Downtown projects delayed

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — The second phase of the downtown redevelopment project, involving reconstruction of alleys and parking lots along the two Second Avenues, has been delayed four to six weeks, according to Evan Robertson, Urban Renewal Agency director.

Earlier plans called for awarding of contracts by the first of June. Present indications are the contracts won't be awarded by the city before the middle of July, with work to start by the first of August or before. Completion of the alley-parking lot portion will be inevitably delayed until late fall or next spring.

Inclusion of the "utility phase," including burying of all utility lines in the six blocks along the Second Avenues from Second Street West and North to Third Street East and South, in the overall redevelopment project has forced the delay in plans, Robertson said.

"We have now been assured of funding contributions from Idaho Power Co. and Mountain Bell which will allow the burying of all utility lines in the alleys," the agency director told the Times-News. In addition, contributions have been pledged from Cablevision and the Off-Street Parking Corp., as well as the Urban Renewal Agency.

The utility-line project will cost about $212,000, Robertson said. Timing of the burial phase in the overall project is "tricky" at best, since all lines, particularly electrical, will have to be trenched in and hooked up to the business firms throughout each three-block alley stretch practically at the same time.

Power and telephone service, as well as gas and water, cannot be interrupted for any extended period of time, so all firms will have to be hooked into the buried lines well before demolition of the overhead wire structures and poles can be undertaken.

Nearly all of the alley and parking lot reconstruction can be completed this summer and fall, but some of the final paving may have to wait until warmer weather returns next spring, Robertson said. Much depends on the weather this fall. A late, warm fall would allow paving to continue, whereas an early end to warm weather would halt the work.

Senate approves agency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate cleared the way today for the midnight debut of a new superagency called "Action" to oversee the federal government's volunteer programs including the Peace Corps and Vista.

The Senate rejected a resolution proposed by Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., to keep Action from going into effect. The vote was 54 to 23.

Action eventually will bring together nearly a dozen programs involving more than 21,000 volunteers.

Joseph Blatchford, Peace Corps director, already has been tabbed by Nixon to head Action, Blatchford said in a statement that the Senate vote "clearly reflects the desire of the American people for greater opportunities to put their energies to work on the many problems which face us as a nation."

Charged

THE ARMY announced that Lt. Col. William McCloskey, shown in December, 1968 photo, as a major, has been charged with the murder of two Vietnamese civilians in March, 1969, a year after the My Lai massacre. McCloskey, a native of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is now assigned to the 1st Army's combat development command at Ft. Belvoir, Va. He was brigade operations officer to Brig. Gen. John Donaldson in Vietnam, who has been charged with the murder of six Vietnamese civilians a few months after My Lai. (UPI)

Chairman attacks proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee labeled President Nixon's $5 billion revenue sharing plan today as "the most dangerous proposal that ever has been developed."

Mills, who called hearings on the proposal for the express purpose of killing it, made the statement as he questioned Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr. The hearings on the embattled plan to funnel federal revenues to states and cities opened Wednesday.

Connally said he did not share the fears of Mills.

Pleads innocent

YUBA CITY, Calif. (UPI) — The search for more mass murder victims moved from orchards along the Feather River today after suspect Juan V. Corona pleaded innocent to the slayings.

Technicians processed infrared aerial photos taken from Wednesday's aerial survey of a light plane as it made 12 passes over the crude graveyard where 22 bodies were unearthed and over the surrounding farmland.

Sheriff Roy Whiteaker said the sophisticated camera, which was donated by a San Francisco area firm, could detect unusual disturbances in the soil by recording temperature variations in infrared film. He said the results of Wednesday's aerial survey wouldn't be known for a couple of days.

"This is the first time, to my knowledge, the camera has been used in locating graves," the sheriff said.

Corona, 37, impassive and calm, was arraigned on charges of murdering 10 of the hacked and stabbed victims at a closed door hearing Wednesday before Judicial Court Judge J.J. Hankins. He pleaded innocent.

Hankins set a preliminary hearing for June 16 during the 27-minute arraignment at which a Spanish interpreter explained the charges to Corona, a Mexican national who has lived in the Yuba City area for 15 years.

Roy van den Heuvel, formally entered the innocent pleas and obtained an order allowing him to look at the prosecution's evidence within 48 hours.

Van den Heuvel said again that deputies may have arrested the wrong man and that "there is a good possibility" the real killer is still at large.

"My only concern is one—and that is to get Juan out of there (jail)" the public defender told newsmen later.

Viet relief force halted

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese rangers and paratroopers tried today to fly to the relief of a beleaguered artillery base but their U.S.-piloted helicopters were driven off by intense North Vietnamese anti-aircraft fire.

The defenders of Fire Base 3 in the Central Highlands 190 miles north of Saigon have been kept from being resupplied for 11 days by anti-aircraft fire and log has hampered allied air strikes to support them.

They killed 60 Communists Wednesday in fighting 700 yards from the base, field commanders said, and earlier the same day found the bodies of 57 Communists killed in earlier fighting.

Paratroopers and rangers of the Army of the Republic of (South) Vietnam (ARVN) tried to move into a landing zone about 1 1/2 miles from the base today but were driven off by heavy fire, field reports said.

Their American-piloted choppers were forced to land in a secondary landing zone more distant from the base.

In the northwest corner of South Vietnam on Wednesday, 3,000 South Vietnamese marines on a three-day search-and-destroy sweep were hit by a 600-round Communist mortar barrage, one of the heaviest since the siege of the American base of Khe Sanh in 1968.

The attack occurred near Khe Sanh itself, now abandoned. Military sources said six South Vietnamese marines were killed and 41 wounded.

In its weekly casualty report today the U.S. command said

48 Americans were killed in action and 229 wounded in the week ending May 29, bringing American combat casualties in 10 years of Indochina combat to 45,231 killed and 299,863 wounded.

In Cambodia, helicopters air-dropped supplies today to elite American-trained Cambodian troops counterattacking North Vietnamese forces within rocket range of the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh.

The Cambodian high command claimed more than 400 North Vietnamese have been killed in a week-long battle raging over swamplands 10 miles northeast of Phnom Penh. It said 120 government troops had been killed or wounded.

More than half the casualties on both sides occurred Wednesday when government troops charged and captured a Communist bunker complex adjoining a Buddhist pagoda in a climactic day-long battle.

Three 100-man battalions of shock troops trained by U.S. Green Berets made the assault on the pagoda at An Cheng, 10 miles northeast of the capital.

The Cambodian high command has been rushing reinforcements into the area, which is east of the Tonle Sap and Mekong rivers that form Phnom Penh's eastern boundary.

Six South Vietnamese marines were killed and 41 were wounded, military sources said today.

Bigger guns for S. Viets

SAIGON (UPI) — The United States for the first time has given South Vietnamese troops 175mm artillery, the most powerful weapon yet provided the government under the Vietnamization program, military sources said today.

The 31-ton guns have a range of 20 miles. The South Vietnamese previously have been given only 105mm and 155mm howitzers. The sources said two of the big guns have been delivered to the Vietnamese and 22 others will be turned over early next month.

Two battalions of South Vietnamese now are undergoing training by American troops in the use of the 175mm guns; the sources said. They said the guns would be unveiled at the June 19 Armed Forces Day parade in Saigon.

The United States also is considering giving the Vietnamese air force F4 Phantom jet fighter-bombers under the Vietnamization program, but the sources said it had not yet been determined whether Vietnamese ground crews could maintain and service the sophisticated aircraft.

Blasts rock meet city

LISBON (UPI) — A series of bomb explosions rocked telecommunications centers in Lisbon and a nearby town today, disrupting most telephone and telex lines between Portugal and the outside world as the NATO foreign ministers began a two-day meeting.

There were rumors another unexploded bomb was found in the national assembly building, the Sao Bento Palace, where the ministers held their formal opening session. Dr. Fytor Pinto, spokesman for the Portuguese information ministry, refused to confirm or deny the reports.

The first explosion came at a communications center in downtown Lisbon seven hours before the NATO leaders sat down to discuss recent Soviet overtures toward mutual troop reductions in Europe, Russian calls for a European security conference and the ever-present Berlin problem.

Pinto said one bomb wrecked a vital switching center outside the communications building in downtown Lisbon and that three other bombs exploded in a telephone substation at Scavem, 30 miles northeast of Lisbon. He said it caused no casualties and only slight damage.

The bomb at the telecommunications building in Lisbon caused extensive damage but no casualties.

Manlio Brosio of Italy, the NATO secretary general, told the opening session seven hours after the bomb blast that he welcomed the Russian overtures but that it would be premature to assess them without clarifying a number of points.

Political sources said the bomb probably was placed by members of the Armed Revolutionary Action (ARA) group which claimed responsibility for four similar bombings in the past six months. The group opposes, among other things, Portugal's involvement in the so-called "liberation war" in its African possessions.

The bomb today blew a gaping hole in the sidewalk outside the communication exchange in Dom Luis Square in downtown Lisbon near the waterfront. The NATO meeting is being held several miles away in the outskirts.

Brosio, in his opening speech, said of the Soviet mutual troop withdrawals:

"... the alliance welcomes this response to its urgent proposals for talks on ways and means of effectively reducing tension by getting to grips with the problems connected with the military confrontation in central Europe. This question will be given the closest possible attention at this meeting."

Western officials said the United States and its principal European allies were cautiously optimistic about chances with the Soviets on Berlin before the end of the year.

Mother selected 'Father of year'

SPOKANE (UPI) — This year's father of the year is a woman.

The National Father's Day Committee Wednesday named Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, 89, who founded Father's Day 61 years ago, to receive the coveted silver bowl in a special ceremony here Sunday.

The committee said in making its exception that the Spokane woman will be honored as the "Mother of Father's Day."

The gracious, white-haired great grandmother remains "semi-active" as vice president of a funeral home, which she helped incorporate after her husband died.

Mrs. Dodd, one of six children born to an Arkansas couple, lost her mother in 1898. Her father raised the family alone for the last 21 years of his life.

After she was married and had children of her own, she saw how her own young son loved his father, and that got her thinking about her own dad.

"It was also a time when fathers were pretty much in the doghouse," she recalls. "There were popular songs like 'Every body Works But Father,' and 'Father, Dear Father, Come Home With Me Now.'"

Mrs. Dodd then hit upon the idea of upgrading the father's image by giving him a special day all his own.

"It seemed such a natural thing that I wasn't surprised to see it become an accepted observance throughout the United States—and a good number of other countries besides," she said.

Now the nation's fathers will reward her for her thoughtfulness.

$2 minimum wage asked by unions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The AFL-CIO urged Congress today to raise the minimum wage immediately to $2 an hour and extend coverage to every worker in America.

"The economy needs and must have the added purchasing power these increases will provide," said Andrew Biemiller, chief lobbyist on Capitol Hill for organized labor.

Biemiller's testimony was prepared for a Senate Labor Committee hearing.

His testimony was 180 degrees opposite that of Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson, who said such an increase posed harmful threats to the economy and might result in higher unemployment.

The committee has before it two bills:

—One by Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., endorsed by the AFL-CIO, would increase the basic minimum wage from the present $1.60 an hour to $2 an hour 60 days after enactment and to $2.25 an hour one year later.

—The Nixon administration bill, presented by Hodgson, would increase the basic minimum to $1.80 an hour Jan. 1, and to $2 an hour Jan. 1, 1974.

The minimum wage was last raised, to its present $1.60 level, in 1966 from $1.25 an hour.

Biemiller said that with the 1966 increase the AFL-CIO "took pride that for the first time a worker who worked full time the year round could feel confident he would not have to live in poverty."

The Nixon administration does not want expanded coverage, contending employers would eliminate the jobs rather than pay the higher wages. The administration also wants lower minimums, $1.60 for workers under 21 and $1.45 to $1.80 for farm workers.

Idaho state employee session begins today in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — The 12th session of the Idaho State Employees' Association general council convened today at the Holiday Inn with 70 delegates attending. Business sessions will continue Friday and Saturday. New officers will be installed and the outstanding state employee awards to a man and woman will be presented at the closing dinner.

Gov. Cecil Andrus will speak and present the awards. Scheduled to address the general council at the Friday noon luncheon is Chairmen Jones, president of the Oregon State Employees' Association. Other speakers include Tommy Terrell, executive director of the Public Employees' Retirement Association, and George Murphy, director of the Idaho Personnel Commission.

Resolutions to be considered include prevailing salary rates, longevity plan, insurance and retirement benefits for state employees and constitution and bylaw changes. David Lewis, chairman of the constitution and bylaws committee, said the resolutions received from chapters from throughout the state prior to the deadline were fewer in number this year than in the past.

Lewis said the lower number may be because legislation carrying out last year's resolutions is pending. It had not been acted upon when most chapters were considering topics, he said. Jack Frady, president, reminds all members that although delegates are chosen by chapters to conduct business, any member is invited to attend as a spectator.

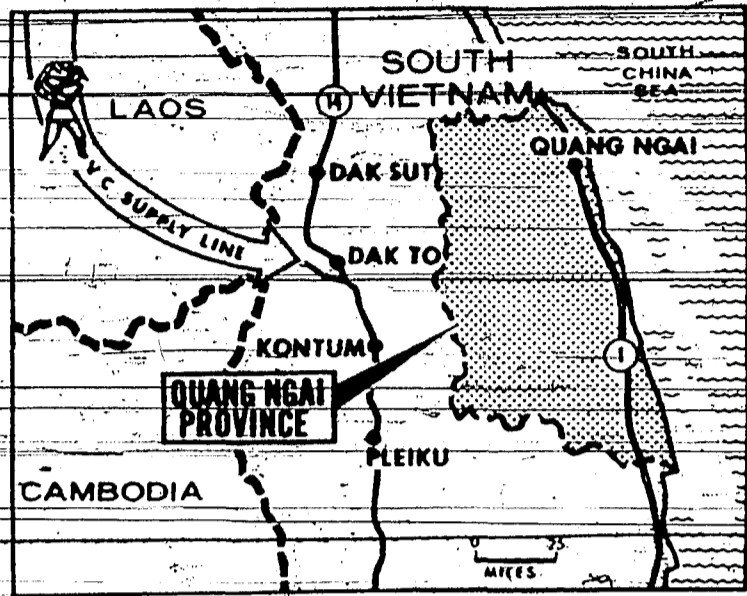

A "get-acquainted barbecue" will be served tonight from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. to welcome delegates to Twin Falls. A trip to Jackpot has been scheduled Friday night for dinner and a show. Buses will be provided for the delegates.

"And then I said I'd order those mass arrests again."

Tribute slated for theologian

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Relatives and friends pay final tribute Friday to Reinhold Niebuhr, called by one religious leader "the outstanding theologian of this country's first two centuries." The Protestant theologian died Tuesday night, three weeks before his 70th birthday. Niebuhr retired several years ago to his home at Yale Hill.

Niebuhr was considered an authority of Protestant philosophy and a leader in political thought. Rev. Dr. Robert V. Moss, president of the United Church of Christ of New York, called Niebuhr "the outstanding theologian of this country's first two centuries. Whether as a pastor, teacher or theologian, his deep commitment to the biblical faith enabled him always to exercise his ministry with power, compassion and realism. His impact on this country's religious life will be felt for many decades to come."

An officer in the Americans for Democratic Action and a founder of New York's Liberal Party, Niebuhr encouraged American involvement in World War II, reasoning Christians had the responsibility to take part in the tragic power struggles of the time. Niebuhr's beliefs led him to the Socialist party in the 1930's, but he reassessed his thinking during World War II, and joined the Liberal party in 1944.

Among those paying tribute to Niebuhr was Allard K. Lowenstein, National Chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, who said the theologian "will be sorely missed not only by all those whose lives were bettered by the great efforts of his great heart and his great mind." Services will be held at 3 p.m. He is survived by his wife, a daughter and a son.

U.S. judge studies case about dam

SPOKANE (UPI) — Visiting Judge William Goodwin took under advisement Wednesday a government motion to dismiss an amended suit aimed at halting further dam construction on the Snake River. Smith said he had added the names in an attempt to comply with recent Ninth Circuit Court rulings that said, in effect, clubs did not have standing in lawsuits, but individuals in those clubs did. Smith complained that the rules at the higher level were unclear and varying at different circuit levels throughout the country.

Last March, the group filed a class action seeking to stop further construction of the Lower Granite Dam and any construction on the proposed Asotin Dam. The departments of fish and game later petitioned and were granted the right to join in the suit. The amended complaint includes alleged violations of law with regard to the three dams already on the Snake, and alleges non-compliance of rules with regard to proposed dikes around the city of Lewiston, Idaho, and the relocation of the Carnas Prairie Railroad. The complaint also seeks a declaratory judgment from the court calling for the preservation of the section of the Snake where the Lower Granite Dam is being constructed, and the Asotin Dam is proposed. The two-mile section, bordering Washington, Idaho and Oregon, is still in its free-flowing stage.

Firm will sell site for funds

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The financially distressed Penn Central Railroad has announced it will sell the sites of the Waldorf Astoria Hotel and other valuable New York City property in an attempt to raise needed money. Trustees of the Penn Central Transportation Co. said Wednesday the property, owned for more than 100 years, includes a 29-acre tract covering about 10 midtown Manhattan blocks along lower Park Avenue. Value of the property is estimated at more than $1.2 billion.

The trustees said that while the purpose of putting the real estate up for sale was to raise needed funds, there was little hope the railroad could expect to receive quick cash. Mortgages on the properties are said to exceed half a billion dollars. Buildings on the property are among New York's most famous landmarks, including Grand Central terminal, the Pan American Building and the Biltmore, Commodore, Roosevelt and Barclay hotels. Penn Central owns and operates the four hotels and two office buildings. The Waldorf Astoria and other structures are on land held under lease from the railroad, but owned by other firms.

In the 19th century, the former New York Central Railroad owned a vast stretch of land extending from Harlem to the Grand Central area of midtown Manhattan. The city required the railroad to cover the tracks and this led to the development of Park Avenue.

from state to federal courts. Judge Aronson, saying there was too much at stake to chance a future reversal on a technicality, ruled Magee's motion, filed May 23 in the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals had suspended all proceedings at the state level. After lengthy discussions in his chambers with lawyers on both sides, the judge got things going again by allowing Miss Davis' attorneys to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

Moore, Miss Davis' chief defense counsel, began his arguments late in the day after another of Magee's handwritten motions delayed proceedings for several hours. The hearing, which continued today, finally resumed after Judge Richard E. Aronson and Miss Davis' attorneys found a way to get around the motion. Magee, 32, a San Quentin convict who hates attorneys but is one of the prison's hardest working self-taught lawyers, tied up the case with a petition asking that it be transferred BOISE (UPI) — State Sen. William Crutcher, D-Orofino, said Wednesday he had resigned his legislative post effective Tuesday to become disability determination director for the Social Security administration. Crutcher, who will move to Boise, recommended appointment of State Representative White D-Orofino, to the Senate seat. In a letter to Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, Crutcher said White is presently serving in his third term in the legislature "and I feel that with his experience and ability he would be most invaluable to the district and the State of Idaho." Crutcher said he would suggest the legislative district central committee recommend a replacement for White in the house of representatives.

MELONES, Calif. (UPI) — There's still gold in them thar hills of California's mother lode county where $2 billion worth of the precious metal has been extracted since the 49ers came west. Four experienced prospectors said Wednesday that they have struck gold bearing quartz in the old Rio Vista mine in "This is high quality, about 900 fine," said Castle, a miner for 41 years. The Rio Vista mine has sporadically yielded the gold in the past, notably in 1922, when $88,000 worth was taken from the same 60-foot tunnel where the new strike was made.

Explosion severs Lisbon connection

LISBON (UPI) — A bomb exploded outside Lisbon's international telecommunications exchange before dawn today, disrupting most connections with the outside world at the start of a two-day conference of North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) foreign ministers. An authoritative source at ministry of information said, "It was a bomb. But we hope to restore communications shortly." The source said the bomb was placed immediately above a small metal box containing a vital switching center outside the communications building to do the maximum possible damage.

Funeral Services Davis case gets legal surprise SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (UPI) — The murder case against Angela Davis was called "Disneyland North" by her lawyer Wednesday as proceedings lurched ahead despite another legal surprise from codefendant Rachel Magee. Attorney Howard W. Moore Jr. attacked Miss Davis' indictment on murder, kidnapping and conspiracy charges and said it should be dismissed outright or she should be released on bail. Moore, Miss Davis' chief defense counsel, began his arguments late in the day after another of Magee's handwritten motions delayed proceedings for several hours. The hearing, which continued today, finally resumed after Judge Richard E. Aronson and Miss Davis' attorneys found a way to get around the motion. Magee, 32, a San Quentin convict who hates attorneys but is one of the prison's hardest working self-taught lawyers, tied up the case with a petition asking that it be transferred Resigns BOISE (UPI) — State Sen. William Crutcher, D-Orofino, said Wednesday he had resigned his legislative post effective Tuesday to become disability determination director for the Social Security administration. Crutcher, who will move to Boise, recommended appointment of State Representative White D-Orofino, to the Senate seat. In a letter to Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, Crutcher said White is presently serving in his third term in the legislature "and I feel that with his experience and ability he would be most invaluable to the district and the State of Idaho." Crutcher said he would suggest the legislative district central committee recommend a replacement for White in the house of representatives.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional subcommittee was told Wednesday that the federal government would suspend registration of the deadly poison thallium — blamed for the deaths of many of the 48 eagles found since May 1 in Wyoming.

Despite the action, subcommittee members were warned that it would not guarantee against deaths of even more eagles, which are protected by federal law.

William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, said more eagles would die until the government directly controls the use of hazardous pesticides.

"This situation (in Wyoming) graphically illustrates the inadequacy of the present law," Ruckelshaus said. "We do not have at the present time the controls over the use of environmentally hazardous pesticides that we so clearly need."

Also testifying before a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee was Charles E. Lawrence, chief investigator for the Interior Department's Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

Lawrence flew to Wyoming to conduct a personal investigation after bodies of the eagles were found in growing numbers.

"The attempt was to kill coyotes and something went wrong," Lawrence said.

Workmen picked up

SANDPOINT, Idaho (UPI) — The Border Patrol and Forest Service officials continued their roundup Wednesday of Mexican nationals in this country illegally.

The total of those picked up in the country near the Canadian border rose to 14 Wednesday with the arrest of eight men working on tree planting crews in the Lolo National Forest of western Montana.

They were transferred here by the Border Patrol at about the same time six others arrested earlier this week were transported from the Bonner County Jail to Spokane, Wash., for disposition of their cases.

None of the Mexican nationals so far has had papers to allow entry into the country and none has been able to speak English, officials said.

The men have been working on tree planting crews under contract to the Forest Service. They refused to say how they were transported into the United States.

The Burger Court

The stamp of Chief Justice Warren E. Burger is low key but it is effectively changing the emphasis from overzealous concern for the rights of the accused to concern for the rights of the people. By the narrow margin of 5 to 4, the Burger court has upheld the rights of the 50 states to enforce laws against hit-run drivers, by refusing in a California case to permit a motorist who caused an accident or struck a pedestrian to hide behind the Fifth Amendment. The California Supreme Court ruled that the hit-run law which requires a driver to stop and identify himself could be enforced only if the state does not use the information in criminal proceedings. But the Supreme Court, in an opinion by the Chief Justice, held that requiring a driver to give his name and address was no more self-incriminating than to provide police with fingerprints. Bluntly, Burger stated: "There is no Constitutional right to refuse to file an income tax or to flee the scene of an accident in order to avoid the possibility of legal involvement." Four members of the court voted against the majority opinion, so this became, in fact, a Burger decision, one upholding the rights of all the states as against the doubtful rights of a handful of miscreants. Chief Justice Burger's philosophy of courtroom behavior also is worth noting. Addressing the American Law Institute in Washington, he stated: "Overzealous advocates seem to think the zeal and effectiveness of a lawyer depend on how thoroughly he can disrupt the proceedings or how loud he can shout or how close he can come to insulting all those he encounters... including the judges... With all deference, I submit that lawyers who know how to think but have not learned how to behave are a menace and a liability, not an asset, to the administration of justice." Bravo! Let the lawyers he referred to take note. And the American Bar Association

WASHINGTON — For Roger L. Stevens, board chairman of the $88 million Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts on the Potomac near the famed Lincoln Memorial, culture apparently stops at the dollar sign. The swank patron of the arts and theater is under "irate fire" from socialist neighbors in Washington's historic Georgetown section for planning to convert a notable estate he bought there into a subdivision development.

The outraged Georgetowners are denouncing Stevens for perpetrating a "great sacrilege" and sacrificing a beautiful and historic landmark for personal profit. Discussions are underway to initiate legal measures in an effort to stop Stevens' scheme. Whether that can be done remains to be seen. In the meanwhile, as far as Georgetowners are concerned, he is public enemy No. 1. Adding fuel to the torrid hassle is the fact that the estate is not far from the Georgetown home of the late President Kennedy — a good friend of Stevens.

Georgetown home of the late President's youngest brother, Sen. Edward Kennedy. Also numerous Kennedy intimates and officials have homes in the historic and fashionable residential area. Some of these homes are as distinguished as the embattled estate. Located at 34th and R Streets, it is known as "Century House" and was built around 1820 on land that was a wedding gift from Brooke Beall, Georgetown planner to his daughter and her husband. In 1920, Mrs. Frank Allen West, wealthy widow, acquired the property and extensively improved the lovely grounds and big house. The exceptionally spacious estate and beautiful garden, with a grove of magnificent trees, has long been one of Georgetown's show places. When Stevens bought it, Georgetowners were delighted. They took it for granted that being a man of culture and refinement he would preserve the eminent establishment. Stevens was warmly welcomed by the mile-square community — that pre-dates Washington itself. Georgetown was a thriving seaport before Washington was selected as the site for the new nation's capital. With Stevens' background and close Kennedy association, there appeared to be every reason for Georgetowners to have no qualms about the future of "Century House." A producer of numerous Broadway shows, among them "West Side Story," "Bus Stop," "Tea and Sympathy," he was special assistant on the arts to President Johnson 1964-68, chairman of the National Council on the Arts, 1965-69; chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts, 1965-69; and chairman of the board of trustees of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts since its establishment a decade ago. But, alas! For Stevens, culture apparently is one thing, and making a profit is not amiss — even if it does mean transforming a historic Georgetown estate into a subdivision. Outraged Georgetowners, furiously up in arms, are blasting him right and left. Their latest public fusillade is a letter signed by 24 prominent residents of the area. Addressed to both Stevens and his wife, and signed by Mrs. Alice Acheson, wife of the former secretary of state and a trusted Kennedy adviser, the castigation minces no words. In polite but unmistakable language, the Stevens are charged with doing Georgetown and its home owners wrong, as follows: "We, your Georgetown neighbors, have experienced a range of emotions since you became the owners of Mrs. West's handsome house on R Street. First there was pleasure, that a discriminating couple would continue maintaining that distinguished house in its proper setting. Pleasure turned to dismay when the tree cutting started, and now among your neighbors there is a widespread feeling of outrage, as the word spreads of your subdivision plans. "It seems only right to pass on to you the enormous feeling that has been stirred up in Georgetown over what seems to us a great sacrilege."

Blatant Campaign

WASHINGTON — There has been for some time now a blatant campaign by the radical left to deliberately destroy the Republic's judicial system — or what's left of it after the machinations of the Warren Supreme Court. A big assist has now been given to that campaign by a Connecticut judge named Harold M. Mulvey, who has set a new world's record for irrelevant jurisprudence. In dismissing murder-kidnapping charges against Black Pantheres Bobby Seale and Mrs. Ericka Huggins after their long trial ended in a jury disagreement, Judge Mulvey delivered himself of the following non-sequitur: "I find it impossible to believe that an unbiased jury could be selected without superhuman efforts... efforts which this court, the state and these defendants should not be called upon to make or to endure."

judge said he had "gained a rather wide knowledge" of the defendants. "I have observed a rather remarkable change in (their) attitude," he said "and I don't think it is feigned." Don't ask me what the judge meant. He seemed to be saying that because Seale had stopped raising rumpuses in the courtroom, Seale and Mrs. Huggins should not be required to endure a second trial. Since that way lies madness, I refuse to believe that Judge Mulvey was suggesting that the way to beat a murder rap is to wash one's face every day and behave with crooked-little-finger decorum before the bench. Anyway, wittingly or not, Mulvey has provided ammunition for those on the radical left who would destroy the judicial process. I detected a note of smugness in the assertion of counsel for Seale and Mrs. Huggins that the four months consumed in selecting the first jury showed "the system is not equipped to deal with the situation." To me, their words mean that if a defendant and his counsel can horse around long enough they've got it made. No wonder Charles R. Garry, one of the defense attorneys, rather patronizingly allowed that he found Judge Mulvey "to be of a much higher level than most of the judiciary in the United States." No lawyer ever had more reason to be charitable toward a judge. Mulvey (the man DID go on and on) noted that Seale and Mrs. Huggins had been held in jail for more than two years. I don't know what he meant by that observation, either, but just for the record, your honor, Alex Raeckley is going to be very dead much longer than that.

Bombings

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Some months back a friend stood on a hill overlooking Mu Gia Pass, a main artery through which North Vietnam sends men and supplies south. This pass has been bombed and bombed again in a major U.S. effort to slow the flow of war materiel to Cambodia and South Vietnam. My friend's "visit" was during one such period of heavy bombing. "We had better been dropping bulldozers for all the effect we achieved," he said. This man has been in the business of evaluating the military effectiveness of particular operations for a good many years. His thinking, combined with that of others of like mind, could have an important effect on the speed of our withdrawal from Vietnam. For his observations fit with our experience in Korea and World War II. Air power can be decisive in some operations. But it leaves a lot to be desired as a means of cutting supply lines month-in and month-out. This fact is now being recognized by more policymakers in the administration. The principle behind this observation, if acted on, could immensely simplify a complete South Vietnamese takeover of the war. The problem of withdrawal becomes more complicated the heavier the air support we must maintain as a greater combat burden is assumed by the South Vietnamese. Saigon's army can be supplied with a reasonable number of fighter planes and helicopters. Pilots and mechanics can be trained. But there is no practical way to supply the South Vietnamese with the bombing capability necessary to keep the Ho Chi Minh trails under intense round-the-year attack. If the intense bombing is to continue for some years to come, then American planes with American pilots will have to do the major share of the job. This would keep a monkey on the back of the administration. The much-publicized Lavis discussion of some months back — with its staid movement of troops, road-bound tank and truck columns and requiring heavy air support — likewise did not work out as a practical, long-term way to curtail Communist supply movements.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Nerve Tunnel

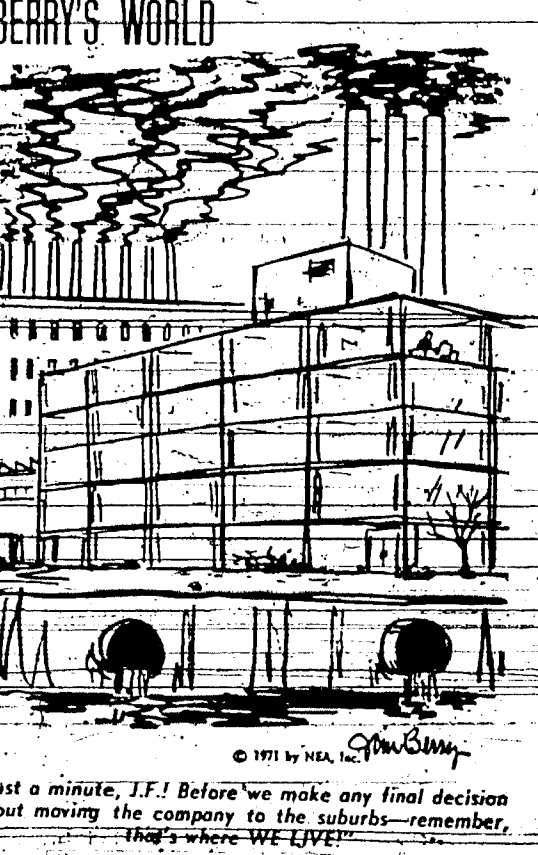

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you discuss "carpal tunnel syndrome"? I have just been given this diagnosis after 15 years of discomfort. What is the general course of treatment, especially in view of the length of time I have been afflicted? Yes, I tried previously to obtain diagnosis and was given everything from "arthritis" to "it's all in your mind." I enjoy a great deal of heavy work with my hands and thrive on activity, so any thought of immobilization truly frightens me. — M.G. "Carpal" refers to the wrist. There is a space or "tunnel" through which the median nerve passes, along with nine tendons, all having to do with movement and sensation in the fingers. The condition is not too common, its greatest frequency being in women over 40, and the diagnosis, as you well know, is frequently missed. For one thing, it does indeed much resemble other conditions. When anything causes swelling in the confined space of this tunnel in the wrist, it can put pressure on the median nerve and cause burning, tingling, and numbness in the fingers. The symptoms are more likely to appear at night. There may also be clumsiness and weakness in use of the hands, and after a time, in some cases, there may be wasting of the muscles at the base of the thumb. Just flexing the wrist may reproduce symptoms within 30 seconds; hence the heavy work you do with your hands might very well have a good deal to do with your trouble. That business of flexing the wrist also can be a diagnostic help, once carpal tunnel syndrome is suspected. Electrical stimulation of the nerve, however, is important in positively distinguishing the carpal tunnel symptoms from the numbness and tingling that can arise from other causes. But there are differing causes of the carpal tunnel problem: hand injuries, fracture of wrist bones, arthritic changes, and (this doubtless sounds odd to you) hypothyroidism (low thyroid activity). Thus X-rays of the wrist may show bone changes; a test of thyroid activity also can be important. Treatment, obviously, can vary to suit the causes. Injections of steroids in the affected area may succeed. If thyroid deficiency is detected, it should, of course, be corrected. Surgery to decompress the congestion in the wrist may be required if other methods fail. Immobilization, which you fear, is not necessary — except, naturally, if surgery is required, you will have to allow time for healing, but that is a temporary matter. Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Mr. Spectator thought you would like to see the official "button" of the Three Island Crossing dedication slated for Glenns Ferry on June 18 and 19. The buttons are large — just about the size of this picture — and will be a collector's item. No use telling you what is on it because you can read that by just looking at the picture. The dedication of the Three Islands — and the new state park — is expected to attract upwards of 10,000 people. Everyone of any importance will be there — and we have news for you: it will be nice weather with balmy breezes. We'll fill you in on the complete program later but right now mark those two dates on your calendar — especially June 19 which is parade day and dedication program day.

Martins still friendly

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Movie stars may not have invented the friendly divorce or separation but they carry it off with great ease, as Dean Martin and estranged wife, Jeanne, proved this week.

Apart for more than a year now, the Martins are not to be confused with the old feuding families, the Martins and The Coys, although Jeanne allegedly threw Dean's clothes into the street when he became enamored of sweet, young, beauty queen, Gail Renshaw, 22.

Alas, the romance between Dean and Gail cooled as quickly as it had flared up. But the easy-going Dean continued to live in his own pad, dating pretty girls.

Jeanne Martin kept the home fires burning, despite the absence of her husband. She did have diversions: a tennis court, swimming pool, billiard room and not a few admirers of her own.

Last month the couple's eldest son, Dino, 19, married British-born actress Olivia Hussey in Las Vegas. She was the star of "Hombre and Juliet."

The wedding lacked the old Hollywood pizzazz, with only about three dozen persons present.

This led Dean and Jeanne to hold a fancy wedding reception for their handsome blond son this week. An orchestra was hired, a dance floor covered the swimming pool and candles twinkled all over the place.

Jeanne and Dean greeted guests in different corners of the garden—with flashing smiles and beaming hospitality.

It was a combination of young people and the older generation.

Young Dean Amaz and his sister, Lucie, were there, along with director Henry Hathaway, Vince Edwards, song-writer Sammy Cahn, Phyllis Diller and dozens more.

Not was there a young and pretty girl on Dean's arm. The scene could have been an out-take from a movie. The happy parents of the bridegroom gave no evidence that anything was amiss between them.

Young Dino and Olivia danced and chatted with their friends.

"Nice looking couple, huh?" Dean asked, nodding in the direction of his son and his bride. "I gotta be running along pretty soon. You know how these parties are. I don't go to many parties."

Jeanne followed her husband's departure with thoughtful eyes.

He waved goodbye as if he were going to the corner for a loaf of bread or a fifth of Scotch.

It was all very civilized, gay and sophisticated.

May deaths show drop

BOISE (UPI)—May traffic fatalities in Idaho were five less this year than in the same month a year ago, according to Idaho State Police records.

The records showed 21 persons were killed in 24 fatal accidents in May, 13 of the fatalities in the last nine days.

At the end of May, state traffic fatalities stood at 97, compared with 119 at the end of the same month a year ago.

The records showed 20 of the 22 killed in vehicle accidents were not using safety belts or that belts were not installed in the crashed vehicles.

The other fatalities included two motorcycleists, two pedestrians and one bicyclist.

Travel guide issued

(EDITOR'S NOTE: These tips for young American travelers to Europe this year were gathered by United Press International reporters who live and work in the cities and countries covered.)

By LUCINDA L. FRANKS LONDON (UPI)—A bullfight under a hot Spanish sun. Sizzling pig and "hooray" music in Athens. A journey into the publands of East London where a Cockney will acquaint you with the peppy kings of yesterday.

The spring-summer migration of the young to Europe has begun and most places, from Copenhagen to Tangier, have made it easy for the wanderer to do the most for the least money.

In Amsterdam, you can get a bed for 72 cents a night. A train ride from West to Communist East Berlin costs less than a dime and if you run out of food money in Munich, just tour a brewery and get free sausage and beer.

But keep one thing in mind. If you get caught with hash, acid or any other kind of drug, your stay in Europe may last longer than you planned.

Without exception, European countries are cracking down on drug use and customs and police will be on the lookout for foreigners bringing in the stuff.

In France, no differentiation is made between hard and soft drugs. The penalty for even "whiffing" too much marijuana is from 2 to 20 years in prison, with no suspended sentences. There are currently 10 Americans serving jail sentences for drug possession in France. Even in Turkey and the Spanish island of Ibiza, both one-time hash havens, drug raids are continuous.

London is the most popular starting off point for Continental travelers. Bed and breakfast hotels for about one pound fifty pence ($3.50) are plentiful in Sussex Gardens and Kensington, and the pubs, with sausages and steak and kidney pie, are good, cheap places to eat.

There are rock concerts in Hyde Park every weekend, where you'll meet a slice of London's young cosmopolitan population—Indian, Australian, European, North American—and where the vibes are generally good. The Roundabout Theatre in Chalk Farm offers experimental plays, living theater, and rock and light shows.

London's discotheques are good but expensive, generally two pounds ($4.80) to get in and a few extra shillings on the drinks. The fancier ones, complete with go-go girls and dining areas, include The Pheasant on the King's Road and Annabel's. For a less formal atmosphere and costumes ranging from hot pants to painted bosoms, try Hatchett's in Piccadilly or Samantha's off Regent Street.

One of the best ways to learn about the British is to take a pub crawl around the heavily Cockney areas in London's East End. "The Prospects of Whiteby" on the South London docks and "Dirty Dick's" in Liverpool Street are two picturesque old pubs where you might meet a Cockney who still has pearls on his jacket and a grandfather who was once king of the street.

In Dublin, the heart of society for both young and old is in the pub. At the "Old Bailey," where James Joyce used to drink and at other pubs around Grafton Street, you will meet the writer as well as the artist and writer. The city is filled with literary history, from George Bernard Shaw's birthplace in Synge Street to Joyce's Martyn Tower from his classic "Ulysses." You will find the Irish eager to get to know you and ready to buy you a drink at the end of your hat. Try the 21 Club for a night of dancing, storytelling and beer. Youth hotels, for a little more than a dollar a night, are scattered about the country.

Destruction testifies to war ferocity

KHULNA, East Pakistan — The road from Jessore is lined with mile after mile of charred mudhouse foundations, a mute testimony to ferocity as Bengalis fell upon non-Bengalis and the army fell upon all who resisted the restoration of order.

Two out of every three shops are closed. Both towns and roads are relatively free of people in normally teeming areas. Thousands were killed and thousands more have fled to the countryside or across the Indian border 20 to 40 miles away.

The military commander of Khulna district said the "situation is absolutely first class" adding the only recent incident in his area was a mine explosion under a truck at Kaliganj which killed three and wounded 24 soldiers three days ago.

A government paper mill and a number of jute mills in this area are slowly resuming production.

800 Workers Return — A manager of one of the paper mills told visiting foreign correspondents that 800 of his 2,000 workers have returned and are busy preparing to export a shipment of newspaper scheduled to go to North Korea next month.

The situation is much worse at Crescent jute mill outside Khulna, which is owned by Prince Agha Khan.

The Bengali manager of this mill said he has a list of names of 700 non-Bengali workers' families slaughtered near the mill in the uprising, most of them Bihari Moslems and some West Pakistani technicians and their families.

The military commander estimated upwards of 5,000 non-Bengalis were killed in the Khulna area. Homes were looted and burned.

Power transmission lines were down in a dozen spots between Jessore and Khulna. But workmen were busy stringing new wires.

Dacca Under Control — The capital of Dacca is well under control and life is slowly returning to normal in the daytime.

Major General Rao Farman Ali, chief of civil affairs of East Pakistan, told newsmen about two thirds of Dacca's 4.6 million citizens are presently going about life normally.

The rest, he said, fled to the countryside. He said the army now is dropping pamphlets and urging them to return, guaranteeing them no harm.

Farman concluded, "The army has done its duty which in any country is to defend the sovereignty and territorial integrity."

Asked about troop strength, Farman said "It is enough for internal or external problems."

Old art revived

MACRAME, a decorative knotting technique, will be demonstrated by Leslie Davee at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Art Mart, Twin Falls. Many beautiful items, such as wall hangings, room dividers, belts, and necklaces can be created with a few simple tools. The public is invited.

Demonstration planned Saturday on macrame

TWIN FALLS — A one-hour demonstration in macrame will be given by Leslie Davee at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Art Mart located in the Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co. building on Shoshone Street. The public is invited to attend.

Macrame, as we know it, is a decorative knotting technique and originally was known simply as knotting, a process of interweaving rope or cord, making it useful. This art has been practiced since before the beginning of recorded history, and is not a mark of advanced civilization. Early knots were used to secure the vines that held stone ax heads in their handles and vine bridges have been found deep in the jungles. During the age of sailing, ship's knotting and splicing attained their greatest importance from a utilitarian standpoint.

Many beautiful items, such as wall hanging, room dividers, belts, necklaces, etc., can be created with a few simple tools. Those wanting to work, should bring a skein of yarn or cord, three straight pins, rubber bands, scissors and a cork board approximately 12 by 16 inches or anything that can be used to anchor your work.

It is not necessary to bring anything unless you are interested in making something.

Mrs. Davee attended the University of Idaho for three years and received her bachelor of arts degree from Portland State University. She is a former member of the Tillamook, Ore., Art Association.

Her husband, Douglas, is a case worker for the Department of Public Assistance, and they have a 16-month-old son, Stephen.

Businessman slips into shoes of Ben Franklin

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — An Indiana businessman slipped into the shoes of Benjamin Franklin three months ago when he decided to resurrect the Saturday Evening Post. America will know soon whether the fit was a good one.

Beurt Servaas battled through the muddled affairs of the Post to bring back to life the magazine Benjamin Franklin is said to have founded.

The new post is due on the newsstands June 1, not in its old weekly format but as a quarterly at $1 per copy. The first issue will be sold only at newsstands, mainly in the Midwest.

"We're running half a million magazines," Servaas said, "even though studies indicate we could begin with a million."

Bringing back the Post, said Servaas, "has been quite a job with 200 million Americans looking over my shoulder. All those critics — as well as making all other decisions on corporate matters, production — made it a very complex undertaking."

The "new" Post won't be new at all in Servaas' eyes. He hopes to resurrect the formula that made an American institution of the magazine which folded in 1963 after 200 years of publication. He hopes to make his readers "laugh a little, cry a little."

"It's the old Post. Some nostalgia, some humor — but it will have the attitude, format and variety it had in its great years," Servaas said.

"You know, its readers never repudiated the Post. It was just bad business that finally forced it to close."

Servaas will bring back many of the old Post favorites. "Tugboat Annie" and "Alexander Bots" will return. So, he said, will many of the writers who were regulars in the magazine's lineup.

"There'll be poetry, wit, fiction, humor, essays, topical items, nostalgia — name it, we'll have it," Servaas said. "When the Post folded we lost a great medium — for these literary forms. We really lost a source of Americana."

The first cover of the revived Post will give readers their first exposure to an experience in nostalgia. It will be by Norman Rockwell, the illustrator whose cover pictures came

Agency expects to triple fund

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The space agency expects to triple its current $100 million budget request for the proposed space shuttle rocket plane next year.

The agency estimated that between $350 million and $500 million will be needed in fiscal 1973 to move ahead with development of the revolutionary orbital transport and get it flying before the end of the decade.

The space shuttle, as now planned, will take off vertically like a rocket and return to airport landings like a jetliner. Whereas current rockets are discarded after one launch, the shuttle will be reusable and is expected to greatly reduce the cost of carrying men and satellites into orbit.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) hopes to begin horizontal flight tests of the two-stage vehicle in 1976. Its first vertical launch is tentatively scheduled for 1978 with operational missions starting in 1979.

To meet that schedule, the McDonnell-Douglas Corp. predicted in a recent report prepared for NASA that financing requirements would increase to about $1 billion in fiscal 1974, go to $1.5 billion in fiscal 1975 and reach a peak of Congress behind on housekeeping bills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is close to the start of a new fiscal year but not close to passage of the thick package of bills to finance government departments and agencies during that year.

If it follows its recent schedule for action on appropriations bills, it will finish the job sometime near or after its Christmas holiday, about six months after the fiscal year begins.

Meanwhile, federal bureaucrats and their state and local counterparts who handle federal aid funds will be given vague guidance under "continuing resolutions" about what they can spend for what purposes in the 12 months ending June 30, 1972.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., who ranks second below the chairman of the Democratic side of the Senate Appropriations Committee, is back with a renewal of his campaign to change the budget calendar in congress.

He started the campaign in 1950. He now can claim 51 sponsors of his plan in the Senate, a majority, and 110 sponsors in the House, only half a majority.

The Magnuson bill would split the annual sessions of Congress into "legislative" and "fiscal" periods. The first would run from Jan. 3 to Aug. 15, the second, dealing with appropriations, would open on a date fixed by Congress and adjourn no later than Dec. 1.

The President's budget, now due 15 days after Congress convenes in January, would get an April 15 deadline.

As Magnuson described it, Congress is not trying to run a business 10 times the size of General Motors and AT&T combined "with machinery as obsolete as a quill pen and a slanting bookkeeper's desk."

Appeal heads docket

BOISE (UPI)—The Idaho Supreme Court will hear 11 cases during its June 7-11 session in Boise, including an appeal involving the now-defunct Idaho Savings and Loan Association, scheduled for June 8.

The association went into receivership in July, 1966, and in early 1970 the Idaho Department of Finance put out bids for the remaining assets of the association.

As of July 1, 1970, the bidding deadline only Continental Life and Accident Company and Western National Corp., had submitted a joint bid of $4,078,637.

Five days later Com-Tech International, Inc., Nevada, submitted a lower bid, but later raised it to $3,450,000.

Fourth District Court Judge J. Ray Durtsch ruled on Sept. 2 that if Western and Continental would equal the higher offer they would be awarded the bid. If they did not exercise the option, Com-Tech would receive the bid.

American Republic Financial Corp., First Fidelity Thrift and Loan Association, and Town and Country Realty have appealed that decision to the high court.

Arguments will be heard June 7 over a statute prohibiting sale of imitation milk products which was declared unconstitutional by Fourth District Court.

The Idaho Department of Agriculture appealed the decision, contending the law protects the health of the public and should be enforced. The lawsuit arose when Sun Ray Drive-In Dairy of Boise instituted action to restrain the department of agriculture from interfering with the sale of imitation milk.

Other cases to be heard include:

- An appeal from J.R. Farber and Robert L. Farber from a Third District Court decision to dismiss a suit the Farbers brought against radio station KFXD over an editorial.
- An appeal from Ballen C. Taylor and Darwin M. Packard from an injunction issued by Fourth District Court barring the men from selling insurance to certain customers of their former employer, Insurance Center, Inc.
- An appeal from Arthur Ronald Deschamps III and Randolph Douglas Wood from their conviction on charges of possession of marijuana on grounds the arrest was made without probable cause.
- An appeal from Lewis Calvin Brown, Mountain Home, alleging 11 errors in the trial during which he was convicted of assault with intent to commit murder.
- An appeal from John Weaver, Coeur d'Alene, from dismissal in First District Court of his complaint against Pacific Finance Loans. Weaver contended in his original suit Pacific Finance wrongfully deprived him of a liquor license with respect to certain real property that he purchased.

Havana's changes drastic

MIAMI (UPI)—The very word Havana seems to epitomize the sensuous glamour of tropical nightlife. Thousands of American tourists who streamed to the Cuban capital in the 1950's called it "the Paris of the Caribbean."

Then came Fidel Castro and the revolution. Cuba was closed to "Yankee imperialists." Havana became a tropical wallflower.

Word filtered out during the past decade about the spartan life in Havana, but the first real look at the city came this week when 68 persons aboard a hijacked airliner were detained almost four days by the Cubans. The Pan American World Airways jetliner returned to the United States Wednesday.

"I've traveled all over Latin America, but I've seen nothing like it... the whole town was very dilapidated and no house could be said not to need a coat of paint," said one of the hijacked passengers, Mrs. Heidi Tortura of Nassau.

The pilot, Capt. George Ashley, 52, of Coral Gables, Fla., said he was last in Havana 11 years ago and it "has changed drastically."

Appointed

BOSTON (UPI)—Mark Ames, 17, won't be able to vote in general elections until next year but he is now deputy chairman of the Republican state committee.

Ames, a junior at Abington High School, was informed of his appointment to the newly created post Wednesday night.

"I was really surprised," he said. "It is a very special position. I have been told there will be a conference next week where it will be explained."

Ames said he was uncertain exactly what powers he will have.

Viet terms stiffened

PARIS (UPI)—North Viet Nam and the Viet Cong hardened their language at the U.S. troop withdrawal and overthrow of the Saigon government were inseparable and crucial conditions for peace.

Brushing aside apparent signs of possible flexibility in the Communist negotiating position in recent weeks, both Hanoi's Xuan Thuy and the Viet Cong's Madame Nguyen Thi Binh indicated they are not ready to negotiate unless the United States meets these two conditions:

They said the proposals already read before the conference by the Communist side provide a solution for the two crucial and inseparable questions: the military and political ones: the total withdrawal from South Vietnam of U.S. forces and those of the other foreign countries in the U.S. camp.

Madame Binh opened the 115th session of the deadlocked conference by accusing President Nixon of continuing "to turn a deaf ear to the urgent demands of the American people" for an end to the war.

South Vietnam people's right to self-determination.

"Without solving these two crucial questions, one cannot find an end to the war and ensure a lasting peace on the basis of respect for the Vietnamese people's fundamental national rights," Thuy said.

"The immediate crucial point is that the Nixon administration must set a reasonable deadline for the total and rapid withdrawal from South Vietnam of U.S. forces and those of the other foreign countries in the U.S. camp."

Club, Indians sue over plant

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The conservationist Sierra Club and an Indian rights organization Wednesday filed suit seeking a regional impact statement on the environmental effects of six power plants in the Southwest.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court, charges the coal-burning plants now in various stages of planning, construction and operation threaten several Indian reservations and a number of national parks and recreation areas.

"It is unusual to be confronted with a project that is so devastating to the environment that it affects virtually all of man's basic natural resources," said Bruce R. Greene, Attorney for the Native American Rights Fund, the Sierra Club's co-plaintiff.

Greene charged air pollution emitted from the plants will be greater than the combined output of many American cities and that, when in operation, the plants will consume massive amounts of coal strip mined from areas of sacred religious significance to both the Hopi and Navajo Indians.

Further, Greene said, the plants will use more than 200,000 acre feet of water each year for cooling purposes. He said this was enough water to meet the needs of the City of San Francisco for 2½ years.

The suit noted that the environmental policy act requires a detailed statement before any major federal action affecting the environment is taken, but no such statement has been issued.

The suit asked for a full administrative hearing on the power plants and for a moratorium on licenses for them until the impact statement is prepared.

Freed North Viet men heading home

ABOARD THE UPSHUR AT SEA, (UPI)—Thirteen tired, dazed and crippled North Vietnamese prisoners of war headed home tonight aboard the steel gray transport ship Upshur, steaming north through the green waters of the South China Sea.

The POWs, wearing identical faded maroon pajamas with soiled white towels wrapped around their necks, rested in the ship's sick bay as the Upshur undertook the 100-mile trip to the mouth of the Ben Hai River which runs through the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) between North and South Vietnam.

International Red Cross representatives and Navy corpsmen aboard the unarmed vessel helped the prisoners beneath the tan cotton blankets on steel double-decker bunk beds in sick bay and kept questioning newsmen away.

The POWs, walking in rubber sandals and with khaki caps keeping the sun from their eyes, stumbled dazedly through a maze of camera clicks and reporters' questions as they were helped aboard the 533-foot long ship normally used to transport South Korean troops fighting in Vietnam.

The Upshur, flying the American, South Vietnamese and Red Cross flags, departed from Da Nang, on the coast 360 miles northeast of Saigon.

The Communist prisoners generally ignored questions from newsmen, who outnumbered them about five to one. But one timidly asked, "Where am I?" told he was aboard the Upshur and on his way home, he smiled and said, "Good."

The South Vietnamese government on April 29 offered to return 570 prisoners to the north in the seventh such release of the war. Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam said Wednesday that after Red Cross interviews, only 13 of the POWs elected to go home.

The first prisoner release took place on Jan. 30, 1966, also at the Ben Hai River.

J. Hill has special interest in Caldwell commencement

TWIN FALLS — J. Hill, local businessman-musician-teacher, will have more than a passing interest in the commencement exercises at the College of Idaho in Caldwell this Saturday.

Hill, who has secured at least three Seeing Eye dogs from the famed Seeing Eye, Inc. at Morristown, N.J., will make a "pilgrimage of respect" to the exercises to see his old friend and adviser, G. William Debetaz, receive the Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree.

Debetaz, who has been with the Seeing Eye organization for 42 years and who has been vice president in charge of the training division, retired June 1. During his association with Seeing Eye he has had a hand in training 5,000 dogs as guides for blind persons.

It was following his graduation from Le College Scientifique in Switzerland that he joined the staff of L-Oell Qui Voit, a school for dog guide instructors which was the forerunner of the New Jersey school. He rose from apprentice to the position he held when he retired. In 1931 he was sent to England where he helped lay the foundation for the present Royal Guide Dogs for the Blind Association.

19th iris show set June 5, 6 in Buhl

BUHL — The Magic Valley Iris Society will present its 19th annual Iris Show June 5 and 6 at the Buhl Moose Hall. The public is invited to view the exhibition from 2 to 9 p.m. on Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, according to Mrs. Sam Wonenberg, show chairman.

Theme for the show is "Springtime in Magic Valley." There is no admission charge for the exhibit.

Everyone is invited to enter exhibits in the show and there is no entry fee. Exhibitors are allowed one entry in each class except seedling class. Anyone wanting to exhibit advance entries is asked to notify Mrs. Wonenberg, Route 3, Buhl, or telephone 543-5676.

Judging will be in five categories. In Division I, horticulture, exhibits will be judged in six sections, specimen stalk, tall bearded iris, three stalks, tall bearded iris, different varieties, labeled in one container; three stalks, tall bearded iris, same variety in one container; five stalks, different varieties, labeled, shown in one container or in separate containers on one tray; beardless iris, named if known, and seedlings raised by exhibitor and numbered.

The second division is for artistic designs. One or more iris blooms must be used in each design, with other plant material and accessories permitted, but no artificial flowers or foliage will be allowed. Classes in artistic design include "The Call of Spring," using iris in a vertical, line design; "Prelude to Spring," iris with spring flowers in yellow hues; "Discovering Spring," using iris with driftwood, rocks etc.; "Spring is Magic," using iris in abstract design; "Spring Capers," using iris in design of arranger's choice; "Spring Song," design in light and medium blues; "Spring Style," design with oriental influence; "Reverence in Spring," design using religious influence; "Rustle of Spring," design of spring flowers and iris in a composite; "Silhouette of Spring," design using black or purple iris; "Spring Beauties," corsage of iris or iris and other flowers; and "Spring Ideas," any design using iris in any color with this division open to those persons having won no first in flower show design divisions or those winning 2 or less firsts in flower show designs.

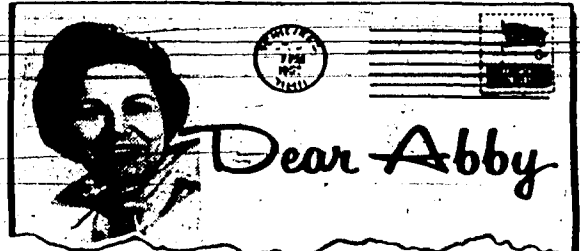

The third division is for youth and is open to school children in grades 4 through 8 and 9 through 12. Exhibitors are asked to write their grade on the entry tag. The horticulture division will be judged in four groups, any light color, tall bearded iris; any dark color, tall bearded iris any Mohr type iris or any other type iris. The design classes will feature "Spring Fantasy," design using iris any color in an unusual container, and "Picnic Time in Spring," design using iris in any size basket.

The fourth division is the educational exhibit in displays pertaining to iris. These displays will be judged on educational value, uniform signs, staging, conformance to the theme and uniqueness.

The last division is for unidentified iris, single specimen in a container which will be furnished by the iris society. This enables persons having good iris specimens, but now knowing the name, an opportunity to exhibit.

Members of the show committee, in addition to Mrs. Wonenberg, are Mrs. Alfred Kramer, president of the society; Mrs. E. D. Dierksen, co-chairman; Mrs. S. W. Smith, schedule; Mrs. Al Toberer, staging; Mrs. T. W. Hicks, cultural entry; Mrs. Floyd Bandy, artistic entry; Mrs. C. W. Vallette, classification; Mrs. T. W. DEAR ABBY: When a New York couple visited Houston and the wife found the restrooms were marked "Heifers" and "Steers" she asked her husband which one she was and you said, "If he didn't tell her she was a 'heifer' he gave her a bum steer."

Well, Abby, for your information, we Texans refer to virgin cows as "heifers," so I doubt if that man's wife would qualify as a heifer. And a steer is a neutered bull, so no self-respecting Texan would care to use facilities marked "Steer." I like the signs they use in Oregon, "Pointers" and "Setters." Ain't that a scream?

SAN ANGELO CATTLEMAN

DEAR MAN: Yup. Now, let's get back to "Ladies" and "Gentlemen," shall we?

DEAR ABBY: A co-worker sent all of us girls who work with her an invitation to her wedding. But it was only an invitation to come to the church and watch her get married. There wasn't a clue as to where the reception was to be held, so I asked her. She told me that her parents were a little low on funds, so there would be a big wedding at the church, and a very small reception afterwards for relatives and a very few close friends.

All of us girls who work with this girl got together and gave her a gift. I wonder if you think it is right to invite people to a wedding and not to any kind of a reception afterward? I think it is a lot of nerve to expect guests to be satisfied to just come to a church and watch a bride walk down an aisle, especially after accepting a wedding gift. What is your opinion?

DEAR GYPPED: It's my opinion that the only reason a gift is given is because the giver wants to give it. Since you feel gyped, in the future don't give anything until you've collected whatever it was you expected to receive in exchange. That way you'll be sure to get your money's worth.

DEAR ABBY: Can a person be a kleptomaniac without realizing it? At the place I recently started working, a certain party mentioned that she had misplaced her favorite pen. We searched and searched and couldn't find it. When I got home that evening I found a strange pen in my purse. The next day I asked the person who had lost it if that was her pen and she said it was. I was terribly embarrassed. I don't remember ever having seen that pen before, and I certainly can't remember having put it in my purse.

That's not all. A few days later someone else in the office misplaced a very pretty little desk calendar, and I found that in my purse, too! Abby, I don't steal. Is someone playing a joke on me? Or can I be a kleptomaniac? BAFPLED

DEAR BAFPLED: A "kleptomaniac" steals compulsively but not unconsciously. Either you absent-mindedly put those items in your purse, or someone has planted them there. Suggestion: Put a mousetrap in your purse (but don't forget it's there!)

DEAR ABBY: Here's how I cured my lousy husband of leaving stuff in his pants and shirt pockets: I would go thru all his pockets very carefully, removing matches, cigarets, papers, pens and all personal belongings. These things I would put into a box on his dresser. All the money, I kept! He's more careful now, but I still pick up a few bucks now and then. MA

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 6796, Los Angeles, Cal. 90066. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

T.F. will welcome state square and round dancers

TWIN FALLS — Round dance instructors at the Idaho State Square and Round Dance Festival in Twin Falls June 4, 5 and 6 at the Twin Falls High School Gymnasium will be Reatha and Leo Lange of Mountain Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lange have had a great deal of experience in both square and round dancing. They began their square dance career in Denver in 1946 and continued as their Air Force travels took them to many places, including Erding, Germany, where they were active in square dancing in clubs that included both American and German people. Here they learned to round dance under the direction of Nick and Evelyn Carter, now of California.

In 1965 they were returned to the U. S. and were stationed at Mountain Home from 1958 to 1964.

State festival

Activities included helping organize the Sagebrush Shuffler Square Dance Club at Mountain Home, which has the distinction of owning its own hall. It was built by square dancers and is owned by the club.

The Langes instructed children's classes for ages 5 through 12 at the Youth Center at the Mountain Home Air Force base for seven years and taught at the USO in Mountain Home. These groups gave benefit dances to help finance the Youth Center and Little League Baseball clubs and appeared each year in exhibition at the Elks Rehabilitation Center in Boise.

Lange has been affiliated with the Intermountain Square and Round Dance Festival continuously, except when he was transferred to the Philippines. While on Macian Island he taught square and round dancing to a Filipino group and traveled from island to island giving exhibitions of American-style square dancing. At the Charleston Air Force Base, South Carolina, they taught

Mrs. Stover, a math major with an English minor, has maintained a 3.0 grade point average during her years at Utah State University. A Lovelier You

THE ROOT OF THE TROUBLE

By Mary Sue Miller

A Lovelier writes: I have been going to an electrologist over a period of several months for the removal of face fuzz. I understood that results are permanent, but some strands keep growing. Do you think that mine is a stubborn case and the process will take hold eventually? Or should I give up?

The Answer: Electrolysis is indeed the only permanent means of removing unwanted hair. The method destroys the root of each strand treated. Taking live roots, strands wither away.

It is possible for an occasional strand to grow again. This happens in rare instances when a root is not fully exterminated. A second try is then made. But the more skillful the operator, the less likely the happenstance.

Sometimes the "patient" mistakes reality. She decides a hair has "reappeared" when in reality it has not yet undergone treatment. At any one sitting, removal is usually well-scattered. Otherwise effects would look spotty — sort of bald and pale in patches — until the work reaches completion. And this brings us back to the need for a deft operator.

Ask peace

FORMER Marine, Bruce Kessler, 24, Brooklyn, N. Y., who said he served in Vietnam for 10 months, announces formation of Vietnam Veterans For a Just Peace at a news conference Tuesday. It is a counter-movement against the Vietnam Veterans Against the War which conducted peace demonstrations in Washington a month ago. The Vietnam Veterans for a Just Peace expressed support of Pres. Nixon's Vietnamization program and phrased withdrawal of American troops. (UPI)

National drug attack launched

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon announced a national attack on drug use Tuesday and said he opposes legalization of marijuana because it would encourage young people "to start down that long, dismal road to self-destruction." In a nationally televised news conference, Nixon called the use of heroin and other "hard" drugs by GIs in Vietnam "a special problem." One point in his drug attack will be to treat military addicts before their release from the Armed Forces. "Consequently what we need is a national offensive on this problem, and one which of course will particularly take into account the immediate problem in Vietnam," he said. During the past year the use of heroin and other hard drugs has increased sharply among military men in Southeast Asia, partly because of an influx of these drugs and partly because they are available there at such low prices.

ISU savant to present paper

POCATELLO — Research which might aid in the study of cancer of the cervix has been presented in a scholarly paper by an Idaho State University scientist before the annual meeting of the American Society of Microbiology in Minneapolis. The scientist is Dr. G. P. Khare, an ISU assistant professor of microbiology. The paper is of significant public interest, the society told Dr. Khare in its letter notifying him of his selection to participate in the meeting.

Dr. Khare found that the virus caused tiny lesions to appear in the nucleus of a healthy cell and that the invading virus eventually took over the entire nucleus of the once healthy cell. In tracing the steps the virus proceeds through in its rapid growth, Dr. Khare found that four hours after infection into a healthy cell the virus had begun to synthesize its own hereditary material (DNA) and this reached a peak 12 hours after infection. He was able to distinguish, characterize and fractionate the infectious viral DNA and the healthy cellular DNA, concluding that the virus had reproduced itself by six hours after inoculation.

Softball teams now forming

TWIN FALLS — Softball teams for the summer program are now being organized by the Twin Falls City Recreation Department, Chad Browning, director, said today. He invited all youngsters from the fourth through the ninth grades who wish to participate to call either coaches or the recreation department, 734-2336. Browning said there is a need for two more girls' teams at the seventh grade level. He said those who wish to play on a team should make arrangements as soon as possible.

Campaign fails to stir support

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration seems to have failed in an effort to whip up grassroots pressure on Congress to approve its new revenue-sharing plan for education. The campaign was designed to overcome opposition to the plan by such powerful congressional leaders as Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee. Its apparent lack of success can be seen in the reactions of local educators who attended a series of 10 meetings sponsored by the administration in various parts of the country for state and local school officials. "I'm in favor of revamping the federal aid, but I think it needs revamping, not just restructuring," a Colorado school superintendent wrote the U.S. Office of Education after attending a Denver briefing on the plan.

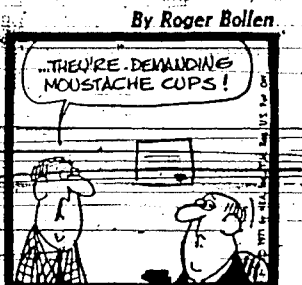

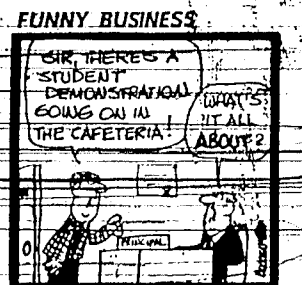

Under the administration plan, 33 federal education programs would be consolidated in a five-party $3 billion package. Questionnaires were passed out at each briefing seeking reaction to the proposal. A Wyoming school official even complained about the questionnaire: "It seems slanted entirely toward requesting positive approval of the program."

at one meeting that a planned $200 million increase in federal education funds under revenue sharing was not adequate. "It is not meant to be," Marland was quoted as replying. "It is merely to cushion the effect of a new formula. The $200 million is just to absorb flux."

Revenue-sharing is awaiting its turn at the congressional turnstile. A federal official reporting on a meeting in San Francisco on March 12 said there were "many and deep concerns about the administration's intentions as well as the substance of its proposal."

Some responses showed enthusiastic support for the plan. One from a big-city school superintendent in Kansas said: "There is no question in my mind that the proposed legislation ... has tremendous possibilities ... The President and his staff members should be highly complimented for their determination in trying to bring federal money and programmed decisions closer to us school people."

Major complaints were that the plan offers no new money for education, that it merely shifts red tape from federal to state levels and that it concentrates too much power in the hands of state governors. U.S. Education Commissioner Sidney P. Marland Jr. was told

Suspension ordered

BOISE (UPI) — The vehicle inspection certificate issued to Johnny's Super Service, Ketchum, has been suspended until Nov. 18, the vehicle inspection section of the Department of Law Enforcement said Tuesday. Harold Davis, Boise, section supervisor, said the suspension was ordered because the station allegedly approved a truck which did not have all equipment as provided in the Idaho Code.

Sugar ceiling hits hurdle

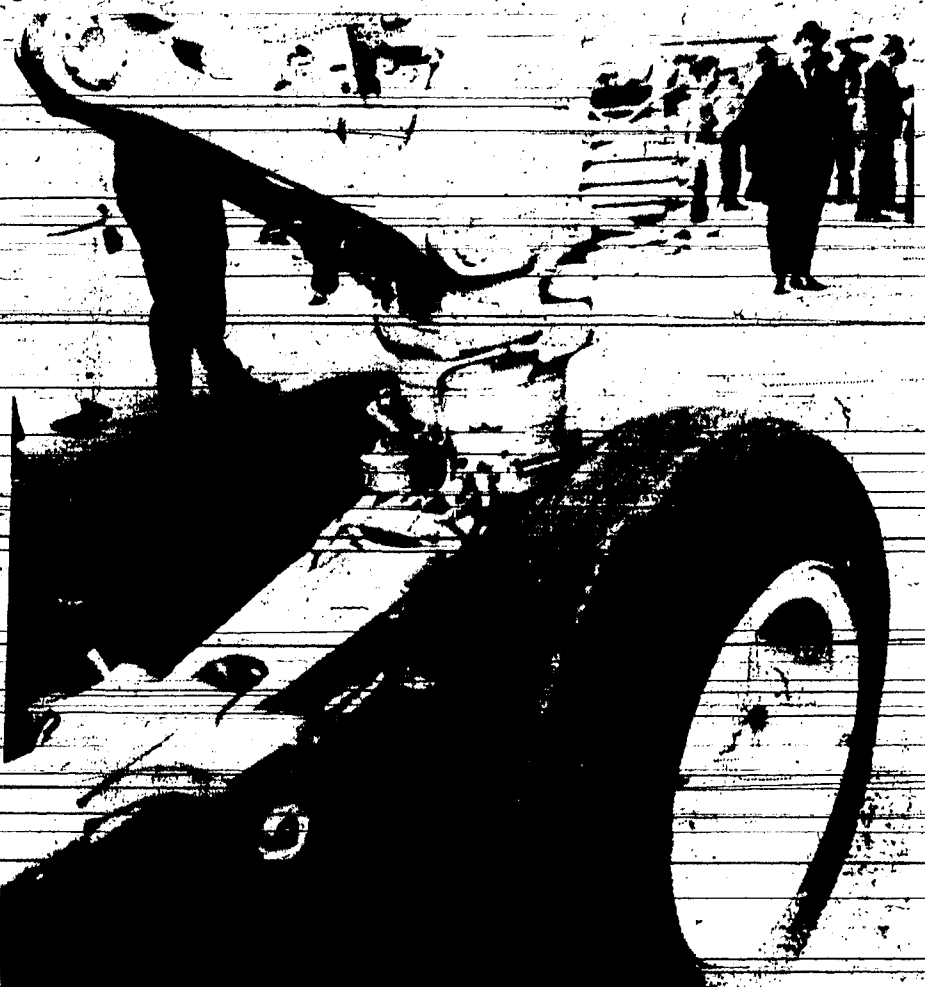

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reformers who want a ceiling on government payments to big sugar planters face a major new hurdle on Capitol Hill. The obstacle is an unusual "self-destruct" amendment in a new sugar bill due to emerge this week from the House Agriculture Committee. The pending bill would extend for three years, beginning in 1972, a law under which the government controls sugar marketing in the U. S. and makes payments to growers. The amendment provides that if Congress puts any limit on grower subsidies, the entire sugar control program would be eliminated. The Agriculture committee's version of the sugar bill is certain to go to the House floor soon with no new restrictions on the grower subsidies which now run to over $1 million a year for the nation's two biggest farms. Nixon administration officials have testified they oppose any payment ceiling, and the committee has overwhelmingly rejected efforts by two of its members to impose ceilings as low as $55,000 per farm. Despite this backing for the status quo, some sugar interests fear an effort may be made to adopt a ceiling either on the domestic growers too small to be in the big payment class, or when the sugar bill reaches the Senate. In an effort to discourage any such attempt, the House committee last week quietly adopted the "self-destruct" amendment drafted by Rep. Spark M. Matsunaga, a Democrat from Hawaii where many of the biggest individual sugar payments are made. If Matsunaga's amendment remains in the bill, it would prevent a painful dilemma for many of the interest groups directly affected by the sugar program. Including some domestic growers too small to be in the big payment class, major sugar-using industries, and foreign countries which benefit under the sugar program because it gives them an assured quota for sales well above the world-price level. Many of these groups would not be hurt and some might even be helped eventually by a $55,000 or lower limit and federal subsidy payments to U. S. growers. But many of them would be hurt quickly and sharply by elimination of the entire sugar program. So, the Matsunaga amendment serves as a guarantee that the big growers will get widespread support in fighting off any limit on their federal payments.

Congress already has put a $55,000 per crop limit on government subsidy payments to producers of cotton, wheat and feed grains. But backers of the sugar program insist their case is different enough to justify rejection of payment ceilings. The sugar subsidies, industry and government sources point out, are more than covered by a special federal sugar processing tax — a situation which does not exist for other crops. Also, the sugar payments have long been made on a "sliding scale" which gives small-grower subsidies of 80 cents per hundredweight while rates for the biggest producers slide down close to 30 cents.

Return pact set

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan and the United States will conclude an agreement on the return of Okinawa to Japanese control in Paris next week, U.S. embassy sources said today. The sources said Secretary of State William P. Rogers will discuss remaining issues with Japanese Foreign Minister Kishi Aichi in the French capital, where the two officials will meet during the OECD conference around June 8. The negotiations for return of the Ryukyus Islands of which Okinawa is the largest have been going on since President Nixon and Japanese Premier Eisaku Sato reached a basic agreement in 1969. U.S. sources said there remain three outstanding issues to be resolved by Rogers and Aichi: a Voice of America transmitting station, the so-called P3 reconnaissance planes, and the "claim issue." The claim question concerns the amount Japan will pay the United States for improvements made in Okinawa during the 26 years of American rule.

Claims dismissed

Vipyle leader Abbie Hoffman, the first protest leader to be indicted, was to be arraigned today in U.S. District Court on federal anti-riot charges. Two others, Rennie Davis and John Froines, earlier were ordered bound over for grand jury action on federal charges of interfering with the civil rights of citizens and federal employees. Nixon said he approved of, and supported, the District of Columbia police action to suspend normal arrest procedures during the protests and sweep up hundreds of demonstrators at a time.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vowing that "vandalism and lawbreaking will not be tolerated in this capital," President Nixon Tuesday dismissed as "exaggerated" claims that thousands of antiwar demonstrators had their constitutional rights violated by mass arrests last month. With a federal grand jury already investigating leaders of the May Day protests, Nixon told a news conference that demonstrators who vowed to shut down the government were "vandals and hoodlums and lawbreakers and they should be treated as lawbreakers."

Alpine park endorsed

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus reaffirmed Wednesday his support for park designation for the high alpine Sawtooth area which he termed "added protection" for a lowland recreation area.

Andrus, who returned late Tuesday from a Federation of Rocky Mountain States meeting in Washington, D. C., also supported the revenue sharing concept if there is adequate protection for smaller populated states.

He also announced plans for a satellite to be placed above Rocky Mountain states by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for educational television use.

Andrus, who will be represented June 7 at a House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs hearing on the proposed Sawtooth National Recreation Area, said the higher elevations must be protected by more than a recreation area.

Zones voting Monday

By GEORGIA LAYTON

Times-News Writer
BURLEY — Eligible voters of Cassia County School District No. 151 will go to the polls Monday to vote on a second proposal to change the boundary lines of the school district trustee zones.

The proposed change will still maintain a five member board of trustees, with each trustee representing the same amount of population.

The proposed trustee zones include the Oakley and Milner areas in Zone 1, the west portion of Burley in Zone 2, the portion of Burley east of Overland Avenue in Zone 3, Springdale and Declo areas in Zone 4 and the remainder of the county in Zone 5.

By population the proposed new trustee zones will have about 3,592 in Zone 1; about 3,654 in Zone 2; about 3,647 in Zone 3; about 3,567 in Zone 4 and 3,586 in Zone 5.

The population figures are construed to be the legal residents of the district and children of such legal residents; in the determination of these figures the United States census figures were used, according to Harold Blauer, school superintendent. From reports of each enumeration district, calculations were made to divide the trustee zones generally along geographic lines, Blauer added.

The Idaho Legislature passed a law which requires the school districts to be divided equally by population for representation of each trustee.

On Oct. 12, 1970, a petition was signed by at least 50 school electors residing in the district requesting that the trustee zones in the school district be changed and redefined in order to reasonably equalize the population.

On Dec. 12, 1970, a proposal to change the zones was submitted to the Idaho Board of Education which was approved by the state board. It was submitted March 29 to the school electors, and the proposal was "turned down" by a 932-yes and 943-no vote.

Polls will be open from 1 to 7 p.m. Polling places in the county are Burley High School, Burley Junior High School, Declo High School, Ruff River High School lunch room, Albion Elementary, Almo Elementary, Oakley High School Gym, Southwest Elementary and Bean Grower's Warehouse, Milner.

He said he favored immediate recreation designation for the lower areas and park designation for the Sawtooths, with a study period for the Boulder, Pioneer and White Cloud mountains.

He said there was no conflict between his position and that of Idaho's congressional delegation, which has introduced legislation for the recreation area.

But, he said, the Congressional proposal "just doesn't go far enough" although adding he felt the delegation wanted to tackle the project in steps with the recreation designation to be the start.

Out of the Washington session, Andrus said, came an agreement for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to place a satellite which can be used by Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada and Colorado for educational television.

He said the satellite will be placed in the area for one year beginning May, 1973. At the end of the year it will be moved to India, where it will be permanently placed.

Revenue sharing, the governor said, was discussed "at almost every turn."

He said he would favor the concept if educational and transportation funds would be protected, adding, "Hopefully they can amend that bill so it will be palatable to areas of sparse population."

Andrus said he felt it would be "very detrimental to do away with the highway trust fund," which he said made it mandatory to spend the money for highway construction.

He said he agreed money should be returned to the state level, but said he was "somewhat apprehensive" about the present plan.

On other matters, Andrus said:

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton will travel throughout the West this summer, and will spend some time in Idaho and each of the Rocky Mountain states.

He was informed by the head of the Environmental Protection Agency legislation is pending which would raise from 35 to 75 per cent the federal government's participation in construction of sewage treatment plants.

And said he had been reassured by Interior Undersecretary Nathaniel Reed there would be no federal intervention into the realm of big game hunting as had been feared during the legislative session when a measure was approved limiting the number of out-of-state hunters.

Andrus said bills coming out on land laws included federal control of certain areas and said he and Morton agreed "these rules and regulations" and the control should be left at the state level as much as possible.

Getting ready Youth Ranch schedules open house June 13

RUPERT — The public will have a chance to find out what the Idaho Youth Ranch is all about during an open house the afternoon of June 13, according to H. Lee Childs, executive director.

He said the purpose of the open house is for the people to see what the ranch is doing for the young people of Idaho. The ranch is intended to help young people function in society as responsible citizens, Childs said.

There are three homes on the ranch, with 12 boys in each home, which is directed by a man and his wife. They coordinate the program within the separate homes with the overall ranch program.

IDAHO YOUTH Ranch boys clean up the yard for the special open house the afternoon of June 13. The ranch is set up to give the boys special assistance in schooling, work experience and vocational training.

Childs said most of the boys are in need of special assistance in schooling. The ranch developed a school program for those who are unable to function in a regular school setting which is state approved.

The school includes remedial education on a programmed learning basis in conjunction with work experience and vocational education training.

Childs said, "We try to find something in each boy to build upon and to help him realize he is worth the while." Each boy has a program designed for him in education, work, social and religious experiences.

The youth ranch was established with private funds because there wasn't money available from state and county governments, Childs said. All available money went to the school at St. Anthony.

The funds come mostly through donations from individuals after they learned of the program. He second source of income is through memorial fund donations.

The ranch is located 15 miles northeast of Rupert. Refreshments will be served and entertainment will be provided by the Old Time Fiddlers Association.

Each visitor will be shown around the ranch by one of the boys. Childs said persons who can not come the day of the open house are welcome to visit at another time.

Delegates pick officer slates

BOISE — Boys' State delegates from Magic Valley are among candidates seeking election to state offices today in the annual American Legion sponsored legislative training session for high school boys in Boise.

In primary voting Wednesday Larry Anderson, Twin Falls, was nominated for governor on the Silver Party ticket. John Kinney, Twin Falls, was nominated on the Gold Party as lieutenant governor running with Bruce Hough of Coeur d'Alene, gubernatorial nominee.

Other area delegates nominated include Brian Katz, Twin Falls, Silver Party candidate for lieutenant governor and Fred Lui, Mountain Home, state auditor on the Silver Party. Stephen Thompson, Twin Falls, was nominated for attorney general on the Gold Party ticket.

At Wednesday's session, John M. Reed, Butte, Mont., FBI special agent in charge of the Butte office addressed delegates. He said the Federal Bureau of Investigation is not conducting illegal wire tapping.

Passports available

TWIN FALLS — Golden Eagle passes for 1971 are still available at the office of the Sawtooth National Forest supervisor, Twin Falls, and in district ranger offices throughout the district.

They are not sold in ranger stations or by personnel at campgrounds this year. Robert Hoag, Sawtooth staff recreation officer, said.

The passes, now selling at $10 each, entitle the purchaser and all persons accompanying him in a single passenger vehicle of non-commercial type, to entry to any designated recreational area.

Persons not purchasing the season pass will be required to pay daily fees ranging from $1 to $3 in improved recreation areas. With each pass purchased, a directory of federated recreation areas where the pass covers admission and camping or picnic facilities will be presented. Where federal and non-federal recreation areas are managed by private concessioners or contracts are held with the federal government for concession operations, the passes do not cover use.

Shoshone park hit by water

SHOSHONE — Little Wood River is overflowing its banks in the city of Shoshone due to recent heavy rain storms, but irrigation officials say there is no danger of flood damage.

A section of the Shoshone City Park was flooded Thursday but officials of the Wood River Canal Co. here said this is a normal occurrence each year and results in no damage other than wet ground and curtailment of park use for several weeks.

Water in the river is at bank level under the Shoshone bridge but officials say it is not threatening the structure. Snow pack in the mountains continues to melt slowly because of cool temperatures and canal company spokesmen said today the water will assure ideal summer irrigation and probably cause no damage, depending on temperatures and continued rain.

Tour off

TWIN FALLS — Rain and wet ground forced postponement Thursday of a tour of public land facilities in Twin Falls County.

Robert Brock, Bureau of Land Management, Burley, advised Twin Falls County Commissioners early Thursday desert areas are wet and muddy and some roads are impassable.

He said the tour will be rescheduled in July. Commissioners had planned to accompany BLM officials on an inspection of the county's federal land areas under BLM jurisdiction and to inspect possible sanitary landfill sites.

Paul camp grant OK'd

WASHINGTON (Special to The Times-News) — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, today announced the Farmers Home Administration has approved an additional $20,000 grant for the Paul Housing Authority for further improvement of the Paul Farm labor center.

Hansen said the additional funds will enable the project to meet unforeseen expenses in developing a satisfactory water supply system for the project. It will also provide for additional fencing and completion of interior improvements for the living units.

The 80-unit housing center, which consists of 20 buildings of four apartments each, was built with a $384,150 grant and a $255,950 loan approved by the FHA last year. It serves a need in Minidoka and Cassia counties for modernized living units to house seasonal farm workers and their families.

Clyde Greenwell, Paul, chairman of the Paul Housing Authority, said the center is critically needed in the area at this time but completion has been held up by bad weather and costs beyond the original loan and grant. He said the $20,000 should assure completion of the facility for use this summer.

Farm workers who have arrived are being housed in any facilities available including vacant farm homes and one family has converted a dairy barn into living facilities, Greenwell said.

Greenwell said additional funds were requested when two deep wells failed to produce water and it was decided to utilize a shallow well by means of chlorination equipment. Because of heavy rains, he said, workers have not been able to get heavy street equipment into the building site, but as soon as interior portions of the buildings are complete farm families will move into the center.

When completed, paved streets, curbs, gutters and sidewalks will be installed, making this the best migrant labor center housing facility in the state, he said. It will be utilized on a year-around basis for the most part with workers from the potato processing plants and farm workers who remain all year using the housing.

Stock dies

SHOSHONE — Five persons escaped injury but a cow and calf were killed at 2 a.m. today on U.S. Highway 93 two miles south of Shoshone in a traffic accident.

Officers said a car driven by Ray Jacobsen, 26, Richfield, collided with the animals. He and his four passengers were uninjured but damage to the vehicle was extensive, Chief of Police Bill Anderson, Shoshone said.

Plant site move asked

By JERRY HERRMANN
Times-News Writer
PAUL — The Paul City Council was told Wednesday night it must purchase land for its proposed lagoon type sewer system.

Wendell Smith, city engineer, told the council it must make a commitment soon as the state is pushing hard for the new sewage treatment system.

It was also questioned if the city really wanted to expand its facility where the present sewer plant is located or go elsewhere.

Gem native named aide to Morton

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Boyd L. Rasmussen, national director of the Bureau of Land Management since 1966 and former Ontario resident, has been named to the staff of Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton.

Rasmussen will be an adviser on land use matters. Prior to becoming BLM director, Rasmussen served in various forestry positions in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Utah and Montana.

His mother, Mrs. J.R. Rasmussen, still resides in Ontario. Rasmussen, born in Glenna Ferry, moved to Ontario as a small child.

In his new post, Rasmussen will advise on department program direction and coordination of new national programs, including legislative proposals for land use policies, reorganizations, and modernization of land laws.

Smith told the council that the most economical place for the city to have its expanded lagoon sewer system would be at the present site.

He was asked by Mayor Harold Wilson if the city gets a sewer bond issue passed this fall when the city could get on the state's priority list.

Smith said there might be a possibility that it could get on the list next summer.

He also reminded the council that its sewer plant must be 1,000 feet from the nearest residence when built. The council said that this requirement could be met at its present site.

Smith also agreed to work with Southern Idaho Land Survey Company to handle the inspection of sewer lines being put in in the city.

In other business the council: Directed that another letter be sent directing the users of the two potato warehouses in Paul to scrape the land around them cleaning up the potatoes left around them. This situation, the council said, is not to happen again. It will also be stated in the letter that no dumping of potatoes will be allowed there in the future.

Was informed by the mayor that from now on he wants the superintendent of services, recreation director and building inspector at the meetings.

Decided that from now on all city employees must clear with it when they take their vacation.

Met with Dale Mitton briefly to discuss a proposed agreement for his new subdivision and his complaints about the building code.

Discussed plans for a barbecue for the Association of Idaho Cities state meeting to be held in Burley.

Space satellites assigned new jobs steadily

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inge-nious people keep thinking up new chores for space satellites.

Maybe, it has now been suggested, satellites can speed the day when earthquakes and volcanic eruptions can be predicted with some accuracy. This and many other labors airplanes and spacecraft, which can discriminate between healthy and sick crops, discover geological formations which might harbor valuable minerals, ascertain the physical condition of forests, spot oil seeps marking new petroleum resources, detect environmental pollution, find unsuspected water supplies, provide photographic evidence of land-use patterns and urban sprawl, and supply information quickly about impending natural disasters.

Of course, some satellites already are in the business of reporting large-scale weather patterns, spotting hurricanes, and keeping a space eye on sea ice and mountain snowpacks.

But it appears much more is expected: One geological survey team said quick relay of global information by communications satellites is essential to monitoring seismic data in time to use them for earthquake prediction purposes.

Satellites also will be invaluable for quick dissemination of water resources information in a period when man's use of water is rising rapidly. Remote sensors aboard satellites are expected, moreover, to provide new dimensions of detail and precision to the enormous task of mapping the earth.

Bus injures youth

BOISE (UPI) — Gerald Ourada, 11, Boise, was run over by a Boise school bus Tuesday. But except for a few bruises had no injuries. State Police said the boy stepped in front of the bus, crossed close to the hood of the bus, and bent over to pick up a book he had dropped when the bus started forward.

The youth was knocked to the ground and the wheels on the left side ran over his legs. The youngster was taken to St. Luke's Hospital, X-Rayed, treated for bruises and released. The road was sandy, and State Police Cpl. Harless McMikie said there was a lot of "give" to the sandy road.

They will be equipped with remarkable sensors, many of them already tested aboard

Discriminate between geological and sick crops, discover geological formations which might harbor valuable minerals, ascertain the physical condition of forests, spot oil seeps marking new petroleum resources, detect environmental pollution, find unsuspected water supplies, provide photographic evidence of land-use patterns and urban sprawl, and supply information quickly about impending natural disasters.

Of course, some satellites already are in the business of reporting large-scale weather patterns, spotting hurricanes, and keeping a space eye on sea ice and mountain snowpacks.

But it appears much more is expected: One geological survey team said quick relay of global information by communications satellites is essential to monitoring seismic data in time to use them for earthquake prediction purposes.

Satellites also will be invaluable for quick dissemination of water resources information in a period when man's use of water is rising rapidly.

Remote sensors aboard satellites are expected, moreover, to provide new dimensions of detail and precision to the enormous task of mapping the earth.

Logic not prevailing factor in Argentina

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign-News Analyst

When Gen. Alejandro Augustin Lanusse took over as Argentina's new strongman president a little more than two months ago and made it known he was ready to make peace with the followers of former dictator Juan D. Peron, it seemed the logical thing to do. The ousted Peron had been out of power for more than 15 years and his party outlawed, yet such is the strength of his popularity, following that it has been estimated he still could win 30 to 40 per cent of the vote in any free election.

Since Peron's departure in 1955, Argentina has had nine governments and it seemed obvious that until a way could be found to return the Peronistas to Argentine political life little reason existed for hope of a return to stability.

Yet logic is not a prevailing factor in Argentine politics as demonstrated by the fact that Peron remains a political factor even though known to have milked the country of funds estimated as high as $600 million.

The Lanusse government has announced that political parties will be permitted to function as of July 1 for the first time since the military takeover in 1966 and Lanusse has said he plans to hold elections no later than the end of 1973.

It has provided Argentines with a temporary tonic but has not removed either the problems or the contradictions that led to the military takeover in the first place.

Of primary importance is the question of Peronism. Lanusse himself is among the military men imprisoned by Peron when the latter was in power and while Lanusse might risk Peron's return, others would oppose it violently.

The question then is how to permit Peronism without Peron.

Beyond Peronism, the government is faced with mounting terrorism by urban guerrillas, an increasingly strong Communist party and a Marxist government in neighboring Chile.

Beyond all that is a proliferation of political parties which paralyzed previous attempts at civilian government and mounting popular unrest which has its roots in economic ills.

The kidnapping of the honorary British consul in Rosario, Argentina, has been cited as an example of the latter.

"Ransom" paid for his release consisted of a sizable sum in food distributed to Rosario's poor and restoration of jobs among workers laid off by the meat packing plant of which he is manager.

When Lanusse abandoned his role as kingmaker in the military junta to take over as president it was assumed by his fellow officers that he would give up his job as commander of the army. He held on to it, presumably as a matter of personal insurance, and dissatisfaction in the armed services is reported as a result.

An increase in pay may or may not have stilled it.

Argentina is rich in the resources of its land and its people. Its literacy rate is among the highest in Latin America.

Dave Hill placed on probation

ATLANTA (UPI)—Controversial golfer Dave Hill was placed on one year's probation by the Professional Golfers Association (PGA) Wednesday and warned any further misconduct would bring a suspension.

The PGA also upheld the $500 fine levied on Hill for "conduct unbecoming a professional golfer" during the Colonial National at Fort Worth, Tex. two weeks ago. He was alleged to have deliberately changed his scorecard.

The action was taken at a meeting of the permanent policy board of the PGA's Tournament Players Division (TPD) which met at the site of the Atlanta Classic tourney to consider Hill's protest of the fine.

The PGA said the TPD board placed Mr. Hill on probation for one year from the day of the offense. In the event of further infractions of tournament rules and regulations during the probationary period, Mr. Hill will be subject to suspension from TPD and termination of TPD membership.

Hill refused to comment directly on the action. He said "I was not invited" to the board's meeting and added it was his first time on probation although "I have been suspended before."

The PGA said it had also examined the $1 million suit brought by Hill against the PGA and TPD, alleging his civil rights were violated. Legal counsel for the association was instructed to oppose the suit "vigorously."

$4 million price of Canonero II Blandford invited to golf meet

NEW YORK (UPI)—The owner of Canonero II said Wednesday he will sell the colt for $4 million to a syndicate from Kentucky or one from Florida after Canonero's bid to become the first Triple Crown winner in 23 years of thoroughbred racing.

Speaking through an interpreter, Pedro Baptista of Venezuela predicted his horse would win the Belmont Stakes "easily" Saturday. But he said the spot odds offered stand, win or lose.

Belmont bettors to wager less

NEW YORK (UPI)—Off-Track Betting Corp. (OTB) chief Howard Samuels hedged his bets Wednesday and predicted that New Yorkers would wager less money on the Belmont Stakes than they did on the first two legs of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

"I'm getting a little smarter now and I'm predicting we'll do less than on the other two," Samuels said during a visit to the 12 windows which opened at noon in the Grand Central Station Annex to take bets on Saturday's race.

Samuels said he would be "very surprised" if the handle was anywhere near the more than $1 million bet on the Kentucky Derby and again on the Preakness because Canonero II, the favorite, had won twice and offered only narrow 6-5 odds on the OTB morning line and because the track was close enough for bettors to watch the race.

Samuels arrived at Grand Central with Pedro Baptista, the Venezuelan owner of Canonero II. Baptista bet $2 on his horse and flashed a V-for-victory sign, predicting through an interpreter his horse would win "easily."

But Samuels apparently wasn't as sure of a winner. "I've got a feeling but I don't bet any money," he said.

Baptista refused to identify members of the rival syndicates but said he would sell to the one that met his "special conditions"—letting him retain the rights to four studs a year from the horse and all advertising revenue.

Canonero apparently has recovered from the rash that bothered him recently and his hoof is better, Baptista's associates said. "He had a good workout today. He ran a half mile in 53," a spokesman said.

Baptista showed his confidence in Canonero by placing a token $2 bet on his horse at an Off-Track Betting Corp. window in Grand Central Station. He flashed a V-for-victory sign at the crowd of bettors and newsmen that surrounded him.

The owner said it would be easier for Canonero, a distance runner, to win the Belmont Stakes than it was to win the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness "because it's a longer run. The first two legs of the Triple Crown are 1 1/4 miles but the Belmont is 1 1/2 miles.

Canonero's jockey, Gustavo Avila, also was scheduled to place a bet with OTB but instead he went to Yankee Stadium to see fellow Venezuelan Luis Aparicio, shortstop for the Boston Red Sox, play the Yankees.

Baptista said Tuesday he was considering eight offers for Canonero, five from U.S. groups and one each from Japan, England and Venezuela, but he preferred the United States because it would give the horse "his best opportunity as a stallion."

Two sign

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI)—The Buffalo Bills of the National Football League Wednesday announced the signing of wide receiver Bob Chandler and linebacker Bob Strickland, the club's seventh and ninth round draft choices.

Chandler is a six-foot, 180-pounder from USC. Strickland, 6-2, 215-pounder, is from Auburn.

TWIN FALLS — Jim Blandford, Twin Falls, has been invited to participate in the fourth annual John Dropping Invitational Junior Golf Tournament to be held Monday and Tuesday at Hillcrest Country Club, Boise.

Defending champion Jeff Thomsen, Twin Falls, will not defend his title since he will be playing in the sectional U.S. Open qualifying tournament in California the same days.

Several other young Idaho golfers have been invited, but Blandford is the only local boy invited.

College tourneys start today

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI)—College baseball teams representing the four regions of the nation battle for the No. 1 spot in the double elimination NCAA College Division National Baseball Tournament opening Thursday.

The series opens at 2:30 p.m. EDT with Florida Southern College, winner of the Atlantic Coast regional, meeting San Diego University, winner of the Pacific Coast playoffs.

Mankato State College, Midwest winners, and Central Michigan, champion of the Mideast playoffs, meet at 8:30 p.m.

The losers of games No. 1 and No. 2 play at 2:30 p.m. Friday with the winners of the first two games playing at 8:30 p.m.

Winner of Friday night's game will advance to a Saturday game at 8:30 p.m. On Saturday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. the losers of games No. 3 and No. 4 meet with the survivor playing the series' only remaining unbeaten team that night at 8:30.

The championship could be determined Saturday night, but if a seventh game is needed it will be played Sunday afternoon.

Area men place at state shoot

Several Magic Valley shooters returned home this week after placing high in the Idaho State Trap Shooting Championships Memorial Day Weekend in Lewiston.

In the preliminary handicap, Ray Hamby, Kimberly, placed second with a score of 94. Dave Ledbetter, Twin Falls, tied with Joe Ljutic, Washington, for high junior trophy in the preliminary handicap, but lost out to Ljutic in the shootoff.

In preliminary singles, Steve Fahrenwald, Twin Falls, was first in Class B with a score of 99; H.B. Bickett, Gooding, was second in Class C with 97, and Lou Stites, Twin Falls, was second in Class D with score of 94.

In the second day singles, Ray Hamby, Kimberly, was winner of A singles with 100 straight. In over-all singles championship, Steve Fahrenwald, Twin Falls, won by shooting 196 out of a possible 200.

Bickett won the High Veteran State Singles Championship, with a score of 194.

For the Idaho State Champion handicap shooter, there was a four-way tie between Gordon Bernard, Boise; Chuck Woodland, Twin Falls; Dale Garrison, Grangeville, and Bruce Fennell, Culesac, all with a score of 96.

However, Bernard won in the shootoff with 25 straight, and Woodland was runner-up with a score of 24 in the shootoff.

T.F. swim team seeks members

TWIN FALLS — Registration is now going on at the Harmon Park Recreation Building for youth 6 years old and above wishing to be on the Twin Falls Swim team.

Children wanting to swim in age group competition are urged to sign up now as the workouts begin June 14 and the season is only eight weeks long.

A swim team development class will be held weekdays as well as workouts for the A and B teams.

It is pointed out that there will be both class A and B swim meets in Idaho cities ending with the state meet at Moscow in August.

U.S. horse wins race in England

EPSOM, England (UPI)—The United States continued its recent dominance of England's most prestigious horse race Wednesday when Mill Reef, a 3-year-old colt bred in Virginia and owned by Paul Mellon of Pittsburgh, pulled away in the stretch to win the $218,340 Epsom Derby by two lengths.

The victory marked the third time in the last four years that an American owned horse has won the Epsom. The late Charles Engelhard's Nijinsky was victorious last year while Raymond Guest's Sir Ivor won in 1968.

Mill Reef, a strapping son of Never Bend who had never finished worse than second in eight previous lifetime starts, was the 3-1 betting favorite of the huge crowd that journeyed to the lush countryside course outside London to see the world's oldest turf race amid a carnival atmosphere.

Entertained earlier in the day by gypsy caravans, belly dancers and animal shows, the crowd of 250,000 got its biggest thrill as Mill Reef brushed past longshot Linden Tree in the final two furlongs and breezed to victory under Welsh jockey Geoff Lewis. Linden Tree, who set the pace throughout the 1 1/2-mile race, finished second, two lengths better than France's Irish Ball.

Bob Feller, ex-Indian pitcher, to appear here

TWIN FALLS — Bob Feller, former Cleveland Indians pitching great, will be in the Magic Valley on June 24 and 25 to help the Cowboys open their 1971 Pioneer League season at Jaycee Park, Twin Falls.

The announcement was made today by the Cowboys new general manager, Carl Fazio, who recently arrived from Cleveland, Ohio. Fazio and his partner, Kip Horsburgh, are looking forward to a packed house for the season inaugural against Great Falls.

Feller was selected as the World's Greatest Living Right-Handed Pitcher at the 1969 Baseball Centennial. "Rapid Robert" twirled three no-hitters and 12 one-hitters, and struck out 2,581 would-be hitters in a career which spanned 18 seasons. In 1946, he fanned 348 batters for an American League record. His career won-lost mark is 266 victories and 162 losses.

During his two-day visit here, Feller will be available on a limited basis to Magic Valley groups. Interested parties should contact the Cowboys office at 733-8330.

FORMER CLEVELAND INDIANS pitching great, Bob Feller, will be in Twin Falls June 24-25 to help the Magic Valley Cowboys open their 1971 Pioneer League season at Jaycee Park.

Muhammad, Ellis sign 'grudge' fight

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jimmy Ellis gets his chance to withdraw from the shadow of Muhammad Ali when they meet in a multi-million dollar "grudge" fight July 20 at the Astrodome in Houston.

The two ex-heavyweight champions signed Wednesday for a 12-round bout, with the winner expected to be Joe Frazier's next title opponent.

Ellis, who could barely interject his comments as Ali took charge of the press conference, said the fight would be "the highlight of my career. Ali says he is the greatest. I'll show him and the whole world I can beat him. I can't outtalk him, but I can outfight him."

While Ali was climbing the ladder toward success, Ellis was in the sparring ring preparing the articulate Ali for his fights. There was a seriousness about Ellis as he refused to play the punching bag during these training sessions and floored Ali several times.

Top Rank, Inc., promoter of the upcoming bout with Astro-dome Championship Enterprises, Inc., is playing on this facet of their past relationship to hype the live gate and the closed-circuit television revenue.

They are prepared to give Ali 45 per cent of all income against a minimum guarantee of $450,000. Ellis will receive 20 per cent of all income.

Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, actually estimates the gross at $5-6 million and on this basis Ali will receive $1.8 million and Ellis $800,000. The fight is scaled to do $1.2 million if there is a sellout at the Astrodome. Ringside seats will go for $75.00, field boxes and mezzanine seats at $25.00, grand stand tickets at $10.00 and 10,000 special "Ali seats" for $5.00 each.

Ali, in mock anger, decried Ellis's silence when the government put him out of action and he was stripped of the heavyweight title.

"For years I carried Ellis when he was my sparring partner," Ali said. "I made him a pile of money. But when he became the World Boxing Association champion and I had a 1 1/2 year layoff, he never even mentioned me."

Ellis, who had at that point and reminded Ali that he gave the ex-champion work as a sparring partner during his official absence from the ring.

"I had a 17-month layoff and didn't cry about it," Ellis said, glaring at Ali.

A number of other top runners that performed well last week are returning for the feature race to challenge Zipangu and Fairly Well. Carl Smith's Dorey Steel, trained by Joe Abbey, showed good speed in running second to Daffy Dorothy in the Inaugural Handicap last Friday. Time for the Inaugural was only 2:5th of a second off the track record for the 6-furlongs.

2 horses to 'battle' at Boise

BOISE — Two winners in last weekend's four-day meet will battle in Friday's feature race at the Boise Fairgrounds track.

Harold Creason's Zipangu and Harmon Tobler's Fairly Well, both impressive victors over the last weekend, are expected to duel wire to wire in the "Shafer Butte Purse" over the 6 1/2-furlong route.

Zipangu, Creason's 4-year-old bay filly, winner at Boise three times last year, picked up her winning ways in the sixth race last Friday at 6 1/2-furlongs in the respectable early time of 1:21.1. Kent Storey will be on Zipangu Friday as it was her time out.

Tobler's Fairly Well, trained by Guy Freeman, was impressive in winning the eighth race last Saturday as the 5-year-old mare covered the 6 1/2-furlongs in the identical time of 1:21.1. Ken McReynolds will pilot Fairly Well again Friday.

Workshop series planned

TWIN FALLS — Aerospace education workshops co-sponsored by the U.S. Air Force and Civil Air Patrol scheduled June 14 to 25 at North Idaho Junior College, Coeur d'Alene, and the University of Idaho at Moscow.

Ray Crandal, CAP information officer for the Idaho Wing, said the workshops are similar to the session conducted recently at the College of Southern Idaho. They are designed to acquaint Idaho educators with the need for aerospace education and the intricacies of the subject.

Those attending may qualify for college credit, Crandal said. Air Force personnel will instruct the courses, which will also include field trips to air bases and areas of interest in the field.

Cubs sweep twin bill

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Ernie Banks hit a three-run homer in the first game and Billy Williams duplicated the feat in the second game to give the Chicago Cubs a sweep of a doubleheader with the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday night, 6-3 and 4-1.

Banks' homer, his first of the season and the 510th of his career, broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning of the first game.

Pirates hand loss to Cards

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Bob Veale, the forgotten man of Pittsburgh's pitching staff, pitched three scoreless innings of relief and Dave Cash ignited scoring rallies with a double and a triple Wednesday night to lead the Pirates to a 10-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Don Kessinger led off the Cubs' winning rally in the second game with his third single of the game. Glenn Beckert followed with a bunt and when Woody Woodward dropped Johnny Bench's throw on an attempted force play at second, the Cubs wound up with runners on first and second.

Williams followed with his game-winning homer. Don Gullett started the second game for the Reds and blanked the Cubs until the seventh when Ron Santo led off with his 11th homer of the season. The Reds tied the score in the seventh after leadoff singles by Hal McRae and Woodward chased starter Joe Decker.

Reliever Phil Regan bobbled Jimmy Stewart's sacrifice bunt, leading the bases and Pete Rose drove in McRae with a sacrifice fly.

The victory, Pittsburgh's fifth in a row, moved the Pirates to within a half-game of the first-place Cardinals in the National League East.

Veale, a starting pitcher for seven years who was moved to the bullpen this season, had pitched only seven innings before Wednesday night. But after coming into the game with two on and none out and the Pirates ahead 4-1 in the seventh, he shut the door on St. Louis by pitching out of the jam and allowing two hits the rest of the way.

Indians dump Brewers

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—The Cleveland Indians, taking advantage of errors by Rick Auerbach and Danny Walton, scored three unearned runs in the third inning Wednesday night to beat the Milwaukee Brewers, 4-2, and give Sam McDowell his fifth victory.

Auerbach booted Granger's fly-grounder to start the third-inning rally for Cleveland. Nettles went to third on Vada Pinson's single and scored on Terry Forester's wild pitch with one out in the 12th inning Wednesday night to give the Baltimore Orioles and relief pitcher Dick Hall a 3-2 win over the Chicago White Sox.

The win put the Orioles in first place by four percentage points in the American League East. Blair, batting for Hall, drew a walk to open the 12th and reached second on Don Buford's sacrifice. Dave Johnson grounded to third baseman Bill Melton, who missed the tag trying to catch Blair on his way to third and Johnson was safe at first.

Boog Powell walked and with Frank Robinson at bat, reliever Forester threw his second pitch into the dirt and Blair scored as the ball rolled to the screen.

Z, who had arrived too late to play, remarked to B, "If I had been declarer, I would have played the nine of clubs, not the ace, on the first trick. Your partner would have read your four-spots as a come-on and probably continued the suit. Whereupon, I would have romped home with my contract."

"I guess I would have done just that," said West. "I wonder what A would have done at trick two if he had been defending with B."

"A would probably have continued clubs, just as you would have."

"You won't find the play Z suggested in any of the old columns. The reason Z is so tough is because he keeps finding new tricks to add to the ones he learned when he played auction."

By Oswald & James Jacoby

"Deck soup," chortled B. This play was old when I first used it for R. Foster in 1921. South had won the club lead with the ace and lost the trump finesse to B at trick two.

B followed up his remark by leading the deuce of spades. West's nine forced out one of dummy's honors. Later on, when West gained the lead with a club, he was able to give B two spade tricks.

B's play was one that any really good player might have made. South was marked with both the ace and king of diamonds for his bids and if he also held the jack of spades, there would be no defense possible.

WOMEN tend to get fewer eye infections than do men. Medical records show that. Why is clear. Tears are aptisptic. The eyes of women are capable of producing more tears than the eyes of men. Measurably more tears. So you thought it just seemed that way, did you? No, sir, it's a scientific fact.

MUST MENTION another of those several peculiar differences between men and women. After the age of 30, a man's nose continues to grow, shift, change shape. But a woman's does not. Not nearly so definitely, anyway. This is also said to be true of the ears.

NOTE IT STATED each of the four assassins of U.S. Presidents was short and slight. Likewise, each of the four would-be assassins who tried such murder but failed. True enough. Still, it should not be forgotten that this list of short and slight men also ought to include Alexander the Great, Byron, Cervantes, Cromwell, Drake, Louis I, Lord Nelson, St. Paul, Shakespeare and Socrates. Consider them, too. Wait, almost forgot, add Atilla the Hun and Dick Cavett.

CUSTOMER SERVICE. Q. "How far down does the earth's crust go?" A. Maybe 40 miles. It's just about what the shell is to the egg. Q. "Ever stop to think you never see a female tennis player or golfer with good-looking legs? If that's not right, name one." A. None come to mind offhand. Odd. But research goes on. Q. "Is there such a thing as male and female bamboo?" A. Must be. As I recall, before the polevaulter started using glass poles, many of them used to mast on female bamboo.

JUST 70 YEARS AGO, there were no sports pages in newspapers. This comes up because a client asks, "Who is the Dean of American sports writers?" No question about that. It's Rbyal Brougham of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. The daily sports page had not yet been dreamed up when Mr. Brougham was a tot.

THOU ART an elm, my husband, I a vine. Such was a line written by William Shakespeare. And it was the first literary reference, I think, to that sort of ladyfriend now commonly referred to as the clinging vine.

MOST MEN WHO turn into alcoholics were exceedingly well-behaved as youngsters. Or so the records seem to indicate. Bashful boys, usually. SO THE OLD MAN thinks he knows all about the Masonic Lodge, does he? All right, ask him to name the only woman member, ever. The Honorable Mrs. Richard Aldworth, an Irish lady. "WHAT'S card sense?" asks a customer. There's no such thing. Experience, ability to concentrate, ordinary savvy, yes. But it's no knack.

Folk singer runs afoul immigration service

Bettors say campaign on

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has not yet announced whether he will run for re-election.

But to hear white House News Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler tell it, the President hasn't given any consideration to those (political) matters. He hasn't been considering election plans.

Since last fall when the congressional elections turned out to be a GOP disaster, Nixon has stressed that this is his "non-political" year.

In reviewing the betting he found that what he thought was his most saleable issue—law and order—had little appeal at the polls compared to the sagging economy and the Vietnam War.

He was not expected to repeat the mistake in 1972. His strong moves have been in the field of foreign policy, and he is trying for a string of successes to show the voters.

He fully expects the U.S. role in Vietnam to be down to a minimum by the time the election rolls around.

There are other happy signs for him on the world horizon. The Soviet Union is ready to talk seriously on offensive and defensive arms limitations. And Red China is opening its doors to Americans for the first time in 26 years.

Incumbent presidents have strong advantages in foreign travel just before a major election. Former President Lyndon B. Johnson found his polls going upward when he took the White House on world tours in search of peace.

It is not only possible, but highly likely that Nixon will seek a summit meeting with the Russians before his first term ends.

Witnesses in the case. Lang was first arrested last fall by Twin Falls Police and charged in connection with a robbery at the Lynwood Safeway store. After a preliminary hearing in Twin Falls Police Court he was not bound over to stand trial in district court. The complaint was recently refiled.

Terry Hartley, 24, Twin Falls, was also arrested in connection with that case and was bound over to Fifth District Court. He currently is free on bond awaiting trial.

Tricia Nixon will have a 7-tiered wedding cake with ornate white frosting and the traditional bridal couple figurines on top.

Elizabeth Carpenter, former press secretary to Lady Bird Johnson, had a big hand in the grand outpouring of Texas hospitality during the three-day celebration in Austin to dedicate the new LBJ Library.

But after several weeks working again with former President Johnson, who demands nothing less than perfection, Liz began to show some of the strain. "I feel as though I've been picked up by my ears," said Liz on the eve of the dedication.

David is going to enjoy it. David's wife Julie will be her sister's matron of honor and he plans to send a cable on the wedding day, along with his gift. He adds that his family will be "well represented" at the nuptials with his parents, U.S. Ambassador to Belgium and Mrs. John Eisenhower, and his grandmother, Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, attending.

David was eager to do his hitch in the Navy but he seems to be moving away from any idea of making it a career. He loves to be a navigator on the bridge, and says navigation was his sport at officers training school.

But politics definitely seems to be in his future. He's completely at ease with people and has a poise that older politicians—perhaps even the President—could envy.

Julie is looking forward to her first teaching job, which she will begin in September at the Atlantic Beach Elementary School in Florida. She expects it to be easier than practice teaching which she had for a year at Catholic University "because I was so new and green."

Leave USSR. MOSCOW (UPI) — Nearly 3,500 Jews have left the Soviet Union for Israel so far in 1971, more than the total for any year since the state of Israel was formed in 1948, diplomatic sources said Tuesday.

One of the few advantages of growing old is that you receive few calls from insurance agents.

One of the quickest ways to broaden your education is to sit down and discuss life with the kids.

OTTAWA (UPI) — Ian and Sylvia, Gordon Lightfoot and Anne Murray all think David Wiffen is a pretty good folk singer.

But to the U.S. Immigration and Labor departments he is no "star" and that's why Wiffen is not performing in a Washington, D.C., coffee house.

Wiffen, 29, of Ottawa is the victim of a section of the U.S. immigration regulations which allow easy entry to the United States for "big name" entertainers but which classes lesser known performers about the same as migrant workers.

At the stars' request, he has appeared as a backup act with Lightfoot, Anne Murray and the Sylvas, Gordon Lightfoot and Anne Murray all think David Wiffen is a pretty good folk singer.

Due to U.S. regulations, most Canadian entertainers who still are on the way up have found they have several unattractive alternatives if they want to perform south of the border—do it illegally without a visa, emigrate to the States, or give up on U.S. bookings.

Wiffen, however, tried to get a work permit and "go the legal route" so he could appear as the second act with Ian and Sylvia last week at the Cellar Door in Washington—at Tyson's request.

When his efforts failed, he and his agent decided to make public a problem they said has hurt many Canadian performers in recent years.

A spokesman for External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp agreed that U.S. regulations have hurt many Canadian entertainers, from little-known country music singers to top Canadian symphony orchestras.

He said Sharp raised the matter at a meeting with U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers in June, 1969, and changes had been promised but he admitted, "there is still apparently a problem."

U.S. immigration regulations allow for two classes of entertainer. The "H-1" visa is given to performers of "exceptional merit and ability" in effect to anyone who has a hit record or who will be the featured performer while the "H-2" visa is reserved for all other entertainers.

Under the "H-1" regulations, the performer must demonstrate that his talent is "not otherwise available in the United States." This must be certified by the U.S. Labor Department as well as by immigration authorities.

Although Canadian performers are seldom refused outright, Harvey Glatt, Wiffen's agent, said they frequently lose their contracts because of lengthy delays, often three months or more, in getting their contracts approved.

OTTAWA (UPI) — Ian and Sylvia, Gordon Lightfoot and Anne Murray all think David Wiffen is a pretty good folk singer.

But to the U.S. Immigration and Labor departments he is no "star" and that's why Wiffen is not performing in a Washington, D.C., coffee house.

Wiffen, 29, of Ottawa is the victim of a section of the U.S. immigration regulations which allow easy entry to the United States for "big name" entertainers but which classes lesser known performers about the same as migrant workers.

At the stars' request, he has appeared as a backup act with Lightfoot, Anne Murray and the Sylvas, Gordon Lightfoot and Anne Murray all think David Wiffen is a pretty good folk singer.

Due to U.S. regulations, most Canadian entertainers who still are on the way up have found they have several unattractive alternatives if they want to perform south of the border—do it illegally without a visa, emigrate to the States, or give up on U.S. bookings.

Wiffen, however, tried to get a work permit and "go the legal route" so he could appear as the second act with Ian and Sylvia last week at the Cellar Door in Washington—at Tyson's request.

When his efforts failed, he and his agent decided to make public a problem they said has hurt many Canadian performers in recent years.

A spokesman for External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp agreed that U.S. regulations have hurt many Canadian entertainers, from little-known country music singers to top Canadian symphony orchestras.

He said Sharp raised the matter at a meeting with U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers in June, 1969, and changes had been promised but he admitted, "there is still apparently a problem."

U.S. immigration regulations allow for two classes of entertainer. The "H-1" visa is given to performers of "exceptional merit and ability" in effect to anyone who has a hit record or who will be the featured performer while the "H-2" visa is reserved for all other entertainers.

Under the "H-1" regulations, the performer must demonstrate that his talent is "not otherwise available in the United States." This must be certified by the U.S. Labor Department as well as by immigration authorities.

Although Canadian performers are seldom refused outright, Harvey Glatt, Wiffen's agent, said they frequently lose their contracts because of lengthy delays, often three months or more, in getting their contracts approved.
