Viet Reds propose new 'peace terms'

PARIS (UPI)—The Vietnamese Communists put forth a seven-point peace plan today calling for the release of war prisoners simultaneously with withdrawal of U.S. troops under a mutually agreed timetable. The United States (immediately) moved to adjourn to give careful study to the proposal. The proposal was made by Madame Nguyen Thi Binh, the Viet Cong foreign minister and was endorsed by North Vietnam negotiator Xuan Thieu who appealed to U.S. Ambassador David K. E. Bruce to give it careful consideration. Madame Binh had said in advance the proposal was aimed at breaking the deadlock in the two-year-old talks and Bruce promptly responded to the Communist's call to consider it seriously so that the 10-year-old Vietnam War could be brought to an end. It has always been our practice to examine any proposal made by your side, and we have consistently stated our desire to negotiate on all proposals made by both sides," Bruce told Madame Binh. He then asked for adjournment until next Thursday to study the plan.

The new Communist proposals were a departure from previous offers which insisted that the Americans must announce a deadline on troop withdrawal before any discussion on prisoner releases could even start. Madame Binh's proposal included six old proposals rejected by the United States and South Vietnam and it was not immediately clear whether there had been a significant breakthrough. Significantly, her offer followed the return from Hanoi a week ago today of Le Duc Tho, seventh-ranking member of the North Vietnamese politburo and an adviser to the Paris peace delegates.

Yank force called out

SAIGON (UPI)—More than 6,000 American GIs including a tank battalion of the only U.S. unit left guarding the embattled corridor along the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) got orders to leave Vietnam today. It was the largest one-day withdrawal order since the pullout of American forces began. Military sources said among the units receiving orders to leave was the 615-member 1st Battalion of the 77th Armored, the last full tank outfit in the area of the DMZ. It is part of the 1st Brigade of the U.S. 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized), which protects the DMZ's eastern sector. The heaviest fighting in Vietnam for the past month has been along the DMZ, which President Nguyen Van Thieu said Wednesday would be the scene of a final confrontation with North Vietnam in 1973 after all U.S. troops have gone. Battlefield reports today told of a new series of North Vietnamese artillery attacks against South Vietnamese forces on an around Fire Base Fuller just south of the DMZ. American B52s flew seven raids in the 24 hours ending at noon today, dropping 500,000 pounds of bombs on North Vietnamese troop concentrations around Fire Base Fuller and near Fire Base Alpha and other areas just south of the DMZ. The U.S. command reported meanwhile that 21 GIs were killed in the war last week, bringing to 54,941 the number of Americans killed in the war. The death toll was down four from the previous week.

Withdrawal of the 77th and 5,500 troops of the 5th Division "Red Devils" in South Vietnam's northernmost Quang Tri province, which includes the corridor along the DMZ, is American GIs who man the outposts of Alpha 4 and Charlie 2, both within sight of the Demilitarized Zone as well as the big Quang Tri Combat Base.

Registrations, no inductions

By MELBA THORNE Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS—The military draft in Twin Falls County, as in the rest of Idaho and the nation, has halted. However, the Twin Falls office will continue to be open the usual hours, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, Mrs. Faye Hoffman, executive secretary of the Twin Falls Selective Service Board, said today. Orders on the course to follow came to the local board from state headquarters, Mrs. Hoffman said. "There will be no classification action during the month of July and there will be no one required to report for physical examinations or induction," she explained. Young men reaching their 18th birthday anniversary must continue to register. This will be one of the uninterrupted duties to be carried out at the office. The young men must register on their 18th birthday anniversary or within five days after. Mrs. Hoffman said the 18-year-olds who register will not be classified until orders come in to continue the classifications. There have been no young men ordered to report for physicals in Idaho at this time, but in states where this might be the case, they would not be required to report for the physical examination. Another letter will be sent to them informing them of what to do. "If a young man has had his induction physical examination, he will receive the results and the Selective Service system will continue to process reports on physical exams, state officials said. The Selective Service System is a permanent institution and this recent action does not eliminate the system. Only the power to induct expired. Government authority to draft men into the armed forces ended at midnight Wednesday, after House and Senate conferees failed to reach agreement on a bill that would extend conscription for two years. The conferees deadlocked Wednesday over a Senate attempt to get Congress on record in favor of withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Vietnam nine months after the draft is ejected. President Nixon strongly opposed the move. Conferees agreed, to meet again next Wednesday, after a July 4 holiday recess. It is the first time the nation has been without the draft since 1949.

Sawtooth park bid rejected

BOISE (UPI)—Gov. Cecil D. Andrus confirmed Wednesday the U.S. Department of Interior had turned down his request to develop a national park in the White-Clouds Sawtooths area. But the governor said since he received the reply, made public only Wednesday, he had met with Nathaniel Reed, assistant secretary of the interior in charge of national parks, who gave the governor "reasons to believe he will help in this endeavor." Andrus also said he hoped Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Mottion would visit the White Clouds area this summer as a part of western states tour he is planning. Andrus made his request in April to U.S. Day, Portland, department field representative, requesting the plan by June 30. But in his reply, dated May 19, Day said it seemed "unwise at this time to launch in an additional study... on grounds the area is now being studied by the Forest Service and an Interior Department task force and since legislation concerning the area is pending in Congress. Day said the Interior Department is reviewing legislation proposed by Idaho's congressional delegation for a national recreation area in the region, along with a study on possible national park status, and said the task force will make its report to Mottion about Sept. 1.

Ohio was the 38th state to ratify the amendment, the three-fourths of the state legislatures required to amend the constitution. The Ohio action came three months and seven days after Congress proposed the amendment on March 29, 1969. The amendment was passed for passage of a constitutional amendment. There had been speculation when it was proposed that state legislatures would act too slowly to permit 11-million 16-year-olds to vote in next year's Presidential Primaries. President Nixon said the speed of the amendment's passage "affirms our nation's confidence in its youth and its trust in their responsibility."

New health agency faces fund problem

By CHARLOTTE BELL Times-News Writer
JEROME—The South Central Idaho District Board of Health officially came into existence Wednesday afternoon, facing a $10,000 deficit by the end of the year. Of that sum, $8,000 is for pay increases to personnel in the new district. The remaining $4,000 is for operational expenses for different projects. W. L. (Bert) Chancery, Twin Falls, chairman of the board, officially swore in the medical director, Dr. Wayne Carte, and the new members of the board of health. The board agreed to rehire 16 employees, exclusive of the medical director, classification and testing will go through the state personnel commission. Dr. Carte said that for the next six month period it will cost the district close to $6,000 in wages under the new classification designated by the governor's pay increase ruling. They are effective, beginning today. Dr. Carte said that the $4,000 could be absorbed by working on different projects until the money runs out. Then they will have to be discontinued until more money is available, he said. (Continued on F-15)

A&B District study backed

WASHINGTON D.C.—Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, Wednesday told a House Interior subcommittee that the need is urgent for investigation of a potential project to develop 13,688 acres of undeveloped dry lands within the A and B Irrigation District northwest of Rupert. In testimony before the subcommittee on Irrigation and Reclamation, Hansen asked for approval of his bill to authorize a feasibility study for completion of the Mindoko Project. Hansen said the district which irrigates nearly 77,000 acres of land by pumping underground water and diversion of the Snake River, was authorized in 1966, but congressional appropriation committees have ruled this additional development "must be authorized separately. Some preliminary survey work and drilling of drainage wells at the site of the additional lands have been done at the expense of the water users, but the wells are not in use now, Hansen said. He told the committee when the project was built, the use of drainage wells for disposal of waste water was common practice in Idaho. The wells afforded an effective and relatively low-cost way to dispose of irrigation waste water from approximately 50,000 acres in the district, but there is some concern now over the possibility that the drainage system contributes to pollution of the ground waters of Idaho, Hansen said. "This project is urgently needed by the people of the area, not only because of resulting irrigation benefits, but because of the serious drainage problems, the solution of which can be found only in the proposed Mindoko study," Hansen said. The committee

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—Dr. Daniel Ellsberg said today he has given other documents on a Pentagon study of the Vietnam War to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which he considers "too sensitive" to release to the American press. "There were several volumes dealing with negotiations through private channels to end the war," Ellsberg told a late-morning news conference. "I didn't think there was an automatic overriding necessity to give those volumes to the press because the channels haven't yet been used. I didn't want to get into the way of those negotiations but I gave them to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee because I thought it was something they should know," he said.

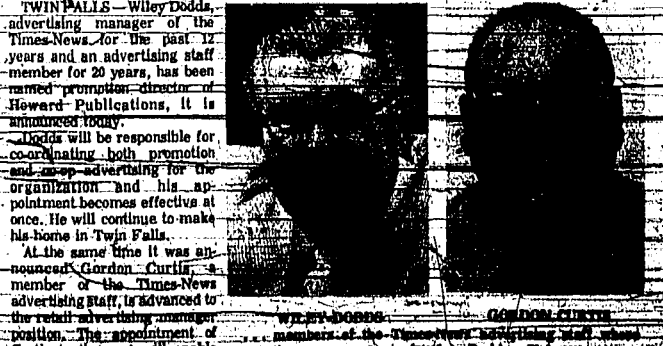

18 year old vote in effect

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Eighteen-year-olds across the country won the right to vote in all elections Wednesday when the Ohio legislature ratified the 28th amendment to the U.S. constitution. Ohio was the 38th state to ratify the amendment, the three-fourths of the state legislatures required to amend the constitution. The Ohio action came three months and seven days after Congress proposed the amendment on March 29, 1969. The amendment was passed for passage of a constitutional amendment. Dodds, Curtis to new advertising positions

TWIN FALLS—Wiley Dodds, advertising manager of the Times-News for the past 12 years and an advertising staff member for 20 years, has been named promotion director of Howard Publications. It is announced today. Dodds will be responsible for coordinating both promotion and co-op advertising for the organization and his appointment becomes effective at once. He will continue to make his home in Twin Falls. At the same time it was announced Gordon Curtis, a member of the Times-News advertising staff, is advanced to the retail advertising manager position. The appointment of Curtis to the post will enable Dodds to devote more time to his new duties. Dodds joined the Times-News advertising staff the first time in the late 1950's. He was advertising manager of the Caldwell News-Tribune for four years and then returned to the Times-News for two years before entering service with the Idaho State Army. After two years in the service he was in the retail business until 1964 at which time he returned to the Times-News. Dodds is a member of the Association

McNamara reported on civilian deaths in '67

Seen...

By United Press International
Former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara told President Lyndon B. Johnson in mid-1967 that the U.S. bombs were "killing" or seriously injuring 1,000 civilians a week in North Vietnam, according to the Pentagon's secret study of the war.

McNamara's statement was part of a memorandum he delivered to Johnson May 19 from which the study, portions of which were acquired by UPI, quoted extensively. In it the defense secretary without success urged Johnson to cut back the bombing of North Vietnam.

To McNamara the cost in U.S. lives—one pilot killed for every 40 sorties—and in domestic and world opinion was not justified by the limited effect of the bombing on North Vietnam's will to fight or the flow of Communist supplies to the south, the report said.

Instead, he favored restricting the bombing to interdiction of supply trails in the relatively unpopulated southern panhandle of North Vietnam.

There may be a limit beyond which many Americans and much of the world will not permit the United States to go," his memorandum said.

"The picture of the world's greatest superpower killing off seriously injuring 1,000 non-combatants a week, while trying to pound a tiny backward nation into submission on an issue whose merits are hotly disputed, is not a pretty one."

There exists no record of Johnson's specific reaction to McNamara's proposal, the unidentified writer of the study said. But he said from

Johnson's failure to adopt its policies, the secretary of defense apparently got "a cool Presidential reaction."

The New York Times and The Washington Post today resumed publication of material from the Pentagon papers after defeating in the Supreme Court a government attempt to prevent further revelations.

The Times said President John F. Kennedy took the first step toward major U.S. involvement in Vietnam, transforming America's Vietnam involvement from the "limited risk gamble" of the Eisenhower administration to a "broad commitment."

While Kennedy resisted pressures to put U.S. ground combat troops in Vietnam, the Times said, he took a series of actions that expanded American military and political involvement in Vietnam significantly.

President Lyndon B. Johnson came into office with as had a situation as Kennedy inherited from Eisenhower, the Times said.

The Washington Post said the Kennedy and Johnson administrations in 1963 and 1964 (called French President Charles de Gaulle and "pro-French elements" in Saigon were laying the basis for "neutralizing" South Vietnam, paving the way for a Communist takeover.

The basis of American concern, the Post said, was an Aug. 29, 1963, de Gaulle statement saying the Vietnamese should be left alone to "choose the means" of deciding their own destiny.

The Post said administration suspicions increased when de Gaulle's neutralization statement was followed by reports from Saigon of possible dealings between high South Vietnamese military and civilian officials and their counterparts in Hanoi.

The Christian Science Monitor reported today the United States saw the emptiness of French colonial policies in Indochina following World War II but decided not to intervene because it needed French support against Soviet expansion in Europe. The Monitor, quoting Pentagon documents, said American policies toward Indochina during 1945-50 were marked by "indecision" and "an undertone of indifference."

The Boston Globe said today the report showed Kennedy asked for plans on military incursions into Laos and Cambodia in 1961 and the Joint Chiefs of Staff constantly pressured Kennedy and Johnson to have the plans put into effect. They refused, but the plans will see changes were put into effect in May, 1970, with President Nixon's permission.

The McNamara memorandum, contained in portions of the war study made public Wednesday by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, was written during the depths of the defense secretary's despair over the Vietnam situation.

It was part of a bitter struggle waged for seven months between military hawks seeking a wider war, and doves, led by McNamara, in top government circles who wanted to slow the war down and reassess U.S. goals.

In his memorandum McNamara cited and rejected the desires of military top brass to increase U.S. troop levels by at least 200,000 men, to intensify the bombing campaign, to invade North Vietnam and to mine Haiphong Harbor, the report said.

On June 17, it said Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker in Saigon told Secretary of State Dean Rusk in an "eyes only" cable that the bombing, "though extremely important, has neither interdicted infiltration nor broken the will of the NVN and it is doubtful that it can accomplish either." It was his first major pronouncement on the subject, the report said.

Johnson ruled on July 20 to keep the bombing at approximately its existing levels, a decision which the writer of the study said merely postponed the issue.

"For the moment at least neither the hawks nor the doves had won their case," said the writer. "As for the President, he would not move decisively until the next year, when outside events were heavily forcing his hand and a new secretary of defense had entered the debate."

Gravel causes outrage but no censure slated

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Some of Sen. Mike Gravel's Democratic colleagues are irritated and even outraged at him, but they scoff at Republican talk that he ought to be censured "for disclosing the contents of the once-secret Pentagon papers."

The Democrats say Gravel may have acted indiscreetly, but not illegally, when he called a rump session of his Senate public works subcommittee on buildings and grounds and read the documents into the public record for 3½ hours Tuesday night and Wednesday morning.

Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Republican Whip Robert T. Griffin of Michigan, said the Democratic majority in the Senate should decide whether Gravel had violated any Senate rules, an offense that could subject him to censure, the Senate's official reprint.

Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Gravel "has violated the law and therefore is censurable."

Gravel himself, tired, tense and emotional, stayed away from the Senate Wednesday for the first time in eight weeks. During that period he had managed to stall action of a bill extending the draft law long enough to allow the old law to expire last night.

Arizona fire expected to be contained today

PECOS, N. M. (UPI)—A spokesman for the national forest service says professional firefighters should contain the fire in the next Apache Indian reservation in Arizona today and the blaze in the Santa Fe National Forest of New Mexico by Friday.

The spokesman said the damage estimates caused by the fires will be made once they are extinguished.

"More than 50,000 acres in the two states have been burned," the spokesman said Wednesday. "Specific figures will be worked out on costs when the fires are mopped up. Right now we are talking in the millions."

The forest service spokesman said the 12,000-acre fire in the Santa Fe National Forest in New Mexico was "80 per cent contained" and "should be controlled by Friday morning."

He said the 34,000-acre fire on the East Apache Indian reservation should be controlled today.

Ladd S. Gordon of the New Mexico Game and Fish Department said the New Mexico fire killed only small game, deer and other bigger animals fled ahead of the flames. He said, however, the destruction of forage would ruin the area for wildlife for years.

"Out of 31 major forest fires in the two-state area in the last two weeks, 20 are controlled or contained," Frank Carroll of the Forest Service said. "And 245 smaller fires caused by lightning have been controlled despite the most prolonged drought and the worst fire-danger conditions of the century."

"We have been fighting fires almost continuously for 15 months in the national forests," Carroll said.

Tom Smiler of the forest service said: "We had higher humidity, less wind, cooler temperatures and even some light rain" in the Santa Fe National Forest which slowed the fire and made working conditions better for the firefighting crews.

Filer has new music group

FILER—The First Baptist Church, Filer, is sponsoring a new musical organization "The Remnant Singers," according to Rev. Roy Watson, pastor.

The singing group is open to all Filer youth and will meet at 8:30 p.m. each Thursday at the First Baptist Church. The name is taken from the remnant of the Bible and will be a remnant from each of the churches, who pointed out the Watson, who pointed out the group will not be just a singing club but will be an entirely new musical organization for junior high through college age students in the Filer area and surrounding community.

Included in the Remnant Singers will be a chorus, ensembles, folk groups, boys and girls groups, quartets, trios, duets, soloists, and instrumentalists. The singers will be expected to wear stylish uniforms, advertise, travel, and always perform well, stated the minister. They will be available to perform for local civic clubs, organizations and churches.

Styles of music to be sung will vary from folk to jazz and from rock to standard, with all of it to be classified "Christian music with a beat."

Korean president begins third term

SEOUL (UPI)—President Park Chung Hee was inaugurated today to a third term as president of South Korea in a brief, austere ceremony. He pledged his administration to peaceful reunification of the nation.

Among the 170 dignitaries from 39 countries on hand for the ceremony was Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who headed the American delegation. Agnew, as all other visiting dignitaries in a customary Agnew sat in a fifth-row seat next to Japanese Prime Minister and Mrs. Eisaku Sato.

Agnew is on a 10-nation tour that will keep him away from the United States for a month. He remains in South Korea until Sunday, when he will go to Singapore.

In muggy weather and under rain-laden skies, Park took the path of office and in his inaugural address said "let us take this opportunity to reaffirm to the entire world our firm determination to reunify our

96 volunteer for drug care

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. Navy said Wednesday that 96 of the 11,000 sailors stationed in Vietnam turned themselves in for treatment under a 30-day drug amnesty program.

Navy spokesmen said the program will be extended indefinitely.

Eighty-two of the 96 who turned themselves in were heroin addicts, spokesmen said.

Bank law ruled invalid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—A federal law prohibiting national banks from making loans in connection with political elections was ruled unconstitutional Wednesday by U.S. District Court Judge Joseph P. Kinneary.

In his ruling, Kinneary dismissed indictments brought by the government against the First National Bank of Cincinnati and the First Knox National Bank of Mount Vernon, Ohio.

Similar indictments against the Bellefontaine National Bank, Bellefontaine, Ohio, and the Ohio National Bank of Columbus, were not acted upon Wednesday, and were still pending.

First National of Cincinnati was charged with making loans of $60,000 to committees representing Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan when he ran for the U.S. Senate in 1969 and as a gubernatorial candidate in 1970.

The Mount Vernon bank was indicted for making a $2,000 loan to the Knox County Republican Finance Committee.

CIA chief ends talks

TEL AVIV (UPI)—U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) Director Richard C. Helms slipped out of Israel today as quietly as he had arrived, after three days of talks with Israeli leaders.

Helms and with his aides left aboard the U.S. government Boeing 737 jetliner that had brought them here Monday.

News of what was to have been Helms' secret visit to Israel leaked out Tuesday night. Wednesday, the foreign ministry confirmed he was here to meet with Prime Minister Abba Eban and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan.

Helms is to visit Israel and Turkey next on his fact-finding mission for President Nixon.

Research center aide honored by engineers

KIMBERLY Marvin E. Jensen, Twin Falls, director of the Snake River Conservation Research Center here, was one of 12 agricultural engineers selected for honor by the American Society of Agriculture Engineers to receive the honorary fellow grade during an awards banquet Wednesday night in Pullman, Wash.

The banquet highlighted the annual meeting of the ASAE held on the campus of Washington State University in Pullman.

Jensen was recognized for his outstanding work in evapotranspiration and prediction of crop water requirements for irrigation purposes. He has been continuously associated with the U.S. Department of Agriculture since 1955 and is director of the Kimberly center, Idaho, and Water Management research investigations leader for the northwest branch of the Soil and Water Conservation Research Division, Agricultural Research Service.

In recognizing the work of Jensen, the ASAE officials said the theories and procedures he has developed in his field are used worldwide. The U.S.

Bureau of Reclamation is employing his findings in a five-year water use study and as the basis for estimating water requirements for new projects in the United States and abroad.

His theories and procedures, the association officials said are also used in a computerized approach to irrigation scheduling. Dr. Jensen was recently requested to serve on an advisory panel on the problem of "Tropical Soils and Water Management" in developing countries by the Agency for International Development, Department of State.

He is the recipient of the Walter L. Huber Civil Engineering Research prize presented by the American Society of Civil Engineers. He is the author or co-author of some 60 publications in scientific journals, or as chapters in technical books and college textbooks.

Dr. Jensen has been a member of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers since 1952. He was chairman of the Evapotranspiration Committee from 1966 to 1969 and chairman of the Hydrology Group since 1970. He received his B.S. and M.S.

Councilmen slate discussion time

TWIN FALLS—Problems of city residents or questions about pending projects and city governmental issues will be aired Saturday morning in an informal session in the Twin Falls City Hall with Councilman Winston Jones in charge.

This is the second such Saturday meeting in which the city is inviting any and all residents to drop by the city hall between 9 a.m. and noon for informal discussions on subjects of their own choosing.

City Manager Jean Millar said the first such meeting last Saturday was conducted by Councilman Paul Ostyn and about ten residents came in to discuss irrigation water use, local improvement district formation on Falls Avenue

East, and other topics. Millar said as long as the public wishes to utilize the Saturday morning information sessions they will be continued with council members alternating as discussion leaders and resource officials.

Student walking on Oregon trail

By BONNIE JONES
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS—Takaishi Okada, a young Japanese college student, has developed a taste for western American history and a true "pioneer spirit" since May 1 when he left Kansas City, Mo., to walk the old Oregon Trail to Portland, Takashi, who said he had walked most of the historic trails of Japan, decided to widen his scope this year and try a trail in America. He selected the Oregon Trail as it was the one he had heard the most about. He started his walk at 7 a.m. May 1, expecting to be in Portland in August.

The student, who studies agriculture in his own country, said he was a bit surprised and has had to alter his schedule as a result of the Oregon Trail geography. Long stretches of desert land between the cities have created a genuine "pioneer spirit" in the visitor, he said.

In Japan, he said, towns are close together and motels are inexpensive, so he would walk during the day and rent accommodations each night. "Here towns are far apart and many times there are none in sight by night time," he said. Although his command of the English language is not the best, he carries a letter of introduction explaining his plan. In each town of major size, he presents the letter to the mayor or other city officials. With him, Okada, carries a long and elaborate scroll which each mayor signs.

Mayor Frank Feldman signed the scroll Tuesday morning, extending a welcome to the young hiker and wishing him well on the remainder of the trip.

Okada says he will return to Japan next year. He plans to visit Canada and possibly Europe to hike famed trails of those countries.

He left Twin Falls at noon Tuesday, going west with stops planned in the Hagerman

JAPANESE STUDENT, Takaishi Okada, with enough interest in western America history to hike the Old Oregon trail from Kansas City to Portland, pauses beside Rock Creek west of Twin Falls where pioneers probably camped. The creek, now a dark brown color, once furnished clear, cool water to pioneer travelers.

Valley and Glens Ferry area where he hoped to meet with Frank Clarke, an authority on the actual route of the Old Oregon Trail. He said he might stay overnight in the new Three Island Park which marks the historic Snake River Crossing of the old trail.

Young Takaishi pays his own expenses on his trip, he says. His parents operate a restaurant in his home town of Kumagaya, Saitama, Japan. Takaishi said he has walked all of the way from Kansas City, but when he reaches The Dalles, Ore., he may go down the Columbia River by boat for a change of pace to conclude his journey.

NEW YORK — Key regular leaders of the state Democratic party, both from New York City and upstate, convened secretly over breakfast at the New York Democratic Club on Madison Avenue to underline two unsurprising but important truths about 1972 Presidential politics in this state.

Truth No. 1: The regular leaders, overwhelmingly in favor of Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, by their own admission will be wholly unable to control selection of this state's big delegation to the 1972 Democratic national convention.

Truth No. 2: The regulars have no interest whatever in any Presidential campaign by Mayor John V. Lindsay or New York, whose long-awaited conversion from nominal Republican to active Democrat is now expected in July.

That breakfast meeting reinforced the mood of the night before at a $150-a-plate Democratic committee fund-raiser in the Americana Hotel where reformers, blacks, and young people were in short supply. Those present, the old guard of the party, made clear they prefer Muskie. But after being bloodied by the party's left so often, they doubt their ability to influence next year's wild and woolly Democratic primary.

So, to prevent yet another internal bloodbath, chairman Pat Cunningham of the Bronx put forth a modest proposal at the breakfast: Why not urge all Presidential candidates not to put up individual slates of delegates (to be elected by districts in next year's primary) but instead get them to accept "unity" slates selected by party leaders.

Two Good Steps

We go along with Senator Frank Church in the matter of two recent proposals — one having to do with income supplements proposed to end poverty among the elderly and the other against adoption of a proposed elaborate new system involving the Golden Eagle Passport that admits holders to forest and park areas.

This new approach is needed, Senator Church said, if we are to assure a life of dignity and self-respect for the elderly of the United States. His plan would avoid both the stigma and surveillance attached to welfare under Old Age Assistance. Concerning the Golden Eagle Passport, he is critical of the Interior Department plan to set up a new system of admission fees, special use fees and supplementary fees for recreation on public lands. He described it as "a bureaucrat's dream and a citizen's nightmare."

ART BUCHWALD

Moneyless

It has been one of the wildest predictions for years — a checkless, cashless society. Under such an arrangement, a man would never see a pay check or pay a bill. It would all be handled for him by a banking colossus to dwarf anything yet realized.

More than 22 billion checks are written annually now, and this number will double by 1980 unless something is done, according to board estimates. Each check must be handled an average of 10 times before it is cleared. One point should be resolved at the start: If the computer makes a $5 billion error in a depositor's account, will his frantic protests result in a flood of demands that he bring in the cash immediately, or else?

Sad Bartender

WASHINGTON — The New York Times reported that at Dartmouth's 201st commencement, David Levy of New York City, the highest ranking graduate, gave an address full of despair. Denying he got anything out of his four years of education, Mr. Levy said, "Take pity on me, those of you who can justify the air you breathe. Send me letters and tell me why life is worth living. Rich parents, write and tell me money makes your life worthwhile. Dartmouth alumni, tell me how the Dartmouth experience has given value to your life."

Now I know you don't have much use for the credit system, but the guy who owns the bar does, and if you're run or despair the word is going to get around. "Dolinsky's Bar & Grill has a new bartender, and he sees no reason to justify our existence." Do you know what a rumor like that can do to the sale of rye & gingerale? What I'm trying to tell you, Dave, is that if you're thinking of becoming a bartender, you're going to have to change your thinking on life. Suppose some guy comes in who has just had a fight with his wife and he's seeking consolation. What do you think he's going to say if you start off the conversation with, "Take pity on me, those of you who can justify the air you breathe?"

"Step outside and I'll punch you right in the nose." Bartending is not as you see it. It's mental work. A good bartender has to be a chemist, a psychologist, a social worker, an economist and an expert on every facet of life. The right word can send a customer happily home to his loved ones. The wrong word could make him stagger out in the street and lie down in front of a bus. Dave, before you take this major step, please think about it carefully. It's one thing to believe that life isn't worth living, but it's another thing to bring down the whole neighborhood with you. Besides, you're never going to make any tips if you keep talking the way you do. Cheers, A.B.

MR. SPECTATOR

Good Moves Continue

The Sawtooth National Forest advisory board should get something accomplished from now on simply because talent has been added. And the talent is in the person of Bonnie Baird Jones, who is now a member of that high class group. She's the second woman member of the board. The appointment of Mrs. Jones to the board is a continued step in the right direction and the selection of Mrs. Jones in particular is a good one. She is knowledgeable on things of the forest and the like because she's an outdoorswoman at heart. She's a staff writer for the Times-News. She's one of the best. And having served on that board for a few years, Mr. Spectator, just can't help but think that the addition of another gal thereon might just wake up one or two of the duds now counted as members. So praise to the "lib" movement.

didn't do anything — and after the police left the booms continued. While the police were there they could hardly find the place, what with the thick smoke hanging around as a result of the explosions. So possibly that's the trouble. The kids of the parents who think they are above the law are doing the law breaking. To get the explosives into Twin Falls they have to be shipped in or brought in from outside the state. Either is illegal. So next time you hear an explosion of fireworks, remember what we told you! TIME SPEEDS ON Getting on toward autumn now and soon it will be winter again. Then we can hang on and wait for spring and summer of 1972. But for 1971 it didn't take long to spend the summer, did it?

ANDREW TULLY

Lost Options

WASHINGTON — For better or for worse — as administration people put it — publication of the top-secret so-called McNamara Papers on the Vietnam War signals the end of the "United States" military adventure in Indochina. There can be no more Cambodia, no more incursions into Laos. Indeed, President Nixon risks making his position untenable should he authorize or permit any major offensive by American troops now on the scene. The withdrawal of troops must proceed at least on a schedule, if not at a more rapid rate. In short, with the war still raging, Nixon has lost his options. Put another way, he has only one course left: Get out of Indochina. The national outcry over the revelations in the McNamara Papers and its reflection in the strengthening of antiwar forces in Congress have informed the administration in plain, even violent, language that the articulate and influential segment of the populace will not stand still for any shilly-shallying in yanking out U. S. troops and winding up 10 years of the most divisive war in American history. It matters not what action the House takes on the Senate's passage of the Mansfield amendment making it national policy to withdraw all U.S. military forces from Indochina within nine months of final enactment, provided arrangements were made for release of American prisoners by North Vietnam. The Senate has spoken, and for the first time a majority on Capitol Hill — 57 to 42 — has passed judgment on the war. Politically, Richard Nixon will ignore this vote at his peril. Meanwhile, both Senate and House have created an atmosphere which will make impossible any administration attempts to equivocate. Virtually every legislative committee with any involvement in military and foreign affairs is poised to investigate the significance of the documents first leaked to The New York Times. The temptation is strong to suggest that all this means the Communist enemy has won that part of the war involving the U.S. presence. From here in, Hanoi need only sit back and wait for developments. Hanoi can negotiate the prisoner-of-war issue or not, as it chooses. Its canny politicians are comfortable with the knowledge that, in effect, they can dictate the terms for the American withdrawal.

Dear Dr. Thosteson — Exactly what an infant inherits from its parents? Is it only physical things, like coloring, height, bone structure, etc., or can it inherit a bad disposition, irritation, temper? I have a relative who constantly flares up, becomes irritated in an exaggerated way over the most trivial things. Her family says she is not responsible because she inherited her temper from her father. Yet the father has never had a bad disposition, and is well liked by everybody. Poor papa — taking the rap (or his daughter's stinky disposition). Inheritance is governed by the genes contained into the 46 intricate chromosomes, which determine what we will start with. Remember the beautiful actress who thought George Bernard Shaw ought to father a child for her? "If the child had my looks and your brains," she said, "wouldn't it be wonderful?" And G.B.S. replied, of course: "But suppose it had my looks and your brains?" It isn't easy to predict how two sets of complementary genes will fit together. Body and facial features are the most obvious: skins that sunburn or don't, big noses or little, short legs or long. Less visible characteristics can include such things as tendencies to develop diabetes, cancer, allergies, and a host of others. But these are often influenced also by subsequent environment; diabetes comes on sooner and more furiously if the person gets fat. There are plenty of other examples. There can be enzyme defects, Mongolian blindness, eye defects, basic quickness of mind, strong biceps, good looks can be inherited, too.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Disposition

But the way we react with our basic strengths and weaknesses is something else again. Temper, irritable behavior, selfishness, and so on are not inherited. (Neither are kindness, courtesy, friendliness.) These are characteristics which we develop, subject as well to our environment. As also alcoholism, or obesity (almost always). Sometimes a kind, hard-working father may have a wastrel son. Sometimes the son of a drunkard, having seen what booze can do, grows up to be a teetotaler. That's a matter of how he reacts to environment. But no, it doesn't make sense to blame an ungodly temper on heredity. And especially so when an ornery daughter has a dad whose disposition wasn't like that. She ought to do a little self-analysis. Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please comment on the unhealthy, germ-spreading custom of blowing out candles on birthday cakes. This would seem to be a prime spreader of respiratory diseases. Children are so often involved in this sort of thing — A. P. I think you're reaching a long way to find something to worry about. The common respiratory viruses just don't survive very long unless they find a new host. That is, a new person to infect. If somebody has a bad cold at a birthday party, he'll probably do all the damage possible, in spreading his disease, long before it's time to blow out the candles. Note to E. J.: No, indomethacin is not one of the corticosteroids, anti-inflammatories. And yes, it is being used with success for a large number of arthritis patients, although some do not tolerate it well.

BERRY'S WORLD

THAT TIME AGAIN

Now we begin to hear the bang of firecrackers around the old town. Why? We have a law that you cannot have possession of or discharge firecrackers within the city limits of Twin Falls. Then why? Must be that the parents just don't give a hang for law and are determined to bring up the kids the same way. For instance, we recall a year or two ago a local professional man — a doctor — whose teenage children fired round after round of big firecrackers in their backyard night after night. The whole neighborhood was aroused. The police investigated — but

T.F. burning laws need no changing

TWIN FALLS — No change in the city regulations on burning of paper and paper products has been made, City Manager Jean Milar advised citizens of Twin Falls today.

He said new state burning and air pollution control measures which had been expected to be far more restrictive than the present city regulations have not materialized. He said the state's model ordinance was found to permit all present city burning regulations and as a result the city has made no changes in regulations already in effect.

It is unlawful to burn any items other than paper and paper products within the city limits, however, he warned. Burning hours must also be observed, he said.

Paper and paper products may be disposed of by burning and during the hours of 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Mondays through Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

Milar said persons burning after hours or burning garbage, grass cuttings and other such material which should be disposed of through garbage collection, will face action by the police and fire departments.

Sanitation Department Superintendent Joe Koon said residents of Twin Falls have been sent small yellow folders by mail describing city regulations on handling of trash and garbage and landfill operation and fees.

Those who may not have received the information pamphlets may obtain one from city hall.

Idaho gets aid for safety plan

WASHINGTON — Congressional authority for setting and enforcing occupational safety and health standards under the act.

After the initial approval, the state plan must prove to be at least as effective as the federal safety and health program in actual operation before the federal government will relinquish enforcement authority.

Hansen was a sponsor of legislation last year to promote health and safety in the building trades and construction industry.

The grant represents about 90 per cent of the total cost of developing the state plan, which may, after it proves itself in actual operation, lead to full

Employee injured in fall

TWIN FALLS — C. G. Moore, 53, Orofino, was listed in good condition today at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital when he was being treated for injuries suffered in a fall while pruning trees.

City police reported the man was employed by the Valley Tree Service Co., and was working near the intersection of Blue Lakes Boulevard and 8th Avenue East when he fell from a fork lift on the front of a tractor while trimming trees.

Moore was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital by ambulance and was reportedly suffering possible neck injuries.

CSI chief asks for state funding

BOISE — A joint fiscal proposal from the College of Southern Idaho, Twin Falls, and North Idaho Junior College, Coeur d'Alene, was presented at the close of the first day of the Idaho Board of Education's meeting in Boise.

In a joint presentation, Dr. James L. Taylor, president of CSI, said the two junior colleges called for a state funding level to the two schools of about 50 per cent instead of the present 35 per cent.

Taylor said the two schools will request $1,552,687 at the 50 per cent funding level, from the state legislature just for academic programs.

Although the two schools are not under control of the state board, the budget requests will be presented at the next session of the legislature.

Dr. Taylor said "this would bring junior college state aid to the level presently being provided elementary and secondary schools."

"The two junior colleges," he said, "are educating 14 per cent of all Idaho college students. It is projected it will cost $1,225 to educate a full-time equivalent nondenial student in 1972-73."

The schools also are requesting a total of $2,703 million for construction. CSI is asking $2.1 million for a vocational education building and NJC is asking $603,000 to complete a science building.

Boise State College requested a 48.2 total budget increase over its 1972 fiscal appropriation. Dr. John Barnes, BSC president, requested the school be given $10,702,288 from the general fund operating budget instead of the $7,321,208 allotted. Dr. Barnes also asked for an 18.6 per cent increase in salary funding, from $5,405,209 to $7,517,542.

Board chairman Joseph McCollum, Twin Falls, said it is uncertain whether the board will act on any of the budget requests before the end of the current meeting or only accept them. He said all institutions had been instructed to submit budget requests within a formula outlined by the Office of Higher Education.

Earlier in the day Lewis Clark State College had requested a 38.9 per cent general fund increase over its fiscal 1972 budget. McCollum said he would support stronger financial backing for the institution which he said has been operating on a "baro-bono" budget for several years. He described as critical the need for new student programs and supporting services.

The Office of Higher Education outlined a total operating budget for fiscal year 1973 of $805,103, and asked $373,130 of the state money.

Texan heads Marine office

TWIN FALLS — Sgt. Wayne Fisher of the U.S. Marine Corps Recruiting Service is now in charge of a recruiting office at 134 2nd St. E., Twin Falls, with recruiting services for the Marine Corps available from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Sgt. Fisher is a native of Texas having grown up on a ranch in the Brownwood area. He attended school in May, Texas, and graduated from high school there.

While in high school, he was active in sports including FFA. He also participated in the National High School Rodeo in Houston in 1968.

Sgt. Fisher also attended Howard Payne College for one year prior to enlisting in October, 1960 in the U.S. Marine Corps. He is married to the former Joyce Cole, Bangs, Texas, and they have two daughters.

A veteran of 10 years in the Marine Corps, he has completed

15 months in Vietnam and for the past two years has been engaged in recruiting in Salt Lake City. While there he was active in the Salt Lake County Mounted Sheriff's posse. He is an avid hunter, fisherman and a swimming and water safety instructor.

He will be joined in the new recruiting office here in July by Sgt. Don Collier. This is the first Marine recruiting office for Twin Falls with the nearest one previously the Boise office.

T.F. man heads telephone pioneers

TWIN FALLS — Earl Anderson, Twin Falls, was installed as president of the Magic Valley Club of the Telephone Pioneers of America at a meeting at the Downtown Hotel in Boise. It was announced here Wednesday.

Other officers installed at the Boise meeting included Ted Hartwell, Sawtooth Council vice president; Gordon Bourner, Magic Valley vice president; Evelyn Haney, secretary; treasurer of the Magic Valley club; Ada Huston, president; and Elvora Bradley secretary.

Taylor, Bill Hensen, Bob Evans and Russ Gage. All officers and executive board members named are from Twin Falls.

The Telephone Pioneers of America has a membership made up of personnel with 21 or more years of service or employees who have retired. It receives the full backing of the telephone company.

In Twin Falls members have participated in many community projects including donated work in connection with Harbor House, the talking machines used by the blind and convalescent home projects.

The governor's address followed the fifth annual Parade in America. The rally also included singing of hymns and patriotic songs and public prayers.

Highway department 'falling behind'

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Highway Board chairman said Wednesday the highway department is "falling behind" $7 million a year in its construction program.

Chairman Howard Thomason said it was the legislature's duty to impose the revenues to finance highway needs after an interim legislative committee had asked the board to "suggest" the additional revenues needed to catch up with the department's road construction needs.

Following discussion of what Thomason characterized as the "terrible dilemma" highway construction program because of lack of funds, the interim house senate transportation committee agreed department personnel could develop data on "tax alternates," including increased motor vehicle registration fees.

The 1971 legislature had diverted one per cent of the state's gasoline tax to the cities. Ed Equals, planning and survey manager, said the loss of the one cent, plus other legislative allocations of highway user revenues, reduced state highway funds by $3.5 million.

He said the losses could climb to $14 million next fiscal year taking all the losses into consideration.

Agreement reached on land

BOISE (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy said a cooperative agreement has been reached by a legislative committee and the State Land Board for the selection of 40,000 acres of in-lieu lands.

The land is "owed to the state of Idaho from the federal government" and Murphy said the committee has several sites in mind and will meet with representatives of the Department of Interior and the Bureau of Land Management to discuss them.

Murphy said the agreement reached Wednesday provides that the State Land Board will provide the expertise and the legislative committee the money to produce a study of the possible land selections.

Murphy said the committee will also study the "long festering" problem of the federal government's reservation of phosphate rights on lands selected by the state prior to 1920.

Discipline demanded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Outraged Republicans demanded Wednesday that the Democrats discipline Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, for disclosing the secret Pentagon papers on Vietnam in apparent violation of the Senate rules.

Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., went farther than any of his colleagues, declaring that Gravel "has violated the law" and, therefore, "is censurable." Republican leader Hugh Scott pointedly avoided calling for censure, but he said it was up to the Senate's Democratic majority to investigate whether Gravel had violated the Senate's rules. Such violations are usually punished by a resolution of censure.

Gravel, 41, a handsome freshman with a flair for the dramatic, boycotted the Senate for the first time in eight weeks and secluded himself in his home in suburban Maryland. For this, thus being abandoned his intention to read the remaining documents in his possession on the Senate floor and into the public record, accessible to anyone. Gravel tried to do that Tuesday night, but floundered on a parliamentary maneuver which permitted Senate Republican whip Robert P. Griffin to force him into a three-and-a-half hour silence while a clerk monotonously called the roll. Gravel then gave up his attempt to deliver a 30-hour nonstop speech in which he intended to read the documents into the record, but he called a rump session of the one Senate subcommittee he chairs, the Public Works subcommittee on Buildings and Grounds.

In a hoarse voice, he emotionally read from the documents for nearly three hours until 1:10 a.m. EDT Wednesday, when he broke down in tears and had to stop. He started crying after reading this paragraph from a speech he had intended to deliver in the Senate:

"The greatest representative democracy the world has ever known, the nation of Washington and Jefferson and Lincoln, has had its nose rubbed in the swamp by petty war lords, jealous Vietnamese generals, black marketeers and grand scale dope pushers. We have been the victims."

By calling a rump session of the subcommittee, Gravel sought to wrap himself and the documents he possessed — about half of the entire 47-volume study — in congressional immunity and to make the documents part of the public record.

Nonetheless, Scott told reporters that Gravel had "apparently" violated Senate rule 36, which provides: "All confidential communications made by the President of the United States to the Senate shall be by the senators and the officers of the Senate kept secret..."

Gravel's aides scoffed at Scott's contention. They argued Gravel had not violated the rule because he had obtained the documents independently.

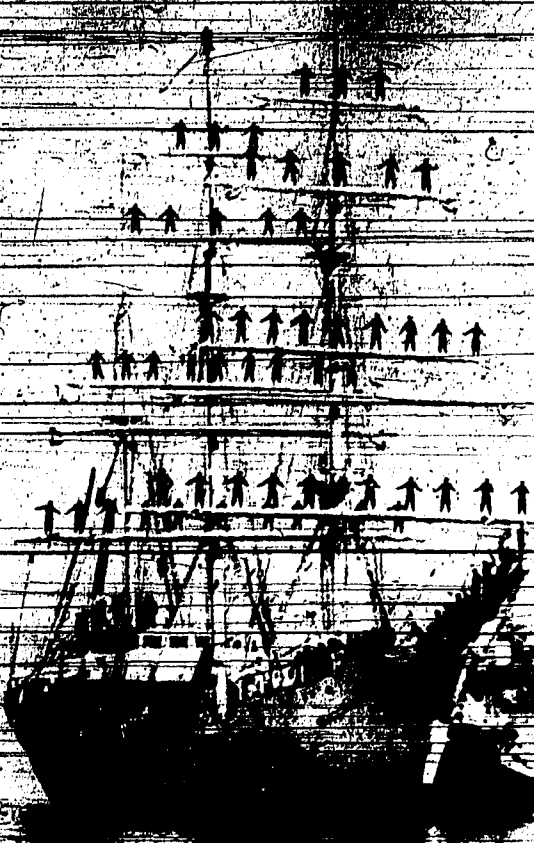

Gravel refused to say how he got them but an aide to Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said they came from Daniel Ellsberg through a "middleman," Ellsberg, a former Pentagon official, has been charged with theft of government property.

Gravel himself acknowledged that "I run the risk of being expelled" from the Senate for what he had done, but so drastic a move in a body which cherishes its members' independence seemed unlikely.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., chairman of the full Public Works Committee, publicly said "I can only regret he called a meeting of a public works subcommittee without notifying me." Privately, Randolph was said to be fuming.

Eddie Adams sets plan for cosmetics venture

HOLLYWOOD. (UPI) — Eddie Adams, a male feminine, has been selling cigars on television since 1959.

Now she's going into the cosmetics business. She joins a select group: Zsa Zsa Gabor, Polly Bergen and Dina Merrill. All have gone into the lotion and lipstick dodge with varying degrees of success.

In addition to being an actress, singer and nightclub performer, Eddie has become an authoritative businesswoman. When her husband, Ernie Kovacs, died nine years ago he left debts rivaling those of the national budget. Jack Lemmon, Frank Sinatra and other friends called to help her out. Eddie-to help her out.

The plucky little blonde demurred set about to balance the ledger. She is now more than economically sound. Eddie's rich. She hopes to retire in a few years and devote herself to her youngsters.

"I've read that in an economic recession — such as we're having now — cosmetics is a 'very good business,'" Eddie said. "People want to feel better and look better."

"And it's not too expensive for a girl to perk herself up with the application of good makeup."

Thus Eddie Adams Cosmetics was born. Unlike most such products, Eddie's line of more than 30 beauty preparations will be sold only in the home with ladies holding parties similar to the tupperware approach.

Actually, Eddie was sought out by the cosmetics manufacturers after testing public reaction to Hollywood and New York celebrities. They fed the data into a computer and Eddie topped all the others. "Maybe my chain of beauty parlors had something to do with it," Eddie suggested. "My salons are really beauty on a budget. A woman doesn't need an appointment, and most of the salons are located in shopping centers and malls.

There are 200 Eddie Adams Cut and Curl Salons in 40 states and Canada.

"These business activities are all part of my plan to take life easy some day," Eddie said. Beauty salons, cigars, cosmetics, eight weeks in Las Vegas and my Mardie Company for summer stock are sort of public things. I have real estate and other investments, too."

U of I library plans to microfilm papers

MOSCOW — Do you have a copy of the Idaho newspaper, the Golden Age, volume one, issue one, tucked away in an old trunk in your attic?

Charles A. Webbert, head of the University of Idaho's Department of Special Collections and Archives, would be highly surprised. Only eight copies of this newspaper, the first ever published in the state, are known to exist today.

One copy of the first edition, published at Lewiston on Saturday, Aug. 2, 1862, in what was then Washington Territory, is now held in the library's special collections.

The library is presently cooperating with the Idaho State Library and the Idaho State Historical Society, both at Boise, in a project to microfilm old papers, especially those that are rare or in poor condition. Once microfilming is complete, the originals are returned to the university but film copies become available to libraries all over the state. Money for microfilming comes from a federal library assistance grant.

"Newspapers are an important record of current history and are considered primary resource material by researchers," Webbert said. "Microfilming costs approximately five cents a frame which usually includes two newspaper pages. Once completed, a full year of the 'Wood River Times' (former 'Hayley Daily Paper'), for example, can be placed in a box three by three by two inches. Many of the large newspapers in the state are now putting their own files on film.

"We're most concerned with getting the older issues — printed before 1900 — onto film," Webbert said. He added that the library wants issues of old papers that people may have stored away in their attics or elsewhere.

Newspapers in Idaho have come and gone, as mining towns boomed and died and as politics changed. There was a paper called 'Horseshoe Nail' at Horseshoe Bend in 1904 but no libraries have copies today; the paper shut down but no one is sure when.

Have you seen copies of the Coeur d'Alene 'Barbarian' (1891-93)? Or copies of the Shoshone 'Rustler' (April-August 1883), the Roxburg 'Knituck Bugle' (June 1890-7), the Moscow 'Argus' (1878-70), the Green Creek 'Voice from the Wilderness' (1906-7) or the Boise 'Hornet' (1890-7)? Donating old papers, such as these to the university library, or allowing them to be microfilmed would make a significant contribution to the state's recorded history.

Perhaps you can help solve a mystery. Rafe Gibbs, university editor and historian for many years, had a complete file of Moscow 'Democrats' which he used for a journalism project in 1924 when he was a university student. According to Webbert, no one knows whose file of papers it was or where it has gone. Since 1952, a complete file of all Idaho newspapers has been kept at the library. In 1960, Webbert and Paul Condit, head of acquisitions, published a checklist of serials in the library including newspapers. These efforts, plus the microfilming program aim to ensure that the newspapers of Idaho and their historical record are made available to the students, writers and historians who need them.

Smoke ban rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army surgeon general's office has rejected a proposal which would ban on-the-job smoking by defense personnel.

The office said smoking must remain a matter of personal choice, and that any ban would "create an untenable restriction" on military and civilian employees.

The ban was suggested to the Army surgeon general by Gen. Hal B. Jennings Jr., by an employee at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center. He cited a call for a ban on smoking in public places made by the U.S. surgeon general's office.

The Army surgeon general's office said it agreed that smoking was hazardous to health, but "existing rules and regulations require employee freedom from dictatorship."

Contempt

A HOUSE commerce subcommittee has recommended that CBS president Frank Stanton, shown in 1971 photo, and the CBS network be cited for contempt of Congress for refusing to turn over film sponsored by the group. The vote was 5-0. Stanton refused to give the subcommittee raw film used in producing CBS' controversial television documentary 'Selling of the Pentagon.' (UPI)

Library work day conducted

RICHFIELD — A work day was held at the Richfield Public Library this past week with trustees working for library improvement with Charlene Orr, Twin Falls library representative.

Mrs. Carl Paulson, Mrs. Clifford Dayley, Mrs. Max Behr, and Mrs. Marvin Webb, new board members, were the trustees donating their time for the project with Mrs. Ken Dixon, librarian.

A short business meeting was held in the afternoon with John Lemmon, chairman, in charge. It was noted the new book drop has been donated by Clarence Baldwin, Gooding, former resident.

Seven prints of original paintings are now on display in the library and may be checked out by residents for hanging in their own homes for periods of two weeks.

Club meets

TWIN FALLS — Assignments for demonstrations were given to Julie Gambrel, Diane Zuck and Carla Grabert when members of the Happy Shamrocks 21-48, 4-H Club met Wednesday.

The demonstrations will be presented during the next meeting. Everyone is asked to bring an article on a hunting accident and know how it could have been prevented.

All members were asked to read their project books and Miss Zuck showed the proper way to give a demonstration. Julie Gambrel served refreshments. The next meeting is set for July 7 and Shawna Stephens will serve refreshments.

PACKING GOOD TRAVEL TIPS

By Mary Sue Miller

There is an art to packing. If you want clothes to come out of luggage in pristine condition. Carefree fabrics notwithstanding.

FURBERMOR, expertise eliminates the tedious long trips of fully unpacking and repacking at each stopover. Ditto that "I can't find it" bit, even on short hauls. However are the wonders accomplished?

When your luggage allowance is limited, two small pieces are more efficient than one. The ideal collection for a sojourn of a week or more consists of a weekender case, a deep duffie and a roomy hand tote. Hang wardrobe items on great carry-on and car travelers.

As to what to slow whorls. A tide holds your needs on route, such as a sweater and foldaway rain gear. Plus a jewelry roll, cosmetic and mending kits, medicine case, hair grooming and toiletries. If you wear eyeglasses, this is the spot for an extra pair or a prescription for same.

The duffie houses heavy or unwieldy items like shoes, hairspray can and active sports clothes. Enclose each item in a plastic bag, household variety. Now for the weekender:

Before packing outerwear, fold it over tissue paper. To fold, stretch it face down on a flat, stiff surface with crushed tissue and turn back to flat. Cover garment with layers of tissue and fold so that side seams meet at center back; fold again at waistline and lay flat in case.

Pack in layers with a divider between each. Each layer holds a complete costume from lingerie to accessories. The same holds you rearrange layers to find what you need without disturbing the clothes thereon.

Good packing, good trip!

MR. AND MRS. GREG DAVIS (Dudley photo)

GOODING — Donna Ruth Grubbs, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Grubbs, Bliss and Robert Grubbs, Dietrich, became the bride of Greg Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Davis, Dietrich, June 14 at the Gooding Methodist Church, with Rev. Edmund Stanton officiating.

Mrs. Don Simis played the organ for the ceremony. The bride wore her mother's wedding dress, a floor-length gown of off-white satin with a short train, and carried a bouquet of blue-dyed carnations and white pompons. Her headpiece was fashioned by her aunt, Mrs. Richard Solom, Coalinga, Calif. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Iram Sheldon, Coalinga, loaned the bride her toker.

Diane Nelson, Twin Falls, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Carol Roseberry and Marla Chigrow, Gooding.

Randy Lee, Dietrich, served as best man. Ushers were Mike Swain, Shoshone, and Steve Davis, Dietrich.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the church Parish Hall. Mrs. Maryon Gribble-Hagerman, great-aunt of the bride, was in charge of the gift book.

The four-tiered blue, yellow and pink cake was decorated in the colors of the bridesmaids' gowns and topped by doves. It was served and made as a gift by Mrs. Jerry Roseberry, Gooding.

Mrs. W.W. Henderson, Bliss, poured coffee and Brenda Spencer, Gooding, served punch. Mrs. Oral Murray and her daughter, Jaylee, Gooding, were in charge of the gifts.

The bridegroom, a 1969 graduate of Dietrich High School, attended CSI for two years, and the bride, who was graduated from Gooding High School this spring, was employed as a teacher's aide at the Gooding State School.

The couple will reside in Buhl, where the bridegroom is employed by Clark's Herford Ranch.

Newlyweds honored at open house

WENDELL — Magic Valley residents attended an open house at the Wendell LDS Cultural Hall June 25 in honor of Rhonda Lee Hodson, Idaho Falls, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Robinson, and Dennis F. Jacobson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Jacobson, Wendell, who were married in rites at the 4th Ward LDS Chapel, Idaho Falls.

Bishop Max Call officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Holly Tawzer served as soloist and Mrs. Heloise Knight and Cathy Stanger played the wedding music. The bride wore a floor-length original gown of French Chantilly lace, styled with a beaded neckline edged with tiny seed pearls, as were the long fitted lace sleeves. The full chapel train fell from a high waist seam and was trimmed with a flat tailored bow of lace. The fitted undersleeve was made of peau de soie.

Her shoulder-length illusion net veil was held by a tulle of Chantilly lace trimmed with seed pearls. Three roses of illusion and pearls formed a part of the headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white roses with baby's breath and white satin ribbon streamers.

Cindy Hartung, Idaho Falls, was maid of honor, Bora Denning, Idaho Falls, and Roby Ring, American Falls, cousin of the bride, were the attendants.

Jack Landaster, Wendell, served as the best man. Doug and Randy Jacobson, Wendell, brothers of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The couple greeted guests at the open house before an archway decorated in the bride's colors of pink and aqua blue flanked by baskets of pink gladioli and aqua-blue chrysanthemums.

Guests were seated at quarter tables covered with lace over blue and pink. Brandy snifters tied with pink and blue ribbons with red roses floating in water centered the tables.

Punch was served by Mrs. Clifford Madsen. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Howard Eaton.

Mrs. Dick Henslee registered the guests and Mrs. Alan Herbst and Linda Johnson arranged gifts.

Miss Son, Albertson name date

PAUL — Mr. and Mrs. Forrest O. Son, Paul, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Angela, to Jerry L. Albertson, son of Mrs. Betty D. Albertson, Paul, and the late Roger D. Albertson.

Miss Son is a 1971 graduate of Minico High School. Albertson was graduated from Minico High School in 1969 and attended the College of Southern Idaho and Idaho State University. He is employed with the J.R. Simplot Co. in Burley and plans to continue his studies at the College of Southern Idaho.

A July 15 wedding is planned at the Idaho Falls LDS Temple. A reception will be held July 17 at the Paul LDS Church.

JELLALRED

August date set

MURTAUGH — Mr. and Mrs. Jackson W. Alfred, Murtaugh, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Jill Marie, to Paul Wornell, grandson of Mrs. Hazel Buxton, Murtaugh, and son of Henry Wornell, Nampa.

Miss Alfred is a 1971 graduate of Murtaugh High School and is now a junior, enrolled at Idaho State University, where she is majoring in government and international relations.

Wornell is a 1967 graduate of Murtaugh High School and will receive his B.A. degree in business marketing from Idaho State University in December.

An Aug. 28 wedding is planned. The couple will return to Pocatello this fall to continue their education.

Former resident plans rites

LAS CRUCES, N.M. — Mr. and Mrs. Arnel E. Stephens, Las Cruces, N.M., former Twin Falls residents, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Pamela Ann, to Larry Paul Maynard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elsie Maynard, Lake Arthur, La.

A July 10 wedding is planned at the Mesilla Valley Christian Church.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of the late Otis and Esther Stephens, Hazelton, and the late Elmer and Josephine Wooten, longtime residents of the area.

Miss Stephens was graduated from Mayfield High School in 1967, attended New Mexico Highlands University from 1967 to 1970. While at the university she was an active member of Alpha Sigma Alpha, Social Societies and a member of the NMHU Modern Choir, touring group. She is attending the New Mexico State University and is employed by American Automobile Association.

Maynard was graduated from Lake Arthur High School in 1967 and joined the Army in June, 1968. He was stationed at Ft. Wainwright, Alaska, and presently is stationed at WSMR, N.M.

Turkey halts poppy growth, opium output

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government of Turkey, supplier of half the world supply of raw opium and 60 per cent of the illicit heroin in the United States, announced Wednesday a total ban on growth of poppies and production of opium by the fall of 1972.

The announcement in Ankara, climaxing a decade of negotiations with the United States, was hailed by President Nixon as a "statesmanlike and courageous" act and a "significant breakthrough" in efforts to control heroin addiction worldwide.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers said the United States would compensate an estimated 75,000 peasant families and the state for their losses in abandoning Turkey's centuries-old cultivation of opium poppies, from which heroin is derived.

Rogers said no decision had been made on the amount of U.S. assistance in the changeover to other crops, but he estimated that Turkey's opium trade is valued at $3 million to $5 million a year.

The decision of the Turkish Council of Ministers, announced in the official gazette, said the ban would go into effect this fall in three of the seven provinces still growing poppies and would be extended to the other four next year. Opium cultivation was the economic mainstay of 42 provinces as recently as 1960.

"All opium cultivation and production throughout Turkey will be banned by the end of the fall, 1972, definitely and totally," the government said.

Nixon appeared with Rogers and Turkish Ambassador Melih Esenbel in the White House press room, after a meeting in his office, and said Turkey's decision would be "a significant contributor to the well-being of the world" and expressed hope that other opium-producing countries would follow its example.

"My administration is committed to aid nations and peoples prepared to help eliminate the narcotic menace," Nixon said. "I pledge to continue cooperation with Turkey in its efforts to increase the well-being of its people and to maintain its independence and security."

Nixon noted that the agreement would mean serious economic repercussions for Turkey, one of the few countries permitted to grow poppies legally under a U.N. convention, and internal political difficulties for the Turkish government.

"In today's world, declarations of statesmanlike intent are not difficult," Nixon said, "but instances of statesmanlike reactions are few. Prime Minister Nihat Erim of Turkey has just combined the two."

Nixon disagrees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon said Tuesday he disagreed with the argument that if an 18-year-old can fight in war he was entitled to vote.

"They got the vote because they're smart enough," said the President, who long has advocated a constitutional amendment—now pending ratification—to give the vote to 18-year-olds.

Speaking to delegates to a YMCA youth governors meeting, Nixon said the government needed the idealism and understanding of government of young people. He challenged the youths to go beyond the vote and become leaders because they bring "a great deal of knowledge in the field of public affairs."

"You bring a great deal to this country that it needs very much," he said.

Expanded Vietnam benefits proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation to expand the present GI benefits available to veterans is under the co-sponsorship of Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, to help veterans further their education.

The GI Bill for Vietnam veterans, under which the federal government would contribute $1,000 per year to help veterans of Vietnam further their education, is needed in the face of inflation and the rising cost of education, Church said.

He noted that present GI benefits provide only $175 per month. He added in the last 12 years, tuition costs at public and private colleges and universities have doubled.

Under the proposed legislation, the federal government would pay educational institutions up to $1,000 per year to cover the cost of a veteran's tuition books and other fees and supplies.

In addition, the legislation provides the eligible veterans will receive up to $175 per month for subsistence.

Silver use asked

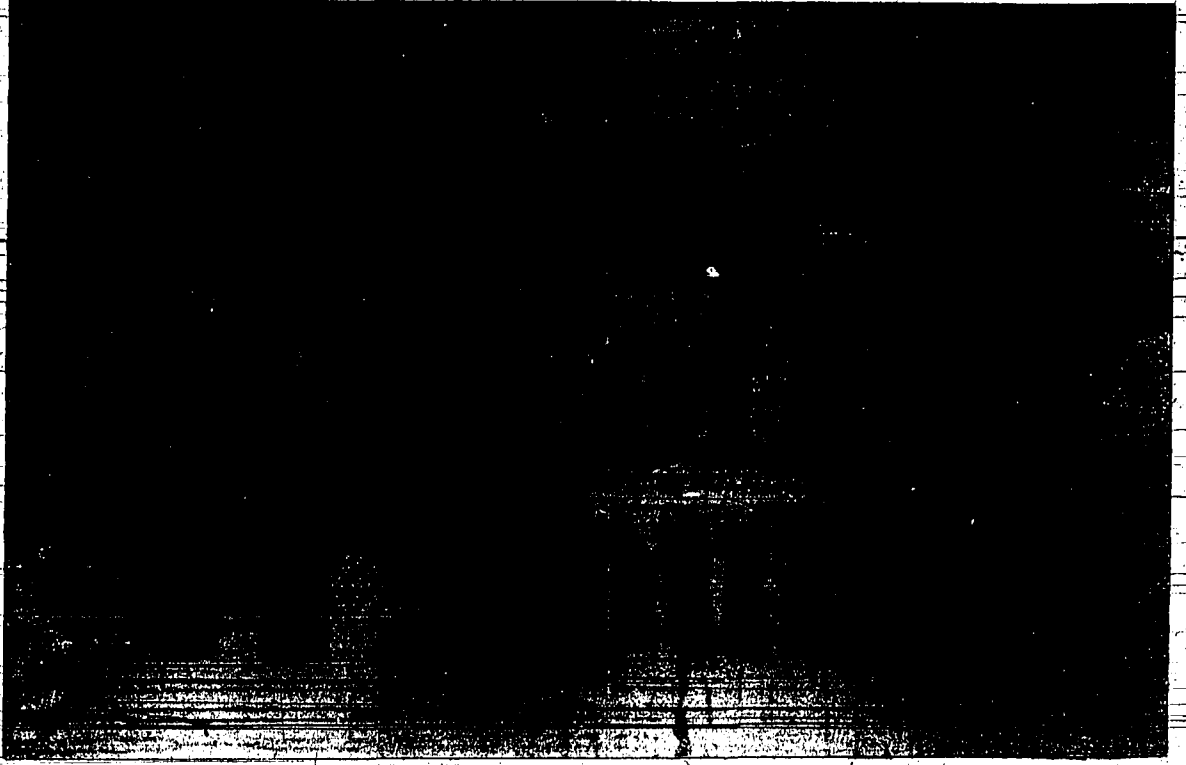

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho Congressman James McClure testified before the House Banking and Currency Committee Tuesday to obtain authorization from the Congress for use of silver in medals commemorating the nation's 200th birthday.

McClure revealed that the Nixon Administration sources told him the treasury plans to mint some of the medallions in German silver, which McClure called "spit metal." He said he was equally critical of plans to use expensive platinum.

"I know of no other way to supply medals at a price acceptable to the average American than through the use of silver," McClure told the committee.

McClure concluded his statement by urging that the nation "honor its past through the use of those metals which helped make that past worth remembering."

Publishing of papers resumes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court in a historic 6-3 decision ruled against the government Wednesday and gave The New York Times and the Washington Post full freedom to resume publication of a top secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war.

A brief unsigned majority opinion said the government had failed to meet the heavy burden of showing justification for prior restraints on publishing the documents in the name of the national security.

But the three dissenters — Chief Justice Warren, E. Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackmun and John M. Harlan — complained that the court has been "almost irresponsibly feverish in dealing with these cases" and the momentous freedom of press issues they had raised.

The three said both cases should have been referred back to the lower courts to give the government more time to present its case. And Burger in particular was highly critical of the Times' handling of the purloined Pentagon documents.

Joining the dissidents were Justices Hugo L. Black, William J. Brennan Jr., Potter Stewart, Byron R. White, William O. Douglas and Thurgood Marshall. All six filed supplementary individual opinions to state their views.

Although Black and Douglas declared there could be no restraints on the press whatsoever under the First Amendment, some other members of the majority indicated uncertainty over the issues involved and that without guidance from Congress, they had little choice but to rule in favor of the papers.

In fact White, joined in his opinion by Stewart, said he was convinced that disclosure of the

Lawyer halts Davis hearings

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (UPI) — With Angela Davis proclaiming solidarity with him against "the racist society," Ruell Magee Wednesday brought federal hearings in their murder-kidnap case to a halt again.

Judge Richard F. Atkinson granted a motion by Miss Davis' lawyers to adjourn until next Tuesday after Magee told the attorneys he would consider them part of the "big conspiracy" if they did not suspend all their arguments.

Miss Davis backed up Magee's contention that nothing should proceed until he gets a full hearing of his charges that he has been illegally imprisoned for the last eight years.

"We are bound together by the indictment and bound together in other ways," the 27-year-old former UCA faculty member said of her life and that of Magee, a San Quentin lifer.

Koreans kill infiltrators

SEOUL (UPI) — South Korean patrols tracked down and killed three North Korean infiltrators Wednesday in a clash 20 miles from Seoul where Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and other foreign dignitaries were attending a diplomatic reception.

Agnew arrived here Tuesday as President Nixon's special envoy at the inauguration of a Thursday of South Korean President Park Chung Hee for a third term.

The South Korean Defense Ministry said army troops found signs of infiltrators from the Communist north on Tuesday and immediately began extensive search operations. The patrols caught up with the three invaders shortly before 7 p.m. near Munsan, about 20 miles north of Seoul, it said. Two South Korean soldiers also were killed in the clash.

Reports of the fighting came as Agnew was attending a reception, hosted by Foreign Minister Kim Yon-Suk in honor of foreign dignitaries in Seoul for Park's inauguration.

A squad of police has been posted in and around Agnew's hotel since his arrival.

Agnew started his activities Wednesday by presenting his credentials to Park at the Blue House, the residence of the Korean leader in the morning. The ceremony, originally scheduled to last 20 minutes, stretched into a 30-minute meeting.

Leader defends river run

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI) — The leader of a troop of boy scouts whose raft trip in Utah's Green River ended in the death of a 14-year-old scout said Wednesday he didn't believe the river was hazardous when the trip began.

John Ungvarsky said he and the 25 scouts and advisors down the river "I'm not sure they could negotiate the river, as it had been described to me."

On Tuesday, Ted Tuttle, boating chief for the Utah Parks and Recreation Department, said he told Ungvarsky the "many" rafts would not stand up to the Green River rapids.

The rafts capsized in Desolation Canyon along the river last Thursday and scout Peter McCarthy was drowned after saving the life of a companion.

The troop of scouts was stranded for three days by the river until an Air Force helicopter rescued them.

Only 9 of 25 bodies claimed

YUHA CITY (UPI) — More than a month after the first of 25 hacked bodies was found buried along the banks of the scenic Feather River, relatives have come forward to claim only nine.

A citizens group handling burial arrangements for the victims of the nation's worst confirmed mass murder said Wednesday the other 16 bodies are unclaimed and five of these are still unidentified.

Most of the victims were middle-aged white and row itinerants and farm laborers. Juan V. Corona, 37, a farm labor contractor, has pleaded innocent to playing 18 of the men.

Many of the victims were drifters who had been out of touch with their families for years.

The memorial committee said it had received nearly $1,500 in contributions to help in funeral services for any victims whose bodies are not claimed. Oak Ridge Holdings, a Chicago firm, has also offered to provide gravestones.

Corona is in a hospital at Yuba City where he is being treated for a mild heart attack. He is scheduled to appear for a preliminary hearing July 13.

Strike begins at copper firm

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The American copper industry was struck early this morning for the second time in three years when representatives of 26 unions voted unanimously to strike at 12:01 MDT.

The strike vote came into Wednesday night when the approximately 200 delegates considered and rejected contract offers from the four major copper producers — Kennecott Copper Co., Anaconda Copper Co., Phelps Dodge and American Smelting and Refining Co. (ASARCO).

About 38,000 workers are affected by the strike. The United Steelworkers of America (USWA) represents 30,000 and 8,000 are members of independent unions. Contracts expire Wednesday midnight.

12 Panthers found innocent

DETROIT (UPI) — A jury which deliberated 4½ days found 12 Black Panthers innocent of murder charges Wednesday in the shooting of Detroit policeman, but found three of the Panthers guilty of felonious assault.

All 12 defendants, six men and six women, were found innocent of charges of first-degree murder, conspiracy to murder and assault with intent to commit murder.

Bul Grosse de Saussure, Benjamin W. Fondrin and David M. Johnson were declared guilty of felonious assault. Recorder's Court Judge John R. Murphy said he would sentence the three July 21. The others were freed.

May brought heady days to Addis Ababa in 1963

By WILBUR G. LANDREY
UPI Foreign Editor

The days of May 1963 were heady days in the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa. The sun was warm even at the altitude of a mile and a half. Buildings were newly painted, and miles of shiny corrugated fence hid the worst of the shanties along the street.

Emperor Haile Selassie, the Lion of Judah, then 70, was at the airport hour after hour on May 21 to greet the heads of Africa's newly independent states as they arrived—some in an Ethiopian 18, another in a French Caravelle, another in a 707 and one in an aged Dakota.

There were lavish banquets with dancing girls and revelry into the night, but there was serious high purpose, too. Reversing their own ambivalent foreign ministers, the heads of state agreed on the charter of the Organization of African Unity (OAU), the first continent-wide organization of African states.

Medals were struck for the occasion, and the host was often heard to say he would never become "just another OAS—a contemptuous reference to the Organization of American States formed by the nations of Latin America and the United States.

This past week, in the same spirit of Addis Ababa, showed how for the reality of international politics, the problems of development and the conflicting ambitions of men and nations have overtaken the dream. The OAU is hardly effective. Some have doubted it can survive.

Only 10 heads of state attended this year's summit meeting, the lowest number since 1963. There were two vice presidents, 27 governments were represented by cabinet ministers or even lower officials.

The issue on which they divided this time was one which is likely to haunt the world in the years beyond Vietnam and the crisis in the Middle East—the division between the black nations of the continent and the white government of South Africa, doubly dangerous because it is racial.

The result was a vote against any diplomatic dialogue with the white South Africans until their government changed its policy of apartheid, or "separate development" for the country's other races.

Twenty-eight nations were against the dialogue, but it was significant that there were six which believed otherwise, led by Felix Houphouët-Boigny, President of the prosperous French-speaking state of the Ivory Coast in West Africa.

His idea was that there should at least be talks with the government of Prime Minister Balthazar Johannes Vorster in either by the split over the question among the black Africans.

A divided black Africa is less a danger to white rule in South Africa than a black Africa united against it.

South Africa demonstrated its determination to go its own way again this week when it rejected a ruling by the International Court of Justice in the north. While he undoubtedly welcomes the progress he has made, the political realists of Pretoria must not be chagrined.

Bad guys do win votes

Director sees Gam surplus

Computer rent asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chief of staff of the Fair Campaign Practices Committee has reached the comforting conclusion that American voters are neither foolish nor stupid.

But his charts and tables indicate that in at least a few cases the bad guys win.

These findings are reported by Samuel J. Archibald, executive director of the committee, a nonpartisan private organization set up in 1954 to receive complaints from candidates claiming they are victims of unfair practices and to give the accused a chance to reply. The committee itself makes no judgments but it does make some assessments after elections have been held.

As the editor and author of three chapters in "The Pollution of Politics" published by the Public Affairs Press, Archibald writes:

"Emotional appeals based on race, religion and patriotism are declining during political campaigns but lies and distortions of fact are increasing.

"The majority of candidates who are unfairly attacked and who use the facilities of the Fair Campaign Practices Committee win their races.

"Dirty politics knows no party, nor do challengers resort to smear tactics more than incumbents.

"The press exercises some judgment, but not enough, in preventing the smear artist from abusing the information channels ... the 'for sale' side (advertising) of the free and responsible press is much less interested in fair treatment than is the news side.

"When the ethical level of a political campaign becomes a major issue and is fully reported in the press, it can make the difference on election day.

"Dirty politics doesn't pay.

Archibald writes that the entire booklet, including six case studies, shows that "the voters are not nearly as stupid as the political manipulators seem to think."

He adds that 201 cases reaching the committee mostly from candidates for Congress show that "the voters are not fools." The complaints involved contests in 1966, 1968 and 1970.

BOISE (UPI) — Although final figures won't be available until Friday, D.E. "Skip" Callberg, acting budget director, predicted Tuesday Idaho will end fiscal year 1971 today with about a $3.5 million surplus.

The $3.5 million, gained by lightening spending during the final quarter of the biennium, was figured as part of the revenue, income, to fiscal year 1972.

BOISE (UPI) — The Univac firm the computer division of Sperry Rand Corp. would not be needed for July has until Thursday to remove its Univac 494 from the State Office Building or it will begin paying rent on the space the computer occupies.

That was the latest threat issued Tuesday by acting director of administrative services in the dispute between the state and Sperry Rand over the nature of the agreement for use of the computer.

Robert Lenaghan said he has not notified Sperry Rand about the rent aspect of the situation, but said he had already notified

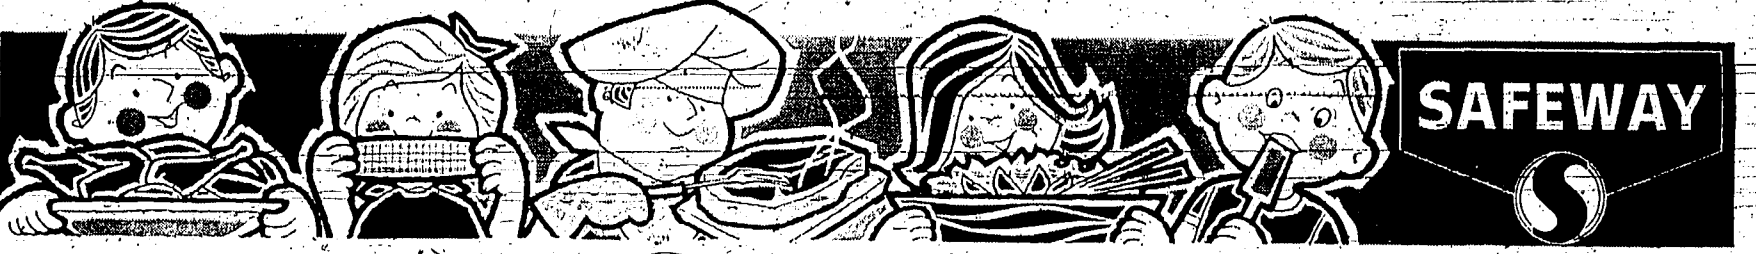

Univac, claiming the state agreed to purchase the machine on an installment basis. Lenaghan canceled the agreement, and the Univac attorney general's office has questioned the legality of the purchase agreement.

The state had been paying $31,984 per month for the Univac equipment, including maintenance.

The computer firm has in an exchange of letters, hinted at legal action in an effort to force the state to retain the $3.5 million

Major loops seek way to pay Washington's bills

DETROIT (UPI)—The owners of the American League's 12 baseball teams authorized league president Joe Cronin Wednesday to find a solution to the financial troubles of the Washington Senators.

The owners, in a "confidential" eight-hour meeting at Detroit Metropolitan Airport Hotel, adopted a resolution authorizing Cronin to step into the squabble between Senators owner Robert F. Short and the

Saigh reportedly interested in buying Washington club

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Milwaukee Brewers' operational chief Frank Lane disclosed Wednesday he has lined up a potential buyer for the Washington Senators who says he would keep the American League baseball team in the nation's capital.

Lane said the potential buyer was Fred Saigh who once owned the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League. He made his disclosure to Milwaukee Sentinel sports writer Lou Chapman.

Lane said Saigh was "immensely wealthy" and approached the Brewers executive about contacting both Short, owner of the Senators.

"There are two other wealthy St. Louis people who would be associated in the new Washington ownership," Lane told Chapman.

Lane said Short had contacted him for the purpose of finding buyers for the Senators, and that he has been acting as an "intermediary" between Short and Saigh's group.

Saigh does not want to suffer any public embarrassment in the event baseball people don't accept him, Lane explained. "But I think he would be an asset to the team."

The Brewers executive said Short was thinking in the neighborhood of $13 million for his club, while Saigh was prepared to go as high as $16 million.

"It is the general opinion of baseball people that the owners would not vote to abandon the national capital and go to another city," Lane said.

"President Nixon spoke recently with Larry McPhail (retired New York Yankees owner) about his hope that something could be worked out to continue a major league baseball in Washington."

Lane said Saigh was "immensely wealthy" and approached the Brewers executive about contacting both Short, owner of the Senators.

"There are two other wealthy St. Louis people who would be associated in the new Washington ownership," Lane told Chapman.

Lane said Short had contacted him for the purpose of finding buyers for the Senators, and that he has been acting as an "intermediary" between Short and Saigh's group.

Saigh does not want to suffer any public embarrassment in the event baseball people don't accept him, Lane explained. "But I think he would be an asset to the team."

The Brewers executive said Short was thinking in the neighborhood of $13 million for his club, while Saigh was prepared to go as high as $16 million.

"It is the general opinion of baseball people that the owners would not vote to abandon the national capital and go to another city," Lane said.

"President Nixon spoke recently with Larry McPhail (retired New York Yankees owner) about his hope that something could be worked out to continue a major league baseball in Washington."

Michener accepts Idaho job

JEROME — Roger Michener, head wrestling coach and athletic director at Jerome High School for the past two years, has resigned to accept the head wrestling job and become assistant administrator in the University of Idaho athletic department.

"This was a real bombshell for us," said Superintendent John Caribbell. "But we wish Roger well. He did a fine job for us here."

Michener, a 1964 graduate of Twin Falls High School, attended Boise Junior College and Idaho State University. He took his masters' degree at the University of Idaho.

He will follow a former team and classmate, Ron Stephenson, as the administrative assistant to athletic director Ed Knecht. Stephenson accepted a similar position at Boise State earlier this year.

U.S. pros dominate tourney

MONTREAL (UPI)—A field of 21 Canadians and 128 American pros tee off today at the Richelieu Valley golf course in search of the $30,000 first place pay-off in the $150,000 Canadian Open golf championship.

A last minute scratch was veteran Ken Venturi, who may be through on the professional circuit because of a recurring hand problem, which has been bothering the former U.S. Open champ.

The first golfers went off at 8 a.m. (EDT) and the final threesome scheduled for today were to go on the course at 2:06 p.m.

Cary Player tuned up on the course earlier in the week and complained about too much sand in the traps. "If you get in trouble in the bunkers, you're going to have a big problem no matter how good a golfer you are," claimed one of the local golfers.

"As a matter of fact, there is so much sand in some places, you won't even be able to find the ball," he added.

An official from the Royal Canadian Golf Association, organizers of the yearly tournament, said, "We look which harbors of the stuff off the course last month when Player tried it out for promotional purposes and that's all we're going to do."

Uhlender to rejoin club

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Cleveland Indians outfielder Ted Uhlender has resolved his differences with Manager Alvin Dark and will rejoin the club, the Indians announced Wednesday.

Uhlender, who left the team after Sunday's game in Detroit, had announced he was quitting baseball after meeting with Dark moments before Wednesday's twilight doubleheader against the Orioles, however, Uhlender decided to stay with the Tribe.

Uhlender will be in uniform for Thursday night's game with the Braves, a team spokesman said.

He had told reporters there was little chance he would reverse his decision to leave baseball, because he disliked sitting on the bench.

Shorter joins U.S. team to boost hopes against Soviets

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Frank Shorter gave the United States track and field squad which will meet the Russians and a World team Friday and Saturday a big boost Wednesday when he joined the team for a workout.

Shorter, winner of the six-mile run at the AAU Championships in Eugene, Ore., last week, said he had a change of mind about competing this week and felt he should not all costs.

Shorter won the 10,000 meter run against the Russians in Leningrad last year and said he knows the Russians are pointing for him this weekend.

"They're still hoping mad about last year and I know they have worked hard to get revenge this time," Shorter said. "Well, I'm ready, too, although I'm a bit weary from all that running last week."

Shorter competed in both the three and six mile races in the AAU championships and ordinarily he takes two weeks off when he doubles up, but he said he felt an obligation to compete this week.

"I'll have a lot of time later to rest," he said. "I jogged a little on Monday and was surprised at how good I felt, and that helped me change my mind."

After winning the six-mile last Saturday, Shorter said he didn't see how he could come back this week so the AAU named Jerry Lindgren and Jerry Joki as backup men for the 10,000. Lindgren finished third in the 10,000 in his first major race in a long time while Joki was sixth.

Prothro inks quarterback

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Tommy Prothro, new coach of the Los Angeles Rams, Wednesday signed one of his brightest college stars, quarterback Dennis Dummit, to play professional football.

Dummit, an even-6-foot and 180 pounds, set 14 school records during his two years at UCLA under Prothro. His statistics included 289 completions on 552 passes for 4,355 yards and 29 touchdowns, all in the record book.

The 22-year-old Long Beach, Calif., did not draw any bids in the 1971 college player draft but Prothro said, "I'm pleased to get him. I just hope he can perform as well in pro football as he did in college."

Uhlender, who left the team after Sunday's game in Detroit, had announced he was quitting baseball after meeting with Dark moments before Wednesday's twilight doubleheader against the Orioles, however, Uhlender decided to stay with the Tribe.

Uhlender will be in uniform for Thursday night's game with the Braves, a team spokesman said.

He had told reporters there was little chance he would reverse his decision to leave baseball, because he disliked sitting on the bench.

Garry Bjorklund was second but he'll go in the #2000 while Juan Martinez of Mexico, who was third in the AAU, will run for the World team this weekend.

Shorter's change of mind gave the entire United States team a psychological lift.

U.S.-Aussie net final assured

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—A men's final between an Australian and an American is assured at Wimbledon.

They will determine who plays in the title match of Saturday.

The semi-final probably is the most important of all championship rounds. To lose when one match short of the final is heart-breaking.

Bidding for final places at the 85th renewal of the world's premier tennis tournament will be Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., versus Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash. In one match, while the other sees a clash between Australians John Newcombe and Ken Rosewall.

The choice is fourth-seeded Smith to meet second seed and defending champion Newcombe for the $9,000 top prize. The losers will have to settle for $1,800 dollars and a bronze medal.

Gorman has lost nearly every time he's met Smith, a 24-year-old Army private who is ranked second in the U.S.

Their last meeting was in the semifinals at Queen's Club, the tournament before Wimbledon, where Smith won in straight sets before beating Newcombe in the final for his second tourney victory in as many weeks.

Newcombe beat Rosewall in last year's final but their paths have not clashed much this year.

Rosewall, 36, played a four-hour marathon Tuesday in turning back Cliff Richey 7-5 in the fifth after being two sets and 3-2 down to the Texan.

Nobody gave Rosewall a chance against Richey when he fell behind 2-2 in the fifth. He won a historic match and rested all day Wednesday.

With Wimbledon playing more like clay than grass, Newcombe's power is blunted somewhat. He also has had back trouble. It could go either way although the champ is favored.

Tuesday, a number of Yanks talked out AAU champs Marty Liquori, Ralph Mann and John Smith, who decided to pass up the Russian meet. Two of them, pole vaulter Dave Roberts and hammer thrower Al Hall, were specially critical of the defecting trio.

Defending champion Margate Court and her doubles partner, Evonne Goollagong, meanwhile, set up the first over-all Australian women's final.

Mrs. Court turned back 39-year-old compatriot Judy Dalton, 4-0, 6-1, 6-0 Wednesday while Miss Goollagong, 19, ousted three-time winner Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4.

Mrs. King, 27, was wiped out center court despite six final appearances on the historic turf.

Frazier seeking new foes

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Heavyweight Champion Joe Frazier's shelling his stinging career temporarily, returned to the gym Wednesday with no specific opponent in mind for his next title defense probably in the fall. Yancey (Yank) Durham, Frazier's trainer-adviser, said, "We have no guys in mind. Who's around we haven't destroyed?"

Durham admitted receiving a $1.5 million offer to fight George Forman from promoters Vince McMahon of Washington and Willie Gilzenberg of Newark, N.J. The two are wrestling promoters who indicated they would like to stage the title bout in Atlantic City.

Durham, however, said he hadn't sounded out Forman yet. He will have to come to me."

Intruding in Frazier's plans for his next title defense was a return bout clause in the contract which paired him with Muhammad Ali last March 8. Frazier won that match by unanimous decision.

Durham insisted that "Clay is a dead man. Who needs him. We whipped him."

League-leading Royal Loungo opened up a two-game bulge in the A League of the city slough association Wednesday by drubbing second-place Turf Club 30-8.

John Gleaser hit a homer and Doug Rex was five-for-five for the winners. Bill Marlett had a home for Turf Club which absorbed its third loss of the loop year.

In other action, Coors-First Federal accepted past Culligan 20-3 with Kirk Williams topping the attack with four-for-five.

Tupper hit a home and Tingwall and Stanger got key hits as Varsity Barbarshop stopped Olympia Beer-Ford Transfer 12-7.

Misplayed fly ball lets Cowboys take 10-9 win

A routine pop fly in the bottom of the eighth inning was misplayed into a three-base, three-run error Wednesday night to lift the Magic Valley Cowboys past the Billings Mustangs 10-9.

The teams conclude the four-game stand here Thursday night with Caldwell moving into Jaycee Park Friday night.

The Cowboys, after blowing an early 5-1 lead and falling behind 9-7, got life with two away in the eighth when Mitch Smith lived on an error, Jose Senclon was hit by a pitch and winning pitcher Ron Standby drew a walk. Shortstop Terry Nelson lofted a hit fly into centerfield on the first offering of reliever Dave Paynter. Centerfielder Rocky Craig called off the Billings shortstop and second baseman but then lost the ball and glanced off his glove and fell behind him. With two outs, all three runners were moving and scored.

The victory went to Don Stanley who just saw Twin Falls and Jaycee park for the first time Wednesday afternoon. He worked the last three innings.

Once again Cowboy hurling had trouble finding the plate, walking 11 men — they walked 10 Tuesday night — but although the Mustangs had 10 hits, they stranded 14 men.

Billings scored in the first inning when Craig, who was three-for-four with three RBIs, drove in Myron Pitts. But the Cowboys rebounded on a couple of scratch hits and then a long single by Rich Thomas who now has hit safely his last five appearances at the plate. A pair of Mustang errors plus hits by Dave Walski and Mike Weiss helped the Cowboys to three innings in the second but then Magic Valley started giving runs back.

The Mustangs picked up a single run in the third and then batted around in the fifth to tie. The key blow was a two-run hit by Dave Landress. In the sixth, Billings scored three more on consecutive hits by Mifaud, George Brett and Craig. Craig drew a bases-loaded walk in the seventh to force in the last Billings run.

White Sox sweep by Brewers in rhubarb-filled twin bill

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Chicago White Sox bombed out 23 hits including Bill Melton's 17th and 18th homers of the year Wednesday night to sweep a rhubarb-filled doubleheader from the Milwaukee Brewers 8-5 and 8-3.

The second game was played under protest by Milwaukee Manager Dave Bristol because of a seventh-inning eel and nearly ended in a post-midnight brawl when both benches emptied during a ninth-inning fight after Bobby Pena of the Brewers and Walt Williams of the White Sox began exchanging punches. Order was soon restored and former reliever Wilbur Wood managed to get down the Brewers in the ninth for his seventh victory of the year.

Rich McKinney drove home the winning run with a pinch-double in the seventh inning of the first game and Tom Egan supplied the clincher with a two-run homer in the ninth.

Chicago's 10-9 victory was a 10-9 win over Milwaukee. The White Sox scored 10 runs in the first game and 9 in the second. Milwaukee scored 5 runs in the first game and 3 in the second.

Falls project pushed

CURB-AND-GUTTER WORK is continuing along Falls Avenue East, east of Blue Lakes Boulevard North, in the area that has been the subject of considerable debate between the Twin Falls City Council and residents of the area. A delegation of citizens attended a city council meeting early in June to protest plans for formation of a Local Improvement District which would involve a payment for street paving. The council nevertheless passed a resolution of intent to form the LID.

Last clash seen in '73

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu predicted Wednesday a "final confrontation" between South and North Vietnamese military forces in 1973 after completion of U.S. and allied troop withdrawals. He said it would be "an all-out" battle "because if we don't use all our forces, the Communists will use all of theirs."

Thieu said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong "sit at the Paris talks waiting for the withdrawal of foreign troops." "While there is no written agreement ... the Communists will obtain that withdrawal just as before the Communists agreed to sit at the conference table so that the United States would stop the bombing (of North Vietnam)," Thieu said.

Thieu's remarks in a commencement address at the National Defense College was one of the most pessimistic he has made since taking office in October of 1967.

"The Communists do not want to negotiate an end to the war because if they negotiate, they will be caught in the trap of acknowledging peace," he told the 25 officers, including a brigadier general, who graduated from the highest military college in South Vietnam.

"And if they accept peace, they will have to retreat from South Vietnam, from Cambodia and from Laos."

Thieu said North Vietnam has been waiting for three years for the United States to withdraw its troops from South Vietnam.

"In 1973, there will be a final confrontation between the South and North," Thieu said. "Then there will be a solution, militarily or political. I think that after that battle in 1973, a solution will be worked out for Vietnam."

Thieu has long maintained that a military victory is the only solution to the war and reiterated Wednesday his conviction that "the Communists cannot defeat us militarily."

Snow, ice bar White Clouds

CLAYTON (UPI) — Snow and ice will limit use of the White Cloud Mountains over the Fourth of July weekend, according to District Ranger Don Pence and White Cloud Patrolman Jim Talombic.

Pence and Talombic checked the area earlier in the week and found the trail up Boulder Creek closed by snow where Walker Lake drainage joins Big Boulder Creek. The lake remained ice covered, although there are now some open areas for fishing.

"Trail machines, however, cannot go further than quicksand meadows and the Livingston Mill trail to Fog Lake was closed to trail machines. Snow banks over 10 feet deep covered portions of the trail. The men also said horses will be unable to make it over the trail until the snow melts.

Fog Lake was open, but fish were spawning and will be in poor shape and difficult to catch. Trail machines have reached Fog Lake up the Little Boulder Creek Trail, but caused considerable winter damage by leaving the trail through the wet meadows.

The Forest Service has posted the trail from Livingston Mill to Fog Lake as closed to trail machines. The Little Boulder Trail will be open to the machines, but continued damage in wet meadow areas may necessitate closure of the trail to the machines.

Garrison held in bribe case

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Jim Garrison, New Orleans district attorney who made headlines by claiming he uncovered a plot to assassinate President Kennedy, was arrested Wednesday on federal charges of bribery, illegal gambling and obstruction of law enforcement.

Appearing at the Federal Court Building for arraignment, Garrison said he was not guilty. "I never accepted a dollar in my life," he said of the charges.

The 6-foot-6 district attorney, who suffers from a chronic spinal condition, had to be helped by two men into the federal building where he was fingerprinted.

Two New Orleans police officers — a captain and a sergeant — were arrested on the same charges, along with three businessmen. Four others were being sought.

Attorney General John N. Mitchell announced the indictments in Washington.

Board facing deficit

 "But where the $8,000 for salary increases is going to come from, I'm not sure," Dr. Carle said.
 "The matter has enough money to pay the salary increases up until Dec. 1, but they don't know where the money will come from after then."
 Dr. Carle said he has written to Dr. T. O. Carver, head of the state Department of Health, asking if more money was available on the state level to help the district with the deficit. If the state is unable to give the district the money, other ways of getting it will have to be investigated, Dr. Carle said.
 Dr. Carle reported to the board on the existing programs being carried on in the district, noting that he hopes to establish in the future a family planning program and a "well child" clinic. The board decided to delay a decision on a request by Dr. Carle to give promotions to some district health personnel who he said deserve it for their long and exceptional service. The promotions will be delayed until reclassification for state employees by the Idaho State Personnel Commission is officially adopted.
 The next meeting of the health board will be July 25 at 2 p.m. at Wood's Cafe, Jerome. Dr. Carle will present a rough budget for the district that will include the money needed for the promotion and the proposals for the new projects. It includes an environmentalist and district health nurse to be placed in Blaine County.
 The budget is expected to ask for money available on a 2-mill levy to each county with the possibility of some of the money to be used for construction of a new district health office at Twin Falls or the renting of larger facilities.

Jerome land burns

SHOSHONE — Two man-caused fires burned about 380 acres of land Wednesday evening, Wallace Fixsen, fire control officer for the Bureau of Land Management, Shoshone, said today.
 About 300 acres of state, BLM, and private land was burned north of the Blue Lakes Country Club canyon rim. Two tanker crews were sent from headquarters at Shoshone, to extinguish the blaze.
 The other fire covered 80 acres of range land five miles north and three miles west of Jerome. One tanker crew from the Shoshone dispatch center landed this blaze. Fixsen said the Shoshone dispatch station also sent a man to check a fire reported in the Eden area where some equipment caught fire on private land. It burned about five acres of private land, but no federal or state land was involved, Fixsen said.

Chief assumes office

TWIN FALLS — George Staudaier officially took over as superintendent of Twin Falls School District No. 41 today, replacing Dr. Ernest Rugland, who has retired.
 Staudaier has served as assistant superintendent of the district for the past four years. He has been an employee of the district for 12 years.
 His career in Twin Falls includes dean-of-boys at Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School, principal at O'Leary, and five years as principal of Twin Falls High School.
 He received his bachelors degree in music and social studies education from the University of Wyoming and his masters degree in education administration from the University of Idaho.
 Staudaier said he plans no major changes in administration of the district, but said there "will be some changes." He said "when you have something good, you don't want to make too many changes."

Medical meet opens at resort

SUN VALLEY — The 70th annual meeting of the Idaho Medical Association and the 44th annual meeting of the association's auxiliary opened here Wednesday with registration and a luncheon.
 Sessions today opened with technical exhibits and scientific sessions. Dr. William Kirby, Seattle; Dr. Edward Mortimer Jr., Albuquerque, N.M.; Dr. R. Peter Beck, Edmonton, Alberta, Canada; and Dr. Leonard Rosoff, Los Angeles, were guest speakers at association sessions.
 The annual banquet in honor of IMA president and Mrs. William R. Trengning, Boise, and auxiliary president Mrs. Ben E. Katz, and Dr. Katz, Twin Falls, was scheduled for 8 p.m. today, Sun Valley Lodge dining room.
 The four-day session will end Saturday.

Code regulates consumer loans

(Editors note: This is the third of four dispatches dealing with Idaho's new Uniform Consumer Credit Code, effective July 1. Today: Bank loans.)
 By LINDY HIGH
BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's new Uniform Consumer Credit Code regulates consumer loans; those dispersed by retail installment companies, by banks and by others.
 Generally, interest rates allowable under this legislation are higher for some lenders, which Acting Commissioner of Finance Tom McEldowney said should have the effect of putting more credit in circulation.
 In 1968 and 1969 in Idaho, he said, money "dried up" because of the 8 per cent interest limit. With more financial institutions having the higher interest rates available to them under this new code, this could in effect, expand credit to a greater number of consumers.
 Further, McEldowney said, one of the whole basic concepts of this code is to make more money available through increased competition.

 "Previously the rate of interest has always been coupled with the degree of risk involved to the lender. Lenders who wish to make loans under the higher rate of interest no longer have to provide the "conventional advantages" of additional license. This, in effect, gives free entry into the lending field by those meeting minimum qualifications.
 All the loans, of course, must qualify as "consumer loans." These are loans made to an individual to be used primarily for personal, family, household or agriculture purpose which are repayable in installments or with a loan finance charge or service charge.
 Under old statutes, small loan companies in Idaho were allowed to lend up to $1,000 per loan to an individual. Rates were 60 per cent up to $500, 24 per cent of the next $250, and 12 per cent from $500 to $1,000.

 The new UCCOC will allow small loan companies or other supervised lenders in Idaho to lend up to $25,000, with 36 per cent on the first $500, 24 per cent from $500 to $1,000, and 18 per cent above — or an alternative to 18 per cent per year on the entire amount.
 McEldowney noted a borrower should have a "slight increase" in interest rates under Idaho's statutes on loans between $500 and $1,000.
 All interest rates, of course, represent an allowable maximum which can be charged and interest rates set by the institutions themselves could be lower.
 Under the old statutes, both state and national banks were limited under usury laws to an interest rate of 10 per cent per year — except on loans up to $1,500 repayable in two or more monthly installments which could be loaned at an annual rate of 11.56 per cent. These kinds of loans could not be secured by real estate.

 Under Idaho's UCCOC provisions, loans may be made at the 10 per cent per year or 11.56 per cent per year rates or a bank may choose to become a "regulated lender" and charge a rate in excess of 10 per cent per year but not over 18 per cent per year on amounts not to exceed $25,000.
 A bank may also elect to become a "supervised lender" and charge at the same rates allowed a small loan company — 36 per cent per year on the first $500, 24 per cent per year above $500 and up to $1,000, and 18 per cent per year on the balance of a charge of 18 per cent per year of the entire amount.
 McEldowney said it was felt the model act (the Model Uniform Consumer Credit Code) did not cover national banks and federal savings and loans.

Therefore, one of the amendments placed in the bill by Idaho's legislature was one to place national banks and federal savings and loans institutions under the act's provisions.
 If any supervised financial organization intentionally fails to comply with the provisions of Idaho's UCCOC, it will not be allowed to receive deposits from the state or from public depository units.
 McEldowney said "millions of dollars" were involved in such deposits. At the last quarterly report, Dec. 31, 1970, national banks had $118,395,835.22 on deposit, and state banks $35,183,274.28. The money represents not only the state's deposits, but deposits from school districts, cemetery districts, cities, counties and other units.
 On June 21, according to the state treasurer's office, $8,602,072.12 of the state's money was deposited in banks.

Rock Creek span slated

TWIN FALLS — Construction of a large span pipe arch crossing on Rock Creek west of the independent Meat Co. is proposed for late this fall or early next spring, Twin Falls Highway District officials announced today.
 The proposed crossing would be part of a cross-county arterial highway from the Balanced-Rock area to U. S. Highway 30, just east of Kimberly.
 The project has been under study for some time and fill has been collected on both sides of the creek, Engineer Keith Anderson said. He said at this time the highway district is presenting the proposal for public comment and opinion.
 He said the route was officially designated early this year as part of the state Federal Aid Secondary system and it is hoped federal assistance in financing will make it possible to construct the crossing late this year or early next.
 The project, extending over 3 of a mile, extends from a point one-half mile west of the Sugar Factory Corner west to connect with the existing road one mile south and one-third mile east of East Five Points in Twin Falls. Anderson said it will extend what is commonly known as the Sugar Factory road. When completed the route will provide an important connection for farmers in the area west of the Sugar Factory in hauling their sugar beets to the plant. Anderson said larger trucks are being used to haul beets — hauling costs and these are crossing the county on various types of roads. The new crossing will shorten the distance for many of these trucks.
 It will serve adjacent farms and industries as a portion of an east-west arterial road from Balanced-Rock to Kimberly which is being jointly improved by the Twin Falls, Buhl, and Flor highway districts.
 Anderson said the project design will give maximum protection from soil erosion, stream pollution and other environmental disturbances. Persons are invited to mail comments within 30 days to the Twin Falls Highway District, Post Office Box 605, Twin Falls.
 Additional information concerning the project is also available from the district office, Anderson said.
 Prior to actual construction, the engineer said, public hearing on location and other factors will be required. He noted the present roadway is almost to the east connection with the 3 mile proposed project and a gravel roadway on the west connects with Blue Lake Boulevard South.

Getting ready

ADJUSTING RIGGING on his Coronado 15 sailboat in Sun Valley Lawyer Stratton Laggis in preparation for a joint Idaho-Utah sailboat regatta this weekend at Bear Lake. Laggis is chairman of the Southern Idaho Sailing Association, based in Sun Valley.

75 sailboats expected to enter weekend event

By WARREN GOSSETT
 Times-News Writer
KETCHUM — Some 75 sailboats are expected to be entered in a joint Idaho-Utah regatta Saturday through Monday, says Stratton Laggis, chairman of the Southern Idaho Sailing Association, with headquarters in Sun Valley.
 Laggis, a Sun Valley lawyer, said the combined regatta will feature six classes, including the M-16 Scow, Flying Dutchman, Sloopfish, Windmill and the Coronado 15, plus an open handicapped class, and will be held at Bear Lake near the Utah-Idaho border.
 Laggis, who skips a Coronado 15, said the sophisticated sport of sailing has only recently come into its own in this area, and attributes the association for the recent increased popularity.
 The association, with Joe Deming of Sun Valley as Commodore, has conducted four regattas this year; with one at Lake Lowell near Nampa, and three at C. J. Strike Reservoir.
 Following the Bear Lake Regatta, races will be held at Alturas Lake on July 17 and races Aug. 6 and 7 at Redfish Lake.
 "Sailing is an ecology-oriented sport with no dirt and no oil polluting the waters," Laggis said, adding that the sport offers the participant much excitement and challenge.
 Laggis has racked up 12 years of sailboat racing experience. He has sailed a 30-foot craft in a number of regattas in western New York.
 When the association was first organized, there were few members, but through our Supreme Court affirmed a conviction Wednesday on grounds the subject was properly arrested and properly charged under a felony statute.
 The appeal came from Donald A. Wozniak, St. Maries, who on March 7, 1970, was arrested

Jarbridge marker rite set

JARBIDGE, Nev. — A historical marker for the Jarbridge Commercial Hall will be dedicated at a ceremony Saturday, July 3, as part of the July Fourth weekend celebration here, Mrs. Helen Wilson, president of the organization to preserve the Community Hall, said today.
 The marker reads "Jarbridge Hall-Gold Discoveries by Dave Bourne in 1809 created the town of Jarbridge," and it is designated as a State of Nevada Historical Marker No. 133. This is part of the Nevada State Park system.
 Funds for the marker were raised through the Jarbridge Commercial Hall Fund and Improvement Club of the community.
 Installation of the marker on the building will be after the dedication by chairman of trustees, Mrs. Wilson.
 A check was turned in for $9 p.m. Saturday, and a dance at 9 p.m. at the community hall will feature the Kenneth Johnston Orchestra, Twin Falls.

Man held in area jail

SHOSHONE — Claude Evans, Burley, is being held in the Lincoln County jail in lieu of $100 bond he failed to post on charges of being drunk in public and disturbing the peace.
 Evans appeared in the magistrate court of C. M. Wilson Wednesday on the charge, filed by City Police Chief Jerry Conklin, after an arrest in downtown Shoshone at 1 a.m. Wednesday.
 Evans entered a plea of guilty to the two charges, but exact sentence was withheld in consideration of the bond and anticipation of filing of further proceedings against the man, sheriff's officials stated Thursday morning.
 Shortly after Evans was placed in the county jail after his arrest Wednesday morning, he set fire to blankets in his cell. A complaint charging him with property damage is being considered at this point.

Hagerman sets Pioneer Days fete

By WILMA LANSON
 Times-News Writer
HAGERMAN — An outstanding Pioneer Day celebration is planned in Hagerman July 24, according to Floyd Marsh, Pioneer Day general chairman.
 At a committee meeting this week chairman for the various events to be held reported the action is well under way. No special theme has been designated for the event this year, as has been in the past, but special emphasis will be stressed to honor those men and women who braved the unknown to come to this area in the early days of Idaho and who helped make Hagerman Valley and the surrounding area the place it is today.
 A full schedule of events has been planned to make this a day-long celebration. The queen's contest will begin the day at 9 a.m. This will be held in the rodeo arena adjacent to the main street in Hagerman.
 The parade will begin at 11 a.m. with cash prizes and trophies to be awarded to winners in each of the five divisions. The five parade divisions will be organizational riding groups; marching groups; old-time; and commercial. A children's section will also be held. Special ribbons will be presented winners of this section.

The rodeo will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the tree, shaded arena. Through the years, the Pioneer Day rodeo has proved to be one of the outstanding amateur rodeos in southern Idaho, Marsh said.
 Stock for the rodeo will be furnished from the Ralph Stevens rodeo string, Blaine, and by Wood's Ranch, Bliss. Rookies or trophies will be presented in each rodeo event as well as pay-off money, according to LaRoy Jolley, Hagerman, rodeo chairman.
 The rodeo will feature a full schedule of events which will include bareback, saddlebronc, team roping, ribbon roping, wild cow race, bull riding, calf roping, cow milking and kids calf riding.
 Mrs. LeRoy Jolley, rodeo secretary, reported rodeo entries will be open July 8 and will close at 10 p.m. July 22. Anyone interested in signing up for any of the rodeo events may contact Mrs. Jolley by telephoning 837-8717 or writing her at Route 1, Hagerman.
 Mrs. Jolley announced that winners must have a signed release from their parents or guardians before participating.
 Mrs. C. W. Choules is assistant rodeo secretary.
 Mr. and Mrs. Jay Wright, Bliss, are co-chairmen for the queen's contest which is open to all non-married girls, 18 to 24 years of age, who have never been married and who are willing to represent Hagerman at the Miss Rodeo Idaho contest which will be held at the Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo in Filer in the fall.

 Winner of the Pioneer Day Queen contest will be eligible to compete for Miss Rodeo Idaho. Those interested may contact Mr. and Mrs. Wright by writing them at Box 81, Bliss.
 Jack Allen will work as parade chairman again this year and stated entries for the parade have already been contacting him. Any drum team, marching group, band, baton-twirlers, riding group or individual, or organization wishing to enter the parade or float may contact him at 837-4452.
 The Relief Society will serve dinner at noon in the LDS Church directly across the street from the city park and rodeo arena. Mrs. R. K. Bendorf, Relief Society president, is chairman for the dinner.
 Other events scheduled include two animal scrambles for the young people. One will be for youngsters up to and including 17 years of age, the other scramble will be for those 18, 19, and 20 years of age.
 Ed Larson is chairman for the animal scramble. In this event, each youngster selects his own prize and tries to catch it.

Air pollution index 86

The pollution reading was taken by the staff of the South Central Health District at the Twin Falls City Hall. The reading is expressed as the number of micrograms of particulate material per cubic meter of air for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today.

Forecast

Today: Excellent
 Tonight: Fair
 Tomorrow: Excellent

This forecast provided by the Idaho Department of Health indicates the ability of the atmosphere to disperse pollutants, based on readings taken by the South Central Health District at the Twin Falls City Hall. The reading is expressed as the number of micrograms of particulate material per cubic meter of air for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today. Federal pollution regulations are set so that readings should be kept below 75 micrograms over any 24-hour period, and should not be permitted to rise above 240 micrograms for even a short period of time.

Project built by sorority

BURLEY — A castle-style playhouse has been constructed by husbands and members of the Alpha Psi Chapter of Epilon Sigma Alpha as their community service project. Proceeds from the playhouse project will be donated to the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Center. This makes the fourth year the group has built a playhouse with the proceeds going to Cystic Fibrosis.

The sorority members will display the playhouse in Monday's parade at Rodeo. It will also be in the parade on July 24 at Oakley and the parade in August in Burley for the Cassia County Fair and Rodeo.

John Starry, local contractor, drew the plans for the castle style playhouse. There is a drawbridge at the door, the windows have bars on them and inside there is a ladder where the children may climb to the roof for additional space to play. The material for the playhouse was donated this year by Amy's Decorator Shop, Heyburn.

The playhouse is painted in three shades of gray, trimmed in yellow and black. The playhouse will be awarded to some lucky person the final night of the Cassia County Fair and Rodeo. During the fair it will be on display at the fairgrounds.

Annual project

THIS CASTLE-style playhouse has been constructed by husbands and members of the Alpha Psi chapter of Epilon Sigma Alpha at Burley and will delight the heart of some child. Proceeds from the project go to the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Center.

Parents honored

ALBION — Fathers and mothers were both honored during a meeting of the Albion Grange Tuesday at grange hall. On the program were readings by Mrs. Alma Bidgood and Bill Chaburn; a song by Carol Amende accompanied by Mrs. Mark Bowlden; a game for the "Long-Time Weds," conducted by Keith Amende; a "Tribute to Father" by Mrs. Jullus Goettsche and the traditional song "M-O-T-H-E-R", sung by the men of the grange, accompanied by Mrs. J. Vard Chaburn. Walter Amende, master, reminded members of the grange drill contest July 10 at the Pomona Grange meeting. Prior to the business meeting and program a dinner was served by the women of the grange. A gift was presented to Mrs. Jon Fillmore, a grange member, for her new home. Walter Amende, grange master, made the presentation.

at Burley Elks Lodge Hall. Winners were Mr. and Mrs. Gale Wolf, first; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Goodman, second; Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Hunter, third, and Mrs. Gladys Manning and Mrs. Clara Holmes, fourth.

Rupert man assumes T.F. post today

BY JERRY HERRMANN Times-News Writer

RUPERT — As Camden Meyer begins his new duties as assistant superintendent in the Twin Falls school system today he has the satisfaction of having finished 15 of "the most satisfying years" of his career. During the past 15 years he has served as superintendent of the Minidoka County School District.

CAMDEN MEYER

This district has doubled its enrollment and staff during his reign. In July, 1956, when Meyer assumed his duties as superintendent in the district there were 2,500 students enrolled. There are now about 5,000.

The enrollment doubled despite the fact that a parochial school — St. Nicholas School — opened during this time. Its enrollment is about 240, Meyer said. When Meyer came to the district the Minidoka High School had been in operation for only a year. As his successor comes in the district's two new junior high schools — East Minico Junior High School and West Minico Junior High School — will have been in in operation for only a year.

One of the things that typified his service in Rupert was the constant building of additional classrooms. He said that the additional classrooms were necessary due to the families who came in on the homestead projects north of Rupert. These families were young and with families. As a result the population grew faster than in any other town in the district. He said that the district added the original high school complex, Pnuh school, Acquia school, and the Pershing School in Rupert.

Then in 1961 a $1 million bond was approved by the district's patrons. This money was used to build the Memorial Elementary School in Rupert, and an English section of the high school, another addition at the Paul school, and at the Heyburn school, remodel old Washington Elementary School and put in a modern kitchen at Pioneer Elementary School.

After this building project was finished there was a lull until a $2.2 million bond was approved in March, 1969. With this money the two new junior high schools were constructed and the Heyburn school was finished.

Even though the district had undergone reorganization in 1947 the actual consolidation of students into one high school didn't occur until the Minidoka County High School was opened for the 1955-56 school year. As a result, one of the biggest jobs facing Meyer and his staff was the correlation of the facilities it needs on the high school site. To get the vocational facilities Meyer recommends the district levy a five mill levy for five years. He said that the district should only build the fundamental shops like metals, motors, woodwork, plastics and electricity. "Give them the fundamental training here and then send them elsewhere for their advanced training," he said. "This is the only way the district can afford to get into this program."

For the past several years Meyer has served on the State Vocational Education Advisory Board for the Idaho Board of Education. During this time he said his opinion has changed. "I now don't see how high schools can provide all the vocational courses students want. Therefore, I believe they should only be taught the fundamentals of the various areas and try to let them find which direction they want to go," he said.

The automobile mechanic field, is, for example, getting too specialized for the schools to be able to teach all these areas. We simply can't justify the costs as they are beyond the benefits received from the program," he said.

However, he believes that the district will have to expand its education program to include education "from the cradle to the grave."

The accomplishments Meyer feels are his biggest during the past 15 years are:

— The continuity of the curriculum in the district.

— Having good buildings that are in good shape for the students.

— Having an established, versatile faculty.

He also said the day of the performance contract basis is near. "We have private industry saying that they can do certain jobs the schools don't seem to be able to do. If they can do it we can do it in our schools."

One area he mentioned as an example was reading skills. Before this is possible in schools there has to be developed a method of evaluating the work being done and the effectiveness of the teacher, he said.

Also, he believes that the school districts are going to have to take a long serious look at the extended school year. "There is really no reason for the three month vacation between school years as we now have," he said.

More than half of Louisiana's oil production, about 12 percent in the nation, comes from off-shore wells.

He also said the day of the

STRAWBERRY CRUMBLE CAKE

1 pint fresh strawberries
1 cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
3 tablespoons melted butter
1 cup milk
3 cups biscuit mix
1 teaspoon mace
Whipped cream or vanilla ice cream

Hull and wash strawberries. Cover with one-half cup sugar. Allow to stand in room temperature to form juice. Gradually add one-half cup sugar to egg, beating well after each addition. Beat in melted butter and milk. Stir in biscuit mix and mace to moisten. Stir quickly and lightly, don't beat until just mixed, but still lumpy.

Spread into a well buttered 9-inch square baking pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 10 minutes. Remove from oven and pour sweetened whole strawberries over the top. Return to oven and bake another 40 minutes or until browned. Serve with whipped cream or ice cream. Makes nine servings.

For 18 years now the Swensen's have obstinately refused to sell out, (who'd buy it, you say) move, go broke, merge, conglomerate or anything else, and now SWENSEN'S MAGIC MAIN STREET MARKET is the OLDEST GROCERY STORE IN TWIN FALLS UNDER THE SAME OWNERSHIP OPERATING CONTINUOUSLY AT THE SAME LOCATION. Considering how many grocery stores have passed away during the last 18 years, this achievement has got to be either progress or stubbornness.

Swensen's Original Market, was founded in 1953 during the Great Depression (The Swensen depression didn't end until... until...) in a very depressed way and has now grown to be the oldest and largest locally owned grocery business in Twin Falls.

*The question may have occurred to you as it did to us whether being an old business is any advantage. Anyway we noticed how banks and insurance companies always take great pride in being very old so we hope that getting older is good for the grocery business too!!! AND SPEAKING of growing older, this weekend, the GREAT OLD U.S. of A. is having another birthday, so Swensen's Magic Markets are having a whole bunch of SUPER BARGAINS for your holiday enjoyment. PLEASE READ BELOW.

DEAR ABBY: I am a "meh", 64 years old. I retired two years ago and I am very lonely. You see, my wife, who is 60, took a job selling in a retail store some years back because she wanted to do something more exciting than just housework. Her selling job paid poorly, but she never quit because she says she enjoys selling. Her boss is about 50, and she eats up his flattery. She enjoys the attention of any man who is younger than I am.

I had hoped that after my retirement my wife and I could travel and live out our golden years in pleasure and relaxation, but she refuses to quit her job. She has no appreciation for the security I have worked all my life to provide for her.

Should I dissolve our marriage now and try to find some lady who would be happy to give up her job to travel and enjoy retirement with me? LONELY IN K.C.

DEAR LONELY: Perhaps if you put it to your wife just that way, your problem would be solved. She's a foolish woman to spend her days "selling" while you are free to spend your days "shopping."

DEAR ABBY: My husband is of Italian descent and he has a friend who is also Italian. His name is Dino. When Dino comes over, which is quite often lately, the two of them greet each other with a warm embrace, and they kiss like a man would kiss a woman. My husband tells me that this is an old Italian custom as the Italians are very affectionate people. I am not Italian, but I have known a lot of Italians and I have never seen this done by two men.

My husband and I are both middle-aged and have been married less than two years, and he shows more enthusiasm when he kisses Dino than when he kisses me. Should I worry? RHODE ISLAND READER

DEAR READER: Affectionate men of all nationalities will sometimes greet each other with a firm embrace. But kissing "like a man would kiss a woman" is something else. Worrying won't help. Ask your husband to state his preference.

DEAR ABBY: A young woman I've been dating for several months has just informed me that nothing is going to come of our little romance. That doesn't bother me nearly as much as her reason. She said now get this, "You are not nice a guy."

Abby, why is it that today's women want a man who treats them rough? Must a man slap a woman around to prove that he is a man? I certainly hope not because I never could mistreat a woman, and I doubt if I will ever change. Please don't get the idea that I am some poor slob who has trouble getting dates because I'm not.

Who said, "Nice guys finish last"? He sure knew what he was talking about. TOO NICE

DEAR TOO: Leo Durocher said it. But don't you believe it. (Leo is far from "flushed" himself, so how would he know?)

DEAR ABBY: They have something new now. Instead of throwing rice at newlyweds as they leave the church, they throw tiny tissue paper hearts. These "hearts" come in a variety of colors and are about the size of a quarter (I am enclosing one). They cling to the trees, and they litter the church property until somebody cleans them up.

Rice was so much cleaner, could be enjoyed by the bride and what was left dissolved easily. But those little tissue paper hearts create such a terrible mess—just like confetti! Maybe if you will print this, it will help. MINISTEN, PA

DEAR MINISTEN: I'm an editor, too, but why waste good rice?

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 6700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Buhl couple will observe 50th wedding anniversary

BUHL — Mr. and Mrs. Ben J. Shinn, Buhl, will observe their Golden Wedding Anniversary Sunday, July 11, at an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. at Lincoln Courts Community Center. All friends and relatives of the couple are invited to attend. A special religious service will be conducted at 3 p.m. by Rev. R. J. Scholz of St. John's Lutheran Church. Mr. and Mrs. Shinn were married July 12, 1921, at Alliance Neb., and came to Idaho in 1937. In 1957 they moved to a farm northwest of Buhl, where they have since resided. Shinn is still engaged in farming. The couple has two sons, Benjamin J. Shinn, Jr., Boise, and Richard D. Shinn, Seattle. They have nine grandchildren and one great-granddaughter.

MR. AND MRS. BEN J. SHINN

Former resident sets date

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gratot, Pinole, Calif., former Twin Falls residents, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Karen Faye, to Larry James Clemens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Powell, Pinole.

The bride-elect attended school in Twin Falls for 19 years until moving to California in 1967. She was graduated from Pinole Valley High School in 1969 and from Paris Beauty College, Berkeley, Calif. She is employed as a hair dresser at Ollie DeBella in El Cerrito, Calif.

Miss Gratot was a runner-up in the 1960 Miss Pinole contest and was given the title Miss Congeniality.

Clemens is a 1968 graduate of DeAnza High School, Richmond, and attended Ricks College, Rexburg, and Contra Costa in California.

He is a member of the National Guard and is employed at Safeway Co. He just returned from six months active military service and plans to return to school.

An Aug. 15 wedding is planned at Trinity Lutheran Church, Richmond, Calif. The couple will reside in Rodeo, Calif.

KAREN FAYE GRATOT

Appointment announced

FILER — Kris Arins was appointed a member of the grand executive board of the Order of the Rainbow for Girls and served as chairman of skills at the recent Washington-Idaho Grand Assembly held in Spokane, it was announced today.

The 23 Filer members who attended the sessions were accompanied by Mrs. Duane Hamseyer, Mrs. Roger Vincent and Mrs. Loren Anderson.

The Filer girls won first place in the musical competition with two numbers they sang, "Put Your Hand in the Hand" and "Close to You." Lynn Hamseyer received recognition as the 1970-71 grand representative of the grand jurisdiction of Nevada in Washington and Idaho.

The local members will celebrate the annual Founder's Day July 8 with an outdoor movie and slumber party.

Outstanding work awards received

REXBURG — There were several youths from Maple Valley to receive awards for outstanding work at the Idaho College Summer Academy of Fine Arts, reports Dr. Jay Slaughter, director.

The awards were presented at a program presented by the orchestra, band and choir night at the college. Students had enrolled for the two-week academy from 32 Idaho communities, Utah, California, Canada, Alaska, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Ohio, Oregon and Wyoming. Dr. Slaughter said "It was the finest academy we ever had."

April Arrington, Twin Falls, received a stage band award; Donny Parker, Rupert, a band award; Lynette Berry, Twin Falls, choir award; Mary Ann Anderson, Twin Falls, junior theater award; Bonnie Killen, Twin Falls, all-around award in dance division.

There were 21 students from Twin Falls who attended the academy this year.

Ph.D. degree received

TWIN FALLS — Ellis W. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Miller, Twin Falls, has received his Ph.D. degree in astronomy from the University of Arizona. He has been actively engaged in the study of the spiral structure of the galaxy and in particular has analyzed the distribution of young stars, gas and cosmic dust across one of the spiral arms of the galaxy. As a student in the Twin Falls high school he worked with Norman Herrett for several years.

Miller is presently residing in Tucson, Ariz., with his wife, Karen, and their two children, Lee Ann and David. He will continue as a post-doctoral fellow at the University of Arizona.

Miss Beams, Suggett set August date

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Roy Beams announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Rinnae, to Leon Suggett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Caldwell, Stuttgart, Ark.

Miss Beams has attended high school at Western Apostolic Bible School, Stockton, Calif., and will be graduated from there with the class of 1972.

Suggett was graduated from Western Apostolic Bible College in May, 1971, with a degree in theology. At present he is performing his internship in the United Pentecostal Organization at Livermore, Calif., where the couple will reside.

Their wedding date of Aug. 27 was revealed during a recent dinner party in Stockton honoring Pauline Heidemann, Mark Beams and Suggett's graduation from WABC.

Engagement revealed

HOLLISTER — Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Fleenor, Hollister, announce the engagement of their daughter, Ellen — Katelyn (Katie), to Douglas Dale Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Scott, Filer.

Miss Fleenor was graduated from Filer High School in 1970 and from Hollywood Beauty College, Twin Falls. She is employed at Jeanette's Country Curl, Filer.

Scott is a 1970 graduate of Filer High School and will be graduated from the College of Southern Idaho in July. The exact date has not been set.

Bell-bottoms

After washing bell-bottomed pants, put one pair of pant stretchers in the pants the usual way. Then slide another pair upside down, so that the wide part of the stretchers is at the opening of the leg. No need to iron "bell bottoms" if you follow this method.

Delegate attends Boise meet

TWIN FALLS — Dick W. Truscott, district representative of Modern Woodmen of America, attended the Idaho State Fraternal Congress in Boise recently, as delegate from this area.

Fifteen societies took part in the conclave, with Jack Bunnell, Boise, agency manager of MWA, elected president for the ensuing year.

Other officers include Elmer McIntire, Boise, Modern Woodmen of America, honorary president; Louise Bowne, Nampa, Royal Neighbors of America, first vice president; Edith Robinson, Sandpoint, Royal Neighbors of America, second vice president; Howard McMurray, Montpelier, United Transportation Union, treasurer, and John Mitchell, Boise, Knights of Columbus, secretary.

Glenn Ross, American Order of United Workmen, Seattle, director of the National Fraternal Insurance Congress and past president of the Washington State Fraternal Congress, was coordinator for the meeting.

Woman legislator proposes 3-year marriage contract

NEW YORK, N. Y. — "Until three years are up" may replace the "until death do us part" part of the marriage vows if a Maryland legislator has her way!

Mrs. Lena K. Lee, member of the Maryland House of Delegates, has proposed a legislative bill which provides that a marriage be considered a contract for three years, with an option to renew for three years, renewable forever upon mutual consent.

"My bill," Mrs. Lee explains in the current issue of Pageant Magazine, "would not replace the traditional form of marriage; it would provide an alternative. Under its terms, two people would be able to sit down and draw up a contract that says they will be husband and wife for three years. Upon agreed notice, either party could terminate the contract at the end of the first or any subsequent three-year period."

Divorce would be made easy, Mrs. Lee feels, because disposition of property, alimony and child support could be established beforehand. "If things hadn't worked out after three years," she explains in the magazine, "the man and woman would be free — without prohibitive legal fees, endless delay or a humiliating court-room scene."

Although she has been accused of trying to undermine the foundations of matrimony and endanger the welfare of children, Mrs. Lee thinks her bill would help save the institution of marriage. "I want to see marriage survive," she insists in Pageant, "but to do so, it has to change, to become attractive again to those who now reject it; the young who are reluctant to commit themselves for a lifetime to one person, the poor who fear marriage because divorce is so expensive, those men and women who've had marital failures and are unwilling to risk the agonies of divorce again."

Mrs. Lee's bill is scheduled for hearings in the next session of Maryland's House of Delegates.

Toss a few onion peelings on the hot coals a few minutes before grilling the hamburgers. The aroma is better than a dinner bell to summon all hands.

Club picnic set July 11

WENDELL — The annual family picnic, sponsored by the Mountain View Club of Wendell, has been scheduled for 12:30 p.m. July 11 at the Hagerman Grove in Hagerman Valley.

The grove is located on Highway 30 south of the Wendell-Hagerman junction, in a roadside park on the road to Buhl.

Mrs. Bertha Stuckie said all members are asked to bring food for themselves and their guests and their own table service. The afternoon will be spent getting re-acquainted.

Hints

Grocers generally feature four kinds of ground beef. Regular ground beef has the highest fat content — as much as 30 per cent. There's 10 to 20 per cent fat in ground chuck. Ground round has about 10 per cent fat and ground sirloin less than 10 per cent.

If you're preparing a ground beef casserole where the fat is not drained off during the cooking process, you'll want to buy the very leanest ground beef.

High-gloss finishes need a paste wax or liquid polish.

Painted finishes are easy to maintain by washing with suds and water.

A Lovelier You

RECOVER YOUR LEGLINE

By Mary Sue Miller

A Lovelier writes: Wearing bathing suits causes me embarrassment. Although I am not yet 30 years old, my legs are webbed with spider veins. Nothing I have used hides the problem. I would appreciate your suggestions.

The Answer: Spider veins — broken capillaries — are not necessarily a mark of age. It is thought that you inherit the tendency from a parent. If so you are in line for a visit, sooner or later. Fortunately, broken capillaries neither harden nor enlarge with age. But their number may increase.

A sudden appearance of broken capillaries may indicate a health difficulty. A doctor's advice is indicated. Otherwise, support hose is a preventative against spider veins, so long as your doctor approves the measure. Propping up your feet for 10 minutes around noon and in the late afternoon, also makes a good move.

As for cosmetics, nothing works unless you follow instructions, have the patience to make expert applications and wait out drying time. There are several opaque coverups made expressly for hiding disfiguring marks. Skin-toned or tinted creams work well when fixed with finishing powder. Applied with a sponge, liquid applications blend with the natural skin and give a smooth finish. Recover your legline. In other words,

Cutback on hogs lauded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin has praised farmers for their good economic judgment in planning a cutback in hog production, and urged them not to ease up on the slash.

Hardin issued the statement Tuesday before departing on a two-week tour of Africa.

The secretary noted that hog producers, who saw their prices slump when markets were glutted with heavy supplies last year, now indicate plans to hold the 1971-June-November pig crop 8 per cent below a year earlier.

This cut is "an important example of voluntary production adjustment by farmers to strengthen farm prices," Hardin said.

He also noted, however, that farmers in 10 corn belt states had planned a 15 per cent cut in June-August farrowings earlier but now indicate plans for a cutback of only 11 per cent in the three-month period.

"We hope this doesn't mean that farmers are revising their pork production plans upward. It is important for farmers to continue plans to farrow substantially fewer sows in order to improve hog prices," Hardin added.

Started by hot pipe

RED-HOT EXHAUST pipe of a grain truck is blamed for starting this fire southwest of Hutchinson, Kan. Fire and blowing smoke fill the skies over central Kansas as the blaze takes its toll of unharvested grain. (UPI)

WESTON, Idaho (UPI) — There is an urgent need for updating Idaho's rail freight rate patterns on grain, members of the Idaho State Wheat Growers Association were told Tuesday in a bulletin from their president.

The Idaho Transportation Council has asked for new rates on both wheat and barley and is urging Union Pacific to handle the request on an emergency basis, Fredrickson explained.

Describing the requested rate as "modest," the bulletin pointed out the proposed reduction would average about 15 per cent but would also allow streamlined rail service for reduced operating cost to the carrier. As a result, the plan would probably increase railroad net earnings, Fredrickson asserted.

Vale BLM manager named

VALE, Ore. (UPI) — Maxwell T. Lawrence, long time manager of the Vale district of the Bureau of Land Management, has been named to succeed Muriel Storms as chief of the division of resources in the Oregon state office of the Bureau of Land Management.

The announcement was made Monday by state BLM Director Archie D. Craft.

As resources chief Lawrence will head a professional staff concerned with coordinating the management of timber, range, water, wildlife, land, minerals and recreational uses.

Lawrence began his BLM career in 1951. He came first to the Vale district in January, 1954, as assistant manager, the position he held for two and one-half years prior to a position in the Portland office.

He returned to Vale, as district manager in 1959.

Church cited by Farm Bureau

WASHINGTON (UPI) — San Frank Church, D-Idaho, was commended Tuesday for his efforts to secure changes in the Department of Transportation's proposed new rules governing young drivers of farm equipment.

Marvin L. McClain, the American Farm Bureau's legislative director, wrote a letter to Church thanking him for his efforts in opposing the restriction originally proposed by the Department of Transportation on young farm workers — restrictions which Church said would work a "severe handicap on small farmers who use their sons to help with the harvest."

Last year the department decided drivers of farm trucks on interstate highways must be at least 21 years of age and must pass stringent physical examinations.

Following complaints by Church and thousands of farm organizers, the department eased requirements. They dropped the age requirement to 18 for large farm trucks and set no age requirement on smaller vehicles.

Dairy manure can become cash crop

JEROME — Wilmer G. Priest, extension agent for Jerome County, said today that dairy manure can be a cash-and-carry crop. He offers the following suggestion on how best to handle it.

Priest said that a dairy cow will produce about $30 worth of fertilizer a year. "One cow processes enough feed to return 15 tons of manure, or about 20 times her own weight," Priest said.

"How and when to spread the fertilizer to best advantage are the questions. Storage tanks probably do the most efficient job for the farmer geared to that equipment," Priest said.

He noted, however, not all places are set up for storage tanks. On other farms, the benefits can be obtained by plowing manure and distributing it ahead of plowing. It is also beneficial to spread it at almost any time when it does not interfere with the crop nutrition program or harvest.

The sooner it gets into the soil, the better, Priest said. Old manure exposed to the elements loses value. The original 15 tons per year contains 150 pounds of nitrogen, 75 pounds of phosphorus and 150 pounds of potash. The nutrients dissipate considerably in sun and wind.

Spreading manure on frozen ground, of course, compounds losses. It needs to be spread on fairly warm earth and plowed immediately. "If weather and work schedules are favorable, the job pays dividends, Priest said."

Higher rural power budget planned if OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Department spokesmen won't back down formally from their "stand pat" proposals for rural electric lending, but officials indicate that if Congress votes to increase the budget they'll seek White House permission to spend the money.

The comment followed action by the House last week in voting a surprising $200 million increase in rural electric lending for the year beginning July 1.

The Rural Electrification Administration (REA), an Agriculture Department agency, had proposed an electric lending authorization of $345 million — enough to keep the electric credit program operating at current levels.

But the House, rejecting the administration proposal, boosted the figure to $545 million. House action came after spokesmen for the politically active National Rural Electric Cooperative Association (NRECA), asserting that rural co-ops were being strangled by a credit shortage, had staged a strong lobbying campaign to boost the lending figure.

The House-approved agriculture appropriations bill, including the REA loan authorization, now is in the hands of the Senate's agricultural appropriations subcommittee which is expected to act by mid-July. Informed sources said the administration has told the Senate panel it continues to stand behind the original $345 million proposal.

But while there is no formal withdrawal from the $345 million figure, an REA official today indicated the agency is not threatening to recommend a refusal to use any funds above its original proposal.

Manager named by sugar firm

SALT LAKE CITY — Robert W. Chalmers Jr. has been appointed manager of engineering for the Utah-Idaho Sugar Co., according to Rowland M. Cannon, president.

Cannon said Chalmers, presently Utah-Idaho's industrial engineer, will work under P.H. Holt, vice president for factory operations, and will be responsible for functional supervision of all phases of engineering in the company with the exception of sales engineering. He will remain in the company's general offices in Salt Lake City.

Chalmers, a native of Hawaii, has been with Utah-Idaho Sugar Co. as an industrial engineer since Jan. 1, 1970. Before joining the firm, he was senior project engineer for the California and Hawaiian Sugar Co. in Crockett, Calif.

Livestock class set for U. of I.

JEROME — Wilmer G. Priest, Jerome County extension agent, said today that growing livestock in confinement will be the subject of a seminar offered by the University of Idaho College of Agriculture July 6-8, on the campus at Moscow.

Ray Taylor, extension agriculture engineer, said the program is designed to interest production, including stockmen, educators, veterinarians, industry, and government officials.

Particular attention will be given to air, water and land pollution problems, Taylor said. Solutions to the problems, with study of their economic feasibility, will be discussed. Other topics will deal with influences of confinement

Rivals wooing Malta

By PHIL NEWSON
UPI Foreign News Analyst

It was April, 1942, and in Vichy, France, Pierre Laval was forming a French government which would cooperate with Nazi Germany. Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain was offering more men to help Germany fight the Russians. And in Britain, King George VI was awarding the George Cross to Malta, the 122-square-mile island standing at the crossroads of the Mediterranean. The island's people, more than 2,000 airmen, more than 1,000 Maltese died in those raids. It was the first time in history that the George Cross had been awarded to other than a person.

That was nearly 30 years ago and the days of heroism that made the people of Malta a symbol of Allied determination against Italy and Germany have become a fading memory amid new wars and new rivalries.

In the Mediterranean is the rivalry between the U.S. Sixth Fleet and the new naval power of the Soviet Union.

On the island of Malta it is a new government attempting to lead 300,000 people around the pitfalls of independence, the route made the more difficult by the decline of British naval might and the withdrawal of most of her forces from Malta after more than 100 years.

Malta became independent in September, 1964, a monarchy under Queen Elizabeth of Britain inside the commonwealth.

As Britain withdrew the forces that had supported Malta's shipyards, the Maltese began to refer bitterly to the George Cross which they said had taken the place of the George Cross.

In the years preceding Malta's independence up to now, its politics has been dominated by two rival parties. From March 3, 1962, until a few weeks ago when the Labor party took over, Malta had been ruled by the "Malta's" under Dr. Borg Olivier.

Taking over from Olivier was Dom Mintoff, a dynamic man currently at precarious peace with the Catholic church, a Socialist with good relations with the Soviet Union and one-time friend of the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Among Mintoff's problems are a heavy public debt, serious unemployment and declining tourist revenues.

A recent unpublicized visitor to Malta was U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin Laird. It is unlikely that he paused merely to pay his regards.

Warning issued on river

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A Utah recreation official Tuesday warned an Albuquerque scoutmaster that his equipment was inadequate weeks before embarking on a river trip that claimed the life of one scout.

Ted Tuttle, boating chief of the Utah division of parks and recreation, also said his office was given no advance notification of the intended journey as required by state law.

Thirteen-year-old Ed McCarthy drowned and 25 companions with adult leaders were thrown into the Green River when raft water and floating trees capsized their four-man rubber rafts. The group spent three days in a clearing in Desolation Canyon before being rescued by an Air Force helicopter.

Area law officers and experienced river runners said the raft used by the scout was not strong enough to stand up to the pounding of the Green rapids.

Tuttle said the Albuquerque scout leader consulted a Utah river guide and was told that his equipment was "underclass."

Dollar battle target

NEW YORK (UPI) — The women's liberation movement already has impacted on the business community in the areas of clothing, book publishing, magazines and television and print advertising. Because of the great change in woman's traditional role as sex symbol, little mother and chief cook and bottle washer, the "lib" movement, if it gains momentum, could force major shifts in the battle for the consumer dollar.

Consider the dilemma of today's marketing expert. For years he bought and sold in the secure knowledge that husbands in the main, were the somewhat-dumb providers; wives were the soft, glamorous, home-oriented family units controlling the purse strings.

Now these stereotypes it's a whole new marketing ball game.

With dungarees, capes and slacks accepted uniforms among Unisexers, clothes will have to come up with styles which avoid the stereotype ... or, at least, produces a new one.

With more husbands doing the shopping while the "liberated" wife is out helping bring home the income bacon, supermarkets will have to adjust to the female hand that steers the shopping cart.

With more husbands sharing "hot stoves" and "bawling kids," they can't be expected also to mow lawns and shovel icy sidewalks. Neither can the working wife be making as strongly her "lib" feeling. So there could be an upsurge in demand for companies offering such services.

With women demanding more cultural freedom — libraries, theaters, concert halls, lecture halls — many may be moving back to the central city and away from the bucolic quiet of the suburbs. What happens to the department stores that followed them into the suburbs?

The greatest beneficiary of the movement may be the publishing business. Books on "lib" include such best sellers as Kate Millet's "Sexual Politics," Germaine Greer's "If Men Only," Elizabeth Janeway's "Woman's World, Women's Place" and many, many more.

Changes in code proposed

BOISE (UPI) — A special state Supreme Court committee working since May has prepared approximately 20 new rules planned to speed up the criminal justice process in Idaho.

The committee, headed by Supreme Court Justice Charles Spear and Boise attorney Mack A. Bedford, a member of a public defender law firm, will submit the rules to the judiciary and attorneys throughout the state.

Idaho's high court plans to adopt the new rules for Jan. 1, the effective date for the revised Idaho Criminal Code.

The new rules remove the complicated formalities of pleading, defense attorneys use to prevent a case from coming to trial. They incorporate provisions that remove the concept of discovery and eliminate minor concepts as the need for a warrant to arrest in all criminal cases and the absolute requirement that the accused have the opportunity for a preliminary hearing.

The rules would allow prosecution as well as defendant attorneys to move for a change of venue, would permit the defendant to waive a preliminary hearing, trial and sentencing, and will permit a declaration of mistrial by motion.

Heart lead gave me four heart tricks. Then I started on clubs. The declarer dropped and my 10 of clubs squeezed poor Dec. He had to chuck a diamond, so I had four diamond tricks. The ace of spades was my 11th.

"Then the fight started and we never got to finish the rubber. Dum didn't like Dec's double. Dec didn't like Dum's lead. Not that it mattered. I was sure of 13 tricks on any lead, since East was in a progressive squeeze."

"Did you ever get an explanation of the Mock Turtle's bidding? Was his four-club call a transfer bid?"

"Of course not," replied Alice. "They do everything backwards in Wonderland. Why were you playing in the Black Wood, so naturally he was using Gerber?"

"You know," said Alice, "that battle between Tweedledum and Tweedledee was not about a rattle. It was about this hand."

"I was lost in the darkest forest I had ever seen when I saw a small house in the middle of a clearing. I walked in. A card table was set up. An enormous turtle, sat North and quiet-looking twins sat East and West. The turtle said, 'Cut, Dum.' Then he said to me, 'Sit down and play.' These are Tweedledum and Tweedledee. I am the Mock Turtle."

"The bidding went as shown in the box—I was going to seven no-trump without Dec's double!"

IF A MAN was in the habit of spending one night a week with the boys before his wife's pregnancy, he should continue to do so. Such is the reported advice of obstetrician Dr. George Schaefer of the Columbia University Medical College. "Some women," he says, "feel they are doing society in general and their husbands in particular a great favor by bearing children; and they may make unreasonable demands. Forget them." Our Love and War man regards this counsel as hard, but fair.

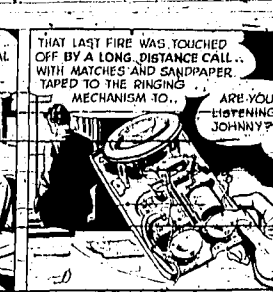

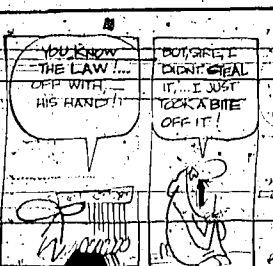

CUSTOMER SERVICE Q. "Who was the first man ever reported from this country? A. That was a swinging soul named Thomas Morton. He was charged with lewd and lascivious activity in Massachusetts and sent back to England in 1628. History records that Mr. Morton delivered suggestive remarks to innocent young ladies—'I wish that Wild West character known as Calamity Jane finally sent to prison?' A. Believe not! She put in some time as an Indian scout for the U.S. Army; then wound up as a Government mail carrier. Never was an outlaw, as far as I know.

Snow melting in high country near Stanley

STANLEY — Snow is starting to melt in the high country in the Stanley Basin area, said District Forest Ranger Tom Kovallyck.

In the northern portion of the Sawtooth national forest, hiking trails are still snowed in above the 5,000-foot level. Alpine Lake is starting to break up, with all lakes above this level still frozen.

The road into Seafoam area is unsuitable for auto or trailer towing travelers. Spring snowslides are unpredictable along this road making travel hazardous, Kovallyck said. In about 10 days this road will dry up and be passable for recreational travel.

All the developed campgrounds are now open and campers are reminded that annual Golden Eagle passport requirements are being enforced. They are $10 for the season of $1 for a day.

Heavy snow conditions collapsed one section of the sheep bridge adjacent to the Sunny Gulch Campground this spring, and forest crews removed the bridge. The access road into Stanley Lake has been recently graded and should be in good shape by the July 4 weekend.

In the fall, the forest crews will reconstruct about three miles of the road into Stanley Lake, preparing for eventual paving. Three new toilets have been constructed to eliminate existing pollution problems in the Stanley Lake vicinity. Salmon River, Marsh Creek and Valley Creek are running high, with the crest expected within the next five-day period. Fishing activities have been slow, but lots of people are visiting the Stanley Basin to fish side streams.

A special trailer dump site is available for self-contained trailers.

Fire control officer, Moll Sanderson, urges the public to leave fireworks at home in planning a National Forest outing. "They are illegal and any person discharging them is subject to prosecution," Sanderson said.

He asks cooperation of the public in use of the forest and facilities, pointing out that vandalism has been rising each year. Signs, tables, toilets are bearing the brunt of the damage.

Awards presented Tragedy may start study of program

CHALLIS — Length of service awards have been presented to Allen and Bill Ebberts, said Wes Carlson, Challis National Forest Supervisor. Mrs. Ebberts received a 25 year award for service while Bill Ebberts received the 20-year award. Mrs. Ebberts has held the positions of payroll clerk, payments, property, personnel and typing, presently serving as voucher examiner for the forest. Ebberts has held various positions with the forest service, presently working as purchasing agent for the Challis National Forest.

MOSCOW (UPI) — The tragedy of Soyuz 11 will bring an immediate halt in the Soviet Union's current space station experiments and may start a top-to-bottom reevaluation of the entire manned space program, western space experts said Wednesday. If weightlessness was to blame for the mysterious deaths of these record-breaking Russian cosmonauts as they returned to earth Wednesday morning, the experts said, America's manned spaceflight program will be as profoundly affected as that of the Soviets. What happened to cosmonauts G. G. BEZUKHIN, VIKTOR PATAYEV and VIKTOR TOKOV? They seemed to be healthy when they began their descent after spending 23 days, 17 hours and 40 minutes in orbit? There was no evidence of mishap during descent. Some experts blamed the tragedy on the return to gravity after the long period of weightlessness. Man's body grows "lazy" in weightlessness because it is not subject to gravitational pressure. The heart works less, the blood flow eases, muscles grow soft. They said the vital organs of the dead cosmonauts, unused to such strain for more than three weeks, could have been overwhelmed during reentry.

Agency to give tourist data

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Highway Board of Directors announced approval today of a "general policy" for providing advertising and tourist information at the state's rest areas.

The board said the policy still lacks details and added the board must seek legal advice as to whether the state can obtain revenue from the type of advertising being proposed, most of which would be maintained by commercial advertisers.

The policy outlines plans for billboards facing away from the interstate system which will contain advertising and tourist information. About half of the space would include information for the state itself, while the other half could be used for advertising.

The plan also included audible tapes which would be placed at the areas, about 40 percent of which would contain advertising with the rest for public information.

The board also authorized use of consulting engineers for designing six miles of State Highway 68 to be reconstructed between Mountain-Home and Hill City, design of 14 structures on the interstate between the Montana line and Dubois, and for widening five structures on State Highway 55 from Marsing North.

Others on the committee are Dan Sudran, Parma, with the Farm Workers Health Committee; Rick Poplack, Caldwell, western Idaho legal aide with the office of Economic Opportunity; Julio Periz, Caldwell, from the committee on Mexican-American affairs; Don Bushnell, Boise, from the Department of Employment Farm Labor Services; and Bob Olsen, Boise, Idaho Department of Health.

Committee formed for sub-standard housing

By CHARLOTTE BELL, Times-News Writer
JEROME — Determining the extent of sub-standard housing within Idaho and developing means to remedy the situation will be the major aim of the newly formed committee on housing standards.

Mrs. Julie Sloat, Jerome, member of HOPE (Help Other People Everywhere) attended a meeting of the committee in Boise Tuesday where these plans were outlined in detail.

Mrs. Sloat said the committee was organized to develop a plan of action aimed at getting standards of housing adopted during the next term of Idaho Legislature. The group is a sub-committee of the Governor's Advisory Council on Comprehensive Health Planning.

recommended for adoption. Mrs. Sloat said they will be looking for a realistic approach to supplying standard housing for the migrant and low-income citizens of the state.

Prior to the July 20 meeting, also to be held in Boise, each member of the committee is to come up with an estimate of the local needs in their respective areas and to determine feasibility of building low-cost housing in different areas of the state. Consideration will be given to the thought that "erecting low-cost income housing rather than fixing up old camps may be the best approach."

The 1960 Census showed that nearly 30 percent of Idaho's housing is sub-standard. "Some of those," however, "may have been classified as substandard because they had a septic tank rather than a sewer," said Dr. John Cambareri, director of Comprehensive Health Planning with the Department of Health, who is a member and spoke at the committee meeting.

Dr. Cambareri said "We can't just look at housing; we need to know how many workers are coming into the state, at what time and how long they will stay." He added "By the time the legislature meets again, we want to be able to go to them with as much data as necessary to get something done about housing for these people."

Mrs. Anna Platoneta, Nampa, sub-committee chairman, and active member of Community Action Agency in Nampa, said the new committee is also concerned with inadequate housing for college students, the physically handicapped and aged.

Others on the committee are Dan Sudran, Parma, with the Farm Workers Health Committee; Rick Poplack, Caldwell, western Idaho legal aide with the office of Economic Opportunity; Julio Periz, Caldwell,
