Rocky arrest asked

ATTICA, N.Y. (UPI) — A black state legislator Sunday called for the indictment of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller on charges of murder in the deaths of 40 hostages and inmates at Attica State Prison. "I myself have charged the governor with murder," State Assemblyman Arthur O. Eve, a member of the committee that unsuccessfully tried to negotiate a peaceful settlement of the Attica uprising, said in a New York City television show. "I just spoke with several black and Puerto Rican leaders and I hope they will follow through and ask that the governor be indicted."

Eve and Rep. Herman Badillo, D-N.Y., another member of the committee, denounced Rockefeller's refusal to come to Attica to lead the negotiations. Ten hostages and 30 prisoners died in the five-day rebellion.

Meanwhile, a group of lawyers representing various civil rights groups said they would meet with Attica prisoners again today. They complained that only four rooms were made available in the prison for eight lawyers to meet with their clients Sunday.

The lawyers told conflicting stories about the severity of questioning prisoners were subjected to in the state investigation of the rebellion. One said that there was "friendly questioning" by the staff of Robert Fischer, the state deputy attorney general leading the probe. Another charged that some inmates were being "interrogated around the clock," by officials trying to sift out the leaders of the rebellion.

One lawyer, Joshua Roth of the National Lawyers Guild of New York, said the prisoners are "marched" into the interview room with both hands on their head and are not permitted to drop their hands until the door is locked behind them. He said most of the prisoners were shoeless, and had not been allowed to shower or shave since the rebellion was put down one week ago.

The lawyers and members of a panel appointed at Rockefeller's request to look after prisoner rights said that inmates frequently told them they were beaten in the period immediately after the insurrection was quelled last Monday by state troopers, National Guardsmen and deputies.

In most cases the tale was the same — prisoners were stripped and forced to run a gauntlet formed by club-wielding guards and police while being returned to their cells.

Feds grab huge stash of heroin

NEW YORK (UPI) — Federal agents, in pre-dawn arrests Sunday, seized $40 million worth of heroin hidden in a Jaguar sedan and arrested five persons. The car had been imported into the city four days before.

The 1971 sedan had been under surveillance since it was unloaded from the liner Queen Elizabeth 2 Sept. 15. About 40 agents stood by bridges and tunnels leading off the island to block any escape as authorities closed in Sunday. The car, its driver, and two men in a following vehicle, were seized when the Jaguar stalled in the street.

Two other persons, a man and his wife, both French nationals from Paris were arrested a short time later at their Manhattan hotels.

The 200 pounds of high-grade heroin, in 180 glassine bags, had been secreted in the doors, floor and sidewalls of the expensive imported car. The car was loaded aboard the liner in Le Havre; the heroin had come from southern France, federal officials said.

Viets advance

SOUTH VIETNAMESE troops backed by U. S. helicopter and naval gunfire, ambushed a flotilla of Communist sampans in the U Minh swamplands where more than 400 soldiers from both sides have been killed in six days of fierce fighting, military spokesmen said in Saigon. At the Cambodian capital city sappers blasted over one-fourth of that nation's civilian fuel supply. (UPI)

Reds destroy key allied fuel dump

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Communist sappers crossed flooded rice paddies in sampans today and used plastic satchel charges to blow up 18 huge fuel storage tanks on the outskirts of Phnom Penh. But Cambodian authorities said the nation's military supplies were not hurt. It was the first Communist attack on the capital since June 16 and the roaring fires 20 miles from the heart of the city drove hundreds of Phnom Penh residents from their homes. Four guards at the Esso and Shell storage area were slain by the sappers. Cambodian authorities said 21 government said 25 per cent of the nation's civilian fuel supplies were destroyed, raising the prospect of fuel rationing for the populace. But later the fires spread and other tanks blew up and they would say only that "considerable" amounts were lost. The attack on Phnom Penh's outskirts coincided with outbreaks of heavy fighting in South Vietnam.

A force of 400 to 500 Communist sappers assaulted three South Vietnamese positions at Tay Ninh on the Cambodian border 50 miles northwest of Saigon. Saigon authorities said 21 government troops were killed and 64 wounded in the ensuing battles and that the Communists lost 52 known dead and seven captured.

The other heavy fighting was reported in the U Minh Forest, a vast swampland 145 miles south of Saigon in the Mekong Delta and known as "The Forest of Darkness." The Saigon government said at least 91 more Communists were slain in fighting Sunday and today, raising to 398 the number of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong reported killed in the past week. Government losses were announced as 111 men killed and 130 wounded.

Briton suggests Europeans carry more of defense load

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath said today the European members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) must take over a greater share of Europe's defense burden from the United States.

He said this would lead to a "more equal partnership" in NATO. Addressing 200 delegates to the 17th annual assembly of the Atlantic Treaty Association, Heath said, "We must recognize that American involvement should be matched by an effective contribution by the European allies toward their own defense." "Naturally," he said, "this would lead to the development of a more equal partnership." The Atlantic Treaty Association is composed of national voluntary organizations in the 15 NATO member countries. Its purpose is to inform the public of the aims of the alliance.

"Our interests," Heath said, "will be closely associated with those of the United States as before. But greater sharing of burdens should lead to closer cooperation."

Medi-Academy?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., was a junior member of the House Armed Services Committee in 1949 when he proposed construction of a federal medical school similar to the military academies. After 30 consecutive years in the House, Hebert is now the chairman of the powerful committee and he believes his 22-year-old dream will win congressional approval this term. Hearings are to begin Tuesday on Hebert's bill to establish a uniformed services university of health sciences within 25 miles of Washington at a cost of at least $101 million over 10 years. "The Department of Defense is solid behind it," Hebert said of his proposal, which includes feasibility studies on the establishment of additional schools at Portsmouth, Va.; San Antonio, San Diego, San Francisco and other locations. Witnesses Tuesday include members of Congress who support the bill, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird and the surgeons general of the Army, Navy and Air Force. "The opposition will come from HEW (Department of Health, Education and Welfare) and there will be some opposition from the American Medical Association and some colleges," Hebert said in an interview. The AMA, the colleges and HEW fear the loss of money and students to the uniformed services university, he said. The academy's budget would be included in military appropriations instead of HEW. But the Louisiana Democrat says that view is shortsighted because "the only way you graduate more doctors is to have facilities to train more doctors." Students will be commissioned officers in a reserve component. They would receive regular commissions upon graduation and would be required to serve at least seven years active duty unless released sooner. Plans to phase out the draft have increased pressure on the services to attract volunteer doctors while there already is a national shortage of physicians.

ORIGIN: COLD DUCK

The combination of champagne and burgundy known as cold duck is a corruption of a German phrase, "Kalte Ente" or "cold duck." Mideast braces amid war talk

By United Press International Egyptian troops along the Suez Canal have been placed on a "maximum alert," the semi-official Middle East News Agency (MENA) said today. A Cairo newspaper said the troops had orders to retaliate "immediately and violently" to silence any Israel position that opens fire on them. MENA, an Egyptian news agency, said "the temperature of the military situation is constantly rising." It added that "Egyptian air, ground and naval forces are standing by on the greatest degree of alert to face any possibility the enemy might resort to."

In a report on the Middle East that if the present impasse in peace efforts continues "new fighting will break out sooner or later." Thant added that since both the Israelis and Arabs have taken advantage of the 13-month-old cease-fire to build up their military capabilities, "it is only too likely that the new round of fighting will be more violent and dangerous than the previous ones, and there is always the danger that it may not be possible to limit it to the present antagonists and to the confines of the Middle East."

Thant also said that until Israeli indicates some willingness to compromise on withdrawing from captured Arab lands, "it would serve little useful purpose to attempt to reactivate the talks" mediated by the United Nations' Gunnar V. Jarring. In Cairo, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat issued a series of decrees involving the cabinet and other government matters and said it was a process of "setting our home in order" to be ready for a possible war.

Israel marked Rosh Hashana, the beginning of the Jewish New Year, with predictions the Middle East might be headed for war. Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said that "I would not be entirely surprised if at any time after the U.N. General Assembly the Egyptians will resume fire on the (Suez) Canal."

Israel Armed Forces Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Haim Bar-Lev said "it is possible ... our enemies will renew the fighting, in which case we shall need to continue to stand firm and smite them ..."

In Cairo, the mass-circulation newspaper Al Akhbar said orders were issued by Egyptian War Minister Gen. Mohammed Ahmed Sadek calling for "retaliating violently and immediately and silencing any Israeli position that opens fire with ground weapons, such as field artillery, or any other weapons."

MENA, in an article by its military editor, said the Egyptian army "is prepared more than at any other time to wage the battle of honor, integrity and purification of the land which the enemy has desecrated."

In New York, U.N. Secretary General Thant warned Sunday

Union chief hits squeeze

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the United Auto Workers, Leonard Woodcock, said today President Nixon's economic program reflects "a perverse sense of national priorities" that will make the rich richer at the expense of the poor. Woodcock, testifying before the House-Senate Economic Committee, urged Congress to reject almost all of the President's program and to enact instead legislation to hold down prices and to give consumers a share of the tax-cut "windfall" that he said the plan proposes for business.

Woodcock supported only three of the facts of Nixon's program: repeal of the "discriminatory" 7 per cent auto excise tax, the floating of the dollar in international trade, and the temporary 10 per cent import surcharge. The rest of the program "is a confession of the failure" of the administration's previous economic policies and is "equally misguided," Woodcock said.

"It will have little, if any effect in reducing the present intolerable level of unemployment," he said. "It is rife with inequities. And it reflects a perverse sense of national priorities ..."

"In effect, the revenue reductions and spending cuts in combination represent a transfer from the poor to the rich. It is this fact that has given rise to the phrase 'Robin Hood in reverse.'"

Woodcock was particularly critical of Nixon's proposal to increase the investment tax credit for business. He proposed instead that business taxes be increased and that the public be given a greater tax break.

The committee chairman, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., suggested earlier that the government indirectly tipped a major segment of big business — the oil industry — to raise gasoline prices just before the 90-day wage-price freeze went into effect Aug. 15.

Man killed in Blaine mishap

KETCHUM — An Everett, Wash., man died Saturday in an automobile accident nine miles northeast of Ketchum on the Trail Creek Road.

Blaine County Sheriff's officers identified the man as Eric Evan Dahl, 22. Sheriff Orville Drexler said the accident occurred about 10:15 p.m. Saturday but was not reported to his office until 3 p.m. Sunday.

He said investigation into the accident is still continuing to determine cause of the accident. He said Dahl is believed to have been alone when his vehicle plunged off the road and into the deep Trail Creek canyon.

Drexler said Dahl's vehicle rolled partially down the side of the incline and that the victim was thrown from the vehicle. He said an autopsy has not yet been called for, but investigation is being conducted to determine whether Dahl died of accident injuries, exposure or a combination of the two. Drexler said the Dahl vehicle was traveling southeast down the grade when it went over the edge.

The victim's body is at Bird Funeral Home, Hailey, and will be transported to Everett for funeral services and burial.

Viet policemen occupy complex

SAIGON (UPI) — While combat police occupied a student housing complex in another crackdown on antigovernment dissidents, President Nguyen Van Thieu told the nation tonight its only guarantee of future freedom was to defeat the Communists on the battlefield.

one-man campaign. He said, "The only guarantee for our future freedom is to deal the Communists a positive defeat" on the battlefield. In his hardline anti-Communist speech, Thieu reiterated his longstanding "four nps" — no territorial concessions to the Communists; no coalition government, no neutrality, and no Communist activity in South Vietnam.

Hundreds of police occupied a sprawling university student complex in the heart of Saigon in another step to put down opposition to Thieu's one-man election campaign. On Sunday, they rounded up 400 anti-Thieu demonstrators, including 45 South Vietnamese soldiers. Thieu spoke tonight in the second of three speeches he is making to the nation on government radio as part of his

Draft OK now seems certainty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Only routine formalities remain for the Senate to attend to this week before expected final approval is given the long-delayed and bitterly disputed measure to extend the draft and give the military a hefty pay raise.

With the issue all but decided in preliminary votes Friday, Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., floor manager of the bill during its seven-month ordeal, was prepared to allow debate today or perhaps for several days before bringing the matter to a final vote — possibly by the end of the week.

The measure would extend the President's authority to conscript until June 30, 1973, and provide $2.4 billion in military pay raises to spur enlistments in a drive to create an all-volunteer army for the future. President Nixon's authority to draft servicemen ceased June 30 when the old draft law expired.

Suggest woman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Women's Political Caucus today urged President Nixon to appoint a woman to replace retired Justice Hugo L. Black on the Supreme Court. In a telegram to Nixon, the caucus said there are many qualified female jurists and legal scholars who could serve on the high bench.

Medina court martial will resume Tuesday

FT. MCPHERSON, — Ga. (UPI) — The My Lai court-martial of Capt. Ernest L. Medina resumes Tuesday with Medina facing only one of the three murder charges leveled against him.

The other charges either were dismissed or reduced by the military judge, Col. Kenneth A. Howard.

Howard dismissed one of the charges — that Medina ordered a small boy killed — after a former soldier, Gene Oliver of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., testified he killed the boy on his own initiative, without any instructions from Medina.

Hopefuls studied for seat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today studied possible candidates for retiring Justice Hugo L. Black's seat on the Supreme Court, while speculation increased that another seat soon would be vacant.

Justice John M. Harlan, 72, entered Bethesda Naval Hospital in April for treatment of discomfort in his back, which has persisted for years. It was learned only last week that Harlan still was hospitalized.

Thursday he was transferred to George Washington University Hospital, which specializes in spinal disorders.

At least one report circulating said Harlan already had submitted his resignation. It could not be confirmed.

Black, 85, wrote a letter to Nixon that was hand-delivered to the White House Friday, stating that he was stepping down because of ill health.

Nixon met with Attorney General John N. Mitchell and domestic adviser John D. Ehrlichman Saturday before flying to Camp David, Md.

Proxmire asks for gas price rollback

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., suggested today the government indirectly tipped major oil companies to raise retail gasoline prices just before President Nixon's 90-day wage-price freeze went into effect Aug. 15.

Proxmire, in a statement, called on Nixon to force a rollback.

Proxmire's office quoted an oil industry journal as saying average retail gasoline prices increased from 33.08 cents a gallon on July 20 to 36.60 cents a gallon on Aug. 10, five days before the freeze was announced.

Proxmire said "it is no coincidence" that the price increases came shortly after a July 20 press briefing held by a "high administration official" at which announcement was made that unused oil import quotas would not be carried over into the next fiscal year.

The knowledge that less foreign oil would be imported allowed the major companies to raise their prices, Proxmire suggested.

Proxmire did not say that the oil companies knew the freeze would come, but sources in Proxmire's office said the senator felt information provided by someone in the government served as a tip-off to the oil industry to raise prices.

"This price increase in the face of the wage-price freeze is clearly inflationary," Proxmire said in his statement. "President Nixon ought to take immediate action to roll it back."

Proxmire, chairman of the House-Senate Economic Committee, said oil companies were using "their economic power, re-enforced by recent decisions affecting the oil import quota program, to get record high prices for gasoline."

Proxmire's latest blast came as President Nixon conferred with Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, who just returned from a meeting with finance ministers of the European Common Market countries.

Hearings on Nixon's new economic program also continued on Capitol Hill.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Metropolitan Opera opens its new season tonight — the last one led by Sir Rudolf Bing.

Bing, 69, will retire after this season, his 21st at the Met, to be replaced as general manager by Goeran Gentele, director of Stockholm's Royal Opera.

The opening night performance will be "Don Carlo," the opera that began Bing's career as manager in 1950. The cast includes three members who were in the 1950 production — Cesare Siepi, Lucine Amara and Robert Merrill.

During Bing's reign the Met moved from the old Metropolitan Opera House on 39th Street to Lincoln Center.

It is always possible that something unforeseen could happen to me suddenly. What simple things would you suggest I do to make things easier for my survivors if this should ever happen?

Answer...

A list of last instructions can be ever so helpful at this time; it should be in a location where it can be easily found. From our experience we believe this list should include:

- People to be notified: include phone numbers and addresses.
- Social Security number and veterans discharge date.
- Whereabouts of your will and insurance policies.
- Data concerning bank, credit union and savings and loan accounts.
- Location of safe deposit box and other important keys.

We have available without any charge to Twin Falls area residents, "Personal Affairs Record", an excellent new booklet which lists everything in one place. Please call at our office for your copy.

TF woman hurt as auto overturns

TWIN FALLS — Jackie Lee Becker, 26, 142 Carney St., was listed in fair condition this morning at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital with multiple injuries as a result of an accident early Sunday morning on Addison Avenue West.

Miss Becker was injured when her 1955 sedan went out of control and rolled over twice as she attempted to pass two vehicles driving side by side in the four lane street. City police said the woman was cited for violation of the basic rule and investigation is continuing. She told officers she was attempting to get around the two vehicles blocking the street and pulled into the safety zone but in going back into the traffic lane lost control and hit the right hand curb which caused the vehicle to overturn.

A passenger, Rick Roy, 24, suffered minor cuts and bruises but was not hospitalized. Officers said the accident was reported at 2:15 a.m. in the 200 block of Addison Avenue West.

Merchandise missing included a number of cycle parts, safety helmets, leather jackets and other similar items.

Cycle gear stolen

TWIN FALLS — Crippen's Cycle Shop, 263 Addison Ave. W., was entered sometime early Saturday and about $485 in merchandise taken, city police in Twin Falls were advised.

Police reported a glass was broken from a door and the door opened from the inside. Ron and Larry Crippen, owners of the business, said the entry apparently took place between 2 and 3 a.m. Saturday.

Merchandise missing included a number of cycle parts, safety helmets, leather jackets and other similar items.

Shed, shop burn at TF home

TWIN FALLS — Fire destroyed a shed and a shop Sunday at the Claude Thomas home south of the Twin Falls Labor Camp, sheriff's officers reported today.

The fire was confined to the two outside buildings although officers said the home was threatened as flames leaped some 20 feet into the air. Equipment from the Kimberly and Filer Rural Fire Departments and the Mutual Fire Department, Twin Falls, brought the blaze under control.

Two Marine deaths said 'unrelated'

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — A Marine Corps spokesman says the weekend deaths of two recruits following training sessions were "completely unrelated and happened on different days and involved different training units."

He said, however, an investigation is being conducted into the deaths of Pvt. Frankie C. Vickers, 19, of Greenville, Fla., on Saturday and Pvt. Warren H. John, 23, of Baltimore, Md., early Sunday.

A spokesman said Vickers died as the result of a brain stem contusion apparently suffered in a fall during "light physical training" about 11:30 a.m. Saturday. He was taken to a naval hospital at nearby Beaufort where he died.

Vickers had recently arrived at the training depot and had not begun his regular training.

Two await sentencing

TWIN FALLS — Two men charged with grand larceny in a joint complaint pleaded guilty Friday and are awaiting sentencing.

Mario Hernandez and Ramiro Rodriguez, both Twin Falls, are accused in connection with the theft of four tires and rims last July.

District Judge Theron Ward ordered pre-sentence investigations. The men are free on $500 bond each.

Gem Episcopal bishop quits after 14 years

BOISE — Rt. Rev. Norman L. Foote, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Idaho, has announced his resignation, citing reasons of health, after serving the Diocese for 14 years.

His resignation, when approved by the Standing Committee and House of Bishops, will give the Episcopal Church in Idaho the chance to elect its first Bishop in the history of the Diocese. Previously, Bishops of Idaho have been elected by the House of Bishops and appointed to serve the state or the Dioceses. The State of Idaho became a Diocese in 1967, securing thereby the right to elect its own Bishop. The election of a successor to Rev. Foote will be scheduled within the next few months, according to church spokesmen, at the call of a special Convention.

The new Bishop will be elected by a majority vote of the delegates at the Convention, representing the Diocese as a whole, and by a majority of the clergy of the Diocese.

Any clergyman now a priest of the Episcopal Church in the United States is eligible for election and may accept or reject his election, which is subject to approval of a majority of the Bishops and Standing Committees of all Episcopal Church Dioceses in the nation.

The earliest that a Bishop of Idaho could be consecrated would be January, 1972.

Rev. Foote, born Nov. 30, 1915, at Saratoga Springs, N.Y., studied for the priesthood at General Theological Seminary, receiving an S.T.B. degree in 1940 and his S.T.D. degree in 1957. He also holds a Doctor of Divinity degree from the Church Divinity School of the Pacific.

Mrs. Roosevelt's crisis revealed in biography

NEW YORK — "She came upon Lucy's letters. Her worst fears were confirmed. Her world seemed to break into pieces."

In his biography, "Eleanor" excerpted in the current issue of McCall's Joseph Lash describes Eleanor Roosevelt's reaction to the domestic crisis brought about by FDR's much-gossiped but until now officially unadmitted extracurricular romance with Lucy Mercer Rushmore.

Mrs. Rushmore, then unmarried, entered Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt's life early in their marriage and was to remain a part of it until her bedside presence on the day of his death at Warm Springs — more than thirty-two years later. A pivotal element in a marriage under private and public stress from the beginning, she brought Mrs. Roosevelt to the point of despair more than once. "She confronted her husband with Lucy's letters prepared to give (him) his freedom if, after thinking over what the consequences might be for the children, he still wanted to end their marriage."

According to Lash it was the political consequences to his rising political star as well as his mother's threat to cut him off that decided FDR against leaving Eleanor for the younger and prettier Lucy.

Although Eleanor extracted a promise that he would break off the affair, and Lucy married shortly after the episode, Lash contends there is good evidence that Roosevelt and Mrs. Rushmore remained close friends until his death.

The Roosevelt marriage was to survive one of the longest and historically most controversial political careers in history, as well as the internal pressures brought on by FDR's several flirtations.

The Lash biography reveals that after his death Mrs. Roosevelt confided to friends that she had not been in love with her husband since discovering his affair, but that her long-time confidante, Esther Lape told him, "That was her story. Maybe she even half believed it. But . . . I don't think she ever stopped loving someone she loved."

"Franklin Roosevelt's most fateful action as a . . . princely young man . . . was to pick shy, somewhat plain cousin Eleanor to be his wife," says Lash of the woman of whom Adlai Stevenson said 50 years later, "She would rather light a candle than curse the darkness."

Better Driving

Portland Oregonian

The fearful summer carnage on Oregon highways upsets us all. But little is really done except to make clucking sounds over the dead. There were 93 of these alone in August.

And yet, the State Motor Vehicles Division has given us a clue as to who might be responsible for a large number of these traffic accidents which are plaguing every major arterial in the state. The division recently noted that although only one out of every five drivers is in the youthful 16 to 25-year-old category, nevertheless, one out of every three accidents involves someone from this group.

Perhaps it might be wise for the state to consider the suggestion of the National Transportation Safety Board which is calling for probationary driver licenses for young, new drivers. Such licenses would provide for a two-year probationary licensing of all drivers under 21.

It makes sense. Such a license would probably facilitate suspension or revocation for cause, perhaps clearing our roads of some of the poorer drivers. Even mildly errant drivers with such a license might be placed in improvement programs before their highway behavior and attitudes become habitual.

For too long, Oregon, like many states, has searched for ways to cut down on its annual traffic fatality statistics. But despite excellent work by the State Police and other enforcement agencies, the carnage continues. Apparently much of it can be attributed to the often wild, reckless, don't-give-a-damn young driver.

Probationary licensing might help. It seems worth a try.

City Noise

Lewiston Tribune

There are few forms of pollution more offensive than the noise pollution of a neglected or altered muffler on an automobile, truck or motorcycle.

Apparently Boise Chief of Police John Church agrees. He has announced a crackdown on noisy mufflers—a crackdown that would be welcome in other Idaho cities, including this one.

It's not only the humane thing to do, it's the law. The new law, enacted by the 1971 Idaho Legislature, sets a limit of 92 decibels on the noise a car or motorcycle engine may produce. It also provides that modification of a vehicle's exhaust system is to be regarded as evidence of violating the law.

That is because much vehicle noise pollution is deliberate. Some drivers and cyclists get their jollies from the noise their vehicles produce. Mufflers are deliberately altered to frustrate their intent—and in some cases to produce a different or even a louder noise than the vehicle would make without a muffler.

Church is asking that the city of Boise purchase a decibel meter for his department. Other police should do the same, just as they purchase radar units to keep the lid on speeders.

Meanwhile, there is that wording in the law which permits the courts to regard a muffler that has been remodeled to produce an illegal amount of noise as a muffler that has been remodeled to produce an illegal amount of noise.

That is the course the Boise Police Department will follow, and we urge the Lewiston police to do the same.

We said, WE URGE THE LEWISTON POLICE TO DO THE SAME.

From SALT

Christian Science Monitor

One of the most fearsome aspects of the Soviet-American nuclear armaments race has been that some accidental happening, such as the unintentional launching of a missile or explosion of a test device, might trigger off a deadly retaliatory move by the other side.

Which is why the reported accord between the U.S.S.R. and the United States to set up a new communications satellite hotline for instant contact between Moscow and Washington in such cases is an encouraging sign. As reported in The Observer (London) it is a modest enough first result from the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) which have stretched out now for two years. But no one who grasped the complexities and the profound mutual distrust between the two superpowers ever expected the talks to be easy or to bear quick results.

According to The Observer's correspondent, writing out of Moscow, the accord was reached in Helsinki in August. In addition to a satellite hotline, which will presumably be more dependable than the present under-ocean cable and European overland wire system, the accord provides for mutual commitment to refrain from nuclear retaliation pending consultation between the two capitals, and for a subsequent joint investigation of such accidents.

Based on the limited information at hand, the move appears to be a useful and positive one. But it falls far short of being a true "failsafe" system. And it comes no way near the "breakthrough" announced last May in a joint United States-Soviet statement.

The world still waits for positive results from SALT in terms of limiting the spread of defensive antiballistic missiles, as well as an accord—hopefully an outright ban—on the buildup of offensive weapons. Most observers consider these objectives still remote.

In the context of recent lessening of tensions between the Soviet Union and the United States, with the Berlin agreement and the decision to start negotiations next month on preventing incidents in international waters, there is reason to hope for that promised breakthrough. Meanwhile, we are thankful for any step that helps to lift the prospect of holocaust-by-accident that has hung over mankind for too many years.

ANDREW TULLY

Opening Night At The Center

WASHINGTON — Sen. William Proxmire's proposal that Congress revive President Nixon's welfare reform plan reminds one of the almost sexual orgy in which the courtiers of the Kennedy royal family indulged themselves at opening night of the sparkling new Kennedy Center. Proxmire is a dreamer, too.

Like the bejeweled "liberal" nobility in extreme décolletage and hot pants who turned the opening into a saturnalia of wet kisses, the Wisconsin Democrat is living in the past. Yesterday may have been Camelot for the beautiful chosen few, at least while John Kennedy lived. Today is the morning after, for everybody.

As pronounced by an authentic liberal, New York's Rep. Herman Badillo, welfare reform is dead. Badillo's constituency is almost entirely black and Puerto Rican—a bloc most interested in higher relief benefits. But Badillo is both a realist and an honest man. His integrity has forced him to acknowledge that the come-and-get-it welfare program of the Sixties have been "totally discredited" by fraud and corruption.

The result today is less welfare, not more. Relief rolls are down in 19 states in the past three years, but although this period coincides with President Nixon's residence in the White House, the decrease is not his doing. It is, instead, the product of a massive national hangover. When Nixon proposed that welfare reform be postponed, but following the examples of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, and the negative mood of the powerful Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of House Ways and Means.

Although Reagan started it, he has been outdone by the liberal Rockefeller, who bulled his own welfare reform package through the last session of the legislature. Rockefeller has been forced to appeal a lower court ruling that his one-year residency requirement for welfare is unconstitutional, but he's got a Welfare Inspector General rooting out fraud, and employable relief recipients now must pick up their checks instead of receiving them in the mail.

The revelations produced by Rockefeller's get-tough policy are the stuff about which the working stiff has been complaining for years. When 20 per cent of welfare recipients in New York city failed to pick up their checks for five successive pay periods, the evidence of fraud snowballed.

Investigation so far has shown that at least half this 20 per cent were ineligible for relief. Some received checks although they had jobs, others were receiving checks under several names. City Controller Abraham Beame reported that almost 100,000 welfare checks were forged during the past five years. More than 45,000 duplicate checks amounting to $4-million were fraudulently cashed in the state last year by recipients who had claimed they lost their original monthly checks and were issued replacement vouchers.

So Proxmire is kidding himself. He seems not to have noticed that Wilbur Mills greeted with almost unholy glee Nixon's request for a postponement of welfare reform. Apparently he was looking for other way as officials of state after state reduced relief rolls in frantic efforts to balance their budgets.

It has been a long, red-hot party, this performance of Camelot and the efforts of Lyndon Johnson to demolish the contempt in which he was held by the Kennedy courtiers by trying to outspend them.

But now the party is over and the time has come for the Republic, bleary-eyed and despicible, to reach for the bottle of bicarb. The disclosures of welfare fraud are sure to lead to legislative demands across the nation for additional restrictions and cutbacks in relief programs.

In this new national mood, I suspect most taxpayers were nauseated, as I was, by the spectacle of that moist and hammy composer, Lenny Bernstein, hysterically kissing everybody in sight at the Kennedy Center's opening night. Lenny, like Camelot, is trying to overstay his time. Indeed, perhaps somebody should have invited that self-made multi-billionaire, Aristotle Onassis, to the party. He might have given the goings-on a touch of dignity.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Nice-Sweet

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter-in-law, on the surface, is a very nice, sweet person, but I have seen her have spells when she got mad over something and you would swear she was completely insane.

She cries, curses, spits and sputters, pounds the table, and will even threaten to kill. Once she got so jealous of my son that she talked about getting a gun and blowing his head off. She got mad at her little daughter for spilling her water on the floor, and beat her until my son took her off her. Her dreams and imaginations would make good horror movies.

I could go on but maybe you get the picture. Do you think she needs help, and what kind?—M.B.

Anybody, under provocation, can get mad. Nobody can stay "nice and sweet" all the time. But when a pattern of uncontrollable rages and threats to kill appears, that's something else again.

Rage is one thing. Threatening to get a gun is another. Beating a child until she has to be forcibly stopped is still another.

From your description, I get the cold fear that this young woman is psychotic. Mentally ill. The periods of being "a nice, sweet person" in between the outbursts must not mislead you or make you underestimate the explosive hostility that emerges.

I am not a psychiatrist and would not even try to guess what type of problem is involved, but I certainly believe that she should be examined by a psychiatrist.

I note that you are not from a large town—but your physician (or hers) should be told about this behavior, and he can refer her to a center having psychiatric facilities.

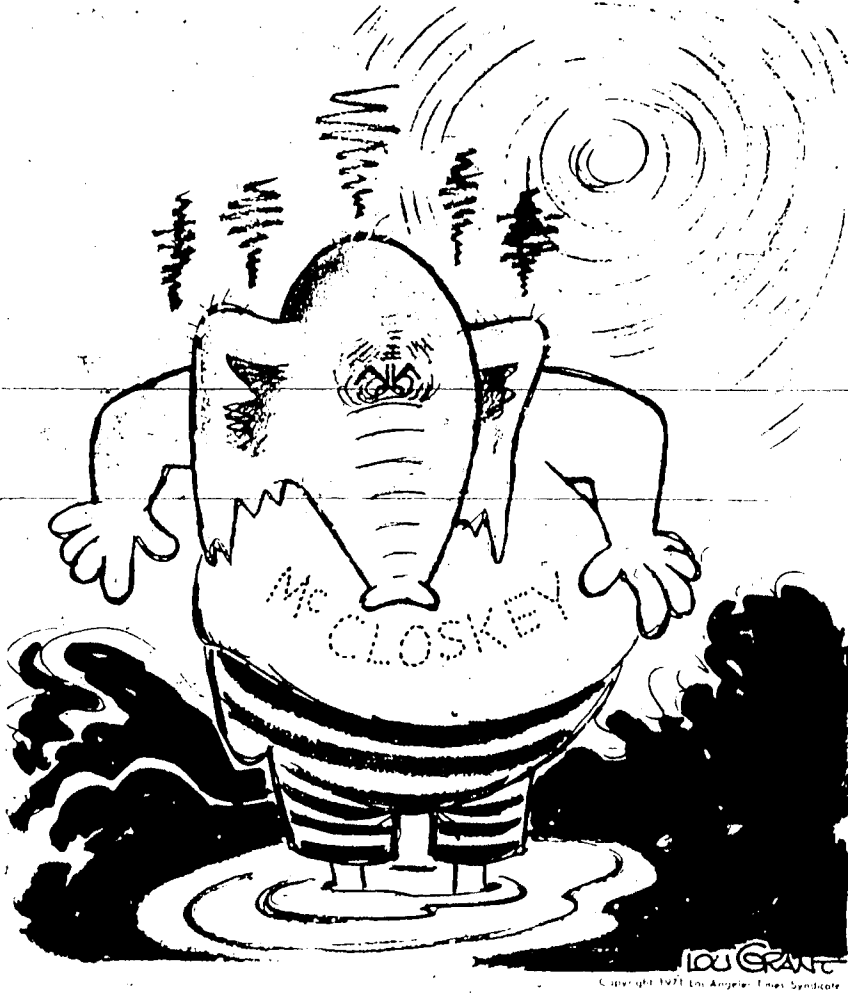

Meanwhile if there is a gun in the house, get it out of there. Statistically, police records prove that homicide is more common among relatives and friends than it is among strangers.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please send booklet, "Ear Noises: Their Causes and Cures," for which I enclose 15 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Is it possible that noises could be a side effect of creams prescribed for eczema in the ear canal? I no longer use anything. Is there any hope the condition will become less annoying?—Mrs. C.M.

Such creams would not cause the ear noises, but wax or debris from the eczema could be lodged against the ear drum and cause the annoyance. I suggest that you have this possibility checked. There are, however, several other causes for ear noises, some correctable, some not.

Senior Citizens?

WASHINGTON — Recent statements by television network officials indicate that their programming this year will be aimed at youth and young married people who have more money to spend than their elder more conservative-spending parents. Since TV is nothing but an advertising medium in this country, it's hard to fault the networks and their sponsors for wanting to reach the people most likely to buy their products.

The truth of the matter is that old people just won't go out and spend money, and for that reason there is no reason to indulge them in any way.

You would think the elderly would be bitter about being considered "nonpersons" by advertisers, but on the contrary they seem very philosophical about it.

My Uncle Phil said, "I knew the handwriting was on the wall some years ago when the Saturday Evening Post canceled my subscription because they discovered I was over the mandatory age of 45 to read their magazine."

"That's true Uncle Phil, but it's one thing for a magazine to drop older people as readers, but it's another for all three networks to decide to go after the youth market."

"We have only ourselves to blame. It's true we don't have too much money to spend. The reason we don't is we spent it all on our kids, whom the sponsors now insist they want to reach. If we hadn't given all our savings to our children, the advertisers would be making programs for us instead of them."

"It still seems a brutal thing to do," I said.

"You have to look at it from their standpoint," Uncle Phil said. "What good is it to make entertainment for people who can't buy a sports car, or who don't care if they have had breath, or who are too tired to fly the friendly skies of United? If God wanted the networks to appeal to senior citizens, He would have seen to it that they got a lot more Social Security."

"It's nice of you to see it from the advertiser's viewpoint, Uncle Phil."

"Why shouldn't I?" he said. "It isn't as if the networks purposely wanted to exclude the elderly from their programming. But they have to think of what's good for the country. And what's good for the country is a strong economy, and the only way you can have a strong economy is if people go out and buy the things they see advertised on television. Elderly people might go out and buy a bottle of aspirin once in a while, or a can of corn, but Doris Day or Sonny and Cher can't live on THAT."

"I can see your point," I said. "But why do the networks rub it in? Why don't they just go ahead with their programming without announcing who they're appealing to?"

"The men who run the networks are very nervous and worried men. They know for a fact that the people who really have time to watch television are the elderly, the sick and the unemployed. The last group is getting larger every day.

"The young people either don't care about watching TV or they have the money to go to a movie, a ball game or a play. So the networks have to announce what they're doing to reassure the advertisers that they're making programs for other people besides the deadbeats."

"And doesn't this bother you?"

"Why should it? No matter what they announce, they always put on the same junk they put on the year before."

PAUL HARVEY

A Long Park

An Arkansas congressman has put wings on a dream, test-hopped it, and in flight it's beautiful to see and may be beneficial to all.

But can we afford a park a thousand miles long?

Bill Alexander's boyhood in the Mississippi Valley left him with a Tom Sawyer-Huck Finn fascination for "the river." Homefolks around Osceola, Ark., will tell you, "That boy never came indoors till we sent him to Congress."

So now Congressman William Alexander necessarily lives in Washington, D.C., but his heart never left the majestic valley of the Mississippi River.

And his heart bleeds to see the careless abuse of this world famous waterway as industrial and commercial development violates the vistas, pollutes the water, destroys our midlands' last haven for wildlife.

Congressman Alexander recognizes that ecological considerations have practical limitations, so he is preparing a detailed study showing how the Mississippi River can be rescued in such a manner that it will be a major tourist attraction, thus adding a new dimension to the economy of our midlands.

Already sections of the upper reaches of the Mississippi River have been reserved, preserved, beautified. Tourism thus attracted to those areas is an impressive argument for connecting and extending them.

The plan which Alexander will propose to Congress this fall involves the river from St. Louis south to the Gulf of Mexico — a meandering thousand miles long "Huckleberry Finn National Park," reserving and beautifying parts of both sides of the Mississippi.

In discussions with the Department of Interior, it was determined that the department and a corps of engineers already have jurisdiction over much of the lowlands involved. Adjacent lands and river islands would have to be acquired.

The project would allow continuing economic development of the region, but within restrictions which require preserving and enhancing the natural beauty of the area.

Alexander is convinced that the desires of the conservationists and the environmentalists are not irresolvable, but the longer we wait the more difficult it becomes.

With only a little imagination, we who know and love this old river can envision shoreline drives, camp sites, picnic areas, marinas — improving availability of the area with minimal intrusion on the "wildness" of it.

Can we afford a thousand miles long Huckleberry Finn National Park? I don't know. Congressman Alexander expects to have a cost breakdown ready for the consideration of his colleagues in October.

The alternative is to allow one of the Wonders of the World to become what neglected waterways already are — a mammoth stinking sewer.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Crowded driving conditions in Great Britain have caused officials to give stringent driving tests. The World Almanac notes that one applicant for a driver's license, Miriam Hargrave, finally passed her driving test on her 40th try. However, the $720 she had earmarked for a car had gone into driving lessons, leaving her still afoot.

Rev. Norman Dillon performed the candlelight double ring ceremony before a background setting featuring blue and yellow flowers entwined in a white arch with wedding bells hanging overhead, flanked by green fern, baskets of yellow gladioli and white chrysanthemums and candelabra.

The bride wore an empire-style gown of brocade satin, fashioned with lily point sleeves and a train of peau de sole. The orn was enhanced with satin bows in front and in the back. She carried an arrangement of yellow baby roses on a white Bible.

Evelyn Lejon, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, with Carolyn Stewart and Liz Bailey, both Portland, as bridesmaids.

The cake was accented with two heart-shaped cakes at the corners of the bottom layers. Blue and yellow trim decorated the cake with white doves on the bottom tier and bells encircling the other tiers. The cake was flanked by yellow and blue candles.

Mrs. Keith Tuttle served the cake. Mrs. John Priest and Mrs. Otto Maier served punch and coffee. Guests were served at quartet tables centered with small imitation wedding cakes.

Gifts were displayed on a table covered with yellow by Mrs. Ken Tuttle, Mrs. Glen Long, Carmen Kelly and Vallie Thompson. Mrs. George Kelly and Mrs. Norman Dillon presented a program at the reception. The couple took a wedding trip to Yellowstone National Park and will reside in Portland.

New party game anyone can play

NEW YORK (UPI)—Next time you're bored at a party, try the newest game anyone can play.

"Read" through gestures and or posture what the guests are thinking, wishing, how they reveal their personality silently and you'll lose the "what am I doing here?" attitude. You've probably been expressing boredom yourself in several ways. It turns out—one of the most familiar is the chin in the palm of the hand and the body pointed toward an exit.

A blink, a smile, crossed legs, the way you sit in a chair, even a buttoned or unbuttoned jacket contain revealing social, sexual and emotional meanings, says Gerard I. Nirenberg, a New York lawyer and long-time student and adviser on the art of negotiating. He's written two books on the subject.

Nirenberg contends that any gesture, any pose of the body is a silent communication.

Consider the simple thing of tilting the head for instance.

Nirenberg says that from a very early age, women instinctively understand its significance. "It gives the impression of listening intently. They use it consciously when they converse with a male whom they want to impress—and they do."

Couple observes 64th year

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Arch Whiteley, 328 4th Ave. E., Twin Falls, observed their 64th Wedding Anniversary this past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Whiteley were married at Shiloh, Ark., Sept. 15, 1907, and moved to Twin Falls in 1943. Whiteley worked for Northrup King Seed Co. until his retirement.

They have seven children, Noble Whiteley, Midge Moore, Berniece Bolinger and Marietta James, all Twin Falls; Ruby Head, Eureka Springs, Ark.; Virginia Garton, Pendleton, Ore.; and Blanche Pratt, Tooele, Utah. They were all present for ice cream and a special anniversary cake except Virginia and Blanche.

Mr. and Mrs. Whiteley have 21 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

Farm sold

SHOSHONE — Mr. and Mrs. W. H. (Hank) Daniels have sold their 160-acre farm to Jerry Westendorf, North Shoshone.

Daniels first purchased the place in 1934. Mrs. Daniels joined him when they were married in 1939. Their children include Mrs. Lloyd Garder, Vancouver, Wash.; Bob Daniels, Tacoma; Mrs. Dennis Monroe, College Place, Wash.; Mrs. Normond Boepple, Boise; and Joe Daniels, a senior at Gooding High School.

Club members plan dinner

TWIN FALLS — Plans were made for the annual "Ladies Night Out" dinner when members of the Union Pacific Boosters Club met this past week at the home of Mrs. Mabel McClain.

The club favor was furnished by Mrs. Ted Sutterfield and won by Mrs. Vinnie Boatright. The thought for the day was given by Mrs. Morris Blackburn.

Games were played, with each member winning a prize. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

FLAMELESS ELECTRIC LIVING FOR A NEATER, CLEANER WORLD

DEAR ABBY: When we have company for dinner, my father asks them in front of me how would they like to hear me play the piano. What can they say? So I have to play the piano for them. I didn't mind it so much when I was younger because it was cute, but I am 15 years old now, and it's embarrassing.

I have told my dad I would rather not play for company anymore, but he asks me anyway. I know he's proud of me, but it is evident to everyone in my family (except him) the guests are bored and they could care less how I play the piano.

What should I do? DADDY'S LITTLE PIANIST
DEAR PIANIST: Appeal to your father again, and enlist the support of your family. P.S. Your company is lucky. Dads had to listen to my twin sister and me play violin duets until we were 18 years old.

DEAR ABBY: My problem sounds something like a letter out of your column, but here it is: I have a very good friend (call him "Bill") whom I've known all my life. We are more like brothers than friends. Bill married a girl I'll call Sue six years ago. Sue's a terrific girl and we three get along just fine.

Well, Bill and Sue didn't want any children for the first three years of their marriage, but for the last three years they've been trying without success. They saw several doctors who agreed that Sue was okay, but the trouble was Bill's.

Last week, when I was at Bill and Sue's for dinner, they knocked me cold with the suggestion that I father Sue's child! Bill said he would prefer bringing up the child of his wife and best friend than adopting one of unknown origin. He said it was not unlike artificial insemination, only the test tube phase was eliminated and he'd know who the father was.

Abby, I've always had a special thing for Sue, but only in my dreams, and I couldn't bring myself to go thru with such a scheme, and I told them so. They thought I was foolish. What do you think? MIDDLEMAN

DEAR MIDDLE: I think you're right, and they are foolish.
DEAR ABBY: Our son was playing ball and accidentally broke a huge picture window in our neighbor's home. I'll call these neighbors the Smiths.

The Smiths immediately taped the window and put boards over it so nobody would get cut. That evening my husband went over there and expressed his regrets and gave the Smiths the money to get the window replaced. The Smiths are very well off and could have afforded to replace the window themselves, but we felt responsible.

Well, it has been over three months and that window is still taped and boarded, and it is a terrible eyesore to this lovely neighborhood. Since the Smiths accepted the money from my husband, aren't they obligated to fix the window? Have you any suggestions on how we can get them to do it? MAD IN L. A.

DEAR MAD: Of course they should repair the broken window at once. Remind them! Your mistake was giving them the money. You should have made arrangements to replace the window at once, and paid for it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WONDERING IN EL PASO": Quit wondering. He is telling you the truth. There is indeed an exchange program between Greek and American citizens, and the Greek men are not permitted to marry anyone who is not a citizen of Greece.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 6790, Los Angeles, Cal. 90068. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Puerto Rican economy grows

NEW YORK (UPI)—Probably the most spectacular local economic expansion drive in history, Puerto Rico's "Operation Bootstrap," is entering its third decade with new laurels. For example, in the last few years production of electronics firms on the island has jumped to $100 million a year.

Started during the days when Luis Munoz Marin still was political ruler of the Commonwealth, Operation Bootstrap has brought two thousand new businesses to Puerto Rico and increased the island's annual Gross National Product from $750-million to $4.6 billion. It has raised per capita income from $179 to $1,426 and has created 110,000 new steady jobs on the island. But, according to the Puerto Rican Economic Development Administration, one of the most significant points about Operation Bootstrap is that it has created more jobs on the mainland than in Puerto Rico. That's because large portions — 90 per cent in the case of electronics — of the output of Puerto Rico's new plants come to the United States as components of products completed in American mainland factories. Also, a substantial portion of the basic elements and raw materials for Puerto Rican industry is brought on the mainland.

For this reason, organized labor on the mainland never has criticized seriously the 100 per cent Puerto Rican tax exemption that, along with the island's low direct labor costs (about 60 per cent of those on the mainland) have attracted so many firms to the Commonwealth. If it were not for Puerto Rico, Japan and Hong Kong would get these jobs. The tax exemptions commonly run for 10 to 17 years depending on location of the plant. Puerto Rican officials say the firms do not pull up stakes and leave when their tax exemptions run out but stay and pay taxes—often they have expanded their plants and obtained new exemptions on the expanded facilities." Puerto Rican officials say Commonwealth income, sales, real estate taxes and excise taxes paid by the workers and customers and suppliers of the exempt plants amount to much more than the waived taxes on the factories. Puerto Rico is exempt from the federal income and direct federal excise taxes.

The Development Administration, known on the island by its Spanish name, Fomento, was a spectacular success from the start and its activity has resulted in an annual compounded growth rate of more than 10 per cent in the Commonwealth's industry.

In the early years, Fomento naturally went after labor intensive industries such as textiles, footwear and gadget manufacturing in order to create jobs fast for the poor.

But Fomento was spectacularly successful in attracting sophisticated, capital intensive businesses, too. Petrochemical investments in Puerto Rico alone have amounted to $700 million.

Martha Mitchell asks wives to spend, enjoy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Following President Nixon's appeal for cabinet wives to speak out in support of his economic policies, Martha Mitchell had this advice for American women Saturday: "Go out and spend your money and enjoy yourself."

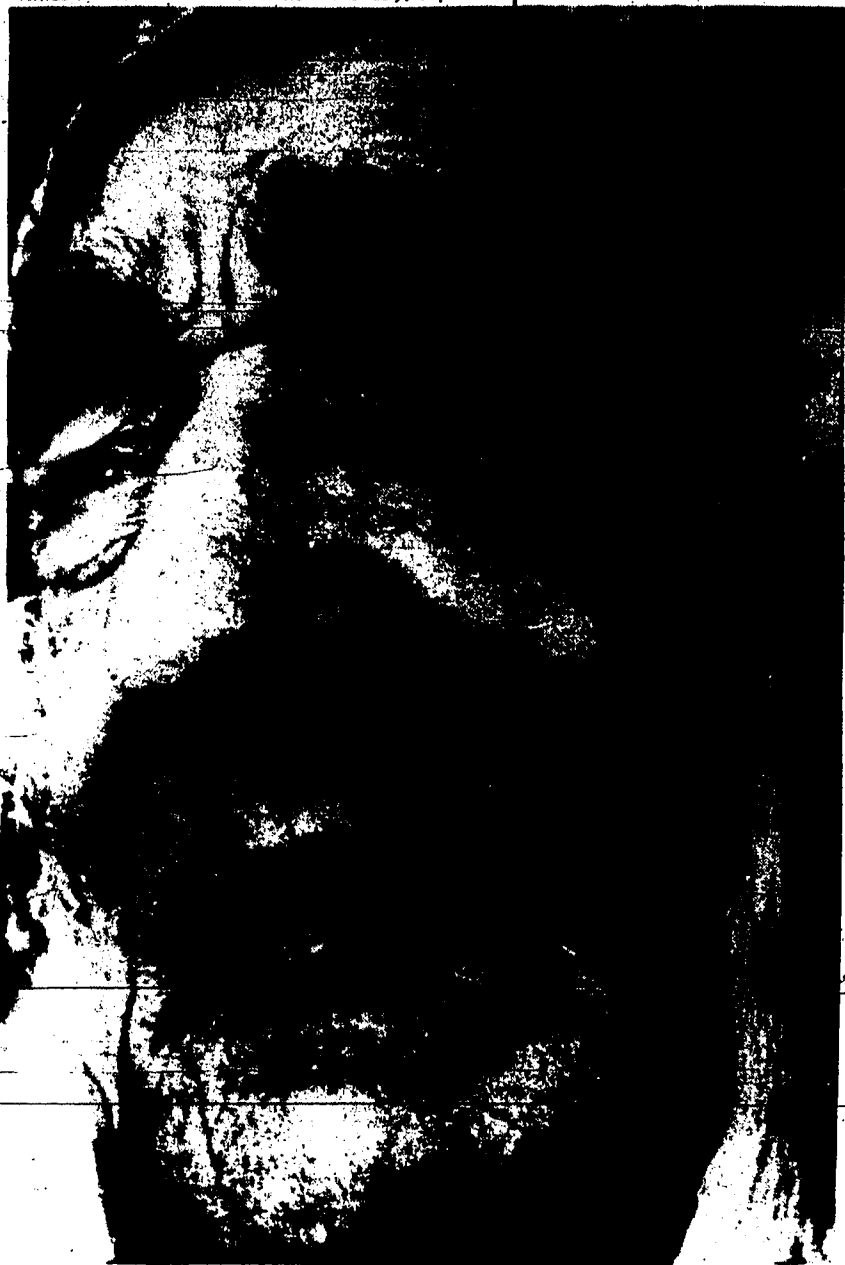

Interviewed in the living room of her Watergate luxury apartment on the Potomac, the wife of Attorney General John N. Mitchell said she was doing her part by ordering eight new dresses from a New York City designer.

"I think everybody should have a good time," she said. "Entertain as much as they want to and buy as much as they want to, but just keep it at home. Let's have America for Americans for a change and forget the rest of the world."

Mrs. Mitchell returned from a summer vacation in Europe ready to "preach America," and emerged with enthusiasm and some new facts after a two-hour White House meeting the President held Monday with cabinet members and their wives on his efforts to halt inflation and stimulate the economy.

Long memory

Chief dislikes Custer

DETROIT (UPI)—Chief Red Fox holds no love for the memory of Gen. George Armstrong Custer.

Custer died at the battle of the Little Big Horn in 1876. Red Fox is now 101 and remembers the name the Indians had for Custer.

"He wasn't called Yellow Hair by the Indians," the chief said during a recent visit here. "They called him Drunken Face. He was a child butcher and had captured a 14-year-old Indian girl as a mistress."

The chief still can remember when his father, Black Eagle, joined with his uncle, Crazy Horse, and other subchiefs to plan the ambush of Custer's 7th cavalry.

He was seven then and didn't take part in the battle.

At 101, Red Fox has no intention of retiring. He toured with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show and then was on the lecture circuit for many years.

Now he's an author of "The Memoirs of Chief Red Fox" and plans a few more books. The money goes into a trust fund for his five grandchildren, offspring of his two sons and daughter.

Red Fox also had some comments on today's young people.

"Young people are not worse today," he says. "They are just more honest. They do what they will and don't care if their elders know."

Farm meet set at Burley

BURLEY — A group of about 30 farmers from all parts of the state will meet tonight to discuss farm labor conditions within the state. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Ponderosa Inn.

Vernon B. Clinton, Rupert, temporary chairman of the group, said today the men will discuss "the labor situation in 1971 with special reference to the shortage of sprinkler pipe movers and to formalize the new organization which will represent the interests of middle and large size farmers in Idaho."

Clinton said he expected the new organization to become active "in the political arena" with an eye toward raising as much as $100,000 for the 1972 election campaign.

Farmers, particularly those relying on sprinkler irrigation systems, say their crops have been imperiled by a shortage of workers either willing or able to move sprinkler pipes.

Farmer discontent was heightened this summer when U.S. immigration officials staged a massive round-up of Mexican citizens who had illegally entered the U.S. to work on South Idaho farms.

The farmers claimed that with much of the illegal work force removed, that there were not enough workers in the local labor force to supply the needed irrigation manpower.

Supporters of the Government's immigration crackdown had argued that the influx of aliens enabled the farmers to keep wages low, making the hard irrigation work unacceptable to most U.S. citizens, including those of Latin origin.

A crew of maintenance men and scouts worked over the weekend to complete repairs on the camp, which suffered nearly $2,000 in damage last winter. The camp had been completed last fall in preparation for summer and fall camping, but vandals apparently spent much of the winter destroying furniture, damaging buildings and spreading havoc throughout the site.

A caretaker has been retained who will live at the site this winter to prevent a recurrence of the damage, Gleed said.

Camp Roach has been designed principally for weekend camping activities during the late summer and fall. Scout officials will initiate the fall series of camp-outs this weekend with a training session. Scout troops are planning a series of activities through the month of October.

Robert Caskey, Forest Service limnologist, is one of many specialists working in the first phase or inventory phase of the long range study of the rugged mountain regions.

L. Clair Baldwin, U.S.F.S., Hailey, said the first or inventory phase of the long range study is now nearing completion. An interim report covering field work on this phase during the 1970 summer season has been compiled and available for review.

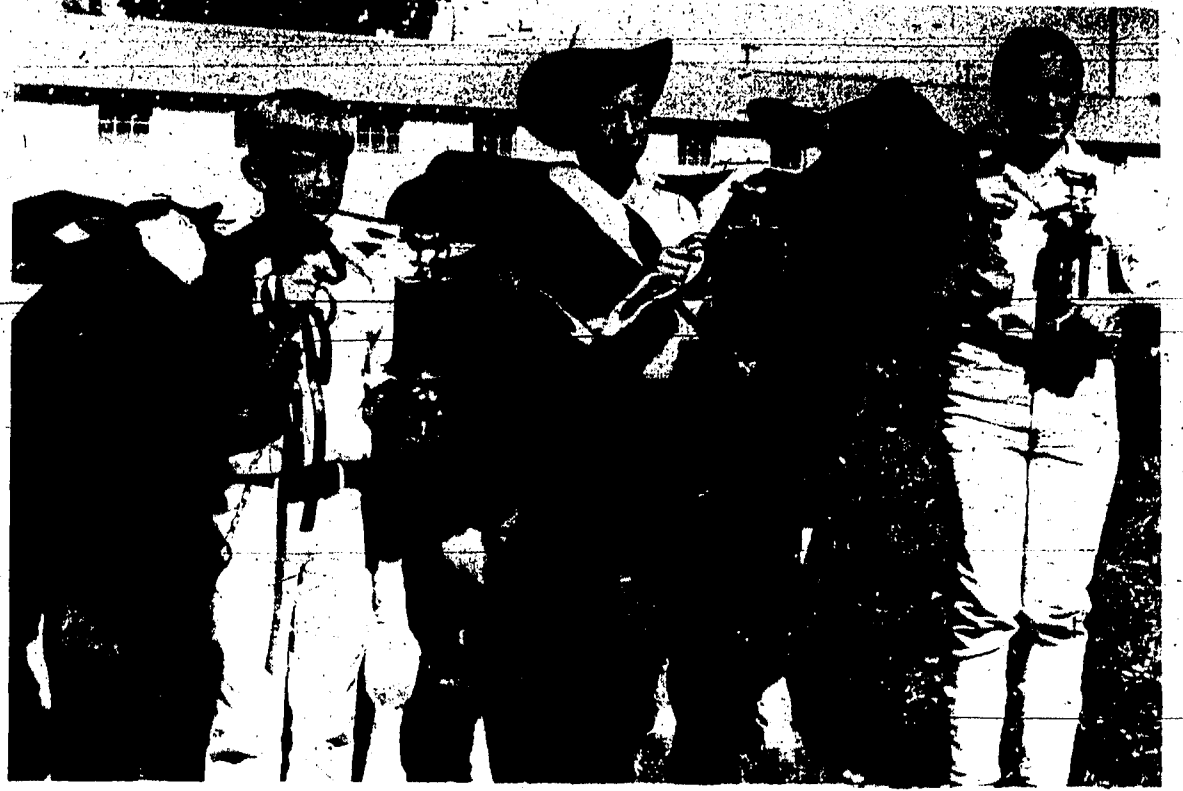

It will be augmented by field work now being done and including the study of stream life, water quality and other factors under the direction of Caskey.

When all of phase one is completed, phase two, the last half of the study undertaken in 1970, or the decision making phase will be undertaken, based on inventory material from the first phase, Baldwin said.

Caskey said the study of aquatic life of the streams is one of the best indicators of pollution content and overall quality of the water. Plans are to use such data as a control standard to indicate and evaluate future changes in the stream and as a comparison with other streams.

This requires monthly collection of insects from the test streams. These collections are studied for types of species and their relative abundance.

4-H event at Jerome draws 1,200

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News Writer
JEROME — The South-Central Idaho District 4-H Fair closed Saturday with close to 1,200 youngsters taking part in the three-day affair, from nine Magic Valley counties.

Exhibits were entered on Thursday with judging on Friday and Saturday. Under the district fair rules, each county was allowed to exhibit first, second, and third-place winners, in each division in each project, providing the exhibits were awarded blue ribbons at the county fair level.

All blue ribbon dress-revue winners were eligible to compete and two teams from each county in the livestock and home economics judging contest were eligible. Also competing was one team from each county in junior, intermediate and senior divisions in agricultural and home demonstrations.

Jerome County was in charge of home economics and agricultural demonstrations. Other County representatives working with the annual fair included Nettie Baird and Jim Eakin, Blaine; Glen Ross and Ivan Hopkins, Lincoln; Boyd Harrison and William Hazen, Camas; Mrs. Homer Hanke, and Herb Edwards, Elmore; R. V. Freeman and Ed Koester, Gooding; Jack Skinner and Dick Fuehrer, Twin Falls; Dee Rex Bingham and Wayne Cole, Cassia and Red Lewis and LaMont Smith, Minidoka.

Glen Ross of Richfield is president of the district association; R. V. Freeman, Wendell, is vice president; and William Hazen, Fairfield, is secretary-treasurer.

The Grand Champion Fitting and Showing of Dairy Cattle Award was presented to Cindy Williamson, Twin Falls County. Ida Gem Awards for dairy cattle went to Tim Malone, Jerome, first year; Clint Burrell, Gooding, second year and Cindy Williamson, Twin Falls, third year.

Harold Brooks, Hazelton, was awarded the special Angus Award for beef cattle.

Julie Breeding, Twin Falls, received the Magic Valley Breeders Award, with Dawn Thompson, Jerome, taking top honors with a Gelding in the horse division and John Gilster, Twin Falls, Reserve Grand Champion.

Debbie Cox, Twin Falls, was named top junior model in the style revue and Robbin Carl was named top senior model.

Chimes still silent

FILER — "I'm still watching the daily mail, hoping our chimes cartridge tape and playback unit will be returned by the person who took them," said Rev. Elam Anderson, pastor of the Filer United Methodist Church.

The mechanism for the chimes was stolen from the church last week and as yet no trace of it has been found. The playback unit had been specially modified for the chimes installation by Richard Pyne, Twin Falls, who said the unit would not be much use to anyone for any other type of installation.

The music played on the chimes each noon and evening brought much pleasure to the townspeople and is greatly missed. Rev. Anderson is again appealing to the thief to return the unit to the church.

Boy Scout camp ready for fall

WENDELL — The new Boy Scout Camp T. C. Roach, located in the Snake River Canyon west of Wendell, has been repaired and is ready for a busy fall schedule of camping activities, according to Darl Gleed, Snake River Area Scout Council executive director.

A crew of maintenance men and scouts worked over the weekend to complete repairs on the camp, which suffered nearly $2,000 in damage last winter. The camp had been completed last fall in preparation for summer and fall camping, but vandals ap-

Mayor Pyne said the purpose of the committee is to improve living conditions in the area for seasonal workers.

The five-man committee recently met and held an election of officers. Albert Lockwood was appointed chairman to serve a five-year term; Bill Pressey, vice president, a four year term; and George Haynes, secretary-treasurer, a two year term.

Art Baisch Jr. will serve a three year term and John Hohnhorst, Sr., one year.

Arstein asks education plan

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News Writer
JEROME — Commissioner of Agriculture Oscar Arstein said Friday night he plans to ask the Idaho legislature to fund a statewide educational program on the use of herbicides and insecticides as a result the death of a herd of dairy cattle in Gooding County in July.

Arstein, in an interview with the Times News, said the program he proposes would require cooperation of the press, all local and state agencies and the public as a whole.

He explained that county agents would organize educational programs throughout the county to explain fully to farmers the procedure of applying both pesticides and herbicides, which Arstein said are essential in today's farm program.

Another phase of the program would be short courses given at the University of Idaho and other Idaho colleges and universities to qualify those handling the chemicals for safe dispensing of the various products.

Arstein said as far as he and his office are concerned, the case of the Gooding cattle which were killed when sprayed by pesticide in August is closed. While the case was a tragic loss he said it may serve to bring about some long needed guidelines for all agencies to follow.

As for the change of rules on bulk handling of pesticides, now illegal, Arstein said it would be up to the state legislators to change the laws rather than his office to make a new ruling.

Not only does the problem apply to farmers, but is of concern to home owners and housewives alike, he indicated.

The state official said in addition to the Gooding county incident, there have been complaints in the Boise area regarding unreasonable charges for chemicals. These are currently under investigation, he said.

Two boaters found safe but chilly

TWIN FALLS — Two safe but cold boaters were found about 9:30 a.m. today floating in their raft on the Snake River in a trip that took longer than they had thought and involved an overnight stop in the canyon. Bill Powell piloted a search plane which spotted Elmo Emix, 25, and Steve Thompson, 23. He said the two appeared to be in no trouble. He said they were about a mile and a half east of the Hansen Bridge and floating downstream.

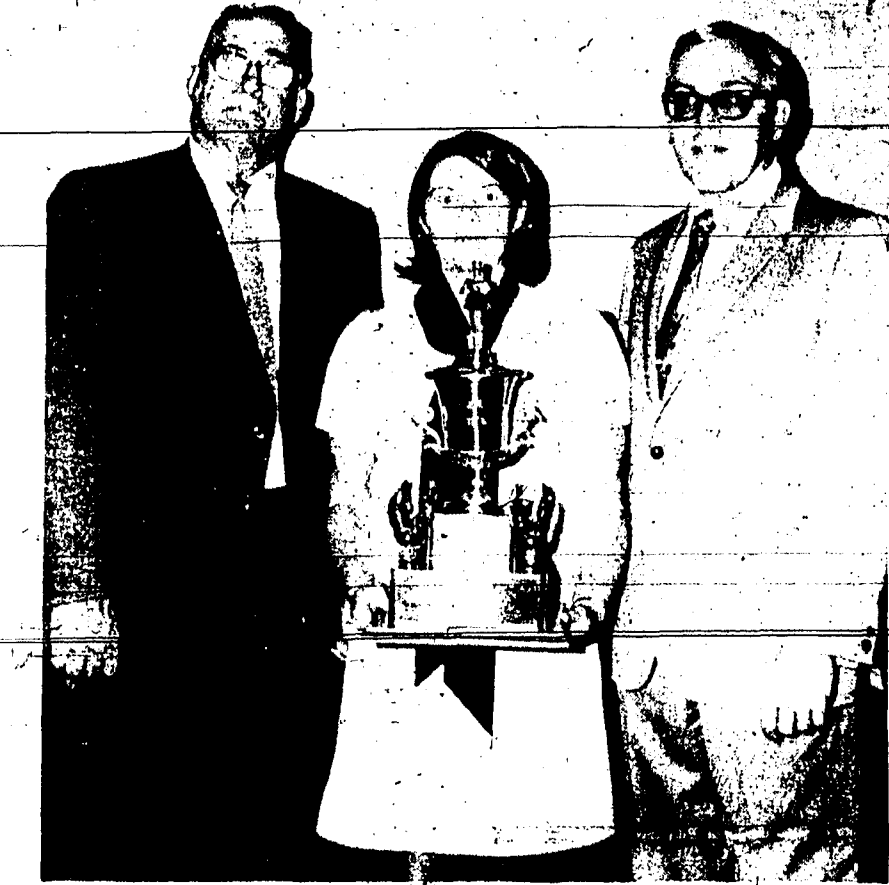

The two put their large life raft into the Snake River Sunday about 2 p.m. at the Murtaugh crossing and planned to float to Twin Falls where they were to be met by their families Sunday evening. When they had not appeared by dark, the family notified officers and set up a watch on the Hansen bridge. No trace of the pair had been found at 8 a.m. and officers called for a plane to fly the canyon to see if they could be spotted. Officers said no search was made Sunday night because of darkness.

Powell, who said "one of the young men's mother works for him, volunteered the plane. He was accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Kenneth Shew.

Mrs. Elmo Emix told officers the two planned to finish the trip during daylight hours and wore shorts, no coats and took no food. Sheriff's officers said the trip by river would involve about 12 to 14 miles and it was obvious they would not have completed the length by dark Sunday. Some portage was necessary.

At 10:30 a.m. Monday, Sheriff Paul Corder and members of the Emix and Thompson families went to the rim of the canyon to show the two where they could find a trail out just east of the Hansen bridge.

Stream study part of Forest Service project

By PEGGY CHU
Times-News Correspondent

HAILEY — An example of how extensive the comprehensive study of the White Cloud - Boulder - Pioneer Mountains study will be when completed is provided in one portion of the inventory phase — stream analysis.

Robert Caskey, Forest Service limnologist, is one of many specialists working in the first phase or inventory phase of the long range study of the rugged mountain regions.

L. Clair Baldwin, U.S.F.S., Hailey, said the first or inventory phase of the long range study is now nearing completion. An interim report covering field work on this phase during the 1970 summer season has been compiled and available for review.

It will be augmented by field work now being done and including the study of stream life, water quality and other factors under the direction of Caskey.

When all of phase one is completed, phase two, the last half of the study undertaken in 1970, or the decision making phase will be undertaken, based on inventory material from the first phase, Baldwin said.

Caskey said the study of aquatic life of the streams is one of the best indicators of pollution content and overall quality of the water. Plans are to use such data as a control standard to indicate and evaluate future changes in the stream and as a comparison with other streams.

This requires monthly collection of insects from the test streams. These collections are studied for types of species and their relative abundance.

According to Caskey, Trail Creek, one of the study streams, shows clean water because types of insects present but the quality of the stream has deteriorated due to man's activities, shown by a decrease in abundance of the insects.

Special samplers which are placed in the stream at intervals provide a place for colonizing of insects which are then removed and studied by the limnologist. Collections and status of the insects over a period of time provides basic information for the report.

Based on the study, Caskey said, the Forest Service will know what sort of manipulation the stream can stand.

Baldwin said one of the first steps in making the study was an aerial inspection to predetermine the sites to be studied. Physical characteristics such as bottom composition, temperature, stream bank structure and flow are studied. Chemical composition including phosphorus, oxygen content and other factors are analyzed.

Plunkett passes Pats to upset over Raiders

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI)—Rookie quarterback Jim Plunkett fired a pair of touchdown passes in his first regular pro start Sunday to give the underdog New England Patriots a stunning 20-6 victory over the Oakland Raiders.

A crowd of 65,405 gave the Patriots a minute-long standing ovation as New England ran out the clock. The crowd counted down the final seconds and attempted unsuccessfully to rush the field as the game ended.

Plunkett, Heisman Trophy winner and first draft choice from Stanford hit ends Ron Sellers for 33 yards and Roland Moss for 20 in third quarter touchdowns and Charlie Gogolak booted 46 and 22-yard field goals in the fourth period for the victory.

The Patriots, two touchdown underdogs, trailed 6-0 at the half on Pete Banaszak's four-yard scoring run but went ahead on Gogolak's conversion after the Plunkett-Sellers scoring connection with 5:22 left in the third period.

The Plunkett-Moss touchdown play came less than three minutes later to cap a 70-yard drive in which Plunkett hit on three of four passing attempts for, oddly, a total of 71 yards.

The Patriots, who now have an all-time edge of 9-8-1 over Raider teams, accounted for only 24 yards offensively in the first half but rallied around Plunkett's passing in the third period to whip the favored Raiders.

Two fumbles by each team choked off both offenses in the first half though the Raiders were able to muster a 60-yard drive with Banaszak scoring with only 58-seconds left in the half.

George Blanda, who has kicked 190 consecutive conversions never got a chance at 191 when the conversion snap bounced away from him.

A pair of 12-yard pass completions by Daryl Lamonica helped set the touchdown play with Banaszak catching the second pass at the four and sweeping in the next play.

Fumble recoveries by Boston's Ed Philpott and Tom Neville spoiled other Oakland bids, and Blanda missed on a field goal attempt from the 21 with five seconds remaining.

The Patriots were trailing by 1 point when Boston got possession at mid-field in the third quarter when Mike Eischeid fumbled a bad snap on a punt.

It took Plunkett only three plays for the touchdown as he passed to Sellers for Eischeid, Bob Gladiue ran for nine and Plunkett found Sellers for the score.

Chargers' last-period rally nets 21-14 upset of Chiefs

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Mike Garrett dashed 26 yards over the middle with 5:20 left to give the San Diego Chargers a come-from-behind 21-14 win over the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday in the National Football League opener for both clubs.

74 as they dominated the first half.

A pass interception and 31-yard return to San Diego's 31 by Emmitt Thomas set up the Chiefs' first score at 8:29 of the first quarter.

Five running plays were all that were needed as Warren McVea cut off left tackle for the final six yards.

Kansas City's second TD, a one-yard plunge by Ed Podolak, came at 14:10 in the second quarter and was set up by a 44-yard pass from Len Dawson to Otis Taylor.

San Diego narrowed it to 14-7 when Hadl hit rookie running back Montgomery with 4:54 left in the third period. The pass capped a five-play, 81-yard march which included a 26-yard pass from Montgomery to Billy Parks.

Hadl, who passed for only 53 yards in the first half, finished with 18 completions in 37 attempts for 270 yards. Dawson passed for 115 yards in the first half but was held to 37 in the second.

Giants nip Packers in offensive duel

GREEN BAY (UPI)—Fran Tarkenton fired four touchdown passes—three to Dick Houston—Sunday as the New York Giants took advantage of Green Bay errors to upset the Packers 42-40 in the National Football Conference opener for both teams.

The Giants, winless in the preseason, converted two Green Bay fumbles directly into touchdowns, used two more to set up touchdowns and came through with a clutch interception by Jim Files in the closing seconds to preserve the victory on a rain-soaked field.

Green Bay Packer Coach Dan

Devine, starting his pro career, was one of the casualties of the game suffering an apparent broken leg in the fourth quarter after an interception runback that ended in front of the Packer bench.

Devine was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital in Green Bay and his condition was not immediately available.

The Giants, trailing 7-0 at the end of the first quarter, scored twice in the first six minutes of the second period on passes from Tarkenton to Houston and added two more touchdowns on fumble recoveries within a six-second span in the closing seconds of the half to take the lead they never gave up.

Ralph Heck recovered the first fumble, one by Dave Hampton, and on the ensuing kickoff Hampton fumbled again in the end zone and Joe Green recovered.

The Packers' first touchdown came when Ken Ellis returned a field goal attempt 100 yards to tie an NFL record. Green Bay concluded the scoring with a safety when a center went over punter Tom Blanchard's head into the end zone.

Rookie quarterback Scott Hunter and veteran runner Donny Anderson led the Green Bay comeback. Hunter came off the bench in the second half to throw touchdown passes to Carroll Dale and Rich McGeorge and Anderson gained 99 yards rushing, including a 19 yard touchdown run early in the fourth quarter.

Tarkenton, who hit on 13 of 21 passes for 236 yards threw his third touchdown pass to Houston which covered 81 yards in the third quarter.

Cleveland shuts out Oilers 31-0

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Quarterback Bill Nelsen hit on 17 of 31 passes for 250 yards and one touchdown and Leroy Kelly punched over for two more Sunday to lead the Cleveland Browns to a 31-0 victory over the Houston Oilers.

Nelsen, who did not play in four of the five Cleveland exhibition losses, moved the Browns 68 yards in 10 plays for a first period score and sparked a 14-play, 80-yard drive that put the Browns ahead 14-0 in the second quarter.

Nelsen, who connected on seven of 10 passes for 101 yards in the first quarter, hit Milt Morin with two passes covering 43 yards on the first TD drive. A 28-yarder to Morin took the ball to the Houston four-yard line and three plays later Kelly leaped into the end zone for the one with 9:27 left in the period.

After Kelly fumbled a Don Pastorino punt and Tom Funchess of Houston recovered on the Cleveland 37, the Browns defense held and Braden Beck missed a 37-yard field goal attempt.

Nelsen took charge again to move the Browns 80 yards with a 21-yard pass to Fair Hooker, moving the ball to the Houston five-yard line. An offense penalty, put the ball on the two and Kelly swept in to score with 13:27 left in the half.

Bengals coast past Eagles

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Virgil Carter riddled the Philadelphia Eagles with three touchdown passes, including the longest pass play in Cincinnati history, as the Bengals breezed to a 37-14 victory in their National Football League opener Sunday.

The Cincinnati quarterback hit 22 of 30 passes for 273 yards, including the team record-90-yard play to Speedy Thomas in the third period.

Carter's other scoring strikes went to Erik Crabtree for two yards to break a scoreless tie in the second period and to fullback Jess Phillips for seven yards during a 17-point Cincinnati spurge in the third quarter.

Bears hit late, tip Steelers

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Bears took advantage of two fumble recoveries Sunday to score 14 points in the last four minutes and three seconds—the clincher coming with just 44 seconds remaining on the clock—to shock the Pittsburgh Steelers 17-15.

The end came when second string quarterback Kent Nix hit George Farmer from eight yards out as the clock ticked off the last seconds.

The Steelers seemed well on their way to a 15-3 humiliation of the turgid Bears when Warren Bankston fumbled on his 30-yard line and Bear linebacker Ross Brubacher scooped it up and took it all the way in with only seconds more than four minutes to go in the game.

The Bears still looked like sure losers until with 2 minutes and 14 seconds left Dick Butkus slammed the hapless Bankston again and Ed O'Bradovich returned the loose ball one yard to the Steeler 18.

Dallas nips Buffs' plan for upset upset-minded Buffalo Bills despite four touchdown passes by Dennis Shaw.

Dallas grabbed a 35-30 lead on Craig Morton's 19-yard scoring pass to Reggie Rucker on the last play of the third quarter and Hill took over in the final period.

The former Yale running back gave the Cowboys a 42-30 advantage with 8:46 left, busting over the middle of the Buffalo Line to cap an 80-yard drive that took 10 plays.

Hill, the NFL's rookie-of-the-year two years ago, was a benchwarmer last second when Duane Thomas led the Cowboys to the Super Bowl. But Hill got his job back this year when Thomas walked out.

The Bills, a two-touchdown underdog, played the Cowboys on even terms in a wild game for over three quarters and the Cowboys didn't wrap it up until Lee Roy Jordan set up the final Dallas score by intercepting a Shaw pass at the Cowboys' 43. Hill then made it 49-30 with a one-yard TD with 2:08 left.

Lee Roy Jordan set up the final Dallas score by intercepting a Dennis Shaw pass at the Cowboys' 43. Hill again broke through the middle of the line from the one with 2:08 left in the game.

Hill led all rushers with 84 yards on 22 carries and four touchdowns.

Ike Hill closed out the scoring for Buffalo on a 26-yard touchdown pass from Shaw with 28 seconds left in the game. It was Shaw's fourth touchdown pass of the game, tying a club record that was set by Johnny Green in 1960.

The Bills, trailing 28-24 at the half, took a 30-21 lead after 5:01 of the third quarter on Shaw's 23-yard toss to Marlin Briscoe. Gant Guthrie missed the extra point when the snap from center was high.

Solon owner's choice easy—sell, transfer or bankruptcy

By MILTON RICHMAN UPI Sports Writer NEW YORK (UPI)—Bob Short, the financially strapped owner of the wallowing Washington Senators, has little choice anymore.

He has even less time. "Unless I sell or move," he says, "I'm bankrupt. Wiped out. It's as simple as that."

The American League is alarmed not so much by Bob Short's plight as by the plight of the Senators. The degree of alarm among the other AL owners is in direct proportion to how much the Washington crisis affects them and since they necessarily must all be affected financially, logistically and perhaps even legally in the end, they're now in a state of what can only be described as mild panic.

A meeting is being held in Boston tomorrow at which the owners will listen further to Short's problems.

There is a report kicking around Short already has the nine votes necessary to move his franchise. Nothing could be further from the truth. Some of the AL owners I have talked to still aren't sure how they are going to vote.

"How can anybody say I have this or that amount of votes when I'm not even sure that I'll ask to move Tuesday?" Short said.

The owners are bound to hear what they already know—that Bob Short, having tried for three years, can no longer operate in the city of Washington.

The owners will go over all the figures again.

They will take note of how Short paid $9.5 million for the Senators in 1968, out-bidding a group headed by comedian Bob Hope, and how he has either lost the $3 million he says he has in that time or how maybe his arithmetic is faulty.

One set of figures cannot be disputed. The attendance figures. The Senators, with Ted Williams as their new manager, drew 918,106 in 1969, Short's first year of operation. They slipped to 824,789 last year. This year they figure to wind up somewhere below 700,000 even with Denny McLain and that brief bow Curt Flood took before retiring to sunny Majorca.

From the first moment he bought the Senators Bob Short always said he wanted to keep them in Washington. Some of those who kept shooting arrows at him merely laughed and said white man speaks with forked tongue but I never really found Short to be that way. There were those who believed he wanted to move the Senators from the very start but I think his actions belied that. He went to considerable trouble and expense trying to create an image in Washington for a man supposedly bent on transferring the franchise elsewhere.

He kept seeking three things. A suitable TV-radio package, which he never got; local bank financing in Washington, which he couldn't get either, and a Kennedy Stadium lease he could afford. The last time I heard he hadn't gotten that either.

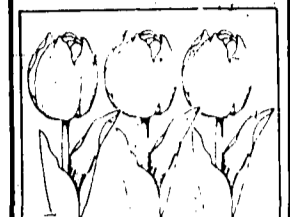

Now as I understand it, Dallas-Fort Worth interests have offered Short a way out.

Primarily, he would get a TV-radio package that for all practical purposes would help him repay the loan he received to buy the Senators and he'd also get the kind of lease he could live with; meaning one where he'd begin paying after his club drew one million people.

Moreover, Turnpike Stadium in Arlington, Tex., would be remodeled to accommodate 35,000 by next season if the Senators were to move and then if the interest in the club so indicated, the park eventually would be abandoned and a brand new one built.

"Right now," says a friend of Short, "he's a guy in hell with an opportunity to go to heaven."

Plant now, Pluck later.

Plant your sturdy Holland bulbs now and gather armloads of beautiful flowers in spring. Sure to bloom. Priced to please.

Brodie, who completed 17 out of 34 passes for the afternoon, threw for 22 yards to Kwialick and 14 to Gene Washington to move the ball to the Atlanta 33-yard line and a penalty got them to the 28, within easy field goal range.

But Brodie threw one incompleteness and on the next play was trapped by Zook and the comeback was over.

Atlanta took a 3-0 lead in the first period on a 23-yard field goal by Bill Bell, but San Francisco moved ahead midway through the second period on a 25-yard touchdown run by Jimmy Thomas. Berry's first touchdown pass to Burrow gave Atlanta a 10-7 halftime lead.

Brodie, who completed 16 out of 21 passes, put the Falcons ahead at 10-7 with 2:01 left to play in the first half when he threw a 10-yard strike to Burrow, from San Diego State, and moved them to 20-7 when he found Burrow open in the end zone for a 35-yard pass with 2:45 left in the third period.

Heart patient very good

DETROIT (UPI) — Haskell Shanks, the 63-year-old plant guard who would have died if a partial-mechanical heart had not been attached to his own failing heart six weeks ago, told newsmen Saturday he felt "very good, very good."

And then he asked the newsmen how they felt. The occasion was Shanks' first meeting with the press since undergoing the operation Aug. 11.

It also marked his departure from Sinai Hospital where Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz and a surgical-engineering team attached the device, dubbed a "patch booster," to Shanks' main heart artery to aid his heart in pumping blood.

Shanks walked only a few steps from his wheelchair to his car. His wife and several nurses were at his side as he waved.

Even those few short steps would have left him bedridden for hours a few months ago, doctors said. Now he will walk the equivalent of one black each day as his strength returns.

The decision to implant the mechanical device was made after all standard medical therapy failed to improve Shanks' condition—congestive heart failure—and it was decided that none of the currently available surgical procedures could provide any help, Kantrowitz said.

"We were concerned that he had not long to live," the physician said. At an earlier news conference, Kantrowitz said Shanks would surely have died if the device were not attached to his heart.

News service to meet over ouster in Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—Interior Minister Jose Toha Saturday scheduled a meeting at an unspecified date next week with William H. McCall, United Press International vice president and general manager for South America, to discuss the government's decision to close UPI in Chile.

The meeting originally was set for Friday, but Toha postponed it until next week. In the meantime, UPI continued normal operations in Chile.

President Salvador Allende announced Wednesday night, before a televised rally of workers supporting his "popular unity" coalition government, that UPI would be closed down.

Toha said the government decision was based upon UPI's "participation in a campaign which compromises the security of the Chilean government."

He cited a dispatch picked up from a Bogota newspaper reporting that a missing Chilean police plane, which had accompanied Allende on an official visit to Colombia, carried arms and propaganda.

The newspaper, El Tiempo, later apologized to Allende in a cable for "the erroneous information."

Toha said, however, that other UPI cables from abroad formed part of the campaign, including one from Washington reporting a consignment of U.S. small arms ammunition to the Chilean interior ministry. Although the bullets were destined to the national investigative police, Toha said, the UPI dispatch referred to a "special vigilance group."

This was generally interpreted in Chile as a reference to Allende's personal security force.

The Santiago regional collegium of journalists, a professional association, was to meet Monday to study the situation.

Another group, the Christian Democrat Journalists Federation, said in a declaration:

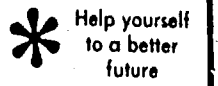

"The UPI case implants the necessity of seeking an immediate definition, in the national and international terrain, of this government's concept of freedom of information. Beyond sentimental reactions that some dispatches have provoked, the president of Chile cannot refuse to recognize that our state subscribes to the declaration of the United Nations, and that he has sworn to respect the constitution and the laws."

The Chilean government's decision regarding UPI sparked continued editorial comment throughout South America.

The editor-in-chief of another Colombian newspaper, El Espacio of Bogota, noted in a signed commentary that other news agencies besides UPI also had carried the report published in El Tiempo about the Chilean police plane.

"Thus, there was favoritism against the UPI," wrote Augusto Calderon in reference to the Chilean action. "This is the path of Marxism. History repeats itself and that of Cuba is being repeated in Chile."

"The 'freeze' saved me money on my new car."

"Not only that ... I got one of those low cost auto loans at Idaho First."

● There's no question that this is the moment to buy a new car. Upon action of the Congress, every U.S. model will enjoy a substantial price cut due to the proposed elimination of the 7% excise tax on American made autos. Government officials have stated that the consumer will realize an average savings of $200 per car as a result. Some firms have already announced the price cut.

- So, now is the time to buy!
- Buy while the cost is kept down. Buy while money is available. Buy on a low cost bank auto loan — either through your dealer or direct from Idaho First.
- Then pocket the savings.

partner figure out just how many aces we hold. In general if we make the cheapest bid at our disposal we show exactly two aces if we make a higher bid we show three or four.

Jim: "Today's hand shows how easily this method works against moderate interference. West's jump to six clubs puts some pressure on North but his hand is quite sound. He holds two aces and he is willing to show them in spite of being forced to do so at the six level. The defense takes one club trick and South takes the next 12."

Oswald: "East and West could have gone on to seven clubs. If they did this North, South, Blackwood, DOPI and JACOBY MODERN could do no better than double and pick up 900 points."

TODAY'S QUESTION

You had four diamonds. Your partner bids four no-trump. You had five hearts to show two aces and he bids six diamonds. What do you do now?

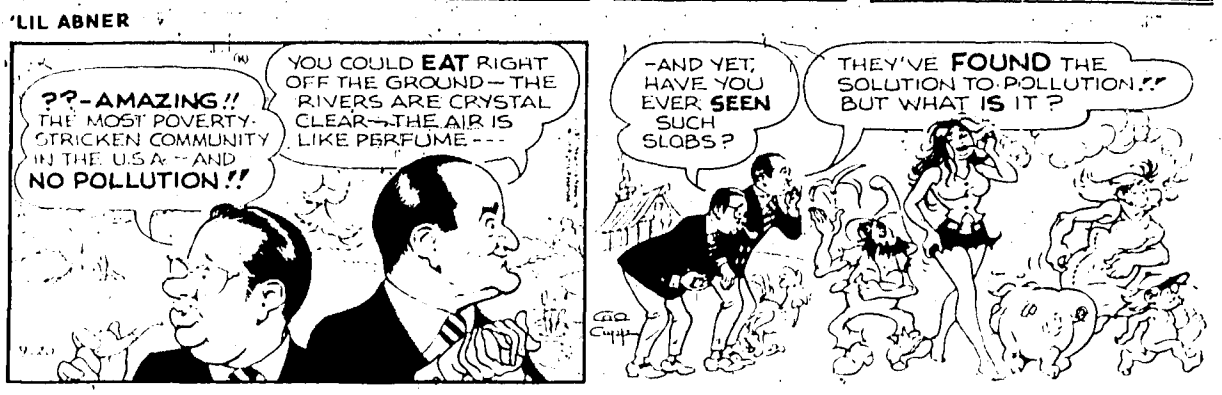

Answer: Tomorrow

By Oswald & James Jacoby

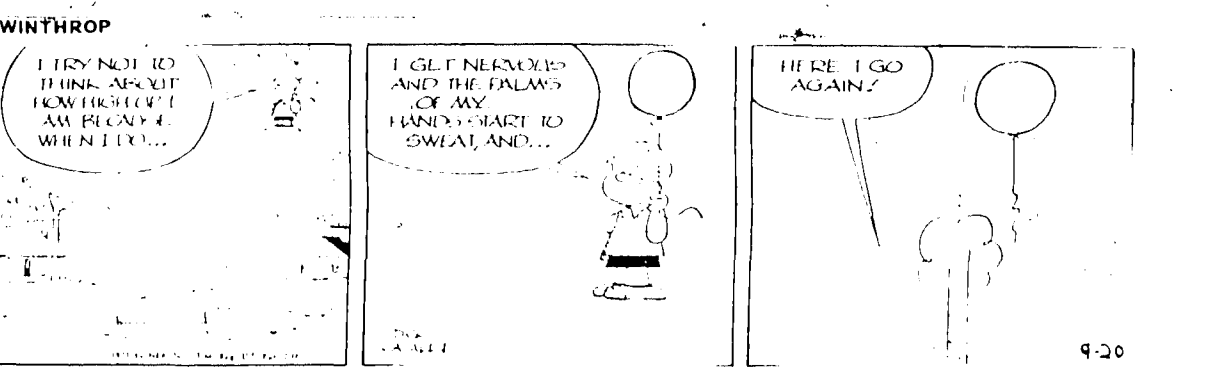

Oswald: "It doesn't happen often, but occasionally an opponent will interfere with your Blackwood sequence by bidding over four no-trump. Sometimes this bid will really upset your apple cart. Other times it should not be of much annoyance provided you know how to handle the situation."

Jim: "In JACOBY MODERN we use the simplest defense against jamming bids. We double to show no aces and pass to show one ace. This isn't a patented Jacoby defense. It's called DOPI, which stands for double shows zero—pass shows one."

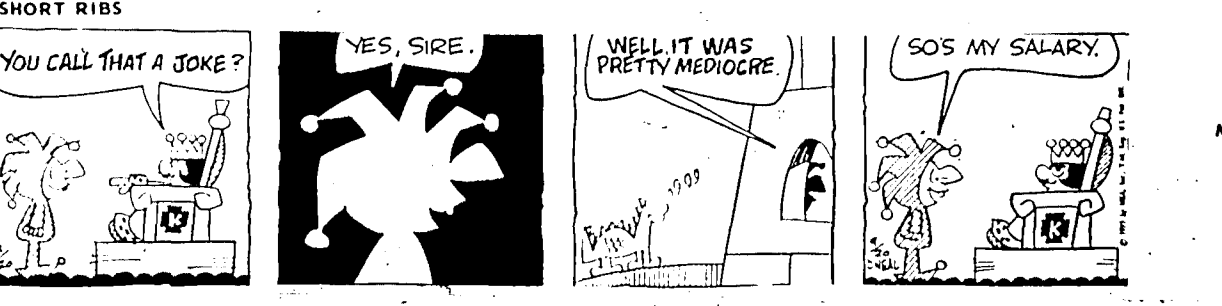

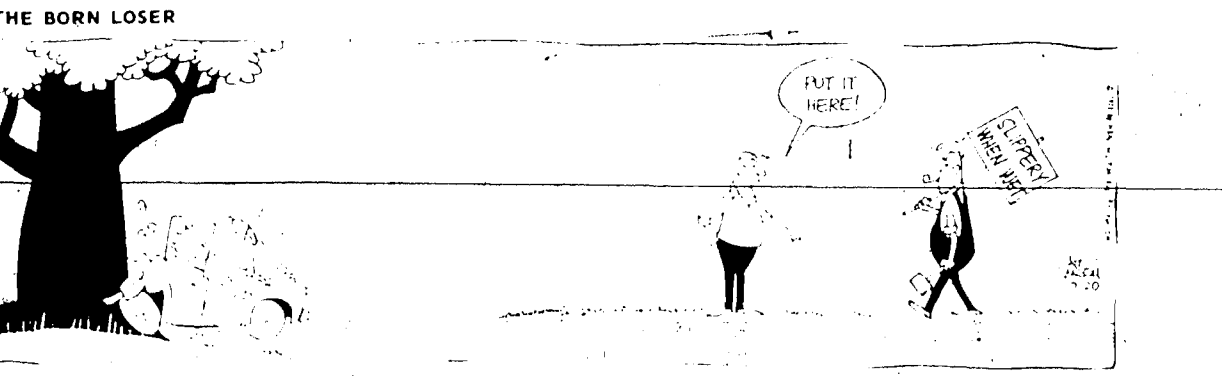

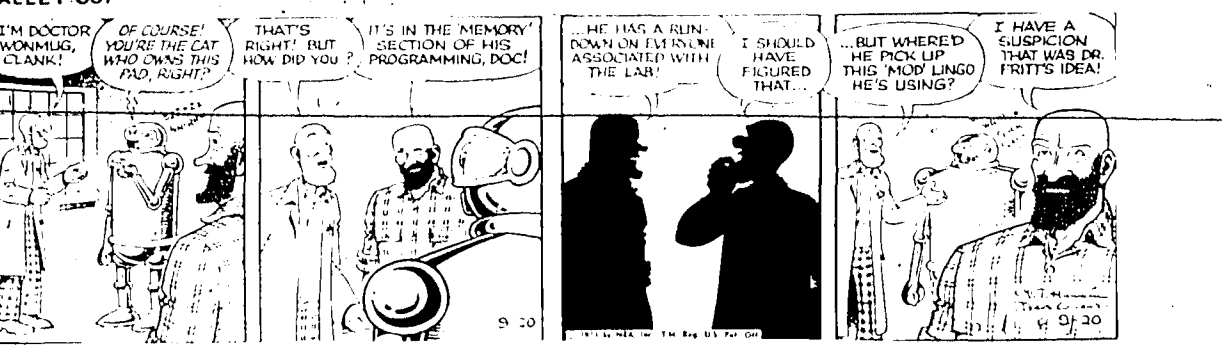

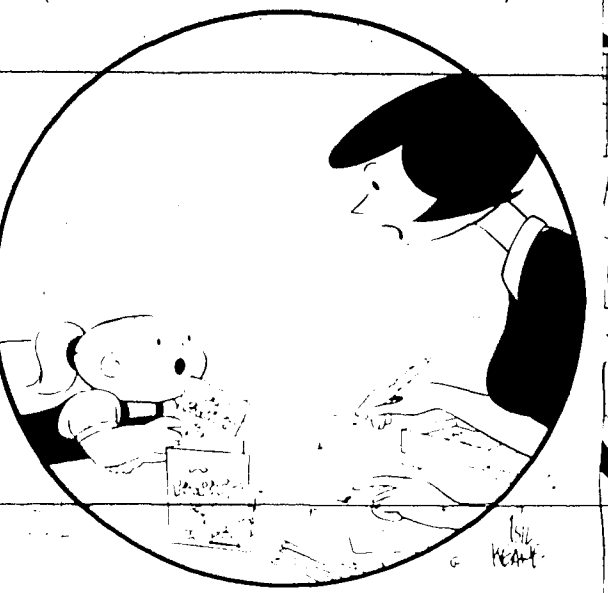

Oswald: "With two or more aces we bid and let out."

YOU CAN FIGURE a baseball catcher in an ordinary game has to bend his knees up and down maybe 150 times. Try that, sir... "WHEN a customer can no longer pronounce the word 'criticism,'" writes a San Diego bartender, "I stop serving him."... IF YOUR NOSE measures exactly one-third the length of your face, you're aesthetically perfect, you beauty. A sculptor told me that... SAY YOU had 48 wives, mister. And you wanted to buy them a present. What would it be? The Sultan of Java was confronted with this peculiar problem. In 1915, it was. So he wrote to the Parker Amusement Co., a maker of carousels in Leavenworth, Kans. For $16,000, that firm shipped him a 48-horse merry-go-round. Understand he liked to put a wife on each horse, then rev up the machinery, faster and faster, while sitting thereby, slapping his knee occasionally and tossing little pebbles at selected ladies as they whizzed past.

BIGGEST watermelon ever grown anywhere weighed 195 pounds. O.D. Middlebrooks of Patmos, Ark., showed off that one. In 1935. Arkansas watermelons are the best, always knew that... THE AGRICULTURE BOYS claim a savvy fish farmer can turn out a ton of fancy fillets in the same amount of space a rancher needs to produce 80 pounds of beef.

LOT OF GROWNUPS just can't stand milk. Maybe you knew that. It makes them sick. Among whites, about 15 out of every 100 are said to be so allergic. That's nothing. Among Negroes, as many as 80 out of every 100 can't physically tolerate milk. The science boys recently reported that Double-checked their figures. It's the official claim, all right Milk likewise makes numerous Orientals ill.

BYU prexy holds lines

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Dallin H. Oaks, the new president of Brigham Young University, says he will follow in the footsteps of his predecessor in maintaining the strict conduct, dress and academic standards of the Mormon school.

"The general objectives of Brigham Young University are fixed and will remain the same," Oaks said Friday.

"They are to teach the fundamentals of spiritual and secular knowledge and bring them into harmony for a full life of service to God and our fellow man."

Oaks vowed "to continue the kind of remarkable growth BYU has experienced in the last two decades," under the direction of Ernest L. Wilkinson, who stepped down last month to direct establishment of a law school on the Provo campus.

Oaks denied reports that the dress code had been relaxed for students and said student government leaders were picking code violators out of registration lines Friday and counseling them about the regulations, which now allow pantsuits for girls on campus.

"This is not a relaxation," he said. "I don't see it that way and I don't believe that the students do."

The 39-year-old former University of Chicago law professor spoke to reporters Friday for the first time since he took office Aug. 1.

He said he hoped the calm that prevailed at BYU athletic events last year would continue in 1971. In past years demonstrations have been mounted against the school to protest allegedly racist policies of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The church has consistently denied the charges. "I'm optimistic and hopeful but a bit too early to say any more," he said.

Oaks said BYU, the largest private university in the nation, will be limited in the future to a 24,000 student population.

He said methods of better utilizing campus facilities, such as three-year degree programs and early entrance into graduate school, are being studied.

"We are also studying the problem of mix — should the school be mostly upper division or lower division; should we strengthen or pare back the graduate school," he said.

The performance of students as members of university committees at BYU has shown that the college has a responsible student body which should keep its constructive voice," Oaks said.

"Experience has shown the wisdom of students on committees and I don't anticipate backing away from that policy," he said.

"We should encourage and cooperate student activity within the limits of preserving the aloofness that a university should maintain," Oaks said of off-campus politics.

"Political figures have appeared here on campus and I see that continuing," he said. But he called the action of some colleges last year in giving students time off to work for political candidates a mistake.

Oaks termed the tranquility of the campus, which has never tests, "a function of the unity of students and faculty — a unity that is the product of common goals and a shared sense of direction.

"I see that as continuing," he said.

He said he would try to meet with students often to learn their views on campus life.

Hickel to fete Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will be guest of honor at a reception in the home of former Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel in Anchorage, Alaska, Sept. 28. It will be the first meeting between the two since Hickel was fired from the cabinet.

The White House announced Friday that Hickel, who this month published a book sharply critical of the President, would be official host of the reception prior to Nixon's meeting with Japanese Emperor Hirohito.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Hickel, a former governor of Alaska, offered to hold the reception to give Nixon a chance to meet Alaska civic leaders. Ziegler said the invitation was extended prior to publication of the book, "Who Owns America."

Demo 'sons' New College curriculum no longer 'favorite' reflects student pleas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic party is turning thumbs down on the favorite son candidate for president.

When the Democrats meet in Miami Beach next July and the nominations are made for president, the list, under a new convention rule, will not include the traditional favorite son.

The reform rule is designed to end, at least for the Democratic party, the phony role of the favorite son in American politics.

Few (except favorite sons) will regret its passing. Most people think of the favorite son as the opportunist politician who seizes the chance to get undeserved exposure at his party's national convention — glorifying in the brief time it takes to place his name in nomination, and then having it withdrawn.

He's all that, that isn't necessarily all. Not infrequently, the favorite son candidacy is used as a gimmick for political intrigue, for wheeling and dealing, and for keeping the people of the "son's" state from expressing any real preference for presidential nominee.

The ham is the deadliest of the lot. The boredom he generates can be fatal to a national political convention, driving delegates from the hall and broadcast viewers to distraction.

The fence sitter is the politician — usually the governor of a state — who wants to stall to find out how the political winds blow.

The stalking horse is almost as phony as the ham. Everyone knows who he's for and that at the right moment, upon request, he will announce it, releasing his delegation.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Say what you will about college student demands for "relevance" and "involvement," school curriculum changes this fall reflect these demands, reports a major higher education organization.

Environmental studies are expanding at a rapid rate, and an increasing number of universities offer degrees in the various environmental sciences," said the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges.

The association surveyed its 117-member schools and also found:

— "More universities are inaugurating or expanding ethnic programs, which particular emphasis on Afro-American Indian studies." — "New colleges are being set up within a number of universities and new graduate and undergraduate degrees are widening the choices of students' majors at many institutions."

— "There are substantial changes at some of the medical schools, including those which are shortening their programs by a year."

Nixon administration spokesmen have long been telling colleges to examine themselves more closely before asking for more federal dollars. "They (colleges) have not always responded to the clear need of any viable institution for constant self-examination and self-renewal," said presidential counselor Robert H. Finch.

Fat safer?

Medics question new slimming intestine removal operation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two scientific liver experts, Drs. Hans Popper and Fenton Schaffner, believe that as of now it may be healthier to be fat than have recourse to the surgery which slenderizes by deactivating a considerable section of the intestinal tract.

Dr. Erik Juhl and three colleagues of a prestigious Copenhagen hospital were urging doctors not to abandon the operation which is the last resort of the grotesquely obese after dieting and efforts to control their appetites with drugs have failed.

It was first performed in 1963 for weight reduction and quickly came into worldwide use. But last year it came under widespread scientific attack on the basis of limited evidence that it resulted in a malnutrition which could result in life-threatening liver damage.

The Danish scientists objected to this evidence on the grounds of insufficiency. Their studies of their eight patients were thorough, including liver biopsies during and 10 and 27 months after the surgery, and periodic biochemical tests over that period of time.

Fatty infiltration of the liver increased in three patients but it decreased in two and remained "entirely normal" in the others, they reported to the

New England Journal of Medicine. Biochemical tests for one liver function showed "a transient deterioration after surgery but later improved."

Other liver functions "remained within normal limits." The journal obtained editorial comment from Popper and Schaffner. They agreed with the Danes that the really long bypass, from the second section of the small intestine, the jejunum, to the colon, should never be used. The side effects are too frequent and too severe.

The bypass the Danes defended is from the jejunum to the final section of the small intestine, the ileum. The American experts accepted it but only "because excessive obesity remains an almost impossible therapeutic challenge and bypass procedures are probably here to stay."

It reduces weight by preventing the digestive absorption of much of the food intake.

"Patients with intestinal bypass have a voracious appetite," Popper and Schaffner said. This results in chemical build-ups affecting the liver. Until more patients have been tested for longer periods than the Danes tested theirs, it may be healthier for the fat to stay fat, they said.
