TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

VOL. 68 NO. 132

THE MISS RODEO IDAHO banner was pinned on the new state queen, Ruth Campbell, left, Caldwell, by Miss Rodeo America Lana Brackenbury, Jerome, who won the Idaho title in 1970. She went on to win the national contest. Miss Campbell, selected from a field of 12 contestants, was named at the beginning of the Saturday night finals of the Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo which drew a "turn away" crowd. The first runner-up was Mary Van Zante, Buhl, and second runner-up was Marilyn Varin, Gooding. Lynn Sherrell, Buhl, was named Miss Congeniality.

Thaw policies due by middle October

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will announce by mid-October his plans for extended economic stabilization to replace the emergency wage-price freeze expiring Nov. 13, Treasury Secretary John B. Connally said Saturday.

Connally said there were no plans to seek congressional approval for the steps Nixon will take when the freeze ends, although "this could be subject to change."

This appeared to signal a tentative administration decision against seeking further tax remedies to stimulate the economy, stem inflation and create more jobs, although Connally said "we hold nothing sacred from the imposition of effective controls."

In any case, he said, the President's decision against extending the freeze does not mean he intends to "turn things loose" once it expires.

Connally spoke to newsmen after Nixon received a progress report from the Cost of Living Council on the 90-day freeze it is directing. The council, headed by Connally, had been meeting for an hour at the Treasury Department on post-freeze planning when Nixon invited its members across the street to the White House for a 90-minute session.

It was the first time Nixon had met with the full council. Recommendations asked Connally reported that Nixon asked the council to submit its recommendations by Sept. 30, after consultations with labor, business, agriculture and Congress.

After about a week of study, the President will make his decisions public no later than a month before the freeze expires at midnight Nov. 13, Connally said.

Connally said there was no similar presidential timetable for elimination of the 10 per cent surcharge on imports or further efforts to stabilize the value on the dollar overseas.

He said the United States will have no specific proposals to offer at a meeting in London next week of the Group of Ten, the 10 wealthiest Western trading nations. Connally will attend with Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board and Paul A. Volcker, assistant Treasury secretary.

Meanwhile, Democratic economic experts issued a statement applauding the goals of Nixon's "long overdue action" to rescue the economy but harshly criticized key portions of his plan.

The Economic Affairs Committee of the high-level Democratic Policy Council, including Gardner Ackley and Walter H. Heller, former chief economists in the Johnson and Kennedy administrations, said flatly that Nixon "has proposed the wrong fiscal program" to create more jobs and that his promise "is largely rhetoric."

What Democrats Say

The Democrats said Nixon's proposed tax cuts favored business far more than consumers, where they would do the most good in stimulating job-producing demand for goods and services. Furthermore, they said, the reductions would remove revenue sources that will be needed to finance domestic needs once the economy is healthy again.

They urged delaying scheduled Jan. 1 increases in Social Security payroll taxes, and junking $4 billion in accelerated tax depreciation allowances already ordered by Nixon. To grant business this tax cut on top of his proposed 10 per cent investment tax credit "violates every concept of equity," they said.

The economists said Nixon's proposed cuts in federal employment and foreign aid and delays in welfare reform and revenue sharing were "bad public policy, and Congress should reject them."

MISS AMERICA of 1972, Laurie Lea Schaefer, 22, of Rexley, Ohio, appears close to tears as she receives her crown in Atlantic City, N.J. Saturday. Karen Herd of Idaho Falls, Miss Idaho, was selected first runner-up in the pageant, with Deborah Ann O'Brien of Massachusetts third. Miss Ohio earlier was preliminary swimsuit competition despite problems she said she has had in holding down her weight. She measures 55-34-35. Hurricane list grows

Tropical storm Ginger became a full-fledged hurricane late Saturday while Edith, once a fierce hurricane, crossed the Yucatan Peninsula toward a likely rebirth in the Gulf of Mexico.

Ginger at 6 p.m. EDT was 300 miles southeast of Bermuda, moving slowly to the east-northeast at 10 miles an hour.

Weakening tropical storm Fern meanwhile pestered the Southwest Texas Coast with gales and street-flooding rains. The storm hit Corpus Christi with winds up to 70 miles an hour, then began plodding southwestward toward the Rio Grande Valley, leaving behind up to eight inches of rain.

S. Viets drive on near DMZ

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese troops battled Communist units near Khe Sanh Saturday while elite South Vietnamese Black Panther airborne troops moved into action on the sixth day of a major government drive below the Demilitarized Zone, military spokesmen said.

The 220 Black Panther troops were dropped from scores of U.S. helicopters on a ridge line six miles north of Khe Sanh. UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman watched them fan out through the area, believed to contain North Vietnamese 37mm antiaircraft gun emplacements.

"I think this is the critical combat assault of the operation," a South Vietnamese officer said. "If we don't get any contact now, I don't think there is going to be any big fighting in this campaign."

A unit of South Vietnamese rangers was about half a mile from the Laotian border Saturday, farther west than any other government troops have gone since their forces pulled out of Laos last March.

Spokesmen stressed that the troops would not cross the border into Laos. They would not give the precise location of the rangers for fear of alerting the Communists.

Airport district said costly to T.F.

TWIN FALLS — If voters of Twin Falls county approve establishment of a regional airport authority when it comes to vote Oct. 26 it could mean a cost to county taxpayers of as much as $5 million, County Commissioner Merl Leonard said Saturday.

In making the announcement, Leonard said that figure could range down to a low of some $5 million. He said his figures are based on the estimated cost of the proposed airport as announced previously by those backing the project in Jerome County and the fact cost to Twin Falls county taxpayers will be at least 45 per cent of the total expenditure even if all Magic Valley counties vote to form the authority. Any county voting to not join the authority would mean that Twin Falls' share would be greater, he said.

"In making known the figures compiled during a financial study of the proposal I am not asking that voters support or reject the proposal. I am making this study public only because I believe the taxpayers should be fully informed as to just what they would be letting themselves into," Leonard said.

He said his tabulations of the amount of money involved is based on a cost of $3 million as this county's share of the proposed airport, variously estimated at between $10 and $12 million. A $10 million airport would find the federal government putting up about half of that amount, according to existing laws, excluding terminal buildings and some other items in which the government does not participate.

Of the remainder, Twin Falls county's share would be $2 million with the other $3 million or more having to be raised in bond elections in the participating counties. Twin Falls' amount would also have to come from a bond election.

Seizure kills Nikita

MOSCOW (UPI) — Former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, who rose from a peasant background to loosen the chains of Stalinism in the Soviet Union and play cold war brinkmanship in the world, died Saturday of a heart attack. He was 77.

In death as in the last seven years of his life, Khrushchev was relegated to the status of an unperson by the Soviet Union's current rulers who ousted him in 1964 from the leadership he had shared with others and then held alone for 11 years after Stalin's death in 1953.

There was no immediate announcement from the Kremlin of his death, which was confirmed by friends. The friends said Khrushchev would be buried at noon (5 a.m. EDT) Monday in Moscow's Novodevichy cemetery, an apollitical graveyard that ranks second in prestige to the Kremlin Wall.

Irish battle anew

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Roman Catholics and Protestants fought in the streets Saturday, exchanging gunfire in two separate incidents, a British army source said.

The incidents were the most serious between minority Catholics and majority Protestants in six months. Recently the battles have been directed at British soldiers attempting to quell the disorder.

In Dublin, a spokesman for the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) said the leader of the IRA's militant provisional wing, Joe Cahill, had gone into hiding and would soon return to Belfast. Cahill went to Dublin earlier this week after having been barred from the United States, where he had gone on a fund-raising mission.

The IRA is seeking to force the unification of the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland, which is a province of Britain.

There were gun shots in the Ardoyne area shortly after noon Saturday when Roman Catholics first tossed nail bombs into a Protestant area and then began throwing stones, an army spokesman said. One civilian was wounded in the shoulder and hospitalized.

In the second incident three miles away, two persons were injured when a hurled bomb exploded at the junction of Short Strand and Raven Hill Road, a border-between-Catholic and Protestant areas. A child and an adult were hit by gunfire during street fighting that followed the explosion, the army said. All four were hospitalized.

The British drove the battlers apart.

Salmon inferno rages on

RIGGINS (UPI) — Firefighters battled all day Saturday against the largest fire in the forest service's northwest region this year.

Bob Adams, Nez Perce national forest dispatcher, said fire crews hoped to bring the 2,000 acre fire under control by 10 a.m. today.

The blaze is located on the northern bank of the Salmon River about nine miles east of here.

Adams said some 500 men are working to contain and control the fire, believed to be man-caused.

The fire began Thursday evening near the Salmon River Road and by Friday had swept through a grassy area roughly two miles wide and one mile deep.

The construction zone was the scene of numerous accidents, and several fatalities as motorists speeding west along the Interstate link out of Jerome apparently failed to see markers and signs warning of the end of the divided highway.

The completed segment of Interstate 80 gives motorists an uninterrupted stretch of high-speed divided highway from Wendell east past Burley, nearly to American Falls.

Work will start soon on the six-mile stretch from Wendell to a point six miles east of Tuttle.

Give blood Monday, 2-7 p.m., Legion Hall

Filer blood donor helped

FILER — Wayne B. Klous, 615 Yakima St., Filer began giving blood through the American Red Cross program more than 10 years ago but it could be some time before he gets his six-gallon pin although he is just one pint away.

This past January, he planned to donate his 24th pint of blood and receive a six-gallon donor pin but instead he underwent heart surgery and used Red Cross blood donations to the extent of about four pints.

Klous is now back in the classroom at the Filer High School where he teaches crafts, art and industrial arts. He has been teaching there the past 18 years.

As a result of the heart surgery and following complications, he missed one semester of school and is working on a trial basis at the present time. If he becomes over-tired his physician has told him, he will have to give up work for a time.

In 1967 Klous began having difficulties which were diagnosed as stomach trouble. Early in 1970 he suffered an attack and it was found blood vessels serving the heart were blocked.

Unable to afford costly heart surgery, he waited until he could obtain assistance through the Veterans Administration and was admitted to the VA Hospital, Palo Alto, Calif., March 4. He underwent a double coronary arterial by-pass operation in which about 18 inches of blood vessel was removed from his right leg and used to replace improperly functioning vessels serving the heart.

Two days after the surgery, he suffered a heart attack, and later developed serious problems with clotting and also contracted hepatitis. Klous said this is one problem which Red Cross officials could help overcome by testing the donors for hepatitis which is transmitted through the blood. Persons might suffer a light case and not be aware of it. If so, they should not donate blood, he said.

Klous says he walks one full mile a day and sometimes more and at the present time has more difficulty with his leg where the vein was removed than from the heart surgery.

He frequently calls on the boys to help lift a heavy mold in crafts classes and frequently sits down for a rest.

He said he believes he will be able to continue his teaching career uninterrupted, unless additional complications arise.

Klous said while he was donating blood during the past few years he had never thought of needing it himself, but throughout his surgery doctors held about 14 pints of his type of blood in reserve in case they were needed.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be set up in the American Legion Hall from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. with a quota of 150 pints asked from Twin Falls and surrounding area.

Airport to create tax unit

The county attorney has ruled that this tax would be assessed against Twin Falls County as soon as the authority was established by successful vote and would not have to be held up until a later date. The assessment, to be levied each year, would find commissioners powerless to disapprove it," Chancey said.

He said qualified voters "should, of course, follow their own feelings in this matter."

"However, so far as I am concerned, I do not see why taxpayers of Twin Falls County should be saddled with additional taxes for an airport we do not really need. The Twin Falls City-County Airport meets all federal requirements for a jet airport, it is entirely adequate now and will be for years to come, and it can easily be maintained by a city and county partnership at far less cost than would be required if we have to pay the lion's share of cost for a regional airport authority," Chancey said.

Burglars hit pair T.F. firms

TWIN FALLS — Burglaries of two lumber supply companies were being investigated by Twin Falls police Saturday.

Officers said someone removed a section of steel siding from the Plyway Co. building, 124 Blue Lakes Blvd. S. sometime Thursday night and gained entry to the front office where they removed $11.24 in small change from the cash register. The key to a soft drink machine was also taken.

At the Boise Cascade Corp., 222 Gem Ave., entry was gained by pulling a double rear door open. Here about $6 in change was taken from a drawer. The money was from a soft drink machine and keys to the drawer and machine were also taken, officers said.

The walleye pike spawns shortly after the ice melts in the spring of the year.

Recovering

ART, CERAMICS and leather work at the Filer High School will be taught again this year by Wayne B. Klous. Now starting his 19th year at Filer, he is recovering from heart surgery with the help of blood donations from the Red Cross program.

Airport authority said costly in T.F.

Based on a $2 million bond issue at 6 per cent and if the entire debt was amortized over the proposed 30 years with annual payments, it would take $145,297 a year to pay off the debt with a total payback of $4,358,934 for the original $2 million debt. If the 30-year payment was made by paying the interest yearly and not reducing the principal until the end of that period, then the interest would come to $3,600,000 or a total of $5,600,000 including the original $2 million.

With the same $2 million bond issue at 5 per cent (which Leonard said is probably lower than the interest at which such bonds would sell) the yearly payment would come to $130,102 with a total payback of $3,903,086. If the interest only was paid annually and the $2 million retired at the end of the bonding period, the total would be approximately $5 million, he said.

At the same time Leonard said a minimum of $60,000 a year would be required of Twin Falls county as an additional payment on a one mill levy assessment which the regional airport board would levy as a taxing unit. All other counties in the authority would also be required to pay this special one mill levy in addition to bond principal and interest.

"There has been so many misunderstandings circulated about this proposed project," Leonard said, "I thought it was about time the facts of the financial possibilities were put before the taxpayers."

BUHL — A thief took advantage of an empty office to steal an $86.91 paycheck from the Green Giant Co. dispatcher's office Saturday afternoon, according to Buhl Police.

The check was made out to Buhl truck driver Larry Spradling, drawn on the Twin Falls Bank and Trust, and signed by Spradling's employer Brad Remer.

Police said the company dispatcher was directing truck drivers and was out of the office for a short time. The check was missing on his return.

Ruling may boost Gem fund change bid

BOISE (UPI) — The California Supreme Court decision on school financing may give impetus to a controversial proposal in Idaho to change the basic method of funding public education.

The California court held it unconstitutional to use local property taxes to pay for public schools and Saturday two of the three state legislators who helped work out the Idaho plan indicated a move away from the use of the local taxes was one of the reasons behind the plan.

Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft, D-Tuttle, who, along with Reps. John A. Edwards, R-Council, and Robert Haakenson, D-Coeur d'Alene, saw the bill pass the House but linger in the Senate, said the California ruling could "certainly be some ammunition for us."

"As long as we are defending primarily on property taxes, and we have these problems of inequities from one county another, it's difficult to make any change in the school formula," Ravenscroft said.

"I think the net impact of that California decision would be to remove local property tax completely out of the financing of schools and place it either on a state property tax level or on the other forms of state taxation, primarily sales and income taxes."

Edwards too agreed the California decision could have great meaning for Idaho, particularly if the decision is taken to and upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Basically, the measure would have moved 75 per cent of the support of schools to state-controlled taxes, which would have been a combination of sales, income and state controlled property taxes. The other 25 per cent of the support would have come from the local base and would have covered the costs of the buildings and administration.

That, of course, would have still meant some property tax money for the schools, but Ravenscroft said that was a matter of "philosophy."

"Personally, I think if we're going to have local control of schools, then the local people ought to pay for the buildings and they ought to hire their own administrators and work with them."

Edwards said another problem facing the state in any move away from local property taxes was the constitutional limit of 10 mills on state property tax.

"Unless we get a constitutional amendment, we're going to have to go to the general fund and that's going to make quite a little impact," Edwards said.

Another problem, he said, was that if schools are funded from the state's general fund it would probably mean state control, which he called a "bad feature."

Soda sipper

SIPPING CUP of soda while visiting American exhibition in Moscow's Sokolniki Park in 1959 is then Premier Nikita Khrushchev, who died Saturday after third heart attack. Then premier, Khrushchev was talking with then Vice President Richard M. Nixon during Moscow visit. Pair were later noted for "kitchen debate" in Moscow. (UPI)

Nikita clowning, acted ferocious

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nikita S. Khrushchev's behavior on his visits to the United States alternated genial clowning with such flashes of ferocity as his shoe-thumping rudeness at the United Nations.

Khrushchev, who died in Moscow Saturday, came to this country twice, for a nationwide tour in 1959 and as a U.N. delegate in 1960. As a security measure, he was required to remain in Manhattan during the 1960 visit.

The 1959 tour began in New York, where his activities included a trip to the home of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt in Hyde Park, and a U.N. speech in which he unveiled a sweeping disarmament plan.

He flew to Los Angeles, where he was coolly received by Mayor Norris Poulson and became involved in a capitalism-vs.-communism argument with Spyros P. Skouras of Twentieth Century-Fox films.

Frowns And Smiles

Khrushchev, already nettled because security officials would not let him visit Disneyland, responded to this reception with an anti-American speech and a threat to pick up his bodyguards and go home.

Everything was smiles again the next day, after he had whistle-stopped his way up the California coast and had been warmly welcomed in Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo and San Francisco.

Khrushchev told San Francisco's Mayor George Christopher that he welcomed discussion of "our opposing ideologies ... (because) it is in argument that the truth is born."

Returning east, the Soviet leader stopped off in Des Moines and was treated to his first hot dog. He reacted with delight.

Visits Garst Farm

"We have beaten you to the moon (Russia had just landed an unmanned rocket), but you have beaten us in sausage-making," he told officials of a meat-packing plant.

Khrushchev made a side trip to Coon Rapids, Iowa, to discuss the relative merits of U.S. and Russian corn-planting with Roswell Garst, an American corn grower he had met in Russia.

Security precautions for the tour had been relaxed, and newsmen swarmed over the Garst farm so thickly they had to be chased away by Garst employes and police.

Meets Castro

Khrushchev ended the 1959 tour in Washington, where he conferred with President Eisenhower before flying home.

The premier's call in 1960 for a U.N. summit meeting on disarmament and other world problems drew an extraordinary number of world leaders to New York.

Khrushchev was in top form, dashing up to Harlem to greet Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, popping out on balconies at the Soviet U.N. mission to talk to reporters and holding impromptu press conferences in such places as the driveway of the rented Soviet mansion in Glen Cove, N.Y.

But it is his behavior on the floor of the General Assembly that is most widely remembered. He heckled speakers, including British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, and pounded his desk with his fists when speeches of which he disapproved were applauded by other members.

When Philippine delegate Lorenzo Sumulong took the floor to denounce Soviet colonialism in eastern Europe, Khrushchev registered his disapproval by taking off his shoe and pounding the desk with it.

The shoe-pounding incident and the later heckling of U.S. delegate Francis Wilcox by Roman's Eduard Mezinescu started such an uproar that General Assembly President Frederick H. Boland broke his gavel trying to restore order.

Israeli gunners down Egypt plane

Israeli gunners shot down an Egyptian war plane that buzzed their Suez Canal positions Saturday, the Israeli national radio announced. It was the first plane reported down since the cease-fire began 13 months ago.

A military source in Tel Aviv said Israeli troops along the waterway were expected to go on increased alert because of possible Egyptian retaliation.

Even before the plane was shot down Lt. Gen. Haim Bar-Lev, Israeli chief of staff, had said "in my view there is a possibility that Egypt will renew the fighting."

Israel Broadcasting, the national station, said the plane was one of two Sukhoi 7 fighter-bombers that were fired on when they passed over Israeli defense positions at a height of 330 feet in an apparent photo reconnaissance mission.

The plane flew two miles back into Egyptian territory before crashing, the broadcast said. It said no pilot was seen bailing out. The incident occurred six miles south of Port Said on the northern end of the 102-mile canal.

Israel had reported 39 previous Egyptian overflights and on 16 occasions said the planes were fired at. Saturday's announcement was the first report of a plane being hit, however.

The 14 members of the Arab League met in Cairo Saturday to resolve differences among themselves and to produce a joint anti-Israeli policy.

League Secretary General Abdel Khalek Hassouna urged the group to take a united stand in the U.N. General Assembly and told them "your failure to meet at this time last year led to a division among Arab countries at the United Nations."

British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home is due to arrive in Cairo Sunday night for a three-day visit to discuss the Middle East.

Allegation on drugs unfounded

SAIGON (UPI)—Charges by a U.S. congressman that a South Vietnamese general is a narcotics kingpin have been found by a government investigation to have no substance, Vietnamese military sources said Saturday.

The Saigon department of defense investigating team reported to President Nguyen Van Thieu that it was unable to uncover evidence to support allegations of drug-running against Lt. Gen. Ngo Dzu, whose military command embraces the Central highland.

The two-month probe into charges made by Rep. Robert Steele, D-Conn., last July that Dzu was a major trafficker in drugs included a thorough examination of intelligence information supplied by the U.S. embassy in Saigon.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said they had been informed of the findings but had no other comment to make.

Steele and Rep. Morgan Murphy Jr., D-Ill., returning from a Southeast Asian tour investigating drug problems, reported also to Congress that as many as 16 per cent of American troops in Vietnam were using heroin.

Dzu declared he was innocent and told newsmen that Steele had been misinformed by persons out to have him removed from his command.

Strikers idle plant

WARREN, Ohio. (UPI)—A wildcat strike by a United Auto Workers local shut down a General Motors Corp. plant at nearby Lordstown Saturday, idling 10,000 workers and halting production of the Chevrolet Vega.

The walkout by local 1714 began early Thursday when strikers wearing masks and paper bags over their heads, set up picket lines at the firm's Fisher fabricating division to protest the firing of the union steward.

The workers said they would not return to their jobs unless they were guaranteed amnesty for their part in the strike.

About Travel

Once more some citizens of the state are critical of the Governor and his travels. We do not side with them.

These complaints that Idaho's chief executives travel too much are just not so.

We can remember Governor Samuelson being critical of the former governor and then turning right around to travel more than ever. Now Governor Andrus is being accused of "running" here and there. He is traveling more than Samuelson did.

But this is not the point. A governor, in these times, cannot put himself behind a desk and stay there. He must know what's going on elsewhere. He must learn by association. This fact is true in the business world and it just has to be true in the political work world.

Governor Andrus is now in Puerto Rico for the National Governor's Conference. He and four members of his staff were flown to Miami in a four-engine Idaho Air National Guard plane. The Air National Guard crews must practice, so they might just as well haul the governor someplace as to travel alone. And the Governor should attend these things.

We, in Idaho, have many problems other than the travels of the Governor. We would suggest that those critical of such travel turn their energy toward something else — something of more benefit.

War Crimes

Not many people are aware of the fact, but investigation into crimes against humanity committed during Germany's 1933-45 Nazi era is still being pushed — by Germans.

At the Central Office for Discovery and Prosecution of National Socialist Crimes in Ludwigsburg, more than two dozen prosecuting attorneys are at work sifting old evidence and turning up new evidence, reports the West German Information Office in New York.

Because the Federal Republic's parliament in Bonn modified the statute of limitations to extend the period during which Nazi crimes may be brought to light and prosecuted, the Ludwigsburg staff will probably be active until 1980. It will remain technically possible for accused criminals to undergo trial up to the year 2000.

Legal experts say it is unlikely that mass murders and other major atrocities are yet to be uncovered, however.

For one thing, many of the criminals have died. Senior officials responsible for the worst crimes are in their 60s or 70s, if they survive, and often are not of sound enough health to stand trial.

But the great problem in recent Nazi-crime trials has been the fading of memories, both of the accused and the accusers. After more than a quarter of a century, many of those who were in concentration camps can hardly remember the ghastly details, which would seem to be a blessing. Frequently, two eyewitnesses will give widely differing versions of the same event, putting a trial judge in a difficult position since German law, like Anglo-Saxon, works on the principle that a person is presumed innocent until proven guilty.

Another factor is that many survivors of concentration camps have pushed their painful memories below the level of consciousness — in fact, have had to do so in order to go on living.

Prosecutor Adalbert Ruckerl, director of the Ludwigsburg office, estimates that some 40 per cent of former concentration camp inmates, most of them living abroad, especially in the United States, are no longer prepared to come forward as witnesses because of the ordeal it would mean for them.

MR. SPECTATOR

And The Band Played

If Jack Ramsey, one of the officials over at the Idaho First National Bank in Twin Falls, popped a couple of buttons off his shirt the other day he had a good reason.

All was quiet in the bank — with just the usual activities going on — when things began to happen. In walked the United States Marine band. They started to play and, it developed, the program was a special one for Ramsey.

It seems that he was a Marine Corps officer during World War II and has maintained his interest in the corps since those days. Recently, he was instrumental in getting a Marine Corps office located here.

* So the special program was just for him — and he was beaming.

Like we said — shirt buttons could well have been flying everywhere!

Mr. Spectator has just passed another birthday. In fact we went by it yesterday. We went by it so quiet like that none of our friends (the two or three we still have left) even said anything about it. In fact we looked the other way ourselves. We've come to the conclusion that birthdays are for kids!

Received note from friends we met a couple of years ago while on a trailer trip down the Oregon coast. They write to say they are now living in Paradise — California, that is. They said it was a "little" town of 20,000 or so souls in Northern California. Now, if we just knew someone living in Hell Colorado we would have it made. That would be quite a trip from one place to the other — although we are not sure which direction we would be traveling.

We are busy tumbling away on more rocks to keep up with the requests we are receiving. So if your requested ocean "tranquil" rock does not get to you right away, just hang on. It might be a few days late but you will get it.

Animal Cages For Humans

Policeman's widow in London says she's through crying now. Now, says Mrs. Maureen Richardson, she's going to make his death count for something.

Now she is crusading to revive hanging.

Determined to rally the nation to restore hanging to the law books.

She says, "If our country were at war nobody would object to killing the enemy. Our country is at war with criminals; kill them."

One hundred years ago you and I would have seen mental patients confined to dungeon walls and left there to worsen and die, and you and I would not have liked it but we would not have known what to do about it. Surely those criminally inclined could not be released to menace society.

In the century since, knowledge, therapy and drugs have emptied the dungeons and restored most of the mentally ill to liberty and useful activity.

Today our prisons are what our "madhouses" were 100 years ago, animal cages for humans. Indeed, 60 of our nation's prisons date back to the 18th century — 25 were in use before the Uncivil War.

In most of our most "modern" prisons, fledgling lawbreakers are hardened by homosexual rape, beatings, rioting.

President Nixon has asked Atty. Gen. Mitchell to effect prison reform, with emphasis on rehabilitation, particularly of the young offender. The President says that the "public deserves to be protected from the criminal who comes out more dangerous than when he went in."

Ronald Goldfarb, Washington attorney who researched penal reform, thinks we should "tear down our prisons and start over."

He says, "In the great number of cases we would do better to take the billion dollars we spend warehousing these men and do almost anything else."

Specifically, he recommends a "victim compensation plan" for the 80 per cent of all crimes which involve stolen property.

Instead of trying to punish the criminal by paying his room and board for X number of years, leave him "outside" but make him work and pay back what he stole plus a substantial penalty.

Great Britain and Sweden have tried "victim compensation programs," six of our United States are beginning to.

That leaves the 20 per cent of other kinds of criminals — the violent ones — necessarily segregated. But surely, until we are able to learn and apply a remedy for their disturbed brains, we can devise a form of secure confinement which is at least safe for the inmate.

Otherwise, as Dr. Karl Menninger says, "We commit the more serious crime of punishment."

The chief of California's prison system, Raymond Proconier, says "outside agitators who have been sponsoring campus violence now are agitating the prison population," resulting in the recent pox of intra-prison violence.

While men of conscience look the other way agitators inflame legitimate grievances until they explode.

Perhaps what's needed is a 20th century Charles Dickens whose gifted pen turned Britain's debtor prisons inside out — and emptied them.

Viet Assembly

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Walling has been loud here since Gen. Duong Van Minh and then Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky announced they would not run against Nguyen Van Thieu for the presidency of South Vietnam.

Accusations have come thick and fast — that South Vietnam is not ready for democracy, that we are forcing a system on the people they do not want, that elections in South Vietnam are a farce anyway.

Rubbish. The failure of any major candidate to run against Thieu is serious. And friends expert in Asian politics agree this could mean critical political instability and such a plummeting of U.S. congressional confidence that South Vietnam would not get the economic backing it needs to survive.

But while a hullabaloo has beenraging over the presidential election — South Vietnam in July and August this year has gone through two elections far more important than the presidential race to the future of democracy and stability in that country.

These were local village elections for an important portion of the nation and for the lower house of the national legislature.

My Vietnamese friends say if there is a strong local government and a strong national legislature, the basis for a viable government is set, regardless of who is president.

So far as can be told now these elections have been highly successful — successful in the sense that there have been candidates representing every shade of non-Communist opinion and representing every group of any size and importance in South Vietnam except the Communists. Strongly antiwar groups and firmly anti-Thieu candidates were well-represented.

The presidential race has obscured the fact that for the first time a great many men of ability ran for the National Assembly, some 1,240 candidates for 150 seats.

As in the United States, ballot stuffing and some illegal pressures on voters took place. But the first information to arrive here indicates that despite this, the men who will compose the next National Assembly will be markedly more intelligent, more independent and more capable than their predecessors.

The old assembly was composed of men of not very high caliber. Most good men declined to run the last time. Some believed the lower house would have no power against a strong president.

My Vietnamese political friends are convinced times have changed. They tell me respect for what the National Assembly can do has increased

On Busing

WASHINGTON — Anent Chief Justice Warren Burger's word of caution to judges handling school busing cases: Don't kid yourself. There will always be those racists determined to keep black kids in an inferior place, and there will always be the professional, exhibitionistic "liberals" who use civil rights to get attention.

But Burger has injected a little judicial common sense into the busing controversy that the moderate majority in America could and should employ to force a logical solution to the problem.

In a one-man opinion — the full Supreme Court is in recess — Burger in effect told lower court judges not to be ridiculous in their school desegregation orders, or at least to read the Supreme Court's April decision a little more carefully. That decision, Burger noted accurately, does not require "racial balance" in every blessed public school in the country.

What Burger meant was that judges should not assume that because a city's total black pupil population is 20 per cent of the total enrollment it is therefore mandatory that busing be employed to make certain that a neighborhood in that city with only 1 per cent black pupils in its school round up enough black children to increase the black percentage to 20 per cent.

Quite aside from its silliness, such busing is a mathematical impossibility. With 80 per cent of the pupils white, how could even the Rev. Ralph Abernathy manage to make every school in a given town 20 per cent black?

Anyway, the Court's April decision, widely interpreted as giving the green light to wholesale busing, actually did nothing of the kind. In Swann v. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Board of Education, the Court unanimously and with utter clarity ruled that "the contingeously. They do not favor Thieu (or Minh or Ky either), but they believe with a vigorous Senate and lower house, Vietnam's government will progress.

They are determined, however, that this be Thieu's last term and that the next president will be a civilian.

ART BUCHWALD

Reason Why

WASHINGTON — The "Why Are We in Vietnam Committee," otherwise known as WAWIVNC, held its monthly meeting at the State Department last week, and for the first time there was an air of pessimism in the room. As everyone knows, WAWIVNC was set up many years ago to provide Presidents of the United States with solid reasons for American involvement in Vietnam.

Some of the reasons the committee has come up with in the past are:

A. To halt Communist aggression from the North.

B. To let Red China know we mean business.

C. To prevent Southeast Asian countries from falling like dominoes.

D. To keep American boys from having to fight on the shores of Hawaii.

E. To prove to Hanoi we are not a helpless giant.

F. To make sure the South Vietnamese people can choose their own leaders in democratic elections.

This last one was everyone's favorite. President Nixon kept repeating it in every speech about Indochina. Secretary of State Rogers, Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker in Saigon and Ambassador David Bruce in Paris all said the same thing: "The United States wants nothing for itself. It is only in South Vietnam to assure that the people there can decide their own fate."

You can imagine what happened at the WAWIVNC meeting when they were informed that President Thieu would be the only one on the ballot in the presidential elections on October 3.

The chairman of the committee said, "Gentlemen, I have just heard from President Nixon. He is very disappointed that no one has chosen to run against President Thieu and is once again hard put to explain what the United States is doing in Vietnam."

"Well, it isn't our fault that Vice President Ky wouldn't run against Thieu, or that Gen. Minh bowed out of the race weeks ago," an assistant secretary of public affairs said. "How did we know that Thieu would rig the elections so badly that even the opposition would see through him?" a USIA psychological warfare expert said.

"Thieu should have warned Ky and Minh that they either had to run against him in democratic elections or they would be shot," a CIA man said.

"That's not the point, gentlemen," the chairman of the committee said. "The fact is that Thieu is running alone. This is not our concern except that since it's now difficult for President Nixon to defend the American presence in Vietnam to guarantee free elections, we have to find him another reason to explain why we are still there. Now think."

"Suppose," an AID man said, "the President says the reason we are in Vietnam is to protect the American dollar?"

"I don't follow you."

"Well, we all know every high official in the South Vietnamese government has a secret Swiss bank account where he has stashed away millions of dollars. Now, if these officials traded their dollars in Switzerland for marks or French francs while the dollar is floating, it could hurt us badly."

"But as long as we remain in South Vietnam these officials will have faith in us and will keep their dollars in Switzerland."

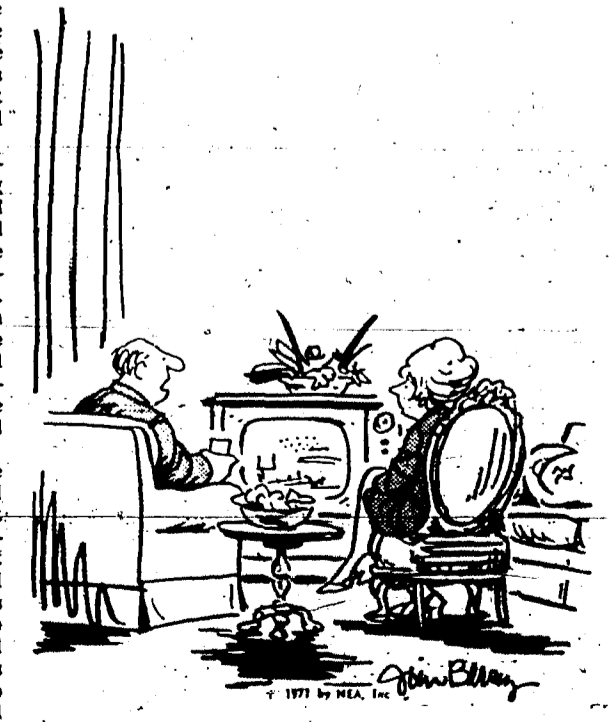

"It's too complicated," the chairman said. "I want something simple."

"Suppose we say we're in Vietnam because we must protect freedom wherever it is found," a Pentagon man said. There was dead silence in the room.

Finally the chairman said, "There has to be a reason that no one has yet thought of."

A State Department man scribbled something on a sheet of paper and then raised his hand. "This is it. The President must go on television tomorrow night and tell the American people the only reason we are in Vietnam is because it's there."

BERRY'S WORLD

"Would you mind being quiet until football season is over?"

Economic Target

WASHINGTON — As the popular expression goes, you ain't seen nothing yet — in new sweeping economic measures. Under consideration are ideas and proposals, as drastic and far-reaching as the spectacular wage-price freeze, to deal with the persistently excessive unemployment rate — upwards of 5.5 per cent in recent months.

This grievous jobless level is President Nixon's next crucially momentous target. It is his determined intention to cut it by at least one-third by next spring.

That's the emphatic directive given his inner advisers. They have been told plans must be devised that will quickly and effectively put millions of idle on payrolls.

The President wants that dramatic undertaking set in motion by the expiration of the 90-day wage-price freeze.

The inside White House word is that no concepts, theories, formulas or anything else, new or old, are barred to accomplish this objective. The over-riding aim is to massively reduce unemployment in the shortest possible time.

The primary concern is not how it's done but to get it done.

One measure being deliberated is a version of the New Deal's WPA (Works Progress Administration) — under which millions were put to work on a wide range of jobs from raking leaves to painting murals in public buildings, writing plays and staging shows.

As being discussed, workers would be paid prevailing minimum wages of $1.60 to upwards of $2.00 an hour, with the Federal government footing the bill.

The government already is doing that to a limited extent under the recently enacted public service employees law. Under it, an estimated 200,000 will be hired by local authorities. Last Congress, President Nixon vetoed such a bill but signed it this time.

Now apparently he is prepared to extend this policy to the whole range of joblessness.

Of particular concern to President Nixon is providing jobs for Vietnam veterans and youth in general.

He has stressed the urgent importance of that in his talks with advisers and lieutenants. Several "innovative" proposals reportedly are being formulated, but details are unknown.

That there is an impelling reason for the President's concern is forcefully underlined by Sen. Strom Thurmond's blunt demand that "special attention and assistance be given Vietnam veterans in placing them in the job market."

Not only is the South Carolinian a ranking Republican member of the Armed Services Committee, Judiciary Committee and Appropriations Defense Subcommittee, but he is a powerful leader of his party throughout the South. Also, he generally supports the Administration's legislative policies.

It is highly significant, therefore, that Thurmond singled out unemployment among veterans as a pressing problem and sharply called for prompt remedial action.

He minced no words in pinpointing the issue and its magnitude.

"There are 223,000 Vietnam veterans between the age of 20 and 24 who are without jobs," said Thurmond. "This amounts to 13.4 per cent compared with 9 per cent of nonveterans in that age bracket who are not employed. Of those who are 25 to 29 years old, 5.9 per cent of the Vietnam veterans are unemployed, and 4.5 per cent of their non-veteran counterparts are without employment."

"These figures alarm me for several reasons. The stability of a nation's economy is directly related to the employment of its citizens. Such a high percentage of unemployment is always a matter for serious concern. However, the fact that the percentage of unemployment among Vietnam veterans runs higher than the national average shows that rapid and corrective measures should be applied to this particular category immediately."

Economic measure most favored by members of Congress, returned from a month's vacation, is an individual tax cut of some kind — particularly, for low-income brackets.

That's clearly indicated in talks with a wide range of legislators.

In these discussions, they say their mail is heavily in favor of the President's wage-price freeze; also in demands for concrete measures to drastically reduce unemployment and for tax relief. Preferred tax plan among the lawmakers is increasing the minimum standard deduction for low-income families by making an increase in personal exemptions effective as of Jan. 1, 1971, instead of Jan. 1, 1972, as proposed by President Nixon. Under the existing law, this tax break does not become operative until Jan. 1, 1973.

By making the exemption retroactive to January of this year, taxpayers could claim a $750 deduction on returns due next April 15. This would directly benefit millions in the middle-income brackets.

Most legislators also strongly indicated they would like to see this exemption raised to $1,000.

Significantly, Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the powerful Ways and Means Committee, is for that. He holds it would be an immediate and decisive stimulant to the national economy.

Illustrative of the mail received by members of Congress are the following extracts from all sections of the country:

"Make the wage-price freeze stick until inflation and other maladjustments are dealt with effectively. The question is whether the likes of Meany, Bridges and others like them will run our country. Now is the time to find out. The people are wholeheartedly with the President if he has the guts to make his program stick."

"I am a salaried worker who lost financially due to inflation and tax increases while union members have enjoyed generous pay increases. I urge that the wage freeze be continued for a long time to ensure that inflation is curbed."

"At last, a year later, but it's all to the good. The big question is whether Congress has the intestinal fortitude to stand up against the irresponsible labor leaders."

The President's price, wage and rent controls are superb. By all means support him.

"With Congress back in session, President Nixon doubtless will submit to you and your colleagues proposals to revive the economy, curb inflation and increase employment. I urge you to do everything possible to support him and to speed these measures to quick enactment."

That's why in 1969 more than $100 million was spent on aspirin and nearly $350 million for combinations of aspirin with other pain relievers, and the figures keep rising. The majority of these medications is used to fight headache. Ironically, some headaches are actually caused by overdoses of aspirin.

"Headache is probably the commonest symptom about which a patient complains to his doctor," says Dr. Arnold Friedman, a neurologist-psychiatrist who is chief of the Headache Unit at New York's Montefiore Hospital.

Some people have mild headaches every once in a while, he explains. Among other things, these can come from hunger, tension, stress, fatigue or eating certain foods. The individual can usually deal with these occasional headaches by resting, eating, or avoiding the food or activity that brings them on.

Perhaps the most important fact about headache, according to the U.S. Public Health Service is that it "can be the symptom — perhaps the first warning — of a serious condition which probably could be controlled if detected early."

The PHS warns against "masking" or removing the warning day after day with painkillers. Aspirin, for example, "drops a mask between a headache and its cause." Because of this covering up of a recurring symptom, "you may pass the point of easy control."

PHS warns in their pamphlet "Headaches—Hope Through Research."

Some of the types of headaches that are alarm signals for prompt and thorough medical checkup are:

- Sudden, severe headache "out of the blue."
- Headache associated with fever.

What To Believe

WASHINGTON (NEA) — With the first 1972 presidential primary just six months away and the candidates back on the sawdust trail, we need a little readers' guide to politics. Purpose: to serve as a corrective to the considerable volume of nonsense sure to be uttered and written between now and then.

First off, watch out for stuff that talks glibly about the prospect the 1972 Democratic convention may "deadlock."

Politics being an uncertain business, of course a deadlock is possible. Yet it is highly unlikely. In the 20 national conventions the two major parties have held from 1932 on, 16 were decided on the first ballot. Two were settled in three ballots, one in four, one in six. Only the four-ballot affair, Franklin Roosevelt's first nomination in 1932, could by any stretch be rated a deadlock. Last real one: 1924.

You'll head a lot of gumbating about how the 1972 Democratic convention is going to be "wide open." If that phrase has any value, it means that, at convention time, a lot of fellows still will have a chance to be nominated for president. Not so you could notice.

It is true that the process by which delegates will be selected will probably be more open than ever, if the McGovern-Fraser commission's reform guidelines are followed.

One of the offshoots of the "reform" fervor, however, is that there will be more presidential primaries than ever — 22 states and the District of Columbia. There will also be a record number of state primaries (10) in which the voters' verdicts will have legally-binding effect on the delegates. Altogether, some 815 delegate votes will thus be firmly tied up in advance in 1972.

In another three states, primary laws provide that delegate candidates can, if they wish, bind themselves legally to a particular presidential choice. The potential here is 59 votes.

So, conceivably, a maximum of 874 delegate votes could be bound by convention time. That's nearly a third of the total 3,000 votes.

Furthermore, potentially another 603 delegates could reach Miami Beach with some kind of moral commitment to a particular candidate. At this writing, four states specify that delegate candidates can indicate their presidential preference on the primary ballot, though they are not legally bound to support him. In another state, Pennsylvania, (182 votes), delegate prospects can indicate intent to support the presidential winner (whoever he may be) in their respective congressional districts.

Before balloting time next spring, a few more primary states may provide delegate candidates with the option to show preference.

The commission also encourages such declarations of preference in the 28 states where the selection will be in state conventions.

Now, some 15 of the 28 convention states presently plan to hold their sessions sometime after June 1, 1972, with most probably after the vital June 6 California primary — 271 delegates on a winner-take-all basis. That's not far from 20 per cent of what a candidate will need (1,509) to be nominated in July.

History suggests that the delegate prospects in those 15 states will be deeply impressed by what happens in California (not to mention in earlier key primaries). They are likely to fall heavily in line behind the emergent convention winner. By July an avalanche could be in the making. Widely publicized delegate polls may underscore the thunderous sound and make the opening of the convention doors seem almost an afterthought.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

About Bell's Palsy

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is Bell's palsy a relatively common disorder? My niece, 34, has had it for four years.

Discussion of symptoms, treatment and chances of recovery will be greatly appreciated. — O. G. L.

Bell's palsy affects the facial nerve, drawing the face out of normal alignment. It can force the mouth out of shape, which is quite disturbing, appearance-wise, and it can interfere to some extent with the way you speak. It can at times pull the upper part of the face enough so one eye may not close tightly and must, during that time, be protected from dust and drying.

Onset of this facial paralysis is usually quite sudden — such as overnight. The cause can be exposure to cold, infection, diabetes, tumors involving the facial nerve. Fortunately recovery occurs in 80 to 85 per cent of cases, within six to 12 months, and sometimes, happily, faster than that.

Prospects of recovery can be gauged by electrical tests on the nerve. When recovery is slow, it can be hastened by surgery on the nerve canal.

One must be sure that the paralysis is Bell's palsy, but being sure of what you are dealing with is a rule that applies to all sorts of health problems. Naturally.

But when Bell's palsy has persisted for four years, it raises the question of whether the patient is one of the 15 to 20 per cent who will have some permanent paralysis of the side of the face (the ailment being one that characteristically affects one side).

In such a case, careful evaluation of the case by an ear specialist or a neurologist would be in order. Treatment to be effective should be started soon after onset of the paralysis. No doubt your niece has had such treatment.

With the trouble having continued as long as it has, I can't make any predictions for complete recovery, but if she hasn't had expert evaluation of her particular case, she should.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: An X-ray of my right foot did not disclose either a fracture or dislocation, but an incidental finding was a hallux valgus of the great toe. What causes this and can anything be done? Does anything you eat make it worse? — Mrs. O.E.D.

Hallux valgus means that the big toe, instead of being straight, points toward the outer side of the foot. If mild, the condition can be more apparent in an X-ray than from just a look at your feet.

Causes are tight, narrow, pointed shoes, tight hose, or some fault in the mechanics of the foot.

Whether anything needs to be done depends on the extent of the deformity, so have a podiatrist or orthopedist evaluate the condition. Diet has nothing to do with it. Bunion is usually associated with hallux valgus.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do you think baking soda is harmful to take for sour stomach? I take it frequently. At times I also spit up a real bitter liquid and have a burning sensation in my throat. What do you think causes this? — J.E.R.

Depends on what you mean by a "sour stomach." A very occasional pinch of soda isn't going to be harmful, but it's so easy for some folks to get the "soda habit," which turns into a sort of roller-coaster. Soda combats stomach acids; nature responds by producing more acid, and it becomes a vicious circle.

From the little you've told me, I'd suspect a hiatal hernia, with nothing wrong with your stomach except that its natural acids escape upward. Best see your doctor for a reliable diagnosis.

To learn of the many factors that can be involved in the treatment of hiatal hernia, which concerns the esophagus, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for a copy of his booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope, and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

A Complaint

Editor, Times-News: (Editor's note: Although the name of the doctor involved was in the letter as received from Mr. Beck, it was removed before publication because we were unable to contact the doctor for his side of the incident).

It is surprising if not shocking to see the modernization that has taken place in the mall, yet our own hospital cannot cope with their responsibilities on a 24-hour basis.

On September 6, at approximately 4 a.m., I awoke with sharp pains in my chest and it was hard to breathe. I drove to the hospital. No doctor on duty. Met the nurse who called Dr. (name deleted) who was on call. She described my symptoms to him. I was then asked to talk to him. He asked me if I knew it was just after 4 a.m. and that there was nothing he could do for me at that time in the morning. He advised me to be admitted to the hospital. He was very reluctant to come out and check me. I informed him in the letter as received from Mr. Beck, it was removed before publication because we were unable to contact the doctor for his side of the incident).

Approximately 20 minutes later he arrived. The first thing the doctor informed me again was there was nothing he could do for me and that there was no facilities at the hospital at that time of morning to determine or check for the cause. I left the hospital without any treatment. The nurse had taken my blood pressure (very high) and temperature which was high.

I guess the citizens of Twin Falls will have to schedule their illness to meet the hospital's time tables or die waiting. The writer has never experienced a more unethical approach by a licensed doctor. I am waiting to see the bill on this visit. The only visit I will make there again will be dead on arrival.

Prayer For Today

Oh, God, it really scares me the way things are changing so fast. People are changing, too. What do you think of all the changes? I don't like a lot of them. I know that things aren't necessarily good just because they are old, but they aren't good just because they are new either. Help us to know which changes are good and not to be tempted to change too much. Help us to do as you suggested: "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good."

Anyone Never Had A Headache?

By DAVID HENDIN
NEA Science Editor

- Headache associated with convulsions.
- Headache accompanied by confusion or lessening of consciousness.
- Headache following a blow on the head.
- Headache associated with local pain in the eye, ear or elsewhere.
- Headaches in older persons previously free of them.
- Recurring headaches in children.
- Headaches that interfere with normal living.

Dr. Friedman estimates that 10 to 12 per cent of the people in this country suffer from migraine headaches, but only about half of them seek help. He defines the migraine as "periodic, recurring headaches which usually, but not always affect one-half of the head, and are associated with loss of appetite, nausea and are sometimes preceded by double vision, flashing lights. Family history of migraines may also be a factor."

When an individual who suffers from migraine headaches feels the "aura" of one coming on, he can help relieve the attack by lying down in a dark, quiet room or immediately taking the medications his doctor has prescribed. Other kinds of headaches classified by the Public Health Service are:

- The weekend headache, which "can result from an extra rush to finish Friday work, followed by too much letdown." TO AVOID IT, try easing your schedule before the weekend or holiday and getting up for regular meals on Saturday and Sunday, even though you rest again later. Personality conflicts, smoke, bad ventilation, lack of sleep and too much alcohol are invitations to headache.

• Boredom headache is the other side of the coin. TO AVOID IT, try "activities which provide a moderate change, or a moderate quantity, of complete change."

Perhaps the most important fact about headache, according to the U.S. Public Health Service is that it "can be the symptom — perhaps the first warning — of a serious condition which probably could be controlled if detected early."

The PHS warns against "masking" or removing the warning day after day with painkillers. Aspirin, for example, "drops a mask between a headache and its cause." Because of this covering up of a recurring symptom, "you may pass the point of easy control."

PHS warns in their pamphlet "Headaches—Hope Through Research."

Some of the types of headaches that are alarm signals for prompt and thorough medical checkup are:

- Sudden, severe headache "out of the blue."
- Headache associated with fever.

Million die in long N. Viet flooding

SAIGON (UPI)—Almost three months of severe flooding in North Vietnam has caused the death of one million persons, South Vietnam's government television said Friday night.

Radio Hanoi, although giving no casualty figures, has itself described the flood as the worst disaster in the country's history, surpassing the famine and flood of 1945 which records show killed more than one million.

Radio Hanoi said Friday night in a broadcast monitored here that the ruling secretariat has put emergency measures into effect to combat widespread food and housing shortages and outbreaks of disease.

Radio Hanoi described floodwaters as remaining at dangerously high level and heavily populated Red River delta where most of the nation's food is produced as being one of the most severely affected areas.

Radio Hanoi said Friday, "and where there are many difficulties the government will help in the reconstruction."

MV Gem club wins pair top awards at Seattle

TWIN FALLS — Best in Show Trophy and the Society Plaque were won by the Magic Valley Gem Club during national competition at Seattle, it was announced Saturday.

The winning case consisted of faceted gem stones which were selected from those of Dr. Ellwood T. Rees, Ray Moon and Richard Rees, all Twin Falls; Clifford Jackson, Jay Anderson and Claude Stevens, all Burley; Tom Lucas, Filer; Harry Jennings, Buhl, and Virginia Dotson, Bliss. All are members of the Magic Valley Club. Two of the faceters — Dr. Rees and Jackson — have previously received national trophies, as well as sweepstake trophies for their personal displays. Rex Owings, Boise, won the Junior Sweepstakes Trophy in the Northwest Federation for his faceted gem stones. Dr. Rees, who is president of the Magic Valley Club, said that in order for a person or society to enter the American Federation competition, the society, must first be validated by winning in one of the six other federations.

Criticism brings new programming

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Sharp and unrelenting criticism of television programming for children continues to bring positive results at the networks. This weekend, the new Saturday daytime shows for youngsters will have their debuts, illustrating a more intelligent approach with such entries as "Take A Giant Step" (NBC), "You Are There" (BS) and "Curiosity Shop" (ABC). But that's only part of the upgrading, or, at least, the new and special attention being given to programming for children.

entertainment." New ABC-TV has announced yet another project to be aimed at youngsters—a series of one-hour monthly specials that will be televised weekdays after school hours during the 1972-73 season. The network says the shows will be presented at 4:30 p.m. EDT, "a time when the TV set is accessible to children," and will "contain information that will complement grade school activities and classroom work."

Enrollment up slightly

WENDELL — Overall enrollment in the Wendell School District is up by 13 students, with the high school showing a drop of 12 students, according to Lawrence LaRue, superintendent. There are 330 students in the grade school this year, compared to 308 last year; 124 in junior high, compared to 121 last year, and 243 in the high school, compared to 235 last year.

ABC-TV, for instance, has already said that, as of next season. It will present weekly, one-hour, original movies for youngsters on Saturday mornings. The series will be called "Saturday Morning At The Movies," and the network's programming boss, Martin Starger, says: "It is our purpose, with this series of original films for children, to provide a higher quality of Saturday morning

The programs will be directed chiefly at children between eight and 12 years old, and the range of subjects, says ABC-TV, "will be broad, devoted to areas of literature, science, history, current events, the arts and physical fitness."

HOW THE WEST WAS WON

Nixon policies spark division

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI)—Most of the nation's governors view President Nixon's new economic policy through partisan lenses with Republicans describing it as a political boon and Democrats calling it unfair and loaded with confusion.

Some governors in both parties said it all depends on how the program works. But most Republicans see the policy as a big plus for GOP prospects in 1972 on the all-important economic issue. Many Democrats say it came too late, that they will have to see where it leads or that it is discriminatory.

The governors gave their views in reply to a survey by UPI state capital reporters on the eve of the 63rd National Governors Conference opening at San Juan Sunday and running through Wednesday.

On another political front, the survey turned up no clamor to replace Vice President Spiro T. Agnew with a less controversial running mate for President Nixon in 1972 although Republicans in some Eastern industrial states refused to answer.

Even Democrats were divided. Those from the more conservative states would not suggest that a more liberal nominee for vice president would make Nixon tougher to beat next year.

There was no enthusiasm among Republicans for Secretary of Treasury John B. Connally, still a Texas Democrat and new star of the Nixon cabinet, as a substitute for Agnew. Some said bluntly they wanted a Republican in the No. 2 spot.

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie of Illinois said Connally is "probably acceptable but not especially attractive."

"I would consider him (Connally) an attractive candidate," said Gov. Winfield Dunn of Tennessee, an Agnew supporter. "I would not go so far as to say he is the most desirable candidate."

"The President has to make up his own mind, but I would hope that he could find a Republican of longer lineage," said Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington.

As for Nixon's economic policy, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York called it a "bold, imaginative proposal for updating the structure of our economic system."

Another Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, said "The health of the economy will be the key issue in 1972."

Gov. Francis W. Sargent, Massachusetts Republican, said voluntary wage-price controls were "pivotal to an economic upturn" and that success of the policy was crucial to Nixon's re-election prospects.

On the Democratic side, Gov. Milton J. Shapp of Pennsylvania called the Nixon wage-price freeze "the wrong medicine."

McCloskey sets next trip north

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI)—Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., who just completed a five-day swing through northern New Hampshire, plans to launch later this month another phase in his campaign to defeat President Nixon in the nation's first presidential primary March 7.

McCloskey, an announced candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, toured parts of the state during a long Labor Day weekend. He said he would spend at least another 24 days campaigning in the state.

"I am aiming for nothing less than 51 per cent of the vote in the primary," McCloskey said.

McCloskey said he would return to the state in September, October and November and would make campaigning there almost a full-time job after Congress adjourns.

"I'm going to campaign in small meetings," McCloskey said. "I'm going to walk the streets of every village and town and meet people, and I'm going to attend neighborhood coffees. It will be a person-to-person campaign."

Medina defense to offer case

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (UPI)—A military judge Friday refused to render a directed verdict of acquittal in the My Lai murder court-martial of Capt. Ernest L. Medina, setting the stage for the defense to begin presentation of its case Monday.

The defense has called Lt. William L. Calley Jr., who stands convicted of 22 murders at My Lai, as its leadoff witness, but it appeared doubtful Calley would agree to testify.

In denying the motion for acquittal, the military judge, Col. Kenneth A. Howard, rejected defense attorney F. Lee Bailey's argument that "reasonable men could not find beyond a reasonable doubt" that Medina murdered, permitted his troops to murder, 102 civilians at My Lai, as charged.

"Nobody testified that he was encouraged by Medina to shoot anybody," Bailey said.

"The government must show a criminal intent and purpose. A mere relationship of superior and subordinate—just because his troops committed murders—is insufficient."

"The evidence shows that when Capt. Medina began to reasonably suspect—even before full awareness—he stopped the killing."

Calley contended during his court-martial that he was merely carrying out Medina's orders during the March 16, 1968, American infantry sweep through the Vietnamese village, where more than 300 persons allegedly were slain.

Bailey offered the motion for dismissal after the government completed its case Thursday.

After listening to the arguments, Howard said: "It is my conclusion that there is some substantial evidence as to each specific charge. After careful consideration, the motions to grant a finding of not guilty, are denied."

MOSCOW (UPI)—Vladimir Voronin recently slipped into a Riga henhouse, stuffed seven chickens into a bag and escaped into the dark street to hitch a ride. The first car to come along picked him up. It was a police car.

Idaho red ink deep

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho's general fund was $5,802,072 in the red at the end of August, some $6 million worse than it was at the same time a year ago.

State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon said that while the deficit balance in the fund at the end of the same month last year was $5,276,175 there were no outstanding tax anticipation notes on the books then.

At the end of August this year there were $5.5 million worth of outstanding tax notes, she said.

Miss Moon noted that the general fund still is in the red and because state law will permit her to continue it in the red for only 30 days "we'll have to issue tax anticipation notes again next week."

There are still 19 states that have no law requiring periodic vehicle safety inspection.

Wendell church installs today

WENDELL — Rev. William F. Pinkerton will be installed as pastor of the United Presbyterian Church of Wendell at 4 p.m. Sunday by a commission of Kendal Presbytery. Harry S. Stewart, Soda Springa, moderator of the presbytery, will preside. Others participating in the installation service will be Rev. Jo Lininger, Pocatello; Rev. David Turnmire, Buhl, and Rev. William Barrett, Jerome.

Following the installation service, the ladies of the church will serve as hostesses for a reception in honor of the Pinkertons.

Rev. Pinkerton comes to Wendell from Marshall, Mo., where he had served as pastor of the Covenant Presbyterian Church since 1963. Prior to that pastorate, Rev. Pinkerton was minister of the Southminster Presbyterian Church, Boise. He is a native of Idaho, having grown up in Nampa. He is a

Gem anti-pollution tax endorsed, survey shows

BOISE — Four out of five Idahoans are concerned about air pollution, and nearly three out of five are willing to pay increased taxes to finance a workable program of pollution control, according to a statewide survey conducted by the Idaho Air Pollution Control Commission.

A 10-question survey form was distributed through Idaho newspapers, with respondents asked to mail the forms to the commission offices in Boise.

However, only 375 survey forms were returned out of the many thousands printed in 14 newspapers. By age groups, middle-aged folks aged 41 to 65 were most concerned, returning 174 questionnaires, while the youngsters under 18 returned only eight throughout the state.

Of other age groups, those 26 to 40 turned in the second-highest number, 113; 19-to-25-year-olds returned 42, and the over-65 grouping turned in 38 forms.

Of the total of 375 respondents, 80.5 per cent said Idaho does have air pollution problems, 61.3 per cent felt they had been personally affected, and 59.5 per cent would support increased taxes for pollution control.

Nearly three-quarters — 74.1 per cent — would favor pollution control measures in areas of less concentration, where, according to the survey question, air pollution causes occasional haze and poor visibility, but has not shown evidence of harm to human health.

In discussing support for increased taxes for pollution control, the youngest and oldest respondents opposed the proposal. Those under 18 opposed the measure by 62.5 per cent against (five of eight votes cast) to 37.5 in favor (three votes), while the folks over 65 were opposed by 57.9 against to 34.2 in favor.

The young adults 19 to 25 years of age, were most in favor, 76.2 to 21.4 per cent, but support diminished with advancing age until reaching the majority opposed in those over 65. Of the respondents 26 to 40, 69.9 were in favor to 28.3 against, and in the 41-to-65 age group, only 55.2 per cent favored a tax increase, while 40.2 opposed it.

Though 76.8 per cent of all respondents were willing to pay $100 for an anti-smog device to eliminate pollution from cars, slightly less than half — 49.8 per cent — would be willing to pay $600 for vehicular pollution control.

Al Elguren, director of the Air Pollution Control Section of the Idaho Department of Health, commented on this question that "This is interesting, since auto manufacturers estimate that a new car will cost approximately $600 more by 1975 precisely because of the anti-pollution devices that will be mandatory by that time."

The survey indicated that 70.7 per cent would be willing to accept a two per cent increase in the prices of manufactured goods to cover the cost of air-pollution control efforts by industry, but higher increases would not be as acceptable.

A proposed 10-per-cent increase won the favor of 46.4 per cent, and a 37.8-per-cent increase would be accepted by only 37.8 per cent. Of all the questions, the 10 per cent increase puzzled the largest percentage, with 12.8 per cent listing "no opinion."

As would be expected, Elguren said, big industries came under fire. More than half of the respondents — 64.8 per cent — said industries who cannot meet air pollutant emission standards should be forced to conform or face closure, and 59.9 per cent said industries should close even if technology to control a particular pollutant is not available.

Surprisingly, perhaps, nearly three-quarters of all respondents, including five of eight of the under-18-year-olds, indicated they would obey a highway speed limit of 50 miles if

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—The nation's Democratic governors, hoping for a major voice in the selection of the party's presidential candidate in 1972, are generally withholding their public commitment to any of the probable contenders.

A United Press International poll shows that Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, the acknowledged frontrunner for the nomination 10 months away, has the solid endorsement of three governors and the silent support of a fourth from the East Coast.

Several other governors, while they stated no preference for a candidate, indicated that Muskie was running well in their states and regions.

Beyond that, the poll showed almost no open support for any other candidate. As expected, Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas and Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota had the backing of their home state governors.

A heavy majority of the 29 governors either declined comment, said it was too early to commit themselves or indicated they wanted to test sentiment in their states first, either following primaries or personal visits by the contenders.

The UPI survey was made in connection with the Saturday meeting in Miami Beach, site of next year's convention, of the Democratic governors and state chairmen who will hear reports from the National Committee's commissions on convention rules and delegate selection.

Following the one-day meeting, the Democrats will fly to San Juan, Puerto Rico, for the 63rd National Governors Conference which opens Sunday.

Muskie won the outright endorsement of Gov. Kenneth M. Curtis of Maine, Gov. Robert W. Scott of North Carolina and Gov. Calvin Rampton of Utah.

In addition, Gov. John Burns of Hawaii, who withheld a preference, said "Muskie looks good." Gov. Cecil D. Andrus of Idaho said it was conceded in his state and others that "Muskie is the leader at this point."

Gov. Bruce King of New Mexico, while expressing a personal friendship for Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington; said the same thing, and Gov. Preston Smith of Texas commented that Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota—the 1968 candidate—and Muskie "probably would hold a slight edge with Texans."

5 Marines, Viet dead decorated

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously to five Marines killed in Vietnam combat, the Pentagon disclosed Friday.

The awards were presented to the families of Capt. Emilio A. de la Garza Jr., 20, of East Chicago, Ind.; Miguel Keith, 18, of Abilene, Texas; James D. Howe, 21, of Liberty, S.C.; Richard A. Anderson, 21, of Houston; and Pfc. Bruce W. Carter, 19, of Miami Springs, Fla.

The medals brought to 34 the total given to Marines for service in Vietnam.

The awards were made Thursday in a ceremony in the Indian Treaty Room, of the Executive Office Building adjacent to the White House.

Several other governors, while they stated no preference for a candidate, indicated that Muskie was running well in their states and regions.

Pueblo radioman sets Burley talk

BURLEY — Lee R. Hayes, crewman on the USS Pueblo who spent 11 months as a prisoner of the North Koreans will speak at a public meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Burley High School Auditorium.

"Remember the Pueblo" will be Hayes' topic. The public is invited to the free program.

Hayes was chief radioman aboard the Pueblo when it was hijacked by the Communist forces. His strategic position at the time of the incident gave Hayes an insight into what took place and what subsequently happened to the crew of the Pueblo while they were held captive in North Korea.

According to Hayes, the Pueblo was more than 15 miles away from the nearest land when it was attacked by North Korean gun boats. "We were never within the 12 mile limit of North Korea," Hayes says. Hayes charges that no help was given to the Pueblo while it was under bombardment.

While the men of the Pueblo were prisoners for the 11 months, threats and beatings were a daily occurrence.

Hayes talk is sponsored by the Mini-Cassia TRAIN committee. TRAIN means "To Restore American Independence now."

Something fishy is going on!

Westport, Wash., billed as the "Salmon Capital of the World," attracts a large number of Magic Valley residents each year to the salmon fishing waters just off its shores.

Among those who made the trip after the good supply of Silver and King salmon in the Pacific Ocean this year was a group of Twin Falls residents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Vickers, Art Cannon, Leonard Ross and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Miller, who were met at the coastal city by L. E. Koonce, Fairfield, and Edwin Rathke, former Twin Falls resident who now lives in Westport.

The group fished on board a Gull Charter boat, the White Cap, for two days. A day of salmon fishing begins early — with breakfast cooked at the motel by Ross and served about 5 a.m.

Charter boats began leaving the docks about 8:30 a.m. and return when those on board have caught their limit or no later than about 8 p.m. In Westport, which finishes its heavy charter fishing season this month, there are about 200-250 charter boats. Many skippers commercial crab fish in winter months and there also are numerous commercial fishing boats docked at Westport.

During the two days on board the White Cap, the group caught about 30 salmon — both Silvers and Kings, with some of the Kings weighing in the 30 to 35 pound range.

Good catch

OPENING A LARGE sack which will hold his day's catch is Leonard Ross, Twin Falls. Capt. Don Fidler of the White Cap of the Gull Charter Fleet at Westport, Wash., puts a good sized king salmon into the sack.

Anna Schrenk, Roland exchange nuptial vows

WENDELL — Anna Lee Schrenk became the bride of Michael C. Roland at an afternoon ceremony Aug. 22 at the First Presbyterian Church, Wendell. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Schrenk, Wendell, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Roland, Buhl.

Rev. William Barrett, Jerome, performed the double ring ceremony before a background of baskets filled with pink gladioli.

Mrs. Harold Holsinger was organist, and accompanied Mrs. LeRoy Schrenk, aunt of the bride, soloist.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore an empire-styled gown, fashioned mandarin collar and long semi-puffed sleeves of Chantilly lace. Appliques of flowers adorned the A-line skirt and long flowing train of crystalline.

Her silk illusion veil was attached to a tiara made of soft flowers. Her bridal bouquet was an arrangement of a white orchid, baby's breath and pink carnations with pink streamers arranged on a white Job's Daughters Bible, belonging to the bride, a gift from Bethel No. 12 when she retired as honored queen.

Mrs. Terry Andersen, Moscow, served as her sister's matron of honor. Mrs. Bill Tipton, Pocatello, lifelong friend, and Mrs. Robert Schrenk, Wellington, Nev., and Mrs. Mike Dietrich, Jackpot, Nev. sisters-in-law of the bride, were bridesmaids.

Patty Schrenk, niece of the bride, was flower girl and carried a colonial nosegay of pink carnations with pink streamers. Greg Andersen, nephew of the bride, carried the rings on a satin pillow edged with white lace. The pillow was made by Mrs. Robert Schrenk.

Best man was Brian Roland, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Douglas Schrenk, brother of the bride, Dewey Durfee, Wendell, and Kelly Murphy, Castleford, friends of the bridegroom.

Christine Bertus, Wendell, registered the guests.

The bride's table, covered with white lace cloth over pink, was centered with the four-tiered cake that was baked and decorated by the bridegroom's mother. The white cake was decorated with pink roses and rosebuds, and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom under an archway of orange blossoms. The bottom tier of the cake was enhanced with white angels.

Other table decorations were crystal candleholders filled with pink candles entwined with lavender ribbon and pink ribbon rosebuds.

The bridegroom's cake, also

baked by Mrs. Roland, was wrapped in pink foil and served from the bride's table.

The reception was under the direction of the United Presbyterian Women, with Mrs. Dale DePew serving as chairman. Serving at the refreshment table were Mrs. Dewey Durfee, Mrs. Robert Stockham, Mrs. Calvin Kuntz and Mrs. Donald Buker, all Wendell, friends of the bride.

Displaying the gifts were Mrs. Payton, Marie and Sandy, Pocatello, aunt and cousins of the bride. Assisting were Mrs. Tim Craig, Jerome; Mrs. John Johnson, Wendell, and Cecille Webb, Twin Falls, friends of the bride.

The bride was honored at a pre-nuptial shower given by Mrs. Durfee, Mrs. Kuntz and Mrs. Andersen.

The bridegroom's parents were hosts at a salad bar for the bridal party after the rehearsal.

Special guests were Mrs. Dorothy Schrenk, Pocatello; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howard, Lewiston, grandparents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Roland, Buhl, grandparents of the bridegroom.

Guests attended from Buhl, Filer, Wendell, Twin Falls, Moscow, Lewiston, Jerome, Gooding, Declo, Pocatello, Hagerman, and Nevada.

After a honeymoon trip to Sacramento, Lake Tahoe and Wellington, Nev., the couple returned to their new home at Route 5, Buhl, where the bridegroom is engaged in the farming and dairy business with his father. The bride is employed at Dorothy's Beauty Salon, Filer.

Box Canyon area water use explained for Rotary

SHOSHONE — Proposed use of the spring water in the Box Canyon area was explained to members of the Rotary Club here at their Wednesday noon meeting.

Dean Durfee, from the Bureau of Land Management, said there are four proposed uses of the water, which is estimated to be one of the largest sources of spring water in the United States.

One group in the area asks that they be allowed to pump the water to Sailor Creek farming area for irrigation purposes, another group wants it left where it is as a conservation measure, the state asks that the area be developed into a state park and the fourth group wants to pipe the water under Snake River to land area. This would require a seven foot pipe to carry the water, Durfee said.

A public hearing will probably be called by the BLM in the near future to determine just what to do. Box Canyon is located four miles south of Wendell.

High school students who were guests at the meeting were Louis Albright and Rick Allen.

Birthdays were observed for Donald Bergin, Casey Johnson, Jared McKinzie and Lois Mitchell.

Ray Walker, new editor of the Lincoln County Journal, was welcomed to membership. Report was made that five signs for advertising the city park are now prepared and ready for installation. This has been a club project this summer, according to Francis Bergin, secretary.

Satterfield home included in tour

TWIN FALLS — Family antiques dating back two generations create an air of timelessness in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Satterfield, 1305 Holly Drive, one of the homes selected for the Junior Club's Tour of Homes Sept. 19.

Mrs. Satterfield has decorated her home in the tradition of southern comfort and hospitality. The entry-way is accented with a picture she created using two pocket watches, a brooch and a necklace, all family heirlooms. Shades of green, from olive to mint, are used throughout the upper level of the house, and, in a downstairs family room, chocolate brown shag carpeting contrasts sharply with bright orange accents. Red, pink and white candy-striped wallpaper highlights a main floor bath and a green and white Country English wallcovering with matching curtain decorate the kitchen.

Mrs. Satterfield's needlepoint and petitpoint work are featured in many rooms, and a crocheted bedspread made by Mrs. Satterfield's great-aunt when she was 86 years old is displayed in one bedroom.

Antiques, from glassware to dough bowls to a flax wheel converted into a planter, accent each room and make this home a delight to view.

Tickets for the tour can be obtained from any Junior Club member, at Sallie's Gifts and Books and the Rogerson Coffee Shop, or by calling Mrs. Robert Donnelly, 733-9139, or Mrs. Michael Glenn, 733-0839.

"Visit with first lady" documentary set Sunday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For Pat Nixon, the worst part about being First Lady is lack of privacy. "I think the most difficult task of all is to be so guarded and to be surrounded all the time," she says. "You don't have enough of what I call blessed aloneness."

Mrs. Nixon disclosed this insight into her life in the White House in a television documentary, "A Visit With the First Lady," to be shown by ABC Sunday evening. Transcript was released Thursday.

At one point in the film, Mrs. Nixon is shown wearing slacks for the first time in public view and sitting inside a secluded patio at the Nixon's ocean-side villa at San Clemente, Calif. Asked why she felt that spot was so special, she replied:

"At the present time it is the only place in the world where we can sit unguarded. There may be a few people outside, but we don't see them, so when we come in here, it's just heaven without anybody around."

Commenting on the personal life of the First Family, President Nixon told an interviewer that a politician is not bothered so much when he is "denied the chance to be himself. He expects it."

"But for the woman, it's something again. She realizes that public life interferes with her ability to live her life, as you know, as a wife and a mother. So, I would say that of all the things she would like to do, perhaps would be to walk the beach, walk it without any cameras, without anybody looking on, figuring she could do just what she wanted."

On the other hand, Mrs. Nixon said that as First Lady she had "more opportunity to do the things in which I'm interested, to help people, to visit with them, to travel, to report to my husband, and to make recommendations."

Nixon said his wife had always maintained her poise and "there was never a moment when she was not the First Lady in her public appearances."

Two-hour musical

SOME OF the 80 members of the Up With People cast, known worldwide for its unique musical productions, are pictured during a dress rehearsal at start of this fall's tour. The organization will appear in Twin Falls Oct. 15 and 16 at the CSI Gymnasium, sponsored by the Times-News and the Associated Students of the College of Southern Idaho.

TWIN FALLS — Up With People, a two-hour musical kaleidoscope of bittersweet folk, rock, jazz, poignant lyrics and contemporary choreography, will come to Twin Falls for two performances at the College of Southern Idaho Oct. 15 and 16, it was announced today.

The 80 college-age youth organization, known throughout the United States and in many foreign nations, is being sponsored jointly by the Times-News and the Associate Students of the College of Southern Idaho. It was announced by Thomas Howard, general manager of the newspaper; Jack Sims, activities director, and Larry Stamps, student body president at CSI.

Up With People evolved out of a search for young men and women for new ways to involve themselves in the world and generate more effective communications between people regardless of age, class or color.

The group appearing in Twin Falls toured Mexico, Japan and the southwest United States last season. In a six-week tour of Mexico they gave 42 performances for 235,275 people in theaters, bullrings, parks, schools and universities in a dozen cities. Upon returning to the United States the cast concentrated on performing in Mexican-American communities in Texas and Arizona.

In a broad, fast-paced tour of Japan, the cast stayed in 340 homes and gave 48 shows in 13 cities. They performed at six major universities and at the International Trade Fair.

The cast coming to Twin Falls now includes 18 Japanese, selected from hundreds of students interviewed during the tour.

Up With People was incorporated in August, 1968 as an independent, non-profit, educational corporation. Since then five international casts have performed in 27 countries on five continents and through live performances and television have reached an estimated 400 million people.

The tour this year started with a "reconvene" at Jackson Hole, Wyo., on Aug. 1 and the first public performance on Aug. 20 after three weeks of practice. After several Wyoming performances, the unit goes to Denver and from there will come into Idaho with performances at Idaho Falls, Pocatello and Boise in addition to those in Twin Falls. Touring is now scheduled through December.

The Twin Falls performances will be at the CSI Gymnasium in order to accommodate the expected crowds. Tickets will be available in the immediate future and sale locations will be announced at that time.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: If I knew Nanette Fabray's address I would send her an orchid. What a wonderful thing she did for the hard of hearing by writing to you and letting you tell the world that she has worn a hearing aid for years. Bless her! She is a fine performer, a great lady and a good sport.

I wear a hearing aid, too, and I'd like to add, it would help those of us with a hearing loss if people would not shout at us. They should look at us, and talk directly to us so we can read their lips more easily. Thank you. LIP READER

DEAR ABBY: You certainly hit close to home when you ran Nanette Fabray's wonderful letter!

My mother has been hard of hearing for years, but she's too vain to admit it. She sits there, pretending to hear, and she's missing 75 per cent of what's going on. She wears eye glasses but she won't see a doctor about her hearing because she's afraid he might tell her she needs a hearing aid. Meanwhile she's 58 and missing a lot because she won't let anybody help her. HER SON

DEAR SON: You don't need me to tell you how foolish your mother is. But her vanity can cost her her life if she ever steps into the path of an oncoming automobile which she has not heard approaching. Please show this to her. It may help.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for printing Nanette Fabray's letter saying she wasn't ashamed to let people know she wears a hearing aid.

I am a 15-year-old girl who is very hard of hearing. I had the measles and a high temperature when I was 3 and have been wearing a hearing aid ever since. It helps some, but not a whole lot. I had an operation, too, but that was not successful.

It is so hard for a person who can't hear to make friends, Abby. In school I hate to ask people to please speak up because they start saying, "Oh, don't talk to her—she's deaf!" Abby, I'm not deaf, I'm hard of hearing. If I ask someone to repeat something, they say, "Never mind. It wasn't anything important."

I sure wish you would tell people who can hear that they don't know how lucky they are. NOT THAT LUCKY

DEAR NOT: One of life's tragedies is being unable to hear. But sadder still are those who can hear, but will not listen.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for publishing Nanette Fabray's letter, urging the hard-of-hearing to wear hearing aids. Please advise those with a hearing problem to always ask to have repeated that which they have not heard. (So many will pretend that they have heard when they have not.) I am a nurse, and on one occasion the doctor instructed his patient in the taking of medication. She did not hear him correctly, and a tragedy nearly resulted. PORTLAND

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90009. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Diane Budd, Matthews wed

TWIN FALLS — Diane Budd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale E. Budd, Hazelton, became the bride of Sam Matthews, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Matthews, Declo, in rites Aug. 21 at the First Presbyterian Church, Twin Falls.

Rev. Robert VanNest performed the double ring ceremony before candelabra holding tall white tapers, cathedral baskets of yellow and white gladioli. The pews were marked by lighted candelabra tied with yellow satin bows.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a Bridal Original, fashioned with a scooped neckline and lily point sleeves of organza lace. Seed pearls enhanced the bodice. Miniature satin-covered buttons closed the wrists and back of gown. Her long veil, which formed a train, was of double layers of nylon net trimmed with lace matching the gown and held by a crown trimmed with tiny pearls.

She carried a cascade of yellow roses and white and yellow baby carnations centered with a white orchid.

Sharon Martens, roommate of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Patricia Matthews and Charlotte Wickel, sisters of the bridegroom, and Pat Budd and Susan Budd, sisters-in-law of the bride.

Best man was Randy Meade. Groomsmen and ushers were Steve Matthews, brother of the bridegroom; Ronald Budd and Terry Budd, brothers of the bride; and Clyde Athon.

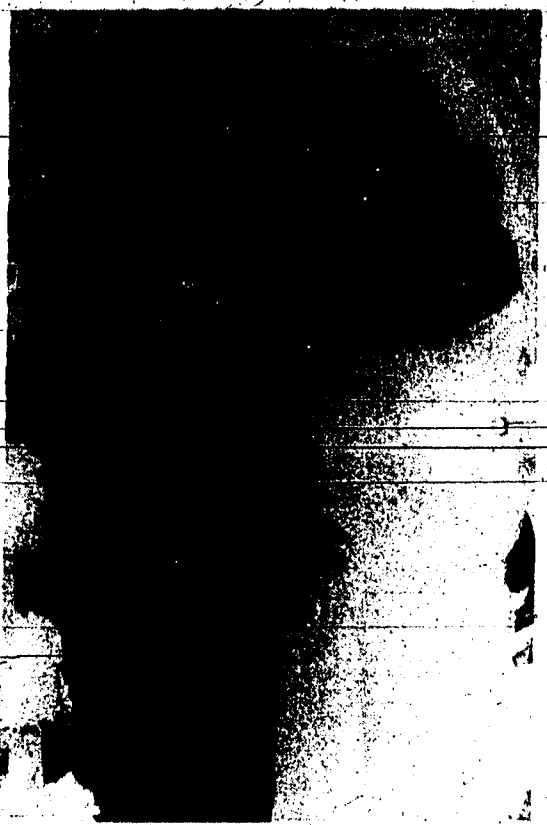

Mrs. Charles Allen was organist and accompanied Clair Looslie, cousin of the bride, as soloist.

A reception was held after the ceremony in the church Fireside Room. Betty Grose, cousin of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

The wedding party received guests before a white organza backdrop trimmed with garlands of boxwood, centered with wedding bells and yellow satin streamers.

The bride's table, covered with lace over yellow satin, was centered with a four-tiered scalloped wedding cake decorated with yellow lilies and green fern. It was topped with white doves. The cake was cut and served by Arlene Grose, aunt of the bride, assisted by Mrs. Wallace Bragg and Mrs. Ernest Buschhorn.

Guests were served at quartet tables covered with white nylon lace over yellow and centered:

with tulle and satin candelabra holding yellow candles and yellow chrysanthemums.

The unopened gifts were arranged by Kathy Grose and Michele Nelson on tables skirted in white with hogarth curves of yellow and white chrysanthemums at each corner. Cherub statuary holding yellow and white chrysanthemums centered the table.

Guests attended from various Magic Valley towns, Sun Valley, Idaho Falls, Boise, Blackfoot, Pocatello and Columbus, Neb.

After a wedding trip to the Oregon Coast, the couple will reside at the University Village Apartments, 483 B Hale St., Boise, where the bridegroom will continue his course in geology at Boise State College.

The bridegroom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Holiday Inn. The bride was honored at a pre-nuptial miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Ronald Budd and Mrs. Terry Budd, assisted by Mrs. Mabel Budd.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — High school senior girls in this area will be eligible for college scholarships totaling $111,000 nationally in this school year's Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow. It has been announced.

According to General Mills, sponsor of the annual educational program, invitations to participate in the 18th annual search have been sent to schools throughout the country, with Nov. 1 the deadline for enrolling. Last year, nearly 15,000 schools and 650,000 girls participated.

Basis for awards in the program is a 50-minute written knowledge and attitude examination to be administered in all enrolled schools Dec. 7. From scores on this test, a Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow for each school will be named, will receive a specially designed award and will have her paper entered in competition for state-level scholarships.

General Mills will present the top Homemaker of Tomorrow in each state and the District of Columbia with a $1,500 college grant; her school will receive a complete set of Encyclopaedia Britannica. The state runner-up will receive a $500 scholarship.

Next April, the state winners, each accompanied by a faculty adviser, will join for an expense-paid educational tour of Colonial Williamsburg, Va., and Washington, D.C. Culmination of the tour will be announcement of the 1972 Betty Crocker All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow and three runners-up. To be chosen on the basis of personal observation and interviews during the tour, they will receive increases in their scholarships to $5,000, $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000 respectively.

In addition to the total of $110,000 in scholarships for state and national winners and runners-up, a $1,000 nutrition scholarship has been added to the Betty Crocker Search this year. To earn this grant, a girl must be planning a college major in nutrition or a related field, score among the highest in her state in the overall search examination and achieve the highest score among those meeting these criteria on the examination's nutrition items.

A Lovelier You

TENSION BECOMES A PAIN

By Mary Sue Miller

Women who do close work have a common ailment. It literally is a pain in the neck.

It starts in the late afternoon with a tight, tense feeling at the back of the neck that spreads across the shoulders and becomes painful. If you are subject to the complaint you know it's pure misery — as well as a drain on your energy and efficiency.

To overcome the problem you first must understand its causes. Almost always the trouble is rooted in nervous tension from work pressure or muscular tension from poor working posture. Maybe both.

When you work against time at demanding tasks, you are in no way abnormal if tension mounts. You should make an effort, however, to relieve strain before the painful stage sets in. Simply walk away from your work for 10 minutes. Use the period to tidy up and to sip a hot beverage. Think about anything but your work.

If pain beats you to a work break, try applying either hot or cold compresses to the nape of the neck. Choose whatever temperature brings relief. It differs with different people.

As for fatigued muscles, the answer is an "easy seat." You achieve one when you sit squarely on your hips, with back erect and soles of feet on the floor; when you bend forward from the hip joints and look down with your eyes to see your work, instead of crooking your spine and neck.

Andrus to face tax hike

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cech D. Andrus says it is too early to determine whether a tax increase will be necessary next year but he will face the problem "squarely" should it arise.

In a videotaped interview scheduled for presentation at 5 p.m. today over the Television Network of Idaho, Andrus said whether state financing will require more taxes remains to be seen.

"Until we determine the amount of the executive budget and the amount of activity that will be needed in this regard to balance that budget against the revenue that we'll have, frankly I can't tell you."

But asked by a panel of newsmen what course he will take if it appears a tax increase is necessary, Andrus said:

"I'll face the problems squarely and I'll not hide from the people of Idaho that."

He said while it is too early to determine whether a tax increase will be needed to maintain the status quo he did say more money will be needed if any new programs of a sizable amount are sought.

Andrus said financing of public school kindergartens — once the federal money runs out — is another problem which will confront the legislature.

Under the Federal Emergency Employment Act, Idaho is getting 125 kindergarten teachers starting Oct. 1. Andrus conceded that the state may have to drop the program if the federal funds dry up.

"This is a choice that the legislature will have to face," he said. "They would have to drop back or the people at the local level would have to finance it and that's a thing I would have to see happen because it would go on the property tax and, as you know, I'm opposed to raising the property tax."

Should a tax increase be necessary, Andrus said, there are several methods already being suggested including a one per cent increase in the sales tax, elimination of some exemptions from the sales tax and elimination of the "double deductibility" in the state income tax.

On other matters, the governor told the news panel: — He hopes the state can avoid establishment of new boards, commissions and departments.

— A determination on whether a separate department of ecology will be sought will not be made until sometime in November.

— Since the people elected him to serve a four-year term as governor he is not a candidate for the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator next year.

— He does not want to be a "dictator" on the senatorial question and will not attempt to influence his party's choice of a candidate.

— The people have the constitutional right to recall public officials but he believes that an active minority of the electorate should not frustrate the wishes of the majority.

Prizewinners all

Filer Fair draws crowd of 55,000

By MARJORIE LIERMAN Times-News Writer
FILER — The 1971 Twin Falls County Fair came to a successful close Saturday night with total attendance hovering near the 55,000 mark, about the same as last year, according to fair officials.

Friday's West End Day attendance was 14,000, about 300 more than last year's third day.

Young livestock experts received $41,920 in the annual 4-H and FFA fat stock sale Saturday afternoon. There were 36 swine selling for $3,580, 71 sheep, $4,528 and 70 beef, $33,811. Each 4-H or FFA member was permitted to select his best single animal project for the sale.

Style revues in the junior and senior 4-H divisions were held Friday afternoon in the Parks Pavilion where girls modeled their outfits on a stage decorated with a garden setting. Debbie Cox, Castleford, 13, received the trophy in the junior division with Sally Southwick, Buhl, 12, winning second place.

Cindy Williamson, Buhl, received first place trophy in the senior division and Patty Quigley, Castleford, placed second.

High point of the revue was the presentation of a gift to Mrs. Alice Reed, who is retiring this year after serving as home extension agent for five years.

Pamela Ottersberg, Twin Falls, found a $10 bill lying on the Fairgrounds and brought it to the announcer's booth to locate the owner. If it is unclaimed, the money will be given to her.

The Twin Falls FFA chapter received the first-place trophy in team judging with Gooding placing second, and Fairfield third. Individual members awarded judging trophies were Larry Patterson and Eddie Bilboa, both Gooding. The trophies were provided by Rangen, Inc., Buhl.

Larry Steigemeier, Buhl, who earned a grand champion trophy for his entry in the swine exhibition, sold his 235-pound hog for $2.50 per pound, for a total of $587.50, to Otto Florence of Independent Meat, Twin Falls.

The youth also won a championship rating in swine fitting and showing and won the FFA round robin in his class for fitting and showing.

The grand champion beef, owned by Bryan White, Kimberly, brought a price of $1.10 per pound or a total of $1,205.60 for its owner and was purchased by Shelby's, Twin Falls.

per pound or a total of $300. Miss Johnson had been awarded the grand champion fitting and showing trophy, grand champion quality trophy, both in 4-H judging, and grand champion in open class for her lamb.

Bidding was high on all the animals with nearly 200 going through the sale ring.

On Saturday afternoon, fairgoers rested in the shade and listened to the Old Fiddlers play on the grounds or attended the free horse show in the arena where all 12 classes were well filled.

The awards assembly in the Tom Parks Pavilion saw the giving of trophies to 4-H members who had received prizes.

McHan hits sale of Blaine land

KETCHUM (UPI) — State Rep. E.V. McHan, R-Ketchum, said Saturday the State Land Board "acted much too fast" in its decision to sell 620 acres of land near Sun Valley for a minimum of $356,000.

"I don't think it's a realistic price that they have, I don't think they've looked at all the different ramifications of selling this, and I think they've excluded the small man in the purchase," he said.

Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa said Friday he will ask the land board to reconsider its purchase and McHan said he had asked to appear at that meeting. (Earlier story, P.28)

Situated about two miles east of Ketchum and adjacent to the Sun Valley resort, the land presently is leased for grazing to Sun Valley Company, Inc. Harry Holmes, president of Sun Valley Co., Inc., and Gayle Holmes are the applicants for the sale of the land.

The appraisal price placed on the land by a land department employee was $575 per acre.

McHan, however, said he felt there was no need for another appraisal of the land.

Sun Valley Co., he said, "already set the price" by selling 1,900 acres of land for $3.4 million, which he said meant approximately $1,950 per acre.

McHan said he had no objection to allowing Sun Valley to purchase the land and said he felt it had the money to improve the land.

"However, maybe it isn't the best interest of the people of Idaho to sell this property at this time," he said.

"Maybe the Sun Valley-Ketchum area is building too fast. Maybe we should pause and think about 'over-building'."

Gunnery range closed

CASTLEFORD — The Castleford-to-Bruneau road running through a portion of the Saylor Creek Gunnery Range has been closed, and traffic will be detoured around the range via a new road to the south, according to an announcement made Saturday.

The Air Force announced that the gunnery range will be used extensively for military activities, including firing rockets and firearms and dropping bombs. The activity will be "extremely dangerous" to grazing livestock or trespass by motorists.

Flareup recalls firemen

KETCHUM — Ketchum firemen were recalled Saturday to douse flareups at the scene of the fire which destroyed the Anderson Lumber Company early Friday.

The early-morning blaze razed the firm's retail outlet, office building and storeroom. The cause of Friday's fire was still undetermined, Fire Chief Charles Atterbury said Saturday.

Store owner Joe Poitevin, Ketchum, estimated the loss, which was covered by insurance, at $75,000, including $40,000 in inventory.

Smoldering rubble flared up four times Friday night and Saturday morning, Atterbury said.

A large storage bin for wood moulding east of the main building and adjacent lumber sheds were saved by firemen. The loss included all of the lumber company's stocks of hardware, paint, floor coverings, power tools and pre-finished plywood.

Shoshone schedules start of sewer work

SHOSHONE — Construction of the first sewer system for the City of Shoshone will begin Monday morning, Wilson Churchman, city councilman said Saturday.

Coordinating plans for the work were made at a pre-construction conference at the city hall Thursday afternoon. Attending were city engineers, Smith and Jewell; representatives from the Farmers Home Administration, city officials and the representatives of the construction company, Harwell Excavating Company, Idaho Falls.

Churchman said the construction company has until Sept. 2, 1972, to complete the work. Whether or not it takes less time or longer, will depend upon working conditions and the construction company, he said.

Actual hookup for residences, however, is not anticipated before next summer, because after the sewer is installed, it must pass inspection.

Work will begin Monday on the lagoon site and high pressure line area in the northwest section of the location. Crews will start on the lower end of the area and work up, Churchman said.

A $580,000 bond issue was passed by citizens of Shoshone over a year ago to finance the sewer system.

3 Wendell seats go on ballot

WENDELL — Three council posts in Wendell will be on the ballot at the election on Nov. 2. Terms of Vernon Mason, John Wert and J. E. Barrus expire. Wert has indicated he will not seek re-election. The other two councilmen have not commented on the possibility of their candidacy.

One of the posts is for two years — to finish the term of George Benson who resigned last spring

Hearings charted in Blaine

HAILEY — Four of the eight persons arrested on alleged drug charges during the Wood River Rock Festival were arraigned Friday before Magistrate Bill Grant, Hailey.

All four requested preliminary hearings to determine whether there is sufficient evidence available to warrant trials.

Sept. 22 hearings were set for Dennis Lance, 23, Salt Lake City; Leonard Kirk, 22, Salt Lake City; and Frederick Hamill, 20, Norfolk, Va. The three are held in the Blaine County jail in lieu of $1,500 bonds each.

Parker A. Lyle, 22, Monterey, Calif., was released on $1,500 bond. His preliminary hearing date is pending.

Bank plans Hailey unit

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Commissioner of Finance Tom McEldowney announced Friday approval of an application by the Bank of Idaho for a branch in Hailey.

McEldowney said the application approval is subject to concurrent approval by the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco.

Lincoln files drug charges

SHOSHONE — A Lincoln County naturopath arrested Friday evening on a drug violation charge remained in custody at the Lincoln County Jail Saturday evening.

William A. Turzka, about 60, was arrested by Sheriff Thomas (Wid) Conner while he was in custody on a battery charge stemming from the alleged beating of his wife Thursday.

Sheriff Conner said Turzka was taken into custody Thursday on a battery complaint signed by his wife.

After that arrest, Sheriff Conner said he and an agent of the State Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs searched the Turzka residence about 16 miles north of Shoshone. The sheriff said a quantity of drugs was found, but declined to reveal the type. He did say, however, there was "quite a bunch of them."

The formal complaint against Turzka, who lives with his wife at the Ice Caves Service on U.S. Highway 93, accuses him of illegal possession of a controlled substance.

Bond on the battery charge was set at $250 by Magistrate Claude Wilson, but before Turzka could post bond, he was arrested again. Sheriff Conner said Turzka is expected to make a court appearance Monday morning.

'Vern' asked to run

BOISE (UPI) — The president of the Idaho Outdoor Association announced Saturday a "Ravenscroft for the U.S. Senate" committee is forming to sample public opinion, examine issues, and develop support for State Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft, D-Tuttle, as a candidate for the U.S. Senate.

Grey Andrist said at a recent meeting in Boise Ravenscroft, currently in his fifth term as a state legislator, was asked by a group of "key supporters" to seek the Senate seat now held by Sen. Len Jordan, R-Idaho, who has announced plans to retire at the end of this term.

Andrist said, however, Ravenscroft said his current legislative commitments would have priority over seeking higher office and said any final decision to run for the Senate would have to come at a later date.

Campaigns slated for Jerome vote

JEROME — Ray Wright and Von Morley, both Jerome, announced they will seek election to the Jerome City Council in the election Nov. 2. The terms of Marshall Everheart and S.N. (Shorty) Weeks expire this year. Both have said they will seek re-election.

Wright is an operator in the separating department at Idaho Gem Dairymen, Inc., and is also a private building contractor.

He has been with Ida Gem for 14 years, having started with the firm when he came to Jerome from the Buhl area where he was a rancher.

In announcing his candidacy, Wright said "Jerome is a fine town and I'd like to see a few changes made with some new ideas in the hopper."

Morley is a businessman and former owner of Morley's Food Center, has been a Jerome resident for the past seven years. Prior to coming to Jerome, Morley was sales manager of Arden Sun-freeze Creameries, Salt Lake City, Utah, which is now Meadow-Gold.

Morley said because he is retired, he has sufficient time to devote to the council position.

"Having been in business in Jerome, I feel my knowledge in management would be helpful to our city government. I feel that the citizens should expect the city to be run on a sound business-like basis," Morley said.

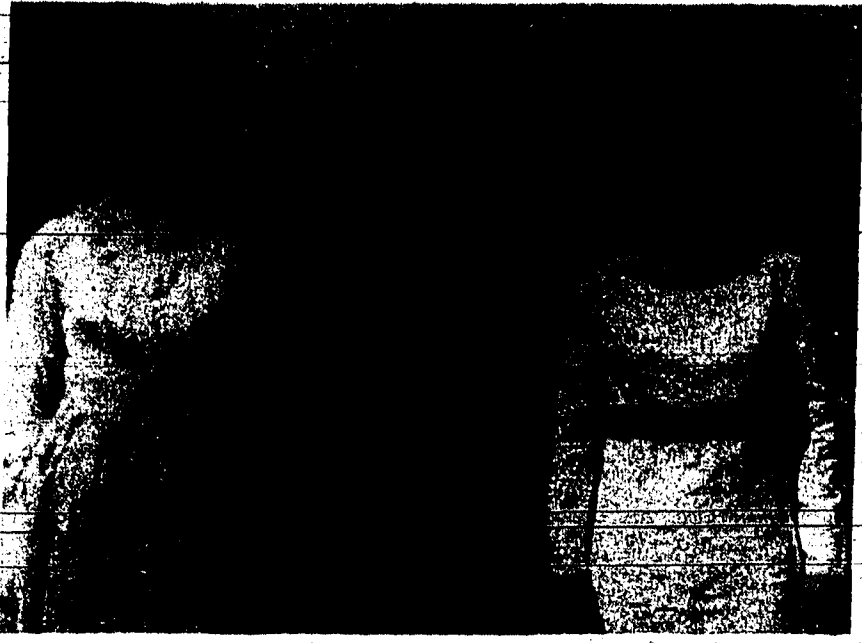

He is married to the former Elva Kelso, Payette. They have six children.

Directors of Adelines groups meet in Burley

BURLEY — About 75 directors and aspiring directors from Sweet Adelines choruses in four states attended a workshop in Burley Saturday, sponsored by the Burley chapter.

Barbershop quartet enthusiasts from Southern Idaho, Northern Utah, Nevada and Central California attended the series of seminars at West Minico Junior High School. This is the first time a session of this type has been held, according to Sharree Jensen, Paul, vice president of the Burley chapter.

Serving as instructors were Joni Bescos, Burbank, Calif., director of the regional Sweet Adelines Chorus and arranger of music, and Jean O'Neill, a judge was the Nampa Valley Region. The women conducted seminars during the morning and afternoon sessions.

A Pocatello group provided music for the Saturday meeting.

Friday night about 20 women met at the Ramada Inn in Burley to hear a lecture by Mrs. Bescos.

The Burley Sweet Adelines Chorus has 43 members. It placed sixth in last year's regional competition in Fresno, Calif.

Over 30 jobless due aid under new setup

TWIN FALLS — More than 30 jobless people in the Magic Valley will receive training in a variety of occupations in a newly approved Manpower Development and Training Act of the U.S. Department of Labor in cooperation with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

John Leinen, manager of the Twin Falls office of the Idaho Department of Employment, said about 15 jobless people needing additional training will be placed on "pre-vocational" training through the College of Southern Idaho vocational school, and 15 to 18 others will be referred for training on an individual basis as the need arises.

Funds for the project have been promised by the Department of Labor, but have not yet been received locally, Leinen said Friday. Many details of the program are yet to be worked out, but the overall concept is to provide training for jobless persons who can best make use of the training in a career field. A secondary benefit is to fulfill local needs for skilled workers.

The projects are locally initiated throughout the state by the local Department of Employment offices, which determine the need for workers in a specific job field, refers, tests and counsels applicants for training, administers payment of the training, transportation and subsistence allowances, and provides job-placement assistance to trainees on completion of the classwork.

Fresh bid on fluoride due in '72

BOISE (UPI) — There will be another attempt in 1972 to pass legislation requiring fluoridation of water supplies in Idaho communities, according to Dr. Allen Cutler, chief of dental health, Idaho Department of Health.

Cutler confirmed Friday the Idaho Dental Association and other groups are planning to present such a bill at the next session of the legislature in January.

Cutler said backers of the fluoridation move have not yet received an official indication of the state Gov. Cecil D. Andrus will take on such a measure. A similar bill was presented to the 1969 session, but was kept in the Health and Welfare Committee after Gov. Don Samuelson indicated he would veto such a law.

Cutler said the intention would be that all communities where the natural fluoride content is not one part per million parts water be brought up to the level by supplementing fluoride.

He said studies indicated children in towns with fluoridated water have 50 per cent fewer cavities than those living in communities with untreated water.

42 cases diseases reported

TWIN FALLS — The South Central District Health Department which began a weekly venereal disease clinic in June, reports 42 new cases of the disease have been reported since then.

Dr. Wayne B. Carte, director of the district, said Friday 76 visits were made to the clinic by the 42 people involved.

He said because the clinic is new in Twin Falls, there are no figures with which to compare the three-month total.

Officials at the district health office at the Twin Falls City Hall said that while no comparative figures are available locally, statewide figures have soared. Statewide figures also show that only about one fourth of cases of venereal disease are reported.

Clinics, which are open to the public, are now held each Monday from 1 to 4 p.m. at the district health office. Dr. Carte said if sufficient public interest is shown, clinics for diagnosis and treatment of venereal disease will be set up in the Mini-Cassia and Hailey-Ketchum areas.

The health district has started a public general immunization clinic in the Burley public health nurse's office from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. on the second Monday of each month. Similar clinics are held at the Twin Falls office from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday.

Dr. Carte said the district hopes to present well child clinics throughout the valley in the near future.

Drug abuse aid listing available

BOISE (UPI) — Over 10,000 copies of a new catalog outlining drug abuse services available from different agencies and organizations in the Boise area have been distributed to local high school students.

Richard J. Kersting, director of development and public relations for St. Luke's Hospital, said The Rt. Rev. Norman Foote spearheaded interest in determining what drug resources are available to youth and concerned parents in Boise.

The catalog, prepared by local businessmen, St. Luke's and St. Alphonsus Hospitals, lists seven agencies dealing with drug problems on an emergency and crisis intervention basis.

They include the Hot Line; the Community Institute for Human Resources; St. Alphonsus Hospital; the Shiloh House; the Stone House; Mary House; and the Mountain Bell Telephone Company for operator assistance.

Club leadership role cited

BURLEY — Kiwanis Clubs around the country provide important leadership training from which many club members move into responsible positions in their city and county governments, Aubrey E. Irby, Tyler, Tex., International Kiwanis trustee, said here Friday.

Irby addressed a dinner meeting at the 52nd annual Utah-Idaho District Kiwanis Convention which continued Saturday at the Ponderosa Inn with some 735 members and wives attending. The meeting will end today.

Irby emphasized the community programs of Kiwanis clubs as important in all cities across the country from Key Club and Circle K, the organizations for high school and college boys, to the adult organizations.

One of the current programs, he said, is "Operation Drug alert," in which Kiwanis club members and their affiliated groups are working to educate the public as to drug dangers and rehabilitation programs. "Drug problems are nationwide and have come to light in communities of all sizes, Irby said. "Kiwanis members are concerned with helping victims of drugs as well as preventing abuse.

He explained the telephone assistance program in which Kiwanis members provide answers for those needing rehabilitation or treatment. A telephone call to the Kiwanis manned number will result in an arrangement for assistance from proper agencies.

Irby reviewed past accomplishments of Kiwanis and stressed the need for greater involvement in club programs expansion of work in establishing new clubs, and increased membership in existing clubs.

Training sessions were held Friday with Saturday afternoon devoted to golf and tours of the area. Kiwanis delegates wind up their convention with business sessions' Sunday morning. A directors meeting will follow.

J. R. Simplot, Idaho industrial leader, told delegates following a luncheon Saturday, their members must help protect the free enterprise system of the United States. He said the entire world is jealous of the United States and urged preserving the American system of government, which he said has been tried and proven.

Simplot described his affiliation with the Idaho potato industry from the time he shipped the first potatoes from Declo in 1920 to today's processing within the state. He said his plant in Heyburn, for example, processes 200 railroad cars of Idaho potatoes per day.

Complaint dropped against Gem firm

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Public Utilities Commission dismissed today its own complaint against Idaho Power Co., but sought further information from two other utilities on promotional practices.

The complaint against Utah Power & Light Co., Intermountain Gas Co., and Idaho Power Co., issued by the commission's own motion, concerned promotional practices used by the three utilities.

The PUC found the promotional practices of Idaho Power, which included commissions for dealer appliance salesmen, water heater inspection and adjustment service and a finance program, to be "valid and legitimate."

But while the PUC found Utah Power & Light's promotional practices to also be valid and legitimate, it questioned promotional payments of the Gold Medallion program and called for additional information.

The payments are made on all - electric structures which meet company standards and to persons supplying a prospect which results in the sale of a total electric home.

Utah Power & Light was given 20 days to inform the PUC whether it intends to continue the Gold Medallion construction or prospect payments.

The PUC also gave Intermountain Gas 20 days in which to inform the commission whether it intends to continue its dealer gas service line and school range program, the lease rental program, and the sale of natural gas appliances or whether any changes are to be made.

The PUC questioned whether the lease-rental program may be discriminatory in that customers not leasing appliances may be subsidizing the program.

Battle looms on bargaining power

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farm and food industry groups are preparing to open what is expected to be a bitter contest later this month over proposals to give farmers more power in bargaining for the sale of their crops.

The forum will be a House Agriculture Subcommittee which is scheduled to hold hearings on the issue from Sept. 20 through Oct.

The lawmakers will be considering a series of bills including one backed by the American Farm Bureau Federation, a second and stiffer measure backed by the National Farmers Union, and a third proposal which would affect only milk and is backed by the National Milk Producers Federation.

Most attention is expected to center on the so-called "National Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining Act," sponsored by Rep. B. F.

Slak, D-Calif., and 82 other House members, and strongly backed by the farm bureau and some major western cooperatives.

This measure would create a federal board to determine which farmer associations are "qualified" to act as bargaining representatives. Then, it would require processors and handlers to negotiate in good faith with the approved associations.

Under the measure, a handler engaged in negotiations with a farmer group would not be required to reach agreement. But he would be forbidden, during the course of bargaining, to open negotiations with producers who are not members of the association.

An administration farm spokesman said today, the Agriculture Department will give the House hearings a favorable verdict on farm bargaining legislation, but will suggest some changes in the Slak bill.

"We're going in to support the idea that farmers, through joint action, should be allowed to help themselves. But we have a few problems with some of the specifics of the (Slak) bill... we will have suggestions for changes," the source said. The official said one area were changes may be proposed involves the ban on processor dealing with non-member growers.

Much of the opposition to all of the new proposals is coming from processor groups including the National Canners Association and poultry industry trade groups. The National Broiler Council, for example is distributing a leaflet charging that in practical effect, the measure would "dictate compulsory collective bargaining in agricultural products, including broiler contracting and... represents a blueprint for monopoly

Agency makes public letters to violators

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department, bowing to federal court orders, today agreed to let the public see warning letters which the agency sends to firms suspected of minor violations of meat and poultry inspection regulations.

Officials said the letters will be kept available for inspection at a file room in the south building of the agency's Washington headquarters.

The department earlier had fought demands by aides to Ralph Nader for access to the letters. But the U.S. District Court at Baltimore, Md., ruled in favor of a Nader spokesman's suit to force disclosure of the material under the Freedom of Information Act. A U. S. Court Sample warning letters viewed by newsmen were phrased to tell meat or poultry firms they "may have" violated an inspection regulation. The firms are told the matter is being called to their attention so they can voluntarily comply with the rules.

Actually, one official said, the letters are usually sent only after an inspector has seen something he believes to be a violation. But at that stage, the official explained, the matter is treated only as an "allegation" and not a proven violation. This handling of minor matters is authorized by law, officials said.

of Appeals at Richmond, Va., turned down an Agriculture Department appeal.

Department officials said that certain records of meat and poultry "detained" on suspicion will also be kept available for public inspection here.

The department's Consumer and Marketing Service said in a statement the letters are sent "without conclusive judgment that a firm is actually guilty of a violation."

"The purpose of such a warning is to correct a possible violation by voluntary compliance before it develops into a more serious problem," the statement asserted.

Artificial spud helps knowledge on bruising

OTHELLO, Wash. (UPI) — The University of Idaho announced today an artificial potato developed by WSU researchers will help provide information on bruising by mechanical harvesters being demonstrated and evaluated at a field day here Sept. 10.

Robert E. Thornton, WSU extension horticulturist and coordinator of the field day, said "The artificial potato is a piece of equipment developed specifically to study bruising of potatoes during harvest."

He said the field day will deal primarily with evaluating harvesters in terms of overall effectiveness, potato damage, field leavings, tare and rate of harvest.

Thornton said, "All of the evaluations of machinery and information to be given at the field day should help growers improve their harvesting operation and reduce potato damage."

Suppose your lawn has thin, bald spots in it. Does it pay to scatter grass seed over existing grass to "thicken" your lawn?

A lot of money—and time—is wasted merely by scattering grass seed over a hard crust of earth or even on an old lawn. Along the side of a road many weed seeds will fall on hard, unbroken ground and still grow. Some of it that falls on hard, "skinny lawns" will also grow, but there's something you can do to help increase your "take" when seeding into a thin lawn.

Here's what you should do:

(1) Take an iron tooth rake, or one of the many hand tools designed especially to scratch, slice or scarify the soil surface.

(2) Rake up as much of the loose "thatch" as you can. Thatch is nothing more than vegetative debris (leaves, stems, clippings) that build up.

(3) Discard the thatch (put it on compost pile) and then sow the seed so it falls on bare ground.

(4) Scatter a light coating of fine peat moss over the seed.

WATERING: If you can't water the seeding regularly, forget it. It's fatal to water the seeding once or twice and then neglect it after germination has started. Once the seed has started, it needs a continuous supply of moisture, either from rain or a sprinkler. If you have only a few spots to doctor up, I'd make a special effort to keep the seeding watered regularly with a hose. Grass grows well in the cool days of autumn and it fills in the bare spots which are attractive to weeds.

PEACH BUTTERMILK ICE CREAM: The latest issue of PEACH TIMES gives this recipe to home gardeners who have more peaches than they can use, and who want something different. It's for making Peach Buttermilk Ice Cream. One tablespoon (one envelope) unflavored gelatine; one cup sugar, two cups buttermilk, two egg yolks, beaten; one fourth teaspoon salt; two pints whipping cream; one tablespoon vanilla; two cups diced freestone fresh peaches. Crushed ice, rock salt. Mix gelatine and sugar in saucepan; stir in buttermilk. Simmer over low heat, stirring slowly until gelatine is dissolved. Gradually add hot buttermilk mixture to eggs, stirring constantly. Blend in salt, shipping cream and vanilla. Chill thoroughly.

Proceed with freezing, according to manufacturer's directions. Add peaches after the freezing process and before hardening, mixing just enough to blend well. Yield: Two quarts. Note: Use a four to six quart ice cream freezer.

FREEZING TOMATOES: Not everyone is satisfied with tomatoes they put into the freezer. Here's a new wrinkle to try, sent in by a reader: "I've been freezing tomatoes for several years now and find my method best. First, cut out the stem end, hold the tomato upright and cut like a pie in about six wedges. (I use a pie tin for this job as this keeps the juice contained). Lay the wedges skin side down on a cookie sheet and put in deep freezer for three hours or until frozen solid, then package and return to freezer."

"When ready to use remove as many pieces as needed from package and lay out at room temperature for about 10 minutes. Skins will peel off nicely. They can be cut up into a tossed salad or anyway you want to fix them. Don't thaw too long or they will get mushy!"

Green Thumb note: Those of you who have plenty of tomatoes on hand might be interested in trying this trick.

CRICKETS IN HOMES: Crickets are migrating into homes now. Are they injurious? They may damage wool, silk, furs, cotton, linen and rayon clothing, especially if soiled. If you see a few indoors, just sweep them up and toss them outside. Repair loose fitting doors and windows, and caulk cracks in the foundation. Malahon on foundation walls, or around outdoor gathering places is helpful.

EVENING PRIMROSE: There are dozens of plants called "evening primrose" but one that causes a lot of talk is the Dandelion-leaved Sundrop, also called Missouri Primrose (erroneously). This plant looks exactly like a dandelion (it's real name is Oenothera pronounced E'No-thera) sculls. The buds are arrow-shaped, and open every night between 8:30 and 9 p.m., D.S.T.

Within two or three minutes the outer covering rolls back and a lovely pale yellow flower unfolds. Flowers close up during the day. You can divide the plant in spring and have enough for your friends. Does fine in bright sun or in semi-shade, and plant is perfectly hardy in winter. I'd like to hear from others who have one of the various "evening primroses."

TOMATO HORN WORM: That big cigar shaped worm that strips your tomato plants is the Tomato horn worm, or the five-spotted hawkmoth. It develops into a Sphinx moth and not the Luna Moth, as many believe. Control consists of handpicking and putting them in a patch of deadly nightshade (in same family as tomato) or take them out into a field where birds can get at them. The luna moth is light green and delicately marked.

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D. F. of Ida.: "About three weeks ago I dusted some tomato, squash, pumpkin and cucumber plants with an insecticide which had been stored over winter with a weedkiller. A day or so after dusting, the plants were shocked and wilted. Fortunately, a rain came along and some of the plants are recovering. Tomatoes were hardest hit, with some of the fruit deformed and split open.

Some of the new growth is producing fruit. My question is this: Is it safe to eat fruit that does not show any effects and appears normal? Is there any danger that one of the ingredients in the weedkiller can be retained in the plant and transmitted to the fruit? I was in error because the label on both containers were clearly marked with a warning NOT TO STORE NEAR INSECTICIDES, SEEDS, FERTILIZERS, ETC."

Your question is another good reason why we tell home gardeners to go easy with weedkillers. We've had many reports of weedkillers giving off fumes, and contaminating fertilizers or pesticides nearby. It's similar to gasoline fumes being absorbed by foods. The warning on the weedkiller can be proof that adjacent materials can be contaminated simply by adjacent storage.

About the edibility: I wouldn't eat any food crop from a garden for at least a month after exposure to weed killer. Nor would I harvest any crop from plants whose new growth is still distorted. Also, be sure to wash the surface of the fruit with lukewarm soapy water and rinse with plain water before using. If the leaves continue to be distorted, and fruit is showing any signs of abnormality, I'd rather be safe and not use it.

Error in application, plus the fact that weedkillers are potent chemicals — just a little can do a lot of damage — are two good reasons why a hoe or mulch are still the best weedkillers.

B. H. of Twin Falls: "What do you think of Evergreen bitersweet for a foundation planting around our house? I don't want a vine but plan to keep it trimmed and bushy. It gets only morning sun. Will this plant be O.K.?"

Yes, the Evergreen bitersweet (Euonymus radicans var. virginicus) is a fine evergreen vine that can be trained as a shrub or a hedge. It's hardy and will grow in sun or semi-shade. Bright, orange-red berries, highlight the rich green foliage. Trimmed, it will develop into a three foot shrub.

High today 65 to 75, and in the 70s on Monday; low tonight in the 40s. Camas Prairie; Hailey and Lower Wood River Valley; Fair today; partly cloudy with a chance of showers tonight and Monday; cooler with high today in the 60s and 65 to 75 Monday; low tonight in the 30s. Lille change of precipitation. Central Idaho mountains; south of the Salmon River; Fair today; partly cloudy with scattered showers tonight and Monday; cooler; high today and Monday in the 60s; low tonight in the 30s, with a chance of frost. Weather synopsis: Another in a series of dry cold fronts moved across Southern Idaho Saturday afternoon, bringing gusty winds but no precipitation. Winds ranged about 15 to 30 miles an hour in most places in Southern Idaho, but were considerably stronger in Southwest Montana, with Great Falls reporting gusts up to 50 miles per hour at times amid scattered rainfall. Upper-level winds coming into the Northwest were reported very strong Saturday afternoon, pushing a series of surface lows rapidly toward the West Coast. Another low is anticipated early today near the Washington coast, moving eastward into Southern Idaho. In general, wind flow this week will move inland from the west-northwest off the Pacific Ocean. Upper-air soundings in Oregon on Saturday indicated a considerable cooling is in sight for Eastern Oregon and Southern Idaho this week. Temperatures should lower as much as 10 degrees during the days and drop into the 30s and 40s in many places during the nights. The change will mark a continuation of the decline from Friday's highs which hit 93 in Twin Falls and in the 90s in many areas. The extended outlook for the area for the period Monday through Wednesday calls for variable cloudiness with a chance of a few showers in the northern mountains on Monday, then generally fair. Temperatures will remain cool with a slight daytime warming trend.

Tragic lesson by wilderness

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—The wilderness—a "great teacher"—has taught another tragic lesson.

Two young women, about to graduate from the Northwest Outward Bound, part of a worldwide chain of outdoor survival schools, died this month when their lessons failed them during an early-season snowstorm in the Cascade Mountains.

Mrs. Joyce Howden, 21, of Fall Creek, Ore., and Lorene Larhette, 17, of Sudbury, Mass., were on their final endurance trek when the snowstorm hit.

Pamela Sullivan, 18, who was with them, survived. She said Mrs. Howden and Miss Larhette became despondent, collapsed and died from exposure on the lonely ordeal, the final test in the 26-day Outward Bound course.

Outward Bound schools began in England during World War II to help sailors learn how to survive at sea when their ships were sunk. Later, schools were set up in New Zealand, Asia, Holland, Germany and other countries. The first in the U.S. was at Denver, Colo. Others are in Minnesota, Maine, North Carolina, California and Texas.

This summer about 4,000 young men and women went through the Outward Bound course, a rugged, 26-day session in the wilderness.

The schools have highly trained and experienced leaders, but the course, usually set in the roughest area available, is intended to be a self-education experience.

"It depends very much on what the individual is seeking," said Joseph Noid, director of Colorado Outward Bound, the sworn application forms with a veterinarian's signature. Verified complaints could then be cause for revoking licenses.

Gulf firm continues losing way

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—Gulf Resources and Chemical Corp., announced Thursday its operating losses have continued through July and August.

The firm, which owns Bunker Hill Co., at Kellogg, Idaho, had reported a loss of 22 cents per share in the second quarter of this year and said the losses in the past two months will amount to about 35 cents a share.

Gulf, for the first half of the year, reported a loss of eight cents a share.

Gulf blames its continued losses on "lower than normal ore grade and production" at Bunker Hill, low prices prevailing for certain by-products from the mining operations at Bunker Hill and larger than anticipated losses at Great Salt Lake Minerals and Chemicals.

Beet crop looks good

MOSES LAKE, Wash. (UPI)—An optimistic forecast was made today for the 1971 sugar beet crop in Washington.

Lloyd V. Olson, vice president for northwest operations for U and I Sugar Co., Moses Lake, said he anticipates "a good average crop."

Olson said, "I'm optimistic about the outlook."

He noted nights in the Columbia Basin of eastern and central Washington have been rather cool recently and days have been warm — good pre-harvest weather for the crop.

Mind Your Money

By PETER WEAVER (First of two articles)

Americans are buying pedigree or registered dogs so fast, even huge, "puppy-mill" breeding farms can't keep up with the demand.

It's estimated that Americans who are looking for pets, protection or publicity in the show ring, will spend an estimated $300 million on dogs this year. There are 8,000 pet shops and 75,000 breeders (5,000 of commercial size) all straining to supply the booming dog market.

The business has grown so fast, major associations such as the American Kennel Club, which registers purebred dogs, and the government haven't been able to keep up with it. Everybody wants a dog with a pedigree or papers these days so the industry is busily cranking out dogs and "papers" to fit the demand.

Many consumers pay inflated prices because they erroneously equate pedigrees and papers with quality. The American Kennel Club last year registered more than 1 million puppies belonging to 118 recognized breeds. The majority of them came from low-quality breeding stock.

There have even been complaints of "puppy switching" through registry papers. According to Richard Beauchamp, editor and publisher of Kennel Review magazine: "Some unscrupulous breeders claim a bitch has 10 puppies in a litter when she only has six. . . They get four extra papers which they can sell or use for other dogs." Who's to know for sure? Even if a dog's papers are in order, they aren't an indication of quality unless you know the background of the registered parents' performance in the show ring or as hunters.

In Canada, the government regulates the registry and sale of dogs through records kept by the Canadian Kennel Club. Canadian dog breeders and retailers can get a maximum of $500 fine and three months in jail for each count of falsification of registry papers or for failure to supply a registration certificate.

Registered dogs in Canada must have a nose-print or tattoo for identification before they're sold. This acts as a deterrent to "puppy switching" and protects owners against theft. A breeder in Canada can give a buyer two kinds of certificates, depending on the quality of the dog. One says the dog is of breeding quality (conforms to the breed's standards) and the other denote "pet quality" dogs not for breeding.

"Having a government-backed dual certificate system with fixed standards could be the salvation of the dog business in America," says Kennel Review Editor Beauchamp. Buyers would have more protection and would be better able to determine the quality differences between breeding and non-breeding stock.

This might help prevent the sale of runt or freak-color dogs for high prices as "rare specimens of the breed." They are not representative of their breed and have no true resale value.

"Teacup poodles" and "toy cocker spaniels," for example, are being palmed off as something rare. So are white German shepherds and white boxers. They may be cute or pretty but, as freaks, they are next to valueless.

This December, the U.S. Department of Agriculture will take the first step, under a new law, toward regulation of the sale of dogs to the general public. Breeders and dealers who are involved in the sale of dogs for resale will have to have a federal license. Identity of dogs will be checked and there will be minimum standards for care and shipping of animals. Unfortunately, dogs sold directly to the public by retail pet shops or by breeders will be exempt from the new law. USDA claims it would be difficult to poke into every pet shop or amateur's backyard puppy litter. So only wholesalers are covered. The rest could and should be covered by insistence on licenses granted through

Boise State belts Idaho in 42-14 rout

BOISE — Quarterback Eric Guthrie and wide receiver Al Marshall passed and ran Idaho's defensive "wild bunch" team dizzy as the Boise State Broncos stripped away the last vestige of Vandal football prestige with a convincing 42-14 victory Saturday night.

Until Saturday night, the Vandals had the tradition and history of football behind them although tarnished by Idaho State, played the only major schedule of the three Idaho state colleges. But the Broncos, as Idaho aide Bobby Thompson said after the game "got down in the trenches, kicked our fannies and made us like it."

Guthrie completely overwhelmed the Idaho passing secondary with sophomore Don Hutt handling most of the close-in work and 9.4 speedster Marshall taking care of the deep stuff. Marshall also turned in a couple of kick returns. And Guthrie, who was perfect in placement conversions, kept Idaho in its own end of the field almost all night with superb punting.

Idaho had little to boast about, scoring its two touchdowns on long bombs. Its corps of running backs, declared the best ever in the history of the school, was smothered — particularly in the first half when it collected only 16 net yards.

The Vandals also were saying before the game that their fortunes for the year would rise or fall on the performance of sophomore redshirt, Bruce Cole, a Moscow product. Cole, understandably jittery with his first start and such pressure, was less than 30 per cent in his passing.

Idaho had an opportunity early on a Pat Sprute interception at the BSC 30 but a bad option lateral cost Idaho 15 yards on the next play and that was as close as the Vandals came to leading.

Guthrie immediately marshalled the Broncos' 80 yards in nine plays, getting three straight first downs on short throws to Hutt, Ross White and Mike Haley. Then he hit Hutt with a 30-yard touchdown strike.

Early in the second quarter Marshall turned on his speed down the sideline while Guthrie worked a "bootleg" maneuver, then straightened up to complete a 45-yard bomb.

Idaho turned to a little razzle-dazzle after a punt exchange. Cole lateralled to fullback Robert Lee Williams on what looked like a sweep. Suddenly Williams threw a strike to Jay Curcio who went in untouched to complete a 58-yard play. Ricardo Castillo got the first of two point-after.

Boise quickly cut Idaho hopes to swing the momentum. Guthrie ran for 27 yards, losing 15 on a penalty at the end, then threw to Haley for nine and Marshall for 45 to put the ball on the Idaho 13. Dixon cracked the line twice for a first down before Wright went in for the score. Just before halftime, Idaho ran out of punt formation and was downed on its own 39. Guthrie passed to Pat Riley for 17 and then White for 14 and the touchdown to make it 28-7 at halftime.

Boise became a little more cautious offensively in the third period, but its domineering defensive unit got a touchdown. Ray Rodriguez got that when he picked off a Cole screen pass and went 10 yards to score.

The Broncos wrapped up their scoring before Idaho got its final touchdown. Marshall started that with a punt return from his own 30 to the Idaho 22. Sub quarterback Art Berry threw to Bob Stearns for 17 yards to put the ball on the four and Dixon punched it in two plays later from the one.

Idaho's final score came on a 61-yard touchdown pass play from Tom Ponciano to Darrell Burchfield.

Pitt uses late score to stun UCLA by 29-25

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Alternate quarterback Dave Havern drove the Pittsburgh Panthers to a fourth-period touchdown Saturday night for an upset 29-25 victory over the UCLA Bruins in the opening game for both teams.

Star linebacker Ralph Cindrich set up the winning touchdown when he recovered a fumble by UCLA quarterback Clay Gallagher on the Bruins' 40-yard line.

Havern completed one pass for 14 yards to Doug Gindin and then threw a 10-yard scoring aerial to tight end Leslie Block to account for the victory.

The Bruins piled up 18 points in the third period to take a 25-22 lead after Pittsburgh held a 14-7 advantage at halftime.

The first time Pitt got the ball after Cindrich recovered Randy Tyler's fumble, it moved 67 yards in 17 plays with quarterback John Hogan scoring from the 4.

Pittsburgh came back in the second period to march from its 13 to a TD with Hogan passing 21 yards to Gindin.

UCLA moved with less than five minutes left in the second period to score on a 73-yard march. Sophomore quarterback Mike Flores completed a 28-yard pass to Reggie Echols and a 14-yarder to Terry Vernoy with Marv Hendricks scoring from the three.

At the start of the third period, Pitt safety John Moss fumbled the kickoff but recovered the ball on the seven and Hogan was tackled in the end zone two plays later by Craig Campbell for a safety.

UCLA then went ahead as Allan Ellis returned an interception of a Hogan pass 30 yards for a touchdown and the Bruins made good on a two-point conversion.

Kent nips N.C. State at buzzer

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI)—Gordon Ober kicked his third field goal of the game, a 22-yarder with only eight seconds left, to propel Kent State to a 23-21 victory over North Carolina State Saturday night.

Ober had booted another 22-yarder in the second period and hit on a 25-yard field goal early in the fourth period before bringing the Golden Flashes from behind in the waning seconds to nullify a dazzling running performance by Wolfpack sophomore Willie Burden.

Burden, a 201-pound speedster who set a school single game rushing record with 198 yards, had plunged over from the one-yard line with 4:13 remaining to put North Carolina State ahead.

to account for the victory.

Sixkiller, Huskies rip UCSB

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Sonny Sixkiller passed for two touchdowns and 152 yards Saturday, then retired to the sidelines and let understudies take over as the Washington Huskies opened their 1971 football season by crushing outmanned University of California at Santa Barbara 65-7.

It was the largest score run up by a Washington team since 1944 when the Huskies crushed little Whitman College 71-0.

UCSB scored first to the surprise of 56,000 fans, but that was the only time the Gauchos were in the game. Santa Barbara's Randy Palomino passed eight yards to Mike Anton to climax a 57-yard drive.

The Bruins piled up 18 points in the third period to take a 25-22 lead after Pittsburgh held a 14-7 advantage at halftime.

The first time Pitt got the ball after Cindrich recovered Randy Tyler's fumble, it moved 67 yards in 17 plays with quarterback John Hogan scoring from the 4.

Pittsburgh came back in the second period to march from its 13 to a TD with Hogan passing 21 yards to Gindin.

UCLA moved with less than five minutes left in the second period to score on a 73-yard march. Sophomore quarterback Mike Flores completed a 28-yard pass to Reggie Echols and a 14-yarder to Terry Vernoy with Marv Hendricks scoring from the three.

At the start of the third period, Pitt safety John Moss fumbled the kickoff but recovered the ball on the seven and Hogan was tackled in the end zone two plays later by Craig Campbell for a safety.

UCLA then went ahead as Allan Ellis returned an interception of a Hogan pass 30 yards for a touchdown and the Bruins made good on a two-point conversion.

Cowboys' bomb tops K.C. 24-17

DALLAS (UPI)—Craig Morton's 70-yard pass-run play to former Kansas City Chief Glover Richardson with 4:03 left carried the Dallas Cowboys to a 24-17 victory over Kansas City Saturday night and gave the Cowboys the only perfect preseason record in the National Football League.

Richardson, obtained in a trade from the Chiefs during the off-season, pulled in the bomb from Morton on the Chief's 23 yard line and romped untouched for the score which handed Kansas City its first loss in six preseason games.

Until then, the overflow crowd of 74,055 had seen most of the fireworks crammed into the first half when the Cowboy's Roger Staubach and the Chief's Len Dawson each engineered two touchdown drives before both retired for the night.

Oakland batters Colts 24-3

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Ageless George Blanda came off the bench and tossed a clinching 54-yard touchdown pass to Fred Biletnikoff Saturday night as Oakland topped Baltimore 24-3 in a final preseason tuneup game.

Blanda, who will be 44 next week, watched his two younger quarterback rivals — Daryl Lamonica and Ken Stabler — guide the Raiders to a 10-3 lead before he entered the game late in the third period.

Three plays later, Blanda lofted a bomb to Biletnikoff who grabbed the ball with colt defender Charlie Stukes on his back, and raced into the end zone.

The Colts, quarterbacked heavily all the way by Earl Morrill, moved to a first down on the Oakland one midway through the fourth quarter, but the tough Raider defense stopped four consecutive powerbursts into the line.

Freak score helps Michigan defeat Northwestern by 21-6

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI)—A fumble field goal try turned into a freak touchdown for Michigan Saturday as the fifth-ranked Wolverines swept over Northwestern, 21-6.

Bo Rather, a junior split end, got the strange touchdown in the third period when Dana Cain's 51-yard field goal shot fell inches short of the cross bar and Northwestern's Jack Dustin goal-tended the ball, knocking it back from the goal post into the end zone. Rather running downfield to defend against a possible runback, fell on the ball for his second touchdown of the game.

It needed three minutes discussion before the score was signaled and the touchdown was allowed—and then only after Michigan Coach Bo Schembecher called the play to the attention of the officials.

An official observer explained that once the Northwestern defender touched the ball, it became a free ball and the receiving team was responsible for maintaining possession.

Wolverines out of their first-quarter doldrums. Northwestern obtained good field position and Michigan was bottled up in its own end of the field for 21 minutes before it made a first down.

Vikings shut out Miami 24-0

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—Clinton Jones ran for two touchdowns Saturday night as the Minnesota Vikings shut out the Miami Dolphins 24-0 in the final pre-season game for both teams.

Jones returned the opening kickoff 69 yards to the Miami 27 and six plays later twisted and pushed his way in from the 10 to give the Vikings a 7-0 lead.

On the following kickoff, Hubert Ginn fumbled the ball for the Dolphins and Minnesota's Leo Hayden recovered on the Miami 25.

Quarterback Bobby Lee, who started his second pre-season game for Minnesota, completed a pass to Bobby Grim for Minnesota's first down at the 14, but the Vikings were forced to settle for a 20-yard field goal by Fred Cox.

Malmstrom led the male contingent with a two-over par 75 while Mrs. Merritt posted an 87 to lead the women.

The tournament will conclude with 18 holes Sunday.

The eighth annual tournament attracted a record field of 106.

32nd straight

BOISE (UPI) — The Borah Lions, who haven't subleased occupancy of Southern Idaho Conference football supremacy since 1967, bludgeoned Skyline of Idaho Falls Saturday 34-0 at Bronco Stadium.

It was the 32nd consecutive triumph for Coach Dee Pankrat's Lions, dating back to 1967.

From an opening kickoff two-point safety to a final touchdown-plunge by halfback Mike Holten, Borah dominated the play and limited the Grizzlies to just 63 yards on the ground and one of 18 completions in the air.

Colorado pins 31-21 upset on 8th-rated LSU

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—Colorado tailback Charlie Davis gained 174 yards through an experienced Louisiana State line and scored two touchdowns, one a sweeping 47-yard run, in a 31-21 upset of the 8th ranked Tigers Saturday night.

Colorado's offense, led by sophomore quarterback Ken Johnson, dominated the game for most of the night, while LSU only was able to sustain one long touchdown drive.

On their second possession of the game, the Buffaloes drove 83 yards to score on a seven yard pass from Johnson to split end Willie Nichols with three seconds left in the first quarter. Johnson worked the triple option for short gains during the 19-play drive, and completed five of six short passes.

LSU shut down Johnson's passing somewhat in the second quarter, but the Buffaloes went to their ground game, calling on Davis for repeated gains of five to 10 yards.

The first two LSU touchdowns belonged to quarterback Paul Lyons.

Arkansas wallops California

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—Arkansas' Joe Ferguson, making his first start as a college quarterback, rifled two touchdown passes and ran for a third Saturday night to lead his steamrolling Razorbacks to a 51-20 rout of California.

Skipper DeBorde, the Razorbacks' rugged fullback, scored twice on runs of 10 and one yards and Bill McClard, who holds the collegiate NCAA field goal record of 60 yards, kicked a 52-yard field goal and six extra points to add to the damage.

California quarterback Reed Chastang left the game with an injury near the end of the first half. Junior college transfer Jay Cruze directed the Golden Bears for the rest of the game.

Texas Tech falls to Tulane

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Sophomore Ricky Hebert ran for two touchdowns and caught a two-point conversion pass as Tulane defeated Texas Tech 15-9 Saturday night in the season opener for both teams.

The Red Raiders were ahead 9-7 until 9:40 in the fourth quarter, when a punt by kicker Johnny Odom was blocked by Mike Truax and recovered on the five yard line by Bob Waldron, setting up the winning touchdown.

Tech's desperation bid for victory fell short when quarterback Charles Napper's fourth down pass was incomplete and Tulane took over on their own 15-yard line.

Texas A-M smothers Wichita

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI)—Texas A&M quarterback Lex James accounted for two touchdowns and fullback Doug Nell scored on two short plunges Saturday night to lead the Aggies to a 41-7 intersectional victory over the youthful Wichita State Wheatshockers.

James, a senior who missed spring training with an attack of infectious hepatitis, scored on a six-yard run after a scoreless first quarter and tossed a 18-yard touchdown strike to wingback Joey Here.

Nell scored each time he carried the ball in the second quarter, diving in from 2 and 1 yards out.

Nebraska opens on easy 34-7 win over Oregon

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Nebraska's No. 1 ranked Cornhuskers under the expert guidance of quarterbacks Jerry Tagge and Van Brownson, lived up to their pre-season reputation Saturday with a comparatively easy 34-7 victory over the Oregon's Ducks.

Tagge, a senior, was at the throttle for Nebraska's first three scoring drives which covered 67, 53 and 59 yards.

Coody fashions two-stroke lead in golf world series

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Charlie Coody, a lanky Texan who used to put limits on how much money he wanted to win, put himself in "danger" of winning the $50,000 first prize in the World Series of Golf Saturday when he fired a two under par 68 for a three-stroke lead at the mid-way point of the two-round tournament.

Defending champion and favorite Jack Nicklaus was second at 71; Lee Trevino third at 72; and Bruce Crampton of Australia brought up the rear in the four-man field at 73.

Two of Nebraska's first three scoring marches came after a Cornhusker defender had picked off a Fouts pass. Bruce Mason hauled in one and Jim Anderson intercepted one of Nebraska's one to set the stage for Tagge's longest drive of the day.

But on this first hot and then cool hazy day, it was Coody, the Master's champion from Abilene, Tex., who stormed out into the early lead by birdying three of the first seven holes and then defying his three title rivals to catch him.

Coody's lead was cut to two strokes at one point, before he banked an 18-foot birdie putt on the 17th green to boost it back to three strokes.

Coody, competing in the World Series for the first time in its 10-year history, shot a two under par 33 on the first nine with birdies on the second, third and seventh holes and a bogey on the ninth. Coming back, he bogied the 10th and had that birdie on the 17th for an even par 35.

Coody, tall and taciturn, won his first major championship this year when he took the Master's title at Augusta, Ga., in April. At that time, he stated his golf's aim to win $50,000 a year and then go home to Texas; "If I could win that in the first three months of the year, you wouldn't see me for dust," he said then.

But the 34-year-old super putter now has earned $92,348 this year and the $50,000 first prize here would nearly triple his previous goals.

Coody picked up his first birdie on the second hole when he blasted his third shot out of the trap to within 20 inches of the cup and then holed out. He came right back with another bird on the second when he ramed his five-iron second shot 3 1-2 feet from the pin and sank that putt. His most brilliant shot of the day came in the seventh when he put his two-iron tee shot eight inches from for an easy birdie.

He seemed in danger of coming apart when he bogied the ninth and 10th back-to-back, trapping his tee shot on both holes and missing a four foot putt on the 10th. But then he steadied down for six par before his clutch birdie on the 17th.

He started the scoring parade again in the second half by scooting 66 yards for another touchdown, picking up a wall of blockers on the way.

Andy Johnson directed the Georgia attack 78 yards for one touchdown — that on his eight yard keeper — and later darted 12 for another score after faking a pass.

Georgia shellacks Beavers

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — Buzzy Rosenberg shredded tackles and Jerseys while returning punts 66 and 79 yards for touchdowns Saturday and the Georgia Bulldogs put on a dazzling offensive show to bury Oregon State, 56-25.

Rosenberg, a five-foot nine-inch defensive wrath, broke up a scoreless deadlock halfway through the first period by returning Bob McKenzie's punt from his own 21, leaving part of his jersey behind as he wove and leaped over fallen Beavers enroute to a score.

He started the scoring parade again in the second half by scooting 66 yards for another touchdown, picking up a wall of blockers on the way.

Kansas turns interceptions into 34-0 whitewash of WSU

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Kansas turned three interceptions into touchdowns Saturday, employing the running of Dan Heck, Steve Conley and Jerome Nelloms to demolish Washington State 34-0.

Heck and Conley accounted for three first-half touchdowns as the Jayhawks swept the Cougars' flanks at will, sending Washington State reeling to its 10th straight defeat over a two-season span.

Heck, a senior quarterback, guided the Jayhawks 76 yards, scoring from the 11, after the opening kickoff. Kansas' next touchdowns were a direct result of interceptions of Cougar quarterback Ty Paine.

Mark Geraghty, Joe Shannon and Tommy Oakson turned in the defensive gems, leaving the Jayhawks touchdown drives of 32, 45, and 6 yards.

Conley drove over left tackle from six yards out midway through the second quarter for 14-0 lead after Geraghty's theft. Washington State, desperately trying to get on the scoreboard, was victimized by Shannon at the Cougar 45. Heck needed only five plays to score, passing 11 yards to Conley.

Oakson picked off a deflected pass near the end of the third quarter and scampered 30 yards to the Washington State six. Nelloms scored on a sweep from the five.

Sophomore Delvin Williams raced 12 yards for the last touchdown after the Jayhawks took advantage of a 38-yard pass interference.

The victory successfully inaugurated the head coaching career of Don Fambrough, who was an assistant 23 years before succeeding Pepper Rodgers last January. Fambrough is the first Jayhawk coach of the last eight to break in with a victory.

Utags' field goal tops Kansas State

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI) — Precision passing by Tony Adams set up a 43-yard field goal by Mickey Doyle with 7:33 remaining Saturday to give Utah State a 10-7 win over Kansas State.

Adams hooked up with backs John Strycula for 11 yards and Tom Forzini for eight and 17 yards to set up Doyle's winning boot.

The last quarter drive began at the Aggie 27 and would have lasted only one series of downs, but for a clipping call against Kansas State on the fourth-down punt. That gave the Aggies the ball on their own 45.

Linebacker Ray Cottolico set up Utah State's first score when he picked off a Dennis Morrison pass at the Wildcat 45. Five rushes later, halfback Ed Giles snaked 15 yards on a draw play to score with 1:31 to go in the first half.

Kansas State tied the score early in the fourth when fullback Bill Butler cracked over from the two, climaxing an 11-play, 96-yard drive. Morrison, off target most of the day, hit wingback Chris Chapin for a 20-yarder to set up the touchdown.

The Wildcats let three first-half scoring chances slip away as kicker John Goerger missed field goals of 36, 16 and 45 yards, the last one narrowly off target.

Adams connected on nine of 17 tosses for 130 yards. Morrison hit only five in 18 with one interception. Adams' favorite target was split end Bob Wicks, who grabbed five for 72 yards.

Last year on opening day, Kansas State blasted Utah State, 37-0.

Carey nabs second 22-0 win

CARY — The Carey Panthers racked up their second straight shutout victory Friday afternoon, whitewashing the Rimrock Raiders 22-0.

It was the second straight 22-0 decision for the Panthers and set up a battle of undefeated teams next week when the Gamas County Mustangs invade Carey. It will be the first of two meetings for the club and the Snake River eight-man conference titlist is expected to come from one or the other.

Chrigel Hofstetter threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to Shane Thatcher to open Carey's scoring in the first period but the point after failed.

In the second period, Dick Simpson blocked a Rimrock punt, scooped up the ball on the move and went 55 yards to score. He tacked on the two extra points.

Carey wound up scoring in the third period, marching to the two-yard line and sending Simpson across from there.

Double Delta wins Beldame

NEW YORK (UPI) — Double Delta held off a strong stretch bid by heavily-favored Shuvee at Belmont Park Saturday to win the 33rd running of the $2,850 Beldame stakes for fillies and mares.

Settling into the stretch with a four-length lead, Double Delta had to be sharply roused by Kenny Knapp in the drive to score by a half length. Shuvee, winner of last year's Beldame, was 10 lengths in front of Cahty Honey, the third-place finisher in the field of seven.

Double Delta, who had finished second, a neck back of Shuvee in the Diana Handicap at Saratoga in their only previous meeting, earned $49,710 to boost her winnings for the year to $214,504.

It was the ninth win and sixth stakes victory this season for the 5-year-old daughter of Delta Judge-Bantu who sped the distance in 1:48 3-5 over a sloppy track, three-fifths of a second off Shuvee's stakes record.

Stanford blanks Missouri

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — Don Bunce emerged as Jim Plunkett's successor Saturday and steered Stanford to an easy 19-0 victory over Missouri with a decisive 28-yard touchdown pass to sophomore flanker John Wineberry.

Fullback Hillardy Shockey bolted 45 yards for Stanford's first score and Rod Garcia added field goals of 44 and 28 yards, as the Indians handed the Tigers their first shut-out defeat in 38 games.

Defensively, Stanford was superb. Missouri failed to negotiate a first down until its eighth possession and crossed the 50 only once under its own power.

Bunce, a 6-1, 196-pound premed student who played in Plunkett's shadow for two seasons before being redshirted last year, got Stanford's offense untracked early in the second quarter.

On a second and 10 from his own 48, Bunce skirted right end on an option play and pitched back to Shockey at the Missouri 45. The 220-yard fullback crashed down the right sideline, bolting over defender Lorenzo Brinkley at the 30. The play spanned 52 yards and gave the Indians a 9-0 lead.

Defensive back Dennis Brag-olier recovered a Missouri fumble at the Stanford 26 with less than four minutes left in the half, and it took Bunce just four plays to put the game away.

He passed 26 yards to split end Miles More and two plays later, with 3:05 left in the half, threw a strike to Wineberry for the touchdown.

Minnesota overpowers Indiana

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Quarterback Craig Curry passed for three touchdowns, all set up by turnovers, to lead the University of Minnesota to a 28-0 victory over Indiana University Saturday in a Big Ten Conference football game.

The Gophers jumped to a 7-1 first-quarter lead when Indiana halfback Rick Hoffman fumbled the first play from scrimmage at his own 30.

On four down and four yards to go, Curry passed to junior Doug Kingsbury, who carried the ball 17 yards to the Indiana seven-yard line. Fullback Ernie Cook rushed to the six, then pulled over on the next play. Mel Anderson kicked the extra point.

The Gophers added three more scores after another Indiana fumble, a blocked punt and a pass interception off Hoosier quarterback Greg Brown.

Wood runs W. Va. past Boston

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Pete Wood ran for a school record 214 yards, scoring two touchdowns and setting up another, to power West Virginia to a 45-14 season opening victory over mistake-prone Boston College Saturday.

The Mountaineers struck for three touchdowns after recovering fumbles by Boston College's Bill Bennett and got another score when a bungled punt attempt gave them the ball at the BC eight-yard line.

Wood, a senior, ran 27 yards up the middle for West Virginia's first touchdown, scored another on a one-yard plunge and also speed away on a 65-yard run to set up a touchdown. He also had gains of 33 and 17 yards.

Moss questions turf safety

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Citing a study indicating that synthetic turf causes additional football injuries, Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., asked manufacturers Saturday to provide safety data on their project.

Moss said he was "gravely concerned over a recent study by Dr. James Garrick of the University of Washington indicating that synthetic turf may cause almost 50 per cent more injuries than grass fields."

Ohio State rebuilds in hurry

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Quarterback Don Lamka and fullback John Bledsoe combined for 251 yards rushing and six touchdowns to lead rebuilt Ohio State to a surprisingly easy 52-21 win over Iowa here Saturday in the Big Ten and season opener for both teams.

Lamka, who spent the last two years as a defensive back after being recruited as a quarterback, scored on runs of 21, 19, 6 and 1 yards and gained 100 yards, many on broken tackles, in 15 carries.

Bledsoe, who had only three minutes playing time behind All-American John Brockington last year, scored on runs of 11 and 3 yards and picked up 151 yards in 27 carries.

The other Ohio State scoring came on a 10 yard run by sophomore Elmer Lippert and a 39 yard field goal by Fred Schramm who also kicked six consecutive extra points. Iowa, making its debut under first year head Coach Frank Lauterbur who came to the Hawkeyes from the University of Toledo where his teams ran up a string of 23 consecutive wins, fell behind 17-0 in the first period and was never in the game.

The Hawkeyes picked up touchdowns on a 1-yard plunge by Frank Holmes, a 10-yard pass from Frank Sunderman to Tom Cabelka and a 7-yard run by Levi Mitchell.

Both teams got off to a shaky start, largely due to inexperience, and both teams fumbled four times apiece in the first half.

8 gridders die in bus mishap

GARFIELD, Colo. (UPI) — Nine persons — eight members of the Gunnison High School junior varsity football team and a coach — were killed Saturday when a bus carrying them to a football game careened off Monarch Pass in the south central Colorado Rockies.

There were 47 persons on the bus, including the driver. Numerous injured coaches and players were taken to the nearby Salida, Colo., hospital or flown to St. Luke's Hospital in Denver.

Four of those killed were dead at the scene of the crash, about six miles east of the summit of the 11,312-foot pass. Two more died at Salida, two were declared dead on arrival at St. Luke's and another died in the emergency room at the Denver hospital.

Kentucky tips Tigers on runback

CLEMSON, S.C. (UPI) — Kentucky sophomore Doug Kotar turned in a 98-yard kickoff return on his first varsity play Saturday and the Wildcats added two field goals to beat Clemson, 13-10.

Kotar's runback put the Wildcats ahead with on 13 seconds gone in the game and they held the lead until a fluke play in the final period allowed Clemson to temporarily tie the score.

Clemson, trailing 10-3 and deep in its own territory, punted to Kentucky's Buzz Burnam. Burnam touched the ball just as it rolled into the end zone and Clemson's Smiley Sanders jumped on it for the tying touchdown.

Six minutes later, Kentucky drove deep into Clemson territory and when the Tigers held at their nine-yard line, Thomas Kirk came in and kicked the winning 27-yard field goal.

Earlier, Kirk had kicked a 34-yard field goal.

Karlson and Bell speed Burley past Minico 20-0

BURLEY — Kerry Karlson and Larry Bell stunned Minico with two long scoring runs in the opening six minutes and the Bobcats drove for the clinching touchdown in the fourth period to drop the Spartans 20-0 Friday night. It was the first victory for Burley Coach Bob Mathews in the cross-river rivalry and the first loss for Minico coach

Corky Hiff after three wins. Burley dominated the game, including the final half when the deposters had it figured that Minico's weight and depth advantage might wear the Bobcats down. Burley received the opening kickoff but had to punt, escaping a poor hike from center to get the ball to mid-field. Minico couldn't go and kicked back. But the ball came off the side of the punter's foot and went to the right sideline — while Minico was covering down the middle. Karlson picked it off on the first hip and outpied the only three Spartans that had a chance of catching him. Phil Schenk tackled on the first of two extra points.

After the ensuing kickoff Minico punted to Burley's 14 yard line. Fullback Brent Larsen slammed off tackle for eight yards and on the next play speedy Larry Bell cut off tackle, went back against the grain and once in, the clear there was no one capable of touching him. Ken Condie blocked the point-after. Burley made another move early in the second quarter, mounting a sustained drive, but the Spartans stopped them on the 12 and for the next 28 minutes of playing time there were no real threats.

About midway through the final period Burley started its final drive from its own 41-yard line. It picked up two first downs on four running plays and then benefitted from two face-mask 15-yard penalties that provided two more first downs, the last one at the eight-yard line. Karlson scored from there on a reverse.

Hutchison, Trojans top Hansen MALTA — Little Del Hutchison staged an all-round football display Friday night to lead the undefeated Raft River Trojans to a 50-0 decision over the young Hansen Huskies.

Hutchinson scored three times, picked off passes and returned kicks as remained a thorn in Hansen's side. Raft River scoring in the first three and one-half minutes when Sam Petterson sailed 27 yards. A few minutes later, Hutchison got his first TD on a 35-yard sprint.

In the second period, Leon Paskett threw a 20-yard scoring pass to Phil Thompson. Hutchison intercepted a Hansen pass moments later, returning it 50 yards to the Hansen 20. Three plays later, he went up the middle for seven yards and his second score. Patterson got the extra points.

Wally Ward's fumble recovery set up Raft River's first third-quarter score, Patterson getting it on a 34-yard ramble Hutchison scored again on a two-yard drive with Paskett hitting Thompson for the conversion.

Hutchison then returned a punt 45 yards to the Hansen 20. The Trojans were hit by a 15-yard penalty but Patterson ripped for 20 on the next play and Hutchison got the last 15 seconds later. Patterson got the two points.

Hansen's best scoring effort ended in a fumble at the Raft River two-yard line.

NAMPA — A pitchout interception and a 23-yard bomb gave Twin Falls two quick touchdowns midway through the fourth period Friday night and lifted them past the young and stubborn Nampa Bulldogs 20-19.

Nampa, relying on sophomores both offensively and defensively in spots, gave the touted Twin Falls ground defense more than it wanted in the first half when the host team pushed into a 20-19 margin. But just as last week when the Bruins nipped Rancho of Las Vegas 21-20, the kicking toe of junior Brent Fenstermaker provided the difference.

Nampa opened the scoring in the first period when Jim Baker went in from seven yards away. The Bulldogs added two more in the second when Steve Hoalst and Doug Bender ran for

Jerome downs G.F. 14-6 in last half

JEROME — The Jerome Tigers finally solved a sticky Glenns Ferry defense in the third quarter to break a scoreless deadlock and went on to post a 14-6 decision Friday night.

Although Glenns Ferry was bottled up offensively most of the night, the smaller Pilots were stubborn defensively in their own territory. Jerome, which would up with 249 yards rushing and 58 passing, finally got the spark it needed from frosh Norm Cochran and senior Jeff Weigle.

Cochran, a 6-2, 190-pound freshman, got Jerome on the scoreboard in the third period when he blocked a Glenns Ferry punt, the ball rebounding off his chest and going through the end zone for a safety.

The next time Jerome got the ball the Tigers rolled 85 yards in 11 plays. Weigle got a key 23-yard sprint in the middle of it and then wound it up by scoring from 20 yards away.

Midway through the final period Jerome pulled out of reach when Rich Watson capped another drive by going in from the one-yard line.

Glenns Ferry used a fumble recovery as a springboard for its touchdown late in the game. A 15-yard penalty moved the Pilots to the Jerome 25 and a few plays later Paul Shrum bucked in from the one. The pass for conversion fell incomplete.

Boosters meet Game film of the Twin Falls-Nampa non-conference battle will be shown when Bruin Boosters meet at 7 a.m. Tuesday in the Depot Grill Caboose Room, reminds Dr. John McKain, booster president.

Valley hits late, tips Kimberly EDEN-HAZELTON — Jim Ritchie and Robin English scored second half touchdowns Friday night to lift the Valley Vikings past the Kimberly Bulldogs 20-13 in the opening Little Five league game for both clubs.

Kimberly scored early when Wes Remaley shook loose on a 70-yard scamper — and Mike Westfall booted the point-after. But Valley's Jim Tatterall nullified that when he returned an intercepted pass 15 yards. However, Kimberly blocked the point-after kick.

The halftime gun found Kimberly driving at the Valley 25. Valley took the lead in the third period when Ritchie went 20 yards to cap a drive and Tim Brulotte rolled out for the two points that left Kimberly behind for the night.

The Bulldogs scored early in the fourth period when Remaley went in from the seven-yard line but Valley arose to stop the two-point play. The Vikings added insurance in the final period when Brulotte hit English with a 35-yard scoring strike. The point-after was blocked.

Headed for touchdown

BURLEY'S KERRY KARLSON, about to get held on a block from teammate Richard Hunter (22) sets sail in the early stages of a game-opening 73-yard punt return against the Minico Spartans Friday night. Karlson's run came in the first three and one-half minutes and pointed Burley to a 20-0 decision.

Gooding mounts 22-0 margin, outlasts Shoshone by 30-20

GOODING — The Gooding Senators, after a fitful start, boomed into a 22-0 halftime lead Friday night and outlasted the Shoshone Indians 30-20 in a Big Six league battle.

Shoshone had two good chances at the outset, a bad pass from center giving the Indians the ball on the 20 and an intercepted pass, returned 39 yards to the 11. But in each case field goal attempts missed. Early in the second period Gooding mounted a 55-yard drive with Gary Gorrell ending it on a 25-yard bootleg run. Fred Cheslik went off tackle for the first of three two-point conversions.

Minutes later, after an interception and fumble exchange, Gooding mounted another 45-yard drive, Gorrell going in from the three on a sneak. Late in the period, Gorrell and Jeff LaCroix hooked up on a 61-yard scoring bomb, Gorrell then throwing to Mike Anderson for the two extra points.

Another bad snap from center set shoshone up for its first score in the third period. Pagoaga cashed it in on a one-yard sneak. Two plays after the ensuing kickoff, Gooding lost a fumble and Shoshone immediately scored again, this time on a 25-yard pass from Kinghorn to Chatterton.

Shoshone cut the deficit to two points when it intercepted another Gooding pass. After two short passes, Kinghorn swept end for the last three yards and Thompson went up the middle for the two-point conversion.

Gooding then drove for the clinching touchdown, moving mostly on dive plays from Shoshone's 44-yard line to the 10. Thompson swept end for the six points and Cheslike got the extra points.

Oakley stops 2-point play to nip Murtaugh

OAKLEY — The Oakley Hornets got a game-saving tackle from Don Bedke to prevent a two-point conversion play by Murtaugh in the last minute and nip the Red Devils 14-13 in Magic Valley Conference action.

Murtaugh, although outstated throughout the afternoon, snapped back from an Oakley touchdown and two-point conversion to score in the closing 90 seconds. That came on a 22-yard pass from Steve Stanger to John Flynn. The Devils tried the same pass play for the two points but Bedke managed to hold Flynn up just outside the goal line until help arrive to make the final stop. Even then Flynn's head was in the end zone when the play was over.

Oakley went for its first touchdown on the opening series, the payoff coming on a 12-yard flat pass from Severe to Bedke.

But Murtaugh took the lead in the second period on a 35-yard scoring bomb from Stanger to Don Brads. Flynn kicked the extra point to give Murtaugh a 7-6 lead.

It stayed like that until about three minutes remained in the game. Then Severe threw an 18-yard to Bedke for the touchdown and rolled out for the decisive extra two points.

Rick Denny took the ensuing kickoff 55 yards to the Oakley 22-yard line to set up the final showdown.

HAGERMAN — The Declo Hornets rode the scoring of Gaylen Osterhout and Robb Ridling into an 18-0 Magic Valley Conference victory over the Hagerman Pirates Friday night.

The teams battled through the first half without scoring. But Ridling got Declo on the scoreboard in the third quarter when he capped a short drive by sneaking for the last yard.

Just before the half ended, Osterhout ended another Declo drive with a 10-yard sprint and he got the last one from seven yards away.

Utags lose Williams, Owens goes unclaimed

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nate Williams was the first of five "hardship cases" chosen by National Basketball Association teams Friday in a supplementary draft.

Williams, a 6-foot-5 swingman from Utah State, was picked by the Cincinnati Royals after being passed up by Cleveland, Buffalo and Portland.

Cyrille Baptiste, a 6-foot-9 center-forward from Creighton, was the pick of the Golden State Warriors. The fourth and final player to be picked on the first round was 6-foot-4 guard Phil Chenier, from the University of California at Berkeley. Chenier was chosen by the Baltimore Bullets.

Joe Hammond, a 6-foot-4 guard who did not attend college, was selected by the Los Angeles Lakers on the fourth round. Hammond, rated by many observers as the best player to come out of the Harlem playgrounds, had been extended an invitation to work out by coach Lou Carnesecca of the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association.

Jack Dolph, the commissioner of the ABA announced that 11 undergraduates had been named to the loop's hardship list. In addition to Payne, Baptiste, Chenier, and Williams those named were Mickey Davis of Duquesne University, Ed Lettwich of North Carolina State, Michael Meade of Hartford University, Curtis Pritchett of St. Augustine and Joby Wright of Indiana. Allen Raphael and Anthony Reed were added to the list with no college designated.

Africa continent in change

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)—The recurrence of coups, the lynching of political opponents, the outbreak of border hostilities and continuing civil wars embroiling a dozen nations in recent months are a reminder Africa is still a complex continent in flux.

"It's like a vast and active volcanic region. You never know where to expect the next eruption," an Israelat posted here once said.

The woes of modern Africa began a decade or so ago when yesterday's colonies emerged to form today's 41 free states of the Organization of African Unity (OAU).

The changing colors of the map prompted Harold Macmillan, former British prime minister, to ask in a speech to the South African parliament in 1960:

"As I see it, the great issue of this second half of the 20th century is whether the uncommitted peoples of Asia and Africa will swing to the East or to the West. Will they be drawn into Communist camp? Or will the great experiments in self-government ... prove so successful and by their example so compelling that the balance will come down in favor of freedom and order and justice?"

Macmillan's fears of Communist penetration have been dispated by the Sino-Soviet split that in Africa has meant Russia and Mainland China have gone their separate ways.

Meet slated Tuesday

IDAHO FALLS — Bonneville Power Administration officials said Friday that a public meeting scheduled for Grouse Creek, Utah, will consider the proposed bridge, Idaho, to Montello, Nev., transmission line.

Emanuel G. Asp, area BPA manager at Idaho Falls, said the public meeting has been called to consider the environmental statement for fiscal 1973 of the power-generating and transmission facility. The meeting will begin at 2 p.m. Tuesday, in the LDS Ward Church at Grouse Creek, Utah.

Federal agencies proposing a major activity are required by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 to file a statement explaining the projects environmental aspects and impact. The BPA statement covers its entire fiscal 1963 construction, with emphasis on the Idaho-to-Nevada transmission line and the environmental problems involved.

All interested citizens are invited to attend and to express their views, Asp said.

On March 23, 1889, President Benjamin Harrison announced the unassigned lands of Oklahoma would be opened for settlement on April 22.

Union Pacific helps keep Idaho products in the market

Union Pacific's fast, efficient service and low freight rates help keep Idaho's basic products competitive in expanded market places.

In face of spiraling wage and equipment costs, which have increased 75 percent over the past fifteen years, it is surprising that Union Pacific rates in some instances are actually lower in 1971 than five or even ten years ago.

This is more remarkable considering the shrinking value of the dollar which today is worth only 72 cents of what it was ten years back.

Despite these zooming costs and inflation, some U.P. rates have dropped.

For instance, fresh potatoes, a backbone product in Idaho's economy, can now be shipped to Chicago, from Idaho Falls for $1.38 per cwt. compared to $1.43 in 1958. Potatoes from Idaho Falls to St.

Louis cost $1.21 per cwt. in 1961 and just $1.15 per cwt. in 1971.

Dry fertilizer to Des Moines today costs just $14.66 per ton compared to $16.10 in 1962.

Intra-state phosphate rock shipments from Gay to Don cost .64 per ton today compared to .71 in 1963.

Other Idaho rail rates on the Union Pacific are only slightly higher today than they were five and ten years ago.

The reductions have been made possible by bigger cars, more power, increased volume, computerized operations, and other factors. They do not represent general overall freight reductions. They do show, however, how Union Pacific strives continually to provide lowest possible freight rates to keep basic Idaho products competitively strong in as many market places as possible.

Helping to build a strong industrial Idaho.

Reconsider sale, Cenarrusa asks

BOISE (UPI)— Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa Friday urged fellow members of the State Land Board to reconsider their decision to sell 620 acres of land near Sun Valley for a minimum of $356,000.

Cenarrusa, who said he will make a formal request by letter to Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, Land Board president, for the reconsideration, said his proposal was based on "additional information I have acquired."

He indicated that the appraised price of $575 per acre may be only a fraction of what the land is really worth and that, even though the acreage will be sold to the highest bidder perhaps the minimum, appraised price should be raised.

Cenarrusa said the Land Board always has taken the position it wishes to acquire the maximum amount of money for the endowment funds when it sells state land in addition to boosting the tax rolls of the state's various counties. He said his decision to write the governor also was made in this light.

Saying the Land Board's unanimous decision to sell the acreage in two tracts of more than 300 acres each could have been "hasty" in light of information received. He said he had additional information concerning:

- Valuation of property in the near proximity of the land in question.
- The desire for many persons to acquire parcels of land in this area.
- A need for a study to determine the highest and best use for the land.
- A possibility that Blaine County tax revenue will be minimal should this land be sold and identified as agricultural land at the time of sale.

"We're finding that in the near proximity the land is being subdivided and being appraised for sale at many thousands of dollars," Cenarrusa said, adding the appraisal put on the land by a Land Department employe "could be low."

Situated about two miles east of Ketchum and adjacent to the Sun Valley Resort, the land presently is leased for grazing to Sun Valley Company, Inc. Harry Holmes, president of Sun Valley Company, Inc., and Gayle Holmes are the applicants for sale of the land.

In addition to questioning the appraisal put on the land, Cenarrusa said he also felt an ecological study of the land and the area in which it is located should be made.

"I feel the ecological effects of further development in this area should be considered," he said, when questioned on that point. "We should sell it for its highest and best use and this is something that requires a study."

"I think there should be a study of the feasibility of breaking it into smaller tracts so that the highest and best use feature could be applied."

"A large number of Idahoans should have the opportunity to purchase this land," he said.

"the often-mentioned 'little man' cannot afford to pay 10 per cent down on a large tract of land such as those the Land Board has offered for sale."

Cenarrusa said he also plans to suggest the Land Board "write deeds to the land with restrictive covenants regarding the ecology to assure that the optimum 'quality of life' is maintained in this scenic and fragile area."

A former state representative from Blaine County, Cenarrusa has ranched for many years at Carey. As a former legislator from the area who is acquainted with its residents he said he was "desirous of Blaine County citizens and the people in the state of Idaho getting the utmost of consideration."

At the time the board considered sale of the land, Cenarrusa — only Republican on the five-member board — suggested it be broken into smaller tracts.

Additionally, Cenarrusa recommended it be widely advertised and not just in publications in Blaine County.

NEW FALL SHOWS
PREVIEW THE WEEK OF SEPT. 13th - 19th

Glen's show still going

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Glen Campbell was curled in a knot of sleep on the couch of his dressing room, dozing off while the television monitor flickered with rehearsals of his show.

Awakened, the broad-shouldered singer stretched lazily and allowed as how sleeping was more enjoyable than golf or working.

He does a great deal of all three.

Campbell is also deft at survival in a year that saw networks drop more musical-variety shows than in any season.

The goners: Johnny Cash, Engelbert Humperdinck, Tom Jones, Andy Williams, Jim Nabors, Ed Sullivan, Don Knotts, Lawrence Welk and "Hee Haw."

Still on the air with Campbell are Flip Wilson, Carol Burnett and Dean Martin.

"I might have helped the networks overload themselves with musical shows," Glen said, yawning. "See when I went on the air in the summer of 1968 I had some hit records going for me and the ratings were good."

"Well," said Campbell in his native Arkansas wisdom, "the networks see a good rating and they all jump on the bandwagon. In this case the singing wagon.

"But they overdid it. When you get too many of the same kind of shows on the air it kills almost all of them. The three networks are trying to knock each other off by using the same programming. That's why you can't see Johnny Carson, Merv Griffin and Dick Cavett on a given night. You have to take your choice."

Campbell is the sort of country bumpkin who buys the Brooklyn Bridge and sells it at a profit to a city slicker.

He's smart, talented and shrewd enough to hang in there while other minstrels slide down television's tube. It's not accidental he's been renewed while other, perhaps better, singers have been eighty-sixed.

Campbell's technique is embracing his electronic audience with a warm and sincere approach to what he's doing. He looks straight into the camera, relaxed and with little affectation.

A two handicap golfer, Campbell might have mistaken a 9-iron for a hoe on his father's farm 30 years ago.

Today the country boy knows precisely what he's doing.

Green with jealousy

ALBERT MILLER (Larry Hagman) talks his wife into going to a charity ball with his employer's son, then changes his mind when a handsome playboy is attracted to her, all in the Sept. 25 episode of "The Good Life."

Johnny Carson frolics on and off air at whim

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Talk show viewers, and those citizens who have a remote idea of who and what Johnny Carson is, generally conclude he frolics on and off the air at his own whim giving NBC a rough time.

For whatever reason he gives the impression of irresponsibility.

Comedians have a stock joke: "I wish I had a job like Johnny's. I wouldn't have to work."

The gags and criticisms emerge from Carson's on-again-off-again appearances on his own "Tonight" show. He takes frequent vacations, occasional four-day weekends, and seems to be forever having a "guest host" sit in for him.

One would think NBC would be infuriated with its Peck's Bad Boy.

To the contrary, the network defends him as a mother might a mischievous son. It may not be that the corporation loves Johnny. But it cannot be questioned it adores the immense revenue he harvests.

At least one NBC executive loves Carson. He is Dave Tebet, head of talent for the network who was instrumental—with chief of programming Mort Werner—in bringing Johnny to the job nine years ago.

"I'm sick and tired of jokes about whether Johnny will show up for his program," said Tebet, a New York-based bigwig. "He's just signed another three-year contract with us. Does that sound like friction?"

"This vacation thing began after Johnny had been on the air for three years without a single week off."

"He was tired and wanted to leave the show in favor of a weekly musical variety series.

He'd already signed a contract for the variety program when we approached him with another contract for three years of "Tonight" but with 11 weeks off a year.

"Johnny tore up the old contract and returned to his own show."

"If you want to know why a man gets exhausted doing what Johnny does, look at it this way: He's on the air for 90 minutes five nights a week. Almost everything he does—except the monologue—is rehearsed. That really drains a man."

"In my opinion, and NBC's, Johnny Carson is the absolute champion at what he does. There's nobody else who can be funny and entertaining for 90 minutes every night. What network wouldn't be happy with that?"

Special episode opens new adventure series

HOLLYWOOD — "Alias Smith and Jones," hour-long Western-adventure series starring Pete Duel and Ben Murphy which premiered last January on the ABC Television Network, opens its first full season Thursday, with a special 90-minute episode entitled "The Day They Hanged Kid Curry."

Walter Brennan is guest-star in the segment as ex-con artist Silky O'Sullivan, who comes out of retirement and poses as a grandmother to help his two ex-outlaw buddies, Hannibal Heyes, also known as Joshua Smith (Duel), and Jed (Kid) Curry, alias Thaddeus Jones (Murphy).

To their horror, Smith and Jones have discovered that a young man, Fred Philpotts, tired of being an unknown, has been posing as the notorious Kid Curry. In this guise, Philpotts has been convicted of murder and is so enamored of being famous that he is willing to hang rather than reveal his true identity. If Philpotts hangs, Heyes and Curry's hopes of winning amnesty for their past crimes will be lost so they set out to clear him.

Guest stars, in addition to Brennan, are Robert Morse as Fred Philpotts, Belinda Montgomery as big girlfriend, Penelope Roach, Earl Holliman as Wheat, the present leader of Heyes and Curry's old gang, and Slim Pickens as Sheriff Whitaker.

Bowling and stars, best indoor sport

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—No one ever called bowling the sport of kings.

Nor is propelling ball toward 10 pins at the end of a long wooden runway a favored pastime of the exotic Hollywood crowd.

But put them together—bowling and stars—and the results can be amusing, fascinating, hilarious, a drag (choose one).

"Celebrity Bowling" is the name of the show which made its debut last season. While Mr. Nielsen didn't rate it above the Super Bowl joust between Baltimore and Dallas, it did pique sufficient interest to be renewed this year as a syndicated show.

"Bowling is America's favorite indoor sport," said co-producer Joe Siegman who may or may not have his facts straight.

"One of the reasons we have the cooperation of the National Bowling Council is to get away from the low-brow reputation bowling has. The average bowler earns $10,000 a year."

Siegman earns more than that and happens to be a bowler himself.

The celebrities bowling on the show must indeed send the statistics on bowlers' incomes soaring.

Among those bowling this week—the series of 26 half-hour shows will be taped in four days—are many famous names and faces who don't know the purpose of the little holes in the ball.

Others are expert bowlers. A few of the bowlers to be seen in the coming season are Ernest Borgnine, Laurence Harvey, Dick Martin, Burl Ives, the Lennon Sisters, Richard Long, Leslie Uggams, Ed Ames, and that cop team from "Adam 12," Martin Milner and Kent McCord.

A professional bowler will be on hand, out of sight of the cameras, of course, to give pointers to those who haven't bowled before.

"The celebrities bowl for prizes, but they go to members of the audience. For instance if one of our stars bowls 150 or more, a ticket is drawn and a member of the audience wins a prize," Siegman said.

"If one of our bowlers hits 210 or better the lucky ticket holder picks up a brand new car."

Asked what happened if a star bowled 300, a perfect game, Siegman said nothing.

Odds on the happenstance are greater than seeing Buffalo and San Diego in the Super Bowl.

'Good Life' beckons producer back to TV

LOS ANGELES — After producing the successful TV show, "I Dream of Jeannie," for five years, Claudio Guzman set out to fulfill his life's dream — to prepare a motion picture.

He almost made it. But "The Good Life" beckoned.

Larry Hagman, who was to have starred in the proposed move, is a star of the seires. He and Donn Mills portray Al and Jane Miller. Al, a stockbroker tired of mortgages, car payments, traffic and all the other headaches of middle class life, persuades his wife to join him in giving up their possessions and hiring themselves out to a wealthy man (David Wayne) as butler and cook.

Said Guzman: "I like the idea of 'The Good Life.' I think secretly most professional people wish sometimes they could give it all up and lead a leisurely existence. Imagine being able to go to the beach on Tuesday afternoons! Who can do that? The super-rich perhaps—but they're so afraid of losing their money that they can't enjoy it. Otherwise, the only people who can do it are teenagers supported by their parents and domestic servants supported by employers too busy earning money and getting ulcers."

Most people, the producer claims, are never satisfied. He said: "A friend of mine called the other day and said, 'I can't stand this country. It's too filthy. I'm leaving.'"

"I asked, 'Where are you going?' He said, 'I don't know yet.' Of course he didn't know. Pollution is everywhere. Waters in other countries have been polluted for years. So I say don't leave this country. The good life is right here."

adverse mail from non-Catholics, but he frets about reactions to his behaviour off-screen.

"I'm afraid after we've been on the air six weeks or so I'll be in a bar somewhere getting smashed," he said. "Then some little old lady will shake her finger at me and give me hell for behaving in an unpriestly manner."

Superpriest is new show star

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Would you believe a Roman Catholic priest who had once been a police detective, Marine and merchant seaman as the hero of a new television series?

Neither would George Kennedy, the Oscar-winning movie actor, who was offered the role.

In disbelief he confronted the producers at Universal Pictures and implied—in non-clerical language—that they were out of their gourds.

"When I first heard about playing superpriest it wasn't exactly my idea of a great series," said Kennedy, a big, beefy blond character actor who shone in "Airport," "Cool Hand Luke" and "Bandolero."

"I told them they'd alienate all the Protestant and Jewish viewers right off the bat, to say nothing of the atheists and agnostics. I was a Catholic once myself. I know what these things can do."

"So they restructured the whole pilot film."

Titled "Sarge," the series is a spin-off from a movie-for-video first aired last January. Kennedy was instrumental in shaping the character of the television priest.

"First thing we had to do was keep the man virile; not emasculate him just because he's a priest," the big fellow said.

"So far as I know there's only been one other clergyman hero on television and that was Gene Kelly in 'Going My Way.' But that show bombed out after a year."

"The priest I play, Sarge, is assigned to a parish in San Diego where he had been a tough detective. He spends most of his time involved in the problems of the community. He even gets in fist fights."

"Naturally, there are limitations. Of course he can't go around making passes at chicks. But we aren't pushing Catholicism either."

"There's very little ecclesiastical stuff in the stories. Viewers don't tune in entertainment shows for religious education."

Kennedy, who enjoys the good life, has misgivings about how his role as priest will affect his private life. He doesn't expect

Hush-hush comedy slated

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Producers Bill Persky and Sam Denoff and NBC will introduce a new television show this month titled "The Funny Side," but neither the network nor producers will define it.

An hour-long comedy show with a cast of 10 regulars, the series deals with the everyday trials and traumas of married couples.

With great haste Persky and Denoff say their baby is nothing like "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In," nor does it resemble "Love, American Style." They say it is entirely new in concept.

"Put it this way," Persky said, "We're dealing with a comedy repertory company. No, that doesn't sound right either."

"It's the funny side of all the things you're worried about," Denoff said helpfully.

"Not exactly worries," Persky said. "Just everyday circumstances."

Denoff took a deep breath and plunged ahead: "We have five couples from teen-agers to octogenarians who play the same characters every week, but in different sketches."

"Sometimes the sketches are long, sometimes very short. The audience can identify with a spectrum of types in attitudes and appearance."

Persky added, "We hope viewers will come back to these characters every week like they did Jackie Gleason and Audrey Meadows when they were doing

"The Honeymooners." A doctor named Marcus Welby, however, may stand in the way. "The Funny Side" goes on the air opposite the formidable sawbones.

The Persky-Denoff show will feature Gene Kelly as an observer of the passing parade, not unlike the spectator-narrator of "Our Town."

Weekly Kelly will be looking in on the antics of Dick Clair, Jenna McMahon, Patti Finley, Warren Berlinger, Queenie Smith, Burt Mustin, John Amos, Teresa Graves, Cindy Williams and Michael Lembeck. Each week they will be thrown into a new dilemma and deal with it in a variety of ways.

Denoff said thoughtfully. "I have a feeling we're not making ourselves too clear on what the show is about."

"I agree," said Persky. "That's the problem with an original show," Denoff said. "Who could explain 'Laugh-In' before it went on the air?"

Certainly not Bill Persky and Sam Denoff.

Sterling sets 'Gallery'

HOLLYWOOD—A ten-year-old boy's forecasts of the future, strange happenings in the home of a babysitter's employer, the presence of alien spirits that control a man's hand, and an abduction by a masked and cloaked phantom are the themes of four dramas that make up the season-premiere colorcast of "Rod Serling's Night Gallery" Wednesday on the NBC Television Network.

Starring players include Leslie Nielsen, George Maharis, Sue Lyon, Ray Milland, Michael Constantine and Clint Howard. Rod Serling is host-narrator of the series.

"Herbie" stars Clint Howard as a ten-year-old boy whose predictions, unfailingly true, place him on network television as a commentator until the night he refuses to appear before a nationwide audience for reasons he will not explain.

Persky added, "We hope viewers will come back to these characters every week like they did Jackie Gleason and Audrey Meadows when they were doing Hansen) attempts to persuade the network chief (Michael Constantine) to leave well enough alone. Meanwhile apprehension builds in the studio. Rod Serling's script is based on the story, "The Boy Who Predicted Earthquakes," by Margaret St. Clair. John Badham directed.

"Miss Lovecraft Sent Me" finds a blonde, gum-chewing babysitter (Sue Lyon) reporting for an evening's work at the home of a strange-looking man (Joseph Campanella). She flees in terror after a series of strange happenings. Jack Laird is the writer; Gene Kearney, the director.

"The Hand of Borgus Weems" tells the story of Peter Lacland (George Maharis), who begs a surgeon, Dr. Achibald Ravdon (Ray Milland), to remove his hand — over which he has come to have no control — claiming it causes him to attempt murder.

A police investigation discloses facts backing Lacland's claim that his hand has been taken over by evil spirits. Alvin Sapinsley's teleplay is based on George Langelaan's story, "The Other Hand." John Meredith Lucas directed.

"The Phantom of What Opera?" stars Leslie Nielsen as a masked man who kidnaps a beautiful young woman (Mary Ann Beck) and spirits her away to a dungeon near the opera house where he usually lurks. The teleplay was written and directed by Gene Kearney.

Tony's Doris Day begins fourth TV season locks grayed

LOS ANGELES—In guest starring as Dick Carter, host of a late-night television talk show, in the opening episode of "The Doris Day Show" for the 1971-72 season, Bob Crane is portraying something he himself might have been.

This episode, the fourth season premiere, will be broadcast on Monday, Sept. 13 (9:30-10 p.m., PDT) on the CBS Television Network.

Crane began his career in show business as a musician, then switched to radio announcing and disc jockeying. Eventually he landed at KNX, the CBS-owned radio outlet in Los Angeles, where he introduced "The Bob Crane Show," a combination of a little recorded music and a lot of live chat with guests drawn from the ranks of the famous names of show business.

The show flourished, and Crane found himself the host of Southern California's most popular early-morning radio talk show.

One result was a regular influx of solid invitations to Crane from broadcasting executives who offered to make him rich by turning him into a network radio personality, a game-show master of ceremonies or a variety-show host on network television.

It happened that Crane was, indeed, discontent with his career to date, and the offers were tempting. The energetic, self-confident Crane had no doubt that he could cut the mustard in any of the assignments. Nevertheless, he rejected them as fast as they came in.

For somewhere along the line he had developed a powerful urge to become an actor, and he was convinced that the futher he let himself be drawn into the broadcasting "host" or emcee dodge, the less likely it would be that he could ever break out of it and into acting.

"Those guys all become typed in their jobs," he used to insist. "There's nothing wrong with that, but it's no way to become an actor. When they're looking for someone to play Shylock or Cyrano, rightly or wrongly the last guy they'd think of would be a Jack Paar or a Hugh Downs."

So Crane kept plugging away on KNX, his popularity and dissatisfaction ever increasing, until he managed to land a job as a featured television regular on "The Donna Reed Show."

Not too long afterward he won the starring role in a new series for the CBS Television Network, "Hogan's Heroes," a commitment that prompted him at last to give up "The Bob Crane Show," ending its 10-year run.

"Hogan's Heroes" became a long-lasting success and Bob Crane became a full-time actor. So it is that he is soon to be seen in "The Doris Day Show" playing a variety of television performers which he himself might well have become but chose to renounce. For a guy who wanted to be an actor it was the right choice.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Tony Curtis returned to town after a year in England a changed man. When he departed for London town his hair was as black as onyx.

Now it is salt and pepper gray.

What happened in Britain to turn Tony's raven locks to silver?

"I quit dyeing it," Tony said, a grin splitting his face. "My hair was getting a little gray all along. But I had it dyed for my role in 'The Boston Strangler' and I just kept dyeing it furiously."

"Now to hell with it. I'm going to leave it alone."

Curtis traveled to London to co-star with Roger Moore in a new television series for ABC, "The Persuaders," in which both actors play rich men whose avocation is the meeting out of justice.

If that sounds presumptuous, remember this is television. Also the show represents Curtis' first attempt to invade the tube on a weekly basis.

He is, by his own account, unafraid.

"There is no difference between pictures and television," he said, flopped on a couch in his cottage at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

(He can't move into his house until his tenants leave)

"It's all an illusion. I like to think we've made 24 50-minute movies. In England you get a little more time to make each episode. We spent 10-12 days on each segment. In Hollywood they wrap up an episode of an hour series in six or seven days."

Curtis, who began his career as king of the sex-and-sand B pictures at Universal in the 50s, said each segment of "The Persuaders" cost $200,000.

Curtis will star in "Cactus in the Snow" while he awaits news of whether the series will be renewed.

"I'd like to see the television show go a couple of years," he said. "Each show is unrelated to the previous one."

'Man and City' series features deaf actress

HOLLYWOOD—Beautiful Audree Norton, who guest-stars in the premiere episode of the ABC Television Network's "The Man and the City," starring Anthony Quinn, has lived in a silent world for most of her life.

In "Hands of Love," airing Wednesday, she and Lou Fant play a deaf couple threatened with losing their normal adopted son in court proceedings.

Andree, who starred with the National Theater for the Deaf for three years, was born in Great Falls, Mont. and lost her hearing at the age of 2 as the result of spinal meningitis.

"The only sound I remember is music," she told an interpreter in sign language.

She and her husband, Ken, who is also deaf, are the parents of three normal teenagers, Nikki, Kurt and Dane. Ken, a former football coach, teaches at the California School for the Deaf at Berkeley. He was recently elected to the National Athletic Hall of Fame for the Deaf in Chicago.

Asked if there was anything unique in rearing children for deaf couples, she responded, "Yes, in our home telephone calls. People were startled to discuss business on the phone with a young child. But Ken and I taught our children the rudiments of sign language as early as age 3."

Does Audree know many deaf couples who have adopted children?

"There are a great many, and they do an excellent job of parenthood with both hearing and deaf children. One deaf couple in San Francisco is raising two deaf Korean children."

When questioned as to what she enjoyed most about acting in "The Man and the City," she replied, "To be able to act under a magnificent director, Dan Petrie."

Her reaction to working with Anthony Quinn was "Really wow! Just imagine, it's Anthony Quinn. It is an honor to work with one of the world's great actors. He is a beautiful and fine man, both rock and vibration" (a phrase referring to strength and dynamic quality that would be important to the deaf, the interpreter explained).

"He is easy to work with. He's excellent in getting a stimulated and compelling performance from others."

The actress has a B.A. degree in language and literature from Gallaudet College, Washington, D.C.

World of sports premier readied

NEW YORK—The world middleweight championship fight between champion Carlos Monzon and challenger and former champion Emile Griffith will be televised live (in East and Midwest) via satellite from Buenos Aires, Argentina, Saturday, Sept. 25, on "ABC's Wide World of Sports."

Keith Jackson will describe the 15-round contest from ringside.

The 28-year-old Monzon, a native of Argentina, knocked out Nino Benvenuti to gain the championship (telecast on "Wide World"), then stopped the popular Italian in a controversial rematch (seen on "Wide World" last May).

Monzon has won 72 fights, 34 by knockouts, while losing three and recording nine draws. Relatively unknown outside Argentina until he beat Benvenuti, he has perhaps the best overhead right in the division.

He has improved steadily with maturity, adding strength to an already agile style. He won the Argentinian middleweight title in 1966 by beating Jorge Fernandez and won the South American championship the following year. His two quick knockouts of Benvenuti represent the professional and financial highlights of his career.

Griffith is one of the great boxers of recent years. Originally from the Virgin Islands, he now lives in New York City and is one of the most popular fighters in the country because of his never-stop, fever-restart style. He is the former world welterweight champion as well as the former World middleweight champion.

During his 13-year ring career, he has amassed a sparkling record of 70 wins (21 via KOs), 11 losses and one no decision.

Dick Kirchner will produce the ABC Television Network's satellite coverage of the fight. Roone Arledge is the executive producer of "ABC's Wide World of Sports."

Instant refill

CHICAGO (UPI)—When a camel driver tells the boys at the water hole to "Fill her up!" he could be touching off as much as minutes of serious drinking.

Camels have been known to go "without water for 17 days, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, and sometimes lose up to 25 percent of their body weight through dehydration.

But in 10 minutes a camel can regain this weight by drinking as much as 25 gallons of water.

Lawsuit

CALGARY, Alta. (UPI)—Premier Harry Strom, as trustee of the Alberta government, is faced with a $1 million lawsuit for allowing a strip-mining operation on the eastern edge of Banff National Park.

Calgary lawyer Alfred Harris, who also had papers served on Cammore Mines, Ltd., said the suit was filed because he is concerned about destruction of scenic mountain areas.

MARTHA MITCHELL, wife of U.S. Attorney Gen. John N. Mitchell, joins Dan Rowan (left) and Dick Martin on season premiere of "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" Monday evening. The loquacious Mrs. Mitchell, noted for her telephone calls and outspoken comments, appears as a special guest on the first show of the fifth season of the comedy series.

First Matt Dillon's career rounded as actor, director

HOLLYWOOD — For an actor who got into the profession "by accident," William Conrad has enjoyed a remarkably well-founded and fulfilled career.

The physically imposing Conrad, who will portray high-priced private investigator Frank Cannon in "Cannon," which premieres Tuesday on the CBS Television Network, discloses that his first ambition in show business was to be a director.

"I had always hoped to be a director when I began in radio," he says, "but by chance I auditioned for a role in the old 'Whistler' series. I got the part and that changed things."

What followed was a succession of roles in the most prestigious radio series of the day: "Suspense," "Lux Radio Theater," "Escape," "Favorite Story" and, ultimately, one of the finest, "Gunsmoke," which was a keystone of CBS Radio Network programming.

The booming bass voice of Conrad soon became synonymous with Matt Dillon, whose "chancey job" as marshal of Dodge City and habitue of the Long Branch Saloon lasted for 11 years on radio.

His directing ambitions remained dormant until ZIV Studios agreed to let him direct several episodes of the "Bat Masterson" television series if he would also act in the popular Western program. He only appeared in one "Bat Masterson," but his directorial career was firmly launched at last.

Conrad then managed to keep his acting career flourishing in television and motion pictures while accumulating a massive list of directing credits in both mediums. He also produced in television and served a stint as a motion picture producer at Warner Brothers.

His distinctive, deep tones have kept him constantly in demand as the voice-over for television commercials. And for several seasons his voice pronounced the menacing narrative of "The Fugitive" series starring David Janssen. Now he has come full circle to television acting in a role which is much to his liking.

"Cannon" is the type of role I enjoy. Especially since he's the kind of guy who, like me, savors the finer things of life. He drives an expensive automobile, relishes gourmet cooking, appreciates good wine and lives in well-appointed, tasteful surroundings," Conrad said.

Three U.S. presidents married while in office—Tyler, Cleveland and Wilson. Only Grover Cleveland had the ceremony held in the White House.

Pros in NFL launch 12-game season with play Sept. 19

NEW YORK — The NFL season on the NBC Television Network will open Sunday, Sept. 19 with the New York Jets facing the champion Baltimore Colts, which means domestic bliss is about to become a hit or miss proposition, depending upon whether the lady of the house is interested in watching football telecasts.

For the wife who would like to become a telepartner, here are answers to a few questions show might not want to ask her husband:

Q. Why are there two five-yard lines, two 10-yard lines, etc.?

A. Each team has its own territory consisting of 50 yards (half the field). When the announcer says the giants have the ball on their own 20, they have their backs to their own goal line, 20 yards away. When they're on the opponents' 20, they're within 20 yards of a score.

Q. Do the same men keep playing after the kickoff?

A. No. There are specialty squads which operate only during kicks, whether kickoff or punt. Thereafter, the offense and defense take over.

Q. There are tackles on both the offensive and defensive units. When are the offensive tackles permitted to tackle anyone?

A. Never. That's just a quirk in the game's terminology. Offensive linemen are restricted to blocking duties, and if they are detected clutching an opponent, they are subject to holding penalties.

Q. What does the announcer mean when he says "Third and two?"

A. The team in possession of the ball has four downs (or plays) in which to gain 10 yards. If it fails, the ball goes to the other team. "Third and two" means it is third down with two yards to go.

Q. What is a split end?

A. To avoid conveying an impression to the women that it has something to do with a condition of the hair, the term has been changed to wide receiver (pass catcher)

Q. Can anyone catch a forward pass?

A. There are only five eligibles, the two wide receivers, the tight end, and the two running backs. Of course any member of the defensive team can intercept.

That's at least a running, or passing, start for the housewife who doesn't mind if the Sunday roast burns while she joins her husband in front of the TV set.

'Alamo' movie set in two sessions

HOLLYWOOD — Academy Award-winner John Wayne stars with Richard Widmark and Laurence Harvey in "The Alamo," an epic Western depicting the famous battle of the Texas war for independence, to be colorcast in two parts as the season premieres of "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" and "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" Sept. 18 and 20 (9-11 p.m. PT, both dates) on the NBC Television Network.

Richard Boone guest-stars in the film which features Frankie Avalon, Patrick Wayne and Linda Cristal.

Wayne was named "Best Actor" of 1970 for his role in "True Grit." In the year 1836, Texas, then the northernmost province of Mexico, rebels against the government of the Mexican general and president, Santa Anna, and declares itself a republic.

Gen. Sam Houston (Boone) must try to raise and train an army for the war that is certain to follow.

In the sleepy little town of San Antonio, which lies between the headquarters of the opposing generals, Col. William Barret Travis (Harvey) waits with a force of 25 men to establish the first line of defense against Santa mark), also on the side of Texas independence, joins Travis in San Antonio and a rivalry develops between the two strong-willed men that is kept under control through the efforts of Col. David Crockett (Wayne), who has traveled more than 1,500 miles with his own troops to join the fight.

With tremendous odds against them, the troops gathered by Gen. Houston prepare to fight Santa Anna's 7,000 soldiers at the site of a crumbling Spanish mission called the Alamo.

Frankie Avalon plays Smitty, Col. Bowie's young sidekick and Patrick Wayne portrays James Bonham.

Carol Burnett gives answers to audience

LOS ANGELES — Carol Burnett has her own payoff version of "Let's Make A Deal." The star of "The Carol Burnett Show," which has its fall premiere Wednesday, on the CBS Television Network, opens her show by answering questions from the audience, and it has become almost a tradition for some members of the audience to step on the stage with gifts for their television favorite.

Of the more than 300 gifts the vivacious star has received in four seasons, at least one half are related to the popular Charwoman characterization she has created.

"The Charwoman apparently has become my trademark in the minds of many people," she says in explanation. "Some are beautifully made dolls, others are cleverly designed figurines and I have received some exquisitely done paintings."

Nextmost popular type of gift the comedienne receives pertains to the "Old Folks" sketches she and Harvey Korman do in which she is Molly to his Bert. These also usually take the form of dolls and paintings.

Miss Burnett's favorite gifts are the less pretentious ones like the scrapbooks which grade-school children around the country have assembled about the show.

"My favorite scrapbook of all is one we featured on the program last season," she says.

"It was the classroom project of the Meadows School first graders of Manhattan Beach, Calif., in which they answered the question, 'Who is Carol Burnett?' with pictures and words. The answers were darling. One said 'She's that tall, skinny lady,' another, 'That short, fat nurse' and a third, 'She's that black lady on television.'"

Miss Burnett also receives a number of poems from children, much of which is concerned with ecology, a subject close to her heart.

CBS plans original film dramas Fridays

HOLLYWOOD — The New CBS Friday Night Movies, a series of original 90-minute film dramas made expressly for television, with emphasis on suspense and performed by casts headed by outstanding stars, will be presented weekly on the CBS Television Network starting Friday, Sept. 17.

Stars who will appear in the films include Mia Farrow, Hal Holbrook, John Colicos, Barbara Bain, John Forsythe, Richard Kiley, Tony Franciosa, Peter Lawford, Lois Nettleton, Doug McClure, Lief Erickson, Lloyd Bridges, Frank Converse and Broderick Crawford, together with numerous others. Among the stories to be Another will be "Murder Once Removed," in which Miss Bain, returning to a dramatic role for the first time since "Mission: Impossible," plays a wealthy woman caught up in a fatal romantic triangle.

"Terror in the Sky," based on a television play by "Airport" author Arthur Hailey, concerns a passenger and stewardess forced to fly a chartered airliner when the pilot and copilot are suddenly stricken ill.

In "Autumn of A Hunter," filmed entirely on location in and around Vancouver, Canada, a raging forest fire provides the background for the flight of a young couple trying to escape their menacing pursuers.

The series is being developed for the network by Philip Barry as executive producer. Son and namesake of the noted playwright, Barry is a veteran of television, motion picture and stage production.

Films for "The New CBS Friday Night Movies" are being produced by various studios, independent producers and the CBS Television Network.

Bill Bixby stars as Tom Corbett. Co-starring are Brandon Cruz, as Eddie, Miyoshi Umeki as Mrs. Livingstone, the Corbetts' housekeeper, and James Komack as Norman Tinker, a magazine photographer. Kristina Holland is featured regularly as Tina, Tom Corbett's secretary.

models. Eddie, surprised that his father would draw a picture of a lady with no clothes on, accepts his explanation. Eddie assumes the role of an artist when a new girl arrives in the neighborhood and he offers to sketch her in the nude. The girl, Gretchen, tells her father who reacts in typical fatherly fashion.

Patti Cohoon appears as Gretchen and Angus Duncan portrays her father, Mr. Buckner.

The teleplay by Stan Cutler and Martin Donovan was directed by Don Weis.

James Komack produces the series, based on the novel by Mark Toby.

"The Courtship of Eddie's Father" is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Inc. production, filmed at MGM Studios in Culver City, Calif.

Crooks still quake at FBI

HOLLYWOOD — "The FBI," starring Efrem Zimbalist Jr. as Inspector Lewis Erskine, Philip Abbott as Arthur Ward, assistant to the FBI director, and William Reynolds as Agent Tom Colby, begins its seventh season on the ABC Television Network today at 7 p.m. (MDT).

In the season premiere episode, "Death on Sunday," professional football star Paul Talbot notifies the FBI when he receives a $200,000 extortion threat.

Inspector Erskine arranges a stakeout at the payoff location, but Talbot impulsively captures Zach Parker, the man who picks up the money. It develops that Parker is only the accomplice of Irwin Lynch, mastermind of the operation, who has a personal grudge against Talbot.

When Lynch learns that Parker has been captured, he phones Talbot promising to kill him during the championship game the following Sunday.

Guest-starring are Frank Converse as Paul Talbot, Linda Marsh as Elaine Talbot and Andrew Prine as Irwin Lynch. Others in the cast:

"Death on Sunday" was written by Mark Weingart and directed by Virgil Vogel.

Quinn Martin is executive producer of "The FBI" and Philip Saltzman the producer.

Impossible missions return

LOS ANGELES — An F. B. I. man is blinded while investigating a crime syndicate attempting to take over a large chemical plant. Jim Phelps undergoes a delicate eye operation so as to appear convincingly blind when he poses as the blind man in the sixth-season premiere of "Mission: Impossible," Saturday on the CBS Television Network.

"Casey," new member of the IMF team this season, is called upon to use her feminine charms to get information from one of the hoodlums involved. She is installed as landlady of a rundown rooming house, providing a "cover" for herself as well as Phelps as they set their plan in operation.

reluctantly agree to work with the "blind" Phelps, now supposedly an embittered ex-investigator turned embezzler. "Mission: Impossible," starring Peter Graves, Greg Morris, and Lynda Day George with Peter Lupus, is filmed at Paramount Studios in Hollywood.

Guest stars Jason Evers, Tom Bosley, Harold J. Stone and Peter Brown portray members of the crime syndicate who Bruce Geller is executive producer and Bruce Lansbury is producer. Reza Badiyi directed the premiere episode from a script by Arthur Weiss.

Matthew Dillon's gun smokes in 17th season

DODGE CITY — "Gunsmoke" enters its 17th season this fall as one of the most outstanding dramatic programs in the history of television.

Its powerful stories and remarkable production values have made it, year in and year out, the highest-rated dramatic series on television and a prolific winner of the industry's most significant awards. The people who judge western series have heaped honors on "Gunsmoke," — it has won the Fame Award three times as the best western series.

The series won the Western Writers Golden Spur Award this year as the best western script. "Gunsmoke" is also the winner of a Western Heritage award for the best musical score.

"Gunsmoke's" executive producer, John Mantley, suggests facetiously that the secret of the continuing vitality of "Gunsmoke" may be due to the fact that "I carry a large stick and beat everybody."

Mantley goes on: "Seriously, all of my people are extraordinary professionals. I guess every producer says that, but I think mine are a little different. Maybe they just have a little bit more pride than some others."

Some of the "Gunsmoke" crew have been with the show since the start of the series.

Mantley was forced to overcome a big problem last spring when Milburn Stone, "Gunsmoke's" Doc Adams, underwent open-chest surgery.

The executive producer brought in the highly regarded Pat Hingle to fill in for six shows during Stone's absence.

"Milburn is back now," Mantley said "and we're very glad for him. His recovery is a big lift for us all."

Funny girl, funny show

LOS ANGELES — "She's a girl of a lot of different dreams." That's how producer Carl Kleinschmitt sees Sandy Duncan in the role he created for her on the new "Funny Face" comedy series, which bows Saturday, on the CBS Television Network.

"To some people, she's the girl next door," he says. "To parents, she's the kind of girl they want their son to go with. To guys, she's the kind of girl they first fell in love with when they were eight years old."

Although this is Kleinschmitt's basic concept of Sandy Stockton, the character portrayed by Sandy Duncan on "Funny Face," it also happens to be a pretty fair appraisal of his feelings about Miss Duncan herself.

"We're not doing Sandy Duncan's life story," says

Kleinschmitt. "But she has such a winning personality that we hope to capture as much of it as possible on film."

Kleinschmitt has, in fact, tailor-made the series for Miss Duncan, a small town girl (from Tyler, Tex.), who went to the big city (New York) for an acting career and became famous for her roles in television commercials.

It's no accident that, in the series, she plays a small town girl (from Taylorville, Ill.), who goes to the big city (Los Angeles) to study for a teaching career and earns her college tuition — by acting in television commercials.

"Sandy Stockton is not too different from Sandy Duncan," Kleinschmitt says. "Any resemblance between the two is purely intentional."

Isn't he cute?

DONNING CURLS and bonnet for a spoof and some musical fun is Dean Martin, whose variety show begins its seventh season over the NBC network on Thursday.

VanDyke stars as show host

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Dick Van Dyke touches a lot of familiar bases in his new role as a fictional talk-show host, who is a celebrity on and off camera.

That's the character he plays when he returns to television this fall on "The New Dick Van Dyke Show," a half-hour comedy series, beginning Saturday, Sept. 18 on the CBS Television Network.

Van Dyke's alter ego is Dick Preston, star of "The Dick Preston Show," a mythical conversation - and - variety program broadcast over mythical KXIV-TV, Phoenix, Ariz.

"The new series brings back old memories," says Van Dyke. "I got my start in television as the host of two daytime variety shows in Atlanta ('The Merry Mute Show' and 'The Music Shop') and another in New Orleans ('The Dick Van Dyke Show')."

"One of my first assignments under my first contract with the CBS Television Network (in the mid-fifties) was as a replacement for Jack Paar on his early morning variety program. I got lost in New York traffic the first day and was replaced by Merv Griffin on what was to have been my premiere broadcast.

"Then, I began filling in for Garry Moore and a lot of others as a sort of perennial summer-replacement guy."

More recently, Van Dyke had his own radio talk-show on Phoenix station KXIV-FM, which he owns in partnership with his manager Byron Paul. (He borrowed the call letters for his mythical television station on the new comedy series.)

Van Dyke and his alter ego Dick Preston have much in common — except the direction in which they're going. Preston's goal is to get out of Arizona and get to Hollywood.

Ironically, that's the reverse of Van Dyke's dream, which he has now realized by giving up Hollywood for Arizona.

Quinn portrays Mayor Tom J. (Thomas Jefferson) Alcalá, a compassionate, involved and politically shrewd veteran of 16 years in office.

relationships with his aide, Andy Hays, played by Mike Farrell, and Marian Crane, his secretary, portrayed by Mala Powers.

In the premiere episode, "Hands of Love," June Lockhart guest-stars as case worker Ellen Lewis, who implores Mayor Alcalá to intercede on behalf of a deaf couple faced with losing their 7-year-old adopted son in court proceedings because they are handicapped.

Science may now know why lights kept low

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Maybe, just maybe, science has stumbled on to an explanation of why so many drinking places laboratory was dark, than they did at other times.

Kept in cages equipped with gadgets which gave the rats a substance produced by the pineal gland, may have something to do with the rats' drinking habits. Production of

of the Department of Experimental Pharmacology of the Southwest Foundation for Research and Education, San Antonio, reported recently that alcoholic rats drink more in the dark than they do under normal lighting conditions.

Researchers happened to notice that the rats, which had been subjected to "anxiety provoking situations" to make them take to drink, consumed at least twice as much alcohol over the weekend, when the heightened preference for alcohol in the dark.

Controlled experiments proved that this preference was, indeed, darkness-induced. When the rats were kept under constant illumination, they cut down on their drinking. But their alcohol consumption rose under normal light-dark conditions. And total darkness produced "a precipitous increase."

The investigators found evidence that melatonin, a rats were heavier drinkers than their untreated fellows.

There have been a lot of jesting amateur attempts to explain the dim lighting in places where human beings go to drink. The proprietors figure you can't read the prices and so will get careless. Customers who frequent such places don't want others to see how much they take aboard. And so on.

But such hypotheses can hardly be considered scientific.

Rules in pro game altered

NEW YORK — Two major rule changes will be in effect when the NFL season opens with the NBC Television Network's colorcast of the New York Jets-Baltimore Colts game Sunday, Sept. 19.

Intentional grounding of a pass will be more strictly interpreted, and a field goal attempt that misses the mark and lands in the end zone can be run back by a defensive player.

Familiarizing yourself with these important changes will make grid-viewing more pleasurable.

Under the old pass rule, anything thrown in the general direction of a receiver was considered a bonafide try at a completion. Under the change made last winter, "any pass that is thrown with a deliberate attempt to prevent loss of yardage shall be considered intentional grounding."

The quarterbacks aren't happy about it. They feel the officials will be trying to read their minds; that they'll be throwing into heavily defended areas hence inviting more interceptions; and that they'll be forced to "eat" the ball (retain possession) more often than in the past.

Worst of all, the passers visualize themselves, gritting their teeth as they hang on to the ball and prepare to take the onslaughts of the massive men of defense. They insist more quarterbacks will be sacked than ever before.

The other change will inject more wide-open excitement by way of an occasional long runback of the field goal try that fails.

Stars suspects in 'Hawaii 5-0'

HONOLULU — France Nuyen and Herbert Lom, guest star as Sironie Mondrago and her Hawaiian industrialist father, who become suspects in a "Five-O" murder investigation on the fourth season premiere of "Hawaii Five-O" Tuesday on the CBS Television Network.

Charles Dibbin directed from the Jerome Coopersmith script. A 10-year-old missing persons case is reopened by McGarrett (series star Jack Lord) when the bodies of a man and a woman are found during an archeological dig and medical reports show the pair to have been murder victims.

When McGarrett discovers that Mondrago's right hand man mysteriously disappeared about the same time that Mrs. Mondrago died, Sironie and her father become prime suspects in the case.

Jack Lord stars as Steve McGarrett, leader of the "Five-O" investigating team, with James MacArthur as Danny Williams, Zulu as Kono, Kam Fong as Chin Ho Kelly, Peggy Ryan as Jenny, Richard Denning as the governor and Harry Endo as coroner Che Fong.

Al Eben has been added to the cast of regulars this season. He portrays the medical examiner "Doc."

Leonard Freeman is the executive producer of the series, with Bob Sweeney serving as the Hollywood-based producer and Bill Finnegan as the Hawaii-based producer.

"Hawaii Five-O" is produced by Leonard Freeman Productions in association with the CBS Television Network.

Susannah York likes to work in New York

NEW YORK — As far as Susannah York is concerned, New York City is a nice place to visit but she really would rather work there.

The blue-eyed British actress was in the metropolis recently in connection with "Jane Eyre," the two-hour drama in which she co-stars with George C. Scott. An encore colorcast of the special opens the second season of the "Bell System Family Theatre" today on the NBC Television Network.

All of the on-location filming for the drama took place on the moors of Yorkshire, England.

The beautiful countryside was a relatively tame locale for Susannah, who has faced cameras in such places as the jungles of Malaya and the arid stretches of Southwest Africa.

She said: "As far as the States go, I've only worked at studios in Los Angeles. But New York is such a fascinating, throbbing city. I imagine it would be exciting and simply fantastic to work here."

Asked about her portrayal of Jane Eyre, Susannah said: "I am immensely proud of being Jane. She is, in my mind, a secretive, strong and yet sensitive person — one who has a tremendous ability to hide what goes on inside. It was one of the biggest challenges I've ever faced as an actress."

The blonde performer has played a wide variety of characters, including leading roles in such films as "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" (which won her an Oscar nomination), "Tom Jones" and "Freud."

But she still has one big wish. She said: "I would love to star in a real, old-fashioned Western. But no one has ever asked me. And I'm afraid that no one ever will."

College grid series to review top games

HOLLYWOOD — "College Football... 1971," an hour-long program which will spotlight the outstanding stars and top games of the previous day, will premiere on the ABC Television Network Sunday, Sept. 19 at noon, PDT.

The series will be conducted by Bill Flemming and will air for 12 weeks. The final show will be on Sunday, Dec. 5. This is the fourth year this series has been seen on the ABC Television Network.

The color program will concentrate on the four most important games of the previous day. The games picked for "College Football... 1971" will be chosen the preceding Monday.

The concept of the program is to spotlight for viewers those players and games which make the Sunday headlines on the sports pages across the country.

The popularity of this show has increased every year since its first season Chuck Howard, vice president of ABC sports, commented: "It never fails. Every Monday we receive phone calls from fans who are upset because we didn't show the highlights of their game. We always try to pick the most important games, contests which might decide the national title and a conference title."

The National Collegiate Athletic (NCAA) Film Services will produce "College Football... 1971."

- It's up to us to furnish electricity to you when you need it — in the quantities you want — for economic progress, for better living standards and to help solve environmental problems.
- The fact is: clean electric energy will power more and more of the installations which are necessary for cleaner water and air, for more efficient disposal of wastes and for the multitude of potential re-cycling processes.
- And the energy must be available on schedule to do both jobs — to improve the quality of life by economic progress and by better protection of the environment.

Camping now new world

WILDWOOD, Fla. (UPI)— Jack and Betty Carpenter strolled through their "camper's world," shaded by thick oaks and cabbage palms and Spanish moss, and talked about their guests sequestered in shiny box-like toms.

They were plugged-in and hooked-up and their air-conditioners hummed in unison. A few campers rested in lawn chairs on concrete slabs, but the swimming beach and the boat channel leading to the blackrunning with laccochee were deserted.

"Camping is not the word," said Mrs. Carpenter, who just had a new book published by the American Camping Association on new trends in campground management. "This is not what's happening anymore. Even the term 'family camping' is an anachronism."

"Hopefully," she added, "Madison Avenue will create new words for a whole new way of living."

And "Colonel Jack," who retired from the Army and left his desk in the Pentagon in the mid-sixties when family camping started to boom, hinted at what the future holds for America's nomads.

"My dream is to build a 30 to 40-story high-rise campground on Miami Beach and charge $20 a night," Jack said.

High-rise campgrounds? They've been on the drawing boards for years, with enclosed roofs to protect the "campers" from the elements.

And in her book, Betty Carpenter describes future campgrounds the size of small cities, such as one with 1,775 sites planned near Mesa, Ariz. she foresees high-rise trailer parks in the heart of metropolitan areas, such as Central Park in Manhattan.

The latest Rand McNally guidebook to campgrounds lists more than 19,000 parks with 800,000 campsites in the United States. More than 3,000 of the campgrounds are in state and national parks and forests, which usually offer more scenery and fewer conveniences at a cheaper price.

The bulk of the campsites are at private campgrounds, or "camping resorts" as the Carpenters and their colleagues prefer to call them. For overnight fees ranging from $4 to $10, the camper can get water, electric and sewage hookups at his door, cable television and telephone connections in some parks, and even janitorial and room service.

The trend today is toward the franchise operations such as Koa, Safari, Red Arrow and Outdoor Resorts, which try to standardize their facilities and train their personnel much like motel chains.

Florida, which today has more private campgrounds than any other state, perhaps is a barometer of the phenomenal growth of the camping industry. Just 10 years ago there were only six private campgrounds in the state, with a total of 250 sites. Today there are 660 private parks with 33,833 sites.

They range from rustic to luxurious. At the Hidden Valley Trailer Park near Tallahassee, for example, a traveler can call room service to have delivered to his own trailer a dinner of beef au jus, baked Idaho potato and all the trimmings. For breakfast he may have shirred eggs and honey-dew melon.

Miss America hopefuls like offbeat activity

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—Colorado's Cathy Glau goes hunting for game with bow and arrow, Connecticut's Priscilla Doyle gets her kicks out of sky diving and Utah's Janis Gentry goes in for running the apids in rafts.

They are among the offbeat of a wide range of activities listed by this year's Miss America contestants. The girls in this week's pageant here line up strongly in the outdoor sports category.

The majority list swimming as a favorite activity with water skiing, tennis, skiing and horseback riding close behind in that order.

A number are bicycle riders. Vermont's Susan Glover likes to take trips by bike. She's peddled to Canada and Cape Cod, Mass. but South Dakota's Susan Inman is a motorcyclist. Most of the contestants come up with pretty lengthy list of activities. Idaho's Karen Herd, for example, likes basketball, baseball, archery, swimming, skiing and camping. When she's not out doing one of those, she's home cooking or sewing.

There's at least one exception. North Carolina's Patsy Wood is the serious type. Already a sixth-grade teacher, she said teaching is both her occupation and hobby and, as for sports, simply, "No!"

Washington's Susan Buckner is among the active ones. She likes water skiing, dancing, skiing and fishing. But she also lists sunbathing as a favorite pastime. Maine's Allyn Warner likes frisbee and notes, "I'm very good at it."

One activity that cropped up seldom in previous years appears more in vogue jogging.

Joggers include Pennsylvania's Maureen Wimmer, South Carolina's Pamela Inabinet and Massachusetts' Deborah O'Brien. Miss O'Brien says she gets out and runs a mile a day "every day" in a sweat suit.

President Harry Truman labeled his administration the "Fair Deal" on Jan. 5, 1949, in the course of delivering his message on the state of the union to Congress.

San Francisco busing rapped

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— San Francisco is embarking on a school busing program for 48,000 children that may be unpopular as any in the South. Nowhere is it more unpopular than in Chinatown.

Almost every night, parents have gathered by the hundreds at one of the city's 97 elementary schools for angry rallies, with backing from Mayor Joseph L. Alioto.

Bitter busing opponents predict half the children will be kept home in protest when the program begins Sept. 13. A new variety of "freedom schools"— classes taught privately—are being organized for elementary school children affected by the order.

In Chinatown, Dennis Wong, a pharmacist, predicts that parents of almost all 5,000 Chinese pupils involved won't permit them to ride the buses.

4 To 1 Opposition

Instead, Wong says existing schools for teaching Chinese culture after hours will be put to daytime use. Many whites also are talking of freedom schools, but don't know where to get facilities and personnel.

Citywide, public opinion polls show 4 to 1 opposition to busing for purposes of racial desegregation, with 56 per cent of Negroes against it. The city's 80,000 Chinese are reported 92 per cent opposed.

Traditionally, Chinese keep their children close to home and to the parents' places of employment. Among other things, the parents fear loosening of cultural ties.

Often parents don't speak English and worry about how to get to distant schools and how to talk with the teachers.

A Unique Problem

"Why are they taking our children away?" is an oratorical theme of Ralph Lee, a state employe and militant busing opponent.

The Chinese position presents a unique problem. If a racial minority has a right to attend racially balanced schools, does it have the privilege not to exercise that right if it chooses?

So far the courts have said no. The last jurist to rule, although tentatively, was Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas who refused late last month to delay San Francisco busing pending lengthy appeals on the issues.

Douglas noted that California operated separate schools for Chinese until 1947. He relied on an 1875 case, Yick Wo vs. Hopkins, in which the courts said the city could not withhold a hand laundry license from Yick simply because he was Chinese.

San Francisco busing was ordered by U.S. District Judge Stanley A. Weigel in a suit brought by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

Expensive Studies

The NAACP said that since 1954 Brown desegregation case, the San Francisco school board has done nothing to desegregate except to commission expensive studies.

Meanwhile the board constructed additions to a half-dozen schools which promoted separation and generally failed to alter boundary lines to lessen it.

The plaintiff said blacks were receiving less qualified teachers and poor education, as measured by performance tests. Eighty per cent of black elementary pupils were in 29 schools, all predominantly black.

The district's schools are 29 per cent black, 34 per cent white, 15 per cent Asian, 14 per cent Spanish surname and 8 per cent other nonwhite.

Tumultuous Meetings

Weigel held the board had ignored a legal responsibility to promote integration. In fact, he ruled the board's actions actively imposed segregation.

For two years the busing issue had kept school board meetings, attended by thousands and dozens of police, tumultuous, and occasionally marked by fist fights.

With a half-Chinese audience stamping and shouting "Is judge Weigel God?" and "We want freedom, too," the board complied with Weigel's order, by adopting an integration plan, but also voted to appeal. However, higher courts declined to issue stays of the order, pending appeal.

The board's plan, approved by Weigel, divided the city into seven zones and will cost $1.6 million a year. For three years of his elementary career, each pupil will be based on trips typically taking 15 minutes. The other three years he will go to his neighborhood school.

Antibusing groups quickly combined into a boycott effort called Walk (We All Love Kids) which they hope will set a national example. As one organizer, Richard Dineen, a fireman, put it, "We are going to make the U.S. government listen to the voice of the people."

Iran to celebrate 2,500th anniversary

TEHRAN (UPI)—Iran, the world's oldest existing monarchy, will celebrate the 2,500th anniversary of its founding in October with a magnificent pageant at Persepolis, a city built by Darius The Great and destroyed by Alexander The Great.

Amid the famed ruins a tented city is rising to house the 50 or so heads of state expected to attend, along with many distinguished guests and 10,000 others invited by the Shah and Empress Farah.

One of the highlights of the program will be a "Son et Lumiere"—a Sound and Light performance which will recreate the glory of the Achaemenian Dynasty and its sacred capital, and a parade of military units in costumes of the various periods of Iran history.

The Shah and his Empress will go to Shiraz, the modern city near Persepolis, on Oct. 12 to greet their guests as they arrive. A state dinner will be held Oct. 14—catered by the finest chefs of Paris. The next day a pageant will dramatize the long history of the ancient world's greatest empire.

Historians have spent months researching and writing the narration which will be spoken to a background of music composed by Iranian musicians. Among other historic events the pageant will show Alexander of Macedon's triumphant entrance into Persepolis and his ceremonial burning of the palace of Xerxes—symbolizing the conclusion of the pan-Hellenic campaign of revenge.

The final destruction of Persepolis will also be reenacted, although historians are not sure what prompted Alexander to put to the torch a city considered at that time to be the wonder of the world. One legend is that he granted the wish of Thais, an Athenian courtesan, who wanted to see the city burn.

The real significance of the celebrations is that Iran has been able to maintain its separate identity as a nation despite three major invasions.

Greeks, Mongols and Arabs have all in turn overrun the country and all were capable of destroying it as an independent and separate nation. Yet these invasions, and a score of minor attacks on Iran, have gone without a trace. The Persian language is still as liquid as it was during the pre-Islamic era.

The pageant—naturally enough being described as "The Greatest Spectacle on Earth"—is scheduled for exactly 4 p.m. Oct. 15. Seventy-two hours earlier the first of a relay of horsemen will leave Tehran, clad in the military costume of 25 centuries ago and carrying a message to Iran's modern day emperor, Shahanshak (King of Kings) Aryamehr (Light of the Aryans) Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. The message will convey the nation's gratitude for his "benign and benevolent rule." The Shah will then address his own people and the world in a radio-television broadcast transmitted by satellite. He will stress Iran's role in world culture, justice and civilization. The guests—kings, queens, presidents, prime-ministers, men and women of letters and the arts and others—seated on specially erected stands in Achaemenian style, directly in front of the ruins of Persepolis, will witness the great pageant. Gilded war chariots will head the two hour parade whose theme is Iran's own history.

The banquet given that night for heads of state by the Shah will "never be forgotten," a prominent court official told UPI. The best caviar in the world, pheasant, venison and hors-d'oeuvres prepared by local and international chefs will be served as the regal assembly lolls Persian style on brocade cushions placed on carpeted floors, to the entertainment by leading singers and dancers.

The tent village has all the facilities a modern palace would want, including bars, card rooms, coffee corners and lounges. The 50 main tents will be equipped with two bedrooms, a drawing room, two bathrooms, a dressing room and a kitchen.

Around the tents, roads, lawns and rose gardens have been laid out, with the top attraction an orange tinted, heavily scented yellow rose specially cultivated in France and named "Persepolis" to mark the occasion.

Beauty parlors are also planned in the tented village, and the ladies will have the attention of Elizabeth Arden, Carita and Alexandre to attend them. Before departing, each head of state will receive a portrait of himself, woven into a magnificent silk and wool Persian carpet.

As the biggest assembly at one time of the heads of state and their wives under a single tent, an all-out effort has been made for comfort and safety.

The tents have been tested to withstand wind velocity of 125 MPH. Measures have been taken to destroy the deadly snakes, scorpions and huge rats infesting this desert area.

Co-starring are Diane Baker, Jack Albertson, Ann Sothern, Karen Jensen, Darrell Larson, Tom Bosley and Jeff Donnell. In "Congratulations, It's a Boy!," Johnny Gaines (Bixby) is a young, rich and handsome bachelor with women constantly at his beck and call. But his life is completely disrupted when a teenager named B. J. (Darrell Larson) arrives at his door claiming to be his son. A check of birth records in B. J.'s home town reveals that Johnny is indeed his father. Johnny tires desperately to keep the boy in the background and continue his swinging life, but he finds that being a father is a lot more work than he imagined. His neglect of his work and his girlfriends, particularly his secretary, Edye (Diane Baker), leads Johnny's parents, Al (Jack Albertson) and Ethel (Ann Sothern), to suspect that something is wrong. Johnny decides to introduce them to B. J., but unexpected complications result.

Owen Marshall plays attorney

HOLLYWOOD — "Owen Marshall, Counselor at Law," starring Arthur Hill as a brilliant Santa Barbara (Calif.) attorney whose practice runs the gamut from boundary disputes to murder, is the curtain raiser for a new season of outstanding film entertainment on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie" today. The series based on this motion picture premieres Thursday. Also starring in the movie are Vera Miles, Joseph Campanella, William Shatner, Bruce Davison, Dana Wynter, Tim Matheson, Ramon Bieri and Sorrell Booke. In the film Owen Marshall defends Raymond (Cowboy) Leatherberry, a hippie charged with the murder of Joan Baldwin, respected Santa Barbara matron. Leatherberry contends that he had been passing by the Baldwin house, had seen Mrs. Baldwin standing in the doorway, intoxicated and with a revolver in her hand. She had invited him in and he had accepted, hoping he could get the revolver away from her. In the struggle the gun had discharged, killing her. However, on the witness stand it is revealed that the young man has given false testimony on vital points. Co-starring are Joan Darling, Christine Matchett, Walter Brooke, Kathy Lloyd and Rick Lenz.

Jackson with Taylor Lacher, Victor Campos and Peter Ford as the younger deputies and Sandra Ego as dispatcher Joannie Little Bird. This episode was written by Jerry Ludwig and Eric Berne and directed by Marvin Chomsky. David Gerber is executive producer of "Cade's County" which is produced by Charles Larson. Music is by Henry Mancini.

Canadian town dying

ASBESTOS, Que. (UPI) — This town is gradually being swallowed up by one of the largest man-made holes in the world, but its residents don't complain. Part of it has to die for the rest to live. If it were not for the ever-expanding cavernous 900-foot deep asbestos pit, the town of Asbestos with a population exceeding 10,000 would be no more and citizens play a kind of leap-frog housing game to keep one step ahead of "the hole." The hole is the largest open-pit asbestos mine in the Free World and has been in operation since 1881. Asbestos proper, about 110 miles east of Montreal in Quebec's eastern townships, is built around the hole and every time the pit grows larger, part of the town is demolished. Officials of the John-Manville Co. of Canada, which mines the asbestos and owns more than 50 per cent of the town, estimate that in 1927 the town's post office was located in the middle of the now mile-wide pit. Not only the post office, but half of Asbestos has been moved in either direction anywhere between a half a mile and three quarters of a mile since 1881 to make room for the pit. But, the town does not get smaller, instead it expands from the center of the hole and residents who are forced to move south due to pit expansion are reimbursed up to twice the market value for their properties by John-Manville. The company itself is moving the main plant to make way for the hole.

"We are spending $75 million to move our facilities 1,000 yards southeast of our present location," said Yvan Couture, director of industrial relations for Johns-Manville. "For every foot we go down, we have to go at least one foot over to prevent slides," he said in an interview. "We have been buying property since 1927 and have spent close to $4 million in relocation payments to Asbestos residents." "And then there was the church which got in the way of our expansion plans," said Couture. "We paid the diocese $1.6 million and it built two new churches for that money." "It is a financially stable town," said Couture. "We employ about 75 per cent of the working force. The rents are low and a new town is being built every day." Joe Eby, mine manager, said complaints come mainly from workers who rented homes close to the pit from Johns-Manville. "They lived very close to the pit, but had so little rent to pay that they did not want to move," he said. The pit itself is deep enough to completely envelop the 60-story RCA Building in New York and in a few years of continued mining would be able to swallow the 1,250-foot tall Empire State Building. Called Jeffrey Mine, it is the largest asbestos producer in North America. Company officials estimate there is enough asbestos left in the pit "to keep mining well beyond the year 2,000." How deep down the asbestos vein goes, they would not say.

Star gazer

Hope in 22nd season Polluted air potential health hazard to many

HOLLYWOOD — Bob Hope launches his 22nd season on the NBC Television Network when he welcomes an entire female cast to "The Bob Hope Special" Monday. Hope will be playing host to a cast that includes Edie Adams, Dr. Joyce Brothers, Imogene Coca, Linda Crystal, Angie Dickinson, Phyllis Diller, Nanette Fabray, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Sue Lyon, Barbara McNair, Phyllis Newman, Martha Raye, Rose Marie, Jill St. John, Jacqueline Susann, Edy Williams, and Jo Anne Worley. Music for the colorcast will be provided by Les Brown and his Band of Renown. Dick McDonough will direct the program, the first of seven NBC-TV specials to star Hope during the 1971-72 season. Bob Hope is executive producer; Mort Lachman, producer. "The Bob Hope Special" will be sponsored by the Chrysler Corporation through Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn. It will precede "It's a Wacky World" on this multi-special night on NBC-TV. The two programs will preempt "NBC Monday Night at the Movies."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Research Council reports that air polluted by lead is a potential health hazard to children and some workers in central city neighborhoods, but not to the general population. The average American, according to the report, consumes more lead in food and drinks than he inhales from the atmosphere polluted by leaded automobile exhaust. Some moonshine whiskey is particularly dangerous, the report noted. The report was prepared for the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) by the council's committee on biologic effects of atmospheric pollutants. Findings included: —Young children in inner cities have more lead in their blood than adults, possibly from swallowing contaminated dust or nibbling paint as well as breathing the air. The blood lead concentrations are not great enough to cause symptoms of lead poisoning but are sufficient to cause "biochemical changes," the effect of which is not well understood. —The same potential hazard that exists for inner city children also exists for some traffic policemen, garage workers, and others whose jobs expose them continuously to high air levels of lead. But to become sick with diagnosable lead poisoning they would have to get five times more lead than they do now from all sources. The report said that atmospheric lead is almost entirely a city problem. Such pollution results largely from combustion of lead additives in gasoline and air in the largest U.S. cities has 20 times more lead than country air. "Another major source of serious poisoning is moonshine whiskey manufactured in stills in which automobile radiators are used as condensers and the other components are connected by lead soldering. "Additional sources of lead poisoning include improperly fired lead-glazed earthenware, old battery casings used as fuel, and an assortment of manufactured items such as lead-containing toys." The committee recommended further research to determine precisely the effects of lead short of acute poisoning.

New rules may curb 'hoopla'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When a Democratic orator names "the man who" he says is destined to lead the nation for the next four years, delegates to the 1972 Democratic National Convention are supposed to keep their seats and remain silent. It probably won't work, but a proposed rule from one of the party's reform commissions says delegates "shall maintain order" before and after nominating speeches. It also says "demonstrations on behalf of candidates shall not be permitted."

These managers also take a cool view of "favorite son" candidates whose names go before conventions as tributes from their home states or to give undecided delegations time to choose between the major candidates. When President Nixon appeared almost certain of a first ballot nomination in 1968, the names of 12 candidates were placed before the Republican Convention, including the irrepressible Harold E. Stassen. Five names were submitted to the Democratic Convention. For 1972, the O'Hara Commission recommended that candidates with substantial support in at least three states be allowed a half hour for nominating and seconding speeches. Others would get only five minutes. The GOP committee also recommended only five minutes for favorite son candidates and 14 minutes—11 less than in 1968—for others. It reported that its poll showed heavy support for forbidding demonstrations for favorite sons. It is the Fraser Commission, formerly headed by Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, which is leading the Democrats into unexplored territory. The GOP is moving much more cautiously. Some members of the Fraser Commission itself disagree about the meaning of its 18 guidelines for selecting delegates. Some have freely predicted a record number of contests over seating delegates. Some Democrats believe enforcement of the standards will cause chaos; others think enforcement is necessary to prevent chaos. One guideline likely to cause trouble requires state delegations to represent women, young people and minority groups in "reasonable relationship to their population in a state." But a footnote in the report says no quota system is intended and opens the way to endless argument. One question is what happens when a state electing Democratic convention delegates in a primary names all-male candidates over 40.

Manning starts 5th season

LOS ANGELES — Guest Stars Rosemary Forsyth and Guy Stockwell join series star Mike Connors as "Mannix" starts its fifth season in a new time period, Wednesday on the CBS Television Network. Miss Forsyth plays wealthy Leslie Fielding, the victim of a blackmail plot from an unexpected quarter. She and her husband, Glen, played by Stockwell, call on private investigator Joe Mannix when it appears that she, rather than the blackmailer, may go to prison. Emmy winner Gail Fisher will again play Mannix's private secretary, Peggy Fair, and Robert Reed will be seen in his recurring role as Police Lt. Adam Tobias. The episode was directed by John Moxey from a script by Robert W. Lenski. Ivan Goff and Ben Roberts are the producers. Bruce Geller is the executive producer.

Stewart stars

NEW YORK — "Rear Window," the spine-tingling Alfred Hitchcock suspense drama starring James Stewart and Grace Kelly, will be shown in its entirety on "The ABC Monday Night Movie" Monday. Jeff (James Stewart), a news photographer confined to his apartment with a broken leg, spends his time at a window looking out on a back yard and opposite buildings of a jumbled residential block off lower Fifth Avenue in New York. He discovers a great deal about the neighbors going on including what appears to be a murder by a salesman living across the way.

McMurray has double role

LOS ANGELES — Fred MacMurray plays the double role of Steve Douglas and Steve's look-alike Scottish cousin, Fergus, in the 12th-season premiere of "My Three Sons" Monday, on the CBS Television Network. Earl Bellamy directed from a script by George Tribbles. This is the first of a four-part episode that deals with Fergus's trip to America to find himself a wife. (The voice of Fergus is dubbed by actor Alan Callou.) Fergus, a Scottish laird, puts off Barbara and Katie with his aloof manner, but Katie later discovers another side of the apparently dour Scot that causes her to change her mind about him. Edmund Hartman is executive producer of "My Three Sons" and Don Federson is executive producer.

Sheepdog stars on CBS event

"Flash, the Sheepdog," 1967 Scottish motion picture about a canny sheep-herding dog that seems almost human, will be presented on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Oct. 2 on the CBS Television Network. The film, a rebroadcast, was originally shown on March 3, 1968.

The film, produced by International Film Associates, Ltd., for the Children's Film Foundation, Ltd., was voted the most popular of all motion pictures screened in the children's section at the 1967 Moscow Film Festival. It was the first feature film produced by a Scottish unit since the 1920s.

The story centers on a young English orphan, Tom Stokes, who comes to stay with his aunt and uncle on a sheep farm. The boy becomes attached to a sheepdog puppy, called Flash, and the uncle's shepherd shows him how to train the animal.

The climax occurs when Tom is challenged by Dougie Mackieson, loutish son of a neighboring farmer, to prove Flash against his own dog in the local sheepdog trials.

Earl Younger plays Tom, Ross Campbell appears as Dougie, Alex Johnson as the shepherd, Victor Carin as the uncle and Douglas Murchie as a postman.

New segments

GRUNILLA HUTTON, Lisa Todd and newcomer Sherry Miles star in the all-new segments of "Hee Haw" to be seen weekly starting this month.

Screen rights bought on saga of prisoner

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Yvette Mimieux has purchased screen rights to United Press International's Kate Webb saga as a prisoner of the Viet Cong. The blonde beauty will write, produce and star in the film version of the UPI's Phnom Penh bureau manager.

"This won't be a glossy adventure story of an attractive girl surrounded by an enemy who speaks English," Yvette said at Universal Pictures where she is currently working.

"We hope to shoot the film in Thailand. The topography is very much like that of Cambodia. And we're striving for a semi-documentary effect. We need the faces of those Indochina people—not Hollywood extras.

"Kate told me none of her captors spoke English. Neither will the characters in the picture. I'll use sub-titles. If possible I'll hire a Japanese director, too."

Initiating new projects is nothing new to the slender Miss Mimieux. She founded a textile company in Haiti and will produce her own movie soon.

"I wrote a story titled 'counterpoint,'" Yvette explained. "I took it to Richard Zanuck who asked that I write a screenplay from it. He loved the results, so we go into production at Warner Bros. in October."

"My Onza Productions will make the picture. It's a love story about a hit girl (killer) for the Mafia."

"That's one way to solve the problem of lack of scripts for actresses. Maybe we all should write our own."

Yvette was resting between scenes of "Death Takes a Holiday," a 90-minute television movie co-starring Monte Markham and Melvyn Douglas. The original—starring Fredric March, Evelyn Venable and Gail Patrick—was a minor film classic.

"This is my very first movie for television," Yvette said, wrinkling her nose prettily.

"As far as I'm concerned they're a good thing. These 90-minute pictures reach millions and millions of people who don't take the trouble to go out to theaters."

"But this big move for motion pictures on television doesn't negate feature films for theaters. Just the opposite."

"Small, low budget pictures by independent producers are just coming into their own. In fact, that's what I'm doing with 'counterpoint' and the Kate Webb picture."

"Audiences who want to see something unusual or controversial will have more and more movies to see. They won't be churned out by the large studios on a production line."

Yvette, who doesn't look like a writer, producer, or business woman, turned on a warm smile.

"A girl has to keep busy these days," she said. And with that she was off to watch the rushes of the previous days filming.

Adjournment plans bleak in Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI)—When Congress recessed last month for a summer holiday, the outlook for adjournment before mid-winter snows appeared excellent.

Congress had completed action on all but four appropriation bills and major parts of President Nixon's domestic programs either dead or headed for action during the 1972 election year.

Congressional leaders thus were planning an adjournment in middle or late October, finally breaking the recent cycle of year-round sessions.

Those plans have been forgotten. There is even talk—not all of it in jest—of a session running until New Year's Eve.

President Nixon's dramatic announcement of sweeping economic reforms, which came when Congress was in recess, gives the remainder of the first session of the 92nd Congress a completely new coloration.

Nixon's Requests Specifically, Nixon has asked Congress to legislate a 10 per cent investment tax credit, repeal the 7 per cent auto excise tax, and speed up a $50 increase in exemptions for personal income taxes to next Jan. 1.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee—the single most powerful figure on tax legislation in Congress—will open hearings on Nixon's proposals Wednesday.

Indications are that the House will give Nixon what he wants and, perhaps, some additions he would rather do without.

Under strong pressure from the Democrats, the House might advance the date for increased personal tax exemptions by two years, making it retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year.

Mills and Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., senior Republican on the committee, are also committed to an April 1, 1971, date for the investment tax credit in place of the administration's proposed Aug. 14 date.

Whatever the House adds for the average wage earner, the Senate will want to do more.

Many Democrats, including all those with presidential aspirations, have attacked Nixon's proposals for giving too much to big business, not enough to the wage earner, and little to the poor.

Although economics will undoubtedly dominate the rest of the session, Congress is faced with other major problems.

On Sept. 13 the Senate will take up the conference report on the bill to extend the draft two years. It is certain to provoke a filibuster.

Faced with the prospect of staying in session most of the year, Congress might now complete action on some bills earlier destined to go over into the second session.

These could include some form of Nixon's welfare reform legislation, campaign spending, stronger anti-water pollution standards, an independent consumer agency.

Bill Cosby to portray legendary storyteller

Bill Cosby, one of the entertainment world's most gifted and popular comedy stars, in his first special on the CBS Television Network, will portray the legendary storyteller Aesop in a musical adaptation of "Aesop's Fables," filmed in live action and animation, to be broadcast Oct. 31 on the network.

Cosby, as announced earlier this year, has signed for a new, full-hour, weekly comedy-variety series planned for presentation on the Network starting in September 1972.

"Aesop's Fables," with a script and special song lyrics by Earl Hamner, tells a modern version of the fable of the tortoise and the hare, reputedly authored by Aesop in the 6th century B.C.

Keith Hamilton and Jerelyn Fields appear with Cosby as two playmates who chase an errant kite deep into the woods, where they come upon Aesop, the master fabulist, and his symbolic animal friends.

Voices of the animal characters in the animated sequences are performed by Larry Storch, John Byner, John Erwin, Dal McKennon and Jane Webb.

Lou Scheimer and Norman Prescott are the producers of "Aesop's Fables," and Lee Rich is the executive producer. Bob Chenault and Hal Sutherland directed the special.

Mary Moore show opens

LOS ANGELES — Mary Richards gets trapped into talking to young Bess Lindstrom (Lisa Gerritsen) about the birds and the bees when Bess' mother, Phyllis (Chor Leachman) admits she can't cope with the situation on the second season premiere of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" Saturday, Sept. 18 on the CBS Television Network.

Jay Sandrich directed the second season premiere episode from a script by Treva Silverman.

Reluctant at first to take over the motherly duties, Mary warms to the challenge. Even Rhoda rises to the occasion and the two of them invite little Bess to Mary's apartment for a talk about the facts of life.

"The Mary Tyler Moore Show," an MTM Enterprises, Inc. production, is filmed at CBS Studio Center. James L. Brooks and Allan Burns are executive producers. David Davis is producer.

Cambodia aides 'tighten up'

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodia's military leaders are attempting to tighten military discipline and procedures in its instant army to eliminate some of the causes of terror for its merchant class. A first step will be issuing cards of identity to every soldier and formally enlisting those who bear arms, military sources said.

Since the Cambodian war began March 18, 1970, the country's military establishment has been expanded from a badly trained and equipped force of fewer than 35,000 regulars to nearly 200,000. Much of the expansion was less than formal. When a local commander enlisted a platoon in a village, they often took along the younger brothers of the recruits. Some were as young as 10 years. Sometimes sisters or sweethearts went along too.

The result is that the high command in Phnom Penh has no roster of its troops and isn't even certain how many it has.

the rules. The result has been a wave of terror against the largely Chinese merchant class.

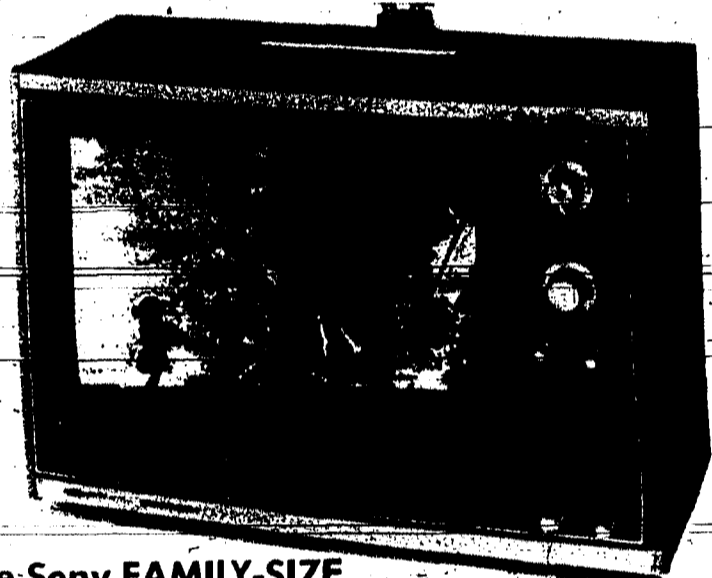

Chinese are the small shopkeepers and money lenders of Southeast Asia. Never popular, they became objects of outright hostility when Cambodians blamed them for speculation which brought inflated prices since the war began.

Beginning a year ago, unpaid soldiers in Cambodian cities for a few days rest from battle began invading restaurants, theaters, bars and night clubs, demanding free food, drink and amusement. When they were refused, they sometimes opened fire with their weapons or rolled grenades into the buildings.

Efforts by military police to maintain order were hampered by the lack of military identification cards and formal troop rosters.

The result has been that many Phnom Penh restaurants have shut down and some of those which remain open lock their doors and admit only Occidentals or Asians known to them.

"WHAT'S the average length of marriages that end in divorce?" inquires a Pennsylvanian. "I mean, in what year of marriage is the divorce most apt to occur, if at all?" Pretty tricky statistics, those. Average length of that marriage split up by divorce is six years. But the year in which divorce is most apt to occur is the second. Our Love and War man says odds for a successful matrimonial life greatly favor any couple already married for more than six years.

They hired a sign painter to picture two large bells out front. Their logo. But the sign painter, a whimsical sort, got mellow on mash, so labelled one bell "Ding" and the other "Dong. That was the only visible print for miles around.

Yacht power ready

NEW YORK (UPI) —After years of researching and testing turbines, Chris-Craft is going to produce its first turbine-powered pleasure boat.

The company, world's largest builder of motorboats, says its first such craft will be a 55-foot Commander fiberglass yacht powered by Ford's new 4200 series turbines, which produce 500 Shaft horsepower.

"The results of our research have proven conclusively that the turbine is ready to be used in cruisers and yachts of certain sizes and therefore we are now able to make available the natural advantages the turbine has over the diesel of comparable output," James J. Rochlis, president of Chris-Craft's boat division, said.

"The merits of turbines over diesels have long been recognized. It remained to have a production model of the right size to adapt to our boats."

Basically, a turbine is a hydraulic-type engine consisting of one or more rotary units, mounted on a shaft and provided with a series of curved vanes, actuated by the impulse of fluid under pressure.

According to Rochlis, the turbine to be used in model boats will produce more horsepower per pound of weight than a diesel engine of comparable rating.

"It has ecologically clean and cooler exhaust and the payload in terms of fuel, water and people, will be higher," Rochlis said. "From a comfort point of view, it removes vibration and reduces sound levels to a minimum."

"This turbine now gives us a power plant that operates most efficiently at full throttle, has fewer moving parts and therefore requires less maintenance. It is possible to interchange ancillary equipment such as alternators, gear boxes, controls, etc. Without this accomplishment by Ford, we would not be recommending turbines for power choices."

"The turbine's multi-fuel capability gives it important flexibility. However, its primary fuel is No. 2 diesel oil."

According to Rochlis, Ford turbines have been under development since 1952, with more than 30,000 dynamometer test hours and more than 1.3 million hours of material and component testing. In addition, he said, prototypes have been driven more than a quarter of a million miles in company fleet trucks and others have been field-tested in a wide variety of industrial applications.

The first turbine-powered Commander is scheduled for delivery about February, Rochlis said.

Peter N. Wilson, vice-president of the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers, says the Federal Boat Safety Act of 1971 recently enacted by Congress is "a needed boost to the States' boating safety education programs and uniformity of state boating laws."

The legislation provides for federal funds toward the support of such programs and is generally designed to encourage greater and continuing uniformity of state boating laws.

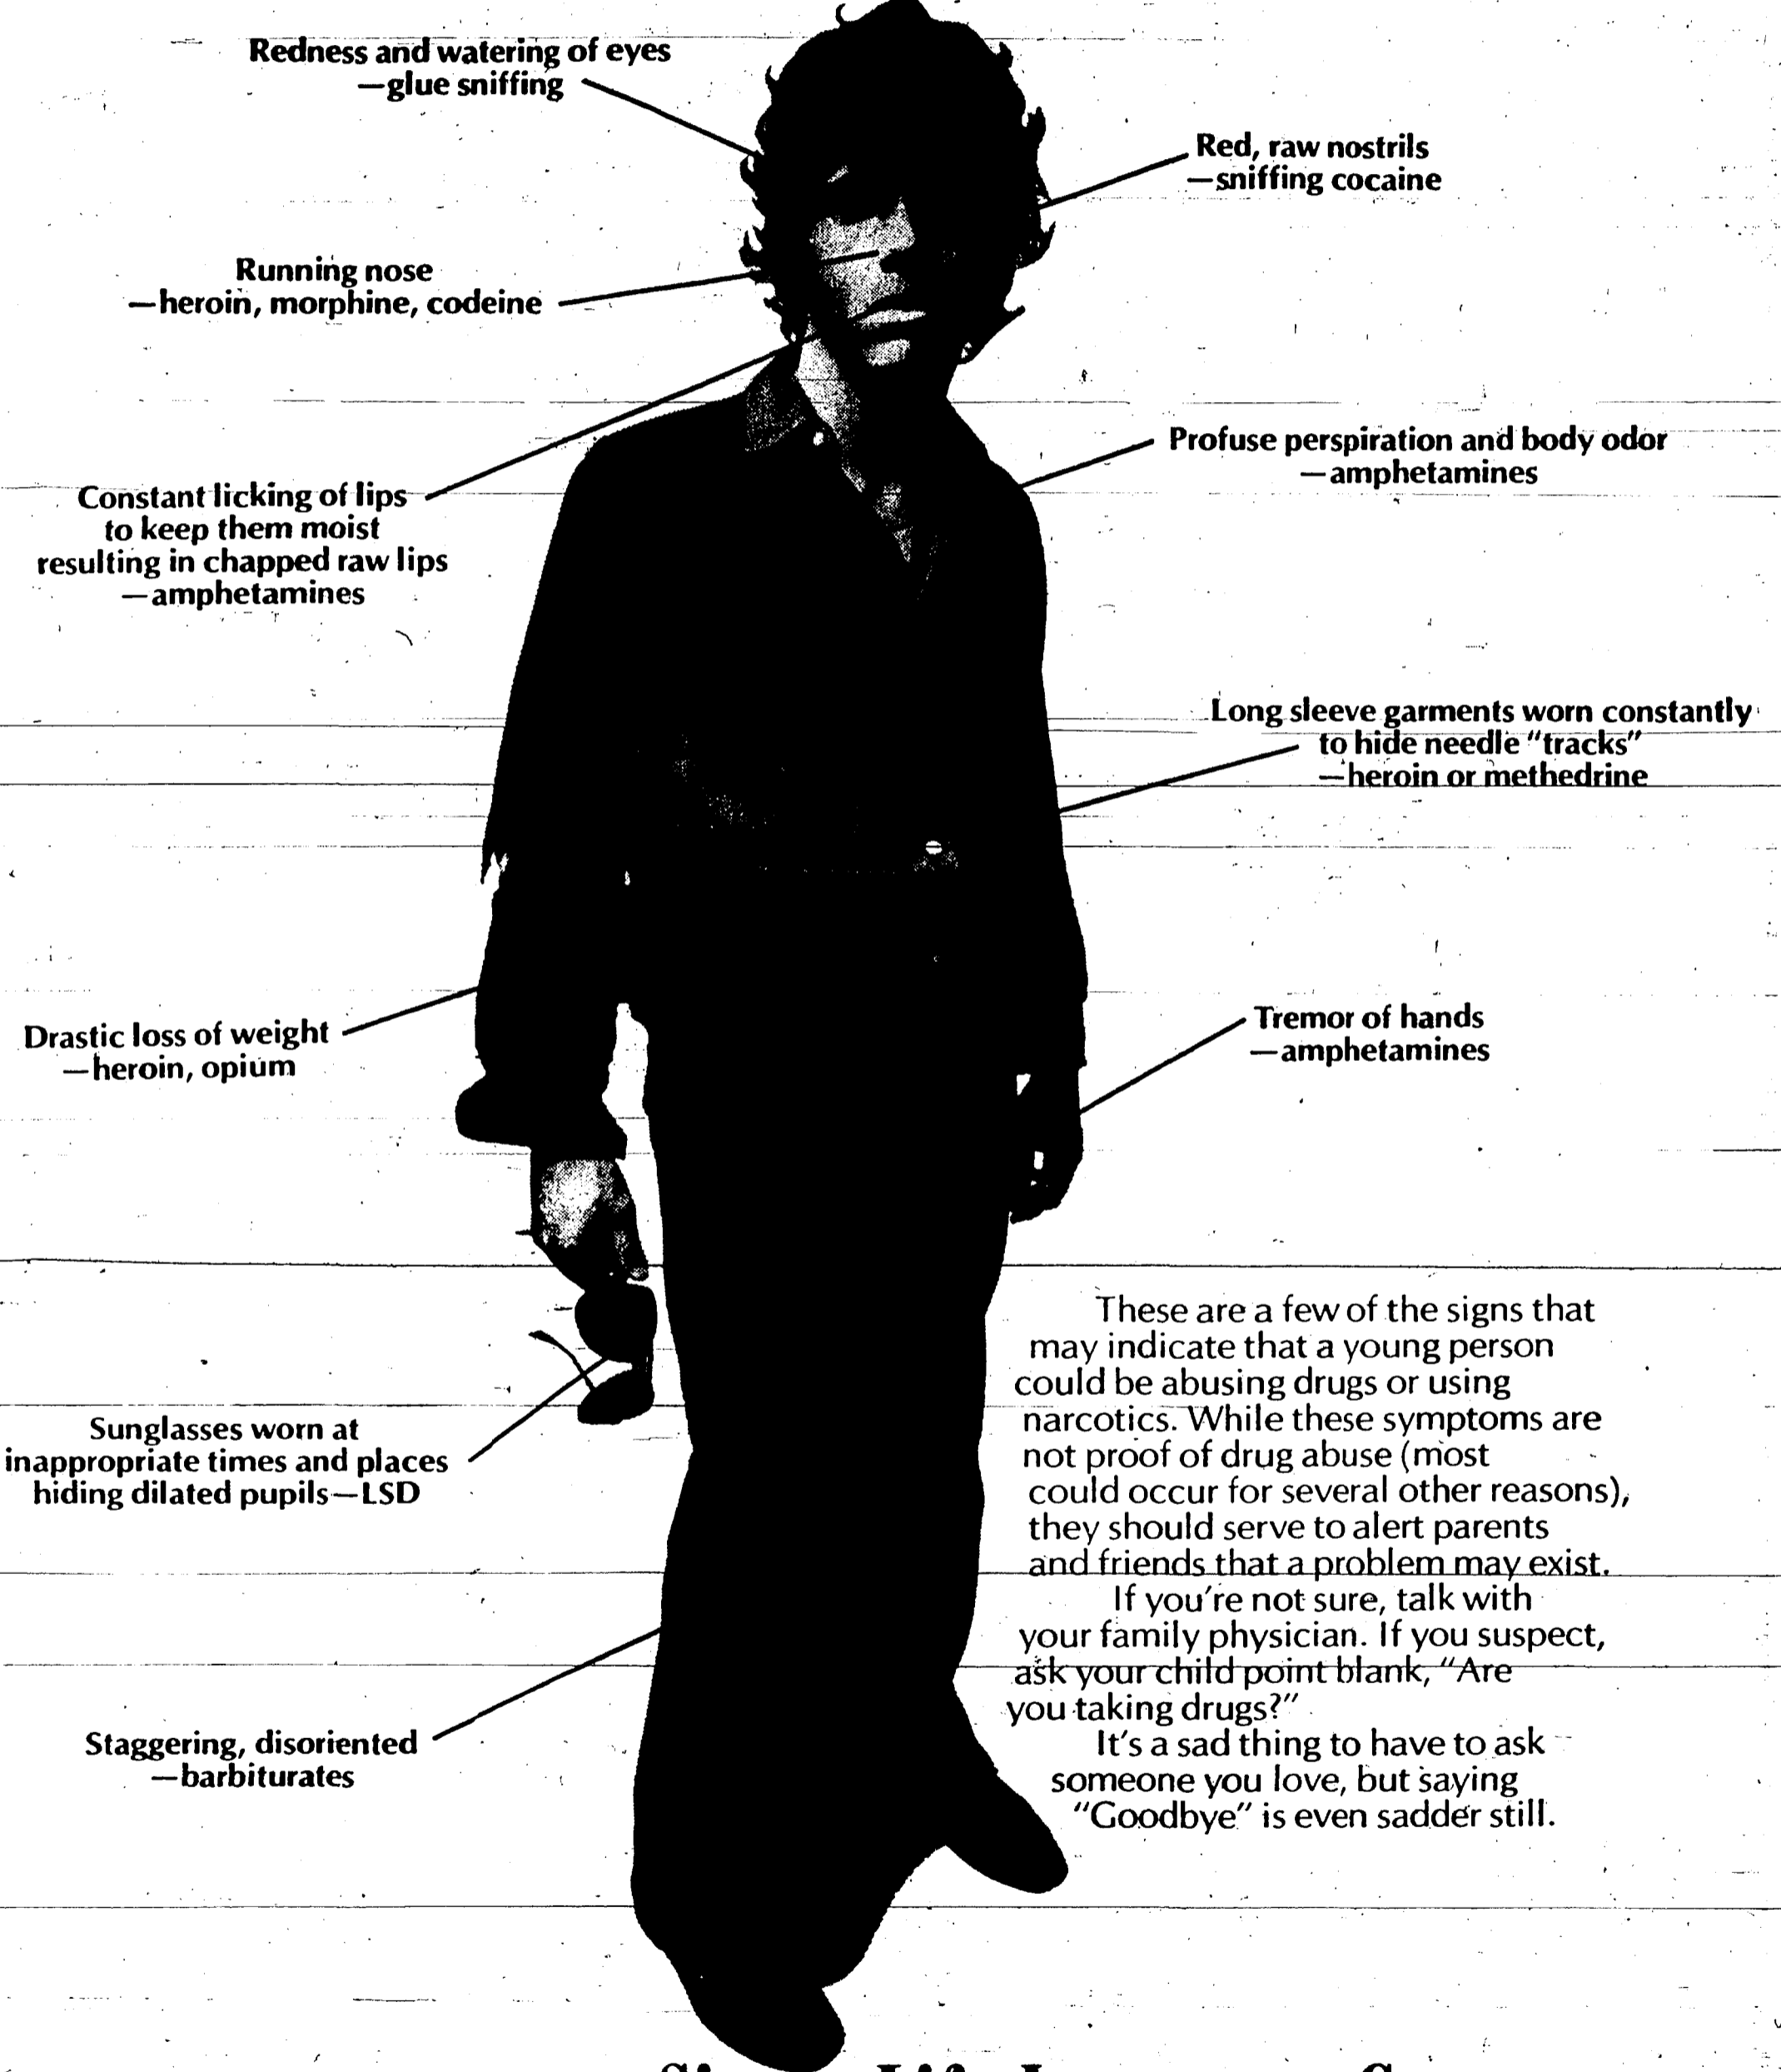

"The effectiveness of this new legislation won't be measurable for several years," Wilson said, "but we do know its success will require cooperation from the public and the industry as well as government. The industry long ago pledged this cooperation and we're happy to live up to it."

Handy shade

NEW YORK (UPI) —A ceiling-hung installation for window shades is enormously versatile. It makes light of the ever-growing use of sliding door-windows because they can pull up out of the way when one wants to go outside.

This same, easy-do installation will avoid necessity for drilling in aluminum framed windows, according to the Window Shade Manufacturing Association. Coupled with ceiling-hung curtains and hung reverse-side to hide the roller, or used alone, such installation will hide the wall above the window, giving the impression of added height.

Diagram of a drug abuser

These are a few of the signs that may indicate that a young person could be abusing drugs or using narcotics. While these symptoms are not proof of drug abuse (most could occur for several other reasons), they should serve to alert parents and friends that a problem may exist.

If you're not sure, talk with your family physician. If you suspect, ask your child point blank, "Are you taking drugs?"

It's a sad thing to have to ask someone you love, but saying "Goodbye" is even sadder still.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—Use a spring-type clothespin to hold report cards, papers and notes that the children must take to school. Hang on the inside of the door to the closet where their sweaters and coats are kept.—VERA

DEAR POLLY—Recently a mouse jumped from a cupboard and threw me into hysterics, so I spread moth balls where I thought the mouse got in and that was the end of that. I hate using a mouse trap and then have to dispose of the dead mouse. I have never seen another one, so hope this helps others who have a slight mouse problem.—KARIN

DEAR POLLY—I dyed sheets and pillowcases pastel colors to go with the colors in the various bedrooms. This also helps me tell the twin sizes from the full sizes when they are all stacked together in the linen closet.—ARLENE (Polly's note—Just be sure all the excess dye is out of any such linens dyed at home, or there may be real trouble come wash day.)

DEAR POLLY—The fact that my bedroom is inconveniently small and I can never place the bed out from the wall has proved to be a money-saver when it comes to buying spreads. I buy one with an all-over pattern so that centering on the bed is not necessary, and in a twin size. I place it on the bed with plenty of drop on the outside and very little between the bed and the wall. Perhaps this will help make someone else thankful in spite of a too-small bedroom.—MRS. E. J. W.

DEAR POLLY—I keep a small squeegee in the shower. After a shower it is great for cleaning the tile walls, glass and floor. After using it a while the tile started to shine. This is also good for the young ones to use.—J. J.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—A small bdg for my closet was made from a blouse that was too small, simply by sewing it together across the bottom. This is kept on a hanger and is used to hold my soiled hose and panty hose. A towel is draped over the rod next to this hanger. Over it I hang hose after they are washed. This saves a lot of hunting through drawers looking for clean ones.—ANNETTE

DEAR POLLY—My pointer is for that room with cobwebs in the corners. Take an empty paper towel roll and gently wrap the cobwebs around the roll. After they are all gathered up, throw the roll away with no muss and no fuss.—JANICE

DEAR POLLY—When sending invitations to a bridal shower it would be so much easier for all concerned if the colors the bride intends to use in her home are listed on the card. When my daughter was married the hostess for each shower did this and everything fit right in with her color schemes. On one side of each invitation was written "Bath pink," etc.—MRS. P. B.

FOR DR. FRANK STANTON, President of CBS

I enjoyed the TV debates between then-Senator Kennedy and then-Vice President Nixon during the 1960 Presidential election campaign. But I haven't seen an important debate since then. What happened?—C. Fontaine, Sarasota, Fla.

● If we tried that now, we would have to give equal time to every fringe candidate—and there are many. The Kennedy-Nixon debates were made possible by the temporary suspension of that section of the Communications Act which provides equal time to all candidates. Proposals are now pending in Congress to suspend or repeal the section and allow broadcasters to give free time to major party candidates without having to give equal time to every fringe candidate. I have testified before Congressional committees that if Section 315 is changed, CBS is prepared to offer eight hours of free TV and radio time after next Labor Day for the major-party candidates for President and Vice President to present their views, perhaps in joint appearances or back-to-back interviews.

FOR LEE MARVIN, Academy Award-winning actor

I read that you remarried recently, to a friend from your childhood. Do you plan to start a new family?—L. Rey, Lancaster, Pa.

● Yes, right after I run for president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. Actually, I have four children (from my first marriage), and my wife Pam also has four. In addition, we now have a grandchild, courtesy of one of Pam's daughters. I guess that'll do us for a while.

FOR JAMES ARNESS, star of "Gunsmoke"

You look taller and heavier than your brother, Peter Graves. Are you? Which one of you started in show business first?—Mrs. Lyle Ludy, Battle Creek, Mich.

● You're right—I'm bigger. I'm 6-6 and weigh 225 pounds; he is 6-2 and weighs 190. I came to Hollywood two years before Peter did.

FOR MRS. SPIRO T. AGNEW

Does the current fad of Spiro Agnew watches and shirts bother you? Also, what does your husband think of them?—Stan Nover, Racine, Wis.

● No, the watches and shirts don't bother me. In fact, I own both! When my husband learned that certain products bearing his likeness were on the market without his prior consent, he requested that the manufacturers contribute a percentage of their profits to charities of his choice. Most of them cooperated, and as a result more than $35,000 was contributed last year to charities.

FOR JOE PEPITONE, Chicago Cubs outfielder

Why do you wear your hair so long? Do your employers or teammates rib you or complain about it?—Neal Boyer, Valparaiso, Ind.

● I wear my hair long because I like it that way and not because I'm attempting to be "anti-Establishment" or thwart authority. I just think I look good in long hair! I don't get ribbed by my own teammates, but I do take a lot of needling from opposing players and fans in other towns. The usual line is "Hey Joe, all the barbers in Chicago on strike?"

FOR GEORGE MURPHY, former Senator from California

How do you feel about the reports that Ronald Reagan will try for the Republican nomination for President in 1972?—Charlotte Collin, New York, N.Y.

● If President Nixon runs for re-election—and I am sure he will—Governor Reagan will not seek the nomination in 1972. He assured me of that about four months ago.

FOR TAYLOR CALDWELL, author

Have any of your excellent novels ever been made into movies or been the basis of a movie?—Mrs. Joseph Weber, Torrance, Calif.

● No. A Hollywood producer once told me that he wouldn't touch one of my books because of my politics. I am a conservative. I believe the same feeling all over Hollywood has kept my books from being converted into movies.

FOR SAMMY DAVIS, JR., performer

Do you believe Frank Sinatra's retirement will be permanent? What about your own plans?—H. S. Jones, Cincinnati, Ohio

● It could be permanent because Frank has done just about everything there is to be done in show business. I won't retire because there is too much I haven't done. I want to do a lot of directing and producing before I even think about retiring.

FOR MIKE CONNORS, star of "Mannix" CBS-TV

On television I recently saw an old movie of yours. In the credits you were billed as "Touch Connors." How did you get this name, and why did you change it?—J. Reynolds, Amarillo, Texas

● I got the name of Touch Connors when I played basketball for UCLA. My teammates gave it to me because I had such large hands. But I never really liked the name, and later I changed it. Still, I made 24 movies in which I was listed as "Touch."

FOR CRAIG CLAIBORNE, gourmet

Day in and day out during the course of your work, you eat the best meals at the finest restaurants in and around New York. What do you eat at home and on vacation?—B. Nicholas, Asbury Park, N.J.

● I happen to have a passion for hamburgers, hot dogs and chili con carne. I also eat a great deal of sea food like clams and oysters and the fish that I catch with friends, since I live on Long Island. Nobody can live on a constant diet of classic French cooking. We save that for weekends and special occasions. Having just finished the "New York Times International Cookbook," which will be out in October, I'm busy collaborating on a new Chinese cookbook with Mrs. Virginia Lee. The reason I mention this is that lately at home I've been preparing as many as 30 Chinese dishes a day—and eating them, too!

The Fear of Closeness Keeps Right on Wrecking Marriages

"We all know people with marital claustrophobia: the attorney who suddenly discovers law briefs which require him to work late and on weekends, the construction worker who constantly goes out with the boys for a drink or goes bowling; the woman who gets involved in endless club activities or activities 'with the girls' "

When "Marital Claustrophobia" Sets In, Those Vows Feel Like a Steel Trap Clanking Shut

By Arthur S. Freese

Elliott Sparrow was a New York City bachelor, past 40, when he fell in love and married. Now, a year later, he's seeking a divorce. As he explained to his lawyer: "I love my wife, I really do. But the moment the marriage ceremony was over, I got terribly depressed. I felt like a child locked in a closet—I desperately wanted to escape. The marriage has me trapped: I've got to get out."

Ruth Wilson is in her middle thirties, married, with a 10-year-old son and a girl of eight. They live near Chicago. She and her husband are close and get along well. But there are periods when she is depressed and unhappy: "I've got this feeling that somehow I'm missing something . . . that I'm caught in quicksand, trapped."

Frank Gray is in his twenties and lives unmarried in Los Angeles with a girl he adores. They have many common interests, enjoy their home, their friends. Yet Frank won't marry: "That's old-fashioned. We're free from that sort of phobia, they do so in different ways. For, to many people, marriage is a dreaded plunge, a not-so-tender trap, which produces a closed-in feeling—the kind some persons get when caught in a closed space.

Dr. Victor C. Raimy, University of Colorado professor of psychology, explains that the reasons for phobias lie deep in the unconscious part of the mind. They're an attempt to hide the real inner cause of anxiety by focussing it on some outer object or situation. Anxiety is different from fear. If you go out and find yourself facing a lion loose in the street, you will feel fear. But if you have those same feelings on an ordinary street, that's anxiety. And it's anxieties that forced Elliott to break up his marriage; that together fairly comfortably; it's only when they formalize their partnership with a legal ceremony that the phobia reaction begins.

As you might expect, marital claustrophobia plays a large role in our soaring divorce rate. It also explains the problems of a number of bachelors and spinsters. But what may not be easily recognized is that marital claustrophobia can cause problems even for those people whose marriages last. A formerly loving husband may suddenly become cold and distant as some added pressure—a death in the family, loss of job, even pregnancy—aggravates his feelings of being trapped. If it's the wife who has the phobia, she will begin to nag. Or, like Ruth Wilson, she will have the feeling that somehow she's "missing something."

We all know people with marital claustrophobia: the attorney who suddenly discovers law briefs which require him to work late and on weekends; a construction worker who goes out with the thing." But he has no thought of separating, and they keep making plans for their life together.

Elliott, Ruth, Frank: three people completely different in every way—in age, sex, background, even the section of the country they come from. Yet all three, like millions of other Americans, have one thing in common—a "phobia," a fear. Dr. Sidney Levin, Boston psychoanalyst and author, explains the problem this way: "There are some people who have what might be called a 'marriage phobia' which may lead them to avoid marriage for many years. When they eventually take the plunge, they feel claustrophobic."

To psychiatrists "phobia" means an intense, irrational, persistent and abnormal fear. Claustrophobia is a morbid dread of being enclosed, especially in small spaces. While Elliott, Ruth and Frank all suffer from the same marriage caused Ruth's depressions; that made Frank want to duck marriage, hiding his real reason behind the story that marriage is "old-fashioned."

The vast social changes of today have led growing numbers of young people like Frank to prefer to live together rather than marry—and the girl may desire this as much as the boy. But Doctor Levin believes this practice is actually "an avoidance of the trap as they see it—the trap that closes when they get married." He sees people of all ages increasingly trying to get around this marriage phobia by living together without marriage. While some are disturbed by the fact that this is "wrong" or "sinful," it becomes the lesser of two evils, for they have less anxiety than they would if they married. In other words, they can live to-boys for a drink or goes bowling; the woman who gets involved in endless club activities.

One common way in which people try to deal with their marriage phobia is through infidelity: when they have an affair, they don't feel so trapped. In many instances these people may actually be having sexual difficulties with their spouses; the man becomes impotent or the woman frigid. Yet both will be able to find sexual satisfaction in relations with partners other than their spouses. They may even need this to prove their sexual problems are not their own fault.

What to do about it? The mental health people—the psychiatrists, psychologists, psychiatric social workers—will urge psychotherapy or at the very least marriage counselling by competent personnel. And it can help—the sufferer need not live with marital claustrophobia. ♦

Here Are Ten Men I Find Most Appealing

By Barbara Walters of TV's "Today" Show

Last year I wrote a book titled, "How to Talk with Practically Anybody About Practically Anything," and in it I said that I found Richard Nixon rather sexy, and I still haven't heard the end of it. But to me, sex appeal is an extension of charm, and whenever I have been in the company of Richard Nixon, he has always put himself out to be particularly charming to me. Beyond that, he seemed much more attractive in person—rather, suntanned, and—well, rather sexy, that's all.

I admit I have been very fortunate in my work. I have met some of the most exciting, interesting and important men in the world. But the fact that a man is important doesn't necessarily make him charming, and it certainly doesn't mean he has sex appeal. So perhaps I should begin at the beginning and define what I am talking about.

In the motion picture, "Love Story," the definition of love is "never having to say you're sorry." It seems to me that the definition of a charming person is someone who never makes you feel as if you have to say you're sorry. If that someone is of the same sex, then he or she is charming. If that someone is of the opposite sex and is making you feel intelligent, witty, important and smashing-looking, then that somebody, he or she, has sex appeal.

"Whom do I find sexy?" I'll get back to President Nixon later, but let me list some others.

One is publisher Bennett Cerf, and Bennett is well into his late sixties. So, the first thing I have to say about appeal is that it has nothing to do with age. Bennett's most noticeable characteristic is his curiosity. A celebrity himself, he is nevertheless frankly thrilled to meet other celebrities. But celebrity or not, he is endlessly fascinated by people, all kinds of people—rich, poor, old, young—and he wants to know how they live, what they eat, how they feel about themselves and what is happening in their families.

My husband and I gave a large party one time, and my secretary, Mary Hornickel, came to help me with the guests. The next day I asked her whether she enjoyed herself and whom she had met. I wasn't surprised when she said she had had a long talk with Bennett. He wanted to know how she got her job, what she did, how she liked it, what boy friends she had. She was absolutely charmed with the frank attention and interest. Bennett's questions are always like that—penetrating and sometimes outrageously personal. But people realize that he is truly interested in paying attention to what they say, and they bask in his presence. He can communicate with anyone, from one of his most important authors to strangers who stop him on the street for his autograph. He is, as I said, in his late sixties, but he is the youngest man I know.

I find Frank Sinatra sexy. That shouldn't be too much news to an awful lot of women who find him the same way. But perhaps most would consider him to have sex appeal because of his brand of rough and tough "who cares" attitude. I feel just the opposite about Sinatra; it's his old-fashioned courtliness, rarely written about, that touches me. I can vouch for the fact that he treats most women as if they were made of glass. He's as concerned with their comfort and dignity as a Victorian. He has another little-known quality—grace. My husband and I were strangers to Frank when we attended the same party some years ago. We were standing a distance apart, very much aware of his famous face, when he disarmed us by approaching with a warm smile, putting out his hand and saying: "I'm Frank Sinatra, how do you do."

But it isn't just celebrities who seem able to charm or verbally seduce you. As a matter of fact, most film actors are usually so self-concerned that they don't have the genuine interest in other people which makes for a spontaneous relationship, however brief. There are, of course, exceptions. I remember an interview with Oskar Werner one morning on the "Today" program. I had not met him in advance, but as we sat down to talk, I said: "Mr. Werner, I understand from various reporters and newspaper interviews that you have the reputation of being quite difficult." He looked me directly in the eye (indeed, he never took his eyes off me) and said: "How do you know? We have never had an affair." I was so flabbergasted—and I must say, flattered—that I continued the rest of the interview in a mild daze. Our producer later said that he felt like walking out on the set and throwing a pail of cold water on us.

Many politicians are known for their charm, but not usually their sex appeal. What makes the difference? Sex appeal is something much more personal. That's why it surprised everyone when I added Richard Nixon to my list of charmers. Even his admirers tell me that they find him cold and stiff, and his detractors use more interesting language. I can't verify the accuracy of any such descriptions because I only know that you take people the way you find them, and I've been charmed by him every time we've met. The first occasion was in the White House when I was interviewing his daughter Tricia for "Today." President Nixon came out of his office unexpectedly and joined us. I asked him if I could have my picture taken with him. It was a corny request, maybe, but the President couldn't have been more courteous. He took me into his office and put me at ease by telling me that I was sitting in the same chair occupied the week before by Mrs. Golda Meir, the Prime Minister of Israel. With this opening, we talked for awhile about her and her country's problems, and I was grateful that Mr. Nixon was making it so easy for me to be with him.

This, by the way, was the conversation that led to the President obtaining an exclusive interview for me with Prince Philip. The President was having a stag dinner for Prince Philip that evening, and when I jokingly complained that this was discrimination against women, the President said: "Aren't you interviewing him on your program?" I said: "No, we hadn't been able to get him to agree to appear on the program." The President said: "I'll ask if he won't do it." He did, and the Prince did. You can't have a better agent than the President of the United States.

The next time I saw Richard Nixon was just before a White House dinner for Andrew Wyeth, and the President lingered much longer than his aides wanted him to with a group of women reporters. Some people have been cynical when I enthuse about his informality and friendliness, claiming that he is just buttering up the press. But I have known a great many important people who never bothered to be gracious on such occasions.

The last time I saw President Nixon was when he requested that I do an exclusive interview with him for the "Today" program. I was the first television reporter to do an extended interview with the President alone, and when the President of the United States chooses you to discuss intimacies—his wife, his family, the American family, his own personal image and you are a woman reporter—you can't help but be "charmed."

Since my book was published, I have met other men I wish that I had been able to include on the original list. A good deal has been written about the President's Adviser on National Security, Henry Kissinger. He has taken out the most glamorous women in the country, which surprises many people when they see his picture in the paper—for Henry Kissinger is hardly a matinee idol. He has a bit of a pot belly, wears thick-rimmed glasses and has a somewhat ponderous Teutonic air. Come to think of it, men may find Doctor Kissinger Teutonic; women would more often describe him as having Old World charm. I can vouch for the fact that Doctor Kissinger makes each woman reporter feel as if she is someone very special and very female. He is free with his compliments and suggestive in his conversation. If this is the way he is with a journalist, I can imagine how he disarms a lady even less on her guard.

And I could not write about sexy men without mentioning television's David Frost! David's style is to focus his eyes directly on your face, and by his expressions of warmth and appreciation, he makes you feel as if you are the most important and interesting person he has ever met. He charms the men; he simply wows the ladies! So what if the next night you find he is doing exactly the same thing with a totally new cast of characters? It was fun while it lasted!

Other nominations—the Duke of Windsor, who telephones you himself if he wants to talk with you and is warm, humorous and very young in spirit.

Author Lawrence Durrell, who writes brilliantly about women and can make you feel in the midst of the driest interview that he is enchanted by your presence.

And—would you believe it?—Groucho Marx, who teasingly and amusingly lets you know that he hasn't forgotten you're a woman. It must be a family trait, because my husband and I recently vacationed in Palm Springs, California, where Groucho's brother, Zeppo, has a home. At lunch at the Racquet Club, we watched Zeppo Marx talk to various women he knew . . . wives of friends and friends of his own wife. In every case, he had a smile, a compliment, a sincere delight in seeing them again. I've never met Zeppo Marx, but I'd like to.

Now, what men don't I find sexy? Very often they are men considered to be most attractive by the world at large. The usual Don Juan type leaves me completely unmoved. I find their pants too tight, their chests too big and their belts too low. Give me the slightly short, slightly middle-aged, slightly paunchy gentleman who isn't constantly trying to prove his masculinity.

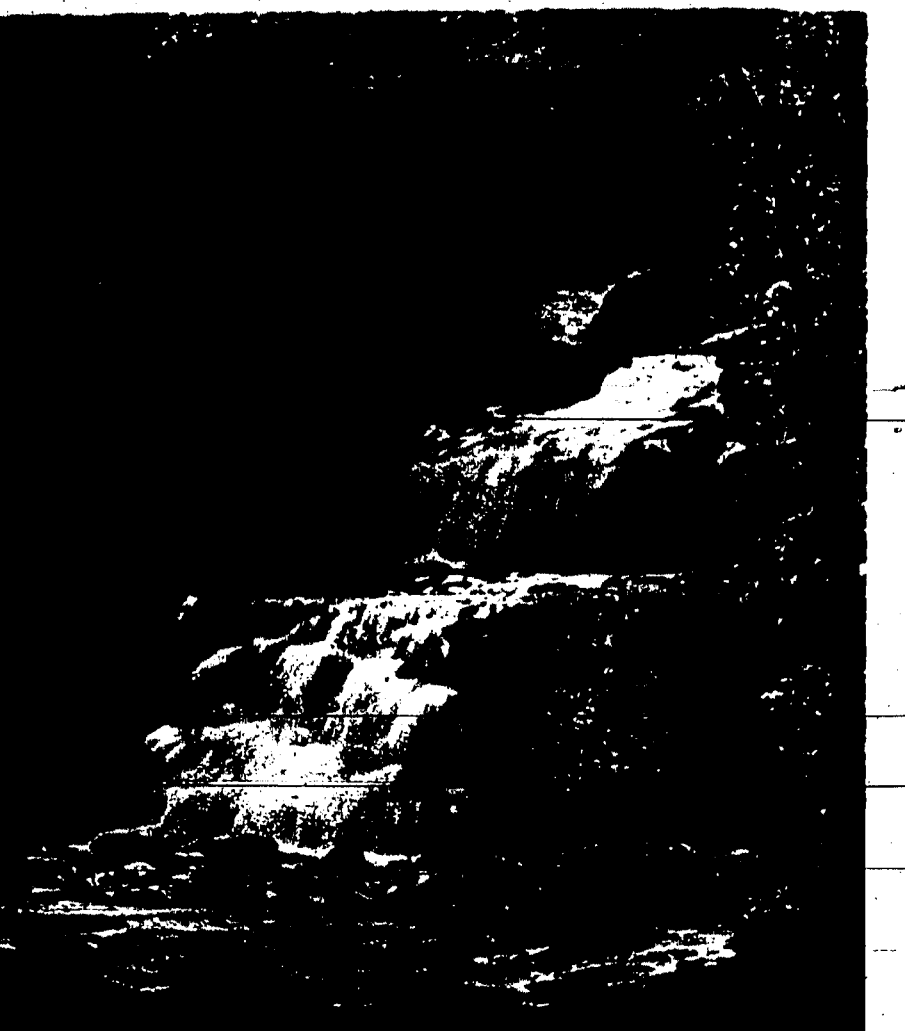

And lest the Democratic-National Committee request equal time for my remarks about President Nixon, may I add right now that I have not so far found Spiro Agnew "sexy."

It may have occurred to you that in each case the person I have mentioned is someone I have met professionally and interviewed in front of millions of eyes. Would it be the same if we were to encounter each other in the privacy of a small candlelit room rather than in the hot glare of a television studio? I don't know. I will probably never have the chance to find out. But I'd like to think so. ♦

THE DOCTOR LETS YOU IN BY O. A. BATTISTA

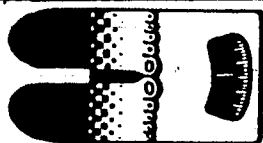

That Chest Pain—Heart Attack or False Alarm?

How do you determine what kind of chest pain is cause for concern and what's not?

According to internist Dr. Roland Wright, "Pain in the left side of the chest—which usually causes patients the greatest anxiety—is most likely a false alarm." The pain associated with heart attack is generally felt as a "constriction" or "oppression" rather than a sharp ache. Irregular heart beats are not necessarily serious, either. They can be due to excessive tobacco, alcohol or coffee.

Main features of relatively harmless chest wall pains are: (1) discomfort for a few seconds or for hours (heart attack pain usually lasts five to 10 minutes); (2) relationship to specific movements such as turning, twisting, bending; (3) localized tenderness in the painful areas; (4) evidence of either emotional stress or "rheumatism" in other areas.

THE DIET WATCH BY HARRIET LABARRE

One Way to Lose Weight Without Cutting Calories

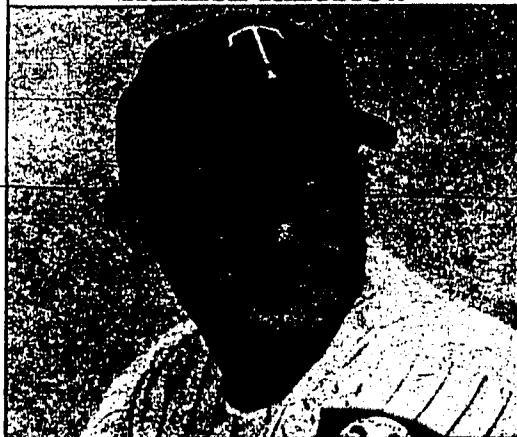

An old New England joke has a waiter inquiring of a patron, "And how did you find the steak, this evening?" to which the patron replies, "I picked up one of the peas and there it was."

Hopefully the patron wasn't a dieter, because meats like steak, chops, roast beef, are high protein foods which help a dieter shed his fat faster than high-carbohydrate foods like peas. Proteins and carbohydrates have the same amount of calories; but when you eat protein, you increase your metabolic rate, which burns up calories faster. . . . So the dieter should keep protein in mind as an ally—meat, fish, poultry, eggs, and so on. Avoid high carbohydrate foods like corn, white or sweet potatoes, fresh peas, fresh lima beans.

SPORTS MINI-PROFILE: Harmon Killebrew

The Nice "Harmless" Guy They Call the Killer

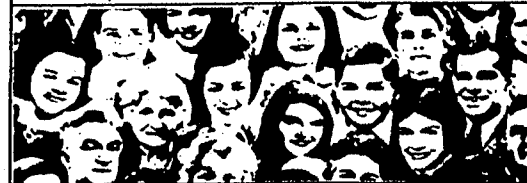

Harmon Killebrew, baseball's gentle giant, is a powerfully built, 220-pound slugger for the Minnesota Twins who has hit 40 or more home runs for eight seasons; with a career total of more than 500 homers, he has a chance of breaking Babe Ruth's all-time career mark of 714. . . . His dramatic home run in this year's All-Star game gave the American League its first win after eight straight losses. . . . Nickname is "Killer," but it doesn't fit—he's modest, soft-spoken, never gets into rhubarbs, never sounds off. . . . He's the only major-league player ever to be picked for All-Star games at three different positions: first base, third base, and outfield. "The most unselfish player I've ever known," Twins manager Bill Rigney describes him. "Most players grouse if they're asked to switch a position to help the team. But Harmon, one of the biggest stars of them all, will make any sacrifice to benefit the club." Says Harmon: "Changing a position affects your hitting because you can't concentrate on it as much if you're busy adjusting to another position. But I feel I should switch if it means getting somebody into the lineup who can help the team win more games." A native of Payette, Idaho, Killebrew developed his hitting strength working as a woodsman. . . . First played for Washington in the big leagues and was called "Harmless Harmon" because he refused to get angry when fans taunted him. But he soon proved he wasn't harmless with his bat. . . . Voted the "Sporting News" "Player of the Year" last year and was his league's Most Valuable Player in '69.

PEOPLE AND YOU BY SHIRLEY SLOAN FADER

Tell the Teacher What's Good About Your Child

Easy way to help your child succeed in school: when you first meet your child's teacher, it's an excellent idea to mention your child's good points. A University of Texas study indicates that to a large extent children behave in class in the way that the teacher expects. In other words, teachers are human and tend to praise and demand better performance from children they have high opinions of. And these children manage to come through. Where a teacher has a low opinion of a child's ability, it creates a self-fulfilling situation where the child actually does poorly. Even when the poorer student does well, the teacher seldom notices or praises him. Your good words about your child may help the teacher form the favorable impression of him that leads to his classroom success.

Dogs are becoming as addicted to the road as their masters. If you want to travel with your dog, here are some pointers:

- Condition Bowser to the car ahead of time with some trial runs.
- Get certificate of health from veterinarian.
- See that identification and rabies tags are securely attached to his collar.
- Pack a simple travel kit of food and water dishes, can opener, leash, his usual food, thermos of water, a few toys.
- Don't feed or water him within two hours of departure.
- Provide a special place in the car for him to ride in, with blanket or towel on which to lie.
- Exercise him on leash every time you stop and give him small amounts of water.
- Never leave him in parked car for long, even in shade, and always leave all windows partly down with water on floor.
- Assign one person primary responsibility for pup's comfort and safety.

A Reader's Remembrance:

The Day I Kissed Dean Martin

October 1967 is a month and year I will never forget. I'm quite a movie fan and had always wanted to watch a film being made. So when I learned that a Western starring my favorite entertainer, Dean Martin, was going to be filmed at Alamo Village in Texas, I immediately made plans to go there from my home in San Antonio.

I'm confined to a wheel chair—the result of being struck by a car when I was two years old. But I still do a lot of traveling with friends. I was especially excited about this trip because I like Dean Martin so much.

When we arrived on the set of "Bandolero," we saw the other stars of the film—James Stewart, George Kennedy and Raquel Welch—but no Dean Martin.

Finally he showed up after the lunch break—tall, dark and handsome, and carrying a golf club (on a Western set!). That started the crowd laughing, and he kept right on talking and joking with everyone. But I wanted him to talk especially to me! I called to him, and he didn't hesitate for a minute. He came right over.

"Hello, sweetheart," he said.

I told him I'd like to take a few pictures of him if he didn't mind. He said, "Not at all," and immediately arranged to take time out from his shooting schedule to pose with me.

But my big moment came when he agreed to let me give him a kiss for the picture we were taking! (I must admit that the ladies standing around gaped enviously at me.) Dean wasn't sure the first shot was good, so he said, "Let's take it again and make all the girls jealous!" That picture is one I will prize forever.

Dean was thoughtful enough to send me some fan pictures after our "rendezvous," without my asking for them. And when I went back to Alamo Village several weeks later, he remembered me and called out, "It's nice to see you again." That was a thrill in itself—just that he remembered!

I Teach at San Quentin

"I am accused of the basest emotions, of being a racist. Curses, derisive laughter. I shout back at them while trembling inside."

By Norman Melnick

For one year now I have been leaving my home in San Francisco once a week to teach convicts at San Quentin Prison. Saying the words out loud now, they give me a chill: San Quentin Prison. It is a place so forbidding that every man - hardened criminals with long pasts and yet surprisingly young, average age just over 30 - lives only for the leaving of it. There used to be a column in the prison newspaper called "On a Clear Day You Can See . . . the Wall." It is everywhere at San Quentin, high and thick and of a faded brown color, enclosing four immense cellblocks for 4,000 convicts, some of whom never see daylight because they are waiting for a date with the apple green gas chamber. It is across the street from the employees' canteen.

My mission is to teach inmates some basic English skills and some journalism. I say "some" because often class time is used not for learning but for boiling emotions. Then I become the symbol of the oppressor to my 25 convict pupils - the fat cat who is against prison reform but in favor of more gas chambers, more San Quentins. I represent to them "the street," prison vernacular for the outside, and they blast me with all their torn-up insides. I am accused of the basest emotions, of being a racist. Curses, derisive laughter. I shout back at them while trembling inside. I tell them they're cry babies, they want pity, but I'm all out of it, and by outraging them I restore quiet.

"You're cold," I am told.

It is a tense moment. My conscience aches. I don't like this routine, but it is best. The other way, discussion on the issues, doesn't work: there is too much heat and not enough light.

I am a newspaperman by profession. One afternoon I was the keeper of the city desk when the telephone rang and a voice said, "San Quentin here." I immediately thought it was an escape. But the voice said, "We need a man from your paper to teach journalism to the inmates. Do you think someone might be interested?"

There was only a brief pause. "I'm your man," I said. I'd always wanted to try teaching and had knocked on many doors. But my journalism experience, 18 years of it, was not enough in the academic world: I lacked an advanced degree. Ironically, when an opportunity came, it was sublimely simple.

"I have been scared—scared out of my wits by some convicts who go to class only to harass and intimidate people from 'the street.' Their hate is a passion. Every teacher is given a whistle to toot in case of a disorder. Happily, I have not had to blow my whistle, but I scrupulously pack it each time I go"

I receive seven dollars an hour to teach at San Quentin, though much less if you count the time spent on classroom preparation. I have been scared—scared out of my wits by some convicts who go to class only to harass and intimidate people from "the street." Their hate is a passion. Every teacher is given a whistle to toot in case of a disorder. You are told that more guards in brown uniforms will appear than you ever thought possible. Happily, I have not had to blow my whistle, but I scrupulously pack it each time I go.

As in all classrooms, there is the bonus—the student who demonstrates genuine gifts and wants to learn. Then I'm turned on. But I quickly cool it. Experienced educators at San Quentin warn against serious attachments with prisoners. They can culminate in much grief for the teacher. So far, I have accepted their judgment because I can clearly see the pitfalls. But there are pulls on me that are hard to resist, and I wonder.

Twelve hundred inmates go to school voluntarily at San Quentin, in day and night classes held by over 50 teachers. The offerings cover all the standard academic subjects, and the vocational training program turns out auto mechanics, bakers, butchers, plumbers, house painters and many more. Two libraries contain over 42,000 volumes.

I teach on the first basement level of the original education building, opposite the Adjustment Center (the new term for solitary). My classroom is hot and smelly, and there's a blast when you open the windows: noise roars in from the countless motors that run San Quentin's mills and factories. Outside my classroom is the open latrine for the entire floor, and I still have not adjusted to the sight of men using a hallway for a bathroom.

Guards patrol the halls during class periods, trying to appear inconspicuous.

My students run the gamut. There are men in my classes with less than a grade-school education and men with a year or more of college. I must try to satisfy every level. Many of my pupils fight learning, perhaps because some have unpleasant memories of ghetto schools and hateful teachers. I don't know. But it's a major problem. "Teach me, teach me." I have heard that repeatedly in my classes; the cons are defying me to do my job. A black inmate said to me, "I don't know the English language, and I don't understand it." He was making no effort.

They are also easily distracted: I am constantly looking into blank faces. A few of my charges seem always in a daze. I repeat instructions many times before a test, yet mistakes occur. I am often reminded of what the warden of San Quentin, Louis Nelson, once said: "To land in this prison, a person must have been a failure in all undertakings, including crime." The job of turning these men around is enormous.

Knowing my men and their battered egos, I try to lavish praise as often as I can. Then sometimes I see it happening: a man and learning coming together for the first time, if only in a small way, but a bond established. This is the magic. And when the course is finished and that man shakes your hand, groping for the right words, you feel a special communion with him, and you try hard to cut out from your mind the warden's words and all those studies that back him up. You want to believe that you've helped a human being. But you know (because you've been learning, too) that if the convict makes it, he will do it on his own—his decision, as hard as it is.

What the Convicts Themselves Wrote

The following was handed to me as an English composition by a prisoner. It was called What's It All For?

From the time one awakes (in San Quentin) till he falls to sleep, he searches for some type of escape from himself. He stands in the yard eating ice cream and candy like some small, hungry boy. Laughing and smiling, running and playing until some funny-faced guard tells him he is in grave danger in this pit of hell. Then he recalls all his violent remembrances, and the laughing and smiling turns to a glare and snarl.

An under-30 convict, a member of a motorcycle gang from the San Fernando Valley of California, wrote the following lines. He was serving a life sentence for many crimes, and he told me that if ever he appeared in the Valley again, he'd be shot on the spot . . . or so he had been threatened. In many ways he was charming, but still hate-filled.

I have been raised in these institutions and this is the only life I know. There are no real plans for the future because Mr. "Mad Dog" Madigan (a prison counselor) does not feel that I should go shoes that give you more comfort than walking barefoot in the sand!

(For Men and Women)

Remember how good you felt when you walked barefoot in the sand? Your toes could s-p-r-e-a-d and dig in. You could give that extra push at the end of every step. There was no binding, no pressure, no aches, and no pain.

But then you got dressed and that feeling of joy was gone. No wonder—the shoes you've been wearing squeeze your feet into a mold that's designed all wrong. They actually cause most of the discomfort and fatigue you feel. They are probably the reason that your feet hurt and that you're "bushed" at the end of the day.

What's the cure? The foot specialists generally recommend a so-called "space shoe" that's individually molded to your feet. And they are wonderful shoes. The only trouble is—they usually cost anywhere from $80 to $120 a pair. Much too much for most budgets. That's why so many people have to resign themselves to a lifetime of discomfort and pain.

UNTIL NOW!

You see, by applying scientific principles, I've been able to develop a shoe last that adapts the principle of the "space shoe" to the needs of the average man and woman. By developing the COMFORT CONTOUR shoe, I've been able to provide most men and women with the cure for their foot discomfort at prices that everyone can afford!

I CAN DO IT FOR YOU, TOO!

COMFORT CONTOUR shoes provide room for every part of your foot to do its job. All pressure points are eliminated and there's nothing to squash the bones and muscles. There's plenty of room for your toes to s-p-r-e-a-d. You get the luxurious freedom you felt the last time you walked barefoot in the sand! And—you have that feeling every day, all day long! And no matter how many hours you have to be on your feet!

ULTRA SMART CONTINENTAL STYLING

COMFORT CONTOUR SHOES are beautifully made. The leathers are glove soft and tanned for extra smoothness and durability. I Teach at San Quentin home . . . So what is there in the future for me except more visits with Mr. "Mad Dog" Madigan and more time. May San Quentin crumble and burn in hell.

Spelling errors among my students are common. Released has been spelled releas, environment inviornment, ambitious ambizuous and spot spott. Sometimes the errors are self-revealing, as in the case of one convict who wrote addicionally for additionally. Then when all seems lost, along comes a complicated, wonderful sentence like this one by a former chef and confidence man:

The character of Hamlet, created by Shakespeare, was a varied and elastic portrayal of a human being who could be complex, yet understandable, drastically changeable, yet in such a subtle way that he becomes easily identifiable and comprehensible to the actor, the reader and the audience.

A Mexican-American prisoner, a dope addict and perhaps my most scholarly student, wrote this:

Hoping to establish myself in an unforgiving world, I have repaired to the confines of the classroom. With no other objective in mind than to gain a better understanding of the world and its inhabitants, I have attempted to investigate all the positive institutions, theories and philosophies of erring humanity. I can have nothing but contempt for those sciences which dare analyze the human mind, an instrument which is entirely unfathomable. Is it that I expect too much from humanity? Can we say that the human animal is at best faulty and unreliable? No. I do not think so. The human mind is as expansive as the heavens. Space is infinite and so is man's intelligence.

The agony of prison confinement is described here by two of my pupils:

I have been detained and contained in prison too long. I have been separated from the people I know and love too long. There is too much steel and cement to live right in this place.

Have you ever experienced the loneliness or fear that surrounds an inmate at San Quentin? It is overpowering. It infiltrates one's sleep, work, hours of relaxation and the other world we create in our minds . . . Accept the hand reaching out. Help those who sincerely attempt rehabilitation. Help us, hear our cries. We need to know that someone cares.

The author of this was being dead serious:

To begin with, I arrived in November, and to me, this month seemed to be the coldest of any other. My first cell partner was a fellow with whom I had had a slight falling out with [in another prison]. In two days I was fully convinced that he was insane. But we were not meant to live together because in two weeks I was moved to another cell . . . When a person who lives in San Quentin stands back and takes a good look at the whole situation, it's not as bad as it seems. The closer you look the worse it gets. It compares with the beautiful starlet on the stage. The closer you get the more you notice the wrinkles and so on. ♣

Bedwetting

Pacific International Has Ended
Bedwetting
For Hundreds Of Thousands In The Past 20 Years

Don't permit the tragedy of a wet bed to ruin your child's life. Pacific International has a 98% record of success and, if not caused by organic defect or disease, we can end the bedwetting problem for your child.

It is possible that your child will EVENTUALLY outgrow bedwetting, but what happens until that time comes? Medical authorities have stated that a bedwetting child feels that he is a disgrace to his family. Statistics prove that a bedwetting child achieves below his real ability at school. And the child is embarrassed and ashamed.

YOU ARE NOT TOO OLD TO LOOK YOUNG! YOU CAN PROVE IT IN 15 MINUTES

New Perfect Face "Peel 'N Smoothe" Erases Away Layers of Dead Surface Skin to Reveal a Fresh, Radiant Complexion!

You are not too old to look young!

If you're a woman over 35, your mirror tells you that the tell-tale marks of the years are creeping across your face. You probably find yourself envying women who are older than you but don't show their years. You probably recognize the signs all too well. Ugly crowsfeet, pores clogged with residue from soaps, creams and grime, and a forehead with lines permanently etched in. Now, thanks to PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE, you can do something about it.

A DRAMATIC TRANSFORMATION

The miracle is made possible by PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE's amazing ability to do away with the "gray shadow of age." Those surface layers of dead skin filled with the grime and clogging residue of soaps and creams are erased away to reveal the exciting, radiantly fresh complexion which up till now has been hidden. A healthy skin is a beautiful skin.

As you watch the dramatic event take place, you'll be lost in wonder. Your until now "hidden" skin can be alabaster smooth, beautifully moist, silken and fresh! The skin of your face and neck can have the beauty of a woman 15 years younger... something that you may have dreamed never to be possible.

MORE DRAMATIC PROOF

Here's one more convincing test! Place a small amount of PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE on the back of your left hand. Rub until it disappears, removing a dead layer of skin. Place a small amount of moisturizer where you applied PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE. The moisturizer, when rubbed, will be immediately absorbed. Now place an equal amount of moisturizer on the back of your right hand. No amount of massaging can cause the moisturizer on your right hand to be readily absorbed. What better proof that PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE opens the pores to reveal a vigorously healthy complexion!

PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE can promise a fresher, more radiant complexion. And we recommend its use twice a week in order to renew the radiant fresh appearance of your skin. And equally important, it is perfectly safe and soothing to use.

HOW IT WORKS

The principle behind PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE is basically very simple. The formula acts in such a way that the dead surface layers of skin are erased away—you feel a pleasant tingling sensation while this is happening, and the near miracle occurs before your very eyes. The complexion that emerges literally glows with freshness and vitality.

NOT A COVER-UP, NOT A FACIAL MASK

PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE is not a cover-up, not a facial mask. It's a specially compounded formula that peels away the surface layers of dead skin. Each application of PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE softens, beautifies and vitalizes your skin. Contains no hormones or irritating chemicals.

PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE IS ECONOMICAL

PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE costs only pennies per application. Two applications each week are enough to help you maintain a complexion that has the dewy bloom of youth.

ASTONISHING RESULTS OR WE WIRE YOUR MONEY BACK

You run no risk in trying PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE. That's right! We're so sure that PEEL 'N

WE DARE TO MAKE THIS SIMPLE AND CONVINCING BALLPOINT PEN TEST

unretouched photograph

MAKE AN "X"

Take a ballpoint pen and mark an "X" on your cheek (as you know, one of the hardest things to remove from your skin is the ink of a ballpoint pen). Now apply PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE Formula to the marked area, rubbing it into your skin.

unretouched photograph

COSMETIC SKIN ERASER

As you rub, you'll be amazed to see that the "X" magically disappears along with the grime, the residue from the clogged pores, and the dead skin.

DEAD SKIN GONE

When you see the particles of dead skin left in your hand, you'll understand how PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE gives you a "COSMETIC FACIAL" and how it erases layers of dead surface skin to reveal a vigorously healthy complexion—the smooth skin you remember from when you were young.

SMOOTHE will work wonders for you that we make this unconditional promise: that when you try PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE you must be satisfied with the results—YOU decide if you're satisfied—and if it has not immediately transformed your appearance so that you look far younger and more radiant, we will refund your money immediately by WESTERN UNION. Now you can stop looking old because of clogged pores and dry, flaky skin. If PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE fails, you get an instant refund. In short, you must be satisfied that 10 to 15 years have been erased off your appearance or we return your money immediately.

THE YOUNG LOOK CAN BE YOUR LOOK

No matter how desperate you have felt, you can only blame yourself if you continue to suffer without doing something about your appearance. The only way we could afford to make this "same-day-by-wire-refund-offer" is on the basis of our confidence in a tested product. Only a proven product can say "instant results or instant refund." You risk nothing. After all, it's results that you want not promises.

A NEW YOU IS BORN

The minute you receive your supply of PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE apply it following the simple, easy-to-understand instructions, and then time the almost miraculous results. You'll feel the old, dry flaky skin—the dead outer layers—gently being removed, taking with it the pore-deep grime that you never suspected was there, while merely seconds tick away. Your skin will appear so much smoother, so much healthier. A new you is born.

GENEROUS INTRODUCTORY OFFER

The creators of PEEL 'N SMOOTHIE want to make it as easy as possible for you to try it, and prove to yourself that you can be young looking again, so we are offering you a chance to get a big 3-month supply at a special introductory price!

STAR PROFILE/By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Liz Montgomery: "Even in Real Life, Everything Around Her Seems Bewitched"

Liz Montgomery sat before me engulfed in a high-backed chair, slender legs tucked under her, dressed in clinging white slacks and blouse, her shoulder-length blonde hair caught with chartreuse yarn into a ponytail over each ear, eyes sparkling, turned-up nose sunburned—looking years younger than the last time I saw her!

I kept thinking she couldn't possibly be the mortal who's been married to William Asher (who looks more like a boxer than the producer-director of her show) for eight years, has two stepchildren and three children of her own, and bounces off to work for a grueling eight-to-eight day, year in and year out. It had been four years since I talked to her, eight years since she began playing the unearthly Samantha on ABC-TV's "Bewitched." Even in real life, everything around her seems bewitched.

For instance, as I climbed the uneven steps to her multi-level brick and wood house (straight out of Grimm's fairy tales) I was stopped momentarily by a sign warning "Beware: Chipmunk Crossing." As I reached for the door knocker—a grinning fox's head—I stumbled over a four-inch brass quail and its companion, the biggest, fattest, greenest glazed ceramic toad I have ever seen.

The first live animal to be introduced was Fran, the jealous Siamese cat. Liz says Fran probably "did away" with her brother Moose, "who was probably the meanest cat alive. I am sure Fran put out a contract on him." Liz informed me, "because that cat absolutely adored me. It was really kinda spooky."

Liz also has a way with dogs. "One day I bought a beagle for the housekeeper's daughter, but when Bill came home and saw it, he said, 'Too bad for the housekeeper's daughter,' and kept it. We named him Boozer. The next day I had to go buy his sister."

"Then Boozer spotted the Afghan who lives up the hill and fell madly in love. What a romance! We ended up buying her, too. I must say, Boozer the beagle and Llama the afghan did make a peculiar couple!

"A dog we named Who wandered in one day and never left. I don't really know what 'Who' is—part beagle and part terrier, I think." Puck, another dog, decided to live with Liz although he belongs to her neighbors, actors Martin Landau and Barbara Bain.

Recently, her father, actor-producer Robert Montgomery, took off on a safari to Africa and asked Liz what she wanted him to bring back. Her request: pictures of animals.

Liz is the kind of person who has to be totally involved—with animals, her work, and of course, her children—Willy, seven; Robert, six; and Rebecca, two. The youngsters are not so sure their mother is just another mortal.

Most of Willy's friends are in awe of Liz. "I've been met by dropping china,

Most of her children's friends are in awe of Liz. "I've been met by dropping china, gasps and giggles. And a few even ran away," Liz said. "But everything goes back to normal as soon as I have to become a disciplinarian."

Liz and Bill Asher in front of their "enchanted house." This picture was taken when Willie (left) was four, and Robert was three.

gasps and giggles. And a few even ran away," Liz said. "But everything goes back to normal as soon as I have to become the disciplinarian and squelch a squabble."

Once a year, for three months, Liz gets time off from the show. What does she do then? "NOTHING!" she told me. "Nothing," I found out, was playing as many as four sets of tennis a day. This requires four male opponents, since women don't play hard enough to suit her, and one man gets too tired. Likewise, Liz catches up on all the things she can't do when she's working—like going to the dentist and redecorating the house. Also she relaxes with her paints. She's an excellent artist who has even illustrated a children's book.

"I feel it is my obligation to take a vacation when I am given one," Liz says. "After all, a person has only so much energy, and it should be used to the best advantage. If I come dragging into work after a vacation, it's not fair to the others on our show. And I'm not a traveler; why should I go some place when I really want to be at home?"

Liz and her husband enjoy working together constantly, although Liz says, "I don't really see that much of him. Oh, I know some couples would probably have killed each other by now. But we like working together! Besides, when we get home, Bill stops being the director and starts being my husband. But he's still boss. I couldn't ask for a nicer man. In fact, I couldn't ask for a nicer life!" ♦ on his deep feelings about the lingering plight of some seven million gypsies in the world.

"What can be done for gypsies? You can't give them land like other minorities, because they don't want it. They're nomadic. Gypsies should just be allowed to preserve their culture and Romany language. Remember—Hitler killed off a half million! Instead of making life difficult for gypsies, we should recognize that they're a very contemporary people. The desire to keep traveling represents a renewal of life. Hippies would do better to go the gypsy way.

"Yes, I always try to speak up for gypsies," asserts Yul Brynner with a passion and a persistent awareness of his past, including a gypsy mother and friendship with gypsies since boyhood.

Brynner, who helps support a school for gypsy children in England, paused in Spain while filming his latest movie, MGM's "Catlow," to elaborate "Family ties and loyalty are strong, and they're capable of tremendous gestures. They make their living by beauty. They dance and sing, and never, never are prostitutes. They are good at making things and performing all kinds of services. I've always kept close to them, and they've been marvelously good to me."

The Basic Dress— With "Action" Pleats

The Civilized Woman returns to the fashion scene this fall. And she's likely to be wearing a dress that descends in soft, flowing lines.

The one pictured here, an easy-to-sew silhouette, fits the bill perfectly. It features a pleated skirt that flares from the hipline, a high round neckline, and short set-in sleeves. Simple, feminine, it needs only the addition of top stitching to set it off. Make this style in a textured wool or a blend.

Size 14 takes 2¾ yards of 44-inch fabric. Standard body measurements for size 14 are: Bust 36, Waist 27, Hips 38.

QUIZ/ By John E. Gibson

What Your Words Tell About You

True or False: Your choice of words isn't important as long as you get the thought across (See number 4)

Never
...Not
No

The words a person uses provide you with keys to his character—if you know what to look for. This quiz gives you the word on it.

1. The frequent use of such words as "no," "not," "never," indicates the speaker is a practical, realistic, feet-on-the ground type of person.
2. We think in words.
3. You can tell how much weight your words are carrying with another person by watching his face.
4. Your choice of words isn't important as long as you get the thought across.
5. The more a person uses the words "I," "Me," "Mine," "My," in his speech, the better adjusted he is likely to be.
6. You can think better if you have a good vocabulary.

ANSWERS

1. False. Investigations have shown that it's likely to be an indication of inner conflicts or emotional problems. It has been found that people with well-adjusted personalities use fewer negative words in their speech than those who are less well adjusted. Frequent use of "no," "not," "never," and similar words is also a common characteristic of the loser-type, the killjoy, and the chronic pessimist, whose motto is:

"Always expect the worst—nine times out of 10 you'll be right, and the 10th time it'll be worse than you thought it would be."

2. True. Studies show that most of us think in words, rather than pictures or images. For, as Freud has observed: "Words form the major portion of our thought processes." When you're thinking, you're likely to find yourself forming words verbalizing the thoughts as your brain turns over ideas, formulates new concepts or engages in imaginary dialogues with people. Sometimes this thinking-in-words process is carried on quite audibly, and we hear people "talking to themselves."

3. True. Words which carry the most force and impact on the other person are what psychologists call emotional words—rather than neutral words. The former hit the person where he "feels"—at gut-level, so to speak—while the use of neutral words tends to minimize the effect of whatever you're saying. The other person hears them, but is less apt to be moved by them. Sometimes words or phrases which have a strong impact on one person—because of certain associations—may have little or no effect on someone else. Researchers have found that you can tell precisely how your words are affecting the other person simply by watching his eyes. In more than 96 percent of the subjects tested, investigators found that when emotional words were used, the pupils of their eyes tended to expand.

4. False. Studies show your choice of words is very important. Some words tend to grate on a person's ear; others have a pleasing effect. Samples of some of the most pleasing words, as determined by tests at the University of Rhode Island: kindness, comfort, sunshine, pleasure, beauty, delight, jewel, courage, fragrance, sweetheart, wisdom, caress, partner, music, evening. Found to be among the least pleasing: study, trouble, collar, defects. So if you wanted to sell a man on an idea, it would seem that the worst way to approach him would be to say: Say, I'm glad I collared you before you went into the meeting. Now if it isn't too much trouble, I wish you'd study this plan I've worked out. I think I've ironed out all the defects, and . . ."

5. False. Psychological studies show that the frequent use of the ego words "I-Me-My" is associated with personality maladjustment. In addition, people who sprinkle their conversation profusely with these personal pronouns are likely to both irritate and alienate their listener—even if the listener is addicted to this habit himself.

6. True. Since we tend to think in words, it follows that the more words we have at our command, the more clearly we can define and evaluate our thoughts to ourselves—and the easier we can convey them to others. Authorities find the size of a man's vocabulary is likely to be related to his intelligence. There are exceptions of course—people who might be described as "educated beyond their intelligence," who have acquired a formidable vocabulary, but actually couldn't think themselves out of a paper bag. But generally the more intelligent a person is, the more necessary he finds it to acquire a vocabulary which will enable him to do justice to the expression of his thoughts and ideas.

Letters Kids Send to "Ask Them Yourself"

Since 1967, when "Ask Them Yourself" first appeared in Family Weekly, it has been one of the best-read and most popular features of this or any other magazine. Day after day, week after week, hundreds of cards and letters pour into the "Ask Them Yourself" Editor, each addressed to a famous personality.

A goodly number of the questions—as you might imagine—come from kids. Some are confused, some are funny, some are startlingly personal—but all of them are as sincere as they are impossible to answer.

baseball players are favorites to ask questions to, even if you can't get them to answer...

Dear Sirs: My question is for Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs. I would like to know the answer, and hope you can use my questions! My question is this. For Ron Santo, of the Chicago Cubs: Why is there ivy growing on the out field walls of Wrigley Field? How long has it been growing on the walls? Thank you, yours, truly Tad O., Escondido, Calif.

To Johnny Bench: Do you like being on the wheaties commercial? Do you eat wheaties?—Paul S., Danville, Calif.

Nothing frustrates a youngster more than when he or she asks a question and we can't give the answer. Here's one we received recently—and all we could do, once again, was sympathize...

PLEASE READ MY LETTER I BEG YOU PLEASE! I am an 11 years old and I wish you read my letter. I have wrote to you before about Linda Kaye Henning. I am writing to you again about her. I need her address please I beg you for her address. I think she is more beautiful than any other person in the world I love her. When I grow up I want to look like her I would do anything to get her address I wouldn't give it to anyone I promis. I beg you please please please please please, give me her address please. If you will give me Linda Kaye Henning's address of TV's petticoat Junction mail it to Jeri Ann L., New Albany Ind. Please may I have her address. Thank you.

Reading the "ASK" mail from small fry gives you a pretty good indication of which stars have really captured the younger generation's imagination. If a survey were run tomorrow asking sub-teens to name their favorite TV performer, it wouldn't be hard to guess the answer...

For David Cassidy of "The Partridge Family": "Your eyes are hazel so they change color to suit your moods. Please explain what color your eyes would be when you are happy, sad, mad, serious, embarrassed, surprised, confused, asleep, whatever. Thank you.—Sherry W., Mesa, Wash.

... Or even if you can't figure out the question...

For Dizzy Dean: It has been said that the reason you kicked your leg up so high when you pitched was you used to throw rocks at squirrels and aim through your toes. Is this true?—Randy S., Huron, S.D.

For David Cassidy: Are you related to Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid?—Lorna S., Council Bluffs, Iowa.

For David Cassidy: Are you any relation to Hopalong Cassidy?—Marilyn H., Hayward, Calif.

For David Cassidy: Is it hard being a kid on TV? I am a kid, and I need to know.—Timmy L., Teaneck, N.J.

Anyone who doubts the persuasive—and even frightening—power of television over children ought to spend some time on the receiving end of cards like this one:

For Flip Wilson, actress: Is Killer just a made up name for the show or have you decided to really put a killer on the show?—Estelle E., Chapel Hill, N.C.

Sometimes a kid will ask the same question to two people—and it comes out sounding entirely different. These two questions were enclosed in the same envelope from a little girl named Stephanie from Torrance, Calif.:

I'm sending this to Gina Lollobrigida. For Gina Lollobrigida: Are you really 42 years old. If you are you sure don't look like it.

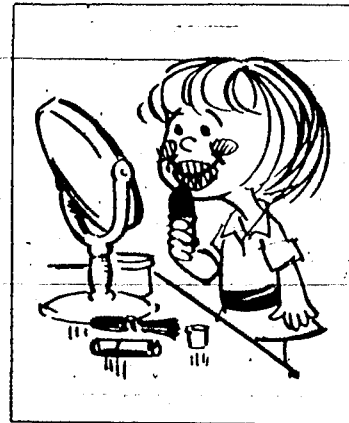

To David Brinkley: Are you really 51 years old? If you are it's all right. Old people are nice.

Here's a random selection of other mail we've received in the past few weeks. We're sorry we couldn't get the answers—but keep sending them in, kids, and we'll keep trying!

For Marlo Thomas: How are you? I heard that you are quieting this September. Do alot of stars where make-up, about how many. do any little kids. I am little myself I am a. A Fan of yours, Mary M., Lancaster, Wisconsin.

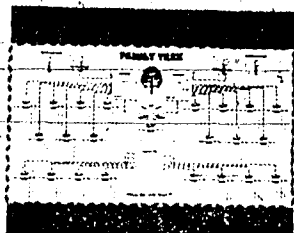

For Hugh Hefner, a playboy editor: Do you think a boy my age should be able to read play boy magazine?—Ronny W., Lincoln, Calif.

I'd would like to ask Lew Alcindor, the famous basketball player, why does he always chew gum when he play and if its a certain flavor.—W. H., Canton, Ohio.

For Ivan Tors: How did you get to be animal man? I am a girl of 11 and I have looked and looked for information. Where can I find some? Kathleen M., Wappingers Falls, N.Y.

Dear Family Weekly, My question is for President, Richard M. Nixon. If anyone ever asked you to grow a beard like a little girl asked Abè Lincoln, do you think you would?—Peggy H., Waverly, Va. ♦

FREDDIE WITH A FAN, 1969
He gave Mr. Nixon a football signed by the whole Texas team

Little Freddie Steinmark (5 feet, 9 inches, 165 pounds) was playing safety for the 1969 National Championship football team at the University of Texas when cancer attacked his leg at season's end. Now Freddie is dead. Just after his leg was amputated, Freddie wrote his autobiography, "I Play to Win!" (Little, Brown, $6.95). In it he writes: "Football supposedly teaches courage, but I question that courage can be taught... I've received enough courage awards, so many that it has become a joke among my teammates. 'Hey, I haven't received a courage award in two weeks,' I would say... 'I'm running out of courage.'... I certainly don't think of myself as courageous.

When I found out I was going to lose my leg, I cried... You don't think about being brave; my mind was filled with things I simply had to do if I was to survive... I think courage is doing something that you don't have to do... I just didn't have a choice."

Betsy Ross did not make the flag! Heresy? Unpatriotic? Well, the "New Century Cyclopedia of Names" says, "There is documentary evidence that she was paid in May, 1777, for 'making ships colours, etc.," but no direct documentary evidence has been found to link her with the flag adopted by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777, as the national emblem, and most historians now doubt if she made it."

"Arnold Palmer is fantastic—if you like to see a guy try on slacks all day. I call him Harry Hitch. I can't figure out whether he's looking for his belt or has trouble finding pants that fit." Who said that? None other than insult comedian Don Rickles, of course. He took off on several pro golfers in "Golf Digest" magazine, insulting Jack Nicklaus with: "His idea of fun is to sit home on Saturday night with a glass of hot cocoa singing Ohio State fight songs"; and temperamental Dave Hill with: "Whenever he makes the cut, he goes into shock... He stands on the tee and hopes his name is called so he can go play with the grownups." If any golfer-victim wants to get revenge, here's some ammunition: Rickles is a 21-handicap golfer.

SOPHIA (RIGHT), MAMA AND PANHANDLER
Some motherly assistance

Roman Street Scene—starring Sophia Loren: Sophia has often said she could not have survived World War II in Italy without her mother's sacrifices and devotion. Mama still looks after her. The two were out walking in Rome recently, when a panhandler started bothering the famous actress. Finally, Mama Romilda Villani stepped between the two of them and hustled Sophia away from the persistent seeker of alms.

SAD SELECTION

It's strawberries, peaches, and Roquefort cheese
And things like that are banned.
Why don't I ever get allergies
To things that I can't stand?

—Georgie Starbuck Galbraith

The Sunday School teacher had asked each child to draw a picture of his favorite story from the Bible. She was particularly intrigued by one picture showing an airplane with two people standing beside it. One was in white robes and one wore goggles.

"What story is this?" she asked the little boy who drew it.

"Then who is the man in the goggles?" she asked.

"That's Pontius the Pilot," the little boy answered. —Bertha B. Larimore

IMP-BUTTONS

The CIAAA is for secret drinkers

By Talbert

On a jammed city bus, a man was standing next to a pregnant woman. She was having difficulty keeping her balance in the swaying crowd. Sitting in front of them was a husky youth of 14 or 15. Eyeing him with mounting indignation, the man finally said, "I'll give you a quarter for that seat." When the boy promptly accepted the coin, the man indicated that the woman was to take the seat.

The woman beamed and settled back contentedly saying, "Bobby, thank the gentleman for his quarter."

"I already did, Ma," he said.—Henry E. Leabo

YOU'VE COME A LONG WAY, BABY... OR HAVE YOU?

I find Lib Ladies take themselves More than a little seriously;
If you tell them the wrong thing,
You might get squelched imperiously!

Try this one: "Now that you have Your college degree, I suppose,
You'll be finding yourself a husband
Among your numerous beaux."

Or, "Have you heard the latest
About the woman driver who...
Or, "Don't feel bad, I know men
Who can't understand this, too."

Or have you ever uttered,
"For a woman, you play very well?"
Or, "One woman in our office
Is like a man when she gets to sell!"

And here's a final question
For making a Lib Lady foam:
"I beg your pardon, madam,
Is the head of the house at home?"
