TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1971

TEN CENTS

Await music

FEW people had arrived at the rock festival site in Slaughterhouse Canyon early today, as brisk autumn chill and a light rain threatened to hold down large crowds. Here, some of the early arrivals wait for something to happen.

Lack of preparation, weather hit rockfest

BELLEVUE — Incomplete site preparations, a spell of brisk autumn-like weather and tiny crowds seemed to conspire against a rock music festival planned to begin here today. Snow topped a ridge behind Slaughterhouse Canyon, the site of the festival. Temperatures dropped to unpleasant levels for the few people who spent the night in the field waiting for the music to begin. By noon today, the festival area remained almost deserted, with a handful of long-haired visitors talking with a small contingent of people still trying to prepare the site for occupancy.

Little had been done to prepare the site for the masses of young people expected by festival backers. Few of the wooden, square-holed toilets had been installed. Few holes had been dug for other toilets to be installed. The platform that festival sponsors hope will hold garish rock groups amid a sea of enthusiasts still was mostly strung in pieces along the narrow access road hugging the side of Slaughterhouse Canyon. Generators to supply electric power had not been hooked up to run the huge amplifiers necessary for the visiting groups.

Only the seven-strand barbed wire fence, with a single gate, stretched across the mouth of the canyon, seemed in place. But it too appeared even a bit too sturdy in view of the tiny crowd that had come. The visitor seemed aware that something was missing. "This is not going to be another Woodstock," Wayne Davis, of Stanley, said today. Hugh Hamill, Norfolk, Va., said only that "it will go. It won't be big, but it will go."

The predictions of the weatherman was not favorable. Temperatures were expected to drop to near freezing tonight, but somewhat on Saturday and Sunday nights — up to around the 40 degree mark. But a good possibility of mountain showers was forecast for the weekend. (Related stories, p. 11)

Mayor calls for 'cool' Bellevue

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News Writer
BELLEVUE — Mayor Claude Ballard asked residents Thursday night to "put your faith and trust in the law and enforcement people," during the Wood River Rock Festival scheduled to take place this weekend one-fourth mile outside Bellevue. He said, "Face the weekend with a cool, alert mind." Ballard made this statement during a meeting of the Bellevue City Council at the town's elementary school. About 25 residents attended. "We have an obligation," Mayor Ballard said, "to ourselves and the people who attend the festival to uphold the law to the letter."

He issued an order to Blaine County law officers that anyone who breaks the law should be fully prosecuted. Ballard said that he was concerned about the statement Gov. Cecil Andrus made about the rock festival earlier this week. At the time, Ballard said, an Andrus aide had said that the governor had no intention of becoming involved in the problems concerning the proposed rock festival unless he was forced to get involved. The mayor said that he called a UPI correspondent Thursday morning and informed him that Bellevue was a chartered city. Under the charter, if Idaho does not supply requested aid, Bellevue has the prerogative to ask for federal help. After the call, Ballard said, "the state government wheels started to move."

Blaine County Sheriff Orville Drexler was invited to the meeting to discuss police action during the festival. He said, "All forces at hand within the state are at my disposal." "We started out," he said, "planning for the worst and hoping for the best." But he said he had visited Slaughterhouse Gulch — the festival site — prior to the meeting and "There were more people right here at the meeting than out there." (Continued on p. 11)

Ferrari-Aggradi, speaking in Rome in a parliamentary debate on the Nixon economic reforms, also called for a joint devaluation of the dollar along with a revaluation of other world currencies to stabilize the world monetary system. The dollar continued its slow downward slide on the world money markets in relation to other currencies but apparently far slower than the Nixon administration had hoped. By allowing the dollar to float, foreign currencies were expected to be revalued upwards, improving the U.S. balance of trade by making imports more expensive and making U.S. exports cheaper.

Smylie goes for Senate

BOISE (UPI) — Former Idaho Gov. Robert E. Smylie Friday announced his candidacy for the Senate seat to be vacated next year by Sen. Len B. Jordan, R-Idaho.

Smylie told the late morning news conference he realized this was "an extremely early date" to announce his candidacy for office in elections that are a year away. But he said he felt it would be in the public interest to make his intentions clear at this time, adding a number of other potential candidates indicated to him they were waiting to see what he would do.

A Republican, the 56-year-old Boise lawyer served 12 years as Idaho's governor and seven years as attorney general before he was defeated in the 1966 Republican primary election by Don W. Samuelson, when Smylie tried for an unprecedented fourth four-year term.

Ky cites Thieu 'dictatorship'

SAIGON (UPI) — Vice President Nguyen ao Ky said today that President Nguyen Van Thieu may be leading South Vietnam toward dictatorship. Thieu is the only candidate in the Oct. 3 presidential election. As Ky made his charge, the South Vietnamese command reported that government troops had closed off operation Lam San 720, the major post-Laos drive below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ). Military spokesmen said the campaign which began April 14 in the northern Thua Thien and Quang Tri provinces ended Aug. 31 after killing 3,104 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong at a cost of 346 South Vietnamese dead, 1,257 wounded and 23 missing. In a delayed report, the command said two U.S. Army airmen were killed Wednesday when their AH1 Cobra helicopter gunship was shot down 25 miles east-northeast of Saigon. Reports from battlefronts said American B52 bombers carried out four raids Thursday night and early today against Communist targets along and inside the DMZ. Communiques from Phnom Penh in neighboring Cambodia said two columns of government troops supported by American aircraft trapped a Viet Cong force and killed 25 of them in a daylong battle 63 miles north of the capital. Ky spoke to 20 South Vietnamese newsmen at a breakfast. He said he was ready for a reconciliation with Thieu if the president wanted it. "I will serve anybody, including President Thieu, who has competence," Ky said. "If Thieu goes on the way he is doing now, dictatorship will be set up in South Vietnam," Ky said. "The Vietnamese people will have to fight dictatorship in the country as well as the one which comes from outside. Ky was reacting publicly for the first time to Thieu's Thursday night speech in which the president said the election would go on as scheduled with himself as the only candidate on the ballot. But Thieu indicated he would view the voting as referendum by the people on his policies and that he would resign if the referendum was unfavorable.

Teachers here get pay hike

TWIN FALLS — Superintendent of schools George Staudaher said today the 277 teachers of District 411 will receive checks Sept. 25 which will reflect salary increases under the new contracts. Staudaher said he received word from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare that "in the case of school systems that have negotiated a system-wide contract which is applicable to all teachers in the system and which makes all teachers eligible to receive payment prior to August 15, all teachers may receive these increased payments if any one teacher either performed or was accruing pay prior to August 15." He said that in the case of Twin Falls there were three teachers in the system who were working under the new contracts and were paid in July. This fact, he said, will make it possible to give the previously approved pay raises to all teachers in the system. Staudaher said that the new teacher contracts had been "negotiated with the teachers" and was based on a uniform district-wide salary scale. Because of this, he said, the contracted pay increases would be paid. He said the ruling would not affect other school employees not covered in the teacher contracts.

New schools TF district to request bond vote for 2 schools

By O.A. (GUS) KELKER
Times-News Editor
TWIN FALLS — Taxpayers of Twin Falls will be asked to approve a bond issue to provide two 16-classroom public school buildings in the immediate future and one of these should be somewhere in an area five miles south of the city. George Staudaher, superintendent of schools, told Kiwanis Club members Thursday noon that one building would replace the present Washington School and the other would provide space needed because of increasing enrollment. He said locating one of the two proposed schools south of the city would, among other things, aid in reducing busing costs. Replacement of Washington School will be necessary because of enlarged highway plans in that area. Also needed replacement will be the Happy Day School now located on a corner of Lincoln Field. He made no estimate of cost of the two structures but later said the construction program would require a bond issue in the district. Staudaher said that "if anyone is interested in buying the four and one-half-acre site of the present Washington School, then we are ready to talk." He said building a new school at that point would be "wrong" if for no other reason than traffic congestion. He suggested that the south-of-the-city site should be about 10 acres in size. The district owns 20 acres north of the high school and one new school should be constructed there, he said. Another 20 acres are owned near Robert Stuart Junior High School but he did not suggest that site for a grade school.

The superintendent's talk to Kiwanis members covered a wide range of subjects. They included: (1) — He said that because of the California court ruling declaring unconstitutional school property tax support, he expected that a lawsuit in Idaho would result in the same findings, making it necessary to

Nations confer on trade

By United Press International
Financial experts from the world's 10 richest nations met today in Paris, and French sources said France would demand the United States devalue the dollar to ease the world's economic and monetary crisis.

In Rome, Italian Treasury Minister Mario Ferrari-Aggradi called on European nations to break away from the "dollar standard" by gradual establishment of new international monetary system. Italy is a member of the group of ten and is expected to make this demand in Paris.

Ferrari-Aggradi, speaking in Rome in a parliamentary debate on the Nixon economic reforms, also called for a joint devaluation of the dollar along with a revaluation of other world currencies to stabilize the world monetary system. The dollar continued its slow downward slide on the world money markets in relation to other currencies but apparently far slower than the Nixon administration had hoped. By allowing the dollar to float, foreign currencies were expected to be revalued upwards, improving the U.S. balance of trade by making imports more expensive and making U.S. exports cheaper.

Contractor, nephew collide, both killed

RUPERT — The president of the Aslett Construction Co., Twin Falls, and his 21-year old nephew, a decorated Vietnam veteran, were killed Thursday at 3:05 p.m. when vehicles they were driving collided head-on in a smoke-filled Minidoka County road. Melvin H. Aslett, 57, died shortly after his arrival at Minidoka Memorial Hospital, and Daniel G. Aslett was dead when officers and firemen reached him in the truck he was driving. Ray Jarvis, Minidoka County deputy sheriff, said the elder Aslett had slowed to a near stop on the county road four miles east and seven and one-fourth miles north of Rupert because of smoke coming from a burning ditch along the road. His 1971 car crossed over the center line as he was moving slowly through the smoke and was struck nearly head-on by the 1968 gravel truck operated by his nephew, as the truck came over a slight rise in the road. The gravel truck and semi-trailer traveled about 100 feet after the impact, Jarvis said, and jackknifed. One of the fuel tanks split open, scattering fuel which burst into flame when the vehicle stopped.

The Rupert Rural Fire Department was summoned and volunteer firemen had to subdue the flames and pull the cab from the rest of the truck before they could get young Aslett's body from the truck. Melvin Aslett was pinned in his vehicle and Deputy Jarvis said it took about 20 minutes to pry the metal away from him. He was taken to the hospital by ambulance and died in the emergency room. Both vehicles were demolished and officers estimated value of the gravel truck at $29,000. Melvin Aslett had been in construction work since he was 14 years old and headed the family firm. He had lived in Twin Falls for 40 years. His nephew was a student at CSI and was employed by his uncle. (Obituaries, p. 2)

US jobless rate jumps

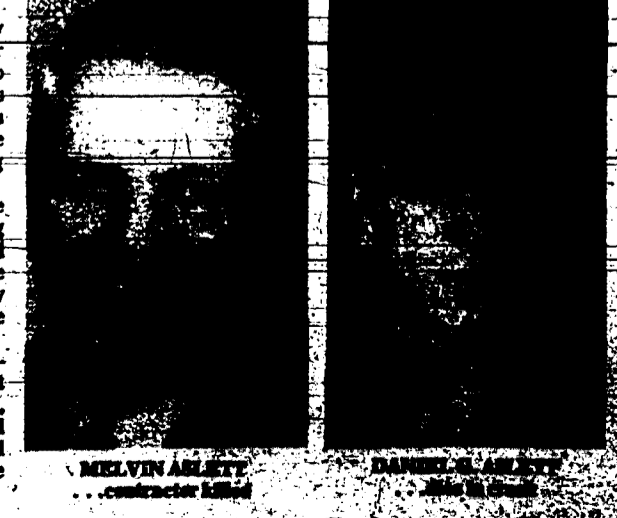

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate jumped to 6.1 per cent in August, the government said today. The rise in joblessness from a July rate of 5.8 per cent followed by a day another adverse economic report — an increase in wholesale prices last month — but officials said both were based on data prior to President Nixon's wage-price freeze. The Labor Department

Bureau of Labor Statistics said unemployment registered an increase in spite of the fact that the actual number of persons holding jobs last month was an all time high — 79,197,000, seasonally adjusted. The wholesale price increase in August from July, after seasonal adjustment, was 0.7 per cent, highest in six months. The bureau said half a million more persons were added to the job force, but this was offset by 230,000 losing jobs last month. Most of the increased joblessness was among white adults and youths who lost jobs, many of them in the steel industry. There were 5.1 million without jobs in August. The bureau said the data for the August report was gathered during the week of Aug. 8-14, the week before Nixon imposed the 90-day wage-price freeze, a 30 per cent import surtax and other economic moves designed to curb inflation and unemployment. Organized labor has been severely critical of Nixon's plan, contending it works heavily against working people while having a soft impact on business. Union leaders have charged it will cause more, not less, unemployment. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today the program contains provisions that would cut corporate taxes a record 20 per cent in one year, giving business a "windfall profit." Proxmire said the Nixon plan should be overhauled by Congress to give average taxpayers and consumers some relief. Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., also announced he would introduce a resolution when Congress reconvenes next Wednesday to disapprove Nixon's action to delay a pay raise for federal employees.

Manson follower confesses crimes

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles "Tex" Watson said he obeyed the orders of Charles Manson "to kill" and shot or stabbed six of the seven Tate-Blanca victims, but fled the cult after he was told to murder again.

Watson, 25, admitted on the witness stand Thursday he fatally stabbed Rosemary and Leno LaBianca and four persons at actress Sharon Tate's home.

Watson said, and subsequently was arrested for the murders. Watson has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity. The defense contends he blindly carried out the orders of Manson, who along with three women followers already has been convicted and sentenced to die for the Tate slayings, because repeated use of drugs affected his mind and made him a "robot."

Quit board, aide asks

BOISE (UPI) — The executive director of the Idaho State Reclamation Association asked Thursday that Scott W. Reed, Coeur d'Alene, resign from the Idaho Water Resource Board "if he does not feel that he can represent the citizens of the state."

Jack Barnett said Reed, who "has a reputation as a strong supporter of the preservation movement," should "reconsider his membership" and resign if he could not "help them (Idahoans) preserve their water and their water rights for use here in Idaho."

Barnett's statement was prompted by Reed's letter to the chairman of the Council on Environmental Quality asking that construction of the Lower Teton Dam be halted because the project was not economically feasible and, therefore, could not legally be constructed as proposed.

Barnett said Reed's letter was "inappropriate, ill-advised and untimely."

He said figures used in Reed's letter "do not represent a correct evaluation of the Lower Teton project" and added it was "interesting" that Reed attacked the project on economic grounds. Because of objections from fish and wildlife interests, Barnett said, the borrow area for materials to be used in the dam had been moved from below the dam to above it, which he said would increase the cost as much as $6 million.

Barnett further said he had checked with members of the project at any board meetings and had not sought board assistance for information.

Barnett said he felt it was time for Reed or Gov. Cecil D. Andrus to determine whether Reed could represent Idahoans on the board with his "special interests and with his apparent desire to work as an individual in opposition to board policy."

Official disclaims inaction

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — Kootenai County Auditor Harold E. Peterson Thursday denied assertions that he "was being pressured not to take action" to recall two northern Idaho legislators.

The suggestion was aired Thursday by Elizabeth J. chairman of the "We the People Committee" which is attempting to force a recall election against democratic legislators Robert Haakenson, Coeur d'Alene, and Larry Looney, Post Falls.

Mrs. Mathen has contended the recall petitions were initiated because the two legislators voted in favor of legislative pay and expense increases in spite of voter opposition to such action. Two southern Idaho legislators were recalled recently for the same reason.

Meantime, Peterson said, he has not acted because he has not received a legal opinion from Idaho Attorney General Anthony Park, which he requested two weeks ago.

He said the question is over jurisdiction for a recall action — whether the petitions should be submitted to the state or to the district for action.

NEW SPLIT LEVEL office building is planned for this area adjoining the offices of Rex Ulrich and Associates at Second Avenue and Second Street East in Twin Falls.

Office unit planned

TWIN FALLS — A 6,500-square-foot split-level office building will be constructed by Rex Ulrich and Associates adjoining present offices at 136 2nd St. E., Ulrich said Wednesday.

He said the ultra-modern design will feature an attractive rocklike textured exterior. Ulrich and sheetmetal contractor Richard Brizee will let a contract on the work and will own the office building jointly. The work is expected to start this month, with completion anticipated within 60 days.

The project involves an investment of about $75,000, Ulrich said. Several Twin Falls merchants have already expressed an interest in leasing space in the new building, which will accommodate several office suites. The new building was designed by Twin Falls architect Ivan Stone.

Downtown work due to start

TWIN FALLS — Some preliminary work on the downtown improvement project for Twin Falls is expected to begin immediately but for the most part planned reconstruction will not begin until after Labor Day, City Manager Jean Millar said today.

He said the contractor, Neilsen Construction Co., will concentrate on the alley reconstruction work waiting until spring.

Millar said off-street parking lots will not be torn up this winter although they are scheduled for resurfacing and metering as part of the improvement project.

He said some additional parking is planned by temporarily surfacing and metering a large lot owned by Jake Roth and formerly occupied by the Workman Ford Agency. The building has been removed and parking is now permitted on the lot although it is not surfaced or metered.

Sleeping bags taken

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Don Depew, Hansen, told Twin Falls city police Thursday someone took two sleeping bags from her car while it was parked at Denny's Market, Addison Avenue West, Thursday afternoon.

She said she saw two individuals, at least one of whom was male, take the bags and leave in an old model station wagon. Value of the sleeping bags was listed at $120.

Library aid bid planned

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho State Library Board decided Thursday to again ask the legislature for $1 million for state aid to public libraries.

Mrs. Marguerite Laughlin, board chairman, said the amount has been requested for the past two years, but the legislature had appropriated only $100,000 each year.

During its two-day session, the board approved McCall Public Library's application for matching funds for construction of a new library building. That included $45,000 from federal or state sources and $30,000 raised by local public contributions.

The board also approved a request from the Emmett Public Library for an additional $6,000 in grant funds to allow purchase of a new library site. The board, however, gave only $3,000 from state library grant funds.

Caldwell Public Library asked for all the available federal and state construction monies allocated to Idaho to be used in conjunction with the bond issue election for more than $300,000 on Nov. 1.

State Librarian Helen Miller said the Caldwell project will have first priority as additional funds become available.

Approximately $7,500 will be available in the current fiscal year after the McCall and Emmett projects are deducted, but $114,000 may be anticipated after July 1, 1972.

No customers were injured in the mishap since none were sitting directly in front of the windows.

A pickup hauling a boat trailer was turning the corner by the restaurant at 2197 North Garden when the trailer came unhooked and plunged into the restaurant.

Murder suspect to aid in California search

DRIGGS, Idaho (UPI) — Murder suspect Joyce Diane Turner, 22, flew to Los Angeles Thursday to help in the search for a body.

Accompanied by Teton County Sheriff A. E. Stevens, Miss Turner left Idaho only after her court-appointed attorney imposed "certain conditions" on the trip. William B. Kennedy, Rexburg, said one of his requests to the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department was that his client be guaranteed immunity from prosecution in California. He declined to say exactly what terms were approved.

The woman and Michael Wren

Rennpage, 28, are charged in connection with the triple slaying Saturday of three Mexican-American farmworker brothers at Driggs. Later, Miss Turner linked Rennpage with the Aug. 7 disappearance of Joseph Warmuth, 19, Sylmar, Calif., last seen after he assisted the suspects who had been in an automobile accident.

Using information from Miss Turner, Los Angeles officials have been searching for the body which she said was hidden in a culvert.

Meantime, Robert Webb of the Idaho first national bank in Blackfoot said following two days of appeals $353 had been donated to pay a $600 airplane fare for transporting the bodies of the slain teen-agers back to Texas.

The victims, Ruben De Luna, 18, and his brothers Antonia, 17, and Robert, 16, were among 13 children in the family, which wanted to return the youths to Texas for burial.

Late bid ruled out

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Supreme Court ruled Thursday the state must make a demand for payment of inheritance taxes with the period specified by law or give up its right to them.

The decision, which overturned a Second District Court ruling, stemmed from a state Tax Commission suit against Edward J. McCann, executor of the estate of the late Raymond B. McCann, to collect inheritance taxes. Raymond McCann died May 16, 1962, and the Probate Court issued an order for payment of inheritance taxes on June 14, 1969, more than seven years after probate began.

On grounds the state's statute of limitations barred any action for the collection of the tax, Edward McCann refused to pay the inheritance tax.

Writing for a unanimous court Justice Allan G. Shepard said since no action for collection of the tax had been filed with the five-year period required by law the state was barred from enforcing collection of such tax.

Crack In Wall

"It was a sunny, warm summer day. Many people were out on picnics or excursions. It was a Sunday, the 13th of August, 1961."

Federal Republic Chancellor Willy Brandt reminisces in the West German magazine, "Stern." On August 13, 1961, Brandt was mayor of a place called West Berlin.

"The mind did not want to accept what the eyes beheld," he writes. "A big military task force of the (East German) People's Army was sent into the eastern sector of the city. On the sector boundary, concrete stakes were rammed into the street, spiked chevaux-de-frise were installed, and the whole thing was lined up with barbed wire"

In the three days between the unrolling of the first stretch of wire and the laying of the first concrete block, the West, in Brandt's opinion, missed a chance to negotiate an agreement with the Soviet on the Status of West Berlin and of the rights of West Berliners.

Be that as it may, after 10 years of the existence of the Wall and after recurring crises, such an agreement has at last been reached between the four one-time Allied powers of the United States, the U.S.S.R. Britain and France.

"No one should forget those who have died at the Wall," says Brandt. "And no one should forget that there is still shooting at the Wall today. But protest against this should not become a moral alibi for turning one's back on responsibility for the much more difficult task, despite the Wall, of creating conditions through which the firing is ended."

The Wall will not disappear by itself, says Brandt, but only when the division of Europe, of which the Wall is the "absurd and unnatural" symbol, is ended.

The day when that division can end is still far distant, and will be so long as half the population of Europe has no voice in deciding the kind of political system it lives under.

But the four-power accord on West Berlin, if only a small step toward that day, is a major step away from the threat of war that has hung over Europe for many more than 10 years.

The Wildcatter

This spring there was a rash of storefront botching. In riots involving independentistas, rightists and police at the University of Puerto Rico, three persons were killed and 60 wounded.

Firebombs have hit homes and businesses owned by independence sympathizers. Ferre's aides say in reply that the island has had much less violence than mainland United States, that the university campus has been quiet since the outbreak last March.

The governor's people insist the declines in tourism and textiles, at least, are not all that crucial — and that there are special reasons for their slump. They say manufacturing is up and new jobs outnumber lost jobs.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there anything I can do for bags under the eyes? I get at least eight hours of sleep every night. I cannot understand this. — M. W.

That's one of the durable myths — that bags under the eyes mean you aren't getting enough sleep.

Well, consistently not getting enough sleep can contribute to such bags, but that isn't the main cause. It isn't even a principal one. And sometimes it has nothing to do with the matter.

Eyes of all, the skin under the eyes tends to be thin and loose. If you have lost some weight, the bagginess is likely to be more noticeable.

Or — again, since the skin is thin and loose — the condition may be nothing more than part of the natural wrinkling process as one gets older.

Excessive salt intake (or any other circumstance that causes one to accumulate fluids in the body) can contribute to bags under the eyes, since some of the fluid will gather there.

Of course, another big reason for complaints about bags under the eyes is that some people, for one reason or another, become highly conscious of bagginess under their own eyes, and don't notice that a certain amount of bagginess is natural.

If you have any tendency to fluid accumulation, then do something about it. You'll have to have your physician's advice on this, but the condition is significant in more important ways than your eye-bags.

If the situation isn't one of health at all, but merely a matter of the skin's being a bit looser than average, it can be tightened by plastic surgery — if it's really that important to you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read your column about hypoglycemia or low blood sugar, sent for your booklet and have almost completely overcome it by dieting — so may I order a couple more of the booklets for friends? It's such a relief to know I'm not a neurotic. — Mrs. M.E. B.

I'm certainly pleased that things have worked out so well for you — the majority (although not all) of the cases of low blood sugar can be helped immensely and quickly, if people will just learn what it's all about. The diet is really quite simple — once it is understood.

We'll probably never know how many people, past and present, have thought that their trouble was "nerves" when it was really a wildly fluctuating blood sugar level.

The booklet remains available for readers. Send 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Thosteson, care of Times-News. Don't forget your zip code on the return envelope.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What are the symptoms of breast cancer? I am 16 and would like to know at what age women acquire breast cancer. — C. Q.

Breast cancer, if at all, usually occurs after 40, so I wouldn't do much worrying about it at your age. For future reference, however, you should know what to look for.

The important thing is to be alert for any painless lump in the breast. Such a lump isn't necessarily cancer, of course. But any such lump should be investigated by your physician.

Note to "X": Yes, CA is a commonly used abbreviation for cancer; there's even a cancer journal that is named just "CA."

Food For Thought

If the Red Chinese want to do business with Americans, they are going to have to learn a few things about the inscrutable Occident.

One immediate chore for them is to devise a suitable ideograph for a new idea called "consumerism."

It happens that most of the first shipment of foodstuffs from Red China to the United States in more than 20 years was detained by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Why? Faulty labeling. Among items detained were cans of chrysanthemum tea, whose labels claimed therapeutic effects as a "sedative, eye-brightener, liver-soother, anti-inflammatory and heat reliever." Cans of vegetable soup claimed to be "for strengthening the stomach and expelling rheumatism."

It was a small shipment, only about two tons of food worth $3,500. But if the Chinese want to expand the trade, they may as well learn about our peculiarities from the beginning. Either they substantiate these claims in the future or change the labels.

It's kind of funny, though. Here was a capitalist government, which we all know is devoted to exploiting the common person, seizing "improperly labeled" goods manufactured in a Communist country, which we all know is a people's paradise.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK Saigon Crisis

SAIGON — The farce just played out by South Vietnam's national politicians has quickly transformed restrained optimism by realistic Vietnamese and American officials into gloom and foreboding over what lies ahead.

This new pessimism exists despite general agreement that the recent game of political tag resulting in President Nguyen Van Thieu's running virtually uncontested for reelection Oct. 3 has made little impression on the country's long-suffering masses. Still, there is equally strong agreement here that the political charade will in time grievously undercut the war effort.

What makes this so tragic is that the military and economic situations here are vastly better than is publicly understood back in the United States. But the gains of the last three years are now endangered by political ineptitude. And ironically, having paid so dearly in blood, torment and money here, the Americans have proved utterly unable to influence either Thieu or his opposition.

The alarmists feel Thieu's conduct has set in motion the same degenerative process that led to Ngo Dinh Diem's fall in 1963 and brought the Communists to the brink of victory. In Saigon, say some old Vietnamese and American hands, the mood has the feel and smell of 1963.

According to this theory, isolation of the Thieu regime is becoming the dominant fact of life here, resulting in disaffection first from local officials and later from the peasantry. The upshot: a political coup. To these alarmists, the abrupt rise last week in the price of rice was an indicator of crisis ahead.

But such extreme forecasts of disaster are almost surely premature. As we travelled into the countryside late last week, we found none of Saigon's political panic. Moreover, province and district officers were adamant against a coup, arguing it would hand the Communists the victory they could not win on the battlefield.

That view is held even by army officers not known as admirers of Thieu — such as one province chief with strongly nationalist views and a rare reputation for incorruptibility. Whatever Thieu's failings, this colonel said, he is far less responsible for the political farce than his two erstwhile opponents, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and retired Gen. Duong Van Minh. They, he said, put personal interest over national interest by withdrawing from the election.

Significantly, however, this province chief agreed with just about everybody else in Vietnam that their pullout was deeply damaging, not because it immediately threatens a coup but by its impact abroad. "The Vietnamese have made themselves look like a bunch of clowns in the eyes of the world," one high U.S. official told us. More to the point, the Thieu government has handed the antiwar bloc in the U.S. Congress new arguments for reductions in U.S. military aid.

With Communist troops now threatening a new offensive in the northern provinces, even the hint of reduced arms and money from Washington is demoralizing.

ANDREW TULLY The Opposition

WASHINGTON — When Congress reconvenes next week to tackle the anti-inflation legislation urged by the White House, Richard Nixon again will discover how unhappy is the lot of a President burdened with a Congress owned and operated by the opposition.

What the Democrats are working for is the enactment of what their leaders already are calling, in caps, "The Democratic Party's Policy to Combat Inflation by Taking Care of the Little Guy." They regard Nixon's wage-price freeze as merely the vehicle by which they will reap the lion's share of the credit on the eve of a Presidential election year.

In short, the Democrats will seek to assume what they see as their traditional party position — champions of the poor against the rich.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield puts it in a low key. He says his party will make every effort to "bring about better equilibrium between the tax relief granted business and tax relief for the individual." But the sledgehammer implication is there: Richard Nixon has done too much for business and too little for Main Street in his New Economic Policy.

Mansfield & Co. are a good bet to push through legislation for mandatory freeze on business profits, dividends and interest rates, retroactive to Aug. 15. There is gleeful talk about an excess profits tax. Mansfield already has come out for an additional $50 income tax exemption for individuals retroactive to last Jan. 1 to give them the same "instant relief" business would get from Nixon's proposed retroactive 10 per cent investment tax credit and the 10 per cent surtax on most imports.

The irony is that the Democrats couldn't have chosen a better battleground than that provided by the President's wage-price freeze. He has given the opposition the opportunity to charge that he has done too little, too late, and to promise the electorate that the Democrats, as usual, will step in and remedy the situation.

"Or, as Democratic National Chairman Larry O'Brien told a meeting of potential Democratic Presidential candidates: "Dick Nixon has handed us our biggest break."

Among other things, the controversy will enable the Democrats to close ranks with their biggest traditional ally, Big Labor. The party leadership is using almost the same language employed by AFL-CIO President George Meany and Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Automobile Workers, who have denounced the freeze as "a fraud and a bonanza for industry." Nixon's law-and-order stand won a lot of disaffected labor votes in 1968.

But all is not roses for the Democrats. There is a possible defector in their ranks in the person of the powerful Rep. Wilbur Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. The Arkansan, who runs the tax show on the Hill, could endanger the new romance between the Democrats and Labor by doing ever more for Big Business than Nixon has asked.

MR. SPECTATOR

Prices Going Up

In the "golden age" of newspapering, Hal Wood was sports editor for the Times-News. Now he's sports editor for the Honolulu Advertiser, one of the nation's great papers. And therein lies the tale of today's Mr. Spectator column.

Right now things are just a little disturbed over on the isle of dreams. It's the price of things — and they are going up. It all comes about because of the strike of the longshoremen. In a letter to Harold Hove, his brother-in-law, Wood wrote: "As you know the strike of the ILWU is killing us over here. The food stock is running low and the prices are running high."

"But every time I walk by the potato bin in a supermarket and see the price I think of Idaho. The average price right now is 26 to 27 cents a pound — which would bring you about $25 for each 100 pounds of potatoes in good old Idaho!"

"Bananas grow wild, but see the price. Mangoes, our favorite fruit (we have a tree in our back yard) fall off thousands of trees all over town and nobody will even stoop to pick them up. But if you want to buy one in a store they cost 20 cents each."

"There should be no reason for local produce going up — other than that the demand is higher than usual. And nobody pays any attention to any price or wage freeze way out here in the middle of the Pacific.

"Our newspapers are hurting because of the strike, though. As you can realize no 1972 autos, radios, TVs, refrigerators — and that means no full page ads extolling them. We have orders to not assign overtime, don't hire any extra help. If anyone quits we can't hire a replacement."

Wood also sent along a picture-story from the paper there. A reporter took a shopping trip and here's the report:

Manoa lettuce, 11 cents a head; one cucumber 32 cents; one cauliflower, 81 cents; one small grapefruit, 40 cents; seven bananas, 55 cents; one tomato, 30 cents; one head of lettuce, $1.05 and one sweet potato, 23 cents.

— Mr. Spectator would like to point out at this time that living in Magic Valley — with all our faults — really isn't so bad!

Bortz attends national conclave

GARRY BORTZ

TWIN FALLS—Garry Bortz, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bortz, Twin Falls, is back in school looking forward to an active Junior Achievement program this year with some new ideas and information gleaned from the National Junior Achievement Conference he attended in Bloomington, Ind.

He was one of five Idaho youth delegates to the conference which ran from Aug. 15 through 20 and which attracted 2,200 young achievers of the nation wide program.

The highlight of the conference, Bortz said, was the election of new officers. The Twin Falls achiever was one of about 100 young person selected to participate in the election as prospective candidates. There were 60 youths named to compete for presidential nominations, 30 for vice president, of which he was one, and 16 to 15 each for the office of association secretary and conference secretary.

Prospective candidates were tested through an extensive program of written tests and interviews which narrowed the field to a ballot of about a dozen candidates from which delegates elected officers. Bortz said while he did not make it to the ballot, the elections and the rigid examinations were most educational. Members elected Dimitri Rotow of Lancaster, Pa., as president.

Bortz said another factor which impressed him about the conference was the large number of youths who displayed a deep appreciation for Americanism and were not only patriotic but showed respect for one another and enthusiasm about the accomplishments of Junior Achievement.

Bortz served as public relations chairman last year for the student faction of the Twin Falls Junior Achievement program. He was a member of the BOSS Co., which was sponsored by Buttrey's and Osco Drug in the manufacture of jewelry. At the close of the year with a $600 capital outlay, the junior achievement company was able to return a 30 per cent profit to stockholders.

Bortz said all 50 states were represented in the national conference as well as Canada and several other countries. Maurice H. Stans, U. S. Secretary of Commerce, was one of those who addressed the young delegates.

Kibbutz selling products

By ORE DANIEL
LONDON Financial Times—UPI TEL AVIV—That unique Israeli phenomenon, the kibbutz is increasingly becoming less of a local, agricultural "collective" and much more of an industrial operation selling products on world markets.

Half of Israel's kibbutz today have highly successful, competitive industries. There are several reasons for this development.

Israel's total population has more than tripled over the last 20 years, but the number living in kibbutzim has increased by only a few per cent.

To new immigrants from Eastern Europe, anything smacking of socialism appears to be unattractive. In addition, the concept of a virtually moneyless society, in which everything from food to furniture, and from higher education for all to concert and theater tickets, is provided by the kibbutz as a whole, provided incomprehensively and therefore unattractive to the three-quarter million Jewish immigrants from Arab countries.

The net result is an acute shortage of labor, which forced the kibbutzim, in the first instance, to go in for the most radical mechanization both of agriculture and of all other branches.

Benefit change proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A study prepared for a Senate committee suggested Thursday that blacks be granted Social Security benefits at an earlier age because they do not live as long as whites.

The study, conducted by Dr. Inabel Lindsay of Howard University for the Senate Special Committee on Aging, said the mortality rate is approximately twice as great for Negro women and more than 10 per cent higher for black men in the 55-64 age group.

And between 65, when most Social Security payments begin, and 74, Dr. Lindsay said, the disparity continues—67 deaths per 1,000 for Negro men, 48.8 per 1,000 for white men; 46.2 for Negro women, 25.2 for white women.

The study found that "the majority of Negroes over 65 are less well educated, have less adequate income."

Andrus mulls need on transportation

BOISE (UPI)—Representatives from five state agencies met with Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Wednesday to brief him on Idaho's transportation needs for the next 20 years.

The findings and recommendations shown to Andrus stem from a study ordered by the governor as the result of a request from the U.S. Department of Transportation last year.

Results of the study done by representatives from the Departments of Highways, Aeronautics, Commerce and Development, the Public Utilities Commission and the State Planning Agency will be completed by the Transportation Department along with results from other states and in turn forwarded to Congress.

TV program has new concept

HOUSTON, Texas (UPI)—The 3-4-5 Club is an ambitious television program. If it proves successful, children from three ethnic backgrounds will be speaking two languages before they enter the first grade.

The federally funded program, a completely different concept from the nationally popular Sesame Street, is getting a three-week run in Houston homes this month.

The bilingual, tri-ethnic films also will be available nationally to meet some of the problems of preschool children and their parents.

"Sesame Street does not address itself to anything except English," says Beatrice M. Smith, coordinator of federal programs in Houston schools. "This particular film uses, as its total thrust, improving English for the non-English speaking and helping the English speaking to learn Spanish."

Typical shows include such things as filmed trips to a bakery where children can see how tortillas and bread are made. Animated cartoons also are used.

The program considers Mexican-Americans as an individual group, despite federal court rulings which have lumped them together with Anglos for school desegregation purposes.

It will also provide basic Spanish language training for preschool blacks while attempting to insure their English language skills are on a par with their young white counterparts when they begin school.

The children's programs will be aired in 30-minute segments, Monday through Friday. A separate 30-minute program for parents will be shown once each week.

Initial funding for three weeks of production was provided by reallocation of $171,567 in federal money. Where the money will come from for the projected two-year series is a question. Miss Smith estimated costs at $2 million for production for two years.

"We really don't know where we'll get the money," she said.

LDS church reviving historic Illinois town

NAUVOO, Ill. (UPI) — This sleepy little Mississippi River town, once the largest city in Illinois and springboard for the great Mormon trek west, is slowly coming back to life.

For the last nine years, the Mormon Church has led a multimillion-dollar project to restore 1,000 acres in this Hancock County community to look as it did when the city flourished in the 1840s.

A highlight of that continuing effort will be the formal dedication of a new visitor's center scheduled for Sept. 4.

The goal of the project is creation at Nauvoo of a restored community similar to colonial Williamsburg, Va., devoid of the commercial blight that scars so many historic resources.

In history, the Nauvoo project is contemporary with the restoration planned around the Springfield home of Abraham Lincoln, designated as a national historic site in a bill signed by President Nixon at Springfield.

Old Mormon homes restored to their original forms contain furniture typical of the 1840s. Twelve buildings have been restored and three or four are slated to be completed by the end of the year.

The Mormons first arrived in the west central Illinois area in 1839, led by Joseph Smith, founder of the Mormon Church. They had been driven from New York, Ohio and Missouri by religious persecutors and Illinois was to prove no more tolerant.

Swamps were drained and in five years, Nauvoo grew from a cluster of small block houses to a city of more than 12,000 people. It was the largest city in Illinois — Chicago had only 7,500 people at the time — and the 20th largest in the nation.

Nauvoo had a population of 1,047 in the 1970 census, eight more than in 1960.

But in 1844, Smith and his brother, Hyrum, were murdered by a local mob in nearby Carthage. Two years later, Brigham Young led most of the Mormons west to the valley of the Great Salt Lake and once prosperous Nauvoo became a virtual ghost town.

Nearly a century later, Dr. J. LeRoy Kimball of Salt Lake City visited Nauvoo. He discovered the house of his great-grandfather, one of the first apostles of the Mormon Church, and immediately "fell in love" with it.

But it took the physician nearly 23 years to persuade the owner of the house to sell it to him. Kimball finished renovating the house in 1960 and intended to use it as a residence during his periodic visits here.

"But I never spent a night in the house because of the visitors who wanted to look through it," he said.

Kimball spent nearly $100,000 of his own money buying other old homes in Nauvoo, including the house of Brigham Young.

"All of a sudden I had more than I knew what to do with," he said. So he turned to the Mormon Church, which agreed to finance a restoration project in Nauvoo.

Since 1962, Kimball said, "several million dollars" have been spent to purchase more than 1,000 acres, including about three miles of riverfront, and to restore old homes and build-

Plan model resort

CANCUN, Mexico (UPI) — There's nothing there now except some workers' huts, a few bulldozers and a lot of raw nature.

But in 10 years, according to Mexican tourism experts, Cancun, the "computerized" resort, will outstrip Acapulco.

"Cancun is a model when it comes to advance planning," said Antonio Enriquez, of the Bank of Mexico's fund for tourism infrastructure, manager of the project.

"Our estimates are based on the most thorough study of meteorological and geographical factors, transportation facilities, and the preferences and habits of tourists," he said.

Bank of Mexico officials photographed from the air the entire coast of the Virgin Quintana Roo territory and masses of information were fed into computers before Cancun was chosen.

The L-shaped island lies off the east coast of the Yucatan Peninsula. It surrounds a lagoon with turquoise water 12 miles long and eight miles wide. The crystal-clear water nowhere exceeds 10 feet in depth.

Large-grain, white sand runs down the water's edge. It looks as if someone had gone along throwing green and blue dyes into the water just before you arrived.

Bank of Mexico officials explained that Cancun has only 101 days of measurable rainfall, less than almost all other tourist resorts in the Caribbean area.

And even if it does rain it is possible to jump in a car and find sunny, pleasant weather a half hour's drive down the coast.

The Bank of Mexico has announced a $37 million investment in infrastructure works, including an international airport, a city for the permanent population with all necessary services, and basic tourist facilities.

Private developers will be invited to set up trust funds in Mexican banks selling "certificates of participation" to foreign and national investors. The proceeds will be used to construct hotels.

Under this arrangement, the certificate holder has the right to "enjoy" what is built on the land but does not own the land. By law, foreigners cannot own property along Mexico's coastline.

The certificate holder will also receive a return on his investment in the form of rent paid to him by the company operating the hotel. The first hotel is scheduled to open next year.

Animal crackers keep kid appeal

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gaily decorated boxes of animal crackers — zippy lions, tigers, horses and elephants in circus wraps — got onto the market as a Christmas novelty in New York back at the turn of the century.

Merchants figured the crunchy animals as strictly a seasonal novelty, but it didn't turn out that way. They became a national tradition.

Today, kids across the country are still clamoring for animal crackers, in circus boxes with a small string aloft for hanging on a Christmas tree, in season, or in the hand of a five-year-old in any season. It is the only cookie, save the gingerbread man, to have inspired song and poetry.

Christopher Morley put it this way:

"Animal crackers and cocoa to drink
That is the finest of suppers, I think;
When I am grown up and have what I please
I think I shall always insist upon these."

There are at least 18 animals immortalized in cookie dough-

East Cassia's stake meet held

DECLO — Elder Milton R. Hunter, a member of the First Council of Seventy of the LDS Church from Salt Lake City, was guest speaker at the Cassia East Stake Quarterly Conference held last weekend in the Declo Stake House.

"We are living in a world filled with temptation and sin, but we can follow the teachings of the Master," said Elder Hunter at the Sunday morning session.

"Don't be influenced by the modern philosophies of the day," he urged, "but keep the Lord's Commandments."

Elder Hunter is a widely-known author and former educator who has held his present church leadership post since 1945. He is the author of 22 books on history, religion, and archaeology and is an ardent student and explorer of ancient American Archeology. He has made many trips to South and central America gathering information to support the Book of Mormon.

In his closing remarks Elder Hunter advised the people to walk the path of righteousness and strive to live the gospel: "For," he said, "it is the power of God unto salvation."

Stake President Joseph A. Gillett spoke on the responsibility of the LDS Church to preach the gospel to the world. "We are a world-wide church," he said, "and we must spread the gospel message to all parts of the world. We should live this gospel, be worthy of its teachings, and be a good example to others."

"There is conflict in the world today," he continued. "Many voices are trying to lead us astray. We should not heed the voices of wickedness and sin but keep the laws and commandments of the Lord. This will bring happiness."

Other speakers were Jay Harper, Leo Hurst, Edwin Paskett, and Everett Pardue.

Prelude and postlude music was played by the stake organist, Mrs. Clyde Wardle. Mrs. Merna Marchant, stake music director, led the congregational singing.

Heyburn plant no longer polluting Snake River

HEYBURN — The J. R. Simplot Co. in Heyburn is no longer polluting the Snake River with waste water from its potato peeling processes according to Hugo Dalsoglio, Simplot area general manager. The Heyburn plant is running potatoes through its new dry peeler, feeding two processing lines.

Dalsoglio said no major problems in operations have occurred so far. He said that a few dry peeler equipment problems came up Wednesday, but were rectified early. He said there will be minor problems mainly stemming from inexperience with peeling equipment for a while, but they will be solved as operators gain experience.

Two more lines will go into operation Tuesday and two the next weekend. A total of seven processing lines receive potatoes from the dry peeler. Dalsoglio said when the final line goes into operation every potato will be dry peeled. The plant is running about 10,000 pounds of spuds a day right now and will be up to 20,000 pounds a day when the next two lines go into operation. When in full operation, between 30,000 and 35,000 pounds of potatoes a day will be processed. Dalsoglio said that the weather conditions are about all that will change the amount processed.

Dalsoglio said the total poundage processed varies if the weather effects getting the spuds out of the ground. The potatoes being processed on the first runs are coming from the Wendell area and areas west of Pocatello. Dalsoglio said that everything is right on schedule. He said the potatoes were planted to be mature in these areas for the Sept. 1 processing opening.

No problems are expected unless there is a change in weather and spud digging operations are hindered.

GRAIN AND PEA combining is in operation in Magic Valley now. Most farmers harvested their Moravian making barley first, followed by peas, wheat, barley and mixed grain. This farmer south of Filer is getting ready to start his combine in the morning after the dew is gone to finish this grain field.

It's harvest time

Snake water storage continues above normal

IDAHO FALLS — Water storage and flow along the Snake River in southeastern Idaho continued above normal at most stations, according to the Sept. 1 survey by the Geological Survey of the Department of the Interior.

As of Wednesday, the Island Park Reservoir stored 109,000 acre feet of water, and the American Falls Reservoir had 1.235 million acre feet in storage.

The report, compiled by the Bureau of Reclamation, Geological Survey and cooperating agencies, listed the following water levels:

Sheep no longer will be on county tax rolls

BOISE — One item of special interest to sheep owners of Idaho is to know that the inventory tax phaseout has been completed and hereafter, sheep will not be on the county tax rolls for general taxing purposes according to a report in the Idaho Wool Growers Association Bulletin.

In lieu of this change it has been necessary for the sheep commission to place an assessment of 30 cents per head on all sheep in order to continue the animal disease and predatory animal control programs.

The sheep commission is doing the best job possible for the sheep industry in both controlling sheep diseases and cooperating with the Sports Fisheries and Wildlife in controlling predators. Next to labor, predatory animals is the biggest problem facing the sheepman today.

Several sheepmen have been put out of business because of coyotes. There are many more who are suffering heavy losses and may find it necessary to go out of the sheep business. Anyone doubting these statements should talk with Andy Lay Council, or John Keithly, Midvale, who were put out of the sheep business because of such heavy losses due to coyotes. This year they could talk with Buck Howland, Cambridge, who lost 40 per cent of his purebred lambs this year. These losses forced Howland to bring his lambs into a pen by his home in order to stop the devastation by the coyotes.

L. D. Warfield has also been forced to bring his purebred lambs into dry lot pens because of the trouble he has had this year with coyotes. Because these farms are bordering the town of Cambridge the use of some control measures cannot be used.

Without the help of the sheep commission and Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, the sheep industry in Idaho would be in big trouble, the bulletin says.

Freeze too new to tell effect

TWIN FALLS — The federal price-wage freeze is "too new" yet to tell if it will have much of an effect on Magic Valley agricultural interests, according to a sampling of opinion.

Don Yountz, Twin Falls County agricultural agent, said he has heard little comment on the price clampdown, either pro or con, yet. Many farmers and businessmen fear the effect if the restrictions were removed completely at the end of the 90 days, but little complaint has been heard.

Don Granow, manager of the American Oil Farm Service Center in Twin Falls, said his many contacts also have little to say during the freeze, which serves to hold down prices of equipment while allowing prices of "fresh produce" to fluctuate. Clyde VanAusdeln, Filer, president of the Twin Falls County Farm Bureau, echoed the others, saying that the main complaint he has heard is that President Nixon may have enacted the federal freeze "too late to do any good."

Equipment prices are "already high," while parity has apparently been frozen a 60 to 65 per cent, VanAusdeln said. "President Nixon should have acted when parity was closer to 100 per cent, but it never actually gets that high," he commented.

"It would have looked much better to many people if he had acted at a different time, while it wouldn't have affected the overall situation very much," VanAusdeln said.

Mills cite more use of cotton

WASHINGTON — United States mills will match or slightly exceed the eight million bales of cotton they used last year, according to the August statistical report by the Department of Agriculture.

Factors in the increase are more orders for cotton cloth, less competition from man-made materials and smaller cotton textile imports.

Though sluggish at the start of 1970-71, cotton exports picked up steam later on in the marketing year. By March, exports totaled 2.4 million bales, more than a third ahead of August-March 1969-70.

Good manners

KUALA LUMPUR (UPI) — Malaysia's bus companies have been asked by the Transport Ministry to organize courses on good manners for their drivers and conductors. The move followed complaints by passengers.

Study of sheep losses planned

BOISE — With the help of Howard Tankersley, resource development specialist, University of Idaho Extension Service, the Idaho Wool Growers Association will be calling on all sheep range users to help in doing a study of sheep and lamb losses, according to a report in the Idaho Wool Growers Bulletin.

The bulletin noted that Tankersley has received the able assistance of the economics, veterinary science, and animal science departments of the college of agriculture in preparing a questionnaire. This questionnaire will be sent to all range sheep operators.

The proposal, which has been reviewed by the Wool Growers Association, will give the industry a good look at total losses covering the full year's operation. While predators are credited with causing the greatest single loss, there is evidence to bear out the contention of many that losses of lambs due to such diseases as scours and "overeating" disease (enterotoxemia), ewe losses due to a number of causes, and losses of lambs because of abortion or failure of the ewe to conceive are of much concern to the sheepman.

The Idaho Wool Growers are asking for all range sheep operators to cooperate by filling in the questionnaire and returning it to Tankersley.

The plan is to prepare the questionnaire in two parts: One covering losses from lambing to marketing and the other from breeding until lambing.

The information is needed and will help in preparatory animal control programs as well as animal health and management programs to aid in reducing losses.

Exports increase

WASHINGTON — After trailing off in recent years, United States agricultural exports to the European Community came back strong in fiscal 1971, according to a statistical report from the Department of Agriculture.

Sales to the European Community in 1970-71 came to about $1.8 billion. Exports of feed grains alone totaled about $340 million, up almost $100 million from the same period in fiscal 1970. The gain was largely due to a grain shortage in the community last year.

Imports of U.S. wheat and soybeans were also up, along with takings of variety meats, tallow, nuts, vegetables, cotton and tobacco.

Cattle steady at TF sale

TWIN FALLS — Commercial cows and bulls steady; Calves and light feeder cattle fully steady and active. Heavy feeder steers were weak to 50 cents lower, according to the Twin Falls Livestock Commission Co. weekly sale report.

Good to high choice steers, 29.50-31.00; standard to low good, 27.50-30.00; utility steers, 26.50-28.00; fed Holstein steers, 25.00-27.00; good to choice heifers, 27.50-29.00; standard to low good heifers, 25.50-28.50; commercial and standard cows, 20.00-22.00; utility cows, 19.50-22.00; canners and cutters, 18.00-20.00; commercial bulls, 28.50-31.00; utility bulls, 24.50-27.50; light bulls, 23.00-27.00.

Stockers and Feeders; Heavy feeder steers, 32.00-34.00; light feeder steers, 33.00-36.00, common quality steers, 28.00-31.50; Holstein steers, 26.75-33.00; poorer grade steers, 23.00-28.00; heavy feeder heifers, 29.00-31.00; light feeder heifers, 29.50-32.00, common heifers, 26.00-28.50; steer calves, 37.00-31.00; heifer calves, 32.00-37.50; vealers, 31.00-36.00; feeder cows, 18.00-20.00.

Idaho buyers get top sheep prices

BOISE — Idaho buyers secured top selling sheep in the National Ram Sale, according to a report in the Idaho Wool Growers Bulletin.

Heading the list were Steve and Randell Weeks of Swan Valley, who purchased the top selling ram from W. K. "Jack" Matthews of Ovid, for $1,300. Matthew's high selling ewe, a Hampshire, was purchased by Soren P. Nielsen of Burley, a figure of $425.

One of the two high selling Suffolk ewes of the sale was sold by the Olsen Brothers of Spanish Fork, Utah and purchased by the Wilder Brothers, Eagle. The top selling pen of Columbia ewes was sold by Pete and Carth Thomas, Malad, at $120 per head.

Elkington Brothers of Idaho Falls tied with the Olsen Brothers in selling their top prize pen of five Suffolk-Hamps at $200 per head.

The 612 rams at the National Sale sold for an average of $148.23 per head, while the 58 registered ewes brought $124.14 per head.

Income of firm rises

PORTLAND — Lamb-Weston, Inc., reported higher sales and earnings for its first quarter, ending July 31, in a report issued Thursday.

The food processing firm's net income rose to $868,000, producing 61 cents per share, against $616,000, for 43 cents, a year ago. Sales for the first quarter of fiscal 1972 amounted to $14.4 million, compared with $12.2 million last year.

Experts predict that 138 million metric tons of meat will be consumed by man worldwide in 1980. That's a 58 per cent increase over the 1965 figure.

Berlin pact terms OK'd

BERLIN (UPI) — The Big Four ambassadors signed today a historic Berlin agreement designed to ease tension in this divided city. It was the first major Berlin agreement since the end of the 1948-1949 Berlin blockade during the height of the cold war.

The ambassadors of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union inked the document at the former Allied Control Authority building in the American sector at 1 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT) after a 24-hour delay caused by technicalities.

The signing had been set for the same time Thursday but a hitch developed over the wording of the German translation — important because the pact must be ratified by both east and West Germany. The technicality was ironed out in all-night meetings.

Cancellation of Thursday's ceremony was blamed officially on the "sudden indisposition" of U.S. Ambassador Kenneth Rush, but Western diplomatic sources said the real reason was the East-West conflict over the translation.

An allied communique issued today said Rush had had a headache Thursday but that he was healthy again this morning.

Reds orbit moon probe

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Thursday launched an unmanned automatic space station, Luna 18, to carry out further scientific research of the moon and its vicinity, the Tass news agency said.

Tass said the automatic space station was launched at 4:41 p.m. (8:41 a.m. EDT) from the orbit of an artificial earth satellite and that the station's flight trajectory is close to the preset one.

Trio freed

SMYRNA, Del. (UPI) — Behind a barrage of tear gas, 35 prison guards stormed the maximum security building of the Delaware Correctional Institution and freed unharmed three guards held 2½ hours as hostages by a mob of inmates.

Drug aid plan traced

BOISE (UPI) — The State Board of Education approved budget requests for public education and educational television Thursday, and heard plans for a new drug rehabilitation project at the Youth Training Center.

The budget requests, which will in turn be presented to the legislature when it meets again, included a total of $56.4 million in state funds for public education and $511,000 for educational television.

Supt. of Public Instruction D.F. Engelking, who presented the public education budget Wednesday, said the total of $56.4 million included $52.5 million from the state's General Fund and $3.9 million from Endowment Fund earnings.

The state monies — which would be an increase of $12.1 million over the present spending level of $44 million — would mean a total from all sources, both state and federal, of $109.7 million, according to Engelking.

Of that, he said, 75.7 million would be for salaries and instruction, $6.4 million for instruction expense, $9.6 million for operation of plant and $5.9 million for transportation.

Engelking's request for the additional state funds included $3.6 million for a kindergarten program.

The educational television funds would go for the three stations to be at Boise State College, the University of Idaho and Idaho State University.

Winston G. Taylor, superintendent of the Youth Training Center at St. Anthony, told the board the institution will start the new Drug Rehabilitation Project next week using a $100,000 federal grant.

He said it would be directed by Dr. Charles Kuhn, a psychologist, and Dr. James Amos, a clinical psychologist, both from the Eastern Idaho Community Health Center in Idaho Falls.

and John Owens, who is with the Youth Rehabilitation Division of the Department of Health, and will serve as a field coordinator.

Taylor said there would be a resident staff at the school and a team of area specialists from education, vocational education, vocational rehabilitation, medicine and clinical services to provide a complete diagnostic center.

Taylor also told the board he is changing his personnel system to give the children a closer "cottage type" of social worker service.

The change, he said, would mean a savings of approximately $75,000, and asked the board to readjust his budget request accordingly.

Israel asks planes

By United Press International Israel has warned the United States it will stiffen its resistance toward reopening the Suez Canal as part of an interim Middle East peace settlement unless it is assured of additional supplies of American warplanes, diplomatic sources in Jerusalem said today.

The sources said Israeli diplomats told State Department officials Israel can not risk a canal settlement if it does not maintain its military superiority over its Arab neighbors, particularly Egypt. They said the flow of Soviet weapons to Egypt has caused the Middle East balance of power to tip against Israel.

In the Arab world, political sources in Beirut said the new alignment of Egypt, Syria and Libya as the federation of Arab republics indicates a tougher Egyptian stance toward the Middle East conflict.

As a teenager, Wakely first faced the public from a piano where he played for Church Choirs and learned his music in "Singing Schools", taught by traveling Music Teachers specializing in gospel music. The sound that is big today in so called Modern Country Music.

Gene Autry discovered the Wakely Trio and brought them to Hollywood for his CBS Radio Show, Melody Ranch, where upon Wakely decided he wanted to be a singing Cowboy. Quick success followed singing parts up to second teams then Stardom in 30 Western Features.

The Wakely voice had become familiar to millions by then as his records on Decca were hitting big COUNTRY HITS LIKE: "TOO LATE", "CIMMARRON", "CATTLE CALL".

Then he moved to Capitol Records where he recorded his first million seller — "ONE HAS MY NAME" — followed by "I LOVE YOU SO MUCH IT HURTS", "MY HEART CRIES FOR YOU", "BEAUTIFUL BROWN EYES" — inching closer and closer to the "POP" Music field.

Then the big change — Teaming with Margaret Whiting with instant success with such hits as "SLIPPING AROUND" (Over 3 million), "WEDDING BELLS", "SILVER BELLS", "LET'S GO TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY", "BEYOND THE REEF" and others. Jimmy Wakely as the first Country and Western Artist to be voted onto the Top Charts as a "POP" male vocalist!

A natural followup to all this was TV, resulting in guest performances with BOB HOPE, ED SULLIVAN, STEVE ALLEN, KATE SMITH, KEN MURRAY and other Big Name TV shows.

After appearing in large theatres in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit and the Big Rodeos, and with Country Music being swallowed up by Rock and Roll, Wakely ceased his recording activities and built a Modern Night Club group and played Theatre Lounges in Nevada 28 weeks a year for 7 years 1961 through 1967.

In 1968 he started recording again for Decca. This time he acts as Producer of his recordings, also produces his son's records "John Wakely" for Decca and daughter Linda Lee for Kapp records.

Wakely has over 200 published songs to his credit. He is a member of ASCAP, owns two publishing firms. Some of his compositions were written for Motion Pictures, composing original music for 40 or more feature movies.

With all this Musical Milage... Jimmy Wakely is today one of the finest singers on any stage. His Decca Albums and Singles are good sellers and his time for Golf is limited... but he loves to sing and sing he does... and BETTER THAN EVER.

Andrus pledges Blaine to get support needed

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus told a news conference Thursday the state is prepared to support Blaine County law enforcement officers to "whatever extent necessary" in controlling a proposed rock festival.

Andrus announced his decision after a noon-hour strategy meeting with the adjutant general, commissioner of law enforcement, superintendent of state police and a representative of the attorney general.

He said Blaine County Sheriff Orville Drexler sent him a formal request for state aid in policing the rock festival which is slated to begin in Slaughterhouse Canyon near Bellevue Friday.

Andrus said the sheriff by constitution and law was in charge of policing the festival but that the state would be ready, willing and able to assist him.

He declined to tell newsmen, however, about what he called his "game plan" until next Tuesday — saying he was unwilling to tip his hand to anyone who might want to foment trouble this weekend.

"Frankly," he added, "I don't anticipate any great problem."

Yet, to be on the safe side, Andrus admitted he cancelled plans for a weekend outing in the hills with his family.

"I had had some plans with the family of a few brief days in the hills but this comes first," Andrus said, indicating he will remain near his telephone.

Asked whether he intended to call up the National Guard if necessary Andrus said only that he will do whatever is necessary in assisting Drexler in keeping the peace.

He said he learned a lot about rock festivals from a church "picnic" held at Farragut State Park over the Independence Day weekend and was ready to employ that knowledge if needed at Bellevue. Again, he declined at this point to say what that knowledge was.

When asked about possible drug problems at the forthcoming festival, Andrus said flatly that "state law will be upheld."

When asked specifically if that referred to possession as well as sale of dangerous drugs, Andrus said only, "That applies to Idaho state law."

"We've put together a very precise plan of action," Andrus said about keeping the peace at the festival.

Andrus reiterated his belief that trouble may not be forthcoming at the gathering.

"I just can't get that nervous about it but you can't afford to take a chance," he said.

Yet, he admonished local residents of the area where the festival is to be held to let their elected law enforcement officers handle the situation.

"I hope the local people will contact the officials instead of trying to take things into their own hands," he said.

Later, he said he felt most Idahoans were sensible, intelligent and law-abiding citizens.

"I'm confident the sheriff is capable of handling any situation," Andrus said.

Meantime, the governor expressed surprise at a statement from Mayor Claude Ballard of Bellevue that the City Council will consider asking for federal troops because the governor did not seem interested in assisting local law enforcement officers.

"Either this official has been misquoted or he has made an error in judgment," Andrus said.

"I have not been contacted by any official of Bellevue."

Andrus also added his voice to others who have questioned whether Slaughterhouse Canyon is an appropriate place for a rock festival which is expected to attract thousands.

"I'm sorry it's such a miserable location for any type of gathering," Andrus said.

"I wonder if people thinking of purchasing tickets hadn't ought to look at the area, first."

GOP aide hits lack of action

TWIN FALLS — Charles Lunte, Region 5 Republican Party chairman, has taken issue with the "lack of action" on the part of Gov. Cecil Andrus in view of anticipated problems at the Wood River Rock Festival at Bellevue this weekend.

Lunte, in a statement issued before Gov. Andrus received a formal request for "support" from Blaine County authorities, expressed concern about the planned rock festival. He said he was "disappointed" about the "lack of action on the part of Gov. Andrus," as indicated in a news release on Wednesday.

Gov. Andrus was quoted, according to Lunte, as saying that the state would assist with traffic control and provide a "small backup force," but the law enforcement responsibility "would primarily rest with the county."

Lunte commented that "with an influx of an estimated 10,000 to 15,000 people, it is obvious the county cannot handle the situation, unless the governor issues a hands-off policy of all law enforcement as he did at the Farragut festival."

"He seemed proud that there was no confrontation at Farragut," Lunte said, "but of course you never have confrontation unless you attempt to enforce the law."

"The reason Idaho has had festivals of this type and is now faced with another lies squarely in the lap of the governor. The legislature, after seeing what was happening in other states in this area, passed a law, House Bill 105, that would have prevented or properly controlled these gatherings. The governor saw fit to veto this bill. To date he has not come up with any alternative," Lunte declared.

"I personally do not object to young people getting together to listen to rock music. I do feel, however, that those same young people and the local citizens are entitled to protection from those who would exploit these festivals for other purposes, such as the Farragut debacle," Lunte said.

A REPAIR CREW was able to restore a bridge on one of two access roads to Slaughterhouse Canyon to operating condition Thursday, following its removal, Bellevue officials said, because of rotten timbers. At left Mike McMurtie, Twin Falls, drives nail as Shorty Kinsey, Twin Falls, looks on.

"The greatest fear I have," he said, "is if someone takes the law into his own hands." But he added, "I am confident that nothing will happen around the county that we won't be able to handle."

Drexler said Idaho National Guard troops would be available but that, "our intention is that we won't need the guard at all, but if we need it, it will be usable."

The sheriff will have full authority over any state help. He requested residents if they had any problems to call him immediately at the courthouse. Blaine County Atty. Steven W. Boller also attended the meeting. City Councilman Mark Patterson asked him whether a damage suit could be brought against Teater and Boyd.

Boller said he was considering initiating such action for the county but he wanted to do more research on the matter. He said, "obviously the county was put out financially," by the festival.

Today noon Sheriff Drexler was to meet with health, law enforcement and other state officials at the courthouse to assign responsibility during the festival.

BELLEVUE — Those still remaining on the floor of the Slaughterhouse Gulch at nightful Thursday gathered around a small campfire.

Some roasted hot dogs for dinner, others drank beer, a few wondered aloud about the cold in the gulch at night and still others lay quietly on nearby sleeping bags.

Not all of the people were there in anticipation of today's Wood River Rock Festival. Of the 30 or 40 people around the fire some were neighborhood kids, some worked for festival promoter Jack Teater and some were contractors hired by Teater trying to use the last few moments of sunlight to speed up the pace of preparations.

The kids had ridden their bikes into the gulch. They had heard a lot about the festival in town they said and with the schools closed today, last night was their chance to look for themselves.

Teater's men were cold, tired, but relieved. They had been camped at the site for three days and had come armed, ready for any trouble with people eager to stop the festival.

Now with the start of the music only a few hours away and the local mood noticeably calmer, they were pleased there had been no violence.

A mile and a half up the gulch where the bands would play the site wasn't ready. The electric generator was being hauled into position but wouldn't be in operation until morning. There was no bandstand complete and the outhouse facilities were not yet constructed.

Still a few festival goers had made camp. Some on the floor of the gulch, others in the holes which pockmark its walls.

Many who were there at the gulch had come without a ticket to the festival and with no anticipation of paying the $15 it would cost to buy one. Instead they worked during the day helping prepare the site for the crowd expected and earned the price of admission.

Three hitchhikers on the road leading out of the gulch said they were from Virginia. They been in Salt Lake City and heard of the festival. "Why not," one said, "this is as good a place to be broke as anywhere else is."

Trash haul delayed

TWIN FALLS — Because of the Labor Day holiday Monday, all Twin Falls city garbage collections will be one day late during the coming week, Joe Coon, sanitation officer for the city reported.

He said there will be no pick up on Monday but the schedule will be made up during the remainder of the week, pushing all collections one day late until the end of the week.

BELLEVUE — Worley Head, whose land adjoins that to be used as the Wood River Rock Festival site, today accused the owner of Slaughterhouse Gulch, Lawrence Boyd, of trying to stir up the ill-will of the people of Bellevue, "through his tactics and his business."

Head continued, "Boyd said the little Bellevue town is nothing but a stinky dump anyhow."

In a town which has calmed considerably in the past few days, Head is one noticeable exception. Earlier this week, he had been involved in a number of incidents surrounding the festival. The fence to his son's property had been cut twice and several times Head chased men off the land, at least once threatening them with a rifle. He refused to say whether the rifle was loaded.

Still, he said Thursday he bears no ill-will toward the young people and has nothing against rock festivals. "I have spoken to some of the kids in there at the festival and some of them are as nice and as reasonable as any kids I've ever spoken to," he said.

Tuesday, Jack Teater, festival promoter, cut the fence leading to the Head property when he claimed he had a 50-foot easement through the land to the gulch. Head at the time refused to press charges when he learned local youths had been involved in the action as well as festival goers.

A night later, the fence was cut again and Head asked the city for 24-hour guard around his property. Mayor Claude Ballard reportedly said the guard would be available only if he would be paid by the Head family. Thursday, two men in a car drove across the Head land. Head arrived, carrying a rifle, and demanded that they leave. The men backed up, turned around and disappeared back toward the gulch.

After the incident, Head put his rifle back into the car and spoke of peace.

"I'm fighting for myself to keep these people from killing one another," he said. And the wave of his arm indicated the festival people and the local citizens. "The law won't help me. I'm a peaceful man and I've done everything I could to be peaceable."

Head went on to accuse Boyd of "using Teater" in his efforts to make a profit on the festival. Head and Boyd have long been involved in a court litigation over land in the Slaughterhouse Gulch area.

As he spoke, Head watched a car drive out of the gulch on an access road. It was the same one he had stopped with his rifle a few minutes earlier.

"I don't like people pulling guns on me," one of the men in the car said. "Don't you ever pull a gun on me again or I'll pull my guns on you." As he spoke he put his hand on the barrel of a rifle which lay uncased on the seat next to him.

Today Head said once again he wanted no trouble but he had started carrying his gun with him because "I fear for my life."

Strategy session slated

HAILEY — Representatives of state and local law enforcement agencies and the Idaho National Guard were scheduled to hold a strategy meeting shortly before the time the Slaughterhouse Canyon rock festival was set to begin.

State police officials said representatives of the governor's office, the Idaho State Police, the Idaho National Guard, the Idaho Commissioner of law enforcement, the Blaine County Sheriff's Office and Bellevue were planning to attend the meeting.

The meeting was set at the Blaine County Courthouse here.

The Idaho State Police will have a force of men "from all over the state" in Bellevue this weekend, according to Capt. Dean Bennett, commander of the Twin Falls district of the state police.

Bennett said the officers will "help with traffic and any other problems" that may come up. The specific number of troopers to be placed in Blaine County was to be determined today after a survey of the situation in Bellevue, Bennett explained.

"Right now, we don't anticipate any major trouble," the officer said this morning.

Minico pageant set in November

RUPERT — Nov. 23 is the date set for the Second Annual Minidoka County Junior Miss Pageant. The announcement was made by W. F. "Bill" Whitton and Larry Edgar, co-chairmen for the event sponsored by the Minico J.C.'s.

The event will be held at the Minico High School Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Whitton urged all senior girls at Minico High School interested in participating to contact either him or Larry Edgar and make application.

"This may seem like a long time away. However, a great deal of preparation must go into this program to make it a real success," Whitton said. "And," he added, "we want to make sure that all girls who are seniors this year at Minico know of the date we have set so they can decide if they want to participate."

Whitton said there would be scholarships awarded to the young ladies who placed in the top spots as determined by the judges. He was quoted as saying, "We are in the process now of selecting our judges for this big contest. It is hoped that we can obtain judges from areas outside of the Mini-Cassia area."

Both of the J. C. members urged all persons in the area to make plans to attend.

Fires controlled

SHOSHONE — Four small fires were reported in the Shoshone area over the past 12 hours according to Wallace Fixsen, fire control officer with the Bureau of Land Management.

Fixsen said that two of them were along the railroad tracks, one at the Kimama crossing at the east end of Lincoln County and the other west of Shoshone. Neither fire did much damage.

Last night another fire broke out west of the Highway 93 - Interstate 80 exchange north of Twin Falls, just east of the rest area and this morning another fire was reported in the same area of the interchange. This fire was quickly brought under control and burned only one-half acre. It was reported out at 7:30 a.m.

Fixsen said that even with the cooler weather there is still fire danger in the area.

Gooding students aid hunt

GOODING — Gooding High School students were dismissed from classes early Thursday to help law enforcement authorities search for three small girls reported missing by their mothers, according to Gooding Police Chief Lyle Clifford.

Clifford said the girls, Sherri Brown, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brown; LaLoni Cogdill, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cogdill; and Rhonda Guder, 4, whose parents were not identified by police, wandered into a friend's home while their mothers were visiting elsewhere.

When the alarm was raised by the worried mothers, a call was issued to volunteer searchers and the high school students were called in. City police were joined by Gooding County Deputy Sheriff Tim Burk, State Police officer Jim Finch, Wendell Police Chief Dale Sabin and the Gooding County Sheriff's posse.

Two Gooding housewives, identified as Verla Hoopes and Wilma Pike, located Sherri and LaLoni walking down a Gooding street and took them to the police station. The two girls told police where Rhonda could be found and the search ended.

Clifford said the search started about 11:45 a.m., when the mothers called police and ended about 1:30 p.m. He commented that the high school students for their help.

Air pollution index 128

The pollution reading was taken by the staff of the South Central Health District at the Twin Falls City Hall. The reading is expressed as the number of micrograms of particulate material per cubic meter of air for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today.

Federal pollution regulators say pollution levels should be kept below 75 micrograms over any 24-hour period, and should not be permitted to rise above 260 micrograms, for even a short period of time.

Forecast

Today: Excellent
Tonight: Poor
Tomorrow: Good

This forecast provided by the Idaho Department of Health indicates the ability of the atmosphere to disperse pollution. Burning as permitted by law should be curtailed when the air is poorly able to disperse air pollutants.

Goin' down fair

A LATE-EVENING sun beams from behind scattering clouds as it slips toward the horizon beyond a Magic Valley field, promising fair or at least partly cloudy skies for the day ahead.

Weather is expected to affect the rock festival at Bellevue this weekend, with temperatures expected to dip below the 60 degrees recorded this morning. On Saturday and Sunday nights, temperatures are expected to be in the upper 50's or low 40's. There also is a chance of some showers over the Wood River Valley during the weekend.

It blooms

THE QUESTION of whether cotton will grow in Idaho has been answered in the affirmative by Mrs. Wayne Konrad who this spring planted cotton seed in the yard behind the Kam Philgas Co. office in Burley. This week the plants began to bloom in the characteristic large petal-like blossoms. The plants, which are from 12 to 14 inches high, still have some unopened buds.

Rupert chamber hears about new credit code

RUPERT — Tim Brannon, executive secretary for Idaho Retailers Association, was the guest speaker during the Thursday noon luncheon of the Rupert Chamber of Commerce at the Elks dining room.

He reviewed the Uniform Consumer Credit Code which was passed in 1971 by the state legislature. The bill was introduced in the Idaho State Legislature in January, 1969, the same year Utah and Oklahoma adopted a similar bill.

"If the Uniform Consumer Credit Code had not been adopted by the state it would sooner or later be forced upon us by the federal level," Brannon reported.

"Controls are better at a state and local level than federal level, for at the state level there are communication lines which do not exist at federal level," he added.

"The Uniform Consumer Credit Code does permit an added rate of one and one-half per cent on unpaid balance, and prorated for percentage on large balance," he reported. Prior to the passing of the code it was not legal to add the percentage to an unpaid balance and business's could have been sued on a class action suit.

Businessmen were urged to file with the state finance commissioner and pay the $25 fee for enforcing the code. Many have filed with the finance commissioner, and Idaho has more filings than Utah has on the records of filing in two years, according to Brannon.

"Much of the 93 page code is blackmail from the federal government for all we really wanted was the right to add a percentage to unpaid balances," he stated. However by having the package code, Idaho can file for an exemption from the federal code, Oklahoma has been granted the exemption, he said.

Brannon reported to the chamber members that "he will recommend the filing fee be lowered from $25 to $10 to the next legislature." He also urged the Minidoka residents to discuss the matter with Steve Antone, representative who was chairman and a strong supporter of the code.

William Strasser, chamber secretary-manager, was presented an orchid and a card, in honor of her recent birthday. The orchid was grown by Strasser in his greenhouse.

McLean and Pearce share lead for U.S. amateur

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI)—Jim McLean and Eddie Pearce, two blond college students who have been playing golf since they were kids, shot sub-par rounds Thursday to share a two-stroke lead after the second round of the U.S. Amateur Golf Championship. McLean, a 21-year-old University of Houston student from Seattle, Wash., shot a four-under-par 67 while Pearce, a 19-year-old from Tampa, Fla., who attends Wake Forest, had a 69 for 36-hole totals of 139, three under par at the halfway mark of the tournament. This put them two strokes ahead of Canada's Gary Cowan, the 1966 champion, who had an even par 71 for a 141-total and three ahead of George Haines, a school teacher from nearby Westtown, Pa., and Bob Boyle, 26, a University of South Carolina student. One stroke back of them at 143 was Marty West, 23, of Washington, D.C., the first round leader with a 67 who slipped back with a five-over-par 76, and NCAA champion Ben Crenshaw, of the University of Texas, who had a 70 Thursday.

Jim Simons, the 21-year-old Butler, Pa., youth who was low amateur in the U.S. Open, shot a 77 for a 150 total and then withdrew because of the pain he was having from ligament problems in his left thumb. McLean, anxious to make a good showing here after he wasn't chosen to compete with Houston's NCAA tournament team this year, had an opening round of one over-par-72 but came back in a hurry Thursday.

His round included an eagle on the par-five 14th hole, five birdies and three bogeys. Pearce, who 'said he was 'just playing the course' and not the contestants, improved on his opening round one-under-par 70 with a relatively conservative round that included one bogey and three birdies. Cowan made a run at the lead by getting two birdies on a bogey-free front nine but then suffered a double-bogey six on the 11th hole when he put his approach shot in a trap, blasted out and then three-putted. He then birdied the 15th with a 12-foot putt but three-putted the next hole for a bogey.

The casual McLean, who said he 'tries not to get excited,' started his run for the lead early by dropping in an eight-foot putt for a birdie on the first hole, then got another on the 3rd with a 12-footer. The remainder of the Top 10 included Delaware (82), Tennessee St. (78), Grambling (67), Alcorn-A&M (45) and Eastern Michigan (41).

Western Kentucky took the No. 11 spot with 38 points, followed by Long Beach St. with 36 and Hawaii with 25. There was a tie for the 14th position between Jacksonville St. (Ala.) and Southwestern Louisiana with 22 points. Akron was No. 15 with 21 points and Able Christian was next with 19 points.

Eastern Kentucky and Southern Illinois were locked in a tie for the No. 17 spot with 16 points each while New Mexico Highlands, with 16 points, Florida A&M, with 13, and Indiana St., with 12, completed the top 20. Other teams receiving more than eight or more points were Troy St. (11), Wofford (11), Western Illinois (10), Yankton College (9), Idaho St. (9), Whitewater St. (8), Northeastern Oklahoma St. (8) and Fresno St. (8).

NEW YORK (UPI)—North Dakota State, a perennial powerhouse among the nation's small college football teams, edged defending champion Arkansas State to gain the No. 1 ranking in United Press International's first pre-season ratings.

North Dakota St. was awarded 10 first place votes to eight for Arkansas St., as the Bison received enough support from the UPI's small college Board of Coaches to win the top spot with 218 points to 211 for Arkansas St. Thirty of the 35 marooncoaches board participated in the balloting.

Tampa received seven first place ballots and finished with 173 points to grab the No. 3 spot while Montana, with 151 points, and Texas A&I, with 114, rounded out the top five. Texas A&I drew three first place ballots.

Hymes Defense Superb

Willard led a trump to dummy at trick two; ruffed a spade at trick three; and then led the innocent little three of diamonds.

Eddy was not impressed by the innocence of that three spot. He studied and finally envisioned the exact hand Willard did hold. In that case it became apparent that Willard was going to ruff out all dummy's spades and then throw Eddy in with the king of diamonds to force a club lead.

Then, Eddy proceeded to foil this plan. He played his jack of diamonds, not the four spot! Later he played the king of diamonds on the second diamond lead and the slam died on the vine.

TWIN FALLS — Ten young horsewomen who hold queen titles for events on organizations in Idaho this year, have entered the Miss Rodeo Idaho competition in Twin Falls County Sept. 8 through 11, to be held in conjunction with the county fair and rodeo.

Three of the contestants are from the local county including Melody Brown, Kimberly, who reigns as queen of the Gooding County Fair; Mary Van Zante, Buhl, queen of the Twin Falls Sheriff's Posse, and Lynn Sherrell, Buhl, queen of the Hagerman Pioneer Days.

Miss Brown, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Birchie V. Brown, is a graduate of the Kimberly High School and has been active in the local Appaloosa Horse Club and in 4-H clubs. She is attending Boise State College as a freshman student this fall, majoring in history.

Miss Van Zante, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Van Zante, also attends Boise State College where she is a sophomore this fall. In addition to her title as county posse queen for 1971, she was a first runner up in the 1971 state posse queen contest and finalist in the 1971 Snake River Stampede. She was a first runner up to Lana Brackenbury, Miss Rodeo America, in the 1970 Sagebrush Days of Buhl and reigned for Miss Brackenbury this year. She has been active in school affairs in both high school and college.

She is secretary of the Buhl Riding Club and active in barrel racing. She also participated in drill team, Girls League and other school functions.

Girls entered in the contest begin their schedule of contest activities Wednesday with a publicity tour at 10 a.m. at the Holiday Inn and will meet with contest judges at 2 p.m. A registration tea will be held at 3 p.m. for girls, parents, judges and others. On Sept. 11 girls will tour downtown Twin Falls at 11:30 a.m. and meet at 3:15 p.m. to select the Miss Congeniality of the contest.

Contestants ride each night in the grand entry of the rodeo and selection of the queen will be featured during the final rodeo performance Saturday night. On hand to participate in the contest will be Miss Rodeo America, Lana Brackenbury, Jerome, also the current Miss Rodeo Idaho. She will place the crown on the 1972 title holder.

Norwegian ship may come home

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The hardy Norwegian sloop Gjoa, the first vessel to conquer the Northwest Passage, may be making the long voyage home!

The 70-foot Gjoa completed the passage in 1906 under the command of the famed Norwegian explorer Roald Amundsen who led six crewmen on the three-year, five-month voyage over the top of the world.

The 47-ton ship arrived here in 1906 and after resting almost forgotten for years in a shipyard, the local Norwegian colony bought her and the city placed the Gjoa on land at the edge of Golden Gate Park.

Now Norway wants her back. And there's little opposition to the request.

Few San Franciscans seem to know the story behind the little ship that can be seen easily from the great highway running along the ocean beach at the end of the park. But, the daring of Amundsen and his crew aboard the former merchant vessel is one of the epics of exploration.

The story of the Gjoa began with the search for a waterway to the Indies that absorbed Western Europe in the latter part of the Middle Ages.

After Columbus' voyages to the New World, the European governments turned their attention to exploring the new find but efforts continued in hopes of discovering a passage around the Western Hemisphere to the China trade.

Magellan found the Southwest Passage during his voyage of 1519-1521. But the Northwest Passage was more elusive.

The greatest names in European exploration tried: Da Verazzano, Frobisher, Davys, Hudson, Baffin, Cook and many others.

Even after the economic incentive died, explorers continued the quest.

In 1834 the British launched a well-financed expedition under the command of Sir John Franklin. Two ships were outfitted for three years and manned by 129 officers and men.

The expedition left England for the frozen north in 1845 and was never seen again.

Amundsen hardly had such backing. The heavy oak ship Gjoa, launched in 1873, was intended to ride the seas between Norway and Denmark. When Amundsen bought her he reinforced the keel and set sail for Christiana Fjord in June of 1903.

The Gjoa received no fanfare when she slipped out at midnight in a driving rain. Amundsen was dodging a creditor.
