Polish border opened

WARSAW (UPI) — Poland and East Germany have agreed on an open border and greater convertibility of currency for citizens of the two countries, government sources said today.

Probably from the beginning of the new year, they said, Poles and East Germans will be able to cross the border at any time without passports or other formalities. Citizens of the two countries would be required only to produce their police identification cards to prove their nationality.

At the same time, the sources said, the limit on the amount of convertible currency would be raised.

At present Poles traveling to East Germany can change up to 7,000 ($292) into East German marks.

By comparison, a Pole traveling to Western Europe is allowed to buy only $5 worth of any hard currency.

The agreement on opening the border was reached during East German Communist Party Chairman Erich Honecker's talks with party leader Edward Gierek in Warsaw in September, the sources said.

It would make East Germany by far the most accessible foreign country for Poles to visit. At present, travelers to East Germany or any other East European country must obtain a supplement to their passports which normally takes about three weeks.

Threat ruse deadly

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Blanche Buchler wanted to stay in her $30,000 ranch home and refurbish it with new furniture, appliances, carpeting.

Joseph Buchler, 55, her husband who makes $160-a-week selling tropical fish, wanted to move to a cheaper neighborhood, a cheaper apartment.

He decided, police said, to hire a man to frighten his wife by firing a gun at her. This, he believed, would make her think their neighborhood was unsafe, and she would gladly move to less posh accommodations.

Instead, police said the man shot Blanche dead.

Authorities said Sunday that Buchler, a slight man with gray hair and horn-rimmed glasses, hatched the scheme when his arguments with Blanche over where they would live turned into what he told police was a bitter nagging.

Buchler had become friendly with a customer of the tropical fish store, and offered the man $300 or $400—whatever he could raise—to frighten Mrs. Buchler into moving.

The idea was to have the man, Mark Truesdale, 21, surprise Mrs. Buchler while she walked her dog and fire several shots into the air.

Blanche Buchler was shot and killed Wednesday night on the doorstep of the home she wouldn't leave.

Buchler unraveled the mystery to police Saturday. Up to then detectives had spent two fruitless days trying to solve the apparently senseless murder.

Buchler told police how he and his wife went out that Wednesday night to order a cake for their daughter Linda, who celebrated her sixth birthday Saturday.

When they got home, he said, the telephone rang and his wife answered. She did not know it, but it was the man who was to shoot her minutes later.

Kosygin threat prompts raids

TORONTO (UPI) — Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, guarded by a virtual army of police after threats against his life, tours the Toronto area today. Police seized guns and ammunition in the largest raids in recent Toronto history before his arrival Sunday.

The visiting Soviet leader today had scheduled a trip to a nuclear generating station in nearby Pickering, Ont., and an address to the Canadian Manufacturers Association dinner in Toronto.

Canadian officials said Kosygin would cancel a planned visit to the General Motors of Canada truck assembly plant in Oshawa because Soviet authorities thought his schedule was "overloaded." The Canadian officials said there were "no security implications" in the cancellation.

Two persons were arrested in the Sunday morning police raids which netted automatic rifles, automatic pistols, revolvers, other handguns, ammunition, bayonets and "other materials."

Inspector Roy Splet of the Toronto Police Department's Intelligence Bureau, who led the raids, said police had received "information that attempts would be made to assassinate Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin." He said the 18 raids, some of which were carried out against members of the right-wing Edmund Burke Society (EBS), "were purely preventive."

"We're concerned that someone will make an attempt on Mr. Kosygin's life," he said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The wage-price freeze apparently has had little impact on the rate at which Americans continue to buy new homes, according to figures released today by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

The board, which oversees the nation's federally insured savings and loan associations, said mortgage lending activity remained at a near-record volume during September.

31 die in Viet crash

SAIGON (UPI) — A South Vietnamese air force C47 passenger plane carrying 31 persons crashed Sunday three miles south of Qui Nhon in the central part of the country because of bad weather. All aboard were killed, military spokesmen said today.

The crash occurred about 20 hours after typhoon Hester hit Quang Ngai, 100 miles to the north, but spokesmen said it could not be directly attributed to the typhoon. None of those aboard was believed American.

As government and U.S. troops swarmed out to aid in rescue and relief efforts following the disastrous typhoon, battle action was reported light throughout South Vietnam.

South Vietnamese soldiers today killed 40 guerrillas in scattered clashes, mostly in the southern half of the country, the Saigon command said. U.S. B52 bombers concentrated their fire on Communist supply routes in Laos and Cambodia.

Nixon warns against trip over-optimism

THURMONT, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon, warning the American people against unrealistic expectations about his forthcoming trips to China and the Soviet Union, promised in a Veterans Day speech to do "all that reasonable men may do" to win lasting world peace.

"There are great differences between the government of the United States and the governments of the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China," Nixon said. "But we have much in common with the Russian people and the Chinese people. We share the earth. We share a love for our children. And we share an understanding of the ultimate futility of war."

Nixon made his Veterans Day comments Sunday night in a nationwide radio address broadcast from his mountain-top retreat in western Maryland. He took note of recent progress in arms negotiations with the Soviet Union, of various treaties and other moves towards peace, adding:

"Today we are preparing to take additional steps toward an end to the conflicts which have divided so many of the world's people. My trips to Moscow and Peking are directed toward that goal. We go with no false hopes, and we intend to leave behind us in America no unrealistic expectations."

While achieving a lasting peace may "still be long and difficult," he added, "all that reasonable men may do to accomplish that lasting peace will be done."

Kissinger to leave China soon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger will return to Washington Tuesday from Peking where he made arrangements for President Nixon's forthcoming trip to Red China. An announcement of the date of Nixon's journey to Communist China was expected soon after Kissinger reported to the President.

Kissinger, Nixon's national security affairs adviser was to arrive at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., at 4 p.m. EDT Tuesday. The White House said he will leave Peking at midnight EDT tonight.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Kissinger has been in communication with the White House throughout his 10-day trip through communications aboard the presidential jet. However, no announcements have been made of any of Kissinger's activities.

Kissinger was to stop in Anchorage, Alaska, during the return trip.

Since he arrived in Peking last Wednesday, dispatches from foreign sources indicate that Kissinger has held substantive discussions with Communist officials on an agenda for the Nixon trip, expected to last about four days.

problems, including unemployment. He asked Americans to "do all that we can do to insure that those who have borne the burdens of war are not made, because of their sacrifice, to bear disproportionately the burdens of the peace they are winning."

He said the administration's effort to win jobs for veterans placed more than 121,000 Vietnam era vets in jobs or in job training slots during July and August.

"Beyond these programs," he said, "each of us in his own community must also hold out a helping hand to those who have served."

He also said the present generation of veterans "have suffered from the frustration which this war has generated among many Americans. We must not permit this. A nation which condemns those who serve it will find itself condemned in turn."

"On this Veterans Day 1971," Nixon added, "we have a greater opportunity to build a lasting peace than at any time in this century. We have before us the best chance in this century to make the present generation of American war veterans the last generation of American war veterans."

Washington (UPI) — Voters throughout Magic Valley will decide Tuesday whether they wish to establish a regional airport board authorized to study the feasibility of designating a regional airport.

The election is the first regional airport election to be held in Idaho under a law which provides the means of combining the tax base of three or more joining counties to share the cost of air transportation facilities.

Qualified electors will vote "yes" or "no" on the question of establishing a South Central Regional Airport Authority. If the majority of the voters in enough counties approve the question, another election will be held to name members to the authority from each of the legislative districts in the region. It will then be the responsibility of the new authority to move ahead with efforts to plan, finance and construct a regional airport north of the Snake River in Jerome County.

A bond election — requiring a two-thirds majority approval — would precede construction of an airport.

During the past several weeks the question has been hotly debated. Members of the Interim Airport Committee have been speaking in support of the facility, while much of the opposition to a regional facility has come from Twin Falls City and County officials.

Faced with the need of meeting air transportation demands of the area, Twin Falls officials say they undertook costly improvements at the local airport to handle jet carrier service. Twin Falls officials argue that the facility will be adequate for many years and can handle the largest aircraft expected to be used by air carriers.

Proponents of the continued use of the Twin Falls airport as a regional facility argue the cost of continuing to use this facility would be less than the cost to Twin Falls taxpayers of participating in financing a new airport.

Those supporting a new regional air transportation center north of the river say the project will give Twin Falls taxpayers an opportunity to share their costs with residents of seven other counties. This method, say Interim Airport Committee members, would lessen the load for Twin Falls and provide assistance from other areas now enjoying the service without cost.

Regional airport supporters also say the Twin Falls site is not adequate to meet future needs but is suitable for the five or so years it will require to build a regional airport.

Support has been offered by the South Idaho Chamber of Commerce, where the efforts for the regional airport and enabling legislation began. Officials of the Sun Valley resort and many new industrial concerns of the valley are also on record in favor of the proposed site. Opposition except for the Twin Falls officials, has come mostly from individuals.

Irate females score bishop

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Churchwomen and female liberals reacted angrily Sunday to the Episcopal bishop of California's contention that Christ's masculinity was a "divine choice" that restricts the priesthood to men.

Bishop C. Kliner Myers strongly opposed ordination of women priests in a statement to the annual convention of his diocese at Grace Cathedral. The bishop's views were made public prior to his Sunday address.

"The sexuality of Christ was no accident, nor is his masculinity incidental," said Myers. "This is the divine choice. Jesus continued that choice in the selection of men to be His apostles."

"God is represented in masculine imagery. The father begets the son. To lump with this imagery is to change the faith into something else. Of course this does not mean that God is a male."

"The male image about God pertains to the divine initiative in creation. Initiative is a male rather than a female attribute."

Myers also told the convention that opposition to the idea of women priests by the overwhelming majority of Christians would produce "a painful ecumenical tension" if Episcopalians ordained them.

Myers' predecessor in the diocese of California, which includes the San Francisco Bay and Northern California coastal areas, was the late bishop James Pike, who advocated women priests.

The bishop's comments drew swift responses from Mrs. John C. Bennett, a member of the executive board in the Office of Women's Affairs at the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley, and Mrs. Robert D. Fitch, of the National Task Force of the United Church of Christ.

"An absurd and destructive statement," they said in a joint statement. "If there is, as he says, a painful ecumenical tension, it is because of the refusal of some clerics to recognize both men and women as whole persons."

Alleen Hernandez of San Francisco, president of the National Organization for Women (NOW), a women's liberation group, termed Myers' views "incredible" and "neanderthal."

Scientists test earthquake lube

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Scientists are studying the possibility of lubricating geological fracture with water to reduce big earthquakes to more frequent, but much smaller, tremors.

A comprehensive, controlled test of such a possibility is being undertaken at the Santa Fe Springs oil field near Los Angeles, the California Institute of Technology said Sunday.

The major and most destructive cause of California earthquakes is the San Andreas Fault, a large geological fracture running from north of San Francisco to the Gulf of California in Mexico.

The land west of the fault is moving northward at about two inches a year, and strain builds up along the fault where friction holds the two masses together despite the mountain pressure. Eventually, the built up strain is released in a sharp jolt.

J.W. Bodily

BURLEY — J. W. (Jim) Bodily, 83, retired Burley farmer, died Sunday at Cassia Memorial Hospital.

He was born Aug. 15, 1888, at Fairview, Idaho. He received his education in Cache Valley, Utah schools. On June 19, 1912, he married Louella Jane Taylor in the Salt Lake LDS Temple.

Shortly after their marriage, they moved to the Burley area. In 1914 they purchased a farm in the Pella area where they resided until Mr. Bodily retired in 1960. They then moved to Burley.

He was an active member of the LDS Church. He served a mission for the church in the northwestern states from 1909-1911. He had served as a Sunday school superintendent and was a member of the Pella board of directors for several years. At the time of his death he was a member of the high priest group.

He had served as a director for the Burley Irrigation District for 33 years.

Survivors include his widow of Burley; one son, Dee T. Bodily, Anaheim, Calif.; three daughters, Mrs. Alden (Donna) Newman, Boise; Mrs. Owen (Letha) Walker, Salt Lake City, Utah; Mrs. Robert (Ruth) Baker, Burley; one brother, Hejor Bodily, Salmon; four sisters, Mrs. (Sarah) LaMont, Preston; Mrs. Loranta Garrard, Provo, Utah; Mrs. Fontella Stanfield, Hemet, Calif.; Mrs. Glen Coltrin, Boise; 15 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1 p.m. Wednesday in the Burley LDS Fifth-Seventh Ward Chapel with Bishop Walter Peterson officiating. Concluding rites will be held in the Pleasant View Cemetery.

Friends may call at Payne Mortuary Tuesday afternoon and evening, and Wednesday prior to services.

Ida Butler

RUPERT — Mrs. Ida G. Butler, 88, Rupert, died Saturday at Mindoka Memorial Hospital.

She was born Dec. 1, 1882 at Bellevue, Utah. She attended school at Monroe, Utah. On May 16, 1906 she married Horace Calvin Butler in Salt Lake City, Utah. The couple moved to Idaho in 1907 and settled on the Camas Prairie near Fairfield. In September of 1917 they moved to the Rupert area where she had since resided. Mr. Butler preceded her in death in 1958.

She was a lifelong member of the LDS Church and had served as president of the Y.L.M.I.A., president of the primary, teacher for the Relief Society and Sunday school teacher.

She is survived by four sons, Ray G. Butler, Santa Barbara, Calif. and Dale H. Butler, Rupert; two daughters, Mrs. H. W. (Ruth) Roberts, Studio City, California, and Mrs. Norma Gordon, La Canada, Calif.; one sister, Luella Morrison, Gardona, Calif.; 28 grandchildren and 28 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1 p.m. Tuesday in the Aequula LDS Chapel with Bishop Jack Duncan officiating. Concluding rites will be held at the Rupert Cemetery. Friends may call at Payne Mortuary, Burley, Monday afternoon and evening, and at the Aequula Church Tuesday one hour prior to services.

R. Llewellyn

PAUL — Ralph O. Llewellyn, 58, Paul, died Saturday at Cassia Memorial Hospital following a brief illness.

He was born Dec. 17, 1912 at Pinedale, Wyo. On April 7, 1956 he married Marie Burgess at Elko, Nev. He came to the Paul area in 1957 from Casper, Wyo. While he lived in Wyoming he worked in the oil fields. After moving to Paul he worked on various farms in the Paul area. For the past five years he had been bartender and manager of Beth's Beer Parlor.

Survivors include his widow, Paul; one stepdaughter, Fredico Sue Bright, Clayton Mass.; two brothers and one sister.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Walk Mortuary Chapel with Rev. Ted Meters of the Paul Congregational Church officiating.

Concluding rites will be held in the Paul Cemetery. Friends may call at the mortuary this afternoon and evening and Tuesday prior to time of services.

Gearl Long

HAILEY — Gearl Aston Long, 56, Shoshone, died Wednesday from injuries in a one-car accident.

He was born Sept. 10, 1915, at Lindsay, Okla.

Surviving are two brothers, Carl E. Long, Sr. and Jesse C. Long, both Glendale, Calif., and a sister, Mrs. Christine Booth, Pomona, Calif.

Graveside services will be conducted at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Hailey Cemetery by Pastor Everett E. Berrey.

T. Zaharais

RUPERT — Thomas T. Zaharais, 48, Torrancia, Calif., died Saturday near Rupert of injuries in an auto accident.

He was born Jan. 25, 1923 in Los Angeles, Calif. On April 24, 1957 he married Annie Whiting at Reno, Nev. He was a restaurant owner and operator. He was a paratrooper with the U.S. Army during World War II. He was a member of the Klawnis Club and the Elks Lodge.

Survivors include his wife, California. Funeral services and burial will be held in California. Walk Mortuary handled local arrangements.

Idaho traffic toll up

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — The Idaho traffic fatality toll climbed to 258 Sunday with the death of Leftoy A. Wollowingbull, 21, Rexburg, in a one-car rollover eight miles west of Swan Valley Highway 26.

The Idaho State Police reported Wollowingbull, the driver, apparently lost control of the vehicle on the paved highway about 7:30 a.m. Sunday morning.

The accident was investigated by State Police Trooper James D. Whitehead and Cpl. Charles Duke, both out of the Idaho Falls ISP office.

T.F. machines set for Tuesday vote

19 and 20 year old voters who are registered may vote for or against the retail wine sales, but if the issue carries they will be prohibited from buying the wine until 21 years of age. Lancaster said there has not been an especially heavy voter registration among the 18 to 21 year olds in the county but it has been running about average for first time voters.

TWIN FALLS PRECINCTS

TWIN FALLS — Voting machines, programmed for the Tuesday airport and wine election ballots, were delivered to the 48 Twin Falls County precincts Friday afternoon as a final election preparation.

Harold Lancaster, county clerk, said only 48 of the county's 102 automatic voting machines will be used in the Tuesday election because of the simple "yes" and "no" votes. Lancaster said he expects county registration to reach about 22,000 by the time registrations received Saturday are added to the county books.

The county clerk said there is a great deal of confusion among voters because of the city and special county elections falling within a week of each other.

County precincts are different than city precincts, he said, and residents who do not know their precinct should check the map and their voting place.

Voting places for precincts in Twin Falls for the Tuesday wine election are:

- Twin Falls No. 1 and 2, County Courthouse; Twin Falls 3, County Courthouse Annex (Judicial Building); Twin Falls 4, Bickel School; Twin Falls 5, Courthouse Annex; Twin Falls 6, DAV Hall, Shoup and Harrison Street; Twin Falls 7, Washington School; Twin Falls 8, High School; Twin Falls 9, Washington School; Twin Falls 10, Morningside School; Twin Falls 11, Bickel School; Twin Falls 12, Morningside School; Twin Falls 13, Twin Falls Grangehall; Twin Falls 14 and 15, Old Hospital building; Twin Falls 16, Harrison School; Twin Falls 17, DAV building; Twin Falls 19, High School; Twin Falls 20, Morningside School;

Twin Falls 21, Robert Stuart Junior High School; Twin Falls 22, Harrison School; Twin Falls 23 and 24, both Washington School; Twin Falls 25, Robert Stuart Junior High School; Twin Falls 26, High School, and Twin Falls 27, Harrison School.

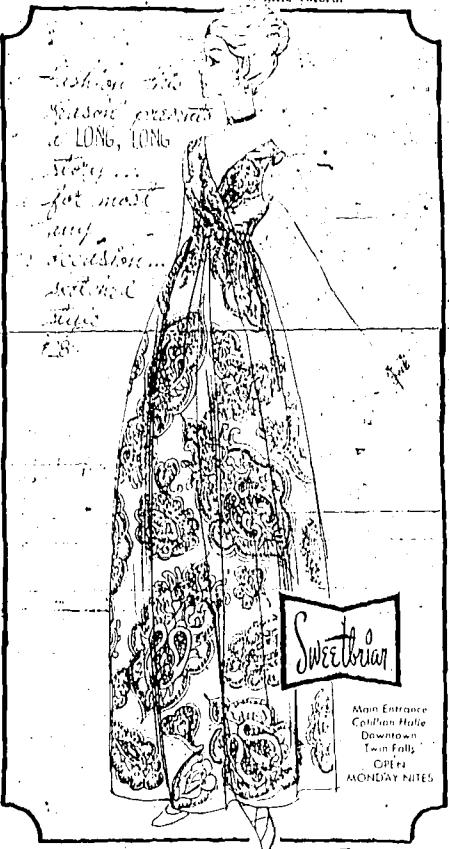

Other precincts include Allendale, voting in the Mount Rock Grange building; Buhl 1, 2 and 4, all in the Buhl Moose Hall; Buhl 5, 6 and 7, IOOF hall in Buhl; Clover, school house; Casdeford, Methodist Church, and Deep Creek, Grange Hall.

Other county precincts and their polling places are Filer 1, 2 and 3, the Filer High School; Hansen, Grange Hall; Hillater, Masonic Hall; Kimberly 1 and 2, Kimberly Grange Hall; Maroa, Ted Sierer home; Murtaugh, the Murtaugh High School and Rock Creek, the Pleasant Valley School.

The voting machines are programmed for a "yes" and "no" vote on each of the questions: "Shall the Regional Airport Authority be Established?" and "Shall the retail sale of wine be authorized in Twin Falls County?"

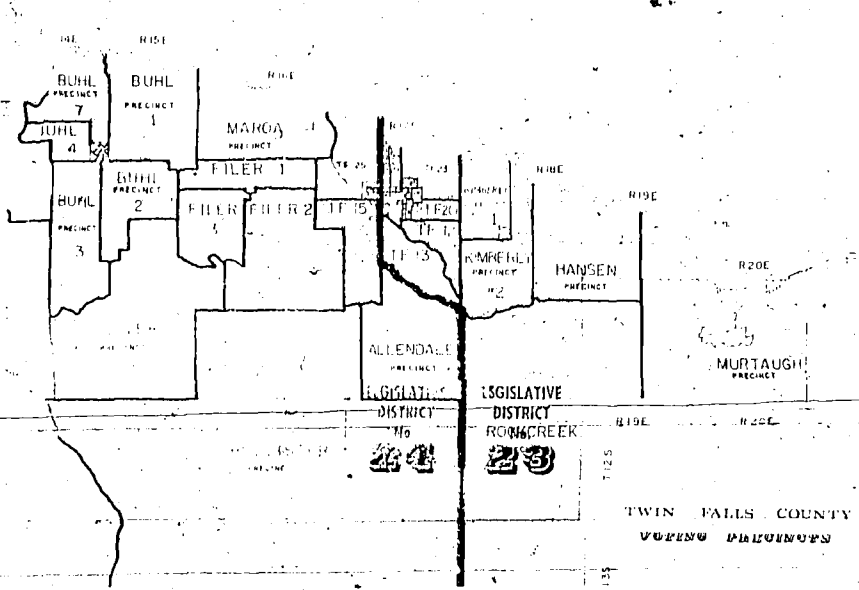

Lancaster said the voting should take less than a minute per vote since the voter need only move two mechanical pointers.

Polls will open at 8 a.m. and remain open until 8 p.m. and persons may vote on the airport question if they qualify as an elector. They need not be registered for the airport election but must be registered to vote on the wine issue. Anyone 18 years of age or older who has resided in the state six months and the county 30 days may vote. This is the first election in Twin Falls county for

About A Happening In Tarrytown

WASHINGTON, — Male politicians from the White House down to the grimest mayor's office might find some comfort in the comments uttered by what the New York Times called "three luminaries from the world of women achievers" at a happening in Tarrytown, N.Y.

Indeed it may be that, for all their loud talk to the contrary, the revolutionaries secretly are rather fond of the opposite sex. The occasion that offered a crumb of reassurance was something called "A Weekend of Film, Food and Talk in the Country."

knocked me over with one of Clare Luce's bon mots when all three of the distinguished panelists as much as swore they were in favor of there being two sexes. What I asked myself, could Betty Friedan and Rep. Bella Abzug have thought when they heard about this heresy?

at newsstands she had concluded that women like to look at "beefcake" (male nudity) just as much as men like to peep at undressed females. And Mrs. Luce pronounced that "love is still the name of the game."

o'clock shadow now can forage for female vote-free of the fear that — give or take the odd tomato — women generally hate men. They may not find themselves on equal terms with women candidates, but the words spoken by the Luce-Crist-Steinem panel suggest they still might find it possible to capitalize on women's age-old curiosity about the male sex.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, V.D.

Stabbing Pain

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What can you tell me about the dull, aching or facial neuralgia? Does it start gradually or suddenly? Can you tell me something about its cause and treatment? I don't seem to get much encouragement.

The douloureux (doo-loo-roe) is one of the commonest varieties of neuralgia, meaning pain along a nerve. In this case, it is the trigeminal nerve, a three-branched one in the face.

Attacks are sudden, stabbing pains in the face. The area may vary depending on which branches of the nerve are affected. While the attacks don't last long, they are intensely painful, and may occur several times a day or may come only occasionally.

The cause is not known — probably there is no single cause. Malocclusion of the teeth seems to be one; a tumor of the nerve is another; compression of the nerve in its bony canal still another.

Since the ailment is so painful, there have been vigorous efforts to find effective remedies. Success varies with the cause. Injections of water or alcohol (to denude sensation in the nerve) are used less often now than heretofore because relief is only temporary.

Medicinally, inhalation of trichlorethylene, or halothane, or more recently, a drug called Tegretol have all been used. The most favorable results being reported on the last one. It is taken by mouth three or four times a day and gives prompt relief, but it must be watched carefully because it can affect blood cells.

When a patient does not tolerate the medicine well, or does not respond to it, permanent relief can be achieved by surgery — cutting the nerve. This also has the effect of leaving the side of the face feeling numb. (Not paralyzed, however.)

Attacks of the tic may subside spontaneously, but more often they tend to become more frequent as time passes, unless treatment can stop them.

One piffal to guard against is that when medication stops the attacks patient sometimes think their troubles are over, stop the medication, the have the attacks resume.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had a most uncomfortable sore in my nose for about a month now. I clean it every day but it soon forms a scab. It also has a most unpleasant odor. About five years ago I came across something in a medical book but I can't recall what the term was.

I remember thinking that an unpleasant thing to see, and now I seem to have a that. I will see a doctor if I think I should, but it's rather embarrassing to me.

Maybe an ulcer of some sort; maybe something more serious. You recall one of the danger signs of cancer, don't you? A sore that does not heal? So by all means see a doctor for diagnosis, and treatment if necessary.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there a cure for angina heart? My doctor recommended nitrocin. Is there anything else?

Angina frequently is helped by medicine. Nitrocin is one of the drugs in this class. It is a nitroglycerin preparation. Frequently, a graduate exercise program need for medication, undertaken, only doctor's general overdoing it can be a course.

Turned Around

especially where busses were generally used for the opposite and unconstitutional purpose of segregation. The school bus remains a neutral piece of machinery, and we doubt that Mr. Nixon would ever have regarded it as anything else had it not suddenly become anathema to white areas that do not want minority children in their schools.

Soviet Pollution

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Those who blame free enterprise for pollution haven't looked at Russia. According to a little-noticed paper read by Professor Marshall I. Goldman of Wellesley College at an ecology conference in Tokyo, reports from the U.S.S.R. match every pollution story told from New York to Los Angeles.

And Soviet moves to reverse the flow of major rivers, in fact, could effect the earth's rotation, change ecology worldwide.

In 1965, a cigarette thrown in the Islet set that river afire. The Ukraine's Molognia River is reported dead. And a number of other rivers as well.

Two-thirds of Russian factories discharge their waste without cleanup. Affluent from the Chernobinsk chemical plant near Dzerzhinsk killed almost all fish life in the Oka River in 1965.

Factories along the Volga, Ob, Yenesei, Ural and northern Dvina have been equally guilty: Mines, oil wells and ships freely dump waste into the nearest body of water. Oil from slicks has coated the shores of the Baltic, Black and Caspian seas. Partly because of the oil — and the lower water levels — the product of the river has been so threatened that Russians are experimenting with artificial substitutes.

Six of Moscow's main cities have sewage systems. Two of these six lack the sewage. Forty per cent of cities and suburbs have sewage treating equipment.

Most Soviet cities have air pollution. The metallurgical towns of Alma-Ata, Chelyabinsk and Magnitogorsk frequently wear a dark blue cap. Billions suffer from smog almost half the year. Leningrad has 40 per cent fewer clear daylight hours than nearby Pavlovsk.

The ecology of the Lake Balkal area has been so disrupted by tree-cutting and other disturbances, dunes from the Gobi have already started to move in, raising fears that desert will sweep into Siberia. Water is being pumped out of Russia's lakes, and seas so rapidly some authorities fear that the current rate of shrinkage) that in 29 years the Aral Sea will be a salt marsh. The Caspian has fallen eight feet in two decades. Near the resort area of Adler, hospitals, hotels and a Ministry of Defense sanitarium collapsed as the shoreline gave way. Huge quantities of pebbles and sand along the beach have been hauled away by contractors as a cheap source of gravel. A state-built network of dams and reservoirs prevents the natural replacement of pebbles. But without the pebbles, there is little to cushion the enormous power of the waves eroding the shoreline.

There is concern that age-old sources of drinking water may gradually disappear. Worse yet, if enough of Russia's northward flowing rivers are diverted for irrigation purposes to the arid south, the Arctic Ocean will be deprived of the warmer waters it receives from these rivers, causing the ice cap to grow southward.

Goldman's remarks have been cited in part by the American Association for the Advancement of Science for its publication Science.

And well the young Texan might be. After all, being unconceremoniously ejected from seats he had paid a high price for is decidedly disconcerting — especially if it's at the behest of a top Presidential assistant accompanied by a high Republican Congressional leader.

That was Grace's jarring experience, and Washington glibby social circles are buzzing about it.

Adding relish to the tale is that not only is Grace a staunch Republican, but his father, head of the Graco Oil Company, Wichita Falls, Tex., is a lifelong Republican, and close friend of a state's Republican Sen. Jol Tower — up for a third term next year and already busily campaigning.

According to the account going the rounds, following is what happened: Reluctant newcomers to the capital city, but living and working in the Graco decided to go to the Kennedy Center on Oct. 20. To ensure the best of the performance as well as the magnificent concert hall, Grace asked for and got the "best seats in the house" — which turned out to be in the President's Loge directly in the center of the balcony tier. They were prize tickets and, while expensive, the young couple was overjoyed at their good fortune.

They arrived early, were escorted to the choice seats by an usher, and were happily watching the hall fill up when they were interrupted by an attendant who told them they were out of place.

Nonplussed, Grace produced his ticket stubs, checked them with his seats, and said, "You're mistaken. We're in the right seats. Here are the stubs."

Shaking his head, the attendant replied icily, "This is the President's Loge. It's reserved for the Presidential family, and members of his staff. You will have to leave. These seats are taken."

Glancing past the attendant, Grace saw two couples waiting Peter Flanigan, second-ranking assistant to the President, and his wife, and House Republican Leader Gerald Ford, of Michigan, and his wife.

Shocked by this unannounced eviction and not wanting to create a scene, Grace and his wife picked up their wraps and quietly left. His money was refunded. He has yet to hear a word of regret or anything else from Flanigan or the management.

But Look Who

Lewiston Tribune It's just possible that police at Pittsburgh, Pa., got everybody except the real culprits the other night when 40,000 avid fans rampaged after the Pirates won the World Series. The fans overturned a taxi and burned it.

And they should have been arrested.

But they're not the only ones who should have been jailed. That whole Pittsburgh Pirates team may well belong there, too. After all, it was the TEAM that won the Series, not the fans.

And that team crossed several state lines on its way to winning that pennant. Moving thus and causing a riot is now prohibited by federal law.

Decision expected soon on China seat

Decision expected soon on China seat

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—A decision in the battle over whether Nationalist China retains a seat in the United Nations is expected this week, possibly by Tuesday.

The outcome, however, was too close to call. Both sides claimed to have enough support to win, but diplomatic sources stressed that the decision would depend on a handful of delegates that have refused to reveal their positions.

The China debate was to resume at 3 p.m. EDT Monday in the General Assembly. Voting was expected to begin Monday evening or Tuesday morning.

With almost all of the 131 members now in favor of Communist China's entry into the United Nations, the main issue has become whether Nationalist China will retain a seat.

The United States declared itself "decidedly optimistic" during the weekend that the Nationalists would remain in the United Nations. But other well informed diplomatic sources said support for the United States may have begun to erode Friday with the loss of two delegations previously considered pro-Nationalist. The sources did not identify the delegations.

This development, the sources said, indicated a last minute trend away from the U.S. proposals to give both Nationalist and Communist China representation in the United Nations and award the Security Council seat to Peking.

Supporters of Albania's pro-Peking resolution also claimed sufficient support to win. The resolution asks the assembly to recognize Peking as the sole representative of China and to expel the Nationalists.

Diplomats generally agreed that the decision hinged on a procedural resolution submitted by the United States. It would make the expulsion of the Nationalists an "important question" and thus impose a two-thirds majority vote requirement.

Paris girls to protect Brezhnev

PARIS (UPI)—The largest police force mustered in Paris since the 1968 upheavals stood by Sunday to protect Soviet Party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev who arrives Monday for an official visit.

While police barracks bristled with reinforcements, French and Soviet police commanders reviewed final security arrangements.

Female shrimp lay from 500,000 to 1 million eggs at one time.

HONOLULU (UPI)—A mongrel who traveled 30,000 miles while trapped five days deep inside a giant 747 jumbojet was eating dog food instead of electrical wire Sunday after his discovery by repair crews.

Bandit, a two-year-old belonging to the James Tribon family, nudged his way out of his cage while flying on a Northwest Orient jetliner from Seattle to Honolulu.

When the plane reached Honolulu, the cage was empty and the dog couldn't be found in the baggage compartment. He had squirmed his way into a tiny electrical compartment deep inside the plane.

The dog nibbled tin foil, electrical wire and insulation during the next five days as the plane flew to San Francisco, Tokyo, New York and back to Tokyo—30,000 miles in all.

He was discovered, weak and wobbly, Saturday by technicians who opened the compartment to check delicate fire-warning devices which the dog apparently had disturbed.

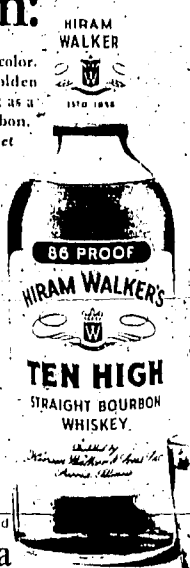

Airline experts said they couldn't figure out how Bandit got into the compartment as there is no open passageway leading to it and technicians had to remove an entire ceiling panel to rescue him.

After getting out of the plane, Bandit gulped a bowl of water and promptly spit out the tin foil and wire he'd been chewing in the compartment.

OP aides predict double ouster

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Republican leadership in Congress predicted Sunday that the United Nations might be less able to deal with international disputes and short of American financial backing if Taiwan is ousted this week to give Peking exclusive standing as representative of China.

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan offered those forecasts in separate statements as the U.N. General Assembly sought to wind up debate on the China membership issue and to start voting, probably on Tuesday.

Administration officials, including Secretary of State William P. Rogers and U.N. Ambassador George Bush, were described last week as confident that the United States would win at least a narrow victory in its battle to have both Taiwan and Peking represented in the assembly but to give the Communists—the coveted Security Council seat now held by the Nationalists.

Nixon plans for challenger

RICHLAND, Wash. (UPI)—A portable super-pollution machine that can process 100,000 cubic feet of thick smog per minute is being developed by scientists at the Hanford Atomic Laboratories near here.

But this isn't a group of mad scientists hoping to envelope the world in a cloud of lung-choking dirty air. They simply want to test big filters designed to clean "radioactive-smog" produced at nuclear facilities.

The testing program began in 1960 when the Atomic Energy Commission found that filters supplied to it were not consistent enough to meet exacting standards.

Hanford Environmental Health Foundation, Inc., was given the job of filter-testing for nuclear facilities in the western half of the United States. Testing east of the Mississippi is done at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Foundation scientists produce their smog by heating oil in a DOP (dioctyl phthalate) machine which can control the size and concentration of pollution particles.

A heavily contaminated air-stream is then passed through the filter being tested. Scientists determine its effectiveness by measuring the size of particles which escape through the device.

Researchers here are interested in finding "high efficiency particulate air" filters which are capable of removing at least 99.97 per cent of all particles as small as three-tenths of a micron in diameter.

These particles, invisible to the human eye, are so small it would take 25,000 of them laid in a row to make a line an inch long.

Most filters tested here are made of fiberglass cloth pleated and woven around either metallic or non-metallic separators. The most commonly used frames are of fire-resistant particle board, by plywood and metal frames are also used.

Sizes of the filters range from small ones used in the canisters of face masks to banks of multiple plate-type filters.

Using their big stationary smog machine, scientists at the Hanford facility inspect 3,000 to 4,000 big filters each year and up to 40,000 small ones.

The researchers hope they will soon finish development of the portable smog machine which will be capable of in-place testing of filter systems with capacities of more than 100,000 cubic feet of air per minute.

Present portable systems, say the scientists, are not adequate for some testing jobs.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A dual strategy is shaping up within the administration to deal with Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California, the only declared candidate for the 1972 Republican presidential nomination.

The first part would have President Nixon and members of the administration give McCloskey the silent treatment at least until next spring.

A top political aide to the President believes that McCloskey is fading with the war in Vietnam and that by next year's presidential primaries he may be completely out of the picture. McCloskey already is reported running into difficulties financing a campaign.

However, if McCloskey remains a potential embarrassment to the President next spring, the political aide will advise that the issue be met head-on and steps be taken "to clobber" the California lawmaker.

"That could mean putting 'the champ,' the President, into early primaries against McCloskey.

This top Nixon political aide sees nothing wrong in that. He sees no reason for the President to be coy about his hopes for 1972 when everyone knows he will be running for reelection.

The political adviser is dead set against allowing McCloskey to win any delegates by default. He also sees more danger in allowing McCloskey only nominal opposition.

DURING tonight, showers will occur in the vicinity of the Great Lakes. Clear and pleasant to partly cloudy skies elsewhere with no major temperature change. (UPI)

Continued fair, slightly warmer

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley-Rupert area—Mostly fair through tonight. Increasing high clouds Tuesday. Slightly warmer daytimes with high temperatures in the 50s. Overnight lows will be 25 to 35. The outlook for Wednesday is colder with chance of rain. Cannas Prairie, Halley and the lower Wood River Valley—Mostly fair through tonight. Increasing high clouds Tuesday. Slightly warmer days with high temperatures 45 to 55.

The overnight lows will be in the 20s. The outlook for Wednesday is colder with chance of rain or snow. Central Idaho Mountains south of the Salmon River: It will be fair in the east portion with increasing clouds in the west and slightly warmer tonight. Cloudy Tuesday. Highs Tuesday will be in the 45 to 55 degree range. Overnight lows will be in the low 20s to the low 30s.

Outlook for Wednesday will be colder with chance of rain or snow. Synopsis: High pressure continued moving into southern Idaho today causing clear skies to occur over most of the area. There are a few clouds and showers remaining in the extreme eastern portion of the state. They are left over from a low pressure system now in Utah and Wyoming. On Tuesday an approaching Pacific front will spread cloudiness and warmer air into Southern Idaho with high temperatures about five degrees warmer than those recorded today. The current warming trend will be shortlived, however, for after the Pacific front passes through the area during Wednesday, much cooler air will with rain or snow will spread into the southern Idaho region. Precipitation will be brief but colder temperatures will linger on into Thursday.

Laird meets NATO aides

BRUSSELS (UPI)—Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird arrived in Belgium Sunday for a meeting of the nuclear planning group of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) at which he said he will present a report on Soviet military strength. Laird also will team with West German Defense Minister Helmut Schmidt to present a report on the deployment of nuclear weapons in Europe. The other ministers are from Britain, Belgium, Denmark, Italy and Greece. The United States has some 7,000 warheads deployed in the European area. Reports from Washington recently have quoted Laird as demanding reductions in those numbers.

United Nations presents peace medal to famed cellist, Pablo Casals, 95

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The United Nations Sunday bestowed on Pablo Casals its highest honor, the U.N. Peace Medal, on the occasion of a U.N. Day concert at which the 95-year-old cellist-composer conducted his newest work. It was the world-renowned humanitarian's finest hour, and he accepted the award from Secretary General Thant as "the greatest honor I have ever received." At the end of the program in the General Assembly chamber, during which he got four standing ovations, Casals gave his international audience an unexpected thrill by playing his arrangement of a Spanish folk song on his 250-year-old Cremonese cello. In his advanced years, Casals has rarely played in public, but his bow hand was sure and "The Song of the Birds" flowed from the instrument with rich simplicity. Casals' latest composition, "Hymn to the United Nations," with a text by W. H. Auden, is a work of more inflated stature—a noble choral melody soaring to a drum-and-trumpet climax in the best traditions of 19th century hymnology. The text is one of Auden's most inept poems, one which stoops to such lines as, "As the world-clock goes tick and tock," but Casals' music illuminates Auden's message, however badly expressed. The United Nations singers obviously needed more rehearsal but they sang with endearing vigor under Casals' vigorous baton and the help of a surprise volunteer, Casals' 35-year-old wife, Marta, who said she "wanted to contribute some." Casals, who lives in self-imposed exile in Puerto Rico because he opposes the Franco regime in his native Spain, brought the festival Casals Chamber Orchestra from San Juan with him, and some of his closest musical collaborators—Alexander Schneider, Isaac Stern, Mieczyslaw Horowitz, Rudolf Serkin, and Eugene Istomin—performed in a program including Bach and Stravinsky works. Thant announced that the U.N. Peace Medal also had been given to Auden in absentia.

FALL CASH CARNIVAL NOW IN PROGRESS!!

Available for Ages 1 thru 85

Imagine getting up to $12,000 in Whole Life Insurance with no physical examination

POLICY BUILDS CASH VALUE EVERY YEAR... YOUR FIRST MONTH COSTS ONLY $1

Send for free facts

Unbelievable but true. You can actually get from $1,000 to $12,000 of life insurance (depending on your age) without taking a physical examination if your application is approved. Even if you are 85 years old, there's no physical examination to take!

You get whole life insurance—the kind that builds cash values year after year. Cash value that's like money in the bank. Cash values that you can accumulate over the years as an estate for your family. Or that you can borrow or even cash in later, if the need arises.

And here's an important point for people who have had insurance for years. Chances are that inflation has made the face value of your life insurance worth much less today than when you bought it. Now you have a golden opportunity to replace that loss with inflation-fighting insurance that builds cash value without taking any qualifying physical exam!

The cost is low. For example, at age 20, premium payments are only $5.68 a month for $4,000 of insurance. At age 40, the rate is only $5.00 a month for $2,000 coverage. (Rates depend upon age and amount of insurance selected). And, unlike term insurance, your low premium can never be increased as you grow older! Whatever coverage you choose, your first month costs only $1.

"Tititorea" stick dance ...

Tourists to visit Hawaii's Polynesian Culture Center

TWIN FALLS — There are many things to see and do in the State of Hawaii, but one of the most unusual is the Polynesian Cultural Center at Laie, on the island of Oahu.

The center, only 40 miles from Honolulu, will be one of the stops which the Magic of Hawaii tourists will make when they visit Hawaii this February.

The tour, sponsored by the Times-News of Twin Falls, leaves Feb. 14 for 11 days in the islands. The tour, which features Pan American Airways jet flights to and from the islands, will include visits on the four main islands of Hawaii.

The 20 acres of land devoted to preserving the Polynesian culture at the center. More than half a million tourists visit the center yearly. The center is owned and operated by the LDS Church and is a non-profit educational and cultural activity of the church. It was created to perpetuate and preserve the arts, crafts and cultures of Polynesia and to provide jobs and scholarships for Polynesian students attending the Church

College of Hawaii. More than 400 students work their way through college by singing, dancing and filling other assignments at the Polynesian Cultural Center.

The true story of the center began many years ago with Matthew Crowley, a young Mormon missionary to the Maori people of New Zealand. He was idealized by the Polynesian people and assisted them in many ways. Until his death in 1953 he continued to help them.

During his early missionary activities he could see that the culture, skills and traditions of the island people were falling into decline and devoted much time in looking for a method to preserve these facets of Polynesia. Before his death he outlined what appeared to be the beginning of a plan and while he did not envision the center as it is today, his idea was expanded and the concept of the center was born.

Information about the Magic of Hawaii '72 tour can be obtained from Ruth Miller, tour hostess, at the Times-News, Box 540, Twin Falls, or from Magic Carpet Travels, Box MM, Twin Falls.

Food and drink

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Danish men had the highest rate of work accidents in the food industry, but their women-folk ran up the highest rates of both accident and absence in the drinks industry, a report by the Employers' Union has shown. Women had the lowest rates in both accident and absence in the shoe and clothing industry, the report said. Men had their lowest accident rate in textiles, transport, communications and tobacco. Their highest rate of absence, besides food, was iron and metal industries.

Excellent vision screening programs are conducted in most communities and in most schools in most states.

"Staph-Rose" contributed to medicine

NEW YORK (UPI)—Marilyn Rose has contributed "staph Rose" to the annals of medicine.

"Staph Rose" is a stubborn strain of staphylococcus, first isolated from a series of 67 boils that made Mrs. Rose critically ill in 1955.

The strain of staph was used in the testing and development of a new antibiotic, minocin minocycline, approved by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). When the antibiotic was given to mice infected with "staph Rose," it kept them alive through the night. Other antibiotics didn't do that.

Mrs. Rose said in an interview that she contributed the strain of staph to the testing program somewhat by accident.

She was a secretary at the research laboratory where the drug was developed when the boils struck while she was recovering from abdominal surgery.

The series of boils occurred over a three-month period. Then her husband, Stanley, an electrician began getting them. He had 24. Their daughter, five, was sent to live with relatives lest she, too, get the infection.

Mrs. Rose of Pearl River, N.Y., recalled that all antibiotics failed to rid her system of the infection.

"It was the biggest crisis I ever had," she said. "The three months seemed like an eternity. I was so sick."

What finally happened was that doctors at the Medical Department of the Lederle Laboratories where Mrs. Rose worked tried what sometimes helps in such cases. They isolated the infectious agent in the boils and made a toxoid out of it.

Mrs. Rose then received injections of that for several months. Her body gradually developed antibodies—chemical soldiers—that battled down the pesky strain of staph.

Sitter's mom has wrong attitude

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last night I left my 15-month-old baby in the care of my regular baby-sitter from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. (The sitter is 16.)

My husband works the third shift, and he came home unexpectedly about 8 p. m. and went to bed.

When I got home at 9 p. m., my baby was gone and so was the baby sitter. I immediately called the sitter's mother who told me that she had come and gotten her daughter and taken my baby home with them because she (the sitter's mother) didn't want her daughter sitting while my husband was home!

The mother said she had nothing against my husband personally, but she had to look out for her daughter's welfare. When my husband heard this he just about hit the ceiling, and of course I was hurt. Is there something wrong with our attitude, Abby? Or is there something wrong with hers? WIFE AND MOTHER

DEAR WIFE: Here.

DEAR ABBY: My husband had one ear pierced when he was in the Army, and he always wears a gold earring in it. He knows I don't like it, but he likes it and continues to wear it anyway.

I have tried nagging him about it, and also ignoring it, and then I just gave up. The only thing I ask of him is to please not wear it when he comes around my place of work. He has paid no attention to my request and when he shows up where I work with that earring on, everyone snickers and makes remarks.

Now I have decided to do something that will embarrass him as much as he is embarrassing me without embarrassing myself. Have you any suggestions? Thanks. HATES EARRINGS ON MEN

DEAR HATES: That's a poor solution. It will boomerang. If you embarrass him in retaliation, he will feel justified in continuing to embarrass you.

DEAR ABBY: I am a married woman with a three-month-old baby and my problem is that I sleep too much. I get anywhere from 12 to 14 hours of sleep a day, and I could sleep some more if I didn't have so much work to do. No matter how much sleep I get, I'm still tired. Sometimes the more sleep I get, the more tired I am.

Before the baby came I got away with it, but now my house is seldom clean and I am always behind on my laundry and I never have a chance to fix myself up before my husband comes home. He is always mad at me, and I know it's my fault.

What do I do? Let my husband divorce me and get custody of the baby? Or should I just kill myself and leave my husband free to marry someone else who will be a better wife and mother? I don't know whether my problem is mental or medical, but for God's sake, don't tell me to go to a doctor. We can't pay the bills we have. LAZY

DEAR LAZY: I don't think you're lazy. I think you're sick. Telephone the MENTAL HEALTH SOCIETY nearest you. There's help for you even if you have no money. Or get in touch with your local FAMILY SERVICE organization. Please don't put this off. I want to hear from you after you have followed these suggestions. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to PEG, concerning the male nude, you said, "When you've seen one, you've seen 'em all."

Certainly the same thing could be said about the female nude, yet few men would agree with you.

That may be your view of the male body, but I for one can appreciate a lean, muscular, well-developed physique. I've seen one. And I don't want to see 'em all. MAUREEN

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 6760, Los Angeles, Cal. 90060. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Pantry program receives valuable civic support

TWIN FALLS — Through the efforts of a Community Action Agency pantry program, needy people in the Twin Falls area are being given food on a short-term basis.

The pantry program, which has received valuable support from several area businesses, according to Mrs. Pat Brown, coordinator, provides on the average two days balanced diet for individuals and their families.

The idea is a new one in Twin Falls and has taken over one time-consuming task previously handled by the Twin Falls County Commissioners. People who require short-term help in feeding their families previously went to the commissioners for a "food order." Now they are referred to the CAA outlet in the old hospital building on Addison Avenue West and are given items of food.

Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Richard DeVall, outreach worker in the program, are particularly pleased this week because their pantry is well-stocked — so well-stocked that they are looking for more room in which to store the food.

Grocery stores in the area were asked to contribute donated cans of fruits, vegetables, juices and other foods to the program. Three in Twin Falls, Buttreys, Albertson's and Shelby's and Max's Clover Farm in Filer, currently are donated to the program. The program also receives damaged boxes of soap, ripped sacks of sugar, flour and other items, which, while still perfectly usable and healthful, are not suitable for sale. Two dairies also are contributing, fresh milk. The contributions have saved considerably on the cash outlay the program must make.

Items which the program solicits and can use include any wild game and commercially canned foods. Residents of the area are asked to join the businesses and churches which already are assisting in the program.

William Chancey, chairman of the Twin Falls County Commissioners, said the CAA's assumption of the program has "worked quite well." He said he felt he "would be safe in saying" the budget in this particular area has been cut down. Besides, he said, it has released the commissioners from a previously time-consuming chore.

Mrs. Brown said that even though food is distributed on a short-term basis, her office does try to do follow up work in each case. This may mean assistance in applying for food stamps or in obtaining a job.

Aside from food, those in need also are often furnished with items of good, used clothing. Mrs. DeVall said there is a special need for infant wear.

Club aide visits

BURLEY — Charles H. Stratford, Salt Lake City, Rotary International district governor, will make his official visit to the Burley Rotary Club at noon Tuesday, at Ponderosa Inn, according to Dick Hulzinga, local club president.

The district governor will be the featured speaker during the noon luncheon at which wives of the members will be special guests.

Prior to the luncheon meeting, Stratford will meet at 11 a.m. with government authorities. Monday at 5 p.m. he will meet with the local club president and secretary and a club assembly will follow at 7:30 p.m., according to Hulzinga. All the meetings will be held at the Ponderosa Inn.

Stratford's Rotary experience includes district governor nominee 1971-72, district governor representative, president, vice president, treasurer, director and chairman of various committees of the Rotary Club of Sugar House.

He and his wife Tirza live in Salt Lake City with their nine children.

Chief of Youth Ranch discusses problems

RICHFIELD — Youth problems and life at the Idaho Youth Ranch at Rupert were discussed by H. Lee Childs, fourth district PTA president, at the Richfield PTA Thursday night. Childs is director of the Youth Ranch.

'Curly' title captures prize

SHOSHONE — Mrs. Gladys Dice won the prize for naming the beauty shop being opened Oct. 25 by Mrs. Ray Clayton and Mrs. John McKenzie in the northeast section of Shoshone.

Mrs. Dice entered the name "Cabin of Curly", which was declared the winner. The title fits the description of the business location, a cabin type cottage adjacent to the Clayton home on North Carmen Street.

Mrs. Francis Friestad, program chairman, introduced the speaker and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reynolds and son, Raymond, who presented guitar and vocal selections.

Mrs. S.G. Peterson, unit president, led discussion on a money raising project. She announced the third grade and senior class won the monthly awards for parent PTA attendance. She named Supp. Neil Anderson as representative to attend the Public Utilities Commission public meeting at 1:30 p.m. Nov. 11 in the American Legion hall. The PTA went on record as not in favor of a raise in telephone rates under present conditions being protested by the community.

Mrs. Ralph Riley Jr. was named parliamentarian by Mrs. Peterson. She also serves as Fourth District vice president.

An ecology display of leaves, rocks, and seeds was arranged in the cafeteria hallway by the sixth grade class of Mrs. Dale Sluder. Refreshments were served by eighth grade room-mothers, Mrs. Jodey Parker, Mrs. James Powell and Mrs. Bruce Sorenson.

Halloween parties by the room-mothers will be held Friday afternoon. The carnival will be sponsored at the school that evening by the high school student body.

Thank you '71's.

You made Amoco the best-selling gasoline of its kind.

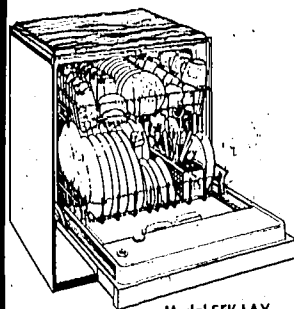

1971. It was a very good year. It was the year Detroit produced new cars with special engines to cut down on pollution. Even before the new cars arrived, we introduced a gasoline designed to meet the requirements of those new engines. We called it Amoco... the new car gasoline.

It helped reduce pollution in exhausts. Gave new cars with anti-pollution engines all the power and performance they were designed for. And helped their spark plugs and exhaust system last up to twice as long. Amoco became the best-selling gasoline of its kind. In the coming year, it'll be more of the same... More new anti-pollution cars to run on the "New Car Gasoline" Amoco.

1972. It's going to be a very good year.

You expect more from American and you get it.™

Richfield-sewer price 'now low'

By NINA BRUSH
Times-News Writer
RICHFIELD — If the proposed $151,000 bond issue for the Richfield sewer system doesn't gain public approval in the Nov. election, subsequent elections will require at least 20 per cent additional funding, Richfield City Councilman L. T. Sanders said Friday. He made his claim during a public meeting.

The projected sewer system has received an "unexpected" boost, a $23,500 federal grant, obtained with the help of Idaho Rep. Orval Hansen, Richfield Mayor C. W. Ward told a public meeting called to discuss details of the project Friday night at the Richfield school. Civil engineers Ranco Bure and Jack Straubhaar explained that of the total of $245,800 cost of the project, $151,000 will be provided by the bond issue; $24,900 will be provided by a grant from the Idaho Department of Health; and a joint grant from the Environmental Protection Administration and Federal Water Pollution Control Administration will add $40,700, and the Nelson-Ricks cheese processors will pay $20,200 as their share of the costs, since they will be major users of the facility.

In answer to questions, the engineers said 128 waterusers and potential users of the new system would each pay $6.25 per month in the sewer assessment, plus an average of $3.50 per month on the water bill, for a total of $9.75.

The annual payment for the entire system will amount to about $10,700, with each household paying $2 per foot of line for excavation to the main line.

ready for bid next spring. Alex Schaefer, Jerome, representing the Idaho Health Department, said Richfield has a "good chance" for a grant from the state if the bond issue is endorsed, but the chance might not be renewed if another election is required. School Supt. Neil Andreason told the audience that the final $8,000 payment on the Richfield High School will be paid in January, reducing the district's bonded indebtedness. Mayor Ward concluded by reminding the proponents that the bond issue must pass by a two-thirds majority in the Nov. 2 election.

Imports hurt U.S. steelmen

OREM, Utah (UPI) — Officials of United States Steel Corp.'s Geneva Works say that tremendous imports of foreign steel products have drastically hurt Utah and American steel production.

A Geneva spokesman said recent cutbacks in operations at U.S. Steel's Orem facility can be directly traced to competition from Japanese steel manufacturers.

The Utah steel officials said they were in complete agreement with a statement issued Thursday night by the president of Arco Steel Corp., connecting increased imports and increased layoffs.

Arco President William Verity, addressing a stockholders meeting in Middletown, Ohio, said continued imports of steel into the United States has resulted in the layoff of some 150,000 steelworkers nationally.

Geneva officials said that due to heavy competition on the West Coast they have cutback the Orem plant's workforce from "a high of around 5,000 to just over 4,000 men currently."

Verity said, "Foreign imports took more than half the market of certain types of stainless steel produced by Arco" and also pointed out a continued increase in imports of carbon steel products.

The U.S. Steel officials noted the Geneva Works is now operating "at only 60 to 65 per cent of capacity because of the tremendous imports coming into the West Coast, our prime marketing area."

Verity said he is "confident that the impact of these imports on our trade balance and on employment opportunities played a role in President Nixon's decision to initiate his new economic program."

He added that if Congress and all segments of the economy "support the President's new economic program we are confident that 1972 can be a turnaround year for the steel industry."

Bids set for T.F. mailrun

TWIN FALLS — Bids for providing air mail transportation service from the Twin Falls Post Office to the City County Airport will be received until Nov. 12 at the post office, Lloyd Libert, postmaster, announced Saturday.

He said the contract will run from Jan. 1, 1972 to June 30, 1975 and will require the contractor to meet all scheduled flights with normal and air lift mail to be delivered out of or received in Twin Falls.

Libert said the Post Office generally awards a four year contract but the present contractor has terminated his service and some arrangements must be made to finish out the current year as well as award a new contract.

The carrier will be required to have a vehicle with at least a 130 cubic foot load space capacity and to meet other federal contract requirements. Additional information is available at the Twin Falls Post Office. Payment will be on a per trip basis, Libert said.

DIRECTOR OF Parks Terry Duffin at Rupert, left, and George MacDonald, city councilman, discuss plans for opening of senior citizens center at Rupert.

Rupert will open new senior citizen's center

RUPERT — The Rupert Senior Citizen Center will be open for business in a few weeks, and with its dedication Terry Duffin will have achieved a major objective in his position as director of parks and recreation for the city.

Duffin, who assumed his duties at the beginning of this year, estimates he has spent almost a fifth of his time thus far in getting the center established. He has succeeded in securing a three-year appropriation of federal funds to help provide necessary facilities and staff workers, and has gained the volunteer assistance of several workmen in remodeling the facility.

"When I was interviewed for the job," Duffin said, "I asked about programs for senior residents. I was told there was nothing at all for them here."

Shortly after coming to Rupert, the director established a board of directors composed of senior residents to oversee the center. Emil Oeck is presently the chairman. "The board hasn't met for several months," Duffin said, "but it's going to start meeting again on a regular basis to interpret the needs of the group."

The program he has envisioned will enable citizens 55 years old or older to maintain their involvement in the community. "Too many people die an emotional, psychological or spiritual death upon retirement," he told the Rupert Chamber of Commerce this week, and the program he has outlined, he says, will help alleviate that problem.

"There will be four general areas of programming," Duffin said, "including recreation and leisure time, adult education, community service and social services." Included in recreation will be arts and crafts and ceramics, as well as card playing and pool.

Duffin hopes to be able to offer courses in speech and other areas in the adult education program, as well as arrange for visiting lecturers to address the senior residents on a variety of topics.

Community services will include such activities as repairing toys for needy children at Christmas time, the director said, and an attempt also will be made to provide drivers for elderly people who are confined to wheel chairs or are otherwise unable to get outdoors frequently.

The facilities Duffin has located to house the center is the spacious two-story Legion Hall. Starting in May, volunteers have now virtually completed their renovation, providing new wood paneling and carpeting, as well as a fresh coat of paint. Only minor painting and kitchen repair work remain to be done.

The center will probably be open eight hours a day, Duffin said, when it is fully operational. A part-time staff worker will help the director coordinate the activities.

Debate on consolidation of Burley schools continues

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News Writer

BURLEY — The debate over the consolidation of high school education continued this week in Cassia County, opening trustee meetings to public debate to a degree rarely seen before and throwing the trustees themselves into the glare of unaccustomed spotlights.

School trustee meetings are normally quiet, if long affairs, with five men and women, elected representatives of the people, meeting around a conference table with school administrators and legal counsel.

The work is hardly glorious, given the type of rulings the trustees are called upon to make, but they keep at it, often with no more than a handful of citizens in attendance, and somehow the schools stay open, with the teachers teaching and the students learning.

But all that has changed in the past month.

Cassia County is seriously split over the proposed consolidated school. Five petitions have been presented thus far to the trustees, involving well over 1,000 names. They have come from taxpayers favoring consolidation, taxpayers opposing, students favoring consolidation and students opposing.

It was against this background that acting Chairman William F. Matthews told Thursday's meeting that "I wish we didn't have to decide on this thing, but that's what we're here for."

Even if the residents in the county have engaged in participatory democracy for the past month, the final decision is up to the trustees and they are fully aware of that, as Matthews showed in his statement.

So in the end Thursday night, after the petitions had been presented and the statements made from the floor, the meeting didn't adjourn, but drifted into a different phase.

There was no announcement, but the trustees and officials gathered at one end of their table, sports jackets removed, and talked quietly among themselves. Someone brought in several bottles of soda pop, and occasionally one of the interested observers would stop by to interject a few words, but it was nearly midnight, and most of the participants had long since left the meeting hall.

Once again, as they have in the past, the trustees postponed their final decision. They adopted a motion to maintain junior high schools in Oakley and Declo with a minimum of 200 students, but said nothing at all officially about placing a consolidated school before the voters to approve or disapprove as they wish.

It is unlikely at this point that the trustees have any choice in the matter. They have all said that, in one way or another, for nearly two weeks. Still, they are also aware that the county is seriously split over the issue. A Declo resident rose from his seat and told the trustees, "If you force this proposal down the throats of us who are opposed and bitterly opposed, then we'll have a split in this county that will see us all to our graves."

Throughout it all the trustees have tried to remain calm. They have been insulted verbally for three weeks, both privately and publicly. They are not politicians, any of them, and they will be happy when the decision is taken off their hands and put before the voters. But they know the present school facilities are inadequate as they exist and they are torn between their constituencies and the hard facts of educational life.

Still, they have postponed their decision several times now, and the people are becoming impatient. "I think they miss their chairman," said one person closely involved in the issue this week, a belief which is widely shared.

Tax group opposes airport authority

GOODING — Members of the Gooding County Tax Equality Association today announced their opposition to a Regional Airport Authority and urged residents of the county to review the cost factor before casting their votes Tuesday.

In a meeting last week the group voted to oppose the proposed regional airport project and Alan Erwin, association president, said the results of the meeting have been submitted to the Gooding county commissioners who have also approved their position.

Erwin said the group reviewed the Regional Airport Authority law and agreed the cost of participating in such a project would be prohibitive to Gooding County taxpayers. He said if the authority is established on an eight-county basis as proposed in the Tuesday election, cost to Gooding County just for the operating expenses of the authority for immediate needs would be as high as $17,000.

The law gives the regional airport authority the right to levy one mill per year for such operating expenses.

In order to establish the airport there must be a bond election to pass general obligation bonds. These could by law be up to two percent of the assessed valuation of the county or up to $340,000 in Gooding County, Erwin said.

He said estimates of the cost of the airport range from $8.5 to $12 million which he said would pose a tax burden on the participating counties.

Other objections of the association included the provision of House Bill 459 (Regional Airport Bill) for three or more counties voting in the affirmative to receive an order from the Idaho Department of Aeronautics for forming a regional airport district.

"Counties which vote in the negative will be excluded from the Regional Airport Authority," Erwin quoted the law as saying. "This means for example, Camas, Lincoln and Gooding counties, or any other three small counties could be stuck for the full cost and responsibility of a regional airport."

Association members also said they object to the project on grounds Gooding County residents would be forced to provide double taxation, because of cost of operating the Gooding airport for local planes.

Erwin said members object to the law having no provisions to cancel the authority once it has been voted in, and said because of the sparse population in Gooding County there is no drawing power afforded in other regions.

Probe continues

TWIN FALLS — City police in Twin Falls are continuing their investigation of an armed robbery reported late Saturday night at Marty's IGA Market, 142 South Park Ave.

Martin Richter, owner, told officers two armed men entered the store about 10 p.m. Saturday and took $500 from him. He said both men carried pistols and after taking the money they fled in an older model vehicle.

Road blocks were maintained for sometime Saturday night but officers have been unable to locate the vehicle or any reasonable suspects.

Election details

BURLEY — Eight polling places for Tuesday's regional airport election have been designated by the Cassia County Commissioners.

The polls will be open from noon to 8 p.m. at each of the polling places.

To be eligible to vote in Cassia County a person must be a citizen of the United States, must have resided in the state of Idaho for a period of at least six months and in Cassia County for a period of at least 30 days, and must be 18 years old or over.

Residents need not be registered voters, but will be required to sign an elector's oath prior to receiving the official ballot.

Voting places include the Burley High School; Burley Junior High School; Parsons School House; Oakley City Office; Declo City Office; Malta REA office, Almo School and Albion City office.

Persons are urged to vote at the polling place nearest their residence.

Gooding sets vote on wine, airport issues

GOODING — Voter Registration closed at 8 p.m. Saturday in Gooding for Tuesday's special county election.

Mrs. Vivian Burden, county clerk, said anyone wishing to vote on the retail grocery store wine sales must be registered.

Voters also will vote Tuesday for the purpose of determining whether a Regional Airport Authority will be established.

Mrs. Burden said no registration is required for the regional airport election, but voters will be required to sign an election oath attesting to qualifications.

Persons who are 18 years or older and have been residents of the state of Idaho for six months and residents of Gooding County for 30 days, provided they are citizens of the United States and have not been convicted of a felony, are eligible to register and vote, Mrs. Burden said.

According to Mrs. Burden the following buildings have been designated as polling places: northwest Gooding, War Memorial Hall; northeast Gooding, Assembly of God Church; east Gooding, Gooding Grade School; south Gooding, Grange Hall and west Gooding, Episcopal Church.

Vote Tuesday

FAIRFIELD — Residents of Camas County, voting only on the airport authority, will cast ballots at the county courthouse in Fairfield.

Tuttle, Tuttle Grange; Bliss, Bliss Grange; Wendell, Methodist Church; west Wendell, City Hall; Orchard Valley, Grange Hall; West Point, Grange Hall and Hugerman, American Legion hall.

Rolls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Blaine to have five poll sites

HAILEY — Five polling places have been set up in Blaine County for the regional airport election Tuesday, according to County Clerk George McCoy.

Citizens can vote at the library in Ketchum, Hailey City Hall, Bellevue Library, the school house in Carey, and the Percy Miller residence, Yale. McCoy said the polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and that county residents can vote at any one of the polls.

Voters must have lived in the state for six months and in the county for 30 days. McCoy said residents need not be registered to vote, but he said that the voters must take an elector's oath at the time of voting.

Queen

FAIRFIELD — Debbie Weeks, senior class princess, was crowned Camas County High School Homecoming Queen Friday.

Miss Weeks is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Weeks.

Homecoming festivities included an evening bonfire, a parade around the town and a dance to conclude the activities. Camas County and Carey met in the football game with Camas County continuing its winning streak.

question of legalized sale of wine in grocery stores.

In these two counties, polls open at 8 a.m. and remain open until 8 p.m. Persons must be registered in these counties to vote on the wine issue, but not the airport question. In Blaine County polls also open at 8 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

In the five other counties, Minidoka, Cassia, Jerome Lincoln and Camas, polls open at noon and close at 8 p.m. In all counties no registration is needed for the airport election but voters will be asked to sign an oath as to their qualifications in age and length of time in the state and county.

In Twin Falls County, voting machines will be used which is the election that is expected to speed results from the 48 precincts on the two questions.

Valley Briefs

TWIN FALLS — Methodist Men's Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the church fellowship hall. Walter Ross, president, said a film will be shown and refreshments served.

TWIN FALLS — Dr. C.R. Fox, Twin Falls and Sun City, Ariz., was admitted to Boswell Hospital, Sun City, for surgery. He is reported to be recuperating and should return to his home, 10702 Kelso Drive, Sun City, Ariz. 85351, this week.

Lincoln combines places for voting

SHOSHONE — There will be a consolidation of polling places for the Tuesday regional airport and grocery store sale of wine elections, Mrs. Luella Kinsey, Lincoln County clerk, said Friday.

The elections, set for Tuesday, from noon until 8 p.m., will be carried out at three polling places instead of the usual five. Shoshone precincts one, two and three will vote at the courthouse. At Richfield, voters will go to the polls at the Legion Hall and at Dietrich, the Grange Hall, while at Kimarna they will vote at the Richard Ward residence.

Louise Braun will be senior judge for the Shoshone precincts; Mrs. Eva Sorenson, for Richfield; Mrs. Dolores Towne, Dietrich, and Mrs. Joe Taylor, Kimarna.

Employee meet set

JEROME — A field representative of the Public Employees Retirement System will speak to members of the Magic Valley Chapter of the Idaho State Employees Association Tuesday.

Chump Lake, Boise, will explain the benefits from the retirement system and answer any questions. The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at the highway department's shop, according to Ivan Mink, chapter president.

Minidoka plans 5 voting sites

RUPERT — Minidoka County Commissioners have designated five polling places for use in the coming Tuesday's regional airport authority election.

Polling places include the Minidoka County Courthouse; Acaquila School; A & B Irrigation, watermaster office, 700 North Meridian Road; Paul Grange Hall, and Heyburn City Office. The polls open at noon and will close at 8 p.m.

Residents of Minidoka County need not be registered voters to vote.

Each person who wishes to vote must sign an elector's oath.

Two polling places slated at Jerome

JEROME — Jerome County voters will go to the polls Tuesday to decide whether a regional airport authority should be established.

Mrs. Ella McVey, county clerk, said Jerome County polling places will include Pioneer Hall in Jerome, while Eden, Hazelton and Greenwood precincts will vote at the Hazelton City Hall.

Search for peace

This is the ninth in a series of 12 articles excerpted from "The Vantage Point," the book by former President Lyndon B. Johnson in which he recalls his five years in the White House. In this installment Johnson discusses the effectiveness of Vietnam bombing pauses and the efforts for peace.

By Lyndon B. Johnson

In the summer of 1965 I came to the painful conclusion that an independent South Vietnam could survive only if the United States and other nations went to its aid with their own fighting forces.

From then until I left the Presidency, we had three principal goals: to insure that aggression did not succeed; to make it possible for the South Vietnamese to build their country and their future in their own way; and to convince Hanoi that working out a peaceful settlement was to the advantage of all concerned.

Those three main strands of action — defeating aggression, building a nation, and searching for peace — were tightly braided together in all that we, the other allies, and the Vietnamese tried to accomplish over the next three and a half years.

My advisers and I kept searching for some way to bring the war to an end by diplomatic means rather than on the battlefield. Few Americans realize how intensive — and extensive — that effort was over the years. Only a handful of my closest advisers knew of all the many attempts we made to get into a dialogue with Hanoi.

The fact is that from 1965 until January 1969 we were in virtually continuous contact, either directly or through intermediaries, with leaders in Hanoi or their representatives.

Hardly a month passed throughout that period in which we did not make some effort to open the gateway to peace. Until March 31, 1968, every attempt we made was ignored or rejected by the North Vietnamese.

The bombing pause in May 1965 had been a total failure. It produced nothing, and as usual, the critics shifted ground. The trouble, they insisted, was that the pause had been too short. If we had just held off a little longer, we might have obtained results.

We agreed with our South Vietnamese allies on a thirty-hour truce, including a halt in the bombing of the North, beginning on Christmas Eve, 1965. We decided to extend that suspension several days.

Throughout the pause in the bombing, Hanoi continued to rush men and supplies toward the demilitarized zone and into the supply lines through Laos, which were known as the Ho Chi Minh Trail. North Vietnam's actions, and its words, once again said "no" to peace. It was obvious that nothing "good" had happened, as diplomats friendly to Hanoi had forecast.

Most people forgot, or ignored, this central fact: We had stopped the bombing, not once or twice, but eight different times from 1965 to the beginning of 1968. Five other times we had ruled out attacks on military targets in or around Hanoi and Haiphong for extended periods. The net result of all these bombing pauses was zero. Indeed, it was less than zero for us, because the enemy used every pause to strengthen its position, hastily pushing men and supplies and equipment down the roads of North Vietnam for massive infiltration into the South.

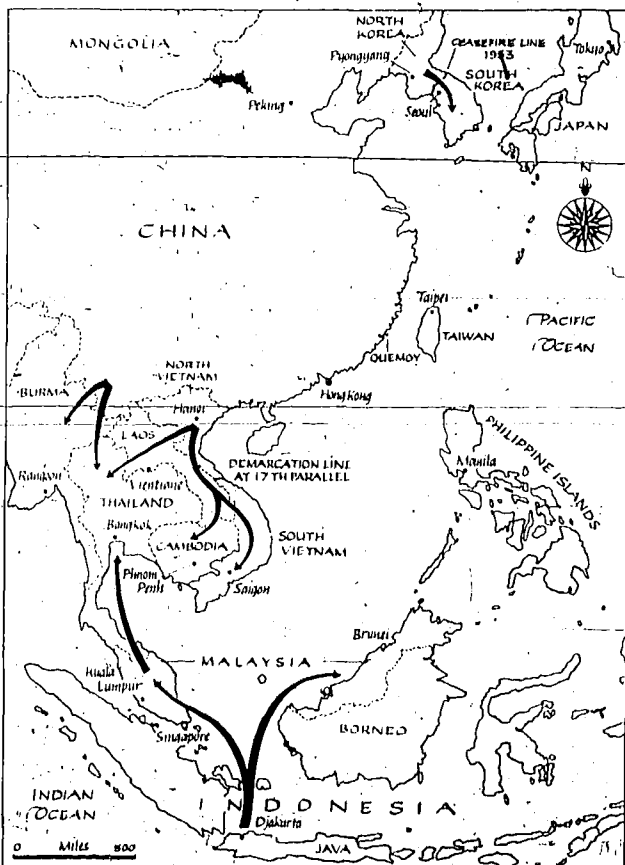

After the thirty-seven-day bombing pause, my principal advisers unanimously agreed that only one development would end the war — Hanoi's conviction that North Vietnam could not win militarily.

Clearly the North Vietnamese leaders had not yet reached that conclusion. Their forces had suffered heavy losses in 1965; yet their total strength had grown as a result of increased infiltration and intensive recruitment. Our reports showed that infiltration was continuing at a high level in the first months of 1966.

Under the military rule of thumb — that in a guerrilla war the defending forces need ten men for every guerrilla — more than 2 million men would be needed to cope with the Viet Cong-North Vietnamese forces then in the South.

The South Vietnamese had about 600,000 men under arms, half in their regular armed forces and half in regional forces, popular forces, combat police, and other units.

"The bombing pause in May 1965 had been a total failure. It produced nothing . . ."

Historic meeting

U.S. strength had grown to about 184,000 at the end of 1965. South Korea had sent its crack Capital Division and a marine brigade, a total of about 21,000. The Australians had assigned a combat battalion, which along with support forces, an air unit, and military advisers brought their total commitment to about 1,500 men. A New Zealand artillery battery was operating with the Australians. Thus the total allied force numbered slightly more than 800,000 — a ration of less than 4 to 1.

In July 1965, when we decided to send the first large body of American combat forces into Vietnam, military planners in the Pentagon and on the staff of the Joint Chiefs were thinking in terms of assigning approximately 175,000 men in 1965 and an additional 100,000 in 1966. By the end of the year they were urging that the total be 400,000 rather than 275,000.

I held off any decision on sending additional troops until we had tried the long bombing pause, but after January 31, 1966, the need for action was apparent.

Meanwhile, Vice President Humphrey had returned from his Asian tour with good news. The South Koreans were thinking of sending an additional army division plus a regiment of marines to Vietnam. That would boost their total strength to about 45,000 men. The Australians were planning to triple the size of their commitment, raising their force to 4,500 men. The Philippine government was preparing to send an engineer battalion with its own security force attached, numbering about 2,000 men in all.

Against the background of this increased effort by the allies and the South Vietnamese — as well as the expanded activities of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong — I approved an increase in the American effort.

The plan worked out by McNamara, the Joint Chiefs, and General Westmoreland called for raised the total level of our forces in all services to about 383,500 by the end of 1968 and to 425,000 by the middle of 1969. With that force, General Westmoreland was confident that the allies could not only meet the increasing threat from the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong; they could also increasingly move to the offensive.

From the very beginning of my presidency I did everything I could to make one fact clear: that the United States sought only a peaceful settlement to the turmoil that had raged in Vietnam for so many years. Until January 20, 1969, the search for a settlement continued.

We did everything we could to inform Hanoi that we were ready to pull our forces out as soon as an honorable and lasting arrangement for peace could be reached. We explored every avenue that offered the faintest hope of leading to useful talks with the enemy.

At times we were in direct contact with Hanoi's representatives. At other times we reached them through a third government. In some cases, private citizens were encouraged to pursue contacts that we thought might lead to serious talks. We were in touch regularly with Hanoi either directly or indirectly from early 1965 to the opening of the Paris peace talks in May 1968.

Then too there was never any shortage of self-appointed "mediators" who, without our encouragement and often even our knowledge, tried to make their own contacts. I did not question the good intentions and sincerity of many of these free-lance "peacemakers," but I do think that many of their spontaneous efforts may have harmed more than they helped.

I know they often did more to confuse issues than to clarify them. We could never be certain whether we were hearing accurate reports of what Hanoi had said — or what Hanoi wanted us to hear — or whether we were hearing wishful thinking about what Hanoi might be willing to do under various circumstances.

As I look back, I think that we perhaps tried too hard to spell out our honest desire for peace. At one time or another we were in touch with virtually every government or other diplomatic source that might have been able to make contact with the North Vietnamese.

Time and time again we passed along our views: We are ready to talk in private or in public; we will meet quietly in any capital; we will stop the bombing if you will do something on your part to lower the level of fighting. These numerous appeals through so many channels may well have convinced the North Vietnamese that we wanted peace at any price.

Never once was there a clear sign that Ho Chi Minh had a genuine interest in bargaining for peace. Never, through any channel or from any serious contact, did we receive any message that differed significantly from the tough line that Hanoi repeated over and over again: Stop all the bombing, get out of Vietnam, and accept our terms for peace.

The North Vietnamese never gave the slightest sign that they were ready to consider reducing the Communists' half of the war or to negotiate seriously the terms of a fair peace settlement.

For planning purposes, General Westmoreland had suggested that we consider a force increase of 100,000 men above those already authorized. As had always been the case, this was a contingency figure. The Secretary of Defense, General Wheeler and General Westmoreland had already begun to work over the proposal, cutting it here and there, looking for alternatives and for ways to make the forces already in Vietnam more effective.

When they came back to me, July 13, McNamara reported that there was "complete accord" on how to proceed. They had agreed that nineteen or twenty combat battalions would be required and that a force increase of about 50,000 men in all categories was needed. That would raise our authorized total strength in Vietnam to 525,000 men at the end of June 1968.

As we studied this proposal and went over it in detail, we were assured of help from our allies. Before the end of July Prime Minister Ky announced that Vietnamese forces would be increased by 85,000 men. In addition, the South Vietnamese were considering lowering their draft age to eighteen. Meanwhile, the Thai Volunteer Regiment had begun to arrive in Vietnam and was scheduled to be in position in September.

After careful study, I accepted the recommendation of my military advisers. At a news conference, on August 3, I announced that I had approved the deployment of an additional 45,000 to 50,000 men and that the new ceiling would be 525,000 men in all services for the year ahead.

On October 23, 1967, for the first time in two months, our planes hit a military target within ten miles of Hanoi.

We did not know then, but we soon learned, that Hanoi was already feverishly preparing its largest and most ambitious military campaign of the war. Reinforcements were crowding the infiltration trails and many had already arrived in South Vietnam.

Throughout the fall of 1967 my advisers and I discussed a bombing halt many times. We were all in favor of trying again as soon as we had some reasonable indication that such a move offered a shred of hope. Whether another halt, actually produced talks or not, it would at least show — as I said at one of these meetings — that we were ready to "go the last mile" to find peace.

But over these same months we were also watching a mammoth build-up of enemy troops and supplies. Our intelligence apparatus informed us conclusively that the Communists were preparing for an all-out assault.

Peaceful setting

The day before (June 21, 1967), my old friend Gov. Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey had called the White House and talked to Walt Rostow. Hughes had been reading about the problems of arranging a Johnson-Kosygin meeting. Why not agree on some site in New Jersey? he asked. Then he suggested such possible places as Rutgers and Princeton universities. Rostow promised him we would give his suggestion serious thought and would be back in touch.

Dick Hughes's suggestion was in my mind when I received the report of Rusk's talk with Kosygin on Thursday afternoon. I decided to pursue the New Jersey offer further. I asked Marvin Watson to call Hughes and tell him that we were interested if he could suggest a good site — not a big city, but one close to an airport, and in a quiet setting. Hughes had been thinking hard during the night and had decided that Glassboro would be ideal.

It was a small, peaceful college town. It was near the midpoint between New York and Washington. And it was only eighteen miles from Philadelphia International Airport and ten miles from the New Jersey Turnpike. Col. James U. Cross, my military aide and chief pilot, was with me in my bedroom along with Rostow. That able pilot and navigator sat on the bed beside me and pored over a New Jersey road map trying to locate Glassboro. Finally, he said: "Here it is."

I thought to myself: "That little town doesn't know what it's for; it will really be on the map in twenty-four hours."

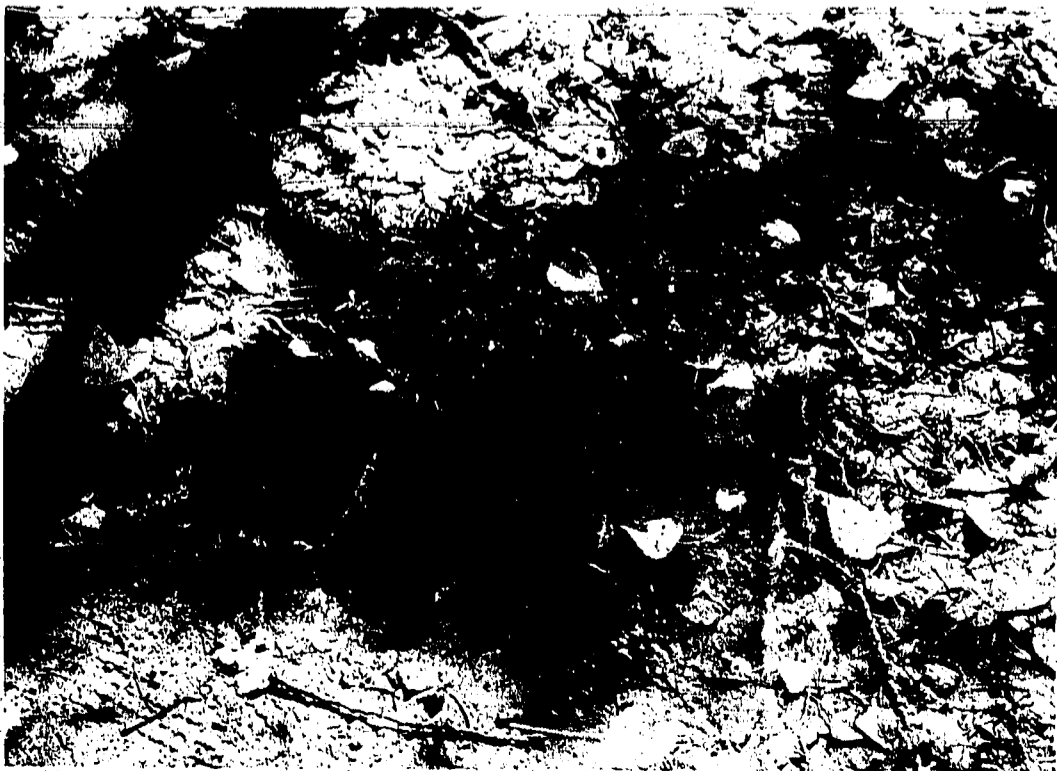

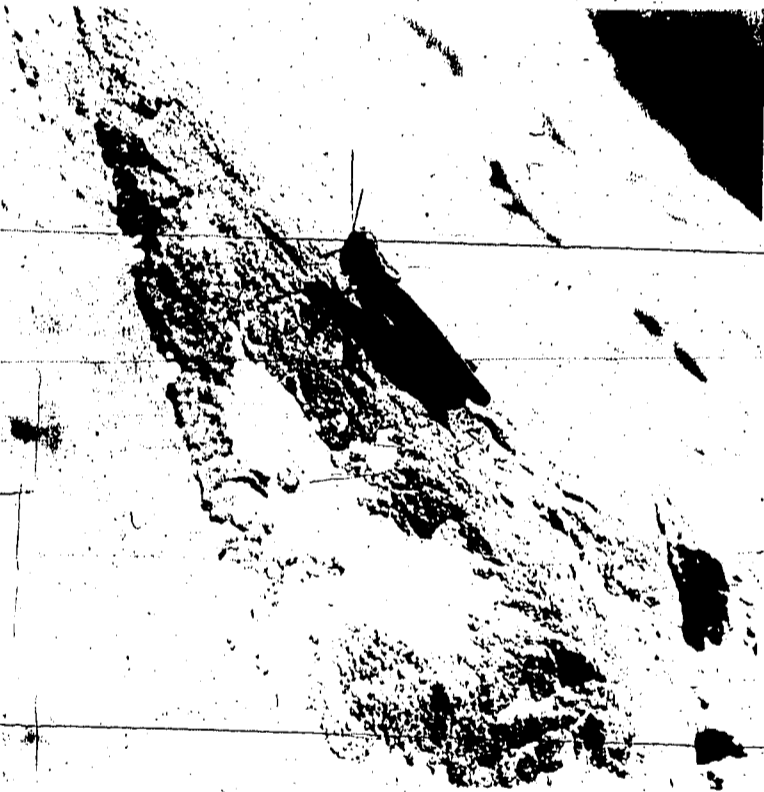

— From "The Vantage Point," by Lyndon B. Johnson

Douglass-led Bears surprise Detroit 28-23

DETROIT (UPI)—Left-handed quarterback Bobby Douglass, who lived with his coach all week to make his first start in the season, threw two touchdown passes and plunged over for the game-winning score from a yard out early in the fourth quarter Sunday to lead the Chicago Bears to a 28-23 National Football Conference win over the Detroit Lions.

Detroit only made one mistake in the game and that was when quarterback Greg Landry threw an interception at the end of the third quarter and Chicago drove it in from the Lions' 31. Douglass capped the drive with his one-yard plunge with 10:56 to play in the game.

The Bears defense stopped Detroit three times thereafter and four consecutive interceptions on the Chicago 36 enabled the Bears to take over the ball and run out the clock.

Hughes dies of heart attack

DETROIT (UPI)—Wide receiver Chuck Hughes of the Detroit Lions died of an apparent heart attack Sunday less than an hour after he collapsed on a National Football League playing field. He was 28.

Just talked to the hospital and they just pronounced him dead," an obviously shaken Lions team physician Dr. Richard A. Thompson said outside the Detroit dressing room. Time of death was approximately 4:30 p.m. EST. Hughes, believed to be the first player to suffer an apparently fatal heart attack in an actual game, collapsed on the Chicago 15 yard line with 62 seconds left in the game and never regained consciousness.

The two team physicians and trainers attempted to revive him without success.

"We thought we had him when we got it (his heart) going again, but..." and Dr. Thompson was unable to continue.

One was admitted to the Detroit dressing room after the game but the players all filed out by ones and twos somberly. Ernie Mann and Charlie Sanders broke down and wept outside the dressing room after leaving of their teammates.

Four field goals help 49ers win

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—John Brodie hit Dick Witcher with a 50-yard touchdown pass in the fourth quarter Sunday to go with Bruce Gossett's four field goals and give the San Francisco 49ers a 28-14 win over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The 49ers, setting a new team penalty record of 168 yards, held a 10-7 lead at the end of the first half after Gossett kicked a field goal of 12 yards, and Tommy Hart ran 63 yards to the end zone with a fumble by St. Louis Quarterback Pete Beathard. The old San Francisco record for penalty yardage in a game was 148 yards set in 1958 against the Philadelphia Eagles.

Cowboys shatter Patriots

IRVING, Tex. (UPI)—Roger Staubach hit Bob Hayes for two touchdowns and ran for another Sunday to guide the Dallas Cowboys to an explosive 44-21 victory over the New England Patriots that proved a fitting inauguration for their plush Texas Stadium.

Staubach threw for 35 and 28-yard touchdowns and rolled out for two yards for a three-point touchdown in the third quarter to the delight of a 40,000 crowd of 65,708 headed former President Lyndon B. Johnson and Sen. Eisenhower.

Shiner, filling in at quarterback for injured Bob Berry, passed for two touchdowns and ran for a third in the first 22 minutes Sunday to lead the Atlanta Falcons to a 28-6 victory over the New Orleans Saints.

Shiner, acquired by the Falcons during the exhibition season, had not played for the Falcons before he came in late in the first half last week when Berry, No. 2 passer in the NFL, pulled a hamstring muscle in his left thigh.

But Shiner's inactivity did not show Sunday as he ran four yards for Atlanta's first touchdown 6:33 after the game began, threw a 17-yard touchdown pass to Harmon Wages with 1:24 left in the first period and threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to Jim Mitchell 6:30 into the second period.

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Linebacker Fred Forsberg, picked off by Bill Nelsen pass and scrambled 40 yards for a touchdown and Ron Horn tossed a seven-yard scoring pass and Bobby Anderson ran six yards for another TD, as the Denver Broncos pulled to a 27-0 victory over Cleveland Sunday shutting out the Browns for the first time since 1950.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The Philadelphia Eagles, turning three fumble recoveries into field goals by rookie Happy Pollard, won their first game of the season 23-7 over the New York Giants Sunday, after five consecutive losses.

The Eagles, last in the National Football Conference's Eastern Division in rushing, moved entirely on the ground 47 yards for a 10-yard touchdown run by rookie Al Davis in the first quarter.

They also marched 57 yards, entirely on the ground, for another score in the fourth quarter. It was capped by an 11-yard touchdown run by Larry Watkins.

Denver marched from its own 33 with 8:58 left in the first half before Anderson, on second and five barreled over left guard to put the Broncos in front, 14-0.

Frank Pitts took Dave Whittington's kickoff 30 yards deep in the end zone and returned it 23 yards to the Cleveland 20. Bo Scalet, on a delay over left tackle, was stopped by Forsberg at the line of scrimmage for 10 yards.

The Broncos, now 2-3-1 in the season, controlled the ball for 10 straight minutes in the first quarter before Bill Masters scored on a pass from Horn, capping a 15-play, 82-yard drive.

Casper ends losing spell, wins Kaiser

NAPA, Calif. (UPI)—Billy Casper snapped a 14-month losing slump with a final round 68 Sunday to win the $150,000 Kaiser International Open by four strokes with a record 73-hole score of 19 under par 267.

It was the 45th career victory for Casper, but his first since he won the 1970 AVCO classic, and it was worth $30,000, pushing his 1971 earnings past the $100,000 mark, the sixth straight year he has reached that plateau.

Steelers keep Oilers winless

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—John Fuqua raced 30 yards for a touchdown with 3:07 to play to cap a last quarter comeback and give the Pittsburgh Steelers a 23-16 victory over the winless Houston Oilers Sunday.

Casper played near perfect golf in the four rounds of the Kaiser, completely mastering Sly's old's two courses. He finished with 21 birdies and only two bogeys for 72 holes as he beat the old Kaiser record of 15 under par he shared with Jack Nicklaus, George Archer, Don January and Kermit Zoske.

The Steelers, held without a touchdown for more than three and a half quarters because of seven 15-yard penalties against their stumbling offense and four pass interceptions, tied the game at 16-16 when quarterback Terry Bradshaw scored on a one-yard sneak with 4:22 to play.

Casper's four rounds were 67-65-69-68, and he finally broke his slump with a new set of iron over a course he likes to play.

Now will leave the tournament in Japan and one in Mexico before winding up the year in the Disneyland West at Orlando the first week of December.

Washington Sunday, dealing the last unbeaten team in the NFL its first loss of the season.

Taylor made his grab with 3:59 left, completing a 64-yard drive. Len Dawson, held to one completion in the first half, was sneered by defensive end Verlon Biggs as he released the pass and Taylor outran cornerback Pat Fischer before leaping for the ball in the end zone.

The victory was the Chiefs' fifth straight against one loss, while the Redskins dropped to 5-1.

Washington's Charlie Taylor scored two first half touchdowns, but suffered a possible fractured ankle scoring the second one when he was tackled crossing the goal by Kansas City cornerback Emmitt Thomps.

Taylor was taken to the hospital for X-rays after hailing in seven passes for 125 yards in the first half.

The Chiefs set the stage for the dramatic finish by charging 82 yards in seven plays, Dawson passing 16 yards to Elmo Wright for the tying touchdown with 10:05 to play.

The big play in the drive was a 51-yard pass to Wright, who made a diving catch.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Roman Gabriel, tripling his previous output for the season, threw three touchdown passes Sunday to lead the Los Angeles Rams to a 30-13 National Football League win over the Green Bay Packers before a rain-dampened crowd of 75,351.

Ram defenders played a big part in the victory, intercepting three Packer passes, two of which were converted into Los Angeles scores.

On the first scrimmage play of the game, the Packers had the ball on their own 31 and Scott Hunter threw a pass that was intercepted by Dave Edmunds.

Edmunds returned the ball 32 yards to the Packer 20 and three plays later Gabriel hit tight end Bob Klein on a 19-yard touchdown pass.

Blanda rallies Oakland to last-minute win over Bengals

OAKLAND (UPI)—Veteran quarterback George Blanda came off the bench Sunday to resume his "miracle man" tricks of last season and running back Mary Hubbard scored three touchdowns as the Oakland Raiders struggled to a 31-27 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals.

the period on a 17-yard swing pass from Blanda. The heroes of Blanda and Hubbard overshadowed a second half Bengal comeback led by quarterback Ken Anderson, a rookie from obscure Augustana College of Illinois.

Anderson passed for two touchdowns and ran for another in the second half, to put a scare into the favored Raiders, who won their fifth game without a loss in the AFC Western Division. The Bengals dropped to a 1-5 mark in the AFC Central Division.

spades and taken a small loss, but the bidding had been most instructive. East was marked with an ace!

Jim: "It was easy for West to find a successful line of defense. He led his singleton ace of clubs."

Oswald: "West still had the problem of deciding which ace his partner held."

but East cooperated by playing the eight of clubs. He could not possibly want a club continuation so he had to be showing the ace of the higher suit.

Jim: "The message was read. A spade lead and a club return and the rubber was still in progress."

TODAY'S QUESTION: Your partner continues to three hearts. What do you do now?

ANSWER Tomorrow

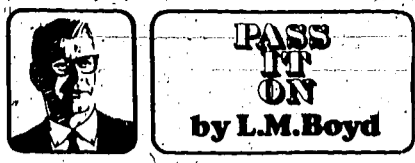

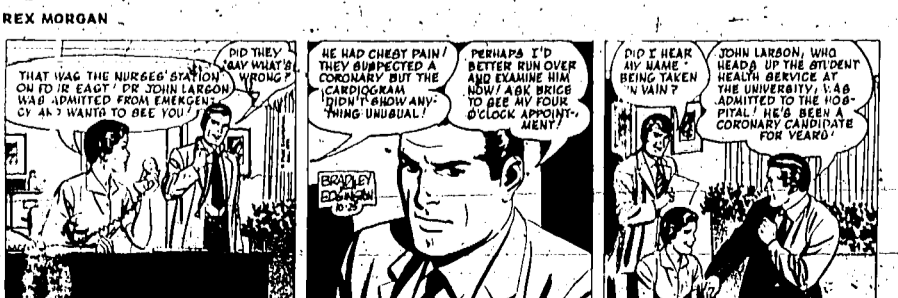

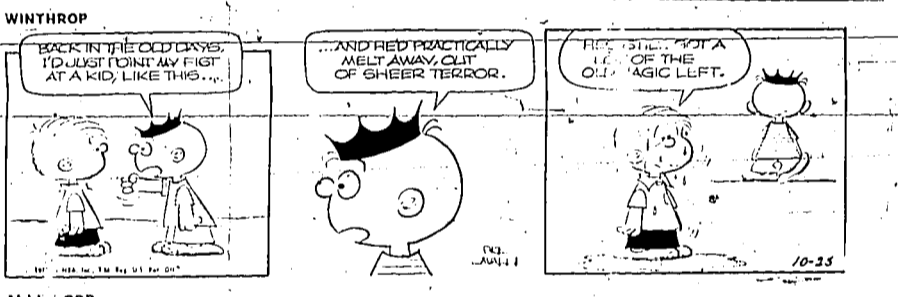

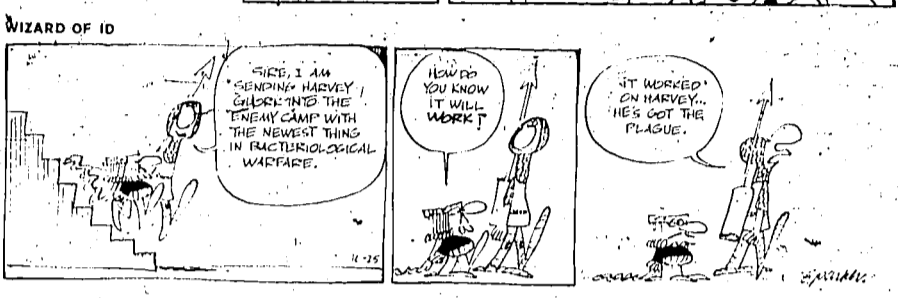

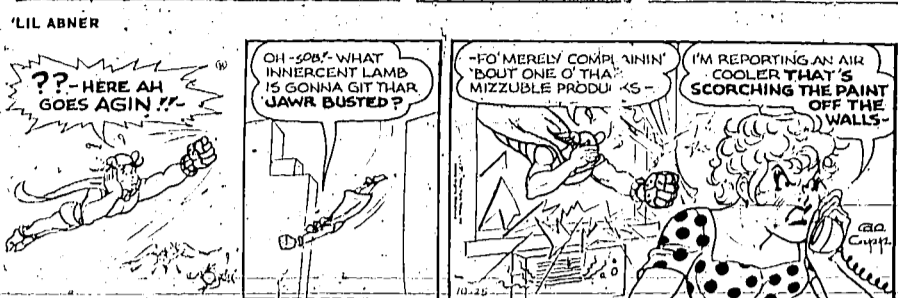

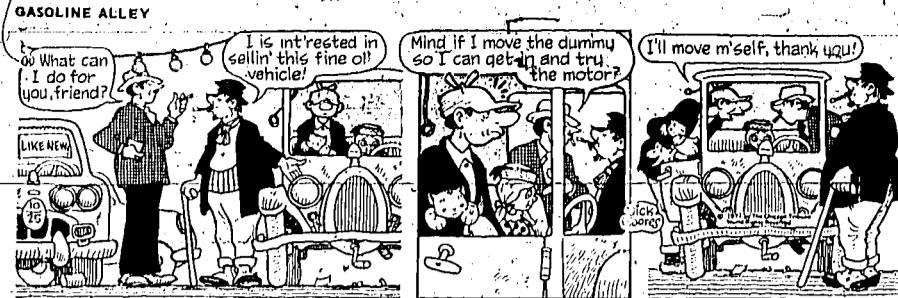

Oswald & James Jacoby Oswald: "Let's forget about small bids for awhile and concentrate on aces and when to play them."

Jim: "One good time is when you have plenty of the king, but there are plenty of other occasions."

Oswald: "WEST'S FOUR-spade call was one of those all-purpose preempts. His partner might make four spades and he couldn't be hurt then. It appeared imperative to join his opponents."

Jim: "North refused to be shut out. He stuck in a Blackwood four no-trump."

Oswald: "This led to a final contract of five hearts. West might have gone to five

"A SPINSTER," said Pat Suzuki, "is a girl who never learned how to tie a bow." That's cute, but not cruel. Ever is what "Playboy" magazine called a spinster. Namely, "an unmarried number." And whoever it was that described a spinster as "a girl who lives alone and looks it" was ut what plain wrong. At any rate, argument continues as to whata single girl correctly can be called a spinster. It's age 31. After that year, the statistics indicate, she's more ap to remain unattached than to marry.

"WINE," said Louis Pasteur, who had little occasio to visit skid road along the waterfront, "is the most healthfu and most hygienic of all beverages." IT'S ALS a recognized statistical fact that Los Angeles is the rape ce of the world... Runnersup, in order, are Kansas City, Savannah, Ga and Charleston, S.C.

CUSTOMER SERVICE: Q. "Which state gets the most sunshine, Arizona or New Mexico?" A. Arizona wins hat one. Sun shines there 86 per cent of the time. In New Mexico, it shines 77 per cent of the time. That state which gets the least sunshine is said to be Alaska, with 31 per cent of the time.

THERE WAS a time when the senoritas of old pain squeezed orange juice into their eyes. To put a certain intense brilliance into their glances. Can't remember it, however. Understand it smarts some... IT'S HIGHLY UNLIKELY you'll ever have a chance to see for yours so maybe I'd better tell you. Shape of your heart gen ally tends to take after the shape of your body. If you're thin, it's slim. If you're a bit rounder than average, it is, too.

SO, YOUNG LADY, you want to go to New York to be an actress, do you? All right, but bear this in mind. In department stores there, Macy's and Gimbel's, always on a lot of extra help before Christmas. That you know. A study of the applications which girls submit for those sales clerk jobs shows more than 200 every year list their occupation as "actress."

Play said harmful to bonds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The American Jewish Committee (AJC) charged Saturday that "Jesus Christ Superstar," the popular rock opera now on Broadway, threatens to damage relations between Christians and Jews because it wrongly places primary blame on Jewish priests for the Crucifixion.

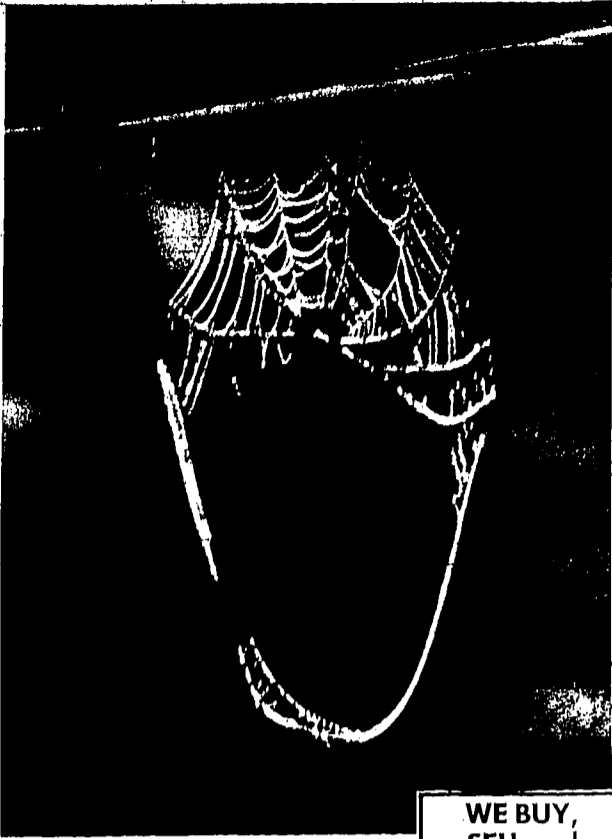

"Despite all its advance acclaim, (it) is potentially harmful as an instrument of anti-Jewish prejudice," said Rabbi Marc Tanenbaum, national director of interreligious affairs, for the committee.

The rock opera, which was picketed by Jewish groups in New York, was analyzed line-by-line by Gerald S. Strober, a former Presbyterian minister who is a consultant to the AJC on interreligious education.

His study, released by Tanenbaum, concluded that "in arbitrarily laying nearly all the blame (for Christ's death) on a group which the viewer knows to be Jewish whether the text says so or not, 'Jesus Christ Superstar' is, if nothing else, insufficiently thoughtful, potentially mischievous and possibly a backward step on the road toward improved Christian-Jewish relations."

Strober said the play bypasses the ultimate meaning of Christ's suffering and death in Christian belief, which "holds that all humans—then, now and always—contribute to Jesus' suffering by their sins."

The Jewish priests are portrayed in the play as "hideously inhuman and satanically evil, contemptuous, envious and bloodthirsty" without any support for this characterization in the New Testament.

Meet candidates at Friday forum

TWIN FALLS — Members of the League of Women Voters of Twin Falls will hold a candidate fair Friday at 8 p.m. to give Twin Falls voters an opportunity to meet and discuss issues with the 13 city council candidates. The meeting will be held in the YMCA building.

The League has invited all 13 hopefuls for the four council posts in the Nov. 2 city election to attend the evening program. Each will be given an opportunity to discuss issues and programs of his choosing and to mingle with the voters following the discussions for informal question and answer sessions and an opportunity to meet the voters on an individual basis.

This is the third such candidate fair the League has held in the past several years to acquaint voters with the candidates prior to city and general elections.

All interested voters are urged to attend. Mrs. Laird Noh is general chairman with other committee chairmen including Mrs. Patrick Florence, decorations; Mrs. Charles Wagner, hostesses; Mrs.

Herald Gerber, refreshments; Mrs. Loren Cannon, posters; Mrs. Ernest Salas and Mrs. Jorrt Raver and Mrs. Ward Pack, assisting.

Mrs. Stephen Smith, president, will moderate the discussion program.

Grumbles come uninvited.

Steam Clean gives 'em the business!

Grumbles are the deep down dirt in your carpet. They move in with the first muddy shoe and keep building up in layer after layer of cookie crumbs, cat fur, scorpions and peanut butter. Grumbles are stubborn! Surface scrubbing drives them in deeper. Chances are they'll reappear just as your mother-in-law walks through the door. There's only one way to really clean a carpet. Steam soil extraction! It leaves no residue and gets the Grumbles!

Mechanical scrubbing agitation and foam can drive the soil-laden suds deeper into the carpet pile. Steam clean injects wet steam with a cleaning additive and instantly accounts out the loosened dirt. Your carpets are not only clean but sanitary! Clean impacted areas are left refreshed, the pile clean and lifted.
