TWENTY CENTS

CIA abandons radio funding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration has agreed to end the process by which the Central Intelligence Agency funneled $30 million a year to two radio stations which beam news and propaganda to eastern Europe. It was announced Saturday.

Instead, the administration will ask Congress to approve a public subsidy of about $40 million for the stations, Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty.

The stations posed as privately supported nonprofit operations until last Jan. 25, when Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., in a speech which embarrassed the Senate department, disclosed that the CIA had been the source of almost all their funds for years.

Case announced that the administration has endorsed his proposal for a public subsidy. But although he will introduce the administration bill Monday to bring it about, he questioned whether the measure would provide enough congressional scrutiny of how the subsidy will be spent.

According to Case, the CIA continued supporting the two stations despite an order issued March 29, 1967, by President Johnson to terminate CIA support of all the nation's "educational or voluntary organizations."

That order was in line with a recommendation by a three-man presidential committee, which included CIA Director Richard Helms. The committee was named following disclosure that the CIA had been bankrolling the National Student Association and a number of other organizations and publications.

For years, Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty, which operate in west Europe and beam their broadcasts to countries behind the Iron Curtain, have appealed to the

U.S., Russia agree to agree on arms pact

VIENNA (UPI) — Diplomats said Saturday the United States and the Soviet Union have "agreed to agree" on a Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT), but they warned against over-optimism that a pact could be completed this year.

The compromise Thursday that broke the deadlock at the SALT talks here was a "political decision" that reaffirmed both sides' desire for an agreement, the diplomats said. But they cautioned that a thicket of technical problems be cleared away before the first pact—probably limiting antiballistic missile (ABM) defenses—can be finalized.

Gerard C. Smith, the chief U.S. delegate, returned Saturday from two weeks in Washington with a new presidential mandate to concentrate on an ABM agreement now, coupled with "agreement on certain measures" regarding offensive weapons.

Reports from Washington said the White House regarded this as a Soviet concession. President Nixon also was quoted as saying both countries were committed to an agreement "to be implemented some time this year."

SALT plenary sessions will resume next week after a two-week lull. Sources said the Vienna round probably will break up after two meetings next week and resume in Helsinki in July.

The Soviet-American "agreement to agree" means the two SALT teams will concentrate on areas where agreement is likeliest, the diplomats said.

South Vietnamese officials reported more heavy fighting on ridges north and south of the A Shau Valley, 375 miles northwest of Saigon.

The government troops are trying to seize the valley, through which the Communists have laid a paved road and stockpiled mountains of munitions to support their northern front war.

South Vietnamese spokesmen also reported heavy fighting in the northwestern Central Highlands, 20 miles south of Pleiku. They said government soldiers killed 47 guerrillas in two battles Friday, one a field engagement and the second a commando attack on a regimental command post, both near the town of My Thich on Highway 14.

N. Viets pound outposts

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist gunners pounded two U.S. firebases near the Demilitarized Zone with rocket and mortar fire again Saturday. Similar attacks Friday night killed 30 Americans and wounded 50 in the heaviest American shelling casualties in three years.

Firebase Charlie 2, where the bulk of Friday's casualties occurred when a 122mm rocket made a direct hit on a bunker containing 40 men, was hit Saturday by nearly 15 rockets, the U.S. command said. Spokesmen said 25 rounds of rocket and mortar fire hit Alpha 4, a mile to the north.

There was no immediate word on casualties or damage from the shelling Saturday night.

The reported Communist attacks came despite day-long bombardment of their suspected positions along "Rocket Ridge" by U.S. artillery and air power. U.S. ground patrols also searched the ridge for the Communist positions.

American officials would not give the exact number of casualties at each base in Friday night's attacks but said 30 were killed and 50 wounded at Charlie 2, four miles south of the DMZ; Alpha 4, and Firebase Brick, near the city of Hue. Those were the heaviest U.S. shelling losses since the 1968 siege of Khe Sanh.

Command spokesmen said most of Friday's casualties were at Charlie 2 and Lt. Col. Arnold Stallman of Shenandoah, Va., told UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman at the fire base that all of the deaths came from the direct hit on the bunker.

It's Armed Forces Day today . . .

Navy's 'Angels'

Flyover slated for day

MOUNTAIN HOME — Equipment will be on display and the famous Navy flying team, "The Blue Angels," will give an exhibition today during Armed Forces Day at Mountain Home Air Force Base.

The annual celebration has been designated "Forces for Freedom" day at the Idaho installation.

The public is invited to inspect various types of air and ground equipment from noon until 5 p.m. "The Blue Angels" will give their exhibition flight at 2 p.m.

The flying team is the official demonstration team of the U.S. Navy and performs at public affairs throughout the nation.

Resor airs doubt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retiring Army Secretary Stanley R. Resor said Saturday he leaves the Pentagon with serious doubts about the wisdom of U.S. involvement in Vietnam and whether the administration can reach its goal of an all-volunteer Army by mid-1973.

Resor resigned Friday after six years as civilian chief of the Army during one of its most difficult periods, and probably will return to private law practice by this June after a successor is named. He told Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird that "some greater attention to my family is long overdue."

In only his third news conference since his swearing-in in July, 1965, at the start of the U.S. buildup in Vietnam, Resor said that uncertainties over new pay scales and future enlistments might make it impossible to achieve the administration's deadline of volunteer armed force by the summer of 1973.

"It's clearly not do-able in less than two years, and I doubt that really you can get to a zero draft even in two years," he said.

With the longest tenure of any Army secretary since the post was created in 1947, Resor, a veteran of the Battle of the Bulge in World War II, was asked whether he had any doubts about U.S. involvement

"THE BLUE ANGELS" flying team will take to the air during an exhibition at 2 p.m. today during Armed Forces Day openhouse at Mountain Home Air Force Base. The Navy says the F-4 Phantom II, which the team flies, is the U. S.'s fastest, safest and highest flying fighter-bomber. Open house at the Air Force installation will be from noon to until 5 p.m.

He said, "I haven't reached a personal, final conclusion. I think if it turns out that we achieve our objectives—and I think there's a good chance we can leave a viable, stable government—and if domestically we recover from our discouragement and current divisive situation, then I think on balance it may turn out to have been a wise thing to do."

Referring to the present debate over unilateral troop withdrawals from Europe, Resor warned that Americans must distinguish between Western Europe and Asia.

Asian out asked

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — A statement opposing the Vietnamization of the war in Southeast Asia and calling for total withdrawal of American troops "no later than the end of 1971" was adopted Saturday by the United Presbyterian Church General Assembly.

The statement represented the strongest position on the war yet adopted by the 31-million-member church.

The position adopted by the policy-making body of the church also urges "presidential amnesty for those who are imprisoned or expatriated for conscientious dissent to this war."

The 799 voting commissioners approved by voice vote a statement opposing the Nixon administration's Vietnamization policy "which provides arms for Asians to kill other Asians continuing the brutalization of the people of Indochina."

Some members of the special committee voiced their disapproval of the recommendations because they felt they failed to consider the tactics and policy of North Vietnam in their call for American withdrawal of troops, and did not address themselves to war crimes perpetrated by Hanoi.

The dissident committee members also objected that the recommendations would result in "polarization of members of the United Presbyterian Church" and would encourage Hanoi.

Frederick Flott, special assistant to the assistant secretary of state for East Asian affairs, spoke against the committee statement, saying "Many Free World alliances depend on the credibility of the U.S. keeping its commitments to its allies."

Costly decor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A record sale of a piece of American furniture was made Saturday at Parke-Bernet Galleries with the auction of an 18th century Chippendale highboy for $102,000.

Parke-Bernet also said the piece of furniture — a Chippendale carved mahogany bonnet-top highboy made by John Goddard of Newport, R. I. — represents the most expensive piece of furniture ever sold in the United States.

It was bought at an auction of 18th century furniture and decorations by Malcolm Vallance, a New York dealer, during tense bidding among several museums and dealers.

The price surpasses the previous furniture record $60,000 for a Philadelphia Chippendale highboy.

Gem jobless rate shows improvement

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Department of Employment said today 1,300 workers returned to the ranks of the employed as unemployment took its sharpest dip of the year from March to April.

The "Idaho Manpower Review" a monthly publication put out by the department, said the unemployment rate dropped to six per cent, representing 18,200 members of Idaho's civilian labor force unable to find jobs.

The publication said the rate of employment was the highest it had been for April since the post-recession year of 1963, more people were employed during the month than ever before.

It said the general upswing in employment resulting in a record employment of 283,700 came as a result of seasonal increases in the agriculture, construction, trade and transportation industries.

Curfew imposed

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — Mayor Robert K. Walker imposed a "civil emergency" curfew on this southern Tennessee city Saturday night in the wake of widespread rock-throwing and window-smashing by roving bands of black youths.

One man was reported shot in the head. His condition was not known.

Walker declared a 7 p.m. to 8 a.m. curfew after an all-day meeting with the City Council. The disturbances Saturday were a carryover from an episode Friday night following the failure of rock musicians to appear at a scheduled concert. About 18 persons, mostly blacks, were arrested early Saturday.

Stalin's grandchild

MRS. WILLIAM W. PETERS, only daughter of the late Joseph Stalin, cuddles her new daughter at Marin General Hospital at San Rafael, Calif. The child weighed seven pounds, nine ounces, and will be named Olga Mariegold Peters. (UPI)

Crewmen abandon liner

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI) — Explosions and a fire aboard a Norwegian cruise ship off the coast of British Columbia forced passengers and crewmen to abandon the ship before dawn Saturday. Unconfirmed reports said as many as 13 crewmen may have been killed.

Crewmen who remained aboard to fight the fire in the forward section of the ship were evacuated late Saturday as the ship became engulfed in flames and appeared about to sink.

An explosion in the crew's quarters rocked the ship shortly after 3 a.m. PDT. The ship's 70 passengers and all but 25 of the 91-crew members took to lifeboats and were picked up a few minutes later by the Alaska state ferry Malaspina. The ferry took the evacuees to Vancouver about 10 a.m.

Molten lava oozes

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI) — A stream of lava 1,000 yards wide rolled relentlessly down one side of Mt. Etna Saturday toward scattered and frightened inhabitants of the lower slopes.

Scientists said the incandescent flow was moving toward the villages of Sant'Alfio and Fornazzo at a speed of about 27 feet per hour.

Several streams that had been headed toward the villages of Sciarra and Macchia di Glarrea were reported, all but stopped after cutting across roads and belting bridges.

The most spectacular and dangerous show at the 10,902-foot volcano since 1928. Officials mapped emergency evacuation plans.

Experts studying the eruption of Europe's tallest and most active volcano, now in its 49th day of activity, said earlier they feared Sant'Alfio and Fornazzo would be engulfed by the end of month.

The lava, moving in a solid reddish-orange wall, already has destroyed 42 buildings, most of them isolated farm houses above Sant'Alfio, and burned several acres of orchards, crops and vineyards. "That land was my grandfather's," sobbed farmer Mario Tomarchi, 58. "I was the only one who wanted it. My brothers went to America and became rich. Now I am poorer than ever."

The main lava stream was still confined to the dry bed of the Cubanella creek and scientists said if it did not overflow the banks, the two villages, which have a combined population of 5,300 might escape untouched.

Dozens of men and women again paraded images of the patron saints Agabus, Cyrinus and Philadelphus in the very edge of the approaching lava, praying the fiery flow might stop as it did in 1838 after the saints' statues were paraded.

Net seeks copkillers

NEW YORK (UPI)—Police mounted a massive manhunt Saturday for the killers of two patrolmen gunned down from the back in the fourth armed attack in three days on police in the nation's largest city.

Police Commissioner Patrick V. Murphy charged the killings were "deliberate, unprovoked and malicious"—part of a plot by "madmen" against the 33,000-man police force.

The patrolmen—one black and one white—were shot Friday night as they left a Harlem housing project where they had gone on a "legitimate" call to help a sick resident.

Two black youths of about 20, who were sitting on the hood of a parked car, shot the patrolmen in the back with what was believed to be .32 and .45 caliber revolvers. Then they grabbed the service revolvers from the fallen patrolmen and emptied them into their bodies.

The killings followed the machine gunning of two policemen in Manhattan Wednesday night, the attempted shooting of two patrolmen by a motorist in Brooklyn early Friday. Later Friday a can of lye and ground glass was thrown in the face of a Transit Authority bus dispatcher mistaken for a policeman. Only hours after the killings still another driver pulled a gun on a patrolman who stopped him in the Bronx but the gun misfired.

"Of course it was planned," Murphy said of the killings. "What we have is organized. No citizen in New York is safe while these madmen are loose."

Turks still seek kidnaped diplomat

ISTANBUL (UPI)—Turkish troops took to the streets Saturday night to enforce a 15-hour curfew called to facilitate a house-to-house search for Israel's kidnaped consul-general, Ephraim Elrom.

Military authorities ordered the city's 3 million inhabitants to stay home from midnight to 3 p.m. Sunday while troops conduct a house-to-house search for Elrom.

The government has said it has information on the 59-year-old diplomat, abducted from his Istanbul home Monday by leftwing extremists, is still alive. His kidnapers had threatened to execute him Thursday.

Announcement of the curfew followed a gun battle in the port of Jmriq during the night between police and four students. Police said one of the youths, Nedim Oztas, 23, a local student leader, died Saturday from wounds received in the clash.

The three other youths, including a girl, escaped in a car while Oztas fired at police from the house in which the students were hiding, police said.

Trudeau lets Russ jet dive

TASHKENT, U.S.S.R. (UPI)—Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau took over the controls of his Soviet touring plane Saturday and inadvertently sent the big jet into a 2,200-foot drop.

Trudeau piloted the Ilyushin-62 through about 10 minutes of wobbly flight en route from Kiev in the Ukraine to Tashkent, capital of Soviet Uzbekistan.

When Trudeau tried his hand as a pilot during the five-hour flight, the Ilyushin—similar to a British VC10—died a shallow right-hand bank and began losing altitude. About 2,200 feet ticked off the altimeter before the prime minister found the right touch.

At Tashkent airport, Trudeau and his wife were greeted by Uzbek Prime Minister Normak-honmadd Khudalberdiyev and other officials.

Gem welfare payment charges get rebuttal

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI)—Idaho's commissioner of public assistance disputed Saturday an auditor's estimate his agency paid $1.3 million erroneously to welfare recipients in fiscal 1970.

Commissioner Bill Child said he felt the estimate—which did not include value of medical assistance commodities or food stamps, also allegedly erroneously paid—was based on an invalid projection.

"This estimate was contained in a highly critical 61-page report to the Budget and Fiscal Committee by Legislative Auditor James A. Diefenbach and his staff.

It called for reorganization of the Department of Public Assistance into three divisions and for a number of other changes to correct deficiencies auditors said their investigation disclosed.

Among the alleged deficiencies were 30 purported cases of fraud detected in the welfare program during fiscal 1970 which, the auditor said, were not prosecuted as of the date the report was prepared.

In other business at the conclusion of a two-day Moscow meeting, the committee authorized payment of some $8,000 to the outside accounting firm of Rife, Wilson and Przybylski for an audit of the controversial executive division of Management Services.

This audit was authorized by the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee of the legislature during its regular session and the committee said it did not want its payment of the bill to be considered a precedent for payment of future obligations ordered by the legislature rather than an interim committee.

This special audit delved into the chronological sequence of events that led to the purchase of a Univac 404 computer system by management services.

This system is being phased out June 30 along with the Division of Management Services and a new IBM system is being installed.

In the review of the audit the Budget and Fiscal Committee staff said it felt Idaho cannot afford, with its limited needs and resources, a multitude of computer installations.

"We advocate that the state follow the advice it has passed for and received from consulting experts: implement the financial management information reporting system, and support the centralized ADP concept as being the approach which produces the maximum benefit at the least cost," the report said.

In the public assistance audit report Diefenbach said auditors feel the department "has not been able to accomplish a satisfactory level of performance in some areas." This was due to lack of proper funding, inadequately trained personnel due to a high turnover and inadequate number of caseworkers and eligibility personnel.

To correct deficiencies, the auditors recommended the department be given more money, be reorganized into a service division, an administrative division and an assistance eligibility division, and that a number of internal controls be instituted.

Cora Knudsen

HEYBURN—Mrs. Cora Bell Knudsen, 90, a Heyburn resident, died Friday at the Minidoka Memorial Hospital, following a lengthy illness.

She was born August 15, 1880 in Sullivan, Mo., and married John Knudsen on Nov. 17, 1902 in Missouri. He preceded her in death Oct. 22, 1937.

Survivors include two sons, Roy Knudsen, and Clarence Knudsen, both Nampa; seven daughters, Mrs. Dell (Clare) Holmes, and Mrs. Dean (Billie) Jensen, both Heyburn; Mrs. Ethel Carey, and Mrs. Bob (Hope) Evans, all Sacramento, Calif., and Mrs. Leonard (Gladys) Andres, San Diego, Calif.; two sisters, Mrs. Nellie West, Golden, Colo.; Mrs. Ruth Springer, Ft. Collins, Colo.; 23 grandchildren; and 61 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1:30 p.m., Monday at the McCullough Funeral Home Chapel with Bishop D. Esmond Welch officiating. Final rites will follow in the Paul Cemetery. Friends may call at the McCullough Funeral Home this afternoon and evening and Monday prior to time of services.

Buildings firebombed

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (UPI)—Two buildings were firebombed early Saturday but damage was kept to a minimum by firefighters.

Five Molotov cocktails were thrown into and against the Riverside Cafe shortly after 2 a.m., police said. A building across the street which housed a grocery and a beauty shop also was firebombed. Damage to both buildings was minor, police said.

Witnesses said a carload of persons threw the firebombs at both buildings from a car. Some of the occupants got out of the car and poured gasoline on the walls of both buildings, witnesses told police.

Sen. Church will fly to Twin Falls from Washington Monday afternoon. At 3 p.m. Monday, he will have a press conference at the Rogerson Hotel, sponsored by the League of Women Voters, followed by a meeting with league members and others interested.

At 8 p.m., he will give the commencement address at graduation exercises at the Twin Falls High School.

Tuesday morning, he is slated to address the governmental affairs class at the Northwest Nazarene College in Nampa at 9 a.m. At noon, he will be guest of honor at a luncheon sponsored by the Nampa Optimist and Lions Clubs.

At 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, he will take part in a question and answer discussion with political science and student body at College of Idaho in Caldwell.

Sen. Church speaks at a dinner meeting at 6 p.m. Tuesday for the Idaho State Special Olympics for mentally retarded, sponsored by the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation. The dinner climaxes the two-day event at Boise State College Gymnasium.

Wednesday, Sen. Church will be guest speaker at a luncheon of the Boise Lions Club. At 2 p.m. he will have a press conference in his Boise office.

Thursday, he will fly to Idaho Falls for a luncheon meeting of the Idaho Falls Chamber of Commerce, followed by a press conference. That evening, he will address the graduating seniors at Montpelier.

Sen. Church will return to Boise Friday morning for a full day of activities in connection with the Idaho Conference on Aging. At 10:45 a.m., he will speak to delegates to the conference in Blue Room of the Statehouse.

At 2 p.m. Friday, Sen. Church, chairman of the Senate Aging Committee, will hold a committee hearing at the Boise YWCA to take testimony from delegates and others on problems of the elderly as part of the committee's continuing investigation.

Saturday, Sen. Church will return to Washington.

Researchers at the University of Illinois Hospital in Chicago report that the propellants in atomizers that dispense drugs used by asthma sufferers may cause abnormal heart rhythms, the National Safety Council reports.

COL. HENRY WARREN

Colonel to talk in T.F.

TWIN FALLS — Col. Henry L. Warren, commander of the 67th Tactical Reconnaissance Wing, Mountain Home Air Force Base, will address the Twin Falls Rotary Club Wednesday noon at the Turf Club. Col. W. Warren took command of the wing at Mountain Home Air Force Base Aug. 31, 1970, following assignment as commander of a tactical fighter wing at Kunsan Air Base in Korea. Prior to that assignment, he was assigned to a reconnaissance wing at Udorn, Royal Thai Air Force Base, Thailand, where he flew 85 combat missions.

A native of Newport, R. I., Col. Warren graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1945. He has served with fighter units for the past 20 years but has also held staff positions at Air Force Headquarters, at the Air Force Academy, and the U. S. Naval War College.

Prank causes big damage at hotel

TWIN FALLS — A prank caused several thousand dollars worth of damage Thursday night at the Rogerson Hotel and Golden R bar when the sprinkler system was activated.

Twin Falls Police said a 16-year-old Caldwell youth staying at the hotel while in Twin Falls participating in a golf tournament, told them he held a match under a sprinkler head in his room that set the system off about 11:30 p.m. Thursday.

Water flooded through the floor of the room and into the Golden R. Ted Smith of the Rogerson Restaurant and Golden R said the lounge will remain open for business, but only about half the area will be used for a few days until damage is repaired and water dried out.

Brothers create Army headaches

SAIGON (UPI)—The Storer brothers, civilian and soldier, are giving the U.S. military plenty of headaches in getting them back to their rightful places.

Wesley E. Storer, 22, ski instructor, and Spec. 4 Glenn Storer, 21, soldier, Yarmouth, Maine, were both in the hands of military police somewhere in Saigon today.

Wes should have been back in the United States. Glenn should be back with his unit at Camp Reasoner near South Vietnam's northern port city of Da Nang facing his battalion commander, who will decide whether he will be court-martialed for being absent without leave or sent into the field with his buddies.

The look-alike brothers swapped places when Glenn was home on leave last month after six months with the Americal Division. He didn't want to return to Vietnam and what he called the "senseless killing."

Wes donned Glenn's fatigues and with a sheaf of instructions on how to act and talk got up to the division's base in Chu Lai. He was turned in by another GI when the unit was about to go back to the field. Glenn gave himself up in the United States when he learned the masquerade was over.

Getting the brothers back where they started from shouldn't have been too much trouble for the U.S. Army with its vast resources.

The Army was responsible for getting Wes out of Vietnam because it brought him in illegally since he did not have the Vietnamese entry visa needed by civilians.

Civilian authorities stepped in and quickly got him a certificate of identification and Vietnamese immigration officials promptly stamped it with an exit visa. He was scheduled to leave Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport Thursday afternoon aboard a military plane.

Wes, however, produced a passport sent to him by his parents.

The military police, who have been closely shepherding him since his arrival in Saigon, decided he should use the passport to clear Vietnam's civilian outgoing formalities.

League to sponsor senator

TWIN FALLS — "Frank Church Takes Time to Listen" is the first in a series of public awareness programs sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Twin Falls.

Frank Church will be in Twin Falls Monday, May 24, to attend a question and answer session for the press and the public. The open meeting will be held from 3:00 p.m. to 4:15 p.m. in the Roundup Room of the Rogerson Hotel.

According to Mrs. Steve Smith, Twin Falls League president, the public is invited.

The League also expects to sponsor similar programs in the future with Senator Jordan and Congressman Hansen.

Tubing stolen at business

TWIN FALLS — About $175 worth of items were reported stolen from L. L. Langdon Hilde and Scrap Iron Friday morning.

Twin Falls Police said about 10 radiators and three and a half sacks of copper tubing were taken. Entrance to the building at 605 Shoshone St. W. was made by prying two padlocks from a west door.

Officers said the break-in occurred between 5:15 p.m. Thursday and 8 a.m. Friday.

Damaged Motor burns

TWIN FALLS — An occupied truck was damaged Thursday afternoon when it was struck by a railroad locomotive near Shoshone Street, West.

The truck, parked on the Simplot Soilbuilders lot, was too close to the track and a Union Pacific engine, operated by W. J. Trammer, Jerome, struck the vehicle.

Twin Falls Police, who investigated the mishap which occurred about 3:45 p.m., estimated damage to the truck at $200 and damage to the train at about $155.

ANDREW TULLY

On Fauntroy And His Gang

WASHINGTON — Forget for the moment that Hell City belongs to the whole country, and is not the private preserve of government bureaucrats, sleazy car salesmen, thugs and rioters. Unless they put pressure on their Congressmen, the owners of the District of Columbia are in for a new financial beating. The device for this bit of legalized thievery is called "home rule," and it is no euphemism. If Congress is dim-witted enough to go along, Hell City indeed will be ruled by its citizens instead of by the Federal government, and, brother, should that come about you can begin setting aside another fat wad of dough for Federal taxes.

It says so right in the home rule bill submitted by the mouthy Rev. Walter Fauntroy, Hell City's brand new non-voting delegate to Capitol Hill. Fauntroy, who operates like a perpetual motion machine, has included in his bill an increased Federal payment for the District to make up 32 per cent of the budget in 1972 and escalating to 40 per cent by 1975. The Federal payment now amounts to 13 per cent of the budget, so Fauntroy is thinking big. Well, now. It is only proper that the Feds help support D. C. because the town is overgrown with its tax-exempt properties. But under the present setup Congress has a financial veto over the political carryings-on that pass for government here. As representatives of the folks in Walla Walla and Buffalo who own the city, members of Congress thus can exercise some restraint over the more gradiose and idiotic ambitions of local politicians. Fauntroy and his gang, and assorted bleeders in swish drawing-rooms cry that this is taxation without representation. They are right, and that's how it should be. Washington is THE Federal City, created and organized to serve as a factory for the Federal government. Despite a scattering of industrial concerns and a conglomeration of shops, that is still Washington's chief function. Any other business is strictly incidental — permitted to exist, as it were, by a Congress functioning as representatives of the city's owners from Maine to California. No one is forced to live in Hell City and thus submit himself to taxation without representation. There are no walls to keep anybody in; transportation — of a sort — exists to carry the disgruntled back to Mobile, Ala., or Hackensack, N. J. The fact that the population continues to increase suggests that a lot of people have found the capital a pretty good thing, despite the tyranny of Capitol Hill. More to the point, the situation is bad enough now under a mayor appointed by the President, and an elected City Council and Board of Education. Crime is still rampant, the city working force is lousy with insolent loafers and the public schools are a tragic wreck. The thought of how things would be under home rule is too horrible to contemplate.

But I'll contemplate it, a little. Let us say Little Lord Fauntroy had been running the show during the recent vicious and untidy demonstrations. Fauntroy himself has given us a look at the way he'd operate. Throughout the minor rioting, this representative of a people subjected to destruction of their property on a wide scale, openly and proudly cast his lot with the vandals. He denounced the police, who restored order without firing a shot, visited the prisoners to make political speeches and altogether acted as an unpaid consultant to the mob. Even a Fauntroy is susceptible to a sudden attack of responsibility when put in charge, but on the record I fear that under his rule we'd still be putting out fires. For example, his only comment on the $2.5-million cost to the city of the demonstrations has been a demand that the Federal government pick up the tab. We might also be suspicious of a "home rule" crusader who says he'd give the vote to lions. Home rule for Hell City? Not unless the American electorate has gone mad and seeks to replace the present foolish atmosphere with utter anarchy. Were I entitled to a tame Congressman of my very own, I'd remind him that the U. S. can afford such a gruesome luxury like we can afford World War III.

Responsibilities

The maturity and judgment for responsible adult citizenship in a democracy do not occur magically at any age, 18 or 21 or older.

However, Congress granted the right to vote in federal elections to 18-year-olds and the states are proceeding to enact legislation to enable the younger people to vote in all elections and to ratify a proposed amendment to the Constitution to reduce the minimum legal voting age to eighteen.

Few voices have been raised questioning the extension of the franchise, although the popular argument that young men old enough to be drafted to fight for their country are old enough to vote is of dubious relevance.

Three states have taken a further and more controversial step toward full adult citizenship for 18-year-olds. Louisiana, New York and Tennessee have legalized liquor sales to the new voters. This extension of adult privilege will be opposed in many quarters but it does rest upon the sound logic that there should be only one class of adult citizenship.

Perhaps most of the youngsters affected by these legislative decisions are mature enough to realize responsibilities accompany privileges and, happily, they will accept the burdens of becoming fully participating members of society and government without abuse of their new rights.

Others, we are confident, will not. Extending the right to vote or to buy a drink will not rid the nation of the defiance of law and order that has spread across the land in recent years.

Too many of today's teen-agers and college students have broken the law, not only by imbibing or smoking marijuana but by destroying peace and property.

Respect for the law and the rights and property of others is a cornerstone of a viable society. The right of free speech includes the other fellow's as well as the loud-mouthed campus dissidents who have prevented scheduled talks of men with worthwhile messages, such as former ambassador and senator, Henry Cabot Lodge.

The abuse of privileges can lose them. Violations of the law by adults, even the youngest, demand adult punishment.

Not For Diet

Metals such as cadmium, mercury, lead, zinc, silver, manganese, chromium, copper, arsenic, barium, vanadium, nickel and beryllium have many valuable uses in modern civilization, but human consumption is not one of them.

All were included in a list of "potentially toxic substances" the President's Council on Environmental Quality warns are polluting the environment. In calling for national legislation to control the use and disposal of these materials, the council mentioned studies which have shown some to be contributors to specific human health problems.

Mercury poisoning of fish and fowl has been widely publicized. But, the council adds, "the increase in lead pollution is now global in scope." It also reported preliminary studies have indicated exposure to low levels of cadmium in the environment "may lead to low levels of cadmium in the environment "may lead to hypertension and heart disease and perhaps to cancer."

Balancing the needs of the consumer through industry and the effects on the population through the environment is a problem now expanding in many directions.

MR. SPECTATOR

Against Motherhood?

By ignoring their own advice, foresters at Ukiah, California, have been trapped — in the cause of motherhood. So now homebuilders must wait a few weeks for their part of that lumber they want.

Good forestry, timber growers explain, requires harvesting mature timber before nature starts her own harvest by decay, disease and ultimate forest fire.

However — Vestor (Red) Sims, who operates a big power loader for Georgia-Pacific Corporation, started moving a pile of recently stored logs to the sawmill when he was attacked by a mother quail. He stopped the heavy machinery to investigate.

One of the trees, obviously harvested too late, had developed a rotten section. The quail had built her nest in the soft spot among the piled logs instead of her usual brush cover in the woods. There were eight eggs.

Sims gently moved the several-ton log to an off limits area. Mother quail gratefully laid another egg. Officially, G-P has "returned the log to inventory pending hatching and pre-flight training."

Homebuilders may expect needed lumber from the remaining portion of the log sometime around mid-June.

Mr. Spectator thought you would like to know this — just in case that is the log containing the lumber you want!

TO WED — OR NOT!

For years, single Americans had a legitimate gripe — the higher income tax rates they were socked with compared to married taxpayers.

But now, according to the current issue of the Tax Advisor, a publication of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, in trying to reduce the tax discrepancy Congress has tipped the balance the other way. In some instances, it may be penalizing marriage.

A bachelor whose thoughts of matrimony may be influenced by the supposed tax savings thereto should beware. If his intended has a substantial income of her own, he may find himself paying more taxes as a married man.

Uncle Sam has not only stopped playing Cupid, says the magazine, but may in fact have stolen an arrow or two from his quiver.

There's another way of looking at it. For the first time, every gal with a good income will know that when some guy proposes to her, it's just got to be true love!

"He Followed Me Home, Ma!"

ART BUCHWALD

Save Reagan

WASHINGTON — No matter how I try, I can't stop worrying about Gov. Ronald Reagan's personal financial situation. As everyone knows by now, Gov. Reagan had such bad financial reverses last year that he didn't have to pay state income taxes. Instead of Californians sympathizing with him over these financial reverses, they became upset and felt there was something wrong because they had to pay taxes and Reagan didn't.

Very few people in the state said, "If the governor makes $44,000 a year as salary and has assets of around $1 million and still can't pay his income taxes, then he must be hurting very badly, and needs pity rather than censure."

My first thought was that the governor should seek legal aid from the local Office of Economic Opportunity. Although Reagan is trying to abolish legal aid for the poor in California, I'm sure the poverty lawyers would take his case anyway, just to prove that they will take anybody in dire financial straits, regardless of race, creed or elective office.

To make sure, I telephoned a CRIA (California Rural Legal Assistance) lawyer in California and asked him if he would take Reagan as a client. "Yes," he said, "he would qualify for free legal aid. Our charter specifically says that any governor of a state whose finances are in such poor shape that he doesn't have to pay personal state income taxes is in no position to pay a lawyer, and is therefore eligible for free legal advice. It would be our pleasure to help Gov. Reagan in anyway we could."

"How would you go about it?" From a legal standpoint it would probably be the most interesting case we've ever handled. Most of our cases have had to do with people who didn't pay any state income taxes because they didn't make any money. This would be the first time we represented someone who made money but didn't pay income taxes.

"Surely there is something wrong with the system if the governor of the largest state in the union has been hurt so badly financially that he can't pay any taxes."

"But what legal defense would you have for him?" I asked.

"First, we would have to find out what financial reverses Mr. Reagan had, whether they came from cattle, oil, real estate or the stock market. Then we would prove that it wasn't his fault that his investments went sour. It was probably due to the general economy."

"But the Republicans are in charge of the economy right now. Wouldn't it look bad if Reagan blamed his own party for the fact he had such a bad income situation?"

"I guess you're right. We'll have to think of something else. Perhaps we could persuade the courts to allow the governor to make one motion picture a year."

"Or a new Death Valley Days series," I suggested.

"I was thinking of a remake of the 'Grapes of Wrath,'" the lawyer said. "They could shoot most of it around Sacramento, so the governor wouldn't have to be on location too long. But the important thing is to get him healthy financially so he doesn't have to eat from the public trough. "This thing has far more ramifications than anyone wants to admit," he said. "We're trying to pull the poor up by their bootstraps so they become honest, hard-working citizens. But if they see somebody like Gov. Reagan, who has worked all his life and still has nothing left over for income taxes, they're going to say to themselves 'The hell with it. Let's stay on welfare.'"

Singable Songs

Formal religion — Sunday School and Church religion — has been less attractive in recent years. Membership in most mainline churches has stagnated or declined. Collection-plate giving is lagging. Most churches blame "young people defecting." One factor surely has to be that church music is out of tune. Charles Wesley wrote 8,000 gospel songs. Only 50 are still published. Only 20 are unforgettable classics. The most gifted contemporary writer of religion-related music, John Peterson, already has written 1,000 songs. You identify his name first with "It Took a Miracle." Others demonstrating durability include "Surely Goodness and Mercy." These have a melodic, lyric quality which anybody can enjoy singing and will remember. And Peterson has co-authored a folk hymnal for young people which has sold 300,000 since last August. An his are not all. Lyrics have been adopted by mod musicians from such traditional favorites as "Amazing Grace" and "Oh, Happy Day."

When an upbeat combo swings "Sweet Jesus" or "Put Your Hand in the Hand of the Man From Galilee," traditionalists don't know whether to be for or against 'em.

Are they singing of Jesus with their tongues in their cheeks, mocking?

Are the publishers and promoters of rock-religion mercenaries merchandising a youth appetite for something transcendent?

Or is it that sophisticated songs in the church hymnals have become so unmelodic that the new generation is writing its own gospel music, revitalizing religion outside the church?

If that's not the way to bet, that is the way to pray.

You and I grew up singing happy songs by rejoicing: "Love lifted me," "Stand up for Jesus," "Trust and Obey," "In The Garden," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

Then the outsiders accused church people of emotionalism, and the insiders bowed to the outsiders and got shuffy. After that the insiders went to singing monotonous dirges and the outsiders stayed outside where they could sing music which sounded like music.

That is as much as I'd better say of this, but a Glencoe, Ill., lawyer sent me a verse which says it better than I can anyway:

"In unison we rise and stand and wish that we were sitting; And listen to the music start and wish that it were quitting. We pass our hymnal to a guest or take a smoker's cough;

"We drop our pencils, lose our gloves, take our glasses off. We move our lips to keep in style emitting awkward bleats; And when the last Amen is sung sink gladly in our seats.

Oh, Lord, who hearest every prayer and savest us from foes, Deliver now thy little flock from all these hymns nobody knows."

Hanoi Goof

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Probably the most stupid mistake of the Hanoi government in the Vietnam war to date is its attempt to enter directly into contact with the U.S. antiwar movement and openly attempt to direct and coordinate the activities of American protest groups.

In a radio message to Rep. Mrs. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., broadcast from North Vietnam on April 12, Hanoi congratulates the congresswoman on her draft resolution "demanding that U.S. troops be withdrawn totally from the three Indochinese countries before July 4, 1971."

The message emphasized what a "necessary" and useful function she is performing toward ending what Hanoi called Nixon's "criminal aggressive war."

The broadcast, which expressed "the support of the Vietnamese women" for Mrs. Abzug's activities, came from Deputy Le Thi Xuyen, vice president of the (North) Vietnam Women's Union, an official government organization.

Five days later, Radio Hanoi announced that Hoang Minh Gien, North Vietnam minister of culture, had sent a message to "antiwar fighters in the United States to express warm sympathy with the new antiwar campaigns in the spring" and to express appreciation to the leaders for the help they were giving Hanoi in the war.

Hanoi has given Giam the job of developing contacts, cooperation and "solidarity" with U.S. antiwar groups.

There is evidence that Hanoi is making an attempt to coordinate the activities of American antiwar groups with its military and physiological offensives in South Vietnam.

Xuan Thuy, head of North Vietnam's delegation to the Paris talks, seemingly attempted to take a direct hand in the American protest movement when he sent a message to leaders a short time back urging that they quit their quarrelling and unite all antiwar groups so as to make their demonstrations more effective. Some observers claim his advice was taken and a major split averted.

This is not to imply that the protest movement is largely composed of young men and women who follow the Hanoi party line.

It is to say, however, that Hanoi is making the attempt to guide and coordinate. And in making the attempt, inevitably, it will weaken the movement. For few people welcome interference by foreign governments in their internal affairs.

And that, I think, applies to most individual protesters as well as the American public at large.

An Opinion

Editor, Times-News:

I'm writing concerning the recent firing of basketball coach Charles Farmer from the Twin Falls senior high school. Because I have played under Coach Farmer for two years and have been in direct contact with the athletic program for three years, I feel that I am qualified to voice an opinion on the matter.

I disagree with the reasons stated for the firing of the former coach. The reasons given the public were that he had poor support with his players and that he had poor public relations. At no time can I recall any "locker room talk" or animosity toward Coach Farmer. In fact, I would say that nearly everyone on the team liked the coach quite well.

Naturally, there were times when all wasn't chipper. There were also a few times when some of the team members individually, including myself, disagreed with the coach greatly. But then just how many people do we know that we've never disagreed with?

As to the second matter of poor public relations, I think that all sports fans should ask themselves just who the public relations responsibility falls upon.

I don't believe that the majority of this responsibility falls upon a coach, but upon those people who are paid to carry out sporting news.

Sometimes I wish that the coach would have sounded more optimistic in our press releases, but I also don't feel that this could be used as a basis of firing the man from a position that he has done a fine job for the past six years.

I'm not writing to say that we do or do not need this new coach, but merely to point out that the reasons stated for firing the former coach just can't stand up in my own mind. Perhaps we did need a new coach, but only time will tell.

Results, and not opinions, should speak the loudest in helping to get things done. I think that Coach Farmer has had good results in the past. As of right now I fail to see the reason for getting the new coach other than the fact that the public wouldn't give the old coach a chance. I feel that the main reason we now have a new coach is due to one thing that can be summed up in one word. That word is "politics."

I think that the manner in which Coach Farmer was dismissed was underhanded and downright dirty. I believe that most of the points against Coach Farmer were railroaded through and that the true motive for getting a new coach were kept under the table. Politics is great for campaigning to achieve a desired position but it has no place in sports — especially at the high school level.

There seems to be much more to all this than just the performances and results on the basketball floor. I think a search should be made for the real reason for any trouble which seems to exist in the Twin Falls athletic program.

JOE BURG

Great People Are Great

Joe Burgy says great people are great people — and he should know. Down through the years he has rubbed shoulders with the best of them. Hunted with them, fished with them, impersonated them and traveled with them.

And who, among the greats, stand out in his recollections? Well, to name a few, there is President Truman, General George Marshall when he was secretary of state, Gary Cooper, Ernest Hemingway, Russ Morgan and Clark Gable. Cooper was just like he was on the screen. Hemingway was extremely modest. President Truman was very easy to talk to. Gable was a real man — and all man!

Then, of course, there was Senator Borah. But to get to this point we will start at the beginning, of Joe Burgy's life.

His grandfather, John Curran, came to Hagerman in 1864. He was Irish — clear through. Joe's father, Joseph Burgy, Sr., was born in Peoria, Ill., and came to Boise where he met Joe's mother-to-be, Anna Curran. The couple moved to Hagerman where they engaged in the livestock game. Joe senior is now dead but his widow lives with her son — Joe junior — at Canyon Villa in Twin Falls.

Joe went through grade and high school at Hagerman, spent two years at Santa Clara then transferred to Gerogetown University, Washington D.C., where he went to night school during the seven years he was employed by Senator William E. Borah.

Senator Borah died in 1940 and after seven happy and fruitful years on his staff, Joe returned to Idaho. He remembers the Senator as a "brilliant and kind man."

Back in Idaho he joined the Sun Valley (then Union Pacific owned) staff as a member of the sports desk. This was in December, 1940.

Except for Navy duty he was at Sun Valley from 1940 to 1954. He learned to ski after he took the job and quit skiing when he left.

It was in 1952 he went in the Navy. It was a four-year hitch including 16 months in the South Pacific as operations officer for an air rescue squadron. He received his honorable discharge in 1946 with the rank of Lieutenant Commander.

Then back to Sun Valley where he became director of outdoor activities. From this time on through 1954 the great and near-great were many because all roads led to Sun Valley.

It was at Sun Valley where he organized the famed Sun Valley Handicap Trap Shoot. He attended seven national championships and proved he knew what it was all about when he won the national Class A trapshooting contest and made the All-America team in 1953. Now he shoots birds instead of traps.

After leaving Sun Valley he went to Las Vegas where he built and managed the equally famous Sahara Gun Club. But then, about four years ago, he couldn't forsake the call of Idaho and the great outdoors so he came back to Idaho and now is announcer and handles news for Radio KTFI.

As a sidelight he recalls that the greatest hunting companions had to be Cooper and Hemingway.

To end this personality sketch we must reveal the well-guarded secret that Joe was in the famed "Sun Valley Serenade" movie but no one recognized him.

It happened this way. The location shots were made at Sun Valley but none of the stars — including Glenn Miller, John Payne or Sonja Henie — were there. They played their parts in the studio in Hollywood.

Joe had a camel hair coat. He was picked to impersonate Glen Miller in the Sun Valley scenes. He wore that coat, a pair of glasses and carried the Miller instrument.

That was Joe for Miller at Sun Valley in Sun Valley Serenade but it has been a well-kept secret.

Joe remembers, though, because the camel hair coat was worn out before the shooting was over.

But there was a silver lining. He was paid $5 a day for impersonating the great one.

Real Courage

Editor, Times-News:

Bob Salter of Boise Radio Station KATN's program "Action Line" read a clipping from your newspaper over the air this morning announcing your decision to refuse to publish advertisements of X-rated movies.

Congratulations! I'm sure that your position will be attacked by certain elements in our society who will claim that you are trying to force your own moral standards upon them. If they do, I'd say it's about time somebody tried to improve current moral standards!

In recent years I've tried to persuade the local newspaper (The Idaho Statesman) to the same course of action but their position is that this would constitute censorship. This, in my opinion, is a weak-kneed way of ducking one's own moral responsibilities.

Please send two copies of the issue in which your announcement appeared. I'd like to use them to prove to others that there is still one newspaper around with the courage to match his moral standards!

Depressing

Editor, Times-News:

This is a letter written in disgust and frustration.

Every spring, for the past four years, I have gone out to the Twin Falls Labor Center to register children for the summer migrant school program.

Each year it gets harder for me to go out there, as it depresses me so to see the living conditions these people have to endure, living in the "barracks."

It's beyond my comprehension to understand how such an affluent county and community can allow such conditions to exist.

Recently someone from the Sugar Beet Association said that Idaho's labor camps are in good shape.

I will be happy to personally give a guided tour of the Twin Falls facilities to anyone wishing to see if THEY would stand for living under such conditions — be it for a week, a month or longer.

Restoration

Editor, Times-News:

It is to my understanding there is a number of groups being organized advocating restoration of the Constitution of the United States. How in the world can this be? As long as I can remember, and tracing back through history, we have been governed by this great document.

Our elections on national, state, county, and even city levels are conducted the same as from the start. We have the same Jurisprudence.

Good grief, a dollar is a dollar. The government prints and issues it, the same as it did when the Country changed from the English pound.

Our boys are still fighting to keep our country free from aggression. We are fighting foreign control not only here but all through the world, the same as our forefathers did from the start of this great country.

I can't see what is to be reformed when we still have the same things. To restore something you must first lose it. I just can't see where we have lost our great Constitution. If things have been changed, show me where and HOW.

Forum Rules

Forum letters must be concerned with topics of general interest and must be of a reasonable length.

The editors of the Times-News reserve the right to refuse publication if, in their opinion, the subject matter is of a libelous nature, is not in good taste or is repetitious and has previously been thoroughly covered in the forum.

All letters must bear the signature and address of the writer. The name of the writer will appear when published unless there is a personal request that it be withheld and the reason for such a request stated. This request will then be considered by the editors and it will either be granted or the letter will be returned to the writer.

Prayer For This Time

Oh God, sometimes you seem so far away. Why is that? I know you said, "I will never leave you nor forsake you." It must be my fault. I guess I leave you by getting too busy to think about you. Maybe I do or say something, or even think something, I know is wrong. Then I can't be surprised if you seem far away. Oh, please help me find my way back.

I'm so sick of this prejudice against the Mexicans (Spanish-Americans) that I hope I can put in my two bits worth.

We have a nice three-bedroom home in the country. It is well kept and clean and we have a nice Mexican-American to thank for its present condition.

After a succession of people moving in and out, not paying their rent, leaving us bills to pay, we locked up the house for two years. We actually couldn't afford to rent it.

Along came the present tenants. They have six lovely children. Three girls are all employed and the boys, teenagers, do field work when school is out. The family is reliable, devout and religious and we are very thankful this Mexican-American family is here and contributing so much to our community.

Anyway, for what it's worth, judge people by their acts and behavior — not their race, color or creed. That's what America still stands and fights for.

Two Bits Worth

ROWLAND EVANS

Moderation

RACINE, Wis. — The non-ideological allure of Sen. Ed and S. Muskie of Maine for the fundamentally non-liberal mass of Wisconsin Democrats is such that, if the 1972 Presidential primary were held today, he would run away from all other out-of-state challengers and quite likely compete on even terms with Wisconsin's favorite son, Sen. William Proxmire.

This is the unavoidable conclusion drawn from interviewing voters with Oliver Quayle's pollsters in two barometer precincts, one a lower-middle income blue-collar neighborhood in Racine and the other a combined blue and white collar area of slightly higher income on Milwaukee's north side.

These voters, deeply disappointed with President Nixon's leadership, are attracted to Muskie's cool, calm style — the very style that repels the party's militant liberals. Indeed, Muskie's recent emphasis on the peace issue and civil liberties would not seem to enhance and might even erode his standing with these rank-and-file Democrats.

The answers to pollster Quayle's questionnaires in the two barometer precincts (selected by election analyst Richard Scammon) showed almost no support for Sens. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota. Nor did Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota seem to have derived strength from his heralded start. Most surprising, Muskie ran slightly ahead of Proxmire, one of Wisconsin's all-time top vote-getters.

From 61 registered voters who will vote in the 1972 Democratic primary, these were the preferences: Muskie, 21; Proxmire, 17; Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa, 5; McGovern and Kennedy, 4 each; Humphrey, 3; Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, 3; Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, none; undecided, 5.

This small but significant sampling is insufficient to contradict the conventional wisdom that Proxmire would sweep his own state's primary.

Nevertheless, we took care not to interview in areas of preponderantly Eastern European ethnic population (numerous in this state) which would overwhelmingly back Muskie, the son of Polish immigrants. Moreover, because of superior name identification, early support for Proxmire ought to be at its maximum here with no place to go but down.

Eliminating Proxmire, Kennedy, and Humphrey from the list (as pollsters here predict will be the case), Muskie runs wild with 64 percent; Muskie, 32 votes; McGovern, 8; Hughes, 6; Bayh, 2; Jackson, 1; undecided, 11.

To many of these Democrats, the memory of Muskie's election eve appeal last November is vivid. "I liked what Muskie said that night," told the middle-aged wife of a toolmaker in the Milwaukee precinct. For them, Muskie's moderation is most attractive. "He speaks intelligently, not like an extremist," explained a young auto worker in Racine. "He seems realistic."

That reflects the consensus among these middle to lower-middle income Democrats, far less liberal than many Democratic leaders imagine. Out of the 61 Democrats, only 23 favored an immediate pullout from Vietnam. The emphasis given to the economic issue (unemployment, inflation, taxes) and the social issue (law-and-order, drugs, crime) by them was just about even. One Racine truckdriver out of work since February (a Muskie backer) told us he considers crime — not the economy — the nation's most pressing issue. "We can fix the economy after we get the country safe again," he said.

Thus, Wisconsin's stereotype as a militantly dovish state automatically falling to the most militantly anti-war candidates has receded by these two barometer precincts. From the standpoint of all-out peace candidates, there are too few voters — such as the young salesman in Racine who wants Sen. Hughes because he "will end the war more quickly than the rest of them."

Red Army newspaper attacks troops

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soldiers of the Red Army have come under fire from their own official newspaper for not fighting the battle against belief in God as resolutely as they should.

"In some detachments," the army newspaper Red Star said in a lengthy commentary, "commanders and political workers have weakened anti-religious propaganda. They do not conduct the resolute fight for the uprooting of leftovers of religion in people's consciousness."

Even old women, Red Star noted sarcastically, can best soldiers in religious argument and it told the story of one old woman named Anna who sat in a train compartment with several young soldiers, one of whom asked her:

"Are you a believer, old woman?"

"Why do you ask, sonny?"

"Because it (religion) makes me laugh."

"What is there to laugh about?" said the old woman. "God helps us in everything. He is everywhere — in this bread, sonny, in your thoughts."

Red Star said "an argument began in which the old woman took the upper hand. The private could not counter her arguments with any of his own. One could see he was not prepared for an argument of this sort. He just kept repeating, "Everybody knows there is no God..."

Such a state of affairs, Red Star said, proved that "anti-religious propaganda should be conducted uninterrupted, not just from time to time."

Anti-religious propaganda is official Soviet policy. Freedom of worship is guaranteed by the Soviet constitution but the state considers religion a "serious ideological adversary."

Children are told "religion is a harmful superstition. Everything is explained by science." Jesus Christ is usually referred to as "the mythical Christ."

Moscow in 1917 had more than 600 churches for a population of one million. There are today no

GM president pledges end to auto pollution

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. Chairman James M. Roche answered a small but persistent group of dissident stockholders Friday with a pledge the company was making an all-out commitment "to take the automobile out of the air pollution problem."

To do this, Roche told the annual shareholders meeting, GM plans to spend $150 million — an increase of $26 million over the previously announced figure — to clean up exhaust pollution.

Roche's announcement came shortly before the voting on three proposals put forward by Campaign GM. The group owns just 12 of GM's 285 million shares of stock, but said it hoped to gain backing on its proposals by at least 3 per cent of the company's stockholders.

This year's meeting did not draw the amount of attention as the 1970 meeting when Campaign GM made its first bid. About 645 persons in their seats one-half hour before the beginning of the meeting, compared with 1,700 at the same time last year. A total of 2,650 stockholders attended the 1970 meeting.

The three proposals put forward by Campaign GM call for:

Novelist may disturb new neighbors

NEW YORK (UPI) — What will the new neighbors think? For one thing, he's a burner of incense and nibbles goat cheese "for energy." For another, he says things like: "... No, I'm not married, and I'm not gonna get married. If I ever got married, I'd marry several people at once ... but

Brazilian death team hits anew

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Brazil's "Death Squad" left another strangled, beaten and bullet-ridden body along a main road outside Rio de Janeiro Friday and police added one more "mystery" to dozens of similar unsolved crimes.

The unidentified body bore a sign saying: "Look, I stole too much." Beside the body was a note saying: "The Death Squad rehabilitates another thief, and it will swallow others."

The "Death Squads" are believed to be made up of vigilante policemen who prefer killing criminals to bringing charges against them.

Singer pressed to leave movie

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Al Martino, who plays the role of singer Johnny Fontane in "The Godfather," says pressure is being applied to him to drop out of the picture.

Earlier this year Vic Damone left the role, explaining he thought the characterization wasn't in the best interest of Italian Americans.

"That's a copout," Martino said. "I think pressure was applied to Damone and it wasn't because of the Italian Defamation League."

Martino, too, has had telephone calls advising him it would be best all around if he eschewed the part of a singer who is controlled by the Mafia.

Not that hoodlums have pelted him with bullets in their coat pockets have paid him visits, but he has received the word nonetheless.

"I'm playing the role no matter who or what applies the pressure," Martino said. "I'm not afraid of anyone in or out of Hollywood. I've wanted this part ever since I read the book, and I want no trouble."

There was much speculation that the character of Johnny Fontane in Mario Puzo's novel was patterned after the foremost American entertainer of Italian heritage.

Martino said, "The character could be the story of a lot of singers. I had managerial problems when I first came along and had a hit record."

"The book was written so close to the things that were printed in the press about Frank Sinatra that a lot of people thought he was supposed to be Johnny Fontane."

"I guess that is what everyone is doing. Personally, I don't think so. But people are free to think what they want to think."

Asked if the words "Mafia" and "Cosa Nostra" had been eliminated from the screen version, Martino said he didn't know.

"If the Mafia exists today and they didn't want this picture made, I imagine it wouldn't be made one way or another."

"On my first day of shooting on Mott Street in New York the only people I saw were fans. If there was anyone else I was unaware of them."

"But nobody is going to pressure or scare me off this picture. And they better not try."

Traffic delay forecast

SHOSHONE—Traffic delays can be expected through one-half mile of the construction zone in the Flier urban area during construction work on U. S. Highway 30 in Twin Falls County.

Howard Johnson, Shoshone, district highway engineer, said the 6.38 mile project is being built by Twin Falls Construction Co., for $1,503,519.70. At this time, crews are hauling and placing borrow, installing pipe, storm sewer line and fence.

Work on the roadway portion of the Murtaugh Loop project is expected to commence in the next two or three weeks, Johnson said. The contractor is presently finishing the 204-foot steel and concrete bridge and should have it complete in two weeks.

Nelson & Miller, Twin Falls, holds a contract for $252,861. This includes 6.1 miles of road and the concrete bridge.

Plantmix overlay is being laid on the Eden-Corner-East and should be completed by the middle of June. Controlled traffic is in effect and slight delays can be expected, Johnson said. This project is in the amount of $280,800, with Allied Paving Corp., Idaho Falls, doing the work. Overall work includes construction of plantmix pavement and fog sealing of 11 miles on State Highway 25.

In the Burley-Rupert area, two projects are in progress. All that remains to be done on the State Highway 77, interchange on I-80N near Burley, is completing illumination modifications.

Overall work has included modifying ramps, drainage structures, signing, delineation, illumination—guard rail—and fence. Contract price to Galey Construction Co., Boise, has been $134,538.

The other project nearing completion in Burley-Rupert area is located on State Highway 24 and Eighth Street and State Highway 77, Minidoka and Cassia counties. Work has included reconstruction of the roadway, plantmix pavement, and curb and gutter on .041 miles of the junction of State Highway 24 and Eighth Street (Rupert), .301 miles of State Highway 77 in Declo, and furnishing roadmix surfacing material in stockpiles north of Oakley. Contract price to Gordon Paving Co., Burley, is $70,649.

The curb and gutter was completed this past week and it is anticipated that plantmix operations will begin this week. The re-construction of .301 miles of State Highway 77 in Declo and stockpiling roadmix surfacing material north of Oakley was completed last year, Johnson said, but the two came under the same contract.

2 new highway projects begin

SHOSHONE—Two new highway projects started this month according to Howard Johnson, district highway engineer, Shoshone.

One, to cost $45,053, consists of core drilling for foundation investigation on the Perrine Bridge, just north of Twin Falls. Jensen Construction and Drilling Co., Springville, Utah, is doing the work.

Work includes the drilling to depths of about 100 feet at various locations on the north and south sides of the Snake River Canyon. The cores will be used for investigation of foundations for future bridge footings. One-lane traffic on US 30, within the project area, can be expected periodically while the contractor is moving equipment into and out of the canyon.

No pedestrians will be allowed on the Perrine Bridge while the contractor is working, as an added precaution for the safety of men working below. Completion of the contract work is scheduled for July 15, 1971.

The other new project is 5.14 miles of U. S. Highway 2 from Shoshone west in Lincoln County. This will connect with the present new Interstate to Gooding. The work will include construction of roadway, plantmix pavement, curb and gutter, seal coat and lighting on the distance. The work will be done by Holmes Construction Co., Inc., Burley, at a price of $1,238,210.10.

Work continues on interstate

SHOSHONE—Work on Interstate 80N in Gooding and Jerome counties continues with hauling and placing base material on the eastbound lane, interchange ramps and frontage roads, and related construction.

According to Howard Johnson, district highway engineer, Shoshone, the detour at the junction of State Highways 25 and 46 remains in effect. An additional detour approximately 1,000 feet in length at the end of the project west of Jerome will be established immediately for about one month.

The project is about 60 per cent complete at this time, Johnson said.

Cost of this project is $5,279 million and length is 8,398 miles with Peter Kiewit & Sons Construction Co., Idaho Falls, doing the work.

Construction of four underpasses on Interstate 80N, is also progressing with fills being prepared now for concrete slope paving. The stringers are in place at all four structures and the concrete deck is complete on grade separation number 3. Controlled traffic can be expected periodically at all of the bridge locations.

King Construction Co., Boise, is doing the work on the latter project for $921,420.50.

Loggers conclude drive

LEWISTON (UPE)—The last of the whitewater sawlog drives in the United States ended Friday.

A 40-year era ended at noon when the roaring crew for Potlatch Forest Inc., was released from its duties here, ending the last annual PFT log drive on the north fork and main Clearwater rivers in northern Idaho.

By fall, the bypass tunnel at Dworahak dam on the north fork of the Clearwater near Orofino, will be closed and the pool behind the high dam will begin to fill, effectively flocking further drives.

PFT plans to ship logs by truck from its extensive holdings in north central Idaho to its mill here in the future.

Bids set on 2 jobs

SHOSHONE—Bids will be opened within a month on two additional state highway projects, reports Howard Johnson, district engineer, Shoshone.

Stockpiles in Lincoln, Butte and Blaine counties will furnish aggregate for road mix pavement and cover coat material. Stockpiles in the vicinity of Tikura, Butte City, South Howe and Carey. They are located on U. S. 20-28 and State Highway 88.

The work of seal coating about 42.8 miles of Highway 93

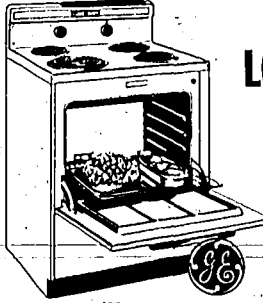

(Challis-North and East Fork-Red Cliff) and 3.8 miles of State Highway 21 (Stanley-West) will be let by bid on May 25. This is in Lemhi and Custer counties.

On June 8, bids will be opened for work of constructing roadway, drainage structures, road mix pavement and seal coating on 2.462 miles of the Camp Road and .189 miles of State Highway 24 to Youth Ranch. This is on the Camp Road and State Highway 24, Minidoka County.

State agency audit asked

Salt piles

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI)—A legislative interim committee Friday called for financial audit of three state agencies so their new directors may begin their jobs with a clean slate.

Legislative Auditor James A. Defenbach told the Budget and Fiscal committee the audits were requested by the new directors of the departments of Aeronautics and Public Works and the Office of Aging.

He said he would try to complete each of the audits prior to June 30.

Meanwhile, the committees put off until the indefinite future a proposal to audit three school districts.

Defenbach said he received several requests from legislators to conduct performance audits on representative large, medium and small districts to determine if state aid is being spent in accordance with legislative wishes.

"I would say first things first," said Rep. Helen McKinney, R-Salmon, who moved the proposal be deferred until the committee has the money and staff, and has completed tasks now under way.

She was joined by Rep. Paul Worthen, R-Boise, who said "without a doubt, some of our school districts should be audited."

"But if we place priorities properly, we should wait three to four years," Worthen said.

Sen. Vernon K. Brassey, R-Boise, said he felt the Budget and Fiscal Committee's staff should undertake the audits as soon as possible because "it might give us insight as to whether we should look into the matter further in that it might help in the formula area."

Defenbach said he felt the proposed studies would take about two months, and committee members generally felt his staff at this time could not spare that much time for the proposed audit.

Defenbach also told the committee that some state agencies are trying to encumber salaries and wages appropriated for the current fiscal period to help raise their level of spending for the fiscal year ahead.

He said the legislature already had established a level of spending for all agencies next year and that a move such as this "could circumvent what may have been the intent of the legislature."

He also reported that some departments are trying to bolster their financial resources by billing other state agencies for services they render to them. He said the budget division in the executive branch has expressed considerable concern about such procedures.

Sen. Nels Solberg, D-Grangeville, said he felt that such a practice should be prevented because it simply will compound the financial problems confronting many of the state agencies and lead to budgetary confusion.

Meantime, legislative auditors told the committee that space and equipment problems are hampering the rehabilitation program of the Idaho Commission for the Blind.

In a 26-page report, Defenbach and his staff gave high praise to the work of Blind Commission Director Kenneth A. Hopkins and his program to rehabilitate the sightless.

BONN (UPI)—The possibility of making mountains of the 12,000 tons of salt dumped into the Rhine river daily by French potash mining companies and an almost equal amount by German firms is being studied by the International Commission to Protect the Rhine from Pollution.

Because it is economically not feasible to eliminate the salt any other way, the commission decided piling it up in huge hills may be the best solution, the German government told Parliament. The question has become serious because the Dutch downriver draw much of their drinking water from the Rhine.

Panel to disband

BOISE (UPI)—The Idaho Commission on Federal Land Laws voted unanimously today to disband permanently unless called back at the request of its chairman to handle a specific problem.

In doing so, the commission voted to retain its executive director, John E. Martin, on the payroll only until June 1, although he will be given all accrued leave time. Commission Chairman Herman McDevitt of Pocatello was authorized to pay all outstanding bills.

The commission's life was extended by the 41st legislature until Dec. 31, but a mix-up in bills extended the commission's spending authority only until June 30. Martin told the commission some $30,000 of the commission's appropriation is left to be returned to the general fund.

In breaking up early, commission members indicated that there was little it could do to implement bills stemming from the Public Land Law Review Commission report. Members indicated Idaho's congressional delegation should be the authority to handle the legislation.

This afternoon the commission was to hold a public hearing to receive recommendations on proposed legislation stemming from the PLLRC. Submission of recommendations to the governor and to the legislature will be the last official function of the commission.

Sen. Art Murphy, D-Mullan, told the commission he felt "rather than just piddling around here...I would be in favor of adjourning sine die...until we could embark on something really constructive."

Murphy said, however, the members should be kept intact so that if Idaho's congressional delegation requests assistance members could meet again to handle the specific problem.

Sen. Dean Summers, R-Boise, said he felt it was "fairly obvious if you cut the money off (June 30) you're going to cut the commission off."

He recommended the state "lean more heavily" on the congressional delegation to do the work.

Jack Pierce, Malta, said, however, he felt there should be an "official voice" for Idaho concerning the PLLRC report.

He questioned the role of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, asking "is he going to take the responsibility of the state of Idaho or is he going to rely on this commission to give him advice?"

McDevitt, however, said he had been in touch with Idaho's congressional delegation and "they told me quite correctly they had been elected for that purpose."

He said the commission in Idaho had little to do until next spring "when they (the congressional delegation) are going to want some help on some specific legislation."

HEW aide says plan cuts cost

WASHINGTON (UPI)—HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson said Saturday the administration's welfare reform plan now in the House probably would bring down the present $4.1 billion cost of federal welfare by 1976.

In a broadcast interview, Richardson called the plan "the most important bill in 35 years," but said it should not be taken as a substitute for the administration's general revenue sharing plan.

The secretary of health, education and welfare said the work-related provisions of the reform plan will have "some cumulative impact" on its future costs. "Even a fairly conservative estimate of this would show that the cost of this program will be below the cost of present law along about 1976," he said.

Richardson said the plan would have "a substantial impact in helping employable people now on the rolls to find worthwhile employment."

"The requirement for work registration... together with the opportunity to retain a share of earnings over and above benefits without total loss of benefits are all a part of a carefully dovetailed effort to prevent an increase in the (welfare) rolls and to bring about a long-term reduction," he said.

Richardson viewed "the most far-reaching impact of the legislation as... helping people who can work to get work."

He stressed that the bill's proposed guarantee of a $2400 minimum annual income was "a uniform basic floor beyond which the states can... supplement with their own funds." He said that a provision of future fiscal relief for the states would guarantee that a large state such as New York "will not have to spend more than it's spending now in future years."

Lunokhod cuts pace

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet controllers retimed the Lunokhod moonmobile to reduced activity Saturday after six months of successful operation on the lunar surface, the news agency Tass said.

The agency said the machine, which has traveled more than five miles since it landed Nov. 17, will begin "a new mode of operation requiring only minimum movements."

The agency said until it wears out it will spend its time taking pictures of its surroundings and transmitting them and other data back to earth.

The machine, which rolled on eight wheels under the control of operators on earth, was programmed to function only until Feb. 17, Tass said. "All the systems of the automatic apparatus continue functioning normally," Tass said. "At this time, however, the length of its operation has doubled its planned service life. In this connection, it was decided to change Lunokhod 1 to a new mode of operation requiring only minimum movements."

Russ to use SST soon

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union plans to put its supersonic TU144 airliner into service this year, Civil Aviation Minister Boris Bugayev said Saturday.

Success in that endeavor would complete Russia's victory in the supersonic sweepstakes over the Anglo-French Concorde and the shelved American SST—first into the air, first through the sound barrier and first into service.

The official Tass news agency quoted Bugayev summarizing the breakthroughs expected this year in the booming Soviet aviation industry at a conference of top aviation officials.

The TU154 and IL62, intended for super long-distance nonstop flight, will appear on Aeroflot routes this year," Bugayev said.

"It is also intended to start the operation of the TU144 supersonic liner and the IL76 jet cargo plane. "New airports will be built and existing ones reconstructed."

Veteran observers said the decision to fly the plane to the Paris airshow May 27—its first trip out of the country—is a sign the Soviets are supremely confident it is ready to go on the line.

Bugayev's speech was the first official indication that the plane would become operational this year, but western aviation sources predicted the same thing two months ago.

They said the plan is to begin using the TU144 this fall for flights from Moscow to Khabarovsk, in Far Eastern Siberia. If that works smoothly, they said, the plane would be used early next year on the Moscow-Karachi run.

The TU in the plane's name designates its designers, the father-and-son team of Andrei and Alexei Tupolev.

According to figures available in authoritative aviation manuals, the plane has a maximum speed of 1,550 m.p.h. and a range of about 4,000 miles. It has a passenger capacity of 120 to 150.

Soviet officials have said they expect it to cross the Atlantic from New York to Paris in about three hours.

Restoration

SILVER SPRING, Md. (UPI)—Service with a smile: The National Institute of Drycleaners reports this one.

A counter girl at Duffy's Cleaners in Sacramento, Calif. found a set of false teeth on a shelf where some clothing had been. Next day, the firm's employees began asking quietly of customers if they knew of anyone who had lost his dentures. Finally a toothless gentleman walked in to pick up his clothes. No one had to ask him. The cleaners simply handed him the teeth. They fit and he walked out with a smile.

Johnson, Nixon dedicate gargantuan LBJ Library

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Lyndon B. Johnson and President Nixon Saturday dedicated the $18.6 million LBJ Library, an eight-story marble monument the former president said proves that "man can."

"It is all here—the story of our time, with the bark off," said Johnson, his gray hair drooping over his gold-striped collar.

The nation's 38th and 37th chief executives, standing side by side on a platform trimmed with red, white and blue bunting, dedicated in the name of the American people the largest and costliest presidential library.

Nixon called the library, on the grassy edge of the University of Texas campus, an "extraordinary treasure of insights into a critical period in our nation's history."

"The American people have reason to be doubly grateful to you today," Nixon said, glancing at Johnson. "First for your long lifetime of service and now for this collection that can take the scholars of future generations behind the scenes of that service." Johnson, his wife Ladybird nearby, turned over to the national archives the 31-million-page collection of documents spanning his public service career of almost four decades.

"Those documents contain millions and millions of words. But the two that best express my philosophy are the words: 'man can,'" the former president said.

"There is no record of a mistake, nothing critical, ugly, or unpleasant that is not included in the files here," Johnson said. "I do not know how this period will be regarded in years to come. But that is not the point."

The library will show the facts, not just the joy and triumphs, but the sorrow and failures, too. The Johnsons and their 3,800 invited guests settled down after the dedication to an outdoor barbecue of 6,000 chickens, 1,000 hot sausage links, 1,500 pounds of ribs, a ton of brisket beef, 3,000 fried pies, biscuits, cole slaw and potato salad. Cooks were up all night and the billowing smoke and barbecue fires could be seen before dawn.

The Johnsons spent Friday night party-hopping in Austin, 60 miles from their LBJ ranch in the Texas hill country. Nixon and his wife Pat flew in from Washington and left after the ceremony for their Florida home at Key Biscayne. Nixon's daughter and son-in-law, Julie and Navy Ensign David Eisenhower, came along. The Nixons toured the library and the "Great Society" exhibits with the Johnsons as guides and the Eisenhower family followed under the lead of Johnson's daughter and son-in-law, Luci and Patrick Nugent.

They went through a library replica of the president's oval office in the White House—a room Johnson will use as a part-time Austin office.

"Often I am asked what it feels like to sit in the president's oval office—to know, in President Truman's famous phrase, that the buck stops here," Nixon said.

"President Johnson sometimes used to comment, in speaking about the presidency, that 'the problem is not doing what is right, the problem is knowing what is right.'"

Antiwar protesters threatened to disrupt the dedication for the nation's fifth presidential library but 800 Texas Rangers, Secret Service agents, state troopers, city police and campus guards ringed the library to keep the demonstrators away.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., was invited but declined, saying he had a previous speaking engagement.

Officials slate few addresses

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Nixon administration officials have scheduled only a few college graduation speeches again this year, and most of their appearances will be at small, lesser known colleges or government academies.

President Nixon "has no plans" to speak at commencement exercises, the White House said. His last graduation talk was at General Beadle State College in 1969 in Madison, S.D.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will speak only at Air Force Academy graduation ceremonies June 9. And Attorney General John N. Mitchell's only graduation appearance will be at the FBI Academy in Washington on June 30.

Defense Secretary Melvin B. Laird will speak to the West Point graduating class June 9. Only three other cabinet officials have scheduled college appearances.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers will speak at Colgate University.

Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Elliot L. Richardson spoke May 17 at Gallaudet College in the District of Columbia, and will receive an honorary degree from Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., on June 12.

Richardson was one of the most sought after members of the administration. He received 50 speaking requests, but could schedule only one.

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton will speak at Washington College, Chestertown, Md., June 6.

Nixon administration officials stayed away from commencement addresses in 1970 because of the upheaval on college campuses at that time which culminated in the killing of four young people at Kent State in Ohio and two others at Jackson State in Mississippi.

This year campuses are relatively quiet, however.

Many officials said they simply could not schedule any college appearances.

Newspapers hit for wire shares

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Justice Department filed a civil antitrust suit Friday charging the New York Times and the Chicago Daily News and Sun-Times violated the law in sharing a single supplemental wire service.

The suit filed in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn also said the two newspaper organizations violated the Sherman Antitrust law by sharing a single sales force in operating their news services.

Named as defendants were the New York Times Co., its subsidiary, New York Times Sales, Inc., and Field Enterprises, Inc., which produces and distributes the Chicago Daily News-Sun-Times service.

A number of other large U.S. newspapers have similarly set up supplemental news services in which they share a single wire.

The suit charged that although the two news services were substantial competitors, they had entered into an agreement to share a single wire to send material to subscribing newspapers and to restrict the hours during which each service could use the wire.

The government also claimed that the agreement calls for both services to be promoted and sold through New York Times Sales, Inc.

The Justice Department announcement said that before Feb. 1, when the existing agreement went into effect, each of the services leased its own wire and maintained its own separate sales force.

Acting Assistant Attorney General Walker B. Comegys said the suit is intended to force an end to the agreement and to bar the defendants from entering into any similar arrangement in the future.

The suit charges that operation under the agreement "would substantially lessen competition between the two news services and among supplemental news services generally."

The New York Times news service is one of the largest supplementals in the United States with about 185 subscribers in this country. The Chicago Daily News Sun Times service has about 14 domestic subscribers.

Their agreement to share the wire was entered into Dec. 10, 1970, according to the government suit.

Race, economic problems dissenters' targets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dissent and civil disobedience will not stop with an end to the U.S. presence in Vietnam, but will turn to other targets, especially racial and economic problems at home.

The current crop of protesters has little enthusiasm for the terrorist activities of such groups as the Weathermen. Rather, they are moving toward a pattern of passive resistance similar to that advocated by Gandhi in his fight for India's independence.

They are increasingly willing to go to jail for their efforts to disrupt society. If they believe their actions will focus attention on their goals, believing the public in time will accept their views as correct.

And there are tentative indications the protesters may find important allies in the black community, which has been cool to the antiwar movement, when and if they turn their attention to domestic bread and butter issues.

These conclusions are based on the findings of 10 reporters for United Press International who either covered the recent, 18-day stretch of antiwar activities in the nation's capital or who otherwise follow the scope and direction of the antiwar movement.

Because the movement is so fragmented, and because its leaders are unsure themselves of future strategy, the appraisals of the UPI reporters necessarily are highly subjective.

But they represent their best estimates based on what they saw and heard during the protesters' attempts to "close down the government" and then to dramatize their cause through mass demonstrations at the justice department and the U.S. Capitol.

Rennie Davis, one of the Chicago Seven who was arrested during the protest on charges of interfering with the civil rights of citizens and federal employees, said afterward that "if Richard Nixon thinks this week was hot, wait until next time. This was only a warmup."

Attorney General John N. Mitchell, speaking later before the California Peace Officers Association in San Francisco, made clear that any massive new protests in Washington would be met by the same policy that resulted in 12,000 arrests the first week in May.

The UPI reporters are convinced there will be a new confrontation, perhaps in early July. Possible target is Independence Day, David Anderson, who along with Carol Ross and Drew Von Bergen was in the thick of UPI's protest coverage, put it this way:

"People on the streets—the GI's of the movement—told me over and over again, even before Davis' statement, that they expected either to stay (in Washington) or to come back again—and that there is enthusiasm for the notion of mass civil disobedience."

Another UPI team member, Donald Lambro, quoted one protester as saying: "We're not going to stop until this whole stinking, rotten system is overhauled." Lambro considered this typical of many of the demonstrators and added: "Millant dissent will not end with U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam."

Gene Carlson, who talked to protesters at the jail compound hastily set up on a football practice field near Kennedy Stadium, said they "are asking the government to commit suicide and since the instinct for self-preservation is as strong in government as in most humans, they are asking the impossible."

Carlson foresaw more mass arrests in any new demonstrations and predicted the protesters would react by "trying to flood the halls and freeze the courts with sheer numbers. Arrest records don't mean too much if you believe your name already is on a government dossier."

The UPI reporters had different reactions to some aspects of the protest, including where the peace movement generally is headed. But there was remarkable agreement on these points:

A surprising number of people — particularly young people — are militantly opposed to Vietnam and some things that are going on in this country. They apparently are willing to engage in civil disobedience to stop it, even if it means going to jail. Civil disobedience is not a synonym for violence with these protesters. While they tried to block the entrances of Selective Service and Justice, they went willingly, even cheerfully to jail when police moved in to break it up.

The protesters are convinced an end to the war is necessary for a successful attack on critical domestic problems. But the UPI reporters were divided over whether the movement could whip up the same opposition to racial and economic injustice that it has to the war.

News photos of young whites being held behind wire fences after the mass arrests of May 3 had a powerful effect on Negroes living in Washington, who have their own anxieties over rumors of black detention camps. No one foresaw any fullfledged alliance any time soon, however.

The Vietnam Veterans Against the War had the biggest public impact. This was due partly to the fact that they were new on the protest scene and partly, as Miss Ross said, to the fact that "people feel the guys who do the fighting have the right, more than anyone else, to bitch about the war."

Judy Frie, who helped cover the effort to close the twin-14th Street bridges and who was taken into temporary custody when Dr. Benjamin Spock and fellow demonstrators were routed, summed up the protesters attitude toward Vietnam this way:

"The more militant dissenters will never be satisfied as long as there is a single American military adviser in Vietnam. Nor will they accept American military support of the Saigon regime. They want out. Not by November, 1972, but right now."

Like others on the UPI team, Miss Frie sensed "a shift in emphasis away from criticism of the Vietnam War toward a more concerted attack on the system itself." She also saw protest as a minus for any administration because "protest happens when people think something is wrong."

Frank Bullard, a black reporter and a Vietnam veteran, was deeply apprehensive about the future. He said "the movement, the new left or whatever title one bestows on radical dissenters, are going to become the underground resistance in this country."

Bullard said many young whites have given up earlier hopes of changing the system peacefully with the result that "each step of demonstrations and its denouements ... It could well be that the next demonstration could become armed confrontation."

Edward Shields, who has helped cover the movement since he came to Washington from Chicago two years ago, shared this apprehension: "He said based on his experiences, I can only guess that future demonstrations are going to see more and more civil disobedience and, I'm afraid, a tendency toward more and more violence."

Edward Shields, recently back from UPI's Moscow bureau after a long stint overseas, foresaw the movement gradually disintegrating unless the diverse groups involved can agree on common goals after Vietnam.

Howard Fields, who has not agreed on what happens then. Meanwhile, he said, it is trying to use as its base "a young, white middle class neither educated nor interested in revolutionary dialectics; moved by emotion; instinctively — I think — distrustful of their own homegrown demagogues."

"If this view is correct, the anti-Vietnam veterans are probably the most effective cadre of future leadership and seem to have the people, like John Kerry, with an eye on congress."

Arnold B. Sawislak, a long-time movement watcher, also found the veterans different.

Noting that they are issue-oriented, he said, "They may turn into a vocal, lobby, especially behind Kerry, the only charismatic figure who showed up this year." But Sawislak thought they would be a special interest group, not a major force in turning society around.

Low-cost housing gets early Okay

JEROME — The Jerome City Council, meeting in special session Friday, approved a preliminary plat of a low-cost housing development submitted by a development firm during the regular council meeting last week.

The subdivision, which includes about 10 acres, will be located south of East Avenue I and west of Davis Street and include 45 sites with homes to be in the $17,000 to $18,000 bracket. FHA is participating in the project and plans are to construct one or two model homes with the rest to be sold after applications are approved. The development will be known as the Kerley Subdivision.

The Nampa company has been in operation since the first of the year and has been looking at property in small towns throughout Idaho. The American-Pacific Company has already developed plans for subdivisions at Burley, Payette and Rupert, and hopes to re-submit a plat to Gooding, which had indicated at an earlier meeting that the original site chosen by American-Pacific was not suitable, and had asked the firm to relocate in another part of town.

Cleans fumes

NEW POLLUTION CONTROL equipment is planned for the Burley Ore-Ida Foods, Inc. The equipment is scheduled to be completed this summer so it can be used for the next processing season. It involves a natural gas incinerator.

Firm to clean plant wastes

BURLEY — This summer Ore-Ida Foods, Inc. plans to install a "controlled atmosphere" incinerator at its Burley factory prior to fall startup. The incinerator is fired with natural gas to promote combustion and designed to completely consume about a thousand pounds of combustible factory waste materials per hour. While consuming materials that were formerly destroyed by open burning methods, the unit can be controlled to avoid release of smoke, odor and ash. Material is loaded into a ram feed chamber which automatically charges the incinerator. The unit is manufactured by Wasteco Inc. of Tualatin, Ore., and the installation is valued at about $35,000. The incinerator unit is of a new design and will be some of the first in the country, according to Ore-Ida. They will put Ore-Ida in the position of being one of the first industries in Idaho to comply with current state and federal open burning regulations, a firm statement said. Ore-Ida has also installed a new "water scrubber" system on the main fryer smokestacks at the Burley factory. This unit has been developed to remove the cooking-oil particles that have been emitted into the atmosphere from the french friers. This same smokestack "water scrubber" system has also been scheduled for installation at all other Ore-Ida factories.

Richfield schools hike cost

RICHFIELD — No protests were made to the Richfield school district 318 proposed budget of $158,171.00 when trustees met this week for the public hearing. Only one interested person met with the board. Supt. Neil Andresson stated the board members decided to reduce the budget for secondary teacher's salaries by $6700.00. This change would be allowed by not hiring a music instructor. It was decided the district might not have the surplus funds for the teacher's salary, as is the case this year. However, the full budget amount of $158,171.00 was retained. This calls for an increase of $12,302.00 over the 1970-71 budget.

Gooding's seniors to graduate today

GOODING — Helen Wilson of the Northwest Nazarene College, Nampa, will be the main speaker at the Gooding High School graduation exercises today at 8 p.m. in the Frahm Junior High School gym. Miss Wilson is professor of English and journalism at NNC. Before teaching she served as Dean of Women for 18 years. Her name appears in "Who's Who Among American Women," and the "Dictionary of International Biography." Eighty-five seniors will graduate. Class officers for the 1971 graduating class are Mark Toone, president; Don Braage, vice president; Peggy Schubert, secretary, and Cindi LaCroix, treasurer. Class valedictorian is Cheri Scanlon and salutatorian honors are shared by Cindi LaCroix and Karen Johnson. Diplomats will be presented by David Boring, Claude Scanlon, Rodney Glauner, all school board trustees who have seniors graduating.

Academy seeks TF student

TWIN FALLS — George W. Merkle Jr., has been offered an appointment to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis for the entering class of 1971, according to an announcement from Congressman Orval Hansen. Merkle, a senior with this year's graduating class at the Twin Falls High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Merkle, Rt. 1, Twin Falls, and was nominated by Hansen for the academy last December. David Mead, local representative for the Naval Academy, said Merkle had maintained a B plus average at the high school, where he had been active in German Club, the Honor Society and the Mathematics Club.

Snow helps fill Oakley reservoir

OAKLEY — A heavy snowfall Thursday and Friday dropped nearly an inch of moisture and several inches of heavy wet snow on the surrounding area, according to officials of the Oakley Canal Company. The snow contained .82 inches of water and broke tree limbs with its weight. The reservoir measured 60,288 acre-feet of water in storage last week, with a total capacity of 74,357 acre-feet. This year's storage is almost triple the 28,038 recorded at the same time in 1970. Inflow of 418 second feet this year is just double last year's inflow of 212 second feet.

GEORGE L. COLNER has been named a director of Idaho Power Co. Colner, a lifelong Hansen area resident, is a noted rancher and potato-bean grower. Colner was chosen for the post at the corporation's annual meeting at Boise.

XXX beer briefs ordered

JEROME — Fifth District Judge Theron Ward has ordered DeWayne Foust and the Jerome County Commissioners to submit briefs concerning a lawsuit filed by Foust over the county's denial of Foust's application for a beer license for the Frontier Theater. Foust has refilled a petition to compel the county to show cause as to why the license had been denied. According to Mr. Ella McVey, county auditor and District Court clerk, the county has 30 days in which to submit a brief and then Foust has 10 days after that time to submit his brief. Then the county has another 10 days to submit its rebuttal brief. Foust is represented by Severt Swenson Jr. and the county commissioners are represented by Gene Fredericksen, county attorney.

New grants announced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, announced Saturday three Idaho school districts have been awarded federal impact aid funds by the Office of Health, Education and Welfare. School districts include Camas County School District, Fairfield, $4,445; Class A School District, Malad City, $3,418; and Ririe Joint School District, Ririe, $4,258. Hansen said treasury checks will reach the schools within the next week or so.

Youths get FFA awards

JEROME — Mark Barnes of Jerome was given the Morgan Lindsay Award by Willard Weight, general manager of the Morgan Lindsay Co., during the annual Future Farmers of America awards night recently at Jeromé High School. Barnes also was named Star Farmer of the chapter and received a national Future Farmers of America (FFA) Foundation medal. Other awards included $25 to Rick Peterson, $10 to Nolan Peterson and $5 to Mike Schaefer. The awards are given for neatness and accuracy of record books and project program. The award was originally started in 1946 by G. R. Freeman as an expense-paid trip to the National convention in Kansas City, Mo. Because of complications in the Kansas trip this year, it was decided that cash awards would be presented. Mitch Barnes was selected as the year's most outstanding FFA member and was given an engraved Wyler watch through the courtesy of Netz Jewelry and the Wyler Watch Co. Making the presentation was Ralph McEntasrffer. This award is based on FFA leadership, dependability, competition, activities and project programs. He was selected by the executive committee of the local chapter. Joe McCaughey was named Star Chapter Greenhand and received the "A" scholarship pin for straight A's in agriculture. Honorary memberships into FFA were given to Jerry Diehl, high school principal, Eugene Nutsch, local farmer and poultryman and Harvey G. Holmes, owner of the L and H Mobile Butchers. The men were given the special memberships for their many efforts in aiding and promoting the efforts of the local organization. First-year Idaho pins went to David Callen, Mike Schaefer, Dale Reddick, Jay Ridgway, Tim Thomason and Rex Thomason. Second-year bars went to Tim Barnes, Randy Riddle, and Joe McCaughey; third year bars to Mitch Barnes, Kenneth Downing; fourth year bars to Jeff Olshenhen. Greenhand pins went to Daryl Beam, Rod Childers, Steven Culver, Charles Cox, Mark Drake, Gil Gulick, Dave Handy, Anthony Nutsch, Joe Ridgway, Barry Sullivan, Dale Reddick, Rex Thomason, and Tim Thomason. Chapter Farmer pins were given to Tim Barnes, David Callen, Tom McCord, Russ Martin, Ed Newberry, Andy Nutsch, Leon Peterson, Randy Riddle and Mark Strucek. Darin Posey presented the Foundation awards. These medals are made available by the National FFA Foundation for chapter activities. Checks of $100 are given on the state level and $250 checks on the national level. The medals were presented to Rick Thomason, crop farming; Mike Schaefer, livestock farming; Gary Walter, dairy farming; Dale Serr, public speaking; Joe McCaughey, star greenhand and Mark Barnes, Star chapter farmer. The local FFA Foundation that is just being formed presented Dale Serr with $15, Mitch Barnes, $9, and Russ Green, $3. The local foundation will welcome any donations in hopes that by another year they can set up a program for outstanding boys in different worthwhile efforts.

Wood River rites set for today

HAILEY — Graduation for 104 Wood River High School seniors is scheduled at 2 p.m. today in the high school gymnasium. The featured speaker will be Charles (Chick) Bilyeu, a drama instructor at Idaho State University, Pocatello, and Idaho state senator. Valedictorian for the Class of 1971 is Marilyn Stapleton, and the salutatorians are Ed Bowlden and Lois Toner. All will give addresses during the ceremonies. John K. Barton, principal of Wood River High School, will present the senior class graduation to William B. Mallory, a member of the board of trustees, who will present the diplomas.

Jerome readies Baccalaureate

JEROME — Baccalaureate services for Jeromé High School graduating seniors is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the high school gymnasium. Rev. John N. Garrabrandt, pastor of the Jeromé United Methodist Church, will preside and will offer the official welcome to the seniors. Rev. Stephen Hoffman, OSB, chaplain at St. Benedict's Hospital, will offer the invocation and office practice.

Carson Wong and Larry Standley, musical directors; will direct the high school varsity chorus in "Psalm 150." Rev. Lyle J. Higgins, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene, will present a Scripture reading, and Richard Everson, president of the Gooding Stake, LDS Church, will offer a prayer. The high school band also will join the event, with a musical selection.

869 dogs readied for show

By MARJORIE LIERMAN Times-News Writer
FILED — The dog show superintendent once had expected 600 dogs to be entered in this year's all breed dog show to be held Tuesday in the merchants building at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds. Instead, when the entries closed there were 869 dogs entered, almost 300 more than last year, making it the largest dog show ever to be held here. Judging will begin at 8 a.m. and continue until 8 p.m. Spectators are welcome to watch the judging and look over the dogs free of charge, according to H.H. Heard, show chairman. Several changes in judges have been made, according to Heard. O.C. Harriman will judge the Dalmatians in place of Rutledge Gilliland; R.A. Cross will judge the Irish Setters, Rough Collies and Miniature Schnauzers in place of Lee E. Murray, and Cross also will judge Bernese Mountain dogs, German Shepherd dogs and St. Bernards in place of Gilliland.

Man joins Park ceremony Jerome draws Governor bank firm Deadline set for 4-H trip

JEROME — Michael Sullivan, manager of the Jerome branch of the Bank of Idaho, has announced that Michael A. Buhler has joined the local office as pro-assistant cashier.

Buhler will be handling installment loans, Sullivan said. He is a former manager of a consumer finance office in Boise. Buhler is a native of Rushville, Ind., and attended Ball State college at Muncie. He is a veteran of the U.S. Fair Force. Buhler is married to the former Mary Jane Turner, Boise. They have one child.

Bug control

BERKELEY, Calif (UPI) — The University of California's International Center for Biological Control is being given a $262,000 Ford Foundation grant to help support training and research in "integrated control" of insect pests — an alternative to exclusive reliance upon pesticides.

The grant will make it possible for the center to train foreign students and practicing entomologists in techniques that "by maintaining pest populations below the level where they can cause significant damage" will avoid the long-run dangers of relying on poisons alone.

Driver ed class set

KING HILL — A limited-enrollment driver-education class, limited to 32 students, will be conducted this fall.

Limited state funding will force limitation of the class, which formerly allowed enrollment of up to 50 students in two sessions.

The oldest 32 students enrolled for the class will be given the training, school officials said. They must obtain a learner's permit by Oct. 1, 1971.

dancers from Fort Hall have been invited to perform during the rodeo.

A parade will kick off the celebration proper on June 19, beginning at 11 a.m. At least six covered "prairie" schooners will be featured, along with floats, bands, antique cars and mounted posses.

Frank Clark, a Glens Ferry historian, will present an historical pageant on Saturday, including the presentation of an old-time covered wagon which will be put on display in the city park. A free beef barbecue at 5 p.m. will precede an evening of square dancing.

A second rodeo performance is scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday.

The new park is already gaining wide attention, according to park manager Jerry Hoyer, who said more than 8,500 people have visited the area. At least 1,100 have come from other states, according to the guest register, Hoyer said.

Hoyer added that he has 190 requests for trailer facilities and 58 campsites. Reservation requests during the dedication will be handled on a "first come, first served" basis, Hoyer said.

Purdue University economists feel parents must see that children learn to manage money.

BURLEY — Members of 4-H clubs in Cassia County have until 5 p.m. Monday to get their applications to the Cassia County extension office if they plan to attend the 4-H Club Congress June 13-19 at the University of Idaho, Moscow.

J. Wayne Cole, Cassia County extension agent, said any 4-H Club member is eligible for application to attend the club congress if the youth was 14 years of age by Jan. 1, 1971, and has been a 4-H Club member for three years prior to the congress.

Scholarships provided for 4-H Club members, pay for their tuition, room and board. All the 4-H Club members must provide transportation to and from the congress.

The 4-H Club members will be escorted and chaperoned by a 4-H Club leader from the county.

Girl honored as homemaker

HAGERMAN — Debbie Larson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Larson, has received the Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow award, according to Mrs. Carolyn Lankford, home economics instructor.

Burley athletes win 'inspirational' awards

BURLEY — Burley High School athletes received "Inspirational Awards" for the first time from the Bobcat Booster Club during the annual awards banquet at the Burley Elks Lodge.

One athlete from each sport was selected for the "Inspirational" trophies for their dedication to the sport. Recipients included Richard Rankklev, football; Cory Kidd, basketball; Royce Otte, baseball; Robert Jackson, track; William Howard, cross-country; Ross Jones, wrestling; Jeff Bunn, tennis; Lynn Burton, golf; and Debbie Hale, girls' track.

Robert Hilliard, president of the Booster Club, welcomed the students and their parents to the ceremonies. Robert Saxvik served as master of ceremonies. In other activities, Robert (Dode) Mal, treasurer, and Ransom Brown, secretary, reported on club activities, and Coach Golden Wood offered the invocation.

Edward Cavanaugh, head football coach at Idaho State University, Pocatello, spoke as featured speaker. He described football as a "game of abandon." A player becomes a part of the team "by throwing himself complete into the game for the team," he said.

"Asking students to apply themselves to whatever they are doing, Cavanaugh said "There is a lot of wishful thinking today, but the only way you will get anything out of life is to apply yourself, make sacrifices and work hard."

He warned the audience that a move is underway in the nation to do away with athletics. "It is already underway in the East and Midwest and is slowly moving into our area," he said. Some colleges are cutting back on athletic programs due to financial reasons, he said. "By doing this they are creating more problems. College athletics is expensive, but we can't destroy a part of the backbone of our nation. We need people like you to support athletics and see that it is not eliminated," Cavanaugh said.

The speaker charged parents and church officials with failing to instill a sense of discipline in young people, saying that school sports programs often offer the only source of discipline.

"Few get discipline at home and the church is having its problems, so all that is left is athletics," he declared.

Receiving baseball awards were Kevin Allred, Duane Adams, Jerry Anderson, Curtis Crane, Bruce Mitchell, Fred Hilliard, Lynn Davids, John Miller, Ted Boddy, Kent Sager, McEvert (Doc) Keen, Jack Johnson, Royce Otte, Tom Fliger, Steve Simcoe, Wayne Fonton, Mike Simcoe, Jeff Walker, Carey Perkins, Larry Twakel, and Steve Green.

Howard Allred, Corey Kidd, Paul Mathews, Lynn Davids, Micky Edlesson, Steve Woolstenhulme, Niel Ritchie and Leon Clegg. Managers were Cory Gee, Shelly Shelstead and Tom Rich.

Those receiving wrestling letters and certificates were Duane Adams, Rob Sorenson, Garth Beck, Mike Sandman, Earl Dayley, Richard Hunter, Lee Wickel, Ross Jones, Louis Anderson, Chuck Larsen, Kevin Ramsey, Dorian Bench, Milton Hatt and Merlo Hillman. Managers were Neal Holbrook and Cory Gee.

Tennis awards went to Dick Rankklev, Janice Wood, Cindy Sagers, Ed Lou King, Brent Bunn, Rob Sorenson, Howard Allred, Jeff Bunn, Nicholee Carrell, Brent Mendenhall and Kim Green.

Golf letters and certificates were presented to Ken Nelwert, Lynn Burton, Milo Hatt, Doug Nicholes and Roger Holmes.

Those earning girls track letters and certificates were Roe Thurston, Laura Blanch, Teresa Boddy, Kayla Anderson, Paula Elmer, Beth Ferlic, Laura Gabettas, Lorna Corrine, Michele Elquist, Debbie Hale, Gaylia Hodge, Khylin Jones, Katherine Knight, Elda Koyle, Shanna Koyle, Peggy Larson, Anita McBride, June Mortenson, Terri Nielson, Pam Shelby, Melodi Walker and Diane Rich.

Presenting the awards were Bob Matthews, Golden Wood, Ivan Davis, Chris Cape, Vic Jackman and Mrs. Ludene Baker, all coaches of the various athlete teams. Coach Rulon Budge was also in attendance and received a standing ovation for his 23 years of service as a coach.

FLAMELESS WATER HEATING helps earn your lowest electric rate

Under Idaho Power's low, step-down rate schedule all residential customers are treated alike. Your electric use determines your rate. For most families the electric water heater is the key to a lower average rate. The Company's average domestic rate is a real bargain and substantially below the national average.

Your flameless electric water heater is fast, clean, quiet, dependable and free of care. It burns no oxygen, needs no chimney, so you can put it anywhere. One of the many ways electricity serves you best, it has no match for efficiency. It uses the cleanest form of energy available and is the best bargain in your family budget.

IN THE BEGINNING!!!!

Interstate Amusement Inc. was formed on May 1st, 1967 with the sole desire in mind of Buying two (2) Drive-In theaters in the town of Twin Falls, Idaho — in name they were called The Motor-Vu and the Grand-Vu Drive-Ins Twin Falls. We knew at the time that it would take one "heck" of a lot of money and also, we would have to put a lot more money back into them, so that we could "boast" of operating the "Best" Theatres in the Valley! Also we wanted to give the people the very best available in motion picture viewing!! So, On December 17, 1969 we built Cinema #1 because we could see a great need for a "Good" modern up-to-date family indoor theatre: N-O-W. Once again, we have put our money where our mouth and heart is... in Magic Valley. We have great confidence and pride in the people and the Valley... and hope that the New addition of Cinema #2 will give them just a little more Enjoyment of Life.

Probably the most commonly planted shrub of all is the Forsythia...

This good-natured shrub does have some quirks and one of them is its failure to flower in some years...

Often you'll see blossoms on branches closer to the ground, whereas those higher up are lacking blossoms...

If you're impatient and want a quick change, take the clippers and cut the entire shrub back to the ground now...

If you're going to plant Forsythia, remember there are upright and spreading ('weeping') types...

Mind Your Money

By PETER WEAVER

In these inflationary times, consumers are often sternly warned off convenience foods...

Assistant Editor Martha Williams, who feeds a family of five, wondered whether there weren't some smart compromises between cost and convenience...

Lets' look first at the convenience foods which actually cost less than those prepared at home from scratch...

The secret of saving money in processed 'vegetables' is avoidance of those with extras like 'boll-in-bag' convenience or those with sauces or butter added...

With entrées, canned and packaged spaghetti are money savers. So are frozen breaded shrimp, canned beef stew and canned chicken chow mein.

Some convenience foods are almost too convenient and, therefore, needlessly expensive. Pizza mix is a good example...

National brands of brown-and-serve or ready-to-heat rolls cost 67 cents for 12 ounces.

PEONY BLIGHT CONTROL: If your peonies sent out buds last year, only to have them turn brown and abort, it means peony blight, a trouble that's bound to come back again every year...

TUBEROUS BEGONIAS: One of the greatest assets of the tuberous begonia is its ability to give a brilliant display of color for three or four months...

RACOONS AND CORN AGAIN: A reader writes: 'We've tried all your readers' hints on felling racoons in the corn patch, but they didn't work...

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D.C. of Twin Falls: 'We have a maple tree in our yard and it is impossible for us to grow any grass underneath. We've topdressed the entire area, fertilized it well, put down fresh top soil, rolled it, leveled, and put down sod, mostly fescue in the shaded area and a mixture in the sunny area...

NEW YORK (UPI)—If it took around 30 years to slash the six-day work week to five days, will it take another 30 years to cut the five to four?

Some companies with the four-day work week find it means less absenteeism, less tardiness and less turnover, but also that some employees are too pooped to work at top efficiency after a long, action-packed weekend.

Some may say they need it after the consecutive tricks of, say, 8 a.m. - 6:30 p.m. work days, but those already on the routine generally maintain they would never change back to the 'old' system.

Dedication ready for 3-Island Park

GLENN'S FERRY (UPI) — Dedication ceremonies are scheduled for June 18-19 for the Three Island Crossing on the Snake River near Glenn's Ferry, Idaho's newest state park.

Program set

JEROME — A musical program entitled "We've only just begun" will be presented at the Jerome Church of the Nazarene at 7 p.m. Sunday. The performance, to be given by a group of 30 teenagers from Boise First Church of the Nazarene, will be of interest to all youths, according to Rev. Lyle Higgins, pastor.

scheduled for 3 p.m. June 19, with Gov. Cecil D. Andrus and Dr. Merle Wells, director, Idaho State Historical Society, expected to attend.

Park Manager Jerry Hover said more than 8,500 people have visited the new facility, at least 1,100 of them from other states.

He said he had had 190 requests for trailer facilities and 58 for campsites, but said reservation requests for the dedication ceremonies would be handled on a "first come, first served" basis.

Activities include an antique show and sale, a performance by Buhl's Antique Festival Theater on June 17, an amateur rodeo, a parade, a historical pageant and a free beef barbecue.

Enforcing rules topic at meeting

TWIN FALLS — Enforcement of regulations on U. S. Forest Service lands including recreational fee program violations, closure order violations, occupancy trespass and mining trespass were discussed in a meeting of Sawtooth National Forest personnel Friday.

The meeting opened at 9 a.m. in the supervisor's office for district rangers, supervisory staff members, project staff members and other interested personnel.

Use of the new magistrate court system in Idaho was also explained by recreation staff officer, Robert Hoag.

TWIN FALLS — The Amalgamated Sugar Co. has installed two large steam scrubber stacks to clean air pollutants from the sugar beet dryer emissions, according to Arnold Croft, plant superintendent.

The installation is part of a $200,000 effort by Amalgamated Sugar to clean the air, Croft said.

The two stacks will take the fly ash out of the smoke emission. Enough pollutants will be taken out of the emissions to be 50 per cent below government requirements Croft said almost 100 per cent of the solid pollutants will be taken out of the dryer emissions. The units use water that is sprayed out of nozzles both with and against the smoke, Croft said. The spraying action takes all of the solid precipitates out of the smoke, he said.

Croft said cold water is piped to the scrubbers from other operations in the plant. After it is used to remove pollutants from the smoke, the water is filtered and put back through the plant's system.

The company's new systems are designed to keep the water in the plant so the plant won't release any into Rock Creek, polluting it, Croft said.

The plant will use the recycled water repeatedly, Croft said.

The project is part of a two year program by the company to clean the environment of air and water pollution, he said.

'Cop' and 'Con' work together

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—A "cop" and a "con" who used to be the policeman's chief antagonist are working together as a team on the side of the law.

The "cop," Capt. Ralph J. Wolfe, of the community relations department of the South Bend Police Department, and the "con," Jack Burbridge, a paroled bank robber, once experienced a mutual dislike for each other that nearly ended in Burbridge killing Wolfe.

"I couldn't stand that guy when I was walking a beat," said Wolfe. "He was an enforcer for organized crime and I knew it, but I couldn't prove it."

Burbridge agreed. "I nearly shot his head off several years ago," said the convict. "I heard Wolfe was going to accuse me of robbing a bank in town. I was feeling high on drugs. If he came at me I was going to shoot his head off."

Fortunately for both men, friends of the officer intervened and prevented him from making the confrontation.

Burbridge eventually wound up with two convictions on bank robbery charges. The victimized banks were in Evansville and Albuquerque, N.M., and it was while he was being returned to New Mexico that he changed, Burbridge said.

"I was sitting in the back seat of a car. I was chained. Indiana State Police Lt. Cmdr. Howard C. Lytton and a U.S. marshal were returning me to Albuquerque," said Burbridge.

"During that trip I heard Lytton telling the marshal how proud he was of his two children. He talked about bringing them up in a Christian manner."

"Well, I have two children, too. I began reviewing my life. I realized what a mess I had made of it. My wife decided to give up on me after six or seven years. She couldn't be blamed. I was on my way to prison and all I left her with was two children and the problems of raising them," Burbridge said.

"I got down on my knees and prayed for help. I asked God to forgive me. I wanted another chance to be a good father and husband," he said.

Burbridge won parole last January after serving three-and-a-half years in the penitentiary at Terre Haute and Wolfe thinks the transformation is complete.

"I'd stake my job on it. He'll never go bad again," said Wolfe, a 16-year veteran of the police force.

"I heard about his work in Terre Haute," Wolfe said. "I wasn't sure it was all believable but I was willing to take a chance with him."

Wolfe discussed creation of the team now known as "the cop and the con" with Gene Norris, director of Region 1 of the Indiana Criminal Justice Agency, which provided a $4,750 grant to the police department. The department later applied the money to Wolfe's program. Norris approved, so the idea was to materialize.

"At first, I couldn't believe he was being paroled that early," Wolfe said. "But it was true. I had a program and an ex-convict on my hands."

Wolfe admits he was unsure of Burbridge in the beginning.

"It wasn't anything he did or didn't do. I just kept remembering the cop-hating Burbridge I knew from the streets of South Bend."

Shoshone scholarships listed

SHOSHONE — Scholarships awarded to Shoshone high school graduating seniors are announced by Supt. Kenneth Cothers.

Dorothy Hubbs received a $1,500 scholarship from Boise State College for an educational opportunity grant under the work-study program; Frank Garrett, $375, leadership scholarship to Ricks College; Stacie Churchman, $850 to University of Idaho from the Union Pacific and Sears Roebuck scholarship funds.

Gary Burkett, $350 to University of Idaho from the Idaho Alumni Association scholarship; Lisa Berriochoa, Jim Pagoga and Donald Price, $180 awards from Idaho State University. Price also received $400, one of 13 scholarships awarded by the Grange Insurance Association, Seattle.

Patricia Sears received $1,000 per year for four years to the University of Idaho from the Idaho Nuclear Corp. Jack Soloaga received a $300 football scholarship to Idaho State University, and John Urrutia received $340 from ISU as a freshman honorary scholarship.

The graduates were addressed by Lt. Gov. Jack M. Murphy, former Shoshone resident, who urged them "Don't join a job, but be a leader of better things."

Diplomas were presented by Elmer I. Terry, school board chairman, to Lisa Berriochoa, Gary Burkett, Ann Casperson, May Jackson Chalfield, Marshal Chatterton, Stacie Churchman, Russ Farnworth, Susan Flavel, Frank Garrett, Ellis Gooch, Tom Haddock, Rick Halsey, Dorothy Hubbs, Melvin Huyser, Randy Johnson, Del Low, Keith Mabbutt, Deb Senften Onelda, Jim Pagoga, Dan Parkhurst, Don Price, Mark Richcreek, Dave Ritter, Patricia Saras, Jack Soloaga, Myrna Spencer, Brian Simpson, Denise Stutzman, George Swanner, Jim Thorpe, Teresa Sorensen Trenkle and John Urrutia.

Lisa Berriochoa gave the salutatorian's speech and Patricia Saras the valedictory speech. Jim Pagoga played a piano selection and Don Price played a trumpet solo. Rev. James Holt, Baptist minister, gave the invocation and benediction.

Carnegie Hall ending 10th season

NEW YORK (UPI)—Carnegie Hall Corp. is nearing the end of its 10th season of competition with Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts and it is busier and more successful financially than at any time since its opening 80 years ago this month.

"They said it couldn't be done," Julius Bloom, executive director of the corporation which operates the concert hall on a non-profit basis, observed wryly. "I think the fact that the corporation has sponsored its own programs rather than just renting auditorium space has made possible the survival of the hall."

Bloom, an exuberant, persistent man who is bursting with plans for the future, suggested creative programming to the corporation's board during its first season, 1960-61, and found the idea did not have unanimous support. However, Bloom got his way and success soon convinced recalcitrant board members that he was on the right path.

Eight years ago Bloom established an annual International Festival of Visiting Orchestras which has brought 44 of the world's best symphonic organizations to Carnegie Hall. The current season has featured the Los Angeles, Atlanta, New Jersey and Melbourne, Australia, symphonies for the first time. The Boston, Pittsburgh and Cleveland orchestras have their own annual series at Carnegie.

"The name 'Carnegie Hall' means so much, stands for so much, and yet we came so near to losing it," said Bloom, referring to the crisis of 1959 when Carnegie's chief tenant, the New York Philharmonic, announced it would leave the financially ailing hall and move to Lincoln Center then under construction.

The really interests which owned Carnegie decided to tear down the acoustically superb but unprofitable hall and replace it with an office skyscraper. Violinist Isaac Stern mounted a successful campaign to obtain legislation allowing the city to take over the hall as a cultural monument.

The city bought Carnegie Hall for $5 million—Bloom calls it "a ridiculously small amount in retrospect"—and entrusted its operation to the newly formed, quasi-public Carnegie Hall Corp., which leases the property.

Judicial ethics may be revised

CHICAGO (UPI)—A select American Bar Association committee of leading judges, lawyers and legal scholars today issued their proposed draft of a revision of the 47-year-old Canons of Judicial Ethics.

The proposed revisions would provide that a judge's judicial duties have priority over any other activity, that he be faithful to the law, unswayed by partisan interests, public clamor or fear of criticism and that he report publicly any compensation received from outside sources.

Judges would be prohibited from practicing law, serving as arbitrator and engaging in extra-judicial activities which might conflict with his judicial duties or involve the court in public controversy.

The committee, headed by Roger J. Traynor, former chief justice of the California Supreme Court and now visiting professor of law at several schools, has been working on the new canons since September, 1969.

It used as its basis the present canons which were drafted by an ABA committee headed by William Howard Taft, then chief justice of the Supreme Court, and formally adopted in 1924.

Other articles proposed in the draft say that judges must dispose promptly of judicial business and refrain from extra-judicial statements about proceedings before him, that judges must refrain from business dealings which reflect adversely on his impartiality and integrity or interfere with his judicial responsibilities and that judges must disqualify themselves from any proceedings if he or any member of his household was an interest, however small, in the controversy.

Twin Falls repeats as state champion

Miller sets pole vault mark as Bruins score in all but one event

BOISE — Scoring 16 of the 17 events and getting a one-two half-mile finish from Jack Cooper and Gary Slovers, the Twin Falls Bruins won their second straight state A-1 track title Saturday.

In nearly a replay of the Southern Idaho Conference championship, Twin Falls led it on the 10-point half-mile, pulling from a light 41-40 edge over Borah into an unsurmountable 51-40 lead. The medley relay team grabbed a fourth and senior Mark Miller, who had a big sprint day, won the 220-yard to be picked up 10 more points in the next two events.

The Bruins wound up with 63 points while Borah had 46.

Highland was a distant third at 22.

Bill Miller of Twin Falls, after another of his cardiac arrest-type starts, showed the state pole vault record to 16 feet but couldn't quite get 15-6 Saturday.

Earlier, Moscow's Clint Hill, another of those usual "out of nowhere" sprinters that North Idaho sends down, upped the state broadjump mark to 23-1. The previous vaulting record was 14-1 and the old broadjump standard was 22-4.

Twin Falls took five of the six first places — Coach Jerry Kleinkopf expected, Highland defeating the Bruin medley for the lone reversal. Those were the only five firsts Magic Valley men took.

Burley broadjumper Bob

Jackson, the defending champion, couldn't get into the 22-plus-foot area and wound up in third place behind Hill and Bassett of Borah. His junior teammate Larry Bell, who just missed qualifying for the 100-yard dash Friday night, came up with a strong 220-yard effort to take second place.

Minico got his nine points from Steve Torix and Mike Wilcox. Torix ran into some problems in the weights but took third in both. He had another of those second-place duels with Twin Falls' Dennis Keegan but Keegan won this one with his career best of 52 feet, 1 inch.

The sprints looked like the jewels of the division during Friday night's preliminaries with Hill booming across in his heat in 9.8 and Harry Price of Caldwell, a junior, topping Miller in the other heat.

In the finals, Miller got off to one of his better starts and Hill left Price well behind in their place — the first time Miller has beaten the Caldwell man. Miller closed in the final few strides to within a foot of Hill, setting up prospects for a battling 220-yard dash. But Hill pulled a leg muscle in the century and was never a factor in the furlong.

In between, Miller took the Twin Falls quarter-mile baton in second place and legged it past Borah to win. The 880-yard relay team, getting the lead on Rocky Reece's third leg effort and holding it with Robert Warner's anchor, got the other Twin Falls first.

There was a major surprise in the hurdles where Borah junior John Wren nipped previously undefeated Joel Shaber of Idaho Falls in both events. Bruin junior Rick Spriggs, after two off weeks, got three points for Twin Falls in the low that loomed very large at the time. Earlier, Spriggs surprised by clearing a season best of 6-0 and taking fourth in the high jump.

In the weights, Boise left-hander Mike Girdner, a transfer from Arizona, won the discus at 161-6 1/2 and the shot at 53-4. Girdner, Wren and Hill were joined in the double winner circle by Idaho Falls' Byron Parker who took the mile and two-mile.

There was considerable consternation around the pole vault pit. Larrin Bailey of Nampa, who last week cleared 15 feet and a fraction inch, and Twin Falls' Pete Turner were unable to clear the qualifying mark of 12-6. Again Miller didn't vault until 14 feet — and promptly missed the first two tries. He finally cleared it — and won the event — on his third try and then set the record. He hit 15-6 on the way down, knocking the bar off with his chest.

Through much of the meet, Twin Falls was locked with Borah, the Lions coming up stronger than expected to win the high jump and get second in the pole vault and then adding four bonus points for Wren's upsets in the hurdles. Twin Falls stayed in the jam with a three-five finish from Stan Doten and Dave Sears in the two mile and a four-five finish by Bruce Cooper and Darrell Groves in the mile.

In the half-mile, which Twin Falls was hoping would be the power play, Cooper took the lead a few yards into the second lap and won going away — with that big smile again on his face as the tape loomed. Slovers, a sophomore, turned in a 1:50.4 in beating Mountain Home's Day and Highland's Saul in the final 220 sprint.

Class A-1 team scoring: Twin Falls 63, Borah 46, Highland 22, Idaho Falls 20, Moscow 15, Boise 15, Lewiston 13, Meridian 9, Minico 9, Mountain Home 8, Caldwell 7, Burley 7, Coeur d'Alene 7, Alano 7, Rigby 6, Skyline 6, Bonanza 6, Capital 3, Sandpoint 3, Heppner 2, Pocatello 0.

Oregon, California men claim cycle wins; pros, Knievel take over today

Some of the top names in motorcycle racing riding all the big machine names will go on display at 1 p.m. Sunday in the professional end of the motocross races on the track on Falls Avenue east.

Despite muddy conditions and cold weather, the amateur division of the two-day program was completed Saturday with Oregon and California riders taking the top prizes.

Harry A. Taylor, Athena, Ore., won the 125 cc class with Tim Gaskill, Boise, second and Del Brown of Ogden third. In the 250 cc class, which featured 50 machines on the course at the same time, James Cook of Anaheim, Calif., took the victory with Jim Hoover, Upland, Calif., and Carl Bergson, LaMesa, Calif., following him across. Robert E. Leach Jr., of Oregon, took the open classification with Rick D. Poulin, Selah, Wash., second and Jim Saitone, Petaluma, Calif., third.

With an eye on the $10,000 purse for Sunday, Cook announced his intention of turning professional Sunday morning.

Sunday's program will offer six races for spectators and the wind up will be Evel Knievel jumping 13 cars in another of his daredevil acts. Races Sunday will be divided into 250 cc and open classifications, each participating in three legs of the motocross.

Knievel's jump probably will be held until the conclusion of racing to allow as much drying time as possible to provide footing in approaching and leaving the ramps, which were installed Saturday afternoon.

The top names participating Sunday will be Sonny Deseco, Pennsylvania, representing Ghost Motorcycle sales; Gunter Lindstrom, team captain for Husqvarna Motorcycles of Sweden and six of his teammates who have been the world champions the past two years; Gary Bailey from Bultaco Motorcycles of Spain, and Don Mahana, a Yamaha racing engineer who will have two top riders on prototype machines which Yamaha hopes will prove durable enough to become widely used in this type of competition.

SLIPPING AND SLIDING, an unidentified cyclist fights to control his machine and leaves a rooster tail of mud in its wake during amateur racing Saturday. The pros take over Sunday at the course located on Falls Avenue east.

Parma nips Jerome for net crown

BOISE (UPI) — Dave Freisen and Sandy Finnell won the state class A singles championships Saturday at the Boise Racquet and Swim Club to pace Borah to the Idaho high school class A team title.

Freisen defeated Warren Burda, Boise, 6-1, 6-2, for the boy's crown and Miss Finnell topped Pocatello freshman, Barbara Propst, 6-3, 6-4 for the girls title.

In class B, Parma nipped Jerome by two points as it garnered one singles title and two doubles winners.

Tom Stone, Parma, defeated Brian Day, Bishop Kelly, 6-0, 6-3 in boys singles. In mixed doubles Flip Lundy and Carol Smyth of Parma topped Walker-Zaugg of Welser, 5-7, 6-3, 6-1.

Parma's girls doubles team of Barbara Hills and Elliot Piercy beat Debbie Strong and Sateo, Welser, 7-6, 6-3.

In boys Class A Doubles, Meridian's Harold Middleder and Bob Hunter edged Rod Leonard and Pat Delana, Boise, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2.

In mixed doubles in class A, Steve Vigilante and Christy Owens of Pocatello won 7-5, 6-4 decision from Dennis Gibbens and Lynda Moody, Capital.

Anno Welch, Wood River, had to go three sets to down Cheryl Frese, Jerome, for the girls B title 6-3, 1-6, 7-5.

Team scoring class A: Borah 31, Capital 30, Boise 27, Meridian 22, Pocatello 22, Lewiston 16, Skyline 11, Nampa 11, Blackfoot 9, Highland 7.

Class B team scoring: Parma 22, Jerome 20, Welser 17, Bishop Kelly 13, Payette 11, Wilder 7, Wood River 7.

Stewart grabs pole position

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) Jackie Stewart of Scotland retained pole position for Sunday's Formula one Monaco Grand Prix in his Tyrrell-Ford after rain slowed the final practice session Saturday.

RECORD'S ON ITS WAY at Twin Falls pole vaulter Billy Miller starts to settle back and ride the whip of his fiber glass pole. He cleared 15 feet for a new state record.

Lewiston, Kelly take golf honors

The Lewiston Bengals ended the two-year reign of Twin Falls in the state Class A high school golf tournament Friday while Bishop Kelly of Boise repeated in the class B division.

The tournament was divided Friday morning to two sites since snow prohibited play at Twin Falls municipal. The Class A men played at Buhl and Jerome hosted the class B affair.

Lewiston posted a 205 total to nip Highland by one stroke for A honors. Twin Falls was tied with Pocatello for third at 301, followed by Nampa at 304, Borah 305, Caldwell 310, Moscow, 316, Skyline 319, Minico 321, Capital 325, Boise 328, Kellough 330, Idaho Falls 332, Rigby 334, Blackfoot 334, Meridian 341, Mountain Home 353.

Ron Hodge of Borah took medalist honors with a one-over par 69 while Shann Wiloy of Lewiston and Jim Blandford and Jeff Thomsen was Twin Falls had 70s.

In addition to Wiloy, Lewiston scores included Ed Mitchell 73, Bill Rosholt 76 and Tom Roley 77.

In the B division, Dave Mollitor took the medal pin with a two-over 74 and was joined in Kelly's winning total by Tom Smith 80, Marly Hecker 83 and Kir, Barbo 84. The Knights had a 321.

Cycling is young man's game

By RUTH MILLER
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — At 31, Mel Steele, Charlotte, N. C., describes motocross racing as a "young man's sport."

Steele and his wife, Becky, are in Twin Falls where he competed Saturday in the amateur races at the Snake River Canyon jump site. Steele, an art director for a chain of department stores in North Carolina, participates in motocross "just for the fun of it."

He said the "best amateur motocross racers about between 17 and 22 years of age" and that some of the top racers are even as young as 14.

He is president of the Charlotte Motocross Association, a group of about 150 members. His group is dedicated to trying to promote off-road cycling.

Steele, who has been riding cycles for about two and a half years, raced Saturday on a 300 CZ, which weighs about 210 pounds and will accelerate to 60 miles per hour in about five seconds. Steele said maximum speed on his bike is about 70 miles per hour, but the "speed isn't the thing in motocross."

What counts, he said, is acceleration and maneuverability. A motocross track consists of natural terrain, with no improvements. Steele said motocross racing is the national sport in Belgium, but has just caught on in the United States in the past few years.

He feels he and his wife (she's a commercial artist, too, but works at home so she can take care of their two and a half year old son) are representative of motocross racers and serious cyclists around the nation. He said most are from the upper middle class and are in "no way associated with the greasers." Steele says he and his wife have been to about 10 or 15 big, international races, and have never seen any trouble at any of the tracks, except for one brief incident by about six "greasers," which was quickly stopped by the racers.

Suter, Gorrell, Daniels cop state titles; Post Falls wins A-2 crown

BOISE — Post Falls picked up three first places and used its big edge in depth Saturday to run off with the class A-2 section of the Idaho state track and field meet.

Post Falls, which qualified 18 men for the meet, won the short relays and got a first in the low from Tim Coles in pitting up 385 points while Snake River, showing some fine distance strength, finished second with 31. Jerome took third place at 24, Orofino had 22 and Filer scored 20 for fifth.

The big event of the division came in the two-mile where Snake River's (Terald Jones set a new state record of 9:40.8 to hand Handy Suter of Jerome one of his infrequent losses. Suter, who came back to win the mile, held the pace through most of the last half of the race but Jones had too big a kick at the end. Suter still set his best personal mark at 9:50.

Not surprisingly, Jim McGoldrick of Orofino broke his own record in the discus with a throw of 181 feet, 10 1/2 inches, and became a double champion by winning the shotput.

Filer and Jerome, which headed the Magic Valley hopefuls into the division, ran into too much strength. Jim Daniels won the high hurdles in 15-flat and a good battle with Chuck Cleveland of Emmett. But in the low hurdles, nearly a three-way dead heat, Coles got to the tape just in front of Daniels with Cleveland another fraction of a foot behind.

Filer's Brent Lierman, who was given a chance to win three titles in the sprints, ran into surprising strength that wasn't indicated in previous times. Lierman got off poorly in the 100-yard dash and had to pull the entire route to pull out third place. He was sixth with about 25 yards to go.

In the quarter, Lierman's finishing kick wasn't quite enough to overhaul Mark Peterson of Snake River, who won in 50.8 — just over a half second slower than Lierman's previous best. Carl Bartell of Shelley, who won the century, came back to claim the furlong with Lierman running third behind him and Vierbrock of Lakeland.

In Friday evening's field finals, Gooding junior Gary Gorrell came within an eyelash of getting a new state record but his trail foot nicked the bar off at 6-6 and he had to settle for an A-2 record of 6 feet, 4 inches. Gorrell didn't complete his mid-air turnover which would have taken the trail leg safely away from the bar.

He came back to claim third in the shotput with a throw just under 50 feet.

Suter, Gorrell and Daniels were the only Magic Valley men able to come up with victories but others turned in good performances. Buhl sophomore Pat Charlton claimed third place in the torrid two-mile with Jones and Suter and doubtless had his best time. Jimbo Hurst, another soph from Wood River, kept his late-arriving pole vault improving good and placed second with Dan Moldenhauer of Buhl taking third.

Class A-3 team scoring: Post Falls 38 1/2, Snake River 31, Jerome 24, Orofino 22, Filer 20, Lakeland 15, Shelley 13, Buhl 12, Wood River 11, Gooding 10, Payette 10, Valloua 8, Soda Springs 8, Marsh Valley 8, Emmett 7, Wadsworth 6, Madison 4, Bear Lake 4, Bishop Valley 3, Bonanza 3, Filer 3, American Falls 3, Salmon 3, Marion 3.

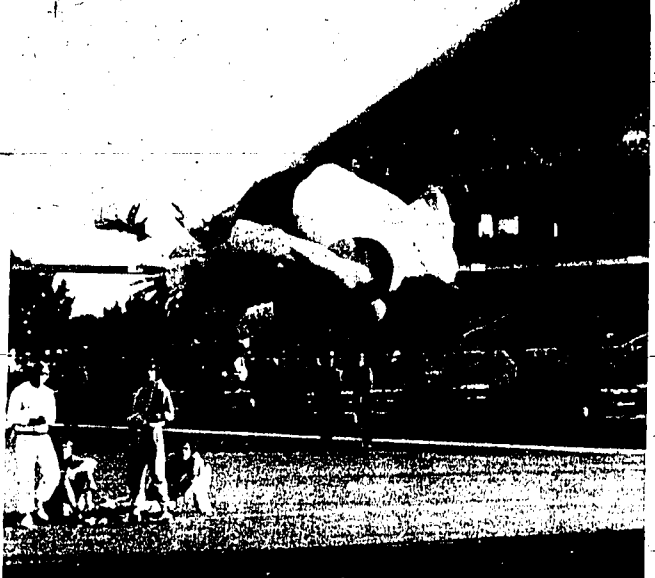

High jump — 1. Gary Correll, Gooding 4'4". (Class record, old mark 4'1 1/2 set by Aylar, Marsh Valley.)

2. Jim McGoldrick, Orofino 4'0". (Class record, old mark 3'10 set by Rock, Jerome.)

3. Jim Lierman, Filer 3'10". (Class record, old mark 3'10 set by Rocky Fletcher, Lakeland.)

4. Ron Vierbrock, Lakeland 3'10". (Class record, old mark 3'10 set by Rocky Fletcher, Lakeland.)

5. Tim Coles, Post Falls.

Two teams share honors for Blue Lakes Invitational meet

Tom Church and Lew Harper and Joe McCollum and Steve Beebe tied for aggregate honors in the annual Blue Lakes Country Club Invitational golf tournament Friday and Saturday.

However, the highlight of the affair was a hole-in-one by Jim Johnson who used a seven iron to sink his tee shot on the 17th green. In Thursday's practice round for the tournament, J. D. Claborn also scored an ace.

The tournament is based on a two-man team best ball.

Three teams were three shots behind the co-leaders, including Dr. Frank Carpenter and Rollie Severson; Gordon Edgar and Clyde Ralidy, and Tom Schafer and Johnston. Locked at 124 were Tom Kalange and Stan Oliver and Chuck Atkinson and Ken Hellyer while Claborn and Bart Brassey were all alone at 125.

In at 127 were Doug Borlase and Reed Peterson; Dr. Glen Hoss and Arnold Beebe and Jim Henry and Roy Roberts, while Fred Maltz and Lloyd Nelson, George Kneeland and Joe Blanco and Jack Threlkeld and Hob Bowen turned in 128s.

In Friday's play, Gordon Edgar and Ralidy and George Kneeland and Blanco shared the daily low prize with nine-under 50s. Claborn and Brassey, Church and Harper, McCollum and Beebe and Dr. Carpenter and Severson had 61s. In at 62 were Chuck Atkinson and Hellyer, Dr. Hoss and Beebe and A. K. Dodds and Rod McDonald. John and Al Rosholt, Schaffer and Johnston, Bill Koch and Bob Leonard and Kalange and Oliver had 63s.

Saturday's pace-setters, all with 59s, were McCollum and Beebe, Church and Harper and Borlase and Peterson. Schaffer and Johnston were alone at 60 while Kalange and Oliver, Egon Kroll and Bob Watson and Fred Maltz and Lloyd Nelson had 61s. Tied at 62 were Frank Ungar and Roy Jacobson and Dr. Carpenter and Severson.

Walker cup team finds wind tough

and posed problems for the players.

But one man unworried was John Farquhar of Amarillo, Tex., who said "the wind was no problem to me. It blows like this in Texas and I guess I'm pretty used to it."

The U.S. squad got down to serious preparations and played foursomes, where each player plays one ball with alternate shots, in the morning. After lunch the Americans toured in singles.

Veterans Bill Campbell, 47, of Huntington, West Va., and 55-year-old Bill Hyndman of Huntington Valley, Penn., paired up against youngsters Tom Kite, Austin, Tex., and James Simons, Butler, Penn.

Campbell, who first played at St. Andrews 21 years ago, one year before Kite and Simons were born, and Hyndman carded a 74.

Both squads will have to go elsewhere Sunday for practice. The old course closes on Sunday and most of the Americans said they would play at nearby Carowate where the British Amateur championship takes place the week after the Walker Cup.

UCLA takes third Pac-8 track title

SEATTLE (UPI) — UCLA's Wayne Collett ran the fastest 440 in the world this season Saturday as the Bruins roared from behind to wipe out a big Oregon lead and win their third straight Pacific-8 Conference track and field championship.

The Bruins piled up triple points in the pole vault, triple jump and high jump to finish with 128 points over Oregon's 117. Collett and John Smith revenged an earlier loss this season to USC's Edesel Garrison by placing 1-2 in the 440.

Collett had a 45.3 clocking and Smith finished at 45.6. Garrison was well back in third at 46.8.

Southern California was third in the meet with 102 points, followed by California, 77; Washington, 45; Stanford, 36, Oregon State, 29; and Washington State, 26.

Headwinds kept some times down in the sprints and heat hampered the distance races before 8,500 fans in Husky Stadium.

Oregon's Steve Prentiss won the mile in 4:01.5. But he had pressure from Stanford's Don Kardong before a strong final lap got him a repeat championship in the three-mile in 13:17.9.

UCLA gained heavily in the sprints despite wins by Willie Deckard of Southern California in the 100 and 200. Running into a wind, Deckard was timed in 9.7 for the shorter race and 20.9 for the 200.

UCLA came in second and sixth in the 100 and second, third and fifth in the 200.

Collett's 440 time set conference, stadium, and meet records.

The meet was extended an extra hour by the pole vault, won by Washington's Kirk Brydo in a grueling competition at 17-10, a meet record. He did not miss until 17-7.

Jack Ernst of Washington State was second and Francolas Tracanello of UCLA third, both at 37-0.

Brydo's vault also set records for the stadium, the University of Washington and for Citizens of Canada and the British Commonwealth. He is a resident of British Columbia.

The day's most dramatic win was by James Butts of UCLA in the triple jump. On his final leap he went 44-2 1/2 to beat Bob Reader of Oregon State by 4 inches. Reader had broken the Pac-8 record minutes earlier at 83-10 1/2. Butts' jump was wind-aided and was not recognized as a record.

TEN-POINT WINNER Handy Suter of Jerome grimaces as he hits the tape on the end of a victory in the class A-2 mile run Saturday at Boise. Suter placed second to Snake River record-setter Jones in the two-mile earlier.

Elk, deer seasons to be shorter

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Fish and Game Commission ruled after a three-day meeting Friday that elk and deer hunting seasons will be shorter than last year in some game management units this fall.

A total of 19 elk units will have shorter seasons this year, and three elk units will have longer seasons.

Robert L. Salter, acting director, said opening dates for upland game bird hunting seasons were established, but closing dates will be set at a special meeting in August when nesting and brood success has been determined.

Phoasant season begins Oct. 9 in northern Idaho, and Oct. 23 south of the Salmon River and in eastern Idaho.

The statewide season on forest grouse blue, spruce and ruffed species, and on sage grouse is Sept. 18. Morning dove and rabbit Cottontail and pygmy seasons open Sept. 1, while all Wild Morrlam's Turkey hunts open Sept. 25 for general hunting.

The commission endorsed federal legislation creating a Hells Canyon-Snake National River which would prevent the construction of additional dams and obliterate this type of river recreation.

The commission ruled bighorn sheep will be removed from the list of trophy big game species open for general hunting. This year the number of controlled hunt permits will increase from nine to 67, with only rams having three-quarters curl of the horns or more legal.

The East Fork of the Salmon, which had two permits on a controlled hunt last year, is closed this year.

Some 13 new units have been added to the list which has a summer closure on black bear hunting from June 1 — Sept. 3. These units are in the Salmon region which was open for year-round hunting for black bear up through last year. They will close May 31 and reopen Sept. 4.

Other changes in controlled hunts reduce the number of deer permits by 750 to 6,350; increase elk permits by 495 to 3,100; moose by three to 115; antelope to 2,080, increase by five; and reduce the number of goat permits available by 19 to 201.

Lewiston defeats Minico for title

BOISE (UPI) — Lewiston topped Minico 6-3 to win the first A-1 Invitational baseball tournament Saturday night.

Lewiston had edged district three runnerup Capital, 3-2, in a semi-final before downing the district four champs in the final. Minico had advanced to the final round with an 8-0 victory over Pocatello, the district five titlist.

In the consolation championship, Boise upset district three winner Borah, 8-0. Boise had finished third behind Borah in the regular season but received an at-large berth in the tournament.

In other games in the consolation round Saturday, Borah downed district winner Idaho Falls, 7-1, and Boise clipped Twin Falls, 1-0.

Dennis scores three firsts, 21 points but Homedale tops Wendell for A-3 state title

BOISE — Senior Kirk Dennis scored 21 points with three individual firsts and a third and sophomore teammate Al Stevenson joined him in the winner's circle but the Wendell Trojans bowed to the Homedale Trojans 37 1/2 to 32 in the state A-3 track and field championships Saturday.

Dennis, who scored 22 points last year in leading Wendell to the title, scored 43 points in two showings. He duplicated his effort of taking the 100 and 220-yard dashes and the low hurdles but was unable to clear 6-2 in the high jump and had to settle for third there.

Homedale, which topped Wendell last week in regionals, got the edge it needed from weight specialist Paul Pearson who set an A-3 mark of 163 feet in winning the discus and took the shotput at 52 feet.

Stevenson won the broad jump at 20 feet, 10 1/2 inches in the morning round and his anticipated duel with Camas County's Charlie Ashmead failed to come off because Ashmead, for the second week, had trouble hitting the board. Ashmead was running unpled until his final jump when he sailed 20 feet, 4 inches to take fifth — but even then he took off from well behind the board.

Kimberly's medley relay team of Rod Rudolph, Mike Erickson, Wes Hernalley and Kim Hibbert took a big lead on Rudolph's opening leg and never was threatened in taking that title in a season's best 3:46. Highland of Craigmont moved up to challenge Hibbert in the stretch but the Kimberly youngster opened up a kick and built most of the margin back before the tape came up.

In the low hurdles, sophomore Kip Dennis came close to seconding his older brother but Uda of Homedale was a little quicker in the sprint to the tapes.

Young John Hunter of Gooding State brought that school's name back into the distance picture by taking third in the mile at 4:41, his best so far. Hunter is only a freshman.

Class A-3 scoring: Homedale 77 1/2, Wendell 72, Rimrock 18, Prairie 14, Highland 13, Camas 10, Parma 10, Lapwai 10, Glenn Ferry 8, Wilder 8, Challis 7, Kendrick 4, Kimbrell 4, Malba 4, Alder 4, Notus 4, Kamiah 4, Troy 3, McCall 4, Nampa 3, Challis 3, Plummer 3, Pollock 3, New Plymouth 3, Shoshone 3, Hanes 3, Clark County 3, Gooding State 3, Greenleaf 3, HEM 3, Meadow Valley 3, Murtaugh 3, Priest River 3, Teton 3, Elk River 3, Genesee 3, Kuna 3, Leadore 3, and Richfield 1.

Who are your favorite Cowboy stars?

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News Sports Editor

In the past 25 years — or the past war years — the Magic Valley Cowboys have built up a tremendous history of excellence in individuals, gate attendance, off-field high jinx and other things that have managed — at times by dint and din — to keep professional baseball in Magic Valley.

The 25 years haven't been consecutive, of course, the franchise being dormant for lack of money in 1959-60 and lack of working agreement in 65-66. It has gone from "the best class Caliber" league to Class A and now to rookie league.

It hasn't won many championships and, in fact probably has organized baseball's record for most times missed first place by one-half game. But throughout, there has been an individual or three on each team that has won the hearts or respect of Magic Valley fans.

For that reason, the Times-News, abetted by the former "Mr. Baseball," Joe Clements, and newcomer Kip Horburgh, who currently is Cowboy business manager, is offering to area fans a chance to pick a 25-year all-Cowboy team. Horburgh offers the added bonus of giving a free ticket to the July 1, 1971, game to any participant, providing he or she includes a self-addressed and stamped envelope.

The following ballot is a selected list — as best Mr. Clements and this writer can recall — to fan favorites and stars. Undoubtedly we missed some of your picks and we intentionally left many of the recent players off since they should still be fresh in your minds.

But running down through the ex-Cowboy greats — Mr. Clements provided a wealth of material with a huge box of records, pictures and record books — brings back hundreds of memories here and probably thousands out there.

We go back as a youngster to 1946 and remember two things. A centerfielder named George Leyer stealing something like 50 bases and a catcher named Bud Hialeit who we thought hit at least 100 homers but in actuality wound up with 29. In 1947, we best remember Jack Radtke, still a Twin Falls resident, who holds an astounding record that still stands for the league — most hits, 207, in a 130-game season.

Also in 1946, the record shows Magic Valley had a pitcher named Jim Russell who compiled a 20-7 record that included six shutouts and a no-hitter.

The season of 1948 was a great one. Joe Polich was a slick holding shortstop and Gil McDougald, then fresh from clubhouse and batboy for the old San Francisco Seals was showing off that drop-bat and hitting .340. Old Svend Jensen was here — he was old even then — for the start of three years in which he hit .348, .207 and .332. Gus Triandos was behind the plate hitting .323 and 18 homers and Charlie Metro, now manager of Kansas City, was hitting .351 as a utility infielder.

In 1949 came the Santa Clara College outfield twins, Bill Renna and Tom Kelley who hit .385 and .327, respectively, with Renna still credited by many as hitting the longest ball ever out of Jaycee Park. But that's another story. Lou (Joe called him "Vital") Vitus was at third hitting .338 and you have to remember that Gus Kelker, now Times-News managing editor, was taking a publicity picture of Lou sliding into second base the following year. The result was an ankle fracture that ended Vitus' career. Hal Danielson caught on that team and he hit two grand slam homers in one inning.

Ray Pospanska brought his "rifle arm" to third base in 1950 and Ivan Abramovitz was the top hurler at 22-6 and 3.14 ERA. Svend Jensen wound up his career here that year but went on to play for Idaho Falls, eventually setting records for most Pioneer league games (1,321), most at-bats (4,957), most runs, (1,008), most hits (1,478) and most total bases (2,247).

Woodie Hied appeared in 1951 and hit only .259. But he spent as much time in the majors as any ex-Cowboy. Jim Russell, hit in a higher league by arm troubles, came back to post a 22-0 record that year with 296 strikeouts.

A Cowboy first occurred in 1952 with outfielder Ted Toles becoming the first Negro to play here. Toles hit only .278 but had great speed. He used to race quarterhorses in the outfield for pre-game publicity. At first he was the master of crowd pleasing, Pete Peatron, who hit only .283 but was the run-away winner of the "most popular" Cowboy.

The only area man to make it big with the Cowboys was Bob Shaffer who came out of, of all baseball-unlikely places — Gannett to post a 17-8 record. The hitters returned in 1956 with first baseman Bob Pascal leading the league in hitting at .384 and runs-batted-in with 137. Catcher Sam Mauney hit .343 and John Buzhardt was 18-12 and Gene Dupree 18-6 on the mound. The Cowboys lost that year by one-half game.

The 1958 season was memorable for one big reason. Against Pocatello, 18-year-old Charlie Herzberger of Chicago went against Ed Rosenquist at mid-year in perhaps as fine a game as organized ball has ever seen. Those two battled through 16 1/2 innings. But with one out in the bottom of the 17th, after Fischer had singled, playing manager Dick Wilson slapped a wrongfield homer to win it. Wilson wound up hitting .372 that year.

After the 1959-60 sabbatical, probably the favorite team of all-time showed up. It had Bobby Sanders in centerfield and Bob, from Center, Ala., hit 40 homers including five in a Fourth of July day-night doubleheader. John Shockley was rookie of the year and hit .360 while playing first base. Richie Allen, now in the superstar class, was trying to make it as a second baseman. His glove wasn't great but Richie hit .317. At shortstop was truculent John Weighorn who made the greatest play over — so far as we're concerned in Jaycee Park. He went five or six steps onto the leftfield grass one night, flagged down a grounder and, while ON HIS KNEES threw the man out at first. The next day he wondered why his arm hurt. Herzberger came back that year, signed as a free agent, and became the bulpen mainstay and leader of the mounds corps. Jim Ponceroff was 15-9 and don't laugh of Bob Bubash, one of the best hitting pitchers around. But the thing remembered here about Bubash was his ability to get out of self-created jams. He had five (count 'em, five) one-two-three double plays to get out of bases-loaded no-out threats.

Adolfo Phillips, whose command of English was "juzzle," was hero that year and hit .182. But the next year he came back to hit .330 with 33 homers and stole 48 bases. With him was Hank Allen at first, leading the league in hitting at .346. Early in the year, Fred Walters joined the team and hit .343.

John Morris, now in the bigs, won his last five starts — the last one 1-0 on Bob Carmo's ninth-inning, two-out homer — to wind up at 11-7.

In 1963 came Jeff James with a 16-6 pitching record and two fine outfielders. In center was sparkplug Gene Kerns who hit .349 and in left was Alex Johnson, last year's American League batting champion, who hit .329 that season.

From that start, let your imagination ramble. If you don't like the candidates named, write-in your own.

TOP POINT-GETTER Kirk Dennis of Wendell accepts the second place A-3 state trophy after scoring 21 of the Trojans 32 points Saturday. Dennis won three events and placed third in another, the 21 points being one less than he scored last year.

Miss Palmer clings to tournament lead

BUENA PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Sandra Palmer of Fort worth, Tex., bogeyed three par-three holes Saturday but managed a two-over-par 74 to hang onto the lead with a 36-hole total of 142 in the $41,000 Suzuki Golf Internationale.

Miss Palmer, winner of last weekend's $50,000 Sealy Classic at Las Vegas, Nev., held a two-shot edge over LPGA all-time money winner Kathy Lihlworth, who carded her second straight 72 over the Los Coyotes Country Club course for 144.

The 54-hole tournament winds up Sunday, with a first prize of $5,570 and a $5,000 diamond ring.

Tokyo's Chako Higuchi also had a par 72 for 145 and third place.

There was a three-way tie for fourth at 146, including Sandra Haynie, who had a winning streak of three going until stopped by Palmer last week.

She had a 73 Saturday. Also at 148 were Jane Hialeck, with the day's best round of 70 over the 6,041-yard Los Coyotes course, and Kathy Cornelius, who came in with a 71.

At 148 were Debbie Austin, Shirley Englehorn and JoAnn Prentice.

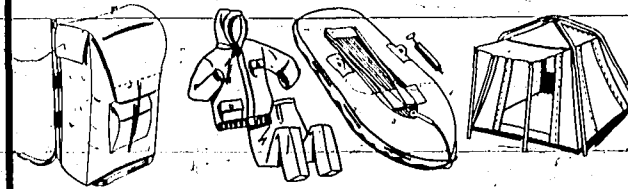

Donna Caponi, winner of the past two U.S. Women's Open tournaments, called a two-stroke penalty on herself on the par four 18th hole. That resulted in a seven for the hole for a 76 for the round and a 148 total.

Miss Palmer, 30, said she felt lucky to still be in the lead. "I didn't hit the ball well and I didn't have as many chances to make birdies as I did Friday," said Miss Palmer.

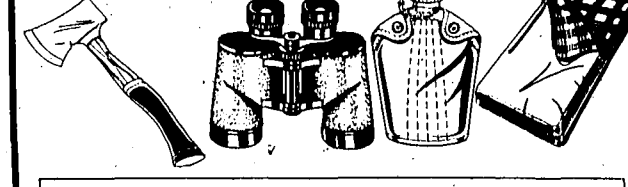

"The way things went I was pleased with a 71." "It was good to come out scrambling at two over."

Boros takes one-stroke lead in Colonial tourney

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—Old folks Julius Boros taught the young folks how to play in the wind Saturday with a sparkling 32-35-67 that gave him a one-stroke third round lead in the Colonial National Invitation with a one-under-par total of 209.

While the 51-year-old reigning PGA seniors champion was "kinda ambling along" and coming from six strokes off the pace, the bogey man caught up with 36-hole leader Canadian George Knudson and nearly everybody else among the 77 survivors.

Boros was one of only three players conquering Colonial Country Club's 7,142-yard, par 35-35-70 in the 30-mile-an-hour wind gusts as he turned a birdie-birdie start into a solid round that saw Knudson and a host of other challengers defeat themselves.

Dave Stockton, the 1967 winner here, was the last of the hopefuls to blow his chances—and he did it on the final green when his putt from the fringe sped nine feet past the pin and he missed it coming back to finish with a 36-35-71 and even-par 210. That still left him a one-stroke cushion over defending champion Homero Blancas, Larry Ziegler and Fred Martl, who hit the 54-hole mark with one-over-par 211s. Blancas shot a 36-35-71, Ziegler a 37-33-70 and Martl a 37-35-72.

Boros did all of his damage on the front nine with eight and five-foot birdie putts on the first two holes and a five-footer on the toughest hole on the course—No. 5—which was one of only four birdies on that hole all day.

"Once you threw it up in the air you never know what it was going to do," Boros said of the wind. "On the 14th and 15th I allowed for the wind and the wind never touched 'em."

NY mets first on television

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Mets made their first appearance of the season on national television Saturday and left the rest of major league baseball a tough act to follow.

He was asked if he was surprised at the way the field seemed to drift back past him. "Well, when I was on the front nine I saw Knudson was six under par. I didn't look at the scoreboard again until I was at the 16th. I was just ambling along and I saw I was tied for the lead."

The Mets put on an exciting show for an NBC-TV audience and over 33,000 fans at Shea Stadium as they came from behind to tie the score in both the ninth and 10th innings before defeating the Atlanta Braves, 8-7, in the 11th on a run-scoring single by Donn Clendenon.

Knudson, who led this tournament for three straight days in 1965, threatened to do just that again Saturday when he started birdie-birdie, but then jumped bogeys at the fourth and fifth. Then came No. 7.

"It was the turning point," the Canadian said. "I bunkered my approach and three-putted for a double bogey. From there on it was a shambles."

He bogeyed the next four holes and went from the lead at four under par to a tie for seventh at two over 212 along with Jack Montgomery. And he had to birdie the 18th to get there.

"Boy, what a game," said Mets manager Gil Hodges, whose team overcame a two-run deficit in the ninth and a one-run deficit in the 10th. "This was a tremendous team effort and a real morale booster for our club."

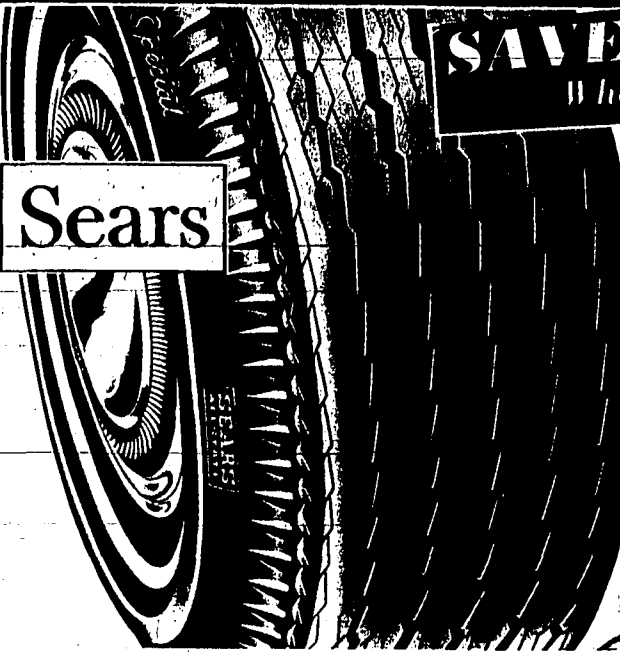

Stockton birdied the fourth hole with a 15-footer, the 14th 149, 2-1-2 feet and the 16th from five feet and went into the 18th with a share of the lead in his pocket.

Clendenon's hit came off reliever Coell Upshaw with two outs in the 11th and scored Tim Foli, who reached first on an infield single and stole second.

"I can't play safe even if my life depends on it," said Stockton of the final hole. "I was trying to play it safe and hit what I thought was a good putt and it went nine feet past.

Study tour . . .

Valley students ready for 32-day study tour of Europe

TWIN FALLS—Learn by participation could be the motto of several excited Magic Valley students as they make final plans for a 32-day study tour in Europe this summer.

The group was organized and will be counseled and chaperoned by Geryllyn Espil, a teacher at Hansen High School, and is a part of the International Exchange School out of Salt Lake City.

The group will leave June 16 from Salt Lake City and return July 17, after visiting in France, England, Switzerland, Italy and Greece. The students can receive high school or college credits for their participation.

Among those participating in the program are Bruce Hafer, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.R. Hafer, Twin Falls; Sue LaPray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert LaPray, Buhl; Mark Barnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Barnes, Hansen; Shawna Stanger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Stanger, Hansen; Kevin Stanger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Stanger, Hansen; Betty Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brown, Kimberly; Shelly Breeding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Breeding, Murtaugh; Kristi McFarland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McFarland, Murtaugh, and Mrs. Hazel Nelson, Twin Falls.

Donkey is extra-special birthday gift

By MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News Writer

SUN VALLEY — Gay Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Holmes, Sun Valley, will celebrate her fifth birthday anniversary May 28. This year the event promises to be extra-special because of a birthday gift she is receiving, "Seven," a miniature Mediterranean donkey from the R Lazy S Ranch at Hagerman.

Holmes, who is an official of the Sun Valley resort, and his wife, said everyone at the resort is excited about the new pet. The appealing little animal caused no trouble on her ride to Sun Valley and was placed in a stall there until she became accustomed to her surroundings, after which the owners planned to put her in a corral.

The jennet will foal in June or July so everyone in the vicinity will be looking forward to it.

Seven received her name because she weighed a scant seven pounds when she was born at the ranch July 17, 1968. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sullivan, who own and operate the ranch, said the normal birth weight for the miniature donkeys is 10 to 15 pounds so they were pleased that the animal, though tiny, was strong and healthy.

Last year at the Twin Falls County Fair, the tiny donkeys were a major attraction, and some of them may be brought to the fair this fall for people to see who missed them last year. The small animals have a distinctive feature of a dark stripe which runs down the back and across the shoulders forming a perfect cross. According to legends, Mary rode one of these donkeys into Bethlehem and Jesus entered Jerusalem on one.

At a recent visit to the ranch, we learned that the Sullivans have sold eight of the donkeys this month. Besides the one which went to Sun Valley, "Solvatore," a two-year-old jack, was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Miles Votroubek, Buhl, and Sam Byrd, Boise, has just bought six of them to add to his trained circus this fall.

Votroubek, who has assisted the Sullivans in training the animals, states his family is urging him to buy one of the jennet donkeys too. The Votroubek's two daughters have long wanted one of the donkeys for a pet.

The six jennets which the Sam Bee Circus purchased include

Rosa who was on display at the fair, also Rina, Samaria, Sheka, Sophia and Sistina. They will remain at the ranch until September, when Byrd will start training them for novelty acts in his circus. He plans to train them to pull a cart to be driven by a chimpanzee, perhaps work out a military act and several racing stunts. Future plans may include a "petting zoo" where children can get close to the animals and pet them.

Byrd feels the animals he purchased from the Sullivans will be easy to train and could be used in many acts as they have been treated right and trained properly at the Sullivan ranch and early training is very important to an animal's nature.

The Sullivans brought five of the miniature Mediterranean donkeys to their ranch in Hagerman in 1965 and are the only breeders in the state. There are several hundred of them in the United States and it is no longer practical to import them from the Mediterranean Islands of Sicily and Sardinia.

The herd is enrolled in the Miniature Donkey Registry of the United States which was established in 1958. Each Sullivan donkey has an official certificate and its certificate number is tattooed on its upper lip.

The donkeys are renowned for their gentle and loving disposition. They make wonderful pets for children and may safely be driven or ridden. Raymond Burr of "Ironside" once purchased one of them for his family and Hubert Humphrey presented his grandchildren with one.

Besides raising the donkeys, the Sullivans are Angus breeders and also have a dairy herd. They moved to Idaho some years ago from Nebraska. Sullivan was born on a farm, later became a contractor and also has been an athletic coach. However, as his wife says, "He has always wanted to get back to farming." Their scenic ranch, just outside of the town of Hagerman, has a rock house on which he did all of the remodeling and carpenter work. Mrs. Sullivan has made it charming and comfortable with her clever decorating touches and some lovely antiques which have been in the family for generations.

Only a few . . .

EIGHT OF THE 30 Mediterranean donkeys raised by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sullivan, Hagerman, were sold this month, with one going to Sun Valley, one to Buhl and six of them to become additions of the Sam Bee Circus this fall. Mrs. Sullivan is shown with several of the small animals which are noted for their gentle disposition and appealing nature.

TAMMY ALLEN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Allen, Filer, makes friends real easy with these miniature Mediterranean donkeys as Ralph Sullivan, owner, explains the legends concerning them. The donkeys are raised at Sullivan's R Lazy S Ranch in Hagerman. Little 5-year-old Gay Holmes, Sun Valley, will receive one of these donkeys, "Seven," as a birthday gift from her family May 28.

Medical records serve vital purpose

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News Writer

JEROME — The medical records department of any hospital plays a very important part in the operation of that hospital, as it does with St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome.

In an interview with Sister Mary Matthew, who heads the medical records department at St. Benedict's, she pointed out many of the reasons records are kept on each patient admitted to the hospital.

Sister Matthew said the history of medical records runs parallel with the history of medicine.

Polychrome murals have been found in the caves of the Old Stone Age, and illustrations depicting trephining and amputation of fingers appear on the walls of paleolithic caverns of Spain. These date back to about 25,000 B.C.

While such early medical writings and drawings may not be classed as medical records in the modern sense, they are mute evidence that their authors kept records concerning their patients.

"Although our records at St. Benedict's do not boast of such antiquity, we do have them since the opening of St. Valentine's Hospital in Wendell in 1923," she said.

"It is of interest to note that since we began a numbering system similar to that which we are now using in 1939, we have approximately 57,000 admissions which include about 500 Long Term Care Unit admissions," she continued.

"Each person who is admitted to the hospital has his record begun at the admitting office where sociological data is obtained. From there and as long as patient is in the hospital, physicians, nurses, technicians, consultants and others add to the record."

After discharge the record is routed to medical records for completion and filing.

Medical records, however, are not only a place for storage of medical records but for their continuing use by physicians, nurses, insurance companies, hospital administration and others. Development of the monthly and annual statistical report, recording such information as number of admissions, births, deaths and discharges and percentage of occupancy, is performed by medical record personnel.

All diseases and operations of discharged patients are coded according to an international system so that studies can be made and the prevalence of a disease can be determined.

The purpose of a medical record serves as indicators of the functions of the medical record department.

According to the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals these purposes are:

- To serve as a basis for planning patient care;
- to provide a means of communication between the physician and other professionals contributing to the patient's care; to furnish documentary evidence of the course of the patient's illness and treatment during each hospital admission; to serve as a basis for review, study and evaluation of the care rendered to the patient; to assist in protecting the legal interests of the patient, hospital and medical staff, and to provide data for use in research and education.

Opportunities for jobs in medical record science are varied and worldwide. Hospitals of all types, clinics, the ship "HOPE", the Armed Services, all need medical record personnel and because of the lack of sufficient personnel to fill the need, job openings come from all 50 states as well as many other countries.

Senior citizens relocate

NEW YORK (UPI)—Home is where the action is with most retired persons. It becomes the place for pursuit of hobbies, for entertaining, studying, planning a new career, enjoying the garden, preparing to travel.

Where to make the home is one of the major decisions the so-called senior citizens face in increasing numbers. For it is estimated that by the year 2000, some 50 million or more of the nation's population will be in the 55-years and over category.

"The actual decision is up to you because it is a very personal one," says one organization helping folks adjust to retirement. It is the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), headquartered in Washington, D.C., and offering free "Your Retirement Home Guide."

Your reasons for staying in your present location might include these factors:

- Expenses of my present home are under control and I can meet them in the future (the mortgage, for instance, is paid).
- Conditions Satisfactory
- My present living conditions are satisfactory. I feel comfortable and secure.
- My children live nearby and visit often—I am near my place of worship.
- I am active in local civic, social and religious groups.
- Surface transportation is adequate for my needs.

The retirement home guide said reasons for moving might include:

- Expenses here will increase and my income will remain fixed.
- The house is too large and inconvenient.
- Conditions of the neighborhood are not satisfactory in retirement. Surface transportation, for instance, is not adequate during non-rush hours.
- Severe weather causes problems in heating or cooling, keeps me indoors too often.
- Friends have moved to new Products that are toxic or flammable should be stored in the original containers and well out of reach of children.

locations. Children do not live in the area and find it difficult to visit often.

—There are few recreational opportunities nearby.

One good way to check relocation possibilities is during your travels. When you visit a community that appeals to you, subscribe to the local newspaper. It'll tell a lot about the political and religious thinking of the residents, about social activities, employment situations and variations in the weather. Check advertisements to see how prices compare with your present area. Do this for several communities. Even if you don't select one, at least you have a working knowledge of how other people live.

No matter whether the situation is to stay or to move, make sure retirement does not mean inactivity. AARP tells of the 79-year-old real estate executive in Washington, D.C., who conducts classes in real estate for other retirees and counsels government employees heading for retirement.

His advice: "Activity is the secret of happiness in life. But it must be activity with a purpose and the purpose has to include somebody besides yourself."

Patterns chosen . . .

TRICIA NIXON has selected American-made China and silverware for her wedding but she reverted to her Irish ancestors for her crystal pattern. She chose the dainty "Blue Tree" pattern in Lenox china and Lunt sterling silver in the ornate "Eloquence" pattern. Her goblets and wine glasses were chosen from Ireland's Waterford crystal in the blown diamond cut "Lismore" design. (White House photo from UPI)

Richfield club has final meet

RICHFIELD — Final May meeting of the Richfield Woman's Club before summer recess featured a no-host luncheon at the home of Mrs. David Kennison, new president.

Guests were Mrs. George Rettig, Jerome, Mrs. Robert Ford, and Mrs. Glen Jensen.

Mrs. Marvin Webb resigned as secretary-elect and Mrs. Joe Seward, retiring secretary, was re-elected. Mrs. Webb assisted Mrs. Eugene Alexander, retiring president, with installation of new officers.

Mrs. Kennison was installed president; Mrs. Joey Parker, vice president by proxy; Mrs. Seward, secretary, and Mrs. James Thomas, treasurer.

It was announced three tables have been painted, and a new one purchased by the club are now placed in the city park.

Mrs. Edward Schisler received the surprise package. The club year will open with the Sept. 15 meeting at the home of Mrs. Sadie Rider.

Mrs. Alexander presented gifts to her officer slate the past year, Mrs. Carl Paulson, Mrs. Seward and Mrs. Kennison.

CYNTHIA WALKER

Miss Walker, Koffer set August date

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Walker, Twin Falls, announce the engagement of their daughter, Cynthia, to Mark S. Koffer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Koffer, Northridge, Calif.

Miss Walker, a 1967 graduate of Twin Falls High School, will receive her degree in education from the University of Idaho, Moscow, May 30.

Koffer attended schools in California and will be a senior at the University of Idaho this fall, where he is majoring in botany.

An Aug. 20 wedding is planned at the First Presbyterian Church, Twin Falls.

Nineteen and one-half pounds not lost for the group was recorded. Twenty-five members weighed in. Bonnie Ryan was "Queen of the Week," with a 7 1/2 pound loss.

Loretta Snow introduced several women from the Trimmer TOPS Club who attended State Recognition Day. Each reported on a workshop she attended and points of interest she learned at these meetings. Grace Tucker and Loretta Snow reported many hints to help the "back-slide."

The Trimmer TOPS women and Mrs. Tucker of Measure-Ups presented an unusual and entertaining style show, with Loretta Snow as narrator. LaVerne McKinster, Wilma Eastman and Beverly Knutsen served punch and coffee.

TWIN FALLS — "Angle of repose" refers to the diminished inclination which finally stops a landslide, but Wallace Stegner's latest novel is not a geology primer. He aptly uses the term to refer to a titling process in human feeling, a necessary resignation.

Though most of the action takes place in the 19th-Century west (including Boise valley), the book is not the typical western in which characters are reduced to "pasteboard stereotypes by the enormity of the wilderness they attempt to conquer. Gentleman Susan Burling Ward and her mining engineer husband Oliver are very real people, revealed through the eyes of their grandson Lyman, the 20th-Century historian who serves as narrator. Confined to a wheelchair because of a bone disease, the 58-year-old professor begins a book about his grandmother, seeking to understand how two people as different as Susan and Oliver Ward stayed together through years of uncertainty and personal tragedy. Perhaps Lyman Ward is trying to understand his own life as well: He cannot walk, his wife has left him, and his son, Rodman, is a Berkeley radical who wants to put Daddy out to pasture in a Menlo Park sanitarium.

The fact that the action alternates between Lyman's world of 1970 and the 19th-Century one of his grandparents increases the reader's interest and perception.

The discussion between Lyman and his hippie secretary Shelly could in themselves fill a small book. Shelly snorts at the "Victorianism evidenced in Grandma's letters and seems amused by Lyman's "putting out the lights" on her sex life. Ward replies to Shelly indicate that, though his skeleton may be stiffening, his brain decidedly is not.

Stegner's use of a narrator who is also a protagonist is effective because, as a descendant of Susan and Oliver he links us more realistically with the past. He also is placed in an interesting dual role; the grandson reaching back into his progenitors' past and the "Grandfather," challenging a rebellious present. A point of criticism is the fact that Lyman sees Grandma as more charming than she really is; her letters reveal a touch of fretful snobbliness that he does not detect, but this is a natural flaw in character and not in the book as a whole.

Susan Burling is an eastern artist when she marries Oliver Ward. Her life becomes a series of picturesque and rough Western mining camps which at first intrigue her and provide many sketches which are published in eastern magazines. But her letters to her cultured friend Augusta hint with increasing frequency at the frustration of a life that seems destined to be nomadic. She also mentions occasional disappointments concerning Oliver's literary ineptitude and his silence when it comes to defending his work.

Oliver is contrasted by his young apprentice — Frank Sargent, who is gentle, cultured and well-read. Though ten years younger than Susan, he falls in love with her. She is at first merely flattered and amused, but her letters soon hint feelings she is only beginning to realize and, returning from a visit east with her two children, she steps from the train and kisses Frank, thinking he is Oliver.

The most beautiful, and yet ultimately tragic, period in the lives of Susan and Oliver Ward takes place in a Boise Valley canyon, where Frank and Oliver have dreams of building a gigantic irrigation system. With evident grief Lyman discloses the tragedy that happens there, a tragedy that separates Susan and Oliver for several years and causes their bitter son Ollie to leave home for a decade. And yet in the end the marriage survives and with silent gravity reaches its angle of repose which, as Lyman discovers for himself, is simply "knowing what you have to accept."

Great duo

Cultured pearls and diamonds have always been the best of playmates. This spring finds them enjoying the game of riving the finger with wonder. The sheen, luster and fragility of pearls are highlighted in gold settings of roughened textures shined over with diamonds.

DEAR ABBY: I've been happily married for 21 years to a great man. He provides his family with a beautiful home and lots of love. We have three fine children, a 20-year-old son away at college, and a son, 14, and a daughter, 16, at home. We have taught our children healthy attitudes about sex and up until now none has ever given us cause to worry.

Our college son has been living with his girl friend in an apartment off campus for almost a year. After we got over the initial shock, we didn't offer too much opposition. We pay his tuition and he works part time to cover living expenses. He has never sponged off us. He is making good grades and we want him to finish college.

He is coming home for a visit and is bringing his girl friend. The big question: Should we let them sleep together here, which goes against our grain, especially since there are two teen-agers in the house? Or should we offer them separate bedrooms, which would be hard to do because they know that we know they normally sleep together?

MOTHER X

DEAR MOTHER: Feeling as you do, offer them separate sleeping accommodations. When kids return home for a visit, they should respect the code of their parents' home, and since it "goes against your grain" to provide your unmarried children with coed sleeping quarters, they can either accept your decision or sleep elsewhere.

DEAR ABBY: I have a winter home in Florida and frequently have visitors from up north come to stay with me. I welcome their visits, but why do these guests invariably forget some article of clothing or their personal belongings when they leave?

It is such a nuisance for me to have to get it wrapped for mailing, then take it to the post office and have it insured and returned to the owner.

I have seriously considered giving all the leftover articles to the Salvation Army as a way of training my guests to either take all their stuff with them or lose it. I'd like your opinion.

E. S. G.

DEAR E. S. G.: Wouldn't it be simpler to just give the guest quarters a quick inspection before your guests leave? Your scheme may cure a few chronically careless guests, but what can the Salvation Army do with the top half of a pair of pajamas?

DEAR ABBY: I have been a professional artist most of my life. Not only do I love to paint, but it has been a tremendous help to me financially. Last year my husband died, and soon my only child will be leaving for college. The thought of my being alone has depressed me so much that I haven't been able to paint lately. If I don't produce something soon I fear that my reduced income will present a serious problem. How can I pull myself out of this vicious circle?

IN A SLUMP IN L. A.

DEAR IN: Start a new circle. A circle of new friends. Join your local art council. Museums and universities from coast to coast have membership associations. Does go for education and aquilation. And members go for fun. Good luck!

DEAR ABBY: Tell the woman who asked you whether or not she should marry an ex-priest to go ahead and marry him. He will make an excellent husband. He already has taken the oaths of poverty, obedience and chastity.

BEAT IN BUCYRUS, O.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69704, Los Angeles, Cal: 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Scouts, leaders to attend jamboree

TWIN FALLS — In 1945, several million U.S. and allied troops were poised for an invasion of Japan that never came off. This August, 26 years later, over 7,000 U.S. Scouts and adult leaders will "invade" Japan on a peaceful mission to advance the cause of world brotherhood and peace.

They'll be attending the 13th Boy Scouts World Jamboree being held at the foot of scenic Mount Fuji, August 2-10. Over 20,000 Scouts from 97 nations will assemble to carryout the jamboree theme "For Understanding."

American Scouts and leaders including 19 Scouts and three adult leaders form the Snake River Area Council will be shuttled to Japan in a massive airlift organized by Scout officials, in cooperation with Thomas Cook & Sons travel agency, and the airline industry. Thirty-three planes have been chartered for the 20-day trip that will include sight-seeing before and after the jamboree.

This is the largest single international Scouting event ever conducted. It will be the first international jamboree held in Asia.

Attending from the Magic Valley are adult leaders; Scoutmaster C. Keith Egbert, Twin Falls; assistant Scoutmasters Arriel Green, Twin Falls, and Donald A. Slocum, Burley. Boys attending include Clay Asher, Michael Bous, Terry Boyd, James D. Clawson, Rodney Finlayson, Kent Katz, John Mead, David Shorthouse and Jon Taylor all Twin Falls; George Bockham, A. Paul Brown, Burley; Thomas Bennett, Hagorman; Dirk Clarkson and John A. Holmes, Jerome; Donald Fisher, Douglas Hansen, Roger Hansen, Rupert; Danny Phillips, Declo; and Earl W. Reed, Gooding.

The jamboree campsite is an 800-acre area 120 miles west of Tokyo at the western base of snow-capped Mount Fuji known as Asagiri Heights. American Scouts will live in a tent city and their next door neighbors could be Scouts from Austria, Canada, Great Britain, France, or any of the 97 member nations of the Boy Scout World Conference. Iron curtain countries are not represented.

At the jamboree, the American contingent will participate in a variety of activities, designed to carry out the theme "For Understanding." They'll be in a mammoth jamboree parade in Tokyo, engage in skill and Scoutcraft contests and demonstrations, and act in international arena shows featuring national costumes, music, dancing and pageants. A special evening of traditional Japanese entertainment will be staged by the Boy Scouts of Nippon.

Opportunities to meet and swap souvenirs with brother Scouts will be provided at exchange meals, special events, and a variety of recreational activities.

U.S. Scouts will travel to and from Japan in troops of 40 that will include adult leaders such as Scoutmasters and his assistants. Charter flights will originate from major population centers and each flight will be supervised by adults. Many of them will have physicians on board.

The Snake River Area Council group will be in the first U.S. contingent departing Portland July 23 and will spend 8 days touring Japan before proceeding to the jamboree site. Special sight-seeing tours have been arranged that include Tokyo, Nikko, Kyoto, and other attractions.

The Congress has passed an act that permits extensive government support to the U.S. Contingent in the form of services, transportation of material, and loan of equipment and supplies. No direct financial support is involved.

The 13th World Jamboree is being directed by the Boy Scouts of Nippon and an international staff of volunteer and professional Scouters. Lt. Gen. Toshi I. Watanabe is the World Jamboree chairman.

The U.S. Contingent is headed by Gilbert R. Pirrung, owner of Aragon Farms, Bainbridge, Ga. Pirrung is the Boy Scouts of America International Commissioner and a member of the Scouts national executive mission. His principal aides will be Bryan S. Reid, Jr., president of the Cherry-Burrell Corp.,

Chicago, chairman of the program division; Richard W. Darrow, president of Hill and Knowlton, Public Relations, New York, as chairman of the communications division; Loren S. Dahl, Sacramento attorney, chairman of the recruiting and personnel division; and W.R. McCreary, retired chairman of the McCreary Tire and Rubber Co., Indiana, Pa., as chairman of the support services division. Other volunteer positions have been filled by physicians, dentists, pharmacists, ministers, and other specialists.

A new face in the cast of "Love Is a Many Splendored Thing," CBS daytime serial, is Constance Towers of stage and screen. She has created the role of the wife of Dr. Sanford Hiller. Miss Towers may be seen in person again this summer in Guy Lombardo's production of "The Sound of Music" at the Jones Beach, Long Island, amphitheater. She was the heroine in the Rodgers-Brodsky musical when it was first done there last summer.

DUTCH TOURISM UP

THE HAGUE (UPI) — Holland's income from tourism rose 25 per cent in 1970 to 1.5 billion guilders ($41 million), the government says. Visitors to The Netherlands from the United States in 1970 topped the half-million mark.

Knees covered

NEW YORK (UPI) — Designers fraught with what to do about hemlines finally have skirted the issue with a flattering compromise. Down with the extremes of the mini, up with the awkward (for most) look of the midi, and onward with a happy compromise of lengths covering the knees.

Matter of fact, the New York firms currently showing their advance fall and winter collections to the nation's buyers are so adamant about the knees being covered next season that the firm of Teal Trains apologized when a model appeared in a late day black chiffon dress above her knees. The knees would be covered by the time that design got into production and shipping, Teal Trains, the president, assured his audience.

Nursing program set May 28 at CSI

TWIN FALLS — A program on "The Potential of Nurse Practitioners for Meeting Health Care Needs in Idaho" will be held Friday, May 28, at 8 p.m. at the Shields Academic Building on the College of Southern Idaho Campus in Twin Falls. It was announced today by Mrs. Dolores Sims, R.N., community coordinator for the Twin Falls area of the Mountain States Regional Medical Program.

committee on professional assistants development, who supervises Mrs. Curtis and Mrs. Ortman in their new duties, will also participate, as will Mrs. Elleen Merrell, R.N., educational specialist in nursing from the Idaho office of the Mountain States Regional Medical Program.

There will be a small registration fee for this program, which is being presented by District No. 1 of the Idaho Nurses Association in cooperation with the Mountain States Regional Medical Program.

Fashionettes

By United Press International
Wide cuff bracelet watches still are getting a fair share of attention. Some taper near the end, while others remain wide all around the wrist.

Right for pantsuits: watches that change from hanging pendants to encircling belt watches.

Teen-agers prefer rigid necklets instead of the regular necklaces. These come in silver or golden tones, in gold filled or sterling, dangling charms, monogrammed discs, butterflies, beating hearts, abstract mobiles, symbols and emblems of causes dear to their hearts.

More women in politics predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic women work as hard if not harder than men in nuts-and-bolts chores for their party, but they receive little recognition and more often than not, no pay.

Mrs. Harriet Cipriani, newly appointed director of women's activities for the Democratic National Committee, said women themselves are partly to blame for their small representation in the party's councils.

"They should have been working at it," she said. She hopes to change the picture in next year's selection of delegates to the national convention and of candidates for state and national public office. But she emphasized that a successful election is pretty much the result of a do-it-yourself campaign. She cited Ohio as an example.

The Federation of Women's Clubs in Ohio decided to sponsor one of their own for state treasurer, and selected Mrs. Getrude Donahes. They helped arrange speaking dates for her and exposed her to wide publicity, then supported her against male candidates in the primary and general elections. The result: Ohio now has its first female treasurer—and the pleasant distinction of license plate No. 1 on her automobile.

"Mrs. Donahes told women, 'This isn't my campaign, it's our campaign,' and they felt they had a stake in the race." She said Democrats are proud that a commission headed by Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., adopted guidelines that would forbid sex discrimination in selecting Democratic convention delegates.

Participation urged
Mrs. Cipriani urged women to "make sure they're in on this" and end up with better proportionate convention representation.

You Can't 'Trump' This Food Idea

YOU'RE NO "dumpty" if you want a quick easy-to-prepare casserole for your next bridge party.

Rather, you'll be the hostess with the mostest the next time you have the girls over for that monthly bridge get-together.

Ham stroganoff was created especially with this thought in mind! And when an electric Country Kettle automatically cooks this main dish for you, you can enjoy your guests and do justice to your bridge game.

To prepare the stroganoff, preheat the electric Country Kettle at 300°. Sauté 2 pounds precooked ham, cut into strips, and 1 cup minced onion in ¼ cup butter. Sauté until the onion is tender. Stir in two 4-ounce cans whole mushrooms, drained, and two 10½-ounce cans condensed cream of mushroom soup. Reduce heat to 200° and heat for 10 minutes. Blend in 2 cups dairy sour cream. Cook until heated through, for about 5 minutes. Serve immediately in patty shells.

Piano recital set by Martin Wright

MURTAUGH — Martin Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wright Jr., Murtaugh, will present a piano recital at 8 p.m. May 27 at the Twin Falls Stakehouse, 421 Maurice St. N. Wright is a sophomore at Murtaugh High School, active in chorus, band, and pep band, having served as student director of that organization for three years.

MARTIN WRIGHT

He has studied piano for six years with Mrs. Earl Watts, Murtaugh, and four years with Mrs. Teala Bellini, Twin Falls. He has received 12 school awards in music as well as five superior ratings in school festivals and seven superiors in music club festivals over the past three years.

This summer he plans to attend a two-week music workshop, "Sounds of Summer," at Brigham Young University and has been awarded a $50 scholarship to that workshop by the Dilettante scholarship board.

He will present a program containing music of Bach, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Chopin, Rachmaninoff and Khachaturian, closing the program with the first movement of Mendelssohn's first "Piano Concerto, Op. 25," with Mrs. Bellini at second piano.

The public is invited.

Full tuition scholarships announced

POCATELLO — Several Magic Valley students are among 65 high school seniors who have received full tuition scholarships from the Associated Students of Idaho State University.

They are Richard Shriver, Buhl; Curtis Eames, Burley; Dennis Rush, Carey; Patricia Mackay, Filer; Wilma Brannan, Glenns Ferry; Cheryl Scanton, Gooding; Joann Berry, Hagerman; Clinton Barnard, Hansen; Janet Murphy, Kimberly; Johnny Urrietta, Shoshone; Melanie Barth, Twin Falls; Marie Will, Valley High School; Michael Strickling, Wendell; and Lois Toner, Wood River High School.

Winning entries go to state

TWIN FALLS — Recent winners in the Kennedy Center School Art Exhibit are announced, with winning entries to be judged in state competition this week in Boise.

Winners include Peter Bolton, Steve Parr and Bunny Killen, Twin Falls High School; Andy Inkley and Cathy Dee Walker, O'Leary Junior High School; Stephanie Parker and JoAnn Bartlett, Robert Stuart Junior High School; Rhonda Griffin, Washington School; Tamara Steel, Harrison School; Matt Jones, Three Creek School, Rogerson, and Marcus Henkelman, Happy Day School.

Judges were Mrs. D. Davee, Mrs. Earl Peck, Gary DeFord and M. Marshall.

Shampoo

A shampoo schedule is an individual thing, regulated by your scalp condition, way of life, and the area in which you live. The oilier your scalp, the more active you are, the soother your city, the more frequently you will need a shampoo. The schedule may vary from once a week to daily.

Current Cues

By HELEN WALKER

TWIN FALLS — Regardless of the model or make, an automatic dishwasher will bring you a welcome release from a much disliked kitchen chore. Besides saving time it does a better cleaning job and as an extra bonus protects family health by "sanitizing" dishes.

To serve you faithfully, all it asks is understanding, care and the proper "feeding" of detergents designed for its "digestion." Be sure to follow the manufacturer's suggestions. Your dishwasher can handle over 95 per cent of your dishwashing chores if you respect its limitations, but never exaggerate them, you can then enjoy kitchen freedom impossible with old-time methods. Following are some points to help you to get the most from your dishwasher.

Preparation: Scrape dishes to remove large food particles — Remember it is not a garbage disposal. For best results, starchy foods, such as potatoes, spaghetti, rice, etc. may have to be pretreated with cold water before loading.

Loading: Follow placement suggestion from the manufacturer of your particular machine. When in doubt, a good rule is to face the soiled side of the dish toward the water source.

Hot Water: For maximum efficiency this is essential. Be sure the hot water in the kitchen is as hot as possible — 140 degrees — 160 degrees. Check periodically with a candy or meat thermometer. Be sure the setting on your water heater is set for 160 degrees.

Water Pressure: Low water pressure gives insufficient water to allow dishwasher to operate at top efficiency. Times of high water use may decrease pressure to a point where dishes are not clean.

Cleaning agents: Use only a detergent made for automatic dishwashers. Some brands seem to work better in some areas because of water conditions. Experiment until you find the one that works best for you. Do not add more than will allow the cover to close easily. Do not sprinkle or spill detergent over dishes, flatware or pans.

What can you wash in your dishwasher?

Pots and pans — Follow manufacturer's directions.

Most pots and pans can be washed in the dishwasher. Remove excess and burned on food. Soak (if necessary) to loosen particles. Pour off any excess grease.

Aluminum ware — In some areas, water, because of its mineral content, may discolor aluminum. Some mirror finishes may become dulled, so test wash to determine results with your water. The finish of anodized aluminum and lacquered color ware may be affected by the high temperature and basic ingredients in detergents. Machine dishwashing for these finishes is not recommended.

Plastic ware — Check manufacturer's directions when you buy plastic ware. Some types are recommended for automatic dishwashers. These are usually marked "heat resistant." If you are in doubt, test wash one piece in the dishwasher.

Decorated china — If you are buying new dinnerware, ask your dealer whether the decoration is safe for automatic dishwashing. Decorations UNDER the glaze, and protected by an overglaze, are usually safe. Dishes of recent manufacture (including gold and platinum decoration) are usually machine washable. Older patterns are usually not.

Antique or hand-painted china — Antique china is usually hand painted. Since the colors are not permanently fired they may fade, even with hand washing. Machine washing is not recommended.

Cutlery — Most sterling silver, silver plate, and stainless steel may be washed in the dishwasher. Hollow-handle knives are an exception. High temperatures may loosen the cement which holds them to the blade. Do not wash wooden articles or cutlery with wooden handles, bone, bamboo, stag, pearl, horn. These materials should not be immersed in water even when washing by hand. Wash blades, wipe handles clean with a damp cloth.

Silver hollow-ware — This may be machine washed in the same way as china.

In next week's column I will discuss how to solve some of the common dishwasher problems. If you have questions mail to: Helen Walker, P. O. Box 8, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.

OFFICERS INSTALLED for the National Secretaries Association (International) Twin-Ida Chapter, include, from left, Mrs. Robert Kroush, president; Mrs. Ray Bush, secretary; Mrs. Bobby K. Each year the organization uses profits from its musical productions to assist talented young students to further training and to aid institutions involved with theater arts.

Recipients named . . .

Dilettantes give nine scholarships

TWIN FALLS — Nine scholarships, totaling $1,080 in value, have been announced by the Dilettante Group of Magic Valley.

Of the amount, $655 was awarded for music studies and $425 for drama.

Funds were provided through the sale of tickets to the recent performance of "Oliver," sponsored by the Dilettante Group. Each year the organization has used profits from its musical productions to assist talented young students in further training and to aid institutions involved with theater arts.

Individual winners this year include Tim Driscoll, Twin Falls, voice, the Gene Todd Memorial Scholarship of $380 to the annual Sun Valley Music Camp; Mary Mellor, Paul, piano, $75 to Brigham Young University for fees this fall; Martin Wright, Murtaugh, piano, $50 to be used at the BYU summer music camp; Cheryl Cook, Twin Falls, drama, $90 for the second session of the BYU drama workshop; Geoffrey McIntosh, Kimberly, drama, $50 to the summer drama workshop at Idaho State University, and Kip Wood, Twin Falls, drama, $35 for the July drama workshop at CSI.

Institutional scholarship awards included $100 to the Antique Festival Theatre, and two $75 scholarships to the College of Southern Idaho Music Department. One was awarded for the each of the two semesters. A similar award was made to the CSI Drama Department.

Miss Cook is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cook and is a junior in the Twin Falls High School. She has been in productions of the Children's Theatre, Readers Theatre, Strolling Theatre and attended the BYU drama workshop last summer.

Wright, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wright, Murtaugh, is a sophomore at Murtaugh High School and active in chorus, band and the pep band. In addition to piano, he plays baritone horn and has won scholarships in piano. For three years he has been pep band director with 12 superior ratings in school competition.

Murtaugh couple will observe Golden wedding anniversary

MURTAUGH — Mr. and Mrs. G.L. Rose will be honored at an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, May 30, at Murtaugh LDS Cultural Hall in honor of their 50th Wedding Anniversary.

The open house is being hosted by the couple's children. Friends and relatives are invited and the couple requests no gifts.

The couple was married in Murtaugh at the home of the bride's parents by Bishop A.D. Lee. Their marriage was later solemnized in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple.

Since their marriage they have resided at Murtaugh, where Rose was employed by the Millner Low Lift Irrigation District for 35 years. He retired seven years ago.

They are the parents of five daughters, Mrs. Walter (Ellen) Doss, Boise; Mrs. Eldred (Leora) Olson, Idaho Falls; Mrs. William (Maxine) Molyneux, Pocatello; Mrs. Ralph (Gaye) Young, Burley, and Mrs. Larry (Charlene) Carson, Lewiston, and one son, George William Rose, Friday Harbor, Wash. They have 17 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Student body leaders named

KING HILL — Newly elected student body president for Glens Ferry High School is Robert Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Black, Indian Cove.

Other officers for 1971-72 include Michael Siron, vice president, son of Earl and Winifred Siron; Jane Berni, secretary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Berni, and Beverly Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Blackwell, was elected treasurer.

Dilettantes give nine scholarships

Of the amount, $655 was awarded for music studies and $425 for drama.

Funds were provided through the sale of tickets to the recent performance of "Oliver," sponsored by the Dilettante Group. Each year the organization has used profits from its musical productions to assist talented young students in further training and to aid institutions involved with theater arts.

Individual winners this year include Tim Driscoll, Twin Falls, voice, the Gene Todd Memorial Scholarship of $380 to the annual Sun Valley Music Camp; Mary Mellor, Paul, piano, $75 to Brigham Young University for fees this fall; Martin Wright, Murtaugh, piano, $50 to be used at the BYU summer music camp; Cheryl Cook, Twin Falls, drama, $90 for the second session of the BYU drama workshop; Geoffrey McIntosh, Kimberly, drama, $50 to the summer drama workshop at Idaho State University, and Kip Wood, Twin Falls, drama, $35 for the July drama workshop at CSI.

Institutional scholarship awards included $100 to the Antique Festival Theatre, and two $75 scholarships to the College of Southern Idaho Music Department. One was awarded for the each of the two semesters. A similar award was made to the CSI Drama Department.

Miss Cook is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cook and is a junior in the Twin Falls High School. She has been in productions of the Children's Theatre, Readers Theatre, Strolling Theatre and attended the BYU drama workshop last summer.

Wright, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wright, Murtaugh, is a sophomore at Murtaugh High School and active in chorus, band and the pep band. reason to give any information about his hand to his opponents.

After the one-two-four bidding West has to find a lead. He doesn't have any good lead and when we saw the hand played, West selected his fourth best diamond. This lead was right up South's alley since he was able to win the trick with the nine, draw trumps with three leads, cash his ace of diamonds, lead the queen of diamonds for a ruffing finesse and make an extra trick at his game contract.

Had South shown his diamonds it is a clinch that a diamond would not have been opened. South would still have made his game provided he played the hand carefully, but he would have scored thirty points less in rubber bridge and a lot of match points less in a duplicate game.

There is a classic bit of advice which goes, "Front 'em rough and tell 'em nothing." We don't subscribe to it for handling the weaker sex, but we do believe that it should apply to your bridge opponents.

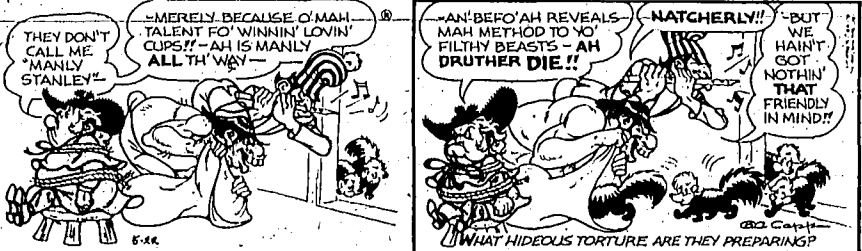

South has two good five-card suits and a fine hand. He opens properly with one spade and has every intention of showing his second suit.

Then North raises him to two spades and if South is smart he will forget all about that second suit and just bid four spades. The reason for this is that he has found his home the moment spades are raised and should see no

HOW DELICATE was the poetess Elizabeth Barrett Browning! How gentle! How pure! And tender to her husband Robert Browning. Still, she had her earthy appetites. Her dad, Mr. Barrett of Wimpole Street, said she particularly liked cannibal sandwiches washed down with dark beer. . . . HE HAD FOUR wives, did Doura Agha, a villager in Turkey. Four was the limit under Mohammedan law. On a single day in 1922, one of said wives had twins and the other three had a child each. Five, count them, on one day. The record shows Doura Agha was a proud and busy man.

WHO SAID, "A good man who is not great is more important than a great man who is not good"? . . . NOWHERE in the original Scriptures, I'm told, is there any reference to Easter. . . . IF A WOMAN is to commit a murder, odds run three out of four she'll do it in her own home.

IN THE MATTER of politics, not every man actually knows whether he's a conservative or a liberal, if either. Here's one way to make that judgment. If he approves of most of the U.S. Supreme Court decisions in recent years, he's a liberal. If he disapproves, he's a conservative. Simple as that, is it? A political scientist says so.

THOSE TOKENS the gambling boys put out for $1 each in the Nevada casinos cost about 25 cents apiece. This comes up because a customer wants to know if he can be considered a thief for taking same home as souvenirs. Hardly. The casino operators like patrons who fail to cash in such chips. For a 75-cent profit on each. Incidentally, the fellow who stamps out just about all those tokens is Guy Roberts. Used to be chief sculptor for the U.S. Mint. His initials "GR" appear in scroll on numerous coins. Upon first seeing the design of those initials, many citizens contend it looks like a hammer and sickle, and object highly therefore.

THE HARD FACTS: Did I tell you the average woodpecker outlives the average lion by about five years? Or women who undergo plastic surgery outnumber the men who do so by nine to one? Or there's one life insurance agent for every 200 families nationwide? Or the true day is not really 24 hours, but only 23 hours, 56 minutes, 4 1/2 seconds? Come on, make notes.

IT'S THE FEMALE chimpanzee that's the more dangerous. In laboratories, at any rate. Chimps attack their caretakers from time to time. Check of such injuries shows 19 out of 20 are inflicted by females. An irate male chimp comes right on, yipping and yapping. But an angry female simps around her cage most demurely until her target gets within striking distance, then lunges. In other words, the female of that species, too, is sneakier than the male. Much sneakier.

Heroin 'in' as school drug addiction gains

The Changing Drug Scene:
Heroin is in.
By MICHAEL WIDMER
United Press International

Drug addiction and experimentation on the American youth scene—in recent years centered in colleges, high schools and city slums—has in 1971 become a frightening problem even in grade schools.

Addicts now come in very small sizes, aged 12, 13, 14 years and even younger. And not only in the ghettos, but among children of middle and upper income families.

The picture varies from community to city to suburb, but a survey by United Press International on drug abuse in colleges and lower grades yields these general conclusions:

A wave of drug experimentation in elementary and high schools has disturbed officials, although in 1971 there are indications it may be nearing a plateau.

According to John E. Ingersoll, director of the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, "It appears that among upper college-year students there is a leveling off, if not a decline in drug use, particularly LSD and speed (amphetamines). But there seems to be an increase in high school use. Heroin is in at the suburban and city high schools, but there is not much at college campuses."

There exists a vast market in the illegal use of legal prescription drugs such as barbiturates. Even the legal use of these pharmaceutical drugs has risen in recent years to a level that is considered dangerous.

Marijuana is smoked by more and more persons of all ages and its use has become increasingly accepted by government officials, school authorities, law enforcement people, judges and the young alike.

Alcohol remains the most abused drug in the United States today. The most conservative estimates place the number of alcoholics at six million persons in this country. Not even the wildest estimates of drug addicts come close to this figure.

schools in Massachusetts, a functional daily problem in terms of a kid's health and with a marked increase in drug-related theft and vandalism.

The Palm Beach (Fla.) Post-Times concluded from a three-month survey of drug use in Palm Beach county: "The illegal drug user in the county is getting younger each year. Five years ago the use of illegal drugs was almost limited to college students or non-students of that age group. Today, there is widespread evidence, including admissions, that it goes down to grade school children."

Defective Oscar Vance, who handles drug control in suburban Philadelphia (Montgomery County), said, "where kids first tried drugs at 16 or 17 two years ago, they're now trying them at 13 or 14."

A recent survey of 7,000 junior and senior high school students by the Pennsylvania department of health "indicates that 123,000 high school-aged children (in the state) currently are taking drugs and are high users of them. Of these, 39,000 are in the 12th grade and almost 5,000 are in the seventh grade."

Inspector William Palmer, second in command in New York City's 750-man narcotics squad, said, "Our biggest problem right now is mother's medicine cabinet where many drug users get their first experimental taste of the feeling of stimulants or depressants."

"After marijuana, the drug most abused by juveniles is barbiturates," said Hy Rothstein, health and physical education consultant for the Miami school system.

Dr. Larry Miller, coordinator of adolescent services at Bernalillo County Mental Health Center in Albuquerque, N.M., said "the use of LSD appears to be on the decline but more and more kids are turning to prescription drugs such as addictive barbiturates."

Preliminary results of a survey conducted in 55 secondary schools (grades 7 through 12) in Houston last September indicated 4.39 per cent of the 5,900 students responding to a questionnaire had tried one of the hard drugs—heroin, cocaine, opium or morphine—in the previous half year and 2 per cent in the last 30 days.

Based on the number of students responding, almost 2,000 youngsters in the 55 schools had taken a hard drug in the seven days prior to the questionnaire.

"The surprisingly frequent and widespread use of hard drugs was the grimmest finding," said Mrs. Jeff Montgomery, a member of the district committee which conducted the survey. "We're sorry we didn't go below the seventh grade because it was already there."

The Haight-Ashbury Medical Clinic in San Francisco now finds 90 per cent of its patients are heroin cases, with about three-quarters of them white and many from well-to-do families.

"In the summer of 1969, we saw two or three heroin withdrawals a week. Now we see up to 60 a day," said Dr. George Gay, clinic director.

"The scene is heroin," he said. "We call 1970 the year of the middle class junkie. Heroin is now in the suburbs—it's no longer safely hidden in the black ghettos."

There is, however, one statistical survey in California's San Mateo County—perhaps the longest continuing, quality study of drug use among the young in the country—which indicates over-all drug experimentation may be leveling even for precollege youngsters.

The data—collected from 35,000 students in grades 7 through 12—reveals a large jump in use of LSD, amphetamines and marijuana between 1968 and 1969 but a peaking and decrease in many cases in 1970.

Money Box

By Frank Schell

From W.R.P., Wendell: I would like to know the value of a foreign coin I have. It is a little larger than a 25 cent piece, made of copper. On one side is a woman's bust. Around the edge is "Republique Francaise." Under the bust is the designer's name, Daniel-Bupuis. On the other side sits a woman with a breast plate and helmet, and what looks like a torch in her right hand, a large "5 cents" under her left hand. Around the edge is "Liberte Egalite Fraternite." On the bottom is the date, 1916 with designer's name as above.

Answer: Your coin is a standard French five centime piece, issued between 1898 and 1921. The coin is made from bronze, not copper. There are 100 centimes (pronounced "senteems") in one "franc"—and the franc is worth approximately 20 cents, United States exchange. Collector value of the coin, in extremely fine condition, is about fifteen cents. They are not scarce.

From J.L., Twin Falls: I have an old U.S. half dollar, dated 1824. On the face side of the coin is a woman's head. On the top of the head the word "Liberty" and on the left side of the head there are seven stars; on the right side of the head there are six stars. On the back of the coin is an eagle. Is this coin of any value? I also have an old U.S. dime dated 1869. Is this coin of any value? Also, I have three Indian Head pennies, dated 1889, 1893 and 1908. Are these coins of any value now?

Answer: The 1824 is a variety called the "Capped Bust Type," to 1836 and the edge is lettered "Fifty Cents or Half a Dollar." Beginning in 1836, the lettering was dropped and reading was substituted on the edges. About 3.5 million of the 1824 date were struck, and many of them are around, mostly in circulated condition.

This year's coins appear with an 1824 struck over an 1821, with a 4 over a 4; with the date struck over various other dates, and with a normal 1824 date. Prices are about the same and range from about $4 each in "good" condition to about $9 each in "very fine" condition. Uncirculated specimens bring considerable more as the coin is scarce in uncirculated condition.

The 1869 dime was struck at both Philadelphia and San Francisco, the latter bearing the mintmark "S." The Philadelphia coin brings from $1 up to $3.25, depending upon condition, and the "S" coin from $2.50 up to $9, depending upon condition. The three dates of Indian cents you ask about are not scarce. They are currently being bought from 15 cents up to about 90 cents depending upon condition. Without examining the coins, we cannot give a closer estimate than this.

From M.A., Twin Falls: I have some early dimes I would like to find out about. One is 1946, with Roosevelt's picture on it. Another is 1950; and the last one is 1952. Are these coins valuable? Where could I sell them?

Answer: Early dimes? Either you are "pulling my leg" or you are a young collector. None of the Roosevelt dimes are scarce, although the dimes prior to 1904 are being withheld from circulation because of their silver content. The 1946 dime was minted in over 255 million copies; the 1950, 50 million; the 1952, 99 million (all Philadelphia mintages) and if these are circulated dimes they will bring you 10 cents each. Uncirculated, they might be worth slightly more.

To our readers: This column is still much interested in collecting merchants' tokens from Idaho or the surrounding states. If you have any, or know of any, we would appreciate hearing from you.

(Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o The Times News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.)

in Real Estate-

See Your Realtor

Buying a home takes know-how.
It is not a job for an amateur.

An amateur cannot be expected to understand the many legal and financial complexities which may arise in any transfer of real property.

What is needed in any home-buying situation is a professional.

A professional is qualified to give expert advice on matters of taxes, maintenance, quality of construction and adequacy of public services. A professional is adept at analyzing the future of neighborhoods, the value of a home as a long-range investment and

A Realtor is a professional in real estate who has passed a state licensing examination and who subscribes to a strict code of ethics as a member of the local and state boards and the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

When you are ready to buy a home, look for the Realtor emblem. It's your assurance of professional know-how in all

It isn't tricky, it isn't secret, it isn't difficult and it isn't restricted in its usage.

The right combination is available to people from all walks of life, people with different needs and wants, people who want to buy and people who want to sell.

What is the right combination? It's people . . . and Want Ads working together.

Placing a Want Ad is easy. All you have to do is dial the Want Ad number -- 733-0931

We do the rest. We put your low-cost Want Ad message in print. Other people will read your message and respond.

When you have items you'd like to sell, use the people-to-people combination,

Let your Realtor show you why it's a smart move to buy a home now.

If you've outgrown your present home or neighborhood, and haven't traded up because you're waiting for prices to drop — you could be postponing today's happiness for even higher future costs. Here's the Smart move. Trade up now, through a Realtor. That way you'll ride the wave of increasing real estate values in a home that fits your family's needs. Sure, you'll be paying a higher interest rate for that new house — but that money will more than come back to you as the value of your real estate increases. Your Realtor is an expert when it comes to trading. He'll help you get top dollar for your present home, and see to it that your new house fits your family needs. And he'll help you secure the best available loan, too. Don't short-change yourself and your family by delaying your home purchase. Call a Realtor today. For Know-How In Real Estate—See Your Realtor.

Buy For As Little As $192 Down $65<sup>41</sup> Per Month

Yes, you too can afford to move up to a new Comet for as little as $192 down and then break those payments into easy pay-as-you-go system. As little as $65.41 per month for 3 years (that's $14.184 per week) will put you in the driver's seat. However, if you have a trade-in the payments can even be lower, but if not you get all the federal taxes paid in the $2188 price along with the Idaho Title Transfer paid. If financed, the total contract would be $2354.76 which is including A.P.R. of 11.08 which makes finance charges $358.76.

Why not buy a new or newer car now, why wait until they depreciate this fall. Theisen Motors is staying open Sunday to give the folks of Magic Valley a chance to shop before Memorial Day and if you're planning on taking a vacation we're also giving away free gas with each automobile.

BUGS BUNNY

by Stoffel & Heimdahl

CARNIVAL

"I DON'T LIKE IT! AND THAT GOES FOR ALL FOUR OF YOU"

"OF COURSE I REALIZE THAT FURS AND JEWELS AREN'T EVERYTHING, SNOOKUMS... THERE'S STOCKS AND BONDS"

"YOU KNOW... I SOMETIMES THINK OF MYSELF AS A SORT OF ONE-MAN 'DEPRESSION!'"

"I CALL IT 'AUTOBIOGRAPHY!'"

"WHAT DID I LEARN IN SCHOOL TODAY? WELL, I LEARNED THAT WHEN YOU LOOK OVER YOUR SHOULDER AT A 6 IT BECOMES A 9"

CAPTAIN EASY

by Leslie Turner

POOR EASY DOESN'T KNOW THAT THE WITCH CHILD, FANNY DOOLEY, HAS WISHED HIM A NEW PAIR OF FROG-MAN FLIPPERS SO HE'LL TAKE TOMMY AND JEFF TUBBS SKIN DIVING

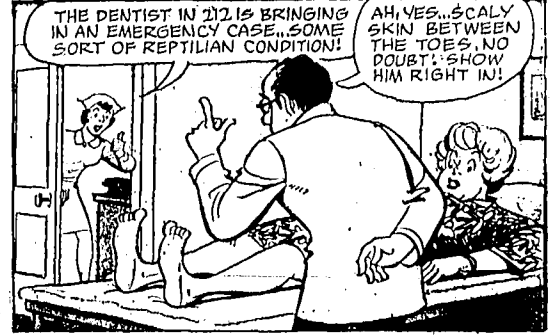

"G-G-GREAT SCOTT!...HOW LONG HAVE YOU HAD THIS-ER-CONDITION, EASY?"

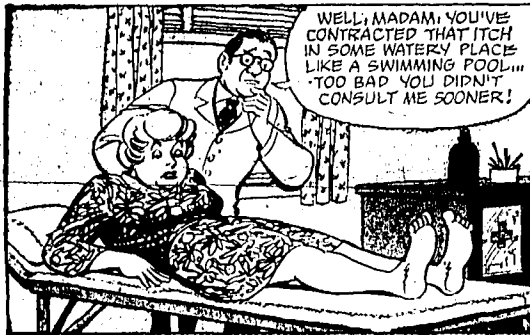

"SEARCH ME! MY SHOES JUST STARTED FEELING TIGHT, AND WHEN I KICKED 'EM OFF- THERE IT WAS!"

"ONE HARDLY KNOWS WHAT TO SUGGEST... PERHAPS YOU'D BETTER SEE THE PODIATRIST DOWN THE HALL!"

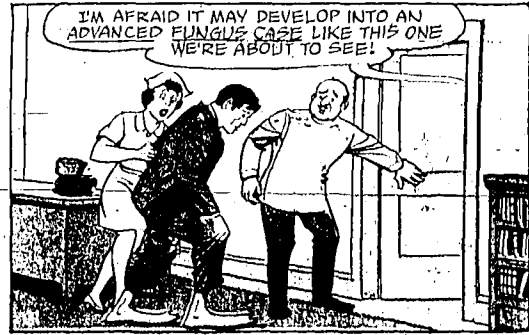

"THE DENTIST IN 212 IS BRINGING IN AN EMERGENCY CASE...SOME SORT OF REPTILIAN CONDITION!"

"AH, YES...SCALY SKIN BETWEEN THE TOES, NO DOUBT! SHOW HIM RIGHT IN!"

"WELL, MADAM, YOU'VE CONTRACTED THAT ITCH IN SOME WATERY PLACE LIKE A SWIMMING POOL... TOO BAD YOU DIDN'T CONSULT ME SOONER!"

"SOUNDED LIKE A WOMAN, OFFICER! A GHASTLY SHRIEK FROM THAT SECOND FLOOR WINDOW!"

PRISCILLA'S POP

by Al Vermeer

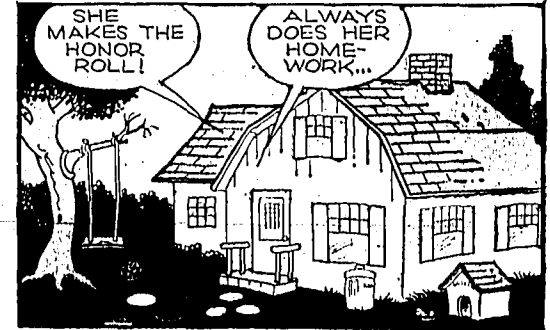

"OH, NO, PRISCILLA!!"

"NOT ANOTHER NOTE FROM YOUR TEACHER?!?"

"IF ONLY YOU WERE MORE LIKE HOLLYHOCK!"

"HOLLYHOCK NEVER BRINGS HOME NOTES FROM HER TEACHER!"

"ALWAYS DOES HER HOME-WORK..."

"HOLLYHOCK FINDS TIME TO GO TO THE LIBRARY..."

"HOLLYHOCK CAN'T WHISTLE THROUGH HER TEETH!!!"

FOR THE POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—If your daughter wants bell bottom pants, you can make them with some of her funny-looking straight pants. Take a triangular shaped piece of cloth, open one of the seams on each leg, set the triangle in and sew. Be sure to make the triangle long enough to put a hem in.—PEGGY

IF I CAN FIX BELL BOTTOMS FOR SALLY, WHY NOT BELL TIPS TO FIT YOU?

DEAR POLLY—When clearing the table, I put the silverware in a glass of hot water. By the time I am ready to wash it, the food has soaked off and the pieces are much easier to wash.—DEBBIE

DEAR POLLY—When dusting around the house, I use a baby's cotton-tipped stick to get to the places that cannot be reached with the fingers. These sticks work especially well between piano keys and the telephone dial.—LORRAINE

FIRST TIME I'VE BEEN ABLE TO DUST THE CRACK IN THE CEILING!

DEAR POLLY—Use a small piece of sandpaper wrapped around a little block of wood to remove lint balls from sweaters. Just rub gently across the sweater like you would a brush.—EMMA

DEAR POLLY—After opening a bottle of glue rub a little vegetable oil over the grooves so the top won't stick.—FREDA

DEAR POLLY—Two terry cloth towels sewed together, pillow case style, make colorful and washable slipcovers for kitchen and dinette chair backs.—MRS. W. C. J.

DEAR POLLY—The other night when I went to the laundromat I took my knitting along to keep busy while the clothes were washing. I was mist one knitting needle. When I went to the car to see if I could find it I saw a regular size plastic straw. To my amazement it worked well as a replacement for my No. 10 needle until I could get another.—IVA LOU

DEAR POLLY—To cover up the drab headboard on my bed I took two colorful bath towels and sewed them together on three sides. This easily slips over the headboard. By using one flowered towel and one plain one it is reversible for a different look. Easy to wash.—ROBIN

I SUPPRESSED PANIC, BUT NOT WORRY, AS KEVIN PREPARED TO GET TO MUIR'S BOAT BY HOOK OR CROOK, SEEKING YOUNG DAVE WHO WAS MISSING IN THE HURRICANE.

HOW'LL I KNOW IF YOU EVER GET THERE? IT'S DOWNWIND TO THEIR HURRICANE HOLE. YOU'LL NEVER GET BACK IN THE PINGHY!

REMEMBER THE WALKIE-TALKIES, DAD?

THEY'RE S-WATTERS AND SHOULD REACH A MILE OR TWO EVEN IN THESE WOODS. I WATERPROOFED THIS, IT'S IN A PLASTIC BAG.

GOOD! KEEP YOUR RECEIVER OPEN, ERIK! I'LL LET YOU KNOW, IF AND WHEN I FIND MUIR!

THE BOAT SWAYED INTO THE WIND, VOICED STEADILY, FILLED THE AIR, AND OUR BOAT YANKED AT THE LINES, HOLDING IT TO OUR HURRICANE HOLE!

I DON'T HEAR A THING, ERIK... DO YOU?

COOL IT, MA! DAD'S ONLY BEEN GONE ABOUT HALF AN HOUR!

HELLO, HEATHER! I'M ABOARD POLLY AND DAVE'S SAFE... DO YOU READ ME? OVER...

THANK HEAVEN! TELL HIM WE READ HIM, ERIK. I DON'T KNOW HOW IT OPERATES, AND ASK HIM WHAT DO WE DO NEXT?

DON'T LEAVE THE BOAT! IF IT CALMS IT MAY BE THE EYE OF THE HURRICANE... STAND FIRM, ERIK, TILL DAVE AND I SHOW UP. OVER AND OUT!

FOR SEN. GEORGE MCGOVERN,
North Dakota

What do you feel is the general reaction to your recent criticism of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam-Cambodian conflict?—J. Grady Stone, Onoonta, Ala.

● It is hard to gauge public reaction to the statements I have made. The main thrust of my statements has been that we should withdraw all of our forces from Indochina by the end of the year. A recent Gallup Poll shows that 73 percent of Americans support this position. The lack of overt reaction to the invasion of Laos is due, in my opinion, not so much to apathy as to frustration. Unfortunately, the Administration has been unwilling to recognize that the best course both for this country and for Indochina would be withdrawal of our forces.

FOR ELIZABETH POST,

eliquette expert
When RSVP cards are enclosed with wedding invitations should their return envelopes be preaddressed as well as predated?—Mary Fontaine, Venice, Fla.

● If you can afford it, yes.

FOR ARTIE JOHNSON

of TV's "Laugh-In"
I have heard that you supported yourself by making commercials before you hit it big on TV. What commercials did you do? Did you also work outside show business during that time?—Leo Brown, Atlantic City, N.J.

● I ran the gamut from lawnmowers to toilet-bowl cleaners. I also did 150 different shows, ranging from Red Skelton to Jack Benny to Dinah Shore. I was what they call a working actor, which means you earn the entirety of your living from some aspect of show business. And I might add I was doing very, very well. I could have been a working actor to this day if "Laugh-In" hadn't come along. You can have talent forever, but without luck, without being seen at the right time, who is going to know you have talent?

FOR ROBERT W. HAACK,

President, New York Stock Exchange
I am just beginning to purchase stocks and would like to know the function of the New York Stock Exchange.—J. J. Moore, Waco, Texas

FOR RUDY VALLEE

In your day you were the rage of young America. How do you feel about some of the current rages—Engelbert Humperdinck, Tom Jones, Johnny Cash and Elvis Presley?—R. D. Moore, Fort Smith, Ark.

● I don't honestly think they deserve all the furor that attends them. They are fairly manufactured. The Humperdinck voice is pretty good, but there is a case of a crazy name, good looks and sex appeal. Same with Jones. I think most of his popularity is exaggerated and manufactured. Johnny Cash doesn't do anything to me. He has a fast vibrate (a slightly treble effect) in his voice, and I don't much care for it. Elvis Presley? I worked in a picture with him recently and still can't understand his popularity. But who am I to question 200 million people? Actually, the public always wants somebody to rally around, to idolize, to make important. For real greatness, give me Crosby, Como, Vic Damone, Gordon MacRae and Allan Jones's son Jack—though I concede he doesn't have very much personality.

● The securities markets in general are the mechanism through which corporations raise the funds needed to finance their growth. Corporations sell their shares to underwriters, who then resell the shares to the public. However, there would doubtless be little incentive for investors to purchase these stocks unless there was a ready central marketplace in which they could convert their holdings back into cash with minimum inconvenience and at a price that reflects accurately the current worth of their investments. Providing this central marketplace is the principal function and value of the New York Stock Exchange. Because of the huge concentration of buying and selling interests on the trading floor of the Exchange and the continuous auction process provided by the Exchange, investors can, almost at will, liquidate their holdings or make additional purchases if they wish.

FOR GRACE HALSELL,

author of "Soul Sister"
In order to write your book, you had to turn yourself black and then back to white. How long did it take?—C. Haman, Hobbs, N.M.

● I received medication from a skin expert and in conjunction with that I sunned myself. At the end of two weeks I saw a startling change. After being fitted with black contact lenses—my eyes are blue—I was ready to pose as a black woman. When my research was finished, I went into seclusion for three months to write the book. I used no medication, and at the end of two months I looked like any white woman who has picked up a nice sun-tan.

FOR EDWIN POPE,

author of "Ted Williams—The Golden Year"
Having spent some time with Ted Williams since he took the job as manager of the Washington Senators baseball club, do you think he will stay in this role after the end of the 1971 season?—J. T. Turner, Bloomington, Ind.

● I will be very surprised if he makes it through the 1971 season. He is unhappy with the trade that took away half his infield, and he doesn't need the sort of headaches Denny McLain can give a manager.

FOR SHIRLEY JONES, actress

How do you manage a career and family? Does your TV series give you more time than your previous schedule did?—Mrs. A. J. James, Salt Lake City, Utah

● What I try to do is equalize the two. I don't give either one my full attention. It's funny, but the reason I wanted a TV series was that I would be home more. Doing movies and stage work kept me away a lot. I thought a TV series would be one way to stay home. But now I find I only see my boys on weekends.

FOR MILBURN STONE,

TV's "Gunsmoke"
Where may I obtain the poem that you do so eloquently on television, about the little dog that died? I have heard you do it at least twice, and each time it breaks me all up. Karl P. Newman, Belmar, N.J.

● The poem that you are referring to is unpublished but copyrighted. However, the poem does not belong to me, and I am very sorry to say that I cannot send you a copy. Plans are for the poem to be released soon.

FOR RUDOLPH WANDERONE,

"Minnesota Fats," the champion pool player
Have you ever lost a pool match? If so, who beat you?—Larry Lester, Detroit, Mich.

● I beat everybody. I have never lost a match. They may think they have a chance, but when it's all over, they've got a better chance going to Vietnam with a BB gun than beating me.

FOR RED SKELTON

● There are several writers on my staff, and I write many of the jokes myself.

YOU CAN HELP STOP THE SEAL SLAUGHTER!

At the present rate of destruction... THE SEAL may soon take his place with the other 550 extinct or threatened species of the animal kingdom. A victim of man's greed...

Why? Because in 1900 there were 20-million seals off the coast of eastern Canada. Today there are less than 2 million!

Every spring the Gulf of St. Lawrence is the scene of a brutal massacre. The bloody ice floes are covered everywhere with seals—gaffed, kicked, clubbed and shot. Under the ice wounded seals hide, blood and suffer. Nursing babies are bludgeoned and SKINNED ALIVE before their mothers' eyes. (When you see a mother seal licking its dead baby's still warm body, you get an idea of "Springtime in the St. Lawrence." It's like no springtime anywhere...)

BUT WAIT!

Before you blame our Canadian neighbors for their cruelty, take a look at YOUR very own massacre carried-out regularly on the Pribilof Island seal rookeries (off the coast of Alaska). The bloody scene is replayed with AMERICANS wielding the clubs...

Help STOP THIS TRAGEDY! Once the last seal is gone, it can never again be recalled from the dust of time—and YOUR world will be changed forever. Enough said. Enough dead. It's your move...

Hot Pants, Non! The Classic Look, Oui!

"What about those of us who spent all of our money on last year's longer hems? To these women, my sisters, I say: Now is the time to buy a cardigan suit!"

By Genevieve Antoine Dariaux

ONCE UPON A TIME, there were four or five Princes living in Paris who designed a kind of uniform, twice a year, for all the women in the world. The Princes were known to the world as fashion designers. They decided such things as when women would wear pink, feathers or corduroy, when the hems of their dresses would stop at so many inches from the earth and whether women would resemble tulips or string beans. Most women did not think that they could question the Princes' orders: they were like well-disciplined soldiers who obeyed but did not try to understand.

Alas, as is well known, mankind is bored quickly with perfect systems and cannot live in peace and comfort for long. Circa the middle '60s, sex came into fashion. Not that it had been unpopular before, but it had not been so shamelessly publicized since the fall of the Roman Empire. In order to get coverage in newspapers and magazines, couture houses had to think SEXY.

First we laughed at a bride whose bouquet lighted up; then we sighed at transparent tops and naked navels. Then in the spring of 1970, we cried upon the ultimate horror: an Yves St. Laurent collection that included, among other atrocities, a fully transparent bridal gown.

All of a sudden, the fashion writers began to scream that it was too much. For the first time, Saint Laurent was no longer their Prince Charming. It was as if the spoiled child had spat in his soup; he had gone too far. It could have been a lesson for the fashion writers. They could have confessed that for years they had helped the Prince sacrifice elegance for shock. They could have said: let's forget about the Indians, the Gypsies and the Russians. Let's be serious again and publicize the marvelous suits from Givenchy or Chanel or the fantastic evening dresses from Lanvin and Grès. But, no. Out of the 2,000 outfits which the writers saw in Paris at the end of January, they picked only a certain style of shorts, which they renamed "hot pants." They did not care that in the whole Paris couture there were no more than 40 pairs or so of these shorts, or about two percent of the total showing. They made it clear that if you don't appear at your sister's wedding in shorts, you won't get your picture in the paper.

What about those of us who spent all of our money on last year's longer hems? What about those of us to whom "hot pants" are abhorrent? To these women, my sisters, I say: now is the time to think classic again. Now is the time to buy a cardigan suit, a skinny reefer, a pleated shirtdress and a blazer. You can dig out your precious pearls and your beloved gloves, and you can buy cheerful and becoming colors again instead of the dull ones we've been offered. As for shoes—the simple pump will be the safest, and no ankle straps please!

Thank you, Mr. Saint Laurent. We needed someone who would have the courage to commit hara-kiri. By designing the absolute in ugliness, you have given us the will to rebel. Please let us know how we can repay you—as long as it is not by wearing your clothes. ↓

Genevieve Antoine Dariaux, director of the couture house Nina Ricci in Paris, has written four books for Doubleday: "Elegance," "Entertaining with Elegance," "The Men in Your Life" and "Accent on Elegance." Her first novel, about a couture house, will be published next year.

Constipated Today?

You wouldn't be if—

...you realized that as you get older your system naturally slows down and the laxative you have been taking may no longer be best for you. So, if you've been taking magnesium, salts, oils or harsh chemical laxatives once a week or more and you're still not satisfied—here's a better way to end constipation worries. Take medicinally proven Serutan. It's different!

Unlike other laxatives that may cause irritation or gripping, Serutan, taken daily, forms a soft gel which moistens food wastes and shapes them into a well-formed stool. Serutan produces the proper amount of bulk needed to help bring peristaltic stimulation to your sluggish colon. This is utterly different from forcing your system with harsh chemical laxatives which may dry you out. You can take gentle Serutan every day because it is a pure, non-irritating vegetable hydrogel and contains no harsh roughage, no chemical laxatives. Take Serutan every day to get regular—and keep regular.

Delicious Fruit Flavor

Serutan now comes in a delicious fruit flavor. Get Serutan regular powder, fruit flavor or toasted granules today. When you read Serutan backwards, it spells "natures." And nature's way is best. Get Serutan today.

One of the most exciting baseball games ever played was the fourth game of the 1947 World Series. Remember why? And then there was the fantastic Notre-Dame-Ohio State football game back in 1935. Know what happened then, and who won?

My Most Exciting Moments In Sportscasting

By Red Barber

Two points.

First, a man must realize he is very blessed to have the opportunity to broadcast just one great sports event, much less a dozen of them. I have been announcing sports 41 years, with 33 of them at Cincinnati (five), Brooklyn (15) and Yankee Stadium (13).

Second, I am readily able to pinpoint certain events as being "most exciting" because I have been asked repeatedly to name them by our servicemen and women around the world during USO tours. Even if I had not had those USO tours, the writing of "Walk in the Spirit" and of "The Broadcasters" would have set these events in sharp focus.

The single most exciting moment I ever had the chance to announce, was the last inning of the fourth game of the 1947 World Series. In fact, I will take that entire World Series as the most exciting World Series ever played.

Please keep in mind that I am selecting my most exciting moments and that there are always strong personal and professional reasons for choosing one event over another. The whole 1947 season had a great impact on me. In the first place, that was the year Jackie Robinson broke the "color line." Since he was the first Negro ever to play in any professional sport, and since I was his team's broadcaster, I had a hot microphone every inning of every game. Also, 1947 was the year Leo Durocher started off as the manager of the Dodgers in spring training, only to be suspended just before the season began by Commissioner Happy Chandler. Branch Rickey offered Durocher's job to Joe McCarthy, who had left the Yankees, but McCarthy refused it.

With the season two days old, and with no manager, Rickey brought out of retirement his old friend Burt Shotton, who was 63. Shotton took over the shocked, divided Dodgers. He promptly smoothed out the team and won the pennant. It was Manager Shotton who actually "integrated" Robinson.

Mel Allen and I were the World Series announcers. He did the first half of the fourth game and turned the mike over to me in the middle of the fifth inning. Within three outs, I had to make a drastic decision, and in the making of it decide publicly whether I was a radio reporter of an event or a dispenser of superstition.

You see, ball players from early times had made it a rule that, once their pitcher went five innings without giving up a hit, no player would mention it for fear of adding extra pressure. This has practical merit, or had in the days before hits were posted on the scoreboard for all to read. However, this hoodoo spread to the press boxes, and the writers picked it up. They got worse about it than the ball players. Nobody in a press box dared say aloud that a man had not permitted a hit once the pitcher was past the fifth inning.

This superstition infected most of the radio booths when radio play-by-play arrived on the scene. Mel Allen was a hoodoo medicine man of the most violent order. I never had paid any attention to it. The first big-league game I had ever announced was Opening Day in Cincinnati in 1934. Lon Werneke of the Chicago Cubs had pitched a one-hitter. Comorosky of the Reds got a ground single between Werneke's feet with one out in the ninth inning. I detailed that game exactly the way it was played, and I continued to do the same with others—including no-hitters by Johnny Vander Meer, Jim Tobin, Tex Carleton and Ed Head.

But what you do on a local radio station is something different from what you do on a world-wide network for the broadcast of the World Series.

So . . . Mel handed me the mike in the middle of the fifth inning, and I soon had the bear by the tail. Bill Bewens of the Yankees had walked a few Dodgers, but he had not given up a hit. This would have presented Mel with no problem. He would have ducked and dodged and hinted something was a-going on, but he would not have said Bevens was pitching a no-hitter. Not Mel Allen.

As I said, I had to make a public decision: report, and report in full, without tampering with the hard news; or, avoid the plain facts and make my national obeisance of the gods of superstition. So at the end of the fifth inning I said, matter of factly, what were the runs, hits and errors . . . and what were not. Mel gasped alongside me. The rest of the men in the booth were smitten.

The innings went by and Bevens continued to walk some Dodgers, but he gave them not a hit. When he began the last of the ninth inning he had set a new World Series record for no hits. Red Ruffing had gone into the eighth inning against the Cardinals in 1942 without permitting a hit, and I had done that broadcast. Somehow nobody remembered I had reported that game factually, too.

But they sure remembered with a vengeance my reporting of Bevens. I suppose because it all got so tremendously dramatic, Bevens finally had two Dodgers out, with a runner at first base, the result of a walk. The runner was Al Glonfriddo, and he stole second. The Yankees were ahead 2-1, so Glonfriddo at second was now the tying run. Pete Reiser was batting. With a count of three and one, Bucky Harris, the Yankee manager, ordered ball four. This move by Harris violated the book because he put on base the possible winning run.

Manager Shotton sent Harry Lavagetto to bat for Eddie Stanky. Two men out and two men on. The Yankees leading by one run. Bevens had walked 10 men by now, but he had not given a hit. Everybody knew what was up. Bevens was a bigger story than the outcome of the game. Everybody was shouting. Bedlam in Brooklyn.

Bevens pitched and Lavagetto swung and missed. Bevens pitched again, and

Sports Highlights of My Career

1934—The Cincinnati Reds flew to Chicago and became the first major-league team to fly during the regular season. I broadcasted the game via short wave from a plane to radio station WLW in Cincinnati.

1935—Cincinnati played the first big-league night game. It was also the first sports event broadcast on Mutual Broadcasting System.

1935—Notre Dame 18—Ohio State 13.

1938—Double no-hit games by the Reds' Johnny Vander Meer.

1940—Chicago Bears 73—Washington Redskins nothing.

1941—The Brooklyn Dodgers won the pennant but lost the World Series to the Yankees, when Mickey Owens dropped a third strike in the last inning of the fourth game.

1946—Army nothing—Notre Dame nothing.

1947—Jackie Robinson's first year . . . Brooklyn pennant . . . Leo Durocher suspended by Commissioner A.B. Chandler . . . Harry Lavagetto got only hit off Bill Bevens in the fourth game in the World Series . . . Al Glonfriddo robbed Joe DiMaggio of a home run in the sixth game.

1948—Gretchen Fraser won the first ski medal (gold) for United States in Olympic Games . . . St. Moritz, Switzerland.

1954 through 1960—Being around Casey Stengel at Yankee Stadium.

1961—The year of Roger Maris with 61 home runs and Mickey Mantle with 54—the M & M Boys.

1963—Mickey Mantle came within 18 inches of being the only player to hit a ball out of Yankee Stadium. The ball struck the top of the right-field stands 106 feet above the ground, some 390 feet from home plate. The ball was still rising when it hit the façade of the roof. The hit was off Pete Ramos.

Lavagetto hit a high line drive off the right field concrete. He knocked in both runners and won the game 3-2.

Turning to football. . .

I broadcast two games that still stand out like headlights on a clear night: Notre Dame at Ohio State in 1935, and Chicago at Washington for the NFL Championships in 1940. Last year, when the NCAA asked a select group of sports writers and announcers to name the most exciting college football game ever played, the vote was heavily for the one at Columbus, which the Irish won 18-13, with two touchdowns in the last minute of play.

Notre Dame and Ohio State had never met before. They collided in the huge, double-decked horseshoe unbent and untied.

The Buckeyes led 13-0 at the half, and it looked as though they would win easily. This was a ferocious team coached by Francis Schmidt. Elmer Layden, one of the Four Horsemen, was the coach of the Irish, and Layden started his second team the second half. It did a job.

Notre Dame was dominant the rest of the day but kept trailing in points.

After the fateful game: A disconsolate Bill Bevens, a happy Lavagetto

The Irish got a touchdown, but Peters missed the try for the extra point and it was 13-6. With about 55 seconds left, Notre Dame scored again. Peters tried for the point that would tie it at 13-13. He missed, and it was certain Ohio State had now won it, 13-12.

Notre Dame kicked off to Ohio State, and the Buckeyes fumbled one play later. Notre Dame got the ball. Notre Dame's Andy Pilney got hurt, and Bill Shakespeare was in. On the next play, Shakespeare passed. I made a very serious mistake on that pass, but the listeners were so excited that nobody realized it. Shakespeare passed into a mass of men. I saw the ball get caught, but I couldn't see the jersey number of the receiver. I thought it was Peters who caught the ball, but I later found out it was Wayne Millner. Notre Dame suddenly won, 18-13.

The 73-0 rout by the Chicago Bears of the Washington Redskins was the most shocking football game ever played. These were both excellent professional teams. Washington was led by the great Sammy Baugh, and Washington had beaten the Bears 7-3 two weeks before the title game. In the regular season, Washington had the better record, having won nine and lost two, while the Bears were eight and three. Washington was slightly favored.

Boom! On the second play from scrimmage, Bill Osmanski of the Bears went 68 yards for a touchdown, and the Bears never stopped. 73-0! Incredible, awesome, unbelievable. This one game changed the offense of all football forever, for the Bears were using the T formation with the quarterback under the center. The Redskins ran from single and double wing.

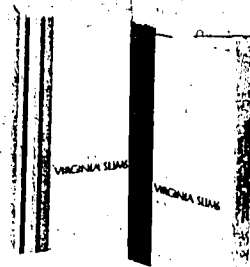

Football has never been the same since that afternoon. The best football team for one game I ever saw was that 73-0 miracle machine, the Chicago Bears.

That fantastic game still gives me the shivers. ♦

How Well Do You Know Your TV Set?

True or False: President Nixon has a three-screen set which enables him to see what is being shown on all three networks simultaneously

We've bought 163 million of them for our homes since World War II. They occupy almost all of us for at least an hour a day and some of us for 10 or 12 hours.

Yet how much do we really know about television sets? Try this true-or-false quiz to measure your knowledge.

1. You can be electrocuted by your television set, even when it's not plugged in.
2. For best viewing and least eye strain, you should sit about eight feet from your TV screen.
3. If you take your set to another country, it will play just as well as it does in the U. S.
4. If you sit too close to a color set, your body can absorb hazardous amounts of radiation.
5. Sales of color sets are no longer rising.
6. President Nixon has a three-screen set which enables him to see what is being shown on all three major networks simultaneously.

ANSWERS

1. True. Television sets operate on very high electrical voltage. Touching the high-voltage lead wire emerging from the transformer conceivably could, warns the Electronic Industries Association, of Washington, D. C., result in electrocution, particularly if one had "grounded himself" by touching some such object as a radiator at the same time. Even when the socket plug has been pulled, some components inside the set may retain the electrical charge for a time. The association advises: never open the back cover of your set; leave that for an experienced repairman.

2. True. Medically supervised tests have shown that a viewing distance of six to 10 feet subjects the eyes to the least strain from image distortion and brightness.

3. False. Transmission systems vary from country to country. In the U.S., our television picture is made up of 525 horizontal lines. The transmission systems of other nations around the world utilize either more or fewer lines. There also are differences in the number of pictures transmitted per minute, basic electric voltage and tuning. However, your set will work after it has been modified in the country in which it's to be used.

4. False. A Federal regulation establishes that X-radiation from color sets may not exceed 0.5 milliroentgens per hour. The Bureau of Radiological Health of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has stated there is no evidence of harm to humans from X-radiation at that level. The only uncertain factor is whether these tiny amounts of radiation might cause some genetic effect after years of exposure, possibly showing up generations later.

5. True. A total of 5.8 million color sets was sold in 1968, 5.5 million in 1969, and 4.8 million in 1970, according to E.I.A. statistics. This trend coincides, however, with the national economic downturn during this period.

6. False. President Johnson had such a set, but President Nixon replaced it with a console containing TV and stereo. It's said Nixon doesn't watch TV as much as LBJ did. ♦

Instant Canoe Can't Crash!

- Can't Crash—Just Bounces • No Work—Inflates in Minutes
- Easy To Lift, Tow, Launch • Packs Small—Goes Anywhere

Thanks to the discovery of a new, super-strong synthetic material called "Dynalid," a new type of pleasure boat has been developed. The Pyrawa inflatable canoe is totally portable, extraordinarily safe, and fun for all.

Multiple, separately inflated compartments insure maximum safety. If one compartment should get punctured, the other compartments more than keep you and your Pyrawa afloat. The maintenance kit that comes with every Pyrawa has everything you need to repair your boat in minutes... permanently.

Fishing, surfing, camping... even in whitewater, you'll have more fun with less effort. And best of all, you can take it with you. Pyrawa packs small. It's easy to carry and it inflates in minutes. Take on your back or your motorcycle. In a plane or a trunk, Pyrawa goes with you.

These boats are tremendously popular in Europe. Now, they are available here! Only upkeep necessary is an occasional hosing down with plain water. Don't miss out on boating pleasure this summer. Take advantage of this incredible offer and order your inflatable canoe today.

Incredible Comfort! You'll never know how comfortable these boats really are till you try one.

What People Say About PYRAWA:

"Our Pyrawa reached places otherwise inaccessible. We even played games with beavers." —W.S. Wieg. "We really enjoyed our Pyrawas. My wife and I back-packed 26 miles on lakes, 20 mile runs, lots of rapids, no trails, heavy underbrush and downhill or—20 miles to 10 days. Pyrawas made traveling much easier."

Inflatable Pyrawa best thing on river. Very rough, low water. Regular canoe or kayak can't make it, rubber rafts require a lot of portaging. Lots of enjoyment out of Pyrawa."

"Took Pyrawa for several trips down river with grandchildren; also to mountain lakes. Ideal to carry around. Have truck-camper, keep canoe inside tented. Greatest use—Pyrawa in surf. You can't even turn it over, it's like a cork. Whether you go sideways or backwards, it always stays on top." —W.A.H. Texas

"Any inflatable is a dozen times safer in rough water than the best 'small hard' boats." now reports Sports Afield Magazine.

Great for any kind of water fun!

Pyrawa canoe walls are electrostatically welded of "Dynalid," a new material of high molecular weight giving exceptional strength and durability. Running over with car didn't even hurt this Pyrawa!

How To Collect Up To $10,000 In Extended Benefits On Top Of Your Present Hospital Insurance

Now! Whether you are in the hospital or not, Americare® Major Medical Plan pays 80% of all eligible health care expenses over the deductible amount for which you qualify... pays as much as $10,000 in tax-free cash for doctor, hospital and other bills... even helps pay many "extended care" costs that regular hospital insurance may not cover at all.

Shut your eyes for a moment, and imagine yourself in this kind of catastrophic situation:

Yesterday you were well and happy, with no thought of an impending accident. Or, perhaps, last week you felt some tiny twinge, yet did not connect it with coming health trouble.

Now suddenly you are in a hospital bed. Flat on your back. Perhaps being prepared for surgery. Perhaps under intensive care in a recovery room.

Your first thought, naturally, is: Will I be all right? Will I get well?

And next: How much is all this going to cost me? WILL MY HOSPITAL INSURANCE BE ENOUGH?

If you are faced with a long period of costly treatment and convalescence—and have only "regular" hospital insurance—the answer has to be NO.

That's because regular hospital insurance, the kind most families have, was designed to help pay for shorter hospital confinements. And as great a blessing as these plans are, most simply were not designed to provide for really long-term hospitalization, or the kind of extended care at home that usually goes with "catastrophic" illnesses or serious-injury accidents.

It is this long-term need—with expenses that can run into thousands of dollars—which American Republic's special Americare® Major Medical Plan was designed to fill. In simple terms, the Americare® Major Medical Plan starts where regular hospital insurance usually stops.

Yet its cost, for qualified persons or families, is remarkably low—indeed, often LOWER than some forms of ordinary hospital insurance.

Excepting only the usual exclusions—and after the deductible amount for which you qualify—your Americare® Major Medical Plan PAYS 80% OF ELIGIBLE EXPENSES UP TO $10,000— for each separate accident or illness.

Eligible expenses covered under this Americare® Major Medical Plan include:

- Hospital room, board and general nursing care—up to $36 per day (80% of $45).
- Medical or surgical diagnosis or treatment by a doctor, in or out of hospital.
- Anesthetics, and anesthetic administration.
- Drugs and medicines requiring doctor's prescription.
- Private duty nursing by a registered graduate nurse, when prescribed by a doctor.
- X-ray services and diagnostic laboratory procedures.
- Artificial limbs or eyes, casts, splints, trusses, braces, or crutches.

- Oxygen and equipment for its administration.
- Rental of a wheel chair, or hospital-type bed, for use at home.
- Professional ambulance service to or from local hospital.

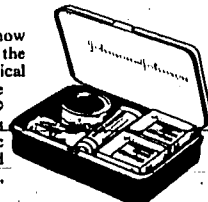

You are covered for eligible expenses which result from any accident after the date your policy is issued, and as a result of any sickness that is first manifested more than 30 days from date of issue and which begins while the policy is in force. Unless, of course, such expenses result from war, mental disorder, attempted self-destruction, maternity, dental work, except as required because of injury to sound natural teeth, injury or sickness for which benefits are payable under any workmen's compensation, occupational disease or similar law; birth irregularities or cosmetic surgery unless occasioned by injury; eye refractions, eye glasses or the fitting thereof; hearing aids or the fitting thereof, or when services, supplies, or treatments are provided by or are covered under any federal, state or other governmental plan or law.

SPECIAL OFFER TO SENIOR CITIZENS:

Americare® has a special protection service designed exclusively for you. It is a low-cost plan that can pay you hundreds of dollars in addition to Medicare or other coverage. Guaranteed renewable for life. For free folder, check box on reply card.

What You Can Do Now With Inflatable Boats

Collapsible, maneuverable and virtually unsinkable, these offspring of the old-style life raft offer a cheap low-maintenance way to get in on the boating boom

By Cecil Hoge, Jr.

"The public is beginning to realize just how practical, safe and inexpensive inflatables are."

In the past, running a rough whitewater river has been the sometime sport of expert enthusiasts or impetuous fools.

Riding raging rapids is like surfing a boulder-strewn beach. As long as you avoid the rocks and boulders, you're safe. One slight miscalculation, however, might result in disaster. A rough whitewater river can destroy a canoe in seconds.

Then people began to run whitewater rivers in inflatable pontoon rafts—and today, running whitewater rivers is one of the fastest growing sports in the country. Because inflatables are the safest type of boat in rapids, there are now a number of whitewater schools that take people down rivers only in inflatables. The vinyl canoe shown on the cover and above is another type of inflatable that has been used extensively on rivers. These canoes have the advantage of having the maneuverability of a canoe and the safety of an inflatable.

Up until recently, inflatables made almost no inroads in this country. Most people thought that inflatables would instantly puncture and sink like a stone. They were not aware that practically all inflatables have multiple, separately inflated air compartments making this virtually impossible. And many were not aware of the tremendous scientific progress in the field of synthetic rubber materials.

However, as people began to shed their prejudices about inflatables and realized just how safe, practical and cheap they really were, inflatable sales began to rise.

Basically, there are two types of materials used in making inflatables. The most expensive and toughest are made out of neoprene-treated nylon fabrics. The nylon fabric gives the boat its strength, and the neoprene provides a watertight seal. Any inflatable made out of this material is virtually impuncturable.

The other type of material widely used is vinyl. This is far cheaper, but it is also easier to puncture. Still, provided that it is not of inferior quality, vinyl can withstand almost any treatment it receives, including that of whitewater. In addition, it is also easier to repair a vinyl inflatable.

There are three basic types of boats being offered on the inflatable boat market today: canoes, dinghies, speedboats. Of the first two, the canoes are more maneuverable and have more of the characteristics of an actual boat. The dinghies, on the other hand, being almost round, generally hold a little more but are harder to maneuver, especially in the surf or whitewater.

The speedboats are normally made out of neoprene-treated fabrics because they have to have enough rigidity to support an engine. Usually, they have a wooden floor and transom to give extra support. They range in sizes from seven to 20 feet and take outboard engines up to 50 hp. They are used as dinghies, as fishing boats—even for water-skiing.

Generally, inflatable speedboats can do anything a normal hard-hulled boat can do, only better. They take less draft, turn sharply and have much faster initial pickup. And they use less gas because they are lighter. Any inflatable will fit easily into the average-sized trunk of an American car.

Today, for the first time, the American public is realizing just how practical, safe and cheap inflatables are. More and more people, with limited space and money, are finding they can have full boating pleasure without the usual expense and bother. Inflatables have truly come of age. ♦

FAMILY COOKOUT

The chuck roast and vegetables, cooking slowly in their foil packet with horseradish sauce, take on a fine blend of flavors.

CHUCK ROAST-VEGETABLE SUPPER PACKET

- Beef blade pot roast, about 5 lbs.
- Garlic cloves, silvered
- Dill weed
- 1½ tablespoons salt
- 1 cup catsup
- ½ cup bottled steak sauce
- ¼ cup cooking oil
- ¼ cup prepared horseradish
- ¼ cup wine vinegar
- ¼ cup dark corn syrup
- 2 teaspoons dry mustard
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 onion, chopped
- 1 carrot, pared and sliced
- 2 celery stalks, sliced
- 1 cup parsley, snipped
- Onions, sliced
- Carrots, pared and cut in half lengthwise
- Potatoes, pared

1. Cut slits in surface of meat on both sides. Poke garlic slivers and a generous amount of dill weed into slits. Rub both sides of meat with the 1½ tablespoons salt.

2. Grill meat over hot coals 15 to 20 min. on each side, or until brown.

3. Meanwhile, mix remaining ingredients except vegetables, in a saucepan. Cook, stirring constantly, over low heat until mixture comes to boiling. Set aside.

4. Put the chopped onion, sliced carrot, celery, and parsley onto three thicknesses of heavy-duty aluminum foil in long lengths. Sprinkle vegetables generously with Accent. Spoon some sauce over all. Transfer meat to the vegetable bed.

5. Surround and top meat with remaining vegetables and sauce.

6. Wrap tightly in foil using a drugstore fold (avoid puncturing foil when handling the meat packet). Set on grill over low coals and turn every 30 min. Cook about 2 hrs. 6 servings

SHRIMP-BOLOGNA PACKETS

18-in. heavy-duty aluminum foil, 4 long lengths

- 2 lbs. fresh shrimp, peeled, deveined, and rinsed
- 1 lb. bologna (casing removed) cut in thick 3-in. strips
- 2 large green peppers, cut in long ¼-in. strips
- Celery, cut diagonally in 1-in. lengths

- 16 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 cups bottled barbecue sauce with onion

1. Bring edges of each length of foil up slightly. Divide shrimp, bologna, green pepper, and celery equally among the packets; sprinkle generously with Accent. Put 4 tablespoons butter or margarine into each packet. Pour one-half cup sauce into each packet.

2. For each packet, bring two opposite edges of foil together over mixture and wrap tightly using a drugstore fold; turn up ends and fold to seal.

3. Set packets over hot coals on grill. Cook 15 to 20 min., or until shrimp are tender; turn packets over once during cooking. Open packets and gently mix shrimp with sauce before serving.

4. Serve with potatoes in foil cooked on the grill. Pull back foil, slit, fill with dairy sour cream, top generously with snipped chives and prepared bacon-like pieces. 4 servings

CHICKEN IN PINEAPPLE BARBECUE SAUCE

- Chicken breasts and legs, rinsed, dried, and seasoned
- 1 cup commercial barbecue sauce
- 1 can (about 8½ oz.) crushed pineapple
- 1 can (about 11 oz.) mandarin oranges, drained

1. Brown chicken on both sides over hot coals on a grill. For each serving, transfer 1 chicken breast and 1 leg to a length of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Turn up edges of foil.

2. Blend barbecue sauce, crushed pineapple, and oranges in a saucepan. Heat thoroughly, about 10 min. Spoon desired amount over chicken pieces on the foil.

3. Bring two opposite edges of foil together and wrap securely, using a drugstore fold; turn up ends and fold to seal. Cook over medium coals about 25 min., turning packets once or twice.

4. Serve with cold refried beans and bowls of potato and corn chips. 4 to 6 servings

STAR PROFILE/By Poor J. Oppenheimer

"What can you say to a girl who is six feet tall, measures 40-24-38 and whose religion is something called the 'Nichiren Shoshu of America'?"

A "Cultural" Chat With Hee Haw's Own Sunshine Cornsilk

Her figure has attracted attention since she was 12.

Lisa Todd told me she is Sunshine Cornsilk of TV's "Hee Haw," "... because I want to raise the level of culture in the United States."

Naturally I believed her. How can you doubt a girl who is six feet tall, measures 40-24-38 and who left a clattering wnk as male customers dropped knives and forks when she ambulated into the restaurant ahead of me—dressed in a tight red sweater, black hot pants and black stockings! She was also sporting a campaign button which bobbed up and down on her with the words "See You in Seattle in 1971" emblazoned on it. Asked what that meant, she informed me that it announced a gathering of the "Nichiren Shoshu of America," a Buddhist sect that has changed her life. "Since I learned to chant—which I do regularly every day—I've become an entirely different person," she confided as we settled in a booth.

She didn't stop talking for the next two hours. She informed me that she was born in California but grew up in Salisbury, Md., where her father was a salesman for Sears Roebuck.

Not surprisingly, Lisa confessed that her figure has attracted attention since she was 12 years old. "I've always been kind of different from other girls. That's why I was terribly shy."

Asked if, because of her shyness, she had trouble getting dates in school, an incredible look spread over her face. "I was not that shy!" she gasped. "But I had very few close friends because the girls really didn't like me that much. The boys—well, they didn't just want to talk, and I always like fellows with a high-level character, who have responsibility."

Lisa isn't married but someday would like to find a husband ("someone who likes to talk") and raise a big family. "But right now," she says, "I'm a career girl."

It was her mother who got Lisa started in show business when she sent Lisa's picture to Universal. The studio casting director was sufficiently impressed to recommend her to an agent, who immediately asked to represent her. At the time, she was a freshman at the University of California at Santa Barbara.

What did she study at the University? "Psychology," she told me. "Also, fencing, Ballet, French, boys, art appreciation, history, English..." She had the longest curriculum of any freshman who ever attended the University! "But I didn't do very well, which is why I left," she admitted. "If I'd known about chanting then, I think I would've done better."

Asked if there was any similarity between herself and Sunshine Cornsilk, she insisted, "Sunshine is not exactly stupid, but she is a bit naive and inexperienced. I don't think anyone who knows me would accuse me of being either." ♦

What in the World!

Ambadress Sam

A good listener

What does a Summer Festival Queen do before it's summer? We asked Samantha Ridge, 24, a blonde from Lansing, Mich., who has that role in New York City this summer. During the winter and spring she spent her time visiting different towns around the country and in Europe (her first trip) and made speeches, both impromptu and planned. "Sam" told us how growing up in a smaller community prepared her for her present way of life: "People in a small town are more compassionate and trusting. One thing I have learned is to smile and to listen to people when I meet them, so they will be at ease. I was terribly shy in high school, so I took speech. I was still shy. Then one semester I got A's. I was so happy I suddenly wanted to get up and talk. And I still do."

Friday begins the long Memorial Day weekend. For those who make it a "family reunion" time, the Mental Health Association has some advice—and comfort. It seems that an analysis of telephone calls from persons experiencing extreme tension or emotional problems reach a peak just after holiday weekends which are heavily family-oriented. The MHA suggests (1) a realistic acceptance of the fact that such tensions are normal. Family gatherings do trigger a range of memories and old reactions. (2) Avoiding too much inactivity can help situations from getting sticky. Organized outings leave less time to dwell on past problems.

It was students at the University of Florida, Gainesville, who first discovered the sport of inner-tubing down the Ichetucknee River, 35 miles away. Now each weekend about 100 families of floaters come to enjoy the gentle adventure. As part of the state park system, the river and surrounding wilderness are public and free—the only rules being no booze, motorboats or littering. The 72-degree current moves about a mile an hour, providing a three-to-five-hour trip. Because inner tubes are quiet craft, a floater can get a restful look at passing wildlife. On view are raccoons, turtles, fish, eel, aquatic ferns and mosses—and, occasionally, the shy alligator, which patrolling park rangers swear is not aggressive. The water is so clear the naked eye can see the white sand bottom; snorkelers spot fossils and Indian artifacts. Most of the adventurers eat en route, from home-packed lunches buoyed up by extra flotation gear. Those who prefer dry food wait for the regular picnic tables at the end of the three-mile run.

Quips & Quotes

MIXED GREENS

My salad garden's green and sleek;
I planted all the yard
With lettuce, radishes and leek,
Plus peppers, parsley, chard.

And every single seed I threw Came up without a hitch;
But omigod, I wish I knew
Which was which.

—Betty Billipp

Several old friends who were dog owners were discussing their pets one day. One of the men complained that his beagle had to be the dumbest animal in the world.

"That dog has been going to obedience school for over a year now," he said in disgust, "and he still doesn't know where the paper ends and the floor begins!" —Dan Bennett

Hypochondriacs suffer from acute imagination. —Frank Tyger

At a drugstore in a downtown area, a well-dressed woman tapped a coin sharply on the glass top of the candy counter, ignoring the fact that other people were ahead of her.

"Give me a pound of mixed nuts in a hurry, young lady," she snapped at the clerk. "I'm double-parked where I shouldn't be."

"Take your time, madam," said a man in uniform, whom she had just nudged aside, "I just gave you a ticket." —V. D. Palat

SOCIALLY RESTRICTED

When in my teens, at parties
It was always such a bore
To have to phone to Mother
For "just one hour more."
I vowed to marry early,
That I might have the right
To stay at parties dancing
Till the middle of the night!
But now that I'm a matron grown
My social life's still bitter.
To get that extra hour now—
I have to phone my sister!
—Maybelle Hinton Osborne

After dinner, the older sister of the family and her teen-age brother were watching their favorite TV program. During the commercial, the sister turned to the teen-ager and said, "Tell me, Jack, how come you date a different girl every night?"

"That's easy," was her brother's nonchalant reply. "I'm trying to find one who isn't fickle." —A. T. Quigg

LITTLE EMILY

"Okay, Mom and Dad! Which one of you stuffed this smelly old sock in my trumpet?"
