Body hunt widens

YUBA CITY, Calif. (UPI)—Mass murder suspect Juan V. Corona ate a steak dinner and visited with his family and a lawyer in his new jail Sunday while authorities widened their search for possibly more victims.

In 10 days, sheriff's deputies have unearthed 23 bodies of brutally slain itinerant farm workers from crude graves along the serene Feather River in this agricultural area 125 miles northeast of San Francisco. It is the greatest crime in history involving individual "murder by stealth."

The 22nd and 23rd bodies were found Saturday but none were uncovered Sunday despite an increase in the force of diggers from 15 to 25 men.

Sutter County Sheriff Roy Whitaker said the search would be expanded to "one or two" adjacent ranches Monday and would "continue for some time—several days."

"I don't believe the end is in sight right now," he said. "I just believe there's more out there." He added some of the suspected grave sites were under water from a week of rain and "it will be at least a week under bright sun" before they can be excavated.

Weary deputies, who have been wearing gauze masks, smoking cigars and burning their work clothes and work shoes "to ward off the stench of death," excavated three new "indentations" Sunday and went over the east section of the sprawling Jack Sullivan peach and prune orchards with metal detectors to locate possible voids in the mineral content of the soil.

Deputies have dug 36 holes and found 13 empty.

The bodies were transferred Sunday to a larger vault facility at the state capital in Sacramento, located approximately 60 miles south of Yuba City. Fourteen of the 23 victims have been identified, but home towns have not yet been established for the majority of the slain farmhands.

All of the victims were Caucasians ranging in age from 40 to 63. Most had been clubbed about the back of the head and face and stabbed in the chest.

Corona, 37, a stocky Mexican-American farm contractor with four young daughters and a history of mental illness, has been charged with 10 counts of murder. Public Defender Roy Van Den Heuvel said Corona would plead innocent when arraigned on the charges Wednesday in Yuba City.

Van Den Heuvel replied, "no comment," when questioned about a possible insanity plea.

Zavala acquitted by Rupert jurors

RUPERT — Antonip Zavala, 33, Rupert, was acquitted by a Fifth District Court jury late Saturday of charges of second degree murder.

Zavala was freed after spending two months in the Mindoko County jail awaiting trial.

Zavala was charged initially with first degree murder. The charge was reduced to second degree murder in the March 28 death of Mrs. Marcella Trujillo, 18, Rupert, who died when struck by a car as she walked beside a roadway near Rupert.

During the four days of testimony, it was brought out Zavala was driving the automobile which struck the woman, but the testimony of one witness, Baltimore Cruz, indicated the woman jumped into the path of the vehicle.

Jurors deliberated about nine and one half hours before reaching a verdict. At 5 p.m. the jurors asked to have the testimony of Cruz read to them again. In it, he stated the defendant had told him the day following the woman's death he had wrecked his car and that "a woman jumped in front of it."

At 9 p.m. the jury came into the court room to say it was deadlocked. After additional instructions from Fifth District Judge Sherman Bellwood, the jurors returned to the jury room. At 11:15 p.m., they reached a verdict of innocent.

During the trial, Prosecuting Attorney Don Chisholm asked for the impeachment of one of the state's witnesses, Rosale Montoya who was with the victim when she was struck by the car. Her testimony differed from that given in the preliminary hearing and also from a statement given officers following the incident.

Dean Klopfer represented the defendant during the trial.

Burley man dies in mishap

HAILEY — Henry Bellon, 23, Burley, died Sunday evening near Sun Valley when his motorcycle dropped from the edge of the pavement and went out of control, throwing him to the ground.

State Patrolman William Eugene Bellon said the man's helmet fell off when he was thrown to the ground and he apparently struck his head. Bellon was taken to the Sun Valley hospital where he died a short time later.

Officer Bellon said the young man and a companion were riding on State Highway 76 just past the entrance to Sun Valley at about 5 p.m. Sunday when the accident occurred. The other cyclist was not involved in the accident.

The body of Bellon was taken to Payne Mortuary in Burley where funeral services were pending today.

Jerome man dies from injuries

EDEN — Leon W. Baldwin, 48, died Sunday of injuries received in a farm accident on the Carrie Carpenter Ranch nine miles north of Eden.

Baldwin was working with a tractor and manure loader May 24 when he started the tractor and was pinned between the loader and the tractor, according to his son, Fred Baldwin, Redmond, Ore.

Baldwin shouted for help and one of the Carpenter children ran to get Carpenter. When the ranch operator arrived, Baldwin had worked himself free.

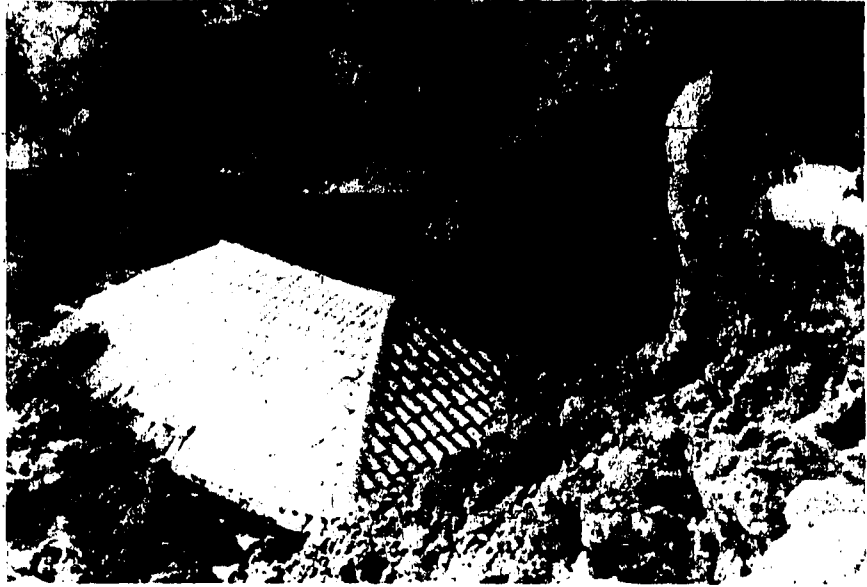

He was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital that afternoon by his wife. He was treated and released. He returned to the hospital Tuesday morning and was operated on Saturday night for blockage of an intestine, his son said.

Coed dies

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — At least five persons, including a 17-year-old American coed, were crushed to death when a local passenger train ramed into the rear of a stationary international express outside Amsterdam's Central Station Sunday night, police said today.

The dead American was identified by the U.S. consul general as Maureen Louise Friddy of Cumberland, Md.

Miss Friddy was traveling with a group of young Americans on an organized tour of Europe.

Missing plane sought

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (UPI) — Civil Air Patrol planes searched the Blue Ridge Mountain foothills today for a missing private plane carrying actor Audie Murphy, World War II's most decorated American soldier, and four others on a business flight from Atlanta.

The twin-engine Aerocommander last was heard from a few minutes before noon Friday when the pilot, Herman Butler of Crossville, Tenn., asked the Roanoke Flight Service Station for weather information and reported he had overflown his destination, the Blue Ridge Airport at Martinsville.

"They definitely know the plane is down somewhere," said Troy Beaver, one of Murphy's business associates.

The CAP set up a command post here and planes began searching a wide area extending from Roanoke southward to Hickory, N.C.—an area about 100 miles long and 75 miles wide. The area is hilly and is bordered on the west by the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Murphy, born to a poor farming family in Kingston, Tex., won 24 decorations, including the Congressional Medal of Honor, and was credited with killing, wounding or capturing 240 Germans during three years of combat in World War II.

He entered the Army's Third Division as a private and ended the war as a captain and company commander. He wanted to make the Army a career, but his many wounds forced his discharge with a 50 per cent disability pension.

Crossfire catches pilgrims

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese troops fleeing from a battle plunged into a throng of 60,000 Roman Catholics visiting a shrine near Da Nang Sunday. Some of the pilgrims were caught in a crossfire between the Communists and the pursuing South Vietnamese.

One of the pilgrims was killed and 10 wounded in the action around Pra Kleu hamlet, UPI photographer Willie Vicoy reported. An estimated 60,000 pilgrims were visiting the hamlet 730 miles northeast of Saigon.

Military spokesmen said at least 162 Communist troops were killed in fighting in the region Sunday, with South Vietnamese losses put at eight dead and 30 wounded.

Vicoy said at least six U.S. helicopter gunships raked Communist positions outside the hamlet with fire.

Wounded

JACKPOT — Richard Olsen, 33, Twin Falls, an employe at Jackpot, Nev., is in critical condition with injuries sustained in a gun accident Sunday evening.

Olsen was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital by Magic Valley Ambulance Service about 7:30 p.m. Sunday. Employes of the ambulance firm said Olsen was accidentally shot in the chest by a .22 revolver. The incident occurred in a building behind one of the casinos at Jackpot.

CAP conducts rite

TWIN FALLS — Rev. Eugene Tjarks, chaplain for the Twin Falls Civil Air Patrol Squadron, addressed a brief Memorial Day program in Twin Falls City Park this morning.

The observance marked the only public tribute for Memorial Day in Twin Falls, and is the third annual ceremony staged by the cadets.

Cadets gathered in front of the bandshell. Following the ceremony between rain showers, the group marched with a color guard to the Vietnam War Memorial. Cadet Tech. Sgt. Sandra Hammond played Taps in honor of veterans and a wreath was placed at the memorial in honor of those who have died in Vietnam and in earlier conflicts.

Participating in the color guard were Sgt. Kay Kolo, Sgt. Steven Wilkie, Cadet First Class Mary Tjarks and Cadet 2nd Class Paula Murray.

Woman arrested

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Police have charged a Twin Falls woman with embezzlement in connection with allegedly missing funds at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital in Twin Falls.

Capt. Tim Qualls of the department's detective division, said Mrs. Anna May Jones, 33, Route 3, was taken into custody about 10 p.m. Saturday at the hospital.

She was transferred from the city to the county jail, where bond of $1,000 was posted Sunday. She was released from custody.

Mrs. Jones is an employe at the hospital, where an alleged embezzlement of about $18,000 was disclosed during the annual audit.

Strike to halt telegraph here

TWIN FALLS — No telegrams will be sent from the Twin Falls area after 10 p.m. today if the United Telegraph Workers Union strike goes into effect, local Western Union representatives said this morning.

The local office said they will be advised by about 9 p.m. if the strike is called. If the strike is called, the local office will halt all incoming messages at 10 p.m. to assure delivery before strike time. Only three employes will be involved here but the entire Western Union operation would close down.

In Utah, administrative officials have announced plans to maintain the equipment and offices as long as possible unless equipment breaks down.

Yesterday Western Union Co. offered the union members a 10 per cent general wage increase the first year of a new contract and a 10 per cent hike again in the second year.

Turks seek death of 2

KARTAL, Turkey (UPI) — An angry mob gathered today outside a house and called for the execution of two men holding a 14-year-old girl as hostage inside. The two men wanted for the kidnap-murder of the Israeli consul general demanded free passage from the country in exchange for her release.

While the crowd milled around the three-story house and women yelled "let us crush the vermin" Brig. Gen. Celal Bulutlar told the two gunmen by megaphone he would turn them over to the mob if the girl was harmed.

Police and army units surrounded the whitewashed house where the men barricaded themselves Sunday morning while soldiers rigged ropeladders from the roof in hopes of entering the house and subduing the men.

A police spokesman said one of the gunmen said "The only way to save the girl is to let us and the girl travel to Nicosia, Russia or (Palestine) guerrilla bases in Jordan, where on arrival we will release the girl."

The young men, who fired occasionally at police, were identified tentatively as Mahir Cayan and Huseyin Cavahir, wanted as suspects in the slaying of Ephraim Elrom, the Israeli consul-general who was kidnaped and then killed eight days ago when the Turkish government refused his abductors' demands.

A woman in this seaside resort 23 miles from Istanbul saw the two youths leave a house. She recognized them from wanted posters, and when she began calling for police one of the men shot and wounded her. A man also was injured.

They ran into the home of Turkish Army Maj. Dincer Erkan. They held his wife Sevin; his son, Tamer, 10; and four female servants for a time before letting them go.

Nixon's aides deny tale of promise to end war

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House is labeling "untrue and ridiculous" the claim of Rep. Donald W. Riegle, R-Mich., that President Nixon promised privately to end the Vietnam War by mid-1969.

Riegle said Sunday that he and one of his staff members talked with Nixon in New York on June 22, 1968. Riegle said the discussion at Nixon's apartment just before the Republican Convention touched on Vietnam for about 90 minutes.

"At the end of that time, he said to me, don't you know if we are elected, we will end this war in six months," Riegle said.

"I did not expect him to make that statement, and I am not sure that I even thought about it as a commitment at that time," Riegle said. Riegle and Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., appeared together on the ABC-TV program "Issues And Answers."

Riegle said he supported Nixon's bid for the GOP nomination and election because he was led to believe the President would move quickly to get a peace settlement in Vietnam. He said he thought the voters who supported Nixon had the same impression.

Both congressmen said the President's failure to end the war and the prospect of a residual U.S. force in Vietnam for years to come were the main reasons for McCloskey's tentative plan to challenge Nixon in some Republican presidential primaries next year.

McCloskey said he intends to enter at least the Alaska and New Hampshire primaries unless Nixon changes his war policies or Congress votes to cut off money for U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Mariner 9 races Reds

Surface temperature of the sun is about 10,300 degrees F.; interior temperature is some 50 million degrees F.

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—Mariner 9 raced two distant Russian probes toward Mars today to orbit the planet, map its battered surface and search from its icy poles to dusty equator for clues of life.

The American spacecraft trailed the farthest Soviet craft by more than 1 million miles, but still was given a chance of reaching Mars first. Officials called the accuracy of Mariner's course "fantastic."

Mariner 9 is scheduled to brake into orbit around Mars Nov. 14. It carries two television cameras and other instruments to survey two-thirds of the Martian surface, analyze its thin atmosphere and look for low, warm and damp spots that might shelter primitive forms of life.

Soviet commentators have hinted the heavy Mars 2 and Mars 3 spacecraft might land on Mars with biological sensors. Mariner will not be able to detect living things from orbit, but may turn up evidence indicating the existence of extraterrestrial life.

Of particular interest to scientists is a mysterious "wave of darkening" suggestive of vegetation moving with the seasons. Mariner 9 is designed to operate in Mars orbit for at least three months to watch for seasonal changes.

The 2,200-pound, $85 million spacecraft was launched late Sunday. It performed one important maneuver after another before settling down for its curving, 247-million-mile interplanetary voyage.

Mariner 9 was operating on its own today, using the bright star Canopus as a celestial reference point along with the sun and the shrinking globe of earth. A central computer that can be cued from earth controlled routine operations.

"It appears as though we have a very successful and promising mission for Mariner 9," said a spokesman at the Mariner Control Center at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif. "The spacecraft behavior is completely normal."

Still ahead is an important course correction scheduled Saturday. It will compensate for a deliberate trajectory error programmed into Mariner's rocket to eliminate the possibility that the probe or the rocket would hit and contaminate Mars.

The Atlas-Centaur rocket that launched Mariner 9 was identical to the one that carried Mariner 8 to destruction May 8. But it worked smoothly Sunday, accelerating Mariner 9 to 24,500 miles per hour in 13 minutes to break earth's gravitational grip.

Gals tote gas guns to help curb riots

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Capital police are turning to a new resource to supply forces needed during demonstrations—women.

Dressed in blue slacks and blouses, and equipped with guns, tear gas, handcuffs and gas masks, the ladies of the law took positions with their male counterparts for the first time during the May Day antiwar protests aimed at shutting down the government.

The 5,100-member Metropolitan Police Department often is heavily taxed to maintain its regular patrols in a city plagued by crime and to provide the forces necessary to keep militant demonstrators in check.

Sgt. Ernestine Johnson, the department's coordinator of policewomen, said in an interview women do not usually share the front lines with men. But she said the demands on police are so heavy during demonstrations that women are being put to work on the streets.

Women undergo the same riot-prevention training as men when they are recruits, and also take the same refresher courses.

Sgt. Johnson says women are taught to use shotguns, tear gas and small arms as well as fundamentals of hand-to-hand self defense. They spend 18 weeks at a police academy, and even learn to fire "heavy weapons" such as rifles and machineguns.

The women are usually assigned to prisoner control and clerical duties.

Sgt. Johnson says patrolmen had "a little trouble getting accustomed to women on a job always considered a man's job," but they are getting used to it.

In fact, the veteran of 17 years with the department believes the capital police may be the most progressive in the nation. She notes there are three other women sergeants, as well as three lieutenants and one captain.

"There isn't a woman over the rank of lieutenant in New York and none over sergeant in Los Angeles," she says with a smile.

There are 104 women police now and six more in various stages of processing. And Sgt. Johnson claims women could make up an even larger proportion of the force, if recruitment hadn't been temporarily suspended.

"We have plenty of women asking to join the force, but we are holding them back," she says, "because we don't have enough uniforms."

Actress weds businessman on yacht

LONDON (UPI)—Jennifer Jones married California businessman-art collector Norton Simon aboard a chartered yacht Sunday in a pre-dawn ceremony on seas in the English Channel so rough the guests had trouble staying on their feet.

Simon, 64, said the Academy Award-winning actress "and I only met about four weeks ago. I fell in love immediately. We decided to come to Europe and it was in Paris that I proposed. We kept it quiet because we didn't want any publicity."

Miss Jones, 52, had been married twice previously—to actor Robert Walker, who she divorced in 1945 and who died in 1951, and to producer David O. Selznick, who died in 1965. Simon said difficult British residency requirements and the British Whit sun holiday week-end made a regular wedding on land impossible. They settled for a chartered yacht outside territorial waters.

A Unitarian clergyman was found to perform the ceremony and after a Saturday afternoon London shopping spree, they headed for Folkestone where they boarded a 50-foot yacht and went five miles out into the English Channel.

"It was great fun," Simon said. "We were bobbing about in the sea and in the early morning light I could just make out the White Cliffs of Dover. It was very romantic."

Many weep as student cites fear during girl's funeral

DREW, Miss. (UPI)—Averting his eyes from the casket, the black youth spoke hesitantly, his voice almost lost in the sobs of many of his 700 listeners.

Bob Wilson told of the fear among black students at the beginning of the school year at newly-integrated Drew High School last fall.

But, he said, his voice breaking, "we forgot our fear and looked to our future." Then he began sobbing uncontrollably and had to be led away.

It was the most poignant eulogy Sunday to Jo Etha Collier, 18, a black girl shot to death from a passing car last Tuesday night shortly after she had graduated from Drew High School. Three white men have been charged with the slaying.

The high school auditorium, where the girl had received a special award for "good conduct and over-all good attitude" five days before, was jammed. Another 600 persons gathered outside.

The girl's parents, Essie and Paul Love, and her seven brothers sat in the front row of the stuffy auditorium. "Oh, we were so happy," cried Mrs. Love.

The Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy of Atlanta, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, gave the main eulogy.

"Tragedy has struck again the state of Mississippi... the forces of evil and destruction have robbed us of one of our most promising and talented young people," Abernathy told the mourners.

Looking down on the casket from the auditorium stage were Mayor W. O. Williford, Police Chief J. D. Fleming and Sunflower County Sheriff Jack Sossams. Also on the stage were Fayette Mayor Charles Evers, a black candidate for governor; and Aaron Henry, state president of the NAACP.

"In spite of our suffering, trials and tribulations, this is not enough," Abernathy said. "Young white men can still move down a highway and shoot our little black girl, who has sought to be somebody and lift herself up."

"This community, and all communities throughout Mississippi, must band together as never before, not to fight with bricks and bottles or guns and bullets, but to fight nonviolently for our constitutional and God-given rights."

Pentagon delays critical messages

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Pentagon's multibillion-dollar Defense Communications System (DCS) takes 60 minutes to send a "flash" message in a crisis because of poor management, according to a congressional report.

The DCS also needs an average of 100 minutes to send a message stamped "immediate," said the report, which questioned:

"What could be expected from Department of Defense communications generally, and the Defense Communications System specifically, in a general war situation?"

Rep. Durward G. Hall, R-Mo., a member of the Armed Services investigating subcommittee that prepared the report released over the weekend, concluded, "We are in a hell of a mess."

The Defense Department has four categories of message precedence, and has established transmission time goals for each that it describes as "objectives."

The categories are flash, 10 minutes; immediate, 30 minutes; priority, three hours, and routine, six hours. In addition, messages in a category may also bear a flag word such as "critical" to help insure notice.

The time lapse for electrical transmission of a message around the world is 5 minutes, but delays in handling slow down even the fastest message by at least another 64 minutes, the report said.

It recommended centralizing responsibility for operations of the DCS in the office of the telecommunications assistant to the defense secretary.

The report said it took 3 hours for an "immediate" message to reach Washington from a U.S.

radar tracking station in South Korea when North Korean planes appeared on the tail of an EC121 reconnaissance plane. The EC121 was shot down.

The report said messages sent 13 hours before Israeli planes attacked the USS Liberty never reached the ship. In fact, one message went from the Pentagon to Fort Meade, an Army base about 30 miles from Washington.

There were 34 U.S. crewmen killed and 75 wounded in that attack, which might have been averted by moving the Liberty 6 miles deeper into the Mediterranean Sea, as the wayward message commanded.

The report said North Korea succeeded in capturing the USS Pueblo in part because of blundered and misdirected messages. One crewman died, three were wounded and 82 men were captives for 10 months.

COMMENT

Potato Fraud

The Food and Drug Administration has banned misrepresentation of the origin of foods, so the practice of labeling non-Idaho potatoes as Idaho-grown will at last be prohibited.

Placing an Idaho label on potatoes grown elsewhere is doubly unfair. The consumer, seeking the real thing, is defrauded. And the inferior foreign product, falsely labeled an Idaho potato, gives the genuine Idaho potato an undeserved bad name.

The supposition that Idaho potatoes are somehow superior to those of most other states may sound like a chamber of commerce delusion to those unfamiliar with the product. However, it is quite like the matter of wine grapes. Certain combinations of soil and climate do, in fact, produce better wine grapes than other soils and climates. Any doubter should sample one glass each of a common California wine and the will produced in portions of Washington state.

The same factor holds true with potatoes. While it is not quite true that Idaho is the only place in the world where superb potatoes can be grown, it is true that the special combinations of soil and climate in Idaho are among the most successful in the potato world. Idaho is one of the great potato growing regions of the world, just as France is one of the great wine producing regions.

So there is elemental justice for the consumer in giving him the assurance that a potato labeled "Idaho" was indeed grown in the soil of that state and not in some inferior region. False labeling of any product is fraud and therefore wrong.

Now that the FDA has rectified this long-term wrong, it is time to move to another case of misleading, if not actually inaccurate, labeling: The Idaho potato industry has appropriated the license plates of this state for years to hustle its admittedly superior product with the pedestrian slogan "Famous Potatoes."

The statement is true enough, but there is a good deal more to Idaho than a sack of spuds. It is misleading to convey the impression year after year on every license plate carried by traveling Idahoans into the rest of the nation that this state is one big potato farm.

There are distinctions at least as sexy as the potato. Equity demands equal time. Craters of the Moon, skiing, Hells Canyon, fishing, hunting, mining and lumbering are all features, activities or industries as deserving as the potato of an occasional place on the little metal billboards.

And when one sees a plate on an Illinois car heralding the "Land of Lincoln," one longs for a more distinguished and literate line than "Famous Potatoes."

More catchy, broad-based and descriptive slogans would be Wilderness Wonderland, Gem of the Mountains, the State of Tranquility or Republican Hotbed.

The Awards

The life story of Diana Oughton, a young woman born to wealth and security who became a revolutionary and died in the explosion of a home-made bomb, has won a Pulitzer Prize for its authors, Lucinda Franks and Thomas Powers of United Press International, a prize we think well-deserved. The biographical articles, published in the Post-Dispatch last fall, were well-researched and eloquently written, and brought home to millions of Americans the tragedy of the idealistic young carried away by the urge to change things for the better.

Diana's story, in the national reporting category, reflects our troubled times, as do the prizes in other fields of endeavor. Thus the award for public service went to the Winston-Salem (N.C.) Journal and Sentinel for coverage of environmental problems in North Carolina. And a reminder that the nation still has a long way to go in solving its racial problems is seen in the editorial-writing award to H. G. Davis Jr. of the Gainesville (Fla.) Sun for advocacy of the peaceful desegregation of Florida schools. Coverage of another significant, and tragic, event, the killing of four students at Kent State University last May 4 won a merited award for the Akron (O.) Beacon Journal local staff.

If there is a common denominator in the prizes in these and other categories it is in the evidence they give that nation's press is alive and vigorous. It is sometimes tempting to be cynical about the role of the newspapers in this conformist age, and it is good to see recognition of independence, social responsibility and enterprise.

Hey, Pocatello!

Towns and cities whose names are taken in vain often resent it. Pocatello, Ida., citizens have pointed out to the adage "They never go back to Pocatello" isn't wholly true. And cities with such a ill-fitting name as Paducah, Ky., complain of libel by stand-up comedians.

This week two other cities were added to the thin-skinned list. In a widely quoted speech before a women's liberation group in England, economist and jester John Kenneth Galbraith said, among other things:

"So often in the states I've seen a first-class woman scholar fall in love with a man who has half her brains... (and) he takes her off to Gallup, N.M., or Peoria, Ill. In effect, he drags her down to his level of intellectual incompetence."

Dr. Galbraith undoubtedly picked the names of Gallup and Peoria at random; but of course he would not have thought of using his hometown, Cambridge, Mass., as an example. Officials both in Gallup and Peoria expressed hurt feelings.

The professor, who was never known to question the level of his intellectual competence, is welcome to use Portland, Ore., if he wants to rephrase his weak little joke. We shouldn't mind such identification with first-class women scholars. Portland probably has its share of them.

U.S. Mistake In Laos

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A long-time friend who has been operating for years as a guerrilla in northern Laos has sent very bad news indeed.

The Meo underground, developed with care and finesse, has been shattered. Much of this was of U. S. doing, although intentional.

Not long ago, top American specialists in guerrilla war had given hopes for the underground operations in northern Laos. It was not like Vietnam, where we have attempted to fight a guerrilla war with conventional armies. In Laos, the underground war was fought as guerrilla wars should be.

We had turned the tables on the North Vietnamese. The Meo guerrillas in Laos were almost impossible for Hanoi's armies to pick off.

Meo irregulars made life increasingly difficult for the invaders. They were using Mao Tse-tung-Ho Chi Minh tactics — and using them effectively.

Gradually, a small Meo group here and another there were given guns and told to defend themselves and their homes against anyone. This they did with enthusiasm.

The countryside in the north and gradually to the south became dotted with these underground irregulars. When the enemy advanced, they scattered and infiltrated to attack him in the rear. When the enemy retreated they advanced. They raised havoc in the enemy's back yard and pinpricked him to exasperation. They allowed his drives and imperiled his long supply lines. The North Vietnamese soldier knew no peace.

This program progressed nicely. The Meo are excellent fighters. Like the effective Viet Cong guerrillas of the early 1960s, they were civilians by day and fighters by night.

The very lack of Meo organization, their crude weapons and their lack of uniforms were strengths. They had no complicated supply lines to guard. The North Vietnamese could not pin them down. If a unit was trapped, the loss in men was small.

Then someone in Washington began to get ideas. These loyal guerrillas should have more supplies, better equipment, more effective weapons. They should have organization, be built into military units.

It was decided to support them regularly with air strikes. They were provided with some artillery.

This brought changes. It meant larger units, established positions, supply lines, coordinated operations. Instead of moving in swiftly against the enemy, the Meo began to wait for air strikes. Or for artillery.

Instead of moving silently down trails, they hankered after helicopter transport, which is noisy and visible. They became bogged down with organization and with the problems of supply. Attacks were delayed while the Meo waited for supplies and equipment.

So they lost the advantage of secrecy and surprise. In retreat, they could no longer fade silently into the landscape. Sentimental to their supplies and to base areas, they became increasingly vulnerable to attacks by superior enemy forces.

Cheap, limited, conventional North Vietnamese operations could now weed out the smaller Meo units one by one. Major Meo forces, now conventionalized, could be encircled.

Taking advantage of these opportunities, the North Vietnamese have gradually picked off the Meo units.

As a result, the supply of Meo manpower has become extremely limited.

With the decline of the Meo forces our power to affect the war in Laos slides sharply downward.

Funds, Purpose

WASHINGTON — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., is mildly escalating his presidentially-oriented political activities, but his is still very much an unofficial non-campaign for the Democratic nomination to oppose President Nixon.

In recent weeks, Jackson has been accelerating the pace on two fronts. He has:

—Stepped up criticism of the far left in speeches across the nation. The idea is to establish Jackson as the centerist — the moderate — the possible Democratic nominee who is not seeking support on the party's leftist fringes.

—Started to think about fundraising and additions to his regular staff, which is increasingly hard-pressed as a result of the senator's unofficial campaigning.

No immediate creation of a full-fledged campaign staff is planned. Jackson is still saying that he can wait until the fall before deciding whether to appoint an official manager and fund-raiser, and officially launch a bid for the presidential nomination.

There are some immediately pressing problems, however, notably the senator's mail. Each appearance by Jackson, especially if locally televised, produces several hundred letters, and many of them ask questions which require an individual response. So far Jackson has had no paid campaign staff to help with that chore.

Volunteers have helped out with speechwriting as well as with routine jobs, but paid stenographic help will be needed soon, and money to pay the resulting salaries.

One of the interesting aspects of the Jackson non-campaign to date is that it has been a mostly volunteer enterprise. Jackson, himself, tells friends it is "a kind of band aid operation."

The senator makes his speechmaking trips alone or with one of his regular staff. He is compensated for "out-of-pocket" expenses. He has no advance men, the key operatives of a regular campaign organization, who precede a candidate to each part of call to coordinate all local arrangements.

Consequently, some of Jackson's stops have been overscheduled. Some have been poorly planned by local sponsors who, official campaign or no, always want to get the maximum activity out of a VIP visitor—even if it does not provide the maximum exposure.

Despite these mechanical handicaps, Jackson calls the reaction to his speeches and campaign activities to date "very encouraging."

All indications now are that a full-fledged Jackson campaign for the nomination will eventually when leaves begin to fall and the senator finally faces up to his big decision. He has some obvious preliminaries already in progress.

Jackson has recently expanded his political activities to include the party power-brokers. In that connection, AFL-CIO President George Meany, while maintaining a nominal impartiality at this point, has urged Jackson to get himself seen and heard at meetings of the big labor federation's affiliates.

The senator also stopped by recently for a talk with Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley. The visit was made at Daley's invitation and the talk was described as cordial, although Daley, of course, maintains his impartiality too.

Another obvious factor which points toward a formal Jackson candidacy is the less than enthusiastic response to top-ranking Democratic hopefuls. The fact is that none of the other Democrats who want the nomination seem to be very much wanted, according to the polls.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who does not want to make the race this time, nevertheless outshines his colleagues. Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Me., who looked like a shoe-in a few months ago, has not been able to exploit that early advantage.

So the water looks fine to other Democratic candidates even those who might already have been counted out under other political circumstances.

Jackson has been saying all along that his unofficial campaigning is designed to get exposure for his views, which differ in important respects from those of the other front-runners. It can only be an additional incentive for a formal Jackson candidacy that none of the front-runners is yet really running very far in front.

committee is ready to cite CBS for contempt for refusing to submit film and other material gathered in producing the rancorously controversial TV documentary "The Selling of the Pentagon."

But it's a toss-up whether the full Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee will go along with that.

Full committee authorization is necessary before a contempt citation can be submitted to the House of Representatives. It alone can vote such a crack-down.

Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W. Va., chairman of the investigating subcommittee, favors holding CBS in contempt. He is also chairman of the full committee. A bi-partisan majority of the subcommittee supports Staggers on this matter.

But the issue appears to be in doubt in the full committee.

It consists of 21 Democrats, 16 Republicans. The inside word is that both Democratic and Republican committeemen (who have not participated in the investigation) are evincing hesitation about taking punitive action against the powerful network.

As revealed in this column earlier this month, influential Democrats in and out of Congress reportedly are strongly pressuring committeemen to ditch the probe. According to knowledgeable committee sources, heavy emphasis is being placed on the argument that the freedom-of-the-press outcry raised by CBS and others could be charged as a glaring instance of attempted infringement of the media.

Chairman Staggers, World War II Navy air veteran and one-time West Virginia sheriff, is credited as strongly insisting on a showdown with CBS on its refusal to submit the demanded material.

He bluntly characterizes the freedom-of-the-press issue as "phony" and contends it is not involved. Staggers maintains that all the investigators are asking for is evidence relating to charges by members of Congress and other officials that the documentary is deliberately biased and contains a number of misrepresentations, innuendos and distortions.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Insanity

Dear Dr. Thosteson: All the members of my family say that insanity is inherited. I disagree. Who is correct? — J. W.

Probably both sides are correct. And both sides wrong. You're arguing an impossible position, because "insanity" has a very vague meaning.

Would you argue whether "disease" is inherited? No, you wouldn't, because you know very well that some diseases are inherited and others are not. So why argue whether "insanity" is inherited?

The dictionary defines it as "being of unsound mind," which can mean almost anything. Do you mean damage from a tumor of the brain? That's not inherited. Or degeneration of the brain from syphilis? Do you mean schizophrenia? That can occur to people without any sign of it in other members of the family tree.

Do you mean feeble-mindedness? If so, what kind? Long inbreeding in some families has resulted in virtually all of the offspring being feeble-minded, so I think it is proper to say it is inherited in that case. There are other types of mental subnormality which are related to defects in the chromosomes — but I doubt that this could be called "inherited." Congenital, perhaps, but the parents do not have the same condition.

There is a good deal yet to be learned about a great many types of emotional problems. It is possible that in many cases some tendencies may be inherited, but still may not develop into serious troubles unless the individual is subjected to severe emotional stresses.

See why I say you are arguing an impossible question?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What would the results be, health-wise, from drinking rusty well water over a period of years? —

B. L.

None, so far as the rustiness goes. The important point is to have the water tested periodically by the Health Department to be sure it is not polluted with germs or other dangerous contents.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can eating plain lemons hurt you? Sometimes I sit down and eat six at a time. — S. R.

Dear Doctor: Quite often I crave lemons, sprinkle them with salt, and eat two a day. Is this harmful in any way? — Mrs. L. R.

Lemons are a rich source of vitamin C. However, the juice is high in citric acid. When taken undiluted, this can damage the teeth. Hence I'd suggest lemonade instead, then brush your teeth or eat some food.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Should a diabetes blood test be taken before a meal or after? Can you use brown sugar instead of white when you have diabetes? — G. McD.

Your doctor may want a "fasting" test, meaning before you have eaten in the morning, or after a meal. It depends on the information he requires, and he will tell you what time of day to have the test taken, and whether to eat before it.

You see, the efficacy of either insulin or diabetes pills is gauged by how well the sugar level in the blood is maintained throughout the day. For example, a patient taking a single dose of insulin in the morning may have a low sugar level in the afternoon, but a high level by the following morning. This would imply the need for more insulin late in the day, or possibly a different type of insulin, or adjustment in the patient's diet.

Second question: No, you can't substitute brown sugar for white. Sugar is sugar, and a diabetic must avoid it.

Mitchell authorized only two subpoenas since edict

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Attorney General John N. Mitchell has authorized only two news subpoenas since he issued strict guidelines last summer to calm complaints that the government was trying to use the press as a kind of governmental investigatory agency.

His guidelines of Aug. 10, 1970, have restricted U.S. attorneys and Justice Department lawyers from going to the news media with subpoenas for grand jury investigations that smacked of "fishing expeditions" without his approval.

The only subpoenas issued since then were to an "underground" newspaper editor in Wisconsin and to a New York freelance writer who did an article for a magazine.

When the issue first flared in February, 1970, Mitchell contended that it had been policy of the Justice Department to issue subpoenas to obtain information held by the press "which might be of some aid in both criminal and civil investigations."

Some insiders believe Mitchell was misled by department attorneys into believing the broad subpoenas they issued were normal practice.

The flurry of controversy they created and a check of past attorneys general and veteran department personnel indicated they were not normal.

The subpoenas were issued—reportedly without Mitchell's knowledge or approval—to news organizations that were then being accused by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew of news distortion. They included the New York Times, the Columbia Broadcasting System, Newsweek magazine and Time Inc.

The subpoenas were issued by grand juries investigating the Black Panther party and Weatherman faction of Students for a Democratic Society

(SDS).

The subpoenas made blanket requests for raw notes, film, tape recordings and unedited files.

The issue is a thorny one which now is in the hands of the Supreme Court. No decision is expected until the court's next term, starting in October. This term ends in two or three weeks.

The subpoena that probably caused most of the press furor was issued in February of last year to Earl Caldwell, a Negro reporter for the New York Times. He was subpoenaed to testify before a federal grand jury in San Francisco investigating Black Panther activities.

Caldwell refused to testify, and on June 5, 1970, he was convicted of civil contempt by a federal district court. The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals subsequently overturned his conviction, but the government appealed the reversal to the Supreme Court last December.

That was after Mitchell issued his new guidelines—making him the sole arbiter of issuance of such subpoenas—but he may have felt he had no choice but to have the Caldwell case appealed because it had gone so far already.

Minority approve shooting to kill

NEW YORK (UPI)—A representative sampling of American men found that sizable minorities want police to shoot to kill in putting down ghetto disorders and destructive student demonstrators, it was disclosed Tuesday.

Against those minorities favoring the ultimate of retributive violence, there was a majority of 85 per cent more worried about violent civil disturbances than any other manifestation of American life. Only 27 per cent were as concerned about violent crime.

Several hundred trained interviewers questioned 1,374 men 16 to 64 years old in all parts of the country during the summer of 1969, a period of relative calm among students and in the city ghettos. The men had been scientifically selected to be representative of all American males.

The enterprise was managed by the Institute for Social Research at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, with approximately $250,000 from the National Science Foundation. Dr. Monica D. Blumenthal, one of the three directors, reported the results Tuesday at a social science briefing sponsored by the Council for the Advancement of Science Writing.

The men were given multiple choices in answering questions. For instance, they were asked if they favored police shoot-to-kill orders "almost always," "sometimes," "hardly ever," or "never."

For ghetto rioting 26 per cent answered "sometimes," 4 per cent, "almost always," and 51 per cent said "never." For violent student disturbances, the "never" answers total 62 per cent, the "almost always," 3 per cent and the "sometimes" 16 per cent.

The men were questioned as to just what they considered to be violence.

Looting was considered violence by 85 per cent, and 58 per cent considered draft card burning violence.

However, 57 per cent did not consider the shooting of looters by police to be violence, and 30 per cent answered "no" when asked if the beating of students by police was violence.

Pakistan war called 'man made calamity'

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Pakistan's President Agha Muhammad Yahya Khan calls the Pakistan civil war a "man made calamity."

Indian Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi calls it a "macabre tragedy."

A follower of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman whose call for East Pakistan autonomy led to the civil war, calls it "genocide."

And it is, in fact, all three of these.

India numbers the refugees pouring across her borders from East Pakistan at 3.5 million and says they are increasing at the rate of 60,000 a day. The number of dead can only be estimated. The rebel government which operates under the name "Bengali Dosh" (Bengal Homeland) puts it at hundreds of thousands.

Economically, the war which began in March already has brought the country close to ruin.

The government has announced it will ask "creditor nations for a six-month moratorium on payments of debts totalling around $4 billion. Included in the consortium of nations to whom the debt is owed are the United States, Japan, Canada and nations of Western Europe.

Also under consideration is devaluation of the rupee.

Added to this must be counted hundreds of millions of dollars which must come from somewhere in coming months to feed the refugees now living amid hunger, squalor and disease in West Bengal and the frontier districts along the 1,300-mile border between India and East Pakistan.

Japan's summer now an ordeal

TOKYO (UPI)—Summer in Japan used to be a delight. Today it is an ordeal.

This year, more than ever before, the Japanese are girding themselves for their annual fight to survive the scourges of air pollution, contamination of food, and fouled water.

Last summer, the Japanese—particularly Tokyo residents—watched groups of school children being rushed to hospitals after being felled by air pollution. "Smog alerts" were issued almost daily during mid-summer as the quality of the air under the hot sun deteriorated so badly that it was risky to inhale.

Since then, the government has acted to correct the situation, but nothing has really changed. Laws were passed, but they are expected to be

"paper tigers," and the average Japanese is going to have to cough and sputter his way through the summer months once again.

Critics charge that the reason pollution in Japan is so bad is that the central government is tied too closely to business interests. Government policy, the critics say, places economic growth above the welfare of the people.

Thus, smoke-belching factories have continued to proliferate, while pollution regulations have been enforced loosely, if at all.

The metropolitan government of Tokyo Gov. Ryokichi Minobe claims it is helpless to pass enforcement laws in the face of the central government's reluctance to crack down on polluters.

Bus stations merge

READY TO WELCOME new travel customers are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Steele who will take over duties as Trailways Bus Co. agents as of Tuesday morning. They have been handling Greyhound schedules for the past two years with Mr. Steele as agent and under a consolidation program moving Trailways to the Union Depot, will serve customers of both lines.

Union bus depot opening

TWIN FALLS — Beginning with the 3:25 a.m. eastbound bus Tuesday, all Trailways bus service in Twin Falls will be handled through the Union Bus Depot, 137 2nd Street E., headquarters for many years for Greyhound Bus Co.
 Effective June 1, the lines will consolidate operations out of the Greyhound depot. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Steele will be in charge of the joint agency. Steele will serve as agent for both lines.
 With the change, he said, the depot will be open on a 24 hour basis, with some 30 buses leaving or arriving each day. The move, he said, will make bus travel more convenient for the public as persons may check all schedules at one location and will be able to obtain assistance from only one person in planning their departure or in checking on bus arrivals.

Since the closing and demolition of the old Perrine Hotel, Trailways Bus Co. has operated out of The Alley cafe and Griggs Motel office. This will continue through a 7:50 p.m. departure Monday night, officials said. No special agent has been in charge of Trailways operation with the desk clerks at the motel sharing duties in handling bus ticket sales and other business.

Steele said a number of others are employed at the local Union Depot and should be able to handle the additional traffic. He said bus schedules of the two lines are so spaced as to avoid any congestion.

Two religious agencies give movie industry kick in pants

By LOUIS CASSELS
 UPI Senior Editor
 The movie industry has received a well-deserved kick in the pants from two major religious agencies.
 It was delivered ecumenically by the Catholic Office for Motion Pictures and the Protestant Broadcasting and Film Commission.
 They withdrew their endorsement of the voluntary rating system established by movie makers three years ago in an effort to head off demands for government censorship of dirty films.
 The voluntary rating system was supposed to enable parents to tell whether a film is suitable for children. It also was supposed to alert theater managers to bar children entirely from particularly gaudy films.
 The Protestant and Catholic film agencies said they "can no longer commend this plan to the public" because (1) the ratings are not reliable and (2) some theater owners are lax about enforcing age limits for movies which the industry itself has adjudged unfit for children.

 Movie makers have acted, the agencies said, as though the only criterion for labeling a film suitable for children is whether it overtly depicts physical sex acts. They take little account of "the implicit exploitation of sex and the overall impact of violence and other anti-social aspects of a film on a child."
 Even if the rating system were reliable, parents would have a hard time finding movies to which they can take or send their kids. Of the 332 films reviewed by the Catholic Office for Motion Pictures in 1970, only 32—fewer than 10 per

Gamble paid on learning plan

NEW YORK (UPI)—The companies that risked their future last summer on performance contracts to make public school children learn faster appear confident the first year's gambles have paid off.
 The companies contracted, for the most part, to enable grade school youngsters, by special drilling methods, to gain a full year in mathematics and reading achievement. Their contract remuneration will be doctored for every child who fails to achieve that.
 Six firms had performance contracts in schools in 19 cities under grants totaling $57 million from the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity. The same companies and other firms had many other contracts they negotiated directly with schools.
 The most ambitious single performance contract was that of Behavioral Research Laboratories, Inc., of Palo Alto, Calif. It took over the entire Bancker Elementary School at Gary, Ind., the only project reported so far to have run into substantial problems.
 Dr. Alan Calvin of BRL said the company is confident of fulfilling the program at Bancker despite some problems. He said that first tests made in December showed the pupils making up an average of 4.3 months progress in reading and 4.7 months in mathematics. Jeff Schiller of the OEO's Evaluation Department says none of the 19 projects his office sponsored ran into serious troubles. "Things went fairly smoothly," Schiller said, "and such opposition as developed from the teaching establishment diminished steadily as the year went by."

 But Schiller said his office has received no official interim reports from the companies, therefore he will not know for certain how successful the contractors have been until the results of the post-performance tests now under way are received and evaluated in midsummer. "There's talk around here," he said, "of getting up a betting pool on which company's pupils will score highest."
 Spokesmen for several of the OEO performance contractors told United Press International they are quite confident their pupils have made up a full year in math and reading through the remedial drills.

William E. Davies of Learning Foundations, Inc., Athens, Ga., which has contracts in The Bronx in New York City and in Jacksonville, Fla., and Hammond, Ind., said his company's projects have been "extremely successful."
 President James C. Gillis Jr., of Quality Educational Development, Inc., Washington, said that, even though his company does not wholly approve of the standards prescribed by the OEO for post-performance tests, he is sure QED's pupils in OEO performance contracts at Dallas, Rockland, Mo., and Anchorage, Alaska, will do well.
 Daniel Layer of Singer-Graffex Corp., Rochester, N.Y., which has contracts at Portland, Maine, McComb, Miss., and Seattle, said: "I'm confident we've done a good job. Our post-performance tests are being made for us by Battelle Memorial Laboratory of Columbus, Ohio."

Urban problems

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A research study by the Highway Users Federation for Safety and Mobility has found that motor vehicle-pedestrian accidents are "primarily an urban problem" and that the majority of victims are school children and old people.
 In a publication entitled "Pedestrians," the federation reports traffic control measures such as one-way streets, improved lighting and playground development have helped to reduce pedestrian accidents. But the value of some measures generally regarded as good—such as marked crosswalks, "Walk-Don't-Walk" signals and enforcement of jaywalking laws—have not been proved.

Home plat study due at Jerome

JEROME — Jerome City Council will hold its regular meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the city hall.

Marshall Everheart, councilman, said there is much business to be conducted. On May 21, the council held a special meeting and gave approval to a preliminary plat submitted by an Idaho land development firm to subdivide about 10 acres south of I Street in Jerome. The American Pacific Corp., represented by Andy Anderson, Boise, has submitted the plat at the May 18 council meeting, and the matter was taken under advisement at that time.

Anderson said a total of 45 sites will be located on the property and homes will be in the $17,000-$18,000 price range. The corporation has applied to the county zoning board for rezoning of the acreage from agricultural to residential.

The council will not give its final approval of the plat until a final plat is submitted with all stipulations requested by the council. Proof of rezoning also must be shown.

Walt Bentzinger, city councilman in charge of the police department, said earlier he hoped further education of members of the department would help combat the drug problem in Jerome.

Puntney attends drug meet

JEROME — C. H. Puntney, Jerome chief of police, returned Sunday from Boise where he attended a two-week school on narcotics.

The school was conducted at the Rodeway Inn in Boise. Officers from throughout the state attended classes conducted by the Federal Bureau of Narcotics.

Walt Bentzinger, city councilman in charge of the police department, said earlier he hoped further education of members of the department would help combat the drug problem in Jerome.

Bellwood to attend law course

RUPERT (UPI) — Judge Sherman J. Bellwood, of the Fifth District Court of Rupert, will attend a post graduate legal education course at the national college of state trial judges in Reno Aug. 8-20.

The course is intended to instruct trial judges in modern court management techniques and is an activity of the section of judicial administration of the American Bar Association.

Judge Bellwood will study "The role of the judge and communicative skills." The program is limited to judges who have previously completed the national college's intensive four-week course.

Mountain studies offered

OGDEN, Utah (UPI) — Forest Supervisors G.W. Carlson and E. A. Fournier of the Challis and Sawtooth National Forests announced the land use planning study data so far assembled is available for inspection by persons interested in the White Cloud peaks, Boulder Mountains and Pioneer Mountains.

The supervisors said the data, part of the multi-disciplinary study of the area begun by the Forest Service in 1970, is available at the forest supervisors' office at Challis and Twin Falls, Idaho, as well as Ogden, Utah.

The study to date consists of an inventory phase with 15 technical reports included. The reports are illustrated with 22 maps.

Course set for driving

TWIN FALLS — A class in defensive driving will start at 7 p.m. Tuesday at O'Leary Junior High School, Room 120, according to Leo Wright, instructor.

It is for any adult who wants to improve his driving skills and those with violation points who want to have them eliminated, he said.

The class will be held four two and one-half hour periods each evening on Tuesday and Thursday for the first two weeks of June.

On May 21, the council held a special meeting and gave approval to a preliminary plat submitted by an Idaho land development firm to subdivide about 10 acres south of I Street in Jerome. ## Gooding grassman tour set GOODING — The Gooding County Grassman Committee will conduct a public tour June 8 to view the land owned by contestants for the Grassman of the Year Award.

Ron Stroud, chairman, announces contestants this year include Bill Campbell, Wendell Doran Butler, Bliza, and Ray Moss, manager of the 2+ ranch.

Judges for the event will be from out of the county.

Each year the award is presented to the farmer or rancher who is a community leader, and practices good land management such as weed control and erosion control.

At the conclusion of the tour the winner will be announced.

Youthful cyclist injured

TWIN FALLS — Doug Freeman, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Freeman, Twin Falls, was injured Saturday afternoon in a motorcycle accident on Rock Creek Road south of Hansen.

He was apparently trying to negotiate a curve when his cycle struck a patch of gravel. His cycle carried him off the side of the road into some rocks.

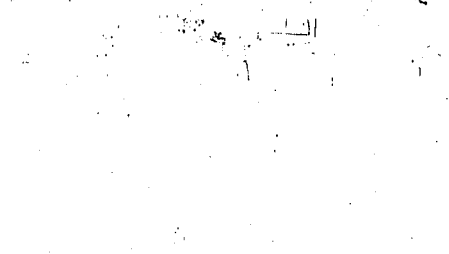

Freeman was camped in the area with a group of boys. He attempted to walk back to the camp and was stopped along the road by John Schwartz, Hazelton, and Rex Spackman, Twin Falls, Idaho Fish and Game Department employee.

Schwartz took the Freeman boy into Twin Falls to his home. The boy was then taken to the hospital for treatment of cuts, bruises and a broken arm and hand. He was treated and released.

Spackman, who picked the cycle and helmet up and returned them to Twin Falls, said that if the youth had not been wearing a helmet he might not have survived the accident. He said there was a severe indentation in the front of the helmet where it struck a rock.

Servicemen

RICHFIELD — Sp. 4 Richard Magoffin received a last minute change of orders after reporting to Oakland, Calif. May 24 for Vietnam duty. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Magoffin, Richfield, received a telephone call from him telling of reassignment to Germany after reporting to New Jersey.

Rupert pastor ends ministry

RUPERT — Rev. and Mrs. Everett Gardner will leave Rupert late this week to make their home in Portland, Ore., where they will reside after retirement.

Rev. Gardner, who has served the First United Methodist Church in Rupert the past two years is retiring from the ministry after 44 years.

A covered dish dinner and reception were held in honor of the couple Friday night in the church. Members of the Women's Society of Christian Service arranged the event. Rev. and Mrs. Gardner were presented an electric blender by members of the WSCS, and a "friendship purse" by the more than 100 persons attending the dinner.

A new pastor is expected to be assigned the Rupert area during the annual Methodist church conference which concludes June 4 in Salem, Ore.

Friday night's entertainment included group singing, a reading by Mrs. Ruby Gillmore and background music by Mrs. Grover Newman. Kathy, Cameron sang several numbers with guitar accompaniment.

Claud H. Bowman was in charge of the program.

Gem consumer code details outlined

SHOSHONE — "The Uniform Consumers Code was necessitated by interest rates above the legal limit of 10 per cent and higher on some forms of loans," Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft told members of the Shoshone Chamber of Commerce here.

The state legislator said another new measure is a protective agency to handle the appeals from the consumers. He said all of this legislation was designed to protect the borrower from undue hardships and riding costs.

Addressing the meeting of the chamber in the Manhattan Cafe Thursday night, Ravenscroft, Gooding County legislator, also discussed efforts being made to simplify the procedure for probating wills through magistrate court which he said, would save costly court procedures for closing estates. The accident insurance code adopted now gives better protection to workmen injured on the job.

He also explained the work of the newly formed Idaho Public Lands Resource Committee.

In other business, the chamber voted to hold a Fourth of July celebration again this year, with some financial assistance from the Jerome chamber. Plans for the Old Time Fiddlers Jamboree July 11 at the Mary L. Gooding Park were also discussed.

Cycle dunk nets pair suspension

BOISE (UPI) — Two local law enforcement officers have been suspended from duty on a charge of dunking a motorcycle belonging to a member of the Brother Speed Motorcycle Club.

Ada County Sheriff Paul Bright said Saturday he suspended Bruce Rowell from the force for one month without pay and placed him on one year probation. He was also reduced in rank from investigator to patrolman.

Boise Police Chief John Church said he suspended Patrolman Ron Crockett for two weeks without pay, and put him on six month probation. The charge stems from an incident May 19, 1971, in which cyclist Thorn Peterson, member of Brother Speed, told Garden City Police he stopped at the Rodeway Inn for coffee, but when he came out to the parking lot his cycle was gone.

Peterson said he followed tracks to the river bank where he found the machine. His investigation helped in rounding up witnesses including lawmen who were at the motel.

Garden City Police Chief W.C. Schilder filed a report with Ada County Prosecutor James Riach, including identification of the two officers allegedly responsible.

Following a conference of city and county officials, action was taken against Rowell and Crockett.

Banking goes push button

NEW YORK (UPI)—Banking, once a face to face meeting with the neighborhood banker or his employees, has gone push button.
 While some customers rue this latest phase of dehumanization, most of them welcome the computers, the television cameras, the button and the pneumatic tubes that speed transactions and eliminate long waiting lines.
 A cross-country check among the country's 14,000 full service banks shows just how far they've come since the days when new technology meant a new rubber stamp or a better quality quill pen.
 In Buffalo, for example, customers of the Marine Midland Bank-Western can play a money machine any hour of the day or night. All they need is a special individual card into the slot of an apparatus mounted outside the bank, punch out an identification, set the dial for $25 or $50 and wait for the money to kick through the slot.
 Television drive-in banking is a feature at the Huntington National Bank's north Columbus branch in Ohio. The customer enters his car up to a window, talks to a picture on the TV screen and then uses buttons to make deposits or cash checks.
 The Continental Bank in Philadelphia has a secret number gimmick. Your money comes through without a struggle at any of its 50 branches if the secret number you give the girl matches up with a report from a button-operated machine.
 In Chicago, computers at Beverly Bank give the customer one comprehensive monthly statement listing checking and savings balances, installment loan and mortgage figures.
 Surely National Bank of Los Angeles won't say its money is untouched by human hands but that's virtually the case. Its bank in the Civic Center consists largely of buttons, microphones, electronic cash drawers and the like. Anyone wanting to bank presses a button, talks with a female face showing on a television screen and waits briefly until the internal machine cranks out instructions. When that happens, and only then, cash drawers are opened or loan applications processed.
 In the bitterest words of Raymond True, a depositor at Surety National in Los Angeles: "The old banking in a bedside manner got along the way, which is too bad. But it's a pleasure to do away with all the fiddling and standing in line."
 The clothing fabric, tweed was first woven in Scotland and is said to have been named after the Tweed River.

Library at Eden to open

EDEN The Eden elementary library will be open Wednesday from 10 a.m. until noon for children to check out books, according to Dr. Tom Utterback, superintendent of Valley schools.
 The Hazelton elementary library will be open from 12:30 p.m. until 2:30 p.m. Dr. Utterback said that because students checked out over 2,000 books during last summer's library program, Mrs. Marvin Johnson, the elementary librarian, feels that it's well worth her time to open the libraries every Wednesday during the summer.
 Dr. Utterback said it is planned near the end of the summer vacation to remodel the Hazelton library. He noted that a wall will be taken down in order to add more space. New shelves and chairs will be added and the library painted. During this time the library will have to be closed. However, the Eden library will remain open on every Wednesday, Dr. Utterback said.

A RAINY DAY and a beautiful girl resting her head on a picnic table inspired Richard Desmarais of Ottawa, Canada, to take this striking photograph.

Mayor worried over hippies and pollution

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—Looking out his city hall window at a thin layer of smog blanketing his scenic West Coast city, Mayor Tom Campbell said he has two major worries right now: Pollution and hippies.
 The 43-year-old millionaire son of an Irish policeman, Campbell has become widely known for his battle against the "hippie invader" from the East. He "hates" youthful trouble makers, baits the news media and burns both groups as fuel for his campaign bandwagon.
 "I kind of admire Spiro Agnew," Campbell said, "I think he's calling a 'spade a spade.' He's telling the people of the United States that there is trouble; that there is disension from within."
 "I think there's going to be trouble every major city in the world is going to have trouble this year. But how are you not going to have trouble? Are you going to let them riot and take over the city and say, well, you can take the West End if you leave the rest of us alone?"
 Campbell makes it clear that only a small group, perhaps five per cent of young people are among the group he opposes.
 "But it is not only Campbell's attack on youth that has kept him in the news.
 He's the civic centeeled, perhaps the most quoted politician in Canada outside Ottawa, the man who draws attention to Canada's third-largest city.
 Campbell is what people complain about instead of the weather. He's the businessman who fought City Hallers on business issues, won, and later took over as mayor.
 Now in his third consecutive two-year term, he is often accused of being all talk and no action on serious issues, but he wins elections with a "voice of the people" law-and-order style.
 Campbell said he is concerned, contrary to critics' charges, with the leading issues of the day. Including the problems of unemployment and pollution.
 He'd like to see electric rapid transit, better auto mufflers, and tougher controls on industrial air and water pollution. But in this, as in the battles against unemployment and inflation, Campbell says he feels powerless.
 "I recommend strong measures (against pollution), but it's not in my hands. I support the anti-pollution measures because if we don't do something we're going to have no civilization in 50 years," he said.

Birmingham has 'foulest air'

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Flowers are parched and wilted. Dust covers houses, trunks and out. Laundry is dirtied as it hangs from the line. Men rub reddened and irritated eyes. A few gasp for breath.
 For all her 47 years, Mrs. Carrie Smith has seen the effects of air pollution.
 For all those years, she has lived—and breathed—in the polluted environs of North Birmingham, a neighborhood with some of the foulest air in the nation.
 From her front porch, Mrs. Smith can look through an interstate highway bridge under construction and see smoke billowing from a fertilizer plant just 300 yards away.
 Inside the small frame house, the noise from big jets landing at Birmingham Airport shakes the large picture of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. hanging in the next living room. To keep the room clean she must dust twice a day.
 But Mrs. Smith, a widow, is determined to stay.
 "I wouldn't know anywhere else to go. The people here are really good. They are my friends. There is just no point in moving."
 Mrs. Smith is one of 200 persons in North Birmingham who signed a petition asking health officials for relief from ammonia and sulphur discharges from the Swift Agricultural Chemical Co. plant.
 North Birmingham has cement plants and pipe foundries, chemical plants and blast furnaces—a wide-ranging cross section of American heavy industry.
 One day after the petition was presented, the state health officer, Dr. Ira L. Myers, held a public hearing on the pollution crisis.
 Myers asked plant officials to reduce discharges into the air. He asked, because under state air pollution control laws he has no authority to order a cut.
 Company officials have had no comment on Myers' request, but, at the public hearing, their attorney said much of the problem was caused by problems with an acid-making facility which had been closed.
 The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) placed sending equipment around the plant to determine the amount of gases contained in the plants emissions.
 The equipment has shown few incidents of high noxious gas concentration. Apparently none were as high as those which occurred when residents circulated their petition, health officials said, but no tests were made during the strike.
 The Rev. George Johnson, minister of the Greater New Bethel Baptist Church and the man who directed the petition drive, believes the plant and his neighbors can exist together.

Trevino wins $175,000 Danny Thomas Classic

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Happy-go-lucky Lee Trevino fired a final round 67 to capture the $175,000 Danny Thomas Memphis Classic Sunday with a 12-under-par 268 and vault into second place in money winnings on the professional golf tour this year.

The victory paid Trevino $35,000 and upped his winnings to $115,785, second only to Jack Nicklaus.

The Golden Bear, who passed up this tournament, has won $111,788.

Trevino, whose flat swing is the delight of golfers everywhere, led all the way in the final three rounds after carding a four under par 66 Friday and finished four strokes ahead.

His lead dropped to one stroke at one point Sunday after he bogged the par four 8th hole to turn in an even par for the day. But he began pulling away by a birdie on 10 and was never seriously challenged the rest of the way.

Grouped in second place at eight-under-par 272 were Jerry Heard, Hale Irwin, Randy Wolf and Lee Elder. They each won $12,706.

Heard, a promising newcomer who won $45,000 in his second year on the tour in 1970, and Wolf, a 26-year-old LSU graduate, also in his third year on the tour, both shot final rounds of six under par 64.

Elder carded a closing round 66 and Irwin had a 68.

Trevino began picking up speed on the back side where he shaved three strokes off par with birdies on two of the three par fives in addition to the par four, 285-yard 10th hole.

The chunky Texan topped off his round, to the delight of the huge gallery, at 18 by chipping out of the right trap to within one foot of the stick for a tap-in bird.

Tied for third place at seven-under-par were first day leader Larry Ziegler and veteran Don January. Ziegler faded to a 71 Sunday and January had a 67. They each won $8,787.

Ken Still, who entered the final round at one over for the tournament, finished with a fine seven under par 63 which fattened his wallet to the tune of $4,312. He finished in a four way tie at 274 with Labron Harris, Chuck Courtney and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Trevino got back at even par after canning a 15 foot birdie putt on 7 and chipping too strong on 8 to wind up with a bogie. He got his bird on 10 with a three footer and on the par five 13th hole by reaching the green in two and two putting from about 46 feet.

Trevino said "I wasn't really playing it easy on the front but everything went according to game plan."

"I made the turn even," he said, "and I converted No. 10. I told the caddy if I scored a 67, I thought I would win, but I thought it would be by only one or two strokes."

"This is one of the advantages of going last on the final day," Trevino said. "You can watch the people ahead of you and see if they made any mistakes."

The victory pushed Trevino to No. 14 on the all-time money winning list with a career total of $529,199 in less than four years.

"My goal is to win $1 million playing golf," Trevino said. "But I probably will find something else to go for if I reach that goal."

He said that $3,000 of his winnings here were going to be returned to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, a facility founded by Danny Thomas and beneficiary of tournament play here.

Top-seeded Australian upset in French Open

PARIS (UPI)—Austrian-born Gall Chanfreau stunned top-seeded Margaret Court of Australia, 6-3, 6-4, Sunday in a major upset in the third round of the $100,000 French Open tennis championships.

Top-ranking American Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., and Bob Lutz of Los Angeles both charged into the fourth round of the men's singles, along with top-seeded Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia.

Richey, seeded fourth here, beat Australia's Colin Dibley, 6-1, 6-3, 6-5, despite protests to the umpire in the final set that Dibley was faulting half his serves; Lutz, the No. 9 seed, overcame Jim Kuki of Japan, former UCLA player, 6-1, 6-7, 6-4, 6-4, and Kodes eliminated Bob Carmichael of Australia, 6-4, 9-7, 6-4.

Richey's sister, Nancy Gunter, the 1968 French champion, gained the fourth round of the women's singles by beating Laura Rossouw of South Africa, 7-5, 6-2, but Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash., was ousted from the men's singles by Yugoslav's fifth-seeded Zeljko Franulovic, last year's runner-up here, 6-2, 6-1, 7-5.

Mrs. Chanfreau, the former Gall Sherriff of New South Wales, turned in the match of her life to upset the world's top ranked woman player and prevent Mrs. Court from winning the Grand Slam two years in a row. Last year, the 29-year-old Australian won the Australian, French, English and U.S. championships.

From the very start Sunday, the tiny blonde Mrs. Chanfreau kept Mrs. Court off balance and made her fight for her points for the first time at Roland Garros Stadium this year.

Although often hitting off balance and scrambling for the ball, Mrs. Chanfreau never let up. She won the first set on passing shots, forcing Mrs. Court to stay back.

Mrs. Court fought back in the second, moving ahead 3-2, but Mrs. Chanfreau came back to break through at 4-3. She then held her service for 5-3 and although Mrs. Court won her serve to make it 6-4, Mrs. Chanfreau held on in her turn for the game, set and match.

"My legs just wouldn't work for me today," said Mrs. Court. "But Gall played much better than me, so it's right that she should have won."

The 26-year-old Mrs. Chanfreau, who now lives in Paris, said she played "the best game of my life."

"It's the first time I've ever beaten Margaret, whom I've met 20 or 30 times. She is really the toughest one to beat. If you get past her, you've really got a chance," said Mrs. Chanfreau, who last autumn won the French closed title on the same clay courts of Roland Garros.

In other third round matches of the men's singles, Pierre Barthes of France beat Tom Ryan of South Africa, 6-7, 6-1, 6-2; Istvan Gulyas of Hungary beat Bill Bowrey of Australia, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3; Tadeus Nowicki of Poland beat Frew McMillan of South Africa, 3-6, 6-1, 6-5, 6-2; Francois Jauffret of France beat compatriot Jean Baptiste Chanfreau, 6-3, 7-5, 6-1; and Patrick Proulx of France beat Jaime Pindo Bravo of Chile, 6-1, 6-0, 6-3.

In other third round matches of the women's singles, Lesley Bowrey of Australia beat Winnie Shaw of Scotland, 6-2, 6-2, and Helen Gourlay of Australia beat Kazuko Sawamatsu of Japan, 3-6, 6-2, 7-5.

Elgin Baylor asked to coach at Washington

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The University of Washington has contacted Elgin Baylor, captain of the Los Angeles Lakers, about becoming head coach of the school's basketball team.

Baylor said Saturday that he had no comment about the possibility he would take the job. Washington's former coach, Tex Winter, resigned to coach the San Diego Rockets.

The 38-year-old Baylor played in only two games after Lakers' last season after suffering an injury to his Achilles tendon.

Lakers' General Manager Fred Schaus, commenting earlier on Baylor's plans for next season, said, "I know he would like to coach some day and of course this would be a very good opportunity."

Baylor said the Huskies contacted him while he was in Acapulco recently.

Indy's $1 million purse distributed

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—The Indianapolis Motor Speedway Sunday night distributed a record $1 million purse to the 33 starters in Saturday's 500-mile auto race.

Speedway President Tony Hulman announced that despite a sharp drop in cash accessory prizes, the purse totaled $1,001,604 or $1,600 more than the previous high last year.

The purse increased its own prize kitty by more than $33,000 from more than $764,000 to more than $797,000.

Al Unser, Albuquerque, N.M., the "500" winner from the second consecutive years in the fastest-ever Memorial Day Hoeday weekend classic, accepted a check of $238,454 about $24,000 less than he split with his crew a year ago when he led 190 of the 200 laps. This time he led 103 laps.

The total jackpot also included $400,000 from the Citizens Speedway Committee and nearly $114,000 in accessory prizes, down more than $30,000 from last year.

Runnerup Peter Revson of New York City, the pole sitter, accepted a check of $103,198.

Following out the top 10 in order were three-time champ A. J. Foyt, Houston, Tex., $64,769; Billy Vukovich, Fresno, Calif. $32,447; Donnie Allison, Hueytown, Ala. $30,093; Bud Tingstad, Indianapolis, $28,206; Denny Zimmerman, Glastonbury, Conn., who also was acclaimed "rookie of the year," $27,658; Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz., $22,080; and Gary Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill., $24,410.

Mark Donohue, Medin, Pa., who had logged the fastest practice speeds but who was second to Revson in qualifications and was eliminated in the first half of the race by mechanical problems, was awarded $23,697 for 25th place.

All the starters shared in the record payoff, with last place George Sailer of Bakersfield, Calif., receiving nearly $14,000.

The starting field was honored at the traditional victory banquet, 24 hours after the wreck-marred race which injured two drivers.

Meanwhile, Mike Mosley, 24, Brownsburg, Ind., remained in serious condition with multiple injuries and burns suffered when his car hit the wall late in the race and burst into flames.

Dr. Vincente Alvarez, 52, Buenos Aires, Argentina, an orthopedic surgeon and photographer-writer, was in critical condition with a basal skull fracture and other injuries.

He was one of 20 persons hurt when the pace car went out of control on the pit apron and slammed into a temporary platform on which about 50 photographers were perched at the start of the race.

The dapper Unser celebrated his 32nd birthday anniversary Saturday by winning the 55th annual Speedway grind at an order 157.735 miles per hour, nearly a mile faster than the previous record set by Mario Andretti, the 1969 champ. He thus became only the fourth driver in Speedway history to win back-to-back titles, the first since the late Bill Vukovich in the 1950s.

The United States Auto Club posted the official standings Sunday morning, including four changes among the top 10.

Jim Malloy, Denver, Colo., 33rd and last a year ago, finished fourth instead of fifth as announced Saturday, with Billy Vukovich, Fresno, Calif.,

Crashes took out seven cars and also injured Mel Kenyon, Lebanon, Ind., although not seriously, in a spectacular wreck triggered when another racer's engine blew apart, spilling oil in which three cars spun.

Ironically, Donohue's machine was parked in the infield when Mosley's burning car wrecked it.

Utah Stars acquires 6-7 center

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—The Utah Stars said Sunday they have acquired 6-7 center George Peoples of the Carolina Cougars as part of the deal for Western Kentucky star Jim McDaniels.

The ABA Stars chose McDaniels as their No. 1 draft pick, but the Cougars signed him last March to a contract reported to be around $3 million. Carolina general manager Carl Scheer said the undisclosed sum was "the largest contract ever paid to a professional basketball player."

"In selecting Peoples from the Carolina roster," we felt he was the Cougars' most valuable player next to superstar Joe Caldwell, who was frozen to us in this deal," said Vince Boryla, president and general manager of the ABA champion Stars.

The 7-foot McDaniels averaged 27.8 points a game and 10.5 rebounds for Western Kentucky last season.

Peoples, 27, played for the Indiana Pacers in 1967 after his graduation from the University of Iowa and was traded to Carolina. In 62 games last season the 190-pounder averaged 11.7 points and shot 48.8 per cent from the field.

"Peoples is a great hustler who gets down on the fast break better than most big men," Utah coach Bill Sharman said. "George should be a most valuable asset to us in backing up (veteran Zelmo) Beatty at center."

Canada wins HAMILTON, Bermuda (UPI)—Canada beat Bermuda 3-0 Sunday in an Olympic soccer pre-qualifier round.

Sergio Zanatta put the Canadians ahead in the first half. Second half goals came from Buzz Parsons and John Schepers.

Porsche wins manufacturers race

ADENAU, Germany (UPI)—Porsche of West Germany, one of the world's smallest automakers, won the world manufacturers championship for prototypes and sports cars Sunday for the third year running by sweeping the first three places in the 1,000-kilometer race on the Nuerburgring track.

Taking turns at the wheel of a three-liter Porsche 908, Gerard Larousse of France and Vic Elford of England crossed the line first in the new local record time of 5 hours, 51 minutes, 49.3 seconds, averaging 107.1 miles per hour.

Larousse and Elford also won earlier this year at Sebring. For Porsche, which beat off the challenge of Ferrari and Alfa Romeo, the Italian automakers, for the coveted trophy, it was the sixth success this year.

Finishing second in Sunday's grind, watched by about 200,000 spectators lining the 14.2 mile circuit, were Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico and Jo Siffert of Switzerland, while Helmut Marko of Austria and Gij Van Lennep of the Netherlands completed Porsche's clean sweep, coming in third.

New rules foreseen on starting '500'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—The critical injury of an Argentine doctor and less severe suffering of about 23 other persons brought speculation here that new rules may be adopted for starting the 500-mile auto race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Dr. Vincente Alvarez, 52, who spends the month of May here as a reporter - photographer instead of home in Buenos Aires as an orthopedic surgeon, suffered a basal skull fracture and other injuries Saturday when the pace car skidded into a photographer's stand at the onset of the race.

He was the worst hurt of those on the platform. Hospital officials returned Alvarez to the critical list before dawn Sunday after listing him as serious for some hours earlier.

The veteran auto racing writer was on the lower tier of the stand when the pace car hit it.

The accident brought complaints from Sam Hanks, the Speedway's director of racing, that "amateurs" should not be allowed to drive the pace car. The driver of it was Eldon Palmer, a local automobile dealer who said he missed his reference point for breaking, a flag that had been there during practice but was not posted on race day.

Hanks, the 1957 winner of the "500," has been chosen to drive the pace car in the Schaefer 500 at Pocono International Raceway in Pennsylvania July 3.

"I've been screaming for years about having professional drivers drive that pace car," Hanks said. He said he would talk to Speedway owner Tony Hulman about it.

Speculation was that in future races the pace car may be driven professionally, or it may pull over after the relatively slow parade lap instead of ending the pace lap.

Giants sweep doubleheader

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Tito Fuentes' bases loaded single with two outs in the bottom of the ninth capped a three-run rally Sunday and gave the San Francisco Giants an 8-7 victory over Montreal after Willie Mays won the opener 5-4 with a record-setting run.

The Expos, who routed Giants' starter Rich Robertson in the fourth with a five-run rally, took a 7-5 lead into the ninth but the Giants finally caught up with reliever Mike Marshall.

A walk, a single by Bobby Bonds—his fourth hit of the game—and a walk to pinch-hitter Russ Gibson filled the bases with two out. A run scored when Marshall uncorked a wild pitch and Al Gallagher walked to fill the bases and set the stage for Fuentes' game-winning hit.

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Al Kaline's three-run homer climaxed a five-run ninth inning Sunday and paced the Detroit Tigers to a 9-5 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Durocher may soon be fired

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The rumors are getting louder that Leo Durocher's days as manager of the Chicago Cubs may be numbered.

Sunday, they could be heard all the way from Pittsburgh to San Francisco, and that was even before the Cubbies pulled the top of their current alid and lost, 10-0, to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Losers nine times in the last 12 games, Chicago is a sad fifth in the National League East, 1-2 games behind first-place St. Louis and sinking.

Sources say Durocher, in his sixth year as manager of the Cubs, is in no danger of being fired, at least not for awhile. But a curious message arrived at Three Rivers Stadium Sunday, sent anonymously from the press box at Candlestick Park in San Francisco, reporting a strong rumor that Leo was out.

In the fourth inning, Ken Holtzman wild-pitched on an apparent inning-ending strikeout and the Pirates followed with six straight extra base hits, scoring eight times to chase Holtzman and wrap up the game.

The Cubs, obviously, are having trouble. They need some changes, and whether it will take new players or a new manager to get them into the pennant race is a decision General Manager John Holland must soon make.

The loss Sunday was their second 10-0 shelling in four days. Their pitchers have been battered for 40 runs in the last five games and the staff's earned run average is above four per game.

Even without the eight gift runs, the Pirates would have won Sunday's game because of Bob Moose's brilliant pitching. Moose allowed just three hits and struck out seven in his first complete game of the season. But like all pitchers, he was disappointed he didn't contribute more to the Pirates' 18-11 barrage.

"Heck, in that one (fourth) inning, I didn't punt a guy over and then I flied out to rightfield," he said. "I accounted for two of the outs. I'm glad I was in the lineup or else they might never have gotten us out."

The Pirates were leading 3-0 when the roof caved in on Holtzman with two on and two out in the fourth.

Rhine Heberner swung at a third strike and missed but the ball bounced in the dirt and got away from catcher Chris Cannizzaro for a wild pitch as a run scored and Heberner reached first base.

WILLIAM LOOP

Heavy duty shop chief announced

TWIN FALLS — The addition of a new heavy-duty shop foreman, William Loop, to the staff of Ace Hansen Chevrolet, Twin Falls, signifies an expansion into the new field of truck repairs.

Loop is moving to Twin Falls from Idaho Falls, where he was affiliated with Stoddard Ford as shop foreman. He has 35 years of experience in the field of shop work, he said.

Hansen Chevrolet will repair all makes of trucks in their new department, Loop said, working in temporary quarters until the firm moves to a new location on Blue Lakes Boulevard North in about four months. Complete truck-repair facilities will be available at the new site.

Cutbank cutback announced

PROVO (UPI) — Officials of U. S. Steel announced Saturday a cutback in steel production at the Geneva Works that will effect an estimated 250 employees.

The employees are mainly hearth, pipemill and maintenance division, officials said. Of the number more than 100 will be retained to reline a blast furnace and make up vacations this summer.

The cutback, a spokesman said, includes closing down one of five open hearth furnaces which will reduce plant output to 60-65 per cent of over-all capacity, and shutting down one of three blast furnaces for repairs.

Catholic school closes

PROVO (UPI) — Plans to close St. Francis Catholic School here because of rising education costs and a dwindling enrollment has been announced by the St. Francis Parish Council.

A spokesman said Friday the school will not resume next year, after 18 years of providing Catholic education in Utah County. St. Francis ends the current school year with 238 pupils.

When first opened the school offered courses for eight elementary grades and gradually expanded until it became a complete high school.

Faculty includes seven nuns of the Sisters of St. Francis of Perpetual Adoration, plus a number of lay persons.

The nuns are to be reassigned to other schools in the northwest still administered by their order, the spokesman said.

The custom of taking a daily picnic was officially ended in Mexico in 1946, but many Mexicans still enjoy a midday nap.

Conclusion Became isolated

In the spring of 1969, John Picciano moved to Solna, near Stockholm, and after months of making radical anti-American speeches, he began to wonder what the slogans he had been mouthing really meant.

He says he gradually became disenchanted with the American Deserters Committee and isolated himself from his old friends.

"I began to realize that many of us deserters-turned-revolutionaries didn't know what we were talking about," he says. "All this rhetoric about Imperialism, Pig America was nonsense. In the end it could really make you believe that all businessmen were fascists and Mao had all the answers to the American problem."

John decided he would expand his reading list beyond the Peking Review. He began to read American economists—everyone from John Kenneth Galbraith to Milton Friedman.

"I decided if I was against the American system, I'd better find out why."

He says he gradually came to accept that change in the United States could come about step by step and that Maoist communism has no relevance for a developed industrial country like the United States.

Realizing he would have little chance for a good job or further education in Sweden unless he was fluent in the language, he enrolled in a government-sponsored language class and passed the six-month course with honors.

In the summer of 1969, John Picciano Sr. came to Sweden to try to persuade his son to come home. He bought a mattress and moved into his son's one-room apartment in Solna for 10 days. The two had long quiet discussions and Mr. Picciano assured him he could always count on his family's support and affection. Although he failed to convince John to return home, he felt his son had matured and went back to New Jersey much relieved on that score at least.

In the fall of 1969, John began a six-month struggle to gain the necessary credits—the equivalent of two years of an American college—to enter a Swedish university.

He appropriated a reading list for a basic economics course at Uppsala. He read all the books on the list, and two months later returned to Uppsala and asked to be tested on the material. He passed with a high mark and was given special dispensation to study economics at the university on a government grant.

John moved from Stockholm to a student room in Uppsala in May, 1970.

"It was hard to believe I was really getting the chance to do what I wanted," he says. "I had my own room, my own possessions, my own reference books. I had roots."

University life stabilized John. He built up a new circle of friends and, after months of taking out different girls once, he found a steady companion, a young Swedish teacher, Lena Rodius.

In June, 1970, John's father and mother came to Uppsala for a visit. John had been apprehensive about their trip. His mother had heretofore refused to come and he did not know how she would react. But she was happy to see him and did not bring up the subject of his desertion. His parents told him how pleased they were he was studying and had made so much progress.

"I realized how lucky I was, knowing that the parents of many other deserters had disowned them," John says. "I know how hard it must have been for them, my being their only child."

Today, John is deeply immersed in life in Sweden. He attends economics classes at the university, studies French on his own, and hopes to work toward a degree. He is also applying for admission to carpentry school, so he will be able to earn a living while studying at the university. He lives in a two-room apartment with Lena and they have recently bought a tape recorder and radio. They ski and John plays chess for recreation. In the bedroom, a tall bookcase is full of volumes of Tolstoy, Thoreau and Orwell, among others.

Like many deserters, John follows American politics with intense interest. When he feels the U.S. government is escalating the Vietnam War and moving away from a peace agreement, he becomes deeply depressed.

"When something like Cambodia or Laos happens, you just know the possibilities are getting less and less for people like me to go back home," he says.

John gets depressed when he looks ahead. Like many deserters, he has only vague notions, many of them misconceptions, of what would happen to him if he does return. He believes he would either be sent back to his company, spend months in the stockade, and then be penalized by assignment to Vietnam, or be given a dishonorable discharge and spend five years in jail, the maximum sentence for desertion.

Judging from past cases, John's fate in fact would not be so harsh. Because he has stayed away so long, he would not be sent back into the Army but would certainly receive a dishonorable discharge. He would find it extremely difficult to get any good job; most big employers will not hire an ex-serviceman who has less than an honorable discharge.

Having deserted during basic training, John would not face the five-year maximum sentence reserved for "desertion with intent to avoid hazardous duty or shirk important service." The maximum for a deserter who returns voluntarily is two years.

On the other hand, John wonders if his contact with the North Vietnamese or his destruction of his military identification card would also be used against him.

But it is not the jail sentence which bothers John so much. It is the thought that he would be more of an exile in his own country than in Sweden. The real punishment would be to stand convicted for the rest of his life for an act he feels was not a crime.

"People would doubt my loyalty, my motives," he says. "My friends would look at me differently and I would have to prove myself all over again to each one. There would be those who, would never understand."

John is both right and wrong in his predictions about how he would be received in his home town. Opinion about the Vietnam War has changed in Lodi in recent years. The feeling that it is a war without a purpose seems widespread among young and old alike. But desertion is something else.

Bernard Focartino, 47, John's high school English teacher and former Lodi mayor, says he is against the war, but believes he shares with most Lodi citizens the feeling that, "You can't turn patriotism on and off. You can't pick and choose your war."

"We'd welcome John back, we'd give him a second chance, just so long as he had learned the error of his ways," he says.

Special stamp issued

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster General Winton M. Blount announced Saturday that a special 8-cent postage stamp will be issued nationwide July 1 to mark the official beginning of the U.S. Postal Service.

The stamp will reproduce the service's emblem, a stylized eagle in blue perched atop red, white and blue bars.

In the white bar in black print is "U.S. Mail." Circling the central design in ochre is printed, "United States Postal Service," with nine stars at the bottom. The price "8-cents" is printed beneath the stars in white on a field of blue.

The historic post rider on a horse had been the symbol of the U.S. Post Office for 134 years.

Inauguration of the stamp will be nationwide because of its "widespread import." Normal practice is to issue a stamp in a specific city.

Blount suggested Americans help celebrate the event philatelically by buying the new stamp and starting a collection of U.S. postage stamps and first day covers, which he said "reflect the history, culture and accomplishments of our country."

He called them "miniature works of art." The new postal emblem, which looks like a corporate symbol, is the work of a New York City design firm, Raymond Loew-William Smith, Inc.

Post rider emblem was adopted May 1, 1837.

Barber Dam will be inspected for damage next Tuesday after pieces of board the size of those used to construct the 70-year-old dam had been found below it.

R. Keith Higginson, director of the Department of Water Administration, said water flow from Lucky Peak Dam would be held back to allow the inspection. "These timbers may come from another source," he said, "but we just can't take this chance."

He said the problem that could arise would be six deposits buried in the pool behind the dam — if washed past the dam — would add to the river bed and lower the river's capacity for carrying water and be expensive to clean out.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ballou Garfield was the first mother of a president to witness the inauguration of her son.

Campbell said the Western routes of concern include those between Salt Lake and Los Angeles, Reno, Sacramento and San Francisco, as well as segments in Idaho and Montana.

Cambodian situation eyed

EDITOR'S NOTE: It was on April 30, 1970, that President Nixon announced U.S. troops had gone into Cambodia. On June 29 they were out again. Did they accomplish anything? Why did they go in? Is Cambodia now ripe for Communist takeover? In this dispatch a veteran reporter of the Cambodian campaign, just returned to Saigon from the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh, reports the situation as it looks to observers on the scene.

By KIM WILLENSON
SAIGON (UPI)—A year ago this spring, a massive allied surprise attack shoved the Vietnamese Communists out of the Cambodian border sanctuaries from which they had waged war in the southern half of South Vietnam for more than five years.

At the time, a great many seasoned observers of Southeast Asia affairs predicted the long-term result of the operation, ordered by President Nixon "to save American lives," would be unmitigated military disaster for Cambodia itself, and eventually for the United States and South Vietnam as well.

As soon as the Communists managed to recover from the invasion and to reorganize themselves militarily, the Southeast Asian soothsayers said they would strike a mortal blow at the two-month-old government of Gen. Lon Nol and his longtime associate, Sisowath Sirik Matak.

Then they would restore Prince Norodom Sihanouk—ousted on March 18 as he was leaving Moscow for Peking—to power, regain the use of Sihanoukville (now Kompong Som) port for the shipment of military supplies, refurbish the sanctuaries, and strike ever harder into the Mekong Delta and the Saigon area.

So the theory went, at any rate.

Now a year has gone by, and none of that has come to pass. Early in May, when the Southeast Asian monsoon arrived a month ahead of schedule, Cambodia passed into its second wartime rainy season and gained what is likely to be at least another six months' lease on life.

In fact, it probably will be much more than that, for with American and South Vietnamese help—including arms, training and direct intervention—the Cambodian army has grown from 35,000 men to about 200,000.

The Communists have not grown weaker in absolute terms, but they no longer have a short-term prayer of knocking over the government—if they wanted to in the first place—and the long-term struggle they are talking about now could last at least a decade and perhaps much more. It may never be successful. It certainly is not showing many signs of life at the moment.

To understand what happened in Cambodia, and why, it is necessary to go back well over a year—into the period when Sihanouk still ruled in Phnom Penh and the Communists had a relatively free hand in the country.

Sihanouk was a man of mercurial temper and epic ego. An artful manipulator of men and institutions, the chubby little prince played a masterful hand at the twin games of internal and international politics.

His two overriding aims were to keep himself in power and to preserve, in his own words, "the independence, neutrality and territorial integrity of Cambodia."

To preserve his own power he carried on a vast publicity campaign for himself—by radio, in the press, even with motion pictures that he not only wrote, produced and directed, but starred in personally.

He also plunged into the countryside frequently, and thoroughly immersed himself in its problems. He came to know and be known by thousands of minor officials in the rural areas of the farthest reaches of his kingdom, and by the peasants as well. Because of his God-like status as a former king (he abdicated in 1955 to become chief of state) and because he devoted his energies to improving the countryside through vast irrigation and construction projects, he became almost a supernatural being to the peasants.

But politically Sihanouk swapped cabinet ministers as quickly as a pony express rider changed horses in the old Wild West. In the 15 years he served as chief of state he went through a dozen governments and literally hundreds of cabinet ministers.

And one of his peccadillos was a penchant for personal abuse of Cambodian leaders who had fallen from his favor. He acquired a host of personal enemies over the years.

Internationally, Sihanouk was just as prone to sudden and unexplainable shifts of mood. In the same 15 years his foreign policy veered wildly from friendship toward Red China to friendship with the United States when he needed aid to build roads and beef up his tiny army, to open amity with the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong when he thought them likely to win in South Vietnam, and finally back to a more genuinely neutral position when it appeared they might fall.

But even though Sihanouk managed adroitly to keep his country relatively clear of the bitter and destructive war that raged along his borders from 1962 to 1970, he did so only at the cost of giving the Vietnamese Communists a free hand to make war and support themselves through his territory.

Gradually the errors of Sihanouk's ways began to catch up with him. In the late 1960s he suddenly was confronted with a tiny but vicious homegrown Communist movement of his own, the Khmer Rouge.

Though they never numbered more than 5,000 men before Sihanouk's fall from power, the Khmer Rouge came by 1969 to be able to take and hold towns with 25 miles of the capital for short periods of time, and to stand up to government invasions of their lairs in the jungled elephant mountains southwest of Phnom Penh.

What was worse, the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops in the border area sanctuaries began to grow careless about their behavior toward the Cambodians, building up a head of resentment that exploded early in March, 1970.

Sihanouk himself was barred from visiting the town of Bo Kheo along Highway 19 in Rattanakiri Province in early 1969, for example, because local North Vietnamese commanders considered such a trip would endanger the security of an estimated 8,000-man division camped outside the northeast Cambodia town.

His reaction was to order his minuscule army to "drive the invaders out." One result of that order was the massacre of a company of antiquated French armored cars and their Cambodian crewmen. A second was to plant the first seeds of resentment among the army officers corps for Sihanouk's long neglect of the military's welfare.

An army colonel who was associated with Sihanouk but who also was a follower of Lon Nol, put it succinctly in a private conversation with a group of correspondents, some weeks ago:

"We all appreciated the fact that Sihanouk kept us out of the war," he said. "But gradually as he got more and more deeply involved with the Vietnamese we came to realize that he was going in the wrong direction. If the Viet Cong won in South Vietnam, they would want to rule in Cambodia, too. We already had the examples of the Khmer Rouge and the Viet Cong's behavior in the sanctuaries before our eyes.

"If they won and we were left with nothing more than our 35,000-man army, with no modern weapons except what the Communists gave us, how could we resist? He was giving us a choice between dishonor and death, and gradually people came to know that."

The breaking point finally arrived in the late winter of 1970, when the Viet Cong who occupied the sanctuaries in the "Parrot's Beak" area of Cambodia, about 75 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, began behaving in an intolerably arrogant fashion.

Reports on just what they did are somewhat confused, but it is said that among other things they tried to levy heavy rice taxes on the Cambodian peasants, and at one point actually occupied the province capital of Svay Rieng itself.

A series of anti-Vietnamese disturbances broke out there in the first week of March. On March 11, they spread to the capital of Phnom Penh itself, crowds of rioters—possibly organized by people in the government—sacked the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese embassies and raided Vietnamese commercial establishments.

Sihanouk, away in France for his annual cure, was irate at what he considered unwarranted interference in his conduct of domestic and foreign policy by the government of Lon Nol, whom he had picked as premier a year earlier in a mild slap at the Viet Cong. Lon Nol was a known rightist with pro-American tendencies.

The prince is said to have sent secret orders to Phnom Penh for the arrest of Lon Nol and other key ministers in the cabinet. The orders were somehow intercepted, and on March 18 Lon Nol went before the National Assembly to demand—and receive—the ouster of Sihanouk as chief of state. The entire military establishment went over to Lon Nol intact.

There is no question but that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese realize very quickly where they had gone wrong. In a series of documents dated during the months of March and April, 1970, and captured by the Americans during the Cambodian invasion, the Communists stressed over and over again:

"Our shortcomings:
"1. We did not respect the territorial integrity (of Cambodia).

"2. The messing, billeting and movement regulations of our troops were not strictly observed. We fired carelessly and killed people and cattle.

Nursing is intergral part of total health service

By CHARLOTTE BELL, Times-News Writer

JEROME — In a personal interview this week with Sister Mary Agnes Reichlin who is supervisor of the obstetrical unit and managing director of nursing at St. Benedict's Hospital, the Times-News was told that nursing is an integral part of total health service and exists to provide a specialized and unique service of care to the patient and the community.

Nursing is concerned with preventing disease, curing ill, restoring health, rehabilitating the ill person when necessary and assisting in the progression toward and through death when cure is not possible.

Nursing care is provided for people around the clock, not only at St. Benedict's Hospital but every hospital across the country and in the world. Besides the 24-hour a-day service, nursing encompasses a wide scope of specialties. Nurse's care for people in the operating room, delivery room, nursery, emergency room, intensive care unit, coronary care unit, medical, surgical, pediatric and obstetric nursing units, clinics, doctor's offices, publichealth units, home health services, schools, industry, nursing homes and many other areas.

Because of the provision of continual service and wide scope of nursing activities, nursing departments in all hospitals employ more personnel than any other department in the hospital.

At St. Benedict's Hospital, 44 persons are employed in nursing. This includes 15 registered nurses, 14 licensed practical nurses, eight nurses aides, three ward clerks, one inhalation therapy technician, one surgical technician, one surgical housekeeping aide and one anesthetist. (This does not include the 23 persons employed in nursing in the Long Term Care Unit of the hospital.)

These nursing personnel give nursing care in the four areas or units of medical - surgical - emergency room - intensive care, obstetrics and anesthesia-inhalation therapy. Each of the nursing units is directed by a registered nurse who has had special training and experience in that type of nursing.

A Lovelier You

A CASE FOR JEWELRY

By Mary Sue Miller

Museums around the world display magnificent gold, silver and gem-encrusted jewelry from the earliest years of recorded history. No one knows better than a woman how closely her own history parallels that of the precious stuff.

You catch glimpses of the alliance in this summer's costume jewelry as it dips into the near past with dog collars, chokers, plummeting pendants and bar pins. And we see more distant times mirrored in African, Oriental, Mexican and American Indian chains, amulets and all manner of ethnic symbols.

Then speaking of the modern and foretelling the future are the metal works of body-stroking sculptures for neck, waist, wrist and fingers in most every metal.

In settings old and new, pearls — praise be — continue to represent the gems of all seasons.

Now just how can you make the most of this largesse? Not to is not like a woman! A basic precept might be "small with small and tall with tall." Proportion, as with everything a woman wears, is vital here. Delicate pieces suit the petite; massive designs are meant for statuesque figures. Individually enters at this point. You express yours when you identify with the historical background of a piece.

Naturally, baubles should complement your costume. To overstate the case, body sculpture pieces scarcely merit ruffled dimity dresses. Beware, mistaken choices are made in less obvious ways.

LOVELIER HANDS

Do you have a hand problem? Send today for LOVELIER HANDS, a booklet that covers every step in a quest for hand beauty. It tells how to keep the skin and nails groomed; how to overcome weak nails, polka-chips, discolored knuckles, prominent veins, wrinkles; how to use the hands with poised grace. To obtain your copy, write Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin.

DEAR ABBY: I respected your answers until you gave a put-down to that person who was all for forced marriages. It doesn't make one bit of difference what kind of husband or father the boy will be. He can be a rotten husband and a lousy father, but at least the children will have a legal name. That is all that is important. It doesn't even matter if he lives with the girl after he marries her. If he's no good, let him clear out.

A boy should be forced by law to give his name to any children he fathers. That's the trouble with the world today, nobody is made to live up to their responsibilities.

OLD-FASHIONED

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: You are entitled to your point of view, but please read on.

DEAR ABBY: Those who think the best solution to an unmarried girl's pregnancy is to force the guy to marry her might like to hear my story.

When I was 14 years old, I fell in love, and became pregnant. The boy was 16. Our parents decided it would be best for all concerned if we got married. You can't know the horrible disaster it was. When my baby was three months old I got pregnant again, and my child-husband went home to his mama. There I was, not yet 16, with two babies!

I was supposed to get support checks, but none came, so no organization would help me. I couldn't pay my rent or buy food. We nearly starved to death. We lived on mayonnaise and bread for two weeks. Then eviction.

My own parents turned their backs on me so I took my two babies to my husband's parents where at least they would be fed. These "kind" people refused to let me see my children after that. It has been eight years now and I am grateful that my children have a good home even tho I am not allowed to see them.

I am not blaming my parents. At the time they did what they thought was best for me, but I tell other parents: Please don't push two kids into marriage just to give a baby a name. I would have been much better off with one baby and no husband.

OLD AT 22

DEAR ABBY: One of your readers thought shotgun weddings were the only answer when a girl gets into trouble. Let me tell you my experience as a shotgun bride.

I married because I was pregnant, and my husband really had a gun in his back. Before my fifth anniversary, I had five babies, three of which were in diapers at one time. I had no running water, no toilet facilities, inside or out, and we all lived in three small rooms. I never got to go out, with or without my children. Yes, my children have a legal name, but I don't know if you would call them legal or not. You see, their father never paid the doctor's delivery fees. A marriage doesn't mean your husband will support you, or love you, or take care of you.

I'm now separated, not divorced, because he claims he "loves" me and the children and he won't give us up. But he hasn't visited us or paid me any support in two years.

If my unmarried daughter ever gets pregnant I will never insist on a shotgun wedding. What's in a "name"? I have TWO names, but what good are they when I have five children and no husband?

STUCK

DEAR ABBY: I am a Catholic and I'm proud of it. Since Catholics don't believe in divorce, even a baby on the way is not a good enough reason for me to use up the one marriage I've got coming if I didn't really love the guy and planned to stay married to him for the rest of my life. I am only 14, but I am . . .

Jim: "The better players considered going up with the king. It was possible that West had undervalued an ace. Possible, but highly improbable. Then they saw that the play of the six of clubs could guarantee their contract so they proceeded to make the insurance play."

Oswald: "After that start the best defense could be to was to gather in two clubs and the ace of diamonds."
Jim: "It was just a matter of considering all the suits. South could see that he would not have lost a heart trick, provided he got a chance to knock out the ace of diamonds before West could lead a heart. The low club play made this a sure thing."

Oswald: "Myopia, or near-sightedness, is a common ailment of bridge players. They look at just one suit rather than at the whole hand."

Jim: "There are times when one suit is all you have to consider, but on many more occasions all suits are important."

Oswald: "A heart opening followed by a diamond return and a shift to a club would defeat the four spade contract. However, most West players in the duplicate game opened the deuce of clubs. The South players who only looked at one suit played the dummy's king and East would take his ace and

THAT WOMAN who lives alone is the object of great sympathy. Rightly so, too, oftentimes. Still, she's better able to handle her solitude than is the man who lives alone, evidently. Those medical researchers who study heart attack cases say the lone man is far more apt to suffer same than is the lone woman.

IS IT STILL against the law in Pasadena, Calif., for a businessman and his lady secretary to occupy the same office without a chaperone? Used to be.

A SCHOOLTEACHER of lengthy experience says this is the difference between a classroom full of boys and a classroom full of girls: "You say 'Good Morning' to the boys and they all raise their hands, half wanting to know what you mean by 'Good' and half wanting to know what you mean by 'Morning.' You say 'Good Morning' to the girls and they all painstakingly write it down in their notebooks." Cynical fellow, this teacher. Been at it too long maybe.

"WHO WAS the famous man," inquires a youthful customer, "who climbed onto a trolley car, sat down next to a young lady he'd never seen before in his life, struck up a conversation, took her by the hand straightaway to a preacher, and married her?" That gentleman, young fellow, was Edwin C. Hill, a radio newscaster of great individuality. He regarded the trolley ride as the honeymoon, and the engagement lasted only a little bit longer than the marriage ceremony itself. The account is Item No. 1 in our Love and War man's voluminous file on the topic of love at first sight.

CUSTOMER SERVICE: Q. "How much of a retired citizen's life has been spent in front of a television set?" A. Don't know yet, television hasn't been around long enough. Ask me 25 years from now. By then, the statisticians figure said citizen will have devoted nine years to the watching of such shows.

NUMEROUS COMPLAINANTS object to the personal nature of the questions in the national census. Don't blame them. Those government boys who want us to tell everything ought not forget what happened to the old Roman Empire. Before it fell, its census-takers were required to itemize every citizen's debts with the names of all the debtors.

Carpenter accused of murder

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Charles E. Smith, 44, a Kirksville, Mo., carpenter, faces a 50-year prison term for the 1961 murder of his pregnant wife, Donna Jean.

Smith was convicted of second-degree murder Jan. 23, after fighting extradition from Boise, Idaho, where he was captured March 31, 1963. The jury recommended 50 years imprisonment.

St. Louis County Circuit Judge Douglas L. C. Jones set the sentence Friday and denied a defense motion for court probation. Jones said, however, that Smith would be credited for the time he spent in prison before sentencing.

Smith had testified that his 25-year-old wife, who was seven months pregnant at the time of her death, accidentally fell into the Arkansas River in Oklahoma, Oct. 26, 1961, while the couple was on vacation. Her body was found in a 30-gallon drum in a Lake in Thousand Hills State Park near Kirksville — about 500 miles from the Oklahoma site — on July 17, 1962. She had been beaten to death.

Smith disappeared from Kirksville when the body was found, but was captured eight months later in Boise where he remained in custody until November, 1967.

He was returned to Adair County where the murder charges had been filed against him. A change of venue brought the case to St. Louis.

Connie Mack (Cornelius McGillicuddy) managed the Philadelphia Athletics from 1901 through 1950, longer than any other major league baseball club manager in history.

Firm gets okay for Nampa TV

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Television Corp. has secured a license to operate Channel 6 in Nampa, but a spokesman was uncertain when the station would begin broadcasting.

The Idaho Statesman reported today James U. Lavenstein, Salt Lake City, a principal of Idaho Television Corp., made the statement after denial Thursday of an appeal by Snake River Valley Television Corp. against the Federal Communication's review board decision awarding the license to Idaho Television.

Snake River Valley Television was the only other concern seeking the Channel 6 franchise.

Snake River Valley has 30 days in which to file suit in federal court protesting the commission's actions.

Lavenstein said his group must consider hiring a staff and making arrangements for purchase of property in Nampa for a studio location. He said the firm had arrangements with the Forest Service for placing a transmitter near Bogus Basin.

The firm will invest between $500,000 and $750,000 by the time it begins broadcasting. Lavenstein said the firm is considering arrangements for the purchase of specialized equipment.

He said although no contract agreement has been reached with ABC-TV, the network has shown interest in having Channel 6 as an affiliate station. Partners in the corporation include Lavenstein, Marily Lavenstein, and M. Walker and Constance Wallace, all of Salt Lake City, and Daniel O'Shea, New York.

Quarrying at monument pends ecological study

CAPITOL REEF, Utah (UPI) — Quarrying of building stone on property within Capitol Reef National Monument will be held up another 30-days while the operators conduct an ecological study of the land.

Clair Bird, owner of the mineral lease on 640 acres of land within the boundaries, said, he and the operator, Green Hornet Mining Co., would hire two "completely unbiased impartial expert appraisers," to do the study.

"determine the best possible way of removing the building stone, developing business property and maintaining and returning the land to its natural use."

The appraisals would be made public in 30-days, he said. However, Bird said the delay agreement was made "provided that the Park Service interference is not encountered in the lessee's other business activities."

He owns a service station and lodge within the park boundary.

Earlier this week he turned down a $17,000 offer from the National Park service for the service station and the remaining 42 years on his 49-year mining lease.

He announced at that time that quarrying would begin after a second 30-day moratorium expired at midnight Thursday.

Bird said the new moratorium and study would be expensive but would be in the best public interest and should satisfy all interested parties.

Black hunters move up

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)—The white hunters who wrote a romantic chapter in African history are now being joined for the first time by black hunters.

The black hunters learned their trade mostly as porters and gun bearers to white safari leaders. Recently three of them moved up to stand equal to the dwindling profession of those who guide visitors seeking game with gun or camera.

One of these is Ishmail Kimani, 31, who runs his own safaris. Bespectacled and slender, he looks too slightly built for his heavy hunting rifles. But he has his diploma in wildlife conservation from the University of Georgia and served in game reserves as a game warden for three years.

Kimani operates from a ground floor cubicle in Nairobi's Panafic Hotel, where he processes the many details of assembling a safari.

He has to check with the game department for hunting areas, obtain licenses, arrange accommodation before and at the end of the safari, equip the expedition, get safari clothes for his clients and hire personnel.

But it does not stop there. Every safari requires at least 10 people, plus vehicles and guns, and there are many rules to be observed while out in the bush.

Another member of the hunters is Ngoro who works with a European at a game reserve called Naivasha.

The third member of the association, Elud Gideon, obtained his professional license last November. At 26 he is the youngest of the three.

North Ireland vows to efface all graffiti

BELFAST (UPI)—The order is out to get Belfast's virulent graffiti off the wall.

Northern Ireland's Ministry of Community Relations, the department charged with easing sectarian tensions, has vowed to scrub the city clean in a warning several months ago that all offensive slogans would be officially effaced.

But the ancient art of hate writing still flourishes in the Roman Catholic and Protestant working class ghettos. The city's walls, gate ends, lamp posts and pavements still abound with slogans and exhortations rooted in centuries of sectarian strife.

Apart from the effect of such daubings in perpetuating community strife, the government has become concerned about the city's image in this tourist-conscious world.

There is nothing subliminal in the messages splashed across the walls of the Protestant Shankill or the Roman Catholic Falls road.

But not all the mural embellishments are obscene or abusive. Many Protestant streets are adorned with colorful pavement artistry, tracing the blossoming of the faith since the days of King William of Orange. Painted Union Jacks tell the world that wherever else the Empire-sun may set it will always rise in Protestant Sandy Row.

These sidewalk masterpieces have been hailed as genuine "Ulster folk art" by many. This in turn, has given pause to the ministry's soap and water suds.

"If we scrubbed out King Billy we would be in real trouble," said one ministry official.

While the Protestant streets tend to be more colorful although no less abusive, the Catholics use a minimum of words to put across a message that is often blunt, vicious and obscene.

Connoisseurs of the hate message have noted few changes with the years, although any hint of subtlety seems to have disappeared.

Essay on bait fishing hails season's opening

By JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish-Game Department

BOISE — The late Ben Hur Lampman, associate editor of the Portland Oregonian, and one of the country's top outdoor writers, penned a short essay on the virtues of bait fishing that goes a long way towards keynoting the opening weekend of the Idaho statewide general fishing season.

Called simply, "In Defense of Bait Fishing," even dry fly purists should enjoy this essay. It is one of many fine examples of Lampman's writing style and philosophy in a little book, "A Leaf From French Eddy" (Touchstone Press, Portland, Ore.).

Lampman's ideas on bait fishing are delightful. The closing paragraph admonishes the reader:

"Should you see a man diligent in bait fishing, regard him well. He is a dependable fellow, warm of heart and hand, who will open his tackle box to you or share his coffee. Sit beside him and talk a while."

Lampman was deeply aware of other points of view, and quickly noted at the outset that he considered fly fishing to be "the poetry of angling." He knew that some men, even as long ago as three decades, loved the game of outwitting a wily fish with an artificial fly. Many such men, intensely proud of their art, refuse to carry spinner, flashing devices or bait of any kind.

But the thing to bear in mind is that fly casting is the traditional way of fishing by experts who preach that when a man gets to the point where he knows how to fish, he should use the most sporting way of doing it. If he can still fill out with a limit of trout when he is giving the fish a break by fly casting, then he has earned the right to be called "expert."

Writers for centuries have told about artificial flies, the world's oldest and most successful lures.

In general, there are four broad types of artificial lures now sold. These are the dry, wet, nymph, and streamer groups. Dry flies are made to rest on the surface of the water like a floating insect, while wet flies work best submerged like a bug or tiny fish.

Nymphs are crafted to look like an immature insect crawling on the bottom. The streamer, when wet, has long feathers and hackles arranged to resemble small fish.

Bait dunkers swear by worms, salmon eggs, hellgramites, grasshoppers, shrimp, dough balls, eels, small frogs, and a host of other things, just as the practitioners do who use wool, silk and exotic feathers for the same end — to make a hungry fish want to eat them.

This means that both lures and baits must look like the real thing — a juicy morsel that could get away. It must be taken quickly, all in one gulp — "hook, line and sinker."

As Lampman suggests, bait fishermen have time to sit and talk a while, sharing coffee and the contents of their tackle boxes. With time on their hands, they learn to be reflective, even philosophical.

Bait fishermen build their beach fires and brew their coffee, whatever the weather may be. Even so, there are more times than not when cold winds blow and chill shrouds of fog and rain and snow come down. This gentry of angler is not of the fair-weather stripe. Some of the greatest mackinaw and Kamloops trout were boated in snowstorms on Priest and Pend Oreille lakes.

Winter fishermen trek to southeastern Idaho's Bear Lake to hand net the unique cisco in January and February; angle for sea-run steelhead in late fall and early spring in the Snake, Clearwater and Salmon rivers; defy Old Man Winter in all of his moods on reservoirs and streams that are open for all year fishing.

Fishermen seem to regard anything that flies, creeps, crawls or hops as potential bait. Worms head the list early in the season. The reason is that worms can be found naturally in the water because spring runoff floods many places and washes these creatures into the main stream — firm, shiny and lively.

Such is not the case in the summertime, or fall, and fish become suspicious of worms even though worms do not encase hooks. Moreover, summertime worms are dull, mushy and unappetizing because of warm weather.

Salmon eggs come in either singles or clusters, and several colors such as white, pink, red and fluorescent red, and their consistency varies from soft to hard. Fishing conditions and other factors control when to use them.

Idaho law requires that minnows be dead before they can be used as bait. Cut bait, such as strips of non-game fish, sometimes is used but does not seem to be as effective as it is for salt water fishing.

Catfish are the exception. This bowlerheaded fish species eats anything — the smaller the better.

Ingredients for "stink bait" are innocent enough until mixed and set in the warm, open sunlight to ripen. When the neighbors start to complain, the bait is ready to attract catfish. The formula consists of cornmeal, blood or blood meal, oatmeal, sorghum molasses, cod liver oil and cotton.

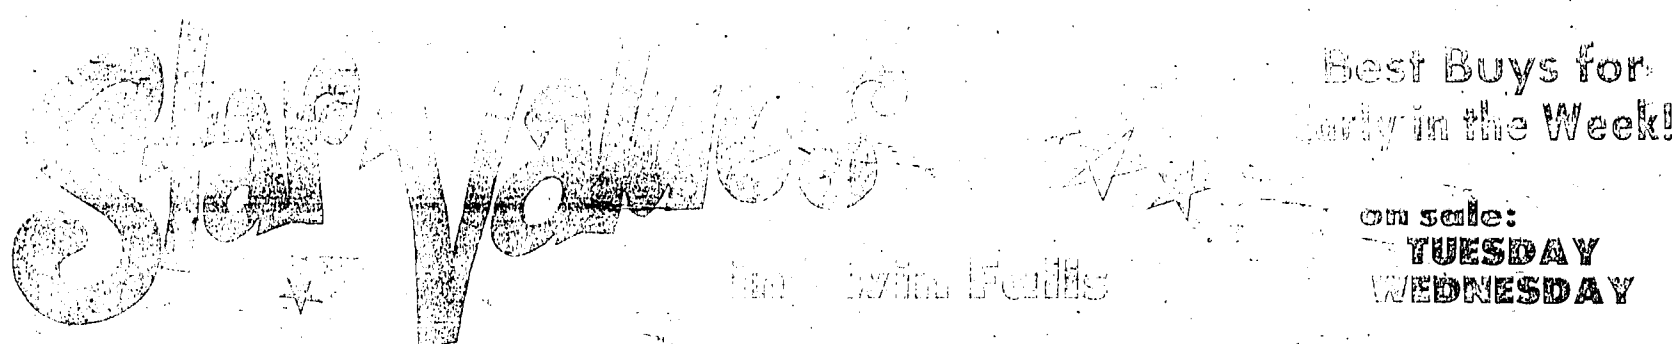

Some fishermen do not like to use any kind of bait because they say it is messy, hard to keep in good condition, and a nuisance to carry around. Spinners of various sizes, shapes and actions are used as substitutes as baits or artificial lures. The basic principle is a blade that rotates in the water to attract the fish.

One favorite is a small spinner, with a blade that cuts water in a way that resembles a small fish riding the current. One observer says he saw a Dolly Varden drop a five-inch fish from its mouth so that it could strike a spinning blade.

No matter what manner of fishing is used, or the degree of proficiency, a trip always is a success if the anglers have developed enough of the bait fisherman's philosophy to shrug his shoulders indifferently at the amount of success he has had — or the lack of it — and say with conviction that the outing is the thing. The number of trout or other fish in the creel is purely incidental.
