Bank sets interest rate lid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Home Loan Bank Board (FHLB) served notice today it would move against rises in mortgage interest rates as a backup to President Nixon's new economic policies. The FHLB announced today Chairman—Preston Martin would hold a news conference at 10 a.m. EDT Tuesday to discuss a rise in mortgage interest rates and several steps being taken to stabilize these rates. In line with President Nixon's new policies, the dollar, meanwhile, appeared to be holding its own on the world's money markets. Mortgage interest rates were not included in Nixon's 90-day wage-price-rent freeze. There was no immediate indication what steps Martin would announce. There has been severe criticism from Democrats and union leaders of the failure of the administration to take decisive action against interest rates and profits while it was freezing wages and prices. They charged this was unfair to the working man—and the consumer. Nixon asked banks and corporations to place a voluntary freeze on interest rates and dividends when he announced the new policies. However, the announcement of the Martin press conference appeared to indicate the administration was unsatisfied with voluntary efforts.

The United States wants the value of the dollar to sink on world markets so that American exports will cost less in foreign countries and foreign imports will cost more in the United States.

dollar to float—that is, find its own value in relation to other currencies—is "an unsatisfactory arrangement."

(The Washington Post said in today's editions that IMF officials suggested the United States devalue the dollar by a definite rate by increasing the official price of gold; but the administration rejected the idea.)

Criticism continued of Nixon's domestic policies—mainly of the 90-day freeze on wages, prices and rents. But Assistant Labor Secretary W. J. Usury Jr. predicted that rank and file union workers would go along with the freeze because they feared inflation and foreign competition.

The dollar was lower than previous official exchange rates on most European money markets today as they opened for the first time in a week, but the drop was not nearly as much as the United States had hoped. The greatest dip in the dollar's value was in West Germany where the effective drop in value of the dollar compared to old exchange rates was 6.4 per cent. The decrease in Britain was about 1.7 per cent and 1 per cent in France as compared to the old exchange rate. The dollar also dropped some in other European nations.

James M. Roche, chairman of General Motors, strongly denied charges by Ralph Nader that GM had advanced knowledge of the wage-price-rent freeze. Nader had said GM attempted to put its 1972 models on sale ahead of time at higher prices. But Roche said that action was taken 10 days before he received the first hint of the freeze—a call from Treasury Secretary John B. Connally the day the new policies were announced to ask questions regarding the possible effect on the auto industry of such controls.

Envoys greet

Berlin access accord gained

BERLIN (UPI)—The Big Four ambassadors announced today they have drawn up an agreement on the future of Berlin designed to lessen tension in the perennial cold war trouble spot. Before the formal announcement diplomatic sources said the agreement contained Russian concessions which would strengthen the isolated city 110 miles inside East Germany. Russian Ambassador Pyotr A. Abrasimov heralded the agreement by emerging from the final Big Four meeting and announcing "everything is perfect." The sources said the Russians have agreed to accept responsibility for unimpeded access to West Berlin, favored opening the wall for West Berliners, and recognized the ties that bind West Berlin to West Germany. The Western sources said in return for concessions the Russians won the right to open a consulate in West Berlin and a limitation on West German political activity.

New Bolivia chief keeps land quiet

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI)—Col. Hugo Banzer, Bolivia's new president, maintained order with an enforced state of emergency today while deposed President Juan Rosa Torres hid out in the Peruvian embassy. An official body count in the four-day revolution disclosed 112 persons were killed, 101 of them in the city of La Paz and the others in the interior of the country. Official reports said there were hundreds of wounded in La Paz hospitals. Banzer, with the backing of the armed forces and right-wing civilian groups including the Socialist (Falange) party and the Nationalist Revolutionary Movement, crushed the last armed resistance to the coup Sunday with the aid of World War II P-51 Mustang planes and armored vehicles.

Students and workers supporting Torres' leftist government surrendered in the face of overwhelming military force. Torres, who had seized power 10 months before in a leftist coup, at first vowed to fight to the end but gave up Sunday and was granted political asylum in the Peruvian embassy. It was Banzer's arrest 10 days ago in Santa Cruz that set off the demonstrations that preceded the coup. Banzer, 45, had returned from exile in Argentina, where he had fled after failing to overthrow Torres in a coup attempt last January while he was director of the military college in La Paz. The military forces, unhappy about Torres' plans for creating a new popular army, started the armed revolt Thursday.

Pesticide spotted?

GOODING — Dr. Willard Nelson, assistant state veterinarian for the Idaho Department of Health said today a tentative identification has been made of the pesticide responsible for the death of 27 cattle owned by Martin Sabala of Gooding on July 28. However, a Florida laboratory must confirm the tentative identification before the name can be released, according to Nelson. The confirmation is anticipated this week, probably by Wednesday. Sabala sprayed his herd of more than 50 milk cows with the pesticide as a routine precaution on July 28, only to have 27 cows die in convulsions. Nelson said extensive tests of the poisoned cattle failed to indicate toxic effects of the toxaphene or lindane ingredients in the cattle spray. It was suggested today that cross-contamination with weed-control sprays could be possible. The health department official did not indicate where the cross-contamination could have taken place.

An investigation by the Idaho Department of Agriculture was severely hampered by the refusal of several witnesses to testify, according to an Agriculture Department spokesman. Because of the refusal, the department has refused to schedule any further investigation into the case.

DMZ hit by Yank gunfire

SAIGON (UPI)—Allied air, artillery and ground forces today killed 76 Communists in a salarated attack on a North Vietnamese battalion headquarters and followed it up with heavy strikes on a second command post near the Demilitarized Zone, (DMZ) field reports said.

At the same time, South Vietnamese and U.S. jets, ships and artillery ripped into North Vietnamese positions inside the DMZ, the supposedly neutral buffer separating the two Vietnams, military spokesmen said.

Belleveue girl, 17, drowns

BELLEVEUE — A Belleveue girl, Cheri Barker, 17, drowned in Deadwood Reservoir near Lowman on Sunday, according to Valley County Sheriff Merton Loque. The Sheriff said Miss Barker was swimming with Dorina Rothoff, also of Belleveue. Eugene Peterson, Boise, a camper who was watching the girls swim, tried to rescue the girl, grabbing her twice in the chilly water, but was unable to maintain his grasp, and Miss Barker was swept to her death. Loque said the girl's body was recovered on Sunday by two Cascade skin divers. Funeral services are scheduled at Hailey. (Obituary, Page 2)

Rail fire destroys lumber

KING HILL — Damage was estimated at $25,000 to $30,000 following a fire in four railroad cars of lumber at King Hill Sunday night, according to Union Pacific officials.

A railroad crew said sparks from brake shoes on the train apparently ignited the lumber. The fire was noticed while the train was eastbound up Henderson Hill about five miles east of King Hill about 10 p.m. Sunday. The crew backed the train into the King Hill yards, where the Glenna-Ferry-Fire Department and a Bureau of Land Management crew responded to the alarm.

The BLM crew was called because of the danger of a grass fire as the cars passed over under-dry grass.

A strong wind which whipped through Southern Idaho late Sunday helped fan the fire into a near-inferno. The blaze destroyed two flatcars and the lumber, and damaged two other cars extensively.

The BLM crew remained on the scene all night, leaving about 7:30 a.m. today. The Glenna Ferry crew was still working today to remove the smoking lumber from the scorched cars. The passing track and "Number Two" main-line track were extensively damaged and will be out of service for some time, according to UPRR officials. The intense heat of the fire incinerated the railroad ties and warped the heavy steel rails. The principal main-line track was not damaged, and rail-traffic will not be hampered, officials said today.

Car flips, girl hurt

BURLEY — A former Idaho Falls girl, now living in Murray, Utah, sustained multiple injuries when she apparently went to sleep while driving east on Interstate 90 near Burley and her car rolled over, throwing her more than 120 feet along the roadway Saturday night. State Police said Janice L. Schutt, 19, lost control when her car hit a ditch. The vehicle knocked down one highway marker, recoiled off a concrete culvert, rolled over, knocked down another marker 83 feet away, and finally came to rest. Miss Schutt, who was treated for multiple lacerations and a possible fractured pelvis bone, was cited for inattentive driving.

Europe trading slow, dollar off

LONDON (UPI)—European currency exchanges reopened today for the first time since President Nixon allowed the dollar to float a week ago. As expected, the dollar fell on most markets but trading was slow and cautious and any effective devaluation of the dollar was inconclusive. In West Germany, which has one of the stronger currencies in the world, the effective devaluation of the dollar was 6.4 per cent with the dollar quotation set at 3.4250 as compared with the old official rate of 3.66. This was better than the 7.65 devaluation of last week, a 22-year low. Against the British pound sterling the dollar first dropped by about 2.5 per cent as the pound was allowed to float freely for the first time since the start of World War II. Later it recovered to about 1.7 per cent. The official rate is $2.40 to the pound and prices moved from $2.4450 back up to $2.4425. The dollar improved in France and last week's dollar devaluation of 7 per cent settled to 1 per cent. The dollar also dipped in Italy, in Scandinavia, and in the Benelux nations—Belgium, Luxembourg and Holland. The Spanish peseta and the Portuguese escudo were unchanged. Two nations officially devalued their currencies over the weekend as result of the Nixon action—the Israeli pound by 20 per cent from 3.50 to the dollar to 4.20. Indonesia devalued its currency by almost 10 per cent today and the Indonesian rupiah was set at 415 to the dollar. On the Hong Kong market the dollar plunged to a low of 5.85 Hong Kong dollars to the U.S. dollar when the market opened, a devaluation of 3.4 per cent, but the dollar gained strength later and rose to between 5.90 and 5.94, or about 3 per cent. The official rate is 6.06. The Tokyo stock market plunged again today as pressure increased on Japan to revalue the yen upward as much as 20 per cent. The Bank of Japan has bought more than $2.5 billion in dollars to save the old rate of 360 yen to the dollar. The pressure on Japan was virtually no quotation on the yen in the London foreign exchange market.

Envoy, Viet talk

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker Conferred urgently tonight with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu on what to do about the withdrawal of the last opposition candidate from the Oct. 3 presidential elections, leaving Thieu the only candidate.

Ky said he was pulling out because of Thieu's "maneuvers." Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh the other leading candidate, dropped out last week with charges that the elections were rigged. After an early ruling that Ky was ineligible, the South Vietnamese Supreme Court reversed the decision Saturday to place Ky's name on the ballot. Today Ky proposed instead that both he and Thieu resign so that a new election could be organized.

Attorney hunted in break

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI)—Authorities today sought the grandson of a former U.S. senator who was the last person to visit black revolutionary convict George Jackson before the prisoner and five others were killed in an escape attempt at San Quentin Prison. They want to find out how Jackson got a gun he used to lead the attempted breakout. An all-points bulletin went out for Stephen Mitchell Bingham, 29, grandson of the late Hiram Bingham, who was governor of Connecticut and a U.S. senator. Bingham is the son of Alfred Bingham, of Salem, Conn., and nephew of Jonathan Bingham, Democratic congressman from New York City. He attended

Yale and later obtained a law degree at the University of the Pacific in Berkeley, Calif. He was reported to have been associated during recent years with radical groups in Oakland, Calif. No warrant has been issued for Bingham, but authorities want to talk to him. The prison said Bingham was Jackson's visitor on Saturday afternoon, a few minutes before the 29-year-old black inmate drew a gun in the maximum security area. "This is it," Jackson said, touching off the bloody aftermath of killing. Visitors at San Quentin sit at a table across from the prisoner. A screen can be closed between the visitor and the prisoner, but officials said it was not closed for Jackson.

Warden Louis Nelson said Sunday Jackson did not have the gun when he was searched before he went to see his visitor but pulled it on guards who tried to search him on his return to his cell. Three guards and two other convicts as well as "Soleled Brother" Jackson died in 15 minutes of violence.

State penal chief due before probe Tuesday

BOISE (UPI) — When Raymond W. May appears Tuesday before the special committee investigating conditions at the Idaho State Penitentiary, the buck-passing stops.

May, director of state correction and in effect, warden, has been preceded at the hearings by his administrative staff and correction officers.

In over 500 pages of corrective testimony, they have aired publicly a bevy of festering personal grievances and hurled accusations, sometimes contradictory, at each other.

The seven-man committee, appointed by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, sifts through testimony most concerned with policies being administered at the Idaho State Penitentiary and conditions that precipitated a night of rioting.

Ada County Sheriff Paul Bright is conducting the criminal investigation of an inmate murder, two other stabbings and arson that caused $25,000 damage to prison buildings.

The committee has asked each witness whether he is from the punitive "old school" or the rehabilitative "new-school" of penology. The guards, almost to a man, are hardliners. The administrative staff all favor the modern methods of rehabilitation.

The dichotomy in philosophy has raised many policy questions. May, who started on the line as a tower guard at Alcatraz in 1936, will have to answer the questions now as the top state prison administrator.

In the chain of command, May has the responsibility for policy. At least on paper, he has the authority. But testimony has proven how factionalized a prison society is, both within the walls or on the walls, whether it be the convicts or their keepers.

May will have to answer disturbing questions aired by his staff in testimony: Who is giving the orders? More importantly, who is following the orders? Do convict-coddling administrators keep uninformed as guards contend? Do guards who scorn rehabilitative methods misinterpret or disobey orders as administrators have testified? Have supervisors created fiefdoms of power that clashed with each guard shift?

Turking further beneath the surface is a darker question that committee chairman Edward W. Williams, administrator assistant to Gov. Andrus, asks of each witness: "Is there a convict mayor at the prison giving orders to both inmates and staff?"

In short, just who is running the show at the Idaho State Penitentiary?

The guards have testified that supervisors undercut their authority with inmates, that disciplinary measures are not supported by the administration "soft-liners," that guards have to take physical and verbal abuse from convicts because of no support from the administration.

Guards testified to feelings of job insecurity, that they could be "set up" by inmates or supervisors to be fired if they rock the boat.

A correction officer said one administrator is called "Santa Claus" by the inmates because of a lenient attitude. He said the guards stopped following his orders "because we were fed up with him."

Another guard, who professed the greatest respect for May, nevertheless said May "doesn't know what is going on half the time" and that the prison is a country club with the inmates running it.

He said if May ordered a wall painted black, it would end up rainbow-colored by the time the order filtered down through his staff.

Administrators pass the buck back to the guards. They contend that guards aren't in tune with running a modern penal institution, that if topside orders aren't followed, it's the guards' fault.

Associate Superintendent Glen R. Jeffes said "to the best of my knowledge" orders are carried out. But he admitted guards "might be misinterpreting orders."

Richard L. Anderson, Associate Superintendent, testified that "political backbiting by some of the staff shows they are not concerned with good correctional methods, but with waving their own flags."

Another administrator, William Evans, admitted "the riot may have slipped up on us."

The first two days of testimony this past week illustrated vividly that staff communications and the chain of command had broken down before the riot made it obvious.

This state-of-affairs-is-most-sharply focused in testimony on Cellhouse Five, derisively dubbed the "Honor Dorm" by unsympathetic hardline guards.

Anderson, primarily responsible for the program, said it was an attempt to instill responsibility in convicts serving long terms by freeing them of most prison restrictions.

The guards countered that it was another case of inmates coining the administration, that incorrigibles ended up as the occupants because the election by inmates was fixed. The guards testified they had given orders not to "change down" five house, to maintain a "hands-off" policy.

Both Anderson and Jeffes flatly denied such an order, verbal or written, had been issued.

Guards claimed Cellhouse Five was a haven for escape plans from the beginning. Many believe the discovery of the escape tunnel there finally precipitated the riot two days later — ignited by 10 of 16 "incorrigibles" who have been transferred from the "Honor Dorm" to maximum security.

The convicts had taken advantage of their immunity from guard searches in Cellhouse Five to stockpile contraband tools and weapons discovered after the rehabilitative experiment was cancelled. Anderson admitted it had been a failure.

But Anderson charged the guards had greased the chutes for the failure by not following standard procedures of control.

CAMDEN, N.J. (UPI) — Federal authorities began checking "thoroughly" today to find out how many of a quarter-million cans of contaminated chicken vegetable soup were shipped without detection from the Campbell Soup Co. plant at Paris, Tex., to 18 states.

Officials at Campbell headquarters here recalled 4,790 cases of the soup—230,352 cans—after company chemists discovered Sunday that the product was contaminated by botulism, a sometimes fatal toxic that attacks the nervous system.

William Parker, director of Campbell's Information Services, said the company had "ascertained" the whereabouts of 2,788 cases by late Sunday night, leaving 2,001 cases still unaccounted for.

It was the nation's second major discovery of soup contamination by botulism in as many months. Bon Vivant Co. of Newark, N.J., reported the first in vichyssoise, a cold potato soup, and subsequently declared itself bankrupt.

Kenneth M. Clair, Campbell's vice president for public relations, said the cans of contaminated soup, bearing the code number "497-701," were shipped from the company's Paris plant to Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Nebraska, New Mexico, Mississippi, Missouri, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas and Wyoming.

Clair said the contaminated product was processed July 15, but that Campbell was recalling all of the chicken vegetable soup packed at its Paris plant "as an extra safety factor."

Unlike the botulism contamination of Bon Vivant Products, Parker reported "there has been no illness and there is not likely to be any illness" as a result of the Campbell contamination. Parker said most consumers would be repelled by "the foul odor" of the contaminated products.

Bon Vivant recalled more than a million cans of vichyssoise and other products following the June 30 death of Samuel Cochran, Jr., a Bedford, N.Y., banker who died after eating some of the supposedly contaminated potato soup.

Clair also said the botulism, which results from inadequate heating during canning, could be neutralized by boiling. But an Agriculture Department spokesman said most people allow soup only to simmer to preserve its flavor.

In Washington, the Agriculture Department urged consumers in the affected states, as well as in neighboring locales, to "carefully destroy any chicken vegetable soup in such a way as will prevent it being consumed by humans and animals."

Kenneth M. McEnroe, head of the USDA's Meat and Poultry Inspection Service, said the agency's resident inspector at Paris would "check thoroughly" to discover how the contaminated soup escaped detection.

The USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service also said it was "contacting the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., and the public health authorities in the states in which the possibly contaminated product has been distributed."

Question...

Please tell me about cremation.

Answer...

There is very little to distinguish a cremation funeral from an involving earth burial or entombment. A casket and funeral is a part of all these services and our minimum cost of $250 is available for anyone of them. Apart from our minimum we have many other funeral services available.

The present cost for cremation is $75 plus transportation to the crematory. The ashes subsequently are buried, placed in a columbarium or disposed of otherwise.

How people care for their family members after death is one of their most personal rights. At the White Mortuary we know exactly what procedures to follow for cremation, entombment or burial. The final choice in this regard rests entirely with the family.

State Police officer Les Simpson was first in the class with a score of 1,427, followed by three city police officers, including Jim Kistler, 1,410; Police Chief Frank Barnett, 1,400, and Ron Strolberg, 1,394. Two Rupert officers topped Class B competition. City Police officer Paul Fries scored 1,329; State Police officer Gordon Mills shot a score of 1,325; Twin Falls city officer Gary Corder was third with 1,324, and Burley Police officer Bill Dayley was close behind Corder with a score of 1,321. Two Twin Falls officers scored in Class C competition, with Fish and Game Officer Jim Garraway topping the field at 1,299, while Gooding officer Dewayne Walker and Twin Falls officer Don Hughes tied with 1,287, and Rupert State Police officer Dean Holloway was fourth with 1,237. Class D winners included Twin Falls officer Robert Collins, first with 1,110; Burley officer Alan Smith, second with 1,069, and J.D. Turner, Twin Falls, third, 1,047. Distaff winners included Bonnie Smith, Burley, 232; Norma Corder, Twin Falls, 228, and Connie Harkness, Burley, 228. Four-man team winners included the first-place team of Barnett and Cliff Sharp, Twin Falls police; Jerry Packer, Twin Falls sheriff's office, and Larry Platt, Pocatello, firing a

Defendant granted probation

TWIN FALLS — Barbara Cutts, 29, Twin Falls, was sentenced to 14 years and the sentence was commuted to three years on probation in Fifth Judicial District Court Friday. Mrs. Cutts had entered a plea of guilty to accepting Department of Public Assistance money under false pretenses. Charges were brought by the department earlier this year, alleging she accepted welfare checks during the period from December, 1969 until September, 1970 when she was receiving revenue from other sources and not legally entitled to the public assistance. Judge Theron W. Ward pronounced sentence and placed the woman on probation for the ensuing three years.

Need For Speed And Secrecy

WASHINGTON — The need for speed and secrecy was so paramount last weekend during the crucial Camp David talks...

OPA-type mechanism so detested by Richard M. Nixon? One tentative answer (though Mr. Nixon remains totally uncommitted on post-freeze policy)...

the AFIS-CIO assailing the President's wage-price freeze, some mechanism to hold down price increases is a political imperative...

simply must follow the 90-day freeze. Top Administration policymakers hope that a rise in the economy (with revised second-quarter statistics showing a solid 4 per cent real growth) will so generate higher productivity that inflationary pressures will be deflated...

for the first year, and lesser increases for the next two. Moreover, the heavy pressure of the committee has given labor leaders a subtle assist in resisting runaway wage demands from the rank-and-file which they themselves know are pie-in-the-sky.

COMMENT

Politics Of It All

Christian Science Monitor From the point of view of the professional politician President Nixon has done a remarkable job of getting ready for the 1972 political campaign.

He has defused the war issue almost completely by winding down the war itself and announcing a trip to Peking. He has shaken the Republican right, and some old friends overseas. But the Peking trip makes credible the policy of winding down the war.

"Middle America," "hard hats," and southern whites were disgruntled over Mr. Nixon's failure to slow or halt the march of Negroes toward political and economic equality.

portant than mixing color in classrooms.

Now this is all rounded out with the new "prosperity" package which gives everyone some hope of a check to the inflation; has obviously delighted Mr. Nixon's own basic community of business and industry; and has displeased mostly only those segments of organized labor and the slum dwellers who never vote Republican anyway.

Whether it will work is another matter. It's one thing to tailor a winning political strategy. It's another thing to make it work. But as of end of summer 1971, Mr. Nixon has tailored a strategy which gives Democrats as little room for maneuver as a master politician can manage.

The real weakness, if there is one, lies in the personal relationship between Richard Nixon and the American people. Not until the votes are counted next year will we find out whether the slowness in evolving these new policies has seriously cut into that relationship.

If Mr. Nixon had started out earlier on winding down the war instead of invading Cambodia and Laos, would "middle America" have more confidence in his "peace" posture now? If he had laid on price and wage controls a year ago, would more housewives be sympathetic than are now?

Mr. Nixon's real election problem, after all, is one of personality, not strategy. He has a super strategy. Not even a Teddy or Franklin Roosevelt could have put together a more skillfully tailored package than this triangle of peace, prosperity, and minimum busing.

Democrats are going to have a hard time finding substitutes for the three strategies. The prospect therefore is that we will, sadly, be getting a lot of personality mixed into politics next year.

It Is Wrong

Portland Oregonian The devious legal justifications of federal courts in upholding massive compulsory busing of school children to achieve integration in the classrooms do not stand the test of common sense.

We are talking about compulsory mass busing as ordered by a federal court in Alabama which ordered black schools closed to speed desegregation, and by the federal district court and appellate court in San Francisco which upheld a school board order for the busing of 48,000 students throughout the city.

Federal court orders in the South have left some districts financially unable to comply with busing orders, chiefly those in urban areas in which busing has not been the practice as in rural areas. The cost of transporting 48,000 Negro, Filipino, Chinese, Mexican-American, white, and other children in San Francisco will be added to the costs of an already financially burdened school system.

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, in revolt against the courts, has issued an executive order for the reopening of a black school—184 Negro and 5 white children, last year—ordered closed by the federal court. His ordered reinstated the zone system which permits pupils to attend that school or any other of their choice, and directed the school board to provide buses for those whose parents wish it. The Portland school system encourages voluntary busing among unsegregated schools of this and neighboring districts, but this is a far cry from compulsory mass-busing to achieve integration.

President Nixon has declared against forced busing of school children and has ordered executive agencies not to spend for that purpose any of $1.5 billion the Administration is asking from Congress for integration of schools.

In response, the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, a body created by Congress in 1957 and appointed by the President, charged that President Nixon's position will undermine the desegregation effort. Public reaction against mass busing is much more likely to have that effect.

Busing of children to alter the residential proportions of classroom attendance may be a tool of integration but compulsory busing is a flagrant abuse of the rights of children and parents to use the schools near their homes which are most convenient and least costly. Most blacks as well as whites have turned against the concept of compulsion and are demanding quality education in all schools. Many other factors are working toward racial integration and the dispersion of minorities, and compulsion is not the answer.

Like A Club

Editor's Note — Art Buchwald says he is on vacation, but the rumor in Washington is that he is on a secret mission for Henry Kissinger.

The latest thing in flying is Group Discount Economy Fares. It seems that if you're a member of any kind of club which consists of 25 people or more, you get a group discount which can save you as much as $200 a person on a trip to Paris.

To qualify for group travel, your club must have been in existence for six months before your departure date. It doesn't make any difference what the club is all about.

This latest sales scheme to sell airline tickets is bound to make everyone even more club-conscious than they are now, and many new clubs will be formed just for the sake of taking advantage of the low fare.

But because of this there can also be complications. Let us say some people in Hollis, N. Y., where I used to live, form a club called the Public School 35 Alumni Assn., and they get 25 members to join. They meet faithfully every week for six months, and now the day before their departure has arrived.

Everyone is very excited, everyone, that is, except Buzzy Dixon, who has just informed the others that he has decided not to go.

A delegation is sent to Buzzy's house, where he's sitting in the living room.

"Buzzy, what's happened? Why aren't you going?" "I don't like Sheldon."

"For heaven's sake! Nobody likes Sheldon, but that's no reason to cancel out now."

"Sheldon's always making fun of me at the meetings. In fact he always made fun of me even when I was in Public School 35."

member. We've worked and played for six months just for tomorrow. You can't let the rest of us down."

"That's the trouble with all of you. You think more about your trip than you do about the club. But the club means more to me than the trip, Sheldon knows that. That's why he hates me."

"Sheldon doesn't hate you." "Well, he's always knocking down my ideas. I thought it would be nice if we had a clubhouse where we could meet, and maybe even a golf course, and we could have dinner dances every week and really be a club."

"Maybe we can, Buzzy, after we all come back from Europe. We could talk about it then."

"Sure we can talk about it, but Sheldon will veto it. He's always against everything I'm for."

"But you don't have to travel with him. All you have to do is take the same plane with him. Once you get to Paris you're on your own."

RAY CROMLEY

The Crisis

WASHINGTON (NEA) — clear to everyone that he had no alternative but strong action. Labor had to believe that Nixon had no other alternative, or it would not stand still for a wage moratorium. Business had to be convinced by the seriousness of the crisis, or it would not hold for price controls. Consumers had to be shocked into confidence the President meant business. And that confidence had to be great enough so that they would take savings out of banks and buy.

And Europeans, Japanese and other major trading countries had to be so shocked by the U.S. situation that they would negotiate seriously to eliminate barriers erected over the years against American exports.

In the end, therefore, Nixon came to believe he could create a double-barreled shock by coordinating his timing with a crisis so serious it was apparent to everyone and by offering a solution so radical it was in itself a shocker.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Diabetes

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What can be done when tests show some sugar in the urine, and the doctor says, "Watch it, it can become diabetes; you have a low threshold?"

My son, 23, was told this recently. He is not overweight and eats very little sweets, but he is tired all the time.

We know nothing about diabetes except that we are not aware it has ever been in our family on either side. Can anything be done to prevent it from developing? — P. M. C.

I doubt whether your son has had adequate diagnosis, since you make no mention of his having had a sugar-tolerance test — which is a test that shows the rise and fall of the sugar level in his blood.

A urine test is a useful test, but it is only a "screening test" to find people who need further testing.

Your reference to a "low threshold" raises another point. People with perfectly normal blood sugar (that is, they are not diabetic) can have a condition called renal glycosuria. They have a "low threshold" meaning that some sugar can spill through the kidneys and thus appear in the urine. But if the blood sugar level is normal, this does not harm.

Renal glycosuria is not a precursor of diabetes; nor is it a sign that diabetes is developing. True, persons with renal glycosuria can develop diabetes, but not because of it.

In this case, I would recommend that he have a sugar-tolerance test. If there is no diabetes on either side of the family, his chances of developing diabetes are remote (though not impossible). A sugar-tolerance test would at least set your mind at rest, and if, doubtful as it seems, he does have diabetes, you can start treating it at once.

There is no way of preventing diabetes, however, except to reduce (if overweight) and; if not overweight, to keep weight normal.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard that those little creatures on the lower part of the abdomen called "crabs" are a sign of gonorrhea or V.D. Is this true? What can be done to get rid of them? — R. M.

You heard wrong. They aren't a sign of venereal disease — although they are increasingly rapidly in recent years for the same reason V.D. is increasing. More person-to-person exposure these days.

"Crabs" are crabs, a type of louse that prefers the pubic region although doesn't always stay there. Once you have crabs, fooling around with home remedies isn't too likely to be successful. There is a sort of "medicated shampoo" that works very reliably and quickly, but you'll have to go to your doctor to get it, along with instructions on how to use it.

Crabs can be transmitted other than by sexual contact — by swapping clothes with somebody who has lice, for one example.

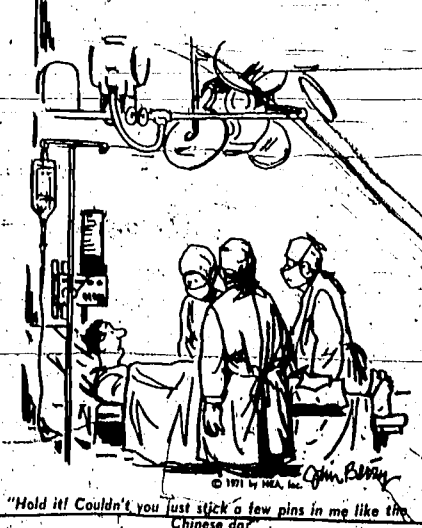

They're hard to get rid of because they lay eggs which are firmly attached to hairs until they hatch. You need a treatment that eliminates the eggs as well as the bugs.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've run into a controversy. Does taking the birth control pill cause weight gain? — Mrs. D. L.

Not necessarily. In some individuals yes, because it causes a greater accumulation of fluid in the body.

Note to J.R.E.: Bradycardia means an abnormally slow heart beat for any number of possible reasons: infection, weakened heart muscle, interference with the impulse causing the heart to beat — and sometimes for no discoverable reason at all, in which case it is normal.

Bride takes fight to Washington, D.C.

MOSCOW (UPI)—A young American bride unable to win Soviet permission to live with her Russian husband in Leningrad decided Saturday to fly home and take her fight to Washington.

Deborah Brackman Kremniova married medical student Valeri Kremniova last Tuesday. They met and became engaged when she first visited Leningrad in 1970. She returned to Russia July 9 with a student group.

Mrs. Kremniova, 22, of Great Neck, N.Y., said she would leave Leningrad Sunday. "I cannot do anything more here," she told United Press International. "I've been going over and over again and they won't help me, so I'm going to go to Washington and try to get help there."

Under Soviet regulations, she would have to get residence permission. Her husband, from another part of the Soviet union, is allowed to live in Leningrad only as a temporary student, unless he should work there or marry a resident.

Mrs. Kremniova said she had been applying for about a month for the residence permit that would allow her husband, also 22, to find an apartment in Leningrad so they could live there as residents.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—AFL-CIO President George Meany summed up his union's opposition to President Nixon's new economic program in a statement approved by the organization's executive council. A condensed transcript of his statement:

When President Nixon took office on January 20, 1969, America was in the 95th month of the greatest period of sustained economic expansion in history. The unemployment rate was 3.4 per cent, the lowest in 15 years.

Because of Mr. Nixon's economic mismanagement, the number of unemployed workers has nearly doubled over the last 2 1/2 years. More than 5 million workers are without jobs; 14 1/2 million Americans are on the relief rolls; the number of persons living in poverty has risen to 23 1/2 million.

At the same time, instead of reducing inflation, the administration's misguided policies actually accelerated it. The 4.2 per cent inflation rate rose to 5.9 per cent in 1970, the highest rate in 20 years, and the end is not in sight.

... The use of industrial capacity declined to 73 per cent and interest rates soared to the highest level in a century.

Mr. Nixon refused to take effective action... In the face of clear evidence to the contrary, the administration insisted that its game plan was working.

In fact, the President of the United States deliberately sought to mislead the people...

On Aug. 15 the President unveiled his new "game plan." Even then, he lacked the courage to admit... that his previous game plan had led to America's economic mess.

Instead of sound conclusions, the President offered a new bag of tricks; instead of programs to provide employment and meet the real needs of the American people, he resorted to Madison Avenue gimmickry...

Mr. Nixon's program is based on the infamous "trickle-down" theory. It would give huge sums of money belonging to the people of the United States to big corporations. He would do this at the expense of the poor, the state and local governments and their employees, the federal government's employees and wage and salary earners. He froze wages and salaries... he took no action to limit the earnings of business, investors, moneylenders or speculators...

The freeze is inequitable, unjust, unfair and unworkable. The President contends that his wage-price freeze is preferable to wage-price controls because, he says, effective controls would require the creation of a major new bureaucracy. This is a poor excuse for failing to give the country a stabilization program that would be equitable and enforceable.

We support the President's actions on the dollar; however, we believe honesty and candor would have been best served if the President had admitted that his actions amounted to a devaluation of the dollar... there is nothing to be gained by playing word games with the American people...

We have absolutely no faith in the ability of President Nixon to successfully manage the economy of this nation for the benefit of the majority of its citizens.

Therefore, we call upon the Congress to assert control over the economy, to provide an effective, equitable and enforceable economic stabilization program and to reject any and all administration proposals that would benefit only one sector of the economy at the expense of all others...

Sweden, West Germany, the Netherlands, Denmark, even Russia and France, built more dwelling units per thousand people in the last five years than did the U.S. The U.S. rate was 7.4, Sweden's 11.8, Russia's 9.8.

Nixon 25 years in office

WASHINGTON (UPI)—It was almost 25 years ago that Richard Nixon was first elected to public office and his party was the victor in a national landslide putting the Congress under GOP control.

Unfortunately for the Republicans, 1946 was not a presidential election year but the victory was enough to give them two years of happy overconfidence. Then they watched in disbelief as the 1948 vote restored the Democrats to control of Congress and kept Harry Truman in the White House.

The 1946 Republican gains were interpreted as the result of public rebellion against empty meat counters and postwar shortages of goods produced by industries still under wage and price controls.

Thus Nixon had good reason to remember that economic controls to maintain wage and price stability can cut two ways politically. And so in his Aug. 15 speech, he said that the 90-day freeze is temporary.

Questions answered

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The President's Cost of Living Council has issued a third set of questions and answers explaining the 90-day wage-price-rent freeze.

General

Q. Raw agriculture products are excluded from the price freeze, while processed agricultural products are included. How do you distinguish between raw and processed products?

A. Raw agricultural products include those products that retain the same physical form that they possessed when they left the farm gate. All other agricultural and food products would be considered processed and subject to the freeze. They would include all products canned, frozen, slaughtered, milled or processed in some way that changes the physical form. Packaging would not be considered a processing activity. Among exempt products would be live animals and poultry, shell eggs, raw milk, sugar cane and sugar beets, all fresh fruit and vegetables, honey, fresh fish, fresh seafood. Examples of non-exempt products are slaughtered animals, dressed poultry, pasteurized milk, "raw" and refined sugar, canned and frozen fruits, frozen vegetables.

Q. Are prices in industries which are subject to government regulation frozen?

A. Yes. Agencies which regulate... these industries may permit price decreases and change other aspects of the industry but no price increases are allowed.

Hanoi's problem bag has familiar bulges

SAIGON (UPI)—The smooth Communist wrapping with which North Vietnam cloaks its closed society does not completely hide a bulging bag of familiar capitalist problems as well as some peculiar to Marxism.

"You must wade through the usual mass of verbose dialectic to find them, but as compared with other Communist states, the North Vietnamese are remarkably candid about their problems," one expert Hanoi watcher observed recently. And this is so.

Among the shortcomings listed or discussed in North Vietnamese newspaper and magazine articles and radio broadcasts this year were:

- Corruption, theft, smuggling, bootlegging, juvenile delinquency;
- Idleness, low labor productivity, absenteeism;
- Management inefficiency, poor planning, waste, bureaucratic arrogance, poor maintenance of equipment;
- Failure of the manufacturing plants, construction enterprises and transportation facilities to meet goals set for them; admission that production still lags behind the 1964 levels;

- Urban sprawl, agricultural inefficiency, low farm productivity, conversion of farm land to other public or private purposes;
- Misreatment of disabled veterans and the families of war dead;
- Shortages of food, clothing, spare parts, unbalanced budgets, inflated prices, individuals spending beyond their means.

In the January issue of the monthly magazine Hoc Tap (Study and Practice), North Vietnam's Vice Premier Do Muoi repeatedly referred to corruption, smuggling, theft, waste, bureaucratic bungling and inefficiency.

"There are still persons who desire 'life in peace' or to at least enjoy the harvest without toil, to lead a lavish life and to satisfy their individual needs with money made by illegal means," Muoi wrote. "There are still persons ... who have engaged in the speculation and smuggling of goods, who have upset prices and the market. These men have no ethics. Our regime cannot tolerate them."

Muoi decried "increasingly serious budget deficits" in various phases of the controlled economy, and said that policies governing wages, prices and trade have been haphazardly applied "resulting in much misuse, corruption and waste."

"The state," he wrote, "must resolutely struggle against the speculation, smuggling and stealing of goods ... in the recent past, because state management in general and economic and financial management in particular have left much to be desired ..."

corruption, waste and bureaucracy have not been severely condemned. Thieves and smug-gers have continued to operate."

The weekly newspaper Hanoi MoP (New Hanoi) discussed the bootlegging problem in its Jan. 5 issue in an article titled "drastic measures should be taken to stop the illegal distillation of rice brandy at Yon Nguu."

Yon Nguu, according to Hanoi MoP, is a village of moonshiners. Before 1964 about 60 per cent of the villagers made their living by distilling potent, illegal rice brandy. The traffic in bootleg brandy was almost stamped out in 1965, but soon resumed and by last winter "more than 100 of the village's 200 households" owed their living to the bootleg brandy, the newspaper said.

On the subject of labor, Nhan Dan in a Jan. 12 editorial said, "generally speaking the labor force at (construction) work sites is insufficient.

amid "intense bubbling," and floating on the surface for a few seconds before sinking again.

A workman who said he had spent nearly 11 years converting wood to charcoal at the site, scoffed at the monster story.

"I've never seen anything in the 10 or 11 years I've been here," he told the radio interviewer. "Three or four months ago, some trucks, a fleet of trucks came here and dumped palm tree trunks in the water.

"From what I can tell, when the people start jumping around and yelling, and I go take a look, why, it's just palm trunks coming up to the surface. That's all it is and nothing else," the charcoal-maker said.

EDIBLE, WATER-SOLUBLE Plastic bottle is displayed by James M. Rossman, representative of Hercules, Inc., Wilmington, Del. He said material may be answer to problem of disposing of used plastic containers. This type container can be used to contain oil-based liquids and solids such as pills. Package of frozen vegetables may be boiled, container and all, with no ill effects from melted container. It disintegrates within 15 minutes when immersed in water. (UPI)

MIAMI (UPI)—There may be some places where a fantastic story about a horned monster rising out of a nearby pond would be shrugged off as nonsense, but Havana is not one of them.

Havana has long been a city where rumors spread quickly and grow vigorously.

This may explain why reporters from a government-controlled radio station were sent to the scene with tape recorders recently to shine the cold light of journalistic skepticism on the mythical monster of San-Miguel Lagoon.

"A simple rumor, loaded with folkloric fantasy and asserting the existence of a supposed monster in a flooded quarry at San Miguel del Padron, has aroused popular curiosity about that Havana suburb for several days," said the announcer of the main evening news broadcast on Havana's radio Progreso recently. The broadcast was monitored in Miami.

"As often happens in these cases, the wildest versions circulate in Havana, including varying descriptions of the figure hiding in the waters of the flooded quarry, who some see as human and others as animal," Radio Progreso said.

Monster rumor grows

Apparently the rumors drew crowds of curiosity-seekers to the site, known locally as San Miguel Lagoon. Witnesses at the scene described the monster for Radio Progreso.

"I saw it a couple of times," said one unidentified witness. "It's a thing that, well it doesn't look like anything but a black ball that, maybe, resembles a hippopotamus with horns, but it doesn't really resemble any animal ... and it's got no eyes on it at all."

One of the radio newsmen said he, too, sighted the apparition, a rounded shape with rough texture, rising from the green waters of the pond

amid "intense bubbling," and floating on the surface for a few seconds before sinking again.

A workman who said he had spent nearly 11 years converting wood to charcoal at the site, scoffed at the monster story.

"I've never seen anything in the 10 or 11 years I've been here," he told the radio interviewer. "Three or four months ago, some trucks, a fleet of trucks came here and dumped palm tree trunks in the water.

"From what I can tell, when the people start jumping around and yelling, and I go take a look, why, it's just palm trunks coming up to the surface. That's all it is and nothing else," the charcoal-maker said.

Year school

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The Francis Howell School District near St. Louis converted to year-round classes rather than schedule split sessions in its elementary schools last year.

The schools were overcrowded and new construction was not feasible. The district already was committed to the limit of its bonding power for new classrooms just built.

"It's easy to like the electric climate"

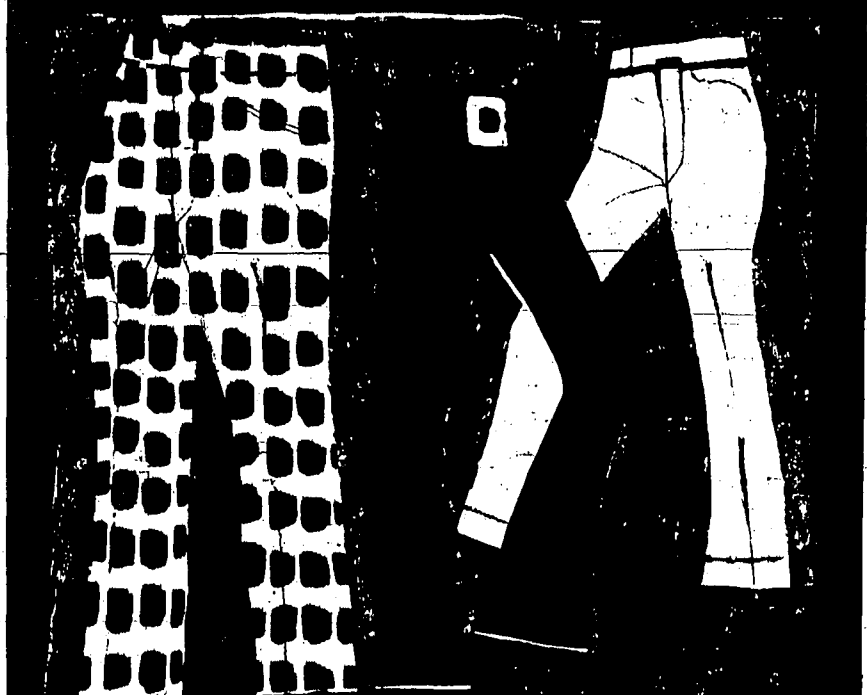

MR. AND MRS. DAN TRAVAILLE, POCAHELLO

"We're new to this climate, and new to electric heat," say the Travailles. "So far, we're enthused about both. Individual heat control is fine. You can set the temperature in each room the way you want it. Our electric heat is clean and quiet. Like the mountain climate, it adds a nice quality to life."

Couple united in LDS rites

TWIN FALLS — Teresa Lee Lammers became the bride of Gerald W. Althouse Aug. 7 at the First Ward LDS Church, Twin Falls. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold P. Lammers, Twin Falls. The bridegroom is the son of R. L. Althouse, San Francisco, California.

Bishop Darrell Helder performed the double ring ceremony before a background decorated with cathedral baskets filled with lavender, pink, blue and white gladioli. Mrs. Lloyd Hamilton, organist for the ceremony, also accompanied Rulon Peck, Pocatello, who sang, "If I Could Tell You." Cecil Morgan offered a prayer for the bride and bridegroom. Preceding the nuptial vows another song was rendered by Peck.

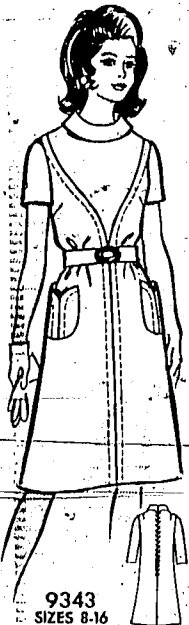

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an original gown fashioned by her mother. The high empire waist and long fitted sleeves were made of re-embroidered Italian lace scattered with seed pearls. Appliques of flowers from the lace adorned with seed pearls were sewed on the A-line skirt of crystalline. Scalloped appliques surrounded the hem of the floor length gown. The scooped neckline with cut-out flowers, was enhanced by a heart shaped diamond necklace borrowed from the bride's aunt. The bride's multicolored French illusion veil was attached to a tiara made from flowers seeded with pearls to match the dress, also created by her mother. Her bouquet was a cascade of white carnation and stephanotis centered with a lavender orchid.

Bonita Lammers was her sister's maid of honor, and Darla Lammers, sister of the bride, and Sharyn Hughes, Salt Lake City, were bridesmaids. Sister of the bride, LaDeana Lammers, was flower girl and carried a white basket of lavender pompons. Lellani and Lauren Latimer, daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Ronald Latimer, Salt Lake City, carried the rings on white satin pillows adorned with lace appliques and edged with lace fashioned by the bride.

Best man for his twin brother was George Althouse, Ogden, Utah. Ushers were Wayne Huff, Salt Lake City, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Rox Lammers, brother of the bride. Mrs. Lee VanderDoes was hostess at the reception after the ceremony in the cultural hall of the church. Jerry VanderDoes dedicated the song, Guests were served at quartet tables decorated with lace and centered with white baskets filled with summer flowers.

Displaying the gifts were Mrs. George Mann, Las Vegas, Nev.; aunt of the bride; Mrs. Seth Christensen, Twin Falls, and Kay Robinson, Fillmore, Utah. Jerry and Bart VanderDoes carried the gifts. Presiding at the guest book was Mrs. Bill Ehridge, Filer.

A Lovelier You

TAKE A NOTCH IN YOUR BELT

By Mary Sue Miller

Would you believe that it's possible to lose an inch in an instant? Why not? "Instant" is today's by-word. See for yourself.

With a tape measure in hand, sit in a deep chair, lean back and measure your waist. Now come up to an erect position, contract the abdomen, draw shoulders down and chest up. Then measure again.

The second measurement will be at least one inch smaller than the first. Of course the result is of a temporary nature. To make it stick, just sit and stand tall always. Good posture is a basic of a good figure. The following routine improves your carriage and trims your waistline for the same effort:

1. Back down on floor with arms down at sides, stretch tall. Bend left knee so that sole of foot rests flat on floor; swing right arm up and back to full extension; press spine to floor. Now push downward with right foot and upward with right arm, aiming for maximum stretch along entire right side. Let go and stretch 3 more times. Reverse position and give left side same workout. Alternating sides, repeat 10 to 20 times.
2. Back to floor and legs together, clasp hands atop head. Press spine to floor and contract waist muscles with accordion-like action. Hold for 10 counts, relax and repeat 10 times.

MIDRIFF SLIMMERS

To solve the riddle of extra inches around your middle, send today exercises for slimming diaphragm, waist and abdomen. Write Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and ten cent in coin.

Guests attend picnic

TWIN FALLS — Lena Bohrn, district deputy, and Mary Taylor, both of the Hansen Camp, were guests Thursday evening at the annual picnic of the Twin Falls Royal Neighbor Lodge.

The picnic was held at the Twin Falls City Park. Following dinner members attended the ice cream social of the Methodist Church and the band concert.

The next meeting will be Sept. 17 at the IOOF hall when July, August and September birthdays of members will be observed.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to say, "right on" to Peg who resented the fact there were plenty of nude girls shows for men to enjoy, but no beautiful, nude men for women to look at.

I think it's time we women got a peek. ANOTHER PEG

DEAR PEG: Down, girl. As Spiro Agnew said, "When you've seen one, you've seen 'em all."

DEAR ABBY: A 21-gun salute to the secretary who has been on the job for 20 years with no trouble. I wish there were more like her.

As a boss of an insurance company office I would like to say a few things to all secretaries who pull a sour face when the boss gets a phone call from his wife:

[1] I am a firm believer in "what's mine is hers, and what's hers is mine," so remember, it is also my wife's money paying you.

[2] If my wife calls and asks me what I want for dinner, or asks my advice concerning a problem with the children, I am not annoyed. She is trying to do her job, the same as you are trying to do yours.

[3] If my wife calls just to say she is thinking of me, that's all right, too. Her phone call is just as refreshing to me as your coffee break is to you.

And finally, please get over the idea all bosses have wives who don't understand them. My wife understands me perfectly; I love her and our children, and there are millions of other bosses just like me. THE BOSS

DEAR BOSS: All right, but don't holler. You sound burned up. Are you?

DEAR ABBY: Our mother is engaged to a wonderful man who tells her he is deeply in love with her.

This man's wife died a few months ago under tragic circumstances, and evidently it must have left quite a wound because all he can talk about is his dead wife. Two minutes after our mother introduces him to people, he tells them about his dead wife and shows them her picture.

This hurts mother because she feels if he really loved her he wouldn't be constantly talking about his dead wife. Once when mother was in his car, he drove to the cemetery to visit his wife's grave. My mother had no idea where they were going until they got there.

Do you think this man really loves our mother? Or could he just be very lonely? WE CARE

DEAR WE: I suspect the man hasn't yet recovered from the shock of his wife's death. It's difficult to believe he could be "deeply in love" with your mother, and talk constantly about his dead wife. If I were your mother I wouldn't rush into anything.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HELEN: You can't teach a dead dog new tricks.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Routine check

MONITORING EQUIPMENT is adjusted here by Lucille Chatterton, RN, right, as infant respirator gets a routine check. Delyte Simmons, left, has completed two weeks of special training in Salt Lake City in connection with the new infant intensive care unit equipment at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

New intensive care center makes 'good' babies of 'bad'

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — They're making "good" babies out of "bad" babies in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital's new infant intensive-care wing.

When you say "good baby" to a nurse in the hospital's obstetrics or nursery departments, you mean a healthy newborn who cries with vigor and is a lively young thing.

Just the reverse, or listless infant, with a weak cry and shallow breath is a "bad baby."

An investment of about $10,000 and a two-week training course for Delyte Simmons, RN, is already paying off with at least one new life having been saved in the first week the unit operated.

Funds to provide the new unit began with a memorial contribution for the Michael Felton infant, hospital attendants said, and other money was added to purchase special respirator equipment — complete with monitoring equipment which tells the nurse at a glance if the infant's heartbeat, breathing and temperature are proper.

Mrs. Simmons attended a two-week training course at the University of Utah Hospital in Salt Lake City in the care of high-risk infants. During that time she also learned operation of the special lifesaving equipment and is in charge of the infant intensive care unit assisted by Lucille Chatterton, RN.

In addition to respirator units there are four isolettes in the unit and a Bill-Lite which can be used to reduce the need for blood exchanges for RH-negative blood type babies.

Mrs. Simmons says since many of the problems of newborn "bad" babies involve respiratory conditions, Magic Valley Memorial Hospital can now provide new methods of correcting such conditions.

Mrs. Chatterton and Mrs. Simmons said the equipment is ready to go into service 24 hours a day, and is available to infants born in other Magic Valley Hospitals who can be brought by ambulance or plane to Twin Falls.

The assistant administrator at Magic Valley Memorial, James Rosenbaum, said additional care is available in Salt Lake City. Helicopters chartered in Twin Falls can land at the University Hospital with an infant in less than an hour.

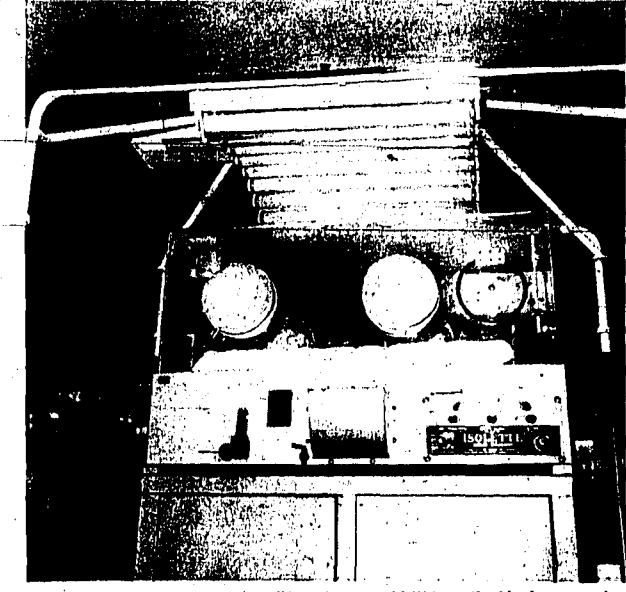

A registered nurse is in charge of the infant intensive care unit at all times at the Twin Falls hospital and although two types of monitoring equipment are available, only one infant can be monitored for heartbeat, breathing and temperature at one time.

Other infants can be cared for in the unit with room for several at the same time if they require different care and equipment. In addition the hospital has available several small plastic oxygen hoods or "Oxhoods" which can be used to provide an infant with additional oxygen.

Hospital staff members and the administration feel infants born in Magic Valley with respiratory complications or other conditions which contribute to the infant mortality rate now have a much better chance for survival through the availability of this new equipment and care from specially trained personnel.

Queen honored — GLEN PARKE, president of the Cassia County Fair board, presents red roses to Mary Ellen VanKomen, newly crowned Cassia County queen. Jill Allred, retiring queen, looks on. Miss VanKomen was sponsored by the Malta Lions Club.

A "BAD" BABY, or one with RH-negative blood, may survive without a blood exchange by means of the "Bill-Lite unit" covering the isolette in the new infant lifesaving unit at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Qualls enrolls in FBI law academy

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Police Capt. Tim Qualls has been invited to attend the 88th annual Federal Bureau of Investigation law enforcement academy, now under way at Washington, D.C.

Qualls and 40 other top-ranked law-enforcement officers from throughout the nation will study all phases of police work during the 12-week course, graduating Nov. 3. Topics covered include civil disturbances, police-community relations, management, ethics, forensic science and the behavioral sciences, among others. Firearm and physical-fitness training are an important part of the academy agenda.

The academy students average about 14 years of law-enforcement career work apiece, with one chosen from each state. The lawmen include agents of state and local agencies, the Immigration and Naturalization Service, marshals, officers, park police and the armed forces. In addition, some foreign countries often send legal personnel to the academy, according to the FBI.

Interstate project will slow traffic at King Hill

SHOSHONE — Some traffic interference can be expected at the connection ends during plant mix placement on a highway project at the connection to Interstate Highway 80N, King Hill Interchange in Elmore County.

Howard Johnson, state highway engineer, said work began on this project on Aug. 2. To date, the subgrade of the roadway is complete. Base aggregate hauling operations will start this week.

Peter Klowitz Sons' Construction Company of Idaho Falls is doing the work under a contract for $111,433. This is on a 70-mile section of temporary connection to the interstate highway.

Work is to start this week on construction of road mix pavement and seal coat on 20.23 miles of State Highway 27 from Oakley to Burley in Cassia County. Holmes Construction Co., Hoyburn, is doing the work at a bid price of $233,735.

In another new project, seal coating of about 6.78 miles of I-80N at the Salt Lake Interchange-South, and 11.18 miles of State Highway 77 and State Highway 25, Declo-Rupert, in Cassia and Minidoka Counties, has started. Kernaday Paving Company, Idaho Falls, is contractor on a bid of $101,835.

One controlled elk hunt, Hunt No. 267, will be re-drawn for 18 more permits, and only Idaho residents will qualify since 10 per cent of the available permits have already gone to non-residents.

The controlled antelope hunt remaining to be drawn is Hunt No. 436B, and 16 permits. Only Idaho residents may apply.

Applications for the hunts must be received at the headquarters office of the Fish and Game Department not later than Aug. 30.

Dedication set

BOISE (UPI) — The Snake River Birds of Prey Natural Area, a 28,255-acre sanctuary for the golden eagle, prairie falcon and other birds, will be dedicated Tuesday by Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton.

The dedication program is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. at the site 30 miles southwest of Boise, according to the state director of the Bureau of Land Management, William Matthews.

Morton is to dedicate the area so that the "eagle, falcon and other raptors may soar free for man's inspiration," and to the memory of the late Edward C. Bookers, BLM Boise District manager from 1962-69, according to the bureau.

Officials said Booker had recognized the meaning of the carson and chartered a course to preserve its worth. A plaque will be placed there for him.

The natural area with its steep canyon walls outlining the Snake River along the Swan Falls Reach is a rare combination of mass and beauty. The nearly vertical cliffs range from 30 to 800-foot high, making it a unique spot as a habitat for birds of prey.

The area is one of Idaho's hidden but priceless gems appreciated by world-renowned experts and viewed by millions of people. Two nationally televised films have been made there, Walt Disney's "The Old West Beat Eagle," and the Wild Kingdom series, "The Valley of the Eagles."

The site was chosen for these special because it possesses all the natural requirements for an eagle sanctuary. Southwestern Idaho has about 100 golden eagle eyries, meaning the area has probably one of the largest concentrations of golden eagles in North America, the bureau noted.

Besides the birds of prey, the canyon is alive with many kinds of wildlife on land, in the water, as well as in the air.

White deer, blacktail jackrabbits, cottontail rabbits, yellow-billed marmots, ground squirrels, kangaroo rats and other rodents inhabit the land. Predators include coyotes and bobcats.

River otter, beaver and muskrat are some of the water inhabitants, as well as sturgeon, rainbow trout, bass and catfish.

The record for the longest throw in baseball history is held by Glen Gorbous, who heaved a ball 445 feet, 10 inches after a six-step running start at an exhibition when he was with Omaha of the American Association in 1957.

the Colts a 20-16 lead with only 1:53 left in the first professional football game ever played in the nation's largest college-owned stadium.

However, the 91,745 fans who weathered 90-degree temperatures stamped their feet in approval when Munson, who played the second half, guided Detroit right back to win. The American Conference Colts, defending Super Bowl champions, are now 2-2 in exhibition play while the National Conference Lions are 2-1.

Craig Cotton, subbing for injured All-Pro tight end Charlie Sanders, made key catches of 18 and 20 yards in the final Detroit drive while reserve running back Bill Triplett put the ball on the eight yard line with a key 14-yard draw-play gain on third down.

Walton then curled into the right corner of the end zone from four yards out to take the game-winning touchdown pass. Walton had scored 2:44 into the third quarter on a 10-yard throw by Munson to give Detroit a 16-10 lead.

Norm Bulach scored on a one-yard run in the first quarter and Jim O'Brien kicked a 38-yard field goal as Earl Morrall directed Baltimore in the first half. O'Brien also kicked a 27-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter.

Greg Landry quarterbacked Detroit in the first half but was again largely ineffective, completing seven of 15 passes for 70 yards but being unable to move the team consistently. A fumble by Morrall and three pass interceptions helped Detroit score its three field goals.

McCauley caught a 25-yard pass in the Colts' last touchdown drive while Nottingham burst up the middle for 26 yards to put the ball on the two in that same series.

Detroit outtrashed Baltimore 118-98 and outpassed the Colts 326-111 and had a first down advantage of 16-11 but the bulk of this game while Sam Havrilak and Douglas were quarterbacking Baltimore.

Billings rallies in ninth to overhaul Cowboys by 4-3

A throwing error followed by hits from Myron Pines and Craig Perkins in the last inning lifted the Billings Mustangs to a come-from-behind 4-3 decision over the Magic Valley Cowboys Sunday night.

Billings, trailing 3-2 from the third inning, got the winning rally going with one out in the ninth when Gerald Milaud legged out an infield hit. Pinch hitting Dave Cron bounced one to the second baseman who flipped to second for the force there but the relay throw went wild and kept Billings alive.

Weiskopf outlasts Hill by one shot

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Scrambling Tom Weiskopf scored an eagle three on the 17th hole Sunday, then bogeyed the 18th, but still managed to win the $150,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic by one stroke Sunday over Dave Hill.

Weiskopf finished with a two-under-par 70 and a record-tying 274 to pocket the $30,000 first prize at the suburban Whitmarsh Country Club. His eagle on the par five, 17th hole saved the day for the lanky Ohioan and salvaged his second 1971 tournament victory after a two-year drought.

PGA champion Jack Nicklaus was third with a 67 Sunday for 276, and George Knudson, who had a 69, finished fourth with 277.

Hill, who started Sunday's round three strokes behind third-round leader Weiskopf, caught the champion with a three-under-par 33 for the first nine holes, but then had a bogey on the 10th when he two-putted from four feet.

Weiskopf matched par at the turn with a birdie on the sixth hole and a bogey on the eighth, then staved off Nicklaus' run of four birdies on the back nine with a 16-foot birdie putt on 16 and by putting his second shot on 17 within 10 to 12 feet from the pin for the eagle.

Hill also eagled 17 by plunking his approach shot three feet from the pin, but it was too late for the brash tour veteran who, like Weiskopf, was an almost reluctant participant in the ninth annual Philadelphia Classic.

At 280 were Dale Douglass, Lou Graham and Bob Murphy. Lee Elder and Phil Rodgers were at 281, while Homero Blancas was alone at 282.

Dave Marr, former PGA champion, had a seven-under-par 65 to tie at 283 with J.C. Goosse, Mac McLendon and Doug Sanders. Defending champion Bill Casper, whose record 273 Weiskopf tied Sunday, finished at 285.

U.S. evens Wightman cup score

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — Valeri Ziegenfuss and Mary Ann Eisel of the United States evens the 43rd annual Wightman Cup Tennis Championships at 2-2 Sunday with a quick doubles victory over sisters Christine Truman, James and Nell Truman of Great Britain.

Miss Ziegenfuss and Miss Eisel downed the British sisters 6-1, 6-4, in a match that took only 47 minutes to play, after Joyce Barclay Williams of Great Britain defeated southpaw Kristy Pigeon 7-5, 3-6, 6-4 in the singles.

The 1971 cup will be awarded following two singles and one doubles match Monday.

The singles matches pit Julie Heldman of the United States, or perhaps a replacement, against Britain's Winnie Shaw, and young Chris Evert against England's Virginia Wade. The doubles (final matches) Heldman-Pigeon of the U.S. against Wade-Williams.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco rookie running back Larry Schreiber came on in the fourth quarter to almost single-handedly preserve a 28-17 49er win Sunday over the San Diego Chargers.

The 49ers transformed two early San Diego turnovers into touchdowns, the first after a fumble and the second after an interception of a John Hadl pass.

San Francisco rookie Vic Washington converted both chances with touchdown runs of 13 and 10 yards.

John Brodie drove the 49ers 72 yards for a score in the closing seconds of the half. Ken Willard crashed over from the one to give San Francisco a 21-3 halftime lead.

San Diego closed the gap to 21-17 with two third quarter scores, both coming after San Francisco turnovers. Mike Garrett scored twice on runs of one and two yards.

The 49ers folled a fourth quarter San Diego threat, and then Schreiber came on to perform his heroics.

Eban assails U.S. over Dayan belief

By United Press International, Foreign Minister Abba Eban criticized the United States Sunday for not checking with Jerusalem before reacting to Defense Minister Moshe Dayan's statement that Israel should establish a "permanent government" in occupied Arab territory, government sources said. Eban stressed there had been no change in Israeli policy on administering the territory captured in the 1967 war, the sources said.

Eban's criticism came at an Israeli cabinet session in Jerusalem at which he also expressed concern over the "extremism and rigidity" of the leaders of Egypt, Syria and Libya. He said their "no negotiation, no recognition, no peace" statements added gravely to the situation in the Middle East.

In Cairo, a top Egyptian diplomat said president Anwar Sadat began consultations with other Arab chiefs of state on an assembly which opens in New York next month.

Special Representative Hassan Sabry el-Kholy was quoted by the semi-official Middle East News Agency (MENA) as saying political strategy was one of the major topics discussed by Sadat, Syrian President Hafez Assad, and Libyan Premier Moammar Khadafi before they endorsed the constitution for their proposed Federation of Arab Republics in Damascus last Friday.

Kholy said Sadat also discussed joint Arab action at the General Assembly in his weekend meetings with King Faisal in Saudi Arabia and with President Jaafar Numairy in the Sudan.

Sadat has repeatedly warned that the Arab-Israeli conflict must be resolved by the end of 1971, either by peace or by war. He also has said that continuation of the current "no peace, no war" situation would only lighten Israeli domination of the occupied Arab lands.

Israeli government sources said Eban expressed surprise that Washington did not check with his Foreign Ministry "to clarify if Dayan's views accurately reflected government policy" before publicly attacking his remarks.

Robert J. McClosky, State Department spokesman, said Dayan's remarks could hurt peace efforts. Prime Minister Golda Meir publicly disassociated herself from Dayan's statement while at least one cabinet member attacked the defense minister.

Parents of Surgeon commended jail murder cite plot

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI) — The parents of slain "Soleled Brother" George Jackson said Sunday there was a San Quentin prison plot to kill their son.

Jackson, 30, was one of six persons — three correctional officers and three inmates — killed during an escape attempt at the prison Saturday.

"I think they have been trying to kill George for years," Jackson's mother said outside the prison gate. "They have been trying to set him up to be killed."

Jackson's father, Lester, 50, told newsmen in Los Angeles that his son was executed by prison guards.

"It is a disgrace to kill George. We expected the killing," the father said. The older Jackson said his son had told him "things were peculiar at San Quentin."

The father said there was no way a pistol could have been smuggled into the prison. Jackson had visited his son at the prison two weeks ago.

A lintel is not a vegetable. It is a horizontal member above a window or door that adds support for the wall above the opening.

MOSCOW (UPI) — Dr. Norman Shumway, the Stanford University heart surgeon, received the Rene Leriche Prize for research into heart transplantation Sunday, the Tass news agency said.

The award was made at the 24th International Congress of Surgeons which opened Saturday in Moscow.

Prof. Roy Calne of Cambridge University was cited for research into transplantation immunity.

The Robert Denis Prize was awarded to Soviet traumatologist Matlaly Vokov for work connected with using ultrasound in treating bone fractures.

'Bad' lot of soup recalled

CAMDEN, N.J. (UPI)—The Campbell Soup Co. recalled 120,000 cans of possibly contaminated chicken vegetable soup Sunday after its chemists advised their contents might have been poisoned by botulism.

A company spokesman said the recall was a precaution that followed analysis of canned soup packed at Campbell's Paris, Tex., plant on July 15. He said no illness had yet been reported from persons who had consumed the soup.

Kenneth M. Clair, the company's vice president for public relations, said the cans, carrying the code "07, P13, 701X," had been shipped to Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Nebraska, New Mexico, Mississippi, Missouri, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas and Wyoming.

Clair said consumers in neighboring states also should be wary, since distributors often sell their products in other locales. He said about 5,000 cases of the chicken vegetable soup might be suspect and that Campbell had recovered "about 54 per cent" of the shipment.

He said the company had advised all distributors and grocers to remove the chicken vegetable soup from their shelves until the extent of possible contamination could be determined.

"The company will pickup the soup and pay for it," Clair said. "We're doing this with the public in mind."

Clair otherwise refused to speculate on how the possible contamination was discovered or what might have caused it. The recall came about two hours after Campbell chemists completed their analysis of the product.

The recall also came only two months after the Bon-Vivant Soup Co. of Newark, N.J., recalled more than a million cans of Vichyssoise, a cold potato soup, and other products because of contamination by sometimes fatal botulism.

Wallace plans new bus effort

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gov. George C. Wallace said Sunday he would issue additional orders next week against the busing of Alabama school children in a challenge to President Nixon to prove he means what he says about busing.

"I intend to issue some more orders and decrees next week," Wallace said, and he said he expected Nixon and Attorney General John N. Mitchell "to respond before school opens."

Shortly after President Nixon issued a policy statement earlier this month saying he was opposed to busing, Wallace ordered school boards in some Alabama towns to cancel plans to carry out court-ordered busing decrees. He called on Nixon to back him up in the light of his antibusing statements.

Wallace was interviewed on NBC-TV's Meet the Press.

The governor said the response of the government to his antibusing orders would show whether Nixon really meant it when he said in his 1968 campaign that he was opposed to busing.

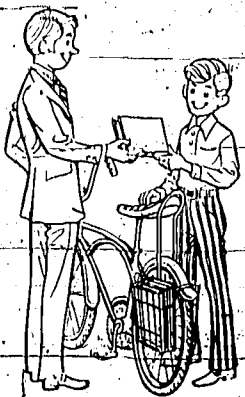

"If Mr. Nixon is against busing, all he has to do is to tell his Justice Department to stop asking for busing," Wallace said.
