Dismissal asked in land transfer

BOISE UPI - The attorney general's office asked U. S. District Court Wednesday on three grounds to dismiss a suit testing the legality of the transfer of lands to the control of the state parks board. The suit, originally filed in August, alleged transfer of an estimated $20 million in public school lands to the control of the State Park Board violated both the Land Admissions Act and the State Constitution. The plaintiffs had notice of the alleged violations of statutory and constitutional provisions and that the delays of 14- and six years over the specific lands "works to the extreme prejudice of the defendants."

Defense wins major round in court martial

FT. MEADE, Md. (UPI) - The defense won a major round in Col. Oran K. Henderson's court-martial Wednesday when the judge barred a key prosecution witness from identifying Henderson in court as the officer to whom he complained of atrocities at My Lai. The judge, Col. Peter S. Wondolowski, upheld a defense objection to such testimony before the seven-member jury by Lawrence W. Colburn, who was an enlisted helicopter crewman during the March 10, 1968, assault on My Lai. Wondolowski ruled that Colburn's identification of Henderson in open court would be "tainted." During pretrial hearings, he said, Colburn was shown an identified picture of Henderson but did not recognize him, whereas he later identified the colonel in person. Since previous witnesses who told of relating the shooting of civilians to their superiors were unable to identify Henderson, Colburn has emerged as a pivotal witness in the government's effort to convict Henderson of failing to investigate the massacre and report it to higher authorities. The judge's ruling was not an unqualified victory for the defense, however. At the same time, he overruled defense objections to the admission in evidence of Army regulations regarding treatment of non-combatants. At an evidentiary hearing in the absence of the jury, Maj. Carroll J. Techenor, chief Army prosecutor, told Wondolowski that the regulations would indicate that Henderson intended "from the very time that it happened" to cover up the My Lai massacre. Wondolowski promised a decision Thursday on what portions of the transcript of Henderson's testimony before the 1969-70 peers investigation of My Lai can be submitted to the jury. The judge indicated he would order admission of all 406 pages of the official Pentagon inquiry's transcript, with special instructions to the jury not to take as fact the statements made in lengthy questions put to Henderson at the inquiry. The prosecution, nearing completion of its case, is trying to show that Henderson received full information on civilian deaths at the hamlet but did not follow his superiors' orders to investigate and submit a report.

Features listed on tax bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Key features of the House approved tax bill: Individually the $650 personal exemption would rise to $675 effective this year, and to $750 next year. A taxpayer deducts the exemption for himself and each dependent. The standard deduction for those not itemizing would go up from 13 per cent of taxable income (with a maximum of $1,500 this year to 15 per cent (with a $2,000 maximum) in 1972.) The low-income allowance would go from $1,000 to $1,300 in 1972. This is the amount of income not subject to taxes, taken in lieu of the standard deduction. Combined with a $750 personal exemption, this means a single person could earn $2,050 before being subject to taxes next year. A married couple with two children could earn $4,300 in tax-free income. Excise Taxes: The 7 per cent auto excise tax would be repealed retroactive to sales after Aug. 15. This would reduce the average price of a car at retail by an average of about $200. The 10 per cent tax on trucks under 10,000 pounds would be repealed retroactive to last Sept. 22.

New Robin Hood caught in barn

HASSELT, Belgium (UPI) - A modern-day Robin Hood, who stole a priceless 17th century masterpiece to help East Pakistani refugees was caught Wednesday hiding in a stable and the painting recovered from under his mattress in the hotel where he worked, police sources said. The thief, identified by police sources as Mario Roolmans, 21, was caught after a car chase by the owner of a service station from where he called the Belgian radio to press his charity ransom demand of $4 million for Bengali refugees. The painting, "The Love Letter" by Dutch master Johannes Vermeer, was stolen from the Brussels Fine Arts Palace Sept. 24. It was insured for $5 million. The thief had demanded a ransom pledge be signed in a live television broadcast before midnight Wednesday. As the deadline approached, Annie Mommen, wife of the service station owner, overheard the thief telephoning the Belgian radio to press his demand. "As the man rode away on his motorcycle, I telephoned the police and my husband gave chase in his car," Mrs. Mommen said. "When the thief saw he was being followed he jumped off his motorcycle and ran across a field towards a farm," she said. Police who arrived at the farm a few minutes later found him hiding in the stable. The Vermeer was found by police inside a pillow case hidden under the mattress of Roolmans' bed at the Soelway hotel, Bolderberg, where Roolmans worked as a waiter, Mark Durwael, 18, son of the hotel owner said. "Roolmans had a passion for Pakistan," Durwael said. "Everytime the work slacked off he began talking about the sad plight of the Bangali refugees. He was neat, court-

FB opposes area port

The text of the Farm Bureau statement follows:

"The regional airport would be somewhat more convenient for those who live north of the river or north of Twin Falls but less convenient for those living south of Twin Falls. This would also hold for many industries using air freight, including the Kellwood plant, fish hatcheries, and auto parts concerns.

"It is only 17 minutes drive from the intersection of Highway 63 and Interstate 80 to the present airport.

"Instrument landing facilities and a control tower system which are to be installed will enable the Twin Falls City-County airport to land any plane now coming into the state on regular flights. Installation of these improvements are now scheduled.

"If additional land is needed at the present airport — it can be purchased for peanuts compared to the cost of leveling the proposed site of the regional airport.

"Section 21-803 Idaho Code provides that the interim board shall exercise all powers and duties of the permanent board of trustees. The interim board could possibly be changed by the governor but the elected board cannot.

"Section 21-804 delegates authority to the regional airport committee to determine location of the site. At this time the location is not firmly set as was pointed out at the Jerome Chamber of Commerce meeting on Sept. 29. Should the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) fail to approve the proposed site the committee would then choose another one. It should also be pointed out that Twin Falls county has only two members on the board. This board also has power to establish the degree of financial participation for each county. In addition to the tax base, the board is to consider benefits each county would receive, the population of each county and the distance from the airport. (See Section 21-804 Idaho Code).

"Section 21-807 and 21-810 grant almost unlimited powers to the board of trustees and so far as we can determine they are accountable to no one. However, they must keep accurate records and maintain bond for any one who handles money.

"In sharp contrast to the powers delegated to the regional airport board, the Twin Falls City-County airport Board must have the approval of the county and city commissions for all expenditures.

"Section 21-807 lists 14 subheadings which set forth the powers of the regional airport board. Every voter should read this entire section. It was published in the Times-News on Sunday, Sept. 26 on Page 5.

"What will it cost? Estimates range from $6.5 million to $12 million or more. At the South Idaho Chamber of Commerce banquet on April 29, Nell Weir (an alternate board member) set the estimate at $8 million.

"Final costs have a way of running much higher than the original estimates. The Grand Coulee project overran the original estimate by about 1,200 per cent.

"We wish to highly commend the Twin Falls County Commissioners for the forthright way they have presented the facts to the people.

"We believe that a 1966 estimate increased by only 15 per cent is not realistic. Since their standards have been greatly upgraded, inflation is rampant and probably will continue. Also, it will probably be five years before work could begin on the airport. In view of these conditions the commissioner's $12 million estimate may be too low.

"Furthermore should three contiguous counties vote in favor of the proposal and all other counties vote against it, these three counties, with the approval of the board, would then be required to bear the entire cost assigned to the local communities.

"We would suggest other points to ponder: (1) Taxes will be levied to cover the county's share of a new bridge needed across the Snake River. (2) The superintendent of School District 411 in Twin Falls has given notice of the need for one or two new schools. (3) Section 21-807, sub-heading eight, authorizes the airport board to let industry as well as other enterprises build by the airport. In this case where will any taxes levied on these enterprises go?

"In consideration of these facts, the Twin Falls Farm Bureau feels that a regional airport at this time is very impractical and certainly not in the best interest of the City of Twin Falls and Twin Falls County."

Running again

Paulsen opens bid for office

TWIN FALLS — With $40 in the treasury and a new slogan at hand, the 1972 Pat-Paulsen-for-President race is on.

Paulsen's slogan for '72, he said Wednesday on arriving in Twin Falls, is "In Unity There is Strength, or Let's Get Together and Do Pushups."

His running mate, he told the Times-News, will "probably be Wally Cox," the comedian.

Paulsen arrived at the Twin Falls City-County Airport via Hughes Airwest jet Wednesday afternoon, to be greeted by a crowd of fans and newsmen. He commented, when asked about President Nixon's wage-price freeze, that "I've been so busy traveling around the country that I didn't realize that was an issue.

"But then," he added, "I had the same problem in '68. I was unaware of the war." Paulsen was a nationally touted Presidential contender during the 1968 campaign, running on a slogan of "We can't stand pat."

Paulsen told newsmen that "I'm so happy to be here in ... what city did you say this is?"

These are my kind of people; my roots have always been in the soil of the people."

He told an audience of about 1,500 composed largely of College of Southern Idaho students Wednesday evening at the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium, that he will campaign for abolition of the federal income tax, substituting a more popular and enjoyable tax on sex.

"You pay as you play," he said. "People will be proud to pay the tax and would be ashamed to ask for a refund."

School signup planned

TWIN FALLS — County Clerk Harold Lancaster said today the state-wide high school voter registration program announced by state officials will begin next week in Twin Falls County.

He said he plans to send county registration officials to high schools in the county next week in order to give young voters an opportunity to register for the Oct. 20 state and regional airport authority election.

Secretary of State Pete Conrussa and State Supt. of Schools D. F. Engelking announced a state wide high school registration program for the first week in October. Lancaster said this would put it after the special election.

By moving the program up in the county, it will be possible to register young voters and give the county time to get their registrations to the precinct registrars before Oct. 20.

Registration by county officials will be conducted during school hours at the high school for all qualified students. Conrussa and Engelking said the registration is aimed at obtaining young voters prior to the Aug. 8, 1972 primary.

The qualifications for voting in Idaho include: (1) United States citizenship, (2) residence in the state for six months and in the county 30 days prior to the day of election; (3) minimum age of 18 years; (4) registration within the time period provided by law — no registration may take place with the precinct registrar within 10 days of the election nor with the county clerk within two days of the election.

Lancaster said the registration program of the county registrars and the county officials who will be going to the schools will not mean the young voters are registered for the Nov. 2 city elections in their respective towns as city elections require separate registration records.

Hansen says Sawtooth measure over hurdle

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, said today he feels approval by a House subcommittee of a Sawtooth National Recreation Area clears the major hurdle for that designation of the scenic mountain area.

Hansen said he has a great deal of optimism now for final approval of a Sawtooth National Recreation Area designation for the mountains of south central Idaho. He said he believes approval of the full committee and of the House will be forthcoming. It has twice passed the Senate, he said, but failed to gain committee approval in the House.

The national parks subcommittee approved the proposed bill, sponsored by Congressman Hansen from the Second District and James McClure, First District. Idaho Senators Frank Church, Democrat, and Len B. Jordan, Republican, are sponsoring a similar legislation in the Senate.

"This favorable action from the subcommittee means we might well sign the legislation into law yet this year," Hansen said. Hansen, like McClure, said he is not totally satisfied with the bill as it passed the subcommittee, but said he is satisfied it is a reasonable compromise which maintains the high priority objectives of the original bill.

Major changes in the original bill as a result of subcommittee action, he said, include eliminating from the proposed wilderness area the five year mining moratorium which had been proposed for the entire area. The wilderness designated area was removed from the mining moratorium, he said, but the subcommittee quite obviously felt the wilderness designation would preclude the moratorium.

County election plans approved

TWIN FALLS — Plans for the Oct. 20 election in Twin Falls County are legal and proper in the opinion of John Croner, assistant Idaho attorney general.

Leon Smith, Twin Falls County attorney, said Wednesday Croner informed him he had reached that decision after studying legal aspects of holding the retail wine sale election and the regional airport authority vote at the same time.

Croner told Smith he believes the county is proceeding properly. The two elections will be combined Oct. 20 with two questions on the voting machine ballot. Since residents need not register for the airport authority election, but must register for the wine sale, machines have been specially prepared. Voters calling at the polls and not on the registration books may go to the voting machine and an election official will turn a lever locking out the wine ballot.

County Clerk Harold Lancaster said it will be a simple matter and should not result in any confusion at the polls. He said those voting in the airport election will sign voters' oaths stating they are qualified electors of the county.

Schools disagree on holiday

TWIN FALLS — While the federal government says next Monday is a holiday — Columbus Day under the new Federal holiday-on-Monday setup — public school people do not agree.

The same situation applies two weeks later, when, according to the unusual scheduling which crams two "holidays" into one month, the old-time Veterans Day moves into the fourth Monday in October.

Magic Valley schools, which are closing this week for the annual teachers' institutes, will reopen on schedule Monday for a full week of classwork.

The College of Southern Idaho, on the other hand, goes along with the idea of vacations, closing down next Monday and Monday-two-weeks for the federal holidays.

City and county offices are also closing Monday, though businessmen will generally keep their stores open.

End lease, Eskimos ask

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Eskimos living on Alaska's oil-rich northern slope have asked a federal judge to revoke the state's $912 million lease of lands to pipeline developers and order the lease revenue be turned over to them.

In a U.S. District Court suit filed Tuesday, the Eskimos said they had traditionally occupied the area, and said it was illegally made available to Alaska when it was granted statehood in 1964.

Charles Edwardson Jr., executive director of the Arctic Slope Native Association of Barrow, Alaska, and others filed the suit in behalf of 5,000 Eskimos.

The suit seeks to invalidate the leases, to enjoin the Interior Department from making any more north slope lands available to the state, and to require Alaska to turn over to the Eskimos the full $912 million paid to the state for leased north slope lands.

The suit charges that Stewart L. Udall, then interior secretary, acted illegally in making the land available to Alaska because he went beyond his lawful authority and violated his duty as trustee and guardian of the Eskimos.

Under the Statehood Act, Alaska was offered 103 million acres of "vacant, unappropriated and unreserved land" in the north slope area between the Brooks Range and the Arctic Ocean.

The Eskimos claim to have traditionally occupied 5.5 million acres of this territory, of which the state has leased 413,000 acres.

The leases were bought by an oil consortium called Aleyska Pipeline Co., which proposes to build an 80-mile trans-Alaska pipeline from Prudhoe Bay on the north to Valdez, an ice-free port on the Gulf of Alaska, on the south.

Development of the pipeline has been stalled for more than a year and in April, 1970, sixty-six Indians won a Court Order preventing the proposed pipeline and a parallel road from being run across their property.

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton told a news conference Monday that no decision on final authorization of the pipeline would be forthcoming until some time next year and even then "a decision may be up to the court."

Plight noted

SHIELDING EYES from television lights, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of House Judiciary Committee, tells news conference in Washington, D. C., Wednesday that Atty. Gen. John Mitchell sent him a letter stating Mitchell has decided to use his parole authority to allow Soviet Jews to emigrate to United States. Celler said decision makes it clear to Soviet Union that U. S. has "taken official note of the desperate plight of Jews in Russia." (UPI)

Improved postal service 'demanded'

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—Postmaster General Winton M. Blount is taking a stern attitude about seeking improved service from the nation's postmasters. "I am demanding it," Blount told the 68th annual convention of the National League of Postmasters of the United States Wednesday. "There must be an improvement in lobby service to customers as well. We are demanding it." At the same time he told the 1,000 delegates to the convention that he would try to get them a pay raise if they give their best service.

Davis-Magee link revealed

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (UPI)—The evidence against Angela Davis includes a letter written to her by co-defendant Russell Magee a month before the Marin County Courthouse shoot-out that left four men dead.

The existence of the letter, mailed to Miss Davis through an intermediary, was revealed as the prosecution Wednesday outlined its evidence during protrial proceedings in Miss Davis' murder, kidnaping and conspiracy case.

Miss Davis, 27, avowed Communist and former UCLA philosophy instructor, and Magee, 32, a San Quentin convict, are charged in the Aug. 7, 1970, kidnap and escape attempt that ended in a parking lot gun battle. Four men, including a judge, were killed.

The letter from Magee, the only survivor among the escapers, was included on an FBI inventory of items seized three weeks after the shoot-out at Miss Davis' Los Angeles apartment. The defense has moved to have the evidence suppressed on grounds the apartment search was illegal.

The contents of a letter, which was mailed inside an envelope addressed to one of Magee's attorneys, were not revealed.

Prosecutor Albert W. Harris Jr., a deputy state attorney general, said in court that the case against Miss Davis includes evidence taken from her purse when she was arrested. He did not indicate what the evidence was.

But to show it was legally obtained, Harris called an FBI agent to the stand to testify about her arrest at a New York motel room.

Lawrence J. Monroe, a special agent from the FBI's New York office, said she was arrested Oct. 13, 1970, in a motel room with David Polz-dexter of Chicago.

identified Miss Davis' picture as that of the woman with Polz-dexter when he came to a garage to have auto air conditioner repaired.

Reds ignore Mansfield trip bid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says he tried twice to visit Communist China between 1969 and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger's secret visit last summer.

Mansfield said Wednesday the Chinese turned down his first request and did not respond to the second made last March, only four months before Kissinger's visit.

Mansfield said President Nixon had encouraged him both times to make the trip, if possible.

Senate OK's arms procurement bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate approved a $21 billion weapons procurement bill Wednesday that set limitations on the war in Indochina, authorized production of the first new Navy fighter in 16 years, and sowed the seeds for a new generation of bombers, submarines and tanks.

The measure was returned to the House for a showdown, probably next week, on the Senate's amendment calling for total U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam by the spring.

The House refused 219 to 176 to accept that proposal June 28 after the Senate included it in the military-draft bill.

The result was a long and bitter stalemate that could be repeated when the weapons bill goes to a Senate-House negotiating conference.

The Senate's military procurement authorization, covering the fiscal year that ends June 30, was $1.2 billion less than the administration asked. But that reduction was expected to make little dent in the $7.7 billion defense budget, which congress is already exceeding as a result of massive military pay increases.

All major efforts to cut the measure below the $21 billion recommended by the Senate Armed Services Committee failed, including an effort to scrap the F14 Navy fighter. The bill authorizes $801.6 million for the first 48

Consumer proposal cleared

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Rules Committee unanimously approved legislation Wednesday to create a new federal agency to protect consumers.

But proponents of a tougher bill promised a floor fight next week in an effort to bring the measure closer in line with a bill the Rules Committee killed last year.

The bill would establish a Consumer Protection Agency (CPA) which would represent consumer cases before federal agencies and the courts. It would also develop for Congress and the executive branch proposals to benefit consumers.

The bill was written by the House Government Operations Committee, but was sent to the Rules Committee to be cleared for floor debate.

Ralph Nader and many Democrats on the Government Operations Committee argue that the bill has been diluted by restrictions placed on what type of hearings and cases the CPA would be permitted to enter.

Mind Your Money

By PETER WEAVER
 Q—A local dentist made some new dentures and charged me $300. I have worn dentures for 40 years and have never had trouble before. The new set hurts my mouth and changes my appearance. My family calls me Bugs Bunny.

A—After a year of torture, I asked for my money back so I could buy a new set. I was refused. I finally bought a new set for half the price and they fit fine. Do I have any recourse?—Mrs. J.J.H., Mercoville, Ill.

Q—The American Dental Assn. says go back and try to work out a settlement with your dentist. If that fails, then file a written complaint before the grievance committee of your local dental association.

The local association (or society as they're sometimes called) will investigate your case and probably check the old dentures in your mouth to see if they were poorly made.

Some state associations or societies are tougher than others. It's possible that your dentist might be pressured into giving you some money back. However, the ADA says you've made one serious mistake. You've vented far too many complaints. You should have asked your dentist to fix the dentures right away. Then, if he didn't comply, you should have immediately filed your complaint with the local association.

If you have trouble locating the local dental association or need more advice on your case, you can write: American Dental Assn., 211 E. Chicago Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Q—A friend sells powdered protein and claims it's marvelous for one's health. The price is $8 a pound which seems high. Can powdered protein be purchased for a better price?—Mrs. C.R.C., Fairmont, Minn.

A—The Food and Drug Administration says sodium caseinate, a top protein source (one of the elements of milk), can be bought for around 90 cents a pound at most drugstores. You can also get protein powders made from soy beans. Look for them in the infant-care or baby-food department of major drugstores. The price is even less than sodium caseinate.

Q—I had my watch checked for radioactivity and was told it was fairly radioactive. Is there a radiation danger if I sleep with it on?—W.P., Washington, D.C.

A—According to the Environmental Protection Agency, there isn't too much danger. But a lot depends on how much radiation the watch gives off and whether you sleep (as some of us do) with your wrist pressed against your face.

There is no prohibition of the use of radium in watches and clocks. Some radioactivity will be present if radium is used to illuminate the dial numbers. A radium substitute, tridium, used by some manufacturers has no radioactivity. For the next watch, you might specify tridium for the dial. Meanwhile, if you're worried about radioactivity, take your watch off at night.

Q—Two years ago we bought $700 worth of "slush" shag carpeting for our living room. The surface flattened out miserably. We bought a $12 "shag rake" and broke it trying to get the pile to fluff up. A new vacuum cleaner with an upright canister has no permanent effect. What action can we take?—Mr. and Mrs. E.S.J., Springfield, Va.

A—Not much chance now. Carpet experts tell me that shag rugs are tricky items to buy. Because the face yarns are widely spaced, there is little support to the pile. Over a period of time, the shag will mat down and become entangled.

Mrs. Lyons is named TOPS queen

HANSEN — Mrs. Reed Lyons was honored as the quarterly queen at the Slim and Trin TOPS Club meeting, Monday night at the home of Mrs. Thomas Steelsmith. Queens were Mrs. Paul Bowman, division one; Mrs. Lyons, division two; with Mrs. Ann Admire a close runner-up. Mrs. Marle Presnell, who was not present, was division three queen. Mrs. Bryson Vinyard was division four queen, with Mrs. George Goley as runner-up. There were no division five winners. To be eligible the queens must have lost five or more pounds in a quarter.

Mrs. Lyons and Mrs. Steelsmith tied for monthly queen honors and Mrs. Marjorie Lake was best loser for the week. All queens received gifts. Two KOPS, Mrs. Fred Howard and Mrs. Dapson, also received gifts for maintaining their weights.

Mrs. Paul Will and Terry Christensen were welcomed as new members.

A letter from Leha Bohm was read. She is on an Idaho Travelers Tour to the Southern States.

In the Slimmer Silhouettes contest, both teams were rewarded by removing a silhouette from their card.

Penalty march was given, and members who were gainers last week reported on their penalties and read the newly drawn penalties for this week. If penalties are not completed, the member will be fined.

The group decided that an exchange bulletin board for members to use would be advantageous. Members may ask for certain items or have certain items they wish to exchange for something else.

It also was decided to have secret pals and telephone pals for the ensuing contest.

Mrs. James Wright was the program chairman and hostess and conducted the quarterly honors.

Social held at Rupert

RUPERT — A social was held prior to the business meeting Monday by the Ladies Auxiliary Patriarchs Millant, Rupert No. 10 and Canton, in the Rupert IOOF Hall.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eastman, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Bowman, Mrs. Goldie Ridgeway, Mrs. Irene Childers and Mrs. Tempa Ellenwood, all members of Colfax No. 13, Twin Falls.

During the business session the auxiliary voted to donate $15 toward the Junior past president's travel fund.

Mrs. Edith Cleveneger reported on the Sovereign Grand Lodge session she attended in Vancouver, B. C., Canada. The Theta Rho Girls, Rupert, traveled by bus to Vancouver to present a drill for the session.

William Boyd, Twin Falls, received the Grand Decoration of Chivalry and also was installed chaplain of the Sovereign Grand Lodge. A drill team from North Dakota assisted in putting on the Pence Garden Drill.

Mrs. Alice Bowman, one of the chairmen of the United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth, expressed thanks to the Burley women for entertaining the Washington, Oregon and Idaho bus load of young people at luncheon in July in Burley. There were 13 young people on the bus from Idaho this year. John Rogers, Boise, won first place in the speaking contest in New York City, and the other three honors went to Idaho and Oregon. Mrs. Cleveneger reported.

Mrs. Esther Arbogast gave the opening and closing thoughts.

Gayle Kirkpatrick's school girl dress for fall comes in brown or gray and is made of a light knit that looks like flannel. The white collar and cuffs make the skirtwaister "school girl." This one is in Kirkpatrick's collection for Bymini.

MARY ALICE COOK

"Magic with a Pattern" is the theme for a special feature in which several members from throughout the valley will take the same basic dress pattern and design, make and model their own creations.

The Kimberly Kitchen Band will provide special music for the program.

By United Press International — For satisfactory cleaning, detergents should wet the surface to be cleaned, wet the soil to be removed, emulsify the oily soil, remove the soil, keep the soil suspended. That is the report from the College of Human Ecology at Cornell University.

Reservations must be made by Monday. Numbers to call are 733-9017 or 734-2106 in Twin Falls; 543-4062 in Buhl; 324-5855 in Jerome; 326-5053 in Piler; 536-5951 in Wendell; 537-6819 in Castleford; 934-4896 in Gooding, and 788-4190 in Bellevue, Halley or Ketchum. A hobo party, with Mr. and Mrs. Boyd in charge, was held after the business meeting. Prizes for the best hobo costumes went to Mrs. Frank Eastman and Kenneth Dameron.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Laverne Rudolph and Mrs. Goldie Ridgeway.

In his fall collection for Suzy Perlette, Victor Costa extends and widens the shoulder without involving padding or a hard mannish cut.

Collegians create "fashion vacuum"

NEW YORK (UPI) — There is grim news from the National Association of Men's Sportswear Buyers (NAMSIB). The mood in the colleges of the nation has created a fashion vacuum on the campuses. The blippies and hard times have won out.

The NAMSIB surveyed the fashion picture at the leading colleges and universities throughout the United States and came up with the dismal conclusion that campuses will be a vast sea of blue jeans — patched, frayed, embroidered and cut-off blue jeans.

The only ray of light is the report that chinos, or slacks as the army used to call them, are on the upswing — an occasional sparkle of buff among the washed out blues. But that is merely part of a swing toward Army-Navy clothes and not much help.

The Ivy League look as it used to be called died in the recent fashion revolution and the slope-shouldered, three-button jacket is almost a thing of the past. The suits and sports jackets being worn are strictly for special occasions.

Although blue jeans dominate, the NAMSIB survey of 15 colleges found a few other types of pants being worn — brushed denim, solids other than blue; some khakis, fatigues, engineer stripes and overalls; a few dress jeans in such patterned fabrics — as Jacquards; a very few knits and cut off pants on campuses where the weather is warm.

The individuality comes from the tops, which vary everywhere from T-shirts, mostly in solid colors, and often with college identification crests. Another exception to the otherwise dull color spectrum are bright colored dress shirts — stripes, tapestry stripes, florals and other multicolors.

Also being worn are rib knits with skinny ribs the favorite and with a trend to long sleeves. The move is largely to functionalism and chambray and denim workshirts are popular since these fit in with the down-and-out look reflecting the students' depressed economic position. For real hard times looks the students wear wellworn solid colored button-downs with the tails hanging out.

The NAMSIB report, in its publication Direction, attributes a lot of this to the fact summer jobs were scarce and pocket money for non-working students is even scarcer.

Wool sewing prize is European tour

TWIN FALLS — It is not too late for someone wanting to see Europe to enter the Make It Yourself With Wool competition and compete for this top award, according to Mrs. Allen Osborne, Twin Falls, district 3 director.

Mrs. Osborne said other top awards include scholarships, government bonds, sewing machines and merchandise.

Trips to Europe are granted to both the national junior and national senior division winners, Mrs. Osborne said.

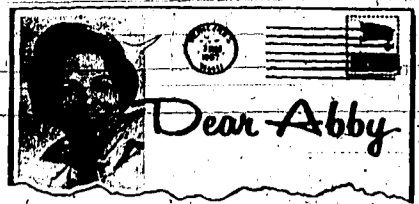

The teenage contest is for girls who are adept with sewing machine or needle. For the first time in the history of the contest hand-knit and hand-crocheted garments of 100 per cent American wool yarn will be admitted in the same categories as hand-sewn American wool fashions.

Judging on different levels of the contest — district, state and national — is based on the girl's skill in sewing or knitting with 100 per cent wool loomed, knitted, felted or spun in America; in making garments properly coordinated in color, design and texture for her figure and coloring; and in selecting fashions suitable for her age and activities. Modeling also is judged.

Information and entry blanks can be obtained from Mrs. Osborne at 1446 Wilmore St., Twin Falls, or from home economics departments or fabric shops.

The program is jointly sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary to the National Wool Growers Association and the American Sheep Producers Council, with national headquarters in Denver.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old unmarried woman. I am not a virgin, but I have never been promiscuous. I recently became acquainted with a very attractive eligible man, and was thrilled when he asked me out. This man had "class." He was good-looking, charming, well-mannered, intelligent and financially secure.

On our very first date he said, "I don't like to play games. If we like each other, I'll expect you to play house with me, so don't waste a lot of time with that hard-to-get routine."

I told him I thought he was crude. He said he was just being "honest" and I should appreciate being told from the start what he expected.

I told him I thought he was "too honest" for me. Needless to say I never heard from him again.

I think I could have really cared for this man if he hadn't been so blunt. Was I wrong to have sent him on his way?

HAVE MY PRIDE

DEAR HAVE: No. And don't be surprised if you hear from him again. No man with "class" likes a pushover.

DEAR ABBY: Here's my story: I was a young divorcee with three children, ages 4, 6 and 7. I married a widower with two children, then 7 and 8 years old.

Now, seven years later, my husband tells me he has drawn up his will, leaving everything to me and HIS children. When I asked him what would happen to MY children if I were to die first, he replied, "I've done enough for YOUR children already."

Abby, I feel that I have done enough for HIS children already, too. I have also done enough for him because when I married him he had nothing and now he has a big business.

My ex-husband has never contributed anything to the support of my children, and he never will.

This has been bothering me to the point of where I am afraid to travel for fear something will happen to me, and my children will be left unprovided for.

I would sure like help on this matter, but I can't go to any lawyer in this town as my husband is very well-known. I don't want to embarrass him, and I don't want the whole town to know my business.

PLAIN WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: You need to be advised of your children's rights. If indeed they have any. And if they don't, you'd better find out now. Go to a lawyer and tell him your problem. Lawyers respect confidence; so don't worry about "embarrassing" your husband or being talked about.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old girl with a problem I hope you won't think is too minor to bother with. I'm fairly good-looking, have lots of friends, and don't have any trouble attracting a guy's attention and getting him to like me. My problem is that as soon as I get a guy to really like me, I don't want him anymore. By that time, he's already asked me to go steady, and I've said okay because I just hate to hurt his feelings. But I end up hurting his feelings anyway because I have to break up with him.

It's so after a guy and don't get him, it just kills me to see him with another girl, even tho I know if I did get him I'd end up hating him, too.

What is the matter with me?

NEVER SATISFIED

DEAR NEVER: Face it. You enjoy the chase more than the prize. Some people never outgrow it, but I hope you do, because there is little happiness for those who want only the unattainable.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "THE FRUSTRATED WIFE OF MR. FIVE BY FIVE": From your letter, I would say that you have done everything a loving wife can possibly do. And don't worry about his ruining the furniture. You'll be able to buy new furniture from the money you'll collect from his life insurance.

A Lovellier You

A COAT OR A COCOON?

By Mary Sue Miller

A winter coat sometimes reminds one of a cocoon. It so engulfs the wearer she seems sewn into it for the duration. Too, too bad. A winter coat goes in and out with you, making the first and last impression.

Certainly it should be warm. But should it not also be handsome of itself and handsome on you? Coats ticketed for success pass this four-point test:

Has the coat a reasonably long fashion life? It does if the cut, cloth and color are on the up-trend. At present the wrapped and tied coat with a big collar and, possibly, dolman sleeves is highly favored. Princess silhouettes win attention for a close fit at the top and a gradual fall to a much widened hemline. Then there's a skinny coat, close to the body with lines unbroken all the way. An opposing candidate has a double-breasted closing, snug waist and flaring skirt.

Materials have a classic feeling—melton, tweed, flannel, shetland plaids. Colors run to deep purples, blues and greens; lively saffron and henna; bright pink and flame red; navy, gray, white and black.

Is the shape flattering? Wrapped-tied coats become almost everyone. When widely flared, a coat adds to girth and cuts height. Skinny styles and slim girls are go-togethers. Wishing to appear slimmer, be sure to choose conservative patterns and shades.

Does the coat suit your needs? It does not have to go over everything, but it should fill a purpose—city-country wear, for instance.

You cannot live without the coat? Then charge and send.

HIP REDUCING ROUTINES

You can diet until you become feather-light and still be hip-heavy. Reduction in the hipline is assured only by exercise. For a set of quick and effective ones, send for my leaflet, HIP REDUCING ROUTINES. Write Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and ten cents in coin.

Book Review Charter draped at Burley

BY ELAINE NESBITT
Twin Falls Public Library

TWIN FALLS — Those who believe that a devaluation of the dollar in terms of gold would have little effect upon us have been seriously misled, maintains financial analyst Harry Browne in his new book, In spite of the soothing—word of Keynesian economists, most people will suffer crippling losses—while others will enjoy great gains. Will you be one of those who come out smiling—or weeping? "How You Can Profit From the Coming Devaluation" by Browne may provide the answer.

Although devaluation is bound to come, Browne shows that other economic events may come first. What happens in case of continued inflation at the current rate? Runaway inflation? A short-term recession? A full scale depression? Harry Browne analyzes your investment program in light of each—but always in light of the devaluation that is now inevitable. Should you be in stocks and mutual funds? Commodities? What about real estate? Home ownership? Diamonds? Works of Art? Cash? Bonds? Treasury bills? Life insurance? Swiss francs and other foreign currencies? Gold—stocks? Coins? Silver bullion? Other, more sophisticated investments?

Browne doesn't leave you hanging. In the most important section of the book, he spells out several investment programs that cover every economic contingency. Whether you can write a check for $1000, or $1,000,000; whether your object is capital growth, income, safety or some combination of all three, Harry Browne shows you how to achieve them when devaluation strikes—and all the conventional rules bring you not prosperity but disaster.

It can happen here. But with this book, you're ready to profit from it.

WENDELL — R. D. Bradshaw, Wendell, will be honored on his 80th birthday Sunday with a family dinner at the Holiday Inn in Twin Falls.

Cocktails and dinner will be served at 1 p.m. to about 60 family members from Oregon, Washington, California, Colorado, New York, New Jersey and Idaho. Bradshaw, long time resident of Idaho who was in the honey business in Wendell for many years, has received a birthday card from President and Mrs. Richard Nixon.

Twin Falls' girls share dorm life

BOISE — Sandra Brehm and Karen Champlin, both of Twin Falls, are roommates in the new twin towers residence hall at Boise State College.

Sandra, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brehm, is a sophomore majoring in art, and Karen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Champlin, is a freshman business major.

Sandra's number one goal after graduation is to have a private art studio. Her favorite media is watercolor and she plans to do a lot of landscape paintings of the Boise parks.

She also enjoys doing abstract art in acrylics. "I don't paint to please others," she said, "I work for myself. It upsets me when people say they don't understand abstract art. They should enjoy it for the color and beauty and for what it means to them."

Karen has her eye on a career as a certified public accountant. She enjoys working with business machines and took several business classes in high school.

So far Karen hasn't been too far away from the BSC campus. "I haven't needed to leave the campus for anything," she said. "It's a society of its own, complete with shows, meals, and everything I might need."

Both girls are ski enthusiasts and are looking forward to winter and an opportunity to try the night skiing at Bogus Basin.

Sandra and Karen are enjoying the experience of meeting girls from all over the United States. According to Sandra, "we are getting to know a great many friendly people but yet we still have the excitement of living in a bigger city."

Train wreck kills 1 man

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — One man was killed and six derailed units and 24 cars derailed when a southbound Union Pacific freight train struck a semi-tractor trailer about nine miles north of here Wednesday.

The victim was identified as L. W. Bird, 62, Pocatello, a fireman riding in the first locomotive.

The truck driver, Terry H. Tucker, 23, Rexburg, driving for Walters Trucking, Newdale, was taken to LDS Hospital in Idaho Falls for surgery. He was listed in critical condition.

The collision separated the cab and trailer of the truck loaded with potatoes, threw bodies of cattle and sheep riding in the train over the area, and sounded, according to some witnesses, like an explosion.

The accident occurred on what is known as the "Montana spur" of the railroad at the grade intersection of the Osgood and West River Roads near the Bonneville and Jefferson County line. There are warning bells and flashing lights at the crossing.

Tucker apparently tried to apply his brakes as he approached the rails, but slid through the intersection. The impact separated the truck, throwing the cab into a borrow pit on the west side of the tracks.

The cab was ripped from the chassis and the door on the driver's side was torn off.

Tucker remained inside the cab for approximately a half hour until firemen and officials from Idaho Falls pulled him out.

K. L. Hansen, Pocatello, the train's conductor riding in the caboose at the time, said he ran forward after the crash and came upon Tucker.

Hansen quoted Tucker as saying he had oil on his brakes and "I just couldn't get my truck stopped. I hope nobody's hurt."

C. R. Rockwell, Salt Lake City, director of public relations for Union Pacific, said mobile cranes were ordered from Montana and Pocatello to lift the units and cars from the tracks. He said railroad crews would build a temporary track around the scene of the derailment to allow traffic through the area by night, but said it would take at least 24 hours to clear the wreckage.

An eyewitness, milk truck driver Grant Belnap, Idaho Falls, told officers he had just taken an exit off Interstate 15 when he looked down to his right and saw the truck and train.

He said as he watched he saw what he described as an "explosion" of dust. He said for a moment he could not see anything, then looked down the tracks toward the rear of the train and saw it was still moving.

He said he then saw the cars begin to pile up.

Belnap called to Mrs. James D. Anderson, who lives by the tracks and was awakened from her sleep by the sound of the collision. Mrs. Anderson notified police.

Reactor said due in region

SANDPOINT, Idaho (UPI) — William T. Norden, a Northwest power official, says he believes at least one of the two new liquid metal fast breeder reactors recently authorized by President Nixon will be built in the Northwest.

The liquid metal fast breeder reactor produces more fuel than it uses, while producing electricity at the same time. It would extend the use of fissionable material thousands of years.

Norden, a member of the Public Power Council executive committee and general manager of Northern Lights Inc., a locally-based electrical cooperative, said the power council has agreed to formulate the necessary agreements for the plant's operation and marketing power generated from the project.

Draft aid offered

MOSCOW (UPI) — University of Idaho students now have access to an official draft counseling service located on the campus, the university announced Wednesday.

The school said the new service, which received approval last week from the Associated Student Senate and the Governmental Operations Administration Committee, is presently being organized and should become operational later this week.

Former justice said exonerated

TWIN FALLS — James J. May, attorney for a former Twin Falls County official charged with misuse of public funds, said today all charges against his client had been dropped.

May said Karl R. (Jack) Lewis, former Justice of the Peace at Buhl, has been exonerated of all charges, following a cash settlement which compromised the charges.

The action took place Tuesday in Pocatello before Sixth Judicial District Judge Gus Carr Anderson.

"The court records in this case disclose," May said, "that the record keeping system used in the justice of the peace courts in Twin Falls County and in other counties in the State of Idaho has been conducive to human error and impossible for anyone to keep accurately. As in Jack Lewis' case, no training or instructions were given either by the county commissioners or anyone else and dependence for corrections of human errors was upon the annual audit. Twin Falls County revealed human error has existed in the Buhl Justice of the Peace accounts as well as the other Justice of the Peace accounts in the county," May said.

"In each case," May said, "the auditors called the error to the attention of the justice of the peace and he was given an opportunity to correct his errors."

One of the main reasons, May said, for court reform and the change to the magistrate system was to eliminate this problem.

"In Jack Lewis' case," he said, "he was not given the opportunity to correct these human errors, and for the first time in Twin Falls County, the commissioners filed criminal action instead of past established practices. His records were picked up and it was not until Tuesday that he was given the opportunity to make his final accounting to settle the disputed matters between himself and the county officials," May said.

"In arriving at the settlement Tuesday, the parties, in addition to matters referred to by Leon Smith, Twin Falls County prosecuting attorney, took into consideration, May said, the "huge expense to Mr. Lewis and to Twin Falls County and county officials. Already the county, he said, has had to pay for a preliminary hearing, a one-day trial in Emmett, a two-day trial in Pocatello, and the extra expense of a special prosecutor as well as a specially appointed attorney to defend the county and county officials in the civil action."

"If the case were not settled, the prospects were that a huge additional expense would have been incurred in completing what appeared to be a lengthy trial as well as another appeal to the Idaho Supreme Court," May said.

"Jack Lewis was fully prepared to continue his defense and felt certain of his ability to establish his innocence.

Richfield woman in council race

RICHFIELD — Mrs. Keth (Billie) Swainston is the first woman to be a candidate for the Richfield city council.

Mrs. Swainston said she decided to run for the seat after she had secured a petition for her husband who decided not to run.

She said she definitely is in favor of a sewer system for Richfield. Delay could be costly and have an adverse effect on the city, Mrs. Swainston said.

Other council candidates include incumbent John Lemmon, who has served six years on the city board, and Ronald Ralls, a Richfield businessman and rancher. The fourth candidate is Wendell King.

No date has been set for the October city meeting to discuss the proposed sewer system.

Buhl woman hurt in Filer collision

FILER — A Buhl woman was treated and released from Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Wednesday night following a two-car collision northeast of here.

Idaho State Police said Mrs. Marjorie Connell, 58, was injured when a car driven by her husband, Clifford J. Connell, 60, collided with another vehicle at an intersection on Pole Line Road.

Officers said the front of the Connell vehicle collided with the right rear of a car driven by Nita Rae Hopworth, 16, Elmore. Passengers in the Hopworth vehicle were Denise Kohntopp, 15, and Christy Hopworth, 15, both Filer.

Connell was issued a citation for failing to obey a stop sign after his vehicle skidded through the intersection and collided with the Hopworth auto.

Air pollution 215 index

The pollution reading was taken by the staff of the South Central Health District at the Logan Falls City Hall. The reading is expressed as the number of micrograms of particulate material per cubic meter of air in the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today.

Federal pollution control agency pollution levels should be kept below 75 micrograms per any 24-hour period and should not be permitted to rise above 200 micrograms for even a short period of time.

Forecast

Today: Good

Tonight: Poor

Tomorrow: Good

The forecast provided by the Idaho Department of Health indicates the ability of the atmosphere to disperse pollution. Burning at present level by law should be curtailed when the air is poorly able to disperse air pollutants.

Cassia trustees delay decision on bond vote

By DAVID ESPO Times-News Writer

BURLEY — Under pressure from 508 petitioners, Cassia County school trustees tabled decision Monday on the nature of the proposed school bond referendum.

The trustees will make a decision next week on the bond issue due to be put to public vote sometime this year.

The trustees postponed their decision in the wake of a movement by 508 county residents urging the construction of a rural high school. Trustee Norval Whitman said he felt the board should have more time to study the proposal and to consult with Trustee chairman Winslow Whiteley.

Whiteley underwent an operation Wednesday and was unable to attend the meeting.

John Adams, Oakley, spokesman for the group in favor of the rural high school presented school Superintendent Harold Blauer with the petition.

"It is our feeling that a new Central High School for 10th, 11th and 12th grade students of the Declo, Oakley, and Burley areas be constructed," the petition said.

Urging also that the high school be constructed in the location central to all of the communities, but not inside any of their city limits.

The signers said their proposal "more fully meets the educational requirements of Cassia County" than does the pending proposal.

Another bond issue, which the school board had previously discussed called for major improvements within the school system, including construction of a new elementary school in Declo. Other major requests included modernizing the high school in Oakley, construction of a new two-grade school in Burley, either for 6th and 7th or 8th and 9th grade students, and the addition at Raft river high school of two new classrooms.

The board heard a representative of the Salt Lake architectural firm of Richardson and Richardson present cost estimates on the version of the new school bond issue the trustees had been considering and in a surprise move, on the proposed rural high school as well.

The architect said that he was asked Monday to prepare the additional estimates by school superintendent Blauer "because of rumors of petitions in the community."

Presenting what he termed "optimum plans," the architect presented several estimates — a new Declo elementary school for 175 to 225 students, equipped with a music room and kitchen facilities and large enough to handle grades kindergarten through eight, would cost $715,000.

— three new classrooms at Raft River High School would cost approximately $90,000.

— remodeling and modernization of the Oakley High School would run to $80,000.

— a sixth and seventh grade facility in Burley would cost $1,075,000. Converted to a school for eight and ninth graders, the cost would jump to $1,555,000.

The total estimated cost of the school bond originally under consideration by the trustees would come to two and a half million dollars.

In addition, a plan for a three-grade, 1,100-student high school to be built south of Burley would cost an estimated $2,205,000 with an auditorium costing an extra $500,000.

Response to the original plan was mixed. One principal warned against placing junior high school students with elementary aged children in Declo. The move, he said, would seriously detract from teacher flexibility in the classroom.

Burley High School President Thomas Gruwell and Lovell Turner also voiced opposition to the original school bond issue, although both stopped short of endorsing the regional high school. Turner warned that unless something was done to "bring relief" to the junior high schools the city was in danger of losing accreditation for some of its classrooms.

Gruwell in referring to the original bond issue said, "This isn't the way to go, but then I'm high school oriented anyway."

Discussion of the proposals then followed among the principals, trustees and petitioners who had crowded the board room for the meeting.

In other business, the board gave Blauer permission to check the nature of bids submitted for a new staff and to purchase the lowest priced car.

It also granted permission to the Burley High School band to travel to the Calgary Stampede with the stipulation that band members raise the necessary $2,300.

RUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—U.S. District Judge John T. Curtin ruled today there was no cause to issue an injunction barring Allen Prison guards and officials from physically abusing inmates in the wake of last month's rioting.

In dismissing the class action brought by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) against prison officials, Curtin noted Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller already was taking steps to obtain federal monitoring of the prisoners are protected.

TWIN FALLS — A small fire in evergreens around a house at 405 Bracken St. N. was extinguished Wednesday evening by the Twin Falls Fire Department.

Capt. Ted Poulton said there was no structural damage to the home of Lee Boyle. Damage was confined to a tree. He said cause of the fire is not known.

TF school kindergarten survey form

Dear Parents:

The Twin Falls Board of Trustees has directed us to complete a survey of all the parents in our district concerning the distribution of kindergartens. One other survey was undertaken but was limited in scope so we ask your cooperation at this time.

This survey is concerning the type of kindergarten program that is now being offered through the State Department of Education with Federal Funds. It isn't a fully funded program and covers only the salary of the teacher.

The Board of Trustees feels that the people of this community are not aware of all the facts of this kindergarten program. There are additional costs other than the salaries involved. It is estimated the transportation, rent of a facility, aides, instructional materials and snacks would cost approximately $31,000 based on 120 students each session and two sessions a day.

Thank you for your cooperation.

School union efforts span 30 years

BY DAVID ESPO Times-News Writer

BURLEY — The 30-year off and on effort to consolidate high school education in Cassia County is on again, as a polite, determined confrontation Wednesday night between petitioning citizens and the school trustees indicates.

The confrontation was sparked, petitioners say, by the trustees' consideration of a new $2 to 2 1/2 million bond issue which would renovate the Oakley High School, add a multi-media center to the Raft River High School and construct a new elementary school in Declo and a new two year school in Burley.

The petitioners countered with their own proposal: They suggested building a new rural high school, located centrally for Burley, Declo and Oakley to serve all high school students but those from Raft River. In the place of building other new facilities, they would renovate existing structures to serve as junior high and elementary schools once the rural high school is built.

Consolidated education is not a new idea on Idaho. The Democratic administration of Gov. Chase Clark in the early 1940's studied the idea of combining all local school districts into one state wide board, but the idea never gained sufficient favor to become law.

An outgrowth of that determination, however, was the combination of then separate districts in Burley, Malta, Declo and Oakley into the present day School District 151.

Those who now ask the construction of one rural high school for students from Burley, Declo, and Oakley employ essentially the same arguments as were used in arguing for the jurisdictional consolidation thirty years ago. Economic necessities demand that the system be streamlined, they say, and with one high school it would be possible to offer a wider curriculum for the students at a lower unit cost.

"The members of the school board are successful businessmen," said one consolidation proponent this week, "and it's time they begin to run the school system like the business it is."

Those who disapprove of consolidation argue that the system works well enough as it is, and there is no good reason to deprive separate localities of their individual, if small, high schools. They also point to the anticipated necessity for increased busing for the students if they are all to be driven to a central location.

The specific idea of consolidating high school education in Cassia County was last proposed in earnest four and a half years ago. At that time a PTA-conducted study, concluded after individual inspection that the sites were ill-equipped to handle increased student load, poorly maintained and in need of thorough overhaul.

In the light of the PTA conclusions, the school board appointed a study group, which issued its own conclusions in April, 1967.

Essentially in agreement with most of the PTA conclusions, the newer study made several specific points:

— Declo High School should be closed, remodeled and reopened as an elementary education facility;

— Oakley High School should be closed and reopened as an elementary school;

— Raft River High School, with the addition of three new classrooms, should continue to serve its present function;

— a new Burley elementary school should be built;

— existing and retained school facilities should be increased to meet state codes;

— a new high school should be built south of Burley to house high schoolers from Burley, Declo and Oakley; or — A new junior high school should be built south of Burley, with the present high school retained to serve students from Declo, Oakley and Burley.

Of the recommendations presented to the trustees by the study group, none has been approved, although general recommendations have been voted down in bonding referenda by district voters.

A main conclusion of the study is that in only one or two cases does the school district own sufficient land to house school buildings as they are presently constituted.

Elementary schools must be built on plots of five acres plus one additional acre per 100 students. Junior high schools demand 20 acres plus one additional acre for each 100 students and high schools should rest on 30 acres plus one additional acre per 100 students.

Only in the cases of the Dvorshak Elementary School, built in 1941 and the Burley High School, finished in 1955, does the county conform to regulations.

On the heels of the school board-sponsored study, the Salt Lake City architectural firm of Richardson and Richardson presented proposals to the trustees in May, 1969. Agreeing with the recommendation of the earlier group that a rural high school was desirable, the architects provided basic population figures and cost estimates for a series of proposals similar to the earlier ones.

The most recent consolidation proposals were presented over two and a half years ago, with no action being taken since then. In that time, Cassia County voters have rejected two separate school bond issues, one to provide a plant facilities levy of 7.5 mills, with no fund allocation designated on the ballot and the other a three-year, 12.5 mill plant facilities levy.

The effort of the group at the trustees meeting Wednesday night was designed to bring to a vote the proposed consolidation issue. They argue that the voters have endorsed the idea, both in redistricting the school trustees seats and in rejecting 10 bonding proposals in the past dozen years.

Since 1959, of the 12 bond proposals voted upon, only two have been approved. The first, in 1959, approved the construction of a new elementary school in Burley. The second, in 1966, was a 10-year facilities levy. In the five years since then, however, and between 1959 and 1969, voters rejected several proposals.

Burley council OK's subdivision

BURLEY — Ralph A. Besel, an engineer for Zion Lutheran Church, discussed Monday night with the Burley City Council a housing project sponsored by the church on a parcel of ground now owned by the church.

The property has been divided into nine lots with a dwelling house planned on each lot. The church will finance the oiling of streets put in curbs and gutters. Besel was seeking approval of the subdivision and the city will put in sewer and water lines for the project. The council approved the subdivision at 26th and Miller Ave.

Lloyd Hess was granted a subdivision for commercial purposes, a small track of land between the Overland Shopping Center and Gem Memorial Gardens.

Left hand turns on Overland Avenue between the intersections into Idaho Bank and Trust, Safeways, Overland Shopping Center and several other locations the length of Overland Avenue were discussed. Overland Avenue is also State Highway 27, and at times during heavy traffic intervals left hand turns hold up traffic back thru the intersections at the traffic lights. The council will study the matter and take the problem up with the state engineers.

The Local Improvement District project in northeast Burley was reported complete. However, the last five blocks on which the oil mat was laid did not mix right, leaving the streets rough by break up. The council announced they would withhold $6,337 of the total due Gordon Paving Co., contractor for the project, until the situation is corrected to satisfaction of Burley city engineer.

It was suggested a one-inch overlay of oil mix could be put on when the weather conditions permit, and this could be next spring.

It was announced the traffic signal lights at 21st and Overland Avenue have been approved and will be installed when a state highway crew is free to install the lights.

Ken Barry, chief of police, reported that 91 dogs were picked up in September and 80 of the dogs were destroyed.

It was reported the city's garbage trucks are getting old and expensive to maintain. Mayor Garis Robertson reported that trucks could be obtained for the city on a lease basis, or garbage pickup could be put out of a contract to private parties. The matter was tabled for further study and investigation.

The council authorized Mayor Robertson and city clerk to add $45,000 to tax anticipation notes for current expenses.

License was granted to Pine Hotel.

Ray Kenney, Ontario, Ore., was granted a building permit for a Pizza Parlor at 425 Overland Ave, at a cost of about $45,000.

Several permits for new homes were granted.

Mayor Robertson reported all city departments are staying well within their respective budgets for the year.

Judges, clerks and constables were authorized for Nov. 2 city election.

Tour set on sites for center

RUPERT — The building committee for the proposed child development center for Minidoka and Cassia counties will tour possible sites 1:30 p.m. Friday in the two-county area.

They will be accompanied on the tour by some of the officials from the child development center in Twin Falls.

Committee members will present their report in a meeting with interested citizens 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 14, at the Civic Center in Rupert.

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—A bill passed by the Texas Legislature made Sept. 1, 1971 the first date that state agencies could officially recognize federal census figures.

Mining aide blames concern on environment for U.S. ills

BOISE (UPI)—The executive secretary of the Idaho Mining Association said Wednesday the nation's current economic difficulties can be traced in part to "excessive environmental concern" and demands for "instant remedies" to environmental problems.

A. J. Teske told the 20th annual conference of the Western States Association of Tax Administrators that while for too many years society has neglected the quality of its environment, there has now been an over-reaction which has been harmful to the economic well-being of the country.

"Our economy must provide the jobs and materials necessary to make quality environmental meaningful," he said. "Clean air and water and beautiful scenery mean very little to undernourished people in ghetto surroundings."

He said basic industry, such as mining, "finds itself overwhelmed with requirements for air and water waste discharge proposals."

Another speaker, Dr. Robert Lee, director of the Idaho Water Resource Board, also turned to environmental problems, warning that in creating the Environmental Protection Agency Congress "may have given pressure groups the tools which will enable them to frustrate all development."

Citing the Lower Teton Project, Lee said the requirement that an environmental impact statement be furnished on every project "focused attention on merely the negative aspects of the environmental impact of the projects which has aroused preservationists' opposition at this late date."

He said the Idaho Water Resource Board, also turned to environmental problems, warning that in creating the Environmental Protection Agency Congress "may have given pressure groups the tools which will enable them to frustrate all development."

He said, however, that while industry will continue to bear much of the cost of abating its pollution and protecting against future environmental damage, an even more difficult task looms in correcting environmental problems not caused by industry, such as sewer and garbage disposal.

He said one of the most difficult problems tax authorities will face is the necessity to "withstand the public pressure that is often created for costly and impractical programs for environmental improvement."

He said the Idaho Water Resource Board, also turned to environmental problems, warning that in creating the Environmental Protection Agency Congress "may have given pressure groups the tools which will enable them to frustrate all development."

"Hopefully, large numbers of people will recognize this before the environmental backlash is created because of serious water shortages."

Cooperation on 3 levels sought to solve problems

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., today called for a new partnership of federal, state and local governments in planning for the future.

He said it's not too late to solve America's problems as some critics contend.

"The challenge of a better design for tomorrow is awesome," Jackson said. "This challenge cannot be met by good intentions or by assertions of concern. It will require major institutional reform."

Jackson spoke to the federation of Rocky Mountain States, a five-year-old organization in which Utah, Wyoming, Idaho, Montana, Colorado and New Mexico work to solve regional problems.

The senator gave copies of his address to the delegates and then summarized it in a brief talk.

Jackson, chairman of the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, said America's growth is shown in the Gross National Product, which he said took 200 years to reach its current level of $1 trillion and will double a little over a decade from now.

"We must and we can face up to the continuing growth issue and we can manage it and direct it in a way you can get aside areas for quality life," he said.

He said a major obstacle to be overcome in land planning is conflicts between federal and state policies.

"It is demeaning to say the United States is unable to set aside areas that can be conserved and areas that can be developed. I think we can do both."

Jackson said a major obstacle to be overcome in land planning is elimination of conflicts between federal and state policies.

The senator noted that in the last congress he introduced legislation to establish a national land use policy.

"This bill would lessen the conflicts, the wasteful delays and the inefficient results which land use competition generates. This competition would be shifted from the adversary process to the planning process."

"The bill would establish forums and procedures whereby rational, consistent, long-term decisions can be made with the participation of citizens and experts alike.

Jackson said development of such a land use program would "bring into being a new partnership between federal, state and local governments . . . the need for such a policy is dramatically illustrated by a look at some of the demands we must meet to provide for the unprecedented growth that lies ahead."

In addition to the doubling of the Gross National Product, the senator said:

— "By 1975 our park and recreation areas will receive twice as many visitors as today, perhaps 10 times as many by the year 2000.

— "We must construct 26 million new housing units by 1978.

— "Demands for electrical energy double every 10 years.

— "Between now and the year 2000 we need to build 200 new cities in America the size of Denver, and we need to rebuild half of our older cities."

"What planning we accomplish is, too often, single purpose planning which fails to relate that purpose to a balanced range of national goals," Jackson said.

Five queen candidates do final campaigning

MOSCOW (UPI) — Finalists for the 1971 homecoming queen contest at the University of Idaho are doing their final campaigning this week.

The queen will reign over homecoming festivities here Saturday including the first football game to be played in the new University of Idaho stadium. The contest, against Idaho State University, will be the first game in 28 starts that the University has played on its home field since old Neale Stadium was condemned and later burned in the spring of 1969.

Church, Boise; Cynthia M. Horck, Bonners Ferry; Janice E. Zehner, Grangeville; Nancy J. Helbling, Moscow; and Marilyn A. Campbell, New Meadows.

Final voting will take place Friday with the crowning of the queen Friday night during the Idaho - Idaho State University rally.

The five finalists were chosen from among 18 contestants selected by their living groups. They include Cathleen M.

Chou En-lai's claim on oil proving true

TOKYO (UPI) — Premier Chou En-lai has claimed in recent years that Mainland China's oil is able to take care of its industrial and transportation needs as well as the lamps of China. Until recently, many Westerners thought Chou was whistling past the graveyard. Oil is vital to any country wanting to expand and industrialize.

published by a Japanese newspaper sympathetic to China.

It described Tachang as a self-contained community of 300,000 which produces about half of China's expanding supply of oil as well as much of its own food. The Japanese writer, Ippel Sugiyama, said Tachang was built in a crash program launched in May, 1960.

acres of farm land and grew 30,000 tons of grain in 1970, Sugiyama was told.

The community of oil workers, many of them women, is housed in three towns and 211 scattered villages. Of these, 41 are called "central villages" and have factories, stores, hospitals and schools. The oil field even operates a university known as "Northeast Petroleum Institute," and a network of 187 primary schools and junior high schools.

Sugiyama said Tachang produces about 80 million barrels of crude oil per year, about one half the amount Chou told American newsmen Edgar Snow the country produced in 1970.

Chou's estimate of his country's crude oil capability would indicate that its oil industry has overhauled such countries as Mexico and Romania even though it lags behind such giants as the United States, the Soviet Union and Indonesia.

Recently, however, information leaked out about China's big Tachang oil field in Manchuria. It has convinced the Free World that Chou may be telling the truth. They were even more convinced after hearing Mao Tse-tung, the Communist party chairman, say: "Industry, learn from Tachang."

A light veil of secrecy has hung over Tachang ever since oil was discovered there 13 years ago. In recent days, however, an eyewitness account of a visit to Tachang was

TF prepares for melting pot feel

TWIN FALLS — For a couple of days—Oct. 15 and 16—Twin Falls will take on the "feeling" of a melting-pot community as members of the Up With People organization become guests of citizens of the community.

One of the four international casts, known on five continents for its musical productions and educational programs, is coming to Twin Falls for two evening performances on those dates. The shows will be presented at the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium under sponsorship of the Times-News and the Associated Students of CSI.

An advance ticket sale is now under way with proceeds going to the non-profit organization. Up With People is a two-hour kaleidoscope of contemporary music—rock, jazz, country and bittersweet folk—poignant lyrics and choreographed staging. The show has excited and involved audiences from villages near the Arctic Circle to the White House, from tribal monstrosities in East Africa to students in Pocatello.

Lyrics are written and put to music by the performers themselves. Other songs include "Let All The People In," "What Color Is God's Skin?" "Man Never Runs Out of Dreams" and "Where the Roads Come Together."

Up With People evolved out of a search by young men and women for new ways to involve themselves in the world, to meet the challenge of change, and to generate more effective communication between people regardless of age, class or color.

There are more than 110 members of the group coming to Twin Falls for the two programs here. Arrangements are now being made for housing with local families and each student in the cast lives with a different family every few days as the tour is made over the United States.

The cast appearing in Twin Falls toured Mexico, Japan and the Southwest United States last season. This cast now includes 14 Japanese, selected from hundreds of students interviewed during the tour.

Up With People participants are eligible to receive college credits for achievement in the fields of social behavior, communications, business administration, technical skills, public relations and public appearances. The students travel in two special buses while a truck transports the tons of sound equipment and instruments.

The advance tickets are available at Barth Music in downtown Twin Falls; Sullivan Music in the Lynwood Shopping Center; information desk at the College of Southern Idaho and the business office of the Times-News. Tickets can be secured by mail by sending a check in the correct amount to the Times-News. Adult tickets are $2.50 and student tickets $1.50 and mail orders should specify the evening selected.

Lots of action

Thieu's re-election said blatant rigging

SAIGON (UPI)—Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky charged today that President Nguyen Van Thieu's unopposed reelection last Sunday by 94.3 percent of the vote was "indicative of blatant rigging."

Ky was also quoted by a spokesman as vowing never to go into exile after he leaves office, and "being ready to die in the struggle."

Vice President-elect Tran Van Huong was being treated at the U.S. 3rd Field Hospital by a cardiologist, Vietnamese and U.S. sources said. Sources at the presidential palace denied he had suffered a heart attack. Earlier in the day, supporters of Ky and Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh, the two men who were maneuvered out of the race by Thieu last August, before the campaign even opened, filed suit in the supreme court seeking to have the results overturned. They were given little chance of success.

Also in Saigon, U.S. and Vietnamese military police and demolition experts spent all day and much of the night running down a series of at least six bomb threats against American mission buildings scattered across the city. The calls were made by a man with an American voice, U.S. spokesmen said.

Ky, in his first public reaction to Thieu's landslide victory, said through a spokesman "the announced results of the Oct. 3 election, in which President Thieu received nearly 100 per cent of the votes cast, are indicative of blatant rigging."

36 aliens arrested at plant

GARDENA, Calif. (UPI)—Federal agents raided the Mexican food packing plant owned by U.S. Treasurer-nominee Mrs. Romona Banelos Tuesday and arrested 36 illegal aliens.

About 35 other workers in Ranuma's Food Products Co. escaped, agents said, by running out side and back doors and scrambling over a six-foot chain link fence.

Mrs. Banelos, who "was working in the plant at the time, said she did not know illegal aliens were employed by her company.

She said the raid may have been "part of an attempt by Democrats to block my nomination as treasurer of the United States."

The firm was founded by Mrs. Banelos, 46, and she now serves as president, while her husband, Alexander, is secretary-treasurer.

President Nixon last month tapped Mrs. Banelos, who built her $6 million early business empire from a taco stand she opened 22 years ago, as the next treasurer.

"I am not doing anything wrong," Mrs. Banelos said. "If I asked every person who came to us for a job about their immigration papers, I'd start a fight."

Fireman helps in KKK charges

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI)—Jerome Lainger, scarred by childhood memories of anti-Semitism and anti-German bigotry, made his "down payment on democracy" by infiltrating the local branch of the Ku Klux Klan as an informer for the FBI.

His work led to the indictment and arrest of six alleged klansmen on charges they conspired to bomb school buses one week before a scheduled court-order busting program was to begin here.

The 37-year-old fireman, a father of six, would not comment Tuesday on whether he expects reprisals from Klan sympathizers because of his actions. But he said he would do it again.

A tall, spare man with receding brown hair, Lainger wouldn't detail his activities for the FBI because those will come out when the klansmen go to trial. He said he contacted the FBI and volunteered to infiltrate the group about four years ago.

"I have never had any use for any sort of hate organization," he said. "America is for everybody."

Childhood experiences strongly influenced his decision, he said.

"When I was really small—or 7—I belonged to a local branch of the Brownshirts a pro-German group in the late 1930's," Lainger said. "I didn't know any better. I thought they were some kind of Boy Scouts."

It was then that Lainger learned of anti-Semitism and realized how false ethnic stereotypes could be when he discovered that a fellow Klansman was Jewish and didn't act like people said Jews were supposed to. He also became the butt of anti-German sentiment during World War II because of his ancestry.

Ban licenses

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The California Supreme Court has ruled 5-2 a Los Angeles County ordinance requiring licensing of bookstore operators is unconstitutional. The court said the ordinance set no adequate standards for issuing a license and was therefore an invalid prior restraint of first amendment rights.

A new song—new faces

Negro could be veep: Spiro

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI)—Vice President Spiro Agnew said Tuesday that—contrary to Democratic Sen. Edmund G. Muskie—he believes a Negro could be elected vice president of the United States.

"Yes," Agnew said in response to a question at a news conference. "I think there could be a black vice president. I think, for example, that Sen. (Edward) Brooke (R) of Massachusetts could be elected vice president."

Muskie said recently that he did not think a presidential ticket with a Negro vice presidential candidate on it could win because of prejudice against the Negro.

He has been criticized and alternately praised for political courage in making the statement.

Agnew came to El Paso for a $100 a plate dinner of 500 Republicans in support of Sen. John G. Tower. Tower, the state's first Republican senator in modern times, will seek reelection next year.

Double squeeze on funds

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — Legislative Auditor James A. Defenbach hit a nerve when he disclosed that tax money is being used to pay country club dues and entertainment costs for the president of Boise State College.

Insignificant in comparison to many other findings in Defenbach's 52-page report to the budget and fiscal committee, this revelation nonetheless aroused the legislative ire.

Rep. Jenkin L. Palmer, R-Malad, co-chairman of the committee, angrily told reporters he hoped the lawmakers would be brave enough in the future to "keep the lid on the cookie jar."

Then Rep. Marlon Davison, D-Bonners Ferry, put the question into legislative perspective when he declared: "At a time when our teachers need more and the cost of caring for the needy is sharply rising, it is terrible these public school funds are used to pay country-club-dues-and-to-buy beverages and food."

And therein, as the bard would have put it, lies the rub. Idaho legislators, like many of their counterparts across the nation, are under tremendous pressure from two directions—those who need increasingly larger amounts of public monies and the taxpayers who find their burden becoming intolerable.

In Idaho, the recent recall of others also has added to legislative sensitivity.

Therefore, it isn't the amount spent on country club dues for Dr. John Barnes ($562) of his food and beverage bill ($300) but the principal of the thing. At a time when the legislature is scraping the barrel to make ends meet and cannot afford to finance public kindergartens—at the state level—lawmakers understandably are concerned about now each tax dollar is spent.

It is difficult to tell a congressman the state can afford to subsidize a college president's social life but meet the needs of school children and needy citizens.

Defenbach, while questioning the use of state money for such purposes as country club dues, indicated he felt it would be okay if such expenses were paid from local funds. He suggested a "public relations" fund be established for the schools of higher education.

Possibly even a simpler way to accomplish this—one that would get the taxes and the student fees and similar monies out of the picture entirely—would be to turn it over to the alumni associations.

Now these groups always

Thursday, October 7, 1971 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 23

seem anxious to promote the old alma mater and they'll spend goodly sums to do so—especially for athletic teams. It would seem a simple extension of these efforts to help create a "public relations" fund for the president's use.

They way, the public monies could be spent on projects more likely to engender the sympathies of those who must pay the bills.
