS — Union Pacific officials in Twin Falls and Pocatello said only that all railroad operations are tied up throughout the Magic Valley, and Idaho because of striking signalmen.

Twin Falls freight depot personnel on duty said they could not elaborate on conditions here other than to say there are no trains moving. They declined to say if any trains are tied up with freight shipments in the local area.

In Twin Falls Vern Bybee, AFL-CIO Signalman Union member who was picketing the local railroad yards, said he is the only signalman in Twin Falls. Other union members live in other towns in Southern Idaho.

Asked what the local operations would do without a signalman, Bybee said, "I don't know. I guess they just hope there isn't a trouble."

Nationally the Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen are asking pay increases above the schedule accepted by other railroad unions. The signalmen contend the wage pattern shows inequities for their work classification.

Railroad officials said all trains will remain shut down until a solution to the strike is reached.

The Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen went on strike at that time, the result tying up

Annex heads agenda

TWIN FALLS — City council members have again scheduled a decision on the annexation of lands south of the city along State Highway 74 on the council meeting agenda for tonight.

City Manager Jean Milar said he believes the council has come to a decision as information they had been awaiting has arrived and been reported to council members.

The issue has been postponed at the past two council meetings, pending arrival of additional information from Kellwood Co. regarding earlier annexation in the area.

Also on the agenda for Monday night will be a resolution to call for reconstruction work bids at the City-County Airport. Bid opening is proposed for June 18 with advertising June 3 and 10.

A public hearing will be held at 8 p.m. on the proposed revision of boundary lines for the Urban Renewal project in Twin Falls.

In addition to regular reports and additional reading of ordinances presented during previous weeks, the council will also continue discussion on the Green Acres traffic problems and parking construction at Harry Barry Park.

Kidnapped

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI)—Four masked and armed men kidnaped Israeli Consul General Ephraim Elrom when he arrived home for lunch today, police sources said.

S. Viet forces drive into valley

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese battalions opened a long-delayed allied drive into the A Shau Valley today, marching down from the mountains at the southeast, field spokesmen said.

U.S. helicopters flew the several thousand South Vietnamese infantrymen to positions in the mountains Sunday. The helicopters ran into heavy Communist ground fire and had to land the soldiers at a point a mile away from the planned landing zone.

Elite Huc Bao (Black Panther) long-range reconnaissance troops preceded the infantrymen into the valley with the mission of knocking out Communist anti-aircraft guns, the field spokesman said.

Two other B52 formations continued the bombing of Communist trail networks in

Cut danger told

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI)—The White House today made public a letter from a top-ranking official of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), warning that a unilateral reduction of U.S. forces in Europe would undermine the Atlantic alliance and injure NATO's flexibility for an "immediate nuclear retaliation if attacked."

The letter, sent to Nixon by Manlio Brosio, NATO's secretary general, was another step in the administration's offensive against Sen. Mike Mansfield's proposal to cut in half American forces in Europe, from 300,000 to 150,000.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said that the Brosio letter was not solicited, "I think he was moved to write the letter," he said.

Brosio said that he had seen reports of Mansfield's proposed cut and added, "everyone is, of course, entitled to his own opinion, and I do not doubt, or contest, the good faith and intentions of Sen. Mansfield or of anyone who may share his view."

Autopsy results studied

TWIN FALLS — Results of an autopsy performed Sunday in the death of Dr. William M. (Bill) Jones, 45 year old Twin Falls dentist, were being reviewed today in an attempt to determine the cause of death, County Coroner Cloyce Edwards said.

He said Dr. Jones' body was found at 10 a.m. Sunday in his office, 1515 Addison Ave. E., by a brother-in-law, Gene Shirley, who had a golfing date with the doctor. His family reported he failed to return home Saturday night.

Dr. Jones was active in the Twin Falls Men's Golf Association, and a member of the City Parks and Recreation Commission and was an amateur artist. (Obituary, P. 2).

Volcano violence roars on CATANIA, Sicily (UPI)—Rivers of lava poured down on cottages and farm houses on the slopes of Mount Etna today in the worst eruption of the volcano in 43 years.

Farmers who built barricades to try to divert the lava from their doors retreated to neighbors' houses to watch helplessly as it burned their orchards and vineyards.

The stream of lava reached the first houses Sunday in the outlying districts of the town of Sant'Alfio, one of five threatened by the renewed activity and eruption from Etna, and officials warned the town may be endangered.

Church burns

SPECTATORS watch as century old Center Methodist Church at Malden, Mass., burns early Sunday despite efforts of firemen. Red flag, apparently left by arsonists, flapped from church flag pole. Fire officials first blamed blaze on "left wing radicals" but later said there was no evidence to support charge. (UPI)

Accident kills Gooding man

SHOSHONE — Clinton Albers, 70, Gooding, died in a one-car accident Sunday morning about five miles west of Shoshone.

Lincoln County Deputy Sheriff Bill Anderson said Albers left Gooding at 8:30 a.m., headed for Canada where he owns property. Anderson said he was notified at 9 a.m. by a passing motorist who discovered the accident.

Anderson said apparently Albers was driving too fast and failed to negotiate a curve that

Hearings open

WASHINGTON (UPI)—With Americans already paying more for postage stamps, the new Postal Rate Commission today opened hearings to determine whether the $1.41 billion temporary rate hike should be permanent.

The U.S. Postal Service and its 12-man board of governors put the higher rates into effect at midnight Sunday because the five-member rate commission did not act, as the law provides, within 100 days after the increases were proposed.

The law which created the new postal set-up also created the rate commission to act as final authority on rate changes proposed by the Postal Service—power held until now by Congress. And if the commis-ion, in its hearings starting today, does not act by July 1, when the Postal Service formally takes over the mail system, rates will fall back to what they were Saturday.

The rate commission was expected to approve the increases. The hearings could last for weeks, however, since the rate controllers probably will attempt to dispel any idea that their function is an automatic one.

As the hearing opened, postal offices across the country began selling more than 5 billion new stamps. First class jumped from six to eight cents—the first two-cent hike in the history of that postal class—while air mail went from 10 to 11 cents.

Idaho labor law outlined

By CHARLOTTE BELL Times-News Writer

GLENN'S FERRY — Officials from Food Producers of Idaho Inc. met Sunday with farm laborers, migrant workers and farm producers to explain the new Idaho farm labor law.

The meeting was originally scheduled to be held at the Hammatt Labor Camp, but because of the weather, it was held at Glenn's Ferry.

Joseph Hernandez, spokesman for the Food Producers of Idaho, explained the rights and duties under a new Idaho agricultural labor collective bargaining act, House Bill 241.

He said the most important provision of the act is that it extends the rights of collective bargaining to Idaho agricultural labor for the first time.

One objection was raised to the act by Eleazar Alvarez, migrant worker at the Hammatt camp. He objected to the provision where a migrant worker would have to work for 14 days of a calendar year for a particular employer before they could petition the Idaho Labor Board about unfair practices.

Alvarez pointed out most migrant workers work for a farmer only two or three days and sometimes only seven days. He said he felt this bill was not going to be of much use to workers.

One of the other problems discussed was the relation of farmers to migrant workers. Thomas Coule, Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service official at Mountain Home, pointed out under the present Sugar Act, it does not permit anyone under the age of 14 to work in sugar beet fields.

"This tends to pose a hardship on migrant workers," he said. He felt this should be changed because in other lines of agricultural work, children of any age are permitted to work and many of these migrant families have children between 8 and 14 who could be working to supplement the family's income. He noted these youngsters would not be working until they were out of school.

Jesus Bernin, commissioner of human rights, with the Idaho Department of Special Services, said one of the major problems facing migrant workers is an overabundance of workers and some farmers will take advantage of this.

He said, "It is a shame that a farm worker who puts the food on our table does not half the time have enough food himself."

Hernandez said Food Producers of Idaho Inc., which was formed six months ago, is trying to help the farmer and farm laborer to work together in a more cooperative environment and the organization has adopted several resolutions to this effect to protect not only the farmer, but farm laborer.

"This was a first of several meetings the Food Producers of Idaho plan with farm laborers." Phil Batt, Wilder, president of the organization, said he was not sure when the next meeting would be held.

Kill SST, solon asks

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., asked the Senate today to kill a House-approved move to revive the supersonic transport (SST).

Ellender, Chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, previously was a supporter of the SST, voting in favor of funding the faster-than-sound plane on both previous occasions the issue came to the Senate.

Ellender indicated he had not necessarily changed his mind about the SST.

'Flying nun' attends fete at St. Edward's

TWIN FALLS — "The Flying Nun" came to Twin Falls on Sunday, courtesy of a number of devoted parishioners of St. Edward's Catholic Church and patrons of its parochial school. The "Flying Nun," as she was affectionately termed, was Sister Bernita, a former superior, principal and teaching sister at St. Edward's School, who was affiliated with the parish for more than 23 years.

She left about two years ago to return to Pennsylvania, but was flown to Twin Falls for a reception in honor of the sisters of St. Edward's on Sunday. Sister Bernita was greeted at the parish hall with a replica of herself as the "Flying Nun," carrying a suitcase labeled "Scranton, Pa., or Bust." The display was created by Mrs. Margaret Neville and Mrs. Joe Mendola in honor of Sister Bernita. Several hundred members of the parish and friends flocked to the parish hall for the reception, attended by Sister Kathleen, superior of the convent in Twin Falls; Sister Mary Zita, principal of St. Edward's; Sister Bernita and the teaching sisters of the school. They will leave Twin Falls early in June after St. Edward's School closes its doors for the last time. The order, Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, is closing the school after nearly half a century as part of a consolidation move which will also close several parochial schools in Coeur d'Alene and Gresham, Ore. Other parochial schools will close in Wallace and Kellogg as economic considerations make their operation unfeasible.

Farewell

Dollar flow tidal wave

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The flow of American dollars overseas reached tidal wave proportions in the first three months of this year, with a deficit of $5.5 billion in the balance of payments, the Nixon administration reported today.

That was the highest one-quarter deficit on record. The Commerce Department said the figure—the difference between what the nation spends abroad and what it takes in—was $2.2 billion higher than for the last quarter of 1970 and more than half the $9.8 billion deficit for all of 1970.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, who discussed the figure at a Senate Finance Committee hearing on trade, said: "Clearly that level of deficit is not sustainable."

Connally said that in addition to what the government is doing to improve the U.S. trade situation, business and labor must do more "to hold down the rise in labor costs, to avoid unnecessary increases in interest rates and to speed the return to price stability."

The first-quarter deficit figured in the dollar crisis which swept through Europe the past few weeks. As a result of the flood of dollars, the German mark was permitted to "float"—in effect increasing its value in relation to the dollar.

The official deficit would have been $180 million worse had it not been for allocation to the U.S. account of special drawing rights, the two-year-old international reserve currency sometimes referred to as "paper gold."

The official settlements balance measures the dollar holdings of foreign central banks and other official institutions. It indicates the immediate pressures on the international value of the dollar.

The Commerce Department said much of the first-quarter deficit was caused by speculators seeking higher interest rates in Europe than were available in the United States.

In his Senate testimony, Connally said the United States must step up its trade.

New charge filed

TWIN FALLS — A felony charge of illegal possession of a narcotic was dismissed against a Twin Falls man Friday and a new complaint, charging the misdemeanor, illegal possession of marijuana was filed against him.

Under a new law, which went into effect May 1, anyone arrested in the state on a possession charge must be cited for a misdemeanor only. Roy had not completed his court route by the time the new law went into effect.

Maximum penalty for possession of marijuana under the new law is a $300 fine and/or six months in the county jail.

The motion to dismiss was made by Leon Smith, prosecuting attorney, with agreement by Roy's counsel, Golden Bennett.

COMMENT Single File

Christian Science Monitor

The Democrats seem to be walking toward next year's presidential election single file. Looked at head on, they seem to provide one silhouette. And not a very distinct one at that.

This, they may reason, is only prudence. The contenders have made a pact not to elbow one another yet for position. They need to stick together in Congress to minimize Mr. Nixon's initiatives. Besides, it's plain too early to bolt to the front with a challenge and be vulnerable too long.

This Democratic thinking is not hard to understand. What troubles us, however, is not that the Democrats seem to lack candidates able to break from the political pack and run hard — no one underestimates the vitality of a Muskie or Humphrey.

We are concerned that the Democrats seem enmeshed in the same ideological pack. And the country and their party needs more of them at the moment.

For all his maverickness, Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty was largely right the other day when he said of his fellow Democrats: "I think that the position of the moderate Democrat needs to be presented to the voters as an alternative to the so-called antiwar doves and leftwingers." Only Sen. Henry Jackson seems to be following this advice.

Thus far, the Democratic candidates have been most audible over the war. And, except for one-issue antiwar candidate McGovern their conformity seems largely a convention — especially Mr. Muskie's sudden conversion to an end-of-this-year get-out date.

This conformity on the war may be right in principle. It may be necessary strategically to get enough backing from doves and intellectuals to cash in for party convention votes. But it may help them little a November hence if a residual force, Mr. Nixon's minimum promise, proves acceptable to the American voter.

Worse, it is a disservice to the country for the candidates to limit themselves by thinking the war — or the war plus the environment in the case of Mr. Muskie, or plus health insurance with Mr. Kennedy — is America's only problem.

Frankly, there may not be all that much to choose among ultimate Republican and Democratic proposals for the economy, welfare reform, the plight of the cities. Both parties draw on the same bureaucratic and intellectual program-writing bank.

But for the candidates, the quality and tone and depth of their thinking may be decisive. Take the problem of the cities: Who is dealing with the fact that in the last decade Chicago lost nearly a fifth of its white population, Detroit nearly a third? This profound sociological change, causing dislocations in jobs and housing, running welfare costs higher and hurting the schools, is continuing into the '70's. Who is readying Americans for the implications of black urban centers, abandoned by business and left to send subtle fearwaves into the suburbs?

We need men of high vision, with an instinct for the operatives in historical change to run a nation. At the moment the Democrats seem too intent on looking not too unlike one another to produce such a candidate.

A Scratch

Idaho State Journal

The Chamber of Commerce, other volunteer workers, and certain employees of the city and Bannock County have done a commendable job in the last three years of seeking to improve Pocatello's appearance and livability.

MANY OLD buildings, sheds and shacks have been torn down and hauled away, and hundreds of old car bodies have been taken to the junkyard. Hundreds of truckloads of litter have been removed from yards and lots in the city.

But the surface has hardly been scratched.

Most of us who live in neat and clean homes aren't even aware of the shameful conditions which blight many neighborhoods. Bill Burgess, who claims to be no more than a concerned citizen, has taken time in recent weeks to conduct many influential persons on a personal tour of the city. But his guests don't see many flower gardens, split-level homes, or backyard swimming pools.

Instead, Bill points out houses in which humans live which should not be inhabited by cattle. He finds yards which are littered with rotting junk of no earthly use to anyone — rusting cars, old tires, wire and wood, debris left there in some cases for generations.

There are shacks huddled in alleys containing little of value and posing a frightful fire hazard.

THE GREATEST worry, of course, is the dilapidated, filthy houses in which some people live. We saw dozens of such places which could not meet a single code requirement, were they ever checked. The effect of health of children and others living in such conditions can be uncomfortably imagined.

While the near East Side has a share of such conditions, many other sections of the city share the blight.

So what's the answer? Many answers are called for. For the short range, there needs, to be a drastic program of public education. People need to be informed of the dangers in inadequate sanitation, and perhaps shamed into doing something about it. There needs to be a much broader effort to convince people to clean up their yards, and have the unsightly back-alley sheds and shacks removed.

Taking a longer view, there simply has to be more housing built in Pocatello. If there were any doubt of the need for federally-assisted low cost housing, Bill can sweep it away with a one-hour tour. Pocatello could use hundreds of new living units which would discomfit no one except the slumlords who rent miserable quarters to miserable people who have no other place to live.

Coincidentally with developing more housing, there must be a serious and concerted effort to enforce the law on safe wiring, plumbing, sanitation and maintenance of public nuisances. If the city or other governmental units lack the manpower to do the job, then it must obtain the manpower, and the budgets be damned.

SOMETHING WHICH is both encouraging and discouraging on Bill's tour is the frequent situation where two houses are side by side. One may be neat and trim, with a carefully kept yard and a generally attractive air. Next door may be a warren of tangled grass and weeds, junk, litter and outbuildings, all surrounding a filthy deteriorating structure in which people live. It is heartening to see that some persons, however, modest their means, maintain pride in their home and neighborhood — even while someone next door rots in an accumulation of dirt, filth and junk.

The problem is hardly unique to Pocatello, of course. In fact, we probably have fewer problem areas than many cities, especially in the wake of vigorous cleanup efforts in recent years. But we clearly cannot afford complacency.

The "Dumping" Of Nixon

WASHINGTON — There is a lot more than high-flown altruism behind Rep. "Pete" McCloskey's artful spearheading of the "dump Nixon" commotion.

Real fact is McCloskey's coy politicking is strictly utilitarian. The disast'ed California Republican faces the strong likelihood of being dumped himself. He is under foreboding double-barreled attack:

- (1) Local, state and congressional GOP leaders are angrily gunning for him, and admittedly canvassing the field for a potent candidate to run against him in next spring's primary.
- (2) As a result of the 1970

Census, his eleventh district probably will be importantly changed by the state legislature — with a county comprising a sizable Democratic and ultra-liberal vote being replaced by a more conservative and normally Republican county.

Such a switch would seriously affect McCloskey's chances of holding onto his House seat.

In his three elections, he won largely through Democratic backing. In the first (1967) special election, he owed his victory over Mrs. Shirley Temple Black to a heavy Democratic swing to him. The same happened in 1968, and even more so in 1970 when the Democrats didn't even run anyone against him.

So seeing the threatening handwriting on the wall, McCloskey is calmly maneuvering for a face-saving way out.

The Democratic engineered and financed "dump Nixon" agitation is a fortuitous break for both him and the Democrats. A rebellious Republican standard-bearer suits their purpose to a tee; and for McCloskey, it's a grand-standing escape from a possible trouncing at home.

As McCloskey sees it, he has nothing to lose playing David against the President.

As far as the GOPers are concerned, they are already furiously bent on axing him.

And while the odds are big against his getting anywhere challenging the President, it will be infinitely more satisfying to McCloskey's far-from-modest ego to be licked doing that than being defeated for re-election to the House.

So while devoutly professing lofty idealism and principles, actually McCloskey is being strictly pragmatic.

Graphically illustrative of that trait was McCloskey's recent voting on the appropriation for the House Internal Security Committee — long the target of leftist, ultra-liberals and other militants.

McCloskey was on all sides of his red-hot issue.

It's a highly revealing example of how he craftily maneuvers and operates. Within the space of little more than one hour, he voted both against the appropriation and for it — thus putting himself in a position to claim approval from partisans on both sides.

This remarkable dexterity went unreported. Few if any of McCloskey's constituents, to say nothing of the public at large, are aware of this significant incident. Following is the untold story:

There were three roll call votes. The first was on an amendment to increase the committee's budget to $570,000 — $120,000 more than recommended by the Committee on Administration. After a stormy wrangle, the House approved that by the decisive count of 256 to 129.

McCloskey was silent during the torrid argument, but on the showdown voted against the increase.

He again voted with the opposition on the second and key test on the issue. This was an ultra-liberal motion to recommit the appropriation; in effect, to kill it. This was rejected even more decisively — 274 to 104.

On the immediately following third roll call — for final passage — McCloskey, again saying nothing, apparently underwent a remarkable change of heart. This time, he lined up with the overwhelming majority — 298 to 75.

Narcotic Dollar

The recent and continuing dollar crisis demonstrates that foreigners, even as home folks, get addicted to American dollars.

Even as with heroin, Americans on welfare can't get enough and won't do without.

Europeans hate the Yankee dollars which have supported their habit, but they can't break the habit. Let's help them.

Uncle Sam's bank account is overdrawn. He has been printing and dispersing more dollars than he has gold "in the bank."

So foreign countries are saying our dollars aren't worth so much any more.

Now they are trying to give us less in return for all those Yankee dollars they have accumulated.

Thus has our nation's half-century of generosity boomeranged. Selflessly, we sent dollars to other nations as loans and gratuities. We hurried with dollars to heal the hurts from a typhoon in Pakistan. We invested billions of dollars establishing manufacturing in other countries. We spent billions sending American troops over there to protect those countries and other billions maintaining those troops.

Thus over the years those countries accumulated vast stockpiles of American dollars. But those dollars don't buy as much either there or here any more. Some places, marks or pounds buy more goods or services than do dollars, so some nations toy with the idea of demanding we "make good" our dollars with gold, though both we and they know we can't.

While international monetary values are re-established at more realistic levels, let us learn from this experience.

As military intervention in the affairs of other nations has become impractical, so has dollar-diplomacy been overdone.

The important reevaluation which would be of most lasting benefit to them and us requires that we revert to a period of enlightened isolationism.

And don't let that word frighten you.

After generations of British monarchs had conducted limited military campaigns along the boundaries of their influence until the British Isles began to sink under a burden of debt, our nation's father, George Washington, tried to warn us against "entangling alliances."

It was the readiness of English kings to spend men and money in ceaseless military campaigns against other kings which haunted the men who drafted our nation's Constitution. In every way they could think of, they sought to place both the sword and the purse beyond the unilateral reach of the Chief Executive.

The Indo-Chinese war is precisely the kind of debilitating conflict which our nation's founders sought to prevent.

It is tragic that we had to spend so much blood and so much treasure to learn what we might have learned from the misadventure of others.

When Congress seeks to employ its appropriations power to restrict the battlefield deployment of troops, it is properly within the prerogatives which were purposely designed to restrain kingly behavior.

Paradoxically, members of Congress who were arch-interventionists a decade ago are now leading the prudent withdrawal.

RAY CROMLEY

Red Power

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The changing U.S.-Soviet military balance of power makes inevitable a major shift in U.S. foreign strategy.

It makes the old freedom-of-U.S. action next to impossible. In another Cuban missile crisis, we probably could not push a showdown of the 1961 type without a very strong reaction by the Russians, perhaps in Berlin.

We probably could not again be able to get away unscathed with a precautionary military step of the type President Eisenhower carried out in Lebanon in 1958.

It means too that the United States probably can never again take the chance of becoming tied down in one country so completely as in Vietnam.

A nuclear stalemate to Soviet superiority would give USSR new freedom to promote "wars of national liberation" or underground insurgencies directed and supplied with arms, money and "volunteers" from outside.

It probably would mean a gradual decline in the unity of the free world, with more countries attempting some sort of a detente with the Soviet Union.

It could mean a growing activism among aggression-minded small nations, especially those allied with Moscow, because they would have less fear of intervention by the United States.

In sum, the growth of Soviet power could tempt the Kremlin and its allies into bolder challenges, thus increase the danger of war.

The shift in military power — responsible for the trends noted above — is dramatic.

A decade ago, at the Cuban missile crisis, American ICBMs outnumbered Russia's by 10 to one. American conventional forces dominated the seas.

Today the United States is still ahead, but not by much. Some high officials argue that by 1975 the Russians may be ahead. Some set the date at 1980.

Though others disagree that there is evidence the Soviet Union will achieve superiority most of the experts agree that barring a major technological breakthrough, the United States will never again enjoy the preponderance over Russia that it had in 1961.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Pick-Up

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had sexual relations with a prostitute I picked up, but mostly I have a great fear that I may have contracted a venereal disease. Do you think I ought to go to a doctor and have him give me a test? If so, how soon after contact would I show symptoms? — E.P.

Instead of wringing our hands over the upsurge of venereal disease, and warning young people to "Watch out for VD," perhaps we can accomplish more by answering letters like yours.

Let's take the two principal diseases separately. If you picked up gonorrhea, the more prevalent one, you would notice a whitish discharge, usually within a week. Its presence, plus discomfort on urinating, probably would have sent you to a doctor for treatment before I had time to get your reply into the paper anyway.

Modern treatment is very quick and effective — but it should not be delayed. Delay risks inflammation and scar tissue, including damage to the prostate gland.

Syphilis is a much more subtle affair. The primary lesion (a chancre, or "painless sore") may occur in two to four weeks, but this is rather variable.

Scrapings from this "sore," studied under a microscope, a technique called darkfield examination, may show the germs themselves — spirochetes. Then treatment starts immediately.

However, if you do not have this examination while that primary lesion is still present, the "sore" will presently disappear — but the disease won't.

The safe course then is to have a blood test (VDRL is a common one, although others are in use). This should be done 30 days after exposure, and again at 60 days after exposure. By then, you'll be sure, and either leave a sign of relief or be treated.

After disappearance of the small primary lesion, a rash very often develops on the body, which is a second warning for those who don't do the smart thing and have a blood test. The rash, too, will disappear in time, but the germs won't, and will continue doing damage, ranging from arthritis to heart disease to brain damage, for the rest of your life.

We can talk ourselves blue in the face, but venereal diseases will continue to spread until enough people become suspicious enough to have early tests — and thus avoid spreading the disease themselves.

The danger is by no means just from prostitutes. Very large outbreaks of these diseases have been traced to "amateurs," and to promiscuous teen-agers.

I doubt that anything I say will have much impact on today's easy morals and promiscuity, but watching for the signs of VD and having proper tests can do a great deal to prevent disease.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been plagued with fever blisters since I was a child and have had as many as five on my lip at a time. Is there anything I can do to avoid them? — Mrs. H.S.H.

They apparently come from a common virus. Some people are sensitive to it; the luckier folks aren't.

Have you tried having your doctor give you a smallpox vaccination, or even a series of such vaccinations? For reasons we don't understand, it sometimes helps the body create a defense against that virus.

Note to Mrs. J.H.: The accepted pattern for giving flu shots is to give two, about two months apart, the first time, but to give a single booster shot if you had flu inoculations the year before. I do know that some doctors prefer to give two shots each year, sometimes using smaller amounts, but my own feeling is that a single booster is adequate.

Sadat tightens Egypt control

By United Press International
President Anwar Sadat took over as head of Egypt's police force today, apparently consolidating his control of the nation. Wide-ranging purges were underway with hundreds of arrests reported.

In Jerusalem, political sources said Israel will delay further efforts to reach agreement with Egypt on reopening the Suez Canal until the situation in Cairo is stabilized.

The sources said the decision was taken at a two and one-half hour cabinet meeting Sunday, a session devoted almost entirely to reviewing the situation in Egypt and evaluating its implications for Israel.

Sadat carried out a major purge Thursday, firing six cabinet ministers and three other top political leaders. In addition, nearly 300 other officials either have been arrested or relieved from government posts.

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram said today 110 persons have been arrested and referred to courts for trial. It said "their actions indicated they were working against the interests and security of the masses."

The semi-official Middle East News Agency (MENA) said the police force named Sadat as its supreme head and he accepted the job.

A seventh cabinet minister also was reported fired.

According to official sources in Cairo, Communications Minister Kamal Henry Badir was the latest to go. He was the only Christian member of Sadat's 33-member cabinet and has served in his position for a number of years.

In New York, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and his assistant, Joseph J. Sisco, were briefing U.N. Secretary General Thant and U.N. Middle East negotiator Gunnar V. Jarring today on their efforts to get an agreement to reopen the Suez Canal.

The two U.S. officials were presenting a detailed report on the results of their recent visits to Cairo and Jerusalem. The conference was billed as "informative" only and pro-ouncements so far indicated that a formal resumption of the Jarring talks with Israeli and Egyptian representatives was not envisaged for the moment.

The main points of contention between Israel and Egypt at the moment on possible reopening of the waterway revolve around how far Israel would withdraw its forces from the eastern bank of the canal and whether Egyptian forces would be allowed to cross the canal once the Israelis have withdrawn.

In Cairo, Sadat appeared well in control of the political situation. For the second day in a row, demonstrators marched through the streets Sunday shouting their support for Sadat, who took over as president following the death of Gamal Abdel Nasser Sept. 28.

Policy change object of 'dump Nixon' group

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Liberal Republicans forming a fledgling "Dump Nixon" movement still hope to force a change in the President's policies, but they will not hesitate to campaign against him in '72 if he does not.

Nineteen Republicans from across the country held their first meeting Sunday—a six and one-half-hour session at a private home in Washington. The meeting was called by former Sen. Charles E. Goodell of New York and by Reps. Donald W. Riegle of Michigan and Paul N. McCloskey Jr. of California.

"The views expressed were pretty unanimous that preparations should be made now in the event we have to oppose Nixon in the primaries," said Goodell, who himself was dumped by President Nixon when the administration refused to support him in the last election in a dispute over war policy.

But Goodell said those present still want to describe their attempt as a "move Nixon or change Nixon" effort. He added, however:

"There was no hesitancy in the group that we will be for someone else as an alternative to Nixon, but we hope that won't be necessary."

Goodell said McCloskey addressed the meeting but did not seek support for his own candidacy. McCloskey has expressed his willingness to be a GOP primary candidate. Other potential candidates who were discussed, according to Goodell, included himself, Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, New York City Mayor John V. Lindsay; former Health, Education and Welfare Secretary John W. Gardner; and former Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel.

Joint troop cut talks explored

WASHINGTON (UPI)—With Senate Democrats trying to force the issue, the Nixon administration has decided to sound out Moscow on discussing U.S.-Soviet troops withdrawal from Europe.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers revealed the move Sunday as the Senate drew closer to a vote on Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield's proposal that the United States cut its European troop strength in half—from 300,000 to 150,000—regardless of what Moscow does.

Rogers said Ambassador Jacob D. Beam in Moscow had been directed to seek an elaboration on comments made Friday by Soviet Communist Party Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev. Brezhnev was quoted as saying the two countries should begin talks immediately on mutual troop withdrawals.

While the United States and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization long have backed a two-sided troop reduction, the Kremlin always has suggested the withdrawal question be part of a larger discussion of European security. Brezhnev's comments made it appear the Soviets now were willing to discuss the troop question and

Factional clash rips Boise taxpayer group

BOISE (UPI) — Two members of the board of directors of Taxpayers' Voice said Saturday the group needs new leadership which will operate legally and better represent the membership.

Mrs. Norma Fischer and Frank Nolan said they hoped to see an entirely new board of directors elected at a membership meeting Monday night. They said they wanted to resolve the conflict between two opposing factions and get "back on the track."

Mrs. Fischer said, "The Taxpayers' Voice was formed to help people in their tax situation. To date, it has been more of an organization for some factions to use for personal and political gain."

Mrs. Fischer and Nolan are among the 19 members of the board of directors. They said 11 directors were supposedly removed at an April 21 meeting, which they said was conducted illegally.

The reported proxy votes were used, contrary to provisions of the articles of incorporation for Taxpayers' Voice. The two added the election of Don Rowe as president was also illegal.

A letter was submitted by Mrs. Fischer and Nolan from a Boise attorney, which stated the board had no power to terminate the office of any member of the board, or to elect new members except in case of a vacancy.

Mrs. Fischer and Nolan said neither expect to be members of the new board of directors, but she said they would work with a new board as concerned taxpayers.

Mrs. Fischer charged the opposing faction had done nothing to lower taxes. She added she believed some of the funds that have been spent for renting auditoriums, television time and attorneys could better be utilized to pay for audits of books of the city and the school district.

Democrat hopefuls eye race

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Four Democratic senators, each regarded as a potential Democratic candidate for president, spoke on the same program at a weekend Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner.

The Saturday night dinner was billed by Wisconsin party officials as the "start of the race for the 1972 Democratic Presidential nomination." Sens. Edmund Muskie of Maine, Harold Hughes of Iowa, Birch Bayh of Indiana and George McGovern of South Dakota shared the podium.

"It is possible that one of the men in this room tonight will be chosen by the people of this nation to lead them in 1972," Muskie said. "It is more than possible—it is very likely."

Each of the senators touched on American spirit or vitality.

Bayh said, "It is our responsibility to use the political process to restore the falling faith of our people, to see that sensitivity, tolerance and responsibility return to America."

Hughes said, "Criticism of a faltering administration is not enough. We must offer the American people new options, an agenda for action, a convincing evidence that we will govern better than the leaders we now have."

McGovern said what the nation needs "most of all is the assurance that each of us is part of a nation where we care about each other."

Mafioso tag said long 'nightmare'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Since 1963 when Joseph Colombo Sr. was accused by federal authorities of heading a Brooklyn crime family, he has lived with what he terms "the nightmare" of being referred to as a Mafioso. Colombo said in an interview that the federal government's organized strike force has been "harassing" his family. Colombo himself has been indicted for income tax evasion, conspiracy in a jewel robbery and handed a jail sentence for perjury, which he is appealing. Law enforcement officials scoff at this Colombo martyr image and maintain he has engaged in a publicity campaign to dupe the public by establishing a "vener" of respectability.

Colombo, 47, not only denies the charges against him but also accuses the federal government of fabricating "the myth of the Mafia" to harass Italian-Americans and of using unfair tactics against him. The most recent indictment charges Colombo with running a multimillion dollar gambling operation. Colombo admits to deriving revenue from gambling operations but maintains they are outside the United States where such activities are legal. Then last year, federal crime fighters arrested his son, Joseph Jr., on charges of conspiring to melt down silver coins into more valuable ingots. That's when Colombo founded and organized the Italian American Civil Rights League, whose members began picketing FBI headquarters in Manhattan. This form of protest failed to shake the conviction of those who call Colombo the boss of a Cosa Nostra family that profited from loan sharking.

Vehicle sticker sale up

BOISE — Sales of vehicle inspection stickers to certified inspection stations during the first third of the year indicate vehicle inspections are running 21 per cent ahead of the same period in 1970.

Harold Davis, Boise, supervisor of the Vehicle Inspection Section of the Department of Law Enforcement, said sticker sales through April this year totaled $98,182, compared with $77,807.50 in the same period last year.

"This indicates, Davis said, that 198,384 vehicles have been inspected so far this year, compared with 165,615 at the same time last year, an increase of 40,749."

Davis pointed out that except for last January, inspection sticker sales showed increases of about $7,000 each in February, March and April.

He also said he expected May to show a sizable increase because after May 19 motor vehicle dealers will be required to inspect or reinspect all new and used vehicles sold at retail.

Monthly sales of stickers for this first four months of the year, with 1970 totals listed first follow:

January, $38,601 and $27,951; February, $17,103 and $24,305; March, $16,326 and $23,475.50; and April, $15,777.50 and $22,450.50.

The evening star is Saturn. Those born on this day are under the sign of Taurus.

On this day in history:

In 1960 planned summit talks in Paris between the United States and Russia collapsed. Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev demanded an apology from President Dwight D. Eisenhower for U2 spy plane flights over Russia.

A thought for today: American writer Bernard de Voto said, "Pessimism is only the name that men with weak nerves give to wisdom."

Seminar set for senior citizens

TWIN FALLS — Sen. Len B. Jordan and Cong. Orval Hansen will be on hand at the Senior Citizens Seminar Tuesday in Twin Falls to discuss programs and services of the federal government.

With Sen. Jordan and Cong. Hansen will be Ray Pruett, director of the Twin Falls Senior Citizens Agency, and Pat O'Marra, Twin Falls Social Security Office. The four will discuss the problems and needs of senior citizens and to determine how the older segment of the population can best be served by the government.

The seminar will be held from 2-4 p.m. in room 115 of Shield's Academic Building at College of Southern Idaho.

Sen. Jordan and Cong. Hansen said today, "Many of our senior citizens do not realize just how many programs are available to assist them. It is our hope that this forum will provide them with an opportunity to find out about these programs, have their questions answered and let us know if our offices can assist them with particular problems."

"We also are hoping that new ideas will be generated at these meetings concerning how we can better handle problems of senior citizens in areas such as income, housing, health and medical care, transportation and meaningful employment."

Local senior citizen contacts for the Twin Falls forum are Frank Briggs and Mrs. Doris Harper.

All senior citizens are urged to attend the seminar.

Aide upholds busing

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — NAACP executive director Roy Wilkins said Sunday public school busing, which was used for years to promote segregation, is now being used as a "tool to foster desegregation" after a recent U. S. Supreme Court ruling.

"The whole question of busing is an emotional one on both sides," Wilkins said. "But strictly from the standpoint of the Negro child... busing is now necessary."

Wilkins was in Salt Lake City to address the life membership banquet of the Salt Lake NAACP chapter Sunday night.

He told newsmen at a press conference busing is necessary because schools can't be built fast enough for Negro children who need quality education.

Wilkins said the disparity in educational quality between central city schools and those in more affluent communities means busing is the only way to get quality education to the Negro.

Wilkins, who has held the top NAACP post since 1955, also called for school districts to purchase textbooks which show the black man's part in developing the nation.

"I'm a little tired of having white people say 'you're lucky to be here in a white man's country. You ought to be glad to be allowed to live here,'" Wilkins said.

"Negroes have been in this country for 350 years, have fought in every war for America from the revolution onward and have contributed much to the nation's agricultural economy—particularly in the old 'one crop' system in the South."

"We need to use textbooks which reflect this," he asserted. Wilkins briefly mentioned the relationship between members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) and the Negro, but refused to enter into any discussion on the church's doctrine towards black people.

The Mormon Church has come under severe attack, particularly on college campuses, because its doctrine excludes Negroes from holding the LDS priesthood.

50 tour station

BURLEY — Fifty people toured the FAA Flight Service Station at Burley Sunday during the facility's open house.

Leo E. Pelrice, FSS chief, said cold, windy weather kept most people from attending the open house Sunday. He said those that attended, however, enjoyed the facilities and several questions were asked and answered by Pelrice and his staff.

Pelrice said questions were asked about the teletype operation, weather reports, communications between ground and aircraft and general radio operations. Residents also asked about various aircraft that land at Burley.

He noted that most of those attending were first timers to the facility.

Airman survives

MCCALL, Idaho (UPI) — Mountain Home Air Force Base Airman Donald Riddell Jr., 20, Binghamton, N.Y., was transferred to the base hospital from McCall Saturday, the lone survivor of a boating accident on Payette Lake Friday.

Riddell was reported in good condition by officials at McCall Memorial Hospital before he was transferred to Mountain Home Saturday.

He and his two companions were pulled from the water about two hours after their rowboat swamped and they ere discovered by a rescue party. The dead men were identified as Sgt. Vincent Gilleran, 23, North Merrick, N.Y., and Sgt. Vincent P. Sullivan Jr., 23, Dedham, Mass.

Ron Besabe, McCall, was riding a motorcycle around the lake and said he heard shouts for help. He notified Jim Hardy, a marina operator, who headed the rescue party.

The three men were wearing life jackets and Valley County authorities said the two victims apparently died of exposure rather than drowning.

Hardy administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and revived Riddell after he was pulled from the water.

Coeds conduct three-month boy-chasing experiment

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI) — Boys who confront "aggressive" girls become "docile, very passive," according to two coeds who conducted a three-month experiment in boy-chasing.

Candy Cooley of San Diego and Linda Dankman of Sacramento, both 18, said they assumed the usual aggressive role of males asking boys for dates, paying their bills, opening car doors and even suggesting a goodnight kiss at the end of each date.

They found, among other things, that males "enjoy sexually aggressive females" but "possess an exaggerated concern for proving their masculinity."

Miss Dankman earned an "A" for her efforts in an experimental sociology class at the University of California at Davis. Miss Cooley is using her experience as material for a paper in another class.

Getting their idea from the film "Myra Breckinridge," the girls started their experiment by picking up two men standing in the hall of a boys' dormitory.

After taking them to a movie, the girls picked up the tab for ice cream afterwards.

"After awhile, when they saw us as the aggressive sex," Miss Dankman's report said, "they became docile, very passive. They seemed afraid to talk to us at one point."

But the boys briefly regained their aggressiveness at a midnight swim in a private pool. The report said they decided the girls were looking for action and began to "attack" them in the water.

Miss Dankman said the girls cooled their passions by "telling them 'no' in masculine terms, and the boys returned to their passive roles."

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are the only young couple on our block who have no children, but we have two poodle pups we think the world of.

In a way, those poodles are our "children." We have toys for them, and all the neighborhood kids love to play with the pups.

Our poodles will be a year old soon, and I would like to give a birthday party for them. I would invite the neighborhood kids over for birthday cake and ice cream; and I'd have crazy hats and balloons just like a regular birthday party. I'd even take pictures of it. My question: Do you think people will think we are completely nuts? CHULA VISTA

DEAR CHULA: No. Just "ard" nuts.

DEAR ABBY: I am going to be married in six weeks. A month ago I telephoned a girl who had been a good friend of mine at college and asked her to be one of my bridesmaids. She accepted. I hadn't seen her for about six months, so I invited her to visit me for a weekend. When she arrived, I was shocked. She is obviously pregnant, and says she'll be starting her eighth month in six weeks from now!

She is not married and has no plans to be. She told me honestly that she had had a "meaningful relationship" with a fellow at college and they broke up. She isn't exactly proud of her condition, but she's not ashamed of it, either.

Abby, I still love her and believe me, I am not judging her, but this is a small town and my family and friends would never understand an unmarried but pregnant bridesmaid in my wedding party. I hate to hurt her feelings, but what can I tell her? BRIDE TO BE

DEAR BRIDE: Tell her you hate to hurt her feelings, that you still love her and are not judging her, but yours is a small town and your family and friends would never understand an unmarried but pregnant bridesmaid. If she loves you, she'll not judge you either.

DEAR ABBY: I invited a friend over, and she wanted to make prank phone calls, but I told her my parents don't like me to use the phone unless it's for a good reason. My parents weren't home at the time, but my mother called and asked me to go to the bus station and meet my uncle. My friend said she'd rather wait in my room so I went alone. When I was gone she made a prank long distance call.

We got the bill a month later and there was a $4.25 charge on it for a call to Florida! My parents were furious and made me pay for it. When I asked my friend if she made the call she laughed and said she did. How can I get her to pay me back? MAD

DEAR MAD: You probably can't. I don't know how friendly you are with this girl, but you gained a very valuable insight into her character (or lack of it) for $4.25. A bargain—at today's prices.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HELP ME TO HELP MY MOTHER"—IN HOUSTON: Only your mother can help herself. Poor soul. She, like many other vain women, would rather NOT wear a hearing aid and pretend she's hearing everything, than to wear one and hear everything. Please tell her that at least half the women her age have a hearing loss, and the new hearing aids are so cleverly designed now that they are practically invisible.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 89706, Los Angeles, Cal. 90089. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

A Lovelier You

COUNTER-REVOLTING LBS.

By Mary Sue Miller

Spot weight often finds the high hips an invulnerable hideout. The sneaky pounds congregate, one by one, and stage sit-ins against dispossession.

If you're a victim, nothing short of a counter-revolution will dislodge the pests. This plan guarantees results:

1. Lie back down on floor with arms extended to sides at shoulder level and legs straight up in air. Keeping legs together, slowly swing them 6 inches to right then 6 inches to left. Repeat 10 times without stopping; relax and repeat entire exercise again. Throughout, concentrate on rolling weight evenly and smoothly across high-hip pads. Also keep shoulders and arms flat on floor. Action is in hips and waist.

2. On back, stretch tall and extend arms as before. Now briskly swing left leg across right leg and try to touch big toe to right hand. Return to starting position and repeat 10 times. Then perform with right leg, swinging it to left and rolling weight to left. Again work for firm roll across high hips.

While awaiting improvement, be fussy about wearing anything that binds your waistline. A tight girdle or belt would only accentuate the difficulty. Eschew a bikini in favor of a one-piece, A-line job. But of course!

HIP REDUCING ROUTINES

You can diet until you become feather-light and still be hip-heavy. Reduction in the hips is assured only by exercise. For a set of quick and effective ones, send for my leaflet, HIP REDUCING ROUTINES. GOP dissent sign amendment needed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—When three-fourths of the Republicans on a Senate committee complain about major provisions in a bill, their dissents can be read as signals for amendments to the bill to avoid a veto by a Republican president.

The disputed measure is the 1971 version of campaign reform legislation written to meet President Nixon's objections when he vetoed a 1970 bill to limit political spending for television and radio.

After clearing the Senate Commerce Committee, the bill now must follow an unusual route through the Senate Rules and Finance Committees before it goes to the Senate floor and then to the House.

It would permit each presidential candidate to spend five cents for each person of voting age for broadcast media and an equal amount for all other political advertising—newspapers, billboards, bumper stickers, ers, lapel pins or whatever. Each party could spend about $7 million apiece for broadcast and nonbroadcast media for a total of about $14 million.

The ceilings would not apply to expenses for travel, staff and other costs. They would apply to candidates for a presidential nomination as well as to nominees, and similar limits would apply to candidates for Congress.

In the Commerce Committee report, its senior Republican, Sen. Norris Cotton of New Hampshire, dismissed the proposed limits as a "sham" which would encourage "underground" tactics by candidates and campaign committees. He would settle for lighter regulation of reporting and disclosure requirements on campaign contributions and spending.

Five of the other seven Republicans on the committee objected to "unrealistically low" spending limits, "unduly restrictive separate media limitations," and "unrealistic limitation on individual contributions."

They also complained about exempting presidential candidates, but not candidates for Congress, from the "equal time" requirements in broadcast appearances and the failure to set up a new election commission to enforce the proposed law.

Although the administration suggested no specific limit on political advertising, it did favor letting the candidates decide how to spend the total allowed.

Congress, especially the Senate, has been wrestling for years to pass new campaign reform laws to replace the obsolete ones written mostly in 1925 and 1939-40. The bill now crawling through the Senate may become law this year, but it is not yet close.

Close trail danger cited

BOISE—Pointing out 31 per cent of 11,662 traffic accidents on which police reports were filed last occurred as a result of vehicles following too closely, the Idaho State Police say.

"This indicates many drivers fail to realize the stopping distance required at highway speeds," Supt. L. Clark Hand, Boise, said a car traveling at 60 miles per hour covers 88 feet per second and at that speed a driver with average reaction time of three-quarters of a second will travel 66 feet from the time he spots the danger until he can get his foot on the brake pedal.

Under ordinary conditions, he added, average brakes then will require another 215 feet to bring the car to a stop—a total stopping distance of 281 feet.

The superintendent advised, "Never keep less than one car length for each 10 miles per hour you are driving between your car and the vehicle ahead

Gem fish, game panel sets Wednesday meet

By JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish-Game Department
BOISE—The Idaho Fish and Game Commission meets in regular quarterly session, beginning Wednesday to establish closing dates and other details of 1971 big game hunting seasons this fall, and opening dates of upland game bird hunting seasons.

Opening dates for big game were set in January so hunters can schedule vacation leave to coincide with time already circled in red on their calendars. It will be a time when leaves begin coloring up and spine-chilling bugling is heard from bull elk fighting and collecting harems of cows.

Big game is an important wildlife resource in this state. Idaho's statewide calculated deer kill figure for 1970 was 33,100 compared with 71,400 in 1969; and 14,500 elk kill in 1970 compared with 14,900 in 1969. These figures are based on post-season hunter questionnaires, which have been used to compute statewide big game kills since 1953.

Combining data of hunter harvest from an elk or deer population with the facts on range conditions and population trends, gives a good picture of what management is doing. Harvest figures show the results or success of the management program. Variables such as weather, fire or other outside influences affecting the harvest must be evaluated by the department's game managers.

Three major considerations will occupy most of the time of the assembled commissioners. These are basic to game management: (1) an area-by-area analysis of all 78 game management units, or hunting divisions and sub-divisions, around the state; (2) big game population trends; and (3) browse conditions, particularly on winter ranges where elk and deer must concentrate when the snow begins flying and piling up to great depths.

Harvest data is derived from hunter report cards, check stations and questionnaires. Getting the facts is an established function of the department. According to Woodworth, "We now have trained men and techniques and methods to obtain good data every year. Putting these facts into a workable management program also follows logical lines."

John R. (Dick) Woodworth's resignation as director of the Idaho Fish and Game Department has been accepted so that he can accept appointment as regional environmental specialist for the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation. Woodworth says good big game management must be based on facts, a plan built on these facts, a program sold to the public, and finally, the regulations for the management plans placed into effect.

Department field men work closely with other resource agencies, especially the U.S. Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management, in coordinating management recommendations. Recommendations are also reviewed with local conservation officers and discussed at regional personnel meetings, which are attended by state office staff and members of the commission. The biggest hurdle in the whole process is getting information to the public.

Because most of the summer ranges for both elk and deer are in the mountains, they are covered by a lot of snow during the winter. Consequently, the animals must move to lower elevations. Years ago they wintered in the valleys, but these lands now are taken up by farms, roads, towns and reservoirs and are unavailable for big game ranges. The result usually is a narrow band of winter range in the foothills. The ratio of winter range to summer range may be 1-10 or even wider.

The commission will review the recommendations of the game biologists and other specialists on each of the 78 management units and sub-units, considering population trends and information about range conditions, before setting season lengths and other regulation details.

This brings the problem into focus, pointing out that winter range is important out of all relation to its size. Thus, winter range must be maintained in good condition, if the elk and deer herds are to remain thrifty.

Big game populations are evaluated by winter and spring surveys on major game wintering areas. The purpose is not a general census or head count. Rather, it is to learn the population trend to determine whether the herd numbers are up, down or remaining about the same. Cow-calf and doe-fawn ratios are also obtained to measure production of various herds.

The harvest last fall was an increase of 16 per cent in the 1970 deer kill compared with 1969; and a decrease of 9 per cent in the elk take, according to Woodworth. Good weather conditions, which favored hunters, accounted for the increased deer kill. Deer tag sales were almost the same, but statewide hunter success was 60 per cent in 1970 compared to 43 per cent in 1969, when hunting conditions were poor.

Ranges are also checked for condition of browse plants. If big game foraging has con-

Letter carriers hear call to 'speak out'

BURLEY — Members of the Idaho chapter of the National Association of Letter Carriers were urged Saturday to "speak out and be heard on mail problems" in order to improve the "deteriorating service."

Fred Gadotti, Seattle, Wash., the regional field director for the national association, addressed the Idaho members during a joint convention of the chapter and the ladies' auxiliary Saturday at the Ponderosa Inn.

Gadotti told members they should work for "effective communications" by "voicing objections" to unsatisfactory mail service.

Speaking bluntly, Gadotti told the convention delegates they should "Contact local groups; let your local people know that you as letter carriers are sick and tired of curtailed mail. With the present mail service being curtailed, some small-business in your community may not make it, for sub-contracts may not be received in time for return of opening of bids. This in turn can mean loss of contracts, employes without work and a destructive effect to the economy of the community."

During the business meeting, awards were presented to Cliff Bendawald, Caldwell, retiring state president, who was commended for outstanding leadership; Ren Ray Bowen, Malad, vice president, and William Sullivan, Washington, D.C., national secretary-treasurer.

Sullivan, as featured speaker, discussed collective bargaining from the letter carriers' viewpoint. Proposed agreements on pension plans include "With the right to collective bargaining, now the only time we go to Capitol Hill is to submit proposed amendments to retirement laws," Sullivan said.

The national association is seeking adequate pension levels, "at a price equal to the cost of living at the time you retire."

Sullivan explained that "There is no difference in the living expenses of an active letter carrier or a retired member; we should be able to look forward to our sunset years without going into poverty."

"The association is also seeking an increase in pensions for retired members," Sullivan said. In addition, "a proposed bill seeking tax exemptions from income tax for letter carriers' retirement funds and several measures dealing with health benefits are in the works," the speaker said.

Sullivan warned the letter carriers that the new U.S. Postal Service plans a study to evaluate all employes. "I believe this study will evaluate and downgrade all positions," he said.

Charging that current federal postal policies will not improve mail service, Sullivan said "City delivery service was started in 1963; parcel post was started in 1913, and air mail began in 1918. All had the same goal: Get mail delivered in the shortest time to its destination. Today the government has in mind to put parcel post into private enterprise to save money; this in turn will deteriorate service and eliminate personnel."

Sullivan asked members "As letter carriers, be Americans first, last and always; but the cost of living does continue to rise, and letter carrier and postal employe wages must rise, too, with an increase in pay. Private enterprise has received an 8.4 per cent increase; we will expect at least an 8.4 per cent increase — but we will ask for more."

Though the Postal Reform Act was designed to take the post office out of politics, Sullivan said, "Nine political men were appointed who in turn have appointed the postmaster general and the assistant postmaster general. An advisory council of 13 people has been appointed to recommend names for positions to the Postal Service Committee. There are no Congressmen on the advisory council."

"The Hate Commission is composed of five political appointees who as yet have not had a meeting," Sullivan said.

The speaker warned that the postal service plans to eliminate services, including "elimination of the letter box, reduction of trips to businesses, elimination of Saturday parcel post delivery, elimination of window service, elimination of clerks on weekends and other cutbacks."

Sullivan explained that "Back in 1932, letter carriers collected mail and it was delivered the next day. Today it would be news if a letter were delivered the following day; but there is no reason why a letter can't be delivered the next day, if they will just go back and operate the way we did 15 years ago."

Sullivan charged that "The economy of the nation depends on delivery of mail. The important means of communication is by mail, and if we lose this we are in trouble."

Sullivan asked action from the letter carriers' auxiliary, saying that "It is a known fact that our Congressmen pay more attention to women's letters stalling complaints."

"Remember that as taxpayers you are paying for services you are not getting," he said.

Sullivan said that as of July 1 the 15 postal regions will be merged into five larger divisions. Though the reason given for this move is to "insure management responsive to employes," Sullivan charged, "this is a laugh. In the western region of 13 states, the headquarter will be at San Francisco, and there are about 39,000 employes in the proposed region."

"We should look this merger over and I suggest that we put one man in each of the 13 states to take care of the needs of the membership by looking ahead and keeping the opportunity open for work."

Sullivan concluded with the challenge that "Remember the major responsibility of letter carriers is to collect and deliver the mail, which we have been doing since 1863. Your moral obligation is to work eight hours for eight hours' pay. Go back to your local branches, regroup and follow your leaders," Sullivan concluded.

Alumni plan homecoming at Albion

ALBION — Alumni of the former Albion State Normal School and Southern Idaho College of Education will hold a homecoming on the campus of the old college July 3, Keith Amende, alumni association president, announced.

Mrs. Glen Clark, secretary-treasurer, is assisting Amende with plans for the event and in attempts to contact alumni.

The Oregon Trail Festival of Arts, which has leased the old campus and buildings, is cooperating with the association in making the grounds available. Registration will begin at 11 a.m. with a dinner at 12:15 p.m. followed by a program and "business meeting."

Plans also call for a show at 3 p.m. by the Festival of Arts in the school auditorium. Amende said alumni are asked to notify any former fellow graduates they may know.

He said a number of former students are unknown at this time and he urged those who have addresses of fellow students to send in their addresses and names to Keith Amende, Albion, Idaho, 83311.

Trustees, teachers to meet

JEROME — The Jerome School Board will meet in special session tonight to discuss policies with teachers.

Supt. John Campbell said the trustees will discuss policies on sick leave with several teachers who requested the special meeting.

Supt. Campbell said the proposal to build a new elementary school, which was approved by the board Friday night, will not be discussed until a later date.

Plans for a bond issue are being made to finance the new school and an addition to the high school gymnasium, Campbell said.

Warning issued on pesticide

BURLEY — J. Wayne Cole, Cassia County extension agent, issued a warning to farmers today who are using D-Syston insecticide on their potato-growing acreage to save the chemical containers and bury them for disposal.

Cole said he had been notified that empty containers have been seen blowing free, piling up against fence lines, instead of being disposed of properly. The poison is particularly dangerous to livestock, Cole said.

PIPELINE TRENCHES are being dug in Halley as work on the new $1.28 million sewer system continues with Tony Russell Construction Co. as prime contractor. The facility will be financed jointly by state and federal funds, supplementing a local bond issue voted in March, 1969.

Sewer job underway

Graduates cautioned

HANSEN — Father Simeon D'Voord, Twin Falls, priest at St. Benedict's student center, Twin Falls, was featured speaker at the Hansen High School baccalaureate exercises Sunday night in the gymnasium.

Father Simeon warned the graduates against the "I don't care" attitude which he said has never before been so prevalent. He also said that "apathyism," or the "I don't want to be involved" attitude, is taking growing place among young people. "Materialism," he said, or the substitute of materials for the belief in God, is another threat today.

He urged the students not to underestimate power for good in mapping plans for their future.

Supt. William Bernard introduced the speaker and gave the invocation and benediction.

Hansen to visit area

JEROME — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, will continue his "Report to the People" tour Wednesday with appearances at both the Gooding and Jerome county court houses.

He will be at Gooding from 9 to 10 a.m. Wednesday and at the Jerome courthouse from 11 a.m. until noon.

He will attend the Jerome Chamber of Commerce noon luncheon Wednesday noon at Wood Cafe and anyone is invited to attend the event also.

Special music, including the professional and recreational, were played by the school band, directed by Richard Youree. He also directed the choir, including graduating senior vocalists.

Commencement is scheduled for Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the school gymnasium. An all-student program is planned. Carl Crockett, valedictorian and Frederica Wheeler, salutatorian, will speak.

Eighth-grade graduates will also receive certificates.

Fair show ducats placed on sale

JEROME — Tickets went on sale this month by high school students and Jerome Booster Club members for the western music program to be presented at the Jerome County Fair Aug. 27 at the Jerome County fairgrounds, according to Ted Diehl, president of the Club, which is sponsoring the show. Contracts have been signed with three of the nation's best known country western music and comedy entertainers.

The three stars who will stage the special program are Archie Campbell of television's popular "Hee Haw," singer Mary Taylor, and Hank Thompson and his Brazos Valley Boys.

Proceeds from the sale of tickets will be used to support various high school activities, Diehl said.

He noted that it is the first time in decades that major personalities in the nation's entertainment field will be in Jerome county to perform. Diehl said the arrangements to bring in a group of big name performers during the county fair represents the Booster Club's biggest challenge.

"Not only will it be a great show, but residents will be providing funds for various projects to help their community," Diehl said.

Wendell seniors receive diplomas, scholarships

WENDELL — At a joint baccalaureate and commencement service Sunday evening at the Wendell High School gymnasium one-third of the 65 graduating seniors were awarded scholarships.

Willard Spalding, principal, said these scholarships totaled about $13,000, about $5,000 more than last year.

Invocation, Bishop Rulan Chandler gave the commencement message. Rev. Woodrow Harris, Methodist Church, gave the benediction.

Pete Cenarrusa, Boise, Idaho Secretary of State, gave the commencement address and spoke on, "I Dare You." The professional and recreational were played by the high school band directed by Leo Snyder. Bill Grout, commander of the American Legion Post No. 41, presented Pat Scheel and Mike Strickling the American Legion award as outstanding graduates. Pat and Christine Hagerman were recognized as valedictorian and salutatorian. They spoke briefly.

Frank Orr, chairman of the trustee board, presented the diplomas to the graduating seniors.

Firemen to hear 'tone'

By CHARLOTTE BELL Times-News Writer

JEROME — Jerome volunteer firemen are waiting for eight more electronic tone-alert units to be distributed to firemen who do not have one, Lynn Bingham, fire chief, said.

In October, 1970, the city council approved the purchase of 10 units. These were given to some of the firemen, with the arrival of the eight units all the firemen will be equipped with them, Bingham said.

The rural department has five and plans to equip the rest of their men with the units also as soon as possible, Bingham said.

The units are receivers which can be operated on battery power on house current or can be plugged into a vehicle's electrical system.

The fire whistle will still be used but when each of the firemen have a receiver we hope to eliminate the fire phone at the police station that is now used for the men to call in to find out the location of a fire, Bingham said.

"Use of the electronic gear enables the dispatcher at the police department to call volunteer firemen by activating a tone alert that makes the receiver start beeping. The dispatcher is then able to tell the location of the fire, over the radio.

"One of the main reasons we went to this system was that so many people know the special fire phone number and are jamming the line wanting to know the location of the fire that half of the time the firemen were unable to get through.

"Before we asked the council to approve the buying of these units we went to Burley, which has had a tone alert system for about 10 years, to see how they liked them and how they worked. Up to a year ago they had tube-type system that they converted to transistor equipment the same as ours.

"They wouldn't be without it and they couldn't think of anything better to use," he said.

"Caldwell employs a tone alert set up and the firemen there are pleased with the method," Bingham said.

"With the units being portable the men pack them back and forth to work from their home they can put them in their trucks or cars when they are away from their business or homes and still in the Jerome area. Some of the men are so pleased with them they are thinking of buying an extra one at their own expense to then have one at their home and place of business. This way they won't have to pack them back and forth since, once in a while they forget this, this is why we will keep the whistle," Bingham said.

'Beep' will call crew

EYESIGHT of Kitty Hammond, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Hammond, Jerome, is checked by Mrs. Wesley Rose, Jerome, during a vision clinic last week in Jerome.

Jerome children check eyesight

JEROME — One hundred twenty-two pre-school children received examinations at a vision clinic sponsored by the Jerome Lions Club and American Legion Auxiliary, according to Mrs. L.W. Sandberg, captain for the clinic.

Mrs. Sandberg said earlier this month 25 children of Mrs. Lamar Butters' kindergarten class were checked, making a total of 147 children checked in Jerome.

Mrs. Sandberg said several of the children checked were referred for professional examinations.

The material used at the clinic was furnished by the Idaho-Oregon Lions Sight Conservation Foundation.

The purpose of the clinic for children, ages three to six, was to find vision deficiencies and possibly amblyopia, commonly known as "lazy eye," that develops in this age group and can cause blindness if not treated early.

Those helping with the two day clinic held in the basement of the United Presbyterian Church were Mrs. Jim Watson, Mrs. Jim Scheid, Mrs. Mona Adams, Mrs. Wenonah Gulick, Mrs. Harry Forbes, Mrs. A.L. Keester, Mrs. Oscar Fort, Mrs. George Enston, and Mrs. Fred Carlton, all Legion Auxiliary members.

Volunteers included Mrs. M.A. McConney, who was captain, Mrs. Charles Parker, Mrs. Wesley Rose, Mrs. Ron Rogers, Mrs. Jerry K. Larson, Mrs. Scott Laird, Mrs. Sharon Albertson, Mrs. George Davis, Mrs. LeRoy Cragg, and Mrs. Donald Morse.

Motor vehicles banned from area

CHALLIS — Closing of the Lake Creek drainage area to all vehicles except trail cycles and snowmobiles has been ordered by the U.S. Forest Service.

To prevent off-trail damage, no vehicles will be permitted in the area except trail machines this summer.

Air pollution index

The pollution reading was taken by the staff of the South Central Health District at the Twin Falls City Hall. The reading is expressed as the number of micrograms of particulate material per cubic meter of air for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today.

Federal pollution regulators say pollution levels should be kept below 75 micrograms over any 24-hour period, and should not be permitted to rise above 250 micrograms for even a short period of time.

Forecast

Tonight: Good
Tomorrow: Excellent

This forecast provided by the Idaho Department of Health indicates the ability of the atmosphere to disperse pollutants.

Burning as permitted by law should be curtailed when the air is poorly able to disperse pollutants.

diamond response was also artificial and was supposed to show 5 points or less. Two clubs showed the suit and four spades was the 'impossible negative' that said he really had a very good hand with a singleton spade. South's five-spade call was due to his having misconstrued their convention. He thought that North had a good hand with a very long spade suit North jumped to seven clubs to make sure his partner wouldn't try anything like seven spades.

Jim: "Seven clubs was a laydown since there were 12 top tricks and both red queens are doubleton in front of the ace-king-jack. Tail of China draw trumps and cashed his ace-king of hearts to see if the queen would drop. It did and he claimed."

Liquori takes mile to smash Ryun comeback

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Marty Liquori inflicted a damaging blow to Jim Ryun's comeback express Sunday as he raced to victory in the showdown of super milers at the International Freedom Games at Philadelphia's Franklin Field.

While a crowd of nearly 10,000 watched under threatening skies fit chilly 56 degree weather, Liquori took the lead midway through the third lap and held on to win by about one foot in 3:54.6, the fastest mile ever run on the Eastern seaboard.

While Manhattan's Joe Savage set the early pace, Ryun took the lead at the half mile mark with Liquori right on his shoulder. The two dueling through the third lap until Liquori took command and out-gutted Ryun down the stretch.

Ryun, who retired a year and a half ago after a disappointing setback in the 1968 Olympic Games at Mexico City and a pair of defeats to Liquori in the NCAA and AAU meets, had been favored to best Liquori Sunday and continue on a comeback that would lead to the elusive Olympic gold medal at Munich in 1972.

But Liquori, who defeated Olympic champion Kipchoge Keino in this meet last year, was not to be denied. The Villanova senior, who has never really come close to Ryun's world record of 3:51.1, went on to post his best time ever.

In the star-studded 100-yard dash, NCAA champ Jim Green of Kentucky, who blazed to a 9.2 clocking in the final heat, edged Don Quarrie of the Southern California Striders in a blanket finish. Green's time in the final was 9.4 seconds.

Lee Evans, showing the form that won him the Olympic gold medal in 1968, charged past NCAA champion Tommie Turner of Murray State down the backstretch and won the 440 by a three yard margin in 45.9 seconds.

Colonels set for clash with Utah

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Bill Sharman has called the Kentucky Colonels the basketball team of the future. On Tuesday night, they'll be out to prove to Coach Sharman and his Utah Stars that they're the team of the present.

Optimism prevailed in the Colonels' camp after they polished off the Stars 105-102 Saturday to square their American Basketball Association playoff finals at three wins apiece.

The ABA championship rides on the outcome of Tuesday night's clash in Salt Lake City. "We'll win out there, take my word for it," said Walt Simon, one of the standouts of the Colonels' victory Saturday. He scored two crucial free throws in the final seconds to break a 101-101 tie.

"We've got the best shooters on our team and we're due to break our jinx out there," Simon added, referring to the fact that the Colonels never have beaten the Stars in Salt Lake City.

Coch Coach Frank Ramsey shared Simon's optimism. "The law of averages is bound to catch up with us and give us a win in Salt Lake City," he said.

Rookie Dan Issel, who already has broken the ABA record for most points ever scored in the playoffs, was a little more cautious in his approach to the final game.

"I just wish we had the home court advantage Tuesday night," Issel said. "It's meant everything during the playoffs. One thing about this series is that Utah has had an easier time beating us out there than we've had beating them in Louisville."

The Colonels were unanimous in giving forward Cincy Powell the lion's share of the credit for Saturday's victory and sending the Stars back to Utah with their champagne still corked.

"He did a great job of taking up the slack when Issel was out of the game with foul trouble in the last half," Ramsey said. "He had a hot hand and our guys went to him with the ball every chance they got."

Powell wound up with 31 points and 17 rebounds, high in both departments for the Colonels. "This was a great win with all the pressure on us," Powell said. "But I look for a real tough one out there."

Knicks manager in hospital

NEW YORK (UPI)—Red Holzman, coach and general manager of the New York Knickerbockers, was involved in a car accident Sunday morning and was taken to a hospital.

Holzman was driving to a speaking engagement in Scarsdale, N.Y., when his car skidded on wet pavement and into another car. According to Dr. Sidney Rothstein, who treated Holzman, the coach has a dislocated right thumb, which was put in a cast, contusions of the chest wall, abrasion of the forehead and hematoma of the forehead.

Holzman was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Far Rockaway for further examination, and it was announced he will be confined to the hospital for about a week.

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Only three cars were added to the lineup Sunday for the 55th annual 500-mile Speedway auto race, leaving seven positions to be filled next weekend when the trials are concluded.

Machines driven by Mike Mosley, Brownsburg, Ind.; Rich Muth, Laguna Beach, Calif.; and Bud Tingelstad, Indianapolis, made successful trials runs.

Tingelstad had the best speed, an average of 170.156 miles per hour for the four-lap test. Muth was clocked at 169.972 and Mosley at 169.579.

Both Mosley and Muth qualified on their second attempt since each made an unsuccessful trial Saturday.

Pete Rovson of New York was the fastest of Saturday's 23 qualifiers at a record speed of 178.696 in the pole position for the $1 million race.

The first 25 qualifiers averaged 171.453 m.p.h., more than four miles faster than the first 25 a year ago.

Astros swamp Cards

HOUSTON (UPI)—Doug Rader's first-inning grand slam ignited Houston's biggest hitting spree of the season Sunday as the Astros beat St. Louis, 12-4, for Larry Dierker's sixth victory.

Rader also slammed a two-run double in the third to tie the club record with six RBI in a game. He entered the game in a deep slump, hitting only .104 with seven RBI.

Houston pounded five St. Louis pitchers for 17 hits with Roger Metzger and catcher Jack Hatt getting three each. Dierker, now 6-1, collected a double and a single but was raked for 13 hits during his six-inning stint.

Montreal cops sixth game; ties Stanley Cup series

MONTREAL (UPI) - Peter Mahovlich scored two goals, including the game winner while his team was shorthanded, and brother Frank added another goal Sunday afternoon as the Montreal Canadiens evened their Stanley Cup final playoff series at three games each with Chicago by beating the Black Hawks, 4-3. Peter Mahovlich scored less than four minutes after Frank's goal had tied the game at 3-3 at 5:10 of the final period. He got the winner while rookie Rejean Houle was sitting out a holding penalty. Frank passed the puck to his younger brother, who fired a hard shot over the left shoulder of Chicago goalie Tony Esposito at 8:56.

Oakland, Royals split doubleheader

KANSAS CITY (UPI) - Pinch-hitter Bobby Knoop slapped a two-run single and Fred Patek followed with a run-scoring double in a four-run seventh inning Sunday as the Kansas City Royals scored a 10-4 victory after the Oakland Athletics won the first game, 4-2.

Oakland won the opener when Bert Campaneris and Reggie Jackson stroked run-scoring singles in the seventh after the Royals botched a routine double-play.

The seventh and deciding game will be played at Chicago Tuesday night. The game featured a National Hockey League playoff first when Frank Mahovlich was awarded a penalty shot early in the first period. This resulted when Esposito came out of his net to stop Mahovlich's breakaway and in the process he threw his goalie's stick at the puck.

American takes Iran tourney

TEHRAN-IRAN (UPI)—Marcelo of the American defeated John Alexander of Australia 6-7, 6-1, 6-3, 7-6 Sunday in the singles final of the Aryamehr tennis tournament.

In the doubles final, Australians Tony Roche and John Newcombe beat fellow countrymen Ray Ruffels and Bob Carmichael 6-4, 6-7, 6-1.

The doubles final was reduced to a three-set event because of bad light. The Shah of Iran presented the Aryamehr Cup to Ruffels along with the $10,000 first prize money. Alexander received $5,000.

Habegger offered position

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Seattle Pacific basketball coach Les Habegger has been offered the head coaching job at the University of Washington to replace Tex Winter, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer said Sunday.

Winter signed a contract Friday to coach the San Diego Rockets of the National Basketball Association.

The newspaper said Habegger has not met with university athletic officials, including Washington athletic director Joe Kearney, and added, "The job is his if he chooses to accept."

Senators release players

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Washington Senators' manager Ted Williams announced Sunday that he has given catcher Jim Frensch and outfielder Rich Schenblum outright releases and was bringing up two players from Denver to replace them.

Williams' explanation for the releases was that he "need more hitting." In 12 of their last 15 games, the Senators have failed to get more than six hits.

Peter Mahovlich's first goal of the game in the second period gave Montreal a short-lived 2-1 lead as the Montreal forward skated around the Chicago net and took a quick shot past Esposito. Cournoyer worked himself loose from a melee of players in front of Esposito to tie the score at 1-1 at 12:33 of the opening period.

Rosburg makes wrong hole-in-one

HOUSTON (UPI)—Bob Rosburg made a hole in one Sunday, but it was in the wrong hole.

Rosburg, playing in the $125,000 Houston Champions International, had his tee shot off of No. 13 strike a tree, and bounce back across some water to the 12th green and role into the cup.

Les Trevino's ball was in the air off the 12th tee and a crowd cheered excitedly, thinking Trevino had gotten a hole in one.

Allison races to win Winston 500

TALLADEGA, Ala. (UPI)—Allison had just edged around Marcis when flames shot from under the undercarriage of Bobby Baker in a hair-raising last-lap sprint Sunday to win the Winston 500 stock car race.

Donnie's Wood Brothers Mercury crossed the finish line a car-length ahead of Bobby's Mercury, which was a mere hood-length in front of Baker's Dodge. Donnie, of Hueytown, Ala., took over the lead when Dave Marcis blew an engine with seven laps to go.

When Marcis went out the yellow caution flag came out for the seventh time during the afternoon and the Allison and Baker bunched up for the final effort.

Homenuik grabs East Ridge

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI)—Will Homenuik shot a bogey and a double bogey in Sunday's final round of the East Ridge Classic, but held on for a 282 two-stroke win over Bob Menne.

Baker edged up on Donnie in the back straight but fell back and Bobby pulled up ahead of the Charlotte driver in the third turn.

The win gave Homenuik $5,000 prize money and an invitation to play in the Colonial Invitational Tournament at Fort Worth, Tex. He fired rounds of 73, 67, 72 and 70.

After taking a one-stroke lead over Menne in the final round, Homenuik registered his bogey on No. 3. The double bogey came on the 13th hole, but birdies on 2, 7, 8 and 10 helped along the way.

Menne won $3,000 for his 284 on rounds of 72, 70, 71 and 71. "I just went to sleep, said Homenuik of his double bogey, which occurred when his tee shot went into woods to the right of the green and he had to chip back up a hill.

Miss Palmer captures Sealy open

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Sandra Palmer blasted home a spectacular trap-shot for an angle three on the final hole and a last-round 71 Sunday to win the $50,000 Sealy Classic for her first LPGA tournament victory in seven years.

With Donnie safely ahead, Bobby and Baker battled it out for second through the tri-oval portion of the track with Bobby winning by the nose of his Mercury.

Marcis became the crowd favorite as he pushed into the lead in the late stages of the race. "But luck ran out for Marcis, a Wausau, Wis., a few miles too soon and he ended the race a dejected spectator on the grass beside turn one.

Although the finish was spectacular, the race was run almost the same way, with Baker, the Allison and Marcis running within seconds of each other all afternoon.

Montreal sweeps Reds, 9-3

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Ron Hunt collected three hits and John Bateman cracked a three-run homer Sunday as the Montreal Expos spoiled the debut of lefthander Ross Grimsley by routing the Cincinnati Reds, 9-3.

The Expos tagged five Red pitchers for 12 hits to give Steve Renko his fourth victory in six decisions.

Canonero awaiting Belmont

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI)—Canonero II, the racing world's latest wonder horse with back to back victories in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, quietly rested in his barn at Pimlico Sunday, awaiting shipment to Belmont Park and a crack at the Triple Crown.

Mike Marshall took over with one out in the eighth inning after a homer by Tony Perez and a single by Le May to pick up his sixth save of the season and preserve Renko's victory.

The long striding colt, whose victory in the Preakness Stakes Saturday was even more startling than his upset triumph in the Kentucky Derby two weeks ago, probably will be named to New York on Tuesday to run in the Belmont Stakes on June 5.

Not many 3-year-olds were expected to challenge Canonero in his attempt to become the ninth horse in history to win the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont.

Green beats January in sudden death playoff

HOUSTON (UPI) — Rookie Hubert Green, shaking off tremendous pressure, sank a 12-foot birdie putt on the first hole of a sudden death playoff with Don January Sunday to win the $125,000 Houston Champions International Golf Tournament.

Cubs sneak past Padres in two

CHICAGO (UPI)—Jim Hickman's two-run homer with none out in the 10th inning Sunday carried the Chicago Cubs to a 9-8 victory over the San Diego Padres in the first game of a doubleheader.

It was the sixth triumph in a row for the Cubs, who rallied from an early 7-1 deficit. Hickman's homer, his fourth of the year, was set up after catcher Bob Barton was charged with a passed ball, allowing Billy Williams, who led off the inning with a walk, to reach second.

San Diego reliever Laxton had walked Williams and was replaced by Al Santorini. With the sacrifice taken off, Hickman drove his fourth homer of the year deep into the leftfield bleachers to give the Cubs a 2-4 mark against the Padres in three years of competition.

The second contest was halted by the umpires after six innings due to darkness with the Cubs in front 6-3. The contest became suspended and will be continued on August 4th, preceding the regular game against the Padres.

The Cubs gave started Kenny Holtzman a 2-0 cushion in the first inning. The game was suspended after six innings due to darkness with the Cubs in front 6-3.

Senators succumb to Tigers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Mickey Stanley homered twice and Norm Cash hit his 300th homer in a Detroit uniform Sunday to power the Tigers to a 5-4 victory over the Washington Senators.

Stanley broke a 4-4 tie with his second homer of the game to lead off the eighth inning against reliever Denny Riddleberger.

Joe Coleman went the distance in his first start against his former teammates to run his record to 4-0. The right-hander retired 12 straight batters after being tagged for four runs and eight hits in the fourth and fifth innings.

The "Tigers" knocked out starter Casey Cox with seven hits and four runs in 3 1/3 innings.

"We want to show the International Amateur Athletic Federation we are doing everything in our power to get back into the Olympic Games and this is the first step," Mare said.

Graham birdies for win

TOKYO (UPI) — Australia's David Graham sank a two-foot birdie putt on the third sudden death playoff hole after a tie in a three-hole playoff Sunday to defeat Japan's Masashi Ozaki in the first Japan Airlines International golf tournament.

The two players were tied for first at 11-under-par 277 after Sunday's fourth round over the 6,530-yard, par-72 Fuchu Country Club course outside of Tokyo.

Graham, 25, collected first prize money of $5,540 and Ozaki won $3,047. Graham took a one-stroke lead in the three-hole playoff played on the 18th, 17th and 16th holes with a par against Ozaki's bogey on the first hole. They both bogeyed the second. Ozaki drew even with a birdie on the third hole against Graham's par.

Green, who was playing in only his 16th tournament as a pro, made the playoff by shooting a par 71 to tie with January at four-under-par 280 after 72 holes. January, who started the day four strokes off the pace, fired a three-under-par 68 in the final round and missed a 25 foot birdie putt on the first hole of the playoff.

Dan Sikes and Lou Graham tied for fifth at two-under-par 282. Graham was the co-leader with Green going into the final nine holes but got a double bogey on the par-three 12th and a bogey on 14 to fall out of contention.

DeWitt Weaver Jr., the third round leader, also crumbled under the pressure and shot a four-over-par 75 in the final round to finish at one under 283 with Horner, Blancas and amateur Ben Crenshaw, the 19-year-old University of Texas freshman.

The unflappable Green had one birdie and one bogey. He birdied the 8th hole with an eight-foot putt and bogeyed the par three 12th when his tee shot found a sand trap.

Green picked up $25,000 in first place money and January pocketed $14,300 for second. January, trying to win for only the third time since he captured the PGA in 1967, also birdied No. 8, sinking a 10-foot putt. Then he birdied No. 12 with a six-inch tap-in and bogeyed No. 13 when he drove into the creek.

He shook that off to birdie the 15th hole with a 12-footer and birdied the par-3 16th with a six-foot putt to pull even with the 24-year-old Green. January, playing two threesomes ahead of Green, parred the last two holes and waited at the scorers table while Green parred out.

Green, forced to wait 10 minutes while the twosome of Charles Coody and Bob Murphy putted out on 18, laced his second shot 25 feet short of the hole and calmly knocked his putt to within six inches to force the playoff.

On the playoff hole January drove down the right side and Gr. hit it down the middle 40 yards farther. January hit his second shot to the back part of the green leaving a 25-foot chip which he missed. Green knocked his approach shot 12 feet to the right of the cup hole high.

Green, from Birmingham, Ala. and Florida State University, led through the 15th hole of the final round in the New Orleans Open two weeks ago before finishing second to Frank Beard. It was his highest finish as a pro.

Brewers overpower California

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Tommy Harper collected four hits and Ellie Rodriguez and Ted Kubak each smashed their first home runs of the season Sunday to power the Milwaukee Brewers to a 6-2 win over the California Angels.

The Brewers matched their season high of 12 hits by backing Skip Lockwood to his third victory in six decisions. Lockwood allowed just six hits in his 7 2/3 innings but he needed the relief help of Ken Sanders.

Rodriguez' two-run homer in the fifth inning broke a 2-2 tie as the Brewers scored three times to beat reliever Archie Reynolds.

Harper, who went into the game batting .162, had two singles, a double and a triple. His triple knocked in the final run of Milwaukee's fifth inning rally.

Kubak hit a homer to lead off the seventh as he ended a 0-for-32 batting slump. Rookie shortstop Rick Auerbach, a .217 hitter, collected three hits.

Giants fall to Dodgers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Wes Parker's two-run homer in the eighth tied the score and Tom Haller's third hit of the game in the ninth drove in the winning run Sunday as Los Angeles defeated San Francisco 9-6.

There were eight errors, four by each side, and six stolen bases in the 3-hour, 31-minute game as the Dodgers snapped the Giants' winning streak at five and climbed into the tie for second in the National League West, nine games behind San Francisco.

The victory went to Jim Brewer, the second of five pitchers used by the Dodgers, while Don McMahon, the second of six hurlers the Giants put into the game, took the loss. Brewer now is 2-0 and McMahon 2-2.

A three-run homer by Bobby Bonds, his ninth of the year, shot the Giants in front 5-3 in the sixth.

In the eighth, Richie Allen walked and Parker followed with his third homer to tie the score. A single by Haller finished McMahon and Jerry Johnson walked Jim Lefebvre. Steve Garvey fouled out for the first time and Johnson appeared to be out of the frame when he induced pinchhitter Manny Mota to hit sharply to first.

Willie McCovey threw to second for a force out and on the return throw rookie shortstop Chris Speler threw wildly past first allowing Haller to score for a 6-5 dodger lead.

The Brazilian, who averaged 84.8 miles per hour, won by 15 seconds over Dete Wester of Austria, whose March-BMW was clocked in 1:29:57.7. Carlos Reutemann of Argentina in a Brabham BT-38 was third in 1:30:12.3.

Tim Schenken of Australia in a Brabham was leading the field of 18 cars until the 57th lap when he had to withdraw because of sinking oil pressure. He clocked the fastest lap in 1:28.2.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market suffered its sharpest setback in more than 10 months Monday in the wake of a second nationwide rail strike in six months as talk that key interest rates would under further upward pressure.

As trading rounded the halfway mark, the Dow Jones industrial average was off 17.72 at 923.34. The last time the blue chip barometer finished with a bigger loss was July 8, 1970, when it dropped 13.48 to 675.60.

Since the middle of last year the market has been rolling ahead on belief that the economy would show marked improvement in 1971 and 1972. However, there appears to be some fear that higher interest rates may stifle economic growth.

Of the 1,597 issues crossing the tape, declines outscored advances, 1,134 to 221. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index was off 1.22 at 100.99. A three-hour volume of 9,960,000 shares compared with 10,380,000 shares traded at a comparable period last Friday.

Among the day's most active issues were Central & South West Corp. off 1/4 on 279.10 shares, Dentsply International 4 1/2 lower on 243,300 shares, Household Finance down 3/4 on 192,800 shares, Federal National Mortgage off 2 1/4 on 147,300 shares, and Telex Corp. off 1/4 on 117,400 shares.

However, heavily traded Commercial Solvents, one of the few bright spots on the list, added 1 1/4 on 77,400 shares.

Wind-up engine studied

NEW YORK (UPI)—A "wind-up" motor that works like a child's toy in the newest entry in the race for the pollution free auto engine of the future.

Scientists at Johns Hopkins University's applied Physics Laboratory, Silver Spring, Md., have asked the federal government for a grant to develop such an engine.

They see it as a rival to the Wankel rotary combustion engine, various Rankine cycle vapor engines and electric powered cars as a way to end pollution of the air from vehicles.

No modern inertial "windup engine" has been built but the principle was tested for 15 years starting in 1920 by the Oerlikon Co. of Switzerland. Oerlikon built a 70-passenger bus powered with the inertial or "flywheel energy storage" engine as Prof. David Rabenhorst of Johns Hopkins prefers to call it.

The bus ran fine and was delightfully quiet. The only trouble was the motor had to be

The principle is the same as that by which some toys will run for several minutes after a given brisk start with a small spring motor or by running the toy over the floor.

But the same principle was used successfully to drive naval torpedoes late in the 19th century.

The engine would run on its own momentum long enough to drive the car 100 miles. Then, the motorist would stop at a gas station, where the flywheel would be wound up again in about 30 seconds by a large electric motor.
