Morocco coup crushed

RABAT, Morocco (UPI)—Belgian Ambassador Marcel Dujrot, three Moroccan army officers and several other persons were killed when the rebels burst into a reception at Hassan's Skirat summer palace Saturday. Uninjured Hassan later told the nation loyalist forces crushed the attempted coup.

Hadreddine Snaoual and the king's brother, Prince Moulay Abdallah, were injured, the officials said. U.S. Ambassador Stuart W. Rockwell also was at the palace during the coup attempt but was unharmed. Hassan told the North African nation of 15 million over state-run Rabat Radio the attempted assassination and coup involved 1,400 men and was led by the director of the army training college, Gen. Mesboub. "The rest of the army remains loyal," he said. There was no immediate word on the fate of the rebels. Hassan said the coup was crushed by forces loyal to him. Hassan said he invested all civil and military powers with Interior Minister Gen. Mohamed Oufkir, who announced shortly before midnight, "the situation all over the provinces of the kingdom is calm."

"King Hassan II, supreme chief of state and of the royal armed forces, holds the reins of power with the clairvoyance and wisdom that have always characterized his attitude towards his people," Oufkir said. The king earlier told a French radio station he suspected the rebels had foreign support.

"I know the Libyan government had not stopped appealing to the Moroccan people to join the mutineers—I call them mutineers and not rebels—so there are political ramifications behind this," Hassan said.

The official Moroccan news agency said several officers at the academy persuaded their troops to go to the Skirat palace, 10 miles south of Rabat, because the king's life was in danger. The officers—who were trying to overthrow the king—burst into the reception and began firing at Hassan when some 30 truckloads of soldiers arrived at the palace, the agency said. In the confusion that followed, the soldiers realized what was happening and pledged their loyalty to the king," the news agency said. Witnesses said the officers fled in army jeeps. Loyalist troops recaptured Rabat Radio from the rebels who had held it for six hours and had announced, "The king is dead; long live the republic." The radio abruptly went off the air after two hours of martial music and similar pronouncements.

Women join in '72 bid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—More than 200 women with strikingly divergent backgrounds sought to unite Saturday behind a new organization dedicated mainly to electing female candidates in the 1972 political campaign. But delegates to the two-day meeting of the National Women's Political Caucus quickly found themselves heatedly debating issues rather than plotting strategy.

The extraordinary gathering—Democrats and Republicans, blacks and whites, housewives and professionals, union leaders and welfare mothers—demonstrated little agreement on numerous political questions ranging from abortion to pollution.

After hearing eight opening speeches by some of the more prominent delegates, the women closed their session to the public and began trying to find a common ground. Kay Camp, chairman of the meeting, said the women were in "absolute agreement" on the need to get more women into office "on the local, state and national levels." The question is who will we support and what will be the positions on the issues. Mrs. Camp, who is president of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, said she doubted that the women would settle many of their differences before the start of the second meeting Sunday.

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., said women have to run for office to get better government, not just to attain sexual equality with men. "It is certainly not my purpose to replace or to supplement a white, male, middle-class elite with a white, female, middle-class elite in the political power structure," said the Manhattan congresswoman.

Other women who gave opening addresses were Women's Lib leaders Betty Friedan and Gloria Steinem; Evelyn Cunningham, a black member of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's staff; Fannie Lou Hamer, a Mississippi civil rights leader who plans to run for the U.S. Senate next year; and Dorothy Haener, an official of the United Auto Workers of America.

Mrs. Friedan, in a keynote address to the delegates, said the Women's Liberation Movement is very strong now, but "if it doesn't become political, it will peter out—turn against itself and become nothing."

Selassie asks U.S. support

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (UPI)—In a toast to U.S. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia called Saturday for United States support of "total liberation of Africa."

The toast came at the end of an elaborate lunch given by the emperor at the Jubilee Palace for high-ranking American and Ethiopian guests less than two hours after Agnew's plane broke through rain and low clouds to land at Addis Ababa. Agnew flew to Ethiopia on the first leg of a three-nation visit to Africa after pledging to Arab leaders at an airport ceremony in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, that the United States would continue the search for "peace with justice" in the Middle East.

"My government is committed to seeking a lasting peace in this region of such great importance to all the world," Agnew said. "We shall continue with this important search to achieve peace and justice."

Death probe continues

FAIRFIELD.—Cameo County Sheriff Paul Cox said late Saturday investigation is continuing into the death of a 34 year old Gooding sheepherder found dead in his camp in the same Smokey area.

Cox said Joshua Guarachena died of gunshot wounds but there was no evidence of foul play. He was employed by Faulkner Sheep Co., Gooding. A camp leader found the body at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, Cox said. "It was believed the man had been dead for several hours. Services are pending at St. Thomas Chapel, Gooding.

Cancer virus isolated

SOUTHBOROUGH, Mass. (UPI)—The isolation of a cancer-inducing virus from the tissue of a species of monkey was announced Saturday by an investigative team from the New England Regional Primate Research Center.

Dr. Luis V. Melendez, leader of the research team, said the herpes virus was isolated from primary kidney tissue cultures of the South American black spider monkey. Marmosets inoculated with the virus died of malignant lymphoma with leukemia 28-40 days later. The discovery, Melendez said, provides strong evidence in support of hypotheses that such viruses may be the cause of various cancers in man. Current evidence suggests, he said, that herpes viruses are associated with infectious mononucleosis, Hodgkin's Disease, Burkitt's lymphoma, cancer of the nasal passages, and cancer of the cervix.

Medal conferred

Jennifer wins another fight

BOISE — Bright-eyed Jennifer Weeks, the 18-month-old Boise tot who sparked the nation's interest with her unique allergy to food and all milk except mothers' milk late in 1970, is recovering from her latest bout with near-tragedy. Young Jennifer underwent heart surgery at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco, with the help of the Idaho crippled children's program. Surgeons enlarged an opening near her heart where two arteries meet to allow blood to flow freely. Jennifer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Weeks, Boise, has spent a goodly portion of her life in hospitals with her unusual medical problems. A year ago, she was kept alive by donations from nursing mothers, including a number of Magic Valley women, who sent their milk by refrigerated truck to a Boise hospital which was serving as a clearing and reception center. A Magic Valley dairy, Home Dairies, volunteered the use of their refrigeration facilities in their daily Boise-bound trucks to transport the milk. Young Miss Weeks was kept alive with the donations until she became old enough to subsist on goats' milk — the only other kind of food she could tolerate. She is still slightly below normal weight, tallying only 20 pounds at 18 months, according to reports, but is recovering in good shape from her heart surgery.

Chilean relief effort pushed

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—Blankets, coats and tents were rushed Saturday to 100,000 Chileans left homeless by an earthquake that caused heavy destruction in four provinces. The mighty tremor, which registered 10 on the Mercalli Scale of 12, killed at least 81 persons and hospitalized 400 with injuries. President Salvador Allende said the destruction of housing was the most serious problem created by the quake which struck late Thursday night with aftershocks continuing Friday morning. Despite the disaster, Allende said he planned to make the keynote speech at Rancagua Sunday for a national fiesta marking nationalization of U.S. Anaconda, Kennecott and Cerro Corp. copper interests. Late Sunday afternoon congress will ratify a constitutional reform of the property rights clause giving the state immediate possession of the three U.S. mining operations, already partially nationalized under mixed-company agreements. Allende ordered a crash program to build 15,000 modular emergency homes. The state will requisition lumber if necessary for the construction, he said. He called for camping organization to loan their tents to the homeless pending the construction effort.

The Disaster Relief Department of the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) sent 2,000 quarts of blood Saturday, and two C-130 Hercules transports from Panama arrived with blankets, coats, tents and sleeping bags for the homeless. Peru, Argentina and Cuba also dispatched relief flights.

Jets evade Reds

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist gunners fired three missiles at an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance jet over North Vietnam Saturday, but according to jet fighter-bombers did not strike back at the rocket sites. To the south, B52 bombers struck in five waves against Communist forces near Fire Base Fuller.

On the south side of the demilitarized buffer zone, six formations of B2 Stratofortresses dropped about 600 tons of bombs on Communist troop concentrations, bunker complexes and infiltration routes, spokesmen said.

Work lack big worry

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. (UPI)—Western governors gather under the shadow of the Grand Tetons this week to commiserate over a common problem—not enough jobs for their constituents.

Representing regions as diverse as Watts and Winemucca, Berkeley and Billings, the governors also are worried about drugs, welfare and how to further develop their states without destroying the natural beauty that lured Americans out West in the first place. Politics likewise is very much on the minds of the 13 governors whose annual conference officially convenes Monday and ends Thursday.

The last time the Western governors met, Republicans predominated 10-3. But in the GOP setbacks which accompanied last November's off-year elections, Democrats wound up occupying seven Western statehouses and the Republicans only six. In a survey of all the western governors, UPI discovered their first concern is the crunch of high unemployment and reduced tax revenues, six listed this as their states' biggest problem.

Utah Democrat Calvin Rampton listed drug abuse as his state's biggest problem. Only one governor—California's Ronald Reagan—regarded an overhaul of welfare as his top priority.

The escort jets are authorized to react if their electronic gear shows an antiracraft battery is zeroing in with its radar even before a missile is launched. The last time missiles were fired at an American plane from North Vietnam was May 16. U.S. military spokesmen said the reconnaissance aircraft was not hit by any of the missiles fired while it was over the coastal city of Dong Hoi, 45 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone that separates North and South Vietnam. They were the first missiles fired at a U.S. aircraft in almost two months. Military sources said the reconnaissance aircraft was photographing North Vietnam supply troop movements and supply dumps in the Dong Hoi area. U.S. Command spokesmen said they did not know why there was no immediate "protective reaction" strike by American jets riding shotgun for the recon plane.

Price hike hit

WASHINGTON, (UPI)—Americans will pay 20 per cent more to heat their homes with oil this year "because of the oil import quota program," Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Saturday.

Proxmire, chairman of the Joint Senate-House Economic Committee, said that removing the artificial price support provided by the quotas would be an effective way of curbing inflation. The quota maintains a tight supply of oil in the United States, he said, thus driving up the cost of oil. Humble Oil Co., he said, has projected a 1.5 cent a gallon increase for the coming heating season. Proxmire estimated that American homeowners who heat with oil "will spend an additional 4.5 cents per gallon" on heating—a 20 per cent increase over last year. "There is no justification for continuing the program in its present form," he said. "Inflation is one of the greatest dangers facing our economy."

Rodeo edition comin'

TWIN FALLS.—National High school rodeo comes to Magic Valley Aug. 3-8, and it will be the biggest event ever for Southern Idaho.

In recognition of the event, which will attract more than 600 contestants from 25 states, the Times-News will publish a special National High School Rodeo edition. It will be a supplement to the Times-News on Sunday, Aug. 1.

The potential for exposure of Idaho's image as a hospitable state with endless recreational opportunities will also be pointed-out. The tremendous amount of work involved in producing the rodeo—it's been four years in the making from the Magic Valley standpoint—will be reviewed. The National High School Rodeo is truly a big event, from the hundreds of head of stock needed to the thousands of spectators expected. The Times-News special rodeo edition will cover it all.

Every aspect of the rodeo, from cowboys and cowgirls who will be competing to the committee making the event tick, will be detailed in photo and story. There will be colorful articles about rodeo queens, rodeo queens, and rodeo stock.

The financial aspects of the six-day, 11-performance rodeo at Filer will be reviewed. The rodeo has a budget of $30,000. It is expected to bring many hundreds of thousands of dollars in extra revenue into Idaho.

The large special edition will be packed with pictures and stories about the scholastic rodeo and about the sport of Idaho.

Give blood Monday, 2-7 p.m., Legion Hall

Hagerman woman joins blood appeal

By WILMA LARSON
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — Residents of Twin Falls and the surrounding area are asked to support the July blood drawing Monday from 9 to 7 p.m. in the American Legion Hall with the usual summer slow up in donations making the blood need more critical.

Red Cross Chapter blood committee members say the first blood drawing here was the first time in more than two years the local chapter has failed to reach the 150 pint quota and it is hoped Monday will see a return to the long time record for this area.

Summertime travel and recreation brings many accidents and often increases the demand for human life saving blood, Chairman Bill King reports.

At the same time, many dependable donors are away on vacation or busy with summer activities and unable to donate. He asked everyone who can to take a few minutes of their time Monday afternoon to support the life saving program.

Norma Jean Woody, Hagerman, widow of Nicholas W. Woody, joined King in an appeal for blood donations. "I didn't realize there was such a need for blood and that blood drawings were so important until my husband became ill with leukemia," she said.

He was 28 years of age and the father of two small children when he died on Memorial Day in the LDS Hospital in Salt Lake City. "Nicky had lost almost a year to the day," she recalled, "and during that time had received about 300 pints of blood."

Of this, 200 pints were required during the last five weeks of his life, she said. Woody was hospitalized in Salt Lake City, his sister, Helyn Woody, was attending the University of Utah. Through her efforts and cooperation of University students about 100 pints of blood was replaced.

Mrs. Woody is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman L. Billington, also Hagerman, and has two children, Theran, 8, and Joann, 5. They have returned to Hagerman to make their home. She said her two biggest problems now are finding a home in which to live and finding a means of repaying the blood used at the LDS Hospital.

Copper strike talks recess

By United Press International
An industry-wide copper strike that most observers said was out of the question before it happened is in its second weekend with no end clearly in sight.

Talks between the United Steelworkers of America and Anaconda Co., Phelps Dodge Corp. and American Smelting and Refining Co. (ASARCO) were recessed for the weekend.

Kennecott Copper Corp. discussions with the USW broke down Thursday and no meetings are planned, although one union official expressed some hope that the talks might resume soon after a period of re-examination.

There was no report on the progress of the Phelps Dodge or ASARCO talks, being held in Tucson, Ariz., and San Francisco respectively.

However, a joint statement from both sides at the Anaconda talks in Helena, Mont., indicated near agreement on a wage package and readiness to begin discussing local issues.

The wage offer from Anaconda apparently would come near the $1.20 mark unofficially established as the USW goal for a three-year contract.

Local issues were reported the stumbling block in the Kennecott talks. J.L. Nielsen, secretary for the USW bargaining team for Kennecott, said the company's tie-in of wages to work rules changes was unacceptable to the union, as is the 86 cent an hour wage offer for the three-year period.

Nielsen also said that while the workers were protected from possible layoffs, attrition would reduce size of work crews and Kennecott would not fill vacancies created by departing workers.

Physician claims arrest unjustified

TWIN FALLS — Dr. Willard M. Peterson, Twin Falls physician, arrested Thursday night following a disturbance in a local eating establishment, issued a statement Saturday in which he charged he was assaulted by police officers and his arrest was unjustified.

Officers were called to the business place by Paul Stone, an employe and placed the doctor and his two sons under arrest.

Dr. Peterson said, "It is true I had made some remarks to Stone when he refused a beer to my son on the basis of his age. This is the first time I had ever been in a bar with my 19-year-old son."

"We were asked to leave and we agreed to go as soon as my older son and I had finished our beer. Immediately after this two policemen appeared. There was no violence at any time up to this point, nor any threat of violence."

Talkers meet

WINDO ROCK, Ariz. (UPI) — A nostalgic reunion is being held here by 60 Navajo Indians who developed the only secret voice code never broken by the enemy in World War II.

The ex-Marine radiomen who originated the code served in both the Pacific and European operations from 1942-44 after being recruited from Navajo reservations in New Mexico, Arizona and Utah.

Martin Link, head of the Navajo Tribal Museum, said about 400 of the radiomen served during the war. Those attending the two-day reunion will review some of their code-talking days with simulated transmissions, he said.

"It was the only code used during the war that was never broken," Link said. "They not only used their language, they also used a code in the Navajo language so even another Navajo couldn't tell what they were saying."

Where does your family use the most hot water?

Kitchen? bath? laundry?

Obviously you can get the most economy from your water heater by eliminating long pipe runs and installing it near the point of greatest use. And with electric water heating, you can install it anywhere.

Build your electric water heater into your kitchen cabinets, install it in the bathroom or laundry area. It doesn't matter where the chimney is located, or whether you even have a chimney. Who needs them in this all-electric age?

When you take this install-it-anywhere economy, include matchless operating efficiency plus Idaho Power Company's low, step-down rates, it adds up to a big bargain for all electric water heater owners.

It's another among the many ways electricity serves you best.

FLAMELESS ELECTRIC LIVING FOR A NEATER, CLEANER WORLD

Plans progress despite rumors

KETCHUM—Ignoring rumors of possible trouble during the annual Wagon Days celebration scheduled in August, members of the Wagon Days committee voted to hold the three-day event.

Committee Chairman Ivan Snyder said that for the past several years there have always been rumors of undesirable occurrences during the event, but all have failed to materialize.

Rumors this year have it that members of the Peoples Liberation Army will hold anti-law enforcement demonstrations and plan to disrupt the celebration.

Members hoped to squelch these rumors with "intelligence reports" that few, if any, PLA factions exist in this area.

The abundant resource of law enforcement officials could handle any occurrences. These reports plus the popularity of Wagon Days prompted the committee to proceed with plans for the celebration Aug. 20-22.

The committee also voted to lower the age requirements for the Wagon Days Queen contest. Entrants must now be between the ages of 15 and 24 to qualify.

It was noted if an entrant under the age of 18 won the contest she would not qualify to compete for the Miss Rodeo Idaho crown. However, the committee felt by lowering the age qualification, a number of talented girls would be allowed to compete for the local title, Swanner said.

Holland "Holly" Houburg, Wagon Days announcer and television advertising coordinator, revealed dates set for laping advertisements with various Idaho television stations. Funds for publication of horse show entry forms were also approved.

Utah medic to discuss snakebite treatments

TWIN FALLS—Dr. Clifford C. Snyder, professor and chairman of the division of plastic surgery, College of Medicine, University of Utah, will discuss "Controversies of snakebite treatment; 15 years of clinical and research experience" when he speaks in Twin Falls at 8 p.m. Thursday.

The program, also featuring slide and still pictures provided by Dr. Snyder, will be given in Rooms 117-118 in the Shields academic building at the College of Southern Idaho.

Dr. Eilwood T. Rees, local physician - surgeon who arranged the program, said the discussion by Dr. Snyder will be of interest to "anyone who goes into areas where there are snakes."

"Because of this, special invitations have been issued to members of the South Central Medical Society and their wives, the Artifacts Club, the Twin Falls County Historical Society, the Magic Valley Gem Club and the Northside Gem and Hobby Club. Seating is available for only 120, so we urge interested people to arrive early," Dr. Rees said.

Dr. Snyder has a varied background in the field of medicine, according to Dr. Rees. In addition to plastic surgery and related fields, he is a recognized expert in snakebite treatment. He is a native of Texas and received his bachelor of science degree and doctor of medicine degree from the University of Tennessee. He subsequently had general surgical residency at the Jackson Memorial Hospital in Galveston, Texas.

He is certified both by the American Board of Surgery and the American Board of Plastic Surgery. He has had teaching appointments at the University of Texas medical branch in Galveston and at the University of Miami School of Medicine in Miami, Florida.

Dr. Rees also announced members of the Magic Valley Gem Club and guests will meet at his home, 808 El Monte St., following Dr. Snyder's talk.

Mrs. Bess Truman leaves hospital

KANSAS CITY (UPI)—Bess Wallace Truman, 86-year-old wife of former President Harry S. Truman, was dismissed today from Research Hospital where she had been a patient since June 21.

Mrs. Truman entered the hospital for what her doctor described as a "routine physical examination."

Announcement of her dismissal came without elaboration. At the same time, however, the hospital announced Mary Jane Truman, the former president's

... sister, was admitted to the hospital late Thursday for treatment of injuries received in a fall several days ago at Warsaw, Mo.

The hospital said Truman's sister suffered a skull fracture and several broken bones in her right foot. She was listed in "good but guarded" condition. She walked into the hospital, the spokesman said.

Each day his wife was hospitalized, Truman made the 30-mile roundtrip to the hospital.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If information now in hand is correct, the heroin traffic with American troops in Vietnam is likely to get worse despite U. S. efforts.

United States to service the addicts they have developed in the Far East. Some of this information comes in letters from a friend in close contact with the Vietnamese police, some from American officials charged with keeping an eye on illegal Vietnamese traffic and some from American customs officials, who make no bones about the difficulty they face in preventing heroin smuggling.

are an interconnected group of Chinese financiers in Hong Kong, Singapore and Macao. These men are international, with business associates in Thailand, Laos, Malaysia, South Vietnam, Burma and Communist China. In the main, however, the top men are themselves believed to be neither Communist or non-Communist.

"I WISH PEOPLE WOULD STOP TWISTING MY ARM..."

Destry Rides Again

Rolland Wilber has done it again. As a result of his intricate planning and "clever" maneuvering we find the Republican party closer to an all-out split than it ever was.

We have in mind his decision to have the State Central Committee meeting in Coeur d'Alene rather than in Boise. The Coeur d'Alene session will be on Saturday, July 17 and it just has to be a rather drab affair because it appears from here the party faithful from the Second Congressional District will be out in the cold.

The Second District Republicans have an outstanding candidate to fill the unexpired term for National Committeewoman. Their candidate is Mrs. Oriette Sinclair of Twin Falls.

The Second District Republicans have not had a person in leadership for many years. The big Republican vote is in South Idaho.

This should be the time for the party to be solidified into a working organization, fully united and with all facets in cooperation. But right now it doesn't look that way.

By deciding to hold the Committee meeting in Coeur d'Alene rather than Boise the State Committeeman has made this unification all-but-impossible. Why?

For one thing it is a long ways from south Idaho to north Idaho. A mid-meeting place like Boise would have been appropriate for all. In the second instance most of the Republicans will, on that date, be at Sun Valley in connection with the national lieutenant governor's conference hosted by Lieut. Gov. Jack Murphy. They just can't make it on that date. So not only did Wilber select the place to his own liking but he also set the date.

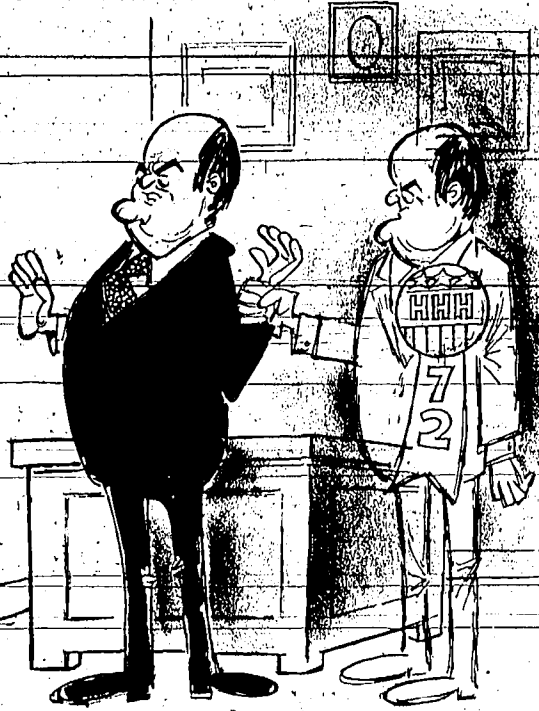

His action has made it very difficult to make the bid of Mrs. Sinclair for the high post a successful one.

Once more he has flaunted his power, and the power of his cohorts, in the face of the majority of the Republicans of the state.

He has been, and is continuing to ride rough shod over a great majority of the party members.

His backers point out he is "fall in the saddle."

We point out that if the horse isn't taken out from under him — and soon — the Republican chances in the general elections next year are dead.

A friend who is an officer in the opium detail of the Thai police says that some members of the Chinese communities in several nations work together in a close "family" relationship similar to that of the Mafia in the United States, with their own codes, "kinstip" loyalties and enforcement procedures. The bankrollers are "businessmen" who get into any field where the profits are large and the risks small. They move from one type of operation to another according to opportunity. Opium, from which heroin is refined, is just another profitable business venture. The financial wealth, the wide connections and the lightning nature of the high command of these operations make successful attacks on the structure most difficult. The opium is grown principally in northern Burma, Laos, Yunnan Province in mainland China and northern Thailand. In considerable measure it moves down through Thailand. Where the conversion is made into heroin is not clear at this time. It is estimated that 1,000 tons of heroin a year moves out of Thailand, but this figure cannot be confirmed as of now. Most of the heroin coming into South Vietnam probably moves on a variety of planes, some Vietnamese-run, some American, some military and some civilian. It is thought that some of the men connected with the operation are Vietnamese and some American. Some officials suspected (and named in correspondence by U. S. officials) are closely related to high officials in the South Vietnamese government. Though the bankrollers have wide trade, financial and official associations throughout Southeast Asia, their connections with heroin distributors in the United States are believed limited, and it may take some time to develop efficient connections, most American distributors being associated with European or Latin America rings. But the Hong Kong-Singapore-Macao men do have relationships with a number of shady trading companies in the United States and other countries in connection with some of their corrupt import-export ventures. These associations could conceivably be utilized in making the contacts necessary for developing the heroin trade here.

Battle Rages

WASHINGTON — A battle is raging within the heart and mind of Sen. Ed Muskie that could result in the Maine man standing for the Democratic Presidential nomination as the party's "conservative" candidate. The quotations are mandatory because Muskie's conservatism would be that of a liberal who refuses to embrace the philosophy of the party's left. That is to say, Muskie is not about to present himself as a Democratic Richard Nixon who can get it for the electorate wholesale.

What Muskie wants most is to place himself squarely in the center, as a candidate who tackles the Republic's social issues with compassion as well as vigor, but who divorces himself from the more radical — socialist, if you will — solutions to the nation's ills. As an example, there is the comment of a Muskie aide that "Ed just doesn't feel comfortable with the crowd that is rallying around Angela Davis" — the avowed Communist who is awaiting trial in California on murder, kidnap and conspiracy charges.

Indeed, Muskie expressed himself forcefully when he learned that the Presbyterian Committee on Church and Race had donated $10,000 to Angola's defense. "That was a god-damned foolish thing to do," he told intimates. Muskie's credentials as a moderate are imposing enough, but there is another reason for his inclination to avoid the extremists. That would be the emergence of Washington's Sen. Henry Jackson as a bona fide candidate. Jackson, the party's right-leaning spokesman, showed unexpected strength in a recent Gallup Poll of 1,424 county chairmen across the country. Jackson is far from a household word among Democratic voters, but despite his only tentative moves toward a candidacy, he placed fourth in the poll. Muskie was miles ahead, placing No. 1 with 225 votes — 27 percent of those polled. But Jackson ran ahead of such candidates as Sens. George McGovern, Birch Bayh and Harold Hughes, and New York Mayor John Lindsay.

More significantly, perhaps, Jackson's 9 per cent of the vote was only two percentage points below Sen. Ted Kennedy's 11 per cent, and only 6 points below the 15 per cent given Sen. Hubert Humphrey. This early in the game, that is tremendous showing for an unannounced and unheralded candidate whose organization is still pretty much a gleam in Jackson's eye. It tells Ed Muskie that he almost surely will have to do business with Scoop Jackson on the road to the convention.

Another warning signal to Muskie is Kennedy's continued popularity with the party's rank-and-file. The Gallup survey showed Kennedy's topping the vote among plain Democrats with 29 per cent, Muskie second with 21 per cent, and Humphrey third with 18 per cent. One way to neutralize Kennedy's strength, of course, would be for Muskie to make a deal with Jackson.

It is perilous to make predictions at this stage, but it seems virtually certain that the battle-for-delegates at Miami Beach will be one between the moderate-to-conservative branch of the party and the liberal-to-extreme segment. The liberals argue that the Democrats' only chance to win the White House is to avoid putting up "another Nixon." But all the polls so far show that the party's nuts-and-bolts men, who will do the nominating, are leaning to the right.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK

From Ellsberg

WASHINGTON — The flawed vision of Daniel Ellsberg in viewing the Vietnam war, a falling that was to have profound implications for his country, was laid bare in a private memorandum he wrote for the Pentagon on Feb. 28, 1968, spectacularly misinterpreting the just completed Communist Tet offensive.

Ellsberg, then a Vietnam expert for the Rand Corp., think tank, had been asked to interpret the bloody Tet offensive for the Defense Department's Office of International Security Affairs (ISA). His memorandum was apocalyptic: "I think that the war is over" — Communists taking over the countryside, the South Vietnamese government and army deteriorating, a rapid renewal of the Communist offensive. "Two months from now things are going to get much worse," he said, precluding any possibility for improvement.

No prophecy could have been more false. In truth, the Tet offensive was the Communist high-water mark, triggering a three-year decline in their Vietnamese strength (which may now be ending). But Ellsberg, exasperated with Saigon's corrupt government and shoddy army, could see in Tet only the vindication of his own warnings. It was a view widely shared in ISA whose staffers wrote the Pentagon Papers.

Thus, the spectacular mistakes of Ellsberg's 1968 memo transcend the personal. His flawed vision is the flawed history of the Pentagon Papers. It is the all-is-lost syndrome that deeply influenced U.S. policy in the months after the Tet offensive and finally led to Ellsberg's disclosure of the Pentagon Papers.

For these reasons, Ellsberg's errors about Tet are worthy of examination. Herewith are some prophecies he sent the Pentagon along with the actual outcome of events.

Ellsberg Prophecy No. 1: The Communist Tet offensive of Jan. 28 - Feb. 29 was a prelude to "the takeover of the countryside" by the Vietcong, "Inexorably sucking" South Vietnamese and U.S. forces "toward the environs of the towns and cities, away from the hamlets and outlying regions." The actual outcome: By their desperate Tet attacks, the Communists depleted their forces in the countryside and have not adequately rebuilt them since.

Ellsberg Prophecy No. 2: The Vietcong will be drafting ever more recruits, whereas South Vietnamese armed forces "will probably be considerably smaller." By April 1, Saigon's force "will be, at most, 75-80 percent of its actual strength in December 1967, and quite possibly closer to 60 percent" because of heavy desertions. The actual outcome: Saigon's forces increased by 122,000 the next six months, finally surpassing one million. In contrast, Vietcong recruiting in the countryside was never the same, and the Communist war effort was increasingly carried by regulars from the North.

Ellsberg Prophecy No. 3: "It is the death of pacification" — Communist control of South Vietnam will steadily increase, never receding. By April 1, "U.S. subsector teams will be withdrawn from a number of districts, and a number of province towns will be under siege. Some will have fallen." Some 400,000 U.S. troops would be needed to prevent this. The actual outcome: Far from U.S. teams being withdrawn or province towns falling, Communist control of the countryside steadily receded, without any increase in U.S. troops.

BRUCE BISSAT

Sen. Jackson

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington will make his key early run in the 81-vote Florida primary next March — if he decides late this year to become an avowed 1972 Democratic presidential bidder.

Jackson's visit to Florida this July will be his fourth there. And his chief field operative, the veteran Ily Raskin, is canvassing the state after a recent probe of Oregon, another major primary state.

The focus on Florida obviously reflects Jackson's judgment that he would stand an excellent chance of corraling delegates there in a likely competition with Senators Edmund Muskie, Hubert Humphrey, Birch Bayh, Harold Hughes and possibly others. For the same reason, Jackson may give a lot of time to the new Tennessee primary coming up next May 4. Some leaders there have told him he has a real edge right now.

What baffles the cheerful, outgoing Washington senator these days is the small but influential New Hampshire primary. Just a short time back, Jackson had another ex-hilaratory meeting on New Hampshire, conferring for more than an hour with nearly 50 of that state's Democrats, including the 1970 governor nominee, Roger Crowley. But the session, held in Boston, was inclusive.

Jackson properly figures Muskie has a long leg up on New Hampshire. The polls so indicate. The questions for Jackson are whether he might make a respectable showing, as his supporters contend, and whether he needs to take the risk of trying to build quick credibility as a challenging candidate. At the moment, both the New Hampshire and Florida primaries are set for March 14, but the former probably will change to March 7.

Jackson in July makes his first foray into New Hampshire after long months of fending off appeals from Crowley and others.

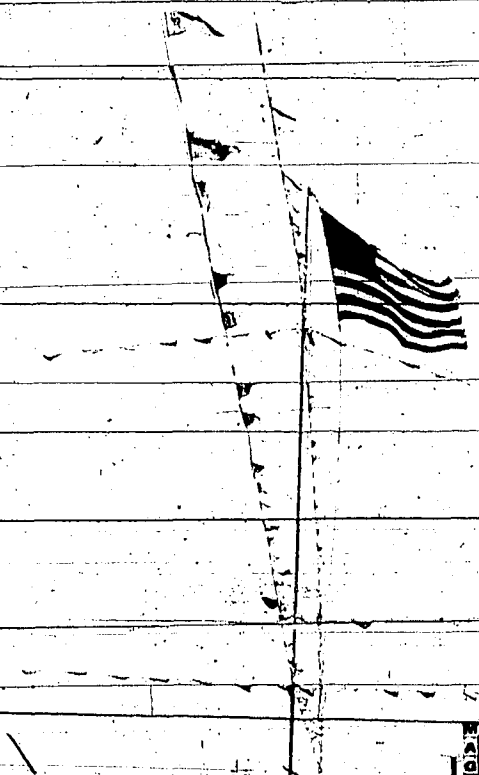

The senator shows little sign of slackening pace. He already has hit 20 states, with some stress on the South, Southwest, and West. He has been to crucial California (271 votes) more often than any other candidate. The pace, the continuing inflow of money, the field probing of Raskin, and the visible encouragement from key labor men add up to a very serious effort. He is cautiously practical, however, about the well-reported interest shown by AFL-CIO President George Meany and others. In an interview, Jackson said: "Labor has opened all the doors to me. But they're keeping their options open, too."

The senator's blend of hard-line defense views and domestic liberalism captivates labor and helps him in the South. In his travels, he works hard to keep the balance, to keep his liberal record in plain sight. Bits from his last trip to West Virginia:

"I'm a liberal. I believe in doing something for the unfortunate. I'm a lifelong environmentalist. As one who fought the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy..."

MR. SPECTATOR

Old Glory Flies

Awhile ago Mr. Spectator pointed out the number of places where Old Glory should be in evidence — but was not.

We still have quite a distance to go before all those places put up the flag — but we did cause a little progress. First to get the patriotic fever was the Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co. We still haven't seen any evidence of Old Glory being displayed at any of the other three downtown banks.

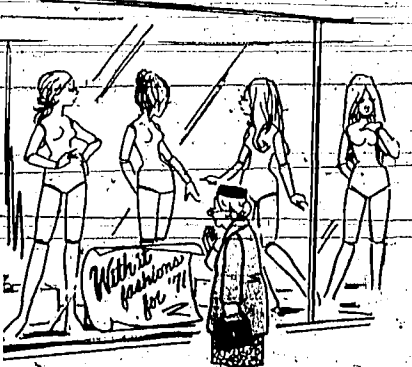

We originally pointed out that two major shopping centers in Twin Falls didn't show Old Glory. Well, we now report that the Lynwood Shopping Center has taken care of the matter and has two big flags much in evidence. Praise be the Lynwood Shopping Center officials. A picture of one of their flag poles heads this column.

So that's the way it goes. We are waiting patiently to see if patriotism still lives in the other instances mentioned.

Common Sense

Editor, Times-News:
We all believe in beneficial use of our natural resources, which are land, water and air and what goes along with each. Our human resources are mainly the controlling and regulating factor in this big machine.
Whether we go ahead or stay bogged down depends on the people. By using plain, common sense we can work our way out. They tell us we have a population explosion. It is true, our people are concentrating in our big cities with nothing to do. Well, what about all the millions of acres of tobacco grown and no doubt subsidized down south? Doesn't that amount to a lot of smoke? Who benefits from tobacco? All the land in tobacco produces an obnoxious weed which in turn is shipped all over the world to contaminate our homes and people. What we need and need badly is a net rid of tobacco crusade.

St. Paul, the apostle, was no doubt one of the world's greatest teachers. He taught: "Prove everything. Hold fast to that which is genuine and good but that which is false, injurious or bad, eschew it." Which means shun it, leave it alone. There's not much you can do with a rotten egg. The main thing is to prevent it from getting more rotten.

The dedication program at Three Island Park was an outstanding success. We are very thankful to all those who participated in the program and so generously donated material as well as financial support.
It would be impossible to add up the amount of material and effort put into this outstanding celebration. It was because of the most generous contributions

Limit On Moscow

WARSAW — Although mixed with some skepticism, both Communist and non-party leaders here now feel that the December crisis, far from heightening the danger of Soviet military intervention in Poland, served to set limits on Soviet power for the first time since the post-war construction of the Soviet empire.
Moreover, the view that the December crisis defined a new limitation on Soviet military power also has persuasive supporters among long-time Western experts here.
In retrospect, then, the important lesson to be drawn from the workers' riots last December is not so much the danger of civil war and the toppling of the Gomulka regime, but rather that the December crisis found Moscow frightened by its own impotence.
When former party boss Wladyslaw Gomulka perceived both his party and his country crumbling around him on Dec. 14, his spontaneous reaction was to ask the Kremlin to intervene. Moscow's immediate reaction was to ask the Kremlin to intervene. Moscow's immediate response was a hard, flat no, followed by a strong message to the Polish politburo to immediately reverse Gomulka's mangled fist strategy and adopt a conciliatory tone to the raging workers.
The Soviets, in short, took the private line to this party colleagues in Warsaw that the crisis was strictly a Polish crisis, having nothing to do with the Russians.
But secretly, the Kremlin not only was frightened, it was agonizing over what to do. Reliable reports received here strongly hint that the Soviet general staff went into 24-hour-a-day meetings on Dec. 14, disappearing from all normal functions, as they figured the odds on military intervention.
When they learned that the Polish army chief had resigned his post, rather than follow Gomulka's order to fire on the workers, the Soviet military leaders drew the correct conclusion: If they intervened, the Polish army might very well resist, backed by the workers and most of the population.
Soviet intervention under those bleak conditions would require nothing less than Soviet occupation of the most homogeneous, nationalistic, and largest country within the Soviet bloc, an occupation in hostile territory which might well be resisted every inch of the way.

Poland, in short, is no Czechoslovakia. Moreover, the workers' riots in Poland were anti-government, not anti-party. There was not, as there had been in the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, a problem of doctrinal deviation inside the Communist party. Incredibly bad economic planning, not political revisionism, was the cause of the crisis.
It was to prevent a bloodbath whose repercussions would gravely damage the party, that led Moscow to counsel a conciliatory approach to the workers. But even with that, the Polish Communist party, disorganized and atrophied at the top after 14 years of Gomulka, barely rattled Gomulka's replacement by pragmatic Edward Gierek in the crucial Dec. 20 politburo vote.
Evidence of just how deep the Soviet interest was to prevent continuation of the Gomulka regime, or its replacement by an even harder-line party boss, is abundant. Thus, had the vote gone against Gierek on Dec. 20, the Gierek faction (with full Soviet backing) would have called a meeting of the 125-member central committee to overturn the politburo. Had that failed, a full-dress party conference would have been summoned to install Gierek.
Moscow, in other words, was reduced to backstairs lobbying to prevent the December crisis from escalating beyond control. The Kremlin was a horrified spectator, not a principal actor in that tragic and heroic December drama. The possibility of military intervention was circumscribed not only by the question of the Polish army's "loyalty" but also by the fact that intervention would have been a dagger in the heart of the Soviet campaign for central European detente, a campaign intimately connected with the dangerous Soviet-Chinese border dispute on the Soviets' Eastern frontier.
Hence the new limitation on Soviet power within the Communist bloc. Preventing any recurrence of a genuine workers' uprising here must now be a major Soviet objective.

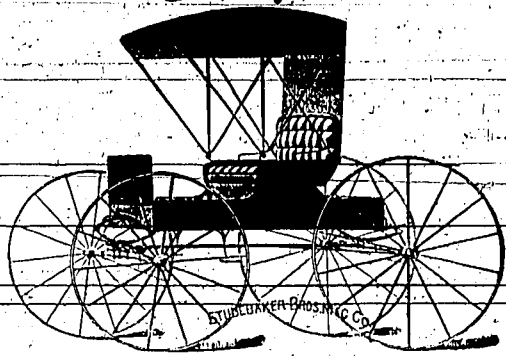

CHARLES C. LOONEY

A Downtown Asset

He said he loved them twice. Once when they arrived to visit and once when they left. He was speaking of his grandchildren but he had his tongue in the side of his mouth when he said it.
In other words Charles S. Looney, a Twin Falls broker who has just retired, was doing what comes naturally and what has caused him to be a downtown fixture down through the years. He was kidding!
Even his name gets raked over the coals.
His advertisements urged you to C. Looney. When you talked to him on the side he would ask: "Who could forget a name like that. It's kept me eating all these years."
He came to Twin Falls just 20 years ago. He had been a lot of places and traveled to a lot of spots in this nation before that time but now he's content to live out the rest of his year right where he is.
"No place in the world is like Twin Falls," he said, and he means it.
His late father was a Methodist circuit rider and a veteran of the Civil War. His late mother came of the same pioneer stock. Now, as he retires, he can count a wife, five married children and 16 grand-children "in the fold." He has been married "to the same gal" for 47 years. It seems like everything has progressed during the time of marriage.
"When I started to eat her cooking I tipped the scale at 155 pounds," Looney said. "Now I practically break it at 225 pounds, I must admit one thing. It isn't all muscle."
Looney was born in Lockwood, Mo. 71 years ago. He received his higher education at Kansas State Normal and later at the Kansas State Teachers' College. He was superintendent of schools in two Kansas communities from 1921 through 1929 and then served as deputy clerk and assessor for Reno County. In St. Louis, from 1935 to 1947, he was associated with Anheiser Busch Co. as district sales manager. He was distributor from 1949 to 1951 and then came to Twin Falls where, in 1953, he entered real estate as a partner of the late J. E. White. After Mr. White's death he operated the agency until 1957 and then changed the name to C. Looney, realtor.

In Twin Falls he is a member of the Methodist Church and for years sang in the choir and did solo work. "I used to have a real, low voice but I lost it somewhere along the way," he said.
He had been a member of the Elks lodge for 34 years, was first president of the Multiple Listing Service, was president of the Twin Falls Board of Realtors in 1957 and was re-elected to that post in 1967 but declined to serve for reasons of health.
He has served as appraiser for the National Public Service Insurance Co. and for some local banks. He has also been active in farm appraisal work.
In his retirement he will continue to "keep his hand in" the situation by being an assistant broker with the firm of Beth Wickham, who has taken over the Looney business. He will "sell a little, perhaps" but plans on a little traveling here and there and also a little fishing in the Stanley Basin country.
So, as he changes his business course, Looney once more says "there are no people like Magic Valley people."
"Our friendships with these folks are endearing ones," he said. "It has been a series of wonderful years around here and both my wife and I are thankful we were able to live here."
To which the Times-News might add that the shoes fit both ways. The downtown section will never be quite the same with Looney away.

Advertisements in early editions of the Twin Falls News are on a par with the news stories of those days — so we bring you three examples at this time.
They are from papers ranging from 1905 to 1907 and offer the reader a variety of possibilities for investment. For example, take the "Izzler" advertisement. Even today's advertising would have to go a long ways to dream up something like that one.
Then note in the Twin Falls Investment Co. advertisement that you could buy land around Buhl for 50 cents an acre — which isn't really bad.
And if you were hungry then there was the Harder Bakery come on. He could be found at the brick oven with the big high chimney.

Prayer For Today

Dear God, what is Peace? Everyone talks about it, and most everyone seems to want it enough to fight for it. The ones who don't want to fight for it, fight against the fighting. It's very confusing. Once you said, "My peace I give unto you." I wonder, dear God, why we don't try your kind of peace.

Artist now kingmaker

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—Lerol Jones, the militant black artist who first gained fame for his poems and plays, has become a behind-the-scenes political kingmaker in his native Newark, New Jersey's largest city.

Once the darling of New York's off-broadway, Jones now directs from his tiny office in the heart of this city's shabby central ward the Committee for a Unified Newark, a fund raising group that successfully spearheaded last year's drive to elect Kenneth A. Gibson as Newark's first black mayor.

He has been deeply committed to the city's antipoverty programs, led community opposition to last winter's teachers strike, pioneered the start of an experimental teaching technique and has still found time to keep writing.

"I don't think I've changed in my own development," said Jones, commenting on his more recent activist role. "I just think I've become more mature and learned better how to use my energies. I don't spend as much time writing and I don't write as many poems, but I'm still a writer and I still write a lot of essays and editorials."

He termed his early days as a writer "just a maturing process, and added: "I don't think I'm at the point anyway when I'm ready to write my best work ... to write the epic that I want to do and at the same time do them in the way they're supposed to be done. I think we in the black community will eventually be able to publish our own works, publicize them a lot more, and I think they'll probably be better works."

Jones was recently embroiled in a bitter dispute challenging his control over the city's umbrella antipoverty agency, the United Community Corporation (UCC).

A slate that opposed David Barrett, a close ally of Jones, in his bid for re-election to the UCC board of trustees was defeated after charging Jones had misused $1 million in federal funds.

Mayor Gibson termed it a "dirty fight," and declined to take sides. He said he let people who worked for him "do whatever they wanted to do" and members of his staff had been on both sides in the struggle.

In a wide-ranging interview evaluating Gibson's first year in office, Jones said "the corruption, the degeneration of the city has been halted." But he said the mayor has "barely touched the surface of the problems of a city plagued with corruption and slums, and torn by bloody riots four years ago."

"We still have an enormous amount of maturing to do in terms of using political power," Jones said, "and right now the mayor is trying to understand what it is to be in power ... to understand what is going on. But in terms of the strides that have to be made, we've got to start taking some long, giant steps."

TV Westerns fade off tube

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Network television's traditional Western series have gone thataway. In the new season that starts this fall, there will be only two weekly frontier epics in the old-fashioned vein: "Gunsmoke" and "Bonanza."

Normally, one would say that this is just another cycle that television is passing through—that such weekly, traditional Westerns come and go over the years. There is good reason to believe, however, that the old-fashioned frontier tale—except an occasional one-shot movie—will never again reach the prominence it has had in the past on the home screen. In short, it is simply being phased out.

The reason for this break with the past is as simple as the networks' desire to appeal to the younger, urban audience. With the population getting younger, and more persons living in urban regions, new tastes have evolved for the majority of viewers that video is catering to. The old-fashioned Western is considered pretty outdated for this audience, which has hipper tastes and is more likely to react to more contemporary, droll treatment of frontier tales, like "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid."

It is interesting that the traditional Westerns were mainly 19th century tales, whereas video's more hip, modern-styled oaters are likely to be set around the turn of the century, or even a little later. As one network executive said, "what the traditional Western era is to the older generation, World War I is to the younger set. Anything much earlier than that in American adventure tales is likely to be pretty ancient stuff to them."

Considering today's population distribution and the prominence of the younger generation, there seems little chance that the old-fashioned Western will have much of a future on television.

Examples of the old-style frontier epics that have been canceled from video, as of next season, are "The High Chaparral" and "The Men From Shiloh" (formerly "The Virginian"). To show you how the networks are thinking, "The Men From Shiloh" actually had pretty good ratings, but executives felt it simply wasn't bringing the desired audience.

Concorde new target

WASHINGTON (UPI)—With the American supersonic airliner consigned to the scrap pile, environmentalists are taking aim at the British-French Concorde.

Already well into its test flight phase, the 1,400-mile-an-hour Concorde is scheduled to be delivered to airlines by 1975. In 1976 its builders predict that Concordes will be making 122 flights a week between Europe and the United States.

But this prediction is based on two assumptions: First, that the Concorde will prove to be an economical plane for airlines to operate; and second, that it will meet U.S. noise-control standards.

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) is expected shortly to issue a rule banning sonic boom-producing flights by supersonic airliners over U.S. territory. By fall, FAA will announce proposed rules on landing, takeoff and sideline noise for airliners.

John Powers, acting director of the Office of Environmental Quality for the FAA, said the rules will be designed "to give citizens maximum protection" from noise.

But there is controversy between environmentalists and the FAA over what is "maximum protection."

Powers says the FAA is bound by congressional order to develop its rule on noise using two guidelines: The noise levels proposed must be technically feasible and economically practical.

"I don't think a noise rule is going to be developed that will sound the Concorde," Powers said. The British and French are ever more optimistic about meeting American noise requirements.

Leo Schefer, a spokesman for British Aircraft Corporation, builders of the Concorde, says the 120-passenger plane is as quiet as any current four-engine jetliner. If the claim proves valid, any proposed rule designed to bar the Concorde would also bar jumbo jetliners and the Boeing 707 and the DC8 from airports.

But Nalech Halaby, president of Pan American, who has an option to buy eight Concordes, is not so sure the plane is ready for airline service. Halaby said this month he has "serious reservations" about the Concorde's noise problem and its economic viability. He suggested the airlines be given six months to test the plane before they buy it.

Six other U.S. airlines—United, American, Trans World, Eastern, Continental and Braniff—have options to buy Concordes at a cost of about $24 million each.

Most of the U.S. airline industry—which lost $175 million in 1970—is showing only lukewarm interest in the Concorde. Trans World, with options to buy six Concordes, and Continental with options on three, have expressed public reservations about the plane's performance.

Other observers said attempts to downgrade the Concorde could be a bargaining ploy by airlines trying to get the best possible deal on the new planes.

Schefer says the British and French believe the Concorde will be able to meet any American airport noise standards. "If the standards are dropped—sharply—from the present standards, we would have a hard time, but we feel we can compete with any standards which would apply to four-engine subsonic jetliners," Schefer said.

In the background of the fight over the Concorde is the Soviet SST, the Tupolev 144. Like the Concorde, the Tupolev 144 is a 120-passenger, 1,400-mile-an-hour jet.

The Soviet plane was the star of the Paris Air Show last month and the Beirut and the French concede it sounded quieter than the Concorde. The Soviets, however, have made public no information about the Tupolev's landing, takeoff, or sonic boom noise.

Schefer says a ban on overland U.S. flights would not be a serious blow to the Concorde's economic value for an airline. The sonic boom rule is expected to be worked in a way that will prevent flights of supersonic planes which produce a boom that reaches the ground.

According to Schefer, the Concorde could fly at less than its top supersonic speed, and cross the United States without producing a sonic boom that would send shock waves to earth. Even at reduced speed, the Concorde still would "clip 40 to 50 minutes off the transcontinental flying time," Schefer said. At its top supersonic speed, the Concorde could fly from New York to Los Angeles in about three hours, half the present flying time.

A House commerce subcommittee is holding hearings on a bill sponsored by Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., which would go beyond the proposed FAA rule and ban flights over U.S. territory by any airliner "capable" of supersonic speeds. That would preclude domestic use of Concordes at throttled-down speeds.

Oscar Bakke, associate FAA administrator, told the subcommittee it would be much better to handle the problem of sonic booms by FAA regulation than by legislation.

Drugs their quarry

Park bill approved

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Interior subcommittee on Parks and Recreation approved today a bill creating two new national parks in Utah—Arches and Capitol Reef—and expanding Canyonlands National Park. The full House Interior Committee will take up the legislation July 28.

Rogers more confident

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—Backstairs at the Western White House: Secretary of State William P. Rogers has long been known as "Mr. Nice Guy" in government and Washington circles. But lately he has gained the reputation at the State Department for being somewhat of a "square."

Alde report Rogers recently laid down an ultimatum to two male staffers to get rid of their beards or be fired. They shaved.

One of his secretaries also shied away from taking a bikini with her when she accompanied Rogers on a trip to Lisbon. Her co-workers told her the boss would not approve.

Rogers, a tall blond handsome man, is always conventionally and conservatively dressed. Rogers is getting more surefooted as a diplomat after a shaky start. But he confides now that he likes the job and plans to stay on. He takes a back seat to national security affairs adviser Henry A. Kissinger on the Vietnam question but has a leadership role on the Middle East problem.

Reporters covering Rogers in Israel said he was a tough negotiator, telling Israelis "you will walk alone" if they started hostilities. The secretary and his wife, Adele, have rented a villa near the President's Pacific blufftop estate in La Casa Pacifica here for a working vacation.

Ceremonial Marine guards are used as doormen at the White House in Washington. The snappily garbed Marines—who are not armed—stand at the door of the West Lobby, the visitors entrance mainly for the President's staff, and persons calling on Dr. Henry Kissinger. President Nixon got the idea for using Marines at the White House from his long years of globe girdling when he saw them stationed at U.S. embassies in all foreign countries. The White House is guarded, however, by policemen who man guard houses at the various gates and desks throughout the mansion.

Every President had seemed to enjoy the touches of pageantry that accompany his prestigious role. "Ladies and gentlemen, the President of the United States," is always the signal to hop to your feet in the East Room.

First ladies seem to have a time keeping in step with "Hail to the Chief" as they march into a room or on the South Lawn. They tend to skip a little to keep up with their husbands. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis once teasingly reported that "Hail to the chief" was her husband's "favorite tune."

President Nixon, like most are used as doormen at the White House in Washington. The snappily garbed Marines—at night with the light shining on the statue of the great emancipator. But he revealed recently that he feels the "most impressive building" is the National Archives Building with its great marble columns. He said it is "more impressive" than the Capitol, the Lincoln Memorial, and even the White House.

He says its greatness lies in the fact that it speaks of the past "and what the nation stands for" and because it holds the Constitution, the Bill of Rights and the declaration, the documents that started the nation at the beginning.

The building also holds the nation's deepest classified documents. The top secret autopsy film and other confidential papers relating to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy are kept there and won't be opened for some 75 years.

'Save face,' Reds say

WASHINGTON (UPI) — These sources said North Vietnam has been telling the United States through diplomatic channels that the latest Communist peace offer is a chance to "save face" rather than suffer humiliating defeat on the battlefield, administration sources said Saturday.

That word has been relayed to U.S. authorities by French and East European diplomats, apparently on the basis of their conversations with members of the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks, these sources said.

This obvious attempt at goading the United States is counterbalanced, however, by an interview which North Vietnamese politburo member Le Duc Tho gave recently to the New York Times in Paris. The Le Duc Tho interview is regarded here as showing signs of flexibility and offering many of the Communists' usual anti-American references.

Administration officials have found various ambiguities in the seven-point peace plan put forward July 1 by the chief Viet Cong delegate in Paris, Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh. Nonetheless, the proposals are definitely thought to be worth serious study and an eventual response.

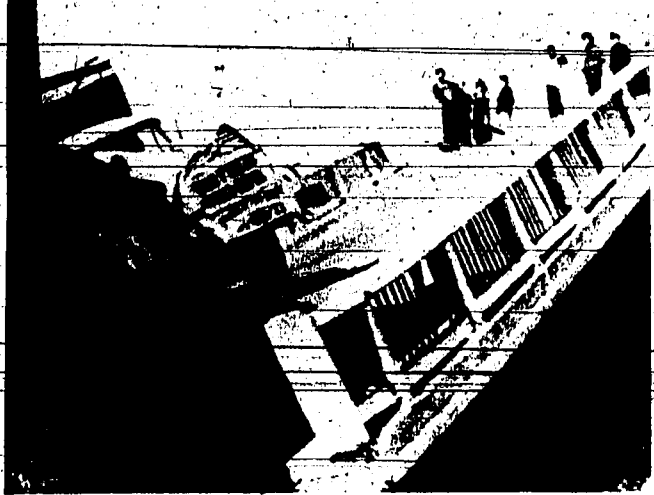

As President Nixon reviewed the peace plan with his highest diplomatic advisers in San Clemente, Calif., the State Department held open the possibility that Henry A. Kissinger, the President's chief assistant for national security affairs, might meet with Le Duc Tho in Paris on his way home from Saigon.

Kissinger was to have arrived in Paris Saturday, but his departure from Pakistan was delayed because of "a slight indisposition" described by one source as intestinal upset.

State Department officials said they had no firm word whether a Kissinger meeting in Paris might be arranged. But if it is, it doubtless will be highly secret with a minimum of publicity to give Kissinger the best chance of assessing whether the Communists are willing to begin serious negotiations at last.

Officials here are mildly encouraged by some aspects of the Communist plan, notably a new formula that would separate the question of South Vietnam's political future from the military and humanitarian problems of a U.S. troop withdrawal and release of American prisoners of war.

Several points in the Communist plan are completely unacceptable to the administration, principally the matter of North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam and the call for the replacement of the current Saigon regime by a government of "national concord."

Quake dumped truck

Satchmo's rite simple, solemn

NEW YORK (UPI) — About 600 "cats" who loved Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong and his music gathered Friday to say goodbye to a "genuine American folk hero."

The funeral service in Corona Congregational Church in Queens was simple but solemn — far removed from jazzmen's funerals at which Armstrong had often played in New Orleans.

The trumpeter and singer died Tuesday, two days after his 71st birthday.

Fred Robbins, a disc jockey and friend of Armstrong's said, "There's a little bit of pop in every bit of jazz they're playing today. Jazz is America's great cultural contribution. It was its symbol."

"He was our most gifted, genuine American folk hero. He bubbled with spirit and pleasure when he played and sang."

Robbins' eulogy concluded with "move over, Gabriel, here comes Satchmo. The saints are marching in."

Singer Peggy Lee, wearing a black gown, sang "The Lord's Prayer." "Just A Closer Walk With Thee" was sung by Prof. Hugh Porter, an authority on sacred music and the blind singer, Al Hibbler, sang "No-

Recall 'law abuse'

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — State Sen. Fisher Ellsworth, Idaho Falls, said Friday a citizens group seeking his removal from office have "abused the recall law."

Ellsworth said it was "rather unfortunate" that a small group of people who "have contributed so little to their community, their county and their state" could seek the recall of himself and State Rep. Aden Hyde, Idaho Falls, for their position on a single issue.

He said the action by the citizens group "We the People" amounted to "harassment" and precluded the recall attempt, could have far-ranging implications for other state lawmakers, if successful.

Ellsworth said the recall provision was intended to remove legislators from office who were guilty of malfeasance, dishonesty, dereliction of duty, drunkenness, or having committed a felony.

"I don't believe I am guilty of any one of these things," Ellsworth said.

The citizens group is seeking to turn Ellsworth and Hyde out of office for their yes votes on a bill to raise legislators' pay. A key provision of the bill raised the daily scale of lawmakers from $10 to $25 when the legislature was in session.

Ellsworth said if lawmakers could be turned out of office on the basis of one issue, lawmakers may fear to express themselves on a controversial issue for fear of recall.

Bonneville County Clerk Keith Long will decide next Tuesday the date of the recall election, with a simple majority needed to keep Ellsworth and Hyde in office.

Labor law questioned

BOISE (UPI) — A member of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Mexican-American affairs sought Friday an attorney general's opinion on the constitutionality of the state's new labor law.

Jose Estrada, Caldwell, presented a letter to Gov. Cecil D. Andrus seeking the opinion on portions of the law dealing with picketing, boycotts and tonnage required for labor elections.

Andrus said he would relay the letter to Attorney General W. Anthony Park.

Andrus, meeting in an hour-long session of the committee, also asked members to furnish him with names and addresses of farm workers living in the United States illegally.

He said while he realized "normal procedure is not to squeal on a brother," he said recent "is not as important as the fact that when he's holding a job then that job's not available."

Also discussed during the session were conditions at labor camps. Humberto Puentes, Welser, chairman of the advisory committee, alleged the State Health Department was not enforcing state laws requiring adequate sanitation facilities.

Andrus requested the Health Department to provide a list showing when inspections had been made of the state's labor camps.

The governor also took exception to a published report that there was sufficient work available, at least in Canyon County for the Mexican-Americans. "The Idaho Free Press published results of its own survey of labor camp managers."

But Andrus said such was "not the case. It's the other way around."

He and H. Fred Garrett, state employment department executive director, said there were only 15 requests for workers in the Nampa and Caldwell employment offices Thursday.

We would like to advise people that if they need employees, we have a full list of workers available," Andrus said.

Angela, Magee legal losers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Angela Davis and co-defendant Ruchell Magee had their day in federal court Friday and were returned to jail the legal losers.

U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti denied motions to have their Marin County murder case transferred to federal jurisdiction and barred Magee from filing any additional petitions that would further delay the trial.

In addition, he turned down Miss Davis' petition that Gov. Ronald Reagan be arrested and tried for leading a conspiracy against her because she admitted being a Communist while teaching philosophy at UCLA.

Conti said before a case can be transferred to the federal courts it must be shown that the state law involved conflicts with the federal civil rights law.

He noted that Magee already has 17 petitions on file and said "I can't conceive that Congress intended the statute to be used to abuse the processes of the court. I'm not going to sit here and allow him to file petitions day after day and impede the trial in Marin County."

Miss Davis and Magee were driven 15 miles across the Golden Gate Bridge for the two-hour hearing and then returned to jail in MARIAN County. It was the first time Miss Davis was removed from the jailhouse since her incarceration Dec. 22, he said.

Taiwan sought as N-arms site

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon has strongly advised President Nixon to choose the island of Taiwan, home of Nationalist China, as the new site for U.S. nuclear weapons which must be taken off Okinawa it was reported today.

The Washington Post, quoting unidentified sources, also said the State Department is opposing the recommendation for several reasons, including possible provocation of the People's Republic of China at a time when the Nixon administration has been trying to improve relations with the Communist government in Peking.

The nuclear warheads on Okinawa must be transferred to another site under terms of a treaty signed June 17 by the United States and Japan. The pact, currently awaiting Senate ratification, provides for return of Okinawa to Japanese control and removal of all U.S. nuclear weapons from the island.

Officials at the State Department and the Pentagon refused to comment on the report.

Spud case appeal set

BOISE (UPI) — Attorneys representing 60 potato growers have appealed to the Ninth Circuit Court from a U.S. District Court decision which rejected the growers' claims Boise-based potato processors conspired to fix prices.

On April 5, U.S. District Judge Ray McNichols ruled processors fixed prices from 1963 through 1966. The suit also asked damages of 33 cents per hundred weight of potatoes sold to the two firms.

The appeal was filed by the San Francisco law firm of Joseph Alloto and Son.

Gen. Jose Joaquin Matallana, director of national defense, said more than 200 persons were drowned or missing.

Previous reports listed 43 drowned in the town of Puerto Asis and 20 in Puerto Limon. Hundreds of homes and business establishments were reported destroyed in a number of towns along the three rivers.

Floods hit

BOGOTÁ, Colombia (UPI) — Relief teams sped Saturday to southern Colombia where towns were inundated by heavy rains and flood waters of the Putumayo, Caqueta and Ariari rivers.

Daydreaming while driving can create nightmare situations, advises the Idaho State Police. Be an attentive driver and arrive at your destination safely.

No reply planned

CALDWELL (UPI) — Canyon County commissioners have indicated they do not plan to write an item-by-item reply to an Office of Economic Opportunity report critical of the Canyon County Community Action Agency program.

The region 10 evaluator in Seattle, John D. Prinos, had requested the item-by-item reply. But commissioners, contending the report had an "obvious lack of objectivity," said they felt "too much of the information pertaining to Canyon County and the people therein, contained in this report is erroneous and misleading."

In a letter to Prinos, the board said the report gave little consideration to the "tremendously improved operation of the present CAP agency as compared to the previous administration."

Trevino steadies on final hole for win

SOUTHPORT, England (UPI)—Lee Trevino, squandering a five-stroke lead and taking a nearly disastrous double bogey on the 17th, rapped in a birdie putt on the last hole Saturday to win the British Open golf championship with a one-hole margin over runner-up Alan Hogg.

Leading by one stroke on the final tee, Trevino coolly reached the green in two and lagged the ball to within two feet of the cup, leaving an easy putt for a birdie to become the fourth man in history to win both the U.S. Open and British Open in the same year.

His nerveless touch on the final hole also averted another playoff—for the 31-year-old Texan, who had to go an extra round to win the U.S. Open against Jack Nicklaus four weeks ago and headed an extra sudden-death hole to win the Canadian Open against Art Wall last weekend.

The victory gave Trevino an unprecedented sweep of three national titles within four weeks and first prize of $15,200. Bobby Jones, Gene Sarazen and Ben Hogan were the only other men who won both the U.S. and British titles in the same year.

"I told you I'd swap one of my U.S. Open titles for the British," Trevino said. "Now I don't have to."

However, on the disastrous 17th hole, it appeared that Trevino might once again be disappointed in his quest for the British title.

At the 17th tee, Trevino held a three-stroke edge over his smiling, hat-doffing playing partner from Taiwan, but then disaster nearly struck the Mexican American, just as it had last year when he lost the lead and tournament over the final 18 holes.

His drive landed in one of the mountainous sandhills on the 7,080-yard, par 73 Royal Birkdale course, and two recovery shots merely carried his ball into the rough. He finally reached the green and three putted for a double bogey seven.

"I really got the shakes then," said Trevino. "I think that was the key hole, and if I had managed a birdie to level with me I don't know if I could have made it on the last hole."

However, Lu failed to get his birdie and settled for a par five.

Trevino then got his winning birdie on the last hole, and Lu could do no better than match him.

British hero Tony Jacklin, trailed by a huge gallery, took third place with a 280 after a 38-33-71 in the final round, and Craig Defoy, a 24-year-old British citizen who was born in Pennsylvania, was next at 281 after a 69.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, never able to come to grips with the course, finished with an eagle three for a 69 and 283 to wind up in a tie with Masters champion Charles Co-

Funseth takes 1-stroke lead in Milwaukee open

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Rod Funseth, his short game working to perfection, broke from the jam-packed field Saturday to take a one stroke lead after the third round of the $125,000 Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament.

Funseth, 38, who has won just once in 10 years on the pro tour, trailed the five second round leaders by one stroke going into Saturday's play.

But he charged in front with birdies on his first two holes and never trailed after that as he added three more birdies on the front nine and two birdies and a bogey on the back.

His 6-under-par 66 gave him a 45-hole total of 201-12 under par on the 6,549-yard Tripoli Golf Club course.

Tied for second were two of Friday's leaders—Dean Rofram and Dave Eichelberger. Both fired rounds of 68 for totals of 202.

Deane Beman, one of the other leaders Friday, was one stroke further back and Dan Sikes and Ken Still, the other Friday leaders, were two of four golfers bunched at 204.

It was the third sub-par round in a row for Funseth, a native of Spokane, Wash., who plays out of San Jose, Calif. He had a 68 Thursday and a 67 Friday.

"If I can get it down to 65 tomorrow, that'll be pretty good," he quipped. "I've just got to play the same as I have and hope to make the birdies."

Funseth might have been able to enjoy a two-stroke margin going into the final round except for a bit of bad luck on the 18th.

His second shot on the par-4 hole went into the blencher. Given a free drop, he was still about 100 feet from the pin with a horrendous downhill lie in the rough. But he put the approach five feet from the pin and then blew the putt to take a bogey.

"I hit it (the second shot) badly. It was probably the best place I could have gone. But I left that putt hanging on the cup," he said.

His most spectacular shot came on the 45-yard seventh when he chipped in the hole from about 70 feet.

The final field of 71, which entered the day as the most tightly bunched on the PGA tour this year, spread out a bit after Saturday's play. Only seven strokes had separated first from 71st after the Friday round. But the spread was 17 after 45 holes.

Funseth, who lost a playoff with Eichelberger and Brian Allan at Greensboro this year, hasn't won a pro tournament since 1965 when he took his only tour win in the Phoenix Open.

First place after Sunday's final round will be worth $25,000 and nearly half the remaining field was still in the running with two dozen golfers within six strokes of the lead.

Miss Whitworth grabs lead in George Washington classic

HORSHAM, Pa. (UPI)—Kathy Whitworth, leading money winner of all time in women's golf, shot a three-under-par 35-35-70 Saturday to take a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the $25,000 George Washington Ladies Golf Classic.

Miss Whitworth, of Hutchinson, Tex., who has won four tournaments this year and 59 in her career, scrambled to break out a first-round tie with Jane Blalock.

After 36 holes, Miss Whitworth was at 138, eight under par, and Miss Blalock, who shot a 72 Saturday, was at 140.

Miss Whitworth missed six greens at the Hidden Springs Country Club, hit a ball out of bounds on the ninth hole for a double bogey, and missed a three-foot putt on No. 14 for a bogey.

Meanwhile, Miss Blalock stayed in contention, making a seven-foot putt for an eagle three on the seventh hole and salvaging a par after hitting into a trap on the 18th hole the first time in her two rounds also has been in the sand.

JoAnne Carner, the Women's Open champion, was alone in third place with a 69 Saturday and 141 total.

Marlene Hagge and Betsy Cullen were at 143 and five players double-bogeyed at 144.

including Mickey Wright, Beth Stone, Pam Higgins, Lesley Holbert and Mary Mills.

Mrs. Carner and Miss Higgins had the best rounds of the day, 69.

The tournament ends with 18 holes Sunday.

Stargell sets homer record

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Willie Stargell's two-run homer in the eighth inning, his 30th of the season and 10th against Atlanta, carried the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-4 victory over the Braves Saturday.

Stargell's drive was a one-out smash over the center field fence on Phil Niekro's first pitch. It came after Vic Davalillo had opened the inning with an infield single.

Stargell's home run binnacle against the Braves this year breaks a National League record since it expanded to 12 teams.

Sox take 12th 1-run victory

Yanks rally to edge Boston 5-3

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pinch-hitter Danny Cater greeted reliever Bob Bolin by lining his first pitch for a two-run, bases-loaded single in the eighth inning Saturday to give the New York Yankees a come-from-behind 5-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Sonny Siebert was working on a five-hitter and a 3-2 lead over the first seven innings but he was lifted after giving up a single to Horace Clarke, leading off the eighth. Sparky Lyle then came on and Jerry Kenney sacrificed Clarke to second and Bobby Murcer walked.

After Roy White struck out, Lyle walked pinch-hitter Ron Swoboda on a 3-2 pitch that was wild. Catcher Bob Montgomery tried to stop it but it bounced off the top of his glove and went to the backstop as Clarke scored the tying run from second base.

Angels stop A's on 6 hits

OAKLAND (UPI)—Andy Messersmith stopped Oakland on six hits for his first shutout of the season Saturday as the California Angels bounced back from a 2-0 inning, 1-6 loss Friday, with a 3-0 triumph over the A's.

The game was started 12 hours after the A's had outlasted the Angels in a five hour, five minute marathon which ended early Saturday morning.

Messersmith struck out eight and walked three as he evened his record at 8-8.

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Joe Pepitone hit his 12th home run of the season with a man aboard in the sixth inning to snip a 1-1 tie and Ferguson Jenkins pitched a four-hitter for his 13th win as the Chicago Cubs beat the San Diego Padres 3-1 Saturday.

Hulme, Revson nab 2 inside positions for Cam-Am race

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (UPI)—Denny Hulme and Peter Revson put the bright orange cars of Team McLaren in the first two spots Saturday in qualifying for Sunday's third race in the Canadian-American Challenge Cup series.

Jackie Stewart, in the LAM Lola, turned a time good enough for third spot on the starting grid during the morning session, but made no effort to better it during the afternoon. Instead, mechanics went to work again off the handling problems that have plagued the car.

Shortly after noon, Rainer Brezinka lost his McLaren M8B coming out of the sweeping turn-into-the-pit straight—the bright blue car careened down the dirt wall in front of the pits of the 2.6 mile Road Atlanta course. The car, shredded, burst into flames.

Speculators, who narrowly missed being struck by flying pieces from the wreckage, leaped a fence and dragged Brezinka from the car.

Miraculously, the 38-year-old driver from Toronto, suffered only a broken clavicle, broken ribs and superficial burns. He was in satisfactory condition at a Gainesville hospital.

Team McLaren appeared ready to continue its amazing five-year reign of supremacy over this rich 10-race event. Stewart, currently in the lead for the world driver's championship, handed McLaren a defeat in the last race at St. Jovite, but the matchbox-like Lola was not handling well Saturday.

Hulme, McLaren's number one driver, turned in a final lap of one minute, 17.7 seconds—116.9 miles an hour, or four-tenths of a second off the qualifying record set last year by Vic Elford in the now-illegal Chaparral 2J vacuum car.

Hulme's teammate, Revson, hung up a 1:18.1 for the outside pole and Stewart had a 1:18.7. Jackie Oliver qualified fourth in the low profile Shadow at 1:20.7.

Hulme won $2,600 and Revson $2,370 for their one-two qualifying performances.

The winner of Sunday's 100-mile race gets $15,000.

Thirty cars were expected to start the race in brutal heat that reached 83 degrees Saturday and had pit crews waiting with ice packs for drivers when they came off the course.

Stewart leads Reds past-Mets

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Jimmy Stewart, subbing at second base for injured Tommy Helms, slammed a bases-loaded triple and turned in a couple of spectacular fielding plays to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-2 victory over the New York Mets Saturday night.

Clay Carroll retired the Mets in the ninth inning replacing starter Wayne Simpson after a leadoff single by Ken Singleton. Carroll's save was his ninth of the season and preserved Simpson's second victory against two losses.

Harrison led off with a double to left field. Foster hit a home run to right. Perez hit a home run to left. Carter hit a home run to left. Taylor pitched to one batter in ninth. WP Simpson PB. Score: 4-2.

Houk has-beens beat Stengel's

NEW YORK (UPI)—Elston Howard's inside the park home run in the second inning gave Ralph Houk's team a 1-0 victory over Casey Stengel's club Saturday in the New York Yankees' nationally televised 25th annual Old Timers Day game.

The exhibition, preceding the Yankee-Red Sox contest, honored Yankee Old Timers from each of their 20 pennant winning clubs, starting with Roger Peckinpaugh in 1921 to Tom Yresh in 1941.

Howard's hit, which rolled to the scoreboard in left center field came off pitcher Ralph Terry.

The two "living" games also featured singles by two former Yankee centerfielders, Joe DiMaggio and Mickey Vernon, who put the biggest hands from the crowd.

Colts sign No. 1 choice

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Don McCauley, who broke O. J. Simpson's NCAA rushing record and was drafted in the first round by the Baltimore Colts, signed his rookie contract with the Colts Saturday, a day before the opening of training camp. McCauley, from North Carolina, rushed for 1,720 yards last year, breaking by 11 yards the single-season record Simpson set at Southern California.

Hiatt scores hole-in-one

Chick Hiatt, Twin Falls, scored the first hole-in-one of his amateur golfing career Friday evening at Blue Lakes Country Club. Hiatt used a seven-iron on the par-three, 140-yard hole. Witnesses were Kay Hiatt, Bob Goss and Vivian Goss.

Mix to end retirement

OAKLAND (UPI) — Ron Mix, nine times an All American Football League offensive tackle, told the Oakland Raiders Saturday he is coming out of retirement and will report to their training camp at Santa Rosa on July 14.

Mix is one of the last AFL originals. He played for the Los Angeles and San Diego Chargers since the league came into being but sat out last year while he worked to complete his law studies.

Last month he passed the California State Bar exam and the Raiders asked him to play again. The Chargers, who still held his contract, then announced he was the player to complete the recent trade for defensive back Dave Grayson.

Mix weighed 255 pounds the last time he played and is probably a little over that weight.

Conigliaro retires due to eye trouble

OAKLAND (UPI) — Tony Conigliaro, frustrated and upset because of poor play, told the California Angels Saturday he was retiring from baseball and going home to Boston.

Conigliaro told newsmen that he was quitting because of lack of complete vision in his left eye; but Angels General Manager Dick Walsh said Tony was quitting because he felt he wasn't doing a good job.

"I told me he was frustrated and upset at himself and felt it was time to quit," Walsh said.

The loss of Conigliaro was the second, for the fourth-place Angels. Two weeks ago, California-17 games behind Oakland in the American League West, suspended outfielder Alex Johnson.

Conigliaro was hit in the eye by a pitch from Jack Hamilton during the 1967 season when he was a member of the Boston Red Sox. Surgery restored partial vision to the eye and he returned to full-time duty in 1969 and hit 20 homers, drove in 82 runs and batted .255.

In 1970, he improved to 38 homers, 116 RBIs and a .268 average.

He was traded to the Angels during the winter and through Friday night's game had four homers, 15 RBIs and a .222 average.

Conigliaro held a news conference at 6 a.m. PDT to announce his retirement and flew home to Boston.

"I can't see out of the center of my left eye," he said, "and there is no reason to keep on playing."

Conigliaro twice blew up during Friday night's 20-inning, 1-0 loss to the A's. He struck out in the 11th inning on a wild pitch and ran for first but it was occupied by Ken Berry. Conigliaro claimed he was entitled to the base and railed at the umpires. He finally was restrained by his teammates and went back to the bench.

In the 18th inning, with Berry on first again, Conigliaro missed two pitches while trying to bunt. He then was called out on strikes and again blew his top. He flipped his batting helmet 60 feet into the air and then smashed it with his bat. Plate umpire Mel Anthony ejected him and when Tony got back to the bench, he hurled his bat out in the direction of first base.

Angel's manager Lefty Phillips blamed Conigliaro for the team's loss to the A's Friday.

"He doesn't even know the rules of the game," said Phillips. "He ran to first when he couldn't and then he foolishly argued the point."

"That guy is ready for an insane asylum. He does lots of things on his own. You never know what he's going to do."

Flood caused $1 billion loss

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The most disastrous flood in the nation's history, in terms of monetary loss, surged to its climax 20 years ago this week, an inland tidal wave that hurled into Kansas City's low-lying industrial districts at the end of a 250-mile trail of devastation. Losses totaled approximately $1 billion.

Could it happen again, despite the chain of reservoirs since constructed — along disaster's path?

"Possibly," says the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

"No," say industrialists who have backed their opinion with millions of dollars for rebuilding of the flood plain.

On Friday, July 13, 1951, the rain-gorged Kansas River, known to those who live near it as the Kaw, slammed nearly half a million cubic feet of water per second against levees and flood walls protecting Kansas City, then a supposedly floodproof community of about 600,000 persons.

The dikes were lopped and finally crushed. And the flood rolled like ocean surf through the Argentine railroad and grain elevator district, through Armourdale, where the pounding torrents splintered the tidy homes of hundreds of laboring men, and through the central industrial district where it churned 35 feet deep in factories and warehouses and drowned thousands of hogs and cattle that were swept from stockyard pens.

It was the final assault of a disaster that was spawned by 10 days of rain and which engulfed much of the State of Kansas.

Thanks to the speed of electronic communication, loss of life was relatively small. Eighteen persons were killed from the day in late May when Big Creek flashed from its banks at Hays, Kan., some 250 miles to the West, to the black Friday when Kansas City was struck.

Between its conquests of Hays and Kansas City, the flood had ripped through some 250 other communities including Topeka. It divided Kansas' capital city into two segments without street or highway link.

Kansas City's full recovery was measured in years and the pullout from immediate emergency required weeks. Just the removal of the bloated carcasses of livestock and the dredging of 16 tons of mud from the streets were Herculean operations.

Factory operators returning to their plants found dead hogs on loading docks, rotting in 100-degree temperatures; steers in elevator shafts, rats in every cranny. The odor of death hung over much of the city.

Volunteers working in the 60-man crews in the "hog detail" of the cleanup found it intolerable, despite gas masks, for more than brief intervals. Concrete mixers were used to prepare rat poison by the ton. Typhoid fears forced mass inoculations, but the disease never hit.

An oil tank adrift on the flood waters struck a power line and sparked an inferno of exploding oil tanks and blinding chemicals that raged for days, burning several square blocks of industry to the water line. Water service in some sections diminished to a trickle and although the populace was largely unaware of it, the city was defenseless against any fire that might have broken out.

Factory operators returning to their plants found dead hogs on loading docks, rotting in 100-degree temperatures; steers in elevator shafts, rats in every cranny. The odor of death hung over much of the city.

Volunteers working in the 60-man crews in the "hog detail"

Harry S. Truman, then President, flew to Kansas City to survey the disaster. He called the flood "the greatest loss by water in our nation's history." Later, Gen. Lewis Pick, then head of the U.S. Corps of Engineers, told the United States Senate the loss was approximately $1 billion.

There was no covering insurance. With a single exception, there still is none. Only about a month ago the Little Western Hotel in the river bottoms obtained flood insurance under a relatively new program that is available only to the "little people."

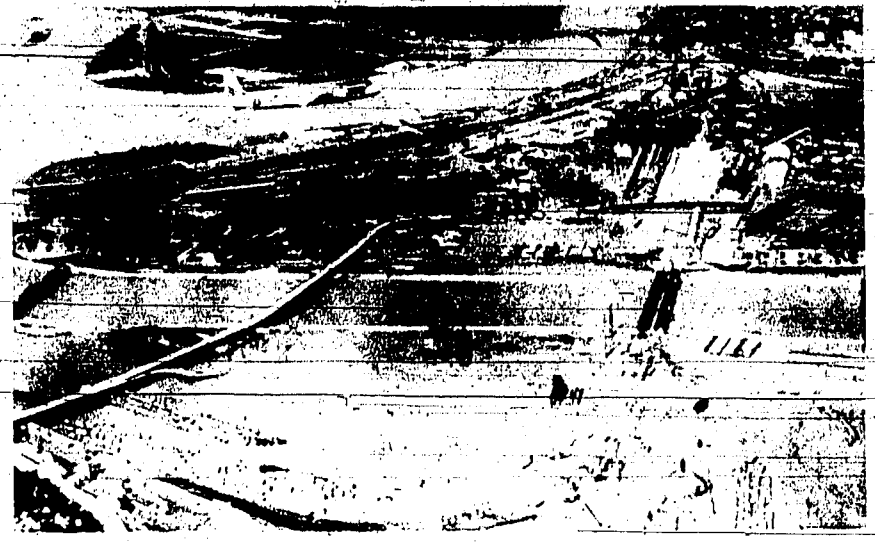

But Lay Dillingham, president of the Kansas City Stockyards Co., says, "I have no fear that there will be another flood of that magnitude in my life time."

That view is shared by investors who have spent millions on new facilities in the flood plain. The long and still growing list includes huge warehouses, an auction building at the stockyards, a new exhibition building for the American Royal Livestock and Horse Show, new facilities for a steel tank company, new factories, stores and restaurants.

The engineers believe the cities lying in the Kaw's basin now are safe from lesser floods than those expectable about once in a hundred years. But a spokesman for the corps said, "no one can predict how much rain is possible, or when, and there can be no guarantee. Besides, our flood control program for the valley is not complete."

"Odds of 100 to 1 are good enough for me," Dillingham said.

"In the years since the flood the engineers have constructed five giant reservoirs at a cost of $210 million in the flood basin. By spring of 1971 these reservoirs had prevented flood losses of some $47,297,000, according to the engineers, although some where built too recently to contribute to that figure."

Foreign engineers will visit valley

BOISE — Magic Valley irrigation developments will be examined by a group of 23 agricultural engineers Tuesday through Thursday.

The group arrived in Boise Saturday on a tour which will bring them to Bell Rapids Tuesday, the Twin Falls area Wednesday and the Burley-Rupert area on Thursday.

The tour is sponsored by the Agency for International Development in cooperation with USDA and land-grant schools. Darrell C. Larsen, Boise, irrigation specialist of the University of Idaho Extension Service, is chairman of the Idaho program.

Twelve of the engineers are from India. The party also includes two each from Iran and Turkey and one each from Bolivia, Chile, Republic of China, Cyprus, England, Thailand and Yemen. Leaders are W. Kenneth Bach and Jose Alfaro, both of Utah State University, Logan, Utah. The visitors have been in the United States since early June. They have observed irrigation in Utah and Washington. After their training in Idaho they will continue work in California and Arizona until Aug. 5.

After a day of free time following registration at Hotel Boise, the group will tour Canyon County on Monday. Next day, according to the schedule prepared by Larsen, there will be discussions of irrigation at the Statehouse in the morning and a drive to Twin Falls by way of Bell Rapids near Hagerman where there is a high-lift pumping project.

July 14 and 15 the group will visit the Snake River Conservation Research Center at Kimberly, and tour the Twin Falls Irrigation Project and irrigation developments near Rupert and Burley.

On Friday there will be studies of research projects at the Aberdeen branch experiment station, a tour of the American Falls Irrigation District and a visit to wells in Pleasant Valley.

Farm

Half of U.S. food will come from 95 big farms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than half the nation's food and fiber will be coming from about 95,000 big farms by 1980, a new study by Agriculture Department economists predicts.

The study said the total number of U.S. farms is likely to drop from nearly 2.9 million this year to about 1.0 million in 1980, a decline of about 60 percent.

Nearly 5 percent of the surviving farms in 1980, according to the study "projections," will be big operations with annual sales of $100,000 or more a year. In 1970, only 2 percent of all farms — or about 58,000 of the 2,924 million units — were in that size class.

While the big farms will account for only 5 percent of all units, however, the study added "they will probably account for more than 50 percent of all cash receipts from farm marketings. Most of the rest of the farm products would come from smaller commercial-size units. Close to one-third of all 1980 farms are likely to operate with cash sales of over $20,000 a year," the report added.

The study by Rex F. Daly and other Agriculture Department economists said small farms will not disappear from the American scene. But they will continue to lose their importance in the national food production picture.

Farms with sales of under $2,500 per year — which are mostly rural residences where agriculture provides only a small part of family income — will continue to decline in numbers but will still account in 1980 for more than one-third of all farms.

However, the report added, these small farms in 1980 probably will account for only 1 percent of total agricultural sales.

The report said the continuing trend toward fewer and bigger farms would be fueled by the same developments which have reduced farm numbers in recent decades. These include new developments in farm technology, opportunities to cut cost by large-scale buying of farm supplies and bulk marketing of farm products, and the increased availability of capital which can be substituted for farm labor.

The 1980 farm labor force, according to the report, may be cut to about 2.5 million persons compared with a 3.8 million average in the 1967-69 period. The total amount of cropland used by 1980 probably will not increase much from current levels, the report said, because increasing per-acre yields will push production up fast enough to match gains in the consumer population.

Editor recalls fighting big flood in Kansas 20 years ago

By DALE STEWART
Times-News City Editor

TWIN FALLS — Until a story showed up on the United Press International wire, we had all but forgotten the dates of the worst of the 1951 floods which ravaged wide areas of Kansas and Oklahoma.

Reading the dispatch stirred memories of those weeks of repeated high water and experiences in flood fighting in which we were involved.

A college student at the time, our first combat with the floods came in April, 1951, when we and fellow Explorer Scouts pitched in to help construct a sandbag barrier against the overflowing Little Arkansas River in the north side of Wichita.

The barricade was one of many constructed in Wichita that year, as the river flooded repeatedly.

But the "big one" came in mid-July, after repeated heavy rains which soaked most of Kansas and sent every major stream running and helping hospital personnel who formed a bucket brigade to clear the water out of the facility's basement. Wet and tired at the end of the day, we still remember clearly the hot meal we ate in a small restaurant — which is no longer there — and topped off with peach pie ala mode.

On one occasion, a county highway maintenance gang with which we were working was sent out to "lie down" a wooden bridge before it was floated off its pilings. The rapidly rising water forced abandonment of the job before it was finished, although two steel rods were put in place to hold the bridge deck down. But they held, and the bridge was preserved. It's still there.

When not working on lying down that bridge deck, the members of the gang were using improvised pilks and peavies to fend rift wood of various sizes off the bridge pilings and sending the floating limbs and logs downstream.

A couple miles upstream, another bridge caught and held a pile of drift which grew to massive proportions — at least 10 feet above the bridge deck when the water was flowing over the deck a foot deep.

That timber dam forced the river to cut its way around one end of the bridge, leaving a gaping chasm about 15 feet deep. Later, we were among a crew which was sent out to drag all of the driftwood away from the bridge, then stack some of it back into the washout to serve as a coffer dam to protect against further erosion of the sandy bank.

At one point in the work, we slipped off the wooden wing of the bridge while walking back to the bank. The fall was short, but a coil of barbed wire on a piling left a series of scratches on our side. The scars are still there.

But most other scars left by the 1951 floods have disappeared with the passage of two decades. Erosion of those scars started almost as soon as the waters receded, within a week or 10 days of the peak of the flooding.

Damaged stores and homes were repaired within a few months. Some crops were harvested despite inundated fields. The Santa Fe Railway rebuilt its main line along the Cottonwood, raising it above the high water mark. Systems of dikes and drainage canals have been constructed to protect Marlon, Florence, Wichita, and other towns.

A couple of smaller towns have moved to higher ground with the passage of the years and the rebuilding process.

Dams control the flow along the Cottonwood and other eastern Kansas rivers now, and the channels of other streams have been cleared of underbrush — and in some places all trees — as a means of allowing high water to drain away more rapidly. Conservation practices on farms have been adopted, allowing water to soak into the ground instead of running off.

Still, heavy and protracted rains send some central Kansas streams out of their banks. Earlier this summer, the Little Arkansas River at Halstead hit flood stage and inundated the town's principal park. But few Kansas and midwesterners ever expect to see flooding of the magnitude of 1951.

Chile takes over copper plants

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—Nationalization of the half-billion-dollar U.S. copper investments, a foregone conclusion since Marxist President Salvador Allende took office last November, will become a legislative reality Sunday.

For Chile, it represents fulfillment of a nationalistic dream. For Socialist Allende, it is delivery on a campaign promise to nationalize the red metal which produces 80 percent of foreign exchange earnings "to gain economic independence from U.S. imperialism."

Comrade President, as Allende calls himself, declared Sunday "The Day of National Dignity" and prepared to dramatize the nationalization with a helicopter jaunt to Kennecott's former teniente mine. What now interests the affected Anaconda, Kennecott and Cerro companies—and the U.S. government—is how much indemnity will be paid for their properties.

It may be several months before the amounts are determined.

Nature of the settlements will undoubtedly shape the immediate future of Chilean-American relations, which have been on a rather strained, wait-and-see note since Allende's inauguration.

Congress meets in a joint session Sunday, to give final approval to a constitutional reform law on property rights.

which nationalizes the three American companies' stakes in so-called mixed companies already partly owned by the Chilean State Copper Corporation. Constitutional reforms require ratification by the joint congress 60 days after original approval.

The "fly in the ointment" for Kennecott and Anaconda, is a clause authorizing the president to deduct from the comptroller's figures "excessive profits" which the companies may have earned.

The president has virtual carte blanche on this, and the American side can only guess as to what criterion he will invoke.

Either side may appeal the indemnization ruling to a special tribunal created by the copper nationalization law. The combined Christian Democrat and rightist opposition apparently has foiled a government attempt to stack the court in its favor.

Cerro corporation's 70 percent of the Andean mine is not subject to the "excessive profits" clause since Andina began production just one year ago.

The government and Cerro, in fact, have virtually reached agreement on a sale. Cerro's equity in the unique mine, which has crushers and mill underground to avoid Andean avalanches, is estimated and at about $60 million.

The Chilean State Copper Corporation and the U.S. Commerce Department seem to concur that the Net U.S. copper investment is between $500 and $600 million.

"Chile Today," a survey by leftist economists which is cited by the copper corporation, estimated the total U.S. investment in Chile in 1968 at $863 million, with $586 million in minerals extraction, mostly in copper.

McCloskey plans to run

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Rep. Paul McCloskey Jr. announced Friday he intended to oppose the regular Republican party delegation state to the GOP National Convention next year with himself "hopefully" as the presidential nominee.

McCloskey, a Republican from San Mateo, who has vigorously opposed the Nixon administration's policy in Vietnam, said it would amount to a primary fight with a slate headed by Gov. Ronald Reagan, who has pledged his support to President Nixon. McCloskey also said he would enter the New Hampshire primary and, barring a status-factory end to the conflict in Southeast Asia, hoped to enter as many other 1972 Republican primaries across the nation as his campaign funds would permit.

At a news conference McCloskey was asked whether he really thought he had a chance of defeating Nixon for the Republican nomination.

"I can't honestly say my chances would be very great if I entered and won every primary, but I think I can do a service to the party and the country by bringing out into the open the debate and discussion of our different views."

McCloskey said he intended to start immediately a vigorous drive to register new voters, preferably those under 21 who are now eligible to vote, in the Republican party, and to try to bring over Democrats into the GOP ranks.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: There is a young married woman (she is also a mother) who I feel is damaging the reputation of a fine young bachelor minister in our community.

This woman goes to his house daily to do his housecleaning, and she stays most of the afternoon to do bookkeeping for the parish. I know this minister is doing anything wrong, but you know how people talk.

This woman's staying around to work on the books makes it difficult for anyone else to come and talk with the minister when they need his help. How can she be told she should do the book work at her own home? It would be much better for the pastor's reputation, and it would at least give some others a chance.

DEAR FRIEND: I doubt that anyone who needs the minister's help would be discouraged from seeking it because the bookkeeper was under the same roof. Are you honestly concerned about the minister's reputation? Or is it "the others" who aren't getting a chance?

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of parents who allow their children to ask guests for money?

While visiting recently, my host's 3-year-old toddled out with her piggy bank and requested a donation. When I said I had no pennies, she peered into my open purse and said, "OK, then give me a dime or a quarter."

Chicken-hearted, I gave her some change while her parents smiled indulgently, and the mother said, "Isn't that cute? She always does that when we have company."

Abby: "I like" youngsters, but I disapprove of their begging. Or am I just an old fogey?

IRRITATED IN ANAHEIM

DEAR IRRITATED: I'm with you. Too bad you are so chicken-hearted because you aren't helping the child by complaining to me. Her parents should be straitened out.

DEAR ABBY: I've been having a real battle with myself. I've been married for 10 years, have had two babies and I have completely lost my figure. My bosom is so flat and saggy I just hate to look at myself in the mirror.

My husband hasn't shown any signs of being dissatisfied with me the way I am, but what man wouldn't appreciate a round, firm, fully-packed wife? (I never was very big up there, but now I don't have a thing.)

I know a good plastic surgeon who does silicone implants and I would like to have it done. Should I surprise my husband and have the operation when he is out of town on one of his business trips? (He's gone for five days every six weeks.) I have my own money.

DEAR FLAT: Don't "surprise" your husband. Better yet, take him to the surgeon so he will know exactly what is involved. Many surgeons refuse to perform that type of surgery without the knowledge and consent of the patient's husband.

DEAR ABBY: Don't you think it is extremely rude to ask a 40-year-old bachelor why he has never married?

DEAR FRISCO: Yes. Especially if you think you know.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69760, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

General denies charge about drug involvement

SAIGON (UPI)—Gen. Ngo Dui returned from his Pleiku headquarters Friday to discuss with President Nguyen Van Thieu accusations that he was involved in narcotics traffic. Dui said the charge was part of a campaign to "kick me out" as commander of the Central Highlands.

"There is no truth to it," Dui told newsmen in responding to statements made in Congress by Rep. Robert Steele, R-Conn., linking him to sale of heroin to American GIs. "I will never resign because I am innocent."

(A State Department official in Washington said both South Vietnam and the United States would investigate the charge. Assistant Secretary of State Marshall Green told a House subcommittee the U.S. Embassy in Saigon had reported the investigation had begun.)

The stocky, 45-year-old Dui spoke at his Saigon home while waiting to go to Independence Palace to discuss the issue with Thieu.

"They are very clever," he told UPI. "They chose a matter that is very sensitive in the states. That is narcotics. This campaign to kick me out is getting bigger and bigger, difficult and more difficult."

"They go on now to give information to a U.S. congressman. They use many men in their well-conducted campaign. They complicate the problem because now it is not a problem between Vietnamese but between Vietnamese and Americans."

The two-star general refused at first to say who he thought was behind the campaign to oust him from command of Military Region II, which he assumed last month when Maj. Gen. Luu Lan was made Inspector general of the army following charges of corruption and military inefficiency against him.

But pressed for an answer, Dui referred to Vietnamese newspaper reports in recent weeks of a campaign to "discredit him" and naming Lu Lan as winning and dining newsmen to promote opposition to Dui.

Dui said the defense ministry had set up a special committee headed by a general to investigate charges ranging from corruption to being involved in heroin trade, and was expected to issue a statement on its findings Saturday morning.

The U.S. Embassy had no specific comment on Steele's allegations, but said in a statement, "We have been working closely with the GVN (government of Vietnam) on a drug eradication program which was announced two months ago. We intend to keep working with the GVN to see that drug traffickers are eliminated no matter who they are."

Agency head honcho good guy in battle against polluters

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Like Gary Cooper in a Western movie, William Doyle Ruckelshaus has been cast as the good guy in a drama of virtue versus vice.

His mission is to gun down polluters. His badge identifies him as honcho, or head man, of the government's new Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). His troubles have just begun and he knows it.

The troubles lie ahead, in Act 3. It's Act 2 now and Ruckelshaus looks good in his white hat. In Act 1 last year, Congress passed a raft of laws to curb pollution and created EPA to enforce them. Ruckelshaus was named EPA's administrator or top gun. "The Enforcer," President Nixon called him.

A former Army drill sergeant who drafted Indiana's Air Pollution Act as a deputy state attorney general, Ruckelshaus is jolly and witty. But he talks tough with polluters.

"The only way to make antipollution laws work is to use them," he says. He uses them. He cited 107 water polluters in his first seven months on the job. He set strict nationwide air quality standards, requiring emission limits for every factory and probably some curtailment of downtown traffic.

Just as Marshal Wyatt Earp used to give baddies an ultimatum—"get out of town by noon today"—Ruckelshaus likes to lay down time limits for compliance.

He has told states they must get clean-air standards into effect by mid-1975. Car makers must cut exhaust pollutants by 90 per cent on 1975 models. Factories had to report by July 1 exactly what they've been dumping into the water, and either stop it or ask EPA for a permit. Boat owners must stop flushing toilets into lakes by 1978.

Those dates are the show-downs—and therein lies the suspense of what will happen in Act 3.

For example, what if General Motors meets the 1975 exhaust standards but Ford doesn't, or vice versa? What if the air quality standards force higher natural gas and electrical bills, and perhaps even cut electrical output below consumer demand?

What if cities have to stop commuters from driving downtown before good mass transit is ready to replace cars? What if water quality standards force factories to close, eliminating jobs?

These situations, all possible, pose a quandary for Ruckelshaus.

He knows his present good guy role generates public support—he needs to force environmental cleanup. But he also knows he can't really shoot down recalcitrants, Western movie style. Stern warnings to auto makers may win rave reviews from the public but closing a major auto firm would not.

In an interview, Ruckelshaus was asked this hypothetical question: Suppose Ford, General Motors or Chrysler fail to meet the 1975 exhaust standards, and haven't even made a decent try. Could you imagine the government really closing one of them down?

"No," he replied.

"What would happen?"

"Congress might come along and amend the law," he said. "We would bring the situation to Congress."

The law is now Ruckelshaus's strong suit. When officials of the Commerce Department, the Federal Power Commission (FPC) and other agencies criticized the stringency of EPA's clean air standards at a recent White House meeting, Ruckelshaus read them the Clean Air Act. It required that standards be set strictly on the basis of public health, disregarding economic and fuel supply factors.

Pressures are mounting on Ruckelshaus from Congress and state governments, too. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Interior Committee, criticized the clean air standards on the same ground cited by the EPC—that they were set without weighing their impact on already short supplies of natural gas and other "clean" fuels.

To a large extent, the air and water antipollution laws make the states subservient to EPA policies and state officials don't like that.

Local woman installed state grand guardian

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Ted (Erma) Scott, Twin Falls, was installed grand guardian of Idaho, International Order of Job's Daughters, in recent ceremonies in Coeur d'Alene. Thirty girls from the three Twin Falls Bethels attended the grand session to see Mrs. Scott installed, along with guardians and associate guardians, Mr. and Mrs. Art Willey, Bethel No. 43; Mr. and Mrs. Gene Jensen, Bethel No. 19, and Carolyn Willey, Bethel No. 66.

Special guests at the installation were Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Wise, son-in-law, and daughter of Mrs. Scott, Bartlesville, Okla.

While Mrs. Scott was kneeling at the altar her three granddaughters, Sandi Sharp, queen of Bethel No. 66, Twin Falls, and Connie and Leah Wise, Bartlesville, sang, Irene Woodward, Emmett, past grand guardian, was installing officer. Mrs. Scott has chosen "The Song in the Music Box" as her theme for the year, because of her interest in music boxes. She told the girls attending the session, "As a music box can only play the tune which has been placed within it, so with you girls, your song of life will only be as sweet and harmonious as the melodies you place within your heart." Her motto for the year is "To Thine Own Self Be True."

The grand guardian's aim is to strengthen the order through love, understanding, cooperation and increased membership. To accomplish this she challenged each Job's Daughter to bring in a new member this year. The Shrine's Hospital was selected as the project for the year with monies being divided between the hospitals in Salt Lake City and Spokane, Wash. Her emblem is the triangle for love, honor and trust. Love your country, honor your parents and trust in the Lord.

Memory verse is Proverbs 3:5, "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart and lean not to thine own understanding." Mrs. Scott's colors are blue, for love and loyalty to country; pink, for the warm glow of affection we find within the family circle, and white for the purity of God's love. Her flower is the pink carnation and her song is "On the Wings of a Dove."

Other Magic Valley persons installed were Mr. and Mrs. Willey, Twin Falls, vice associate guardian and grand marshal, respectively; Marian Jenkins, Twin Falls, grand librarian, and Sadie Breeding, Murtaugh, first grand messenger.

Match-up

The best way to wear shorts is with a matching top. The match-up can be anything from a jacket or sweater to midriff top or cotton knit shirt.

Return of the shorts look has brought back another sportswear classic, the button-on overkirt.

Diaries to be published

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—The night Anala Nin decided to publish her diaries, she had a terrible dream: "I dream there was a knock at my door and when I answered it, I received mortal radiation."

The 68-year-old "diarist, novelist and psychologist," as the writer labels herself, shared her early fears of being published in an interview with five young members of Boston Female Liberation who had invited the renowned literary figure to speak at Harvard University. The subject: women.

Miss Nin's not an activist in the women's liberation movement as it relates to marches, demonstrations, picketing, and bra-waving.

"We must do the inner journey first," she said. "A woman, in short, should improve her own quality and then work for the common goals of womanhood."

She said she felt her own growth was a "private revolution, an assertion of my own beliefs."

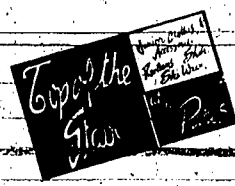

As for that frightening dream, Miss Nin, who was raised in Paris, said in her still French-accented voice, "It was my fear of judgment, of unmaking, of being exposed and not being loved."

Her three published diaries detail intimate U.S. in the 1930s and 1940s with writers, revolutionaries and stray astrologists. Writers Henry Miller, Lawrence Durrell and Antonin Artaud were among her famous friends.

Idaho artists and those from surrounding states have been invited to exhibit their work. There is no admission charge. There is no sale of exhibition space and no commission charge on the sales.

June Haggard, Kimberly, is show chairman, assisted by Dorcas Peck and Loren Mulder, both Twin Falls, registration; Mrs. Mulder, artists invitations; Norma Jensen, Twin Falls, displaying the art; Barbara Allen and Shirley Rasmussen, both Kimberly, exhibit protection; Jerry Joslin and Pegg Sasse, both Twin Falls, sound equipment; Mrs. JoAnn, treasurer, membership, and Mickey Marshall, banners to display at the park.

JEROME — Mrs. Ella McVey, Jerome County auditor and clerk said jury qualification questionnaires will be mailed this week to prospective jurors in the county.

Mrs. McVey noted the questionnaires must be returned to the county within 10 days and then the forms will be reviewed by her and jury Commissioner Harold Jenkins to determine eligibility.

The new program is based on the Uniform Jury Selection Act which was passed by the last session of the Idaho legislature.

Contemporary art competition set

BOISE — Idaho artists will have the opportunity to compete for representation in the Federation of Rocky Mountain States new Contemporary Art Exhibit in oils.

Five selections from the works of Idaho artists will be made by a panel of three judges, Mary Kirkwood, professor-emerita of art, University of Idaho; LaVar Steel, associate professor of art, College of Southern Idaho; and Allen S. Dodworth, gallery director for the Boise Art Association.

Suzanne D. Taylor, executive director for the Idaho Commission and a member of the Arts Council for the Federation, said at the end of the year's showing the paintings will be returned to the artists at the expense of the federation and any offer made to purchase the paintings by patrons may be accepted by the artists.

Both men and women fair under even-hand policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A striking Republican appointee who is affectionately called "boss lady" has an even-handed policy in dealing with the men and women on her staff.

She's Barbara Estabrook, director for public affairs in the Economic Development Administration.

She says she has learned "you don't play it any differently with a man or a woman."

A native of Hempstead, L.I., whose ancestors reached the shores of Massachusetts in the late 1600's, Miss Estabrook has one of the busiest offices in the Commerce Department.

She came up the ladder by way of advertising and sales promotion jobs in New York as well as many years as an assistant vice president in charge of public relations.

"Women are very knowledgeable about money, she says of her banking days. "But essentially they are not gamblers." She says that is why, you do not see many female lending officers in banks.

While no ardent Women's Lib advocate, Miss Estabrook had her woes trying to get equal pay for equal work during her professional career in private business.

Men, she feels, fall into the trap of rationalizing lower pay for women because they "think they are subsidized" by their husbands or their families.

She feels the federal government does better in this department although she agrees with some women's organizations that there are not enough females at the top.

She finds politics fascinating and has worked for Republican causes through the years. She also is devoted to her alma mater, Skidmore College, where she is a member of the board of trustees.

An important part of her job is getting to know reporters who may be on the receiving end of some of the hundreds of press releases she churns out. For that reason, she was one of the first women to join the predominantly male National Press Club when it opened its doors early this year to female members.

She is determined not to get caught up in the bureaucratic maze and says that so far she has managed to cut through the red tape to get things done.

But some of the government jargon still floors her. After a memo was circulated recently speaking of "electrical outage," she found out that it meant "lights out."

There will be no judging or prizes. Those displaying work will be asked to bring their own easels for paintings and card tables for display of pottery and sculpture.

Check presented

REXBURG — A check for $30,957.49 has been presented to Dr. Henry B. Eyring, president of Ricks College, by John Sailors, International Business Machines branch manager, Boise.

The check matches funds donated to Ricks by IBM employees. Dick Miller, Idaho Falls, marketing representative for IBM said, "If any company employee of IBM donates money to Ricks, then the company will match that gift up to $1,000."

"This is a very important gift to Ricks and we want the company and contributing employees to know we deeply appreciate it," Dr. Eyring said. This is the second presentation made to the church-supported college this year by IBM. Both checks were part of the matching funds program of the company.

ward's Catholic Church. Rev. Thomas J. Lafey performed the double ring ceremony before two large baskets of white chrysanthemums and white gladioli, accented with blue carnations and baby's breath. Vases of the same flowers adorned the back and side altars.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white peau de sole satin and Venise lace, fashioned with an empire waistline featuring long fitted sleeves trimmed with Venise lace and baby seed pearls. Her chapel train was detachable at the waistline. Her gown was made by Mrs. Ken Leonardson and Ann Leonardson.

Her three-tiered bouffant veil of illusion was held by a camelot crown and adorned with baby seed pearls and Venise lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white baby roses centered with a large white orchid.

Jill Schultz, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, with Kimberly Schultz, sister of the bride, as junior bridesmaid. Other bridesmaids were Ann Leonardson and Gay Choate, friends of the bride. Kelley King was the little flower girl and carried a miniature bouquet fashioned like those of the bride's attendants. Danny King served as ringbearer.

Stephen Lynch, brother of the bride, served as best man. Groomsman was Gary Lynch, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Russell Holland and Steve Berlin, friends of the bridegroom and all of Burley.

Mrs. Jo Anne Cullit played the traditional wedding music and accompanied. Robert Eries, soloist.

A reception was held at St. Edwards Parish Hall immediately after the ceremony. Presiding at the gift table were Suzanne, Patty and Donna Dolan, Warner Robbins, Georgia, cousins of the bride.

The bride's table was covered with a floor-length white lace cloth over blue. Two large baskets of white gladioli, white chrysanthemums and blue carnations flanked the table. The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated in matching colors of blue and white and topped with white satin wedding bells edged with pearls. Heart-shaped cakes with the names of the bridal couple decorated the large cake. Two silver candelabra with white candles on each side of the cake completed the table arrangement. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Charles Robinson, Twin Falls.

Mrs. Don Dolan, Warner Robbins, Ga., and Mrs. Richard Schultz, Twin Falls, aided the bride, cut and served the wedding cake. Mrs. Lawrence Stone, Sonora, Calif., and Mrs. Russell Shofner, Bemidji, Minn., aunts of the bride, served the coffee and punch. Chris Sande was in charge of the guest book. Gift bearers were Stephen and Todd Schultz, cousins of the bride. Brent Gillette served as altar boy.

Special guests at the wedding were the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Olson, Bemidji, and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Schultz, Twin Falls. Other guests attended from Magic Valley towns as well as Georgia, Minnesota, California, Oregon, Utah and Nevada.

The bridegroom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at Kay's Supper Club for the bridal party.

The bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Richard Schultz, assisted by Mrs. Grant Gillette and Mrs. Ken Ballantyne.

The bride is a 1971 graduate of the College of Southern Idaho and the bridegroom was graduated from the University of Utah in June. They took a honeymoon trip to Las Vegas, Disneyland and various parts of California.

Cherry crop harvested by Magic Valley families

FILER — Much of the 1971 bumper crop of cherries in Twin Falls County will be harvested by local families spending their Sunday afternoons in orchards along Snake River canyon.

Typical of this popular early summer activity is the picking operation at Gourley's Orchards northwest of Filer near Snake River.

Richard Kelley, grandson of the late John Gourley who planted the orchard more than 40 years ago, says most of his cherry harvest, as well as that of other fruit, is done by Magic Valley families who enjoy picking their own fruit for canning, freezing, pies or just good fresh fruit eating. Some families pick only a few pounds, while others will pick several boxes.

This is the most satisfactory means of harvest, Kelley has found. He says the packing and shipping of the fruit constitutes a costly chore and demand for fresh fruit by area housewives is sufficient to take most of his supply.

The 100-acre orchard this year will produce between 75 and 100 tons of sweet, semi-sweet, and sour cherries, most of them going into Magic Valley homes. There will be another 15,000 bushels of apples, about 5,000 bushels of pears, and 3,000 bushels of peaches. Most of these also go to homes in the local area, and again harvest operations involve Magic Valley families.

At the Gourley Orchard, cherry picking began about two weeks ago and will continue two to three more weeks, Kelley says. Three to four high school or college age workers are employed at the orchard throughout the summer and frequently workers, generally local, are hired to clean up the trees.

Kelley, a 1967 horticulturist graduate from the University of Idaho, is buying the orchard from his mother, Mary Anne Gourley Kelley, and uncle, John Gourley, Jr.

He said Magic Valley orchardists were fortunate this year. The cherry crop here is just enough later than that of the Fruitland and Nampa areas to have missed all of the rain damage which split cherries and caused thousands of dollars loss around the fruit growing communities of western Idaho. Kelley said cherries in Magic Valley this year are in perfect condition and this will be one of the largest crops in several years.

One of the new installations at the Gourley Orchard is a sprinkling system under gravity flow pressure. It brings water from the rim of the canyon above the orchard under 140 pounds pressure. Not only does it provide irrigation, but serves as a frost protecting measure and is used for insect control spraying when needed.

Kelley said there were no serious late frosts this year but in the future it may save the loss of the entire crop such as resulted last year. The fruit damage comes from dehydration following frost and by spraying the fruit with a fine coat of moisture which will freeze and then turn to water as temperatures warm, dehydration can be prevented, he said.

Old school to be auctioned

THREE CREEK—A frame school building which has served the Three Creek School District for about half a century will be sold at auction Saturday.

The auction will be conducted on the site of the school at this tiny Owyhee County community. It is set for 10 a.m.

The building is being sold and must be removed or razed to clear the site by Sept. 1, according to an announcement of the sale by George W. (Bill) Clark, clerk of the school board.

A new building to serve the district is being completed and is to be dedicated in August. The new school will be put in use with the start of the fall term.

The frame structure to be sold contains one large room with a library and another small room attached. A spokesman for the school district said the year when the building was built is not known for certain, but it was apparently erected in the early 1920's.

An earlier school building, abandoned at that time, still stands in a meadow not far away.

Also to be sold at the auction Saturday are a horse barn and watering trough, no longer used since none of the pupils ride to school. An antique teacher's desk, believed to have been purchased when the frame school was opened in the early 1920's, will also be on the block, along with some other items and equipment.

This past year, there were 12 pupils attending the Three Creek School, in grades one through eight. The district extends from the Salmon Dam to Murphy, Hot Springs and south to the Nevada border.

Other members of the school board are Mrs. Kathryn Jones, chairman, and Bert Brackett.

5,000 attend City of Rocks pageant

By JERRY HERRMANN
Times-News Writer

CITY OF ROCKS—Cassia County—About 5,000 persons are estimated to have watched the reenactment of historical events Saturday at the City of Rocks during a Cassia County Historical Society program.

Al Dawson, society president, said it may have been the fine cooperation of the weather which brought out the excellent crowd.

Tours of the unusual rock formations in the park were conducted during Saturday morning by members of the Historical Society and residents of the Almo area.

The reenactment of the historical events came in the "Saga of the Silent City of Rocks"—a production by the Oregon Trail Festival Theater of Arts, Albn.

Olidime music was featured by both singing groups with residents joining in the familiar tunes.

The Ponderosa Players, Burley, presented "The Chips Are Down" during the afternoon.

Highlight of the program was the presentation of a City of Rocks medallion to Jack Murphy, Idaho Lieutenant Governor and guest speaker. State Senator Robert Saxvik, Republican-Cassia County, introduced the speaker explaining Murphy has a long history of involvement in land in Idaho and an interest in the history of the state. Saxvik praised the Cassia Historical Society for its program, adding one of the side effects is the reminder of the struggle and suffering which went into building the nation, state and county.

Idaho Gov. Murphy said the festivities of Saturday brought attention to one of Idaho's most scenic and historic areas. He said the State Parks Commission was formed in 1965 and now has 22 parks to administer.

Murphy said about one park is being added to the system each year and he plans to bring the City of Rocks to the attention of the commission.

"For a minimum amount of money," he said, the City of Rocks could be brought into the system and would be protected for future generations. It is the aim of the Parks Commission to preserve all historical sites in Idaho, he said.

Many of the persons attending the Saturday program used the high rock formations as a vantage point from which to view the program and to get a preview of the type of programs the Oregon Trail Festival of Arts Theatre school will be bringing the area.

THE ROCKS at the City of Rocks took on a different look Saturday as visitors to the area attending the Saga of the Silent City of Rocks took to the rocks to get prime seats for the reenactment of some of a stage holdup and wagon massacre and other historic events at the site. It is estimated that 5,000 people attended the pageant.

Search at reservoir continues

OAKLEY—Sheriff Ray Mitchell said Saturday his office plans to maintain a search until the bodies of six Oakley residents, who drowned three weeks ago, are found.

Mitchell said he, members of his office, or other authorized personnel are patrolling the Lower Goose Creek Reservoir near Oakley about three times a day.

In addition, Nathan Tanner, Oakley mayor, flies over the reservoir each morning and late afternoon for an aerial inspection.

Mitchell said an underwater, closed television circuit camera was brought to the reservoir from Salt Lake City, but could only be used to a depth of 20 feet because of the silt in the water. Lights will be used so it can be lowered to a greater depth, he said.

Arvis Edmundson, Paul, has been working with the camera in the search effort. Doyle Hatch, Oakley, has been devoting about four hours a day to the search, Mitchell said. If funds are obtained from the state the people who have been assisting will be reimbursed for their efforts, the sheriff said.

Six of the eight persons who disappeared in a boating accident three weeks ago are still missing.

They are Andy Goodline, 44; his son, Bobby, 4; Harold Dible, 55; Charles Qualls, about 40; James Shepherd, 44 and Raymond Moore, 60, all Oakley. Bodies of Mrs. Annette Goodline and her daughter, Tammy, 8, were found June 20 at the edge of the reservoir shortly after the boat with eight persons aboard disappeared.

Blaine officers

TWO NEW LAW ENFORCEMENT officers began duties this month in Blaine county. John Douglas, left, 25, is Ketchum city patrolman, and Douglas Williams, former Idaho state policeman, is new Blaine county deputy. He worked for the Blaine sheriff's department previously and was trained in the CSI police science school. Douglas formerly was with the Federal Bureau of Narcotics enforcement out of Los Angeles.

Lincoln child, 3, burned in mishap

RICHFIELD—A Richfield child is recovering from severe burns received when he fell on an electric shocker used to bring night crawlers to the surface.

Mark DeWitt, 3, tried to pull the device out of the ground after other family members had gone into dinner. Hearing the boy scream, his mother, Mrs. Howard DeWitt, rushed out to find him unconscious and lying on the electrical shocker which carries 110 volts.

She gave her son mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and restored breathing. He was taken to Shoshone for medical treatment. The attending physician said the boy has two severe burns on his stomach and small marks on his chest.

The child, who was wearing bathing trunks and was barefoot, did not have any burns on his hands, and is believed to have grabbed the tool below the handles. He was able to pull his hands free from the shocker before falling unconscious.

The physician warned of danger to small children when such equipment is used since the electrical current travels several feet through damp ground and small children often are barefoot.

Plan favored

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Edward P. Cliff, chief forester of the U.S. Forest Service, says he favors a bill before Congress that would create a Sawtooth national recreation area in southern Idaho.

The native Utahn said in Salt Lake City Friday a study of the possibility of a national park in the Sawtooths is justified, but added, "My personal feeling is that a national recreation area is the best system of management in the area."

Cliff was in Utah to speak at a ceremony which marked the beginning of the Central Utah Project's Strawberry Reservoir enlargement. The ceremony was held at the Soldier Creek dam site.

RICHARD REED, Burley, receives a "gold nugget" from Kenneth Fairchild, who portrayed a prospector by the name of Ben. He and his brother, Leroy Fairchild, who portrayed a prospector by the name of Rock City Red, have done prospecting in the area so were natural for the role during the Saga of the Silent City of Rocks held Saturday at the City of Rocks.

T.F. youth attends Red Cross school

TWIN FALLS—John Kinney, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Kinney, Twin Falls, has completed special training in the American Red Cross National Aquatic School in Twin Echo Lake Resort, Bathrum.

During the training, he qualified as a Red Cross instructor in water safety. In graduation ceremonies, the Twin Falls enrollee was awarded National Red Cross certificates in first aid, water safety instructor and canoeing instructor.

The Aquatic School at Bathrum is one of four held in the Western United States. It is sponsored jointly by the Western and Midwestern areas of the American Red Cross and gives two weeks of intensive training in water skills taught by top swimming and boating experts of the nation, local Red Cross officials said.

Kinney is employed by the Twin Falls City Recreation Department as a lifeguard and swimming instructor this summer. He is a senior in the Twin Falls High School.

Explosion injures boy

SHOSHONE—David Garrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Garrett, Shoshone, is recovering satisfactorily at his home here after an injury from a fire cracker on July 5.

The boy was treated at the Twin Falls Clinic for facial injuries and a broken nose, caused when a firecracker under a tin can exploded and the can hit him in the face.

The boy had placed the firecracker there and was bent over it at the time.

Aide attends meet

TWIN FALLS—District health officials from throughout Idaho were able to exchange ideas on some important issues confronting all Idaho communities and counties, William L. (Bill) Chancey, Twin Falls County Commission chairman, said Saturday on returning from the first such conference under the new district system.

The state health department district health boards are concerned about financing of needed programs and services and about long range comprehensive health planning.

Among speakers at the conference July 7 and 8 were Gov. Cecil Andrus, Fred Humphreys, chairman of the Idaho Board of Health; Dr. T. O. Carver, state administrator and officials from the six districts of the state.

T.F. county solid waste study to be completed in 6 months

TWIN FALLS—Preliminary planning studies on solid waste management in Twin Falls County will be completed within six months with recommendations to be made to county commissioners at that time, Ed Woods, county zoning administrator said Saturday. He said R.P. Fasolino, planner with the Associate Planners and Developers, Encastello, who is conducting the study, was in Twin Falls late in the week to confer with officials here regarding the study. Fasolino explained the study is being made by his firm with the assistance of engineering, architectural and other professional planning personnel to cover all aspects of the solid waste problems of the county.

He said the study aims include developing public information programs on public responsibility and involvement in proposed management and solutions; providing background information on current methods of collection and disposal; and exploring methods of management based on density, social and economic aspects of the county.

Results of the study, Fasolino said, will provide the county commissioners with means and suggested methods for a solid waste program on a county wide basis. It will be up to the county commissioners to select the most feasible method of disposal and proceed with the technical aspects of the method, he said.

When completed a detailed written report will be presented to the commissioners, the planner said.

Jerome gets new grain warehouse

JEROME—A new company has been formed in Jerome by Ray Forsyth and Don Church, called C and F Farms, Inc., and is in the process of constructing a 100,000 bushel capacity grain storage building near Magic Valley Growers.

Forsyth said that the building, which is of a corrugated quonset design known as Wedg Cor, will be completed in about three weeks.

Harleigh Wallington, manager of the North Side Lumber and Mercantile, who are the dealers for the Wedg Cor building, said the structure in Jerome is the first one of its kind in the Magic Valley.

The warehouse is located on about two acres of land which was purchased from Emanuel Nelson and is south of the former Nelson Meat Market.

Funeral services for Agnes Hunter, Oakley, will be conducted Monday at 1:30 p.m. in the Oakley LDS Stake House. Bishop Floyd Pickett will officiate.

Last rites will be held in the Youth Ranch to launch vocational education

By JERRY HERRMANN
Times-News Writer
RUPERT — In about a month the boys at the Idaho Youth Ranch, 15 miles northeast of Rupert, will be able to participate in vocational education curriculum on the ranch.

Curtis Atwood, 26, Rupert, who was named the youth ranch's vocational education teacher in June, said Friday, "This will make for a true classroom atmosphere, which is needed if the boys are going to benefit from the program," he said.

Atwood, a native of Vernal, Utah, received his bachelor of science degree in industrial education from Brigham Young University in May, 1970. Prior to attending BYU, he attended Weber State College, where he had his automotive training. He had also spent one year at Utah State University.

He is certified on the secondary education level in industrial education to teach auto mechanics, woodworking classes and drivers education. He has also been certified in other areas on the junior high school level.

After graduating from BYU, Atwood was unable to find a teaching job in this area so went to work for the Big O Tire Co. working in the front-end alignment area.

After being there for six months a position opened in the O'Leary Junior High School in Twin Falls. He worked there for the rest of the school year as a woodworking instructor teaching boys in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades.

When he was offered the position at the youth ranch he accepted as he wanted to be close to Rupert, where he has a new home and wanted to live.

Also, Atwood said he took this job as he wanted to work with boys at the Youth ranch. "I think there is much to be gained here from this experience," he said.

At the same time he is trying to help the boys by giving them skills that will enable them to find employment after leaving the ranch if they don't return to regular school.

"I think the boys can learn enough to hold a mechanics position if they want to," he said.

In the auto mechanics course, Atwood said, all of the boys who leave here will be able to do a minor tuneup after taking this course.

Also, in this course the importance of a good maintenance program will be stressed. The boys will learn how to change the oil in a car, keep records, and the different types and kinds of equipment.

One of Atwood's hopes for the future — and not too distant future either — is to have a Go-Kart track laid out so that the boys can make their own Go-Karts and then go out and tear them up on the track.

"This would enable the boys to build a Go-Kart for themselves and to see how it stands up to the strain. They would also gain experience from repairing them," he said.

Atwood builds boats in his spare time and hopes eventually to take the boys in his classes in to work on putting a motor in a boat. This is different from putting one in a car, he said, because a motor for a boat must be waterproof.

All the boys will be in the woodworking classes, he said. But for the time being the older boys can enroll in the automotive and drivers training classes, where tuneups and maintenance of the cars will be stressed, Atwood said.

Atwood, his wife, Marlene, and two children, Karl, 4, and Garth, 1.5, live in Rupert.

Burley teacher attends institute in Midwest

RIPON, Wis. — Clarice Whitesides, a teacher at Burley High School, is attending a summer institute in chemistry at Ripon College, Wis., June 21 through 25.

Sponsored by the National Science Foundation, the seven-week program gives high school science teachers a chance to update their laboratory techniques and teaching methods, utilizing advanced instruments and equipment of Ripon's Farr Hall of Science.

A popular feature for the participants is an individual, research-type laboratory program in which they work out problems encountered in their own teaching situations—test experimental techniques, work demonstrations, develop visual aids, materials, or study in depth a scientific principle. Some of the participants will use Ripon's computer facilities in connection with their laboratory work.

On July 21-25, Dr. Per Njal Skancke, a science professor from the University of Oslo, Norway, will be a guest lecturer.

News Of Servicemen

TWIN FALLS — Roland G. Thompson has been promoted to the grade of airman first class at Mountain Home Air Force Base. Thompson is a 1960 graduate of Twin Falls High School and attended the College of Southern Idaho. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Thompson, Twin Falls. He is assigned to the 67th Supply Squadron at Mountain Home AFB.

SHOSHONE — Navy Seaman Apprentice, Gerald L. Bryant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis V. Bryant, Shoshone, has returned to his hometown of Norfolk, Va., aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Forrestal after an extended assignment to the Mediterranean Sea. During the cruise, the 80,000-ton Forrestal with its 5,000-man crew steamed more than 34,000 nautical miles and visited nine ports including Malta, Greece, Spain, France and Italy.

2 women treated in crash

BURLEY — Two women were treated for minor injuries at Cassia Memorial Hospital after an intersection collision Friday night and then dismissed.

Burley police said cars driven by Vivian Cotton, 60, 3023 Overland Ave., Burley, and Gwen Evand, 17, Route 1, Heyburn, collided at the intersection of Hansen Avenue and 13th Street. Neither driver saw the other, police said.

Mrs. Cotton was cited for failure to yield the right of way. She was going east on 13th Street and Miss Evand was northbound on Hansen Avenue.

The student: "Couldn't you have made your contract if the ace and queen of hearts were reversed?"

"No, I couldn't," replied the Professor. "It was a matter of reviewing the bidding. East had dealt and passed. He had already been marked with the king, queen and jack of clubs. If he also held the ace of hearts, he would have 10 high-card points: With 10 points outside the spade suit, he would not hold the king of spades and I would have had to lose a trump trick. In other words, if East held the heart ace, I was sure to be set unless I could pluck a singleton king of trumps from the West hand."

What do you do?
A—Bid two diamonds. This is not an encouraging bid, but merely shows you have a good diamond suit. If your partner isn't likely to know this, then pass.

Answer Monday

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The Professor studied awhile before putting his ace of clubs on East's jack. The rest of the play took no time at all.

He led a heart and went right up with dummy's king after West played low. Then he successfully finessed for the king of spades and collected the 10 tricks he had contracted for.

"How did you know where the ace of hearts was?" asked the student.

"I didn't know," replied the Professor. "I just played the only way I could play to make my contract."
"I don't understand," said

LAWMEN JUST don't get the prestige they ought. "Who's Who" for instance, names numerous doctors, lawyers and scientists, but not even one police chief is listed therein. STILL THINK it noteworthy the scoundrelous sons of Indian Sikhs are going defiantly to barber shop to get haircuts. OUR LOVE AND WAR MAN also has added to his files that famous quotation of Catherine the Great: "Men make love more intensely at 20, but make love better, however, at 30."

NAMES of the women, married or not, were tossed into a big bowl. Then the men, likewise married or not, drew said names from said bowl. This little neighborhood lottery was conducted on St. Valentine's Day during the reign of England's good Queen Anne. The man and the woman whose names were picked out of the bowl got together then. According to custom, they devoted the rest of the day to kissing each other. Mister, does this bygone tradition interest you? Consider the women in your block: Is there any lady in particular whose name you'd like to see tossed into such a bowl?

AM NOW TOLD the world's widest street is the Monumental Axis in Brasilia. A six-lane boulevard 273.4 yards wide. IT'S THE HOT SUNSHINE that makes the gila monster dangerous. When cool, he's harmless. Bear that in mind, ice down your pet gila monster, if any. JUST IN: IF you are 27.6 years old, exactly half the people in the country are older and half younger.

CUSTOMER SERVICE: Q: "What proportion of the grown women play golf?" A: Breaks down to about one in every 35 over 19 years old. Q: "Which is the smarter, a raccoon or a housecat?" A: A raccoon, a raccoon.

FIGURE the country as a whole gets about 30 inches of rainfall a year. Say 21 inches goes right back into the atmosphere through as vapor. That leaves nine inches. Three inches of it stays on the ground. There's the citizenry car-use it. But six inches gets away. Please note, a reward is offered for information leading to the capture of that six inches.

REMARKABLE PLANE, the Boeing 747. Almost without flaw. One problem did show up, however. Those planes are equipped with emergency exit chutes, as you know. In a practice evacuation, said chute most peculiarly peeled the panty hose off the girls in mmiskims: Believed Boeing got that fixed, though. Hope so, anyway, I guess.

EVEN THE COMBINED WEALTH of all the nations is not enough to pay for an hour of daylight. At the usual rates for electricity, I mean. If we had to pay for sunshine by the kilowatt hour, the Meter Reader would just have to give up in a matter of minutes and turn the thing off.

Your questions and comments are welcomed and will be used in PASS IT ON wherever possible. Please address your letters to L.M. Boyd, P.O. Box 17076, Fort Worth, Texas 76102.

DEAR POLLY—Fill a well-scrubbed hot water bottle with crushed ice and place it in the bottom of a picnic basket to keep food cool.—H. P. O.

DEAR POLLY—I have plastic bags from the market, and cut them into squares to use under clothespins when hanging sweaters, blouses or other delicate articles on hangers to dry. This keeps the pins from staining or making impressions. For extra protection, use double thickness.—BARBARA

DEAR POLLY—When raking leaves, use a large broom. It gets more leaves than does a rake.—LIZA

DEAR POLLY—An easy way to empty wastebaskets on the second floor is to tie a knot in one end of a bag such as comes from the dry-cleaner. Empty all the baskets into this one. This is neat, tidy and easy to carry.—MRS. G. B. Jr.

DEAR POLLY—If you take television tubes to get them checked and are worried about breaking them put them in an empty egg carton.—MRS. M. P.

DEAR POLLY—After drying jeans out of doors they are sometimes stiff so I put them in the dryer for about 10 minutes to soften them. They do not shrink from doing this.—KIM

DEAR POLLY—I make my sponge dish mops more useful and longer lasting by covering them with a square of nylon net the same color as the mop. Not only do they last longer but clean the dishes better. These covers can be put around square sponges so they clean the sink better.—MRS. G. H. W.

DEAR POLLY—If you don't have a regular garden hose hanger, use the rim of a tire. You'll find it very handy and easy to get to.—IT WORKS PERFECTLY.—PATTY

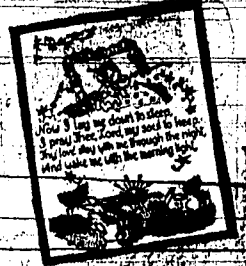

DEAR POLLY—When making peanut butter sandwiches for school lunches I always use frozen bread. This is neater, easier, and they are just right at lunch time.—M. S. B.

DEAR POLLY—Most children complain when adhesive-backed bandages are removed. Rubbing a little baby oil into the bandage before removing it makes it come off more easily, with less pulling and hurting.—EXPERIENCED

DEAR POLLY—My husband is a college student. His professors are very particular about the appearance of assignment papers. Our daughter, 6, loves to fuss, eat and play with paper and I recently heard a crunch and it was Mike's assignment. I put a cloth over each crumpled sheet and, with a slightly warm iron, I ironed Mike's paper. Thank goodness it worked.—MRS. M. P.

DEAR POLLY—Place the round coffee filter from an old percolator in the top of your bath powder box, put the powder puff on top of this and have just the right amount of powder on the puff when you use it.—MRS. E. J.

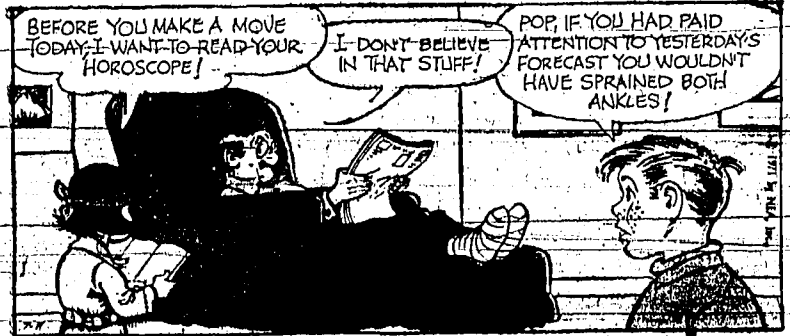

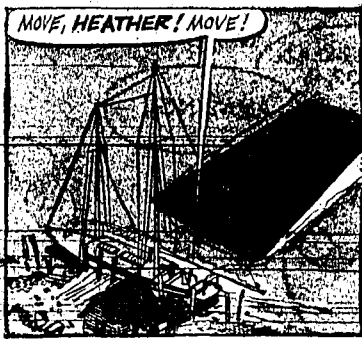

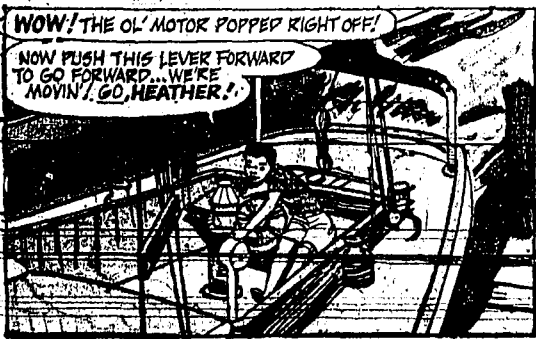

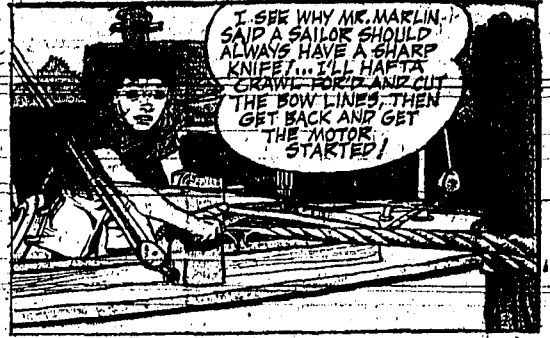

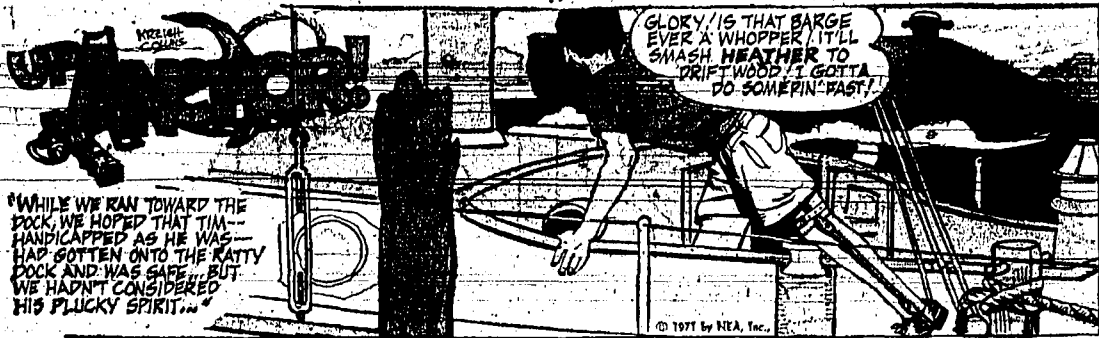

Now and Forever
A child's prayer is easy for the children to learn when embroidered in a pretty panel for their room. Pattern No. 155 has hot-iron transfer for design; color chart.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR DR. CHRISTIAAN BARNARD, heart-transplant surgeon

I hear you have arthritis. How can you do such delicate surgery with arthritis?—Grace Vachey, Sacramento, Calif.

● I suffered from crippling arthritis in school, but it doesn't bother me much now. I've been told that I have a natural immunity to arthritis. I think it's possible, within the next 10 or 15 years, that a cure for arthritis could develop from heart-transplant research. Let me explain. Arthritis is an allergy-like hay fever. In hay fever, the body rejects pollen. In heart transplants the body may reject the new heart. In arthritis, the body is rejecting itself. To put it crudely, if you have arthritis, it means you hate yourself! Incidentally, I have received over 5,000 suggestions from all over the world to cure my own arthritis. (There is no cure yet; but I have faith in the possibility above.)

FOR ROD MCKOEN, singer and poet

You sometimes refer to religion or God in your writings. Would you call yourself a religious man?—Randy Martin, Gary, Ind.

● I'm very much against organized religion. I don't like the bureaucracy and the formality of the church, or the dogma. I think the world is in serious trouble unless we come up with some drastic new religions that apply to the modern world. On the other hand, you have to believe there is a God somewhere who regulates our lives, who sometimes lets us get into trouble and occasionally pulls us out.

FOR GERMAINE GREER, feminist and author of "The Female Eunuch"

Why do women's liberationists do crazy things like bra-burning, picketing beauty contests and sitting in and disrupting publications and government offices? Don't these tactics only irritate people?—G. A. Charleston, S. C.

● The Movement is now in the consciousness-awakening period, so everything we do to make people aware of it is useful. I don't know how much good these tactics do as such; but getting people to think about women's rights and to have some understanding—especially people who didn't know they had a stake in it—are important. Take you, for example: the bra-burning was three years ago, but you are still talking about it.

FOR W. DONHAM CRAWFORD, President of Edison Electric Institute

Why do power companies advertise? It seems to me that a regulated monopoly doesn't have to.—Mrs. Horace Campbell, Las Vegas, Nev.

● Electric utility companies must install sufficient facilities to meet the maximum needs of their customers, since the utilities are required under their franchises to provide all the services demanded. When the demands of the customers are less than maximum, the facilities are not fully used, but many of the costs associated with the equipment continue to accrue. Therefore the utility advertises and promotes so-called "off-peak" uses for its service so that the costly equipment will be more fully utilized. The "off-peak" sales which the utility is able to attract result in more efficient use of the facilities and economies for all the users of the service.

FOR LOUIS R. BRUCE, Commissioner of American Indian Affairs

What percentage of American Indians are still on reservations?—Conrad Fiorello, Brooklyn, N. Y.

● In all, slightly more than 300,000 Indians, Alaska and Eskimos live on trust lands for which the Secretary of the Interior is trustee. This is more than half of the 552,000 total.

FOR MARY TYLER MOORE, actress

You often praise Valerie Harper of your TV show, but her role doesn't seem that tough. Please explain.—J. M., Lancaster, Pa.

● She's doing a very difficult thing, creating a character totally alien to her background. She plays a tough, ethnic girl from the Bronx, and she actually is an all-American type from Oregon. She went on an interview for a job recently, and a producer heard her speak and was surprised to find she doesn't have an accent.

FOR CHARLES SEDGWICK, resident veterinarian, San Diego Zoo

What animal in your zoo is served the most expensive menu?—Mrs. George Hill, Langdon, N. D.

● Kiwis eat one of the most expensive foods, earthworms which have been nurtured in vitamin-mineral enriched brooder flats. Hummingbirds eat incubated fruit flies for their necessary protein. Another animal with expensive tastes is the koala, which eats only certain varieties of eucalyptus leaves and is very picky. The leaves must be of just the right age and picked just so—all very expensive in terms of the man hours required to do it successfully.

FOR SEN. GEORGE MCGOVERN, South Dakota

During the Johnson Administration, a statement signed by Senator Church and other U. S. Senators was sent to Hanoi warning them against refusing negotiations in the hope that America would withdraw from the war. You were said to be one of the signers of the statement. Is this true? If so, what was Hanoi's reaction?—Frances Amundson, Casper, Wyo.

● In 1966 I joined with Senator Church and a number of others in signing what we termed a "plea for sanity" to Hanoi. It came at a time when the North Vietnamese were indicating an intent to try captured American pilots as war criminals, and the essence of our letter was a plea to refrain from any acts of vengeance against prisoners of war. There is, of course, no way of knowing whether our letter influenced Hanoi's position on this matter. However, shortly after this was sent, the talk about prosecuting prisoners ended. Since that time, North Vietnamese negotiators have indicated a willingness to begin discussing release of all U. S. prisoners once the United States has committed itself to withdrawal from Vietnam by a certain date.

FOR ED McMAHON,

TV's "Johnny Carson Show" In working with so many different dogs in the dog-food commercials, have you ever been bitten? (Veterinarians usually recommend that dogs be left alone while eating, you know.)—Mrs. R. W. Kohli, Ocean-side, Calif.

● Surprisingly, we've never had any problems with any of the dogs. I've found them to be very well trained. In fact, Patrick, our English sheep dog, lounges in the audience area of the theater, and when I walk in and say, "Good afternoon, gentlemen," Patrick automatically gets up and takes his place in the filming area.

FOR MATT SNELL, of the New York Jets

Do you expect to be able to play football again since you've broken your achilles tendon?—Derek Burke, Ramsey, N. J.

● Yes, I expect to play the 1973 season. But I asked for and got a one-year contract because I don't expect to play much longer and, therefore, don't want any more long contracts.

PIN-WORMS

A FAMILY AFFAIR

Intestinal parasites, which are often called Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infect 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Extra fat—they are victims and not know it. To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a special coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredients attack and destroy the Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist. Don't take chances with dangerous highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. In the bespangled heyday of vaudeville, a standard-reprieve involved the straight man telling the comic that he planned to marry soon. Then the funny man would shoot back the line: "Marriage? That's not a word. That's a sentence!" (Loud laughter from the audience, mostly married.)

Why does marriage turn so many friends into enemies? Perhaps they stop cultivating the friendship aspect of marriage. Or perhaps, as one young married woman put it, it is "because marriage is 'so dally.'" You may only see a friend occasionally, but a spouse is there; day after day. This means that even more tact and common sense are required in keeping your mate a friend.

But it is possible to stay friends in marriage. Here are a few rules that will help:

1. Continue to share interests. Married people should continue to keep mentally alive by reading, following the news, going to the theatre or concerts, so they don't stagnate. Try to keep learning and growing.
2. Work at understanding differences. Each partner brings to marriage a pattern of habits and culture. To reach a happy adjustment, each must learn to accept the other person's individuality. After all, a friend is one who forgives and likes you despite your shortcomings. Learn to "live and let live."
3. You often find married people who love their partners exactly but can't stand them as companions. [These six marriages don't usually last—the partners simply don't have enough in common.] Sex is important, but it's tact, mutual respect and kindness that keep married people friends.
4. Don't be a critic, be a booster. Couples should praise each other more often and sympathize, too. It's pretty hard to like someone who keeps tearing you down. Criticism hurts. Sometimes—a person—rips—a partner apart in order to build up his own ego. But this doesn't really make the "winner" right; it only makes the losing partner uncomfortable.
5. Talk things over with each other and listen. It is just as important to understand the other person's point of view as to push your own ideas. Too often, women forget that men want to talk over things that happen at work. And husbands forget that running a home has problems, too. Husbands and wives should budget their time so they can show their mate some attention in the evenings.
6. A good healthy squabble never wrecked a marriage. The settlement and resolution of an understandable difference of opinion should leave the marriage stronger and happier, not the reverse. But this means honest discussion, laying one's cards on the table without rancor or bitterness. Giving one's mate the silent treatment while inwardly smoldering with rage is unfair and unwise. If you treated a friend this way, you might wind up friendless. The same goes in marriage.
- If the squabbling is growing too frequent, take time out to ask: "What's the matter with me? Why do I get so upset about this?" Does it really mask another complaint? Try to get at the root of the difficulty and solve it sensibly and with good will. Sometimes a man will complain about his wife's house-keeping because she rejected him sexually the night before. Don't make out hostilities on each other. Try to work things out—so friends would also—to preserve the harmony of the home. Also, look at your fights. Do you say things which you soon regret? This sort

How to Remain Friends Though Married

By Dr. Colter Rule, psychiatrist, and Jeanne Toomey of attack breeds answers in the same vein. 7. In-laws can be: (A) a menace; (B) great friends; (C) great enemies.

Perhaps a man has guilt feelings about leaving his mother. The mother may panic over losing her son. So she brings trouble into her son's new home—often without realizing it.

She tells the bride how to cook, clean, shop. Usually, the daughter-in-law resents this. The bride doesn't realize her husband's mother is trying to be helpful. In these cases, the man should tell her: "Honey, I love you, but I love my mother, too. Please don't hold me responsible for what she said. She is a product of another time."

In fact, parents often are the products of their environment; they feel deserted. They feel forgotten, left out. They want affection from their children. Parents should be invited to the homes of their married children for special occasions. Calling on the phone is a good way of keeping in touch.

Parents, too, must learn to cultivate good relations with their children so that when the youngsters are grown, they can release them and let them step out freely into the world.

Don't attack your in-laws. Remember, you would treat a friend's family with respect, no matter how tiresome you might privately think them. Do the same for your mate and you'll get much gratitude in return.

8. Learn to live on a sensible budget. Sound financial planning is needed. Allow enough for such essentials as clothing and food. Budget modestly for entertainment. But don't undertake more than you can afford; don't incur debts you can't pay. Don't try to keep up with the Joneses. Otherwise, emotional stress will try and tax your relationship.

9. Children can play an important part in a marriage. But this important matter should be carefully decided upon and planned when a couple can afford children not only financially but emotionally.

I have often felt that the marriage license should be a ticket with perforations that divide it into three parts: The first part would run for the early marriage—the first year or two, the shake-down cruise. During this period, the couple would have to remain childless. Then, if the couple felt deeply compatible and wanted to continue, they would move onto the second portion, indicating that they wanted to have and raise children. After the last child was raised, educated and of legal age, they could again tear off a portion of the ticket, and continue or be divorced. If they decided to continue, they would then go through the later years married; only after this final stage would they be held to the vow "till death do us part."

"Sometimes a person rips a partner apart in order to build up his own ego. This doesn't make the 'winner' right; it only makes the 'loser' feel uncomfortable."

Johnny Bench: "I Do What I Believe Is Right for Me!"

Hope asked me to America is free, and he can think any way he wants to, and that's the same way I feel about. Now I think. He's done a lot of great things, and I don't think the magazines have been fair to him when they put him down for his opinions. He's being true to himself. I went to give a bit of my time to the boys to make Christmas a little easier for them. That's what he was doing, too."

Does that mean that Johnny would make a political speech or take a public stand on a national issue? "Probably not," he says, "unless it was for someone in office. It doesn't matter if he's a Democrat or Republican, I just feel you have to back the man who has been elected. Like the President is the President, and he gets my respect."

Is he worried, then, about what people will say about him? "No, I do what I believe is right for me. People are going to think whatever they want to anyway. Like the image they have of me as a swinger, with a girl knocking on my door every night. I like girls, but it's nothing like that!"

Well, then, what is it like for the $85,000-a-year catcher who is considered the most eligible bachelor in baseball? What does this priceless catcher do when he's not catching or making public appearances? "A lot of things interest me away from the game. I like to golf and bowl. In fact, I do a lot of bowling in the alleys (teammate) Pete Rose and I own in Cincinnati. And when the team's traveling, I play cards on the plane: bridge, hearts, pinocle. I also enjoy watching football and basketball games and playing basketball in the off-season. I was a pretty good basketball player in high school, but I never gave it any consideration as a career—baseball's always been my game. And I like dining out, with or without girls, eating all kinds of good food. I also like to listen to different kinds of music, especially popular and Country and Western—songs with lyrics I can relate to. Whenever there's time to catch a movie, I look for a good Western, one with a lot of excitement. But I don't go for movies with a hidden plot or that go against the Establishment. I just like those that are funny, exciting or portray life the way it really is."

"Movies and music help me to relax; they're kind of an escape when I'm not playing. Television's good that way, too. I like getting up on Saturday morning and watching cartoons like Road Runner, Dick Dastardly and Cool McCoal. I like to laugh. The trouble today is that so many people are drab and serious, not taking time to get any fun out of life."

Johnny Bench's views reflect his family and the way he grew up. Born in Oklahoma City, Okla., the youngest of Katie and Ted Bench's three sons, but older than his sister Marilyn, Johnny is the product of a Southern Baptist upbringing. His father, who played some baseball in his time, has always been proud of his son's accomplishment. "John was valedictorian of his class in both his junior and senior years in high school," Mr. Bench recalls. "He was always a straight-A student, and I can't ever remember him bringing a book

The subject of this article is:

- The youngest player ever to win the National League's Most Valuable Player Award (1968).
- The 1970 leader of both leagues in home runs (45) and runs-batted-in (148).
- Designated by Ted Williams to become "a Hall of Famer for sure."
- Described by the Red Sox manager Sparky Anderson as "possibly the best catcher ever."

"If more people would take time to know each other and to stop and think about the other person, there would be a great many longer and stronger marriages."

Would you believe it? A handsome young man, with superior intelligence, outstanding athletic skills, patriotism, generosity—a deep sense of morality and honesty—a superhero in an age of non-heroes. Yes, he really exists, and his name is Johnny Lee Bench, the 23-year-old catcher for the National League champion Cincinnati Reds.

All that is a lot of reputation to live up to, along with the especially heavy burden of being called a definite Hall of Fame candidate after just three years in the major leagues. And so, as we sat down to talk, I asked him how he felt about the early prediction of his baseball immortality.

"It's great!" he answered with an easy grin. "What has been said has been very flattering. I just hope they're saying the same thing 10 years from now. That's when it'll really mean something. Right now, though, I don't feel any pressure to make it. I mean, it's not my whole life. Of course, all the publicity has created a kind of image for me, and I do honestly feel I should try to live up to it. I think it's important, the way you present yourself to kids and to the general public."

Since Johnny acknowledges that people are influenced by what he says and does away from the ball field, how does he feel about being associated in the minds of many with the politically hawkish Bob Hope, whose Vietnam tour Bench joined last winter?

"I didn't go with Bob Hope because of his ideas on the war. I don't think anybody wants war; surely, everybody wants peace, or what are we living for? I went over there to help because Bob

What Johnny Bench looks for in a girl

"I have girl friends, and I date, but I'm not engaged, and I'm not serious about any one right now. When I do get married, the girl's going to have to be 'broad-shouldered'—ready to share responsibilities with me—and have a lot of happiness in her and a lot of understanding. She also will have to have class in the way she dresses, presents herself, carries herself, and how she acts. And she'll have to know how to handle me, control me. I'm a moody, somber person at times. I also demand a lot of myself. I don't like making mistakes, on or off the ball field, and sometimes I lack patience with people. And I'm not esthetic, so she'd have to help me to appreciate some things, including things with humor. I often miss the humor in things. In other words, she'll have to help bring out the good points in me.

"I guess sharing is the word. I don't expect we'd have children for a couple of years, but I enjoy children, and I look forward to having a family, more than anything else. Most of all, my wife will have to understand me and the ways of baseball." As far as the so-called "liberated woman" is concerned, I've got no place for construction workers with gland problems. I think there's a line that goes between Lib women and women who like liberation. All women want to be treated like women, and if they're treated like women, they can't be like those way-out Lib types."

"I like to laugh. The trouble today is that so many people are drab and serious, not taking time to get any fun out of life."

home until he took physics in high school.

Although Johnny doesn't get to see his family as much as he'd like to now, he has an almost fatherlike figure to respect in the person of Sparky Anderson, the Cincinnati manager. "I appreciate Sparky for having faith in me," says Bench, "for the responsibilities he has given me and for what he has instilled in me. I also respect the way he does his job. He's one of those people I really admire. I also admire my mom and dad, of course, for what they are. I'd describe them as salt-of-the-earth people, who appreciate the small things in life, know right from wrong and have passed on their values to me. They're always there when you need them and will do things for you in any way that's called for."

John is a refreshingly modest celebrity, but he has a strong professional pride in his achievements. Although he could have gone on to college, he chose baseball as his way of life and doesn't regret missing out on higher education. "I'm 23 years old, and I've come this far [as baseball's best young player], so I think I've done pretty well. I'm happy with my life, and I wouldn't want to change it."

If he hadn't succeeded in baseball, Johnny maintains he "would have worked hard to become Number One at whatever I did. Business, maybe, or coaching in high school or college." But he had decided at the age of five, when becoming a professional athlete is for most boys a dream that fades within a few years, that a career in baseball was what he wanted. Now, having realized that dream to become Number One among major-league catchers, he feels my years was certain right to his life. "They pay to see the ballplayer, and they want to know about him. They live through him, vicariously, and they think about him not just as a ballplayer but as a person. So, they deserve to know as much as possible about him—so long as they don't invade his privacy. Any time a fan presses beyond the point I consider right, I act congenial but let him know how I feel."

On the other hand, Johnny's opinion is that Jim Bouton presented a false view of baseball players in his best-selling book, "Ball Four." Singling out Bouton's references to girl-watching in the book, Johnny says, "I talked to some of the guys, he wrote about, and they told me a lot of it's not true. Besides, I don't know any man who doesn't look at a short skirt when it walks by. I think Bouton just threw those references in there to make the book interesting. It happened that way in his mind, but nobody else seemed to see it that way."

Seeing things the right way, living life the right way, being honest and moral and true to yourself—all these things are important to Johnny Bench, ballplayer and human being. "As you go through life," he says, "you've got to make yourself happy, and if you do that by doing the things you believe are good for you and those around you, everyone will enjoy life. If more people would take time to know each other and to stop and think about the other person and show consideration, there would be a great many longer and stronger marriages. It's such a good life, with many good things, that it's a waste if you spend it trying to find the wrong in it. The singer, Ray Stevens, said it in a song called "Mr. Businessman." Some of the lyrics are:

"Did you see your children growing up today, and

Did you hear the music of their laughter as they set about to play? Did you catch the fragrance of those roses in your garden?

Did the morning sunlight warm your soul—and brighten-up your day?

Do you qualify to be alive, or is the limit of your senses so as only to survive?"

"It would be such a good life," Johnny says in conclusion, "if we'd just live it the good way."

Johnny Bench is hardly your everyday ballplayer . . . in more ways than one. ♦

It's FIXODENT—a revolutionary discovery for daily home use. So different it's protected by U. S. Patent #3,003,488.

FIXODENT not only holds dentures firmer, but it holds them more comfortably, too. It's so elastic you may bite harder, chew better, eat more naturally.

The special pencil-tip dispenser lets you put FIXODENT exactly where it's needed. Resists oozing over and gagging.

Just one application may last for hours. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get easy-to-use FIXODENT Denture Adhesive Cream at drug counters.

THE DOCTOR LETS YOU IN By Dr. Arthur S. Fresso

Uncommon Facts About Common Colds

Every man, woman and child in the United States averages two-and-a-half colds a year. Volunteers placed soaking wet in front of fans have proven that cold or chilling or damp do not cause colds. A cold's a virus infection, although chilling or soaking may lower resistance.

Colds are never fatal, nor are they disabling to adults; but complications can do damage, and children may run fevers. There's no prevention or cure, and any hope for a vaccine is still far off. And no animal gets the thing as we do.

PEOPLE AND YOU By Shirley Sloan Fader

How Your Child's Age Affects Your Marriage

If your oldest child is between six and 12, hold on! SOON you'll be happier. Scientists studying family happiness under a Public Health Service grant have made the surprising discovery that the elementary school-age period is the most difficult in a couple's life. The couple's satisfaction with each other's companionship, with social activities, sex life, daily tasks and the way the family finances are handled all hit their lowest point of the couple's entire marriage during this period. Though satisfaction with the children is erratic during the adolescent years, every other aspect of the couple's life grows more satisfactory as the children move into adolescence.

THE DIET-WATCH By Harriet La-Barro

Calorie Hoarders, Beware!

Did you hear the one about the two dieters? It seems two overweight ladies went on 1,200-calorie diets the same day. After eight weeks, both women had lost 22 pounds. But one looked fatigued, snail and slept badly. She had no energy and she snapped at everybody. The other woman began to look healthier, bright-eyed, alert. What happened? Simply that the first woman had hoarded her daily allotted 1,200 calories until nighttime. Breakfast was unsweetened black coffee, lunch was a scoop of cottage cheese. Dinner was spurring time—a big dinner that distended her shrunken stomach and kept her awake at night. She had dragged through the day without nourishment, drawing on her body tissue for energy instead of nourishing her body and building tissue. Moral: the smart and successful dieter spends his calories on a good, high-energy breakfast, a reasonable lunch and a small dinner. Hoarding is horrible.

PET CORNER By Felicia Ames

Tips for Tuck Season

Now is the time to examine your dog for ticks. This tenacious little parasite seeks out the dark crevices on a dog's body to burrow in for his summertime feast. He makes his canine host miserable with persistent itching, and a severe infestation of ticks can cause anemia.

Periodically, run your hand over your dog's body to feel for small, seedlike bumps which swell to the size of a coffee bean. First, dab the embedded tick with alcohol or some other irritant to make him relax his hold. Then slowly and steadily pull with tweezers or a piece of flexible plastic, taking care not to leave any part of the head under the skin to start an infection. Get rid of the rascal once and for all; he might find a cozy-nesting area in your house to start a new life cycle.

Mild tick invasions can be handled by regular inspection of your dog. If armies of the pest are in occupation, turn the problem over to a veterinarian.

This little girl is a woman.

She may look like a little girl. She may act and think like a little girl.

But she's started menstruating and that technically makes her a woman.

There are times when she doesn't like the idea very much.

No girl likes to give up bike riding or swimming or just plain old comfort because of bulky sanitary pads.

And she shouldn't have to.

This girl-woman can use internally worn Tampax tampons. Right from the start.

A doctor developed them, so you know they're safe.

And to make the first-time even easier, we make Juniors in addition to Regular and Super Tampax tampons.

No one else does.

Tampax tampons have a silken-smooth container-applicator that makes insertion comfortable and hygienic.

Hands don't ever have to touch the tampon.

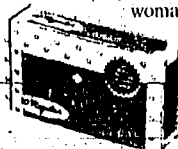

The softly compressed Tampax tampons give her protection she can depend on.

And disposal's no problem. Both applicator and tampon are completely flushable.

Best of all, Tampax tampons won't remind her or her friends that she's having her period.

Nothing can show and they can't cause odor.

They'll make becoming a woman a bit easier.

Right from the start...

Frankfurter Kabobs with Molasses Barbecue Sauce

FAMILY WEEKLY COOKBOOK

By Melanie De Proft

Pictured above are colorful kabobs with a bowl of Basic Molasses Barbecue Sauce used as a marinade, a bowl of Three Bean Salad, and a pitcher of Very Berry Limeade.

BASIC MOLASSES BARBECUE SAUCE

This all-purpose sauce will give a lilt to many foods grilled over an open fire. The recipe is a generous one and for a good reason—the sauce stores well, so you'll have it on hand in the refrigerator to use all summer.

Piquant and zesty with the flavor of lemon juice and molasses, it will enhance poultry, canned luncheon meat and cooked or canned ham, franks, fish and seafood along with interesting and colorful vegetable combinations arranged on skewers.

The kabob recipes all use this basic sauce for marinating with several ingredients added to each recipe for variety in flavor.

*1/4 cup cornstarch
4 cups lemon juice
2 cups cooking oil
1 jar (12 oz.) light or dark molasses
1/4 cup salt*

*1 tablespoon black pepper
6 bay leaves, broken in pieces
3 cloves garlic, minced*

1. Combine cornstarch and lemon juice in a saucepan. Cook and stir over low heat until mixture bubbles and thickens. Cool.

2. Using rotary or electric beater, beat in remaining ingredients until thoroughly blended and thickened.

*3. Store in refrigerator until needed.
About 2 qts. sauce*

If cooking any of the following kabobs on an unadjustable grill, it is advisable to place them on a sheet of heavy-duty aluminum foil to avoid browning the food too rapidly.

FRANKFURTER KABOBS

*12 frankfurters, each cut in 3 or 4 pieces
12 whole mushrooms, cleaned
3 medium tomatoes, cut in quarters or eighths*

*1 cup Basic Molasses Barbecue Sauce
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 to 2 tablespoons pineapple syrup, if desired*

*1. Thread franks, mushrooms, and tomato pieces onto 8- to 10-in. skewers.
2. Combine sauce, mustard, and pineapple syrup, if used. Mix well and brush generously over kabobs.*

3. Cook 5 to 6 in. above the hot coals, 3 to 4 min. on each side; brush with the sauce several times during cooking.

Merv Griffin: "My

Merv with wife Julann, their son Tony (11), and dog Quiche: They carry on the old-world tradition of families who love to eat.

My wife thinks people look like food. She's very strange that way. Ask Julann about Doris Day, and she'll say Doris looks like a bread stick. She thinks I look like a muffin.

"I don't relate people to food, but I do know if food is good. I come from a family who loves to pack it away at the dinner table. Many of my relatives still live in Santa Clara, Calif. When we're going home, we give the family one day's notice. We used to tell them two weeks in advance, but they'd spend every minute of that time cooking, and store it all up in the freezer. It was too much. I've never seen so much food.

My wife cooks the same way because that's the way her family was, too. We can afford a cook, but Julann won't have one. We have live-in help, but they're not allowed to cook. She cooks for them. She reads cookbooks the way people read literature, and she always seems to get everything done easily. When guests arrive and she serves a huge dinner, people say, "But I haven't seen you cooking today." You never catch her cooking. But, man, those pots are going all the time. It's one big stir. She's a pioneer lady!

Griffin's Onion Pie: A recipe containing onions, bacon, sour cream and tomatoes—this is one reason why the Griffins have never bothered to hire a cook.

Wife Cooks Like a Pioneer Lady" As told by Merv Griffin to Helen Dorsey

GRIFFIN'S ONION PIE

- One 9-inch pie pastry (uncooked)
 1 tsp. caraway seeds
 1½ cups onion, chopped
 2 tbsps. butter (or margarine)
 12 strips bacon, cooked and crumbled
 2 large eggs, beaten
 2½ tbsps. flour
 ½ cup milk
 1½ cups commercial sour cream
 Salt, freshly ground pepper to taste
 One large ripe tomato, optional

1. Prepare pie crust according to package instructions, adding caraway seeds during mixing. Roll out pastry on lightly floured board. Line a 9-inch pie plate with crust; prick crust. Partially bake in preheated 425° F oven about 7 min.; cool.
2. Sauté onion in butter until golden. Put in bottom of cooked crust with bacon bits.
3. Prepare custard: beat eggs until light. Slowly add flour, mixing well. Add sour cream, salt and pepper to taste. Mix well. Garnish with tomatoes cut in eighths.
4. Bake in preheated 425° F oven 20 mins.; reduce oven temperature to 325° F., bake 20 mins. longer (or until a silver knife inserted in the center comes out clean). Serves 4-6

JULANN'S GREEN PEPPER JELLY

- 2 cups prepared juice (from 8-10 large green peppers)
 7 cups sugar
 1¼ cups cider vinegar
 1 red hot cherry pepper, crushed (tied in cheesecloth bag)
 1 6-oz. bottle liquid fruit pectin
 Few drops green fruit coloring

1. To prepare juice: cut open peppers, discard seeds. Put through food chopper twice, using finest blade (or put through electric blender, pulverizing

- peppers).
2. Drain and measure 2 cups prepared juice into large saucepan (retain pulp for salads or making relish). Thoroughly mix in

- sugar and vinegar. Place over high heat. Add crushed pepper (in cheesecloth bag). While mixture is coming to high boil, add green fruit coloring to give desired shade. Remove cheesecloth bag.
 3. At end of mixture boils, stir in liquid fruit pectin. Bring to rolling boil and boil hard for one minute,

- stirring constantly.
 4. Remove from heat. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Pour quickly into sterilized jars. Cover at once with one-eighth-inch hot paraffin. Makes 10 medium-sized glasses of jelly.
 (Note: It's important to follow directions using exact ingredients and timing. Liquid fruit pectin and powdered pectin cannot be used interchangeably. Julann's emerald delight makes a great accompaniment to roast beef or lamb or a delightful spread to serve on hot buttered toast.)

MEAT BALLS AND SAUCE

- For the meat balls;
 3 tbsps. butter
 1 large stalk celery, chopped
 1 small green pepper, minced
 1 medium-sized onion, minced
 ¾ cup parsley, finely chopped
 1½ lbs. lean ground beef (sirloin or chuck)
 ½ tsp. dill seed
 ½ tsp. garlic salt
 ½ tsp. seasoned salt
 Salt, pepper to taste
 1 egg, beaten
 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
 ¾ cup condensed milk
 ½ cup unflavored bread crumbs
 Canned spaghetti sauce

1. Put butter into frying pan, add celery, pepper, onion and parsley. Cook until vegetables begin to soften. Pour butter-vegetable mixture into bowl containing ground beef.
2. Add remaining ingredients except spaghetti sauce; mix well. Form into small balls. Heat in any good commercial spaghetti sauce about 20 mins. Be sure not to heat too long; otherwise the meat balls become hard and crusty. Serves 4

NEW EUROPEAN REDUCING DISCOVERY SPREADS LIKE WILDFIRE OVER ENTIRE CONTINENT!
From England Comes News of the Greatest Breakthrough to End Overweight Forever!
YES NOW YOU CAN FAT ALL YOU WANT AND LOSE WEIGHT

'I lost 71 pounds of dangerous fat in only 60 days!'

My Story of How I Was Able to LOSE 71 POUNDS in ONLY 2 SHORT MONTHS Even Amazes Me... DON'T COUNT CALORIES... Eat 3 FULL MEALS A DAY... NO LOW CALORIE DIETS... NEVER BE HUNGRY AGAIN... COMPLETELY SAFE FOR BOTH MAN OR WOMEN IN NORMAL HEALTH.

In September of 1970 I was fortunate enough to come across a two page article in one of the leading women's publications in the United States. This article told about a NEW, QUICK, SURE and SATISFYING METHOD that started in England and is presently sweeping through France, Holland and ALL OF EUROPE. People who were overweight, who have lost just about everything in LOSE POUNDS and INCHES and were always unsuccessful... finally found the missing link as to why, no matter how or what they tried... would not lose to any degree. These fortunate people stopped Starving Themselves, Stopped Counting Calories and STILL witnessed an unbelievable weight loss almost immediately. As I read more and more of this startling article, I realize the MANY MISTAKES I HAD MADE IN TRYING TO REDUCE MY WEIGHT and the more I read the MORE CONVINCED I WAS THAT I WAS GOING TO TRY THE PLAN THIS ARTICLE RECOMMENDED.

I began to follow this simple method and was started to feel the weight disappear before my very eyes. In ONLY 1 WEEK I WAS 15 POUNDS MELTED AWAY! My clothing started to hang. I actually looked like I was losing THUNDER BOLT'S ENERGY. THIS DOESN'T BOTHER ME AT ALL, but THIS IS GREAT, QUICK and SAFE! Why? Well, weight was what I had been looking for my entire adult life. And amazingly enough I wasn't hungry even one. As the weight seemingly dropped off I became more and more confident and as a result I had my new appearance. I was even more thrilled and inspired to keep going. Finally after a short while I couldn't wear any of my clothes any longer... but this certainly didn't bother me. I STARTED WEARING MY CLOTHING AGAIN!

I had decided to give this amazing new concept to everyone willing to try something COMPLETELY NEW IN WEIGHT REDUCTION.

HILDEGARD NEFF, AUTHOR & ACTRESS
A horror-story childhood with a happy ending

Her grandfather's suicide presents a moving moment as actress Hildegard Neff (Neff in America) tells the story of her childhood in Nazi Germany in her new book, "The Gift Horse." During the Russian occupation, her grandfather moved into one room of a burned-out house, waiting for word of whether Hildegard was alive. Three months he waited, until at last they had their reunion; she'd been in a Russian prison camp. "Two weeks later," she writes, "I had my opening night (on stage). Before the performance, a woman brought me a letter. It had no address. 'My beloved child,' it began, 'I am too old to be able to forget the horrors, or to be of use to you any longer,' and ended, 'perhaps you will one day understand and forgive me.' The handwriting was quite clear and not at all shaky. He had then taken sleeping pills, bound up his chin with a handkerchief, and drawn the sheet over his head." But the show, as tradition demands, went on.

Do you know what the Status of Liberty really looks like? Here are some vital statistics of a very big lady (225 tons): Index finger, eight feet long; circumference, three feet, six inches; fingernail 13 by 10 inches. Length of nose, four feet, six inches. Width of mouth, three feet.

What is a ghost town really like? Typical is Goodsprings, Nev. (within driving distance of Las Vegas), population now about 62, which was the biggest town in the state back in 1913, according to "FWA's Getaway Guide to Las Vegas." In 1942 Clark Gable stayed at the hotel (gone now, as is almost everything but the cemetery and derelict mines) while he was awaiting the body of his wife Carole Lombard killed in a plane crash. Pieces of the wreckage of that crash adorn the pot-bellied stove of the lone building, the old tin-walled, bullet-ridden Pioneer Saloon. The bearded owner, Dan Hedrick, 44 years old and 285 pounds, left the supermarket business in Illinois to come here. He opines: "Out here, you don't have to put up with a packaged world."

WOODY WOODPECKER IS 30
Will that mean kids can't trust him?

Woody Woodpecker is 30 years old this month. (Does that announcement make you feel very old, or very young?) He started out as a minor movie cartoon character, but soon, by popular demand, he became a leading man. His creator Walter Lantz, 71, tells us that Woody's first voice was that of Mel Blanc (who also does Bugs Bunny's voice). But—surprise!—for the last decade or so, his voice has been that of Mrs. Lantz. These days Woody stars on NBC's "Woody Woodpecker Show," on autumn Saturday mornings.

DAYS: Thursday is St. Swithin's Day. (If it rains that day, legend says it will rain for 40 days.) The Miss Universe Pageant begins Thursday at Miami Beach.

BIRTHDAYS: Monday, Andrew Wyeth is 54, Van Cliburn is 37 and Oscar Hammerstein II is 76. Wednesday, Irving Stone is 68, Ingmar Bergman is 53 and Terry-Thomas is 60. Gigan Rogers is 60, and Barbara Stanwyck is 64 on Friday. On Saturday, James Cagney is 67.

I DON'T NEED GLASSES, HONEST!

A farmer was finishing his haying one Sunday morning as the pastor of the local church drove by.

"Brother," the minister lectured him, "don't you know that the Creator made the world in six days and rested on the seventh?"

"Yes," said the farmer looking unconcerned at the rain clouds closing in. "But He got done, and I didn't."

FATHER'S CONCERN
One thing my wife's been quick to see is all our children's faults in me. I cringe in apprehension when I think how bad they might have been, if they had not been blessed by her With some good traits of character.
—Rex Mobley

An old employee had been kept on by his firm long after his usefulness had ended. When he became a nuisance to everybody around him, he was persuaded to "retire" on his 80th birthday.

At his farewell dinner, his associates pulled out all the stops to extol him. The Chairman of the Board actually shed a couple of tears as he ticked off the old fellow's many virtues and fine accomplishments.

The old man was bowled over. "I had no idea I was so essential," he quavered when it was his turn to speak. "I withdraw my resignation. I'll stay on with you."
